The initial tones are produced by the vibration of the vocal cords, aided by the throat, chest, and nose. Anything that interferes with any of these resonance chambers retards the rich overtones that are so necessary, and causes the voice to be unpleasant and unmusical. Any deflection of the cartilage or bony structures of the nasal septum, any acute or chronic inflammation of the mucous membrane of the nose or accessory sinuses, will materially alter the quality of the voice and make it disagreeable and inarticulate.

Jeane D' Reske considers the nose and the accessory sinuses so important that he stated that the more he studied the voice, the more he was convinced that a healthy condition of these cavities is necessary in order to obtain the greatest degree of success in singing and public speaking.

In the matter of respiration, the nose is important not only as a tube by which air is drawn into the lungs, but also for its function of changing the composition of the air, whereby it assists in the transfusion of oxygen and carbon dioxide that takes place through the walls of the air vessels. Its main function in this respect is to temper, humidify, and filter inspired air. At the entrance of the nose are small hairs intended to aid in the filtering process. By the aid of the microscope, it has been found that these hairs, by aiding in the filtration process, harbor disease germs and that many deaths have been caused by pulling them out for cosmetic purposes. Frequently small boils, or furuncles, are caused by this habit or by picking the nose; likewise are frequently produced deep abscesses and sinusitis, which often result in a fatal termination. One should be careful about pimples, small boils, etc., outside the nose or upper lip on either side, as there is here the same grave danger of a serious and fatal infection, as many physicians will testify. No pus-containing pimple should be opened unless the needle, or instrument used, is sterilized. A very handy way to do this is to place the needle in a gas jet or the flame products of Maine, California, Hawaii, Canada, and intermediate points arriving at the Auditorium, we rejoice with you in your offering and sense your nearness to us, and your recognition of the value of these events in their broadest sense.

For your information we offer the following, which speaks for local interest, action, and concern in the Harvest Festival:

The Great Northwest Club has approximately eight acres under cultivation and are canning. The Three-I Club has several acres. Spring Branch has, we believe, four acres. The California Club is on the job. The Sunny South Club is up and doing. The New England Club reports good results from their activities, one pledge being a check for two hundred dollars made out to the Bishop. All these organizations are wheels within wheels, members of local branches banded together for more active service and increased efficiency, doing their part in their respective groups, etc., and united under the various heads for branching out into fields not covered by branch or group work. As implied by their titles, they are former members of the Northwest, Iowa, Illinois, Indiana, etc., and hereby make their appeal to their home States for their offerings, which are handled by them on arrival and appropriately displayed.

Representatives from other States and districts are always on the job, hungrily eyeing packages as they arrive, hoping this one or that is from friends back home, and many a shout goes out when an arrival or consignment is announced as coming from favorite points.

There will be those who will be longing to hear from you or learn on arrival of your offering that you have not been unmindful of the poor in this period of church trial and world depression.

As an example of outside interest, we call attention of the Holden Stake request for sixty feet of space, where formerly twenty feet was occupied by them. Agricultural methods from the dawn of time to our day will be depicted. One can imagine the interest this will create. This will be in conjunction with their offering.

Scouts and look-out committees are on the job, buying the fruit of a tree here, picking on shares at another point, and in every way getting the good things of the earth to help the festival cause.

So it goes all along the line, and we confidently look forward to this festival, to see the products from distant climes flowing to Zion, and hope you also have caught the spirit of the harvest season as a time of thanksgiving.

Remember the dates—October 6 to 11, inclusive.

of a match. Carbon upon the needle will do no harm. But care should be taken not to touch the point of the needle with the fingers.

Reverting to the subject of the hairs in the nose, which are technically known as vibrissæ, I wish to emphasize the fact that they should be trimmed with scissors, as pulling them out is a bad practice and is the gateway for the entrance of bacteria, with resultant infection and suffering.

No matter what the temperature of the air is before it is inhaled, it is raised or lowered in conformity with the body temperature. In the organs of respiration, especially the nose, are to be found the greatest number of serious physical defects. In spite of the wonderful advance of scientific research and surgery, there is an immense amount of ignorance that continues to slaughter its legions and maim its millions with a consequent economic disaster. Early education concerning the care of our bodies will save us much money and much physical and spiritual deterioration.

Tom King: A Life History

PART FIVE

By C. H. Porter

(Continued from the Herald of July 29, page 706.)

Skaneateles Academy

The town of Skaneateles is located at the foot of the beautiful lake of the same name, in Onondago County. Its people were of the better class of citizens. They were conservative, religious, and well to do. Their homes were of the best and were well kept. The academy was an institution of which they were proud.

At the time of Tom's entrance, Professor W. C. Bowen was at the head of this school. He was of middle age, therefore in the prime of life.

He took a personal interest in the welfare of the students and had faith in their honor. This trust was sometimes abused. Sometimes it was necessary to leave students in the larger room while others were in the smaller ones with their teachers. At such times those in the larger room were placed on honor to conduct themselves properly, to be studious, and to take no advantage of the principal's absence.

At one time during Tom's stay at the school, the students abused the trust of the principal to such an extent that it challenged his attention. He availed himself of a favorable opportunity when all the students were in the larger room and gave them an impressive lecture. He made it plain to them that students placed upon their honor must be honorable or lose the privileges accorded them; that they must agree to honor the rules of the school in his absence, or arrangements would be made to have some one in the room with them at all times.

At the close of his lecture he called for a show of hands of all who would agree upon their honor to have no communication with other students, or in any way abuse the privilege accorded them during his absence. Out of a total of ninety-six, all except three or four, including Tom, held up their hands. He called upon each of those who failed to pledge themselves to give reason for their refusal to do so.

Tom was the last called upon. He said, "I shall be pleased to comply with every requirement asked of us, but I do not like to pledge myself on honor to hold no communication with any student during the absence of the principal for the reason that, if I did so, in the event of anyone coming to me to ask a question, or to communicate in reference to a lesson which at the time might seem necessary, I should be under the necessity of sitting dumb and be considered discourteous as a consequence. I do not like to make a promise which probably would result in gaining for me the ill will of my fellow students."

Mr. Bowen said, "You have all heard what Mr. King has said. We are prepared to accept his statement and shall trust him to do what is right, and shall expect all of you to respect his wishes in the matter and not to communicate with him during our absence unless it is absolutely necessary."

Tom worked hard while attending the academy. In his spare time he did anything by which he could earn an honest dollar, but he never neglected his studies to do so. He did not spend much time in a social way, but was studious, helpful, and of a decidedly religious disposition.

He attended a revival meeting at the Methodist church in Skaneateles that was largely attended, and attested his faith in the doctrine of Christ and his desire to live a Christian life.

Professor Bowen, himself a Methodist minister, asked him if he intended to unite with the church. He said, "Yes, whenever I feel so directed, but at present I do not feel so led."

The professor said, "Mr. King, we had hoped that you would, for we think it would be good for you and also a help to the other students."

Tom said he was sorry. "But," said he, "I asked for direction in this matter a good while ago and haven't received an answer yet, except that if I acknowledge the Lord in all my ways my paths shall be directed of him. I am waiting for that direction."

Mr. Bowen said: "Mr. King, I am not prepared to dispute your argument. Ordinarily I should say that you needed help from the church, but you are different from many others. You are naturally religious, and I do not think you can be induced to do a thing that you know to be wrong, and without doubt you will be properly directed."

Tom, by invitation, attended class at the Methodist church and was, one night in particular, strongly urged to unite with them. He gave his reasons for not doing so, thanked them for their assistance and good wishes, but said he must wait for direction in the matter.

Good old Doctor Ready, pastor of the church, was present. He said nothing in the meeting, but at the close he said, "God bless you, Brother King. What we need is God-directed men. Don't hurry. The Lord in his own time will call you to work in his vineyard."

His words were like prophecy to Tom. He never forgot them, and during a long life the memory of them was sweet, and it was always a matter of pleasure to him that at least one man understood and appreciated his position.

He no longer attended class and was not again requested to unite with them. Tom attended the academy during the fall and winter terms the first year, and the next he attended the full school year. During the last winter term, Professor Bowen announced that at the close of the school year, declamatory and mathematical prizes would be contested for. All members of the higher grades would be required to take part in the contest in mathematics. The students in rhetoric and logic, unless excused, would be required to take part in the declamatory contest.

Tom was both rapid and accurate in mathematics and was also taking studies in rhetoric and logic. He had no hope of winning a prize in the latter, for although he was good in the studies his language was imperfect, especially in reference to the use of the letter "h." To have a chance of winning in the former, it would be necessary to practice for the event.

Many of the students, realizing that their chance for winning the prize was not good, did not care to do this. All were given trial stunts in arithmetic, and it became apparent to some that Tom would be a formidable candidate.

Composition trials also were had, and he was commended for his good work. After repeated trials he felt confident that the real contest in mathematics was between him and two young ladies.

He was advised by a fellow student not to spend time in practice. "For," said he, "I have been through these things before and have found it a waste of time. I think you and I are about equal, and I know that I stand no show to win."

A student named Vedder thought differently. He said, "You had better practice hard. You may win. I stand no chance to win, but need the practice. We will help each other." They did so, and Tom won the prize, a fine edition of Lossing's History of the United States.

Several of his acquaintances and friends from Owasco attended the final declamatory contest and the awarding of the prizes at the closing exercises of the year, and Tom was warmly congratulated by his fellow students and others who wished him continued success in his future efforts.

Tom Returns to Everyday Life

When Tom left the academy, Professor Bowen urged upon him the necessity of continuing his studies, but Tom felt that the sterner duties of life now demanded his attention. He had to have immediate work, for his resources were exhausted, and he went back to his former employer to work for him the remainder of that season.

When winter was near he still desired work, for he had made the acquaintance of a young woman whom he desired to marry, that together they might make a home where more of life's comforts might be had.

The courtship had continued for some months, and nothing but an insufficiency of funds stood in the way of bringing it to the desired termination. He, therefore, accepted a position on the farm of David Brinkerhoff for a few months. He served here with satisfaction but missed the student life, which was so pleasing and profitable to him.

At the end of his term of service, he was married to the lady of his choice and wrote to his parents and friends in England that he had found one who was "loving and lovable, and in his sight lovely," and that life now looked fairer to him.

He chopped wood that winter to gain some income. He found the work hard and the weather severe, but in the long evenings to eat nuts or apples, or both, and have the company of one he loved, in their own home, was something worth working for, and he did not complain.

One more season Tom worked at farm labor in New York. The care of a family bore more or less heavily upon him, and with all his effort it seemed impossible to more than meet the necessary expense. He had no expensive habits. He did not smoke, drink, or gamble. He sometimes bought books, but with this exception nothing was spent for unnecessary things.

One evening Tom said to his wife: "I think it will be necessary for us to make a change. We have both tried hard to get along, but we can only just meet the necessary expense. We must do better, and we can not do it here."

They discussed the matter earnestly and at last decided to sell what they could of their belongings and move to Nebraska. Nebraska was decided upon because his wife had relatives who sent back good reports from there. Acting upon this, they packed what they desired to keep, sold the remainder of their belongings, bought tickets, and started for the West.

The journey was long and expensive, but they arrived safely at their destination in Saline County, in February, 1875.

They found accommodation temporarily with their friends and offered to work for anyone for any wages obtainable.

Work was soon found, but the pay was small, and frequently it was necessary to take anything the employer had to spare instead of money. This did not discourage Tom, and he soon proved his capability and willingness. He found all the work he could do, and was recognized as being bright, energetic, a good worker, and of somewhat scholarly attainment.

He took an active part in the affairs of interest in the neighborhood, such as spelling bees, debates, literary societies, and Sunday schools.

He and his wife made a home for themselves and enjoyed to the full their new surroundings, feeling that life was full of promise for them.

In due course of time they purchased a farm, bought a team of oxen to improve it with, built the necessary buildings, and looked upon Nebraska as their permanent home. But alas, for human hopes. Tom noticed with concern that the health of his wife was failing.

They had one living child two years of age, and there was a little grave in the Empire State. Now the bonny girl he had courted was changing slowly before his eyes into a pale-faced young woman. The roses that had been so attractive were seen no more, and lassitude had taken the place of buoyancy.

He was alarmed. He got the best advice the new vicinity afforded, but still no advance was made, and it was finally thought best for him to return with her to the vicinity in which she had been born and reared, that she might have better medical attention. Perhaps this was not a wise decision, but it was in accord with the advice of the attendant doctor, and it was soon acted upon. A purchaser was found for the land contract, and the personal property was sold at auction, in October, 1878.

Money was scarce, and the property brought little, but it gave them enough to make the change and a sum to place on deposit in the bank for future use.

(To be continued.)

Who Is Holding Up the Procession?

By Hubert Case

We have looked for the time to come when we could enjoy the things promised in the books of the church. God's word is true, so man must be at fault if he is not realizing fully on his investment.

It is written, "No man can assist in this work except he is humble and full of love, having faith, hope, and charity." Are we assisting in this work, or are we holding up the procession by lacking these virtues, and in lieu thereof substituting pride, selfishness, doubt, discord, and those other traits of character which have always retarded the work of the Lord?

Again we read, "Zion is the pure in heart." So here may be one of the obstacles in the way of our progress. Jesus said that out of the heart proceeds evil thoughts, and we must make clean the inside of the cup. By associating this with the words of the wise man who said, "Out of the heart are the issues of life," I am sure we have discovered the real cause of most of our troubles. Here is our real life work. Our greatest enemies are those within us and not without, so if we look at ourselves and not at the other fellows we will begin to make real progress.

In the World War the use of trench warfare allowed the enemy to hide. So are these enemies we are contending with hidden, but once they are out in the open where we can all see them in full view, we surely can meet and defeat them. When we were baptized, we routed those enemies, put them all out of our lives, and Jesus gave us peace, joy, and love divine. Our souls were clean, and a very wonderful heavenly Guest came unto us, the divine Comforter, a power to resist the counter attacks of all those enemies of righteousness. In this heavenly atmosphere we were very happy and loved everyone. Hate was not there. Of this happy state Jesus said, "I give you power to become the sons of God." And Paul said, "His servants ye are whom ye list yourselves to obey."

All our business affairs—all our dealings with each other and the world—are the tests, the issues of life proceeding from our hearts. Life is made up of the things we think and do. Our treatment of others is our type of Christianity, and everyone judges us by this brand, or trademark.

The world and the church are starving for the real milk of human kindness. Can Latter Day Saints produce the quality of sainthood the Lord requires to make a Zion here on earth, a city set on a hill which can not be hid?

Sermons on our fundamentals have stirred the noblest traits in the souls of all peoples wherever the angel's message has gone. They have challenged them to dedicate all their powers and talents to the achieving of our Zionic ideals. We have brought them in among us and have watched them become engulfed in the great mists that we have not cleared away. This is holding up the procession, Saints. Shall we by prayer and by humility lift the misty, foggy haze that surrounds us, and go forward in the strength of Israel's God to the culmination of the Lord's work. Or shall we leave the task to our children and grandchildren. Which should we do?

You say, What is to be done? Please tell us what we can do to overcome this condition.

The Lord has told us so many times, "Let contention cease," and yet we go on in our bickerings, contentions, jealousies, and all our selfish propensities, coddling these enemies of the souls of men and women. Yes, we coddle and pet them as if they were the virtues of which the Lord had commanded us to build character. Here are the real enemies brought right out in the open field of battle, and we have them to reckon with here and now.

These are the very enemies of the Saints which defeated the Zion of 1831 and for years thereafter until they began the march into the wilderness away from even the land of Zion as did Israel of old from the borders of the promised land under the leadership of Moses. Saints, have we not wandered long enough in the mists of the wilderness of these latter days? Oh, yes, you say, we have, but who will lead us out? The Lord will lead us out here and now if we will have confidence in the men of his choosing. The recent council has chosen business men to handle the business of the church on business principles. If we will do our duty and have confidence in these men, the Lord will speak to his people through the channel he has himself chosen. Let us not say as they did in the thirties when they were turned back into the wilderness, "We will not send our moneys up to Zion," for they kept their money, and the same disaster befell them that will overtake us if we do the same thing.

Since out of the heart are the issues of life, we had better begin now to issue forth a new life stream of thought, that will make us a people worthy of the Lord's blessings, and then and not until then can we build as he has commanded and usher in the reign of the King of Peace.

Enoch and his people did this, the people of Book of Mormon times did it, and so can we if we will.

THE GOSPEL FORUM

Under this heading we shall be glad to receive and publish articles and letters of interest to our readers on the doctrine and work of the church. Writers are responsible for their own views. Other views on subjects discussed here will be received if of sufficient interest.

The author of the following article will need no introduction to many of our readers. To those who do not know him, let us explain that he has a fine record of continuous and faithful service to the church; he spent several years in the mission field of Norway, and has been in more recent years a strong worker in a middle-western field. He bases his viewpoint, therefore, on experience.

Neglected Instruction

By E. Y. Hunker

There is no blinking the fact that our membership records carry the names of many persons whose interest in the church and its work is practically nil—and occasionally even less than that. Many who have been baptized and confirmed outwardly have never experienced an inward transformation. As a result the entire church has suffered. Real converts have been too few. Our records have continued to carry those who never became enlightened relative to the "weightier matters of the law," and who ultimately lost all sense of loyalty to the church. Neither their spiritual nor material support can be depended upon. Some have turned against the church; others have been entirely lost in oblivion.

Such results positively indicate that somewhere in our system something important has been neglected or overlooked. Adequate teaching for the strengthening, stabilizing, and instructing of new converts in the essentials of good, loyal citizenship in the kingdom of God has been sadly insufficient. Our missionary zeal has not always been properly balanced by the sane elements provided for in the word of God to this church. At times our missionary passion has been for increased membership rather than for a real program of soul-saving.

The Law

In the law given to the church we find this intelligent statement: "The duty of the members after

---

They enjoyed heaven here on earth, no poor among them. They were all rich, and so we can be if we will heed the lessons written in the books of the church. Then, who is holding up the procession? We, the people of the church are holding it up. The only reason for our existence on the earth in this generation is that we might build Zion. Now if we will rally to the call, lift up the banner of King Emmanuel by making clean our hearts, we can and will build Zion. Have we willing hearts?

they are received by baptism: The elders or priests are to have a sufficient time to expound all things concerning the church of Christ to their understanding, previous to their partaking of the sacrament, and being confirmed by the laying on of the hands of the elders; so that all things may be done in order. And the members shall manifest before the church, and also before the elders, by a godly walk and conversation, that they are worthy of it, that there may be works and faith agreeable to the Holy Scriptures, walking in holiness before the Lord."—Doctrine and Covenants 17: 18.

This excellent instruction has been too little heeded. There has come to be an established custom among us to confirm candidates immediately following baptism. And such procedure is certainly not in accord with the direction given. It is very definitely stated that if we are to do this work "in order," there is to be a period of teaching between the time of baptism and the time of confirmation.

Why Such Instruction Was Given

1. The Missionary Viewpoint.

The missionary vigor of the early church took missionaries into new localities where short, intensive missionary efforts resulted in the baptism of many souls. These candidates, in such brief periods of time, did not have opportunity to learn the entire teachings and doctrine of the church. It is, therefore, not difficult to comprehend why such instruction as Doctrine and Covenants 17: 18 was given. It was very timely, and had it received the attention due it, the entire church would have benefited thereby.

For our present problems it applies just as well. A missionary series even now is necessarily of short duration. If any missionary zeal at all is exhibited by our membership during such meetings, it must result in some nonmembers attending and hearing for the first time the "first principles" and other typical missionary topics. Conviction may come to hearers as to the truthfulness of that which is presented, and baptism may be requested prior to the missionary's departure.

Unless further competent instruction is at once provided for such candidates, they are likely to form the opinion that the things presented by the missionary constitute all that is necessary to entitle them to all the rights and privileges of full-fledged membership in the church. Such an opinion will consequently cause a number to take offense at supplementary sermons and teachings that deal with other significant and necessary phases of spiritual and saintly development. The order presented in section 17: 18, if followed, would prevent much of this undesirable experience.

These statements are not intended to diminish in any sense the duty and responsibility of the missionaries, or any other officers who may baptize, to thoroughly investigate and ascertain the worthiness of candidates for baptism. Certainly it is the duty of such men, as well as of the general membership, to see to it that the requirement of Doctrine and Covenants 17: 7 is fulfilled. Note the command:

And again by way of commandment to the church concerning the manner of baptism: All those who humble themselves before God and desire to be baptized, and come forth with broken hearts and contrite spirits, and witness before the church that they have truly repented of all their sins, and are willing to take upon them the name of Jesus Christ, having a determination to serve him to the end, and truly manifest by their works that they have received the Spirit of Christ unto the remission of their sins, shall be received by baptism into his church.

2. The Local Branch Viewpoint.

It should be realized that the local branch group has the right to demand, for the protection of its good name and its collective welfare, that any person desiring to unite with the body should provide convincing evidence of intention to abide by the law of God in its entirety. Such demand will be satisfactorily met when the converts, in the interim designated, will observe the conditions mentioned; viz:

The members shall manifest before the church, and also before the elders, by a godly walk and conversation, that they are worthy of it, that there may be works and faith agreeable to the Holy Scriptures, walking in holiness before the Lord.

Both the group and the new members will derive lasting benefits from adherence to this rule.

3. General Church Viewpoint.

Procedure according to Doctrine and Covenants 17: 18, would leave no justifiable excuse for those baptized to later object to the program of the church or to neglect the law of tithing, the doctrine of stewardship, Christian virtues, etc. If they are inclined to oppose these basic principles, they have the opportunity to do so before acceptance into full fellowship.

The Advantages

Both the candidates and the branches may thus ascertain whether or not the converts are willing to abide by the requirements of the gospel law. If so, they may be received into full fellowship by being confirmed. If not, they have the privilege to withdraw and to request release from further responsibility.

This method of procedure would eliminate much of the trouble that so often arises from dissatisfied members. It would make membership more selective, besides being sane, wise, and in harmony with God's law.

Objections

Objection may be raised on the ground that all such teaching could be done prior to baptism. However true that may be, the fact remains that it has not been and is not being done. One other pertinent fact injects itself here, and that is that God specified that such teaching should be done after baptism and prior to confirmation.

Objection again may come in regard to children who are reared under the influence of the church. Some think they can be sufficiently taught so that confirmation may immediately follow baptism. But even in the case of children who have been thus reared, a period of competent instruction previous to confirmation would certainly impress more deeply upon their plastic minds the sacredness and worthwhileness of their becoming Saints. Such a course positively would do no harm, while every law of reason and logic manifests that it would do much good.

Suggestions

This article is intended to be constructive rather than arbitrary or negative. The suggestion is that (1) the proper authorities of the church should begin the work of influencing throughout our membership a favorable attitude toward this vital instruction to the church, so that in a reasonable length of time the unified support of the branches and the general church workers may be gained to this end.

2. Appropriate class work for newly baptized members should be provided and urged.

3. The leaders of the church whose duty it is to instruct and direct should work out a plan or course especially designed for the proper teaching of candidates after baptism and prior to confirmation. This plan should inculcate specific instruction as to the duties of membership relative to (a) Christian character, (b) spiritual growth, (c) tithing, offerings, temporal stewardships, and Zion, and (d) providing for new converts a list of proper reading and study material that will impress them with the beauty of the distinctive features of the latter-day work and lead them into larger fields of constructive Christian thought and development.

---

Life is made up, not of great sacrifices or duties, but of little things in which smiles and kindnesses, and small obligations, given habitually, are what win and preserve the heart and secure comfort.—Sir. H. Davy.

---

The power of love in its highest form is the power of God, for God is love. Love is the power chosen by God to redeem the world.—Selected.

The Blessings of Adversity

By Edwin H. Davies

When we come to look back on the experience of a lifetime, we admit that prosperity is not always a blessing, and on the other hand adversity is often a blessing in disguise.

What do we mean by adversity? The world calls it "bad luck." We generally deem that adversity when our plans miscarry and our calculations and expectations fall short of realization. If we are in normal health we are inclined to regard the future with optimism, that bright days, days of joy and satisfaction, are in store for us. But when these hopes are dashed to the ground, when dark days of disappointment, sorrow, and weeping, days of want and dearth come upon us, we regard such as days of adversity.

These present times of depression are for many, not a time of prosperity, but of adversity. Heavy losses are being incurred, many are going into debt heavily, others are asking how they are going to meet their financial obligations, some are being called on to assign their estate to their creditors and begin again at the bottom of the ladder. And brighter times do not seem to be casting their shadows before. But the saints of God who have studied his ways do not look on adversity in the way that some do. It does not follow that God is angry or disappointed in us because we find ourselves sometimes in the valley, but because he has thoughts of love and peace towards us. As a father chastens a son in love, that he may be broken of evil habits, or as a physician inflicts pain in order to save from more serious pain, so God often leads his children through dark days and over difficult ways, in order that they may be kept in the narrow path. It probably appeared as a great adversity to Joseph when he was sold into bondage of Egypt by his brethren, and more so when as an innocent man he was cast into prison. But all this was only a school through which God led him for the purpose he was going to use him.

In Joseph's case we have an illustration of the words, that to them that love God all things must work together for good. The saints of God in every age have passed through similar experiences. Through many storms the mariner becomes an experienced seafaring man; through many battles a man becomes a valiant soldier.

Let us not forget that every dark cloud has its silver lining. We often need to develop greater faith that we may be able to see and trust the invisible hand of God taking care of us through these times of tribulations, trials, and adversities.

Adversity helps to make us humble, as God can

CHURCH WORK AND SERVICES

Guiding the Nursery Child

STUDY HELPS FOR PARENTS AND WORKERS IN THE NURSERY DEPARTMENT OF THE CHURCH SCHOOL

By Mrs. Bertha Stevens, 806 North Seventh Street, Phoenix, Arizona

The text, Guiding the Nursery Child, by Mesley and Stevens, may be ordered from the Herald Publishing House. Price, $1.25.

LESSON EIGHT

How Children Learn (Part II)

In our last lesson we considered the original forces, the instinctive tendencies, and the emotions that influence activity and the neural mechanism through which physical and mental reactions occur.

In this lesson we are to take account of certain laws by which all learning is governed.

With this basis we shall be in a position to more not use us unless we are humble and full of love. In the days of prosperity we are prone to forget that we are in constant need of his guiding hand, and protecting care. In the day of prosperity we are apt to grow cold in prayer, but in the days of adversity we learn to pray more fervently. In the days of prosperity we sometimes become selfish, but in the days of adversity our sympathies towards others are awakened. In prosperity we are apt to become worldly minded, self-centered, and pay too much attention to the things of this life, to the neglect of higher ideals. Our vision becomes dimmed, and often the financial law of the church is overlooked, but in adversity we learn to lean heavily upon his promises.

Adversity has brought about many a marked change in this respect in many a man's life. It has led him to look up from the material things of this life to things above. It has convinced him that there is something higher to seek than just a comfortable living in this life. So today, as the church is passing times of adversity, the call is more than ever for valiant-hearted men, humble men with clear vision, fired with the spirit of the angel's message, men with a long view, not easily attracted by the things close at hand. This church is of God's design set up for the last time. He is in it, and if we will do our best, he will guide us, and will bring all things together for the good of those who love him.

SUBIACO, WEST AUSTRALIA.

properly guide the behavior of the little chap of the "match episode," the while we respect the urges that motivated his undesirable methods.

To guide our study this month we append the following outline:

I. Laws of learning:

- a. Readiness—mental set—preparedness.
- b. Exercise—repetition—use and desire.
- c. Effect—satisfactions, annoyances, "rewards and punishments."

II. Application of laws to following problems:

- a. The "match" problem of lesson seven.
- b. Learning to follow a regular bedtime schedule.
- c. Formation of proper eating habits.
- d. Learning to share with others.
- e. Breaking some undesirable habit.
- f. Suggest, from your own experience, some original problems and the application of these laws in their solution.

We shall be interested to receive written solutions from students in this course who have decided how the "match" situation should have been handled, or some similar "problem."

Use the following outline in recording your report after stating the problem:

1. List the instinctive tendencies shown in the child's behavior. In the mother's.
2. In your opinion what satisfactions did he get from the experience of lighting the fire or whatever the experience you have listed?
3. Should he have been punished?
4. How might one assist the child to a legitimate satisfaction of the urge exhibited?
5. How could the "laws of learning" be effectively applied to the situation?

Helpful references for Lesson Eight:

Guiding the Nursery Child, pages 107-110; 123-153.

Method in Teaching Religion, Betts and Hawthorne, chapter 5.

Psychology of Childhood, Norsworthy and Whitely, chapter 11.

Psychology of Learning, Pyle.

Pupils in the Church School, Lamoreaux.

Principles of Psychology, James, vol. 1, chapter on "Habit."

Educational Psychology, Thorndike.

Psychology for Students of Education, Gates.

Psychology (revised), Woodworth.

Any of these references which may be available, or any good text on educational or general psychology, may be used.

NEWS OF CHURCH AND HOME

Address all news and letters to Editors of the Herald, Box 237, Independence, Missouri. Correspondents are requested to make their letters brief. The Editors reserve the right, on account of space limitations, to shorten all letters as circumstances require.

Summer Work of an Apostle in the Mission

London, England, July 20.—The annual reunion of the British Isles Mission, held at Manchester, England, May 23 to 25, was a spiritual, educational, and social success. It is always well to move past artificial barriers such as district boundary lines to come in contact with the most representative expression of church truth. Provincial views are thus guarded against, and a unity in viewpoint and procedure is encouraged. The attendance was fair, but affected by the industrial depression.

Almost immediately following the close of the reunion the writer conducted the funeral of David A. Judd, next to the youngest son of John A. Judd, of Enfield, president of the Southern District.

On my way to do industrial work in Holland and Germany, I left Harwich on May 29, via the Hook of Holland, for Rotterdam. The channel was the smoothest I ever experienced. Already the increase in the number of tourists to Europe was noticeable.

What was done at Rotterdam was a fair sample of the character of labor done elsewhere: preaching, holding priesthood meetings, advising, regulating, and visiting in the homes. Additional ministerial help was provided in the ordination of Arie Mosterdijk, elder; Isak de Heer, priest; Martin van Erkel, priest; Garrat Dreuth, teacher.

In 1924 a few Saints here were organized by Elder J. F. Curtis and myself into a branch. Now there are one hundred and thirty-five members.

Elder Frank Veenstra, missionary, served exceptionally well in interpreting.

At Swagwesteinde, in the northern part of Holland, Brother Veenstra, aided by his devoted wife, has been laboring for about one year. Here we have thirty-four members. At their home I was well cared for during my stay.

In going north from Rotterdam one's attention is attracted to the numerous herds of Holstein cattle grazing on the low, level, rich pasture lands.

The weather is cool, pleasant, and showery.

Wages are low, homes are small, and meals are meager, compared with the American standard of living.

On June 12 I took my departure from Swagwesteinde for Hanover, Germany. Elder Carl F. Greene met me at the station, and soon I was comfortably located in his home, both he and Sister Greene ministering to my every want. After Hanover, the next places visited were Braunschweig, Halle, Berlin, Gross Raschen, Gross Wartenburg, and Augsburg.

Gross Wartenburg is on the Poland border. The Sunday we were here was a beautiful day, and in addition to the branch membership there were Saints from Breslau and Poland. A group of young people provided fine band music, all meetings being held in the open. Elder John Stebel, missionary to Poland, thirty-one years of age, secured permission to cross the line, and I had a good conversation with him. He speaks German and Polish fluently, and as a result of studying English from books it is astonishing how much he is able to understand. It would be well if he could be in Graceland for a time and have some experience in the States.

In the old historic city of Augsburg, in the southern part of Germany, founded by the Roman Emperor Octavian Augustus, twenty have been baptized this year. It was here where the famous Diet met, at which the articles of the Augsburg Confession were handed to Emperor Charles V. For the present the work here will be carried on as a mission.

Disappointment was expressed in some quarters in Scandinavia because I did not visit there, but conditions rendered my going inadvisable. Elders P. T. Andersen and V. D. Ruch have done good work in Norway the past year, the prospect being very encouraging for a firm foothold in Oslo. This is as it should be. From such an influential center they can move out.

It was a pleasure to meet Brother and Sister Arthur McKim and their two children in Paris as I was on my way to London. To meet friends in a foreign land is doubly delightful.

It is a relief after seven weeks of intensive labor in the midst of strange tongues to be back among English-speaking people.

There are forces at work in the English field which afford encouragement for the future. All the presidents of districts have given the fullest cooperation, and this has been appreciated.

And now, my mind frequently turns to August 29, when I expect to sail on the Samaria from Southampton for home.

PAUL M. HANSON.

Chicago, Illinois

Central Branch, Sixty-sixth and Honore Streets

Hot weather takes its toll from the city and consequently from our services. Many are gone on vacations, but, though attendance at church school is slight, those who are present gain strength and good from their classes. The Sunday evening services during July and August have been discontinued. However, attendance is good at the midweek prayer service, and the Saints are growing spiritually in times of distress.

Among the numerous visitors to Chicago, we have counted Elder and Sister J. O. Dutton. Brother Dutton's sermon clearly set forth the differences existing between the Inspired Version of the Bible and the King James Translation.

The music department, under the direction of Sister Lela Eskridge, has given splendid service. Special quartet and solo work has been rendered by a number of faithful singers. Mother's Day, Father's Day, and Sacrifice Sunday were observed with special music and sermons. The Children's Day program was directed by Sisters Pearl Kerr, Lela Eskridge, Erma Sherman, and Emily Nelson. Individual work was done by the children, and there were chorus numbers. Decorations consisted of wild flowers, and there were birds.

During the month of May, C. E. Schmid, city missionary, gave two illustrated lectures, "The Life of Paul," and "The Story of Jesus." He was assisted by Brother W. Eskridge, Sister Schmid at the piano and Sister Eskridge in charge of the music.

Pastor Keir is very much pleased with the interest taken in the priesthood class recently organized.

It was also gratifying to note the splendid response to Sacrifice Week. A sum of five hundred dollars was realized from this branch, showing what a concerted effort means. Though the summer heat was intense, the women gave a bake sale from which they realized thirty dollars. Several donations of money were received by the women workers.

Excellent sermons have been delivered from our pulpit this summer. Speakers have been Brothers Rowlett, Schmid, Keir, P. Pement, W. Eskridge, J. O. Dutton, William Bell, C. Evans, R. Hurst, Ed. Lowe, and some of the themes presented have been "The Love of God," "Life, the Time to Prepare to Meet God," "Peace, Be Still," "Our Savior's Voice to Us in These Troublous Times," "The Lord Is My Shepherd," "We Should Present Our Bodies, a Reasonable Sacrifice," and "Repentance." Brother Keir preached the sermon introducing Sacrifice Week, and Brother W. Eskridge preached the sermon at the close.

Elders J. O. Dutton, C. B. Hartshorn, and Harry Passman were present at the sacrament service in June, each bearing his testimony to the truth of the latter-day work and the love he has for it.

June 20 Elder O. A. McDowell performed the marriage ceremony of Miss Helen Kimball, daughter of Brother and Sister W. Kimball, and Mr. Verne Gardner.

Miss Stella Maud Thoman and Jerome Compton were recently married, and a miscellaneous shower was given in their honor at the home of Brother and Sister Thoman. Fay Bell Keir had charge of the event.

The Saints wish for these newly wedded young people happiness and prosperity.

A picnic supper was enjoyed June 22 by the young married people's division of the church school. They motored to Wolf's Lake.

Brothers Keir and Eskridge were in charge of the July sacramental service. Brother T. Spuehler sang "Nearer, Still Nearer," during the intermission. In his earnest talk Brother Keir presented the significance of the sacrament, the call of Christ, and the blessing of eternal life. Many faithful testimonies characterized the expressions of the Saints.

Sister Cora Keir was able to meet with us on a recent Sunday after many weeks of illness. Also Sister Wainwright, who has been ill for over a year, is now able to be out to services. These with many others have been under the watchful care of a kind heavenly Father. Special prayers were had for Sister Alta McNickl and Sister Johnson, of DeKalb, one recent Wednesday evening. Brother J. J. Oliver, who has been ill with rheumatism, is again at the services of the branch.

Two babies were lately blessed by Brothers Keir and Lowe, Thomas Eugene, the son of Brother Thomas and Sister Luella Horton Holt, and Arline Priscilla, the daughter of Sister Mable Thomas Miller and husband.

The daughter and two grandchildren of Brother and Sister Eugene Horton, injured in an automobile accident, are recovering nicely.

Attendance was slight on July 19, but God blessed the speaker, Brother Clem Evans, whose subject was, "The Magnitude of God's Creation." In the absence of the director of music and Sunday school superintendent, Brother T. Spuehler and wife, Mildred, took charge.

Brother Ed Lowe was the speaker the last Sunday in July. The choir sang, and there was a solo by Sister Sarah Batton, "God's Way Is the Best Way."

Colorado Sunday Schools Get Together

July 26.—Saints and friends of the Genoa, Colorado, Sunday school visited our Sunday school at Fair Haven, June 14. There were also some from other points. Disappointment was felt that the Goodland Sunday school could not be present. It is thought they will come to Fair Haven at a later date.

Sixty people attended the Sunday school on this morning, and there were about seventy-five present at the service following. Sacrament and preaching services were in charge of Brother Sutton. Basket dinner and social hour at noon gave expression to the fellowship and friendliness that prevailed.

Three babies were blessed on that day.

The host group at Fair Haven hopes all will return at some future time, for this gathering has proved a bright spot in the memory of all.

Southern Saskatchewan Conference

July 25.—To the Southern Saskatchewan District the 1931 conference brought reassurance that the Reorganized Church is the true church of Jesus Christ and that through it is the way to salvation and happiness. This district has been made a point of attack by some who are seeking to injure the church, and many misleading and malicious tales have been circulated; also crop failures in the face of a world depression have left many in financial distress. Nevertheless, attendance at the conference was larger this year than ever before, and because of the earnestness and humility of the members, the Spirit of the Master was present to a great degree. When the Saints departed, it was with the assurance that the redemption of Zion has begun and that the stewardship program embodies Christ's plan which will eventually supplant the individualistic world system.

Apostle James A. Gillen presided over the conference, being assisted by District President J. R. Neil. During the three days, July 17, 18, and 19, of the conference, a series of inspiring and edifying sermons and lectures was given by Apostle Gillen and Missionary Joseph Sandige.

Brother Gillen with his kind disposition and a lifetime spent in the service of the church, did not want for eager listeners. With a conviction rooted in years of experience and the assurance that comes from being in close touch with God, he was a compelling speaker. His testimony of the truthfulness of the gospel was couched in no uncertain terms. It was not, "I think this is the gospel of Jesus Christ," but "I know, I know it is!" And the presence of the Holy Spirit testified to the truthfulness of his statements. One listener who is not a member of the church said, "I am deeply impressed by your minister. His sincere conviction is more eloquent than words. He radiates his conviction, and I am sure it could be founded only upon the truth."

Brother Gillen emphasized the necessity of observing the laws of God, for when we do the Lord is bound to bless us. He pointed out that to get results from the natural laws, we must bring ourselves in harmony with them, and the same is true of the spiritual laws which God has enacted.

We hope Brother Gillen returns to this district often, as his religious philosophies, his Christian virtues make him welcome in our midst.

Elder Joseph Sandige dealt with the "fulfillment of prophecy" in an able and enlightening manner. During his discourse he presented the deplorable condition of the world and emphasized the need for Zion where Christianity may be demonstrated.

Sister J. R. Dickson gave a report of the Women's Department, and all were impressed with the work that can be and is being done by the women of the church. Their achievements are encouraging and were eulogized by Brother Gillen in a short address.

Sunday, July 19, proved to be a very interesting day. From ten o'clock till noon a spiritual prayer and sacrament service was held, during which the Saints partook of the emblems. After the sacrament, there were many strengthening testimonies to the truthfulness of the gospel. Among the members were some who had met together twenty-five or thirty years ago to worship, and they assured all that they felt the spirit in this meeting just as they did in earlier days.

During the service the beautiful ceremony of blessing babes was performed. The daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Levans, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Neil, and Mr. and Mrs. William Neil. The rite was administered by Elders J. Sandige and J. R. Neil.

At four o'clock the Saints assembled on the bank of the Weyburn River, where a dam makes a beautiful little lake, and three were added to the church by baptism, Delbert Williams, of Weyburn, Saskatchewan, about ten years old; Charles Dreher, of Broomhead, about the same age; Charles Bruder, a young man from Regina, Saskatchewan. The baptismal rites were performed by Elder Joseph Sandige, and that evening the confirmation was administered by Apostle Gillen and Elder Sandige.

During the business session Elder J. R. Neil was appointed district president, with Brother A. R. Toovey and Brother J. Miller assistants. Sister Myrtle Neil was appointed organist. Sister Gerald Whatom was chosen Sunday school superintendent; Sister J. R. Dickson, appointed superintendent of the Women's Department. Brother A. R. Toovey was sustained bishop's agent, and V. H. Fisher, of Tyvan, Saskatchewan, was elected secretary of the district.

During the conference, Saints residing in Weyburn responded to the needs of visiting members in a generous manner, furnishing them rooms and meals and refusing anything in return. It matters not how difficult times become, Saints possessed of the spirit of brotherhood and Christianity are bound to succeed. That attitude will enable them to build Zion.

Minot, North Dakota

The past few months in Minot Branch have been spent in the usual summer manner, traveling from home to home at different points in the branch every Sunday, having dinner together and all-day services. The weather has been so abnormally hot and dry that some of the Sundays have taxed the endurance of all, but there has been no falling off in attendance.

Pastor Warren McElwain and daughter Pearl, accompanied by Brother McElwain's mother, who is visiting him from Independence this summer, drove to Fargo for the district conference the last of June. They report a fine conference and pleasant reunion with old friends.

The adult division in the Sunday school is studying "Jesus and His Message." The class is usually taught by the pastor, though he frequently calls upon others to substitute for him. Superintendent Frank Spaulding is always at hand, earnest in his work and popular with the branch as a speaker. He has just returned from a trip through the eastern part of the branch, where he called upon members who are isolated, encouraging them and urging them to continued effort.

District President Charles J. Smith visited here before conference, and we were happy to greet him again on Sunday, July 26, when the group met at the old reunion grounds at Logan, now the home of Brother and Sister George Stredwick.

The Sunday School adult class was taught by Sister Graham, the subject, "Giving Sight to the Blind." Stress was laid on the effect and results of mental and spiritual blindness of the world, and of Latter Day Saints.

Preaching services followed, with Elder Charles J. Smith occupying the pulpit, presenting his subject, "The Kingdom of God," in an especially clear and able way. He brought to his hearers a keen realization of their own covenant, and their duties as they developed in the kingdom. His discourse also made very clear the solemnity and sacredness of the baptismal service. This was most timely, for at the conclusion all moved quietly to the river's edge, where Elder Warren McElwain awaited them, and eight children were led into the waters of baptism. Some of these children are the third generation of one family; the others the second; but what seemed most significant was that these children completed the family circle in the church in all three families represented. The joy of the parents must be full when they see the results of home training and teaching and realize that they are preparing the future workers of the church.

After dinner came the confirmation service. Elders Charles J. Smith, Warren McElwain, William Sparling, and Charles A. Smith officiated. C. J. Smith concluded by a few appropriate words and benediction.

Minot Branch is growing slowly and steadily, not so much so from new converts but from transfers and baptisms of children in families.

The Sacrifice Week result was not quite as high as that of last year, but the funds keep coming, and our July effort exceeded June, making both months $199.12 as against $213.54 for the same period of 1930. This is not a bad record for the part of the State which is utterly devoid of crops and suffering from drouth to the extent that government aid has been called for.

We continue to have faith in God. We hope that by seeing more clearly our duty and doing it, we may be led through this period of drouth and depression, more surely deserving the blessings of God.

Cleveland, Ohio

East One Hundred Tenth Street and Lee Avenue

Children's Day was observed in Cleveland with an appropriate program in which the children and young people took part. The new baptismal font was initiated on that day by the baptism of a young girl. The confirmation was attended to at the evening service. One baby was blessed at the morning service.

June 20 and 21 was the time of a district institute of religious education, at Cleveland, sponsored by the district president, J. E. Bishop, and Brother Will Webbe, superintendent of the Department of Religious Education. Five sessions were held, three teachers officiating. This has already been reported to the Herald readers, so we shall not repeat. We were happy to have Brother G. E. Hammond, of Akron, to speak for us in the evening at the close of the institute. His remarks were timely.

A heavy storm swept over the city on June 26, doing much damage in the way of uprooting trees, crashing plate-glass windows, and wrecking the electric light wires, while water flooded the streets and in many places filled the basements of homes. Our church was without light for twenty-four hours.

The usual vacations at this time of the year have cut down attendance at the services, but interest in the work has not subsided. Picnics are the order of the day now, and the vicinity of historic Kirtland seems to be the choice of places.

Sacrifice week, June 21 to 28, was observed in Cleveland Branches by fasting from the evening meal on Wednesday and Friday and from the noon meal on Sunday, previous to the special prayer service that was held on the 28th at 2.30 p. m. While the monetary offering may not have reached the total we had hoped for, we feel that the week's experiences have helped the Saints to higher grounds of spirituality, and given them a greater determination to go on. Appropriate music and reading, "A Missionary Who Sacrificed," contributed harmonizing thoughts to the sermon of the morning service of the 28th.

July 3 saw three sisters added to our number by baptism. We are hoping there are others near the making of this decision. These, with three that have come to the branch by transfer, help to accelerate the thought of our motto, "Watch us grow," which means spiritually as well as numerically.

July 9 marks the milestone of our pastor's life, and as three of our young lady members have birthdays on July 10, they conceived the idea of having a birthday party for all of them, only it was to be a surprise to the male member of the quartet. And it was so. A goodly number gathered for the regular Friday evening classes, and the pastor's heart was made happy at the increased number, but soon began to feel suspicious, and when they invited everybody into the basement he was sure there was something more than class work to bring them to the church. The superintendent of the church school, in a very fitting talk, presented the pastor a purse to help him prepare for the winter. An appetizing lunch was served, and after a few games were played and the usual song, "Blest Be the Tie That Binds," sung, the crowd dispersed wishing the pastor and the girls many more such happy occasions.

A new opening for services has been made at Berea, a village about fifteen miles southwest of Cleveland. Through the efforts of Brother J. J. Phare, the use of the commodious and comfortable chapel of one of the undertakers of the place was obtained, and Elder F. T. Haynes, of Lakewood Branch, preached the first sermon July 5. Services are held each Sunday afternoon at three o'clock. Some Cleveland Saints have helped to swell the attendance, and assisted in the music.

During the Shriners' convention, we had the pleasure of seeing the Clark family, of circus fame, at our midweek prayer service. Their testimonies were helpful.

Kirtland reunion convenes next week, August 6, and regular services will be dismissed in Cleveland for that period. We hope from the impetus that will be received from the attendance there that our work may be taken up with renewed vigor when we return. We are hoping for greater things in the way of growth in Cleveland in the coming months. We are always glad to greet our friends at the church, even if only for one service.

Madison, Wisconsin

219 Jackson Street

The evening of June 18 the primary department of the church school gave a hobby show, under the direction of Lee Root, superintendent. The things the children made were very good. Rewards in money were given—three prizes to the boys and three to the girls, $1, 50 cents, and 25 cents. Judges were Mary Woodstock and Leda Colbert.

June 21, 22, and 23 Apostle D. T. Williams preached some splendid sermons.

Most of the Madison Saints attended the all-day meeting at Sister Hoague's at Evansville.

Sister J. B. Clemons died June 24, and Elder L. Houghton preached the funeral sermon. He was assisted by Elder H. W. Woodstock.

Services have not been so well attended this summer as they usually are. One factor contributing to this condition has been the excessively hot weather. Elder L. Houghton is helping all he can.

Brother and Sister Henry W. Woodstock are very proud these days. They are now called "Grandma" and "Grandpa." A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Williard Woodstock July 6. He has been named Lowell Williard.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Orville Dahlem July 29.

One more member has been added to this branch through the personal evangelism of Sister Elfie Duncan, a young woman who is a beauty culturist, Mrs. Mather. Brother Houghton baptized the candidate, assisted by Brother Woodstock.

Reunion for Kentucky and Tennessee

The Puryear reunion is over. Its 1931 session proved wonderful for the Saints of Kentucky and Tennessee District. It opened July 18 and continued over Sunday, July 26. The first session was one of business, then came a service of prayer. In the evening Elder A. M. Baker preached. On Sunday, the following day, a prayer meeting and sacrament service were had in the morning, and Elder J. O. Dutton delivered an instructive sermon. Elder T. Newton occupied in the afternoon, and in the evening Elder Baker preached. There were large crowds, and the tabernacle was surrounded by cars.

During the reunion Brothers Baker and Dutton did most of the preaching. The Saints sang and prayed for rain, which was sorely needed in that territory, and on Monday night the rain came. So much rain fell that the roads became exceedingly muddy, and people driving in cars were unable to reach the Tuesday morning meetings. Some cars were so mired down that the riders were forced to make the rest of the trip on foot. The first to appear in this fashion was Brother Dutton, who had spent the night at Brother Gallimore's home. The morning prayer meeting was conducted by Brother Newton, and the people rejoiced in God's gift of rain and the prospects for an abundant harvest.

From this day the weather continued fair, and the reunion interest grew. On Friday the time of prayer meeting was extended to allow the meeting to continue from 9.45 in the morning until noon. A wonderful season was experienced, the Lord pouring out his Spirit on his people. The gifts of the gospel were abundantly given. Again on Saturday the Spirit was poured out upon the Saints in prayer. Many in this group had never before witnessed the gifts of the gospel, prophecy and tongues, and were deeply impressed.

Eight people were baptized into the church during the reunion, two being heads of families. The Saints are renewing their covenants with great earnestness and pledge to pay tithing and try harder than ever before to live their religion.

"I am sanguine for the future of the Kentucky and Tennessee District," writes Brother Thomas Newton, who is the district president; "the work here is on an upward trend. God is blessing his people, and the promises are that although trials await the Saints, God will be with us and deliver us if we do our duty. The principal part of the message to the Saints is that we shall set up in our homes the family altar, and devote more time to prayer. Our reunion is a splendid institution. It revives the members."

On the final Saturday the district conference assembled in the afternoon. District officers were sustained and business transacted. The next conference will convene at Paris, the second Saturday in February. It was decided to conduct a reunion in 1932.

One of the Church's Oldest Members Has Passed Away

To Saints in Santa Barbara "Grandma" Fanny Lytel is "just asleep." She was "grandma" to everyone in the branch, and the memory of her beautiful life lingers in the mind of every member and friend. Her passing occurred at Santa Barbara, California, June 10, 1931, and her funeral was one of the largest and most impressive ceremonies there in some time. Her six stalwart grandsons bore the casket to its last resting place, and California's beautiful flowers abounded.

Now that she is gone on, her life of service to others assumes new meaning to her friends and loved ones. "Grandma surely filled her mission on earth," writes Brother Clarence J. Lant, teacher of the branch; "her dear sweet old voice could always be heard leading the old familiar tunes, and when listening to a speaker she sat in rapt attention. It will be a hard matter to convince ourselves that the seat she regularly occupied in church can ever be filled by another. We shall miss her, but her absence will remind us that we must have a greater reverence for those whose efforts in the latter-day work have preceded ours."

Sister Lytel was born November 26, 1849, at Council Bluffs, Iowa. She married Omer G. Lytel in 1863, and was the mother of three sons and three daughters. She has been a member of the church since 1857, being baptized at the age of eight years. For seventy-four years she was faithful to the restored message.

Of her life one of her daughters has written: "She was never happier than when she could find something to do for some one. Her hands never grew tired of assisting in supplying the needs of those about her. She was never known to think of herself. The task which was too arduous for others was the one she chose. No one was a stranger to her, for she loved humanity, and through her sweet and beautiful life she won many friends."

Sister Lytel lived in Independence, Missouri, for thirty years. She lived the law, spiritual and temporal, all her life. Her friends have a splendid example after which to pattern their own lives.

Independence

One hundred years ago this week the Temple Lot was dedicated by the early Saints. To commemorate this event, a pageant was presented to the Saints of Independence at the Sunday evening service at the Campus. Through the presentation of this historical play, the large audience was again able to live the happenings of the early days in Independence. The date for the pageant was supplied by Historian S. A. Burgess and arranged by Mrs. Alice M. Edwards, while the actual production was under the direction of Mrs. A. B. Taylor, Mrs. D. S. McNamara, and Mrs. J. A. Gardner of the White Masque Players.

The three acts of the play took the audience back to scenes of the first mission to the Indians, the laying of the first log for a habitation in Colesville, and the dedication of the Temple Lot.

The cast which produced this piece of historical drama was composed of members from almost every branch in Independence, and music was furnished by the Auditorium Orchestra.

On Thursday night an ice cream social and frolic was conducted at the Campus under the auspices of the young people in Independence. There was a good crowd of visitors who entered whole-heartedly into the games directed by Elder E. E. Closson. Small tables were set out on the lawn north of the Institute Building, and ice cream and cake were served.

Elder and Sister John F. Sheehy were the young people's guests and received a gift, a picture called "Peace" and based on the scriptural statement that the lamb and the lion shall lie down together. The young people had learned that Brother Sheehy desired this picture.

At this gathering the summer league volley ball pennant was presented to the Enoch Hill Blues.

Stone Church

Pastor John F. Sheehy, addressing the Saints assembled for sacrament on Sunday morning, gave historical emphasis to the service by recalling the events of one hundred years ago, chiefly the ceremony dedicating the Temple Lot August 3, 1831, conducted by the Prophet Joseph Smith. For a scripture lesson he read Doctrine and Covenants 58: 13.

"In the hundred years that have intervened," he asserted, "many of us have been far more concerned about building God's temple than our own temples." And then the congregation listened to the story of King David who longed to build to his Lord a beautiful temple, but who was denied this privilege because he himself was unfitted for the task. He had not been careful to build the temple of his own life pure, clean, and acceptable to the Lord. We must learn from this story that it is an essential thing to make our own lives measure up to the Christlike standard God has given, before we are fit to carry out his will in Zion.

Following the address, the organ played very softly "Onward to Zion" while the congregation bowed in prayer and meditation. Then Elder W. A. McDowell offered a prayer rededicating the efforts of the Saints to Zion purposes.

Subdued hymn singing, prayers, and the serving of the emblems combined to impress the large congregation with the spirit of consecration which marked the lives of our forefathers.

In the stand were Elders John F. Sheehy, G. G. Lewis, H. G. Barto, W. A. McDowell, and J. A. Gardner, and Bishops G. W. Eastwood, Stanley Kelley, and R. T. Cooper.

On July 31 occurred the marriage of Miss Eloise Moffett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis W. Moffett, of Pleasanton, Iowa, and Mr. Thomas A. Williams, son of Mrs. Charles A. Williams, of Independence. The ceremony occurred at the home of Pastor John F. Sheehy. The bride was attended by Miss Eloise Watkins, and the bridegroom by his brother, Charles E. Williams. Immediately following the ceremony a reception was given by the bridegroom's mother at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Watkins, of Independence. Mr. and Mrs. Williams left for a trip to Colorado, and after August 15 will be at home in Independence.

Another wedding of interest to the Saints occurred on July 19 when Mrs. Verna Miller and Elder James L. Gray were united in marriage by Elder U. W. Greene. The ceremony took place at the home of the bridegroom in Independence, before a group of relatives and close friends.

Liberty Street

On a recent Sunday morning it was the privilege of this congregation to listen to a splendid sermon by Apostle Clyde F. Ellis. For a text he chose the words of Nicodemus to Christ: "We know that thou art a teacher come from God." Nicodemus knew. "Two things we should know," stated the speaker, "are that God is, and that this is his church." Every man needs to be in touch with God, to have his help and guidance in all things. Means by which we can keep in touch with God were suggested by Brother Ellis—prayer, study, missionary service.

On that evening a group of young people numbering thirty strong, assisted Elder J. Charles May in his services at Lake City, Missouri. Their song contributions were much appreciated. For two years the young people of this congregation have gladly given assistance in missionary meetings on Sunday evenings.

The women of Liberty Street, the Halcyon Club, are giving a cafeteria dinner this Thursday from 5.30 on. All evening ice cream and cake will be sold. Everyone is invited to come, and proceeds will go to the local congregation's expenses.

Walnut Park

Three hundred and seventy-two attended the sacrament service at Walnut Park August 2. The pastor and his associates presided: S. C. Smith, C. L. Olson, and F. W. Lanpher. Twenty-four of the priesthood occupied the choir loft, several of whom assisted in the service: F. R. Schafer directed the singing and C. K. Green offered the invocation. A scriptural reading was given by R. Barnhardt and appropriate talks were by B. J. Scott and W. W. Wood.

The morning prayer meeting was in charge of W. T. Gard, B. H. Buntin, and Finis Beebe; Carlos Smith, song leader. One hundred and one were present and enjoyed hearing the large number of testimonies and prayers.

Sunday school attendance keeps near the three hundred mark. Apostle J. F. Curtis has been giving the Galilean Class, the older young people, a course of lectures on "The Organization of the Priesthood." He is leaving town this week for reunion work.

Enoch Hill

July 28, in the last game of the summer season, Enoch Hill Blues won the pennant in the Latter Day Saint Volley Ball League, terminating the summer volley ball activities. The Blues who also hold the pennant for the winter volley ball league will meet the winning team of the Kansas City Stake League in an inter-league game at the Campus August 11. Following is how the teams finished:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Enoch Hill Blues .....	25	5	.830
Gudgell Park .....	21	9	.700
Stone Church .....	21	9	.700
Walnut Park .....	13	17	.430
Enoch Hill Reds .....	7	23	.230
Liberty Street .....	5	25	.166

This congregation is justly proud of this group of ball players whose record is one of fine teamwork. The pennant was presented to the team last Thursday night at the young people's social at the Campus.

Pastor H. L. Barto has announced this Friday evening to be Family Night for Enoch Hill. Elder E. E. Closson will be present to direct recreation for everyone. Family groups are especially urged to present themselves on that night.

The August service of sacrament was outstanding. Apostle J. F. Curtis, who made the brief address, chose as the basis of his remarks the latter-day revelation which teaches us to observe the Sabbath Day and make our offerings unto the Lord. (Doctrine and Covenants 59.) His talk was stimulating and most helpful. Pastor Barto and local priesthood were in charge of the service, and attendance was large. Miss Mildred Hill, formerly of Enoch Hill, but now of Chanute, Kansas, played a violin solo, being accompanied at the piano by Miss Ruth Johnson.

During the month of August the three groups of this congregation and the young people's group will continue to hold union services of prayer at the church. The Saints find it most beneficial during the warm summer months to meet together for worship services.

Englewood

President Elbert A. Smith gave the introductory remarks for the sacrament service last Sunday at Englewood. His talk was a splendid one and was enjoyed by all. President Smith was accompanied by his wife and his son, Lynn. Patriarch Ammon C. White also worshiped with the people of Englewood at this service. The pastor, Elder D. S. McNamara, had charge of the service.

Saints of Englewood are planning a basket dinner to be held at the Campus in Independence the evening of August 11. This is the first outing for the whole church this summer.

The carnival on the church lawn two weeks ago, conducted to make money to buy the new hymn books, was very successful. All of the booths were well patronized, and a large quantity of ice cream and cake was sold. In the popularity contest in the intermediate class of girls in the Sunday school, Irene Snow won first place, with $4.83 collected as votes. Second prize went to Hazel Bowman, with about $3.50.

Choir rehearsals have been discontinued during the month of August, according to the announcement of the choir leader, Sister Pauline Arnson. Before August, the choir met every Thursday night except two, with relatively large attendance, and the director says the members deserve a vacation.

Of recent weeks some excellent speakers have visited this congregation, Elders J. M. Terry, J. F. Sheehy, and Hubert Case. Their help and instruction have been much appreciated.

Kansas City Stake

Gladstone Church

During the months of June and July the attendance was considerably lighter, because several of the families and members of the congregation were out of town and on vacations. Among these were some of our best workers.

The young people have been enjoying swimming parties.

During the spring months the congregation listened to some fine addresses by visiting speakers. Among these were Elders A. B. Phillips, of Independence, and J. O. Worden, of Fourth Kansas City Church.

Children's Day in June was observed with special songs and readings by the primary and junior departments.

'Tis education forms the common mind;
Just as the twig is bent, the tree's inclin'd.

—Pope.

MISCELLANEOUS

Annual Home-coming

Lake Orion Branch (Michigan) will celebrate its annual home-coming August 9. Meet at the church one block north of flag light, across from Standard Oil Station. A twenty-five cent lunch will be served at noon. Everybody will be welcome.—J. Hammond, branch clerk.

Attention, Michigan Musicians

Will those who are planning to attend the Park of the Pines reunion, August 14 to 23, please bring your instruments and music stands? We want to make this the best year ever for band and orchestra. Will you help? To all choir members I wish to say that I have been asked to look after choir work until she reaches there, so come along, singers, and we'll do our bit.—B. H. Doty, director of band and orchestra.

All-day Meeting

The Saints of Gladwin (Michigan) Branch announce an all-day meeting for Sunday, August 9. This is the opening meeting in the church, moved to its new location on Trunk Line M. 18, six miles north of Gladwin. A basket dinner will be served. Several speakers will be present, and an invitation is extended to all.—George W. White, president.

All-day services will be held at the home of Edgar Hunter, one mile east of Lum, on August 16. The first service will open at 9.30 a. m. Lum is eight miles east and two miles north of Lapeer. All Saints of Detroit and Eastern Michigan Districts are invited to attend. Elder William Grice and other good speakers will be there.—John L. Hall, Lake Orion, Michigan.

Conference Notices

Eastern Colorado district conference will be held at Denver, August 28 to 30. Apostle E. J. Gleazer is to be present.—Glaude A. Smith, for the district presidency.

Northeastern Kansas district conference will convene at Blue Rapids, Kansas, August 8 and 9. Apostle E. J. Gleazer will be there. The regular election of officers will compose a part of the business to be transacted. A large attendance is requested.—Mrs. H. C. Pitsenberger, district secretary, Topeka, Kansas.

Reunion Canceled

There will be no reunion held in Eastern Colorado District this year. It is only after prayerful and careful consideration of the matter that we have been made willing to give up reunion plans for 1931; but existing conditions make it necessary that the reunion be canceled.—Glaude A. Smith, for the district presidency, 1450 Pearl Street, Denver, Colorado.

Attention, Saints in Owen Sound District

Any isolated Saint or unorganized group wishing to have missionary services, please write to the district missionary, George A. Njeim, 27 Mitchell Street, Guelph, Ontario.

Reunion Notices

Idaho district reunion will be held at Hagerman, August 14 to 24. The district conference will occupy the last Saturday and Sunday. Speakers for the occasion will include Apostle M. A. McConley, Elders G. P. Levitt, A. M. Chase, and O. W. Okerlind. All meals will be served free of charge at the grounds, and expenses will be met by contributions of the Saints. Those who can are urged to contribute liberally in order that all may enjoy a well-supported reunion. All

(Continued on page 744.)

OFFICIAL

The Balance Sheet

(Continued from page 724.)

appraised because of the numerous parcels or tracts involved; and also because of a lack of time and men familiar with the valuation process. This is a task for the future, but is pointed out here so that the assets referred to may be regarded from the correct angle. As a rule such properties are taken on the books at cost, hence some will be of greater value today, and others less. Whether increase will offset decrease can not be stated without a complete appraisal.

The decrease in net worth may be explained for the most part by calling particular attention to certain items.

First, houses of worship, valued at $111,344.50, were entered on the books during 1930. This figure, plus an amount of $17,522.04 applied on the construction of the Auditorium, constitutes an addition to the net worth of December 31, 1930. However, this increase is more than offset by a reduction of $240,000 in the book value of Notes and Accounts Receivable, Stocks and Investments, already referred to, and normal depreciation on other assets amounting to $44,389.01. In addition to this the expenses for the year exceeded the income by $105,764.93. Additional changes in other accounts resulted in a decrease of $7,895.34. The total net result was a decrease in our net worth of $269,182.74.

To enable us to raise $12,500—our share of the cost of inclosing and roofing the Sanitarium—loans have been made or arranged for. This has been necessary to protect the building against next winter's severe weather deterioration. Despite this, when the $75,000 loan of January 26, 1931, is disregarded, our debt from February 12 on, as a checking of our ledgers seems to indicate, has decreased a little. We have kept within our income, but a surplus must be provided to enable us to meet maturing obligations. If the surplus may not be available by increasing income, our expenses must be further reduced without delay. To this situation full attention is being given, but the church should know about it.

The slight progress made seems to prove that the unfavorable trend has been arrested. This has entailed a great deal of sacrifice upon many, but, because of frozen or slowly liquidating assets, reveals clearly our dependence upon the month to month income. We hope that everyone will continue extending help in carrying the load. The priesthood, whether engaged in the work of the financial arm or not, will render a tremendous service if they devote themselves unceasingly to this task.

THE PRESIDING BISHOPRIC,

By L. F. P. CURRY.

Care Should Be Exercised in Giving Help

The following notice has reached us from J. M. Richards, Pittsburg, Kansas: "There is a fellow about thirty-five years old, slight of build, and a smooth talker, who goes from branch to branch telling hard luck stories and working on the sympathies of the kind-hearted Saints. He informs himself of the presidents of branches, and knows all the principal men of the church, especially in Oklahoma, Kansas, Arkansas, and Missouri. He called himself 'Allen' while here."

This gives us occasion to warn the Saints generally that care should be taken in giving aid to persons unknown to them, and who come without recommendation soliciting financial assistance. In most cities there are organizations which dispense charity, or can furnish information as to the worthiness of individuals applying for aid. During this period of intense depression, the number of persons attempting to live off the generosity of others will undoubtedly be increased, and unless care is exercised, there will be imposition on many good people.

THE FIRST PRESIDENCY,

By F. M. McDOWELL.

Dignity and Beauty in Ministry

(Continued from page 723.)

preach some years ago, and he heard so many doubts raised, so much speculation indulged in, such a half-defense, half-challenge of our fundamental message, that at the close of the sermon he went to the preacher and said: "You took me out to sea and then took my oars and compass from me and left me to drift. I will never go to hear you preach again."

"Give me the benefit of your convictions, if you have any," said Gøthe, "but keep your doubts to yourself, for I have enough of my own." There are so many people to encourage atheism, to cultivate doubt and suspicions, to deal in profitless speculations, that we, especially those of us who are of the ministry, do not need to make any contribution along those lines. We should boldly and positively affirm the great fundamental truths that are ours through the Restoration and bear a convincing and strengthening testimony to our own personal religious experiences. Again we recall that Jesus said, "For this cause came I into the world, to bear witness of the truth."

(To be continued.)

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Frederick M. Smith, Editor in Chief.
 Elbert A. Smith, Floyd M. McDowell, Associate Editors.
 Leonard J. Lea, Managing Editor.
 Leta E. Moriarty, Assistant Editor.
 Published for the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Subscription price: By the year, $2.

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE
 INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI

CONTENTS

EDITORIAL:
Is It Fair .....	722
Support the Harvest Festival .....	722
OFFICIAL:
The Balance Sheet, by Amos E. Allen .....	724
ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
Dignity and Beauty in Ministry, by Elbert A. Smith .....	722
The Search for God, by A. B. Phillips .....	726
What Will the Harvest Be? by C. C. Koehler .....	728
Weekly Health Letter, by A. W. Teel, M. D. ....	729
Tom King: A Life History, by C. H. Porter .....	730
Who Is Holding Up the Procession? by Hubert Case .....	732
THE GOSPEL FORUM:
Neglected Instruction, by E. Y. Hunker .....	733
The Blessings of Adversity, by Edwin H. Davies .....	735
CHURCH WORK AND SERVICES .....	736
MISCELLANEOUS .....	742

(Continued from page 742.)

will be expected to furnish their own bedding and tents. A few may occupy the church building, and straw will be furnished for straw mattresses. Those planning to come by train will be met at Bliss or Tuttle if the time of arrival be made known to the committee.—Committee: Silas D. Condit, O. W. Okerlind, Hagerman, Idaho.

Our Departed Ones

BOOKER.—Mary Parmelia Brooks was born in Monroe County, Alabama, May 11, 1856, and died at the home of her daughter in McKenzie, Alabama, July 18, 1931. She became a member of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints May 5, 1867, being led into the waters of baptism by Elder T. H. Waddell. She remained true to the gospel throughout her whole life. Was married to Gaston G. Booker October 15, 1895, and to them were born five sons: Thomas M., William H., Elmer L., Gaston G., jr., and Miller M., and one daughter, Mrs. Pansy Odom. The funeral was held at McKenzie, July 19, 1931, Elder Glenn L. Davis and Priest Lyle D. Flynn in charge. Interment was in Pleasant Hill Cemetery.

BAILEY.—Ernest J. Bailey was born September 24, 1906, at Blue Springs, Missouri, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Bailey. He was baptized on Christmas Day, in 1923, by Elder E. E. Stonger, in Independence, Missouri. Married Miss Ethel Baldwin, at Harrisonville, Missouri, March 3, 1928, and to them was born one son. He passed away at Kansas City, July 19, 1931, leaving his companion, son, parents, one brother, seven sisters, and a host of other relatives and friends. The funeral was held at Grain Valley in the Methodist Church, July 21. The sermon was by Elder J. M. Terry. Interment was in the cemetery at Blue Springs, Missouri.

TREAT.—Frederick Treat was born March 31, 1880. He was baptized a member of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints March 27, 1910. Was ordained a deacon twelve months later, and a priest October 27, 1915, by G. T. Griffiths and T. U. Thomas. At the same time he was made president of the Archbald, Pennsylvania, Branch. Served in this office several years. He died of a complication of diseases at the General Hospital at Carbondale, Pennsylvania, July 4, 1931. The funeral was in charge of Elder F. H. Dippel, assisted by Tom Jones and R. J. Hawkins. Interment was at Aldenville, Wayne County, Pennsylvania. Mr. Treat was a faithful and reliable member of the church, and many friends mourn his death.

Reunion Calendar

Wyoming and South Dakota, Spearfish, August 2-9.
 Kirtland, Kirtland, August 6-16.
 Western Montana, Race Track, August 7-16.
 Northern and Western Maine, Brooksville, August 8-16.
 Far West, Stewartsville, August 13-23.
 Northern Michigan, Boyne City, August 14-23.
 Idaho, Hagerman, August 14-24.
 Western Iowa and Northeastern Nebraska, Woodbine, August 14-24.
 Eastern Colorado, Colorado Springs, August 21-30.
 Southeastern Illinois, Brush Creek, August 21-30.

YOUR HERALD SUBSCRIPTION—DON'T LET IT LAPSE

Notice

The Independence Sanitarium and Hospital offers a three-year course in nurses' training to young women who are high school graduates.

For further information write to superintendent, G. E. Copeland, R. N.

Do you read the church publications?
HERALD

ENSIGN

VISION

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE
 Independence, Missouri

WOULD you replace the insurance policy covering your property, at expiration with another policy in a leading Company at the rate you are now paying if such action would be of financial benefit to the church?

Write us for particulars.

THE INSURANCE DEPARTMENT

Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints

P. O. Box 136.

Independence, Mo.

NOW IS A GOOD TIME TO CHANGE.

At the mid year Interest date is an advantageous time to shift your Savings Account to a safe conservative institution with a quarter century standing.

We pay 3% on Time and Savings Deposits.
 "Soliciting New Business on Our Record."

JACKSON COUNTY BANK

Independence, Mo.

"Home of Savings"

THE SAINTS' HERALD

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SALES

Entered as second-class matter at the post office at Independence, Missouri, under Act of March 3, 1879. Issued weekly at Independence, Missouri. Price $2 a year in advance. Accepted for mailing at the special rate of postage provided for in section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917; authorized July 21, 1921.

Volume 78

Independence, Missouri, August 12, 1931

Number 32

“The fool hath said in his heart, There is no God. . . . The Lord looked down from heaven upon the children of men, to see if there were any that did understand, and seek God.”—Psalm 14: 1, 2.

---

GETTING BACK TO GOD

E. J. Gleazer

TWO ARE BETTER THAN ONE

Evan A. Fry

THE GOSPEL FORUM

Presents

DISTINCTIVE FEATURES OF THE RESTORATION

Thomas Jones

"The Fool Hath Said in His Heart—"

When a modern business man makes the remark that "Nobody is making any money" we are assured that he, especially, is not making any, and therefore thinks that nobody else is doing so. Thus by trying to identify himself with a crowd, even if it is a crowd of unfortunates, he tries to escape whatever disgrace may attach to solitary failure.

It is not our purpose here to examine financial failure. We draw the parallel in order to examine another and more pathetic kind of bankruptcy.

When a man declares that there is no God, we take it as a confession that he has been unable or unwilling to find God. It is an admission of personal failure which he tries to cover up by identifying himself with some large majority of people that he imagines to be like himself. He has not been able to find God; he thinks he is as clever as anybody and that nobody else has been able to do what he couldn't; therefore, he reasons, nobody has been able to find God, and consequently he thinks there is none.

The Psalmist called this sort of person in his own day a fool. It is unnecessary for us to apply the name to the victims of the modern misfortune of skepticism; we may let the language of the Psalmist apply where it fits.

If two miners go to the mountains to prospect for gold, and one of them returns with samples of rich ore, while the other returns with a report that there is no gold in the mountains, which man do we believe? The man who says there is no gold is discredited by the exhibits that the other has to offer.

All men who are worthy the name of men try, at some time in their experience, to probe that veil of mystery that separates them from a view of the Infinite. All around them are expressions of the Creative Power, but that Power itself remains invisible to mortal eyes. All the testimony and experience of religious mystics assures us that the natural eyes can not see God. It were as easy to weigh water in a sieve, collect gas with a pitchfork, or pack the colors of the rainbow into gallon cans for sale, as to attempt to see the Infinite with finite eyes. The testimony of those who have tried and failed should offer us no serious concern. Clearly, if man is ever to have any perception of the great Creative Power that he calls God, he must do it through some other faculty of the soul.

Those who testify that there is a God find it difficult to describe their experience. Most of them give up the attempt and say to the younger seekers, "Go and see." But their testimonies lack nothing in the sincerity and earnestness that indicate that they tell the truth.

What are the proofs that they bring back from their search for God? Changed lives, controlled impulses, Christian characters, devotion, courage, unselfishness, and all those things which the Apostle Paul mentions as the "fruit of the Spirit"—love, joy, peace, and all the rest. These are their evidences. And to those who properly evaluate these things, they are enough.

L. L.

Lamoni Reunion Brings Assurances of Divine Nearness

The Lamoni reunion of 1931 is now a matter of history. The place which Lamoni occupies in the church makes this annual event of more than local significance.

In the interest of economy the meeting this year was held in the church park rather than on the old camp ground south of town. There the beauty of the surroundings, thanks to Brother C. F. Church, and the spirit of the old Brick Church which still lingers though the building itself is gone, made a splendid setting for the feast in things spiritual which the reunion proved to be. On the streets this Monday morning the general verdict is that it was one of the best ever held.

The days were filled as reunion days usually are. There was something every hour from eight in the morning until ten at night; something to suit all ages and tastes; prayer services, classes, missionary sermons, well-organized recreation. Special consideration was given to the church, its history and its purposes and its present needs. A large class of young people spent the ten days studying church history; even the juniors had daily story hours in which they learned of the heroes and heroines of the church, and around their camp fire each night took imaginary excursions to places of interest in church history. A daily forum was held for the adults in which the present problems of the church were given a most frank consideration. There was a class each day in the financial program of the church and one dealing with its teaching program. Unusually large crowds were attracted to the missionary series which was conducted this year by Elder Ray Whiting, of Council Bluffs. Brother Whiting's theme for the week was "A Saving Religion."

We believe that the spirit of this reunion can be taken as an index of the spirit of the Saints throughout the church, especially when such is in accord with reports received from other quarters. Never in the experience of the writer have church problems and needs been presented more frankly. Under the leadership of Bishop DeLapp we penetrated the heart of the financial situation of the church. Facts were presented and discussed with utmost frankness. Questions were asked and answered in the same spirit. The daily forum gave ample time for a thorough consideration of the wide variety of questions which were raised.

We are told that the glory of God is intelligence and that intelligence is light and truth. Accordingly it is our testimony that the Lamoni reunion of 1931 was characterized by the presence of a great measure of the glory of God. Our spiritual experiences were not of a spectacular nature. I think only one prophecy was delivered during the reunion, but there was present at all times a spirit of frankness without incrimination; intelligence without bickering; a kindly consideration for the feelings of others, and a very evident note of tolerance, unity, and good will.

The writer for one receives new hope of the final achievement of our goals at this demonstration of the ability of our people to face a crisis in church experience, to face the facts as they are and the difficult problems which those facts raise, and to do so intelligently and fearlessly, without effort to fix the blame upon others. The situation gave each concern, but did not leave us discouraged. Rather there was present a spirit of hope, assurance of final victory, a conviction that through unity and devotion obligations would be met and the purposes of God as expressed through the church be realized. There seemed present the feeling that present difficulties, even when presented in all their boldness, were insignificant compared with the total work of the church. The work of God for man is at stake. No mere period of depression could be allowed to divert for a moment the support of those who sincerely believe. The goals of the church were felt to be so reasonable, so in accordance with the nature of man and the needs of the world, that the only intelligent thing to do was to press on towards those goals at whatever cost.

We say again that if frankness and kindness, tolerance and unity, intelligence and brotherly love are an indication of the presence of the Spirit of God, then most certainly God was very near to us during the days of the Lamoni reunion during 1931.

Continuing, as I write, to rest under the power of that "divine nearness," I join in the testimony of the hundreds who worshiped there: "God is with us. This is his church. With his help present difficulties will be overcome and this church move on to final victory."

F. M. MCD.

Work would be easier, life would be sweeter, people would be kinder, duty would be haloed with beauty, and drudgery made divine if prayer were more frequent. It would be less hard to conquer temptation and overcome the world.—Doctor Vance.

The Value of Testimony

Arguments may convince, but it is the testimonies that persuade. One may bring all of the arguments to prove that he has found the true church of Christ, and make his hearers believe; but souls can be effectively won to Christ only by those who can give a strong testimony to the truth of the message they declare.

A thorough knowledge of the scriptures and the doctrines of the church and the ability to present them will always be among the prerequisites for those who essay to defend the faith and draw converts to it. Without these tools the workman would be even worse than incompetent. Yet arguments are not enough. They may describe the kingdom of God, but they do not open the gates for the souls of men to enter in.

Jesus taught, not with elaborate arguments and learned references drawn from the law (though he could use them, too), but by direct statement and by testimony. His ways with sinners and skeptics, doubters and shrewd men of earth, astonish and surpass the modern apologist for Christianity in their directness, their boldness, and their penetration to the essential matters. He spoke more from the truth of experience than from the knowledge of books. He appealed to the heart with a testimony more frequently than to the mind with an argument. He spoke to inform, not to examine the premises of faith.

A modern example will illustrate: The debater proves by many Bible references that there ought to be spiritual healing today as well as in former times. His arguments may leave his audience cold. But when some one arises in a meeting and says, "I have been healed!" the effect is profound.

There will always be those in the gospel army who rely on argument. And there will always be those who rely on the testimony. Good! The kingdom has need of both. But every man who has an argument should look to it to learn where in his experience, whether in joy or sorrow, he has been brought close to God. If he has only the arguments, he can perform the services of John the Baptist; but unless he has in addition a testimony of a great spiritual experience, he can not serve for Jesus in bringing men to the baptism of the Holy Spirit, and of fire.

All of us, without exception, ought to study the books. But more especially all of us ought to seek to increase our spiritual resources through frequent and earnest prayer. The church needs men who can argue, but it also needs men who have a great testimony.

L. L.

A Substitution Necessary

If we expect to reach first base in the great game of life, we must consider the other person as well as ourselves. We must realize that the efforts of each member of humanity must supplement the efforts of the other members. We must develop group consciousness, a "we-ness" in our undertakings. We must, in fact, get together.

In his book Preach It Again, Doctor Clausen has entitled a chapter the "We-ness of Us," and in it he affirms that we can never have good citizenship in the church, the community, the nation, until we realize that we belong to one another, that our actions are reflected in the lives of others. In truth, we must substitute "we-ness" for the present "I-ness" of our tasks.

How often have these thoughts occurred to me as I sat in meetings of the Saints. Only last week I heard a group of Saints singing the beautiful hymn, "I Need Thee Every Hour," and I thought how much more beautiful it would have been if they had sung instead:

*We need Thee every hour,
Teach us thy will,
And thy rich promises
In us fulfill.*

*We need Thee, oh, we need thee,
Every hour we need thee;
Oh, bless us now, our Savior,
We come to thee.*

In this the consciousness of mutual need and dependency is shown. I never sing that hymn, or many of the others, without thinking of the need for a substitution.

Today the word I is overemphasized. We need to forget the little stage of life centered about ourselves and to broaden out in the lives of others, to help willingly, to serve loyally, to love greatly. Money-making, social attainments, amusements are only small parts of the game of life; and if we find that we are putting any one of these things first, we should check up on our values and readjust our standards. Too many of us allow life to burden us with an overmuch "I-ness" of everything.

Above all we need a deeper consciousness of our interdependency in the church, a greater "we-ness" in our sermons, our prayers, our hymns, and our testimonies. Let us like Christ consider those about us.

At one time the Master was comforting his disciples with the assurance that though he was to lay down his life for the world, he would live again. These are his words: "In my Father's house are many mansions; if it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also." What greater "we-ness" can we ask than to be one with Christ? Such unity can be attained only through true "we-ness" with our fellow men.

Let us substitute "We" for "I."

L. B. M.

Dignity and Beauty in Ministry

By Elbert A. Smith

VI.—THE ORDINANCE OF BAPTISM

Baptism is a ministry at once of forgiveness and of hope. It blots out the transgressions of the past and opens up all the possibilities of the future. When you were a boy in school, did you ever encounter problems that you could not solve? And after you had covered your old-fashioned slate with figures and piled mistake upon mistake until your head ached, did the master lay his hand on your shoulder and say, "Wash the slate clean and start all over and I will help you to work your problems"? That is what baptism does. How often do men cry, "I wish I had it to do over. I wish I had another chance"? After we have struggled with the problems of life and piled mistake upon mistake until the head aches and the heart aches, the Master puts his hand on our shoulder and says, "Wash it all out in the waters of baptism and start all over, and by my gospel law I will help you to solve the problems of life."

The old man with his deeds is put away. A new life is begun. The act of baptism is a memorial to the church, to the individual, and to the world that old habits are cast off, old associations that were evil have been abandoned, the old allegiances are no more; a new life is begun, new habits are to be formed, new associations cultivated, and new goals are to be set up and striven for.

Preparation

The minister who figures in the ceremony of baptism thus becomes a central figure in a most significant ceremony. He touches human life at a crucial point. He should endeavor to make the ceremony and the experience as significant, dignified, and beautiful as possible. This he may do by his teachings, opening to the mind of the candidate a vision of the true meaning of the step that he is taking, its possibilities and its responsibilities; revealing to him the things of the kingdom of God; and furthermore by administering the rite of baptism itself in such a way as to bring out its significance and beauty.

Mode

The mode of baptism is fixed in the Scriptures. The three books are clearly agreed upon immersion. No question need ever arise in the church on that point. Moreover, the Book of Mormon and Doctrine and Covenants prescribe that the minister shall go down into the water with the candidate, while the form of words to be used is given in Doctrine and Covenants 17: 21.

Environment

The surroundings may add to or mar the beauty of the ceremony of baptism. Some have held that baptism should be administered only in the open in natural bodies of water. A lake or clear stream of water, with shady, sandy beach furnishes an ideal and impressive spot for baptism; but such surroundings are rarely at hand. Too often recourse has been had to stagnant and sometimes filthy pools; and many times also at places where it was impossible to control the actions of the crowd that might gather out of curiosity and with a spirit anything but harmonious with the occasion. Compared with such conditions a font in the church, filled with clean water and surrounded by a devout and worshipful people, has every argument in its favor.

Dress

Too often the minister has dressed himself for the ceremony in any old garments at hand, selecting those that would not suffer from contact with water and which were of little value at best. The result has been incongruous with the dignity of the occasion. Perhaps a soiled pair of old trousers may have been selected and a shirt much the worse for wear; a pair of old overalls with nails replacing missing suspender buttons has done duty; and at times a very abbreviated bathing suit.

On the other hand some have adopted a formal baptismal robe. Others are prejudiced against such formality. But at the least the minister, if he will, may appear in clean and presentable attire. At the Campus in Independence on Children's Day our men have officiated clad in white: white shirt and tie and white trousers. The effect was pleasing. Such an outfit, even a missionary who must travel about could procure without much expense and carry in small space.

The candidates for baptism usually select their own garb but may often be open to advice. Particularly when women or girls are immersed, some friend should stand at the edge of the font or by the stream with a shawl or robe to throw about them as they come from the water.

Procedure

In the act of immersion, the minister stands facing the audience with the candidate before him and facing the minister's left. He should advise the candidate should be advised to fill his lungs with with the fingers interlocked. This will prevent an unseemly struggle in case of a little strangling. The candidate should be advised to fill his lungs with air just before immersion. The minister should with his left hand grasp the two hands of the candidate, and lifting his right hand and calling the candidate by name, he should repeat the words prescribed: "Having been commissioned of Jesus Christ, I baptize you in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost, Amen." He should speak forcefully and distinctly. Then placing his right hand at the back of the head of the candidate he should immerse him, being careful to see that the immersion is complete. If the minister stands well balanced and well braced, the buoyancy of the water will assist him to raise even a very heavy person back to the standing position without undue exertion. The water should be deep enough and one should allow the candidate, particularly a woman or child, time to become accustomed to its chill before immersion.

The usual ceremony of song and prayer during the ceremony may be varied as the minister shall feel led; and such remarks may be made as shall be necessary and timely in view of the nature of the audience assembled.

(To be continued.)

The Last Word

By E. Guy Talbott

Death, I will have the last word
In our argument.
Thou hast not heard
The still, small voice
From heaven sent
That makes my heart rejoice.

When thou shalt chant a requiem
Over my grave,
I will be brave
And sing an exultant hymn.
When my body lies under the sod
And your last word is said,
I will say: "I live with God;
Only my body is dead.
The husk alone is thine;
The kernel is divine."

—The Churchman, New York.

Getting Back to God

By Edmund J. Gleazer

(A sermon delivered at Central Church, Kansas City, Missouri, May 12, 1931. Reported by Nena M. Young.)

Many people are discussing at the present time, religion and its relation to the world at a time of crisis. A newspaper article calls our attention to the fact that in Spain it is necessary to guard the church edifices and representatives of the church with the army and police protection. Already millions of dollars' worth of church property has been burned or destroyed, and we are witnessing now in Spain what already has taken place in Russia, Mexico, and other lands. The church is on trial and in some quarters has been condemned; and I am sure that in the minds of some people there is no attempt to differentiate between the church of their land and the church of the living God. I am reasonably certain there are many people in Spain tonight who regard the church as their enemy and despise all that comes in the name of religion; and that is also true of millions of Russians and other nationalities.

Right in our own land people who would classify themselves as intelligent citizens are somewhat dubious concerning the contribution of the church to society. They do not hesitate to discuss the utility of the church; and in some quarters they have already passed judgment and do not hesitate to say that the church and that which pertains to religion is playing a very small part in human life and human relationship. I sense a great danger in some quarters where mankind is not in a position to differentiate between that which comes in the name of religion professing to be the church of Jesus Christ, and that which is the true church of Jesus Christ. We judge Christ and God by the institutions that bear Christ's name. I do not think that God will hold the people of Russia responsible for the destruction of church property. At least, I do not think the Russians can be accused of being antagonistic to Jesus Christ in what they have done, but I am wondering if they are not going from one extreme to another. They had a just grievance against the dominant church of Russia which had supported the rule of the Czar and all that pertained to that cruel dynasty; but the Russians must yet learn that they can not live without God and without his church and the contribution that the church of Jesus Christ makes to mankind. There is a vast difference between the church of Jesus Christ and the Greek Catholic Church (and I speak respectfully when I make that observation).

Many of you no doubt have read that wonderful book entitled Christ of the Indian Road, and you will recall that author gives us to understand that the Hindu has the utmost respect for Jesus Christ but, on the other hand, little respect for so-called Christianity. There is a question in the minds of many people today as to whether or not Jesus Christ has been properly represented in that which is called Christianity. I am wondering if the nations of this earth are really antagonistic to Jesus Christ. All that the nations are striving for that is worth while is represented in Jesus Christ and the life he lived. No nation could be antagonistic to the individual who came that men might have life and that they might have it more abundantly. Nations may be antagonistic to systems of religion that have held them in ignorance and bondage and failed to bring that bread of life that Jesus intended to bring, that have failed to bring liberty and freedom, that have failed to help them live now as well as prepare them for the life that is to come.

Humanity's Lost Controls

I am fearful that the nations of the earth in their attempt to abolish all that they feel has been detrimental to their full and complete freedom, may overlook the only means of freedom, the church of Jesus Christ. All over the world there is a revolt against authority today. There is a revolt against leadership, against tradition, and we are wondering where it is going to end. Nothing is taken for granted today. No institution, creed, or what not is exempt from the closest and most critical investigation. Everything is being weighed in the balance and may be found wanting, and we feel that unless mankind is made conscious that the church of Jesus Christ is on the earth and that in and through that church we can find liberty, peace, and security, the whole earth is doomed. So religion has its part to play in this present world crisis, whether it cares to play its part or not. The church of Jesus Christ that we represent tonight has its part to play at this time of crisis; and I rejoice that the church of Jesus Christ is on the earth, for if that were not so I would see no hope for the nations.

Have you ever wondered as to just how these teeming millions of men and women in this world of ours are going to be controlled in this day when they have challenged every authority on the earth? A few years ago millions of us believed in what was known as the divine right of kings and emperors, but the divine right of kings as a controlling influence in the lives of men and nations is a thing of the past. Millions were influenced, and their conduct was influenced by the authority of certain established churches or religions and their fear of the priest.

A Power That Once Ruled

I was born in a land that is three fourths Catholic and one fourth Protestant. I happened to be in that particular portion that was practically all Protestant, where the Protestants were in the majority. Possibly in that particular land you will find the most bigoted Protestants and the most bigoted Catholics in the world. Of course, I always believed the Catholics were bigoted, but I have lived long enough to believe possibly we Protestants were bigoted, too. I can not help thinking the day of miracles has not ceased. I have found myself, a son of a Mason, presiding over a band of Saints with a man who formerly was a Roman Catholic. That is a miracle! One of our ministers in Pontiac, Michigan, Michael J. Crowley, and your speaker have on several occasions presided over a service. What the doctrine of Christ has done for us it can do for millions of our countrymen. The blood of millions might have been saved if the doctrine of Jesus Christ had been preached to my fellow countrymen.

In that land I remember witnessing a riot. This particular riot was not a religious one, and it was not growing out of a contest between Protestants and Catholics. They were having a strike in the city of Belfast, and you know wherever there is a fight you will find an Irishman. I was attracted to the crowd, and I went to see the fun. I witnessed a large motor truck entirely surrounded with a mob out to get blood. They were after the strike breaker or the "scab," and it appeared for a while they were going to succeed in tearing him limb from limb. The Irish police are no small fellows; they are practically all six feet tall. In that particular section they had Protestant policemen who traveled two by two, and did not carry guns—strange but true. The only time they carried firearms was during an overwhelming riot. They were attempting to the best of their ability to protect property and life, but they were overwhelmed by that mob.

Suddenly there appeared in the crowd a Catholic priest. He pushed his way through the mob and mounted the truck, and in five minutes he had that mob as peaceful as a group of Sunday school picnickers. He was the parish priest. Those people were afraid of him; to them he represented more authority than the policemen, and he succeeded in dispersing that mob. One man! That was about twenty years ago or more. I doubt very much if that priest could do that in Ireland now, for that country has lost its respect for the so-called authority of the church; that is, they do not fear the authority of the church today as the day twenty years ago, and that is becoming true the world over. So the authority of the church is challenged; the authority of that particular church which claims to be God's authority on earth is challenged.

The authority of government is challenged. Men do not fear the law any more. That is evidenced every day and every night in the cities of America. In fact, what is there on earth or even in heaven that men fear today? And with all of these controls gone that at one time served as controls for human conduct and human emotions, what do you suppose is going to take their place to keep men from flying at each other's throat? Our fighting instincts are just as much alive today as they were ten years ago, and disrespect for human life and the privilege of others is growing daily upon us. During this time of crisis, what hope do we have? Where are we going to find relief? What is going to save this world? It has been predicted that at a certain time there would be a period of trouble such as we have never had since the world began: a time of trouble, of strife, and of bloodshed. I think we have entered that period. Has the church of Jesus Christ any contribution to make to the world at this time of crisis? I think we have. I want to read one or two texts:

When Jesus came into the coasts of Cæsarea Philippi, he asked his disciples, saying, Whom do men say that I the Son of man am? And they said, Some say that thou art John the Baptist; some, Elias; and others, Jeremias, or one of the prophets. He saith unto them, But whom say ye that I am? And Simon Peter answered and said, Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God. And Jesus answered and said unto him, Blessed art thou, Simon Barjona: for flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but my Father which is in heaven. And I say also unto thee, That thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it.—Matthew 16: 13-18.

God-consciousness

I hope I will not have to go into a discussion tonight to point out that the church was not built on Peter. The thing I bring to you tonight is this, that Peter had received a revelation that Jesus was the Christ, the Son of the living God; and I believe that that is the most important thing that this church has to offer to this world, the revelation today that Jesus Christ is the Son of the living God. "Blessed art thou, Simon Barjona; for flesh and blood hath not revealed this unto thee, but thy Father which is in heaven." You say, "Brother Gleazer, what does that have to do with a time of crisis?" I answer, "Everything." There is no hope unless this world can be made God-conscious, and I know of no institution on the face of this earth that is in a better position to make the world God-conscious than the church of Jesus Christ. Do you? I know of nothing that this world needs more than the present-day testimony that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of the living God.

In the Hebrew epistle, eleventh chapter, I read a portion of the sixth verse:

He that cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him.

If this world is to be saved in this present crisis, if all that is worth while is to be salvaged, some people, some institution, some force or power must make the nations of this earth God-conscious, for that is the only control that will take the place of the controls that have been discarded. I am glad authority has been challenged, for oftentimes authority has been abusive. It has been assumed; it has not been representative of God. I am glad the authority of antiquity has been challenged. I am glad that tradition has been challenged, and that men and nations are thinking for themselves. I realize on the other hand the grave danger; I recognize the need of this world to be made God-conscious. Never in this life or in the life to come will we respect our neighbor or his rights or his privileges or his property unless we are conscious of our relation to God. When we become conscious of our relation to God, we will not need to fear concerning our conduct toward our fellow man. Every nation or institution that attempts to establish human brotherhood or right human relations and ignores God is doomed before it starts.

Revelation of God Necessary

I think one of the finest things I ever heard the late T. W. Williams say was a statement he made in a sermon at the Stone Church after he had returned from a General Conference in Lamoni. As a man he had been quite active in the ministry of this church, and he had been interested to a marked degree in Socialism. He made this statement: "Socialism has failed because it left Jesus Christ out of the equation." That is true of every other "ism" today, and you might be startled if I would say it is possible for Jesus Christ to be left out of the church. We might have him in some form, but I refer to an active, dynamic Christ. When I go back into the Bible, regardless of whether it is the New or Old Testament, I discover that wherever God desired a man or a nation to move forward or upward or onward, it was necessary for God to give that man or that nation a testimony of his being. It was necessary for God to reveal himself.

There are so many incidents that I can refer briefly to only a few. Do you recall the time when God was anxious for Moses to go down into Egypt to deliver the Israelites from Egyptian bondage? Do you recall how he appeared in the burning bush? Do you recall the effect it had on Moses? He did not want to go. He had run away from that country—he was wanted for murder—he was not going back—it was the last place in the world he wanted to go, and he made his excuses to God, but he came in contact with God. He went back to confront Pharaoh. You are acquainted with the effort that it was necessary for him to make in order to persuade Pharaoh to permit the Israelites to come out. You are acquainted with the effort it required to convince the Israelites that Moses was God's servant. He had just about as much trouble with them as he did with the heathen king. Moses' struggles did not cease, but he had the testimony that God spoke and that God was present in his day, and that God was actively engaged in the interest of his people. Otherwise he never could have succeeded in his task. And that people found it necessary to have a testimony that God was their leader. A whole nation had turned from God, yet they were worshipping.

That is where we make our mistake. We think because we worship, we still have God. We may have our forms of worship, yet be without God. One entire nation was engaged in worship, but they had forgotten Jehovah. After all, I wonder at times if the concepts some of us have of God are not as ridiculous as theirs.

God wanted a nation brought back to him, and he selected Elijah for the great task. The king and queen were supporters of religion, and they regarded Elijah as a trouble maker. It was necessary for Elijah to put on a demonstration to determine who was God. God answered Elijah's prayer—it was brief—he was in need, was pouring out his soul to God, and all that he asked God to do was to make it manifest that that day in Israel, Jehovah was God and Elijah was his servant. Do you recall how from the heaven there came the fire that touched the altar; how that sacrifice was consumed and the people seeing the manifestation of Jehovah, cried out, "Jehovah is God in Israel"? So all through the New Testament, time and time again it was necessary for God to give an individual or a nation a revelation in order to lead them upward. That is one of the reasons that Jesus Christ appeared to mankind, not only as a testimony to that generation but to the generations yet unborn.

"He that hath seen me hath seen the Father." He was a living testimony to the fact that God is. My friends, it required a revelation of God to make that ardent crusader (I refer to Saul of Tarsus) turn from the path he believed to be right to support that which he had formerly persecuted. Remember when he was on his way to Damascus with a letter from the high priest in order to shut up the saints in prison? He was a man of force. He believed he was doing the right thing—his conscience was void of offense. Suddenly there came a light from heaven, and in answer to his statement, "Who art thou?" a voice said, "I am Jesus of Nazareth, whom thou persecutest." Paul followed the instructions given him and became one of the most stalwart defenders of the truth, one whose messages are still a blessing. But it required a revelation of Jesus Christ to bring him to the truth.

You wonder why God Almighty saw fit to reveal himself unto the young man, Joseph Smith. How do you suppose the testimony that God is was going to be brought to this world when from the pulpit and from the press was coming the declaration that God had not made himself manifest to the world for at least sixteen hundred years; that the book of Revelation was the closing book of the Bible, that He had ceased to speak and all that was left was that which was written. No one believed that God was revealing himself as he had revealed himself in the past. They were worshiping a God of the past. Those of you who have studied human activity know very well, without being psychologists, that the stimuli of the present are always more potent than those of the past. That which has transpired nineteen hundred years ago does not affect us like that which transpired yesterday or the day before. That which we came in contact with today has more effect on our lives than that which transpired yesterday; and why should we be surprised that God, knowing that in the latter day the authority of the past would be challenged and swept aside, would provide some power in order to control the behavior of men and nations.

Why then should it be thought strange, if the God of heaven and his Son Jesus Christ, revealed themselves in person to the young man Joseph Smith? People who are familiar with our story may think that absurd, that after sixteen hundred years God should reveal himself and his Son to a young man fifteen years of age in answer to prayer. We are not asking you tonight to take the testimony of Joseph Smith, for I can assure you there are thousands of people alive today who know that testimony is true, for they also have received a testimony. Otherwise how would you account for the measure of truth that this institution brings to the world? Where else would the church receive it?

I am thinking of the contribution that revelation has made and will yet make to this world. Latter Day Saints are like most other people. We, too, care little for the authority of man, possibly for the authority of priesthood. We are in the world and are a part of it. We are not free from the insidious influence that is abroad in the world. It may be true that many of our number become more God-conscious than other sects. I believe they do. If we have members who are not God-conscious, it is not the fault of the institution; it is their own fault, for no man need be a member of this church and be without the testimony that Jesus Christ is the author of our faith. "If ye will do the will of the Father, ye shall know of the doctrine"; and if you are a Latter Day Saint and you have not received the testimony that this is the church of Jesus Christ, it is your own fault. I hope you have that testimony, that you have the spirit of this work, otherwise you have not yet received all that you are entitled to. My advice to you is to get it, for you are living in a day and an age when if you are without that testimony, you can not stand. A Latter Day Saint can no more endure this testing time, this shaking time, than can a Methodist, Baptist, Catholic, or Infidel, if he or she is without the testimony that Jesus is the Christ and as such is at work today in the midst of his people.

Our Testimony—Jesus Is the Christ

The vision of 1820 and all else that God has done since this church has been organized has brought back to the earth the testimony that Jesus is the Christ, the testimony of the personality of God, of his Fatherhood and Christ's Sonship. This church has a contribution to make to the nations of this earth. Russia has driven out the men of the church, they have turned their backs on that which pertains to religion, and I am saying to you tonight, that regardless of the experiment that Russia is making in her social and economic program, she can not hope to succeed without the knowledge that Jesus Christ is the Son of the Living God. Today millions in Russia are being held in bondage. It is true the Russians have thrown off the bondage of the Czar, but the entire nation is being forced by necessity to do what it is doing, and the masses will again rise in revolt.

In speaking to Brother Skinner tonight, I pointed out if this church has ever had an opportunity to represent the church of Jesus Christ, it has that opportunity in Russia, but I am satisfied we are not prepared to do that. If we could reveal our social and economic program, and if we could point back to a living, active example of that program in force, we could add millions to the church of Jesus Christ. What we could do for Russia, we could do for Great Britain. This church will discharge that mission. That is what is before us—that is the task. We seem insignificant when we think of the task that lies before us. I used to wonder how the nations would be brought to Christ, how they would be reached? But I have lived to see the day that the reaching of these nations is possible.

Every nation is being turned upside down and is being compelled to find a way out. They are being compelled to look as they have never looked before. There was no opportunity to establish our church in Russia in the days of the Czar. What opportunity did we have in Spain? But the day has come when the doors of the nations of the earth are being swung ajar, and the need for Jesus Christ and his gospel has become apparent. We have our opportunity to bring to these nations an incentive to cause them to build what the Russians would like to see built. We could bring the incentive, the living testimony, that Jesus Christ is in the midst of the nations, and that he is building his kingdom and establishing his righteousness on the earth.

I trust that we will have renewed zeal, and a renewed and enlarged vision, and that with the help of God we will carry this church on as we have not carried it on in the recent past; for I am convinced that this is the day of our opportunity. May God help us to realize that this church can offer to the world in the present crisis the testimony that Jesus is the Christ, and that he is at work today to save the nations from chaos and destruction.

Two Are Better Than One

By Evan A. Fry

There is one alone, and there is not a second; yea, he hath neither child nor brother; yet there is no end of his labor; neither is his eye satisfied with his riches; neither saith he, "For whom do I labor and bereave my soul of good?" This is also vanity; yea it is a sore travail. Two are better than one; because they have a good reward for their labor. For if they fall, the one will lift up his fellow; but woe to him that is alone when he falleth, for he hath not another to help him up. Again, if two lie together, then they have heat; but how can one be warm alone? And if one prevail against him, two shall withstand him, and a threefold cord is not quickly broken.—Ecclesiastes 4: 8-12.

Here is an answer to the question which is as old as the ages: "Am I my brother's keeper?" Here also is a very sensible and practical dissertation on the beauty and practicability of having an objective outside of self for which to work. The man who is alone, who hath neither child nor brother nor friend, says this scripture, works for himself alone: he slaves and struggles, and "there is no end to his labor"; but he is never satisfied with the riches he is accumulating, because he never stops to think of the good he might do to others with his accumulated riches. His selfishness is vanity. He thinks he is self-sufficient, that he has no need of brother or friend, but woe to him that is alone when he falleth, for he hath not another to help him up.

Many a man in days past and gone as well as in the present time has tried to retire selfishly into a hard shell of indifference to his fellow man. He has blared forth long and loud to the world that he has no need of any help from others; that he can take care of himself; and that he will take care of himself and leave others to take care of themselves. If other people can not keep well and have not the good sense to make a living, that is just their hard luck. If people were not more than a little bit lazy, think such selfish men, everybody in the world could make as good a living as anybody else, and nobody would need to ask anything from anyone else.

Yet there is never any more pathetic sight than some man who has adopted such a philosophy—who has trusted all his life in the sufficiency of material things—who has cultivated no friends, despised his few relatives, and kept a "Keep Out" sign displayed to the world that passed by his front door. Sooner or later there is bound to come in his life a time when he will need a friend or a relative or some one who can give him that essence of living which no money can buy—love. He will need, not the services of a hired lawyer, or a hired nurse, or a hired doctor, or a hired companion to read to him, but the services of a friend who serves for the love and joy of serving, and there will be none to help him.

Did you ever consider that from a purely selfish standpoint, unselfishness pays better dividends in the long run than selfishness? When a man works for another as well as for himself, he has a reward larger and more satisfying than the mere result of his labor. He has the joy of knowing that another is being benefited as well as himself. And in a still more practical way, he is making an investment in friendship which will yield future returns in perhaps a spectacular and unexpected way, for the brother for whom he works will also be working for him, and perhaps still others will be working, too—all for the common good of the brotherhood. Then when misfortune comes and one man falls, his fellow will lift him up and bear him along until he is again able to go alone. But woe unto the man who has no one to help him when he falls, for he may never rise again.

Man has been slow to learn and to admit that he can not live alone no matter how hard he may try, and no matter how selfish he may be. The more complex our civilization becomes, the more dependent the individual man is upon his brother and upon his neighbor, often his neighbor in the uttermost parts of the earth. It would be a hopeless and exhausting task to attempt to enumerate the thousands, yes, the millions, of people who have helped to produce or make possible the few simple things we commonly use in everyday living. Without the help of all these people, we should soon find ourselves seriously handicapped for the demands of modern civilized life. Yet how many of the men who willingly take from society all the countless gifts that other men have made possible, selfishly say that they have paid for what they get and that it is theirs to do with as they please? How many capitalists take the rewards and the fruits of the laborer, pay him barely a living wage, and reserve all the earnings for themselves with the assertion that they have earned the increase, and that it belongs to them, rather than to the men who produced it? How many laborers give grudgingly of their labor, collect their wages, and say that the debt they owe to their employer and to society is paid in full?

A man's debt to society is never paid in full as long as he lives on this earth, and as long as there exist side by side with him people who need help either of a spiritual or of a material nature. And to the man who will work for his brother, the debt which he pays shall be repaid an hundredfold, for as he works for his brother, his brother works for him, and if any outsider prevail against either brother, the second will join forces with the first to repulse the invader. You remember the old fable of the father who illustrated the strength of unity to his sons by means of a bundle of sticks which could be broken separately, but could not be broken as long as they remained in the bundle. Somehow or other, the Christian churches have been slow to recognize this principle in a practical, economic way, and the usual practice among good Christians is for every man to labor for self, leaving the unfortunate to get along as best he can. If the kingdom of Christ is ever established upon the earth, it will be because Christian people have at last come to realize that two are better than one; that he who works for another as well as for himself has a rich and good reward for his labor, and rest and assurance to his own soul.

Graceland in Harmony With Present Educational Tendencies

By G. N. Briggs

Last month there was held under the auspices of the University of Chicago, one of the most significant conferences on higher education convened in recent months. There were present the presidents and deans from institutions as far east as Harvard and west to Leland Stanford, in California. The principal subject of the conference was the ever-enlarging place of the junior college in the American program of education. The fact was developed in this meeting that the increasing importance of the junior college is due to two principal causes: First that the first two years of college, for the great majority of students, is the end of general education; and second, that for most of the professions two years of college preparation is essential, and that the junior college meets those requirements.

The growth of the junior college in the United States in recent years has been one of the outstanding developments of education. From the week's discussion of present trends in the junior college, there is every evidence that our own college, Graceland, has enlarged her program to meet the new requirements in general education as well as preparation for the professional courses. Graceland now offers preparation for entrance to the following professional courses: Engineering, business administration, law, dentistry, medicine, teaching, public school music, home economics, religious education, nursing, and this year is introducing a pre-professional secretarial course on a college basis.

The week's conference at the University of Chicago convinces Graceland's administrative officers that our church college is developing in directions which are sure to meet the ever-increasing demand for well-prepared young men and women.

Another theme discussed in the Chicago convention was, of course, the present depression and the fact that there is every indication that within a period of a few months we shall enter upon the upward trend of business and that by the time the young men and women entering college this fall are ready for their part in the commercial, industrial, and professional life of the community, the country will be in the midst of probably the golden age of American development. The feeling on the part of the college administrators is that it is the function of colleges for the next few years to put forth special effort to prepare young men and women to take advantage of the coming economic prosperity.

With the general program of education and the preprofessional courses offered at Graceland, our own church is fully equipped, in light of the present tendencies in education, to continue to render high grade service to the ever-increasing number of young people from all parts of the country.

With the new year opening in September, it is expected that the usual number of young people from all parts of the country will knock at Graceland's doors ready to enter upon that extended preparation so essential in these days of unusual demands for well-educated young men and women.

Happy is he who has learned to do this one thing—to do the plain duty of the moment quickly and cheerfully, whatever it may be.—Selected.

Weekly Health Letter

Number Six

The Nose and Its Relation to Health and Disease.—4

By A. W. Teel, M. D., Church Physician

It has already been intimated in our last letter that air in passing through the nasal chambers receives moisture from the lining membrane, which affords protection to it and to the walls of the small air cells of the lungs, called vesicles. These vesicles are of great importance to the physician, for if there is any abnormality, they elicit a peculiar sound which is a great aid in the diagnosis. The nose not only protects the air of the lungs, but is a guardian to the whole respiratory tract. It produces the proper humidity of the breath atmosphere by raising the temperature of the cold air passing through it. This brings about an expansion of its lining, thus increasing its capacity to absorb moisture.

Within the nose there are involuntary erectile tissues, sometimes called "swell bodies," which are also serum-secreting glands, whose function it is to give off moisture to supply the lower respiratory tract where the serum-secreting glands are much fewer in number. It is estimated that the nasal cavities supply the lower respiratory tract with one pint of serum every twenty-four hours.

The "swell bodies" are under the control of the vasso-motor nervous system, and their actions are involuntary in regulating the supply of moisture. Thus, if the air is humid, they are less active; if the air is dry and the membrane is normal, they expand just sufficiently to saturate the inspired area, supplying the much-needed humidity. Catarrhal inflammation, or any obstructive lesion in the nose, will seriously interfere with the function of the lungs and other parts of the respiratory tract. For this reason, care should be taken to keep them in a healthy condition. If for any reason they become diseased, they should be treated locally, and the general health of the patient should be looked after, the treatment being directed toward giving stability to the vasso-motor nervous system by diet, proper bathing, outdoor exercise, etc. When surgical interference is necessary to restore the functions of the glands and "swell bodies," a competent specialist should be consulted, as great care should be taken by the surgeon not to interfere with these tissues unless they have undergone considerable change by disease. The "swell bodies," being located on the posterior end of the lower turbinate bodies, the surgeon will not remove these bones unless their secretory function has become so diseased, by inflammation or injury, that they are no longer of use to the individual. The disturbance of these bodies is evident when the patient complains of stuffiness of the nose, as of a foreign body. Frequently, when one is thus affected while lying in bed, one side of the nose will feel "stopped up" and then by turning on the other side, that side will have the same sensation.

One must not lose sight of the fact that one of the chief functions of the nose is the ventilation of the accessory sinuses. Anyone who has treated conditions of this kind has had an opportunity of observing that ventilation is a primary requisite to keep these cavities in a healthy condition. If they have not proper ventilation, the resistance is lowered, the amount of oxygen is diminished, allowing the secretion to undergo rapid decomposition.

Tom King: A Life History

PART SIX

By C. H. Porter

(Continued from the Herald of August 5, page 732.)

Back in the Empire State

Their return was a surprise to their friends. After he had secured a home and care for his wife, Tom had no difficulty in obtaining employment. He shucked corn by the bushel on the same farm where he worked before going west, but not for the same man.

When the severe weather of winter came, he found a home near the city of Auburn, and secured good medical care for his wife. He had strong hope of her ultimate recovery, but she still grew steadily weaker.

He worked at anything he could find to do until the land was ready for work in the spring; then he found employment with a gardener for the season. His employer was an Englishman who appreciated Tom's work and commended him highly. They worked in the garden until all the crop was gathered and cared for; then Tom concluded to take a suite of rooms in Auburn so as to be near the doctor and also to have more conveniences for his wife than the country home afforded.

The doctor who had cared for his wife for almost a year had to give up the case, as she was about to leave the country. She seemed to understand the case thoroughly and fought valiantly for the recovery of her patient. She advised Tom what to do and who she thought would be a good practitioner to take the case.

He saw this doctor at once, explained the case, and asked him to call as soon as he could. He promised to do so, but from some cause delayed his visit. Tom called again at his office and found him out. He left a hurry call for him, but he failed to respond. Tom found other assistance and notified the former doctor that his service was no longer needed.

The assistance he procured was only temporary, and he was at a loss as to whom to call upon, when he happened to go into one of the meat markets and stores and found to his great surprise that it was in charge of his friend and former fellow student, Grover Ellsworth. The greeting was warm and friendly, and finally, after inquiry, Tom told him why he was in Auburn and of the now serious condition of his wife. Grove had studied medicine, but was now in the grocery business, owing to the death of an uncle who had left the store to his widow. He said, "I will call to see your wife. Perhaps I can then advise you what to do."

He did so and advised Tom to get a doctor that he knew well, saying that the doctor's wife also was a practitioner, and if help could be found they surely would seek it. "But," said he, "your wife is failing, and it is a question if she can ever recover. You had better do all you can for her, for you are not likely to have her long." This was bitter news to Tom, but he feared that it was only too true.

The doctor gave him little encouragement, and one day said to him, "King, you must keep a stiff upper lip. It is my duty to tell you that your wife can never recover. She has tuberculosis, and it is only a question of time with her."

Tom had known that for a long time without admitting it even to himself, but now that it was put into words it was terrible to him. He and his wife had worked hard and had hoped to succeed and live happily together, only to be told now that it was only a matter of time until death would part them. It seemed cruel. The doctor saw and understood. He said, "If you would rather trust some one else with the case, it will be all right for you to do so." "No," said Tom, "do all you can. No one can do more."

Dark Days

The darkest days of Tom's life now commenced. His finances were in a terrible condition. He had worked hard and saved all he could, but for a long time his daily expense had been greater than his income.

His bank account was exhausted. He had money owing to him in the West, but he could not collect it. His wife was failing gradually, and was in need of medicine, delicacies, and nursing, and to make matters worse he was unable to obtain work in the city.

He had paid for their rooms several months in advance, so they had a place to live, but that was all. One morning he found himself completely out of funds. He could not tell his wife, and he had no friend to whom he felt near enough to reveal the stupendous fact. He left their rooms and stood upon the street and wondered what to do. He had been everywhere he could think of to ask for work. No factory or shop seemed to have need of a new man to work.

He had no thought of getting a letter, but for want of something to do he went to the post office and inquired, and to his great surprise received one postmarked Nebraska. He opened it to find a greater surprise, for inclosed was a bank draft for fifty dollars as part payment on money owed him. He felt so overjoyed that it seemed he could never again doubt an overruling Providence.

Soon after this he found on the sidewalk a large wallet well filled with business papers. He went into the office of a young lawyer with whom he was acquainted, and together they examined the wallet and discovered to whom it belonged.

Tom took it to the office of the owner, who thanked him courteously for returning it, and looking at him, said, "Haven't I met you before?" Tom said, "Yes, sir. You picked me up one night on the road home from toward Owasco." "Oh, yes," he said; "you are the young man who gave me such an interesting account of the West, aren't you?" Tom said that he was. "Well," said he, "what are you doing here?" Tom told him just how he was situated. "Well," he said, "that is too bad. Could you leave your wife if you had work?" Tom told him that his wife had a good strong girl in the house with her, and that he needed work more than anything.

The man asked him how he had tried to get work and was told that he had applied at every place he knew. "Well," said he, "what can you do best?" Tom told him he could do anything in a garden or on a farm, or anything that might be needed in a general way.

He said, "I will tell you what I'll do. I'll write letters of introduction to several of my friends in the city. You take these letters, call at their homes, tell them I sent you, and that if they have need of a man to do work at any time you will be glad to do it. Will you do that?"

Tom replied, "I shall be very much obliged to you, and will certainly do it, and if work is given me I shall try to give satisfaction."

The man then said, "Would you care to have charge of my driving horse? The stable is located about three blocks from your rooms. You would have to curry and brush the horse, feed him and clean the stable, also look after him in the evening."

Tom said he would be glad to do this, so arrangement was made at once, and he found this to be only a small commencement. In a few days he was asked to take charge of Doctor Brinkerhoff's horse at a stable near by, and in a few days he had jobs of different kinds from the people to whom he had taken letters of introduction. From this time he lacked neither friends nor labor while living in the city.

It seemed wonderful to him that he should have tried so hard to find work and to be constantly unsuccessful until by a lucky chance he met a man who was able to assist him so readily to do what he needed, with so little effort.

He worked for the same people to whom he took letters of introduction all the time he lived in Auburn. They treated him well, and after becoming acquainted trusted him in business affairs and frequently consulted him in reference to personal matters.

In September of 1880, the expected event occurred. His wife quietly passed away. She had gradually grown more feeble until she was almost like a child again. They had several talks together regarding it. Being asked one day if she felt quite willing to go, she said, "Oh, Tom, if it was only now." She was so tired.

On another occasion she said, "You poor boy, I don't know what you will do when I am gone. There are so few people who understand you. You are so good, but your words are sometimes hard, and people think you are unkind. When I am gone, don't let anyone abuse little Rosa." He replied, "Dear girl, no one can abuse Rosa while I am alive." She said, "I know it."

Tom had expected this event. It came gradually but surely. Yet when it came it was hard to bear. Tom felt almost alone. Only a little girl of four years remained to remind him of his once happily married life. There was no intimate friend to whom he could turn. He purchased a lot in a beautiful cemetery at the foot of Owasco Lake, and there he buried the one who had learned to love the alien who felt very lonely at times, and who appreciated the understanding love that had been so freely bestowed.

(To be continued.)

To understand the world is better than to condemn it; to study the world is better than to abuse it; to make the world better, lovelier, and happier is the noblest work any of us can do.—Selected.

THE GOSPEL FORUM

Under this heading we shall be glad to receive and publish articles and letters of interest to our readers on the doctrine and work of the church. Writers are responsible for their own views. Other views on subjects discussed here will be received if of sufficient interest.

Distinctive Features of the Restoration

By Thomas Jones

If we could assume that Joseph Smith introduced nothing new in the philosophy of life he was chosen to bring forth, we would be justified in dismissing our organized theories as having been already tried and found wanting. The religious and political groups of his time were seething in a whirlpool of uncertainty and misdirection, and to have brought to them old and tried panaceas would have invalidated any claim of divine restoration. How many churches, at that time, were teaching the second coming of Christ? How many ministers were interested in the return of the Jews? How many religious bodies were endeavoring to foster a new outlook on economic dilemmas in 1830?

Our Message Related to That of Former Days

It is eminently clear that our message today deals with angelic promises that have a definite relationship with those given to prophets of other days. That Christ shall come to Jerusalem, to its Mount of Olives at a set time, is evident according to Zechariah. The two angels in their conversation said: "Run, speak to this young man, saying, Jerusalem shall be inhabited as towns without walls for the multitude of men and cattle therein."—Zechariah 2: 4.

A passage that probably had its fulfillment in the World War indicates that the latter-day Seer was directed by God, and the guidance was of a prophetic character. It is interesting to note that General Allenby, who was with the British forces outside the coveted city of the Mohammedan and the Christian, had a strange feeling of reverence towards the beleaguered city and probably sensed the attitude of the motley group of warlike religionists who still believed Jerusalem to be a holy place. He may have felt that he could not alone take the responsibility for the destruction of so ancient a landmark. The answer he received from the British throne as to the method of its capture was, "Pray about it." The waiting period brought a result that was astonishing to Turk and Arab. Tradition had it that when they would see a white man walking into Jerusalem bareheaded, they were to evacuate the city.

Indications of the Day of Preparation

The day of this preparation for the greater Palestine and the dispensation of God toward Israel was to come at a set time. Many still remember the scarlet tunics worn by British and American soldiers, and the modern chariots are with us as foretold in Nahum 2: 3: "The shield of his mighty men is made red, the valiant men are in scarlet; the chariots shall be with flaming torches in the day of his preparation, and the fir trees shall be terribly shaken."

The following summary, I believe, is a clear fulfillment of this prophecy:

Russia was shaken as a monarchical institution. Its government has changed, and now she is passing through the greatest collective experiment ever known.

The Balkan states are still in a ferment, and one royal head after another is being shaken from a tottering throne into oblivion.

Italy has been stunned with her Mussolini, who is making the most daring attempt any one man could be expected to make; a desperate effort to stamp out democracy and substitute a dictatorship. This is a deliberate effort to swing back the tide of human endeavors, and others are dallying with the temptation.

Turkey has been shaken. The traditions of centuries have been thrown off, and a movement towards progress has commenced.

Germany, like Russia, was thrown from the lap of a monarchy into the cradle of republicanism. She surely was among those who were terribly shaken.

France, decimated by the havoc of war, enjoys more prosperity than other nations, and is now encouraging birth increases, foreign to her desires in years past.

England and her colonies are torn with unrest. Her colonists rallied to her aid, and many of them are now stirring under the controlling influence the mother country desires to retain. India, Egypt, Ireland have become restless and shaken by the urge to rule themselves.

America first bestirred herself to supply the sinews of war to the Allied forces. Men and munitions were dispatched to the scene of carnage, and a thing the fathers of the Republic would have thought impossible happened when our troops fought side by side with those of the British king against a supposed "common foe."

Our industrial development has shown us the fulfillment of that verse in Nahum's writings which tells us that: "The chariots shall rage in the streets, they shall jostle one against another in the broad ways; they shall seem like torches, they shall run like the lightnings."

The grand total of the day of God's preparation is in evidence. Nations are tumbling, and the "perplexity of nations" is upon us. Millions of men and women are deprived of the means of making a living. They desire work, and it is denied them. Wishing to live a broad and full life, they are forced to eke out a miserable existence. In many large cities there has arisen a band of human scavengers who in the early hours of the morning seek scraps to keep the flame of life alight. What shall we do?

The Prophet Joseph emphasized a scriptural text known as "the fullness of the Gentiles." The Book of Mormon and the New Testament also draw attention to it. The opportunities for reform are so vast that they may well astonish us. The surface of Britain, Germany, and America has been scratched with the message of the Restoration. China, Japan, and other vast Asiatic countries have never heard our message.

Orthodox religion is a wasted force. It has lost its appeal to the masses of humanity composing our world. Church buildings are empty; many are sold for places of amusement. Sectarian missionaries are ridiculed when they make their "purely spiritual appeal." And large political bodies say with force that religion offers them a stone in place of bread.

Our Program Combines Spiritual and Material Development

It has always been my contention that the spiritual development of a people must be parallel to their economic freedom. To try to interest a people who are crushed into a state of despair by the forces of economic policy, in a theory of happiness after death, golden harps, and pellucid waters, seems energy wasted, and good money and time sent after bad. The only rational appeal is one made to both forces. The spiritual must not be subordinated to the material; neither must the material part of our lives be treated as something that will look after itself. True it is that Christ said, "Man shall not live by bread alone," but he was careful to feed the multitudes and drive the predecessors of our Wall Street financiers from the temple.

I have been a member of the priesthood of this church for many years and can remember accounts of the rapid acceptance of the work in the British Isles in the early days. Thousands embraced the gospel, and thousands became real Latter Day Saints. What appealed to them? Not faith, repentance, and baptism alone; they had heard that before. Not life after death; they were familiar with that, too. But that which stirred them to action was a combination of a message that would calm their troubled souls and solve their struggle for livelihood—a new hope, and Zion.

If we would save the church today, we must revive the old-time appeal and take it where it is most needed—to the masses. God has proposed that his church be at the head, and not the tail of progress.

Our School of the Prophets should be used to obtain the light needed to propel the restored gospel to the ends of the earth. The Bible, Book of Mormon, and Doctrine and Covenants must be used to enlighten the wondering world rather than for academic philosophizing. Our schools of learning alone will not help us. There is more so-called book knowledge today than ever before, and there are more unemployment, more misery, and less spirituality. The latter may not be a result of the former, but it should cause us to think.

Latter-day Slogan—"Practice What We Know"

We have solved many of the problems of the past. Production of material economic goods is to be admired. More food can be grown now than can be distributed; more automobiles can be manufactured than can be bought. But the problem of getting the gospel into the lives of the people has not been solved, and never will be, until we have the courage to give the world the message of the Martyr. Are we as cowardly as some present-day religionists of high standing who say there is nothing wrong with our capitalistic system? Within our church lies the only solution for the world-wide problems of today.

Let us study to show our theories approved, give the world the benefit of the angelically restored gospel, strike at the God of Mammon's feet of clay, and conduct ourselves as men. Practice is what we need. "Practice what we know" should be our slogan. The world is not suffering from a dearth of brilliant philosophers or eloquent priests, but it is suffering from a lack of Saints, true and loyal men and women who will carry the cross and who will war against greed, graft, and immorality.

A church or a religion constructed on a false theory of life and economics is as George Haw once said, "like a butterfly without a head." Sir Thomas Browne has it that "Reason and reason alone is like a bad hound sent upon a false scent." Let us demonstrate before it is too late that we have a church built upon a sound spiritual code and an impregnable social platform.

Concentration of thought is a great power and can be cultivated by all. Constructive thinking is the first step upward. Concentration and constructive thinking along any line will develop new ideas. Ideas, real constructive ideas, are in great demand. They foster all kinds of businesses and promote research and lead to discoveries in all the sciences and professions. The man with the worth-while ideas is the valuable man in all walks of life. The idle talk and the schemes of the scatterbrain amount to nothing, but the world pays high prices for practical plans which are the result of deep, concentrated thought.—Selected.

Christ Saves Us

You can not slay your sins one at a time. You can not pull up the noxious weeds in the garden of your soul one by one. The only remedy is to put yourself in the hands of Christ and let him plant your garden so full of flowers that there will not be room for the weeds. Your only chance to keep from doing the positive wrong is to be so busy doing the positive right that there is no inclination for anything else.

The little schoolhouse that I attended years ago was surrounded by a great grove of scrubby black oak. These trees had a wonderful way of clinging to their leaves. When the frost killed other leaves and cut them from the boughs of the trees, these oak leaves still clung, though they were as sear as any that lay on the ground. Then came the sharp winds of winter, but even they were powerless to break the hold of these dead leaves. Still later came the snow and the sleet and the ice, but their efforts were equally futile. But one day a wonderful surgeon clipped off all those leaves of death. Who was that surgeon? His name was Spring. Springtime got into the heart of those oaks, and the sap rose up, and new leaves pushed out and said to the old dead leaves: "This is my place." And thus Christ will save us. Therefore, "This I say, Walk in the Spirit, and you shall not fulfill the lust of the flesh."—Clovis G. Chappell, in The Sermon on the Mount; Cokesbury Press.

Unworthy Criticism

One night Dwight L. Moody was addressing an immense congregation. On the platform with him were several ministers from the local churches. At the close of Mr. Moody's sermon one of these men stepped forward and said coolly, "Excuse me, but you made eleven mistakes in grammar tonight." There was a moment of embarrassed silence, and then Mr. Moody said jovially, "Probably I did. My early education was very faulty. But I am using all the grammar I know in the service of Christ. How about you?" The ultimate source of that cruel comment was obvious. It came from jealousy—the jealousy of a man who was failing in the work in which Mr. Moody was succeeding. A large proportion, perhaps a majority, of the unkind remarks that are bandied about in the modern community springs from the same discreditable source.—James Gordon Gilkey, in Solving Life's Everyday Problems; The MacMillan Company.

He who can not forgive others breaks the bridge over which he must pass himself.—Selected.

NEWS OF CHURCH AND HOME

Address all news and letters to Editors of the Herald, Box 237, Independence, Missouri. Correspondents are requested to make their letters brief. The Editors reserve the right, on account of space limitations, to shorten all letters as circumstances require.

Independence

Stone Church

The blessing of a baby, one of the most beautiful of church ordinances, formed the central part of the opening church school worship Sunday morning for the adult and junior young people's departments. President Elbert A. Smith and Superintendent S. A. Thiel laid their hands on and blessed Thomas Richard, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Braby. Hymns, prayer, and two lovely soprano solos by Josephine Smith Ebeling centered about the ceremony.

The Y. K. T. Class, of the adult department, is rapidly increasing in number. Much interest is now being shown in the course of lectures given.

In the Sunday morning sermon Elder C. E. Wight, president of Kansas City Stake, stressed the need for spiritual growth and leadership in the life of each member before he can successfully help in the tasks God has assigned us. His text was 2 Corinthians 4:5. Mrs. Ebeling was also soloist for the church hour, singing "O Trust in the Lord." Paul Craig led the congregational singing, Robert Miller contributed organ numbers, and Elder H. G. Barto was in charge of the service.

The Sunday morning service at the Campus opened in charge of the superintendent of the junior department, Mrs. Ray Moler. A pleasing program of music was given by the orchestra, conducted by Brother Fred Mollison.

Rain Sunday afternoon made it necessary for the regular Sunday evening Campus service to be conducted at the Stone Church, Pastor John F. Sheehy the speaker.

"Revelation" was the topic of the sermon, and it was Brother Sheehy's purpose to present God as a loving and watchful Father who reveals his will to his servants. The message was given a historical background from the Bible and early latter-day church history.

Music for the evening was supplied by the Auditorium Orchestra, directed by Orlando Nace, and Elder A. K. Dillee was in charge of the service.

Miss Esther Dell became the bride of Mr. Norris W. Dobson Saturday evening at eight o'clock in a pleasing little ceremony conducted in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dell. Elder W. B. Paul officiated in the ceremony in the presence of fifty relatives and close friends. The bridal couple were accompanied by Miss Edna Dobson, sister of the bridegroom, bridesmaid, and Mr. Nelson Colley, groomsman. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Etta Dobson, of Independence. Mr. and Mrs. Dobson will make their home in Mount Washington, Missouri.

The marriage of Miss Allegra Caroleine Luff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Luff, and Reginald Archer Smith, younger son of the late President Joseph Smith, took place at the Stone Church at 8.30 Saturday night. President Elbert A. Smith read the double ring ceremony before an altar banked with palms, ferns, and gladioli. Preceding the ceremony Miss Elizabeth and Miss Elinor Smith played a harp duet, "Æolian Harp." Miss Gladys Good sang "God Has Made Two Hearts as One" and "God Touched the Rose." Mrs. Arthur L. Murphy, jr., read "The Bridal Pair," and George Anway sang "Within the Garden of My Heart" and "I Love You Truly." The wedding march was played by Miss Lorena Kueffer, organist, and Miss Lillian McCarty, pianist. During the ceremony the harpists played "Love's Old Sweet Song." The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was accompanied by her sister, Mrs. M. F. Sinner, as matron of honor, and Miss Bertina Congdon, Miss Kathryn Haberlein, and Miss Katherine Head, bridesmaids. Richard C. Smith, brother of the bridegroom, acted as best man, and ushers were Doctor Harold E. Morgan, Craig Siegfried, and W. Wallace Smith. The rings were carried on ivory satin pillows by Lois Elaine Feldhahn and Allan Smith. Jacquelin Feldhahn was flower girl. Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. The bridal couple left for a wedding trip in the Ozarks and will be home in Independence after September 1.

The marriage of Miss Alberta Resch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Resch, of Independence, to Mr. Ammon Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Davis, of Oak Grove, took place Sunday evening, August 2, at the home of the bride's parents. The double ring ceremony was said by Elder John F. Sheehy in the presence of fifty guests. Preceding the ceremony Miss Lilly Belle Allen sang "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life" and "Because." She was accompanied by Miss Marcine Smith at the piano, who also played Lohengrin's Wedding March. Miss Dorothy Koehler was bridesmaid. Miss Kathleen Hiles, cousin of the bride, carried the rings on a blue satin pillow. Ribbon bearers were Clarence Resch, Dorothy Mills, Homer Hiles, and Louise Resch. V. Reed McKay, of Kansas City, acted as best man. The bride was given in marriage by her father. A reception followed the ceremony. The bridal couple are now at home to their friends at 1214 West Maple Avenue.

The To-Ko-Lon Class of the young people's division of the Stone Church and the Wah-Dem-Na Choral Club entertained two of their members, Miss Joy Carpender and Mr. Orville Hulmes, last night with a reception and bridal shower. Miss Carpender and Mr. Hulmes have announced the date of their marriage to be Monday night, August 17. The reception occurred at the Campus in charge of Mrs. C. C. Koehler, former teacher of the class. Many beautiful gifts and good wishes were received by the bride and bridegroom-to-be.

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Woodstock were delightfully surprised at their home in Independence on Saturday evening when a group of relatives and friends gathered in honor of their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. For two years this pair have lived in Independence, where they have many friends. Lamoni, Iowa, was formerly their home. They were married August 8, 1906, in Plano, Illinois, by Elder Eli M. Wildermuth. Only one of their two sons, Marion, was present to take part in the celebration. Lyle is in Janesville, Wisconsin. Mr. and Mrs. Woodstock are well known to the church, for a number of years having been associated with the work of the former departments, she specializing in girl leadership, and he in Sunday school work. Elder Woodstock is now assistant director of the Department of Religious Education.

The passing of summer weeks reminds the people of Independence that they are soon to lose a number of young people who are workers in the church school. Many of the young people who graduated from William Chrisman High School last May are entering Graceland College this September; others are going to near-by State universities and teachers' colleges; still other young people will teach in adjoining States.

Walnut Park

Elder J. Stanley Kelley, in behalf of the Bishopric, was the eleven o'clock speaker August 9 on the thought of each being his "brother's brother," or helper. This was illustrated in educational lines, in industry, and in religion. In the work of his office he of necessity meets those in sore need of a brother's help, and in his anxiety to answer to their call he endeavored to create in his hearers the brotherly attitude required of Saints. Mrs. A. M. Dobson directed the anthem, "I Will Lift Up Mine Eyes," with Mrs. R. D. Weaver soprano soloist.

The morning prayer meeting was noteworthy for the splendid heart to heart talk given by Elder Welton Wood at the opening, and the fine response shown in an extraordinarily large number of testimonies. The time was extended, and still doubtless there were others who desired to participate. A commendable thing about Walnut Park Saints is that none talk too long, thus many have an opportunity to occupy. The relating of a miraculous healing which occurred the past week under the hands of the elders was enjoyed by the Saints.

The young people's Wednesday evening prayer meeting is reported as being attended by about forty last week, and the time was well spent. Some of the young also enjoy the Sunday morning service with the older ones.

Week-day efforts of the women in the interest of the church deserve mention, as a large number are usually busy on Wednesdays and Thursdays quilting or canning fruit and vegetables for the Harvest Festival. They meet in the church basement, where they can quilt conveniently and where one room is equipped with a large gas range for cooking fruit, etc. Money received for quilting contributes to district needs. Mrs. F. R. Schafer is district supervisor, with Mrs. Elmer Pennell, Mrs. Benjamin Bean, Mrs. Charles Bricker, Mrs. Orlando Nace, and Mrs. C. J. Yarrington directing the work of their respective groups.

East Independence

Activities in this branch have during the past few weeks held good interest. Nevertheless we miss our Sunday evening services.

The orchestra, which has been organized only four months, is ready to start work for the branch. The contribution of this group will be much appreciated by the congregation.

A choir is also being organized and promises to make the services more interesting.

We are turning our thoughts to the Harvest Home Festival. It is our aim to contribute the amount we set out to give through donation and sacrifice.

Elder and Sister Frank Minton announce the birth of a son, Howard Dale.

Some sickness has been in the group. Sister C. W. O'Neal, who was seriously ill and spent some time in the Sanitarium, is at home and able to be about family duties.

Last week's prayer meeting was an indication of the alert condition of the branch. Thirty members were present and six members of the priesthood.

The church school under C. Edgerton and T. W. Thatcher is active. During this month each class is carrying out the program outlined in Vision.

Recent speakers have been Elders Frank Minton, E. C. Thomas, W. E. Shakespeare, and A. H. Christensen. These have brought excellent sermons.

Englewood

A wedding of interest to Saints of this district was that of Dorothy Jane Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Taylor, to Mr. V. Reed McKay, which took place on the lawn of the bride's home at 8.30 Saturday evening. Elder U. W. Greene read the service before a bower of ferns and garden flowers. Before the ceremony D. S. McNamara sang "When Your Hair Has Turned to Silver." A quartet composed of Duane Swalley, Roderick May, Robert Crawford, and Edward Cronenbold sang "I Love You Truly," and Opal Goode Doty sang "For You." Frances Gindhart played the wedding march. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, had as maid of honor Miss Margaret Lee, and Harlow Johnson was best man. Lois Jean and Dorothy Dean Welch were flower girls, and Tommy Jim McNamara was the ring bearer.

Elder G. G. Lewis was the Sunday morning speaker at Englewood. "All are called to labor," a text from Doctrine and Covenants 119: 8, formed the basis for a discourse on "Meeting Church Obligations."

Bemidji, Minnesota

Saints in Bemidji and vicinity are determined to go forward to Zion. The country here is beautiful, the crops fine. June 21 Brother George Day and Elder Samuel Case, of Duluth, went to Little Fork, where nine were baptized.

Rally Day was held July 12, and a splendid time was enjoyed by the Saints. In addition to the presence of a number of nonmembers, Saints were here from Duluth, Cass Lake, Walker, Bagley, Oak Park. Brother W. C. Stauty, of Duluth, preached Saturday evening on the theme, "The Highway of Life."

A splendid spirit prevailed Sunday morning in the early prayer service, and continued throughout the day's meetings.

The Sunday school opened its session at ten o'clock, and Elder Samuel Case, of Duluth, preached at eleven o'clock. In the early afternoon Brother Day was the speaker, and sacrament service was held at four o'clock. Elder M. Erickson, of Oak Park, occupied the pulpit in the evening.

At noon a bountiful meal was served on a long table on the church ground among the Jackpine trees.

So helpful was this day to the Saints that it was decided to hold another rally, and the date selected was September 6. Everyone looks forward to this time, and we invite all members and friends to "come again."

We are confident that the Lord is directing his church and that his Spirit is still with us as it was in the beginning of our church associations. The splendid articles and letters in Herald and Ensign are enjoyed. As Saints of God, we wish to continue to abide in the faith once delivered to the Saints.

Bradner, Ohio

Since Bradner was last heard from in the Herald, Apostle Clyde F. Ellis has twice visited us, helping with his inspiring sermons.

Mother's Day was observed with a fitting program. On May 17 a special service was held, and three new and beautiful pulpit chairs were installed. Gratitude is due the counselors to the branch president for these much needed pieces of furniture. A few days prior to the event the Saints made ready the church by cleaning the entire interior, turning the carpet, and putting up a new rail curtain, which greatly improves the appearance of the house of worship.

May 21 Elder and Sister J. W. Peterson, of Independence, stopped in Bradner en route from northern Michigan to Tennessee. Owing to the school commencement exercises during that week, only one week-night service was held, but Brother Peterson occupied morning and evening the following Sunday. Brother Peterson has been in the missionary field for forty-two years, and the Saints in this branch feel greatly benefitted by the truths he presented.

Children's Day was observed with a program in the morning and baptismal service in the afternoon. Two juniors, Evelyn Fewless and Louis Wirebaugh, were baptized.

On July 19 another was added to our number by baptism, an aged sister, Mrs. John Daily.

The Spirit of the Lord was deeply felt at the July sacrament service, speaking to Brothers Cadow and Wirebaugh, the latter being the newly appointed district bishop's agent. A number of visitors enjoyed this refreshing experience with us. In the evening Brother Cadow, of Port Huron, Michigan, presented a forceful sermon.

Tithes and offerings formed the basis for a powerful sermon by Brother Wirebaugh July 12.

For three Sunday evenings the Saints have been privileged to listen to sermons by Brother Hetrick, of Philadelphia.

The midweek prayer meetings have of late been spiritual feasts. They have been largely attended, and the people have been active in prayer and testimony. On several occasions the Spirit has spoken to different ones in admonition and comfort.

The Women's Department is active, and the meetings are well attended and ruled by a happy spirit.

On the whole, we are glad to report that Bradner Branch is on the upward trend, and we trust that we may continue in humility and love.

Elder F. L. Sawley Goes to Holden Home

Elder F. L. Sawley, for years a missionary in the church, and a man who has labored in the face of severe physical difficulties, has recently entered the Home for the Aged at Holden, Missouri. From there he writes the Herald, expressing the joy which comes from perseverance in the ministerial calling and the blessing of the Lord. He hopes many of his friends throughout the church will write to him. Here is his letter:

"Holden, Missouri.—I am now an inmate of the Holden Home, where I have been for three weeks, and expect to live for the rest of my life, if God is willing. I came here from Allendale, Missouri, where I had been working in the branch since last October except for two months and four days when I was in the Sanitarium at Independence. There I passed through a successful operation for gallstones and removal of appendix, and I can humbly testify that I was given the best of attention during my stay there. Best of all, my heavenly Father, true to his promise, wonderfully blessed me, taking away all fear and dread, and giving me a cheerful, happy spirit. I was conscious of little pain, as all who cared for me can testify.

"Sixty-seven years makes me not an old man, nor yet a young man, but in looking over my appointment papers, I find that I put in more than a quarter of a century in the missionary field under General Conference appointment. I worked from 1893 to 1920, and about three years more than that, until a carbuncle on the back of my neck rendered me unable to work for two years. Since then I have suffered other physical ills and weakness, but find myself still willing and eager to give my remaining strength to the honor and glory of God and the good of his people, especially these in the home. Some of them I have known for years, and they know me to be one who has worked for years, handicapped by suffering, lame, and weak in body.

"Today finds me firm in the faith and rejoicing in the spirit that is in the Reorganized Church, and I pray that I shall endure to the end faithful and true."

Cedar Rapids, Iowa

Because we enjoy reading of God's goodness to others, we wish to say that he has not forgotten us. For some time past it has seemed that his work in Cedar Rapids was to be entirely stamped out. This brought to mind a prophecy given a few years ago in which the Saints were told that there was a work to be done here, and that after dwindling almost to nothing it would again be built up beyond all expectations. These things were to happen if we were faithful.

Evidence of the fact that God has not forgotten his people here has been given in the past two weeks. District Missionary F. C. Bevan has delivered some inspiring sermons, and during his meetings two new members have been added to the ranks. These completed two family circles, adding the husbands. The weather was very hot, but attendance was good.

Since the branch was closed in the month of February, a total of four new members has been added. It looks as though God's work will go on in spite of everything.

A social gathering was held at the home of Brother and Sister Ralph Welday July 24, at which forty-two were present. Brother Bevan took charge of the games.

As yet we do not know what is to be done here, but it is our hope that we may prove faithful and go forward in the work God has for us to do.

Topeka, Kansas

1114 Clay Street

District Missionary W. A. Smith is a frequent visitor and helper in Topeka Branch. One of his visits fell on July 26, when he preached morning and evening. At the close of the morning service he baptized Mrs. Rebecca Jane Tripp, of Carbondale, Kansas, and the youngest son of W. A. Poort. They were confirmed immediately by Brother Smith and G. G. Cadwell. Sister Tripp is eighty-seven years old. Several Saints and friends from Carbondale accompanied her to Topeka. Brother Smith expects to return to Carbondale to hold more meetings at the home of Samuel Lyter.

Among recent visitors has been Sister Jackson, of Hutchinson, Kansas, a patient in one of the hospitals here, who is recovering sufficiently to attend an occasional service. She was present the last Sunday morning in July, being a guest in the home of Pastor Weedmark.

For more than a year we have been holding cottage prayer meetings, but the midweek services are now held at 1114 Clay Street.

The residence property belonging to the branch has been redecorated, and regular services are held here. Sometime, we trust in the near future, the branch plans to erect an edifice on the adjoining lot. Until then, visiting friends will find us at the above number where we have been meeting since July 1.

Brother and Sister L. A. Fowler and son and Sister R. J. Crane and daughter, of Kansas City Stake, made attractive one evening service in June with musical numbers and readings, and Brother Fowler delivered an illustrated lecture on Book of Mormon archæology.

Since the first of the year the branch has been working under the new plan of the church school, O. E. Weedmark pastor and T. O. Kelley, church school director. We are trying to keep in step with the general church by accomplishing a portion of its educational task.

Early in the spring Missionary W. A. Smith held meetings at the homes of Sister Helen Hays and B. F. Deller. Preceding him Patriarch Samuel Twombly spent a week visiting the Saints, held a preaching service in the home of Sister Emma Happe, and assisted at the cottage prayer service in the home of Sister C. J. Sheets. At the close of the morning service, May 19, he was assisted by B. F. Deller in blessing Mary Lea, the infant daughter of Brother Mathiason.

A splendid Children's Day program was prepared by Sister Mildred Goodfellow. At the close of the program little Beverly Weedmark was baptized by her father, the pastor, at the Y. M. C. A. She was confirmed by Elder G. G. Cadwell, of Independence, Kansas. Brother Cadwell helps this branch in many ways.

A large delegation of Saints attended the double funeral of the late E. L. Bullard and son at Vassar, Kansas, June 16. Brother Bullard was just entering years of much usefulness to his Master and fellow men. At the time of his death in an automobile accident, he was counselor to District President Little. Saints of this branch extend sympathy to the bereaved family.

An all-church recreational gathering and supper occurred at the home of Brother and Sister F. O. Kelley, at Menoken, in June, and a week later a wiener roast.

At the close of the morning service June 21, Church School Director F. O. Kelley presented a first grade certificate to Sister Fern Weedmark and a gold seal certificate to Sister Mildred Goodfellow, the first certificate to be given here under the new plan of the school. Others are studying and in due time will merit similar recognition.

The July sacrament service was in charge of F. O. Kelley and G. G. Cadwell. The Saints enjoyed a degree of the Spirit's influence.

The junior church service occupied the morning preaching hour July 19, presenting a patriotic program under the leadership of Sister Goodfellow.

Columbus, Ohio

Second Branch, Rinehard and Twenty-second Streets

Because a number of the Saints were away over the week-end, the July sacrament service was lightly attended. Nevertheless the Spirit was present to bless the earnest in heart.

The Women's Department met for breakfast July 9 at the Turvey summer cottage. Thirty-six were present, and the program consisted of the reading of poetry and the singing of songs.

The young people's class, organized July 21 under the name Young People's Social Club, commenced with ten charter members. They hope to more than double their membership this winter, and together to learn to study, work and play.

After the morning service July 26, we motored to a farm twenty-eight miles from Columbus and ate lunch under beautiful shade trees. Ninety people shared in the games and meal. Many availed themselves of the opportunity to go in swimming. After the evening lunch, chairs were placed and the people gathered together and listened to a beautiful sermon by Bishop H. E. French. Many in this group were not members of the church. Everyone profited by this afternoon spent in the great outdoors.

Other speakers for the month were J. E. Matthews, A. E. Anderton, G. H. Kirkendall, and Doctor W. B. Reeves.

The passing away of Brother J. B. Williams, of First Branch, has caused us sadness. Sympathy goes to the bereaved family. He was an earnest member who consistently strove for the better things in life.

Santa Ana, California

Saints of this branch motored to Long Beach Church, July 21, Tuesday, to hear a sermon by Presiding Bishop Carmichael, who was in southern California a few days en route to the Irvington reunion. The fine discourse was greatly enjoyed by the congregation, which included many old friends of Brother Carmichael's early years in this State.

The Patroness Society met at the home of the president, Sister Warren Best, on Thursday, the usual meeting day, and devoted themselves to the tasks of sewing and mending. Money received for this work will go into the society's treasury.

On a recent Sunday Sister Evelyn Parks, secretary of the Sunday school, resigned her position. She leaves shortly for Berkeley, where she plans to enter the university. She has been one of the most faithful members of the branch, and we regret losing her.

The Sunday school will hold its annual picnic August 16 at Irving Park, the beautiful natural park in Orange County, only a few miles from Santa Ana.

Brother A. M. Starkey, pastor, worked constantly to keep the sacrifice period before the Saints, and the people responded whole-heartedly.

June 28 Mrs. Donald Nimmo entertained with a bridal shower for Miss Roma Garner. The next day Miss Garner was united in marriage to Mr. Lawrence Whittaker, the ceremony taking place in the Santa Ana Church.

Saint Thomas, Ontario

We held our one-day meeting July 12. Dinner and supper were served in the church under the care of the Women's Department, Sister Kinsman the convener.

For Children's Day the church was tastefully decorated with flowers, birds, ferns, and bunting as on other special occasions. Elder James Winegarden, president of London District, led the responsive reading. He later gave the charge to the candidates, congregation, and priesthood. Elder Skelding and Brother Kelly then led Mrs. Bodkin and Mrs. O'Brien, May Elsie and Charles Duncan into the waters of baptism. At this service the infant son of Brother and Sister Mann was blessed.

We were pleased to have a visit from Elder Farrow. We realize that he is a power for good and hope he will soon return.

The Saints responded to the call of the church for Sacrifice Week.

Some of our friends are interested in the latter-day gospel and its operations. We hope soon to see them accept the truth.

Easter dawned beautiful and bright, a fit morning to commemorate the rising of our Lord and Savior from the tomb. The sacrament service was largely attended, and the good Spirit prevailed. District Missionary W. I. Fligg was present and started a series of services which continued throughout the week, his theme being "The Destiny of Men." His sermons were ably delivered, and instructed members and nonmembers.

On April 14 Elders Fligg and Skelding led Irene, Ella May, and Mary Margaret Pearson and Edna and Thelma Bodkin into the waters of baptism. The charge was given to candidates, congregation, and priesthood by Bishop Dent, of London.

Elder Robert Brown was the speaker on Mother's Day. Among the special numbers was a duet sung by Brother and Sister Brown.

Far West Stake

Cameron

One of the recent pleasant social events enjoyed by our young people was a party held at the country home of Brother Harold Constance on the evening of June 27. These young folks are members of Brother David Gamet's class and had entered into an attendance contest, the young men losing by one point. As a result, the losers were obliged to entertain the winners. Games, music, and a talk by Elder G. T. Richards occupied the evening, after which delicious refreshments were served.

The members of the Oriole circle enjoyed a bunking party at the home of Miss Ruth Stone on July 7. After breakfast a hike into the woods followed by a picnic dinner was much enjoyed by the girls.

On Saturday, July 11, the Department of Women held a bake sale that was well patronized and also well contributed to.

An ice cream social, sponsored by the O. T. Z.'s, was held at our playground July 21. It was an ideal ice cream evening and very enjoyable for those who attended. Our playground is a plot of ground that has been fitted up by the branch for recreational activities. It is equipped with swings and teeters for the little tots and volley ball and tennis courts for the older members. Each Tuesday evening is the regular weekly playground night, when leaders are present to teach supervised play, although the playground is open to all at any other time. Many of the young people of our community avail themselves of these playground activities.

The last meeting of the Department of Women was at the home of Mrs. Florence Gamet, July 23. A short program was rendered, after which a business session followed. It was decided to discontinue the meetings during the extremely warm weather and to resume them again after September 1.

Apostle F. Henry Edwards, wife, and small son, Lyman, spent Sunday, July 26, with the Cameron Saints. Brother Edwards was the speaker at eleven o'clock, and also occupied at eight o'clock in the evening. In the afternoon at two o'clock he talked to the priesthood. His messages were encouraging and much appreciated.

We very much regret to chronicle the death of Mrs. T. T. Hinderks, mother of Pastor F. L. Hinderks. She passed away at her home here on August 5. Death was due to a stroke of paralysis. We extend heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved relatives.

Union Meeting

On July 26 four of the branches in the northwestern corner of the stake met together for an all-day union meeting. Bedison, Guilford, Ross Grove, and Sweet Home Branches participated in the meeting, which was held at the Bedison Church. Elder Isaac Ross preached at the morning hour, and Elder J. E. Hovenga, of Stewartsville, occupied in the afternoon. A bounteous basket dinner was enjoyed, and the day's activities were well attended.

Joint Morning Service

Maple Grove and Stewartsville Branches met together for the morning service on July 26 at the Stewartsville Church. Elder Ward A. Hougas, stake president, was the speaker.

Today the men from various parts of Far West Stake are meeting at the reunion grounds to clear the grounds and erect the big tents.

Delta, Colorado

July 30.—Since April 1 three local elders, four visiting men of the priesthood, and Pastor N. L. Booker have occupied the pulpit.

Bishop DeLapp and Brother Becker visited us shortly before Sacrifice Week, informed us of financial conditions of the church, and made a special effort to induce the Saints to respond to the call of the church at this time.

Sacrifice Week was observed with special services, and the Saints responded freely with their tithes and offerings.

Brother and Sister Booker were surprised by a visit from their son, Raymond, and his small son. The Saints enjoyed Raymond's association and also his talks given during the church school hour.

Aarona Booker, who is here from Graceland during vacation, has added interest to the church programs with her music and talks, especially those concerning life at Graceland.

Social activities have also had a prominent place in Delta Branch with picnics and parties.

The church school programs have been of an elevating nature, each one giving his best. It is with pleasure and anticipation that we look forward to each Sunday.

The district conference was recently held in Delta, the district presidency, N. L. Booker, W. B. Farley, and E. H. Perkins, presiding. Brother Claude Smith, pastor of Denver Branch, was the main speaker. His friendly ways won the hearts of all. Brother Smith's sermons were inspiring and encouraging. They carried out the theme that "God Is."

The next conference is to be held in Durango the summer of 1932. Sister N. L. Booker, Sister W. B. Farley, and Sister Jewell Harshman were elected delegates to next General Conference. The district voted as means of expressing appreciation for past services rendered, to pay Jewell Harshman's expenses to the coming General Conference. She was greatly surprised and expressed her appreciation of this action.

The Booker family are now at Durango and expect to visit other parts of the district before returning to Delta.

Kansas City Stake

Central Church

Those who attended the service Sunday evening, August 2, saw a splendid interpretation of the story of the rich young ruler. "Forgive Us Our Debts" was the name of the picture last Sunday night, and the pastor continued his talks, following the theme of the picture. Sunday evening attendance is gratifying, and officers hope it will continue.

On Sunday morning Pastor C. E. Wight spoke at the Stone Church in Independence. Elder R. L. Bishop, of Mount Washington, delivered the morning sermon at Central Church.

Kansas City Stake hopes this year to maintain its good Harvest Home Festival record. More important than the exhibit itself is the accumulation of a large stock of canned fruits and vegetables to be used by church institutions this winter and to aid the bishops in caring for the needy. Present indications are that the need this year will be greater than in former years. The members of the stake are asked to tithe their canning.

Volley ball is approaching the close of its season. Central boys are in second place, and the girls are tied with Quindaro for second place.

Fourth Church

Stake Missionary Arthur Oakman preached twice in this branch July 12. "Remission of Sins" and "Repentance" were his themes. The following Sabbath Brother Curtis Vernon was the morning speaker, and Pastor J. O. Worden occupied the pulpit in the evening.

The marriage of Miss Elsie Leona Oven and Mr. William B. Fahey was solemnized July 20, E. B. Johnston officiating. The floral setting of the church was beautiful.

Associate Pastor Julian Gough preached the last Sunday morning of July. For his scripture lesson he read John 17: 1-17. That night Patriarch Ammon White started a series of sermons for the month of August.

The sacrament service August 2 was characterized by a spiritual atmosphere. Many testified of God's blessings.

Lamoni Stake Reunion

The Lamoni stake reunion, held this year in the church park, gathered a large congregation of Saints and friends. The first session was on July 31, the closing on August 9. A varied program sought to reach and help each member. Meetings in the big tent found the seats filled at practically every service.

Of the reunion the Lamoni Chronicle for August 6 gives the following account:

"Activities for the young people are being carried out by the various groups. Among those of special interest the fore part of the week was a trip to Grand River by a group of about fifty youngsters of the fourth, fifth, and sixth grades, Tuesday afternoon, where they enjoyed associating with the fishes in the stream. At the west side school ground the Second Miler girls crossed bats with the high school girls in a ball game, with Floyd McDowell as umpire. In all the games you ever watched you never saw such fast playing as these girls did, and many of the plays were good, too. When asked how the game came out, Floyd said: "My! they played so fast it made me dizzy!" The score keeper was so interested in the game that the score sheet was forgotten, but it seems that the high school girls were a little in the lead.

"A manual training class is being instructed by Charles Anway at his home, the shop work being carried on under the trees. A class of older boys are cared for in the morning, while the younger fellows have work in the afternoon. This is a most interesting project, as the boys just can't quit when the time is up. Miss Emily Anthony is assisting Mr. Anway with instructions in painting.

"At the evening missionary services, large crowds are hearing Elder Ray Whiting, who is a forceful speaker. Supported by the orchestra on Sunday evening and by the choir at the various services, these meetings are among the leading features of the reunion.

"The prayer meetings each day are much enjoyed and are filled with spiritual blessings. Wednesday morning a large group of young people took part in an early morning prayer service at the North Woods, leaving town about 5.30. These services always result in special interest.

"Visitors from various parts of the stake are enjoying the hospitality of their friends in Lamoni, many coming in for a day or two at a time and returning as their business and other conditions permit."

Holden Stake

Marshall

The Spirit of the Master was with us in the sacrament service August 2.

Patriarch J. T. Gresty held a short series of services here recently, which was much appreciated and was a source of spiritual revival.

We think the Saints who do not take the Herald, Ensign, or Vision do not realize what spiritual food they are missing. The "Pioneer" number of the Ensign was especially valuable.

Post Oak

Several visiting brothers have recently spoken here. Brother W. S. Macrae gave an illustrated lecture interspersed with singing. The Saints enjoyed two splendid sermons by Brother J. T. Gresty. July 26 Brother J. T. Nutt and family, of Knobnoster, worshiped with us, and Brother Nutt gave us a splendid sermon on "Faith." Sister Nutt and the girls made a contribution of music.

Brother Lawrence Daugherty, who has been suffering from an infected knee, is improving. The condition of Brother W. T. Roach is critical.

The women's division of the adult department spent a recent afternoon at the home of Sister James Duffey doing needlework.

Blue Springs

The Spirit's presence was felt at our late sacrament service. Sister O. Lunquitz presented her baby for blessing at this service. The evening speaker was Brother J. W. Davis, of Independence.

The pastor's sermon at the morning service July 12, on "Home Work," stressed the need and benefits of the priesthood visits in the homes of the Saints. Brother and Sister C. A. Joice and Brothers A. E. Campbell and O. W. Sarratt rendered a special musical number. J. W. Davis gave another good sermon at the evening hour, directed especially to the young people.

F. A. McWethy occupied at eleven o'clock July 19 on "Baptism." A peaceful service was witnessed at the home of H. A. Curtis at seven o'clock when Brother McWethy baptized four children of Brother and Sister H. W. Wilson. Confirmation followed at the evening service. At this service Brother McWethy paid a compliment to the parents of the young people baptized, and commended their example to the assembly. Blue Springs is proud to welcome these three young women and young man to its membership.

Two beautiful pictures, the product of our former church worker at Blue Springs, C. A. Mills, were presented to the congregation at the morning service July 26. Our yearly budget was presented and analyzed by Pastor O. W. Sarratt. The evening service was a combination of music and sermonet. The music was by the Auditorium Band, of Independence, given on the street and was followed by a short sermon by J. W. Davis.

A large crowd patronized the ice cream sale sponsored by the Joices July 30, and a substantial addition was made to the building fund. Another sale by the older people, a trip to Far West, and an increased attendance at Wednesday prayer services indicate the trend of activities at Blue Springs.

Holden

Elder F. L. Sawley, for years active in the mission field, has joined the family at the Holden Home and is finding joy in service. He teaches a class in the home school and is announced to speak at the church August 16, 11 o'clock. Sister Strong, of the home, is visiting at Lamoni and attending the Lamoni reunion. She was accompanied by Miss Martha Burr, nurse at the home. Sister Burr is taking a deserved vacation. Brother and Sister E. Y. Hunker and daughter, and Brother and Sister Baughman, of Dunlap, Iowa, were visitors at the home this week.

Brother Gomer R. Wells has returned from a trip to Lamoni and is taking up his work as pastor at Warrensburg and Post Oak.

Brother and Sister W. H. Eliason and children, and Brother and Sister C. A. Silsby left for Lamoni Friday. The Eliasons will visit the Western Iowa reunion before returning August 19.

Charles Kittenger, who finished high school at Holden last year, will attend the University of Missouri this year.

Miss Helen Ballard, eldest daughter of Brother and Sister Charles Ballard, took first place in the Johnson County 4-H Club contests at Warrensburg last week and entered the state activities at Columbia.

A five-inch rain at Holden this week insures a bumper corn crop and revives spirits as well as vegetation.

Elder George W. Hancock passed to his reward last Saturday after an illness of several months. He was born in Wisconsin, where he accepted the gospel, being baptized in 1878. He came to Missouri about forty-three years ago and has lived at Holden, Knobnoster, and Warrensburg. Brother Hancock was devoted to the church and bore a strong testimony to its truthfulness. He served in the office of teacher several years and was later ordained elder. He did considerable missionary work in the stake and acted as pastor a number of years. Was acting president of the elders' quorum for a period. He was released from pastoral responsibility only a few weeks before he fell ill. He was at his post many times in the last weeks of his pastorate at Warrensburg when hardly able to carry out his duties. Just prior to his death he had a manifestation which assured him that the church he had joined over fifty years ago was still the recognized church of God, and that his offering of service was acceptable to the Master. The funeral was held in the church at Knobnoster, and interment was in the beautiful cemetery; the sermon by Elder C. F. Scarcliff.

The class in stewardship at the church school hour maintains an average attendance of thirty and shows an interest in this important movement in the church.

Bernice Hampton, who has been attending the Teachers' College at Warrensburg, is home and will take her place as teacher in the Holden school this winter.

Those willing to help in the stake dining hall at the State Fair, Sedalia, Missouri, August 22 to 29, should write W. S. Macrae, Holden, at once. The church will conduct a publicity booth in the Educational Building at the fair this year. This will be in charge of Brother U. W. Greene and H. A. Koehler. If you visit the fair this year, look for the Square Deal for your meals.

Kentucky-Tennessee Conference

Conference of the Kentucky and Tennessee District convened July 25 at Foundry Hill. District President Thomas Newton was in charge. The chief business of the gathering was the election of officers for the year, and it was decided to hold the next conference at Paris, Tennessee, in February, 1932.

Ill habits gather by unseen degrees,
As brooks make rivers, rivers run to seas.

—Dryden.

Report of the Department of Statistics

By C. L. Olson

The report of the Department of Statistics for the month of July is as follows:

Total enrollment of the church, July 1, 1931.....	109,314
July baptisms.....	373
Gains from unknown.....	7
Gains by correction.....	2
Total gain .....	382
Deaths .....	81
Expulsions .....	9
Loss by correction.....	1
Total loss .....	91
Net gain during the month of July .....	291
Total enrollment of the church August 1, 1931.....	109,605

The following miscellaneous changes also took place:

Transfers .....	425
Blessings .....	194
Marriages .....	105
Ordinations .....	12
Divorces .....	11
Silences .....	8
Branch disorganized .....	1
Branch name changed.....	1

The outstanding district this past month in baptisms was the Southwestern Iowa District, with a total of 24 baptisms. Thirteen of these were performed at Council Bluffs by Pastor Ray Whiting and Elders J. A. Hansen and G. J. Harding. The other 11 baptisms were performed at Shenandoah, Red Oak, Weston, and Missouri Valley by Elders J. O. Rennie, Victor Elliott, James C. Jensen, and Dave McIntosh.

The Northwestern Iowa District also did well during the month with a total of 18 baptisms. Eleven of these were performed at Missouri Valley by Elders E. B. Purcell and Dave McIntosh. The other 7 were credited to the Moorhead, Pisgah, and Cherokee Branches, having been performed by Elders T. O. Strand, Frank G. Hough, and A. R. Crippen.

Two districts in Michigan each had 17 baptisms. In the Central Michigan District the Beaverton Branch had 14 baptisms, these being performed by G. W. Burt, Willis Schrock, and Lloyd McDonald. West Branch, Houghton Lake, and Saginaw each had one baptism.

In the Southern Michigan and Northern Indiana District, the Alto, Michigan, Branch had 7 baptisms, performed by Floyd Lalone, George Lalone, and Macey A. Ellis. The Clear Lake, Indiana, Branch had 6 baptisms by Mark Gross and George D. Casel. The Lansing Branch had 3 baptisms by Alva J. Dexter, and the Belding Branch one baptism.

Among the branches and district nonresident groups in the United States and Canada outside the stakes, the following had five baptisms each or more:

Beaverton, Michigan .....	14
Missouri Valley, Iowa .....	11
Sperry, Oklahoma .....	11
Detroit, Michigan .....	10
Council Bluffs, Iowa .....	8
East Los Angeles, Calif. ....	8
Foundry Hill, Tenn. ....	8
Minot, North Dakota .....	8
Waterloo, Iowa .....	8
Alto, Michigan .....	7
Centralia, Washington .....	7
Northern Sask. Non-Res. ....	7
Shenandoah, Iowa .....	7
Clear Lake, Indiana .....	6
Omaha, Nebraska .....	6
Onaway, Michigan .....	6
West Virginia Non-Res. ....	6
Yakima, Washington .....	6
Bothwell, Ontario .....	5
Cheboygan, Michigan .....	5
Third Columbus, Ohio .....	5
Crescent, Iowa .....	5
Idaho Non-Res. ....	5
Neligh, Nebraska .....	5
First San Antonio, Texas .....	5

A total of 33 baptisms was credited to the stakes, each having the following indicated number:

Independence .....	8
Kansas City Stake .....	8
Lamoni Stake .....	8
Holden Stake .....	7
Far West Stake .....	2

The following summary shows the distribution of the grand total of 373 baptisms for the month:

Zion and the Stakes .....	33
U. S. and Canada outside the Stakes.....	326
British Isles Mission .....	8
Hawaiian Mission .....	5
Norwegian Mission .....	1
Grand Total .....	373

Analysis of the baptisms reported during June and July shows that on Children's Day, June 14, a total of 382 were performed. However, in some branches Children's Day was observed on a different date from this, so if these are included in the grand total it becomes 466. While it is probable that a few more reports of Children's Day baptisms will be received later, this figure is approximately correct. Since the grand total for June and July is 904 baptisms, it appears that slightly more than half of them were the result of the emphasis placed upon Children's Day.

Fraternally yours,

THE DEPARTMENT OF STATISTICS,

By C. L. Olson.

YOUR HERALD SUBSCRIPTION—DON'T LET IT LAPSE

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Frederick M. Smith, Editor in Chief.
 Elbert A. Smith, Floyd M. McDowell, Associate Editors.
 Leonard J. Lea, Managing Editor.
 Leta B. Moriarty, Assistant Editor.
 Published for the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Subscription price: By the year, $2.

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE
 INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI

CONTENTS

EDITORIAL:
"The Fool Hath Said in His Heart—"	746
Lamoni Reunion Brings Assurances of Divine Nearness.....	746
The Value of Testimony .....	747
A Substitution Necessary .....	748
ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
Dignity and Beauty in Ministry .....	748
Getting Back to God, by Edmund J. Gleazer .....	750
Two Are Better Than One, by Evan A. Fry .....	754
Graceland in Harmony With Present Educational Tendencies, by G. N. Briggs .....	755
Weekly Health Letter, by A. W. Teel, M. D. ....	756
Tom King: A Life History, by C. H. Porter .....	756
Report of the Department of Statistics, by C. L. Olson.....	767
THE GOSPEL FORUM:
Distinctive Features of the Restoration, by Thomas Jones	758
NEWS AND LETTERS .....	761
MISCELLANEOUS .....	768

MISCELLANEOUS

Conference Notices

West Virginia district conference will convene with Clarksville Branch, September 12 and 13. The church is located at the corner of Baker and Stailey Avenues. All business will be transacted Saturday, September 12. Sunday will be devoted to spiritual and educational work. Reports sent by mail should reach the undersigned on or before September 8. We desire all branches and priesthood in the district to report to the conference in writing.—Hayde Bumgardner, district secretary, Washburn, West Virginia.

Wheeling district conference will be held at Moundville on September 5 and 6. Officers will be elected and other business transacted. Further announcement will be made of the order of meetings and of officials expected to be present. All who are expected to send reports, please send them in early and save time and effort.—Samuel A. Martin, district secretary, Box 267, Bridgeport, Ohio.

Our Departed Ones

KELLEY.—Deritha Mae Kelley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Kelley, was born at Inman, Nebraska, August 5, 1913, and passed away July 26, 1931, following an operation for appendicitis, in a Sioux City, Iowa, hospital. She was baptized a member of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints July 13, 1924, by Elder Levi Gamet, and remained a faithful member. Surviving are her parents, two sisters, and five brothers. One brother preceded her in death. There also mourn her untimely passing her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Brumbaugh, and a large number of other relatives and friends. The funeral was held in the M. E. Church at Inman, July 28, 1931, in charge of M. A. Peterson.

CAMPBELL.—Doris Virginia was born in Saint Thomas, Ontario, Canada, November 9, 1911. She united with the church August 8, 1920; married Lloyd Campbell early in 1931. She passed away July 12, 1931, at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Dalton. Surviving are her husband, her parents, three sisters: Mrs. Ida Laurence, Valda, Maxine, and two brothers, Melvin and Carl, her two grandmothers, and a host of friends. The funeral on July 15 was conducted from the home of her parents to the Saint Thomas Cemetery, Elder Skelding in charge. The sermon was by Elder Gray.

BIG SNAP

Eighty acres 50 miles from Independence, close to No. 40 Highway, $4,000.00. Also other big farm bargains and town property.

WATKINS REAL ESTATE
 INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI

Notice

The Independence Sanitarium and Hospital offers a three-year course in nurses' training to young women who are high school graduates.

For further information write to superintendent, G. E. Copeland, R. N.

LAMONI, IOWA

(Home of Graceland College)

Farm land and town property for sale.

G. W. BLAIR REAL ESTATE AGENCY.

WOULD you replace the insurance policy covering your property, at expiration with another policy in a leading Company at the rate you are now paying if such action would be of financial benefit to the church?

Write us for particulars.

THE INSURANCE DEPARTMENT

Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints

P. O. Box 136.

Independence, Mo.

NOW IS A GOOD TIME TO CHANGE.

At the mid year Interest date is an advantageous time to shift your Savings Account to a safe conservative institution with a quarter century standing.

We pay 3% on Time and Savings Deposits.
 "Soliciting New Business on Our Record."

JACKSON COUNTY BANK

Independence, Mo.

"Home of Savings"

THE SAINTS'

ON consequence LISTING S TIL
W HATS O-H

D

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER

Entered as second-class matter at the post office at Independence, Missouri, under Act of March 3, 1879. Issued weekly at Independence, Missouri. Price $2 a year in advance. Accepted for mailing at the special rate of postage provided for in section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917; authorized July 21, 1921.

Volume 78

Independence, Missouri, August 19, 1931

Number 33

THE POWER OF GOD UNTO SALVATION

“For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth.”—Romans 1: 16.

THE LATTER DAY SAINT CHURCH THE RELIGIOUS BACKGROUND AND PHILOSOPHY OF ITS FOUNDERS

C. B. Hartsborn

IS NOW THE TIME FOR A COLLEGE EDUCATION?

G. N. Briggs

SECURITY IN GOD

Charles H. Arven

The Power of God Unto Salvation

Modern writers often refer to the "saving power of religion." The doctrine and actuality of salvation came from the idea that mankind had been lost to its spiritual heritage, and could be recovered only by man's accepting an opportunity offered by God.

The "saving power of religion" is a beautiful idea, but it is meaningless unless there is some understanding of loss. One is saved from harm or from some threatening danger, never from a condition of real or imagined security. There is no possibility of salvation without the concomitant of peril.

Perhaps the greatest obstacle in the path of religion and the church these days is the notion of moral and spiritual self-sufficiency that pervades human thought. Whatever men's troubles, they do not feel that they need to be saved from anything. If they think that anything is wrong, they see that wrong in the external world. They do not see anything wrong with themselves. Modern men need not so much to be picked up from the path of danger as to be awakened to its reality.

We wonder if it is possible for anything, even the crisis of present threatening world conditions, or the depression that now plunges us in gloom, to shock men out of this state of self-complacency. Until there is some realization that humanity is lost, men can not be saved.

And men in general are, in a very real sense, lost: lost to some of their noblest ideals, lost to their old conceptions of moral codes, lost to the great landmarks of spiritual and intellectual experience which gave character and power to the people of other ages. Men are today lost in a maze of things, inventions, machines, conveniences, possessions, and scientific theories. They have lost their orientation. This is the great modern "Fall of Man." Man has fallen from the high heritage of his spiritual estate. In other ages he was convinced that he was a son of God; now he thinks he is only one of the animals. In other ages he looked forward to immortal life; now he thinks that the grave is the end of consciousness and life. Once he felt a great obligation to eternity, and that obligation was with him at all times, making him a better and a nobler man; but now he feels only the tiny and temporary obligations of success and pleasure. If this is not being lost, then tell us what loss is!

The gospel of Christ offers salvation from all this. It offers redemption from the touch of death. The flesh can not utterly claim us. We are more than the dust of the earth. We must be retrieved. God has given both opportunity and plan.

Loss is real; salvation is real. Men will live at their best when they are conscious that this life is the preparation for an immortal destiny. He who imagines for himself the life and death of a worm will be inclined to live like a worm. But he who nurtures the hope that he is a son of God will try to live up to the role. Salvation is real and true.

A return of financial success is not the first thing we need. Our world needs to be saved, not so much from a depressed stock market as from a depressed faith. It needs to have restored to it, not so much its trade as its ideals. Commerce is buried deep in the piles of unneeded wheat and cotton, but men can not regain anything of real and permanent value until they make some recovery from materialism and selfishness.

"The gospel of Christ . . . is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth." In this gospel and in no other is salvation. L. L.

Jesus Taught the Gospel of Hope and Action

When we think of Jesus as the Man of Sorrows, we do ourselves an injustice. If we shut our eyes to the hopeful, affirmative facts of life which he lived and taught, we leave for ourselves only tears, shadows, misery. His hope had a sure foundation, for he believed what he said: "With God all things are possible," and Jesus lived that hope.

The philosophy of life which Jesus put into the hearts of men during his brief stay on earth was affirmative in every sense of the term. His words, as they are recorded in the New Testament by his friends, are encouraging. Let us here consider a few of his sayings in order that we may realize the more clearly the infinite hope and courage and purposefulness of the Man of Galilee. I quote only from the gospel of Mark:

"Verily I say unto you, . . ."

"Follow me."

"Be thou clean."

"Stretch forth thine hand."

"Son, thy sins be forgiven thee."

"The sabbath was made for man."

"My house shall be called of all nations the house of prayer."

"Be of good cheer."

"Give ye them to eat."

"Peace, be still."

"If any man have ears to hear, let him hear."

"All things are possible to him that believeth."

"Take heed lest any man deceive you."

"Rise up, let us go."

"Thou art not far from the kingdom of God."

"I Am."

"Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature." L. B. M.

Publicity Agents, Attention

We are requested to remind local publicity agents that the Publicity Department at headquarters has been discontinued, and that its functions are now to be performed by other offices.

In all matters regarding books and publications, the publicity agents are requested to communicate directly with the Business Manager, Herald Publishing House, Independence, Missouri, and to so address all mail. Order blanks and receipt books will be furnished on request.

Appointment of agents can be made by the branch, or by local authorities, according to conditions and circumstances prevailing. Such appointments do not need to be approved or recognized by this office.

L. L.

The "Word of Wisdom" Contest

So far, the "Word of Wisdom" Contest which is being sponsored by Vision is lagging. A few manuscripts have been received, but not near the number expected. Perhaps you have intended to get your manuscript ready, but have found it easy to delay during the warm weather. Perhaps—and there are other excuses, both good and bad.

The contest is not a mere circulation builder: the prizes are not large enough to arouse people who are interested only in rewards and money. But there is a bigger purpose. That purpose is to collect menus and recipes which the women of the church have discovered in their attempts to give the health rules of the "Word of Wisdom" a practical application in their homes; and the second part of this purpose is to make this collected information and experience available to home makers all over the church.

Perhaps this call for help will arouse some who had not seriously considered entering the contest. The purpose is worthy, and much good can be done. How about a little help from you? Remember that the contest closes September 1.

L. L.

The Latter Day Saint Church

While carrying on his work as pastor in Des Moines, Elder C. B. Hartshorn found time to take some university courses for the purpose of better qualifying himself for his ministry. In one of the courses, he chose to make the church the subject of his term paper.

Confronted with the necessity of explaining the church and its ideals to a group of educated people who previously had known little or nothing of it, he adopted the phraseology and approach with which they were most familiar. He had to start from the beginning in all points of his explanation.

The result is gratifying. He has given us an article that should do much to help the interested and intelligent nonmember understand the church. It is hoped that our readers will preserve this issue to be lent to such people when opportunity is afforded. We receive many requests from readers which indicate that such a work is needed. Our people should make the best possible use of it.

L. L.

A Correction

In the article on baptism, Herald for August 12, certain lines under the heading "Procedure" were omitted by mistake, thereby throwing one paragraph into confusion. The lines in question should read:

In the act of immersion the minister stands facing the audience with the candidate before him and facing to his left. He should advise the candidate to clasp his hands together over his chest with the fingers interlocked. This will prevent an unseemly struggle in case of a little strangling. The candidate should be advised to fill his lungs with air just before immersion. The minister should with his left hand grasp the two hands of the candidate and lifting his own right hand should repeat the words prescribed: "Having been commissioned of Jesus Christ I baptize you in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost." He should speak forcefully and distinctly. Then placing his right hand at the back of the head of the candidate he should immerse him, being careful to see that the immersion is complete. If the minister stands well balanced and well braced, the buoyancy of the water will assist him to raise even a very heavy person back to the standing position without undue exertion.

Is This the Time to Attend College?

In this issue President Briggs of Graceland gives a few reasons why this is a good time to go to college, and in many ways a better time than normal years. All who have sons and daughters considering "taking a year out to work" should read it.

Perhaps we may, without intruding, add a point or two. The first consideration is the danger in halting the educational career. It is likely that once the young person secures a position of any kind he may be tempted to continue it too long, until his chances of completing his education are lost, and he is doomed for lack of training to an inferior place in life.

The second consideration is that it is expensive to halt the academic career and try to take it up again. It costs not only valuable time, but money as well. It is expensive to locate a position, even an inferior one, only to give it up later.

L. L.

Dignity and Beauty in Ministry

By Elbert A. Smith

VII.—ORDINATION CEREMONY

The admonition, "Lay hands suddenly on no man," was intended to prevent haste in selecting men for ordination; but it may be applied to the ordination ceremony itself. Sometimes in the past men have been called to the rostrum at the close of a preaching service and ordained so informally that the whole matter seemed inconsequential. The ceremony was not made impressive and significant, as it should be. The act of conferring authority to represent God and the church is a serious and solemn act and should carry with it that spirit.

The Ordination Meeting

Where there are a number to be ordained, as in a large branch or at a conference, it is best to hold a special service for that purpose, with a well-thought-out program. Where there are but one or two, the ordination service may be made an important and impressive part of another service, as at the close of a prayer meeting or following an ordination sermon or a missionary or pastoral sermon, according to the nature of the office to be conferred.

Order of Seating, etc.

It is well for those to be ordained to be seated on the rostrum before the congregation. If desired, each in turn may be called definitely nearer to the altar to receive his ordination. Upon the altar may rest the three books of the church, whose law is to govern the ministry—the books that contain the principles that the minister is to preach and those under which he is to work.

The Charge

After the usual opening services of song and prayer, the presiding officer may speak for a short time upon priesthood: the rights, responsibilities, and opportunities for service conveyed by ordination to the priesthood. Then one selected for that purpose, a man qualified by office and spirit to do so, may deliver a charge to those to be ordained. This is no new custom. Oliver Cowdery delivered a charge to the twelve apostles in Kirtland at the time of their ordination. Christ himself on several occasions delivered a charge to his disciples, as for example to Peter:

So when they had dined, Jesus saith to Simon Peter, Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me more than these? He saith unto him, Yea, Lord; thou knowest that I love thee. He saith unto him, Feed my lambs. He saith to him again the second time, Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me? He saith unto him, Yea, Lord; thou knowest that I love thee. He saith unto him, Feed my sheep. He saith unto him the third time, Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me? Peter was grieved because he said unto him the third time, Lovest thou me? And he said unto him, Lord, thou knowest all things; thou knowest that I love thee. Jesus saith unto him, Feed my sheep.—John 21: 15-17.

Imposition of Hands and Prayer

The one in charge of the service should have in hand or in mind a list of those to be ordained and in turn should announce the name and the office and those to officiate, indicating the spokesman. Those to officiate will then lay their hands upon the head of the candidate, and the spokesman will ordain. The prayer of ordination should be such as befits the occasion, fervent and intelligent; but where there are many to be ordained, the prayers should not be too long.

The entire service may be interspersed with hymns suitable to the occasion. After the ordination prayer the presiding officer, if he shall so desire, may offer the right hand of fellowship to those who have been ordained, on behalf of the church, welcoming them to their ministry and bidding them Godspeed. And it is not inappropriate to close with a charge to the congregation as to the manner in which the ordained men shall be received and supported in their ministry.

Thought and prayer will enable those responsible for such services to conduct them in a way to enhance their dignity and beauty, that the men ordained may indeed hear again in spirit the words of old: "Ye have not chosen me, but I have chosen you, and ordained you, that you should go and bring forth fruit, and that your fruit should remain."—John 15: 16.

The Man Ordained

It goes almost without saying that the character and calling of the man ordained should be such as to justify the ordination, else it will be but a hollow form. In 1833 the elders in Zion addressed an epistle to the brethren abroad in which they said:

Some have been ordained to the ministry and have never acted in that capacity, or magnified their calling at all. Such may expect to lose their calling except they awake and magnify their office. Let the elders abroad be exceedingly careful upon this subject, and when they ordain a man to the holy ministry, let it be a faithful man, who is able to teach others also; that the cause of Christ may not suffer. It is not the multitude of preachers that is to bring about the glorious millennium, but it is those who are "called, and chosen, and faithful."—Church History, vol. 1, p. 387.

(Note: Many of the observations concerning the ceremony of ordination will apply, with certain modifications, to confirmation, hence I have not prepared a separate article on that subject.)

(To be continued.)

The Latter Day Saint Church

The Religious Background and Philosophy of Its Founders

By C. B. Hartshorn

After one hundred years we find only the beginnings of a dispassionate literature on this subject. Volumes have been written in sensational style dealing with personal elements and the trifling concomitants of its early history. This has elicited "replies" and "defenses" of extensive proportions by adherents of the faith. The friendly inquirer seeking for a constructive presentation of the religious and social contribution made by this unit of American Christianity which is neither propaganda nor an inflammatory "exposé," will find himself confronted with a mass of conflicting data which almost defies disentanglement.

The Latter Day Saint Church was developed in western New York in the year of 1830. It was formally organized on April 6 by six young men of an average age of twenty-four years. This group was composed of three Smiths, two Whitmers, and Oliver Cowdery.

The Smiths and Whitmers were farmers, plain-living country folk, having the common education of that day. Only by comparison with the classically educated ministry of their time could they be said to be ignorant men, and only on the strength of subsequent affidavits and objective testimonies has a case been made against their character.

Coming directly to the discussion of the religious background of this new sect, we find its roots growing in the hectic soil of the Second Awakening. It developed at a time when the young Republic was recovering from the moral and social degeneracy of the Revolutionary War. The effects of the rationalistic wave in religious thinking, which was at its crest about the year 1800, had been met by the counter wave of revivalism with its emotional and mystic tone.

Joseph Smith, the leader of the Latter Day Saints, was born in Vermont, December 23, 1805. His father, who was of New England stock of the fourth generation, moved to western New York in 1815. A revival meeting held at Manchester, Ontario County, in 1820, provided the initial religious stimulus to the prospective young leader. This was a faint revival in which the Presbyterians, Methodists, and Baptists united. In the division of the converts at the close, four of the Smiths united with the Presbyterians, though Joseph says he inclined toward the Methodists. In his account of the situation, which was of county-wide interest, there seems to have been so much confusion and strife among the denominations that he was unable to decide which was right.

Confronted by this dilemma, he went to the woods and took refuge in prayer. As a result he alleges that he was instructed in a vision not to unite with any church, for their creeds were all wrong. A few days later, when in company with one of the revival ministers, he related his experience. He said he was surprised at the behavior of his preacher friend. He at first treated it lightly, saying visions and revelations had ceased with the apostles. But when this did not avail to shake young Smith from his conviction, he followed it with contempt and finally told the fifteen-year-old lad it was all of the Devil. Persecutions followed the relating of this story among professed religionists of other sects, but this seemed only to intensify the vision's reality and to fortify him against the difficulties which formed the shadows for the high lights of his picturesque religious career.

Perhaps other elements which properly enter into the background of this new sect at this point can be brought out in the discussion of the philosophical aspects of our subject. In dealing with the fundamental doctrines of the Latter Day Saints, I do not choose to go into those later accretions which were added subsequent to the martyrdom of the founder in 1844. Many of these later doctrines are in conflict with the original teachings of its leaders, and as a representative of the Reorganized Church I have no obligation to do so. In this contention I am supported by a decision of Judge John F. Phillips in Circuit Court of the United States for the Western District of Missouri, Western Division, in 1894. From this decision I quote the following paragraphs:

The Book of Mormon itself inveighed against the sin of polygamy. . . . Conformably to the Book of Mormon, the Book of Doctrine and Covenants expressly declared "that we believe that one man should have but one wife, and one woman but one husband."

Claim is made by the Utah Church that this doctrine is predicated on a revelation made to Joseph Smith in July, 1843. No such revelation was ever made public during the life of Joseph Smith, and under the law of the church it could not become an article of faith and belief until submitted to and adopted by the church. This was never done. . . .

The Utah Church further departed from the principles and doctrines of the original church by changing in their teaching the first statement in the Article of Faith which was, "We believe in God, the Eternal Father, and in his Son, Jesus Christ, and in the Holy Ghost," and in lieu thereof taught the doctrine of "Adam-god worship."

It is for this and similar reasons that my people resent the term Mormon, which is freely used by members of the dominant church in Utah.

Without inferring any significance for the order in which the following subjects occur, we come now to the consideration of some of the outstanding doctrines of Latter Day Saintism.

The "Word of God"

In a day when the legalistic view of the Bible dominated the thinking of American Christianity, this church raised the question of (1) "Cover to Cover" inspiration, and (2) also the completeness of the canon in the King James Version.

Our epitome of faith reads:

We believe that in the Bible is the word of God so far as it is translated correctly. We believe that the canon of scripture is not full, but that God by his Spirit will continue to reveal his word to man until the end of time.

Thus it will be seen that the fallacy of the Pilgrim viewpoint of an infallibly inspired Bible, each part of which was equally binding upon the Christian conscience as a proper and sufficient guide of conduct in matters of business, state, and religion, was met in a different way by Latter Day Saints than it was by the Friends or Unitarians. While like the Friends, this epitome places great faith upon the guidance of the Spirit, it still holds to a literal interpretation of the doctrines of Christ pertaining to organization, doctrine, and practice so far as the Bible correctly reflects the mind of Christ.

Latter Day Saints hold that truth is divine, but its expression is human, thus giving point to Paul's expression to Timothy, who states the object of study as: "rightly dividing the word of truth."

This philosophy gives comfort to the Unitarian and his modern confrère the Higher Critic. Yet there is one essential difference in the method of dealing with sacred literature. These, by means of convenient interpretation and modern language translation, leave the common folk to wonder if our scriptures have any backing of inspiration whatsoever. Some of these proponents frankly admit, although reverently, that the Bible's sacredness is only that of tradition.

The Latter Day Saint viewpoint at once raises the question of the validity of the presentation of the mind of the Infinite by bringing forth a new version of the Scriptures. This claims to be a correction of the King James Version by the gift of revelation, hence it is called the Inspired Version.

The anathema of Revelation 22: 18 on him who "adds to or takes from the prophecy of this book," so long hurled at Joseph Smith, is cast back upon his critics by the recent publication of a Presbyterian minister.

Doctor P. Marion Simms, in The Bible From the Beginning, Macmillan Company, 1929, places in parallel columns quotations from "Joseph Smith's"

Bible and the American Standard Bible, and then follows this with the comment:

This much, at least, may be said of many of the changed readings found in the Bible of the Reorganized Latter Day Saints: Its author had the courage deliberately to alter the text, and make it say clearly what many Bible students succeed in getting by theological legerdemain.—Page 147.

Divine Revelation

Perhaps it would be well to clarify our thinking upon the Latter Day Saint viewpoint of communion with God. I can express this no better than in the language of Peter:

No prophecy ever came by the will of man, but men spake from God, being moved by the Holy Spirit.—2 Peter 1: 21, American Revised Version.

The unchangeability of God and the continuing spiritual need of humanity are the primary reasons for their faith in present-day revelation. The church has never held this to be of the plenary or verbal type as has been frequently assumed by sensational writers. God might choose this method, but Peter had stated the regular order.

The church has always reserved to itself the right of examination, and acceptance by vote of that which is offered by its prophet-leader as a revelation, its harmony with the Scriptures being the criterion of measurement. In harmony with James 1: 5, the privilege of receiving revelation is the right of any man, but only those coming through the head of the church and accepted by the people are accepted as a part of its sacred literature.

Hence it will be observed that Latter Day Saints reject the theory of an infallible prophet or Bible. Thus the Songs of Solomon are not in their official version of the Bible, and the "Prophecy on the Rebellion (Civil War, given December 25, 1832) has never been placed in the canon known as the Doctrine and Covenants.

Church Organization

Our form of government is a theo-democracy, the president of the High Priesthood being prophet, seer, and revelator of the whole church when chosen and sustained by the General Conference, its highest legislative authority, which is composed of delegates who are both lay members and priesthood.

The field is divided into stakes or districts. Local congregations, or branches, in these units vary in number and size. In some of the larger centers of membership, the local church has group organization.

Priesthood

Quoting the epitome once more:

We believe that a man must be called of God, and ordained by the laying on of hands of those who are in authority, to entitle him to preach the gospel and administer the ordinances thereof.

The call must come through a presiding officer and be approved by vote of the people. The various officers in the priesthood are of two orders: The Melchisedec and the Aaronic. Apostles, high priests, seventies, and elders constitute the first order; priests, teachers, and deacons, the second. Women are not eligible for priesthood ordination. The theory of apostolic succession to priesthood power from the days of Christ is rejected.

Apostasy and Restoration

Latter Day Saints accept the Protestant viewpoint of spiritual apostasy and loss of divine favor through spiritual wickedness in high places, but maintain that the commission of their priesthood rests on a restoration through angelic ministrations rather than through the process of succession and reformation.

God Concept

A dispute which divided American Christianity following the Revolutionary War was a settled conviction from the start with the Saints. God was one and not three persons. Jesus was his son, a separate personal entity. It was not "God, the Holy Spirit," but the Spirit of God, or the power by which God and Christ worked. Our father concept for God has ever been very real, and dominant. He has never lost his identity through diffusion into nature or infinite space. Neither has he lost his identity through the chief workmanship of his hand, fashioned in his own image, through the lapse of years or by the giving of his only begotten Son as evidence of his undying love.

Spirit or Soul Concept

Such passages as: "The dust shall return to the earth as it was, and the spirit return unto God who gave it" (Ecclesiastes 12: 7) are given a rather literal significance. The spirit of man is not only an entity, but existed before the body and survives it at death. This same concept is held in the case of our Savior. He preexisted as co-creator—"without whom was nothing made" as John avers, and according to Peter (1 Peter 3: 18, 19) "being put to death in the flesh, but quickened in the spirit; in which also he went and preached unto the spirits in prison who aforetime were disobedient—in the days of Noah, while the ark was a preparing."

Salvation

So far as I am able to learn, the Latter Day Saints' view of salvation is unique. I always enjoyed attending union revivals, but found myself embarrassed by the personal workers, as also the pulpit appeals on this subject. I could not say I was saved, and I would not admit I was lost. The dominant note in this subject for my people is that it is an ultimate goal, hence there is no progressive stage at which one is saved.

In the theological conflict between "saved by grace" and being "judged and rewarded according to your works, whether they be good or whether they be evil," the latter prevailed. With us, it was not simply a right- or left-handed decision which in theory meant if you accepted Christ by joining the church, you would be placed among the sheep. Otherwise your lot was to be eternally cast among the goats.

"According to one's works" meant a graded reward, following the day of eternal judgment, when each should inherit one of the many mansions suited to his individual development. Or as Paul puts it (1 Corinthians 15: 41), "for as one star differeth from another star in glory, so also is the resurrection of the dead."

Probation After Death

A concomitant of the Latter Day Saints' view of salvation is their philosophy of spirit progression. The "prison" house described by Peter in the previous citation is considered as only a temporary abode or pre-resurrection estate. The logical inference of "preaching to the spirits in prison" is that it was beneficent in character and reformatory in purpose. If Christ should preach his gospel to the spirits of the disobedient of Noah's day, then an impartial concern would include the heathen of any age. A millennial reign is to follow the first resurrection, when the meek shall inherit the earth. Subsequent to this will be the second resurrection and eternal judgment, at which time a permanent abode will be determined for us.

Spiritual Gifts

In a day when "the still small voice" of the Spirit was moving among the Friends, and the camp meeting of the Methodists, Baptists, and Presbyterians were frequently strewn with the bodies of those "spiritually slain" and those who were called the "jerks," this new sect founded by Joseph Smith, announced the manifestation of spiritual gifts among them. These took the form of prophecy, speaking in tongues, visions, and alleged miraculous cures.

The method of operation seems to have been orderly and composed. For as Paul says, "the spirit of the prophet is subject to the prophet." The instances of people being overcome by spiritual phenomena were pronounced as cases of demon possession, in which instances the evil spirit was cast out by the ordinance of the laying on of hands. Accounts of these manifestations were put forth by the ministry as evidences of divine favor, and the return of the "old Jerusalem gospel." This appeal in a large measure accounts for the remarkable growth of the church which in the fourteen years preceding the death of its prophet-leader increased from 6 to 150,000. Governor Ford's History of Illinois increases this enrollment to 200,000.

The Book of Mormon

From the standpoint of this treatise this subject comes more properly under that section dealing with the background, as a book can hardly be considered as a philosophy. Nevertheless, in discussing Latter Day Saintism, something needs to be said upon this subject.

The Book of Mormon existed before the church came into being. In September of 1823 Joseph Smith claims to have received his second vision, at which time he learned about the metallic plates hidden in a hill nearby which he claims had the appearance of gold. These were delivered to him four years later, when he was twenty-one years old, as also were the Urim and Thummim, or the interpreters of the ancient seers, which were found with the plates. Joseph Smith claimed no knowledge of ancient language. What he did claim was that he had been commanded to translate the record inscribed on these plates by the gift and power of God. The Book of Mormon claims to be a record of the American Indians and their progenitors. It is both political and religious history. The golden plates were taken away just as mysteriously as they came. But before the angel took them, three witnesses bore solemn testimony that they were shown the plates by an angel and handled them with their hands. Though these men became disaffected and two of them left the church entirely, this testimony was stoutly reaffirmed in their last days. Joseph Smith had the privilege of showing them at a later time to eight other witnesses, who handled the plates. These testimonies are published with each book.

But like the Bible or any other literature, the value of the Book of Mormon lies in its contents rather than its origin. Time will permit of only a passing reference. The concept of God which this book gives is neither patriarchal nor tribal. He is Father of mankind. The moral and social concepts of the record are of a lofty, ideal tone which compares favorably with any other literature with which I am acquainted. Without attempting to assign to it a definite rank with relation to the Bible, Latter Day Saints accept it as sacred literature and make it a guide to conduct and doctrine, along with the revelations received during the century just closed.

Zion

The term Zion is used by us in a similar sense as the New Testament uses kingdom of God, or kingdom of heaven. With the social emphasis given since the publication of the social and religious philosophies of Rauschenbusch, Elwood, et al, our concept of Zion has attained a richer meaning for the average religionist.

Latter Day Saintism has a distinct social message and reaches its major development in community life and cooperative endeavor. Yet, ample provision is made for its membership who are not privileged to enter or not suited to enjoy communal life. In 1844, not over 14 per cent of the membership had entered into its communal life, and nearly 9 per cent were living in foreign lands.

Since the days of the Essenes and the early Christian community to which Luke refers in Acts second and fourth chapters, many attempts to build up ideal communities have been made. Perhaps no period has ever been as much interested in Utopias as this period out of which this church came forth. It is quite likely that its founder was much impressed by the movements under George Rapp in Butler County, Pennsylvania, and later at New Harmony, Indiana. Also by the philanthropic movement under Robert Owen in 1823.

The remarkable feature of the Latter Day Saint program for social and economic improvement is that it differs in some very vital elements from any of the twenty odd separate community projects of which there is any literature. Chief among these is its socialized individualism. That is, the initiative and freedom of the individual is preserved to the highest degree consistent with the social good. In contemporaneous movements, the individual is subordinated and yoked to median progress.

Again, Smith places the family as the unit of society, while the other systems dealt only in larger social groupings.

The third instance of fundamental difference is the consecration of the surplus. Other projects, from which Joseph Smith could have drawn patterns, provided for socialization of the income instead.

At the risk of becoming tedious, I shall try to make more definite the particulars of the system of Christian stewardship as taught by my church. How can we have a socialized individualism? Are not these terms mutually exclusive? The best answer is to describe the system.

Each family is to have an inheritance. This he is to acquire by purchase and hold by deed. The church or social order is to assist those who are unable to obtain this inheritance. Its size will vary according to (1) the size of the family, (2) their circumstances, and (3) their needs and just wants. To use a better-understood term, this system has all the benefits of group insurance but substitutes the religious dynamic for pure economic protection. By socializing the surplus, a reserve for protection and expansion is made available to each wise and worthy steward.

Group stewardships or cooperative enterprises are encouraged and promoted. The purpose of this system is not alone to obtain efficiency of organization, but to bring about the highest type of Christian living, which can be obtained only by people daily living together, in a Christian brotherhood by their renouncing "laissez faire" methods.

The First Principles

The six doctrines enumerated in Hebrews 6: 1, 2, are a very prominent part of the Latter Day Saint evangelical message. These are: (1) faith, (2) repentance, (3) baptism by immersion for remission of sins, (4) laying on of hands for confirmation and for the bestowal of the Holy Spirit as an abiding comforter, (5) resurrection of the body reunited with the spirit, and (6) eternal judgment based on works and character. Members are not accepted on letters from other denominations. The church is non-liturgical and emphasizes the social or fellowship side in its public worship. Communion is administered monthly to members only. It has the symbol concept. Baptism is not administered to those under the age of eight. Younger children may be blessed by the laying on of hands.

Jewish Restoration to Palestine

A prominent note in the teachings of this new sect was that Israel should be soon gathered back to the land given them for an everlasting inheritance. Attention was called to the prophecies of Isaiah (11: 11, 12) that, incident to the coming of the kingdom, "the Lord shall set his hand again the second time to recover the remnant of his people . . . and he shall set up an ensign for the nations, and shall assemble the outcasts of Israel, and gather together the dispersed of Judah from the four corners of the earth."

Similar promises seemed to be in the mind of Jeremiah (30: 3; 33: 7-9, 24-26), Ezekiel (20: 33-42; 37: 21, 22), Zachariah (1: 17), and Joel (3: 16, 17). Paul also is used as a supporting witness to this thesis, where he declares that "blindness in part has happened to Israel until the fullness of the Gentiles be come in." (Romans 11: 25, 26.)

A similar interpretation of these prophecies is found in the Jewish Zionist Movement of recent years.

Faith Healing

Before the year 1830, not much was said among the Christian ministry concerning the therapeutic value of the gospel. Not that belief in faith healing was entirely absent, but it existed only in isolated programs and shrines within organized religion. Since the Latter Day Saints adopted this rite, which was so prominent in the early Christian church, and practiced it as a part of its social ministry, it has become a wheel of progress for the movement of several other denominations. Chief among these are the followers of Mary Baker Eddy, John Alexander Dowie, and Aimie Semple McPherson.

This rite is performed only by those who hold the Melchisedec priesthood. While one minister may officiate alone in the ordinance, the preferred order calls for two or more elders functioning jointly. The patient is first anointed with olive oil. This act is accompanied with a simple prayer. Immediately following this, the other elder also places his hands on the head of the sick person while the prayer for healing is being offered. Both prayers are informal.

The custom of the church is that where two perform this ordinance, they alternate in the anointing and confirmation prayers. Seldom is the rite performed in public service, nor are testimonies of healing stimulated in prayer meetings. Unlike most other churches who teach divine healing, we hold that the employment of Christian physicians is not inconsistent with faith.

The results which the people obtained, or thought they obtained, through this ordinance played no small part in the remarkable growth of 200,000 members in the fourteen years preceding the death of Joseph Smith in 1844.

A Closing Word

That this distinctive contribution to American Christianity attracted its full share of fanaticism, no student of history will deny. Classical training has never been considered a prerequisite to its ministry or leadership. But hurling unsavory epithets at its founders is only on a par with the axiom among lawyers: "No case, abuse the opposing attorney." Orthodoxy among the followers of Christ can not be settled by scholarship alone. For we observe that all of the classically educated theologians are not members of one and the same denomination.

This much at least can well be said: Latter Day Saintism represents a distinctive and unique contribution to organized religion. It may never succeed in a large way to realize its ideals. But that it should be brushed aside as having no right to present its case, is paying too much tribute to prejudice and intolerance in this age of scientific research and open-mindedness. Surely it is worthy of respectful consideration by students of sociology and religion.

Weekly Health Letter

Number Seven

The Nose and Its Relation to Health and Disease.—5

By A. W. Teel, M. D., Church Physician

Most of the organs of the body are so constructed that they have plenty of room and strength for all ordinary necessities. For instance, the heart uses only half of its reserve power, by working under low pressure. Engine builders tell us that this is the best way to get long wear out of an engine. Half of the kidneys may be removed, and the other half will do the work, without crowding.

Unlike other organs, the nose does not measure up to that standard, as it has to do its work on a narrow margin. In some cases there is too much room, and then the air is not filtered of dirt and germs, reaching the air tubes too dry and too cold. If there is too little room, not enough air passes through, and the mouth opens to allow the deficit to be made up.

The nose, the mouth, and the sinuses are the only parts of the body that harbor dangerous bacteria very much of the time. The pathology of the nose may be properly classified into three great groups: first, it may be properly called a sewer, or drainage system; second, an airway passage; third, a filter, and a habitat for all kinds of dangerous bacteria.

Obstruction of airways always increases the danger of serious infection. The obstruction may be due to an injury or to some natural deformity. Such interference of the nasal airways frequently brings on such serious conditions as sinusitis, abnormal breathing, deafness, bronchitis, consumption, etc. Such conditions frequently interfere with the mental development of children and retard the proper development of the face and jaws.

It has already been stated that the nasal chambers are usually narrow and limited, there seemingly being scarcely room enough for the contained structures. For this reason the surgeon frequently is called upon to perform a difficult task. Enlarged tonsils and adenoids have much to do with producing these deformities. The septum of the nose is frequently abnormal, and this probably accounts for more obstructions than all the other causes combined. Outside of this, many others are due to injury or a badly broken or displaced condition, sometimes brought about by only a moderate blow which seemed of no consequence at the time. It is quite common for a child to fall face downward, striking its nose. These falls, because of the child's tender age, are especially likely to cause trouble later on. For this reason, mothers should bear in mind that it is well to protect the child as much as possible from such injuries. On the other hand, many children are born with a congenital deformity of this kind. This may not be noticeable at birth but gradually it becomes more and more apparent.

If the septum is crooked or bent, so that it interferes with the free passage of air, or ventilation of the parts, there is only one thing to do, and that is—operate. If skillfully done, this operation is usually certain to bring the right results, but should not be performed if the patient is under eighteen years of age, unless it is a case of great urgency.

Is Now the Time for a College Education?

By G. N. Briggs

Many have asked the question, and many more, both parents and recent high school graduates, have wondered whether during this period of unemployment and financial depression one should enter upon a two- or a four-year period of college education. It is, of course, a very proper question, and no one is exactly sure of the proper answer. There is a saying that "history repeats itself." Financial depressions of the past have come and gone and come again and departed, with the world in many respects better off than before. There is no question but that the world-wide depression in which we now find ourselves will pass and this country and the world at large will again enter upon a period of prosperity such as mankind has never before experienced. There are many statesmen and leaders of industry who tell us that this will be so.

Those young people who enter college will soon, in from two to four years, be graduated in the midst of that period of prosperity and unprecedented industrial development when the services of well-prepared young men and women will be in great demand. The one then prepared and ready for the work which the world will demand will be the one to be called to service of the most remunerative type.

There probably was never a better time to enroll in college. Opportunities for employment are not good now. A young person's time is worth less now than it will ever be in the future if he prepares for the type of service the world will require after this period of depression passes. Large industries are now taking advantage of low-priced material and low wages to make large additions to their plants. Vast sums of money are now being expended in preparation for that new industrial, commercial, and professional development certain to come. The young person who takes time by the forelock now when employment is uncertain will be immeasurably better off within the next two or four years.

As one great statesman has recently said, "America will enter upon a quality of standard life never approached by any nation."

It may be that the question propounded in the first sentence above can be answered. The one who anticipates the future's wonderful development will be the one ready for the opportunities when they come. Now is the time to make that required preparation in college which will get you ready for the golden period of church and national development certain to come.

Graceland College stands ready to play her part in this enlarged program. Anyone interested in a college education next year will do well to write for a catalog to the President, Graceland College, Lamoni, Iowa.

Tom King: A Life History

PART SEVEN

By C. H. Porter

(Continued from the Herald of August 12, page 758.)

Changes

While back from the West, Tom became a naturalized citizen. He had no thought of returning to England to live. He had met many difficulties in the United States, but he was unconquered and still retained his ambition. He wanted to be the equal of other men in citizenship as in other things, so he took the necessary steps to that end.

Immediately following the funeral of his wife, a relative asked him what plans he had for the future. He said he had none, but that for the time being he would try to find a place where he could get a room and board for himself and child, and determine later what it was best to do. He did not anticipate any serious difficulty in this, as he felt able to pay for the accommodations they would need.

The relative said she was willing to care for the child for a week while he was seeking for a suitable home. He appreciated this and availed himself of the offer. The child was taken to her home, and Tom studied the matter of a home carefully.

He did not immediately give up the rooms they had occupied, but inquired for a place where he could have the child with him when he was not at work. He found the task more difficult than he had anticipated. There were plenty of rooms for rent, but it seemed impossible to secure a home for himself and child together. He consulted with his acquaintances, but they were unable to assist him in the matter.

One man suggested that he knew of a family that he thought would be delighted to take the child to raise if Tom would agree to this. Although this was entirely foreign to his wishes, after having tried to procure accommodation at every place he could think of without success, he went back to the man who had suggested it. Securing a letter of introduction to the family mentioned, he called upon them and stated the position in which he was placed and asked what their desires were in the matter of taking a child to raise.

The man and his wife asked a number of questions in regard to the child, and finally said, "Will you be willing to give the child to us absolutely, so that we may raise her as our own, with the understanding that you are to remain away and claim no relationship whatever?"

Tom said, "No, I will not do that. If you take her, it must be with the understanding that I am her father and that her mother is dead. She must be told the absolute truth about her parents. She must have no cause to blush for them, and I must be permitted to see and visit her on proper occasions."

They said they could not take her under those conditions. Tom offered to pay them for her care, but they said if they were to care for her they must have her as their own child, so once again Tom found himself thrown back upon other resources.

Some of his acquaintances suggested that he put her in an orphan asylum near the city. This did not appeal to him, for he wanted her either with or near to him. The week was almost at an end when he found a place where rooms were for rent and the landlady said she would be willing to rent him a room, board him and the little girl, and care for her while he was absent at work. This suited his needs, so he made the necessary arrangements. After selling most of his household goods, he and his daughter took up their abode in the new habitation.

Rosa was a quiet, well-behaved child, and he anticipated no trouble caused by misconduct on her part, but he soon found that something was wrong. The child seemed frightened and uneasy. He questioned her, but she gave him no satisfaction. She did not like for him to leave her.

The landlady said she was all right when he was not there, that she was too much of a baby, and that he ought not to pay any attention to her. Tom became anxious and uneasy, however, and one day when not very busy he went to the house unexpectedly and overheard the landlady using most abusive language to the child and threatening her with great punishment if she dared to tell her father what she said to her.

He was indignant, distressed, and perplexed. The child's unaccountable conduct was now explained. He saw that it would be impossible for them longer to remain there, yet he felt that it would be unwise for him to say anything to the landlady until he had plans made for a change. He quietly left the house unnoticed and again considered the question of what to do.

He finally decided to visit the orphan asylum and see what arrangement could be made there. He did so. He had a talk with the matron, visited the rooms, and interviewed the teacher and the helpers. He found that they were willing to accept her as an inmate and that he could pay for her board, purchase her clothing, and could claim her at any time he desired. This seemed far preferable to the treatment she was having, so he promised to bring her here the following day.

That evening he had a talk with his little girl. He told her that he had heard the landlady talking with her and that he did not want to leave her there. He then told her about the large house he had been to and about the kind ladies and the little boys and girls. He asked her if she would like to live there. She asked if he would be there, and he told her he couldn't be there all the time, but would come often to see her. Finally she thought she would rather live there than where they were.

The next day Tom took her out to the asylum. She appeared worried and anxious but very quiet. The matron received them kindly and told Tom it would be better for him not to come to see her for a month.

She then took them to the schoolroom, and the teacher talked to Rosa and tried to get her interested, but the child was dazed and didn't know what to do. She clung to her father's hand, and when the teacher sought to separate them she screamed, "Oh, papa, don't go away and leave me."

This was more than Tom could endure. The teacher pleaded with him to leave her, but he said, "No, I will take care of her some other way." He took her back to the rooming house and proceeded to make arrangements to return to Nebraska. He served notice to this effect on his landlady, also on the persons for whom he had been working.

His employers sought to dissuade him from this, so also did his uncle (his brother was already in Nebraska), but their arguments were to no avail. He had exhausted his efforts to obtain a suitable home where his child could be properly cared for. He thought he had friends in Nebraska who would be willing to assist him, so he quickly disposed of his belongings, settled his accounts, and started once again for Nebraska.

Tom was poor, but he had enough to meet his liabilities, purchase transportation to the West, and still have a small amount of cash on hand. He had worked hard and had been careful, but when he arrived in Nebraska the second time, October, 1880, he was only a few dollars richer in money than when he had landed at Castle Garden, July 15, 1871. The years of trial, though, had brought him rich experience, so he bravely faced the future, believing that in some way he would succeed in making, or providing, a home, not alone for himself, but also for his motherless child.

A New Start

Upon arrival in Nebraska Tom made arrangements speedily. He was not disappointed with his reception by his former neighbors. He obtained a temporary home for himself and child and secured work immediately. He labored at anything he could find to do until the severe weather of winter stopped ordinary farm operations; then he worked in the timber on Turkey Creek until the warmer days of coming spring caused him to plan for the season's work.

He had taken an active part in meetings of various kinds, such as spelling contests, literary societies, farmers' meetings, etc., since his return to the State. And naturally enough he was recognized as an active member of the community, also as a fearless champion in debate of any principle which to him seemed worthy of defense or of maintenance.

Toward spring he was told that Mr. Nicholas was willing to rent his farm for the season, provided he could find a suitable man. Tom was somewhat acquainted with him. Thinking it might be a favorable opportunity for him, he went to see him. He found that the information was correct. After some conversation, an agreement was arrived at whereby Tom was to do all the labor, and Mr. Nicholas was to furnish everything, including a home and board for Tom and a home for his daughter. Tom was to pay for his daughter's board. Tom was to have one third and the owner two thirds of the crop. This was satisfactory and worked well for both parties. Tom was delighted to have his daughter with him. She was now of school age and had a pleasant and desirable home, with a schoolhouse near by. It was the first good home the child had had since her mother's death. She called the owner Uncle Nicholas and his wife Aunt Rachel. It was a pleasant and profitable season for all of them.

After moving to this place Tom was informed by Mr. Nicholas that a religious people calling themselves Latter Day Saints had, during his two years' absence from the State, been in the neighborhood doing missionary work. He said their elder, Anthony Roberts, had baptized several families of good people and had organized what they called a "branch" of the church.

Tom inquired if they were the same as the Latter Day Saints of Utah. His informant said they denied any affiliation whatever with them, and said they belonged to the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, with headquarters at Lamoni, Iowa, but said he, "We believe that the elder is deceiving the people and that he is a Mormon the same as those of the West."

Tom had a good deal of confidence in Mr. Nicholas. He was a minister, and Tom believed him to be an honorable and truthful man. He had not heard of these people before, as his work had been several miles from this vicinity, so all this was new to him. He had never met any Latter Day Saints, either from Utah or Lamoni, Iowa. He had read of Utah Mormonism and believed it to be a disgraceful doctrine.

He was not pleased with what he heard. He asked where they held their meetings and who had united with the church. He also asked why they were permitted to use the schoolhouse for their services if it was thought they were teaching false doctrine.

He was told that the school director's wife was a member and that several good families had either joined or were friends to those who had. It seemed strange to Tom. He was religious although not a church member. He said it seemed strange that good people could be deceived and led astray to partake of anything favoring Utah Mormonism. Mr. Nicholas said it certainly was, but he did not see what could be done about it. Tom suggested that the people ought to unite on some good strong man and elect him director at the next school election, to take the place of the retiring member, a man who would see that the house was not used for this purpose. Mr. Nicholas said it was doubtful if this could be done, because the present incumbent was a good man, and because the Latter Day Saints and all their friends would rally to his support.

Tom's argument was that if a good man supported a bad cause he ought to be defeated. He frankly admitted that the whole matter was a puzzle to him. He could not comprehend how a man representing something which was not good could succeed in converting good men to an unclean doctrine, yet if the information given was correct this had been done.

The matter was common talk in the new neighborhood, and Tom frequently heard it discussed. He also attended the meetings of these people. He found the teachings new to him, and yet he had to admit that they were scriptural. The people seemed good and kind, but sensitive on points of difference between themselves and others.

As the time of school meeting approached, he was interviewed by several members of the district and asked if he would serve as director for the coming term if they could elect him. He was surprised, for he was young for the position and a newcomer. After due consideration, however, he said that he would accept the position.

At the meeting the one whose term had expired was placed in nomination for reelection. Tom also was nominated. The vote resulted in a tie. Speeches were made. Tom defined the position of himself and friends, which was that the Latter Day Saints should have equal right to the use of the house with other religious bodies, but that no preference should be shown. That the house should be used for Sunday service, each denomination using it in turn, but no week-day service should be permitted without consent of the board.

Tom was finally elected, and this meant that the board would have full control of the house. Tom was careful in his administration of affairs, that no advantage was taken. He treated all religious bodies alike and attended the Sunday services of all, but positively refused to grant permission for use of the house for religious services during the week.

This was considered too strict by some, but he acted in full accord with the other members of the board and carried out the wishes of the ones who secured his election.

(To be continued.)

"Zion's Hope" as a Nursery Paper

By Bertha Constance Woodward

Since last General Conference Zion's Hope has been advertised as a Sunday school paper for the nursery children as well as for the kindergarten and primary children.

The last page of the paper contains an interesting nursery story each week, which supplements the theme of the church school lesson found in the book, A Year of Lessons for the Nurse Child, by Anne Friend Roberts.

Be sure to think of the nursery children when you order your Hopes next time, for these little tots like something interesting to carry home with them, and, too, they need the stories.

Reading makes a full man, conversation a ready man, and writing an exact man.—Selected.

Security in God!

By Charles H. Arven

Security in God? Indeed there is security in God. In no other way can we possess that sweet and comforting peace that floods our soul with joy. Security in God is a guarantee for many things. It stands for the kind of character that keeps us steadfast in our purpose, and it helps us to visualize more clearly the marvelous works of God. It develops the kind of character that is akin to the divine character of Christ. It sustains us when troublesome times drive us to the verge of distraction, and it enables us to know that God's hand is stretched forth to guard his own until the dark, threatening clouds have rolled away.

Once we are in God we have our security. Once we have our security, we then have the strength to strengthen our brother. Security in God enables us to keenly and justly discriminate between that which we know is good and that which seems doubtful. With security in God established, we are better prepared, and we can meet God's approval more fully to do the work he has commanded us to do. We can go forth to the harvest fields, to our work in the office or the shop with a better feeling of confidence of accomplishing the task we may have before us.

Security in the business world, as the term is used, is greatly stressed and eagerly sought for. Banks and business houses demand it, and unfortunate indeed is the man who has no security. How much more unfortunate then are they who have no security in God. Like floating derelicts, they have no port as their goal and could not reach it if they had.

And if security in the business world is based on good, sound principles, how much more great, sound, and safe is the security we may have in God? It does not take much study or deep thinking to discriminate accurately between the two to see the point.

All business and life in general is conducted on the principles of security, for the reason that it is a safeguard to those involved: a just way of protecting the rights of those who do business in the world, and an equitable means of insuring their permanent welfare in life while they live. We should see to it that we also have security in God for our happiness here on earth, and the assurance of an interest in the glorious life to come.

We are indeed as children going to school, and a wonderful school it is, for all around us is that great throbbing and mysterious force called life. The Bible is our teacher, and from it we may learn to be true Christian men and women. The Bible is God's word and teaches us how to prepare ourselves to inherit the blessed life to come. The way of the Christian life is an old, old path, but once we know it we will gladly travel along its winding curves, happy with the assurance that we have security in God no matter what awful calamities may come upon the earth. Satan may rage and do his worst, but we will have nothing to fear; we have become stockholders in God's kingdom, and as such our rights will be protected to the end.

As for the great Deity himself, I know but little; but enough to trust him and to believe fully in his promise of a future life. Never could I imagine him as a far-distant God. Even in the great cities at night, and in the quiet lanes and by-ways, I believe that God is ever close to us; sad, no doubt, when his children make grievous mistakes and fall; but ever ready to stretch forth his hand and lift them up once more to their feet if they will ask him.

Life goes on forever. In the great plan of creation, what the ultimate destiny of humanity to be worked out in the far-distant eons of time is to be, none knows but God. It may be that, though his wayward children suffer punishment, in the end the great Creator in his love and mercy will gather them all into his fold amidst a heavenly jubilee, and will look upon them with a smile of satisfaction, knowing that his great work has been fully accomplished.

Education and ability to do things are not interchangeable terms. You can not educate brains into a man's head, but you can enable him to make the most of the brains he has. A man who can not think is not an educated man, no matter how many college degrees he may have acquired. One who can think things out can usually do them. Education along the right lines stimulates the mind and brings out its best qualities. But as crops can not spring from barren soil, so thoughts that are worth while will not come from a dull brain. Education is not to blame if it can not do for a man what he can not do for himself. It has its limitations.—Selected.

Prayer

Lord, what a change within us one short hour
Spent in thy presence will avail to make!
What heavenly burdens from our bosoms take!
What parched grounds refresh as with a shower!
We kneel, and all around us seems to lower;
We rise, and all, the distant and the near,
Stands forth in sunny outline, brave and clear;
We kneel, how weak! we rise, how full of power!
Why, therefore, should we do ourselves this wrong,
Or others—that we are not always strong—
That we are overborne with care—
That we should ever weak or heartless be,
Anxious or troubled—when with us is prayer,
And joy and strength and courage are with thee?
—Richard C. Trench.

NEWS OF CHURCH AND HOME

Address all news and letters to Editors of the Herald, Box 237, Independence, Missouri. Correspondents are requested to make their letters brief. The Editors reserve the right, on account of space limitations, to shorten all letters as circumstances require.

Detroit, Michigan

"The branch business meeting, July 14, was one of the most gratifying we have had in years for work done, for harmony, and for brevity. Pastor J. Charles Mottashed took charge, and business was handled with dispatch. Among other things, the report from the Board of Stewards made special mention of the fact that the Women's Department, for the first half of this year, turned in $775. At the request of the department, this fund is used to meet mortgage obligations. This is perhaps the biggest factor in our present favorable financial condition. Commendation was also given to Elder George Booth and his assistants in the publicity contest work, the commissions for which brought the branch $150."—Detroit's Beacon Light.

The Board of Stewards is desirous of informing the people concerning the financial condition of Detroit Branch from time to time. They have found that the usual printed report, or a report read at the business meeting, needs some interpretation. It is the present policy of the administration to keep the branch members advised through articles especially written for and printed in the Beacon Light.

Saints of Detroit have as pastor Elder J. C. Mottashed, and meet in four organized congregations and three missions officered as follows: First Church, associate pastor, G. H. Booth; East Side, associate pastor, Wilbert Richards; River Rouge, R. E. Ulman; Wyandotte, L. J. Richard; Roseville, Michigan, in charge Louis Conley; Brightmoor-Schoolcraft, in charge, Vere Blair; State Fair, in charge of Charles Mousseau.

One activity which speaks well for the enterprise of the branch is the printing of a monthly twelve-page news sheet, the Beacon Light. The editorial staff of this publication is composed of George H. Booth, Lewis H. Heaviland, and Veryl M. Wode. Their work combined with that of the business office and the reporters is reflected in the excellence of the little paper. In addition to the presentation of branch business, a pastoral letter, news of the groups of Saints, the August number of the Beacon Light prints a complete program and order of church school services for First Church for the month of August.

In scanning the news of the congregations and missions, the cooperative spirit of Detroit Saints may be detected in the frequent use of the phrase, "was unanimously elected." Here are found pledges from officers and Saints to give themselves "unreservedly to your service." The church school is progressing. Choir work continues in some of the branches during the warm weather. There have been several baptisms in recent months. Parents happily announce the arrival of new members-to-be. The Women's Department is expanding to include a number of activities. Clubs are being conducted to encourage the social life of the members. There are stories of recoveries from illness, good prayer meetings, picnics, and other recreational activities.

From the Beacon Light we quote two expressions typical of the attitude of Detroit Branch. The first comes under the heading, "East Side News": "We hope now as the business meetings are over and we are starting out on a new year, that we shall all go forward with our might, mind, and strength. I am sure, if we do our part, we need not worry about our needs. Let us manifest a living faith in this wonderful organization and live up to its requirements, and God will bless us beyond our expectations."

From "State Fair News": "Now that our general business meeting is past, and we have the full assurance of the heartiest cooperation from the Board of Stewards, we are launching our very best efforts in the expansion and betterment of the State Fair Mission, and pledge to the Board of Stewards and the Detroit Branch our heartiest cooperation and support. This is the sentiment of the State Fair Mission by popular vote."

Iowa Saints Start Study Class

Saints of Mason City, Charles City, and Nora Springs, Iowa, began the study of the Book of Mormon June 14, Sister Inez Kinney acting as leader. Each Sunday the class meets at her home. On July 5 the meeting was in charge of Brother Clyde McDonald, of Des Moines, and there were sacrament service and preaching.

Always the Saints are happy to have elders present. We have much enjoyed the services of Brothers Clark, H. C. Castings, and Clyde McDonald, of Des Moines. Within the past few months we have been happy to meet Brother Charles Fry, of Ottumwa, who left here just last week. While he was here, there were round table talks, and July 26 was given over to baptismal services at Clear Lake, Iowa, State Park. At this time Roy E. and Velma M. Wineman were baptized, also Elmer Wineman and Dorothy Nelson. Confirmation service was had at ten o'clock at the home of Sister Inez Kinney, Mason City, and preaching followed at eleven o'clock. After the last service the Saints from Charles City and Mason City went to Sister Smith's home for a picnic dinner.

This was a day which will be well remembered by Saints of this vicinity.

Reunion for Florida Members

The Florida reunion passed into history Sunday, July 20, after ten days of hard work and pleasant association. Much interest was shown in the telling of experiences in the service of the Master, and many expressed the hope to more capably carry out the program of the church.

Elder George Burt, of Mobile, Alabama, and president of the Florida District, was chosen to preside over the reunion and empowered to choose his assistants. At various times he called on Brother Richards, Brother Glenn Davis, Brother B. L. Jernigan, and others. Sister Burt, the music director, performed her work with grace and dignity, gaining for herself and the church a host of friends.

The order of services as outlined by those in authority was: Prayer service each morning at 8:30 except on Sunday, when we met at eight o'clock. The early morning prayer hour on week days was followed by class work. One class was taught by Brother Burt on the subject, "How to Teach Religion," Sister Burt taught "Religion in the Home," and Brother Glenn Davis taught "Stewardship of Life." Classes were well attended, and much interest was shown. The young people on three or four mornings were called together for prayer services, Brothers Richards and Davis presiding.

Brother Richards was in charge of all prayer services, and called on various members of the priesthood to assist him.

The children were cared for by Glenn Davis, and junior church was held out in the grove.

The evening sermon was of the missionary type, Brother Richards the speaker. So many people came that all could not get inside the building.

Brother Burt and Davis occupied the morning hour for preaching except on Sunday, when Brother Richards spoke.

In general, workers thought the attendance and interest the best in several years.

The recreational part of the program consisted of ball playing. Baseball and volley ball and a variety of other games interested old and young.

Brother Richards baptized six fine young people on Sunday afternoon. There were others who intended to be baptized but were unable to get to the place of the service. These will enter a little later.

Everyone rejoiced because of the fine spirit of peace and brotherly love which prevailed throughout all the sessions of the reunion. Such a spirit indicates the upward trend of the church in this region. The members are learning the necessity of putting to work in their lives the ideals of Christ, and are hopeful. They are aware of the great tasks before them, and pray for strength and wisdom to succeed in doing God's will.

Calumet, Oklahoma

This branch has just closed a most interesting series of meetings. Speakers were Elders William Bath and Z. Z. Renfroe. A large crowd was present each night, and interest was splendid. Many nonmembers attended. Immediately following the services the young people were met on the playgrounds by Brothers Renfroe and Harold Crownover, where they indulged in a large variety of games. A good way to break down the walls of prejudice among the young people is to play with them.

At the close of the series, four adults were baptized, three of whom are mothers. Others are deeply interested in the gospel. Brothers Bath and Renfroe are interesting speakers and left with their hearers many good thoughts. Brother Howard Harpham, of Seiling, Oklahoma, no doubt one of the youngest active members of the priesthood in the church, was here. He was ordained a priest a short time ago. He is a good speaker for a sixteen-year-old boy. Saints from several different places heard him.

Local leaders are active in their different offices.

The Saints in this locality are much hindered in this time of depression, yet we have much cause to be thankful.

North Manchester Branch, England

Special services were arranged for Sunday, June 14, to celebrate Children's Day as set apart by the church, Pastor F. H. Smith took special care that each child participated in some way in each service. He remarked on the improvement made in the past year, but hoped for greater as this year proceeded. Addresses were given by Sister Nelson, daughter of Patriarch William H. Greenwood, and Sister Smith, wife of the pastor and leader of the Women's Department, and in the evening service by Priest H. W. Gillson and Deacon T. Heywood. There was not enough time allowed to make elaborate preparations for the services, but the change of program was enjoyed by all, and helped the children to feel their responsibility to the congregation.

On Saturday, July 11, at the James Street, Northeast Manchester Branch, a marriage was solemnized by High Priest G. W. Leggott. The couple were members of the branch, and we wish them all happiness in their new life.

The bride was Sister Eva Gillson, youngest daughter of Priest H. W. and Sister E. Gillson, and the bridegroom is the youngest brother of the wife of the pastor of our branch.

On Sunday, July 19, a pretty ceremony took place. The baby daughter of Brother Albert and Sister Martha Moore was blessed, and during the blessing the children's division formed a guard of honor around the lower platform and sang "Suffer Little Children," from Zion's Praises.

We are hoping that the renovations in the anteroom will soon be finished. Then it can be fitted up as a primary room for the children. We seem to be progressing in this department. It certainly is good to see many names on the cradle roll. May God help us to give our little ones the right care and guidance. It certainly is a big responsibility.

Birmingham, England

Saints in Birmingham feel that the work of God is becoming more real and of more importance in their lives. Each day they realize more deeply that these are indeed the latter days. Prayer meetings have been increased from one to four services each week, and the number of Saints attending is about forty.

Many answers have been received to prayers offered in behalf of the sick members. Some have recovered in marvelous ways, causing the hearts of all to rejoice and realize that God is not far off, but very near his people.

The recent sacrifice period was observed with a right good will, and the sum raised was nineteen pounds. "We are thankful for these opportunities to assist in the Lord's work," say the Saints of Birmingham.

Under the direction of Pastor P. S. Whalley, the Women's Guild has enjoyed many social hours, rambles, and picnics. A successful garden party was held at the pastor's home June 13, approximately fifty being served. The weather was fine, and the party was highly enjoyed. Patriarch Greenwood was present. All refreshments were donated, so the women raised a nice little sum. Money raised in various ways by the women goes to beautify the church. A beautiful oak reading desk was the first gift to the branch, and this was especially appreciated by the pastor.

The branch welcomes a new member, Mr. A. Edwards. This young man and his wife (recently Sister Mavis Meredith) desire to live lives consecrated to the Master.

The young people held their first prayer meeting the morning of July 19. A good number met in the Lord's house to enjoy the beautiful Spirit present. Nothing is sweeter and more inspiring than to see a group of young people worshipping together and to hear them express their desires to be useful in the service of the Lord. We pray this love may increase and that they may grow strong and valiant.

Pastor and Sister P. S. Whalley are doing a good work in this branch, and the Saints are grateful for their help.

It is the hope of these Saints that the members of the church throughout the world will feel the spiritual urge and determination to serve God faithfully by obeying the whole law.

Portland, Oregon

Returning from the Bandon, Oregon, reunion, Pastor Sorden and wife have worked to attend the Seattle, Washington, reunion, where they are at present. They were accompanied by Evangelist and Sister Richard Baldwin. It is quite possible that they will also attend the Hagerman, Idaho, reunion, before they return to Portland.

Recent visitors have included Elder A. C. Martin and family, of Seattle District. Several years ago Brother Martin labored in Portland, and so his visit was very much enjoyed. They also have gone to Seattle to be present at the reunion of their own district.

The second half of the regular branch business meeting was held July 29, and reports of the various departments and members of the priesthood were read. The pastor's report voiced pleasure in the growth of the past year in attendance at all general meetings. Attention was called to the fact that there has been nothing of a spectacular nature to cause this increase, but that it is surely due to spiritual growth and the development of a desire on the part of the membership for righteousness. The number and contents of other reports were gratifying.

A steak fry was held July 31 by the older group. A charge of twenty cents each was made to cover expenses, and a social evening was enjoyed.

Though some of our leaders are absent, and vacation season has claimed others, attendance at services continues good.

Nauvoo, Illinois

A full page motorlog headed "Old Nauvoo, Where Salt Lake City Might Have Been" appeared in the Chicago Herald Examiner on June 28 with a picture of the Brigham Young House, three river scenes, and a map showing how motorists could go to and from Nauvoo. A trip for the Fourth of July week-end was suggested by the writer, Robert Copeland, automobile editor, and resulted in nearly a thousand visitors. Brother and Sister Page, with the assistance of others, were kept busy registering the visitors and telling the gospel story. Many expressed themselves as well pleased with their visit and several inquiries were made relative to property, as some desired to establish a summer home here.

Three Graceland students, Walter Johnson, Esmond Crown, and Don Chesworth, industrial students who had stayed on for the summer, hiked to Nauvoo to spend the Fourth of July. They arrived about midnight Friday, located the Lewis home, and serenaded Roberta. They were taken for a swim early the next morning, had dinner with the Lewis family at the Sanford home, and in the evening, with a group of the young people, cooked their supper at David's Chamber. Sunday morning Esmond Crown sang for us and assisted at the sacrament service. W. O. Hayer, who was in charge, called upon the three young men to lead out in testimony. They responded loyally, and a wonderful outpouring of the Spirit was enjoyed. In the evening, at the close of the class period, we were entertained by our visitors. Walter Johnson gave an interesting talk on his home in Australia; Esmond Crown, of Spokane, Washington, and Donald Chesworth of Fall River, Massachusetts, and other places along the eastern coast. The boys returned to Lamoni Monday morning, declaring they had been greatly benefited by their visit to Nauvoo.

An all-day session of the Nauvoo Township Sunday School Convention was held at the Presbyterian Church, July 19, with Roberta Lewis, president the past year, in charge. The regular services of the Presbyterian, Methodist, and Latter Day Saint Churches were discontinued that all might attend. A splendid demonstration of Sunday school work was given in the morning through story-telling, dramatization, and use of pictures and sand table. Reverend Foster, of the Methodist faith, gave a Scripture drill, and Reverend Goff, of the Presbyterian, a sermonet. In the evening came reports of the different Sunday schools, music, and an address by Reverend Wickwire, county superintendent.

Instead of the regular services at the church, July 26, all gathered at the river, where a special service was held in commemoration of the death of the Martyrs. "I Came to the Spot Where the Two Martyrs Lay," was sung by Sister Lee; a reading, "It Shall Not Fail," by Inez Davis, was given by Sister Page; "The Unknown Grave," written by David H. Smith, was sung by Albert Sanford, jr., and Brother Page gave an inspirational talk on our responsibility. A basket dinner was enjoyed at noon, and the afternoon was spent quietly visiting with the Rock Creek Saints, who met with us. In the evening, a dramatization of "The Promised Child," by Winifred Stiegel, was held on the bank of the river.

Due to financial conditions it was thought advisable to call off the reunion, which has been held here regularly for a number of years, and a special series of open-air meetings was substituted and held on the lawn of the Homestead facing the river. The weather was favorable, and beautiful moonlight evenings were enjoyed. On July 25, Apostle J. F. Garver was present and preached morning, afternoon, and evening to a large gathering of the Saints from throughout the district. The Burlington Orchestra furnished music, and a young Mr. Williams, of the Utah faith, who is attending the University of Chicago, gave a reading, "Life Is a Funny Proposition After All." During the week F. C. Mussell, E. R. Williams, R. S. Salyards, and Bishop Charles Fry were the speakers. The last-named was to speak again on Sunday evening but was taken sick, and Brother Mussell substituted for him, preaching a fine sermon, which was a fitting close to the series.

E. R. Williams and family and Sister Dixon and daughter Pearl, of Burlington, camped in the Nauvoo House during the week and were present at the Wednesday evening prayer service, Brother Williams being in charge.

A quiet wedding took place at the Mansion House the evening of July 20, when Miss Myrtle Koechle, of Nauvoo, and Lloyd Thomas Mapes, of Sonora Township, were united in marriage by Elder J. C. Page.

Word was received that Oscar Ourth, who attended Graceland two years and graduated from the University of Iowa, was married to Clarice Howell, of Wright, Iowa, on July 5. Oscar is attending the summer term of the university, where he will receive his master's degree. He will be principal of the Nome, South Dakota, High School the next term.

The funeral of George Neubreck, a man eighty years of age who had lived all his life in Nauvoo, was held at the church, Elder J. C. Page officiating.

Independence

It was with grateful hearts that the Saints assembled hundreds strong on Sunday evening for the regular out-of-door summer preaching hour. They came from every one of the nine congregations in Independence, anticipating individual and group good from the service. On the western horizon hung a very new moon, and later stars peered down through the tree tops.

"Priesthood is God and man in action," asserted Apostle F. Henry Edwards, the speaker, in his excellent discussion and explanation of the necessity, authority, and function of priesthood. This is the first time Brother Edwards has spoken at the Campus this summer, and his sermon was much appreciated.

Music was by the Auditorium Orchestra, directed by Orlando Nace, and the congregation sang well-liked hymns, "My Jesus, I Love Thee," "O Reapers of Life's Harvest," and "Fairest Lord Jesus." Pastor John F. Sheehy in the stand was assisted by Elder T. A. Beck.

The Campus is living up to its record of former years as a picnic and recreation ground. A great variety of clubs, societies, and groups have picnicked there this summer.

At present the tennis courts are the scene of lively games. The city of Independence is conducting a tournament there.

Stone Church

"The Apostle Paul urged the saints to make their calling and election sure," Elder C. Ed. Miller told the Stone Church congregation Sunday morning in his sermon "Margins of Safety." He advised them "to examine themselves to see if they were in the faith. The best engineering practice demands that always there shall be a margin of safety to withstand unusual stress. Our Auditorium has a margin of safety of four to one. Spiritually, we should have a margin of safety. We are assailed on all sides by worldly environment and influences and by our own selfish desires. Our divine objective demands that we climb the heights. We must have reserve strength upon which we can draw in times of stress, and we must keep constantly attuned to the Source of our strength. It is imperative that we make our calling and election sure, that we develop margins of safety."

The morning soloist was Thelma Vincent Krahl, soprano Organ music was by Robert Miller. Elder G. G. Lewis was in charge of the service assisted by Elder H. O. Smith.

The junior church service at the Campus was opened by Sister Hazel Moler. Brother W. F. Bolinger offered the invocation. A reading was given by Thelma Betts, "Into the Garden Jesus Came." Lucile Esgar and Emerald Hoisington sang a duet, "Memories of Galilee." Brother Bolinger talked to the juniors about "The Priesthood of the Church." The benediction was offered by Brother Livingston.

The Wah-Dem-Na Choral Club added to its record of achievements the taking of a one hundred and seventy-five dollar prize last week at the annual four-day meet of the North Missouri Fox Hunters Association, at Kingston, Missouri. Paul N. Craig directs the club, which was organized under his leadership some five years ago. It is a group of musically talented young people of the church in Independence and their friends, and its work as a choral club is familiar to listeners over KMBC and to the people in this part of Missouri. The Wah-Dem-Nas carried off the honors in the series of eight concerts given in connection with the four-day meet, ranking first among a formidable group of contestants from surrounding cities. This band of young musicians took prominent part in the presentation of the oratorio "The Course of Time," in the Centennial Conference.

Among recent weddings of interest to Independence and other points is that of Mrs. Bessie Lee Puckett and A. E. Bullard. The ceremony occurred the evening of August 10 at the office of Bishop B. J. Scott, who officiated. Mr. and Mrs. Bullard are at home to friends at 121 South Pendleton Avenue, Independence.

Howard Snead, of Troop 226, and son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Snead, was one of the three Scouts from Independence to take a two-week trip east along with eleven other Scouts from the Covered Wagon Area. In charge of Scout officials the truck load of boys will visit the Boy Scout Trading Post in Chicago, Detroit, cross into Canada at Port Huron, then on to Toronto, Niagara Falls, New York City, and other points. The boys were chosen for outstanding work in Scouting. They left Independence Monday morning.

Liberty Street

Pastor J. R. Lentell preached on Sunday, August 16, at eleven o'clock. The subject of his sermon was "Love," and the text was taken from John 13:34, 35. On this occasion the words of Jesus: "A new commandment I give unto you, That ye love one another; as I have loved you, that ye also love one another," took on deeper significance.

Monday evening is being used for local recreation night on the playgrounds back of the church, the activities being under the direction of Cecil Walker and Elbert Mock.

The Girl Scout movement is making progress in this district. A troop-to-be is busy under the direction of Mrs. Elbert Mock. Scouting offers girls between the ages of ten and eighteen a great range of activities and development. Thirteen were present at the meeting last week. Mrs. Mock is at present being assisted by Mrs. Don Cox, captain of Troop 46 of the Stone Church.

The junior-intermediate department of the church school, under the superintendency of Brother Ray Wrigley, went for an outing to the Campus during the regular school hour Sunday morning. Regular class work and program were had out of doors.

Sunday morning prayer meetings at eight o'clock have been resumed with good attendance. A fine spiritual service has been reported by the pastor.

Walnut Park

Walnut Park Saints are recalling memories of old-time reunions in far-away branches as they assemble in the big tent one block west of Haden Avenue, north of Blue Springs Road, to attend missionary meetings sponsored by Group 29, East. Elder Harvey V. Minton is the speaker. The meetings began Monday evening, the 17th, with one hundred and forty-six in attendance, Group Pastor Paul R. Davis in charge; Benjamin Bean song leader, Mrs. Joseph Countryman organist.

At the church Sunday, Apostle F. H. Edwards was the speaker; his text: "Suffer us not to be led into temptation . . . deliver us from evil." He taught us to offer this prayer with better understanding; to pray and then trust God to deliver us from the greater evils menacing our happiness, even though we are not delivered from the immediate evil which alarms us. He gave examples of those who, trusting God, had been raised to higher planes of usefulness because of the fact that they had not been shielded from the troubles they had feared to endure. We must be willing to learn the lessons trials can teach us. F. R. Schafer led the congregational singing at this service, a string trio number being rendered by Orlando Nace, his son Milford, and daughter Delta.

At the Sunday school session, Thelma Moorman gave a clarinet solo, with piano accompaniment.

The Walnut Park Patronesses of the Sanitarium, having many demands upon their time, have not held meetings but have accomplished much individually in their homes. Their leader, Mrs. Elmer Pennell, wishing to see the organization in a body, sought for an hour when the members could possibly arrange to meet, and on Sunday morning at 5.30 succeeded in assembling thirty for an out-of-door breakfast and an hour of helpful fellowship.

Enoch Hill

The eight o'clock prayer service was toned on Sunday morning to meet the great spiritual needs of our people. Elder C. E. Beal and Brothers Lawrence Martin and Dick Bullard were in charge. Every worshiper present bore his testimony to the truth of the gospel and his desire to be of use to the Lord in his latter-day work. All Saints of the district are reminded of the good to be derived from participation in these services, and are urged to attend.

An attractive church school program was presented Sunday morning by Mrs. Agnes Hartman and other members of the school. Stories of outstanding Bible characters were told by adult members, and there were three pleasing musical numbers by Fernoy Alexander, who played his uke-lin.

In the following service a musical reading was given by Miss Nellie Kramer, accompanied at the piano by Miss Ruby Johnson. There was also a vocal duet by Mrs. Willis Young and her mother, Mrs. Mary Bush. "The Spiritual Life of the Soul" was the theme presented by Elder R. V. Hopkins, who delivered a helpful sermonet.

Gudgell Park

Family vacation trips have cut down Sunday attendance in the past few weeks. Nevertheless services continue with zest and profit to all.

Recent speakers have been Elders H. V. Minton, H. L. Barto, Vernon Reese, and others. Each had a message of encouragement.

This district is glad to have Brother Donald Burch at home after a four-year absence in the Navy.

Sister Marguerite Sherman, who was seriously ill for several weeks, is again able to be about.

The Wednesday evening prayer meetings are well attended.

The young people enjoy volley ball on Friday evenings. Both boys and girls have teams. Of late they have been playing Mount Washington teams.

The Harvest Home Festival committee is very busy.

The local priesthood were in charge of the August sacrament service, which had good attendance.

Alberta District Conference

Conference of Alberta District was held at Edmonton July 31 to August 2. Members were pleased to have present Apostle J. A. Gillen, who presided.

Saints from all parts of the district were present, and a splendid time was enjoyed. Average attendance of one hundred was had at all the services.

Saturday afternoon the usual conference business was transacted. Elder William McLeod was elected district president, and chose as his counselor Brother Ira Benham.

Sunday morning there were ten baptisms at the river.

Already the members look ahead to next year's conference at Edmonton.

Woodbine, Iowa

Church school attendance has been good during the hot weather, and the members are manifesting a desire to live close to God in work, worship, and study.

Brother W. R. Adams gave an excellent sermon the closing evening of the conference at Woodbine, and Brother Bert Fry preached Sunday evening. We are glad to have the Fry family here again.

Frequently Brother C. R. Smith, of Biglers Grove, preaches.

A dozen of our young people presented a musical program at Moorhead the evening of July 26. The church was filled.

The priesthood feel their responsibility more and more as they try to represent God. King Benjamin teaches in the Book of Mormon that we must serve God with our whole souls if we would be profitable servants.

The young people of the district have been holding recreational gatherings during the summer. June 29 a group of about one hundred and twenty from Dow City, Dunlap, Logan, and Missouri Valley met at Woodbine, each branch group bringing freezers of delicious homemade ice cream and plenty of cake. Following a volley ball tournament between the four branches, Dunlap, Logan, Missouri Valley, and Woodbine, in which Logan was victorious, we consumed some twenty gallons of cream. After the singing of songs, good-byes were said and the visitors departed for home.

Equally enjoyable gatherings have been held at some of the other branches, but since Woodbine is near the center of the territory, we had the largest attendance. The young people expect to continue these social good times throughout the winter. Let us here mention that the older people always are welcome. We have in this region a splendid group of young people with some capable leaders.

This district is anticipating with eagerness the reunion which convenes August 14.

Fresno, California

2412 Clay Street

Fresno Saints are a happy, united band of workers for the Master, under the leadership of our young pastor, T. Frank Enix. Brother Enix is very earnest and enthusiastic and is well loved by all, especially by those who know him best (through cooperation). His first and foremost thought is always for the church and the good of the branch. His kind and encouraging manner is an inspiration to the leaders and workers in the different departments.

The work of the church in this branch is on the continual upward trend, with little opposition, if any at all.

Brother Guy P. Levitt has been here as often as has been possible for so busy a man as he, and he always leaves us greatly encouraged. Everyone loves Brother Levitt. You see, we believe in eulogizing the living, to be a source of encouragement to them as well as to let them know that we appreciate their help and advice.

Those from Fresno who attended the reunion at Irvington claim it to be the best ever, and came home very much enthused at the greater possibilities in our own branch.

There have been several improvements within our church building of which we are proud; we also have the new Saints' Hymnals which already have proved a boon to the musically inclined.

Each department has sponsored successful activities both for social betterment and to raise money for numerous projects.

This branch has been working under the new church school plan since the first of the year and is much pleased with the results. Sister Lillie Jennings has proved a proficient director of religious education, always ready and willing to give encouragement and help wherever needed or desired.

Our branch has recently been blessed with several good singers, members of the Godfrey families, who have come here from Nebraska. Soon we hope to boast an exceptional choir.

Sunday, August 9, the young people were given charge of the services, and used the theme, "The Vision of Youth and God's Calls." There were short readings telling of some of the calls to youth in Bible times and to youth today. The songs used were written by young men from ten to twenty-five years of age. This was a novel yet impressive service.

The children's division rendered a unique Easter service, under the direction of their superintendent, Sister E. F. Kraschel, and another on Mother's Day. The Children's Day program was a united effort of the children and young people, under the direction of their leaders, with the able assistance of Sister Mabel Enix, who willingly gave her time and the use of a car to carry the children to and from the rehearsals. Sister Hazel Schurter and Lillie Jennings also assisted.

The young people have presented several pageants on special occasions.

We have lost several of our number by transfer. These we miss, and especially our publicity agent, Sister Dorothy Fugate, who, with her family, is in Santa Cruz. They were tendered a farewell reception on the eve of their departure.

Kansas City Stake

Central Church

Next Sunday morning a caravan of motor cars will meet at the plaza at the south end of the A. S. B. Bridge at 5.30 for a trip to Stewartville, where the Far West stake reunion is now in progress. The trip is being sponsored by the Stake O. B. K.'s, but all who wish may go. It is suggested that each family or group provide its own picnic lunch and be prepared to enjoy a day with the people at the reunion. It is planned that the caravan will reach the grounds in time for the young people's prayer meeting at 8.30. President F. M. McDowell will conduct a class at ten o'clock, and Bishop G. Leslie DeLapp will speak at eleven o'clock.

Elder George Mesley is conducting a class for boys on Monday morning at nine o'clock for the purpose of giving instruction leading up to baptism near the end of September. Boys who have not yet united with the church are invited to join this class. They meet at the church.

A stake picnic is being planned for Labor Day at Swope Park. Games, including the playing off of the tennis matches, and refreshments will be provided.

Elder John F. Sheehy preached the Sunday morning sermon, and there was a vocal trio number, "Teach Me to Pray," by Irene, Mildred, and Evelyn Shupe, of Independence. Music was in charge of the director, George Anway, and organists were Velma Lewis and Mrs. J. A. Withee.

The coolness of the evenings has made indoor services more desirable than outdoor, so the series of talks by the pastor following the theme of the motion picture shown each Sunday evening, will be continued indoors. The subject of the picture Sunday night was "By Their Fruits."

In the afternoon the stake priesthood held their regular meeting. Special reports from the seminar on priesthood visiting recently held in Independence was heard.

Argentine Church

"Sanctification" was the theme last Sunday morning of Elder Daniel Cooper.

In the evening Brother Robert Crayne was the representative of the stake bishopric, sent to acquaint the Saints of Argentine with their responsibility toward the general church debt. Brother Crayne is from Chelsea Church. He said that the way to liquidate the debt is to pay it, which can be done if everyone does his part.

The ice cream social and band concert, sponsored by the Research Class, were held on the church lawn the evening of August 4. The event netted about fifty dollars to the sponsors, who will apply the sum to the general missionary fund. The members are grateful to the Auditorium Band for its help on this occasion.

Hammond, Indiana

6243 Monroe Street

Saints of Hammond have responded in a whole-hearted manner to the requests of the church for financial aid. For the past three months we have tried to live up to a resolution passed some time ago in which one tenth of our incomes was pledged to help the general church. The outcome has been very gratifying.

Brother Pement, from Chicago, came to Hammond and preached for us every Sunday evening for several weeks. The gospel has meant so much to him that he does all in his power to pass it on to others. We find it the same in this work as in any other—if we obtain the reward we must first "pay the price."

Brother Clem Evans, from Chicago, also has been here a number of times. Earnestness and sincerity are qualities in his style of presenting the gospel that make it appeal to one.

The sacrament service this month was beautiful and inspiring. The influence of such services is lasting in one's memory and helps to re-fuel us for the petty things that disturb us from time to time.

The adult division of the church school gave a program not long ago that was both grave and gay. The evening was a very enjoyable one, and to top off the affair they served punch, ice cream, and wafers.

Brother and Sister Ray Mair are indeed happy over their new daughter, Lois, and Brother and Sister D. H. Smith are proud of a new daughter, Carolynn Jean.

For the past three weeks midweek services have been discontinued due to repair work being done on the church building. Much redecorating and cleaning has been done, and when it is finished we want to be ready to start out with new courage to accomplish the work that is ours to do.

Kirtland, Ohio

The July sacrament service had an especially large attendance. On the following Sunday morning Elder R. McDonald, of Saginaw, Michigan, was the guest speaker. He emphasized the significance of the restored gospel. "The Sure Foundation" was the theme of Elder James E. Bishop July 19, and the choir sang that morning. The evening sermon was by Brother Albert Wouters. Recently, also, an excellent chart talk, "The Lord's Vineyard," was given by Elder Cecil Neville.

July 2 the Blue Birds received their merits for the winning of points of honor, covering a stated period, under the able leadership of their monitor, Sister Alma Curry. Diplomas were presented them by the district superintendent of church schools. Honorable mention was made of Sister Mabel Thomas, who first organized the Blue Birds here.

Brother and Sister W. E. Householder, Ruth, Paul, and Clyde Ebeling, and Catherine and Sarah Booher, twin daughters of Brother and Sister John R. Booher, sang in the large chorus at the stadium opening in Cleveland. Many from Kirtland attended.

Sister C. A. McFarland's granddaughter, Annie Williams, is recovering from an injury received when a tractor ran over her leg.

Sister Au Vergne Proper and Sister Mary Gale, heads of the children's division, lately visited a number of points of interest in the East.

Patriarch John T. Gresty is visiting Kirtland. He conducted the singing before church school in the place of Chorister John Collin. Brother Gresty preached a fine and didactical sermon the evening of August 2. A quartet consisting of Paul and Clyde Ebeling, William Davies, and Elmer Atchison sang two numbers that evening, "Over Yonder" and "Nearer, My God, to Thee." They were directed by Sister W. E. Householder and accompanied at the piano by Sister R. Flack. Sisters Harriet and Phyllis Schaar, of Lake Orion, Michigan, nieces of Elder and Sister E. A. Webbe and Brother and Sister H. D. Gaskill, sang a fine duet number.

Ralph Edward, infant son of Elder and Sister A. Wouters, was recently blessed at the temple.

The church school picnic was held at Tuttle Park on Lake Erie at Madison, Ohio. A fine time was had.

Brother William George passed through a very successful operation in Columbus, Ohio, August 1.

Patriarch A. E. Stone, who has been ill a month, is not getting along as well as his friends wish. The Saints are remembering him in their prayers.

Late visitors to the temple have included Mrs. Sears, daughter of Bishop Newel K. Whitney, and Miss Edwards, a direct descendant of Jonathan Edwards.

The Kirtland reunion opened with fine spirit on August 6.

President of Southern Saskatchewan Districts Writes the "Herald"

Weyburn, Saskatchewan, August 7.—During the past year Southern Saskatchewan District has been called to pass through many trials, spiritual as well as physical. Sometimes we are led to wonder if we shall endure in order that when the Lord comes he may find faith in the land.

In regard to grain and stock, this has been the most disappointing and discouraging year it has been my experience to pass through. I have lived on these vast, treeless plains for the last twenty-nine years. The prairie is ideal for grain growing. It has been called the "bread basket" of the British Empire.

But we have had little rain for two years; indeed, it has been three years since we had a normal amount. Last winter there was little snow, and as a result every high wind brought a dust storm. These storms were caused, even in January and February, by the winds blowing over bare fields which at that time of year should have been snow-covered. Usually in the spring the melting snow fills sloughs and ravines. Last spring we had nothing. It is characteristic of this country, since the plains are located such a long distance from any large body of water, that we experience extremes of wet and dry weather.

In the heavy clay soil from Weyburn to Regina, the greatest wheat soil in Canada, nothing is growing. Even the Canadian thistle, the most tenacious of all field plants, has been forced to quit. The few trees people have planted are about beaten by the long drought. In the district south of Weyburn to the international boundary, some grain did get enough moisture to come through the ground. But it is very disappointing to see the crops come through the ground to die because of lack of moisture. Our drought-stricken area comprises millions of acres.

The Prime Minister of Saskatchewan estimates that there are one hundred and sixty thousand people practically destitute in this Province. These people have a long winter ahead of them, a winter in which for weeks the thermometer will drop from thirty to forty degrees below zero. The Prime Minister of the Dominion says of these conditions that they compose a "national calamity." All seed and feed, as well as coal and provisions, will have to be provided by the government, which, we are thankful to learn, is taking the situation in hand.

Nevertheless, for all our blessings we should be thankful to God and express our appreciation for his kindness by being diligent in his service. The conditions of the world, I hope, will make us realize the need for Zion. Economic conditions certainly are not encouraging, and people and nations are puzzled.

The district conference was very good. Apostle J. A. Gillen, with his message of hope and spirit of assurance, made the Saints feel that all will be well. With the assistance of Missionary J. L. Sandidge, we will carry on. We hope to do our best towards the establishment of the ideals for which the church stands and for which the world is looking. While we have been disappointed in this district in some in whom we trusted, those who are active are determined to do the best they can. That the church may triumph, is our desire.

If it were not for the very, very stringent circumstances in which we find ourselves at present, we would have made a much better financial showing than we did during Sacrifice Week.

As president of the district, I feel that I can speak for the members here. We are strong for the Reorganization. We indorse the program advocated by the leading quorums of the church. "Zion the beautiful beckons us on."

JOHN R. NEILL.

Clinton, Iowa

August 8.—Clinton Branch has progressed since it was last heard from by the Herald. On Easter Sunday a class of ten was baptized. The service of induction was beautiful, and the church was decorated with lilies and ferns. Since then four more have united with us. And interest continues.

Three members have moved from Clinton: Sister Orpha Small and daughter, Marie, have gone to Kansas City, Missouri. Brother Gilbert Haring and family also have gone to live in Missouri.

A large number attend the midweek prayer meetings, and a good Spirit is always present. May God's work prosper everywhere.

Sacramento, California

The last two days of May marked an important event in the history of Sacramento Branch. A cantata, "The Thorn-crowned King," was presented by singers from all over the district. It was given at the eleven o'clock hour Sunday morning. A wealth of talent was displayed, and the hearers rejoiced once again to hear this story of the Savior. Sister Clark was director and Sister Gertrude Bidwell organist. Those taking solo parts were: Edna Burdick and Hazel Powell, sopranos; Hazel Blohm, contralto; Cleland Levitt, tenor; Walter Hammond, bass. Incidental bass solo, Ives Honeychurch. Incidental trio, Edna Burdick, soprano; Hazel Blohm, first alto; Bertha Austin, second alto. Incidental duet, Hazel Powell, soprano; Rose Dawson, alto. Quartet, Hazel Powell, soprano; Rose Dawson, alto; Roy Powell, tenor; Ives Honeychurch, bass.

A banquet was given in the lower auditorium for visiting singers Saturday evening, May 30. This enabled those taking part to get better acquainted and afterwards to practice together. Sunday morning after services, everyone went to a lonely park and enjoyed box lunches. The afternoon was spent socially.

Mother's Day the church was beautifully decorated. Priest Jabez Elam preached the morning sermon. He brought a message which instilled in our hearts a greater love for our mothers and the sacrifice they have made through the ages for their children. When this young man stands in the pulpit to represent God who has called him into his service, he gives the best that is in him. In the evening Sister Edna Burdick, leader of the Temple Builders, and her girls gave a program paying tribute to motherhood. Afterwards they distributed bouquets of sweet peas to all mothers in the congregation. Sister Burdick deserves much credit and praise for the work she has done as leader of the Temple Builders.

Her devotion and untiring service have endeared her to the hearts of this group of girls.

Children's Day was a day to be remembered. A splendid program was given, all of the children of the church school taking part. Two children were baptized, Delores Thompson and Dorothy Sabin. Pastor Dawson officiated.

Many of the Saints of this branch attended the reunion at Irvington and report a splendid spirit prevailing among the Saints. Several of the members took active part in the work at that place. They feel that God was with them in the work they attempted to do and are very thankful; they pray that they may be able to progress further in the great work God has intrusted to them.

Stockton, California

Clay and Sutter Streets

Though Herald friends have not heard from this branch for some time, we do not want them to think we have grown cold and indifferent to the latter-day work. Indeed our case is just the opposite; the Saints have, in spite of adverse conditions, continued active, and a loyal spirit prevails.

During the spring season several plate suppers were given by the women of the adult division, and good returns were had.

On May 3 W. H. Dawson, of Sacramento, visited Stockton, and conducted the communion service. Two weeks later A. E. Frazier, of Modesto, and W. D. Gillen, of Los Angeles, were among the visitors.

A goodly representation from Stockton attended the priesthood convention in Sacramento May 31.

The annual Sunday school picnic occurred June 13 at Smith's Lake. The young people enjoyed boating, swimming, and playing ball.

Two children were baptized June 14, Brother F. J. Greer officiating. Confirmation was by A. E. Frazier and G. L. M. Brokaw. In the evening District President Guy P. Levitt delivered a forceful sermon, and spoke to the congregation in prophecy, calling Brother F. J. Greer to the Melchisedec priesthood. The ordination was conducted at Irvington under the hands of Apostle M. A. McConley and J. B. Carmichael.

The wife of Brother Frank Carter, of Tracy, was baptized at Irvington July 25. She will enroll with Stockton Branch.

During the latter part of June, Sister Hattie Carey's house was destroyed by fire. Fortunately the property was well covered by insurance. Sister Carey has since moved to Oakland. On July 5 she and her family were here to attend the communion service and to have the infant granddaughter blessed.

"Who Is My Neighbor?" was the theme of A. E. Frazier July 12.

A few days before the reunion opened, a delegation of young people from Modesto Branch visited Stockton and boosted the reunion. These young people are a credit to the church and did a good work here.

Now the reunion is over, and the people are settling back to work. We are expecting a good report from the membership by the end of the season.

Elder Amos Berve Is Better

The many friends of Elder Amos Berve will be happy to learn that he is so far recovered from his long illness that he has been permitted to leave the Sanitarium. Brother and Sister Berve have taken an apartment at 120 South Pendleton, Independence, Missouri. They wish the Herald to express their appreciation of the many kindnesses they have received from the Saints, especially for their faith and prayers during his illness.

Independence members are glad to have the Berves located here.

Seattle and British Columbia Reunion

Never have the beautiful meeting and camp grounds of Seattle and British Columbia District, at Silver Lake, held such a large and satisfactory gathering of the Saints as the reunion just concluded.

Under the direction of Harold I. Velt, one-year president of the district and now elected for a second term, an intensely interesting and educational program was arranged, which not only featured a course of lectures on "Religious Education" by Emma McDole, director of religious education in the district; but also a series on "Worship" by our inimitable Apostle McConley, who was called home the day before he was scheduled to finish his series by the critical condition of his wife; and a group of discourses on "Stewardships" by Bishop A. Carmichael.

Apostle McConley also instructed the priesthood class on questions related to their calling. Bishop Carmichael finished the class with a lecture regarded by everyone who attended as the spiritual capstone of the entire reunion.

The prayer meetings were nearly all spiritual, but the young people, of whom Patriarch Baldwin said, "I have never in all my travels met a finer group," seemed to be favored with the manifestation of the gifts. They were warned through him, among other things, of horrible diseases and afflictions soon to be released upon the world, with which science will be powerless to deal, and which will exact a stupefying toll from the ranks of mankind. Further assurance was also given that Zion in God's own due time will be redeemed.

The financial condition of the district, as revealed at the conference, elicited the remark by Brother Carmichael that surely there is no part of the country so blessed as the Pacific Northwest. A resolution was passed to invite the Portland and Spokane Districts, who do not own reunion grounds, to meet with this district next year. Money was appropriated for the improvement of the grounds, and one has every reason to believe that in time this spot will compare favorably with the finest camp and reunion sites in the country.

Among the elders and high priests present were Brothers Martin, Cook, Sorden, McDole, Savage, and several from Canada. It is easy to see that the services lacked nothing by way of variety. The Saints left the camp grounds cheered and encouraged, and with a new sense of their responsibilities, and the consequences which will follow their neglect. If the trend of thought and exhortation which characterized the entire gathering were to be written in one sentence, it would probably be: "We don't care about anything else . . . but we do want and need, and we must have, character in our membership."

Utleyville, Colorado

August 7.—Elder H. E. Winegar, missionary in Eastern Colorado District, came up to Utleyville and started a series of gospel meetings July 22. It was decided to hold a daily vacation Bible school in connection with the meeting. Sister Winegar, director of religious education for the district, is in charge of the school.

Handwork supplies were purchased for about fifty, which officers thought would be all we would be able to attend. But an agreeable surprise awaited the workers. To date one hundred and fifty have enrolled, and average daily attendance is one hundred and ten. Sister Winegar called for teachers, and while several responded, they were not sufficient for so many pupils. So besides overseeing the school, she found it necessary to help with the handwork.

The evening preaching services have been the best attended of any series ever held in this community. The church building has been taxed to capacity almost every night, the record crowd being last Sunday night when one hundred and forty were present. We believe the Bible school has broken down much prejudice in the community and generated interest in the minds of numbers of the citizens.

Persia, Iowa

August 5.—A branch was organized in the early days of the Reorganization at Persia, Iowa. The present church building was erected in the summer of 1883 and was dedicated in June of 1884, President Joseph Smith being present for the occasion. The one in charge of the service was an uncle of President Smith and brother of Joseph the Martyr. The service was most interesting, and Saints came from the surrounding neighborhood to fill the building.

Elders Joseph Seddon, David Chambers, and William Chambers were principal workers in the organization about 1860. They moved slowly, but kept on working when others went down. Wisdom was used at the start. There is an old saying: "Start right, and you will go right."

Persia Branch received great help from the traveling ministry, and generally the members gave good attention to the words spoken by these helpers. Their compensation in service and helps has been good. Some of the ministry have been heard to say that they have been in the field for twenty-five years and have been kept busy telling the gospel story and instructing the people in what they must do to be saved. Great has been their joy in service.

Says Brother Frederick Hansen, one of the oldest members of the branch: "When I was in the English mission, I never felt better than when I was telling the people what they must do to be saved." Today Brother Hansen continues to be a loyal member, and declares himself "in harmony with the church and its laws."

North Platte, Nebraska

August 6.—For the past two months the Saints have been very busy. The young people, especially, are preparing programs for church school and other activities. With their recreation leader, W. L. Sivits, they are planning recreation suitable for all ages and arranged to make every player feel welcome. They wish to attract their nonmember friends to their social gatherings and also to church services.

The trend of church work in North Platte and vicinity has been strengthened and made sure by the reunion workers, and Saints are taking up branch activities with renewed courage. We hope to reach all isolated members with an invitation to attend services. All visitors, too, are urged to be present.

Our meetings are as follows: First Sunday in the month, an all-day or rally meeting. Church school convenes at ten o'clock, sacrament and prayer meeting at eleven; picnic dinner at noon at North Park. Preaching service at two o'clock in the afternoon is the concluding service. On the second Sunday of the month church school and young people's program come at ten o'clock in the morning, and preaching at eleven. The following Sabbath the adults have charge of the church school program, and again there is preaching at eleven o'clock. The fourth Sunday gives the juniors opportunity to present the church school program.

A Creed

Be kind; it makes your life a June day, attracts friends, and confounds enemies.

Be joyous; there is but one life to live, and to miss having had any gratification out of it is a calamity indeed.

Be true; then you may expect others to be true to you.

Be sincere; others noting your sincerity will give their confidences and be likewise sincere with you.

Be thoughtful; the iron enters the soul in after life when we have been neglectful of those who loved us.—Byron Williams.

For Young People--

For Old People--

For the Home--

For the Church--

For Everybody

VISION

Stories for the idle hour, articles for the more serious moment, plays and stunts for the dramatic societies and young people's clubs, programs for the church activities, helpful and instructive material for the home.

With a number of new features Vision is increasing its scope of service and helpfulness.

Price per year, $1.75

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE

INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI

HAVE YOU SUBSCRIBED?

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Frederick M. Smith, Editor in Chief.
 Elbert A. Smith, Floyd M. McDowell, Associate Editors.
 Leonard J. Lea, Managing Editor.
 Leta B. Moriarty, Assistant Editor.
 Published for the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.
 Subscription price: By the year, $2.

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE
 INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI

CONTENTS

EDITORIAL:
The Power of God Unto Salvation .....	770
Jesus Taught the Gospel of Hope and Action .....	770
Publicity Agents, Attention .....	771
The Word of Wisdom Contest .....	771
The Latter Day Saint Church .....	771
Is This the Time to Attend College .....	771
ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
Dignity and Beauty in Ministry, by Elbert A. Smith .....	772
The Latter Day Saint Church, by C. B. Hartshorn .....	773
Weekly Health Letter, by A. W. Teel, M. D. ....	778
Is Now the Time for a College Education? by G. N. Briggs .....	778
Tom King: A Life History, by C. H. Porter .....	779
Security in God, by Charles H. Arven .....	782
NEWS OF CHURCH AND HOME .....	783
MISCELLANEOUS .....	792

MISCELLANEOUS

Change of Appointment

With the concurrence of the apostles in charge of the respective fields, notice is hereby given of the transfer of Elder D. E. Dowker from Southern New England District to Detroit District, local and missionary, effective September 1.

THE FIRST PRESIDENCY,
 F. M. MCDOWELL.

All-Day Meetings

Bentley, Michigan, August 30. Alma, Michigan, September 6. Whittemore, September 6. Saginaw, September 13. West Branch, September 13. Tawas City, September 20. Bay City, September 27. Midland, Michigan, October 4. By order of the district presidency and at the request of these several branches.—Hubert Case.

An all-day meeting will be held at Creola Branch, Southern Ohio, September 13, to which we invite everyone. This is one of our oldest branches, and the gathering is an annual affair. Come and meet with Brother and Sister Kirkendall for this day and bring your basket lunch. There will also be preaching on Saturday evening, September 12. We count on your presence at this gathering.—A. E. Anderton, district president.

New Addresses

Frederick C. Bevan, home address: 118 Taft Avenue, Ottumwa, Iowa; field address, 1942 Eleventh Avenue N, Moline, Illinois.

Our Departed Ones

KIRK.—Elizabeth Ann Kirk was born at LeRoy, Illinois, August 21, 1856. She was baptized a member of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints May 2, 1880, by J. T. Davies, being confirmed by J. T. Davies and W. L. Taylor. Her baptism occurred at Ross, Kansas. Her death occurred August 2, 1931, at Scammon, Kansas, where she leaves many friends.

NEAL.—Margaret Marie Neal, daughter of Mrs. Effie Irene Neal, was born February 9, 1913, at Sibley, Missouri. She was baptized June 12, 1921, by F. A. Evans. Died July 22, 1931. Leaves to mourn her mother, two brothers, Gerald E. and Willis B., and many other relatives and friends. The funeral was at Mount Washington, Missouri, the sermon being preached by Patriarch Ammon White. Interment was at Sibley.

Notice

The Independence Sanitarium and Hospital offers a three-year course in nurses' training to young women who are high school graduates.

For further information write to superintendent, G. E. Copeland, R. N.

A GOOD TIME

To Buy Farms or Homes
 in or near

Lamoni, Iowa

A. J. YARRINGTON, "THE LAND MAN"

WOULD you replace the insurance policy covering your property, at expiration with another policy in a leading company at the rate you are now paying if such action would be of financial benefit to the church?

Write us for particulars.

THE INSURANCE DEPARTMENT

Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints

P. O. Box 136.

Independence, Mo.

NOW IS A GOOD TIME TO CHANGE.

At the mid year Interest date is an advantageous time to shift your Savings Account to a safe conservative institution with a quarter century standing.

We pay 3% on Time and Savings Deposits.
 "Soliciting New Business on Our Record."

JACKSON COUNTY BANK

Independence, Mo.

"Home of Savings"

THE SAINTS' JOURNAL

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CH

Entered as second-class matter at the post office at Independence, Missouri, under Act of March 3, 1879, authorized July 21, 1921. Accepted for mailing at the special rate of postage provided in section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917; authorized July 21, 1921. Weekly at Independence, Missouri. Price $2 a year in advance.

Volume 78

Independence, Missouri, August 26, 1931

Number 34

TRUST IN THE LORD

Except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain that build it: except the Lord keep the city, the watchman waketh but in vain.—Psalm 127: 1.

DEVELOPMENT OF THE SOUL

Abel Hall

THE STORY OF FOUR BOOKS ON THE LIFE OF JESUS

Myrtle Weber

DO WE STARVE OUR CHILDREN?

C. B. Woodstock

Trust in the Lord

It is an old story that in times of prosperity people feel self-sufficient and think they have no need of religion. Full of confidence, they cease to trust God, and trust themselves. The periodic recurrence of times of privation and suffering brings them to a realization of the fact that they are weak, and that they have needs which can not be satisfied with the things of earth.

Modern writers have often ridiculed and criticized the philosophy of the ascetics who believed that when the body suffers the soul grows. Certainly their self-inflicted scourgings, their solitude, and their activities were often silly, harmful, and useless. But the essence of their belief is correct. When the body endures unavoidable suffering, the soul grows. Self-inflicted punishment is another thing.

Reared in luxury and following continuously an easy way of life, personality grows weak, flabby, and often contemptible. The outlook on life stays narrow and immature. Human sympathies and tolerance are undeveloped. Pride and egotism grow.

Some of the finest, most beautiful, and interesting personalities are those of people who have suffered. Because they know grief and pain, they can understand and sympathize with others who have likewise suffered.

Misfortune and suffering make us return to God and trust in him. If in the present difficulties men learn nothing else, it will be a benefit for them to learn to trust in God.

In recent times there were a few who warned us of approaching dangers, but their voices were lost among the exultant cries of success as the world went forward to what looked like permanent prosperity. Disaster has reached and all but overwhelmed us. We were ignorant of what was ahead. Had we listened to the voice of inspiration, we might have been forewarned and forearmed.

Despite the warnings of parents, children run into dangers and often get hurt. It is only when they have been injured that they begin to take the words of their parents seriously. Then they come running back home to be helped and healed. Grown men and women are in many larger ways like the children. Heedless of warnings, they go in dangerous ways. Hurt and humiliated, they return to God. But they may have this consolation: that, as a result of their misfortunes, they return to Him wiser and better, more humble and more sober.

L. L.

They are never alone who are accompanied by noble thoughts.—Selected.

Graceland—And a Last Moment Decision

Perhaps, like a number of others, you have been caught between the upper and nether millstones of your desire for an education and your financial circumstances. Perhaps in the moment of uncertainty as to whether you can "make it," you are hesitating before a last moment's decision. In a few days the door to college life will swing shut, and you will either be one of a regretful group on the outside, or a happy group on the inside.

A last moment decision is extremely important, and you wish to make it the right one. A decision for Graceland, or for any other college this fall, will not be a mistake. To deny yourself an opportunity that you might have would be a serious mistake, one that you will regret. A year at your time of life is precious; you may learn the value of it only when you are older and it is too late to capitalize on that value.

L. L.

Harvest Home Festival Begins to Take Form

Plans for the annual Harvest Home Festival, to be held in the Auditorium from October 6 to 11, are beginning to take definite form. With the tang of fall in the air and the near approach of school, Independence people and Harvest Festival contributors everywhere are realizing that the festival is only a little more than a month away and that there is much for everyone to do to make it the "best ever." Space in the upper and lower rooms of the Auditorium has already been assigned to a great number of organizations and industries.

Elder C. C. Koehler, festival promoter and enthusiast since its earliest years in Independence, has again volunteered his services in the interests of the agricultural half of the festival. He is frequently seen in the lower assembly room discussing space, decorative plan, and exhibit with a prospective helper. Elder J. Stanley Kelley, manager of the festival, is devoting his attention chiefly to the industrial displays which will be seen in the main part of the Auditorium.

"They're getting busy," says Brother Koehler. "Almost every day some one is at the Auditorium planning his display. The Northwest Club already has a hundred bushels of new potatoes ready for its exhibit, and there are thousands of quarts of canned fruits ready to be brought in. Right now is the busiest time of the canning season, and women are canning in their homes and in groups."

The artistic lay-out of booths this year promises to be even better than that of last. Stakes surrounding the center place have asked for a liberal amount of space and are working out some unique plans. For the first time since the festival has been housed in the Auditorium, the Stone Church will have the stage on which to exhibit its gifts.

With a giant harvest of peaches, apples, and pears on the trees of Missouri, and the gardens producing with equal liberality, an abundance of harvest gifts are assured. Everywhere, throughout many States and more distant points, generous Saints are sensing the need of the church and its institutions during the cold winter months, and are giving to the point of sacrifice.

Special booths will attract visitors, and among the new displays will be that of Eastern Kansas District. Meantime the workers are getting very busy. The Harvest Home Festival begins to take form.

L. B. M.

Christ's Invitation

A young people's prayer meeting last week impressed me with the intelligent sincerity with which at least a portion of our young people are standing for the church and resisting the invitations of the world. They are striving to bring up their lives straight and true to the Christ measure of living. Many of them are accepting the invitation spoken by our Lord: "Abide in me, and I in you. As the branch can not bear fruit of itself, except it abide in the vine; no more can ye, except ye abide in me."

"Abide in me, . . ." How soothing are the very words! Help and confidence and assurance they bring to those who heed. If, when we are tried, we remember Christ's invitation, our feelings are calmed, our wrath cooled, the hurt vanishes, and our souls are at peace.

How different would be the world if each one of us heard and accepted this divine invitation! Countless hours of time would be saved. Thousands of dollars could be put to much better use than they are at present. Gossip would be forgotten. Envy and hatred would cease to be. This would be a world of love, justice, and peace. Christ's Spirit would reign. All these things are possible if only we forget our own selfishness long enough to abide in Christ.

Remembering that we are a part with Christ in God's great plan of redeeming the world, we are impressed with the importance of the things we daily do and say; we can more accurately measure their helpful or harmful effects on those who love and trust us. And indeed we are a part. Jesus explains it this way: "I am the vine, ye are the branches: he that abideth in me, and I in him, the same bringeth forth much fruit."

Have we opened our ears? "Abide in me, and I in you."

L. B. M.

"Word of Wisdom" Contest Nears Closing Date

The "Word of Wisdom Contest" conducted by Vision has brought in during the last few days a number of excellent manuscripts which, in addition to some already received, will make some excellent material for Vision readers in the coming issues. We expect the articles to help the women of the church to see the possibilities in the way of menus for those who are anxious to use health diets in the home. More important than the prizes offered is the good that will be done.

If any have considered entering the contest, we hope that they will send their manuscripts immediately, for the contest closes September 1, and we should have the articles on or before that date.

L. L.

Dignity and Beauty in Ministry

VIII.—ADMINISTERING TO THE SICK

By Elbert A. Smith

The Place of Administration

In years gone by it frequently happened that at the close of a preaching service or prayer meeting announcement would be made that some sick person would receive administration, and the rite was attended to forthwith. That custom has fallen into disuse of later years, and for several reasons that appear to be valid, among them the following: The ceremony thus becomes a public spectacle, which it was not intended to be. The audience is mixed, quite possibly including those without faith, even those hostile to our belief in such matters, and others quite indifferent. Furthermore, the announcement often acts as a sort of suggestion, and numbers of others who had not intended asking for administration, who have made no preparation, and perhaps are not in real need of it, flock forward and ask for administration, thus detracting from the service to the one who is in real need.

Administration most frequently occurs in private homes and hospitals or sanitariums, where sick rooms naturally are. When it takes place at the church, it had best be at a special service, and in a room for that purpose, where there are present only those in sympathy with the rite and especially with the needs of those receiving administration, so that all present may be of "one heart and one mind" and "agreed together touching that one thing," that faith may be exercised and Christ come in. He himself on occasion put out from the room those who had no faith so that the right atmosphere might be attained before he would lay his hands upon the sick. (Matthew 10: 18-25.)

Order of Procedure

One elder may administer where there is necessity; but it is considered better that there shall be two or sometimes more.

Is any sick among you? Let him call for the elders of the church; and let them pray over him, anointing him with oil in the name of the Lord.—James 5: 14.

And the elders of the church, two or more, shall be called, and shall pray for, and lay their hands upon them in my name.—Doctrine and Covenants 42: 12.

The elders may kneel for prayer before administering, though such is not the invariable rule. It is best that one shall be considered in charge, generally the superior in office, or the senior in years, though there is no fixed rule in such matters and it should never be the occasion for friction. One anoints the head of the sick person with oil that has previously been blessed for such purposes and offers a prayer of anointing. This prayer should not ordinarily be long. The other elder or elders stand by with bowed heads during this petition, one of them if necessary receiving the vessel of oil after the anointing, that the one anointing may be free to lay both hands upon the head if he shall so desire. The anointing is a symbol. Enough oil should be used to decently represent the symbol, but not enough to run down upon the person or clothing of the afflicted one.

After the anointing both or all of the elders officiating lay their hands on the head of the sick person, and the one selected to act as spokesman offers the prayer of administration. This prayer is ordinarily a prayer for healing, but always qualified by the reservation that the Lord's will shall be done. In some instances where it is evident that there is not to be recovery and that death is imminent or certain, it becomes more a prayer of commendation of the soul to God's care and mercy as indicated in Doctrine and Covenants 42: 12.

The prayers offered should be fervent and from the heart, bespeaking both faith and spiritual power, but they should never be boisterous and noisy. There should be no hint of wild incantations. Ofttimes to the contrary, quietness and serenity coupled with confidence are the things needed in the sick room rather than excitement.

Caution Concerning Promises and Deportment

The service should not be so brief as to bespeak haste and lack of concern, nor should it be long and wearisome. The elders have been cautioned concerning prophesying over the sick. At such a time the desire for healing is often intense, and sympathy may move to promises that are not well founded in fact. The caution follows:

Prophesying over them that are sick in administering to them has been a fruitful source of trouble among my people. They must observe that this they are not required to do except there be a direct manifestation of the Spirit which may direct it. Pray over the sick, anoint them with oil, as commanded in the law, and leave them in my hands, that the Spirit may deal with them according to my wisdom. Many spiritual manifestations have been had. Some of these have been false, and under the operation of the law which I gave many, many years ago, those who make these false presentations are not to be feared among my people. They are not justified in permitting their human sympathies to overcome that which has been written in my scriptures. The spirit of the prophets is subject to the prophets.—Doctrine and Covenants 125: 15.

It ought not to be necessary to add that an elder called upon to administer to a woman should not go alone into her room for that purpose. Nor should the elder or elders presume to anoint or handle the bodies of women. Some have fallen into grievous difficulties by not heeding due caution in such matters.

Those who are to administer to the sick should make preparation, when time permits, of a spiritual nature, in secret prayer. The minister who goes to the bedside of the sick touches the lives of the people at a very tender point, their loves and hopes and fears are all involved; ever the hope of life and the fear of death. The occasion is such as to have a sobering effect; it calls for nearness to the Divine, and into this ministry the ordained man should put all the dignity and beauty as well as power that may be in him and at his command. Always to God shall be the glory: "The Lord shall raise them up."

(To be continued.)

True Education

Education does not mean teaching people what they do not know. It means teaching them to behave as they do not behave. It is not teaching the youth the shapes of letters and the tricks of numbers, and then leaving them to turn their arithmetic to roguery, and their literature to lust. It means, on the contrary, training them into the perfect exercise and kingly continence of their bodies and souls. It is a painful, continual, and difficult work to be done by kindness, by watching, by warning, by precept, and by praise, but above all—by example.—John Ruskin.

To be serene amid a losing fight,
To meet with equal courage dark or light,
To hate all sham, and with persistent might
To do brave deeds as in a master's sight—
This is to learn life's lesson, reach the height.

—Selected.

Development of the Soul

By Abel Hall

And I John saw that he received not of the fullness at the first, but received grace for grace; and he received not of the fullness at first, but continued from grace to grace, until he received a fullness; and then he was called the Son of God.—Doctrine and Covenants 90: 2.

Some years ago Annie Besant was taking a trip through the great Red Sea and, as is usual on board ship, those who could entertain or lecture were asked to do so. She was requested to speak, and in her lecture she used the following words relative to the soul:

The man is the soul that lives to gather experiences, that lives to subjugate external matter, that lives to unite itself with the Divine Spirit from whence it sprang.

Now if there is one thing above another that during my forty-five years' experience with the church, has made me feel very proud of the church and her teachings, it has been the fact that on all the questions relative to life here and hereafter, she has always been the one to lead the way. It could not be otherwise, if the claim we have made for her be true, that she was established by command of God for this very purpose.

I well remember that some twenty-five years ago, when we used to lay great stress upon the fact that the foundation of our work was divine revelation, the Church of England prelates over here made a great point of their belief that the canon of scripture was full, that there could not be any further revelation from Christ, and on every available occasion they would attack our men on that score.

But the teaching of the church persisted, and our men still preached with the voice of authority, declaring that revelation was the foundation stone upon which the church of Christ was to be built, and that any organization which refuted this truth, only declared themselves as being out of harmony with the declaration of the Master himself.

Imagine the joy, therefore, that came to me in the winter of 1919, when I attended a meeting in Leeds where Bishop Weldon, the Dean of Durham, made the following statement before an audience of over two thousand people:

One thing stands out very clear: the church, to be a living church, must be in touch with Christ its head, and must be in a position to have that head reveal himself to them.

Then another of our fundamental teachings was the principle of the prophetic office, and we have lived to see the State Church declare that "there is no question about the fact that the prophetic office was an established factor in the life of the early church"; and they then proceeded to recommend that provision be made for the same office to be again set in the modern church, but unfortunately, not having any means of knowing where the prophet belongs, the matter has been left in abeyance.

So we could go on and cite many more teachings where the church of Christ has led the way and the churches of the world have followed. Truly, as Brother Elbert has said in a recent article of his in the Herald, the men of this church are sent forth to teach and not to be taught. This to my mind is as it should be.

On no question of religious import has the church spoken with more definite emphasis than on the question of the soul. She says that the spirit and body are the soul of man, and she further asserts that the purpose of our present life is to help man to learn to be obedient to God in the flesh, as indeed he is prone to be in the spirit.

Annie Besant was right: "Man is the soul that lives to gather experiences, . . . that lives to unite itself with the divine Spirit from whence it sprang." And what experiences befall man? What a maze of experiences? Contrast the life of the man who in his earthly experiences does not have contact with God who made him, and the life of the man who is constantly in touch with God. Just as John said about the Christ, the latter man is in the fortunate position of showing development on the lines determined by his Creator. He shows growth, going on from grace to grace, until he is finally promised a fullness of development, namely, the fullness of the stature of the man Christ Jesus.

The development as far as we are concerned may not be as rapid as that of Christ, for we are slow in our comprehension of the divine law, and consequently slow in our progress; but the same section of the Doctrine and Covenants as quoted above tells us in the words of Christ himself:

For if you keep my commandments, you shall receive of his [the Father's] fullness and be glorified in me as I am in the Father.

The process of this development seems to our human minds to be very slow. When we think of the immeasurable time before and after our life, the short span of three score years and ten is but a small mite, and does not seem long in which to develop the extreme limits of soul capacity.

It is not, and to my mind that is the reason of the millennium, one thousand years of training under the direct supervision of the Master himself before he will be able to present us spotless before his Father.

Just think for a moment; on the face of things very little advancement has been made towards the goal of Zion during the past century; and yet to the close observer it is plainly apparent that great strides have been made, for there has come to us a knowledge born of the experiences through which the church has passed that could never have been gained through any other channel than the one through which it has been obtained.

The experiences through which I have passed, personally, have made me consider the church itself from a totally different angle than I could have done otherwise, and have made me place a still higher value on its teachings and ideals.

I verily believe that no experience comes to any man, however bitter, but that it tends to develop his soul, provided of course he keeps in touch with the One who created his soul.

God having created man, and as we are told in the Scriptures having breathed into him a part of his divine self, man is therefore, without any shadow of doubt, a part of Divinity.

Take a thimble to the seashore and dip it into the water, filling it to the brim. You have then, in a very small case, a part of the great ocean. Compared with the rolling billows of the deep, it looks very infinitesimal and would in no way cause a feeling of awe to come over you like unto the feeling one gets out in the middle of the Atlantic; but all will agree that there are the same component elements within that thimble that there are in the middle of the deep. The difference is in degree and not in the essence.

So it is with man. He has within him the Spirit of God, and the possibilities that lie within him are illimitable. This at first sight may seem to be far-fetched, but when we recall the things that Jesus did, and then recall his statement that his followers—under proper conditions—would do even greater things than he did, we feel sure that we have the authority of our Master for our declaration.

The human mind, even without any claim to having divine power to aid it, can do many wonderful things. Some time ago I saw a party of Japanese, one of whom claimed that he was teaching his pupils the power of mind over matter. He had two or three young ladies with him and two or three young men. He took hold of about six glass bottles, broke them up into pieces, and laid them down on the floor. Then he had one of the young men strip himself down to the waist and lie with his bare back on the broken glass. The teacher then placed a large stone on the chest of the youth, and taking hold of a large hammer he proceeded to break the stone into pieces. When the young man arose from the glass, there were no cuts whatever on him. He then placed two swords on end, with the sharp edge turned upwards, and to show that they had a very keen edge he sharpened a lead pencil on them. Immediately afterwards one of the ladies stood with her bare feet upon the swords and walked off again without any hurt.

The late Elder J. E. Meredith once took a party of us on a visit to the Blind Institute in Birmingham. We were taken into a very large hall, at the upper end of which stood a huge pipe organ. On each side of the hall were recesses, each containing a desk and chair. Seated on these chairs were blind boys, in front of whom were huge books of music in the Braille type. These boys were reading the music with their fingers. They would memorize the whole piece of music, from beginning to end, and would then go to the pipe organ and play the piece through.

This may not seem quite so wonderful, however, as the next thing we saw: About twenty girls, ranging from twelve to fifteen years of age, were lined up in a row—all of them, remember, stone blind—and in the center of the hall, about forty paces away from them, stood one girl, stiffly erect. On the right of the hall stood a lady teacher who gave out several quick commands, and we were astounded to see these blind girls, one after the other, run to the one in the center and together form a pyramid.

No one will deny the many wonderful improvements, both in the way of travel, home comforts, engineering, etc., some of which are almost past comprehension to the uninitiated, and many of which would most certainly scare the lives out of our grandparents, were they permitted to come out of their graves for a while. I feel certain that if such a thing were possible, they would be so afraid of what they saw around them that they would wish to be back in mother earth once more. But to us, all these things are commonplace. What is the reason? Our modern minds have just developed along with the new scientific wonders, and we are prone to take these things for granted.

A few years ago I had the privilege of visiting the home of Ann Hathaway, in Stratford-on-Avon, and we were shown many things of great interest in connection with the life of both Ann and William Shakespeare. One very small thing caught my attention. It stood in the middle of an old oak table right opposite the huge fireplace. It was a brass implement about nine inches in height, was shaped like a pair of pincers, and stood upright on a little brass stand. The attendant noticed my curiosity, and asked, "Do you know what that is, sir?"

to which I replied, "No, I must say I am at a loss to make out what it is." He then told me that in the days of Shakespeare this little brass affair was used for holding the dried rush, which, with the aid of the tinder box close by, was used for giving light to the occupants of the house. One end would be sticking out of the top of the pincerlike arrangement and would be the only means of giving light. He said it sometimes happened that the inmate would desire to have a little more light; then he would bring the two ends of the rush together at the top, and they would both burn together. He further explained that this was the origin of the statement that men sometimes burned the candle at both ends.

Just think of the development of artificial light since those days! How many of us would have the patience in these days to sit out the dark winter evenings with no other means of illumination than the old rush light? No! for even our forefathers were not content to hang onto this poor means of seeing after the sun had gone down. They soon got busy and thought out the candle, which took the place of the rush and gave far better service. Others advanced still further and worked out a way and means of purifying the oil taken from the bowels of the earth, and we were given the parafine oil lamp.

I have distinct recollections of seeing our oil lamp set up on the corner of the mantelpiece, and can remember, too, when experiments were made with a little fine brass wire worked over the top of the wick, a method which made the yellowish light turn into a much whiter one.

Later still we had gas introduced into our homes and many of us will have vivid memories of the fish tail burner and its greasy, oozing light. Then some one had a brilliant idea of trying out the brass wire arrangement again on this messy burner, and we were astounded to find that it improved the thing wonderfully.

Meanwhile other brains thought out the Ramie Silk Mantle, and when this commodity was placed upon the market the price of a mantle which can be bought now for five cents, was seven shillings, six pence ($1.80.)

Electric light is fast taking the place of gas in our homes, and now we have some scientific men telling us that in some one's time we shall be able to harness the sunlight, place it in caskets, and use it in our homes for lighting, etc.

How much this sounds at present like an Arabian Nights story, but who among us is daring enough to say that it will never happen? We are bound to admit that much stranger things than this have actually happened, but as I have already stated, they are commonplace things with us now, and are not thought of as being in the line of miracles.

What the brain conceives to be the best thing possible now, because of present experiences and environment, will most probably within the next decade or two be considered of little value. The brain, in using that particular thing, will have seen the possibilities of still greater service with a more perfect instrument, and during actual use will also have found a way of developing that instrument to greater perfection.

So much for what the human can do, without making any claims whatever to divine assistance. As Latter Day Saints we can justly claim without any egotism—if the foundations of our work be true—that there has been given to us as a people a glimpse of the possibilities that lie within the reach of man who is constantly in touch with Divinity.

To speak of these things to the world frequently brings nothing but ridicule, but we are here reminded of the statement of Paul in 1 Corinthians 2: 14, 15:

But the natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God: for they are foolishness unto him: neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned. But he that is spiritual judgeth all things, yet he himself is judged of no man.

The man of the world will often tell a religious man that he is a crank, that he thinks himself better than others, etc., but the fact still remains that in a moment of crisis, this same man of the world will turn to the religious man for aid. There is something about a really religious man that demands the respect of his fellow men, no matter how much his fellow men may deny that fact. It was the same in the time of Christ. There was a compelling influence about Jesus that made men respect him. He knew that his mission was to demonstrate to his fellows that he had in his grasp a divine power; and he wished others to learn that secret. Through his obedience to divine law, the power that emanated from him was divine. It was a real power, so much so that when the woman touched his outer garment, that real power cleansed her body and soul. No evil could exist in contact with him.

He demonstrated a perfect life made possible through his obedience to a perfect law. He showed the possibilities that lay within the reach of all men. Through the development of his soul in his earthly life, he was able to heal the sick, give sight to the blind, speech to the dumb, and, most wonderful of all, he raised the dead.

I firmly believe that the life of Christ was fully intended to be the exact pattern of what man can be, or the words of our reading from section 90 are very misleading indeed:

If you keep my commandments, you shall receive of his fullness and be glorified in me as I am in the Father.

I am satisfied that the purpose of God is that man will learn to develop the soul powers, that he may be able to subdue the material side of his nature, and reach out all the time to the spiritual things that are offered from on high, so that he too can heal the sick, give eyesight to the blind, and even raise the dead. Why not?

God is a spirit, and without doubt he draws those who are spiritual as a magnet draws steel, and just as steel having once been in contact with the magnet, itself becomes a magnetic influence, so is it with the soul in contact with God.

Once I went into a big engineering firm in the south of England and was taken into the room where the electric plant was at work. Huge dynamos were sending out their buzzing noise, and I became intensely interested in the process of electric generation. I was instructed that under no provocation whatever was I to put out my hand and touch any one of the dynamos. How like it was to the great Creator of all things, and how much like to the use and misuse of spiritual things.

The lesson I got out of it, however, was a good one. I thought of the little sets of batteries that were brought into contact with the huge dynamos, made to partake of its vitalizing force. They in turn would give out that same force to the motor car, the electric lamp, and a multitude of other things; and when it had spent its power, it would be brought back again in contact with the dynamo, to be once more filled with energy, in order that it might be of further service.

Should the battery, after being filled with power, be left at one side without being used to electrify the car or the lamp, it would lose its energy just the same, but it would not have been of any service.

God is the creator of the soul; that soul which will keep in touch with him shall receive power—divine power—and that soul in turn will send out its influence all around. The more service it performs, the more will it develop itself, until in the end its capacity for receiving and giving out will be infinite. It will receive a fullness and be glorified.

MANCHESTER, ENGLAND.

Beauty is not found in things but in souls; happiness is not found in material environment, paltry or splendid, but in the power of the personality that rises above it, that secretes a quality of everlastingness from the reality upon which things lean.—Shannon.

Weekly Health Letter

Number Eight

The Nose and Its Relation to Health and Disease.—6

By A. W. Teel, M. D., Church Physician

A crooked septum is frequently the cause of a chronic inflammation of the lining membrane of the nose, which frequently comes under the high-sounding name of chronic rhinitis, turgescence or intumescent rhinitis, which by its name indicates a swelling, or state of being swollen. This condition partly affects the "swell bodies," which have been described in a former article, and interferes with the breatheway of the nose. In such cases, the patient complains of attacks of nasal obstruction characterized by a mucous discharge, and the nose is free and open on one side at one time and then changed to the other side. When the individual lies down, the side nearest the bed is the one that is obstructed. This often alarms the patient and interferes with the final adjustment control of the blood vessel supplying the tissues covering the turbinated bones.

Nose bleed is frequently complained of, and the nasal cavities are subject to an excessive evaporation of the secretion accumulated upon it, producing dried crusts, and when these are removed, an injury to the underlying mucous membrane is the result. Cough may be present, due to an associated bronchitis or inflammation of the larynx. If this is allowed to continue, new tissue is formed and will finally produce a more or less permanent obstruction. A great deal of good may be done by palliative treatment, which may relieve the distressing symptoms and the heavy secretions, but practically in all cases a person should consult a competent rhinologist (nose specialist) and have the predisposing causes removed. This is usually accomplished by the correction of the deviated (crooked) septum. If this condition is allowed to continue, soft, watery, grayish, shiny tumors may form, called polypus, which may vary in size and may be of a sufficient number to fill all the nasal chamber, extending forward almost entirely outside the nostril, or extending down, posteriorly, into the throat.

These tumors, unless properly looked after, will fill all available space of the nose and will require surgical attention. In order to bring about the proper cure, it is frequently necessary to remove all the infected area so that it may be properly drained. This requires a great deal of cooperation between the physician and the patient for several months, as it is necessary for him to keep the patient under strict observation.

Tom King: A Life History

PART EIGHT

By C. H. Porter

(Continued from the Herald, August 19, page 781.)

Tom Makes Progress

The year with Mr. Nicholas was a profitable one. Tom was industrious, energetic, and a good farmer. He was with a good family, and his daughter was there also. She was attending school and was being well taught in simple, household duties by Mrs. Nicholas.

Before the close of the season he desired, if possible, to secure a piece of land. All homesteads were taken, and very little railroad land was for sale. A friend told him of a forty-acre tract that had been bought on contract and let go back.

He procured a description of the land, went to the local agent, and asked if it was for sale. He said, "No, that is not for sale, and we have none in that vicinity."

It was suggested to Tom that possibly the agent was holding it for some one else. Acting upon this suggestion, he wrote to the general agent asking if that tract was for sale, stating that if it was he was prepared to purchase it.

A few days later the local agent called him into his office and said, "King, I was mistaken about that piece of land. The general agent has written me to make out a contract for it to you. It will cost fifteen dollars per acre, and you will have to pay twenty per cent of the purchase money when the contract is made."

Tom said, "All right. I am prepared to accept the contract now."

The agent could do no other than make the contract and accept the money.

This was a good piece of property and proved profitable to Tom. A large portion of it had been previously cultivated, so it was, when cleaned up, ready for a crop the next season.

Tom had a small cottage built on the place, and when he left the home of Mr. Nicholas he fitted it up for his own use. He lived there until he sold it, about two years later. With the money saved and the price received for the forty acres, he purchased an eighty-acre farm.

During this time he had not procured a suitable home for his daughter. Since leaving the home of Mr. Nicholas, he had boarded her at two different homes. Neither had proved entirely satisfactory. One day a neighbor said, "Tom, I can tell you who would like to have Rosa." He named the family and said, "They would like to have her, but I am not sure it would be a good place. The woman is a cousin of mine. I know her well. They would feed and look after her well, but they would be strict and probably work her hard and would charge you for what they did for her."

Tom made careful inquiry, then visited the family. They had a nice farm home, were well to do, and had no children. He found things very much as his neighbor had described. The lady said she would like to have Rosa if she might be allowed to teach her to work and to have her under proper control. She also stated what money consideration she thought would be fair.

Tom said he was willing to agree to the terms. He wanted Rosa to be obedient. He was sure she would be. He was willing to pay what the lady thought was right. She might purchase any clothing the child might need, and he would foot the bills.

This was satisfactory to all the interested parties. Rosa had a good home and splendid care. She was well fed and clothed, taught good behavior and many things which a growing child needs to know. She remained with this family until Tom was able later to take her into a home of his own. She evinced much affection for these good people, and her father always felt himself indebted to them in a way that money could not repay. They also learned to love the motherless girl, who so cheerfully responded to their teaching and made their home more pleasant by her presence.

During these two or three years Tom had taken an active part in political affairs which more particularly affected the farmers as a class. The country was comparatively new. The land was being brought into cultivation rapidly. Homes were being established where a few years before was open prairie. Good crops were being raised. Prices for farm products were low. Transportation rates were high. Money was scarce. Aliens were permitted to vote upon declaration of intention to become citizens. "Machine politics" were prevalent. They had the open ballot. Many became dissatisfied and believed that the "machine" was responsible for many political evils. Meetings were held to protest against some of the more glaring abuses. Tom took an active part in the meetings but had no desire for office. He was outspoken in his denunciation of what he considered to be abuses of the producing classes. He was sent as a delegate to both county and state conventions and was considered a good representative of the farming interests of his community.

In a little more than three years from the time he arrived in Nebraska the second time, Tom had bought him a farm, identified himself with the farming interests of the community, and was in a fair way of being prospered as a citizen.

Soon after this he sought the acquaintance and companionship of a woman of proper age, and in due course of time marriage resulted. The lady was highly esteemed by the community in which she lived, and it was not without considerable opposition and rivalry that he was successful in his suit. This opposition was made more pronounced from the fact that her deceased husband had been a member and officer in the Latter Day Saint Church and was also a Civil War veteran.

Tom was considered antagonistic to the Latter Day Saints, and her late husband's comrades did not approve of her being married to an Englishman, although he had become an American citizen by naturalization.

Tom met the opposition with determination and vigor. He knew of no reason why the Civil War should make any difference, especially as he was conscious of the fact that most Englishmen favored the cause of the North and welcomed the liberation of the slaves as heartily as did any citizens of the States. He had no cause to change his attitude toward the Saints, as he had always treated them with courtesy and fairness.

His marriage brought Tom in close touch with the Saints, and he had good opportunity to study them at close range. Being a student by nature and withal of strong religious views, he took interest in seeking to understand why and how they differed from other religious people. He attended their meetings, talked with their elders, and finally concluded that they were a greatly misunderstood people.

They believed in continued revelation, a divinely called ministry, a perfect system of church government, a manifestation of spiritual gifts, including prophecy, visions, divine healing by the laying on of hands and prayer, the blessing of children, and other things spoken of in the New Testament, but which seemed to have been lost to the church through disuse, loss, or change.

When Tom had obtained a good understanding of their position, he could see no reason why they should be stigmatized as heretics or teachers of false doctrine. So far as confounding them with the Utah people was concerned, it was to him either the result of ignorance or a matter of bearing false witness against a neighbor.

After a careful examination of the matter, he felt called to accept of part and lot with them. He did so understandingly, for he felt within his soul that he would be called upon to defend the doctrine of Christ as taught by an unpopular people. He would fain have excused himself, but conscience forbade him. He had for many years acknowledged God in all his ways, trusting that his paths might be directed of him. Now he felt the divine direction. He decided the matter quickly. He made a confidant of no one, but spoke to Elder Roberts, telling him he felt prepared to unite with them, and was baptized by him in February, 1884. He took an active part in church work at once, and in January, 1885, was ordained to the office of elder.

Tom as an Elder

Tom was invited to begin work as a minister at a point about twenty-five miles from home, but he preferred to speak to his neighbors and friends first, so by invitation of the pastor he preached at home the first Sunday following his ordination. He chose as his text, "If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, that giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not; and it shall be given him."—James 1: 5.

He used the following argument: All men are invited, for all lack wisdom, more especially in reference to spiritual things. God giveth to all men liberally, and doth not upbraid. Therefore, we ought to ask of him in faith, nothing doubting, in order that we may receive.

His friends were interested, for they recognized the sincerity of purpose by which he was actuated. He wrote a letter to his old friend, Mr. Nicholas, telling him that after careful consideration he had found that the Latter Day Saints were a good people, but greatly misunderstood, and that he had united with the church, stating his reasons for so doing. Mr. Nicholas wrote a very hasty and ill-advised reply.

Tom was surprised and disappointed. He supposed his position would at least have appealed to his friend's religious instincts, but it did not, and instead he vented his own disappointment at the step Tom had taken in language that was very intemperate for a Christian minister. Tom could have easily shown the illogical position assumed, but after due consideration he said nothing, and correspondence ceased between them.

Tom's service as a local minister was in demand. He responded to calls at various places within reasonable distance. He was still farming but felt that having accepted ordination it was necessary for him to prepare for more active service.

To be qualified for this he applied himself diligently to the study of religious history, especially as touching the differences leading to division in ecclesiastical systems, and the reasons given for what was called, "The Great Latter Day Work."

He studied the Scriptures carefully and systematically. He procured helps and took the matter up by subjects. When he had a subject under consideration, he examined everything bearing upon it by all the writers. In this way he became thoroughly conversant with the principles of the gospel. His memory was good, and the Bible soon became an open book to him. He followed no man in his preaching, but preached the doctrine as he found it recorded.

He had joy in the presentation of the doctrine and had no fear of opposition, for he was always prepared to meet it by saying, "It is written," and quoting from the Bible itself in defense of his position. He was soon looked upon by the church authorities as a safe man.

While he was yet a farmer, a minister of a popular church gave notice that he would hold some meetings in the neighborhood and give some reasons why they could not agree with the Latter Day Saints. Tom attended the meetings and took notes. At the conclusion of the series he announced that he would follow and examine the gentleman's arguments the following Sunday, at the same place, both morning and evening. He invited all who had been present, if possible, to attend.

The next Sunday he was greeted with a full house. The gentleman and his congregation were present, and the whole neighborhood was in evidence. The matter was carefully presented. Credit was given for the manner in which the subject had been treated. "But," said Tom, "the gentleman told us that provided the Latter Day Saints accept the gospel of Jesus Christ in good faith, and live by it, he was not prepared to say that they would be unsaved, although they had accepted an erroneous belief that Joseph Smith was a true prophet. Now," said Tom, "let us try the case." He then stated in plain language what constituted the gospel of Christ, and said the gentleman was right in declaring the gospel to be "the power of God unto salvation." He showed that the gospel of Christ was the basis of the faith of the Latter Day Saints. It was not a question of whether Joseph Smith was a true or false prophet, but it was a question of faith in God and the Lord Jesus Christ, "but," said he, "if Joseph Smith was indeed a true prophet, and God sent him to the people with a message of life and salvation, giving him authority to organize a church, and to restore the priesthood as of old, what can be said of religious people who reject his testimony, and seek to destroy the work he set himself, by divine authority, to do?"

This point caused a good deal of comment, and the minister called on Tom and said he would like to modify his statement. Tom told him he was at liberty to do so. He offered him pencil and paper and invited him to make any modification he pleased. The gentleman tried to write something which would suit him better, but finally concluded to let it stand unaltered. "But," said he, "my members object seriously to the way it is stated."

Tom said, "Are they not your own words?" He said they were. "Well," said Tom, "is that your position?" He said, "I don't know how to modify it and make it satisfactory to myself." Tom said, "I think you are right. I believe Joseph Smith was called and divinely directed to do this work. If we are mistaken in this, we still have the gospel and this is to us, as to all others, the power of God unto salvation. We accept the testimony. It does not take us from Christ. You reject the testimony of Joseph Smith but accept that of a man that never claimed divine authority. We have all the truth that you have accepted, and by that truth you hope to be saved. You can not say other than what you did, and yet you would like to modify it. Why?" He replied, "Brother King, I will not modify it. Our people do not like it. I am sorry I made the statement, but I can not change it."

After a while Tom found it impossible to manage the farm and respond to the demands made upon him as a minister, so he made the necessary arrangements and moved with his family to town.

He was serving the church locally with no financial support, but with the income from the farm, being ably assisted by his wife and by his personal efforts industrially, he was able to maintain the family in comfort.

In about two years he was called into the active service as a missionary. He had felt that this call would be eventually made, and had prepared himself as thoroughly as possible for the work. He was instructed to go forth without waiting for financial support, trusting that he might be blessed in his ministry and assisted, so far as his needs required, by those with whom he labored.

(To be continued.)

The Journey

When Death, the angel of our higher dreams,
Shall come, far-ranging from the hills of light,
He will not catch me unaware; for I
Shall be, as now, communing with the dawn.
He will not need to drag me from the night,
For I shall make all haste to follow him
Along the valley, up the misty slope
Where life lets go and Life at last is born:
There I shall find the dreams that I had lost
On toilsome earth, and they will guide me on,
Beyond the mists, unto the farthest height.
I shall not grieve, except to pity those Who can not hear the songs that I shall hear!

—Thomas Curtis Clark.

CHURCH WORK AND SERVICES

The Story of Four Books on the Life of Jesus

By Myrtle Weber

The following is taken from the new second year Junior quarterly which will be ready for use in October. The year's lessons will present Jesus and His Teachings for Juniors. The first quarter beautifully portrays the early life of Jesus, and this lesson introduces the men who wrote the four Gospels.

So inspiring and valuable are the lessons that it seems very necessary for every Junior boy and girl to have a copy for home study. Even adults and young people would appreciate these lessons.
—C. B. W.

"The Gospel of Mark"

Before we go on with our stories, would you not like to know how the first four books in the New Testament were written which tell the story of the life of Jesus?

Do you remember the story of Jesus in the garden of Gethsemane? You remember he had gone into the garden to pray; it was in the evening, just after he had eaten the Last Supper with his disciples. While Jesus prayed in the garden, some men and soldiers armed with clubs and spears had gathered, and outside the garden they awaited the signal to advance and take their captive. When at last Jesus had finished praying, he came again to his disciples, and as they stood on the slope of the hill they heard heavy steps coming closer and closer and saw spear points gleam in the flickering light of torches. Majestically Jesus stood and awaited the on-coming mob; but his disciples trembled with fear, and one by one they disappeared until he was left alone.

Jesus was alone with the angry mob, for his disciples had left him; but there was one young man who followed. Turn to Mark 14: 50-52 and read about this young man. It is generally believed that this young man was Mark, author of the so-called "second Gospel," which, in reality, is actually the first Gospel. Mark was the first one to think of the idea of making a written record of the works and words of Jesus.

Mark was not one of the twelve disciples who followed Jesus when he was here on earth; it may have been that Mark never saw Jesus before his terrible night. But Mark's mother was a believer in Christ, and no doubt had often told her son about this man Jesus. It was in the home of Mark's mother that Jesus ate the Last Supper with his disciples. In all probability Mark was in bed in the room downstairs, and as he lay there in the quiet of the night he may have overheard the wonderful words of Jesus to his disciples, and the singing of the hymn. As he heard the men leaving the house, he had a desire to follow them. Jumping out of bed and quietly making his way out of the house, he followed the little group to the garden. Whether Mark saw the trial and crucifixion of Jesus we have no way of knowing, but we do know that in the years that followed he worked for a time with Paul and Barnabas and later with Peter. No doubt he gathered the stories for his book from what he heard Peter tell about Jesus. Mark's book was the first written record of the life of Jesus. It was called "The Gospel According to Mark." (Look up the meaning of the word gospel in the dictionary.) This book was written some twenty years after the death of Jesus.

"The Gospel of Matthew"

For about ten years Mark's book was the only life of Jesus. The next writer of importance was a Jew named Matthew. It is believed that Matthew, the author of this book, is the same Matthew who had been a tax collector and the one whom Jesus called to be one of his disciples. (Matthew 9: 9; 10: 3.)

Matthew, no doubt, had read Mark's book, and as he read he probably thought: "Now if this book had many scriptural, or Old Testament, references in it to show that the words of the old prophets had been fulfilled, it would be more valuable." So Matthew set about to write a gospel, or a book of good news, for the Jewish people. We find many of the stories of Mark retold in Matthew's book; and Matthew, having been one of Jesus' disciples, tells some stories that Mark did not. Matthew's book was probably published not many years after Mark's.

"The Gospel of Luke"

Paul, an early Christian missionary, known in the New Testament as the Apostle Paul, was often ill, and there traveled with him a Greek doctor named Luke. In some of his writings Paul refers to his doctor as the "beloved physician." Now it happened that Luke had a friend named Theophilus. Luke had heard the beautiful story of Jesus from the lips of Paul and other missionaries, and he thought that his friend Theophilus would be interested in the story. Luke read the book of Mark, but he realized that as the story of Jesus was there told it would not interest his friend. He read the book of Matthew, but that, he thought, had been written for the Jews and contains many references to the history of their nation; Theophilus is not a Jew, and he will not be interested in Matthew's story. He wanted his friend to know the story of Jesus, so he undertook to write another story of the life of Jesus in a way that he knew would interest his friend. Turn to Luke 1: 1-4 and read how Luke introduces his story to his friend Theophilus.

Luke tells many interesting happenings in the life and works of Jesus that both Mark and Matthew do not, and some that they tell Luke has left unwritten. Luke tells the beautiful story of the angel's message to Zacharias and to Mary, but the other authors have left it unsaid. On the other hand, the story of Jesus walking on the sea is told by both Mark and Matthew but not by Luke. Luke tells us more of Jesus' home life, of his obedience to his parents, of his friendship for all people whether they were rich or poor, than do the other authors. Through his book he has preserved for us Jesus' most important message: As Jesus is the brother and Savior of all, so he teaches that we are to be friends and helpers of one another.

The Gospel of Luke came out shortly after Matthew's did, in about the year 80 A. D. The story of the life of Jesus is beautifully told in Luke's book, and even today many folk consider it the most beautiful book in the world.

"The Gospel of John"

Some years later a man named John wrote another story of Jesus. Many of the believers and followers of Jesus who were alive when Jesus taught had died, Jerusalem had been captured by the Romans, and the few scattered Christians that remained were discouraged and were about to give up their belief in Jesus Christ and to return to their old ways of worshipping. John wanted to help these Christians to keep their faith in Jesus as the Christ, the Son of God, and to help them to continue to live as he had taught; to do this he wrote his book. It is believed that the John who wrote this fourth Gospel was John the beloved disciple, the son of Zebedee, one of the fishermen whom Jesus called to follow him. John had worked and walked and talked with Jesus, and, of course, he was anxious that the people should not forget the teachings of Jesus and that they should understand them.

John's book is not so much a story of the life of Jesus as the other Gospels are, but it is like a series of sermons. In each of these sermons are found the stories and lessons that Jesus taught. John did more than just to tell the stories of the Master; he went on to explain them so that the people would understand them. He does not tell as many of the stories as do the other writers, but those that he does tell he also explains; then, too, he tells some things that the others do not, for John was with Jesus and he would be very apt to know things that the other writers did not. His account of the trial and death of Jesus is probably more accurately and completely told, for he witnessed it. As Jesus hung upon the cross, it was to this John, his beloved disciple, whom he gave his mother; and John took her into his home and cared for her. Read John 19: 25-27.

Matthew, you remember, wrote his book for the Jews; John wrote his for the Gentile Christians. The Gospel of John was the latest of our four gospels. It was written about the year 100 A. D.

Do We Starve Our Children?

By C. B. Woodstock

We were deeply moved recently by a plea from a teacher of juniors who informed us that their branch had decided they could no longer supply the children with quarterlies. She had a group of energetic girls who had been making excellent use of their quarterlies and were happy in their class work. But now, with a quarterly for the teacher only, she felt seriously handicapped. In the lesson hour it took all the time to cover only a small portion of the lesson, for she had to call the facts and develop all the ideas before the class was ready for any real teaching which affects life. Her girls were losing interest.

What a tragedy! The quarterlies cost only a little over one cent a week, and yet they are denied to growing, ambitious, hungry minds! I learned that this class contributes more than 25 cents per Sunday in the offering, more than twice enough to have bought quarterlies for each member, and yet the one help prepared for them by the church is denied. We question if the policy is wise from any standpoint. It is an attempt at economy which is liable to result disastrously to the growth in knowledge and loyalty of the coming membership of the church. To refuse quarterlies to our students will break down such habits of study as have been implanted in the past and will seriously handicap our progress in education in the church.

The day demands intensive effort in the building of personality and character, in teaching the fundamental truth of the gospel of Christ. Today, as never before, we need the best possible quarterly lessons, and we need them consistently studied and effectively taught in every class.

New quarterlies will be ordered for the year in September for use beginning in October. Let us not rob our children of the best help we can give them!

NEWS OF CHURCH AND HOME

Address all news and letters to Editors of the Herald, Box 237, Independence, Missouri. Correspondents are requested to make their letters brief. The Editors reserve the right, on account of space limitations, to shorten all letters as circumstances require.

Onset Reunion

The economic depression which has fastened itself upon the world, was no doubt, responsible for the slight decrease in attendance at the Onset reunion this year. However, those in attendance were adequately repaid, and have no doubt returned to their respective branches with knowledge increased, hope brightened, faith strengthened, and zeal sharpened.

The services of the special workers, Apostle R. S. Budd, and Elder B. Hewitt, of Toronto, Ontario, were supplemented by those of a corps of willing workers, namely: Kindergarten, Florence Gordan; junior church, Wallace Sinclair; reunion school, Sisters Z. Hewitt and Ruth Patterson; young girls' group, Lula Romig; recreational activities, S. L. Fisher.

The Onset reunion grounds are well equipped for summer church work and include a large tabernacle with a seating capacity of about six hundred; a small tabernacle "the annex" for the juniors, consisting of two rooms, divided by folding doors, and having a seating capacity of about one hundred and fifty; a large commissary building; a kindergarten, a store, two cement tennis courts, a volley-ball court, a ball diamond, and a raft with diving board and chute. About eighty cottages are owned by members of the church on the fifty-odd acres which comprise the grounds.

The reunion convened Friday, July 24, and ended August 2, a shorter period than formerly. At the opening session Apostle R. S. Budd and the district presidency, William Patterson, D. F. Joy, and W. A. Sinclair, were chosen to preside, and empowered to complete the organization; secretary, F. S. Dobbins; treasurer, D. F. Joy; musical director, Miss Helen Combs; census taker, Georgie Spinnett; reporter, William Patterson, and sexton, Elder Bradford Harrington.

Evangelist G. W. Robley had charge of the morning adult prayer services of the reunion, and Elder B. Hewitt had charge of the young people's group prayer services at the same hour. It is very encouraging to hear expressions of loyalty and devotion to Christ and the church from such youthful lips. May the future find them in a greater and more mutual service for the church.

Though the general attendance was small, a large percentage of those encamped took advantage of the classes conducted by Elder B. Hewitt in "Doctrine," and Apostle R. S. Budd on "The Doctrine and Covenants" at 10 to 11 and 11 to 12 daily.

During the week-day evenings a series of special missionary sermons on "The Restoration" was delivered by Apostle R. S. Budd, Doctor W. A. Sinclair, Evangelist G. W. Robley, and Elder Benjamin Hewitt. These meetings increased in interest and attendance, and the Saints were glad to have reviewed the story of the Restoration and its message.

The attendance on the closing day, Sunday, August 2, was very large, and the services were of a high order. According to many, the sacrament service was one of the finest, conducted from an organizational, ritualistic, and meaningful viewpoint. At the eleven o'clock hour Apostle R. S. Budd made an appeal for the maintenance of those high standards and ideals which are the nature of the message of Christ. The closing sermon of the reunion was preached by Elder Hewitt at two o'clock in the afternoon, and a large congregation appreciated his fundamental gospel sermon. Immediately following this service, Elder Bradford Harrington united Brother Taylor and Sister E. Norton in marriage. During the day two were baptized and a baby blessed.

The reunion story would be incomplete without mention of the untiring efforts of a group of women who by their united industry make rich annual contributions to the reunion grounds, which totals approximately eight hundred dollars for the past few years. This year a gift of a fine belfry, designed by the church architect, Henry Smith, and erected by Brother Howard Reynolds, was presented to the stewards of the grounds through their president, M. C. Fisher. The old bell which has called thousands to service and meals from its exposed place on the commissary building, was, a few days before the reunion, exalted to its rightful place on the large tabernacle, where its elevation enhances its appeal to the worshiper.

The music under the direction of the district chorister included numbers from the combined district choir, solos by Job Njeim, Mrs. Florence Simmons, Miss Helen Combs, and Mrs. Doris Foster, and violin solos by Roy Squire and Clinton Barton.

The reunion adjourned to meet in 1932 at a time designated by the reunion committee, and for a period of fourteen days.

South Dakota-Wyoming Reunion

Roads fine, weather fair, and spirits high, marked the opening of the South Dakota-Wyoming reunion, held at Spearfish, South Dakota, August 2 to 9. Sacrament service at ten o'clock Sunday morning was followed by preaching by Brother Fred Cousins. His theme was "Counting the Cost," and he emphasized the necessity for determining if we are able to finish that which we begin. "When we give our lives to Christ," he said, "we should determine if we are willing and able to endure unto the end." Brother Cousins' sermons are made the more effective by his living example.

Apostle F. Henry Edwards, arriving in the afternoon, gave an informal talk on the fatherhood of God, our relation to him and to our fellow men. His evening sermon was on "Effective Prayer." Brother Edwards' whole-hearted enthusiasm in work and play was an inspiration to us.

Class work was had mornings and afternoons during the following week. Brother Edwards had charge of the adults, Hazel Willard of the young people, and Sybil Jackson, the juniors.

Tuesday morning the young people had breakfast and prayer service in the woods.

Elder Arthur Oakman arrived from the North Platte reunion Tuesday afternoon and assisted in the class work the following days. He delivered several good sermons during the course of the reunion, and, when one considers the quality of his sermons now, it is but natural to wonder what they will be ten years from now if he continues his rapid improvement.

Friday evening Brother Oakman gave an attractive concert, but due to a sudden, violent storm and lack of advertising, the attendance was small. Sunday afternoon it was repeated to a full house. Brother Edwards was the speaker on both occasions. Other special musical numbers during the reunion were given by Arthur Oakman, Hazel Willard, and Sister Roy Truman. Sister Bertha Newton was organist.

At the close of the reunion the family circle of Sister Paul Dobbins was completed when her husband and five children consecrated their lives to Christ and entered the waters of baptism. Two other boys and a little girl were also baptized into the church. Elder Arthur Oakman officiated. A beautiful confirmation service followed, when the Spirit of God was present to all.

Plans for a reunion next year were placed in the hands of a committee composed of Fred Cousins, chairman, Roy Truman, and Horace Hartshorn.

The reunion was marked by the earnestness and devotion of all who attended. The spirit of love and fellowship prevailed. While the leaders in charge and the material presented were to a large degree responsible for the success of the reunion, in the last analysis it was due to the inquiring, humble attitude and previous preparation on the part of the laymembers.

Missionary Discoveries in the Mountains of Tennessee and West Virginia

The last week Mrs. Peterson and I spent in Central Michigan District was largely occupied by such activities as farewell parties. We left many true friends in that field, and we hope that this letter to the Herald will serve both as a chronicle of recent travels and as an answer to the many letters we have received since leaving our northern field.

During my assignment to Central Michigan, Elders F. C. Bevan and Arthur Oakman did good service. Their sermons were helpful, and they baptized several. Many were also baptized by the local priesthood. Together general and local officers worked to give the district an above-the-average record. At one time I organized a contest between the two priesthoods which resulted in a large amount of good work being performed. Throughout the district unified services were being held, and we were, I think, the first district to put over this form of service. I find that several churches of other denominations have, this summer, put the same order into effect. Our district was even ahead of the General Conference action regarding the unified service. It certainly works well wherever tried, preaching first merging into the Sunday school with no intermission. The entire service ends at 11:30 a. m. The young people come to preaching, and the older people stay to Sunday school.

Coming to Bristol, Tennessee, we passed along the line between Kentucky on the west and West Virginia and the old dominion on the east. We were often detoured, first into one State and then into the other over mountain passes. The relating of travel tragedies over these roads disturbed my wife, who was just learning to drive the car. We succeeded, however, in reaching our destination in safety, and are thankful for protection in several near accidents.

To people of the prairies, these mountain pikes, three thousand to six thousand feet in the air, seem of dizzy height. To look down several thousand feet from what seems to be the edge of a cloud and only about eighteen inches back, gives no feeling of safety. There were many hairpin curves around mountain peaks where we met trucks or commercial travelers bent on getting somewhere at once and on our side of the road. The sounding of our auto horn prevented several head-on collisions up in "sky land" where only the resurrection would have located us lodged in the top of some tree or mountain ledge.

Just before dark one evening, after negotiating a mountain pass of six thousand feet, we wound down a valley where we frequently saw the ruins of houses either burned or dynamited. This was along U. S. Highway No. 23. We saw side roads where were men holding guns as if they were just returning from the hunt, and heard the jeers of young people as we passed with our Michigan car license. Later we were informed that this was the famous moonshine district which was raided a few years ago by government officials seeking to enforce the Prohibition Law. They were vehemently resisted by the mountaineers. Many houses were destroyed in the "Moonshine War," and numbers of people of both sexes were sent to the penitentiary. The papers never published half the truth about this "war," for most of the editors were sympathetic with their neighbors.

The mountaineers objected to the highway from the first, fearing their craft might be discovered. Their fear proved true—the war was the result. And this is not yet ended. Only a short time after we passed, the county sheriff was shot when attempting to arrest a moonshiner. Side roads are guarded by armed mountaineers, and the young folks try to start trouble with those whom they suspect. When officers arrive, the lawbreakers need take only a few steps to reach another State and safety. Only federal officers can handle the situation, and they are making a good job of it. The highway was the first requisite.

The mountaineers cultivate only small patches, mostly corn, which if sold would not bring enough to pay for the handwork, but when made into moonshine proves sufficient to support the family. The moonshine is fired with mountain herbs and greatly sought after by senile men to restore their youth. Always it has brought double price, and dealers in the illicit trade everywhere make large profits on its sale.

Moonshine probably furnishes a living for more than twenty thousand families in this region. Its manufacture and sale keep a hundred thousand people from starving. So, you see, this is a problem which affects a lucrative business and many a politician.

Arriving at Bristol and the home of Brother Frederick A. Peterson, where I expected to hold a big meeting, I found that Evangelist Mordecai Hamm, of Oklahoma, had the whole town agog over salvation by faith only. Every evening there were conversions by the score, and no doubt some good was being done, even if the conversions (persuasions) lasted only a few months. There was little opportunity for doing missionary work except to hold a number of cottage meetings. These were well attended, but there was usually a different crowd each night, as the listeners cared to miss only a night or two of Mr. Hamm's meetings. We thought when he had finished we would begin, but found that most of the churches of the town had the same opinion. An opportunity about a hundred miles away presented itself, and there I opened a month of services, which proved so unusual that I shall make a special chapter of it.

The mountains have impressed me wonderfully. Unlike the Rockies they are covered with a dense growth of timber and vegetation, and have many springs, streams, and waterfalls. The waters are of the purest, and are especially appreciated by people accustomed to the muddy streams of the Midwest. There are many special features among these mountains of sufficient attraction to draw tourists from all over the globe. Of these I hope to write at a later date. Here, however, I must mention the mountain laurel, an enchanting flower, which in June covers hundreds of thousands of acres. I shall never forget the beauty, grandeur, and profusion of this flower which refuses to be domesticated. About the time it ceased to bloom, the mountain ivy, even more beautiful, but less fragrant, covered mountains and valleys. A festival is annually held in its honor.

Perhaps the best fishing streams in eastern United States are located among these mountains. Here also dwell the wild cat, the panther, the bear, and the deer. Many thousands of acres have no doubt never been touched by human foot; they are too steep. At some places the timber is so thick that one penetrates with great difficulty. The Government has many timber reserves miles in area. The soil is in most places as red as barn paint, but grows good crops of vegetables, grains, and fruits. Just now peaches are selling in South Carolina, not far away, for ten cents a bushel. Some farmers are trading a bushel of peaches for a bushel of oats.

The people seem happy and contented. They are too contented with their religion to listen to anything else. In many places they have their own schools and colleges. Every few miles there is a church college, many of them over a hundred years old.

I find so much to write about this region that I must leave much for other chapters. I was never more busy and contented in my work than now.

East of these mountains dwelt my maternal ancestors three hundred years ago. A hundred years ago some of them trekked through here into Indiana, where my mother was born in 1844. Many a name like Cumberland Gap and Mount Mitchel, I have often heard my mother's relatives mention. My mother's people came to Virginia on the second boat from England. Another branch came from Scotland sometime later and settled in North Carolina. So when I enter this region about which I have written, I feel that I am getting back home.

In this section of the country, I knew of but one church member. Since coming I have located two transients and baptized one, of whom I wrote in a former letter. I was unaware that in the oldest part of our country, a section five hundred miles or more square, there lived only one member of the church, and never had a sermon been preached by a minister of the old church or the Reorganization. Here many American ideals developed, and several churches had their beginning. All this, too, furnishes material for several chapters.

J. W. PETERSON.

Lamoni Reunion Is Over

One of the best-known reunions in the church is that conducted each year by Lamoni Stake. This season it opened July 31 and continued until August 9, at the park in Lamoni instead of the reunion grounds south of town. The people felt the need of cutting down expenses and were willing to forego the pleasure of camping in behalf of economy. The various activities and class work were carried on in the usual way, and many declared the entire reunion "the best ever held."

The Lamoni Chronicle tells of the reunion features in the following language:

"One of the features of the reunion was a series of talks by Bishop G. Leslie DeLapp, wherein he gave a detailed account of the economic program of the church, the predominant thought in the minds of those in charge being to put the church on a cash basis; to keep expenses within the income. People like to understand the true conditions in the financial affairs of the church, and it was Mr. DeLapp's purpose to make the plans clear. Further expansion and building will be curtailed until sufficient funds are secured to carry on the work, it was said.

"The missionary sermons were delivered by Elder Ray Whiting at the evening services. They were given in a true missionary spirit and were received by large audiences. Elder Ward A. Hougas, of Far West Stake, occupied the pulpit Sunday afternoon.

"In spite of the rain over the two week-ends, the attendance held up, six hundred and fifty hearing the sermon the first Sunday evening and over five hundred at the last service.

"Attendance was noted by people from Saint Joseph, Kansas City, Independence, Des Moines, Council Bluffs, and many points between those places and Lamoni.

"There seemed to be an intelligent determination to make the reunion a pleasant and successful one, and the keenest cooperation existed throughout.

"The Patronesses conducted a stand during the entire reunion which was well patronized. Class work generally was up to the usual standard, the attendance at adult classes being unusually large."

Woodward, Oklahoma

The little group of Woodward Saints was happily surprised to have Brother and Sister Weedmark present for the service of sacrament Sunday, July 5. They gathered at the home of Brother and Sister Sible, where Brother Weedmark served the emblems. The members came together in humility, and the Spirit was felt in power. Almost all gave testimonies and prayers.

Sister Weedmark was reared in this community, and her home-coming was much appreciated by the Saints. We are happy and thankful that God has blessed us in choosing one of our young people for his work. Brother Weedmark is a young priest. In Topeka, Kansas, Branch, Sister Fern has finished the teachers' course in the Book of Mormon. She is a teacher there. At present she is gathering material for her theme in archaeology.

The women were happy to have Brother and Sister Weedmark visit their study class on the Book of Mormon.

Reunion at North Platte

The North Platte reunion convened July 24 and continued until August 2. Elder Arthur Oakman and Elder O. L. D'Arcy, assisted by local members of the priesthood, were in charge. Brother and Sister D'Arcy did not arrive until Monday evening, but Brother Oakman ably carried on the work until their arrival.

Each morning at nine o'clock a splendid prayer meeting gave the Saints opportunity to express themselves concerning the work of latter days and their faith in God. This was followed by class work conducted by Brother Oakman. Classes were composed of adults and children.

In the afternoon the young people, led by Brother Oakman, engaged in swimming and playing games. On two occasions Brother Oakman was unable to direct the recreations; once he sang over a local radio, and on another afternoon he lectured on picture slides at the home of Sister Jessie Morant. This lecture was heard by a number of non-members.

Elder D'Arcy's evening sermons proved a wonderful help to the Saints.

Two adults and seven children were baptized during the reunion, and others expressed their conviction of the truth of the gospel. Two children were blessed during the services.

At the first of the reunion, attendance was light, but increased until during the last two or three days about one hundred and ten were present. The sacrament was served to about fifty-five on Sunday morning by Brothers D'Arcy and Oakman.

Each Sunday Elder Oakman preached at two o'clock, and Brother D'Arcy was heard in the evening.

A varied program on Friday evening was much enjoyed.

The Saints had previously subscribed funds for the purchase of a new tent 28 by 38 feet. This the committee purchased and used during the gathering. Because of this purchase the reunion was the most costly held in this district for a number of years. Nevertheless, we feel well paid in the good which was accomplished and the blessings of association.

On August 2 a mass meeting was held at which time a reunion committee of three was elected and given authority to call a reunion next year if it is thought advisable by them.

Calgary, Alberta

Two children were blessed recently, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Gibson and the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Diaper.

No services were held here August 3 because so many of the Saints attended the district conference at Edmonton. Apostle J. A. Gillen stopped at Calgary on his way to Montana from Edmonton and preached to the Saints. His text was, "Cast your net in at the right side."

Mr. and Mrs. Anderson and family have left Calgary to make their home in Michigan.

The Women's Department met today at the home of Sister Hanna. Sister Reese, of Turner Valley, came in and brought up the topic for discussion, the question whether the Alberta District is willing to raise funds to furnish a room at the new Sanitarium at Independence.

Denver, Colorado

Denver Saints had the pleasure, July 12, of listening to Apostle M. A. McConley at both morning and evening services. He gave, as he always does, good advice and encouragement. Many of us remember when Brother McConley began his ministry in this place, and feel that he is one of our boys. He brought his wife and daughter to Denver to spend the summer.

July 16 the adult group held a social at the church. During the evening the women presented to Mrs. Elizabeth McCleendon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Williams, who was pastor here for over thirteen years, a beautiful quilt which they had made for her. Sister Laura Kohankie made the presentation. Elizabeth and her parents are deeply appreciative of the love and good will manifested in this gift.

On June 26 a son, Wayne Darwood, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Schaeffer. Mrs. Schaeffer is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Holmes. Jan Marie Davis, daughter of Clark and Ina Marie Davis, and granddaughter of Elder J. Arthur Davis, was born June 30.

The church school held its annual picnic Saturday, July 25, at Washington Park.

On the evening of July 23 the adult group presented a play, "Joe's Wife," by Mrs. Mabel Crayne, of Los Angeles. The play, directed by Mrs. Myrtle Bennett, was well acted and was much enjoyed by the large number of people who attended. Afterwards a watermelon feast held on the church lawn was well patronized.

As is usual during the summer months, attendance has fallen off somewhat, a number of the Saints being out of town on their vacations. The pastor has given excellent sermons, exhorting all to cast aside the useless and frivolous things of life and to consecrate their lives anew to the services of God. He has portrayed vividly the distinction between real and false values. The young people's chorus, as well as the regular choir, have contributed to the beauty and spiritual uplift of the services. We have also enjoyed many solos and quartet selections.

Everett Shupe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Shupe, was married on August 1 to Miss Harriett Manley. The ceremony was performed in the chapel at Northwestern University by Elder Frank B. Almond, of Chicago. Everett was born in Denver and has spent most of his life here. He received his degree from Northwestern University last June and is now employed in Chicago.

We are always happy to welcome at our meetings Saints who may be passing through or visiting in Denver. A large number of tourists have worshiped with us in the past few weeks.

Wells, Michigan

Wells Branch came into existence about ten years ago. Escanaba is on the south and Gladstone on the north about five miles. This is the central place, and interest is growing here. Escanaba is a promising field, and the Saints here hope to enlarge their borders. The circumstances under which the gospel gained footing here were quite difficult; the gospel was new to the people, and the community was dominated by one religious faith. Nevertheless we are gaining ground. A goodly number have allied themselves with us.

A sister who is an example of courage to the Saints is visiting here, Bina Davis Drofflet. She is spending her annual vacation with her parents in Wells Branch. Sister Bina is a former member of this community and has many friends here. She graduated from our schools, taught school, and married. Then sorrow came into her life; her husband met with an accident which left him a cripple; their baby, the sunshine of the home, was taken from them by death, and a little later the husband also died. Courageously Sister Bina took up life alone and secured a good position in the sanitarium at Howell, Michigan. On her visits home she works with the Sunday school, managing programs and helping in every way she can. While passing through her trials, she has regularly paid tithing to the branch solicitor, loyally helping the general church. We tell Sister Drofflet's story here in order that others may be helped by her faithfulness and courage. Saints passing through Howell, Michigan, should call on her.

Brother A. M. Boomer was lately called on to officiate at the funeral of the baby of Sister Ruth Shippy. Interment was in the family lot at Munsing, Michigan, sixty miles from Wells. After the interment service, Brother Boomer met some of the Munsing Saints, with whom he had an encouraging visit.

In this branch lives Brother J. C. Calhoun, who is nearly ninety-five years of age. He tells us that he was baptized by C. D. Carter, in DeKalb County, Illinois. He lately enjoyed renewing acquaintance with visitors to this branch, Brother and Sister Eugene Horton, of Chicago. It was interesting to hear Brother Calhoun and Brother Horton relate experiences of the pioneer Saints of Wisconsin and Illinois.

A Manchester, England, Wedding

Brilliant sunshine greeted Eva, youngest daughter of Priest H. W. and Sister E. Gillson, on her wedding day, July 11, when she became the bride of Robert, youngest son of the late Alexandra and E. A. Reid. The ceremony occurred at the North East Manchester Branch, James Street, Bradford; High Priest G. W. Leggott officiating. The bride was attended by two bridesmaids, Miss Elsie Bowyer and Miss Olive Heywood; little attendants were Joan Bradley and Hilda May Smith. Mr. Norman Greenhalgh acted as best man, and H. F. Smith was groomsmen. The reception was held in the bride's home for thirty invited guests.

Tigris (Missouri) Branch

After a short time of inactivity Tigris Branch is forging ahead. On the first Sunday in May the branch met and reorganized the Sunday school, which had become inactive because of the removal of some of the principal workers. And, too, our worthy pastor, Elder J. C. Chrestensen, was too feeble to meet with the Saints in cold weather. We are happy to have him present more frequently, now that the weather is favorable.

The new Sunday school superintendent is D. A. Fuller, formerly of Dallas, Texas, and Sister Nellie Chrestensen is the assistant superintendent, also the chorister. Sister Beulah Norman is Sunday school secretary and treasurer, and Sister Charlie Norman is organist.

Attendance at services has almost doubled, and the Saints feel encouraged to press on.

Elder W. E. Haden, missionary, and his daughter Juanita were here from July 20 to 26, and Brother Haden preached each night to large crowds. These workers will be welcome at any time they wish to return.

An all-day meeting was held July 26, and lunch was spread for all. About twenty from Springfield Branch brought their baskets and stayed all evening. Brother Walter Chrestensen arrived on the scene at the climax of the lunch with five gallons of ice cream, which added to the enjoyment of all.

At three o'clock in the afternoon seven people were baptized by Brother Haden. The confirmation service occurred an hour later at the church. This baptism and confirmation service made a fitting close to the series of meetings. Six of the new members are of the young people's class in Sunday school.

We are trying to develop talent in the Sunday school. A short program intervenes between the school period and the eleven o'clock hour each Sunday morning, and every attendant is given his turn on the program. There are readings, vocal and instrumental music, and talks. Sister D. A. Fuller has the program work and young people in charge.

We are sorry to lose such good workers as Brother and Sister C. B. Freeman and daughter Lillian. They have moved close to Ava Branch. Sister Freeman was instructor of the adult class in the Sunday school, and Sister Lillian was teacher of the beginner class.

Missionary Progress in Tennessee

Lyle, Tennessee—This is to tell Herald readers that the latter-day work in Arkansas, Louisiana, Kentucky, and Tennessee is waiting for the harvest. I came into the Kentucky and Tennessee District July 18, to attend the Puryear reunion. It was a spiritual feast. There I was pleased to meet a congenial friend, Brother Jasper Dutton, also Brother Thomas Newton, district president, and many of the local priesthood.

Following the reunion I went up to the old High Hill Church with Brother Brown Bowlin and preached about ten sermons in that branch. We had splendid crowds. The house was full, and many stood on the outside almost every night.

On the next Sunday it was my great pleasure to lead five young people into the waters of baptism.

The last night of the meeting a carload of Saints from Puryear came up to take me back to Puryear, to meet a Primitive Baptist in a six-day debate. I went, prepared in spirit for the contest. It is over, and I trust the victory is won. Brother T. U. Thomas gave valuable service as moderator, also Brother O. S. Caldwell.

At present I am associated with Brother Thomas Newton in a missionary campaign in Lyle. We are living with Brother Caldwell and Brother MacCallister, recently baptized. We trust the results of this campaign will be helpful.

Crops all over the country are looking fine, and no doubt the members will come to the rescue of the gospel work with their tithes and offerings. May the Lord abundantly bless.

A. M. BAKER.

Fargo, North Dakota

Bungalow Church, 1423 First Avenue, South

Missionary Charles J. Smith was a welcome visitor July 29 and 30 and preached two good sermons. His texts were taken from the Book of Doctrine and Covenants, which he admonished the Saints to study more earnestly. "Grief will be lessened," he stated, "when the members study more, and rapid changes will come when the people make application of the laws and revelations. If the membership had followed the injunction of the church, we would not have suffered depression. It is necessary that we go back to the old paths."

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Ammon Stowell July 19.

Two new classes are now provided for the benefit of church school workers, chalk work being taught by Sisters Vera Ratcliff and Emily Couey, and story-telling by Ferne Shackow and Irene Rotzien.

Pastor Harry E. Ratcliff is giving very fine service. His themes for prayer service are good, and his sermons prayerfully and earnestly prepared. August 19 his theme was "Sacrifice."

Courtney Rotzien, deacon, took charge of services during a two weeks' absence of the pastor. He gave an interesting talk July 5 on "Inspiration."

Elder Thomas Leitch preached July 12, reading for a scripture lesson John 12: 28-50. His text was: "This voice came not because of me, but for your sakes."

Sad news recently arrived from Sister Avis (Walker) Halbett, of Alaska, who went there last year as a bride. In June she was the bereaved mother of an infant daughter, and since that time has suffered ill health. July 22 Mr. Halbett was instantly killed. In response to a telegram Sister R. T. Walker left for Kennecott, Alaska, July 29. She expects to return with her daughter in a month. The members sympathize with Sister Avis and will welcome her home.

"Vision" is the church school theme for the month of August.

Plans are being made for rally day to be observed here Sunday, September 27.

Haverhill, Massachusetts

Church activities at Haverhill have been at low ebb since the coming of hot weather. For this reason the discontinuance of the Sunday evening service seemed practical, although the midweek prayer services have been regularly held.

The spiritual needs of the branch have been met by the local priesthood, though they, in turn, feel the need of being ministered to. In this branch, as must also be the case in many other places, the curtailment of the missionary force has been keenly felt. None of the Saints were able this year to attend the Onset reunion.

The outstanding event in Haverhill was one of sadness, the sudden death of the oldest member, Harvlin Thayer. For two or three years he had been in poor health, but of recent months had improved. His death, due to a heart block, came as a shock to the community. He leaves his wife, three daughters, and four grandchildren. As long as health permitted, he was an active member of the church, being, as one of the missionaries stated, the man who kept Haverhill Branch together. His home will be remembered among the older missionaries as their headquarters here. His counsel will long be remembered by those younger in the service. Bishop M. C. Fisher preached the funeral service and, as in times past, proved himself a true friend of the bereaved family.

Western Montana Reunion

Saints of Western Montana District feel they were fortunate to be numbered with those who were privileged to hold a reunion again this year. As in former years, we have emerged with a balance with which to begin a reunion for next year, and we hope with sufficient spiritual strength to carry us on as well. If heed is given to the admonition and words of encouragement brought by those appointed to minister to us, this will be an outstanding year for this district. Those who availed themselves of the opportunity to attend the services could not help but feel deeply the call of the church to "Go forward."

"The hour has struck," says Brother Gillen, and unless we shall rise to a keener sense of our responsibilities, and enter whole-heartedly into the work of the church, we can not be partakers of the blessings in store for God's people.

Apostle J. A. Gillen, Elder A. C. Martin, Patriarch George W. Thorburn, and Sister Thorburn were those assigned to conduct the work of the reunion.

Those who attended the classes and lectures were strengthened by the efforts put forth. We trust, as we look forward to another reunion, that more of our young people will sense the importance of preparing themselves for service and take advantage of the opportunities offered for their advancement.

The Girl Scouts were a welcome addition to our camp this year, and contributed their share to the activities.

We were also pleased to again welcome Elder A. J. Moore. Brother Moore served as district president for a number of years. Although age has retarded his activities, it has not decreased his love for the gospel. He still bears a wonderful testimony, and his sincerity brings strength to the Saints.

District conference convened the last Saturday afternoon.

Brother N. P. Coleman was reelected district president, as were his counselors, E. E. Eliason and Doctor F. L. Casey. Brother Jerome Wyckoff, of Deer Lodge, was sustained as bishop's agent.

Sunday afternoon we witnessed the baptism of two children and one adult. One child completed a family circle, while the other one was the first member of a family to unite with the church.

A peaceful spirit prevailed throughout the entire reunion. With a feeling of sadness we said good-by to those grown dear to us by the ties of the gospel. Quoting Brother Gillen again, "It is not so much the parting, as the when, and the how, we shall meet again." The words of encouragement we felt we so much needed have been brought to us. Let us apply them in our lives and as one body turn our face Zionward.

Lake Orion, Michigan

The annual home-coming of Lake Orion Branch was held on Sunday, August 9. That the program for the day was an interesting one was attested by the attendance at every service. The largest number present at any one session was one hundred and fifty. Visitors were present from Detroit, Saint Clair, Flint, Port Huron, Marlette, Otter Lake, Pontiac, and Oxford, many staying for the evening.

The programs were in charge of Elder A. H. DuRose, district president. The one in the morning was put on by Orion members. A special feature was a song, "Zion Still Beckons Us On," the words of which were written by Mrs. Julia Hammond, and the music by Verna Schaar. This song was sung several times during the day, both for its beauty of sentiment and melody, and also as a tribute to those who have worked so zealously for the upbuilding of the branch. We enjoyed a short talk given by Elder W. Richards, of Detroit East Side Branch.

Dinner at noon was served cafeteria style by the women.

The music in the afternoon, in charge of Mrs. Henrietta Davis, director of music for the city of Detroit, was arranged as an enjoyable half hour to precede the address of the afternoon, "The Final Home-coming," by Elder A. B. Smith, of Detroit. This was an inspiration to all who listened.

Elder Smith preached again in the evening, and Mrs. Davis sang two special songs. The day closed fittingly by the singing of "Zion Still Beckons Us On."

Thayer, Missouri

This branch is going forward. It is composed of a happy band of Saints working together to forward the cause of our Master. We have completed our stone church building, which is the nicest little church in South Missouri.

Members are continually entering the branch by baptism. The last to be baptized was Brother Clarence Mayo, a promising young man. Saints from other places are coming to this part of the country, and we look forward to the time when this branch will be a strong unit in the church and center place.

We know of pioneers in the latter-day work who labored in Thayer under adverse conditions, some of them being the victims of rock throwing, eggs, hedge apples, and other persecutions. Some of these elders were W. P. Bootman, J. T. Davis, Henry Sparling, Joseph Ward, and C. J. Spurlock. We rejoice to see the growth of their planting many years ago.

Another man strong in the faith is Elder J. W. Hancock, who has moved to Thayer to make his home. With him are three sons, all of whom we have learned to appreciate. We pray that others will join our band, bringing with them the spirit of the great latter-day work.

We were never more aware of the fact that the church needs leaders and pushers, not leaners. It is our privilege to support the church in every way, with tithes and offerings as well as our faith.

Independence

Congregational singing at the Campus Sunday evening took on a decided missionary tone. Old and favorite gospel hymns were sung with fervor, "When Earth in Bondage Long Had Lain," "Shout the Tidings of Salvation," and "The Old, Old Path." Special music was by the Auditorium orchestra.

"Authority" was the theme of Apostle F. Henry Edwards, who made his second Sunday evening appearance before the combined congregations of Independence.

Pastor John F. Sheehy conducted the service, being assisted in the stand by Elder A. H. Chrestensen.

Elder G. G. Lewis will this year be in charge of the night high school conducted at the Campus and known as the Independence Institute of Arts and Sciences. Accredited high school work will open September 8. Two units of credit will be allowed students who are properly registered. In addition, commercial courses such as typewriting, stenography, and bookkeeping will be offered. There will be a sliding scale of fees, depending on the number of full term registrations, not to exceed eighteen dollars.

Stone Church

Elder J. E. Vanderwood took for the theme of his Sunday morning sermon the example of Jesus our Lord. His time was devoted to applying the principles which Christ lived to our lives today.

Brother Vanderwood, an active missionary in the field, is not a frequent speaker in the Stone Church pulpit. The greater part of his time he spends beyond the borders of Missouri. At present he is visiting home, having obtained a short leave of absence from his field, New York District. His Sunday morning discourse was appreciated by Stone Church members.

Two numbers were sung by a male quartet, "The Little Brown Church in the Vale," and "Did You Think to Pray?" The singers were: Duane Swalley, Roderick May, Robert Crawford, and Edward Cronenbold.

Elder H. G. Barto presided over the service, assisted by Elder J. E. Kelsey.

The Saints are given opportunity to worship together in services of prayer and testimony at stated times during the week. Practically all of the groups in the district conduct their own prayer services, or meet in larger groups at the church. Two general prayer services are held at the church each Sunday, one at eight o'clock in the morning, the other at 2:30 in the afternoon.

The young people are responsive in matters of attendance, interest, and participation to their own service in the basement of the church each Wednesday evening. Last Wednesday an excellent service was in charge of Elder G. G. Lewis and Priest Almer Sheehy.

Miss Vivian Raschke, of Independence, became the bride of Mr. Odess Athey, of Warrensburg, Missouri, at her home at 2:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon, August 16, President F. M. McDowell officiating. The ceremony was witnessed by about thirty friends. Miss Burdene Raschke, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and Mr. W. Earl Page attended the bridegroom. The couple will make their home in Independence this winter, Mr. Athey being the principal of Noland school. Mrs. Athey was for some time a valued employee in the accounting department of the general church offices.

The Stone Church was the scene of the wedding of Miss Joy Carpenter, daughter of Mr. Guy Carpenter, of Chicago, and Mr. Orville Hulmes, son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Hulmes, of Independence, Monday evening, August 17. The double ring service was said by Pastor John F. Sheehy. Preceding the ceremony the Misses Avarrel Dwyer and Thelma Dwyer sang "I Love You Truly," and George Anway sang "All for You" and "Because." Miss Lorena Kueffer accompanying at the organ. Miss Kueffer also played the wedding march. The candles were lighted by Miss Eugenia Hulmes and Miss Vivian Dwyer. The bride, who was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Orly Dwyer, was attended by Miss Naomi Williams as maid of honor. Flower girls were Doris Jean Flanders and Loraine Dwyer, of Cameron, Missouri, and Helen Robertson and Jocalyn Custead, of Independence. Mary Agnes Weeks was the ring bearer. Paul Carpender, brother of the bride, acted as best man for Mr. Hulmes. Ushers were Miss Ina McCord, Miss Martha Batterton, Miss Opal Williams, and Mrs. Bernice Koehler Oldham. A reception followed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. T. Williams at the Campus, where the bride has made her home for some time. Mr. and Mrs. Williams were assisted by Mr. and Mrs. George H. Hulmes; Mr. and Mrs. Orly Dwyer, and Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Koehler. After a short wedding trip the bridal couple will be at home in Independence.

Liberty Street

"Rejoice, Jerusalem, and Sing," by Nevin, the choir's anthem Sunday morning, furnished an appropriate background for the sermon by Elder James W. Davis. "Many modern things take our minds from God and the fundamentals of life," he declared; "we must raise our vision to include the Christ objective in life." "When I be lifted up, I will draw all men unto me," was the text used, and the story of Lazarus and the rich man assumed new significance in the light of its application to modern needs.

Mrs. Cora A. Adkins and Mr. Everett E. Bowen, both of Independence, were married August 15, at the home of the bride's daughter, Mrs. Calvin Johnson. Elder W. A. Stevenson performed the ceremony. About forty-five friends and relatives were present. Mr. and Mrs. Bowen are well known in the Liberty Street congregation and have the good wishes of their friends.

The second morning prayer meeting occurred at Liberty Street last Sunday, Pastor John R. Lentell in charge. Increased attendance and good interest are reported.

Walnut Park

A party of fifty-five persons and ten cars gathered at the Walnut Park church at six o'clock Sunday morning for a trip to the Stewartsville reunion. This trip was sponsored by the Galilean class, but invitation was extended to all who were interested. The seventy-seven-mile trip to Stewartsville was made without difficulty, the group arriving there at nine o'clock in time for the general prayer meeting. At the ten o'clock hour there was a lecture by President F. M. McDowell, and at eleven o'clock Apostle F. Henry Edwards was the speaker. The Far West Stake officials made the Independence visitors welcome and provided excellent arrangements for eating, etc. A large number of visitors from Kansas City, Lamoni, and other places were also in attendance at the reunion.

At two o'clock in the afternoon the Walnut Park group continued their journey to Far West, the site of the Far West temple and city of Far West which the Saints established in 1836. Elder C. Ed Miller gave an interesting and instructive talk regarding the historical incidents associated with this place. The visitors saw the excavation for the temple and the cornerstones, which are still in the ground where they were laid almost one hundred years ago.

After leaving Far West, the group took up the journey to a point south of Excelsior Springs, where the road crosses Fishing River. About three hundred yards from the bridge a dozen of the more adventuresome spirits in the party located the junction of the east and west forks of the river and after crossing the river stood on the approximate spot where the early Saints of Zion's Camp, while on their way from Kirtland to Jackson County, pitched their tents on the evening of June 19, 1834. This was the place where the river rose almost forty feet overnight because of the violent storm which came and thus prevented their enemies from attacking them. At this same place was received the famous Fishing River revelation, found in section 102, Doctrine and Covenants. After visiting this spot which very few members of the church have seen, the party returned to Independence.

Elder Harvey V. Minton's series of sermons in the Holden Stake tent, about half a mile east of Walnut Park church, is being continued this week, the tent being well filled.

Brother Minton was also the speaker at Walnut Park Church Sunday.

Spring Branch

Omer E. Sedoris and Sister Mary A. Rich were married at the home of the bride's daughter, Mrs. George Kroesen, in Independence, last Wednesday evening. J. H. Miller read the service.

J. E. Cleveland and Jacob Andes blessed Myron Eugene Harrington, infant son of Brother and Sister Alfred Harrington, at the opening of the eleven o'clock service Sunday morning. A pleasing musical number was rendered by a male quartet from the Atherton group composed of Walter Farley, Claire Austin, Noble Wilkinson, and Ted Snively. Elder J. A. Bozarth was the speaker, taking his text from Hebrews 1.

Elder Robert Fish spoke to the junior church. Both the adult and the junior services were well attended, and much interest was shown.

The Wednesday evening prayer services also have been given good attendance, and the good Spirit is manifested.

Harvest festival canning is just beginning in earnest. We hope that we shall raise our quota on time.

Gudgell Park

Friends and relatives numbering almost one hundred were guests at the marriage, Sunday afternoon, of Miss Joy Evelyn Sherman, daughter of Brother and Sister P. A. Sherman, to Everett Harris. The wedding took place on the lawn of the home in Gudgell Park, before the rose arbor. Elder E. A. Smith officiated. Before the ceremony Delta Nace sang "At Dawning," and the Nace string trio played the wedding march. The bride was attended by Mrs. Ronald Sherman, matron of honor, and Charlotte Alberti and Effie Fleming, bridesmaids. Ronald Sherman was best man and Leonard Sherman and Kenneth Sherman ushers, these three being brothers of the bride.

Mr. and Mrs. Harris leave this week for Story City, Iowa, where Mr. Harris is principal of the junior high school and Mrs. Harris will be substitute teacher. Both taught last year in Udell, Iowa.

Kansas City Stake

Central Church

About one hundred and fifty people from Kansas City Stake went to the Stewartsville reunion Sunday. They report a profitable trip.

Brother Almer Sheehy, of Independence, was the Sunday morning speaker. The congregation enjoyed hearing this young speaker.

In the evening the picture was "Blind Bartimæus," and Pastor C. E. Wight continued his series of evening talks.

An all-day stake picnic will be held at Swope Park on Labor Day, September 7. Golf, tennis, volley ball, and other sport tournaments are scheduled. All types of games, recreation, and children's sports are planned. The committee hopes to have a band and prominent speaker for the luncheon program. There will be free ice cream and plenty of lemonade.

Second Church

Brother Edgar Cyrus Robertson, age seventy-two, passed from this life August 22. He suffered several years from a complication of ailments, and the last two months of his life were months of severe pain. Nevertheless he passed peacefully away. The interment was in charge of Mrs. Forster, undertaker. The sermon was by Elder Ross Higdon at Central Church, August 24. Interment was in Mound Grove cemetery. Left to mourn are his wife, Margaret Robertson, at home; two daughters: Mrs. Edna Miller, of Mount Vernon, Washington, and Myrtle Robertson, of Kansas City.

Branch President Tells of Passing of a Faithful Member

Westerly, Rhode Island, Branch is mourning the loss of its oldest member in point of years. Sister Abbie Merritt, affectionately called "Aunt Abbie," was called to her reward August 15, 1931, in her ninety-first year. During the forty-one years of her membership with the church, she has endeared herself to the Saints of Southern New England District and all those of other districts with whom she came in contact.

In the years of her association with the Westerly Branch as a member, "Aunt Abbie" has shown a spirit of devotion to the cause she espoused; a faithfulness to the principles of the gospel, and a loyalty to God and her fellow men, that have been an example to us. This devotion, this faithfulness, and this loyalty enabled her to say with the Psalmist David, "I have not hid Thy righteousness within my heart!" "Aunt Abbie" was ever ready in meeting as well as in everyday life to testify of the goodness of God to her, and bear witness of the many blessings and healings she had received from the hands of her Savior.

She was active until two years ago, when her advanced age slackened her nimble fingers and made inroads on her general health, causing her at the age of eighty-nine to cease work on her braided rugs and patch quilts. Many of us are proud possessors of the work of her hands after she was eighty-five years of age.

The funeral was held August 17, the sermon being preached by Elder William Patterson, district president. She was held in high esteem by her friends and neighbors who gathered to pay respect to her memory, together with the Saints who loved her in life and honored her in death.

Thus Westerly Branch feels a great loss in the passing of "Aunt Abbie." Yet we thank God we have been privileged to associate with a Saint of God, one who when it came to the time to testify of God's goodness to her, did it not from a sense of duty, but rather counted it a privilege and a pleasure. We feel honored to have had her name enrolled on the branch record.

In her patriarchal blessing she is told that her life would go down like the setting of the sun. And as we look at the western horizon of her life, we see it fade into a beautiful setting of righteousness in arms of her Savior. The clouds of persecution, pain, and suffering have been tinged with the light of the gospel and the spirit of love which actuated her life. "Aunt Abbie" has fought the fight; she has lived and kept the faith.

E. EDWARD WILKES.

We are living in a great time. We are a bridge generation. Upon our backs, upon our labors, upon our steadfastness to principle, the generations are passing over from a less good to a better time. The complaints that we hear concerning the slowness of it all are mostly from people who would rather be the crossing thong than the bridge that carries them across. But that is not within our choice. We must do the job that destiny has given us; for if we fail, the next generation will not get across to a better footing. We may go forward confidently, in the fullest faith that what we thus build those who come after will find most fitted for their use.—Selected.

Sin has many tools, but a lie is a handle which fits them all.—Selected.

A Christmas Offering Superintendent

By C. B. Woodstock

Some ten or twelve years ago Brother Arthur Smith, of Saint Louis, was appointed general superintendent of Christmas offering for the church. Brother Smith was an energetic man and a good organizer. Under his direction Christmas offering superintendents were appointed in each of the branches and a systematic campaign was carried out. That year the total offering at the close of the Christmas season was over one hundred thousand dollars.

Today it does not seem wise to enter upon so extensive a campaign. The one all-inclusive financial program of the church, the one in which all should participate religiously and in a thoroughly business-like way, is the paying of the tithe. This without question should receive primary consideration. The church can not prosper financially, industrially, nor spiritually until we consistently observe the law the Lord has given. Neither can we prosper as individuals until we recognize our partnership with God.

The Christmas offering is a free will gift, made to the church, as unto God, in token of our love and appreciation of the gift of the Christ to the world. As an offering it represents our desire and effort to assist in the work of our Lord through the church. To the extent that the offering is made through personal effort and self-denial, it is consecrated by our sacrifice and our righteous desire.

In recent years the Christmas offering has averaged forty thousand dollars. Even last year, in a time of severe financial depression, the offering was $35,591.66. Much of this sum if not given into the work of the church would have been spent along through the year for needless luxuries. It is quite probable that we have all gained individually by our weekly investment of nickels and dimes in the Christmas offering.

Perhaps this year, if our offering is to be systematically gathered and is to accomplish its purpose in the church, a Christmas offering superintendent should be chosen in each branch to perfect local plans, to devise ways and means, to encourage systematic giving, and to keep a record of the local offering. The purpose and plan of the offering should be kept before the people and the offering taken each Sunday, or at least monthly. Some one in the branch should be held responsible for the successful working of the Christmas offering plan.

How great shall be our blessing through the Christmas offering for 1931? It can not be measured alone in dollars and cents.

MISCELLANEOUS

Meetings in Des Moines District

Special all-day services will be held at Knoxville, August 30; at Webster City, September 6; at Perry, September 13. A special conference will be held in Des Moines, September 19 and 20, beginning Saturday night with G. Leslie DeLapp of the Presiding Bishopric as speaker. We urge the Saints, who are close to the branches above mentioned, to attend the all-day meetings and to make a special effort to attend the conference.—The District Presidency.

Conference Notices

The annual conference of Toronto District, will be held in Toronto Church, Bathurst Street, at Saint Clair Avenue, October 3 and 4, 1931—James A. Wilson, acting president; A. L. Farthing, secretary.

Chatham district conference will convene at Sarnia, Ontario, September 19 and 20. A prayer service at 9:30 o'clock Saturday morning will be followed by the convening of the conference at eleven o'clock. A priesthood meeting will be held Sunday afternoon which should receive a splendid response upon the part of the local ministry. Apostle C. F. Ellis is expected to be with us. Let the Saints come prepared to enjoy a special blessing. The church is located at 207 Talford Avenue.—D. J. Williams, district president.

Conference Minutes

WESTERN MONTANA.—Annual district conference convened at Race Track, August 15, the last Saturday of the Western Montana district reunion, with District President N. P. Coleman in the chair. By regular motions and seconds the following business was transacted. J. A. Gillen was placed in charge, with the district presidency associated with him; the district secretary in charge of the clerical work, with power to choose assistant. Reports from officers, organizations and committees were received and spread upon the minutes of the conference. They came from district officers, from those holding the priesthood, from the branches, from the Orioles, Girl Scouts, Women's Department, and Religious Education Department, from the bishop's agent, district treasurer, and treasurer of the reunion committee, with auditing committee's report. It was resolved that the district have a reunion next year; that the district presidency make provision for a young people's convention; that the sum of two hundred and twenty-five dollars be appropriated by the district for religious purposes in the district; that the sum of ten cents per week be pledged by every member of the district, this money to be paid to the bishop's agent or his solicitors monthly for the purpose of reducing the general church debt. The bishop's agent's report showed that $2,161.28 had been contributed by the Saints of the district and forwarded to the bishop during the conference year.

Our Departed Ones

SMITH.—Jessie F. Dancer was born July 23, 1856, in Wills County, Illinois; died at her home at Rich Hill, Missouri, August 5, 1931. She was baptized into the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints at Plano, Illinois, by Joseph Smith. She was married to Mr. M. V. Smith April 24, 1894, at Lamoni, Iowa. They moved to Rich Hill, Missouri, where they have made their home for the last eighteen years. She leaves to mourn: Her husband; one sister, Miss Alice Dancer of Lamoni, Iowa; a niece, Mrs. Alberta Kelley, of Independence, Missouri; other relatives, and many friends. She lived a faithful, consistent life. The latter part of her life she was a great sufferer but bore pain with fortitude and patience. Interment was at Rich Hill Cemetery. The funeral service was in charge of Frederick A. Smith, assisted by Birch Whiting.

RANGE.—Mary Ellen Root was born at Hayward, Alameda County, California, June 22, 1854. Married John Madison Range September 29, 1870, at Santa Rosa, California. To this union were born nine children: Mrs. Mae White, of San Francisco; Mrs. Carrie Fonda, of Oakland; Howard, of Oakland; Dale, of San Jose; Laura Etta Holmes and Noah Roberts, who have passed on, and Charles W., John C., and Naomi, who died in early childhood. Shortly after their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Range moved to Hollister, California, and were among the pioneers of that town. About twenty years ago they moved to San Jose, where they made their home, winning the esteem and affection of many friends and neighbors, and giving their support to the local church. Mrs. Range united with the church January 11, 1875, and was loyal to it, finding her greatest joy in helping its progress. For many years her health was not good. Her final illness developed about two weeks ago, and she passed peacefully away Wednesday morning, August 5, 1931. The funeral was conducted at the parlors of Hocking and Williams of San Jose, and she was laid to rest in the cemetery of that city. John W. Rushton, of Oakland, conducted the service. Of her it could be said, "She was faithful unto death."

THAYER.—Harvlin A. Thayer was born in Londonderry, New Hampshire, June 9, 1859. At the age of twenty he moved to Haverhill, Massachusetts. Married Clara Steele Delano in 1885. To them were born three daughters: Mrs. Luzzane Jordan, Mrs. Verna Randall, and Ella Thayer. He united with the Reorganized Church December 17, 1893. Was ordained a priest in 1915. He passed away at his home in Haverhill July 10, 1931, of heart trouble, leaving his wife, three daughters, and four grandchildren. The funeral was in charge of Bishop M. C. Fisher. Interment was in Riverview Cemetery, Groveland. Mr. Thayer was a reliable member of the church, and many friends mourn his passing.

DIGGLE.—Edmund Diggle was born on a farm twenty miles west of Omaha, Nebraska, June 19, 1856, and died at his home in Neola, Iowa, August 14, 1931. He was one of the ten children of Samuel and Sarah Diggle, five of whom have preceded him in death. When a small child, he with his parents moved from Nebraska to southwestern Iowa, in the vicinities of Kanessville, now known as Council Bluffs, Boomer, Reeders Mill, and Union Grove. He was one of the early settlers in Union Grove, Union Grove Township, Harrison County, living in that vicinity until seven years ago last March, when he retired from the farm and moved to Neola. On March 26, 1886, he married Jennie Allie, and to them five children were born, three of whom are still living. He united with the church September 1, 1888. He was a man of very good health until a week before his death. Those surviving are his wife, Jennie; daughter, Bessie, at home; two sons, Guy and Frank, of Neola; three grandsons; one brother, Samuel C., of San Francisco, California; three sisters: Sarah, Mercy Beckman, and Nancy Pettit, all of Saskatoon, Canada, and many other relatives. The funeral was held at the Methodist church in Neola, August 16, Elder Hunker officiating. Interment was in Neola Cemetery.

CARROW.—Elbert Earl Carrow, son of Shelby and May Carrow, was born August 24, 1923, at Joplin, Missouri, and died at Saint John's Hospital, following an emergency operation for appendicitis, early the morning of August 17, 1931. Although young in years, he was of a bright and lovable disposition that endeared him to all who came in contact with him. There mourn his premature departure, besides his father and mother, the grandmother on the mother's side, Mrs. Emma E. Smith, Joplin; grandmother and grandfather on the father's side, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Carrow, of Severy, Kansas; two brothers, Maurice and Lawrence, and one sister, Lorene, of the home address. Also five uncles, and two aunts. And a large number of little playmates and friends. He was preceded to the heavenly home by a sister, who died in infancy, and a brother who departed this life at the age of six years and eight months. Funeral services were conducted at the Joplin church, Elder Frank McDonald in charge. Interment was in Fairview Cemetery.

THE NEW SAINTS' HYMNAL

Splendid New Hymns—
The Old Favorites—
Songs for All Religious Occasions—
Children's Songs—

Wherever the new Saints' Hymnal has been used it has given delight and satisfaction to congregations, choirs, and organists. It is worth many times its cost as a help to church services. Orders filled on the day received.

Prices, Cash With Order

Single Copy, postpaid .....	$1.50 each
Ten or more, transportation extra	1.25 each
One hundred or more, transportation extra .....	1.00 each

Order From

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE

Independence, Missouri.

WARNING!

The "Word of Wisdom" CONTEST

Closes September 1

Send Manuscripts NOW!

VISION OFFERS

Cash Prizes and Other Prizes

FOR

THE BEST WEEK'S MENU BASED ON THE WORD OF WISDOM

RULES

1. Manuscripts must present menus for twenty-one consecutive meals.
2. Simple dishes need no recipes. Complicated dishes, or unusual ways of cooking common dishes should be described in concise recipes.
3. Variety, economy, attractiveness; and satisfactory balance of elements for physical health requirements will be counted.
4. Typewriting is desirable (double-spaced) but clear handwriting is acceptable. Where other qualities are equal, superior neatness and organization will be counted.
5. The contest closes September 1, 1931. Manuscripts must be in this office on or before that date.

First Prize—$10.00 in cash.

Second Prize—$5.00 in cash.

Third Prize—Any book published by the Herald Publishing House.

Three Fourth Prizes—Any book up to the value of $1.00 published by the Herald Publishing House.

ADDRESS

Contest Editor, Vision

Box 237, Independence, Missouri

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Frederick M. Smith, Editor in Chief.
 Elbert A. Smith, Floyd M. McDowell, Associate Editors.
 Leonard J. Lea, Managing Editor.
 Leta B. Moriarty, Assistant Editor.
 Published for the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Subscription price: By the year, $2.

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE
 INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI

CONTENTS

EDITORIAL:
Trust in the Lord .....	794
Graceland—And a Last Minute Decision .....	794
Harvest Home Festival Begins to Take Form .....	794
Christ's Invitation .....	795
"Word of Wisdom" Contest Nears Closing Date .....	795
Dignity and Beauty in Ministry .....	795
ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
Development of the Soul, by Abel Hall .....	797
Weekly Health Letter, by A. W. Teel, M. D. ....	800
Tom King: A Life History, by C. H. Porter .....	801
CHURCH WORK AND SERVICES:
The Story of Four Books on the Life of Jesus, by Myrtle Weber .....	804
Do We Starve Our Children? by C. B. Woodstock .....	805
NEWS OF CHURCH AND HOME .....
MISCELLANEOUS .....	814

LAMONI, IOWA

(Home of Graceland College)

Farm land and town property for sale.

G. W. BLAIR REAL ESTATE AGENCY.

Experienced Teacher Desires Position

Young man, married, with four years teaching experience, graduate of Kansas State Teachers College, desires position as school superintendent, principal, or teacher. A member of the church, and engaged recently in pastoral and religious education work. Has taught social sciences, mathematics, English, history, and agriculture in high school. Best references. Address W. H. Eliason, Holden, Missouri.

Wanted

To get in touch with some Saint who has $800 that he would loan to a group of Saints working together on a co-operative basis. Will give personal and real estate security. Write H. M. Curtis, Blue Springs, Missouri.

A New Tract

J. T. Curtis has written a new tract entitled: "An Instrument in My Hand." It deals with the Restoration, the three presidents of the church, the Book of Mormon, and the eleventh hour of time. Every objection answered. For active members. With a brief history of the author's life. By mail, 10 cents, three for 25 cents.

Address J. T. Curtis, 602 West South Avenue, Independence, Missouri.

Do you read the church publications?

HERALD

ENSIGN

VISION

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE
 Independence, Missouri

Notice

The Independence Sanitarium and Hospital offers a three-year course in nurses' training to young women who are high school graduates.

For further information write to superintendent, G. E. Copeland, R. N.

A GOOD TIME

To Buy Farms or Homes
 in or near

Lamoni, Iowa

A. J. YARRINGTON, "THE LAND MAN"

The need for INSURANCE

changes with the times.

INSURANCE DEPARTMENT
 OF THE CHURCH

(American Underwriters, Inc.)

Indep. 486

221 W. Lexington St.

NOW IS A GOOD TIME

TO CHANGE.

At the mid year Interest date is an advantageous time to shift your Savings Account to a safe conservative institution with a quarter century standing.

We pay 3% on Time and Savings Deposits.
 "Soliciting New Business on Our Record."

JACKSON COUNTY BANK

Independence, Mo.

"Home of Savings"

THE SAINTS' H

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY

Entered as second-class matter at the post office at Independence, Missouri, under Act of March 3, 1879. Issued weekly - Independence, Missouri. Price $2 a year in advance. Accepted for mailing at the special rate of postage provided for in section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917; authorized July 21, 1921.

Volume 78

Independence, Missouri, September 2, 1931

Number 35

God is not the God of the dead, but of the living.—Jesus.

THE VALLEY OF SHRIVELLED HEARTS

Georga Mesley

A LAST MINUTE CALL

G. N. Briggs

THE RISEN CHRIST IN AMERICA

C. B. Woodstock

THE GOSPEL FORUM PRESENTS:

FURTHER THOUGHTS ON PREPARATION FOR MEMBERSHIP

Arthur H. DuRose

The God of the Living

Religious people today are quite ready to accept the idea of a living God, but are sometimes slow to recognize him as the God of the living. The words of Jesus bring us sharply to a realization of the significance of this difference.

It is easy to speak of the Creator as "the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob," and to imagine how the prophets burned as they delivered his fiery messages. Without trouble, as they read the New Testament, they understand that its writers were inspired by something that was beyond human power. But it is more difficult for them to think of God as one whose authority extends over those who are living today, as much as it extended over those who lived in other periods of time.

God is the God of the living, or religion is without force and efficacy, churches are only social centers, and a minister becomes no more than a lay leader in an elaborate kind of play. God is the God of the living, or the whole gospel of Christianity loses all its significant and powerful effect for the redemption of men.

To those who are of liberal tendencies it may seem an act too meticulous to insist on this shade of difference. But the Spirit of a living God is the breath of life to the church. Small as the point may seem to some, it is tremendously important. In all the complicated functions of the body the simple mechanical pumping action of the heart-beat is a small thing. But upon it all the others depend, and the moment it ceases the end of all other functions is determined.

The spirit of a living God, inspiring living people, is the heart-beat of the church. Without it nothing else—either activity or organization—is of any avail.

L. L.

"Word of Wisdom" Contest Closes With a Rush

The last few days have brought in large numbers of manuscripts entered for the "Word of Wisdom" Contest. All Monday the office was busy acknowledging the received entries, many of them which appear, from a casual survey, to be of fine quality. We feel gratified to get them and to realize that so many in the church are truly interested in the subject. Thus our fears, aroused by the few early responses, have been put to flight. The manuscripts will soon be in the hands of the judges.

These manuscripts promise what we had hoped to get: some excellent materials for publication in Vision. The prize winners will begin to appear in the October number, and good quality articles received in the contest will continue in succeeding issues.

We take this opportunity of thanking those who have entered the contest in a spirit of earnestness, and who have devoted so much thought and effort to a good piece of work.

L. L.

President Smith's Health Improved

All readers will be happy to learn that President Smith's health has so greatly improved that he has been able to leave Maine, where he has spent the summer under doctor's orders. In a personal letter he writes that he is feeling physically fit and expects to be in shape to "jump into the work" upon returning to his office. Brother Smith preached for the Saints at Jonesport, Maine, on August 9, and spoke again at the Eastern and Western Maine reunion at Brooksville on August 16. He is at present giving his attention to official matters in the East, and expects to reach his home before or about September 10.

Needless to say we have missed President Smith at headquarters. We have been happy, however, to assume additional responsibility so as to free him for much needed rest and recuperation. While he will be confronted at once with a number of problems vital to the welfare of the church, we can also furnish him evidence that the spiritual condition among the Saints is excellent and that there is every indication that an overwhelming majority are behind the present program.

The official family, the Saints in Zion, and the readers of the Herald will welcome President Smith and will be happy to go forward with him and under his leadership.

F. M. MCD.

Graceland Issues Its Last Call

All who have traveled on the railway are familiar with the famous "Last call to dinner!" When the steward issues that order it is really time to get up from your papers or from that interesting conversation with the traveling man from Schenectady, or whatever it is that is keeping you, and go to dinner. If you don't, you don't get any. And then you can survive on pop and chocolate bars until the next meal, which is hard on the stomach.

It is so with college. This is the last call. If you don't decide now, it will be too late to decide. You had better join the parade and go to Graceland.

Tours for the young people of Kansas City and Independence this summer have brought a surprising revelation. It is only necessary to give young people a trip to Graceland in order to convert them. Those who have never seen the college may be able to restrain themselves and be content to register somewhere else. But those who visit the college when it is in session are almost invariably converted.

If you are a young person, just out of high school and looking for a job, or planning to "go somewhere, I think," you had better made a trip to Graceland. You will not regret it. L. L.

"Out of the Abundance of the Heart"

When I hear words of praise and cheer fall from the lips of a Saint who in every way is trying to live the truth he knows, I am happy. Be he humble or exalted among men, it lies within the power of such a person to brighten the outlook of the discouraged, to make joyous the sorrowful, to heal the hearts of the miserable, to strengthen the weak. He who speaks well of his fellows and his God is a living benediction. He helps men to forget their doubts and fears as a summer shower washes the parched world free of dust and heat. He is a real Saint, for out of the abundance of his heart, his mouth speaks his love for mankind.

Christ did not tolerate people who plant distrust and suspicion in the hearts of their fellows. He once addressed a group of Pharisees on this subject in very understandable terms: "O generation of vipers! how can ye, being evil, speak good things? For out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh. A good man, out of the good treasure of the heart, bringeth forth good things; and an evil man out of the evil treasure bringeth forth evil things. And again I say unto you, That every idle word which men shall speak, they shall give account thereof in the day of judgment. For by thy words thou shalt be justified, and by thy words thou shalt be condemned." This was his lesson: "Out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh."

Idle words? Everyday we meet people who are acquainted with them, people who laugh at faith and hope, who manufacture and spread tales to the hurt of their fellows. These compose society's greatest liability, and no matter where they are found they are known by a common name—gossips. Vipers is the term Christ employed, and it is very descriptive of their nature and work.

Christ taught us, if we follow him, to make our lives so full of love and righteousness, that our hearts will be crowded with "good treasure" from which we may bring forth the "good things" of friendliness, courtesy, consideration, praise, service, good will, and the many other characteristics which make our lives abundant. As we go about our daily work it is a wise thing to check up on the things we say, determining the exact condition of our heart's treasure house.

For us is preserved the lesson: "Out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh." L. B. M.

Dignity and Beauty in Ministry

IX—THE BLESSING OF CHILDREN

By Elbert A. Smith

One of the most beautiful and significant ceremonies of the church is that of the blessing of children. In this age when atheism is invading the home and undermining its foundations, to have fathers and mothers bring their children to the church to be blessed at the altar of the Lord means more than may appear on the surface. It means more than a formal observance of a rite; it is a pledge that here are families that intend to inculcate in the young lives of their children the fundamental principles of belief and conduct that remain the only secure foundation upon which to build life. Around this service of blessing the church should create such an atmosphere of spiritual sincerity and fervor as shall be commensurate with its significance.

A Service to Remember

One of the most beautiful services that I have ever witnessed was in the Stone Church some years ago at a well-conducted service to which six young couples came bringing their babies to be blessed. There was good measure—seven babies—one pair of twins. By turn the couples came to the altar, in each instance both father and mother coming and standing with bowed heads during the blessing. There is assurance for the future of the church in such a scene as that.

In the past, too often, the baby to be blessed has been brought to the church without previous arrangement with those in charge of the service, and either at the beginning or the ending of a preaching or prayer meeting, and without any especial effort to make the ceremony outstanding, two men have been called from the audience to attend to the blessing, sometimes without their even having learned the name to be given to the child as a part of the ceremony.

Special Service of Blessing

In our larger branches, as for instance in the Stone Church, more attention has been given to this matter of later years; and now periodically at an announced time a service especially for the blessing of children is held. Such procedure may not be practical or desirable in a small branch; and yet it may be possible for the officers of a small branch to work out a modified program for such an occasion that will fit into some other service of a Sunday, or perhaps the midweek prayer meeting, that will give dignity to the service of blessing. The following suggested program arranged from one given at the Stone Church may help in such an undertaking. It is by no means intended to serve as a set form.

Order of Service

Scripture reading: Psalm 117.

Prayer.

Hymn: "My God, How Wonderful Thou Art!"

Scripture reading: Luke 18: 15-17, recounting the event when Christ blessed children; Doctrine and Covenants 17: 19, the commandment given in this age concerning the blessing of children.

A statement from the presiding officer interpreting the meaning of the ceremony.

Parents and children called to the altar. (The secretary is to have a list of those to be blessed, and in each case the presiding officer is to read the name of the baby to be blessed, the date of its birth, and the names of the parents; and when possible to do so both father and mother are to bring the baby to the altar and stand during the blessing.)

Charge to the parents, delivered by the presiding officer, or some other minister, impressing upon them the significance of their duty as parents.

Charge to the congregation as a community, to help bear the responsibility that the church owes to God and society in the rearing of the children of the community to become useful citizens of church and state.

A prayer of blessing for the entire congregation.

Hymn: "My Times Are in Thy Hands."

Benediction.

Suggestions

Those in charge of such a service may add much to its dignity by having the details of the service well arranged, as suggested in the foregoing program. The men selected to bless the baby in each instance should know the name to be given so that it will not be necessary to halt proceedings and make inquiry after the baby is in their arms. A sympathetic attitude toward childhood and a realization of the responsibilities of parenthood will help them in the blessing. Here is a minor suggestion, but one that may be useful: An elder of some experience declares that if the baby to be blessed is held in a sitting posture it will seldom cry, but if held lying flat upon its back, perhaps with its head hanging down a bit, there may be "squally weather" ahead that will mar the service. It is difficult to bless a baby that is making more noise than the minister may hope to make and at the same time retain the dignity of the service. The suggestion given may help.

A Ceremony of Major Importance

Remember that this is more than an idle and insignificant form—part of a ritual; not only is it supported by the law of the Lord as a truly religious ordinance, it has back of it the soundest psychological and philosophical reasons. It means much to the family immediately concerned, and through them it means much to the church and the state as well as to the little baby that is blessed.

(To be continued.)

Publicity Agents, Attention

We are requested to remind local publicity agents that the Publicity Department at headquarters has been discontinued, and that its functions are now to be performed by other offices.

In all matters regarding books and publications, the publicity agents are requested to communicate directly with the Business Manager, Herald Publishing House, Independence, Missouri, and to so address all mail. Order blanks and receipt books will be furnished on request.

Appointment of agents can be made by the branch, or by local authorities, according to conditions and circumstances prevailing. Such appointments do not need to be approved or recognized by this office.

Where Knowledge Fails

Harley A. Morris

In Eden's field two trees grew side by side:

Life's tree and that of Knowledge, good or ill.
Each proffered man her fruits. He must decide.
E'en God deigned not to overrule his will.

I do not know what vistas met the eye,
Or tempting vision seemed to lie ahead.
I only know that mortal chose to die
If he might follow on where knowledge led.

Fair Eden's gate clanged shut. The tree of Life
Was hid from man. His short and bitter breath
No promise held save weary toil and strife;
His dearly purchased knowledge claimed by death.

I know not if some memory of the past
A restless yearning bred into the race.
I only know man turned to truth at last,
And in her seeking, sought a moment's grace.

He may mistake the hunter's fevered zeal
For satisfying peace and lasting rest.
He may discover Wisdom's laws, and feel
Tomorrow he will find her treasure chest.

I know not if the future holds the day
When he shall boast complacently his goal.
I only know that knowledge had no stay
To satisfy the yearning of my soul.

There walked a man—a God-man—on the earth.
He came to Wisdom's hall, and passed the door.
'Twas not that he despised her flaunted worth;
'Twas simply that He held the key to more.

I know not how He found the mystic tree,
Nor by what power He turned the gate aside.
I only know He stood and beckoned me,
And, entering, my soul was satisfied.

The Valley of Shrivelled Hearts

A RADIO TALK

By George Mesley

We do not need a radio, a newspaper, or anyone to tell us that today we are living in perilous times—times when men's hearts fail them for fear, when men are distracted and bewildered by the appalling conditions that exist on every hand, and times when many men are confessing that the only remedy for the present ills of the world is a revolution.

These conditions are not only to be found in Europe, but in Australia, Africa, Asia, and the Americas. Such world conditions of distress and a contrasting picture are very ably portrayed in a story that I culled from the Iowa Teacher's Magazine some years ago. The author's name is unknown.

Once, so an old story goes, there was a city called Beautiful. It was the Master City of the World. Through it flowed a river—a life-giving river, named the River of Love. It watered the fertile valley and bore ships with cargoes from other lands. By its sweet water the city was cleansed and the inhabitants refreshed. It furnished fountains around which the children played, near which youth and maiden wooed and age rested. The river's banks were alternations of grassy slopes with many-colored flowers and verdant trees and busy markets with ships and wharves and stores. Its placid spots reflected the blue sky and brown hills far away.

When the sun kissed the hills "good morning" and glittered from the towers and minarets, the men went out to work in the valley, and when the shadows were long they returned, bearing the fruit of their toil. At the gate through which they passed, for it was a walled city, stood an urn with the inscription, "From each according to his ability, unto each according to his need." Into this every man deposited liberally of his earnings, saying, "This I do for the common good." And the river of love flowed through the city, the master city of the world.

Then a change came, silent and unobserved. The river flowed as before, reflecting the blue sky and the brown hills. The children played no less happily, the youth and maiden courted with uncooled ardor, and the peaceful rest of the aged was undisturbed. The fields yielded their accustomed fruit. But, when the men returned from their labors, each walked on that side of the gate opposite the urn and with averted eyes, hugging his earnings to his bosom and saying, "This is mine, with my own hands I earned it—this is mine."

Gradually the fountains became clogged. The river ran murky and black. Death lurked in its water. The happy laugh of the children was gone. Youth and maiden no longer lingered at the fountain, and age paused not at its vacant seats. Man looked at his neighbor with a suspicious eye, and there were those who cried out against the doings of the Almighty.

Today the city is forgotten. Its altars are broken. Its temples have tumbled in ruins. Its homes have crumbled to dust. The valley is a desert of restless sand, inhabited by the serpent, the jackal, and the owl. The river has long ago disappeared, but the place where it once was, is called the valley of the shriveled hearts.

I am well aware of the fact that this is an age of philanthropy, an age when men give millions to build libraries, art galleries, and city parks. And these are years when cities and governments are responding magnificently to appeals for sustenance for those who are destitute.

But the conditions that make such giving necessary are the conditions that make this world a valley of shriveled hearts. On one side of the valley we see plenty. We see lavish entertainment, we see mansions and ease. On the other side of the valley we see poverty, distress, and—what is far worse—a lack of opportunity to remedy these conditions.

We see men getting charity or a dole when what they most need is a chance to earn a decent living. We see the toiling farmer selling his wheat and cattle at a loss while the consumer pays high prices for these commodities.

We see the taxpayers compelled to support grafting politicians, while necessary legislation is forgotten. We see a great gas monopoly charging exorbitant rates while the city of Chanute, Kansas, pays its entire budget from the earnings of its electric and gas plants, at the same time giving its customers a reasonable rate for these necessities.

We see employers compelling their employees to work twelve and fourteen hours a day, seven days a week, and these employees dare not complain lest they lose their jobs.

A complete catalog of such contrasting and pernicious social economic, and political conditions would call for many volumes and much more time than is allotted for this radio talk. Such conditions as these make life for many people a "desert of restless sand inhabited by the serpent, the jackal, and the owl."

What is the remedy? What are the conditions that shall turn this valley of shriveled hearts into the city beautiful where children can play around the fountains, where youth can work and woo, where age can rest in security.

Let us examine some of the attempts that already have been made to irrigate the conditions in this valley of shriveled hearts:

The outstanding experiment in this age is that being made in Soviet Russia. It would take many talks to discuss adequately the results of this experiment. When it started the world scoffed at it. Later we abused it, and now we are frank to admit that we fear it. We are fearful of its success in an economic way; and some of us are fearful of its results in the lives of the Russian people.

We look for happiness for all, and we find ruthlessness for many. We look for sufficient food, and we find bread lines hours long. We look for freedom, and we find thousands being deported to Siberia. We look for Christ the Savior of mankind, and we find him banished.

It is true that the Russian experiment is still in its swaddling clothes, and adjustments are being made. It is true that its social and economic results are astounding. But to date the moral achievements to the credit of this form of socialism are woefully meager.

To interpolate the scripture, "What will it profit Russia if she gain the whole world [economically] and lose her own soul" in the process? She has not built the city beautiful if her people have shriveled hearts.

Another type of remedy for the evils that we have enumerated has been developed by the government in Australia, the land of my birth, and my home until 1924. We might call these experiments a paternal socialism. There the government aims to regulate and arbitrate the conditions that shrivel men's hearts.

On that continent the eight-hour day is standard. If an employer makes his men work overtime, he is compelled to pay him for time and a half. He can not pay starvation wages either. Through arbitration courts, the government has fixed a basic wage which is based on the needs of a laborer's family of four. This wage scale considers the price of commodities, rent, clothing, education, and some provision for the future. Those who work in these skilled trades apply to the arbitration court for a higher wage scale in proportion to their skill.

An attempt is made to control the liquor traffic. Public utilities, such as railroads, telephone and telegraph facilities, radio broadcasting, water and electric power, are government owned and serviced. All aged people and invalids receive a pension sufficient to maintain their life. Poor mothers receive a bonus of $25 to buy necessities for their babies. Such government control relieves much suffering and distress and protects the people from exploitation.

But what are the conditions in Australia today? Are they better than the rest of the world? Very little, if any. There are thousands seeking employment and unable to find it. The people are burdened with taxation. Debt repudiation, as a means of relieving economic pressure, has been seriously considered.

Social legislation alone has not built a city beautiful. It can not build it on a foundation of wasteful competition "that claims the best energies of a man while it needs them and when those energies are reduced or hard times come takes little account of the human needs." Australia can not show the world the way of life when their way is motivated by selfishness, greed, and a careless regard for the ways of the Master.

There is yet another way to build the city beautiful, the master city of the world, and on every hand we find leaders of men talking in general terms about the essentials of such a program.

We find a body of men like the Rochester, New York, ministerial union, adopting, on the motion of its committee on unemployment, the following:

"We call attention to the fact that central in all economic and property relationships is the Christian principle of stewardship. All ability and property of any kind should be considered as held to be administered for the welfare of society. The forgetting of this principle creates a social menace; for when only private gain is the objective in the administration of abilities and possessions, inevitably there are engendered forces gravely dangerous to the economic order."

We find men like Charles Salmon Osborne saying: "People who take more than they need from the table of the earth are pigs." The way to overcome piggishness is for those whose abilities give them more to consider themselves as trustees for the surplus.

We find a group of people like the Amana Society in Iowa living and prospering together for over a hundred years in a definitely Christian community. While it is true that they are losing the interest of their young people through a rigid adherence to outworn forms and modes of living, their basic Christian principles have produced results.

For over a hundred years this church has preached a social gospel—a gospel that seeks to save the lives of men in this world as well as save their spirits for the world hereafter. This we believe is a more abundant life. Today we find courageous men in our church starting a project in which property and wealth as well as talents and time are considered as a stewardship and in which the group will endeavor to control conditions so that every man will have an opportunity to do the thing that he is best fitted to do.

The foundation of such an experiment is laid in the devotion and service of men and women whose lives have been touched and regenerated by the power of the Christ. We believe that this regeneration of individuals is a necessary prelude to a social regeneration.

The prospect of being a partner with God in such a grand experiment for the fuller life of mankind is one of the things that most appeals to me in our faith. And what a challenge such a project is to all the men and women who have pledged themselves to follow the Master of Men. A challenge to face

Weekly Health Letter

Number Nine

The Nose and Its Relation to Health and Disease.—7

By A. W. Teel, M. D., Church Physician

Acute coryza, or what is ordinarily known as the common cold in the head, is not merely a congestion but an acute inflammatory disease attacking the mucous membrane of the nose and accessory sinuses. It is often characterized by chilly sensations, nasal discharges, lassitude, and swelling of the mucous membrane of the nose. The patient also complains of a stuffiness, or "stopping up," of the nostrils, and sneezing. If allowed to go unchecked, it may extend into the trachea (windpipe) or to the bronchi, resulting in acute bronchitis, and from there it may extend on down into the lungs, causing pneumonia, tuberculosis, or some other serious disease.

There is no other single ailment that causes the sum total of suffering, inconvenience, and economic loss that the cold does, and yet there are many, including members of the medical profession, who fail to put much stress upon so serious an infection. Usually persons have from one to three or more colds each year, depending upon the individual's susceptibility. If the disease is localized in the nose, we call it a cold in the head, coryza, or rhinitis; if it is in the tonsils, we call it tonsillitis; if it is in the pharynx, we call it pharyngitis; or if it is in the larynx, laryngitis; if in the trachea (windpipe), we call it tracheitis; if in the sinuses, we call it sinusitis; if in the bronchial tubes, we call it bronchitis, etc.

The popular opinion that colds are due to exposure, to drafts, sudden chilling of the body, and changes of temperature is a fallacy. No one can deny but that these are predisposing causes, but it has been amply demonstrated that they can not squarely the terrible conditions that the old order has wrought, a challenge to find the strength and weakness of the experiments of other groups—in Russia, Australia, Amana; and above all a challenge to match our lives with the great task of the hour.

---

"God, make us the men the times demand,
Strong minds, good hearts, true faith, and willing hands,
Men whom the lust of office does not thrill,
Men whom the spoils of conquest can not buy,
Men who possess opinions and a will,
Men who have honor, men who will not lie,
Tall men, sun-crowned, who live above the fog,
God, make us men!"

produce the specific micro-organism, for that would be spontaneous generation. The bacteria usually associated with a cold or catarrhal conditions are mostly pus-organisms with long and difficult names for laymen to pronounce, hence, I will not name them, as they would be of no material benefit to the readers of these articles. If anyone is interested in studying these groups of bacteria, he may find material in any textbook on bacteriology.

Some of these bacteria have been found to be of a filterable virus, and when they come in contact with the nose, mouth, or throat of lower animals, and healthy person's nasal mucous membrane, they promptly produce a cold. Arctic explorers, while exposed to all kinds of conditions that have been formerly supposed to produce colds, do not suffer from these ailments until they return to civilization, and then they contract colds, just as diphtheria is contracted from diphtheria, and smallpox is contracted from smallpox.

No one who understands contagious and infectious diseases will deny that the common cold is a dangerous disease and is epidemic. Between ten and fifteen per cent of the population at large is affected by colds at one time, and it also has been noted that it goes through schools, homes, factories, and other places where people are closely congregated, resulting in a considerable loss of time and money. While the common cold of itself is not so dangerous, the complications that follow are dangerous, and these may attack any part of the body. In my own experience, I have known several cases of fatal heart conditions and other serious constitutional disturbances to follow a severe cold.

Those who are so unfortunate as to have repeated attacks of colds, have their vitality so depressed that it favors the growth of other infections and hastens the progress of organic diseases. Colds are more contagious during the early stages, and those who have them, would not only benefit themselves but the community at large, if they would remain in bed during the first two or three days. Epidemics vary both in severity and contagiousness, in different seasons of the year. The disease depends upon the virulency of the microbe, or the various microbes, involved.

---

The everyday cares and duties which men call drudgery are the weights and counterpoints of the clock of time, giving its pendulum a true vibration and its hands a regular motion. And when they cease to hang from the wheels, the pendulum no longer swings, the hands no longer move, the clock stands still.—Longfellow.

Tom King: A Life History

PART NINE

By C. H. Porter

(Continued from the Herald of August 26, page 803.)

In the Mission Field

As a missionary Elder King has several things in his favor. He was in the thirty-sixth year of his age, was well versed in the scriptures, also in history of both nations and churches, was thoroughly convinced that the message he presented was true as touching life and salvation, was in no wise afraid of opposition, nor of hardship incident to poverty or adverse surroundings.

He went forth as a Crusader prepared to do battle for the right as God had given him grace to see it. He felt competent to bear faithful testimony to the message and to call upon men everywhere to repent of their sins and to accept the gospel of the kingdom of heaven as the power of God unto salvation. He did not expect to find the path strewn with roses, but felt that as the great Master had marked the way by the print of his feet, his disciples ought not to shrink from walking therein. Soon after his appointment, he attended conference and was, by resolution, instructed to do labor in certain portions of the field where previous labor had been performed and where some disturbance was caused by dissensions among the members.

He was cautioned not to seek to adjust matters but to preach the gospel and to administer to their needs as occasion might require, leaving the adjustment of difficulties for future action.

He left for the field of operation with but a small sum of money, believing that his needs would be provided for as occasion might require. He had three places named where he was instructed particularly to labor. The field was entirely new. He was a stranger in a, to him, strange community. The only letter of recommendation he had was his certificate of appointment. He had obtained names and addresses of a few members at the various places named. He had written letters to them stating that he was required by the conference to visit them and do what might be found necessary as a minister.

Upon arrival at the first place named in his instructions, he found people who welcomed him cordially and readily agreed to cooperate with him in gospel labor. A place to preach was procured, and he soon became warmly attached to them as brethren in Christ. They were kind, affectionate, and hospitable. The attachment thus formed always continued.

At the close of his labor there he had to go to a somewhat distant point for his second effort in carrying out the instructions of the conference. Before leaving, two or three asked if he had sufficient funds to carry him to the desired field. He said that he had. They expressed themselves as being relieved, for, said they, "We would gladly help you financially, but we are short of funds just now."

Tom did not tell them that it would be necessary for him to receive assistance at the next stopping place before he could leave. At the second point he stayed with a family of good people who were in very moderate circumstances. Before he could do any labor there, the worst storm ever known to the white settlers of Nebraska struck with all its fury and kept people confined to their homes for an unusual length of time. Tom suffered in common with the members of the family where he was, but they shared with him what they had, and for this he was thankful. It was decided that no labor could be done there at that time. It was impossible to get around among the members in the vicinity.

The brother with whom he stayed succeeded in introducing him to one family of Saints. After saying good-bye, the brother called him back and asked if he had sufficient funds to take him to his next point of labor. He said, "I am not sure that I have." "Well," said he, "I am short of money myself, but here is fifty cents I shall be pleased to give you. I wish it was more." Tom thanked him and said that would be sufficient to get him to his next stopping place.

At parting the brother with whom he stayed said he was sorry he could not assist him financially, but it was impossible. Tom thanked him for his hospitality and said he would get along all right. As he was leaving, he was given a large apple. This he put away for future use.

He was told at the depot that they were not certain that the train would get through to his destination, but they were selling tickets at the buyer's risk. They were sure they could make it to a point where he would have to change cars.

When Tom had purchased a ticket, he had but thirty-five cents left. He hoped the train would get through to his destination, but it did not. It plowed its way to where he had to change, and he was there told that the first train out would start in the morning. It was late in the afternoon. It was bitterly cold, and thirty-five cents seemed precious little to Tom, who had eaten nothing but a big apple since breakfast. What to do was the question. He had to sleep somewhere. He was in a strange town. He knew no one.

Leaving his baggage at the depot, he walked up the street until, coming to what appeared to be a cheap rooming house, he went in and asked what they could furnish him a bed for, for the night. The man said, "If you don't mind using an outdoor stairs, I can let you have a bed for a quarter." Tom looked at the bed and agreed to take it. The man told him he could come in when he pleased and get up when he wanted to.

Tom paid him the price and felt relieved. He took another walk and seeing a young boy in a grocery store he entered and bought ten cents worth of crackers and cheese. This also relieved his mind and ministered to his present necessity. He ate a portion of his purchase for supper and carefully kept the remainder for his next morning breakfast.

He attended a religious meeting at a church in town in the evening, after which he went to his room feeling thankful that he had not had to reveal his somewhat desperate condition to anyone.

A scant supper and a cold room did not discourage him, and he consoled himself with the thought that many a good man had possibly had a like experience, and even the Master had said, "The Son of Man had not where to lay his head."

The next day was bright and clear, but trains ran slowly and it was early afternoon when Tom arrived at his destination. He had hoped that some one would be at the station to meet him, but being disappointed in this he inquired the distance and direction to the home of people whose names had been given him. He was told that the roads were not yet open.

There was nothing for him to do but to make the distance, several miles, on foot. The people advised him not to make the attempt, but he said that he could make it. He found snowdrifts everywhere, but where it would have been impassable for a team Tom found no particular difficulty, as the cold winds had hardened the surface, making it possible to travel reasonably well on foot.

He arrived at the home of friends in the middle of the afternoon, weary with his extended fast and exercise. After being made comfortable, the lady of the house said, "I suppose I ought to get you something to eat, but the men are working in the woods, and unless you are hungry perhaps you will not mind waiting until they return?"

Tom said that would be all right. He felt that having made the trip successfully the missing of a meal was of little consequence. Had the lady known that Tom was hungry she would certainly have ministered to his wants, but this she was never conscious of. It remained a secret safely kept by the one most interested.

He was told that upon receipt of his letter, meetings to be held at the schoolhouse, commencing that evening, were arranged for. This was satisfactory.

He then inquired concerning a family whose name had been given him, and was told that they lived not far away, and that if he cared to see them before evening they could direct him through the woods so that he would not miss the way. Thinking it would be well for them to be notified of his arrival, he decided to call on them. The direction was easily kept, and he arrived at their home in good time for a short visit and to get supper.

After supper, as he saw no sign of preparation for the evening service, he asked if they were going. They said they thought they would not attend that evening but would do so later. This was somewhat discouraging for the elder, especially as he was unacquainted with the people. He had hoped that the brother would accompany him to the schoolhouse and introduce him to the people. He made no comment but asked for direction and started early so as to avoid any possible mischance. He arrived safely and found the house well filled with young people but very poorly lighted. At the proper time he called the house to order, explained why he was there, and said he hoped they would have an interesting and profitable series of meetings.

They listened attentively to his remarks, sang a familiar hymn, and everything went smoothly until preaching was commenced. Then a change occurred. Instead of listening attentively as he had hoped they would, they commenced to talk, laugh, shuffle feet, anything apparently to confuse the speaker. He stopped suddenly, and, when silence was obtained, gave a personal talk, telling them he hoped they would not spoil the effort by misconduct, that he hoped to hold a series of meetings with them but that it would be useless and a waste of time to do so unless they would give him serious attention.

They listened silently and respectfully to his remarks, but as soon as he recommenced to preach they began the disturbance again. One young boy in front of the rostrum pulled out a revolver, placed it on the desk before him, and twirled it with his finger. Tom stopped preaching and said, "Please arise, and sing the Doxology." They arose promptly, sang the Doxology, and were dismissed. Tom gathered up his books and started for the door.

A young man said, "Aren't you going to have service tomorrow night?" He said, "No. I should consider it a waste of time."

He inquired the direction to the house where he was to be entertained, and felt somewhat forlorn as he wended his way across the snow-clad fields. When he arrived at the home he found a large family present. They asked concerning the meeting, and having heard Tom's report they said it was too bad, but they thought it would be better later.

Tom told them he had left no appointment. He felt that he could not afford to contend with a congregation of young people who cared for nothing but to have a place to meet. He felt that at least some of the friends of the church ought to have been present, so that order might have been preserved. They seemed to desire meetings, but hadn't, as yet, felt disposed to make an effort to attend.

Tom was in a peculiar position. He had been sent there by the conference. He had apprised the ones who ought to have been interested, so that the appointments were made for a series of meetings. He had made the attempt but had received no aid nor assistance from the ones to whom he was sent. After viewing the situation, he felt justified in declining to continue the meetings.

They asked what he thought of doing. He said he would like to get to Nebraska City. Conference would soon meet there, and he would make report of what he had done and determine while there his future course.

He asked if they were intending to drive to the "city" soon. They said they would go in with a load of wood as soon as the roads were open so that they could travel.

Tom stayed with them a few days and then went with two of them to the "city." The trip was a rough one, and the weather was cold, but he was more than pleased to get an opportunity to make the trip.

He made report to the conference, and while there made arrangement for future work. John Evergood, an Englishman of large and varied experience, was at the conference. He invited Tom to go home with him and promised him a schoolhouse in which to hold meetings and an orderly people to address. Tom accepted the invitation. The schoolhouse was six or seven miles from the one in which he declined to hold a series of meetings before attending the conference.

He had good success at this place. People came from all the vicinity. After preaching there for a while, a gentleman approached him one night, at the close of the service, and asked where he intended to go after closing the meetings where he was. He said he hadn't decided yet, but was willing to hold meetings anywhere where the people were willing to entertain him, find a place to hold meetings, and to preserve order. The gentleman said the people of his neighborhood would do that and would be pleased to have him hold a series of meetings in their schoolhouse.

Tom inquired particularly where the schoolhouse was, and finally it dawned upon him that it was the place where he had previously tried to hold meetings and had failed; so he said, "Why, I have been to your schoolhouse intending to hold some meetings and failed because nobody came out but a lot of young people, and all they seemed to care for was a place to meet to have a good time."

"Oh," said he, "are you the man that was there? Well, we are sorry that happened. You come again, and we will see that you have a good hearing and that order is preserved."

Tom thanked him and said he would see what could be done. He held a good many series of meetings there subsequently and never again had to address a disorderly congregation.

From this time forward Tom had no difficulty in finding places in which to present the gospel. He rejoiced in the work and felt well in its presentation.

(To be continued.)

A Last Minute Call

A WORD TO THE PROSPECTIVE STUDENT

By G. N. Briggs, President of Graceland College

You, like many others, are no doubt wondering whether this is the year to go to college. The country is in the midst of a period of unemployment and financial depression when it will be very difficult for you to enter the labor market with likelihood of a fair remuneration.

It is felt by President Hoover and his unemployment committee that you can best serve the interests of the country and your own interests by making every possible effort to enter college this year so as to be prepared at the end of a one, two or four year course to meet the requirements of industry and enter the enlarged field which a prosperous country will open to you.

President Hoover urges that in this period of unemployment is the time to prepare for the greatly improved economic conditions which are sure to return.

By taking advantage of this opportunity now, you will be ready when the time comes to take your place in the much larger field of employment which will open to you both as a result of your preparation and the return of prosperity with greatly increased demand for well-equipped young men and women.

Under present conditions there is very little of a constructive program possible. On the other hand, there is positive danger to your career in any protracted period of idleness.

You should plan on entering college. Sacrifices may be necessary, but they will pay abundant dividends. As a competent and serious student you are what the insurance world calls a "high class risk." Your future welfare depends on the capitalization of your investment. You can do this best by entering college.

This is a last minute call. Graceland opens September 4th. With its fully accredited standing,

CHURCH WORK AND SERVICES

New Quarterlies for October

C. B. Woodstock

Orders for church school quarterlies should be placed at once so that the new supply may be on hand for use the first Sunday in October. Every pupil of the school should be supplied with a quarterly for home study purposes and for use in the class recitation. All quarterlies above the Kindergarten age are designed for individual use.

Even with the Kindergarten and Primary ages, vast good will be done if parents read and talk the lesson with the children. The home is the best place in the world for certain processes of religious education. The home must cooperate with the church and the church school.

A New Church School Curriculum

Our quarterly materials are continually being revised, rewritten, and improved. Gradually we are building an excellent system of lessons, not only well fitted to the interests and capacities of the various ages, but covering in a logical way, the entire range of gospel informations and character-building experiences so necessary to develop a people of God.

A complete descriptive list of study materials, including thirty years of consecutive lessons, beside numerous pamphlets planned for study purposes, appeared in Vision for August. A special folder with a convenient order blank will be sent on request from the Herald Publishing House.

New Quarterlies

This is the regular second year for Kindergarten, Primary, Junior, Junior Young People, Senior Young People, and Older Young People cycles. The first year and the third year series in each case may be ordered if two or more classes are to be supplied in each department. Consult the list. There will be but one Adult quarterly newly printed this year.

The Junior Young People are to have a new well-prepared faculty, additional buildings, well-equipped library and laboratories, and various courses your needs can be fully met so that after a one, two, or three year course you will be ready to take advantage of the fine opportunities which both the state and the church will offer the well-prepared young man and woman.

---

quarterly prepared by E. E. Closson, entitled, Part one, "Making Decisions in Everyday Life." For the Senior Young People, Mrs. Anna Salyards has rewritten a splendid informational course in the History of Christianity, from the time of Christ down to the present building of Zion.

Older Young People will have a new year's course in the Restoration. The first two quarters are being written by Eugene and Julia Closson. Last year's course in "Religion in Life," by Leonard Lea, proved very popular. Two quarters were completely sold out, but two quarters still may be had by those who missed this study last year.

A New Book of Mormon Quarterly

"The Message of the Book of Mormon" will be the one new adult quarterly added to growing list of adult study materials. No similar study has been printed for a number of years. It seems very fitting that in this year of financial depression and world distress we are to study "the fullness of the gospel" as revealed in the Nephite record.

The first quarter will deal with "The Message of the Record," in its general aspects and in connection with ancient American tradition, records, and ruins. The second quarter will be largely biographical, "Messages of Men in Book of Mormon Times." The third and fourth quarters will seek to present the fullness of the gospel in Faith, Belief, and Practice as found in the Book of Mormon.

Jesus and His Message, by Christiana Salyards is our one lesson text in book form. It has already had a big sale and will be popular for adult and young people's class use the coming year. Fifty-two lessons, paper bound, seventy-five cents; cloth bound, one dollar.

In addition there are some twelve or more other adult courses printed in previous years, which are still available for Sunday evening or week-day classes. All quarterlies are priced fifteen cents each, fifty cents per year. Address, The Herald Publishing House, Independence, Missouri.

---

"The sense of shame and sin alone leads into despair and self-destruction, in one way or another. But Jesus' look, at which Peter wept, had in it that which not only made Peter rebuke himself; it had that in it which made Peter turn with hope and high resolve. He must indeed weep a little while in token of his repentance. But the fact is, that Peter went forth to a renewed and unshaken loyalty to his Master, which he finally sealed with a martyr's death. Peter saw in Jesus' look not only condemnation, but also salvation."—Tertius Van Dyke.

The Risen Christ in America

By C. B. Woodstock

The following extract is taken from one of the lessons in a new Book of Mormon quarterly being prepared for adult study beginning in October, 1931. The new quarterly will be entitled "The Message of the Book of Mormon," and will be the one adult quarterly being printed in the coming year.

For years there has been a growing demand for a new study of this scripture, which holds a tremendous message for Latter Day Saints, and for the world today. Too long its message has been neglected. The record was prepared by divine command, contains most valuable instruction in plain and simple language, has been miraculously preserved and given to the world as a necessary part of the latter-day Restoration. Under divine grace it must shed its light and carry its message of truth and power in a day and unto a people for whom it was divinely written.

Introduction

The advent and ministry of the Savior is the central theme of the Book of Mormon. Indeed, the outstanding message of the sacred record is "Jesus, the Christ, is the Son of God. He is the light, the life, and the truth of the world. In and through him we may find eternal life."

While the Old Testament is replete with prophetic anticipation of his coming, the Book of Mormon gives even more definite and detailed light regarding this central fact of history. The Book of Mormon tells us that 2,000 years before his coming he was seen by the brother of Jared. (Page 721, paragraph 76.) Ether, too, "saw the days of Christ" (750: 4) some 600 years before his birth. These are additional evidences both to the central fact of the divine mission of the Christ and to the revelation of God through which he is manifest unto those who by purity of life and the exercise of faith have come into divine presence. (28: 62; 31: 112; 79: 23.)

Lehi and Nephi in vision saw the coming of the Son of God and declared their faith in him who should come to take away the sin of the world. Alma and Moroni and Samuel the Lamanite all were given to know, through the power of faith, that Jesus should surely come as the Messiah, that he should be born and minister among the Jews and be crucified, but that he should be raised from the dead by the power of God and manifest himself in person among the Nephites.

Thus was the mission of Jesus foretold in greater detail among the Nephites than was known among the Jews, or than is given in Old Testament prophecy. With great confidence the righteous looked forward in their faith to the Christ who should come, and it was through this faith that their lives were made clean and acceptable unto God. Their belief ripened into a fullness of knowledge of Jesus as the Redeemer of the world, a fact upon which was based their love for God and their desire to walk in his ways. In like manner today our faith gives an assurance of the divine mission of Christ as the Son of God and our Savior, and looks forward to the establishment of his kingdom and his return to the earth. It is this faith, made dynamic in our lives, which constitutes the saving power of the gospel.

The prophetic announcement of the coming of the Savior as given in the Book of Mormon told not alone of his physical existence and his earthly ministry, but through revelation men of God were given to know of his baptism, of his spiritual endowment, of his healing power, and of his death and resurrection. Moreover, they saw and explained with great clearness the significance of his ministry, and his atonement for all men, perfected in the resurrection. (See pages 106, 191, 217, 220, 453, 556.)

The great message of the Book of Mormon is the declaration of the Christ and his ministry as the Savior of men. This, indeed, must be the central fact today, as anciently. He is the light and life of the world. To bear especial witness of this fact were the ancient American records kept, and have they been brought to light in our day. Not only have we this additional testimony and this special urge to righteousness, but by the fullness of God's word shall we be judged.

Signs of Jesus' Birth

Brief reference has been made in former lessons to the prophecy of Samuel, a Lamanite convert among the Nephites, in the city of Zarahemla. This was five years before Jesus was born. With clearness of prophetic vision, the two days without an intervening night were foretold as the sign of his coming. With great boldness the people were called to repentance and faith in God and in the Son of God who should come to redeem mankind. In due course of time, even though few believed the word, the prophecy was fulfilled. (See lesson 6, and Book of Mormon 600-602.) "And it came to pass that there was no darkness in all that night, but it was as light as though it was midday." (602: 21.)

In the maze of ancient American legend, one stands out as significant, quoted by Bancroft in Native Races, volume 5, page 566: "And this division was made on a day when three suns were seen, which has caused some to think that it took place on the day of the birth of the Redeemer, a day on which it is commonly believed that such a meteor was observed." See also New Light on American Archaeology, by L. E. Hills, pages 155-158.

Signs of Jesus' Death

The signs of Jesus' death, which were literally fulfilled according to the Book of Mormon record, we have discussed at length in a recent lesson. Evidently the cataclysm extended over the Western Continent, if, indeed, it did not include the whole surface of the earth. We are told in Matthew 27: 51 that when Jesus died on the cross "the veil of the temple was rent in twain from the top to the bottom, and the earth did quake, and the rocks were rent." Also in verse 45 that "There was darkness over the earth from the sixth unto the ninth hour," while Jesus hung upon the cross.

The account of these signs and the destruction of life and property which was wrought is given in the Book of Mormon, pages 624 to 627. Elder H. A. Stebbins, in his Book of Mormon Lectures, devotes several pages to quotations from reliable authors who write of traditions of a great cataclysm, by wind and earthquake and flood and fire which destroyed great cities and swept away vast numbers of people. See Book of Mormon Lectures, pages 227-232.

Mrs. Louise Palfrey Sheldon, in the Divinity of the Book of Mormon Proven by Archaeology, quotes Professor Baldwin (Ancient America, page 186): "Brousseau de Bourbourg claims that there is in the old Central American books a constant tradition of an immense catastrophe. The land was shaken by frightful earthquakes, and the waves of the sea combined with volcanic fires to overwhelm and engulf it." Bancroft (in Native Races, volume 5, page 209) probably refers to the same event. It lasted for several days he says, "and all the time they were in darkness, seeing neither sun nor moon."

We are impressed with the fact that the Book of Mormon record is not left without an abundance of evidence continually being brought to light confirming its truthfulness.

The Ministry of Jesus

Jesus appeared after his ascension, hence in his spiritual body. (631: 74.) He appeared to the faithful, who had been spared the awful destruction accompanying the sign of his death. These were gathered at the temple in the land Bountiful. He came to those who had been preparing their lives for his advent. Many, if not all, of the wicked had been cut off. Those who remained had passed through the soul-searching experiences of the three days of darkness and had been made humble and truly repentant, for they had beheld the destruction of the wicked and their hearts had been made to burn within them under the piercing voice of Jesus who entreated them to forsake wholly their follies and to turn unto him that they might live.

Perhaps few today who pray for the hastening day when Jesus shall return appreciate all that his coming may imply. Have we made the preparation necessary? Are we ready to stand in his presence? Perhaps more than we think, present distressing conditions in the world today have been permitted to come as a part of that very process.

During the days of Jesus' ministry, and in the years immediately after, there was the greatest peace ever known among men. This doubtless was due in large measure to the presence of the Master, himself, and the prevalence of his Spirit among the people. True, the grossly wicked had been destroyed and those who remained had been powerfully moved, both by the terrible experience of the three days and later by the actual presence and ministry of the risen Savior.

Jesus' Teachings

Of all the words ever written by man, none express more beautifully and with more convincing power the gift of God and his blessing among men than does the account of Jesus' ministry as recorded by Nephi the Disciple. We quote from the writing of his Son Nephi, who succeeded his father in keeping the record. The disciples of Jesus began at once to preach, to teach, and to baptize, and they established the church in all the regions round about.

"All the people were converted unto the Lord upon all the face of the land, both Nephites and Lamanites, and there were no contentions and no disputations among them, and every man did deal justly one with another.

"And they had all things common among them, therefore there were not rich and poor, bond and free, but they were all made free and partakers of the heavenly gift.

"And there were great and marvelous works wrought by the disciples of Jesus, insomuch that they did heal the sick and raise the dead and cause the lame to walk, and the blind to receive their sight, and the deaf to hear.

"And they did not walk any more after the performances and ordinances of the law of Moses, but they did walk after the commandments which they had received from their Lord and their God, continuing in fasting and prayer, and in meeting together oft, both to pray and to hear the word of the Lord.

"And it came to pass that there was no contention in the land, because of the love of God which did dwell in the hearts of the people. And there were no envyings, nor strifes, nor tumults, nor whoredoms, nor lying, nor murders, nor any manner of lasciviousness;

"And surely there could not be a happier people among all the people who had been created by the hand of God."—4 Nephi 1: 3, 4, 6, 13, 14, 18, 19.

It should be noted that in this great blessing which came to both Nephite and Lamanite alike, God fulfilled his promise made to the Lamanites in the day when their curse of a dark skin came upon them—their sin should be forgiven and they should become a white and a delightsome people when they should return unto the Lord and keep his statutes. (Pages 97 and 159.) Nephi states (872: 11): "And they became an exceeding fair and delightsome people" in the years of the golden age of the Nephites.

The Melchisedec Priesthood Is Given

Jesus recognized the church as it was established among the Nephites, and chose eleven others to serve with Nephi, the disciple, as special witnesses or standing ministers over the church. To these twelve disciples he gave special instruction for their ministry and ordained them that they should baptize with water and with the Holy Ghost. He evidently conferred upon them the Melchisedec priesthood. (653: 70, 71, and 760, 761.) Although given many duties of apostles, these twelve are always referred to as disciples. When some were taken by death, others were ordained in their stead. (638: 16.) It was three of the original twelve who were permitted to remain as continual ministers for

THE GOSPEL FORUM

Under this heading we shall be glad to receive and publish articles and letters of interest to our readers on the doctrine and work of the church. Writers are responsible for their own views. Other views on subjects discussed here will be received if of sufficient interest.

Further Thoughts on Preparation for Membership

By Arthur H. DuRose

I read with considerable interest the article by E. Y. Hunker in the Gospel Forum of the Herald of August 5 on "Neglected Instruction," and I find myself very much in accord with the sentiments he expresses. The membership records of our branches are filled with names of people who never come to church.

Too often we of the local ministry have baptized and laid hands on folks at their first request, trusting that somehow they would acquire the necessary instruction for membership in good standing afterward. Oftentimes in a missionary campaign, numbers of people are taken into the church who know nothing of the work except perhaps the initiatory principles, and when later they hear discussed such

---

Christ in the world until the end of time. (676-680.) And Nephi, their leader, was also the spiritual head of the church among the Nephites. At a time when the disciples had met in fasting and prayer that they might know the name by which the church should be called, Jesus came unto them and showed them plainly that it should be called the Church of Christ. (672, 673.)

Other Sheep

When Jesus was among the Nephites, he told them of still "other sheep" whom he was to visit. We are in the habit of thinking that Jesus meant the Nephites when he said to the disciples in Jerusalem: "Other sheep I have which are not of this fold; them also I must bring, and they shall hear my voice; and there shall be one fold and one shepherd."—John 10: 16. But Jesus explained that he had in mind other tribes of Israel, as well as the Nephites and the Lamanites, to whom the Savior would reveal himself. He says further, "I have other sheep which are not of this land; neither of the land of Jerusalem, neither in any parts of the land round about, whither I have been to minister. For they of whom I speak are they who have not as yet heard my voice; neither have I at any time manifested myself unto them. But I have received a commandment of the Father, that I shall go unto them, and that they shall hear my voice, and shall be numbered among my sheep, that there may be one fold, and one shepherd; therefore I go to show myself unto them." (645: 24-26.) Again, after further ministry, when Jesus was about to leave, he said: "But now I go unto the Father, and also to show myself unto the lost tribes of Israel, for they are not lost unto the Father, for he knoweth whither he hath taken them." (648: 4.)

It may be significant that Jesus said in Matthew 15: 24, "I am not sent but to the lost sheep of the house of Israel"; and in John 10: 14, "I am the good shepherd, and know my sheep, and am known of mine." And in John 10: 3 and 4, ". . . he calleth his own sheep by name, and leadeth them out . . . he goeth before them, and the sheep follow him: for they know his voice."

matters as "The Gathering," "Zion," "Tithing," etc., they lose interest.

Because the kingdom of heaven is like a net cast into the sea, which gathers in of all kinds, we have thought that we must keep in the net everything which chooses to enter, hoping that somehow the good fish in the net will not be injured by the other kind. Have we no right to refuse membership in the church to those whom we have every reason to believe will be a detriment to the church as well as to themselves? Must we take into the church the vicious, the shiftless, the lazy, merely because under the spell of some preacher's oratory they have a temporary surge of emotion, well knowing that in spite of their uselessness to the church, possibly not one per cent can be removed from the records by due process of the law? This church is as we say the kingdom of God on earth, but this does not insure the useless member an entrance to realms of glory. We all admit that he would be condemned as readily in the church as out of it. So why not let us exercise the law of God and thereby use a little discrimination in the material of which we construct the kingdom militant, knowing that only the useful material can build Zion?

Must we admit the truth of the statement of Jesus even at this late date, that the children of this world are in their generation wiser than the children of light? Even the great Mother Church insists upon giving instruction to candidates before receiving them by baptism (sprinkling), two to three months being the average time required. Some of the other churches have probationary periods in which candidates are expected to demonstrate the reality of their avowed purpose over a definite period of time.

The thought is expressed, however, in the above mentioned article, page 734 and paragraph numbered 3, that the instruction is to take place "after they are received by baptism" and "previous to their partaking of the sacrament and being confirmed by the laying on of the hands of the elders." (Doctrine and Covenants 17:18.)

But surely this is too late to insure that the material already received is of good quality. Notice, according to Doctrine and Covenants 17:7 that persons are "received by baptism into his church." After they have been baptized, they have been received into the church, and the only thing to do then is to hope that the material plus the subsequent instruction will produce a good member.

Let us examine paragraph 7: "All those who humble themselves before God and desire to be baptized . . . and witness before the church that they have truly repented of all their sins, . . . and truly manifest by their works that they have received of the Spirit of Christ, . . . shall be received by baptism into his church." How long does it take to witness before the church that they have truly repented, or to manifest by their works that they have received of the Spirit of Christ?

While not for one moment would we consider the expounding of all things subsequent to baptism unnecessary, particularly as God has commanded it, surely we should also heed the other command, equally as binding, that a prerequisite for baptism is to "manifest by their works," etc.

The point I am trying to make is that one part of God's command on a given subject is as binding as another, and that it seems better sense to control what comes in by the door, than to try to change poor material into good material by instruction.

I know that this viewpoint lays itself open to attack, because some will say that "Christ came not to call the righteous but sinners to repentance," but I am not contending that a sinner is of necessity poor material for kingdom of God building, nor would I contend that the good moral man will of necessity make good material for kingdom of God building.

I am suggesting, however, that many times owing to our haste in baptizing we bring into the church material which can never be good building material, because the lax, lazy, vicious, selfish, habits of a lifetime can be overcome only by a determination which has the real vital Spirit of Christ as its motive power; and blind ourselves to it as we will, the fact remains that too large a percentage of the "converts" to the church have merely a temporary surge of emotion.

I concur in the suggestions that Elder Hunker offers, and would add that the general authorities of the church should make definite pronouncement as to a minimum time which should elapse between the time that the candidate asks for baptism and the time that the baptism is performed. What could be the objection to the elder advising the candidate that the requirement of the church is that (we will say) one month should elapse between the request and the baptism, and a similar decree could with profit be made regarding the time between baptism and confirmation?

Definite teaching material should be prepared for converts, as the general run of expository material available is hardly suitable to the purpose of educating an inquirer or a new convert in the doctrines, the beliefs, and the practices of the Gospel of the Restoration.

God is the circle of which the center is everywhere and the circumference is nowhere.—Selected.

NEWS OF CHURCH AND HOME

Address all news and letters to Editors of the Herald, Box 237, Independence, Missouri. Correspondents are requested to make their letters brief. The Editors reserve the right, on account of space limitations, to shorten all letters as circumstances require.

Far West Stake Reunion

An outstanding spirit of fellowship, ideal camping conditions, consecrated workers, and a large band of devoted Saints combined to make the Far West stake reunion an outstanding success.

With a peak attendance of nearly two thousand people present on the closing day, the 1931 reunion went down in history as a new milestone in the history of the stake. No camp rules were made, and none were needed. The large camp and the many visitors demonstrated that Latter Day Saints can live together in piece without a lot of petty regulations.

The weather man was very kind. No extremely hot temperatures prevailed, and the Saints and their friends came from far and near. Every stake in the church and many of the districts were represented. Attendance started above normal and gained continually during the entire ten-day period.

The reunion opened on Thursday night, August 13, at eight o'clock with a sacrament service. A large crowd attended and partook of the sacred emblems. The theme for the service was "Inviting God to the Reunion." The spirit gained through this opening service remained in the hearts of the people during the entire time.

Class work started Friday morning with President F. M. McDowell teaching the first period at ten o'clock, followed by Apostle J. F. Garver at eleven o'clock. The classes continued each morning at the same hours. Both Brother McDowell and Brother Garver delivered inspiring messages to their large classes from morning to morning. An unusual interest was shown in these classes, which were accredited.

The young people's prayer services showed an outstanding interest. Growing from an attendance of twenty-eight the first morning to three hundred twenty-five the last Sunday morning, the meetings gained momentum as they progressed. A wonderful Spirit was present in these early morning prayer services, and the young people were greatly strengthened and encouraged. A general theme of "I Would Be True" was carried out from morning to morning, each day bringing a sub-theme, such as "If I Would Be True, I Must Qualify," "If I Would Be True, I Must Be of Service," etc. These themes were beautifully expressed in the opening of the service by various men, and the young people responded with their best desires and ambitions. Elder G. T. Richards, missionary, was in charge of these services and made a wonderful contribution.

At nine o'clock each morning the Saints met in general prayer service. These services were in charge of Apostle J. F. Garver and were a source of much encouragement to all who attended. On Friday morning, August 21, the young and older ones met in a joint prayer service. A wonderful Spirit prevailed, and the gift of prophecy was present. The theme was "Cooperation," and young and old alike made the service one to be long remembered.

Perhaps the best services of the reunion were the evening preaching services by President F. M. McDowell. Large crowds listened attentively each evening to the message Brother McDowell so forcefully set forth. His analysis of world conditions and his insight into the way out enabled him to stress with more than usual conviction that "the way of the cross is the way of life."

Each evening following the preaching service a recreational hour program was given by the young people from the various branches in the stake. Sunday night, August 16, following immediately after Brother McDowell's sermon on "The Way of the Cross," the Ul-Lik-Us Players of First Saint Joseph Church, presented the religious drama, "The Challenge of the Cross." The spirit of the sermon and this beautiful little drama touched the hearts of the audience.

Stewartsville young people presented a radio broadcast one evening, Cameron gave a short comedy, Oakdale-Kings-ton Branches gave a comedy sketch and music, Maple Grove presented a comedy program, and the First Saint Joseph O. T. Z.'s gave a musical program with several numbers in costume. On several nights illustrated lectures and miscellaneous programs met the approval of those attending.

The children's work was in charge of Mrs. G. Scott Daniel, who made an outstanding contribution. Handwork and worship services, including children's prayer meetings on Sunday mornings, were conducted for them.

The afternoons were devoted to recreational activities. Volley ball, baseball, and horseshoe were provided for those who cared to play. The women sponsored several afternoon programs, including lectures and some handwork.

Friday afternoon was Cabin Builders' Day. A short and fitting ceremony was conducted for those who had built cabins for the reproduction of the city of old Far West. A badge of distinction was given to each one who had thus achieved.

The exhibit, which was housed in the Stewartsville church during the reunion, was a great attraction. There were eight hundred and twenty quarts of canned fruits and vegetables on display, together with much fancywork. About two hundred cabins were used in the reproduction of the miniature city of Far West. The exhibit was open every afternoon, and about one thousand five hundred visitors viewed the fruit exhibit and re-lived some of the experiences of the early Saints as they saw this miniature city of old Far West.

Wednesday afternoon was set aside as Community Exhibit Day. Preceding this, the young people visited many of the homes in Stewartsville, explaining the nature of the exhibit and inviting the townspeople to view it. Cars were sent to their doors, and the response was even better than had been anticipated. Most of the community passed through the exhibit hall.

A commissary, refreshment stand, and gasoline station were maintained and operated on the grounds at a small profit. The expense budget of the reunion was oversubscribed.

In addition to the general appointees who were in attendance during the entire reunion, Bishop G. Leslie DeLapp, of the Presiding Bishopric, Apostle F. Henry Edwards, and Elder Blair Jensen, president of Lamoni Stake, were present and delivered some outstanding messages. Patriarch W. A. McDowell was on the grounds during the entire reunion, working in his field.

The music for all services was provided under the direction of the stake music committee. Special musical numbers were provided for each Sunday.

Following the ten days of intensive worship, a large group of men gathered together last Monday morning and worked as they had worshiped—cooperatively. The big tent is stored away, the commissary is locked up, the scores of small tents are gone, but the spirit of the reunion lives on in the lives of those who attended.

Southern Indiana Conference

Conference of the Southern Indiana District convened at Byrnsville, Indiana, August 15 and 16. District President J. O. Dutton was in charge. There were also in the stand Apostle Clyde F. Ellis, H. W. Burwell, of Louisville, Kentucky, and A. W. Gage, Indianapolis. A splendid spirit prevailed throughout the entire conference. Business was transacted in harmony, and the sermons delivered were of fine character.

Plano, Illinois

The annual church picnic was held three weeks ago at Cress Springs Park east of town. This is a beautiful place, and the picnic was well attended. We went after dinner and ate supper there.

On a recent Sunday little Sumner Walker, eldest son of Brother Foster and Sister Bessie Walker, was baptized by Brother L. O. Wildermuth, who also baptized Sumner's mother when she was a child. He was confirmed at the church school session.

Brother C. C. Malcor, of Aurora, worshiped here recently and assisted in the pulpit as Jerome F. Wildermuth preached.

About twenty Plano people attended the recent ice cream social given by Sandwich members.

Beryl, second son of J. E. and Ava Wildermuth, of Aurora, has been working on a farm near town since July 4, and making his home with his aunt here. He finds it impossible this year to return to Graceland.

The only bank in town closed lately. This has caused individuals much hardship, and the branch, too, has suffered. Its funds were deposited there.

Brother Charles and Sister Doris Wildermuth and children, of South Dakota, are here on a visit, the first in three years. Brother Wildermuth gave a lecture Sunday evening on their teaching among the Indians. He displayed some lovely beadwork.

Tuesday, August 18, being Brother Wildermuth's birthday, the Saints gave him a surprise party at the home of his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. John Moore. More than forty were present.

A priesthood meeting of four near-by branches will be held here August 30.

The divisions of the church school hold their sessions each month. The adults gave an interesting service very recently under the leadership of Sister Grace Johnson.

District President J. F. Wildermuth and sons were here a few days on their vacation, visiting Brother Lester Wildermuth's parents. They had a happy family reunion. Brother Lester Wildermuth is now returning to his field in Montana.

Fanning, Kansas

We are holding the gospel fort here. Have had good attendance all along except on two very rainy Sundays when no sessions were had. This is a farming community, and the Saints are scattered over the country for miles around.

Last March Brother James A. Thomas and family moved into the vicinity, and they have materially helped in the branch. Brother Thomas was the speaker the first Sunday they arrived and has talked several times since. They were welcomed by a house-warming and pound party soon after they moved in.

The sacrament services each month are spiritual meetings well attended by the Saints.

Mrs. Mittie Hedrick Young remains very ill. She has been confined to her bed for some months. Her sister, Melissa Jackson, of Denver, recently came to her bedside.

Virginia Tilden and Ernest Keller were married some months ago. They are moving to a farm near Bendena, Kansas.

Sylvia Chesnut, Vern Simpson, and Wayne Simpson, who attended summer school at Emporia, Kansas, returned last week.

Brother Samuel Twombly will manage the chautauqua part of the Sparks picnic August 29 and 30.

Late copious rains in this territory have assured the farmers and fruit growers of a good return for their labor. We are grateful to the Father who watches all.

On a recent Sunday two carloads of Saints, one from Sabetha and one from Wichita, Kansas, stopped at the eleven o'clock services.

Some of the Fanning members were able to attend part of the Stewartsville reunion in Far West Stake.

Coffeyville, Kansas

The approach of the fall season with its gift of harvest things, reminds us that we have many blessings for which we should be thankful. In the uncertainties of life, we are sure of one thing—God's goodness to us.

Elders R. Davey and Lee Quick were here quite recently, holding a two weeks' series of meetings. Brother Davey preached some wonderful sermons. He also started the branch to work. We had long planned to paper and clean up the church. Brother Davey hung the paper, and everyone helped. The result is that we have a clean and cozy little church of which we are all proud.

Brothers Quick and Davey went to Nowata, Oklahoma, from here. A number of Coffeyville Saints attended some of the meetings.

Coffeyville has adopted the church school plan, and most of the Saints like it.

Not many social activities have marked the branch record, but with the coming of fall we hope to have more.

Because of the smallness of the branch, we seem to have little news. We write this to tell the church that we continue active in the gospel work, and we ask the prayers of all for our success.

San Antonio, Texas

First Branch, Rockwell Court and South Cherry Streets

Notwithstanding hot weather and other unfavorable conditions, First San Antonio Branch still strives to keep the gospel fire alive.

On the third Sunday of the month of August, the Saints were favored with two splendid sermons. Elder Yerrington chose for his morning subject "The Ten Virgins." A good crowd heard him and commented favorably. In the evening Brother John Robinson, of Second Branch, spoke, being blessed with splendid liberty. He stressed the importance of the representatives of Christ having authority and the significance of continued revelation. This sermon was greatly appreciated. Other speakers of the month were Teddy Dorow and Rouss Eastham, of the local priesthood.

The second Sunday morning hour was set aside for the juniors. Brother E. L. Henson was the speaker, assisted by some of the juniors who gave readings.

Brother T. J. Sheppard, an old-time missionary of this State, gave two good discourses in the recent past. Although Brother Sheppard is now on the declining side of life's journey, his sermons had the old-time ring, and we were glad to hear him preach.

Brother Tom Sheppard, a brother of Sister Henson, assisted at the sacrament service. He and his family, of Missouri, are visiting the Henson family. Brother and Sister Henson's daughter, Esther, also has been the guest of her parents for some time. She recently returned to her home in Washington.

Some of the branch activities have been discontinued for the remainder of the summer. Among these is the Women's Department, or the Blue Bonnet Club. This group had been meeting in the parks where it was very pleasant. The women were studying Gregory's Seven Laws of Teaching, under the leadership of Sisters Yerrington and Flossie Waite. They completed the course. Sister John Robinson, of Second Branch, often met with them and on one occasion delivered a lecture on "The Restoration" which was most instructive.

Sister Charley Jarvis has been seriously ill but at last report was some better. Deacon Edson Waite has been in feeble health for some time to the extent that he has been unable to perform his duties. We trust that these members will, in the near future, be restored to health and strength.

Skiatook, Oklahoma

August 16 Skiatook Saints motored to Sperry church for their children's baptismal service. T. P. Greenwood, pastor of Skiatook Branch, had charge and had made arrangements to make this a reverential and beautiful service. W. P. Rumsey, pastor of Sperry Branch, gave the evening preaching service for this occasion.

While soft music was played by Sister Mozell Elloit, the candidates, dressed in white baptismal robes, marched from the library room to the seat in front of the pulpit and were seated. The parents of the children sat just behind them. The opening hymn was "Jesus, I My Cross Have Taken." Brother Rumsey offered prayer, after which Sister T. P. Greenwood told a story, "The Boy Knight." In the story a word picture was drawn of a boy who wished to become a knight, and it was the good, pure lives of the men whom he knew to be knights that gave him this desire. His life was molded by good deeds, and he was permitted to join the knights—the brotherhood of the Christian world. He took his vow. A choir of children sang:

"He will now receive you if your hearts you bring Humbly to the Savior, heaven's exalted King;
For the invitation, gracious, full, and free,
Says to all the children, Come, O come to me."

While soft music was played the candidates marched to the rostrum and sang:

"Jesus, we are coming to thy loving arms,
Safely there reposing, sin no longer harms,
From the wiles of Satan thou canst set us free,
Tho' we're little children, we will come to thee."

The eight candidates were seated on the rostrum, and Brother Rumsey conducted each to the font, which was beautifully decorated with white lilies, pond lilies, and delicate-colored morning-glories. Brother T. P. Greenwood officiated in the ordinance of baptism. While the candidates were changing clothes, Brother F. Ed Dillon, of Oklahoma City, district president, talked on the importance of baptism. Then as soft music was played, the candidates marched to seats on the rostrum for confirmation. Sister Greenwood told the story, "The Knight of the Cross."

Brother Ellis Rathbun gave the remarks on "Laying On of Hands," then followed the confirmation, Brothers F. Ed Dillon, W. P. Rumsey, Ellis Rathbun, and T. P. Greenwood officiating. We sang "The Old, Old Path" for closing. The service will be long remembered.

Saints of Skiatook Branch were deeply grieved because of the death of Sister Loyd Carter, caused from an insect bite which resulted in blood poison. She died in Saint John's Hospital at Tulsa, August 15. She was sick three days. Members are trying to help Brother Carter and his eight children. The youngest child is one year old and the oldest boy is eighteen. Brother Carter's sister, Sister Breeding, has come to make her home with them. Brother Carter is our Sunday school superintendent, and is improving the work from time to time.

Church work is progressing. Step by step the new church school plan is being taken up. Interest has been fairly good during the summer months. We have had ten baptisms, and there are a few prospects whom we expect to unite with the church.

Last Sunday evening Brother Harry Robinson and family, of Tulsa, with his father and mother, from San Antonio, Texas, were with us. It was Brother Harry's night to preach, but he with Brother Greenwood persuaded the father to preach. It was a good sermon. We hope to have him again.

Kewanee, Illinois

Corner Sixth and Tremont Streets

District President E. R. Davis and District Missionary F. C. Bevan opened a series of meetings August 5 and continued until August 23 with good attendance. Brother Bevan preached some powerful sermons. All who attended have been helped in a spiritual way, and feel a new determination to press on and do all they can to help in this great work.

Special music for these services was furnished by F. C. Bevan, Edwin Winquist, Ethel Mitton, Elizabeth Jones, Tressie Sanfleben, Ruby Atkinson, June Kubelius, Margaret Mitton, Margaret Burchett, Vera Winquist, Harry Jones, Donald Winquist, and Russell Taylor.

The Saints witnessed the beautiful ordinance of baptism Sunday evening, August 23, when Marjorie Kenneth and Lois Sandergren and Gene and Phyllis Swanson were baptized by Elder Harry Jones. Sunday morning, August 23, the infant son of Sister Mary Hoffman was blessed.

The church school held its annual picnic August 8. Games were played, and a basket supper was served at six o'clock.

Miss Charlotte Burchett and Chester Wilkinson were united in marriage July 31, Elder Harry Jones officiating. We wish this young couple much happiness and prosperity.

August 24 Aileen Burchett was baptized by Elder Harry Jones and confirmed by Elder Edward Jones and Missionary F. C. Bevan. Following the confirmation the Saints enjoyed a social evening in the lower auditorium of the church. F. C. Bevan was in charge of the games, and refreshments were served by the women.

The Reunion at Woodbine, Iowa

The joint reunion of Eastern Nebraska, Southwestern and Northwestern Iowa Districts, held at Woodbine, August 14 to 23, was the most outstanding reunion that has been held in this section of the country for many years. The spirit of fellowship among the people was excellent, and the power and light made manifest in the preaching and prayer services were above the average. Indeed the Saints were lifted to greater heights, their vision was enlarged, and their determination to serve more whole-heartedly was evident.

The attendance throughout the entire reunion exceeded that of the previous years. There were forty-four tents on the grounds, several people obtained rooms in town, and large numbers drove in from the surrounding country to attend the classes and other services.

Class work was ably conducted by Melvin Russell, pastor in Omaha, and E. Y. Hunker, missionary in western Iowa. Apostle E. J. Gleazer preached a series of missionary sermons with great power and light. He also conducted a round table in church problems. We were happy to have Apostle F. Henry Edwards with us a few days, who gave splendid instructions in the classes he conducted. Bishop G. L. DeLapp was in attendance during the last Saturday and Sunday and did some good work in laying before the people our present financial condition. Among the many things he did was to develop confidence among the Saints; he left an assurance that while we have a heavy load to carry, the present policy, if followed by the Bishopric and loyally supported by the people, will lead us to economic freedom.

The adult prayer meetings, presided over by Elder L. G. Holloway, was characterized by an intelligent response on the part of the people and by a goodly degree of the power of God. The Word of the Lord came with much assurance, admonishing, encouraging, instructing, and inspiring the Saints to a deeper appreciation of and a greater devotion to the church.

Sister Pearl Leise did an outstanding piece of work with the children which was much appreciated by all. Sister Dorothy Stoff directed the reunion choir, which furnished splendid music.

No small part of the reunion was the recreation directed by E. Y. Hunker and "Sandy" Smith. The volley ball and baseball games furnished plenty of excitement and thrills as well as exercise.

We feel sure this reunion was a source of great spiritual strength to the Saints. We were made to again know that this is God's church and that he is still with it today as he has been in the past. We were given the assurance that the church would finally triumph and that God would make bare his arm in the hastening of his work. Many were moved to rededicate themselves to the cause of Christ, and to go forward at any cost.

Artland, Saskatchewan

Artland Branch did what it could during Sacrifice Week. We felt blessed in coming together in fasting and prayer.

Owing to hard times throughout this region, not many were able to attend the district conference, but Apostle James A. Gillen called here on his way to Alberta District and gave two good sermons the evenings of July 27 and 28.

We held a two-day meeting August 1 and 2. Brother and Sister Ward L. Christy, of Saskatoon, were here to help, and some enjoyable meetings were had. A few members from Ribstone attended.

Sister Rosetta Cornish Atkinson is in the Macklin Hospital, where she underwent an operation for cancer.

Blenheim, Ontario

Elder and Sister R. H. Jones are leading the members of this branch to a broader understanding of the church and its objective, increasing the desire of everyone to move forward.

We have a small Sunday school composed of three classes, primaries, young people, and adults. While a march is played on the organ, the old and young march to their places.

Bishop Dent, speaker for August 9, delivered a splendid sermon on the theme, "How to Pray." The basis for his discourse was taken from Matthew 6.

The program for August 16 was as follows: Prelude, "Home, Sweet Home"; call to worship; hymn by the congregation; scripture reading; hymn; sermonet, "Vision of the Home," by R. H. Jones; hymn; reading, "Home"; offering, quiet music; closing hymn.

Readers, pray for us that we may take advantage of the opportunities offered, and ascend to the heights God would have his great church occupy. Here we add the adage: "Help thy brother's boat across, and lo, thine own has reached the shore!"

Brentwood, Missouri

Marshall and Berry Avenues

This branch is going forward in the good work. With the exception of Sunday evening services, regular meetings continue. It was thought wise not to hold meetings on Sunday evening during the summer months.

Two new families of Saints are in attendance. One of these had been living about three blocks from the church and did not know of the branch until another member happened to encounter them and mention the proximity of the church.

A number of people are now away on vacations, but in the fall their faces will again be seen in the congregation.

August 18 a few Brentwood members attended the farewell social at the Saint Louis Church. Elder Bruce Brown was leaving for Independence, and Brother Trowbridge for the South to take up his business.

Two older members of this branch have been taken from us. Brothers Kurrelmeyer and Ouillen. They are missed.

Brother Mills Nelson occupied the pulpit Sunday, August 16. This was his second attempt to preach, and he did well.

We should like to hear from other branches which have not reported their activities to Herald columns.

Kirtland Reunion

One of the most successful and best carried out reunions held by the Kirtland Reunion Association at Kirtland, Ohio, closed on August 16. The various motion of thanks, the singing of "God Be With You Till We Meet Again" and the blessing and benediction pronounced by Patriarch F. G. Pitt were fraught with good feeling, and brought to a climax a happy period of spiritual revival, edification and fellowship.

Attendance was not as large as in former years, but those who came wished to secure the best that a reunion can give. There were large crowds each Sunday.

In planning for the reunion the committee was gravely concerned as to the outlook. The general depression suggested postponement, but inspiration indicated that a reunion should be held. Brother John L. Cooper, pastor of Kirtland branch and in charge of the commissary department for the reunion, was encouraged to make preparations. Church land that hitherto had raised only hay was used for raising corn, potatoes, beans, etc. This had great influence in making the reunion a financial success. The prompt work of A. E. Anderton, secretary-treasurer, in bringing to the reunion, just before its close, a report showing that it was a financial success was greatly appreciated.

Apostle J. F. Curtis arrived the day before the opening and at the meeting for organization was associated with the committee in presiding over the reunion. Regrets were expressed that Apostle Clyde F. Ellis could not come.

The prayer meetings, held each morning at eight o'clock were well attended and marked by a high degree of spirituality. Many testimonies were given indicating the manifestation of the power of God and the truthfulness of the gospel. The gifts of tongues and prophecy were heard and prayers for the sick were answered.

Two periods of class work were held each day. In the first period there were classes by J. A. Gunsolley and A. E. Webbe. The subject of the first named was, "The Quest in Religious Education" and the second, "The Relation of Health to Stewardship." The second period Brother J. F. Curtis had all to himself and conducted a class on "Priesthood." These classes were well attended, and many stayed in their class through the five sessions. The work of each teacher was highly appreciated.

Interest in the work of Brother J. F. Curtis was keen. He is a diligent and enthusiastic teacher and has made a devoted study on the question of priesthood. His sermons were highly appreciated and the manner in which he mixed with the people showed that he was untiring in his efforts to make the reunion the success it was.

Sermons were delivered by Elders John R. Grice, G. T. Griffiths, F. G. Pitt, A. C. Silvers, John T. Gresty, W. I. Fligg, and J. E. Bishop. Each Sunday the reunion was visited by Bishop L. F. P. Curry, at which time he preached. He had eager attention and as the financial condition of the church is uppermost in the minds of the Saints. The candor and the clear descriptions of Bishop Curry, as to the condition of the finances, is bound to win friends and eventually bring about a better situation that will put the church on a sound financial foundation.

Sister Auverne Proper had charge of the beginners and the children of that age were well cared for each day. She was ably assisted by Mary Gale, Catherine Booher, and Sarah Booher. Junior service was conducted each day by Sister Gunsolley in the upper auditorium of the Temple. She was assisted by a number of people who gave stories and sermonets. Credit is due Sisters Proper and Gunsolley, each of whom made special preparation for her work and gave freely of her talent.

T. G. Neville had charge of the music and was assisted at the organ and piano by Sister Addie Clough and his son, Byron Neville. Many special numbers were graciously rendered by the musicians from various places.

One of the interesting features of the reunion was the presence of many veterans of church service. As members of the evangelical order there were Gomer T. Griffiths, F. G.

Pitt, A. D. Angus and John T. Gresty. A. E. Stone, who resides at Kirtland, was not able to attend the meetings.

There were many young people present and they wholeheartedly participated in the services and recreation. The recreation was in charge of Arthur Shepherd and Paul Booher, who provided a varied program of baseball, volley ball, horseshoe pitching and swimming. Several trips to the lake at Mentor Beach were enjoyed. Games were played at night, just after the sermon and before retiring. One evening a special program of songs and speeches was given in honor of Brother and Sister Taylor, of New Bedford, Massachusetts, who had been married a few days before.

Among the special features was a band concert given by the Lake County Band, the Graceland College program in charge of an old Graceland, J. A. Gunsolley, assisted by a number of Graceland alumni and Sister Gunsolley, and a play given by the Dramatic Club of Kirtland. This event realized a sum of over seventy dollars which was presented to the committee to apply on the indebtedness of the Kirtland Auditorium.

Another meeting of special importance was the unveiling of the pictures of Joseph Smith, the founder of the church, Joseph Smith, his son, and successor in the presidency of the church and Frederick M. Smith, the grandson of the founder, and successor of his father in the presidency of the church. These pictures were presented by Elder L. D. Ullom to the Kirtland Temple. Other pictures were presented by Brother Ullom and received by Brother Cooper, who has charge of the Temple.

The unveiling ceremony was organized by Brother John L. Cooper, who also had charge of the service. The veiled pictures were placed in front of the congregation and just under the pulpit. In the pulpit were Brother Cooper, in charge of the ceremony, Brother F. G. Pitt, who spoke at the unveiling of the picture of Joseph Smith, Brother J. F. Curtis, who spoke at the unveiling of the picture of the Martyr and James E. Bishop, who spoke at the unveiling of the picture of Frederick M. Smith. At appropriate times during the ceremony, solos were sung by Mrs. Lucretia Schniederhorse, Mrs. Louis Gauthier, and T. G. Neville. At the close a duet was sung by Brother and Sister Householder. At the request of Brother Cooper, the veils were lifted from the pictures by Ruth Evangeline Curry, Edith May Thomas, and Helen Cox, each being about twelve years old. As each picture was unveiled Brother Cooper announced the speaker. Brother Curtis spoke of the life and work of Joseph Smith, the first Prophet and President of the church. He invited the congregation to look at the picture, and said the very appearance of the man discredited the foolish and ill-grounded stories that had been told of him. Brother Curtis indicated his faith in the prophetic calling of Joseph Smith, the first President and Prophet of the church, which had been organized by command of God and as a result of the restoration of the gospel.

Brother F. G. Pitt spoke of his personal contact with Joseph Smith, in Plano, Illinois. Many incidents were related which revealed the loving personality of the man who had presided over the church for more than fifty years.

Brother James E. Bishop read a few biographical notes of F. M. Smith from the "Ancestry and Posterity of Joseph Smith and Emma Hale," and stated that perhaps the best judges of this man would live fifty years from now. The speaker suggested that the contribution that Frederick M. Smith had given to the church would be found in ideas of church government, education and the social aspects of Christ's teaching.

It would be impossible to mention the names of all who contributed to the success of the reunion and labored behind the scenes and at menial tasks. The success of the reunion largely depended on the preparations made by John L. Cooper and the efficiency of the commissary department, carried on by him and by A. E. Anderton. Sister Nutter was cook and rendered excellent service and Brother Martin Ahlstrom supervised the refreshment tent.

There has gone into history another significant reunion.

May the blessings of God that so stirred our hearts while sitting in the courts of Kirtland Temple, the house of the Lord, be reflected in our services in the days that are before us.

Brooksville Reunion

The annual reunion of Eastern and Western Maine Districts convened at the reunion camp on Walker Pond, at Brooksville, Maine, August 15. Apostle R. S. Budd presided over this gathering and associated with him were Elders Newman M. Wilson and Edward F. Robertson.

President Frederick M. Smith was a welcome visitor the first Saturday and Sunday of the reunion. His forceful sermon on, "Selfishness Is the Antithesis of Charity," was well received by a large audience.

Bishop E. L. Traver preached the first sermon on Sunday morning, the good news he brought to those assembled was that a loyal sister had offered to pay one thousand dollars toward the indebtedness on the reunion property providing the balance of five hundred and fifty dollars be subscribed by others. The members were assured that this laudable end had been attained, and the grounds were free from debt. Another item of good news came at the close of the reunion, informing us that the Western District had gone over the top, reaching its quota of the General Church Budget. We understand that this is the first one to raise its part.

Brother and Sister Hewitt were special workers. Their daughter and son, Marnie and Bill, accompanied them. Their presence and the service they rendered endeared them to the hearts of all.

Adult prayer meetings were held each morning at 9 o'clock and were presided over by Elders W. E. Rogers and Henry Eaton. Adult classes were conducted by Brothers Budd and Hewitt. The theme of the lessons taught by Brother Budd was "The Doctrine and Covenants and Latter-Day Revelation," while those presented by Brother Hewitt were the "Fundamental Principles of the Gospel."

The activities of the young people were under the direction of Brother and Sister Hewitt, Brother Dowker being associated with them. Prayer meetings were held each morning at nine o'clock. Two classes were conducted following this service. Sister Hewitt taught a course in the Book of Mormon and Brother Dowker took the class on short journeys in church history. A commendable spirit of interest and cooperation was in evidence in all the meetings. The old ties of gospel fellowship were strengthened and new ties were formed which promise good things for the future of the church work in the State of Maine.

Bishop and Sister M. C. Fisher, of Somerville, Massachusetts, were welcomed by their old friends near the close of the reunion. Sunday morning Brother Fisher preached on the present financial condition. Brother Budd preached two sermons on "The New Birth," and "Seek, Do and Teach." "The New Life," and "Service" were subjects presented by Brother Hewitt in his discourses.

"The Restoration" was the theme carried out each evening under the following headings: "The Need," "The Ministry," "The Message," "The Spirit," and "The Aim" by Elders Wilson, Dowker, Hewitt, Robertson, and Budd.

Eight were baptized during this reunion. They are, Virginia P. Hatch, Helen M. Lynch, and Laura A. Carter, of Sargentville Branch, Rollins E. Dobbins, Frederick S. Woodward and William L. Dawes, of Jonesport Branch; Wilson G. and Augusta L. Francis of Corea Branch. Elders Wilson and Dowker were the officiating ministers.

Recreational activities of the camp were volley ball, baseball, swimming, a sail on the bay, horseshoe contests, and campfire games and singsongs after the evening services. These were under the direction of Brothers Begg and Hewitt. On Friday evening a court scene was presented by reunion members for the pleasure and instruction of all.

Brother Wilson and his staff of workers served excellent meals in the dining hall. Nothing but praise was heard for this fine service, and the appreciation of all was evidenced by their willingness to help whenever required. A fine spirit was manifested throughout the entire reunion and made the hour of parting an ordeal. In his inimitable way Brother W. E. Rogers dispensed good things to eat and drink from the store.

Weather was ideal and attendance was large considering the conditions that prevented many from attending the reunion. Members and friends from nearly every part of these districts and visitors from Massachusetts, Connecticut and California were in attendance. The neighbors showed a keen interest in the meeting.

Independence

High school boys and girls are hunting up their school books. This week they are enrolling for the 1931-1932 school term. Next Monday, Labor Day, is the first day of school.

On Sunday there occurred a meeting of the Graceland General Alumni Committee in the office of Doctor Charles F. Grabske. Plans were formulated for reaching all Graceland alumni and for carrying into effect the Graceland publicity program for the year. Helping students to attend college and giving Graceland all the support she needs were matters discussed. Committee members present were N. Ray Carmichael, of Lamoni, Iowa; C. E. Wight, Kansas City, Missouri; and D. R. Carmichael, Leonard Lea, and Charles F. Grabski, of Independence.

Because the weather was threatening, the Sunday evening Campus service was held in the Stone Church. Music was by the Auditorium Orchestra, conducted by Orlando Nace, and hymns sung by the congregation were "Great and Marvelous Are Thy Works," "Come Tell the Story of His Love," and "Consecration."

"At the Heart of the Gospel," an impelling sermon, was delivered by President F. M. McDowell, whom the Saints welcomed home last week from his three weeks of reunion tour.

Pastor John F. Sheehy was in charge of the service, assisted by Bishop G. Leslie DeLapp.

Elder C. C. Koehler is very busy these days meeting Harvest Home Festival booth promoters and builders in the lower room of the Auditorium. Groups of men and women, boys and girls in Independence, are busy formulating festival plans.

Stone Church

An attractive part of the worship service of the church school Sunday morning was a vocal duet, "Did You Think to Pray?" by Alicebell and Alba Sims, members of the young people's department at the Auditorium. The sermon was by Superintendent H. W. Harder.

The necessity of returning to law and government to bring about the establishment of the kingdom of God on earth was the theme thought of the Sunday morning sermon by Bishop J. A. Koehler. Stress was given individual and group preparation in bringing about this condition. Music was furnished by the women's chorus directed by Jeannette Craig. Elder H. G. Barto was in charge of the service, and Elder Earl F. Hoisington offered the invocation and benediction.

Girl Scout Troop No. 33 climaxed its summer activities August 25, with an investiture ceremony at the Y. K. T. room in which six girls received tenderfoot pins and eight second class badges. The troop has been organized since April, and the rapid progress the girls have made in attaining second class rank makes a record for their troop. Two more are ready for investiture. This troop is composed of the youngest Girl Scouts of the Stone Church, and its officers are Miss May Snead captain, and Mrs. Lomax Odom, lieutenant.

Miss Olive E. Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Jones of Skiatook, Oklahoma, became the bride of Elvin J. Van-derwood, son of Elder and Mrs. J. E. Vanderwood, Sunday morning at ten o'clock, August 16, at the home of the bridegroom's parents in Independence. Pastor John F. Sheehy read the marriage ceremony. Miss Vida Juergens was bridesmaid and Mr. Ralph Smith attended the bridegroom. After a wedding trip to the Ozarks, the bridal couple are at home in Independence, at 1302 West Maple Avenue. The bride is a graduate of the School of Nursing of the Independence Sanitarium.

Revival meetings will open tomorrow evening on the lawn of the J. J. Teeter home, 902 West Maple Avenue, Patriarch Ammon White being the speaker. Everyone is invited to attend. This is a missionary undertaking of Group 2.

An attractive little play, directed by Jane Fairbanks, pleased the junior church at the Campus the morning of August 23. Those who took part in the production were Warren Cannon, Alice Margaret Baldus, Myron May, Mary Snyder and Ronald Lentell. Helen Mader played a piano solo. Elder G. G. Lewis was present.

The boys' class, taught by Sister A. B. Phillips, picnicked at Budd Park, in Kansas City, the afternoon of August 27. They were accompanied by Sisters A. B. Phillips, A. R. Moler, and J. R. Lentell. The boys spent a fine time swimming.

Last Sunday Audrey Andes and Virginia Thompson sang a duet, and Pastor Will Bolinger talked. There was a reading by Sister Moler's niece from Englewood.

Second Church

August 9 Bishop J. A. Becker was the morning speaker, his theme being "Occupy Till I Come." Sister Mildred Foulks, of Mount Vernon, Illinois, sang a pleasing solo.

The Saints of this district met at the home of Brother Floyd Mortimer for a farewell party August 13. The Mortimer family will be missed by everyone as every member is talented and willing to help.

"The Harvest Festival" was the subject of Elder C. C. Koehler, who talked August 16. Brother Koehler is the originator of the festival in Independence.

Three days later union prayer meeting was held at the church. President Elbert A. Smith, Elder John F. Sheehy, and Bishop G. Leslie DeLapp were in charge, assisted by A. K. Dillee and T. A. Beck.

Sister Mary Elizabeth Kent passed from this life August 21. The funeral occurred August 23 at Second Church, A. K. Dillee in charge and D. A. Whiting preaching the sermon. A quartet composed of Sisters Gladys Inman, Katherine Inman, Amy Demming, and Grace Nave furnished the music.

Elder R. D. Weaver was the eleven o'clock speaker August 23, his topic being "The Lord's Prayer." This discourse was very much appreciated by the congregation. Music was by a mixed quartet.

Enoch Hill

At the eleven o'clock hour Elder H. L. Barto took as his theme "Zion, a New Jerusalem." He spoke of it as an actual condition which must be developed through effort. The scripture reading was from Doctrine and Covenants 36:12. Music was furnished by a quartet of young girls, who performed well.

An interesting feature of the church school program was a demonstration of a missionary service by the young people. There were announcements, prayer, music by the junior choir, and a short gospel sermon by Lawrence Martin. After his talk some of the "congregation" asked questions and ventured objections to the church organization, which he answered. The time being short, he was invited back two weeks hence to speak again. The program gave the morning service a missionary tone.

A farewell social on the church lawn for Brother and Sister W. J. Brewer, August 21, was largely attended. A one-act play, written by Miss Nellie Kramer, and picturing the Brewer family two months hence in their southern Missouri home, entertained the crowd, and was followed by a varied program. There were talks by many old friends of the Brewer family, and Brother Brewer expressed appreciation for the years of association with members here. The Brewers were presented a wicker rocking chair by the congregation and the priesthood gave Brother Brewer a brief case.

The inter-church volley ball tournament, conducted last Thursday night on the Enoch Hill courts, attracted a large crowd of ball fans from Independence and Kansas City. On one court played the girls' teams from Gudgeon Park, Chelsea Church (Kansas City), and Enoch Hill, Gudgeon Park taking all the honors.

In the boys' tournament the Stone Church and Enoch Hill went to the finals, the Stone Church after defeating Gudgeon Park and Chelsea (Kansas City Stake's league winner), and Enoch Hill after defeating Mount Washington. The Stone Church won the final game and was declared tournament victor.

Englewood

The gala day of the month of August for Englewood Branch was the day of the picnic at the Campus August 11. Guests for the occasion were church officials. Presidents Elbert A. Smith and F. M. McDowell and other members of the official family of the church were present. After a few short talks by the guests, the two hundred picnickers spread basket lunches on the tables, and ate. Many remained for the moving picture in the evening.

One of the important features of the evening was the presentation of a quilt to the pastor, Elder D. S. McNamara. This quilt, made by the Women's Department, had inscribed on it the names of about four hundred people in the branch. Money paid by the members to have their names put on the quilt was turned over to the local bishop's agent.

The branch orchestra, reinforced by several musicians from other branches in Independence, gave a concert from 10:30 to 11 o'clock, August 23. Brother Fred Mollison directed the orchestra. Practices are held every Tuesday night at the church. The beginners' practice at 6:30 o'clock and the more experienced musicians begin rehearsal at 7:30.

Elder Leonard White, a member of this branch, was the speaker the morning of August 23, and Elder R. D. Weaver August 30.

The junior department gave a program for the Sunday school last Sunday. It was a demonstration of the work carried on in this department, the children acting as officers. Pattie Donaldson was the superintendent; Earl Lee Honaker, offered the prayer; Francis Tomilson directed the music; Richard Howery played the piano.

The branch this Friday evening is enjoying a stake fry at Hills Memorial Park.

Kansas City Stake

Central Church

"The Prince of Peace," a three-reel presentation of the life of Christ, was the moving picture attraction which preceded the Sunday evening sermon. This was the last of the series of pictures planned for the summer season, and the best.

Plans for the Labor Day picnic at Swope Park are now complete. Each family is to bring basket lunch by the menu posted on the church bulletin board, and dinner will be served cafeteria style at the park. There will be tennis, croquet, horseshoe, baseball, and volley ball games, races for the children, and a golf tournament at Stayton Meadows Golf Club on Highway 40.

Chelsea boys won first place in the volley ball tournament. Chelsea girls and Quindaro girls tied for first place and Central and Quindaro boys tied for second place.

Following its brief vacation the choir will meet tomorrow night to resume work. New members will be welcome.

Argentine Church

August 27 the women's club sponsored a reception for Pastor R. E. Browne. Following a short program of songs and speeches, they surprised him with a beautiful gift quilt, the handwork of their loyal department.

Elder Hugh W. Gould finished the series of Sunday evening sermons conducted during August on the concluding Sunday of the month. The morning sermon was by Brother William Fox.

Galien, Michigan

On August 13 a few Saints from Buchanan met at Clear Lake, Michigan, near Buchanan, where Elder J. W. McKnight baptized a Mrs. Harroff, who is a neighbor of theirs at Galien. She was confirmed at the services at Buchanan Sunday evening.

The following Monday on his way to Battle Creek, Brother McKnight stopped at Decatur and baptized a man eighty-two years old, also a former school-teacher who is now married and the mother of two small children. Brother McKnight blessed these children.

Brother and Sister McKnight are now spending a few days at Battle Creek with friends.

Side Lights

Dowie and Voliva

It was about the year 1890 that Elder Joseph F. Burton was a missionary for our church to Australia. During his labors there, John Alexander Dowie, a minister of a popular Protestant Church, heard him and perhaps others present the fullness of the restored gospel. The Reverend Dowie was an attentive listener. He bought and read the church books; nevertheless he did not yield obedience. Instead of obeying the precious truths he heard, he soon devoted his time and study to the perverting of the blessed gospel plan of salvation to a cunningly devised religion suited to a carnal mind. Soon he left Australia and came to America. En route to Chicago he made a short visit in Salt Lake City, Utah, where he became deeply interested in some of the "Mormon" temporalities. Afterwards he established a church and his Zion City, north of Chicago.

Prominent among his teachings were his claim of having the prophetic mantle of Elijah (Malachi 4:5, 6), healings, and triune baptism by immersion, etc. He gathered several thousand people who subscribed to his doctrines before his death. The Reverend Wilbur Glenn Voliva, an eccentric preacher, became his successor.

Very recently the Associated Press reported Mr. Voliva as saying: "We are in the time of the end" and "the beginning of the millennium and the coming of Christ is 1935." One of the daily papers also states that Mr. Voliva had previously predicted the world would come to an end in 1923, 1927, and 1930. His set time "measuring rod" may still need readjusting.

Polygamy in Palestine

It is reported that until recently a Jew, Gentile, or Mohammedan in Palestine could legally take several wives. A revision of the Palestine criminal law is recommended that: "In the future the practice of polygamy in Palestine will be permitted only to persons whose religion sanctions it." A positive and universal law should be enacted against the crime of polygamy in the Holy Land. It is not unusual for Arab girls ten years old in Palestine to be sold into slavery for a period of twenty-five years. A terrible evil!

It is reported that about 100,000 Jews went to Palestine from other parts of the world during the decade between 1920 and 1930. However, many did not remain. A deficit of about four million dollars in the colonization fund of the Palestine Zionists' organization at Jerusalem is reported, yet the Jews are not discouraged or giving up their well-planned work. Latter Day Saints should also be determined to press forward in their well-defined church enterprises.

Presbyterians Suffer Financial Loss

The Associated Press reports a decrease of nearly five million dollars in contributions to the Presbyterian Church in America for the year ending March 31, 1931, as compared with the preceding year.

Economy Versus Waste

Bishop Elmer C. Evans, Grand Rapids, Michigan, wrote: "Economy is the avoiding of all waste and extravagance. The church which would conduct its work on an economical basis will seriously undertake the task of closing all avenues of waste. We must not confine our plans of economy to money matters alone; the waste of time and talent is the greatest loss within our church. We have enough talent to take care of every need. How much of it is being used in an active manner?"

Paragraphs of Interest

Confidence of the Saints in the leading officials of branch, district, stake, and general church, including missionaries, is the greatest asset the church can hope to have.

Doctor Henry Drummond says, "An evil temper does more to unchristianize society than worldliness, drunkenness, and vice."

Anne Stillwell wrote: "We can hold our heads high and inspire others with courage in times of great distress, but it is the minor, daily irritations of our commonplace, workaday life that find out the weak spots in our character. It is the daily clash of varying temperaments, the constant grind of dull monotony that rub off the bright burnish of our soul's armor and render us dull and dispirited."

"Prosperity is not civilization's enemy, but it is its greatest danger. If we keep our eyes on God, no amount of prosperity can harm us."

"There is all the difference in the world between starting life as a success and starting it as a failure."

Two started to a tree, one watched his feet, the other watched the tree. Which one made the best and surest line of travel? Saints should keep in touch with the church, travel with it, maintaining their true course marked out in the three standard books, having their eyes always toward the goal—Zion's redemption.

C. J. HUNT.

Northern and Western Michigan Reunion

The Park of the Pines reunion opened its eleventh session Friday, August 14, at ten o'clock in the morning with a social service followed by a business meeting. Elder Allen Schreur was in charge. Apostle D. T. Williams was chosen to preside over the reunion, being given power to choose his associates. The reception committee was appointed as follows: Brother and Sister B. H. Doty, Ella Doty, Elder Ledsworth, Elder E. N. Burt, and Elder Robert Jones. Sister Nicholas, of Saginaw, was chosen editor of the camp paper. Brother McKinnon was chosen patrolman of the grounds. The dining hall was in charge of Sister Sarah Schreur and four group leaders.

On Friday, August 21, a business meeting was held for the purpose of electing officers for the coming year. The reunion committee selected is composed of Dirk Schreur, Richard Hartnell, Buell Shelley, Alvin Ellis, H. McKinnon, and Arthur Starks. It was decided that Northern and Western Districts should invite the other Michigan districts to permanently participate in reunion work. Brothers Allen Schreur, Dirk Schreur, Richard Hartnell and John Bennett were given votes of thanks for their work. Two sisters also were publicly thanked by the reunion, Sarah Schreur and Ada Alldread. The treasurer of the reunion committee, Allen Schreur, reported $306.07 resources and an indebtedness of $303.20; balance on hand, $3.87. He also reported a debt of $334.36 for insurance, taxes, and the building of a new office. Pledges were taken Sunday morning to raise the amount. One hundred and twenty-five dollars was paid in cash, and the balance covered by pledges.

Leaders of the various departments this year were very capable and their instruction highly interesting. Elder Hubert Case had charge of the adult class on Doctrine and Covenants; Apostle Williams of the young people's class and Brother Jones and Sister Ada Alldread of the junior church. Brother Clark gave splendid lectures to the priesthood. Brother Case conducted experience meetings which were much enjoyed. Sister Thomas Clark gave lectures on sex hygiene to the women.

Brother Byron Doty had charge of the band and orchestra and Sister Louise Evans had charge of the vocal department. The music added much to the meetings and was appreciated by everyone.

Social life at camp was varied and provided entertainment and recreation for all. Brother Jones was in charge of the recreation assisted by Brothers McKinnon, Doty, and Pohly. From two until four thirty o'clock in the afternoon ball games were the attraction. There were games between the married and single men, the married and single women and between various sections of the state. Volley ball was also enjoyed. At four thirty o'clock everyone went swimming on our own beach on Lake Charlevoix. Brother D. T. Williams, Ella Doty, Mabel Ash, and William Webber swam across the lake three and one-half miles. Two boats accompanied them to insure safety. Seven started the trip, but three became exhausted and were taken into the boats.

After the evening preaching service more recreation was in order. There was a corn roast, a marshmallow toast, a treasure hunt, music, plays, and general entertainment. Brother Johnson was the camp singer, and his witty songs were much enjoyed. Special mention should be made of Sisters Grace and Ella Doty, who ably helped in the entertainment. One afternoon was given to the children, there being games and a watermelon treat.

The young people held three sunrise prayer meetings. The Spirit of God was felt among them and will help them when they return home.

General prayer meetings were well attended and comfort was given many members.

The preaching services were by Apostle Williams, Elder Hubert Case, Robert Jones, E. N. Burt, B. H. Doty, and Allen Schreur.

Weather all during the reunion was ideal for camping, being warm and sunny but not too hot. In fact, there was nothing to mar the pleasure and inspiration of the entire ten days, and everyone departed feeling that the reunion was a huge success.

Three souls were inducted into the kingdom on Sunday afternoon.

About three hundred people attended the reunion, there being about twenty-five tents.

As this letter is being written trucks are driving in on the grounds with lumber, cement, and gravel, and the line is laid for the new junior church, a building twenty-four by forty feet. This construction is in charge of Brother Richard Hartnell. The new building is across the road from the auditorium.

Some of the most inspiring characters in history have failed in one sense. That is, they were given hemlock to drink, they were crucified, or burned at the stake. They, themselves, however, were not failures. They were shining successes. St. Lawrence, the Martyr, was roasted to death on a grid. After they had had him over a slow fire for some time, so the story runs, he looked up at his torturers and said whimsically, "Turn me over. That side is done." That man was not a failure.—Harry E. Fosdick.

MISCELLANEOUS

Pastoral

To the Saints of Rock Island District, Greetings: As the month of September has been set apart as a time for a special visiting campaign in the interests of a revival of church attendance, to culminate with Rally Day, I come to you with the plea that every branch president, officer, and member lend his powers to the success of the month's work.

As I can not be present in each of the branches to help in this campaign, I urge that every branch organize its forces for the important work ahead of us, and at the close of the month I should like a report from each branch as to the number of homes visited and the number of persons present at the services on Rally Day, September 27.

September 6 to 12 I expect to be busy at Joy, visiting and holding special meetings. September 13 I will conduct an all-day meeting at Buffalo Prairie. September 14 to 19 I expect to work in Galesburg Branch. September 20 it is expected that there will be an all-day meeting near Deer Grove, and from September 22 to 30 I expect to visit and hold cottage meetings at Davenport with special services at Davenport church on Rally day.

Let us renew our diligence in the Lord for a spiritual revival, with an increase in the missionary spirit, during the fall and winter. To date we have had sixty-seven baptisms so far this year, affecting ten of the nineteen branches. Let us make it one hundred before the end of the year with all the branches participating.—E. R. Davis, 2325 Twenty-third Avenue, Moline, Illinois.

Conference Date Changed

The date of the special conference to be conducted in Des Moines, Iowa, has been changed from September 19 and 20 to September 12 and 13. Bishop G. Leslie DeLapp and Apostle F. Henry Edwards will be the speakers. Business meeting is called for 7:30 o'clock in the evening, Saturday night, and there will be a sermon at 8 o'clock.—District Presidency, by C. E. McDonald.

Conference Notices

Conference of Utah District will convene September 26, and 27, in Salt Lake City, Utah, at 336 South Fourth East. Conference will be called to order at 10 a. m., Saturday, September 26. Apostle M. A. McConley will be present and Saturday evening will give a lantern talk on the progress of the work of the Reorganization in establishing Zion and the Zionic program. Send all reports to the secretary of the district, Mrs. Roy Hews, Keisel Avenue, Ogden, Utah. We are hoping that there will be a good attendance, and full reports from all the branches.—A. M. Chase, district president, 336 South Fourth East, Salt Lake City, Utah.

Conference of Western Maine District will convene with Mountainville Branch, October 10 and 11. That of Eastern Maine District will convene at Jonesport, October 17 and 18. These conferences will have interesting programs, and it is hoped both may be well attended by Saints from over the state.—E. F. Robertson, Stonington, Maine.

Wheeling district conference business session will begin at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon, September 5. The usual sessions with some special features will fill the time until Sunday night. Negotiations are under way, but as yet, district officers have not received definite word concerning the member of the general ministry to be present. The place of the conference is the church on First Street, Moundsville, West Virginia.—Samuel A. Martin, district secretary, Box 267, Bridgeport, Ohio.

Annual All-Day Meeting

The annual union, all-day meeting will be held at Buffalo Prairie church Sunday, September 13. Prayer meeting will convene at 9:45 o'clock in the morning; preaching at 11 o'clock, 2 and 3:15 o'clock in the afternoon. The Buffalo Prairie, Millersburg, Joy, and Mathersville Branches are asked to unite in this effort. Those who wish to attend from other points are invited and will be welcome. We shall try to provide a different speaker for each of the preaching services. Basket lunch at noon.—E. R. Davis, district president.

District Institute

The Kirtland district accredited institute which was scheduled for Youngstown, Ohio, in July and was postponed, will be held at Sharon Branch, Elm Avenue, Sharon, Pennsylvania, September 12 and 13. The first session will be held Saturday evening at 7:30 o'clock. The instructors will be Patriarch J. A. Gunsolley, Sister J. A. Gunsolley, and Elder Ernest A. Webbe. Come and help make the institute a success.—James E. Bishop, district president; William F. Webbe, superintendent of church schools.

Our Departed Ones

CARTER.—Mary E. Richardson, was born July 7, 1892. She departed this life August 16, 1931, at Saint John's Hospital, Tulsa, Oklahoma. She married Loyd Carter November 11, 1910. To this union nine children were born. Eight are living, one child preceded her in death. She was baptized in 1924 by Brother Hubert Case and lived faithful until death. She leaves to mourn besides her husband and children, her mother, four brothers, three sisters, other relatives and a host of friends. The funeral was at the Skiatook, Oklahoma, Saints church, the sermon being preached by Brother Emmett Lancaster, of Tulsa, Oklahoma. Interment in Hillside Cemetery, Skiatook.

Brothers of the Faith

In Christ there is no East nor West,
In him no South nor North;
But one great fellowship of love
Throughout the whole wide earth.

In him shall true hearts everywhere
Their high communion find;
His service is the golden cord
Close-binding all mankind.

Join hands then, brothers of the faith,
Whate'er your race may be;
Who serves my Father as a son
Is surely kin to me.

In Christ now meet both East and West,
In him meet South and North;
All Christly souls are one in him
Throughout the whole wide earth.

—John Oxenham.

Just a Smile

A cheery smile will often prove
A most contagious thing.
It spreads and scatters happiness
Like blossoms in the spring.

And when things all go crookedly,
And everything looks blue;
A cheery smile is well worth while,
And always helps you thru.

—Anon.

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Frederick M. Smith, Editor in Chief.
 Elbert A. Smith, Floyd M. McDowell, Associate Editors.
 Leonard J. Lea, Managing Editor.
 Leta B. Moriarty, Assistant Editor.
 Published for the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Subscription price: By the year, $2.

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE
 INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI

CONTENTS

EDITORIAL:
The God of the Living .....	818
"Word of Wisdom" Contest Closes With a Rush.....	818
President Smith's Health Improved .....	818
Graceland Issues Its Last Call .....	818
Out of the Abundance of the Heart .....	819
ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
Dignity and Beauty in Ministry, by E. A. Smith.....	819
The Valley of Shrivelled Hearts, by George Mesley .....	821
Weekly Health Letter, by A. W. Teel, M. D. ....	823
Tom King: A Life History, by C. H. Porter .....	824
A Last Minute Call, by G. N. Briggs .....	826
CHURCH WORK AND SERVICES:
New Quarterlies for October, by C. B. Woodstock.....	827
The Risen Christ in America, by C. B. Woodstock .....	828
THE GOSPEL FORUM:
Further Thoughts on Preparation for Membership, by Arthur H. DuRose .....	829
NEWS OF CHURCH AND HOME .....	831
MISCELLANEOUS .....	839

For Sale

Place in Nauvoo, Illinois, consisting of four acres, good house, barn, henhouse, etc. One and one-half acres of grapes, block from river, on main road; three blocks from historical grounds. Write for price and other information.
 D. D. HEADY, Nauvoo, Illinois.

THE NEW SAINTS' HYMNAL

Splendid New Hymns—
 The Old Favorites—
 Songs for All Religious Occasions—
 Children's Songs—

Wherever the new Saints' Hymnal has been used it has given delight and satisfaction to congregations, choirs, and organists. It is worth many times its cost as a help to church services. Orders filled on the day received.

Prices, Cash With Order

Single Copy, postpaid ..... $1.50 each
 Ten or more, transportation extra 1.25 each
 One hundred or more, transportation extra ..... 1.00 each

Order From

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE

Independence, Missouri.

Notice

The Independence Sanitarium and Hospital offers a three-year course in nurses' training to young women who are high school graduates.

For further information write to superintendent, G. E. Copeland, R. N.

A GOOD TIME

To Buy Farms or Homes
 in or near

Lamoni, Iowa

A. J. YARRINGTON, "THE LAND MAN"

IF

Complete protection is your goal, let us handle your

INSURANCE

INSURANCE DEPARTMENT
 OF THE CHURCH

(American Underwriters, Inc.)

Indep. 486      221 W. Lexington St.

NOW IS A GOOD TIME
 TO CHANGE.

At the mid year Interest date is an advantageous time to shift your Savings Account to a safe conservative institution with a quarter century standing.

We pay 3% on Time and Savings Deposits.
 "Soliciting New Business on Our Record."

JACKSON COUNTY BANK

Independence, Mo.

"Home of Savings"

THE SAINTS' JOURNAL

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST

Entered as second-class matter at the post office at Independence, Missouri, Independence, Missouri. Price $2 a year in advance. Accepted for mailing at the special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917; authorized July 21, 1921.

ON SEPTEMBER 9 1931
INDEPENDENCE MISSOURI
M 44785 O H

dy at n sec-

Volume 78

Independence, Missouri, September 9, 1931

Number 36

JESUS HEALED THEM

And Jesus went about all Galilee, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing all manner of sickness and all manner of disease among the people. And his fame went throughout all Syria: and they brought unto him all sick people that were taken with divers diseases and torments. . . . And there followed him great multitudes of people from Galilee, and from Decapolis, and from Jerusalem, and from Judea, and from beyond Jordan.—Matthew 4: 23-25.

---

THE CHURCH AND THE WORLD

E. B. Hull

WHOM SHALL WE SERVE?

N. L. Booker

THE PRICE OF SUCCESS

R. R. R.

THE CLIMAX OF WAR

C. H. Porter

Jesus Healed and Taught

In the accounts of the early public work of Jesus two aspects of his mission stand out: his teaching and his healing. Because he was able in so many instances to heal men, he found among them a ready audience for his teaching.

His first move was to heal. It was first necessary to heal men in order to get their thoughts away from pain and trouble before they could be taught the message. Thus he foreshadowed the two great fields of interest and activity for the Christian religion: the remedial and the constructive. Out of his interest in healing came the church's responsibility for medical aid, for social reform, and for economic justice. Out of his interest in teaching came the church's responsibility for education, and for the regeneration of human hearts and ideals.

From this relation of the Master to the people has developed the relation of the Christian religion and the people of later times. The people have wanted religion as they wanted Jesus, chiefly to be healed. For healing and help they have displayed a burning thirst, an anxiety. Once they had got what they wanted they were on their way back to the old haunts and the old paths. But Jesus also wanted to teach and to save. He could meet the people on their own ground simply because he could and would heal them.

From the time of Jesus to our own time, the multifarious Christian religions have retained, in some degree, their capacity for teaching. But somewhere in the shuffle of the centuries they have lost their power of healing. And with that loss their hold on the hearts of men has gradually but surely weakened, and men have turned from religion to other things for help in their times of greatest need.

Healing is the true meeting place of man and God. It may be a mark of man's unworthiness that he desires the material benefit of healing rather than the spiritual benefit of regeneration; but it is certainly a fact that people are much impressed by healing, and most earnestly desire it.

It is significant that the Restoration of the Gospel brought with it the restoration of this ancient function of religion. Its program of healing has taken the broadest possible scope. There are the provisions for all means of healing: the word of wisdom for the maintenance of normal health; the ordinance of the laying on of hands for the operation of the Holy Spirit in the healing of body and mind; the consecrated oil as the visible symbol and the tangible agent of God's healing power. More than this, the church has seen as Jesus saw the necessity for social healing, and under the direction of his teaching has developed the philosophy of a new social order and a new economic program that would meliorate and possibly remove the social ills from which the world suffers.

Unless the church can point the way to heal the social and economic ills from which society suffers, the church has nothing to say to society that can possibly attract its attention or hold its respect. Unless the church can provide healing for individuals and the physical, moral, and spiritual ills from which they suffer, the church has nothing to say to individuals that will command their attention or hold their respect. The very beginning of the work of the church, as with the work of Jesus, is in healing.

It is our deep conviction that it is the work of the church to heal men of their physical, moral, and spiritual ills; that it is the task of the church to point the way to better human relationships, to a finer human society, dominated by ideals of justice, mercy, and truth. This duty, this opportunity is before the church. It has already made a partial development of its program, and has already fulfilled a part of its responsibilities, but only part. There is much yet to be done; the way is long before us. Yet the tasks are not beyond human capacity, and the way is not impassable. Our people have seen a vision of their high goals of endeavor, which shines to their eyes like the first light of the dawn of a new day. Will the high noon of that new day find us sitting indolently on those low rocks from which we first saw the dawn?

L. L.

Christ the Man and Friend

Do we consider enough the manhood of Christ? First we think of him as the Savior of men, then as the Son of God. But do we often think of Christ the Man?

As he lived with and among his fellows, Christ was an outstanding figure. Secular historians who have refused to acknowledge him as the Son of God, have called him a "great" and a "good" man. His mission, we read from the Scriptures, was to save men from their sins, to give them a more abundant life. He told them to love God and their neighbors, to be clean and reverent and obedient; and he lived for them what he taught. His parables, told by the roadside, in the village, on the seashore, taught the people who gathered to hear him, to have faith, to consider each other, to be busy, to be humble and true. Through him they learned to know God not as a mighty and fearful Ruler, but as a loving Father. To them he opened new vistas in life, opportunities exceeding their greatest dreams—the life more abundant. "Go ye and learn—" he admonished them.

Today, as in every age, men find it hard to live up to the best in them. Christ knew it would not be an easy thing for them to follow his example. He knew that often human inertia would hold them back, that circumstances would crush hope and ambition, that adversity would destroy confidence. And so he prepared men, in his teachings, for the things they must encounter. He set a child in the midst of his followers and said to them: "Of such is the kingdom of heaven." He taught them that the highest type of manhood includes a certain amount of child-likeness.

In this connection I quote a little poem I found the other day. Its title is "The Two Prayers":

Last night my little boy confessed to me
Some childish wrong;
And kneeling at my knee
He prayed with tears—
"Dear God, make me a man
Like Daddy—wise and strong;
I know you can."
Then, while he slept,
I knelt beside his bed,
Confessed my sins,
And prayed with low-bowed head:
"O God, make me a child
Like my child here—
Pure, guileless,
Trusting thee with faith sincere."

Let us think of Christ the Man and our Friend who says: "Follow me." L. B. M.

Opening Days at Graceland

Too late to be included with the regular articles, the excellent report of the opening of Graceland, written by Leslie Flowers, is included with the columns of news. It is a matter for rejoicing that the church college has, even in these times of depression, an enrollment that is practically up to standard, and may be better when the final count is in. This fact is a tribute to the quality of Graceland's work, and reputation among the church people. We feel fortunate that in a year when a number of other smaller institutions have had to close, Graceland is able to continue its important work. It would be a tragedy if Graceland had to close—a heavy loss to the church and to its young people. It is our hope that Graceland may never close. L. L.

Our little systems have their day;
They have their day and cease to be:
They are but broken lights of thee,
And thou, O Lord, art more than they.

We have but faith: we can not know;
For knowledge is of things we see;
And yet we trust it comes from thee,
A beam in darkness: let it grow.

—Alfred Tennyson, from In Memoriam, Poem.

Dignity and Beauty in Ministry

X.—COMMUNION SERVICE

By Elbert A. Smith

The communion of the Lord's supper appeals to the Saints more than any other service. This is attested by the fact that in almost every branch the largest attendance is at communion service. The Sacrament meets a real human need. A great variety of subjects may be considered at a preaching or testimony meeting, but at the Sacrament meeting Christ should be the ever present theme: "This do in remembrance of me."

A Carefully Thought Out Order of Service

It is the opportunity and duty of the ministry to so conduct the service that Christ may be brought into the meeting and His spirit be present. To do so the minister must himself go there in that spirit and by his remarks and deportment help others to open their hearts to its influence.

Details of administration, the machinery of the service, should not monopolize attention to the exclusion of weightier matters, else the meeting will be merely formal. Yet details must be thought out and systematized or the spirit of the meeting will be ruined. The mechanics of the service should be planned before time; and the men taking part be instructed, and drilled if necessary, so that they will know what they are to do, and when and how they are to do it.

Be Ye Clean

The vessels should be clean and the linen spotlessly white. When the cloth is lifted it should be folded carefully and laid aside so that it may be returned and the vessels covered when the emblems have been served. The men taking part should be clean and presentable, careful in their habits in the stand. The hands that handle the emblems should be clean, both symbolically and actually. A period of reverential quiet should precede the service. The buzz of conversation should not be allowed to run on till the very moment of opening the service. Too many of our churches become houses of worship only with the opening hymn of the service.

The Oblation

The oblation should be taken up, and usually before the emblems are served. The people should be made to feel that the oblation is more than merely a formal taking up of a collection. If a bishop or bishop's agent is present he may briefly explain the purpose of the oblation, that it is an offering to help the poor of the church, and that fittingly we make that offering before taking the emblems. In some of the branches the offering is brought to the altar and is blessed by those in charge; sometimes the prayer is offered before the offering is taken up, as the men are about to leave the altar to receive it.

Preparing the Emblems

The emblems should be on the table ready before the service begins. In some of the larger congregations where time must be conserved the bread is broken before the meeting, excepting that a portion is left to be broken during the service to retain the significance of the symbol. Where the individual cup is used the wine is poured before the service by the proper officers, and there remains but to uncover it at the time of blessing.

Order of Service

At the Stone Church in Independence the priests are seated on the rostrum to the right and left of those in immediate charge, and slightly to their rear. The congregation kneels during the blessing of the emblems, as instructed in the book, and are taught to kneel facing the altar. Two men from among those in charge then serve the priests who are to pass the emblems. After this service the priests file out to right and left, simultaneously, receiving the communion plates or cups as they go. One of them remains to serve those who are in charge. Those working in opposite aisles are careful to keep abreast both while serving the emblems and when returning to the rostrum. The whole group returns to the rostrum simultaneously when their task is finished. Precision and order are thus secured.

The Form of Prayer

There are only two stipulations as to the form of service set forth in the books; it is specified that the audience shall kneel while the emblems are being blessed; and the form of words to be used is given. This form is explicit. It is exceedingly significant and beautiful and loses much by any sort of mutilation or variation. The custom is general to read the prayer, thus avoiding the danger of forgetting the words and falling into confusion. Unless one has the words thoroughly memorized he had best read the prayer—some have wandered from the text with distressing results. This is one of the few times wherein the Lord has been at pains to give us the form of words to be used in prayer and that form should be used; the more particularly as it really constitutes a covenant into which the people enter.

Prayer and Testimony

Where there is prayer and testimony following the Sacrament they should be of a nature to fit the occasion. The wisdom of the presiding officer will be taxed to guide the audience in such matters. The testimonies should be testimonies and not long drawn out sermons. In this the minister should set the example himself. Many a meeting of such nature has been spoiled by long, tedious and irrelevant introductory remarks.

A Service Exclusively Sacramental

For many years, most of the branches of the church being small, the sacrament was administered at some other service, usually at a prayer and testimony meeting, of more recent years ordinarily at the Sunday morning service on the first Sunday of the month. In such small branches after the sacramental service, time would remain for prayer and testimony. Of late years in some of our larger branches so many have been in attendance, especially in Independence, that almost the entire hour would be taken up in the communion service and the fifteen or twenty minutes remaining to be given over to prayer and testimony became a problem. There was not time to enter into such a service properly and develop it; and often one or two would take up the entire time in testimony and that sometimes not of a kind to harmonize with the sacrament service that had just closed. For that reason those in charge in some of these congregations, as at the Stone Church, decided to separate the sacrament service from the prayer and testimony meeting and make the morning service the first Sunday of each month strictly and entirely a communion service, with a prayer and testimony meeting in the afternoon. At such morning services, devoted exclusively to the sacrament, instrumental music of a sacred nature has been admitted as a part of the program of service. Where the communion is observed as a part of a prayer and testimony meeting it is clearly evident that instrumental music is barred. (Doctrine and Covenants 119: 6.)

A Notable Memorial

Going back to our opening thought: details should not monopolize the attention of the minister in charge: the spirit of the communion service is the big thing and should be uppermost in his mind. That such may be the case details should be thought out and systematized and organized along orderly lines. The details will then be taken care of Sunday by Sunday as a matter of habit and will not intrude constantly upon attention during the meeting to cause confusion. The house of God is a house of order. Order is always associated with system. Order and system minister to beauty and dignity, and given the Spirit's presence in power and light will make the Sacrament service what it should be, the church's greatest and most notable memorial to the life and passion of Christ.

(To be continued.)

The Church and the World

By E. B. Hull

I pray not that thou shouldest take them out of the world, but that thou shouldest keep them from the evil. They are not of the world, even as I am not of the world.—John 17: 15, 16.

But as it was in the days of Noah, so it shall be also at the coming of the Son of Man. For it shall be with them as it was in the days which were before the flood; for until the day that Noah entered into the ark, they were eating and drinking, marrying and given in marriage, and knew not until the flood came and took them all away; so shall also the coming of the Son of Man be.—Matthew 24: 44, 45 (Inspired Version.)

Christ used simple illustrations to impress the minds of his disciples that they were not of the world, they were different, they had been born again, and should conduct themselves accordingly. He prayed to his Father "that they should not be taken out of the world, but that they should be kept from the evil." He also said, "Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven." (Matthew 5: 16.)

The question might be asked, "How are we letting our light shine?" Are we sending it out in one candle quantities, or as a blazing searchlight?

A one candle light may not be strong enough to pierce our modern systems of sin, and also it will show that we are not much different from the masses that make no such profession.

"You are writing a gospel,
A chapter each day,
By deeds that you do,
By words that you say,
Men read what you write,
Whether faithless or true,
Say, what is the gospel
According to you?"

People are watching us to see if we practice what we preach. Character is caught as well as taught. "It isn't so much what you know that counts, but what you do with what you know."

The Attitude of the Early Christian Church

In the so-called Christian church after the days of Constantine, there was a tendency to go away from the world. Priests took themselves into obscure places and made hermits of themselves. They thought a Christian, in the true sense of the term, should be out of contact with the world so he could not commit sin. Here is where they made a mistake. They were thinking only of themselves, they did not realize that a Christian has a duty to society. Our life is not a separate and independent life. We are not merely individuals, we are members of society, a functioning part of group life. If the disciples of Christ are to be "lights of the world," they must mingle with the peoples of the world, assume some responsibility in their education and development, spiritually and otherwise.

The church in those early days thought only of itself. It bought houses and lands, dictated policies secular as well as religious, even to the controlling of kings and monarchs. It sought to influence government enactments for its own benefit. It wanted to keep everything within its own organization. Proselyting among the peoples of the world was a secondary consideration. Churchmen expected their church increase to come from the children of their members.

With this policy in force, a church revolution was the result. Groups went off by themselves, adopting new policies and creeds, but they, like their mother, soon developed selfish desires and there was a multiplicity of religious factions, which have continued down to our day.

We have a picture of the church that Christ organized in the twelfth chapter of Revelation. This church is here represented as a woman that is about to give birth to a man child. This woman is the church, the man child is the authority of God in the church. A great red dragon stood before the woman ready to devour her child after it was born, but the man child was caught up unto God and to his throne, and the woman (the church) went into the wilderness (of the people) where she is to remain for one thousand two hundred and sixty years, according to Revelation 12: 6, 14, and Daniel 7: 25. Revelation 14: 6, 7 refers to a time when the gospel with its authority restored, will again be preached on the earth. But "as it was in the days of Noah, so it shall be also at the coming of the Son of Man." Moses tells of Noah's time:

And God saw that wickedness of man had become great in the earth; and every man was lifted up in the imagination of the thoughts of his heart; being only evil continually. . . . The earth was corrupt before God; and it was filled with violence.—Genesis 8: 10, 17. (Inspired Version.)

The church was in existence in some condition during the first five centuries of the Christian era, but during the sixth century she declined, and in the seventh she lay buried. The beautiful church of Revelation, twelfth chapter, was no more, but we have a picture of another organization in the seventeenth chapter of the same book.

The World Modifies the Church

The acceptance of Christianity in the fourth century by the Emperor Constantine was a most unfortunate event for the spiritual welfare of the church. Marsh, the historian, says:

Constantine brought the world into the church and the church was paralyzed. . . . The body existed, but the spirit had fled. Constantine set up an immense national church, but the humility, faith, and the spirituality of the age of Polycarp had passed away.—Marsh's Ecclesiastical History, page 198.

By the latter part of the fifth century prayers to Saints and to the Virgin Mary were introduced. In the sixth century the church had so far forgotten the doctrine of Christ, that whole nations were forced to accept Christianity (so called) on penalty of death. Orders of monks were introduced and papal power became supreme. During this century the monks became very rich through gifts from the people. The use of holy water was also introduced during this period.

In the eighth century the worship of images became so great, that some of the members of the Greek Catholic Church formed themselves into a body of image breakers, to destroy what they believed to be idolatry.

In the ninth century the doctrine of transubstantiation was introduced. Predestination also began to be taught.

In the tenth century the worship of the Virgin Mary became so intense as to almost equal that of Christ. It was also during this century that the rosary was introduced.

In the eleventh century the Popes received the title of "Masters of the world."

From the twelfth to the sixteenth century the church waged terrible persecutions against those who undertook to translate the Bible and allow it to be read by the people.

From the sixteenth to the eighteenth century we see the coming forth of the different reformers.

By this time the quorum of twelve apostles (as instituted by Christ in his church) had disappeared; the seventies also were gone; the ordinance of baptism had been changed; the laying on of hands for the gift of the Holy Spirit was not practiced after the fifth century. Prophets no longer warned the people and directed the church, for they, too, were gone. The church was changed. The man child (God's authority) had been taken back to heaven and the church had only a dead form left. Isaiah says:

They have transgressed the laws, changed the ordinances, broken the everlasting covenant.—Isaiah 24: 5.

The World in the Church Today

In our present age, we find things have drifted to the opposite extreme. We have all kinds of churches today, the true and the false. The restored church came forth at the end of the one thousand two hundred and sixty years with all the officers, gifts, and blessings that it had when organized by Christ, and there are those that have come forth in this age trying to imitate the original, specializing on healing, tongues, etc.

His Satanic Majesty is now working on another tact to obtain his purposes. He encourages the church to adopt the ways of the world, and we find that there is a tendency to bring the world into the church, by copying world systems and introducing them into the church, thus doing away with the pure system of worshiping God. Many church members indulge in the same world pleasures that nonprofessors of religion enjoy, and the church ignores their activities. We are speaking of the church universal, and not any one sect or organization. The Devil's business is to keep people from getting too close to "the truth," even if he has to organize a church of his own that people may have some form of worship.

When church members do the same things the world does, they lose their Christian influence. When the line of demarcation is drawn between the church and the world, sometimes the distinction is very small, hardly discernible. When the church loses the Christ Spirit, then the members no longer have the vision of the work the church is expected to be doing.

One of our leading educators made the statement: "There is too little difference between the man in the church and the man outside of the church. Too little difference in attitudes, in conduct, in practices, between the man who claims the new birth and the man who makes no such claim." Well may the world say: "Show us your faith by your works." We should bear in mind that people measure the church of which we are members by what they find in us individually. Talk does not mean so much as that which our lives demonstrate. When we utilize the principles of the gospel to the extent that they have transformed us into sons and daughters of God, then we are in a position to invite the world to give ear when we shall speak.

A big ocean liner is at home only when it is in deep water. It would be useless out on a sandy desert. When the boat is in deep water it can be controlled, made to go forward, backward, or sideways, but if the water should be allowed to fill the boat, it will sink. So it is with the church. The church is in the world, that is its place, working with the peoples of the world, showing the Christ Spirit to those that are in darkness. The church must mingle with the world (not adopt the world's ways) to be of any value to the world people. The church should be as a lighthouse, giving light to all. It is in its element when so placed. But, if the world ever gets into the church, the church will sink.

Why People Do Not Go to Church

The Christian Advocate says:

If the church loses her grip on the world, it will not be because of the influence of those who scoff at religion. It will be because the world comes to the doors of the church hungry, asking for the bread of life, and they are turned away with an offering of leaves. There are today the sick who want healing; the sinner who is weary of sinning; the weak who would be strong. They come to the church seeking the God of our Lord Jesus Christ. What do they get? They are told that they must accept a lot of man-made systems if they would be in their society, but if the church discovers that these have committed what they call a public sin, or they are not of their class, they are given the "cold shoulder." They discover that the members of the church are no different than themselves, so they go away.

If you were a salesman, and came to a prospective customer, you would not want the customer to think that you had not been working very diligently at your business for some time, and that you were not very much interested in the line you were selling, you were only doing it because it was your duty. If you did, you as a salesman would not make many sales, for the customer would say: "The salesman doesn't believe in the article he is trying to sell; I don't believe he has ever made it work himself."

This is one reason why more people do not go to church. The church member doesn't stimulate confidence in the article he has for sale as being a valuable product. One of the complaints God has made against this generation, is, "That every man walketh in his own way, and after the image of his own God, whose image is in the likeness of the world, and whose substance is that of an idol, which waxeth old and shall perish in Babylon, even Babylon the great, which shall fall."—Doctrine and Covenants 1:3. John says:

And I heard a voice from heaven saying, Come out of her, my people, that ye be not partakers of her sins, and that ye receive not of her plagues.—Revelation 18:4.

The Season's Charm

By Mary E. Gillin

April wears green that with silver is blent;
Her green by the sunlight from darkness is sent:

May decks herself out in blossoming trees,
With song-birds unnumbered—with humming of bees:

June wears her roses as queens wear a crown,
Perfection at hand with scarcely a frown.

September and August, July as well—
Each one has its boast—Each something to tell;

But count them all in and name them together,
Forgotten their charm in October's bright weather;

Forgotten the rose in the golden rod's glow;
October's blue skies are the fairest we know:

For an Artist Divine his colors has spread,
And Beauty sleeps now on earth's lowly bed.

The Price of Success

By R. R. R.

Our success depends upon the strength of our purpose, and if we would make much progress we must be very diligent. The price of success in any undertaking may properly be measured in terms of right motives, hard work, and persistence.

Some men and women try for years to succeed in some business or profession before the first faint evidences of success are manifested. During these long years bitter disappointments are felt, enthusiasm is dampened, and the temptation often arises to abandon all further activity in that undertaking, and to attempt to break into some new profession, business, or trade. Some attempt to pursue other courses, and they either make good or drift along from one position to another in an aimless manner. Others persist in their charted course, overcome great obstacles, and eventually win the hard fight for success.

A few people are prone to regard success as a result of pure luck, or a stroke of good fortune; but luck has frequently shown itself to be an intangible superstition—a fickle jade. Any person seasoned in games of chance will admit, if he is candid, that luck never crowned a worthy achievement, never produced a great work, never proved of permanent value. Every material manifestation of man's ingenuity and craftsmanship, whether it be a skyscraper, a railroad, an automobile, or a simple pin, reflects the skill of the thinker, the methodical planning, measuring, and computing of a trained and active mind. This principle is true in practically every business, trade, or profession.

We frequently read of fortunes being amassed by men who started in life as ragged, friendless urchins, and naturally admire the worth-while qualities possessed by them that gave them the courage to battle against great odds and grimly to resolve not to be beaten in the game of life. Mighty enterprises have developed from untiring efforts of self-educated men, whose early years were marked by actual deprivation and hardship. Let the young men and women who graduate from the various universities of the nation and who are now ready to step out into the world to make a living, be impressed with the fact that their success in life depends entirely upon their own efforts. Perhaps some of them may discover that the years they spent in college were literally wasted; others, no doubt, may find their college training of immeasurable help in securing a position of importance and trust. Basically, however, the fact remains that hard work, diligence, application of useful knowledge gained, all point to success in life and make for a better nation, and a more prosperous and harmonious people.

Weekly Health Letter

Number Ten

The Nose and Its Relation to Health and Disease.—8

By A. W. Teel, M. D., Church Physician

The New York State Commission on Ventilation, including other notable investigators, conclude that drafts, in themselves, can not produce a cold, but that the sudden changes of temperature lessen the resistance to infection. Undoubtedly, drafts predispose to respiratory infections in some individuals, but it seems evident from investigations that have been made, that the exposure of a particular portion of the body to a draft or cold air is more likely to be followed by acute respiratory infections, than when the entire bodily surface is subjected to the same low temperature. Psychic stimulation will produce congestion of the mucous linings of the respiratory tract, especially over the turbinates, which if long continued, will make the mucous membrane of the nose become unduly sensitive. A great variety of mechanical and chemical substances are more likely to produce such hyper-susceptibility. Pollen and protein are common manifestations of this kind of sensitiveness.

Chilling of the body has a great variety of effects, and it is assumed that the contraction of the capillaries of the skin has attended the congestion of the internal organs, but instead of attacking the internal organs, it may attack the tonsils and pharynx as well as the skin, producing a drop in the temperature with a resultant increase in the activity of bacteria to these parts.

Drafts are injurious to infants and to susceptible individuals, but are not likely to injure persons in good physical condition. Those who are accustomed to still, warm air are the persons who are usually harmed. "It is not the engine drivers and firemen of trains that catch cold, but the passengers in the stuffy carriages." The good effects of cold baths, exercise, sunlight, and good wholesome food are of great benefit.

To avoid taking cold, there are two things of importance to consider: the first is to avoid the infection; and the second, to guard oneself from the predisposing causes. Experiments upon lower animals and the experience with man, make it plainly evident that colds are a contact disease. Hence, the necessity of avoiding persons who have colds, especially in elevators, street cars, offices, or other poorly ventilated places. Unfortunately, there are people who have not sufficient refinement to refrain from coughing or sneezing in one's face.

Self-education in sanitary habits and cleanliness, based upon modern conception of contact infection, is greatly needed. The disregard of sanitary habits and hygiene undoubtedly convey secretions from the nose and mouth which are practically reeking with all kinds of disease germs, even in healthy persons. Poor ventilation and the overcrowding of street cars, and the dust nuisance in our cities, should be eradicated. Spitting ordinances should be enforced; the roller towel and the common drinking cup should be abolished. Fingers, food, toys, pipes, pencils, and other objects contaminated with the fresh secretions, will transmit the disease.

Tom King: A Life History

PART TEN

By C. H. Porter

(Continued from the Herald of September 2, page 826.)

Not All Fair Sailing

Tom loved the work and was willing to make sacrifice for its advancement. He was absent from home most of the time. This was a trial, but he had counted the cost, and having started he had no desire to leave it.

His wife was a faithful companion, and he felt that the home would be carefully guarded and the children well cared for in his absence, so he devoted his time and energy to the faithful discharge of duty. Summer was not too hot nor winter too cold to deter him from prosecuting the work to the best of his ability. He responded, so far as practicable, to all calls made upon him as a minister in the field assigned him and was prospered in his efforts.

He found some things of a discouraging nature, but he held fast to the principles of the everlasting gospel, and felt that he could endure much for its sake. He felt that inasmuch as the Master had endured "great contradiction of sinners," it would ill become a disciple to shrink from duty because some disagreed with him, even though duty became harder as a consequence.

His first serious difficulty occurred before he was ordained. It came to him unexpectedly. A missionary came to the home branch and preached a sermon one Sunday morning on the proper training of children. He stated that he had seen children of the Saints, who ought to have been at the service, going fishing.

The sermon appealed strongly to Tom, and at the close of the service he spoke to the pastor and asked what he thought of it. He said he approved of it. Tom said, "Well, what are we going to do about it?" He said he did not know what they would do. Tom said if he approved of the discourse it seemed as though some action ought to be had to correct the evil of Sabbath desecration. The elder said he supposed they could call a meeting and try to organize a Union Sunday school.

Tom said he understood from the preacher that it was the children of the Saints who were breaking the Sabbath, and it seemed to him that inasmuch as the statement was admitted to be true, that it became the duty of the Saints to make an effort to train their own children first.

He suggested that they organize a Sunday school and, at least, teach their own children the way of righteousness.

The conversation became general. Some said they had no suitable place. Tom invited them to use his home. They agreed to do this, but the arrangement caused considerable disagreement.

One Sunday evening while the pastor was absent the officer presiding at a meeting held at the home of a family of Saints, took occasion to discourse at considerable length on the gravity of the offense of a member of the church assuming the right to direct the affairs of the branch, etc.

Tom listened with surprise, which at length gave place to indignation, for he perceived that the officer was reproving him for the part he had taken in regard to Sunday school. He stood this for awhile, but at last arose quietly and requested that his hat might be handed to him.

The officer asked what he was going to do. Tom told him he had listened to all he cared to hear of his harangue and was going to leave. He asked him not to do this. Tom agreed not to leave if he had finished his discourse.

This caused a sensation. Two rooms were crowded with people. Some of them were not members. Tom felt sorry over the affair but felt that he would do the same again under like circumstances. He rested but little that night. He fervently prayed that he might have light upon the subject. He did not want to be in opposition to the older members of the branch, especially of its officers, yet he could not admit that his course was wrong in regard to the Sunday school, neither could he admit that the officer was right in publicly administering a stern rebuke to a young member of the church whose only offense was that he had insisted upon the necessity of instructing the children of the Saints in the way of righteousness.

The next day brought no relief to his overwrought feelings. He still prayed for light. During the following night he had a remarkable dream: He dreamed that a meeting was being held, in the same place it was held the previous Sunday evening, and that contention arose in regard to certain work that he had done. It was contended that the work would not stand the test if it was properly measured. He demanded that the test be applied.

Immediately a messenger appeared in the meeting holding in his hand a most beautiful measuring rod. The work in question was placed upon a stand in the midst of the congregation. Then the messenger held the measuring rod poised above the work, between his thumb and forefinger. When Tom saw the perfection of the measuring rod he said to himself, "What work done by man can ever stand the test?"

The rod was held poised in the presence of all the assembly and presently it was slowly lowered, and the work upon the stand slowly rose until it met the rod in its descent, just as iron or steel is attracted by the lodestone, and when they met the work was shown to be perfect.

Tom awoke, and little cared he then whether others were pleased with his work for he felt assured that it would stand the test of true measurement.

This was a great help to him, not alone for the case in hand but also for future experiences. This was not the only dream Tom received that had for him special significance. It seemed that while many dreams denoted nothing of importance others came by way of warning and for instruction in righteousness. He found in his experience many things revealed to him in this way.

Shortly before his call to the active ministry he received the following dream that he wrote in form of a parable, that he might remember it in detail, and, if possible, profit by it.

Once upon a time a young man was earnestly invited to unite with an army whose avowed intention was to wage war against iniquity and to strive to establish righteousness in the earth. He considered the matter carefully and finally concluded to accept the invitation. He did so in good faith because he was convinced that iniquity was evil and righteousness was good. He was told by his associates that it would be necessary for him to fight, as a good soldier, against all evil, and to maintain good works.

These things appealed very strongly to him; and in the early days of his association with the army he so far approved himself, by personal conduct, that he was chosen to an important position. He was cautioned by the good Spirit to be very careful as a standard bearer, for many would be dissatisfied that he had been so chosen, and would be unwilling to follow his lead. A narrow path was shown to him which led through rough and stony ways, and he was made to understand that the banner must be held aloft that all might see it floating in the breeze, and have no doubt of the way.

He rejoiced that he was thought worthy to carry the banner, and resolved that according to his strength so should the banner be held aloft, and the narrow way be kept.

He had not traveled far when he clearly heard mutterings of discontent from those who, in ranks, were following the standard. They said the road was too rough and thorny. They could see no good in following so narrow a path; and, bye and bye, the standard-bearer found that they who beforetime had followed in ranks were falling behind. Their dissatisfaction had borne fruit and they had become laggards. Still the narrow way was plain to the standard-bearer, and the good Spirit said: This is the way, walk ye in it.

He continued to follow this path until he came to a level plain. The banner was still held high, but they who before-time followed, and whose murmurs of discontent were heard, were no longer visible. The standard-bearer was alone.

The standard was still held fairly to the breeze, but the bearer said: What is the use? I will plant it fairly by the way, and I will rest in the plain while those behind are coming. They must come this way for there is no other; and when they come they must find the banner floating in the breeze.

So the bearer planted the standard in the way with staff erect and banner spread while he went from place to place upon the plain, examining things of interest to him.

While doing this he went farther than he intended, and anon he heard many voices singing the songs of the army, and looking up he saw many people, in ranks, traveling the narrow path that led to where the banner was planted.

His first thought was of his duty as standard-bearer; and looking across the intervening space, to his great chagrin and disappointment, he saw the banner hanging at half mast; and realized all at once his distance from the path that he had been told to follow. He knew that his fellow soldiers were going to an encampment, and was greatly disappointed that he who had been chosen to carry the banner had, although under great temptation, been recreant to the trust placed in him.

While sore at heart he turned from the scene and walked rapidly away. Before long he came to a large inclosure in which were confined many large swine, black in color: he thought first of passing around, but still feeling sore with disappointment he decided to take a short cut across the inclosure. He crossed the fence and was at once fiercely attacked by the swine.

He did not deviate from his course but met the attack and kicked the swine until their jaws rattled.

He finally came to the fence on the opposite side of the inclosure; there to his great surprise he found one of the chief officers of the army, who said to him: "How do you like to fight swine?" He replied, "I do not like it." "Ah," said the other, "I know just what that is. I have done the same thing myself."

The officer gave him no word of reprimand, and together they went to the encampment.

The consideration of this story gave him great concern and he determined that, by the grace of God, he would not be recreant to any trust placed in his keeping.

For many years this thought came to him as a steadying influence, when he felt almost deserted and alone, while battling for the right as God had given him to see it. The banner must be held fairly to the breeze, and, no matter at what cost, the bearer must keep the narrow path of sobriety and righteousness.

Later, while at a place where he was quite successful and had baptized a goodly number, he dreamed as follows:

He was standing in front of the house where he was being entertained when suddenly, without warning, his hat was snatched off his head and taken high into the air. He watched until it was almost out of sight, when it changed its flight and descended to almost within his reach. He sought, without moving from his place, to recover it, but failed.

He felt the dream to be significant but had no gift of interpretation. In his experience alone was he able to read and to comprehend it. Many instances later caused him to ponder seriously whenever he was warned by dreams of coming events, especially when a sudden gust of wind would remove his hat from his head, and whenever he so dreamed it was always a surprise to him, and came without previous warning.

One more instance of this nature will suffice.

On the morning of May 27, 1907, he dreamed that he was at a familiar place, about a quarter of a mile from home. He drew a bucket of water from a well, and took a drink from the bucket. The water was good and he concluded to carry the water, in the bucket, home. He started and was walking due west. He had gone but a short distance when a sudden but furious gust of wind snatched the hat from his head. It came so suddenly that he hadn't time to raise his hand to prevent its removal. The wind came directly from the north. He thought the hat would go but a short distance, and that he would be able to recover it again, but it struck the ground and went from him with great rapidity. It went due south for quite a distance, then turned an acute angle and went due east. He followed the course taken by the hat, but was unable to find it. To his great surprise he found two or three hats but could not find his own. He refused even to try them on his head. He saw a woman and she asked him what he sought. He told her he was looking for his hat. She said, "Why don't you take one of these?" He replied, "They are not mine. I don't want them."

The following poem was written as a result of a dream that seemed significant:

I dreamed a dream, in Joseph's den,
That now has set me thinking;
I dreamed that I was climbing, when
The ground beneath was sinking.

I dreamed there was another with me,
He also had some trouble;
He climbed, and climbed, and then, said he,
"This surely is a muddle."

But still he seemed to reach, with care,
The goal for which he sought,
While I continued still to wear
The bank away, I thought.

It seemed to give where'er I put
My hand or foot upon it;
The bank did crumble, and did look,
Too far to reach the summit.

I fought with care for every inch,
And would not yield the struggle;
The bank still gave, and it did look
To be a ceaseless muddle.

I am not sure I climbed the height;
I only know I tried,
And that the top was still in sight—
I hope that I was wise.

Tom was well acquainted with the brother that was with him in the dream, and esteemed him highly.

(To be continued.)

Employ thy time well if thou meanest to gain leisure; and since thou art not sure of a moment throw not away an hour.—Franklin.

Whom Shall We Serve: God or Mammon?

By N. L. Booker

No man will serve two masters: for either he will hate the one, and love the other; or else he will hold to the one, and despise the other. Ye can not serve God and Mammon.—Matthew 6: 24.

To the individual I suggest that however much his society, his nation, his race may serve Mammon, he is free to renounce the idol and escape the idol's laws. Escaping the idol's laws he comes within the realm of God's laws; and coming within the realm of God's laws he reaches the region of plenty. He may be the poorest and most ill-paid laborer, but God will recognize his industry not in proportion to his technical skill but according to the spiritual excellence which goes into it.

Technical skill depends largely upon the right man finding the right job. As the world is organized today more often than not, the right man is put into the wrong job and must do his best with it.

Our industrial questions are primarily spiritual. That is why they can never be settled on a purely political or economic basis, and why every attempt to settle them on a purely political or economic basis leads to conditions more confusing than those from which we seek to escape. The so-called purely economic basis is that where Mammon's laws are considered and God's laws are held to be impractical.

Complete justice is meted out to both capital and labor where God's laws are held to be practical and are observed. Because Mammon's laws have been in force and God's laws held impractical, the problems of capital and labor in one form or another have been before the world for thousands of years. The more acute this problem becomes, the farther we are from a solution. Daily it becomes more complex, and we were never so far from a solution as we are today. As a result of these conditions, poverty is a canker at the heart of both church and state, and has been so in every stage of our civilization. In 1931 it is no more under control than it was in the days of Charlemagne, or Atilla, the Hun. Charitable efforts to relieve the situation have never been effective; high wages and high prices have never solved the problem; strikes which wrought confusion to wages and prices alike have not relieved it, but all these perplex the minds of the most clear-sighted among us.

Or again, taxes crippling incomes and gnawing at the heart of industry vex us each year with a sense of the futility of man's efforts for the common good and the uselessness of our energies under the present political economy. These difficulties, with many kindred ones, are the workings of the laws of Mammon. The case is, therefore, simple. We will never be free from these difficulties until we are free from these laws. "Little children, keep yourselves from idols."—1 John 5: 21. The bondservants of Mammon will go from misery to misery until the will which opposes God is broken. There is no other way.

Can the church free itself from these conditions? Must we wait until the race as a whole, or even the nation to which we belong, gives up the service of Mammon? "Neither be ye idolaters, as were some of them; as it is written, The people sat down to eat and drink, and rose up to play."—1 Corinthians 10: 7.

Obedience to the laws of God will set us free, and we can enjoy the benefits of freedom.

When the church is freed from the entanglements of man's economic system, then it will in reality be the kingdom of heaven at hand. Nothing will prove this true until we demonstrate to the world the solution of the economic problems as God has revealed it to us.

There are many people today over whom there is the shadow of a cloud from which they feel they will never escape. The way before them seems dark and hopeless. Farmers, clerks, factory hands, tradesmen, working men and women of every stamp and occupation bow to the fact that they must always toil wearily on at tasks which are rarely of their own choosing; that they must always labor for little pay; that they must always be denied their desires for expansion; that as it was with their fathers and mothers before them, so it will be with them and with their children after them. There seems no ray of hope, yet they try to force themselves to be satisfied with their lot.

Here and there, however, is a rebel. Here and there is a man or woman who feels that joyless tasks and little pay with little or nothing to look forward to are cruel elements of life—not fair, not just on the part of man or God. But what can they do? They are in man's economic machine. The machine turns round, and they turn with it. They can do nothing else but turn with it. They see no prospect of change for the better.

It is out of such men and women that our modern world breeds revolutionists, that dangerous band that seeks redress from the laws of Mammon by appealing to the laws of Mammon, thus making conditions more confusing and complex.

A revolution is indeed needed—a revolution in point of view. Political revolution for the sake of righting governmental abuses has been known to produce beneficent results, but material revolution, the attack of the poor on the rich to take away their possessions, has never achieved anything worth while. Many times it has been tried, and many times it has failed. Being part of the system of Mammon, it could do nothing else but fall. The evils which Mammon has wrought Mammon will never remedy.

A revolution in point of view, applying the economic law as God has revealed to his church, has these advantages: First, it contains within it the seeds of success in that it is a revolution toward God, the owner of the earth and the fullness thereof. Bishop Koehler says, "Success requires that we put righteousness ahead of business and adjust business to our concepts of right." Secondly, it takes place within the individual himself—a turning toward the right—and does no one any harm. Thirdly, it does not run counter to man's economic laws; it only uses and transcends them. It directs and corrects them. Working along their lines, it stimulates their fruits. Letting the inner man out of the economic trap, this sort of revolution sets man in a world in which first, and last, and before everything else he is God's steward, under the just laws of God and in God's pay. God's pay being sure, and paid as we need it, we are no longer weighed down with the fear of poverty.

... God's high wisdom knows a way;
And that is sure, let come what may,
Who does God's work will get God's pay.

—Dennis McCarty.

Money-fear being removed, we can the more easily give ourselves to the knowledge that "the kingdom of God is not meat and drink, but righteousness, peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost"; that whoever in this way devotedly serves Christ, God takes pleasure in him and men commend him highly. (Romans 14: 17, 18.)

Near at Hand

It is said that some years ago a vessel sailing along the northern coast of the South American continent, was observed to make signals of distress. When hailed by another vessel, they reported themselves as "dying for water." "Dip it up, then," was the response, "you are in the mouth of the Amazon River." There was fresh water all around them, and they had nothing to do but dip it up, and yet they were dying of thirst because they thought themselves surrounded by the salt sea.

How often are men ignorant of their mercies! How sad that they should perish for want of knowledge! Jesus is near the seeker, even when he is tossed upon oceans of doubt. The sinner has but to stoop down and drink and live, and yet is as ready to perish as if salvation were hard to find.—Spurgeon.

THE GOSPEL FORUM

Under this heading we shall be glad to receive and publish articles and letters of interest to our readers on the doctrine and work of the church. Writers are responsible for their own views. Other views on subjects discussed here will be received if of sufficient interest.

The Climax of War as Foretold by the Hebrew Prophets

By C. H. Porter

The World War has caused many to think seriously of what the future has in reserve for us. Many have sought to find a means of preventing future wars, and have tried a League of Nations, a World's Court, and other ways of doing this. "A war to end war" was a favorite slogan during the great conflict, but we still find much restlessness among the peoples of the earth, and while we are anxiously seeking means to preserve peace on earth and good will among men yet it is evident we look with much concern to the future. All admit that war is terrible. Many predict that if another war is fought by the major powers that it will prove to be more destructive than any previous one, and no nation desires to become a party to it. Nevertheless, as a student of the Bible and also of the history of nations it seems to be impossible to arrive at any other conclusion than that the great conflict of the ages as foretold by the Hebrew prophets has yet to be fought.

Men anciently fought with weapons such as bows and arrows, clubs, knives, swords, spears, etc. Today war has become a science, and men fight on land, on water, under the water, and in the air. The killing is oftentimes done at long distance, either on land, sea, under the sea, or from the clouds. War has taken possession of the whole world as a field of operation. The seas, the continents, and the air, are all used. Science has been made to serve in every part of world dominion. No space is free from it. No wonder we are fearful of it! Yet war will come. The harvest of the world will be reaped, and as men and nations have sown so also must they reap, for this is an immutable law which can not be broken.

Speaking of the end of the age, Christ said: "Nation shall rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom: and there shall be famines, and pestilences, and earthquakes in divers places."

Joel said: "Multitudes, multitudes in the valley of decision: for the day of the Lord is near in the valley of decision. The sun and the moon shall be darkened, and the stars shall withdraw their shining. And the Lord shall roar out of Zion, and utter his voice out of Jerusalem: and the heavens and the earth shall shake: but the Lord will be the hope of his people, and the strength of the children of Israel."

Ezekiel says: "Thus saith the Lord God: Behold, I am against thee, O Gog, the chief prince of Meshech and Tubal": and mentions, "Persia, Ethiopia, and Libya with them: all of them with shield and helmet: Gomer, and all his bands; the house of Togarmah of the north quarters, and all his bands: and many people with thee."

We can readily locate these people. Their territory is marked on the Oxford maps, as follows: Magog, northwest of the Caspian Sea; Gomer, north of the Black Sea; Tubal, southeast of the Black Sea; Togarmah, west of the Caspian Sea, and southeast of the Black Sea; Ethiopia, southwest of Egypt; Libya, on the border of the Mediterranean Sea, and west of Egypt.

Of this people it is said: "In the latter years thou shalt come into the land that is brought back from the sword, and is gathered out of many people, against the mountains of Israel, which have been always waste: but it is brought forth out of the nations, and they shall dwell safely all of them.

"And thou shalt say, I will go up to the land of unwalled villages; . . . to take a spoil, and to take a prey; to turn thine hand . . . upon the people that are gathered out of the nations, which have gotten cattle and goods, that dwell in the midst of the land.

"And thou shalt come from thy place out of the north parts, thou, and many people with thee, all of them riding upon horses, a great company, and a mighty army.

"And thou shalt come up against my people of Israel, as a cloud to cover the land; it shall be in the latter days."

We find this great army challenged, as follows: "Sheba, and Dedan, and the merchants of Tarshish, with all the young lions thereof, shall say unto thee, Art thou come to take a spoil? hast thou gathered thy company to take a prey? to carry away silver and gold, to take away cattle and goods, to take a great spoil?"

This is the voice of England and her dominions demanding of Russia why she has gathered her forces against the ancient land of Israel, which for centuries had been waste, but which is now being restored. This is the beginning of the time of the end of the age. This means the settlement of the great Eastern question. This is the battle of Israel in defense of the land given by covenant to the great ancestors of their race, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and their seed for ever. This is the battle spoken of in the Scriptures as the great day of the Lord God Almighty, and the Lord says: "I will call for a sword against him throughout all my mountains, . . . every man's sword shall be against his brother.

And I will plead against him with pestilence and with blood; and I will rain upon him, and upon his bands, and upon the many people that are with him, an overflowing rain, and great hailstones, fire, and brimstone. . . . And I will be known in the eyes of many nations, and they shall know that I am the Lord."

Joel also saw the destruction of this great army, and said: "I will remove far off from you the northern army, and will drive him into a land barren and desolate, with his face toward the east sea, and his hinder part toward the utmost sea, and his stink shall come up, and his ill savour shall come up, because he has done great things." And to the land of Israel he says: "Fear not, O land; be glad and rejoice: for the Lord will do great things."

From the foregoing, and many other evidences we might adduce from the Scriptures, we can see that the prophets of Israel saw and predicted the climax of war. We do not know when the great event of the ages will reach its climax, but we see many of the Israelites gathering to their homeland under the protection of England which we have reason to believe represents Ephraim among the nations. This is in line with the predictions made by their prophets, and political events seem to be shaping themselves to the end foreshown.

Three Stages in Work for God

While the yoke of the Lord Jesus is easy and his burden is light, nevertheless the furrow that he calls us to undertake is not always by any means easy plowing. There is no yoke that fits so smoothly and handily as his, but there is no work that requires more steady trudging and persistent faithfulness than his. Three stages of that work are strikingly set forth by Hudson Taylor when he says: "Commonly there are three stages in work for God: 1. Impossible; 2. Difficult; 3. Done!" It need not surprise us if much of the work with which we are confronted possesses these three stages. Said General William Booth, "God loves with a special love the man who has a passion for the impossible." Are you confronting today the impossible in work for God? Praise him for that, because you are in a way to discover the blessing of finding that work difficult, and then to experience the deep joy of finding it done, by the same Lord who started you on the furrow.—Flint Tidings.

Rob not God, nor the poor, lest thou ruin thyself; the eagle snatched a coal from the altar, but it fired her nest.—Selected.

CHURCH WORK AND SERVICES

Changing to a Single Department

The following inquiry is made by a district president. Since it represents a common problem, we publish the reply. It may prove helpful to others.—C. B. W.

Query:

"The membership of our district are anxious to work in harmony with the general church program, and with the new program of Religious Education. Most of our branches, however, are still organized with a Sunday school, a Women's Department, and a few still have Religios. We have your new Handbook. Can you tell us how we may best work in harmony with the new plan? For instance, how may the local Women's Department fit into the new plan? We have a district Women's Department superintendent. What is her work?"

Reply:

The action of last General Conference approved the recommendation of the First Presidency that the former three departments chiefly concerned with religious education be merged into a single department in locals and districts as rapidly "as found wise and practicable and as conditions in the various stakes, districts, and branches would seem to justify."

We note that the government in your district has been very conservative. If, however, there is a growing spirit of unity, and the officers of the two or three departments are working together and with the pastors to develop the most efficient program for the branches, we think you are moving in the desired direction, even if slowly.

The so-called "new program" is clearly set out in the advice given in the new Church School Handbook. There are no laws which must be obeyed, no set form which must be followed. The advice in every case is planned to carry into effect the resolution of General Conference. It is the result of the best study and experiment available in the church, conducted under the direction of the First Presidency. However, it is advice to be studied and applied in such measure as may seem "wise and practicable" to those in charge of branches, districts, and stakes.

While the general office is organized as a single department, those in charge will gladly give any assistance possible to make all parts of the local program effective. It is hoped that at coming elections in branches and districts there will be a closer following of the plan given in the Handbook.

Women's Work in the Church

The women of the church are naturally an important part of the adult division. The church is concerned with at least three groups of adults; with parents and possibilities and problems of the home, which concern both fathers and mothers; with the men of the priesthood and their qualification and active service; and with the women in the particular field of their calling and service, in their homes, in the church, and in the community. Each branch or local church school must recognize the above responsibility, and under the pastor's direction must make such provision as may be possible to meet the needs and realize the possibilities of each group. The provision that is made will vary with the size of the branch, with facilities, with available leaders, with opportunities, with the development of the membership, and with the spirit which prevails within the branch.

The program of the adult division will probably include Sunday morning classes, Sunday evening classes, week-day or week-evening classes, socials, clubs, clinics, sewing circles, church dinners, bazaars, etc.

We quote from the Church School Handbook, page 21:

"Usually special provision should be made for the women of the adult division to organize for study and work projects under a women's leader. By all means the vital purposes and ideals of the former Women's Department should find continued expression and renewed emphasis in the work of the women of the adult division. It is essential, however, that the organization of the women of any branch operate as a unit of the church school, with due consideration for all other interests of the school and the work of the branch as a whole.

"Any working group which has the making of money as one of its objectives should work in consultation with the pastor and the branch financial agent."

The above plan is what the church is recommending. If your branches still wish to maintain the older form of Women's Department, let their good work continue under the advice of the pastor and be reported as part of the total program of the branch.

Your district superintendent of women is logically an assistant to the district presidency, or to the district director of religious education, to encourage and supervise study and project work of the women in all the branches and at district gatherings.

If your district is organized under the new plan,

NEWS OF CHURCH AND HOME

Address all news and letters to Editors of the Herald, Box 237, Independence, Missouri. Correspondents are requested to make their letters brief. The Editors reserve the right, on account of space limitations, to shorten all letters as circumstances require.

Alabama Reunion

The economic depression which has gripped the world so hard held no fear for Alabama Saints, but rather caused them to sacrifice more temporarily in order that they might enjoy the spiritual uplift at the reunion held at McKenzie, July 18 to 26. The attendance was larger than in a number of years, and greater unity was felt because all had come to study and qualify for the work of forwarding the Zionics program as a solution to the world situation.

The missionary part of the reunion was ably handled by Elder G. T. Richards, of Far West Stake, and by Elder G. E. Burt, pastor at Mobile. The morning preaching was done by Elder Burt and Elder Glenn Davis, pastor at McKenzie. Adult prayer services were in charge of Brother Richards, while Brother Lyle D. Flynn lead the young people's meetings.

Class work for the adults on "Religion in the Home" was conducted by Sister G. E. Burt, and Brother Burt taught a class on "The Purpose of Religious Teaching." Brother Davis taught the young people "Stewardship of Life." All the children attended the "Stewardship School," where they were taught the fundamentals of stewardship in a way that could be understood by them.

Musical activities were in charge of Sister Anna Mae Hough. The choir, under her leadership, contributed well to the missionary service.

The handwork for the juniors was in charge of Sister Rogene Miller, while the women's work was lead by Sister Burt. Brother Flynn conducted the scouting program for the boys.

Only on three nights during the entire reunion was there seating room. On two evenings the congregation was so large that the big Pleasant Hill Church was filled, and the rest of the crowd met across the road in the schoolhouse, where a separate service was conducted, two missionary sermons being presented at the same hour. So inspiring was the missionary endeavor that seventeen, children, young people, and adults, were baptized. This is fine for the immediate results.

As for determining the success of the reunion, only time can do that. We know however, that the gospel was presented in grandeur and with power. The presence of God was keenly felt in all the devotional services. The class-work opened to our minds the lure of the unattained. As one man said, "We prayed, we studied, we sang, we worked, and we felt."

The success of the reunion will be and can only be measured in terms of the accomplishments rising out of it. If the prayers offered are put into practice, if the sermons listened to are lived, if the instruction finds root in the souls of others, if the songs carry us joyfully and hopefully into our daily endeavors, and if that godly feeling can remain to lead us to a successful ministry, whether we are of the priesthood or not, and eventually lead us and others Zionward—then, and only then can we say that the reunion was successful. And to this end all are at work.

---

you have a director of religious education who may be one of the district presidency or some one chosen to assist the presidency, having supervision over all phases and interests of religious education within the district.

The State of Franklin

"The Land of the Sky."

Did you ever hear of the State of Franklin? Yes, in the United States, and one of them. No, not a state of mind nor condition, but territory with laws and a seat of government. You never did? Well, neither had I until a few months ago I reached the mountainous country now forming the eastern part of Tennessee and parts of Kentucky and Alabama which border on the Cumberland, the Appalachian, the Blue Ridge, and the Great Smoky mountains, reaching eastward to western Virginia and North and South Carolina.

The greater part of this section, now called "The Land of the Sky," composed the State of Franklin, organized in 1784. A constitution was framed and ratified, and a legislature and a governor, John Sevier, were elected. The new government was suppressed by North Carolina in 1788. At first it was known as the Watauga Association. Receiving no help from North Carolina against the Indians, the western inhabitants formed their own State.

A capital was built which now bears the name of Jonesborough, and as the lines now run it is in Tennessee. The State house is now used for a county seat and is in a good state of preservation being repaired from time to time. As I approached the door, I was struck with the view of a bronze tablet beside the door with the Ten Commandments in bold relief. Its dimensions are three by four feet and the letters can be read fifteen or twenty feet away and by the oldest man without glasses.

The unofficial capital has been transferred to Asheville in North Carolina, in the spotlight because of one of the most gigantic bank failures of recent times which also caused the failure of several banks in many directions. Asheville is the summer home of the Vanderbilts and other eastern capitalists. The chief hotel in the city is named The George Vanderbilt. The cool climate of summer and balmy breezes of a southern winter, comparable to that of the Mediterranean, attract tourists from all over the world at all seasons of the year, not to camp out in the sticks amid bugs and mosquitoes but to reside in one of the most up-to-date cities money can beautify. It is called the "Land of The Lure," and the boast is sent broadcast that "when tourists reach this country they stay awhile." Last year 779,675 tourists visited Asheville alone and in "The Land of The Sky" left $17,000,000.

In this section thirty mountain peaks pierce the clouds, the highest being Mount Mitchel, which has an altitude of 6,684 feet, and is the highest east of the Rockies. The morning we stood on top of this point and from a fifty-foot observation tower looked out upon the world seemingly a hundred miles around, there were strata of clouds, one below us and one above. Through the lower one, appearing as a great sea, came up thousands of islands, while the openings in the fleecy mist above, appeared as doorways into heaven. A most enchanting scene which follows us into dreamland. I must not tell of the trip through rain and slush over the twelve-mile, one-way road, a log road with double hairpin curves, to be negotiated after dark.

I would willingly forget that three hours' drive. Much of the enchanting beauty of the next morning was overshadowed by the thoughts of the return trip, which however, in the day light, proved to be tame.

Enchanting as was the view from Mount Mitchel, yet for visual beauty the trip to Blowing Rock, over the Yonah-lassee Trail impels our praise to Deity for the mighty grandeur of nature. On the right as we round the head of a valley that ends or rather begins against the sheer side of a rocky mountain cap, we view a landscape worthy of any artist, and reaching fifty to seventy-five miles to Lake Lure. We are driving along under a ledge of overhanging rock shelves, with springs issuing beside the road at short intervals, while running down the upper side of the shelf and falling outside our trail, are other springs through the mist of which we look at the valley previously described. Beside the road and back in the grottoes are campers rolling up their bedding or preparing lunch. Nobody passes here without "stopping a while."

One of the wonders of the world is Blowing Rock, which is widely advertised and draws tourists from all over the world. The interesting part of it is the people you meet from everywhere. The upward-turned, flat rock extending some twelve feet over the almost perpendicular valley side, causes a draft on the same principle as a tall smoke stack. When the wind blows from every direction but one, the visitor may throw his hat, handkerchief or glove out beyond the rock, and it will be blown back to him. It was our misfortune to visit it during a heavy rain storm and the wind was in the wrong direction. Between showers several of us tried various objects only to see them disappear more quickly than usual, owing to the suction of the wind. Glad we did not try our hat. Some one remarked it either blows up or down, and in either case it is blowing rock.

At the edge of the little city are two springs only a few feet apart. The water from one flows into the Atlantic ocean, and that from the other goes to the Mississippi and the Gulf of Mexico.

An authority says: "The towns of Boone and Blowing Rock, two gems in a majestic mountain setting, beckon to those who seek the unusual in beauty and nature at its best, a view supreme.

"Situated at an altitude of over four thousand feet on the crest of the famous Blue Ridge Mountains amid a natural heritage of wild flowers—rhododendrons, azaleas, mountain laurel, and other native blooms, this charming section is unsurpassed and is justly called 'Nature's Playground.'

"The average summer temperature is seventy-six degrees and there are no mosquitoes. Sleep under a blanket every night. From a visit is born a desire to remain."

All this is veritably true. There sprang up in our hearts at once a desire to remain. It was with difficulty that I persuaded my wife to drive to Boone rather than remain another day. Its citizens are the purest Anglo-American stock in America. An ever-changing panorama of scenic beauty greets the eye at every turn. There are no factories, no noise, no dirt, not a thing to disturb, yet all the conveniences of a modern city are available. Here one may enjoy the cool mountain air in the seclusion of a home while enjoying a summer's vacation in the mountains in the highest incorporated town east of the Rockies. The country bears still another appropriate name: "The Delectable Scenic Vacation Land."

A journey through North Carolina brings one in contact with some of the oldest geographical formations on earth, yet also takes in the spot where modern aviation first succeeded. En route one passes sections unusually rich in historical reminiscences, dating from the day of the hardy pioneers, like Boone and Sevier, down through the days of Revolutionary heroes and the bloody sway of Blackbeard the pirate. There is scarcely an era in the history of North Carolina that has not had some vital part in the colorful pageant of America in the making.

And yet so far as I know or have heard, there has never been a sermon preached by representatives of the latter-day Restoration in this region. In this State, and especially in Sky Land, is the head of Methodism and Presbyterianism in America. Of these I will write later.

One writer says: "It is pretty well noised about that North Carolina has the highest birth rate, the lowest death rate, and the purest American blood on the continent." Typhoid fever is practically unknown and other diseases are far below the normal per cent.

Again and again I asked myself the question: Why has this part of the country not been evangelized? The friendliness of the people has grown into a proverb. The historian says: "With North Carolinians the spirit of hospitality is more than mere tradition although the latter is indeed a rich heritage."

Three tenths of one per cent of the people are foreign born. Thousands of former dwellers in other sections, who have come to cast their lot in North Carolina, have been attracted fully as much by the spirit of her people as by the natural advantages abundant throughout the commonwealth.

The average climate is comparable to the Levant of Bible times except in the higher altitudes where a constant low temperature is maintained in summer and high in winter. The annual mean temperature varies from 48.4 degrees in the mountains to 63.4 on the coast. Throughout the year about twenty degrees in temperature separate the east from the west.

The wealth of the State has multiplied eight times since the beginning of the present century.

North Carolina has the largest towel mills in the world which produce 600,000 towels daily. It has the largest denim mills in the world, the largest damask mills. It produces more tobacco than all the other states combined.

Mr. Duke of "Duke's Mixture," has built here one of the largest universities in several states, and proposes to make it the largest in the world.

The State produces more peanuts than any other state, more mica and ranks first in feldspar. It has developed more electric power than any other state in the South, has the largest pulp mills in the United States, the largest hosiery mills in the world. It boasts more cotton textile mills and makes a wider variety of textile products than any state in the Union; operates more spindle hours. It makes more wooden bedroom furniture than any state. Has the largest heavyweight underwear mills in the Union.

It has a wider variety of soil and produces a wider variety of grains, fruits, and vegetables than any other state.

North Carolina has the largest cordage and twine output in the United States and more miscellaneous manufacturing plants. It pays more federal tax than the original thirteen colonies combined. It leads the southern states in the manufacture of furniture, and all states in the variety of precious stones. Here gold was first discovered in the United States in 1799. Here American independence was born and the first revolutionary meeting held. Why has the church neglected this field?

J. W. PETERSON.

Kansas Pioneer Saint Passes Away

On the morning of August 3 there passed from mortal life another faithful member, Sister Ann Elizabeth Kirk, at Scammon, Kansas. She lived the life of a devoted Christian, being strong in the faith, helpful to others, and sure of the mercy of her Lord. With her, self was the last to be considered, and she gave her life to the church and to her home. Her many friends will miss her.

Sister Kirk was born August 21, 1856 in Boone County, Illinois. She married William Kirk in 1875, and to them nine children were given, five daughters and four sons. Entered the fold of Christ May 2, 1880, being baptized by J. T. Davies. Though afflicted for many years, she bore her suffering with patience, and passed peacefully away. The funeral was carried out as she had planned it, Elder Lee Quick preaching the sermon and she was laid to rest in Edgman Cemetery beside eight of her children who have passed on.

There survive Sister Kirk her husband, her eldest daughter, Sister Clara M. Mercer, of Scammon, seven grandchildren and their companions, twenty-one great grandchildren, four sisters, and one brother as well as many friends.

Sister Kirk had lived in Cherokee County, Kansas, for sixty-one years.

Graceland's Thirty-seventh Opening

The Graceland Campus

Friday, September 4

Three days ago the Graceland College campus was a sleepy-looking place. Today the air is full of the spirit of ready-for-another-year's business. Overnight the Hill has come to life!

Early in the week those who were to assist in the preparations and the welcoming began to straggle in. By Thursday evening the mealtime sounds at the dining room had grown from a murmur to a mild roar. Freshmen began to appear here and there and gettings-acquainted were the order of the day. By this morning the old halls and walls had fully awakened from their summer's lethargy and were resounding with voices, with laughter, and with the tread of many comings and goings.

The faculty had been holding long conclaves, and the deans had been in secret session. The registration machinery had been set up and oiled for action. Meantime each incoming automobile, or bus, or railroad-motorbus (Lamoni's locomotive!) had been unloading its consignment of students, hat bags, traveling bags, paper bags, suitcases, trunks, or what-did-you-bring into the hands of the waiting reception committees and transfer men.

Today seventy-five or eighty freshmen have taken possession of the campus—and more are coming! Having been divided into three groups, they are now going through a process of: registration, physical examinations, and a course in Library Use and Time Budgeting.

About ninety freshmen in all are expected, and it is anticipated that the total enrollment of the college will approximate that of last year, something over two hundred. There will be fewer women students and more men this year.

The Official Welcome

At the opening assembly this morning Apostle John F. Garver, for the Board of Trustees, extended an official and characteristic welcome to the new freshmen, who, by the way, are as "new" as any freshmen you ever saw! And, as the official welcomer observed, "This is the finest looking bunch of freshmen we've ever had." President G. N. Briggs also spoke in welcome, and introduced the members of the faculty.

Mr. Garver sympathized with the freshmen in his "I know just how you feel," but warned them that they would feel worse when they had to leave next spring and sever the ties of association and friendship that in the meantime will have been formed. On the question of "Is it worth while to be here?" he offered several suggestions. Thirty-six years of history have made it worth while, he said. The opportunities offered by the college make it worth while. Some day you will do things that will make it worth while to have been here. But the most important thing is that the personality you bring with you will make it worth while. "To that personality I speak this word of welcome."

Mr. Briggs offered his traditional prophecy for a "better year than ever before," and assured the new students that the investment made in them by their parents, the church, and the state would bring valuable returns.

What Is Your Horsepower?

"Each student achieving at the level of his ability." With this motto as the objective of the school, Dean A. R. Gilbert, Director of Student Personnel, invited the freshmen to produce in their college work whatever amount of "horsepower" their abilities equipped them to develop. The first step toward this objective is the school's freshman program, and from the opening assembly the freshmen were led forth to face the "terrors" of the first installment in the "testing time." These tests determine the ability level of each new student, and thus indicate the level at which he should work in his college studies.

The Official Program

In a second assembly early this afternoon the freshmen took their first lesson in learning the songs and pep cheers of the college. This has come to be one of the regular features of "Freshmen Days"—to develop a "we" feeling through participating in some of the traditions and customs of the institution. And as, under the direction of Roy A. Cheville, the freshmen sang "Graceland Forever" and "Alma Mater Hymn," and burst forth with a "Go Graceland" yell they immediately ceased to be onlookers and strangers and partook of their first sense of ownership in the college, which is henceforth to be their college.

The program for tonight and for the next few days follows in summary:

Friday evening: Reception at the church park for the freshmen, by the young people of Lamoni. Another regular feature of "Freshman Days."

Saturday morning: Assembly at 9 o'clock. Further lessons in songs and cheers. The literary societies will be presented by Miss Florence Thompson, director of forensics. The forensic and athletic programs of the school will be outlined.

Saturday afternoon: Assembly at 1:15. More songs and cheers. (By this time the freshmen will be so good at these that the old-timers will have to sit up and take notice!) The musical opportunities of the school will be presented by Miss Mabel Carlile, director of that department.

Saturday evening: Picnic dinner at South Woods under the direction of E. E. Closson.

Sunday morning: At 9:30 the first meeting of the collegiate department of the Lamoni church school, on the Hill. Organization and courses offered to be presented by Noble Kelly, superintendent. At 10:45 communion service at the Coliseum.

Sunday evening: Church service at the Coliseum, with Apostle John F. Garver in the pulpit.

Monday morning: General assembly at 9 o'clock. (The upperclassmen are now "officially" on the scene and being registered!) Freshmen at Zimmerman Hall for more tests.

Monday afternoon: At 1 o'clock, the first regular freshman chapel session.

Tuesday morning: Classes have their opening sessions.

Wednesday morning: Graceland's Thirty-seventh year is on!

The Athletic Forecast

Graceland's football schedule for 1931 has been completed and is as follows:

September 26, Osceola Junior College, at Lamoni.

October 19, Iowa Wesleyan, at Lamoni.

October 17, (Homecoming Game), Clarinda Junior College, at Lamoni.

October 23, Chilicothe Business College, at Chilicothe, Mo.

October 31, Kidder College, at Lamoni.

November 3, Creston Junior College, at Creston.

November 11, Albia Junior College, at Albia.

The football prospects are good, according to Coach A. R. Gilbert with six to nine letter men expected back on the squad. Prospects for basketball are bright, with four or five letter men returning and the freshmen material better than usual.

Football practice will start immediately.

This Old Business of Opening

For thirty-seven years now Graceland has been having openings. Old stuff, you might say—and yet, each one is as new as the last and as full of eagerness and excitement.

The sophomores and juniors are back, beaming with jubilation and striving, oh so hard, not to express their superiority to obviously! The campus is green and inviting; and the freshmen (dare we say it?), despite their good looks, fulfill all the expectations of "green" candidates for collegiate life.

The bookstore is full of books that in a few days will find their way into the hands of more or less anxious seekers of knowledge. The faculty members are brushing up on their opening lectures.

The Library Owl gazes solemnly upon the scene.

Graceland College is again in session. L. E. Flowers.

Independence

"The Aim of the Restoration" was the theme of Apostle R. S. Budd, speaker at the Campus Sunday evening. Independence Saints were happy to hear one of Brother Budd's earnest discourses from the Campus pulpit before the summer series draws to a close.

Musical features consisted of numbers by the Auditorium Orchestra directed by Orlando Nace. Pastor John F. Sheehy was in charge, assisted by Walter Chapman. Favorite hymns were sung by the congregation, "Redeemer of Israel," "How Firm a Foundation," and "Father, Bless Thy Word to All."

Though Labor Day was not observed with a formal celebration at the Campus, the public was invited to picnic all day on the grounds, making use of the tables, ovens, and other conveniences. In the afternoon the Harbin Brothers Baseball Team and the Viking Refrigerators Team played a tie-off game. The tie occurred July 4 when the game was called off in the fifth inning on account of rain. At dark the moving picture, "The Man Who Laughs," was seen by a large crowd.

Independence schools opened the morning of Labor Day. More than forty-five hundred children answered the nine o'clock school bell.

The Independence Institute of Arts and Sciences opened for accredited high school work the evening of September 8. This school, maintained for those "who must work but are willing to study," gives an opportunity for those who desire to get credit towards high school graduation.

A special prayer service for all the priesthood of Independence was conducted at the Stone Church Sunday afternoon. Large attendance and a good spirit characterized this hour of song, prayer, and testimony.

Stone Church

"God put love in the program of his church," asserted President F. M. McDowell in his talk at the Sunday morning communion service, "love which involves self-denial and complete giving of self." He gave a definite program of activity, and the sacrament reminds us of the divine challenge extended every Saint to participate in the work of latter days. We must be active, we can not be a spectator and do God's will. Peter was a spectator in the gospel until Pentecost; then, fired with holy zeal, he gave the world his message. Like Peter, those who would live must identify themselves with the great program of living.

In charge of Pastor J. F. Sheehy, a large congregation was moved to worship in the spirit of peace and reverence. The Scripture reading, the Twenty-third Psalm, seemed particularly appropriate and reassuring, at this sacrament opening the fall and winter season, "the new year," as Brother McDowell called.

A prayer of blessing and supplication in behalf of the church was offered by Patriarch W. A. McDowell, and the oblation talk was by Bishop J. A. Becker.

In the stand were seated ministers who conducted the service: Elders F. M. McDowell, J. F. Sheehy, J. A. Becker, S. A. Thiel, C. Ed. Miller, H. G. Barto, W. A. McDowell, and Stanley Kelley.

The junior department sacrament service at the Campus was well attended. The juniors were pleased to see Elder William Cowan present again after his recent vacation. Brother W. F. Bolinger was in charge of the service and read from the Book of Mormon 3 Nephi 9: 40-46, the account of the first sacrament service of the Nephites, instituted by Jesus during his visit to the South American continent. Following the serving of the sacrament the juniors gave expression to their desires in song and testimony.

This week will see the opening of fall work on the part of the Stone Church Choir. The first rehearsal will be tomorrow evening in the basement of the Stone Church. The evening will be divided into rehearsal and social entertainment, and it is hoped that all old choir members and many new singers will be present. Paul N. Craig is the director.

The Wahdemna Choral Club, directed by Paul N. Craig, will open its season's activities with a concert at the Scottish Rite Temple the afternoon of Sunday, September 27. In the evening of that same day the club will sing at Bennington Church in Kansas City, and the third concert will be given at the Auditorium October 11 at the close of the Harvest Home Festival. The club held its first rehearsal September 8.

One of the most active and most beloved older members of the ministry, Elder J. M. Terry, has been resting for a week at the Sanitarium. Yesterday he was reported as feeling "much better." All summer Brother Terry has been very busy administering to the sick at the Sanitarium, preaching, and helping wherever there was need. His services are deeply appreciated by a wide circle of member and nonmember friends. Prayers were asked for him at the Stone Church sacrament service.

Sister Ida Myrtle Street was laid to rest in Mound Grove Cemetery September 4, the funeral sermon being preached by Elder Joseph Luff. She was born August 19, 1891, at Independence, and died September 2, 1931, at Kansas City, Missouri. Her baptism occurred at Independence June 10, 1900, Wallace Robinson being the officiating minister. For the past two years Sister Street has lived in the West. Many friends mourn her passing.

McKenzie Stewardship School

Realizing that the program of the church and the purpose of the Restoration can not be thoroughly presented by holding session but once a week, the Pleasant Hill, Alabama, Branch conducted a two weeks' summer school for beginners, primaries, juniors, and intermediates on "Stewardship of Life."

The school was under the direct supervision of Lyle D. Flynn, who taught the older intermediates. Assisting him were Anna Mae Hough, who taught the younger intermediates; Gertrude Drake, who taught the older juniors; Mary Lou Patrick, who taught the younger juniors; and Odessa Harper Flynn and Marguerite Orr, who taught the beginners. Rogene Miller had charge of the handwork, while Anna Mae Hough and Odessa H. Flynn were in charge of the music.

The opening day was spent discussing Zion, as it resembled other cities with its homes, schools, industries, transportation, churches, public utilities, etc., with the farming districts round about; but differing from the cities of the world because it was God-planned, inhabited by Saints of God, and all its activities were for the advancing of righteousness. Approaches to Zion in Enoch's time, in the Book of Mormon times, at Kirtland, at Far West and at Nauvoo were discussed. We learned that Independence is to be the center place with Zion spreading her wings wider and wider as the Saints prepare. The road to Zion will be traveled by the steward, who is the individual who uses his God-given abilities for "the interest of his neighbor with an eye single to the glory of God."

The second day was spent discussing "Stewardship of Life." Every person has been sent to earth to perform a God-assigned task, being armed with certain capacities and talents for its accomplishment. In all phases of our lives we are accountable to God for the way we have used our lives, being rewarded or punished accordingly.

The next two days were spent studying the "Stewardship of Physical Life," under which head our bodies were discussed as the temples housing our souls. Food, shelter, clothing, habits, and many other things that pertain to our physical welfare were reviewed, that all might have a better understanding of the way to purify our bodies to make them holy temples for God's Spirit. The person who trains his body well, so that he leads a useful life, bringing honor to his parents, friends, church and country, is a physical steward.

The next two days were spent studying the mind, its work, its development, and how it can be trained for Zion building. Man, because of his superior mind, has been given dominion over the rest of the animal kingdom. The man who keeps his thoughts high, and develops his mind for godly purposes is a mental steward.

The "Stewardship of Spiritual Life" was presented on the next two days. The doctrines of the church were analyzed and studied. The man who accepts the gospel fundamentals, and uses them to magnify his calling of helping to fulfill all righteousness is a spiritual steward.

Next was discussed our moral obligations. He who uses his life well with a conscience free from sin is a moral steward.

The following two days were spent discussing the financial program of the church. Several inventories were filed, some tithing was paid, and all learned that our financial abilities play an important part in the forwarding of the cause of Zion. The financial steward is he who uses his money, property, and all temporal blessings for the interest of all, that God's purposes might be realized.

The final day brought a review. In discussion we decided that "the way we share our properties, gifts, talents, and capacities with our neighbors determines our standing as a social steward."

Seventy children met daily throughout the school, and studied hard the Zion plan of salvation. The teachers found joy in giving their preparation to so great a cause as that of teaching the boys and girls the methods of accomplishing the purpose of the restored gospel.

Both teachers and pupils, as well as the branch are looking to the school another year, which no doubt will run for a longer period of time.

Duluth, Minnesota

Sixtieth Avenue, West, and Bristol Street

We were pleased to see in our midst during July, Sister Anna Sylvester, of Lansing, Michigan, who was visiting relatives and friends. Her home was always open to the missionaries when the work was young in Duluth. It is a pleasure to see her faith in God still very strong.

Four carloads of Saints journeyed to Two Harbors July 29 to meet with the Saints there in joint prayer service.

Elder Vernon Lundeen, pastor of Minneapolis Branch and member of the district presidency, was in charge of the sacramental service, and a fine spirit was enjoyed. Each one was strengthened for the task ahead. Brother Lundeen spoke in the evening, Brother E. J. Walters, pastor of this branch, occupying the Minneapolis pulpit.

Of late the following speakers have stood behind the sacred desk of Duluth Church: Elder Sam Case, Pastor E. J. Walters, W. C. Stauty, Elder George W. Day, of Bemidji, Minnesota, L. S. Wight, district president, of Minneapolis, Elder Vernon Lundeen, of Minneapolis, and Abraham Miller, of Port Arthur, Ontario.

The annual Sunday school picnic was held at Lester Park the afternoon of August 25. Elder Vernon Lundeen was with us. A program of sports and a bountiful lunch with ice cream were enjoyed.

A special business meeting was held the evening of August 22 with Elder L. S. Wight in charge. After routine business, time was spent in parliamentary practice, Elder Vernon Lundeen assisting. Sunday, August 23, Brother Wight was the morning speaker, and in the evening Elder George W. Day, of Bemidji.

August 30 Brother Abraham Miller, of Port Arthur, Ontario, was here, and Brother William Randle, of Cloud Bay, Ontario. The former, who is a priest, occupied the stand, relating many of his experiences had during his forty or more years' membership in the church. When we see old warriors in the church driving over two hundred miles to meet with God's people, we feel a keener desire to buckle on the full gospel armor and move forward to the consummation of the will of God.

The annual business meeting will be held in Duluth, September 14, so that beginning with the church school year, October 1, we shall go forward to the end that in our midst Zion may be made ready.

The district conference will convene in Duluth, September 19 and 20.

Shidler, Oklahoma

We think it will interest Herald readers to hear from what has been known as Foraker Branch. At the suggestion of Brother S. W. Simmons, who moved to Shidler last winter, the Saints decided to build a church at this place. There were parts of six families hereabouts who were members of the church and none at Foraker. So we bought a lot and remodeled a building standing on it. The members did the work, whole families coming and bringing their lunches and working all day. Brother G. Swain was in charge of the carpentering and cabinet making. Brother Woslum donated the paint for the interior of the building and applied it. The sisters stained the new seats, and paid for the electric meter. All deserve much credit for the way they worked. In two weeks from the time the work began in earnest, the church was ready for occupancy.

Brother and Sister Fred Swain moved to Winfield about this time and loaned the branch the use of their piano which has been much appreciated.

Members have also appreciated the presence of Brother and Sister Simmons. The prayer meetings which had been discontinued before they came, are now well attended, a spiritual atmosphere prevails at all the services directed by Brother Simmons, who is the assistant pastor and Brother Paul Storm, priest. Brother Storm, though not a fluent speaker, by his daily walk in life speaks volumes to those around him, especially to those not of the faith.

Our church building comfortably seats one hundred and fifty persons. At the funeral of Brother Reuben Workman more than two hundred and fifty people were counted. All who were inside the building and many who stood outside the windows heard the sermon by Brother Simmons.

Though Brother Simmons has experienced some suffering this summer from eczema, he held a series of meetings in July, which lasted over fifteen nights. Night after night Brother Simmons stood before the congregation to preach the word of God, his eczema-covered feet clad in white hose. During this period there was a wonderful outpouring of the Spirit.

Saints were saddened to learn of the death of the infant of Brother E. E. and Sister Flora Workman, who passed away August 21 at their home near Newkirk, Oklahoma.

This region has had the most abundant crops for some years.

We pray for the advancement of Zion.

Reunion at Brush Creek, Illinois

August 30 closed another successful reunion for the Southeastern Illinois District, at Brush Creek. The sessions opened August 21. During this time 'neath the friendly shade of the tent, the Saints were taught many things concerning church legislative and other problems.

Due to the fine missionary effort exerted, six candidates were made members of the church. Brother and Sister Leonard Caudle and little daughter, Wanda, were baptized, completing the Caudle family circle in the gospel. Their daughter was the first to take the step. Other candidates were children: Roy Milner, Howard Knapp, and James Clow.

Every attendant at the Brush Creek reunion desires to offer thanks to God for his great blessings during the stay together. A fine spirit prevailed.

There were present to help, Apostle J. F. Garver, Brother

Carl Edstrom, of Saint Louis, Missouri; Elder R. L. Fulk, and others of the priesthood. Doctor Daykin, of Taylorville, spoke on Sunday. It is hoped that every one will meditate on the divine word received through Apostle Garver, and as a result will move forward.

The juniors were splendidly cared for under the direction of Sisters R. L. Fulk, V. Sheppard, and others.

Oshoto, Wyoming

August 2 our reunion opened at Spearfish, South Dakota. Since only a few from Oshoto were able to attend, the ones at home held church school as usual. Fifty were present. Then we had a basket dinner and spent the rest of the day visiting.

A good crowd gathered at the church August 9 for the session of the church school. Brother Vaughn McElroy was in charge. We missed the Saints who had gone to reunion but were glad that they could attend. All reports were that they enjoyed good meetings and class work.

Sister Lyman T. Johnston and family, of Casper, Wyoming, were present on this Sunday, Sister Johnston giving a reading to the church school. She was visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. McElroy.

On August 10 Brother and Sister Henry Watt gave a farewell party for a friend, and a week later Brother and Sister George Redding were surprised on their thirty-third wedding anniversary by their friends. Another social activity was a birthday party for Brother T. C. Grey.

A large crowd gathered August 16 for the church school, and many happy faces eloquently told of the good meetings at Spearfish. The young people were in charge of the school, and Brother Fred Cousins was the speaker.

Members of the branch have in the past month taken interesting motor trips, to spend vacations with friends and relatives. On the other hand, a number of visitors have been in our midst.

Though there was no rain, the weather was cooler August 23, and a good crowd participated in the church school and heard Brother Cousins, the speaker.

Brother and Sister George Redding were called to Neligh, Nebraska, the latter part of the month, by the serious illness of Brother Redding's father. Also Brother and Sister Henry Watt in their car left for Canada. Brother Watt's father is very low.

Friends of the McElroy family gave them a surprise party September 1.

Columbus, Ohio

Second Branch, Rinehard and Twenty-second Streets

August has come and gone, taking with it the very hot days of summer. Since this is the month of vacation, attendance at Second Branch was somewhat decreased.

Several Saints were privileged to attend the Kirtland reunion. They came home enthusiastic over the spiritual treat they had experienced in this historic spot. It is their earnest desire to put into practice in their own lives the things told them by the Spirit.

Brother A. H. Nieman, whom we were glad to have present again, assisted Pastor R. E. Madden in the sacrament service. A peaceful meeting sent the Saints home encouraged and happy.

Seventeen members of the Women's Department and one visitor met August 13 for a potluck dinner at noon. A paper, "No Short Cut Possible," was read by Vassie Sheets.

Speakers for the month were: A. H. Nieman, H. E. French, J. E. Matthews, Edgar R. Kimball, Chester Carey, A. E. Anderton, Doctor W. B. Reeves, G. H. Kirkendall, and John R. Grice. The sermons were splendid being accompanied in every instance by a degree of the Spirit.

Lamoni Stake

Lamoni

Services held Sunday, August 30, in Lamoni, were especially interesting to the many visiting friends and students entering Graceland College. The motto "Forget not the ancient landmarks," was appropriate for the occasion.

After the opening exercises, Sister Evelyn Burgess gave a short but impressive talk on "Ancient Landmarks." She spoke of the scene at the home of Mary and Martha where Mary had "chosen the better part," and concluded saying there were many Marys and Marthas in Lamoni.

Something especially interesting to Lamoni people as well as the visitors was the presentation of the new pulpit made from oak salvaged from the ruins of the Brick Church by Joseph Anthony. Brother Anthony gave a detailed account of how this relic came into existence, and named several other Lamoni people connected with its creation. Some unique features of this pulpit are the adjustable book rest, the lamp on the front of the book rest which can be put out of sight when not in use, and the small piece of engraved metal on the front of the pulpit, made from salvaged metal of the old bell (which, by the way, was completely melted during the fire). The metal plate states from what the pulpit is made and gives the date of the building and burning of the Brick Church. Brother Cheville accepted the gift for Lamoni Branch, closing with the statement that the pulpit is especially valuable because of its spiritual significance, carrying with it as it does the memories that hover in and around the old Brick Church. The pulpit is beautiful and is greatly appreciated by Lamoni Branch.

During the class session of the church school the young people gathered together to hear a talk by Mrs. Olive Mortimore on "The Early History of Lamoni Stake." Mrs. Mortimore dwelt on the history of the early settlers of Lamoni which she had gleaned from Lamoni residents who still live to tell the story of the early days. The audience could not help but appreciate the ease and comfort of today when compared with the toils of the pioneer life of fifty years ago.

At the close of the church school session the congregation passed to seats and the services continued. Three interesting addresses were delivered. "Lamoni's Place in the Church's History," by George W. Blair was well received. He dealt with the founding of the church headquarters in Lamoni, the growth and development of the town, the building of the Herald office and church, and explained what the loss by fire of each building had meant to Lamoni. He spoke of the many residents who formerly lived here and of their work in building up the town and community.

"Graceland's Place in the Church's History" was clearly presented by President G. N. Briggs. He showed how the plans of the early church had finally resulted in the building of Graceland College. He cited the work of Marietta Walker as one whose name should be held in sacred remembrance by the youth of the church for her untiring zeal and devotion to the cause of education. President Briggs also called to remembrance many whose lives are being spent in doing good elsewhere after completing courses at Graceland.

Brother Roy A. Cheville then spoke on "Lamoni Stake in the Church of Tomorrow." Brother Cheville hopes that although we do not have beautiful edifices in which to worship that may be found elsewhere, we may have the wonderful blessings of unity and harmony and brotherly love here in Lamoni.

After the benediction dinner was spread in the basement of the Coliseum for the visiting young people, during the course of which Mrs. Lyda Williams spoke of the old buildings of Lamoni. She mentioned the movements leading up to the building of the Herald building, the Brick Church, the Saints' Home and the College Administration building. She also mentioned the Liberty Home and the Children's Home. Following the dinner a tour was made of historic places in Lamoni.

OF GENERAL INTEREST

Is a Revival on the Way?

The following extracts, taken from an article by Luther A. Weigle in the "Federal Council Bulletin" for April, 1931, reveal a wholesome and thoughtful confidence that is a strong contrast to much of the current gloomy pessimism that has invaded the ranks of the religious leaders of the world.

If the religious leaders of the world have no real faith in the ultimate triumph of the Christian church over its enemies, then the message of Christ is likely to fail in their hands. If, with Doctor Weigle, they can look at the past with honest criticism, and by comparison see growing out of the uncertainty of the present a reason for future hope, then the strength of the Christian gospel is not likely to be diminished. At any rate, it may be comfort in times of ill fortune to realize that the cause of Christianity has at numbers of times been at lower ebb than it is at present.

In the closing years of the eighteenth century the moral and religious life of America touched a low ebb. At Princeton, in 1782, there were but two students who professed to be Christians; at Bowdoin, in 1810, there was one. A revival at Yale had swelled the membership of the college church in 1783; but seventeen years later there were but five student members. When Lyman Beecher entered Yale as a student, he found that most of the senior class were infidels, and called one another Voltaire, Rousseau, D'Alembert, etc.

But in that same year a new president came to Yale College—Timothy Dwight, grandson of Jonathan Edwards. A resolute opponent of the current deism and infidelity, he met the situation with good humor, sound judgment, human sympathy, and the intellectual resources of a great teacher. And in time, he won the battle. In 1802, the college experienced a revival of religion. One third of the student body professed conversion; and one half of these became ministers. Three times again before President Dwight's death, in 1808, 1812, and 1815, like movements of religious quickening were experienced at Yale.

What happened at Yale happened at other colleges. At Williams, in 1806, a group of five students, driven by a thunderstorm to seek shelter under a haystack, talked and prayed together concerning "the moral darkness of Asia" and resolved to go as missionaries to the peoples of that continent. In due time they addressed a plea to the churches of Massachusetts to send them; and their plea was answered by the organization of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions.

What happened in the colleges happened everywhere, in cities and towns and villages, in settled countryside and in camp meetings upon the frontier. People turned to God again.

The time in which we are now living is in some respects strangely like those closing years of the eighteenth century which I have described, when skepticism, atheism, and infidelity were the vogue.

The foes of Christ have never been more open in their antagonism than today. It is not merely that men are drawn away by pride and lust, by love of comfort, by spiritual dullness and inertia; there are those who deliberately reject Him. . . .

The new paganism can not last. I have too much faith in human nature and in the love and power of God to believe that this sort of thing can go on for very long. There are already signs of its breaking up. The disillusionment and the sense of futility which it begets have been poignantly described by Walter Lippman in his Preface to Morals, and by Joseph Wood Krutch in The Modern Temper.

I believe that we are upon the threshold of a great revival of religious faith. The world is beginning to sense its spiritual hunger.

Such a revival will not come through the mere reassertion of old authorities or the reiteration of timeworn dogmas. We are living in a different world from that of our fathers. We need, not the forms of the old-time religion, but its spirit. The times demand of us, not the mere transmission of a moral and spiritual heritage, but creative thinking and adventurous action. We must labor and pray for insight and understanding to discern what is right, and for power to do the right, in this vastly complex world of our day.

To this end, we must in all of our thinking and doing, consistently maintain a social point of view, and have courage to explore the possibilities of the social gospel. . . .

We must, again, in all of our thinking and doing maintain the educational point of view. God's work demands not less, but more, of human intelligence than the transient interests of the day. In morals and religion no less than in politics, business, industry, and the sciences, the quest of truth demands severe self-discipline, a full measure of honest labor, and complete intellectual integrity. We must seek again to make religion a vital part of the education of our children; we must regain for the cause of Christ the great colleges of this land which were founded in His name; we must make our own faith intelligent; we must accept and use to all good ends the tremendous resources which the sciences and the arts are placing at our disposal.

Finally, we must in all of our thinking and doing maintain the evangelistic point of view. We are not our own; we are God's husbandry, God's building. Our lives well up from forces wide and deep as the universe; they are rooted and sustained in Ultimate Reality. It is the faith of the Christian that the heart of Reality stands revealed in Jesus Christ, that God is what Christ showed him to be. That faith, that gospel, has lifting, saving power. Evangelism is not to be defined in terms of method, but in terms of attitude, spirit, and faith.

In the power of the Spirit of God, let us meet the paganism of our day with a social gospel that is content to leave no part of life and no child of God outside of the kingdom, with an educational program that enlists in the cause of Christ the whole range of human powers, and with an evangelism wide enough to include the full redemptive purpose of Him who came that men might have life and have it abundantly.

The Error—the Remedy

Churches which are struggling with church building debts in a period of industrial and business depression are wondering just where the error was in their calculations. They had not looked for it to end like this. The building program was put over with enthusiasm. The new edifice was dedicated with cheer. But the tumult and the shouting have died, and those who mounted up on wings as eagles are finding it difficult to walk.

Yes, there was an error in the reasoning, but it was not in the necessity. Church buildings were needed then and they are needed now. Suitable churches for worship and suitable educational buildings for the modern church school are still needed by the hundreds. With all of the advance of the past decade church building has lagged behind building programs in other lines.

The error which was made was a common one. It was shared with business and social agencies. It was a typical American error. It was the product of high geared promotion. Americans are essentially evolutionists. They believe that every hamlet, city, and town must, inevitably, grow bigger, richer, and better. Most of us bought homes on a similar assumption. We builded our churches with this as a basis of faith. The community, we thought, must grow bigger, our people must grow richer, we will build a church equal to the future. Pay for it? The future will be so rich that there will be no question about getting it paid for.

All this was true in 1920. It was true in 1925. It was true in 1928. In 1929 things began to shake. In 1930 they shook a little harder. In 1931 they were still shaking. First men talked of paper losses. Then they talked of real losses. Churches came face to face with the fact that they had obligations to meet. Providence or Santa Claus was not paying the bill for them.

Now what is the remedy? Wait for the return of prosperity? Hardly. Who is going to meet principal and interest payments in the meantime? The only way to face the situation is in the spirit of Christian stewardship. When a church has a debt every member must be made to feel that it is his personal obligation. It is both morally and legally. And the debt must be paid.

Most of us have gone through that situation in our own experiences. We rebelled against paying for the car bought just before a price cut was announced. We rebelled against the thought of taking losses on our real estate. But saner judgment convinced us that life was more than these things and that we were going to live and go ahead. We knuckled down and went to work and paid the obligations.

Church debts are going to be met in the same spirit and by the same methods. Many churches are still waiting for Santa Claus, but here and there are churches which are honest enough to face the actual situations. They are going ahead. Campaigns are inaugurated. Stewardship is pressed home. Folks are finding that there is a satisfaction in making a sacrifice for the church. That sacrifice spells progress.

The churches of America need have no fear of the future if they believe in Christian stewardship.—Editorial, Church Management, August, 1931.

The Gospel of Jesus

Jesus to me is, therefore, the Christ who sums up and completes the highest religion in the world before his time. And as I study other faiths, he seems to me their Fulfiller also. Christianity is not to me one among many religions, but religion in its consummate flowering. The religion of the future will not be an amalgam compounded of Christianity and other faiths, but Christianity in which the Spirit of Jesus is loyally followed in all man's relations with God and with fellow men. In other faiths certain virtues may have been cultivated better than among the Christians we know, and certain religious resources may be used which we do not seem to employ; but these are never incompatible with Jesus. Those who pass from other religions into Christianity are not aware of parting with anything vital in their religion. They find in Christ all and more than they previously possessed. In taking his Gospel to the world we go never to destroy anything of worth, but to conserve and perfect it. It is because apart from Jesus every life is incomplete, that it seems to me the obligation of Christians to share him with the whole world.—Henry Sloane Coffin.

MISCELLANEOUS

Appointment of District President

Notice is hereby given of the appointment of Elder J. W. Peterson as president of the Eastern Oklahoma District, succeeding Elder C. G. Smallwood, who has resigned. The appointment is made subject to approval of the next district conference.—The First Presidency, by F. M. McDowell.

Conference Notices

The Northeastern Nebraska District will hold its annual conference at Decatur, Nebraska, Saturday and Sunday, October 3 and 4. Business meeting at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon Saturday. Apostle E. J. Gleazer will be present and will conduct special meetings for a week following the conference. Send ministerial and statistical reports to District Secretary J. E. Steele, 2909 Woolworth Avenue, Omaha, Nebraska. We urge the Saints to make special effort to attend this conference.—E. B. Hull, District President.

The annual conference of Northern Wisconsin District will be held in the Saints' chapel, Frankfort Branch, near Arkansaw, Wisconsin, September 26 and 27. First meeting Saturday, 10 o'clock in morning. There will be election of delegates to next General Conference, appointing of district officers, reports, etc. Mail reports to Mrs. Mary Mair, secretary, Rural Free Delivery, Chetek, Wisconsin.—C. J. Hunt, district president.

All-day Meeting

There will be an all-day meeting at the farm home of Ed. Burgess, near Deer Grove, Illinois, Sunday, September 20. There will be preaching at 11 a. m. and 2.30 p. m. with basket lunch at noon. All Saints in that vicinity and others who wish to attend are invited.—E. R. Davis, President Rock Island District.

Our Departed Ones

HEDRICK.—Ida May Hedrick was born near Fanning, Kansas, February 10, 1874, the daughter of William and Mary A. Collins Hedrick, pioneers of Doniphan County. She died at Fanning of a paralytic stroke, August 25, 1931. Brother J. W. Roberts administered the rites of baptism to her May 10, 1917, and she continued a faithful member of Fanning Branch until her death. The many acts of kindness and benevolence of our sister endeared her to a host of friends throughout the community of her residence. Our sister never entered the bonds of matrimony, but is survived by the following brothers and sisters: Mrs. Malissa J. Jackson, Fanning; Frank G. Hedrick, Atchison, Kansas; Mrs. Clara A. Young, Fanning; Mrs. Margaret Hopkins, Fanning; Mrs. Mary E. Walker, Baldwin City, Kansas; James Hedrick, Los Angeles, California. The funeral was from the church at Fanning in charge of Samuel Twombly.

SELLERS.—Daniel Bell Sellers was born at McKenzie, Alabama, May 29, 1876, and died in the same community August 13, 1931. He became a member of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints October 9, 1892, being led into the waters of baptism by Elder M. M. Turpin. He was married February 5, 1902, to Minnie J. Vickrey, whose death occurred April 26, 1906. To this union were born two children, Edna, who is now Mrs. Joe Vickrey, of McKenzie, and Leslie T., of Independence, Missouri. He was again married November 11, 1908, to Evie Vickrey. To this union were born four children, Gwendolyn, who is now Mrs. Louis Benton, of Montgomery, Alabama; Marjorie Delores, of the home, and two children who died in infancy. Besides the wife and children who mourn, are his seven brothers, two sisters, and a community of friends. The parting of Brother Bell, as he was called, leaves an impressive type of life stamped upon the hearts of all who knew him. The service was in charge of Lyle D. Flynn, Elder A. D. McCall delivering the sermon. Interment was in Pleasant Hill Cemetery.

WILLOCKS.—Minnie Weldon was born in Humboldt County, California, October 5, 1880. Was married to John Willocks, of Manchester, England, May 29, 1920. Early in life she united with the church and was a consistent member throughout her life. Since childhood she made her home in San Jose, California, where for many years she was engaged as nurse in the State hospital. There throughout her long professional life, she won the affection and confidence of those whom she ministered to because of her patience and friendly disposition. For the last few years her health has been declining, and two months ago she became seriously ill. She passed away Tuesday evening, August 18, in the home of her sister, Mrs. Thomas of San Jose. The funeral was conducted at the parlors of Hocking and Williams by J. W. Rushton, and interment was at the San Jose Cemetery August 22. Besides her husband there mourn her passing her brothers: E. A. Weldon of Castroville, George of Lafayette, and Jack of San Jose. Her sisters, Mrs. Maud Smith and Mrs. Ione Thomas, of San Jose.

ALDREDGE.—Catherine Urfer was born near Berne, Switzerland, October 7, 1840. Died at the home of her son, W. R. Crosley, in Springfield, South Dakota, August 8, 1931. When she was six years old she came to America with her parents, the ocean voyage requiring three months. The family settled in Lee County, Iowa. In 1859 she married William Crosley, who died in 1895. Ten children were born to this union, three of whom have passed on. In February, 1903, she was baptized a member of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints by Oscar Case, and remained faithful to the end. She married Al Aldredge in 1908, and he died thirteen years ago. Surviving are seven children, thirty-one grandchildren, fifty-one great-grandchildren, five great-great-grandchildren. The funeral was held in the Congregational Church in Springfield, South Dakota, the sermon by the Reverend A. C. Warner.

HINDERKS.—Elizabeth Piepergerdes Hinderks, wife of the late Temme T. Hinderks, was born in Oldenburg, Germany, February 6, 1862. When five years of age she came to America with her father and family, and they settled in the vicinity of Burlington, Iowa. January 9, 1879, she married Temme T. Hinderks, of Stewartville, Missouri. Mr. Hinderks died January 14, 1928. To them were born eight children, all of whom survive their parents. In the days of her youth she united with the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, and to this faith she remained true till death. After a brief illness following a stroke of paralysis, she peacefully passed away. God has called home a mother in Israel who will receive a well-earned reward. The funeral service was conducted in the Saints Church at Cameron, Missouri, Elder Ward A. Hougas in charge. The sermon was by Elder Sam Twombly, of Fanning, Kansas. Interment was in Maple Grove Cemetery, near Stewartville.

Prayer

God, though this life is but a wraith,
Although we know not what we use;
Although we grope with little faith,
God, give me the heart to fight—and lose.

Ever insurgent let me be,
Make me more daring than devout;
From sleek contentment keep me free
And fill me with a buoyant doubt.

Open my eyes to visions girt
With beauty, and with wonder lit,—
But let me always see the dirt,
And all that spawn and die in it.

Open my ears to music, let Me thrill with Spring's first flutes and drums
But never let me dare forget
The bitter ballads of the slums.

From compromise and things half done,
Keep me, with stern and stubborn pride;
But when at last the fight is won,
God, keep me still unsatisfied.

—Louis Untermeyer.

Buy Your Farms Now

While they are cheap. Any size, best terms. Special attention to readers of the Saints' Herald.

CHAS. R. BOWMAN
Butler, Mo.

Many Hope

to own a home in Independence; buy it now on easy terms. Twenty-five to two hundred dollars cash, balance twelve to thirty dollars per month including interest.

Scott, room one Battery Building, Independence, Mo.

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Frederick M. Smith, Editor in Chief.
 Elbert A. Smith, Floyd M. McDowell, Associate Editors.
 Leonard J. Lea, Managing Editor.
 Leta B. Moriarty, Assistant Editor.
 Published for the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.
 Subscription price: By the year, $2.
HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE
 INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI

CONTENTS

EDITORIAL:
Jesus Healed and Taught .....	842
Christ the Man and Friend .....	842
Opening Days at Graceland .....	843
Dignity and Beauty in Ministry .....	843
ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
The Church and the World .....	By E. B. Hull 845
The Price of Success .....	By R. R. R. 847
Weekly Health Letter .....	By A. W. Teel, M. D. 848
Tom King: A Life History .....	By C. H. Porter 848
Whom Shall We Serve—God or Mammon? .....	By N. L. Booker 851
THE GOSPEL FORUM:
The Climax of War as Foretold by the Hebrew Prophets .....	By C. H. Porter 852
CHURCH WORK AND SERVICES:
Changing to a Single Department .....	854
NEWS OF CHURCH AND HOME .....	855
OF GENERAL INTEREST:
Is a Revival on the Way? .....	861
The Error—the Remedy .....	862
MISCELLANEOUS .....	863

LAMONI, IOWA

(Home of Graceland College)

Farm land and town property for sale.

G. W. BLAIR REAL ESTATE AGENCY.

THE NEW SAINTS' HYMNAL

Splendid New Hymns—
 The Old Favorites—
 Songs for All Religious Occasions—
 Children's Songs—

Wherever the new Saints' Hymnal has been used it has given delight and satisfaction to congregations, choirs, and organists. It is worth many times its cost as a help to church services. Orders filled on the day received.

Prices, Cash With Order

Single Copy, postpaid ..... $1.50 each
 Ten or more, transportation extra 1.25 each
 One hundred or more, transportation extra ..... 1.00 each

Order From
HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE
 Independence, Missouri.

Notice

The Independence Sanitarium and Hospital offers a three-year course in nurses' training to young women who are high school graduates.

For further information write to superintendent, G. E. Copeland, R. N.

A GOOD TIME

To Buy Farms or Homes
 in or near

Lamoni, Iowa

A. J. YARRINGTON, "THE LAND MAN"

Most homes have fire insurance

BUT

Few homes have enough.

INSURANCE DEPARTMENT
 OF THE CHURCH

(American Underwriters, Inc.)

Independ. 486      221 W. Lexington St.

NOW IS A GOOD TIME
 TO CHANGE.

At the mid year Interest date is an advantageous time to shift your Savings Account to a safe conservative institution with a quarter century standing.

We pay 3% on Time and Savings Deposits.
 "Soliciting New Business on Our Record."

JACKSON COUNTY BANK

Independence, Mo.

"Home of Savings"

THE SAINTS' ILLUSTRATED

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS

Entered as second-class matter at the post office at Independence, Missouri, under Act of March 3, 1879. Issued weekly at Independence, Missouri. Price $2 a year in advance. Accepted for mailing at the special rate of postage provided for in section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917; authorized July 21, 1921.

Volume 78

Independence, Missouri, September 16, 1931

Number 37

"And Jesus answering saith unto them,
Have faith in God."—Mark 11 : 22.

THE LOCAL BRANCH AS A MISSIONARY UNIT THE WORKING METHOD OF A NEW EVANGELISM

RALLY DAY AND PROMOTION

C. B. Woodstock

ANNOUNCING COLLEGE DAY

OCTOBER 18

Principles of the Gospel

I.—FAITH

Jesus dealt in imperatives—divine imperatives. It is not recorded of him that he ever quibbled or argued, but he often explained. But the burden of his message to humanity was delivered in a series of commandments. As a master of men he spoke with authority; as men would have obeyed a king, they obeyed him. "Have faith in God," he said; "Come, and follow me," "Sell all that thou hast, and give to the poor." In growing numbers they heard and obeyed him.

Faith is an imperative, not an argument. One does not argue about the law of gravity, the sun, or rain. Gravity eventually brings back to the earth all that has ever been seen to leave it. Sun, wind and rain perform their work regardless of our wishes. They are not disputable forces in the economy of life. Likewise, faith is not disputable in the spiritual life.

Faith is a challenge and a command. It tells a man that if he would rise above mortality and the claims of the flesh he must believe in God. If he is satisfied with the earth and its mortality, of course, he need not trouble with faith. But faith is the first condition of immortal life.

Faith lifts a man toward God. It must be genuine. Lip service will not do. Only a faith that burns like an inner light to the soul will cause that quickening of the spirit, that other self, who alone when aroused from sleep can communicate with divine nature.

Faith is belief, faith is trust, faith is confidence in the morality and integrity of that Purpose and Being which brought us into existence.

The commands of Jesus were not delivered for personal pleasure or aggrandizement. They were given for the salvation of man and for the building of the kingdom. This fact is implicit in all that he said and did. What he said was what any other might have said if that other could have seen truth as clearly and as divinely as he did. His utterances and his commandments are to be regarded as revelations of truth.

The world today needs to heed this simple fundamental of the gospel, "Have faith in God." Men attend church, and wonder why they can not see immediately what it is that brings the Christian back to the house of the Lord again and again. It is because they come without faith, and they depart without light. There is no other way to God, except through the passage way of faith. It is the first required step in any conceivable plan of salvation.

L. L.

OFFICIAL

College Day, October 18

The church-wide observance of College Day this year has been set for the third Sunday in October, the 18th. This is also Graceland Home-coming Sunday. Many alumni and other friends of the college will be going to Lamoni for the Home-coming events. Those who can not do so will have an opportunity to express their Home-coming spirit by participating in College Day exercises in the branches where they attend.

College Day, established as one of the regular events of the church year by General Conference in 1917, should be observed with all the special features appropriate to the occasion. Branch presidents should begin immediately to make plans for their programs. Specific suggestions and College Day materials will be mailed out within the next week or so. We recommend that each branch president either take immediate charge himself of planning and carrying out this special program, or appoint some other able person to be responsible for it. The service should be arranged at the hour on College Day when the largest number of people can be reached with its message.

Because of the prevailing economic conditions, we realize the difficulty of making contributions to the Scholarship Fund as large this year as formerly. But for these same reasons the need this year is greater. About seventy young men and women now in Graceland are depending on us for assistance. They are anxious to continue their education; they are asking not for gifts but for loans which their records have assured us they will repay as soon as possible. We must make special effort not to fail them.

Many among the church's most able workers in the past have come forth from the halls of Graceland College. Her student body is one of the most promising groups to which the church looks both for leadership and for devoted follower-ship in carrying forward the program of the Restoration.

The expansion of Graceland's ministry is of utmost importance to us as a people. It is important because those whom she serves are the boys and girls of our own homes. It is important because out of those boys and girls Graceland builds the men and women who shall yet build Zion.

Under this conviction our support of these, our own young people, must go on. With assurance that the cause is most worthy, let us determine that the influence of Graceland's inspiration shall continue to spread.

THE FIRST PRESIDENCY.

Dignity and Beauty in Ministry

By Elbert A. Smith

XI.—MARRIAGE

Anything that the minister can do to promote respect for the marriage covenant and the institutions of marriage and the home is a wholesome service to society. He has such an opportunity for service when called upon to officiate at weddings. He may not influence the covenanting parties so much by any long harangue upon the subject, since they are not ordinarily in a state of mind to appreciate a sermon; but rather by the spirit of the whole occasion he may impress upon them that it is a religious sacrament and that God is present to accept, recognize, and bless their vows.

Encourage Church Weddings

Church weddings are to be encouraged. The covenant made before the altar in the house recognized as being dedicated to the Lord has a religious significance hard to obtain under other conditions. The cost of a church wedding has been a hindrance to some in the past. But a church wedding, like a private or home wedding, may be made expensive or inexpensive according to desire.

I have solemnized weddings in the Stone Church in Independence where the expense was almost nil. A few friends and relatives were present, the church was decorated with flowers from home gardens, the bride and groom came in traveling dress, ready for their journey, and the whole affair was as simple and inexpensive as the most modest home wedding could well be; yet there was the altar and the church atmosphere. Lives were tied up to the church.

Rehearsals

Whether in the church or in the home, the minister should do his part to lend dignity and beauty to the ceremony. He should have the details of the service well thought out and arranged beforehand. Particularly if the wedding is to be rather formal there should be careful rehearsals with everyone present who is to take part, and every step of the program should be gone through from start to finish (excepting of course the actual sealing of the covenant) until the danger of blunders is reduced to the vanishing point. Even in the simplest of home weddings it is advisable to meet (if for only a few moments) with those taking part that they may understand the various steps of the ceremony and know just what is expected of them. After one such rehearsal the bridegroom remarked, "Well, I feel much better now that I know just what we have to do."

Order of Service

The marriage should be one of the most significant, touching, and reverential ceremonies conducted in all the ministry of the church. Unseen and unborn generations may be imagined to come to the altar with those who out of a pure love have plighted their troth and who now come that God may consecrate their union. It is an unimaginative and uninspired minister who fails to bring his best to such a service.

The church has no set form of procedure at wedding; nor has it a set ceremony excepting in general outline. Those sponsoring the wedding usually have the details of the entering march and exit worked out to their own taste and satisfaction, though the minister may at times be asked to advise. At the beginning of the wedding march the party of the bridegroom enters, often from a side door, from the "study" or "pastor's room" if the church has such room. The minister leads and takes his stand in the center of the stage facing the audience, and with the bridegroom and best man at his left, watching for the entrance of the bridal party. The minister is the center of the group and his station is a guide to others as they enter. The bridal party enters in order, the attendants of the bride taking place at the right of the minister to complete the semicircle. The bride arrives upon the arm of her father and the groom steps forward to meet her. The father retires to his place in the audience and the covenanting parties stand before the minister, "the man on the right of the woman and the woman on the left of the man." They are now ready for the ceremony to begin.

The Ceremony

Section 111 of the Doctrine and Covenants sets forth the general order of the marriage ceremony; but gives little of set form beyond the one question and answer. This question and answer seem almost too brief of themselves to constitute a ceremony. (Section 111 is not a revelation.)

It is not the intention or desire here to set forth a form that shall be generally adopted. The church has not been much given to formalism. We have the commandment to kneel and a set form of words in the communion service, the words to be used at baptism given by revelation, and the question and answer in section 111 in the marriage covenant as adopted by conference resolution—aside from that our church service is almost entirely without set forms. The service now to be outlined is therefore only suggestive, as an aid to other ministers in working out the marriage ceremony. It retains the question and answer prescribed by section 111; a form of covenant which is exceedingly significant and vital.

The Address

Dearly beloved friends: We are met at this altar, in the sight of God, and in the face of this congregation, to join together in marriage this man and this woman, John Alden and Priscilla Mullens. Marriage is much more than a civil contract, to be entered into lightly and to be broken at will. It is a sacrament commanded of God and sanctified by the church. The modern ungodly and destructive theories and attitudes toward marriage and the home are to be condemned and should have no place in our lives and thought.

Our heavenly Father instituted marriage and himself gave the first woman in marriage. He has commanded us in his Holy Word, "There shall not any man among you have save it be but one wife." And the further commandment is given to the man, "Thou shalt love thy wife with all thy heart, and thou shalt cleave unto her and none else." The responsibility is equally upon the woman, "Thou shalt love thy husband with all thy heart, and thou shalt cleave unto him and none else."

Into this holy estate these two persons present come now to be joined. If any man can show just cause why they should not lawfully be joined together, let him speak now, or else forever after hold his peace.

The Charge to the Contracting Parties

I charge you both in the sight of God to enter into this covenant with the utmost seriousness, being fully determined in love to observe it scrupulously. I charge you that you never at any time permit any third person or any cause or consideration whatsoever to come between you to the putting assunder of that which God shall at this hour join together. Let us pray: (The prayer follows.)

The Vows

To the man: "John, do you take this woman to be your wife, and promise to love, cherish, and honor her, so long as you both do live?"

The man answers, "I do."

To the woman: "Priscilla, do you take this man to be your husband, and promise to love, cherish, and honor him, so long as you both do live?"

The woman answers, "I do."

The Rings

The minister receives the bride's ring from the best man or from the ring bearer, or from the best man who in turn has received it from the ring bearer, and may offer such a prayer as this: O Lord, receive and bless this ring. It is the ancient symbol of wedded love. May its endless form symbolize the never-ending devotion and fidelity of this man and this woman to each other and to their covenant.

The groom then receives the ring from the minister and places it upon the finger of the bride.

The minister receives the groom's ring from the ring bearer or from the bride's maid, as the case may be, and may offer such a prayer as this: O Lord, receive this ring and bless it. May its richness and purity symbolize the fidelity and devotion of this woman and this man to each other and to their covenant.

The bride then receives the ring and places it upon the finger of the groom.

The Final Covenant

John and Priscilla, do you both mutually agree to be each other's companion, husband and wife, observing all the legal rights and duties belonging to that condition, that is keeping yourselves wholly for each other, and from all others, during your lives?

They answered, "Yes," or "We do," after which the minister commands them to join their right hands, and placing his right hand upon theirs he declares, "By virtue of the laws of the land, and by the authority of the Church, and in the name of Jesus Christ, I pronounce you husband and wife. May God add his blessing and help you to fulfill your covenant from henceforth and for ever. Amen."

The Benediction

The bridegroom salutes the bride and the bridal party then marches out. The minister steps to the front of the platform and stands there until the party has made its exit, after which he causes the congregation to stand while the benediction is pronounced.

Addenda: Where "Responses" Are Required

At an occasional wedding the minister may be especially asked to use "responses," though among our people that seldom happens. In such a case the response may follow the vows and precede the giving of the rings, and may be as follows:

The man: "I, John, take thee, Priscilla, to be my wedded wife, to have and to hold, from this hour forward, for better or for worse, for richer or for poorer, in sickness and in health, to love and to cherish, till death do us part. Thereto I plight thee my troth."

The woman: "I, Priscilla, take thee, John, to be my wedded husband, to have and to hold, from this day forward for better or for worse, for richer or for poorer, in sickness and in health, to love and to cherish, till death do us part. Thereto I plight thee my troth."

The minister should read the responses slowly and distinctly, a phrase at a time, the covenanting party to repeat the words after him.

The Local Branch as a Missionary Unit

The following article was written to aid the missionary work of the church and is here presented at the request of the Editor of the Ensign to suggest to our membership a few ways in which they can help.

The local branch can be the most effective missionary unit in the church. This statement is no detractor of the excellent work and fine abilities of our missionaries, but is rather intended to help and support them. At the late General Conference a number of them stressed the need of the help and support of good active branches, and it is partly in behalf of our men in the field that we undertake to write on this theme. The local congregation can engage actively in the missionary work in a very helpful way, and be productive of much good. The missionary can play a solitary hand, but it is a difficult business.

The Case of the Missionary

The lone missionary meeting strangers in his field labors against every sort of disadvantage. He has no place in which to preach, and must use time and energy in finding one and persuading people to let him use it. Perhaps no one knows him and he has to convince a skeptical people of his integrity, his sincerity, and of the value of his message. Every burden rests heavily upon him. He is under necessity very often of persuading strangers to take him in and give him food and shelter. Certainly it is a wonder, considering the lives they have to lead, that our missionaries live as long as they do.

Against difficulties and opposition he works hard to bring the people to hear him. With the most diligent effort and the deepest devotion he is enabled, with the aid of spiritual power and grace, to present a message that will arouse interest and bring numbers of people into the church—over the threshold and into the borders of the Kingdom. With this encouraging start made, he has to go away to other parts of the untouched fields to seek yet other people, leaving this little nucleus of folk to shift for themselves. Often the new converts to the faith prove to be strong enough that they remain faithful, never doubting nor losing sight of the heavenly vision. But it is shown in recent statistics that there is a high rate of membership mortality among these isolated people, and we must realize that it is a mistake for them, a mistake for the church, a mistake from every viewpoint to make a beginning and let it die through neglect. The starting next time is that much more difficult.

Beginnings are too costly and memberships too precious to be allowed to languish. Far better to have the new converts near some older members, or near a branch if possible, in order that they may have the association, the encouragement and support of those who have long acquaintance with the work.

There was a time when it was necessary for all of our missionaries to make sporadic beginnings in isolated places, and leave them to shift for themselves. And it is still unfortunately necessary for them to continue to do so in many places. Some people have even come to regard these conditions as traditionally right, and consider that the best missionary work is done under such circumstances. Even brief consideration of the facts will prove the idea to be wrong. The heartbreaking effort, the wasted energy getting started, the short time spent in the community, and the quick departure for another place, leaving the handful of baptized people to shift for themselves, are all undesirable features. Spectacular accomplishments to the contrary will be cited, but it may be observed that the people brought many of their religious ideas with them, and assimilated a complete understanding of the work slowly and with difficulty.

How the Branch Can Help

The local church provides a ready location and meeting place for the work of the missionary. Its people can aid him by providing music, and such friendly encouragement as will make the meetings attractive for the visitors. They can encourage attendance by inviting their friends and neighbors. And when the missionary has gone, the branch is there to give strength and instruction to the new converts, and help them to continue the mental and spiritual growth, through the early stages of which they need particular guidance.

Every branch, every congregation, should carry on missionary activities. Nothing stands still, at least not for a long time. It either grows or dies. If the local branch has not vitality and interest enough to reach new people, its numbers will dwindle. Death carries away a few, and removal carries away many in these days when people move so rapidly from one locality to another. Therefore constant effort must be made to replenish the lost numbers, and that effort should be made to increase the actual numbers of active persons.

It is not enough for the church to minister to the needs of those who are already within its ranks. A true love of humanity, a true devotion to the gospel and the church will stimulate its members and leaders to wish to bring others to the faith.

What Is First Necessary

Members and officers of the branch may well ask, "What can we do?" Sometimes, being so close to the conditions in their own branches, they may not see what needs to be done. It is a good practice to visit occasionally at other branches and even at other churches, when opportunity offers, to see what is being done.

In the first place, we must offer some old advice. Its age does not diminish its value, but rather, is a guaranty of its permanence and worth. The spiritual life of the branch should be at a high standard before that branch is able to function effectually in a missionary way. As often as this idea has been repeated, it must be said again. For the spiritual life of the branch to be at a high standard, the life of most of the individuals within it must be similarly high. It is impossible to do the best work, to carry on branch work effectively unless there is peace, harmony and brotherly love in the relations of its people.

Making the Branch Ready

The branch should be ready in its external appearance, as well as in its spiritual condition for visitors. There are members who would concentrate all attention on spiritual matters, neglecting entirely or very largely the physical appearances. There is a danger in this attitude which we should be careful to avoid.

Nonmembers and the people of the world judge by external appearances, and to tell the truth we often judge largely by that means ourselves, as is shown by the frequent errors that appear in our judgments. But people who are becoming acquainted with the church will gather their first impressions from appearances, having nothing else from which to judge.

The church is judged by the dignity of the services, by the quietness and reverence of the people in their conduct within the building. Why should it not be so judged? Is it not right to expect spiritual tranquillity to be accompanied by physical quietness, reverence to be accompanied by restraint and dignity?

Any one of us, walking down the street of a large city, and seeing a ragged and dirty man coming toward us, will judge him to be a "hobo" or some sort of social derelict. True, he may be a gentleman in disguise, but the chances are against it. We can know nothing of his character and personality except what his face and clothes—his external appearance tell us. In one case out of a hundred we may be wrong. But it is probable that in more than ninety-five cases out of a hundred the judgment will be right.

Any one of us, walking in a large city, and finding a tiny church on a side street, and seeing its yard grown up to weeds, a litter of papers and rubbish about, and the steps unswept, would readily judge it to be the church home of an unthrifty people, with its spirituality and culture at a very low ebb. If we should go up into that building and find the clock unwound, the song books on the floor, the plaster smudged with ancient spots of soot, our judgment would be confirmed, whether true or false, in the idea that here was an unworthy people.

"But," some one would say, "I know these people, and some of them have hearts of gold!" The stranger might be convinced, and again he might not.

Many of the smaller churches could be made beautiful with a little expense and care. They could be turned into lovely church homes of which the members could be proud and to which they might be happy to bring their friends.

A party or class of the young people at the church could clean the yard and premises in a single afternoon. The damaged stairs could be repaired, perhaps a little paint applied. Flowers in the yards, or vines to climb up the side of the building would help. On the inside, the walls and ceilings will be the first to show untidiness, and would need first attention.

Inviting the Neighbor and Stranger

If Jesus were to return to earth today, would he be invited to your church, and if invited, what kind of reception would be given him? We should issue our invitations as if the Savior himself might, perchance, come among our guests.

You never know, until you are refused, that people will not come. And if they come you can never know which ones will become interested and perhaps become some of the best and ablest workers.

In our invitations we should aim high. It is true that the weak, the wayward, and the unstable all need the kingdom of God. But the kingdom of God needs some strong and faithful servants first to take care of them. It needs officers and teachers. If it is not equipped to care for the weak, all its effort will be lost.

Therefore it is good to seek strong and able people in order that the needs of the weak may be supplied. Does this seem selfish and unscriptural? Then turn to the thirteenth chapter of Matthew and read the forty-seventh and forty-eighth verses:

Again, the kingdom of heaven is like unto a net, that was cast into the sea, and gathered of every kind:

Which, when it was full, they drew to shore, and sat down, and gathered the good into vessels, but cast the bad away.

Perhaps the reading was not intended to convey exactly this lesson, but the lesson is there, and its basis is wisdom.

There is much that the branch can do, but it must first do something for itself. There are souls that

Weekly Health Letter

Number Eleven

The Nose and Its Relation to Health and Disease.—9

By A. W. Teel, M. D., Church Physician

Anything that will diminish one's vitality, will diminish one's resistance. This is one of the characteristic predisposing causes of colds and other diseases. Some of the principal predisposing causes are improper food, vitiated air, dust, drafts, overwork, exposure to cold, and loss of sleep.

Some people enjoy a specific immunity, while on the other hand, it must be clearly kept in mind that vigorous, healthy people are liable to contract a cold if they come in contact with the infection. One attack predisposes to another. Hence, the necessity for the strengthening of one's resistance by good hygienic habits, sunshine, fresh air, and especially diet.

Mechanical defects such as a deviated nasal septum will prevent the proper filtering power of the nose, also local conditions such as chronic catarrh, enlarged tonsils, adenoids, and polypus, should have the proper treatment by a specialist. Those who have the "cold habit" should be careful that the air they inhale is free from dust; not too dry, or too warm. Cleanliness and proper care of the mouth, nose, throat, and teeth, even in good health, is highly necessary as a prevention.

Bacteria accompanying colds are found in the nose, mouth, throat, and teeth of healthy persons. From what has already been said, it is hardly necessary to emphasize the necessity, especially during epidemics, for individuals to avoid theaters, crowded and closed cars, mass meetings, etc.

Hand and mouth infection can be prevented by washing the hands before eating, care concerning handkerchiefs, and keeping the fingers away from the mouth and nostrils. Isolation and disinfection of the discharges are extremely necessary as each case is a focus of infection. Carriers of disease are quite numerous, and there is constant danger in this it can save, but before it can start the important work of saving the souls of others, it must carry out the imperative work of saving the souls that are already in the church.

Of course, if people waited until they had attained perfection, before starting to take the gospel to the world, nothing would ever be done. Perfection can hardly be obtained in this life. The branch should find a working basis and then go ahead with its tasks.

class of persons disseminating these infections; hence, the great necessity of the public being educated in sanitary habits, such as the avoidance of spitting and kissing promiscuously, the great peril in the common drinking cup, the indiscriminate sneezing and coughing, and the pernicious habit of placing unnecessary things in the mouth, especially the fingers. It seems that civilization has hardly advanced enough to require all restaurants, hotels, soda fountains, and the like, to properly cleanse all cups, glasses, spoons, etc., by scalding and sterilizing them before they are used each time.

It is common for people to work and play together, to sleep and eat with the same table-ware and to use the same towels. This is one of the principal means whereby infectious material enters the upper respiratory tract and causes epidemics that are so frequently found in industrial establishments, camps, schools, prisons, etc.

Health officers should disseminate knowledge concerning the proper cleansing and oiling of the streets, requiring a stricter conformity to the building and housing laws, and see that the spitting ordinances in our cities are enforced. Many of our schools, colleges, theaters, street cars, and other public places should have their attention called to the peril of crowding in such places. Epidemics should be traced from their source and free facilities for laboratory diagnosis should be provided.

Report of the Department of Statistics

By Carroll L. Olson, Statistician

The report of the Department of Statistics for the month of August shows the following changes in the total enrollment of the church:

Total enrollment of the church August 1, 1931.....	109,605
August baptisms .....	373
Gains from the unknown .....	7
Gains by correction .....	8
Total gain .....	388
Deaths .....	64
Expulsions .....	14
Loss by correction .....	7
Total loss .....	85
Net gain during the month .....	303
Total enrollment of church September 1, 1931.....	109,908

The following miscellaneous changes also took place during the month:

Transfers .....	486
Blessings .....	147
Marriages .....	85
Ordinations .....	18
Divorces .....	9
Silences .....	2
Restored .....	1

The three districts which deserve honorable mention in the matter of baptisms this past month are the Alabama District, with a total of 16, the Western Oklahoma District, with a total of 16 also, and the Southwest Iowa District, with a total of 15. Of the Alabama baptisms, 12 were performed at McKenzie by Missionary G. T. Richards and 4 at Owassa by Elder H. H. Wiggins. In the Western Oklahoma District, 9 baptisms were performed by Priest Howard Harpham at Davidson, 3 at Davidson by Missionary Z. Z. Renfroe, and 4 at Calumet by Elder Matt Crownover. The Southwestern Iowa baptisms were all performed at Council Bluffs, 10 by Elder Amos Graybill, and 5 by Pastor Ray Whiting.

The following branches outside the stakes reported 5 baptisms or more each:

Council Bluffs, Iowa .....	15
Detroit, Michigan .....	12
Pleasant Hill, Alabama .....	11
Merlin, Ontario .....	10
Davidson, Oklahoma .....	9
North Platte, Nebraska .....	9
Portland, Oregon .....	8
Marlin, Texas .....	7
Utleyville, Colorado .....	7
Hagerman, Idaho .....	6
Kewanee, Illinois .....	6
Macon, Missouri .....	6
Skiatook, Oklahoma .....	6
Deselm, Illinois .....	5
High Hill, Kentucky .....	5
San Antonio 1st, Texas .....	5
Santa Barbara, California .....	5
Soldiers' Grove, Wisconsin .....	5

The total of 373 baptisms were distributed as follows:

Zion and the Stakes .....	38
United States and Canada outside the Stakes .....	292
Society Islands Mission .....	39
British Isles Mission .....	3
Norway Mission .....	1
Total .....	373

"Great Living"

Life is not easy to understand. In some moods it seems a jumble of letters, and we can not spell out a clear sentence. It is very quick — at least, it soon becomes very quick. It begins as a lake in the hills, but soon its waters are a hurrying stream. And the things most worth having are never thrust into our hands. As J. L. Patton says, life is like an oriental shopkeeper. He displays his goods, sits at the back of his shop, and you may safely reckon that he keeps his best goods hidden; they have to be asked for. Most of us make a muddle of life, not because we are evil, but because we are ignorant. We do not know the goods which last. — Flint Tidings.

Tom King: A Life History

PART ELEVEN

By C. H. Porter

(Continued from the Herald of September 9, page 850.)

Differences

During the years of his active ministry Tom found himself at disagreement with some others upon questions which caused him great perplexity and more or less of grief. Prominent among these were the question of representation; ordaining of ministers; holding of reunions; observance of the sabbath; decorum at meetings and conduct of Sunday schools.

The first of these arose soon after his appointment to field work. The rule in the district had been for every member present to have voice and vote in the conferences. This rule was changed at a conference, when but few were present, so that all branches thereafter were represented by delegates; the priesthood members having ex-officio voice and vote. This was strongly objected to by some, and it was contended that the change was illegally made, no previous notice having been given of such proposed action. Tom objected to the measure believing it to have been wrongly acted upon, no previous notice having been given to the branches.

He saw that a strong effort would be made at the next conference to have the resolution by which the change was effected rescinded. He learned also that a majority of the higher officials of the district would sustain the action of the preceding conference. He desired to avoid a conflict with his brother ministers yet he could not indorse the action of the previous conference.

He wrote to the missionary in charge, stating how he felt in regard to the matter, and asked to be excused from attending the coming conference. Instead of sending him the reply he hoped for, his superior officer peremptorily ordered him to be present. Tom obeyed the order knowing that it meant a presentation of the question in a manner that would precipitate a strong battle of the forces.

A complaint was made charging the previous conference with action upon an important question thereby changing a rule of long standing in the district without previous notice to the branches. The president admitted that previous notice ought to have been first given before final action was had. He asked forgiveness for his part of the work, which he said after due consideration he believed to have been premature.

In reply Tom said he felt sure that forgiveness would be freely accorded to all who took part in the work done provided they would make the matter right by rescinding the action of the last conference; thereby placing the matter where it was previously; then take the matter up in an orderly way and decide the question upon its merits.

The motion to rescind was taken up. The membership were declared ineligible to vote, and the motion was lost. This left the work of the preceding conference indorsed, and the delegate system confirmed. For many years this question was a matter of contention in the district.

About twenty years later the following paper was prepared and read by Tom at a conference held at Nebraska City, Nebraska, May, 1907. History of the Delegate Measure in this District:

"About twenty years ago it was adopted at Nebraska City. Elder R. M. Elvin led the debate for the affirmative. The measure was strongly objected to by some in the succeeding conference.

"The next determined fight was had at Wabash Park. The measure was defended by Elders R. J. and Levi Anthony, J. B. Gouldsmith, J. W. Waldsmith, H. O. Smith, and H. C. Bronson. It was objected to specially by Elders Joshua Armstrong, Henderson Fields, W. M. Self, and C. H. Porter.

"This resulted in a committee of three being appointed to draft a set of resolutions to be presented at the next conference, touching the matter. Elders H. C. Bronson, J. W. Wald-smith, and C. H. Porter were so appointed. The views of the appointees being different a compromise measure was presented, as written by C. H. Porter, and adopted by the conference. The objectors were still dissatisfied, and again the matter was made an issue at a conference held at Wilber. At this conference the matter was deferred. At Fairfield the matter came up for final action and Elder Mark H. Forscutt led the contest again to a successful issue, favoring the delegate system. Still later the matter came up at the Palmyra Branch. Elder W. E. Peak led those favoring the delegate system. Again the system was retained, and has continued to be the rule of the district until now.

Objections to the Proposed Measure to Abolish:

1. Any branch has a right, in common with all other branches, to be fully and properly represented in our district conferences. If the delegate system is abolished no branch other than the one with which the conference is held can be fully or properly represented;

Therefore, it is not right to abolish the delegate system.

2. The mass-meeting is a relic of feudalism. It was the means used by the people to voice their sentiments when they had little or no voice in legislative assemblies. The mass-meeting was never a legislative body. In times past the Indian had his pow-wow, the Scotchman his clan gathering, the Northman his storthing, and the German his mass-meeting. In times of great excitement or pressing need the mass-meeting is still resorted to by the people in civilized lands, but it is not for legislative work they assemble, but simply to voice the sentiment of the general public. Legislative action is left for the deliberations of councils and parliaments, where sentiment is crystallized into law and becomes the voice of the ruling authorities.

3. The branches can not be fairly represented in any other way than by their representatives duly chosen, and, if found necessary, instructed how to vote on measures of special or general interest to them.

No branch ought to be given a preponderant advantage on any question affecting the whole. If the delegate system is abolished and mass conventions become the rule a preponderant advantage will be given to the branch where the conference is held.

Therefore, a change of system would destroy the equilibrium now existing in the district.

4. It would not necessarily affect, in any appreciable degree, the attendance at our conferences.

To illustrate: Blue River has a membership of 197 which entitles said branch to elect 33 delegates. I think all will agree that if mass conference should be held in this district we could not reasonably expect more than 33 members of that branch to be present at any conference, saying nothing of the priesthood bearing members of said branch.

Therefore, if the delegate system is abolished we will have robbed the branches of their right to be heard by their delegates and given them no equivalent.

5. The Sunday School Association and the General Church both favor delegate representation.

Sunday school basis of representation:

1. 'District Associations shall be represented by delegates.'

2. Voting: 'In the election of officers of the District Association and of delegates to the General Association, the vote shall be by the yeas and nays.'—Article 5, page 10.

Mass Conventions: 'Any district association convention, where the membership is under 400, may upon a two-thirds vote of the delegates present, change from delegate to mass convention.'—Article 10, page 11.

General Church.—Rules of Representation:

"My servant was directed to present to the church rules of representation, and he so stated to the body at different times that he was so led; but the conferences of my people saw proper to change these articles and rules of representation, and propositions are pending that they may be still further changed.

"The direction of the Spirit is that they be left as they now are until such time as the increased numbers of the members of the church shall require either an enlargement of the number entitled to delegate, or that there may be a closer line drawn as to the number of delegates which the church shall require to meet."—Section 125, paragraph 7, Doctrine and Covenants.

The resolution to abolish was lost, 38 yeas, 48 noes.

Note from historian's record:

"The question of the abolishment of the delegate system as laid over from last conference was brought up, discussed and defeated by a vote of thirty-eight in the affirmative to forty-eight for the negative, thus for the fourth time in twenty years this question has been before the conferences and the system remains unchanged."

Tom objected in the first place to the method by which it was adopted, hence he advocated its repeal. Finding that to be impossible he advocated the measure as presented by the committee. Still later when it was brought before the conference he pleaded for peace and harmony, asking the movers not to insist upon its presentation. They were fully determined, however, to press it to an issue. He then championed the cause of the delegate system, believing it to be entirely in harmony with church procedure and granting equal rights to all the branches.

At a conference held at Nebraska City, Nebraska, July, 1917, the following action was had: "Resolved, that due notice be given that at the next conference a resolution will be presented to rescind the delegate system, and that our conferences will consist of all members present."

Tom's branch chose delegates to the next conference and instructed them to "cast the vote of the branch against the pending resolution providing for the abolishment of the delegate system, and to call for the yeas and nays on the question if the same seems necessary."

At the conference, January, 1918, "The resolution on the delegate question was, on motion, indefinitely postponed."

At a conference held at Lincoln, Nebraska, February, 1919, "A motion prevailed to the effect that the abolishing of the delegate system be made a special order of the next conference, that the secretary notify the branches of this action, and ask them to send delegates with instructions on the matter."

(The above quotations are taken from the historian's record.)

Tom was interested in the matter but concluded that it was poor policy to continue its agitation. After conferring with others it was decided to make no concerted effort against the proposed change.

At the conference, June 1919, it was, "Moved to resolve into a mass convention, and that the Southern Nebraska district abolish the delegate system, and hereafter meet en masse."

"Moved, as a substitute, that it be the sense of this conference that we permanently dispense with the delegate system, and that this conference, and all succeeding conferences, be held en masse." (Quotations taken from historian's record.)

The substitute prevailed. The presiding officer ruled that this matter could be taken up at any future conference by proper notice. The matter is at rest. It was a disturbing factor for about a quarter of a century. May it continue to rest in peace as a dead issue. We shall all sooner or later have had our little day and peace we trust will come to us.

In its inception it was to Tom a serious affair. He could not indorse as right the method by which the change was effected nor could he approve of the confirmation of the act by the succeeding conference. This placed him in opposition to those he was expected to work in harmony with. It cost him grief and sorrow, and he decided that rather than be considered obstinate and egotistical he would ask to be relieved from missionary work at the end of the year. He would probably have done this, but before the season closed he attended a reunion and while there preached a sermon that attracted the attention of a member of the First Presi-

CHURCH WORK AND SERVICES

Rally Day and Promotion

SEPTEMBER 27

As has been previously noted, the Joint Council of the Church has set September 27 as a day for the rallying of all the forces of the branches throughout the church. This time seems opportune, as it is also the day designated for the closing of the class work of the Church School year, and the promotion of those who should move on and up in the scale of religious education. So rally day becomes one of accounting and recognition, as a means of stimulating renewed interest in the work of the church.

Doubtless the first purpose of the day is to increase the attendance at church services. This comes through carefully worked plans in which the progress of regular attendants is recognized through promotion, new and potential members are sought out and invited to be present, and indifferent members are especially invited and welcomed at the services.

But it is not enough just to get everybody out on Rally Day. The services of that day must be so stimulating, helpful and interesting that the experience will arouse a desire for a further and continued attendance. The following Sundays must be equally attractive and interesting. This will call for a carefully planned program as we go into the new church school year.

Promotion Plans

It is logical that promotion in the church school should come near the last of September, if possible on September 27. This should not conflict with Rally Day plans. Indeed, it makes an additional occasion for a rallying of class memberships during the month and a fitting occasion for the recognition of attainment in promotion from one department to another. The ceremony connected with promotion should be meaningful, dignified, and impressive. The details of the exercise must of necessity be worked out to suit conditions. Within the children's division, and perhaps with intermediates, it will be well to take recognition of promotions, having those being promoted from one department to another seated with their teachers in reserved seats near the front, or, if space will permit, upon the platform. A careful check of the grading should be made at this time and an effort made to promote only those whose age and development warrant their going to a more advanced department. This is especially true in the children's and young people's divisions. (See The Church School Handbook, pages 15 and 28.)

Promotion certificates are not expensive, often are cherished by the children, and the awarding of them impressively marks the progress of the children through the church school. A neat certificate may be purchased from the Herald Publishing House at six cents each, sixty cents a dozen.

In large schools some children's divisions or departments may wish to hold their promotion exercises in their own rooms. In general it will be well to hold an impressive service for all in the main church auditorium. This may be at the regular Sunday school hour, or in the place of the church school worship service. In some places accustomed to the continuous service there may be a short, impressive meeting in departments, followed by the general promotion exercises, followed in turn by a short sermon appropriate to the occasion.

Promotion Day Program

We suggest the following for the general promotion ceremony:

Processional: Organ or other music, during which all who are to participate march to their places.

Opening with song and prayer.

Address: "Growing as Jesus Grew." A ten-minute talk.

Presentation of classes for promotion, by their teachers and superintendents, with a brief statement of commendation.

Awarding of certificates.

Acceptance of new classes, by their new superintendents, in a brief word of welcome.

A charge to the school for the new year, by the director of religious education, or by the pastor.

Special music should vary and enrich the program.

Such words as "Onward to Zion" are especially appropriate.

If this exercise is to be followed by a sermon, the theme should probably follow the idea of education, training, building for Zion and the kingdom of God.

Organization for the New Year

In order that officers and teachers for the new year may take their places the first Sunday in October, we suggest that the annual election take place as early as convenient in September. A whole month would not be too long to complete the organization and to perfect plans for a favorable opening on October 4. Retiring officers and teachers should hold over through the month of September. This would permit a formal installation of the new workers, either on Sunday evening, September 27, or on Sunday, October 4. New officers should enter upon their service, not only as well qualified as possible, but under a special spirit of consecration for their work, in which they are joined by the entire membership. For a discussion of elections see The Church School Handbook, page 11.

Plan New Courses Early

Care should be taken in every department to determine the quarterlies desired for class use. Consult the Vision for August for the official list of current quarterlies, or send to the Herald Publishing House for a neat folder or the Church School Curriculum, and an order blank. If there is but one class in a department, where there are three one-year series available, this is the year for the study of the second year of the series.

Note the options which may be had in the young people's and adult grades. Consult the needs and wishes of the membership, and try to supply as fully as possible. If there are to be two or more adult classes, try to determine weeks beforehand what subject matter will meet the demand and select the best possible teachers available. Get their consent to begin at once to prepare for a real teaching task.

Then try to get your adults to select their class because of their interest in, or need of, the subject matter informations. Too long we have sat in a particular corner, or listened to a certain teacher, or adhered to a social group.

Secure quarterlies for all, and develop a class attitude and a class method which will insure the study of the quarterly as a text before coming to the class. Then we may have real recitations.

The value of our quarterly lessons will be increased many fold if studied in the home. Much effort and expense is put upon the quarterlies. Only by personal, thoughtful reading following by class discussion under able leadership can we secure the growth in clearness of vision and in spiritual vigor necessary for Christian character building anticipated in the gospel.

Given a studious, qualified teacher and a class having a background of information and appreciation through their own free study, and we shall soon have a real school of religious education.

THE GOSPEL FORUM

Under this heading we shall be glad to receive and publish articles and letters of interest to our readers on the doctrine and work of the church. Writers are responsible for their own views. Other views on subjects discussed here will be received if of sufficient interest.

The Fall of Man—Was It Necessary?
Was It for Good or Evil?

By L. W. Newcombe

The fall and the agency of man are doctrines that will always perhaps be somewhat of a mystery, but latter-day revelation has done much to clear away the ambiguity which has shrouded them in the past. We believe that God is omnipotent and omniscient and that therefore he could destroy evil if he wished, but also that he could see advantages in not destroying it or he would do so. Did God design the fall of man and the entrance of death and wretchedness and sorrow on the earth? Without doubt this is exactly what he intended, although not as ends in themselves, but as means to an end impossible otherwise to accomplish.

The origin of the Devil is revealed by the following:

For behold the Devil was before Adam, for he rebelled against me, saying, Give me thine honor, which is my power; and also a third part of the hosts of heaven turned he away from me because of their agency; and they were thrust down, and thus became the Devil and his angels.—Doctrine and Covenants 28: 10.

He was cast out into the earth:

That old serpent called the Devil, and also called Satan, which deceiveth the whole world; he was cast out into the earth and his angels were cast out with him.—Revelation 12: 8.

It was God that cast him down to the earth, and it was therefore his design that he should be here.

I caused that he should be cast down and he became Satan, yea, even the Devil, the father of lies, to deceive and to blind men and to lead them captive at his will.—Genesis 3: 4, 5.

Two things are clear from the above passages: namely, first, God caused the Devil to be cast down to the earth; second, "To deceive and blind men and to lead them captive at his will, those who would not hearken to his [God's] voice."

The Devil's power to tempt and rule was delegated to him by God. At the temptation of Jesus he offered Jesus all the kingdoms of the world, saying, "All this power will I give thee and the glory of them, for they are delivered unto me and to whomsoever I will give them."—Luke 4: 6. If he lied about this, then there could have been no temptation to Jesus, who also would know if he spoke truly or not. He, the Devil, is the "Prince of this world." His "delegated" power is clearly shown in the story of Job. Read Job 1: 7-12.

It was given unto him to make war with the Saints and to overcome them; and power was given him over all kindreds and tongues and nations. (Revelation 13: 7.)

He doeth great wonders and . . . deceiveth them that dwell on the earth.—Revelation 13: 13, 14.

We have learned so far, then, that God cast the Devil down to earth with delegated power to deceive and tempt man under certain restraints.

Let us now return to the fall of Adam and Eve and see if God designed this also, which has so often been considered a great disaster, and detriment to the best interests of the human family.

And he [Satan] sought to beguile Eve also, for he knew not the mind of God.—Genesis 3: 7.

Satan was then unconsciously doing in accordance with the mind of God when he tempted Eve. Lehi says, speaking of the transgression of Adam:

But behold all things have been done in the wisdom of him who knoweth all things.—2 Nephi 1: 114.

The fall of man was a necessity, for a number of reasons: First, it brought him to know good from evil, which he could not otherwise have known.

And I, the Lord God said unto my only begotten, Behold the man is become, as one of us to know good from evil.—Genesis 3: 28.

Adam, filled with the Holy Spirit, said:

Blessed be the name of God for because of my transgressions my eyes are opened.—Genesis 4: 10.

Eve confirms this, saying:

Were it not for our transgression . . . we should never have known good from evil.—Verse 11.

For if they never should have bitter, they could not know the sweet, wherefore it came that the Devil tempted Adam and he partook of the forbidden fruit.—Doctrine and Covenants 28: 10.

The name of the tree, the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, (Genesis 2:20), signified something, and for once the Devil told the truth when he said, "Your eyes shall be opened and ye shall know good from evil (Genesis 3: 10), although in the same breath he lied when he said, "Ye shall not surely die."

Second, the fall was necessary because there could have been no children to people the earth, otherwise. Eve said, "Were it not for our transgression we should never have had seed." (Genesis 4: 11.) Lehi said, "If Adam had not transgressed, they would have had no children." (2 Nephi 1: 111-113.) Enoch said, "Because Adam fell, we are." (Genesis 6: 49.) Lehi also said, "Adam fell that men might be." (2 Nephi 1: 115.)

We do not know the nature of the forbidden fruit, which affected reproduction, but accept the above statements as conclusive proof, that without the fall the earth could not have been peopled.

Third, the fall was necessary because without it there could be no consciousness of joy, good, righteousness, life. Adam said, "Because of my transgression, my eyes are opened, and in this life I shall have joy." (Genesis 4: 10.) Eve said, "Were it not for our transgression we never should have known good from evil, and the joy of our redemption." (Verse 11.) Lehi said, "If Adam had not transgressed . . . wherefore they would have remained in a state of innocence, having no joy, for they knew no misery, doing no good for they knew no sin." (2 Nephi 1: 113.)

In order to understand the nature of the fall of Adam, we should remember that Adam and Eve were in a characterless condition, as Brother Peisker states. "In a state of innocence," says Lehi. He did not know good from evil, could not have understood what the death penalty signified, not having seen or experienced death in any form. He would be like a child, easily led and giving heed to the lost speaker, and would, like a child, accept with entire confidence any statement made to him. The one act of disobedience, or fall of Adam and Eve, could not have been the cause of all mankind becoming "carnal, sensual, devilish." Character could not be fixed by one act; instead, we find nothing to show that Adam and Eve were not of the most upright and faithful character. "And Adam ceased not to call upon God, and also Eve his wife." (Genesis 5: 3.)

The plan of redemption was prepared before the fall; Christ was the "Lamb slain from the foundation of the world." (Revelation 13: 8.) "Atonement which was prepared from the foundation of the world for all mankind." (Mosiah 2: 11.) Adam was immediately redeemed from the fall. "Behold, I have forgiven thee thy transgression in the garden of Eden. Hence came the saying abroad among the people that the Son of God hath atoned for original guilt." (Genesis 6: 55, 56.) The fall of Adam did not, then, mean the condemnation of mankind; and the children of Adam as well as all children born into the world are not judged by Adam's fall. Speaking of children, King Benjamin said:

For behold as in Adam, or by nature, they fall, even so the blood of Christ atoneth for their sins, if it were possible they could sin.—Malachi 1: 114, 115.

Behold I say unto you that little children are redeemed from the foundation of the world through my only Begotten.—Doctrine and Covenants 28: 13.

The fall of Adam then brought no condemnation on his children, since the atonement overcame the evil effects, but, instead, the fall gave man his agency. "And because they are redeemed from the fall they became free forever. Knowing good from evil to act for themselves." (2 Nephi 1: 117-119.) "Until the fall they could not be agents unto themselves, for if they never taste bitter they could not know the sweet."

It is truth that makes men free, half truths are misleading, and to know a matter thoroughly both sides must be considered. Life can not be fully understood or fully enjoyed, if death is unknown. The law of opposites is clearly stated by Lehi:

For it must needs be that there is an opposition in all things. If not so . . . righteousness could not be brought to pass, neither wickedness, neither holiness nor misery, neither good nor bad.—2 Nephi 1: 81-90.

Not only was Adam himself forgiven his transgression, and his children and the children of all men under eight years free from condemnation by the atonement, but all who have died in ignorance of the plan of redemption are released from penalty from Adam's fall.

For behold, and also his blood atoneth for the sins of those who have fallen by the transgression of Adam who have died, not knowing the will of God concerning them or have ignorantly sinned.—Mosiah 1: 7.

It is then absolutely certain that Adam's transgression brought no condemnation to mankind whatsoever. It introduced to all people the opportunity of acting for themselves, with perfect freedom and knowledge of choice, and was a part of the plan of God for the salvation of all men, and therefore was ordained to come to pass.

God having now provided the agency of man through the plan of redemption, the fullness of that plan and purpose was revealed to Adam.

In that day [or at once] the Holy Ghost fell upon Adam, which beareth record of the Father and the Son, saying, I am the only Begotten of the Father from the beginning henceforth and forever, that as thou hast fallen thou mayest be redeemed and all mankind even as many as well.—Genesis 4: 9.

Adam commenced to make this known to his sons.

And Adam and Eve blessed the name of God; and they made all things known unto their sons and their daughters.—Genesis 4: 12.

And they [the sons] believed it not, and they loved Satan more than God, and men began from that time forth to be carnal, sensual, and devilish.—Verse 13.

This makes it clear that it was not the fall of Adam which made men "carnal, sensual, and devilish," but instead their own rejection of the "plan of redemption."

Because that Adam fell, we are, and by his fall came death, and we are made partakers of misery and woe. Behold, Satan hath come among the children of men and tempted them to worship him and man has become carnal, sensual, and devilish.—Genesis 6: 55, 56.

And God cursed the earth, for they would not hearken nor believe on the only Begotten Son of God.—Genesis 5: 43, 44.

The fall of Adam, then, brought to man his agency, which makes humanity godlike in that he is now permitted to work out his salvation and have joy in accomplishment. The troubles of the world are not due to the fall, but to the refusal of men to hearken to and obey the plans of redemption.

It was God's intention that Adam should partake of the forbidden fruit. He did not compel Adam to do so, neither did he make any great effort to prevent him, because he knew that ultimately the greater "joy of our redemption" would be far better than a characterless, innocent, and unprogressive existence. Under the "plan of redemption" man does necessarily have to sin personally in order to appreciate righteousness, but sin must exist where he can see and experience its effects. "It must needs be that offenses come." We do not necessarily have to die physically to experience the horror of death, but we must come in contact with death, wickedness, and misery, to experience their opposites, their value and joy. "Christ himself was tempted in all points like as we are, yet without sin." However, in order to be so tempted it was necessary for him to take upon him the nature of man and live amongst evil conditions. And it was thus he became the Savior of mankind. It behooved him (God) to make the "Captain of our salvation perfect through suffering." (Hebrews 2: 10.)

Though he were a Son, yet learned he obedience by the things which he suffered, and being made perfect he became the author of eternal salvation unto all that obey him.—Hebrews 5: 8-9.

The goal of "perfection" is more than sinlessness, and that goal is now impossible (through the fall and agency and the redemption) of attainment for all.

Till we all come to the knowledge of the Son of God unto the perfect man unto the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ.—Ephesians 4: 13.

The "joys of our redemption," pictured in glowing terms by the inspired writers of all ages, from Eve and Adam onward, leaves no possible chance to doubt the value of every several part of that great plan, nor the justice, mercy, and loving-kindness of the wisdom of God, who "doeth all things well."

Everlasting joy and holiness shall be upon their heads. They shall obtain gladness and joy; and sorrow and sighing shall flee away.—Isaiah 51: 11.

They shall hunger no more, neither thirst any more and God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes.—Revelation 7: 13.

For I reckon that the sufferings of this present time are not to be named with the glory which shall be revealed in us.—Romans 8: 18.

Let us go on unto perfection.

(The references used in this article from Genesis are from the Inspired Translation.)

The Spirit of God as It Worked With the Lord's People in Bible Times

By George Jenkins

The Holy Spirit makes known to men the things of God, in the past, in the present, and in the future, enlightening men in the way of truth and righteousness. It is one of the Godhead operating between God and man, making known the things of God, the Father, to his children on the earth; guiding and directing them that they need not walk in darkness, but walk in the light of heaven.

Job, a humble and faithful servant of God, received by the Spirit of God the knowledge that Jesus Christ would stand upon the earth in the latter days, and spoke of him, saying, "Oh that my words were now written! Oh that they were printed in a book. That they were graven with an iron pen and lead in the rock forever! For I know that my Redeemer liveth, and that he shall stand in the latter day upon the earth." What joy must have filled the soul of this servant to receive such a marvelous manifestation through the Spirit of God! The people of the Lord in the time of Enoch were also led and directed by this Spirit. Enoch lived so close to God in the keeping of the commandments that the record says he walked and talked with God. How great must have been the faith of Enoch! So great was it that when the enemies of the people of God came to battle against them, he spoke the word of the Lord, and the earth trembled, and the mountains fled, even according to his command. The rivers of water were turned out of their courses, and the roar of the lions was heard out of the wilderness.

"The Lord called his people Zion; because they were of one heart and one mind." This people rejoiced in the Lord and in the Lord's work. There was no poor among them, for they loved their neighbors as themselves, and every one had according to his needs. In this instance we see how the Spirit of the Lord worked among this people, who became so pure that their city was taken up into heaven.

We see also a demonstration of God's Spirit and its working in the time of Moses. Joshua was full of the spirit of wisdom, for Moses had laid his hands upon him. With the assistance of the Spirit of God, Joshua caused the children of Israel to hearken to the commands of the Lord.

To Every Man

Every one may receive the Spirit of God, if he will live in obedience to the commandments of God as set forth in Paul's letter to the Hebrew saints. God is no respecter of persons. In every age he that worketh righteousness is accepted of him. The promise is to all. Everyone needs this divine help as he moves forward in his service to the Lord. As the Apostle James taught, "If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, that giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not; and it shall be given him." If we ask for light and wisdom in God's appointed way, we will receive. Jesus told his disciples: "And I pray the Father, and he shall give you another comforter, that he may abide with you forever." We could not believe that Jesus would ask the Father to send a blessing on his children that he would not give them.

We realize how great is our need of this abiding comforter that will guide us into all truth, when we see all around us the great divisions that exist in the world regarding religious belief.

Howbeit when he, the Spirit of truth, is come, he will guide you into all truth; for he shall not speak of himself; but whatsoever he shall hear, that he shall speak; and he will show you things to come. He shall glorify me: for he shall receive of mine and shall show it unto you. All things that the Father hath are mine: therefore said I, that he shall take of mine and show it unto you.—John 16: 13-15.

The Holy Ghost makes known to man the things of God, that man need not walk in darkness, but walk in the light as Christ is in the light, enlightening every man that comes into the world.

These things have I spoken unto you, being yet present with you. But the Comforter, which is the Holy Ghost, whom the Father will send in my name, he shall teach you all things, and bring all things to your remembrance, whatsoever I have said unto you.—John 14: 25, 26.

From the beginning of man, God has ever shown his loving-kindness to his children, by warning them of danger, sin, and unrighteousness, by directing them in the way of truth, honor, virtue, and peace, and by directing them in the way that leads to endless bliss and glory.

Bears Witness of Christ

"But when the Comforter is come, whom I will send unto you from the Father, even the Spirit of truth, which proceedeth from the Father, he shall testify of me."—John 15: 26. As it is written that no man can say that Jesus is the Lord but by the Holy Ghost how essential it is for the Spirit to reveal to man that Jesus is the Savior of men. He that comes to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him. This asking must be in faith. The Apostle Paul, in giving his experiences in his service to God, and in his reviving of the gospel, said that he neither received it of man, neither was taught it by man but by the revelation of Jesus Christ.

For our gospel came not unto you in word only, but also in power, and in the Holy Ghost, and in much assurance; as ye know what manner of men we were among you for your sake.—1 Thessalonians 1: 5.

Jesus spoke to the disciples saying that all power was given to him in heaven and in earth. Hence none other than Jesus Christ could delegate this right to man. Jesus has said if any man will do God's will he shall know of the doctrine, whether he spoke of himself or of men. Jesus instructed his disciples to await at Jerusalem till the Holy Ghost should come; and after it had come upon them, they should be witnesses for him in all the world. In 1 Corinthians, the twelfth chapter, the Apostle Paul tells how the Spirit operated on the minds of the saints at Corinth:

For to one is given by the Spirit the word of wisdom; to another the word of knowledge by the same Spirit; to another faith by the same Spirit; to another the gifts of healing by the same Spirit; to another the working of miracles; to another prophecy; to another the discerning of spirits; to another divers kinds of tongues; to another the interpretation of tongues; but all these worketh one and the selfsame Spirit, dividing to every man severally as he will.

As God is unchangeable, so the Spirit of God is unchangeable. It works the same today as in the days of the past. We are admonished of the Lord to try the spirit, to see if it be of God, for many false spirits are gone out into the world.

The Laying On of Hands

Now when the apostles which were at Jerusalem heard that Samaria had received the word of God, they sent unto them Peter and John. Who, when they were come down, prayed for them, that they might receive the Holy Ghost: for as yet he was fallen upon none of them; only they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus. Then laid they their hands on them, and they received the Holy Ghost. And when Simon saw that through laying on of the apostles' hands the Holy Ghost was given, he offered them money, saying, Give me also this power, that on whomsoever I lay hands, he may receive the Holy Ghost.—Acts 8: 14-19.

Both in the Old Testament and in the New Testament the Holy Ghost was received through the laying on of hands.

To this end Jesus came to the earth to teach the way of life and salvataion. No other name has been given whereby man can be saved. It is Jesus who has pointed out the way of life, and led the way and given the command for us to follow him. The Spirit of God is given to guide us into all truth; an abiding comforter. The promise is that by it we shall know whether Jesus spoke of himself or of God. Whatsoever God does it shall be forever. Nothing can be added to it nor anything taken from it.

The Fruits of the Spirit

The fruits of the Spirit are love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance, against such there is no law. These blessings and gifts were enjoyed by the members of the church that Jesus built when here on the earth. The disciples of Jesus went everywhere preaching and building up the kingdom, and God confirmed the words spoken by having signs follow them that believed.

Jesus prayed that his disciples might become one as he and his Father were one. This could be accomplished only by their keeping the commandments, and by God working with them by giving them his Spirit to lead them into the truth as revealed in his sacred word. He said that they would know the truth and the truth would make them free. Freedom comes through obedience to the gospel law, as revealed in the sacred record.

---

Let me but do my work from day to day
In field or forest, at the desk or loom,
In roaring market-place or tranquil room;

Let me but find it in my heart to say,
When vagrant wishes beckon me
astray,

"This is my work, my blessing, not my doom.

Of all who live, I am the one by whom
This work can best be done in the right way."

Then shall I see it not too great nor small

To suit my spirit and to prove my powers;

Then shall I cheerful greet the laboring hours,

And cheerful turn when the long shadow fall

At eventide to play and love and rest,
Because I know for me my work is best.—Henry Van Dyke.

Prayer

For me, no quest of this or that,
No wild demand, no cry nor moan,
If God be Commissariat—
What I have missed, what I have known,
Was mine to keep or lose, alone.

Yet for the things I hold most dear,
For silvered night or gold-barred day,
For singing birds when dawn is near,
For rest at eventide, I pray—
May these things never pass away.

And I would make a still, soft prayer
For small white houses in the sun,
For slumbering fields, and pastures where
The shadows pass when day is done,
And sky and meadow meet as one.

For sea fog and a lifting mist,
For ships that seek the harbor bar,
For mountain tops, and hills, sun-kissed
Or moon-drenched at the evening star—
For these my thanks — the things that are.

Beth Walker, in Good Housekeeping.

NEWS OF CHURCH AND HOME

Address all news and letters to Editors of the Herald, Box 237, Independence, Missouri. Correspondents are requested to make their letters brief. The Editors reserve the right, on account of space limitations, to shorten all letters as circumstances require.

Detroit, Michigan

(From Detroit's Beacon Light)

First Church

While vacation months usually cut down regular attendance, they give opportunity for workers to accumulate materials and ideas with which to take up their duties in the fall. Many diligent workers are absent at present, and while sometimes it is difficult to carry on, we look forward to a general round-up in the early fall.

The superintendent of the church school, Clarence Heaviland, attended the reunion at the Park of the Pines.

The church school picnic was a huge success. One hundred and thirty attended. While the day was rather threatening during the early hours, the sun finally made its appearance and shone over Rouge Park, and the group of children and children that had grown tall many years ago, enjoyed one of the most delightful times of the season. Clarence Heaviland and Richard Wood deserve mention because of the way they managed the sports. Refreshments were under the direction of B. Janrow, Velma Armstrong, Grace Silk, and Betty Ayers.

The reunion of Orion Branch occurred August 9, and was attended by several from this branch. Sister Henrietta Davis helped Brother Schaar in arranging a program for the day's activities. Several of our young people rendered musical numbers while members of the priesthood assisted in the celebration by their presence and counsel. Brother V. D. Schaar and family, formerly of Detroit, are enthusiastic workers in Orion Branch.

Elders Lawrence Campbell and Bruce Brown were speakers enjoyed at First Church during the month of August.

Jimmie Miller, little son of Brother Frederick Miller, was the victim of a serious accident in August. While the injuries are severe, a speedy recovery is hoped for.

Elder and Sister Clyde Gault continue their work in Milan Mission. An all-day meeting was held there June 7 and during the day two children from Milan and one adult from Brightmoor were baptized. Brother Lewis Richards assisted Brother Gault in the ceremonies. Guests from other branches were welcomed, and among those attending were Elder Hager, of Sylvania, with his daughter and son-in-law, Brother and Sister Clark, of Toledo. Others from River Rouge, Wyandotte, Ann Arbor, and Monroe helped to fill the little church to capacity.

Later Milan Mission was again the scene of an all-day service during which Brother Gault baptized five persons, as a result of his efforts in Brightmoor on Thursday evenings. Many persons are reached in these efforts affecting the outlying territories, who otherwise might never be reached by the message of Christ. Services are regularly held in Milan every second Wednesday evening and on Sunday. There is an average attendance of thirty. Elders K. Green, Walter Bennett, and Willard Shotwell have given assistance that was appreciated in Milan.

September 15 is the day for the opening meeting of the Women's Department. The program will be under the direction of Group No. 7 led by Mrs. Mary Cook. Group No. 8 of the Women's Department, led by Mrs. Birdie Janrow, will give the first supper of the season in First Church the last week in September. A real old-fashioned harvest home supper will be served.

Sister Rose Conway passed away at the home of her sister, Mrs. Melvin Donaldson, July 5, after an illness of several months. Left to mourn are her daughter, Mabel, two sisters, and two brothers. The body was interred at West Jordan, Michigan, where services were held on July 7 at the Saints' church.

East Side Church

The Wednesday evening prayer services are meeting with the approval of a good number of the congregation who are beginning to attend. More than thirty members were counted at some of the August meetings.

The Department of Recreation and Expression is providing entertainment for everyone. The ice cream social held the evening of August 7 for the benefit of the Boys' Athletic Association netted about fourteen dollars. Tables were placed on the lawn and members of the association, dressed in white, served the refreshments.

At the annual business meeting of the Recreational and Expression Department Anna Mae Pappas, superintendent, nominated Edwin Chambers as her assistant. He was elected. By taking over this office he is automatically made president of the dramatic club. Gilbert Gustavus was elected boys' leader; Evelyn Vincent, secretary; Mrs. Elidora Richards, chorister; and Ilene Lively, pianist.

The boys of the Latter Day Saint Athletic Association met in a business capacity in June and elected the following officers: President, Gilbert Gustavus; vice president, Herbert Lively; secretary, Arthur Stewart; treasurer, Robert Gibson. Officers have made arrangements for the 1931-32 basketball season. This project will be financed by the Board of Stewards.

Toronto Reunion

The Toronto district reunion convened at the reunion camp at Lowbanks, Ontario, on the north shore of Lake Erie, July 25. We were sorry that James A. Wilson, district president, was unable to be with us because of illness. This also kept Sister Wilson away until the last Sunday. They are active reunion workers, and we missed them. J. L. Prentice, pastor of Toronto Branch, was chosen to preside over the reunion with power to choose his associates. This action was taken at the Saturday evening business session.

Elder J. E. Vanderwood, missionary from New York District, and Sister Vanderwood and Elder Richard D. Weaver, missionary in Toronto District, were present almost the full time and were instrumental in making the reunion a success. Bishop A. F. McLean, of Toronto, was present for the Sundays and preached three constructive sermons. Elder Douglas Cameron was present also for a week and preached.

Class work was conducted by J. E. Vanderwood on "The Constitutional Law of the Church," and credits were granted toward a certificate in religious education and leadership. J. L. Prentice also taught a class on "Church History." Their attention shows that the members are anxious to learn.

The prayer meeting were presided over by Richard D. Weaver. The young people attended the services every other day, which proved very satisfactory and produced almost a full attendance. The Lord blessed us with the gift of prophecy, and special prayers for the sick resulted in blessings. The testimonies indicated that the power of God was working with his people.

The activities of the children were directed by Sister M. Washington, assisted by Sister Castle. They conducted junior services each morning in the junior tent.

The young people were kept actively engaged under the leadership of Brother Bertrum Gozzard, leader of the boys, who has proved himself to be very successful in this work. The girls were ably directed by Sisters George Landes and James Pycock. On Sunday evening they put on a sketch entitled "Building the Ladder," which was well received.

The camp paper, "The Evening Chatter," was read each night at the close of the preaching service, and produced some real excitement. The editor, Kenneth Pugsley, was ably assisted by Sister Moroni Washington. Where they obtained all the news and "scandal" is a mystery.

The recreational activities of the camp were under the direction of Eldon Oliver and W. J. Bavington, and consisted of baseball, swimming, volley ball, horseshoe contests, with campfire games and songs in the evening.

Music for the different services was under the direction of Brother W. J. Bailey. He arranged special musical numbers for Sundays. Ernest Newton was appointed deacon in charge of the preaching tent.

Elder George Mesley, of Kansas City, stopped at the camp on his way to Niagara Falls, and we persuaded him to stay over and preach to us. He gave two powerful sermons which were appreciated. We were sorry that he was unable to stay longer.

There was a wonderful organization of workers and a real system, thanks to the following people. Sister W. J. Bailey had charge of the kitchen; Sister A. F. McLean arranged the dining room; Sister W. S. Faulds handled the store; James V. Clark had a system all his own in handling the tents; the grounds were in charge of Bertrum Gozzard and James V. Clark. There were many other able workers, but space does not permit mention of them.

One of the interesting features of the reunion was the unity and peace that prevailed among the people. The members seemed anxious to be of service and to assist in any way possible. May such gatherings so mould the characters of the Saints that they will be able to live in Zion as a united people.

Roseville Mission

Francis and Ila Lee Stricklin were baptized by Elder Leo Willsie June 21. The Women's division meets every Thursday and is very active. The study period is taken up with discussion of the Doctrine and Covenants and other church books.

We are pleased at the feeling of good fellowship and the determined efforts to see that Roseville Mission is growing. We hope for the time when the mission will be filled to the doors. Let us work together to that end.

Summer visitors here have been much appreciated.

Union Branch

Clitherall, Minnesota.—The little church at Clitherall resumed services in April with good interest and attention. Members met two or three days and cleaned and redecorated the church, painting and calcimining.

Church school work is progressing under the superintendency of Sister John Murdock with Edward Christianson assistant; Winifred Richards, treasurer; Norma Whiting, organist; Malcolm Whiting, chorister; F. P. Tucker, adult teacher; Lester Whiting, pastor; Alta Kimber, secretary.

We feel that we are fortunate in living in the park region of Minnesota, as the vacation season brings us a number of visitors. Early in the season the branch was greatly encouraged by a visit from Elder Ray Whiting and family, of Council Bluffs, and Brother and Sister Arthur Whiting, of Independence. Other visitors have been Sister Nina Tucker and family, of Independence; Brother and Sister Wallace Peterson and children, of Albert City, Iowa; members from Frazee; the Zuelsdorfs from Duluth; the Flanders and Andersen families, of Independence; and Elder and Sister Leonard Lea and Brother and Sister Henry Lund, also from Independence. Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell, nonmembers from New York City, spent a few days at our lakes. Mr. Mitchell was first impressed by a visit to the Salt Lake Temple a few years ago. Recently he has finished reading the Book of Mormon and feels that it is inspired. They attended the Sunday school session and prayer meeting and showed a keen interest in the work of the church. This visit made us feel the power of the gospel in honest hearts and taught us the need for preparation to meet just such opportunities as this one.

The general depression has not passed us by, but we are learning not only the value of a dollar but the importance of the right use of our dollars.

Minneapolis, Minnesota

Queen and Fifth Avenues, North

It has been some time since the readers of the Herald have heard from Minneapolis Branch, but now as the summer draws to a close and we are planning for the fall work, we pause a moment to give an account of things as they are here. Seldom have the weeks been filled with such constructive work as have been those of the past few months. Nor have we ever been so blessed with ministerial visitors as at this season. Brother A. Carmichael and Brother G. L. DeLapp of the Presiding Bishopric have been here, as well as Apostles J. A. Gillen and J. F. Garver, Carrol S. Olson, church statistician; Pastor MacFarland, of Oelwein, Iowa; Pastor Walters of Duluth, Minnesota, and C. J. Smith, missionary to Minnesota. Each one of these men made a real contribution to the Saints in the Twin Cities.

No other department in the branch has given greater service this summer than the Department of Religious Education. With Sister Lydia Wight as the director, it has continued to function, and the attendance at church school services has kept up remarkably well. Early in June this department sponsored an examination clinic, which cared for forty-five of the children and young people. These examinations are to continue along with follow-up work where needed. Sister Wight was able to secure the services of our Doctor Louis Nolan and a registered nurse, Sister Fred Goode. Two other nurses, Sister Louise Nolan and Sister Ruth Gunlock have also been available. The contribution which this clinic has made this summer has opened up another avenue of service for our people and the whole service which the branch renders has been enhanced.

The church school has also sponsored a combination mid-week service for the summer months, which included services from five o'clock until 9:30 on alternate Wednesday evenings. The Oriole Girls met from five o'clock to six, then dinner was served to all, after which the young people and children had recreation until nine o'clock. While they were playing the adults were having health lectures and their prayer service. Then at nine o'clock every one interested joined in choir rehearsal and music class. The average attendance was about seventy, which number we feel was well worth serving in this way.

The young people of the branch have shown remarkable interest in their bi-weekly prayer services, which have been held regularly on Sunday mornings at 8:15 o'clock. Those who are older are taking a great deal of courage from the whole-hearted response that is being made by these young people. It is hoped that we can hold a greater number of them for real service in the church. As it was voiced by one of our young persons, the reason for our prayer services (and our church) is that we might see Jesus, and seeing him, we might show him to others, that they, in turn, might learn to know him and to reproduce his life in them. We have especially enjoyed the presence of Sister Loleta Johnson in this service this summer. She has just returned to Graceland for her second year.

Brother Harold Keairnes, who came from Omaha about three years ago, has given us some splendid help. Not content with being alone, however, he returned to Omaha and brought back a fine little wife, who was Lois Wren. Because of their work, Brother Harold was called to the priesthood and is to be ordained in October. Everyone here enjoys their company and appreciates their help.

We have some outstanding workers in Minneapolis, but a large share of the credit for branch progress goes to the splendid response and cooperation of all the Saints. No-where in the church can you find a warmer-hearted group than we have here, and this fact, coupled with that degree of progress which we feel we have made, gives us encouragement for the work which lies ahead. May the Saints in all the church be blessed with a return of confidence in each other and a deeper faith in our heavenly Father.

River Rouge Church

Sister Annie Wood, wife of Elder Wilber Wood, of River Rouge, passed away August 3. She had been enjoying fair health of late, and her sudden demise was a great shock to everyone. The funeral was held from the River Rouge Church, the service being in charge of Elder Kenneth Green. Interment was in Roseland Cemetery. Sister Wood leaves to mourn her husband and three children.

Valley Center, Michigan

September 2.—An all-day service is slated for Valley Center Branch September 27. The Saints are anticipating a pleasant and profitable day.

Though many one-day meetings have been held throughout this district, Valley Center Branch has not canceled its own activities to attend. The pastor and membership feel that when we close the church doors in order that a few may attend meetings in other places, many members and nonmembers who do not get to attend these special meetings suffer loss. We attribute the success of our endeavors in obtaining new members and holding old members, to the fact that we never close the church or fail to hold services. There are three services at the church each Sunday in the year with the exception of the two reunion Sundays.

Sunday, August 31, found the Saints gathering at their customary baptismal place a few miles east of the church. There three candidates were inducted into the kingdom by Pastor H. E. C. Muir. At the water's edge some fifty Saints and nonmembers gathered at three o'clock in the afternoon to witness a wonderful manifestation of the Holy Spirit. The local priesthood rendered valuable assistance in the ceremony. Hearts were made glad under the influence of God's power, and many rejoiced to be Saints in latter days. Others are nearing the kingdom. There on the bank of the stream one sister, who is unable to attend church at night, was confirmed. That evening the other two candidates were confirmed before a large congregation by the pastor and local elders. God recognized his servants and newly-born children with a measure of his Spirit. Elder Muir delivered an able discourse following the confirmation, and the congregation expressed itself as pleased with the message.

The church school, organized under the new plan, has as its director E. D. Finken, and is progressing. Interest is manifested by every member, and attendance is increasing; the average running now between eighty and one hundred each Sunday. So far as possible to meet the needs of the branch, we have worked out and applied the new plan of church school conduction. We find that it unifies our services. We continue to maintain the social service preceding the church school session. We feel that the social service is of more value to our people than the religious service outlined for that hour in Vision. Under our system we are prospering spiritually and numerically.

A contest put on by the church school in June draws to a close September 7. The losing side is to furnish refreshments and amusements at some convenient location. Surely good will develop from this movement.

The branch effort at Valley Center is directed toward working out the policies of the church and blending our lives with the power of the gospel so that we may become a Zion here in our own little city. The Lord has said that Zion is the pure in heart, and we are trying to so live that we shall be able to inject righteousness into the Zion of our Lord when the time of gathering arrives. We are preparing for Zion in our own branch and in carrying out this aim we are growing.

A Layman Appreciates Honolulu Branch

Brewton, Alabama.—I was elected correspondent for the Hawaiian Branch the latter part of June, but since I have not had the opportunity to collect necessary official matter, I want to tell my experiences while in the Islands. I am now spending my vacation at home, and wish this letter published in behalf of the Honolulu Saints.

I arrived in Honolulu early in October, 1930. The only information I had concerning the church there was the name of Elder G. J. Waller, given me at the Auditorium, in Independence, Missouri, by Elder M. A. Etzenhouser about September 8, 1930. It was when I learned that I was leaving Independence for the Hawaiian Islands, that I asked Brother Etzenhouser about the people and churches in the islands and how I could locate them.

"Just ask anyone in Honolulu or anyone who has lived there for several years, and he can tell you how to locate Brother Waller," said Brother Etzenhouser.

This proved true. The first man whom I approached, gave me the necessary information, how to locate Brother Waller and also one of our churches.

I went to the Main Branch which is located at 1680 Mott-Smith Drive. This was the first Sunday of October. I was somewhat astonished at seeing so beautiful a church and at the happy welcome I received.

I also had the privilege of meeting several Saints from the Japanese and Chinese Branches.

Honolulu Saints I found to be actively trying to carry out the new church school program.

One thing I wish to say is that most of the Saints in Hawaii can speak English as well as we do in the United States. When I went there I knew that Honolulu was a modern city and that the schools taught the English language, but I did not expect to hear English so generally and so fluently spoken. I find many people today who share the opinion I had when I went to Hawaii; they ask me: "Can the people in the island understand your language? And can you understand theirs?" I trust that none of us will be so inquisitive at the next General Conference, and ask such questions as these of the Hawaiian members who happen to be present. I met some of the Saints in Honolulu who told me that when they attended the Centennial Conference, they were bored with such questions.

But back to the main subject—Honolulu and her Saints. I soon found work to do and an opportunity to learn many things which I trust will be to my advantage in the future. It has been said by many that the Hawaiian Islands compose the melting pot of the nations. Here all the races mingle together and become one. I hope that some day we shall see Zion established and conducted in a similar manner that we shall gather and do as one race.

Hawaiian Saints have not forgotten the missionaries who in years past have labored among them. You frequently hear mention of names of missionaries and their wives.

Brother and Sister Macrae spent about a year in Honolulu, but last April they went to Hilo, and we (that was in Honolulu) heard that they were received with gladness and given a warm welcome. They are doing a fine work in that island. The Saints in Honolulu look forward to their return. Brother Macrae proved to be a good organizer and his wife was a good missionary, too.

The church work in the islands is progressing, but like many of the fields I have visited, they need more laborers.

And while I am writing of laborers, I wish to mention Brother Waller. He is now seventy-one years old, but still one of the most active men in the church. His name is known for good throughout the islands. At another time I will write something concerning the work he is doing.

I spent nine happy months in the islands, and am now on a three months' vacation in the States. Just now I am at home in Brewton. Whether I shall return to the islands, I do not yet know. I take this opportunity to send greetings to the Hawaiian Saints and to thank them for the kindness they showed me.

JESSE R. EVANS.

Madison, Wisconsin

September 7.—Madison Saints are progressing even though we are without our able pastor, Elder Amos Berve, who is now recuperating in Independence.

Now that the very hot weather is over, we look for better attendance. Good crowds are usually had at the three Sunday services and the Wednesday night prayer meeting.

Work of remodeling the basement and repairing the building has been under way all summer. It goes slowly because we are doing our own work, and meet but once a week.

Yesterday we were handicapped in the services by the fact that most of the members in Madison, taking advantage of the two-day holiday, were out of town. Some went to Nauvoo, some to Northern Wisconsin, some to Milwaukee, and still others to various other points. We had only fifteen at Sunday school and a few more at the communion service. Nevertheless the Spirit of God was present. It seems that the Holy Spirit is always with us here. This causes us to realize that we have heavy responsibility, because we know the Lord wants us to push forward.

Apostle D. T. Williams was here in the evening and gave the first of his monthly lectures. His first sermon was on "Faith," and we are sorry that only thirty Saints were present to hear him. The next time he comes we hope to fill the church to capacity.

As he was analyzing his theme, Brother Williams asserted that there are three meanings of faith: faith in humanity, faith in nature, and faith in God. We are looking forward to the rest of Brother Williams' sermons.

Kirtland, Ohio

Kirtland Saints were happy to have Patriarch and Sister F. G. Pitt and Sister Fredrick, from Joliet, Illinois, here during the reunion. After reunion, they remained in Kirtland for a few days, Brother Pitt delivering some inspiring sermons.

Brother Bertram Lewis, brother of Sister Harmona Schupp, a former resident of this city, visited here during the reunion. This year he will be a teacher and coach in the high school in Mattituck, Long Island, New York.

August 20 Brother and Sister Frank C. Webbe entertained the Kirtland Dramatic Club with a lawn party at their home.

Sister Daisy Lewis who recently underwent a major operation in Cleveland, is convalescing at her home.

A number of the church school workers are planning to attend the Kirtland district accredited institute at Sharon, Pennsylvania, September 12 and 13.

Sister Gladys Wiggins, of Wichita, Kansas, mother of Sister Dora Wilcox, of Kirtland, passed away in Kirtland August 23. Those who knew her were saddened and will remember her as an ardent church worker.

Elder and Sister Ebenezer Curry will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary September 15.

Brother Paul Booher and Sister Beatrice Gale, heads of the young people's division, report a full year's activities. The gatherings held have included literary, music, dramatic, and historic programs as well as athletic events and various outings.

Mallard Iowa

The funeral of Sister Crane, of Albert City, was conducted at Mallard church July 9. She was a woman who lived a saintly life. Brother Benjamin Fish preached the funeral sermon.

During the period of severely hot weather visitors have been few. However, there were families of Saints present at our services from Marathon and Centerville, Iowa, and Cameron, Missouri.

A farewell party was given the evening of August 25, at the home of Brother and Sister Benjamin Fish, in honor of their son, Velmer, and Norman Kolarich. These two young men are this winter attending Graceland College and make our number of Gracelanders and ex-Gracelanders three. There are others, we trust, who will be able to attend as they finish work here. These two young men have, through church work, grown near and dear to the Saints, and carry with them the best wishes of the branch. The evening was spent in playing games and eating light refreshments after which the young men were presented a token of remembrance from the branch. Brother and Sister Fish and Sister Kolarich took Velmar and Norman to Lamoni.

We of Mallard Branch hope to see Graceland grow and our young people prepare to take up work in different fields of service.

August 28 the Sunday school picnic was held at Harrison Park, at Emmetsburg. Though the weather was cool and the wind strong, and volley ball was a popular game to keep the picnickers warm, all had a good time.

Holden Stake

Marshall

Pastor T. L. McCormick preached his farewell sermon Sunday night, August 30. A surprise party was given him and his family before their departure to Warrensburg where the two sons, Jay and Walter, will attend the State Teachers College. This is Jay's second year. We shall miss the McCormicks in church work.

Sister William Mitchel and son and daughter visited Marshall Branch on a recent week-end. Sister Mitchel gave one of her spicy recitations at the Sunday evening service. Elder R. D. Weaver is the author of the poem, "The Bee and the Grasshopper," which she read.

Sister Zella James Stewart has returned to her relatives and friends from Nebraska, where her husband was buried.

Eastern Colorado District Gains

The work of the church in Eastern Colorado District is moving along nicely.

Missionary H. E. Winegar has been very busy this summer holding special series of meetings. The Saints in most places have shown a splendid spirit of cooperation, and have labored hard to make the meetings a success.

Quite a number have been baptized in the district, this year. To date Elder Winegar has baptized seventeen and many of the local men have also officiated in services of baptism.

A very fine meeting was held early in the summer at Lamar, Nebraska. This branch is perhaps better known as the Chase County (Nebraska) Branch. During the special series of meetings at this place the church was dedicated. A large number of people came to the dedication service. One man was baptized at this meeting, Brother Sam Brunke, the village blacksmith. He will make a fine member and will do his part in helping carry on the work. Elder B. J. Peters is the pastor at Lamar, and is doing a good piece of work in holding the Saints together. The branch is not large but is composed of a loyal band of Saints. More news from this district is promised in the near future.

Fresno, Calif .

2412 Clay Street

It may be of interest to the many friends of Fresno Branch to know that on Saturday evening, August 22, we elected officers for the coming year, beginning October 1, and held the annual business meeting.

After the usual business was attended to, the following officers were elected:

Branch pastor, T. F. Enix (encumbent); clerk, Mrs. A. S. Votaw, (encumbent); treasurer, W. F. Crane, (encumbent); director of religious education, Mrs. L. W. Roberts; superintendent of music, Ethel Godfrey; publicity agent, Maxine Godfrey; librarian, Altha Roberts, (encumbent); historian, Mrs. J. R. Buchanan; bishop's agent, A. S. Votaw, (encumbent).

District President G. P. Levitt was with us and acted as chairman for the evening. He remained to preach on Sunday morning, using for his subject "Idols." It was a timely topic and the discourse was interesting.

We were much disappointed that he could not also preach for us in the evening, but business called him home.

The Saints are anticipating the continued record of the past year and hope that the progress may be as steady and sure during the coming year.

We await the arrival of Bishop Albert Carmichael, whom we are expecting Friday, September 11. He will remain over Sunday.

The Annual Labor Day picnic was held in Roeding Park, with many happy participants. The recreation committee, headed by Sister Lillie Jennings, kept the good time going. A basket lunch was spread at noon.

MRS. L. W. ROBERTS.

Colorado Springs, Colorado

The fall season finds the work at this place still progressing. We have had several visitors who have contributed their bit to the success of the meetings. Among these were the Conleys, of Kansas City, the Wilkinsons, from Independence, Missouri, Sister Stringer, of Wichita Falls, Texas, Brother Anderson, of Lincoln, Nebraska, and Brother and Sister B. B. Root, of Kansas City. Brother Conley and Brother Wilkinson preached while they were here. Both services were enjoyed by the Saints.

For the Fourth of July picnic the Saints joined with the Falcon Sunday School, and held their celebration in the bluffs about midway between the two places.

On August 16 we received our first official visit from the new district president, Glaude A. Smith, who preached for us following a short prayer service. He enjoyed liberty in speaking, and brought to our attention what it means to say, "I'm a follower of the Christ."

The Women's Department held a social on the night of August 19, when they gave a playlet. Later they were asked by the Union Church, of Roswell, if they would repeat the playlet at a social they were giving. The sisters complied and enjoyed the fellowship of the members of that church. This Department has found it interesting to celebrate each month with a birthday party for the members who have a birthday that month. September 10, they drove to the home of Sister J. D. Curtis. The day proved an enjoyable one.

The Department of Religious Education, under the direction of Floyd Engstrum, has two classes working for credits. One meets on Sunday evening, while the other one meets on Monday evening. Several in the classes have over two hundred credits. They gave a playlet the night of September 13.

Many attended the district conference which was held in Denver August 28 to 30. There they found much to encourage them in the work. They feel that their faith was strengthened by the spirit of unity that prevailed over the conference.

Lancaster, Ohio

Lancaster Branch has steadily increased in membership by baptisms and transfers. The work is progressing and interest is growing.

On August 14 the young people's division was organized with Elmer H. Caldwell as supervisor and Bessie Wasem as assistant. The young folks are doing splendid work. Already plans for work on a large scale are being put into effect.

Prayer meetings are well attended, a large per cent of attendance being young people.

Sacrament service August 2 was in charge of Elder S. E. Dickson and the Spirit was present in power. In the afternoon many of the members visited The Plains Branch where Brother Dickson spoke.

Deacon Grover Wasem made his first attempt at a public exhortation August 9. He did exceedingly well, and we are proud of the way he is helping the branch.

Other speakers for the month were Priests Luther C. Kirkendall and Elmer Caldwell, and Elder William P. Vickroy. The evening of August 23 there was special music by Sister Alice Lane, of Lamoni, Iowa.

Lancaster Saints are happy in the fact that the priesthood and laity are taking increased interest. We desire the prayers of the Saints that our faith will continue and our courage grow. It is our wish to serve God.

Kansas City Stake

Central Church

Evening speakers during the month of September will be members of the Quorum of Twelve. Apostle Roy S. Budd spoke Sunday evening.

The Allied Campaigners were in Kansas City Sunday. These nationally known leaders are holding mass meetings in two hundred and sixty-one cities. They are bringing to the people the needs and facts of prohibition. They have the support of all law enforcement and temperance organizations, and seek to enroll the dry sentiment of the country in a movement for education and enforcement. At the Ararat Temple Sunday afternoon and evening Doctor Daniel Poling, international president of Christian Endeavor, and Oliver W. Stewart, both widely known prohibition campaigners, spoke. Some of the Saints took advantage of the opportunity to hear these men and enroll in this great cause.

September 27 will be rally day for the church school, and the first Sunday of October will see the beginning of new courses of study in various classes.

On Friday afternoon and evening of this week the women's club will have a picnic at the home of Mrs. Bown, Fifty-first and Wornall, on the Kansas side. All members of the club and their families are invited, the women going in the afternoon and the men in the evening.

Brother Calvin Rich gave the morning sermonet of the church school on Sunday.

Bennington Church.

Assistant Pastor Joseph Curtis has been conducting a series of missionary meetings at Sixteenth and Bennington Streets. At the conclusion of the meetings eight people were baptized. During the past two weeks he has been holding meetings on a vacant lot at Seventh and Wheeling Streets.

Argentine Church

News of the death of their son, Wendell F., in Waco, Texas, where he had been visiting during the summer, reached Elder Daniel P. and Sister Winnie Cooper, September 4. Wendell was shot by someone as yet unknown. Brother Cooper immediately went to Waco and returned with the body. The young man was born March 2, 1911, at Council Bluffs, Iowa, and was baptized by Elder J. A. Tanner in 1921, in Kansas City, Missouri. The funeral service was in charge of Pastor

R. E. Browne, the sermon by Patriarch Ammon White, at the local church. Interment was in charge of the Latta Funeral Home in Maple Hill Cemetery. Brother and Sister Cooper have the sympathy of all their friends. A fine, manly son has been called beyond.

The evening of September 13 Doctor Harold Bullard preached a forceful sermon on Ecclesiastes 3: 15, 16, and Romans 1: 20. He is deeply concerned about the conditions of the world outside the church and the carelessness of some inside the church. The remedy, he holds, is the application of the teachings of Jesus Christ and the latter-day gospel. Stake Missionary Arthur Oakman will open a series of meetings at Argentine Church the evening of September 20. The meetings will continue as long as it seems wise.

Brother Charles Bragg sponsored a watermelon social, furnishing home-grown watermelons. The event was held on the lawn of Brother William Fox's home, September 4, and a good number enjoyed the evening.

Independence

Sunday evening brought to a close the union services of Independence congregations at the Campus after a summer of pleasant, open-air meetings. The evening's program held the attention of the assembled crowd from beginning to end. In a few words Pastor J. F. Sheehy summed up the summer's effort and announced events of the near future which need our prayers and cooperation—the Harvest Home Festival, the work of the Independence Institute of Arts and Sciences, and the meetings of the Joint Council next week.

Then a happy surprise awaited the people. President Frederick M. Smith made his first pulpit appearance since his return from the East a few days ago. He spoke of his summer as a Maine fisherman, his recuperation, his feelings upon his return to headquarters, and his intense desire to "carry on."

A boys' chorus, conducted by Orlando Nace, sang two familiar hymns, and the Auditorium Orchestra accompanied congregational singing. Elder G. G. Lewis was in charge of the service.

The passing of September sees an increase in the activities of the Harvest Home Festival builders. Many who believe in planning and working ahead are fast accumulating their harvest gifts and setting up their booth frame-works.

Throughout Independence during the summer months the Saints have manifested a strong tendency to gather in cottage or missionary meetings. One of these lasted for three weeks; others have varied in length from one night to a week. Among the speakers have been Apostles R. S. Budd and J. F. Curtis, Elders Ammon White, Harvey Minton, and R. D. Weaver. These services have been much enjoyed.

Stone Church

The impressiveness of the morning preaching service at the Stone Church Sunday will long cause the congregation to remember and to think. Pastor John F. Sheehy spoke simply and briefly on the theme, "Worship in the House of God," his object being to improve the quality of services in the Stone Church. For a scripture reading he chose Doctrine and Covenants 119: 7, and talked in a way calculated to impress upon each hearer his individual responsibility in making possible a good worship service.

The Stone Church Choir made its first appearance of the fall season, contributing two anthems to the musical program broadcast over KMBC, "Incline Thine Ear to Me," arranged by Fredrich Himmel, the contralto solo being sung by Mrs. S. A. Burgess; and "God Is Our Refuge and Strength," by Dudley Buck. Mrs. Burgess also sang as a solo number, "What Are These Which Are Arrayed," by Brown. Paul N. Craig directed the choir, and Robert Miller played the organ.

President Elbert A. Smith was in charge of the service, being assisted by Elder O. A. McDowell.

Walnut Park

"Search the scriptures, for in them ye think ye have eternal life"; "Examine yourselves and see if ye be in the faith"; "Be ready to give a reason for the hope that is in you," are typical of the many biblical quotations used by J. F. Curtis Sunday in the forenoon sermon. His urgent counsel was to stabilize our faith in the books rather than rest our assurance on men whom we believe will be safe guides. Carroll L. Olson had charge of the service; prayer by C. V. Hopkins.

The morning prayer meeting, attended by about one hundred, was presided over by C. K. Green, Fred Wille, and F. W. Lanpher. A large proportion of this one hundred are quite regular attendants, finding much in the services to encourage them. On the previous Sunday the presiding officer was Brother Clyde Bullard, he and his wife, Margaret Gard Bullard, both formerly of Walnut Park, being here from Chicago to visit their parents after fifteen months' absence. Many friends gave them a hearty welcome and enjoyed again hearing Margaret's voice in song.

Sunday school, September 13, was in charge of Albert Chapman, Sanford Downs, chorister, Mrs. Douglas Byrne pianist. The special number was a song in their native tongue by three little girls from Germany, Ilse Warnecke and the little Misses Drigalla. The Walnut Park orchestra contributes largely to the success of the Sunday school every Sunday.

Two weeks ago Elder Welton Wood was the speaker, teaching the value of good home training. His teaching in his own home has been effective and makes his sermons doubly so.

The tent meetings conducted by Elder Harvey Minton closed after three weeks of splendid attendance. Apostle Curtis spoke twice and Elder J. F. Sheehy once. J. Charles May furnished musical numbers one evening, and local talent of Group 29, East, responded many evenings to calls for special numbers. The meetings in this particular group gave needed instruction and encouragement to the Saints, and at the close several brought their children to Brother Minton for baptism. Seven were baptized in the Walnut Park font.

Enoch Hill

The theme, "Our Missionaries," was used by the church school the morning of September 6. E. H. McKean was in charge and gave a short talk. Miss Nellie Kramer read a story, "Our Church in the Islands."

Apostle Roy S. Budd was present at the sacrament service which was in charge of the pastor who was assisted by members of the local priesthood. A good meeting was had.

The church school feature last Sunday morning was a continuation of the short doctrinal discussion begun two Sundays ago, by two of our young men, Lawrence Martin and Freddie Burrows. The discussion represented a talk between a Latter Day Saint and a nonmember. Programs such as this one stimulate the interest of old and young in our fundamental beliefs. Miss Nellie Kramer was in charge of the service.

Elder T. A. Beck, of Second Church, was the morning speaker.

Why We Have the Harvest Festival

Harvest Home Festival workers are very busy in the groups in Independence. The following letter written by Sister D. C. Moore, of Group 21, catches up and presents the spirit and attitude of these laborers:

"This is my third year as solicitor in my group, and I have found those whose attitude toward the Harvest Festival has been much at variance with my own belief and that of others. To me the festival is not merely a place to show off how much fruit and vegetables we have canned or how much better our booth looks than the one next to it.

"In Deuteronomy 26 we learn why the early saints were commanded to rejoice, and verses 10 and 11 read: 'And now, behold, I have brought the firstfruits of the land, which thou, O Lord, hast given me. And thou shalt set it before the Lord thy God, and worship before the Lord thy God: And thou shalt rejoice in every good thing which the Lord thy God hath given unto thee, and unto thine house, thou, and the Levite, and the stranger that is among you.' It would appear that they also must have held a festival. Probably it was not conducted in the same manner, but its purpose and reason were identical with those of our Harvest Festival today. To me the festival marks a time of rejoicing for the good things the Lord has given us.

"The festival is also a time of sacrifice, for without sacrifice there is no pleasing God. I am proud to say there are many in our group sacrificing their time, labor and strength that they may give generously to the festival. Among these is an elderly brother who has all the responsibility of the household and the housework to do, as well as an invalid wife to care for. He is donating the following: Four quarts of tomatoes, two quarts stringless beans, one quart peaches, one pint plum butter. Others have caught the spirit and are working hard to make up the group contribution.

"And as we work we remember that our gift of the harvest goes to feed the poor and the helpless, many of whom we will have with us this winter.

"What are you doing?"

Eastern Colorado District Conference

September 10.—Three days of meetings, including the district conference, were held in Denver, August 28, 29, and 30, instead of the usual ten-day reunion which was called off.

On Friday morning the prayer meeting was very well attended and an excellent spirit prevailed throughout. This was a splendid beginning for the series of meetings. At ten o'clock in the morning the opening address by Apostle E. J. Gleazer was on the theme to be used throughout the series: "A Living God, A Living Church." District Missionary H. E. Winegar followed with a sermon on the theme. In the afternoon District President Glaude A. Smith spoke on the subject, "God Hath Spoken," and was followed by a sermon by Brother Gleazer entitled "God Has Called," dealing with calls to the ministry. In the evening a good fellowship program was provided by members from branches throughout the district. H. E. Winegar demonstrated his ability as an entertainer. A watermelon feed on the church lawn followed, drawing a good crowd.

Saturday morning, following a well-attended and worthwhile prayer meeting, the district conference convened with the district presidency and Apostle E. J. Gleazer in charge. Organization and reading of reports occupied most of the time. In the afternoon new district by-laws were discussed and adopted. Recommendations from several branches that the following men be ordained were adopted, and the ordinations ordered provided for, namely, Elliston Stevens, of La Junta, Charles W. Sutton, of Genoa, Fred and Leslie A. Vosmer, of Denver. During the election of officers Glaude Smith was sustained as district president, together with his counselors E. J. Williams and J. D. Curtis. Also in regards to the other officers little if any change was made in personnel. Following the business session Brother Curtis presented the needs of the reunion grounds to the conference. In the evening he preached on development of character in relation to the building of Zion, after which the young people of the district were entertained by the Denver young people at Washington Park.

Brother Alma Booker, president of Western Colorado District, and his wife and daughter were with us for part of the conference. A good many Saints from out of the district were present, but space forbids an attempt to give their names.

Sunday's services began at eight o'clock with a young people's prayer meeting. The time was well spent, the good Spirit being present, and many expressed their appreciation of the latter-day cause and their desire and determination to assist in carrying it on. The fervent prayers also evidenced the devotion of these young people to God and his church.

We feel that they can be depended on to assume the responsibilities and bear the burdens that will surely come to them. Immediately after this meeting, the church school began its work, in charge of Sister Winegar, district director of religious education, who addressed us on the place of religious education in the church. The morning sermon was preached by Brother Gleazer who emphasized the fact that the Lord always provided a way for the accomplishment of his purposes.

At the afternoon sacrament meeting Brother E. J. Williams made the opening remarks, which were very fitting. After the sacrament was administered Brother Gleazer delivered the charge to the men to be ordained, and Brother Smith offered a special prayer in their behalf. Elliston Stevens was then ordained to the office of priest by H. E. Winegar and E. J. Williams; Fred Kemp to the office of priest by E. J. Williams and H. E. Winegar; Charles W. Sutton to the office of priest by J. R. Sutton and J. D. Curtis; Leslie A. Vosmer to the office of deacon by J. D. Curtis and J. R. Sutton. The Spirit of God attended the ordinations to a marked degree. The people were especially moved as they witnessed the ordination of Charles Sutton by his father. Following the ordinations the Lord blessed the congregation with the spirit of prayer and testimony. The gift of prophecy was also made manifest, resting upon Brother Gleazer in great power and clear intelligence as he delivered the word of the Lord to Ralph Radcliffe, E. F. Shupe, Ralph Vincent, Paul Diefendorf and Richard Salyards. Under the power of the Spirit, Brother Glaude Smith delivered an admonition and call to greater service to the priesthood.

After this service the reunion ground trustees, E. J. Williams, A. E. Tabor, R. E. Vincent and J. D. Curtis, spoke on the immediate needs of the reunion grounds at Colorado Springs, stating that they had received enough money to pay the interest to date, and asking if possible that we raise one hundred dollars at once to pay on the principal. A splendid response met their request. A sum of about two hundred dollars was received in a few minutes in cash and pledges.

A musical program at 7.15 in the evening, in charge of Sister Inez Schrunck, district chorister, was followed by a sermon by Brother Gleazer, after which the conference was officially adjourned.

Denver Branch provided dinner and supper in the basement every day at very reasonable prices. Sister Ada Shupe was in charge of this work, assisted by a band of capable and willing workers.

Without doubt many people came to the conference burdened and tried by the peculiar conditions prevailing in the world and in the church. But the great God who is rich in mercy and mighty to save, and who always knows the needs of his people, heard their cries and ministered to them in power. The Sunday afternoon sacrament, prayer and testimony meeting was easily the crowning point of the conference. An endowment of power was received which will enable this portion of latter-day Israel to continue its work. We were comforted, encouraged, strengthened, our faith increased, our comprehension of this "marvelous work and a wonder" enlarged, and all were urged forward with renewed diligence to work the works of Him who has called us into his kingdom and glory. Under that Spirit, no matter what the obstacles, nothing that God requires is impossible to his people. As Brother Gleazer pointed out, moved by that Spirit Nephi declared: "I will go and do the things the Lord hath commanded, for I know that the Lord giveth no commandments unto the children of men, save he shall prepare a way for them that they may accomplish the thing which he commandeth them." As we met together in the various meetings we were made to realize how high and glorious are our privileges, how great and binding are our responsibilities, for by the grace of God we are called to be a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, a peculiar people,

MISCELLANEOUS

Conference Notices

Minnesota district conference will be held at Duluth, September 19 and 20. Church is located at 300 North Sixtieth Avenue West. All Minnesota Saints who can are urged to attend.—Wesley Elwin, secretary.

The date of the Utah district conference has been postponed. The time it will be held will be announced later.—A. M. Chase, district president.

Priesthood Convention

Southern Ohio District will hold a priesthood convention at First Columbus Branch, Tompkins Street and Medary Avenue, October 3 and 4. The first classes will convene at 10 a. m. October 3, and will continue during the afternoon. Saturday evening at 6:30 there will be a banquet open to all, and it is requested that each man be accompanied by his wife or a friend. We are planning to make this the biggest event in the history of Southern Ohio, and urge that all the priesthood avail themselves of the opportunity of being better prepared for service. Should there be present during the day those who are not members of the priesthood, classes will be provided. Tickets for the banquet are 50 cents a person, reservations must be made not later than September 28, and money must accompany all reservations. This gathering takes the place of the fall conference. Classes will be conducted by Apostle C. F. Ellis, Elder A. E. Anderson, Elder J. R. Grice, and possibly by Bishop H. E. French. Brother Grice will be toastmaster at the banquet, and an entertaining program is being arranged.—A. E. Anderson, district president.

Our Departed Ones

JONES.—Mary Della Jones was born in Cass County, Indiana, March 23, 1858. She married J. A. Jones in 1876, and to them eleven children were born. Three children passed away in infancy. She died most unexpectedly at her home in Fairland, Oklahoma, August 19, 1931. She was an admirable, christian woman respected and loved by all who knew her. Became a member of the church October 23, 1899, being baptized by S. W. Simmons. While she had not been in good health for years, she retired Tuesday night feeling as well as usual, and passed away shortly before dawn Wednesday morning. There survive her husband, eight children: J. C. Jones, Sacramento, California; J. Albert Jones, Fairland; Mrs. William Brice, Fairland; Mrs. A. J. Carney, Trinidad, Colorado; Mrs. Thomas Thompson, Fairland; O. S., W. A., and J. G. Jones, all of Fairland; fifteen grandchildren, four great-grandchildren; one brother, George H. Rhonemus, Galena, Missouri; one sister, Mrs. Amos Berry, Fairland. The funeral was held in the Saints' church at Fairland, Elder Frank McDonald preaching the sermon.

CHRESTENSEN.—Charles Cyrus Chrestensen was born in Streator, Illinois, May 10, 1875, and died September 8, 1931. There remain to mourn his passing, Louise, his wife, four daughters: Mabel, Stella, Ruth, and Juanita. Two grandchildren, George and Charles, sons of G. W. and Mabel Deller; also his father and mother, James C. and Carrie S. Chrestensen; four brothers: George G., Walter W., Alfred A., and Lehi L.; one sister, Mrs. May M. Lionberger. One daughter, Ethel, preceded him to the other shore. He made his home in Independence, Missouri, for some time, but for a number of years had been a resident of Joplin, Missouri, where he was engaged in the barber business. Services were conducted at the Hurlbut Chapel by Elder Frank McDonald. Interment was in Fairview Cemetery.

ROSS.—Minnie Johnson was born in Jasper County, Missouri, August 11, 1897; departed this life at Fort Scott, Kansas, August 24, 1931. Death followed an automobile accident at Pleasanton, Kansas, which occurred at 9.25 p. m. Sunday. She was married to William C. Ross, at Asbury, Missouri, September 22, 1914. To this union were born four daughters, Dorothy Laurene, 16; Myrtle Mae, 14; Thelma Maxine, 10; and Betty Jean, 8, who with the husband remain to mourn her untimely departure. Both her parents preceded her in death. She was baptized a member of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints about eight years ago. There remains one sister, Mae J. Howard, of Wichita, Kansas, also a host of sorrowing relatives and friends. Funeral services were conducted at the Smith Funeral Home, Pittsburg, Kansas, by Elder Frank McDonald of Joplin.

MOORE.—Lora Fay Bean was born July 25, 1894, at Dora, Missouri. Married Anson V. Moore October 14, 1911, and to them were borne three children: Mrs. Mary Moore Flowman, Helen and Verne Moore, all living in Rupert, Idaho. Mrs. Moore accepted the gospel September 29, 1913, and was a devoted member until her death which took place at her home in Rupert, Idaho, September 4, 1931. She is survived by her husband, Elder Anson V. Moore, three children, two sisters, and two brothers. She was a patient sufferer the last nine years of her life. The funeral sermon from the Saints' church in Rupert, was by O. W. Okerlind. A faithful member has gone to a well-earned reward.

LACEY.—Nancy Anna Hershey was born January 7, 1848, near Warsaw, Wisconsin. She became a member of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints May 10, 1868, being baptized at Salt Lake City, Utah, by J. W. Gillen. She passed from this life at the home of her son, Leonard, in Hemet, California, early the morning of April 3, 1931, after an illness of seven weeks. She had been in California for only twelve weeks, ten of which had been spent with her son in Hemet. Interment was in the old home cemetery at Shelton, Nebraska. She is survived by five sons: F. J. Lacey, Pomona, California; W. D. Lacey, Shelton, Nebraska; William and Edward, Carpenter, Wyoming; Leonard, in Hemet; three daughters; Mrs. Mamie Allen, Tulsa, Oklahoma; Mrs. Carrie Johnson, Omaha, Nebraska, and Mrs. Dorothy Fatheringham, Puente, California. There are also twenty-three grandchildren, twelve great-grandchildren; three sisters, and one brother.

STREET.—Ida Myrtle Street was born August 19, 1891, at Independence, Missouri. Was baptized a member of the church June 10, 1900, by Wallace Robinson, at Independence. Graduated from the William Chrisman High School in 1909; was employed by the city hall and courthouse at Kansas City, Missouri. For the past two years she has lived in Los Angeles, California, and Seattle, Washington. The funeral sermon was by Elder Joseph Luff. Interment was in Mound Grove Cemetery.

PETTETT.—Jane Maria Moses, daughter of James and Roxey Moses, was born April 20, 1835, at Canaan, Connecticut. Shortly before her birth her parents united with the church, and soon after their daughter's birth, they moved to Kirtland. With her parents, she followed and shared the fortunes of the church until the death of the Prophet at Carthage and the expulsion from Nauvoo. After this exodus, they moved back to Connecticut, called there by the needs of the parents of Mr. Moses. In 1860, she married Ezra Pettett, and in 1861 the family, including the young married couple moved to Utah. Later with her husband, she united with the Reorganized Church. Her husband passed away June 23, 1908. She died August 11, 1931, at Salt Lake City, Utah. Surviving are two sons, Ezra and Parley, one daughter, Mrs. Josephine Groesbeck, six grandchildren, ten great-grandchildren and two great-great-grandchildren. She made her home with her unmarried son, Ezra Pettett, and was loved and honored by all her neighbors who called her "Aunt Jane." The funeral was in charge of Bishop John C. Duncan, of the Utah Church, and Elder A. M. Chase, of the Reorganized Church, preached the funeral sermon. The rites were held from the Deseret Mortuary. Of Mrs. Pettett it may be said, as the Master once said of another, "She hath done what she could."

WATKINS.—Millie Watkins was born in Scranton, Pennsylvania, November 15, 1878. She was baptized into the church July 23, 1909. Married Benjamin Watkins December 9, 1899, and to them were born six sons and four daughters: Thomas, Rhoda, Donald, Willard, Benjamin, Harold, Elizabeth, Mildred, Dorothy, and Robert. She passed from this life August 7, 1931, at Scranton. Was a faithful member of the church, bearing a strong testimony to the truth of the gospel. For the last two years she suffered much, but her end was a sleep. Surviving are her husband, ten children, a sister, and a grandmother who is eighty-two years of age. Elder Thomas Jones had charge of the funeral and Elder Richard Hawkins preached the sermon at the home, assisted by Elder Frank Dippel. Interment was in Washburn Cemetery.

SHEPPARD.—George W. Sheppard was born in Brooklyn, New York, January 11, 1849. He passed from this life at the home of his son in Comstock, Nebraska, September 6, 1931. For a period of twenty-nine years the deceased made his home in Brooklyn. He served his country in the Civil War both in the Army and the Navy; he also saw service in the Mexican campaign. From Brooklyn he moved to West Point, New York, where he was married to Miss Elizabeth Brinley, fifty-two years ago. To them were born five children, all of whom are living: Mrs. William Woodley, of Dumont, Iowa; William G. Sheppard, of Hempstead, New York; Leslie H. Sheppard, of Comstock, Nebraska; Roy D. Sheppard, of New Raymer, Colorado, and Benjamin L. Sheppard, Comstock, Nebraska. There are also twenty-seven grandchildren and four great-grandchildren. In the year 1896 he and his wife united with the church, being baptized east of what is now the town of Comstock, Nebraska. The funeral service was held in the Comstock, Nebraska, Methodist Church. The sermon was by E. B. Hull, assisted by the Reverend W. S. Morris. Interment was in Comstock, Nebraska, Cemetery.

that we in this day should show forth the praises of him who hath called us out of darkness into his marvelous light. The experiences of the conference have caused us to realize as never before, perhaps, that our highest privilege is to be sons and daughters of God, without rebuke, in the midst of a sinful, careless, and confused nation, among whom we are called to shine as lights in the world, holding forth the word of life.

Do you read the church publications?

HERALD

ENSIGN

VISION

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE

Independence, Missouri

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Frederick M. Smith, Editor in Chief.
 Elbert A. Smith, Floyd M. McDowell, Associate Editors.
 Leonard J. Lea, Managing Editor.
 Leta B. Moriarty, Assistant Editor.
 Published for the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.
 Subscription price: By the year, $2.

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE
 INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI

CONTENTS

EDITORIAL:
Principles of the Gospel .....	866
Dignity and Beauty in Ministry .....	867
OFFICIAL:
College Day, October 18 .....	866
ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
The Local Branch as a Missionary Unit .....	869
Weekly Health Letter, by A. W. Teel, M. D. ....	871
Report of the Department of Statistics, by Carroll L. Olson .....	871
Tom King: A Life History, by C. H. Porter .....	872
CHURCH WORK AND SERVICES:
Rally Day and Promotion .....	874
THE GOSPEL FORUM:
The Fall of Man--Was It Necessary? Was It for Good or Evil? by L. W. Newcombe .....	875
The Spirit of God as It Worked With the Lord's People in Bible Times, by George Jenkins .....	878
NEWS OF CHURCH AND HOME .....	880
MISCELLANEOUS .....	887

Wanted

Old L. D. S. Books, Pamphlets, Manuscripts, Old Letters, Newspapers, etc., printed at Palmyra, Kirtland, Far West, Nauvoo, etc.

Messenger and Advocate, Evening and Morning Star, Elders' Journal, The Prophet, The Mormon, Nauvoo Neighbor, Frontier Guardian, N. Y. Messenger, Times and Seasons, Book of Commandments, Book of Mormon (early editions), Early Hymn Books, etc.

In answering, state condition of items and price asked.

Address: Librarian. Pioneer Library.

230 Brooks Arcade. Salt Lake City, Utah.

For Sale

30 ACRES 12 miles from Independence; 4-room house, lots of fruit, stone cave, springs, plenty of timber for fire wood. $3,500.00.

76 ACRES seven miles from Independence; 5-room house, barn, out buildings, pond, black soil 20 feet deep, raise anything, level land.

40 ACRES two miles from Independence. Highly improved. $15,000.00 cash.

DUPLEX—Rents $80.00 month. $7,000.00.

ROOMING HOUSE—12 rooms, $7,000.00.

WATKINS REAL ESTATE

N. W. Corner Square, Independence, Mo.

Tel. 297

For Sale

Place in Nauvoo, Illinois, consisting of four acres, good house, barn, henhouse, etc. One and one-half acres of grapes, block from river, on main road; three blocks from historical grounds. Write for price and other information. D. D. HEADY, Nauvoo, Illinois.

Notice

The Independence Sanitarium and Hospital offers a three-year course in nurses' training to young women who are high school graduates.

For further information write to superintendent, G. E. Copeland, R. N.

For Sale

160 acres good land; fine improvements. Will take city residence or small place, balance terms.

I. A. CHAMBERLAIN

Lamoni, Ia.

Route 2.

BUY AUTO LIABILITY INSURANCE!!

Just ONE accident may cost you more than 10 years' insurance PREMIUMS.

INSURANCE DEPARTMENT OF THE CHURCH

(American Underwriters, Inc.)

Indep. 486

221 W. Lexington St.

NOW IS A GOOD TIME TO CHANGE.

At the mid year Interest date is an advantageous time to shift your Savings Account to a safe conservative institution with a quarter century standing.

We pay 3% on Time and Savings Deposits.
 "Soliciting New Business on Our Record."

JACKSON COUNTY BANK

Independence, Mo.

"Home of Savings"

Buy Your Farms Now

While they are cheap. Any size, best terms. Special attention to readers of the Saints' Herald.

CHAS. R. BOWMAN

Butler, Mo.

THE SAINTS'

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DA

Entered as second-class matter at the post office at Independence, Missouri, under Act of March 3, 1879. Issued weekly at Independence, Missouri. Price $2 a year in advance. Accepted for mailing at the special rate of postage provided for in section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917; authorized July 21, 1921.

Volume 78

Independence, Missouri, September 23, 1931

Number 38

“Jesus came into Galilee, preaching the gospel of the kingdom of God, and saying, The time is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God is at hand: repent ye and believe the gospel.”—Mark 1: 14, 15.

THE WORSHIP OF GOD

By Frederick A. Smith
Presiding Patriarch of the Church

THE BOOK OF MORMON
ANNOUNCING A NEW COURSE OF STUDY

WORD OF WISDOM
“VISION” NAMES THE PRIZE WINNERS

Prepare Now for College Day – October 18

Principles of the Gospel

II. REPENTANCE

Perhaps there is no more difficult problem in all the range of religious experience than the problem of repentance. Repentance requires absolute honesty; it will admit of no deception, not even the self-deception with which conscience is so often lulled to sleep. Repentance requires a measure of ruthlessness in the application of impartial justice. Most difficult of all, the guilty party must pass judgment upon himself, and inflict the penalty of transgression. He is aided in this task by the knowledge that God sees all that he does, and knows all that he thinks.

Repentance, in its true form, involves a changed viewpoint toward one's past actions and experience; that whereas one may previously, while walking in darkness, have regarded his conduct as beyond reproach, he now sees those actions in the light of Christian righteousness and beholds for the first time the flaws and blemishes of his life. A new viewpoint, with new standards and ideals, new goals for attainment are set up. Repentance brings with it a sincere sorrow for past mistakes, a determination to make restitution so far as possible for all sins, and a decision to lead forever after a new way of life.

There is such a thing as false repentance, which is only the sorrow that the malefactor feels when he is caught. It brings with it no change of heart, no reform, without which punishment is vain. This repentance is of a temporary character and lasts only until the person is free to go in the old ways again, hoping that he will be clever enough the next time to escape the consequences of his acts. This is an animal kind of repentance, and means nothing for the development of human character or the improvement of human life.

The work of repentance is probably nowhere better stated than in the language of Paul: "Godly sorrow worketh repentance to salvation not to be repented of: but the sorrow of the world worketh death." (2 Corinthians 7: 10.) Repentance is godly sorrow, leading to salvation which is to have a permanent effect in life. The sorrow of worldly repentance leads to death because it gives the soul no light, causes no regeneration, and lets the individual continue on his way to destruction.

Repentance is the great corrective, the most severe of lessons, perhaps the most important part of one's education. Repentance is absolutely necessary, for without it one's heart is not in a state to take the succeeding steps of spiritual experience.

"Say nothing but repentance unto this generation," are the words of a latter day prophet, indicating the importance of the subject as seen at the time of the founding of the church.

It takes time to teach repentance. Repentance must be continuous. Its corrective action must be applied in remolding character as long as character is in the process of formation and reformation. As long as people develop they will make mistakes, removable only by repentance. The great acts of repentance, of course, are necessary before a person is ready for baptism. But no one can pretend to the state of perfection which makes continuous repentance unnecessary.

"Repent ye: for the kingdom of heaven is at hand. . . . Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make his paths straight," said John the Baptist, in anticipation of the coming of Jesus.

L. L.

The Harvest Festival Grows

Upon one occasion, Christ issued the invitation: "Come and offer thy gift." The season of the year reminds us of our opportunity to help. The harvest, in most places, has dealt plentifully with us, and the people wish to give thanks to a generous heavenly Father by giving gifts. The Harvest Home Festival is the channel through which, at this season of the year, our gifts may flow into the laps of the needy.

Were you in Independence today, it would be your privilege to see the Harvest Festival growing. Out of such simple things as pieces of lumber, pots of paint, rolls of paper, it is fast taking form under the hands of artisans and helpers. Already fruits and vegetables are being brought in. The Saints are building, and new settings and enlarged space assignments for local organizations point to a much larger festival than ever before.

Representatives of stakes, districts, congregations, clubs, and other organizations, cooperating with Elder C. C. Koehler, in charge of the agricultural exhibits, are hard at work. Plans are drawn up and discussed, materials brought in, and soon a group is occupied with hammer and saw. In another part of the assembly room people are stringing up strips of green and white crepe paper. In another booth the sky is being raised. All are busy.

Shipments of festival gifts are being received almost daily. Several containers of goods have arrived from Iowa. Products have come from Hawaii, a large honey shipment from Douglas, Wyoming, maple syrup and sugar from Maine. Calls for space come in daily. This week one club earnestly requested space for "one hundred more bushels of apples and pears." New industrial exhibits will be seen in the upper room of the Auditorium along with the most of those of last year.

Special attractions of the thirteenth annual Harvest Home Festival will be the Baby Show, fruit, vegetables, and baked goods contests, the Flower Show, an educational exhibit by the Mid-West Wool Marketing Association which was a part of the Missouri State Fair, and booths of such new organizations as the "Sunny South Club," "California Club," and the "Three-I Club." The blue ribbon prize winning exhibit of William Chrisman High School of Independence (State Fair, 1931,) will be on display.

The Stone Church occupies the place of honor this year, the stage in the north end of the lower room, and is working out a unique plan. Its display is flanked on either side by booths belonging to the Boy Scouts and the Girl Scouts.

Happily the Saints are giving their gifts in very presentable form. As they work, their plans grow. Their enthusiasm is high, and they plan to be ready for the festival opening, October 6.

L. B. M..

President Smith's Return

Returning from a period of recuperation in the east, stopping to speak for reunions and branch congregations on the way, and for visits with friends, President Frederick M. Smith has at last arrived at home, ready to resume the work of his office. Doctor Charles F. Grabske, the Assistant Church Physician, who ordered the period of recuperation, is said to be pleased with the result, and it is hoped in official circles that President Smith may, with proper care, continue in his improved state of health.

President Smith returns to face an accumulation of heavy work. Due to the steady efforts and loyal devotion to duty of President MacDowell, the routine of the office has been kept going, but there is much to be done.

A word of caution will appeal to those who have a genuine regard for the health and welfare of our President. They will not bother him with trivial matters, for they know that the burdens are heavy and that human energy has a limit. Loyalty and consideration at this time will do much to make his tasks easier and to preserve his strength for important work. Some people, as always, will be selfish and inconsiderate, but we hope that they will be few in number.

Meanwhile, the official family rejoices to have President Smith at home once again.

L. L.

Joint Council in Session

The congregations of Independence were made glad by the presence of old friends who are members of the Joint Council, called in from distant fields of labor. The Joint Council started its meetings Monday, and will continue for several days at least. Meanwhile the spell of record-breaking September heat has been broken, and the weather of Independence and vicinity has been moderated, as a favor, perhaps, to our visitors. Though no official announcements have been made, it is known that the body is considering matters of importance to the general work of the church.

Basket Converts

A stake president told us recently that he expects a "large crop of basket converts this fall." Times are hard, and many people will be out of work. What is a basket convert? A basket convert is one who joins the church with the hope of being helped or perhaps entirely supported through the winter when it is uncomfortable to work. Such people have no actual interest in the church, and quit attending the moment that financial support ceases.

Our friend described such a family of people. There was the father, two grown sons, and a young child. The mother was dead. All through the summer each man had managed to average about one day of work a week. They were not especially keen in hunting it. One fact betrayed their character: they had a large back yard, and adjoining their home were several vacant lots of good soil where they could have planted gardens and raised a great deal of food to help them through the winter. The men were in good health, but in all their days of idleness they never once scratched the ground to plant a garden. They have already applied for help for the coming winter. They were helped during the last winter. How do they deserve to be treated now?

The trouble has been that some ministers have gone out to convert just such a class of people, attracting them with promises that the church would help them.

It is the purpose of the church to bring men to a knowledge of the gospel, to change their ideals, to regenerate them. But this purpose is entirely frustrated when loafers are supported in idleness, and professional parasites are accepted on an insincere confession of faith. Instead of becoming self-respecting men they become conscienceless grafters.

The church has many members who have faithfully given the church financial support for years, and who have demonstrated good faith by regular attendance, who will, unfortunately, be out of employment during the coming winter. These people will be in need, but they will be very slow to ask for help and reluctant to accept it. But they ought to have it to prevent the actual suffering that may result without it. They have been worthy, and they are now worthy. To them the church owes a duty—a first duty. There will be more of them, probably, than the church can provide with adequate help.

In contrast with these people who are slow to ask help, will be the usual group of chronic whiners, the importunate pleaders with their woeful stories. They are very easy to convert when a basket of food and a ton of coal are in sight. In fact, they will be so ardent that it will be difficult to avoid converting some of them. They will obey the gospel—until sometime about the middle of next March.

Another family was found who had not only joined the church to get help; they had also joined the Catholic Church and were receiving help from it too. And they pulling the strings to get help from other charities as well. And, when they felt that their cause was slipping, they were able to put up a good, high-powered testimony in prayer meeting. But they had gone a little too far.

These things should make us careful, but not cynical.

Every able man ought to be self-supporting. Every family ought to be economically independent. Those who fall into misfortune ought to do everything possible to help themselves before they get help from others. It is not a part of the church program to make the industrious support the idle. After all, the church is for workers, not slackers. It would be a cause for happiness if we should have the money to support the worthy poor of all the world. But we will be fortunate if we have enough to give proper care to our own.

The indigent, the idle, the lazy, are always looking for places and opportunities to get free food, free rent, free everything. They would be perfectly satisfied in a time of plenty to let others do the work of supporting them. They have no self-respect, no ambition. They are not averse to a little hypocrisy in pretending conversion if doing so will make it possible for them to live easily.

L. L.

I have come to have very profound and deep-rooted doubts where Science, as practiced at present by the human race, will ever do anything to make the world a better and happier place to live in, or will ever stop contributing to our general misery as whole-heartedly as it has been doing for these last umtedee years.—Hendrik Van Loon.

Dignity and Beauty in Ministry

By Elbert A. Smith

XII.—DIGNITY AND BEAUTY FROM WITHIN

Dignity and beauty are characteristics of the soul. They are not to be put on from the outside. They represent what the man is. Fortunately we have certain choices concerning what we shall be. We may "grow in grace." The attitudes that one assumes toward himself, his brethren, and his God will awake or mar his ministry.

Attitude Toward One's Self

A minister must be conscious of being right with himself, his fellows, and his God. That is righteousness. A man who is wrong and feels wrong in his attitudes can not minister in the true spirit of his office and calling. "It makes a great difference in the force of a sermon whether a man be behind it or no." (Emerson.)

No minister who is proud and lifted up in his own mind, who is "big headed," can carry on a creditable ministry. "No one can assist in this work except he shall be humble and full of love, having faith, hope, and charity." Pride of self, pride in one's pulpit ability or personal appearance, is fatal.

On the other hand, self-depreciation may be almost as fatal. An "inferiority complex" may ride its victim into obscurity. Some of our men have lost out entirely, others have been handicapped in their work by reason of a habit of always doubting and depreciating their own ability to do the things that were well within their powers.

What do you say to yourself? That is a pertinent question. Do you talk failure to yourself all the time? Do you say, I cannot do that task? Do you think of yourself as a poor sort of stick at best?

True humility is quite consistent with a clear and fair estimate of one's own powers and abilities. "Know thyself," is a commandment very pertinent to the ministry. Correctly estimate your own powers as a preacher, executive, and so on, and then work diligently to grow into the full exercise of those powers. Grow by service as well as study and prayer.

Above all one must have a sense of being right with himself. He must live up to his own higher ideals and he must use his powers to their fullness in the work to which he is consecrated. Otherwise in some form or other slothfulness and blemishes will appear in his ministry to mar its beauty. "To thine own self be true," is a wise admonition from the pen of the bard of Avon: "This above all: To thine own self be true, and it must follow, as the night the day, thou canst not then be false to any man."

Attitude Toward Others

The minister who is in any way jealous of the success of his fellow ministers is taking one of the short cuts to ruin in his own ministry. He can not preserve dignity or beauty in his work with the petty and mean spirit of jealousy gnawing at his heart. Inevitably it will show its own characteristics of pettiness and meanness in his conversation and actions.

The minister who rejoices in the success of his fellows and is happy when they are honored can cultivate a serenity of spirit that will sweeten his ministry. And why not? When a fellow minister is honored, the church is honored. When a fellow minister is able and successful, the whole church is benefited. I am a part of the church and draw dividends on the success and honor of my brethren: The work that I am interested in is advanced and that is what I desire. Kindness, good will, and justice make for success in this ministry.

The minister must have the right attitude toward the membership of the church. One vital dynamic in his ministry to them must be a genuine love for them. The man who feels exalted, who thinks that his lofty intellect is wasted upon the masses, whose sermons are in his own judgment above the heads of the people, and who finds it beneath his dignity to preach so that he can be understood, will not have a dignified and beautiful ministry. He will simply be ridiculous. His Master felt no such reservations.

The man who is interested mainly in the praise of the people, or in their donations, also is in a precarious position. The basis of service in the ministry must be a very real love for and interest in humanity. Christ thought so highly of human souls that he left the courts of glory to come and administer to their needs. All colors, all races, the bond, the free, the ignorant, the learned, the rich, the poor, all were within the scope of his interest and his mission. Those who have with them his spirit will share the dignity and beauty of his ministry. Not otherwise may it be shared.

Attitude Toward God

The man who gets right with himself and others is quite apt to be right with God. A very great part of the law is designed to promote fellowship between brethren: "Thou shalt love thy brother as thyself." "Little children, love one another." "Forgive seventy times seven." "If thou bring thy gift to the altar, and there rememberest that thy brother hast aught against thee; leave there thy gift before the altar, and go thy way; first be reconciled to thy brother, and then come and offer thy gift."

Those passages mark the road to the presence of God. A conscience free of offense toward self and others leaves us free to approach the throne of grace and ask for assistance. And such good conscience and sense of being right permeates a man's entire ministry so that he may face life nobly and death with serenity.

On the road to Carthage Joseph Smith said: "I am going like a lamb to the slaughter; but I am calm as the summer's morn; I have a conscience void of offense toward God and toward all men." From Carthage, just before his assassination, he wrote to his wife: "I am very much resigned to my lot, knowing that I am justified and that I have done the best that could be done." Whatever errors of judgment he may have made, he had acted in good faith and to the best of his ability. His conscience was free of offense toward God and man and he was calm and serene in the face of death.

A greater example is found in the person of our Master, who just before his crucifixion declared, "The Prince of this world cometh but he hath nothing in me." Satan searched him in vain for something upon which he could lay claim, but the consecration had been complete; there were no reservations. Christ had remained true to his own calling and convictions. He had established right relations with his fellow men. He had maintained right relations with God. He was a righteous man. As a result he was filled with grace and power. He was anointed above his fellows. His ministry remains the marvel of the ages, and in all things is the pattern after which we are to shape our lives and ministry.

(Concluded.)

(Editorial continued on page 910.)

Look Pleasant

We can not, of course, all be handsome,
And it's hard for us all to be good,
We are sure, now and then, to be lonely,
And we don't always do as we should.
To be patient is not always easy,
To be cheerful is much harder still,
But at least we can always be pleasant
If we make up our minds that we will.

And it pays every time to be kindly
Although you feel worried and blue
If you smile at the world and look cheerful
The world will soon smile back at you.
So try to brace up and look pleasant,
No matter how long you are down.
Good humor is always contagious;
You banish your friends when you frown.

—The Sunday School Herald.

The Worship of God

(Sermon preached by Frederick A. Smith at the Union Street Church, Independence, Missouri, July 12, 1931.)

I have chosen a topic tonight that is probably as old as, I was going to say as old as the hills, and I would be right in this. We are ever prone to talk about worshiping God, and sometimes I wonder if we realize, fully sense or grasp, what we mean when we say "worshiping God." I read here in the 4th chapter of John's gospel, beginning with the 22nd verse:

Ye worship ye know not what: we know what we worship: for salvation is of the Jews. But the hour cometh, and now is, when the true worshipers shall worship the Father in spirit and in truth: for the Father seeketh such to worship him. God is a Spirit: and they that worship him must worship him in spirit and in truth.

Now he not only spoke of the principle of worship, but he expressed the thought, in talking to this woman at the well, that she worshiped she knew not what. If that was true she did not have an intelligent worship, for I am sure there is not one of us if we took the definition of the word worship in its fullest sense could intelligently worship what we did not know anything about.

Worship Is Universal

Another expression that he makes is "we know what we worship, for salvation is of the Jews." The difference is one of knowledge and ignorance. Every nation of people in some form or manner has some form of worship. We have heard individuals make the expression they did not have to worship God and they did not worship him, and that they did not worship anybody or anything, but if you would take the pains to watch very carefully you would discover these individuals were rendering a kind of worship just the same. It might be an extraordinarily fine baseball player, a prize fighter, a politician, or an orator whom they considered exceptionally fine and just a little better and a little higher in their estimation than anybody else. In this condition you will find worship in the world today. It is true there are different forms and ideas of worship, some of them ridiculous in their make up, others serious, and some even tragic. The principle of worship is one that moves even in the savage nations and among those people who do not know the gospel as we know it, yet they have a form of worship for deity in some shape or form, to whom they render homage and give praise hoping for benefit coming as a consequence of their praying.

"In Spirit and in Truth"

"Ye must worship him in spirit and in truth." Many of them have the spirit of worship, but do they worship him in truth? Right here a definition of truth may be acceptable. The Psalmist says in his writings, "Thy law is truth. Thy commandments are truth." Christ himself in that wonderful prayer recorded by John, in which he asked the Lord to bless his disciples, gives the definition "thy word is truth." Note that. The definition given by Christ gives us to understand that the true form of worship so far as God himself explains it, is that the true worshiper must worship him according to his law and his commandments. If it is not according to that it necessarily can not be in truth and will of necessity fail.

"Thou Shalt Not Bow Down to Any Image"

Now let us look for a moment at some of the forms. We go into an eastern country and ask the question when we arrive there, "What form of worship do you have?" and we are answered, "Yes, we have worship." "Well, what is the nature of it?" and they take you down to their temple. Possibly when you enter the temple the smell of the incense will be exceedingly strong, and the light dim; but after you have accustomed your eye to it and you look around you will see a form of worship, and as you notice the people come in they prostrate themselves to the earth and make their prayer to their deity. But what is their deity? You look up and you discover in front of you a great idol, and your thoughts turn to the statement of God, "thou shalt not bow down to any image of wood or stone or anything of the kind." And you discover at once you are face to face with an opposition to the word of God. Can it be in truth? You stand watching and you see them come in and as you look at that idol you find the hands outstretched in front and closed up between, and you wonder at this, but you notice as they come they will offer their prayers and then drop their offering or sacrifice into this place between the hands and it disappears. Finally we see a mother with a little baby in her arms, she prostrates herself upon the earth, she goes through her supplications and prayers with all the sincerity and earnestness that anyone could, and then she rises and she hugs that little one to her, plants upon it a mother's passionate kiss and then drops it into this receptacle, into the hands of this great idol, and turns with streaming eyes and leaves the place. You make a little further inquiry and you discover that inside of this idol is a roaring furnace of fire, and the little one has been offered as a sacrifice to appease the wrath of their God, to bring the favor of God unto them. And you say that can not be in truth. Why not? It is contrary to everything God has given, is it not? Surely.

Terrible Forms of Worship

We move from this place and we come to another one. We make inquiry here, as to their religion. Yes, they have it, and we wonder about it for they do not give us any more information than to say they have religion, and if we wait until such a day which is a fete day, we will be able to see them worship. We wait until the time comes and then our guide takes us out and gets us a place where we can see the street for a long distance. The people begin to gather around the street, and after a while we hear shouts and singing and we look down the street and see coming over a little incline a huge car and on top of it there sits the form of a man, and we wonder about it and notice that that car is tipping and rocking as it comes along that smooth street and we ask ourselves the question, what is the cause of this, and as it comes within reach we discover some of these worshippers are casting themselves in front of this car and this huge thing is drawn over them and crushing them, they are offering themselves as a sacrifice to appease the wrath of their God, and we turn away sickened at the sight and we say "that is not of God. It is not in truth." But there is a worship there, is there not? But you say, not an intelligent devotion. No, possibly not, and God evidently wants an intelligent worship. He does not want fanaticism, he does not want anything that merges toward that, but he does want a service that can be rendered in an intelligent and acceptable manner.

But we will pass on. We come to another place, and here we see no temple. We see no juggernaut, and we ask what their worship is, and they tell us at a certain time we shall see. They take us out at sunrise, down to the side of a river, sluggish, muddy, dirty, and we wonder why our guide has taken us there and we question him and he says, "Be patient, you will see." And soon the people gather in throngs and then we see the priest coming with his robes on and everything ready. He makes his prayer and supplications and then they bring forward a poor victim, and as they bring this human being to the priest he goes through an incantation or form of prayer and blessing and then he is cast into the river and immediately he is drawn into the depths by the alligators as they lurk there, and I ask the guide why that kind of work is done and he says that is the service—this river is sacred and these alligators are sacred. Their worship is the river; it is a big thing, it overflows every year and makes rich the soil and the possibility of a yield that nothing else could, and so they offer their sacrifice to it. Is that the truth? and you say no. But it is a form of worship just the same.

I go further down and as we reach another part of the country we find a different class of people altogether. Do they have a form of worship here? Oh, yes. And when it comes time for the service imagine our surprise, imagine our feelings when we discover all the people bowing down and rendering service and making supplication and shouting and singing all to a white cow, sleek and fat, combed and cared for in fine shape, but a white cow just the same. Ridiculous, you say? Yes, they worship it, and you must not laugh, for they do not laugh, and you dare not, it is so sacred that they would have you put to death if you made the least sign of lightness or anything of that character. Are they serious? Yes. Devout? Yes. But my friends, you discover we have stepped from one point to another—the ridiculous and sublime are placed before us in the same time.

But I am going to move from that point to a special part of our own land, and as we go into that part of our continent we find some very peculiar things, they erect pyramids very similar to the pyramids of Egypt, generally situated in a narrow valley. On the top of a pyramid they have an altar. Our guide takes us to the top of a high hill and as the daylight begins to make its appearance the people gather in throngs at the base of this pyramid, all ready for the signal for worship, and as the priest comes out upon the top with his robes and everything ready he gives the signal, he offers prayer, and then as the light grows stronger we discover that the altar is a huge stone rounding on the top with rings in each corner, and there upon that stone bending back on it with each hand tied to a ring, and each foot tied to a ring at the other end, lies a human being, and as that sun rises and the first rays light that altar a terrible knife flashes through the air and the victim's heart is taken and held throbbing and beating in the sunlight as the first beams come upon it, a human sacrifice. We turn sickened away. Such was the religion anciently practiced on this continent. Whom did they worship? What was their deity, and you answer, The sun. The greatest thing they knew in the world. Was it in truth? No. We can not accept that.

Then go to the savages of our own land and see them cut themselves with knives, hang themselves by ropes put through the flesh where they have cut it in and then tied it into these places, and hang by it until it festers and they drop out. All is a form of worship, to bring to their warriors success, to bring to their hunters success, that they may have food, to appease their god as they express it. Sincerity and devotion may be made manifest that way possibly, but would it be satisfactory to you? No. Would it be an intelligent worship? If we let God tell his own story, if we listen to what he has given to us it is absolutely contrary to all that he has asked at the hands of humanity and can not be acceptable for it is not in truth, although the spirit of worship may be there.

Now I am going to take you to another class, and as I take you to that class somebody says, "Well, what about them?" Turn to the fifteenth chapter of Matthew and you discover the Savior attacking the scribes and Pharisees, charged them with "teaching for doctrines the commandments of men," and told them, "Thus have ye made the commandment of God of none effect by your tradition."

Now then you look at it from that standpoint—and these were the people that rejected God after he had revealed himself to them he had given to them his law and instructions, but they had departed from that, and though their form of worship may have been just as beautiful and possibly more elaborate in form than that he had required at their hands, yet because of their traditions they had made their service to God of no effect, they worshiped him in vain. Then the service was not acceptable, for it was not an intelligent service, but partook of the nature of fanaticism and the ideas of man instead of the principles which Christ himself had given.

The Test Applied to Our Own Time

Let us look at our own situation. Look at the land in which we dwell for a season and see. We have churches all around us everywhere, and we discover there are honest conscientious people in them—good people—and they worship God. They look to him as being the great giver of every good gift, as the creator of every good thing, as the ideal of perfection, as the one being in all the universe that has been able successfully to manifest perfection in all of its attributes, and consequently they worship him because he appeals to their love of virtue, righteousness, greatness, and power that manifests itself and makes men respect him. And yet, what have they done? They have made the commandments of God of no effect. How about the traditions of man? For instance, they tell you baptism is not necessary. They recognize laying on of hands for ordination and cut out all the rest of it as if it were of no value for anything else. I might go on and outline to you many other things of this description, but you have before you the same thing now. You have judged all these others by the law and you have said they were out of harmony with the command, the law and the word of God; consequently their worship was not acceptable.

Let us come right down to our own selves. We have a perfect right, if we are going to judge them, to judge ourselves by that same law. Have we recognized in the fullest sense the things that God has given? When we looked upon God with that intelligent conception of what he is, have we seen in him our ideal of perfection? Have we witnessed in him a manifestation of power such as nowhere else is to be found? Have we even been able to go to him with the consciousness that he is able to answer our petition and grant to us what no one else could do? Have we been able to do that? Do we do it? Or have we set up our own ideals and put ourselves in a position where we are professing to judge and say what that worship shall be and say how we are going to worship him, and say whether we will do this or that or the other? If we have, we are just as much out of harmony as the other people.

God's Wisdom and Man's Folly

Now I think sometimes that is precisely what we have done, to a large extent it has been done, and I just want to call your attention to a little thought now in a St. Louis paper. In it I found a thing that struck me very forcibly. A minister of the Episcopal church used as his text, "The foolishness of God is wiser than men: and the weakness of God is stronger than men." The speaker was Doctor Karl Morgan Block. He says:

Weakness is superior to strength and folly is triumphant over wisdom—that is a dangerous thesis to endeavor to maintain, yet upon the consciousness of the truth of this paradox St. Paul was willing to stake his life. He had no hesitancy in assuming the character of a fool. It was a strange sermon for the Corinthian congregation, because the Greeks placed an excessive amount of stress on the importance of wisdom, and St. Paul recommended folly. How could the story of a crucified felon capture the intellect of the Greeks? Their love of gayety recoiled from the idea of suffering: their sense of beauty was agast at the forlorn scene on Calvary.

He gives a very fine thought here. The Greeks who loved wisdom and made that their great theme, almost worshiping it, they who loved the idea of beauty and made things around them beautiful, considered the ideas of a Christ folly, could not harmonize their philosophy with the things that Christ had advocated or the things that the Apostle Paul had taught; but the Apostle Paul had been converted, brought down in the dust, and had been able to see the greatness of God, the marvelous power of the Christ, and he had been able to recognize in the beauty that Christ gave to the world, the importance of principle of salvation and redemption; is a part of his policy, and he was able to grasp the magnitude of it and the beauty of it, and it appealed to him, and yet he was a man of letters, a man of wisdom.

Doctor Block goes on and says:

We, too, have come to look upon the Christian faith from the philosophical point of view, and we are demanding that is square absolutely with our intellectual predispositions and predilections. So the gospel of Christ frequently impresses the modern mind as both folly and weakness, because it does not submit itself comfortably to our intellectual processes and demands.

Did you ever stop to think that that is what we do? But he has told you the truth, he has unfolded for you the working of many of the minds in the world today, and that is why we have the condition that we do all around us.

The religion of Jesus Christ will always be folly to the attitude of the worldly wise. God can never be found by logic. The mind alone can not perceive him: the heart and the will must enter. There is a gap between logic and God, and that gap is bridged by faith. It is not possible for the Christian religion to give the answer in express terms to every question man may try to solve.

Now you have before you the statement and he has given a good one. It is not possible from the human standpoint absolutely for the religion of Jesus Christ to give you a satisfactory answer to every problem that arises. It cannot be done. Why? Because our predilections, our surroundings, our environment, our educational influences dispose us to let the material things of the world be more important to us than the spiritual laws that Christ has asked us to keep. That is the situation that confronts us, and will continue to confront us until we come down into the depths now and grow into spiritual life again. That is the thing we need, and we have to have it again.

The modern world in its own way will always insist upon its own wisdom, its own intellectual gifts. But what do we know? We have only scratched the surface. It is so easy for one to depend upon forces that are material: it is so easy to rationalize the truth of the gospel because it seems to be beyond one's own experience. The whole story of Christianity is a story of folly, from a purely intellectual point of view. The history of mankind is filled with stories of fools.

The Promise of Knowledge

I wish to call your attention to a few thoughts Christ has given to us in connection with this. In John (17: 1-3) we are told that to know God and Jesus Christ is "life eternal." To know that we may know God is life eternal. That presents to us a religion of knowledge, not ignorance. The service that we render, the worship we give shall be based upon actual knowledge and given intelligently and comprehensively. To make that a little stronger I will quote (John 7: 17) where he makes the declaration: "If any man will to do his will, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God, or whether I speak of myself." Does it mean anything to us? There is a knowledge given, there is an unfolding of the situation, that the service of God, that the worship he asked us to render to him shall not be based on fanaticism or ignorance, but based upon a knowledge that we are worshiping the true God. That is the thing we want to know, that is the thing we must know if we are going to worship God acceptably.

He says, "If any man will do his will he shall know." Does that apply to us? Does it reach down to us today? Does it give to us an opportunity of reaching a point where we no longer hang between the philosophy of the world and the ideas that present themselves there, but we reach out and lay hold of the divine and through the influences of the divine we are brought into such close touch with God that we are able to comprehend him? Our intellects must be quickened until we transcend the limitations of man and go into the divine and there grasp and gather that which is comprehensive enough to bring to humanity the knowledge that we need that we may walk uprightly and know God. That is the beauty of the whole thing, and as you look at it you will see something of the nature of what God has given.

In the Image of God

I go back to the very beginning and I discover in the creation of mankind, God said, "Let us make man in our image." Yes, in the image of God. I want to ask you friends, how far does that creative power in the image of God go? Just in the shape and form of our bodies? Is that all? All you have to do is read a little further and you discover he makes us like God, he gives us the intellect, he gives us the right and power to use it, and then he says "I give unto you dominion?" I want to know if it doesn't reach right out until we become like God. Creation provides for that very thing, and all the way through his gospel is that peculiar provision made in his word everywhere, that his children shall have the right to worship him, not blindly, ignorantly, foolishly, but wisely, intelligently, and I may say spiritually in the sense in which he asks them to worship him. That kind of worship must of necessity partake of the divine and that must lead the human being to a higher plane and make him sense more keenly his responsibility to God, make him sense more keenly his responsibility to his fellowmen, make him sense more thoroughly in his consideration of the things around him the responsibility that must necessarily come to him if he ever expects to reach the heights that God desires him to reach. For I am frank to make the statement to you that I do not believe we have reached it, in our human state I do not believe we will be able to reach it, until under the divine law there must come to us that lifting process of God that shall enable us to partake of the divine until we are like him, as God says, we should be perfect even as God is perfect—perfect in our sphere as God is perfect in his sphere, and that essentially means that we shall perfect ourselves along the line that God has planned for us.

"They Shall See God"

People say no one ever saw God. Where do they get that idea? The Bible is full of the evidences that different individuals did see God, and they described him, and yet the world says they haven't seen him and consequently men come to the conclusion that because they have seen no material form that no one has seen God, and their philosophy leads us to that conclusion. But, my friends, when we begin to look around us we realize he has made provision for that, so his own people shall have an opportunity and shall be able to see the things of God. Take Section 67: 3 of the Doctrine and Covenants and you will find a little statement, "They shall see God and know that I am." Who? The followers of Jesus Christ. When? When they worship him in spirit and truth, when they bring themselves to that position where they will recognize God as being wiser in his foolishness than man is in his wisdom, when they reach the position where they listen to the admonition of God in which he makes that declaration, unto such is promised his spirit and they that worship him must worship him—in spirit and truth. What is his spirit going to do? Turn to 1 Corinthians and there in the second chapter read and discover the thought. Apostle Paul makes the thought clear, "Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither hath it entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him. . . . For the spirit searcheth all things, yea, the deep things of God." There you have the thought, and he emphasizes it by making the declaration and "what man knoweth the things of man, save the spirit of man which is in him? even so the things of God knoweth no man, but the spirit of God."

My friends, this brings us forcibly to the thought, God made provision that we might receive the very thing that would enable us to know God and consequently offer to him an intelligent worship, an intelligent service that shall be based wholly upon the recognition that God is, that he lives, that he has power, that he is the truth, and that he is willing to hear and answer the appeals of his children. Are we directing our worship along these lines or are we running blind? Then I want to look at one other passage in Section 94: 4 of the Doctrine and Covenants. If you read that carefully you will discover he is talking about the temple, and he says when that temple is built if you do not allow anything unholy to come into it, all the pure in heart that come into that temple shall see God. Understand that thought, there is the provision given. No longer ignorance, no longer doubt and suspicion, but the recognition of the fact that when we have brought ourselves to that attitude he has asked us to reach and put ourselves in harmony with his commandments and worship him in spirit and in truth, there is open for us a possibility that we shall see God. Knowledge, my friends. And as you look at that you can see what a wonderful provision he has made, what a marvelous outline of thought and care in behalf of humanity. We must not lose sight of these things and give up to the wisdom of the world and the ideas of man and the traditions that may be handed down. You see the danger that lies before us there. If we do lose sight of them as we do we will be exactly like as the others who have preceded us who have done that thing. They lost their touch with God, they lost the light and wisdom that otherwise they ought to have had, they ceased to worship him in spirit and truth. And let me ask you to recognize the thought that worship means devotion. Devotion means love, that love of God, that love of right, that love of truth that shall permeate our being until we are willing to lay down our very life as a sacrifice in the interests of it if it is necessary to do so.

Now, my friends, look at it frankly and you will see something of what it means, and where are we today? What is the condition of the world and what is our own condition so far as that is concerned? God has said over and over again, "I am God, I change not." We have before us the consciousness that God has given to us the recognition and placed before us the consciousness that we are intelligent and he expects us to worship him with an intelligent worship, an intelligent devotion. He does not ask for a fanatical one, and I am glad he doesn't.

I picked out a statement here I am going to read, the heading is "Need for Real Religion." This is from Bernard Iddings Bell in the Atlantic Monthly:

Contemplation of the end toward which mankind is struggling is what the world need now, as it has always needed it. It is in this contemplation that religion consists, religion which we must have if life is to regain its dignity.

It must, of course, be real religion, not a socially conventionalized substitute, of the sort ascribed to the heroine of a late popular novel, of whom it is written, "She had no religion beyond a sufficient initiation into its ceremonies to permit attendance on them, on social occasions, without a faux pas. Religion is to a human being either the most serious and vital of human activities or worse than nothing. Our religion must be emancipated from social humbuggery, with all its apparatus of dress clothes and rented pews and sycophantic parsons and patronizing persons. Ours must be a mystical and sacramental religion, wherein and whereby you and I and our children may lift our hearts in self-freed adoration toward that perfection which we long to embrace; religion wherein and whereby we may forget food and drink and clothes and motors and worldly positions and organized amusements and clever trickiness of speech, and all the rest

Weekly Health Letter

Number Twelve

The Nose and Its Relation to Health and Disease.—10

By A. W. Teel, M. D., Church Physician

Those who have a pain or headache located over the eye and on one side of the head, distress coming on sometime in the morning hours, or the latter part of the night and lasting until about noon, should consult a competent physician and see if they are having an attack of frontal-sinuitis. These symptoms quite often will be kept up intermittently, from time to time for several weeks. The eyes are sensitive to light, with accompanied tenderness under the eye-brows. There may, or may not be, a discharge from the nose. It is possible that the patient may get well and not have any treatment whatsoever. On the other hand, there may be a low-grade of inflammation left behind, which becomes chronic. Repeated attacks of this infection may be cured, if taken in time, by proper treatment. It indicates some abnormal condition in the nose. This abnormality has been mentioned a number of times in previous articles. If the antrum or maxillary sinus is acutely infected, the pain or distress is decidedly worse when the patient stoops over, or bends the head forward. And when in the upright posture, there is often pain in the face, on the side of the nostril. In many cases, the pain may extend up and of the animal palavering which owns and hampers us—none of which satisfies us, most of which stifles us, and feed in our hearts on Him who—cynics to the contrary notwithstanding—is all that we long to be.

---

He has put it in nice form there, he has struck the keynote, he has opened wide the door of that we want, a real religion that will develop within us that spirit of love, that spirit of—I am going to say imitation, for we want to use it—wherein we may imitate God. Strive to become like him until our very life may reflect the truth, the wisdom, the love, the service that he gave to the human race, that will reflect the perfection of character that shall make us worthy and fit to enter into the presence of our God.

Can we worship him like that? Will our religion take us that far? I say yes, if we get down on our knees, put away our follies and listen to the wisdom of God, the advice and counsel that he has given, and come down to the real service and worship of God. We can reach that condition. May God help us to that end, is my prayer.

above the eye. This is when the swelling has become so extensive that it has closed the normal opening of the sinus.

Here, apparently is a mistake of nature, for the opening being higher up than the cavity of this sinus, makes it more difficult to empty itself. The surgeon, quite often, finds it necessary to make a lower opening to wash out the pus and give it the proper ventilation. Many cases of asthma have been relieved by cleansing out one, or both, of these sinuses.

A diseased root of a tooth, located beneath the floor of the maxillary sinus, may be the cause of the infection. It is believed, by some, that nearly one-half of all the diseases of the sinuses have their origin in diseased teeth, while the others may be due, chiefly, to disease of the nose or some anatomical defects.

Situated away up in the recesses of the skull are small cavities, or spaces, which are called ethmoid cells. When they become inflamed, it is called ethmoiditis. While this condition may occur in adults, it is a very common condition among children, especially those who cough a great deal and who have considerable secretion in the nose and throat. The cause for the inflammation of the ethmoid sinuses is exactly the same as that of the other sinuses. Quite often, this is preceded by a deep-seated headache which has a tendency to locate between the eyes or on top of the head. There may, or may not, be pain. Fortunately, nearly every case can be cured if taken in time, provided there is no bony malformation of the nose.

The cough, which is quite persistent, usually comes when the patient lies down at night, or when he gets up in the morning. It is believed, by many, that diseased tonsils and adenoids serve to keep up an active inflammation of this, or the other sinuses.

If the disease becomes chronic, polypus are likely to spring from them, causing a more or less complete occlusion of the nasal airways, and an asthmatic condition. If the eyes become inflamed, it is an indication that the case is quite serious and that it is likely to extend to one or both eyes, causing total blindness, or serious brain complications.

---

All of the finest things we have today were discovered, fashioned or conceived by those who kept constantly in sight the motto, "I may be wrong." If science or art be the highest forms of human activity, it must be admitted that these are occupations in which no man can reach the peaks merely by bulldog determination.—Heywood Brown, in the New York World.

A New "Book of Mormon" Study

An unusual opportunity will be afforded adult students of the church school in the new Book of Mormon Quarterly which will be ready for use the first Sunday in October. For one hundred years we have had the sacred record of ancient America, containing in plain and simple language the fullness of the gospel of Christ, given to us as a people in whom its message should find concrete expression in lives and works of righteousness, and through whom its message of truth and power should go to the world to supplement the testimony of the Bible. But to many Latter Day Saints the Book of Mormon is still a closed book, for its contents are not known and its message is not appreciated.

It seems fitting that we should turn to the Book of Mormon in the present trying times of economic and industrial depression, when the nations of the world are seeking anew for religious and economic fundamentals upon which civilization may securely build. As a church we may return with new vigor to seek light and inspiration in this marvelous record so significantly given as an essential part of the restoration of the gospel in latter days. We appreciate fully the efforts of the past which have given us quarterly lessons, articles and sermons upon the Book of Mormon. It is with the former good work as a background that we must push further our study. It is upon the foundation already laid that we must continue to build.

The new study will appear as a gospel quarterly of the adult series, in four quarters beginning in October, 1931, under the title, The Message of the Book of Mormon.

The first quarter will discuss "The Book and Its Message," with emphasis upon the ever increasing amount of American tradition and archaeological discoveries tending to verify emphatically the claims of the record.

The second quarter will present "The Messages of Men in Book of Mormon Times" in biographical sketches.

The third and fourth quarters will seek to discuss "The Fullness of the Gospel in Faith, Belief and Practice," as contained in the record.

The preparation of the lessons is in the hands of a group of editors who are in a position to bring most vital lessons to adult students. This will be the only new adult quarterly for the coming year and a very large addition is being printed to supply the demand.

The quarterly is being prepared as a source book for adult students. It will contain much valuable information and quotations not otherwise easily available. A copy of this quarterly should be in every home of Latter Day Saints. It will be read with interest, and kept as a valuable reference work in the library. The lessons are too long to be read in class. The value of the lesson will be multiplied many times if the quarterly is read at home, and the class time given to discussion and emphasis placed upon important teachings to be applied in our lives today.

All quarterlies are priced 15 cents each, 50 cents per year, The Herald Publishing House.

Tom King: A Life History

PART TWELVE

By C. H. Porter

(Continued from the Herald of September 16, page 874.)

Ordaining of Ministers

The church of which Tom was a minister was strong in its teaching of a "Called Ministry," and Tom was heartily in accord with the belief. He believed without any reservation whatever, that, "No man taketh this honor unto himself, but he that is called of God, as was Aaron," (Hebrews 5:4) also the instruction to the church in Doctrine and Covenants 17:12. "Every elder, priest, teacher or deacon, is to be ordained according to the gifts and callings of God unto him." Tom never varied, or wavered in his mind, from this central, vital, truth relative to this important matter. In keeping strictly in line with this he sometimes found it necessary to object to the proposed action of his brethren, who were more liberal in the application of the principle than he could in good conscience be.

On one occasion he visited a branch just prior to the convening of conference. While there he learned that the brethren had concluded to present the name of a young man to the conference asking that he be ordained to the office of priest.

He was well acquainted with the young man, and was earnestly desirous to see him become a useful worker in the church but was not satisfied that he was qualified to accept the ordination. He said nothing adverse to the action but listened carefully to what was said in conference relative to the matter.

Before final action was taken he made some remarks and called attention to the fact that in order for any one to be qualified to serve as an officer of the church he must "be ordained according to the gifts and callings of God unto him." He did not doubt the sincerity or honesty of purpose of either the young man or his friends, but felt that he could not endorse the plea for ordination unless the young man could certify that he felt truly called of God to the work, and the gifts were, at least in a measure, manifest to qualify him for the office. The matter was deferred until the next quarterly conference.

At the close of the meeting Tom invited the young man to walk with him, and in conversation urged the necessity of preparing himself for a life of usefulness by study and prayerful meditation upon the duties of the office to which he felt called, so that he might present a life consecrated to useful service to the Master. The young man promised to do this, but before three months had passed he fell into evil practices and his ordination was indefinitely postponed.

On another occasion, while in charge of the work in a certain field, Tom received a letter from the president of a branch stating that it was thought advisable to present the name of a young man of their membership to the coming conference with a recommendation that he be ordained an elder. Tom knew the young man well. He recognized his gifts of personality and oratory, but considered him weak in some things and his spirituality not strong. He liked the candidate and his friends, but felt that it would be a mistake to recommend him to so important an office unless he could truly measure up to the scriptural requirements.

He wrote to the president and told him how he felt regarding the matter, and the branch deferred action.

The next year the work in that district was in charge of another missionary and the young man was ordained to the eldership. The weaknesses in the man's character soon became manifest, and he was brought to trial before an elder's court, placed under official silence, and became lost to the church.

It was not a pleasant duty to find it necessary to urge caution in matters of this kind, and sometimes Tom would gladly have taken the easier course of silence and let the parties have the fruition of their desires without let or hindrance, but conscience forbade.

Official life in the church meant, to Tom, a life of sacrifice and service, and while he was glad to see others willing to accept office he felt that no office is well filled unless its duties are faithfully performed. To him loose or careless work was almost an abomination. He always contended that in the service of God no man is justified in offering other than his best. Conscious of his own imperfections while doing the best of which he was capable, he sometimes met with opposition from his brethren because of the ideal standard that he presented, in contrast with loose methods which sometimes were apparent.

Reunions, etc.

The district in which Tom labored was comparatively large, and the branches and membership were scattered thinly over the territory.

During the twenty-four years of his missionary service about thirteen reunions were held in the district.

He approved the holding of these gatherings for a while, but from experience he decided that they were unprofitable, and while he did not oppose those who favored them, yet he did not actively endorse them. He believed that more good was accomplished, with less expense, by close systematic labor than in any other way.

Some of the brethren thought reunions were of great benefit to the members by bringing them together at least once a year. Tom thought the cost was too great for the good obtained. The cost of travel, the loss of time and the incidental expense totaled a considerable sum. Living in a tent for about two weeks did not appeal to him, nor did the floating element that sometimes gathered there.

Another feature that always militated against good feeling to Tom was that at such gatherings it was usually considered necessary to buy and sell supplies, including ice cream, etc., on Sunday. This seemed to him to be far removed from the Bible teaching. "Remember the sabbath day, to keep it holy." (Exodus 20: 8.) Also from Doctrine and Covenants 59: 3, which says, "And that thou mayest more fully keep thyself unspotted from the world, thou shalt go to the house of prayer and offer up thy sacraments upon my holy day; for verily this is a day appointed unto you to rest from your labors, and to pay thy devotions unto the Most High; . . . And on this day thou shalt do none other thing, only let thy food be prepared with singleness of heart, . . . that thy joy may be full."

He took part in the meetings and did the best he could under the circumstances, but enthusiasm and zeal were lacking. He studied the matter carefully but saw no reason to revise the opinion he formed from the experience gained. It sometimes happened that it was difficult to enjoy the meetings as fully as desired because some of his brethren accused him of being an opposer rather than a supporter of them.

On one such occasion he wrote the following poem:

"I went to camp with heart aglow,
And hoped to be at peace.
I found that things weren't right somehow,
So now I ask of each—

Can we get more than we expend,
In loving Christian care?
Can we the work of God extend,
If we neglect to wear

The robes of righteousness, so fair,
The Saints of God should use?
Ah, no! We surely would not dare,
His bounty to abuse.

If we would spread His kingdom here,
And unto others show,
The holy walk and godly fear,
That others ought to know,

Then we must walk in Wisdom's ways,
In charity and faith;
And then we'll find that all our days,
With sweetest love are graced.

Then God will hear our earnest prayer,
And send us answer true;
Then we will find our hearts are there,
With spirits all aglow.

The hallowed influence of God's love,
Will melt our hearts, and then,
We'll commune with our God above,
And good we'll do to men.

God grant us love, and spirit power,
And Christian unity.
O grant us grace for every hour,
And holy charity.

Then in our meetings we shall show
The Christian love we bear,
And all our burdens here below,
We shall with others share.

Then will these burdens light become,
And we shall feel a joy,
In helping each the other home,
And none the work decry.

Then will our hearts be filled with joy,
And unity will come;
And peace will be without alloy,
And we shall hasten home.

God, bring us home to that dear rest,
And let us ever be,
Content with that which is the best—
Which cometh, Lord, from Thee."

The total number of American lives lost in the World War, from all causes, was 77,118. War is the modern Moloch!

Yet in the eight years following the war, 1919 to 1926, the number of persons killed by automobiles on the highways of America, was 137,017.

The total number of our wounded in the World War, who did not die, was 221,059; a fearful showing.

But those injured by automobiles in eight years numbered 3,500,000; or more than 1,480 per cent more than in the war.

What was it that we used to hear about the Car of Juggernaut, in Darkest India?—North American Review.

Caged Birds

By C. W. Butterworth

One of the most amazing peculiarities of the human race is the wholly inconsistent way they give values to the things with which they are surrounded.

The substance is dropped for the shadow. A lie is believed rather than the truth. The evanescent is pursued while the realities are ignored. Health is ruined to acquire wealth, and then wealth is poured out to regain health.

Power is rated higher than ability. High lights are preferred to daylight. Souls are sold for gold. Virtue is pawned for trash.

Home and peace and all that is worth while are sacrificed for that that will neither nourish, warm, nor clothe the body, while the soul or spirit, that priceless gift, that immortal tablet upon which might be graven some heroic tale, is unvalued, unappreciated, and irretrievably ruined by the worthless scratchings and scriblings of a misspent life.

In the beginning, God created all the souls of the children of men in heaven. Subsequently, the bodies that were to clothe them while they were here upon earth were created from the dust.

The body is but the wrapping, the envelope, the case that protects the soul while in transit. It is but the temporary cage in which the soul lives.

What a sad sight is a caged bird! Poor little thing. His life was designed for open spaces, for blue skies and leafy trees. His body was built for graceful, speedy flight. His only boundaries were those imposed by its own limitations.

Within the confines of his wholly inadequate prison, he lives his restricted existence. For the food he eats, for the water he drinks, he is altogether dependent upon the thoughtfulness of his jailer. He can see no sights, hear no sounds, smell no perfumes, feel no warm sunshine or soft breezes, except as they are provided or made available for him.

And so it is with the soul, except that we do not suggest that the body is necessarily an inadequate cage. Of a certainty, however, the soul can not feel, see, hear, or know except as these things come, almost if not entirely, through bodily channels.

The fleshly body of the new-born Jesus clothed the Christ and obscured the wisdom of Him who made the worlds.

Can you expect your soul to grow if you neglect its nourishment, or feed it upon the worthless husks of life's trivialities? Can you expect it to know God if you frequent the places of the Devil? Can you hope to smell the perfumes of paradise if you live in close proximity to the sulphurous smoke of the pit?

The caged bird—poor little thing! Have you never heard its wings beating against the bars or felt its unutterable yearnings for conditions and things that belong to its remote past?

Your soul looks upward toward whence it came, and you compel it to look downward whither you may go. It can make no development Godward, except as it may be acquired through the physical eyes reading the written word, or the ears hearing the spoken word, or by the body conveying it to the House of the Lord where it may "feed on food divine."

From the same block of stone can be carved a Venus or a shapeless mass. With the same canvass and paints can be created a picture of enduring beauty and worth or meaningless blobs. The same piece of steel can be molded into an anchor to save or a cannon to kill.

The soul, O man, can be developed into a thing of wondrous worth, ultimately fitted to live with its Creator in celestial glory, or it may be debased so that it will be perpetually exiled from him with a gnawing consciousness of its altogether unnecessary loss.

Your soul is an immortal record of your achievements as estimated by the standards of the Great Judge, and the creation of that record is a task entirely your own.

The opportune time to improve it is now. What are you doing about it?

GEEELONG, VICTORIA, AUSTRALIA.

The really happy man never laughs—or seldom—though he may smile. He does not need to laugh, for laughter, like weeping, is a relief of mental tension—and the happy are not overstrung.

It is only the "superior" or discontented man who really laughs and perhaps that is why laughter, like tears, is ugly—being made up of grimaces and contortions, the mask of a hard or selfish mind.

Laughter is a kind of behavior, exceedingly curious were it not so commonplace, which begins in a puckering of features and ends in jelly-like convulsions of the whole body. . . . But smiles are beautiful, as marks of sympathy and understanding.—Professor Francis Arthur Powell Aveling, Reader in Psychology in the University of London.

The principle of happiness should be like the principle of virtue; it should not be dependent on things, but be a part of personality. . . .

If the happiest person is the person who thinks the most interesting thoughts, then we grow happier as we grow older. . . .

NEWS OF CHURCH AND HOME

Address all news and letters to Editors of the Herald, Box 237, Independence, Missouri. Correspondents are requested to make their letters brief. The Editors reserve the right, on account of space limitations, to shorten all letters as circumstances require.

"Things of Good Report" From the Church

"Whatever things are of good report, . . . think on these things."

Australian Saints have a saying which the whole church should know and consider: "Economic depression must not be allowed to produce spiritual depression." It is the opinion of the Herald that the world's economic depression has not produced spiritual depression in the church; indeed the summer's events tell a story to the contrary—we have gone forward. The summer months have proved a testing time for us all, but through industrial depression, drought, crop failures, and unemployment the faith of the Saints remains unquestioned, their courage high.

Here we present a brief review of the warm weather work of the church.

Sacrifice Periods

"Thou shalt offer a sacrifice unto the Lord thy God in righteousness," the latter-day revelation tells us. Recognizing the necessity of obedience to this commandment, general church officers called a special sacrifice period for June 21 to 28. The Saints were asked to observe this time with fasting and prayer and consecration. Observance of the period was general in America, and many cases of love and devotion for God and his work, came before the eyes of the church. Acts of sacrifice were numberless, the consecration of the members very great. Prayer and fasting were universal.

This was what our Australian Saints designated as "the American effort." They, in turn, observed Sacrifice Week from August 30 to September 6, which event followed a thorough visiting campaign. Special attention was given program arrangement for this time so that all might "join in an effort, by fasting, prayer, and sacrifice to achieve greater spirituality, and at the same time help the church in this time of financial depression." This was the purpose as worded by the mission president, Elder W. J. Haworth. The Gospel Standard for August 1, carried a "Sacrifice Week Programme," suggesting themes and source materials. "God sacrificed his Son for us. Shall we not, then, sacrifice for his church?" is the pertinent question The Gospel Standard asks.

And many members, irrespective of where they live or their condition in life, continue to sacrifice. They are living the words of Elder J. M. Terry, a veteran missionary in the church: "My companion and I live by continuous sacrifice."

Gospel Work in Local Centers

If we would make a check on the progress of the church as a whole, we must look to the progress of each branch and mission. "We are working to hold high the gospel light," is the word from a tiny branch of several years' standing in the far western part of the United States. "Our services continue with interest," from a large branch in Ontario, Canada. "The summer has seen members added to our number by baptism and transfer," from a new mission in Michigan. "Though we are few in number, with the help of the Lord, we are determined to go forward," from a group of scattered members in Wyoming. "We love the church," from Saints in Hawaii. "Our officers courageously lead us," from a branch in Iowa. Messages of this kind frequently find their way to the Herald, and reflect the purposefulness, gratitude, and happiness of the members in many places.

Summer, in some regions, has cut down attendance, has caused the temporary discontinuance of a service or two, or in other ways has affected the usual course of procedure in the branches, but the workers are gathering new material to put into practice with the opening of the new church school year October 1.

And while we are mentioning the church school, it will interest Herald readers to know that a large per cent of the branches have adopted the plan of the church school which groups its attendants in three divisions—adult, young people, and children—and correlates Sunday and week-day activities. This program, adopted by the general church at the Centennial Conference, is now being applied in hundreds of places to supply the increasing need of the church for the fundamentals in religious learning and living. "We have adopted it and it works," is the universal comment.

Under the direction of the church school have been brought local study classes, dramatic, musical, forensic, and recreational undertakings. Indeed it provides every field of activity in which the adult, the young person, and the child wish to engage.

The Reunion Season Successful

Though the number of reunions was somewhat affected by the business situation of the world, some being canceled at the last moment, nineteen reunions reported in news letters to the Herald encouragement received from social services, the cooperation of officers and members, helpful spiritual experiences, a number of baptisms, fine instruction in class periods, and forceful sermons. In a number of cases attendance in the 1931 season did not reach the high mark established in former years; nevertheless, the quality of services and the association of Saints did much to send the members home happy and well repaid for their attendance. Everywhere, from the mountains of Montana to the everglades of Florida, from the golden coasts of California to the somber forests of Maine, reunion sessions were undeniably profitable. "Our reunion was the best ever," was the word from a number of writers.

Special Meetings

Summer months have been marked by a great number of special meetings. In some districts in the United States series of special two-day services were planned to take the place of the reunion. Added to these, missionary meetings, accredited institutes, rally days, young people's gatherings, priesthood conventions, stake and district conferences, visiting campaigns, cottage services and a hundred others, have kept general and local officers busy.

Districts and branches have given attention to a variety of recreational undertakings which have lightened the summer routine for adult members, and attracted the interest and participation of numbers of young members and their friends.

And the end is not yet. Fall brings a renewal of activities. The school bell has claimed our children. Our young men and women have gone out to study or teach. The choirs are again contributing to church services. Clubs are in full swing. Committees are becoming increasingly busy developing winter plans.

In Independence the Harvest Home Festival is coming to the fore. President Frederick M. Smith has just returned from a summer of recuperation in the East. He looks hale and strong, and his many friends are glad to have him "at home."

Now is no time to consider the possibilities of spiritual depression. Everyone is busy. Again, we turn to our Australian members who suggest: "Let us make our homes, workrooms and businesses holy places by thinking of them as part of God's plan." Let us work together, as we are divinely commanded, for the good of the church and all in it.

L. B. M.

Missionary Meetings at Seiling, Oklahoma

September 6 saw the closing of a ten-day series of missionary meetings conducted by Elder Z. Z. Renfro and Brother Howard C. Harphamp at Seiling. The missionary tent was set up on Main Street, and very good crowds were had together with the best of attention. Four were baptized, two being heads of families. A wonderful spirit prevailed through the series, and the Saints believe much good was accomplished.

Handbills, announcing the series, invited the people to hear "An old story with a modern application," as told by Elder Z. Z. Renfro and Brother Howard C. Harpham, better known to the church as "the boy preacher."

The Dewey County (Oklahoma) News gave favorable press notice to the meetings. Here we quote:

"The open air meeting in the tent tabernacle which was conducted by the Reverend Z. Z. Renfro, of Davidson, and Howard C. Harpham, of Seiling, was brought to a close Sunday night as announced at the opening of the series of sermons ten days ago.

"Because, no doubt, of the convenient location on Main Street, the attendance was unusually large the first night, and the good singing and plain, matter-of-fact sermons continued to fill the tent to its capacity each succeeding evening. The additions to the church were not large, but the meeting has left a universal good will and respect for the ministers and membership of that church."

Another item reads:

"Reverend Renfro, who has been conducting a meeting at the Latter Day Saint tent tabernacle, was called to Alva Monday to administer to an individual who was seriously ill. The Latter Day Saints believe in the laying on of hands for the healing of the sick, according to the minister's sermon on that subject Friday night."

Yuma, Colorado

September 12.—We are not many in number but meet each week for Sunday school and usually have preaching once or twice a month by Brothers Auld or Vincent, of Otis, and Brother Tabor, from Wray. Our Sunday school is a part of Wray Branch.

There have been some changes in our number and sadness among the members. Sister F. W. Bushner passed away this summer and also the three-year-old grandson of Brother Fred Korf. Brother J. D. Curtis, of Colorado Springs, who baptized Sister Bushner, officiated at both funerals.

Brother and Sister R. H. Lutz, who moved away a year ago, have returned to their farm here and are active once more. Among the little new-comers in the homes of the members are a daughter to Brother and Sister Walter Lutz, a daughter to Sister Kate Korf Conover, and a son to Sister Lily Korf Wise.

Three of the young people, Ramon and Lefa Lutz and Eva Commons, attended the district conference in Denver.

Brother Lee Korf, who is visiting his daughter at Trenton, Nebraska, was injured in an automobile accident while en route there. He is improving.

On September 6 most of Yuma members attended an all-day meeting at Wray at which time two of our young people, with four others, were baptized by Brother Harold Tabor.

Elder H. E. Winegar is now holding a series of meetings at our schoolhouse with very good attendance.

Owing to drouth crops were very poor in this locality. Rain is badly needed for the sowing of fall wheat. A large number have constructed silos as a means of utilizing the corn crop.

The Women's Department has regularly met except during harvest, the last meeting being with Sister Ralph Vincent, of Otis, and the next with Sister Reno Auld, also of Otis.

Mrs. Jackson, of California, has come to Yuma to live for a time with her sister, Mrs. Daisy Lewis, who is one of our group. We are glad to have Sister Lance, of Yuma, formerly of Sterling, with us occasionally.

Missionary Progress in Southern Indiana

Missionary work in Southern Indiana District moves slowly, but is gaining ground.

The conference at Byrneville, August 15 and 16, was marked by the spirit of willingness to move forward. Apostle Clyde F. Ellis was present and assisted with advice in many needful things. Byrneville members showed themselves both capable and willing in caring for the conference.

Following the last conference session, Sister Dutton and I took a more than seventy-mile ride to Derby with Elder J. L. Gleen, to arrange a week of meetings in Derby Branch. The Saint and friends gave good attendance, and we spent the following week at Gerald Schoolhouse in another part of the branch. The week following the meetings at Gerald, we conducted services at Millstone, near Dodd, where are to be found a few Saints and many friends. These filled the schoolhouse the eight nights we were there. We closed September 5, and returned to Derby Branch for the communion service of the month.

The afternoon of September 6 saw us with Brother W. G. Maymon on our way to Sulphur, where we began meetings that evening in the schoolhouse. Here too are a few families of Saints with their many friends. Interest and attendance are so good that I have decided to continue here another week. From Sulphur I plan to go to Marengo to conduct services. There is a small branch at Marengo.

Thus you will see that there is plenty for the missionary to do. We are thankful that from time to time God is calling more men to work in his vineyard, for there is much to do. Many times I find myself wishing that there were more young men ready to take the field or to qualify as local workers. Everywhere we see the need for men who are willing to sacrifice as their forefathers sacrificed. This year several of our active men in this district have had to lay down the armor for lack of strength to go on. May God send us more men and the means to sustain them as the law has outlined.

J. O. DUTTON.

Second Institute for Kirtland District

The second of a series of three Kirtland district accredited institutes was held at Sharon Branch, Pennsylvania, September 12 and 13. The five talks centered around a central theme, "Christian Efficiency." This theme was discussed in various phases by Patriarch J. A. Gunsolley, Sister J. A. Gunsolley, and Elder Earnest A. Webbe.

In spite of extremely hot weather, the meetings were well attended. Interest and attention were so splendid that Sister Gunsolley remarked later that it was an inspiration to talk to that group.

Twenty-four students were enrolled and many others attended from different points in Ohio and Pennsylvania. In the words of District President James E. Bishop, who preached the morning sermon, the institute was "a school of the children of God."

Sharon Saints cared for the visitors in a most hospitable manner.

Independence

Building operations have been resumed on the new building of the Independence Sanitarium and Hospital. The force of local workmen includes about fourteen carpenters and five laborers who have been at work almost a week under the direction of Lyle W. Weeks. This crew is concentrated upon the upper part of the structure assembling the forms for the upper floor, preparatory to the pouring of the concrete which will form the framework for the upper floor and the roof. Superintendent Weeks hopes to carry out a schedule which will have the structure under roof before December 1. Superintendent Weeks was authorized by the Sanitarium building committee to proceed with this construction work following a recent successful drive for funds by the Chamber of Commerce among the townspeople who had pledged to finance this project.

The biweekly meeting of the young people's council of Independence, Sunday afternoon, was crowded with suggestions regarding the winter recreational program. Important among the decisions made was that to open the fall volley ball league tomorrow evening. Teams from Walnut Park, Enoch Hill, Gudgell Park, Stone Church, Auditorium, East Independence, and Liberty Street have entered the league. Games will be played at the Campus each Thursday evening until the close of the Harvest Home Festival, when the Auditorium will become the scene of action.

A committee was appointed by the council to meet with a committee from Kansas City Stake, to form plans for the winter's basket ball league. Independence committeemen are: Dean Redfield, Howard Reese, Blaine Bender, and Robert DeTray.

Dramatic, oratorical, and music contests were also discussed by the council as features of the young people's winter activities.

Meals cooked and eaten outdoors, games, contests, inspection, color ceremonies, friendship—all these Scouts find at camp. And these composed the lot of Boy Scout Troops 223, 226, and 227 who participated in a week-end camporee Saturday and Sunday. The rendezvous was the scout camp seven miles east of Independence in a bend of the Little Blue.

Almost fifty boys were camped from Saturday afternoon to Sunday evening under the direction of their scoutmasters: Francis Holm, Troop 223; W. Earl Page, 226; and Ammon Badder, 227. Inter-troop contests on Saturday afternoon included activities in bugling, trailing, nature study, singing, and drilling. There were also camp inspection, inspection of personal equipment, and color ceremonies. On Sunday morning Elder S. A. Thiel talked to the boys at the scout worship hour.

The camporee was sponsored by the troop committeemen, those actively in charge being S. A. Thiel, William H. Snead, and C. G. Closson.

Some time ago the church leased to the four church troops in Independence a farm which is now the site of their camp. The four troops are: 222, Spring Branch; 223 and 226, Stone Church; 227, Walnut Park and Enoch Hill. Here where the stream loops abruptly about, the boys propose, under the direction of their officers, to erect a number of log cabins of native-grown timber.

Scout enthusiasm in Independence burns high. The boys will hold a Court of Honor at the Rock Creek school Friday evening, Troop 139 being the host. There have been two hundred applications for merit badges.

The White Masque Players held their first fall meeting, September 14, at the Wahdemna Choral Club rooms. This winter the club plans to study outstanding dramatists and playwrights of America, England, Belgium, Scotland, and France. Each month there will be a review of "The Plays of the Month." On the first night biographies were given of Joseph Jefferson by Frank Jennings and of Sarah Siddons by Miss Aileen Bullard. Mrs. J. Glenn Fairbanks gave a preview of "The Plays of the Month," and Mrs. F. Henry Edwards talked on "George Bernard Shaw." His play, "Camdida," was reviewed and read by Mrs. Leonard J. Lea.

The last ten days have seen the organization of Independence Parent-Teacher Associations, and in some of the schools there have been receptions for the teachers. Everywhere winter plans are of chief interest.

The Independence unit of the Patroness Society resumed regular meetings September 18 following a vacation during the summer months. All members came with renewed determination to carry on the work for the Sanitarium, begun many years ago by Sister E. L. Kelly. Sister H. L. Loosemore, president of the society, urges every woman in the church to become a member of the Patroness Society and have part in supplying the articles needed by the new hospital.

The church schools of Independence will next Sunday observe Promotion Day with appropriate ceremonies and exercises. Many hundreds of children and young people will on that day move into new grades of church school activity.

Stone Church

"Laborers with God" was the theme of Elder Leonard Lea's Sunday morning sermon to the Stone Church congregation, and his text was taken from 1 Corinthians 3: 9: "For we are the work in which God is investing his efforts; his ye are God's building." Analyzing the text, he spoke of labor as our universal obligation, its dignity and importance, and the fate of the parasite. We are together, he asserted; the highest achievements of humanity have resulted from cooperation. "Together with God" stresses the spiritual way of life. And "ye are God's building" teaches us that we are the work in which God is investing his efforts; his purpose is to build men and women, and that is the purpose of his church.

The Stone Church Choir sang two pleasing anthems, Miss Lilly Belle Allen singing the solo in one. Paul N. Craig directed, and Robert Miller played the organ. An attractive part of the musical service was a solo by Josephine Smith Ebeling who was accompanied at the piano by Robert Miller.

Elder G. G. Lewis was in charge of the service.

The junior church service at the Campus was visited by Elder U. W. Greene who told the children in an interesting manner the story of Queen Esther and King Ahasuerus. A reading was given by Syble Barrett, "Jimmie's First Haircut." Lorraine Gold played a piano solo, "Ballade," and a vocal solo was given by Virginia Davis.

Apostle Paul M. Hanson, who arrived in this country from Europe on the 15th, was the speaker at the Stone Church Sunday evening. His travels in foreign lands and among various peoples have enabled him to obtain a keener insight into world conditions as they exist today than is possessed by the majority of us who must gain a knowledge of such things by newspaper or magazine. His audience became more and more aware of this fact as he proceeded with an able discourse which was based on verses 24 to 37 of the twenty-first chapter of Luke—words of Jesus concerning the conditions that are to prevail just prior to the coming of the Son of man.

The present age, he said, is giving to us a literal fulfillment of the prediction in verse 26—"Men's hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth"—for a nervousness has taken hold upon all men, an anxiety that is felt by everyone, not only by the unemployed, but by employers, leaders, and men prominent in political affairs.

In this prophecy we have encouragement and warning, and also a solution to the difficulties. Tremendous changes, he averred, must come, must precede the time when the "knowledge of God shall cover the earth as the waters cover the sea." They must come in order to speed on that glorious time.

Such changes are now taking place. Everything that is loose is being rattled. Changes and revolutions in Russia, Germany, Spain, and other parts of the world are working toward a condition when the decree that the gospel must be preached in all the world, can be carried out. Encouragement is given in this promise, "When these things begin to come to pass, then look up, and lift up your heads; for your redemption draweth nigh."

No man has really lived until he has had a profound experience with his Creator, an experience in which there is a consciousness of the power, of the mercy, and of the holiness of God.

The only solution to the world condition is the application of the Golden Rule.

The music was a very attractive part of the first Sunday evening Stone Church service of the fall season. It was supplied by the chorus of girls directed by Mrs. H. C. Burgess. Several pleasing selections were sung, and there was a harp solo by Miss Eleanor Smith.

Pastor John F. Sheehy was in charge of the service. Apostle E. J. Gleazer offered the invocation and benediction, and Apostle F. Henry Edwards introduced the speaker.

Spring Branch

The infant son of Brother and Sister Ralph Thomas was blessed at the close of the church school hour under the hands of Elder U. W. Green and Elder C. Ed. Miller.

Speakers in the recent past have been Elders Ammon White, R. V. Hopkins, Robert Fish, C. Ed. Miller, and J. F. Curtis. All of these brought messages of encouragement to the congregation. Brother Robert Fish was the junior speaker last Sunday morning.

Next Sunday morning a joint meeting of the church school will offer the means for observing Promotion Day.

Chester Andes, son of Brother and Sister Jacob Andes, and Miss Ada Clark, of Burlington, Colorado, were united in marriage, September 6, at the home of the bridegroom's parents. The service was read by Elder Henry Fields, of Independence.

The Sunday evening service in this branch re-commenced last Sunday evening with good attendance enjoying the pleasing church school program at 6:30. A large congregation heard the fine sermon of Apostle J. F. Curtis. Spring Branch has all summer been meeting with the Campus Sunday evening congregation.

Far West Stake

The splendid spirit of the recent reunion has found its way into the various branches of the stake. All regular activities are being carried on and attendance seems to be on the increase in most places. An expressed desire to move forward and a determination to carry on in the face of the present crisis mark the general attitude.

The evening of September 1 Fortescue Saints gathered from every direction to the east side of Big Lake, where a basket supper was spread in honor of Elder Ward A. Hougas and family, who had arrived late in the afternoon to spend four days with them. Brother Hougas delivered a splendid sermon each night to a crowded and attentive house, and visited in the homes of the Saints during the day.

Bishop Milo Burnett and his wife spent Sunday, September 13, in the northern part of the stake. Brother Burnett preached at Bedison Branch in the morning and at Sweet Home Branch at an afternoon service. Good crowds greeted him at both places. Later they visited the Catholic institution at Conception and found it very interesting. This is said to be the largest institution of its kind west of the Mississippi. Brother Burnett spent September 20 at Kingston.

An exceptionally fine crowd greeted Brother G. T. Richards, stake missionary, at Kingston on Sunday, September 13, where he preached morning and evening. Brother Richards spent September 20 with Oakdale Saints.

First Saint Joseph Saints had the pleasure of having Elder and Sister Leonard Lea, of Independence, with them September 13. Elder Lea delivered two splendid sermons at the morning and evening services. Preceding the evening sermon Mrs. Lea gave a reading, "The Phantom Airplane."

The women of First Saint Joseph Church sponsored a picnic supper the evening of Tuesday, September 15, at Bartlett Park. A carefully planned meal and a jolly crowd made an enjoyable evening.

Elders John Hovenga and Ward A. Hougas are spending today and tomorrow at Bedison Branch. They are holding preaching services both nights and a baptismal service Thursday afternoon.

Guilford Branch

Guilford Branch is preparing for its annual home-coming, to be held September 27. The day's activities will include sermons by Elder Ward A. Hougas and Bishop Milo Burnett at 11 o'clock and 2 o'clock, respectively. At noon a basket dinner will be spread on the church lawn. All former members of Guilford Branch are cordially invited to be present.

One of the recent speakers was Brother Roy L. Roberts, of Lawrence, Kansas, who delivered two good sermons on August 30. On September 6, a fine sacrament service was enjoyed by all who attended. Elder I. M. Ross was the speaker the morning of September 13 and Elder Alec Jensen spoke the morning of September 20.

Brother W. J. Winn and family of King City, Missouri, spent two Sundays, August 30 and September 6, with Guilford Saints. In the afternoon of September 13 two carloads of Guilford Saints went to King City to worship with the Saints from Union Star, Stanberry, and King City at the home of Brother and Sister Winn. These Saints are scattered and do not have the privilege of enjoying regular church services.

Some of the women met in the church basement and canned about thirty-five quarts of vegetables for the Harvest Home Festival. These will be added to the exhibit already displayed at Stewartsville during the recent reunion.

Priesthood Conferences

Plans are being completed for a series of priesthood conferences, to be held October 9, 10 and 11 at Cameron, Guilford, and Saint Joseph. Apostle Garver is expected to be present.

President McDowell To Speak

Maple Grove and Stewartsville Branches are making plans for a big union service on October 11. The two branches will meet together at Maple Grove church. President F. M. McDowell will be the speaker at the morning and afternoon services. A basket dinner will be served at noon. In the evening Elder Ward A. Hougas, stake president, will commence a week's series of sermons. Services will be held each evening during the week.

President McDowell will speak in Saint Joseph at First Church at the evening service.

San Francisco, California

Park-Presidio Branch, 405 Arguello Boulevard

September 16.—Saints of this branch lately had the pleasure of listening to a sermon by Presiding Bishop Albert Carmichael.

Elder John W. Rushton continues to address us on the second and fourth Sundays of the month, giving our friends an excellent opportunity to know more about the work of the Reorganized Church. Brother Rushton has availed himself of the opportunity to make many contacts in this district which, we feel sure, will eventually prove very beneficial.

Park-Presidio Branch has been blessed with superior musical talent in its services. The congregation has listened to finished artists in solo work.

In membership we are progressing nicely. A few years ago when this branch was started, there were twelve members. We have since grown to thirty-six.

Elder Howard Carpenter has taken an active interest, with the result that he has proved himself to be a great help to Branch President E. W. Nelson, who has had full charge since the organization of the branch.

The officers are doing their duty in carrying out their individual responsibilities. The publicity agent is doing his part to see that the branch receives its share of recognition on all occasions.

Park-Presidio members extend a hearty welcome to all Saints visiting San Francisco, and can assure them a pleasant visit while in our midst. We have Sunday morning services only.

Kansas City Stake

O. B. K. News

On Labor Day the stake O. B. K. Council sponsored a picnic in Swope Park. The council's committee composed of J. F. Wolfe, chairman, E. P. Nelson, Norman Carter, Charles Allen, and Lucille Sandy, worked energetically to provide for the needs of everyone. Results were more than gratifying.

The Park Board cooperated and reserved a shady and delightful section of the park with facilities for games, tennis, children's play, and luncheon. Free ice cream and lemonade were provided for those who registered and over four hundred and fifty were present. The organization was adequate and worked smoothly. Families brought basket lunches which the committee served cafeteria style. Everyone from the youngest child to the oldest man had been considered, and the program designed to meet their needs.

The day was warm but both young and old seemed to enter into the spirit of the occasion with zest and goodfellowship.

The luncheon program was provided by a group of youngsters from the Boys' Hotel. They sang lustily of Camp Bohoca and its folk lore. Mr. Charles B. Hahn, manager of the hotel and a big brother to Kansas City's friendless boys, spoke of the good work accomplished by the hotel and camp. C. E. Wight and C. G. Mesley of the stake presidency made brief remarks.

The O. B. K. Council and the church members present at the picnic extend their thanks and appreciation to Brother Wolfe and his committee.

The following were the winners of the various events: The group with the largest percentage of attendance, Fourth church; largest family, Mrs. Grunig and four; youngest baby, Edwin Melvin Miller; bean bottle, Brother Higgs; Brother Mesley; for the women, Mrs. Worden; oldest lady, Mrs. Louisa Bagley; oldest man, F. B. Knight, eighty-five years; judging on total attendance, Mr. Worden; nail driving, Mrs. Jennie Culver; rolling pin throwing, Miss Reim; marshmallow, Mrs. Babcock; races: Ages 5-7, Harold Short and Kathlea Bowser; 8-10, Dorothy Babcock and Dick Thrutchley; 11-13, Maxine Rawson and Buddie Keyes; potato race, Kathlea Bowser, Buddie Babcock; shoe race, Dorothy Babcock, Dorothy Bowser; sack race, Dick Thrutchley, Dorothy Babcock, Opal Grunig; three-legged race, Opal Grunig, Dorothy Babcock, Maxine Rawson, Charlene Allen; croquet, Fred Craven, W. O. Decker; tennis, Alice Baker, Paul Clarke; horseshoe, Robert Davis, Norman Carter, George Marvin; golf, Glau Smith won the State and Meadows trophy; Allen Rush, low gross score; Wallace Burlington, Clayton Wolfe, Mr. Turner, third.

Previous to the stirring visit of the Allied Campaigners for Prohibition, our council was invited to cooperate for advertising with the B. Y. P. U., Christian Endeavor, Epworth League and other city youth organizations. Our young people were happy in this privilege. When Allied Youth met to perfect their present organization our president, Brother George Mesley, was unanimously elected president of the organization which will include in its personnel the presidents of all city youth organizations.

In the next few months the stake O. B. K. Council will sponsor special classes at the leadership school, a one-act religious drama contest, basket ball tournament, and stewardship oratorical contest.

Central Church

After a ten-day siege of the severest heat wave ever experienced in the history of Kansas City during the month of September, a cool breeze brought relief to many weary people and made the Sabbath day enjoyable. Following the organ prelude, "Serenade," by Edward Evry, played by Mrs. J. A. Withee, the congregation joined in singing "Never Alone," in Zion's Praises. Prayer was offered by Elder S. S. Sandy. Special music of this service was the contribution of Margarite Johnson Blaine, soprano soloist, in "The Prayer," by Curren, which was so beautifully rendered as to bring a hushed ecstasy to the people.

At the 11 o'clock service the congregation joined in singing "Praise Ye the Lord"; Brother George Mesley offered the invocation. The choir, directed by George Anway, rendered the anthem, "Seek Him That Maketh the Seven Stars," by Rogers, Elizabeth Hitchcock singing the soprano solo. Because of the fine help the choir gives in our services and because it has been taking a six weeks' vacation, the presence of Central Choir on Sunday morning, was doubly appreciated by the membership. Its return to render service through the gift of song was heralded with gratitude.

Elder John Blackmore delivered a fine discourse at the 7:45 service, being assisted at this service by a quartet consisting of Elizabeth Hitchcock, Estella Moore, Clayton Wolfe and A. D. Hitchcock. They sang the anthem, "I Shall Not Pass Again This Way," by Ellinger.

Central Women's Club and friends enjoyed an old-fashioned barbecue at the country home of one of its members, Sister Bowen. A good time was enjoyed by every one present, about one hundred attending. Games, refreshments, etc., were enjoyed and a spirit of fellowship prevailed. The Women's Club will hold its first meeting and luncheon since vacation on Thursday afternoon, luncheon being served at one o'clock. Many new ideas and plans are to be laid for the continuance of the work on the liquidation of the church indebtedness at Central. Last week a committee of ladies working under the direction of Sister Ida Hidy canned two hundred and fifteen quarts of tomatoes, sixty-eight quarts of peaches, and a large quantity of grapes and other fruit. This canning will benefit the Harvest Home Festival as well as the club dinners throughout the year.

The O. B. K. Council has outlined a full program for the fall and winter. At six o'clock in the morning, next Sunday, they will meet at the church and proceed to Loose Park for early morning prayer meeting and then breakfast.

September 27 will be Rally Day at Central. A number of promotions of the classes to the primary, junior and intermediate departments forms part of the program. President F. M. McDowell will be the speaker at the eleven o'clock hour.

Brother Paul Clark surprised his friends at Central by announcing that Cupid has been busy. Brother Paul slipped quietly into the Bennington group the latter part of July and took a bride, Sister Margaret Agin. Both these young people are workers in the church and have the good wishes of their friends.

Life is just a bundle of potentialities. It can't seem the same to the youth and to the octogenarian, nor the same to the rich and the poor. Life is a raw material. As an artist mixes his colors with his skill, a musician his playing with his ideals, and an engineer his stone and steel with his designs, so we must mix our divine ideals with our lives.—Dr. Cornelius Woelkin.

North Manchester, England

Junior Division

September 10.—For some time this branch has had under consideration the need of the junior division—a room for its use and services. A few of the members got together last Sunday and saw the culmination of their efforts in the dedication service.

The united service was held in the church, and then the juniors with their leader filed into the new room and the adults followed. When all were comfortably settled the juniors sang "Praise Him! Praise Him!" from Zion's Praises, and the pastor offered the dedicatory prayer. The remainder of the time was devoted to testimonies, preference being given to the juniors. It was a fine experience to hear the boys and girls speak; they seemed very eager to thank God for their new church room.

This was also the second anniversary of the junior service, and so a special program was arranged, the mission director of religious education being present. The service was in charge of this brother, the branch director, and the supervisor of the junior division. The call to worship, the Eighth Psalm, was read by the leader of the junior service, then a solo, "Tell Me the Story of Jesus," was sung by a junior. The invocation was offered by the mission director of religious education. A junior related some of the miracles performed by Jesus. Two small juniors sang "Praise Him, Praise Him All Ye Little Children," and another member of that department gave the reason for Christ's mission to earth, telling of the appointment of the twelve Apostles and the spreading of the gospel. "If Jesus Christ Was Sent," a solo, was sung; the poem "Mottoes," was recited, then the boys sang "Jesus Bids Us Shine." Another junior spoke on "The Crucifixion and Resurrection," stressing the latter and the need for missionary work. He told how juniors may help in mission work, and then the boys and girls sang "We Are But Little Children Weak." Remarks were next made by the pastor and the supervisor of the children's division, then the children sang "When He Cometh," and the benediction was offered by the leader.

The evening was devoted to the sacrament and prayer and testimony service. This was a very happy day and should help the children grow. Our desires and prayers are for the development of the young.

Pleasant Valley Branch

Lucasville, Ohio

The latter-day work is moving along in this branch, under the able management of the branch president, E. E. Williams. Sunday school is regularly conducted at 9:30 each Sunday. Prayer and praise service opens at 10:45 a. m., and the local priesthood occupy the sacred desk every Sunday evening. These services are well attended, also the midweek meetings.

The Saturday evening Bible reading group includes a large number of young people.

The home-coming for the branch on September 13 was a real event. Many people, who formerly lived in this neighborhood, were present. Elder J. E. Matthews, of Columbus, was the speaker. Because of the press of time and the number of things to be done, it was thought necessary to abandon plans for one service, and the priesthood decided to hold only a very short Sunday school session.

The morning prayer meeting was in charge of Brothers O. A. Rexroad and Luther Crabtree, of Portsmouth West Side Mission, Elder Richard Shope, of McDermott, and Elder Matthews, of Columbus. This was a service of high spiritual tone. The Spirit of the Lord spoke through one of his servants to Arnel Altman, a lad, telling him that God wants him in his work, and assuring him that if he will prepare himself, he shall become a polished instrument in God's hand. At 10:45 a. m., the congregation heard a very interesting sermon by Brother Matthews.

At noon lunch was spread on the lawn, and the congregation heard another sermon at 2:30 p. m.

The priesthood are looking forward to a banquet and ministerial meeting at Columbus, the first Sunday in October.

Birmingham, England

September 8.—A garden party was held August 15 as a farewell token of our love for Apostle Paul M. Hanson. An enjoyable time was spent. On the following Sunday, Brother Hanson preached his farewell sermon with power and much assurance to a large congregation. His message to the young people was: "Commit thy ways unto the Lord and he will direct your path." He spoke of his own boyhood and youthful experiences and the power of the Spirit which had enriched his life so many times.

A gift of money was handed Brother Hanson as a small tribute of our appreciation. Under his ministrations we have been richly blessed. We say: "God bless him," with sincere and deep feeling.

The mission, started at Bearwood under the leadership of Elder A. Kendrick, is progressing. The members attending there during the last twelve months, have supported the mission by their weekly contributions. There are only eight Saints, but the regular Sunday evening services are attended by sixteen. Prayer services are held each Wednesday evening in the homes of the members, and average attendance is ten.

Mission work is hard work but well worth the energy put into it. Rambles for Saturday afternoons have proved fine.

One attending the mission is a blind man who shows a keen desire for spiritual light.

The prayers of the Saints are asked in behalf of the workers at Bearwood.

Members are now through with vacations, and class work and different interests are being prepared by Pastor P. S. Whalley and his departmental heads.

Our prayer services are still in course of development but offer a source of great strength to those who attend.

Guelph, Ontario

Considerable missionary work has been done in Guelph during the past three months. Brother Hockaday, Jr., has been carrying on street preaching at the post office square each Saturday evening, interest being shown by the large numbers present. We are glad to welcome Brother Brooks into the fold as a result of street preaching, and we hope that many others will follow his example. Elder George Njeim, district missionary, has been in Guelph for five weeks doing missionary work—visiting, tracting, holding cottage meetings and street preaching services. The Saints appreciate his efforts and enjoy his instructive sermons.

Apostle R. S. Budd, Elder Shields, and Elder Njeim visited Guelph July 14, the last named preaching to us.

An all-day meeting was held August 16, Saints gathering to Guelph from all parts of the district. Prayer service was held at 9:30 a. m. Preaching followed at 11 o'clock, 2 p. m. and 7. Elders Saint John, Dayton, and Njeim were the speakers. A very enjoyable day was spent. Meals were served in the church basement.

Friends are glad to hear of Sister Marretta Swift's recovery from a serious operation. Her people testify that she would not have recovered had it not been for the blessing received through the administration of the elders and the prayers of other members. This makes us realize that God does remember us and that we should try to live more worthy his blessings.

A jolly evening was spent in the church basement August 25, when young and old gathered to eat corn and weiners. Time was spent in playing games and singing songs.

The Sunday school picnic occurred September 7 at Riverside Park. Races and games were provided for all, and a well-filled table was the center of attraction at supper time.

Sunday evening, September 13, Eva Grace, infant daughter of Sister Simmons and husband, was blessed by Elder Glift, of Toronto.

The semi-annual business meeting was held September 14, and the following officers were elected: Pastor, John Hockaday, junior; assistant pastor, Elder Cooper; director of church school, Brother Hockaday, senior; adult supervisor, Brother Cromwell; young people's supervisor, Sister Hockaday, junior; children's supervisor, Sister Brain; secretary, Archie Cromwell; organist, G. Ashley; chorister, Brother Hockaday, junior; publicity agent, Sister Hockaday, junior.

The Saints are well satisfied with the new church school plan, and we are adopting it again this term. Ministerial and departmental workers are looking forward to a term of greater activity for the coming year.

Some go to church just for a walk,
Some go to stare, laugh, and talk;
Some go there to meet a friend,
Some their idle time to spend.
Some for general observation,
Some for private speculation;
Some to seek or find a lover,
Some a courtship to discover.
Some go there to use their eyes
And newest fashions criticize.
Some to show their own smart dress,
Some their neighbors to assess;
Some to scan a robe or bonnet,
Some to price the trimming on it;
Some to learn the latest news,
That friends at home they may amuse;
Some to gossip, false and true,
Safe hid within the sheltering pew.
Some go there to please the squire,
Some his daughters to admire;
Some the parson go to fawn,
Some to lounge and some to yawn,
Some to claim the parish doles,
Some for bread and some for coals;
Some because it's thought genteel,
Some to vaunt their pious zeal;
Some to show how sweet they sing;
Some how loud their voices ring.
Some the preacher go to hear,
His style and voice to praise or jeer;
Some forgiveness to implore,
Some their sins to varnish o'er;
Some to sit and doze and nod,
But few to kneel, and worship God.

—Selected.

The Song of a Heathen

(Sojourning in Galilee, A. D. 32)

If Jesus Christ is a man,
And only a man—I say
That of all mankind I cleave to him,
And to him will I cleave alway.

If Jesus Christ is a God,
And the only God, I swear
I will follow him through heaven and hell,
The earth, the sea, and the air!

—Richard Watson Gilder.

MISCELLANEOUS

Appointment of Bishop's Agent

Having received the resignation of Brother A. R. Ellis as bishop's agent of Western Michigan district, we hereby appoint as his successor, Brother John E. Bennett, same having been approved by the district conference.

Brother Ellis has given splendid cooperation while acting as our agent, and we wish to take this opportunity of expressing appreciation for the services rendered.

Brother Bennett comes to us well recommended and is worthy of the support of the membership in this church work.

The solicitors are requested to send their reports for the month of September and all subsequent reports to Brother John E. Bennett, Freesoil, Michigan.—The presiding bishopric, by G. L. DeLapp. Approved by the First Presidency, by F. M. McDowell.

Two-Day Priesthood Meeting

Southern Michigan and Northern Indiana District will hold a two-day priesthood meeting October 3 and 4, at Grand Rapids, Michigan, at the Saints' church, 1225 South Division Avenue. A lecture to the priesthood, 3 p. m., Saturday, October 3, will open the meeting. Lectures, discussions, sermons, sacrament, church school. Apostle D. T. Williams and the district presidency and district missionaries will be present. All ordained men of the district and visiting ministry are cordially invited to attend.—William Osler, district president.

Conference Notices

London district conference will convene at Stratford, Ontario, Canada, October 10 and 11. Business session at 2 p. m. Saturday; musical program at 8 p. m. On Sunday there will be prayer service at 9 a. m., preaching services at 11 a. m., 2:30 p. m., and 7. The church is located at the corner of Brunswick and Waterloo Streets. Please make a special effort to attend the conference.—James Winegarden, district president.

Two-Day Meeting

There will be a two-day meeting held at the church in Pittsburg, Kansas, Saturday and Sunday, October 3 and 4. There will be class work, meeting for the priesthood, sacrament and preaching services. Apostle F. Henry Edwards will be with us for these meetings. It is strongly urged that all who can possibly do so be in attendance both days.—Frank McDonald, district president.

Program of Educational Institutes

The following is the tentative program for educational institutes throughout the New York district this fall:

Fulton, September 27; Johnson City, October 3, 4; Greenwood, October 4; Niagara Falls, October 10, 11; Syracuse, October 24, 25, (special business); Rochester, November 8; Sherrill, November 14, 15; and Buffalo, November 27, 29.—Doctor P. L. Weegar, district president.

Conference Postponed

Owing to the fact that Bishop E. L. Traver can not meet with the Saints in Maine on the dates previously set for the Maine conferences, it had been deemed wise to postpone them to the following dates: Eastern district at Jonesport, October 31 and November 1; Western district, at Mountainville, November 7 and 8. We trust that these later dates may not result in a lessened attendance, and that the good Spirit may be with us and abound.—E. F. Robertson, Stonington, Maine.

Request Prayers

The wife, children, and grandchildren of Brother Henry Shriner, of Blue Rapids, Kansas, ask the prayer of the Saints in his behalf, that he may receive health and strength and be able to do more in the Lord's work.

Radio ScheduleSundays*

- 7:00 to 8:00 a. m.—Bible Hour, Lorena Kueffer, organist, U. W. Green, teacher.
 11:00 to 11:30 a. m.—Stone Church Choir.
 4:00 to 5:00 p. m.—Vesper Hour, program in charge of Elizabeth Okerlind, U. W. Greene, speaker.
 10:05 to 11:05 p. m.—Preaching Hour, Bishop A. B. Phillips, speaker.

Week Days

- 6:00 to 6:15 p. m.—Monday, Wednesday, Friday—
 Devotional Service, Paul Craig, organist, John Sheehy, speaker.
 Tuesday, Thursday, Saturday—
 Devotional Service, Evan Fry, organist and speaker.

Conference Minutes

NEW YORK AND PHILADELPHIA—The semi-annual conference of New York and Philadelphia District was held at Scranton, September 5 and 6. The conference was opened at 7 o'clock on Saturday evening by a business meeting in charge of District President T. J. Elliott. Minutes of the last conference were read and approved. Reports were read from District President T. J. Elliott, District Chorister Clara S. Thumm, Superintendent of Religious Education E. Walter Lewis, the Treasurer of the District John Zimmerman, and the district secretary. It was unanimously decided that the next conference should be held in Philadelphia, the time to be set by the district presidency. After the business meeting an informal discussion was held mostly on the question as to whether a man who uses tobacco should be permitted to work in his office in the priesthood. While many views were expressed, the only action taken was to the effect that the matter be taken up at the next conference with a view to making a ruling. On Sunday at 9 o'clock a. m. there was a meeting of the priesthood. Then Sunday school was held at 10 o'clock, followed by preaching by A. H. D. Edwards of Baltimore. At 2:30 p. m. sacrament was served, followed by a prayer and testimony meeting. At this service Clark H. Pealer and William Derr, both of Bloomsburg Branch, were ordained to the offices of teacher and deacon respectively, both ordinations having been approved by the district in business meeting the previous evening. At 7 o'clock in the evening there was preaching by H. L. Livingston of Philadelphia, after which the glee club of the Baraca Bible class of the Jackson Street Baptist church gave a number of musical selections. All of the meetings were well attended and very much enjoyed by the large number of visitors and local members who were present at the conference. A rising vote of thanks was given the Scranton Saints and the members of the glee club.

Our Departed Ones

BROADHEAD.—Emma Bell Alton, sixth child of Andrew and Eliza Alton, was born December 15, 1887, at Fountain Green, Illinois. She was married to James F. Broadhead, and to them two children were born, Edward and Georgia Luella. When twenty-five years of age, she united with the church, being baptized by Henry Sparling, in Kansas. Her health had been failing for some years, but the end came unexpectedly on Sunday morning, September 6, 1931, at their home in Macomb, Illinois, where they had lived for fourteen years. Kindly acts during her last hours of earthly life and large attendance at the funeral rites evidenced the esteem in which she was held by the community. The funeral was conducted September 8, at a rural church not far from the family home and the resting place of other members of the family. Elder F. T. Mussell was in charge. Left to mourn are her husband, two children, two grandchildren, an aged mother, two sisters, and six brothers, who acted as pallbearers.

COOPER.—Wendell Frank Cooper, son of Daniel P. and Winnie Cooper, was born March 2, 1911, at Council Bluffs, Iowa. He was baptized a member of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints by Elder J. A. Tanner, March 27, 1921. Died September 4, 1931, at Waco, Texas. Leaves to mourn his father, mother, one sister, Mrs. Lila Parris, Argentine, Kansas; a brother, Clayton, of the same address, and many other relatives and friends. The funeral was from the Argentine church September 8, Elder Ammon White delivering the sermon. Interment was in Maple Hill Cemetery, Kansas City, Kansas.

MALLARY.—Mary Elizabeth Mallary was born in Baltimore, Maryland, September 21, 1862. In the year 1886, while residing in Syracuse, New York, she was united in marriage to Cornelius Tracy. In 1888 they moved to Kansas. A daughter was born to this couple at Merriam, Kansas, April 6, 1904, Mr. Tracy passed away. In November, 1907, she was united in marriage to John Frank Mallary. Became a member of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints in April, 1928. She became ill July 17, and passed beyond August 31, 1931. Surviving are her husband, Frank Mallary, one daughter, Mrs. Bertha Burleson, two granddaughters, Evelyn and Velma Burleson. Interment was in Maple Hill Cemetery, Kansas City, Kansas. The funeral sermon was by Elder Ammon White.

GORLEY.—Florence Ann McFarlane was born September 1, 1878, at Arlington, Iowa, one of a family of eleven children born to John and Iantha McFarlane. She grew to womanhood and received her education in and around Arlington. At the age of eighteen years became a member of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints in which she worked actively until her death September 5, 1931. September 12, 1900, she married Charles H. Gorley, of Wadena, Iowa, and to them seven children were born. Her early married life was spent in Iowa; later she spent a few years in Colorado and moved to Vida, Montana, where she lived the remainder of her life. She was a member of the Rebecca and Royal Neighbor Lodges. Her efforts were given to bringing happiness to her family, education to her children, and good to the community. Surviving are her husband and children: Mrs. Myree Morgan, of Rapelje, Montana; Milo D., Bayard, Nebraska; Mrs. Wilma Besse, of Absarokee, Montana; Phyllis, Cleo, and Algie at home; three grandchildren; brothers and sisters: Frank and George McFarlane, of Oelwein, Iowa; Chloe and James, of Lima, Iowa; Ina, Katie, Claude, and Ray, of Vida, Montana; besides a host of other relatives and friends. One son, Darrell Dale, passed away in infancy. The funeral service was held at Vida Hall, Vida, Montana, the sermon being by Elder Arthur Ritter. Elder W. R. Hillman was in charge.

EDITORIAL*Our Historical Library

(The following article was written by S. A. Burgess, Church Historian, to acquaint our people with the particular needs of the library for numbers of old periodicals, books, and letters. It is presented with the approval of the First Presidency.)

Many valuable manuscripts and books were lost in the Herald Office fire in Lamoni, in January 1907. Since then the church has received many valuable donations and has purchased a number of old church books and periodicals.

But there are still some places to be filled. We need a better copy of the Messenger and Advocate, (both that published at Kirtland in 1834 to 1837 and that published by Sidney Rigdon in Pittsburg, 1844 to 1846. We have a complete file of the Evening and Morning Star, as published in Independence, but need the ten issues published in Kirtland. We need the Elder's Journal, The Prophet, The Mormon, Nauwoo Neighbor, Frontier Guardian, and many others.

If any of our readers possess any of these old books or periodicals we would appreciate it if they would give us the first opportunity to secure them. We have a valuable collection, but in the interest of the church should extend it, as opportunity offers. This includes old letters, diaries, pamphlets, and manuscripts, as well as books and periodicals.

Although the church treasury is not now in shape to justify large expenditures and there has been no budget allowance for such purposes this year, if old books or letters are to be put on the market or disposed of, we should like to know of them. Please communicate with the First Presidency, Auditorium, Independence, Missouri.

VISION

Announces the

WINNERS of the

"Word of Wisdom" Contest

FIRST PRIZE ..... Mrs. Bessy Laughlin, Des Moines, Iowa.
 SECOND PRIZE ..... Mrs. Fern Weedmark, Topeka, Kansas.
 THIRD PRIZE ..... Mrs. A. L. Sanford, Nauvoo, Illinois.
 FOURTH PRIZES ..... Mrs. Charles McLean, Toronto, Canada.
 The Merry Menu Makers,
 (A Class of Young People) Belleville, Illinois.
 Miss Ruth Benson, Davenport, Iowa.
 Mrs. Ellen Pennell, Independence, Missouri.

The Judges

Mrs. F. H. Edwards
 Mrs. M. T. Williams
 Mrs. W. H. Williamson

The winning manuscripts, along with many other excellent contributions received in the contest, will be published in Vision during the coming months. These, with other articles that we have planned, will make Vision indispensable for home makers during the coming year.

Subscribe Now for

VISION

Per Year, $1.75

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE

Independence, Missouri

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Frederick M. Smith, Editor in Chief.
 Elbert A. Smith, Floyd M. McDowell, Associate Editors.
 Leonard J. Lea, Managing Editor.
 Leta B. Moriarty, Assistant Editor.
 Published for the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.
 Subscription price: By the year, $2.
HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE
 INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI

CONTENTS

EDITORIALS:

Principles of the Gospel .....	890
The Harvest Festival Grows .....	890
President Smith's Return .....	891
Joint Council in Session .....	891
Basket Converts .....	891
Dignity and Beauty in Ministry .....	892
Our Historical Library .....	910

ORIGINAL ARTICLES:

The Worship of God, by F. A. Smith .....	894
Weekly Health Letter, by A. W. Teel, M. D. ....	899
A New Book of Mormon Study .....	900
Tom King: A Life History, by C. H. Porter .....	900
Caged Birds, by C. W. Butterworth .....	902

NEWS OF CHURCH AND HOME .....	903
MISCELLANEOUS .....	909

For Sale

30 ACRES 12 miles from Independence; 4-room house, lots of fruit, stone cave, springs, plenty of timber for fire wood. $3,500.00.

76 ACRES seven miles from Independence; 5-room house, barn, out buildings, pond, black soil 20 feet deep, raise anything, level land.

40 ACRES two miles from Independence. Highly improved. $15,000.00 cash.

DUPLEX—Rents $80.00 month. $7,000.00.

ROOMING HOUSE—12 rooms, $7,000.00.

WATKINS REAL ESTATE

N. W. Corner Square, Independence, Mo. Tel. 297

Buy Your Farms Now

While they are cheap. Any size, best terms. Special attention to readers of the Saints' Herald.

CHAS. R. BOWMAN

Butler, Mo.

LAMONI, IOWA

(Home of Graceland College)

Farm land and town property for sale.

G. W. BLAIR REAL ESTATE AGENCY.

Do you read the church publications?

HERALD

ENSIGN

VISION

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE

Independence, Missouri

Notice

The Independence Sanitarium and Hospital offers a three-year course in nurses' training to young women who are high school graduates.

For further information write to superintendent, G. E. Copeland, R. N.

Business for Sale

Long established Restaurant and Cafeteria for sale. This is a bargain. We must sell because of poor health.

Address Box 237 No. C. Independence, Missouri.

The TWO most important items on your budget,

SAVINGS AND LIFE INSURANCE.

INSURANCE DEPARTMENT OF THE CHURCH

(American Underwriters, Inc.)

Indep. 486 221 W. Lexington St.

NOW IS A GOOD TIME TO CHANGE.

At the mid year Interest date is an advantageous time to shift your Savings Account to a safe conservative institution with a quarter century standing.

We pay 3% on Time and Savings Deposits. "Soliciting New Business on Our Record."

JACKSON COUNTY BANK

Independence, Mo.

"Home of Savings"

THE SAINTS' WORLD

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST

Entered as second-class matter at the post office at Independence, Missouri, under Act of March 3, 1879, authorized July 21, 1921. Accepted for mailing at the special rate of postage provided for in section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917; authorized July 21, 1921. Published weekly at Independence, Missouri.

Volume 78

Independence, Missouri, September 30, 1931

Number 39

BAPTISM

I indeed baptize you with water unto repentance: but he that cometh after me is mightier than I. . . . Then cometh Jesus from Galilee to Jordan unto John, to be baptized of him. But John forbade him, saying, I have need to be baptized of thee, and comest thou to me? And Jesus answering said unto him, Suffer it to be so now: for thus it becometh us to fulfill all righteousness.—John 3: 11, 13-15.

AGENTS FOR GOD

By Joseph Luff

PARENT EDUCATION

A NEW RADIO PROGRAM

THE POWER OF PRAYER

By Roy Remington

LOST PEOPLE

A CALL FROM THE DEPARTMENT OF STATISTICS

College Day, October 18—Is Your Program Ready?

Israel, Remember the Sources of Thy Strength

Those words are good scripture, in that they represent the will of God to this people at this time. What are the sources of our strength? The Apostle Paul said: "This one thing I do." Singleness of purpose, complete consecration to a great cause made the Apostle Paul a power throughout the ages.

Men of the world who know little about hidden spiritual powers of the soul and nothing at all about the spiritual powers that flow from God on high depend largely upon material and superficial things to give them strength, power, and prestige. They trust wealth and the men and things it will buy; they struggle for position and honor; they depend upon intrigues and alliances, titles and dress. Some of these things are good enough in their place, but all are inadequate to make great men or to save humanity today. Too often when you dig down under all the millinery and self-seeking and wire pulling and come at the man there is not much man there.

To the great British conference on the affairs of India now in progress in London, there came a little skinny Hindu dressed in a loin cloth and sandals. When the customs officials asked as to his financial status he declared: "I am a poor mendicant. My earthly belongings consist of a few loin cloths, a spinning wheel, a towel, and two goats." He put up in a mission house in the poverty stricken east end of London. Others came to the same conference with pomp and ceremony, with long titles, in high hats and dress coats or uniforms. They put up at luxurious hotels and freely spent the money of their already debt-burdened countrymen. But this little Hindu commanded more respect and had more authority and was given a wider world hearing than all of the others combined. Why? In his bluff style Will Rogers tells us why:

London has had lots of conferences. There was enough fuss made over the disarmament one to fix the whole world for years. For years our delegates went by special boat. Dressmakers worked for months before. But a skinny little fellow with nothing but a breech cloth, a spinning wheel and an old she-goat, goes there representing more humanity and with more authority than all the high hats in the world. It's sincerity versus diplomacy. Viva, Gandhi.

The world gave its attention and its confidence to Mahatma Gandhi because he is a sincere man without divided allegiances, giving his whole soul and his whole body to a great and consecrated cause. He seeks nothing for himself. He is not concerned to satisfy his own needs first. (It is said that he gave up an income of twenty thousand dollars a year that he might give himself to the cause of the poor.) He comes representing starving and down-trodden millions. India's population makes America look like a country village; her poverty and woes make our hard times look like the millennium.

(Their per capita daily income is eight cents.) Mahatma Gandhi comes pleading for the poor and the oppressed, whose cause Christ made his own. He comes listening always to his "inner voice," which he believes with all his heart to be the voice of God. The world is tired of men of pretensions and is anxious to listen to that type of man. "Mahatma," is a title meaning "great soul." The world believes that within the little frame of Gandhi (who weighs less than a hundred pounds) there dwells a great soul. And great souls given to God and humanity are the only hope of the world today. Commercialism, atheism, materialism—all have failed.

The sources of Israel's strength are from God. His power flows to those who are willing to "do this one thing" with complete consecration. If we had a few thousand "great souls" giving themselves without the least reservation to this latter day work, believing in it with all their hearts, willing to be stripped of worldly honors and pleasures and to be spent in this cause, Zion would soon be built up. The world would listen to them and they would be in position to feed the spiritually hungry. It is a time for us now to put aside things of secondary importance or no importance at all, and all the things that hinder, and do "this one thing" for which the church was organized and to which we are called and ordained.

ELBERT A. SMITH.

Principles of the Gospel

III.—BAPTISM

One artist ingeniously pictured Jesus' baptism in the following manner: he is standing in the water just about knee-deep, while John, with reverent expression, pours a thin stream of water over his head from a thing that looks like a large clam shell. This conception of the baptism of Jesus is proved inaccurate by the statement, "And Jesus, when he was baptized, went up straightway out of the water." Jesus had been down in the water. He came up out of it. He had been immersed.

As long as baptisms are conducted in the good old-fashioned way, somebody is bound to get wet. Jesus himself was not afraid of the water, even if some of those who profess his name are. To substitute pouring and sprinkling for immersion is only to pave the way for the elimination of the ordinance altogether. Perhaps it is just as well to omit the ordinance as to perform it incorrectly.

There is a tendency among Christian churches to regard the ordinance of baptism as "an outward and visible sign of an inward and invisible grace." And they have come upon the idea that they may even get the inward grace without the outward sign. At least, the outward sign has been, in many instances, either changed completely or entirely neglected.

Our own people have been guilty of the mistake, at times, of calling baptism a symbol. Perhaps it is; but to call it just that and only that belittles it. It is more than a symbol: it is a sacrament.

If baptism means and does what the Bible says it does, it is a ceremony of profound significance in the life of the person who has brought his life to Christ. Either it is real, and all that the Bible says it is, or it is a sham and therefore nothing.

If anything can destroy the value of a symbol it is the mistake of calling it a symbol. If the symbol is to retain its soul-regenerating value, it must be regarded as the real and genuine thing. You can not call it a symbol without casting upon it the implication of artificiality. You reduce it from the reality of life to the false light and sham costuming of pageantry. The candidate for baptism must not think, "This is a symbol." If he does it will not be long before he is thinking, "This is only a play; it is unnecessary." He must feel that his act of contrition and penitence, as a consummation of his faith and repentance, is efficacious in washing away the sins from which he has suffered (if he be of an age to have this experience). The first requirement of baptism is that it should be real and true experience, endowed with all the importance and significance that the message of the New Testament gives to it.

Jesus was not known either in his own day or in any time since as a dabbler in shams. He had no time for pageantry. Though he spoke in parables, he did not leave the main issues of life in the obscurity of symbolism. His statements for the instruction of men are among the clearest and most challenging utterances that have ever spoken in defiance of a fanatical opposition. Jesus dealt directly with life, with humanity, and with God.

Baptism as a ceremony should not suffer the corruption of a changed ritual, nor the indignity of a prettified explanation. It washes the soul of the stains of sin. It is the door to the kingdom. Unless a person is willing to submit to it, his heart is not changed, and he has not reached the state of obedience which will make him a servant of the Master and a child of God. The words of Jesus are significant in this respect:

Jesus answered, Verily, verily, I say unto thee, except a man be born of water, and of the spirit, he can not enter into the kingdom of God.—John 3:5.

L. L.

Chasing rainbows is a poor way to provide for a rainy day.

The Joint Council Meetings

As the Herald goes to press the meetings of the Joint Council are drawing to a close, and the volume of business that has been under consideration is being rounded out. Officers of the church have been too busy to prepare statements in time for this publication, but will soon have something to report.

The Presiding Bishopric are at work on a statement of financial conditions and hope to have it ready in time for publication in next week's issue of the Herald. Needless to say the preparation of a financial report takes time and involves a measure of difficulty that makes it impossible to promise the report definitely, but the Bishopric are doing their best to have the report ready.

It is hoped that statements from other leading officers of the church may be ready also by next week. It will encourage our readers to know that all three members of the First Presidency were in attendance at the meetings of the Joint Council. Most of the members of the Quorum of Twelve were present throughout the meetings, and all were able to be present at some time. A large number of the Order of Bishops came from far and near to aid in the deliberations.

L. L.

Laboratory Notes on the Word of Wisdom

In a day when people lived largely on salt meat and potatoes, with only occasional variations of wild game and fruits; when fresh vegetables were difficult to obtain and not easily preserved; when people drank boiling hot beverages and highly spiced liquors; the Word of Wisdom came as a radical departure from the ordinary plan of home management.

For years the elders taught the Word of Wisdom, and its provisions have been from time to time a sort of battle line between the extremes in viewpoint and practice found in the church. Much good was accomplished in the effort to teach.

Of late years science has taught the value of the vegetable diet, and the provisions of the Word of Wisdom have been vindicated again and again. Our people look to it now with new confidence and increased respect.

The housewife, trying to obey the Word of Wisdom, and at the same time to provide good meals for her family, has had an up-hill struggle. She was told in no uncertain terms what not to do. But the suggestions of what she could do were few and ineffective. Isolated women here and there have studied the problem and have successfully arranged systems of diet at once satisfactory to the requirement of the Word and the needs and tastes of their families. They have done heroic work.

But this knowledge thus laboriously gained ought not to be confined to a few people. It should be made available to all of the homes in the church, and particularly to the young women who are making a start in the management of their households.

With the purpose of spreading this knowledge, Vision began the Word of Wisdom Contest. The results have been highly gratifying. Forty manuscripts have been received, a large number of them of very good quality and containing much excellent material. During the coming months the best of all these articles will be published in Vision. It should be a fine contribution to the health and welfare of the people of the church. For this reason if for no other it is highly desirable that every home in the church should receive Vision during the coming months. Times are hard, we know; money and work are scarce; and people in many localities do not have the means for subscribing even if they wish to do so. But all are urged to subscribe that can. We are doing our best to give the right kind of material for building good homes and home life among our people.

L. L.

Patriarch A. E. Stone Is Dead

After almost a quarter of a century of faithful work under general church appointment, another stalwart in the person of Patriarch Albert E. Stone, of Kirtland, Ohio, has passed away. His death at the age of seventy-four years and ten days, brings to a close the eventful missionary career of a man known and loved for his services in the east. Brother Stone was born September 13, 1857, at London, England, and came to America when he was twelve years of age. His baptism into the church occurred in 1895, and two years later he was ordained an elder. He occupied successively in the offices of seventy and high priest. Since his ordination to the office of patriarch, October 13, 1922, he gave without stint of his time and strength to the church; he worked as long as health permitted. His death at Kirtland, September 23, followed a considerable period of illness. The church mourns the passing of a consecrated worker.

The aristocracy of today is not one of birth or wealth, but of those who do things for the welfare of their fellow men.—Charles M. Schwab.

Cheerful obedience is the only kind worth practicing.—Selected.

Putting It Up to the Congregation

The minister of a large church discovered, as nearly every minister of a large church sooner or later discovers, that his congregation was in need of more pastoral service than he could give. Yet he was not quite content to turn over to an assistant the whole matter of calling. To do that is something like delegating a secretary to shake hands with your friends. It occurred to him that to meet with neighborhood groups of his people, thirty or forty at a time, would serve many of the purposes of individual pastoral calls and the plan was tried to the satisfaction of all parties. The incident is mentioned here partly because it may serve as a useful suggestion to other pastors who are confronted by a similar problem. But there is also another reason for mentioning it. After holding a few such meetings, the minister made a statement of the plan in his parish paper, with the remark that if the people wished such service to be extended further it was up to them to take initiative and make the necessary arrangements. This sounds the right note. In the matter of the organization of a parish for social and pastoral ministrations, the point is soon reached where it is the duty of the members of the congregation to assume an active rather than a passive attitude. To insist upon this is not to encourage ministerial indolence, but to put the responsibility where it rightly belongs. Indeed, the minister in this case happens to be a particularly energetic one—Doctor John Ray Ewers of Pittsburgh. It requires more energy for a minister to get a congregation to take the initiative in doing the things which it ought to do than to do them himself.—Editorial, Church Management, October 18, 1928.

Energy Wasted

A great many people dissipate more energy between the time they leave their work at night and when they return to it in the morning than they expend all day in their vocations, though they would be shocked and offended if anyone were to tell them so. They think that physical dissipation is the only method of energy sapping. But men and women of exemplary moral habits dissipate their vitality in a hundred ways. They indulge in wrong thinking; they worry; they fret; they fear this, that, and the other imaginary thing; and they carry their business home with them, and work as hard mentally after business hours as during them.—Flint Tidings.

A highbrow is one whose learning has outstripped his intelligence.—Vincent Massey, former Premier of Canada.

Agents for God

By Joseph Luff

Let a man so account of us as, of the ministers of Christ, and stewards of the mysteries of God. Moreover it is required in stewards, that a man be found faithful.—1 Corinthians 4: 1, 2.

Spend two minutes in rereading the above text, not as you read a street handbill, but with an earnest desire to ascertain a knowledge of your whereabouts—your rating in heaven.

We have been hearing for years a great deal about stewardship. The word and its use have been a jingling echo in our ears; but the application of it has been mostly confined to the things that our natural eyes can see. Without any desire to discount the value of those things or their necessity, I omit them from the current of this writing to emphasize, if any word from me can, the deeper, higher, and more outstanding importance of a stewardship divinely committed, which while including consequently all those does not assign them the exalted place in our discipleship that belongs essentially to the stewardship referred to in the above text.

Jesus said (see Matthew 6: 31-33 and Luke 12: 29-31), referring to earthly things, that "Your Father knoweth you have need of them." God is neither ignorant nor is he forgetful of their importance in this earth life; but he submits a divine proposition to us and pledges his word that if we honor and faithfully discharge the obligation it imposes, the other will be provided. This equally applies to the individual or the group and is as reliable as "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved," or, if not, why not? If God can not be trusted in the one promise, what is his word worth in the others? Our faith inspires our obedience in the one case and ought surely to do it in the other. Here is what he said, as recorded: "Seek ye first to build up the kingdom of God and to establish his righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you." To build up the kingdom of God necessitates the use of our stewardship of the mysteries of God.

This language was addressed to those whom he authorized to represent him—his ministers and disciples. Discipleship exists and is manifest only in those who do as their leader advises. Are we Christ's disciples? If we are, then all our procedure must disclose the fact that we have abandoned all our contrary ideas as people of the world and adopted Christ's ways, and that we have determined to give him the opportunity to demonstrate through us, his agents, the value of them—the fact that, though his ways are a mystery to man and, as he said, are not our ways nor his thoughts our thoughts, yet "as the rain cometh down, and the snow from heaven and returneth not thither, but watereth the earth, and maketh it bring forth and bud, that it may give seed to the sower, and bread to the eater; so shall my word be that goeth forth out of my mouth: it shall not return unto me void, but it shall accomplish that which I please, and it shall prosper in the thing whereto I sent it." (See Isaiah 55: 8-11.) Note, reader, that it is not promised to prosper in things which we please or prosper in the things to which we may apply it, but clearly to what he ordained and that alone.

If all this be true, will it not be well to remember that Jesus said that he of himself said nothing, but spoke only as he received commandment from the Father (see John 12: 49, 50), and that he also said we were to live by every word that proceedeth from the mouth of God. (Matthew 4: 4.) Then what does it matter whether what he said spells mystery to us or not? If because there is mystery connected with it, we hesitate to trust it, then we should hand him back his goods and cease pretending to be his stewards.

Discipleship does not consist in debating with God or Christ as to the correctness or adaptation of their mysterious utterances but in agreeing with and employing them; and stewardship consists also in presenting them to mankind in a way that guarantees our absolute confidence in them, turning ourselves over as instruments through whom the divine pledge may be redeemed, handling the divine goods—their property—as their agents, exactly as they delivered them to us and without an associated expression of doubt concerning them.

Paul said: "We walk by faith, not by sight," and there is a volume of meaning in that simple sentence. Many divine things can not be "seen" by us, but we are to accept and handle them, not as our own creations but as the property of God, intrusted to our stewardly handling, leaving him to make good.

We implore men and women to be reconciled to God. We unhesitatingly tell them that is our divinely appointed commission. But what does being reconciled to God mean? Is it simply confessing verbally that he is the world's Creator and Savior? Surely not. It means being in agreement with God, indorsing without question every word that proceeds from his mouth and acting in accord with those words, abandoning all our differing conceptions as to methods, processes, and possibilities, and leaving the question of outcome with him without a semblance of doubt concerning it.

Of course that will make us a "peculiar people," but that is exactly what is desired, and when we become that, we will also be a royal priesthood and a holy nation, as Peter declares (see 1 Peter 2: 9), a people, a nation, a priesthood whom he can depend on—unlike everybody but Christ; but so loaded up with him that we can not speak without his being heard.

The greater our intake of Christ the more abundant will be the outflow from us of what characterized him. All we have and are will flow out in the stream of our conduct to promote the interests of his mission among men in his way, for his way alone will then be ours.

It will no longer then be our question: What is demanded of me in the law? but rather: How much is it in my power to do to magnify his name? And our all is voluntarily laid upon the altar. It all depends on how much space in us we have assigned to Christ. Ingersoll and all his kind gave some room to Christ, but reserved and exercised their claimed right to exclude him where they pleased. Is that the province of the ministers, the stewards of the mysteries of God—those who pretend to possess and proclaim him as he is? Is it not enough for them to believe that Christ said a certain thing in order to bank thereon against all human calculations and reasonings? Otherwise what is the difference between them and Colonel Ingersoll? It is only a question of the amount of space within them they allow Christ to occupy. If we give Christ all the room and liberty within us that true stewardship implies, then it will be impossible for anybody to meet us without seeing him; and remember it is from the lack of that sight of him that the world is starving to death today. When, instead of assigning Christ a little anteroom or closet within us, and reserving all the rest for ourselves, to think and act and fraternize with the world and its creations, we give over to him the whole dwelling—parlor, sitting room, dining room, porches, closets, basement, garret, office, and factory—then so far as we are concerned, in our conduct and life and influence, stewardship will be in indisputable evidence and the outflow in service will be the Christ duplication, "the mystery of Godliness, God manifest in flesh," and this revelation is all the world needs to induce the responses that will wipe out and make thereafter impossible such a fact as empty church coffers and reduction of operative forces. It will, however, forbid the outlay of income for anything but the ordained expenditures for the conduct of his cause.

This is the opportunity God has been pleading for through the world's life, and never was granted it fully but once, and then—O, what advantage he took of it—the history of the details of it is the outstanding, towering revelation of glorious achievement in heaven and earth to this day. One man against all the world declared: "Thy will, not mine, be done." "I came not to do my will but thine." And meant it. Gave God the absolute and exclusive right of way within him so much so that whoever saw him saw God (see John 14: 9) and creation, redemption, and resurrection flowed forth as a stream from the celestial fountain through his touch and his word wherever he went.

What a royal, unparalleled, divinely magnificent and faith-producing exhibition was furnished in that one life, the life of One who came to demonstrate the fact that God meant what he said and all he said and only waited the world's faith to vindicate his word. I see four thousand hungry men, besides women and children feasting upon bread and fishes. A moment's thought assures me that bread means grain, grinding, kneading, and baking and that the production of that grain requires months ordinarily and the rest of the process requires hours at least. It assures me that fish must be bred, developed to the stage of fitness for food, then caught and cooked, and all that means years. I learn reliably that five barley loaves and two small fishes were all that were in evidence at the beginning, but that the fragments at the close in excess of the feasting needs, filled twelve baskets. I get into a brown study: There were probably as many women and children in that crowd as there were men, for that is always the case with followers of Jesus, eight thousand hungry people. How many loaves of bread and pounds of fish were consumed? Is it beyond reason to figure half a pound of fish and half that weight of bread, which would mean four thousand pounds of fish and two thousand pounds of bread; but to be certain, let us say three thousand or just two thousand pounds of fish and fifteen hundred pounds of bread eaten and twelve baskets full left. Where did it come from? What was it that bred, developed to eatable size, caught, and cooked those three thousand or more pounds of fish? What raised the grain, ground, kneaded and baked that fifteen hundred pounds of bread? I solemnly and devoutly ask: What condensed the demand for years of nature's processes into minutes of accomplishment? What created and spread forth before mortals this astonishing reality? What dismissed the necessity for water, soil, procreation, growth, sowing, reaping, millstones and years? Where can you find a parallel? I will tell you. Back thousands of years at a time called "the beginning," when chaos existed and elements rioted, Somebody spoke, and all that we call creation resulted and is still, after thousands of years, in evidence. Whose voice possessed that potency and whose being that wisdom? Reader, listen: It was this same Jesus, for "Without him was not anything made that was made. In him was life." It was this same Jesus who by his word again became the Creator. All the elements of creation and development were in that voice, and for him to say was for it to happen. That word always did and always will mean accomplishment. Glory be to his name!

Listen to it in resurrection, as he stands by the tomb of Lazarus and by the bier of the widow's son at Nain. Poor Martha thought resurrection meant a last day occurrence, but Jesus reminded her, "I am the resurrection," and then in demonstration cried out, "Lazarus, come forth." Instantly resurrection became a fact. All the facts and marks of decomposition, disintegration, and decay that attached during the four days under death's dominion, fled at the sound of that voice, and the living Lazarus stepped forth to confront the vision of those who heard it. Hear that voice again in response to the appealing leper, the blind suppliant, and ringing in the ears of the raving maniac, and as it echoes by day and night along the streets and at the various resorts of Jerusalem and throughout Judea, and note the responses as the heavens bow to and confess the potency of that word in every instance and rush to its fulfillment; and as we behold and contemplate, let the picture put to shame the fear that any word from those lips can or will possibly fail.

All God and Christ ask of us is to give them a chance to make good, but we hesitate, fearing that it can not possibly be true, and that we must resort to methods not prescribed. Is not this one of the mysteries of which we are stewards if we are really Christ's ministers? Were we not chosen that the glory of the mystery should have its outshining as with the early apostles of whose achievements we read (see Colossians 1: 27).

Did not that outshining of itself inspire those who heard and adopted the message borne centuries ago to dispose of all they had and lay the income at the apostles' feet to promote the success of the new evangel? Did ever any man or woman come under the glow and catch the real fire and fervor of our message without instinctively responding with all he had? We have known of persons who were in reputation for miserliness who were reached by the Restoration story and almost instantly, their coffers burst open, and they have become as famous for their generosity as they were formerly notorious for their penuriousness. No need to tell them that tithes were a legal debt and a demanded payment. Love lifted them above legal exactitude and made giving a joyous privilege. They were learning discipleship to Jesus, who came not to get but to give, not to be pampered and have a "good time," but to do and suffer for the objects of his love; who, though he were rich became voluntarily poor, that wealth divine might thereby be conveyed to others and in proportion as they got nearer to Christ, the more they acted like him and dollars ceased to have value with them save as a means of glorifying God. Instances of this character are in evidence everywhere. Is it, therefore, fanatical to believe and teach that if our ministrations were directed exclusively toward making men spiritual, like Christ, reconciled fully to all he taught, that "all these things" will flow our way in measure equal to our necessities?

Of course this presupposes that we handle only his goods and confine ourselves to his way of doing it, for the moment we add or substitute other goods than those he brought from heaven and delivered over to our handling, or the moment we handle those goods in other ways or for other purposes than Christ's word and example authorizes, our stewardship terminates and our claim upon him for the fulfillment of his promises is forfeited. In that case we need not be surprised at any adverse happenings.

Stewards, as above declared, are required to be "found faithful." Faithful to whom and to what? Think a minute, two minutes, five minutes. Is faithfulness to the stewardship of the mysteries of God revealed in sermons and demands and "drives" for the perishable things and to promote the gospel interests, in ignoring the "take no purse or script" counsel? Is it in expending vast sums of money and amounts of time and energy in spectacular display, in costly structures, in worldly pleasure pursuits? Is that faithfulness in the stewardship of the mysteries of God? Does that prove us to be God's "peculiar people"? Would not sufficient of earthly needs to meet our requirements as disciples be "added unto us," if we confined ourselves in service to an effort to make men and women like Christ by doing what Paul signified when he wrote: "God forbid that I should glory, save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom the world is crucified unto me, and I unto the world."—Galatians 6: 14.

This triple crucifixion is the token of our devotion, and if it does not occur with us, discipleship must be sought for elsewhere. If our affections be not changed are we new creatures? What has the gospel done for us and by what marks is our transfer from the world, while physically in it, betokened? All that Christ brought from heaven to institute and make operative his kingdom on earth, he left here for its continuance when he ascended. That justified the calling of those to whom those things were intrusted, "his body," and as long as that body continues righteously to handle that trust, God will still be manifest in flesh on earth—the mystery of Godliness—the riches and glory of which were, as Paul wrote, to be revealed through the faithfulness of his stewards.

Christ always looks the same whether he is in or out of us, hence if the exhibition furnished in our lives does not correspond with the picture of him in sacred history, let us not deceive ourselves and others by imagining and teaching that he has changed in character, purpose, or method. It is simply because he is not in us in the manner and to the degree that our claim to be his stewards justifies our hearers in expecting. It is simply that agency intrusted to us to handle his goods in his way, is a talent buried—lost or prostituted.

Our intrusted business as a church, is to keep God and Christ on exhibition, not in mural or canvas paintings, not in marble sculpture, not in stage dramatics, or other Pharasaical display; but in living discipleship wherein and whereby God will always be actually and actively manifest in flesh. We have no other commission. If we fail in this, it matters not what we succeed in otherwise. If we gain the world (all the gratification it offers), it is perishable and its destiny is destruction; but the affections that are set on things above as advised by Christ and are contented therewith are secure in a joint heirship with Christ as eternal as Jehovah himself.

We need never have been “chosen out of the world” if the world’s possessions, teachings, and ways could save us or please God. We were “chosen out of the world” because God wanted a “peculiar people” as above stated, unlike all others except Christ; hence were placed where we could learn of him and come under his processes exclusively, uninterrupted by what before environed us. In fact, as Paul frequently declared to the Ephesians, Galatians, and Colossians, also to the Corinthians, the church is “the body of Christ,” a continuation of Christ on earth of his flesh and his bone (Ephesians 5: 30) to perpetuate the work he started, hence, as he stated in his parables, he gave unto it, or them, “his goods,” his authority and then told them that he sent them as God had sent him, and breathing upon them said, “Receive ye the Holy Ghost.” Thus equipped he charged them to “Occupy till I come.” Hence the continuance of that work by them was to be after the manner he had taught them, making the church the light of the world, as he had been until his departure.

If he should come today where would he find that “body” embodying in its teachings and work exclusively what he intrusted to it? A breach by the agent dissolves the obligation of his principal. “If ye do what I say, then I am bound, but otherwise ye have no promise.” This was not a slip of the tongue.

It is universal and eternal in its application and significance, and it is not our right or province to canvass the utterances of Christ and select those that mean fulfillment. Discipleship, as we have shown, in its completeness obligates a cheerful and continuous adherence in word and work to the counsel and example of Christ, without which all claim is forfeited as to the conditional promises to his followers by him. This, of course, essentially includes the promise of all needed things of this life to his ministers, if they confine their efforts faithfully and exclusively toward the building up of the kingdom of God and the establishment of his righteousness in the manner and by the methods alone prescribed and employed by him. Hence if, as individuals or collectively, we are suffering and hindered in the prosecution of our work today, from a lack of anything really necessary to permit continuance, it is ground for question as to the completeness of our discipleship and the faithfulness of our stewardship, and suggests investigation and possibly repentance.

May God move within us unto discernment of what our discipleship and stewardship means in its deepest divine sense and to the giving to him by us of an opportunity to prove unto and through us that he meant every word he said and that his word is eternal or as Peter said: “Shall never pass away.”

Tom King: A Life History

PART THIRTEEN

By C. H. Porter

(Continued from the Herald of September 23, page 901.)

Sunday Schools, Decorum, etc.

Tom was an advocate of Sunday school work, but unfortunately his ideal was too high for many others, consequently he could do but little without being considered too strict or particular in his methods.

A good school to him meant one that was well organized; especially with an efficient superintendent and secretary. It also meant a selection of spiritual minded teachers who could, from their own experience and knowledge, make personal appeal to the members of their classes, and assist them in making choice of good things. It meant to him the choosing of the very best material for both officers and teachers, and an active cooperation with the branch officers, more especially of the president. It also meant correct deportment and regular attendance, with the sessions opened promptly without hurry or confusion.

It caused him disappointment when he found, after repeated efforts, that he could not work as actively as he desired without antagonizing his brethren whose ideas differed radically from his own. He found it necessary to do or say but little unless called upon, but could not refrain from expressing disapproval at proper times when his opinion was asked.

He was sometimes spoken of as one who did not take much interest in the Sunday school work. These remarks were caused by a misapprehension of the circumstances.

He was always interested, but, as before stated, he found it impossible to take an active part in it without antagonizing others, so he left the field to them and sought to make himself useful in other directions.

He never excused himself from speaking to a Sunday school, and often wished that superintendents would more often invite visitors of ability and good information to address their schools, believing that much good could be accomplished in that way.

Conclusion

Tom continued in the mission field about twenty-four years. During that time he served in every official capacity, and in every appointive office, in his field of labor. He was prompt and willing to serve, and his efficiency was unquestioned.

Soon after he had passed the age of sixty years he felt justified in asking to be relieved of field service. This was accorded him, after which he took more active interest in family, business, and local church matters.

Once during his twenty-four years of active service he asked permission of the authorities for time off to visit the land of his birth. This was granted him, and he had a splendid visit, and preached several times in the village in which he was born and raised.

Several years later he also visited his home land. He was then well advanced in age but was in good health, and his mental powers were unimpaired. Again he had the great privilege of visiting the home of his childhood and young manhood, and of visiting with relatives and friends of former days, and of preaching to the friends and neighbors of yore, as well as to members of the church as occasion presented itself. This visit gave him much satisfaction, and from it he gained much information.

Tom is now in his ninth decade of life, is in good health, active, willing and able to respond to calls made upon him as a minister, enjoys platform and pulpit work, and sometimes employs his time in writing for the press.

His life has been full of interest from the beginning. He has always been a lover of good books, and has a library of which he is justly proud.

His children and grandchildren are a source of comfort and pleasure to him. His old age is one of activity derived from good health, and his mental powers are seemingly unabated, and he can still sing with the spirit and with the understanding:

Praise God from whom all blessings flow;
Praise Him all creatures here below;
Praise Him above ye heavenly hosts;
Praise Father, Son, and Holy Ghost.

(Concluded.)

The Back-to-College Movement

By L. E. Flowers

What change, if any, is the present economic situation causing in the enrollment in your institution?

What action, if any, is being taken to encourage or make it possible for young people to continue their college work?

Early in August these two questions were asked presidents of Iowa colleges and universities by Miss Agnes Samuelson, state superintendent of public instruction, acting upon suggestion of President Hoover's National Committee on Employment and Relief.

President G. N. Briggs, of Graceland College, reported as follows:

First, the present economic situation will undoubtedly affect our enrollment during the coming year. I think adversely in that many students who have indicated their expectation to enroll will not be able to do so unless there is an improved economic condition quite evident by September 1. On the other hand due to unemployment a considerable number of young people who would otherwise be employed are planning to enter college because there is little else for them to do.

Second, we are making provisions for what we call "College Day" throughout our church, which will occur the third Sunday in October. On that occasion we will present the needs of students who are hoping for scholarships which will enable them to attend this year. The funds raised will be used to assist worthy students in the way of scholarships. We also expect to extend more favorable credit conditions to worthy students who could not otherwise attend. As against these two conditions, however, the occupational opportunities in the community where students who help meet their expenses by assignment to industrial occupations will be somewhat more limited this year than in the past.

Following up the questionnaire, Miss Samuelson called a conference of the presidents of Iowa colleges the latter part of August, so that these administrators might exchange experiences and perhaps initiate some concerted action to meet the economic problems involved. Representatives of thirty institutions were present. President Briggs, of Graceland, was elected permanent secretary of the conference.

The conference took place at the State House in Des Moines, and as announced by Miss Samuelson, permanent chairman, was held under the auspices of the stabilization committee of the Iowa Committee on Employment and Relief, of which Professor

B. A. May, of Graceland, was chairman. The conference was called "for the purpose of considering the problem of college attendance this fall and of finding ways and means by which more young people could go to high school and college in these times, both for the sake of preparing for future service and for relieving the employment situation." The conference developed out of a request from the National Committee on Employment and Relief for information as to what was being done in Iowa to encourage college attendance and to help needy students to go to college or to continue their training."

The chairman of the National Committee sent the following message to the conference: "The President's emergency committee for employment is glad to know of the splendid efforts going forward in your universities and colleges to encourage and assist young people to continue their training. The committee believes that during the period of unemployment when preference is naturally given to those with dependents young people should be encouraged and given every possible opportunity to continue in educational pursuits. . . ."

"The nature of the replies to my recent inquiry concerning college enrollment," said Miss Samuelson, "indicates that many things are being done to encourage students to enter or continue their college work." Most of the institutions had reported that the depression had already affected their enrollments adversely, while on the other hand practically every one of them had taken some measures to aid students by providing part-time employment and establishing scholarships and scholarship loan funds.

A "Back-to-College" movement was sponsored by the colleges represented as a follow-up program after the conference had adjourned, the aim of which was to encourage as many young men and women as possible to enter colleges and universities for the fall term. The conference agreed with the state and national committees that such a movement would not only help to relieve the unemployment situation, but would also help many worthy students to finish their college education. "Help them Learn to Earn," was the slogan of the campaign.

The following paragraphs are from the report of the conference findings committee, whose recommendations formed the basis of the "Back-to-College" movement. It recommended:

That the economic situation in general calls for continued schooling in the case of serious-minded students who would otherwise face an already over-crowded labor market.

That scholarships and loan funds, particularly for advanced students, should be encouraged on a state-wide basis.

That well-to-do residents of the state sponsor wherever possible the education of deserving young men and women of their home communities in any of the Iowa colleges or universities.

That service clubs, alumni, and committee organizations within communities provide funds for their own young people, these young people to select their own Iowa institutions. . . .

That the institutions of higher learning represented at this conference agree to take every possible measure to avoid the dissipation of scholarships and loan funds by reserving them for the students whose needs are evident after careful investigation.

That we emphasize the importance of small loans—even one hundred dollars or less might be the deciding point as to whether or not a student goes to college.

Graceland was and is a part of this "Back-to-College" movement. Since her student body is made up of young men and women from all parts of the country and the world, Graceland does not organize her program on a state-wide basis, as suggested in the second recommendation above, but works on a church-wide basis in keeping with her enrollment: thus the annual College Day set aside by the church in the interests of the Scholarship Fund, as indicated by President Briggs in his report to the Iowa State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

Our people are not especially well-to-do, so perhaps the third recommendation does not apply strictly to them. Yet by contributing to the Scholarship Fund the people of the church everywhere do in this way sponsor the education of the young people of their own communities. There may be districts that do not have representatives at Graceland this year, but perhaps last year or the year before they had some one, and in the years to come they will be sending others to the college on the Hill. Last year scholarships were loaned from the Fund to students from the following states: Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, Pennsylvania, Texas, West Virginia, and Ontario, Canada. The scholarship Fund is the effort of the church to care for the needs of its own worthy young people who wish to carry on higher educational work.

In keeping with the idea expressed in the fifth recommendation above, the Graceland Scholarship Fund is administered with great care. Application forms must be filled out by students who wish to secure loans, and the detailed information and certification required assures the college of the dependability of those to whom loans are granted. A small fee is charged with each scholarship to cover the expenses of administering and to thus guarantee the permanence of the fund to which the church contributes each year.

The percentage of loss is small. "A young man who borrows money to go to college is the best risk in the world," says J. R. Sage, registrar of Iowa State College, who has had years of experience and acquaintance with college students. . . . Graceland has found this to be true, not only of young men but of young women as well. Loans from the Scholarship Fund begin coming back in promptly after the students are out of school and have found employment. Iowa's college heads were unanimous in their testimony that college students almost never dishonor such financial agreements, and in their opinion that loans to students afford as safe an investment as can be found at the present time.

The sixth recommendation above mentions the importance of small loans. Graceland scholarships are each for one hundred and twenty-five dollars, the amount of one year's tuition, or less.

When Graceland opened her school year, September 7, the expected happened—the enrollment was not quite as large as last year. This was not because there was a lack of students who wanted to come, but because of their increased financial needs, the difficulty of furnishing them employment, of making loans to them.

As the "Back-to-College" movement said in one of its bulletins, "Many of our young people are ambitious and willing to learn, but are unable to continue their education without financial assistance of some kind. College authorities are swamped with requests for scholarships or tuition loans. Present budgets are inadequate. Why not help out by investing your money in an education for a worthy young man or woman?" That is what the church does each year on its official College Day. The need this year is greater than ever.

When President Briggs was asked what was being done to encourage young people to continue their education at Graceland, he replied at once, "The Church is backing this college!" He was speaking with the conviction of experience, with memories of the endowment campaign with the assurance that he represented a church in which faith and knowledge have always gone hand in hand. Let that church continue to merit his confidence.

Credo

I have outlived desire and youth;
Have forgotten lore, discarded sooth—
Beauty is truth.

Beauty—truth—one and the same;
The source, the seed from which men came—
Beauty is flame.

Beauty or flame—it will devour
Every man in his ultimate hour—
Beauty is power.

Beauty—power; only a nod
And April leaps from a frozen clod—
Beauty is God.

—Ethel Romig Fuller, in the Christian Century.

The Power of Prayer

By Roy Remington

For if ye would hearken unto the spirit which teacheth a man to pray, ye would know that ye must pray: for the evil spirit teacheth not a man to pray, but teacheth him that he must not pray. But behold I say unto you, that ye must pray always, and not faint: that ye must not perform anything unto the Lord, save in the first place ye shall pray unto the Father in the name of Christ, that he will consecrate thy performance unto thee, that thy performance may be for the welfare of thy soul—2 Nephi 14: 11, 12.

The Spirit which teacheth a man to pray is the Holy Spirit that was promised by the Savior while here upon the earth to his disciples. The Spirit of prayer brings the soul into that attitude of humility that makes it acceptable in the sight of the Lord for the reception of power, wisdom, discernment, and truth. The Spirit quickens the physical organism with which mankind is endowed, and brings an understanding to that man of his position in the great work of the Lord.

With the physical organs of reason well regulated, it is not a hard task for them to analyze or solve any of the problems put before them. In fact they are so keen in their operations that the problems are solved in many instances almost before their presence is made known to the soul of the man. It is the Spirit which teaches the man to pray that furnishes the proper adjustment and regulation of the organs of reason.

While in this condition of perfect operation the soul of man has no limit of capacity, neither has it bounds of reception, but on the contrary there pours into it knowledge that will store energy for the assistance in life's problems for many years to come, in the short period measured as the "twinkling of an eye." By this means are the prophets and other holy men of God sustained, and fed in the matter that will enable them to reach through the successive periods of time, and perceive the acts of men and God far in the future.

Through the quickening of this Spirit and the attitude of prayer it was given to David of Israel to write the psalms which have lived through these many generations and today form a major part of the songs in which we give expression to our adoration and awe of Deity and the works of his mighty hand. After seeing the glories of the heavens and the earth, the wonders of the eternal worlds of creation that God is the author of, it is little wonder that David burst forth, "What is man that Thou art mindful of him, and the son of man that thou visiteth him"! whereupon there opened to his vision a newer and clearer vision of the creative ability of God than had before been his privilege.

By this same spirit came the messenger of light and taught the lesson of divine protection in the case of Elisha and his servant. They prayed for rain, but no rain came; the people were dying of thirst, their cattle were in agony, but no help arrived, and none could help or assist them. Then after they prayed earnestly, in sackcloth and ashes, the servant came in and said, "I see a little cloud, as of the size of a man's hand," and the prophet of the Lord said: "Thank the Lord, help cometh," and sure enough it did come, and in abundance, for the drouth was broken, the cattle refreshed and silenced.

This spirit makes itself known through its promptings to the soul of man. It will prompt that man, that it is time to pray: not that selfish desires may receive gratification, neither that self may have mastery over another, but that the soul through the mastery of self, may assist another to the plane that will enable them both to tread steadfastly on to God. Hours of day or night are not taken into account by this spirit, for it knows how to operate at the precise moment that the necessity presents itself for the need of the soul to humble itself more severely than at other times. If heeded, the soul will inevitably learn of the reason for this when the problem is presented to it for solution.

There are two kinds of spirits, one which teaches a man to pray, and one which tells him not to pray. It is up to the individual soul to determine which of these spirits he shall heed, and become subject to for tutelage. His decision made, he walks along the path of his choice and reaps the fruitage of his own planting. Whether willing or not to follow the Spirit that teaches to pray, his life is his answer to God, the creator of all heaven and earth, who said, "Pray always and faint not."

We may not heed the promptings of the choice spirit, which is of God, and may feel in our hearts to say: "Oh, tomorrow I will heed and pray, but not today," and feel that we are justifying our acts by such a disposition of the problem facing us. Yet when tomorrow comes, we look back and see today's work unfinished, and though we may live a hundred years, we can not retrace and do yesterday's work. It must remain unfinished, and we lose as a consequence.

That my soul will be blest, I must pray to the Lord God, in the name of Jesus Christ his Son, that he will help me to so adjust my act and my thought to the law that he has set, that my every act and thought may be devoted to his purposes in bettering mankind, and that as a consequence thereof, my soul may be enlarged that my capacity may increase and the glory of the Lord be made manifest through my life.

I must not weary of my prayers to God, for in

CHURCH WORK AND SERVICES

A Radio Program in Parent Education

By C. B. W.

Beginning on Monday, September 28, and each Monday thereafter for a probable period of thirty weeks, Station KTAR, of Phoenix, Arizona, will broadcast lessons in parent education. The lectures are provided by the Phoenix Union High School as a part of their extension service, and regular high school credit will be given to those who fulfill credit requirements. There is no charge for enrollment, and all who do enroll, wherever they may be, will be furnished a syllabus of the course and be privileged to write the examinations and to do the project work under direction of the instructors in Phoenix.

Our church people will be interested in this course, especially because the instructor is Mrs. Bertha Stevens, one of the joint authors of our text, Guiding the Nursery Child, and author of the series of monthly lessons which have been appearing in the Herald. Mrs. Stevens will be happy to have our people who can to take advantage of this radio course, and to write her personally of their problems. Good reception from KTAR should be possible in the southwestern states.

The following announcement appeared in the Arizona Parent-Teacher:

RADIO PROGRAM IN PARENT EDUCATION

Classes dealing with the problems of parent and child will be offered over the radio through KTAR School of the Air on Mondays beginning Monday, September 28, the hour to be announced later.

The first class will be concerned with the preschool child and will deal with the practical problems that parents meet daily. This class will be taught by Mrs. Bertha Stevens that act I show my weakness, and my submission to the power of the adversary. The spirit of God invites me to the table of the Lamb to partake of the fruits of the gospel of Jesus Christ, which will build my strength, and fortify my reserves against the powers of darkness, and keep me safe from their destructive arts, and make me pure for the purpose that God has ordered my creation.

Thus, O Lord, may it ever be meet in thy holy sight, that I may stand erect before mankind, yet in humility, and teach them the laws of life and eternity, that they, too, might seek to follow Thee, and learn thy way that all power may become subservient to thy law. This we pray in Jesus' name. Amen.

whose training and practical experience fit her for this work. The classes are sponsored by the Phoenix Union High School. There will be no registration fee, but those who register for the class will receive the syllabi and other helps which will make possible further study. How to register will be told over the radio.

It has been suggested that those wishing to form study groups can arrange to meet at the time of the radio hour and then, with the help of the syllabi, meet for discussion of the lesson. Questions raised will be answered over the radio or by individual letter.

MILDRED WEIGLEY WOOD,
State Chairman Parent Education.

We understand that three courses will be offered, having approximately ten lessons each, in the following order; The Pre-School Child, The Pre-Adolescent Age, and Problems of Youth.

We are privileged to announce that a credit of one point per class hour, probably ten points for each of the three courses toward our certificate in Religious Education and Leadership, will be awarded those who secure a certificate of credit from the Union High School of Phoenix. The procedure would be as follows:

1. If you find that you can tune in on the lectures make application for enrollment to the Union High School, Phoenix, Arizona.

2. Listen in each Monday, do the required assignments as indicated in the lectures and in the syllabus. On completion of the course you will receive a credit slip from Phoenix.

3. Send this slip to the Department of Religious Education with ten cents fee for transfer of the credit to the Department files.

Guiding the Nursery Child

STUDY HELPS FOR PARENTS AND WORKERS IN THE NURSERY DEPARTMENT OF THE CHURCH SCHOOL

By Mrs. Bertha Stevens, 806 North Seventh Street, Phoenix, Arizona.

(The text, Guiding the Nursery Child, by Mesley and Stevens, may be ordered from the Herald Publishing House. Price, $1.25.)

LESSON TEN

Social Development of the Little Child

References: Guiding the Nursery Child, pages 55-57; 92-98; 118; Adjustment to Authority, 120-122; Family Relationships Affecting Behavior, 123-153; specific problems as they relate to the child's relationships with others.

The social development of the little child is a broad topic, for it involves all his contacts and relationships with others. One can easily see what a large share of one's life it occupies. Most of the problems in the management of children center around this topic. The "socialization of the child" is one of the chief goals of parenthood.

How does he react to his fellows? Is he selfish, egotistic, shy, or is he kind, thoughtful of others, meeting others easily?

Rand and Sweeney in their book speak of two goals in life:

(1) The biological goal, because of which the personality reaches outward from the self, to the family, then on to companions of the same sex and then to the opposite sex, finally perpetuating itself in the founding of a new family and giving a new life to the world.

(2) The social goal, to attain which the individual must be prepared to make some contribution toward the improvement and progress of the changing civilization in which each lives.

I. Traits definitely social in nature:

- (1) Unselfishness.
- (2) Helpfulness.
- (3) Shyness.
- (4) Sense of fairness.
- (5) Lying.
- (6) Sense of ownership.
- (7) Courtesy.

II. Discuss these from the standpoint of:

- (1) Stage of development usual in the pre-school age.
- (2) How best to develop or change.

III. Add other traits to this list as they occur to you.

IV. Describe an actual problem connected with the social development of a little child. What methods would you use to solve it?

V. Discuss the problems described on pages 123-153, Guiding the Nursery Child, that are definitely social in nature. Suggest other ways of meeting the situations.

Christmas Offering News

PORT HURON LEADS

The Presiding Bishopric are notified by the officials of the branch at Port Huron, Michigan, that a total of $320.00 has already been raised in cash toward their annual Christmas Offering. The plan adopted at Port Huron has been unique, and certainly for its purpose, has been effective. It has enlisted the total membership of the branch in wholesome, friendly rivalry in which each has shared in a most worthy cause.

The Port Huron plan has used a "white elephant" wall chart, marked off in one hundred and four squares. For each square there was a dark gray "patch" of the same size. The patches were taken by individuals, families, classes, and groups. When three dollars each was raised in cash, the "patches" were placed on the chart, with the names of those giving the offering, and often a motto or message written on the patch.

Twenty-two families and groups are represented with one or more patches; one class gave six, another five, and one four; six classes gave two patches each, and eight classes gave one each. Besides this, the remaining patches were taken up by the general Christmas offering of the school.

The success of the project is due to enthusiastic team work and cooperation, coupled with an earnest desire to assist the church in a time of financial need. Those in charge and the branch at Port Huron are to be commended both for the generous amount of this special offering made early in the year, and for the spirit in which it is given.

A "white elephant" chart with glued patches may be purchased from D. C. Cook and Company, Elgin, Illinois, for $1.00. The example set by Port Huron may well be followed in other places. The plan should have special value if undertaken at the beginning of the year, in January.

Do You Know These People?

THE DEPARTMENT OF STATISTICS ASKS AID IN LOCATING MEMBERS

To the Editors and Readers of the Saints' Herald,
Greetings:

In the list which follows are the names of persons who have been reported unknown by the secretary of the Kansas City Stake. A diligent effort has been made by the stake officers and by this department to locate these persons, with a marked degree of success in many cases, but after everything has been done along available lines, the following names remain on the list.

We are therefore appealing to the readers of the Herald, asking them to go over the list carefully, and if they can give us any information about any of these names that will assist us in bringing the records up-to-date, to send the same to the Department of Statistics, The Auditorium, Independence, Missouri. If the complete present address cannot be given, suggestions as to where the same may be obtained will be appreciated.

Yours sincerely,

THE DEPARTMENT OF STATISTICS,

By C. L. OLSON.

Name	Year of Birth	Year of Baptism	Places Where Once Enrolled
Abbott, Joseph Burton	1875	1897	Beardstown, Illinois; Canton, Illinois; Independence, Kansas City.
Abbott, Laura	1873	1902	Beardstown, Illinois; Canton, Illinois; Independence, Kansas City.
Adams, Charles Warren	1894	1906	Kansas City.
Albertson, Alice M. (Messick)	1882	1899	Lees Summit, Third and First Kansas City.
Aldrich, Adell	1850	1906	First Kansas City.
Alexander, Mason I.	1902	1920	Independence, Kansas City.
Allison, Edward	1874	1910	Independence, Kansas City.
Allison, Olive L.	1900	1910	Independence, Kansas City.
Amick, Lulu May (Crosby)	1881	1907	Packard, Iowa, Cameron, Missouri, Kansas City.
Anderson, Joseph H.	1890	1899	Bedison, Cameron, Independence, Kansas City.
Anderson, Nalda G. (Arney)	1901	1914	Far West, Missouri; Selling, Oklahoma; Independence, Kansas City.
Anderson, Otto S.	1862	1870	Wirth, Shenandoah, Iowa; Kansas City.
Antrim, Lora F.	1894	1904	Atchison, Kansas, Kansas City.
Appl, Grace B. (Hoffman)	1887	1897	Chelsea Park, Homestead, Kansas.
Applegarth, Gladys Marie	1899	1915	Quinadaro, Kansas.
Arann, Buner (Bonner)	1888	1919	Foundry Hill, Tennessee; Independence, Kansas City.
Arnold, May (Malone)	1896	1914	Independence, Kansas City.
Ashbaugh, James W.	1887	1899	First Kansas City.
Ashlock, James M.	1848	1886	Armstrong, Kansas.
Ashlock, Nettie	1861	1886	Armstrong, Kansas.
Ashmore, George M.	1890	1900	Saint Joseph, Kansas City.
Atkinson, Ernest T.	1866	1876	Indian Creek, Kansas, Rich Hill, Second Kansas City.
Austin, Vida May	1903	1912	Independence, Kansas City.
Austin, Winifred Jenetta	1914	1923	Kansas City.
Babcock, Ada May	1882	1896	Armstrong, Kansas.
Baily, William Edward	1873	1922	Kansas City, Missouri.
Baird, Eliza Jane (Mauzey)	1894	1902	Chelsea Park, Kansas.
Ballard, Mary E.	1850	1893	First Kansas City, Missouri.
Banks, Ernest E.	1881	1893	Lowry City, Missouri; Chelsea Park, Kansas.
Banks, Harriet	1867	1890	Whearso, Linn, Knobnoster, Kansas City, Missouri.
Banks, Paul Israel	1892	1901	Whearso, Linn, Knobnoster, Kansas City, Missouri.
Banks, Richard T.	1898	1908	Knobnoster, Kansas City, Missouri.
Barksdale, Garfield	1880	1899	Byrville, Indiana; Bennington Heights, Missouri.
Barnes, Claude	1898	1924	Kansas City, Missouri.
Barrett, Genevieve Mary	1914	1924	Kansas City, Missouri.
Barrett, Jesse W.	1879	1891	Lamoni, Independence, Kansas City, Missouri.
Barrett, John Emory	1916	1924	Kansas City.
Bartilla, Otilie	1858	1893	First Kansas City.
Bartilla, Walter	1860	1893	First Kansas City, Armstrong, Kansas; Chelsea Park.
Barton, Minnie B.	1873	1924	Kansas City.
Beardsley, Arthur Virgil	1897	1909	Canadian Center, Selling, Oklahoma; Bennington Heights, Missouri.
Beezley, Bertha M.	1883	1894	Armstrong, Kansas.
Belkham, Martha	1848	1890	Nevada, Missouri; Sugar Creek, Arkansas; Independence, Kansas City, Missouri.
Bell, Barbara E.	1892	1901	Wilmington, Illinois; First Kansas City, Missouri.
Bell, Margaret (Bear)	1897	1906	Saint Joseph, Kansas City, Missouri.
Benfer, Anna Elora	1870	1927	Kansas City, Missouri.
Bennett, Emma Corna	1904	1914	Grandview, Kansas.
Bennett, Frank J.	1881	1891	First Kansas City, Missouri.
Bennett, Susan J.	1843	1889	First Kansas City, Missouri.
Berbaum, Mary Elizabeth (Stade)	1896	1908	Cameron, Kansas City.
Bergner, Arthur	1900	1911	Second Kansas City, Missouri.
Bergner, Lottie	1897	1911	Second Kansas City, Missouri.
Berry, Jessie Maude (Nanny)	1886	1895	First Saint Joseph, Second Kansas City, Missouri; Centropolis.

Name	Year of Birth	Year of Baptism	Places Where Once Enrolled
Bingamon, John	1879	1915	Mount Washington, Missouri.
Black, Ruth Agnes (Green)	1894	1905	First Independence, Missouri; Kansas City.
Blair, Mary Jane (Messick)	1889	1906	Kansas City, First and Second.
Blatt, David A.	1904	1914	First Independence, Kansas City, Missouri.
Board, Albert E.	1867	1911	Lansdowne, Illinois; Oak Hill, Missouri; First Kansas City.
Board, Grace	1903	1913	Saint Louis, South Side, Missouri; First Kansas City.
Board, Myrtle E.	1882	1911	Lansdowne, Illinois; Oak Hill, Missouri; First Kansas City.
Boldt, Augusta G.	1862	1899	Kansas City, Missouri.
Boldt, Frederick W.	1865	1899	Kansas City.
Bollin, Agnes Louise	1903	1919	Mount Washington, Missouri.
Bomar, Helen G. (Howell)	1900	1913	Independence, Kansas City.
Booker, Biddie May	1885	1908	First Kansas City, Missouri.
Booker, Sarah J. (Worthington)	1863	1878	Second Kansas City, Missouri.
Booker, William W.	1899	1908	Independence, Kansas City, Missouri.
Booth, Lottie Belle	1892	1922	Saint Joseph, Kansas City.
Bootman, Charles Roy	1884	1910	Second Saint Joseph, Missouri; Kansas City, Missouri.
Bowen, Cora, (Dove)	1888	1894	Lamoni, Iowa; Chicago, Illinois; Denver, Colorado; Kansas City.
Bowman, Bertie Glen	1901	1920	Tulsa, Oklahoma; Kansas City, Missouri.
Bowman, Elton E.	1903	1916	New Mexico, Butler, Missouri; Kansas City Stake.
Bowman, Ermal M.	1897	1909	Kansas City, Missouri.
Bowman, Neva A.	1907	1916	New Mexico, Butler, Missouri; Kansas City Stake.
Boyce, Miranda Georgiana	1879	1890	First Kansas City, Missouri.
Brackenbury, John W., Jr.	1886	1895	Independence, Missouri; Kansas City.
Brackenbury, Nancy P. (Curtis)	1863	1877	Independence, Kansas City, Missouri.
Brashert, George A.	1870	1896	Chelsea Park, Kansas.
Brashington, Marjorie M.	1898	1915	Kansas City.
Brillhart, Carrie I. (Budworth)	1895	1904	Oak Grove, Oklahoma; Independence, Mapleton, Kansas.
Brillhart, Jesse	1893	1911	Los Angeles, California; Kansas City, Missouri.
Brooks, Helene Marr	1903	1914	Mapleton, Kansas; Los Angeles, California; Kansas City.
Brooks, Jennie J.	1880	1909	Armstrong, Grandview, Kansas.
Broughton, Lesley	1891	1908	Grandview, Kansas.
Brown, Clara Grace	1902	1914	Kansas City, Missouri.
Brown, Edith Pearl	1907	1919	Grandview, Kansas.
Brown, Isaac N.	1857	1892	Armstrong, Kansas.
Brown, Margaret J. (Dobson)	1900	1908	First Kansas City, Missouri.
Brown, Mary L.	1896	1907	Disley Sask, Lamoni, Iowa; Independence, Missouri; Kansas City.
Brown, Paul James	1901	1921	Higbee, Missouri; Kansas City, Missouri.
Brown, Sarah	1851	1923	Kansas City, Missouri.
Brownell, William J.	1894	1915	Kansas City.
Bryant, Dora E.	1881	1915	Armstrong, Kansas.
Bryant, Fannie (Partridge)	1902	1912	Quindaro, Kansas.
Bryant, John Daniel	1917	1927	Kansas City, Missouri.
Buck, Grover C.	1894	1918	Kansas City, Missouri.
Buck, John McCullom	1872	1916	First Kansas City, Missouri.
Buckley, Anna E.	1861	1909	Seattle, Washington; Second Independence, Walnut Park, Kansas City.
Burch, Irene B.	1891	1901	First Kansas City, Missouri.
Burkholder, Minerva Ann. (Edwards)	1881	1890	Armstrong, Kansas; Chelsea Park, Kansas City.
Burnley, Luda G.	1877	1921	Kansas City, Missouri.
Burroughs, Martin B.	1862	1879	Brush Creek, Illinois; Holden, Missouri; Kansas City.
Burroughs, Raymond	1885	1911	First Kansas City.
Burt, Eugene	1870	1899	Armstrong, Kansas.
Burton, Inez	1906	1919	Mulberry, Kansas.
Burton, Moselle	1910	1920	Mulberry, Kansas; Kansas City.
Butler, Mary E. (Jones)	1890	1901	Bevier, Missouri; Independence, Missouri; Kansas City.
Butler, Ransom	1862	1908	First Kansas City, Missouri.
Campbell, Eva Maud	1900	1917	Third Saint Joseph, Missouri; Kansas City, Missouri.
Campbell, Gladys, (Hartley) (Curtis)	1896	1913	Independence, Kansas City, Missouri.
Campbell, James	1859	1924	Kansas City, Missouri.
Campbell, Minnie M.	1901	1918	Argentine, Kansas.
Campbell, Zea (Davis)	1896	1910	Chelsea Park, Kansas.
Cane Marion C. (Cairns)	1854	1872	Pleasant Grove, Iowa; Des Moines, Iowa; Iowa Scattering, First Kansas City, Missouri.
Cannon, Hazel	1895	1910	Chelsea Park, Kansas.
Canterbury, Helen E.	1907	1923	Kansas City, Missouri.
Cape, George Alexander	1880	1911	Armstrong, Kansas.
Carson, Mary Charlotte (Emmett) (Miller)	1887	1896	Second Kansas City, Armstrong, Kansas.
Carter, Mary E. (Singleton)	1900	1914	First Kansas City.
Castner, John E.	1863	1874	Plano, Illinois; Burlington, Iowa; Kansas City, Missouri.
Chapman, Elbert H.	1912	1926	Kansas City.
Chapman, Helen Marie	1916	1926	Kansas City.
Chapman, Lola May	1898	1926	Kansas City.
Chapman, Marjorie Anna	1914	1926	Kansas City.
Chick, George	1878	1902	Kansas City.
Childers, Minnie M. (Britt)	1882	1894	Armstrong, Kansas.
Chrestenson, Minnie Mabel	1887	1908	Armstrong, Kansas.
Churchill, Dilleis	1887	1923	Kansas City.
Churchill, James H.	1863	1903	Kansas City.
Clapper, Thelma Lois (Hand) (Manchester)	1910	1920	Kansas City.
Clark, Edna May	1915	1925	Kansas City.
Clark, James	1894	1910	Chelsea Park, Kansas.
Clark, Lucy Ann	1893	1910	Chelsea Park, Kansas.
Clark, Marie	1899	1910	Chelsea Park, Kansas.
Clark, Matthew	1902	1910	Chelsea Park, Kansas.
Clark, Ray Preston	1895	1907	Pittsburgh, Kansas; Kansas City Stake.
Clayborne, Myrtle R. (Douglas)	1879	1893	Saint Joseph, Missouri; Kansas City.
Cleveland, Dora I.	1867	1889	Armstrong, Kansas; Kansas City, Mount Washington, Missouri.
Cleveland, Earl M.	1893	1902	Kansas City.
Cleveland, Marlon Estell	1898	1912	Bennington Heights.
Cleveland, Mildred Elma	1900	1909	Kansas City.
Cline, Elizabeth	1868	1919	Kansas City.
Cline, Harrison Taylor	1894	1913	Bennington Heights, Missouri.
Coberly, Wiley A.	1880	1904	Second Kansas City, Missouri.
Cochran, Josie Adel (Fifer)	1869	1907	Saint Joseph, Kansas City.
Coe, Charles Marion	1901	1923	San Francisco, California; Independence, Kansas City.
Coffee, Mary A. J. (Harrison)	1844	1896	Kansas City.
Colton, Lena Myrtle	1880	1908	First Kansas City, Missouri.
Conaway, Henry Franklin	1874	1923	Holden, Kansas City.
Conaway, Mary Hyde	1881	1923	Holden, Kansas City.
Conklin, Birdie	1867	1896	Armstrong, Kansas.
Conklin, Mary F.	1840	1869	Armstrong, Kansas.
Connor, Hershel A.	1889	1899	Independence, Kansas City.
Connor, John C.	1857	1899	Independence, Kansas City.
Connor, Olive L.	1879	1899	Independence, Kansas City.
Conway, M. Virgil	1887	1911	Quindaro, Kansas.
Conwell, Herman Leo	1894	1924	Kansas City, Missouri.
Cook, Delia E. (Near)	1883	1897	Armstrong, Kansas.

NEWS OF CHURCH AND HOME

Address all news and letters to Editors of the Herald, Box 237, Independence, Missouri. Correspondents are requested to make their letters brief. The Editors reserve the right, on account of space limitations, to shorten all letters as circumstances require.

Reunion in Idaho District

The Idaho district reunion was held August 14 to 23 on the reunion grounds at Hagerman. Missionaries present were: M. A. McConley, apostle in charge; O. W. Okerlind, district missionary; Daniel B. Sorden, Portland, Oregon; A. M. Chase, of Salt Lake City, and Brother Hughes, of Ogden, Utah. We were especially fortunate in having with us Elder S. A. Burgess, church historian.

The reunion was well attended. Meals were prepared at the expense of the district, and were served free in cafeteria style.

The time was spent in prayer and preaching services, classes, song services, and wholesome recreation. Seven candidates were baptized.

Each day Brother McConley conducted a class in "Stewardships," teaching us that we are all stewards over our time, talents, and means, and showing us how to act in harmony with God's laws of stewardship.

Brother Sorden conducted a daily class in "Religious Education," explaining the details and the merits of the new plan which was adopted by the district at the 1930 reunion. He brought the message that in the new plan there is something for everyone to do, and that each member should develop his talents and qualify himself to take the part for which he is best fitted.

Each evening a short entertainment was rendered in addition to the preaching services. One entire evening was devoted to a Graceland College program, rendered by the ten students and alumnae of Graceland attending the reunion. Sister Charlotte Condit, member of Graceland faculty, and Brother Burgess, former president of Graceland. The program consisted of Graceland songs and poems, and brief talks, describing the college life, and the ideals and spirit of Graceland. An attractive picture was painted, and all of our young people were urged to attend Graceland.

The business conference authorized the starting of a revolving fund, to be loaned to students for their transportation to Graceland.

A new plan was adopted for raising money to meet the district budget: Each branch and the nonresident group is to contribute a specified amount each month, apportioned according to the number of members, the balance to be supplied by offerings taken at the reunion.

A committee was appointed to gather produce from the district to send to the Harvest Home Festival, at Independence.

The following district officers were chosen: Silas Condit, Hagerman, Idaho, president; O. W. Okerlind, district missionary, counselor; A. V. Moore, Rupert, Idaho, counselor; Arthur Condit, Rupert, Idaho, treasurer and bishop's agent; Orval Baker, Blackfoot, Idaho, director of religious education; John R. Mamerow, Boise, Idaho, historian; Thomas Ultican, Tuttle, Idaho, chorister, and Winona Porter, Barber, Idaho, secretary.

Lancaster, Wisconsin

September 21.—Lancaster Saints are moving forward in the work of latter days.

Elder J. O. Dutton and wife were here August 9, Brother Dutton preaching at Flora Church in the morning and at the home of Dennis Oates in the evening. On August 30, Elder Leonard Houghton spoke at Flora in the morning and at the home of Brother Oates that night.

All-day services were held at Flora, September 13, Bishop C. J. Hunt in charge. Walter, son of Archie Breilhaupt, was baptized, and the little son of G. E. Noble was blessed.

The Women's Department has quilted several quilts to help the branch with funds. Of late the women have been busy sewing for the Harvest Festival. Once a month pot-luck suppers are given at the homes of the Saints usually including a recreational program.

September 25 the young people will have a wiener roast at the Ervie Edwards home. Proceeds will go to the Christmas offering.

Parkersburg, West Virginia

The church here is trying hard to hold its ground during the wide-spread economic depression. Several of the members are not getting much employment, but we are thankful that conditions with us are as well as they are.

Brother G. W. Lawson, of Clarksburg, superintendent of the Department of Religious Education, visited this branch in April and preached two good sermons on "Builders." Officers and teachers met with him on Saturday night at the home of Brother Smith.

Harry Smith was reelected branch president at the business meeting September 1. A. L. Williams was elected Sunday school superintendent with James Withee assistant. May Griffin was chosen clerk and superintendent of the women's department.

Brother and Sister Harry Smith, Burns Wilson, and Desde Beall attended the district conference at Clarksburg, September 12 and 13. The conference was a very peaceful and good meeting. Clarksburg Saints were capable hosts.

Sister Jennie Jones died at Akron, Ohio, and the funeral was held from the church here, September 13. Brother Guy Hammond, of Akron, was the speaker. Sister Jones formerly lived in Parkersburg and has relatives here.

Brother William Cade died September 14 at the home of Sister Wherry. He was past eighty-eight years of age. The Reverend Whitehouse of the Christian Church preached the funeral at Walker, September 17.

This branch will have an all-day meeting October 11 to celebrate the eleventh anniversary of its organization. We hope to have Elder John R. Grice, of Columbus, Ohio, for the day and to help during a series of meetings. Missionary A. C. Silvers and wife will be here to take part in the exercises. A basket dinner will be served at the church at noon.

Brother Charles Williams and family, of Lock Four, Pennsylvania, have been visiting here since August 30. They are very welcome. They think of locating in our city.

Among the summer visitors were Apostle Clyde F. Ellis who spoke for us; Brother C. A. Balman and family, of Wichita, Kansas, who were located at Marietta, Ohio, on business, and met to worship with us. Brother and Sister A. C. Silvers have been here several times, and their daughter and her husband were in Parkersburg for a short time in July. Brother George Criswell and family were here July 5. They formerly lived here.

Sister Agnes Rexroad has not been well this summer. She must go to the hospital again to undergo an operation as soon as she is able.

Branch officers take office October 1. We face the coming winter with hope. We desire to see improvement in many ways. We hope to see some active members move here when working conditions permit. We have a good opportunity in Parkersburg, but the laborers are few.

New London, Connecticut

September 25.—Rally Day, September 13, was remembered here by a varied and entertaining program. The church was decorated with an abundance of red, white, and blue flowers and crepe paper ribbon of the same colors. A violin duet served for the prelude. Following this, the congregation sang "God Is Marshaling His Army." After the Lord's Prayer the choir responded with "Come Gracious Spirit." The hymn, "Consecration," followed. A brief talk introducing the theme of the day was given by Brother John E. Whipple, church school superintendent. Brother Hiram Simmons briefly outlined the recreational activities for the fall and early winter seasons for the young people's division. A continuance of the present cooperation was urged. A paper on "How Young People May Assist in Church Work" was prepared and read by Sister Hazel Whipple. A fine understanding of the spirit which should characterize this service was shown in the reading. It possessed fine original features. Sister Lois C. Crandall, who was given the subject, "Zion," rendered a reading impressive with quotations from Doctrine and Covenants. Idealistic and harmonious conditions were portrayed in a word picture which would seem quite possible as a reality. Piano solos were rendered by Ruth Slater, Marjorie Martin, and Sister Bernice Whipple. Marion Slater gave a violin solo, and a violin duet was played by Lois Crandall and Douglas Alves. Recitations by several small children were expressive of Rally Day. Those present felt favored in the opportunity of hearing a cello solo by Zygmund Rodomansky. He is well known in this section for his ability in concert, orchestration arrangements, and compositions for the piano and cello.

"Like as the Hart Desireth," was sung by the choir. The theme of rallying for service and consecrated effort was furthered in a sermon by the pastor, Elder Alma T. Whipple. The illustration was related of the man who rowed his boat all night for a certain destination and saw by the morning light that the boat had not gone the bounds of its fastening to the pier. He urged the cutting away of the bonds which tie and fetter the Saints to unrighteousness. Then being free we can push forward in the line of progress.

Seattle, Washington

"Complete the family circle." How often has the charge come to us! An instance of beauty and significance was the experience of Seattle (Washington) Saints Sunday, September 20, when they witnessed the induction of an entire family into the kingdom of God. The family is that of Brother Samuel Brown, and is composed of Brother Brown, his wife, Jessie Brown, and their three daughters, Loverda, seventeen, Viola, fifteen, and Elaine, ten.

Special service had been arranged for the occasion, an entire morning hour being devoted to it. Following the church school session, the congregation marched from the upper to the lower auditorium, where chairs had been arranged in a circle about the font. The place of baptism was decorated with flowers and autumn greenery. As the congregation marched in, the administering officer and the five members of the family, dressed in white, were standing before the font.

"Jesus, Mighty King of Zion" opened the service, and was followed by a touching prayer by Patriarch Richard Baldwin. Brother Baldwin delivered the charge to the family as there settled over the candidates and the entire congregation the peaceful presence of the Spirit of God.

The charge given, we turned our eyes to the song written on the blackboard, "I Hear My Savior Calling," and while we sang there came a realization that divine messengers were close at hand.

Pastor D. S. McDole administered the ordinance of baptism while the Spirit of our King sanctified the occasion with the heavenly Seal. A fitting song service prepared the congregation for the brief morning message by Brother Baldwin on "The Bestowal of the Holy Ghost."

A beautiful spirit characterized the confirmation service and many moistened eyes testified to the presence of the Holy Spirit. The pastor extended the welcome into the church to the family. An appropriate song and the benediction by Brother Baldwin, and another family of scattered Israel had returned from the mountains of Utah and found refuge in the true church of Christ in which lies Zion's hope. What significance in this wandering family's discovery and entrance into Christ's true kingdom! And who knows but that it is the vanguard of many other such families who will yet come to build up the waste places of Zion and to build her strong towers?

Bremerton, Washington

Bremerton is the smallest branch in this district, having only twenty-eight members. This year we have lost thirteen members, one by death and twelve by transfer. Nevertheless, the Saints are still hard at work in the branch.

All last winter and spring everyone was busy finding new ways to make money. At last, on July 13, all the money was collected from various activities, and the last payment made on the church building. How happy we were to be out of debt and know that our little church home was in line for dedication! We eagerly look forward to the completion of the plans for the happy event. At present we are much in need of class room and so hope to excavate a basement in the not too distant future.

Brother Bacher, Brother and Sister Lundeen and two daughters, and Sister Lena Loveless and son attended the reunion at Silver Lake in August. Each took class work in order to better qualify for activity in this branch. All report a fine time.

Brother A. W. Lundeen was called to the office of elder, and is to be ordained in the near future.

Sister Larson, of Bremerton, and Sister Gosset, of Port Orchard, have been ill, but are slowly mending.

One Saturday afternoon in August all the members of the church school met at the church where cars were assembled to take them to the Sunday school picnic. Such fun as was had! Everyone went swimming in the afternoon. The picnic was held at the home of Sister Loveless who lives at Kitsap Lake, and tables were spread on the lawn.

Now that vacation is over and school has begun, everyone is settling down to work. Under the able guidance of Sister Cora Jones, the church school is going forward. We have adopted the new plan and are striving to make our school as interesting and instructive as possible. The children enjoy it and are eager to take part. We observe special days and just now are preparing for Rally and Promotion Day.

The women's club is active. Brother Velt, district missionary, says it is well named—Harmony Club. Peace and harmony abound at each meeting. More nonmembers belong to the club than Saints, and often we are surprised to learn how many people know of the church through this club. For a part of the winter's study, the club is taking up American poets and authors. Handcraft has a large part in the meetings. The women usually meet for a dessert luncheon at one o'clock in the afternoon. This is followed by a short business meeting, then a study period, then handcraft. This club has done much to help the branch financially, and its winter's work already is beginning.

Elder H. I. Velt and Elder and Sister Richard Baldwin have held meetings here during the year which created considerable interest among nonmembers, and encouraged the Saints to press forward.

Hammond, Indiana

6243 Monroe Street

On Sunday, September 20, we had a special service beginning at the regular church school hour and carrying through until noon. The theme of the service was "The Vision of Zion," and it was carried out in quiet music, song, story, and sermon.

We have reorganized our choir, and hope to help build up the branch through song. At our next meeting we plan to have a little recreation and refreshments to put the finishing touches to our practice.

Apostle D. T. Williams gave, on September 7, his first lecture of a series of doctrinal lectures which he plans to present within the coming months to the Saints in his territory. The meeting was well attended, and in his subject, "Adventuring with God," Brother Williams brought out the necessity of faith in our life.

The priesthood from Hammond are planning to drive en masse to the priesthood conference at Grand Rapids, Michigan, October 3 or 4.

Now that our building and grounds are in good shape, we are glad for the effort put forth to make them so. Much work was expended and the results are gratifying. We now feel that we can truly worship the Lord, and that he will be glad to meet with us.

Coldwater, Michigan, Home-coming

Latter-day work at Coldwater is forging ahead. The recent home-coming was a day of peace and good will. The program was planned to stress the social program of the church.

The following press story appeared on the front page of the Branch County (Michigan) News:

"The annual gathering at the Saints' church, September 13, was all, and much more, than its sponsors anticipated. Its program was executed with precision and commendable zeal.

"Attendants from South Bend, Mishawaka, Elkhart, Dowagiac, Battle Creek, Jackson, Michigan, Fremont, Clear Lake, York, Indiana, with Batavia, Bethel, South Union, Quincy and contiguous points, contributed to make a 'red letter' day in the history of the church.

"The local congregation has had an uninterrupted, organic existence in Branch County and this city for more than sixty years. But this fact has not rendered it immune from attacks meant to dim its beacon light. The home-coming renews its facts and principles for which it has ever stood—the exponent of primitive, New Testament Christianity, and the better civilization. The home-coming day program was to emphasize the 'social program of Christianity.'

"The nine ministers present gave addresses limited to fifteen minutes while the choir accentuated every address with an anthem coordinating the thought of each speaker. During the day, the choir rendered seven anthems, and led the church songs for the congregation. Extra, the feature of one solo, by an artist from Battle Creek. The dinner served in the kitchenet under the management of Mesdames H. J. Corless and E. Peer was heartily enjoyed by all. Reverend Perry Gray and his wife were among the renewals of friendship, and while Mr. Gray is not identified with this denomination, his address was so beautiful and reminiscent the heart was touched and made glad.

"The choir was inspirational and at the conclusion of one of its renderings was given public invitation to come to Battle Creek, two weeks hence, and assist in a similar program.

"Religion is not static. It is progressive under the divine law. 'First the corn, then the stalk, then the full corn in the ear'—Jesus."

Davidson, Oklahoma

September 22.—A series of meetings, which began August 9 and closed August 23, was an outstanding event in the history of this branch. Under the spacious tent, placed near the business district, great crowds of people, including many who had never before heard the restored message, assembled each night to hear the gospel story as presented by Brothers Howard Harpham, of Seiling, Oklahoma, and Z. Z. Renfroe. Much credit for the success of the meeting is due Brother C. F. Kueffer and Sister Mattie Scott, of Oklahoma City, who assisted with music during the entire series.

The young people were permitted to enjoy two sunrise prayer meetings at the park. After one service they cooked their breakfast on an open fire. The association of several young people not of our faith and also of isolated Latter Day Saint families was enjoyed by the young people during these services, causing them to renew their efforts for active service in the future.

Eighteen people made a covenant with God in baptism. From the comments coming from many of the community's most respected citizens, we feel that if we as Saints are faithful and diligent in our labors, we shall be able to reap, in the near future, the results of the good seed sown during this campaign.

Everyone was sad to see the meeting close, for our visitors had to depart to their homes. Members attended from Lubbock, Lamesa, Wilson, Graham, Vernon, and Wichita Falls, Texas, and Seiling, Fort Cobb, Healdton, Erick, and Oklahoma City, Oklahoma. We must not forget to mention Brother S. W. Simmons and wife of Shidler, Oklahoma. Brother Simmons addressed the Saints on one Sunday morning during the series, giving them one of his forceful sermons, the kind always appreciated by Davidson members.

After the evening service on the last Friday of the meetings, the congregation met on the lawn of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Qualls for a social hour, surprising Brother Harpham, the boy preacher, with a miscellaneous shower.

The annual business meeting was held September 4, and branch and church school officers elected. Elder B. F. Renfroe was reelected president of the branch; clerk, J. T. Skinner; church school supervisor, Ira Skinner; assistant supervisor, E. B. Stafford; supervisor of music department, Edith Skinner; assistant, Valeria Parker; pianist, Mrs. Troy Parker; assistant, Mrs. Roy Skinner; supervisor of adult division, Mrs. Roy Skinner; supervisor of young people, Helen Ridings; supervisor of juniors, Mrs. Tom Skinner.

The sacrament service, September 6, was beautifully carried out, and the Saints were happy to have with them on this day Brother and Sister Norris and family, of Chickasha, Oklahoma.

Our prayers are for the progress of God's people everywhere.

South Bend and Mishawaka Branch

Mishawaka, Indiana, 902 Reddick Street

Saints of this branch are pressing earnestly onward. Some have moved to other localities, such removals at times tending to discourage those left behind. However, there is always someone to step into the gap left in the ranks and to assist in keeping the congregation moving forward.

All departments have been progressing during the last quarter. Continued hot weather cut down attendance, but with the opening of the autumn quarter, we are rallying to make a greater effort in kingdom of God building.

The most recent local loss was the transfer of Pastor V. L. Coonfare by the firm which employed him. It was with deep regret that the congregation bade him farewell. His service of nearly three years as branch president will be remembered as one of loyalty permeated by a desire to build up the branch. Brother Coonfare's new assignment places him at Fort Wayne, Indiana, where we pray the Master will find spiritual work for him to do. Sister Coonfare, who is in the Healthwin Sanitarium, is yet unable to be with her husband. She has asked the prayers of the Saints that she may be blessed with an early recovery.

District President William Osler has been here during the last two weeks, arranging business matters for the branch. A special business meeting was called for the evening of September 11 at which Brother Forest E. Myers was elected branch president. On the evening of September 14, Elder Osler called at Buchanan, Michigan, and placed before the members the names of George Seymour and Stephen Martin for ordination to the offices of priest and deacon, respectively. They were unanimously approved, and received immediate ordination. The power of the Spirit was felt throughout the ordination ceremony, and the two young men go forth in their new work with the good wishes and the support of all who know them.

Apostle D. T. Williams was here September 8, delivering his first of a series of lectures in this branch. Attendance was good, but his theme deserved a larger group of hearers. Others who have occupied in the pulpit during the last quarter have been Brothers Osler, McKnight, Coonfare, and Myers.

Everyone was agreeably surprised the evening of September 18, at the success of the dime talent effort sponsored by Sister Granger, superintendent of the women's division. The effort was brought to a close by a party given by the women at the home of Brother and Sister Myers. Some had increased their talent ten and even twenty-four fold. Receipts totaled $12.80. Sister Granger's work as head of the women's division is worthy commendation and the support of all the members.

Bisbee, Arizona

This branch is actively trying to keep the gospel work progressing in spite of depressing times. Of late months we have lost two families, the Millers moving to California, and the Somers family to Delta, Colorado. Brother Somers was the Sunday school superintendent, and all of them were faithful workers. Brother J. W. Myers has been elected to fill Brother Somers's place.

North Platte, Nebraska

September 25.—This group is striving to grow. The recreational leader, W. L. Sivits, is working in the interest of the young people, and the older members help where they are needed. Brother Sivits will entertain those who gather for recreation at his home this evening. Games will be played. On the evening of October 2 recreation will be held at the W. A. Stoddard home, about seven miles west of the Platte and one-half mile north of Lincoln. Should any of our friends chance to be passing through, they are invited to join us.

Next Sunday is rally day. Meetings will be held at the Advent Church on Tenth and Willow Streets in North Platte. The church school rally program will occur at 10 o'clock in the morning. This will be followed by a lesson.

This branch holds church school each Sunday morning at 10 o'clock and preaching at 11, except on the first Sunday of the month when we have sacrament and prayer meeting.

On this rally day each family will take a lunch and the group will picnic at North Side Park or some other suitable place decided upon at the meeting. There will be preaching at two in the afternoon, and the branch president will conduct a class on the duties of the supervisors and officers. The discussion method will be employed.

Independence

"For those who must work but who desire to study" is the motto of the night high school which is operated as the Independence Institute of Arts and Sciences in the place familiarly known as The Campus. This year forty-three students have registered and are availing themselves of these opportunities to better themselves. There are two departments in the school—the academic in which high school subjects are offered, and the commercial in which shorthand, typewriting, and bookkeeping are studied. Teachers in the academic department are required to fulfill State educational requirements in the matter of university degrees while the teachers in the commercial department must be specially trained in their field. The faculty of the school is made up of Doctor F. M. McDowell, dean; G. G. Lewis, principal, and Miss Opal Hill, Miss Juanita Echternacht, Miss Lora Weir, Mrs. Bernard Hurshman, Mr. Roy Davey, Mr. S. A. Thiel, Mr. Adelbert Withee, and Mr. James Campbell. Mrs. Adelbert Withee is the registrar. The classes meet twice each week, on Monday and Wednesday evenings, beginning at seven o'clock. Students who are properly registered may earn up to two units of high school credits.

That progress is being made in the construction of the new Independence Sanitarium and Hospital is the report of the Independence Examiner, the city's daily paper. It is with interest that the citizens watch the work on this structure go forward. The resumption of work on the edifice three weeks ago gave employment to a number of local men.

The Joint Council of the church, which held sessions all last week, brought to Independence a number of officers and workers from distant points. They have been given hearty welcome by Independence friends.

The wedding of Miss Evelyn Ruth Shupe, daughter of Mrs. Mabel Shupe, 420 South Forest Avenue, and Ralph V. Flurnoy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard G. Flurnoy, 809 North Noland, occurred Saturday evening at half past eight at the home of Elder E. A. Thomas, the officiating minister. Preceding the marriage ceremony Miss Mildred Shupe sang "I Love You Truly." The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Irene Shupe, and James Flurnoy attended his brother. The bridal couple will make their home in Independence.

Stone Church

All departments of the Stone Church school observed Sunday with promotion exercises. In the main auditorium of the church, where meet the adult and the junior young people's departments, the theme was "Following Jesus," and the junior young people's pastor, Priest W. Earl Page, was in charge. At the close of an impressive program of hymns, prayer, scripture reading, class work, organ music, and a talk, the pastor presented the graduating class of fifty boys and girls to the church school superintendent, Elder G. G. Lewis. This class is now a part of the senior young people's department which conducts its sessions at the Auditorium. Opal Goode Doty was the morning organist.

The beautiful weather of the first autumn Sunday brought a large attendance to the junior service at the Campus. The opening number was a piano solo by Kathryn McCullough. Nadine Barnard and Ada Marie Hall sang a duet, "Safe in the Arms of Jesus." A clarinet and flute duet, "America the Beautiful," was contributed by Donald Harder and Richard Peck. "Consecration" was sung by Mrs. Verlia Wilson's class. Thelma Betts gave a reading, "The Two Words." Elder W. F. Bolinger gave a farewell message to the third-year juniors who were promoted to the junior young people's department at the Stone Church.

The speaker at the Stone Church at the eleven o'clock service Sunday morning was Evangelist U. W. Greene, who chose for his scripture reading John 21: 1-13. The events related in this chapter are those which immediately followed the trial and crucifixion of Jesus, when in sore discouragement and deep distress of mind the disciples again turned to their fishing; an account of the night when they caught nothing, and of the dawn when Jesus stood on the shore of Galilee and bade them cast their net again, resulting in the marvelous draught of fishes. And then this reading presents a word picture of the breakfast Christ had prepared for them, and his invitation, "Come and dine."

Christ not only prepared for his disciples food for their physical needs, but a little later he called them to "come and dine" at that spiritual feast, the Pentecostal shower.

With these events the speaker compared those experienced by the church in more recent times when darkness and distress and discouragement have been felt, followed by the dawning of a better day when more spiritual conditions have prevailed. He concluded with the cheering thought that it is his belief in the present time of stress, there await us those spiritual outpourings which will unite the Saints and cause the darkness of the night to pass into the dawn of a beautiful morning. And in that dawn Jesus will again bid us to "come and dine."

Pastor John F. Sheehy was in charge of the service, assisted by Apostle D. T. Williams. Two anthems were sung by the Stone Church Choir, led by Paul N. Craig, and a pleasing violin solo was played by Frank White.

"We should pray and do and have faith in God" was the theme of Bishop Albert Carmichael's evening sermon at the Stone Church, which was closely linked with the morning sermon by Brother Greene. "I would give unto you a pattern in all things" was the text chosen from the book of Doctrine and Covenants, and the speaker stressed the fact that we, to be in accordance with God's will and plan, must do things: we must become individual stewards, we must learn to work as a group, then we are ready to think about and work for the establishment of God's storehouse.

A beautiful solo, "Teach Me," sung by Mrs. Pauline James Arnson, added to the evening's program. Elder G. G. Lewis was in charge, and Elder H. O. Smith offered the invocation and benediction.

Enoch Hill

The theme "Jesus" was used by the church school the morning of September 20. Sister Agnes Hartman was in charge. Short talks on the theme were given by Elders Herbert Barto and Roscoe Davey. Brother Leonard White was the eleven o'clock speaker.

In the evening Elder Roscoe E. Davey occupied the pulpit. This was the first Sunday evening service of the fall season on the Hill. The Saints of Enoch Hill have enjoyed the association of Brother and Sister Davey during the summer months, and have profited from Brother Davey's willing service. Brother and Sister Davey are now parents of a new daughter, born two weeks ago.

The church school feature last Sunday morning was the Promotion Day service. An interesting program was given by the children of the lower auditorium. The following changes were made in church school officers. Nellie Kramer, assistant church school superintendent; E. H. McKean, superintendent of young people's division, assisted by Lawrence Martin; Fred Burrows, superintendent of older young people, Ruth Hayes, senior young people; Mary Burrows Tiberghian, junior girls; Dale Constance, junior boys.

Brother J. E. Martin was the morning speaker.

Apostle Clyde F. Ellis spoke to a good congregation last Sunday night. Brother Paul Wheeler, a visitor to the district, offered the invocation and benediction.

Englewood

As we entered our little church home Sunday morning it took no stretch of the imagination to know that "something different" was about to happen. The rostrum was beautifully decorated with fall flowers and a vine-covered fence and gates were there, too, through which twenty-three children from the lower grades passed. It was Promotion Day at Englewood.

The nursery "mother," Sister Charles Petentler, was the first to lead her little group to the gates, held ajar by Dorothy Dean and Lois Jean, twin daughters of Brother and Sister Arthur Welch, two beginners. After the presentation of certificates to this group, Sister Petentler presented the children to the superintendent of the beginner department, Sister Roy Howery. Sister Howery, in turn, led those to be promoted from her department, twelve in number, to the gate held open by Duane Danielson and Edwin Haggart, two primary boys. These children were presented to Sister Lyman Fike, superintendent of the primaries. In similar fashion the primaries were promoted. Everyone was happy. Sister Fred Koehler is supervisor of the children's division at Englewood.

The promotion brought with it the problem of class room space. Heretofore the beginners have been housed with the primaries, but in rearranging the classes, it was found impossible to longer do that. The problem was solved by a class of intermediate boys who, after the installation of the church gas burner in the early spring, took the coal room, covered the rock walls as best they could, and fitted it up for their own class room. The boys were proud of their achievement and enjoyed the privacy and quiet of their meeting place. Nevertheless, they have of their own free will, given their room to the little ones. We want to publicly thank these boys and their teacher, Brother Benjamin Bassett, for their generosity and thoughtfulness.

At the close of the promotion exercises the choir sang "The Lord Is My Strength," by T. D. Williams, under the direction of Sister Pauline James Arnson. Sister Arnson is at present relieving Sister A. Hougas as chorister, and the choir is entering its season's work with greater determination than it had before vacation time.

During the morning hour Elder C. B. Woodstock brought an encouraging message to the congregation, his words especially helping those who are trying to assist in furthering the cause of Zion by training the youth of the church. Brother Woodstock has a way of showing us the worth while privilege that is ours.

At 7:30 in the evening the congregation was in place for the song service which precedes the preaching hour. After the singing of a solo by Pastor D. S. McNamara, Brother Ray Wrigley was introduced by his friend, Brother Leonard White. "The Building of Christian Character" was Brother Wrigley's theme. Though one of the young members of the ministry, Brother Wrigley presented his thoughts with wisdom, dignity, and assurance.

The Women's Department supervised by Sister McNamara, has lately been very busy. However, the women have now reached their quota of one thousand quarts of fruit and vegetables for the Harvest Home Festival. Sister George Willis, the branch artist, for a number of days and evenings, has been busy directing a group of the men on the work of booth construction at the Auditorium. Sister Eva says that this year we are aspiring for first prize, our branch having in the past taken second and third prizes. All are interested in the festival and hope for its success.

East Independence

The past few weeks have brought East Independence members many enjoyable experiences. Some excellent sermons have been heard. Sunday evening services have been resumed after a summer of helpful services at the Campus.

Elder J. W. Davis and Elder A. H. Christensen blessed the infant son of Brother and Sister Frank Minton on a recent Sunday. Brother Davis on that morning preached a sermon full of hope.

The young people's department, under the direction of Sister A. H. Christensen, recently had an ice cream social preceded by a good program. This group realized a nice sum which is to be used for church equipment. The orchestra, directed by Alvin Christensen, gave its first program at this social. It has since been contributing to the church school activities. The musicians and their director are to be commended. We appreciate their work.

Last Friday the congregation met early in the evening. The men built an outdoor oven while the women prepared supper. Nearly seventy ate together. This was regular family night, and after the meal a unique program was called for. People having certain letters in their names were called upon to give selections. Much interest and amusement were created by old-time songs, extemporaneous speeches, and an algebra contest.

Sunday was Rally Day, and promotion exercises brought out good attendance. Eighteen students were presented certificates of promotion in the church school. The pastor preached on the thought of the morning, his sermon challenging all to fully equip themselves in the classes of the church school.

Kansas City Stake

Central Church

Sunday was observed as Rally Day and a touch of autumn made it ideal. The morning prelude, "Meditation," by Gaul, was played by Mrs. J. A. Withee. Special music at the worship service was furnished by the Semper Fidelis ladies' quartet consisting of Marcene Murphy, Amy Blankenship, Dorothy Eden, and Melva Blankenship. The rendition was the anthem, "The Lord Is My Strength," by Franz Schubert. This was an inspiring number and blended beautifully into the service which followed. During the class period, promotion exercises were conducted in the primary and junior departments.

At the service period the congregation joined in singing a hymn from the Hymnal and Brother G. G. Mesley offered the invocation. The choir rendered the "One Hundred and Fiftieth Psalm," by Cesar Franck, George Anway directing. President F. M. McDowell was the speaker of the hour using for his theme, "The Foundation of God Standeth Sure." He briefly reviewed the critical situation through which the nations of the earth are passing today, stating that we are having to make "forced landings." The world has been shaken to its very depth politically, socially, and economically, and this is a time for us, as a people, to recognize that the foundation of God standeth sure. We must make sure that there are foundations; we must keep in touch with the church. The gospel will endure when all else seems to be gone. We find authority for the gospel of Christ in the life of Jesus. The gospel of Jesus Christ is the only answer to the needs of the world today. We can take every principle of the doctrine of Jesus Christ and show it to be consistent with the basic needs of man. Brother McDowell closed with an earnest appeal to the people, urging them to realize that the testing time is here for every man and woman. We must check up our entry to see if our foundation standeth sure. Every one of us needs the inspiration which church attendance can bring us. Every one of us needs the ideals which this church will teach us. We need the vision of God to this generation. We need all the courage we can get from coming together in fellowship. We need the assurance of the tie of fellowship which we find in the tie that binds. Each of us needs the conviction of purpose which can come to us as we whisper those convictions in the prayer service. We must have the power to endure and this can come only through contact with God, his church, and his people.

At three o'clock Central was well represented at the Scottish Rite Temple where the Wahdemna Choral Club, under the direction of Paul N. Craig, delivered a fine concert.

At 7.45 in the evening Apostle Myron A. McConley was the speaker, using for his text the words of the Apostle Paul, "We are laborers together with God." He seemed to pick up the thread of the morning lesson where Brother McDowell had closed, urging that we be careful not to build on the sand. Only so far as we build on the law of righteousness and truth, will our structures stand.

The fourth Stake Leadership School will convene on Sunday evening, October 4, the opening address to be delivered by Elder Leonard Lea. Study classes will convene on Monday evening at which time the following subjects will be offered: President McDowell will discuss "Church Objectives" and Bishop DeLapp, "Stewardship of Youth," which will compose the first week. The second week Apostle F. Henry Edwards will discuss "Priesthood Practice," and Stake President C. E. Wight, "Youth and Doctrine." All courses are accredited ten points and a large enrollment is anticipated.

Quindaro Church

Speakers for the months of August and September were Elders Leonard Lea, Levi Gamet, Bruce E. Brown, Arthur Oakman, and Bishops R. Bullard and F. B. Blair.

Brother Leonard Hawkins, thirty-one years of age, passed away at the home of his parents, Brother and Sister Daniel Hawkins, in Kansas City, Kansas. He was for two years a patient sufferer, but his sunny disposition won him many friends. Left to mourn are his wife, a daughter, Geraldine, his parents, two brothers, two sisters, and many other relatives and friends. The funeral was conducted from Quindaro Church, the sermon by Pastor H. A. Higgins, assisted by Brother Arthur Oakman. Interment was in Memorial Park Cemetery.

September 8, Lloyd Dean Hallier was baptized on his eighth birthday by his father, Brother Albert Hallier, and confirmed by Elder H. A. Higgins.

September 24 the senior department gave a dinner at the church which netted a good sum to apply on the local church budget.

Rally Day came September 27. The services were of a high order. The choir of twenty voices contributed to the beauty and spiritual uplift of the services. Pastor Higgins was the speaker morning and evening.

Fourth Church

During the month of August speakers were Elders E. W. Lloyd; H. G. Barto, of Independence; S. S. Sandy, J. O. Worden, Ammon White, and Hale Bullard.

The ordination of Brother Marion Sneed to the office of elder took place the morning of August 30, under the hands of J. O. Worden, E. W. Lloyd, and Julian Gough.

An ice cream social sponsored by the O. B. K.'s the night of August 30, drew a large number of people to the home of Pastor Worden.

On Wednesday night, September 2, the prayer service was conducted in behalf of the school children. Sister Tyra Lueking and Vada Allen spoke appropriately on the duties of the parents to their children and the children to their teachers. Earnest prayers were offered for the protection and care of the children during the school year.

The presence of the Spirit of God was felt at the September service of sacrament.

The blessing of the little sons of Brother and Sister Eugene Christy and Brother and Sister R. H. Carver took place the morning of September 20. In the evening Patriarch Ammon White closed his series of services which lasted over a month.

Argentine Church

The second of a series of Sunday evening sermons was preached by Stake Missionary Arthur Oakman Sunday evening. "Faith of Our Church" was his theme. A representative crowd greeted him.

Pastor R. E. Browne was the morning speaker.

Supplies Omission

In the story of the Eastern Colorado district conference, printed in the Herald for September 16, page 886, there occurs an omission which has caused the writer considerable embarrassment. The second sentence from the end of the paragraph near the middle of the second column should read as follows: "The gift of prophecy was also made manifest, resting upon Brother E. J. Gleazer and Brother Glaude Smith in great power and clear intelligence as they delivered the word of the Lord to five of the brethren. Brother Gleazer spoke to Ralph Radcliffe, E. F. Shupe, and Richard Salyards. Brother Smith spoke to Ralph Vincent and Paul Diefendorf."

MISCELLANEOUS

Priesthood Conferences

Far West Stake will have a series of priesthood conferences at Cameron, Guilford, and Saint Joseph on October 9, 10, and 11, respectively. Class work will begin at 10 o'clock each morning. A general preaching service will be held at night. Apostle J. F. Garver will conduct the series. President F. M. McDowell will preach at the evening service on October 11 at Saint Joseph.—The Stake Presidency.

All-day Meeting

An all-day meeting will be held at Cedar Rapids, Iowa, Sunday, October 11. Church school at 10 a. m., preaching at 11 a. m., 2:30, and 7:30 p. m. Meetings will be held in the Salvation Army church building at the corner of Third Street and Fifth Avenue, West. The Cedar Rapids women will provide lunch at noon in the church basement at a small cost. The Saints, especially the young people, are invited from all the eastern Iowa branches, and such other branches in the district as are within reasonable driving distance. We are trying to arrange for special speakers for the day from among the brothers at the university at Iowa City.—E. R. Davis, district president.

All-day Meeting

An all-day rally program will be carried out at Parkersburg, (West Virginia), Branch, Sunday, October 11. This date also marks the eleventh anniversary of the branch. Missionary A. C. Silvers and wife will be with us, and we hope to have another speaker, perhaps from another district. A basket dinner will be served at the church at noon. Saints are invited to come and spend the day with us.—H. B. Smith, branch president.

District Institute

An accredited institute of Kirtland District will be held at Barberton, October 10 and 11. First meeting will be at 7.30 Saturday. The general topic will be: "Zion as a Sociological Possibility." Earl Curry will lead three class sessions and James E. Bishop two. Barberton Saints extend a welcome to surrounding branches to attend these meetings. The church is located on the corner of Hiram and State Streets.—James E. Bishop, district president; William F. Webbe, superintendent of district church schools.

Our Departed Ones

HARPSTER.—Ann Forsythe was born at Highland, Canada, July 11, 1852. She married Jacob Harpster June 24, 1883, at Crookston, where they lived for some time. Later they moved to Audubon, Minnesota, where the old home still is. Mr. Harpster passed away four years ago last February. The five children born to this union survive their parents: A. D. Harpster, O. D. Harpster, Hampden, North Dakota; O. R. Harpster, Devils Lake, North Dakota; W. W. Harpster, Audubon, and Mrs. L. K. German, Cameron, Missouri. Mrs. Harpster was a good neighbor and friend, a woman loved and respected by all who knew her. She joined the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints July 16, 1894, being baptized by Elder Swen Swenson. Died September 11, 1931, at Audubon. Besides her five children she leaves a brother, John Forsythe, Mentor, Minnesota; two step-daughters, Mrs. Nettie Miller and Mrs. C. M. Snider, Gladstone, Oregon; ten grandchildren and nine step-grandchildren. M. O. Erickson officiated at the funeral service.

BRIGGS.—Mabel Briggs was born May 1, 1876, at Plano, Illinois. Was baptized a member of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints April 16, 1893, by her father, E. C. Briggs. She was a faithful and helpful member. Passed beyond at the Independence Sanitarium, September 21, 1931. Surviving are two brothers: E. D. Briggs, Independence, and J. D. Briggs, of Woodbine, Kansas; a younger son, Cedric Fenour, whom she reared from early childhood, and a host of friends. The funeral occurred from the Latta Funeral Home, Independence, Elder C. E. Blodgett in charge, assisted by Elder Fender. Pallbearers were Arthur Grenawalt, R. J. Lambert, Bert Peterson, Arthur Hodges, A. A. Ellison, and Walter Curtis. Interment was in Mound Grove Cemetery.

STONE.—Albert E. Stone was born September 13, 1857, at London, England, and died at Kirtland, Ohio, September 23, 1931. He came to this country at the age of twelve years. He was united in marriage to Cora F. Brown August 21, 1879. To this union were born two daughters, Mrs. Frank B. Van Name, of New Cameron, Connecticut, and Mrs. Joseph H. Stiffer, of Kirtland, Ohio. He united with the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, August 25, 1895. He was ordained to the office of elder, February 14, 1897, and on April 18, 1910, to the office of seventy. Five years later, April 15, 1915, he was ordained to the office of high priest, and a few years later to the office of patriarch, and he served in this office as long as health permitted. Besides his wife, he leaves two daughters, three grandchildren, two great-grandchildren, three brothers, one sister, and a host of friends, to mourn their loss. He will ever live in memory. The funeral ceremony was conducted September 25, at Kirtland, Patriarch J. A. Gunsolley preaching the sermon. Interment was in Kirtland Cemetery.

One-day Meeting at Armada, Michigan

A one-day meeting was held at Armada, Michigan, September 20, the first meeting being conducted at 10 o'clock in the morning at the Methodist Church. Mr. Vern Allen, a Methodist brother, introduced T. L. Clark, of Flint, Michigan, as the speaker. The Methodist choir was in charge of the music. A pleasing feature of the program was a vocal solo, "Open the Gates of the Temple," by Richard Whitford, of Port Huron.

The 11:30 morning prayer meeting occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Holmes, East Main Street. Elder William Sheffer presided, and an inspirational spirit prevailed.

Brother Frank Davis, of Lake Orion, was the 2:30 speaker. His theme was based on the prophecy of Amos: "Surely the Lord God will do nothing, but he revealeth his secrets unto his servants the prophets."

In the evening we returned to the church where Elder Sheffer introduced Elder John Hall, of Lake Orion, as the speaker. Music was again in charge of the Methodist Choir, the feature being a duet, "Is Your All on the Altar?" by Miss Margaret Klefflor and Mr. Harvey Shutt.

Following the evening meeting Saints and friends returned to their homes. Elder Sheffer, wife, and mother-in-law remained until Monday.

YOU CAN'T AFFORD TO MISS

The Prize Articles From the "Word of Wisdom" Contest

in the

OCTOBER

VISION

First and Second Prize Winners will appear in this issue. Other fine articles as well in this and succeeding numbers.

Subscription price in U. S. A., $1.75 per year.

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE

Independence, Missouri

VISION

ANNOUNCES A NEW

Short Story Contest

THE PRIZES

First Prize .....	$15.00 Cash
Second Prize .....	8.00 Cash
Third Prize .....	5.00 Cash

The Rules

1. Stories must be original, and the work of the contestant.
2. Length to be 3,000 words or under.
3. Good lively stories wanted. Doctrinaire element not required, though stories will be most favored which are wholesome in characterization, atmosphere, and culmination.
4. All stories submitted for this contest are to be considered for use in Vision, whether they win prizes or not.
5. All manuscripts should be in the hands of the Story Contest Editor on or before December 31, 1931.

Address

VISION

Story Contest Editor

Box 237

Independence, Missouri

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Frederick M. Smith, Editor in Chief.
 Elbert A. Smith, Floyd M. McDowell, Associate Editors.
 Leonard J. Lea, Managing Editor.
 Leta B. Moriarty, Assistant Editor.
 Published for the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Subscription price: By the year, $2.

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE
 INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI

CONTENTS

EDITORIALS:

Israel, Remember the Sources of Thy Strength .....	914
Principles of the Gospel .....	914
The Joint Council Meetings .....	915
Laboratory Notes on the Word of Wisdom .....	915
Patriarch A. E. Stone Is Dead .....	916

ORIGINAL ARTICLES:

Agents for God, by Joseph Luff .....	917
Tom King: A Life History, by C. H. Porter .....	920
The Back-to-College Movement, by L. E. Flowers .....	921
The Power of Prayer, by Roy Remington .....	923

CHURCH WORK AND SERVICES:

A Radio Program in Parent Education, by C. B. W. ....	924
Guiding the Nursery Child .....	925
Christmas Offering News .....	925
Do You Know These People? .....	926

NEWS OF CHURCH AND HOME

NEWS OF CHURCH AND HOME .....	928
-------------------------------	-----

MISCELLANEOUS .....	934
---------------------	-----

For Sale

30 ACRES 12 miles from Independence; 4-room house, lots of fruit, stone cave, springs, plenty of timber for fire wood. $3,500.00.

76 ACRES seven miles from Independence; 5-room house, barn, out buildings, pond, black soil 20 feet deep, raise anything, level land.

40 ACRES two miles from Independence. Highly improved. $15,000.00 cash.

DUPEX—Rents $80.00 month. $7,000.00.

ROOMING HOUSE—12 rooms, $7,000.00.

WATKINS REAL ESTATE

N. W. Corner Square, Independence, Mo.

Tel. 297

The Church School Handbook

A Worker's Manual

Read what one district president says of it:

"Just received my copy of the Church School Handbook. An excellent, much needed little assistant; a fine study book for leaders who are planning the year's work during their vacations. Congratulations on both content and appearance."

It Helps Others—

It Can Help You!

Price, 35 Cents

Order From
 HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE
 Independence, Missouri

Notice

The Independence Sanitarium and Hospital offers a three-year course in nurses' training to young women who are high school graduates.

For further information write to superintendent, G. E. Copeland, R. N.

Buy Your Farms Now

While they are cheap. Any size, best terms. Special attention to readers of the Saints' Herald.

CHAS. R. BOWMAN

Butler, Mo.

All of us are just two jumps ahead of fire. INSURE against the time when FIRE catches YOU.

INSURANCE DEPARTMENT
 OF THE CHURCH

(American Underwriters, Inc.)

Indep. 486 221 W. Lexington St.

NOW IS A GOOD TIME
 TO CHANGE.

At the mid year Interest date is an advantageous time to shift your Savings Account to a safe conservative institution with a quarter century standing.

We pay 3% on Time and Savings Deposits.
 "Soliciting New Business on Our Record."

JACKSON COUNTY BANK

Independence, Mo.

"Home of Savings"

THE SAINTS'

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS

Entered as second-class matter at the post office at Independence, Missouri, Independence, Missouri. Price $2 a year in advance. Accepted for mailing at the rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917; authorized July 21, 1921.

weekly at or in sec-

Volume 78

Independence, Missouri, October 7, 1931

Number 40

FOLLOWING JESUS

“And he that taketh not his cross and followeth after me, is not worthy of me. He that findeth his life shall lose it: and he that loseth his life for my sake shall find it.”—Matthew 10: 38, 39.

THE PRESENT SITUATION AFFECTING OUR TASKS AND IDEALS

OFFICIAL COMMUNICATIONS OF THE PRESIDENCY AND TWELVE

THE CHURCH OF THE SECOND CENTURY

A STATEMENT OF FUNDAMENTAL NEEDS

By L. D. Campbell

You Are Needed to Help Carry On

How to Help in the Present Situation

In another column will be found messages from the Presidency and the Twelve addressed to the church. We commend these to the Saints for careful reading.

The strange upset in general conditions prevailing in the industrial and financial affairs of the world has started a whole train of evils from the effects of which the church has not escaped. We must meet the consequent conditions brought about in our midst. Not all the causes for the conditions now existing within the church can be traced to outside influences or forces. Some of our troubles are of our own brewing.

Always there is a tendency among people to fix the blame for disaster. This may have been the roots from which sprang the ceremony of the scapegoat. But to fasten the blame on some person or persons is small in importance compared with determining the way out. Our way out of the present unhappy conditions lies along the road of faith and devotion—faith in God, his Christ, and his church, and faith in each other; devotion to our ideals, the gospel, and the church which we believe to have been divinely established to carry out the purposes of God.

Responding to the demands of faith and devotion, every member of the church can not but feel the urge to greater activity. This urge should rest most heavily upon the members of the priesthood, for upon them has been laid the duty of preaching, exhorting, and inviting men to come to Christ. The faith of the Saints must be nurtured and strengthened, the young of the church must be taught the principles of faith and their applications to the functioning of citizenship both in the kingdom of God and in the nations of the world where residence may lie.

Above all things needed at this hour, it seems to me that the call of the hour is for loyalty of the highest form, a loyalty which will keep in view our individual responsibilities to God and the church, and which will at the same time not lose sight of the fact that there must be a fraternity within our midst which will demand official and personal loyalty one to the other.

In times of stress and strain there is likely to develop a spirit of carping criticism which manifests itself in personal recriminations, fault-finding, and bickering. These must be avoided, and replaced by developing the faculty of appreciating individual endeavor and characteristics, and passing that appreciation on by words of praise and well bestowed compliment. As children of God we should value the association and collaboration of our brothers.

F. M. S.

Meeting the Test

This is a testing time for nations, institutions, and men. It is a time when liabilities both financial and spiritual force themselves upon our attention. It is a time which reveals flaws and weaknesses, whether such be in our philosophies, investments or character. It is a time when the external, superficial and cheap, passes into the discard, having been weighed in the balance and found wanting. Values overlooked or neglected in times of ease and prosperity now appear to prove their true worth. Times like this reveal not only the weakness of error but also the strength of truth.

The church, its ministry, and its members are being tested. It should not be surprising to find that our present crisis reveals not only the weaknesses of our liabilities but the strength of our assets as well. The greatest of these assets is found not to be material but spiritual, not in the things which we possess but in the loyalty, devotion, and stamina of character of our people.

The following letter, written by one of our pastors, discloses the fact that he has met the test and passed it successfully. If we tend to be discouraged or despondent let us remember that this brother is not alone in his devotion and consecration, but that there are thousands of Saints who, like him, will in the last analysis give their all for the triumph of the church.

F. M. McD.

I don't know why I am writing this letter to you, or why I am writing it to anyone, but I have been going through some deep feelings and want to express them to someone. In fact, I guess I am writing this letter to myself for I am the only one under fire. Please consider it so.

Only recently I have been reading "The Christ of Every Road," by E. Stanley Jones, and many times, as I read through these pages, I was moved to exclaim, "Great! Wonderful! Marvelous!" and a number of times I closed the book, knelt by the bed and prayed God that I might be touched with the consecration, the deep devotion, the prophetic insight which it seemed this man Jones had experienced and that I might be as literally baptized by the Spirit as he must have been. Such devotion, such love, such sacrifice, such boldness can come only from one whose inner being has been fired by the power of Christ.

Without doubt E. Stanley Jones was led by the hand of God. His thinking is beyond the churches. His Christian service is beyond that of the ministry of the churches. But with all this admiration there came to me a sense of embarrassment and of shame. In fact, it was this feeling that brought me to my knees in prayer, for this man Jones had said or done nothing but what the ministry of this church should have been saying and doing. This man, who had not been baptized by one having authority, who was not a member of God's true church, who had never received the ordinance of the laying on of hands, all of which is believed and practiced by this church, had the courage to speak and to live the truths of Christ even though it drove him to foreign shores, amid a strange and down-trodden people, and as a result has attracted the attention of the world, the love of millions of poor people and the admiration of all Christendom.

Where was his equal in our church? Must we go back one hundred years to find anyone in our church whose devotion, boldness and sacrifice would equal his? What were our God-called ministers doing while E. Stanley Jones was giving his life in India? But most humiliating of all—what was I doing? Am I not of the chosen people—in God's church—baptized and ordained as of old? Where was my devotion, my sacrifice, my offering? And then I prayed.

Then, this morning my pride got another blow. I read an editorial in the Christian Century for September 16 concerning Toyohika Kagawa, a Japanese, one of those hated yellow foreigners who are not entitled to citizenship in our "Land of the Free and Home of the Brave."

Kagawa attracting attention of the world. America, Britain, Germany and Scandinavia all inviting him to their shores to tell them of his gospel. And here is his gospel, according to the editorial, "Kagawa has taken the old gospel of the cross and insisted that it be applied to the inhumanities of the present world. . . . He is certainly the first Christian evangelist with a world audience who has dared to insist that Calvary stands today in the slum, in the labor barracks, in the poverty-stricken farm yard."

Why should this yellow brother, born in poverty and coming up through hardships, be "First" when this very message was given to us before he was born? What are our ministers doing while Kagawa is preaching our gospel? What am I doing? Again I am embarrassed. I feel ashamed. Again I prayed.

And then there is Mahatma Gandhi in his humble garb, with his bottle of goat's milk standing undaunted and unafraid before the great potentates of England pleading the cause of 300,000,000 souls. Defying the customs of the world, defying the abuses of the world, defying the prisons of the world, he stands crying for peace and for justice and carrying on a peaceful fight for peace.

The Word says that in the mouth of two or three witnesses all things shall be established. I am wondering what the testimony of these three witnesses are doing to us, to me. To us has been given all and more than these men have, and here we are retrenching at a time when they are going ahead. We are withdrawing our forces when the world is dying for just what we have.

Our goal has not been too high. It has not been high enough. It does not challenge us to heroic action; it does not give us a sense of the significance of our mission; it does not command our all. One can do as well as the average by spending only a portion of our time, energy and possessions. There has been no call to "lose our lives" for the sake of the church, and until that call comes there will be no Kagawas or Gandhis in our church. Until the time comes when lives will be lost for this church we will not save the world nor ourselves.

Perhaps pastors under appointment and their families require more than missionaries and their families, but at that in our own case, while we do not receive more than others under similar circumstances, we could live on half of our present allowance and live better than many in this branch. We are at present receiving $95.00 a month from the general church. Half of $95.00 is $47.50. Some devoted missionary's wife could live on this $47.50 while her husband was in the mission field being supported by the Saints in that territory.

So far as I am concerned, I am willing to admit that I have been among those most willing to receive all the allowance I could get, and among the first to seek excuses to spend it for selfish purposes, but from now on I am ready to declare that I will be first in sacrifice, in devotion, in service. I pray the God of heaven and his church on earth to put me to the test, to issue the challenge, to make the call to sacrificial service, that through it the church might, by the power of an endowed ministry, become the "Light of the World."

I am conscious that that call need not be to stand before the Parliament of England, nor to carry the gospel to India. That challenge and that call can and must be answered right here and now. I seal these statements by sending to the church, as surplus, the enclosed bill. Please hand it to the bishop for me.

Sincerely yours,

Greeting From President Smith

It has been many weeks since I addressed the readers of the Herald editorially. Forced to seek retreat where the effects of illness could be battled off, I went to Hall's Island, Maine, and became the "camp mate" of Brother Leon H. Crowley; and for two months the little island was my constant abode. With a better reserve of energy I have returned to my tasks at home and office; and I hope to address myself as editor regularly to Herald readers, to whom I extend hearty greetings and good wishes.

F. M. S.

Harvest Home Festival Officially Opens

A brief and cheerful address by Mayor Roger T. Sermon, of Independence, last night, officially opened the Harvest Home Festival. A great crowd of spectators gathered in the lower auditorium to hear Mayor Sermon and the concert given by the Auditorium Band, directed by Sanford Downs.

Monday saw material improvements in the building of the Harvest Home, some people working until midnight. And all day Tuesday, the builders were adding finishing touches.

The Harvest Festival is a significant event in the life of the church and the community. It is an undertaking which is composed of bigness, beauty, and generosity. It attracts thousands of visitors to enjoy its arrangement and execution. But the festival means the most to the people who helped to create it. Participation in producing this mammoth gift of the people to those who need, composes nine tenths of the law of its enjoyment.

The Harvest Festival program includes band concerts and special events each evening.

L. B. M.

Next Week—A Report From the Presiding Bishopric

The report from the Presiding Bishopric promised to our readers for this week is available, but it has been considered well to hold it until next week for the inclusion of some matter not yet completely ready. As this week's issue already contains much official matter relating to the work of the recent session of the Joint Council and Board of Appropriations, it is considered best to present the report of the Bishopric next week when there will be opportunity to accompany it with other items relating to it.

OFFICIAL

Letter From the First Presidency

To the Church:

Last February, because of the apparent necessity of entering promptly upon a period of rigorous curtailment of expenses, the Joint Council of First Presidency, Twelve, and Presiding Bishopric, took drastic actions, based upon recommendations by the Presiding Bishopric, and budget appropriations were cut in harmony therewith. This move necessitated a number of releases from appointment.

The recent sessions of the same Joint Council, and the Committee on Appropriations took action, looking to further reductions in budget appropriations. And this necessitated further releases from appointment.

In another place in this Herald is a message from the Quorum of Twelve in which is set out a number of suggestions to the Saints for activities calculated to help the church through a difficult period. In these suggestions we concur.

While the list of men serving full time is reduced, there have been correspondingly severe cuts in appropriations to other departments of church work. The work of the church and its regular activities must be carried on, and this calls upon the entire working staff, ministers, and department workers for more strenuous efforts. The burdens which have been carried by full-time workers now released must be caught up by volunteer servers.

The members of the Twelve are taking the field again with a fine determination to discharge their responsibilities, some of them under great handicap. In their efforts to make necessary readjustments, they will call upon local men and groups to assume larger responsibilities, and into this cooperation we urge the Saints everywhere to enter whole-heartedly.

Some of the members of the Quorum of Twelve, particularly the younger ones, offered to take release along with other men dropped from the list, but in the opinion of the Presidency the necessity for supervision, direction, and stimulation by the Twelve is so great that we have urged them to be in the field as continuously as possible.

How long may be the period through which we must now pass, we do not know; but in faith we hope it will not be long till we can have the more pleasant task of augmenting the list of full-time workers. With the need for more missionary work always before us, it was with great reluctance we released members of the Seventy whose chief duty is missionary work. Of course when reappointments to this work are considered, these released

Seventies will have preferential standing. With the need, also, for the care of local congregations and groups before us, we found it hard to forego the work of appointed high priests. But in faith we look forward to the return of conditions when reappointments will be in order. And in this faithful prospect we feel sure the Saints join us, and towards the necessary better conditions we admonish the Saints to work and pray.

The Presidency is entering without reserve into the tasks contingent upon the policy of retrenchment, and will do all in their power to cooperate with the Bishopric in administering the financial affairs of the church under the trying times, and do so with the firm belief that the support of the entire church will be with us in this move.

May the Spirit of the Master move comfortingly and stimulatingly in our midst, urging us to the heights yet unattained.

THE FIRST PRESIDENCY,
By FREDERICK M. SMITH.

Letter From the Quorum of Twelve

To the Church:

The members of the Quorum of Twelve have shared with the Presidency and the Order of Bishops in the difficult task and responsibility of curtailing general church activities to match our financial resources, and in this work have therefore suffered in advance the keen disappointment of the Saints at the further reduction of our missionary force which was found to be imperative.

The necessity for maintaining the principles adopted at the Council of February, 1931, became increasingly apparent during our discussion and analysis. Because of this it became necessary to grant releases to a number of the brethren under appointment but these reductions of our missionary force have been held to an absolute minimum consistent with financial security and the stability of the organization.

In our endeavor to reduce the number of men released to the lowest possible minimum we gave earnest consideration to the advisability of sustaining some of the ministry through the support of the Saints in our large centers. Such a policy is at variance with the procedure which we have followed during many years and is fraught with difficulties both to the local communities and to the general church. Under the pressure of the present situation, however, ten of the brethren have been appointed to local centers in which it is hoped and expected that the Saints will provide both the family allowance and necessary elder's expenses. We urge that this arrangement be entered into in these centers only, and that in other centers the Saints lend their utmost financial support to the continuing of our general church activities.

We come now, therefore, with the following suggestions and requests:

I.—Let every member of the church enter upon a period of personal sacrifice born of devotion to the cause, with the assurance that the finances made available to the general church will be used with wisdom and foresight for the discharge of indebtedness and the speediest possible rehabilitation of our missionary forces.

II.—Let the ten communities where we are asking for the local support of appointees do their utmost to provide this support, without depleting the general church finances upon which our general activities are dependent.

III.—Let every ordained man consider well in his ministry those fundamental truths for which the church has stood throughout its existence, and make these basic to the education and inspiration of the Saints.

IV.—Let every person who has opportunities for employing men who have been released aid these brethren in securing employment.

There must be no diminution of the missionary endeavor of the church, and both priesthood and membership are therefore urged to give ungrudgingly of their time and their talents, as well as of their money, for the continuation of the basic activities of the church.

We share with the brethren and families affected the disappointment and heartache which these changes will bring, and have only consented thereto because of dire necessity. Every member of our quorum has expressed his willingness to accept in good spirit any personal leave of absence made necessary by the present situation, and since we have been requested to stay under appointment we pledge ourselves to work without reservation for the advancement of the cause of Zion.

And, while the present moment finds us burdened because of the retrenchments which have been found necessary, we face the future with confidence in God, and with the hope of sharing in the testimony which must yet win the world for Christ.

J. A. GILLEN
R. S. BUDD
J. F. CURTIS
F. HENRY EDWARDS
CLYDE F. ELLIS

JOHN F. GARVER
E. J. GLEAZER
P. M. HANSON
M. A. MCCONLEY
D. T. WILLIAMS

On Finding Good

The other day I ran across one of my favorite Proverbs: "He that handleth a matter wisely shall find good." It set me to thinking about the wisdom with which most of us conduct our lives. I looked among my friends and discovered how justice and honesty compose the basis of social endeavor, how consideration is the balm of life, how love and truth make life worth while, how "before honor is humility."

The last two weeks have been busy weeks at the Harvest Home Festival. There I have been privileged to see a considerable amount of wisdom exhibited by groups of people working together. The best results are obtained, I have noted, by the group whose members thoroughly understand the goal to be reached, and who do their particular parts of the work, willingly, promptly, and pleasantly.

These groups of workers have taught me that three things are supremely important if men would handle their affairs wisely and find good, and these three things are love, honesty, and humility. "Love ye one another" is a divine command, and the Master loved those whom he taught. The wisdom of love contributes largely in the shaping of our lives. Honesty with self and friends—what a blessing! This week there came a letter to our office saying: "I have made a mistake. I am sorry." The writer made no attempt to lay the blame upon some one else, or to excuse himself. He admitted the error and sought our cooperation in rectifying it. No doubt he found it difficult to write those eight words, but he was honest with himself and us, and we appreciated his honesty. And humility? "I would be humble for I know my weakness." That is it. The worth-while person is humbly aware of his weaknesses, and quietly strives to strengthen them. Can you picture more sublime humility than that shown in Gethsemane?

I believe the Proverb and, moreover, I believe that a man who would handle a matter wisely must love deeply, see to honesty in all things, and be sincerely humble. This is the man who "shall find good."

L. B. M.

Life

Forenoon, and afternoon, and night! Forenoon,
And afternoon, and night! Forenoon, and—what!
The empty song repeats itself. No more,
Yea that is Life; make this forenoon sublime,
This afternoon a psalm, this night a prayer,
And Time is conquered, and thy crown is won.

—Edward Rowland Sill.

OF GENERAL INTEREST

Is Science a Danger?

AN INTERVIEW WITH SIR OLIVER LODGE, FROM THE DAILY EXPRESS, AN ENGLISH PAPER.

"Improvement in human nature is what we want," said Sir Oliver Lodge to me, after discussing some of the wonders of science during the last 100 years—"Improvement in human nature; I think until we get humanity right these things, these inventions and developments, are a danger."

I had motored over from Amesbury to Sir Oliver's quiet and lonely home on the edge of the vast rolling Salisbury Plain. My desire was to discover what the great popular scientist regarded as the outstanding landmarks in scientific progress during this last 100 years, the most wonderful in the known history of the universe, and their effects on humanity.

"If you ask me what I consider the biggest invention during the last hundred years," he said, "it is the telephone. That is the outstanding invention of the nineteenth century.

"But," and he looked very grave, "whether it has been any good to humanity, I don't know. It has become rather a nuisance than otherwise," he added grimly:

"Then the electric light has been of extraordinary use. It used to be very dull in the villages. Electricity and wireless have made life in the country better."

Knowing Sir Oliver's great interest and connection with at least one great development in motoring I asked his view of this modern method of locomotion.

Old Theories

"The internal combustion engine," he said, "has been undoubtedly a great invention. It has made locomotion much easier."

Then he added with a smile: "But there is too much locomotion nowadays. Everybody is going about."

"Is there the likelihood of as great advances in the next 100 years?" I asked.

"I can not tell. They are talking about this television. I suppose it is a possibility, and will be realized some day, but there is a great deal to be done yet before it becomes practical.

"But all these things we have been talking about are just applications of science. The real advance has been in pure science, and that is likely to go ahead. There has been a sort of revolution in pure science."

"Knocking old theories on the head?" I suggested.

"Not so much the knocking over of theories," he corrected, "but supplementing them—take relativity and the quantum and all that.

"We are knowing a great deal more about the universe than we did, a great deal more about the constitution of the stars and what produces their radiation—their light.

"Astronomy has been revolutionized a good deal. We have always known that the universe was vast, but now we are learning more about the details. Why, a century ago we did not know much about the stars. Astronomy had to do with the planets, the solar system.

"Now the center of interest has turned to the stars and nebulae—cosmogony—the works of Jeans and Eddington, and others. These things are going to be discussed at the association this year, I think."

Sir Oliver's attitude to psychological matters has been of great public interest. I, therefore, asked him what advances he discerned during recent times in this respect.

"There has been steady progress," he added, "but nothing sensational. What you refer to is not accepted yet by orthodox science, but I suppose that will come."

Try to Help

"And if psychological claims are substantiated that," I suggested, "would be the science of sciences?"

"It would have the considerable effect of bringing the reality of a spiritual world nearer."

Sir Oliver hoped for great scientific discoveries yet, but human interest and consideration he placed above all.

"In all these developments," he urged, "we must try to help each other all we can—not make difficulties, cause accidents, bring about damage and destruction. That is not a line of progress at all.

"Steam, motoring, flying, and all scientific inventions and discoveries depend for their value on what use mankind makes of them.

"Science, you see, does not determine that. Science gives you a lot of things. It depends on man whether proper use is made of them or not.

"We increase our powers of doing all sorts of things, but we can use them for bad purposes if we choose. Science can not stop because people misuse what science provides."

Tea was waiting, and his chauffeur was bustling with the ear to hurry this grand old man of science off on a long night journey to the north.

I thought of his dictum: "There is too much locomotion nowadays." But this can not apply to the perpetually young.

The Church of the Second Century

By L. D. Campbell

A sermon delivered in the church Sunday, July 26, 1931, at Windsor, Ontario, Canada.

I am taking my text from a communication given through President Elbert A. Smith to the priesthood in the lower auditorium of the Stone Church on the morning of April 4, 1920, at Independence, Missouri.

I have witness of my love for you, for I have the evidences in my hands and in my feet and in my side—for did I not give the very blood out of my heart for you? What evidences are you prepared to give in the years to come that you love me?

I have no excuse to offer for the subject I have chosen—your church, my church, our church, God's church, the church of the second century. The movement ushered in by the providence of God through Joseph Smith has run over a century of its course. The history of this work glows on every side with the radiance of its ideals. The sacrifice of the past is a challenge left us by those who are gone. In this sacrifice we especially note the devotion of its pioneers. As Saints of Canada, should we forget such men as Elders J. J. Cornish, Joseph Luff, Arthur Leverton, John Shields, and others? For was it not through their earnest devotion and willing sacrifice and untiring effort that the gospel was placed within our reach here in Windsor?

As I view it, the outstanding contribution the Restoration has made is a church that is different; a church that is in touch with God; a church with a consecrated membership. As members of this church, let us ask ourselves: What evidences are we prepared to give today and in the days to come of our love for God and his church?

The Church of the Second Century

What will it be? Will it be like the modern churches of today? I think you will agree with me that our church will be like the church of the Restoration. If this be true, then should not the devotion and sacrifice of its members be outstanding? The fact that our church has come under the hammer's blow of depression forces this question: If our devotion and sacrifice, as a complete membership, had measured up to the devotion and sacrifice of the first fourteen years of our history, would not the world have made a beaten path to our doors to ask us how we did it? Because that full devotion is lacking, our church is suffering today. If the "Church of the Second Century" maintains the standards of the "Church of the Restoration" and recognizes the devotion of its pioneers, it will be necessary to have: (1) An earnest membership, (2) A learning membership, (3) A membership that conscientiously uses the means of Grace, (4) A working membership, (5) A membership possessing missionary spirit, (6) A membership that supports the institution of religion at home, and (7) A membership that walks in separation from the world.

An Earnest Membership

I do not mean a membership who worship God through fear or simply for duty's sake. This church wants a membership who, through earnest service, can climb the heights of God. Man can climb no higher than he climbs as a seeker of God. In this capacity man is at his best. We must have a firm conviction of the value of life. Paul, in writing to the saints of Rome, exhorts them to love and please God: "I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service." (Romans 12:1.) "Not slothful in business; fervent in spirit; serving the Lord." (12:11.) "Rejoice with them that do rejoice, and weep with them that weep." (12:15.) Too many of our members have looked upon it as their right to do as they wish, but if I can read between the lines of Paul's letter I find that God requires a life that expresses a purpose; a life that will give itself unreservedly for others; a life that points out the way to the more abundant life.

In Paul's epistle to the Hebrews, he makes use of this language: "And we desire that every one of you do show the same diligence to the full assurance of hope unto the end: that ye be not slothful, but followers of them who through faith and patience inherit the promises." (Hebrews 6:11, 12.)

God in speaking to the church in the latter days, as recorded in the book of Doctrine and Covenants (58:6), declares: "Men should be anxiously engaged in a good cause, and do many things of their own free will, and bring to pass much righteousness; for the power is in them. . . . But he that doeth not anything until he is commanded, and receiveth a commandment with a doubtful heart, and keepeth it with slothfulness, the same is damned." Today—if we will hear and understand his voice—is the only time of which we are certain. This church of today must have an earnest membership if it maintains the standards of the Restoration.

A Learning Membership

We need a membership who know their church; a membership who have a working knowledge of their church. In the revelation from which I choose my text, God speaks thus: "You are to preach the Gospel, as it is in the books that have been given to the Church. You are not to preach your own speculations or idle imaginings, and you are not to preach the philosophy of men." If I understand this revelation, as well as those in the book of Doctrine and Covenants, it is demanded of us that we know our church that we may intelligently represent it to the world. Is it not just possible that the progress of this church has been handicapped to some extent by its laity, as well as the ministry, who have not had a working knowledge of their church? Paul, in his letter to Timothy, admonishes him to: "Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth." (2 Timothy 2: 15.) Saints, as members, you have the right to demand of your pastors that they supply the pulpit with those only who have shown themselves approved unto God, workmen that need not be ashamed. How often have you and I been humiliated and mortified at the shameful display of ignorance in some who have supposedly been called of God? May God hasten the day when the ministry, as well as the laity, will know their church and have a working knowledge of it. Again, let me quote from the book of Doctrine and Covenants (85: 36): "Seek ye out of the best books words of wisdom: seek learning even by study, and also by faith." In section 119, paragraph 2, is a revelation to the elders of the church in 1887, wherein they were told to study to approve their ministrations to the people by candor in speech and courtesy in demeanor, that, as ministers of the Gospel, they may win souls for Christ. True knowledge will help our souls to enlarge and expand. The Savior says, "Come learn of me." If the church of today maintains the standards of the Restoration, it must have a learning membership.

A Membership That Conscientiously Uses the Means of Grace

The Psalmist David said: "I was glad when they said unto me, Let us go into the House of the Lord." (Psalm 122: 1.) Oh, how I would to God that our membership, as a whole, could say this and mean it this morning. Man must live according to the laws of life. The church is the home of that life and becomes the medium of man's growth and development. Let me read further from the book of Doctrine and Covenants (85: 21): "And I give unto you a commandment, that you shall teach one another the doctrine of the kingdom; teach ye diligently and my grace shall attend you, that you may be instructed more perfectly in theory, in principle, in doctrine, in the law of the gospel; in all things that pertain unto the kingdom of God, that is expedient for you to understand." Turn with me to section 59, paragraph 2: "And that thou mayest more fully keep thyself unspotted from the world, thou shalt go to the house of prayer and offer up thy sacraments upon my holy day; for verily this is a day appointed unto you to rest from your labors, and to pay your devotions unto the Most High." If I can interpret or read this revelation in terms of modern life, basing my conclusions upon the empty seats here this morning, as well as on Wednesday evenings at our prayer service, I would make it read thus: "And I give unto you a commandment that when you desire to worship me, I say unto you go thou to the seashore, or the theater, or ball park, select some so-called pleasure, or manufacture some excuse and I will bless you." Beloved Saints, I am glad that, through the wisdom of God, he has provided a place where we can teach one another the doctrine of the kingdom; where we can be instructed more perfectly in theory, in principle, in doctrine, in the law of the gospel, in all things that pertain unto the kingdom of God that are expedient for us to understand. Let us read now from section 85, paragraph 36: "Call your solemn assemblies, as I have commanded you. . . . Organize yourselves, prepare every needful thing, and establish a house, even a house of prayer, a house of fasting, a house of faith, a house of learning, a house of glory, a house of order, a house of God, that your incomings . . . and outgoings may be in the name of the Lord, that all your salutations may be in the name of the Lord with uplifted hands unto the Most High." If the Church of the Second Century shall maintain the standards of the Restoration, it must have a membership who conscientiously uses the means of grace.

A Working Membership

"All at it and always at it." This must be our working motto. It will require self-denial upon our part. As the athlete denies himself harmful luxuries in order that he may be strong, so must we deny ourselves many things. We must think of the good of others. It is not easy for a real soldier to enlist and leave behind home and friends and personal interests; nevertheless, he gives them up for the good of his country. The missionaries, whether they be those in our own land or those who have gone to foreign countries, must practice self-denial in the work of God. There is plenty of room in the church to display this soldier-like and missionary virtue. It is this quality we need in the church in order to fight the good fight of faith. The book of Doctrine and Covenants is so full of information on this point that we must turn to it again for instruction. (104: 44): "He that is slothful shall not be counted worthy to stand, and he that learns not his duty and shows himself not approved, shall not be counted worthy to stand." There is no room for the idler in the church of God and if this church is to progress there can be no idlers. In section 85: 38 God says, "Cease to be idle." In section 118: 4 the Saints are warned not to uphold idle servants. In section 75: 5 we read: "The idler shall not have a place in the church, except he repents and mends his ways." Section 42: 12 emphatically embodies our working motto: "For he that is idle shall not eat the bread or wear the garments of the laborer." There are a great many hindrances to growth in this church. An outstanding one is idleness and closely associated with it is too deep an engrossment in business; the giving of too much importance to our own pleasure and amusement. It has been said that "An idle mind is the devil's workshop," and that Satan can find many things for idle hands to do. And how true it is! Let us guard against it. Let me quote lastly on this point from the Doctrine and Covenants (68: 4): "Now, I the Lord, am not well pleased with the inhabitants of Zion, for there are idlers among them; and their children are also growing up in wickedness; they also seek not the riches of eternity, but their eyes are full of greediness. These things ought not to be, and must be done away from among them." If the church of today will maintain the standards of the church of the Restoration it must have a working membership: "All at it and always at it."

A Membership Possessing Missionary Spirit

In a word, the missionary spirit is needed in our church. When Lincoln reprieved William Scott, condemned to be shot for sleeping at his post, he said to him: "I am going to trust you, and send you back to your regiment. My bill for this is a very large one. I have left my work, and come up here from Washington on your account. There is only one man in the world who can pay the bill, and his name is William Scott. If from this day William Scott does his duty so that if I were there when he comes to die, he could look me in the face, as he does now, and say: 'I have kept my promise, and have done my duty as a soldier,' then the debt will be paid. Will you make that promise, and try to keep it?" The promise was made and kept. He lived a life of courageous helpfulness, and died while rescuing wounded men. You and I are converts to this work because some man or woman possessed the missionary spirit and kept the promise that he would serve God as a member of this church. If I understand the Restoration movement it is definitely missionary. In the words of the committee who compiled the Extension Course of the Centennial Institute: "This church is a missionary church. Its tremendous task is to carry the message of life to men. The whole membership of the church in the very nature of things must be vitally involved in this work of saving mankind. Missionary work is not limited to one arm of the church, or to one corps of workers. It is a responsibility of the whole church, and in the larger sense every activity of the church should have its missionary phase." The book of Doctrine and Covenants stands out very prominently in this respect, for in section 81: 4 we read: "Every man seeking the interest of his neighbor, and doing all things with an eye single to the glory of God." Perhaps the need for the missionary spirit is nowhere more definitely indicated than in section 85: 22: "And it becometh every man who hath been warned, to warn his neighbor." There is no question in my mind but that the gospel has brought peace and satisfaction to our lives. Did it ever occur to you that it will do the same for others? If so, shall we discharge that responsibility of warning our neighbor? I quote further from section 38: 9: "And again I say unto you, I give unto you a commandment, that every man, both elder, priest, teacher, and also member, go to with his might, . . . to prepare and accomplish the things which I have commanded." Continuing with the book of Doctrine and Covenants we read in section 119: 8: "Prosecute the missionary work in this land and abroad so far and so widely as you may. All are called according to the gifts of God unto them; and to the intent that all may labor together, let him that laboreth in the ministry and him that toileth in the affairs of the men of business and of work labor together with God for the accomplishment of the work intrusted to all." My sister, my brother, what evidences are we prepared to give today and in the coming days that we love God and our church? "The field is white already to harvest, therefore, whoso desireth to reap, let him thrust in his sickle with his might, . . . whosoever will thrust in his sickle and reap the same is called of God." (Section 11: 2.) There is no other way for God to save souls but through the efforts of man, and if this church of today maintains the standards of the Restoration it must have a membership possessing missionary spirit.

A Membership That Heartily Supports the Institution of Religion at Home

A very small girl went to her mother one time and asked, "Mamma, are you a Christian?" The mother replied, "No, Fannie, I am not." She turned and went away, and as she walked off her mother heard her say, "Well, if Mamma is not a Christian, I don't want to be one." This church must have a membership who serve God seven days a week and three hundred sixty-five days a year, instead of fifty-two Sundays and Wednesdays. My attention is drawn this morning to a young couple who are members of this church whom God has intrusted with the care of small children. In the branch of which they are members their children are never seen at Sunday school. I fear that the inevitable result will be that some day when those children grow up these parents will wonder why they do not go to church and take their part, and it is just possible there will be heartaches because of the parents' neglect now. I hope the day will come when the parents in our church will awaken to the responsibility God intrusts them with when children are permitted to come into their homes. Just how many souls are being lost to the church yearly because of the lack of religious living and teaching in the home? Refer with me to section 68: 4 and we read: "And again, inasmuch as parents have children in Zion, or in any of her stakes which are organized, that teach them not to understand the doctrine of repentance; faith in Christ the Son of the Living God; and of baptism and the gift of the Holy Ghost by the laying on of hands when eight years old, the sin be upon the head of the parents; for this shall be a law unto the inhabitants of Zion, or in any of her stakes which are organized; and their children shall be baptized for the remission of their sins when eight years old, and receive the laying on of hands: and they shall also teach their children to pray, and to walk uprightly before the Lord." This warning is very timely for us today. Otherwise our children may grow up in wickedness for which no one is to blame but the parents. I think I am safe in saying that if, as parents in our church, we would heed "instruction's warning" voice that seventy-five per cent of the youth of our church would be saved to us and prevent many heartaches. I recall a recent testimony of our pastor about two weeks ago last Wednesday night. He said he knew of parents to whom God had spoken through prophecy telling them that, If they did not set their house in order and observe the spiritual as well as the temporal law of this church that the time would come when their children would become a shame unto them and that the parents would be cast upon the mercies of people for help. Our pastor further said that, "This prophecy has been literally fulfilled, not because God wanted it so, but because God understood the nature of conditions." In a revelation to Frederick G. Williams as recorded in section 90: 6, we read: "But I have commanded you to bring up your children in light and truth, . . . and you shall set in order your own house, for there are many things that are not right in your house." In light of the revelations to this church today and in view of the fact that so many of the young show little interest in the church, it seems to me that there should be a re-evaluation of family life; for not only does the child receive in the family, in the simplest, most direct, and most effective way, those traditions regarding industry, government, law, morality, and religion, but he also learns of love, service, and self-sacrifice. I want to remind that according to section 68: 4, you are to teach your children to pray and to walk uprightly before God. What better method could be used than establishing the family altar in your home, if you have not already done so, and pray with them, for in this family prayer the combined hopes of all are expressed. It seems to me that the inner lives of the family circle are revealed and associated with this, I have learned through experience that there is a picture of home we carry with us through life. If the church of today is to maintain the standards of the Restoration we must have a membership who heartily support the institution of religion at home.

A Membership That Walks in Separation From the World

Paul admonishes: "And be not conformed to this world: but be ye transformed by the renewing of your minds, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect, will of God." (Romans 12: 2.) "This world is no friend to Grace to help us on to God." It works day and night to keep people amused and doped, so that they will not think upon their own way. And the sad part is that we are eagerly following them. Let us bring into action again the book of Doctrine and Covenants (100: 1, 2): "Verily, I say unto you, my friends, Behold, I give unto you a revelation and commandment, that you may know how to act in the discharge of your duties concerning the salvation and redemption of your brethren . . . for they were set to be a light unto the world, and to be the saviors of men." I again refer to section 59: 2: "And that you mayest more fully keep thyself unspotted from the world, thou shalt go to the house of prayer." In section 53: 2 we read: "Behold, I, the Lord, who was crucified for the sins of the world, giveth unto you a commandment, that you shall forsake the world." How true it is that we can not carry God in one hand and the world in the other! It is given unto us to be in the world but not of the world. At this point I want to repeat my text: "I have witness of my love for you, for I have the evidences in my hands, and in my feet and in my side . . . for did I not give the very blood out of my heart for you? What evidences are you prepared to give in years to come that you love me?" If the church of the second century maintains the standards of the Restoration and can recognize the devotion of its

Weekly Health Letter

Number Thirteen

The Nose and Its Relation to Health and Disease.—11

The Treatment of Colds

By A. W. Teel, M. D., Church Physician

In the treatment of colds, we must bear in mind that we have an infection to deal with. Along with the epidemic of Spanish influenza, studies were made of the epidemic of measles and pneumonia at the cantonments, which emphasized the fact that epidemics of respiratory diseases are brought about, chiefly, through close contact with others having the same disease. During the study of these epidemics, it was found that air and sunlight are valuable adjuncts in the treatment of colds and other forms of respiratory diseases.

The organisms producing colds do not long survive in good, fresh air and sunlight. It must be remembered that the passages of the human body serve as a culture medium, especially in the nose, for these bacteria. Colds are a "crowd disease." Coughing, sneezing, spitting and talking, spray the disease for the convenience of inhalation of others. The habit of talking into other people's faces should be strictly avoided. Sputum cups or gauze should be used for the sputum, and a sneeze should always be caught in a handkerchief or some other receptacle.

Correction of nasal obstruction is of the greatest importance, as any malformation in structures is certain to cause a susceptibility to infection. Other contributing factors are diseased tonsils and adenoids which have a great deal to do with retarding the development of the internal nasal structures. Checking the growth of the upper jaw and nasal structures will bring about the malformation of the teeth and dental arches. If these corrections are made soon enough, during early life, the proper treatment of the tonsils and adenoids, instituted, together with the correction of the deformity of the pioneers, it will be necessary to have: an earnest membership, a learning membership, a membership that conscientiously uses the means of Grace, a working membership, a membership possessing missionary spirit, a membership that supports the institution of religion at home, and a membership that walks in separation from the world.

---

May God help us to uphold these standards is my prayer.

arches, often renders nasal surgery unnecessary. The neglect of such conditions increases the frequency of the colds and increases the severity, frequently bringing about infection of the various bony cavities, especially the sinuses. Such a condition may not end here, as it may cause an involvement of the middle ear and possible the mastoid cells, which may, if not properly treated, surgically and otherwise, extend to the brain and produce a fatal termination. Those who suffer from recurrent colds should take the precaution, before winter sets in, to have any diseased condition of the mucous membrane of the nose, or any obstruction, corrected. Strange, as it is true, the mucous membrane of the nose does not respond well to watery solutions, and on this account, the regular use of the nasal douche is not advisable. Frequently a chronic congested condition, or even infection of ear cavities in the skull, has been found to be the result of the constant use of sprays and douches. They should never be used, only upon the advice of a physician.

Overheated, too dry, or dusty atmosphere, and the indiscriminate blowing of the nose has been known to carry infection into the ear passages of the cavities communicating with the nose, with serious results. Deep, slow and regular breathing, frequently during the day, is very helpful. This, together with the precaution to have the nasal passages put in a healthy condition and strict obedience to the Word of Wisdom—frequently, constipation, lack of exercise, predispose to colds. The skin should not be neglected, as it should be trained and should be one of the first hygienic steps toward establishing a resistance to their frequency. An untrained skin is over sensitive and reacts to exposure quickly, causing a disturbance of the circulation and heat-regulating machinery of the body.

Cool bathing, or very cold water applied to the body produce a healthy reaction, but is not favorable to those who do not react well from it, or those who have kidney trouble. Cold should be brought about gradually reducing the temperature of the water. The extremities should be bathed first, then the body. An extremely cold bath should not be continued a long time. Exercise in a cool room without clothing and the wearing of loose, porous clothing are valuable measures to produce healthy skin reaction. Clothing should be adapted to the changes of the weather. Heavy wraps and fur coats should be worn only when driving or motoring. Those following indoor occupations, frequently make the mistake of wearing heavy underclothing which has a debilitating influence on the skin, with its resultant impairment of resisting power. Sixty-five degrees is sufficient temperature for rooms where people are moving about and should not be allowed to rise above sixty-eight degrees. One of the best methods of preventing colds is living and sleeping out of doors. This gives the skin exercise and furnishes fresh air for the lungs.

The remedial measures are many. I'll only mention a few that have been proved successful, and if results are not obtained from them within twenty-four or forty-eight hours, especially if constantly attended by fever, a physician should be consulted. Therefore, the body must not be exposed to drafts, etc., as has already been mentioned for prevention. To obtain quick results from home treatment, the wisest course to pursue is to remain in bed at least one day at the outset, taking great care to keep the body comfortably warm, especially the feet. The room should be kept humidified, especially in the winter when it is apt to be exceedingly dry. Our grandmothers instructed us: "Stuff a cold and starve a fever." This is most erroneous, as my experience has taught me, and other physicians say that it is sometimes wise to fast absolutely by skipping a meal or two and partaking of food that has bulk, such as green vegetables, salads, or fruit. During the fasting, agar-agar dissolved in water has been proved beneficial.

Some of the home remedies I would advise, would be a hot foot bath—112 to 115 degrees Fahrenheit; a thorough emptying of the bowels; rubbing the neck and chest with camphorated oil, and a hot drink such as hot lemonade or flaxseed tea. The foot bath should be taken in a very thorough manner, while the body is enveloped in a blanket, and should last at least fifteen or twenty minutes. Following the bath, the patient should immediately go to bed in order to obtain the best results. Teaspoonful doses of baking soda, every hour, for several hours, has proved, in my hands, to be very valuable. The old-fashioned whisky and heavy doses of opium are detrimental. In some cases vaccines have seemed to be of benefit. Quack remedies and catarrh cures should be avoided.

In the treatment of a cold common sense is necessary, and it is a good time when one is getting over the cold to make a resolution to avoid catching cold by following the suggestions previously made.

Plans, shows and crowds do not mean a healthy spiritual condition in any church. Too frequently they are tell-tale symptoms of an inward malady. By bizarre services you may get the crowds—but what do the crowds get? Each fantastic plan or superheated drive must be followed by one more hectic. No bag of pulpit tricks is bottomless.—
Harry Burton Boyd.

"Thou Shalt Love Thy Neighbor as Thyself."

By Poul S. Nielsen

Christ, our elder brother, tells us in one of his parables how a certain man went a traveling and how he fell among robbers and was left by the way-side wounded. After a while a priest came by but did not want to see him for fear that he might have to help the poor man. Later on a Levite or temple helper came traveling the same way. He also passed the wounded man by without offering any help. At last a man from Samaria came by. When he saw the wounded man, he picked him up and cleansed his wounds, dressed them, and finally took him to an inn and told the innkeeper to take care of him and he gave the innkeeper some money for his trouble and let it be known that if that was not enough he would pay the rest when he came by.

After Jesus had finished this parable he turned to the lawyer who had been asking him questions and asked him who he thought was the neighbor of the wounded man.

The lawyer was obliged to say that it was the Samaritan, although it without doubt was a hard thing for him to do as the Jews as a rule despised the inhabitants of Samaria, and considered them almost like lower beings. The lawyer's answer was: He who showed mercy on him. Then Jesus told him to go and do likewise.

When we look around us, not alone in our own little world wherein we live our daily lives, but also in the world at large it can not be denied that although much good has been done towards our fellow man, there is still plenty of room for improving in doing good towards our neighbors.

It has been said that into a new country the nations will first send missionaries and later on cannon to exploit the heathen that have just been taught that the essence of Christianity is: To love our neighbors as ourselves. It is the same way with us who do not travel forth to foreign lands in trying to teach if we do not keep our own teaching. The main reason that the teachings of great men have come down through the ages to the present time is that they themselves practiced what they believed to be right and true. The teachings of Confucius and of Buddha have come down to our days mainly because their teachings were what the minds of the Chinese and Indian peoples were looking for.

The teachings of Christ have come down to our time and will endure because they appeal to mankind more than any other person's teachings, no matter whether they believe him to be as we do the Son of God.

Christ himself, more than any other man who founded a great religious system, lived his religion or teaching as he wanted mankind to do it, and the main point of it all was: "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." He did not say that we should love them as we would, for instance, love our parents or children or anyone else. No, the command is, "As thyself."

There is a certain tendency in all men and animals, and plants as well, always to be on the lookout for oneself. It is called the law of self-preservation.

True indeed, if we can subdue this selfish desire in our own selves so that we in all things and dealings with our fellow man will think of his welfare first, we will in truth be a real disciple of the man from Galilee.

Rivers of words have been used in proclaiming this great principle to the inhabitants of our globe, volume upon volume has been printed, dealing with this subject, and it will be done as long as the world stands.

Sometimes we might get to think, "What is the use of all this being so good and doing good for your fellow man? Can we not see Mr. So and So prosper as well or perhaps better than we do, and yet he never enter a church?"

To this we might answer that the Lord let it rain on just and unjust alike and just because we go to church is no sure indication that we shall inherit immortal life, for not all who say Lord, Lord shall enter the kingdom of heaven. Are we rather not trying to find some excuse for our own selves? For that seems to be a human fallacy to find excuses. Perhaps it is because it is easier to find them than it is to get up and do something worth while.

We often hear it said that "If Christ only lived today in the flesh on the earth, I should be willing to follow him to the end of the world." But did not Christ say to those who would come after him that in order to be his we should be willing to follow him? And what is it to follow Christ? Is it not to do his will? If it is not to do his will, what else is it?

We, as Latter Day Saints, must especially heed this injunction to follow in his footsteps and try to do something, however small it might seem in our own eyes, in order to make this world a better place for all mankind to live.

Some one might say or think by himself that he is not able to do anything. Forget it, brother or sister. There is a load for all of us. What some one can not do, perhaps you can do to perfection; do not sit idly by. While the day lasts it is the time to work. One thing we can all do and that is to help carry one another's burden, for in unity is strength, as the old saying is. What one can not do alone, might be easily accomplished by two working together, and if we all stand together and work unitedly for our cause in promoting the kingdom of God on earth nothing in this world will be able to stop the onward march of our church.

If we as Latter Day Saints could put our very best to work for the church that we believe to be the true church of God and stand as a united army for Christ, it would not be long before the world would be conquered for Christ. But here is where all our troubles lie. We are not united enough. If Brother So and So should happen to say something or other in his sermon or do some small thing that does not exactly agree with our own views of that particular question, we think at once that he is wrong, and that we are right. Yet many a time, perhaps months afterwards, we find that he was right after all and that we were wrong. But do we then go to him and tell him and ask him to forgive us? Maybe we do, but most often we do not. In that regard we are all more or less stupid (excuse the word) and keep on doing what we ought not to do.

We are getting nearer and nearer the end when the Son of Man shall come in his glory. How soon it will be here we do not know, so why not get together in earnest and promote this our own work? Let us forget the things of the past that did not suit us and look forward to the future, laying our plans now in the present time that we might be able to be the Good Samaritan to the people of the world whenever the opportunity comes.

Then indeed the Lord can say that we loved our neighbors as our own selves:

---

Religion is primarily and at heart the personal meeting of the soul with God and conscious communion with him. To give up the cultivation of prayer would mean in the long run the loss of the central thing in religion; it would involve the surrender of the priceless jewel of the soul. We might try in its stead to perfect the other aspects of religion. We might make our form of divine service very artistic or very popular; we might speak with the tongues of men and sing with the tongues almost of angels, but if we lose the power to discover and appreciate the real presence of God and if we miss the supreme joy of feeling ourselves environed by the Spirit of the living and present God, we have made a bad exchange and have dropped from a higher to a lower type of religion.—Rufus M. Jones.

---

Truths are not merely facts to be learned; they are also principles to be lived.—Selected.

Do You Know These People?

The Department of Statistics Asks Aid in Locating Lost Members

To the Editors and Readers of the Saints' Herald, Greetings:

In the list which follows are the names of persons who have been reported unknown by the secretary of the Kansas City Stake. A diligent effort has been made by the stake officers and by this department to locate these persons, with a marked degree of success in many cases, but after everything has been done along available lines, the following names remain on the list.

We are therefore appealing to the readers of the Herald, asking them to go over the list carefully, and if they can give us any information about any of these names that will assist us in bringing the records up to date, to send the same to the Department of Statistics, The Auditorium, Independence, Missouri. If the complete present address can not be given, suggestions as to where the same may be obtained will be appreciated. This list was started in the Herald for September 30, and will continue in subsequent issues until completed.

Yours sincerely,

DEPARTMENT OF STATISTICS,

By C. L. OLSON.

Name	Year of		Places Where Once Enrolled
	Birth	Baptism
Cook, John Wesley	1896	1920	Kansas City.
Cook, Mary A.	1904	1916	Armstrong, Kansas.
Cook, May (Richards)	1891	1914	Independence, Kansas City.
Cook, N. E. Jane	1903	1916	Armstrong, Kansas.
Cooper, Andrew C.	1892	1902	Chelsea Park, Kansas; Kansas City.
Cooper, Pearl M.	1896	1904	Kansas City, Missouri.
Cooper, Zaide Olive	1865	1893	Armstrong, Kansas; Kansas City.
Cottolenby, Joseph	1866	1892	Armstrong, Kansas.
Craig, Edward	1889	1924	Kansas City.
Craig, Lora May (Lovell)	1889	1909	Mount Olive, Kansas; Mapleton, Kansas City.
Crane, Opal	1907	1924	Kansas City.
Croft, Aubrey F.	1901	1912	Fairfield, Nebraska; Kansas City.
Crookshonk, Frances T. (Brown) (Eustic)	1876	1904	Kansas City.
Crosby, Lucius	1873	1908	Packard, Iowa; Cameron, Missouri; Kansas City.
Crosby, Lulu M.	1881	1907	Iowa Scattering, Packard, Iowa; Cameron, Missouri; Kansas City.
Crosley, Thelma Lucile (Leaton)	1903	1911	Bennington Heights, Missouri.
Crownover, Daniel Marion	1888	1921	Fisher, Arkansas; Independence, Kansas City.
Crownover, Della Lona	1901	1921	Fisher, Arkansas; Independence, Kansas City.
Culumber, Mary Ann (Brown)	1906	1919	Argentine, Kansas.
Cunningham, Ellsworth M.	1905	1914	Walnut Park, Missouri; Kansas City.
Curnutt, George Christ	1881	1914	Kansas City.
Curry, Henry Scott	1884	1893	Kansas City.
Curry, Joseph	1863	1887	Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania; Lees Summit, Missouri; Kansas City.
Curry, Lucy J.	1887	1895	Lees Summit, Missouri; Kansas City.
Curry, Nellie Belle	1889	1897	Lees Summit, Missouri; Kansas City.
Curry, Susan L.	1864	1887	Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania; Lees Summit, Missouri; Kansas City.
Curtis, John G.	1852	1898	Chelsea Park, Kansas.
Curtis, Matilda I.	1879	1890	Armstrong, Kansas.
Curtis, Ruth Augusta	1904	1914	Enoch Hill, Missouri; Mount Washington, Missouri.
Daniels, James H.	1878	1893	Delano, Missouri; Mount Washington, Missouri.
Darrett, Frances L. (Stokes)	1888	1907	Kansas City, Missouri.
Davenport, Raymond	1897	1918	Armstrong, Kansas.
David, James Philip	1896	1904	Keokuk, Iowa; Galien, Michigan; Kansas City.
David, Sarah Katherine	1896	1913	Kansas City.
Davidson, Margaret	1822	1886	Armstrong, Kansas.
Davis, Bessie Pearl	1886	1908	Independence, Missouri; Armstrong, Kansas, Grandview Kansas.
Davis, Clara E.	1871	1893	Armstrong, Kansas.
Davis, Denver D.	1904	1913	Armstrong, Kansas.
Davis, Flora	1874	1896	Kansas City.
Davis, John A.	1871	1894	Armstrong, Kansas.
Davis, John T.	1889	1897	Netawaka, Kansas; Pleasant View, Kansas; Pittsburg, Kansas.
Davis, Mabel T. (Baxter) (Condiff)	1883	1902	Kansas City.
Davis, Malinda, (Donnegan)	1876	1893	Lees Summit, Missouri; Kansas City.
Davis, Percy Ellen	1883	1895	Armstrong, Kansas.
Davis, Roy Joseph	1906	1915	Kansas City.
Davis, Savannah Madge	1899	1913	Mount Washington, Missouri; Independence.
Davis, Thomas H.	1879	1908	Thayer, Missouri; Denver, Colorado; Quindaro, Kansas.
Davis, Vesta Clare	1897	1914	Independence, Missouri; Armstrong, Kansas; Grandview, Kansas.
Davison, Rebecca J.	1856	1901	Springfield, Missouri; Kansas City.
Dawers, Jessie Opal	1890	1912	Kansas City.
Dawson, Grace (Fichtner)	1909	1922	Chelsea Park, Kansas.
Dawson, Lillie W. (Woodin) (Hunt)	1889	1899	Scammon, Kansas; Kansas City.
Dearborn, Sarah, A. (Bean)	1874	1891	Chelsea Park, Kansas; Kansas City.
Deem, Jane Hetta (Richards)	1888	1897	Independence, Missouri; Kansas City, Missouri.
Deihl, Jennie	1854	1893	Armstrong, Kansas; Chelsea Park, Kansas; Grandview, Kansas.
Derrickson, James W.	1859	1894	Pueblo, Colorado; Kansas City.
Dick, May (Roberts)	1892	1906	Missouri Valley, Iowa; Saint Joseph, Missouri; Kansas City.
Dickey, Mary Ella (Bissell)	1880	1894	Kansas City.
Dixon, Frances Gerdine	1898	1908	Lone Rock, Missouri; Kansas City.
Dixon, Frances Page	1875	1907	Kansas City, Malvern Hill, Missouri.
Dollard, John H.	1843	1897	Kansas City, Malvern Hill, Missouri.
Donovan, Robert S.	1856	1892	Kansas City.
Douglas, Donald K.	1894	1904	Armstrong, Kansas.
Douglas, George J.	1855	1890	Saint Joseph, Missouri; Kansas City.
Dowd, Clifford E.	1887	1912	Saint Joseph, Missouri; Kansas City.
Drown, Pearl	1890	1925	Kansas City.
Drown, Rose Belle W. (Rusco)	1902	1913	Kansas City.
Duggan, Artie (Benton) (Bonnot)	1896	1912	Bennington Heights, Missouri.
Dunn, Horace	1890	1901	Saint Joseph, Missouri; Kansas City.
Earis, Ola (Banks)	1902	1915	Independence, Missouri; Kansas City.
Ebert, Laura A.	1841	1895	Chelsea Park, Kansas.
Eckles, John M.	1899	1909	Kansas City.
Edgar, Garrett, E.	1861	1897	Kansas City.

Name	Year of Birth	Year of Baptism	Places Where Once Enrolled
Edwards, Daniel	1889	1899	Kansas City.
Edwards, Elmer E.	1888	1898	Veve, Missouri; Independence, Piedmont, Missouri; Denlow, Missouri; Kansas City.
Edwards, Ethel (Ruson)	1892	1904	Rich Hill, Missouri; Kansas City.
Edwards, Ethel (Moore)	1889	1899	Independence, Kansas City.
Edwards, Fred E.	1872	1893	Armstrong, Kansas.
Edwards, Leander	1898	1914	Independence, Kansas City.
Edwards, Lloyd J.	1911	1923	Kansas City.
Edwards, Martha R. N.	1866	1881	Wyandotte, Kansas; Armstrong, Kansas; First Kansas City.
Edwards, Thomas H.	1886	1899	First Kansas City.
Eisenman, George	1891	1910	Chelsea Park, Kansas.
Eisenman, Minnie	1883	1910	Chelsea Park, Kansas.
Ellsworth, Henry C.	1887	1896	Oak Lake, Minnesota; First Kansas City.
Emmett, Carte Ray	1896	1914	First Kansas City.
Endicott, Rutherford Mearian	1876	1922	Kansas City.
England, Daniel	1877	1906	Rock Creek, Oklahoma; Kansas City.
England, Martha	1882	1906	Rock Creek, Oklahoma; Kansas City.
Ervin, Anna Ruby (Hailey)	1895	1906	Greenleaf, Missouri; Kansas City.
Ethridge, Henry Wilson	1891	1902	Stewartville, Missouri; Saint Joseph, Missouri; Cameron, Missouri; Kansas City.
Evans, Elizabeth Hall	1903	1912	Lamoni, Kansas City, Missouri.
Evans, Margery	1858	1911	Lees Summit, Missouri; Kansas City.
Everhart, Juel Viola	1913	1923	Webb City, Missouri; Kansas City.
Fahey, Aletha E.	1898	1912	Bennington Heights, Missouri.
Farmer, Harry	1902	1912	Piedmont, Oklahoma; Sunny Hill, Oklahoma; Warrensburg, Missouri; Kansas City.
Farmer, Ruth J.	1907	1916	Sunny Hill, Oklahoma; Warrensburg, Missouri; Kansas City.
Farrow, Margaret Lee	1904	1922	Kansas City.
Faunce, Minnie Lee	1878	1919	Kansas City.
Featherstone, Iva Belle	1906	1915	Mount Washington, Missouri.
Featherstone, Walter S.	1903	1912	Mount Washington, Missouri.
Felch, Dewey	1897	1915	Armstrong, Kansas.
Felch, Hallard	1900	1910	Armstrong, Kansas.
Ferguson, Catherine	1874	1894	Armstrong, Kansas.
Fetter, George Marion	1899	1908	Des Moines, Iowa; Oakland, California; Independence, Kansas City.
Fields, Anna May	1856	1919	Los Angeles, California; Kansas City.
Fierk, Charles	1864	1917	Kansas City.
Fifer, Ellen (Haden)	1846	1870	Gallands Grove, Iowa; Delaware, Oklahoma; Stewartville, Missouri; Knobnoster, Missouri; Saint Joseph, Missouri; Kansas City, Missouri.
Finlay, Maud May	1903	1914	Quindaro, Kansas.
Fisher, John	1902	1911	Centerville, Iowa; Kansas City.
Fisher, Sylvia M.	1875	1914	Kansas City.
Flanders, Myrtle Hazel	1897	1919	Cameron, Missouri; Kansas City, Missouri.
Fleming, Ruby Ellen	1905	1915	Armstrong, Kansas.
Fletcher, Clara Amy	1910	1920	Kansas City.
Foster, Antone Joseph	1889	1903	Kansas City.
Foster, George	1856	1903	Kansas City.
Foster, Jessie M.	1879	1920	Kansas City.
Fox, Delia J. (Cox)	1866	1876	Little Sioux, Iowa; Carrollton, Missouri; Independence, Missouri; Kansas City.
Freeman, Frank Winfield	1902	1915	Saint Joseph, Missouri; Kansas City.
Frey, Lela (Freeze)	1911	1923	Kansas City.
Frick, Paul E.	1889	1897	Joplin, Missouri; Kansas City.
Froid, Rowena F. (Montgomery)	1879	1913	Independence, Kansas City.
Fry, Lillie Pearl (Dell)	1892	1907	Chelsea Park, Kansas.
Frye, Rosella L. (Wightman)	1900	1909	Columbia River, Washington; Spokane, Washington; Leahy, Washington; Lamoni, Iowa; Kansas City.
Fulkerson, Frances E. (Barnhart)	1895	1905	Highbee, Missouri; Holden, Missouri; Independence, Kansas City.
Futtrell, Raleigh Floyd	1898	1919	Kansas City.
Gamet, Carroll	1904	1917	Mondamin, Iowa; Far West, Kansas City.
Garlich, John Emil	1898	1907	Saint Joseph, Missouri; Kansas City.
Garrett, Jennie L. (Simmons)	1893	1903	Lees Summit, Missouri; Kansas City.
Gates, Mary F. (Stewart)	1861	1897	Kansas City.
Gaw, Margaret E.	1881	1893	Armstrong, Kansas.
Gerber, Emanuel	.....	1875	Independence, Kansas City.
Gill, Hugh Lester	1899	1921	Kansas City.
Gilliespie, Grace L.	1894	1914	Saint Louis, Missouri; Bennington Heights, Missouri.
Givens, Robert L.	1889	1901	Pueblo, Colorado; Kansas City.
Glenn, Francis E.	1902	1915	Quindaro, Kansas.
Goff, Helen Irene	1901	1909	Kansas City, Missouri; Malvern Hill, Kansas.
Golden, Charles	1883	1918	Malvern Hill, Kansas.
Goldflam, Jacob	.....	1925	Kansas City.
Goodman, Mary Francis (Govell)	1906	1919	Lexington, Missouri; Kansas City.
Gorton, Eleanor (McIntosh) (Johnson)	1891	1900	Kansas City.
Gould, Albert C.	1886	1915	Kansas City.
Gracey, Genevieve (Stoker)	1895	1909	Kansas City, LaJunta, Colorado.
Graham, Clara V.	1906	1924	Kansas City.
Graham, Linda	1908	1924	Kansas City.
Grame, Amantha L.	1838	1899	Quindaro, Kansas.
Graves, James A.	1886	1910	Kansas City.
Grayson, Clementine	1905	1921	Kansas City.
Green, John	1905	1914	Kansas City.
Green, Rebecca B. (Simpson)	1877	1901	Quindaro, Kansas.
Green, Stella M.	1896	1921	Kansas City.
Green, Ruby Gertrude	1905	1914	Malvern Hill, Kansas.
Greer, Gladys (Perry)	1897	1908	Beaverton, Michigan; Warrensburg, Missouri; Kansas City.
Greer, William Henry	1904	1915	Independence, Kansas City.
Griffin, Ruth	1904	1913	Independence, Kansas City.
Guinn, Albert Hampton	1879	1922	Fort Scott, Kansas; Kansas City.
Guinn, Eva Sadie	1880	1915	Pittsburg, Kansas; Mulberry, Kansas; Kansas City.
Hackenberger, Mary	1863	1919	Kansas City.
Hacker, Mark	1905	1914	Kansas City, Wiley, Colorado.
Hahman, Maud C.	1875	1893	Armstrong, Kansas.
Hahn, Charles	1907	1918	Kansas City.
Haig, Lyla	1885	1927	Kansas City.
Haley, George T.	1888	1903	Kansas City.
Hall, Clara	1887	1906	Independence, Kansas City.
Hamilton, Frank	1847	1894	Armstrong, Kansas.
Hamilton, Susan	1846	1893	Armstrong, Kansas; Independence.
Hampton, Emma Viola	1886	1906	Rock Creek, Oklahoma; Kansas City.
Hansen, Mildred M. (Ward)	1903	1915	Bellaire, Michigan; Independence, Kansas City.
Hartford, Edgar Merle	1918	1928	Kansas City.
Harrington, Cora C.	1877	1901	Armstrong, Kansas; Grandview, Kansas.
Harrington, Viola Josephine	1903	1920	Kansas City.
Harrison, Addie A.	1866	1904	Kansas City.
Harrison, Barbara E.	1882	1913	Saint Joseph, Missouri; Kansas City.

NEWS OF CHURCH AND HOME

Address all news and letters to Editors of the Herald, Box 237, Independence, Missouri. Correspondents are requested to make their letters brief. The Editors reserve the right, on account of space limitations, to shorten all letters as circumstances require.

Central Michigan District

This has been a rather busy summer for Central Michigan District. While no reunion was held in the district this year, many special services have been conducted.

A special conference was called at Beaverton, July 11 and 12, to complete the personnel of the district official force, some offices having been made vacant. Notwithstanding the fact that this was a busy season for many, there was a splendid representation at this conference from all parts of the district. A fine spirit characterized the entire session.

On Saturday special items of business were taken care of, viz: Election of counselors to the district president, a superintendent for the Department of Women, and reunion business. Elder Hubert Case, district president, presided over the conference. Elders E. S. White and Robert E. Jones, of Bay City, were unanimously elected counselors to Brother Case while Sister E. L. Pringle, of Tawas City, was chosen superintendent of the Department of Women. This short business session will long be remembered in that there was a marked degree of unity, and the spirit of cooperation seemed to reign in the heart of everyone there.

A splendid evening program was given to a crowded house, each branch contributing. The program as well as other activities for the young people was in charge of R. E. Jones.

The Sunday services were of the highest order. The Spirit of the Master was there in power, and peace, love and fellowship, which have always characterized the great work of latter days, permeated the atmosphere. All were endowed with renewed courage.

Since that time one-day meetings have been held each Sunday in various branches in the district. The schedule follows: August 2, Houghton Lake; August 9, Gladwin. While these meetings were not so largely attended, a fine spirit was present and visiting members were well taken care of. Speakers included R. E. Jones, Matthew Umphrey, G. W. Burt, Otto Bartlett, and others of the district priesthood.

Meetings for August 16 and 23 were dispensed with on account of the reunion at the Park of the Pines.

August 30 the meeting was at Bentley. So large was the crowd that the church building was not adequate to seat the people. A fine prayer meeting was held at 9 a. m., there being at this time a feast of spiritual things. Speakers for the day were Otto Bartlett, G. W. Burt, B. H. Doty, and Hubert Case. All gave fine sermons very worthy of comment if space here permitted. The Saints were delighted to have these helpers present, especially Brother Doty, of Traverse City, his daughter Ella, and Brother and Sister Walter Scott and daughter, also of Traverse City. Brother Doty occupied the 4 o'clock hour, assisted by Brother Scott. He used as a text "The glory of God is intelligence." This sermon stirred the hearts of the listeners. Special music was rendered by the Bentley Orchestra.

September 7 there were two meetings, one at Whittemore and one at Alma. Brother Case had charge at Alma, reporting a fine time and record attendance. Two were baptized. The meeting in Whittemore was in charge of Brother R. E. Jones.

A one-day meeting was held at Saginaw, September 14, there being a large crowd present and a fine spirit prevailing throughout the services. A wonderful spirit of inspiration was felt at the 9 o'clock prayer service. The Lord revealed his will through the gift of prophecy, which cheered the congregation. Elder E. S. White delivered a good sermon on "The Signal Lights of God" at the eleven o'clock hour. He illustrated his theme by emphasizing the significance of signal lights on the railroad. The 2 o'clock afternoon hour was given to three speakers: Elders T. L. Clark, of Flint, R. E. Jones, of Bay City, and Otto Bartlett, of Midland. Meals were served in the basement of the church, and Saginaw Saints are to be commended for the splendid service.

Three people have recently been baptized at Saginaw, and there seems to be prospects of many more candidates throughout the district in the near future.

Elder Hubert Case, district president, is putting forth a splendid missionary effort in the district, and the Saints are cooperating in a most gratifying manner. The consensus of opinion is that the outlook for Central Michigan is much more encouraging than for some time past. Many are taking new hold on their tasks. Surely Brother Case and his worthy counselors will accomplish a splendid work in Central Michigan.

Saint Thomas, Ontario

September 29.—To go forward, in the program the church has outlined, is the ambition of this branch. We have a number of good workers who desire to see progress.

The efforts of Elder Percy Farrow in a ten-day series in September were highly appreciated. It is a long time since interest has been taken in us by those not of the branch. We feel that good has been done and that as winter approaches others will be added to the fold.

The sacrament service, September 6, was largely attended. A young sister, June Walker, was baptized. During the service Elder Farrow spoke in prophecy. We trust that we may walk in the path which makes us worthy to partake of the blessings God has in store for his people.

The Women's Department has been busily engaged in relief work.

The Sunday School Department is progressing though during vacation attendance dropped. Now that school has begun, however, our workers are looking forward to busy times. The teachers are faithful to their duties and the officers are striving to fulfill their responsibilities.

The primary, junior, and intermediate classes are planning a wiener roast for Friday evening under the direction of their teachers, Sister Le Courtois, Sister Rock, and Sister Stephens.

Fulton, Iowa

September 27.—Though it has been some time since the Herald heard from Fulton, we wish to assure the readers that this branch is alive and has a fine attendance at Sunday school and church. Though there have been no additions to the church, unity has prevailed, and we feel the need of doing our utmost to further the work of the Master.

District President E. R. Davis has several times been here to help the group along, and we shall welcome others who give us a lift. Indeed there is always a welcome at Fulton for all who worship with us.

Members of this branch are sorry that the church is experiencing a depression, but we know that God's work will move on if each one does his part. We are farmers and feel the depression keenly because of exceedingly low prices. This condition gives us no tithing and very little offering. However, we find it useless to sit idly with folded hands. If the good ship Zion is to steer a true course to her harbor, every worker must be at his post, doing his part.

No meetings have been held at the church for the last two Sundays, and the schools are closed because of an epidemic of smallpox. Four families of Saints have had it. But we feel that this handicap of sickness will soon pass from us.

Independence

The Harvest Home Festival is the center of the stage of interest and action this week in Independence. It opened yesterday in the main and lower rooms of the Auditorium and in some of the long corridors. Already many visitors have seen the industrial and agricultural exhibits, and as yet the festival is only well begun.

In the last two weeks contributions to the festival have poured into Independence, and local people have been very busy getting these as well as their own harvest gifts ready for display. It is not yet known how many quarts of canned foods or how many bushels of fruits and vegetables are in the lower room of the Auditorium, but the amount is far in excess of that produced by any previous festival. Clubs representing districts in widely scattered parts of the United States have prepared some unique exhibits. Everywhere careful and ingenious planning and execution have enhanced the festival.

Stone Church

"This Do in My Name," the theme of the adult and junior young people's Sunday school service, called attention to the significance of the communion service. Superintendent Howard W. Harder was in charge. The junior young people's pastor, Priest W. Earl Page, welcomed the new class of boys and girls from the Campus, and everyone was invited to remain for the first sacrament service of the new church school year.

A spirit of deep peace, meditation and reverence marked the sacrament service in charge of President Frederick M. Smith. In the stand were also Presidents Elbert A. Smith and F. M. McDowell, Presiding Bishop Albert Carmichael, and Elders John F. Sheehy, Stanley Kelley, H. G. Barto, R. T. Cooper, and G. G. Lewis.

"The present trying conditions prove to us that God is preparing his people," asserted President F. M. Smith in his address, "for he has said that he will have a tried people. We should count our blessings, for then we shall have reason to rejoice, and we should also take cognizance of the things to come." In preparing ourselves to face the future, the speaker suggested the necessity for realizing the spirit of fraternity; we must pray together, think together, and plan together, that in the end we may be able to emerge from the refining process tried, true and consecrated.

An unusually large congregation crowded into the church for this service, many sitting on steps in the gallery. It was as if the people came together for strength and assurance and the support of one another during their work of the coming month and year.

The afternoon prayer meeting was also largely attended and marked by the spirit of worship and seriousness.

In the evening the Stone Church congregation listened to an instructive sermon by Bishop G. Leslie DeLapp. The Stone Church Choir, led by Paul N. Craig, sang "The Sun Shall Be No More Thy Light by Day," and "Glorious Forever." Robert Miller played the organ. Pastor John F. Sheehy was in charge of the service, assisted by Elder Vernon Reese.

Liberty Street Church

Pastor J. R. Lentell reports a splendid early morning prayer meeting on Sunday.

The church school began a new year October 4, following its annual promotion which was held on the preceding Sunday. Certificates of promotion were given to all children promoted from one department to the next. The officers are endeavoring to follow the new curriculum as outlined by the Department of Religious Education.

A new children's orchestra is in the making, and it is hoped that they will be ready for service before long.

A play, "The More Abundant Life," was the feature of the evening service. The young people dramatized a fine lesson in a splendid way to a full house.

Sacrament services were held upstairs and downstairs this month. The meeting in the basement was attended by about fifty children who were eager to renew the covenants they have made in the waters of baptism. The adult service, held in the main sanctuary of the church, was also well attended, and God's Spirit blessed the people in their worship.

The spirit of benevolence and brotherly love has been exercised to a remarkable degree by all who took part in answering the call of the needy through the Harvest Home Festival. Surely God will bless all who have endeavored to show their faith by their works.

Enoch Hill Church

On Friday evening the usual recreation on the church lawn gave place to a wiener roast. The senior young people with their instructors went to the county park. The older young people went to the home of L. R. Street on Blue Springs Road. There about forty young people enjoyed the games under the direction of Eugene McKean. After the games all gathered around Mr. Street's large oven and roasted wieners and marshmallows. This was the first of the fall season's social activities, and the young people are looking to many more good times.

In the absence of E. H. McKean the church school was presided over by Lawrence Martin whose theme was "A Worthy Cause." Brother Charles S. Warren gave an interesting talk on "Life's Values," and Ruby Johnson and Louise McDonald played a piano duet.

The eleven o'clock sacrament service was well attended.

Sunday evening Elder H. A. Koehler preached an instructive sermon on "The More Excellent Way." The choir, under the direction of Mrs. C. S. Warren sang "Home at the End of the Road."

The Women's Department has been very active planning and constructing an attractive booth at the Harvest Home Festival. An effective Japanese design now houses many bushels of fruits and vegetables and many quarts of canned goods.

Monetville, Ontario

We have our discouragements and trials and temptations, but much of these is outbalanced by the peace and joy we receive through obedience to the word of the Master and by work in his service. What a glorious thing it is to know that even in our sinful condition, God loved us so much that he sent his Son to earth, where he suffered persecution and anguish and finally died to redeem mankind. It is this assurance which makes our burdens lighter and our trials easier to bear.

Since the beginning of the year there has been scarcely a Sunday service without the presence of one or several nonmembers. Some of these are people who two years ago were bitterly opposed; they now seem to be interested. We also have two new members in the branch. August 2 the Saints rejoiced to welcome Brother Edward Bishop into our midst. He was baptized in the morning by Elder J. L. Fryer and confirmed at the sacrament service in the afternoon. On the following Sunday the Saints had further cause for rejoicing when Branch President J. L. Fryer's aged mother came through the cleansing waters of baptism and was confirmed a member of his church.

The young people of the branch seem to have renewed interest and are taking active part in furthering the divine plan.

It is our prayer that God will bless the new members with strength and continued courage of their convictions; also, that we may all live in such a manner that we shall be "living epistles" to all those with whom we come in contact, that others may see and know this is indeed the true church of God. Our combined prayers are for the church as a body of God's followers.

Detroit, Michigan

From Detroit's Beacon Light

Detroit is welcoming its new city missionary, Elder David E. Dowker, who has just arrived from the Atlantic Coast. Though Brother Dowker has been in Detroit only a few days, he is enthusiastic at the prospects before him. The branch presidency and congregations assure him hearty cooperation.

People from Detroit District who attended the reunion at the Park of the Pines, returned with favorable reports. The spirit of good fellowship prevailed throughout the entire reunion. The united efforts of everyone in all activities brought definite results in both recreational and religious educational work. The park location is very suitable for the many activities necessary to make a reunion a success. All conveniences necessary have been made possible by the special interests of the enthusiasts of the Northern District. The Park of the Pines includes fifteen acres of church property between the highway and Charlevoix Lake, and is being improved annually for the convenience of the additional numbers attending the reunion.

The October meeting of the Women's Department was held at First Church the afternoon of October 6. In addition to a program planned by Group No. 18, under the leadership of Mrs. Betty Ayres, an hour was devoted to the reception of the members of the cradle roll and their mothers. Mrs. Anna Jacobs had charge of this part of the program. All shut-ins were invited to meet with the women, ample provision being made to call for those unable to come alone.

At the Thanksgiving supper, sponsored by the group under the leadership of Mrs. Stella McGrath, to be held in First Church late in November, there will be a miniature bazaar in charge of Group 7 directed by Mrs. Mary Cook. Lovely hand-made articles will be offered at reasonable prices.

Lewis Heaviland, of Detroit, was honored with the award of a gold medal first prize in the professional group of oil paintings at the Michigan State Fair this year against competitors from all over the State. The composition which won the prize was exhibited last winter at the Independent Art Show at the Gordon Galleries and at that time was adjudged one of the best ten at the exhibit. Lewis's talent was discovered by his art teacher in the seventh grade, who urged him to follow art as a career. Upon his graduation from high school he was awarded a scholarship to Wicker's School of Fine and Applied Arts. After leaving this school, he went to New York to attend the Art Student's League. Upon returning from New York he took up art independently. His work came to the attention of his former art instructors in Cass High School, and this led to his appointment as an art instructor in the Cass Night School where he is now teaching.

On Sunday morning, November 1, in our seven churches in Detroit, during the regular sacrament service, everyone is to be given an opportunity to make donations of clothing, food, and canned fruits. The present industrial depression is making it necessary for assistance, financial and material, to be extended to several of the membership. Every effort is being put forth to make this shower sufficiently abundant to meet the winter needs. Various units of the Women's Department have assured the officers that all garments will be properly mended before being passed to the needy.

The oblation given that morning gives the members an opportunity to contribute financially—the miscellaneous shower gives the opportunity to contribute food, clothing, everything else that we need to protect us from the winter cold. Let us be the big brother to the rest of the family and take a big step Zionward.

Officers have arranged for storehouses to be installed in First Church, East Side, and River Rouge, and have appointed a family in each of the other missions where the goods will be properly cared for until needed.

The Men's League meets every Sunday afternoon at First Church, at 4 o'clock. Musical activities of the league are under the supervision of Mrs. Henrietta Davis, Detroit Branch musical director, and very attractive numbers are being arranged for each meeting. Subjects and speakers for the coming months have been announced as follows: "Why Crime Costs Five Times as Much as All of Our Schools," by Lowell J. Carr, assistant professor of sociology; "Religion and the Healthy Mind," "The Spiritual Training of Youth," "Educational and Social Engineering," by Howard Y. McClusky, assistant professor of educational psychology, mental measurements, and statistics; "The New Woman and the Changing Order," "Human Nature and the Changing Order," by William D. Henderson, director of University Extension Division; "An Experiment in Co-operative Marketing," by V. C. Poor, associate professor mathematics; "High Lights in the Life of Lincoln," illustrated by O. W. Stephanson, assistant professor of history. The league feels itself fortunate in securing the services of these gentlemen from Ann Arbor University Extension Division. The Men's League is a city-wide organization.

Wyandotte Church

The Sunday school is proud of one of its members, Junior Akins, who won two of the prizes in the races that took place at the Detroit Branch picnic held recently in Huron River Park.

The Women's Department held a successful ice cream social August 25.

State Fair Mission

On the evening of August 28 Miss Inez Fisk and Mr. Harold Smith were united in marriage, Brother Charles Mousseau officiating. Sister Annie Wright was the soloist, and a wedding dinner was served to a group of relatives and close friends at the home of Clarence Smith, brother of the bridegroom. A miscellaneous shower was given the couple the evening of September 1.

A large crowd heard the sermon of the city pastor, Elder J. Charles Mottashed, September 6, whose subject was "The Laying on of Hands."

State Fair mission members extend sympathy to Brother John Pennel's family in their time of sorrow.

First Church

Junior church has been postponed because of the prevalence of infantile paralysis in Detroit and surrounding territory. It is hoped that the usual order of young people's services will be resumed at the expiration of the quarantine.

Not long ago a happy congregation worshiped with Elder David Dowker in a Wednesday night prayer service. We are looking forward to a renewal of missionary work which has almost approached a standstill since Brother Case departed for his new mission.

The tennis court, which is being provided on the new church lot, will furnish in part recreation for those who have access to it. The goal toward which the Department of Recreation and Expression is working has been that of training the young people to play together, that they may be the better prepared to work together.

River Rouge Church

Mrs. Gleason was baptized at Edison Lake August 14. She is welcomed into this congregation.

Brother Ulman wants to launch a missionary campaign next month. We hope to add more loyal citizens to the kingdom of God.

East Side Church

The young people's class now has an enrollment of thirty-two members drawn from the various classes of the church school. Its main object is to create a greater desire for prayer and testimony among its members. At its regular meeting, September 3, the program consisted of a prayer and testimony service followed by a short business meeting, entertainment and refreshment.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Smith announce the birth of a daughter September 12. She has been named Jean Esther.

Brother William O'Dell, whose work as chorister is highly to be commended, has resigned.

Ribstone, Alberta

Though circumstances seem adverse, we are trying to carry on the gospel work in Ribstone. We have no missionary in this district. Apostle J. A. Gillen made a short visit here in July, preaching two very much enjoyed sermons. Young and old enjoyed Brother Gillen's association. All were gladdened to know that there are such men of faith in the church. Brother Gillen's attitude that the church will in the end triumph, cheered us.

We enjoy the sermons in the Ensign and Herald, and especially the articles on "Dignity and Beauty of Ministry," written by Brother Elbert A. Smith. We feel that the ministry can not be too careful in the way in which they perform their duties as men called to do God's work.

The Women's Department here is very active. The women meet once a month in the church. They bought the new carpet for the church home which adds much to its appearance and comfort. At present they are planning their annual fowl supper and bazaar.

This is a farming community, and the farmers are trying to gather and thresh the grain, but because of rainy weather progress is being hindered. We are, however, looking to better weather, and hope in the end to be able to help the church financially, that its men can return to the missionary fields. And we hope that we, as a group, as we pass through these conditions, may learn by our past mistakes, and become better men and women, drawing closer to God and the redemption of Zion.

Mikado, Michigan

This branch has been very busy, and the members sincerely hope they have accomplished much good for the cause of the gospel.

Among the late visiting ministry were Elder Hubert Case, district president, Brother Jones and Brother Amos Guy. All gave much encouragement. Brother S. A. Summerfield conducted an all-day meeting while our pastor was at reunion, and the prayer service at that time will long be remembered.

Services are as a rule of a high order, but the Wednesday evening prayer service and the young people's meetings are outstanding.

Sickness in the branch has added to the burden of some. Among the suffering members are Sister Edith Slater and Iva La Fleur who underwent appendicitis operations. The latter is still in the hospital but doing well. Brother and Sister James Sloan suffered slight injuries in an automobile accident. Sister Clara Stewart yet has a serious operation to undergo and will appreciate the prayers of the Saints.

The young people of Mikado are organized under the leadership of Clayton Harmon. The group is active and meets twice a month at the church, where it enjoys a program, songs, and light refreshments. About twenty attended the first few meetings, but the number has grown to fifty-six at the last session. Not only the young people in their teens attend, but the older ones as well. This combination of ages tends toward mutual understanding and interest. August 22 a wiener roast and indoor baseball game were had at The Forks, west of Mikado. One of the main features of the last program was the singing of "The Preacher and the Bear," by Lyle Hickley and Robert Deforest. These two brothers are about forty years of age but as young as the youngest of the group when they come to the meetings.

A pie social is being planned for the young people's next meeting. The proceeds will be used for program and recreation books approved by the general church. The young people are eager to help in every way possible to raise funds for branch needs. A play is being planned by them to help raise the church debt. They realize, however, that they can not do much without the cooperation of parents and older ones and the help of God, and so it is their ambition to go forward cooperatively and prayerfully.

Galesburg, Illinois

65 North Henderson Street

September 28.—Galesburg Branch has just closed a series of meetings conducted by Brother F. C. Bevan. The Saints enjoyed all his sermons and hope that good may result from this ministerial effort. Brother Bevan was here one week, but gave us a promise of more time a little later in the fall. We are hoping that he will be able to be here at least two weeks at that time.

During the services we received two pleasant surprises. One was when the Kewanee Saints, numbering about twenty, motored down for an evening service, and the other was when about the same number came from Rock Island. We greatly appreciate their interest in us and hope that we may do some kindness for them.

Elder E. R. Davis assisted Brother Bevan at all services. This is a large field, and we feel that we need much spiritual food. We are given the assurance that the Lord will bless us if we do our best.

There have been six baptisms here thus far this year, and more are in prospect.

We lost a charter member the latter part of July when Brother J. W. Tilly was taken by death. We miss him at services, as he was nearly always present.

The Women's Department is again active under the new leader, Sister Aleta Boyd. This fall and winter the women hope to do much. For several years they have not been very active, but now they feel the urge to move forward and do all they can in the Lord's work.

A social time was held on Monday evening, September 21, at the home of Brother and Sister Paul Tilly. A fine time was had by everyone. Fifty were there. Also several members from Kewanee were here to see that Galesburg Saints had a good time. We need more of these social gatherings to keep us in closer harmony.

Brother E. E. Thomas and family, of Beardstown, were here not long ago. His sermon and music by the family were enjoyed.

As we enter the final quarter of the year, we look to the Lord for the blessings for which we need. We seek the prayers of all the Saints that we may be guided in all our undertakings.

Portland, Oregon

"Why I Go to Church" was the theme of prayer service the evening of September 23. The meeting was attended by many who told of the spiritual life gained in keeping faith in the Lord's work.

Since Brother Sorden was out of the city Sunday evening, September 13, the pulpit was occupied by Elder W. M. Hartnell.

Vacation season over, we have hopes of larger attendance at the meetings. However, during the past three months attendance has not dropped far below normal.

The choir has resumed activity for the coming winter season, and the congregation expects to hear many beautiful anthems and other selections from the singers.

Members of the local priesthood have been busy visiting among the membership, helping to keep alive the gospel in the family life. There is a goodly number of priests in this branch, and their work in this line is highly commended.

A district conference is scheduled for the latter part of October, at which time we hope to have Brothers Richard Baldwin and M. A. McConley, and possibly others of the Twelve with us.

Far West Stake

Guilford Home-coming

September 27 was Home-coming day for Guilford Branch. Stake President Ward A. Hougas preached at the 11 o'clock hour, and Elder G. T. Richards, stake missionary, spoke at the afternoon and evening sessions. A basket dinner was spread at noon. Good attendance greeted the speakers. The representations from the Ross Grove and Bedison Branches were especially noteworthy.

Bedison

Elders Ward A. Hougas and J. E. Hovenga spent Thursday, October 1, with Bedison Saints. In the afternoon three persons were baptized and the confirmation service was held immediately following. A wonderful spirit was felt by all. In the evening Brother Hougas preached to a well crowded house. The ministers visited in many of the homes while there.

Cameron

Cameron Branch reports splendid Wednesday night prayer meetings since the beginning of cooler weather. Attendance is increasing and a fine spirit exists.

The Department of Women held its first meeting since the summer vacation on September 1. Various plans were discussed and outlined to formulate a successful winter's program.

On Wednesday evening, September 16, the regular quarterly business meeting was held. Among other things it was voted to hold a series of missionary meetings in the near future.

Elder S. E. Miffin, of Oakdale Branch, was the 11 o'clock speaker Sunday, September 20, and gave an inspiring sermon.

One of the most enjoyable programs presented for some time was rendered on Promotion Day, September 27. There were thirty candidates ranging from the primaries to the juniors, all of whom were seated on the platform, and participated in the program. Brother Clifford Constance, superintendent, made a short speech of presentation, after which each teacher demonstrated his work by posters and questions, the pupils responding with quotations. Pastor F. L. Hinderks gave a splendid talk on the theme, "Growing as Jesus Grew." He displayed several oak trees, varying in size from a very small tree upon which grew an acorn to a large sturdy oak. He then illustrated how the tiny acorn, when buried in the earth, grew to be a fine large oak tree; in like manner Jesus grew. Also little children, when buried in the waters of baptism, gradually grow as Jesus did, in knowledge, stature and Christ-like ways. Brother Clifford Constance then presented the diplomas.

Kingston

Recent speakers at Kingston include Elder L. A. Keck, of Saint Joseph, and Elder John Hovenga, of Stewartsville. Attendance has been very good in recent weeks.

Second Saint Joseph Church

Patriarch W. A. McDowell was the speaker both morning and even at Second Church in connection with Rally Day. A baptismal service was conducted and several babies were blessed.

Bemidji, Minnesota

The Saints here are determined to go forward to Zion, for "Zion the beautiful beckons us on." Our second Rally Day this year, held September 6, was enjoyed by everyone. Elder Vernon Lundeen, pastor of Minneapolis Branch and missionary to this State, met with us and preached twice. His help was much enjoyed, and we hope to see him return.

Brother W. C. Stauty and wife came from Duluth, and Brother Stauty preached Saturday night.

Sister Mary Michels, from Saint Luke's Hospital, Saint Paul, was vacationing with us at that time. She was baptized here just a year ago.

Two carloads of Saints from this branch motored to Duluth September 19, to attend the fall district conference Saturday and Sunday. This was marked by a large gathering of Saints and the presence of the Spirit. The ministers in charge did excellent work. Elder Blair Jensen, president of Lamoni Stake, preached a wonderful sermon, exhorting the Saints to go forward. One woman was heard to remark that that sermon alone was worth the long trip she had made to Duluth. We are glad to see the good Spirit prevailing among the Saints of this district and branch, and hope we can meet together more often that we might gain spiritual strength as "we walk with the Lord in the light of his word."

Denver, Colorado

September 13, Bishop J. A. Becker, of Independence, was here and preached both morning and evening. Brother and Sister N. L. Booker, of Delta, Colorado, were also in Denver at this time. September 20, Apostle M. A. McConley stopped over on his way to Independence and preached twice to this congregation.

On the morning of September 15, Mr. A. R. Radcliffe, father of Brother R. L. Radcliffe, was instantly killed in an automobile accident. He was on his way to work when his car collided with another. Funeral services were held Thursday afternoon, September 17, in charge of Elder E. J. Williams. Elder Glaude Smith sang "Lead, Kindly Light," a favorite song of Mr. Radcliffe's. We deeply sympathize with Brother Radcliffe in the loss of a beloved father.

The Rally banquet was held in the church basement at 6:30 in the afternoon, September 24. The good dinner, prepared by Sister Ethel Radcliffe and her helpers, was enjoyed by a large crowd. Then followed an interesting program, consisting of readings, solos, congregational singing, music by the orchestra and a clever pantomime by some of the young people. These were also short talks on plans and prospects for the winter by the following: The pastor, Glaude A. Smith; director of religious education, C. L. Bruno; assistant supervisor of adult group, Ruth Robertson; supervisor of young people's group, Glen Holmes; district director of religious education, Mrs. H. E. Winegar. As Sister Louisa Fishburn was unable to be president, Brother Bruno spoke briefly regarding her plans for the children's department of which she is supervisor. Mr. William G. Mitchell sang several songs which were much enjoyed.

Sunday, September 27, was Rally Day, beginning with a prayer meeting at 8 o'clock in the morning. Special numbers were given in the church school hour, which was opened by prayer by Donald Winegar. At the 11 o'clock service the pastor preached an earnest and inspiring sermon on the subject, "You Need the Church." The choir sang an anthem, "I Shall Not Pass this Way Again," and Mr. William G. Mitchell, baritone, sang a solo, "Alone with Jesus."

At noon a bountiful basket lunch was spread on the tables in the basement, and partaken of by a goodly number.

At 2:30 in the afternoon occurred the consecration service, which was perhaps the best service of a day full of good things. Brother Smith requested the members of the priesthood present to take seats upon the platform, and the officers, teachers, and other workers in the front pews. The list was then read, each worker rising as his name was called. The pastor delivered a charge to the priesthood regarding their work during the year beginning with this Rally Day. Sister H. E. Winegar, district director of religious education, spoke on the slogan, "Building Men and Women for God." The congregation then sang "Consecration," and Elder E. J. Williams offered an earnest prayer of consecration. Following this, members of the priesthood and officers expressed their desire to render diligent and efficient service. All present felt greatly uplifted and strengthened by the influence of the Holy Spirit which was present.

At 7 o'clock in the afternoon a musical program was given at the church, arranged by Farr Kemp. Preaching service followed at 7:45, with sermon, "The Church Needs You," by Elder E. J. Williams. The choir sang an anthem, "Still, Still with Thee," and at the close of the service, "Softly Now the Light of Day."

While attendance at the services was not so large as had been hoped for, those who were present felt that they had gained much spiritual help and encouragement, and were impressed anew that the very best they can do is little enough to give to a Father who so abundantly blesses his children.

The choir, under the leadership of Farr Kemp, is doing much to make our services better, and the pastor and the congregation appreciate its faithful work. We feel we should also express thanks to Brother E. W. Fishburn, who served faithfully as chorister for many years, and is now taking a well-earned rest.

Kansas City Stake

Central Church

Tiers of fruit and vegetables with large baskets of golden-rod about the pulpit, formed the Harvest Festival setting for Central Church at its services Sunday. The contribution of Central people to the festival numbered over a thousand quarts of the choicest fruits and vegetables of every variety that could be obtained from the bountiful harvest. "Praise Him, Praise Him," was the opening hymn of the worship period after which Brother Harvey Sandy offered the invocation. "Remember Now Thy Creator," by Carrie B. Adams, was the anthem sung by the choir, George Anway directing.

At the sacrament service at the 11 o'clock hour, Elder C. E. Wight was in charge, assisted by Bishop C. A. Skinner. "Redeemer of Israel" was sung by the congregation, after which Brother F. S. Anderson suggested that we join in unison in repeating the original prayer that Christ taught his disciples. Preceding the serving of the emblems, Eleanor Marie Dunn and Avis Rodger Miller were blessed by Brothers C. E. Wight and G. S. Mesley. Short but earnest testimonies constituted the remaining part of the service.

At 7:45 p. m. the choir assembled in its place. "Reapers of Life's Harvest" was the opening hymn. Invocation was offered by Elder S. S. Sandy. The choir again rendered invaluable service in contributing the anthem, "God Is Our Refuge," by Dudley Buck, Sister Luella Wight directing. "The Lord Is My Rock," was very beautifully sung by Wilma Smith, soprano, and this was followed by a violin solo by D. C. Hyder accompanied at the piano by Lucy Bowser. These numbers formed a beautiful setting for the lesson which followed, and marked the opening of the Leadership School which will be held every night for the next two weeks. Elder Leonard Lea was the speaker of the hour, using for his theme, "What Shall the Harvest Be," and quoting from Saint John 4: 35, 36, where Jesus was talking to his disciples in the springtime as to what the prospect of the harvest shall be. "Lift up your eyes, and look on the fields; for they are white already to harvest." Leadership classes are from 7: 45 to 9: 30 each night.

Sister George Mesley is confined at the Independence Sanitarium and recent reports indicate she is progressing nicely.

Friday night will be Kansas City Night at the Harvest Home Festival. Paseo High School Band will furnish the music.

The following courses were offered to the adult division of the church school division Sunday, the opening day of the new church school year: "Message of the Book of Mormon," taught by Sister Gerber; "Message of the Doctrine and Covenants," Sister D. H. Blair; "Airplane View of Old Testament," Sister B. B. Root. The class in "Meaning of Our Religion," taught by Brother F. S. Anderson, and the "Parentcraft" class, taught by Sister Mesley, will continue.

Sarnia, Ontario

September 28.—The Chatham district conference was held here September 19 and 20. A large number of Saints representing each branch met and participated in the business which was carried out in a satisfactory manner. District officers of this year were reinstated for the coming year.

One feature of the business session was a suggestion by the district president, Elder D. J. Williams, that a mid-year conference be held in the district. This was unanimously approved.

Sunday meetings were of a high order and very spiritual, being enjoyed by all present. Speakers at the conference were Elder A. C. Barmore, of Port Huron; Bishop John C. Dent, and Elder D. J. Williams, of Chatham.

Meals for the conference were served in the basement of the church by the Department of Women.

District President D. J. Williams will be with us October 14 to conduct our annual business meeting. At this time the new church school plan will be placed before the branch for their consideration. If the branch is favorable, the plan will be adopted and put to work.

September 21 a sad accident occurred when Mrs. Frederick Brown, daughter of Sister Margaret Richmond, met death while bathing in Lake Huron twelve miles from Sarnia. Left to mourn are her husband, two small children, mother, three brothers, and two sisters. The funeral sermon was by Elder D. J. Williams. Interment was in Kingsville, Ontario. The family has the sympathy of Sarnia Saints.

Logan, Iowa

Since last report the pulpit has been filled by the local priesthood as well as by those from neighboring branches. Elders E. Y. Hunker and L. G. Holloway, of the missionary force, have also been welcome visitors at different times.

During the month of August the evening preaching services were dismissed, and the membership joined with the other churches of the town in union meetings. These were held at the different houses of worship on succeeding Sunday nights.

A large number of the Saints were present at the Woodbine reunion, and came home from its refreshing and spiritual services with renewed courage and energy for the work of another year.

Since the opening of the school year, several of our young people have returned to their work: Bernice Lenz and Edgar Salts to Graceland College, and Bernadine Lenz to resume her studies at the American Conservatory of Music in Chicago. Miss Charles Hansen has gone back to her work at the Edmundson Hospital in Council Bluffs after an enforced vacation spent in recuperating her health.

Saturday, September 26, the Sunday School joined with the others of the town and country in a Rally Day parade and program at the city park. The Rally Day idea was continued at the Sunday morning service, and after the sermon by Elder Hunker, most of the congregation repaired to the tourist park where a basket dinner and social good time were enjoyed. A reading of statistics at the morning

The Newest Thing

(An editorial from The Tulsa Tribune for Sunday, September 20, 1931.)

Recently Mr. Adolph S. Ochs, publisher of the New York Times, asked a group of scientists and manufacturers this question: "What will the next eighty years bring forth?" Henry Ford concluded his reply with, "The newest thing in the world is the human being. And the greatest changes are to be looked for in him."

When we contemplate man as the newest thing we are at once compelled to estimate this world not by theological but by geological time. Just when the story of man began is a matter of scientific speculation both to the biologist and the anthropologist. Precise history runs back only about four thousand years. And four thousand years ago in geologic time is a very recent date.

In primitive time man's economic problems were reasonably simple. He measured his fortune by the domestic animals he owned, the grain and fruit he grew. He did not translate commodity into a common measure of value, which we call money, but traded measures of grain for sheep or an ox for an ass, as in his judgment such a trade would improve his lot.

When life was thus simple a man herding his sheep had time in the pastures to behold the stars, to contemplate the sun in its course across the sky, and to think in terms of elemental philosophy. He began to weigh the worth of living. It was out of that kind of simple life that the Old Testament philosophy came to us. From such prophets likewise New Testament literature came. We call it inspired. It was. And the world is hungry for inspirational prophets today.

We have boasted through the centuries of the progress which what we call Western Civilization has made. We are a part of it, so naturally we speak of it boastfully. But it has been a civilization that has so centered on THINGS that man himself has been largely lost in man's contemplations.

The poets who speak the eternal truths have been the minority who were understood only by a minority. The mass of mankind has coveted things, not thoughts.

To acquire more things, to take from the other fellows that which they have and thus enrich ourselves, to widen the horizon line of our own possessions has been the cause of practically all our wars.

We wage war to gain wealth. And we are still doing it.

Senator Borah estimated the other day that our so-called Western Civilization spent four billion one hundred and sixty-eight million dollars last year on armaments. He insisted, which is true, that all our so-called civilization would be on its economic feet and sustaining a distributed prosperity, with work and good wages for all workers, if our so-called Christian nations would agree to a five-year moratorium on war, war contemplations, war preparations and eliminating all costs. But we do not seem to be able to do it.

Individually most of us are pretty good Christians. Collectively we repudiate Christianity. Last Sunday Doctor Claude E. Hill, at the First Christian Church in this city, emphasized this fundamental and deplorable fact.

You and I live next door to each other. I have gladly loaned you my lawn mower and you have gladly lent me your garden hose. I have no desire to turn my clothes closet into an arsenal, neither have you. I have no wish to take your property away from you by force, or to hold you up while I ransack your pantry. On the contrary I glory in your good possessions. I want you to have them. The Golden Rule works pretty well between us. And we like to do legitimate business with each other, engage in reciprocal and beneficial trade. The spirit and philosophy of Christianity has affected us as individuals.

But collectively, as nations, we are covetous and jealous. If we see a neighbor nation with a hundred thousand soldiers we insist we must have a hundred and twenty thousand to be prepared. We prepare. We get the hundred and twenty. The neighbor nation observes our numbers. The same argument is good over the international line. That government augments its armies to a hundred and forty. And so we race, one with the other, for superlative preparedness. After a while it occurs to us that there isn't much use in having so many soldiers unless we use them. Then some perfectly silly and inconsequential excuse, as the assassination of an archduke at Sarajevo, throws the whole world into war. A great marshal said the World War was caused by too many men walking around Europe with guns on their shoulders. And all this happens because man has not found himself, he has merely found things. He is concerned not with human beings, but material things which the childlike human mind loves to play with. It's time we became MEN.

At Chautauqua last month Dr. Lichliter, pastor of the Congregational Church at Columbus, Ohio, successor of the great Washington Gladden, made service showed a material gain in the church school membership. In the evening the young people, from Moorhead, gave a program consisting of special numbers and a play, to an appreciative audience. This giving of reciprocal programs between neighboring locals has been a feature of the summer's work of the young people of the district.

---

the statement that the church was not responsible for present social conditions, the economic depression and distress of our Western Civilization, or of the wars that caused it because, he said, the church, with all its multiplied denominations reaches but a very small minority of the people. What he said is doubtless true. But it is a terrible indictment of the church and it simply means that our preachers don't even reach their parishioners. They lack the message. If the church can not give us a social sense and the collective responsibility that matches the individual decencies we have attained, the church has failed. It fails not because of its founders but because it has lost the message of its founders.

The Christian philosophy insists upon the performance of the Golden Rule here and now. And burdening the backs of the people with a war tax to support international banditry is not living in agreement with the Golden Rule. If every Christian pulpit, of all denominations, had the intelligence and the courage to do its whole duty for just one whole year Christendom would be so awake and so alert to its own opportunity, to say nothing of decency and duty, that all our swords would be turned into plowshares and out of war wreckage would come a permanent prosperity.

Our schools and colleges have failed no less than the church. They have put the emphasis on things. How to convert forests into silk stockings, how to turn wheels so that we have an electric light, how to build bridges, how to run banks in the interest of the biggest depositors. And all the time we have been neglecting the greatest thing God ever made, the human being. There can be no competent head culture that does not rest upon the firm foundation of heart culture.

We know how to make automobiles and airplanes, dynamos, radios, fine fabrics and fixtures. But we must now learn how to make MEN, Christian men, men with gentle and generous hearts, men with souls that are saturated with the sense of justice.

The problem is no longer what can we make with things, what can we do with things, what magic can the chemist or the physicist reveal. The question is, What are we going to do with OURSELVES? Can we love one another? Can we be our brother's keeper? And these are not subjects to be dissected by dogma differences. They are the great common denominator truths that cement all denominations into one great Christendom that accepts the leadership of the King of Kings. And that is the Leadership of the Prince of Peace.

The automobile maker voiced words of wisdom when he said "The newest thing in the world is the human being." We need spiritual leaders who in this wilderness of things will help us to find ourselves.

MISCELLANEOUS

Conference Notices

Southern Missouri district conference will convene at Springfield, Missouri, October 31 and November 1. Saints of the district are urged to be present to help in the transaction of business and to enjoy the instructive sermons by Apostle Edwards and President F. M. McDowell.—W. E. Haden, district president.

The annual Rock Island district conference will be held October 17 and 18, at the Davenport church, corner East Central Park and Grand Avenues. There will be election of officers, fixing of 1932 budget, and other important matters. All who can are urged to attend. It is expected that Apostle F. Henry Edwards will be with us. The local congregations will provide a program and entertainment for Friday night. The conference will convene at 10 a. m. Saturday, the election of officers will take place at 2:30. There will be preaching Saturday night, Sunday morning, and evening, and Sunday afternoon will be given over to a Graceland College program, in charge of Graceland alumni.—E. R. Davis, district president.

Central Michigan district conference will convene October 17 and 18, at Beaverton, Michigan. The opening meeting will be a prayer service at 9 a. m., Saturday. Reports are asked from all branches as well as from every man holding the priesthood.—Hubert Case, district president; Winnie Hulbert, secretary.

Two-day Meeting

Central Texas District will hold a two-day meeting October 17 and 18, at the church at Hearne, Texas. There will be class work, meetings for the priesthood, sacrament and preaching services. It is strongly urged that all who can, be in attendance both days.—C. W. Fischer, district president, I. L. Snedeker, district superintendent of Religious Education.

All-day Meeting

There will be an all-day meeting at the Saints' church at Mikado, Michigan, Sunday, October 11. Elder Hubert Case will be present. Dinner will be served free in the church dining room. Everyone is welcome.—M. J. McGuire, pastor; Edith Hickey, publicity agent.

Notice to Southern New England and Wales Saints

By concurrence of the First Presidency and Brother Paul M. Hanson of the Quorum of Twelve, it has been decided to ask the Southern England District to care for the Saints in the territory that was formerly the Wales District. Due notice of this has been sent to the authorities of Southern England District, and all concerned will take notice of this change. We trust that this will be for the advancement of the work in Wales.—The First Presidency.

Priesthood Conference Postponed

The priesthood conference scheduled for October 9, 10, 11, in Far West Stake, is postponed to Friday, Saturday and Sunday, October 23, 24, 25 at Cameron, Guilford, and Saint Joseph respectfully.—Stake Presidency.

New Address

Frank McDonald, 2017 Annie Baxter, Joplin, Missouri; telephone 4996.

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Frederick M. Smith, Editor in Chief.
 Elbert A. Smith, Floyd M. McDowell, Associate Editors.
 Leonard J. Lea, Managing Editor.
 Leta B. Moriarty, Assistant Editor.
 Published for the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Subscription price: By the year, $2.

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE
 INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI

CONTENTS

EDITORIAL:
How to Help in the Present Situation.....	938
Meeting the Test .....	938
Greeting from President Smith .....	939
Harvest Home Festival Officially Opens .....	939
Next Week—A Report from the Presiding Bishopric.....	939
On Finding Good .....	941
OFFICIAL:
Letter from the First Presidency .....	940
Letter from the Quorum of Twelve .....	940
OF GENERAL INTEREST:
Is Science a Danger .....	942
ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
The Church of the Second Century, by L. D. Campbell.....	943
Weekly Health Letter, by A. W. Teele, M. D. ....	947
Thou Shalt Love Thy Neighbor as Thyself, by Paul S. Nielson	948
Do You Know These People .....	950
NEWS OF CHURCH AND HOME .....	952
MISCELLANEOUS .....	959

Do you read the church publications?

HERALD

ENSIGN

VISION

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE

Independence, Missouri

The Church School Handbook

A Worker's Manual

Read what one district president says of it:

"Just received my copy of the Church School Handbook. An excellent, much needed little assistant; a fine study book for leaders who are planning the year's work during their vacations. Congratulations on both content and appearance."

It Helps Others—

It Can Help You!

Price, 35 Cents

Order From
HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE
 Independence, Missouri

LAMONI, IOWA

(Home of Graceland College)

Farm land and town property for sale.

G. W. BLAIR REAL ESTATE AGENCY.

Buy Your Farms Now

While they are cheap. Any size, best terms. Special attention to readers of the Saints' Herald.

CHAS. R. BOWMAN

Butler, Mo.

Don't run the risk of signing SURETY BONDS for your friends. Send 'em to us—WE MAKE A BUSINESS OF IT.

INSURANCE DEPARTMENT OF THE CHURCH

(American Underwriters, Inc.)

Indep. 486

221 W. Lexington St.

NOW IS A GOOD TIME TO CHANGE.

At the mid year Interest date is an advantageous time to shift your Savings Account to a safe conservative institution with a quarter century standing.

We pay 3% on Time and Savings Deposits.
 "Soliciting New Business on Our Record."

JACKSON COUNTY BANK

Independence, Mo.

"Home of Savings"

THE SAINTS' H

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF

Entered as second-class matter at the post office at Independence, Missouri, under Act of Independence, Missouri. Price $2 a year in advance. Accepted for mailing at the special rate of postage provision 1103, Act of October 3, 1917; authorized July 21, 1921.

Volume 78

Independence, Missouri, October 14, 1931

Number 41

BAPTISM OF THE SPIRIT

Then Peter said unto them, Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost. For the promise is unto you, and to your children, and to all that are afar off, even as many as the Lord our God shall call.
—Acts 2: 38, 39.

THE FOUNDATIONS OF CHRISTIANITY

A. B. Phillips

AN ANSWER TO A FAMILIAR ERROR

A LETTER CONCERNING THE "MINIATURE LIBRARY"

J. W. Rushton

REPORT OF THE PRESIDING BISHOPRIC

ON PRESENT FINANCIAL CONDITIONS

Remember Graceland on College Day October 18

Our Financial Outlook

In another column is an official communication from the Presiding Bishopric entitled, "A Payment Program and the 1932 Budget"; and it is to be hoped that the message and financial tables accompanying will have the careful, thoughtful scrutiny of the entire membership of the church. Since the sessions of the Appropriations Committee and the Joint Council of Presidency, Twelve, and Presiding Bishops in February last, the brethren of the Presiding Bishopric have been assiduously studying and analyzing the financial situation of the church in addition to the analysis of conditions had at the time of these sessions. The results of this study and analysis are presented in the tables and the message. Both together form a fine presentation of our situation, the problems gathering about it, and thoughtful suggestions on the way to extricate ourselves from the dilemma in which we find ourselves. That dilemma is not unlike that facing many other organizations.

The figures presented by the Bishopric to the council and committee became the basis for actions by the Appropriations Committee, and these in turn became the basis for the actions of the council in making releases of men under appointment, as well as the basis for executive or administrative measures in curtailment of members in personnel in offices and departments.

It should be noted that the entire work of the committee, council, and administrative officers is in harmony with and governed by the policy or policies adopted or approved by the February council referred to above. And it is quite certain that those policies have in general the hearty approval of the whole church membership.

Among the individuals among local groups under the cognizance of local needs, particularly for helpers in the work, the impulsion might momentarily and primarily be antagonistic to the council's actions on releases; but I am quite certain that a calmer and more fraternal view of the whole situation will result in the local authorities and groups seeing the necessity and logic of the actions had, and there will be a consequent rallying to the support of the general authorities in their work. The members of the council were united in their recognition of the necessity for the actions had, and they are equally united in their determination to carry into effect the policies adopted and the plan approved. I feel safe in saying the council meetings were of the most remarkable held in recent years. The tasks undertaken were difficult and even painful; but the ordeal of facing them in the fear of God and under the impulsion of duty has been a powerful factor in uniting the members of the council. And even under great personal handicaps they are going about their tasks in various fields and offices with a quiet determination and faith in the ultimate success of the church in its efforts which impel towards all sacrifices necessary. And I can not doubt that each member of that council has a constant prayer in his heart, which frequently passes his lips in oral expression that the Spirit of God will abundantly bless and augment every effort to unite the Saints in the duties of devotion and sacrifice which will insure the success of the plan adopted. We face our great tasks with equanimity, for God has in the past safely taken us through many critical periods, and he stands ready to extend to us his helping hand in the present one. We must take up our burdens in faith and with good cheer.

In an administrative as well as personal way, the Presidency are determined to make every effort possible to carry the plan into execution, which means an administration of rigid economy and retrenchment. It entails heavier burdens and labor upon general officers and local forces, but with God's help we shall carry on.

F. M. S.

The Bishop Explains

Last Sunday afternoon the Stone Church of Independence drew a large congregation of attentive and expectant people. Bishops Carmichael, DeLapp, and Curry, and President McDowell were on the stand. At the left was a spacious blackboard on its easel, covered with figures, which Bishop Curry presently arose to explain. Those figures are given in the center pages of this issue of the Herald.

It is unfortunate that cold print can never communicate, even on the most important occasions, the speaker's entire message. The published article will always fall far short of the spoken word.

For that reason we wish that every member of the church could have been present Sunday afternoon to hear Bishop Curry in his discussion of the financial program adopted for the church with its immediate effects, implications, and necessities. We feel sure that our people would be inspired with the spirit of courage, strong hope, and determination that carried through the bishop's talk from beginning to end.

The crowd may have come in a mood of sadness and doubt. Certainly there were the shadows of troubled thoughts upon many faces, and the smiles were few. The occasion was a solemn one. But while the Bishop spoke it seemed that a cloud was lifted. During a session that lasted nearly two hours the audience showed scarcely a sign of in-attention or fatigue, and but very few left early.

When the meeting was dismissed, it could be seen that the whole atmosphere had been changed, and that the people went from the building with new hope, greater determination, and increased courage. We wish, therefore, that all members of the church could have shared the spirit of that meeting. It is certain that the solution of our problems would be greatly facilitated.

In the program of expansion over a period of years the church has spent more than its income, according to the explanation. The resultant financial burden bears down on us with greater severity on account of the depression. In the years to come the church must spend less than its income if it is to meet its obligations and free itself of debt.

The plan offers a program of debt reduction extending over a period of fifteen years. The money to be paid seems great in amount, but it can be paid if everybody works and contributes in a steady consistent manner. The task is hard, but it is by no means impossible.

Bishop Curry's most important message was that we can carry on and meet our obligations, and that the work of the church must go on, even though it cost us much in the way of effort and sacrifice.

L. L.

This Year's Harvest Home Festival

The biggest Harvest Home yet! "The greatest accumulation of foods in the history of the festival," says the Kansas City Journal-Post in an article which appeared in Sunday's paper under the heading, "L. D. S. Harvest Festival Brings $20,000 Food for Poor and Needy." Beautiful booths, unique display devices, vast quantities of raw and cooked foods—but that is not all. I can only hint at the best part of the Harvest Festival; some call it the spirit of the thing. This little instance will tell you what I mean.

It was on the opening day of the festival that I encountered a member of the First Presidency in the agricultural part of the festival. All about people were busy putting on finishing touches; the bandstand had just been erected in the space in front of us. Everything was neat and clean resembling in no way the room as it had been the night before. A few early visitors were wandering about. And while they worked the booth tenders smiled in anticipation. Seriously this member of the Presidency was watching the whole scene, and as I approached, he waved his hand in the direction of a group especially engrossed and ejaculated: "Isn't it wonderful!"

Wonderful it is. For six days this vast gift of church and community to the needy was advantageously displayed to the view of every one. There were more than forty thousand quarts of canned fruits and vegetables, and hundreds of bushels of raw fruits. Contributions came from many distant points—maple syrup and sugar from Maine; oranges, lemons, figs, prunes, and nuts from California; guava jelly, poha jam, canned fish and special brands of coffee, from Hawaii; honey which took the prize at the Wyoming State Fair, and many others. In the lower room of the Auditorium were about twenty-five booths representing congregations, clubs, districts, stakes, Scouts, and one organized class. There were also the bandstand and counters for the flower show, baking contest, and special exhibits.

Upstairs were numbers of industrial exhibits of local and Kansas City merchants. Here, too, was found the two-hundred-foot panel prepared by the pupils of William Chrisman High School, which took first prize in its class at the annual Missouri State Fair. In the foyer also were more booths.

Through these scenes during the Harvest Festival passed more than fifty thousand people. Yes, indeed, they saw Englewood's "dragon," the Great Northwest Club's "waterfall," Kansas City Stake's "heart," Liberty Street's "church," Far West Stake's plot of old Far West made of rustic birdhouses, Sugar Creek's vegetable cellar built entirely of canned goods, and all the rest. They witnessed the Baby Show, the Dahlia Show; they saw booths decked with blue, red, and white ribbons after the judges had passed through. And behind it all, they saw the great generous heart of a people who give—and give.

The 1931 Harvest Festival differed greatly from some of its early predecessors. Well do I remember the first festival I attended. A table in the basement of Second Church bore some cans of fruit, some bags of beans; about it were stacked golden pumpkins and baskets of red apples. That was the start and Brother C. C. Koehler was the instigator. Yet in this room the people arose and thankfully sang the Harvest Song:

Come, ye thankful people, come,
Raise the song of harvest home!
All is safely gathered in,
Ere the winter storms begin:
God our Maker doth provide;
He our wants hath well supplied:
To his house of worship, come,
Raise the song of harvest home!

To me that song is inevitably linked with the Harvest Home Festival. I believe its words embody the true spirit of our own great exhibition.

Always there have been connected with the festival, stories of sacrifice and devotion, nor were these lacking this year. What of groups of women who met in church kitchens one day a week all summer long, to can for the festival? What of groups of young people who undertook the project of a "festival-garden"? What of the two men and one woman who came from Northeastern Kansas District and worked almost continuously one weekend to construct their booth—and did it? What of Spring Branch, one of the smaller congregations in Independence, which marshaled on the shelves of its booth more than 2,500 jars of canned goods? What of the woman who gave to the festival one hundred bushels of choice, hand-picked Jonathan apples? What of the hundreds of housewives who, this summer, tithed their canning? And these are only a few instances of festival consecration.

The first-over-all grand sweepstakes prize went to the combined display of the Great Northwest and Three-I Club (Illinois, Indiana, and Iowa). For the rest the judges classified the awarding of prizes in three divisions. In the Home Branch Division the following ranks were earned: First prize, Walnut Park; second, Englewood; third, Liberty Street; honorable mention; Second Church, Gudgell Park, Spring Branch, and Stone Church. Awards in the Visitors Division were: First prize, Kansas City Stake; second, Sugar Creek; third, Northeast Kansas District; honorable mention: Far West, East Independence, Holden Stake, and Hawaii. In the Clubs Division prizes went as follows: First, Sunny South; second, Y. K. T. Class, and third, California.

From the store of Harvest Festival gifts will go food to the church's homes for the aged at Holden, Missouri, and Lamoni, Iowa, to the Independence Sanitarium, and to the worthy poor of the center place and vicinity. Much of the canned goods will be stored until it is needed.

The thirteenth Harvest Festival is over. We have raised the song of Harvest Home. We are grateful for the generosity of our friends and neighbors. Truly it has been wonderful! L. B. M.

Man-making

We all are blind until we see
That in the human plan
Nothing is worth the making, if
It does not make the man.

Why build these cities glorious,
If man unbuilt goes?
In vain we build the work, unless
The builder also grows.

—Edwin Markham.

OFFICIAL

A Payment Program and the 1932 Budget

As the mariner requires chart and compass for navigating the sea, so the church needs a definite plan in its effort to pay the debts it owes, and in the discharge of its spiritual obligations to its members and the world. Recently, there was completed a thorough analysis of these debts, based upon which a program was placed before and approved by the Joint Council of Presidency, Twelve, and Presiding Bishopric, and the Board of Appropriations. The Board of Appropriations, consisting of the Council named and the Order of Bishops, in order to begin prompt action under the plan, adopted a still further reduced budget to become effective not later than November 1, next, and covering the year 1932.

The plan calls for the payment over the next fifteen years of approximately $1,200,000 of debts. Beginning with 1933, a cash reserve will be set aside on general church debenture bonds which will permit payment of between twenty and twenty-five per cent of the principal at maturity in 1936. With this payment, as an evidence of good faith, a request will be made for a ten years' renewal of the balance, with positive continuance of cash reserves to retire one tenth annually, or more rapidly if possible. Furthermore, beginning with 1933, the plan contemplates setting aside $11,700 annually for twenty years for the purpose of replacing the present Graceland Endowment Bonds with sound securities, interest bearing, of the type which are legal investments for savings bank or trust funds. Thus the money already contributed to our stewardship project from funds raised by the Graceland Endowment campaign will be continuable therein as a revolving fund extending that project, and the church will not be called upon annually, as at present, to pay to Graceland the interest required by the Endowment bonds. Parenthetically, it should be stated that the bulk of the stewardship lands purchased with Endowment funds are carrying themselves, a most encouraging achievement, but are not yet able to pay a return to the church directly, because excess earnings over expenses are being used to discharge mortgages incurred when the acreages were bought. Hence, the money presumed to be available to the church to cover Endowment bond interest, as indicated when the Endowment campaign was in progress, must be met out of current church income. Very probably it will be several years before the lands are cleared of encumbrance and normal returns be secured to the church.

Many have expressed the belief that the debts may be retired more rapidly than our plan provides. Possibly they may be, and all of us hope they will. We, however, have endeavored to provide a reasonable, businesslike plan which, although the going will be hard over the next three years, should make it possible to pay our debts and carry on those activities of the church which God has ordained. Any speeding up of the debt-paying process will enable us that much more quickly to reach the solid foundation we are determined to attain.

The program proposed and approved as outlined above is presented graphically in the chart on pages 972 and 973, entitled "Summary of Liabilities."

To arrive at the result shown by the chart, each debt we owe has been analyzed with respect to maturity, how much, in our opinion, must be paid on principal at maturity, and how much possibly may be renewed. The analysis was brought together under the columns headed Principal, Interest, Vouchers Payable, Accounts Payable. (The last two items mean the same thing, being shown thus merely to make easy checking against the bookkeeping system followed by the office.) The columns headed Principal and Interest include Notes payable to individuals, both members and nonmembers, Branches and Banks; Mortgages Payable, and Bonds Payable. Opposite the respective months or years, these two columns show the amount of maturing obligations we expect we must pay, and interest which we must pay. January, 1932, calls for principal payments of $27,610, and interest of $27,556.78. These fall due in that month prior to the dates upon which income will be received. Therefore money must be provided in advance of that month. It will be noted that the total principal and interest payments for October, November, December, 1931, and January, 1932, are set up in equal amounts under the column headed Reserve for Principal and Interest for the months of October, November, and December. This is another way of saying that during three months we must provide for four months' maturities. This method has been followed to 1946 in the columns described.

The year 1936, in the Principal column, includes $342,450. General Church Debenture Bonds maturing that year on which twenty to twenty-five per cent cash would be ready for payment; 1946 includes the maturity of $233,312 Graceland College Endowment bonds on which, as pointed out, cash reserves of $11,700 annually beginning 1933 would be provided. Presumably balances of both issues could be renewed.

The totals represented by columns headed Vouchers Payable and Accounts Payable have been spread over as long a period as possible, necessarily, but, like the other payables referred to above, at a rate which probably is the minimum at which payments may be made. We may be called upon to pay more rapidly, rather than less.

Current Budget Items Exclusive of Interest covers expenses to be incurred for operating the church. October is at the rate provided for in the 1931 budget, November and December at the rate of the 1932 budget. To effect the cuts designed, severe hardships again will be inflicted, but the necessities of the situation demand that we move promptly to reduce our expenses as much as possible, rather than procrastinate indefinitely. It is better to control the situation than to have the situation control us.

Accrued Budget Items Exclusive of Interest represent expenses incurred this year, so far, exclusive of September, which could not be paid because of the pressure of principal and interest payments. To this situation repeated references have been made in the columns of the Herald, particularly in the announcement of the period of sacrifice in June. The bulk of the accruals is for allowances, and every possible effort will be made to pay. Beyond that we can not go.

The Total, All Payments column states the amount to be provided month by month to meet liabilities in accordance with the maturities and necessities previously outlined.

Anticipated Income has been projected over the final quarter of 1931, and the year 1932. Beyond that it is valueless to go. The amounts are based upon the church contributing as much in tithes and offerings as has been done. The expectancy is a guess, it can be no more. All interested in the welfare of the church should labor to make the total more instead of less.

Balance Available for Budget, or Deficit shows for the last three months of 1931 a deficit or surplus on the basis of the budget of 1931 for October, and 1932 for November and December. If we can come within the new budget, we shall be short $16,124.89 in cash requirements by the end of this year. Between now and then, we hope everyone will do his utmost to enable the church to finish the year with a surplus, however small.

For 1932 the column just mentioned shows the cash available for operating the church month by month, totals for each six months' period, and total for the entire year. The necessity for a greatly reduced budget becomes startlingly obvious. We can not continue spending for current operations or incurring obligations in connection therewith, and still meet the costs which have arisen during the past several years for activities in excess of our income. The church is compelled to make a choice. The budget for 1932, compared with 1930 and 1931, is set out in the "Statement of Appropriations." (Page 974.)

If church policy has been criticized in the past for not reacting more quickly to trends of income and expense, that criticism is not now applicable. The 1932 budget was adopted to be effective not later than November 1, because it was seen that expenses must be reduced now, not next year. When the branches, districts, stakes, and various departments of the church feel the handicap this course imposes, will they not resolve to labor with continued energy and patience to enable the church to win?

The difficulties in the way of speedy and complete compliance with the budget are many and vexing. But there seems to be no other practicable way to follow. So far, splendid work has been done by each department in complying with the 1931 budget. This is evidence of what will follow in view of the present determination of each officer to reach a still lower expense basis. All of us must unite to bear the temporary strain required before we reach ultimate security.

Despite the fact that the 1932 budget, exclusive of reserves, is $289,665.12, about $100,000 less than for 1931, the requirement for debt payment is $191,796.05. Applying the saving of $100,000 leaves us still $91,796.05 short. This means one of three things, first, current operating expenses for the year 1932 will have to be deferred to the amount of the shortage so that the non-deferable maturities may be met; second, extensions on the maturities, not now reasonably to be expected, may be obtained; third, income may be increased to make up the deficit. Very probably we shall be compelled to do the first, to some extent, and of course will endeavor to accomplish the other two. We can not emphasize too strongly that the program of principal reductions is the minimum as we see it. The issue can be met only as the entire church gives its united support.

Since the further reduction of current activities paid for by the general church has become imperatively necessary, a further load is thrown upon local priesthood and other workers of the church. The facts compel this result. Undoubtedly, the men and women of the church will rally to carry on the work with a willingness equal to that manifested by the leading quorums in assuming the increased supervising responsibility this shift entails. No church financial program can succeed that is not duplicated by a spiritual program. Both are dependent upon the willing heart of the church.

The necessity for sacrifice and great economy in church operations is conceded. Will the Saints sacrifice and economize in their personal expenditures to the end that their contributions of tithes and offerings may be greater? Strict adherence to the church policy adopted February 12, last, is assurance that sacrificial economy will not be in vain. In other words, are not all of us willing to practice economy, even by sacrifice, if we may be sure that the difficulty our sacrifice helps to overcome will not straightway be embraced again?

Along with personal sacrifice goes the sacrifice expected of those localities which have been ministered to by church appointees. If the general church can not for a time extend the help previously given to these localities, we hope they will increase, rather than lessen, their help in tithes and offerings to the general church. The sacrifice they are asked to bear will be a very great help to the general church as it struggles to regain its feet. Is not this sacrifice, also, worth making?

From reunions and elsewhere have come reports of the unusual blessings of the Spirit enjoyed this year. These unite with many other manifestations to show that the Lord is guiding his cause. Let us therefore "be strong and of a good courage," and go forward.

THE PRESIDING BISHOPRIC,
By L. F. P. CURRY.

Two Months of Sacrifice

NOVEMBER AND DECEMBER, 1931

The following letter has been addressed to the Presidency by the Presiding Bishopric:

THE FIRST PRESIDENCY,
Dear Brethren:

Since the meeting of the Joint Council in February the General Church officers have been aggressively carrying out the policy adopted, believing it to be the best way to meet the critical situation confronting the church. Economies have been effected in many ways and even though the cost has almost seemed too high in many instances, yet it is the only way out.

A careful study of the article dealing with our present financial situation will show that the economies already effected have not been sufficient to meet the need, and it was necessary for the Joint Council and Board of Appropriations to take even more drastic steps to adjust our financial affairs.

The opinion is general that we have reduced our man power of the appointive list and office personnel to a minimum. Our expenses have likewise been reduced and we must now turn our faces to the task of reconstruction on a basis that will result in economic and spiritual security. That which has been done will not suffice unless there is a determination

(Continued on page 982.)

The Foundations of Christianity

By A. B. Phillips

Long before the records of Egypt and Babylon had been inscribed the nations of the world had developed a remarkable civilization; a civilization the magnificence of which has probably been lost forever to the knowledge of living beings upon earth. They have left no written record of their greatness, or of the progress they made in the onward march of mankind. But through their successors there has come to us today, thousands of years afterward, remarkable evidence of their learning, culture, and philosophy of life. It is to be presumed that from these nations of the long-forgotten dust have arisen all of the ancestors that we may proudly seek to trace, but which perchance we might not be so eager to own if revealing light on their every deed glowed where all the world could see.

How far back into the mists of antiquity we must go to find the beginnings of orderly government with justice and equity as their foundation stones, is not revealed by any secular history today. Only in the sacred Scriptures may we find the key to unlock this door of human mystery. In this record alone we learn that God made man upright in the morning of life, and gave him talents and powers to replenish the earth and subdue it. When from the creative hand of Omnipotence there sprang into living action the only kind of being that was endowed with the genius of reason, there was also placed upon man the powers and opportunities to employ his reason for the protection and well-being of his species.

The cooperation made necessary for mutual good and security lies at the root of our very existence. Without it the many adverse forces in the world would have practically if not completely extinguished human beings from the earth ages ago. Those who refuse to recognize this responsibility toward others have brought suffering and disaster to mankind in every period of the past, while those who have accepted this obligation have been the benefactors of all time.

The Cause of Civilization

So long as men considered only their own personal affairs no society could be formed and stabilized, and not even the family could be secure against the aggression of other more powerful families. Probably the most fundamental factor in the growth of society was the mutual protection which the larger societies could afford, and which implied danger to smaller groups from more powerful bodies having the desire for plunder. Quite naturally, therefore, rules for mutual protection arose among those who recognized that individual rights can be safeguarded only by admitting the superior rights of the group. The individual must depend upon his group in many ways, and he justly owes it the duty of his support.

From earliest history there has existed this mutual obligation in society. And from the beginning two forces have thrown down the gage of battle. One has respected and supported the mutual and collective rights of society and its units, but the other has sought to destroy them and prey upon those holding them. Consciously or unconsciously men have chosen sides in this great world conflict,—the conflict of selfish and evil forces against the forces of good-will and justice. The first example of all history to violate these rights, which are basic to human society, proved the evil nature of his heart by murdering his own brother. From his perverted lips came the challenge of a degenerate mind when he asked his Maker the deceitful question: "Am I my brother's keeper?"

From that day to the present God has answered the hypocrisy of Cain by building the best civilizations of the world upon the principles of mutual regard and mutual security. When these principles have been persistently trampled upon by any nation of antiquity it has caused that nation's downfall in the course of time. Even the security and happiness of the home depends upon the recognition of this fundamental truth. Looking back upon the history of the ages, no man can fail to read the answer of God to that insolent question of long ago. It is written indelibly in the results of human experience, and reveals the only foundation upon which mankind can build happiness, security, and permanent success.

Roots of Christian Principles

Much farther back than we can trace the authentic history of nations there must have existed religious, civil, and ethical rules of conduct and vast civilizations of great importance. It is estimated that ancient Egypt possessed seven millions of people, and when some of their monuments were built, much more than three thousand years before the time of Christ, they already had a populous and powerful government with institutions of noted learning, and a religious influence that swayed even the mighty Pharaohs upon their thrones. For even the Egyptian rulers bowed to the authority of their priestly system.

The essential ethics of the most ancient periods known to us were grounded in human need, moral conduct, and social solidarity. The laws enacted from time to time had for their object one or more of these considerations, except for those instances of selfish dominance which at times lifted its ugly head to threaten the normal processes of life. And when these deformities arose, the ultimate consequences were the revolutionary upheavals of war, ruin, and untold suffering, until sounder principles of society again gained the ascendancy. The most remarkable civilizations of the ancient world, so far as they are traced, were chiefly supported by these higher considerations of mutual good.

It may be true that in some of these eras the equitable nature of social laws become adulterated with rules of selfish intent, but these diverse influences in civilization served to emphasize the conflict of right against wrong, which we have already noted. Because of these warring interests we have fewer examples of pure altruism, and more instances of imperfect social codes in the governments of mankind. Some of them were diamonds in the rough, from which the centuries were destined to remove that which concealed their brilliancy. So we discover the code of Hammurabi which was fundamentally similar to the famous laws of Moses, though in force many centuries earlier. In this great code was buried for many centuries the roots of the Christian philosophy, forbidding the wrong, and commanding righteousness and equity in human relationships.

The Law as a Schoolmaster

Those who will discerningly scan the historic picture of the ages will be able to see how the development of the conflicting forces mentioned have gradually resulted in a clearer vision and higher aims among the nations of mankind. From the beginning God gave fundamental laws to develop man's highest possibilities, endowing him with the talents and reason to use his powers wisely. For this reason Paul declares that the law of Moses was but the forerunner of the loftier ideals of Christ to be revealed by faith, of which he says:

Wherefore then serveth the law? It was added because of transgressions, till the seed should come to whom the promise was made. . . . Wherefore the law was our schoolmaster to bring us unto Christ, that we might be justified by faith.—Galatians 3: 19, 24.

Until this great vision of faith revealed the ideal to which the law pointed, it was necessary that men be taught and disciplined to keep the laws that enforced regard for the rights of others. For this reason it was necessary to command: "Thou shalt not kill," for until men learned to love others as themselves they would not respect even the life of another, unless the penalty of death was sure to punish them for taking human life. In the course of time the habit of respect for others would develop higher regard for others, and thus the law of love could take the place of the law of penalties.

This explains why Paul, who was once under the law, declares that he is no longer under it, but is under grace. Love came to rule his actions toward men, where formerly the law of sin and death, with its dread penalties, operated as the schoolmaster to lead the way to the precepts of Christ. To break the law of human rights and mutual good is sin, and he who does this is no longer under grace, but is under the law of sin and death, that law that Paul says "gendereth to bondage." All through the ages, therefore, God has been using the law and its penalties to safeguard both society and the individuals of which society is formed. This schoolmaster will continue in force upon those who refuse the gospel of grace, until the kingdom of God in triumph shall establish universal love and fraternity among men.

The Object of Penalties

God has always given mankind the privilege of choosing the laws under which he prefers to live. He gave this choice to Adam in the garden of Eden, and it seems strange that Adam would choose a course that deprived him of the wonderful enjoyments to be had on every hand, and of perpetual life without pain, hunger, or deformity of any kind. It was because Adam rashly violated the rights accorded him, and became a law unto himself, that he was removed from the happy atmosphere of sinless life, and was compelled to endure the misery and death which sin always produces.

Sin is not necessary either to the happiness of any normal person or to the attainment of any worth-while goal in life. It is an unsolved mystery why men have chosen so often to walk in paths of evil, for sin has always harmed both the sinner and others who have suffered the consequences of his aggression. Cain became a despised outcast, because of his great sin, but this was of less importance than the effect which his conduct had upon his own character. For the deeds of men make them what they are, and no one who yields to his sinful desires should flatter himself that he is righteous. John the loved disciple explains: "He that doeth righteousness is righteous."

Penalties are therefore designed of God to protect the righteous by restraining the unrighteous. At the same time they tend to change the purpose of men, until they can respond to higher ideals than laws to be kept from compulsion. He who refrains from sin lest he be punished, lives under the law of fear instead of under the law of love. Restraining influences are therefore necessary to him, as well as for the benefit of those whom he might otherwise harm.

Christian Principles in All Ages

To those who would receive them, the principles of Christ were available in the beginning when man was first given his agency and knowledge to choose his course. For from the beginning men needed a Savior-Messiah to lead them to purity of life and ideal purposes in their relationships with other men. These principles are embraced in one dominant quality, the quality of love, and are manifested in two essential ways. First, and of supreme importance, and degree, is the love of God, who possesses in perfection all those qualities that may rightly be worshiped. Second, and of related importance, is the love of man, who was made in the image of God and is called to become worthy of eternal life and happiness in his presence.

Christ was manifested in the flesh in the course of the ages, but the principles that ruled his life were revealed of God for the salvation of those who believed in every age. Therefore Peter was inspired to affirm: "To him give all the prophets witness." Truth is eternal, and it did not become more true when Jesus gave his perfect manifestation of "the way, the truth, and the life." He was the supreme Witness who testified of truth as it always existed in the bosom of eternity, concerning which he solemnly affirmed:

To this end was I born, and for this cause came I into the world, that I should bear witness unto the truth.—John 18: 37.

The great truth to which Jesus bore witness, for the perfect revelation of which he was the hope of all ages, has made its impress upon the lives of men in every period of the past. It has been the chief factor in the establishment of the most worthy nations the world has ever seen, and because of its potency the civilizations of today are permitted to remain. All of the brotherhood of the world that remains true and constant, and all the hopes and ideals that are worthy to be realized, have been built upon this foundation, eternal and secure.

Nothing is to be gained by criticizing, unless the critic is able to prove his sincerity by giving help in the mitigation of the mistake of which he complains. In the work of the church, as in any other constructive work dependent upon the cooperation of many people, one helper is worth a dozen critics.

Weekly Health Letter

Number Fourteen

The Nose and Its Relation to Health and Disease.—12

Sphenoiditis and Nose Bleed

By A. W. Teel, M. D., Church Physician

The sphenoidal sinus is one of the most troublesome sinuses to treat, located as it is near the nasal septum, it is hidden from view by its close proximity to the middle turbinate. If pus forms in it, it drains directly backward into the throat and is of a thick, sticky consistency and very irritating. Wherever this discharge comes in contact with the mucous membranes of the nose and throat, it sets up an inflammation which accounts for the raw soreness of these parts. The pain is usually located in the back of the head, about where the head and neck join, or it might be just behind the mastoid process, but there are cases where it is diffused and ill-defined.

Catarrhal inflammation may cause the same headache but it may not be so severe. If the pain is well-pronounced and is located in the back of the head, one may be almost sure it is from the sphenoid. In addition to the characteristic pain, it frequently brings on a low-blood pressure accompanied by dizziness. In pronounced cases, the patient will complain of extreme weakness upon exertion, which is probably due to the low-blood pressure.

I have observed quite a number of cases complicated by hoarseness and coughing, which were due to the irritant action of the secretion. The pus, if thinner, often extends to the sensitive membranes of the "voice box" or larynx. On account of this irritation of the larynx, it is quite common to see a person, so afflicted, unable to speak above a whisper. If the infection extends to the eustachian tubes, the tubes that lead from throat to ear, there may be head noises or ringing in the ears. Frequently, these patients complain of a stuffiness in the nose, which if neglected, is likely to result in loss of hearing. Eye symptoms are quite common on account of the optic nerve passing dangerously near and over the roof of the sinus. Sudden blindness has been known to occur on account of this peculiar anatomical relationship. In some cases, the eyes become closed and if it extends to other nerves, intense neuralgia is quite common, located in the region of the eye.

Unfortunately, most of these cases are not seen by the specialist until they become more or less chronic, and on account of this neglect, there is a general idea among the laymen that sinus disease is incurable, which is not true. No chronic condition of this kind can be gotten rid of in a few weeks or even months. Bodily health is of the utmost importance, and should be looked after. In fact, it may be of as much importance as the actual treatment.

Nose-bleed, or Epistaxis, results from common causes and is a very common occurrence in the daily practice of the physician. The following are some of the chief causes: First, high-blood pressure, which is usually seen in older people, or those of middle age. Such a condition usually causes the patient deep concern, but should not be too readily stopped, in most cases, as it acts as a safety valve and is a wise provision of nature, to preserve the individual. Located in the brain, are several small arteries, not supported as arteries in other parts of the body as their course is through the soft brain substance. During this stage of the individual's life, they lose their elasticity and toughness, due to more or less degenerative changes, causing them to be more likely to break under the high tension and, similar to other blood vessels at this time of life, they are subjected to a greater load to carry and it is a very fortunate thing, indeed, for them to break in some accessible point in the nose, rather than in the brain. If they happen to break in the brain, we then call it apoplexy or a paralytic stroke, which is often fatal.

During epidemics of influenza, low-blood pressure is likewise often the cause of nose-bleed and may be a serious complication. In most of these cases, the blood vessels are like a sieve and are not so apt to break as those having high-blood pressure. This is very common in acute sphenoidal sinus disease, and the treatment consists of bringing the blood pressure up to as near normal as possible.

Boundless Love

Doctor G. Campbell Morgan tells us in one of his many books, of walking one day by the sea where the children were playing in the sand. They were digging a hole with their little spades, and he stopped to ask them why. "We want to see if the sea can fill it," they replied. The children and the scholar watched together to see what would happen. The tide was coming in, and the waves—"those white horses of the mighty deep"—broke nearer and nearer. At last a great wave swept over the hole the children had dug, and rolled back into the sea. It was full to the brim, and the great unfathomed ocean lay behind it. So indeed does the love of God fill our lives to overflowing, and that which is left is like the immensity of the unmeasured sea.—C. J. Harrell, in Friends of God; Cokesbury Press.

An Answer to a Familiar Error

Note: The copy of the "Library in Miniature" on the subject "Mormonism" given below is a reproduction of syndicated matter that has been printed in various parts of the country. At least a dozen members of the church from as many different cities have sent us exact copies of the article. Its errors will be immediately apparent to the informed reader. When the article appeared in the San Francisco "Examiner," Elder J. W. Rushton was asked to write to the editor of that paper and make corrections. We believe that his answer, published here with the article in question, will give our people material for making the proper representations to local papers whenever the article appears.—The Editors.

The Syndicated Article

LIBRARY IN MINIATURE—MORMONISM

- 1—What is the full name of the Mormon Church?
- 2—Who founded it?
- 3—What is said to have led him to founding this religion?
- 4—According to the Book of Mormon, who first settled America?
- 5—Where and when was this church formally organized?
- 6—Did the Book of Mormon originally advocate polygamy?
- 7—When and why did the leader of the Mormons seek to become President of the United States?
- 8—How did Smith die, and who succeeded him?
- 9—Who forms the Mormon government?

Answers

- 1—The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.
- 2—Joseph Smith, who was born December 23, 1805, at Sharon, Vt.
- 3—An angel, Moroni, the son of Mormon, appeared to him three times and directed him to dig in a certain hill, where he found a book made of thin gold plates, a breastplate and a pair of supernatural spectacles. The latter aided him in reading the mystic characters of the book, which he claimed was the Book of Mormon, and which, mentioned him as the divine prophet.
- 4—The "Jaredites," who were among the crowd dispersed at the Tower of Babel.
- 5—At Fayette, N. Y., in 1830. Since 1848 it has largely concentrated around Salt Lake City, Utah.
- 6—No, it prohibited it. In 1843 Joseph Smith claimed to have had a revelation which established it as a law of the church. There was much bitter feeling about this, and it split the church and drew the attention of the Federal authorities.
- 7—In 1844, because neither Henry Clay nor John C. Calhoun would give him satisfactory pledges concerning their attitudes toward the Mormons.
- 8—He was imprisoned on a charge of treason, after an uprising in 1844. The jail where he was held was mobbed, and with his brother he was shot. Brigham Young, then a brilliant Mormon leader, was made head of the sect in spite of the opposition of Smith's son.

9—The President, who is supported by two counselors, the "patriarch," and "twelve apostles."

Elder J. W. Rushton's Letter

To the Editor,
"The Examiner";
San Francisco.

Dear Sir:

My attention has just recently been called to your issue of March 10th of this year, particularly the section—"Miniature Library" dealing with some questions about Mormonism.

Kindly permit correction of two important historical features which are found in Answers No. 6 and 7.

When it is alleged that polygamy is the result of a revelation which Joseph Smith claimed to have establishing it as a law of the church, the facts are quite to the reverse.

At a General Assembly of the church held at Kirtland, Ohio, August 17, 1835, the "law regarding marriage" was presented and adopted which was included in every edition of the book of Doctrine and Covenants whether put out by the original church or by the Mormon Church up to 1876. This law distinctly declares "that we believe that one man should have one wife; and one woman but one husband, except in case of death, when either is at liberty to marry again."

I have taken this quotation from the book of Doctrine and Covenants published by the Mormon Church in 1854 at Liverpool, England, which bears the signature of President Brigham Young himself.

Joseph Smith died June 27, 1844, in Illinois. It was not until August 29, 1852, that polygamy was introduced into the Mormon Church as a doctrine and practice, this was eight years after Smith's demise. Orson Pratt made the speech and it was in the great Tabernacle at Salt Lake City, Utah.

The action which removed the "law of marriage" up to 1854 (which was monogamic) and inserted in its place the law of "eternity of the marriage covenant including the plurality of wives," was arbitrary and illegal according to the ecclesiastical procedure governing legislation. There is no record of the change ever being presented for discussion and adoption by the church at any conference or assembly, which was necessary for authorization. It is also true that this "alleged" revelation of Joseph Smith's, imposing polygamy, was never made public during his lifetime and so could not have been "law" during his lifetime.

There have been two law suits touching rights and properties involving the Mormon Church and the Reorganized Church. One, in the Court of Common Pleas when Judge Sherman, February, 1880, found that the Mormon Church of Utah "had materially and largely departed from the faith, doctrines, laws, ordinances and usages of the original church by incorporating into its system of faith (among other things), the doctrine of celestial marriage and plurality of wives."

Again, in the Temple Lot Suit Judge Phillips of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Western District of Missouri, Western Division, at Kansas City, Missouri, on March 16, 1894, gave his decision which included the following statement: "There can be no question of the fact that Brigham Young's assumed presidency was a bold and bald usurpation." Further he said, that the Utah Church had departed from the principles and doctrines of the original church by changing their teachings, among which is that touching marriage. Polygamous marriages never occurred under the rules of the church up to 1844, nor were they promulgated, taught, or recognized as doctrines of the church prior to the assumption of Brigham Young. This is the legal pronouncement as recorded in the court findings.

Secondly: The statement in the "Miniature Library" that "Brigham Young, then a brilliant Mormon leader, was made head of the sect in spite of the opposition of Smith's son." Joseph Smith's son was only a boy between twelve and thirteen years of age at the time of his father's death. While it is true that the ecclesiastical law provided that the incumbent of the office should have the right of nominating his successor subject to acceptance by the church, and should be ordained to that office, Young assumed the presidency December 5, 1847, upon "nomination" by Orson Hyde and Wilford Woodruff. The historicity of "Young Joseph's" right has been established in the same court investigations which have been referred to. It was not until April of 1860, however, that the son took his father's place through the process prescribed in the accepted church law.

June 3, 1860, Brigham Young said himself: "The brethren testify that Brother Brigham is Brother Joseph's legal successor. You never heard me say so. I say that I am a good hand to keep the dogs and wolves out of the flock."—Journal of Discourses, volume 8, page 69.

It is of historical moment to state that after Smith's assassination the church was broken up in several groups of which the two largest existing today are the Mormon Church of Utah presided over by Heber J. Grant, and the Reorganized Church with central offices at Independence, Missouri, presided over by Frederick M. Smith, grandson of the original founder.

Thanking you in anticipation, I am,
Sincerely,
J. W. RUSHTON.

Summary

October, November

Years

	Principal	Interest	Reserve for Prin. & Int.	Vouchers Payable	Total
1931
October .....	$ 5,360.00	$ 1,020.64	$ 24,841.63	$ 500.00	$ 25,341.63
November .....	4,210.00	1,328.96	24,841.63	500.00	25,341.63
December .....	5,260.00	2,178.50	24,841.63	500.00	25,341.63
Total—1931 .....	$ 14,830.00	$ 4,528.10	$ 74,524.89	$1,500.00	$ 76,024.89
1932
January .....	$ 27,610.00	$ 27,556.78	$ 15,849.28	$ 932.75	$ 16,782.03
February .....	5,869.37	1,825.37	15,849.28	932.75	16,782.03
March .....	13,470.00	2,729.00	15,849.28	932.75	16,782.03
April .....	2,320.00	686.73	15,849.28		15,849.28
May .....	6,600.00	2,479.51	15,849.28		15,849.28
June .....	3,645.00	1,093.07	15,849.28		15,849.28
Total—Jan. to June Incl.....	$ 59,514.37	$ 36,370.46	$ 95,095.68	$2,798.25	$ 97,893.93
July .....	$ 28,320.00	$ 26,057.58	$ 13,690.88		$ 13,690.88
August .....	5,520.00	1,608.17	13,690.88		13,690.88
September .....	8,520.00	2,777.72	13,690.88		13,690.88
October .....	5,495.00	1,019.89	13,690.88		13,690.88
November .....	3,920.00	922.12	13,690.88		13,690.88
December .....	6,070.00	1,892.50	13,690.88		13,690.88
Total—July-December .....	$ 57,845.00	$ 34,277.98	$ 82,145.28		$ 82,145.28
Total—Jan. to Dec. ....	$ 117,359.37	$ 70,648.44	$ 177,240.96	$2,798.25	$ 180,039.21
Subsequent to 1932.
1933	59,467.45	65,524.26	$ 118,692.41		$ 118,692.41
1934	53,140.00	62,770.74	154,010.74		154,010.74
1935	50,890.00	59,992.34	148,982.34		148,982.34
1936	396,240.00	48,662.94	140,552.94		140,552.94
1937	53,890.00	37,333.60	129,323.60		129,323.60
1938	53,590.00	34,611.14	126,301.14		126,301.14
1939	33,590.00	31,861.74	103,551.74		103,551.74
1940	28,090.00	30,056.34	96,246.34		96,246.34
1941	28,500.00	28,580.94	95,180.94		95,180.94
1942	28,500.00	28,080.94	93,680.94		93,680.94
1943	28,500.00	25,580.94	92,180.94		92,180.94
1944	33,500.00	23,955.94	95,555.94		95,555.94
1945	33,500.00	22,205.94	93,805.94		93,805.94
1946	266,712.00	19,805.94	91,305.94		91,305.94
	$1,148,109.45	$518,023.74	$1,579,371.89		$1,579,371.89

f Liabilities

, December, 1931

932

to 1946

Accounts Payable	Current Budget Items Exclusive of Int.	Accrued Budget Items Exclusive of Int.	Total Accounts Payable and Budget Items	Total All Payments	Anticipated Income	Balance Available Budget or Deficit
	$26,100.00		$26,100.00	$ 51,441.63	$ 28,000.00	$ 23,441.63	Def.
	18,250.00		18,250.00	43,591.63	29,500.00	14,091.63	Def.
	18,250.00		18,250.00	43,591.63	65,000.00	21,408.37	Sur.
	$62,600.00		$62,600.00	$138,624.89	$122,500.00	$ 16,124.89	Def.
$ 1,650.00		$ 5,163.07	$ 6,813.07	$ 23,595.10	$ 35,000.00	$ 11,404.90
1,650.00		5,163.07	6,813.07	23,595.10	25,000.00	1,404.90
1,650.00		5,163.07	6,813.07	23,595.10	25,000.00	1,404.90
1,650.00		5,163.07	6,813.07	22,662.35	26,000.00	3,337.65
1,650.00		5,163.07	6,813.07	22,662.35	22,000.00	662.35	Def.
1,650.00		5,163.07	6,813.07	22,662.35	50,000.00	27,337.65
$ 9,900.00		$30,978.42	$40,878.42	$138,772.35	$183,000.00	$ 44,227.65
$ 1,650.00		$ 5,163.07	$ 6,813.07	$ 20,503.95	$ 30,000.00	$ 9,496.05
1,650.00		5,163.07	6,813.07	20,503.95	25,000.00	4,496.05
1,650.00		5,163.07	6,813.07	20,503.95	25,000.00	4,496.05
1,650.00		5,163.07	6,813.07	20,503.95	28,000.00	7,496.05
1,650.00		5,163.07	6,813.07	20,503.95	29,500.00	8,996.05
1,650.00		5,163.07	6,813.07	20,503.95	65,000.00	44,496.05
$ 9,900.00		$30,978.42	$40,878.42	$123,023.70	$202,500.00	$ 79,476.30
$19,800.00		$61,956.84	$81,756.84	$261,796.05	$385,500.00	$123,703.95

Statement of Appropriations

	1930	1931	1932
	Appropriations	Appropriations	Appropriations
First Presidency .....	$ 7,000.00	$ 4,500.00	$ 2,600.00
Presiding Bishopric .....	16,794.00	12,000.00	6,000.00
Quorum of Twelve .....	1,850.00	1,400.00	700.00
Statistician .....	1,700.00	500.00	—
Auditor .....	2,969.00	300.00	—
Architect's Office .....	7,000.00	500.00	—
Historian's Office .....	1,500.00	—	—
Presiding Patriarch .....	200.00	100.00	—
Graphic Arts .....	300.00	—	—
Department of Religious Education .....	4,780.00	1,650.00	825.00
Social Service Bureau .....	1,600.00	—	—
Radio .....	485.00	300.00	—
Librarian .....	5,200.00	—	—
General Office Expense .....	3,000.00	2,500.00	1,250.00
Auditorium Operating Expense .....	6,000.00	4,000.00	3,000.00
General Church Expense .....	4,500.00	3,000.00	1,500.00
Bishop's and Agents' Expense .....	2,000.00	2,000.00	1,000.00
Music Department .....	1,500.00	80.00	—
Publicity Department .....	7,250.00	—	—
Independence—Pres. and Bishopric .....	3,200.00	1,400.00	700.00
Lamoni Stake—Pres. and Bishopric .....	3,700.00	1,800.00	700.00
Kansas City Stake—Pres. and Bishopric—Far West Stake—	4,000.00	2,500.00	1,250.00
Pres. and Bishopric .....	2,300.00	2,000.00	1,000.00
Holden Stake .....	1,400.00	800.00	300.00
Foreign Missions .....	5,000.00	2,500.00	1,000.00
Interest and (76,000. Exchange 4,500.) .....	55,000.00	80,500.00	70,648.44
Real Estate Expense .....	5,000.00	5,000.00	5,000.00
Family Allow., Inc. Elders' Expense .....	292,337.06	200,000.00	138,841.68
Holden Home .....	9,000.00	9,000.00	7,500.00
Saints' Home .....	7,000.00	3,000.00	1,000.00
Miscellaneous Aid .....	15,000.00	15,000.00	15,000.00
Graceland College .....	22,897.41	18,600.00	16,000.00
Centennial Expense .....	10,000.00	—	—
Operating Expenses .....	$511,462.57	$374,930.00	$275,815.12
Items Other Than Operating Expenses:
Payments on Consecration Contracts .....	$ 20,000.00	$ 15,000.00	$ 12,000.00
Chapel Fund .....	10,000.00	3,500.00	1,850.00
Auditorium Expansion .....	90,000.00	—	—
Total Budget Exclusive Debt Reduction .....	$631,462.57	$393,430.00	$289,665.12
Reserve for Debt Reduction .....	35,000.00	—	191,796.05
Reserve for Allowances .....	50,000.00	—	—
	$716,462.57	$393,430.00	$481,461.17

It is our weakness that we do not like what we have. In winter's chill winds we wish for the long warm days of summer, and in the summer's enervating heat we pant for the bracing air of fall. If our house is small, we complain of living in cramped quarters, and if it is large we nag about the expense of upkeep. Unlike a famous eighteenth century poet, we say, "Whatever is, is wrong!" It is not in human nature to remain satisfied. Dissatisfaction is all right, if it is directed at our own faults and mistakes; but when it is continually directed at others to shield ourselves, it is vicious.

A Poem of the Early Reorganization

The following poem was passed to us by Brother H. R. Mills, himself an author of hymns, as an example of the brave spirit of the Saints of the time of the beginning Reorganization. The author of it baptized Brother Mills, and was greatly admired by him.

BEAR ON

By J. Goodale

Bear on! what though life's tide may be
A current strong, opposing thee,
And thou has but a slender sail,
To spread before an adverse gale;
When trials lash the waves to foam,
And thou art far from friends and home,
Yield not thy spirit to despair,
Yet manfully the billows dare;
High o'er the waters wild and cold,
Fix thou the steadfast eye and bold—
Bear on, bear bravely on.

Bear on! Dost thy repining eye
See worthless men exalted high,
While modest merit sinks forlorn,
In cold neglect and cruel scorn?
Oh never from thy tempted heart
Let thine integrity depart.
When disappointment fills thy cup;
Undaunted, drink it nobly up;
Truth will prevail, and justice show,
Her tardy honors, sure but slow—
Bear on, bear bravely on.

Bear on! Our life is not a dream
Though often such its mazes seem;
We were not born to live at ease,
Ourselves alone to aid and please;
To each a daily task is given,
A labor which shall fit for heaven.
When duty calls, let love grow warm,
Amid the sunshine and the storm.
With faith, life's trials boldly breast,
And come a conqueror to thy rest.
Bear on, bear bravely on.

BARRY, PIKE COUNTY, ILLINOIS, January 10, 1864.

The Way to Support a Church

There was a church in our town
Which thought 'twas wondrous wise,
It tried to pay expenses
By selling cakes and pies.
But after years of trying
That plan to raise the cash,
The folks got tired of buying
And the whole thing went to smash.

There was a church in our town
And it was wondrous wise,
It always paid expenses
By simply paying tithes,
For when 'twas found the tithe did pay,
It seemed so very plain,
Forthwith 'twould have no other way,
No, never once again.

—Selected.

NEWS OF CHURCH AND HOME

Address all news and letters to Editors of the Herald, Box 237, Independence, Missouri. Correspondents are requested to make their letters brief. The Editors reserve the right, on account of space limitations, to shorten all letters as circumstances require.

Active in a Former Mission

Salt Lake City, Utah.—We are here in the valley of the mountains again very busy but enjoying our work among this people, as we have always done. We have many interested inquirers both at our services, and at the parsonage many call for visits and private talks. They want to know where we stand on the differences between our belief and that of the dominant church here.

We traveled overland to Salt Lake City, bringing all our earthly belongings in the back of our car. Reached here May 1, and found the Calvin Rich family busy getting packed and ready to move. We were heartily greeted by Saints and old friends. "Glad you are returned to your old mission again," "Come and stay with us till you can move into the parsonage," were greetings of several. But when Brother and Sister Conyars offered us the use of their summer cottage in Emigration Canyon, we said, "That is the ideal place for a good and much needed rest." So we drove in and occupied. However, during the day, we drove back to the city, being anxious to see how many of the old friends were after our absence of nineteen years.

We were happy to meet again our little energetic Sister Pettitt still busy about the housework for herself and son, although she is ninety-six years old; also Sister Winkworth, the dear old Scotch lady, is quite hearty and firm in the faith. Many who have been here will remember her, too. She and her son and husband who was a high priest in the dominant church here, united with us during one of our former missions here. Sister Kinghorn and family, also Brother and Sister Jeff Wilson and the Wardle family, and many others are still zealous in the cause of Christ.

This is a wonderful country in which to spend the summer months. There are many cool and enticing retreats. We have enjoyed two church socials or picnics in the canyon and one at Saratoga. At the latter place we met the Provo Saints and enjoyed the day together. Our branch business meetings during the summer months have been carried on in connection with a social evening, short program, and refreshments, which have helped attendance and interest and stimulated good fellowship.

One of the most interesting and enjoyable events of the summer was the visit of our son-in-law and daughter, Brother and Sister S. A. Burgess, and their two daughters. They were a great help in the church services. S. A., as church historian, gave some of his wonderful and unique historical sermons as well as many of his spiritual experiences, and those who have heard Sister Burgess's voice at Independence or over the radio can imagine what a treat we all had when she generously gave the gospel story in song on many occasions as well as at church services over the district. We made good use of the grandchildren's musical ability in the church school. They gave both instrumental and vocal selections. It brought back old memories when at one of our services as Sister Burgess finished one of her solos, we overheard one say to his neighbor: "She's the same Alice Chase who used to help her folks sing up a crowd at their street meetings years ago."

Rally or home-coming day here was a great success. We wrote personal invitations to all the Saints and friends in the city besides making many personal calls. Also invited Ogden and Provo Branches to unite with us. When Sunday morning came, we had such a fine attendance, even at the first service, we felt assured that we must put forth our very best efforts if we wanted results. Many were there who had not been out for years. The young people had some musical selections at the church school which began at 10 a. m., under the supervision of Brother Allan Wardle.

After the lesson period Brother Chase gave an interesting sermon on "The Rally Days of Old." He told how under Hezekiah the children of Israel were rallied from the worship of idols back to the worship of Jehovah. We seem to enjoy the union of the two morning services better than the school and the morning sermon as formerly held. The basket dinner at noon was served cafeteria style.

We began the afternoon meeting at 1.30. Short talks were given by many, Brother Chase calling on Saints and old-time friends. These were interspersed with musical selections, choruses, and special singing and instrumental pieces. The time seemed short until the dismissal at 5 o'clock.

The lunch baskets were so plentifully supplied that we served another meal to many who remained for the next service.

Notwithstanding the very busy day, we had a good audience in the evening to hear Brother Chase who gave an interesting lecture on "Man's Agency."

Next Sunday Provo has Rally Day, and our branch, at their invitation, unites with them. Arrangements are that all bring their cars and baskets to the church at 8 o'clock in the morning in order that we may reach Provo, thirty-eight miles away, in time for the first service at 10.

One very interesting feature to Brother Chase and myself, was the talk delivered by Elder Fluehe who spoke in his native tongue, German, his message being given to us in English through his step-son, Brother Angus Nussbaum. We were given a glimpse of the experiences of Brother Fluehe in his search for and endeavor to obey the truth and his joy in the fellowship of the Reorganization, and when he told of his baptism into the fold by Elder Green in Germany, memories of our first mission to Utah came vividly back to us: We saw again the crowd around our carriage as we talked to them at Second and Main Streets some twenty-five years ago. We saw a German in working clothes who attended many nights. He took our tracts and read them and asked for loan of church histories. Then after investigation, he demanded baptism. Next he got busy among his own countrymen in his neighborhood. Then he came to us for another supply of literature, telling of an Elder Green of the dominant church here who was being sent on a mission to Germany, but was going fully supplied with this literature, and asking that we send him a copy of the Inspired Translation of the Bible. Some months later came the news of his baptism into the Reorganization there in Germany along with about a score of his fellows. Surely our "bread cast upon the waters" is returning. I believe that Brother Fluehe's was the first baptism into the Reorganization by Elder Green, but by no means the last. This family is not the only one from that work that is still contributing to the branch here. "Thou shalt find it after many days."

Brother F. M. Smith visited these people while in Germany, and ordained Brother Fluehe an elder. He is a worthy, capable man, and we think has a mission among the German people here.—Mrs. A. M. Chase.

Houston, Texas

September 29—Houston observed Rally Day, September 27, the Saints assembling together and enjoying the services. The church school met at 10 a. m., and was followed by preaching service when I. L. Snedeker used as the subject of his sermon "The Gathering—Is It Fundamental?" At 12:15 we enjoyed a splendid dinner.

In the afternoon there was a short talk by W. J. Birkhead, followed by a few numbers by the orchestra.

A priesthood meeting convened at 4 o'clock in the church auditorium, and at the same hour the women met in the hall.

The evening sermon was by C. W. Tischer. Among the out-of-town Saints present were Sister Mitchell, of Bryan and Mr. and Mrs. Salzman and W. C. Carl, of East Saint Louis.

Scranton, Pennsylvania

October 3.—The September conference is a past event. It was held at Scranton during depressing times and there was some wondering about the entertaining of the conference. But faith had the victory. The members enjoyed the company of visiting Saints. Sleeping places were found for one hundred and two persons, and seven hundred meals were served. A good oblation was taken up at the sacrament service, especially generous when we think of economic conditions.

September 13 three boys of the Sunday school were baptized by Pastor Thomas Jones and confirmed September 27, by Elders Alfred Jones, Ernest Davies, and E. W. Lewis.

We certainly appreciate the fine numbers in the Herald by President Elbert A. Smith, "Dignity and Beauty in Ministry."

Lewiston-Clarkston Branch

Asotin, Washington

Another missionary effort proved successful when Brother A. C. Martin, of Spokane District, closed a two weeks' meeting September 27, at Asotin, Washington. Brother Martin is missionary for Spokane District. Three were added to the church, two adults and one nine-year-old girl. This is Brother Martin's second endeavor here, and the results are gratifying.

The meetings were fairly well attended and of a high spiritual nature. Many spoke of the powerful sermons preached.

We think there are others very near the decision to enter the church, and trust that Brothers Martin and Baldwin and Sister Baldwin may soon visit us and hold another meeting.

We have a Sunday school here and feel that we can make some progress with missionary help from time to time.

Lowbanks, Ontario

The Lowbanks reunion, now over some weeks ago, is remembered with pleasure. We missed Apostle R. S. Budd and others from Independence, also the genial smile of Elder B. H. Doty. Nevertheless, ours was a peaceful and profitable reunion. Bishop McLean gave some splendid sermons. He is becoming an eloquent speaker. We were sorry that Elder J. Wilson was ill during the sessions. Sister Wilson could not leave him to attend until the last week.

Sunday school continues with good attendance of non-members. Our good Elder Clatworthy comes as often as he can and gives splendid advice. We appreciate his services.

September 19 the Sunday school had its picnic at Sandy Beach at Port Maitland.

On the first of the month we had Elder B. Prichard from Chatham, Elder Clatworthy's old home. He gave a splendid talk.

The world-wide depression has had its effect on Lowbanks Branch in many ways. Nevertheless we have much for which to be thankful, reasonably good health among the members, and an abundance of produce. Everything seems plentiful but money, and now that the Canadian dollar is going down to $.92, we shall notice considerable difference in money value. We are hoping for the best, and know that the Lord will help us if we keep his commandments.

The officers of Lowbanks Branch are doing their best and deserve commendation for their earnest services.

Beloit, Wisconsin

236 Saint Lawrence Avenue

Beloit members have had much for which to be thankful during the past summer. Those who have been faithful in the cause of the Master and have been carrying on the work as a whole have had the temporal affairs of life well cared for. Special speakers have been entertained in this place, Apostle D. T. Williams, Bishop C. J. Hunt, and Elder Leonard Houghton of the seventies.

Brother Williams gave his first lecture of his series here Sunday, September 6, the title being "Adventuring with God." It was interesting and inspiring. We eagerly await his second message.

Our most frequent visitor is Elder C. J. Hunt who always brings good cheer, and causes us to realize more fully the joys we may have as members of God's wonderful church.

The week of September 13 Brother Houghton paid us a visit. He called at many of the homes and gave such cheer and encouragement as was needed, and preached three excellent missionary sermons to the congregation. It is hoped that soon he may devote more time in this locality.

July 25 we had an enjoyable outing at the Hon-o-ne-ga Park, near Rockton, Illinois. There were games and races. The most popular sport was volley ball. At the close of the program, arranged by Sister Clara Barton, a wiener roast was enjoyed.

The excellent attention Beloit Branch has been receiving is due in part to our friendly pastor, Brother Harry A. Wasson. He has proved a real shepherd to this flock. While the numbers have not much increased, there has been a marked increase in the spirituality of the Saints under his leadership. Prospects here promise a harvest of souls in the future.

The adult class of the church school is holding two meetings a week. The Sunday morning meeting finds them using the 1930 quarterlies entitled "The Missionary Call of the Church Today," and "The Message of the Book of Mormon" is being used on Friday evenings because of its missionary aspects.

Columbus, Ohio

Second Branch, Rinehard and Twenty-Second Streets

October 1.—Vacation time is gone and all church sessions are again assuming normal proportions. The members look forward to the last quarter of the year with renewed zeal and a determination to help the church meet its goal for the year.

Sacrament on September 6, was in charge of Elders J. E. Matthews and G. H. Kirkendall, and proved to be a profitable meeting.

Brother and Sister T. R. Burke left this month for Galapoli, Ohio, where they will be located. We shall miss them and hope the time will not be long until they will be transferred back to Columbus.

The Women's Department met September 10 with pot-luck dinner. These dinners each month form the occasion for the women knowing each other better and developing a fellowship that can be gained in no other way. Fifteen members and one visitor were present. Mrs. Carl Swisher is a new member. At this time Sister A. H. Nieman told the many instructive things she heard at the Kirtland reunion. Her talk encouraged the women to greater determination to make their lives more like the Master's. Sister Nieman was also privileged to make a trip to Florida and told many things of interest.

Prayer meetings this month have been of good spiritual order.

Sermons have contained valuable instruction which the Saints hope to apply in their daily lives. Speakers were G. H. Kirkendall, Edgar R. Kimball, R. E. Madden, C. W. Clark, and J. E. Matthews.

The Reunion at Irvington

Another reunion held at Irvington goes on the pages of history recorded for Northern California District. Tents and all equipment were in order so that the program scheduled was set in motion the first day, July 17, at 6 a. m.

The program this year was well balanced, consisting of worship, study, and play for all ages. The reunion was presided over by the district presidency, assisted by general church officers in attendance.

Classes for credits were conducted by J. W. Rushton and G. P. Levitt, Brother Rushton teaching "Bible Appreciation," in the light of the Restoration; Brother Levitt, "Religious Education at Work." Bishop Carmichael also conducted class work and Apostle McConley conducted classes for the priesthood each morning. We were disappointed not to have Sister Cora B. Hintz who was to carry on class work in the church school tent on "Church School Administration." She was unable to attend due to sickness in her family. Brother Levitt substituted for Sister Hintz. The church school tent was an interesting place because of the project work that was on display.

Sister Hazel Blohm conducted a daily vacation Bible school for the junior age. Sister Blohm is a splendid leader in this field, and her division was an outstanding work this year.

Sister Mary Bussell took charge of the intermediate group, and proved to us that this important age can be interested and handled with success. It is the first time any definite program had been made for this group of young people at our reunion, and Sister Bussell is to be congratulated in her pioneer work.

Sister Gladys Carmichael was the supervisor of the young people's division. Under her leadership classes, prayer meetings and play was carried on in a constructive manner. The young people furnished many pleasant entertainments for the camp. They were organized into two groups; one group was known by the letters K. M. B. C., which signified "Knowledge Makes Better Characters." Miss Rose Ida Dawson was the leader of this group. The other group known as K. L. D. S., which signified "Kindness, Love, Duty, Service." Miss Emmy Lou Rood was leader of this group. Miss Genevieve Opsal acted as the advisor of these two groups. Their activities were the center of attraction throughout the reunion. The last Sunday the two leaders came forward at the beginning of the eleven o'clock service and ceremonially presented Brother Levitt a purse containing a nice sum of money, instructing him to use it to help defray the expenses of the reunion. We understand that Sister Carmichael gave each young person a piece of money at the opening of the reunion and instructed them to use it as a talent and multiply it. This gift to the reunion was the result.

Brother Myron Schall, an instructor at the Stanford University, rendered valuable assistance. He conducted two classes for the young people, carrying through the theme "Good Sportsmanship." He supervised the field day meet and presented the ribbons to those who merited them at the evening service. The cup this year goes to Oakland.

Preaching services were conducted each evening, preceded by a lively song service. Apostle McConley preached a series of evening sermons. Brother Rushton preached four inspiring sermons, also Bishop Carmichael.

We were sorry that owing to sickness Brother Carmichael was compelled to leave the grounds before the reunion was over. In his absence Bishop Cecil Hawley, of the district bishopric, preached and his sermon was enjoyed by the people.

Mrs. Carter, of Tracy, a neighbor of a Sister Petz who has the missionary spirit and always ready to tell the sweet story of life, was baptized. These folks live some distance from a branch. The rite was administered by Brother Dawson.

We would mention Brother and Sister Meril DeSort who live on the reunion grounds and keep it up. Their wholehearted, congenial manner make it pleasant for all who visit Irvington Camp. Brother Ralph Enix is a permanent man for reunions. He is a splendid supervisor and works untiringly to make people comfortable. George Thompson conducted the refreshment stand, and in his courteous manner helped to make the reunion pleasant. Sister Laura Gorsky superintended the kitchen and dining room. Brother Roy Day and wife and other volunteer helpers go to make up a real corp of workers. Many things are done by volunteers that no one except God knows anything about.

Graceland College was represented by ex-students, and many comments were heard in favor of Graceland.

The district conference was held the last Saturday. All reports were encouraging. The officers elected for the coming year are: G. P. Levitt, district president; counselors, W. H. Dawson and J. A. Dameron; treasurer, Bishop Edward Ingham; secretary, Mary Steele; director of religious education, Hazel Blohm; director of music, Edwin Burdick; historian, Mary Steele; auditor, E. Burdick.

Truly God met with us in spirit throughout the reunion. His loving kindness was manifest every hour. The church is better after such a gathering.

Fargo, North Dakota

Bungalow Church, 1423 First Avenue, South

Autumn days with colored leaves falling and nature preparing for winter time finds the Saints busy storing up food and providing warm clothes for cold days soon to come.

Preparation for spiritual needs is also vital at this time of the year and the Rally Day, held September 27, proved a stimulus to that end. Saints were happy to have missionary C. J. Smith present and if the admonition given results in a practical application, good will be accomplished.

Rally Day began with a prayer service followed by church school in charge of Laura Freeman, director. Special musical numbers were given. A baptismal service at 11 o'clock was opened with a prelude of music. The choir then sang "The Day That Fixed My Choice"; call to solemn assembly, Psalm 105:1-5, by Pastor H. E. Ratcliffe, followed by an address on the sacredness of the occasion. Then the congregation sang the hymn, "All Hail the Power of Jesus Name," and Brother C. J. Smith offered prayer. John 3:1-8 was the scripture reading by Pastor Ratcliffe. Following the hymn, "Just as I Am," by the choir, the address to the candidates and charge to the members were given by Elder C. J. Smith. Soft music was played during the baptismal ceremony after which the congregation sang a song of triumph. The candidates were Ava Stowell, Glen Weidling, Eleanor Stowell, and Sylvester and Leroy Ellibee. Elder Charles J. Smith officiated. Prayer of thanks and dismissal was by Pastor H. E. Ratcliffe.

At noon a community dinner was provided by the committee.

Confirmation service was had at 2.30 p. m. Elder J. E. Wildermuth, of Aurora, Illinois, gave an interesting talk on the significance and purpose of confirmation. Elders C. J. Smith, H. E. Ratcliffe, J. E. Wildermuth and Thomas Leitch officiated in the confirmation.

Jean Evelyn Stowell, daughter of Brother and Sister Ed. Stowell, was blessed by Elder C. J. Smith and H. E. Ratcliffe.

Elder C. J. Smith then preached a fine sermon. "The church will succeed," he said, "it will stand. Our task is to be workers together for God and to make a more practical application of God's laws."

Saints from Hope, Leonard, Mapleton, Valley City, North Dakota, and Audubon and Borup, Minnesota, and some non-members attended.

The evening preaching service was by Elder C. J. Smith, whose subject was "Why the Church?"

The Ladies' Aid spent an evening at Oak Grove Park with the children August 27. This was a demonstration meeting of the lesson studied on recreation in the home. Games and refreshments made a happy party.

Recent speakers here have been Elder Harold Harms, of Bowling Green, Ohio, whose text was "Therefore let us not sleep as others, but let us watch and be sober"; Elder J. E. Wildermuth, of Aurora, Illinois, whose subject was "Jesus Will Come"; Elder Lester Wildermuth, of Illinois, on "Laborers Together with God," and Pastor H. E. Ratcliffe on "The Work and Mission in the Church" and "The Life worth While."

The young people's division with Ferne Shackow, supervisor, lately enjoyed a wiener roast and games at a grove south of town.

Elder C. J. Smith gave a worth-while talk at the sacrament meeting September 6 on "The Meaning and Sacredness of the Lord's Supper," admonishing the Saints to be more unified in thought and purpose, to leave everything and come and sup with Him. Elder Smith also preached a powerful sermon in the evening, his text being taken from Daniel 2.

The music of the branch is improving with Sister Ratcliffe as chorister. The choir rehearses on Tuesday evening, and the junior chorus on Saturday morning.

It is necessary for every one of us to have more faith in God and to remember the Savior's advice, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and all these things shall be added unto you." God is the same and his way is the only way out.

New Philadelphia, Ohio

Saints of this branch have been active during the past months, and are now looking forward to greater activities for the coming winter. Church school work is progressing, and junior church services began September 13, and so far have been successful. Sister Ida Bigler was recently elected primary superintendent, to succeed Sister Hazel Noble.

At a recent meeting of the Women's Department an interesting program was carried out, in charge of Sister Nettie Bigler. September 21 was the one hundred and ninth anniversary of Joseph Smith's receiving the vision concerning the plates of the Book of Mormon, and that was the theme of the program. Sister Anna Cramer read the vision in an impressive manner, after which Sister Bigler, with the assistance of Sister Frances Rees at the piano, and Sisters Hazel Thomas and Dorothy Briggs who sang, "Book of Mormon, Hid for Ages," beautifully interpreted the hymn with a pantomime. Sister Cramer also read, "Hill Cumorah," by Elbert Smith.

With the help and inspiration of Sisters Bigler and Cramer, the Women's Department is looking forward to a successful period of study and higher ideals. The Book of Mormon class resumed its studies October 4, and will use the new quarterly, "The Message of the Book of Mormon."

We were greatly pleased several weeks ago to have as a visitor William F. Webbe, district superintendent of church schools. Brother Webbe spoke of the splendid work being accomplished by the district institutes.

Many local Saints were unable to attend the Kirtland reunion, but those who were so fortunate were deeply impressed by the services they attended.

We were very much shocked to read of Patriarch Stone's passing and our deepest sympathy is extended to his bereaved family.

At the close of the morning service, September 13, Phyllis Ann, infant daughter of William and Julia (Benbow) Wright, was blessed by Elders Charles Cramer and John Carlisle.

In a quiet ceremony performed at the church Friday afternoon, October 2, the marriage of Brother Samuel Mansell and Sister Eva Byers was solemnized by Elder John Carlisle, pastor. Brother and Sister Charles Cramer, Sister Vera Carlisle and Sister Edna Howells, were the only guests present. Following the ceremony, the guests went to the home of Brother and Sister Carlisle, where a six o'clock dinner was enjoyed. The birthdays of Brother Mansell and Glen Carlisle, youngest son of Brother Carlisle were also celebrated at this time.

Plans have been completed for a home-coming to be held October 18, and it is hoped this will be of great benefit to all. A special program is being arranged and several candidates will be baptized in the afternoon. A basket dinner will be had at the church at noon.

Savanna, Illinois

October 4.—Savanna Branch sent ten dollars to the Bishop to be used in buying flour and sugar to swell the Harvest Festival supplies. We felt that fruits and vegetables would be sent in abundance this year and these other articles would also fill a need.

The Sunday school is holding its own, and the Women's Department is using the adult quarterlies on the Book of Mormon. As many of our members are teachers in the Sunday school and deprived of the class work, the women are eagerly availing themselves of this course each Thursday afternoon.

Members of this branch have not felt the depression as much as those in some localities, and we are trying to help the church financially by tithes and offerings. We pray that all may do this as far as possible so as to put the church on its feet, encourage our leaders, and make us all fit for the blessings of the Lord because we have obeyed his laws. The time has come to prove our faith by our works, so as not to "hold up the procession," as a writer in the Herald remarks.

Many of us have noticed the splendid articles lately appearing in the Herald. If we profit by the admonition and advice therein, there is no reason for us to be discouraged. God is still mindful of his people and will bless and prosper us if we place ourselves in a position to receive that which he is willing to give.

Tacoma, Washington

3721 East J Street

September 29.—Reading "Things of Good Report from the Church," we were made glad to learn of the work in its different phases, and were given the desire to tell the readers of the Herald what Tacoma Saints are doing.

Throughout the summer the usual services were continued. Instead of attendance falling off, our numbers were increased. Several nonmember friends are now attending, and the majority of the membership are present at the services.

The church school plan has been in use here since June of 1930, and it meets the unanimous approval of the members.

The priesthood are busy visiting the homes.

Elder Claude Kress, of Nebraska, visited us and held a series of meetings which did much good. Then Patriarch and Sister Richard Baldwin were here a short time to help with services.

A fine reunion was had the first part of August, all being blessed and strengthened by the services.

Last Sunday there occurred the installation services of officers and teachers for the coming year, followed by a consecration service in which nearly all present brought forward envelopes containing a consecration of something for the coming year. This was a wonderful service and the Saints were blessed with God's Holy Spirit.

Tacoma looks ahead to a fine service next Sunday, it being the first sacrament meeting of the new church year. We hope and pray for the advancement of God's work.

London, Ontario

Now that fall is here, attendance at branch meetings and church school has greatly improved. The sacrament service last week was very well attended and a good spirit prevailed.

The church school observed Rally Day, carrying out a good program. In the junior department, ably directed by Sister Grace Perry, a baptism was performed by Elder Frank Gray, church school director, and the birthday exercise of Bruce MacGregor was enjoyed by the school. A lengthy program was given in the senior department. The orchestra, under the direction of Brother Arlo Hodgson, rendered good service and short talks were given by Elder William Fligg, missionary, Lawrence Campbell, of Windsor, Elder J. F. Winegarden, district president, Elder J. E. MacGregor, pastor, and Brother Arlo Hodgson. Musical selections were contributed by the Neill brothers.

The choir recently enjoyed a pleasant evening at the home of Sister Perry. The program included a wiener roast and games.

Brother John Vasbinder, one of our most active branch workers, has of late been suffering ill health. He has been forced to take a vacation from office work for the past month.

Sister Grace Canstable is convalescing after undergoing a serious operation. We are hoping to see her again at church services in a few weeks.

Elder William I. Fligg, district missionary, who was here a few weeks, is now laboring in the eastern part of the district.

The dramatic club in connection with the branch is preparing for our anniversary next month.

Louisville, Kentucky

Louisville Branch, under the direction of H. W. Burwell, is doing very good work.

During the past week, beginning September 28, District President J. O. Dutton held a series of meetings which were well attended. Sunday, October 4, he baptized Michael A. Gahafer, a man of about fifty years, and Carl T. Doerr, twenty-four years. At the evening service Priest W. O. Robertson was ordained an elder by J. O. Dutton, W. N. Hanner, and G. H. Ferguson.

Brother Robertson and Brother E. A. Jaegers preside over the group at New Albany. Elder Dutton is holding a series of meetings there this week. The New Albany group meets in a rented hall.

Work will soon begin on the Louisville church basement. It will be some time before the main auditorium can be builded on the foundation, and the members think it best to put the basement in better shape before winter weather sets in.

West Haven, Connecticut

October 5.—The Lord has blessed our mission. Several families have moved here in the last two months, and each Sunday attendance is over thirty.

We were favored with a visit from District President William Patterson from August 24 to 29. Sunday, August 27, attendance was forty-four and included visitors from Rhode Island, Massachusetts, and London, Canada. Brother Patterson's sermons were very instructive and spiritual, and strengthened the Saints as well as our friends who visited.

Brother Harold Garfield, leader of this mission, has outlined an interesting program for the winter. We are holding services now at the home of Brother and Sister John Roy-lance, 107 Frange Avenue, New Haven, formerly of Providence, Rhode Island, and we welcome all who pass by to visit and worship with us.

October 1 the women met at the home of Sister Alice Crowell and organized the Women's Department. They chose for president Sister Laura Sears. They are to meet at the various homes each week, and a program has been planned which will earn money for the church and provide many joyous gatherings for the Saints and their friends.

The "Jolly Six" is a young people's club and the Sunday school class of Brother Willard Blodgett, formerly of New London.

There are forty-four enrolled members of the Sunday school including five in the cradle roll.

We are praying that God's Spirit will still guide us and keep us united that we may accomplish the task which is ours in this part of the vineyard.

Independence

Sunday evening brought the close of the thirteenth annual Harvest Home Festival of the church, there being present to hear the final concert a crowd of seven thousand people. During the six days of the festival officers estimate that considerably more than fifty thousand people viewed the huge spectacle. Monday and yesterday saw the Auditorium a busy place where choice canned sweets and fruits of the agricultural displays were sold and the proceeds given to a fund for the helping of the needy during cold weather. The festival has meant much in work and enjoyment to the people of Independence and vicinity, and this week they are doing their part in dismantling the booths. The Harvest Festival is described in another column of this issue of the Herald.

A large number of Saints, representing all the congregations in Independence, braved a rainy night on Monday to conduct Zion's quarterly conference. Considerable important business was dispatched, under the direction of President F. M. McDowell, Elders John F. Sheehy, G. G. Lewis, and Stanley Kelley, and the spirit of agreement and cooperation marked every transaction.

Reports having significant bearing upon the status of the church in the centerplace were read and incorporated in the minutes of the meetings. It was decided that certain quorums of the ministry should be reorganized in order to more effectively perform their functions. Several names were struck from the church roll upon request or otherwise.

One part of the conference work which always is encouraging was the reading and approving of names suggested for ordination. In the last quarter the Lord has seen fit to designate a number for service in the ministry. They are, to the office of elder: Ephriam Brown, Wilfred Burton, Clarence Resch, and Roy Howry; to the office of priest, Adelbert Withee, Ivan Dillee, Lynn Smith, John Lehman, Norman Cox; to the office of teacher, Roy Sherman, Walter Daniel Scott; to the office of deacon, Russell J. Waterman, and Alma Inman. All of these names were approved, and the ordinations will be provided for at an early date.

Stone Church

The special early morning devotional period Sunday looking toward the quarterly conference in Zion, was influenced by thoughts of the Harvest Home Festival. "Give of Your Best to the Master," the theme of the service, was the title of a solo sung by Mrs. Will Inman who was accompanied by Mrs. T. A. Beck. "The Earth Hath Yielded, What Shall We Give the Master?" was the central thought of the short address by Pastor John F. Sheehy. Elders Sheehy, G. G. Lewis, and T. A. Beck were in charge of this hour, which brought peace and joy to many worshipers.

President Elbert A. Smith, the eleven o'clock speaker at the Stone Church, called to the minds of the large congregation four important questions asked by the Savior: (1) "Whom say ye that I am?" and Peter replied: "Thou art the Christ the Son of the living God." (2) "Will ye be able to drink of the cup that I shall drink?" (3) "Will ye also forsake me?" Here the answer was: "Lord, where shall we go? You have the words of eternal life." (4) "Lovest thou me? Feed my Sheep." Commenting on these four questions, Brother Smith spoke of the great message which the church has to present and its unique place among the organizations of the world. He appealed to the people for their loyalty and their continued service in the spreading of that great message.

Three anthems by the Stone Church Choir, led by Paul N. Craig, and hymns by the congregation composed the musical part of the service. Pastor J. F. Sheehy and Elder G. G. Lewis were in charge.

The junior morning service at the Campus included a piano solo by Helen Mader, readings by Lois Jean Williams and Betty Jean Henderson, and a story by Mrs. J. R. Lentell.

A large crowd filled the church at the special 2.30 Sunday afternoon service, a meeting in charge of the First Presidency and the Presiding Bishopric. Bishop L. F. P. Curry, the speaker, presented clearly and simply the present economic situation of the church. He was introduced to the congregation by President F. M. McDowell. In the stand and assisting in the service were Bishops A. Carmichael and G. Leslie DeLapp. "God Is Our Refuge," by Ward-Stephens, was sung by George Anway, tenor. The Stone Church Choir sang.

No Sunday evening services were held in the separate congregations Sunday night. Instead the Saints and their friends came together to the Auditorium seven thousand strong. Chairs were moved into all available spaces in the lower auditorium and many stood to hear the concert by the Auditorium Orchestra, directed by Orlando Nace. A song fest was led by Elder John F. Sheehy, and Brother Sheehy offered prayer.

Brother and Sister Samuel Shakespeare were guests of honor at the surprise golden wedding anniversary celebration, given at the home of their son-in-law, Elder J. Charles May, October 6. They were married in Iowa, and made their home there until coming to Independence three years ago. Seventy-five relatives and friends gathered to help them observe the anniversary. The children of Mr. and Mrs. Shakespeare are William E. Shakespeare, Miss Mary Shakespeare, and Harry Shakespeare, all living in Independence. Another daughter, Mrs. J. Charles May, died three years ago.

Brother H. R. Mills, well known throughout the church for his ministry of hymn writing, celebrated his eighty-seventh birthday at his home in Independence, October 8. Brother Mills is a pioneer merchant of Independence. He suffered a stroke of paralysis some time ago from which he has partially recovered. Brother and Sister Mills celebrated their sixty-third wedding anniversary last February 25.

Walnut Park Church

Recent speakers have been President Elbert A. Smith, Apostle Myron A. McConley, and Elders O. A. McDowell, B. J. Scott, and W. A. McDowell. The Sunday morning prayer meetings are well attended. One of the most spiritual of these was that conducted the morning of October 4. At the opening of the sacramental service that day Betty Lou and Wanda Lee, twin daughters of Brother and Sister Roy Martin, were blessed.

Last Sunday morning the congregation listened to a beautiful solo, "In My Father's House Are Many Mansions," sung by Miss Bernice Griffith, soprano. She was accompanied by Drexel Mollison, a young brother who frequently officiates as pianist and organist in this congregation.

Elder C. Ed. Miller preached an inspiring sermon on the text Deuteronomy 32: 11: "As an eagle stirreth up her nest, fluttereth over her young, spreadeth abroad her wings, taketh them, beareth them on her wings." The eagle mother teaches her young endurance in life by experience. She pushes them over the brink of the nest, watches their downward progress, then swoops gracefully, spreading her wings to bear them up and shield them from the rocks beneath. Aptly we of the church were compared to the fluttering eaglets. Our present experiences should awaken within us greater love for the church and for humanity, and when we suffer, when we can not understand why certain conditions continue, we should remember that always beneath us is the everlasting arm of God.

The Walnut Park congregation is happy that the Harvest Festival judges saw fit to give its booth first prize among the home branch exhibits.

Enoch Hill Church

"Right Choices," the theme of the Sunday morning church school, was carried out by a short program consisting of a story, "The Cavern of Precious Stones," by Miss Nellie Mae Kramer, a brief talk by Superintendent C. E. Beal, and the song, "Where Wilt Thou Put Thy Trust?" by the young people's department.

Elder Hubert Case was the guest speaker and chose to discuss a subject very near the heart of the Saints, Zion and her condition. For scripture lessons he read Isaiah 1 and Doctrine and Covenants 98. The necessity for righteousness among the people who will build Zion was stressed by the speaker who admonished his hearers to guard well their hearts. Only those who are humble and full of love shall be able to stand and redeem Zion, he declared. That Zion will be redeemed through the judgment of God, is the belief of Elder Case, and we should, therefore, prepare ourselves for this judgment.

Enoch Hill members have enjoyed the Harvest Home Festival. Though our booth took no prize, it received honorable mention among the home branches, and we are glad for the gifts it contained for those who shall be in need this winter. The festival this year has encouraged all the members who live on "the hill" to greater agricultural activities next year.

Kansas City Stake

The Harvest Home Festival in Independence has had a fine attendance from Kansas City Stake. Friday night was Kansas City Night and many availed themselves of that opportunity to visit the festival and view its magnificent display. This stake won the blue ribbon again this year for the finest display outside of Independence. Four thousand eight hundred and sixty quarts of fruit and vegetables were in our booth.

Special announcements have been made concerning College Day services next Sunday. Kansas City people realize that the needs of the college are great. Many young people depend on the scholarship loan fund to help them through school. Several young people from Kansas City are there this year because this fund has made their attendance possible. Sunday's offering will go to this fund.

Central Church

The Leadership School is continuing this week. Three new classes are being conducted. The young people are attending Elder C. E. Wight's class in "Youth and Doctrine," and the priesthood, the class on "Priesthood Practice," taught by Apostle F. Henry Edwards. Elder Arthur Oakman is giving an interesting course for all on the subject, "Distinctive Church Doctrines." Already Central has earned two blue ribbons for attendance. Sixty people from Central enrolled for the classes of the first week.

Elder F. S. Anderson delivered the Sunday morning sermon, "Faith in God," and the choir under the direction of George Anway sang "I Shall Not Pass Again This Way," by Effinger. Mrs. C. J. Wolfe was the organist.

A girls' chorus, directed by Mrs. C. E. Wight, helped to make effective the worship period which preceded the class hour of the church school. This group sang "Abide with Me" and "Come unto Me."

The Sunday evening sermon was by Pastor C. E. Wight.

Argentine Church

The Sunday morning speaker was Elder Harvy Sandy, his effort being in the interests of the work of the stake bishopric.

Stake Missionary Arthur Oakman preached the closing sermon of his series of Sunday evening services. "It Matters What We Believe" was the theme. Brother Oakman leaves shortly for his new field of labor, Saint Louis District.

Ava, Missouri

October 7.—This branch in the beautiful Ozark hills has accomplished several interesting and worth-while things during the past few weeks. In accordance with the suggestions of District President Haden, and the branch officers, the men have done some needed work on the grounds surrounding the church. At the suggestion of the church school superintendent, Brother Ralph Wilt, an auction sale was held, each family donating something they could spare from field or garden. When all was sold it was found that we had enough money to increase the supply of benches to accommodate the rapidly increasing attendance. A good program was also rendered the day of the sale.

A "barn-raising" was held for Brother Bergin not long ago: this week the men will assist Brother Spease, a newcomer, to assemble his new house. There has been considerable "trading" of labor, and a feeling of good will and helpful cooperation seems to prevail. Brother Freeman and family are now residing in the vicinity of the church and are a decided help in many ways. Miss Lillian Freeman is teaching a local school. The young people, under the direction of Brother Alvin Dobson, chorister, have provided some excellent music for the services. Last Sunday, Sacrament Sunday, we had a good attendance, the church being well filled at all the meetings. The large adult class very much enjoyed the initial lesson in the new Book of Mormon quarterly, by Brother Woodstock. In the evening Brother Grant Bergin preached a good sermon on the dual nature of man. The priesthood are actively engaged in the work, and anxious to do all in their power to advance the cause.

A number of people seem interested in this section of the country. Any so interested will do well to write to Brother James Dobson, Route 2, Ava, Missouri, who is both pastor and financial agent of the branch, and is ready and willing to assist the Saints in any way possible.

"The Lord Hath Need"

Peter lent a boat
To save Him from the press;
Martha lent her home
With genuine kindness.

One man lent a colt,
Another lent a room,
Some threw down their clothes,
And Joseph lent a tomb.

Simon lent his strength
The cruel cross to bear;
Mary spices bought
His body to prepare.

What have I to lend?
No boat! No house! No lands!
Yet, Lord, I gladly send
The labor of heart and hands.

—Selected.

Letters to the Editor

In this department we are glad to receive and publish letters of interest to our readers.

Helping the Church Financially

While thinking over the condition of the church, this came to me. If each member of the church would begin now and save one dollar—dimes, nickels, and pennies, soon make the dollar—and on January 1 send it to the Presiding Bishopric for the cause of meeting any emergency that existed at that time, the church would be greatly helped and the members burdened but little.

In these perilous times the church should be our responsibility, not our leaders' responsibility alone. We are the church, and the church is never higher than the ideals of its membership. Its burdens are ours. Have we tithed? Not many of us have! What wonderful promises God has made us as a people, if we would only observe his law. Let us all shoulder this great burden, help bear it, work together until this great crisis has passed.

If we could save this one dollar each, for January 1, 1932, then another for April 1, we would have lightened the burden a very great deal. In unity there is strength. So let us all work together, fast more, pray more, sacrifice more, and seek the better things in life. We will be happier in our work, have more brotherly love for each other and feel that we really have a part in the great latter-day work.

MARGARET M. CHAFFIN.

KANSAS CITY, MISSOURI, 433 West 67th Street.

A Weekly Sacrifice

I was much impressed with Lela Butler's article in the Herald of February 4, 1931, regarding giving Christmas presents, and her suggestion that each member plan to give one dollar to our Lord on his next birthday.

I have another suggestion to make. My husband and I have practiced it for several years. It is to give twenty-five cents each Sunday as Christmas offering, then at Christmas, to give as much more as we can. There are very few of us but can deny ourselves a few luxuries each week, saving twenty-five cents to give on Sunday. I know one brother with a large family who has practiced this for years. His only income is that which he earns by daily labor. Let us profit by his example and give a small gift each Sunday so that by Christmas-time our offering will not be small even if we are not able to give very much at a time. I find that we are always greatly blessed in our efforts to give to the Lord.

A SISTER.

PORTLAND, OREGON.

OFFICIAL

Two Months of Sacrifice

(Continued from page 966.)

on the part of every member of the church to do his particular part.

We appreciate the fact that many are already doing all that might reasonably be expected; but we know that others could do more. It has been said, "This is a day of sacrifice," and to accomplish our task we must sacrifice for a greater period of time than we have done in the past.

The conditions are such that we feel justified in asking the Saints to set apart the months of November and December as a period of Sacrifice. We suggest this even though we realize that we are confronted with a general economic depression which has already severely taxed the finances of the membership. However, we are also convinced that the members are determined to work with us to the best of their ability.

We have looked forward to the testing time. It is here, and it comes to us as an opportunity if we so choose to look upon it.

At all times the church members should cheerfully comply with the financial law, for it is essential to full spiritual development. But the time calls for sacrifice—efforts beyond mere compliance with the demands of the law. It will be well, therefore, for the Church to make special sacrifice efforts during November and December, such efforts to culminate at Thanksgiving, in November, and at Christmas, in December.

It will not only be our task to encourage a sacrificial period such as this but to maintain a determined effort throughout the year 1932. If we do this God will bless us.

Yours sincerely,

THE PRESIDING BISHOPRIC,
A. CARMICHAEL,
L. F. P. CURRY,
G. L. DELAPP.

The suggestions submitted by the Bishopric have received careful consideration by the Presidency, and they meet with our hearty approval. In due time, local and general authorities will receive official communication from the Presidency on ways, means, and methods of carrying out the suggestions made by the Bishopric. And we feel sure the Saints will be in hearty accord; for every sacrifice period of the past has resulted in good to the church and its members in spiritual enhancement and uplift. We sacrifice for that which we love, and the very efforts at sacrifice increase our love, and increase of love brings richness of experience and happiness.

F. M. S.

The Sanitarium

This article is to inform the Saints as to the present status of the new Sanitarium and Hospital. In order to do so it is necessary that we comment briefly on some of the factors having a bearing upon the financial problem which confronts the church in connection with this building.

At the time the new building was started a preliminary agreement had been entered into with one of the banks in regard to financing the project. Before this agreement was finally completed the bank decided that it was inadvisable under the existing economic conditions to loan the amount necessary to carry the project through to completion. The building, however, had been started and a temporary loan of $30,000 had been made. In January the building had progressed to the point where it was necessary to make additional arrangements with the banks and a temporary loan for six months for $75,000 was made by the bank.

An analysis of the financial situation resulting from the Council action of January and February revealed the fact that the church was not in a position to increase its liabilities to permit additional work on the building. However, the building was not inclosed, only four stories of brick work having been completed; an additional story of concrete work remained to be done and other structural work before a roof could be put on. The building was in such condition that it would deteriorate rapidly unless inclosed. It was estimated that it would cost $25,000 additional to inclose the building which would make it weatherproof. This would enable the church to bring this project in line with the policy adopted during the February Council.

In order to complete the building to such a point it was necessary to raise the $25,000. A meeting was held with the Board of Directors of the Chamber of Commerce wherein it was agreed that it would raise half of this amount from those who had given pledges, providing the church would raise the other half. This was agreed to and the church through loans has raised its share. It is to be pointed out, however, that the church owed the Sanitarium considerably more than $12,500, part of which ($6,000) was money loaned by the Sanitarium to the church, and the balance owed the Sanitarium for care of missionaries and families, as well as "aid" patients. Thus the $12,500 paid to the Sanitarium does not increase the liabilities of the general church.

Any additional work which may be done after the present unit, will necessarily have to be done in harmony with the General Conference Resolution which authorized the Presiding Bishopric to indorse a loan in an amount equal to the amount raised by the City of Independence through its Chamber of Commerce.

The amount expended upon the building to date, including the $25,000 to inclose, is approximately $136,000. This has been received from the following sources:

Total received from pledges through the Chamber of Commerce .....	$ 54,175.97
Less campaign expenses .....	5,639.01
	<hr/>
	$ 48,536.96
Contributed by church received through loans.....	$ 87,500.00
	<hr/>
	$136,036.96

One of the factors which had to be taken into consideration in inclosing the building was that the $75,000 loan from the bank was due in July last, and it was necessary to protect the building in order that a renewal of this loan might be obtained. The renewal was given for an additional six months period.

It is to be regretted that the church had this problem to face with the many others, but we are satisfied that it has been worked out for the best interests of all the members, and desire to have them know the present status.

THE PRESIDING BISHOPRIC,

By G. L. DELAPP.

October 12, 1931.

MISCELLANEOUS

Conference Notices

The annual conference of Northern Michigan District will meet with Gaylord Branch, October 24 and 25. The first service will be at 10 o'clock. This will be a prayer service. The business meeting will come to order promptly at 11 o'clock. All branch secretaries are requested to have their reports in the hands of the district secretary, Ada Alldread, Boyne City, no later than October 22.—Allen Schreur, district president.

Home-coming Services

Otter Lake Branch (Michigan) will have its home-coming October 25. Everyone is welcome. The first service will occur at 9 a. m. Basket or potluck lunch at noon. This home-coming marks the fifteenth anniversary of the branch.—J. J. Rusnell, Fostoria, Michigan.

There will be a home-coming day in connection with our regular first Sunday in the month meeting at Netawaka, Kansas, November 1. It will also be the anniversary of the dedication of the present church building in 1923. We are in hopes that the officers of the church and district will see fit to reorganize the branch at Netawaka for the benefit of Centralia, Netawaka, and Saints scattered throughout northeastern Kansas. Atchison, Fanning, Topeka, Blue Rapids, Centralia, please take notice. There will be a basket dinner at the church. All are invited.—J. M. Green.

Young People's Institute

Northeastern Kansas District will hold a young people's institute at Fanning, Kansas, October 24 and 25. The first meeting will begin at 9.30 a. m. Saturday. We will have present Elders C. B. Woodstock and Leonard Lea, of Independence, Missouri, and Sister Mildred Goodfellow, of Topeka, Kansas. All young people of the district are asked to be present at the meetings.—Leonard Pitsenberger.

Two-Day Meeting

A two-day meeting of Pittsburgh District will convene at Fayette City, Pennsylvania, October 17 and 18. Bishop L. F. P. Curry will be present as speaker. The first meeting will be at 7.30 Saturday evening. This is the first district meeting since the spring conference, and all district members who can be present are urged to attend. All visitors will be welcome.—T. M. Carr, president Pittsburgh District.

Notice to Southern England and Wales Saints

(Heading Corrected)

By concurrence of the First Presidency and Brother Paul M. Hanson of the Quorum of Twelve, it has been decided to ask the Southern England District to care for the Saints in the territory that was formerly the Wales District. Due notice of this has been sent to the authorities of Southern England District, and all concerned will take notice of this change. We trust that this will be for the advancement of the work in Wales.—The First Presidency.

Appointment of District President

Owing to the resignation of Elder C. J. Smith, president of the North Dakota District, the Presidency hereby appoints Elder Warren McElwain to fill out the unexpired term, subject to the approval of the next conference of the district.—The First Presidency, Independence, Missouri, October 12.

Our Departed Ones

CHAMBERS.—Mary Martha Collins was born May 9, 1871, at Manti, Iowa. Departed this life May 5, 1931. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fredrick Collins, and in her childhood with her parents moved to Cameron, Missouri, residing here a short time and then moving to Lamoni Iowa. Later they moved to Harrison County, near Persia, Iowa, where the remainder of her life was spent. April 3, 1888, she was united in marriage to William J. Chambers, of Persia, Iowa. To this union five children were born. April 11, 1880, she was baptized a member of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, and she lived a devoted life. She was kind and considerate and her home was always open to the missionaries and her friends, and a hearty welcome was always extended. Her husband and five children: Cora Hammond, of Woodbine; Robert, of Shelby; Joseph, of Yorkshire; Fredrick, of Persia, and Ethel Sanders, of Logan, Iowa, are left to mourn her departure; also two brothers, Albert Collins, of Glenn Ferry, Idaho, and Thomas D. Collins, of Mapleton, Iowa; one sister of Glenwood, Iowa; eleven grandchildren, and many friends and neighbors. She was highly respected by all who knew her and was a real neighbor and friend. Funeral services were conducted by Elder W. R. Adams, of Logan, Iowa, assisted by Elders Fred Fry, and Joseph Lane at the Saints' Church May 7, 1931, and interment in the Chambers Cemetery, north of Persia.

HORNER.—Marianna, daughter of William Y. and Anna Imlay, was born at Irvington, California, November 28, 1854. In 1879 with the family, she moved to Hawaii and was there until 1906, when she returned to the mainland. Took up her residence in Irvington again where she lived until death claimed her Thursday evening, September 24, 1931, following a very brief illness. She united with the church in 1914. She was a faithful member and delighted in generosity and hospitality. Many have been made glad through her kindly and thoughtful ministrations. In the village where she was born and to which she devoted the large part of her life, many sorrowing ones witness to the gracious and sympathetic interest she always manifested. Miss Horner graduated from the Washington College (local) and entered the teaching profession. She taught in California and also in Hawaii. Her artistic gifts were varied and of refined quality. Many pieces of her work in painting, pyrography and fancy work as well as ability in prose and poetry witness to the versatility as well as excellency of her gifts. The funeral was conducted in the community church at Irvington, Sunday afternoon, September 27, John W. Rushton officiating. She was laid to rest in the quiet cemetery of her home village. Many mourned her departure and speak well of her life and work.

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Frederick M. Smith, Editor in Chief.
 Elbert A. Smith, Floyd M. McDowell, Associate Editors.
 Leonard J. Lea, Managing Editor.
 Leta B. Moriarty, Assistant Editor.
 Published for the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.
 Subscription price: By the year, $2.

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE
 INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI

CONTENTS

EDITORIAL:
Our Financial Outlook .....	962
The Bishop Explains .....	962
The Year's Harvest Home Festival .....	963
OFFICIAL:
A Payment Program and the 1932 Budget .....	964
Two Months of Sacrifice .....	966
The Sanitarium .....	982
ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
The Foundations of Christianity, by A. B. Phillips .....	967
Weekly Health Letter, by A. W. Teel, M. D. ....	969
An Answer to a Familiar Error .....	970
Summary of Liabilities .....	972
Statement of Appropriations .....	974
A Poem of the Early Reorganization .....	974
LETTERS TO THE EDITOR:
Helping the Church Financially .....	981
A Weekly Sacrifice .....	981
NEWS OF CHURCH AND HOME .....	975
MISCELLANEOUS .....	983

Do you read the church publications?

HERALD

ENSIGN

VISION

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE

Independence, Missouri

The Church School Handbook

A Worker's Manual

Read what one district president says of it:

"Just received my copy of the Church School Handbook. An excellent, much needed little assistant; a fine study book for leaders who are planning the year's work during their vacations. Congratulations on both content and appearance."

It Helps Others—

It Can Help You!

Price, 35 Cents

Order From
 HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE
 Independence, Missouri

For Sale

Old Established Hardware and Plumbing Co., doing good business. Owner selling account illness. See or write

G. W. EASTWOOD

218 West Lexington

Independence, Mo.

Buy Your Farms Now

While they are cheap. Any size, best terms. Special attention to readers of the Saints' Herald.

CHAS. R. BOWMAN

Butler, Mo.

BE PREPARED!

When Lightning strikes, strike back with INSURANCE.

INSURANCE DEPARTMENT
 OF THE CHURCH
 (American Underwriters, Inc.)

Indep. 486

221 W. Lexington St.

NOW IS A GOOD TIME TO CHANGE.

At the mid year Interest date is an advantageous time to shift your Savings Account to a safe conservative institution with a quarter century standing.

We pay 3% on Time and Savings Deposits.
 "Soliciting New Business on Our Record."

JACKSON COUNTY BANK

Independence, Mo.

"Home of Savings"

THE SAINTS' HERALD

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS

Entered as second-class matter at the post office at Independence, Missouri, under Act of March 3, 1879. Issued weekly at Independence, Missouri. Price $2 a year in advance. Accepted for mailing at the special rate of postage provided for in section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917; authorized July 21, 1921.

Volume 78

Independence, Missouri, October 21, 1931

Number 42

EDISON'S MESSAGE

My message to you is: Be courageous! I have lived a long time; I have seen history repeat itself again and again. I have seen many depressions in business. Always America has emerged from these, stronger and more prosperous. Be as brave as your fathers were before you.

Have faith!

Go forward!

—Last public address of Thomas A. Edison.

---

DOES WAR REQUIRE GREATER LOYALTY THAN PEACE?

J. E. Vanderwood

THE DESTRUCTION OF JERUSALEM

AN EPISODE FROM HISTORY

Christiana Salyards

FAMILY WORSHIP

Hazel Minkler

Positions for Released Missionaries

A hope which is doubtless quite general among the people of the church is that conditions will soon change for the better so that many of the missionaries released may be restored to the list of full-time workers. It is probable that the wish is generally held that the list may even be increased over the 1931 one by the addition of new names of those qualified for the tasks. In the meantime, while wishing for the better times, it is necessary to meet the present situation and carry on our work.

Throughout the church there may be many who are in position to help in securing positions for the released men in which they can provide for their needs. It is hoped such will communicate with the Bishopric with suggestions and offers to help in locating the men.

Many of the men affected by the releases have made rapid and successful readjustments and are already "rustling a living" while waiting for the time to reenter upon their church activities. Their "waiting" is an active one, merely a shift of activities.

Very few of the men whom we have been compelled, with great reluctance, to release from missionary responsibility, have manifested anything but ready willingness to meet the situation with self-reliance and sweetness of spirit. They all regret that they have for a time to leave their chosen work, and all look forward to resuming it. They recognize the necessity for the actions had releasing, and have cheerfully met the situation in a way which reflects deep-seated love for the cause, a love which makes them rise above personal interests, a love that leads to the sacrifice of self for the ideals of our organization. And to keep this spirit is to permit God the fullest opportunity to bless and direct.

The readers of the Herald will, I am sure, be interested in seeing some of the expressions from men affected by the action of the council. A few are presented:

Brother G. E. Burt says: "I want to assure you that I will do all that I can for the church, no matter where I may be."

Richard D. Weaver says: "There is no hardness in my heart towards the brethren of the council. I feel that it was a heart-breaking job, to say the least, and I do not feel to criticize what was done.

"Second, I wish it known that my heart and soul is in the work of the church. I have loved it for all the years I have been a part of it, and I still love it better than my life. I shall never try to tear it down, or work against its best interests. I shall do what I can in my small way, as long as I am able, to assist in the work of the Lord as revealed in this great latter-day message."

R. Melvin Russell writes a letter in splendid spirit as follows:

Dear Brother Smith:

Notice of my release from general church appointment has been received.

I join the many devoted members and ministers in regret of the "jam" the church now finds herself in, but do not despair of the condition. I regret that the missionary work has to be so curtailed, but am happy in sharing with my brethren the burden of the hour.

The short two and one half years of my time under appointment have brought many cherished experiences. Whatever I have given has been given freely, and I feel that in my labors I have lost nothing.

I trust that I may ever be a ready, willing and loyal servant, and that the church we love may soon triumph.

The brethren of the Twelve who are coming in personal contact with the men are themselves encouraged by the good spirit manifested and thus cheered in the difficult task of carrying on with reduced forces.

On the whole there appears to be aroused among the Saints a strong determination to meet the situation and overcome the present obstructions. With a united front and the spirit of sacrifice we can do it. It is God's will that we should.

F. M. S.

Principles of the Gospel

IV.—THE BAPTISM OF THE SPIRIT

The baptism of the Spirit—God's gift of his grace and assurance—is the climax of our entry into his kingdom. From the moment we first sense within our souls the dawn of faith, carrying us through the humiliation of repentance, making us obedient to the ordinance of baptism, we look forward to this personal experience of Pentecost, the baptism of the spirit.

This experience comes at the time of confirmation by the laying on of hands, or it may not come until later. It may come at a prayer meeting or sacrament service, or it may come at a time of solitude, meditation, or private prayer. There are no rules by which one may anticipate the time or the exact character of the experience; but one may surely recognize it by the fact that it brings to one an unimagined and indescribable happiness and peace.

Some people are disappointed that they do not receive this experience immediately and with great power. It is not something that may be hastened by wishing or importunate prayer. Some who are imaginative enough may work themselves into a state of mind in which they may have an experience, but not the true baptism of the spirit.

The genuine experience of the spiritual baptism is an individual matter between the person and God, and depends upon two factors: the subject's readiness and God's willingness.

This spiritual baptism is a testimony: that one's sins are forgiven and that his penitence is acceptable, that he is received into full spiritual fellowship in the Kingdom, to enjoy thereafter the blessings of communion with the Saints, that the work and the church are true as they claim to be.

Waiting for the spiritual baptism provides a test of faith, and the period of waiting may be long or short, but eventually the experience always comes to those who pray and wait in faith.

The baptism of the Spirit may come as a marvelous experience, accompanied by visible and audible manifestations, or it may come only as a feeling of great peace and assurance.

Those who yearn for marvelous experiences may be disappointed, as seekers after signs frequently are. Those who seek only through love and faith to know the Spirit of God will in his own good time receive the blessing.

There is a tendency abroad in the world, fostered by scientific materialism, to regard all experiences of a supernatural character as illusion, the product of a brain that is functioning irregularly. The materialists tell us that revelations, visions, and impressions of the Holy Spirit are not what they seem to be, but are only the projections of over-sensitive imaginations stimulated by internal factors. But let us examine further.

When the materialist says that there is no such thing as actual spiritual experience, he means, and should say more truthfully, that he himself has never had any such experiences. He is not qualified to speak of that which he does not know. He should not apply to all men the limitation from which he suffers. Perhaps his state can best be explained by some illustrations.

Some color-blind people can not distinguish between red and green, and some can not distinguish accurately between yellow and blue; yet these colors present contrasts so wide that the person of ordinary vision can hardly understand the ailment. Another: those who have been well all their lives, no matter how many sick people they may have seen know very little about suffering, and are likely to be callous in its presence. Another: the spectator at a great football game is conscious of the beauty of perfect formation, planned plays, and performance. He follows the progress of the contest with intense interest. But he can never know the sickening pain of crushing bodies and twisted limbs, the furious expenditure of power for trifling gains, or the wild exultation of the runner carrying the ball for a touchdown.

Perhaps these examples will serve to show why the materialist is not qualified to judge the experiences of the mystic, or the spiritually-minded man. Perhaps Shakespeare expressed the thought better than any one else:

There are more things in heaven and earth, Horatio,
Than are dreamt of in your philosophy.

There are indeed more things in the world than can be observed by the scientist's microscope; the laboratories have not conquered all knowledge; the human soul, in both its origin and its nature, is as great a mystery as ever to those who do not accept the Christian teachings.

The baptism of the Spirit, which is the soul's contact with God, its maker and preserver, gives to religious life its great significance. Religion which has lost it must depend for its authority and strength on ceremony, beauty, and ethics, which are but dry husks as compared with that which is the real essence of religious life.

L. L.

In the Same Boat

A story is going the rounds concerning two rival churches in a little town. At one of them the brethren were gathered and discussing the depression, which had hit them rather severely. One spoke up and said, "Times may be hard for us, but thank the Lord they are worse for the Baptists down the street!"

That was not a Christian way to feel about it. But sometimes we think that a look around at our neighbors would serve to check the volume of our own complaints. For some other churches the deficits in the annual budget run around a million dollars. Perhaps it is time to tighten our belts, come out of the house, and go to work.

A condensed statement of the advice of England's Prime Minister, Ramsey MacDonald, reported in the Kansas City Star, seems appropriate here. "He said the national government must keep the budget balanced, must end borrowing, stabilize the value of the pound, and, finally, correct Britain's adverse balance of trade."

And that, precisely, is what our own government must do, and many families. If America's vaunted prosperity has taught us nothing but to live beyond our means, it has done us no real good.

A friend remarks that the church, also, must follow the course which Premier MacDonald charts for Britain. We must, according to the recent reports of the Presiding Bishopric, keep the budget balanced, end borrowing, stabilize the value of our effective resources, and see that the expenditures do not exceed the receipts.

L. L.

The Present Crisis

An Official Call From the Presidency

This is a call for the mobilization of the resources of the church, both spiritual and financial, to meet one of the greatest crises of our history. It is a call to prayer and work, to sacrifice and obedience, to unity and unanimity of action—a call which in accomplishing its purpose will meet the present emergency and provide a stable foundation for future growth.

By this call we officially designate the months of November and December, 1931, as a period of prayer and sacrifice. It is the purpose of this special effort to provide funds to meet the immediate needs of the church and also to inaugurate a systematic program to pay the church debt, to rehabilitate the missionary list, to furnish reasonable financial security to our appointees, and to make it possible to prosecute with vigor the work of evangelizing the world and establishing Zion.

Let there be no mistake. The church faces a crisis. As painful as those words are they must be written and their meaning must be made to permeate the consciousness of the Saints. Our appointees are nearly seven months behind with their allowances. These remaining men must be kept in the field and their families must be fed and clothed. Our obligations to released men must be paid. A minimum of administrative supervision must be maintained. Maturing principal and interest payments must be met. The work of the church must go on.

This is by no means the first crisis in our history. There was one at Kirtland following the depression of 1837. There was one when the Saints were expelled from Missouri. There was another when the prophet and patriarch sealed their testimony with their life's blood. Yet always and at whatever cost the Saints have risen to the emergency and have acquitted themselves as children of God. And in every instance progress followed in the wake of their heroism. It is in such crises that we show the true quality of our sainthood.

The simple fact is that the church must have money. We must have $138,624.89 to meet the demands for the remainder of 1931 and the principal and interest payments due early in January, 1932. We must have $481,461.17 to meet the budget for 1932, which if raised will reduce our debt by $191,796.05. We must have the continued financial support of all true members of the church if we are to meet our obligations and carry on our divinely appointed mission.

The details of these needs have been presented in recent issues of the Herald. Additional facts will be presented as rapidly as possible. Every effort will be made to keep the Saints informed. This program has been entered upon in good faith. We have pledged ourselves and do hereby pledge ourselves again to adhere strictly to its provisions both now and in the future.

This call is to every member of the church, priesthood and laity, old and young, rich and poor. By no subterfuge, by no petty excuse, by no trick of logic can anyone escape his share of responsibility in this crucial hour. It is not just and it never was just to expect a few to carry the entire burden of the church. Some of the Saints have brought hardship upon themselves and their families by giving more than they should, while others of more ample means have not shared in the task which they also have espoused. Yet the Lord has said, "In your temporal things you shall be equal, and this not grudgingly, otherwise the abundance of the manifestations of the Spirit shall be withheld."

These are the main requirements of the hour:

Let every member of the church ascertain the amount of tithe which he owes the church and make every effort possible to pay this debt without delay.

Let every member of the church who possibly can make a substantial offering at this time. Let this offering be one which involves real self-denial and a tangible indication of love for God and his church, and not one which merely acts as a salve of conscience.

Let every Saint eliminate the unessentials and frills of life. Surely we have now reached the place where we must put first things first. Surely we can no longer expect to find our salvation in the worship of gods "who neither see nor hear nor know," the gods of pleasure and of greed and of material things.

The present situation is critical both because the work of the church is being retarded by lack of finances and also because this situation constitutes a real test of our sainthood. It is this generation of Saints—not the church—that stands today at the crossroads. There is only one course open to the church and that is forward. Anything else is unthinkable, impossible. For the individual members, however, two ways are open. We must choose. If we meet the test of this hour we shall go forward with the church. If we fail, we shall just as surely sink into the oblivion of an already despairing world. We repeat: it is this generation of Saints, not the church, that stands today at the crossroads.

While the situation is critical, it is not hopeless. The church is not bankrupt. We have but to call upon hitherto undeveloped resources to meet a great emergency. After months of careful study a definite program has been outlined and presented to the church as a means of meeting the situation. The

Letters to the Editor

In this department we are glad to receive and publish letters of interest to our readers.

The Producer's Dilemma

(From a letter to the Editor in Chief.)

We have shopped in the city and rejoiced because at last foods were prices we could reach: Butter 25c; eggs 20c; meats from 5c to 30c a pound; vegetables five bunches for five cents, and canned goods accordingly low. But we have stepped from the buyer-consumer side to the producer-seller side and the picture is a very different one indeed. Men raise crops of fruit and vegetables which rot in the fields; there is not enough in them to pay for the harvesting. For instance, a neighbor raised a fine crop of early plums, and proudly shipped a carload of them to New York. He got $700 for the fruit, but when his shipping bills came in he was charged $1,400. The rest of the crop rots on the trees, just as the thousands of acres of other things are going to waste, or are given to the neighbors who need them much less than the teeming millions in the cities. It seems almost a crime, yet what can a man do? Few of us are in a position to pay $700 for the privilege of shipping a carload of fruit to New York to be given away.

Then there is the dairy business. If the dairyman makes enough each month to buy feed for the next month for his cattle, he is doing well. If he sells whole milk the expense of keeping things sterilized and up to standard in cleanliness takes what might otherwise be a profit. If he sells milk from house to house, it is almost impossible to get collections made sufficient to pay for his feed bills. If he sells cream and keeps the skimmed milk, he is able to feed calves and hogs, and so build up a herd, getting a bare living out of it for his family. If he grows alfalfa for feed, he must irrigate, and then the power bills are prohibitive; and on top of the "Energy Charge" is a "Demand or Minimum Charge" which is a polite way of saying, legally: "I steal from you just $10.00 more besides the exhorbitant price I have already charged you." I ex-presiding quorums of the church have by up-raised hands pledged their support to such a program and have already gone forward in carrying out its provisions. This program constitutes a gigantic but not impossible task. Its demands are within the reach of a body of people who sincerely believe their cause to be the cause of God. Now is the time of testing. Let us make it a prelude to the endowment of the faithful. The work of the church must go on.

THE FIRST PRESIDENCY,

By F. M. McDOWELL.

press the viewpoint of the "old residents" with whom I have talked. When I say we have two electric pumps on this 114-acre ranch, it sounds affluent in point of adequate water supply; but let me add that the power bill for May was $66.18. That is not affluence, but bankruptcy.

This is probably one of the most remarkable valleys in the world. It is tremendous in scope, size, possibilities, demands, successes, failures, fertility, and weather (I mean heat in summer, cold in winter, sudden moody spells, etc.). There are thousands of acres of grapes, cotton, citrus fruits, melons, grain, pomegranates, apricots, peaches, almonds, olives, onions, beans, and shall I add oaks. There is enough space here to raise food for the—well, perhaps not the world—but more than enough to take care of thousands that are starving in the towns, if the grounds were all under cultivation and there were some Tremendous Director somewhere to bring order out of the chaos which production-shipping-consuming has gotten into. It seems to me that shipping companies and power companies have become dragons which hold in one hand the producer, and in the other hand the squirming consumers, or would-be consumers.

I am made to cry aloud in my heart, "How long, O Zion, how long?" Then I can see communities mapped out, with an actual statement of the possible needs of that community for the coming year, with the farmers producing that which is needed, getting fair prices for their labors, and the consumers having what they need, paying fair prices, and giving in return value for value all around. There could be an emergency supply for "bad years," or in turn a store room for "bumper crops." That would eliminate the panics of overproduction or underproduction and—bless me! Who am I, to talk of problems so beyond my ken?

I have often heard people in the cities "rave," because the American farmer was passing to the limbo of the one-time buffalo, yet if those same people were to see the struggle of the "whites," in this very difficult life of farming, trying to keep up the standards that "whites" are supposed to maintain and failing on every side, they would be a bit more tolerant, perhaps, when these people at last gave up the struggle to those who demand less of life in the way of comforts and civilized needs, and who have, not more courage, but perhaps more brute energy to battle along and who aspire to less for their offspring in the way of advantages and education. If I had my way, the government would endow the farmer, instead of allowing him to be choked to death by power and shipping companies and the middle men and others of their ilk.

E. LEOLA NICE.

STRATHMORE, CALIFORNIA.

That the World May Have Peace

The letter below is addressed to the Christian peoples of America by the society of Friends, an organization whose service in the cause of peace has always been distinguished by its unselfishness, and at times heroic and sacrificial adherence to principle. The cause of peace is at once identified with the cause of Christ and the cause of humanity. War is the greatest present threat against culture and the safety of civilization. The cost of war has brought governments near bankruptcy and nations near demoralization. No country, large or small, is today secure against the sinister threat of the shadow of war that hangs over the whole earth. Christian people have sufficient strength and prestige to exert a great influence in favor of a constructive program of peace, if they will unite in common endeavor for that purpose.—L. L.

*To Members of Religious Groups in America:
Dear Friends:*

The American Friends Service Committee, a national committee of the Society of Friends (Quakers), sends you greeting.

We are constrained to believe that the General Disarmament Conference to open in Geneva in February, 1932, can be made to mark a turning point in human affairs. Never before, in the history of mankind, have the devastating results of war been so clearly indicated and so generally recognized. Past generations, indifferent to the warnings of prophets, economists and statesmen, have consistently prepared for war, have regarded war as the natural arbiter of international affairs, and have proceeded from one conflict to another. It would now seem that the peoples of the world have reached the limit of their power to recuperate from the disaster of war. Hand in hand with a vast increase in man's powers of destruction has gone an equal increase in the effect of war upon a more complex social order. President Hoover in his recent speech to the convention of the American Legion voiced the growing conviction of millions of men, when he said that the present world-wide economic crisis is the result of the World War. In our present delicately adjusted, inter-dependent world, the destiny of every people, however strong or weak, is inextricably linked with the fears and fortunes of the world. The law of love, the teachings of Hebrew prophet and of Jesus, are being fulfilled in the sweep of world affairs. Men are beginning to realize that they must cooperate or perish, materially as well as spiritually.

We can not contemplate, therefore, with indifference, the persistent preparation for war throughout most of the world. Least important is the fiscal question of how the nations should spend their public revenue—whether to spend billions of dollars annually in subsidizing makers of war material and the military personnel or upon purposes more closely related to the needs of suffering humanity. It is the menace of future war with which we are chiefly concerned. Armaments are the expression of a philosophy of international conduct and their very existence tends to perpetuate this philosophy. War is not inevitable except as armaments tend to make it so. It is not rational or natural for a civilization to attempt to destroy itself, but this disaster is likely to happen if men continue irrationally to think about it and plan for it.

The Disarmament Conference of 1932 will meet under unique conditions. Never before have the peoples of the world so clearly recognized that their opportunity for normal living depends upon the constant maintenance of international peace. If the use of armaments may destroy the civilization that has prepared them, it is worse than folly to continue them. The issue is not now one of limitation; it is one of abolition. We believe that the time has come, in the evolution of public opinion, to free mankind from the fiscal burden, the political menace and the spiritual decay incident to military preparation. The Kellogg Pact, the world-wide economic crisis, the growth of public opinion as to the effects of war, constitute a setting in which such a program of abolition can reasonably be inaugurated.

Are the religious forces of the world content to wait until economic necessity has impelled the result foretold by prophetic vision? It is our hope that the day of freedom from the menace of war may be hastened through the dynamic of religious faith. The churches of America could devote this period to a great crusade on behalf of the abolition of war preparation. Such a crusade could definitely affect the results at Geneva and could thereby change the course of human affairs.

Sincerely yours,

VINCENT D. NICHOLSON,
Chairman Peace Section.

CLARENCE E. PICKETT,
Executive Secretary American Friends Service Committee.

Does War Demand Greater Loyalty Than Peace?

By J. E. Vanderwood

The query presented in the above caption was suggested by the recent address of President Hoover to the convention of the American Legion. There was a time when these men with one accord turned to the army with the avowed purpose of giving their lives if need be for the safety of their country, and for the ideals that were represented by the American flag. They were willing to spend and be spent for the cause of war. It was apparently nothing to them that they should lose their lives, or sever their home ties, if they could conquer the common foe, and preserve the honor of the nation under whose banner they were fighting.

Years have passed, and circumstances have greatly changed. Recently President Hoover went to these veterans and asked their support in the economic struggle that confronts not only our nation but all the nations of the earth. It was a test as to whether men will show the same loyalty to the country in a time of peace that they did in the time of war. Is there any good reason why men should be loyal to their country under one crisis and not under another? After all, what is it that impels our action and commands our support at one time and fails to enlist it at another time? Is the tragedy of war worse than the tragedy of economic distress and uncertainty? If so in what way?

Perhaps it is because we have studied war and have failed to study peace, and that we are intensely interested in the winning of wars, but indifferent about providing for effective peace? How do we view these things, and in what way are we putting ourselves to the task of their solution? Right here we reach a test of the real strength of manhood of either individuals or of nations. Under the influence of mob psychology, which rises with the declaration of war, men will act either heroically or violently according to the suggestion of the moment. Tradition has led them to believe that it is an honor to be loyal to the demands of country in time of war, but it has never impressed upon them the importance of loyalty in times of peace. Is it because men believe in the God of war but do not believe in the God of peace? Is it because the time of war presents the tragic, the time of peace the prosaic? Do we really evaluate our relationships to God and to man? And if not, are we able to give a reason for our attitudes? Is it because in war we are required to act under the command and direction of a commissioned officer, and that in time of peace we act merely upon our own initiative?

Without question the times are momentous, and the need of serious thought and definite action is awaiting us. We as a church have a definite responsibility in times like these. Is there any reason why we should be passive and indifferent in times of stress and perplexities of nations? The economy of the gospel that has been committed to us offer a solution for the grave problems that at the present time perplex the whole earth. Does not the history of nations, as well as the prophetic utterances of the men who have been inspired by the God of the universe, testify to us that it is because men have failed in their relationships to men and to God that these things are thrust upon us? Men have learned to be loyal to a cause in time of war, but they have not learned to be loyal to a cause in the time of peace. The emotion of the conflict impels them to act, and they put themselves into the cause with zeal and earnestness, but the apparent drudgery of peace causes them to be lax and indifferent.

I am convinced that these things are because men do not have reverence and appreciation for God. The prophet expresses it thus: "Even the youths shall faint and be weary, and the young men shall utterly fail: but they that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run, and not be weary; they shall walk, and not faint." Unless men have come to trust in God they will both faint and fail. It is they who trust in him that are to triumph, it is they who shall mount up on wings as eagles, it is they who shall walk and not faint. One can put himself into a cause when the mob psychology prompts or promotes the action, but the man who is able to plod along and keep the upward trend, meeting the handicaps and disappointments of life and still continuing to go forward toward the goal, must have come in touch with the infinite source of life. Therefore he is being renewed daily by that spring of living water that is constantly rising within his soul, impelling him onward toward the mark of the high calling that is found in the life of Christ Jesus our Lord.

Jesus had but one purpose, and that was to do the will of his Father. This involved the doing of that which would, if accepted and followed, usher in the reign of peace on earth and good will among men. He gave himself unreservedly and unstintingly to this cause, and said unto all who would hear him, "Learn of me." His philosophy was that of human brotherhood. He desired to enable men to see that there can be but one true objective in life, and that is the bringing about of conditions that will make for the building of a kingdom of peace. If all men had this ideal, if they were able to vision the great work that he so ably laid out before humanity, such an appeal as that of President Hoover would be heeded, and the men who were willing to enlist in the armies of death would with equal zeal and earnestness enlist in the armies of life. They would put their all into the cause that would remove speedily the causes of our present economic unrest and pave the way for the ushering in of the reign of peace upon the earth. But since men are not yet willing to do this, since they are unable to see with any degree of clearness the appeal of our blessed Lord, it becomes the duty of us as members of the church to put ourselves to the task of making comprehensible the message of Christ, and of so interpreting it that all men will come to see that it is far more heroic to work for peace than it is to work for war. It is our privilege to help bring about conditions that shall pave the way for that time spoken of by the prophet when "they shall learn war no more." He who has come to see the real import of the message of Christ is more concerned about bringing salvation to the world now, in a social, moral, intellectual, spiritual and economic way, than he is about saving his own little soul in the hereafter. The one is magnanimous and large while the other is small and contemptible; for the only way I can possibly save my soul is by helping to save the souls of others.

Let us not forget that it is only those who wait upon the Lord who shall be able to walk and not faint, and it is the highest evidence of manhood and of character to see a person who is able to keep an even forward movement, constantly holding to the noble and the pure, and believing that ultimately nothing but good can come of good.

I see then in the appeal made by President Hoover to the American Legion in convention assembled, a testing of the men of the nation, and may it be that these men who were willing to sacrifice their comforts and lives if need be in time of war will rise to the height of princely manhood and answer the call of our chief executive and say, "Here we are, ready to throw ourselves in the breach, and to sacrifice our comforts for the time being that thereby we may bring lasting peace and comfort unto the nations of men." How much more should we who have heard the call of the Christ bestir ourselves and put ourselves unreservedly an unstintingly into the cause of his church until the world shall have been inoculated with the spirit of his glorious gospel, and the way is prepared for the ushering in of his kingdom among men. This is our blessed privilege, and this is the demand that the gospel of Christ makes upon us. And regardless of the response that is made by the men of the American Legion to the appeal of President Hoover, it is our duty to heed the call of Christ.

Report of the Department of Statistics

By C. L. Olson, Statistician

The monthly report of the Department of Statistics shows the following changes in the total net enrollment of the church during September:

Total enrollment of the church September 1, 1931.....109,908

September Baptisms .....	279
Gains from Unknown .....	7
Gains by Correction .....	10
Total Gain .....	296
Deaths .....	62
Expulsions .....	33
Loss by Correction .....	1
Total Loss .....	96

NET GAIN during the month .....200

Total enrollment of the church October 1, 1931.....110,108

The following miscellaneous reports were also entered during the month:

Transfers .....	607
Blessings .....	146
Marriages .....	83
Ordinations .....	21
Releases .....	8
Silences .....	3
Divorces .....	3

It will be seen by the above summary that the church has now passed the 110,000 mark. However, one should not be deceived by this total because it includes a large number of names of persons whose addresses are unknown. Four thousand seven hundred and seventy-six names are the remnants of defunct and disorganized branches, and 3,721 names are for persons whose addresses have been reported as unknown since we took charge of the office in March, 1928, and who are still unknown. There are probably another 1,000 or 1,500 names who are unknown to the local branch or stake secretaries who are delaying reporting the same pending an effort to obtain the up-to-date addresses through local sources. While all such persons are still members of the church, they should really not be counted when considering the church's live and tangible assets. Especially would this seem to be the case after a diligent effort has been made to obtain the addresses of such persons. In our opinion, therefore, it appears wiser to regard our real church membership as closer to 100,000 than 110,000.

In the issues of the Herald, beginning with September 30, have appeared lists of names for persons reported unknown by the Kansas City Stake. When this list of Kansas City Unknowns was first sent to us it contained 1,400 names, but through diligent efforts on the part of the Stake officers and the cooperation of other branch secretaries it has been pruned down to 930. The list as published, therefore, represents those whom we have been unable to locate through the workers in the Statistical Department directly, and whose addresses we feel we can obtain only through the assistance of the readers of the Herald.

Such assistance in the past has proved very helpful. Out of the 12,979 names that were on the Unknown List in March, 1928, a total of 3,091 up to date have been located and their names properly recorded. These were the names that were published in the Herald during 1929 and the early part of 1930.

We hope that sometime in the future it may be possible to publish a list of the 4,776 names still on the Disorganized File and the 3,721 names now being held on suspense accounts. Each of these totals are what remain after various efforts have been made to locate these persons through the branch, district, and stake secretaries. Approximately 25% of those originally reported unknown have been located through these means. We are hoping that an additional 25% may be located through publishing the names in the Herald. Therefore, the assistance and cooperation of all are earnestly solicited in order that this campaign and long-time program of "Finding Those Who Are Lost" may be fruitful.

Regarding the baptisms for September, we are sorry to state that the total of 279 is the lowest for the month of September in the last twelve years, the lowest previously being 322 in September, 1926. This must be expected, however, in view of the fact that a large number of missionaries have been recalled, both in February of this year, and at the last meeting of the Joint Council. Hereafter the missionary work will have to be carried on by the local branch and district officers, but we trust that they will do their part in spite of handicaps and see that the Gospel Message is properly presented to the people of the world at a time when it is so much needed.

The branches and district nonresident groups which reported five or more baptisms each during September were the following:

Kirtland, Ohio .....	14
Southwest Texas, N. R. ....	12
Mobile, Alabama .....	10
Minnesota, N. R. ....	9
Michigan, Alberta .....	8
Spearfish, South Dakota .....	8
Beaver, Missouri .....	7
Seattle, Washington .....	7

Bozeman, Montana .....	6
Columbus, Nebraska .....	6
Escatawpa, Mississippi .....	6
Brush Creek, Illinois .....	5
Des Moines, N. R. ....	5
Detroit, Michigan .....	5
Pasco, Washington .....	5
Wray, Colorado .....	5

The grand total of 279 was distributed as follows:

Zion and the Stakes .....	34
U. S. and Canada Outside the Stakes....	235
Foreign Missions .....	10
Total .....	279

October 15, 1931.

The Destruction of Jerusalem

By Christiana Salyards

The following is taken from one of the lessons in the "Senior Young People's Quarterly" for October, November, December. With rare clearness of vision and beauty of expression Sister Salyards has prepared a year's series of lessons on the History of Christianity. The series covers the whole period from the birth of Christ on through his ministry and the New Testament Church, the Apostasy and the Dark Ages, the Reformation, and the Restoration.

Remarkable stories of loyalty and devotion, of love and service and sacrifice on the part of godly men and women are sharply contrasted with the cunning and evil-minded men who persecuted the righteous to accomplish their own selfish ends. Yet evil ever has its own reward, and God has never forgotten his promise to the faithful.

Often the blessing of God has been delayed because of human failure, many times the people have suffered because of unworthy leaders, and frequently noble and consecrated leaders have stood alone and the Cause has suffered through lack of loyalty on the part of those upon whose support the success of the cause depended.

Slowly but surely the righteous purposes of God are wrought out. His wisdom, his love, his mercy and power are everywhere in evidence. Vital lessons these for Saints in latter days, especially for young high school and college students.—C. B. W.

As the mountains are round about Jerusalem,
So is the Lord round about his people
From henceforth, even for ever.—Psalms 125: 2.

The Holy City of the Jews

One of the beautiful cities of the world in the time of Nero was Jerusalem, the holy city of the Jews. High up in the mountains of Judea in the clear air and bright sunlight, and with the everlasting hills standing about it like watching sentinels, it reminded the faithful of the unfailing care of God.

It had come to be the confident belief of the people that no harm could come to their beloved city, because God would protect it. His house was there, the temple of which they were so proud and for which they would lay down their lives. It stood on the highest hill in the city, a terraced building of white marble with a dome of gold. Priests in white offered daily sacrifices there, and three times a year great national feasts were centered there, to which Jews came from distant parts of the earth.

Joyful psalms had been written concerning this holy city of the Jews. These are lines from one of them:

"Beautiful for situation, the joy of the whole earth,
Is Mount Zion, on the sides of the north,
The city of the great King.
God is known in her palaces for a refuge."

War Clouds in Palestine

It had been known to the Jews for a long time that trouble was brewing between their nation and Rome, and though they may have been anxious and may have felt the natural dread of war, they were confident the final outcome would be victory for them. They murmured to themselves or spoke to one another the words they had been taught from childhood:

"They that trust in the Lord in Mount Zion
Can not be removed, but abide for ever."

They trusted in the Lord and did not fear he would permit them to be removed.

In the year before Nero died, he sent Vespasian with an army of 60,000 troops into Galilee, the land where Jesus had spent his youth and where he had traveled so extensively in his ministry, preaching the gospel of the kingdom. Ten miles north of Nazareth was Jotapata, a city with very strong walls. When the Roman army approached, it closed its gates and made a brave defense, but the Roman army was too strong and too well trained for Jotapata to withstand it. The city soon was taken and all its men and boys were slain.

The Roman army then took up its march toward the beautiful city in the mountain tops, Jerusalem. On the way they took one city after another, and dreadful scenes of carnage like those at Jotapata were enacted again. The old and weak were killed, thousands of strong young men were sent to Nero to be employed in digging a canal at Corinth, and other thousands of men and women, boys and girls, were sold as slaves.

Not long after this, Nero's death occurred and the city of Rome itself was the scene of many bloody battles before a new emperor was finally seated on the throne. In this time the war with the Jews was not pushed, but when peace was restored in Rome it was renewed.

The Siege by Titus

Vespasian was the man finally chosen as emperor of Rome, and it necessitated his being at the seat of government. His son, Titus, was made general of the army besieging Jerusalem. He was a young man, twenty-eight years old, and with all the energy of youth he set himself to the task of conquering Jerusalem.

The spring came on and all the land was flooded with the glory of April, but the green grass and the wayside flowers were trampled by the marching feet of the terrible soldiery of Rome. And tens of thousands of other feet went up also to the city in the mountains, for the Jews went up as in times of peace to celebrate the feast of the Passover.

One can hardly believe so large a number of people could be accommodated in the city as were crowded into it. It is said more than a million were gathered there when the Romans surrounded it and shut them up like birds in a cage. Then the besieging army cut down the olive trees of Gethsemane, where Jesus had often resorted for prayer. They cut down the groves at the tombs of the kings and even the hedges and ornamental shrubs. They dug up the soil of gardens. All these materials were used to build mounds of earth to attack the city, for modes of warfare were very different from those now employed.

But the Jews within the city trusted in its strong walls to protect them, and still more they trusted in God to deliver them from the power of the Gentiles. The strong, silent mountains seemed to watch over them day and night, reminding them of the familiar words:

"I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills,
From whence cometh mine help.
My help cometh from the Lord,
Which made the heaven and the earth."

The Jews fought valiantly, too. Titus had set up great battering rams, with which his soldiers were pounding at the walls to break holes in them, and the Jews had machines for throwing down huge stones on the besiegers. Once Titus was struck by a stone that almost killed him. Sometimes the Jews sallied out and burned the war machines of the enemy, and sometimes they even rushed in attacks upon the Romans in camp. For a long time it seemed that Jerusalem could not be taken.

The Fall of Jerusalem

Up to this time Bethlehem and other neighboring villages had managed to supply food to the people shut up in the city, but Titus finally built a wall around it and so prevented food being carried in. The extreme horrors of war followed. Starvation came. People sickened and died of hunger. Awful days went by, days of famine and fighting, of blood and death in many forms, with the Romans slowly but steadily gaining their way inward.

They broke through the outer walls, but they encountered a second one stronger than the first. After long and hard fighting they broke through this also and reached the walls that surrounded the courts of the temple itself. With all the fury they could summon the Jews fought to save their holy house, but the Romans finally reached the temple and a soldier, mounting the shoulders of a comrade, threw a burning brand through what was called the "golden window."

And now the temple was on fire! A mighty, heart-rending cry arose from every part of the city as the flames burst from the blazing building. The people realized the temple was doomed, and not only the temple but the city also. Six hundred and fifty years before, Jerusalem and the temple standing at that time had been destroyed by the armies of Babylon and the Jews had been carried into captivity for seventy years. Now they were struggling to resist Rome. The temple was burning. The city would be destroyed. And again they would be scattered, this time in all nations.

The Jews in Exile

The fire did its rapid work. Soon Jerusalem and the temple were in ashes. The standard of Rome, surmounted by the Roman eagle and the bust of the emperor, was set up in the ruins. It had taken three and a half years to subdue the city but at last it had been accomplished. The conquerors, elated over their victory, returned to Rome with many Jewish prisoners in chains and with the spoils of the city.

All Jewish boys and girls under seventeen years of age had been sold as slaves to any who would buy them. Boys over seventeen and men were deported to Egypt to work as slaves on public projects, or to fight in amphitheaters with wild beasts for the amusement of idle pleasure seekers. In Rome the victory was celebrated with great acclaim. An arch was built in honor of Titus, the hero of the conquest. It still stands, reminding the world of the fall of Jerusalem and the scattering of its people.

A great parade of the city was made with music, blare of trumpets, and painted banners. Titus appeared in a blaze of glory, followed by long files of weary, drooping Jewish prisoners, guarded by soldiers. The sadness in their hearts can not be told.

The Christians Saved When Jerusalem Fell

Jesus had warned his followers before his death of a time of trouble that would overtake the Jewish nation. He said enemies would come against their city and that trouble, such as they never had known before and never again should know, would come upon them. He warned his followers to flee from the city when they saw signs of what he had predicted beginning to take place. He impressed upon them the great necessity of acting promptly while they had the chance to escape.

His warning was heeded. When war with Rome broke out, the Christians withdrew to Pella, a town beyond Jordan, and lived there in security until the danger was past.

The Unfruitful Tree Is Not Spared

The ministry of Christ was ushered in with the proclamation of John the Baptist, "The ax is laid unto the root of the trees; therefore every tree which bringeth not forth good fruit shall be hewn down and cast into the fire." The same figure of speech is employed in admonition to us. (Doctrine and Covenants 94: 2.)

The ax was laid unto the root of the tree when Jerusalem was wiped from the map and her people were driven into exile. Again the ax is about to be laid to the roots of the modern nations and Zion shall escape only if her fruits are found acceptable to God. The unfruitful tree is cut down regardless of where it stands. We shall not be permitted to stand upon a mere profession of confidence in God and trust in his protection. We must be found fruitful.

Family Worship—Its Value, and Methods of Conducting It

By Hazel L. Minkler

The importance of teaching our children the laws of God is shown by his word which accompanied the giving of the ten commandments, as follows:

And thou shalt teach them diligently unto thy children, and shalt talk of them when thou sittest in thine house, and when thou walkest by the way, and when thou liest down, and when thou risest up, . . . and thou shalt write them upon the posts of thy house, and on thy gates.—Deuteronomy 6: 7, 9.

Had Israel continued to observe this law, it would have preserved its identity as a nation, but we may easily infer that it failed to do so, because of its decay and consequent overthrow by foreign nations.

The seeds of deterioration of a church or nation are sown within its homes. To the weakening of family life in our nation may be traced one of the causes of the wave of moral corruption which, in recent years, has overspread our land.

An Orderly Home Necessary

The manner in which the Lord regards the preservation of the integrity of family life is set forth in Doctrine and Covenants 90:6, which reads in part:

But I have commanded you to bring up your children in light and truth, but verily I say unto you, my servant Frederick G. Williams, you have continued under this condemnation; you have not taught your children light and truth, according to the commandments, and that wicked one hath power as yet, over you, and this is the cause of your affliction. And now a commandment I give unto you, if you will be delivered: you shall set in order your own house, for there are many things that are not right in your house.

One of the essential factors in the setting in order of our homes is the establishment of the family altar. As the Israelites of old were unified and held intact as a people, by their altars of wood and stone, so this figurative altar of prayer strengthens family ties, unifies our ideals, and stabilizes our conduct. It is a continual reminder to parents of their duties in regard to their children.

Around this altar should center some of the dearest memories of childhood. Each morning its devotional exercises should be to him a vitalizing, religious experience, from which he emerges with courage and faith, and fortified against the temptations of the day.

The Worship Service

I wonder how most of us conduct this morning period of worship. Do we read our Bibles as a mere formality, and offer stereotyped prayers, or does the child, if we have one, feel the genial glow of God's spirit in both our reading and prayers? Does he feel that the service is his, as well as ours? Is he encouraged to pray with us? The Lord has commanded us to pray vocally, as well as in secret; in public, as well as in private. At no other place than the family altar can the child so easily learn to pray without fear in the presence of others. His prayers, too, should be the spontaneous expression of his own desires, rather than the parrot-like repetition of some prayer written for children.

To the very young child, the parents stand in the place of God, and while he can not understand God as we do, by breathing the atmosphere of spiritual devotion at the altar of prayer, he finally becomes God-conscious, and is led to seek God for himself.

But it is obvious that no parent can lead a child to God who lacks his entire confidence. The secrets of the child's mind and heart are bound up in his reaction to the stimuli afforded by his daily environment, but many of his experiences will be withheld from the parent who treats him with harshness, and shows lack of sympathy with his weaknesses.

How many of us encourage our children to relate their experiences at the family altar; then, with them, seek for the solution of the problems involved in these experiences by an appeal to the Scriptures? Think for a moment of the value of such a method in habituating the child to turn to the Scriptures as his final court of appeal in cases where moral issues are involved.

The Use of the Scriptures

Gary Cleveland Myers, head of the division of Parental Education of Cleveland College, Western Reserve University, says that it is in the home that the child must become acquainted with the Bible as literature, as it is surprising how little opportunity is afforded the child for this in the Sunday school. We know that the language of the Bible affords a medium of expression for the noblest and most sublime thoughts. Mr. Myers tells us that so far as oral English is concerned, those children who have learned to read aloud with pleasure frequently from the Bible, repeating over and over those parts they have found most musical and pleasing to their feelings, have a training which should make them ready and accurate with tongue and pen. He sees great value in a limited number of "memory gems," well selected, and says that no single volume has so many choice portions as the Bible, even if our interest is merely in its literary value.

The reading of the Bible for this purpose may be coordinated with the reading of it for its moral and spiritual value. If there are several children in the family, they should be encouraged to read aloud, in rotation, the verses of a selected chapter, the parents giving strict attention to their reading.

Other Inspirational Literature Desirable

But let it not be thought that the Bible should form the exclusive reading of devotional periods. It may be alternated with other choice literature, including stories for children, having ethical and spiritual value. Even short biographical sketches have their place at this time. In these the child becomes familiar with characters which serve as life-patterns for his words and deeds. Addington Bruce, in his book, Your Growing Child, deplors the fact that so little biography is taught in our public schools. Pictures of a religious nature, as well as others, which emphasize honesty, self-control, sympathy, good manners, and other valuable traits, should occupy no small place in our program for these periods. Sometimes a song service, either alone, or preceding or following the usual exercises, has a salutary effect upon the worshipers. The Lord has said that the song of the righteous is a prayer unto him, and shall be answered with a blessing upon their heads.

If there is a great difference in the ages of the children it perhaps would be unwise to have the same exercises for all. Some time ago I participated in the devotional exercises of a home in which the children, ranging in age from seven to ten, listened to the story of the Last Supper, charmingly told, after which they and the adults had prayers together. Then the children were dismissed, after which the adult members of the family engaged in a study of the lesson assigned them for the following Sunday, by their teacher in the church school.

Prayers should be brief and simple, relating themselves, as a rule, to the common needs of the day. Seldom, if ever, should adult griefs and cares be voiced in the presence of children. These should be presented to our heavenly Father in secret.

These ideas are merely suggestive, and the thoughtful parent will perhaps think of many more ways to make the period of daily worship attractive. Let us remember that it is by the faithful observance of this period that the child forms the habit of setting aside a portion of his day for prayer and meditation upon those things which tend to the upbuilding of his character.

Do You Know These People?

The Department of Statistics Asks Aid in Locating Lost Members

To the Editors and Readers of the Saints' Herald, Greetings:

In the list which follows are the names of persons who have been reported unknown by the secretary of the Kansas City Stake. A diligent effort has been made by the stake officers and by this department to locate these persons, with a marked degree of success in many cases, but after everything has been done along available lines, the following names remain on the list.

We are therefore appealing to the readers of the Herald, asking them to go over the list carefully, and if they can give us any information about any of these names that will assist us in bringing the records up to date, to send the same to the Department of Statistics, The Auditorium, Independence, Missouri. If the complete present address can not be given, suggestions as to where the same may be obtained will be appreciated. This list was started in the Herald for September 30, and will continue in subsequent issues until completed.

Yours sincerely,

DEPARTMENT OF STATISTICS,

By C. L. OLSON.

Name	Year of Birth	Year of Baptism	Places Where Once Enrolled
Harrison, Marie	1902	1913	Saint Joseph, Missouri; Kansas City.
Harrison, Minnie M. M. (Harrison)	1891	1906	Kansas City.
Harrison, Simon D.	1873	1897	Kansas City.
Hartnell, Jessie Jewell	1899	1910	Post Oak, Missouri; Kansas City.
Haylik, Peter Paul	1899	1921	Kansas City.
Hayes, Lena Lota	1894	1904	Armstrong, Kansas.
Hayes, Mary K.	1878	1923	Kansas City.
Head, Harlan	1901	1910	Bevier, Missouri; Kansas City.
Head, Bazaleel E.	1855	1891	Knobnoster, Missouri; Brutville, Missouri; Rich Hill, Missouri; Kansas City, Missouri.
Hedgecock, Eunice Pearl (Myers)	1903	1918	Warrensburg, Missouri; Kansas City.
Hedges, Theodore M.	1898	1910	Kansas City.
Heinman, Lola Violet (Leeton)	1910	1924	Kansas City.
Hendrickson, Edith Jane	1893	1916	Quindaro, Kansas.
Henry, Nancy A.	1869	1913	Quindaro, Kansas.
Hequembourg, Rose	1867	1896	Chelsea Park, Kansas.
Herr, Ethel E.	1894	1912	Wray, Colorado; Kansas City.
Herriott, Zella Idella	1891	1905	Kansas City.
Hesketh, Julia A.	1840	1896	Kansas City.
Hickman, Cora M.	1878	1906	Kansas City.
Hickman, Venus B.	1898	1906	Kansas City.
Hicks, Ethel M.	1892	1902	Armstrong, Kansas City.
Hicks, Ivan	1897	.....	Armstrong, Kansas.
Hicks, Ruth	1896	1904	Armstrong, Kansas.
Hienes Olivene	1886	1912	Kansas City.
Higgins, Donald Earle	1914	1925	Kansas City.
Higgins, Earl B.	1892	1903	Evergreen, Iowa; Armstrong, Kansas.
Higgins, Effie Ann Eleanor	1894	1914	Grandview, Kansas.
Higgins, Madaline L.	1888	1897	Grandview, Kansas.
Hile, Bert Lincoln	1890	1913	Kansas City, Bennington Heights, Missouri.
Hill, Delilah Pearl (Paxton)	1904	1915	Taberville, Missouri; Warrensburg, Missouri; Kansas City.
Hill, Jewel M. (Nowlin)	1899	1907	Kansas City.
Hill, Ralph Ervin	1912	1921	Kansas City.
Hill, Violet Marie	1901	1910	Lamoni, Iowa; Kansas City.
Hill, Verna Alice (Carpenter)	1913	1921	Kansas City.
Hinkle, Bertie B.	1887	1901	Kansas City.
Hinkle, Ethel	1890	1901	Kansas City.
Hinkle, Mary B.	1860	1901	Kansas City.
Hirsch, Morris	1891	1915	Kansas City.
Hobbs, Drewery Vernon	1902	1915	Grandview, Kansas.
Hobbs, Eudora (Edmunds, Higgins) (Wear)	1861	1871	Irvington, California, Grandview, Kansas.
Hodge, Mary A.	1857	1885	London, Ontario; Armstrong, Kansas.
Hogue, Laura M.	1876	1910	Kansas City.
Holden, Viola May	1908	1919	Malvern Hill, Kansas.
Holt, Sidney Dewey	1899	1923	Far West Stake, Kansas City.
Hopkins, Edithe T.	1893	1902	Kansas City.
Hopkins, Ira H.	1868	1897	Kansas City.
Hough, Daniel Franklin	1899	1907	Quindaro, Kansas.
Houts, Rollie S.	1899	1909	Kansas City.
Howell, Delia (Edwards)	1892	1900	Armstrong, Kansas; Grandview, Kansas.
Hoyer, Ruth Lourie	1900	1913	Independence, Kansas City.
Hubbard, Hammett Council	1896	1924	Kansas City.
Huffman, Pearl L. (Fifer)	1881	1891	Kansas City.

Name	Year of		Places Where Once Enrolled
	Birth	Baptism
Hume, Mary Susie	1898	1912	Independence, Malvern Hill, Kansas.
Hume, Rosa Clara	1903	1912	Independence, Malvern Hill, Kansas.
Hume, Sarah Elizabeth	1901	1912	Independence, Malvern Hill, Kansas.
Hunt, Annie E.	1858	1921	Flint, Michigan; Kansas City.
Hunt, Roberta Arleigh	1913	1922	Kansas City.
Hunter, William David	1876	1922	Kansas City.
Huntington, Beulah Irene (Hyde)	1907	1921	Holden, Kansas City.
Hutchinson, Rollie Lee	1910	1919	Post Oak, Missouri; Independence, Missouri; Holden, Missouri; Kansas City.
Irvine, Alexander	1885	1916	Denver, Colorado; Kansas City.
Irvine, Margaret Oline	1906	1916	Denver, Colorado; Kansas City.
Irvine, Regina	1886	1916	Denver, Colorado; Kansas City.
Jackson, Edna Mae, (Kaplinger)	1906	1914	Quindaro, Kansas; Independence, Kansas City.
Jackson, Ethel Ora	1899	1924	Kansas City.
Jackson, Eugene Victor	1907	1924	Kansas City.
Jackson, John E.	1896	1911	Bennington Heights, Missouri; Kansas City.
Jarrett, Minnie Pearl (Messick)	1893	1906	Kansas City.
Jasper, Delbert Bebsworth	1915	1928	Kansas City.
Jasper, Howard Christian	1895	1928	Kansas City.
Jenkins, Edith Etta (Glenn)	1898	1915	Quindaro, Kansas.
Jensen, Irene (Peterson)	1901	1917	Milwaukee, Wisconsin; Kansas City.
Jensen, Paul M.	1888	1910	Kansas City, Milwaukee, Wisconsin.
Jepson, Olive	1883	1901	Audubon, Minnesota; Denver, Colorado; Kansas City.
Jernigan, Jane, (Remington)	1860	1875	Saint Louis, Missouri; Kansas City.
Hood, John	1875	1910	Armstrong, Kansas.
Hoover, Bertha L.	1894	1912	Armstrong, Kansas.
Johnson, Alfred	1854	1888	Kansas City.
Johnson, Alma Ollie	1891	1920	Kansas City.
Johnson, Anna Matilda	1910	1920	Kansas City.
Johnson, Cecil	1914	1923	Kansas City.
Johnson, Clinton Eugene	1892	1923	Kansas City.
Johnson, Eva Olive Fay	1907	1920	Kansas City.
Johnson, John F.	1858	1894	Lees Summit, Kansas City.
Johnson, John H.	1874	1900	Chicago, Illinois; Kansas City.
Johnson, Katherine Francis	1906	1920	Kansas City.
Johnson, Mabel Ruth (Schimmel)	1891	1902	Independence, Missouri; Malvern Hill, Kansas.
Johnson, N. Roy	1887	1897	Moorhead, Iowa; Kansas City.
Johnson, Ralph Uroyal	1911	1922	Woodbine, Iowa; Kansas City.
Johnson, Ruby Beatrice, (Spears)	1906	1919	Webb City, Missouri; Kansas City.
Johnson, Willa Ida May	1908	1920	Kansas City.
Johnson, William Andrew	1892	1923	Pittsburg, Kansas; Kansas City.
Johnson, Arthur C.	1898	1909	Kansas City.
Johnson, Laura Frances (Shimel)	1892	1902	Independence, Missouri; Malvern Hill, Kansas.
Johnson, Minnie Belle	1888	1925	Kansas City.
Jones, Edith Laura (Weaver)	1890	1908	Saint Joseph, Missouri; Kansas City.
Jones, Eva Marie (Welch)	1907	1922	Bevier, Missouri; Macon, Missouri; Kansas City.
Jones, Joseph W.	1899	1919	Bennington, Heights, Missouri.
Jones, Marshall Clement	1904	1915	Grandview, Kansas.
Junkins, Ethel A. (Rudd) (Lane)	1889	1899	Cove, Arkansas; Grannis, Arkansas; Holden, Missouri; Kansas City.
Justice, Elizabeth	1891	1910	Independence, Missouri; Kansas City.
Justice, Elsie	1905	1916	Independence, Missouri; Kansas City.
Justice, Hattie Ella May	1901	1921	Kansas City.
Kaiser, Hazel Pearl (Herriott)	1889	1900	Chelsea Park, Kansas; Kansas City.
Kaylor, Harvey	1874	1912	Independence, Missouri; Kansas City.
Kechler, William James	1865	1912	Argentine, Kansas.
Keene, Effie Elmyra	1878	1922	Kansas City.
Kelley, Edwin L.	1883	1901	Byrnsville, Indiana; New Albany, Indiana; Independence, Kansas City.
Kelley, Nellie Bell	1908	1919	Kansas City.
Kellner, Mary M. (Near)	1885	1897	Chelsea Park, Kansas.
Kelso, Alton	1893	1917	Nevado, Missouri; Kansas City.
Kender, John A.	1843	1909	Kansas City.
Kennedy, Carrie M. (Faler)	1882	1894	Eldorado Springs, Missouri; Chelsea Park, Kansas.
Kennedy, Edith V. (Anderson)	1899	1911	Guilford, Missouri; Kansas City.
Kennedy, Evelyn	1911	1920	Lamoni Stake, Burlington, Iowa; Kansas City.
Kennedy, Lois Clyttaaee	1904	1913	Kansas City, Eldorado Springs, Missouri.
Kennedy, Daisy Pauline	1918	1928	Kansas City.
Kennedy, Darrell Paul	1918	1928	Kansas City.
Kern, George Edwin	1901	1910	Kansas City.
Kern, Nora E.	1877	1903	Kansas City.
Kender, Arthur G.	1890	1915	Argentine, Kansas.
King, Lulu (Kinder)	1880	1899	Saint Joseph, Missouri; Kansas City.
Kirkpatrick, Mollie	1881	1920	Kansas City.
Kirkpatrick, William Y.	1876	1920	Kansas City.
Knox, Bertha May	1901	1923	Holden, Missouri; Kansas City.
Kopp, George W.	1884	1911	Kansas City.
Kreider, Mary Elizabeth (Wood)	1908	1919	Kansas City.
Lacey, Margaret Philoman (Mhore)	1894	1906	Saint Louis, Missouri; Hutchinson, Kansas; Kansas City.
Lacy, Lillian May (Crick)	1896	1916	Independence, Kansas City.
Lackey, Grace Naomi	1905	1920	Kansas City.
Lackey, Lulu	1904	1919	Kansas City.
Ladin, Elizabeth	1831	1886	Armstrong, Kansas.
LaGalington, Lenora Mae	1902	1914	Quindaro, Kansas.
Lambert, Walter M.	1868	1887	Armstrong, Kansas.
Lamkin, Leonard	1906	1921	Kansas City.
Lawton, Isabelle Turner	1903	1911	Saint Joseph, Missouri; Kansas City.
Layland, Clarence	1888	1903	Kansas City.
Layton, Anna V.	1884	1905	Pueblo, Colorado; Salt Lake City, Utah; Bennington Heights, Missouri.
Layton, Charles A.	1871	1905	Pueblo, Colorado; Salt Lake City, Utah; Bennington Heights, Missouri.
Layton, Charles Edgar	1911	1920	Kansas City.
Leat, Rena	1888	1913	Armstrong, Kansas.
Leeton, Lota Violet	1910	1924	Kansas City.
Lentz, Dowell Mowery	1897	1914	Atchison, Kansas; Kansas City.
Lentz, Gladys Langer	1906	1927	Kansas City.
Lester, John H.	1878	1907	Redmoon, Oklahoma; Piedmont, Oklahoma; Sunny Hill, Oklahoma; Oklahoma City, Oklahoma; Kansas City, Missouri.
Letiller, Frank Joseph	1875	1915	Kansas City.
Lewis, Annie S. (Inman)	1861	1884	Independence, Missouri; Kansas City.
Lewis, Earl David	1902	1910	Saint Joseph, Missouri; Kansas City.
Lewis, Elmer Forest	1900	1910	Independence, Missouri; Kansas City.
Lewis Malinda	1890	1904	Kansas City, First and Third.
Lewis, Mary	1910	1921	Kansas City.
Lewis, William F.	1894	1905	Independence, Missouri; Kansas City.
Lispet, Martha Verl (Cleveland)	1890	1900	Hersey, Michigan; Second Kansas City and First Mount Washington, Missouri.

NEWS OF CHURCH AND HOME

Address all news and letters to Editors of the Herald, Box 237, Independence, Missouri. Correspondents are requested to make their letters brief. The Editors reserve the right, on account of space limitations, to shorten all letters as circumstances require.

Nauvoo, Illinois

Many report a falling off of visitors to places of interest, but Nauvoo shows a steady increase. On Sunday afternoons Brother and Sister Page are stationed at the Mansion House, Brother Lewis at the Old Homestead and Sister Lewis at the graves of the Martyrs while crowds of visitors pass in and out. Several guides are also kept busy showing people around the town. Two thousand registered during the month of August, but many were on the grounds whose names were not recorded.

Thomas Reese, Editor of the Springfield Register, Springfield, Illinois, was a recent visitor. He is a man eighty years of age, has been editor of his paper for fifty years and claims to be the oldest active daily editor. On viewing the graves of the martyrs, he removed his hat and said to the group assembled there, "Gentlemen, I take off my hat. The murder of these men was the blackest blot upon all the history of Illinois."

Brother Page is always on the lookout for antiques to be placed in the Old Homestead and has succeeded in getting quite an interesting collection. The Nauvoo House is being gradually furnished and a number of Saints have availed themselves of the opportunity to spend the week-end there. A delegation of twenty-nine from Madison, Wisconsin, Rockford and Bellevue, Illinois, and Lucas, Iowa, were here for Labor day.

Brother Bolinger and family, of Independence, were recent week-end visitors and were present at our Sunday services. Brother Bolinger gave a talk during the worship period on the work he is doing in the junior church, and was the speaker at the eleven o'clock hour. Brother W. W. Scott, of Independence, was with us on another Sunday and spoke.

An election of officers for the ensuing year resulted in all officers being sustained as follows: Pastor, J. C. Page; superintendent of religious education, A. L. Sanford; adult division, L. H. Lewis; young people's division, Arnold Ourth; children's division, Florence Ourth; director of music, Mildred Sanford; treasurer, August Lee. An installation service was held the following Sunday evening.

On September 6, an all-day meeting was held at the Rock Creek church. Services were conducted in the morning and afternoon by Elder F. T. Mussell, of Burlington and Bishop Charles Fry of Ottumwa. At noon a picnic dinner was shared on the church grounds. In the evening Brother Mussell preached in Nauvoo.

Several Rock Creek Saints are regular attendants at our Sunday evening services, and one evening they furnished the program at the close of the class period.

A little son was born to Sister J. W. Klingelmüller, August 9, but lived only a week. The funeral was held at the home, J. C. Page officiating.

On August 26, Emma Evelin Davidson Pitt was baptized by Brother Page and confirmed by J. W. Layton. Sister Pitt was formerly a member of the Utah faith and has been a regular attendant at our services for some time.

Sister L. H. Lewis attended the Kirtland reunion, where she renewed the acquaintance of old friends and neighbors and made the acquaintance of her four grandchildren, sons and daughters of Hermona Shupe. Her son, who teaches at Long Island, met her there and returned home for a visit with homefolks before resuming his teaching in the fall.

Paul Fusselman, son of Brother and Sister Clyde Fusselman, who enlisted last June with the United States Navy, passed examinations and tests for the aviation general utilities school at the U. S. Naval Training Station, San Diego, California. Out of the group qualifying, Paul received third honors. He is now stationed at the Great Lakes Naval Station.

David Lee returned from his hiking trip across the continent with many thrilling experiences to relate. He declares he has had enough of hiking and is now helping his father in the monument shop.

Roberta Lewis and Jack Sanford are attending Grace-land and are writing home enthusiastic letters of college life.

On Rally Day the church was beautifully decorated with garden flowers by Brother and Sister L. H. Lewis. The service was in charge of A. L. Sanford and Sister O. T. Hayer, of Carthage, was the speaker.

A donation of two hundred eleven quarts of fruit, a hooked rug and an oil painting of the Old Homestead was sent to the Harvest Home Festival. Brother and Sister Wood, and Elmer Garrett drove to Independence to view the display.

Nauvoo is a busy place during the summer months. It is a great center for grape culture and it is claimed that more and better grapes are raised here than in any other locality in this part of the country. The industry, which has proved to be a very profitable one, was founded by the Icarians, who came here when the saints were driven out. Vines that were set out nearly one hundred years ago are still producing. The grape crop was unusually large this year and one hundred and fifty car loads were shipped. An abundant crop of peaches, pears and apples is now being made ready for market.

Omaha, Nebraska

Summer with its wealth of golden days is gone, and fall with its shortening days is upon us. We regret the passing of time only in so far as we find that we have not made profitable use of it. In retrospect we would take a hasty survey of the summer's activities. We can say that we here in this local have tried to keep steadily pushing onward and forward. Considering the general lack of enthusiasm and interest that seems to accompany hot weather, attendance at the services was very good and especially so on Sunday evenings.

The theme for the family worship period during August was "Building Lives of Beauty." "The Beauty of Humility" was the subject for August 2, and the sacrament service that followed depicted that attribute in the attitude of the assembled congregation. A prophecy of encouragement and the admonition to sacrifice was given. At the union service of the Central and South Side branches in the evening, Pastor Melvin Russell chose for his subject, "The Adventure of Righteousness."

On the last Sunday in August we had as guests Brother Blair Jensen and family of Lamoni, Iowa. Brother Jensen was the speaker in the evening, and reminded us that the challenge of our heritage was that we should live in such a manner as to show that we know the angel flew in the midst of heaven.

Sunday, September 27, was observed as Rally Day. It was a beautiful autumn day and attendance was very good. The closing remark of Brother Merle Grover's morning sermon was very fitting: "Rally ye to this banner of King Immanuel, and as ye rally, let your hands be clean. Soil it not!" Brother Russell's sermon in the evening was on the "Gifts of the Spirit."

On October 3 and 4 a conference of the Northeastern Nebraska District was held at Decatur. Apostle E. J. Gleazer, and Missionaries E. B. Hull and W. A. Smith were in attendance. At this meeting, which was one of the best held in this district in a long time, Doctor H. A. Merchant was elected president. Apostle Gleazer was the speaker in Omaha on Sunday evening and took for his text the question asked by Paul: "Unto what then were ye baptized?" "With conditions such as they are," he said, "it is high time each one decides that question for himself. Just how we answer that question is going to determine just how much we can stand and how much service can be expected of us. We can not make sacrifices unless we answer the question in the affirmative."

Doctor H. A. Merchant addressed the Saints of the South Side on the morning of October 11. His subject was "Our Obligations," and one of the big things he named under this heading is the keeping of the financial law of the church. Elder E. B. Hull was the speaker at the union service in the evening, and gave an interesting sermon on the "Signs of the Times."

We were made sad by the further retrenchment that was deemed necessary, but our determination is to push on, and we have faith and hope to believe that this cloud will have a "silver lining," and that "it is always darkest just before dawn."

Foraker Branch

Shidler, Oklahoma, October 9.—Since we moved to our small church in Shidler, the Saints seem to be more enthusiastically busy in the work of latter days. The local priesthood are entering into their calling with greater zeal than for some time. The women have taken up their activities, and the workers are optimistic over their plans.

Elder S. W. Simmons has left this vicinity. He had a great desire to go to Missouri, for he has preached concerning the gathering of God's people for many years. And so he and Sister Simmons are there. A letter from Sister Simmons tells friends that Brother Simmons is again suffering from the malady which caused him so much pain during the past summer. We regret to hear this and hope for him an effective treatment and speedy recovery.

Last Sunday's enrollment for the church school was fifty-six. While the Saints feel that we have in the past had good quarterlies, the adults believe that Brother C. B. Woodstock's lessons on the Book of Mormon are timely. We have not given as much time to this study as we should.

Brother Woslum and his son, Fred, stained and varnished the church floor during the past week. This work was much appreciated.

Central Michigan District

The special conference for this district proved a spiritual feast if we are to judge from the testimony of all the district stalwarts. The Lord was with his people, and in the business session nearly every vote taken was unanimous. The Saints are eager to be blessed with the spirit of peace, the peace that Jesus gives his followers.

The one-day meetings over the district have been of higher quality and order even than the conference. The Saints have indeed feasted on the good things of the Father's kingdom. We feel that the needs of the hour are humility, faith, confidence, and willing hearts. Surely the ones who are blessed with these things will see Zion. We feel also that the cause of Zion will not be delayed if we heed the admonition and advice of the men in charge, stand by them, pay little attention to the rumors that are abroad, and do our duty with sincere hearts.

Bentley, Coleman, Saginaw, and other points have had very fine meetings, the Spirit of the Lord being poured out upon the members. This was also the experience at the Park of the Pines reunion, where was felt a wonderful spirit of unity and peace.

Many have said, "Brother Case, how do you like your new field in Michigan?" To this I always reply: "Very fine because I love the work of the Lord, and there are many staunch, noble Latter Day Saints in Michigan."

HUBERT CASE.

Northeastern Nebraska Conference

The Northeastern Nebraska district conference was held at Decatur, Nebraska, October 3 and 4. Apostle E. J. Gleazer, assisted by E. B. Hull, presided. The usual reports were received. The bishop's agent's report showed that so far this year we have raised the quota assigned us by the Presiding Bishopric. H. A. Merchant was elected district president to succeed E. B. Hull, who has been appointed to serve as a traveling missionary in other districts.

The outstanding meeting of the conference was the sacrament and prayer service held at 9.30 a. m. Sunday. A wonderful spirit of consecration was present. Under such an influence one realizes that the church of Christ will triumph in spite of the present unusual difficulties.

Brother Gleazer preached two inspiring sermons. The Sunday evening service was the first of a missionary series by Elder W. A. Smith, of Independence, Missouri.

The interest and devotion by the many in attendance marked this as an outstanding conference.

Stockton, California

Sutter and Clay Streets

This time our letter to the Herald begins with an account of our annual business meeting August 12. District President G. P. Levitt was present to take charge. The only change in the personnel of branch officers was in the office of director of religious education where Sister Tinkess took the place of Brother Greer whose business cares made his release imperative.

Among the visiting ministry who have occupied the pulpit are A. E. Frazier, pastor of Modesto Branch; Joseph Malone, of East Saint Louis, Illinois, and Bishop Albert Carmichael who planned his tour so as to give Stockton two nights. His counsel was gratefully received by a congregation of workers.

Stockton members were saddened by the removal of Sister Orr, who has gone to Tuscon, Arizona, to live. She was a tireless worker in the branch, having occupied in the department of women for nearly a quarter of a century. Our prayer is that she will be happy in her new home.

September 22 a fine baby girl came to the home of Brother and Sister Maurice Holden.

The young people of the branch presented a play, "The Missionary's Barrel," September 11. They sold home-made candy and pie a la mode, clearing more than eighteen dollars for the Christmas offering fund.

The women of the adult division earned more than thirty-eight dollars at a chicken supper September 24. Proceeds will be used for branch expense.

October 4 Sister Hattie Carey and family motored from Oakland. Her two grandchildren, Jeanne and Edna Dardenelle, were baptized during the morning services.

The women are busy sewing, quilting, and making all kind of fancy work pieces for their annual bazaar.

The general trend of branch affairs here is upward and onward.

Oakland Branch Becomes "East Bay Church"

At the annual business meeting of Oakland Branch, held October 2, at the new church in Berkeley, California, the name "Oakland Branch" was changed to "East Bay Church" by motion and vote. Now there is no Oakland Branch, nor have the Saints a church building at Oakland. But Oakland people are hoping someday to have a church home.

Muskegon, Michigan

Kenneth and Catawba Streets

The pastor and all members of this branch extend a hearty welcome to those visiting Muskegon and vicinity.

Brother William Farwig baptized his son, William, at 3 o'clock Sunday, September 27. William, Jr., was confirmed by Elder A. Whitehead at the evening service. At that time also the infant son of Brother and Sister Farwig was blessed.

Others recently baptized into the kingdom of God are Sisters Goss and Thelma and Sybol Oliver.

Brother William Osler, president of Southern Michigan and Northern Indiana District, held services here the week of September 20. He gave some instructive sermons.

It is being noised around that Apostle D. T. Williams will be here October 18. Everyone is looking forward to that time.

At the annual business meeting September 28, Elder A. W. Whitehead was sustained branch president, with Elder E. E. Loomis as associate pastor. H. D. Osborn was placed as Sunday school superintendent, also leader of the Department of Recreation and Expression.

The young women of the branch have become more interested in the work since organizing a chapter of Temple Builders under the direction of Sister Eva Vannetter. Conducting sales and furnishing prizes for contests at our Sunday school picnics have been some of their undertakings.

The church school sponsored many social activities during the summer, having three picnics and some parties.

Elder A. Whitehead's address is 1816 Ellwood Street.

Haileyville, Oklahoma

Elder and Sister J. W. Peterson spent five weeks here conducting an open air meeting. At the close, Brother Peterson baptized eleven people. We are glad to welcome the new members. Brother and Sister Peterson have won a warm place in the hearts of Haileyville Saints. We hope they will remain in this district. A surprise party was given this pair in the home of Brother and Sister H. T. Hampton on October 7.

Attendance at Sunday school and prayer services was small during the summer due to vacation time and an epidemic of the smallpox, but now the number present is assuming normal proportions, and the outlook for the gospel work is more hopeful.

For weeks the prayer services have been marked by high spiritual quality, and the first Sunday of October an especially good worship hour was experienced. These services have done much to keep courage in the hearts of the members.

In August Brother H. R. Harder, of Wilburton, spoke one Sunday morning. He was accompanied by Brother Sam Bussell. Their short visit was much enjoyed.

Haileyville members were pleased to read a sermon by Elder C. G. Smallwood in the Oklahoma City Times for August 8. "Civilization's Foundation" was the title. Brother Smallwood is pastor in Oklahoma City. He labored as missionary and district president of this district for four or five years, and the Saints are pleased to hear of him and his progress.

Sister Floyd Wallace, of Wilburton, is improving after undergoing a serious operation at Albert Pike Hospital, in McAlester.

Brother Allen Wooten, of McAlester, died July 27, after a week's illness. The cause of his demise was a stroke of apoplexy. He left to mourn his wife and one son.

Sister Allen Wooten lost her mother, Sister Jenkins, a week prior to Brother Wooten's death.

The Saints were grieved to hear of the accident of Francis Powell, youngest son of Brother and Sister A. M. Powell, of Tulsa. He was struck by an automobile. We hope for his speedy recovery.

Brother W. P. Hubble was given a birthday surprise party August 20, and Sister Hubble was given a surprise party the following week. Pleasant evenings are reported for both occasions.

Sister Mary Sills, who suffered a stroke of paralysis over a year ago, was able to attend Brother Peterson's meetings. She came on crutches. The Saints welcomed her gladly and hope that she will soon be restored to normal health.

Vinalhaven, Maine

October 4.—Today is fair and sunshiny, and the Saints are gathered in the church for sacrament service. Attendance is fair and there is a good spirit present. Many bear their testimonies and express their desires to live true and faithful to the cause intrusted to the Saints.

Recently there occurred a break in our ranks. Sister Etta Brown, who was a devoted and loving mother and a faithful and loyal church worker, has gone to her reward. Brother E. F. Robertson came from Stonington to deliver the funeral sermon, and a wonderful spirit characterized the service.

The Department of Recreation and Expression is going along nicely under the direction of Brother Ralph Candage. There is large attendance of young boys and girls, members and nonmembers, at the Friday evening sessions. They play games, take part in the exercises, and report an enjoyable time.

The members of the branch observed Rally Day October 1. A baked bean supper was served from 5 to 6 p. m., then came a program in which nearly all took part. There were talks, readings and songs. Brother Archie Beggs was there watching to see that every one was having a good time. Brother Beggs is always to be found doing this.

The past summer proved profitable in church services, especially in recreational work. There have been large crowds to witness volley ball and other games at the city park, two miles from the business section of the town.

Brother Archie Beggs has started a series of cottage meetings which will last through the winter.

Vinalhaven Saints look forward to a busy winter and hope the Lord will bless all in our righteous works.

Cleveland, Ohio

East Branch

Pastor and Sister J. A. Gunsolley are actively keeping the gospel work progressing in spite of depressing times.

This branch recently lost two families, Brother Clarence Smith and family and Brother and Sister John Saxton and family moving to Pennsylvania.

The Saints heard a sermon by a guest speaker, Brother Joe Jacques, the second Sunday of September. Brother Jacques, who is well known throughout Kirtland District, gave a sermon which was much enjoyed.

On Wednesday evening, September 9, James H. Halbot and E. L. Cooper were installed as counselors to Pastor J. A. Gunsolley.

Local speakers occupying the pulpit on Sunday mornings during September were J. H. Talbot, J. Andes, and E. L. Cooper. The pastor occupied the Sunday evening hours. Attendance has been rather good, but we think Brother Gunsolley's sermons deserve a larger hearing.

In keeping with the suggestion of the general church officers, Sunday, September 27, was observed as Rally Day. At that time the Saints were happy to welcome members from various parts of the district. One especially, was given a joyous welcome, Sister Marjorie Kirkendall, of Creola, formerly one of our active young workers. She has been ill for some time and unable to leave her home for the past two and one half years. We feel that it is through the goodness of our heavenly Father that Marjorie was able to meet with us on Rally Day.

One of the most impressive services of the day was that of baptism conducted at 8.30 in the morning. The candidate, the husband of Sister Ethel Ovenden Vanderwolf, was conducted into the church by Pastor J. A. Gunsolley and in the following meeting was confirmed under the hands of F. T. Haynes, of Lakewood Branch, J. H. Talbot, and J. A. Gunsolley. The Spirit of the Master was there with assurance.

Pastor Gunsolley was in charge of the 11 o'clock hour, being assisted by J. L. Cooper, of Kirtland. A brief sketch of the growth of Cleveland Branch was read by the secretary, Sister Elizabeth Campbell. Reminiscent talks were given by Brothers E. A. Webbe, of Kirtland, T. Smith, of Lakewood, and F. T. Haynes, of Lakewood, all former members of East Cleveland Branch.

The different brothers who were mentioned as helpers in building up the work in Cleveland are Joseph Smith, E. L. Kelley, H. Kelley, H. Parsons, O. V. Thompson, J. W. Rush-ton, Paul M. Hanson, and G. T. Griffiths. The last named organized the branch May 2, 1896.

Basket dinner was served at noon. The afternoon meeting was a round table discussion. J. L. Cooper was in charge of the young people and J. A. Gunsolley led the adult group.

The evening service was in charge of Pastor Gunsolley and his counselors, J. H. Talbot and E. L. Cooper.

Special music for the day was furnished by Brother and Sister W. E. Householder, of Kirtland, assisted at the piano by Sister Irene Flack, also of Kirtland; Brother T. G. Neville, of Willoughby, Ohio, and Clarence Thomas, accompanied at the organ by Sister Maud Mason.

Kirtland, Ohio

Kirtland people and other friends mourn the loss of two devoted members. September 23 our beloved Patriarch Albert E. Stone passed on, after a considerable period of illness. He was actively engaged in ministerial work under general church appointment for many years, and was located at Kirtland for the past twenty-six years. The Saints here will remember him for his didactical sermons and his steadfastness and courage in every walk of life.

On September 28 our youthful sister, Sarah Booher, passed away following an appendicitis operation and the setting in of peritonitis. She was the daughter of Brother and Sister John R. Booher, sister of Paul and twin sister of Catherine. Sarah was graduated from Kirtland High School, with her twin, in the class of 1931. She was an honor student, valedictorian of her class, a member of the Lake County scholarship Club and president of this fine society at the time of her death. She was assistant secretary of the church school and had vocal and instrumental talents. The funeral was held from the Temple September 30, Pastor John L. Cooper officiating.

Many things could be said of these two Saints who have gone on, but space does not permit. We sum up their work by saying that their efforts have been given to splendid, loving service in all lines of Christian endeavor.

The branch business meeting was held in the Temple September 10, and the newly-elected officers assumed their duties October 1. The officers are as follows: Pastor, J. L. Cooper; secretary, J. E. Davidson; treasurer, W. H. Davidson; branch solicitor, Thomas Gale; librarian, Alma Curry; music board: Albert Wouters, Adeline Clough, and Irene Flack; superintendent of religious education, Earl Curry; superintendent of adult division, J. E. Davidson; superintendent of young people, Arthur Sheppard; superintendent of children, Jennie Cooper; director of Dramatics, John Collin; superintendent of Women's Department, Carrie Davies. A council meeting of the officers resulted in a determination that every member actively engage in some work during the coming year. The present total membership of Kirtland Branch is three hundred seventy including the Painesville group.

The September sacrament meeting was held as usual in the Temple with its white walls and gold background of letters.

The Kirtland Dramatic Club presented the play that was given during the past reunion, "The Rebellion of Youth," under the auspices of the Kirtland Parent-Teacher Association, the evening of October 9.

Miss Virginia Webbe, daughter of Elder and Sister Ernest A. Webbe, is teaching school in Leroy, Ohio, this year.

Holden Stake

Holden Church

The Holden Stake conference will meet at Holden Saturday and Sunday, November 14 and 15.

Brother W. H. Eliason and family have moved to Kingsville, where he is superintendent of the school. They attend and are valuable help in the church activities.

The Square Deal dining hall, at the State Fair, turned a substantial sum into the stake building fund. The publicity booth at the Fair, in charge of U. W. Greene and H. A. Koehler, made some fine contacts and gave many estimable people a clearer understanding of the church and its message.

Brother and Sister Shutt, of East Lynn, Missouri, are giving their neighbors an opportunity to hear the gospel.

Brother Roy Kleckler, of Kingsville, held a series of services there in August, and Brothers J. Charles May and George Harrington followed with another series in the tent in September. The attendance of nonmembers was liberal and some are near the kingdom.

"The Church of Christ in Prophecy and History" is the theme of a series of Sunday morning sermons by W. S. Macrae at Holden, beginning October 25.

Atherton Church

Atherton members made a trip to Far West, August 22, visiting on the way places associated with the early history of the church. Elder John F. Sheehy was spokesman at each place. At noon the travelers lunched together after which some departed for home; quite a number, however, went on to the Stewartville reunion.

In the evening Brother Myron Holman preached to a rather small crowd of the home congregation, due to the absence of those taking the trip to Far West. Small attendance, however, did not detract from his earnest message.

Elder Bruce E. Brown spoke August 29. His sermon was based on the text: "It is the glory of God to conceal a thing; but the honor of kings is to search out a matter."—Proverbs 25:2. Some of his good thoughts were: The Lord conceals that he may more abundantly reveal. It is the glory of God to conceal his love and mercy behind clouds and travail. In our sufferings we gain our greatest blessings. Disappointments make us think.

That evening Brother Otho Clark preached on "The Purpose of the Restoration."

The sacrament service was an exceptionally large one. Many visitors chose to meet with us. Two babies were blessed at this service, the infant sons of Brother and Sister Otho Clark and Brother and Sister Austin. Bishop J. A. Koehler preached in the evening.

Last Sunday Bishop C. A. Skinner related to this congregation some of the perplexing conditions existing in the world and the causes. He urged the necessity of colonization in preparing for these conditions and the supplying of our just wants and needs. This will insure the existence of true brotherhood.

Elder A. E. Allen, pastor, preached in the evening on the text, "Art thou he that should come, or are we to look for another?"

Blue Springs Church

The sacrament service was a source of encouragement and spiritual uplift. The following ministers have occupied this pulpit the last month: O. W. Sarratt, R. J. Stark, Harold W. Hattey, Alma Campbell, and Brother Grubb, of Grain Valley.

The spirit was present in our experience and rally services, September 27, which closed with a fine sermon by Brother C. Warren, and some special numbers by a quartet composed of Brother and Sister C. Warren, Sister Jones, and Brother Bullard.

The Wednesday evening prayer services are well attended and encouraging.

Our church is pleased to have a new family of Saints from Hammond, Indiana, Brother and Sister Gerald Phillips.

The department of music is growing under the leadership of Sisters A. L. House, chorister, and P. L. Tomlinson, pianist.

Grandview Church

The condition of this branch is good; we are prospering. Attendance at Sunday school and preaching services is splendid. Pastor Charles Martin is working hard to bring about the best results.

September 13, following the Sunday school session, the Saints took lunch baskets and drove to Wintermute Park, about two miles east of Grandview. There were found grounds, tables, swings, and all other picnic conveniences. About one hundred and twenty-five enjoyed dinner and a good time, this being our annual Sunday school picnic.

Here as elsewhere September 27 was Rally Day. There was good attendance for the program and basket dinner. Among the visiting brothers and their families were Apostle J. F. Curtis, of Independence, and Brother F. A. McWethy, of Holden. Brother Curtis preached at the morning hour, and Brother McWethy at 2.30 in the afternoon. They gave fine sermons. The spirit of goodwill prevailed throughout the day.

Saints are now looking forward to the Thanksgiving feast and all-day worship which has been an annual event from the first Thanksgiving in our new church. The meeting will commence with a devotional service at 9.30 a. m. The afternoon will be given to vocal and instrumental concerts. Everyone is invited.

Ludington, Michigan

106 South Rath Avenue

Election of officers for the year from October, 1931, to October, 1932, was held at the church here September 30. The usual prayer service of that evening was omitted because of the business to be transacted.

Apostle D. T. Williams is expected to arrive October 17, to begin a series of lectures, six in number, which will be delivered at the rate of approximately one a month. The Saints are looking forward eagerly to the opportunity of listening to him. Plans to advertise the lecture are being formulated and every one will attempt to bring some non-member to the meetings.

The Women's Department recently entertained at the home of Sister Caroline Hammond for the purpose of meeting Sister Henry Smith, of Beaverton, Michigan, who was here convalescing from an operation. Sister Smith had the misfortune to lose her home and its contents by fire while in the hospital, and she was greatly surprised to be showered with gifts for the replenishing of her depleted supply of household furnishings.

The most recent activity of this department has been to clean the church building.

Five members have moved to another locality. They were very punctual attendants at services, and their presence is keenly missed in various classes.

Helen Chadwick, age ten years, was suddenly stricken with appendicitis, and underwent an operation at the Pauline Stearns Hospital, October 8.

Flint, Michigan

We hope that the infrequency of Flint letters in the Herald will not be considered as evidence of the inactivity of the Saints of this place. The facts of the matter are that the members are very much awake and actively engaged in the cause of truth, but in the press of work involving upon the pastor's office, it seems very difficult to find time to record our activities for the benefit of Herald readers.

The fall and winter program of the branch is now well under way, and it seems no exaggeration to say that there is as great, or even greater interest shown in the work of the church now, than at any time during the last three years.

We have a larger choir than last year, a group of singers very enthusiastic in their work, and rendering some fine numbers at the Sunday evening services. Brother Franklin Weddle was re-elected as director for the coming year, and Mrs. Ruth Wallace, a piano and vocal teacher, is giving her support at the piano. Brother Stanley Shears (not yet a member, but will be baptized soon) plays all the special numbers on the organ, at the Sunday morning and evening services. We are highly favored by having the services of Brother Shears. We only have a small six octave organ for him to play just now, but we are hoping before long to have a new pipe organ installed, and Brother Shears is happily anticipating this event; he is a pipe organ player.

The young people's division of the church school, under the superintendency of Sister Mildred Barker, is building up the Friday evening service of recreation and expression in a commendable manner. Sister Barker is a girl of initiative and knows how to plan programs that please the young people.

The adult and children's divisions of the school have also been doing good work.

Pastor Thomas L. Clarke has occupied the pulpit almost every Sunday evening this year at Central Church, delivering a series of sermons on Christ's sermon on the Mount. These sermons have been inspiring and helpful, and have given the Saints a much deeper appreciation of the significance, beauty and worth, of the philosophy of Christ. Never did we realize before, the scope of truth which Jesus covered in that wonderful sermon.

Throughout the year 1931, the adult class, which usually numbers about one hundred, has listened to lectures delivered by C. M. Clifford, A. H. DuRose, and the pastor. Brother Clifford's training and research along scientific and philosophical lines enable him to make a contribution to the church which but few men are able to make. Flint Saints consider themselves fortunate in having the services of Brother Clifford. Elder DuRose has also made a wonderful contribution toward the education of the Saints of this place. His messages are always practical, and we feel that he ranks among the advanced thinkers of our age.

At present Pastor Clarke is delivering a series of lectures to the adult class on "The Fundamentals of Christianity."

In these lectures Elder Clarke is sinking the foundations of our faith to the bedrock principles of the philosophy of Christ, which, he claims, if we will build upon, we can never be moved by the modern winds of science, psychology, and philosophy. The Saints are thrilled by these lectures, and we feel that the membership will be greatly stabilized by listening to them.

Two classes for prospective members (candidates for baptism) are conducted each Sunday morning during the regular church school class period. One of these classes is for adults and the other for children. The rule followed by Flint Branch is to give the candidates for baptism an opportunity to learn the fundamental principles of the gospel, and the high points of our church history in twelve class periods before they are received by baptism. We feel that such a course of instruction is not only going to result in a better informed, but in a more stable membership.

Preparation is now being made for our annual budget play which is presented on the occasion of the receiving of pledges for the local budget from the membership. We have abandoned the Every Member Canvass idea, and request the membership to make their pledges at the church at the close of this annual play. We have used this method for two years here, and find that we receive more pledges and also larger pledges in this way. The play this year is "The Open Windows," and is being prepared by the Tuesday Club, under the direction of Sister Lelah Everhart. It is to be given December 13.

Industrial conditions are causing the suffering of many people in this automobile center, but we are still hopeful and optimistic of the future.

When Saints visit Flint, they will receive a hearty welcome at the services of the church, and we feel we can promise them worship services that will prove refreshing to their souls.

Brentwood, Missouri

Marshall and Barry Avenues

October 12.—The conditions in this branch cause one to rejoice. The Sunday school has grown to about one hundred and ten in number whereas its enrollment had hovered between seventy-five and eighty-five. It has been said that if the school grows much more, there will have to be an addition made to the building.

Prayer meetings continue to grow in spirituality and attendance. The former average attendance of twenty has raised to fifty.

A much-needed young men's class has been organized, the membership being about seven.

In every activity there is marked improvement which encourages our membership of one hundred and thirty-five.

A musical was given Sunday evening, October 4. The musical contributions were much enjoyed. Mr. Burmeister played a violin solo, being accompanied by Miss Mildred Fathour. Mr. Burmeister teaches music in the schools here.

Everyone enjoys the recreational activities of the Good-fellows Club. Attendance is steadily growing.

Hawaiian Saints Call Elder G. J. Waller the "Big Father"

October 13.—After spending seventy-five days in the States, I have decided to return to Honolulu. There I hope to find content in work and at the same time to do what little I can to help Brother G. J. Waller.

In a former letter I promised to write the Herald concerning Brother Waller and his work. For the past forty years he has labored in the Islands. Many have read about him in the Church Histories or church papers. I spent nine months with him and could not help but notice how hard he works in both spiritual and financial fields. Six days a week he spends working for the Hawaii Meat Company, being their chief secretary and treasurer. When he leaves his office about 4.30 p. m., he makes a tour through the city of Honolulu, to visit the Saints who need for anything. He is always ready to wait upon the sick, and since there are several hundred Saints besides thousands of nonmembers, you can imagine the calls he receives each week. Not only is he willing to go to the sick to help them spiritually, but he gives much to their financial needs.

Here are some of the services he attends, taking the lead in most of them. Let us begin with Sunday. At 8.30 a. m. he meets the Japanese Branch and teaches the adult class; 9.30, he preaches to them; 10.15 he speaks to the Chinese Branch; 11 o'clock, attends the Hawaiian Branch and speaks when necessary. Then at 6 p. m. he teaches the Book of Mormon class at the Japanese Branch; 7.30 preaches for the Hawaiian Branch. On Tuesday at 7.30 he leads in the prayer meeting for the Japanese Branch; Wednesday, 7.30 p. m., prayer meeting at Main or Hawaiian Branch; Thursday, 7.30 p. m., prayer meeting at the Chinese Branch.

Nor do Brother Waller's good works stop with the city limits. He goes out into the country. And when he takes a few days' vacation from his business, he visits the other islands, also goes to Australia and the United States, preaching the gospel to all who will listen.

All the Hawaiians and other people in the Islands say that he is the "big father" to the Saints over there. His work in the business world and church is not easy. Those who have not faced the problem of teaching people of the Orient, attempting to acquaint them with the Christian religion, when neither teacher nor pupil understands the other's language, can not realize how hard the task is. For undertaking and carrying forward such a work, I give Brother Waller credit for being a good teacher.

There are many other good workers in the Hawaiian Islands, but the Saints wish more good missionaries would come their way.

Those happy months of labor in the Hawaiian Islands, though I was homesick many times, have caused me to start back with a desire to do better and to work harder than even before.

JESSE R. EVANS.

Kansas City Stake

Central Church

Sunday was College Day, a time when the congregations of Kansas City Stake were given special opportunity to share in the splendid work of Graceland College. This year seventy students have begun their studies on faith. The scholarship loan fund will bring about a realization of that faith.

The Sunday morning church service at Central was in charge of Graceland students and their friends. Prayer was offered by Edward Larsen, of the 1930 class. A duet, "The Beautiful City," by Wilson, was sung by Mrs. S. A. Burgess and Mrs. H. C. Burgess, both of Graceland's 1910 class. "Gloria" from the Twelfth Mass, by Mozart, was sung by the choir, led by George Anway, of the class of 1927. "My Faith Looks Up to Thee," Goldbeck, was sung by Mesdames Burgess. "Graceland Beloved" was the song contribution of the congregation. Then came short talks as follows: "Book Learning Isn't Enough," Mrs. A. Hulmes, of the 1911 class; "Graceland Gives More," Roy Thrutchley, 1914; "Scholarship," George Mesley, 1929. Mrs. J. A. Withee was the morning organist, and Mrs. Everett Bowser, of the 1921 class, played the piano.

The Leadership School closed last Friday evening with a total enrollment for more than two weeks of two hundred and fifty people. Central had seventy-two names enrolled. A large number of these are entitled to credit. Chelsea group walked off with the red ribbon for O. B. K. attendance. The blue ribbons were earned by several groups, Central taking two.

Tonight Central Church resumes its regular schedule of midweek prayer meetings.

Next Sunday morning Stake Missionary Arthur Oakman will preach his farewell sermon at Central before leaving for his new field of work in Saint Louis District. Brother Oakman will hold one more session of his Doctrine and Covenants class, which has been conducted under the auspices of the Central Women's Club; he will meet his pupils at 11.30 a. m. tomorrow.

Elder William Bath spoke Sunday evening, and the soloist was LeRoy Smith, baritone.

Pastor C. E. Wight has been transferred to Oklahoma City, where he will take up the work of sales manager for the Kelvinator distributing firm. This transfer may not be permanent. In the meantime a leave of absence has been granted Brother Wight and Brother Mesley will be in charge. The Saints hope that Brother Wight will have all success in his new field, but at the same time pray for his speedy return. Sister Wight will remain in Kansas City for a time.

Independence

The Independence Music Club welcomed twenty-four new members at its annual fall party which occurred October 16 in the Craig studios. Following the greetings spoken by the club president, Mrs. Louise Lewis, a delightful program was given by the following artists: Miss Lorena Kueffer, pianist; Miss Lilly Belle Allen, soprano soloist; Miss Marian Kennedy, violinist; Mrs. Werton D. Moore, contralto soloist; Mr. Arthur Oakman, baritone soloist. Accompanists were Miss Lorena Kueffer, Miss Margery Ownsworth, and Mrs. Hazel Withee. About eighty members and friends were present on this occasion.

The religious survey, undertaken by the churches of Independence this week, is receiving good response from the community. On Monday morning an organization meeting was held at the First Christian Church, then one hundred and fifty men and women began the work of making house-to-house calls in the survey. Ministers of all denominations have urged the fullest cooperation in the survey on the part of their congregations in the Kansas City area. Of this Independence is a part. "Since it has been a number of years since a complete religious census of Independence has been attempted," says the Independence Examiner, "the outcome will be of interest to all demoninations." The Reverend C. H. Koehler is director of the survey in Independence. It is expected that the results of this movement will be published this week.

The night high school of the Independence Institute of Arts and Sciences has been brought to a close for the winter by a combination of circumstances, largely attributable to the economic depression of this region. This year the number of students enrolled was far below that of other years, and unemployment caused the resignation of several of the volunteer teachers who have been forced to move to other cities. Officers in charge of the school consider the close only temporary, and hope to see the institute operating in its usual educational capacity next year. A meeting of officers and faculty the evening of September 30, definitely closed the institute doors for this winter. The night high school, which was fully accredited by the State of Missouri, has been in continuous operation since 1927, and the institute movement itself was begun at the Stone Church a number of years ago.

Stone Church

Since Promotion Day attendance of the Stone Church school has grown more regular. New classes are making progress. Teachers and pupils are settling down for a winter of growth and study.

A large congregation of the Stone Church listened, on Sunday morning, to a sermon by one of its favorite speakers, Elder C. Ed. Miller. "David," said Brother Miller, "in the 118th Psalm joyously sang: 'I called upon the Lord in distress: the Lord answered me, and set me in a large place.' Appreciation came to him of divine need, and he found divine greatness. Large movements are taking place in world affairs. Scientists are delving into space and bringing back wonderful discoveries. In the field of economics master minds are applying themselves to find a system of a more equitable distribution of the wealth which comes from the earth. The distress of the world demonstrates the fact that it needs what God is ready to supply. Jehovah is ever anxious to set us in larger places."

The Stone Church Choir, directed by Paul N. Craig, sang two anthems, and there was a pleasing solo by Mrs. Israel Smith, soprano. Elders H. G. Barto and Dan Tucker presided over the service.

The Aeolian Chorus furnished Sunday evening's music at the Stone Church, singing three pleasing numbers. Miss Ina Hattey sang the soprano solo in the last anthem, "O, Divine Redeemer."

"The Power to Become" was the theme chosen by Elder

A. B. Phillips, the evening speaker. His scripture text was: "He came unto his own, and his own received him not. But as many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name."—John 1: 11, 12.

Elder G. G. Lewis presided over the service, assisted by Elder D. O. Cato.

Enoch Hill Church

"Take Time to Be Holy," was the theme of the church school on Sunday. Mrs. Agnes Hartman was in charge, and the talk was by Pastor Herbert Barto. "Take Time to Be Holy," a solo, was sung by Mrs. Ruth Hayes.

The congregation was especially privileged in hearing a sermon by Elder O. W. Sarratt. Brother Sarratt, until a few months ago pastor of Enoch Hill, now lives on a farm near Oak Grove and is pastor at Blue Springs. Since leaving Independence, he had not found time to return to speak to this congregation until Sunday. "The Tie That Binds," was the theme of his sermon, and he spoke of the tie of love that bound Joseph of old to his brothers, the tie of faith that bound Daniel to his God, the tie of courage and faith and love which bound Moses and Joseph Smith, and the tie which binds us, as the people of God, to our responsibility in latter days. At this service the choir sang "Friend to Man" and "Lord of Galilee."

Elder Calvin H. Rich was the evening speaker.

Elder J. E. Martin and two sons went to Bates City Sunday, where Brother Martin was the morning speaker.

The last two weeks have seen a great change on the exterior of our church. Men of the congregation have been busy applying a new coat of white paint, doing carpenter work, and putting on a composition-shingle roof. Money to purchase the materials was donated, also the time and labor of the workers. We are grateful to have this work done.

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Cox announce the birth of a son, and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Riddle are the happy parents of a chubby daughter.

Mason City, Iowa

The Sunday church school is in progress here with good attendance. We have learned of and also met new Saints. The adult class continues to study the Book of Mormon and all are extremely interested. There are two younger classes. Sister Ellen Miller has an intermediate class of four and Sister Luda E. Smith has a kindergarten class of six or eight. There are from four to eight in the adult class.

On September 20 this group of Saints sent a box of canned goods to the Harvest Home Festival, and we were happy to take part in giving. On that day we had a program which consisted of a reading, "In the Garden," by Agnes Sleight Turnbull, given by Sister Newton, of Charles City; Dorothy, Elaine, and Zell Nelson sang "God's Care of All Things," and Elmer and Morna Grace Wineman gave readings. Sister Ellen Miller read a paper on "The Effect of the Care of Teeth on General Health."

October 11 Mason City members were greatly elated in having Elders Castings and McDonald, of Des Moines, with us for an all-day meeting. Sacrament service and a splendid testimony meeting were held in the forenoon. At noon a picnic dinner was served to all. In the afternoon Brother McDonald preached a wonderfully enlightening sermon. Three children were blessed at this service, Morna Grace, Richard Rudolph, and Ralph Emerson Wineman, the children of Brother and Sister Roy E. Wineman. This day will long be remembered by us.

Sister Bernice Pitzer has been very ill during the past month. Elders Castings and McDonald were called October 16, to administer to her. She seems better now, and is remembered in the prayers of the members.

MISCELLANEOUS

Conference Notices

Nauvoo district conference will meet at Fort Madison, Iowa, November 7 and 8. The church is located at 2929 Avenue L. First service will be at 9.30 a. m., November 7. Afternoon business session at 2 o'clock: Election of district officers, election of delegates to next General Conference, and other necessary business. Please send reports to W. H. Gunn, 1325 Thirtieth Street, Fort Madison, Iowa.—F. T. Mussell, district president; W. H. Gunn, district secretary.

Central Illinois district conference will be held at New Canton, Illinois, October 24, and 25, Saturday and Sunday.—M. R. Price, Taylorville, Illinois.

Southern Nebraska district conference will be held in Lincoln, Saturday and Sunday, November 7 and 8. At that time delegates to the next General Conference will be elected. There will be a program on the evening of Friday, November 6, in charge of local officers. Apostle E. J. Gleazer, missionary in charge, and O. L. D'Arcy, president of the district, will preside over the conference.—O. L. D'Arcy.

Conference of Holden Stake will be held at Holden, Missouri, November 14 and 15. Saturday the 14th, 9 a. m. to 12 o'clock, prayer service and classes; business, 2 p. m. Election of officers at the afternoon session. Apostle John F. Garver will be with us.—W. D. Macrae, stake president.

District Institutes

New York District will meet for institute work with Syracuse Branch, October 24 and 25. Necessary business for the district will be cared for at this time.—P. L. Weeger, district president.

Clinton (Missouri) District will hold a two-day institute at the Saints' church at Nevada, Missouri, November 7 and 8, commencing at 10 a. m. Saturday. President Floyd M. McDowell will conduct classes or lecture on the theme, "What the Church Endeavors to Do Through Its Teaching." These will be two days full of instruction. District officers hope that all Saints of the district, and especially branch officers and teachers, will try to be present these two days.—C. C. Martin, district director of Religious Education.

Our Departed Ones

KIRKSEY.—Juanita Proffitt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Proffitt, was born at Trenton, Missouri, July 29, 1898. She joined the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints when ten years of age. Married C. C. Kirksey. She passed away in Phoenix, Arizona, September 25, 1931, after a short illness and operation. Her husband preceded her in death. Interment was in Trenton, Missouri, where services were conducted by Elder Ammon White, assisted by the Reverend Todd, the Christian minister, from whose church the services were held. A large crowd of friends indicated the high esteem in which Mrs. Kirksey was held. Surviving are her parents, of Trenton, a brother, Delbert, of Kansas City, Missouri, and many other relatives and friends.

GLENN.—Bettie Jane Glenn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Leonard Glenn, was born October 7, 1931, and after a life of but a few hours was taken home to the Father. The baby leaves a sad father and mother, two brothers, and one sister. She seemed to be a perfect child and the cause of her death is not known. The funeral occurred October 8, the sermon being preached by Elder J. O. Dutton. Interment was in Carr Cemetery, near Gerald, Indiana.

YOUNG.—Clara A. Hedrick was born at Fanning, Kansas, May 23, 1876, daughter of William and Mary A. Collins Hedrick. She became a member of the church October 2, 1909. Married Anson L. Young in 1912. He died in 1926 in an automobile wreck. After an illness of several months, Mrs. Young passed away October 4, 1931. She is survived by the following brothers and sisters: Mrs. Malissa J. Jackson, of Fanning; Frank G. Hedrick, Atchison, Kansas; Mrs. Marguerite Hopkins, Fanning; Mrs. Mary Walker, Baldwin, Kansas; and James Hedrick, Los Angeles, California. The funeral was held from the Saints' church at Fanning, October 6, 1931, Elder Enos A. Gurwell in charge.

NIEDORP.—Beattie Blair Niedorp was born November 14, 1884, at Saint Joseph, Missouri. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lambertus Niedorp, Amsterdam, Holland, who emigrated early in their married life. He joined the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints at an early age. Died October 4, 1931, at his home in Saint Joseph. He is survived by one brother, Benjamin F. Niedorp, Saint Joseph, and one sister, Mrs. Glenn A. Scott, Kansas City, Missouri. The funeral was conducted by Elder Ward A. Hougas. Interment was in Mount Mora Cemetery.

CONDIT.—Rosalie, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Condit, passed away August 15, 1931. Funeral services were held at the home, Hagerman, Idaho, Elder O. V. Okerlind preaching a touching sermon to a large crowd of sympathizing friends. She was laid to rest beside her sister, Betty Lee, who preceded her in death three years ago. The parents have two sons left to comfort them, Harold, 13, and Clayton, 2 years old.

ELLIS.—Dolores Orletta Mills was born December 27, 1881, near Kingsley, Michigan. Married Leo O. Ellis May 19, 1906. She passed away July 23, 1931, at Eaton Rapids, Michigan, a victim of tuberculosis. Her husband preceded her in death just four months. She is survived by a son and three daughters, all living in Eaton Rapids, Michigan. Funeral and interment were at South Boardman, the sermon being by Elder B. H. Doty.

HORNER.—Cynthia Clarnda Horner, daughter of Michael and Rachel Griffith, was born September 14, 1845, at La Harpe, Illinois. With her parents she moved to Lee County, Iowa, where for seventy-five years she has lived. April 14, 1867, she married Charles Horner, of Vincennes, Iowa. Was baptized a member of the church September 27, 1862. Her death occurred September 27, 1931. Surviving are her husband, three sons, three daughters, and fifteen grandchildren. One son, Byron, preceded her in death. The funeral was held in her late home September 30, Elder James McKiernan in charge, assisted by Elder Miller. Interment was in Meek Cemetery near Vincennes, Iowa.

FISHER.—Eliza Ann Harding was born near Southampton, England, November 4, 1844. Her early life was spent there. When twenty-five years old she was united in marriage to William Mann. Five years later she moved to Canada; in 1877, moved to Arlington, Kansas. There Mr. Mann died in 1899. She was baptized a member of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints in 1876, and was always a faithful helper. In 1904 she moved to Lamoni, Iowa, where in 1910, she married George E. Fisher. He died in 1926. That year she moved to Hutchinson, Kansas, making her home there until her death, September 10, 1931. The funeral sermon was preached by Elder T. Comer Turpen, in Johnson's Funeral Parlors, Hutchinson, September 12.

VAN DUSER.—Adeline Van Duser was born in Toronto, Ontario, May 10, 1851, and died at the home of her daughter in Buffalo, New York, October 5, 1931. She united with the church in Michigan in 1878, and remained true to her covenant throughout her life. She leaves to mourn, her husband, two daughters, three sons, and many friends. The funeral service was in charge of Elder P. L. Weegar, assisted by Elder J. E. Vanderwood, October 7, and interment was in Brown City, Michigan.

SMITH.—Chancy J. Smith was born February 18, 1848, near Battle Creek, Calhoun County, Michigan. He died October 5, 1931, at the home of Hiram J. Corless, Coldwater, Michigan. He moved to Branch County, Michigan, about the year 1870, and married Louisa M. Stevens, June 10, 1875. To them were born three children: Lulu M., Fred C., and Glen D. The latter two live in Coldwater and Detroit; the daughter died in infancy. The family circle was again broken in 1903 when death claimed the wife and mother. Five years later Mr. Smith married Mrs. Emma Brickley, of Quincy, Michigan. She, too, passed away in May, 1920. He was baptized a member of the church July 10, 1874, by his uncle, Elder Samuel V. Bailey, and was a firm believer in the restored gospel. He was true to the principles of the church, to his fellow men, and to God. Left to mourn are his two sons, eight grandchildren, eight great-grandchildren, other relatives, and numerous friends. The funeral was conducted at Quincy, Michigan, October 7, 1931. Elder S. W. L. Scott delivered the sermon. Mr. Rawson and Mr. Brockway were in charge, and the oldest quartet in Coldwater Branch sang. Interment was in Lake View Cemetery, Quincy.

SHAW.—Ignatius Shaw was born in Collingwood, Ontario, April 8, 1891. He was baptized a member of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints May 28, 1919, at Oyen, Alberta, by Elder Daniel Macgregor. He was ordained to the office of deacon March 6, 1921, at Oyen, Alberta. Passed away at his home after an illness of nearly two years. At the time of his death he was forty years old. Leaves to mourn his wife and seven little girls. The funeral was conducted at Oyen, October 3, 1931, by Elder William McLeod, president of Alberta District. Interment was in the Saints' cemetery at Oyen.

Do you read the church publications?

HERALD

ENSIGN

VISION

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE

Independence, Missouri

VISION

ANNOUNCES A NEW

Short Story Contest

THE PRIZES

First Prize .....	$15.00 Cash
Second Prize .....	8.00 Cash
Third Prize .....	5.00 Cash

The Rules

1. Stories must be original, and the work of the contestant.
2. Length to be 3,000 words or under.
3. Good lively stories wanted. Doctrinaire element not required, though stories will be most favored which are wholesome in characterization, atmosphere, and culmination.
4. All stories submitted for this contest are to be considered for use in Vision, whether they win prizes or not.
5. All manuscripts should be in the hands of the Story Contest Editor on or before December 31, 1931.

Address

VISION

Story Contest Editor

Box 237

Independence, Missouri

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Frederick M. Smith, Editor in Chief.
 Elbert A. Smith, Floyd M. McDowell, Associate Editors.
 Leonard J. Lea, Managing Editor.
 Leta B. Moriarty, Assistant Editor.
 Published for the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Subscription price: By the year, $2.

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE
 INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI

CONTENTS

EDITORIAL:
Positions for Released Missionaries .....	986
Principles of the Gospel .....	986
In the Same Boat .....	987
The Present Crisis .....	988
LETTERS TO THE EDITOR:
The Producer's Dilemma .....	989
ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
That the World May Have Peace .....	990
Does War Demand Greater Loyalty Than Peace, by J. E. Vanderwood .....	991
Report of the Department of Statistics, by C. L. Olson.....	992
The Destruction of Jerusalem, by Christiana Salyards .....	993
Family Worship—Its Value, and Methods of Conducting It, by Hazel L. Minkler .....	995
NEWS OF CHURCH AND HOME .....	999
MISCELLANEOUS .....	1006

For Sale

140 acres $30.00 an acre—no trade—65 miles east of Independence. Nine-room house, good barn and outbuildings, plenty of water.

40 acres eight miles east of Independence. $4,500.

3,145 acres, northern Missouri, $25 per acre.

WATKINS REAL ESTATE,

Independence, Missouri.

Tel. 297.

FARM FOR SALE

140 improved Henry County, Missouri, farm near 13 highway, high school, churches and towns. Suitable for stock raising, dairying and poultry. Price $45.00 per acre.

Owner only,

3432 College Avenue,

Kansas City, Missouri

The Church School Handbook

A Worker's Manual

Read what one district president says of it:

"Just received my copy of the Church School Handbook. An excellent, much needed little assistant; a fine study book for leaders who are planning the year's work during their vacations. Congratulations on both content and appearance."

It Helps Others—

It Can Help You!

Price, 35 Cents

Order From

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE

Independence, Missouri

For Sale

Old Established Hardware and Plumbing Co., doing good business. Owner selling account illness.

See or write

G. W. EASTWOOD

218 West Lexington

Independence, Mo.

Buy Your Farms Now

While they are cheap. Any size, best terms. Special attention to readers of the Saints' Herald.

CHAS. R. BOWMAN

Butler, Mo.

This is the age of SPEED and our insurance adjustments are no exception. Bear this in mind when you next need INSURANCE.

INSURANCE DEPARTMENT OF THE CHURCH

(American Underwriters, Inc.)

Indep. 486

221 W. Lexington St.

NOW IS A GOOD TIME TO CHANGE.

At the mid year Interest date is an advantageous time to shift your Savings Account to a safe conservative institution with a quarter century standing.

We pay 3% on Time and Savings Deposits.
 "Soliciting New Business on Our Record."

JACKSON COUNTY BANK

Independence, Mo.

"Home of Savings"

THE SAINTS' HERALD

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF

ON eouepueepu
JETTIN S ITA
N 417WS O H

Entered as second-class matter at the post office at Independence, Missouri, under Act of October 3, 1917, authorized July 21, 1921. Accepted for mailing at the special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917; authorized July 21, 1921.

Volume 78

Independence, Missouri, October 28, 1931

Number 43

GIVING

Hereby perceive we the love of God, because he laid down his life for us: and we ought to lay down our lives for the brethren. But whoso hath this world's good, and seeth his brother have need, and shutteth up his bowels of compassion from him, how dwelleth the love of God in him? My little children, let us not love in word, neither in tongue; but in deed and in truth.—1 John 3: 16-18.

“ARE YOU ABLE TO DRINK OF MY CUP?”

A SERMON CONCERNING FOUR QUESTIONS ASKED BY JESUS

President Elbert A. Smith

COMMUNICATIONS FROM THE PRESIDENCY AND BISHOPRIC

ON THE PRESENT FINANCIAL PROGRAM

Outline of Helps for Sermons on Sacrifice Period

THE WORK OF THE CHURCH MUST GO ON

Arranged by A. B. Phillips

1. The church belongs to Christ. He purchased it with his own blood, and gave his all for us. Can we do less than give our all to him?

Feed the church of God, which he hath purchased with his own blood.—Acts 20: 28.

Be ye therefore followers of God, as dear children; and walk in love, as Christ also hath loved us, and hath given himself for us an offering and a sacrifice to God.—Ephesians 5: 1, 2.

2. The church is called out of spiritual Babylon, to become a separate people devoted to purity and righteousness, consecrated to good works:

Come out of her, my people, that ye be not partakers of her sins, and that ye receive not of her plagues.—Revelations 18: 4.

Come out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing: and I will receive you, and will be a father unto you.—2 Corinthians 6: 17, 18.

Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven.—Matthew 5: 16.

3. The church is the body of Christ, and is called to labor with him to build the kingdom of God:

We, being many, are one body in Christ, and every one members one of another.—Romans 12: 5.

For we are laborers together with God: ye are God's husbandry, ye are God's building.—1 Corinthians 3: 9.

Seek ye first to build up the kingdom of God, and to establish his righteousness.—Matthew 6: 33, Inspired Version.

4. The work must go on, because it is entrusted to us by God. He commands us to go forth with his message, and we must deliver the message:

Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost.—Matthew 28: 19.

Behold, I sent you out to testify and warn the people, and it becometh every man who hath been warned, to warn his neighbor.—Doctrine and Covenants 85: 22.

5. Jesus said to the church: Ye are the salt of the earth.—the light of the world. The salt must not lose its savor, nor the light become darkness:

Ye are the salt of the earth: but if the salt have lost his savor, wherewith shall the earth be salted? . . . Ye are the light of the world. . . . If therefore the light that is in thee be darkness, how great is that darkness!—Matthew 5: 13, 14; 6: 23.

6. The Saints are entrusted with the things of the kingdom, to occupy till Christ comes, and to pray for its triumph:

The kingdom and dominion, and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven, shall be given to the people of the saints of the most high.—Daniel 7: 27.

Pray ye: Our Father which art in heaven, Hallowed be thy name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done on earth, as it is in heaven.—Matthew 6: 9, 10.

A certain nobleman went into a far country to receive for himself a kingdom, and to return. And he called his ten servants, and delivered them ten pounds, and said unto them, Occupy till I come.—Luke 19: 12, 13.

7. Many are called, but few chosen. Are we that few? To be faithful in little things is to be faithful in much, and to receive the true riches:

For many are called, but few chosen; wherefore all do not have on the wedding garment.—Matthew 22: 14. Inspired Version.

He that is faithful in that which is least is faithful also in much. . . . If therefore ye have not been faithful in the unrighteousness mammon, who will commit to your trust the true riches?—Luke 16: 10, 11.

8. We are in the testing time of which God has warned us. God is now proving us, and we are proving ourselves. The night soon comes when no man can work:

Behold, the husbandman waiteth for the precious fruit of the earth, and hath long patience for it, until he receive the early and latter rain.—James 5: 7.

Behold, I say unto you, Lift up your eyes, and look on the fields; for they are white already to harvest.—John 4: 35.

Now it is high time to awake out of sleep; . . . The night is far spent, the day is at hand; let us therefore cast off the works of darkness, and let us put on the armor of light.—Romans 13: 11, 12.

In that day shall be heard of wars and rumors of wars, and the whole earth shall be in commotion, and men's hearts shall fail them, and they shall say that Christ delayeth his coming until the end of the earth. And the love of men shall wax cold, and iniquity shall abound.—Doctrine and Covenants 45: 4.

9. The church must hasten its message to men, promote the Gathering, and build Zion:

You are now called immediately to make a solemn proclamation of my gospel, and of this stake which I have planted to be a corner stone of Zion.—Doctrine and Covenants 107: 1.

Ye are called to bring to pass the gathering of mine elect, . . . and be prepared in all things, against the day when tribulation and desolation are sent forth upon the wicked.—Doctrine and Covenants 28: 2.

Zion shall be redeemed with judgment, and her converts with righteousness.—Isaiah 1: 27.

I will show unto you wisdom in me concerning all the churches, inasmuch as they are willing to be guided in a right and proper way for their salvation, that the work of the gathering together of my saints, . . . for the time of harvest is come.—Doctrine and Covenants 98: 9.

It shall come to pass, among the wicked, that every man that will not take his sword against his neighbor, must needs flee unto Zion for safety.—Doctrine and Covenants 45: 13.

10. The church is the bride of Christ, and must be ready at his coming:

Behold, I will send my messenger, and he shall prepare the way before me: and the Lord, whom ye seek, shall suddenly come to his temple, . . . but who may abide the day of his coming.—Malachi 3: 1, 2.

If that evil servant shall say in his heart, My Lord delayeth his coming; and shall begin to smite his fellow servants, and to eat and drink with the drunken; the lord of that servant shall come in a day when he looketh not for him, and in an hour that he is not aware of.—Matthew 24: 48-50.

Be glad and rejoice, and give honor to him; for the marriage of the Lamb is come, and his wife hath made herself ready. And to her was granted that she should be arrayed in fine linen, clean and white: for the fine linen is the righteousness of saints.—Revelation 19: 7, 8.

11. The work must go on, because we have put our hand to the plow:

No man, having put his hand to the plow, and looking back, is fit for the kingdom of God.—Luke 9: 62.

If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me. For whosoever will save his life shall lose it.—Matthew 16: 24, 25.

It had been better for them not to have known the way of righteousness, than, after they have known it, to turn from the holy commandment delivered unto them.—2 Peter 2: 21.

Because iniquity shall abound, the love of many shall wax cold. But he that shall endure unto the end, the same shall be saved.—Matthew 24: 12, 13.

He that overcometh, and keepeth my works unto the end, to him will I give power over the nations.—Revelation 2: 26.

Ye shall have tribulation; . . . be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life.—Revelation 2: 10.

EDITORIAL

The Financial Policy

The financial policy at present obtaining in our church affairs is summarized by the Bishopric in another place in this issue of the Herald. This summary should have careful scrutiny by the Saints, as our task is clearly set out there, so far as our financial contributions to the church are concerned.

To know the goal to be reached, and just how much of the road toward it is to be traversed in a certain period of time, are the first steps necessary in a systematic approach to any task; and the next logical step is to do with promptitude that part of the work just at hand. Our immediate task is rather clearly set out in this analysis by the Bishopric, and we should approach it with determination and zest.

It scarcely needs iteration here that the policy graphically outlined in figures by the Bishopric in this issue is the policy adopted by the general church authorities in joint council sessions, and to which the members of the various joint councils have individually as well as collectively pledged their support, and towards the achievement of which they are assiduously devoting their energies.

To extricate itself from the financial difficulties into which it has fallen, the church confronts a period of arduous labor, to which we must bring the spirit of resignation, devotion, and sacrifice. Whatever may have been the errors which have led us into this situation, the demands now are for reconstructive efforts which will rehabilitate our treasury and will make it possible in a minimum of necessary time to fully re-man the regular forces. To fix the blame for the errors is at present far less necessary than to address ourselves unitedly to the task of extricating ourselves from the dilemma.

Until the debt is greatly reduced, a heavy burden of interest payments must be met, and as these are reduced more money can be spent on other regular and legitimate expenses. Thus it behooves us to bestir ourselves in the task of debt reduction so that many of the suspended activities may be duly resumed.

It should be remembered, while thinking of our present financial problems and our indebtedness, that the indebtedness was incurred in carrying on regular and authorized activities, drawing on reserves when income was insufficient. The task therefore is largely one of refunding the expenses of work already done.

I can not but believe that to the work of debt reduction and getting on a basis of sounder financing of our church activities the Saints will bring the same spirit of devotion and faith which has in the past assured us of the completion of every task undertaken. In this, with faith in the members of the church as well as faith in God and his church, the men of the Presidency, Twelve, and the general Bishopric have approached their work as general officers, fully aware that it demands sacrifice and severe trial, and that the goal will be reached only by divine assistance in collaboration with Deity along the lines of activity he has indicated.

And in this task we have faith that the Saints are laboring with us.

F. M. S.

Jackson County Bank Closes Doors

Not a little excitement was caused last week in Independence and vicinity, especially among the members of the church, by the news which spread rapidly, that the directors of the Jackson County Bank had voluntarily closed the doors of that institution. This move was apparently forced upon the directors by rumors started from some at present unknown source or sources, (and which were persistent), which questioned the stability of the bank. These rumors finally started a run on the bank, and the directors who were closely watching the situation decided to take prompt action in the interests of the depositors.

It is impossible to assign to any one factor the cause of the failure of the bank to keep open doors. Doubtless the statement of the real cause involves a group of factors; but it is quite certain that if the confidence of the depositors and creditors of the institution had not been disturbed there would have been no reason for the doors to be closed.

The prompt action of the directors has doubtless protected the depositors, and it is likely that they will be paid in full.

To liquidate the resources of the bank will require time, and in many instances depositors will be inconvenienced, if not more seriously affected, by their funds not being now available; but that is a usual concomitant of bank closures and must be borne. The bank officials are exerting every effort to expedite the final settlement and are also striving earnestly to have that made at the least expense possible, and this also in the interests of the depositors.

The question of reorganizing and reopening the bank has been discussed but not yet settled.

The stockholders of the bank will be the chief if not sole losers, but what will be the degree of that loss can not now be determined. The church is affected in both directions, for it is a stockholder and is also a heavy depositor. Into the councils on the situation the Presiding Bishopric has entered, and working with the directors, by unanimous action in most if not all instances, each step was decided. It is hoped that the best interests of all concerned have been conserved.

The closure of the Jackson County Bank is greatly to be regretted, from every standpoint; but that there are lessons to be garnered is above doubt. One great lesson which should be impressed is that confidence is basic to success. And further, it will impress the fact that destroyers of confidence are anti-social. Unity is basic to our task of redeeming Zion.

F. M. S.

J. M. Terry Passes

The death of Elder J. M. Terry will come to many people in the church as a shock, and will bring them a distinct feeling of loss.

Many of us he baptized, and many of us he blessed; and not one of all those who knew and loved him will ever remember of him a single word or act that did not accord with the highest standards of speech and conduct of a gentleman, a Christian, and a servant of God.

Not long before his final illness he was in our office, as usual on some errand of kindness for some one else. The brave spirit alight in the frail body, the fine courtesy born of a sincere love of people, the cheerful courage of his smile—all these leave a last indelible impression of the kind of man he was. We can hardly believe that it was to be his last visit. In a sense it was not his last visit; he will return in memory, very often. There is something about such a man that will not die.

L. L.

What is there about Gandhi that makes him a leader of men? Not clothes, for his garments would disgrace a Kansas scarecrow. Not wealth, for he gives everything away. Not political power, for he aspires to no office. Not military force, for he will hardly accept a bodyguard. He discards all of the usual aids and trappings of greatness. Sitting beside him in the conference are Indian princes clad in silk and bedecked with costly jewels—some of the world's wealthiest men—who are scarcely mentioned in the news dispatches—non-entities in the world's leadership. Besides them Gandhi in his loin cloth looks like a beggar; but he is the only independent man among them. What is there about Gandhi? It is a quality of mind and soul. He has given up everything else as non-essential. Mind and soul are all that count in the end.

*What if we could be led by this conviction!
What if we could renounce all vanity, pretence, and extravagance. What if our conversion were the impelling call to a new and nobler way of living that would take us in the way of Jesus?*

OFFICIAL

A Brief Summary of Our Financial Policy

At the meeting of the Board of Appropriations last February it was determined that a different financial policy be adopted, a policy which would not only get the church out of debt but one which would keep it out of debt. The policy is set forth in five major points which are as follows:

1. ARREST EXPANSION.—Build only when our present obligations have been met and necessary means are in hand.

2. LIQUIDATE ASSETS.—Turn into cash as rapidly as possible all assets not needed for major work of the church.

3. A BALANCED BUDGET.—Expenditures must not exceed income. A portion of the income must be set aside for debt reduction.

4. REDUCE INDEBTEDNESS.—By adhering to the above it is possible to pay our obligations. A substantial amount must be set aside each year for this purpose.

5. CREATE RESERVES.—That we may assure ourselves of economic security in the future.

The Board of Appropriations, which consists of the First Presidency, Quorum of Twelve, Presiding Bishopric and Order of Bishops, passed a resolution and voted, unanimously, to adhere strictly to the above policies.

In carrying out the policy it has been necessary to reduce the current budget expenses in order to provide funds for debt reduction. Substantial reductions were made in the budget by the Board of Appropriations in February, 1931, and again in September, 1931. The extent of these reductions is best shown by the comparative budgets for 1930 and 1932, which are as follows:

	1930 Appropriation	1932 Appropriation	Reduction
First Presidency .....	$ 7,000.00	$ 2,600.00	$ 4,400.00
Presiding Bishopric .....	16,794.00	6,000.00	10,794.00
Quorum of Twelve .....	1,850.00	700.00	1,150.00
Statistician .....	1,700.00	.....	1,700.00
Auditor .....	2,969.00	.....	2,969.00
Architect's Office .....	7,000.00	.....	7,000.00
Historian's Office .....	1,500.00	.....	1,500.00
Presiding Patriarch .....	200.00	.....	200.00
Graphic Arts .....	300.00	.....	300.00
Dept. of Religious Education.....	4,780.00	825.00	3,955.00
Social Service Bureau .....	1,600.00	.....	1,600.00
Radio .....	485.00	.....	485.00
Librarian .....	5,200.00	.....	5,200.00
General Office Expense .....	3,000.00	1,250.00	1,750.00
Auditorium Operating Expense .....	6,000.00	3,000.00	3,000.00
General Church Expense .....	4,500.00	1,500.00	3,000.00
Bishop's and Agent's Expense.....	2,000.00	1,000.00	1,000.00
Music Department .....	1,500.00	.....	1,500.00
Publicity Department .....	7,250.00	.....	7,250.00
Independence Pastor and Bishopric .....	3,200.00	700.00	2,500.00
Lamoni Stake—Presidency and Bishopric .....	3,700.00	700.00	3,000.00
Kansas City Stake—Presidency and Bishopric .....	4,000.00	1,250.00	2,750.00
Far West Stake—Presidency and Bishopric .....	2,300.00	1,000.00	1,300.00
Holden Stake .....	1,400.00	800.00	1,100.00
Foreign Missions .....	5,000.00	1,000.00	4,000.00
Interest and Exchange .....	55,000.00	70,648.44	15,648.44
Real Estate Expense .....	5,000.00	5,000.00	.....

Family Allowance, Including
Elders' Expense	292,337.06	138,841.68	153,495.38
Holden Home	9,000.00	7,500.00	1,500.00
Saints' Home	7,000.00	1,000.00	6,000.00
Miscellaneous Aid	15,000.00	15,000.00
Graceland College	22,897.41	16,000.00	6,897.41
Centennial Expense	10,000.00		10,000.00
Operating Expenses	$511,462.57	$275,815.12	$235,647.35
Items Other than Operating Expense:
Payments on Consecration
Contracts	$ 20,000.00	$ 12,000.00	$ 8,000.00
Chapel Fund (Created Previous to 1931)	10,000.00	1,850.00	8,150.00
Auditorium Expansion	90,000.00		90,000.00
Total Budget Exclusive Debt Reduction	$631,462.57	$289,665.12	$341,797.35
Retirement Reserve for Debt Reduction	$ 35,000.00	$191,796.05	$106,796.05
Reserve for Allowances	50,000.00
	$716,462.57	$481,461.17	$235,001.30

It is to be noted that the substantial reduction is in operating expenses. Included in the 1932 budget of $481,461.17 is the amount of $191,796.05 for debt reduction which will reduce interest making more money available for the missionary work of the church.

DIVIDING THE CHURCH DOLLAR FOR 1932

If the total of $481,461.17 is raised during 1932, every dollar will be divided for the purposes designated as follows:

Debt Reduction	39.8c
Family Allowances and Elders' Expenses	28.9c
Interest and Exchange	14.7c
Saints' Home and Aid	4.9c
General Administration	3.5c
Graceland College	3.3c
Consecration Contracts	2.5c
Miscellaneous	2.4c

The total debt of the church, including the debts of all church institutions, is as follows:

Institution	Date	Amount of Debt
General Church	December 31, 1930	$1,309,985.33
Development Associations	Dec. 31, 1929 or '30	264,871.86
Graceland College	June 30, 1931	173,357.35
Sanitarium	January 1, 1931	42,475.64
Independence Institute	Current	17,000.00
Herald Publishing House	June 30, 1931	7,202.65
		$1,814,892.33

The total assets of the General Church and Institutions are $5,085,183.87.

In order to liquidate this indebtedness the Presiding Bishopric have suggested a fifteen-year debt-reduction plan which provides for the payment of approximately $1,251,000.00 of our debt in fifteen years. (It is to be noted, however, that some of the church institutions will substantially reduce their own indebtedness, if not take care of it in full.)

The payments are set forth year by year as follows:

	Principle	Interest	Total
1932	$ 191,100.00	$ 70,600.00	$ 261,700.00
1933	53,100.00	65,500.00	118,600.00
1934	91,300.00	62,800.00	154,100.00
1935	88,900.00	60,000.00	148,900.00
1936	91,800.00	48,700.00	140,500.00
1937	92,000.00	37,300.00	129,300.00
1938	91,700.00	34,600.00	126,300.00
1939	71,700.00	31,800.00	103,500.00
1940	66,200.00	30,000.00	96,200.00
1941	66,500.00	28,600.00	95,100.00
1942	65,600.00	28,000.00	93,600.00
1943	66,500.00	25,600.00	92,100.00
1944	71,600.00	24,000.00	95,600.00
1945	71,600.00	22,200.00	93,800.00
1946	71,500.00	19,800.00	91,300.00
	$1,251,100.00	$589,500.00	$1,840,600.00

The total amount of principal and interest each year is the amount that will have to be raised in addition to funds for operating expenses such as Family Allowances, Elders' Expenses, Departments, Graceland College, and Saints' Homes. IT IS TO BE NOTED THAT EACH YEAR THE INTEREST PAYMENT WILL BECOME SMALLER, MAKING MORE MONEY AVAILABLE FOR THE MISSIONARY WORK OF THE CHURCH.

Carrying out this policy will mean that

1. $ 93,000.00 will be paid on past due Family Allowances and other accounts.
2. $ 87,500.00 will be paid on General Church Bonds by 1936 and will permit the the refunding of the balance.
3. $264,500.00 The balance of the General Church Bonds will be paid by 1946.
4. $216,000.00 will be paid on notes held by individuals, being payment in full.
5. $105,000.00 will be paid on notes to banks, being payment in full.
6. $335,000.00 will be paid on the Auditorium, leaving it free of encumbrance.
7. $150,000.00 will be set aside to purchase bonds to replace the General Church Bonds held as the Graceland Endowment Trust Fund. The balance of $82,000 will be raised by 1953.

This is a program that calls for one hundred per cent support from every member.

WHAT CAN YOU DO?

You can:

- Pay your tithing—
- Pay your surplus—
- Give offerings—

You can sacrifice by:

- Giving Christmas presents to the church instead of to friends.
- Giving the money to the church instead of buying and sending Christmas cards.
- Give 1c-5c-10c-25c to $1.00 (according to your ability) a day the rest of this year and all of the year 1932.
- Give the value of your Sunday dinner meat to the church.
- Give the value of one meal per week to the church.
- Give the amount you spend for shows and other amusements during the next two months to the church.
- Put up your car for a day, or week, or a month and give the amount you save to the church.
- Scan the entire list of your living expenses and eliminate all nonessentials, giving the saving to the church.

Let us get behind this program of debt reduction so that it can be accomplished in five years instead of fifteen.

THE PRESIDING BISHOPRIC,

By G. L. DELAPP.

The Jackson County Bank

Most of the Saints have undoubtedly heard of the Jackson County Bank failing to open its doors for business on Friday morning, October 23. We wish to take this opportunity of presenting to the Saints some of the facts in connection with its closing.

Certain rumors had been in circulation for some little time to the effect that the bank would close. These rumors created a lack of confidence on the part of some of the depositors who withdrew their money. Such withdrawals increased until it was thought advisable by the Board of Directors to close the bank in order to protect the other depositors.

Some have thought that the action of the directors was too conservative when the bank was in no worse condition than seems apparent. The directors, however, were concerned not only in regard to protecting the depositors but also about the effect on the church. They did not feel justified in taking the risk with the depositors' money which would have been necessary had they continued business.

Every effort possible was made to bring about a merger with one of the stronger institutions in Independence so that the depositors' money would not be tied up. These efforts, however, were not successful.

Two other ways were open, one of which was to borrow money, putting up notes as collateral to the loan. This, however, would have jeopardized the depositors' money and if the additional cash borrowed did not save the situation it would have decreased the amount of the depositors' money. The Directors thought it inadvisable to take this risk.

The second way would have been to have guaranteed some bank that the assets would take care of the deposit liability. It was inadvisable from our point of view for the church to assume such a guarantee, and could not be done in harmony with our present financial policy. The banks which might have been interested in taking over the deposit liability would have wanted such a guarantee from the church.

The question has been asked, why did the church not withdraw its money as soon as this situation became apparent? There are two reasons why it was not wise to do so. In the first place, had the church demanded payment of its deposit, the bank would either have had to refuse payment or would have been compelled to close because of a lack of cash. The church could not place itself in the position of having been the cause of closing the bank. In the second place, the church was not desirous of taking advantage of the information it had to make itself a preferred creditor of the bank over the members of the church who had money on deposit.

In addition to this, the writer was giving every assistance possible to the directors to bring about a merger which would take care of all of the depositors. As already stated, this was unsuccessful, but this effort was made up until two o'clock the same morning the bank was closed, a night session having been held with representatives from the Independence banks.

It is the opinion of the Board of Directors of the Jackson County Bank that the assets of the bank are sufficient to take care of all of the deposits and that no loss will be suffered by the depositors. While the writer has not had the opportunity for a detailed examination of all the assets of the bank he concurs in this opinion based on the information he has.

It is impossible to say just at present how soon this money will be paid to the depositors, but steps will be taken to liquidate as rapidly as possible, and additional information will be given in the Herald.

The church had the cooperation of the officers of the Kansas City Bank with which it does business and it was their opinion that everything had been done which could be done to protect the interest of the depositors and the church.

The church had approximately $20,000 in the bank, about one half of which was the money set aside for the inclosure of the Sanitarium building, and the balance represented the amount held for the monthly disbursements and also included checks issued which had not been cashed.

The church owned 120 of the total 500 shares of capital stock, and did not hold controlling interest.

The effect of the closing of the bank will be far-reaching throughout the church but we are certain that it is no occasion to ease up on the oars, but rather a time for everyone to do even more than has been done before. This is the feeling among the Saints of Independence and Kansas City where mass meetings were held Sunday. At Kansas City Central where all of the branches of greater Kansas City had gathered last night the feeling was unanimous that we must go on. This found expression in the desire of a great number of the audience to take up a collection as a starter for the work in Kansas City. The sum of around $250 was taken from an audience that came unprepared for such an offering. This same spirit is the spirit which was manifest in Independence in the morning when over twenty-five hundred Saints met in the basement of the Auditorium. We believe this is the spirit in which the entire church will meet this issue and "Carry On."

THE PRESIDING BISHOPRIC,

By G. LESLIE DELAPP.

Faith makes the discords of the present the harmonies of the future.—Selected.

"Are You Able to Drink of My Cup?"

The Lord Asks Four Questions. Consider Them Well.

By President Elbert A. Smith

(Sermon delivered at the Stone Church in Independence, during the conference in Zion, Sunday, October 11, 1931.)

On certain crucial occasions in his ministry, Christ propounded to his disciples four outstanding questions. They are searching questions that even today probe deep into our consciousness and into our problems. The first of these was, "Whom say ye that I am?" (Matthew 16:15.)

I.—WHOM SAY YE THAT I AM?

It seems to me that the salvation of the world waits on the correct answer to that question because he had the principles of life and conduct and human relations that would save the world today. His remains "the only name under heaven whereby the world can be saved," not saved alone from some theological hell hereafter, but saved right now from the hell that it is drifting into; saved from social, moral and economic ruin; and, my friends, we have that message. It does not matter though the world is large and we are small. A small window can let a great light into a dark room if it is opened to heaven.

The question comes home to you today, "Whom say ye that Christ is?" I presume that practically every one here today will answer in the language of Peter: "Thou art the Christ, the son of the living God."

Friends, let us remember that answer in the days of trial that are coming upon the church. You will recall that Christ then said, "Upon this rock I will build my church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it."

Some might conclude from that answer, that if He is the Son of God, and that He is to build the church for us, that there is little to trouble our minds, that there will be nothing to try our souls. He has all power. Why, all that remains for us to do is to go to church on Sunday (or occasionally) and sing psalms. That is religion, is it not?

But you remember the scripture lesson, which said that every one that cometh unto Him He chasteneth. His religion is a sacrificial religion.

II.—CAN YE DRINK OF THE CUP THAT I DRINK OF?

And so the second great question rather grows out of the first one. When certain of the apostles craved great honors in that world to come, Christ said to them, "Can ye drink of the cup that I drink of?" (Mark 10:38.) And they answered, apparently without the least hesitation, "Yea, Lord; we can." Little did they know the nature of the cup that he was to drink from. Little did they realize the cup that he was drinking from at that moment. We are told in the scriptures that "He was a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief." And to his followers he said, "If any man would be my disciple, let him take up his cross and come and follow me."

We need not presume, then, that the course of the church is always to be one of peace, one of serenity, one that never tries men's souls nor challenges them to sacrifice and suffer. So why should we be surprised when such a period comes upon us?

I presume that the cup that we drink of is oft-times made more bitter by our own blunders. We hear people saying that the church has blundered. I think that most of us are individually conscious that we ourselves have at times made blunders, and it embitters our cup when we think that because of our errors the church may have been penalized and those who have trusted our judgment may have come to grief. But you will remember that the church has never adopted the doctrine of infallibility, either for itself or for any man or set of men in the church. It is said of Christ that even he "learned obedience by the things that he suffered." (Hebrews 5: 8.) I do not know all that was meant to be conveyed in that text. Christ was a man. A long period of his life is left covered; it is not revealed to us. There may have been times when he blundered in judgment, (though we are told that he was without sin) and through the suffering that was entailed he learned obedience. At least, the statement is made that he learned obedience through the things that he suffered.

Certain it is that such is our experience. But the point is that he did learn obedience; and if we, because of our mistakes, in our trouble, humiliation, and grief learn obedience, then we shall find our feet in the straight and narrow path.

I know that it was a bitter cup that some of the men drank from who went forth from our recent Joint Council meeting and to carry some bad news to the church. They had to go to some of their beloved brethren and tell them that they had been released from appointment to the active ministry. Man after man in that Council expressed the wish to step aside himself for a time and engage in secular labor for his own support and let these other men remain in the field; but that could not well be,

It was a very sad task to go out with this bad news. But you must remember that Christ himself carried bad news to the church. He said, "You shall be persecuted and driven; you shall be killed."

"His cup is not always bitter.. Sometimes it is sweet. It was pleasant on the Mount of Transfiguration; but it was bitter in the Garden of Gethsemane, and even he prayed that it might pass from him. The Book of Mormon tells us that it is necessary that we should taste the bitter or we could never appreciate the sweet. That is true because of our human nature.

There is one thing encouraging in this little conversation. When he had asked them the question, "Are ye able to drink of my cup?" and they answered, "Yes," he seemed to consider for a moment, and then he said, "Yea, ye shall indeed drink of my cup," and history reveals the fact that with one exception those twelve apostles finally did come to the point where they were willing and able to make any sacrifice required; they did drink of his cup. Thousands and tens of thousands of others of the ministry and of the laity were martyrs. The record tells us that they were clad in goat skins and sheep skins and wandered about and hid in caves and dens of the earth; they were sawn asunder; they were thrown to the wild beasts. They endured everything. And because they did drink of the cup the church became a great church, a light to the world, and they became great men and women, as they could not have done in a period of perpetual tranquillity and continual prosperity.

How about it today, friends? The world is in confusion and turmoil. The world itself has come to the Garden of Gethsemane; and we are told in the Doctrine and Covenants that in that day "the Saints themselves shall hardly escape." The question comes home to you this morning, "Are ye able to drink of my cup? Will you drink of it?"

III.—WILL YOU ALSO FORSAKE ME?

The third question seems to grow out of the others. At a certain time when everything in the church (from a human standpoint) seemed to be going wrong, and when there were many "offended at Christ" himself—not a few here and there, but many—and many were turning back "and walking no more with him," he turned to his disciples and said, "Will you also go away?"—(John 6: 67.)

There have been many times in the past history of the church, from its beginning, when there were periods of falling away: in Jerusalem, and Ephesus, and Rome; in Kirtland, in Nauvoo, in Independence.

The question comes home to you today: you people in the gallery, you people in the congregation before me, and those behind me in the choir, at sometime in the years before us, under some period of disappointment or of stress or of offense—"will you also forsake me?" Will the answer come from you as from Peter, "Lord, to whom shall we go? Thou hast the words of Eternal Life."

Two weeks ago one of our men, well known to all of you, who was then under stress and strain and discouragement, told me that he went over on a Sunday evening to visit one of the largest and most popular churches in Kansas City. He thought, "I will get away from all this trouble, and I will go where I can have a nice, peaceful, up-building experience." He said "The sermon was the thinnest, sloppiest, most disappointing thing I ever heard in all my life." I said to him, "You got exactly what you needed." He replied, "I certainly did." There was a great, ornate church building, a fine organ, a splendid choir, and a little small handful of people to hear a little bit of a sermon that was not worth their time. We have said in the past that if we only had the equipment, fine churches everywhere to invite the people and all that, we could go out and convert the world. Friends, I have concluded that equipment is a very small part of the equation, and when it is void of the "words of eternal life" it is not even worth our consideration. The churches of the world today have relegated the gospel, if they have any, and the preacher and his message, if he has any, to the rumble seat, and other interests are at the wheel and have selected the avenues along which the churches travel, as a result they are spiritually dead. They have the equipment, but they do not have the people and they do not know how to reach them. All they have to give them is entertainment and sermonettes.

I have come to dispise that term "sermonette" that we borrow from the world, when I think about the magnitude of the gospel. A sermon does not need to be two hours long, but it ought to be a sermon. "Sermonette" suggests to me something attenuated, run down, aenemic, coming from a sermonetter that has no interest himself in what he is saying, and nobody else thinks it merits more than ten or fifteen minutes.

Let us remember that to this church has been committed the gospel of eternal life. "Thou hast the words of eternal life." Let our message go forth and our ministry go out to preach those words, and let the message always have the right-of-way. Let it be the thing in our service around which our whole program is built.

I appreciate a fine church. I love music, and I appreciate the support of a splendid choir such as we have here; but let us never forget that the early Christians sang their hymns spontaneously out of the up-swelling of religious fervor, and that religious fervor was kindled through the message that came from the lips of inspired preachers. Around that message of eternal life everything else was built. I know of no other place to go because I know this church does have "the words of eternal life." If we have obscured them, let us uncover them. If we have given things of secondary importance first place, let them be relegated to the rear. In the midst of our adversity and our poverty and our sacrifice let us seek for a new spiritual endowment, to go forth with power preaching the everlasting gospel that came to this earth one hundred years ago. It is yet the only hope of human salvation. Let us redouble our diligence.

IV.—"LOVEST THOU ME?"

The fourth and last question springs out of the other three. When Christ for the third, and I believe the last time after his crucifixion, revealed himself to his disciples he said to Simon Peter, "Lovest Thou Me?"—John 21: 16.

"Simon Peter, lovest thou me?" And Peter said, "Yes, Lord." Then "feed my lambs." And again the second time, "Simon Peter, lovest thou me?" "Yes, Lord." Then "feed my sheep." And still the third time, "Simon Peter, lovest thou me?" And Peter said, "Lord, thou knowest all things, thou knowest that I love thee." And again the injunction, "Feed my sheep."

Christ had to be assured, and Peter had to be assured that there was love in his heart before he could be trusted to feed the sheep. No man is fit to be a shepherd to the people in any capacity who does not love them and love the Lord. Today there are many people who hunger. They are hungry for bread. In Kansas City some weeks ago I stood on the corner in front of one of the large department stores. I was intending to make a purchase. A young man little more than a boy stepped up to me and said, "Mister, I am not a beggar; I am not a bum; but I am awful hungry. I just can't find work. I have had nothing to eat today and little yesterday." I looked at him. He was just about the age of one of my boys. In the light of my love for my sons, I was prompted to feed him. I do not indiscriminately give money to those who ask it; but I felt that he was telling the truth. So I cancelled my purchase and gave him a sum of money. He said, "That will buy me at least two good meals and maybe I can get a job."

The world is hungry for bread and also for other things. There is plenty of food in the world today to feed the hungry if the world were only converted spiritually so that it might be properly divided. But Christ said, "Thou shalt not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God."

The injunction comes home to us today, "Feed my sheep." In the midst of the strain that is upon the world and upon the church, all about us there are many sad hearts, there are many broken homes, broken by sickness or death or transgression. There are many who have lost faith; there are many who have lost hope. Many mature or old people have the responsibilities of a family and no work to be had. Many young people are discouraged and embittered because at the very time when they ought to be laying the foundations for a home and a family they can not even get a job; young men growing up not knowing what it is to work steadily. If there ever was a time when there was a call to you ordained men of the priesthood to go out and feed the sheep, it is now. Comfort those who mourn, uphold those whose faith is shaken, be friendly with those who need a word of cheer. And our mission is not limited simply to the household of faith. Jesus said, "Other sheep have I which are not of this fold; I must visit them also."

Friends, this is a missionary church. There are many things the Lord never did command us to do, to some of which we have given our service. There was one thing he did command us to do: "Prosecute the missionary work at home and abroad, so far and so widely as you may." We have never yet kept that commandment to the limit of our ability. At a time now when missionaries are being released a new responsibility falls upon the local men everywhere to carry the word of life to others.

When I was ordained thirty-five years ago it was expected that when a man received ordination he would move out into schoolhouses and churches and cottages and preach. We were presumed to go out with the message, "Feed my sheep; seek them out; other sheep have I which are not of this fold."

Let the local priesthood arouse themselves to this task. Let the church arouse itself to the task of relieving itself of debt so that our missionary force can be rebuilt. It can be done. Probably Bishop Curry will unfold to you today the plan that has been adopted by the Council; over a considerable period of years to gradually reduce the debt to the vanishing point. It is going to be a hard struggle for the first few years; but if we persist it will grow lighter, and it is not beyond our ability to do. It can be done. The Adventists with less than twice our number carry annually a financial burden many times greater than we do. "Lovest thou me more than these?"

Having delivered ourselves from our debt, I think

Weekly Health Letter

Number Fifteen

The Nose and Its Relation to Health and Disease.—13

Causes and Treatment of Nose Bleed

By A. W. Teel, M. D., Church Physician

The large majority of cases of nose bleed is brought about by an anterior deflection (bend) of the nasal septum. This portion of the septum, being richly supplied with blood vessels, is constantly exposed to the ingoing current of air, which is often loaded with foreign material. This, together with the drying of the secretions, causes a slight erosion of the mucous membrane, producing hemorrhage. This erosion results in an open sore or ulcer, which causes a crust to form and the usual removal of it by picking, causes the vessel to bleed frequently. Often, a hole is eroded through the septum in this manner.

Catarrhal inflammation of these parts contributes further to the already increased blood supply and to the epistaxis. Sometimes very serious nasal hemorrhages are caused by high fever such as typhoid and diphtheria, especially that variety of diphtheria commonly called "black diphtheria."

Veins located on the anterior portion of the septum are sometimes varicose. There is another form of hemorrhage known as vicarious nasal hemorrhage, which is frequently due to suppression of the menstrual flow. Some of the diseases of the liver, that every man of us is resolved never again to fall into a similar blunder. To that we are committed. And when the day comes that we can go to these men who have been released from their God-given calling and mission and say to them, "Brethren, the way is open for you to return," that will be a sweet cup to drink from. Are you going to be able to drink from that cup? Not unless you have helped to make it possible.

---

There are men in this church who could go to the bishop and say, "I will support one missionary and his family and pay all of their expenses this year out of my income." They could do it and still have much more to live on than a lot of us do who have little or no income for many months at a time—and their cup would be sweet in the day of our deliverance.

Now may God help us that we may be able to drink of the cup, not only when it is bitter, but that we shall be worthy to drink of it when it becomes sweet, is my prayer.

attended by obstruction of the circulation in that organ, may be attended by nasal hemorrhage. Injury is another source of hemorrhage, due to traumatism of the nose, by picking with the finger nails, and by too violently blowing the nose. Many constitutional diseases, such as hemophilia, Bright's disease, etc., may cause these hemorrhages.

The treatment of nasal hemorrhage, in most cases, is very simple, so far as the physician is concerned. It should be remembered that in all cases of serious nose bleed, the patient should be kept as quiet as possible. Towels wrung out of ice water may be applied while the patient sits leaning forward with elbows upon the knees, with the nose held tightly by the cloth. Results should not be expected too soon from this treatment, and it should be continued at least a half hour. This method will cause clots to form, which should not be removed until help is obtained.

In case of attacks, due to excessive exposure to the sun's heat, sometimes the application of a cold pack at the back of the neck is helpful, while at the same time, cotton packs introduced into the nasal chambers will be of great aid. Mild nose bleeds may stop of themselves by pressing the nose together with the thumb and finger, with the patient leaning forward while a piece of ice is applied under the lip, between the lip and the gum, at the same time pressing up on the lip. A piece of cotton soaked in lemon juice, with a thread attached, pulled up into the nostril is quite often successful. It should be removed gently, after the hemorrhage has stopped. When the hemorrhage is of unusual severity, a physician should be called.

---

Every today is a decision day. On the basis of past experience we must decide our course for tomorrow. From the point where we stopped yesterday we must begin again with our pilgrimage. If our journeyings have brought us to desert valleys, we must plod on until we reach the mountains where we shall find relief from heat, thirst, and distress. Our decisions for today are circumscribed by the decisions that we have made on other days.

It is vain to mourn over past mistakes in judgment. Not a line of that record which we call history can be altered by remorse. The only advantage that we can derive from it is what we learn. To those who can not learn from experience progress is impossible.

Today is all we have that we can call ours. All our yesterdays belong to history, and all our tomorrows are in the hands of God. But today is our own, to do with as we may. Let us so work that tomorrow will find us brave and unashamed, looking toward our goal, led by our ideals.

Preparation

By Ada Cochran

There is no task, either great or small, that can be accomplished without preparation. Our desires and our aims may be of the best, yet if we fail to make preparation along a chosen line of endeavor, we can never hope to succeed; we have already written failure across our future.

Many fields are open in which there are opportunities to serve, and from these one may choose the line of work for which he is best suited. In the field of religious education one finds an unparalleled opportunity for service, if he cares to enter.

The crying need of today is for teachers and leaders. "Houses are plentiful and books may be had for the asking, but the biggest problem to be solved is to find teachers."

The day when "ignorance was bliss" passed with the yesterdays, and no one can any longer use excuses as his passport and "get by." Not only have children's educational needs been provided for, but in many of the larger cities special schools have been opened where those who have passed the chronological age for public school work may still find a place for study. Many are availing themselves of this opportunity to prepare themselves for better service in their chosen profession.

If one would be a leader or teacher in the field of religious education, he must have a thorough knowledge of the Bible as a background. This is imperative. Afterward, other helps may be added. No one can hope to be a leader unless he knows the way and is prepared to point out not only the places of interest to those he may be leading, but also is able to shield them from places of danger.

No one would dare undertake to guide an expedition through a jungle without having a thorough knowledge of the country. He would not think of starting out without a guidebook and a chart. If then, in these affairs, we are so careful to equip ourselves with "safety devices," so that no mistakes can be made, how much more careful should we be when posing as teachers or guides in spiritual affairs. But often when our ambition has been to succeed and we have done our best, we find we have failed because we were not careful enough in selecting the material to be used.

A young girl who married was very anxious that her culinary productions, especially her cake, should come up to the fondest anticipations of her husband, but after doing her best, she realized that she had made a failure. She took her troubles to her mother and said, "Mother, why did my cake fail?"

"You used corn starch instead of baking powder," said the mother.

"But, mother, both cans look so much alike!" replied the girl.

"That's the way in life," answered the mother. "We are constantly meeting cans of things that look alike but are not, and in the end, it makes the world of difference between a fluffy cake and a fallen one."

So in our teaching, it makes a world of difference what are the ingredients in our teaching, our ideals, and our example. One of our educators has said: "The teacher and the truth taught should always leave the impression as being of the same pattern."

Sometimes after we have exhausted every means that we have in trying to make the necessary preparations for a certain task, we still feel that our effort has all been in vain and we are at loss to know just what to do.

At one time I was teaching a large class of young women in the Sunday school. They were wide-awake girls and I knew that a thorough preparation of the lesson would be necessary if I hoped to be ready to meet the demands of the class. So for this particular Sunday I did my best by study and by prayer to master the lesson material, but study as hard as I would, when I had finished reading a page and looked up, not a word or thought could I recall, not even the lesson text. This went on all week. I went to my class on Sunday morning with my mind a blank; I could recall not one word or thought on the lesson. I was almost desperate. As the opening exercises were being conducted, I thought I would ask one of the girls to take charge of the lesson work. But it seemed that something held me, I could not even do that. I was in despair. When the opening exercises were over and I arose and opened my quarterly, there came such a flood of light that the whole class seemed to be lifted up, and we had one of the most wonderful lesson periods we ever enjoyed. Thought after thought was presented, many that I had not before dreamed of, and the promise that we should be given all that was needed to meet the demand if we did our part, was fully verified.

This is one of the beautiful experiences which have come to me in my efforts to help the younger people in their upward climb of life.

Does it pay to make the sacrifice—if it be a sacrifice—of putting forth our best efforts so that we may be prepared to meet our obligations in an intelligent manner? I should like to answer the question by relating a little incident that happened not long ago. One of my friends, a young married man, lives three miles out in the country from Independence. He is employed in Sugar Creek, three miles on the other side of Independence. He is up at five o'clock in the morning, does the chores at home, drives into town, leaves his truck, and catches a bus out to his place of employment. A number of his town friends save the scraps from their table for him, and when he comes in from his day's labor, he gathers up the scraps and takes them home to feed his pigs and chickens. One evening I was sitting on the porch and saw him coming down the street carrying a big bucket of scraps in each hand. As a rule, young people do not look tired, but at this time this young man looked so tired and worn that I felt sorry for him. "Hello," I said, "it keeps a fellow hustling all the time, doesn't it?"

He looked up at me, a bright smile spreading over his face, and returned, "Oh, yes, but it pays!" Though tired and worn, he was happy. What is more worth while than to be happy in our work no matter what the task may be, and what is more contagious than a happy smile, a smile that is spontaneous?

Yes, we can answer, it pays to make preparation for our task and to be loyal to our trusts.

Preparation and personality are closely related. Personality is the outward expression of one's inner self and is one of the strongest factors in our social program today. "It is not born but grows; it gains its quality from the character of the thoughts and acts that make up the common round of experience." "If one would have strong personality he must live ever in the presence of the best." There is always a best in every environment no matter how poor it may be, and although one may not be able to reach the "higher levels of life" from the environment in which he lives, yet in the realm of thought he may soar to heights not yet explored. One writer has said, "When the great souls of earth are old and broken in health and criticized by a multitude who do not understand, they take refuge in thoughts."

The child has a very slender past, so God gives the boy the future in which to venture forth and range over all the continent of tomorrow. But the old man has a narrow future, so through thought God permits him to traverse again the wide continent of the past and to live again in his golden yesterdays. One's thoughts lend a rich hue and beauty to his daily life and work.

After years have come and gone and many things have been forgotten, what is it that still lingers in the pupil's memory? "It is not the remembrance of a lesson taught nor a truth made known, but the personality of the teacher that is never forgotten."

As teachers, we may be called on to make some sacrifices in order to uphold the ideals for which we stand, but if we do our best, that is all that will be required. Often in thought we will be able to go back and find pleasure in associations with the friends of yesterday. And let us remember that "whatever ideals we would impress upon others, we must first have realized in ourselves." I am sure if we do this, there will be more beautiful pictures inscribed on the tablets of our memories.

May we be loyal and true to our task until the work that has been intrusted to us is finished.

Our Homes

By Poul S. Nielsen

Frequently we read in the newspapers that the homes of our day are not what they used to be when our parents were young. Usually this statement is not meant as a compliment to present-day homes, for it can not be denied that in many ways the change that has taken place in the last half century has not been for the better. Yet in many respects our homes of today are far superior to what they used to be. Of course if we want to look at the dark side, we might easily make ourselves believe that they are far worse than they really are.

If one asks some pessimist why he believes that things are worse now, he will start to tell stories illustrating the fact that parental control is lacking, that the young people do as they please, and all the stuff that the older generation always tells the younger. The trouble is that far too many people like to think they were angels or nearly so when they were young. But once in a while some grandfather or grandmother will tell how they really used to be. This always causes embarrassment to these preachers of gloom.

If the world is really getting worse, it ought to be pretty bad by this time, as the old people in every age, since writing was invented, have recorded that the present generation was worse than the preceding one. If we only looked at the extremely bad ones, we might have reason to think that our modern homes are going on the rocks, but the trouble is that men are always more inclined to talk about homes in which exist a touch of scandal than they are to talk about a family that is trying to make a decent living, have a pleasant home, and tend to its own business.

What Is a Happy Home?

But the question is, What is a real home? Is it a house in which to live, well furnished, equipped with modern conveniences? or is it a hovel with four bare walls? A home must be a place in which people live and are happy; otherwise it is no more than a dwelling place.

Once I was acquainted with a family that lived in a shack made of rough lumber and covered with canvas. There were only two rooms for father, mother, son, and daughter. Yet I dare say this family was more happy and satisfied than many others

I have since known who live in fine houses and are able to satisfy all their desires. The first family was happy in the thought that the husband and father had a very good job. The wife and children rejoiced to think that they had a home of their own, even if it was built on land belonging to a big corporation.

What is the secret of a happy home? It is to be satisfied with our lot in life, not to sit down and let the world go by without trying to improve our condition, but purposeful improvement of our opportunities.

It is much easier to ask the question—What is a happy home? than it is to answer that question. Men look at things differently, and conditions which would make happiness for some would not make happiness for others. But regardless of our viewpoint in this matter, it is well to remember that true Christianity begins at home. If we do not take our religion home, attendance at church two or three times on Sunday and at prayer meeting in the middle of the week avails us nothing. We must take religion into our home life.

In order for anyone to have a genuinely happy home, it is necessary for him to follow Christ and his teachings, for when all about is changing, the teachings of Christ endure. Kingdoms and principalities may fall—a good many of them are falling right along—generation shall follow generation, homes shall go down in the maelstrom of time, everything sooner or later must change or return from whence it came, but Christ and his teaching are victorious over the world.

Christian missionaries in foreign lands report the making of converts, whereas the Mohammedans are bending their efforts to keep what they have; they are not proselyting. The great religious systems of India and China are being torn asunder because they do not fulfill the wants and needs of the masses.

About the year one thousand it seems a great fervor struck the world. All people believed the end of the world was near. They thought that one thousand was a nice round number, and that God would do something. Great changes have occurred since then, and we believe that the fulfillment of time is near, not because another thousand years have almost gone, but because to all students of the Scriptures, it appears that the prophetic sayings are fast being fulfilled.

Home Unity Means Happiness

Are we as Latter Day Saints working in our homes, making ready that Christ will find us with our lamps trimmed and burning brightly. Christian living must start in our homes, in our churches, in our dealings with our fellow men. It must stand or fall on its merits.

Happy the home where all belong to the same church, where all can unite in service around the family altar, where God is the Ruler supreme. Most unhappy homes are where the members seek for the joy of the hour, the joy that will not endure.

Many are the homes where the uppermost thoughts of the inmates are—where shall we spend our spare time? At the movies—the same old thing put into another dress once in a while? Or shall we go for a drive in the car for which it was necessary to mortgage the house to buy? What shall we do? Shall we have a grand party, something that will fire our neighbors with envy at our social standing? Some people are always hunting new pleasures, seeking something new to stimulate the tired-out brain.

How different the homes where the inmates have found the true happiness money can not buy, the happiness obtainable only through obedience to God's commands. Some have the peculiar notion that a God-fearing person can not have fun in life, but must always conduct himself very soberly. This is far from true. Christ himself loved a merry company, or he would not have attended the wedding at Cana. Wedding feasts as a rule are happy events where all have a good time.

It would be folly to object to all movies, for many of them are without doubt of high order and of great educational value. We should, however, avoid the movie disease of trying to see all of them. Neither is it a good idea to drive the car far out into the country or to a distant city just to have something about which to boast on Monday morning. It would be far nicer to invite some neighbor who has no car to take a little ride. When used in the right way, the automobile can be made to contribute much to our happiness.

As a rule Latter Day Saint homes are happy homes. Christ is the Ruler, and father and mother work with the children to promote God's kingdom on earth. May such homes be blessed.

Nothing that is done for good is ever wasted. There is a perennial life for good works that makes them live dormant through long winters of neglect. Like the seeds of our summer gardens, they may be blackened with rain and frost, buried and lost to view; but they will come forth again to a fruition of friendship and beauty. And it sometimes happens that those plantings of kindness which wait longest to yield a return, severely testing faith, bring the greatest reward.

Do You Know These People?

The Department of Statistics Asks Aid in Locating Lost Members

To the Editors and Readers of the Saints' Herald,
Greetings:

In the list which follows are the names of persons who have been reported unknown by the secretary of the Kansas City Stake. A diligent effort has been made by the stake officers and by this department to locate these persons, with a marked degree of success in many cases, but after everything has been done along available lines, the following names remain on the list.

We are therefore appealing to the readers of the Herald, asking them to go over the list carefully, and if they can give us any information about any of these names that will assist us in bringing the records up to date, to send the same to the Department of Statistics, The Auditorium, Independence, Missouri. If the complete present address can not be given, suggestions as to where the same may be obtained will be appreciated. This list was started in the Herald for September 30, and will continue in subsequent issues until completed.

Yours sincerely,

DEPARTMENT OF STATISTICS,

By C. L. OLSON.

Name	Year of Birth	Year of Baptism	Places Where Once Enrolled
Little, Edward	.....	1922	Kansas City.
Little, Emma	1873	1887	Armstrong, Kansas.
Livermore, Harford P.	1854	1906	First and Fourth Kansas City.
Lochling, Sarah M. (Banks)	1888	1897	Whearso, Missouri; Linn, Missouri; Knobnoster, Missouri, Kansas City.
Logan, Bertha Anna	1898	1921	Kansas City.
Logan, Leonidus Lycurgas	1891	1921	Kansas City.
Long, Elizabeth	1846	1915	Quindaro, Kansas.
Long, James Harvey	1909	1917	Armstrong, Kansas.
Long, Mary Frances	1879	1915	Quindaro, Kansas.
Loveland, George Mansel	1900	1916	Mount Washington, Missouri.
Loveland, Harold L.	1902	1914	Mount Washington, Missouri.
Loveland, Linas M.	1905	1914	Mount Washington, Missouri.
Loveland, Pauline	1907	1916	Mount Washington, Missouri.
Lungoch, Lavetta May	1911	1919	Kansas City.
Lungoch, Lela Irene	1909	1917	Grandview, Kansas.
Lungwitz, Bessie B.	1894	1906	Atchison, Kansas; Kansas City.
Lynch, Mabel L.	1877	1890	First Saint Joseph, Missouri; Kansas City.
Lyster, Beatrice	1886	1897	Armstrong, Kansas.
McChesney, Mary A.	1891	1907	Argentine, Kansas.
Lamp, Benjamin H.	1884	1910	Armstrong, Kansas.
Lamp, Georgia	1888	1913	Armstrong, Kansas.
Lamp, Rhoda	1888	1913	Armstrong, Kansas.
McChesney, Mary D.	1859	1906	Twin Creek, Kansas; Argentine, Kansas.
McClain, Clara M. (Tannahill)	1887	1899	Kansas City, Second; Malvern Hill, Kansas.
McCoy, Charles Smith	1893	1913	First Kansas City.
McDonald, Lester F.	1872	1909	First Kansas City.
McGee, Jennings	1896	1908	Holden, Missouri; Kansas City.
McGee, Mary Frances (Sandage)	1899	1921	Kansas City.
McGuire, Earl	1890	1916	Armstrong, Kansas.
McKee, Thomas R.	1881	1898	Saint Joseph, Missouri; Kansas City.
McKelvey, William F.	1881	1893	Armstrong, Kansas; Chelsea Park, Kansas.
McKelvey, Washington E.	1860	1910	Armstrong, Kansas; Chelsea Park, Kansas.
McKnight, Daisy Athea	1883	1897	Kansas City.
McKnight, Emmett F.	1861	1883	Independence, Kansas City.
McKnight, Fidelia F.	1889	1900	Second Kansas City.
McLain, Pansy B. (Stuck)	1897	1909	Second Kansas City.
McLanahan, Aline (Foster)	1907	1924	Kansas City.
McLanahan, Frank	1904	1924	Kansas City.
McMullen, Helen Florence (Garlich)	1901	1909	Saint Joseph, Missouri; Kansas City.
McNeese, Alma (Sedalia)	1891	1914	Armstrong, Kansas; First Kansas City.
McVey, Hugh M.	.....	1910	First Kansas City.
Macke, Joseph William	1904	1925	Kansas City.
Madison, Mary C.	1852	1916	Quindaro, Kansas.
Maitland, Frances Maud (Barker) (Cornish) (Zonker)	1883	1897	West Pullman, Illinois; Kansas City.
Malone, Barbara Clara	1903	1914	First Independence, Kansas City.
Manley, Harry A.	1893	1903	First Kansas City.
Mariner, William Adolph	1862	1920	Far West Stake, Kansas City.
Martin, Herman S.	1889	1915	First Kansas City.
Martin, Irene	1906	1918	Independence, Missouri; Rich Hill, Missouri; Kansas City.
Martin, Ida M. (Rusow)	1888	1899	Rich Hill, Missouri; Saint Joseph, Missouri; Independence, Kansas City.
Martin, Laura E.	1899	1910	Lowry City, Kansas City.
Martin, Leo Macagah	1901	1920	Kansas City.
Martin, Stella G.	1900	1910	Lowry City, Missouri; Clinton District; Kansas City.
Mathews, Myrtle Carrie (Rinker)	1890	1920	Kansas City, Lamoni, Iowa.
Matson, Clarence	1893	1901	Fontainelle, Iowa; Nevada, Missouri; Kansas City.
Matthews, Jennie	1880	1922	Kansas City.
Matzger, Louisa C. (Taylor)	1890	1902	Chelsea Park, Kansas.
Mayberry, Anna (Hickman)	1893	1911	Chelsea Park, Kansas.
Mayer, John B.	1877	1900	Second Kansas City.
Meister, Clarence R.	1897	1912	Saint Joseph, Missouri; First Kansas City, Missouri.
Meister, Margaritte A.	1865	1911	Kansas City.
Mercer, Sarah J. (Harris)	1846	1904	Second Kansas City.
Merrill, Annie C. (Shoup)	1893	1903	Armstrong, Kansas; Grandview, Kansas; Kansas City.
Meyer, Gertrude Mary	1880	1914	Quindaro, Kansas.
Meyer, Gladys	1905	1913	Grandview, Kansas.
Meyer, Margaret	1903	1913	Grandview, Kansas.
Meyers, Walter	1896	1913	Grandview, Kansas; First Kansas City, Missouri.
Michaels, Clara C. (Dayton)	1855	1901	Montrose, Iowa; Mount Washington, Missouri.
Mikel, William Lee	1881	1907	Blue Rapids, Kansas; Chelsea Park, Kansas.
Mikesell, Eva W. (Cooper)	1890	1902	Chelsea Park, Kansas; Kansas City.
Miller, Charles C.	1895	1918	Quindaro, Kansas.

Name	Year of Birth	Year of Baptism	Places Where Once Enrolled
Miller, Grace, (Seymour)	1887	1899	Chelsea Park, Kansas.
Miller, Guy	1883	1895	Little Sioux, Iowa; Nevada, Missouri; Kansas City.
Mitchell, Olive May	1883	1910	Independence, Holden, Kansas City.
Monroe, Gertrude Belle	1885	1914	Quindaro, Kansas.
Monroe, Lela May	1899	1915	Quindaro, Kansas.
Monroe, Ly G.	1883	1901	Chelsea Park, Kansas; Quindaro, Kansas.
Moore, Everett William	1901	1913	Quindaro, Kansas.
Moore, Florence F. (Woodhead)	1912	1921	Kansas City.
Morris, Agnes V.	1868	1906	First Kansas City.
Morris, Robert E.	1862	1906	First Kansas City.
Morrison, Alta Violet (Quick)	1900	1919	Fort Scott, Kansas; Independence.
Morse, Clara Jane	1856	1908	Kansas City.
Morton, Lucy G.	1883	1920	Kansas City.
Morton, Rose E.	1862	1895	Independence, Kansas City.
Morton, William J.	1870	1895	Independence, Second Kansas City.
Muir, Frederick	1901	1914	Fourth Kansas City.
Mullins, Matthew Luther	1891	1924	Kansas City.
Mullins, Pearl Estline	1894	1924	Kansas City.
Munden, Glen M.	1893	1907	Pittsburg, Kansas; Kansas City.
Murdock, Jennie Alta (Perry)	1899	1918	Warrensburg, Kansas City.
Murray, Mary Catherine	1900	1912	Lees Summit, Missouri; Kansas City.
Muus, Virgil H.	1906	1918	Armstrong, Kansas.
Near, Melvina	1855	1897	Armstrong, Kansas; Chelsea Park, Kansas.
Neidig, Menah H.	1861	1908	Post Oak, Missouri; Kansas City.
Nelson, Marion Francis	1913	1925	Kansas City.
Newcomb, Cornelia	1854	1899	Chelsea Park, Kansas.
Newkirk, Fay O. (Pendleton)	1893	1913	Independence, Kansas City.
Newkirk, Wayne V.	1894	1903	Independence, Kansas City.
Newton, George W.	1887	1896	Second Kansas City.
Newton, Julia A. Delia	1876	1898	Armstrong, Kansas.
Newton, Sarah J.	1877	1886	Kansas City.
Newton, William	1893	1904	Armstrong, Kansas.
Nichols, Cora L. (Harrison)	1890	1906	Independence, Missouri; Kansas City, Chicago, Illinois.
Nichols, Dolpha I.	1904	1912	Wheatland, Missouri; Wichita, Kansas; Independence, Kansas City.
Nixon, William A.	1884	1912	Argentine, Kansas.
Norton, Latischa Mae	1913	1925	Kansas City.
Norton, Lorena Margarette	1911	1925	Kansas City.
O'Neill, Mildred Elma (Cleveland)	1900	1909	First and Second Kansas City, Mount Washington, Missouri.
Ocamb, Charles W.	1837	1887	Armstrong, Kansas.
Ocamb, Mary	1846	1887	Armstrong, Kansas.
Ochsner, Wilford L.	1883	1893	Independence, Missouri; Kansas City, Missouri.
Oldham, Pearl Edna	1896	1915	Quindaro, Kansas.
Oldham, Roy B.	1894	1915	Quindaro, Kansas.
Oman, Anna C.	1879	1903	Kansas City, Missouri.
Osborne, Lillian Myrtle	1904	1920	Kansas City.
Ossenberg, Amanda M. (Ince)	1897	1909	First Kansas City.
Outhwait, Alberta C. (Bennett)	1876	1890	First Kansas City.
Page, Gladys May	1904	1912	Independence, Missouri; Kansas City.
Palmer, Florence Euretta (Galland)	1891	1906	Deloit, Iowa; Meadow Grove, Nebraska; Kansas City.
Parker, Verna Ann (McKee)	1903	1912	Salem, Iowa; Far West, Missouri; Kansas City.
Parman, Maud M.	1893	1915	Walnut Park, Missouri; Kansas.
Patterson, Eliza	1892	1909	Independence, Missouri; Kansas City.
Patterson, Louisa B. (Chapman)	1882	1892	Persia, Iowa; Independence, Missouri; Kansas City.
Paulos, Grace L. (Griffin)	1895	1906	Foundry Hill, Tennessee; Independence Stake, Kansas City.
Payne, Charity, Jr. (Cook)	1886	1896	Lamoni, Iowa; Saint Joseph, Missouri; Kansas City.
Payne, Sadie	1894	1919	Independence, Kansas City.
Payton, Marietta	1856	1892	Armstrong, Kansas; Chelsea Park, Kansas.
Pederson, Peter	1879	1916	First Kansas City, Missouri.
Percival, Arminda	1888	1921	Kansas City.
Percival, Earl Lavurne	1877	1921	Kansas City.
Perry, Abbie (Partridge)	1904	1914	Council Bluffs, Iowa; First Kansas City, Missouri.
Peterson, William	1898	1912	Armstrong, Kansas; Grandview, Kansas.
Petre, Mary	1902	1910	Knobnoster, Missouri; Mapleton, Kansas; Kansas City.
Petre, Maud F.	1903	1911	Knobnoster, Missouri; Mapleton, Kansas; Kansas City.
Petty, Pauline G. (Clow)	1902	1911	Armstrong, Kansas.
Phillips, Bertha Pearl, (Lane)	1897	1913	Independence, Kansas City.
Phillips, Eli M.	1863	1924	Kansas City.
Phillips, Lulu	1885	1918	Quindaro, Kansas.
Phillips, Ralph B.	1891	1904	Saint Louis, Missouri; Independence, Missouri; Kansas City.
Pierce, Millie Jane	1860	1927	Independence, Kansas City.
Pine, Nancy L. (Francis)	1861	1895	Lees Summit, Missouri; Kansas City.
Pitts, William Howard	1918	1928	Kansas City.
Pohlhammer, Lola G.	1886	1913	Armstrong, Kansas.
Pohlhammer, Vera M.	1905	1914	Armstrong, Kansas.
Pooler, Alice	1880	1892	Kansas City.
Pooler, Effie May (Lungoch)	1881	1915	Grandview, Kansas.
Pouman, Ruth (Campbell)	1904	1919	Saint Joseph, Missouri; Kansas City.
Pratt, Edward	1912	1921	Kansas City.
Pratt, Elizabeth	1843	1902	Kansas City.
Pratt, Lora Agnes	1880	1910	Kansas City.
Price, Thomas LeRoy	1882	1911	Independence, Missouri; Mount Washington.
Printiville, Grace Mae	1901	1922	Kansas City, Missouri.
Pulham, Elizabeth	1838	1902	Armstrong, Kansas.
Pullman, Clara May (Shure)	1903	1911	Chelsea Park, Kansas.
Purcell, Alfred W.	1881	1915	Second Kansas City.
Pursell, Ethel Fern	1891	1917	Cameron, Missouri; Kansas City.
Ragenstine, Omar M.	1866	1891	Armstrong, Kansas.
Ramsey, Bertha E. (Gerber)	1881	1983	Armstrong, Kansas; Chelsea Park, Kansas.
Randall, Cyril C.	1879	1896	Saint Joseph, Missouri; Kansas City.
Randall, Iola M. (Hilla)	1882	1898	Saint Joseph, Missouri; Kansas City.
Randall, Sena Josephine	1900	1908	Fourth Kansas City.
Rathburn, Mary Orpha	1886	1913	Independence, Missouri; Kansas City.
Raveill, Alice L.	1906	1928	Kansas City, Missouri.
Raveill, Georgia E. C.	1893	1901	Post Oak, Missouri; Kansas City.
Raveill, William Fredrick	1891	1905	Manitowning, Ontario; Holden, Missouri; Kansas City.
Rayburn, Mylon Gilburn	1909	1919	Armstrong, Kansas.
Reed, Cecil Hyacinth	1917	1928	Kansas City, Missouri.
Reed, Estella M.	1855	1907	Fourth Kansas City, Missouri.
Repine, Ella (Barnes)	1868	1884	Independence, Kansas City.
Reyburn, Emma Caroline (Hutson)	1907	1916	Alma, Kansas City.
Reynolds, Alice Viola (Hyde)	1903	1915	Post Oak, Missouri; Kansas City.
Reynolds, Blanche (Hammond)	1900	1916	Second Kansas City.
Reynolds, Blanche J. (Gaulter)	1889	1900	Springfield, Missouri; Kansas City.
Reynolds, Edith	1905	1914	Rock Island, Illinois; Kansas City.
Reynolds, James M.	1898	1914	Warrensburg, Missouri; Kansas City.
Reynolds, Martha Margaret	1909	1918	Peoria, Illinois; Kansas City.
Richards, Phittias A.	1886	1895	Armstrong, Kansas.
Richter, Lottie	1902	1921	Kansas City.

NEWS OF CHURCH AND HOME

Address all news and letters to Editors of the Herald, Box 237, Independence, Missouri. Correspondents are requested to make their letters brief. The Editors reserve the right, on account of space limitations, to shorten all letters as circumstances require.

Another Annual Home-coming for Graceland

Varied Program Entertained Many College Alumni and Friends

A program which included all group activities from pep meetings to worship services made happy the large number of Graceland alumni, patrons, and friends which gathered at Lamoni, October 16, 17, and 18, for the annual home-coming events. By setting the home-coming dates a few weeks earlier than usual, it was combined with College Day. "It was a fitting time to hold the annual event, when so many Graceland friends were together," comments the Lamoni Chronicle.

A representative gathering of Graceland students, present and former, and their friends, arrived on Friday in time to see the all-college play "The Youngest" given at the Coliseum, and to take part in Saturday's program of pep meeting, parade, football game, and home-coming dinner. Sunday brought them together for the fellowship service at the college chapel at 9 o'clock, and Doctor Charles W. Grabske, formerly a student on the hill, was the College Day speaker at the Coliseum that morning.

The Program Opened Friday

"Early Days at Graceland," a lecture given by Mrs. M. E. Mortimore, with the projector operated by R. H. Mortimore, at the chapel Friday afternoon, afforded plenty of opportunity for merriment for both the principals in the screen laughs, who happened to be present, and the present-day students who viewed the scenes of a quarter of a century ago.

A number of musical selections, including a piano number by Miss Rae Lysinger, and the singing of college songs, and also the reading of a poem written by Miss Walters and read by Miss Charlotte Condit, added to the program.

In closing, President Briggs gave a short talk of welcome to the home-coming visitors, and Roy Cheville in charge of the activities, made announcements. —The Lamoni Chronicle

An all-college cast presented "The Youngest" to home-comers Friday night at the Coliseum. Dwight Vredenburg and Lois Turner, two freshmen, carried the leads in the first dramatic production of the year. They were supported by Margaret Anderson, the mother; Loren McDowell and William Gould, the brothers; Joy Davis and Jeannette Burstrom, the sisters; Don Pierson, the brother-in-law.

"The Youngest" is a comedy based on harmonious family life. The play took the place of the customary Hall Show which was discontinued for this year.

Alumni Dinner an Outstanding Event

The alumni dinner, held in the dining room of Walker Hall, Saturday evening, was one of the most successful events held by a Graceland home-coming. Two hundred and fifty-two alumni, students, and friends of Graceland were seated at long tables, simply laid with centerpieces of asters and dahlias, and golden-colored nut cups. The three-course dinner was served by men students in white uniforms, and prepared by the Patroness Society. Both groups of workers deserve credit for the splendid quality of food and the orderly serving.

Elder C. E. Wight, of Kansas City, an early student, occupied as master of ceremonies, introducing first Elder Blair Jensen, who said grace. Later in short talks, spiced with humor and the recalling of school-day memories, he presented a number of alumni and friends for impromptu speeches. The program was very informal, and delightfully spontaneous from the response given Roy Cheville in the singing of old songs, to the reminiscences of former students, and supporters of Graceland.

Ray Whiting, a student of about 1918 to 1921, now pastor of the Saints church at Council Bluffs, was the first to respond. Mrs. Audentia Anderson, of Lincoln, a student of about 1908, expressed her gratitude for the institution which had meant much not only to her but her four children. President Elbert A. Smith, a loyal friend and supporter of the college, though he never was permitted to attend the institution as a student, was next introduced. He admonished the boys and girls of Graceland to appreciate their heritage, the institution of learning which offered opportunities not to be found elsewhere, and which, if they prove true to the trust imposed upon them, will prepare them to be of great service to humanity. The closing toast was given by President Briggs.

The banquet program was greatly enhanced by musical numbers from the Wahdemna Male Quartet, of Independence, Missouri. Two of this quartet are members of the 1930 class, Roderick May and Robert Crawford.

Saturday's other home-coming activities included open house at Walker Hall from 8 to 9 a. m., in charge of Miss Tess Morgan; tag football on the Bean Field from 9 to 10 between the four literary societies; pep meeting from 10 to 12; the parade from college hill to the North Park at 1:30 p. m., and the football game with Simpson College at 2:30. After a series of brilliant plays, the score stood 13 to 6 in favor of the Graceland Yellow Jackets.

Sunday Sends Home-Comers Home

The Home-coming fellowship service was held at the college chapel at 9 o'clock Sunday morning. The theme of the service was introduced by President F. M. McDowell, a former student. A prelude was played by Vivian Castings, after which a quartet sang. In the past the home-coming fellowship services have been the highpoints for the alumni. It is very often such services which have been the determining factor in the lives of Gracelanders.—Graceland Tower

A capacity crowd greeted Doctor Charles W. Grabske, as the speaker on the College Day program at the coliseum Sunday morning. It was composed of regular church goers, and alumni and friends of Graceland who were in attendance at the college home-coming.

College Day is set apart primarily as the day when the supporters of Graceland rally to show their loyalty in a material way by donations to the scholarship loan fund, through which worthy students are aided in financing their education. Through the years in which this movement has been sponsored, hundreds of girls and boys have been helped in this way. There is now in circulation through this channel some $37,000. Some of it is being used by present students, some being returned in payments by those who have reached the point of earning as a result of the education thus gained, and some of it quiet loans, held by students who are continuing to further their education in more advanced institutions, and will not begin their payments until they secure employment following the completion of their schooling.

The program Sunday morning, in keeping with the occasion, was introduced by congregational singing, followed by prayer by President Briggs, and a response by the choir. Charles Ballantyne, delighted the audience with a violin solo, and the choir sang the anthem, "Lead Kindly Light," Mrs. Linna T. Hunt soloist.—Lamoni Chronicle.

This was the concluding service of home-coming events, and by the middle of the afternoon, a large number of Graceland alumni were on their way to homes at near and distant points.

Numbers Are Baptized in Missionary Services

Loyalty of Little Girls Starts the Movement

Willapa, Washington, October 20.—Last June in a near-by town, an evangelistic campaign was held, the services of a noted evangelist having been secured for that purpose. The few isolated Saints living in Willapa, attended the united revival meetings.

No Latter Day Saint services were held here save at irregular intervals when the Saints were visited by Elder Marcus Cook. The members had their only worship with other churches, and their children met with other Sunday schools.

At last in the revival meetings the time came for an expression from all those willing to accept Christ and give themselves to God. A number arose, and by invitation, occupied front pews together. They were handed cards upon which they were requested to write the name of the church with which they desired to affiliate.

A Latter Day Saint mother had not anticipated this procedure, and was a little anxious as two of her girls, aged ten and twelve, were in the group. They were not seated together as they took pencil and card to write. They wrote simultaneously: "The Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints." A clergyman who collected the cards remonstrated with the younger girl, crossed out what she had written, and wrote the name of a popular denomination of today. The little girl, previously feeling so happy, was heart-broken, but concealed her feelings until an outburst of tears brought relief.

On the next day when two ministers called to arrange for the baptism of the little girl, the mother explained what had occurred, and they made apology and volunteered to correct the error. They also expressed embarrassment for the action of their colleague.

A little later Elder Cook came this way and held meetings. He sent word to me that prospects were good for some special effort, and to come if possible. We were greatly blessed in the few services we held together, and four were baptized by Elder Cook, in July, just before the reunion at Silver Lake. Confirmation service was held under beautiful natural and spiritual conditions near the water's edge, a number of Saints from Centralia being present.

After the reunion, accompanied by Sister Velt, I came right back to continue meetings, Elder Cook having other engagements. My stereopticon lectures on ancient America and Bible prophecy brought out unusually good crowds. This has been true almost everywhere we have shown the pictures, and it has been gratifying to know that unbelievers have been brought to Christ through this means. Hundreds have found their prejudices giving place to friendship and interest.

Two weeks ago last Sunday, four adults were baptized in the Willapa River, when in pouring rain, fifty people walked half a mile to be present. Spiritual power was with us in the confirmation service. The following Sunday five young people were baptized. The sun was shining brightly. Last Sunday five more adults were added to the fold, and already others have given their names for baptism next Sunday. This will make four consecutive Sundays that baptismal services have been held.

Seven weeks of meetings have now been held, and if we are to judge by the growing interest, they will be continued indefinitely. The new members are establishing the family altar of prayer and inquiring for inventory blanks to ascertain their tithing due.

We are occupying the Methodist Church which is used but one night a week for Methodist services. Every evening the people come together on time for fifteen minutes of congregational singing. They used typed song copies, there being only a few books here until an order of the new Hymnals arrives. Songs such as the following are being learned with enthusiasm, "The Dear Old Story of a Savior's Love," "'Tis a Glorious Thing to Be in the Light," "I Have Found the Glorious Gospel," "Blest Be the Tie That Binds," etc.

We trust that isolated members of the church in other parts will take hope and courage from the unspeakable joy now being experienced as a result of the faithfulness and loyalty of a few long-isolated Saints in Willapa.

HAROLD I. Velt.

Sacramento, California

Many and varied have been the activities of Sacramento Branch in the past few months. The committee of the Idola Club consisting of three very business-like young women, secured a place for a lunch counter at the State Fair. At a special meeting of the club a few nights before the opening of the Fair, important matters were discussed and settled. It seemed to be in the hearts of all who were at this meeting that we should pray over this work in which we were about to engage, so in humility and faith all knelt and prayed, asking that our work be blessed. God heard our prayers. Our lunch counter was a wonderful success, notwithstanding the work was new to most of the workers. A fine spirit of cooperation was shown by the ones who helped. Many valuable lessons were learned. We give our heavenly Father thanks and praise for his goodness.

The annual branch business meeting, held the latter part of August, was marked by a good spirit. Brother Levitt presided. The officers for the ensuing year are: W. H. Dawson, pastor; E. C. Burdick and Joseph Bussell, counselors; Gertrude Bidwell, director of religious education; Jabez Elam, assistant; Birdie Clark, director of music; Adele Taylor, librarian; Zada Hook, historian; Ora Johnston, clerk. Superintendents for the divisions: Marie Honeychurch, adult; Florence Epling, young people, and Cora Taylor, children's division.

Bishop Albert Carmichael was here the first part of September, bringing messages of inspiration, hope, courage, and knowledge.

The Temple Builders have been active the last few months, under the leadership of Sister Edna Burdick. They have bought drapes for the pastor's study and rubber mats for all the steps in the church building. These girls are splendid workers.

The saints were saddened by the death of Sister R. V. Brooner August 28. Sister Brooner was seventy years of age. The saints in Sacramento miss her quiet helpfulness. Always her desire was that she might help some one. Her saintly character was an inspiration to all who knew her. Brother Levitt officiated at the funeral.

Mabel Dahl, a young woman of the church who lived in Placerville with her parents, was killed in an automobile accident in August. Mabel was seventeen years old. She was loved by all who knew her, and her many friends mourn her passing. Brother Levitt officiated at the funeral which was held in Placerville.

Rally and Promotion Day was an occasion to be remembered by many. There were promotion and certificates for those who merited them. Welcome addresses were given by the teachers and superintendents of the departments. At the close of the eleven o'clock service two children were baptized, Dorothy Ensley, daughter of Elvin and Alice Ensley, Ruth Ensley, daughter of Joe and Emma Ensley. Basket lunches prepared by the women of the branch were enjoyed in the lower auditorium.

A surprise party was given Sister Rose Dawson, wife of the pastor, August 25, it being her birthday. Forty-six were present. Sister Dawson received some lovely presents.

We were surprised to learn a few weeks ago of the marriage of Sister Florence Barr to Mr. Thomas Moke. The marriage was kept a secret for a time. Sister Florence is the daughter of Mrs. R. V. Brooner, lately deceased.

We are glad to welcome among us Brother and Sister

E. R. Fox and daughter, from Chico, also Sister William Johnson and daughter, of Kansas City. They are new additions to the choir. Some rare treats are expected from the choir this next year.

The mission at Auburn, California, was discontinued a few months during the summer, but is now active again. It was voted that Brother Roy Barmore, of New Castle, take charge, as he lives near Auburn, and Brothers Jabez Elam and Joseph Bussell assist whenever they can. Brother Dawson has been able to be with them a few times of late, also Brother Levitt. Let us pray that the work will continue and bring souls into the kingdom.

Owing to sickness among the members of the branch and especially a sister who is about to undergo a severe operation, all the Saints were asked to come to the prayer meeting last Wednesday night fasting and praying for these. God blessed us for the effort put forth and the love that was shown for our brothers and sisters. A wonderful Spirit was present, and God saw fit to speak to us through one of the elders. God does indeed remember his promises to the children of men.

Decatur, Nebraska

October 18.—The Northeastern Nebraska district conference was held here October 3 and 4, being characterized by good attendance and unity of spirit. Apostle E. J. Gleazer, and Elders E. B. Hull, H. A. Merchant, R. Melvin Russell, and W. A. Smith were present to conduct the services. Brother Gleazer especially held for us the mirror of truth so that we could see our imperfections and at the same time our opportunities. His talks strengthened the Saints and kindled within the breast of every one a determination to do his part as God would have it done.

Elder W. A. Smith began a series of old-fashioned gospel meetings October 4, and still is continuing with interest. Even if he baptizes no one at this time, his efforts have not been in vain. It has greatly helped the Saints to hear the story that never grows old; it strengthens our effort in the upward struggle.

Brother Sylvester, of Omaha, preached here the morning of October 18. This brother is very good to us, often meeting with the Saints of Decatur and giving comfort and encouragement. His help is appreciated.

The young people have choir practice each Thursday evening at the farm home of Sister Ed. Quill, who is assisted by our smiling, young pianist, Helene Goddard. Helene is very faithful at her post.

The Women's Department bought a new rubber aisle carpet for the church. The women meet every two weeks for study and work. They have been able in the past few weeks to finance many improvements in our little church.

Cedar Rapids, Iowa

October 22.—District President E. R. Davis came to Cedar Rapids, August 2, and opened a mission enabling the Saints to hold church school services at 10 a. m., preaching services at 11, and young people's meeting at 7 p. m. each Sunday. The group was fortunate in securing a church building on the corner of Third Street and Fifth Avenue, Southwest.

Four weeks later District Missionary F. C. Bevan paid a visit to the group which was much enjoyed.

An all-day meeting on October 11 was profitable to all. Many out-of-town visitors were present. Walter Dayken, from Iowa City, spoke in the morning, Voas Meredith, also of Iowa City, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, and E. R. Davis at 7:30 in the evening. The sermons were appreciated by everyone. Dinner was served to seventy-six people by women of Cedar Rapids. An attractive feature of the program was a tour of the city in the afternoon.

Two of our active young women left us in September.

Sister Alice Fleming is teaching school at Fremont, Iowa, and Vida Sylvester is attending Graceland College.

Last Sunday forty-six members of the branch gathered for a farewell dinner for Brother and Sister Ralph Welday and their daughter, Annalee, who expect to make their home in Davenport. The group regrets their departure.

Out-of-town brothers and sisters are very welcome when they visit Cedar Rapids Branch.

Kansas City Stake

Central Church

At the call of the First Presidency, the fifteen meeting places in the stake canceled Sunday evening services and met en masse at Central, where were presented the Jackson County Bank situation and other church matters. President F. M. McDowell, Bishop G. Leslie DeLapp, Apostle F. Henry Edwards, and Bishop C. A. Skinner addressed the meeting, there being a capacity house of Saints present.

Brother DeLapp discussed the Jackson County Bank in detail, stating that rumors were largely responsible for its closing. He stated that in the end the directors waived every consideration in favor of the depositors and the interest of the church, adding that he thinks the depositors are amply protected, but that the stockholders will lose some. The embarrassment is hoped to be only temporary. He further assured the congregation by saying that this difficulty need not interfere with the work of the general church going forward.

President McDowell stressed the necessity of going forward and said that he believed those who love the work should rise to the support of their church.

Bishop Skinner recited some of the ways we can sacrifice which, if done, will clear the church of all its debts in a short time.

Apostle F. Henry Edwards told of the dependability of several champions who never fail in a close contest. We, as champions in the work of Jesus Christ, he said, can be depended on not to fail in this crisis.

At the close of the service, a sister gained recognition of Elder George Mesley, who presided, stated that all she had was a dollar, and asked the privilege of giving it and of extending the same privilege to others present. This was granted, and as a result the offering amounted to about $240.

The morning speaker was Stake Missionary Arthur Oakman. This was his farewell sermon, for he has been appointed to Saint Louis District. In his short ministry in Kansas City Stake, he has endeared himself to all with whom he came in contact, and it seems his work among us was cut too short. He feelingly stated his reluctance in leaving for another field.

Next Sunday is sacrament Sunday, a day when we remember the redeeming love of our heavenly Father through Jesus Christ his Son, a day when we renew in the presence of each other the covenant that we made with God in the waters of baptism. Let each of us make fitting preparation for this service, that it may be one of spiritual uplift and blessing.

Tonight commences a special series of evening devotionals. The service will include an organ concert, meditation, and prayer. Brother George Mesley will give a series of five talks around the theme, "Upward Steps in Our Church Endeavor." These are trying times. We need a closer walk with God. Let us reserve Wednesday for these devotional periods and plan to be present.

November's program for Central Church includes the following: November 1, sacrament Sunday; November 8, Bishop's Sunday; November 15 and 16, Stake conference; November 22, Thanksgiving Sunday; November 29, home-coming Sunday; November 30, religious drama contest.

Gladstone Church

Elder A. B. Phillips, of Independence, was the morning speaker October 11, and Stake Bishop Skinner occupied in the evening. Both addresses were on the subject of finances and received the earnest attention of the congregation.

Graceland College Day was observed at the eleven-o'clock hour October 18. Congregational singing, an anthem by the choir, a solo by Dorothy Bundy Price, a reading by Myrno Tanner, explanation of the use of the offering by Pastor C. E. Selbe, and an address, "The Need of Wisdom," by Elder Charles Lewis, composed the program.

Beginning October 25, Evangelist U. W. Greene, radio pastor of Independence, is conducting a series of Sunday night services. He uses a chart. These meetings will continue five Sundays. On the fifth night a stereopticon lecture will be given.

Quindaro Church

On October 7, at the close of the prayer service, a surprise wedding took place when Sister Myrtle Fay Hartman and Brother Martin Rust came forward and were united in marriage by Pastor H. A. Higgins. The bridal pair are among the faithful ones who attend this church. They have many friends who wish them happiness.

Sunday morning at 9 o'clock Mrs. Sarah Certain made her covenant with Christ in baptism. The confirmation occurred October 11.

Bishop F. B. Blair occupied the eleven o'clock hour, using as the scripture reading the story of Christ feeding the multitude. His theme was, "Gather Up the Fragments That Nothing Be Lost."

Early the evening of October 18 the Lewis Brothers' three-piece stringed trio, accompanied by Miss Catherine Lewis, piano soloist, entertained for forty-five minutes. These talented people were most welcome. They may be heard over Radio Station WLBK. Pastor Higgins spoke at eight o'clock.

This Friday evening a Halloween party will be held in the church basement. All guests are invited to bring a food gift to help supply a larder for the needy this winter.

Grandview Church

This congregation does not do things by halves, as was evidenced in the home-coming, held Sunday, October 18, when the entire day was spent in speech-making, singing, praying, testifying, to say nothing of the wonderful repast contributed and prepared by the loyal sisters.

Church school was attended by one hundred and ninety-four pupils, following which Elder U. W. Greene preached. He used as a lesson Nehemiah 6, stressing the quotation, "I am doing a great work," the seventy years' captivity, and the return of the Israelites. He believes that their home-coming has a parallel in the present occasion.

At two o'clock in the afternoon a season of prayer and testimony was indulged in, the time being well occupied.

At 7.45 Stake Missionary Arthur Oakman occupied with an entertaining and instructive sermon. His theme was "Faith."

A supply of the new Hymnals has been placed in the pews. Grandview and Chelsea Churches are the first to use them as congregations in this stake.

This congregation is presided over by Elder Charles D. Jellings and a corps of willing workers.

A historical trip through Far West was taken by the Grandview group September 20. They were accompanied by Elder John F. Sheehy as lecturer.

Three people have recently been conducted into the waters of baptism by Elder Arthur Oakman: Alma Rees, Lora Kane, and Alice Oberlag.

A luncheon club known as the La-Da-Sa Women's Club has been organized with Sister C. D. Jellings as president. The purpose of the club is education, both mental and spiritual, and some effort will be made to raise money for the benefit of the church. The club meets at one o'clock on the third Tuesday in each month at the homes of the members.

The Laurel Club (formerly known as the Women's Department) will have its annual bazaar December 3, in the church basement. Dinner will be served in the evening.

Second Church

The O. B. K. leader, Sister Mildred Lungwitz, is working in the interest of the young folks, Sister P. J. Raw assisting her.

Sunday, September 27, was observed as Rally Day. We had good attendance at each service. Brother P. J. Raw, and Sister Mildred Lungwitz, were in charge of the morning service; Brother Clark Payne was in charge of Religion; Pastor F. A. Evans was in charge of the afternoon prayer meeting. Elder W. O. Hands gave a stereopticon lecture in the evening.

Recent speakers have been Elders E. W. Lloyd, E. P. Sanders, F. A. Evans, and Brothers E. S. Zinc and P. J. Raw. Sister Ruth Zinc is improving nicely after her operation.

The Saints wish all Herald readers success, and are thankful for the big success of the Harvest Home Festival at Independence.

Midland District (England) Reunion

The semiannual reunion of Midland District, England, occurred September 19 and 20, at Sutton-in-Ashfield. Reunion sessions were opened on Saturday evening by Elder Joseph Holmes, district president. After a few words of greeting, the members spent the time in social activity under the supervision of Elder W. Bailey, of Birmingham, director of religious education for Midland District. A solo and a number of recitations were given after which Elder John Holmes, of Sutton-in-Ashfield entertained with some conjuring tricks. During the evening Elder Nephi Dewsnup and wife, from Manchester arrived.

Sunday dawned a beautiful day and our services were held in Bainbridge Hall, commencing at 10.30 with community singing led by Elder Franklyn Schofield. From 10.50 till 11 o'clock there was silent prayer and meditation, the theme of the prayer during the ten minutes being in behalf of Brother A. Trenam, of Sutton-in-Ashfield, who met with a serious accident during the week while at his work in the coal mine. He lies in the Nottingham Hospital.

Following this came a preaching service, Elder Franklyn Schofield, of Birmingham, being the speaker. His subject was "My Task." At this hour a group of Birmingham Saints arrived accompanied by Pastor and Sister Peter S. Whalley and Bishop Trapp.

Brother Schofield's stirring address clearly showed the task that lies before us and how everyone is given talents and task to perform. Whether these talents and tasks are great or small, each one must do his best to make them bigger. Whatever our talent, we must develop it for the good of all; in so doing, we are serving God. The speaker urged the congregation to develop in service. God expects great things of us, and it is our task to see that our talents are used to the upbuilding of his kingdom. A solo, "My Task," was sung by Sister Irene Swann, of Birmingham.

Lunches followed this service, then a lecture by Elder W. Bailey, director of religious education. "Openings for Service" was his theme, and using a chart, he gave a good demonstration of how the new plan of religious education can be used in our local branches. A solo, two recitations, and a duet were rendered. After this came a fellowship meeting, an enjoyable hour being spent. All felt a great portion of the spirit. Bishop Trapp offered a special prayer for Brother A. Trenam, and Brother Deacon, of Birmingham, who we also learned, had met with an accident.

At 6 o'clock the priesthood were addressed by Pastor Whalley and the district president. Half an hour later a preaching service opened, the closing session of the day. Brother Whalley, of Birmingham, was the speaker. "He That Would Be Great" was his subject. In his sermon Brother Walley impressed the fact that he who would be great must qualify himself for greater things by honest and faithful service in the everyday things intrusted to him. At this service a duet number was rendered by Sisters Ethel and Nellie Schofield.

The theme of "Service" was carried throughout the reunion. A happy day ended in the house of the Lord, and the Saints went away with a greater desire to do more in the glorious gospel work.

Hazel Dell Branch

Weston, Iowa.

Although there has not appeared any news from this branch in the Herald recently this is no indication that the Saints here have gone to sleep at their post. Our works indicate the contrary. Two have been received into the branch through baptism in the last few weeks.

The Rally Day, September 27, composed a beautiful experience. The church was full to capacity when Elder L. G. Holloway spoke in the forenoon. After a fine basket dinner, the members gathered for the afternoon service to hear a forceful sermon by Elder Ray Whiting, from Council Bluffs. Brother Whiting is the district president. Saints from as far away as Carson, Iowa, were here to help in the meetings.

During the succeeding week Brother Holloway held evening meetings at the church with fairly good attendance, and the following week he held meetings in the Weston Hall. Here he was able to show stereopticon pictures. We have not yet installed electric lights in our church home.

Officers of this branch sense the responsibilities that rest on them. Shortly before Rally Day they went out two by two like the disciples of old, visiting the homes of the Saints, trying to tell them something about their duties, and giving courage to those who were down-hearted. We realize that today is a day when men are being tried, but we know that if we work unitedly, the day will soon come when Zion shall reign in her glory.

London (Canada) District Conference

Ontario, Canada.

London District assembled in conference at Stratford, Ontario, October 10 and 11, there being a good representation from the district gathering for the business session at 2 p. m. Saturday.

The district treasurer's report showed a surplus of more than one hundred dollars in the district funds, and the conference voted that one half that amount be sent to the Presiding Bishop as a free will offering from the London District Conference.

Officers elected for the year are: President, J. Winegarden; counselors, J. Dent and J. MacGregor; supervisor of religious education, R. H. Atkinson; assistant supervisor of religious education, Grace Perry; district secretary, Clara Scholotzauer; treasurer, and bishop's agent, Clarence Weeks.

The young people of the district presented the evening program to an appreciative audience. The district president acted as chairman. The representative program is briefly told as follows: A trio, Neil brothers, of London; solo, Pearl Moore, of Stratford; reading, Jean Klein, Stratford; cornet solo, Brother Neil, London; duet, Isabelle and Ruth Leney, Stratford; solo, Stella Cole, Stratford; piano solo, Raymond Neil, London; two anthems by the choir; solo, Fred Heddington, London; piano duet, Caro and Isabelle Withrow, Stratford; solo, Bert Richardson, London; violin solo, Brother Neil, London.

Sunday's services were of a high order and a fine spirit was enjoyed. Elder Percy Farrow gave an inspiring sermon on church school. Brother John Dent spoke on the financial side of the work, giving a better understanding of prevailing conditions. Elder William I. Fligg spoke of the necessity of closer living to the ideals of the kingdom to which we belong. The conference closed, sending the Saints home with new energy to carry on the work of the coming year.

Independence

Special Mass Meeting at the Auditorium

All over Independence Sunday morning's church school sessions were pushed to a prompt close. Due to the unusual order of the day's events, not a moment's time was allowed to go to waste. A special mass meeting at the Auditorium was announced on Saturday through the daily paper and many telephone calls, and the Saints of the various branches were urged to be present. All congregational eleven o'clock plans were canceled. And as fast as the people could reach the Auditorium after their respective church school sessions, they presented themselves in the lower room.

Though events of the past week had stirred the members of the church and people of Independence and nearby points, they came together Sunday morning several thousand strong, to hear the officers of the church speak.

After favorite hymns were sung by the congregation, led by Elder John F. Sheehy, and a beautiful solo by Mrs. S. A. Burgess, accompanied by Mrs. Paul N. Craig, President F. M. McDowell announced the speakers in the order of their appearance, Bishop G. Leslie DeLapp, Bishop M. H. Siegfried, and President F. M. Smith.

First, Brother DeLapp briefly explained factors involved in the closing of the Jackson County Bank and the position of the church relative to the issue. (Please see editorial of this Herald, pages 2 and 3.)

Then Bishop Siegfried arose to confirm the statement of Brother DeLapp and to state the position of the directors and officers of his institution. It is the determination of Brother Siegfried and his associate bank stockholders, at any cost to themselves, to see the depositors and the church suffer no loss from the closing of the bank.

And third, President Smith summed up the attitude of the church quorums and officers in regard to the financial situation of the church; extorted the Saints to be strong, devoted, and sacrificing in this testing time, and warned those guilty of spreading rumors of retribution.

Evangelist U. W. Greene assisted those on the platform.

Sunday evening Independence held a mass meeting at Memorial Hall to give the moral support of her people to the movement for the relief of the unemployed and otherwise needy of the community, and to hear the message of Rabbi Samuel S. Mayerberg, of Kansas City. Most of the congregations in Independence held no Sunday evening services, and approximately twelve hundred people were present at the service which initiated the city's relief campaign sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce.

"This work you are undertaking," remarked the rabbi, "is the fruitage of religion." Mr. Mayerberg is also assisting in the charity drive of Kansas City. He did not talk long, but as the Independence Examiner states, his message was "virile and thought-provoking."

Mayor Roger T. Sermon, general chairman of the drive, presided and introduced members of the executive committee, the generals, and others. "I am convinced," he said, "that Independence never faced a more important problem than the present one. But we are going to meet the situation and win a great victory."

Paul N. Craig led the audience in "America," and the Auditorium Orchestra, under the direction of Orlando Nace, played "Gloria," from the "Farmers' Mass," and "The Russian Hymn," by Williams. The Wahdemna Choral Club, under the direction of Paul Craig, sang "Fierce Was the Wild Billow," Noble; "Jesus Lover of My Soul," Marsh; and "Beautiful Savior," Christiansen. The Wahdemna Male Quartet composed of Duane Swalley, Roderick May, Robert Crawford, and Edward Cronenbold, sang "The Old Rugged Cross." The invocation was by the Reverend Clyde H. Koehler, and the dismissal by the Reverend Roy W. Zimmer.

Half a day's work in the relief campaign on Monday showed a total of $4,550. The goal is $30,000 and workers are very active and hopeful.

Independence has lost a gracious citizen and helpful minister, and the church, a veteran in the gospel, in the passing of Elder John M. Terry Saturday night at his home here. Brother Terry was eighty-one years of age and had been ill for two months. He died on the sixty-second anniversary of his marriage. The funeral services occurred at the Stone Church Monday afternoon. For an hour before the services the body lay in state at the church, and multitudes of friends came to pay homage to our brother. President Floyd M. McDowell presided over the service, and the address was by Pastor John F. Sheehy. A quartet composed of Mrs. Israel Smith, Mrs. Mark Holman, D. O. Cato, and Roy Cato, sang "Nearer, My God, to Thee," "The Saints Shall Wear Robes as the Lilies," and "The Christian's Goodnight." Mrs. Daniel Lewis was at the organ, and Mrs. Smith sang a solo, "The City Four Square." Burial was in Mound Grove Cemetery.

Brother Terry was born at Millersburg, Illinois, September 29, 1850. On October 24, 1869, he was married to Miss Mary Jane Guthrie, by Elder John F. Adams. Two children were born to them, both of whom are dead. Brother Terry became a missionary in the church sixty years ago. His services began at Saint Joseph, Missouri. Then he spent three years in Chicago; twelve in Oakland, California, and eight in Seattle, Washington. Ten years ago Brother and Sister Terry moved to Independence. The good works of this brother during his life in Independence, are widely known; he administered to the sick at the Sanitarium and elsewhere, preached the word of truth to many congregations in Independence, Kansas City and Holden Stakes, visited the sorrowing, took charge of funeral services. And wherever he went he left cheer and gladness and faith in the hearts of the people. He is survived by his wife, of the home, and a sister, Mrs. Margaret Duncan, of Seattle, Washington.

Englewood Church

Of late this congregation has been spiritually strengthened by messages, on Sunday mornings from the local ministry, Perry Hiles and A. G. Hougas, assistant pastors, and October 18, Pastor D. S. McNamara gave a cheerful outlook to the future of this branch by carrying us back over the achievements of the past. Brother McNamara's optimistic outlook during these days of "depression," help the people of his congregation. In truth, when we see how adversity has brought the Saints together, we are inclined to regard our present trials as blessings in disguise.

Englewood is at present enjoying real cooperation on the part of its members. Especially is this true of the Department of Women which meets regularly. The women bring together articles of clothing that would previously have been considered fit only for the rag-bag. These they are making over into respectable looking garments for those in need this winter. Never have the women seemed happier or more closely drawn together in their work.

The Saints have also been helped in spirit, by the wholesome and encouraging sermons of such ministers as C. Ed. Miller, H. O. Smith, and D. A. Whiting. Brother Whiting's sermon the evening of October 18 seemed to be an echo of the preceding Wednesday evening prayer service in which the Saints were admonished, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness." Having done this, we were assured, all things necessary to our happiness will be given to us. Brother Whiting recited some remarkable instances of the demonstration of God's power in behalf of afflicted ones.

Sister Floyd Kelley's class of junior boys, assisted by two girls from other classes, went to the Campus, Sunday, October 18, and presented a Book of Mormon dramatization to the junior church there. An effort is being exerted in our church school to make the study of the Book of Mormon as attractive as possible to the children. Dramatization is one of the means employed. The children are much interested in the book which is one of the foundation stones of our belief.

Englewood people have been called to part with one of the pioneer Saints and the oldest member of the branch, Brother

Willis R. Tousley. He has been here since Englewood Branch was a mission, and was a regular and devoted attendant until his last illness. He was a faithful member of the church for sixty-seven years. Left to mourn are his wife, ten children, seventeen grandchildren, and ten great-grandchildren. He was eighty-one years old.

The friends of Brother and Sister William Ely were sorry to hear of the death of their twin daughters. The infants lived only a few hours.

Graceland's Student Ministry Is Representative

An Evening Service at the Lamoni Coliseum

The congregation watched intently as sixteen young men took their places on the platform. It was a September evening service in the Lamoni Coliseum, the community house that now serves as a church. The college year had just opened and the young men were the students of Graceland who hold the priesthood. The announcement of the service had brought a good-sized congregation.

Noble Kelley is beginning his fourth year at Graceland and as the senior student, it was fitting that he should read the scripture lesson that served as a call to worship. In four-part harmony the sixteen young men sang an arrangement of the well known "With Thankful Hearts."

After the worship part of the service, Roy Cheville who presided introduced the young men, telling their names, ministerial offices, and home locations. It was easy to read the earnest interest in the congregation as they saw the quality of manhood, the diversity of callings, and the wide territorial range represented. "We have come from east and west, from north and south," said Mr. Cheville, "and tonight we join hands as friends and fellow workers in a common cause." Looking down the semi-circle, they were introduced as follows: Esmond Crown, Washington; Neal Deaver, Missouri; Paul Utnehmer, Wisconsin; Walter Johnson, Australia; Floyd Holdren, Ohio; Don Chesworth, Massachusetts; Noble Kelley, Ontario, Canada; Dwight Davis, Washington; Clifford Wood, British Columbia, Canada; Harold Leland, Massachusetts; Almer Sheehy, Missouri; Loren McDole, Washington; Leslie Kohlman, Texas; Walter Gerow, British Columbia, Canada; Colin Ferrett, Australia.

Three of them spoke concerning a young man's outlook on life—on his education, Walter Johnson; on his church, Dwight Davis, and on his college year, Almer Sheehy. Walter Johnson's key words were "Growth" and "Service." A young man should look at education as development for doing the things he likes to do in order to take his place in society. In this he should expect his conception of the universe to grow and his philosophy to expand. Dwight Davis found in biblical history instances of sacrificial loyalty to the church. In intelligent and consistent faith and devotion to the church's program he found his way of life.

Almer Sheehy is starting his third year in Graceland. Naturally his outlook on his college year would be both retrospective and prospective. In this year he expected to find in larger measure the things that he had discovered in two former years. These were (1) cultural growth (2) friends (3) larger contact with God. It was not so much the words as the fervent earnestness that carried to the congregation the conviction that this youth would find in Graceland a choice religious growth and companionship.

Said the presiding minister in closing the service, "If any one is down-hearted about the future of the church, let him look at this group of young ministers of sterling manhood who see with growing vision, who pledge their endeavor to the church. If any one doubts his own responsibility in the promotion of Graceland, the church's college, let him hear the words of those who have come here to grow under the nurture of that institution." As the local paper stated, "It was a most impressive service."

Missionary Progress in Southern Indiana

Croydon, Indiana, October 19.—Southern Indiana district is slowly progressing. While there are a number of discouraging elements in the missionary work here, there are also signs of improvement and growth.

While Elder J. O. Dutton was holding meetings in the hall at New Albany, October 5 to 11, Columbus Nephi Maymon was ordained an elder by him and Brother H. W. Burwell. Thus another local man is prepared to take part of the burden of those who are carrying on. The few Saints and their friends in New Albany did well in attending the meetings, and good was done.

Beginning Monday night, October 12, Brother Dutton held a three-night series at Byrnsville, on the last evening confirming three young people who had been baptized there a few weeks before by Pastor J. R. Byrn.

Sister Katherine Schmitt and Brother Michael A. Gahafer, of Louisville, were married by Brother Dutton October 15. Sister Schmitt is widely known in this district for her activity in church work. Brother Gahafer was baptized October 4. They have the good wishes of their many friends. The bridal couple departed for Independence, Missouri, the night of the wedding.

At present Brother and Sister Dutton are at Corydon at school number 8 holding a week of meetings. They are made welcome at the home of Brother and Sister C. W. Arnold. Each night a good crowd greets them. Next Sunday they expect to be at Derby, Indiana, where Brother Dutton will have the pleasure of ordaining William G. Maymon to the office of priest.

"God is marshaling his army
For the rescue of his truth,
He is calling now to battle
Both the aged and the youth."

After his visit to Derby, Brother Dutton hopes to meet with the scattered membership of Evansville, to see what can be done concerning the holding of meetings there.

Pasadena, California

October 17.—Since our last letter to the Herald the Pasadena group has been going forward, and although we do not increase materially in numbers, we are making progress in other ways. We have our trials and discouragements and feel the financial depression very keenly, nevertheless we are able to carry on, and although few in number, we know the Spirit is with us, guiding and directing, and that if we are faithful we shall be blessed in our efforts. At a recent prayer meeting though there were only eight present, the Spirit was with us in much power, and every one took part both in prayer and testimony.

Vacation time is over and we are glad to have all our members with us once more.

We are anxiously looking forward to the time when we may be able to have a public meeting place and hold regular Sunday services.

There is an average of about fourteen at the Tuesday night meetings, and these have the opportunity of listening to some splendid sermons. Elder Jesse Johnson has outlined a fine program for the fall and early winter. The Book of Mormon Class, held on Sunday evening and discontinued during the summer, has not been resumed.

The La Da Sa Club is functioning again after a two months' rest. Plans have been made for a winter of work, study and social activities. A potluck luncheon was held on Thursday at the home of Sister Margaret Yelland. On October 27 there will be a Halloween social at the home of of Brother and Sister Omohundro, in Altadena.

On Sunday, October 11, Brother and Sister Green and Brother and Sister Strong motored to San Bernardino to attend the the Rally Day program in the new church. The services during the day were very impressive, especially the one in the afternoon at which time Apostle Myron A. McConley conducted eight into the waters of baptism.

On July 27, Brother George F. Strong was ordained to the office of teacher.

All visiting Saints will receive a hearty welcome every Tuesday evening at the home of Brother and Sister Masters, 96 South El Molino Avenue.

San Bernardino, California

One of the most enjoyable programs presented for some time was rendered on Rally Day, October 11.

The preaching hour began at 10.45. The Saints listened to a reading, Van Dyke, "The Mansion," by Madeline Meyers, the theme thought of which is to prepare our mansion in heaven by our works on earth. A special number from the senior choir was directed by Brother Frank Anthony. The sermon by Apostle M. A. McConley was encouraging to the people in their onward work to Zion.

Dinner prepared by Sister C. M. Johnson, Sister Hattie Tatta, and Sister Rose Bussey and their helpers, was served in the adjacent auditorium to about one hundred fifty five people.

At 2.30 the congregation reassembled for a baptismal service, eight candidates being inducted into the kingdom in an impressive service. Seven of these were children, the eighth Sister Gertie Dodson Weeks. Sister Week's mother's influence still lives after she has gone on to her reward. Special music was rendered throughout the hour, and a wonderful spirit was felt by all. The font was banked with ferns and flowers giving a garden effect.

The evening program began at 6.30 with an orchestral prelude directed by Sister Jessie Nichols. Following this came a moral fantasy "Service," directed by Leola Nice, formally of Long Beach Branch.

The Woman's Relief Corps of San Bernardino marched in to the strains of "Onward Christian Soldiers." Little Jacquelyn Johnson acted as flower girl for the service. The ritual presentation of the American flag was in charge of Sister C. M. Johnson who presented the banner to the church. The Lord's Prayer was given in unison, and the singing of "The Star-Spangled Banner" closed the service.

Pastor W. A. Teagarden's subject for the evening was "Service." The junior choir directed by Sister Anna Bronson took charge of the evening music.

Officers were happy to have the response from the members on this, our first Rally Day, in our new church home. Some of the visitors remarked that if our church had programs similar to the Rally Day services, every Sunday, they would be glad to attend. The church school service is conducted under the leadership of Miss Ella Harris whose father was the late missionary, Elder David M. Harris.

The reverence that is felt on entering the church is enjoyed by everyone,

The branch has been very busy and active, the members sincerely hope they have accomplished much good for the cause of the gospel.

This branch had a successful one-day meeting September 27. Saints from Alpena and other places met with us. Arthur Starks and Hector McKennon from Gaylord, did the preaching. Brother McKennon, at the morning hour, took for his theme "Know Your Church," and Brother Starks in the afternoon chose for his theme "Stick to Your Church," In the evening both spoke. "I Would See Jesus" was the theme of Brother McKennon; Brother Starks took the following half hour to tell the congregation how we could see Jesus. The day was very much enjoyed.

The Saints listened to Apostle D. T. Williams October 11. Brother Williams is giving lectures once a month to the different branches. "Adventuring with God" is his theme, and his words are strengthening and uplifting.

This branch has a good choir organized in the young people's group. Dora Denmick and Elsie Guy are the leaders, the latter being the branch organist.

Illness has visited this branch. Melvin Smith has been very sick but is some better. He expects to go to Ann Arbor soon for a medical examination. Brother and Sister John Cole are ill, and are being cared for by Brother and Sister George Blackmore. We pray that they will soon recover, for if one suffers, we all suffer.

Northwestern Ohio Conference

Bradner, Ohio, October 14.—Toledo entertained the district conference of Northwestern Ohio Saturday and Sunday, September 26 and 27, and dedicated their church which has been remodeled, and beautifully decorated and lighted. The first session was the business meeting at 2 o'clock in charge of Elder Ulrich and Halb. The following officers were elected: District president, E. L. Ulrich; vice president, Will Smith; secretary, Clarence Holmes; treasurer, Roy Yeager; leader of religious education, Floyd Clark; music director, Sister Ulrich.

In the evening a fine entertainment was given. Sunday morning the eight o'clock prayer service was largely attended and a wonderful spirit prevailed. Church school followers under the leadership of Brother Harold Wrightmere and Floyd Clark, of Toledo. Preaching at 11 o'clock was by Brother Halb. A fine sermon and two anthems made this service very profitable. Dinner was served in the basement.

The dedicatory service at 2 o'clock was led in prayer by Brother R. F. Slye, of Bradner. "Let Jesus Have His Way," an anthem, followed. We were much honored to have present a representative of the bishopric, Brother H. E. French, of Columbus, who gave the afternoon address. He commended those of Toledo who have labored so diligently to make ready the house of the Lord and said their work had just begun.

The conference closed with the singing of the hymn "God Be With You Till We Meet Again." It was adjourned to meet at the call of the district presidency.

There was a large representation from all parts of the district and a number from outside whom we were glad to meet. Toledo Saints deserve much credit for the fine way in which they entertained the conference, for everyone present seemed to enjoy the good spirit which prevailed at every session.

Dayton, Ohio

Woodward and Howell Avenues

October 21.—Branch activities are very apparent. The women's group known as the Ninety and Nine Club, in charge of Sister Addie Hill, is faithfully doing its part in social and financial endeavor.

Group social activities were renewed the second Tuesday of October with a welcome, house-warming, surprise party at the home of the Boeckman family. This celebrated their recent move to our city. Good cheer prevailed. The program consisted of contests, readings, and music. The readings of Miss Katheryn Martin and Master Heber Colvin were especially appreciated.

Pastor Floyd Rockwell, after a month's vacation, has returned to active duty and is now engaged in a series of Sunday evening sermons on the theme, "Know Your Church." Such knowledge he believes to be worth-while in any scheme of religious education. During the pastor's absence, Elder F. May delivered several discourses relative to our social life and Zion's aspirations. These lectures were well received.

Sister Ethyl Dickson, who has been seriously ill, has fully

MISCELLANEOUS

Conference Notices

Northwestern Kansas district conference will convene at Alexander, Kansas, November 13, 14 and 15. A good representation from each branch in the district is desired. Apostle E. J. Gleazer and Elder O. L. D'Arcy will be in attendance.—O. L. D'Arcy, district president.

Conference of Northeastern Illinois District will convene with Central Chicago Branch, Sixty-sixth and Honore Streets, November 6, 7, and 8. Apostle Paul M. Hanson is expected to be present. Election of officers of district, also delegates to General Conference, will compose part of the business. Good attendance is desired.—Roscoe E. Davey, district president; Grace E. Johnson, secretary.

Annual Conference of Detroit District will be held at the Detroit Central church, 5858 Fourth Avenue near Holden, on Saturday and Sunday, November 7 and 8. The first meeting will be 10:30 a. m., Saturday. District officers are to be elected. One of the features of the conference will be an address by Professor M. R. Gilmore, of the University of Michigan.—Arthur H. DuRose, for the district presidency.

Religious Education Convention

The religious education convention for Southern New England District will convene at the Sewell Street Church, Somerville, Massachusetts, November 14 to 17, at 7:30 p. m. Apostle Roy S. Budd will be in attendance. Let us be sure not to miss this privilege.—Frank S. Dobbins, district secretary, 48 Fellsway, West, Winter Hill, Massachusetts.

Our Departed Ones

HOWLETT.—Bessie Elizabeth Howlett was born January 8, 1890, at London, Ontario; died at Cleveland, Ohio, October 18, 1931. She was the daughter of Elder R. E. and Emma Jane Howlett, both of whom preceded her in death about twenty years. She was baptized into the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints when she was about nine years old, and remained firm in the faith and true to her convictions until death. On June 15, 1909, she was married to James Herbert Talbot, at London, Ontario, and to this union were born two daughters and two sons: Shirley Lenore, born July 23, 1910; Blanche Lillian, born June 3, 1912; Richard Benjamin, born January 26, 1917; and James Herbert, Junior, born October 17, 1931. In 1918 the family moved from London, Ontario, to Cleveland, Ohio, which place has been their home since. She led an active and industrious life in her home, in the church, and in society. It was her delight to be engaged in doing for others, and her ability was the limit of her efforts along that line. She will be greatly missed from the circles in which she moved and served. She leaves to mourn her passing her husband and four children, three sisters, one brother, other relatives and a host of friends. Funeral services were held in the Cleveland church with Elder J. L. Cooper, of Kirtland, in charge and Elder J. A. Gunsolley, pastor in Cleveland, preaching the sermon. The body was laid to rest in the cemetery at South Kirtland.

BOOHER.—Sarah Verner Booher was born November 25, 1913, the daughter of John R. and Catherine Thomas Booher. She passed from earthly life September 28, 1931, after a brief illness in the Memorial Hospital at Painesville, Ohio. She is survived by her parents, one brother, Paul S., and a twin sister, Catherine Ann. She was baptized a member of the church August 5, 1923, and was one of the Master's loyal workers, accepting with pleasure and zeal such tasks as were assigned her. In June of this year she graduated from Kirtland High School with the highest honors, and gave recovered and is assuming her part in the service of song.

The church school, under the leadership of Elder Franklin Reiske, fittingly observed Rally Day. Eight pupils were formally promoted to higher grades, receiving certificates and addresses of commendation. Sister Myrtle Boeckman, a former Graceland student, was appointed teacher of a new class designated as the young women's class. The young people's division now has two classes, one for young women, the other for young men, a happy arrangement for effective work in religious education. The adult classes will use the new Book of Mormon quarterlies for the coming year.

With eyes of faith and hands of service, Dayton Saints hope to press forward toward the "mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus."

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Frederick M. Smith, Editor in Chief.
 Elbert A. Smith, Floyd M. McDowell, Associate Editors.
 Leonard J. Lea, Managing Editor.
 Leta B. Moriarty, Assistant Editor.
 Published for the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Subscription price: By the year, $2.

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE
 INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI

CONTENTS

EDITORIAL:
The Financial Policy .....	1011
Jackson County Bank Closes Doors .....	1011
J. M. Terry Passes .....	1012
OFFICIAL:
A Brief Summary of Our Financial Policy .....	1012
The Jackson County Bank .....	1014
ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
Outline of Helps for Sermons on Sacrifice Period, arranged by A. B. Phillips .....	1010
"Are You Able to Drink of My Cup?" by Elbert A. Smith.....	1015
Weekly Health Letter, by A. W. Teel, M. D. ....	1018
Preparation, by Ada Cochran .....	1019
Our Homes, by Paul S. Nielson .....	1020
Do you Know These People .....	1022
NEWS OF CHURCH AND HOME .....	1024
MISCELLANEOUS .....	1031

the valedictory oration at the commencement exercises. "She was one of rare ability, temperament, and vision," were the words of her superintendent. God's beautiful century-old Temple afforded a place for the hundreds of loving friends who gathered to give testimony of her life and to speak words and thoughts of comfort to the ones who mourn. Elders Ebenezer Curry, Joseph Biggs, and John L. Cooper conducted the services, and Elder George Neville sang "The Holy City" and "Tenderly, Tenderly, Lead Thou Me On."

REIMER.—Geraldine Elizabeth Reimer, was born in Denison, Iowa, August 30, 1907; passed away August 31, 1931, at the Stormont Hospital in Topeka, Kansas. Her death was due to cerebral meningitis. She lived with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Reimer, in Independence, Missouri. Was baptized by Elder D. R. Chambers into the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints in Denison, Iowa, in June, 1916. Moved with her parents to Independence about ten years ago, where she attended William Chrisman High School. Later she was employed as cashier for the Globe Department Store in Kansas City, Missouri. During the last two years she was employed at the Palace Beauty Shoppe, also in Kansas City. She was taken ill while on the return trip from a vacation spent at Salina, Kansas. She was a friend to all who knew her. Left to mourn are her parents, brothers, sisters, other relatives, and many friends. The funeral was held in Independence, at the Stone Church, September 2, the sermon being preached by President Floyd M. McDowell. Interment was in Mound Grove Cemetery.

WHITING.—Elsie A. Fletcher, daughter of Edmond and Sarah Fletcher, was born at Old Clitherall, Minnesota, January 23, 1875. In July 1893, she was married to Frank A. Whiting and to this union six children were born four of whom survive: Mrs. Millicent Kinney and Miss Muriel Whiting, of Spokane; Mrs. Laurel Dixon, of Lynden, Washington; Lloyd Whiting, of Spokane. There also live to mourn a sister, Louisa McLaughlin, of Hibbing, Minnesota; two brothers, James Fletcher, of Clitherall, Minnesota, and Emery Fletcher, of Independence, Missouri; eight grandchildren. Mrs. Whiting became a member of the church in 1906, and was true till death. Mr. and Mrs. Whiting moved from Minnesota to North Dakota, in October, 1907, where they lived for five years. In 1912 the family moved to Shellbrook, Saskatchewan. Following her husband's death in 1920, she moved to Washington, where she lived until her death. Passed away at the home of her daughter in Spokane, October 8, 1931. The funeral was held at the church in Spokane, October 10, Elder A. C. Martin in charge. Interment was in Riverside Park Cemetery, in Spokane.

Do you read the church publications?

HERALD

ENSIGN

VISION

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE
 Independence, Missouri

For Sale

140 acres $30.00 an acre—no trade—65 miles east of Independence. Nine-room house, good barn and outbuildings, plenty of water.

40 acres eight miles east of Independence. $4,500.
 3,145 acres, northern Missouri, $25 per acre.

WATKINS REAL ESTATE,

Independence, Missouri.

Tel. 297.

Buy Your Farms Now

While they are cheap. Any size, best terms. Special attention to readers of the Saints' Herald.

CHAS. R. BOWMAN

Butler, Mo.

YOUR HERALD SUBSCRIPTION—DON'T LET IT LAPSE

If the FIRE DEPARTMENT arrived too late, would your LOSS be covered?

If not, let us remedy the matter.

INSURANCE DEPARTMENT
 OF THE CHURCH

(American Underwriters, Inc.)

Indep. 486

221 W. Lexington St.

A Rare Opportunity for Some of Our Readers

Just to acquaint you with the fact that there are established factories owned and operated exclusively—by our own people—and to get some of these manufactured products into use among our own people, we are offering the following guaranteed high grade merchandise until December 1 only, at unreasonably low prices:

Stock tanks (steel or wood), hog troughs and houses, bushel baskets, garages and steel sheds, supply tanks, wagon tanks, well casing, grain bins, hog feeders and wafers, corrugated roofing, cistern tanks, sheep tanks, dip tanks, smoke houses, scalding vats, cookers, corn cribs, culvert pipe.

Hay racks, farm wagon baces, steel or wood trucks, end gates and sideboards, tongues, neckyokes, single and double trees (steel or wood), harrows (wood or steel), seeders, brooder houses (wood or steel), tank heaters, complete poultry supplies complete wood or steel, implements repairs, wire stretchers, garden tools, spray hay forks and carriers, scooters and coaster wagons, step ladders, velocipedes, hobby horses, sleds and a hundred other things too numerous to mention; we have it, or can get it for you.

DES MOINES STEEL TANK CO.
 Des Moines, Iowa.

ATLAS STEEL TANK CO.
 Independence, Missouri.

THE SAINTS' HERALD

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS

Entered as second-class matter at the post office at Independence, Missouri, under Act of March 3, 1879. Issued weekly at Independence, Missouri. Price $2 a year in advance. Accepted for mailing at the special rate of postage provided for in section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917; authorized July 21, 1921.

Volume 78

Independence, Missouri, November 4, 1931

Number 44

If You Owe a Debt to God—

Pay It Now!

IT CAN BE DONE

President Elbert A. Smith

GIFTS OR OBEDIENCE?

E. G. Hammond

TRIBUTE TO JOHN M. TERRY

J. F. Sheeby

CHRISTIAN PRIESTHOOD

Albert Loving

The Work of the Church Must Go On!

It Can Be Done

An open letter to the priesthood, local and general:

The church of our devotion, at whose hands in days past we found joy, light, and salvation, is in danger. It would be easier to sound a milder warning; but a milder warning might not arouse you, and later we would justly come under further censure for not lifting the warning voice. The danger must be averted. It can be done.

The burden that the Saints are asked to carry (led by the ministry) may seem heavy. That burden is to increase our ministerial activity to more than make up for the loss of service entailed in the releasing of missionaries; and to raise adequate funds to meet the present pressing financial obligations of the church. It can be done.

Looking beyond the present insistent needs financially, the burden will include the gradual reduction of the church debt under a systematic plan over a period of years to the vanishing point; and the return to service at the earliest time possible of released missionaries, with others who may be added to our list under conditions assuring their continued support. The burden may seem heavy to carry. But it can be done.

This plea asks for intensive activity and generous financial offerings at once to meet the ministerial needs in the field and to provide funds to liquidate the obligations maturing by January first—obligations that must be met. And it asks for preparation thereafter for persistent, continuous effort, backed by sustained strength over a period of years: the goal being the emancipation of the church from debt and her return unhampered to her own legitimate task of sounding the gospel in all the world. The task is great. But it can be done.

Lessons learned in suffering are not soon forgotten. Lessons have been learned that will never be forgotten by the church. The men of the leading quorums are committed to a program contemplating avoidance in all future time of the deadly threat of debt. The lesson that we might easily have learned from oft-repeated prophetic warnings has been learned in the school of suffering under chastisement. The business depression makes our task much greater; but it can be done. With the return of better times and with the gradual reduction of the debt, easing our annual interest charges, the task should grow lighter each succeeding year. Soon may come the more pleasant task of rehabilitating our missionary force. We can then make our investment in men. That will be a happy day. And it can be reached.

What do we ask of the ministry? We ask every man to magnify his office and calling in all diligence.

Let the local men in particular arouse themselves as pastors to the flock. The need is great to "feed my sheep." There is sorrow and privation on every hand; there is disappointment—loss of faith, hope and charity. Let the ordained men move out as men of God in strength and faith, to revive their brethren. Let them bind up wounds, strengthen faint hearts, feed the hungry, go with cheer and hope into darkened and broken homes and lives. This, too, can be done.

The general ministry under appointment are presumed to labor to the limit of their time, talent, and strength, in pastoral or missionary work. Let the local men come to their aid in this work as never before. In addition to pastoral work, already mentioned, let them, even at the expense of leisure, personal comfort, the sacrifice of pleasant hours at home or in worldly pleasures and associations, move out to assist in missionary work. There are openings to be made in schoolhouses, churches, cottages. There are Sunday schools to be organized around which to build branches of the church. Thus the missionary work can be pushed forward, even in the face of a reduction in our missionary force. It can be done. And a joy, light, blessing, and personal growth will come to the local men that they have never experienced in hours of inactivity.

Encouraging the Saints everywhere to respond with their tithes and offerings, let those of the ministry give (as a token of renewed consecration) freely of the offering in service that they should make under the terms of their calling and ordination. We are not asking too much of them. If this is done in unity, atonement may be made for the errors of the past and we shall move forward to an assured future of service and blessing.

Perhaps no greater task has been assigned the ministry since a few resolute and God-fearing men in the early days of the Reorganization set their hands to the task of saving the church from its then great peril. It is our task, and it can be done.

Unitedly, above all else, we dread divine condemnation and wish to merit and to hear the plaudit, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant." The warmth and cheer of the approval of our Master, above all things else to be coveted, we would win. It can be done.

THE FIRST PRESIDENCY,
By ELBERT A. SMITH.

It really isn't a case of getting what you are worth so much as it is a case of being worth what you get. Employers, in general, are shrewd purchasers, and it is not to be supposed that their eyes are blind to genuine bargains in the field of labor. He who is worth more than the wages he gets is bound sometime to find a market where his services will command a high price.

Notes From the Field

Western Colorado Retains Missionary

Word comes from the Western Colorado District that N. L. Booker is to be retained as district president and also as pastor at Delta. Brother Booker is to make his home in the upper rooms of local church property; it is being furnished by both Saints and friends who are making his continuation possible. Delta Saints are strong in the faith and hopeful of the triumph of the church. They hope to contribute to its progress.

And Spokane District Does the Same

Similar news comes from Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, concerning the retention of A. C. Martin as missionary in the Spokane District. Elders R. H. Porter and L. E. Holmes covered the greater part of the district and found the Saints willing to contribute to the support of the missionary and his family, as well as to continue tithes and offerings for the general church.

These are two examples of the fine spirit that is moving the Saints forward to greater endeavors than ever in aiding the church in these times of financial depression. Others have done as well, and we hope to give reports of other places from time to time.

J. E. Lancaster Writes From Tulsa

Just a short letter to apprise you of the advancement of the work in Tulsa. Saturday, October 10, we had the pleasure of having Apostle E. J. Gleazer in Tulsa on his way to Oklahoma City. This was immediately after the session of the Joint Council, and with a number of visits and calls that were made in Tulsa, Brother Gleazer did a great deal to strengthen us and assist us for the task ahead of the church.

On Thursday evening, October 15, we were privileged to have Bishop L. F. P. Curry, who brought to a full house some of the figures as were presented by the Bishopric to the Joint Council, and as appeared in the issue of the Herald of that date. With Brother Curry's explanations of these figures and the inspiring, faith-bearing talk that he interspersed with his explanations we are very much strengthened as to that which has been done, and this better understanding does much to bring whole-hearted support.

Last Sunday morning we had the privilege of hearing from our former pastor, Brother O. A. McDowell. . . . The theme of his sermon was "The Want-ads of God." . . .

We are not discouraged in Tulsa with the fifteen-year program presented to us by Brother Curry, and we know this is God's work and he knows our needs. Somewhere, we as a church received a prophecy in which the Lord said, "Whatever may befall man, fear not, I will take care of you." God's work can not be frustrated nor his plans come to naught, and in God's own due time the thing that he has assigned man to do will be done. The church will triumph, Zion be redeemed, the gospel preached in all the world as a witness. The faith of the members of the Tulsa Branch in the church and in the men of the church is not weakened in the slightest, but rather we are glad that the time has come when we individually may become more actively engaged in a righteous cause.

We are instructed in section 68: "The inhabitants of Zion also shall remember their labors, inasmuch as they are appointed to labor in all faithfulness." There is work for all and more. God grant that we no longer shirk our task.

Help Needed for Released Missionaries

Missionaries who have spent years in the field have trained themselves for their one task, with nothing else in mind for the future. Lacking experience in the particular tasks of business they find it hard to get started in the commercial world, especially when so many experienced people are out of employment.

Yet our missionaries are an able body of men, and are possessed of an integrity and determination that will go far to qualify them quickly in other lines of endeavor.

If any members of the church are acquainted with opportunities that might be open for these men, they would confer a great kindness both upon the men and the church by communicating with us immediately.

S. W. Simmons III

Friends and Saints particularly who are within calling distance of Brother S. W. Simmons, at Keltner, Missouri, are asked to get in touch with him. Brother Simmons is reported to be ill and in need of help.

"Resisting Unto Blood"

One's love for a cause is measured by the price he is willing to pay for its final triumph. This exacting standard leads one to ask himself, "Just how much do I love the church after all? What price have I been paying that it might succeed? What price am I now willing to pay that it may move forward?"

The Apostle Paul, knowing well the price of Christian warfare, warns the Hebrew saints, "Ye have not yet resisted unto blood." For shame that we should expect to purchase the kingdom at anything less than the established price—"He that loses his life for my sake shall find it."

Men do pay the supreme price for the cause they love—for that in which they sincerely believe. The following clipping from the Kansas City Star is not an isolated example. It is typical in every essential respect of the story of human progress towards what were conceived as desirable goals:

Vienna, October 30.—Doctor Guido Holzknrecht, chief of the X-ray Institute in Vienna and one of the world's leading authorities in this field, died here today, a martyr to science.

Pursuing experiments designed to banish cancer by X-ray treatment, Doctor Holzknrecht laughed at death when the deadly X-rays slowly ate away his body as his experimental work continued.

A year ago he lost the fingers of his right hand. He continued his work, and six months ago the hand was amputated. Viennese medical assistants begged him to discontinue his experiments to save his life. Doctor Holzknecht laughed at them and continued his deadly work with X-rays.

Three months ago his whole arm was amputated.

A few weeks ago he returned to his laboratory. Officials of the Viennese Medical Association bodily carried him away, but he sneaked back. With a wooden hand, he pursued his X-ray experiments with cancer night and day.

Last week his other arm was amputated.

After rereading for the fourth time this simple story of faith, devotion and courage, I bow my head in humility and shame. What have I ever done for the church I claim to love? In this hour when the cause of Christ confronts adversity on every hand, am I willing to "resist unto blood" if such is the price that shall be required for final victory?

F. M. MCD.

Refusing to Be Depressed

A word for faith and for the spiritual work of the church comes from Shailer Mathews, Dean of the University of Chicago divinity school:

The one supreme thing that religion may do in a period of depression is to "refuse to be depressed," says Dean Shailer Mathews of the University of Chicago divinity school in the Church Federation Bulletin. "Churches may reduce their budgets, funds may diminish and all the irritating and discouraging elements of financial worry may assail the church. But the church is more than its finances," Dean Mathews asserts, and "financial depression ought to be a call to religious faith."

Religion, it is said, "ought to be a minister of sanity and hope. God has not forsaken the world because men have lost paper profits." Because of financial reverses and suffering, men and nations have been brought closer together and are in better position to understand and sympathize with one another, Dean Mathews holds. In such times "men learn that they are brothers" and "the church has the opportunity of showing that civilization must recognize the worth of human beings if it is to succeed."

"Men shall not live by bread alone," "Labor not for the meat which perisheth," and "I am the bread of life," were the sayings of Jesus to his followers whose thoughts dwelt all to frequently upon their physical needs to the neglect of their spiritual growth.

There is no depression in the kingdom of heaven; there is none of the lamented "over-production" in the harvest of souls; there is no dearth of the richness of God's love and his spiritual blessings. If there is a lessening of the flow of spiritual life it is the fault of man, not of the Divine Power. The call to higher living and the opportunity of spiritual life is as great as ever.

L. L.

It is always easier to be peeved than pleased, but the best people manage to give the world the impression that they are pleased.

Civilization, one great writer informs us, should teach a man to accept life's benefits with a smile, and its inconveniences with a shrug.

Courtesy is not a mask: it is a mirror, in which the light of the soul, otherwise invisible, is reflected.

Balmain Branch Celebrates

We recently received a printed program of a celebration by the Balmain Branch, Australia, held September 12, 1931, to rejoice over the "progress and prosperity" of the branch. The program was well arranged, and indicates that the congregation is well supplied with talent necessary for such occasions.

A feature which is especially noteworthy is revealed in the arrangements for "unveiling the photographs of the branch presidents." In the time elapsing since 1890, the time of the organization of the branch, only four presidents occupied the position. They are: R. Ellis, 1890 to 1905; A. Seaberg, 1905 to 1909; A. J. Corbett, 1909 to 1922; and G. W. Stewart, 1922 to date. A record quite unique is that; and it bespeaks the harmony and unity prevailing.

The particular reason for the celebration was the formal opening of a new hall and kindergarten room, the opening being also in celebrating the anniversary of the founding of the branch.

In the invitation evidently issued to the members the pastor addresses himself to his flock as follows:

As we issue to you an invitation to witness the opening of the New Hall and Kindergarten Room, we possess a feeling of thankfulness to Almighty God for the abundance of care He has manifested towards His people.

While we are regretful because of the present financial crisis and its accompanying sorrows, yet we, as the people of God, rejoice in the evident progress that the Church is making; progress under such trying conditions can only be made by those whose lives are devoted to the Lord.

Our present buildings occupy practically the whole of our ground space. The additional rooms will permit of our Church School activities to be carried on much more conveniently than hitherto.

I feel deeply grateful to be supported by an efficient staff of officers and teachers, whose willingness to devote their time, talent, and energy to such a noble cause is commendable in terms beyond my power of expression. Continue in the good work, my beloved co-laborers!

Our present membership is about 266; less, of course, than formerly, the reason being that many unknown members' names have been removed from the record, also those (about 35) who became charter members of the Guildford Branch. Notwithstanding this the attendance at all our meetings is greater than ever before.

To the great stream of branch activities there are some valuable tributaries, viz: The Social Club, Women's Circle, Kimnor Club, Boy Scouts, Junior and Adult Choirs, and the Male Glee Party—all doing a work that is highly commendable and helpful.

I feel that I can not do better than quote words from the Latter Day Prophet, when he wrote: "Courage, Brethren! ON, ON, TO THE VICTORY."

Fraternally,

Your brother in Christ, and Fellow Servant,
G. W. STEWART, Pastor.

Congratulations are extended to the Balmain Branch for its good record. May its progress and prosperity be uninterrupted.

F. M. S.

Why Pay Tithing?

By C. A. Skinner

Every business institution must have money if it lives and grows. Most institutions either manufacture or buy commodities and sell at a profit. This is their means of life and growth.

The Church of Jesus Christ has nothing to sell. The gospel is free, yet it takes money to give it away. God's plan of raising money to promote his business always has been by the tithing of his people.

The law of tithing is a principle, a part of the plan of salvation. Without complying with this principle we can not hope to attain the highest degree of glory. God has said, "He who is not able to abide the law of a celestial kingdom can not abide a celestial glory."

Why pay tithing? You might as well ask, "Why be baptized?" Our answer is: "Both are commandments of God and one is as important as the other. God's commandments are all important, and were all given for our eternal good."

In a late revelation the Lord said: "If you keep my commandments and endure to the end you shall have eternal life; which gift is the greatest of all gifts of God." Again he said: "If you keep not my commandments, you can not be saved in the kingdom of my Father."

It is a privilege, a wonderful opportunity to pay tithing and thus become a partner with God. This principle is essential to our spiritual growth. If some of the elements of the soil are lacking it may affect the growth of the products of the soil to a great extent. For example, if one per cent of the element of nitrogen is lacking, it might retard the growth of grain as much as fifty per cent. So also will the failure to comply with the full law of God affect our spiritual growth.

Some may say: "I do not attend church; I am not even interested in church; why should I pay tithing?" Every taxpayer whether he wills or not, is obligated to the public school system. In olden times only those who had children paid school taxes; the more children the more taxes, but when the nation came to realize that civilization depended largely on schools a law was passed requiring every taxpayer to assist in school work.

The fact that we do not attend church or that we are not interested in church does not excuse us from paying our tithing, which is a just debt, an obligation the same as school taxes.

When you pay tithing to the church you contribute to the well-being and usefulness of an institution whose influence for good is the bulwark of our civilization, and through which we receive, largely, our spiritual growth. If we do not affiliate with the church organization we derive, directly or indirectly, a moral and spiritual, yes, a material benefit from the influence and work of the church.

Logically, therefore, paying our tithing is not merely a gift, but is fulfilling an obligation to do our part in maintaining an institution that God established through which our welfare might be promoted. We have no more right, therefore, to withhold the tithe from the Lord than we have to spend a man's money who may be a partner in business with us. The money we owe is not our money; we are only holding it in trust until the time comes to pay. If we refuse to pay an honest debt we are considered dishonest.

What the Paying of Our Tithe Will Do

It will teach us to put God first. The most of us are inclined to consider self first, God next.

It will help us to recognize God's ownership of all things. "The earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof." "The cattle on a thousand hills are mine." When we recognize this we will render unto God the things that are His.

It is an act of worship. Not only is it necessary to say: "I have given myself to God," but if we "would be perfect" we will dedicate our lives and all we have to his cause. Our observation has been that an individual or group who pays tithing elevates themselves to higher spiritual planes.

It will support the missionaries and their families.

It will pay the back allowances.

It will rehabilitate the missionary forces.

It will permit the Church of Jesus Christ to go forward.

It will, if paid now, save the church, in interest alone, one half million dollars.

How Can We Lift the Load?

There are two ways by which we may lift the load: First by complying with the financial law, and this would work a hardship on no one. Second by SACRIFICE. "Zion shall be redeemed by sacrifice." Are we sacrificing? Really now, are we? Have we gone hungry for the church? Have we gone without other necessities of life in order that this church might have more? Had it occurred to you that If 20,000 families would sacrifice their Thanksgiving dinner and give that amount to the church, it would amount to $40,000?

If the same number would give their Christmas gifts to the church of Jesus Christ, the proper place for Christmas gifts, instead of to relatives and friends, that it would amount to nearly as much as will be spent in missionary work in 1932, or $100,000?

If 30,000 men and boys would save 50 cents per week that is spent for joy rides, shows and other forms of amusements, it would save to the church more than five times the amount appropriated for missionary work in 1932, or $788,000?

If 30,000 women and girls would give to the church the amount that will be spent for permanent waves, silk hose, etc., it alone would amount to more than will be spent for missionary work in 1932, or at least $150,000?

Last, but not least, if 40,000 families would sacrifice not one meal each day, not one meal each week, but sacrifice only the meat from their Sunday dinners, it would give to the church, that institution which we love, an amount seven and one half times as much as was appropriate for missionary work in 1932, or about $1,040,000? Or a total of $2,118,000?

Now, Saints! In view of these facts, what will we do? Do we love this church, or do we just think we do? Are we doing our full share, or do we just think we are? We are not doing our full share unless we are doing ALL we can. We are not doing ALL we can unless we have filed a financial statement with the bishop and arranged to pay our tithe. We have not done our full duty nor taken advantage of an opportunity unless we have actually sacrificed for the cause we love.

Hope

There is a little poem entitled "Hope." It is a beautiful word picture about looking forward to bigger and better things. And it is proper and right to hold high aims and high ideals and to have a vision of the future. No one will deny that. However, the trouble with most of us has been we do too much "hoping" and not "hopping." We think we will do our part tomorrow, next week, next month or next year, and give too little thought about TODAY.

Today can be the beginning of tomorrow, just as well as tomorrow.

Today can be the beginning of next week, just as well as next Sunday.

Today can be the beginning of next month, just as well as December 1.

Today can be the beginning of next year, just as well as January 1, 1932.

Why wait for some imaginary date to start to do your duty?

Resolve to do your part tomorrow, but let tomorrow begin today.

Resolve to file your inventory next week, but let next week begin today.

Resolve to pay your tithing next month, but let next month begin today.

Resolve to make some sacrifice for this church next year, but let next year begin today. Tomorrow, next week, and next year are far away. They may never come. But TODAY is here. Your opportunity has come. Make the best of it. The church needs your help and needs it NOW. What are you going to do about it?

Gandhi is not a Christian. Yet in a great meeting where the leaders of a Christian nation predominate he is the only one who resembles the Christ. And that resemblance is not superficial. He has espoused the cause of the poor and oppressed; he has chosen poverty, imprisonment, and suffering, when he might have chosen ease, wealth, and popularity; he has utterly subordinated himself to his message and mission and would give his life if that were necessary to the accomplishment of his ends. He is a man of peace and believes in the invincible power of peace. Teaching his troubled people a gospel of peace he has used it as his only weapon, and it has lifted him to a foremost position of influence in India, and a power to be reckoned with in world leadership. In all these points he resembles Jesus. Does his example not put many of us to shame?

Those who profess to follow Christ and honor his name are numbered in many millions. Yet in what small dozens he could number those who actually follow him! Pagan mythology and superstition were discredited centuries ago, but pagan ways of living are still the ways we follow.

Almsgiving has been confused with charity. We are a nation of almsgivers, but we have not yet learned charity. We give money, but not our hearts. A father whose wife and children are hungry asks for a job. We give him a dime instead. Is this not giving him a stone instead of bread? With a contemptible ten-cent piece we hold him up and rob him of his self-respect, his independence, and his courage. We tell him, in effect, that he is not worthy to have a job, that he has no claim on society which entitles him to a job but that he can have a dime. Can our obligation to him be paid with a dime given as a wretched offering to get rid of him?

No society of which we have ever been able to read the history has ever been able to inflict standing injustices on the masses of men and life. No government that permits gross inequalities to go unchecked has ever endured. Disaster, either by way of revolution or foreign invasion, has overtaken the offender. The injustice of nations is avenged with fire and the word. We must beware.

L. L.

Sacrifice or Obedience?

By E. G. Hammond

With prospects of another sacrifice period about to be designated there comes the desire that we might understand the doctrine of sacrifice a little better, that we may appreciate just what we do.

It would seem that if this is the best thing to do, in periods, or constantly, a good understanding should give the practice its fullest effect among us. And if inquiry should discover a more effective way, then the two plans might alternate, at least, to give variety to a program that might otherwise tend to heavy sameness.

There are things in life that must be repeated, again and again. But there are some things, notwithstanding how good they are, that will not bear repeating.

For example we are not entertained by stories heard often before, no matter how delightful at first; and when baptized once we have no desire that the ordinance be repeated. And whether there is something in recurring sacrifice periods that partakes of the same nature may be studied somewhat in the scripture saying:

For Christ is not entered into the holy place . . . nor yet that he should offer himself often. . . . But now once in the meridian of time hath he appeared to put away sin by the sacrifice of himself.—Hebrews 9-24, 26, Inspired Version.

Before Christ it was the practice of the Jews to offer sacrifices—bulls, and goats, the blood of a heifer, vegetables and grains, and a dove—and I believe it is generally considered among us that at least a part of this practice is done away, and would not be acceptable to God. As it is said:

It is expedient that there should be a great and last sacrifice; . . . and that great and last sacrifice will be the Son of God.—Book of Mormon, page 429, verses, 210, 215.

I would not have the matter concluded at this one point, but if the Savior was to have been the last great sacrifice it might be profitable to study our practice with the prophet, saying:

To what purpose is the multitude of your sacrifices unto me? saith the Lord.—Isaiah 1: 11.

It would be too bad if we should make a great stir over sacrifices and the Lord be offended, rather than pleased, and should refuse our offerings as he refused some of old, saying:

I hate, I despise your feast days, and I will not smell in your solemn assemblies. Though ye offer me burnt offerings, and your meat offerings, I will not accept them.—Amos 5: 21, 22.

And again, long before the offering of the last great sacrifice it was written:

Thou desirest not sacrifice; else would I give it.—Psalms 51:16.

But whether any sacrifice may be acceptable to God today, whether of bulls or goats, or of grains, vegetables or money, or whether the doctrine of sacrifice in its entirety was done away in Christ may further be studied in the revelations of the last days.

Behold, now it is called today (until the coming of the Son of Man), and verily it is a day of sacrifice, and a day for the tithing of my people.—Doctrine and Covenants 64: 5.

A day of sacrifice,—till the coming, the second coming of the Son of Man.

This we accept as the word of the Lord given us "after the manner of our language" which defines the word "sacrifice" as

An offering to a Deity, or a destruction of a victim in his honor, as a tribute, a gift, or an expression of thanksgiving, especially as a propitiation or atonement for sin.—Funk & Wagnalls Dictionary.

We can not think of the sacrifice authorized by Doctrine and Covenants as the sacrifice of bulls, or as an atonement for sin, but only as a tribute, a gift.

I believe you will find that the purest and best meaning the word gifts can have will impart to them a sentimental value rather than a practical value. Gifts are apt to adorn a young lady with rings and bracelets and jewels and diamonds, but it is a wretched case when she must turn to her gifts for her running expenses, her coal bills and food bills and house rent. And woe to the husband that should offer his wife a gift at Christmas, or at the season of gifts, and withhold substantial running expenses from one gift period to another. You would need Christmas every thirty days to get on that way.

Also the gift most acceptable, and the one only that can rightly be considered a gift at all, should come spontaneously, and should hardly be requested. It is not a generous gift that must be solicited.

But of course I am bound to admit, and it is not hard for me to concede that gifts, sacrifices, are an authorized feature of our program, and however legitimate they are made out to be, I can say "Amen!" But after all that I must still insist that for practical purposes as distinguished from sentimental purposes there is something divinely better than sacrifices. Obedience is better. As it is written:

To obey is better than sacrifice.—1 Samuel 15: 22.

And if we must concede that sacrifice is a part of the doctrine of Christ today and until he comes, we shall allow it to be, even as we allow that "forgiveness of sins" is also a doctrine. But obedience being far better than either I should think the people who actually have any desire to redeem Zion would be interested in a policy that would permit them to adopt the most effective means.

Personally I have experienced very little of value concerning sacrifice periods, but I have heard some good people talk of their experiences, and to give you all that my mind now recalls, it consists of a good elder who was fond of ice cream, whose custom was to omit it on Sunday, as his part of the sacrifice. Then I knew an old lady who struck her hat against the car as I was helping her in, and when I regretted it she said I needn't mind for it was her old sacrifice hat anyhow.

I would not belittle these offerings but in the interest of showing that there is a better and a more effective way I would have the good bishop set down in one column the price of all the hats sacrificed, and all the ice cream and candy, etc., and then in a parallel column set down what would be realized if obedience were practiced, and every one paid up his tithes.

"To obey" would doubtless take us farther, materially and substantially farther.

I should like you to behold the picture of some mother at home with the children, without fuel, without food, without light, without sufficient bedding and clothes, and try to think of her writing to her husband to kindly send her a "Christmas gift," right away, a pair of side-combs and a silver thimble.

Gifts, sacrifices, will not redeem Zion,—Never! "Bring no more vain oblations." But, "If ye be willing and obedient ye shall eat the good of the land." (Isaiah 1: 13, 19.)

The young man concerning whom Jesus said, "He answered discreetly," responded:

Well, Master, thou has said the truth; for there is one God, . . . and to love him . . . is more than all whole burnt offerings and sacrifices.—Mark 12: 37, 38, Inspired Version.

And "to love him" is practically better than sacrifice, because it involves the principle of obedience. For,

He that hath my commandments and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me.—John 14: 21.

Love is better than sacrifice because love insures obedience, and obedience is better. Of the two ways of pleasing God, that is, by sending him a present, or by obeying his commandments, the Psalmist seems to have tried both, thus:

Sacrifice and offering thou didst not desire; . . . Then said I . . . I delight to do thy will, O my God.—Psalm 40: 6-8.

If we would but try it once it might turn out to be less of a hardship than has generally been supposed.

I would not have these rambling remarks reflect upon the leaders more than upon ourselves,—nor less than upon ourselves. They are fine men, so far as I know, and as Burns might say,—

It is just sic poet
And sic patron.

The leaders are working desperately, and so are we, and it may be a good time to remember the old lady's admonition that "the becomingist thing for a lawyer is a shut mouth"; but if what has been said may have some effect towards changing our desperation to inspiration, I shall take the risk of being forgiven for speaking out of order.

But whether by sacrifice or obedience, and whether by our own efforts or the efforts of those who may arise to reap the rewards we ourselves might have gained, I have no fear but that the true doctrine of Christ will triumph in every detail, and the "willing and obedient" will ultimately partake of that triumph.

The Christmas Offering in 1931

By C. B. W.—

For forty years and more the spirit of Christmas giving has been beautifully expressed in the church through the Christmas offering. Our records go back to the early days of the work of Sister Marietta Walker when in 1888 the first recorded offering was $154. In the succeeding years, through the Christmas offering, a total of over one million dollars has been placed in the funds of the church for the advancement of the Lord's work. What a wonderful free-will offering as a testimony of the love of a people for God when they worship and for their fellow men whom they delight to serve!

We now have less than two months to complete the Christmas offering for 1931. No particular goal has been set, but in recent years the offering has averaged about $40,000. Last year, in a period of hard times, the Christmas offering was $35,591.66. In a time when ready money is comparatively scarce, the spirit of willing sacrifice is only increased. It is fortunate that this is so for the work of the church must depend upon the contributions of the Saints, in tithing, offering and consecration.

What shall our Christmas offering be in 1931? Perhaps as never before the church needs now the help we can give. The Christmas offering is not usually made up of large gifts, but rather of silver pieces and even nickels and pennies saved from the earnings, of one hundred thousand people. Nor is it all taken from one week's pay envelope. All through the year in nearly every branch of the church the process of saving and giving has been under way and nearly one half of our annual gift is already provided for. True, the income of some families has been reduced through unemployment and low prices, yet they will sacrifice more than is usual, for the church work we love must not stop. Those who have jobs and can do so will give an extra amount, for the work of the church must go on. We have never before failed, and this year there is the greatest necessity that our Christmas offering be up to the $40,000 mark.

And it can be done! Our greatest lessons are learned as we face grave necessity. In recent years we have spent too freely, we have lived too fast. Anticipating future incomes, we have gone in debt, we have mortgaged our earning power. We have needed the lessons brought by the depression. We need to think seriously of the meaning of a dollar in terms of the good it can do, the suffering it may relieve, the joy it may carry, the human want it may satisfy. Only the sacrificial savings of our people now, given in the next two months, will enable the Bishopric to meet our heavy obligations as a church and pay even a small part of the allowances away past due to missionaries' families.

Sunday school superintendents and church school directors are responsible, with the Bishop's solicitor in every branch, for the successful gathering of the Christmas offering. In addition to the usual urge this year there must be added the serious financial situation which the church must face. Everyone regrets that so many of our missionaries have been called in, because the funds are low. The united, earnest, sacrificial endeavor of the entire church membership alone will save the day, and return our missionaries to their labor of love. And only this sacrifice in love and faith, backed by our active service and consecration shall save us from spiritual bankruptcy. Paul gloried in the affliction which kept him humble and taught him the purposes and power of God. So may we share today the sacrifice and rejoice together in the spiritual triumph which has been promised under divine endowment.

Let us make our Christmas offering $40,000. The work of the church must go on!

---

Neighbors

Great charity organizations can never reach all of the needy who should receive their help. Those who are in worst need and most worthy to receive help are frequently unwilling to ask for it, and sometimes submit to starvation before seeking aid.

Such people are known only to their neighbors, and should receive the help of local people to whom they are known. We can never accept the philosophy of Cain, who asked, "Am I my brother's keeper?" without suffering the spiritual fate of Cain. It is our place rather to be like the good Samaritan, and help those who are within our reach.

Weekly Health Letter

Number Sixteen

The Singing Voice

By A. W. Teel, M. D., Church Physician

The vocal apparatus consists of the larynx, "the voice box," which is the primary source of the voice; the chest, which is the motive power, and the nose and accessory sinuses, acting as the resonance chambers.

The singing voice changes little until puberty, this change lasting from three to six years. At this age, a great change takes place, especially in boys, whose voices become deeper, or lower in pitch, approaching the quality of the voice of an adult male. There is some change in the girls' voices, but this is not so noticeable. These changes are due to the cords becoming longer and thicker, and the cartilages consolidating at this age.

Great care should be taken not to strain the voice during this transition period.

Sound is produced by the outgoing air current passing through the larynx causing its cords to vibrate. This sound receives its full resonance as the outgoing air current passes through the upper respiratory tract.

No voice can be pleasing or "sympathetic" if the vibration of the vocal cords is impeded. Richness and quality are imparted to the voice by the resonant chambers in the nose and the chest. On this account, we may classify the defects of the singing voice as follows: the imperfect use of the resonant chambers of the chest and head; second, diseases of the larynx; third, the improper action of the extrinsic and intrinsic muscles of the larynx, and improper methods of breathing.

The epipharynx is that part of the throat immediately back of the nasal chambers just above the pharynx. The soft palate may also be included in voice production. Since the nose is one of the most important resonant chambers, any growths or diseased conditions of its parts produce defects in the singing voice. Adenoids, tonsils, or anything that will impair or interfere with the movement of the pillars, interferes with the purity of the tone. Adenoids push the soft palate forward and downward, while enlarged and inflamed tonsils interfere with the free movement of the parts. Under such conditions, the range of the voice is seriously affected, the quality of the timbre impaired and modified in such a manner that the voice loses its charm, and the voice may also be indirectly affected by associated nasal catarrh and adenoids. Adenoids are a more noticeable obstruction in childhood than in the adult age. Nasal catarrh produces an elasticity of the tissue and muscles, producing a boggy condition. An inflammation of the uvula, if sufficiently swollen to hang down until it touches the base of the tongue, will produce a tickling sensation, causing a hacking, coughing, or a constant desire to clear the throat. A condition of this kind is often an annoyance to public speakers and singers.

Those having enlarged or diseased tonsils often have a sensation as though a splinter of wood were lodged in the throat, which is due to the chronic inflammation and enlargement of the tonsils.

The bones of the face are so constructed that there are a number of cavities called sinuses, together with their openings, which help to make the bones of the face, "sounding boards" for the primary tones of the vocal cords. It is plainly evident, then, that anything that will interfere with the proper nasal breathing, causes the voice to lose its rich qualities and makes it unpleasant to the human ear.

The resonant chambers of the head are seriously interfered with from polypi, deflection of the septum, and chronic catarrhal inflammation with its resultant thickening of the lining membranes. If the sinuses become inflamed, they become thickened and their openings closed, the voice, likewise becomes impaired. Such a condition, if long continued, may extend to the membrane covering the turbinates.

The mouth and tongue have much to do with the singing voice, particularly in enunciation and articulation; they also modify the resonance. If a person is "tongue-tied" in any way, because of chronic inflammation to the muscles or pillars, the musical value of the voice is impaired.

It must be remembered that laryngeal inflammations are indirectly the result of nasal diseases. Therefore, a careful examination of the sinuses and nasal chambers is necessary. It must not be forgotten that chronic hoarseness is also a prominent symptom of laryngeal cancer, tuberculosis, etc. Paralysis, from any cause, or growths that will interfere with the proper adjustment of the vocal cords, will produce a spasm of the muscles of the larynx, a hoarseness, or a loss of the voice.

Sunshine

A laugh is just like sunshine,
It freshens all the day.
It tips the peak of life with light
And drives the clouds away;
The soul grows glad that hears it
And feels its courage strong;
A laugh is just like sunshine
For cheering folks along.

—Selected.

Tribute to John M. Terry

By J. F. Sheehy

(At the Stone Church, October 26, 1931. Recorded by kindness of Mrs. M. H. Morgan.)

During the past six years I have been closely associated with Brother Terry. I have officiated with him on many occasions like this. On many such occasions I have heard him use the scripture lesson which I will read to you this afternoon. Brother Terry believed the story told by John in the 21st chapter of the book of Revelation. It was his hope, and he passed it on to others.

And I saw a new heaven and a new earth: for the first heaven and the first earth were passed away; and there was no more sea. And I John saw the holy city, new Jerusalem, coming down from God out of heaven, prepared as a bride adorned for her husband. And I heard a great voice out of heaven saying, Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them, and they shall be his people, and God himself shall be with them, and be their God. And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death; neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things are passed away.

It is appropriate today to read the words of commendation from the lips of Jesus, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant." Many of you have known Brother Terry a long number of years, and I believe that you join me in feeling that these words have very likely already greeted him "Well done, thou good and faithful servant." I could turn to the writings of Paul, and take the words out of Paul's mouth and apply them to Brother Terry, "I have finished my work; I have kept the faith; I have fought a good fight; henceforth I know there is a crown of righteousness awaiting me."

Paul wrote a letter to one of his dear friends, one who was growing old with him in the ministry, a fellow minister, in whom Paul delighted; Paul knew something about his sacrifice, his faith and his love for the gospel of Christ; he, too, had traveled with Paul, but now he was separated from him upon his own mission, while Paul was a prisoner; and Paul wrote to him from this cold, damp dungeon cell at Rome, and saying as he closed his letter, "The hearts of the saints are refreshed by thee, my brother." The hearts of the saints are refreshed by thee, my brother. This personal commendation from Paul is also true of Brother Terry. The hearts of the Saints have been refreshed by his ministry. He gave kind words of counsel up to the time of his death.

He was one of our department supervisors in the Stone Church district. Time and again I have called upon him. The pastors of Independence and Kansas City have asked him to preach. When the work has been a burden upon me and I needed some one to assist in the work of the Sanitarium, I have called upon him. In the past six years I have called upon him a great number of times, and he never said, No; and was never too tired, but was always ready. Not only that, but in his ministry as he occupied in the pulpit, the hearts of the Saints have been refreshed by him.

On the white tablet on the grave of a little girl are inscribed these words, "A child of whom her playmates said, it was easy to be good when she was with them." It was easy to be good in the presence of Brother Terry. He was the type of man who radiated goodness and faith and love.

I read of a woman missionary to far off India, who one day came upon a distant native village where she started to tell the natives the beautiful story of Jesus. She told them that He was the friend of the poor man. She told how he would eat with the common people and would talk with them, and would converse at all times with them. He healed their sick. She told how little children loved to be in his presence, and suddenly she was interrupted by a native who said, "Ah, we know him well. We know who you are talking about, for he lived here in our village for years." But the missionary was surprised, and after she investigated, she found out that a missionary who lived to be an old man had once lived in that far-off village, and the natives thought she was talking about him when she told them about Jesus.

So with my brother and fellow minister, who has lived with us for many years and for fifty-eight years served in the ministry of Christ, holding before him the likeness of Christ till he became like Christ. And he taught us that it is true that all may become like Him.

Dr. Lyman Abbott said that on the day when Theodore Roosevelt was being buried, two newsboys of New York City were heard talking about the ex-president; and one boy said, "Well, he's dead, and now I can never vote for him." But the other lad replied, "No, but you can be like him." And you and I who mourn the departure of our brother, and at the same time rejoice because his going is glorious, too, can start from this moment to be like Him whom Brother Terry all these years tried to emulate.

Sixty-two years ago last Saturday, Brother and Sister Terry, hand in hand, stood at the altar of God and were united in marriage. Sixty-two years they walked the avenues of life together; and joined in singing "I will go where you want me to go, dear Lord; I will be what you want me to be." Together they sacrificed. Together they ministered to others, as they served Christ; and Saturday she sat by his bedside and she still held his hand in deep, reverent love as she watched him close his eyes in that last sleep, as he entered the valley of death into the great Beyond.

The day before when I was with him, she was thinking of this old, old question:

How will it be when one of us alone
Goes on that strange last journey of the soul—
That voyage on which no comradeship is known—
Will our dear sea sing in the old sweet tone,
Though one sits stricken where its billows roll?
Will space be dumb, or from the mystic pole
Will whisperings of love be backward flown?

When our united lives are wrenched apart,
And they no more mean sweet companionship,
When fervent night and lovely langorous dawn
Are only memories to one sad heart,
And but in dreams fond kisses burn the lips,
Dear God, how can this same fair world move on?

And so she answered this question as she said to me, "No, I don't sleep. I just can't sleep, but in a little while I will be able to sleep when I know he is at rest." You remember the sad heart that David had when his child lay sick and the servants would have had David go to his bed and rest. They would have had him take nourishment, but he would not leave the bedside of his boy, and he would not eat; and then the lad died. David arose and washed himself and ate and slept; and the servants were very much perplexed, and wondering about him, they came to him with several questions, saying, "While the child was alive thou didst fast and weep for the child, but now that the child is dead, thou dost rest and eat bread;" and David answered, "When the child was yet alive I fasted and wept, for I said, 'Who can tell whether God will be gracious to me that the child may live?' but now he is dead; wherefore shall I fast? Can I bring him back? I shall go to him, but he shall not return to me."

I bade Brother Terry goodbye, and I asked him at that time what message he had to give to the people of Independence; and he whispered and said, "When you stand before the people, tell them to be true and faithful. Tell them that the work is true, as it has been from the beginning. Tell them to carry on till the Savior comes, and I hope he will hasten his coming. Tell them to be faithful. This is my message."

We miss him here; he waits for us there.

I can not say and I will not say
That he is dead; he is just away.
With a cheery smile and a wave of the hand
He has wandered into an unknown land;
And left us dreaming how very fair
It needs must be since he lingers there,
And youth, O youth, with the wildest yearn
For the old-time step and the glad return.
Think of him faring on as dear
In the love of there as the love of here.
Think of him still the same, I say,
He is not dead; he is just away.

Christian Priesthood

By Albert Loving

Hebrews 5:1: For every high priest taken from among men is ordained for men in things pertaining to God.

Verse 4: And no man taketh this honor unto himself but he that is called of God.

Paul's argument here concerns God selecting men to minister to humanity the things of God. It certainly ought to be clear that men can not minister the things of God to people until they learn the things that be of God. God alone knows the men who can so minister, and the things necessary to be ministered (served) to the people.

Hebrews 5:5: So also Christ glorified not himself to be made a high priest, but he that said unto him, Thou art my Son, today have I begotten thee. As he saith also in another place, Thou art a priest forever after the order of Melchisedec.

Paul evidently found this a difficult question, for he accused the people of being dull of understanding. Likewise in this our day, notwithstanding the many things we have to say, there is labor needed to cause people to understand the order of the priesthood, and it would seem that no other question has caused so much doubting and undirected meanderings of men who call themselves priests of God.

This term, "A priest forever after the order of Melchisedec," as applied to Christ, is rather obscure in its setting as found in the Authorized Version of the Scriptures.

In the Inspired Version of the Bible we have an enlightening explanation of the man Melchisedec and his work: Genesis 14: 26-34. We note through this passage that Melchisedec was a man of faith, was approved of God, was ordained a high priest after the order of the covenant which God made with Enoch. The covenant with Enoch was productive of peace and social righteousness to such an extent that Enoch and his city (people) were translated.

The order of the priesthood of Enoch and Melchisedec was distinctly designed to restore man into God's presence. This order came not by man, by father or mother, but was bestowed upon man by the Almighty through revelation, its purpose being to minister the things of peace and righteousness to men whose being was daily threatened with disorder, selfishness, sin, war, disease, and death. The opposite of these deadly human affairs are spoken of as the "things of God."

Necessarily, this priesthood being of God would carry and reveal to and in man the character, nature, and purpose of God. Hence we are told that Melchisedec and his people obtained peace in Salem and he was called the Prince of Peace.

Jesus, by revelation was called beforehand to occupy in this same order (priesthood). (See Psalm 27; also 110: 4); and his mission was, "Peace on earth, and good will among men." (Luke 2.)

This could not be accomplished by Jesus, notwithstanding he was the Son of God, without revealing the nature and purpose of God to every soul who hoped for a place and part in the work of peace on earth and good will among men.

The fall of man, "A degrading of his nature," was the cause of all things socially and spiritually opposite to peace and good will on earth. Consequently Jesus, to become the Prince of Peace (Isaiah 9: 6), had to destroy him who had the power of death and release the forces of peace and good will among men. Through doing this Jesus became the "Author of eternal salvation unto all them that obey him." (Hebrews 5: 9.) Not alone, or only, holding out to man the idea and hope of immortality, but the hope and means of social righteousness, peace, and good will on earth, the outgrowth of which is immortality in his presence. The doctrine of eternal judgment is based on earthly deeds and not upon pious prayers and mythical beliefs.

Authority of the Priesthood

There is no account of Jesus ever being ordained, as custom and language go in these days. Jesus, however, did receive authority to do all things which he did.

That authority was truth, life, intelligence, light bursting forth into and upon his soul, not only through a study of nature and books and prayer, but by the voice of God unto him. (See Matthew 3 and Luke 4.) With the authority and power of this order, "The order of Melchisedec," of peace and good will on earth resting upon him, Jesus began his ministry; and please notice he had something to give humanity. He had something for the blind, the lame, the deaf, the sick, the bound, the prisoners, the broken-hearted, and look, stop, listen—he gave it unto death.

God is the Creator, because he gives life, and continues to give life, and gives it over again. If the Creator were to cease to give life he would cease to be God. But he ceaseth not to be God, because he continueth to give life.

The priesthood of the Prince of Peace was to reveal the eternal mystery of the continuity of life by giving life. The priesthood of Jesus was to cause men to begin a genuine search for this life, "God." He sought to cause men to release God among themselves. "He spake as one having authority from God and not as the scribes and Pharisees."

Jesus called (selected) others to help him in this work of establishing "peace on earth," and during his three years of ministry endeavored to reveal to them the Creator and his purposes, as well as their own talents and calling. He conferred upon them through the ceremonial process of laying on of hands and prayer the same order of the priesthood that Melchisedec had ministered by among the people. Thus it is as they were sent out they were told to tell the gospel (good news) to every creature. They certainly possessed a message full of hope and cheer for the downtrodden, and doubt-filled hearts of humanity. Ordination but served the purpose of quickening their consciousness of God, and unveiling to them their talents to serve the things, ways of God, to mankind. Ordination that becomes aught else is fetish and is nothing more than the tool of priestcraft.

Marriage is the God-ordained pathway to parenthood. The barren and childless can not understand parenthood. Priesthood which does not produce Christian ideals and living is barren, sterile, unfruitful, and therefore useless. Christian priesthood employs Christian principles and methods of service, and the results are Christian lives.

No man can discover the truth and fact of his own ability and divine calling without revelation from God. Education and vocational guidance have helped many people fit into society with a seeming measure of success, but society today has millions of misfits. Every unemployed person in the world today is evidence of misfit, to say nothing of the multitudes who are like square pegs in round holes. These misfits and architectural inaccuracies are the products, not of God, or the ministry of Christian priesthood, but of degraded human desire, seeking expression through the inefficient, unscientific, bloodthirsty, economic social order of our time.

There were many false Christs before Jesus of Nazareth, but none of them ever brought "life and immortality to light" through any sort of order, system, or priesthood. There have been false Christs since the days of Jesus, and little wonder if the pools and streams of living water have become polluted by the mud puddlers of orders, societies, and self-seeking priestcraft.

The Divine Commission

Mark 16 and Matthew 28, Jesus said, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel (tell abroad the good news) to every creature." And in John 20: "As my Father hath sent me, so send I you." And again, "He that is greatest among you let him be the servant of all." Also, "Be wise servants and harmless as doves." What did these men possess that they could serve to the people and yet in doing so remain harmless as doves? Wherein was their authority as compared with the authority of the many who professed to be priests of Jehovah? Their distinctive message was accompanied by the "Spirit of peace." (See John, chapters 14, 16, and 20.) Of little value is it to mankind for a messenger to proclaim peace and good will if there is not the spirit of peace and good will accompanying his message.

An Effeminate Priesthood

False priests ever seek by human means to narrow the distance between themselves in their self-appointed calling, and the people. Substitutes of all kinds are resorted to in order to secure a following.

Chief among these hirelings are the tools of pleasure and sport. Activity and associations that positively release personal, human, fleshly desires becomes the medium of unauthorized, deaf, dumb, and blind apostles of humanism. Any good business man can fill a race course, a stadium, or a church park with a crowd of people of all ages to see and take part in a ball game or a prize fight or some other sort of physical activity that does not call for sobriety and reverence.

If this theory of popular appeal be true, then the pitchers, swatters, and punchers of the time are arch high priests. But invite those same sport enthusiasts to visit the sick, blind, imprisoned, and consecrate their surplus property and cash to the good of those who are so disabled and you are grinned at and called puritanical, out of date, behind the times. What might we not be able to do with the time and means we spend on beauty culture, tobacco, food and clothing luxuries, household humbug in a thousand forms, and that soul-destroying canker, pride, which manifests itself in everything we do. It is said we must mix with the people; we need wholesome recreation and pleasure; and therefore the avenue of sport is chosen. Why don't these lightning bug high priests carry about a miner's pick, a housemaid's broom, a bushman's ax, a mechanic's spanner, or some implement of honest toil, if contact with the people is all that is sought? Paul carried his sail needles and preached the gospel by the power of the Melchisedec priesthood. People no longer respect modern priesthood, "because the love of many has waxed cold through the increase of iniquity." (Matthew 24.)

Ambassadors for Christ

There are several terms descriptive of the relationship between Jesus and his apostles, or ministry, used in the New Testament. Friends; because to them Jesus made known the mysteries of his kingdom. Servants; because they were commissioned to spend their lives in help of the needy and sinners. He who lives for self becomes paralyzed for service. "He who will save his life shall lose it; he who will lose his life shall find it." Ambassadors; because in service to man the truths taught were to represent God, the sovereign Creator and Ruler of the universe. They were ambassadors with full powers: "All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth. Go ye therefore and teach all nations said Jesus." To them were given the keys of the kingdom, and we emphasize, the keys of the kingdom of God on earth, which kingdom is the rule of peace and good will among men.

They were to seek to persuade men to enter the kindom. They knew the processes by which the new birth had come to them, and were authorized to beget new creatures unto Christ by virtue of the Melchisedec priesthood which Jesus conferred upon them.

Witness Paul to the Corinthians when he said, "Now then we are ambassadors for Christ as though God did beseech you by us, we pray you in Christ's stead, Be ye reconciled to God."

In this work of reconciliation to God; Christian priesthood is necessary, for "Except ye be born again you can not see the kingdom of God." Ambassadors for Christ: taken from among men to minister to men the things pertaining to God; called of God by revelation because of faith, divine approval, work of truth and righteousness. The priesthood of Melchisedec, a priesthood to produce peace and good will on earth among men. To minister the things of God that cleanse the souls of men, to cast out foul, unclean, selfish, evil desires. Christian priesthood to give to men the things of the Lord, the Holy One of Israel, The Lamb slain from before the foundation of the world, The Lion of the tribe of Judah.

Do You Know These People?

The Department of Statistics Asks Aid in Locating Lost Members

To the Editors and Readers of the Saints' Herald, Greetings:

In the list which follows are the names of persons who have been reported unknown by the secretary of the Kansas City Stake. A diligent effort has been made by the stake officers and by this department to locate these persons, with a marked degree of success in many cases, but after everything has been done along available lines, the following names remain on the list.

We are therefore appealing to the readers of the Herald, asking them to go over the list carefully, and if they can give us any information about any of these names that will assist us in bringing the records up to date, to send the same to the Department of Statistics, The Auditorium, Independence, Missouri. If the complete present address can not be given, suggestions as to where the same may be obtained will be appreciated. This list was started in the Herald for September 30, and will continue in subsequent issues until completed.

Yours sincerely,

DEPARTMENT OF STATISTICS,

By C. L. OLSON.

Name	Year of Birth	Year of Baptism	Places Where Once Enrolled
Richman, Emma Ruth (Wright)	1908	1919	Nowata, Oklahoma; Kansas City.
Riggs, Frederick Arlos	1896	1917	Kansas City.
Riggs, Hattie	1875	1895	First Kansas City.
Riley, Emily (Leat)	1892	1901	Armstrong, Kansas.
Riley, Fred	1884	1922	Kansas City.
Rinear, Kate	1849	1892	Armstrong, Kansas.
Roberts, Grace Leona	1904	1913	Argentine, Kansas.
Roberts, Mamie	1895	1907	Linn, Missouri; Argentine, Kansas.
Roberts, Margaret Edith	1887	1920	Kansas City.
Roberts, Richard M.	1892	1910	First Kansas City.
Robertson, Adda	1900	1921	Kansas City.
Robinson, Bessie M.	1898	1911	First Kansas City.
Robinson, Catherine L.	1898	1906	Independence, Kansas City.
Robinson, May	1902	1917	Lexington, Missouri; Kansas City.
Rogers, Bazzle Amos	1883	1906	Rock Creek, Oklahoma; Kansas City.
Rosenblum, Beulah	1902	1921	Kansas City.
Rosencrane, Helen	1893	1918	Armstrong, Kansas.
Roshong, Eva Myrtle	1904	1913	Grannis, Arkansas; Kansas City.
Ross, Carolotha	1907	1926	Kansas City.
Ross, Margaret Blanche (Haley) (Drohan)	1890	1903	Second Kansas City.
Routh, Frank	1886	1896	Kingston, Missouri; Kansas City.
Royer, Caroline (Christensen)	1871	1882	Guilford, Saint Louis, Missouri; Independence, Kansas City.
Ruder, Charlene	1910	1925	Kansas City.
Rush, Vernie	1899	1909	Independence, Missouri; Second Kansas City, Missouri.
Rush, Vivian	1896	1921	Kansas City.
Russell, Florence Louise	1903	1923	Kansas City.
Rutherford, Gladys Sarah	1896	1922	Kansas City.
Sackett, Annie (McIntosh)	1876	1889	Coleman, Michigan; Second Kansas City.
Saighman, Marguerite	1880	1910	First Kansas City.
Salsig, Bessie (Leat)	1877	1899	Armstrong, Kansas.
Salsig, Louis	1909	1920	Kansas City.
Salsig, Mary	1907	1920	Kansas City.
Sampliner, Sarah (McIntosh)	1879	1890	Coleman, Michigan; Kansas City.
Saunders, Lucy	1852	1899	Chelsea Park, Kansas.
Sayers, George W.	1858	1894	Chelsea Park, Kansas.
Sayers, Hattie B.	1863	1894	Chelsea Park, Kansas.
Schlettner, Henry Bruno	1856	1911	Armstrong, Kansas.
Scholes, Anna O'Rear	1854	1924	Saint Louis, Kansas City.
Schwab, Isabel	1865	1881	Wyandotte, Kansas; Armstrong, Kansas.

Name	Year of Birth	Year of Baptism	Places Where Once Enrolled
Schwager, John	1890	1917	Independence, Missouri; Kansas City, Missouri.
Schwager, Rose (Martin)	1890	1917	Independence, Missouri; Kansas City.
Scott, Lela	1877	1908	Twin Creek, Kansas; Kansas City.
Scott, Matthew	1875	1907	Twin Creek, Kansas; Kansas City.
Scott, Pearl W.	.....	.....	Twin Creek, Kansas; Kansas City.
Scott, Zephia G.	1899	1908	Twin Creek, Kansas; Kansas City.
Seaford, John	1868	1913	Joplin, Missouri; Kansas City.
Sears, Alma	1890	1899	Homstead, Kansas; Chelsea Park, Kansas.
Severin, Earl R.	1894	1902	Columbus, Kansas; Kansas City, Independence, Missouri.
Severin, Hilmer T.	1886	1894	Weir City, Kansas; Columbus, Kansas; Kansas City.
Seymour, Georgetta Marie (Wells)	1898	1914	Armstrong, Kansas.
Shanks, May E.	1896	1911	First Kansas City.
Shaver, Effie E. O. (Harrison)	1893	1906	Independence, Missouri; Kansas City.
Shaw, Grace	1898	1906	Second Kansas City.
Shaw, Joseph LeRoy	1866	1925	Kansas City.
Shawver, Nina Virginia (Nowlin) (York)	1894	1910	First Kansas City.
Shelton, Anna (Moore)	1884	1912	Quindaro, Kansas.
Shelton, Cora	1861	1912	Quindaro, Kansas; Grandview, Kansas.
Shelton, Elmer H.	1881	1913	Quindaro, Kansas.
Sherman, Abbie M. (Nightengale)	1879	1909	First Kansas City, Missouri; Centropolis, Missouri.
Sherman, Mary J.	1857	1918	Malvern Hill, Kansas.
Shoemaker, James C.	1865	1898	First Kansas City, Missouri.
Shores, Jennie	1890	1900	Saint Joseph, Missouri; Kansas City, Missouri.
Sickles, Annie (Jones)	1875	1884	DeKalb, Missouri; Bennington Heights, Missouri.
Singleton, Hazel V.	1902	1914	First Kansas City, Missouri.
Sisk, Julia	1894	1917	Ottumwa, Iowa; Kansas City.
Skinner, William John	.....	.....	Armstrong, Kansas.
Slavens, Nellie (Brown)	1905	1917	Pittsburg, Kansas; Mullberry, Kansas; Kansas City.
Smart, Ellen May (Williams)	1899	1910	Post Oak, Missouri; Kansas City, Missouri.
Smith, Alma Mary	1902	1928	Kansas City, Missouri.
Smith, Annie M. (Ware)	1884	1896	Independence, Missouri; Kansas City.
Smith, Benjamin Franklin	1869	1917	First Kansas City, Missouri.
Smith, Clements William	1900	1909	Argentine, Kansas.
Smith, Dewey Frank	1898	1928	Kansas City, Missouri.
Smith, Frances E.	1882	1905	Saint Louis, Missouri; Independence, Missouri; Kansas City.
Smith, George Emmett	1914	1923	Kansas City.
Smith, Gladys Catherine (Lewis)	1907	1920	Kansas City.
Smith, Hazel Cladia	1909	1926	Kansas City.
Smith, James Edward	1876	1922	Kansas City.
Smith, James Nelson	1902	1915	Saint Joseph, Missouri; Kansas City.
Smith, Jennie Irene	1902	1918	First Kansas City, Missouri.
Smith, John H.	1852	1889	Hersey, Michigan; Lamoni, Iowa; Armstrong, Kansas.
Smith, Joseph C.	1891	1899	Saint Joseph, Missouri; Kansas City.
Smith, Lillie P. (Hailey)	1885	1900	Guilford, Missouri; Greenleaf, Missouri; Mount Washington, Missouri.
Smith, Mary Frances	1866	1928	Kansas City.
Smith, Myrtle (Ross)	1899	1907	Pittsburg, Kansas; Kansas City.
Smith, Roy H.	1886	1926	Kansas City.
Soderstadt, Ernest A.	1889	1914	First Kansas City.
Soldan Els, Ella (Cox)	1872	1884	Independence, Missouri; Kansas City.
Sollars, Madge	1888	1910	First Kansas City, Missouri.
Sollers, Ida (Gurwell)	1869	1886	Fanning, Kansas; Kansas City.
Southard, Opal Lavone	1905	1923	Kansas City.
Spake, Emma	1868	1910	Armstrong, Kansas.
Spears, Martha Jane	1873	1919	Webb City, Missouri; Kansas City.
Spencer, William Albert	1901	1922	Kansas City.
Spoor, Elizabeth (Lehner)	1875	1908	Independence, Mount Washington, Missouri.
Spriesterbach, Pansy (Bolau)	1898	1912	Armstrong, Kansas; Grandview, Kansas.
Staley, Mary Alta Ruth	1904	1913	Second Kansas City.
Staley, Ruth Neva	1902	1913	Second Kansas City.
Stark, Annie	1881	1910	Chelsea Park, Kansas; Quindaro, Kansas.
Stark, George	1901	1912	Quindaro, Kansas.
Stark, George	1877	1910	Chelsea Park, Kansas; Quindaro, Kansas.
Stark, Ruby (Voorhies)	1893	1903	Saint Joseph, Missouri; Kansas City.
Stark, Walter	1901	1912	Quindaro, Kansas.
Steel, Hugh B.	1883	1895	Denver, Colorado; Pomona, Missouri; Pleasant View, Kansas; Pittsburg, Kansas; Independence, Kansas City.
Steffee, Delilah Elinor	1853	1923	Kansas City.
Stephenson, Elsie G. (Cresse)	1893	1905	Argentine, Kansas.
Stephenson, Rebecca	1906	1917	Lexington, Missouri; Kansas City.
Statler, Harry Andrew	1910	1921	Kansas City.
Stetler, Mary Elizabeth	1908	1921	Kansas City.
Stevens, Albert	1876	1885	Armstrong, Kansas; Kansas City.
Stevenson, Eva A.	1894	1910	Chelsea Park, Kansas; Quindaro, Kansas.
Stevenson, Milbert P.	1896	1905	Kingston, Missouri; Onaway, Michigan; Independence, Missouri; Kansas City.
Stewart, Blanch G. (Weeks)	1898	1910	Inman, Nebraska; Post Oak, Missouri; Kansas City, Missouri.
Stewart, Fannie D.	1837	1881	Wyandotte, Kansas; Armstrong, Kansas.
Stewart, Frank Perry	1889	1903	Argentine, Kansas.
Stewart J. Roy	1890	1903	Argentine, Kansas.
Stewart, Jessie R.	1907	1919	Kansas City.
Stewart, Lawrence E.	1900	1909	Kansas City.
Stewart, Mary (McGee)	1901	1913	Holden, Missouri; Kansas City.
Stewart, Myrtle B.	1889	1902	Second Kansas City, Missouri.
Stewart, Myrtle Ruth	1902	1913	Second Kansas City, Missouri.
Stewart, Samuel	1832	1881	Wyandotte, Kansas; Armstrong, Kansas.
Stoker, Daisy B.	1879	1911	First Kansas City.
Stoker, Gertrude E.	1860	1895	Blue River, Nebraska; La Junta, Colorado, Kansas City.
Stoker, Isaac W.	1859	1895	Blue River, Nebraska; La Junta, Colorado, Kansas City.
Stoker, Walter E.	1884	1896	Blue River, Nebraska; Kansas City.
Stokes, Harry C.	1892	1907	Fourth Kansas City and First.
Street, Calvin W.	1862	1893	Armstrong, Kansas.
Strong, Curtis Noland	1910	1919	Lamoni, Iowa; Kansas City.
Strong, Edna Lucille	1908	1918	Lamoni, Iowa; Kansas City.
Strong, Julia H. M. (Gaulter)	1892	1901	Independence, Missouri; Kansas City.
Stroud, Ora Parks.	1892	1919	Quindaro, Kansas.
Stroud, William Levi	1889	1919	Quindaro, Kansas.
Stuart, Frank P.	1889	1903	Argentine, Kansas; Second Kansas City.
Stuck, M. May	1893	1904	Beaverton, Michigan; Kansas City.
Sturm, Florence A.	1864	1890	Kansas City, Missouri.
Sturm, William	1850	1890	First Kansas City, Missouri.
Sucia, Sarah E. (Shores)	1886	1895	Saint Joseph, Missouri; Kansas City.
Suiter, John O.	1898	1923	Kansas City, Independence, Missouri.
Suiter, Josephine (Stafford)	1905	1917	Independence, Missouri; Kansas City.
Summers, Etta Mac (Neidig)	1900	1915	Post Oak, Missouri; Kansas City.
Tankard, Edward J.	1882	1892	First Kansas City.
Taylor, Marguerite	1850	1878	Chelsea Park, Kansas, Quindaro, Kansas.
Taylor, Maria	1856	1892	Kansas City.

NEWS OF CHURCH AND HOME

Address all news and letters to Editors of the Herald, Box 237, Independence, Missouri. Correspondents are requested to make their letters brief. The Editors reserve the right, on account of space limitations, to shorten all letters as circumstances require.

Toronto, Canada

Cool weather has arrived and Toronto Branch is settling down to winter work. The church school plan, as suggested by the general church, was adopted, and at the annual meeting, held the first Monday in October, the officers were elected. J. L. Prentice was again elected unanimously as pastor. W. J. Bavington was chosen counselor and director of religious education and S. J. Bell is counselor and visiting director. We have five departments: the adult church school, directed by William Archer as supervisor; the department of women supervised by Mrs. J. A. Wilson, which looks after the social activities and raises two thousand dollars yearly for interest; the department of men with Bishop A. F. McLean as supervisor, which with other activities collects the principal for the church mortgage; the department of young people, of which James Bavington is the supervisor, and the children's department.

The different speakers lately were Apostle R. S. Budd, Elder George Njeim, of Owen Sound District; Elder Richard Weaver, local missionary who preached three Sundays; Bishop A. F. McLean, Elder B. H. Hewitt, and others.

On Sunday, September 27, Toronto Branch made a most interesting departure from the usual routine and held its first Harvest Home Festival. The spacious lower auditorium of the new church lent itself well to the occasion, and the array of fruits, flowers, vegetables and grains which banked the front of the platform, made the members realize that the Lord has produced according to his promise and the earth has brought forth abundantly.

The junior department of the church school, which usually meets separately for morning worship and class work, joined the main school at eleven o'clock and presented a program appropriate for the day. As the beginners marched down the aisle, bearing their gifts of fruits and vegetables, followed by the juniors carrying prettily-trimmed, well-filled baskets, were called the custom of ancient Israel of bringing to the Lord the first fruits of the land. We were reminded that of the earth's increase there is enough and to spare for all, and that the present chaotic condition in which the world finds itself, is due to the fallacies of man and not because the Lord has failed to fulfill his promises.

Elder R. D. Weaver spoke to a large congregation at the evening service.

On Monday evening after a general singsong and program, the produce was auctioned, Bishop A. F. McLean, holding the gavel.

The department of women held a Thanksgiving dinner in the lower auditorium of the church, October 15. Mr. Aubry A. Bond, King's Counsel, a leading attorney of the province was the guest of honor, and gave a fine address on "Thankfulness."

The auditorium of the Toronto church proved an admirable setting for the annual banquet of the Interchurch Baseball Association on Tuesday evening, October 20, when nearly one hundred players, officials and winning teams of the league came together. Six teams were present. The officials, who are church men responsible for the smooth running of the league (one of our own members, Doctor Charles McLean, being vice president), devote a great deal of time for the benefit of the boys of the city of Toronto, keeping them actively engaged under church supervision. The guests included members of Parliament, members of the city council and sporting leaders of other leagues in Toronto.

The Interchurch Baseball League has ninety-seven teams representing the various churches of the city. There are 1,437 boys from the ages of 12 to 24 under the control of the league. Each boy is supposed to belong to a church in order to be eligible to play. The league was formed nineteen years ago among a few churches, to cater to the natural play tendency of the boy. At that time not much attention was paid to the boys beyond Sunday school classes held once a week. A few men, understanding boy psychology and giving expression to practical Christianity, tried to direct the natural gang spirit into ball teams, representing their own churches. The work has grown into its present large proportions, and, is a splendid example of the part such activities can take in the boy's life. In the winter they play hockey at which Canadian boys are very adept. The city council supports the interchurch officials' work in providing free of all cost to the league, ballgrounds and hockey rinks. Our own church is represented by teams in the ball and hockey leagues.

Pastor J. L. Prentice in welcoming the guests, officials and players, spoke of the volunteer labors of the men and women of our local church, not only in providing the banquet of the evening, but in all the activities of our church life. His remarks won favorable comment for our church by other church workers. One of the groups of the department of women, under the direction of Mrs. F. C. Polaski, catered for the banquet, and their efforts received high praise from the league.

Gainsborough, Saskatchewan

October 26.—The weather has been wonderful these golden autumn days. The Saints of Gainsborough were pleased by the coming of Elders J. L. Sandidge, missionary of southern Saskatchewan, and John R. Neill, district president.

Services were held on Thursday, Friday, Saturday, and Sunday. The Saints attended and some nonmembers. Instructive sermons were preached, which, if taken in the right spirit, should produce good results. Preparing for spiritual gifts is necessary for all.

The ministers were cared for at the home of Brother and Sister Wilcox where the services were held. The elders were in good spirits and ready to go forward in this work, in which, we trust, they may continue, and give us many more such sermons. The Saints were thankful to have these helpers.

Union Branch

Clitherall, Minnesota

Average attendance and interest in church services are about as usual. On sacrament Sunday there is usually better attendance than on other Sundays, which may be considered as an indication of a good spiritual condition. One family of nonmembers is showing some interest and attending regularly.

Pastor Lester Whiting has felt a great degree of the Spirit in his preaching during the past season which at times has made itself noticeable to the congregations.

The general depression has shown us that by our own efforts alone we can not hope for security, and that it is only by the blessing and bounty of God that we may be able to weather the storm.

Delta, Colorado

October 26.—Delta Branch is glad as well as fortunate in having Brother and Sister N. L. Booker retained in this branch as missionaries. They are now domiciled in the upstairs rooms of the church building. The Saints as well as friends have contributed freely in the way of furnishings for their house. Special credit is due Mr. T. W. Osborn, husband of Sister Julia Osborn, for his kindness and consideration in helping to supply their needs.

The women are holding food sales to obtain money for some needed repairs in the church. Brother Emory Striley has donated much work toward repairing of the rooms upstairs.

On October 4, Rally Day was observed by an all-day meeting with a basket lunch at noon; Sacrament service in the afternoon. Brother M. L. Schmid, bishop's agent; Brother E. H. Perkins, Sister L. McPeck, and daughter, Opal, were visitors from Grand Junction, Colorado. Brother Perkins and Brother Schmid made splendid talks. Brother Perkins discussed "The Value of a Worthy Cause," and Brother Schmid talked very interestingly on "Material Values of Life." Brother N. L. Booker, district president, was much pleased over the fact that seven members of the priesthood were present and occupied the rostrum with him during sacrament service, assuring Brother Booker of their support in the work for the Master.

A business meeting including the election of officers for the year, was held the evening of September 30. The following officers were elected: Brother N. L. Booker, pastor; Jewell Harshman, secretary; Olive Rose, treasurer; Sister Frances Booker, supervisor of religious education; Lilah Harshman, music director; Brother N. L. Booker, janitor; Lilah Harshman, publicity agent and correspondent; Brother N. L. Booker, Sister Julia Osborn, and Brother Albert Rose, building committee.

The Somers family, recently from Bisbee, Arizona, have moved to Meeker, Colorado, where the men have employment.

The Saints are pleased and appreciative for the lovely vase presented to the branch by Sister Aarona Booker, who is now attending Graceland College.

Delta Saints are still in the faith, hopeful for the successful triumph of the church, and expect to contribute to this end.

Gospel Work Goes Forward in Arkansas

Spring Valley, Arkansas, October 26.—I will write a few words to tell Herald readers about the gospel work here. Money matters are close owing to the fact that the farmers can hardly break even at the present price of cotton. Notwithstanding the hard times, the low price of labor, and the unemployment problem, the people are manifesting a splendid spirit.

The latter part of September I closed an interesting series of meetings at Caraway, Arkansas. The meetings were conducted in a well lighted and seated school yard. On Saturday and Sunday nights crowds averaged about five hundred people. The question box attracted quite an interest. While at Caraway I was approached by the Church of Christ people with regard to a public discussion. After propositions and rules had been signed and time set, these people asked for a postponement of the discussion.

At Caraway I baptized a lad well read on the gospel work, Olson Nuckles, who is about ten years old. We have only one member of the priesthood in this group, Brother Will Woods. The Saints, however, have a well organized Sunday school. I am depending on this group for many things.

After spending about three days with the folks at home, I went to Hot Springs, Arkansas, and conducted meetings for more than two weeks. Eight people were baptized. There is found another splendid group of Saints presided over by "Billy" Hampton. We have some good material developing in this branch, Brothers Arthur Cook and Lee Tarble. Brother Lee is one of the new converts, Brother Cook being largely responsible for his conversion. This group with the Church of Christ people took a series of singing lessons.

From that point I came to Spring Valley, where Brother Leo Johnson and his family live and two or three other families. There used to be a branch here. Now the Saints are left without a minister. Nevertheless the whole community is very much inoculated with the restored gospel. At present we are having a full house every night. This group has ordered ten new songbooks, employed a teacher, and you should hear them sing. I think we are going to do some good here if we do not baptize any.

I am sorrowful to know that so many of the General Conference appointees had to be released from the field. The Saints here are optimistic. They think that with a united effort of paying tithes and offerings, we shall persevere, and the missionaries will be replaced. Let the good work go on. From here I go to Wheeler, Arkansas.

A. M. BAKER.

Madison, Wisconsin

2119 Jackson Street

Elder Leonard Houghton has been preaching missionary sermons on the Sunday evenings he has been here. He spends part of his time in other sections of the district. September 26 and 27, he attended the Northern Wisconsin district conference at Porcupine. September 22 he baptized the youngest daughter of Floyd Carpenter. This completes their family circle. He also baptized Clara, daughter of Leah Miller. The candidates were confirmed at the Wednesday night prayer service by Elders Floyd Griswold and H. W. Woodstock.

September 20, the son of Orville and Ruby Dahlen was blessed.

Three of our young people have walked the road to matrimony, Grace Root, daughter of Frank and Minnie Root; Hazel Richardson, daughter of Clive and Ethel Richardson, and Archie Root, son of Nora Root.

Sister Amos Berve, of Independence, Missouri, was in Madison over the week-end of October 4. She reported that Brother Berve is out of the hospital and slowly improving.

October 11, Bishop C. J. Hunt spent Sunday here, preaching morning and evening.

Apostle D. T. Williams was in the district October 25, preaching in the morning at Beloit, afternoon at Evansville, and evening at Madison. His subject was "Principles of Progress." A very good crowd including many nonmembers, heard him. He expects to return for the Southern Wisconsin district conference which will be held at Madison, November 28 and 29. The Saints of the district should watch for the notice in the Herald concerning matters of reporting for conference. On Sunday evening Brother William's subject will be "The Open Door."

The men's working group is busy a couple of evenings a week repairing the church basement. The woman's department is doing its share of branch work.

Sister Hemstock, of Northern District, an isolated Saint, spent a week here enjoying the association of the Saints and the services.

The church school conducted a unified service on College Day, the theme being "Christ's Choice." Musical numbers included two college songs, "Alma Mater," and "Graceland Forever." There were a sermon, story, theme talk, and violin selection. The offering taken for Graceland amounted to nearly twelve dollars. Programs of the service were printed and distributed to the attendants with an invitation to attend regular services and the announcements of services the week following.

Independence

After a week of intensive work, Independence reached its civic relief campaign goal, thirty thousand dollars, and passed it by a number of dollars Monday night. The initial step in this campaign was taken at the mass meeting held at Memorial Hall the evening of October 25, and all last week men and women worked hard to make the goal. Saturday was tag day in the interests of the drive. The citizenry and clubs of Independence have responded well to the call for relief.

Work continues on the Independence Sanitarium and Hospital. Brick work is being pushed during the fine weather we are now having with the hope of its being finished before winter's cold sets in.

The Halloween season was observed with characteristic zest by people of all ages. Parties, hayrack rides, wiener roasts, and other frolics were numerous.

Stone Church

A special meeting of the church school executive council at 8.15 Sunday morning resulted in the decision to bring the junior department from the Campus back to the Stone Church for the winter. Marshaled by their officers and teachers, the junior boys and girls will, on next Sunday morning, be given a place in the Stone Church with departments already housed there, the beginners, the primaries, the intermediates, and the adults. Also, classes of the adult division have been recalled from the Auditorium and assigned places in the main room of the church. These movements, made necessary by the winter's heating expense problem, are being carried out with the cooperation of the officers of all departments.

The sacrament service Sunday morning marked the opening of a period of thanksgiving and sacrifice for the Saints. Sunday was the first day of the month generally regarded as the Thanksgiving season; it was also the opening day of a two-month sacrifice period of the general church.

President Fredrick M. Smith was in charge of the communion hour and spoke of the significance and symbolism of the communion service, of the importance of keeping our covenant with Christ and pressing toward our goal of Zion and brotherly love. Assisting him in the stand were Elders Stanley Kelley, who gave the oblation talk; Elder George G. Lewis, who led the singing; Elder J. F. Sheehy, who read the scripture; Elder C. Ed. Miller, who voiced a special prayer of praise and blessing; Bishop G. W. Eastwood, and Elders S. A. Thiel and H. G. Barto. Gratefully and soberly the Saints renewed their covenants with Christ. Purposefully they have set about the work of a new month.

"Faith in God" was the theme of Apostle F. Henry Edwards' sermon Sunday evening, delivered to an attentive congregation. Elder H. G. Barto was in charge of the service, assisted by Brother Jess Holsworth. The Stone Church Choir, conducted by Evan Fry, gave the musical program.

C. E. Kemp, widely known to radio fans as "Uncle Ezra" of "Happy Hollow," will give "The Music Master," by Klein, next Friday evening, November 6, at the Stone Church, for the benefit of the choir robe fund. Mr. Kemp, a one-time chautauqua man, now works and entertains for KMBC. The performance is free and everyone is invited to be present. A silver offering will be taken for the robe fund of the Stone Church Choir.

Among those who have passed away in the last week was Mr. James Crick, seventy-two years of age, who died at his home, October 30, after a six-weeks' illness of heart trouble. He was born at American Forks, Utah, and had lived in Independence about twenty-six years. Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Crick, of the home; five sons, Thomas David Crick and John Walter Crick of the home; Clifford Earl Crick, of Independence; James Julian Crick, Baux Hall, New Jersey, and William Evans Crick, of Los Angeles, California; two daughters, Mrs. Craig Lacy, of Kansas City, Kansas, and Mrs. Harry Angel, of Independence; two sisters, Mrs. Ann Stahle, Plano, Illinois, and Mrs. Ellen Hartman, of Independence; three brothers, Thomas Crick, John Crick, and D. H. Crick, all of Independence. The funeral occurred Sunday afternoon at the Stone Church, U. W. Greene and J. S. Andes in charge. Interment was in Mound Grove Cemetery.

Little Edward M. Chrestensen, son of George G. Chrestensen, died at the Independence Sanitarium Sunday night from injuries received when he was struck by an automobile. The boy who was three and one half years of age, seemed not to notice the approach of the car and ran directly into its path. The funeral was conducted from Second Church Tuesday afternoon. The child's mother is dead. He leaves his father, three sisters: Melba, Lucille, and Mary Jane, and four brothers, George G., jr., James C., Lawrence, and Beverly.

The marriage of Miss Dorothy May Keir, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Keir, of Independence, to James Maitland Brand, of Chicago, occurred Sunday morning at the home of the bride's parents. The bride was attended by Miss Dolores Gaylord as maid of honor and Miss Frances McGuire as bridesmaid. Marion Keir, brother of the bride, acted as best man. Before the ceremony Miss Dorothy Benson played "At Dawning" and the "Lohengrin" wedding march. Mr. and Mrs. Brand will be at home in Kansas City, Missouri.

Liberty Street Church

The congregation was glad to resume its Sunday evening services this week and to have Elder H. A. Koehler continue his series of gospel sermons. "God said, Let there be light: and there was light," was the text of his discourse. His illustrations made it plain to the listeners that God created man after his own image, a little lower than the angels, and gave to him power to rule over the birds of the air, the beasts of the field, and the fish of the sea; also that God is an unchangeable, personal being, who reveals his will to mankind the same today as in the past.

Pastor J. R. Lentell is extending special invitations to nonmembers to hear these sermons.

There was good attendance at the regular sacrament service. A few prayers and testimonies were given following the serving of the emblems, augmenting the feeling of confidence of the congregation that the church will successfully emerge from the present crisis. The spirit of willingness and devotion is in evidence.

Enoch Hill Church

The senior young people of the branch celebrated Halloween evening with a hay ride to the home of their former pastor, Elder O. W. Sarratt, who lives on a farm near Oak Grove. Games were played around a large bonfire after which wieners and marshmallows were roasted.

The junior young people were entertained with a Halloween party at the home of Mrs. Ruth Hayes Friday evening.

Eugene McKean was in charge of the church school service Sunday morning. The theme, "Gratitude," was carried out by a short program consisting of short talks by Mr. McKean and Elder H. E. Winegar, a vocal solo, "Did You Think to Pray?" by Mrs. Ruth Hayes, and a poem, "Things That Make Us Happy," by Miss Nellie Mae Kramer.

This Sunday marked the beginning of a contest in the church school the aim of which is to boost attendance and collections. The score is kept on two large white elephants which hang on the side walls. A system of points is worked out by the application of gray patches to the elephants. The division which first succeeds in producing a completely gray elephant wins the contest.

Enoch Hill congregation is glad to have Elder H. E. Winegar and family again on the hill, nevertheless the Saints regret the necessity which called him from his mission field.

The evening preaching hour was occupied by Pastor H. L. Barto who used as his theme, "The Final Destiny of Man."

Sugar Creek Mission

The mission at Sugar Creek, Missouri, is now two years old, and its short life has brought happiness to everyone. There are now twenty-three families represented here with a membership of sixty people. Two of the young men have been called to the priesthood and will soon be ordained, Brother John Lehman, priest, and Brother W. D. Scott, teacher. Brother Scott and family are now in Aruba, Dutch West Indies. We miss them, but feel that they will be able to do some effective work there. Brother Scott was sent to Aruba by the Standard Oil Company.

When our Sunday school was started two years ago four families were represented, there being a membership of nine. The Lord has blessed us in a wonderful way, and we continue to grow. Sugar Creek contributed one thousand and forty-five quarts of fruit and vegetables to the Harvest Home Festival. Several families were not financially able to help a great deal because of the wage earners being out of employment. The task of getting the fruit and vegetables together and canning it fell mostly upon the women. They gathered fruit wherever they could, even went into the field and gathered the corn. Many long hours of work were spent by this faithful group of women. The men did the carpenter work in the festival booth, and the women most of the decorating. We are happy to say that we took second prize for out-of-town booths, and above all, we had a splendid opportunity to learn to work together. We did what we could in a small way to show our appreciation of God's mercy and goodness to us with the thought in mind, "We are our brother's keeper." Our watchword is "Forward." Our aim is Onward to Zion.

Columbus, Ohio

Second Branch, Rinehard and Twenty-second Streets.

The October sacrament meeting was well attended, and a wonderful spirit of reverence and calm was present to encourage the worshipers. Following this service, the Saints were surprised by the wedding of Brother Edgar Brush and Josephine Scharfenaker. Elder J. E. Matthews officiated. Paul Wemlinger was best man and Eloise Brush was the bridesmaid. A happy future is wished for this bridal couple.

The women's department met October 8 with twenty-two members and five visitors present. The occasion was a costume party and there were many unique costumes.

The number attending prayer service is increasing. Some very spiritual meetings have of late encouraged the members to persist in their forward course.

A dinner was given the adults of the branch October 20, in the social room of the church. Elder John R. Grice was toastmaster. Fifty-six were present. The meal was served by the Temple Builders.

The young people's organized class gave a Halloween party October 27, in the basement of the church. A good crowd enjoyed the games, the doughnuts, the apples, and the cider.

Inspiring sermons have this month been delivered by A. H. Nieman, H. E. French, G. H. Kirkendall, R. E. Madden, J. E. Matthews, Doctor W. B. Reeves, and John R. Grice.

London, Ontario

A pretty wedding was solemnized at the London church early in October when Lillian, the daughter of Brother and Sister Winegarden, was united in marriage to Orville Wallis. Elder Frank Gray, uncle of the bride, officiated. Sister Chester Abell played the wedding music and a pleasing solo was rendered by Madelaine Timbrell during the signing of the register.

"Uncle John" Vashinder, who has been in very poor health the past couple of months, is greatly improved. He proposes to take a trip to northern Ontario.

Several Port Huron Saints met with us on a recent Sunday at the morning prayer service. Elder A. C. Barmore, who presided over the meeting, spoke of meeting with us some thirty years ago and stated that he missed many of the old-time Saints. Members were pleased to again meet Elder Matthew Liston.

The visiting group was much interested in the activities of the junior department. Sister Grace Perry, superintendent, went over the various exercises for the benefit of the visitors.

"Grandma" Gray, one of the oldest members of the branch, has of late been quite ill. We hope soon to see her well again.

The Saints were pleased to have present on a recent Sunday Elder Lawrence Campbell. In the evening his discourse was on the Book of Mormon. Convincingly, he showed the purpose of the book and stated that he knew from experience that the honest seeker for truth and righteousness will be given evidence of the divinity of this book. Elders William I. Fligg and Percy Farrow, missionaries, have also lately occupied the pulpit.

An ordination service was had at the ten o'clock prayer meeting the other Sabbath when Brother Orlo Dent was ordained an Aaronic priest by his father, Bishop J. C. Dent. Elder J. E. MacGregor, pastor, delivered the charge to the candidate. Elder J. F. Winegarden, district president, assisted.

Denver, Colorado

Denver Saints have been grieved to lose the association of Elder and Sister H. E. Winegar and their children, who, only recently, had returned to this city after an absence of a year. They have found it expedient to move to Independence. We have learned to love them all, and shall miss their help and fellowship.

On Wednesday evening, October 7, Apostle E. J. Gleazer addressed the Saints, explaining the cause of the action taken by the Joint Council, and expressing his confident expectation of our understanding and help. Here, as elsewhere, we very much regret the financial stringency which has affected our church as well as other institutions throughout the world. Many have expressed themselves as willing and eager to do all in their power to help. Brother Gleazer did not fail, while impressing us with the seriousness of the situation, to give us a message of cheer and encouragement.

The pastor was called to Lamar, Colorado, October 15, to conduct the funeral service of Howard Sparkman, brother of Sister Willard Berry. While in that part of the State, he visited Uteyville, La Junta, Pueblo, and Colorado Springs, preaching every night but one during the week he was away.

A social for the adults was held October 15 in the basement of the church with quite a large crowd in attendance.

The pastor and his counselors have organized the work of visiting, and instructed the visiting teams, so that the best results may be obtained. It is hoped that every Latter Day Saint in Denver may be visited during November.

The young people met at the church Sunday, October 18. A basket lunch was enjoyed after the morning service, and then plans for the winter's work were discussed and arranged. Our young men and women are keeping busy in a number of helpful ways. The basketball team, with Francis McClendon as coach, is practicing regularly. The drama club is preparing a play to be given soon. In the church school and the choir their work is much appreciated.

Alfred Vosmer matriculated at the University of Colorado at Boulder this year. Lois Wildermuth has returned to Graceland College, and Mary Williams is a junior at Denver University.

We are glad to welcome Brother and Sister E. P. Darnell, who have moved here from Colorado Springs, and Brother and Sister John T. Booth, from Oklahoma.

The women of the branch are holding regular meetings for class work. Sister Linna Christensen is conducting a class in interior decorating. A social meeting is held once a month, on which occasion an interesting program is given and refreshments are served. Sister Ethel Radcliffe is in charge of this department.

Brother J. D. Curtis, of Colorado Springs Branch, is in the Presbyterian Hospital, this city, where he has recently undergone a serious operation.

Kirtland District Religious Education Institute

Willoughby, Ohio, October 23.—The Kirtland District Department of Religious Education held an institute in Barberton, Ohio, October 10 and 11. James E. Bishop, district president, and Earl R. Curry delivered the lectures. Themes were "Zion Building" and kindred subjects. Twenty-three were enrolled and a profitable and pleasant time was had.

Bisbee, Arizona

October 22.—Mrs. Gertrude Myers entered the waters of baptism October 11, and became a member of Bisbee Branch. We are happy to welcome this sister.

Members in this city were delighted by a visit from bishop Albert Carmichael, who talked on Monday and Tuesday evening, October 19 and 20, to a good audience. His talks on the financial law of the church were most instructive and interesting, and the members were glad to have the law made plain and to hear of the progress the church is making. A good number of Douglas Saints and nonmembers was present both nights.

We regretted that Brother Carmichael could stay no longer, but hope he will again be able to visit us. These visits from the officers of the church are sources of inspiration to the Saints.

Coldwater, Michigan

Graceland College Day

The account of activities in Coldwater Branch on College Day hardly expresses the beautiful spirit permeating the service. We send the attached news story of the day as a sample of what the editor of Branch County News is doing for the Saints as a group, and what we are endeavoring to give in the way of a program. College Day was enthusiastically observed. Here is what the News says of it:

"College Day" was observed at church October 18, with a program of education in general, and Graceland in particular. Education was considered, not only as the cheapest defense of nations, but in its application to the development of character, the defense of title to an 'inheritance undefiled' in the future 'Kingdom of Heaven' also. This is made manifest by the teachings of the Bible. 'Add to your faith virtue and knowledge,' commands the Apostle Peter, while the Almighty charged ancient Israel: 'My people are destroyed, repelled, broken up—for lack of knowledge.'

"The theme Sunday, was builded on the admonition, 'Seek learning by study and also by faith.' Many seek learning by 'study' and omit to seek it by faith, 'because,' say they, 'our heavenly Father is too far removed to inspire the mind he gave us, notwithstanding, he supplies everything else we need in a material way, he has thrown us to one side in an intellectual way, and in a spiritual way. This seems harsh, on the part of our Creator.'

"Five splendid papers were read impressing the mind of our coming generation with the absolute necessity of education, spiritual, intellectual, esthetical and moral, thereby developing equally those powers that make men. The choir added charm and strength to every reading and recitation, by appropriate renderings of songs. Reverend Scott composed a "Tribute to Graceland," which he sang as a solo, while the choir joined in to render the chorus. The music of the production was 'Genevieve.'

"The primary grade paid their compliment by singing 'Rise Graceland, Rise.' Little Bobby Fitzke, from Battle Creek, charmed the audience by rendering 'The Little White Church in the Valley, Where I First Heard My Mother Pray for Me.' His mother accompanied on the piano. A beautiful poem, by Vida Smith Yates, was rendered to the music of 'Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms.' The poem, 'Fair Mater Who Weareth No Crown,' is a classic. Anthems and congregational music were interspersed so that the program was over one hour in the rendering.

"Those who contributed the papers were: Mesdames Stroh, Fish, Scott, Hawkins and Gallagher. Solo, 'Moonlight and Roses,' by Dorothea L. Scott. Recitation, 'Brace Up,' by Jennie Hardy. Violin solo, Oneh Ogden. The program was in charge of Reverend Scott. An acceptable service was enjoyed in paying tribute to the schools of the country, as well as to 'Graceland' under church auspices, in their effort for the Christian civilization of the future."

Council Bluffs, Iowa

On Sunday, October 4, Brother J. F. Garver gave us a thorough digest of the action of the Joint Council in its endeavors to solve the pressing problems of the church. He explained why it was necessary to release a number of missionaries and others. Monday evening, October 5, a priesthood meeting was held in Omaha for the purpose of outlining a plan for the future operations in Omaha and Council Bluffs. This was made necessary by the decision of the council to release from appointment Brother R. Melvin Russell, who has been serving as pastor in Omaha Branch.

Brother Garver graphically presented the financial condition of the church in detail. Brother E. J. Gleazer then presented the proposition of combining the work in Omaha and Council Bluffs under one conference-appointed man. Brother Ray Whiting, who has been the pastor of Council Bluffs Branch for the past three years, was selected to supervise the work in the two branches; his time to be equally divided between the two places.

Sunday, October 11, was home-coming and Rally Day and Brother Edwards was here preaching morning and evening. He also addressed the priesthood in the afternoon, about fifty men being present from the adjacent branches of Eastern Nebraska and Southwestern Iowa Districts. Brother Edwards stressed the necessity of the local priesthood redoubling their efforts to make up for the loss to the church of the services of the men who have lately been released.

We are sorry to lose from our number Sister Vinnie Hatch who has lately moved to Independence, Missouri. Sister Hatch is a tireless and faithful worker, and we shall surely miss her. We wish her success in her new work.

The work in Council Bluffs is moving steadily on in spite of the financial depression. The sisters are serving meals in the church each Wednesday from 11.30 to 1.30 for the purpose of helping with the branch finances and swelling the Graceland college scholarship fund.

Friday evening, October 30, the Music and Dramatics Wheel are giving a musical concert at the church, which the Saints and friends in Council Bluffs, as well as those from the surrounding branches, are especially invited to attend. Professor Charles Ballantyne, of Lamoni, now instructor in music, at Tarkio, Missouri, in the Tarkio College, will be the guest artist, and besides playing several numbers himself, will play the violin obbligatos to two other numbers on the program.

Sunday, October 25, was special young people's day. The services were well attended by not only the local young people but many from the surrounding branches such as Underwood, Hazel Dell, and Shenandoah. Omaha was well represented especially in the evening. Brother E. Y. Hunker was the speaker of the day giving two fine sermons. At 7.30 an interesting program was given by the Hazel Dell orchestra, assisted by local and visiting young folks.

The choir has resumed activities after the summer vacations and is doing good work under the leadership of Sister Ada Hall, who has lately moved to Council Bluffs. We feel assured if the singers will be faithful in the performance of their duties and will rally to the support of Sister Hall, the choir can be of great assistance in carrying on the work in Council Bluffs. We have heard very favorable comments on their work.

Castroville, California

Graceland College Day was well observed by this the "baby branch" of California. Brother Roy Weldon, a Graceland alumnus, of Walnut Creek, was the day's speaker. He gave a splendid discourse from which we think much good will come. For two weeks the chorister, Mrs. Green, had been preparing special music for the occasion. She had also typed about forty copies of the song, "Graceland Beloved," which was sung at the close of the Sunday school and following the sermon. Led by a strong choir, the congregation did justice to this beautiful song. An air mail letter received the day before from Marjory Lawn, now at Graceland College, and written to the branch for the occasion, was read. When we consider our economic situation, we think the members contributed liberally to the college scholarship fund.

The boys and girls eagerly looked forward to Sunday, October 25, when Pastor L. E. Harris, of San Jose, was here. Brother Harris, who is also a scoutmaster, brought sixteen of his uniformed scouts in the morning. While in Castroville he organized the Boy Scout movement, sponsored by the church. Girl Scouts will later be organized if sufficient interest is shown. Some of our boys already are scouts. Brother John A. Lawn, of Hollister, associate pastor and for several years active in the Boy Scout movement, will bring his boys. We are trying to hold the interest of our young. "As the twig is bent the tree's inclined."

October 17 Brother Wilbur Lawn, scout patrol leader, accompanied by his troop and the pastor, drove to Castroville, where they met several of the Saints at the church, following pre-arranged plans for the purpose of beautifying the church grounds. Trees, shrubs, and flower seeds were planted, and other necessary work done inside and outside the church.

By generous contributions of labor, material, and money, we have recently piped water to the church and installed a concrete baptismal font under the front platform. On November 8 this font will be formally dedicated by District President G. P. Levitt, of Sacramento, at which time the pastor will baptize several candidates, the first to be a little girl eight years of age, the second a boy of the same age. Special services with appropriate music are now being prepared.

Coeur d'Alene, Idaho

Coeur d'Alene Branch has been on the upward trend for the past three years, especially so since the church school has been in operation. It seems that in the past year we have been able to reach many more nonmembers than in any previous year.

In the past we had large crowds attend Religio programs, taxing the capacity of the building at each meeting, but we did not reap the harvest by bringing in new members as we are now doing.

September 30 Elder A. C. Martin, district missionary, began a series of meetings here which we think proved profitable to the membership and their nonmember friends. Attendance was good. On October 18 Brother Martin baptized seven, three of them adults in the Spokane River. The candidates were confirmed Sunday evening at an impressive service, under the hands of Elder A. C. Martin and Stanley J. Font, pastor of the branch. The meetings closed that evening.

After being appraised of the fact that our missionary had been released from his field because of the financial depression, but that the district had the privilege of retaining him, providing it supported his family without handicapping the tithes and offerings to the general church, the district president and bishop's agent, immediately held a consultation with Elder Martin. They found him willing to remain in the field if satisfactory arrangements could be made. These two brothers, Elder R. H. Porter, of Spokane, Washington, the district president, and Elder L. E. Holmes, of Coeur d'Alene, bishop's agent, have covered the greater part of the district and found the Saints willing and eager to do their part to keep the missionary in the field.

Coeur d'Alene Saints held their annual branch business meeting September 27. All branch officers were re-elected by unanimous vote. There were, however, a few changes made in the church school staff of workers. The installation of officers and teachers was held October 4 at the opening of the church school, Elder A. C. Martin, district supervisor, delivering the charge.

Brother George Phay and family, formerly of Fairview, Montana, have recently moved here. Brother Phay, who holds the office of deacon, was immediately pressed into service. Sister Phay is also a splendid help in the branch.

We are thankful for the good health the Saints are enjoying. There is little sickness among us.

Word arrived today that Evangelist and Sister Richard Baldwin will be in Coeur d'Alene November 3, to hold meetings.

Is Your Branch Dead to the World?

Do your people read the church papers?
If they do not, they are dead to the world
so far as the church is concerned.

Without communication an army may be lost in battle, or a business may become demoralized and bankrupt.

The church officers can't write you a personal letter every time they want to tell you something. So they are now telling it to you through the church papers.

Subscribe Now!

HERALD
$2.00 per year

ENSIGN
$1.00 per year

VISION
$1.75 per year

Order From

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE
Independence, Missouri

MISCELLANEOUS

District Institute

New York District will meet for institute work with Buffalo Branch, November 27, 28, and 29, and at this time Buffalo Branch will celebrate the tenth anniversary of its dedication. Officers are desirous that this shall be a homecoming for all members of the branch, and invite the missionaries who have worked here to visit the branch or write a letter recalling their work here. Elder P. L. Weegar has been pastor of the branch throughout the ten years since dedication. The first session of the institute will be held Friday evening, 7.30, when dedication exercises will be conducted. Saturday night dinner will be served at the church at six o'clock, followed by a program. Sunday morning first session at nine o'clock. Nearby branches are invited to meet with us.—Anna M. Lloyd, 387 Lafayette Avenue, Buffalo, New York.

Conference Minutes

CENTRAL MICHIGAN.—Annual conference of this district convened at Beaverton, Michigan, October 17, 10.30 a. m., Elder Hubert Case, district president, in charge. Organization was as follows: A motion was made and seconded that the district president preside over the conference. An amendment including the counselors to the district president was made, and the motion, as amended carried. Brother Case then introduced a report as district president, and the minutes of two previous conferences were read and approved. The following reports were read and ordered spread on the minutes: Branch reports—Bay City, Saginaw, Beaverton, Whittemore, West Branch, Alma, Tawas City, Gladwin, Houghton Lake; statistical reports: Gladwin, Beaverton, Midland, Alma, West Branch, Glover, Farwell, Bay City, Butman, Whittemore, Tawas City. A splendid number of reports from the priesthood of the district were given, indicating activity along many lines. Reports were given by the counselors to the district president, and those from the district musical director and treasurer were read. Short talks were given by Elders Hubert Case, E. S. White, B. H. Doty, G. W. Burt, and Matthew Umphrey, each emphasizing important steps to be taken to further the progress of the district. Each speaker expressed the fact that greater organization among local men be effected. Conference adjourned until 2 p. m. After the singing of a hymn, the invocation, a musical selection by the district orchestra, and the reading and approving of the minutes of the previous session, the afternoon meeting was opened for business. The matter of amalgamation of Butman and Gladwin Branches was taken up. After brief discussion a motion prevailed that it be left in the hands of the district presidency with full power to act. The matter of the branch at South Brant was discussed, after which a motion prevailed that this be left in the hands of the district presidency with full power to act. Election of officers: A motion unanimously prevailed that Elder Hubert Case be retained as district president. Motion carried that visiting members be given voice and vote in the conference. Motion was made and seconded that we elect superintendents for various departments as practiced before the plan of Religious Education was adopted. Substitute offered that we continue the present plan, known as the new plan of religious education. After discussion the substitute carried. The present secretary, Winnie M. Hulbert, was sustained; the appointment of bishop's agent, Elder Otto Bartlett, ratified. District treasurer, John Armstrong, of Farwell. Otto Bartlett, reunion treasurer, gave report which was approved subject to the audit. District Chorister, C. M. Lambkin, assistant, Ben Burch. Elder R. E. Jones then nominated the following men to act in conjunction with the district presidency in effecting a proper organization in the department of Religious Education: Byron Bartlett, Earl Falconer, and Lloyd McDonald. Appointments of these men were ratified. The following resolution was then read: Resolved, that we accept the invitation of Western and Northern Districts to unite with them in reunion work at Park of the Pines, at Boyne City, Michigan, in 1932; further resolved, that we organize in a special way to take care of past reunion work in a local way by making our one-day meetings of greater spiritual force to all who attend.—R. E. Jones. Action on the resolution was deferred till Sunday. The October 18 business session: A recommendation was offered by the district president that Sylvester Yager be ordained to the office of elder. This recommendation was ratified, subject to the usual procedure. District president presented names of Elders R. E. Jones and E. S. White as counselors. Appointments were approved. The appointment of Sister E. L. Pringle as superintendent of the department of women, was ratified. A recommendation was made by the district president that R. E. Jones act as head of the Department of Religious Education. This recommendation was made and the appointment ratified. The reunion resolution was again read and discussed. It carried. A rising vote of thanks was extended to Beaverton Saints for their hospitality. Conference adjourned until the call of the district president.

Our Departed Ones

DICKERSON.—Clara Emma Carr was born at Waterford, Maryland, November 6, 1873. Married Mr. Alfred I. Dickerson, May 12, 1892; baptized into Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ, November 13, 1892, by Elder A. H. Parsons. Died October 18, 1931, while visiting at the home of her son Myles Dickerson who lives in Elk Mills, Maryland. She had been in poor health for some time, had been out of the hospital only a few weeks, but seemed to be improving. She lived in Wilmington, Delaware. She had often expressed a desire to die in Elk Mills, and was stricken the next day after her arrival at her son's. Everything was done that could be for her recovery; she was administered to several times. A large funeral was evidence of her life's work among her relatives and friends. Services were held at the church here, in charge of Elder Livingston, the sermon being preached by Elder A. H. Parsons. Left to mourn are her husband, five sons, two daughters, two brothers, two sisters, a number of grandchildren, and a host of friends.

BURCH.—Francis Milton Burch was born near La Belle, Missouri, in 1867, and moved with his parents to Green City, Missouri, in 1881. He was married to Sarah E. McClary, of Princeton, Missouri, in 1888, and to them were born three children: Eulah M., Francis E., and Thomas W. Eulah and Francis passed away in infancy. Mr. Burch and his wife united with the Reorganized Church in 1895, being baptized by Elder Daniel Tucker. He was ordained to the Aaronic priesthood in 1895, and gave much of his time to preaching. He conducted many funeral services throughout Sullivan County. In 1911 he moved to Green City to practice as a veterinarian; in 1921 he represented Sullivan County in the fifty-first general assembly and was the author of Missouri's Tuberculin Testing law for dairy cattle. In 1925 he received an appointment from Governor Baker, to take charge of Mark Twain State Park, and moved to Florida, Missouri, serving in that capacity until his death October 2, 1931. His death was due to heart failure. The funeral was held in the Methodist Church in Green City, Elder J. D. Proffit, of Trenton, Missouri, in charge, assisted by the Presbyterian minister of Green City. Interment was in the Holiday Cemetery near Pollock, Missouri. Surviving are his wife, one son, one brother, five sisters, other relatives and many friends.

EPPELRY.—Lloyd Vernon Epperly, son of Hyrum E. and Leona A. Epperly, was born July 9, 1911, at Joy, Illinois, and died September 5, 1931. His death was caused by a car accident which occurred September 3, near Dubuque, Iowa. Lloyd joined the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints August 31, 1919. He leaves to mourn his parents, one sister, Inez Fuerst, two brothers, Virgil Lewis Epperly and Kenneth Ivan Epperly, his grandfather, Fred Shaefer, sr., and other relatives. The funeral was conducted from the Saints' church at Kewanee, Illinois, in charge of the pastor, Elder H. Jones. The sermon was by Elder F. C. Bevan. Interment was in the Pleasant View Cemetery, Kewanee.

BOYD.—Nancy Jane Jenuine was born in Columbus, Ohio, December 11, 1843; united in marriage to Andrew Reed Boyd December 8, 1861, at Bellair, Illinois. Departed this life September 30, 1931, at the home of her son James W. Boyd, near Yale, Illinois, having lived eighty-seven years, nine months, and nineteen days. She joined the Methodist Church when a young girl and in it reared her family until February, 1892, when she was baptized by Elder Emslie Curtis, with her companion, into the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. She remained a faithful member until her death. Twelve children were born to them, seven of whom survive her, four daughters: Mrs. Mary E. Curtis, of Independence, Missouri; Mrs. Mariah E. Tuel and Mrs. Susan L. Watt, of Oblong, Illinois; Mrs. Lillie M. Mouser, of Willow Hill, Illinois; three sons: Thomas J. and J. W. Boyd, of Yale, Illinois; George Boyd, of Gary, Indiana. She leaves two sisters, one of whom was present at the funeral. Her companion preceded her in death six years ago, also one daughter, Julia T. Coleman, and four sons: Charles E., Benjamin F., John F., and Newton W. Boyd. Besides her seven children and two sisters, she leaves forty-five grandchildren, sixty-three great-grandchildren; seven great-great-grandchildren, and a host of other relatives and friends. The funeral services were conducted from the New Light Church October 2, at 2.30 p. m., the Reverend Sherman Keeler in charge. The sermon was delivered by Elder R. L. Fulk, of Benton, Illinois. Six grandsons acted as pallbearers: Charlie, Lee, and Verva Tuel; Ivan Mouser, Don Boyd, and Harold Coleman. The undertaker, Mr. Markwell, of Casey, was also a relative. After the services the body was carried to the beautiful little cemetery where it was laid to rest beside her husband. Mrs. Boyd had made her home with her daughter in Independence for three years and had the privilege of attending the Centennial Conference. It was hoped that she could be present at her daughter's golden wedding at Christmas time the same year, but because of her longing to spend her last days in her old home which had been so sweet to her with her companion for over sixty-four years, she was taken back about a year ago. Her death makes a break in the five generations which had occurred seven times in her life.

KINGSBURY.—Alice M. Ashley was born at Colfax, Placer County, California, October 1, 1866. She was baptized a member of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints May 19, 1876. Passed away at Tancred, California, October 20, 1931. Interment was at Mountain View Cemetery, Oakland, Elder J. W. Rushton officiating. Besides her husband, Calvin Kingsbury, there mourn her death a daughter, Mrs. A. Alyce Norman; two brothers, William and Charles; a sister, Mrs. Ida Rees, and many friends. Neighbors and friends join in expressing condolences, and paid affectionate tribute to the memory of this good woman whose life and character won their esteem and confidence. Of her it also is written: "He giveth his beloved sleep."

ALLEN.—Stephen Decatur Allen was born July 20, 1857. Departed this life October 19, 1931. He married Jennie Robinson March 20, 1882. To them were born seven children of whom there survive: Mrs. T. F. Hall, Mrs. J. T. Barnes, and Stephen G. Allen, of Milton, Florida; Mrs. J. M. Wilkinson, Munson, Florida, and Joseph T. Allen, of Bagdad, Florida. He was baptized August 15, 1893, and was loyal and true to his covenant to the end. Was laid to rest in the family burying ground near Milton, October 21, 1931. The funeral services were held at the grave, Elder A. D. McCall in charge, the sermon by Apostle J. A. Gillen. In the passing of Brother S. D. Allen, the church has lost another stalwart defender. Having been ordained an elder September 22, 1895, he was soon chosen to serve as president of Florida District, which office he creditably filled for a number of years. Later he was called to do missionary work in the Southeastern Mission. Many names on the church records attest to the success of his ministerial activities. He was faithful in service and valiant in testimony, giving freely of time and substance to every deserving need to the extent that many will say they have lost a friend indeed. Among the many worthy things that might be said of him is that though a man of moderate means, he was for years the largest payer of tithes in Florida District.

THE GOSPEL FORUM

Under this heading we shall be glad to receive and publish articles and letters of interest to our readers on the doctrine and work of the church. Writers are responsible for their own views. Other views on subjects discussed here will be received if of sufficient interest.

What Can We Do About It?

By C. H. Porter

In the years of plenty when the land produced abundantly in Egypt Joseph laid up food in the cities so that when the dearth came he had supplies to distribute to the needy.

We are now living in a time of plenty. The staff of life (wheat) is not only plentiful but cheap. It would seem to be a time when we might do as Joseph did. Why should anyone be hungry for bread when wheat can be bought on the market at a very low price? We are told that the coming winter will bring to the people of our country harder times than the present generation has hitherto seen.

The President of the United States and his advisors have expressed the opinion that the wants of the needy should be supplied by the local and state authorities rather than by the Federal Government, and the "dole" system as practiced by England is considered to be unwise as a method to be used here as a remedy.

The question then arises as to what as a church we can do for our own members. We have heard much about the building up of Zion, and have stressed the need of sacrifice for the good of the cause, all of which is good. But we come now to the practical part of it. Our own people will suffer with the rest unless we are able to do better for them than the local authorities can do.

From time to time we have received revelations in regard to storehouses in which supplies might be held to distribute as occasion might require. We do not ask why so little has been done in this direction, but desire rather to ask why this does not seem to be a time to consider the matter in reference to present needs.

We have been admonished to care for the poor and needy, and have sought to carry this admonition into effect, but it has been on a comparatively small scale. The church has grown and with it its responsibilities, and today conditions are serious not alone for others but also for us. Money is scarce and hard to get. Nations find it difficult to meet their obligations, and we are told that conditions might improve if we could pay and receive in the kind of produce we have rather than in cash.

In times like this it is necessary to economize to the limit, and even then many find it impossible to meet their obligations. The church will naturally suffer with individuals for of them it is composed, but even so it seems that we ought to be able to care for our own so as not to have them either suffer for the necessities of life or become paupers.

In December, 1833, the Lord said, "There is even now already in store a sufficient, yea, even abundance to redeem Zion, and establish her waste places, no more to be thrown down, were the churches who call themselves after my name, willing to hearken to my voice." This is a serious charge. Are we in difficulty because we have followed the ways of the world rather than to hearken to the voice of the Lord?

Do we now find ourselves, as an organization, in straitened circumstances because we have not heeded the directions given? We all know that obligations should be met, and that debts should be paid. But how much better would it be if we had not mortgaged the present and the future by what we did in the past. But leaving that in the hands where it properly belongs may we not presume to ask what can be done at present to prepare ourselves for the time in which we live so that our members may at least be assured that the common necessities of life shall not be lacking for our own? Would it not be possible to establish storehouses in each of the stakes of Zion, in which staple supplies might be held and distributed as occasion required?

Would it not be possible to start this by procuring of at least one thousand bushels of wheat for each storehouse, and could not the money for the purchase of the wheat, or the donation of the wheat itself, be raised by voluntary contribution?

We speak of wheat because it is a staple food for all people, and because it is impossible for people to starve where it is present. There is no other article of diet of such universal use. If boiled until the berry bursts open and served with a sprinkling of raisins and sugar, and with fresh milk, there is no more appetizing and healthful food. Why should people starve or go hungry while wheat is selling for thirty-five cents per bushel? Or why should we complain of hard times when God in his providences sends the sunshine and rain which results in bountiful harvests? Are we willing to admit that with an abundance around us that we can not care for our own? There are other things to consider beside wheat, but wheat itself is the chief essential.

Five years ago Mr. Baldwin stated in the British Parliament that none in England need to go hungry, for England made provision for her people. We criticize the "dole," and have not adopted the old age pension system. What have we given as something better?

When shall Zion arise to put on her beautiful garments, and show the perfection of her beauty? May God speed the day.

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Frederick M. Smith, Editor in Chief.
 Elbert A. Smith, Floyd M. McDowell, Associate Editors.
 Leonard J. Lea, Managing Editor.
 Leta B. Moriarty, Assistant Editor.
 Published for the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.
 Subscription price: By the year, $2.
 HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE
 INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI

CONTENTS

EDITORIALS:
 It Can Be Done ..... 1034
 Notes From the Field ..... 1035
 "Resisting Unto Blood" ..... 1035
 Refusing to Be Depressed ..... 1036
 Balmain Branch Celebrates ..... 1036

ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
 Why Pay Tithing? by C. A. Skinner ..... 1037
 Gifts or Obedience, by E. G. Hammond ..... 1039
 The Christmas Offering in 1931, by C. E. W. ..... 1040
 Weekly Health Letter, by A. W. Teel, M. D. .... 1041
 Tribute to John M. Terry, by J. F. Sheehy ..... 1042
 Christian Priesthood, by Albert Loving ..... 1044
 Do You Know These People? ..... 1046
 NEWS OF CHURCH AND HOME ..... 1048
 MISCELLANEOUS ..... 1054
 THE GOSPEL FORUM:
 What Can We Do About It? ..... 1055

Barley for Mild Drink (D. C. 86: 3)

Parched, Ground, or Whole Grain

	1st-3d Zone	3d-6th Zone
5-lb. lots	$.93	$1.20
10-lb. lots	1.68	2.20
25-lb. lots	3.81	5.00

Lamoni D. C. WHITE & SON Iowa

Buy Your Farms Now

While they are cheap. Any size, best terms. Special attention to readers of the Saints' Herald.

CHAS. R. BOWMAN
 Butler, Mo.

YOUR HERALD SUBSCRIPTION—DON'T LET IT LAPSE

Increase your FIRE INSURANCE, if you have increased the value of your HOME with new IMPROVEMENTS, thru us.

INSURANCE DEPARTMENT
 OF THE CHURCH
 (American Underwriters, Inc.)

Indep. 486 221 W. Lexington St.

ARTISTIC!

DISTINCTIVE!

MODERN!

Christmas Cards

A wonderful new line from our supply house.

Better than last year's excellent assortment.

Splendid Values at Depression Prices

Order from

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE
 INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI

EMPLOYMENT
 Offered to YOU

We are in need of two types of men in every city in the United States.

SALESMEN—We can use one extremely HIGH TYPE SALESMAN, in each State, who is capable of representing us as a wholesale salesman and able to organize his own sales organization. We can also use several salesmen in each city to work under the supervision of these State Representatives.

CARPENTERS—We can use carpenters to work in conjunction with the sales organization and install our merchandise.

OUR PRODUCTS are extremely marketable under present conditions.

Tell us your age and detailed experience in your first letter, so we can judge your qualifications and give you information accordingly.

THE B M J MANUFACTURING CORPORATION,
 WICHITA, KANSAS
 C. A. Balman, President and General Manager.

THE SAINTS' HERALD

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS

Entered as second-class matter at the post office at Independence, Missouri, under Act of March 3, 1879. Issued weekly at Independence, Missouri. Price $2 a year in advance. Accepted for mailing at the special rate of postage provided for in section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917; authorized July 21, 1921.

Volume 78

Independence, Missouri, November 11, 1931

Number 45

If You Have a Gift for Christ—

Give It Now!

---

THE LAND SHADOWING WITH WINGS

C. J. Hunt

COURAGE AND PRUDENCE

Evan A. Fry

WASHINGTON'S VISION

The Work of the Church Must Go On!

Notes From the Field

"THE BIGGEST THING TO ME"

In giving an account of his ministry to the First Presidency one pastor gives a list of activities that seems to call for special mention. His determination to help in the present crisis is something that will be of interest to our readers.

Personally, for the last three months I'll give a little record of my labors strictly for the church on top of teaching in our town school for the sixth year and occupying on a hundred acre farm, making a livelihood and school (high school and common) for six children as well as occupying as chairman of most of the community civic projects and as president of the county Teachers' Association.

Have held a straight five weeks' series of meetings at a schoolhouse twelve miles away with crowds running from one hundred to three hundred and a wonderful interest, baptizing six and the end is not yet. During the three months I've preached forty-six sermons, administered to the sick twenty-five times, married one couple, not members of the church and both teachers; made five strictly pastoral visits, attended all prayer and sacramental meetings, driven my car over twelve hundred miles, and many other things.

I only offer this to let you know that This Work is the biggest thing to me. I promise you that we will do all that we can during the next two months to help the church carry on.

KANSAS CITY YOUNG PEOPLE READY TO HELP

The Kansas City State O. B. K. Council met Monday night for their regular business meeting. After arrangements had been made for the religious drama contest and the winter's basket ball tournament President F. M. McDowell addressed the council.

The present condition of the church was feelingly presented by "Brother Mac" and methods of approach to the church young people were presented and discussed. The council were unanimous in their opinion that the best approach to the permanent solution of the problem lay through the God-given plan of tithes and offerings. Sample copies of a proposed young people's inventory and annual tithing report were distributed. These met with general approval. Some stated that it was the first time that they had ever seen an inventory blank and others frankly admitted dodging opportunity to hear the financial law of the church discussed.

George Mesley, president of the council, called on the council representatives from each of the churches to express their opinions on the plan presented. Their unanimity of opinion, their desire to file inventories themselves and urge the young people they represented to do likewise found expression in a motion to throw the whole weight of the council behind this project, beginning in the months of sacrifice and continuing through the coming years.

During 1930 the percentage of young people paying tithing was raised from twenty-five per cent to thirty-two per cent and this without great stress being placed on this activity.

The Kansas City young people hope to be pacesetters in a church-wide endeavor to demonstrate the quality of youth's devotion to the on-going work of the church.

Independence Prepares for Sacrifice

OFFICERS AND PRIESTHOOD WORKING TO ENLIST THE PEOPLE IN THE WORK OF MEETING FINANCIAL NEEDS

By John F. Sheehy, Pastor in Zion

The people of Independence are ready to answer the call of the church in its time of need. They proved this in June with their large returns of tithes and offerings. We have been requested to outline our course of procedure as a possible help to other church groups in their work.

When the call came from the general officers to prepare for the extended period of sacrifice during the months of November and December, plans were made immediately to reach every family of Saints within our organization with an appeal for help. It became immediately important to reach every member.

It was necessary first to reach the priesthood. The pastors were called and plans discussed with them. Then a general priesthood meeting was arranged with all of the officers of the forty-four groups in the city. Presidents Smith and McDowell, and Bishop DeLapp, were invited to be present and address the meeting. Brethren Kelley and Sheehy of the local organization explained the plan of reaching the people.

The Plan

The plan was this: The second Sunday of November, speakers were to be appointed to occupy the pulpits of the nine churches. The theme was to be "The work of the church must go on." The people were to be informed that within the next ten days the priesthood would visit the two thousand four hundred and forty-five families and leave with each family a special envelope for their sacrifice offering for the month of November. This envelope was to be brought by the people to a special Thanksgiving sacrifice service to be held in each of the nine churches at half past nine Thanksgiving morning. Then the first of December another priesthood meeting would be held, and the priesthood would again visit the families of Independence and leave an envelope for the month of December. All envelopes not handed in at the Thanksgiving service would be collected by the priesthood on this visit.

We feel that it is also necessary that the women of the church know something about the present needs as well as the priesthood, and a meeting was called of the thirteen leaders of women's work and executive members of the various women's organizations, which included the Dramatic Club, Tuesday Club, Laurel Club, Mothers' Club, and others. At this meeting it was very apparent that the women were very much interested and very much concerned. We know who it is in the home that must plan for this sacrifice period, and they must be informed of it. We know that the women of today are just as consecrated as the women of yesterday. At this special meeting a committee of five was appointed to talk over ways and means of saving so that all that was saved in the way of preparing of food, and buying and mending of clothes would be turned over to the church. They would also suggest ways and means of sacrifice. These various leaders of women also agreed that a mass meeting of all the women of Independence would be a very helpful thing. A meeting of the women of Independence was held Saturday afternoon of November 7. Bishop DeLapp and Pastor J. F. Sheehy presented to the women en masse the needs of the church. The girls of junior high and high school age were also there and agreed to help. There was found a ready response and willingness to cooperate in every way to free the church of its debt. The women were determined by their expression that the work of this church must go on; that the church debt must be paid; that it can be paid; and it will be paid. It must not take fifteen years; it must be done in a few years. They will hold another meeting of all women in Independence at the call of the leader of the women's department, Mrs. George Lewis.

Thanksgiving Day Program

The Thanksgiving program will consist of:

Organ Prelude.

Fifteen-minute song service, singing familiar hymns of praise.

Invocation.

Quartet, or number by the choir.

Reading of President Hoover's Thanksgiving message.

Special musical number.

Scripture reading and address (fifteen minutes)

Period of meditation and prayer:

1. Organ plays softly, "My God, How Wonderful Thou Art," followed by
2. Spoken prayer of Thanksgiving.
3. Congregation sings, "The Breaking Waves Dashed High."

Offering:

1. Organ plays, deacons come forward for baskets or plates.
2. Offering brought to the altar.
3. Prayer of blessing on the offering and giver.

Doxology.

Benediction.

School Taxation

Taxation has increased in most states and cities in the United States, until efforts to escape taxes have grown to an extent which indicates a possible breakdown of present taxation methods. School taxes have always been a heavy part of taxation, in most states, for education at public expense has become a fixed institution, in America especially. But even school taxes have come in for a share in the general complaints. And while the costs of public school education have mounted, on analysis they appear to be below any danger point. Recently the United States Department of the Interior presented figures on "per capita costs in city schools," and these showed a cost of about sixty cents a day for each child in the average city public school.

F. M. S.

"Faithful in That Which Is Least"

Have you ever stopped to consider the significance of "least things" in your life? Think of the small daily task, your routine work, the trivial snatch of conversation that can so quickly turn into gossip, the song, the helpful hand, the cheery greeting, the "Thank you," the smile, and a thousand other least things. Least things? Put them together and they make the big thing called life; they determine our relationship to God and his universe.

Least things are important. They are character builders. They are the indexes to our souls. People constantly judge us by them—they note the neatness of our dress, our step, our voice, the kind word, the way we perform a small errand. The Great Teacher did not overlook the least things. Here is what he said: "He that is faithful in that which is least is faithful also in much."

The next time we are tempted to slight a little task, to "make" a nickel off our busy grocer, to pass on by word or action a hint of gossip about our neighbor, to "cut" that committee meeting, to sleep late on Sunday morning, can we not think profitably of least things?

"He that is faithful in that which is least . . ."

L. B. M.

Our "Undeveloped Resources"

The "Official Call" issued by the First Presidency on October 21 contained the following statement: "While the situation is critical, it is not hopeless. We have but to call upon hitherto undeveloped resources to meet a great emergency." The question has been repeatedly raised, What are these undeveloped resources to which the church may now look?

Unrealized Power of the Priesthood. Not long ago a pastor in one of our city branches complained that in spite of every effort he had made only about one third of the local priesthood of his branch had responded to his call for service. It may be that this picture is too dark. We believe it is. But who can estimate the power of the great undeveloped resources of those members of the local ministry who are at present either unwilling or unable to support the church?

Latent Powers of Youth. A young woman wage earner of Independence, following a class discussion in which the needs of the church were presented, immediately filed her inventory. She was surprised to find that she owed forty-five dollars in tithing and immediately made a payment on that amount, pledging herself to pay the remainder at an early date.

According to the Statistician there are eighteen thousand young people, members of the church, in the United States and Canada between eighteen and thirty years of age. One can but wonder how many of them would be surprised to find the amount of tithing which they owe the church. We are convinced that this army of young people, once aroused and thoroughly awakened to the needs of the church, will rally to its support almost to a person.

Tithing Owed, But Not Paid. The records of the Bishop's office show that in any one year no more than seventeen thousand of our church members have made a financial contribution to the support of the church. What about the others? To be sure, many of these contributors represent families, and yet we wonder if every member of the family should not be encouraged to share in the work of the church. If half of the wage earners have contributed, what about the other half? Are they willing that others shall carry the whole load?

Unconverted Wealth. While the figures can not be presented, there is every evidence that among the church members there are many whom God has blessed with abundant material possessions who have not yet found it within their hearts to carry their share of the work of the church. Small contributions from those who possess ample means may serve for a time to salve their consciences, but trivial offerings given from large wealth must be characterized unjust and unfair, perhaps most of all to the one who lets himself come to believe that he can purchase the kingdom of God by giving occasional "tips" to the church.

Undeveloped Resources? Yes, plenty of them. Within the last week I have heard a score of church members express themselves to the effect that the Saints of modern times do not know what it means to sacrifice. How many times, these people ask, have we ever gone cold and hungry for the church? How many of the luxuries and conveniences that we so much desire have we been conscious of denying ourselves that the work of the church might go on? When, if ever, have we yielded real necessities as a sacrifice offering to the cause of Christ? Do we not still measure life in terms of material standards? Do we not seek all other things first, trusting that the "Kingdom" will follow in spite of our indifference to its welfare?

Finally, one can only imagine what this church would do were its latent powers set on fire by the magic of the Spirit of God. Let us suppose a body of one hundred thousand people who daily live in obedience to God's laws. Who can even estimate its latent strength—physical, mental, social, industrial, and spiritual—once it is awakened and brought to bear upon the unfinished task of the church?

Undeveloped resources? We are made to wonder if most of our resources are not to date undeveloped. Is it too much to hope that the cry of the church, which now for a century has claimed to be the church of God, will challenge the inactive men of our ministry, the latent powers of our young people, the material possessions of men and women of wealth, as well as those portions of our lives which all of us still hold in reserve? Is it too much to hope that the church will be able to place at its command these great and as yet unrevealed forces? With these "undeveloped resources" mobilized in the support of the cause of righteousness, the work of the church will go on. F. M. MCD.

Jackson County Bank Opens to Receive Money Due It

CLAIMS MUST BE FILED WITHIN FOUR MONTHS

Because there are many of our readers interested in the affairs of the Jackson County Bank, recently closed for examination, we reprint the statement of the receiver, W. B. Kelley, as it appeared in the Independence Examiner, Monday, November 9. The bank is now open to transact such business as now comes within its authority. Particular attention is called to the procedure necessary for filing claims. Mr. Kelley's statement follows:

I have been appointed Special Deputy Commissioner of Finance to liquidate the Jackson County Bank, and will do so as promptly as possible and with as small an expense as I can, to do the job efficiently.

Under our state law, a four months' notice has to be given to all claimants of the bank, during which time they must file their claims on blanks which will be furnished them. After the time for filing claims has expired, the law requires me to get an order of the circuit court before paying out the money to depositors. On account of the provisions of the law, the funds of depositors will necessarily be tied up for several months, but I have no control of that, as I have to follow the general laws of Missouri in performing my duties. The tying up of the funds of depositors will, of course, cause considerable inconvenience, but the other Independence banks assure me that they are amply able and willing to take care of the banking needs of the community.

The law also makes it a crime punishable by not more than a thousand dollar fine for any deputy or person assisting in the liquidation of the bank to give information concerning the bank or its customers, which they may have learned by such employment.

The bank will open for the purpose of receiving money due it, during regular banking hours, commencing Tuesday morning, November 10, and I feel sure that all persons owing the bank are interested in the community and in having the bank liquidated as speedily as possible, and I will appreciate their cooperation.

One Man Beats the Depression

Independence has its full quota of people who are out of work. In times of depression, when the building trades are at a standstill, none suffer from idleness more than the carpenters. These men are getting their full share of sympathy, but very little employment. But they can't eat sympathy.

There is one man, a member of the church, who is always busy. People call him a carpenter, for that is his trade, but he is more than that; he has attained the skill and proficiency which entitles him to be called a cabinet maker. He learned this work because he wanted to be a first class man in his business. While dozens of others have been out of work for many weeks and even months, he always has from five to ten or more jobs waiting for him at different places in town. You will wonder why. The explanation is simple.

A certain Mr. Bilson needs a garage, and he speaks to some of his neighbors to inquire who would be a good man to build it. One of them has had a garage built by our busy friend John. The workmanship is neat, and the price was very reasonable. So Mr. Bilson calls John. Can Mr. Bilson wait until Thursday? Yes, says Mr. Bilson, surprised that he was not put off until next week. Meanwhile John will come over to discuss the plan and the cost. On Wednesday there is a pile of lumber in the yard, and on Thursday John is out there in a whirl of hammers, nails, and sawdust. In a few days the job is done and Mr. Bilson is mightily pleased. And meanwhile Mr. Bilson is waiting for a chance to speak of John's work to some one else who needs a garage.

Mrs. X sees a fine built-in cabinet in her neighbor's kitchen, and she suddenly determines to satisfy a long standing wish for improvements in her own kitchen. Who made that lovely cabinet? Why, Mr. John. And so John gets another telephone call and another job. . . . Will Mr. John repair the back steps for Mrs. Y? Certainly. . . . Will Mr. John fit some new storm windows? Certainly. . . . Can Mr. John change the partition between our dining room and living room? Certainly. . . . John can do anything with wood. That is his business.

John carries a specially made mitre box, and the joints that he makes always fit. John made a little portable machine—a combination planer and rip saw—which he carries to his work, and which enables him to do his work quicker, saving time for himself, and saving money for his customers. He is always thinking of something that will save money for his customers. That is why they like to have him come back.

Perhaps it is this concern for his customers that keeps John always busy. If he works by contract he gives them a square deal on the material, and if he works for wages he does not stall on the job nor try to make the job last as long as possible. He does not consider it the customer's duty to pay him a pension. John looks out for his customers, and his customers look out for him. In prosperous times other workmen will consider John a conscientious fool. But it is John's conscience that now makes it possible for him to keep in work. The men who graft, who substitute poor material, who loaf on the job, and who do other dishonest things, now look enviously on while John has plenty of jobs.

Perhaps this story of John has nothing to do with religion. Perhaps it has no place here where we are supposed to write of "Higher Things." . . . Perhaps. And then again perhaps not. We wonder if John's good work doesn't have something to do with religion, and if there isn't some great moral lesson in this particular part of his life story.

L. L.

Prohibition has been of great benefit to American agriculture through the increased use of dairy products and increased standards of living of the consumer. It takes more grain to make a quart of milk than a quart of beer.—Walter H. Lloyd, editor Ohio Farmer, Cleveland.

It is said we are suffering today from frozen assets and frozen confidence. Evidently we must have a "thaw."

This thawing-out process requires not only careful financing but the warming sun of God's Spirit.

OFFICIAL

The Church Debt and Sacrifice

Since the issue of the Herald of October 28 setting forth a brief summary of our financial policy a number of people have called at the general church offices to discuss certain features of the plan. The concern of all of those who called was that the program was spread over so many years. "Fifteen years and almost $600,000 of interest to be paid during those years," "Surely, the church is able to pay that debt in a much shorter time." "Why, the members of this church can pay over $1,000,000 of the debt in two months." These and many remarks of a similar nature indicate the reaction in many quarters to our program of debt reduction.

A number of plans have been suggested to raise money to pay the debt. A group of stake officers, pastors and business men were called in for the purpose of discussing some of the plans and to get something of the sentiment of the people. Independence, Kansas City, Holden, Far West, and Lamoni Stakes, and Omaha and Council Bluffs Branches were represented. A straw vote was taken to get an idea of the length of time it would take to pay the debt. Eighteen men were present; of these, eight thought it could be paid in fourteen months, eight thought it could be paid in two years, one in three years, and one in five years. Or, stated in another way, sixteen of the eighteen men thought it could be done in two years.

The Presiding Bishopric is giving further consideration to the general plan of raising money which will make possible the payment of the debt in a much shorter period than the fifteen years. Because of the many factors involved, the most important one of which is that any plan must be in harmony with the law, it is not feasible to present such a plan in sufficient time that provisions will be made for the payments we must meet in January. We are, therefore, making our appeal to the Saints everywhere to respond to the call to sacrifice during the months of November and December that we may have money with which to meet our January obligations.

We are already getting reports which assure us that many of the districts and branches are organizing for this effort. We believe that many good results will be obtained, not the least of which will be the preparation for the continuous effort which must be made following the two months.

We have already set forth our needs for the months of October, November and December as amounting to $138,624.89. This is made up as follows:

Principal .....	$ 43,940.00
Interest .....	32,084.89
Current Budget Items .....	62,600.00
	$138,624.89

Of this amount we have received from the October income the sum of $12,000. (Complete returns are not in for October.)

During the months of November and December we are asking every man—professional, business, laborer and farmer; every woman—homemaker, professional, business; every young person—business and student; and every child, to respond to the call to sacrifice with tithes and offerings.

THE PRESIDING BISHOPRIC,

By G. L. DELAPP.

The Danger of Purely Formal Religion

One of the psychological tragedies of our time is to see a Sunday-morning congregation of sleek, well-fed, deeply upholstered, financially secure men and women trying to whip themselves up by a responsive reading from the Psalms. The words they read sprang straight from the tumultuous heart of some man who looked to God as a final resort in a tight place—a God who got him out of it! But these men have never even approached the border line of hunger, of social security, or of any sort of fear from which they felt that God had saved them. There are always exceptions, of course, in any group, and there are thousands to whom the Psalms are a priceless legacy, but we are speaking here of the many persons who are making the most difficult of all adjustments—namely, adapting to their lives of business and personal success religious forms that grew out of danger and impending failure. In such a situation the church is peculiarly in danger of lapsing into the dry rot of a purely formal religion. Many people, sincere friends of the church, and believers in a vital religion, fear that such a period is now upon the church.—Percy H. Hayward, in The Dream Power of Youth.

Prohibition is in the hearts and consciences and bank balances, the home comforts, the living facilities, the moral, educational, and economic advantages of the American people, and in all of these it is for ever planted.—United States Senator Morris Sheppard, quoted in the Clip Sheet, April 20, 1931.

The Church Needs Your Help

By A. B. Phillips

In the past the church has been confronted at times with emergencies, and has met them successfully by united effort and sacrifice. Today it is confronted with the most serious financial emergency of its existence, in which it needs the united and continued help of every member as never before. In order to meet pressing financial obligations now and in coming months, we are earnestly asking the cooperation of every official and member of the church, and suggest that the following plan of action be substantially followed, in addition to other efforts that may be made. If this is done effectively, it will save the church from grave financial consequences otherwise to be feared.

The membership of the church is about one hundred and ten thousand. Of this whole number, we feel sure that every Saint wants to help to the fullest extent possible, and will enthusiastically support the efforts made to this end. If this is done, the average amount contributed by each person need not be large at any one time, and should be governed by the resources in each case. For example, if every member will offer ten cents each week to the church, aside from regular tithes paid, it will amount to nearly forty-four thousand dollars per month. If enough contribute more than this, it will make up for any who may be unable to make an offering. This illustrates what unity of action will do.

Plan of Organization

The officers of every branch should so organize their forces that, if at all possible, every member shall be reached personally either weekly or at intervals insuring the success of the plan. Willing supporters often need to be reminded and approached for the sums they are willing to give. The attitude of each person should be definitely known, and any deficiency from any source should be made up by those willing and able to do so, thus maintaining the pro rata amount from every branch. Local officers in charge should observe and see that the plan is kept fully functioning. District officers should cooperate with their local groups to this end, and the traveling ministry in charge should assist them so far as necessary.

The local financial agent should have deputies or assistants to the extent required, and in addition to the plan for offerings, every member should personally be encouraged to pay all tithing due. If for any reason it can not all be paid at once, as much as possible should be paid in regular installments until completed. A complete list of the members and addresses should be kept, and if it is certain that any are unable to make an offering of any amount whatever, they should be marked as exempt. Opposite the name of each member may be placed the amount he proposes to contribute regularly. This schedule should be maintained for at least the rest of the year.

Sincerity of Our Devotion

There are very few members of the church, children included, who do not spend far more for candy, gum, drinks, ice cream, rides, movies, peanuts, and other luxuries and pleasures, than they contribute to the church. Within a comparatively short time we shall all stand before God and give an accounting for our measure of devotion to him and his work. Let us all be able to say at least that we paid no more for these unnecessary things than we did for the divine work we covenanted to support. Surely this is the very minimum that we dare ask God to accept as proof of our love for him.

Our attention has been called to a certain religious body not much greater than ours whose members contribute many times as much as we do. Every week they make their regular contribution as a strict part of their religious obligation to God and their church. A sum contributed by the Saints at long intervals or on rare occasions may not amount to nearly as much as very small amounts given frequently and regularly. Yet it may seem a sacrifice to part with the larger sum, while the small amount is never missed, and if not given to the church would be spent for unnecessary things in most instances.

Many will say that the amount we spend for luxury and pleasures is a poor measure of our devotion to God. Perhaps this is so, but the fact remains that as a church we do not as yet quite measure up to even that standard, though some devoted Saints do more than that. God has repeatedly asked us to prove him by doing our duty, and has promised to pour out a blessing greater than we can receive. Let the whole church make a grand united effort to show its love, and we shall obtain results, both spiritual and temporal, that will richly repay and gladden our hearts.

Cherish honor. With all the development of Civilization, the invention of machines, and the advancement of science nothing has been found that will replace it. It is the indispensable good faith of human relations.

"The Land Shadowing With Wings"

(Isaiah 18: 1-6.)

IS IT THE WESTERN HEMISPHERE?

By C. J. Hunt

With most Bible scholars the Prophet Isaiah is regarded as one of the foremost, devout and richly blessed of the Old Testament writers. His record of inspired visions seen by himself are truly of great value to the world, as they are closely interwoven with its history covering a period of many centuries, several of his predictions affecting all nations have been literally fulfilled, while others are in process of completion.

One of Isaiah's great visions and prophecies recorded in the King James translation of the Bible reads:

Woe to the land shadowing with wings, which is beyond the rivers of Ethiopia; that sendeth ambassadors by the sea, even in vessels of bulrushes upon the waters, saying, Go, ye swift messengers, to a nation scattered and peeled, to a people terrible from their beginning hitherto; a nation meted out and trodden down, whose land the rivers have spoiled! All ye inhabitants of the world, and dwellers on the earth, see ye, when he lifted up an ensign on the mountains; and when he bloweth a trumpet, here ye.—Isaiah 18: 1-3.

As Bible believers we are strong in our conviction that the fulfillment of the foregoing is in perfect agreement with the geographical location, the eventful period of history, place of origin of our church, and the manner of travel of our missionaries from this country to peoples of foreign lands. For these assurances the Latter Day Saints are indeed grateful. (See article by Elder C. Ed. Miller in Zion's Ensign, September 3, 1931.)

Of recent years a few prominent writers representing Protestant and Jewish organizations have either adopted some of our published interpretations of the verses quoted, or from their own study are strongly corroborating, in a measure, the definitions given by us for the past one hundred years.

The Reverend Doctor R. C. Shimeall, a noted scholar, of the Presbytery of New York City, treating upon Isaiah 18, on page 305, of his book, the Second Coming of Christ, says: "This passage, instead of 'Woe to,' etc., should read, 'Ho! the land of shadowing wings,' etc. This prophecy refers to that nation which shall hold a maritime preeminence over all others, and which can refer to none other so emphatically as to the United States of America." Reverend Shimeall is the author of eight or more literary works—a prominent writer and historian.

We now present a clipping from the Saints' Herald for September 1, 1897, which is of special worth in this connection:

A Word in a Fit Place

A copy of the Armory, published at Boston, Massachusetts, by H. L. Hastings for August, has been sent us by some friend of the cause. In it is an article from Israel's Messiah, entitled, "A Refuge for Persecuted Jews." From this article we quote the following: "Rabbi Isaac Leeser of Philadelphia, the translator of the Hebrew Bible, says that the prophecy in the eighteenth chapter of the prophet Isaiah, 'Ho to the land with spreading wings, which is beyond the rivers of Cush, that sendeth on the sea ambassadors, and in vessels of gomeh messengers over the face of the waters,' is a prophecy relating to America.

"Standing where the prophet stood and looking 'beyond the rivers of Cush,' or Ethiopia, the first land we strike is the western world. And this land—the very name of which was then unknown with its emblem, the eagle with 'spreading wings,' whose ambassadors are all sent by sea, in the swiftest ships, has opened to the sons of Israel such a refuge as no other land afforded for 1700 years. Into this land the teeming multitudes of earth have poured at a rate unexampled in history; and in this land was first enunciated the grand doctrine that all men were created free and equal; and that Jews as well as Gentiles had 'a right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.' Some other nations have since ceased to persecute the Jews, but the statute books of the United States of America have never been stained with laws against the exiled sons of Israel; and here for the first time since their dispersion was an asylum opened where the Jewish wanderer could find rest, justice and right."

A wonderful statement indeed.

The International Cyclopedia locates Ethiopia, the biblical Kush, as, "originally all the nations inhabiting the southern part of the globe, as known to the ancients; or rather, all men of dark-brown or black color, were called Ethiopians. Later this name was given more particularly to the inhabitants of the countries south of Libya (see general history) and Egypt, or the upper Nile, extending from 10 to 25 degrees north longitude, 45 to 58 degrees east longitude—the present Nubia, Sennaar, Kordofan, Abyssinia."

Notes on Fulfillment

The Prophet Isaiah saw a "land shadowing with wings" in a heavenly vision. The "land" was "beyond the rivers of Ethiopia," and the western hemisphere (North and South America) fully answers his description and location. Some leading journals have published maps of the Americas representing a great bird with spreading wings, and as the foremost nation of the western world is the United States with its emblem, the great American eagle, used officially on some of its money, and in other legal ways with opened or shadowing wings challenges the objector.

Very recently (1930) the Universal Airport at Burbank, California, displayed the first official government air mail flag. In the center of the flag is the globe, attached to it was two large wings of an eagle extending nearly the full length of the flag. Planes carrying this flag signify they are equipped to receive and dispatch mail, which is another reminder of that land with "shadowing wings."

The inspired prophet further describes the western hemisphere as the place where the "ensign" (the church) should be "lifted up" (organized), which was done in 1830, and "ambassadors" (missionaries) sent as "swift messengers" "upon the waters." This has been and is now being fulfilled by this church of Latter Day Saints.

Our interest in the above is increased when we note that Columbus in 1492 was ten long weeks crossing the ocean with three little sailing vessels, the largest only one hundred and sixty-three feet long. Over three hundred years later, 1819, the first combination steam and sailing vessel, the Savannah, crossed the Atlantic from United States to England in twenty-nine days. The all-steam ships soon followed. It was the Majestic, nine hundred and nineteen feet long, 52,226 gross tons, that crossed the Atlantic in 1891 in five days and eighteen hours, followed by the Lusitania in 1908 in four days and fifteen hours. Swift sailing indeed.

The "nation scattered and peeled," to whom "ambassadors" should eventually be sent is Israel, or the Jews, now gathering back to Palestine. As a people they have been "trodden down." I am pleased to say that God's gospel "trumpet"—the great restoration movement—has been sounded from heaven by angels and the blessed message is being proclaimed to the nations by ordained ministers of this church of Latter Day Saints. Have you heeded that message?

In the second verse (Isaiah 18) the statement, "A nation meted out and trodden down, whose land the rivers have spoiled," is better appreciated when we note that the words rivers are sometimes used to mean "peoples, nations and multitudes" (Revelation 17:15), and that spoiled can well be interpreted "spoil of them for a prey." (Esther 3:13.) Histories of New Testament times inform us that the Roman armies (A. D. 70) marched upon Jerusalem, conquered the Jews and took their wealth as a spoil. In the vision by Isaiah the destructive armies looked like rivers of men pouring in upon the capital city, Jerusalem.

A similar description of the United States soldiers was given by General John J. Pershing as they were seen marching from ships landing in France during the late world war. The General's published pictures of the swiftly moving men was accompanied with his heartfelt expression, "Great flood of American soldiers begin to pour overseas when Allies realize the danger of disaster." They did help to save the nations, also in a measure cooperated with other countries to give the Jews greater rights and privileges in their promised land.

Jerusalem and Palestine is the land the "rivers" (Roman armies) "spoiled," A. D. 70.

Courage and Prudence

By Evan A. Fry

"Captain, do you know where all the rocks are?" queried a passenger on a steamer on the Saint Lawrence River, in the bed of which are many dangerous places. "No," he replied, "but I know where the channel is."

Another story before we settle into the serious business of this sermon. In a certain far-away country many years ago, the king found that he had need of a chariot driver. The driver had to be an exceptionally good one, for the kingdom of this ruler was very mountainous, and the roads over which the king traveled were often laid along the edge of dizzy and perilous precipices where the slightest deviation in the course of a rapidly moving chariot would cause disaster. So the king decided to have a sort of trial or contest to see which one of the several applicants would make the best driver for the royal chariot.

Several aspiring candidates presented themselves to the king on the appointed day, and were taken out on one of the perilous mountain passes where there was barely room for the chariot to pass. One by one the men drove the spirited horses along the narrow pass, and each one, thinking to outdo the other in driving skill and daring, drove just as close to the edge as he could. One rolled the wheels within three inches of the brink; another within two inches; another drove so close to the edge that the cliff crumbled as the wheels passed, and only a miracle saved the chariot from plunging into the abyss below. All of the contestants seemed to vie with each other in driving just as fast and just as conspicuously as they could.

Finally along came an inconspicuous looking young fellow, who climbed into the chariot, and slowly and carefully set the horses in motion. Instead of dashing along the pass at break-neck speed as the others had done, this man moved slowly and cautiously; instead of hugging the outer edge of the pass, he hung close to the inner wall—just as far from the precipice as the width of the roadway would allow. The king was delighted and pleased to find such a sensible man among the candidates. He said that his royal personage was too precious to be trusted to the hands of such dare-devils and break-neck drivers as the other men had proved themselves to be. The first few men may have been very skillful, but there was really no need of their display of skill; their actions had not been provoked by any urgent emergency or necessity, but had been done in a spirit of sheer bravado. They were only trying to see how close they could come to danger without actually killing themselves and wrecking the king's chariot.

I have known a good many people who were just as foolish in their dabbling with sin and temptation as these ambitious chariot drivers were in unnecessarily risking their lives. I have known men—even ministers of the gospel—who could tell you by actual experience where every rock was in the channel, but who were totally ignorant of the deep water where the largest ships could safely navigate. Some people, and especially young people, seem to think that it is a mark of bravery and strength and manliness to be able to come within a hair's breadth of the brink whenever they have to pass along a narrow road of temptation where certain death lurks at the foot of the precipice. They deliberately court temptation; they seek it out and get as close to it as they can—sometimes until the very brink of the precipice walls begin to crumble; yet in sheer bravado and reckless foolhardiness they go on and on, each time getting closer and closer, until eventually they are dashed to death on the rocks below.

Some people count it a matter of pride that they know all the rocks in the channel—all the things to avoid. They could give you the address of every bootlegger and gambling joint in town; they could tell you all the lurid details about the worst of the theaters; they could serve as very efficient guides through the night clubs or the red light district; and they can tell you at any given moment just what every citizen of the town is doing which he shouldn't do. Of course they do not gather all of this information for their own personal use. Oh, no! They want it merely so that they can tell other people what to avoid. They go to the worst show they can find advertised, and then start a crusade to keep everyone else away from it. They prowl around in all sorts of places where no decent, self-respecting Christian should ever be caught, just so that they can warn other people to stay away from such places. Even ministers are not above making some publicity for themselves by making the rounds of the wicked end of town occasionally, just so that they can report to their congregations and to the newspapers and let everyone know just how bad the things are which they should avoid.

The only man who is worthy to be trusted, either with the safety and well-being of his own property, or of others' property, is the man who doesn't care where the rocks are so long as he knows the deep channel and sticks to it; the man who doesn't care how narrow the road is so long as he can stick to the side farthest away from the precipice. The only man whose soul is safe is the man who knows the deep channel where the water runs swiftly and freely, and where his soul has abundant room. The only man whose soul is safe is he who keeps his chariot always well over to the safe side of the road away from the precipice. I shall undoubtedly find myself hard pressed enough to keep free from sin even when I try to steer the straight and deep channel, or keep to the safe side of the road. Emergencies and unforeseen dangers will arise, which will test my skill and my strength and courage well enough, without my deliberately courting danger, or trying to see how close I can come to it without actually killing myself.

As long as we spend most or all of our time looking for rocks in the channel, or testing our skill in freak stunt driving, we can be very sure that we shall remain for ever ignorant of the freedom of the channel where the water is abundant and deep; we shall be for ever ignorant of the straight and amply wide road where sensible people are pressing onward in their chariots. Shall we not always be sure of our safety by shunning danger, rather than courting it on any pretext; by steering for the deep channel and for the wide road where no harm can befall, and no accident destroy? Only a fool takes chances with sin; and for him who takes chances and loses, the wage is death.

Facing the Future

By R. R. R.

Yesterday, with prosperity on every side, rushed with the acquiring and the spending of wealth, certain of the future, busy becoming "radio-conscious," "auto-conscious," "picture show-conscious," busy in being made aware of the many, many luxuries that were the products of the era, too busy to become self-conscious, no one gave much thought to the formation of character or to man's ultimate destination. The spiritual was submerged in the material, the illusory promises of wealth made all else seem valueless, and introspection became an almost forgotten term.

Today the setting is changed. Gold, luxury, and self-complacency have given way to hunger and suffering. One is acutely aware of the short-lived qualities of that which yesterday seemed permanent. There were many who never gave a thought to the morrow, and prepared nothing for a rainy day, but sang a frolicsome song in the sunshine with no thought of a possible winter. Many are suffering from just such actions, and to them deprivation seems doubly difficult after having experienced for a time comparative ease and comfort. Times are bad now for some, but I wonder if the reports we receive are not exaggerated to some extent. There was never a time when we were without a certain amount of unemployment, and there was never a time when there were not some who were more fortunate than others in the possession of worldly goods. But we should remember that prosperity and wealth are at best transitory, and that happiness is not necessarily incident to material gain.

This being true, is not now the time for introspection? Would it not be well for each Latter Day Saint in his own sphere to sort the real from the unreal, to change his course from the pursuit of illusions to the search for truths? Then whether or not the trend of the human race will be upward toward a higher plane, with its resulting benefits to each individual, shall depend upon the collective results of our individual self-examinations and determinations. Upon each of us this responsibility rests. It is a time when cooperation is really demanded, it is a time when peacefully pulling together is imperative to bring about the solution of the economic problems of the day.

To discover and to do what needs to be done at this time will require both foresight and courage. These two qualities are necessary in our struggle for a livelihood. In looking at the status of general business conditions it is evident to even the most casual observer that American business has undergone very definite changes in its structure since 1929. During boom times there was no necessity for extreme efficiency in management, but changing conditions have corrected that situation and the present-day business man must watch his methods, products, and plans with utmost care.

It would seem that the deflation is almost accomplished and that the only direction for business is upward, therefore I believe that courage has more to do with the general attitude than any other one factor. There is no doubt about it, if the American people will apply themselves to the problems of today and use the same foresight that the pioneers used who faced the west in covered wagons with the hope of garnering wealth from the untamed wilderness that now supports one hundred and twenty-five million people, our biggest problem is solved. There should be no uncertainty in the minds of our people as to our final outcome. Cycles come and go, but life and civilization go on to new and higher levels of progress. Is it not logical, therefore, that the individual activities identified with commerce, trade, manufacture, finance, demand, and distribution should keep pace with the uninterrupted upward trend toward higher civilization and an ever-improving scale of living?

The church is first of all spiritual and must give attention to spiritual things. But it cannot function without organization, which requires material support. To lose its spirituality, or to abandon organization would be equally fatal. Both spirit and finance are needed for building the kingdom of God.

Letters to the Editor

In this department we are glad to receive and publish letters of interest to our readers.

Feels Faith That the Church Will Succeed

To the Herald:

When the council meeting of April had closed and the financial report was published in the Herald, I felt almost discouraged and wondered if the church was going on the rocks and be wrecked. But one night I had a dream that gave me hope and assurance. I told it in prayer meeting at the Stone Church.

As I was sitting reading the Ensign the thought came to me that the dream might be encouraging to some one who is in doubt of the church ever getting out of debt. I am going to tell the dream and the interpretation.

I saw the wall of a large building partly completed; the front was up as high as specified by the owner, also the two sides for about two thirds of the way, but the inspector came and condemned a part of the wall as it was laid with inferior material and had to be torn down and hauled away. I saw some men tearing it down while others were loading the stones and old mortar into a truck. I was helping to load. When we got the truck full and the driver got in to start the engine he found we had no gas, and the filling station was a long way off. Then I asked, "What are we going to do?" A large man said, "I'll tell you what we will do, I will pull and you push and we will get out of here." So we got a rope and fastened the two ends to the front end of the truck, put the loop of the rope around the back of his neck and then under his arms and he said, "I will pull and you push and we will get this stuff out of here." This we did, but we soon came to a ditch and had to stop. I said, "Now what are we going to do?" He said, "I'll tell you, let us get the truck going fast and when we get to the ditch I will hold up the front end until it is over then you hold up the back end and we will get over." We did so and we got over all right. We had to cross two more then we came to the highway, but we had a long way to go and it was up grade to the filling station, but as we all pulled or pushed we arrived there and I looked for a place to get a drink. I saw a pump and went to it. There I saw several fine fish lying in the trough panting for water. I pumped some water on them and they became very lively. I awoke and wondered if the dream had any meaning; then the interpretation came to me.

We, the church, have made a mistake. This is admitted by all. The inferior material in the wall

OF GENERAL INTEREST

Washington Had Vision of Trials Facing Nation

(From The National Tribune: Washington, District of Columbia, Thursday, August 13, 1931.)

For many years copies of Washington's Vision at Valley Forge as related by one Wesley Bradshaw, told to him by Anthony Sherman, have been in existence. The earliest publication was in 1859.

The last time I ever saw Anthony Sherman was on the Fourth of July, 1859, in Independence Square. He was then ninety-nine years old, and becoming very feeble. But though so old, his dimming eyes rekindled as he gazed upon Independence Hall, which he had come to look upon once more before he was gathered home.

"Let us go into the hall," he said. "I want to tell you an incident of Washington's life—one which no one alone knows of except myself; and, if you live, you will before long see it verified. Mark the prediction you will see it verified.

"From the opening of the Revolution we experienced all phases of fortune, now good and now ill, one time victorious, and another conquered. The darkest period we had, I think, was when Washington, after several reverses, retreated to Valley Forge, where he resolved to pass the winter of '77. Ah! I have often seen the tears coursing down our dear old commander's careworn cheeks as he would be conversing with a confidential officer about the is the mistakes in our building program, spiritual and temporal. The loading in the truck is getting rid of the debt. Having no gasoline means we are left to our own resources.

---

The three ditches are three years, then we will get on the road to recovery, but it will be an uphill pull. The well of water is the gospel, the pump is the power of God, the fish are the people who are famishing for the word of God. The filling station is the Spirit of God. Now, if we all pull and push we will be on the up grade, and the Spirit of God will be poured on his people, and we will soon be in a position to send missionaries into all the world. The load is great and we must be pullers or pushers and not drag on behind. If we will do what God wants us to do it won't be so many years before we will see the church out of debt.

We have not only gone after the fashion of the world, but we have brought the world into the church. May God help us to vision the church clearly.

C. L. MUNRO.

condition of his poor soldiers. You have doubtless heard the story of Washington going to the thicket to pray. Well, it was not only true, but he used often to pray in secret for aid and comfort from God, the interposition of whose Divine Providence brought us safely through those dark days of tribulation. One day, I remember it well, when the chilly winds whistled through the leafless trees, though the sky was cloudless and the sun shone brightly, he remained in his quarters nearly all the afternoon alone. When he came out I noticed that his face was a shade paler than usual, and there seemed to be something on his mind of more than ordinary importance. Returning just after dusk, he dispatched an orderly to the quarters of the officer I mention who was presently in attendance. After a preliminary conversation of about a half hour, Washington, gazing upon his companion with that strange look of dignity which he alone could command, said to the latter:

The following is Anthony Sherman's account of Washington's words, as related to Wesley Bradshaw.

"I do not know whether it is owing to the anxiety of my mind, or what, but this afternoon as I was sitting at this very table engaged in preparing a dispatch, something in the apartment seemed to disturb me. Looking up, I beheld standing opposite to me a singularly beautiful female. So astonished was I, for I had given strict orders not to be disturbed, that it was some moments before I found language to inquire the cause of her presence. A second, a third, and even a fourth time, did I repeat my question, but received no answer from my mysterious visitor except a slight raising of the eyes. By this time I felt strange sensations spreading through me. I would have risen, but the riveted gaze of the being before me rendered volition impossible. I essayed once more to address her, but my tongue had become powerless. Even thought itself suddenly became paralyzed. A new influence, mysterious, potent, irresistible, took possession of me. All I could do was to gaze steadily, vacantly, at my unknown visitant. Gradually the surrounding atmosphere seemed as though becoming filled with sensations, and grew luminous. Everything about me seemed to rarify, the mysterious visitor herself becoming more airy, and yet more distinct to my sight than before. I now began to feel as one dying, or rather to experience the sensations which I have sometimes imagined accompany dissolution. I did not think, I did not reason, I did not move; all were alike impossible. I was conscious only of gazing fixedly, vacantly, at my companion.

"Presently I heard a voice saying, 'Son of the Republic, look and learn,' while at the same time my visitor extended her arm eastwardly. I now beheld a heavy white vapor at some distance, rising fold upon fold. This gradually dissipated, and I looked upon a strange scene. Before me lay spread out in one vast plain all the countries of the world, Europe, Asia, Africa, and America. I saw rolling and tossing between Europe and America the billows of the Atlantic, and between Asia and America lay the Pacific. 'Son of the Republic,' said the same mysterious voice as before, 'look and learn.' At that moment I beheld a dark, shadowy being like an angel standing or rather floating in mid-air between Europe and America. Dipping water out of the ocean in the hollow of each hand, he sprinkled some upon America with his right hand, while with his left hand he cast some on Europe. Immediately a dark cloud raised from these countries, and joined in mid-ocean. For a while it remained stationary and then moved slowly westward, until it enveloped America in its murky folds. Sharp flashes of lightning gleamed through it at intervals, and I heard the smothered groans and cries of the American people. A second time the angel dipped water from the ocean and sprinkled it as before. The dark cloud was then drawn back to the ocean, in whose heaving billows it sank from view. A third time I heard the mysterious voice saying, 'Son of the Republic, the end of the century cometh, look and learn.'

Specter From Africa

"At this the dark, shadowy angel turned his face southward, and from Africa I saw an ill-omened specter approach our land. It flitted slowly and heavily over every town and city of the latter. The inhabitants presently set themselves in battle array against each other. As I continued looking, I saw a bright angel, on whose brow rested a crown of light on which was traced the word Union, bearing the American flag, which he placed between the divided nation, and said, 'Remember ye are brethren.' Instantly the inhabitants, casting from them their weapons, became friends once more, and united around the National Standard. And again I heard the mysterious voice say, 'Son of the Republic, look and learn.' At this the dark, shadowy angel placed a trumpet to his mouth and blew three distinct blasts; and taking water from the ocean, he sprinkled it upon Europe, Asia, and Africa. Then my eyes beheld a fearful scene: From each of these countries arose thick, black clouds that were soon joined into one. And throughout this mass there gleamed a dark-red light by which I saw hordes of armed men, who moved with the cloud, marching by land and sailing by sea to America, which country was enveloped in the volume of the cloud. And I dimly saw these vast armies devastate the whole country and burn the villages, towns, and cities that I had beheld springing up. As my ears listened to the thundering of the cannon, clashing of swords, and shouts and cries of millions in mortal combat, I again heard the mysterious voice saying, 'Son of the Republic, look and learn.' When the voice had ceased, the dark, shadowy angel placed his trumpet once more to his mouth and blew a long and fearful blast.

"Instantly a light as if a thousand suns shone down from above me, and pierced and broke into fragments the dark cloud which enveloped America. At the same moment the angel upon whose head still shone the word Union, and who bore our national flag in one hand and a sword in the other, descended from heaven attended by legions of bright spirits. These immediately joined the inhabitants of America, who, I perceived, were well-nigh overcome, but who, immediately taking courage again, closed up their broken ranks and renewed the battle. Again amid the fearful noise of the conflict, I heard the mysterious voice saying, 'Son of the Republic, look and learn.' As the voice ceased, the shadowy angel for the last time dipped water from the ocean and sprinkled it upon America. Instantly the dark cloud rolled back, together with the armies it had brought, leaving the inhabitants of the land victorious.

Cities Springing Up

"Then once more I beheld villages, towns, and cities springing up where they had been before, while the bright angel, planting the azure standard he had brought into the midst of them, cried with a loud voice: 'While the stars remain and the heavens send down dew upon the earth, so long shall the Republic last.' And taking from his brow the crown on which was blazoned the word Union, he placed it upon the standard while the people, kneeling down, said, 'Amen.'

"The scene instantly began to fade and dissolve, and I at last saw nothing but the rising, curling vapor I at first beheld. This also disappearing, I found myself once more gazing upon my mysterious visitors, who, in the same voice I had heard before, said, 'Son of the Republic, what you have seen is thus interpreted: Three great perils will come upon the Republic. The most fearful is the second, passing which the whole world united shall not prevail against her. Let every child of the Republic learn to live for his God, his land and union.' With these words the vision vanished, and I started from my seat and felt that I had seen a vision wherein had been shown me the birth, progress, and destiny of the United States."

Do You Know These People?

The Department of Statistics Asks Aid in Locating Lost Members

To the Editors and Readers of the Saints' Herald,
Greetings:

In the list which follows are the names of persons who have been reported unknown by the secretary of the Kansas City Stake. A diligent effort has been made by the stake officers and by this department to locate these persons, with a marked degree of success in many cases, but after everything has been done along available lines, the following names remain on the list.

We are therefore appealing to the readers of the Herald, asking them to go over the list carefully, and if they can give us any information about any of these names that will assist us in bringing the records up to date, to send the same to the Department of Statistics, The Auditorium, Independence, Missouri. If the complete present address can not be given, suggestions as to where the same may be obtained will be appreciated. This list was started in the Herald for September 30, and will continue in subsequent issues until completed.

Yours sincerely,

DEPARTMENT OF STATISTICS,

By C. L. OLSON.

Name	Year of Birth	Year of Baptism	Places Where Once Enrolled
Tenison, James H.	1893	1902	Armstrong, Kansas.
Tenison, Lucy	1871	1916	Saint Joseph, Missouri; Armstrong, Kansas.
Tenison, Myrtle	1895	1903	Armstrong, Kansas.
Tennis, Opal Alberta	1911	1920	Independence, Missouri; Kansas City.
Tennis, Webster Harold	1908	1920	Independence, Missouri; Kansas City.
Thomas, Margaret	1899	1910	Ward, Iowa; Chariton, Iowa; Kansas City.
Thomas, Mary Maude	1891	1899	Lucas, Iowa; Ward, Iowa; Chariton, Iowa; Kansas City.
Thompson, Adelia	1862	1887	Armstrong, Kansas.
Thompson, Adelia T.	1867	1893	Armstrong, Kansas.
Thompson, Hazel Minnie	1889	1926	Kansas City.
Thompson, Jessie M.	1835	1892	Independence, Missouri; Armstrong, Kansas.
Thraillkill, Lula M. (Bell)	1885	1897	Pawnee, Missouri; Oland, Missouri; Kansas City.
Tibbels, Harris S.	1860	1894	Council Bluffs, Iowa; First Kansas City.
Tindall, Donald	1900	1920	Independence, Missouri; Kansas City.
Tinnall, Anna Belle	1887	1917	Armstrong, Kansas; First Kansas City.
Toft, Lawrence H. B.	1877	1888	Armstrong, Kansas.
Toft, Mary E.	1840	1886	Armstrong, Kansas.
Totten, Martha J.	1843	1886	Armstrong, Kansas.
Townsley, Arthur W.	1899	1909	Independence, Missouri; Kansas City.
Traver, Jasper	1853	1895	Chelsea Park, Kansas.
Traver, Olive N.	1863	1895	Chelsea Park, Kansas.
Tribble, Iva M.	1882	1902	First Kansas City, Missouri.
Trieb, Cornelius H.	1895	1916	Wichita, Kansas; Kansas City.
Trieb, Lucy G. (Hobeck)	1896	1915	Wichita, Kansas; Kansas City.
Trotter, Minnie Ellen	1887	1920	Cameron, Missouri; Kansas City.
Troupe, Harry A.	1849	1909	Argentine, Kansas.
Trout, Roy	1894	1914	Malvern Hill, Kansas.
Tucker, John	1873	1894	Freesoil, Michigan; Kansas City.
Tuohy, Clara M. (Pitt)	1896	1905	Independence, Missouri; Kansas City.
Turner, Daisy Marie	1897	1910	Argentine, Kansas.
Turner, Elbert	1886	1900	Saint Joseph, Missouri; Kansas City.
Turpen, William Thomas	1879	1917	Argentine, Kansas; Kansas City.
Uish, Elmer Eugene	1900	1917	Armstrong, Kansas.
Uish, Ida M.	1889	1914	Saint Joseph, Missouri; Kansas City.
Uishafee, David	1874	1922	Kansas City.
Uishafee, Everett Clyde	1900	1923	Kansas City.
Uishafee, Nellie Fern	1911	1922	Kansas City.
Underwood, Belle Lorena	1857	1912	Mount Washington, Missouri.
Underwood, Jessie	1886	1908	First Kansas City.
Underwood, Joseph G.	1907	1917	Fourth Kansas City.
VanDeventer, Mary	1809	1894	Armstrong, Kansas.
Van Marter, Alice (Pooler)	1880	1892	First Kansas City, Missouri.
Van Voast, Albert	1839	1894	Armstrong, Kansas.
Van Voast, Susan	1844	1894	Armstrong, Kansas.
Vassar, Maggie E.	1889	1906	First and Second Kansas City.
Vassar, Mary Ellen	1881	1918	First Kansas City.
Vassar, Samuel Oliver	1875	1918	First Kansas City.
Vestol, William Page	1885	1914	Quindaro, Kansas.
Vickery, Hattie	1885	1909	Independence, Missouri; Kansas City.
Vollmer, Elizabeth	1884	1912	Second Kansas City, Missouri.
Vollmer, Frank H.	1880	1912	Second Kansas City, Missouri.
Vose, Jessie Lee (Banks)	1900	1908	Knobnoster, Missouri; Kansas City.
Wait, Cledia Abigail	1883	1926	Kansas City, Missouri.
Walden, Lewis Ernest	1880	1927	Kansas City, Missouri.
Walker, Harry W.	1881	1902	Second Kansas City.
Walker, Hattie V. (McVay)	1895	1906	Joplin, Missouri; Kansas City.
Wallace, Alice	1863	1898	Armstrong, Kansas.
Wallace, Jessie	1888	1913	Armstrong, Kansas.
Wallo, Mary Rebecca (Banks)	1893	1904	Whearso, Missouri; Linn, Missouri; Knobnoster, Missouri; Kansas City.
Wanamaker, Emma F. (McCarty)	1870	1887	Holden, Missouri; Kansas City.
Ward, Eva M. (McFee)	1882	1901	Detroit, Michigan; Independence, Missouri; Kansas City.
Waring, Gerald Ambrose	1903	1912	First Kansas City.
Warnkey, Lester E.	1880	1889	Independence, Missouri; Kansas City.
Warren, Eva May (Smith)	1906	1916	Independence, Missouri; Kansas City.
Watson, Charles W.	1901	1912	Quindaro, Kansas.
Waygood, Maria (Tucker)	1836	1889	Armstrong, Kansas.
Waymer, Sarah	1849	1911	Quindaro, Kansas.
Weamer, Lewis LeRoy	1879	1913	Saint Joseph, Missouri; Kansas City.
Webb, Mary E. (Layland)	1889	1903	Kansas City, Missouri.
Weber, Alice W. (Rayborn)	1900	1911	Quindaro, Kansas; Chelsea Park, Kansas.
Weber, Herbert	1907	1918	Kansas City.

Name	Year of Birth	Year of Baptism	Places Where Once Enrolled
Wedlock, Loverne	1916	1925	Kansas City.
Weeks, Wilma M. (Perry)	1903	1918	Armstrong, Kansas.
Weise, George H.	1903	1914	First Independence, Missouri; Kansas City.
Welch, Maudie	1878	1921	Kansas City.
Wendell, Jessie Eunice	1886	1911	Chelsea Park, Kansas.
West, Lillie Bessie	1903	1916	Alma, Missouri; Kansas City.
Wey, Ethel May	1887	1921	Kansas City.
Wheeldon, Ethel May	1907	1919	Post Oak, Missouri; Kansas City.
Wheeler, Frank J., Sr.	1880	1916	Kansas City.
Wheeler, Frank J., Jr.	1907	1916	Kansas City.
Wheeler, M. I. (Sister)	1889	1916	Kansas City.
Whisler, Alma	1869	1921	Kansas City.
Whitaker, Jacob S., Jr.	1877	1898	Wheatville, Wisconsin; Saint Joseph, Missouri; Independence, Kansas City, Missouri.
White, Lily May	1857	1924	Kansas City.
Wilhelm, Lista (Truner)	1890	1903	Argentine, Kansas.
Willion, William Harry	1916	1924	Kansas City.
Willis, Delia	1900	1926	Kansas City.
Wilson, Ada Belle	1880	1920	Kansas City.
Wilson, Edith N.	1904	1914	Quindaro, Kansas.
Wilson, Mary (Vickrey)	1884	1894	Independence, Missouri; Kansas City.
Wilson, Ray A.	1902	1910	First Kansas City.
Wilson, Robert Orville	1911	1919	Kansas City.
Wilson, William I.	1911	1921	Kansas City.
Winn, Clarence W.	1907	1924	Kansas City.
Winn, David Scott	1903	1914	Mount Washington, Missouri.
Winn, James Harry	1880	1892	Independence, Missouri; First and Second Kansas City.
Wiseman, Hannah J.	1897	1915	Quindaro, Kansas.
Wiseman, Jessie	1893	1915	Quindaro, Kansas.
Wisner, Otto B.	1868	1893	Armstrong, Kansas.
Woffard, Bertha B.	1883	1904	Kansas City.
Wood, Janet I.	1891	1901	Kansas City.
Wood, Mary Elizabeth	1908	1919	Kansas City.
Wooden, Charles N.	1866	1896	Chelsea Park, Kansas; First Kansas City.
Woodward, Harold Arthur	1915	1924	Kansas City.
Workman, Margaret (Herzing)	1863	1874	Fanning, Kansas; Kansas City.
Wright, Alfred D.	1884	1894	Lucas, Iowa; Chariton, Iowa; Kansas City.
Wright, George A.	1895	1909	Canadian Center, Oklahoma; Seiling, Oklahoma; Bennington Heights, Missouri; Nowata, Oklahoma; Kansas City.
Wright, John William	1887	1925	Kansas City.
Wright, Joseph	1914	1928	Kansas City.
Wright, Madie Augusta	1890	1925	Kansas City.
Wyatt, Floyd Ray	1899	1910	Webb City, Missouri; Purcell, Missouri; Independence, Missouri; Joplin, Missouri; Kansas City.
Wybrow, Ada S.	1875	1904	Chelsea Park, Kansas; Saint Joseph, Missouri; Atchison, Kansas; Grand View, Kansas; Armstrong, Kansas.
Yager, Ethel P.	1893	1905	Independence, Missouri; Kansas City.
Yoast, Annie (Perry)	1896	1908	Bevier, Missouri; Kansas City.
Young, Lillian Elva	1910	1927	Kansas City.
Zeigler, Charles	1854	1895	Armstrong, Kansas.
Zimmerman, Ival Gertrude (Hawkins)	1897	1905	Chelsea Park, Kansas; Oakdale, Missouri; Armstrong, Kansas; Quindaro, Kansas.

A Cause for Satire

They call it a victory. But looks to us like an acknowledgement of defeat. We do not know from evidence that all of the charges against the ubiquitous Mr. Al Capone are true. He himself says that he is charged with responsibility for everything but the Chicago fire. But most of the reports we read seem to indicate that Mr. Capone's great wealth was not acquired with entire innocence. Rum runner, gangster, racketeer, vice lord, gambling chieftan, organizer of wholesale murders—these are some of the commoner names that are applied to him. Mr. Capone is brought ostentatiously to court. This time it is not a local court where he can go into collusion with a district attorney, abduct witnesses, intimidate a judge, or buy off a jury. It is a Federal court which has great power within a limited jurisdiction. Mr. Capone is convicted—but what of? Of evading his income taxes. It seems that our laws and courts are too clumsy and inefficient to catch him for his worst crimes.

Here is such material as that great satirist, Swift, would have used for Gulliver's Travels, either to illustrate the insanity of those diminutive fools, the Lilliputians, or the stupidity of the giants of Brobdingnag. He came nearest to describing the gangster type in his Yahoos, which Gulliver encountered in another voyage.

We are too complacent with our material advancement, and too indifferent about our social sins. We have too many laws and too lax administration. Our court procedure is antiquated and slow, tying the hands of the judge with red tape and providing clever but unscrupulous lawyers with all kinds of opportunity to delay and thwart the administration of justice for their clients. While these conditions exist loyal citizens must grieve and be ashamed for their country, and regard our society as being yet but incompletely civilized.

L. L.

All values rest eventually upon the intangible attributes of personality. All our material wealth—money and business, manufacture and agriculture—rests upon the almost mythical thing we call credit, which is and must ever be a sanction that is only a by-product of character.

NEWS OF CHURCH AND HOME

Address all news and letters to Editors of the Herald, Box 237, Independence, Missouri. Correspondents are requested to make their letters brief. The Editors reserve the right, on account of space limitations, to shorten all letters as circumstances require.

Cherokee, Iowa

The October sacrament service was postponed one week in order that the priesthood might attend a meeting called by the district president at Woodbine, Iowa. At that time Apostle John F. Garver told of the last meeting of the Bishopric and the course decided upon that the church might meet its obligations. We were pleased to have the men of the priesthood vote to support Elder E. Y. Hunker and family in this district. All Cherokee's priesthood were present, and they report a fine meeting.

Brother Hunker spent a week in this branch, holding services each night. He is a faithful, earnest worker whom we trust we shall be able to keep in this district. Always he finds a welcome in Cherokee.

Brother E. L. Edwards, of Pomeroy and District President Gerald Gunsolley each paid us a visit and left words of encouragement and cheer. Brother Gunsolley was here for rally day and gave two excellent talks in the interests of church finances. Visitors were present from a number of near-by towns.

Brother Charles White and family have moved to Shendoah. Also Brother E. M. Chiles and family are spending a year with their son, Clyde, in Spokane, Washington. We miss these Saints but know that they will assist in the work wherever they are located.

Two babies were blessed at the sacrament service, and the emblems were taken to two sick sisters, Sister Mary Smith, who was at the point of death, was administered to and is at present much improved. We hope for her recovery, but know that God knows what is best.

There is a noticeable improvement in the spirit of our services. More interest is being taken in all departments. The ministry have been giving splendid sermons, and all the Saints are encouraged to help carry the gospel work forward.

Brother Guy Haynes, who suffered a light stroke last winter and was unable to work for some time, has recovered and accepted a position at Waterloo, Iowa, where he will no doubt be a valuable worker. We miss him.

Brother E. S. West, of Storm Lake, passed away October 25. The funeral was held in the Baptist Church at that place, Brother A. R. Crippen preaching the sermon.

Brother J. T. Spence preached the funeral sermon of John W. Crippen, a cousin of Pastor A. R. Crippen. He was assisted by the Reverend Coonradt, of the Christian Church, where the services were held.

Sister Bernadine Kudrie has gone to Chicago, where she is taking a course in welfare work.

The local work will move forward for we have enough faithful ones to keep up the departments and hold all services. Because those moving away have left vacant offices and in order to insure progress in the work and to create more interest, a few changes will occur in official personnel at the annual election which will be held in the near future.

Z. Z. Renfro Conducts Missionary Series

Alva, Oklahoma, November 4.—Elder Z. Z. Renfro has just closed a two weeks meeting. He preached some wonderful sermons. We were pleased to have a song director, Sister Edith Skinner, and the song services were splendid. Saints from surrounding towns came often and helped to make the meetings successful.

Three people were baptized and a baby blessed. An inspiring spirit reigned over the service of confirmation.

Alva Saints have been greatly strengthened and encouraged by these meetings, to carry on the work. They look forward to the return of Brother Renfro.

Dallas, Texas

November 3.—Saints of Dallas Branch deem themselves well blessed of God. Almost all have employment at this time when the unemployment problem grows so serious. They are working at steady or temporary jobs sufficient to supply their wants. Very few of our number seem to be in real need. Adversity has, however, served to bring God's people closer together and closer to him.

There has been a marked increase in attendance of church services, especially the Wednesday evening meeting. The latter has more than doubled its former number.

Brother W. R. Standifer baptized his granddaughter, Louise Standifer, August 2; also John Elam, husband of Sister Martha Elam, and father of Sister Zella Standifer.

The women's department has been very busy during the late summer and fall. One rummage sale was held. There have been several days of quilting, and minor repairs have been made on the church building through the efforts of the department.

Dallas has been selected as the location for the next district conference, to be held in February. The branch welcomes the opportunity of having the members of the district as guests during the conference period. We hope each one will feel repaid for meeting with us.

Brother and Sister Forrest Wilson announce the birth of a daughter, whom they have named Shirley Rae, July 7.

Just a month ago Brother H. H. Davenport underwent an operation for appendicitis and within two weeks was again attending services at the church. He believes that his rapid recovery was brought about by the prayers of the Saints in his behalf. There were several patients at the hospital who underwent similar operations at the same time, suffered greatly, and were not in physical condition to leave the hospital at the time he left.

This branch had the pleasure of a visit from Missionary George H. Wixom, of California, early in September. He was here ten days, preaching each night at the church to large audiences. Many of the children expressed interest in Brother Wixom's clearly and simply stated thoughts. Brother Wixom was in this district during the absence of the regular missionary, Brother J. W. A. Bailey, who was ill at his home.

The regular annual election of officers occurred the last Sunday in September. W. R. Standifer was chosen pastor; Sister Chattie Everett, director of religious education; Sister Mary Davenport, director of music; Hal Davenport, secretary; J. E. Nicoll, treasurer; Beth Bleil, correspondent.

September 27 was Rally Day. Sister Everett had charge of the program, and a health play was given by the primary and junior departments of the church school. Following the 11 o'clock service, a basket dinner was had at Reverchon Park.

Three educational sermons by Brother Herbert Bleil have been grouped under the subject "How to Use Salesmanship in Putting Our Religion Over to Nonmembers."

Sister Frank Wilson and Sister Herbert Bleil entertained with a masquerade Halloween party at the home of Brother and Sister Bleil, October 31. Guests spent the evening playing games and telling "spook" stories.

The young people's department is planning to sell Christmas cards to raise funds for the needs of the church. We wish them success in their undertaking. Sister Frank Wilson is in charge of their activities, having been elected as leader by them for the year.

Independence

Independence made adequate preparations for the sacrifice period which opened Monday. The women, cooperating with the priesthood, responded to the call of a committee and assembled in a general meeting of the mothers and daughters of Independence and Atherton, Saturday afternoon. A large and representative crowd was present.

The purpose of the meeting was to discuss ways of sacrificing and cutting down expenses in the home in order that each family might be able to pay its tithing and increase its offerings to the church, this to be done in accordance with the program of the Bishopric. Practical suggestions along these lines were submitted in talks by Mrs. G. G. Lewis, leader of women in Independence, Mrs. C. C. Koehler, and Mrs. D. R. Hughes, of Atherton. In the discussion period of the meeting not only the women but the young girls suggested ways in which individuals and families can economize. The women hope to decrease the church debt by materially increasing the church income.

Pastor John F. Sheehy was in charge of the service, and Bishop G. Leslie DeLapp was present to commend and encourage. The committee which made arrangements for this meeting is composed of Mrs. T. J. Watkins, Mrs. C. C. Koehler, Mrs. Fred O. Wilkinson, Mrs. D. S. McNamara, Mrs. F. R. Schafer, and Mrs. G. G. Lewis.

Eight volley ball teams represent the athletic arm of the young people's division in seven congregations in Independence. They compose the Auditorium Volley Ball League, now organized for the winter. Every Thursday night at the Auditorium, each team plays a set of games. Two games begin at 8 o'clock and two at 9. All volley ball fans and sports lovers are supporting their teams with their presence and enthusiasm.

The young people also are contemplating a dramatic contest.

More than fifty Girl Scouts of Independence were present at their district Court of Awards, held in Kansas City, Saturday afternoon. Thirty-four of the girls received ranks and badges of merit and honor. These scouts come from Troops 14, 33, 37, and 46 of the Stone Church, Troops 10 and 49, of Walnut Park. Four of the nine Liberty Street girls who have passed their tenderfoot tests but are not yet registered scouts, made the trip. Nine local officers were in charge of the excursion.

Twenty-nine Independence Scouts received Second Class rank in scouthood, and five earned merit badges. The church is happy to see its girls learning practical homecraft and phases of out-door life, nature, and the many other things scouting offers.

Stone Church

The junior department of the Stone Church school which for the last several years has met at the Campus, is now housed in the Stone Church, sharing with the intermediate department the main floor of the building. Adult classes assemble in the gallery. In the lower auditorium the primary classes meet, and in the dining hall the beginners. The spirit of cooperation and sharing well together has marked the work of officers and members in effecting this change.

Following the close of the church school session, juniors and primaries held combined 11 o'clock services in the lower room. In charge of these services are Elder Will Bolinger, junior pastor, and Mrs. Ray Moler and Miss Ruby Williamson, superintendents respectively of the junior and primary departments.

"God prepares far in advance for conditions which are to exist and for the achievements his people are to make," said Bishop L. F. P. Curry in his Sunday morning sermon. "He reveals his will to his servants the prophets, and prepares the minds and hearts of his people."

Clearly the speaker presented a panoramic picture of the church in latter days. Men, in the range of human experiences, pass from peak to peak. The church has passed the peak of Restoration, and now we are being prepared for the revelment of a new spiritual peak. Like Christ, in order that we shall be fully prepared for the work ahead, we must spend our forty days in the wilderness—we must think, we must sacrifice, we must commune with God, that we may know his will and do it. The new peak of experience, which is being unveiled as we are worthy to look upon it, is the peak of the establishment of God's work in the world. God has long prepared us for it and is now focussing our minds on it in such a way that we shall be able to ascend it.

In Independence the second Sunday of the month is designated as Bishop's Sunday, and this service was especially planned to open the two months' sacrifice period which is being observed by the church all over the world.

The musical program, broadcast as usual over KMBC, consisted of two numbers by the Stone Church Choir led by Paul N. Craig, "The Lord Is Mindful of His Own," and "Glorious Is Thy Name." Robert Miller played the organ. Miss Ina Hattey, soprano, sang a pleasing solo. Pastor John F. Sheehy was in charge of the program, assisted by Elder Stanley Kelley.

An impressive service for the blessing of babies was conducted by Pastor John F. Sheehy at the Stone Church at half past two Sunday. Organ voluntaries, played by Mrs. T. A. Beck, added to the beauty of the ceremony when seven young children were placed in the hands of the elders for blessing. Elder C. Ed. Miller offered the invocation.

After the following babies were blessed: William Higdon, Winifred McCall Higdon, Zenos Francis Booker, Alice June Lewis, Robert Vincent Krahl, Wallace Weir, and Thomas Merle Keyton, the parents were called to the front and a prayer offered for their blessing and guidance. The scripture story of Christ blessing little children was told by Pastor Sheehy. Assisting in the ordinance of blessing were Elders George Mesley, U. W. Greene, G. G. Lewis, C. Ed. Miller, Elbert A. Smith, and Walter Self.

Bishop C. J. Hunt used the evening hour to effectively present to the Saints aspects of loyalty, church support, and tithing. Brother Hunt plans soon to return to his mission in Wisconsin. His good cheer has helped the people of Independence during his short visit at home.

A trio composed of Irene and Mildred Shupe and Evelyn Shupe Flournoy sang "Day Is Dying in the West" and "The Lord My Shepherd Is." Bishop G. W. Eastwood presided over the service, assisted by Elder Will Bolinger.

A simple wedding ceremony marked the marriage of Miss Beulah Mae Teeter to Mr. Gilbert A. Meinershagen, of Higginsville, Missouri, Sunday night. The wedding occurred at the home of the parents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Teeter, of Independence, Elder George Lewis officiating. The bridal pair were attended by Miss Gladys Teeter, sister of the bride, and Mr. Ralph Meinershagen, brother of the bridegroom. After a week's wedding trip to Kansas, Mr. and Mrs. Meinershagen will be at home in Higginsville, Missouri.

A large crowd enjoyed the play, "The Music Master," given Friday night by C. E. Kemp of Kansas City, better known as "Uncle Ezra" of "Happy Hollow," broadcast over KMBC. Everyone was invited and a silver collection was taken for the benefit of the Stone Church Choir robe fund.

Next Sunday morning the eleven o'clock hour will be devoted to a scout rally service for the boys and girls of Independence. This is the first combined service of this kind to be held at the church, and Pastor Sheehy will address about ten troops. Parents of scouts and of boys and girls of scout age are especially invited to be present.

Walnut Park Church

Attendance at Walnut Park meetings seems undiminished by any discouragements. The testimonies in the early Sunday morning prayer services show that the Saints here have been tried in various ways in the past and have learned to trust God where man can not see the way. These meetings are, as ever, interesting and comforting. Lurett Whiting, C. K. Green, and F. W. Lanpher had charge November 8.

The forenoon sermon by Bishop G. L. DeLapp was a call for earnest, whole-hearted devotion to the cause, and assurance that God's purposes will not fail.

The evening speaker was Patriarch F. A. Smith, on the need of applying the gospel law in our daily lives. Pastor S. C. Smith was in charge, prayer by Elder Frank Weston.

The young people began Sunday evening classes three weeks ago, assembling at a quarter of six. Helen Moorman is president of the organization which as yet is unnamed, and Melba Moorman chorister. There are four classes, two for young people and two for older ones, the latter studying stewardships and the Book of Mormon. About two hundred are attending. A program follows class study. C. G. Closson and E. E. Moorman are young people's supervisors.

Enoch Hill Church

The women of the three groups of the branch met at the home of Mrs. J. E. Martin for an all-day meeting last Thursday. A worship and lesson period was held in the afternoon, the balance of the day being spent in quilting.

"Peace" was the theme of the church school worship service Sunday morning. After the singing of "America" by the congregation, Pastor Herbert L. Barto made a short talk which was followed by the song, "America the Beautiful," by Mrs. Hartman's class.

Mrs. H. E. Winegar has been appointed to work in the church school assisting Miss Nellie Mae Kramer.

The eleven o'clock speaker was Elder H. G. Barto, who talked on the financial law of the church.

Bishop G. L. DeLapp in his evening sermon based his thoughts on one or two significant events in the life of Jesus.

Englewood Church

"It is not the mission of our Sanitarium to be just another hospital," asserted Doctor Charles Grabske in his talk at the close of the church school, November 1. "Since it was built by divine revelation, the Sanitarium's mission is both spiritual and physical. It should be a place where not only convalescents of our own faith, but those not of our church membership (who compose about seventy-five per cent of the institutions inmates), may have opportunity to catch the spirit of the gospel. For this reason we should have a chapel suitable to the worship needs not only of the nurses, but also of all who are able to attend. It is very necessary that a minister give at least part time to the spiritual needs of the patients. From him convalescents not of our faith have opportunity to hear the principles of our beliefs. This minister should have available a supply of church literature to satisfy inquiring minds. From our Sanitarium also there should go out help to keep people well. The church physician, Doctor Teel, is at present making an effort along that line by writing the splendid health articles which are printed from week to week in the Herald."

Doctor Grabske is the assistant church physician. He was made welcome at Englewood where many of the members have watched him prepare himself for usefulness in the world. He remained here for the sacrament service.

Elder Ward Hougas, brother of our A. G., was in the stand with thirteen of the local and visiting priesthood. Brother Hougas gave an inspiring talk at the sacrament hour. A quiet and peaceful spirit prevailed over ministers and congregation.

Patriarch Ammon White was the evening speaker. He, too, gave much encouragement.

Under the supervision of the recreational leader, Brother Arthur Welsh, the members of the branch enjoyed a Halloween frolic at the church on the following Friday night.

As his text last Sunday morning Bishop A. B. Phillips chose the statement of Samuel the prophet: "Behold, to obey is better than sacrifice and to hearken than the fat of rams." Before he was through talking, he presented some fine suggestions on the matter of sacrifice for the special two months' period.

Under the direction of the chorister the choir sang "The Son of God Goes Forth to War," by Whitney.

Elder Leonard White in the evening devoted his attention to a discussion of sacrifice and its relation to the redemption of Zion. Brother Roy Howery sang "I Come to Thee."

Today the women are meeting in an all-day session to sew for the Commodity Shop.

Kansas City Stake

Central Church

"The Presidency's Call" was the sacrament message of Elder C. G. Mesley on November 1. An organ prelude, prayers, hymn singing, meditation, and a social service made the communion hour impressive.

The evening sermon was by Patriarch J. T. Gresty. The choir, directed by George Anway, sang "Fear Not, O Israel," by Max Spicker, Mrs. C. J. Wolfe, organist; Mrs. Everett Bowser, pianist.

The second of the series of Wednesday evening devotionals, held November 4, continued the theme "Upward Steps in Our Church Endeavor." This service followed the church dinner at half past six, an organ concert, and a period of meditation.

Gladstone Church

The third lecture on "The Church That Christ Built" was given by Evangelist U. W. Greene, Sunday night to a fair-sized audience. Some nonmembers were present. He emphasized the doctrine and gifts of the spirit. Brother Greene in an able manner made plain the foundation principles of the gospel of Jesus Christ, the author of the way of life.

The fourth lecture of the series will be delivered next Sunday night. It is thought best not to skip this occasion on account of its being stake conference Sunday on which day each local church is supposed to close its preaching services.

Fourth Church

Rally Day on September 27 was an outstanding occasion in this branch. Sister Tyra Lueking related to the little folks a story, telling how "Uncle Art" lived his religion and won seven other boys who became great and useful men in the world. Sister Surlles spoke in behalf of the Girl Scout movement at the family service at nine thirty in the morning.

In past weeks speakers have been Patriarch Ammon White; Stake Missionary Arthur Oakman; Elder A. B. Phillips, of Independence; C. E. Wight, stake president; J. N. Curtis, a Graceland alumnus who talked on College Day; Elder Evan Fry, of Independence, and Pastor J. O. Worden.

Fourth Church is proud of a mimeograph machine recently purchased. On Sunday, October 11, the first issue of The Pilot appeared with announcements for the week. There were also brief and terse comments in verse.

Improvements on the church grounds have also been made. A retaining wall has been built along the sidewalk west of the church.

Everyone enjoyed the November sacrament hour. Six of the elders and priests sat behind a long white table on the rostrum, and served the emblems to the Saints.

Eastern Maine Conference

The district conference of Eastern Maine was held at Jonesport, October 31 and November 1.

The branch business meeting was held Saturday evening. Officers were elected for the conference and five delegates were chosen to represent Eastern Maine at the next General Conference.

Apostle R. S. Budd was in charge of the sacrament service at nine o'clock Sunday morning. The Sunday school began at half past ten. This was followed by a preaching service in which Bishop E. L. Traver gave an interesting discourse on the financial condition of the church.

Apostle R. S. Budd preached at half past two and again at seven. "What Is Your Life?" was the subject of the evening sermon which was greatly appreciated.

Meals were served in the church vestry.

Branches in Western Maine also were well represented, and the Saints felt fully repaid for coming.

Otter Lake Branch Celebrates Fifteenth Anniversary

Fostoria, Michigan, November 1.—The time for our branch home-coming, announced a few weeks ago in the Herald, arrived October 25, the members assembling at 9 a. m. A good congregation was there, gathered from all parts of the country. The first service was in charge of John Hall, of Orion, who was assisted by Elder Harder, from Flint, and J. J. Rusnell, of Otter Lake. Many splendid testimonies were given.

Elder Arthur DuRose, of Flint, president of the district, preached a wonderful sermon at the 11 o'clock hour. "A Little Stone Cut Out of the Mountains Without Hands," his subject, was capably handled.

At 2 p. m. a half-hour song service was in charge of Brother Edward Jones and wife. Sister Jones has been a member of the church only a short time, but is a great help. She is putting her musical talent to immediate use. At 2.30 the history of the branch, which follows this news letter, was read.

Elder Ted Weaver spoke at 3 p. m. on "The Restoration of All Things." The ordination of Brother Joseph Oliver was carried out by those having authority.

In the evening Elder John Hall preached. Thus the day passed, all services making it apparent that this little branch is moving forward.

History of Otter Lake Branch

Twenty-eight years ago an honest man and his family settled very near the spot where now stands our little white church. Brother Felix Jones came from Canada to make this place his home, and he brought with him something far more precious than temporal riches, the gospel of Jesus Christ. This he wanted all his friends to enjoy with him. At once he began to tell the people about it. His brother grew interested. Brother "Phil," as we all call him, sent for Elder William Davis, to come over and preach to the people of this vicinity. Then he asked Brother Davis to go to Canada to tell more of his relatives the true gospel story.

Others came to preach and baptize as time passed on, J. W. Davis, a son of William Davis, O. J. Hawn, Davis Dowker, Archie McKinzy, George Washburn, Dick Weaver, and others. In the meantime quite a number of families had been baptized and were ready to be organized into a branch.

The organization of the branch took place October 25, 1916, Brothers J. F. Curtis and William Grice in charge. Thirteen members were present and elected the following officers for six months: Branch president, A. J. Jones; assistant priest, William McTaggart; secretary, Erma Lewis; chorister, Ida McTaggart; organist, Erma Lewis, librarian, Loretta Jones; treasurer, Mae Jones; bishop's agent, Anna Lewis Johnson; janitor, Alfred McTaggart.

For fifteen years Otter Lake Branch has been in existence. There have been many discouragements, many joys, and many blessings. Satan was not pleased with the way things were going, so he came to the front and caused a cloud of darkness and misery to come over the place. But the faithful few braved the storm.

Through the efforts of Brother William Davis there are seventy-five members of the Jones family who have obeyed the gospel since the first appearance of Brother Felix Jones, the father of the branch, better known to old and young as "Brother Phil." It was here Dick Weaver preached his first sermon. A. J. Jones held the office of branch president nine years. Then William McTaggart held it five years. Elder Rusnell moved to the branch, was chosen to preside, and now holds that position.

Some have moved away from the branch, but others have moved in. Only three deaths have occurred here in fifteen years. Several babies have been blessed, and seven candidates have been baptized in the last year and a half. There have never been any expulsions, and the present enrollment is forty-seven.

Southern California District Conference

The fall conference of Southern California District was held October 17 and 18, at Central Los Angeles Branch. This district includes Los Angeles, East Los Angeles, Ontario, San Bernardino, Long Beach, Santa Ana, Santa Barbara, San Diego, and the missions of Lennox and Pasadena.

The first session of the conference was the business meeting at ten in the morning Saturday, under the chairmanship of the district presidency and the apostle in charge, M. A. McConley. The morning was occupied by ministerial and statistical reports as well as the financial report of the district bishop. From these reports we find that many of our priesthood are very active, the nonworkers being in the minority.

Only two church schools in the district are completely organized on the new plan, though several are partially so. The rest expect to organize the first of the year.

At the afternoon session the business of the conference was continued. There was considerable discussion concerning the budgeting of the district finances. For some time, the interest from the reunion ground money has been used to help with district expenses. Many felt that if each branch paid its proportionate share of the district's expenses, the interest money could be used to finance our reunions. It was finally voted to wait until the first of the year before revising the old budget, and to try to collect on the old budget at present.

Brother McConley gave some timely and instructive advice about the relationship of a branch to the district.

Brothers T. Thorson, J. Farley, and R. Laneve were elected as a reunion committee, to investigate suitable places to hold the reunion. They are to report to the April conference.

Several names were recommended and accepted by the conference for ordination to the priesthood. Then followed the election of district officers: District president, W. A. Teagarden; district director of religious education, L. L. Sutherland; district director of music, Stella Hodges; district secretary, Amy Lewis.

Saturday evening's session was conducted by the priesthood of the district. Ten-minute talks were given by W. A. Teagarden, Eli Bronson, David Carmichael, and M. A. McConley, after which Brother Teagarden called on the pastors of each branch to speak briefly of the work in their charge.

Eight o'clock on Sunday morning found a good crowd gathered for the early morning prayer meeting, which was in charge of Brothers Milner, Starkey, and Stuart.

Church school began its Sunday morning worship period promptly at half past nine, the orchestra playing the prelude. An enjoyable feature of the worship period was the oration, "Faith of Our Fathers," given by James Burdit, of Santa Paula, California. Because of the large attendance of the church school, Brother McConley taught the young people, and Brother Bronson the adults.

Apostle M. A. McConley was the speaker at the eleven o'clock service, while Brother R. T. Knowlton preached to the children of the junior age. It was an inspiring sight to see all the children grouped around Brother Knowlton. He had his sermon well prepared and concrete things with which to illustrate it.

The Sunday afternoon session was one of music, under the able leadership of the district musical director, Sister Stella Hodges. Many comments of praise and enjoyment of the musical program were heard. Sister Hodges is a tireless worker and for years has given unstintedly of her time and talent.

The evening speaker was W. A. Teagarden, district president.

Fine meals were served cafeteria style, by the Marthas of the Central Los Angeles Branch.

While attendance at this conference was not quite so large as usual, every one felt well repaid for coming.

Southern Missouri Conference

November 2.—Springfield entertained the conference of Southern Missouri District October 31 and November 1. Brother J. W. Hancock preached on Friday evening preceding the conference opening.

The first session was the morning prayer service Saturday in charge of Brothers Ansley and W. E. Haden. Business session opened promptly at 10 a. m., Brothers Haden and G. A. Davis in charge. Samuel Spease was chosen secretary in the absence of D. R. Dartch, district secretary. The usual business such as reading of minutes and reports disposed of, delegates were elected to General Conference as follows: Brother and Sister Henry Sparling, Brother and Sister G. A. Davis, W. E. Haden, Herman Plumb, Ernie Munroe, and J. B. Ansley.

The following committee was authorized by the conference to solicit funds to liquidate the debt on the district tent: Francis E. Bishop, A. W. Duemler, G. A. Davis, James Dobson, W. A. Hawkins, and J. B. Ansley.

The next conference will be held at Thayer, Missouri, subject to the call of the district president.

Brother F. M. McDowell arrived at 1.45 p. m. Saturday, and was delivered the keys to the conference and Springfield Branch. His messages were well received. Some of his themes were "The Church and Its Needs," "Is Our Faith Equal to the Task?" and "The Church Must Go On." A fine spirit prevailed throughout the entire conference, and Brother McDowell received responsive attention.

Meals were served in the basement Saturday noon and evening and Sunday morning, noon, and evening. The Saints were at the meeting place practically the entire time except Saturday night when they were cared for in the homes of local members. For two full days of conference the Saints of Southern Missouri enjoyed Christian unity and fellowship.

A large delegation was present from the district, most of the members returning to their homes following the Sunday afternoon service conducted by Brother McDowell. They left the gathering place enthusiastic in the prospects of the opportunity to serve the church, and determined to do all within their power to realize the slogan, "The Church Shall Go On."

Hagerman, Idaho

November 3.—During the past week Elder O. W. Okerlind, district missionary, has been holding a series of meetings here. His sermons were most instructive. He was called to Council, Idaho, and left yesterday afternoon.

Elder C. A. Kress stopped here on his way to Independence, and preached one evening. His visit was much appreciated. "I have never heard such a good sermon in my life," declared one nonmember woman who heard his discourse. She expressed a desire to learn more of the latter-day faith.

The women's department met at the home of Sister Drake October 29. These workers are planning a bazaar to be held in the near future. They have a splendid collection of handwork including two nice quilts.

Saints of the branch gathered the afternoon of November 1, to help Sister Lucinda Hendrickson celebrate her seventy-sixth birthday. The party was had at Sister Hendrickson's home, the guests bringing refreshments. A happy time was had. Sister Hendrickson is the widow of Adolphus Hendrickson, one-time pastor of Hagerman Branch.

Last month two socials were held. Each began with a nicely arranged program after which games were played and refreshments served. Many nonmembers were in attendance.

We hold prayer meetings on Tuesday evening of each week, Religio on Friday. Once a month, after prayer meeting, a short period is spent studying the church school handbook. This is beneficial to all.

Since the district reunion, larger attendance has marked our church services. The members appreciate the good instruction received at reunion time. Our instructors were Apostle M. A. McConley, Elders Sorden, O. W. Okerlind, S. A. Burgess, and A. M. Chase.

Plano, Illinois

Two more young women of the church school were lately baptized, Hazel, youngest daughter of Brother and Sister Lorenzo Reynolds, and Alice Stealglove, whose mother is a good worker in the adult division though not a member of the church.

A good program marked the observance of College Day. Sandwich Saints came to help the local congregation enjoy it. College songs were sung, and Brother Roscoe E. Davey and Richard Wildermuth gave interesting talks.

The night of October 25 the adult division had charge of the service, under the direction of Sister Grace Johnson. Sister Bessie Walker gave a musical reading; Sister Alice Blakely a solo; Sister Cretia Sanderson, two readings, and Sister Rillie Moore, a historical talk.

Sister Amelia Gilman is growing weaker and has been ailing for some time. Sister Hazel Vermilye, however, is feeling some better.

Saints of this district are happy to have Elder Roscoe E. Davey and family back in the district.

Plano has new city delivery, and two of our members will be city carriers, Richard Wildermuth and Marion Blakely.

Lately Emil Masat, son of Mrs. Perla Masat, was married to a lovely young woman from Morris, Illinois, at the home of his grandparents, Brother and Sister John Moore.

Several are planning to attend the Chicago conference next week.

Sister Mildred Johnson is back at work again after an operation for appendicitis.

Plano Branch has received its order of new Saints' Hymnals and is well pleased with them.

Lachine, Michigan

(The editors very much regret the error which led to the printing of this letter with the news letter from San Bernardino, California, in the Herald of October 28, page 1030. In justice to the Saints of both San Bernardino and Lachine, we make this correction and reprint.)

This branch had a successful one-day meeting September 27. Saints from Alpena and other places met with us. Arthur Starks and Hector McKennon from Gaylord, did the preaching. Brother McKennon, at the morning hour, took for his theme "Know Your Church," and Brother Starks in the afternoon chose for his theme "Stick to Your Church." In the evening both spoke. "I Would See Jesus" was the theme of Brother McKennon; Brother Starks took the following half hour to tell the congregation how we could see Jesus. The day was very much enjoyed.

The Saints listened to Apostle D. T. Williams, October 11. Brother Williams is giving lectures once a month to the different branches. "Adventuring with God" is his theme, and his words are strengthening and uplifting.

This branch has a good choir organized in the young people's group. Dora Denmick and Elsie Guy are the leaders, the latter being the branch organist.

Illness has visited this branch. Melvin Smith has been very sick but is some better. He expects to go to Ann Arbor soon for a medical examination. Brother and Sister John Cole are ill, and are being cared for by Brother and Sister George Blackmore. We pray that they will soon recover, for if one suffers, we all suffer.

Central Illinois District Conference

Hull, Illinois, November 2.—New Canton entertained the district conference of Central Illinois Saturday and Sunday, October 26 and 27. The first session was the organization meeting at 10 a. m., in charge of District President R. L. Fulk and Patriarch F. A. Smith.

The afternoon business meeting was in charge of Elder R. L. Fulk. The following officers were elected: District president, R. L. Fulk; counselors appointed were O. C. Henson and M. R. Shoemaker; secretary, Lena E. Fusselman; treasurer, E. E. Thomas; musical director, Joe Williams.

Throughout the conference special music was furnished by the different branches, and a spirit of peace and brotherhood was present during the several meetings.

Sunday prayer meeting was held at 8 a. m., Sunday school, 9.45, and preaching at 11 a. m. and 2 p. m. was by Patriarch F. A. Smith.

Brother Floyd Bowmand and Brother C. A. Fusselman were ordained to the priesthood at the afternoon service. Elder R. L. Fulk gave the evening sermon.

The babies of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Billings and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Phillips were blessed at the last service of the day.

Dinner and supper were served both days by the women of the church, and more than one hundred and fifty persons were served each day.

Delegates and visitors attended from Nebo, Pittsfield, Rockport, Louisiana, Bowling Green, Jacksonville, Beardstown, Springfield, Decatur, Taylorville, Independence, Benton, and Kinderhook.

The conference closed with the singing of the hymn, "O Give Us a Parting Blessing." It was adjourned to meet at the call of the district presidency.

Grand Valley, Ontario

November 3.—Saints in this branch carry on the gospel work with Elder John H. Taylor, our worthy president and leader, who has served us faithfully for the past forty years. Sunday school and preaching service are held each Sunday and prayer service on Thursday evening with very good attendance.

Several additions have been made to the branch, the last being a young man and three young women who are sisters. The good Spirit was felt to a marked degree at the baptismal service.

Branch anniversary services were held October 11, there being good attendance. A number came from a distance to attend the various meetings.

The 9 a. m. prayer service was followed by preaching at 11 a. m., the speaker being Elder George Njeim whose subject was, "Champions of Righteousness." He impressed on the minds of his hearers the great need for the church to go forward in the cause of right in spite of trying times.

Apostle R. S. Budd was the speaker for the 2.30 p. m. service, his theme being, "Meeting Life's Temptations." Brother Budd had a full house for the 7 p. m. service, and preached an impressive sermon on "True Repentance," showing the importance of repentance and the difference between true and false repentance.

Special music by the choir was much appreciated. Brother

C. M. Murphy, of Toronto, accompanied by Sister V. Clark, also of Toronto, sang at the morning and evening meeting.

Lunch was served in the basement. The Saints felt encouraged by the spirit of fellowship which reigned in all services and gatherings.

Elder George Njeim continued to hold services here for three weeks. On certain evenings he showed lantern slides of the Holy Land and Syria, his homeland. Several non-members were present to enjoy with us these historical Bible scenes. Brother Njeim showed the structure of the church Christ built when on his mission and similar structures in Central America, proving the Book of Mormon by Archæology. This worker is a new missionary in Owen Sound District, and we believe him to be well qualified for his position. We feel that a fresh interest has been aroused, and hope that good will result from Brother Njeim's efforts.

Woodbine, Iowa

Priesthood meeting of southwestern and northern Iowa convened here Sunday afternoon, October 4. Apostle John F. Carver was present, and the meeting was well attended.

The young people of this branch went to Dunlap the evening of August 31, to participate in recreational activities. They report a splendid time.

The Saints were very happy on September 6, when they witnessed Brother George Young perform the ceremony of baptism. The candidate was his father, L. R. Young, who is over seventy years old. He was confirmed at the evening service.

A daughter was born to Brother Howard Young and wife October 4.

About sixteen Moorhead Saints gave a program at the church the evening of October 11. They had a fine audience.

Elder L. G. Holloway was here September 20, speaking morning and evening. His sermons were of vital interest to all. He told us that men are laboring under heavy burdens, and spoke of the signs of the times when nations shall rise against nations and the world shall be filled with wars and rumors of wars. His scripture reading was Matthew 11: 29, 30.

Relief and service workers, on the evening of October 28, had a program and a social good time was enjoyed. Refreshments marked the end of the evening. Proceeds amounted to ten dollars. This group of workers plan to hold a number of such gatherings during the winter.

Graceland College Day was observed with a fine program given by former students. Several related experiences there and told what Graceland means to them. We hope Graceland may long continue to build men and women for God's work.

What Jesus Means to Me

What the hand is to the lute,
What the breath is to the flute,
What is fragrance to the smell,
What the spring is to the well,
What the flower is to the bee,
That is Jesus Christ to me.

What's the mother to the child,
What the guide in pathless wild,
What is oil to troubled wave,
What is ransom to the slave,
What is water to the sea,
That is Jesus Christ to me.

—Arranged by C. H. Spurgeon, in Church Management.

VISION

ANNOUNCES A NEW Short Story Contest

THE PRIZES

First Prize .....	$15.00 Cash
Second Prize .....	8.00 Cash
Third Prize .....	5.00 Cash

The Rules

1. Stories must be original, and the work of the contestant.
2. Length to be 3,000 words or under.
3. Good lively stories wanted. Doctrinaire element not required, though stories will be most favored which are wholesome in characterization, atmosphere, and culmination.
4. All stories submitted for this contest are to be considered for use in Vision, whether they win prizes or not.
5. All manuscripts should be in the hands of the Story Contest Editor on or before December 31, 1931.

Address

VISION
Story Contest Editor

Box 237

Independence, Missouri

MISCELLANEOUS

Conference Notices

Spring River district conference will convene at Joplin, Missouri, November 20, 21, and 22. Please mail all reports to Mrs. C. E. Wilson, 2018 Connor Avenue, Joplin, Missouri.—Mrs. C. E. Wilson, district secretary.

The conference of Southern Wisconsin District will be held at Madison, November 28 and 29. Business session will be held at 7 p. m., November 28. Delegates to General Conference will be elected. Bishop C. J. Hunt, Elder L. G. Houghton, and Apostle D. T. Williams will be the speakers. Branch clerks, please mail statistical reports to the district secretary; also, members of the priesthood, please send your reports to same.—Leda Colbert, district secretary, 820 Clymer Place, Madison, Wisconsin.

Notice of Appointment

Notice is hereby given of the transfer of Elder W. A. McDowell from Far West Stake to Southern California District as evangelist.—The First Presidency.

New Address

F. C. Bevan, 1203½ Fifteenth Street, Rock Island, Illinois.

Our Departed Ones

HAZZARD.—Susan Byrne was born November 13, 1851, at Byrneville, Indiana. She died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Pearl Roberts, Louisville, Kentucky. She was married to Melvin A. Hazzard October 23, 1877, and to them six children were born. Mr. Hazzard and two children preceded her in death. There survive her Mrs. Mary B. Byrne, of Bryneville, Indiana; Mrs. Pearl Roberts, Harry E. Hazzard, and Mrs. Blanch C. Beck, all of Louisville, Kentucky; one sister, Mrs. Martha Lockheart, of Corydon, Indiana; eleven grandchildren, two great-grandchildren, and many friends. She united with the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints January 7, 1894, and remained faithful till death. The funeral was held from the Eyrneville Church, October 31, at 2 p. m., sermon by J. O. Dutton. Interment was in the cemetery at Byrneville, where rest her husband and two children.

CHAMBERS.—George A. Chambers was born January 29, 1897, at Magnolia, Iowa. He was the son of Elder and Mrs. Robert C. Chambers, now of Los Angeles, California. When he was about nine years old he was baptized a member of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints to which cause he remained faithful until death. In 1926 he was married to Jessie Lee Wilford. To them one daughter Marilyn, was born. On October 21, 1931, following a very short illness Mr. Chambers was called to the other side. He is survived by his wife, daughter, father, mother, one sister, Mrs. Vida M. Thomas, and two brothers, Perry E., and Paul D. Chambers, all of Los Angeles. The funeral was conducted at the Overholzer Parlors, and interment was in Inglewood Park Cemetery. The sermon was by Elder Eli Bronson.

SWAIN.—Julia A. Tuck was born in New York State June 4, 1855. When she was a child, she moved with her parents to Iowa, where she united with the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, May 14, 1880, spending most of her life in church activity there. At the age of twenty she was married to H. D. Swain. To them two daughters were born, Mrs. W. L. Kibler, of Whittier, California, and Mrs. G. C. DuVall, of Independence, Missouri. After twelve years of suffering, she passed away October 17, 1931, at Whittier, California. Surviving are her two daughters, one sister, Mrs. Fish, of Long Beach, California; two brothers, Elmer Tuck, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and Will Tuck, of Sioux City, Iowa. Funeral services were at the Emerson White Parlors and interment was at Rose Hill Memorial Park. Sermon by Elder Eli Bronson.

HEXIMER.—Catherine Ada Jacklin, daughter of P. J. and Margaret Jacklin, of Los Angeles, California, was born December 26, 1897. Died July 19, 1931. She married Oliver P. Heximer. Surviving are her husband, two sons, Clair and Ray, of Los Angeles; her parents, also of Los Angeles, one sister, Irene Brown, and three brothers, Elmer G., Earl F., and Morris J. The funeral services were conducted at French and Son Parlors, East Los Angeles. Interment was in Rose Memorial Park, Whittier, California. The sermon was by Eli Bronson. Mrs. Heximer became a member of the church through baptism August 12, 1906.

WYNN.—James M. Wynn was born December 19, 1842, at Croydon, Indiana. Died at his home in Independence, Missouri, October 27, 1931. He was united in marriage to Mary E. Good January 7, 1872, and to them were born one son and four daughters. One daughter, Emma, passed away May 19, 1914. Mr. Wynn served in Company 144 Volunteers of Indiana during the Civil War. He was baptized into the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints September 19, 1897, by Elder George Jenkins. Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Mary E. Wynn, of Independence; his son, William Wynn, of Stockton, California, three daughters, Mrs. Ella

Cunningham, of Independence; Mrs. F. M. Pfrimmer, of Porterville, California, Mrs. G. W. Armstrong, of Stuart, Iowa; four grandchildren, and ten great-grandchildren. The funeral was held October 29, at Independence, by Elder George Jenkins.

ROACH.—William T. Roach was born March 23, 1872, at Kingston, Missouri. Died October 24, 1931. He married Clara Hood January 1, 1901. Was baptized a member of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints in 1898, by R. K. Ross, at Clinton, Missouri; Ordained a priest January 22, 1899. Surviving are his wife, father, four brothers, and four sisters. Interment was in Englewood Cemetery at Clinton, Missouri.

FETTER.—Gertrude Ann Johnson, daughter of George and Elizabeth Johnson, was born July 20, 1866; passed away at her home in South Dawn, Missouri, October 5, 1931, as the result of a complication of diseases. She married William Goldsworthy July 2, 1885, who departed from his loved ones May 4, 1909. To them three children were born. Bessie Pearl died in early childhood. In 1918 she married Mr. W. C. Fetter. Surviving are her husband, two daughters, Mrs. J. W. Walker, of Hale, Missouri, and Mrs. R. O. Williams, of Chillicothe, Missouri, eight grandchildren, three brothers and one sister: Pierce Johnson and Dave Johnson, of Plymouth, Missouri; Sherman Johnson, of Chicasha, Oklahoma; Mrs. Nancy A. Goldsworthy, of San Diego, California. In the home she was a faithful wife and loving mother. In the community she was a Christian worker, always ready to lend a helping hand. She was baptized a member of the church October 27, 1918, at Independence, Missouri, by J. W. Smith. The funeral was held from Plymouth, Missouri, in charge of Elder Charles K. Green, of Independence, Missouri.

NEICE.—Samuel Isaac Neice, son of John L. and Effie Ridinger Neice, was born near Fairfield, Iowa, January 5, 1856; departed this life October 15, 1931. He spent practically all his life in Illinois, living at Galva for the past seven years. Married Annette Florence Toup in 1874, who died in 1898. To them were born seven sons and one daughter: John L., who died in 1904; George W., of Chicago; Frederic F., of Peoria; Mrs. Effie M. Wood, of Chicago; Charles A., of Saint Paul, Minnesota; Thomas E., of Galva; Edward M., and Orville G., of Chicago. Besides the children there also survive nine grandchildren, two great-grandchildren, two brothers: George M. of Saint Augustine, and W. Edward Neice, of Kent, Washington. He joined the church in March, 1930, and gave his loyal support to the institution which held his faith. He had been ill only a few days at the time of his death. He was of a quiet and loving disposition, kind to everyone, a man loved by all because of his willingness to help people. The funeral was held at the undertaker's parlors October 18, in charge of Elder F. C. Bevan, assisted by Elder E. Jones.

WHY

They Like the New Saints' Hymnal

The Best Old Hymns—
Inspiring New Songs
Complete Handy Indexes for Ready Reference

Compare the Quality and Prices

Has Your Branch Been Supplied Yet?

Single copy, postpaid, each.....	$1.50
In lots of ten or more, transportation extra, each .....	$1.25
In lots of 100 or more, transportation extra, each .....	$1.00

Order From

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE
Independence, Missouri

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Frederick M. Smith, Editor in Chief.
 Elbert A. Smith, Floyd M. McDowell, Associate Editors.
 Leonard J. Lea, Managing Editor.
 Leta B. Moriarty, Assistant Editor.
 Published for the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Subscription price: By the year, $2.
 HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE
 INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI

CONTENTS

NOTES FROM THE FIELD .....	1058
EDITORIALS:
School Taxation .....	1059
"Faithful in That Which Is Least" .....	1059
Our "Undeveloped Resources" .....	1060
Jackson County Bank Opens to Receive Money Due It .....	1060
One Man Beats the Depression .....	1061
OFFICIAL:
The Church Debt and Sacrifice .....	1062
ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
Independence Prepares for Sacrifice, by John F. Sheehy.....	1058
The Church Needs Your Help, by A. B. Phillips .....	1063
"The Land Shadowing With Wings," by C. J. Hunt .....	1064
Courage and Prudence, by Evan A. Fry .....	1065
Facing the Future .....	1066
Do You Know These People .....	1070
LETTERS TO THE EDITOR:
Feels Faith That the Church Will Succeed .....	1067
OF GENERAL INTEREST:
Washington Had Vision of Trials Facing Nation .....	1068
NEWS OF CHURCH AND HOME .....	1072
MISCELLANEOUS .....	1079

Barley for Mild Drink (D. C. 86: 3)

Parched, Ground, or Whole Grain

	1st-3d Zone	3d-6th Zone
5-lb. lots .....	$ .93	$1.20
10-lb. lots .....	1.68	2.20
25-lb. lots .....	3.81	5.00

Lamoni D. C. WHITE & SON Iowa

Artistic!

Distinctive!

Modern!

Christmas Cards

A wonderful new line from our supply house.

Better than last year's excellent assortment.

Splendid Values at Depression Prices

Order from

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE

INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI

Buy Your Farms Now

While they are cheap. Any size, best terms. Special attention to readers of the Saints' Herald.

CHAS. R. BOWMAN

Butler, Mo.

The average man spends as much on his car as he does on his LIFE INSURANCE. Certainly your life is worth more to your family than your car—INSURE IT FULLY!

Call us and our representative will call.

INSURANCE DEPARTMENT OF THE CHURCH

(American Underwriters, Inc.)

Indep. 486 221 W. Lexington St.

For Sale

20½ lots five blocks from Walnut Park Church. Good 4-room house, full basement. Chicken house 12x60. Garage and barn. 1 acre raspberries; also other fruit. Pasture, never failing spring. Sacrifice for cash. Write—

CARL S. BATEMAN,

Route 4, Box 71,

Independence, Missouri.

ARE YOU A BLIND FISH?

In the great depths of the sea, naturalists tell us, are fish that have tiny sightless eyes, and are totally blind because for generations they have lived where there is no light.

Are you raising your family in spiritual darkness? Will your children—or your neighbor's children—grow up to a life of spiritual blindness?

READ THE CHURCH PAPERS!

THE SAINTS' H

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER

Entered as second-class matter at the post office at Independence, Missouri, under Act of March 3, 1879. Issued Independence, Missouri. Price $2 a year in advance. Accepted for mailing at the special rate of postage provided for in section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917; authorized July 21, 1921.

Volume 78

Independence, Missouri, November 18, 1931

Number 46

Thanksgiving

I THANK my God for many pleasant things—
A lad that whistles and a lass that sings.
For all their joyous acts that harvest laughter
And leave a sunny memory ever after,
I thank my God!

I THANK my God for having shown to me
The beauties of the ageless land and sea,
And for the clouds whose first fall rains are thrust
Like bayonets into the autumn dust,
I thank my God!

I THANK my God—and yet like one afraid
I view the gifts that at my feet are laid
And bow my head in deep humility.
For all the things that mean so much to me,
I thank my God!

—Edith Cherrington.

Next General Conference

In another column will be found a notice concerning the next General Conference of the church.

Because of general conditions prevailing in and out of the church, and actions taken by the administrative authorities of the church to meet the situations brought about by changed conditions, it is likely that the next General Conference will be among the most important of recent years. It is quite apropos, therefore, that the Presidency suggests a prayerful approach both to the preparation for, and the active work of the conference.

The financial policy adopted by the Presidency, Twelve, and Order of Bishops has affected and will affect the whole work of the church in every way. The release of many men from responsibility as general workers has curtailed the work of general appointees. This has put before the local ministry of the church a distinct challenge, that of greater activity, enlarged responsibility, and keener interest in general church conditions. Between now and next General Conference will be determined in large measure what the response to the challenge will be, and what will be the spirit and attitude carried into the work of the conference.

It is a time of testing, and as in times of stress in the past the Saints have risen to meet the issues bravely and faithfully, so it is believed they will do so now.

F. M. S.

Measuring Youth's Devotion

If recent issues of the Herald have accomplished even a measure of their purpose it must now be apparent to every thinking Latter Day Saint that as a church we are facing one of the most important and difficult crises of our church history.

The situation as has been repeatedly urged is such as to present a challenge to every loyal Saint, young or old, rich or poor, officer or layman. Indeed the cause of the church is so worthy and its needs so great as to justify the mobilization of all our resources both financial and spiritual. The work of the church must go on.

In the Herald of October 21 the First Presidency issued a general appeal to the entire church. It was urged at that time that no church member could in justice escape his share of the responsibilities of this hour. It was further set out as the duty of every member to comply with the law by paying or making arrangements to pay tithing now due, making a substantial sacrifice offering to the church now, and entering at once upon a program of sacrificial economy to make this payment of tithes and offerings possible. From this statement of obligations we have no thought of retracting. Further appeals to special groups within the church must therefore be interpreted as part and parcel of this general church-wide appeal. This especially refers to the matter discussed in the following paragraphs.

Youth never shrinks from difficult tasks. As a rule the harder the task the better young people like it. Faith in the hour of uncertainty, courage when the way is hazardous, complete consecration to worthy causes—such has ever characterized the devotion of youth. Again and again in the progress of civilization youth has led the way, frequently paying the supreme price that ends, conceived to be worthy, might be attained.

It is with the firm conviction that our young people of today differ in no essential respect from those of yesterday that we now come with the suggestion that the young people of the church be asked to carry their share of the work of the church in this crucial hour. We feel certain that when our young people have been made fully aware of the serious situation in which the church finds itself, they will not only be willing but anxious—in fact, insistent—that they be allowed to help.

Elsewhere in this issue of the Herald, the Department of Religious Education presents in outline form a plan by which the young people may be enlisted in the church-wide program already presented. We earnestly suggest that branch presidents, church school officers and leaders of young people give this program their immediate attention. We speak from experience when we say that we believe such leaders will be surprised not only at the enthusiasm and devotion of their young people but also at the amount of financial assistance which they are in a position to give the church.

Letters have gone out to all branch presidents, also to supervisors of young people's divisions in the larger branches, outlining this program in further detail and urging that steps be taken at once to carry it out.

There appears to be no good reason why every man and woman in the church should not in the next two or three months file an inventory, pay or make arrangements to pay tithing due, and make a special sacrifice offering as an index of their devotion to the church. As we have already said, it will be impossible even to estimate the outcome of such a whole-hearted enlistment of our young people in the cause of the church.

Let our young people in this, one of the greatest crises in the history of the church, rally to her support. Let them enter upon a sustained sacrificial effort in which they shall deny themselves many of the pleasures and activities so dear to the heart of youth in order that the church—their church—may go forward.

To leave our young people out of the picture, to fail to give them the opportunity and the encouragement to share sacrificially in the cause of righteousness would be disastrous—disastrous not only to the young people themselves, but disastrous as well to the cause of righteousness for at least one generation.

F. M. McD.

Pastors, Attention

By the time this issue of the Herald reaches our readers it is hoped that the mails will be carrying some posters to be used in the churches during the sacrifice period. One is to be sent to each pastor or branch president, so that there will be one in every building where members of the church meet.

The topics on this poster could very well be used as the subject matter for one or more sermons. In order that no place may be missed, we are giving the text of the poster in reduced size in the space below:

The Work of the Church Must Go On

If You Owe a Debt to God—
Pay It Now!

If You Have a Gift for Christ—
Give It Now!

If You Plan to Sacrifice—
Do It Now!

If You Truly Love Your Church—
Help It Now!

The Work of the Church Will Go On

The above slogans, very appropriate for the sacrifice period, were arranged by President F. M. McDowell. Readers will recall that some of them have appeared, one at a time, on the front page of the Herald. The others will appear in order.

We do owe a debt to God, not only a debt of gratitude, but a debt of tithes and offerings as well. Out of his bounty he has given abundantly. The world's present suffering is due to no lack of his gifts through the bounty of nature. In fact, it is the abundance of crops and the cheapness of commodities that is one of the saving factors of the present situation. We owe a debt to God.

We ought to have a gift for Christ—the Savior and friend of the human race, and our Redeemer. We ought to have a gift for him, because a gift to him means a gift to alleviate the sufferings of humanity; for all men are brothers in Christ.

If we are to make a sacrifice, now is the time to do it. Immediate action is necessary—immediate relief is imperative. Promises of future sacrifice are good, but it is the present time that is demanding help.

If we truly love the church—and our baptism, our faith, our service, all testify to our real and spoken love—now is the time to help.

The work of the church must go on; the work of the church will go on!

If this great present necessity is to be brought to the people so that they may help, it will be because the pastors undertake to discharge faithfully their individual responsibility in seeing that it is done.

We urge pastors everywhere to look for the posters, and to set them in a conspicuous place, and in addition to arrange some sacrifice talks based on the topics contained therein.

So may the good work of the Master be preserved from its present dangers and the spreading of the gospel to the people of the world be resumed in full force.

Two Interpretations

Last Sunday morning I heard a sermon about positive beliefs and actions. The man who serves his God, loves his fellow men, and does his best to make the world a happier place in which to live was extolled; the man who does not do this and who does not do that, was disregarded. Active righteousness was given its proper place in the Christian's code of ethics, and the existence of passive holiness was denied.

This sermon brought to my mind two interpretations of a certain positive scriptural admonition, a portion of the Sermon on the Mount and one of the most beautiful sayings of Jesus: "Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect." Christ addressed those words to a multitude of people.

Not long ago I heard this text interpreted in an adult class. The teacher, a woman, was getting along splendidly until she came to that assertion, and then she stalled: "Be ye therefore perfect," she read, and began to delineate: "Of course, people, we realize that today, under modern conditions, it is impossible for a person to be absolutely perfect. Christ here means . . ."

The second interpretation is that of a twelve-year-old girl. Mary's class had this admonition of Jesus as a memory verse. It was Sunday morning, and the teacher was hearing the lesson. Mary was asked to give the verse.

"Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father

OFFICIAL

Notice of General Conference

As per resolutions adopted, the next General Conference of the church will begin its sessions April 6, 1932, in the Auditorium at Independence, Missouri. The purpose of this announcement is to set at rest certain rumors to the contrary, and to issue due notice to the district conferences to select delegates in time. The ratio of delegates to membership is the same as has prevailed for several years.

It is well, too, that district and general officials bear in mind the matter of reports to be submitted to General Conference, and all reports should be in the hands of the First Presidency not later than March 1, 1932.

Further announcements affecting the program of the General Conference or its work will issue duly from the Presidency. Every care will be exercised to make the conference as instructive and generally beneficial as possible.

The importance of the coming General Conference suggests the wisdom of prayerful preparation being made. It would be well therefore, for district authorities to arrange for a period of prayer and fasting just previous to such district conference as will undertake the selection of delegates, the purpose being to importune divine wisdom and grace in preparation for the General Conference and blessings upon the work, and that the Saints may be constantly alert to their duties and responsibilities and active in churchly and personal religious ceremonies, rites, and deportment.

FREDERICK M. SMITH,
President of the Church.

which is in heaven is perfect," she softly quoted.

"What does that mean to you, Mary?" asked the teacher.

"It means—it means that we must be as good as God is."

Little Mary's was a positive belief. Her faith did not for a moment question the possibility of being perfect. Her life was ordered by the belief, "We must be . . ."

The Scriptures record one of the most positive lessons Jesus ever taught in the following language: "And Jesus called a little child unto him, and set him in the midst of them, and said, Verily I say unto you, Except ye be converted, and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven."

L. B. M.

An Unsigned Letter

Unsigned letters do not frequently come to the Editor's desk these days, and when they do they are only occasionally of a quality to merit publication, even if one were inclined to use them. The writer may feel that he can speak more freely if he is protected behind the mask of anonymity. At the best, his attitude is not a brave one.

But sometimes the unsigned letter contains material that fairly demands to be used. Such a letter came to the office the other day. It was written, evidently, by one who is not a member but who has had a chance to observe us; who might have been, under more favorable circumstances, sympathetic, we judge, with our ideals; but who, having observed us, finds our ways not altogether to his liking.

Here we have the opportunity for which the poet Burns, in one of his verses, prayed: "To see ourselves as others see us." Perhaps it may be wholesome and beneficial to consider a part at least of the letter.

"He that keepeth Israel neither slumbers nor sleeps." But what of Israel? Are you not, as a people, slumbering while there is work in the vineyard? To one from the outside, you seem a good people, even a pious people,—but a people lacking in dynamic energy—without much propulsion, a people who have rid themselves of many of the negative vices of life without taking up in their stead positive, aggressive virtues. A people ready to believe, but slow to act. . . .

Religious ecstasy, to be vital, must be translated into human deportment; philosophy apart from daily living is worthless; faith without works is dead. If you would worship Jehovah, keep his commandments; if you love God, obey him. If you believe you have his church and his priesthood among you, then labor for the establishment of all you are promised. Turn toward him in love while yet you may, before in fear of the days to come you seek him in terror, but find him not.

The writer's advice, in the second paragraph, is very good. It is not new, for it is the sort of thing we have been endeavoring to teach the people these many years. Let the writer try to learn and practice it himself, and he will be more charitable toward the failures of others when he considers his own. But his advice is good.

Is the picture of our people, as given in his first paragraph, true? Are his charges just? Perhaps we can not determine as a group, but must learn by a humble self-examination. Certainly if the picture is a true one, we have much to do to make amends.

What do our readers think of this question? We should be glad to have some letters on the subject, with the purpose of publishing some of the best.

L. L.

Ignorance is no disgrace: we all began that way. The disgrace is to remain ignorant. He who will learn no more than momentary duties require will always remain ignorant. Knowledge seeks to anticipate the future.

The Sacrifice Offering of Thanksgiving

HE SACRIFICES MOST WHO WILL NOT SACRIFICE

By A. B. Phillips

As a national holiday and festival we trace Thanksgiving Day to an early custom in some of the states by which such a day was set apart and proclaimed by their respective governors, to be observed as a period of thanksgiving to God for his beneficence to man. But this was by no means the origin of the idea itself, for many centuries ago the Jews observed the day of Pentecost, or Harvest Feast, as a day of thanksgiving to God. To the Christian Church this holds special significance because on this day came the descent of the Holy Spirit after the resurrection of Christ. (Acts 2: 1-4.)

The central purpose of Thanksgiving Day, intended to be expressed in gratitude to the beneficent Giver of all good things, has in many instances become somewhat obscured by a hasty observance, or even a total disregard, of its religious meaning. Too often it has degenerated into omnivorous exercises and edacious competition, from which the doctor has sometimes become the chief object of gratitude, and perhaps a principal beneficiary. One who observes the day in this manner is not likely to recognize very keenly that spiritual opportunity which it affords him for closer relationship with God.

Thanksgiving Implies No Selfish Motive

It is a normal trait in man to be thankful for benefits conferred, and to respond by some gift in return as a tangible expression of gratitude. God provided for this natural characteristic of his people by establishing the law of sacrifice and offerings. Of the various sacrifices and offerings commanded in the law of Moses, one was known as the thank offering or the sacrifice of thanksgiving. The spirit of this occasion suggests its close affinity with our own Thanksgiving Day, and to understand the motive of the first is to sense more clearly the true meaning of the other. It offered the approved means of manifesting response to the goodness of God, being therefore offered at the will of the worshiper, and not by compulsion.

This does not mean that the thank offering could be made in disregard of any rules, for there were certain requirements to be observed by all who would make this offering. The offering itself must be motivated by gratitude and unselfish response to God, and therefore the law required that whatever was offered must be without blemish. (Leviticus 3: 1.) This also symbolizing the unblemished nature of Christ the Great Sacrifice. It was doubtless for these same reasons that the sacrifice of thanksgiving was an offering made under the general law of the peace offering, and was one of its three varieties, with the vow offering and the freewill offering, all of them being in recognition of the beneficence of God.

From this it may be seen that the true purpose of Thanksgiving Day is not to gorge one's self, or to indulge in selfish gratifications or self-complacency. In fact, it is not appointed for selfish aims at all; and when we consider that it was doubtless suggested by the ancient custom of the thank offering, we are led to sanctify this day by a sacrifice offered in thanksgiving to our Father in heaven.

Good Enough for God

In selecting the sacrifice we offer to the divine Being we actually do something very important to ourselves, for our own character is made of the motives that actuate us. If we offer inferior things that we would not use ourselves, such irreverence and contempt for God defeats the object of our offering. It is also a violation of the law which requires the offering to be a sacrifice and to be without blemish. Only the best of that which we possess should be offered in sacrifice to him, for inferior things are not good enough for the supreme Creator.

It should not be supposed, however, that intrinsic value alone should be our means of choice. The motives of the heart are infinitely more precious in the divine sight than the glitter of gems or of gold, and he whose gift is measured by true sacrifice finds acceptance at the sacred altar. This is beautifully illustrated by Jesus in his words concerning the poor widow's mite:

I tell you, this poor widow has put in more than all the others; for every one else here put in something from what they had to spare, while she, in her poor circumstances, has put in all she had to live upon.—Luke 21: 3, 4, Twentieth Century Version.

That which is good enough for God is measured by self-denial, and not alone by the values of the world, for the degree of our self-denial measures our loyalty to him. It also expresses the true character of the one who makes the offering. Without sacrifice the heart clings to its old possessions, and Jesus warns us that our hearts will be with our treasures. Epictetus, a Roman philosopher of the first Christian century, observed:

Unless we place our religion and our treasure in the same thing, religion will always be sacrificed.

The thoughts of another writer of more recent time emphasize the value of sacrifice to character in these words:

One never knows himself till he has denied himself. The altar of sacrifice is the touchstone of character.—Gifford.

(Continued on page 1102.)

How Youth May Carry Its Share

By C. A. Skinner

I. BY PAYING TITHING

A. What Is Tithing?

Primarily tithing is one tenth of one's possessions. Then it is one tenth of his increase annually. Tithing is a debt that we owe the same as we owe our school tax, road tax, club dues, or any other form of just debts. If we fail to comply with the law of tithing we do so at the cost of our spiritual growth.

B. Purpose of Tithing.

The purpose of tithing is twofold:

The money is used to help spread the gospel, for the support of the ministry and the missionaries' families and to help the poor and needy.

The fact that we pay our tithing brings untold spiritual blessings into our own lives which can come no other way.

C. Why Pay Tithing Now?

Not only should we pay tithing now but we should pay it continuously; or at least annually. Particularly should it be paid now because the church is facing a crisis and needs our help at this time.

Five Reasons Why We Should Pay Tithing:

1. Because God requires it. It is his plan for running his business.
2. Because it will support the missionaries and their families and help spread the gospel.
3. Because it is a part of the plan of salvation. "He who can not abide a celestial law can not abide a celestial glory."
4. Because it will teach the Saints to put God first and to recognize God's ownership in all things.
5. Because it is an act of worship, and necessary to our spiritual growth.

D. What Are the Necessary Steps in Paying Tithing?

1. Have a clear understanding and a consecrated purpose.
2. Have an intense desire to keep the full law of God.
3. File an inventory with the bishop or his agent in order to determine one's net worth. Tithing is one tenth of the net worth when first paid; after that, one tenth of the increase, annually.

II. BY MAKING AN OFFERING

A. What Is an Offering?

An offering is a gift, a sacrifice, an act of one who offers.

Bishop Carmichael defines offering as: "The highest form of giving. In fact, it is the only real giving. The tithe is a debt and is paid, not given. The same is true with the surplus. The payment of these is an indication of your sense of justice and your honesty; but the offering is something which you give. It, therefore, indicates your love for the thing to which you make the gift. It is the measure of your overflowing devotion."

B. Why Make an Offering Now?

1. "A friend in need is a friend indeed." The church needs our help now, and needs it badly. Our help at this time can do more good now than ever before.

2. For the same reasons that we should pay tithing now.

III. BY MAKING A SPECIAL SACRIFICE

A. What Is a Sacrifice?

A sacrifice is something consecrated to a holy purpose. We sacrifice when we give up something we really desire or need ourselves, in order that our gift may relieve another's need, or serve in a similar good cause.

B. Why Make a Special Sacrifice Now?

1. Because the church of which we are a part is in danger; it has obligations that must be met or our credit can not be maintained.

2. Because making a real sacrifice is necessary to our spiritual growth.

3. It will develop character and make us bigger and better individuals.

4. Never before was the world in a better condition to receive the "Angel Message" than now. Our offering will help take the gospel to those who need it.

C. Some Ways in Which Young People May Sacrifice.

Probably a real sacrifice would not be necessary if all would practice a little self-denial of only a few things such as: joy riding, shows, basket ball, baseball, and other forms of entertainment; then curtail the expenditure of money for unnecessary clothing, neckwear, scarfs, fancy hosiery, jewelry, etc. Forego permanent waves, cold cream, vanishing cream, lip stick, etc. Make it a point to save and deposit everyday five cents, ten cents, or twenty-five cents in a special bank or container and hand to the church through the weekly envelopes.

If this method of sacrifice is followed consistently and persistently by fifty per cent of the membership of the church there will be more money available than is needed to pay the indebtedness of the church.

Judge Not That Ye Be Not Judged

By Evan A. Fry

Judge not, that ye be not judged. For with what judgment ye judge, ye shall be judged, and with what measure ye mete, it shall be measured to you again. And why beholdest thou the mote that is in thy brother's eye, but considerest not the beam that is in thine own eye? Or how wilt thou say to thy brother, Let me pull out the mote out of thine eye; and behold, a beam is in thine own eye? Thou hypocrite, first cast out the beam out of thine own eye; then shalt thou see clearly to cast out the mote out of thy brother's eye.—Matthew 7: 1-5.

Of all the lessons that Christian people must learn, there are two or three which are outstandingly difficult. In my opinion, the three most difficult ones, in the order of their difficulty are, returning good for evil, refusing to judge a brother, and controlling that unruly member, the tongue. Time and again when we think that we have mastered these three lessons, we find ourselves confronted with a situation which takes us by surprise and proves to us that in spite of good resolutions, and in spite of our apparent mastery of these three lessons, we still have a chance to forget and slip just as if we had never been warned against our sins at all.

Why should we not judge our neighbor? In the first place, a Christian's primary object in life should be the perfection of his own soul, and he can not perfect his own soul by hating his neighbor, or shunning him as a pariah, or looking remotely down upon him as an inferior. We perfect our own souls by loving our fellow man, by associating with him as an equal in order that our example before him may bring him to a higher plane of living, and by serving him in love and humility and devotion. The man who passes harsh and hasty judgment can not love the object of his judgment, can not associate with him, and will not serve him.

Harsh judgment of another man's faults makes the Christian blind to his own. The very fact that he is judging one whom he should love is prima facie evidence that there is a beam in the judge's eye that should be removed before he can hope to see the mote which is in the offender's eye. The man who is more concerned about the faults of his neighbor than he is about his own is never very popular on earth, and I rather seriously doubt whether he would be a popular character in heaven. He would be too apt to go around asking new arrivals in the heavenly realms, "Why, how on earth did you get here?" in a tone of pained surprise.

Most of our harsh judgments of others are due to sheer ignorance. Many times within the last few years have I had this truth brought home to me personally. More times than I should care to admit I have formed a mental or verbal judgment about some one of my acquaintance, and have persistently held that judgment to be true, only to find out to my chagrin and sorrow that I was totally mistaken. I have consistently tried to believe the best about people until the worst was proved, and even then to maintain an open mind, but I am amazed at the many times when I have failed to judge charitably, as careful as I think I am to do so. Knowing a person, even slightly, sometimes makes all the difference in the world.

Have you ever seen a person at a distance—perhaps even been mildly acquainted with him—and been repulsed or antagonized by something within his nature that you couldn't explain? And then have you ever had the experience of forming a really close contact with that person—perhaps only in an intimate conversation that may be very short—and emerging from that closer acquaintance with a totally new conception of the kind of character you have been judging? Several such conversations stand out in my memory, in which my whole mental attitude towards some person has been changed, and usually, if not always, changed for the better. In fact, so often have I found myself to be mistaken, that at last I am being forced by cruel experience to admit that probably nobody is as bad as he seems, and that there is a large streak of good somewhere in the vilest wretch, if one only knows where to look for it.

Most racial and national and class hatreds are fostered in about the same way that private hates and prejudices are fostered. Some clever and unscrupulous men will inculcate into the minds of a nation that some other nation is composed exclusively of a bunch of grasping thieves and cutthroats, only waiting a chance to gobble up everything surrounding their own territory. The citizens immediately pass judgment, and believe, in their ignorance, all that their clever demagogues have told them. Do you remember how amazed you were during the World War to hear that the soldiers of opposite sides would often meet and swap stories and tobacco and surplus clothing, just as if they were friends? They might have been friends all the time, save for the biased and ignorant judgment of some one else. Why do churches fight each other, each one asserting that it is right in every particular, and insinuating, if not openly professing that the people of other denominations are pretty good, but hopeless deficient souls? Judge not thy neighbor's religion, lest he also judge thee. If you think yours is better, you are perfectly at liberty to try to bring him to your way of thinking, but don't start your campaign with the assertion that he is all wrong and that he surely can't be sincere in believing the rot that he does.

Whenever you find yourself judging a fellow man, let me suggest that you do two things before you proceed: first, examine yourself to see whether you are blameless before God and man, and second, get better acquainted with the object of your blame, and see whether you still want to judge him after a more intimate acquaintance. As we all hope some day to stand before the great judgment bar of God, it behooves each one of us to show mercy in our earthly judgments of fellow mortals, that when God shall view our faults, he may judge us with the mercy that we have extended to other men in this life.

Educational Phases of the Present Crisis

By C. B. Woodstock

The church faces an immediate need of $138,000 before December 31. The Presiding Bishopric have clearly shown the greatest necessity that the tithes and offerings for the months of November and December be not less than this amount. We are one great family of a hundred thousand people and most important family interests are at stake.

The raising of $138,000 is the first part of a definite program of debt reduction and the securing of funds for the necessary running expenses of the church, through the payment of tithes, surplus and offering. The details of the complete program being worked out by the Presiding Bishopric will require the enlistment of each member and friend of the church to the extent of his ability to give, even in personal and family sacrifice, that the work of the church may go on.

The First Presidency has issued a call to the membership, (See Saints' Herald, October 21) for a hearty and full compliance at once with the financial law of the church. That is, that each one shall make out his or her inventory to determine the amount of tithing now due, and to begin to make substantial payments of tithing, at once. Further, that in a spirit of "sacrificial economy," families, old and young, all, shall endeavor to save and to give, even to the point of definite personal sacrifice, that the necessary funds be not lacking.

There are so many of us in the church that the weight of financial necessity is likely to rest but lightly upon any one, or may escape us individually, altogether. This has been the trouble in the past. The depression finds our church in a serious financial situation chiefly because we, as a whole, have not been seriously "about our Father's business." We have not consistently honored the law the Lord has given through obedience to which we have been promised material and spiritual blessing.

"Gather the Tithes Into My Storehouse"

It is assumed that adult members of the church are conversant with the financial law. Repeatedly the call has come to them, and will continue to come, that they recognize their stewardship, that they render an accounting as unto the Lord, and that they honor God, their senior partner, in the tithes which are his.

Perhaps the testing time for which we have looked these many years is now more fully upon us. It stands us in hand to learn well our duty, and to hasten our compliance with the law if we have delayed in the past. We now have an utmost urge that we prove our faith by our works. It is not a question of whether the cause shall fail. The church is divinely planted and will accomplish divine purposes. It may have to go on, however handicapped, without our assistance, and we shall fall by the way.

An Adult Project

For years the adults have been studying stewardship, the Financial Law and problems of Zion building. Before them now is a concrete and definite project. Much as we know about stewardship responsibility, inventories, budgets, financial statements and tithing reports, how many adults have actually complied with the spirit and the letter of the law?

It is certain that if all the possessions of our membership were properly inventoried and the tithe paid now, there would be an abundance to liquidate the debt, to rehabilitate the missionary force and to proceed with an aggressive Zion program, without a month's delay.

Here, then is the project as set out by the First Presidency and Presiding Bishopric. What is to hinder 85, 90, or 100 per cent of the adult membership in every branch making out their inventories at once, making a cash payment, wholly or in part, now, and providing for the payment of any balance as soon as possible within the next few months? This with the response to the sacrifice offerings in November and December, together with the Christmas offering, would assure in the next few weeks the necessary $138,000 which must be in hand by January 1, 1932. It would also guarantee an income in succeeding months which would enable the Presiding Bishopric to cancel the indebtedness of the church at an early date and to return the missionaries to their fields.

At the same time we would be learning the law of tithing most satisfactorily. Not only would we find joy in the doing, but the very spirit of our compliance with a divine law would bring us in touch with heavenly forces, and give our work an impetus heretofore unknown.

A Young People's Project

The records of the church show that there are 20,400 young people between the ages of 15 and 25. Whether the church shall stand and fulfill in any great measure its mission in the next two or three decades depends largely upon the response which will be made to the gospel call by those now in their teens and early twenties.

It is imperative that with other phases of the gospel plan, the financial law be understood by our youth and that they be encouraged to share its obligations, that in early life they may appreciate its blessings. As an educational opportunity the present financial need of the church provides a most excellent occasion for actual participation of every youth of the church in a program of "sacrificial economy" which will make prompt payment of tithes and offerings not only possible, as a matter of duty, but a source of happy satisfaction.

A call is going out from the First Presidency to the pastors of each branch asking for the mobilization of all the forces of the branch for the accomplishment of the supreme task now confronting the church. Attention of the pastor is called to the Young People's Division as a part of the "undiscovered resources" of the branch. The call is timely and we feel sure will meet hearty support from young people's leaders and a hearty response from the young people, themselves.

In brief, the plan contemplates:

1. An informal meeting of the pastor and branch solicitor with a council of young people and their leaders to discuss the financial situation confronting the church and to organize for the young people's tithing project within the church.
2. At a mass meeting of young people read the official call of the First Presidency and enlist each and all in ways of helping.
3. At this or subsequent meetings discuss the method and purpose of the inventory and the annual tithing report. Secure from the branch solicitor inventory and tithing report blanks, and see that each young person is supplied.
4. Organize under the branch solicitor and pastor for the task of securing an inventory or an annual tithing report from 100 per cent of the young people from fifteen to twenty-five years of age. Urge the immediate payment of all tithing now due, if possible.
5. Enter with enthusiasm into the sacrifice period of November and December. Discover specific ways in which through personal self-denial and sacrifice money may be saved and given to the church in this time of extreme need as a "sacrifice offering."

6. Devise a local plan for the Young People's Division for the coming year through which the financial program of the church shall receive the continued support of each individual up to the maximum power of his ability to earn, to save and to give.
7. The payment of tithes and offering to the general church does not relieve one of the duty and privilege of making regular contributions to the upkeep of the local branch. This with the Christmas offering should receive regular attention.

What branches will report 100 per cent, or even a high percentage of their young people having made out inventories, having paid part or all of their tithing due, and having made a sacrifice offering—all before January 1, 1932?

Young People's Division supervisors, consult your pastor and branch solicitor at once. Secure the advantage of an early start. Six weeks to January 1. Let's go!

Report of the Department of Statistics for October

WITH A SPECIAL NOTE ON SUBMITTING REPORTS

By Carroll L. Olson

During the month of October the following changes took place in the total enrollment of the church:

Total enrollment of the church October 1, 1931.....	110,108
October baptisms .....	316
Gains from unknown .....	13
Gains by correction .....	29
Total gain .....	358
Deaths .....	89
Expulsions .....	26
Loss by correction .....	12
Total loss .....	127
Net gain during the month.....	231

Total enrollment of the church November 1, 1931....110,339

The following miscellaneous reports were also received:

Transfers .....	483
Blessings .....	181
Marriages .....	92
Ordinations .....	34
Divorces .....	5
Silences .....	5
Releases .....	3
Restored .....	2
New branch .....	1

The total of three hundred and sixteen baptisms were distributed as follows:

Zion and the stakes .....	22
United States and Canada, outside the stakes .....	216
Australian Mission .....	44
Society Islands Mission .....	31
Swedish Mission .....	2
Hawaiian Mission .....	1
Total .....	316

The total of baptisms for October was slightly larger than would have been expected under the circumstances, due to the inclusion of the Australian and Society Islands baptisms. These two missions report quarterly, so that their totals really cover a period of three months.

The following branches or missions in the United States and Canada outside the stakes reported five baptisms or more each:

Willapi, Washington .....	16
East Jordan, Michigan .....	15
Haileyville, Oklahoma .....	11
Hot Springs, Arkansas .....	8
Coeur d'Alene, Idaho .....	7
San Bernardino, California .....	7
Detroit, Michigan .....	6
Kennett, Missouri .....	6
Kirtland, Ohio .....	6
Vancouver, Washington .....	5

Some confusion has arisen regarding the present status of the Department of Statistics and the proper manner of sending in reports, and because of this one of our missionaries suggested that we make a statement in the Herald explaining the situation. In harmony with this suggestion we wish to make the following explanation:

There will be no change in the manner of reporting. Reports of baptism, blessing, marriage, death, transfer, etc., should continue to be sent to our office at The Auditorium, Independence, Missouri. Because of our greatly reduced departmental appropriation, however, the work of the department must be reduced to the minimum and will be concerned almost entirely with routine matters. An assistant will be employed half-time to prepare the material that must be sent to the local branch, district and stake secretaries, and some additional help is being arranged for to take care of the general records. The writer has agreed to continue in his supervision of the department and to assist in the work where possible outside of office hours. We have all pledged ourselves to make the best of the present situation, and the continued cooperation of all is earnestly solicited in order that the work may be a success.

Guiding the Nursery Child

By Mrs. Bertha Stevens,

806 North Seventh Street, Phoenix, Arizona.

STUDY HELPS FOR PARENTS AND WORKERS IN THE NURSERY DEPARTMENT OF THE CHURCH SCHOOL

The text, Guiding the Nursery Child, may be ordered from the Herald Publishing House, price $1.25.

References, Guiding the Nursery Child, pages 57-63, 99, 117, 118, 151-154.

LESSON ELEVEN

Religious development of the little child.

Study Outline

I. Religion.

- a. What is it?
- b. What is its relationship to other phases of life—physical, mental, emotional and social?
- c. The impulse to worship inborn.
- d. Forms of worship learned.
- e. Need for guidance in how and what to worship.

II. The child's idea of God.

- a. Concrete—thinks of heavenly Father in terms of earthly father.
- b. Should be based on love rather than fear.
- c. Should be adequate for his stage of development.

III. Problems commonly met in guiding the little child's religious development.

- a. Wrong ideas of God.
- b. Most adult concepts of religion deal in abstract terms. The little child has no mental picture for abstract terms as "faith," "truth," "justice," "pity," etc. His mental images are objective. He thinks in terms of objects. For example, the thought of a "doll" or a "lion" to a child is a mental picture of a doll or a lion. Adults use "verbal" or word imagery. That is, the adult's thought of a lion is usually in terms of the word lion, the object itself not appearing in his mind or consciousness. This substitution of verbal or word imagery for object imagery comes slowly and gradually.

It is significant that in the measurement of intelligence the defining of abstract words—pity, revenge, charity, envy, justice, etc., is placed at the twelve-year level. In his remarks on this point Doctor Terman says, "One may be surprised that the ability to define common abstract words should develop so late. Most children who have had anything like ordinary home or school environment have doubtless heard all these words countless times before the age of twelve years. Nevertheless, statistics from the test show unmistakably that before this age such words have but limited and vague meaning. Other vocabulary studies confirm this fact so completely that we may say there is hardly any trait in which twelve-to-fourteen year intelligence more uniformly excels that of the nine-or-ten year level." So it is futile to talk to a little child about faith and truth. "Truth" is an adult conception, meaningless to him. Only as we live it and provide situations where living it is pleasurable and satisfying to him can we lead him gradually into a conception of what truth really is. So it is with other desirable religious concepts.

- c. How may we teach a child to pray?
- d. How may we judge whether we are succeeding in our religious teaching?

We have left this lesson on the religious development of the little child to the last. Perhaps if we were to revise these study outlines we would place it at the first. It often happens that way. We may think the other phases of life so important as a proper foundation of religious development that we feel impelled to understand them first. They are important, but on the other hand since truly religious experiences can not be had, apart from these physical, social, mental and emotional phases of life, perhaps we ought to consider religion first. For after all, one's religion, one's philosophy of life, must motivate and guide the development of these various other phases. This is true even of the little tot although his religious concepts must necessarily be on the nursery age level.

At any rate perhaps our study of the whole child has led us to see how all these factors are inseparably woven together. Religion is in and around and through all of them if we are doing our work acceptably as stewards of the young lives intrusted to our care and guidance. May we do our work in the spirit of the loving, gentle Master.

The December lesson will be in the form of an objective review to check up on our year's study. It might be a good plan to go over the text and the lesson outlines before the review appears.

To Your Knees, O Israel!

By Joseph Luff

I know thy works, that thou art neither cold nor hot. I would thou wert cold or hot. So then because thou art lukewarm, and neither cold nor hot, I will spue thee out of my mouth. Because thou sayest, I am rich, and increased with goods, and have need of nothing; and knowest not that thou art wretched, and miserable, and poor, and blind, and naked: I counsel thee to buy of me gold tried in the fire, that thou mayest be rich: and white raiment, that thou mayest be clothed, and that the shame of thy nakedness do not appear; and anoint thine eyes with eyesalve, that thou mayest see. As many as I love, I rebuke and chasten: be zealous, therefore, and repent. Behold, I stand at the door, and knock: If any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me.—Revelation 3: 15-20.

A knowledge of existing conditions and a foresight of those approaching, unless divine intervention prevents, suggests the heading of this article as well as what follows.

In the scriptural quotation above, two views of a situation that existed in the church at Laodicea are stated in strong, plain language. One is the view of the church itself and the other is the view of Christ—"the amen, the beginning of the creation of God." Those views differ widely. The church—less than one hundred years old—had been brought into being under the operation of the divine forces that attended the gospel in the first century, and doubtless had experienced in rich measure the spiritual excellencies of which we read in the New Testament. Yet in that brief period it had so degenerated that its change of vision and attitude was working out its complete damnation. Jesus, whose name they were bearing and of whose doctrine they were custodians, was so disgusted with them and so nauseated with their course that he was ready to spue them out of his mouth. They were neither hot nor cold. That is, they were calling him, Lord, Lord, while his laws were without the honor of their observance. They were revelling in the midst of an abundance of such things as they thought made them "rich, increased with goods, and in need of nothing," evidently glorying in the thought that they were in high rating with God and in heaven. Such was the measure of their assets as viewed by themselves. They accounted themselves as the disciples of Christ.

But as Jesus appraised them and their possessions, what was the announcement: "Thou art wretched and miserable and poor and blind and naked. Quite a difference. What to them was a picture of wisdom and luxury to God and Christ was a display of ignorance and spiritual poverty most deplorable and heart-sickening. They estimated their bank account by the volume of the earthly possessions. Jesus told what their check was worth in heaven. They were extolling their concept of Christ as they visioned him in their midst, while as a fact he was not among them at all. He was outside, knocking and begging for admission, and promising that if even any man would respond to his appeal and open the door, he would enter and sup with that man. Out of the whole group he pleaded for response by even one person.

The picture is pathetic, and the statement is significant: "I would that ye were either cold or hot." Either was better than nauseating lukewarmness. He would rather that they would disown him entirely than indulge in the mockery of pretended discipleship while yet they were making worldly pursuits their delight and were polluting his house with the elements they had gathered from without. They were counseled to anoint their eyes with eye-salve so they might see things as they really were, as God saw them. White raiment (which elsewhere is said to be the righteousness of the Saints), was recommended to hide the shame of their nakedness. This clearly shows they were without that righteousness. Gold, tried in the fire, the product of the crucible, not of the gilders, was called for as evidence of riches. Think of it, reader, the church of Christ, in one generation, had changed from a spectacle of delight to God into a picture of hideous mein, and yet believed itself to be the embodiment of gospel excellence. How applicable here the words of God as written by Jeremiah (2: 21): "I had planted thee a noble vine, . . . how then art thou turned into the degenerate plant of a strange vine unto me."

How this divine arraignment was received by the Saints at Laodicea when John delivered it is not a matter of history. We can only imagine the astonishment manifested and perhaps the indignation. But the lesson is before us and to what extent are we profited by it? In Matthew 23: 29-34 Jesus is reported as having exposed and condemned the Jews for doing the very things they were bewailing in the conduct of their fathers. Is it not just as possible that we may be duplicating Laodicea while we are verbally decrying it? Sacred history furnishes some striking incidents of God's having to make examples of many persons by punishing them for evils they themselves had taught the people to avoid.

Paul wrote to the Romans (see 2: 1): "Therefore art thou inexcusable, O man, whosoever thou art that judgest: for wherein thou judgest another, thou condemnest thyself; for thou that judgest doest the same things."

In his first Corinthian letter (see 10: 2-12), he recites a number of items of misconduct that brought down upon even illustrious ones the displeasure and severe punishment of God, and then he adds these words: "Now all these things happened unto them for ensamples: and they are written for our admonition, upon whom the ends of the world are come. Wherefore let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall." (11, 12.)

This warning indicates that that ground would always remain slippery and dangerous. There is nothing to intimate that God would sprinkle salt or ashes or sawdust or other safeguards on those slippery places for the benefit or greater safety of later generations, so that they might promenade there with safety. The warning is written in capital letters, "TAKE HEED—BEWARE," or in other words, "Keep off if you want to remain on your feet. Great Men fell here." It is exactly in principle what was said to Adam about a certain tree, and Adam was left to do as he pleased. Human agency is not destroyed, but the warning placards are hung before our eyes.

But just as the opinions of God and of the church differed in the Laodicean case, so they do now. Through Isaiah God told us that his thoughts and ways differed from man's but that his thoughts were the ones that would finally obtain, and yet we persistently sandwich our own notions into the divine program intrusted to us, and with this mixture of the flesh and the Spirit, we are foolish enough to anticipate the glorious outcome that was promised alone upon the condition that God's way alone should characterize the operations. "Are ye so foolish? having begun in the Spirit, are ye now made perfect by the flesh?" was written by Paul to the Galatians (3: 3), and if he were here now, his question would be as fully justified and as timely.

A few years ago one of the church's then prominent elders was invited to occupy with others the pulpit of the Kirtland Temple during a prayer and testimony service. While there seated and listening to the testimonies, prayers, songs, and manifestations, a mental picture engaged him in which a tier of shelves appeared and from the things that loaded the lower one, the Saints seemed to be helping themselves and feeling delighted. The upper shelves seemed to be loaded with richer treasures, increasing in excellence and value to the top one. While dwelling in thought upon this picture, his mind was enlightened by what he took to be the Good Spirit and the import of the following language was fed to his soul:

The treasury of my grace is replete with blessings richer than they have known, provided by me, and intended for the enrichment and sanctification of the estate of my people, but they can not be reached by them from the ground which they now occupy. If, therefore, ye desire these things that they may make for my glory in the building up and establishment of my kingdom on earth, and to this end would lengthen the arms of your faith for acquirement, stand ye in high and holy places, remembering that the high places are those unto which I sought to lift you when ye were chosen out of the world, and they can not remain holy if invaded by those pleasures which belong to the estate from whence ye were chosen, nor by the indulgence of those things not commended of me and that do not minister to holiness. In the cheerful separation of yourselves from these things for my sake, and in your obedience to my law is revealed the sincerity and the degree of the love you profess for me, for love hath within itself all the persuasion to obedience and sacrifice.

It has again and again been declared unto you that the set time to hasten my work is at hand, but my adversary, whose mission is to destroy, hath given greater heed to this than have ye, in that he has greatly multiplied his emissaries of service and to the extent of his power, has given them angelic habiliments insomuch that my people, by reason of this transformation, have been deceived and have invited into their lives and their homes and their assemblies, many things which before they had disallowed and decried. These innovations have rendered less holy the places where it has been my purpose to walk in communion with my disciples, yea, they have crowded the resorts of my heritage till they have made the places too narrow for my feet and there is small room for me to walk in their midst.

If ye love these more than me, then be content with the fruit they yield, but if ye will be strong in my strength and share in my triumph, and if ye account my wisdom sufficient unto the mission given me of my Father (which purposes your final redemption) then be advised of me and love as I have loved, and feed ye alone at the table my hand hath spread, and consider it your glory to deny yourselves even to the uttermost, even as I have done that my Father might be glorified and ye might have joy. Remember that with God change is not known and his pleasure is still in those things alone which have given him delight from the beginning.

Early experiences in the church around fifty years ago, when we were small of number and abstinence from worldly pursuits and pleasures and strict observance of devotional exercises in the family circles, were conspicuous characteristics and our fidelity thereto made us to world observers a "peculiar people"—cranks. When the obligations of the gospel were believed to be sufficient for us to both God and man, and covenants and oaths by any of us elsewhere were considered reflective upon our church integrity. When these were the conditions our heavenly experiences were such in blissful illumination and marvelous extent as to make us hope and calculate that with the increase of our numbers and the lapse of years, that spiritual equipment would mark us a marvel of church life and divine revelation and our godly influence as a "peculiar people" would be astounding. But with the half century's termination, we see that our popularity with the world is resulting more from our adoption of its ways and becoming like it than from the world's recognition of the divinity of our doctrines and organization and the superior excellence of our spiritual endowment. They have won us more than our gospel has won them. They think we are becoming more companionable and less peculiar and we think we have prospered admirably; but what does God think? Our earthly rating isn't worth inquiring into. How are we rated in heaven? Let us not forget Laodicea.

If some angel from heaven should come or some Jeremiah should rise with a commission from God to address us, would the appeal not be as in the book that carries his name: "Stand ye in the ways, and see, and ask for the old paths, where is the good way, and walk therein, and ye shall find rest for your souls." (6: 16.) Or in the words of my headline, "To your knees, O Israel." Or if Jesus should be heard from in person, after inspecting our parade of property and amusements and lodge affiliations and increasing popularity with the world, would he not repeat his words as recorded in Matthew 16: 26, changing only a word or two to suit the application, and would we not have this sentence saturated with his tears: What is the church profited if it gain the whole world and lose its own soul, or what shall it now give to regain its soul?

Reader, the writer of this does not consider himself a pessimist. Perhaps he is in your eyes; but if he is, yet honestly portrays facts, is it not better to be a pessimist and right than an optimist and wrong? Jeremiah carried that brand, but his pessimism was born of God. Though the writer be neither a prophet nor the son of a prophet, the fact of God's unchangeability and the history of his dealings with conditions, the present picture and the fast closing of "this generation" crowd the parable of the ten virgins and the words of Jesus in Luke 12: 14 upon his mind, and these, accompanied by an urge that makes the taking up of his pen seem like a solemn duty, are the reasons for this loud appeal, "To your knees, O Israel."

Jesus said, "Follow thou me." "Learn of me." Let us ask ourselves these questions: Are we his followers? Would a close confinement to "his steps" lead us to the places, the amusements, the societies, and the habits that spell our course today? Or do the words: "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross and follow me," call for a change in our individual or collective procedure? It will not require a microscope to help us answer these questions. They must be answered, however, and unless the writer's zeal has unbalanced his judgment, they must be answered quickly and be resultant in a reformation, or the eyes that refuse to open in response to tender appeal will be pried open by the throes of bitter experience.

Gratitude is a mark of the higher forms of creation. In the ranks of men and animals there are those who have no capacity for being thankful. Perhaps there are even more who sense no feeling of gratitude to God than there are who feel none to men.

The lack of gratitude can only be likened to the lack of a sense of humor, insensibility to pain or temperature, or a lack of appreciation of beauty. It identifies one with the brute in creation.

Weekly Health Letter

Number Seventeen

By A. W. Teel, M. D., Church Physician

The Singing Voice.—2

Many defects of the singing voice are due to improper methods of breathing. It should be cultivated, in order to obtain the purest and richest tones. Ordinary methods of breathing will furnish sufficient oxygen for the blood, but they are poorly suited for singing. Perfect control of the expiratory current of air gives the greatest chest capacity, and at the same time, furnishes sufficient control of the air, for phonatory purposes.

In order to have the proper quality or timbre, it is necessary to cultivate a vast portion of the upper part of the thorax. This is brought about by a complex coordination of the muscles of the chest walls, including those of the larynx, the diaphragm, and the abdominal walls, care being taken that undue tension is not made on the laryngeal muscles, as it is necessary for them to be "at ease" to obtain the best results. The most beautiful song, coming from an over-tensed larynx, ruins what would otherwise be artistic singing.

The chest cavity, being conical shaped, with its apex at the top, may be increased in all its diameters by its musculature. In order to give the lungs the greatest capacity, all these muscles should be used to fill the lungs. The muscles of the ribs (intercostals) and the diaphragm are especially important for this type and are usually spoken of as the inferior costals. The ribs and the sternum, below the sixth rib, control the upward and outward movement. This with the downward movement of the diaphragm, increases the abdominal convexity, pushing the abdominal viscera with it.

According to the great artists, the expiratory current is hindered by allowing the abdominal walls to participate in this distension. Therefore, the lower portion of the abdominal walls should be retracted while the upper portion is distended. The upper chest walls should remain in the first position they assumed in deep inspiration, which, by the aid of the thoracic cavity, imparts resonance to the voice. Failure to fix the upper chest wall, as described, will result in the voice taking various tonal qualities as it registers from one to the other. This, which in the tonal qualities is not always due to a failure to fix the upper chest wall, but may also arise from improper placement of the soft palate.

According to the best authorities, deviations from the above described type of breathing have been obscured or compensated in other ways—by the brilliancy of vocal execution and the mental or spiritual conceptions which dominate the mind and the body during the singing.

Unduly enlarged tonsils, especially if they should be adherent to the muscular tissues, should be properly removed. Sometimes, after the removal of the tonsils, there seems to be some detrimental effect to the voice, which soon passes away—possibly in a few weeks—and then the voice begins to show the value of the procedure.

There are various chronic inflammations of the pharynx which should be corrected. Adenoids, while not commonly present in adults, produce a dead, nasal quality, noted by its absence of nasal resonance. One of the most commonly known troubles of the singers is a chronic pharyngitis, ordinarily known as "clergyman's sore throat," which is characterized by a swelling (edema) of the muscles of the pharynx and soft palate, restricting them in their movements.

The tone performs an important function in regulating the resonant chambers of the mouth, which is frequently hindered by lingual tonsils, "tongue-tie," absence of some of the front teeth, or marked irregularity of them. As has already been emphasized, the nasal chambers are the chief sounding boards of the voice, and do, directly, and indirectly, have a great deal to do with pharyngeal and laryngeal infections. I might say a great deal more concerning the defects of the singing voice, due to tone blindness, etc., but will leave that for further discussions, if requested, at some future time.

Let Us Be Doers of the Word

By Clara Mae Winquist

I sometimes sit and wonder
As the day fades into the night,
How people can be happy,
Without this glorious light.

It brings to me sweet comfort,
And rest to my weary soul.
How could we live with no vision,
Without some definite goal?

It seems to me of all people,
We are most wonderfully blest;
Then let us be up and doing,
Doing our very best.

Let us work with a willing hand,
With a heart that is tried and true,
To make this work a grand success,
For "blessed are they that do."

NEWS OF CHURCH AND HOME

Address all news and letters to Editors of the Herald, Box 237, Independence, Missouri. Correspondents are requested to make their letters brief. The Editors reserve the right, on account of space limitations, to shorten all letters as circumstances require.

Great Falls, Montana

Fall months are bringing increased attendance to services held in Great Falls, Montana. There has been an increase in spirituality as well, and over all a peaceful feeling of unity prevails.

Last Sunday we enjoyed one of the best sacrament services in the history of the branch. The document sent out by the presidency in regard to the present crisis was read. From the heart of each one present there issued a greater desire to consecrate more time and means that the work might go forward.

As Thanksgiving time draws near and we take a retrospective view of conditions in our branch we see material blessings, as well, for which we are grateful. Although the economic depression has not passed us by without making its sting felt, each family of Saints is being provided with means whereby the actual necessities are obtained.

We have dispensed with regular Sunday evening preaching services and are meeting in the homes of isolated Saints in and around Great Falls. The greater part of the evening is spent singing from the new Saints' Hymnal. The blessing of children or any other ordinance required by the isolated family is taken care of at these services. Requests that we come again indicate good is being accomplished.

Those who have visited our city and occupied in the pulpit of late have been Elder Ben S. Tanner, of Bevier, Missouri; Patriarch George W. Thorburn, of Deer Lodge, Montana, and Elder L. O. Wildermuth, missionary to Eastern Montana District. The sermons delivered by these ministers were greatly appreciated, being filled with encouraging admonition.

Great Falls branch is united in loyalty to the leaders of the church, and prays for the triumph of the work.

Bothwell, Ontario

Splendid weather favored the members of this branch on their anniversary services Sunday, November 1. The church was prettily decorated with flowers and foliage, giving every appearance of harvest. Members from all churches in the district were present for the opening service at 9.30 when the sacrament was served.

Elder D. J. Williams, of Chatham, the district president, was the 11 a. m. speaker, and his subject matter was based on the anniversary time of Israel of old, when they celebrated the Passover. Anniversaries are happy times; they are times when we look backward and also forward to coming responsibilities. Brother William's remarks were timely and well received.

Noon lunch had been prepared by the women of the branch, and a wholesome repast was enjoyed by everyone.

Elder William I. Fligg, missionary of London District and the visiting speaker, spoke at 3 p. m. For a time he chose to discuss the need of seeking and finding God. In this connection he used as a text: "Seek ye the Lord while he may be found." (Isaiah 55:6.) He recounted some conditions of the present age which bespeak the distress and commotion of the world. "We must know God," urged the speaker.

The choir work under the direction of Sister Edith Moore, of Windsor, district chorister, was well prepared and rendered. The special numbers of soloists, duets, and quartets added attractiveness to the day's services.

Elder Fligg again spoke to members and friends in the evening. Scriptural foundation for his sermon was 1 Corinthians 12.

Monday evening the Dramatic Club of London Branch gave the play, "The Path Across the Hill." The cast was well balanced, each taking his part well. Elder Fligg remained for the rest of the week, giving four lectures on "The Destiny of Man Here and Hereafter" from a chart. Sunday evening, November 8, he spoke to a large congregation. "The Kingdom of God and its Relation to Our Social and Industrial Problems" was his subject. We feel that much good was done by Brother Fligg's sermons.

Warton Church Building Is Dedicated

From Warton, Ontario, Elder D. B. Perkins sends the press story of the recent dedicatory services of the local church. This interesting account appeared in the local paper, The Canadian Echo:

"In the summer of 1924, a transfer of real estate was made between the Church of Christ, grantor, and the 'Reorganized Latter Day Saints,' grantees, whereby the latter acquired through purchase, their present edifice.

"At the time of purchase, this parcel of land and building thereon were in need of immediate repairs. The congregation has since been assisting the women's department, that the status has been enhanced to date in value as well as appearance.

"As Sunday broke with its autumn breezes plus the beautiful sunlight, the members of the various congregations of Reorganized Latter Day Saint Church began to arrive in town until at 9.30 a. m. prayer service commenced under the direction and supervision of Apostle R. S. Budd, of Independence, Missouri, with the church well filled.

"Apostle R. S. Budd was the speaker at the 11 o'clock service, taking as his theme, "The Building of Our Homes," from which he stressed the necessity of having love in the home; that parents should love their children, and in turn, gain the respect of their family; resulting in citizens that would be an honor to any community to own.

"The dedication service proper was at 2.30, with seating capacity at a premium. Elder Dayton read the 'call to assembly' which was followed by a hymn and prayer offered by Elder James Morrison, of Owen Sound. Miss Mazie Reid, accompanied by her sister at the piano, gave a violin selection. Then Elder Gordon Farrow, of Warton, gave a short sketch of the history of the exchange of properties, and work accomplished to date, later presenting both deed and key to Apostle R. S. Budd, who thanked said congregation for same. After the reading, a duet was rendered by Messrs. Farrow. The words of Christ as recorded by Matthew, 'I will build my church,' were used by Apostle Budd in stressing the necessity of having apostles, prophets, evangelists, teachers, etc., in the church today as in former times as recorded in the Galatian letter, for the edifying and strengthening of the body of Christ, until they all become as a perfect man in Christ Jesus.

"After Messrs. Farrow, Vickers, Perkins and Farrow sang in a quartet, Apostle Budd presented the deed to the local bishop's agent as trustee, and the key he gave to the pastor, D. B. Perkins, charging him with the care of said building and the heavy charge of caring for the flock. The pastor then thanked Apostle Budd for the key and gave an outline of his intentions in taking care of so great a charge.

"The 7 p. m. preaching service was in charge of Elder H. A. Dayton, who took as his text, "He that putteth his hand to the plow and turning back, is not worthy of the Kingdom of God." This service brought to a close a dedicatory day replete in spiritual experiences to those who attended these services."

Conference in Southern Nebraska

Southern Nebraska district conference was held in Lincoln, Saturday and Sunday, November 7 and 8. Apostle E. J. Gleazer and District President O. L. D'Arcy were in charge.

A spiritual prayer meeting opened the sessions which gave a splendid tone to the conference. A special talk on church finances was given by Apostle E. J. Gleazer, who, while giving voice to his appreciation of the grave situation in which the institution finds itself, also expressed his conviction that out of the trial and testing time will arise a people which will carry forward to triumphal accomplishment the commission delivered to this church in 1830.

Following reports in the afternoon, Brother O. L. D'Arcy was elected district president, and a policy of graded contributions from the various branches and groups in the district was adopted which will provide a fund from which the expenses incurred in his ministry will be met. Brother D'Arcy, in making the adjustments necessitated by his "leave of absence" from the missionary roll of the church, has engaged in a business enterprise at Auburn which, to succeed, will demand much application on his part; but his missionary zeal is unabated and his labors will still be consecrated to the cause he loves, insofar as he will be able to give them. In this service he is joined whole-heartedly by his good wife whose presence at the conference was appreciated by all. Brother D'Arcy nominated High Priest B. A. Anderson and Elder W. E. Poague as counselors. Their names were approved.

Sister Black, of Grand Island, was reelected secretary, and also elected treasurer, in which capacity she will attend to the matter of collecting and disbursing the district missionary fund above referred to. Bishop's Agent E. N. Byergo, of Nebraska City, was unanimously sustained in that appointment.

The evening session of Saturday and the forenoon and evening sessions of Sunday were devoted to sermons by Apostle Gleazer in which many things were said to inspire and stimulate the Saints to their best devotion and endeavors. Only good can result from a spirit of conviction and inspirational assurance. While what Brother Gleazer offered in his analyses of world and church conditions was sufficiently disturbing to arouse a degree of apprehension in the minds of his hearers, it was accompanied by marked optimism and faith that the people of God will withstand the waves of present adversity and by a careful observance of God's laws and God's ways, will emerge a better, though chastened group, which through obedience and compliance will become the light God intended as a beacon for a people floundering in the mazes of wrong social adjustments.

A special meeting with the priesthood of the district Sunday afternoon preceded a visit to the beautiful Nebraska State capital, a pilgrimage which through the services and explanations of a competent guide, was one long to be remembered. A sacrament, prayer, and testimony meeting followed, marked by the spirit of consecration and good-fellowship.

The entertainment Friday evening was in honor of visiting Saints. It consisted of orchestral numbers in charge of Sister Eunice Fulton, a group of vocal numbers by Sister Dorothy Jensen, a piano solo by Rogene Anderson, and a story, "The Quest of the Yellow Pearl," by D. C. McFarlane, told by Sister Audentia Anderson. Sister Jensen sang a solo Sunday morning as did Sister Margaret Jones. Sister Jones also sang in the evening. Both these young sisters are students at the University of Nebraska. Sister Congrove gave a musical reading of Edgar Guest's poem, "It Takes a Heap o' Livin' in a House to Make a Home"; Sister Black was at the piano. These women are from Grand Island where is to be found a small but devoted group of members.

One hundred and ten were present at the church school session Sunday morning. Brother Poague, local superintendent, was in charge. He also had charge of the Friday evening entertainment and contributed a solo on Sunday evening.

Delegates to the next General Conference were selected: Brother and Sister D'Arcy, Brother and Sister B. M. Anderson, Brother Gleazer, Brother Lenox, and Brother Poague.

Splendid meals were served at the church noon and evening, Saturday and Sunday. Sister Katie Hale was in charge of the kitchen, and Sister W. E. Farrar managed the dining room service. These women were supported by a corps of able helpers. To these and to the efficient deacons who shared their labors, the conference tendered thanks.

Kirtland, Ohio

The October sacrament meeting was held within the sacred walls of the Temple.

October 18 was Rally Day at the Temple, and baskets were brought to the Auditorium where the Saints shared dinner.

The following Sunday Brother E. L. Traver, of Arlington, Massachusetts, preached in the Temple. Sister Mamie Atchison sang the solo, "To Teach Me to Live." Brother and Sister Traver were visiting Sister Biggs, of Kirtland. Mrs. Biggs and Mrs. Traver are sisters.

Solos were sung by Sister W. E. Householder and Sister Mamie Atchison at a recent meeting of the department of women. They sang respectively, "Farewell to Summer" and "The Rosary."

Brother and Sister Raymond Clough, of Willoughby, gave a Halloween party at their home the evening of October 29.

The junior church services began in October and have been held continuously.

Elder Fred T. Haynes, of West Side Cleveland Branch (Lakewood), has been chosen to develop missionary leads in the city of Cleveland. These leads were developed among visitors at the Temple.

On November 2 a meeting was called by the branch president to discuss ways and means to sacrifice and give support to the financial program of the church.

Brother and Sister Norman Parson, of Kirtland, are the parents of a son, David Merrill, born September 17. Mr. and Sister Cyril Patterson, of this city, also are parents. Their son, who was born October 18, has been named Richard Junior.

Following is a letter from a part of Kirtland Branch:

Painesville Mission

Membership of this group is thirty-seven, and officers are: President, Priest Thomas H. Freeman; teacher, Roy Plont; teacher, Andrew McAdam; deacon, Walter M. Davis. The Saints meet in a rented building, an unused schoolhouse which has fair-sized auditorium and class rooms.

The church school is flourishing, average attendance being thirty-five. Financially it is in good condition, there being nearly one hundred dollars in the school treasury.

Our building fund has about sixty-five dollars, and the church treasury has about twenty-five dollars. All furniture, books, etc., are paid for.

We have a good attendance of nonmember children. Classes are senior, junior, intermediate, and primary. School officers and teachers are: Superintendent, Harry T. Freeman; assistant, William Norris; senior teacher, A. McAdams; intermediate, Mrs. Mabel Freeman; junior, Carroll Fenner; primary, Mrs. T. H. Freeman.

We are happy in our work and hope to achieve much during these winter months.

Far West Stake

A series of priesthood conferences was conducted October 23, 24, and 25 at various points in the stake. Each day Apostle J. F. Garver held classes in the forenoon and afternoon for members of the priesthood. A general preaching service at night in each place closed the day's activities. The general church situation was discussed very frankly yet hopefully. Stake President Ward A. Hougas accompanied Apostle Garver.

A large crowd attended the conference at Cameron, Friday, and a very splendid interest was shown throughout the day. At the Guilford conference, Saturday, the attendance was almost one hundred per cent from the northern branches. The women's department served a big dinner in the basement of the church. On Sunday, October 25, the conference was held in Saint Joseph with a fair attendance. Apostle F. Henry Edwards substituted in the afternoon sessions for Apostle Garver who was called away. Brother Garver returned and spoke to the Saints at the evening preaching service.

Maple Grove Church

President F. M. McDowell spent the evening of October 28 at Maple Grove. Stewartsville Branch joined with Maple Grove to make this a big night.

The week's series of meetings conducted by Elder Ward A. Hougas which closed October 23, was marked by a large regular attendance and a splendid attention and interest.

King City Church

Elder Ward A. Hougas preached at the home of Joseph Cook in King City the evening of October 28. There were about twenty-five present. Plans are now under way so that the work there may be organized on a regular mission basis under the direction of Elder W. J. Winn, King City, assisted by Priest Glenn Ralph, of Union Star. The Saints live in Stanberry, Union Star, and King City.

Oakdale Church

Elder G. T. Richards conducted a week's series of missionary services at the Oakdale Church, October 18 to 25 inclusive. Kingston Saints joined in this series. A splendid interest was shown both among the members and the interested nonmembers who attended. The series closed October 25 with several baptisms.

Stewartsville Church

A two weeks' series of meetings was opened by Elder Orman Salisbury at Stewartsville on November 15.

First Saint Joseph Church

The work of First Church is showing a decided improvement in recent weeks. The attendance at Sunday night services is splendid. Elder Ward A. Hougas, pastor, is giving an interesting series of Sunday night sermons.

A large amount of visiting is being done among the families of First Church both by the priesthood and by the women. This organized effort is having its effect on the attendance.

A splendid worship service is being planned for Thanksgiving Day at First Church at nine o'clock, that the Saints may begin the day in the true spirit of thankfulness.

On December 6 the choir will present the sacred cantata, "The Holy City," at the regular evening service.

With the promise of a lovely autumn day, about thirty young people gathered at First Church Sunday morning, November 8, and were soon headed for Big Lake, fifty miles northwest of Saint Joseph. The drive is a beautiful one, particularly at this season of the year, with the gorgeously colored trees banked on the hillsides and, in contrast, the lovely green of the fields.

A hearty welcome awaited the five carloads of young people when they arrived at Brother Milt Easter's home on the east side of the lake. Improvised benches, chairs and tables in the front yard overlooking the lake were provided for the open air service. About seventy Saints of Fortescue Branch joined in the worship service. An inspirational meeting it proved to be with young and old singing such songs as "Faith of Our Fathers," "Just as I Am," and "I Would Be True." Elder Ward A. Hougas delivered a worth-while talk.

Fried chicken and ham sandwiches disappeared in an incredibly short time from the long table spread with all that goes to make up a picnic dinner.

Although the "breaking waves dashed high" most of the young people braved the deep and had a "grand and glorious" time on the lake in the boats Brother Easter so kindly allowed them to use. Splashed by the waves and with hair blown by the wind, it was a happy group that set out on the homeward trip in ample time for the evening service.

Cameron Church

"The Ten Virgins," a pageant, was presented by the Cameron young people Sunday evening, October 18. A large crowd was present to witness the performance.

Sister Esther Simpson entertained the department of women at her country home on October 22. A covered-dish dinner was enjoyed at noon and was followed by a short business session. The house was prettily decorated with Halloween colors, and the afternoon was spent in the playing of Halloween pranks and games.

The young people enjoyed a Halloween party in the basement of the church on the evening of October 29. Games and ghostly pranks furnished amusement and refreshments consisted of apples, doughnuts, and cider.

Recent speakers have been Elders J. W. Roberts, S. H. Simmons, Thomas Fiddick, and F. L. Hinderks.

Bishop Milo Burnett, of Saint Joseph, was the eleven o'clock speaker Sunday, November 8. He used as a text, "This foundation standeth sure," and his earnest plea greatly strengthened and encouraged us to renew our efforts that we may sacrifice to a greater degree to enable the work of the church to go forward.

Apostle Hanson Coming

Apostle Paul M. Hanson will be in the stake December 6 to 13 inclusive. He will speak in ten branches during his short stay.

President Smith at Detroit District Conference

The appearance of President F. M. Smith at the district conference on Sunday, November 8, was the occasion for the gathering of the largest congregation of Saints in Detroit's history. First Church was crowded to the walls and windowsills, both upstairs and down, and Brother Smith's message was heard by all through the medium of an amplifier and loud-speaker. Crowds lined up three or four deep along the outside and listened through the open basement windows, and car after car drove up and stopped only to turn away without dropping any passengers. There were at least a thousand people who came to the church for this meeting.

Central Choir, some thirty voices, under the direction of Brother Fred. E. Anderson, rendered "Ein Feste Burg," from Brother John T. Gresty's oratorio, "The Course of Time," and also "Send Out Thy Light," from the "Redemption," by Gounod. Sister Henrietta Davis and Brother James Green sang a duet.

The financial situation was placed before us by President Smith. The experiences he had passed through since the situation became acute were interesting. A highlight of his talk was the satisfaction he had felt as a result of the popular response to his appeal throughout the country. Various branches of the church have come with proposals and plans for meeting the situation which are exceedingly gratifying. "We have not only found ourselves with a problem but with a new power," was the keynote of his speech.

The people were apparently unwilling to resign themselves to fifteen years of paying off debts. The power that lies dormant in the great body of Saints and which comes forward in a great surge in every crisis once more is showing its face. A motion was supported by the entire congregation that Detroit District be allowed to raise its quota within three years. A greater display of unity has never occurred in this city, and as the whole congregation arose and silently stood for a moment, there was a sense of coordinated power and confidence which touched everybody. We are certain that Brother Smith felt himself lifted up by this show of loyalty. We anticipate an organized campaign reaching to the far corners of Detroit District which will not only meet the present crisis, but will also disclose many hidden sources of spiritual and temporal strength. The conference sustained all of its officers for the new year.

Sault Sainte Marie, Ontario

November 4.—Annual business meeting and election of officers were held September 4, the new officers being as follows: Pastor, Elder G. A. Edwards; associate pastor, Elder George Walsh; adult division supervisor, Sister Alex Brechin. Sister Brechin is a new member who has had wide experience in social circles in other church activities. She is well liked and will make a good leader. The young people's supervisor is Sister George Hannah; children's supervisor, Sister George Welsh; secretary, Victor Harrison; treasurer, Deacon William Braun; church school director, T. B. Campbell; chorister, Sister Robert Hudson; organist, Sister Mildred Miller.

This branch was favored with a visit from the district president, Elder H. A. Dayton and wife, who remained for about two weeks. Brother Dayton preached six inspiring sermons which were well attended, and visited all the Saints. He baptized the eldest son of Brother and Sister Edwards. This was Sister Dayton's first time to accompany her husband in the field. We are looking forward to another and a longer visit from Brother and Sister Dayton, but he is a busy man and his help is required in many places. We must wait our turn.

September 4 we lost by death Sister Davidson, of MacLeannan, who was eighty-four years of age. Brother G. A. Edwards preached the funeral service.

New Westminster, British Columbia

November 4.—It has been some time since New Westminster Branch sent a letter to the Herald, but this was not caused by lack of news. Certainly we have had interesting and active times since the adoption of the new plan of religious education.

The divisional heads find an interested group with which to work. This plan has been in operation since April, Brother S. Pope as pastor. Sister Gerow was chosen director of religious education; Brother A. S. Coburn, leader of the adult division; Brother Clifford Wood, the young people; Sister M. Green in charge of the juniors. These officers were reelected with the exception of Brother Clifford Wood who is now attending Graceland. Brother Kirk Gerow was chosen to lead the young people for the coming year.

We have a fine group of young people who are planning a very busy winter. Two Westminster young men, Clifford Wood, and W. Gerow are at Graceland. Previous to their leaving they were ordained to the office of deacon and priest, respectively. We are proud of them.

The women's group, which has been called the Laurel Club, has served two suppers in late weeks. These were under the supervision of Sister Wood. Good programs followed. For these we thank the program committee composed of Brother and Sister L. W. Cross and Brother Turner.

The adult division has also planned a busy winter. Already the male chorus has been organized. They promise appearance in a few weeks.

There is progress in the children's division. Recently a Blue Bird band was organized with a membership of nine girls. Frances Gerow is the leader. The girls are interested in their work, and growth of the group is assured.

New Westminster Branch has much for which to thank the heavenly Father. Pastor S. Pope has just commenced his twentieth year of service in this office. We are fortunate in having so devoted a guide and leader.

Webb City, Missouri

Second and Oronogo Streets

This branch is moving forward under the leadership of Pastor Ira O. Waldron and his assistants, James M. Jones, who has charge of the church school division, and F. L. Freeman, who has charge of the home visiting division.

The church school holds two sessions each week, Sunday at 9.30 a. m., and Thursday at 7.30 p. m. Attendance is good and officers and teachers are consecrated to their task. Sister Neva Tremble has charge of the primary activities and is doing an excellent work among the children. Sister Mary Hobart and Sister A. N. Deaver have charge of the music and render valuable service to the branch.

College Day was celebrated with a beautiful and instructive program in charge of Beatrice Deaver.

A Halloween social was held at the farm home of Brother and Sister R. J. Williams, south of town, October 22. The church school was the sponsor. About sixty of the members were there. Before the guests departed for home, pumpkin pie, apples, and popcorn balls were served.

Sacrament Sunday for November brought attendance of one hundred and two. A fine spirit was there, and the members were made to feel that God is watching over and caring for his children in these trying times.

The women of the adult division have been busy the last year doing their bit to help with the financial part of the church work. They have quilted several quilts and made one fancy quilt which is now on sale. They have been doing the janitor work at the church as a means of saving funds. They enjoy this and it gives every woman of the branch a chance to help. They hold one social meeting each month. November 5 they had their social meeting with the church school sponsoring a pie and chili supper which netted eleven dollars. After the supper a program was given which all enjoyed. Sister A. L. Newton was present and gave two readings of her own composition.

Boston Branch

Somerville, Massachusetts

At last this nomadic branch (I do not believe there is another like it in the church) has settled itself, and there is a good number in attendance at the services, especially on Sunday morning.

At the election of officers early in September, Doctor W. A. Sinclair was chosen pastor, J. W. Foster assistant pastor, and George W. York, visiting pastor; H. M. Gunsolley, secretary; Everett York, treasurer; Beatrice York, chorister; and Wallace Sinclair, superintendent of the religious education department. Rebecca Carter was chosen president of the adult group, known as the "Leaders"; Agnes Fisher is president of the younger married group, the "Pioneers," and Audrey Hardy is president of the "Crusaders," the young people of the branch. The "Crusaders" are working on plays to be presented December 4. They have had a hike and other wholesome activities.

Beatrice York is doing a most commendable work developing and harmonizing the musical talent of the younger people and contributing it to the church music at the Sunday services.

The religious education convention will be held in the church building on Saturday evening and Sunday, November 14 and 15. We expect Apostle R. S. Budd to be present.

Friends of Sister Susie Sinclair will be grieved to learn that she is now confined to her bed and under the influence of opiates so great is her pain. Doctor Sinclair, too, has had a serious illness, spending about ten days in the hospital. Other men of the local priesthood have, however, taken up the burden, and the work goes on. E. L. Traver became ill while on a visit to Maine and was forced to spend two days en route home recuperating.

Brother and Sister Irby Mundy, of Uteyville, Colorado, were visitors at our services all day Sunday. It is not often our people come in contact with a real western cowboy, and Brother Mundy was regarded with cordial interest.

Birmingham, England

On Sunday, September 20, about thirty Saints visited Sutton in Ashfield for the district reunion. We journeyed together by motor. It was a beautiful day and everyone enjoyed the excursion. The day was well spent.

"Service" was the reunion theme. The meetings were held in the capacious hall, and a good number attended. At the close of the day, we felt a keener desire for consecration to the service of God.

Harvest thanksgiving services were held Sunday, October 18, the Saints gathering in good numbers. The gifts of fruits, flowers, and vegetables were beautifully displayed. An appropriate program of music was provided by the branch chorister, Elder E. Norton.

In the afternoon a children's service was held. The tiny tots of the primary department walked up the aisle bearing their gifts to God. These they placed on the table. Some brought apples, others brought cabbages, and childish faces beamed. There were songs and recitations. Sister N. Schofield talked to the children, explaining the significance of the harvest service.

The evening service was crowded. Pastor P. S. Whalley spoke to the members, endeavoring to convey to our minds the power of God and his goodness and love. He also spoke of our responsibility in holding the beautiful gift of the gospel to the world. "Shall we boldly face our Lord at his coming?" he asked, "Or shall we bow our heads in shame and humiliation at the things we have not done?"

The harvest gifts were afterwards given to the children's hospital where they were much appreciated. The collection taken at the evening service amounted to nearly seven pounds.

The services of this day reminded us of the following beautiful verse:

"To follow truth as blind men long for light
To do my best from dawn of day till night,
To keep myself fit for His Holy Sight,
And answer when He calls—
This is my task."

The members of the Women's Guild have been very active during the last month. They have stained and polished the church pews. They have worked gladly and cheerfully. Under the auspices of this organization a social was held October 19. A good number of members and friends listened to the program of songs, recitations, and played games. During the coming season the women hope to hold many more of these socials.

The next social event will be a bonfire celebration at the home of the pastor on November 5.

Prayer services are well attended. Our faith increases as a result of our experiences of so many wonderful answers to prayer. We pray a blessing upon all God's people. Times are hard and difficult. Confusion is rampant. But they that wait upon the Lord, that sit in holy places, that lift up their voices in praise and thankfulness, that trust him in sublime faith, these shall have sweet abiding peace.

"Faint not, nor fear, His arm is near,
He changeth not, and thou art dear.
Only believe, and thou shalt see
That Christ is all in all to thee."

New Philadelphia, Ohio

Sunday, October 18, was a day to be long cherished in the hearts of local Saints. It was our home-coming day. The services began with a nine o'clock devotional meeting, followed by church school in charge of Richard Watkins, the superintendent. During the intermission a song service was conducted by Samuel Mansell. A quartet composed of Elder Charles Cramer, Sister Cramer, Sister Angus, and Brother Watkins sang "Faith of Our Fathers."

Elder Cramer, a member for forty years, was the morning speaker, choosing as his subject, "Memories of Saints Who Were Once Active." Brother Cramer's father, one of the charter members of the branch, has passed to his reward, but the fourth generation is following in the steps of their grandfather. The father of our pastor, Elder Carlisle, came into the work of the church shortly after its organization, and the fourth generation of this family is also active in the church. Sister Margaret McMillen and Sister Rose Warner, the oldest members of the branch, are still active. Sister Warner is the last surviving charter member. The present branch was organized in 1885 by Gomer T. Griffiths. Among the members who have passed on and whose grandchildren are actively engaged in the church are the Robsons, Steinbaughs, McMillens, Gordons, Warners, Carlisles, and Cramers.

Dinner was served at noon to one hundred and twenty-five guests in the church basement. Many visiting Saints were present.

At one o'clock a surprise awaited the congregation. Seven candidates presented themselves for baptism. They were inducted into the kingdom by Pastor John Carlisle. Those baptized were Glen Carlisle, son of the pastor; Rebecca, Robert, and Paul Carlisle, niece and nephews of the pastor; Harold Stein, Ralph Schwartz, and Theda Leggett. Preceding the confirmation service Sister Nettie Bigler interpreted the hymn, "Book of Mormon, Hid for Ages," with a pantomime. She was assisted at the piano by Sister Frances Rees, and a mixed quartet sang the hymn.

The new members were confirmed by Elders A. B. Klar, William Goudy, Charles Cramer, and John Carlisle. Several prophecies were given at this time. The rest of the afternoon was spent in prayer and testimony meeting, and the Holy Spirit reigned. The Saints were prophetically admonished to be faithful and to walk uprightly, that they might be able to confront the trying times which will test them as God's people.

Supper was served at five o'clock to a large number. At the evening service the pastor preached an inspiring sermon. Brother Mansell sang a solo, "Confidence." Members of the branch expressed appreciation of this day, and hope the occasion may be equally enjoyed next year.

Elder E. G. Hammond, of Akron, was unable to be present at the services because of illness. He was the speaker the morning of October 25, delivering an excellent discourse.

Brother and Sister Mansell who were married October 2, were tendered an old-fashioned belling by forty-eight Saints and their families. The evening was sociably spent. Hymn singing was part of the entertainment. Refreshments were served, and the honor guests were presented a beautiful tablecloth.

Elder and Sister A. B. Klar, Brother and Sister Mansell, and Sister Edna Howells attended sacrament service at Canton, Ohio, November 1. Brother Mansell sang two solos, and Brother Cecil Neville was also present. Canton Saints are to be commended for their faithfulness in spite of small numbers.

The church year soon will draw to a close. The branch business meeting was called for December 8. We are grateful for the many blessings bestowed on us this year, and our prayer is that we may continue to trust and obey, for there is no other way.

Independence

Stone Church

A scout service held the attention of Stone Church people Sunday morning at the 11 o'clock hour, Pastor J. F. Sheehy the speaker. The Stone Church includes in its congregation about eighty Girl Scouts and sixty Boy Scouts.

"Scouting presents a positive program for our boys and girls," asserted Pastor Sheehy in his discussion of the activities provided for the growing youth. The programs of both these organizations teach our boy and our girl to "do a good turn daily," and their pledges and laws are backed by the finest traditions of our civilization. The scout oath for the boys begins: "On my honor I will do my best . . ." and the girls promise, "On my honor I will try to do . . ." The laws are positive; they begin, "A Scout is . . ." and "A Girl Scout is . . ."

Seated in a reserved section were Boy Scouts troops 226, Stone Church, and 227, Enoch Hill; Girl Scouts Troops 33, 46, 37, and 14, Stone Church, 49 and 10, Walnut Park, and a troop of girls from Liberty Street not yet registered in the national office. These boys and girls took part in the color and scout closing ceremonies.

Briefly Brother Sheehy sketched the development of scouting in Independence and the influence exerted by these organizations in building fine men and women for the church and the community. He urged the cooperation of all parents. Girl scouting is more recent here than scouting among the boys, all of the girls' troops having been organized this year. Through activities provided by the scouting programs, the boys and girls of the various congregations of the church in Independence are being brought together in real comradeship. A corps of talented captains, committee women, scoutmasters, and committee men have the work in charge.

Scout Don Piper, of Troop 226, was awarded a medal of honor by his Scoutmaster, W. Earl Page. Scout Piper is the winner of a contest in his troop which included practically every phase of active scouting.

The scout program was preceded by fifteen minutes of the regular choir broadcast program. The Stone Church Choir was led by Evan A. Fry, Robert Miller at the organ. A lovely song was sung by Mrs. Minetta Isaacks, soprano.

Pastor Sheehy was assisted in the stand by Bishop G. Leslie DeLapp.

In the evening Stone Church Saints witnessed an impressive service of ordination when men, whose names were approved by the last quarterly conference in Zion, received the laying on of hands of the elders.

Music was supplied by the Aeolian Chorus, its selections being, "It Is Not Everyone That Saith Unto Me," by J. T. Gresty, "The Voice in the Wilderness," and "Jesus, My Savior." Hymns of challenge and praise were sung by the congregation, "Work for the Night Is Coming," "Hark, Listen to the Trumpeters," and "Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow." Robert Miller played the organ.

Pastor John F. Sheehy was assisted in charge by Elders H. G. Barto and H. O. Smith. Following the reading of the scripture, Hebrews 5, Elder H. O. Smith delivered the charge to the elders; the charge to the priests was by Elder Barto.

The following men were ordained to the office of elder: Wilfred Burton, Clarence Resch, Ephraim Brown; to the office of priest, Adelbert Withee and Norman Cox; to the office of deacon, Alma Inman. Those of the eldership who officiated in the ceremony were C. I. Carpenter, J. Stanley Kelley, Earl F. Hoisington, C. C. Koehler, J. E. Kelsey, C. Ed.

Miller, T. J. Butler, C. H. Rich, E. A. Thomas, and G. G. Lewis.

A feature which added solemnity to the service was the prayer of blessing upon all the ordained men in the congregation. This was followed by the singing of the "Doxology" and the benediction by the pastor.

Liberty Street Church

The Sunday morning prayer meetings at eight o'clock are growing in numbers and spirituality if we are to judge by the testimonies full of confidence and hope in the church program and its present needs.

Elder John Soderstadt preached at eleven o'clock Sunday morning, using passages from the Doctrine and Covenants which emphasize the duties of the Saints and the ministry.

Elder W. A. Smith who has spent many years in the missionary field, preached in the evening. His was a missionary sermon telling of the Apostle Paul and his trial before King Agrippa and showing similarities in the experiences of Paul and Joseph the martyr in his work of the Restoration.

Miss Mabel Tignor, Elbert Mock, and Cecil Walker were announced as the committee in charge of the young people's activities. They will start the fall and winter activities with a meeting next Sunday at half past two.

Interest in the November sacrifice movement is taking good form and promises to be productive of much good spiritually and temporally. We feel that the work of the church must and will go on.

Nine of our girls between the ages of ten and twelve years have taken their tenderfoot test in scouting. In a short time Liberty Street can boast a troop of registered Girl Scouts. Mrs. Elbert Mock is the efficient captain.

Enoch Hill Church

"Thanksgiving" was the theme of the church school Sunday morning. The theme talk, "The Pilgrims," was made by Max Constance.

Elder S. C. Smith was the morning speaker. Scripture readings were taken from Doctrine and Covenants 36 and Deuteronomy 23. "The church will go on," said Brother Smith, "and we must prepare ourselves to go on with it."

"Nothing can take the place of religion in our lives," said Doctor Charles Keown in his Sunday evening talk; "closer family ties and closer touch with the God of our fathers will tide us over the difficulties and dangers of the present day." He read 1 Corinthians 6: 16-20.

"The Old, Rugged Cross" was sung by C. S. Warren and Richard Bullard.

Englewood Church

Englewood is preparing a Thanksgiving program. At nine-thirty in the morning, at the Thanksgiving service, a pageant will be given by the young people's classes of the church school. Sister Beatrice McNamara will do the reading. The pageant is designed to present the history of the America Indian. It will begin with the warning to Lehi to leave Jerusalem, six hundred years before Christ, and will depict events leading up to the curse of the Lamanites.

The juniors, intermediates, and young people have been studying the Book of Mormon this year, and the pageant will serve to impress portions of the historical story of the book on the minds of the students.

Elder C. Ed. Miller will follow the pageant with a stereopticon lecture dealing with the history of the early settlers of America. Following this program the sacrifice offering will be taken. The women's department has arranged a little ceremony for this part of the program which they hope will be helpful, especially to the children. They have given each child a little "true blue" sacrifice bag which will be used in the ceremony of offering. Adults will also take part with their special sacrifice envelopes. Everyone is invited to this morning service.

The women are also planning a Thanksgiving family dinner for the members which they hope will assist the offering.

This dinner is not being planned to make money, but to save at least a dollar a family.

After the meal, the recreational leader, Brother Arthur Welch will direct all who desire in a frolic.

Elder C. B. Woodstock gave a short talk last Sunday morning between the class period and the preaching service. The theme of his discourse was the sacrifice offering.

"Child training" entered largely into both sermons of the day. Brother Perry Hiles talked in the morning, and Brother Evan Davis in the evening. We are glad to note that our ministry are studying along this line. We do not hear enough of this from the pulpit; many sermons are neither to the children nor about them.

Spring Branch Church

The November sacrament service was well attended. In the evening Bishop B. J. Scott was the speaker.

The following Sunday Bishop C. J. Hunt was the eleven o'clock speaker. Elder H. G. Barto talked at a quarter of eight in the evening.

At the close of the church school service on this day Miss Elna Rose Jennings, daughter of Brother and Sister Joseph Jennings, of Kansas City, Missouri, was baptized.

"Sacrifice" was the theme of a four-minute talk Elder C. Ed. Miller delivered to the church school Sunday morning at a quarter of ten. So well presented was his appeal that one class collected from its students a sacrifice offering to the amount of thirty-five dollars.

A symposium of the local priesthood held the attention of the congregation at eleven o'clock Sunday morning. Speakers were Priest D. D. McClain, Teacher Clayborn Dixon, and Priest Arthur Peer.

An impressive playlet was given at the close of the six thirty service in the evening by the class of Brother J. A. Bozarth.

The evening speaker was Elder T. A. Beck who talked to the congregation for the young people's division. His splendid sermon found scriptural foundation in Matthew 7: 20 and Habakkuk 2: 14.

Soldiers Grove, Wisconsin

November 10.—News that Elder Leonard Houghton was coming to Soldiers Grove to visit and preach to the Saints, made us rejoice. Every member in this vicinity delights to hear Brother Houghton tell the gospel story in its simplicity and power. It was here that he first started missionary work, and "It seems like getting back home," he says, "to talk to you."

Brother Houghton preached to some of the largest crowds that have assembled at the church for some time. The Saints could not feel discouraged with such a man as Brother Houghton visiting and preaching in the community.

We gladly report that in this time of depression and distress the Saints are firm in the faith. They trust that the clouds will soon pass away and the sun shine brighter than ever before. They anticipate much progress in the church.

The Spirit of God was experienced in a forceful way by the members as they listened to the gospel message presented by Brother Houghton.

After a long, hot, dry summer, we are blessed with a wonderful fall. Weather is warm. Grass is growing. Dandelions are blossoming. It is many years since we in Wisconsin experienced such nice weather at this time of the year.

Request Prayers for Worker

Melvin Smith, priest, of Lachine, Michigan, who has acted as branch president until the failure of his health, is in the University Hospital at Ann Arbor, Michigan, suffering intensely from a growth on his heart and spinal trouble, which doctors tell him is incurable. He feels that God's hand is not shortened, but will restore him to health, and accordingly asks the prayers of the Saints.

Brother Smith is known about Lansing and in Northern and Central Michigan Districts. Many branches are fasting and holding special prayer services in his behalf next Sunday.

Kansas City Stake

Stake Conference Devotional Services

A devoted, stake-wide congregation and an exceptionally beautiful November day made possible a profitable sabbath gathering. From the beginning of the morning worship period to the benediction of the evening service, the Saints absorbed and dispensed the spirit of good cheer and fellowship as only Latter Day Saints can. The topic, "The Church Crisis," was discussed, and the consensus of opinion was that the church debt is not too large to pay off in much less time than fifteen years, the length of the period suggested by the Bishopric.

The church school was as usual taken care of by efficient officers, and with the facilities of Central Branch, a most satisfactory class period was held.

The eleven o'clock service was begun with the singing of the old hymn, "Redeemer of Israel," and the invocation was by Patriarch J. T. Gresty. Clayton Wolfe, tenor, sang, "I Will Lift Up Mine Eyes." The offertory prayer was by Elder C. D. Jellings of the stake presidency, and the stake choir sang, "The Heavens Are Telling," by Haydn.

President Elbert A. Smith, the speaker, read the scripture lesson, 2 Corinthians 4: 8, 9. "These are sober days in the world and in the church," he said and referred to the declaration of the Apostle Paul, "This one thing I do." There is great power in singleness of purpose. The church is the one big thing in the lives of many people. Let us test our strength. We are going forward when we are doing the thing God would have us do.

Dinner was served at half past twelve to those who desired to remain for the following service.

At fifteen after two sacrament service was held. The time after the serving of the emblems was well occupied, there being eight songs, five prayers, fifteen testimonies, and one prophecy. This hour was replete with spiritual uplift.

At five thirty a plate luncheon was served.

The singing of "Glorious Things Are Sung of Zion" by the stake choir as a prelude hymn impressively opened the evening service. After a hymn by the congregation invocation was offered by F. S. Anderson. "Send Out Thy Light," by Gounod, was offered by the choir. The offertory prayer by Elder Anderson was followed by a violin solo, "Meditation," by Meitzke, by Otis Swart. The musical program was concluded with the choir singing Handel's "Hallelujah Chorus," from "The Messiah."

"The greatest thing we have for which to be thankful is friends," affirmed Bishop G. Leslie DeLapp in his sermon. For a scripture lesson he read Psalm 23 and Luke 4: 1-8, the story of the temptation of Jesus.

The minutes of the conference business meeting held on Monday night, will appear in next week's Herald.

I Will Hew Great Windows

I will hew great windows for my soul
Channels of splendor, portals of release;
Out of earth's prison walls will I hew them;
That my thundering soul may push through them;
Through the strata of human strife and passion
I will tunnel a way, I will carve and fashion
With the might of my soul's intensity
Windows fronting on immensity,
Towering out of time
I will breath the air of another clime
That my spirit's pain may cease.
That the being of me may have room to grow,
That my eyes may meet God's eyes and know;
I will hew great windows, wonderful windows,
Measureless windows for my soul.

—Unknown.

The Sacrifice Offering of Thanksgiving

(Continued from page 1085.)

The Need of Sacrifice

Strange as it may seem, the primary reason for the law of sacrifice is not that God may be benefited by us, but that through our sacrifice he may benefit man. So far as we have any means of knowing, we can add nothing to God, but by obeying the law of God we may be instruments of blessing to our fellowmen. To this end there is always great need of our sacrifice, but seldom has there been so great a need as exists today. In this time of need we shall find one of our most crucial tests of ourselves, for it is in critical times that our true worth stands forth. When we are not being tested we do not know our strength of character, but today we are being tested.

Peter passed through a sifting time, and we have been reminded for years that a sifting time must test God's people. Zion, the pure in heart, must endure the test of sacrifice, for God will gather such together unto him, as the Psalmist gloriously predicts:

He shall call to the heavens above, and to the earth, that he may judge his people. Gather my saints together unto me; those that have made a covenant with me by sacrifice.—Psalm 50: 4, 5.

We have learned to say the Lord's Prayer which teaches us to implore: "Give us our daily bread," and too many, I fear, almost feel that they have conferred a favor upon God when they have repeated the words correctly, or at least that they have well done a duty they owe him. But the duty we owe him is better discharged if we use the bread to his glory after we receive it, for this is the real test of our worthiness, and God has ordained that our worthiness shall be tested by sacrifice.

Thanks Convincingly Expressed

There are many millions of people today who offer to God words of thanksgiving and praise, and there were also many in our Savior's time who did likewise, but not all of them escaped the Master's censure. Perhaps few today would openly use the words of the self-righteous Pharisee who "prayed thus with himself":

God, I thank thee, that I am not as other men are, extortioners, unjust, adulterers, or even as this publican. I fast twice in the week, I give tithes of all that I possess.—Luke 18: 11, 12.

But there may be some who think similar thoughts to themselves, and who consider others to be their inferiors. God pity any such, if they can not even boast of paying their tithes faithfully, or of fasting twice a week, for they are still lower than the Pharisee, whom Jesus predicted should "be abased." But what of those who can not say with truth that they are not extortioners, unjust, or adulterers? The blackness of the Pharisee's self-righteousness would turn pale beside the deeper hue of such characters. Can anyone for a moment suppose their professions of thanksgiving can find the ear of God?

What of those who solemnly made covenant with the Church of Christ that they would seek first to build up the kingdom of God, but who now are willing for the whole church to suffer because some, in their opinion, have betrayed their trust? Let such think of the danger to themselves, for Jesus says, "the least of these my brethren" represent the person of himself:

I was an hungered, and ye gave me no meat: I was thirsty, and ye gave me no drink.—Matthew 25: 42.

Paul could say: "Thanks be unto God for his unspeakable Gift," but in the same letter he could also say that he had suffered perils by land and by sea and by false brethren. Yet he counted all else as dross, for the excellency of Christ, and his sublime faith could say:

For our light affliction, which is but for a moment, worketh for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory; while we look not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen: for the things which are seen are temporal; but the things which are not seen are eternal.—2 Corinthians 4: 17, 18.

May we, also, prove by our sacrifice the sincerity of our thanksgiving.

How They Spent Their Money

Selfishness—

I kept my wealth and I mourn for my loss
For the gold in a skeleton hand turns to dross;
Love, friendship and gratitude might have been bought
But I kept all my wealth till it moldered to naught.

Pleasure—

I spent all my gold—I danced and I sang—
The palace I built with hilarity rang.
Plays, revels and frolics from even to dawn—
But I lie here with nothing—I spent it—it's gone!

Avarice—

I loaned my good money—at grasping per cent—
'Twas I who got all that you kept and you spent;
While I counted my millions, Death plundered me bare—
And this grave I sleep in belongs to my heir.

Charity—

It was little I had, but I gave all my store
To those who had less, or who needed it more;
And I came with Death laughing for here at the grave
In richness unmeasured I found what I gave!

—Robert J. Burdette, in Presbyterian Standard.

MISCELLANEOUS

Conference Notices

Southwestern Kansas district conference will convene at Wichita, Kansas, December 12 and 13. A good representation from each branch in the district is desired. Apostle E. J. Gleazer will be in attendance. One of the features of the business meeting will be the election of delegates to General Conference, so kindly send in your report to Mrs. L. R. Field, 1439 S. Main Street, Wichita, Kansas.—A. E. Stoft, district president; Mrs. L. R. Field, district secretary.

Spokane district conference will be held at Spokane, Washington, in the church at Third and Smith Streets, December 11, 12, and 13. The opening service will be at half past seven in the evening Friday, December 11. Elders F. Henry Edwards, Richard Baldwin, A. C. Martin, and Alma Andrews and district officers will be present. Special class work and preaching services will be had. Election of officers and General Conference delegates and the determination of reunion arrangements are among the chief items of business.—F. Henry Edwards.

Saint Louis district conference will meet Saturday and Sunday, November 28 and 29, with Saint Louis Branch, Grand and Carter Avenues, Saint Louis, Missouri. The Department of Religious Education will have the afternoon house on Saturday from half past two until five o'clock. At five o'clock a basket lunch will be served. The regular business meeting opens at six o'clock, and business to be transacted includes the election of officers. Sunday's services include: Young people's prayer service, 8.30 a. m.; church school, 9.30; preaching, 11; priesthood and women's meetings at 1.30 p. m.; social service at 3; round table at 4.30; preaching at six. Send your reports early.—C. A. Edstrom, district president, 3833 Bartmer Avenue, Saint Louis, Missouri; C. J. Remington, district secretary, 1423 Cecelia, Webster Groves, Missouri.

Our Departed Ones

CLARK.—William W. Clark, of Oakland, California, was born at Millcreek, Missouri, October 24, 1849. He married Selina E. Franklin, of Kingston, Missouri, December 25, 1879. She with the following children survive him: Ancil W., Rodney G., and Mrs. Lois Richardson, all of Oakland; Thomas L., of San Francisco, and William W., Jr., of Boise, Idaho. Fannie, aged 23, and an infant boy preceded the father in death. Until 1914 Mr. Clark with his family farmed in Missouri and Iowa. Over forty years of his life were spent near Council Bluffs, Iowa. In 1914 the family moved to Ukiah, California, where they remained until 1919 when they moved to Oakland. When about twenty years of age Mr. Clark united with the church and for many years was a zealous and faithful worker, holding the office of teacher. With advancing years and declining vigor his active service waned. About five years ago his health began to fail and in February of this year he was confined to bed. Passed away peacefully October 30. Many relatives and friends paid tribute of respect to this brother when Elder J. W. Rushton conducted the funeral service. Interment was at Mountain View Cemetery, Oakland.

SWENSON.—Ida Sofia Swenson was born at Stockholm, Sweden, March 13, 1884. She died at San Pedro, California, November 29 or 30, 1931. Was a member of the Salt Lake City Branch of the Reorganized Church, having been baptized May 1, 1894, and enrolled with the Salt Lake City Branch June 30, 1910. She was a consistent Christian, always ready and eager to help others, though she herself was never in rugged health. Her last year was spent in California. Her death was evidently from heart failure and occurred while she was alone in the home which she was caring for. She was a member of two Swedish fraternal societies, the Vikings and the Vasa Orden. The funeral was from the Larkin Mortuary, Salt Lake City, Elder A. M. Chase in charge. After delivering the main sermon and conforming with a request, Elder Chase called on Elder A. B. C. Oleson who had met and known the family in Sweden and wished to speak "for the friends and neighbors." He gave the family an enviable character for enterprise and helpfulness. He was followed by Elder Walline, who spoke as a representative of the Vikings and Vasa Ordens. Music was furnished by friends and members of these orders, and they officiated in the rites at the grave. News of Mrs. Swenson's death shocked the Saints of Salt Lake City, who were looking for her return home.

REESE.—Cassie Jane Smith was born at Deep Valley, Pennsylvania, August 31, 1856. She married Joseph W. Reese September 6, 1877, and to them were born ten children, six of whom survive. She was baptized at Big Springs, West Virginia, by Elder O. B. Thomas, in 1906. Died at Coal Dale, Alberta, October 14, 1931. Her husband preceded her in death thirty years. She moved to Alberta in December, 1911. Was firm in the faith and highly esteemed in the neighborhood. The funeral was held in Lethbridge in charge of the Reverend Wrenham. The sermon was by William H. Atkinson, a priest and member of the Reorganized Church.

Conference Minutes

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.—District conference met with Gaylord Saints at a social service 10 a. m. October 24. Business session opened at 11 a. m., District President Allen Schreur in charge, assisted by Elders Dirk Schreur and Hector McKinnon. After the formal opening visiting Saints were given voice and vote in the conference, the district presidency were chosen to preside over the conference and to make all necessary arrangements, and Sister Ada Alldread was selected secretary of the conference. Sister Lucy Parks, of Gaylord Branch, was made chorister to take charge of the music and chose her associates. The welcome address was given by Elder Elmer Parks, pastor of Gaylord Branch. The report of District President Allen Schreur was read and accepted; Bishop Dirk Schreur gave a verbal report, which was accepted. The report of Missionary J. J. Ledsworth covered a year's work in the district and included the following items: Sermons preached, 265; other services conducted, 130; baptisms, 98; confirmations, 35; assisted to confirm, 31; ordinations, 1; children blessed, 15; assisted to bless, 2; administered to sick, 71; assisted in administration, 18; new openings made, 1; pastoral visits, 598; tracts distributed, 550; house calls, 198. A rising vote of thanks was given Brother and Sister Ledsworth for the work done in the district. Branch reports from Soo, Wells, Cheboygan, Gaylord, Alpena, East Jordan, Boyne City, Bellaire, and Lachine were read and accepted. The district secretary reported the nonresident group membership to be 116. The conference acted to change the name of Wells Branch to Gladstone. Delegates chosen to attend the next General Conference of the church are: Dirk Schreur, Grace Schreur, Allen Schreur, Sarah Schreur, Hector McKinnon, Mary McKinnon, J. J. Ledsworth, Mrs. J. J. Ledsworth, Verna Hartnell, Richard Hartnell, and Ada Alldread. Delegates were given full delegate power. The recommendation of the district president that the pastor in each branch in the district report all the labors of the priesthood for the year to the conference, was adopted. By motion and vote the following officers were elected for the year: District president, Allen Schreur; secretary, Ada Alldread; treasurer, Dirk Schreur; musical director, A. E. Starks; women's leader, Ada Alldread; Sunday school superintendent and recreational leader, Hector McKinnon; secretary of Sunday school, Ada Alldread; bishop's agent, Dirk Schreur, (sustained); library board, Ada Alldread, Hector McKinnon, P. Murphy (sustained). It was moved and carried that Elder Ledsworth use the library books in his missionary work. The conference declared the Vandebilt Branch disorganized and its members placed with Gaylord Branch. The district presidency was given power to appoint the time and place of next conference. The Harvest Festival committee was discontinued. Sunday schools reporting were Gladstone, Cheboygan, and Gaylord. These reports were read and accepted. Elder Allen Schreur chose as his associates in the district presidency Dirk Schreur and Arthur Starks. Elder Dirk Schreur reported that the district yet owed as its part of the year's budget, $1,032.50, and has only two months in which to pay this amount. Generously he stated that if the district would pay half, he would pay the rest. The conference pledged the district to pay its half. Conference sessions included two social services, one priesthood meeting, and the sermons were by the speakers, J. J. Ledsworth, George Blackmore, Arthur Starks, and time on Sunday afternoon was divided by Allen and Dirk Schreur. The gift of tongues encouraged the Saints to continue with renewed determination and zeal. While attendance was not so large as in the past, the meetings were good. Gaylord Saints helped to make all conference members happy.

ARE YOU A BLIND FISH?

In the great depths of the sea, naturalists tell us, are fish that have tiny sightless eyes, and are totally blind because for generations they have lived where there is no light.

Are you raising your family in spiritual darkness? Will your children—or your neighbor's children—grow up to a life of spiritual blindness?

READ THE CHURCH PAPERS!

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Frederick M. Smith, Editor in Chief.
 Elbert A. Smith, Floyd M. McDowell, Associate Editors.
 Leonard J. Lea, Managing Editor.
 Leta B. Moriarty, Assistant Editor.
 Published for the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.
 Subscription price: By the year, $2.
HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE
 INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI

C O N T E N T S

EDITORIAL:
 Next General Conference ..... 1082
 Measuring Youth's Devotion ..... 1082
 Pastors, Attention ..... 1083
 Two Interpretations ..... 1083
 An Unsigned Letter ..... 1084

ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
 The Sacrifice Offering of Thanksgiving, by A. B. Phillips... 1085
 How Youth May Carry Its Share, by C. A. Skinner ..... 1086
 Judge Not That Ye Be Not Judged, by Evan A. Fry ..... 1087
 Educational Phases of the Present Crisis, by C. E. Woodstock ..... 1088
 Report of the Department of Statistics for October, by Carroll L. Olson ..... 1089
 Guiding the Nursery Child, by Mrs. Bertha Stephens ..... 1090
 To Your Knees, O Israel! by Joseph Luff ..... 1091
 Weekly Health Letter, by A. W. Teel, M. D. .... 1094

NEWS OF CHURCH AND HOME ..... 1095
MISCELLANEOUS ..... 1103

Barley for Mild Drink (D. C. 86: 3)

Parched, Ground, or Whole Grain

	1st-3d Zone	3d-6th Zone
5-lb. lots .....	$ .93	$1.20
10-lb. lots .....	1.68	2.20
25-lb. lots .....	3.81	5.00

Lamoni

D. C. WHITE & SON

Iowa

Artistic!

Distinctive!

Modern!

Christmas Cards

A wonderful new line from our supply house.

Better than last year's excellent assortment.

Splendid Values at Depression Prices

Order from

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE

INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI

Buy Your Farms Now

While they are cheap. Any size, best terms. Special attention to readers of the Saints' Herald.

CHAS. R. BOWMAN

Butler, Mo.

Farm for Sale

Because of my wife's health. 123 acres in Far West Stake, one mile from Stewartsville, Missouri, first-class schools, and L. D. S. church. Well improved with fences, house, barn, silo, hoghouse, garage, 2 henhouses, cistern, cave, 2 wind-mills, and other sheds. Abundant water supply. Productive soil. Terms: $2,000 cash and $8,000 for long term at low interest rate.
RANDALL R. FLINN
 Stewartsville, Mo.

SCHWAB AND MATTHEWS

BARBER SHOP

Watkins Hotel Lobby

Open till 10 p. m. every night.

The Book for the Saints

(Infallible Proofs.) A unique and rare collection of over 100 spiritual communications extending from the rise of the Church to last General Conference. Printed for Alvin Knisley by the Herald Publishing House. Mailed postpaid for $1.00. Send all orders to Alvin Knisley, Sibley, Mo.

Do you read the church publications?

HERALD

ENSIGN

VISION

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE

Independence, Missouri

The average man spends as much on his car as he does on his LIFE INSURANCE. Certainly your life is worth more to your family than your car—INSURE IT FULLY!

Call us and our representative will call.

INSURANCE DEPARTMENT OF THE CHURCH

(American Underwriters, Inc.)

Indep. 486

221 W. Lexington St.

THE SAINTS' F

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST

Entered as second-class matter at the post office at Independence, Missouri, under Act of Independence, Missouri. Price $2 a year in advance. Accepted for mailing at the special rate of 1103, Act of October 3, 1917; authorized July 21, 1921.

Volume 78

Independence, Missouri, November 25, 1931

Number 47

If You Plan to Sacrifice—

Do It Now

---

THANKSGIVING

I thank thee, Lord, for strength of arm
To win my bread,
And that, beyond my need, is meat
For friend unfed.
I thank thee much for bread to live,
I thank thee more for bread to give.

—Selected.

The Work of the Church Must Go On

Notes From the Field

FINDS BRANCH IN SPLENDID CONDITION

The following letter gives an encouraging picture of the state of the church work in one good active branch. We should be glad to receive other communications from missionaries and workers regarding the progress of the church.

I must say that a most splendid spirit of cooperation, and consecration prevails in Waterloo Branch. A very fine spirit was present at the election of officers. I enjoyed my stay there very much because of the fine spirit among the faithful ones. The active members of the priesthood were called together a few days ago by their loyal president, William Wood, and organized for the two months' sacrifice period, in which they pledged themselves to give one tenth of their income each week during November and December to the general church. These men are spending two nights a week visiting the homes of the Saints, and presenting the needs of the church. Brother Wood, the branch president, drew up the following pledge, and already several members of the branch have signed it:

"We the priesthood and membership of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, do pledge ourselves to render every service, and make every sacrifice possible, that the church may be carried through the present crisis."

The above shows a splendid spirit, and if every branch of the church would demonstrate the same spirit of loyalty and sacrifice, the church debt would soon be paid. Many to whom I talk feel that the church debt could be paid in the next two years.

On Friday night I talked to the Oelwein Saints on the "Present Crisis," and as this branch had already held its election of officers, we had installation ceremonies at the eleven o'clock hour on Sunday, which we are trying out as a new feature in this district, Oelwein having the first service of this kind. The service went over fine, and seemed to impress the Saints with a new sense of the importance of the work, and the responsibility of office.

Oelwein Branch is loyal, and sends in quite a nice contribution to the general church each month, for a small branch. They have a fine leader in the person of Brother George McFarlane. I am to speak here at Oelwein again tonight; tomorrow night I shall return to Waterloo for installation of officers, and go on Wednesday to Cedar Rapids.

I have received the correspondence from the Presidency and Bishopric regarding the sacrifice period, and shall endeavor to get the work organized in all the branches as soon as I can get the machinery to work.

E. R. DAVIS.

SENDS HER GIFT

The following letter was addressed to the Presidency by a sister who wished to do her part in helping the church through the present crisis.

I have just finished your letter in the Herald for October 21, which my mother gave me, "The Present Crisis."

Most of us here have no regular funds and nothing much to spare, yet we have all we need—food, clothing, and shelter. I have tithed on all the actual funds that have passed through my hands, yet that has been a very small amount; so now I am sending five dollars, a gift to me, as an offering because the church means such a lot to me; it has done so much for me and mine.

MRS. C. C. WORLEY.

A DISTRICT PRESIDENT'S REPORT

A Note From President Smith

I was in attendance at the Detroit district conference on the seventh of this month, and with the others present listened to about the usual number of reports. There was one report which departed from the usual set lines, and because it especially interested me, I presume it will interest many of the Herald readers. It is the report of District President A. H. DuRose. It is well to note the emphasis he lays upon the necessity of our ministry being exemplary, and he sets out a few of the ways in which they should show the way. And I am disposed to think he is quite right in holding to his determination to refuse to approve for ordination any man who is not on record as a tithe payer; and also in his contention that qualification for membership should have consideration before the rite of baptism is administered.

The report indicates that Detroit District has an active president.

F. M. S.

Report of District President A. H. DuRose

To the officers and members of the Detroit District in Conference assembled, greeting:

The conference year just closing has been one which will be long remembered. The industrial depression has weighed very heavily upon our land and we as a people have not been exempt. The first to feel the curtailment due to the decrease in the family income is the church. And yet when times were prosperous a great many of the Saints forgot that the tithe is the Lord's. We thought the Lord would not enforce collection and so we let it slide and spent the money for that which satisfieth not. Make no mistake. If this is the church of the living God, then neglect to pay the tithe is just what Malachi says it is, ROBBERY. It is to be sincerely hoped that not only will we have learned a lesson in thrift, but that the "windows of heaven" are opened only when we have taken God at his word and proved him.

Nothing of a spectacular nature occurred during the year and yet the affairs of the district have progressed in an orderly way under the new form or organization which was effected at the last conference. My two associates each undertook a definite responsibility and no doubt will give account of their activities. As no doubt most of you know I was away from my charge during the whole of June and July. During the remaining ten months I have been kept busy with numerous responsibilities, some of them being the following:

4 trips to Otter Lake	2 trips to Detroit
4 trips to Pontiac	4 trips to Lake Orion
2 trips to Lansing	2 trips to Alward Lake
1 trip to Carsonville	1 trip to Lum

A total of over 1,800 miles. In addition to this I undertook a 13 week's course of lectures in Flint.

No reunion was held this year, the committee having decided that it was unwise in view of the economic conditions. Brother Whitehead will probably have something to say in this connection in his report.

I am sorry to have to note again that very little attention is paid to the resolutions we place on our district records. I still am of the opinion that ordination without qualification is useless, and too few of our men make any real effort to qualify for their responsibility.

I must again call your attention to the resolution to the effect that members of the ministry remaining inactive for three months or more, except for just cause should be required to surrender their license. If our ministry do not value the authority and the consequent responsibility conferred upon them by God, sufficiently to exercise their ministry, then the church should step in and withdraw that authority.

Only one branch pastor has made any tangible move in this direction.

Let me repeat again that our ministry must set examples before the laity in good membership. This includes:

- Reasonably regular, punctual, attendance at the church.
- Being a regular contributor to the local church budget.
- Being a tithe payer.
- Filing an annual inventory regularly.

I am taking the position that from this time on I will not approve the ordination of a man to any office in the ministry who is not on record as a tithe payer.

Another matter which should receive more careful attention than is ordinarily given to it, is the baptism of new members. Too often we baptize people on their request, with little thought as to the kind of members they will eventually make.

Unless something unforeseen arises I expect to discuss this subject at the musical program this evening.

ARTHUR H. DUROSE.

If any one should give me a dish of sand and tell me there were particles of iron in it, I might look for them with my eyes, and search for them with my clumsy fingers, and be unable to detect them; but let me take a magnet and sweep through it, and how would it draw to itself the almost invisible particles by mere power of attraction! The unthankful heart, like my finger in the sand, discovers no mercies; but let the thankful heart sweep through the day, and as the magnet finds the iron, so it will find in every hour some heavenly blessings; only the iron in God's hand is gold.—O. W. Holmes.

If

If a member of your family were critically ill, would you not immediately secure the services of a trained physician, and find some way to pay him?

If your car were damaged this week in an accident and you needed it very badly in order to carry on your business, would you not find the money by some means or other to have it repaired?

If an enemy were crossing the borders of your country threatening your home, your family, and yourself, you would find the means to contribute to the national defense, wouldn't you?

If you were sure that within a week the church would close its doors, unless you came to the rescue, would you not secure somewhere the means to prevent such a disaster?

Now the church is endangered, and unless the members of it abandon their attitude of indifference and make the necessary sacrifices, the result is likely to be disastrous. There is no "if" with regard to present conditions. The need is not even doubtful.

If all the members of the church will work and give together, the share of the burden that falls on any member will not be great.

Paul's Reason for Thankfulness

Paul's testimony to the Roman saints is a wonderful thing. It gives expression to that faith and assurance which carried him through a life of trials and persecution for his Lord's sake and enabled him near the close of his life to utter memorable words: "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith." Cheerfully he bore imprisonment, scourgings, and many other indignities, and wrote to his various congregations letters of instruction and comfort. He was an exponent of righteous living, and his life was one continuous expression of thankfulness. In a very few words he presents his testimony, his reason for thankfulness, and the buoyant conviction of it assures us of his sincerity. He was addressing those whom he considered "more than conquerors through Him that loved us." Here is the testimony:

For I am persuaded, that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord.

He was thankful because of his assurance that nothing could come between us and God whose great gift of love was the giving of his Son to redeem the world.

Christ came to earth to give us life, and at this thanksgiving season, we should be grateful for life and for our Savior. In him is the essence of life and goodness. "Now we live, if we stand fast in the Lord," said Paul. Ancient scriptures taught this principle, and the Prophet Ezekiel records the words of the Lord: "Wherefore turn yourselves, and live ye."

The inspired writings of all times have much to say of life. They teach us to live together honestly, peaceably, soberly, and uprightly, having faith in God and love for each other. At a time when the world is suffering, when life is the toll of violence, wars, famines, and disease, it is well that we show gratitude for life in serving Him from whose love nothing can separate us.

L. B. M.

A Prophetic Message

The following extract taken from the last message of the late President Joseph Smith to the general conference of 1914 contains not only a prophetic and deeply spiritual quality, but also words of encouragement for the people of the church in the present situation. It shows that there was present in his mind then some inkling of what was before the church, and a premonition of what would be necessary to carry the work forward. The presentation of the extract was suggested by Sister Lily Peterson.—Editors.

The difficulties rise up before me, and it is necessary, and it always has been for me to take a careful survey of the whole field, so far as my ability enables me to do, and when that is done, to transmit faithfully, the intent and purpose and the will of the Master, who has so far carried the work, in his wisdom, and has not yet permitted it to meet with defeat or disaster. Hence, I would, if I could, put within the mind,—and I may add, the soul—of everyone present today, what I have felt of the difficulty of the situation under which I was called to act, and of that which I have felt in discharging that duty. For the wisdom of it, I do not answer; for the reason of it, any portion of it, I do not answer; I know not, beyond what is given, what may have been in the divine mind, and should anyone of you ask me about this or that in any of the revelations which I have been permitted to give to the church, I must answer, inevitably, unless the revelation itself contains a reason, or the reasons for them, I am not able to answer. I am but an humble instrument in the hands of God, as are all of you; I claim no higher tribute, no higher characteristic or qualifications of honesty of intent or purpose, than each one of you may claim. I am not to be considered as within the counsel of the Almighty, only so far as that counsel is transmitted by the voice of inspiration to me, when action on my part is required. I dare not listen to the cries of disaster, of loss or damage. I dare not lift up my heart in triumph at apparent conquest over enemies that oppose the church. I can only, as the rest of you, do that duty that lies nearest to me, and which I am expected to perform, and leave the result in the hands of God; and, brethren, before him, if he does not know his duty, and has not had the ability to perform it, I am sure, so far as I am concerned, he has chosen weak instrumentality. Whether or not, individuals called thus, choose to serve the church or refuse, it lies with them; if they refuse to receive the word of God, that which must ensue, lies with us; if we do, and we are blessed as we have been hitherto in many instances by following the divine mind, we surely are justified in a large degree for still making appeal to him, and trusting to that which he may give us.

I have, for the last year, studied earnestly what might result, providing that the inflow of means to sustain our work should cease, and that sooner or later the Bishopric would not be able, out of that which was in the treasury, to meet the demands of those who are abroad in the field, or of those officers who are necessarily gathered to the centers of business for the transaction of the affairs of the church. What would be the result? For a goodly number of years, the church existed, the ministration of the preaching of the gospel continued, and we had no systematized form of administration of the affairs of the Bishopric, but individuals went out, taking, as it were, their lives and their human fortunes in their hands, and trusting to the charity of those among whom they labored for the sustenance that stands in the giving of daily bread to them or those dependent upon them.

I have concluded that should some of those things occur, which some have seemed to foresee, it could but be the interest or the duty of the church in the magnificent faith of those who might remain faithful unto Christ to again take up the peripatetic work of the church, and so far as possible for them to continue the preaching of the gospel until the fortunes of the church shall again be resuscitated by divine assistance, and those who were able to help us again send their tribute of support into the work of the church, to those who had charge of the treasury.

It seems to me that we ought not to faint, that we ought not to fail, that we ought not to quail.

Help Wanted

Piano tuner, located in or near Independence, to volunteer for an act of good Christian service. The piano in one of our local benevolent institutions is badly in need of tuning, and some one is needed to volunteer for this service. For arrangements, phone editorial room, Herald Office.

Letters to the Editor

In this department we are glad to receive and publish letters of interest to our readers.

A KINDLY WORD OF CAUTION

During the summer your correspondent received a card from the Herald Editors asking for criticisms and suggestions on the Herald columns. Your correspondent tries to report the news from this branch (Brooklyn, New York) without exaggeration or understatement, briefly and to the point; however, we note that some news items contain quite lengthy extracts of sermons, quotations, etc., which although good seem to us to tax too much the limited space the Herald offers to news from branches.

We think the Herald a unique journal, and believe it should remain unique as it represents a peculiar work and a peculiar people, and we would be sorry to see the Herald seek to emulate the get-up, or policy of any of today's popular journals.

We think the Herald should contain missionary sermons, as well as material relative to the building of Zion, the church program, and financial matters.

It seems to us the church has lost a considerable amount of its missionary spirit.

Just the same, we read the Herald from cover to cover and hunger and thirst for more, and while we dislike its glittering generalities and technical flare, we lay it down with a sigh and observe, "Alas, it is all too short!"

G. W. PARRISH.

GOOD SUGGESTIONS FOR LOCAL PUBLICITY WORK

We take all three of the church publications and truly receive much inspiration and education from their columns. I believe that your total subscription list could be greatly increased if we had wide-awake subscription agents in each branch; that is some person who will make it his or her special business to list every member and check up on them, and where there is an absence of the church papers, work on them until they subscribe. Some of the Saints' families have youths who should be reading the Vision, other families need the Ensign, while every Saints' home should have the Herald.

I believe it would be a good plan to print a form for our publicity agents to list all members' names and spaces to check the publications, date of subscriptions, expiration, etc. But by all means, we should have agents who take a deep interest in their work.

Our family sends best wishes to yourself and the Herald Publishing House.

LU A. WHITE.

ROCK ISLAND, ILLINOIS, November 18.

(Continued on page 1127.)

OFFICIAL

Church Debt Plan Survey

One of the first steps in the preparation of a plan looking toward the reduction of our church debt, is the gathering of information regarding the financial ability of our members to successfully carry out such a program. It is, therefore, necessary that we have rather complete information regarding the number of wage earners, or members with means within our church, as well as the number of those unemployed, who in normal times would have employment.

It is also important that we know in a general way something of the attitude of the membership not only toward the church as a whole, but particularly toward the financial policy adopted by the Board of Appropriations at its session of February 12, 1931.

For the purpose of gathering this and such other information we deem important, a questionnaire has been prepared which is being sent to every branch president in the United States and Canada. We are requesting each branch president to call in not less than five representative men in his branch, including members of the priesthood and business men, to assist in filling out this questionnaire. The branch presidents are also requested to consult with the bishop or bishop's agent, district president and branch solicitor, wherever possible. The men selected should be men who not only in a general way know something about the financial ability of the members, but who because of close contact can give a fairly good report on their general attitude.

While it would be desirable to have a more detailed survey made than this, it will, if carried out conscientiously and carefully, bring to us the consensus of opinion of over thirty-five hundred men of the church who are representative of their branches. It is to be noted that in the United States and Canada, approximately eighty-five per cent of our church membership is in branches. This information will enable us to proceed in the working out of a plan which should more nearly meet the approval of the church as a whole and at the same time be possible of achievement.

We, therefore, ask the cooperation of all district and branch officers, as well as others who may be called upon by them, to assist in getting this information to us not later than December 15.

THE PRESIDING BISHOPRIC,

By G. L. DELAPP.

November 23, 1931.

BEGINNING

The Gifts of the Gospel

By A. B. Phillips

PART ONE

All believers in Christ agree that the gospel is the most important message ever heard by man. It offers more to man than any other message ever offered, and inspires a hope that is limited only by the bounds of the highest heaven. In confirmation of this hope God bears witness to the heart of faith by means of his Holy Spirit and by the bestowal of gifts which manifest his power, his wisdom, and his love. These divine gifts are known as the gifts of the gospel, because the gospel promises that those who obey the truth shall receive them.

In the New Testament age those who received the gospel of Christ were taught very carefully concerning the divine gifts which were promised to them. It was no rare occurrence for them to witness the outpouring of the Holy Spirit in their midst with such marvelous power that the very heavens appeared to shine upon them, while the hallowed influence of God came to fill and thrill them beyond human expression. So long as the gospel message was faithfully observed and cherished, these heavenly gifts continued to bless the followers of Christ, for Jesus himself had promised them to all who would receive his word. He also commanded his disciples:

Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; and he that believeth not shall be damned. And these signs shall follow them that believe: In my name shall they cast out devils; they shall speak with new tongues; They shall take up serpents; and if they drink any deadly thing, it shall not hurt them; they shall lay hands on the sick, and they shall recover.—Mark 16: 15-18.

Significance of Gospel Gifts

The word gospel used in the New Testament is from the Old English, and means good news, glad tidings, or joyful message. It is in fact the glad message of Christ, including the offer of salvation, its terms, and its promises. The gospel promises include not only the promise of eternal life through Christ, but also the promise of divine gifts to be enjoyed in this life by those who believe and obey his message.

The gifts of the gospel are promised or offered to man conditionally. To obtain these gifts we must comply with the conditions, in order that we may be receptive and worthy. Otherwise the purpose of bestowing them upon us could not be accomplished, for they are designed to benefit those who receive them, and are given in consideration of their receptivity and needs. Deep appreciation should cause one to make wise use of his gifts, and with this end in view the gospel gifts are offered. They can not benefit those who do not properly use them.

No one can receive the gospel without receiving the teachings of which the gospel is composed, including its commandments and promises. To believe in Christ is to believe what he taught; and to believe what he taught is to believe in the efficacy of his message to the full extent that it is received. A part of his message consists of his promises to those who believe and obey him, and many of these promises concern the wonderful gifts which he designs to bestow upon those who will follow him.

A History of Spiritual Gifts

The bestowing of divine gifts upon his people was not a new idea in the time of Christ. As far as the Scriptures trace the dealings of God with man, so far do they trace his condescension in manifesting his love by many miraculous gifts. Throughout the ages of the Sacred Record he has continued to prove his almighty power and goodness in this way. Such manifestations of his grace and his interest in man are perfectly consistent with his divine nature as repeatedly revealed to his people.

In the beginning God appeared to our father Adam and to Abel his son, bestowing upon them his blessings. After this he appeared to Noah and established a covenant with him. He also talked with Abraham and others before the time of Moses, bestowing various gifts and blessings upon them. In the time of Moses the record is made more extensive, and we learn of many marvelous things which God did on behalf of his people.

In view of these experiences it is not strange that the Jews regarded Jehovah as the dispenser of gifts to his people. In the Hebrew language there are fifteen words which were used to denote the idea of gifts in various ways. With this divine background we may quite readily understand how gifts came to hold a very sacred meaning in the social life of the Jews. To reject a gift was considered an insult to the giver.

Jesus declared that he came to do the works of his Father, and the divine gifts which came from God to men through him proves that he was true to his sacred mission. This rich heritage he gave to his disciples, and declared: "Greater works than these shall ye do, because I go unto the Father." Thus he sent them forth, and commanded them:

As ye go, preach, saying, The kingdom of heaven is at hand. Heal the sick, cleanse the lepers, raise the dead, cast out devils: freely ye have received, freely give.—Matthew 10: 7, 8.

Gifts to Confirm the Gospel

When the early disciples went out to preach, the divine witness attended their labors, "the Lord working with them, and confirming the word with signs following." (Mark 16: 20.) Peter affirmed: "We have not followed cunningly devised fables." From the beginning the promise of divine power and spiritual gifts formed a vital part of the gospel message. It was repeated by Christ on at least two occasions after his resurrection, and afterwards was frequently referred to by the apostles as a prominent part of the faith.

The confirming witness of the Spirit was promised by Jesus on condition that his disciples should "observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you." (Matthew 28: 20.) If they would not do this, the promise did not apply to them. The promise of eternal life and inheritance in the kingdom of God was thus assured and confirmed only to those who observed his word faithfully. By the gifts of the Holy Spirit the Lord witnessed to the divinity of his message, and also to his acceptance of those who obeyed it. This confirming witness is called an "earnest" (pledge), concerning which Paul declares:

Ye were sealed with that holy Spirit of promise, Which is the earnest of our inheritance until the redemption of the purchased possession, unto the praise of his glory.—Ephesians 1: 13, 14.

The seal of the Holy Spirit had come to these believers only after their obedience to the word. Before this great confirmation had come to them Paul had earnestly inquired of the Ephesian disciples: "Have ye received the Holy Ghost since ye believed?" (Acts 19: 2.) Their answer revealed to Paul that they had not been fully instructed and had not obeyed in all things, and therefore the Spirit had not been received by them. Paul then instructed them, and they were again baptized, and received the Spirit as promised to the believer, without which they could not be fully adopted into the kingdom of God.

The Gospel of the Holy Spirit

An essential part of the gospel as taught by Jesus concerns the cleansing power and indwelling presence of the Holy Spirit. In no uncertain terms the Savior solemnly affirmed this doctrine when he declared:

Verily, verily, I say unto thee, Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he can not enter into the kingdom of God.—John 3:5.

The word alone does not constitute the whole of the gospel, for that word must be vitalized by the Spirit of truth—the Spirit of the Divine, in order that divinity may characterize the child of God. Without the Holy Spirit the gospel is not fully received by the believer, and can not complete the work of his redemption and sanctification as an adopted heir of the divine kingdom. That this doctrine of the Holy Spirit is a vital part of the gospel, is declared by Paul in the following words:

For our gospel came not unto you in word only, but also in power, and in the Holy Ghost, and in much assurance.—1 Thessalonians 1:5.

The full significance of the great mission and message of Christ will never be conveyed to the heart of man by words alone. It is impossible that the human and earthly man shall comprehend the magnitude, wisdom, and glory of the life that is "hid with Christ in God," until the Spirit of God recreates him and makes of him a "new creature." Only then can the fullness of the gospel enter his soul as a living reality, for it requires the divine Spirit to complete its meaning in him by sublimated experience.

Nature and Purpose of the Gifts

It is by the Holy Spirit that the gifts of the gospel are bestowed upon the people of God, and this truth is made clear in the first letter of Paul to the saints at Corinth (12: 4-11). The nature of these gifts may be recognized by the purpose of the Giver. They are for the spiritual strength and growth of the believer, enabling him to employ his physical powers and resources toward spiritual ends. They assist him to acquire the Christian character, by guiding behavior toward the divine ideal, so that he shall think, purpose, and do the will of God.

In a somewhat more restricted sense the gifts of the gospel may be classified as either spiritual or temporal, though the ultimate object of all of God's gifts is spiritual. The gift of physical healing conveys the temporal benefits of health, but inasmuch as this blessing should be employed to the glory of God its results should also be realized in spiritual good. Evidently this spiritual substance is in all of the gifts of God to his people, because the underlying purpose in all of his acts concerns the grand spiritual realities of life in its fullness. This spiritual objective is emphasized by Jesus when he admonishes his disciples:

Labor not for the meat which perisheth, but for that meat which endureth unto everlasting life, which the Son of man shall give unto you.—John 6:27.

When truly comprehended, the gifts of the gospel are all designed to be helps in preparation for that great gift in which all other gifts merge—the gift of eternal life with God. For these helps we are authorized by Christ to ask of God, for they are included with those of which Jesus promised:

Verily, verily, I say unto you, Whatsoever ye shall ask the Father in my name, he will give it you.—John 16:23.

The gifts of the gospel, then, are God's means of encouraging and inspiring us to more completely understand and choose the things that lead to the life divine. Paul declares that they are "for the perfecting of the saints,—the edifying of the body of Christ." They should lead us to live better and more completely and understandingly.

The Promise of the Gifts

When Jesus said to his disciples, "Lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world," he referred not only to his approval of their efforts, but specifically to the divine presence and power that would endow them. This great gift had been promised of God, but was not realized in its fullness until after the Savior's work on earth was done and he had ascended to his Father in heaven. For this reason he instructed them:

Behold, I send the promise of my Father upon you: but tarry ye in the city of Jerusalem, until ye be endued with power from on high.—Luke 24:49.

On various occasions Jesus referred to the gift of the Holy Spirit which in due time should be bestowed upon the faithful of his church on earth. It was largely through this holy power that his message was designed to convince and convert the honest in heart throughout the world in all ages, for by this means God himself promised to bear witness of his Son. Therefore Jesus said:

But when the Comforter is come, whom I will send unto you from the Father, even the Spirit of truth, which proceedeth from the Father, he shall testify of me.—John 15:26.

Concerning these gifts to the church Paul declared many years afterward: "When he ascended up on high, he led captivity captive, and gave gifts unto men." These gifts were by no means confined to the apostles or to the early ministry of the church. Peter, the chief spokesman at Pentecost, declared this promise was for all who would believe. His words can hardly be misunderstood, for to all who would repent and be baptized he declared:

And ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost. For the promise is unto you, and to your children, and to all that are afar off, even as many as the Lord our God shall call.—Acts 2:38,39.

Clearly this promise extended down through the generations to the "children" of the past, and to all nations. Yet even the early disciples found it difficult to believe that this holy gift would be given to any people except the Jews, and they were amazed when believing Gentiles received the divine unction while listening to the preaching of Peter. Of this event we read:

While Peter yet spake these words, the Holy Ghost fell on all them which heard the word. And they of the circumcision which believed were astonished, as many as came with Peter, because that on the Gentiles also was poured out the gift of the Holy Ghost. For they heard them speak with tongues, and magnify God.—Acts 10:44-46.

The promises of Jesus had been sufficiently plain, for the disciples had been sent to all nations, and the promise of the Holy Spirit was to all who believed and obeyed the word. Yet even Peter himself had failed to realize the great truth before its fulfillment startled his very eyes and ears, and he almost apologized to his Jewish brothers for his contact with the Gentiles, explaining his action by asking:

Forasmuch then as God gave them the like gift as he did unto us, who believed on the Lord Jesus Christ; what was I, that I could withstand God?—Acts 11:17.

(To be continued.)

The Challenge of the Restoration

By Eugene and Julia Closson

No one can assist in this work, except he shall be humble and full of love, having faith, hope, and charity, being temperate in all things whatsoever shall be intrusted to his care.—Doctrine and Covenants 11:4.

If ye love me, keep my commandments.—John 14:15.

The great movement ushered in by the providence of God through Joseph Smith, the Seer of Palmyra, has run over a century of its course. In this age of rapid developments the events of past decades are soon forgotten, therefore the present generation may know little of this marvelous religious movement of modern times. It is hoped that we may become more familiar with the character of this movement, that we may feel the full force of its challenge to us as individuals and to the church, and above all that we may accept its challenge to a life of Christian brotherhood.

We quote below from The Restoration Movement and the Latter Day Saints, a book about the ideals, pioneers, and martyrs of the early church. Every young person should have a copy of this book, especially if he feels a lack in his ability to properly represent the doctrinal ideals of the church to those not of our faith. The author, Bishop A. B. Phillips, sums up the influence of the Restoration in these words:

The history of this wonderful work glows on every page with the radiance of its divine ideals, the devotion of its pioneers, and the halo of its martyrs. To what extent it has influenced the world, only the day of judgment may reveal, but assuredly millions of people of all walks of life have been blessed by its uplifting and enlightening power.

To more intimately know the history of this great movement is to more highly value its spiritual and moral influence today, and thus to feel more deeply the challenge of the sacrifice left us by those who are gone—the priceless heritage of our opportunity.

The Restoration Has Influenced the World

People of influence in religious, social, and political fields are having to admit that this movement started in 1830 by Joseph Smith is one of the most remarkable chapters of human endeavor. A statement by Josiah Quincy will illustrate the extent to which learned men not of our faith have been willing to go in conceding the remarkable nature of the Restoration Movement.

It is by no means improbable that some future textbook, for the use of generations yet unborn, will contain a question something like this: What historical American of the nineteenth century has exerted the most powerful influence over the destinies of his countrymen? And it is by no means impossible that the answer to that interrogatory may be thus written: Joseph Smith, the Mormon prophet. And the reply, absurd as it doubtless seems to most men now living, may be an obvious commonplace to their descendants. History deals in surprises and paradoxes quite as startling as this. The man who established a religion in this age of free debate, who was and is today accepted by hundreds of thousands as a direct emissary from the Most High,—such a rare human being is not to be disposed of by pelting his memory with unsavory epithets. Fanatic, impostor, charlatan, he may have been; but those hard names furnish no solution to the problem he presents us. Fanatics and impostors are living and dying every day, and their memory is buried with them; but the wonderful influence which this founder of a religion exerted and still exerts throws him into relief before us, not as a rogue to be criminated, but as a phenomenon to be explained. The most vital question Americans are asking each other today have to do with this man and what he has left us.

Our Church a Result of the Restoration

The Restoration Movement is larger than any church. It is a powerful force in the lives of men to a higher and better type of Christianity than the world has experienced since the Master of men was himself on earth. The Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints is the organization divinely established to foster and promulgate the principles of abundant living as defined in the gospel plan. To this church has been given the opportunity—which is in itself a responsibility—of demonstrating to the rest of mankind the truths that will ultimately make men free if they put them into operation. As a church we have been all too ready to preach the word while we left to some future date the task of living the word, that is, making the gospel a story to be told by deeds rather than proving it from Scripture.

The plan of salvation as taught by Christ has been restored; the authority to minister for God has again been given to the members of the priesthood; a well-ordered church organization has again been set up, records of the ancient inhabitants of America have been brought forth from the dust; and above all there has been restored unto the hearts and souls of men an urge, a desire, a determination to make the whole world brothers under the Fatherhood of God. The church then is the result of the Restoration. The church is the vehicle designed to carry forward the gospel of Jesus Christ. The church is a tool—an instrument in the hands of God to forward his cause among men.

And we, the members of the church, are responsible for this work. It is our duty to make the church efficient. It is our job to see to it that no spot or blemish shall be permitted; we must each do our part in order that the whole church shall be successful in its divinely appointed mission. And this responsibility rests especially upon the shoulders of the young men and women who make up the working forces of the oncoming generation. We are not too young nor too inexperienced to take our places now in support of the church. In this her hour of trial, when the very souls of all men are being tested, young men and women must step out and assert themselves in her defense. No people in all the history of civilization have been faced with a bigger problem; but no people since the world began have ever been better prepared for what lies just ahead. We have the education, the ability, the power, the strength, the intellect to carry this church on to victory over all opposing powers. We even have the desire to accomplish this end. The only question remaining is, Have we the will to carry on? Have we a love for God and for humanity that is stronger than our selfish desires? Have we a love for truth and righteousness that is deeper than our love for frivolity? We do not lack in strength, in skill, in ability; God grant that we shall not be found lacking in purposeful action!

The Challenge

What is this challenge that the Restoration has thrown to those who have affiliated themselves with its cause? It is the challenge of clean living on the highest possible spiritual plane. It is the challenge to do for humanity what Jesus did for the people of his time. It is the challenge to support our church organization financially, not with a dime or a dollar every few months, but consistently paying the part of our possessions which belong to the Lord and making such additional offerings as the stress of the times demands. It is a challenge to support our leaders, and to be loyal to the program that the church is attempting to carry on. It is the challenge to offer ourselves as ambassadors for truth—missionaries to our friends, to our communities, and to the honest in heart that are scattered throughout the nations of the world. It is a challenge to study, to pray, to strive, to dare, to love, to learn, to give, to believe, to seek, to explore, to invent, to reconstruct, to work, to accomplish, to live!

Young people of Zion, do you not hear this challenge? Do you not feel the urge to give everything in your power to the establishment of that social order in which there shall be economic opportunity and justice for all; where men shall live together in peace, and where there shall be no physical, mental, spiritual, or economic poverty?

This opportunity is what the church offers its people. What does the world offer in comparison? Ill health, mental sickness, spiritual sin, broken lives, banished hopes, dissipation, and final destruction—all these in some form come to those who neglect God and humanity and put their trust in the arm of flesh. The challenge is to make possible the more abundant life for all men by living the more abundant life ourselves. Young people, how shall we justify ourselves if we break faith with God and with his people who have made the Restoration possible in the world today? We must pick up the torch that's flung to us from failing hands, and with God's help CARRY ON!

What the Early Church Did

We again quote from the Restoration Movement, page 242:

It is impossible to adequately convey in words the spirit of sacrifice and devotion which characterize the ministry and members of the church in the times of trial, privation, and persecution through which it was required to pass in its early period. History has failed to chronicle many of the most touching details of those consecrated though trying years, as may be discerned by a careful scrutiny of many scenes and events which are all too briefly noted. To the one who in the same spirit reads of the many incidents of this nature which are recorded, they are as precious wells of water to refresh the soul—they impress anew the sublime spiritual truths of the restoration message.

The faith of the fathers of the church leads us to holy ground. Through all the mistakes which some of them doubtless made, may be clearly seen a devotion that challenges all that is within us, and the evidence of a guiding Hand that reveals its divinity. It is seen in the great sacrifice of a handful of people who erected the temple in Kirtland, which a people of manyfold greater resources might well have hesitated to undertake. Many of the sacrifices will never be known, but the spirit of the undertaking is to some extent here shown; also other similar expressions of their consecration are presented, as they moved forward in the accomplishment of various tasks to which they were called.

From Studies in the Restoration Movement.

Nature is rarely moderate. In all of her giving there is something lavish and wasteful. Out of her limitless stores she draws with a reckless hand and with little regard to economy. Rain, snow, sun, and wind, all come in quantities that are too great for our modest needs. It is man's task to do what he can to preserve something out of one day's abundance for the next day's scarcity.

Weekly Health Letter

Number Eighteen

The Ear and Its Relation to Health and Disease.—1

By A. W. Teel, M. D., Church Physician

The ear, the organ of hearing, like the eye, is a complicated mechanism, and is the subject of much ignorance and quackery. It is divisible into the external ear, the middle ear and the internal ear. We approach the external ear from the outside. It comprises the auricle, or pinna, and the external auditory, or ear canal. The auricle is for the purpose of collecting or catching the air so that the sound waves will be conveyed by the auditory canal to the ear drum, and thence conveyed to the middle ear, and from there to the internal ear.

The ear canal varies considerably in different people. Some of them are small and crooked; others are large in diameter. Rupture of the ear drum, frequently occurs as a result of concussion brought about by diving or being slapped over the ear, or by the entrance of foreign bodies. The day I am writing these articles, I have removed a stone from one individual's ear, and some particles of wood from another's.

The ear canal proper approximately measures one and one fourth to one and one half inches in length. Along the walls of the canal are very minute glands which secrete cerumen, or ear wax. The principal function of this wax is to keep the canal moist, and to protect the entrance from insects or debris. Its consistency is sticky, and while it is serving its purpose, absorbs the moisture and detaches itself from the canal walls. The amount of cerumen varies in different persons. Those constantly exposed to deafening noise are likely to have more of the secretion. This seems to be an effort upon the part of nature to protect the individual from the deafening noise, that results so often in the destruction of hearing. This is true of such people as boiler-makers and the like, who are compelled to work in the presence of constant and deafening noise.

In the ear, there are also small hairs, sometimes called cilia, whose purpose is to carry the dried wax to the outside of the canal. Sometimes the cerumen glands are affected by disease of the hearing apparatus, or poor health of the individual. In such cases, the glands dry up and itch a great deal. The cilia, or hairs, also serve as a protection from insects that might gain entrance to the external ear. No doubt this is a wise act of nature to protect the delicate organ of hearing from the destroying influence of foreign invaders.

The malformations of the auricle are of a great variety. It may be deformed to a slight degree, or it may be over-developed, or under-developed. These defects may be either congenital or acquired. This part of the ear, when injured even to the slightest degree, often produces an unsightly appearance, and sometimes surgery has to be resorted to in order to correct some of these deformities. Boys who push their hats down on their heads, or girls who compress their hats against their heads may cause the auricle to form too close a position. The remedy for this is to correct the habit. I have known mothers to bandage their children's heads to overcome widely protruding auricles, frequently causing the child to suffer. Such cases should be referred to a physician. Wrestling, boxing, football games, etc., produce serious injuries to these parts, which sometimes result in "cauliflower ear."

The rupturing of the blood vessels between the cartilage and the tissues overlying, if neglected, is attended by a mass of blood, which finally becomes organized into scar tissue, with its resultant contraction and deformity. Small boils, or little abscesses, called furunculosis are a result of injuries to the hair follicles, or roots of the cilia. Sometimes these are brought about by water getting in the ear, and they are very painful, until the pus is evacuated. Sometimes this condition is mistaken for an inflammation of the mastoid. To consult a physician for this condition is of the utmost importance. Sometimes itching of the ear canal is the result of eczema, but may be due to a catarrhal inflammation or infection of the Eustachian tubes; it may be an eczematous condition, which has been brought about by an infectious discharge from the middle ear. Excruciating discomfort may be produced by insects entering the ear canal, which will continue as long as the creature is alive. Home remedies may be used, such as coffee, alcohol, oils, being poured into the ear, but ordinary warm water is quite effective in killing the insect and bringing it out, and not of so much danger as the other remedies just named.

Foreign bodies in the ear canal are often found in children, or in the insane. They usually consist of corn, glass, beads, small pebbles, etc. In such a condition, it is always best to consult a physician. I have had cases come to me for treatment when a pea or bean had sprouted, by having made too many unsuccessful attempts to remove the offending material with water. Such cases frequently require surgical intervention.

Our Priesthood Responsibility

PART I

By John R. Grice

The present financial depression, which has affected the church as well as every other great organization, necessitating a program of retrenchment and calling for the reduction of our general working force, bids every man holding the sacred responsibility of priesthood to look to his equipment, that the kingdom of God may not be found suffering, however great the strain.

Present conditions, both in the world and church, portend the early fulfillment of prophecy concerning the latter days and bid our Zion to "arise and shine" and "put on her beautiful garments" that the church may not know shame in the day of the world's dire need.

That Zion may become a reality, demands that we have not heretofore known are made manifest, and priesthood becomes a larger, more holy, more sacred thing than ever before—not to God perhaps, but in the understanding of men.

Priesthood, according to the book of Doctrine and Covenants, (83, 6) is "This oath and covenant of my Father." It is responsibility imposed—the authority to act for God among the people. Without the divine call, according to the Apostle Paul, one can not act, legally, in this most important of positions.

And no man taketh this honor unto himself, but he that is called of God, as was Aaron.—Hebrews 5: 4.

We are also given to understand that with God rests the matter of choosing men to occupy thus, as voiced by Jesus himself and recorded in Saint John 15: 16: "Ye have not chosen me, but I have chosen you and ordained you." And furthermore: "There was a man sent from God, whose name was John." (St. John 1: 6.)

The divine call is constituted of the revelation of God, to those in authority and being "sent" by the voice of the church. (Doctrine and Covenants 120: 5.) Such revelations are comprehended as coming through "regularly authorized officers of branch or district," as was Aaron, through Moses the prophet of God. (Exodus 4: 14.)

Men of the Aaronic priesthood are considered officers of branches, while those holding Melchisedec priesthood are under the district or general church, which is, of course, speaking in a general sense, the "properly authorized officer" being chosen as a leader, or leaders, by the voice of the people, thus:

And these affairs are not to be conducted by manifestations of the Spirit unless these directions and manifestations come through the regularly authorized officers of branch or district.—Doctrine and Covenants 125: 14.

God calls men in their proper places according to their ability and the needs of the work where they may dwell, or where he may have need of them. The call being approved by the people gives the one called the right to act for them.

All are called according to the gifts of God unto them.—Doctrine and Covenants 119: 8.

The call is a recommendation, or a reminder to the individual, that he has certain qualifications and should prepare himself to be "approved unto God."

Jesus said, (Matthew 20: 16) "Many are called, but few are chosen." Again, in Latter Day Revelation, we have been told.

There has been a day of calling, but the time has come for a day of choosing; and let those be chosen that are worthy.—Doctrine and Covenants 102: 10.

Evidently, there are certain qualifications necessary to be evidenced before the choosing takes place. The choosing is in evidence when the person is ordained.

Ordination is:

1. The culmination of the call—the necessary preparation having been made and worthiness to be chosen having been made manifest.

2. The setting apart, by the laying on of hands, to a particular responsibility.

A call does not necessarily mean that ordination should be had at once, or with undue haste, unless there is evident need and the one called is qualified to be chosen. A call comprehends ordination providing all things are equal. Under some conditions we are under the necessity of saying that a call would certainly not comprehend ordination. No! Decidedly no! We must not forget that, ordinarily, it is a recommendation, or a reminder to qualify, to prepare. The call being approved by the people and the individual having qualified, the ordination can properly take place, for ordination presupposes qualification. For instance: God might call a man who was a user of tobacco, but certainly we would not proceed to ordain such until he had put away from him that which disqualified an individual as a representative of God.

Some who have been ordained have become disqualified by reason of neglect upon their part, and neglect is certainly a sin.

There are many who have been ordained among you, whom I have called, but few of them are chosen: they who are not chosen have sinned a very grievous sin, in that they are walking in darkness at noonday.—Doctrine and Covenants 92: 1.

The man who is failing to keep himself qualified and is neglecting his duty is certainly "walking in darkness" in this "noonday" of church history.

Why the Church Choir?

By Ruth Wallace

Why bother with the church choir, when it is commonly acknowledged to be the seat of all trouble, the very nesting place of egotism and jealousy? Would it not be better for the church to dispense with this warlike group, and have only a paid soloist and organist?

Even though at times the congregation would become weary of hearing always the one voice, yet how much more peaceful, restful, and monotonous would be the service. With what pride they might look at their paid servants, saying, "We employ a professional singer and organist in our church." Or what would it matter if they sensed a lack of spiritual interest in their employees, so long as they had the complacent satisfaction of knowing that their musicians would always be there to render for them whatever music they might desire, whether it be something by Handel, or something by Harris? Or even supposing there was a small and rapidly decreasing number of young people in attendance, who said there was nothing for them to do in the church; would not the beautiful silence, the perfect and lifeless order of the service soothe whatever feelings the congregation might have on that point? While it might be true that no one seemed to care any more about learning oratorios or chorals, and the art of singing together seemed to be dying out, it should not matter to the congregation, for they would realize that they were living in a mechanical age, and music from the organ would seem more fitting than from the throats of the choir, who were for ever in hot water over something or other.

Yes, all true perhaps, but when I go to church, I shall go where there is spirituality, youth, life, and zest. I shall go where there is a choir for those who love music, and I shall enjoy the friendly rivalry, for I know that it is a stimulus to ardent work and study. Did not Bach, Handel, and Haydn receive much of their early training in the choir? It was for the choir that Bach first began to compose, and many are the beautiful things which have come down to us from his pen. It was for the choir that Handel, in his later years, wrote his immortal work, "The Messiah."

Would these great geniuses have come to light if the church had confined its music to one or two musicians? Even greater geniuses may come forth if the church will continue to foster and encourage music as it did hundreds of years ago. The choir is the child of the church, and there is its rightful place.

What Can Be Done About It?

By C. H. Porter

The church has entered upon its second century. It numbers one hundred and nine thousand souls. For many years we have dreamed—if it is a dream—of the building of Zion, a holy city, a New Jerusalem. The gathering, temple building, and other projects have been eloquently pictured to us, as being enjoined by revelation. But little has been done to carry out the suggestions made, or to fill in the pictures presented. The gathering has not been a great success, the temple has not been built, the New Jerusalem is not yet a reality, and today we come to a pause to ask, "What can we do about it? Dare we place a limit to what can be accomplished by one hundred and nine thousand people if, or when, they are moved upon by inspiration of the Almighty?"

These are trying times. Many people are seeking employment and can not get it. Time well spent is valuable. If wasted it results in loss. The problem today seems to be, how to find employment for those who need it, and how to supply the necessities of life to those who are without means of support. Again we ask, "What can we [the church] do about it? Dare we admit that we are unable to care for our own?"

Is there not a way, or can we not find a way, by which the unemployed of our own people can donate their spare time to the improvement of church property, and the church see to it that the families of such are cared for while this donated service is being rendered? This should not be a question of how much a man can earn, but rather how much service can he render, and how well the church can, through its agents, see to it that the families of the workers are supplied. Those who have work can care for themselves, and should be willing to contribute willingly and generously to the common cause.

To carry on a program of this sort, it would, I presume, be necessary to first establish storehouses in which supplies might be kept, and from which distribution could be made to those needing it. If such a project were once started, it is reasonable to suppose that every loyal member of the church would generously support the movement, and in this way an abundant supply of the staples of life might in a short time be available for distribution. Donations in kind would be acceptable whether of cash, wheat, fruit, labor, or any commodity that could be used.

It seems that this should be a good time to take an inventory of what we are worth, and more especially of what we can give for the good of the common cause. Labor should be as valuable a donation as money. And many probably could—and would willingly—donate time when they could not donate anything else.

If all of us would agree to work for the common good there could be placed no limit to what we could accomplish. Wherever the church has property it should be improved to bring it to its best value either for use or for sale. We can not think of such an effort being a failure, and if it is once commenced it seems as though we would all rejoice in the new order of things, and instead of thinking of what can be done for us we would be thinking of what we could do to further the advancement of Zion and her cause.

We shall never built a holy city, a New Jerusalem, until we cease thinking of our time as being worth so much per day, and refusing to make any effort unless we are sure of getting it.

If we have not at hand work for our unemployed we should find it. It may not be work to which they are accustomed, but what of that? Man is an adaptable creature, and does not necessarily have to work always at the same occupation.

Anyone with property can usually find ways to improve it. The church probably has much property that could be improved if the labor and material were donated; and why should an unemployed man hesitate to donate his service to the church when he is not otherwise employed, especially if he can while so employed be assured that his family's necessities will be provided for? Surely we have men of various lines of business who would willingly cooperate in such a cause by a donation of materials where possible, or by selling at a low rate of profit.

There are many of the staples of life that can now be procured at a low price, and with a common cause to make for success there should be no failure, but rather a generous measure of success. Our unemployed would experience satisfaction in donating their service to the church in consideration of their family needs being supplied, and loyal members who supported the movement by donations of money, or anything else which could be used, would feel that they were workers together in a common cause, and all workers together with God.

No month passes that we do not hear some one sighing for the good old times. One can agree in some measure with this perennial discontent with things as they are. But it is inconceivable that we should turn our eyes in our search for perfection to the irrecoverable past. If we are to achieve anything in life, it will be through a change, not a return to the conditions of former years, but through progress starting from where we are toward what we ought to be.

The Plight of the Churches

The seven flagrant excuses for not going to church are the death plague to church attendance now ravaging among the Protestants in America.

The first alibi is:

"I work so hard all week that when Sunday comes I sleep late and hang around home, reading the newspaper."

The second one is:

"I can be a Christian without going to church on Sunday. Deeds are what count. No, you will never get me to attend church regularly. If I should die tonight I am ready to face my Maker."

The third excuse is:

"Church and Sunday school are all right for children, but I had enough of both of them when I was young."

The fourth is:

"I worship God through communion with nature on the Sabbath."

Does he?

The fifth alibi is:

"I can worship God on the golf course just as well as in the church."

Does he?

The sixth one is:

"I always hear one or two church services every Sunday over the radio. We have our church at home. I don't see any need why I should go to church."

And the last of the alibis is:

"I was cheated out of $10 by a deacon once. Since that is the kind of people running the church I won't have anything more to do with them."

These seven deadly objections to participate in service of divine worship are the reasons that millions of Protestants give when approached about attendance upon church services.

Underneath all of these reasons for absence from church is the failure to recognize that active participation in divine worship makes a unique contribution to the life of an individual, which can not be derived in any other use of Sunday.

Sleeping late Sunday morning does give physical and mental rest, provided the previous night has not been dissipated, but not soul rest.

In an intelligent man's plan to secure recuperation for his whole personality, the buoyancy which comes through rest at worship must be estimated highly. The wear and drag of week-day activities upon the soul of man are tremendous, often the importance of one's work shrinks into nothingness. Confidence in human nature is diluted.

The vision of the supremacy of God's value in human society grows dimmer and almost fades away.

Saturday night brings people to the frazzled edges of their spiritual lives. Their souls need overhauling. Worship affords that opportunity to investigate the road maps of life to see if they are on the right road. Worship gives a chance to search out the worth-while interests.

Worship clears away the fog and shows clearly that this is God's universe, and that God does live and communicate with his children.

Honest worship of God does give an individual spiritual rest, which is almost always never obtained anywhere else except in attendance upon church.

Follow all the ways of the seven deadly excuses. None of them will bring one the spiritual satisfaction which may be derived from divine worship. . . .

So many persons believe that worship consists in going to church service and allowing themselves to be exposed to the music, sermon and prayers. If the exposure does not take, it is the fault of the church, and not their own overcrowded minds.

They consider that their responsibility is fulfilled when they bring themselves to the church service.

People have to prepare themselves for worship in order to secure the unique spiritual value from it. They have to cultivate the mood of worship. The only value of music and prayer and sermon is stimulation of this mood. The chief responsibility for actual participation in the service of worship rests upon the individual. . . .

The time to begin is now to recover the lost art of worship. If people do actually acquire the skill, they will attend church service, because the soul finds rest when it rests in God.—Reverend C. Everett Wagner, West Side Methodist Episcopal Church, New York City.

Solomon's Prayer

If there be dearth in the land, if there be pestilence, if there be blasting, or mildew, locusts, or caterpillars; if their enemies besiege them in the cities of their land; whatsoever sore or whatsoever sickness there be: then what prayer or what supplication soever shall be made of any man, or of all thy people Israel, when every one shall know his own sore and his own grief, and shall spread forth his hands in this house: then hear thou from heaven thy dwelling place, and forgive, and render unto every man according unto all his ways, whose heart thou knowest; (for thou only knowest the hearts of the children of men:) that they may fear thee, to walk in thy ways, so long as they live in the land which thou gavest unto our fathers.—From Solomon's prayer dedicating the temple, 2 Chronicles 6: 28-31.

NEWS OF CHURCH AND HOME

Address all news and letters to Editors of the Herald, Box 237, Independence, Missouri. Correspondents are requested to make their letters brief. The Editors reserve the right, on account of space limitations, to shorten all letters as circumstances require.

Holden Stake Conference

We have had many good conferences, but this one, held November 14 and 15, at Holden, was one of the best. The first day was cloudy and showery and yet twelve of the fourteen branches were represented in the first meeting at nine thirty in the morning, which was a prayer service.

It was Apostle Garver's first visit to the conference, made necessary by the transfer of his associate in charge, Apostle F. Henry Edwards, to the Pacific coast. This brought to the table a resolution reading as follows: "Whereas, Apostle F. H. Edwards's appointment has been changed to the Pacific Coast, thus severing his direct connection with this territory; therefore be it resolved that we hereby express our appreciation of Brother Edwards's ministrations among us the past nine years, during which there has grown up between us a fraternal feeling of mutual affection and loyalty, founded, we trust upon a deeper love for the church; and be it further resolved that upon this same basis we hereby pledge our support to Brothers J. F. Garver and P. M. Hanson, who will represent their quorum in this field." This resolution was unanimously carried by rising vote. To it Brother Garver made suitable response.

A resolution of condolence to the family of the late George W. Hancock, pastor of Warrensburg Branch, who died the past summer, was carried by a rising vote.

Upon a report and recommendation of the stake bishop's court, the following were released from membership because they persisted in their determination to withdraw from the church: Jennie Linn Vest, Winnie Binns, Nell Ware, John F. Oliver, Maud Oliver, and Bertha May Oliver.

The following were presented by the stake presidency for ordination to offices as indicated: R. J. Stark, of Blue Springs Branch, elder; W. H. Eliason, of Holden, high priest, and C. W. Childers, of Lees Summit, high priest. All were ordained on Sunday afternoon except Brother Childers who stated that he felt the time had not come for him to accept. At this same service W. H. Eliason and Gomer R. Wells were ordained members of the stake high council.

According to previous resolution of direction to the stake presidency, they reorganized the stake council. The following is the present personnel: George W. Beebe, of Ather-ton; Fred A. Cool, near Independence; James Duffey, of Post Oak; W. H. Eliason, Kingsville; C. V. Hopkins, of Walnut Park; H. B. and Doctor Emery Thompson, of Holden; C. F. Scarcliff and Robert Dillon, of Holden; G. R. Wells, of Warrensburg; R. F. Moorman, of Jefferson City. The council would have had a full quorum if Brother Childers had seen his way to accept.

Delegates to the General Conference of April, 1932, were elected as follows: W. S. Macrae, F. A. McWethy, J. A. Koehler, A. E. Allen, C. F. Scarcliff, O. W. Sarratt, C. W. Childers, D. R. Hughes, Otho Clark, C. V. Hopkins, G. R. Wells, H. B. Thompson, J. Charles May, John T. Smith, G. W. Beebe, Mrs. Georgia Dillon, Mrs. A. E. Allen, Mrs. C. A. Silsby, and C. V. Moody. The present membership of the stake is 1,986.

Stake officers were sustained and elected as follows: Stake presidency, W. S. Macrae and F. A. McWethy; stake bishopric, J. A. Koehler, A. E. Allen, and C. F. Scarcliff; stake secretary, Gladys Beebe; stake recorder, Mrs. E. L. McCormick; stake supervisor of music, Gomer R. Wells; director of religious education, W. H. Eliason.

An outstanding contribution in the ministry of music was the rendition of "The Holy City" by the combined choirs of the stake, accompanied by seventeen members of the Auditorium Orchestra of Independence. The ensemble was directed by Miss Bernice Hampton, of Holden. This was at ten forty-five Sunday morning, to a full house. By request it was repeated in the afternoon preceding the ordination service.

An excellent report was made by Missionary J. Charles May, who is laboring in the stake and has more calls than he can answer. Some baptisms have resulted and more are near the point of decision.

Another outstanding feature of the conference was the preaching and informal talks of Brother Garver. He stated that he had never preached to a more responsive audience, and among the hearers there were many expressions of appreciation.

Vancouver, British Columbia

Slocan and Dundass Streets

Vancouver Branch has started another season of activities which will keep all its members busy.

Brother J. E. Johnson is again branch president with Elders Isaac McMullin and George E. Miller as counselors. Brother George E. Miller was chosen church school director; Edwin Spargo, young people's supervisor; Chase Taylor, adult superintendent; Sister Gerrie, junior superintendent, and Sister John Dallyn is in charge of the Daughters of Zion. Sister Emily Mullin continues as branch clerk. These officers are striving hard to work for the benefit of the branch, and with the cooperation they are receiving from the membership, success seems assured.

During October a number of pretty showers were given in honor of Isabel McMullin, only daughter of Brother and Sister Isaac McMullin, whose marriage to Ivan J. Duckworth, of Delisle, Saskatchewan, took place October 12. The bride was given in marriage by her father and was attended by Dolly Krause. Percy Quance attended the bridegroom. The ceremony was performed in the church by Elder E. Miller, assisted by Elder J. E. Johnson. Sister Grace Lee played the wedding music and Sister Alice Godwin sang "I Love You Truly." A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents, there being present one hundred guests. Brother and Sister Duckworth have departed for Delisle where they will live. They went by motor, calling en route on friends in Alberta and Washington. Our best wishes go with them. We know from her helpfulness here that Sister Isabel will be of great value to the church there.

A Halloween party was had at the church October 30. Guests arrived in gayest costumes, giving the judges considerable trouble in the selecting of the best dressed individual. So they settled the matter by choosing eight winners, saying that they could have chosen more had the prize apples held out. Everyone had a good time playing games, taking part in the blindfold contest, and singing songs. The children received balloons, peanuts, and candied apples, while the women supplied all guests with pumpkin pies and sandwiches. Seventy were present.

Two more have been added to our number, Sister Jardine and her son, George. Sister Jardine was baptized by Brother Leonard Quance, George by George E. Miller.

Brother H. A. Sprague, district bishop's agent, was here Sunday, November 8, preaching at the morning service.

Vancouver Branch is glad to hear of Elder H. I. Velt's success in Willapa, Washington. We have heard the number baptized now reaches seventeen. Brother Velt is our district president.

The Daughters of Zion will hold their annual bazaar

November 26. They have been working hard for its success.

Apostle F. Henry Edwards and Elder H. I. Velt have sent word that they will be in Vancouver Sunday, November 15, for all-day services. The Saints have been notified and we expect a crowd. Services will begin at 9 a. m. with a young people's prayer meeting held jointly with New Westminster young people.

Dow City, Iowa

November 11.— This branch is striving to hold its ground during the economic depression. Some who have had to depend on daily labor for livelihood have not had things as pleasant as they desired, but all are thankful that it is as well with us as it is.

There is no elder in this branch. Brother Fred Baber, priest, lives in Arion, and is in charge. Brother E. B. Justice presides over the Sunday school which has seven classes. The school is not organized under the new plan, but the three classes of children meet in the basement. They have their own opening exercises. The teachers in turn prepare something special such as stories, songs, etc. We have an organ in our basement, thanks to Mrs. C. E. Butterworth who now lives in Independence.

The basement debt is growing smaller. Hazelnuts were gathered and sold to the amount of ten dollars. A group of women gathered wood one day last week, and an electric saw was used to prepare it for the furnace. We are fortunate in having a group of enthusiastic women who help carry the financial responsibility of the church.

We have enjoyed having a number of the visiting brothers preach to us, C. W. Winey, Guy R. Johnson, M. O. Meyers, of Deloit, E. A. Rosenberger, of Woodbine.

Due to conditions here we have had few recreational activities. An outstanding event was a party, given November 12 by the high school classes, taught by Miss Zeta Clothier and Mrs. June Griffin, when they entertained similar classes of the Methodist Sunday school.

Some of the young people are taking piano under the efficient tutorship of Sister Ruth Juergens, who comes each week from Glidden.

We united with the Methodist people at their church on World Temperance Sunday when a program was given. Several Saints participated.

Sister Viola Keairnes passed away November 7 after about a year's illness. Elder E. Y. Hunker had charge of the funeral services, being assisted by Brother Fred Fry, of Woodbine.

Philadelphia Missionary Campaign

The fourth annual missionary campaign is now moving forward in Philadelphia Branch. In the past three years cottage meetings were conducted in the homes of the Saints and nonmembers in various parts of the city. Streets were canvassed from door to door and "Angel Message" tracts were handed those who were interested in the message. Through these meetings many are hearing the gospel message.

On Sunday, November 1, four candidates were baptized by Pastor Henry L. Livingston and confirmed November 8 by Elders Livingston and William Hartley.

Bisbee, Arizona

November 12.—Saints of this community were delighted to have a visit from Apostle M. A. McConley Monday, November 9. He spent only one day with Bisbee Branch, preaching in the evening to a full house. His message was full of hope and cheer which was much needed at this time. He preached at Douglas on Tuesday evening. His short visit was like a ray of sunshine on a stormy day. We appreciated it, and hope he will come again when he may stay longer.

Kennett Saints Show Good Spirit

Kennett, Missouri.—We want our friends to know how enthusiastic Kennett Saints are over the sacrifice the church has asked of us.

Elders W. E. Haden and George Davis reached this vicinity Monday evening, November 16, at 6 o'clock. They notified the Saints to meet at the church as early as possible. By half past seven there were present at least sixty-five people.

Brother Davis, who is highly esteemed in this district, delivered a stirring sermon, "The Call of the Church." Brother Haden told of their pleasant experiences with and the liberal contributions made by other groups. Before we left the church that night we paid Brother Davis seventy-one dollars. The group leader assured him that Kennett Saints were going to do their part although they, too, feel the results of the great financial depression. We raise cotton, so our readers will readily know that we are struggling to live.

With the help of the Lord, we are going to do our part in this crisis which the church we love is facing. We are praying for victory and also that great comfort and strength may be given our leaders.

Rock Island, Illinois

The people of Rock Island have been busy the past few weeks, planning and preparing for the more attractive basement which we hope to have completed in a short time. The men have been meeting regularly to do the work, and the women's department has promised to finance the painting. Also, a new furnace is being considered; we hope to have everything cozy and comfortable for the winter.

Attendance has been growing, and interest in all the meetings is increasing encouragingly in spite of the depressing conditions all about us. Perhaps it is that which makes church work more enjoyable at this time. A record number attended sacrament service this month and the spirit of God was certainly there to bless. The men's club, women's department and Orioles have been meeting regularly, and a new choir has been organized which meets every Friday evening to prepare an anthem for Sunday evening.

We feel fortunate that Missionary F. C. Bevan and family have located with us and that we may have a considerable share of his services. Last Thursday evening a reception and grocery shower was held at his home, and a thoroughly good social time was enjoyed. Brother and Sister Welday and daughter, from Cedar Rapids, have also recently located in the Tri-Cities, and we are glad to welcome them.

Although we were disappointed in being unable to secure a general church speaker for Rally Day, we had an enjoyable time and a splendid sermon by Elder C. A. Beil, of Clinton, in the morning and a fine talk by Brother Fritz Stiegel, of Moline, in the afternoon. Basket dinner was served in the basement to a large number, after which the young people were taken in cars on a tour, visiting points of interest such as Monkey Island and the Art Institute.

A new cradle roll department has been organized with Sister Nellie White in charge. Several new names have been added in the past few months including Donovan Douglas, the little son of our pastor and wife, Brother and Sister Leonard Stiegel; Marilyn Louise, daughter of Brother and Sister Roger Jones; Beverly Ann, daughter of Brother and Sister Edwin Gunlock; Donna Lea, daughter of Brother and Sister John Stiegel, and Donald Lee, son of Brother and Sister Oral Jacobs.

Apostle Hanson made us a short visit and spoke Sunday evening to a good attendance. His message was one of encouragement and cheer that was appreciated. He caused us to realize that after all, the things which most depress us are merely signs that Christ's coming is at hand, and we should prepare for that event and lift up our heads and rejoice. We trust that when he comes he will find us all working.

Brooklyn, New York

November 13.—During the summer months there is always a lull in the activities of our branch owing to many vacations and week-end outings of the membership.

Our usual fall activities are slow in getting under way this fall for various reasons. The general business depression is affecting us adversely and cutting into our branch revenues, and indirectly may be causing a slight falling off in general attendance; however, attendance at the prayer services is increasing.

A rousing rally day service was held late in September, together with a junior program and rally day dinner. The after-dinner speakers, Pastor T. J. Elliott, Ephraim Squire, Roy Squire, Dorothy Elliott, and Joseph Squire, talked on subjects appropriate to the occasion.

The women were active recently in a rummage sale which netted them seventy-three dollars and a dinner which raised sixty-three dollars. Sister T. J. Elliott has been taking active leadership in the work.

The birthday club expects to have a party early in December, and the dramatic club is rehearsing for a play. The Kappa Sigma Literary Club is actively engaged in its second year of work in the study of general history. It holds sessions each Sunday evening at 6.30 p. m.

We were pleased to see Brother Joseph Jaques, of Chicago, who paid us a visit Sunday. He returned in a few days.

Graceland has claimed two of our young people again this year, Paul Jaques and George Potts, jr.

We are sorry to report the continued illness of Sister Ephraim Squire. Sister Squire has been one of our most faithful and earnest workers and everyone misses her at services. Many prayers have been offered in her behalf, and we take this opportunity to ask the Saints elsewhere to remember her before our great Father's throne.

The infant daughter of Brother and Sister Charles Hield was blessed at a recent service by Pastor T. J. Elliott; a beautiful and impressive ceremony.

The church school continues as usual with Superintendent Paul Bellisle in charge. Pastor T. J. Elliott has been occupying the morning and evening Sunday services in recent weeks, delivering some inspiring sermons.

Brother William Hartly is here again, teaching a class in the church school in psychology, a subject that has awakened some interest here.

Rock Island District Conference

The regular Rock Island district conference was held at Davenport, Iowa, October 16, 17, and 18. An unusually large number attended the services, visitors being present from practically every branch in the district. Apostle F. Henry Edwards, of Independence, Missouri, was the Sunday speaker, and Missionary F. C. Bevan, President E. R. Davis, and almost a complete corps of district officers helped to make the conference a success.

The conference activities opened Friday evening with a splendid program. Ruth Benson, of Davenport, was in charge, and many enjoyable numbers were presented by local and visiting members.

President E. R. Davis gave an instructive lecture Saturday morning following the usual prayer service. He recalled the revelation given in a similar period of distress and debt, and encouraged us with the thought that some excellent lessons can be learned through our mistakes, which will make us stronger for the future.

The main business of the conference consisted of the election of district officers and delegates to the next General Conference. Officers and appointees of last year were reinstated without exception, and Ruth Benson was chosen to fill the office of historian which has been vacant since June. The delegates chosen are as follows: E. R. Davis, F. C. Bevan, R. R. Welday, L. W. Stiegel, J. C. Stiegel, Lockwood

B. Moore, Jesse Sims, Brother and Sister George McFarlane, Brother and Sister C. A. Beil, Brother and Sister Harry Jones, Sister Nola Epperly, Sister Marjorie Holmes, and Sister Mary Moser.

District President E. R. Davis reported his labors in twenty-one different places in the district including forty sermons preached and 575 letters mailed beside various other activities.

Bishop's Agent J. C. Stiegel reported a total of $4,432.30 received in tithes and offerings from January 1 to October 15 inclusive. This leaves $2,367.70 yet to be raised before the end of the year if we are to meet our quota of $6,800. The district fund has a cash balance of $109.27, and the building and loan fund totals $375.28, including $180 in notes receivable on loans to Galesburg and Waterloo branches.

Some resolutions concerning the priesthood of the district were adopted: The consent of the district conference of district presidency should be secured before the ordination of any man to any office in any branch, and he should then take a course in "Duties of District and Branch Officers," and "Dignity and Beauty in Ministry" by Elbert A. Smith with questions prepared. Those who have been ordained and who refuse to occupy in their office and calling shall be requested to hand in their licenses to the district presidency. It was also suggested that in branches where there are members of the Melchisedec priesthood in good standing who can be prevailed upon to accept the branch presidency that one from that office be chosen, otherwise one from the Aaronic priesthood may be elected. Hereafter a quarterly letter shall be sent the priesthood instead of the usual monthly letter.

It was decided in order to conserve district funds that we shall dispense with the regular February conference.

F. C. Bevan gave a forceful sermon Saturday evening in which he portrayed the virtue of showing the Christ through our lives. Conversion is accomplished by examples of Christian living as well as by sermons, and in this task we all share responsibility.

Following this service the young people were delightfully entertained at a party given by the Davenport girls in a large hall secured for the evening. A large number was present to enjoy the games and novel napkin-tied lunch.

Sunday morning the prayer service was in charge of Brothers Davis and Bevan and a spiritual meeting was enjoyed by a goodly number. Sunday school divided into three groups with Brother Davis teaching the adults, Brother Bevan the young people, and Sister Nellie White the children. This was followed by preaching service, Brother Edwards the speaker of the hour. "Deliver us from evil" was the theme he discussed, and we have a deeper appreciation of what the Master implied when he breathed that prayer; he desired that we should be delivered from every kind of evil—social, economic and political as well as spiritual and moral.

Graceland College day was duly honored with a program Sunday afternoon, J. C. Stiegel in charge. All members of the district who had at one time attended that institution were seated upon the rostrum and, as their names and dates of attendance were called each one stood at attention. Musical selections were given by Miss Nola Epperly at the piano and Leslie Davis with his ocarina, and short talks by Brother Dayken of Iowa City, and Brother Hield and Apostle Edwards were well received. Almost thirty dollars was collected as a College Day offering at the close of the program.

The Joy Young People's Orchestra, with the addition of Sister Marion White and Louise Gunlock, of Rock Island, entertained with several delightful numbers preceding the Graceland program. Sister Orpha Holmes, district chorister, was their director.

The closing service was an impressive sermon by Brother Edwards. The story of the mighty eagle which held its prey, a tiny weasel, so close to its heart that the animal sapped its life blood and caused it to fall to the ground was used as a striking object lesson. We who cling persistently to those things which we crave, regardless of the harm they bring us, must reap the eagle's fate. The kingdom of God has not been built because of that "besetting sin" which each of us harbors to the destruction of his own ideals. When we can put from us everything which hinders our development and progress, both as an individual and a church, the kingdom shall be built.

With Southern Ohio Saints

Dayton, Ohio, November 16.—At this time of the year our minds naturally grow retrospective, and looking back over the experiences of the year 1931, we find much to cause us to give thanks to our heavenly Father for the manifold blessings of his grace.

Due to the depression, the district president Elder A. E. Anderton, decided to limit the number of district gatherings to four. Of these the writer was privileged to attend two, an all-day meeting at Creola and a priesthood institute and banquet at First Columbus Branch.

Creola is the home of Brother A. B. Kirkendall, and the services held there took the nature of a reunion in his honor.

We felt it altogether proper that the long and faithful services rendered by our brother should be commemorated, and those who were permitted to attend this service could not fail to profit by the experience.

Brother Kirkendall has held his present position over forty-six years and has served the church in various capacities for over fifty years. His testimony is that although he has been a member of the Reorganization for fifty-two years, he is not tired of the way and has never regretted his decision to cast his lot with the Saints. It is our observation that he has been a power for good, and that throughout Southern Ohio his name will never be forgotten and with it will be associated many pleasant memories. His genial companion has been long and faithful in the service of God and is worthy to share with him the love and esteem of the Saints.

Brothers A. E. Anderton, J. R. Grice and the writer occupied the pulpit at this service. A powerful gift of tongues and the interpretation were given by Brother Grice, for which our hearts were filled with gratitude to God.

The institute at Columbus was well attended by the priesthood of the district and a profitable and enjoyable time was experienced. All regretted that Apostle Clyde F. Ellis was unable to be present to give the lectures assigned to him. We believe that others have written of the results of the institute and banquet and our own opinion is that it was a decided success.

Dayton branch has had its share of blessings this year, and we believe 1931 is the best year in its history.

The district president has visited us on several occasions and profitably occupied our pulpit. He is always assured a welcome in Dayton. Missionary, John R. Grice held a three weeks' series of services in Dayton last spring with the results of four baptisms and others interested, Brother John is a splendid missionary and his fine singing and stirring sermons won the hearts of the Saints. We hope it will not be long until he can be with us again for a series of services. Lately we enjoyed two sermons from him, and his presence in a service of the Lord's Supper.

November 1, Patriarch G. T. Griffiths came to Dayton and continued his meetings over the next Sunday. It would be impossible to estimate the great amount of good resulting from his visit. His wise counsel and inspirational sermons along with his wonderful store of experiences have combined to make him a unique servant for Christ. The saints consider themselves highly favored by his presence. The prayers of this branch will be with him, that the blessings of health of body and vigor of mind as well as the continued presence of the Holy Spirit may be his to enjoy.

Our experiences have not all been pleasant, but we believe that the above is sufficient to encourage us to press onward toward the goal.

FLOYD T. ROCKWELL.

Thayer, Missouri

November 18.—We are very happy and proud to have our rock church completed. Every effort is being made to go forward. On the regular branch list are between forty-five and forty-eight active members, each doing his bit to acquaint the people with the truthfulness of the gospel. We are as one family and in carrying out this great latter day work, it will always be our aim to keep faith.

For the progress we are making here, much credit goes to Elder George Davis. Also our hearts go out to Brother Hancock, who some weeks ago came from Alabama and is now living in Thayer. He has done much good, and we are hoping that he will remain in Thayer.

The Sunday school has the following classes which are regularly attended, senior, intermediate, junior, and primary. Brother McLain teaches the seniors, Sister McLain the intermediates, Sister Ricketts, primary, and Sister Salem, junior. After the class session the primary class is marched upstairs while the piano plays, and the children are seated in a long row. This is a part of the program which the older people and the children enjoy.

Everyone is working hard to prepare a program for the coming month. A complete program will be presented on Christmas Eve, which we think will win the hearty approval of every member. It will consist of songs, recitations, dialogues, a short play, drills, and exercises. Everyone is enthusiastic over the plans. Approximately thirty-five members will take part. Preparations were begun almost five weeks ago. We also started an individual fund in order to give each one a small remembrance. This movement was begun out of the church, and we are happy that a sum of nearly seven dollars has been collected.

Elder Davis and Elder Haden have done remarkably well on the sacrifice drive for November and December. As for Thayer Branch, we can say to friends and branches elsewhere that you can count on us to do our part till it hurts and then more. We are sacrificing and in all ways helping. We hope to bring before everyone the importance of tithing. By 1932 we hope to see a big increase in the general church income.

Enfield, England

New Church, Lancaster Road

Enfield Branch is progressing, and prospects are bright. Many splendid meetings have been enjoyed, and the Lord has blessed the people with his Spirit.

Two persons entered the fold in July, being baptized by Pastor John A. Judd in an impressive service.

The Southern district conference convened August Bank Holiday, and drew large congregations to its sessions.

A pretty wedding was solemnized September 12, the contracting parties being Elder Dover A. Judd and Sister W. G. Harvey. Elder P. Whalley, pastor of Birmingham Branch, officiated, being assisted by Pastor John A. Judd, father of the bridegroom. The bride had a retinue of eight bridesmaids and the duties of best man were carried out by J. A. Judd, jr. After a reception, held under a marquee on the church lawn, the young couple left for Bognor Regis for the honeymoon.

The harvest festival was a great success. The lower stand was filled with the gifts of the Saints, and appropriate services were conducted by the pastor, assisted by various members of the ministry. Later the goods were sold and the proceeds given to the building fund. Several concerts and socials have been held and have assisted the funds to a great extent.

The members were saddened by the death of Richard Nash, sr., which occurred October 4, in the hospital, after weary weeks of suffering.

Prayers are asked for Sister W. Cole, of Bognor Regis, whose husband passed away October 29 after a short illness.

The Saints send greetings to Herald readers and pray God's blessings on his work.

Independence

Special Thanksgiving observances of the church in Independence include a sacrifice service conducted in each of the churches at nine thirty Thanksgiving morning. Appropriate Thanksgiving program offerings will be enjoyed at this hour, and a large attendance of the Saints is anticipated. Sacrifice envelopes, distributed in the homes of the members during the past three weeks, will be collected at this service.

On the evening of Thanksgiving Day the Stone Church Choir will present its annual Thanksgiving concert, Paul N. Craig directing. Mrs. John Isaacs will be the soprano soloist, Robert Miller, organist, and George Miller pianist. Mrs. Leonard J. Lea will read a one-act play. A collection will be taken for the benefit of the choir. Everyone is invited.

Among those who have served the church in this life, but recently have answered the call beyond are Brother Charles F. Bence, seventy years old, Sister Sarah L. Turner, ninety years of age, Brother Obediah Spradley, sixty-three years old, and Sister Lillian May Pilcher, fifty-one. All were residents of Independence except Sister Pilcher who lived at Atherton.

Members of the Auditorium Orchestra, directed by Orlando Nace, attended the Holden stake conference, November 15, contributing to the music of its sessions. The musicians reached their destination in time to play for Sunday school, special numbers for church, and in the afternoon accompanied the combined choirs of the stake in their rendition of "The Holy City." Apostle John F. Garver's clear and forceful morning sermon was much appreciated by the orchestra. Next Sunday the orchestra will play over KMBC at ten o'clock under the direction of Brother Nace. This group of musicians is one of the most active institutions of the church in Independence. Its help, always liberally given, is appreciated by the congregations.

Rabbi Mayerberg, of Kansas City, one of the great scholars and thinkers of our country, will be the guest speaker at the Stone Church next Sunday afternoon at two thirty. His subject will be "What the Jews Believe."

Stone Church

It was a typical "New England" sermon that Pastor John F. Sheehy preached to the Saints Sunday morning, presenting the courage, the purposefulness, and the work of the Pilgrims. Beginning with the Puritan movement in England in the sixteenth century, he reviewed the history of the John Robinson congregation, the sailing of the Mayflower, and made plain the beautiful lesson to be learned in the departure of the Pilgrims from their native country, to establish homes and places of worship in a new country and on unknown shores. Some of the commendable characteristics of the Pilgrims, he summed up as follows: They were careful; they read their Bible and believed it; they were brave and courageous; they created; they faced the future undaunted. He suggested that we, like our Puritan forefathers, face the future courageously, that we go forward in the life of the church with faith and hope, that we be thankful for the blessings we enjoy, and that we serve God and our fellow men.

The Stone Church Choir sang an anthem, "The Earth Is the Lord's," by Rogers, Mrs. Nina Grenawalt Smith singing the soprano solo; also a part of the cantata, "The Landing of the Pilgrims," by Coerne. Paul N. Craig directed, and Robert Miller played the organ. There was also a beautiful solo by Mrs. Smith, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Paul N. Craig.

In the evening Elder C. Ed. Miller presented to a large congregation stereopticon scenes of spots associated with American history. He began with the story of the Pilgrims and presented events down to the time of George Washington. Many of the pictures shown were beautifully tinted by workers in the Graphic Arts Bureau of which Brother Miller has charge.

Congregational singing of favorite hymns was led by Elder John F. Sheehy who presided over the service. He was assisted by Elder W. E. Shakespeare.

Enoch Hill Church

A unique service of song was conducted by Brother J. E. Martin at the church school session Sunday morning. Under his leadership, the congregation sang the lesson of the morning. The purpose of song was explained, and the Saints sang "Songs of Jesus." "Great and Marvelous Are Thy Works" was the song of reconciliation; "Softly and Tenderly Jesus Is Calling" was the call to service; "Oh, to Be More Like Jesus," the desire of one who has caught the vision of the love of God and church; "Master, Use Me," our answer to the call; no reservations, "I'll Go Where You Want Me to Go"; God's blessing, "O Give Us a Parting Blessing." The novelty of this program made a pleasing impression on the members.

Bishop J. A. Koehler in the morning sermon chose for his text: "Silver and gold have I none, but such as I have, give I unto you," the words of Peter. The choir sang "Ninety and Nine."

"Faith versus Fear" was the theme of Brother R. L. Bishop in the evening. "We have no reason to be afraid," he declared, "for we have the gospel and a God-ordained ministry. God is just as capable today of caring for the needs of his people as he ever was." Instances in which God's power has been manifested among his people, were cited, and the congregation was admonished to cultivate faith and to forget fear. Brother Bishop is pastor of Mount Washington Church, and his sermon was much appreciated by Enoch Hill Saints.

A trio composed of Donald Bullard, Charles Warren, and Richard Bullard sang "It Was Spoken by the Master."

East Independence Church

The work of the church is going forward. The optimistic attitude of our pastor is expressed in his teaching and preaching.

The church school is active. Its class periods are instructive, and special numbers do much to enhance the sessions.

A meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association was recently held in our church, attendance of the people of the community being good. Elder Ammon White was asked to give the talk, and he was at his best. Many of our neighbors of other congregations were much impressed by his talk.

The women of the adult division are active. For some weeks they have been sewing for each other, and with social activities they are preparing to do their part to lift the church debt. Some will sacrifice in one way, others in another way, and each one in her own way will be helping. East Independence women are ready to move forward with the women all over the church in lines recently suggested at the general meeting of women in Zion.

Brother and Sister Cochran and daughter, of Independence, recently moved into this community. We gladly welcome them for they are promising helpers.

Messages of hope have come to us of late from good speakers. The local priesthood have occupied the pulpit, presenting the gospel of good cheer.

Oshoto, Wyoming

October 4 was election of Sunday school officers. Because some members have moved away, it was necessary to make a few changes in the corps of official workers. We were sorry to see the McElroy families leave, and will greatly miss them. Of course farewell parties were in order.

Services were conducted as usual October 11, H. L. Harts-horn being the speaker.

October 18 was College Day. A nice program and basket

MISCELLANEOUS

Appointment of Bishop's Agent

Brother E. D. Bailey having presented his resignation as Bishop's Agent for Central Oklahoma District, we hereby appoint as his successor, Brother A. A. Bailey, subject to the ratification of the next district conference.

Brother E. D. Bailey has served thirty-seven years in the office of bishop's agent, giving splendid cooperation in this connection, and we wish to take this opportunity of expressing appreciation for the service rendered. We regret that at this time so loyal a worker finds it necessary to resign this responsibility.

Brother A. A. Bailey comes to us well recommended, and we feel confident he will receive the earnest cooperation of the membership in giving their support to this phase of church work.

The solicitors are requested to send their November and all subsequent reports to Brother A. A. Bailey, 1742 South Florence Street, Tulsa, Oklahoma.

THE PRESIDING BISHOPRIC,

By G. L. DELAPP.

Approved by the FIRST PRESIDENCY,

By FREDERICK M. SMITH.

Conference Notices

Central Oklahoma district conference will convene at Tulsa, Oklahoma, February 19, 20, and 21. The missionary in charge of the district will be present and one of the bishops. There are several important matters to be brought before this conference and good attendance is desired. Delegates will be elected to General Conference.—J. E. Lancaster, president of Tulsa Branch for F. Ed. Dillon, district president.

dinner were enjoyed by the Saints. So beautiful was the day that dinner was spread outdoors.

A surprise party was given Raymond Cousins October 31. Old friends enjoyed a happy evening of conversation, games, and refreshments.

Western Maine Holds Conference

Mountainville, Maine, Saints entertained the Western Maine district conference, November 7 and 8. The conference met Saturday at two o'clock for business. Apostle Roy S. Budd was chosen to preside over the conference, being associated with the district presidency.

The recommendation of the name of Phillip Billings to the office of teacher was accepted and his ordination was provided for.

Delegates to General Conference were chosen.

On Saturday eighteen members from Jonesport came by bus to attend the conference. We were glad to have these Saints come and to get better acquainted with them.

Short talks were made by five young men of the priesthood Saturday night. Their words brought cheer to all.

Prayer and testimony meeting brought the Saints together Sunday at nine o'clock. The Spirit of God was in this meeting, the members being greatly blessed.

Brother E. F. Robertson asked the Saints what they could pledge to give during the sacrifice period, and a sum of four hundred and fourteen dollars was raised. Many promised to do all they could.

Brother A. Begg, Elder Newman Wilson, and Apostle R. S. Budd were the conference speakers.

The next conference will be held at Stonington at the call of the presidency.

Sunday evening sent the Saints home with joy in their hearts and a determination to do more in the glorious gospel work.

Our Departed Ones

STOUTENBURG.—Albert Stoutenberg was born May 6, 1847, in Canada. Died September 16, 1931, at Standish, Michigan. Leaves to mourn his wife, Ella, fourteen children, and many friends. Many years ago he was baptized a member of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. A large crowd listened to the funeral sermon preached by Elder Hubert Case.

CHAPMAN.—Missouri Chapman was born November 18, 1848, Posey County, Indiana. Died, October 14, 1931, at the home of her son in Joplin, Missouri. She was married to William Chapman August 8, 1868, in Illinois. To this union were born nine children, seven sons, and two daughters. Her companion, four sons, and one daughter have preceded her in death. With her companion she removed to Rich Hill, Missouri, in 1881, and has resided there ever since, being one of the charter members of Rich Hill Branch. She was baptized a member of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints in 1888 by Alfred White. She is survived by three sons, Edward M., of Joplin, Charles, of Chicago, and John of Tulsa; one daughter, Mrs Barry Payne, of Kansas City, Eleven grandchildren, and six great-grandchildren. The funeral services were conducted at the little church in Rich Hill, which was filled to overflowing by her friends of long years' standing. She was a friend to all, and while this good woman has gone to her reward, her influence will live for many years in the lives of the young folks who have known her, and in knowing her, loved her. Services were in charge of Elder Frank McDonald, president of Spring River District. Interment was in Rich Hill Cemetery.

YOUNG.—Alburn Barton Young was born in Pottawattamie County, Iowa, in 1850, and departed this life November 2, 1931, at his home in North Colony, Kansas, a highly respected citizen of Greeley County. He was the last survivor of a family of twelve children. At the age of twenty-two he was united in marriage to Elizabeth J. Edmonds in Alameda County, California. To them were born eight children: Mrs. Olive Hollen, of Vermillion, Canada; Clarence, of Goodland, Kansas; Rae, Abbie, and Lon, of Tribune, Kansas. Edwin, Dora, and Florence preceded the father in death. When he was fourteen years old he united with the church at Livermore, California. Was always a faithful and active church worker, occupying in the offices of priest and elder. Most of his younger life was spent in California. He moved with his family to Iowa in 1890, and then to Greeley County, Kansas, in 1906. Besides his wife and five children, he leaves twenty-seven grandchildren, fifteen great-grandchildren, and a host of neighbors and friends. The funeral was held from the Methodist Episcopal Church, at Tribune, and the sermon was by the Reverend Sutton, of Goodland. Interment was in Tribune Cemetery.

DANIELS.—Robert Lynn Daniels was born August 12, 1928, at American Falls, Idaho. With his parents, he lived at Pauline, Idaho. His mother passed away December 28, 1930. From that time he had made his home part of the time with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. I. M. Daniels, of Rupert, Idaho, where he passed away after an illness of four weeks. Left to mourn besides his father are one brother, Jack, two sisters, Gene and Virgie, his grandparents, and numerous other relatives and friends. A beautiful child with a sweet disposition, he will be missed by all who knew him. Funeral services were held at the Saints' church in Rupert in charge of Elder Arthur Condit, sermon by Elder W. A. Connell. Interment was in Burley Cemetery.

Conference Notices

SOUTHERN NEBRASKA.—Annual district conference convened at Lincoln, November 7 and 8. Lincoln Branch entertained the visitors the evening of November 6 with a program composed of musical numbers and a story "The Quest of the Yellow Pearl." The conference opened at 9:30 a. m. Saturday with a prayer meeting in charge of District President O. L. D'Arcy. Apostle E. J. Gleazer was in attendance and gave much information and instruction. A business session was called at 2 p. m. Minutes of the last conference were read and approved. Reports were from branches and groups in the district. O. L. D'Arcy's missionary report was given orally. Apostle Gleazer suggested that we have a leader of religious education in the district. This action was left to O. L. D'Arcy, district president. Election of officers was as follows: President, O. L. D'Arcy. The conference approved the appointment of W. E. Poague and B. M. Anderson as his assistants. Mrs. F. W. Black was sustained secretary and elected as treasurer of the district. E. N. Byergo was sustained bishop's agent. Apostle Gleazer suggested that a district fund be provided to cover the expenses of District President O. L. D'Arcy in his missionary activities. The conference approved this suggestion and a committee was chosen to work out a plan. The secretary of the district was recommended to care for this fund. Delegates to the 1932 General Conference were chosen as follows: Mrs. Audientia Anderson, O. L. D'Arcy, B. M. Anderson, E. J. Lenox, Mrs. O. L. D'Arcy, W. E. Poague, and E. J. Gleazer. It was moved and seconded that the next district conference be left to the call of the district presidency; carried. After the business meeting Apostle Gleazer occupied some time, explaining the financial conditions of the general church, the necessity for the release of the missionaries, and what must be done to meet the present emergency. Those who attended the conference feel that they better understand the existing conditions in the church and the call to a more consecrated effort on the part of members of the Southern Nebraska District. Apostle E. J. Gleazer occupied the Saturday evening service. Sunday school was held at 9:45 a. m. November 8, in charge of W. E. Poague, superintendent of Lincoln Branch; preaching service at 11, Apostle Gleazer the speaker. Priesthood meeting at 1 p. m., and sacrament service at 3:30, followed by prayer and testimony meeting. Those who stayed for the evening meeting were again privileged to hear Apostle E. J. Gleazer. Following this meeting conference was adjourned subject to the call of the district.

VISION

ANNOUNCES A NEW

Short Story Contest

THE PRIZES

First Prize .....	$15.00 Cash
Second Prize .....	8.00 Cash
Third Prize .....	5.00 Cash

The Rules

1. Stories must be original, and the work of the contestant.
2. Length to be 3,000 words or under.
3. Good lively stories wanted. Doctrinaire element not required, though stories will be most favored which are wholesome in characterization, atmosphere, and culmination.
4. All stories submitted for this contest are to be considered for use in Vision, whether they win prizes or not.
5. All manuscripts should be in the hands of the Story Contest Editor on or before December 31, 1931.

Address

VISION

Story Contest Editor

Box 237

Independence, Missouri

Let Us Have Courage to Move Forward

By J. E. Vanderwood

Some years ago I ran across this little quotation in a magazine, I do not know who is responsible for it, so I am not able to give credit to its author, but I rather like its sentiment so I am presenting it here as a basic principle upon which to predicate the thought of this article. It reads: "While Doubt stands still Confidence can erect a skyscraper." There is much truth in this and I am inclined to the belief that we ourselves could have done much more good in the world if we had at all times, and under all circumstances, kept the spirit of confidence uppermost in our hearts and our minds. Doubt paralyzes and destroys our usefulness, but confidence is a builder, and an invigorator; it furnishes power and ability to perform; and if we were constantly utilizing it we would be able to move forward the cause of Zion in mighty power. Doubt throws a cloud, a shadow, over the pathway; and causes us to hesitate and falter when we should be moving steadily onward. Sheakespeare has said, "Our doubts are traitors, and make us lose the good we oft might gain, by failing to attempt." And when Peter walked on the water to his Master he was making excellent headway until fear began to enter his heart and mind, and after the Master had stretched forth his hand and saved him, he asked, "Wherefore didst thou doubt?" These things seem to convey to us the destructiveness of doubt. I am unable to see why we who are endowed with intelligence, and who have been made partakers of the Spirit of the living God should allow ourselves to become circumscribed with doubt and fear. I am sure we would be able to do much better if we would constantly keep the spirit of courage and confidence in our minds, and be able to say with the One whom we have come to revere, that "the Father and I are one." I think it is quite possible for us to be one with God if we would just learn to keep the spirit of confidence and trust uppermost in our minds and hearts.

Why should the heart grow faint and weak
When of the best we here should speak?
Why should we fail to do our best,
Or lose in life the highest quest?
The world is ours, why not achieve?
We'll really win if we believe
That we have been endowed with power
Sufficient for each passing hour;
If we will rise with courage bold
And take on life a firmer hold.

The very nature of our work demands that we put into it the very best, and I am convinced that this can not be done if we allow either fear or doubt to enter in and occupy a place in our relationships. I am convinced that God is true, and that he is able to give us the victory if we have confidence to trust him and to carry out the requirements of his word to us. Ezra seemed to have the right idea when he refused the assistance of the king's army, he said, "I was ashamed to require it of the king after I had boasted, our God will protect us." It would at least give strength and progress to the work of the church if we who are representing it were always in an attitude of revealing one hundred per cent in confidence. Fear is deadly, it simply interferes with our achievements and accomplishments. With the poet we ask:

Why should we either fear or doubt
If we are sure what we're about?
For knowledge we are told is power,
And man shall triumph in the hour
Of his devotion to the best,
When he the highest good has stressed;
When he has overcome the base,
And runs with patience in the race;
Determining to reach the goal
Through wisdom and through self control.

Come to think of it there is no justifiable reason for doubt and fear in the work of the Lord, but we are just a little too human yet, and therefore we allow the human tendencies to defraud us of the things that otherwise might be ours. Let us take comprehensive view of the matter and see what we have before us. Christ came into the world with the avowed purpose of doing his Father's will, and in all things he was master of the situation. He was never disturbed with fears and doubts. He was able to say with perfect serenity, "I know that you always hear me." We should also be possessed with that same confidence, we should be able to feel the assurance of his presence with us, and we ought to be able to speak with such definite accent that men everywhere would be able to turn their allegiance to Christ. I am sure the Master intended us to have the very best; he has asked us to learn of him, and he has told us that he will never forsake us. If we had more faith in God in the mission of Christ would we be possessed of greater confidence?

Why then should man not be possessed
Of that which in this life is best?
For if he'd walk in wisdom's way
He would make progress every day,
Until at length he'd stand complete
Not knowing failure, nor defeat,
Because with God he'd live and move
And daily in his actions prove
That man is heir to all that's good,
When he its law has understood.

It is useless for us to talk of the wasted past, and it is only folly for us to rail at the mistakes that have been made by men, for these things will only rob us of our power to perform. The thing that is needful is to begin where we are, with the equipment at hand, and in the spirit of confidence set our eye upon the goal of our work and then put ourselves so unreservedly into the work that we will challenge the admiration and emulation of all those who love truth and right. It is therefore folly for us to worry ourselves with what might have been, for things are as they are and we must work with present conditions. It is our sacred privilege to go to work at the performance of our task, however serious or difficult it may seem to be, with the assurance that God is able to give us strength sufficient for our work, and that as we work with him he will endow us with wisdom and power sufficient to perform the work that is intrusted to us. We need not err in this matter, for I am sure our God who has promised to sustain us is abundantly able to provide both wisdom and strength sufficient for the task that is undertaken by us. It is ours to trust in God and it is his privilege to qualify us for the task, which I feel reasonable sure he will do if we put the best there is in us into the work he has required of us.

I say why should man falter here
When Christ has made the pathway clear?
Why should he grope about in doubt
When he has means of finding out
The highest and the deepest lore,
The things of truth, and what is more
The way of peace, the way of life,
The art of overcoming strife;
Then why should man not be complete,
Relieved of folly and deceit?

Let us with confidence in God, confidence in his word, and confidence in our ability to perform the task he has set before us undertake our work with sincerity and diligence, ignoring the elements of doubt and fear, and clinging steadfastly to the example presented to us in the life and ministry of the Master of men, and the cause of Zion will begin to take form and unfold until the people who behold will be constrained to confess that God has residence below, that his dwelling place is with men. Surely this is a worthy undertaking, and I am convinced that it is all comprehended in the ministry unto which we have been called, I would therefore like to be able to help inspire all with zeal and earnestness to perform the work that the Lord requires of us. If we fail of our most sacred privilege he will raise up another generation to fulfill his purposes as he did when the people of Israel who came out of Egypt, died in the wilderness, and their children went over into the land of promise. Really the challenge that is placed before us demands that we shall be strong and of a good courage, and that we shall exercise unwavering faith and confidence in the God of our salvation.

Having thought this matter over, let us have courage to go forward and achieve the ends that God in his infinite wisdom has purposed to give unto the people who prepare and qualify themselves to receive and enjoy it. All along in life we have found that our achievement is commensurate with our effort. We reach up to the height we have striven for, we have mastered the things we have but ourselves resolutely to master, and we have triumphed over the obstacles we have been willing to put beneath our feet. The way is open before us; we must avail ourselves of the opportunity afforded if we are to achieve the ends set and come to share in the benefits that are to accrue from the building of a society of men here upon earth who will do the will of God. At this time when the world is struggling under the social and economic burdens that have been thrust upon them is the logical time for us to bring to light the excellence of the message that has been committed unto us, and we ought to make our program so effective that all will come to admire and revere the giver of such a magnanimous remedy for the ills of suffering humanity. May God enable us to see that now is the appointed time, that now is the day of salvation.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

(Continued from page 1109.)

SHE IS NOT DISCOURAGED

I enjoy reading the many good sermons and letters in Herald and Ensign. Much has been said to encourage and assist us in carrying on.

Since the church has been confronted by a financial crisis, I have spent much time in thought. I must admit reading the financial report published in the Herald, did not make me feel that the church was going on the rocks. I was not discouraged for I have read that that which God has designed will be accomplished, and he says he will have a people who will serve him. We have been forewarned of the condition in latter days, and I am wondering if half our number would be ready were the call made: Go ye out to meet the bridegroom.

Reckoning over the numbers of church members who have not kept the financial law, I am forced to wonder what else we can expect.

We must not forget that we are latter-day Israel and that those who stand at the head of the church are given to know the needs of the organization and have a vision of the building up and the redeeming of Zion. In years of prosperity we of latter-day Israel have failed to keep the financial law, and now that depression has come, will it waken in us a sense of our individual duty, and cause us to feel it a privilege to have part in the redeeming of Zion? Let us awake and rally to the standard that has been set, not, like Israel of old, making excuses and deceiving ourselves. Of a surety, Saints, we shall give an account of that which God has intrusted to us. Shall we rob God?

DIORA LYDICK.

GLEN EASTON, WEST VIRGINIA.

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Frederick M. Smith, Editor in Chief.
 Elbert A. Smith, Floyd M. McDowell, Associate Editors.
 Leonard J. Lea, Managing Editor.
 Leta B. Moriarty, Assistant Editor.
 Published for the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.
 Subscription price: By the year, $2.

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE
 INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI

CONTENTS

NOTES FROM THE FIELD .....	1106
EDITORIAL:
If .....	1107
Paul's Reason for Thankfulness .....	1107
A Prophetic Message .....	1108
LETTERS TO THE EDITOR .....	1109
OFFICIAL:
Church Debt Plan Survey .....	1109
ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
The Gifts of the Gospel, by A. B. Phillips .....	1110
The Challenge of the Restoration, by Eugene and Julia Closson .....	1112
Weekly Health Letter, by A. W. Teel, M. D. ....	1114
Our Priesthood Responsibility, by John R. Grice .....	1115
Why the Church Choir, by Ruth Wallace .....	1116
What Can Be Done About It, by C. H. Porter .....	1117
Let Us Have Courage to Move Forward, by J. E. Vanderwood .....	1126
NEWS OF CHURCH AND HOME .....	1119
MISCELLANEOUS .....	1124

Buy Your Farms Now

While they are cheap. Any size, best terms. Special attention to readers of the Saints' Herald.

CHAS. R. BOWMAN

Butler, Mo.

Artistic!

Distinctive!

Modern!

Christmas Cards

A wonderful new line from our supply house.

Better than last year's excellent assortment.

Splendid Values at Depression Prices

Order from

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE

INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI

SCHWAB AND MATTHEWS

BARBER SHOP

Watkins Hotel Lobby

Open till 10 p. m. every night.

ARE YOU A BLIND FISH?

In the great depths of the sea, naturalists tell us, are fish that have tiny sightless eyes, and are totally blind because for generations they have lived where there is no light.

Are you raising your family in spiritual darkness? Will your children—or your neighbor's children—grow up to a life of spiritual blindness?

READ THE CHURCH PAPERS!

Give a

NEW HYMNAL

for Christmas.

Orders filled same day received.

Send for your book now.

DON'T MISS THE

"Eighteen Carat Boob"

"Leaves an impression that decreases the depression."

STONE CHURCH DINING HALL

NOVEMBER, 27,—8 P. M.

The average man spends as much on his car as he does on his LIFE INSURANCE. Certainly your life is worth more to your family than your car—
INSURE IT FULLY!

Call us and our representative will call.

INSURANCE DEPARTMENT
OF THE CHURCH

(American Underwriters, Inc.)

Indep. 486

221 W. Lexington St.

THE SAINTS' HERALD

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS

OW
Independence
711 S FULLER
Smith O H

Entered as second-class matter at the post office at Independence, Missouri, under Act of March 3, 1879. Independence, Missouri. Price $2 a year in advance. Accepted for mailing at the special rate of postage provided in Act of October 3, 1917; authorized July 21, 1921.

Volume 78

Independence, Missouri, December 2, 1931

Number 48

If You Truly Love Your Church—

Help It Now!

---

THOUGHTS ON CHRISTMAS GIVING

A. B. Phillips

A SOCIALIZED SURPLUS VERSUS INSURANCE

James E. Bishop

WHAT OF OUR DAUGHTERS?

Leta B. Moriarty

A MISSIONARY AT LARGE

James W. Davis

The Work of the Church Will Go On

It's November, Then December

It will perhaps be wise to remind our readers that the special sacrifice effort includes both the months of November and December. The needs of the church are so great and the amount required by January 15 so large that it will be necessary for the Saints throughout the church to continue the work so well begun during the month of November throughout the month of December, culminating their special effort in a great Christmas gift to Christ.

It has been necessary to spend a good share of the month of November in preparation and organization. A determined effort has been made on the part of the officers of the church to keep the membership informed. Detailed facts have been presented. Appeals have been issued. Suggestions for the organization of the work in branches and districts have been furnished. By this time the work should be well under way throughout the church. We feel absolutely certain that much of this effort will be lost or made ineffective if it is not made the foundation for a sustained and even greater effort not only during the month of December but during the months and years to come.

Let us repeat, now is the time for the mobilization of all the resources of the church both spiritual and financial. Now is the time for every member of the church who professes to care aught for its success to rally to its support at all costs. This is the testing time, verily the sifting time. Can it be possible that ours is the sort of faith that will "shrink"? Is it possible that our devotion to the church is not sufficient for our present trial? Is it possible that we still hold our material possessions and our selfish pleasures in greater esteem than the cause of God?

Letters received daily at the general offices of the church indicate that throughout the world the Saints are responding to the call. They are passing the test. They are paying the price. District after district has pledged its quota and more. Many have expressed the desire to know their share of the church debt that they might pay it. Many notable examples of a splendid spirit of sacrifice have gone on record. The official call said, "The work of the Church must go on." The Saints throughout the church are saying, "The work of the Church will go on."

Let our readers remember then that while the tasks before us are many and difficult, the next step in solving these problems and accepting these tasks is a whole-hearted response to the call for special sacrifice culminating in the Christmas season of this year. Why not give our "Christmas gifts" to Christ this year?

F. M. McD.

Why Not Try This?

In their efforts to keep the needs of the church in this present crisis before the Saints, some of our branch presidents have found the following plan to be very effectual.

The branch president in conference with other branch officers and leaders selects from his membership a limited number of persons to be designated as "four-minute speakers." It is the special task of the persons thus selected to make a study of the present needs and program of the church in order to be prepared on short notice to give a short address on any one of various aspects of the total problem.

Where this plan has been tried, branch presidents have arranged for these short addresses at various of their church services, sometimes during the worship service of the church school, sometimes in the interim between church school and regular preaching service, sometimes in the midweek prayer service, or again at social gatherings of the Saints, it being their experience that a four-minute speech can be fitted into nearly any program.

It has been also found practicable to exchange speakers, encouraging speakers from one branch to visit other branches in their vicinity and in turn to welcome visiting speakers to one's own branch.

This plan makes it necessary for a number of our wide-awake workers to make a special study of the church and its needs. It assures a continuous presentation of these needs to the people, presentations from various points of view. By this method, therefore, interest and enthusiasm is maintained. It is absolutely imperative that every Latter Day Saint be informed and alert as to the present situation of the church. The plan here presented is admirably adapted to just such an emergency.

Below we have listed a number of possible topics for four-minute speeches. These should merely serve as suggestions. The reader will readily think of others. Following the list of topics will be found some references. Most of the subjects we have suggested have been discussed in the Saints' Herald. It will therefore be one of the best sources of reference for the "four-minute speakers."

Of course the church books should be ever at hand. In addition to the three standard books, splendid material will be found in the Journal of History, the Church History, and The Restoration Movement and the Latter Day Saints, by A. B. Phillips. A splendid oration was printed in Vision for June, 1931.

Suggested topics for four-minute speeches:

- The Price They Paid
- The Price Men Are Paying
- The Work of the Church Must Go On

The Work of the Church Will Go On
 Measuring Youth's Devotion
 How Youth May Carry Its Share
 Why File an Inventory?
 Why Pay Tithing?
 Why Make an Offering?
 The Value of Sacrifice
 It Can Be Done
 Why Pay the Church Debt Now?
 If You Owe a Debt to God, Pay It Now
 If You Have a Gift for Christ, Give It Now
 If You Plan to Sacrifice, Do It Now
 If You Truly Love Your Church, Help It Now
 The Glory of Giving
 A Christmas Gift for Christ
 The Depression—A Sifting Time
 Can We Pass the Test?
 The Present Crisis
 Do We Possess Championship Qualities?
 Shall We Bear Our Cross?
 Financing the Church in God's Way
 A Faith for a Task
 Those Who Sincerely Believe
 Investing in the Cause of Christ
 Is This Just a Church or Is It My Church?

References:

Saints' Herald:

May 20, 1931, pages 459-460.
 May 27, 1931, page 482.
 June 3, page 513.
 June 10, pages 530, 533, 543.
 June 17, page 556, 557.
 June 24, page 580.
 July 1, page 603.
 September 30, page 914.
 October 7, pages 938, 940, 941.
 October 14, pages 962, 964, 965, 966, 972, 974, 975.
 October 21, pages 986, 988.
 October 28, pages 1010, 1011, 1012, 1013, 1015.
 November 11, pages 1058, 1060, 1062, 1063.
 November 18, pages 1085, 1086, 1088.
 November 25, pages 1106, 1107, 1112, 1115
 December 2. (Look for them in this issue.)

It is hoped that pastors will make early arrangements for speakers to present these subjects to their congregations.

F. M. McD.

"Four-minute Speakers"

Elsewhere in this issue of the Herald there is briefly presented a plan which some of our branches have found effective in their attempt to respond to the call of the church in the present emergency.

This plan involves the appointment of a limited number of special workers to be designated as "Four-minute Speakers." Branch Presidents who have followed this plan have carefully selected and instructed these speakers and arranged for the presentation of short addresses at the various services of the branch. Wherever this has been tried it has met with splendid results.

Those who are interested in this plan will find a suggested list of subjects or topics for four-minute speeches, together with references in the Herald and other church publications, dealing with these and other topics. Note also "Four-minute Sacrifice Themes for December."

It is imperative that our Saints be kept informed and alert during these trying times. One or two more or less indifferent announcements will not suffice. Over and over again from various and ever fresh points of view the needs of the church in the present crisis and the elements in God's law for financing the church must be presented. An army of several hundred keen and alert "four-minute speakers" chosen from the ranks of both age and youth can fill this need admirably. Why not try this plan in your branch?

F. M. McD.

Vision Story Contest

The weeks have been passing since we first announced the story contest sponsored by Vision. Some stories have already come to the office. We hope that many others are in the course of preparation.

The prizes are not great, and yet we note that they are as large as the prizes being offered by the magazines of other denominations. Those who do not wish to write for the personal profit of receiving a prize may be interested in attempting to win the prize for a sacrifice offering to the church. (It may be noted here that prize money from the Word of Wisdom Contest was given to the church by at least one winner.)

Time passes rapidly. Many who have intended to enter stories in the contest will find it difficult to fulfill their good intentions unless they get busy with their typewriters now.

We sincerely hope that this contest will bring in as much fine material as the last one, the Word of Wisdom Contest, did. Perhaps you have never written a story, but you would like to try to see what you could do with that intriguing plot which is in the back of your head. This is your chance.

L. L.

The person who holds his eye at a keyhole is in danger of suffering from the draught which blows in his eye. There are the added dangers of getting the door banged in his face, or being kicked from the rear. And he properly deserves any of these punishments. Snooping and espionage, with the object of hurting others, are always despicable.

"Four-minute" Sacrifice Themes for December

By C. B. Woodstock

The months of November and December have been set aside in all the church as an occasion for special sacrifice. The First Presidency have suggested that in every branch at least one four-minute speech shall be made each Sunday, calling attention to the nature of the need which makes sacrifice imperative, and arousing the Saints to a willingness to sacrifice that the work of the church may go on.

In another column a number of appropriate themes are suggested. These may be used as a part of the general worship program, as a part of the preaching hour, or as themes for sermons and prayer services.

The following outlines may be helpful in presenting four of the themes. These should be expanded and given local color and application.

December 6. Love Means Sacrifice

"Gather my saints together unto me; those that have made a covenant with me by sacrifice."—Psalm 50:5.

"For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life."—Saint John 3:16.

To love means to give, to share, to serve.

Parents sacrifice daily for their children.

The supreme sacrifice is to give one's life in service for others.

Jesus sacrificed his life in service, and in death on the cross—because he loved us in our need.

Today we are called to express our love for God and the church in our personal sacrifice, that through our gift there may be means to meet the financial need.

It is the Lord's plan that funds for the work of the church shall be supplied through tithes and offerings. It is our plan to give to the Lord his share that the work of the church may go on.

December 13. The Church Has Cost Sacrifice

"Know ye not that . . . ye are not your own? For ye are bought with a price."—1 Corinthians 6:19, 20.

"I am the good shepherd; the good shepherd giveth his life for the sheep."—Saint John 10:11.

"Who his own self bare our sins . . . by whose stripes we are healed."—1 Peter 2:24.

Jesus gave himself on the cross that eternal salvation might be purchased for our race. We also must give of our best that his work may go on to completion.

The church has been built and the gospel preached through sacrifice. Jesus was crucified, John the Baptist, Peter, Steven and many others suffered martyrdom for the cause of Christ.

Kirtland Temple was built and the early missionaries went out under extreme sacrifice. They paid the price, and the cause prospered wondrously. Then came the latter-day persecution at Independence, Far West, and Nauvoo, and the death of the Martyrs at Carthage.

Latter-day missionaries went out with the spirit of sacrifice and the Reorganization was firmly established. Charles Derry, Glaude Rodger, Charles H. Lake, and many more gave of their all that the Truth might be proclaimed in the world. We must give in our day of crisis, that the Truth may go on!

(See "A Missionary Who Sacrificed," Saints' Herald, June 17, 1931, page 557.)

December 20. Our Christmas Gift to Christ

It is an unchristian custom, that on the birthday of Christ we must spend often much more than we can afford for an expensive dinner and for gifts for all our relatives and friends. This year, especially, we must give to the Christ and the cause of his church. Let our offering be a real gift, through personal self-denial the best that we can give, to the Christ.

The church has need which only sacrifice can supply—in funds to go forward. We individually need the spirit of earnest consecration which can come only through sacrifice for a righteous cause. Our sacrifice will save the church, and it will also save us.

In the recent past we have spent too freely. We must cease wasteful, indifferent and selfish spending. We must actually go without some things we might desire. We must deny self, pay the Lord his share in tithes, and make an offering which will truly express our devotion.

In the cause of sacrificial economy, we may easily reduce our ordinary expenditures twenty-five per cent. We may do without extra clothes, expensive foods, shows, and other commercial entertainments. We may keep the financial law—render an inventory and make an accounting of our stewardships. We may pay our tithes and make a sacrifice offering to the Lord. Let this be our Christmas Gift to Christ.

December 27. Let Us Seal Our Covenant With Sacrifice

"Gather my Saints together unto me, those that have made a covenant with me by sacrifice."—Psalm 50:5.

We do not value that which has cost no payment in effort. No contract is valid which does not represent an exchange of values.

God and Christ have done their share that the earth may be blessed with the gospel. Only we who obey the Truth have failed to seal the covenant. This is the day of our opportunity—a day of service and sacrifice, and promised blessing.

Countless numbers have given in the past, and some are giving to the utmost today that the gospel message of latter days may go to the ends of the earth. Brother and Sister Ruch in far Norway, Brother and Sister Farthing and Brother and Sister Yager in the sunny Isles of the Sea, and many others are giving lives full of consecrated service. Home and foreign missionaries, on small allowances, or none at all, move steadily forward with undaunted courage. Other missionaries, recalled from their fields, still carry on locally and earn what they can for their families; and yet they give, for they love deeply. Let us also give as a measure of our love.

With the closing of the two months of sacrifice period, we enter upon a new year resolved to continue our service and sacrifice. The Cause of Christ deserves our best gifts not only for two months, but for the New Year, and for life!

Good Work

The best we have is none too good to give to any job. Those who chronically mourn for great opportunities to perform important works (and there are many of them) dream of a magnificent future while they foolishly neglect the humble opportunities of the immediate present. They do not know that they are giving themselves a poor training for the performance of great future tasks in their negligent handling of small duties.

Slipshod work has two effects: it makes a bad task, and it makes a bad man. This is inevitable. A task conscientiously performed, no matter how small it may be, is training for a great future.

Notes From the Field

A Branch Sacrifice at Minot, North Dakota

Of course North Dakota is going to be found in the ranks of those trying to do for our common cause, God's cause.

Our branch, the Minot, is releasing all funds that we can to help the general church. We expect to try harder than ever to carry on and send out the call to arms for money. But you will remember that we are flat this year owing to the drouth, second year. This one the worst in the State's history.

Charitable organizations are giving out to thousands food and old clothing and fuel to keep the home fires blazing.

We are not unmindful of the general call and need all over the world for even the necessities of life. Expect to do my very best to try to put over the call for money.

Yesterday at a business meeting of the Minot Branch we unloosed about $125 or $130, that has been held in banks for various funds of the branch.

Was just thinking if the over seven hundred branches of the church could do as much, that would mean between $85,000 and $90,000.

WARREN MCELWAIN.

A Record Sacrifice in Australia

Since last writing our Sacrifice Week returns have risen to approximately three hundred and twenty-six pounds, which, as far as memory serves me, is more than twice what we have ever raised before. The formula sent out from your office and adapted to the needs of this mission, together with the fact that this mission was cooperating with the church in an effort for greater financial stability, helped to bring this happy result.

W. J. HAWORTH.

AUSTRALIA.

A Resolution by the Mobile, Alabama, Branch

We, the members of the Mobile Branch, wish to present the following resolution:

That we desire to work in harmony with the recent action of the Joint Council and to do our part in carrying out the new program.

Knowing our quota for the months of November and December to aid in a financial way, we are determined not only to reach our goal, but we will earnestly endeavor to exceed it.

We pledge ourselves to help the church release itself of its indebtedness in the least time possible.

It is with regret that we lose Brother and Sister Burt who have served us so faithfully during the past three years, and we pledge ourselves to carry on to the best of our ability the work here.

We appreciate the counsel and advice given us by Apostle Gillen and President Floyd M. McDowell in their service with us.

Our desire is to carry on.

This resolution was adopted by motion and unanimous vote, November 18, 1931.

(Signed) IRENE DAY, Secretary.

Ward L. Christy Writes from Saskatoon, Saskatchewan

We are doing all we know to do under the circumstances, and we will continue to keep the needs of the church before the people as constantly and persistently as possible.

The radio work is going forward now from Sunday to Sunday, and what reports that have come in are favorable. Heavy snow today, and prospect of cold weather, and my, how I do pray that the winter may be made milder and better than usual, for the sake of so many poor people who can not help but suffer, if it is severe.

The people here are used to hard sledding, so they are quite cheerful, and willing to divide anything they have to keep others from suffering and want.

I have great faith that things will come out right, and that the church and the people will be blessed with lessons we could have learned long ago. . . . I take great pleasure in working for God and the people, and my confidence is that God will see us through if we are penitent and learn to be wise.

God bless you and your work.

I am sincerely yours,

WARD L. CHRISTY.

Independence Sacrifices

Independence people sacrificed more than $2,300 last Thanksgiving Day, and this report is incomplete, the figures from one church not being available at the time of going to print. Considering this figure in connection with the tithing receipts and past sacrifices, it is regarded as a fine effort proceeding from the loyalty and faith of the people.

The life of every man is a diary in which he means to write one story, and writes another; and his humblest hour is when he compares the volume as it is with what he vowed to make it.—J. M. Barrie.

To preserve a friend, three things are necessary: honor him when present, praise him when absent, and assist him in his necessities.—An Italian Saying.

ORIGINAL ARTICLES

A Socialized Surplus versus Insurance

By James E. Bishop

An opportunity came my way to discuss this question with a rather broad-minded insurance man, who had with him one who was learning the business of selling insurance. It happened of an evening when I returned to the home of my host and found these two gentlemen trying to sell insurance to him and his wife. It seemed they were making good headway. I had always thought that the religious claims made for insurance were more or less fallacious and that there was a much better plan. However, the plan involves the reorganization of communities which will involve the control of the surplus. This is hard for people to see, especially those who are so deeply imbedded in this present system that they can not see anything else. I was very glad to meet this situation in this home and sought for an opening to enter the conversation. Ere long I was able to do so.

I ventured the suggestion that insurance may be all right under the present system. The insurance man, the elder of the two, who was doing most of the talking and making a big impression, replied, "Well, this is the only system I know anything about."

In reply, we suggested that this system grew out of some other system and it was easy to imagine that some other system may grow out of this one or be substituted for it.

We went on to say that as a church we believed in a new industrial society that will make the welfare of humanity uppermost and profits secondary. "If the family is the biological unit of society why not make the community the industrial unit?" A municipality is an organic unity. We do not have two mayors, two councils, two police chiefs and two police departments, etc. There is no need of two heads or two departments to do the work of one. It has been asserted that competition is the life of trade, but the glaring fact is that it has proved to be the death of trade. The big businesses will not stand for competition and will eliminate all who stand in that relation to them if at all possible. Men should compete against that aspect of the natural world that needs to be subdued, but only through cooperation can this be done successfully.

Take an example of present conditions. In Akron, Ohio, we have the great factories of Goodyear, Goodrich, Firestone, and several smaller ones. The insurance man agreed with me that either of these businesses were organized as efficiently as any insurance company. But may we not justly say that what we have is organized confusion in a given community. These organizations compete one with another in the production of rubber goods. And in this stress of unemployment the slogan adopted is "decrease the cost of production." That means that the strongest and fastest man is taken as example of output and those that can not come up to that standard are invited to leave. But even at that men are out of work. Industrial communities do not have the universal sense of direction.

If industry were organized with human welfare as its object and if labor were considered the only passport to the needs of life, then all who participate with hands and brains in industry should be made the sole beneficiaries of industry. A surplus would speedily be accumulated. This would provide for such things as insurance does now. In insurance those who need it the most have not the means to buy it.

I then submitted to the insurance man that if a few communities could be brought into existence organized so that the surplus would be socialized among its creators; would not that tend to establish the brotherhood of man? He replied, "That would not tend to establish the brotherhood of man; that would be the brotherhood of man and insurance would be unnecessary."

At this juncture the younger insurance man spoke to my host and said, "Well, my friend, such a condition of life may take a thousand years to establish, and you need protection now."

When this observation was made I was at a loss to know what to say. In fact I felt "stumped." But I was exceedingly surprised to hear the senior insurance man say, "No, it need not take long. It may be done in a few years. If every man that had been baptized by John the Baptist had been a burning light for righteousness, by the time the book of Revelation had been written the whole world would have been converted to the Christian religion. I do not find men burning lights for righteousness. I move freely among men, in banks and fraternal organizations and religious societies, and I find most men are seeking personal advantages that are afforded in a monetary society."

The above conversation caused me considerable thought. Truly the world needs Zion. People are perishing for its manifestation. We need to sing of Zion and preach it and remember all of the commandments of God, not forgetting that Zion is the product of individual regeneration and learning the laws of that perfect social state.

A Missionary at Large

The following is a series of extracts from the letters of Elder James W. Davis, concerning some of his experiences in his new position, which requires him to travel. Released some months ago along with many others on account of the retrenchment program, after many years of service in the mission field, Brother Davis has been adjusting himself to business life. In his travels he has taken the trouble to look up the members of the church on the way, some of them people who have been isolated for years. We are sure that you will find these occasional notes as interesting as we did.—Editors.

Alma, Nebraska, September 9, 1931.

Well, I found Sister Hartwell. Had a little visit with her. She is eighty-four years old, and lives with her daughter, a Mrs. Day who lives here in town. Her father was Edward W. Knapp, and her mother was a Miss Otto. They were both school-teachers in Nauvoo in days of Joseph and Hyrum, and were married there. They later went to Michigan, and this Mrs. Hartwell was born there in Kalamazoo in 1849. They later went to Council Bluffs, Iowa, and became identified with the Reorganization there. The Hartwells came to western Nebraska years ago and took up some land and made a home on it near Republican City. Hartwell passed on some years ago but she still has the old farm. They have been isolated from the church for many years, it appears. None of their family are in the church, though friendly towards it. I will probably see her again.

September 14, 1931.

Yesterday I went to hear a converted Jewish rabbi in the afternoon and then later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Day and Sister Hartwell came and got me and took me to the evening service. Mrs. Day is Sister Hartwell's daughter. I learn from them that there is another family of Saints here by the name of Wookey. They were baptized about forty years ago, or to be exact thirty-eight years ago, down there in Kansas by S. D. Payne, and never belonged to any branch in their lives. They came up here just a few days after their baptism and I guess never heard a sermon since. I went over and called on them tonight, and was invited to stay for supper, and had a good visit. For all they have been isolated so long they seem to be quite firm in the faith. They say they never had any desire to join any other church, notwithstanding they were often invited to do so. They are retired farmers and keep roomers. They told me when my room rent runs out here at the hotel not to pay any more but come and stay with them and it will not cost me anything. Sister Wookey is a cousin of that Brother Hardy who lives on Lexington Street, that jolly fellow that I work for sometimes.

September 16, 1931.

I think after I finish my writing for this evening I will go over and call on Sister Hartwell for a little while. I have a very warm invitation to go back to Wookey's, too, so will visit them again before the week is out. I think I will go to Mascot tomorrow.

Alma, September 17.

I went to Mascot, and it is just a little country corners, one store, a little filling station, an accessory shop together with the post office in the corner, and a consolidated school. Oh, yes, there is a church, too. The storekeeper is the husband of the only Latter Day Saint in the place. Her name is Dora D. Grosenbach. . . .

I was out again to call on Wookey's and had supper with them. They are pleasant people to know. He is real sociable and very hospitable. Of course she is jolly and hospitable, too. I spent a little while with Sister Hartwell last night. Her husband was a brother of Robert M. Elvin's wife.

September 19.

I checked out at the hotel tonight and came over to Brother Wookey's. I will stay here until I leave for McCook. I will go to Franklin tomorrow and try to find Sister Robertson and pay her a visit. I know Brother Robertson would not like it if I should be so near and not go to see her. He got to see my folks, but I never did get to see his. I have a nice large room here. I was with good people at the hotel, but it is better here.

September 20.

This has been a pretty good day for me. I got up in pretty good time this morning and went over to Franklin. I found Sister Robertson, E. F. Robertson's mother, and she was nearly as pleased to see me, almost as if I had been Ed himself. Her daughter, Sister Brumbaugh, lives close to her, so I got to see her, too, and she is very nice. When I got to talking to Sister Robertson about our experiences together in Australia, a flood of old memories came surging into my mind and I guess I got pretty sentimental. I couldn't forego the tears as I thought of Johnnie Jones, Bishop Lewis, Jim Maybury, and others who are gone, my own dear mother along with the rest. Brother Robertson's father passed on about two years ago.

We visited until noon, then we had dinner, and a while later we started out to see some of the Saints. This Sister Kjirstine Anderson is in her eightieth year. She is a Danish woman and obeyed the gospel in Denmark about fifty years ago. She is a wonderful old lady and was simply rejoiced to see me. Margaret Jenson and Anna Mong are her daughters, and I guess Maude Bergen is her daughter, too, but she is Allen now. The daughters are still members of the church, but not so strong in the faith as their mother. I administered to the old lady and she gave me thirty dollars tithing to send in for her.

McCook, Nebraska, September 22.

I made inquiry for some of the Saints, and was able to locate George A. Folden. He is an old painter, and a brother of Sister R. J. Anthony. I think that is what he told me, or else his wife was her sister. He and his brother live together in bachelor's quarters and the brother is a Brighamite. . . . I visited with him quite a while. He knew Joseph and your grandfather well, but didn't ever remember meeting your father.

Then I hunted up the Spences. He is a traveling salesman for Loose-Wiles and had just left home that morning. He will not be back until Friday evening. They live in light-housekeeping quarters in a nice location, and I have secured a room with people living next door to them.

October 3.

I met Brother Spence this evening. He is the one you remember as having attended Graceland. After he left college at Lamoni, he went to Iowa City until he was drafted for the army and had to go overseas, which put an end to his school work. He is a traveling salesman for the National Biscuit Company. He says business in his line is good.

Lebanon, Nebraska, October 20.

I started out to come here and found my car was leaking oil quite badly, so I came along to where Mrs. Alice Mayes lives, who is one of the Saints on the list you gave me. She is a sister of Elder Robert Burgess of Knobnoster. They were glad to see me, and treated me just like a long-lost brother. I got my shirt and overalls on and went to work on the car to stop the leak and accomplished it all right, but it took me until four o'clock in the afternoon. They invited me to stay all night, and as it was too late then to do any business, I was glad to accept the invitation, and did so. I had a good supper and breakfast with them and a fine visit. They are very nice people and have a nice family.

In the morning I came on to Wilsonville and made a call on old Sister Ward, and then started to work. I had to spend so much on my car, that I may go back to Brother Wookey's in Alma before the week is out, as they will trust me for room and board until my check comes on Monday, if that is necessary.

Alma, Nebraska.

I intended to start at the west end of the county and work this way, but have changed my plans. I will start at this end and work to the west now. I can stay here at Wookey's and also have breakfast and supper with them. After I got here tonight Sister Wookey gave me a lovely big pear and say, it was good. These folks are so nice, and I feel so at home with them, and the accommodations are the best I have had since I came out to this country, a nice room and bed, and electric light, and a good bathroom and everything so nice and clean.

Thoughts on Christmas Giving

By A. B. Phillips

What is written? . . . How readest thou?—Jesus.

Christmas is sacred to the birthday of Jesus. It is to him that our gifts should be given, as did the Wise Men of old at Bethlehem:

They saw the young child with Mary, his mother, and fell down, and worshipped him; and when they had opened their treasures, they presented unto him gifts: gold, and frankincense, and myrrh.—Matthew 2: 11.

Instead of observing this holy anniversary by making our offerings to the Lord, we have followed the selfish world which lends to those from whom as much is expected in return. Jesus warns against this:

If ye do good to them which do good to you, what thank have ye? for sinners also do even the same. And if ye lend to them of whom ye hope to receive, what thank have ye? for sinners also lend to sinners, to receive as much again.—Luke 6: 33, 34.

There are many times when giving to our loved ones is appropriate, but on this sacred day our offerings of gifts should be to Him whose birth we celebrate. This is according to God's ancient law concerning sacred days to commemorate the work of the Lord:

These are the feasts of the Lord, which ye shall proclaim to be holy convocations, to offer an offering made by fire unto the Lord, a burnt offering, and a meat offering, a sacrifice, and drink offerings, everything upon his day. Beside the sabbaths of the Lord, and beside your gifts, and beside all your vows, and beside all your freewill offerings, which ye give unto the Lord.—Leviticus 23: 37, 38.

On this one sacred day of the year our whole-hearted sacrifice to Christ by gifts to his work is particularly appropriate. It is our gratitude for his supreme gift to us, the gift of himself—read these beautiful texts:

Our Savior Jesus Christ, who gave himself for us, that he might redeem us from all iniquity, and purify unto himself a peculiar people, zealous of good works.—Titus 2: 13, 14.

But Christ liveth in me: and the life which I now live in the flesh I live by the faith of the Son of God, who loved me, and gave himself for me.—Galatians 2: 20.

Be ye therefore followers of God, as dear children; and walk in love, as Christ also hath loved us, and hath given himself for us an offering and a sacrifice to God.—Ephesians 5: 1, 2.

Let our Christmas gifts be a real sacrifice offering to the Lord. Only by sacrifice may we follow him—and he invites us to follow him:

Yet lackest thou one thing: sell all that thou hast, and distribute unto the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven: and come, follow me.—Luke 18: 22.

Whosoever will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me. For whosoever will save his life shall lose it; but whosoever shall lose his life for my sake and the gospel's, the same shall save it.—Mark 8: 34, 35.

He that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life.—John 8: 12.

My sheep hear my voice, and I know them, and they follow me: and I give unto them eternal life; and they shall never perish, neither shall any man pluck them out of my hand.—John 10: 27, 28.

When making our Christmas sacrifice offering, may we do so freely from the heart, remembering that this has been called a day of sacrifice:

Behold, now it is called today (until the coming of the Son of Man), and verily it is a day of sacrifice, and a day for the tithing of my people.—Doctrine and Covenants 64: 5.

He which soweth sparingly shall reap also sparingly; and he which soweth bountifully shall reap also bountifully. Every man according as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give; not grudgingly, or of necessity: for God loveth a cheerful giver.—2 Corinthians 9: 6, 7.

Sell that ye have, and give alms; provide yourselves bags which wax not old, a treasure in the heavens that faileth not, where no thief approacheth.—Luke 12: 33.

Of a truth I say unto you, that this poor widow hath cast in more than they all: for all these have of their abundance cast in unto the offerings of God; but she of her penury hath cast in all the living that she had.—Luke 21: 3, 4.

What is a man profited, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul? or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?—Matthew 16: 26.

Ye shall set apart all of that which is due unto the Lord, of all the best thereof, even the hallowed part thereof out of it.—Numbers 18: 29. Masoretic Text of the Holy Scriptures.

He who covenants by sacrifice shall be greatly blessed of God according to his faithfulness:

Gather my saints together unto me; those that have made a covenant with me by sacrifice.—Psalms 50: 5.

Cast thy bread upon the waters; for thou shalt find it after many days.—Ecclesiastes 11: 1.

There is that scattereth, and yet increaseth; and there is that withholdeth more than is meet, but it tendeth only to want. The beneficent soul shall be made rich, and he that satisfieth abundantly shall be satisfied also himself.—Proverbs 11: 24, 25. Masoretic Text.

Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house, and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts.—Malachi 3: 10.

Christmas Giving

By Lee White

The king's favor is toward a wise servant.—Proverbs 14: 35.

Here we are in the midst of two glorious months, November and December. They are the months of thanks and giving. In November we give thanks to God from hearts overflowing with sincere appreciation for his manifold gifts to us.

Then comes December with its Christmas festivities. What a wonderful season, all in commemoration of that wonderful event, the birth of our Lord.

Can we not show wisdom in our giving, as well as love by following the beautiful example of the Wise Men as they brought their gifts to the Child Jesus on that memorable occasion, the first Christmas Day? And may we remember that this Child was God's greatest gift to all of us; and then, in turn, Christ died for the church that the church might give us his divine gospel which includes in its program all the divine gifts of God.

Saints, this Christmas season the King of kings, the Christ of God, our elder Brother, awaits our service and our gifts.

Jesus said, "I will call you friends," and we who have felt the sweet influence of his love and friendship coursing through our hearts, know what it means to have a friend in Jesus.

May we then this Christmas-tide through gifts of heart and hand and purse prove ourselves worthy to be called his friend? May our names be found listed as wise servants and in favor of our King.

What of Our Daughters?

By L. B. M.

The other evening I was talking to a mother-friend of mine. She has a splendid daughter in her teens. Because she is irresponsible and spends most of her time thinking of herself and her own good times, this daughter is the source of much worry to her mother. The mother asked my help: "Just anything you can do to interest Mary. If you could get her started doing something for the church, it would be wonderful. I would like to see her doing something that would be training her for usefulness." Of course I was glad to say that I would do anything I could. Then I offered the mother a task in general girl work, something that would not take a considerable amount of her time and would be a positive recreation for her. But her reply was: "I'm too worried these days over my family. Sometime when I'm not so worried, I'll help you." Right then I thought again of Mary with her wondrous energy, her pretty face, and her strong young hands. What of Mary?

A Thousand and One Problems

"Monnie is too quiet. She is alone too much of the time right at a time in her life when she ought to be anxious to get out and go to parties. She prefers books," mourns another mother. "Can you suggest——"

A pair of wistful brown eyes looking up, a shake of a black head: "No, my mother just doesn't seem to care what I do."

Not many months ago a mother faced me in one of the churches in Independence, a mother whom I do not recall having seen before. Stark bewilderment was written on her face: "Ellen—I don't know what to do with her. She's wild and flighty, not like any of my other children. She's beyond me! What can I do?"

A mother's voice over the telephone: "Won't you change Jane's Sunday school class? Oh, no, she has nothing against the teacher or the girls, but it's just not her crowd. Now the girls in Mrs. Smith's class are the ones she runs around with."

"Betty is only fourteen but she's crazy to have dates just as the other girls in her set are doing. I think she's too young but——"

Then there is the veteran Sunday school teacher whose eyes become lustrous when she thinks of her class of sixteen girls. "I love them all, every one of them!" And another who vows: "The Lord being willing and the parents permitting, I'm going to make some wonderful women out of those girls of mine!"

"Barbara thinks only of pretty clothes. She doesn't seem to realize how much school costs, and it breaks her heart when daddy and I have to say 'No,'" a perplexed mother sighs.

"Susan has a new crush on some one at school or church every week. She's so changeable she worries me. Do you suppose she'll ever settle down?"

"One day Leota fusses because I refuse to buy her a pair of shoes with French heels. The next day she throws a tantrum because I won't let her go roller skating."

Problems. Problems. Problems for mother and problems for daughter. And problems—oh, so many of them!—for the church. These scraps of conversations I have given only as indications of some of the problems mothers bring to church officers, and these are not nearly all of them. I hear them every week, almost every day, and the same cry goes out to all other workers with girls: "Help us."

Groping in a Strange World

I have faith in these clear-eyed daughters of ours, problematical though they are. Every day they are learning new things, and their youthful energy urges them to try these things out. A mother who has lost her young daughter to the so-called carefreeness of modern life is to be pitied, but the one who more quickly excites my sympathies is the daughter who, dazzled by new powers and emotions, gropes religiously, intellectually, socially, and sometimes morally. She feels alone in an immense world. She thinks, "Mother doesn't understand," or "Mother doesn't care," and so she sets about choosing for herself. She can not understand the restrictions mother lays down and the reason for the many "don'ts." "But what can I do instead of that, Mother?" And if no real answer is given to her question, she is not slow to decide that her parents do not want to tell her, or that they themselves do not know the answer.

The church is watching your daughter, mother. It expects great things of her. It wants to help you train her for a life of usefulness, for it needs her. The church asks you to do your share in order that she may be prepared to face life honestly and kindly and cleanly, rendering faithful service to her God. Are you going with her just as far as you can along the path to grown-up land? Do you know her dreams and hopes? Do you listen patiently and sympathetically to her ambitions? Do you know anything about those whom she admires and idealizes? How much are you interested in all girls?

A Mother Should Also Be a Friend

It's a big thing, this daughter problem of ours. And it's going to take all of us to solve it. The Parent Teachers Association is doing its share. Mother-daughter banquets are big helps. We need more greetings where mothers frankly discuss their problems and fewer afternoons when mothers pass about fragile china cups filled with pink tea. Chumship is the great goal to be attained by girlhood and womanhood. Every mother and every daughter should be chums, and it is not always the fault of the daughter that this ideal relation does not exist. Mothers, and all friends of young people, there is a crying need in the church today to push all legitimate activities to the end that there may be understanding between the perplexed and often censorious middle-aged and this "untoward generation" of youngsters.

The church today asks every mother not only to be unselfish and wise but to be watchful and up-to-date. Do you know what your daughter is studying in the church school? Is she studying anything? And for that matter—what are you doing at the church school hour? Do you know her Sunday school teacher, her scout leader—why not? Is the church so very far away and is your time so very valuable that you can not afford to find out? Just a few Sundays ago a pastor in one of our large branches lamented in the pulpit at the lack of contact and acquaintanceship between church officers and parents in the home. He appealed to the parents to support the church officers.

Mother, you are busy and you have many worries, but before you forget this article, check up on yourself. Don't pass it on with the thought: "This certainly fits Mrs. Jones. I do hope she reads it." Find out for yourself just how far you are going with your daughter, and somebody else's daughter. The church knocks at the door of your storehouse of ability, patience, education, and energy. It requires you to consider the relative importance of training this woman-child of yours and attending your weekly bridge club or rook club or sewing circle, or anything else that takes your heart and your hand from your children.

What of our daughters? The answer waits. It depends on us.

Priesthood Responsibility

By John R. Grice

PART TWO

Let us consider at this juncture some of the things that constitute preparation for occupancy in the priesthood, for preparation consists of the acts, upon the part of the individual, to fit and qualify himself for the responsibility imposed.

There are at least three phases of preparation to note:

1. The individual.
2. The private life.
3. The public example.

The individual may have many qualifications, but because of his private life and his public example he is unworthy of trust.

Though one may live righteously in private and set a good moral public example, yet because of his failure to educate himself in the law of God and to study the needs of the people, he may be totally unfitted for office in the church. It is certainly not a light thing that men should be set apart in public for positions of responsibility in the church of the living God.

I am satisfied that nearly all will agree that moral cleanness, an exemplary home life, a good public example, and educational qualifications are necessary advantages for successful leadership under priesthood authority in the day and age under which we are now living.

Surely the man morally unclean should not be approved! If he were, we would be placing our approval on immorality. Would not a corrupted home life disqualify one for priesthood responsibility? And would not one whose public example was not above reproach be disqualified for service among men under priesthood responsibility? Are not shady public dealings ungodly and unChristlike?

And what shall we say about the educational qualifications which we shall require of those qualifying for priesthood responsibility? Should not some course of study be prescribed and the conditions met with before ordination? If this were required might it not obviate the possibility of some getting into the ranks who prove themselves monumental failures because of their unwillingness to study? Men who would fail thus in what appear to be very necessary requirements would do so before ordination and not afterward, and no reproach would be brought upon the church as a result of their failure.

Paul seemed to have something of this sort in mind when he wrote to Timothy, "Til I come, give attendance to reading, to exhortation, to doctrine."

(1 Timothy 4:13.) And again: "Study to show thyself approved unto God."

Whether this study should be declared necessary before ordination, or a course of reading be provided afterward may be immaterial, but it remains to be seen that we have been slow to provide such helps to our young men of the ministry. Plenty of good books have been written, it is true, but some direction should be had covering the particular line of service, whether it be deacon, teacher, priest, or elder.

A course of study outlined to fit particular needs will assist men more quickly to prepare themselves for the work in hand. Perhaps if we required more of individuals we would get more from them by way of reaction?

It would seem, also, that the people who are to be served by the individual have a right to a reasonable assurance that he has tried to qualify and has proved it by meeting the requirements. There might also be a manifest tendency to stand by men, upon the part of the membership, who are now found staying away from church because of the lack of study, evidenced in a failure to be acquainted with the subject in hand, and therefore failing to interest them in the things of the kingdom. Certainly the fault has not all been upon the part of the membership! If I am unwilling to study to know the needs of the people and thus fail to interest them I shall not complain if they stay away from my services.

We are living in a day when greater qualifications are needed than in times past in order to meet those who have had greater advantages than men of the past have had. Our youth are better educated than their fathers, therefore we shall have a better educated ministry in the future than we have had heretofore. If such will be humble, as were their fathers, they will be able to accomplish that which is required of them as worthy children of the great King, and meet the necessary qualification for priesthood responsibility. Remember, it is a holy thing!

After approval has been had; after the necessary qualifications have been met; what rights have the people in demanding service?

When the officer has been given the due right to serve, but fails to work at his job, what rights have the people by way of recall? Do not they have the right to demand service of their leaders, though they are served gratis? We believe they do and the man who receives priesthood responsibility should expect to give the best possible service through an organized effort among all the forces at his command. In this time of great need, when our missionary force has been cut to the bone, every man should stand by his guns, so to speak, and give with all his might of the service he is able to give. If we do this I am satisfied that though our force be depleted, it is only turned into another channel of activity and God will bless our labors until we shall have a greater number of baptisms in 1931 than we had in 1930. It all depends upon our spirit of consecration and our willingness to give of the service we are able.

Can the people unmake that which they have made and revoke that which they by their voice and vote have given? Yes, most assuredly; but as it takes due process of law to give the priestly right, even so it requires "due process of law" to deprive one of the right to use it.

Those in authority may silence for the commission of crime. In such case court trial may be had. If neglect of duty is not a crime, what is it? May men in authority silence one for neglect of duty? If not, why not? Appeal to higher tribunals is always possible, but oftentimes an appeal to the man's higher self and his love of his fellow men will spur on to active service and such action as above be entirely unnecessary.

Some may be endangering the church by their influence, yet specific and particular evidence may not be had, therefore silence should be imposed to protect the church—it is the church of God.

The Fall of Man and the Atonement

By J. F. Mintun

The fall of man was not a necessity, and would not have occurred had man listened to the counsel and command of God. God commanded him, "Of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil thou shalt not eat." (Genesis 2: 20.) [References are to the Inspired Version.] God counseled and warned him that the penalty of breaking this command was death. When this command was given to Adam he was told, "Thou mayest choose for thyself, for it is given unto thee"; but when he was told this his attention was called in a definite way to this. "Remember, that I forbid it."

Man at that time was in full possession of his agency, and as yet woman did not exist. (Genesis 2: 28.) He exercised his agency when the woman gave him the fruit, of which she had already exercised her agency in partaking, and chose to, and did eat. (Genesis 3: 11, 17.) The Lord said to Adam, "Because thou hast harkened unto the voice of thy wife, and hast eaten of the fruit of the tree, of which I commanded thee, saying, Thou shalt not eat of it, Cursed shall be the ground for thy sake; in sorrow thou shalt eat of it all the days of thy life; . . . By the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, until thou shalt return unto the ground, for thou shalt surely die." (Genesis 3: 23-25.) To show his displeasure against the transgression further, God pronounced a curse on the serpent because he subjected himself to the devil, as follows:

"Because thou hast done this, thou shalt be cursed above all cattle, and above every beast of the field," etc. (Genesis 3: 20.) And God said to the woman who tempted Adam with the fruit forbidden, "I will greatly multiply thy sorrow and thy conception; in sorrow thou shalt bring forth children," etc. (Genesis 3: 22.) All this shows God's great displeasure at what had been done that brought about the fall of man, and made the atonement necessary.

This is a testimony of Mormon:

Behold, he created Adam; and by Adam came the fall of man. And because of the fall of man, came Jesus Christ, even the Father and the Son; and because of Jesus Christ came the redemption of man.

And because of the redemption of man, which came by Jesus Christ, they are brought back into the presence of the Lord; yea, this is wherein all men are redeemed, because the death of Christ bringeth to pass the resurrection, which bringeth to pass a redemption from an endless sleep, from which sleep all men shall be awoke by the power of God, when the trump shall sound;

And they shall come forth, both small and great, and all shall stand before his bar, being redeemed and loosed from this eternal band of death, which death is a temporal death. —Book of Mormon 4: 71-73.

The fall brought death, both spiritual and temporal. The spiritual death being a separation of man from God, and the temporal death being a separation of the spirit from the body, at which time "shall the dust return to the earth as it was; and the spirit shall return to God who gave it." (Ecclesiastes 12: 7; see also Genesis 3: 25.)

When this death which is spiritual exists man does not exist in the enjoyable condition that was intended by the Creator; and when the temporal death exists man no longer exists, even though the elements, which are eternal, exist as elements but do not compose the body; and the living soul which man became does not exist, because the life giving power, the spirit is separate from the body, and this is death.

"The body without the spirit is dead." (James 2: 25.)

"As by one man sin entered into the world and death by sin" (Romans 5: 12.), even so in the one man, Jesus Christ, "shall all be made alive." (1 Corinthians 15: 22), or "by the righteousness of one the free gift came upon all men unto justification of life." (Romans 5: 18.)

While Jesus Christ was the "Lamb slain from the foundation of the world" (Revelations 13: 8), yet God did not send him to make the sacrificial offering till "the fulness of time was come" (Galatians 4: 4, 5), when "through the offering once of the body of Jesus Christ" (Hebrews 10: 10), all upon whom death came through Adam's one act, shall be made alive by the one act of Jesus Christ. By this one act of Jesus Christ it is made possible, that all may be brought back into relationship with God, thus returning to man spiritual life through the gospel, for such:

Is now made manifest by the appearing of the Savior Jesus Christ, who hath abolished death, and hath brought life and immortality to light through the gospel.—2 Timothy 1: 10.

The redemption of man was assured from the foundation of the world, yet redemption was not realized till the sacrificial offering was made, when that "which Moses and the prophets did say should come"; and "that Christ should suffer, and that he should be the first that should arise from the dead," was brought to pass, and he became the first-fruits of them that slept. (See 1 Corinthians 15: 23, and Acts 26: 22, 23.)

The redemption wrought out by Jesus Christ was the resurrection of the body, as testified to by Nephi, who said men inspired of heaven and sent forth testified to the people "concerning the redemption which the Lord would make for his people; or in other words, the resurrection of Christ." (Nephi 3: 22, 23.) This is in agreement with what the Apostle Paul has said:

For we know that the whole creation groaneth and travaileth in pain together until now. And not only they, but ourselves also, who have the first fruits of the Spirit, even we ourselves groan within ourselves, waiting for the adoption, to wit, the redemption of our body.—Romans 8: 22, 23.

With this idea Alma agrees:

The atonement bringeth to pass the resurrection of the dead: and the resurrection of the dead bringeth back men into the presence of God.—Alma 19: 105.

It was a perfect man, created and formed by the Infinite One, that fell by transgression, and justice requires a perfect man brought into existence by the will and power of God, that the ransom might be complete. It was an infinite law that was transgressed that brought death, so that it was necessary that an infinite atonement should be made to satisfy justice.

And now the plan of mercy could not be brought about, except an atonement should be made; therefore God himself atoneth for the sins of the world to bring about the plan of mercy, to appease the demands of justice, that God might be a perfect, just God, and a merciful God also.—Alma 19: 97.

Paul also testifies on this subject:

Being now justified by his blood, we shall be saved from wrath through him. For if, when we were enemies, we were reconciled to God by the death of his Son; much more, being reconciled, we shall be saved by his life.—Romans 5: 9, 10.

Although man became an enemy to God, when he entered into the service of the devil, according to Romans 6: 16: "Know ye not, that to whom ye yield yourselves servants to obey, his servants ye are to whom ye obey?" Yet God still loved him, which is proved by many scriptures. "For God so loved the world that he gave his Only Begotten Son that whosoever believeth on him should not perish; but have everlasting life." (John 3: 16.) "But God commendeth his love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us." (Romans 5: 8.)

Jesus Christ before making the sacrificial offering qualified himself so as to have life in himself, by observing the law of the Spirit of life, when, "as the Father hath life in himself, so hath he given to the Son to have life in himself." (John 5: 26.) Then he could truthfully say, "Therefore doth my Father love me, because I lay down my life, that I might take it again. No man taketh it from me, but I lay it down of myself. I have power to lay it down, and I have power to take it again." (John 10: 17, 18.) The devil is the power of death, "Forasmuch then as the children are partakers of flesh and blood, he also himself likewise took part of the same; that through death he might destroy him that had the power of death, that is, the devil." (Hebrews 2: 14.)

To secure in a legitimate way resurrection for all men, before he was resurrected he had to overcome, and to take control of the keys of all those conditions made necessary by reason of the fall of man; so he not only went to the grave and tasted death for every man, but he also went to the prison house, and took the keys from the one who previously held them. And he now has these keys as he testifies in Revelation 1: 18: "I am he that liveth, and was dead; and, behold, I am alive for evermore, Amen; and have the keys of hell and of death."

This declaration is the source of great joy, or should be, to all men. What joy this brings to troubled and sorrowing souls! No room for doubt: "I am alive for evermore. . . . I have the keys of hell and of death." This gives us a promise that there is no power to prevent the prison or hell from being unlocked, also the grave to give up all those who have passed on before, and we can enter into the condition called death with the assurance that being in favor with God through obedience to his holy will we shall come forth to enter into the fullness of joy, and this gives us encouragement to endure all things in opposition to God, and observe to do all that is pleasing to him no matter what the cost.

I am persuaded that there is no better way to make this brief article worth while than to quote in conclusion the words of Alma:

But behold it was appointed unto man to die; therefore as they were cut off from the tree of life, they should be cut off from the face of the earth; and man became lost forever; yea, they became fallen man.

And now we see by this, that our first parents were cut off, both temporally and spiritually, from the presence of the Lord; and thus we see they became subjects to follow after their own will.

Now behold, it was not expedient that man should be reclaimed from this temporal death, for that would destroy the great plan of happiness;

Therefore, as the soul could never die, and the fall had brought upon all mankind a spiritual death as well as a temporal; that is, they were cut off from the presence of the Lord; therefore it was expedient that mankind should be reclaimed from this spiritual death;

Therefore as they had been carnal, sensual and devilish, by nature, this probationary state became a state for them to prepare; it became a preparatory state.

And now remember, my son, if it were not for the plan of redemption, (laying it aside), as soon as they were dead, their souls were miserable, being cut off from the presence of the Lord.

And now there was no means to reclaim men from this fallen state which man had brought upon himself, because of his own disobedience;

Therefore, according to justice, the plan of redemption could not be brought about, only, on conditions of repentance of men in this probationary state; yea, this preparatory state; for except it were for these conditions, mercy could not take effect except it should destroy the work of justice.

Now the work of justice could not be destroyed; if so God would cease to be God.

And thus we see that all mankind were fallen, and they were in the grasp of justice; yea, the justice of God, which consigned them for ever to be cut off from his presence.

And now the plan of mercy could not be brought about, except an atonement should be made; therefore God himself atoneth for the sins of the world, to bring about the plan of mercy, to appease the demands of justice, that God might be a perfect, just God, and a merciful God also. . . .

But God ceaseth not to be God, and mercy claimeth the penitent, and mercy cometh because of the atonement; and the atonement bringeth to pass the resurrection of the dead: and the resurrection of the dead bringeth back men into the presence of God;

And thus they are restored into his presence; to be judged according to their works; according to the law and justice; for behold, justice exerciseth all his demands, and also mercy claimeth all which is her own; and thus, none but the truly penitent are saved.—Alma 19: 87-97, 105, 106.

Before the wrought iron can become steel, it must be heated by means of charcoal, and made to pass through a process of cementation, until it is blistered by fire and freed from a portion of its carbon, and even then the merciless hammer must complete the work. Before the coal gas, that at night illumines and beautifies a city, is fit for use it must be freed from carbonic acid, tar, resinous compounds, and other impurities which would dim its brilliancy, and this is accomplished by first subjecting it to intense heat, and then by passing it through water, cooling it in condensers and transmitting it through tubes and purifiers. And just so it is in the growth and progress of the soul. The friction and attrition, the purging and the purifying, the heating and the cooling, the sinning and repenting, to which we are subjected, the very difficulties and painful experiences we have to encounter in life, and of which we are so apt to complain, are the necessary conditions of our spiritual progress.—Anonymous.

Weekly Health Letter

Number Nineteen

The Ear and Its Relation to Health and Disease.—2

By A. W. Teel, M. D., Church Physician

Next to, and just beyond the outside ear canal, lies the middle ear which contains small bones sometimes called ossicles, which every school boy has heard called "hammer, anvil and stirrup." These little bones have very important duties to perform in transmitting the air vibrations of the ear to the ear drum, which is better known as the tympanum. There are also some small muscles and ligaments. These muscles may become ankylosed, which is the other name for stiff joint. This may be brought about by tonsils, adenoids, catarrhal, or some other systemic condition. Besides this, there are some very important nerves, the principal ones being the facial and the auditory nerve. If the facial nerve should become diseased through a catarrhal condition or some other cause, it may become very painful, and if sufficiently degenerated will cause one side of the face to be paralyzed. If the auditory nerve is attacked with sufficient severity to lose its function, then the patient is rendered hopelessly deaf.

The ear drum is a partition between the external ear canal and the middle ear, and is very delicate in structure, but consists of enough fibrous tissue to make it sufficiently strong to resist pressure. Its function is to keep foreign bodies out of the middle ear, and, as we have already stated, it has a great deal to do with picking up the air vibrations and transmitting them to the little bones, previously mentioned. It is subject to various diseases, but in some cases, even if the drum is entirely destroyed, the patient will hear surprisingly well. This is brought about by bone conduction, which is aided, very materially, by the mastoid cells.

The internal ear, being a small bony body, furnishes protection to many delicate structures and nerves. It is long from front to back and narrow from side to side. Besides the connection with the external canal, the middle ear is also connected with the tube, named after its discoverer, Eustachian tube. The cavity is lined with mucous membrane, of the same character and nature as that in the nose and throat, but somewhat modified to meet the special needs and duties that it is to perform. Nature provides glands to keep its surface moist and, like all other mucous glands, if irritated from any cause, the moisture is increased to such an extent that it may interfere with the function of the ear.

The Eustachian tube, that connects with the middle ear and throat, is about one and one fourth inches in length. It is somewhat shorter in children. The function of this tube is to furnish a passage for air to enter the middle ear, or tympanic cavity. Tympanic cavity is another name for the middle ear. This arrangement of the external ear canal and the internal ear canal, or Eustachian tube, brings about a balance of air pressure, which is of considerable importance in hearing. If, for any reason, disease or injury occurs to this tube, it may become partially, or completely, occluded, forming a vacuum. If a vacuum is formed, it pulls the ear inward, which is ordinarily spoken of as a retracted ear-drum. This condition is found in nearly all cases of deafness. In addition to this important function, the Eustachian tube serves as a canal to remove any excess of secretion that may occur in the middle ear, which, if it had no opportunity for escape, would be an obstruction to hearing.

Many infections, such as bad colds, frequently cause an irritation and swelling, resulting in the blocking of the drainage. This blocked condition is highly favorable for the multiplication of the germs. When you swallow or yawn, if you will notice, you will have a cracking sound in your ear. This is due to the Eustachian tube being opened and closed. Unfortunately, some people have a habit of forcing air through the tubes by holding the nose and breathing the air into them. This is a procedure that is dangerous, if done very often, for it may force bacteria through the tube into the middle, and it may cause the ear drum to become flabby, or in some other manner, cause a disarrangement of the structures.

What the Church Means to Me

By J. W. Roberts

When a certain group of men first laid their eyes upon the city of London, one of them exclaimed, "What a loot!" But to others of nobler ambition and higher thought it meant opportunity, advancement, culture and success.

And so the church may mean anything or it may mean everything according to the kind of motives that control us. To some it may mean "loaves and fishes," to others, escaping the wrath which is to come, to others a chance to serve and an opportunity to develop a Christlike character. The Savior said, "I will build my church," and I have reason to believe that the church should reflect the wisdom and intelligence of its author, not only in its organization and doctrine, but in those enduring qualities that make outstanding personalities.

The church is the means that God has created to save the world. Members of the church are coworkers with him in the great work of redemption. All are called according to their strength and gifts. When his people move out in the performance of their duty, and when their works follow their faith, and example is followed by precept, unusual power and blessing will be felt in their midst. The church should reflect wisdom, light, truth, and intelligence in the highest degree for the glory of God is intelligence. It should possess in clearness those fundamentals that will save the world socially and spiritually. To the Apostle Peter it contained all things that pertained unto life and godliness. To the Apostle Paul it was the power of God unto salvation.

The church to me is an institution and a power that lifts us up. It gives us an opportunity to help and serve others, and through this means our own lives become enriched. It gives us a chance to stand for something worth while which lifts our souls higher. Christ loved the hill tops and he said, "If I be lifted up I will draw all men unto me." May the day hasten when the "mountain of the Lord's house" shall be established.

Building Upon the Rock of Ages

A few years ago a mission worker who was a beautiful saint went to comfort a friend who had lost a wife. If this friend was a Christian at all, he was only nominally so. The minister spoke to him of the consolations of the gospel. But the bereaved man turned on him bitterly and said: "Have you ever lost your wife?" The preacher answered in the negative. "Well," said the other impatiently, "you don't know what you are talking about. Wait till you have a sorrow like mine and see if your Christ can meet the test."

The preacher went away with a sense of failure. But the testing time was closer to him, too, than he dreamed. Suddenly, without the slightest warning, the news came that his brilliant and gifted wife had been killed in a railroad accident. The remains were brought to the city and taken to the mission hall. This grief-stricken husband stood by the coffin of his wife to speak. He said: "Some six months ago I tried to comfort a bereaved husband, but I failed. He said I did not know what I was talking about. Is he here?" And the man stood up. The preacher then continued: "My friend, I know today. I am in the midst of a sorrow like your sorrow, and I want to tell you that, while my heart is bleeding and broken, I find His grace sufficient. I find that his hand holds me and steadies me. I find that my skies are as bright as the promises of God, and that underneath are the Everlasting Arms."—Clovis G. Chappel, in The Sermon on the Mount; Cokesbury Press.

NEWS OF CHURCH AND HOME

Address all news and letters to Editors of the Herald, Box 237, Independence, Missouri. Correspondents are requested to make their letters brief. The Editors reserve the right, on account of space limitations, to shorten all letters as circumstances require.

Graceland News

The First Quarter Is Over

The first quarter of Graceland's academic year was completed two weeks ago. Quarterly grades are distributed, and rankings computed. On a board in the lobby of the Administration Building are posters that the students study very carefully, the grade charts that show the scholastic ranking of classes. By this time parents and patrons have received the ratings of students.

The year bids fair to be an excellent one. The phrase "economic depression" is heard on the campus as elsewhere. However, it is viewed as a condition to face, not as a circumstance that will defeat. Graceland students and faculty members have made this acquaintance before. Any frills and nonessentials that can be omitted in the college year are left out this year. The administration and faculty are determined that shortage of funds must not mar efficiency of work.

This article sets out some of Graceland's representative activities of the quarter.

The College Players

On October 3 twenty-four students were received into College Players as apprentice members. The selection was based upon a series of tryouts. Regular membership comes with actual participation in the activities of the Players. The major presentation of this quarter was "The Youngest," a three-act play, on Friday night of Home-coming. The roles were played by Dwight Vredenburg, Lamoni; Lois Turner, Independence; Jeannette Burstrom, Detroit; Margaret Anderson, Des Moines; Joy Davis, Lamoni; Loren McDole, Seattle; William Gould, Kansas City, and Donly Pierson, Lamoni. Florence Thompson, instructor in speech, is director, and Colin Ferrett, Australia, is president.

Artists' Course

Each year Graceland brings to Lamoni recitals by artists of standard reputation. This quarter two have been given. The Hilger Trio was heard in a program of chamber music on October 22. This was considered one of the most outstanding musical programs that Graceland has ever had. The appreciation was mutual. Miss Elsa Hilger, manager, stated that they would as soon play for a Graceland audience as for music students of New York or Boston. This trio has been heard in America and Europe.

The other event was the appearance of the American Shakespearean Players in "The Merchant of Venice" at the Coliseum, November 7. In this the interpretation of F. Mortimer Mitchell as Shylock was outstanding. The role of Lancelot Gabbo caught and held the audience.

Besides these recitals by imported talent, there have been offerings by members of the college. Chief of these was the recital by the faculty of the departments of speech and music, given in the Coliseum Sunday afternoon, September 27.

Fellowship Services

Somehow the phrase, "prayer service," has been replaced by "fellowship service." The latter is more descriptive of the Graceland service. It is difficult to select the outstanding meetings, but among them the following three would be numbered: First, in time, would be the opening one of the year. That night, Roy Cheville, who presides, led out and in setting a theme, asked of the students, "What cords drew you here? What cords will hold you?" Of course there were financial possibilities and academic opportunities, but underneath was the strong current of friendship, fellowship, and spiritual encouragement.

Another service of unusual appreciation was on September

30. Students entered quietly while hymns were played on the piano. This night, students reflected on a very common theme, "To what and to whom am I responsible?" Homes, friends, vocations, ideals, the college, the church—and God were among the array suggested with wide variety of interpretation.

The Home-coming service on Sunday morning, October 18, will stand out for a long time in the minds of students and alumni. The spirit of reminiscence, the mingling of friends, the singing of familiar hymns, and the chapel itself blended the congregation in reverence and fellowship. It was a common question—common to Gracelanders—"With what do you wish to fill your cup?" "What are you going to do with the cup that is filled this morning?" After an hour and a half, the Home-comers filed out of the Ad Building, many too moved for expression.

The Football Season

The closing game was played Armistice Day with Albia Junior College. The schedule of seven games included three on the home gridiron. From the standpoint of scoring and morale of the team, this was a most successful season. Coach Gilbert credits this fact to the amount of previous football experience and to the balance of the team. The total score shows 132 points won by Graceland against 34 won by opposing teams. The season's scores run as follows:

September 26, Graceland 26, Osceola Junior 0.

October 10, Iowa Wesleyan 21, Graceland 0.

October 16, Graceland 12, Simpson B 7. (Home-coming game.)

October 23, Graceland 13, Chillicothe Business College 0.

October 31, Graceland 45, Kidder Junior 6.

November 3, Graceland 13, Creston Junior 0.

November 11, Graceland 23, Albia Junior 0.

The football season officially closes with the annual "football night" on December 4. This year the social event will be held in the Ad Building.

Music Activities

The orchestra is well balanced this year with its membership of thirty players. Each Sunday morning this Lamoni-Graceland orchestra plays at nine thirty at the worship session of the church school. This year the orchestra has been especially appreciated. The setting on the stage of the Coliseum and the appropriateness of their numbers have enhanced the value of their offerings. J. H. Anthony is the director.

The Oratorio Society organized for the year early in September after sufficient time had elapsed for tryouts among the students. Mabel Carlile continues as director. The repertoire of anthems is getting in shape. The oratorio for the year has not been selected. On the evening of Thanksgiving Sunday the choir is appearing with Thanksgiving music and on the Sunday before Christmas vacation in a service of carols and anthems.

The A Cappella Chorus is meeting regularly now with two rehearsals a week. This group waits until after the oratorio society is under way and selects its choristers from that body. The first appearance was made on the Sunday morning of November 22. Twelve members returned this year. The following have been taken into the chorus: Jeannette Burstrom, Detroit; Lois Wildermuth, Denver; Ella White, Lamoni; Lois Barrows, and Lois Prall, Lamoni; Robert Ballantyne, Lamoni; George Potts, New York; Monroe Hills, Lamoni; Wilbur Chandler, Birmingham, Alabama; Neal Deaver, Missouri; Ammon Robertson, Illinois.

This year the studio departments are presenting fortnightly recitals of students. This is providing opportunity for students to appear in public and to develop the classroom theories.

Holden Stake

Blue Springs Church

During October the following ministers occupied the pulpit: On October 4, Brother Barto, of Independence; the 11th, Brother C. Joice spoke in the morning making plain many things on the Word of Wisdom. In the evening Brother G. R. Wells spoke. October 18 Brother Harrison Curtis in his "mirror sermon" caused the Saints to decide to make important choices. Brother Hughes, of Atherton, that night gave an interesting sermon. The closing Sunday of the month saw Brother John Stowell the morning speaker. We appreciate our local men. Brother Joseph Martin, of Enoch Hill, Independence, spoke that evening.

Nor would we leave out mention of the much-appreciated efforts of the choir and other musicians who in their ministry of music have contributed to the worship experiences of the congregation. During the month a quartet composed of Brother and Sister A. Campbell, Sister C. Joice, and Brother R. Stark, sang at various times. Sister Sarratt at the piano and Sister H. Stark in a vocal solo, "When the World Forgets," helped us. The choir is blessed with a talented pianist, Sister F. Tomlinson, who inspires the members to faithful service in developing their talents.

Early in October Donald Stark fell and fractured some ribs. He was soon back at work, however, and was the subject of a surprise by the young people on his twentieth anniversary.

Marshall Church

Elder J. Charles May commenced a series of meetings here November 4, and this is the fourth week of its continuance. Through his advertisements in the daily paper, the public has been notified of the subject to be presented each evening, and attendance has been splendid. Interest is high.

Brother May gives a half hour entertainment of singing, accompanying himself on the guitar, at each service. Songs sung in the tongue of the native South Sea Islanders, are features of these entertainments. Brother May learned the language when he was a missionary in the islands.

Four young people were baptized Sunday, November 22, by Elder May, a young man and his wife and two young women. Another lady has asked baptism for next Sunday; others are expected. Confirmation took place Sunday night at the church under the hands of Elder Harold Thayer and Elder May. The Spirit of the Master was there to bless.

A Halloween party was held at the home of the recreation and expression leader, Sister Dixie Spohrer.

Warrensburg Church

Losing our pastor, G. W. Hancock, by death this summer, and the assistant pastor, Brother Edward Larsen, who went to Europe, we were short of help in Warrensburg. Brother Larson had been attending school here, before his departure. Stake officers, seeing our plight, loaned us a conference appointee in the person of Elder G. R. Wells, former pastor at Lees Summit and Grandview. Brother Wells was also made pastor of Post Oak Branch, sixteen miles south of us. Carrying double duty, he was glad to have the help of two elders who recently moved here, T. L. McCormick, formerly of Marshall, and Samuel Andes, formerly of eastern Montana and for a short time of Independence. Their families are also good workers.

Although the people have been hit hard in this section the last several seasons, and share in the general depression with a bank closing and the creamery failing, there is no lack in our appreciation of the serious plight of the church treasury and the need for immediate help. Brother Wells tells us that we should not hesitate because we can not make the larger contributions of past years for it is what is in our hearts and not the size of the gift that counts in the sight of God. In this spirit we could do wonders as a branch and a church if everyone would apply "the principle of sacrifice and repression of unnecessary wants," as the Lord directed in Doctrine and Covenants 130: 7.

The Saints very much regret that our new pastor found it impossible to move his family here as he had planned, because it interferes with the continuity of his efforts and plans in caring for two groups. All of us must try to make the best of the situation.

Merlin, Ontario

November 24.—Merlin recently held anniversary services. The little church was filled almost to capacity at the hour appointed for prayer service, 9.30 a. m. District President D. T. Williams was in charge, assisted by Pastor Robert T. Brown and William Leverton. A good portion of the Spirit was felt and many expressed determination to do all they could to help the church in a trying hour.

Saints were present from Bothwell, Wabash, Windsor, Blenheim, Chatham, London, Port Huron, Detroit, and Saint Clair, Michigan.

The weather was ideal.

Elder A. C. Barmore, of Port Huron, was the 11 o'clock speaker. His missionary experiences were much enjoyed. The children's choir sang a beautiful song, "Teach Us Day by Day." Little Janette Sales sang "Jesus Is My Next Door Neighbor."

The church school was held at 1.30 p. m. after a good dinner served in the basement of the church. Preaching service followed at 3, Elder William I. Fligg, of London, talking with his old-time vigor. His text was a part of Esther 4: 14: "Who knoweth whether thou art come to the kingdom for such a time as this?" A trio composed of Robert T., Leslie and Fred Brown sang, "The Old, Old Path." Brother Robert Brown sang one verse in the Tahitian language. Sister Fern Atkinson sang as a solo, "Beautiful Garden of Prayer."

In the evening Bishop J. C. Dent preached, giving the Saints a good outline of the financial status of the church. Sister Fern Atkinson sang, "When We Come to the End of a Perfect Day," expressing the sentiments of many present.

Waterloo, Iowa

The members of the church have been much encouraged by the presence of Elders E. R. Davis and F. C. Bevan who have visited Waterloo several times of late.

A number of local people attended the party given at Oelwein for Brother Bevan, and report on enjoyable time.

Elder Davis was present to assist at the annual business meeting of the branch. The election of officers for the year resulted as follows: President, W. H. Wood; first assistant, Guy Haynes; second assistant, W. H. Hinds; secretary, P. M. Hinds; financial committee: P. M. Hinds, J. A. Talley, Robert Allen, and R. C. McCormick; solicitor, W. H. Wood; correspondent, Ivy Fisher; attendance recorder, Howard Grapes; musical director Zella Allen; assistant, Emma Talley; pianist, Robert Allen; Harvest Home festival committee: Frances Wood, Emma Roosa; church school director, Robert Allen. The superintendent of the adult group, Freda McCormick, was chosen leader of women's activities; superintendent of the young people, Robert Allen; superintendent of children, Emma Roosa.

Brother Davis also presided at the installation of new officers on Tuesday night following the election. This was an impressive and instructive service.

The Saints are enjoying a new light over the church entrance. For this we thank R. C. McCormick.

In a sermon last Sunday morning W. H. Hinds used a novel chart. Taking the music of "The Old, Old Path," he used each note to represent an officer or doctrine in the church. By eliminating the ones not generally accepted by the average church, he refuted the old saying that the Bible is like an old fiddle—you can play any old tune on it.

Waterloo Branch is fortunate in having a group of fine young people much interested in the work. Much credit for this interest is due their teacher, Robert Allen.

Thayer, Missouri

November 22.—Since the district conference at Springfield, Missouri, November 1, the Saints in the district are coming to higher ground, spiritually and financially. All who were privileged to attend the conference and hear the sermons of Brother McDowell, were lifted up in hope and determination.

Missionary W. E. Haden is putting forth every effort possible to meet the emergency of the day.

Our goal for 1932 is—every member of our district a tithe payer.

Thayer Branch is progressing. The Saints are happy in their tasks. We are building a branch of which we can well be proud. Should you be interested in joining us in this part of the Ozarks, write to Brother G. A. Davis who is the bishop's agent.

Alaflo Branch

Brewton, Alabama.—Alaflo Branch is progressing. The Saints are much interested in the two months' sacrifice period. Apostle J. A. Gillen was here a short time ago and aroused the Saints to rally to the cause of the church and do their part in a financial way. This they are doing. Though the depression is felt, we are carrying on.

The summer reunion held here was most successful. Brother Richards, Brother Burt and wife, of Mobile, and Brother Glenn Davis were here. Brother Richards did most of the preaching and taught a class at ten o'clock in the morning each day. Brother Davis taught the young people, and Brother and Sister Burt also taught classes.

The Saints of this region regret the releasing of missionaries to lessen the financial burden of the church. We hope to see each member sacrifice all that he can to help the latter-day gospel go to the world. We must be courageous. This is no stopping place. We must go forward.

Alaflo Branch assembled November 26 to give thanks to the Lord for his mercies and blessings. They brought a generous offering to the altar of the Lord which is to help his church onward. It was truly a sacrifice offering. The unity and purposefulness of this group is encouraging.

Lansing, Michigan

Logan and Saint Joseph Streets

The fall season marked the beginning of a busy program for Lansing Branch. The annual election of branch officers took place the last Monday of September.

The old officers were largely reinstated, and these workers will endeavor to lead the cause of the Master forward. The officers are as follows: Pastor, S. A. Barss; assistant pastors, A. J. Dexter and Clarence W. Dudley; church school director, Alva Dexter; assistant, John Luce; musical director, Opal Harper; branch secretary, Orian Fiscus; treasurer, John Luce; publicity agent, Jesse Tischer; bishop's agent, Charles Fiscus.

We look forward to the visits of Apostle D. T. Williams, for his sermons are a means of help and inspiration to us.

Elder James Pycock made arrangements to hold a week's series of services here beginning Monday, November 16, and ending Decision Day, November 22.

Conference for Spring River District

The opening session of Spring River district conference was held at Joplin, Missouri, Friday, evening, November 20, at seven forty-five. A program was presented by the young people of the district in charge of Albert Cobb, young people's district president.

An unusually large crowd was present and a wonderful spirit of unity and good fellowship prevailed. This same spirit characterized the whole conference.

Saturday's sessions were opened with prayer service at nine thirty in the morning, presided over by District President Frank McDonald, assisted by Apostle J. F. Garver and Elder Amos T. Higdon.

Two business sessions followed at eleven o'clock and two o'clock, Apostle Garver and the district presidency presiding. The morning session was given over to organization and reading of reports. It was with deep regret that the Saints accepted the resignation of Elder Frank McDonald, who has been district president the past eighteen months with headquarters in Joplin. This action was made necessary by the retrenchment program of the church as a result of the present economic situation. Brother McDonald has moved his family back to Independence, Missouri, where they will establish their home for the present.

Elder Amos T. Higdon who has been out of the missionary field for some time on account of ill health, is again able to resume work and for the present will labor in Spring River District. He was elected to fill the unexpired term of Brother McDonald as district president. Brother Higdon has served Spring River Saints in this capacity before, and his ability is well known to those with whom he has worked. We have confidence in the continued progress of the work under his direction. The conference indorsed his choice of counselors, F. L. Freeman, Webb City, and A. J. Jones, Columbus, Kansas.

Nineteen delegates to General Conference were chosen as follows: Amos T. Higdon, Sister Ed. Goettel and Sister J. T. Riley, Pittsburg, Kansas; Lee Quick, Mapleton, Kansas; Dan Gray, Parsons, Kansas; A. J. Jones, Columbus, Kansas; Alvin Smith, Miami, Oklahoma; Ira Waldron, Brother and Sister Frank Freeman, Brother and Sister Carl Hobart, Sister Edith Fry, and Sister F. J. Bradford, Webb City; Raymond Troyer, Sister Maggie Wilson, and H. Holthausen, of Joplin; Van Talcott and Nellie Hogan, Carthage.

Recommendation for ordination of two Carthage men was had, J. J. Linder to the office of teacher, and A. Millard Hogan, elder. This was approved by the conference and the ordinations were provided for. The recommendations for ordination to the office of teacher of Willie Alvin Jones and D. P. Adams, of Fairland, Oklahoma, were referred to the district president for action.

Sunday morning at eight o'clock a young people's prayer meeting was held with Elder Frank McDonald in charge, assisted by Priests Albert Cobb and Frank Shank. Because of the large number present at the church school the adults were addressed by Elder Lee Quick, and Brother McDonald occupied at the eleven o'clock hour.

The ordination service was held at two o'clock, and preceding this a beautiful ceremony was witnessed in the blessing of Jared Jerome, infant son of Brother and Sister Albert Cobb, by Apostle Garver and Brother Higdon. Following the ordination service, came the priesthood meeting and simultaneously the women's meeting under the direction of Sister Carl Hobart, of Webb City.

At three forty-five a splendid musical program, directed by the district chorister, Sister A. N. Deaver, was enjoyed by all, and at the close there was a reception for visiting young people at the home of Brother and Sister Charles Wilson. This was sponsored by Joplin young people.

Those who preached during conference were Apostle Garver, Elders Frank McDonald and Amos T. Higdon. Each message left the Saints more determined to meet the challenge to do their part that the church shall go on. Visitors were appreciative of the splendid hospitality of Joplin Saints.

The next conference will be held in May at Webb City.

Davidson, Oklahoma

November 22.—This branch for the past few months has been struggling under a strained condition which has been a hindrance to all and especially to the priesthood. But the very busy season is almost over, and it is expected that greater attention will now be devoted to the work of the branch.

Two Sunday school classes were entertained with a Halloween party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Grady Hood. The intermediate classes were also entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Skinner.

The sacrament service was dominated by the quiet influence of the Spirit, and the Saints were encouraged by the worship experience.

The second Sunday in each month is given to junior church service. This month Brother Z. Z. Renfro made a splendid talk on "Unselfishness."

The women's auxiliary served a chicken dinner, November 7, in a vacant building. They earned a neat sum.

We were saddened to hear of the misfortune of Brother and Sister Ira Skinner. Sister Skinner and Edythe were helping serve dinner in town when their home burned. Nothing was saved. Brother Skinner and family live at Oklaunion, Texas.

We are eager to see the work of latter days go forward. It is our earnest desire to see the missionaries in the field once again and the church relieved of its financial burden.

Newton, Iowa

Newton group is going forward in the work of the church. Sunday services are had morning and evening. The Sunday school is growing and now has six classes. The young people have their meeting on Friday evening with good programs and interest.

Two splendid sermons were delivered by Apostle Paul M. Hanson the first part of October. His meetings were well attended and raised some interesting questions among non-members.

November 22 Elder L. G. Holloway preached morning and evening to an interested congregation.

The group solicitor gave a report comparing the year's work up to November 1, to that of the year 1930. Although Newton has felt the wide-spread business depression, twice the amount of tithes and offerings have come in this year.

The church year is drawing to a close. We are grateful for the many blessings we have experienced. It is our prayer that we may continue faithful.

South Bend and Mishawaka Branch

902 Reddick Street, Mishawaka, Indiana

Under the guiding influence of the spirit of brotherly love and fellowship this branch is acquiring a better understanding of the purpose of God in this marvelous work. Meetings are attended by a greater number of members and non-members. The spirit of good will prevails and the desire of the people is to meet together and work for the benefit of all and the glory of God.

We are preparing for the third visit of Apostle D. T. Williams, December 1. Due to the efforts of our people here, his last lecture was delivered to a capacity house, one hundred and twenty-five being present. Sixty of these were non-members. We are striving to warn our neighbors.

The freewill offering of the women's division, given October 22 at the home of Brother and Sister Ernest Mills, was well attended, more than sixty being present. Games and refreshments filled the evening. The offering amounted to twenty-eight dollars.

The Sunday school has also been alert with an "airplane race 'round the world." Each class has a plane in the race.

During the five Sundays of the contest one hundred and twenty-nine visitors were brought in. Sister Myers's class of beginners won the race. The class offerings amounted to $52.95, and attendance was four hundred eighty-nine. Average attendance has mounted to the one hundred mark since. We have found that the Sunday school can be a real missionary.

The close of the contest was celebrated with a marshmallow toast, a laughing, singing group of seventy-two members going by truck to the place Brother Taylor had prepared the fire. A happy evening was spent around flames leaping under a canopy of great trees.

Under the direction of the women's division the Saints gathered at the home of Brother and Sister Myers November 20, for a surprise and farewell party on District President William Osler. The surprise was complete and the farewell was only for a few weeks which Brother Osler is spending with his family in Alberta, Canada. A silver shower in behalf of our departing member was a feature of the evening.

The sacrament service of November 1 will long be remembered by the Saints as a morning spent in true fellowship with the Father. Under the power of the Spirit, as it dwelt upon the whole assembly, Brother William Hardy was called through the district president to the office of elder. The branch was promised that God would not withhold his hand in pouring out blessings if the Saints will continue to press on with the spirit and desire to achieve that is growing up here.

As we have met in midweek prayer meetings with the desire to serve, we have noted the influence of the good Spirit, and the increasing number of those attending speaks well for the future of the branch.

The Kingdom Builders' Friday evening study class is now organized. They are studying the Book of Mormon.

Thanksgiving Day was spent in true latter-day Israel fashion. The people met at the church at nine fifteen in the morning for prayer service followed at eleven o'clock by a wonderful Thanksgiving sermon by Elder McKnight, of Galien, Michigan. At twelve thirty the Saints gathered in the basement and as one large family ate Thanksgiving dinner. God truly is with his people when they are united.

Fargo, North Dakota

Bungalow Church, 1423 First Avenue, South

On Thanksgiving Day the Saints met at the Bungalow Church for a devotional service, expressing thanks for God's love, care, and protection. As Saints we should make every day a time of giving thanks for the gospel of Jesus Christ and all our blessings. The members in Fargo desire to have part in the sacrifice period of the present time and to continue to help through 1932 and the years to come. We hope the day will soon come when the missionaries will be re-appointed, and God's work shall go on to victory. A consecration of Saints to duty in the church and to thinking of others at their best will hasten the day.

Elder C. J. Smith, missionary to North Dakota, visited Fargo, November 22, and preached two spiritual sermons. His subjects were "Thankfulness" and "Baptism of the Spirit." "The success of the church depends on the birth of the Spirit in the Saints," he declared. "It is necessary to place ourselves in a teachable attitude." He encouraged the members to "carry on and go all the way." The members very much regret to have our missionary released, for his labors have been efficient and worth while.

Brother Smith's visit was a pleasant surprise. The Saints presented him a Thanksgiving offering as a token of love and appreciation. It was inspiring to see the beautiful spirit demonstrated by Brother Smith in his release and his faith in the church and those in charge. May God speed the day when the entire missionary arm of the church will again be in action.

The annual business meeting will be held December 3. Officers will be elected.

Pastor H. E. Ratcliffe visited Saints at Straubville, North Dakota, October 8, and preached sermons on "Repentance" and "The Testing Time." He preached November 15, to Saints at La Moure, North Dakota, on "Building on a Foundation." His recent sermons on "Right Choices" and "Sacrifice," preached to Fargo Saints, were very interesting.

The women's organization held a pie social which netted more than twelve dollars toward branch expenses.

The church school is planning a Christmas program and tree for the children.

Saves Her Nickels

My husband became sick and died recently, and my thought was that I would not be able to pay much to the church. However the great need of the church was impressed on my mind, and I decided to save every nickel to help the Auditorium fund. In less than two months I have saved over one dollar.

I write my experience to show what a united effort on the part of all of us could do even in the present time of depression. And the Lord has blessed me with enough to pay my regular tithing.

I am convinced that faith and unity on the part of those who are doing the Lord's will, will accomplish much.

—A WIDOW.

Northeastern Illinois Conference

The conference of Northeastern Illinois District convened with Central Chicago Branch, November 6, 7, and 8. A good program was given Friday evening.

The Saturday morning prayer meeting, in charge of Brothers John Oliver and Ray Hurst, proved an excellent beginning for the day's activities. Business session opened at 11 o'clock with the district presidency and Apostle Paul M. Hanson in charge. The usual reading of minutes and reports demanded attention. District Treasurer C. C. Simpson in his report, shows receipts to be $1,089.78; disbursements $1,029.18; balance on hand $60.60. Bishop's Agent A. O. Skinner reports that $9,351.86 has been paid in tithes and offerings the past year (October 1, 1930, to September 30, 1931). Two years ago one out of every eight members in this district paid tithes. The past year one out of every six has paid. Our motto is "Every member a tithe payer." Watch us grow.

The Northeastern Illinois District News was discontinued for the present.

The following district officers were elected: President, Roscoe E. Davey, with H. P. W. Keir and Cecil Schmid as counselors; secretary, Grace E. Johnson; in charge of Department of Religious Education, Hattie K. Bell; treasurer, C. C. Simpson; director of music, Ruby I. Newman; publicity agent, Ray L. Hurst; bishop's agent, A. O. Skinner (sustained).

A rising vote of thanks was given Brother Jerome Wildermuth, retiring district president.

Delegates to General Conference are Roscoe E. Davey, C. C. Simpson, Doctor C. D. Carter, Harry Passman, Joshua Evans, Charles Atkins, Clara B. Easterbrook, Hattie K. Bell, Stella Thoman, Ida Kimball, Laura M. Horton, Laura Atkins, Sister Fisher, and Grace E. Johnson.

It was decided that the district president should arrange for two two-day meetings during the year, one in the early summer, the other in the late summer.

The sacrament service Sunday afternoon was very good. Testimonies were sincerely spoken.

Paul M. Hanson, Roscoe E. Davey, and Frank B. Almond were the conference speakers. All encouraged the Saints to "Go forward." Though there are discouragements to meet, there is much to encourage, and "Forward" is the watchword.

The conference was one of the best held in the district. The weather was delightful. Central Branch entertained the conference with its usual hospitality. A hearty vote of thanks was extended the branch.

Southern New England Conference

The fall conference of Southern New England District was held at Boston Branch on Sewell Street, Somerville, Massachusetts, Saturday and Sunday, November 14 and 15. At 7.30 p. m., Saturday, the first meeting, a business session, was convened, and Apostle R. S. Budd and the district presidency were associated in presiding over the conference.

At this session Elder William Patterson submitted his resignation as district president, but action was deferred until a request was read from Providence Branch, that the incumbent be retained under local support. Much discussion followed, but final action resulted in the rejection of the request, and the acceptance of his resignation. In the discussion Apostle Budd feelingly supported the position of the Joint Council, and the conference is to be commended for supporting the decision of that body. The Joint Council had placed Elder Patterson in the list of ten men to be supported by certain localities, but since a certain locality had retained another, the former was released. Bishop E. L. Traver was elected to fill the term of office over High Priest W. A. Sinclair.

The Sunday services were attended by a large representation of the branches of the district. At the first session Sister Agnes Fisher spoke of the "Organization of Social Groups." The speaker, in her forceful manner, affirmed human gregariousness, and the need of proper directive agencies through which this instinct might find expression for religious and cultural enhancement. Sister Cathryn Carter delivered some thought-provoking material in following her subject, "Coordination of Primary Department and Junior Church." We were impressed by her statements that we had seemingly failed in teaching our children those things that are distinctively Latter Day Saint, and had failed to impress their minds with the outstanding people of our church history and organization.

The morning devotional service was fraught with spiritual uplift, and sincere expressions of determination to follow the fortunes of the church were heard from minister and member. The morning preaching hour was occupied by Elder William Patterson who spoke on the "Compensations of Adversity." The speaker affirmed that life has its price and birth its pains. Physical, national, and religious life is accompanied by birth pains, and periods of adversity have proved blessings in disguise to movements and to peoples. Rome, Greece, and the United States were brought forth in pains and stabilized in adversity, while periods of prosperity have produced weakness. The Hebrews in Egypt are our example and warning. In the period of Joseph's ascendancy they became a part of the commercial and political life of the nation almost to the extent of assimilation, and it required the adversity of Egyptian servitude to segregate them into a consolidated unit preparatory to their moving to the Promised Land.

In the afternoon Apostle Budd delivered a forceful challenge to us, to rally to the forces of the church in this the hour of her most urgent need, and to "use that which we have in our power and possession for the furtherance of the Kingdom of God." The speaker won the confidence of his audience by frankly discussing the conditions of the church, accepting some of the responsibility for mistakes made, and pleading for a restoration of confidence in God, in Jesus Christ, in the church, and in each other, that the work of God might be accomplished.

In the evening, aided by some excellent pictures, Elder

S. L. Fisher took his auditors through picturesque Switzerland.

The Southern New England District may be counted upon to support the church through her periods of adversity as in the enjoyment of her prosperity.

The conference was not without its romance, for Captain George R. Billings and Miss Linnie Mildred Eaton, of Stonington, Maine, stole down to Boston, attended the conference, and Monday morning, in the presence of a few relatives and friends at the home of Bishop and Mrs. Traver, were married by Apostle R. S. Budd, assisted by Brother E. L. Traver. After the ceremony, as quietly as they came, (except for something that fastened on the back of their automobile) they returned to Stonington to "live happy ever after"—the bridegroom to his occupation as marine captain; the bride to add to her duties of druggist those of home-making.

Oelwein, Iowa

Rally Day, September 27, was an appropriate beginning for missionary services. Elder F. C. Bevan, district missionary, was the speaker at these services, and his sermons were much enjoyed by those who availed themselves of the opportunity to hear him. The crowds were not very large, but it was pleasing to note the presence of quite a few non-members, some being very interested in hearing Brother Bevan's message. The speaker made himself one of us, and we were pleased to have him.

Graceland College Day was observed the Sunday following the date set for College Day, because of a number going to the district conference on that date. The program was much better because of the week's postponement since some of the conference College Day program was passed on to us by those who attended. Sister Ruth Smith, a former Graceland, had charge.

The annual election of officers was held in September. Practically all of the officers for the past year were re-elected for the new year. Brother George McFarlane is the pastor and Brother Charles Shippy is church school director. Elder E. R. Davis, the district president, delivered the charge to the newly-elected officers Sunday, November 15. The service was impressive and challenged each one to do his best.

Brother and Sister Charles Shippy have a little son, David James, born July 6. He was blessed by Brother McFarlane August 8.

Little Margie Jean Rasmussen was blessed September 6 by Elder W. B. Weston.

The women's group of the adult division of the church school voted to call their group the Emma Burton Circle. A project in the circle will be the study of the lives of outstanding women in the church.

Sister Victoria McQueen, an aged member, suffered a paralytic stroke several weeks ago. Her condition is not good because of her age and, too, because she has not enjoyed good health for years. A patient sufferer, she has trusted her Master and many times has found relief through administration. Previous to the time she suffered the stroke, she was a splendid conversationalist though she was quite deaf. Her delight was to talk to missionaries and visiting Saints and to listen to stories about the church. She is now seventy-seven years old. She always enjoyed prayer meeting in her home though she could hear very little of it, but, as she always said, she could feel the spirit of it. Those about her should be able to profit by knowing the sincere faith and patience she has had.

At a recent meeting the women of the branch were privileged to meet Sister Bertha Constance Woodward, who with her husband, Walter Woodward, was making a stop-over visit with Pastor McFarlane and family.

Independence

Thanksgiving morning brought with it the first snow of the season for this part of Missouri. Nevertheless the Saints arose and in great numbers betook themselves to the special nine thirty sacrifice services held in the nine congregations of the city. There in a beautiful setting of prayer, music, and talks of consecration, they gave their sacrifice offering for the month of November. The pastor's office reported on Monday thanksgiving offerings from eight congregations to the amount of $2,310; one congregation had not yet reported.

Within the next ten days the group priesthood will visit every home in the city, leaving envelopes for the December sacrifice offering. The spirit of the Saints is commendable. They are giving gratefully, freely, and purposefully.

Stone Church

A large crowd filled the Stone Church auditorium on Thanksgiving morning. An organ prelude, the hymn "Praise Ye the Lord," the invocation by Elder G. G. Lewis, the hymn, "Come, Ye Thankful People, Come," the reading of President Hoover's Thanksgiving message by Pastor Sheehy, and an anthem by the Stone Church Choir, "O Lord How Manifold," preceded the morning's address by President McDowell. He challenged the Saints to show their gratitude to God in willing sacrifice and service. Then followed a period of meditation and prayer while the organ played "My God, How Wonderful Thou Art," and Bishop G. Leslie DeLapp worded a prayer of thanksgiving. The congregation sang, "Guide Us, O Thou Great Jehovah," and the offering was taken up by the deacons. The Stone Church sacrifice offering amounted to $1,202.

In the evening the Stone Church Choir gave its annual Thanksgiving concert, Paul N. Craig and Evan A. Fry directing, Robert Miller organist, and George Miller pianist. The choir was assisted by June Whiting Lea, reader; Minetta Newton Isaacks and Lilly Belle Allen, sopranos; George Anway, tenor; Orrin Fry, violinist, and the Aeolian Chorus, Mrs. Paul N. Craig, director, and Mary Okerlind, accompanist. The congregation listened gratefully to the following program:

"The Landing of the Pilgrims," by Coerne, George Anway, and the Choir.

"Romance," by Zitterbart ..... Robert Miller, organist.
a. "The Woods and Every Sweet Smelling Tree," by West, Lilly Belle Allen and the Choir.

b. "Glorious Forever," by Rachmaninoff ..... The Choir
"Ave Maria," Bach-Gounod, Minetta Isaacks, soprano; Orrin Fry, violinist; George Miller, pianist; Robert Miller, organist.

"The Traveling Man," by Lady Gregory (a one-act play), June Whiting Lea.

Offering—Choir Benefit.

"Daybreak," Fanning ..... The Choir
"The Dehge," Saint-Saens, Orrin Fry, violinist; George Miller, pianist; Robert Miller, organist.

"The Omnipotence," by Schubert, Lilly Belle Allen and Choir
a. "Sylvia" ..... Oley Speaks

b. "The Mystery of Night" ..... Gwynne and Lucien Denni
c. "The Shadow March" ..... D. Protheroe

Aeolian Chorus

"Recessional," Matthews ..... George Anway and Choir

The executive council of the church school, at its regular meeting of the month on Sunday morning, took action dispensing with the Christmas treats for the school this year. Since the Stone Church School has more than five hundred children who usually receive treats, it will be seen that the doing away with treats this year will be a great saving. At the same time this action is in keeping with the lessons the teachers are giving the children on sacrificing for and serving the church.

The annual Christmas program will this year be given on Christmas Eve by the intermediate and junior departments.

Christmas plans are numerous, many classes planning projects which will bring happiness and cheer to needy families and lonely people. This year the children are going to live the Christmas spirit, giving to others rather than receiving for themselves.

Elder Leonard Lea was the speaker at the Stone Church Sunday morning. Two anthems were sung by the Stone Church Choir, directed by Paul N. Craig. In charge of the service was Elder H. G. Barto, assisted by Elder Calvin H. Rich.

A large congregation of Independence people assembled for the two thirty afternoon service at the church. Rabbi Samuel S. Mayerberg, of Kansas City, Missouri, was the speaker. After an introduction by Pastor John F. Sheehy, Rabbi Mayerberg presented in a winning manner the following high points of his subject, "What the Jews Believe": (1) They believe in God as the Creator, the All-powerful, the eternal Father who fills the world with his omnipotence; (2) that the course of life is founded by the Ten Commandments; (3) that everything is good until man has spoiled it; (4) that each man has inward power of soul to conquer temptation; (5) that the world is the workshop of God and that there is glory in achievement. He also gave briefly the Jews' understanding of atonement, revelation, and future life, and denied the claim that the Jews, as a people, claim to be the only children of God.

The spirit of this educative lecture, which presented many new viewpoints, found expression in the closing words of the speaker: "I live with the profound hope that brotherhood shall bind the whole world in a bond unbreakable, in the bond of everlasting love."

With Pastor Sheehy in the stand was President F. M. McDowell. The Stone Church Choir made its second appearance of the day, singing "God Is Our Refuge." George Anway sang "Come, Sweet Comforter," by F. M. Smith.

Unusual Sunday evening entertainment was afforded the Stone Church congregation when a group of a dozen juniors presented the play, "Old Man Spendthrift," under the direction of eleven-year-old Jane Fairbanks. The play preceded the Auditorium Band Concert.

A concert by the Auditorium Band, directed by Sanford Downs, occupied the evening hour, presenting a variety of musical selections. Elder H. G. Barto was in charge of the service and offered the benediction.

Second Church

Nothing has been reported from Second Church for a long time, but it has not been for lack of activity. Occurrences during the month of November have been especially noteworthy.

The Thanksgiving service was fairly well attended and the sacrifice offering far exceeded expectations.

Sunday, November 29, two very interesting sermons were delivered. Elder E. A. Thomas occupied the pulpit at the morning service and Bishop L. F. P. Curry at night.

Sunday, November 15, the eleven o'clock service was given to the juniors who acquitted themselves admirably, even to the extent of dramatizing a classic story and presenting it to an interested audience. All parts of this service were conducted by the juniors. Ivan Dillee was in charge of the meeting. Nadine Inman conducted the singing, and Orson Murdock was the central figure in the little drama of the old cobbler who was expecting a visit from the Savior.

Renewed activity and much interest are being shown by the young people, under the direction of Roy Settles. Meetings are held every Sunday evening at the church at six thirty. The young people's prayer meeting is held each Wednesday night. All are made welcome.

Attendance at the women's meetings in the different groups has been very satisfactory. Quilting is the usual occupation.

At Mrs. Sherwin's home on South Delaware, a dinner was held in honor of three members whose birthday anniversaries fell almost on that date. About thirty members were present and an interesting program was given. An original poem, written and read by Mrs. Mamie Sacket, was in honor of her third cousin, Mrs. Lovey Alison, whose eighty-first birthday was one of those being celebrated. The poem told of many good qualities possessed by the dear old lady, chief of those being that she was a mother at heart who had never had children of her own but who had taken three orphaned babies and reared them to maturity.

Instead of the usual prayer meetings held in the different groups, there will be a general meeting at the church tonight for business purposes.

Liberty Street Church

On Thanksgiving morning, at nine thirty o'clock, a special prayer and testimony meeting was held. Pastor John R. Lentell was in charge. A large number expressed thanks and appreciation for the many blessings of the past year. Many testified that the restored gospel was the thing for which they were the most thankful. At the close of the service the congregation filed past the altar and the people gave their November sacrifice offering which symbolized their "works" coupled with their faith.

Men of the local priesthood have filled the pulpit at the eleven o'clock hour for the past three Sundays, Elder Walter Curtis, Elder John Soderstadt, and Priest Troy Rollette. Their sermons were constructive and encouraging.

Elder E. A. Davis, a veteran missionary with many years of service to his credit, preached at the evening service November 29.

The Six O'clock Club is the name of the new organization of young people under the leadership of Elbert Mock, Mabel Tignor, and Cecil Walker. They meet each Sunday evening at six o'clock for programs, etc. Mrs. Elbert Mock who was baptized a short time ago is doing some fine work as captain of the Girl Scouts. The volley ball team is making a good showing and a new basket ball team is in the making. They will have their new suits in a few days, and the line-up of personnel promises a strong team in the inter-city league.

The different departments of the church school will give three separate programs during the Christmas season.

The play, "Eighteen Carat Boob," a comedy in three acts, was given at the Stone Church dining hall at eight o'clock last Friday evening, under the sponsorship of the Samaritan Class. Dean Redfield directed the cast, and about two hundred people saw the performance. The Wahdemna Male Quartet, composed of Roderick May, Duane Swalley, Robert Crawford, and Edward Cronenbold, sang special numbers between acts. The proceeds of this play were applied to the purchase of suits for the basket ball team.

Enoch Hill Church

Elder Charles Warren gave an interesting talk at the church school hour concerning our relation to God in these latter days.

Elder Swen Swenson in his sermon at the eleven o'clock hour, "A Marvelous Work and a Wonder," admonished the Saints to greater faithfulness to God's commandments. "If we are not blessed by God," he said, "we ourselves are to blame. God's promises are true. Keep his commandments and you will never lack for anything." He used the last fifteen minutes of the hour to relate missionary experiences. These the Saints very much enjoyed. The choir sang, "Make Haste, O Zion."

Miss Inez Hartman sang a beautiful solo at the evening service, "I Will Sing Unto the Lord."

Elder George G. Lewis, the evening speaker, chose as his theme, "Keeping God's Commandments," and based his talk mostly on the two sayings of Jesus, "If ye love me, ye will keep my commandments," and "Do unto others as you would they should do to you."

The sacrifice service on Thanksgiving morning was well attended. The choir sang a beautiful anthem, "O Zion Haste," after which the offering was taken. Although many members were unable to attend this service and turn in their envelopes, more than one hundred and fifty dollars was taken up. Pastor Herbert Barto gave an instructive and inspiring talk.

The Religio on Friday evenings is having good attendance and interest is increasing.

W. L.

Englewood Church

On Sunday, November 22, we were favored with two excellent sermons. In the morning Bishop G. Leslie DeLapp presented a hopeful outlook on accomplishing the ideals of Zion. The choir sang "Rock of Ages." Elder Calvin Rich, in the evening, brought us very close to Thanksgiving with his comparison of our time with that of the Pilgrim fathers. He presented our advantages and our responsibilities. Preceding the sermon "Take Time to Be Holy" was sung by a mixed quartet.

Thanksgiving Day proved a memorable occasion for Englewood congregation. A lecture on "Early American History," interested everyone and more fully prepared us for the service of thanksgiving by sacrifice which followed. First came the nursery, the beginner, and the primary children marching to the rostrum to the music of the piano. Each as he passed the basket placed in the center of the rostrum, dropped a little "true blue" bag which contained his offering carefully saved for the occasion. Then the children formed in lines and sang their offering song as juniors, intermediates, and grown-ups filed by with their offerings. Everyone helped, and the feeling which resulted was wonderful. A "family dinner" at the church concluded the activities of the morning.

The little "true blue" bags are again in the hands of the children, to receive their sacrifice money and savings for the coming month. They are saving this for "Jesus' birthday." We hope that in this way they shall experience the happiest Christmas they have yet known.

Because some of the young people needed for the pageant were absent from the city and also because there was not time for sufficient preparation, the performance was postponed.

The fatherly counsel of Patriarch F. A. Smith in his Sunday morning sermon was well received. He stressed "child training" and "parent training." The choir, in charge of the chorister, sang "The Son of God Goes Forth to War," by Whitney. Patriarch F. A. Smith also spoke in the evening, and Sister George Willis sang a solo.

Friday evening at eight o'clock the dramatic class, taught by Mrs. JoZelma Taylor, will present two plays, a Civil War drama, "Solemn Pride," and a comedy, "Those Husbands of Ours." All are invited. There will be no admission charge. A silver collection will be taken to go to the sacrifice offering of the branch.

Gudgell Park Church

Some recent speakers have been Brothers Chapman, C. E. Martin, J. W. Smith, Vernon Reese, and D. A. Whiting. Each brought a message of instruction and encouragement.

This branch just closed a week's series of preaching services by Patriarch Ammon White who spoke every night except two when Patriarch F. A. Smith took his place. The services were much enjoyed and the advice given by the speakers was most timely. Attendance was good.

Pastor P. A. Sherman is ill. We hope he will soon be able to meet with his congregation once again.

The young people are working on a Christmas cantata which they plan to give just before Christmas under the direction of Sisters Hook and Griffin. The next few weeks will find us busy on our Christmas program in addition to conducting regular activities.

This congregation, too, is observing the sacrifice period.

Situation Wanted

A released minister, H. Arthur Koehler, desires work. Will appreciate any forth-coming assistance. 3328 Chestnut Avenue, Kansas City, Missouri. Phone Elmridge 1195-J.

Kansas City Stake

Central Church

Central's O. B. K.'s were in charge of the Sunday evening service, November 22. The girls' chorus, directed by Mrs. C. E. Wight, sang two numbers, and a cast of players, directed by Wallace Burlington, presented a religious drama, "The Traveling Man." This play will be entered in the stake religious drama contest. An offering to defray expenses and royalty was accepted.

There was a special stake mass meeting of all young people at Central Church Wednesday night, November 25. President F. M. McDowell presented "A Challenge for Youth Today." There were talks by other speakers, community singing, and special music. This meeting replaced the Thanksgiving Eve prayer service.

From Monday, November 30, to Wednesday, December 2, eight groups of O. B. K.'s are presenting various one-act religious dramas in a contest for the O. B. K. trophy. A splendid group of plays is being given.

Elder Leonard Lea was the morning speaker November 22, and the choir, directed by George Anway, sang "Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem," by Maunder. Mrs. J. A. Withee was organist.

Argentine Church

November 19 the Be Square Club, composed of the young married women of this congregation, sponsored a banquet attended by local and visiting members. Brother and Sister Clayton Wolfe, of Central Church, led the musical numbers. Bishop C. A. Skinner and the acting stake president, George Mesley, made the principal speeches. Virginia Hartegan gave a humorous reading, Jewell A. Brown, a historical sketch, "The First Thanksgiving"; Clayton Cooper, a piano solo; Sister Gilbert Paris, vocal solo. Pastor R. E. Browne was toastmaster. The proceeds of the banquet are to be applied to the partition curtain fund for the church school.

Gladstone Church

The series of Sunday night sermons by Evangelist U. W. Greene, radio pastor of KMBC, is well attended and good interest is being shown. The evening services open at seven thirty with a fifteen or twenty minute song service of familiar hymns. This clears the mind of daily cares and unites the hearts of all so that each one is ready to receive the spiritual food that Brother Greene ably presents. A special solo immediately preceding the sermon is a feature of the evening. Sister Corrinne French, of Independence, Sister Luella Wight, of Central Branch, and Sister Myrtle Palmer, of the local congregation, have been soloists in past evenings. Special mention is here made of the last service of the series the night of November 29. A stereopticon lecture on the Holy Land was given in the upper auditorium of the Masonic Hall at Van Brunt and Anderson Streets.

Elder W. S. Brown spoke November 22 in the morning on the theme, "The Church."

Give a

NEW HYMNAL

for Christmas.

Orders filled same day received.

Send for your book now.

Buy Your Farms Now

While they are cheap. Any size, best terms. Special attention to readers of the Saints' Herald.

CHAS. R. BOWMAN

Butler, Mo.

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Frederick M. Smith, Editor in Chief.
 Elbert A. Smith, Floyd M. McDowell, Associate Editors.
 Leonard J. Lea, Managing Editor.
 Leta B. Moriarty, Assistant Editor.
 Published for the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Subscription price: By the year, $2.

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE
 INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI

CONTENTS

EDITORIAL:
It's November, Then December .....	1130
Why Not Try This .....	1130
"Four-minute Speakers" .....	1131
Vision Story Contest .....	1131
NOTES FROM THE FIELD .....	1133
ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
"Four-minute" Sacrifice Themes for December, by C. B. Woodstock .....	1132
A Socialized Surplus Versus Insurance, by James E. Bishop .....	1134
A Missionary at Large, by James W. Davis .....	1135
Thoughts on Christmas Giving, by A. B. Phillips .....	1136
Christmas Giving, by Lee White .....	1137
What of Our Daughters, by L. B. M. ....	1137
Priesthood Responsibility, by John R. Grice .....	1139
The Fall of Man and the Atonement, by J. F. Mintun .....	1140
Weekly Health Letter, by A. W. Teel, M. D. ....	1142
What the Church Means to Me, by J. W. Roberts .....	1143
NEWS OF CHURCH AND HOME .....	1144
MISCELLANEOUS .....	1152

MISCELLANEOUS

Appointment of Bishop's Agent

Brother Charles M. Sodersten having presented his resignation as bishop's agent for Central Nebraska District, we hereby appoint as his successor, Brother J. C. Vaughn, subject to the ratification of the next district conference.

Brother Sodersten has given splendid cooperation in this connection, and we wish to take this opportunity of expressing appreciation for the service rendered.

Brother Vaughn comes to us well recommended, and we feel confident he will receive the earnest cooperation of the membership in giving their support to this phase of church work.

The solicitors are requested to send their November and all subsequent reports to Brother J. C. Vaughn, 808 South Third Street, Norfolk, Nebraska.

THE PRESIDING BISHOPRIC,
 By G. L. DELAPP.

Approved by THE FIRST PRESIDENCY,
 By F. M. MCDOWELL.

Special Meetings for Kirtland District

Kirtland District will hold a series of special meetings to which President F. M. Smith and Bishop L. F. P. Curry have been invited. The purpose of these meetings will be to fully inform the Saints as to present conditions of the church and the prospects immediately before us. The meetings will be held in Cleveland, December 12 and 13. The first service will be Saturday 3 p. m., a round table discussion. Following this a banquet will be held. E. Guy Hammond will be toastmaster. Each husband should bring his wife and each unmarried man a friend. The charge of the banquet will be nominal, and those out of work will be given the meal free. Following the banquet there will be a sermon. The first meeting Sunday will be a prayer service at 8 a. m. This is important and all should attend.—James E. Bishop.

Conferences Notices

Special conference will be held at Beaverton, Michigan, December 12 and 13, to elect delegates to General Conference and decide time needed to raise quota. Priesthood meeting at nine o'clock in the morning Saturday.—Hubert Case.

Northern Iowa district conference will convene at Logan Iowa, December 5 and 6. A good representation from each branch is desired, as this is the election of district officers and the selection of delegates to General Conference, The district presidency requests the Saints to come to the conference in the spirit of fasting and prayer. Apostle J. F. Garver and Bishop G. L. DeLapp will be present. Bishop DeLapp will conduct a special class on church finances. Branch clerks, please forward your reports at an early date to Mrs. W. R. Adams, district secretary, Logan, Iowa.—G. Gunsolley, district president

Conference Minutes

SOUTHERN ILLINOIS.—District conference was entertained by Centralia, October 31 and November 1. A good representation of Saints from the branches gathered at the church at 10.30 a. m. for the opening session. The district presidency, R. L. Fulk, Ernest Roberson, and Charles Wesner, were in charge, assisted by Apostle John F. Garver. After the organization of the conference, the morning hour was given to talks by men of the priesthood. Business session was held in the afternoon. District officers were elected as follows: President, R. L. Fulk; associates, Ernest Roberson, Charles Wesner; secretary, Myrtle Choate; musical director, Virgie Fulk; church school director, Lewis Deselms; assistant, Cora Henson; district treasurer, Charles Wesner; superintendent of women, Sister Hellen Cisne. Saturday evening Apostle Garver preached. Sunday morning the Saints met in church school capacity at 9.30, the theme for the worship service being "God's Love." The scripture reading was John 15:9-15, and the theme talk was made by Arthur Henson. The hymn, "Nearer My God to Thee," by a quartet (Brother and Sister Snow, Brother Brown, and Sister Wesner), a story by Sister Myrtle Choate, prayer by Arthur Henson, and a vocal solo by Lewis Deselms composed the program. A good number of Saints gladly renewed their covenant with Christ at the 10.45 sacrament service. And two worthy men were ordained to the office of elder, John Henson, of Orchardville, Illinois, and Arthur Henson, of Mount Vernon. Little Charles Raymon Davis was blessed. Apostle Garver preached at the afternoon service, and Sister Virgie and Mildred Fulk sang "Whispering Hope." Brother Garver talked again in the evening, and there was a story, "The Man Who Became a Second Peter," by Myrtle Choate, and Sister Bessie Burgess and Brother Linard Goostree sang "I need Thee Every hour." The conference closed with the singing of the hymn "We're Marching to Zion." It was adjourned to meet at the call of the district presidency. A vote of thanks was extended Centralia members for their hospitality. Everyone enjoyed the good spirit which prevailed throughout the sessions.

Marriage

BROWN—WHENHAM.—Miss Illa M. Brown became the bride of Mr. Leslie W. Whenham, of Port Huron, Michigan, September 14, at the home of Elder and Sister John R. Grice, Columbus, Ohio. Brother Grice, formerly of Saint Clair, Michigan, read the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Whenham left for a trip through the East. Mrs. Whenham attended Saint Clair, Michigan, High School and graduated from the Windsor Business College. Mr. Whenham is connected with a beauty shop and tonsorial parlor in Port Huron. They are now at home to their friends on Saint Clair Street, Port Huron. An unusual coincidence in connection with the date of Miss Brown's marriage occurs in the family. September 14 marks the seventeenth wedding anniversary of her sister, Mrs. Harry Lively, the eleventh wedding anniversary of her brother, Gordon Brown, of Detroit; also the birthday anniversary of their father, Elder Samuel Brown.

Our Departed Ones

PENNELS.—John Harris Pennels, son of John L. and Myrtle Pennels, was born September 3, 1918, at Washburn, Missouri. Died September 10, 1931, at Washburn. He united with the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints when nine years of age. Leaves to mourn his parents, two sisters, grandparents, and a host of other relatives and friends. He was beloved by all who knew him.

The average man spends as much on his car as he does on his LIFE INSURANCE. Certainly your life is worth more to your family than your car—INSURE IT FULLY!

Call us and our representative will call.

INSURANCE DEPARTMENT
 OF THE CHURCH
 (American Underwriters, Inc.)

Indep. 486 221 W. Lexington St.

THE SAINTS' HERALD

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS

Entered as second-class matter at the post office at Independence, Missouri, under Act of March 3, 1879. Issued weekly at Independence, Missouri. Price $2 a year in advance. Accepted for mailing at the special rate of postage provided for in section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917; authorized July 21, 1921.

Volume 78

Independence, Missouri, December 9, 1931

Number 49

THE TASK

Now is the time to translate noble words into great deeds. This time, of all times, will put to the practical test the ideals which we have professed to believe. If Christian faith is to continue to serve the needs of suffering humanity, its earthly representative, the Christian church, must do something to play the role of greatness which has been claimed for it. The time is here, the need is here, the inspiration is here; we wait now for men to lead and men to follow in the tremendous task of building a new world.

---

A DECLARATION OF THE KING'S LAW

Kenneth B. Curtis

WHAT SHALL THE ANSWER BE?

J. E. Vanderwood

OUR CHRISTMAS GIFT TO CHRIST

C. B. Woodstock

ARE YOU CARRYING YOUR CROSS?

Poul S. Nielsen

The Work of the Church Will Go On

Notes From the Field

An Expression of Faith From Moline, Illinois

In this day when criticism seems to be so common and when people are at times disposed to criticize rather than offer helpful suggestions, it is encouraging to occasionally receive a "pat on the back." Recently there was addressed to me a letter from Moline, Illinois, which is one such encouragement and we reproduce it here with thanks to the Moline Saints for their confidence and their evident willingness to help us carry the onerous burdens of the Presidency:

MOLINE, ILLINOIS, November 30, 1931.

President Frederick M. Smith,
Independence, Missouri.

Dear Brother:

We the Saints of the Moline Branch wish to express to you and your counselors our satisfaction in the way you have conducted the affairs of the church in these "trying times," and we still have full confidence in your integrity to carry on in this great responsibility that is still resting upon you. Realizing the weight of the responsibilities you must carry, we desire to help lighten the load by our expression of confidence and good will, and promise to sustain you by our prayers and do all we can to alleviate the financial depression of the church.

HARRY ECKFRIGHT, Pastor.

HARLAND CADY, Assistant Pastor.

MRS. G. E. WILLMAN.

F. M. S.

Holden Branch Gives Generously

Attention is called to the letter by W. S. Macrae, President of Holden Stake, in the news department this week. From it we gather that Holden Branch, with returns for the Thanksgiving sacrifice still incomplete, has over $400 to give to the church. Of this amount $110 had been previously collected for improvements in the local church auditorium, and was given to the general church by a unanimous vote; nearly fifty dollars was contributed by members of Holden Home; and sixteen dollars was raised by the young people by a social in the dining room of the "Home."

Southern Wisconsin District Sends Encouragement

The following letter was received by the First Presidency:

We, the Saints of the Southern Wisconsin District, wish to express our faithfulness, loyalty, and desire to help the church in this time of crisis as much and more than in the past.

We wish to give our all in support of the church and will endeavor to remain true to its ideals at all times and will try to express our loyalty by our works. This spirit was made manifest at our recent district conference.

THE SOUTHERN WISCONSIN DISTRICT,

By Leda Colbert, Secretary.

Blessed in Obeying the Financial Law

An English Brother Expresses His Faith

I thought I would like to tell you how I have found God true to his word in supplying my needs, as I have sought to give obedience to his commandments.

I write at this time of the blessing I have received through my obedience to the financial law. During my seven years standing in the church I have observed the law of tithing, as being a part of the gospel plan for my salvation.

I have been much affected by the depression of trade from time to time, which has caused me to be unemployed. Having remembered the way of God in the days of my good fortune, I have sought the Lord in the days of my need asking him to bless and direct my efforts to find employment, and I can say that my prayers have been answered, some immediately, others after a time.

On no occasion can I say that I have been in want. I find God is ready to respond to the cry of his children according to their willingness to give obedience to his laws.

My prayer to God is to give you and the Presidency wisdom in the administration of his affairs.

I am your brother in Christ,

T. H. TUCKER.

Be Glad

There was one who, hundreds of years before Christ's birth, sang: "I have set the Lord always before me: because he is at my right hand, I shall not be moved. Therefore my heart is glad." That man did not see the Lord in flesh, but he believed the prophecies concerning his birth, therefore he sang and was glad.

When the heavenly messenger announced the birth of the Savior to the shepherds "abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night," his words were, "Behold, I bring you glad tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people."

I wish we had a more complete record of the life and words of Jesus. We do him wrong when we picture him as a man of sorrows, for he brought joy to the world—life everlasting, life more abundant. The greater part of his life and ministry was spent with men, building, helping, serving, healing, teaching, and I like to imagine him as a great helper who smiled upon his friends and comforted and gave them strength with his cheer.

The Thanksgiving season which we have just observed has given us reason to count our blessings, and now approaches the time of the year reminding us of the birth of Jesus. Two thousand years ago the heavenly Father looked upon the earth and saw in the lives of men a great need, a need for hope and cheer and love—the life more abundant. And so he gave a gift to fill this need, his only begotten Son. Small wonder that the angel described the advent of our Lord to the shepherds as “glad tidings of great joy . . . to all people.”

It is this Christ with whom we have made covenant. Like David we have “set the Lord always before” us. Sometimes we forget him. Sometimes we grow discouraged. Sometimes we weakly begin to count our hardships and trials instead of our blessings. But if we remember the love of Christ and his words, “Lo, I am with you alway,” we have every reason to rejoice. With David let us remind ourselves, “because he is at my right hand, I shall not be moved. Therefore my heart is glad.” Let us “serve the Lord with gladness.”

L. B. M.

Mrs. F. A. Smith Passes

A great many will be saddened to learn of the passing of Sister F. A. Smith, wife of Presiding Patriarch F. A. Smith. A longer account of her life and works appears in the news columns of this issue of the Herald. During her life she has been a devoted wife and mother and an earnest worker in the affairs of the church. Besides her family there is a host of friends to mourn her loss. The Herald editors extend their sincerest sympathy to the bereaved family.

J. F. Curtis Rapidly Improving

Readers of the Herald will be glad to hear that Apostle J. F. Curtis is recovering from his recent illness and operation in a very satisfactory manner. With his old energy returning, Brother Curtis is already thinking of his work, and doing his bit to help in local affairs. The operation, which he had postponed for some time, proved successful. It is hoped that Brother Curtis's recovery will be speedy and complete.

L. L.

Blue Pencil Notes

“Some corporation will soon find a way to corner the air,” complained Deacon Goodentart, “then we will all have to wear meters on our noses, and if we do not pay up just on time we will get a notice the first of the month saying, ‘If this bill is not paid by the tenth your breath will be shut off without further notice.’”

Possibly some few persons derive a certain pleasure from the difficulties that have befallen the church in such rapid succession. The old hymn says: “Our foes have rejoiced when our sorrows they've seen.” But the twenty-third psalm assures us, “He prepareth me a table in the midst of mine enemies.” We hope that our real enemies are few, and that misunderstanding of motives accounts for much that seems enmity.

The burden borne by the Saints, and especially by the ministry, has seemed heavy. The difficulties confronting the church are in the mind almost every hour of the day, and when one awakes in the small hours of the night, the first conscious thought turns to them. We have need to remember the invitation of the Master: “Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you and learn of me . . . for my yoke is easy and my burden is light.”

If our burden seems so heavy, perhaps we have not yet fully adjusted his yoke to our shoulders. Perhaps we have not yet learned all that we should of him. The yoke is to be easy and the burden light; and yet the yoke stands for service. As a boy on the farm I used a yoke that my grandfather, William Hartshorn, had fashioned after the manner of those he had used in the sugar camps of Canada for carrying sap. It fitted across the shoulders and from either end was suspended a rope with a small hook. With it one could pick up and carry two heavy buckets of water easier than he could carry one without it. The yoke was easy and it made the burden light,—and yet it was a symbol of work to be done.

We recall that a few years ago our slogan was, “Forward to 1930 and beyond.” I felt chagrined for a time to remember that slogan, in view of all that developed during the latter part of 1930, and “beyond.” But now I have a different viewpoint. We hoped for blessings—memorable ones. To our consternation we had adversity thrust upon us—in some things disaster. Yet these very afflictions have brought us in humility to the feet of Jesus, to “learn of him”—to wear more consistently his yoke. Man after man has confessed to a change in his whole life; a new humility and a new devotion as a result. In affliction and adversity we may find experiences that will make the months and years immediately "beyond" 1930 for ever memorable to us. And our slogan is still "Forward."

"This one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark of the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus."

SUPPLICATION

God of all space:
Center of the walled-in garden,
Boundary of the open field,
Dwell in my heart, compass my life!

God of all time:
The split second, the trillion years,
Before time was and after it,
Scan my brief, fleeting calendar,
And mark each day, "Communion Day."

God of all races:
Every kindred, tongue, and people,
And those unknown, in the far stars
That speak with dot and dash of light;
One in this sweep of life am I,
Yet so alone when it grows dark,—
Draw thou me through all time and space,
With those more worthy, home to thee.

ELBERT A. SMITH.

Coming Up to Christmas

Many a family to whom the Christmas season has meant happiness and good cheer will make a melancholy approach to December 25 this year. Where formerly they sat down at a table loaded with good things, this year they will be fortunate if they have enough to eat of even the plainest food. Where formerly the little children's stockings and gaily decorated trees were loaded with gifts, this year there will be many little stockings hung up with hope on Christmas Eve and taken down with disappointment on Christmas morning. We are nearly as much saddened by the deprivation of the season's expected happiness as we are by the many cases of want of the necessities of life.

All charitable organizations will be called on this year for help far beyond their capacity to give. Individual kindness, personal charity, a keen watchfulness in every neighborhood by those who can give something for the help of those who are certain to need will be required.

Before we buy toys for poor children, we ought to be sure that they have food and clothes. At the same time that we send them a few broken toys discarded from last year's gifts, we ought to send along a good basket filled with something to eat. And it may be that, if we would think about it, we could find some good but unused garments in closets and trunks that would keep some poor persons warm.

In our giving, let us not regard our acts as charity. Perhaps the doing of good is never so offensive as when it ostentatiously carries the label, charity. But let us think of answering human need. Then the spirit of Christ will go with our gifts.

L. L.

Contributors

Our readers are all aware that the contributions which appear in the Herald are written by men and women of the church, young and old, who give time, energy, thought, and the necessary outlay of supplies and postage, in order to do their bit to help forward the work of the church.

Sometime a letter or two will come from some thoughtful readers expressing encouragement and appreciation for some good thought read in an article. But for the most part our contributors are rewarded only by the thanks of the editors, and hear nothing from the great number of readers who enjoy their work. It is a fine testimony of their faith and sincerity that they keep right on working and producing manuscripts with so little reward. If it were not for them, it would be scarcely possible for the church publications to continue on their present basis.

Whatever good thing there may be said for the work of the church, and in the interests of the readers, should find a place in the Herald. It is not the intention to restrict the material. Some can best express themselves in regular articles; others communicate their views in the Gospel Forum; yet others may have something shorter and less formal to say, and they have an opportunity in the section devoted to Letters to the Editor. For everybody that has something to say for the Restored Gospel, there is room in the Herald. Of course, it is recognized that we must adhere to some standards: the material must be of sufficient interest to our readers; it ought to be fairly well written, though we can do much to improve a poorly written article that has merit; and it ought to refrain from acrimony and unkind personal allusions. It is our purpose to do what we can to help build the kingdom of God, to encourage the Saints, to spread the knowledge of the gospel.

To this task we invite all who have something to give in the way of writing. We shall grow and build together.

L. L.

ORIGINAL ARTICLES

A Declaration of the King's Law

By Kenneth B. Curtis

Introductory Note

There are so many people who do not study the scriptures that I have determined to present a story pertaining to an important phase of the building up of God's kingdom on earth in such a manner as to encourage some to become willing readers who will understand. If we fail to obey the laws of God we suffer; and if we do not read his word, how are we to obey?

Therefore, to arouse interest, I have presented points in as clear a manner as possible, but have purposely kept any explanations until later. This system of arrangement I hope will induce the reader, especially if he is not in the habit of studying regularly, to read each article of this series thoroughly each time; thereby covering in general the high points of community stewardship necessary to a knowledge of its place among men.

This series is not a study course.

Further, I have only written to the people of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. May I have your prayers for further work on my part, and I truly will pray for you.

Kenneth B. Curtis.

Temporalities Versus Spiritualities

Day after day our old world rolls on, and the question is: How much longer is it going to continue to do so? We read of and witness conditions which coincide with those of the prophecy, and, in short, the parable, of the fig tree: "When his branch is yet tender and putteth forth leaves, ye know summer is nigh"; (Matthew 24: 32) and so is the second coming of Christ.

But what of Zion, the City Beautiful, where the pure in heart may flee for safety? Or, better, what does God mean by the word safety? Is he speaking in terms of the flesh or the spirit? At present it appears that Zion is a temporal refuge as well as a spiritual happiness, for if it were spiritual only why would he say, "And in the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom which shall never be destroyed; and the kingdom shall not be left to other people, but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand for ever"? (Daniel 2: 44.)

Now these kings referred to are the ten kings who arose after the fall of Rome, as the reader no doubt is well aware; if not, see Revelation 17. The dragon spoken of therein has seven heads and ten horns, an allusion to the seven forms of government as well as the seven hills upon which Rome, the capital, was built. These governments were, in time, removed, and the kingdom was rent into ten parts, each being ruled over by a king.

However twisted or warped you may consider this thought of a temporal Zion, you will always come back to it because Christ, in speaking about the resurrection of the dead, says: "Have ye not read that which was spoken unto you by God, saying, I am the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob? God is not the God of the dead, but of the living." (Matthew 22: 31, 32.) And until you are resurrected after death you are dead as far as the flesh is concerned. So there is to be a Zion here on this earth, for "How beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of him that bringeth good tidings, that publisheth peace; that bringeth good tidings of good; that publisheth salvation; that saith unto Zion Thy God reigneth!" (Isaiah 52: 7.)

The great question facing the world today—What is wrong, and where is the remedy?—should interest every true citizen of Zion, for they have the answer; but it seems that here, as in Russia, the condition of not knowing prevails. In other words, if you don't study, how, in common sense, can you expect to be obedient?

The world in one consideration finds it hard to secure sufficient means or money with which to exist properly; that is, rest from the worry of where its next meal is coming from. This is odd, living in a land of plenty as we do—America. Nevertheless, that is an existing problem, and a great one. I want to work; you want to work; in fact, nearly all of us do, but who has any money to pay us? Oh, surely, the millionaires of the country have. If that be the case why not all go together and get it? Simply because you are not really sure they have; you just believe what some one else has told you.

Again, do you believe that if the so-called poor man were given full power in money matters, conditions would be benefited? I think not. Investigate their organizations and activities, and draw your own conclusions. Let us consider prophecy here: "For the love of money is the root of all evil; which, while some search after, they have erred from the faith, and pierced themselves through with many sorrows." (1 Timothy 6: 10.)

Simply because money has always been a medium of exchange is no sign it always will be, for, turning again to prophecy, we find Isaiah, the silver-tongued prophet, speaking to Zion:

Awake! awake! put on thy strength, O Zion; put on thy beautiful garments, O Jerusalem, the holy city; for henceforth there shall no more come into thee the uncircumcized and the unclean. Shake thyself from the dust; arise, and sit down, O Jerusalem: loose thyself from the bands of thy neck, O captive daughter of Zion; for thus saith the Lord, Ye have sold yourselves for nought; and ye shall be redeemed without money.—Isaiah 52: 1-3.

That is interesting. I have heard many people say stewardship was impossible because of the weakness of men who handled the money. Could stewardship involve a plan where money was not used? Remember the world today is troubled with money matters and the citizens of Zion should know the remedy; let us hunt over the prophecies again. We find in Ezekiel:

As for the beauty of his ornament [meaning man's silver and gold] he [God] set it in majesty; but they [men] made the images of their abominations, and of their detestable things therein; therefore, have I [God] set it far from them. . . . They shall cast their silver in the streets, and their gold shall be removed; their silver and their gold shall not be able to deliver them in the days of the wrath of the Lord; they shall not satisfy their souls; neither fill their bowels; because it is the stumbling block of their iniquity.—Ezekiel 7: 20, 19.

Now study this parable:

And all the trees [meaning people] of the field [earth] shall know that I the Lord have brought down the high tree, have exalted the low tree, have dried up the green tree, and have made the dry tree to flourish.—Ezekiel 17: 24.

I would be safe in saying a considerable number of so-called Christians or citizens of Zion are looking for a Christ who will come and with power utterly crush and trample most of humanity under foot. Herein they err, in that Christ himself says: "I came . . . to save," and, "Yea, and why even of yourselves judge ye not what is right?"

So it is incumbent upon the elect not to run and hide behind a refuge, but from a refuge call to the world to witness a living demonstration of the next step in governing our relations, one with another; that of community stewardship, the remedy for the world's temporal problems of today.

Study carefully Doctrine and Covenants 129: 8.

What Shall the Answer Be?

By J. E. Vanderwood

If thou faint in the day of adversity, thy strength is small.—Proverbs 24: 10.

Go Forward

World conditions and their effect upon the people in general have a tendency to cool the ardor of church folk, and make them somewhat despondent. This, perhaps, is attributable to human nature, but it is not what is required of the soldiers of the great King. Just what may be needed at this time may yet be an uncertain quantity in the minds of many; but to those who have been made to feel the quickening touch of the Spirit of Christ, and who have come to sense the meaning of his message to men, there can be no uncertainty. There is but one course open to the people of God, there is but one thing required of the church; and that is to keep up courage and move forward in the faithful, and untiring, discharge of duty.

When Moses the man of God was leading Israel out of the bondage of Egypt, he said to Aaron, "Speak unto the children of Israel that they go forward." There is nothing uncertain in this message, there is no hidden meanings; but it is clear and definite. To the people it seemed to be a difficult problem, but God had purposed to bring about his purposes by means least understood by men; and he could only say to the men upon whom responsibility rested, "Speak unto the children of Israel that they go forward." This is what he requires of us in this day of stress and uncertainty; in this time when the hearts of strong men are failing them, and when governors and rulers are perplexed with the gigantic problems that confront them. The thing that is required of us is to move forward with courage and determination, and if this be done we shall meet with success, and our labors will be crowned with the blessings of heaven; men will find encouragement, and God's name shall be honored in the earth.

It is not a difficult thing for people to move along serenely when everything is favorable and there are no obstructions or handicaps. But, come to think of it, there is no particular virtue in this, for any one can move along with the crowd, or follow the line of least resistance. A dead fish can float with the stream, but it requires life and activity to be able to stem the tide and make headway upstream. Our text informs us that if we faint in the day of adversity our strength is small, and I am just wondering as I write this how much strength the best of us have when it comes to the real test? There are a number of things that can be done by us that we have been in the habit of neglecting, if we would put ourselves whole-heartedly to the advancing of the cause that has been intrusted to us.

Initiative and Confidence

There are but two things needful to insure success to those who have been placed in trust with the message of life and salvation, and they are initiative and confidence. Permit me to draw special attention to these things. Having the best thing in the world within our reach in the gospel, we should put ourselves to the task of discovering means of laying before people the thing that will enable them to solve their problems. We should not keep hidden the most sacred trust that can be placed with us, but we should work out means and methods of making it inviting and satisfying to mankind. Sometimes we fail to grasp fully what initiative really means, and by reason of this we fail to achieve. Initiative means simply the energy to start something. If this is all we do, we are not going to be able to do what is required of us as ministers of Christ, but we must have coupled with this, confidence that it is possible for us to carry to its completion the work we have started. The admonition of Paul, the great apostle, was: "Cast not away therefore your confidence, which hath great recompense of reward." It seems clearly evident that he realized that the reward of achievement was made possible through the exercise of confidence; that is to say, confidence in what is undertaken and confidence in the author of it, and confidence in our ability to achieve if we put ourselves unreservedly and unstinting into it.

Among the promises God has made to us in the latter day gospel, we read: "I the Lord am bound when ye do what I say, but when ye do not what I say, ye have no promise." This should enable us to develop confidence in God and in the accomplishment of the task that has been committed unto us, if we have faith at all in what the Lord has commanded us. Again we read: "According to men's faith so shall it be done unto them." This clearly indicates that we have the power of achieving or of failing as we exercise faith and confidence in what we undertake. There is a fine example in the confidence of Nephi, in which he said: "I will do the thing the Lord has commanded, for I know that the Lord giveth no commandments to the children of men, save he shall prepare a way for them to accomplish the thing he has commanded." I am confident that God will provide a way for us to carry his work on to completion and to establish stewardships and redeem Zion if we are willing to put ourselves whole-heartedly and unreservedly into the work. And now when men's hearts are crying out for deliverance because of the distress that has come upon the nations, is a very opportune time for us to sound abroad, and make clear the purpose of the glorious gospel that God has so graciously committed to us.

What Shall the Answer Be?

The real question before us is, What shall the answer be? Are we to let the present adversity daunt us? Are we to fail of our purpose because some one brings an evil report, and because there are "giants in the land"? Or are we to move forward with a strong initiative and determination to make effective the cause that has been committed unto us, and for which our blessed Lord gave his most precious life? There is but one consistent answer for any Latter Day Saint to make, and that is, that we will do the thing the Lord has commanded, for we know that he has provided, and will provide, a way for us to carry on to completion the thing he requires of us if we will put ourselves into it with all our might and main. If we faint in the day of adversity our strength is small, but if we rise up like men, and courageously move forward, seeing no cause for hesitation, no reason for doubt or fear, no tendency to slacken our ardor and activity, we shall be able to achieve the ends sought, and victoriously bring to pass the purposes of God for the glory and salvation of his people. If, like Sir Galahad, we can say, "My strength is as the strength of ten, because my heart is pure," we shall be able to become men of strength, and in the face of adversity we will triumph, because we have believed Him true who has made to us the promise.

When the youth David went out to meet the Philistine giant he was possessed of the elements of initiative and confidence; he knew what to do, and he had confidence in his ability to do what was undertaken by him. He thought victory, and he thought success, and he was rewarded with both. The good book tells us, "As he thinketh in his heart, so is he." If we would concentrate upon the achievements of our work, if we would constantly vision the possibilities of achievement and success, we would be able to speed to its accomplishment the work that is of such vital importance to men in this day of distress when the hearts of strong men fail them for fear of the things that are coming upon the earth. There is no place to stop, no reason for lessening our activity. The fact that the force has been diminished should only present to us the greater challenge to redouble our work. He is a coward who will surrender to the enemy when it is within his power to gain the victory. He is a hero who will arise in the strength of his manhood and say, God being my helper I will press forward until I have achieved the purpose for which I have been called into this blessed ministry!

Should not we who are given so gracious a privilege as to have intrusted to our keeping the means that will save the world from suffering and distress, have the courage to meet the issue manfully, and be able to say, I will put myself into it with all my might, and I will not slacken my zeal and earnestness until the victory is won, and all men have become partakers of the benefits that the gospel of peace offers those who accept its philosophy and live thereby. What shall the answer be? Have we sufficient initiative and confidence to move forward, or are we going to become traitors to the cause by yielding to the desires of our adversary? I think there is food for thought in this, and I am sure there is ample room for us to develop strength and wisdom if we will but look to the solidarity of our position. God is at the helm, and we can not fail if we will but trust in his infinite promises, and put ourselves unreservedly and unstintingly into the work whereunto he has called us.

With our reduced forces there is the greater need that these important principles of initiative and confidence should be intensified by us and put into action every day and every hour. I am sure that all who have put the Lord to the test have found that he has never failed them when they have done the thing whole-heartedly and sincerely in keeping with his instruction to us. Let us so work and so pray that we may always be on the Lord's side, for then our victory is assured, our achievement of success will be triumphantly realized. I have every reason to believe that it is possible for us to carry forward the work even with depleted ranks if we will work with God, and this is what we can do and must do. The way then will be speedily opened for the enlarging of our forces, and the more rapid consummation of our work that is of such vital importance to the thousands who are perishing for want of the provisions made in our gospel. But let us remember that great achievements are always fraught with considerable difficulty, and therefore we must exercise to its fullest extent initiative and confidence. May God strengthen us for the task set us, is my prayer.

The Gifts of the Gospel

By A. B. Phillips

(Continued from the Herald of November 25, page 1112.)

PART TWO

Manifesting the Gifts

The day of Pentecost has come to hold a most hallowed meaning for the followers of Christ, for on that day the promise of the heavenly gift was first manifested in tongues and prophecy. However, this marvelous event was only the beginning of many similar events in the history of the church, and they are often referred to in later years by the New Testament writers as being more or less of common occurrence among them. The gifts were by no means confined to tongues and prophecy, however, and the saints were instructed to seek all of them for their edification and benefit. The Corinthian saints were admonished:

Follow after charity, and desire spiritual gifts, but rather that ye may prophesy. . . . I would that ye all spake with tongues, but rather that ye prophesied: . . . Wherefore, brethren, covet to prophesy, and forbid not to speak with tongues.—1 Corinthians 14: 1, 5, 39.

While the promised gifts were manifested in various ways, yet all of them were given by the Holy Spirit, and were bestowed upon each follower of Christ according to the wisdom of God. So important was this matter that to the Gentiles Paul declared: "Now concerning spiritual gifts, brethren, I would not have you ignorant." It was necessary for them to understand that "there are diversities of gifts, but the same Spirit." Otherwise many false teachings might arise in regard to the subject, and great harm would befall the church.

It was also essential for the church to understand that every follower of the faith is entitled to one of the promised gifts, to be used for the benefit of all. Concerning this truth Paul explained: "But the manifestation of the Spirit is given to every man to profit withal." Thus did God design to enrich his church with heavenly gifts which would cause the whole body to become more and more like Jesus the great pattern. The variety of the gifts bestowed gave opportunity for such growth as would enable the church to become a unified power for the conversion of the world. Included among these gifts were some of which Paul made special mention, explaining to the Gentiles:

For to one is given by the Spirit the word of wisdom; to another the word of knowledge by the same Spirit; to another faith by the same Spirit; to another the gifts of healing by the same Spirit; to another the working of miracles; to another prophecy; to another discerning of spirits; to another divers kinds of tongues; to another the interpretation of tongues.—1 Corinthians 12: 8-10.

Relative Importance of the Gifts

Because of their unusual nature, some of the promised gifts might easily impress the beholder more than would others. The gifts of healing, of prophecy, and of tongues, were doubtless more noticeable than the gifts of wisdom and knowledge, to the superficial observer. Simon the sorcerer was probably such an observer, for he desired this power in order to practice his deceptive arts more successfully. The record tells us:

And when Simon saw that through laying on of the apostles' hands the Holy Ghost was given, he offered them money, saying, Give me also this power, that on whomsoever I lay hands, he may receive the Holy Ghost.—Acts 8: 18, 19.

But the gifts of God are to be used by his people for the blessing of others and for the uplift of mankind. This is the underlying principle of every gift which comes from him. For this reason those who receive his gifts are admonished to possess above all other things the gift of charity, without which they become as "sounding brass, or a tinkling cymbal." Without charity they will not and can not use the gifts of God acceptably. It is the eternally abiding gift which creates the atmosphere of the better life—the heavenly life.

We will not say that some of these gifts are more important than others, for each is necessary in its place and for its intended purpose. The state of the individual and human need will probably determine to a great extent the gift which he should receive at any particular time. A careful study of the Scriptures will reveal the fact that the gifts of God are always purposeful, enabling those who receive them to be "partakers of the divine nature." Nothing has been omitted that will accomplish this great end, for Peter declares:

According as his divine power hath given unto us all things that pertain unto life and godliness, through the knowledge of him that hath called us to glory and virtue: Whereby are given unto us exceeding great and precious promises: that by these ye might be partakers of the divine nature, having escaped the corruption that is in the world through lust.—2 Peter 1: 3, 4.

The Gifts Supply a Need

Paul declares that "the world by wisdom knew not God," and we may well add that the wisdom of this world will never be sufficient to make him known. We are mutually dependent upon each other, but all are dependent upon God, and to this dependence he responds in accordance with our faith and our works. This response is not limited by the human wisdom of the individual, for Jesus declared, while he communed with God:

I thank thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, because thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent, and hast revealed them unto babes.—Matthew 11: 25.

As the ways of God are infinitely above the ways of the world, so there must be some divine manifestation of heavenly influences in the soul of man by which he may be taught and led into the atmosphere of the higher life. Man must be brought into conscious contact with the divine light, and must be inspired to understand the meaning of this contact and its supreme importance to his eternal hope. Therefore, according to the needs of man God has provided and promised the gifts of the Holy Spirit, to be distributed to each believer who will use them to the glory of his Creator and the good of man.

By this plan every member may receive such ministrations as his needs require, and may minister to others according to the gift given him of God. These gifts are not to be administered by the caprice or desire of men, but are to be manifested as God wills by the guidance of his Spirit and according to his law, thus causing the whole body of Christ to "grow up into him in all things." That which is manifested regardless of law, prudence, and judgment can not be the act of divine wisdom and grace, for the gifts bestowed through the Holy Spirit operate in unity with God and his word. But he who seeks first the glory of God and the good of mankind will better understand the admonition of Paul to "covet earnestly the best gifts."

Understanding the Use of the Gifts

The fact that Paul declares: "Concerning spiritual gifts, brethren, I would not have you ignorant," sufficiently indicates both the importance of the subject and the need of the church to understand it. It is not enough to know that the gifts are promised to the faithful in Christ's church, but we should also understand their purpose and how to make proper use of them pursuant to that purpose.

To seek some manifestation of divine power does not always indicate a wise or righteous desire, for it is the gift, rather than its manifestation, that should usually be sought. We should distinguish between the gift and the "manifestation" or phenomena which may accompany it. To heal the deaf would be quite a different thing than to exploit the fact that hearing has been restored. Perhaps this is better illustrated by the fact that on many occasions when Jesus had performed an act of healing he commanded: "See that no man know it." (See Matthew 9: 30; Mark 5: 43; 7: 36; 8: 26; 9: 30.)

Let us not wrongly suppose that the test of religion is miracles. Religion is what man does as a result of his concept of God and his will. True religion is therefore expressed in doing the will of God from the heart. The miracles of Christ were some of the results of his religion, and not the cause of it. Doing good—expressing the love of God and the love of man—is the true test of religion. To believe in the Scriptures is to believe in the spiritual gifts therein promised, but this will not greatly improve the religion of one who will not obey the divine will. It is by choosing to walk in the divine way that man becomes entitled to receive and use the spiritual gifts. Jesus expressed this thought when he said:

He that hath my commandments, and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me; and he that loveth me shall be loved of my Father, and I will love him, and will manifest myself to him.—John 14: 21.

The beneficent nature of God may be discerned in both his temporal and spiritual gifts to men. He did not intend these gifts to be used by us selfishly, therefore he admonishes us: "Freely ye have received, freely give." Thus the following purpose in the use of spiritual gifts is enjoined by Paul:

Forasmuch as ye are zealous of spiritual gifts, seek that ye may excel to the edifying of the church.—1 Corinthians 14: 12.

Seeking the Gifts as Signs

The Scriptures clearly show that the gifts of the gospel are not for the purpose of gratifying vanity or to make a show of personal power. We are warned that those who dare to profess these gifts in unrighteousness will be finally rejected of God. Jesus tells us that some will say:

Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name? and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works?—Matthew 7: 22.

To those who thus seek to evade responsibility for their evil deeds will come the convicting sentence of Jesus: "Depart from me, ye that work iniquity." Therefore he who seeks the gifts of God for selfish ends must be banished from the divine presence. Likewise those who demanded a sign of Jesus were solemnly warned:

A wicked and adulterous generation seeketh after a sign; and there shall no sign be given unto it, but the sign of the prophet Jonas.—Matthew 16: 4.

Those who demand a sign to make them believe the gospel message are following poor examples. Satan demanded that Jesus prove himself by making bread of a stone. The same wicked spirit was manifested by the chief priests and scribes who demanded that Christ come down from the cross, and thus prove himself to be the Son of God. Such characters as these were not seeking the kingdom of God, for they were not willing to pay the price of its possession. They preferred to crucify Him who taught and lived the supreme ideals of life, and to set free a man who was guilty of murder and sedition.

The signs or gifts of the gospel are not promised to those who seek them in order to make them believe the truth. They are promised through faith, and not through skepticism and unbelief, and they are to be received in righteousness and humility of heart.

Miraculous Aspect of the Gifts

Today we are perhaps learning more rapidly than ever before that "all things are governed by law." It was once supposed, and perhaps a few still have the notion, that miracles were performed in opposition to all law. There is nothing to support this idea, for even the works of nature that are beyond our present understanding are governed by the laws of their being. Many of the laws of nature have now been discovered that were once unknown to us, and every manifestation of God in his universe which has become understood is found to be the result of some law. We shall doubtless be able sometime to discover many other laws of which we are as yet ignorant.

We have reason to believe that every miracle ever performed by God resulted from his use of laws now unknown to us, but which he may in due time reveal to our better understanding. For this reason we do not think of miracles as contrary to law, but rather as the result of higher laws than are at present known to man.

Had our experiences in the spiritual realm been as great and of as long duration as are those of the physical world, it seems possible that many things would now be much clearer to our comprehension. The marvels of steam, electricity, machinery, light, and many other forces which once were miracles of mystery, are fast becoming commonplace to us. Not even the greatest genius of science would dare to predict the possibilities of the next generation. God is revealing himself more and more in the works of nature—the workmanship of his hands. Surely we may have faith in his omnipotence in the spiritual realm as well as in the physical universe.

Just as our material blessings are to be received by observing the laws with which they are concerned, so are the spiritual gifts to be received by those who obey the gospel—the message of Christ. The very universe is a miracle; so are the myriad forms of life around us, as well as the heavenly bodies of our solar system, and all the starry host of heaven. We comprehend them but little if any more than the miracle of our own spiritual natures and the spiritual forces that constantly influence our lives. The time is past when the prudent man will say that what he does not fully understand he will not believe, for we all believe many things that we can not understand.

(To be continued.)

Our Christmas Gift to Christ in 1931

By C. B. Woodstock

The Christmas spirit is in the air. It is the spirit of love and good cheer, of peace and good will. It is the spirit of Jesus, the Master, who gave freely of his love and his service, and finally his life on the cross, for needy humanity.

Although all nations are suffering, and some people acutely, because of unemployment and the financial depression, the Saints generally have not suffered more than others. Under the gospel spirit and the stewardship plan of the church there is occasion to hope for better times. Even though available finances are reduced, individuals and families are learning to economize and to be grateful even for the limited means they have to provide for themselves and to assist in other good causes.

In former years we have grown into the habit of providing an expensive dinner on Christmas, and of sending gifts and remembrances to relatives and friends as an expression of our esteem and good will. In addition we have given somewhat generously to the Christmas offering and other benevolences.

Weekly Health Letter

Number Twenty

The Ear and Its Relation to Health and Disease.—3

By A. W. Teel, M. D., Church Physician

This year there is less to do with and greater economy must be exercised. The church especially is in dire need. Just how serious the situation is which confronts the church the Presiding Bishopric and other church officials have tried to make us realize. It is absolutely necessary that each shall contribute to the funds of the church as it may be possible at this time and in following months, if the financial standing of the church is to be maintained and the work of the Christ is to be carried on through its program. This calls at once for an immediate expression of "sacrificial economy" in the reduction of personal and family expenditures that there may be money in hand to make payment to the church in tithes and offerings as anticipated in the law.

The months of November and December have been designated as special sacrifice months, culminating at Thanksgiving and Christmas. To these sacrifice funds we wish to make a most substantial addition this year in the annual Christmas offering. This offering has been gathered in all the year and with special stress at this time and under this need may carry the total Christmas offering for 1931 to $75,000.

Let us make our Christmas gift this year to Christ. We can afford to omit other gifts, on this occasion, and let our sacrifice and our gift measure our true devotion to Christ and his Cause represented in the church. God will recognize our gift and bless our effort, whether the amount be great or small. He sees the heart and understands the motive which prompts the giving. But an offering this year which does not come from personal self-denial is hardly in keeping with the demands of the hour.

Let us study to make our gift acceptable. What can we omit from our meals without reducing our physical energy? What pleasures or luxuries may we do without? Can we make our present clothing do for the winter and save the purchase price of new clothes? Let us this year omit the usual exchange of personal gifts and post cards and make an offering to Christ that will be acceptable to him in spirit, and sufficient in amount to help largely in meeting the imperative needs of the church.

Let us make our Christmas gift to Christ as a special Christmas offering!

Truth

If fortifies my soul to know
That, though I perish, Truth is so:
That, howsoever I stray and range,
What'er I do, Thou dost not change.
I steadier step when I recall
That, if I slip, Thou dost not fall.

—Arthur Hugh Clough.

Located back of the middle ear is that part of the temporal bone known as the mastoid. It is honey-combed, with cellular structure, and is noticeable as a bony prominence just behind the external ear, or auricle. These cells are very much like the sinuses communicating with the nose, but the difference is that they drain into the middle ear cavity instead of the nose. When an infection, in some manner, reaches the middle ear, arising from bad colds or influenza, it may extend back into these cells, causing them to decay. When the cells become inflamed from such a condition, it may find its way from the mastoid to the brain, which is very dangerous, or cause a brain abscess or meningitis, which is usually fatal.

Great damage may be brought about by slapping a person upon the ear, thus causing a compression of ear between the hand and eardrum, which in many cases, literally tears the membrane asunder.

I have known great harm to be done in play by one individual striking another with a book or magazine, over the ear, causing a rupture of the eardrum. A rupture of the eardrum may be produced by a loud explosion, such as a report of a gun, near the ear. The old adage, "Pick your ear with your elbow," is good advice, as frequently irreparable damage is done to the drum of the ear by the head of a pin, coming in contact with it, or some like instrument being used to remove the imaginary cerumen (earwax) from the external ear, which, if infection should be produced, is quite likely to extend to the various structures.

Since the advent of the automobile there has been an increased number of skull-fractures, with the result of many irreparable damages to the hearing mechanism, which may occur in one or both ears. If the membrane becomes inflamed, it is called myringitis, often brought about by a cold draft or wind concentrated on one side of the head, or by sitting in a draft. The symptoms of this are ear-ache and head noises. When one is susceptible to a condition of this kind, he should, when going out in a draft or wind, place a piece of cotton in the ear, which may help prevent a condition of this kind. However, it is not wise to indulge in putting the cotton in the ear for a very long time.

The most common ailment of the middle ear infection is a condition known as acute otitis media.

As has already been indicated in a former article, there are two ways by which bacteria may enter the middle ear. They may come up through from the throat by way of the Eustachian canal, or may enter through a perforation of the ear drum. This infection almost invariably comes from the nose and the throat and is often brought about by the improper blowing of the nose. Adenoids and diseased tonsils in children are other causes. Some of the diseases of childhood have their origin in the nose and throat, such as measles, which is characterized by an acute coryza, sore throat, and running at the nose, with the infection finally finding lodgment in the middle ear. Special care should be taken to protect the ear in such cases. Measles and scarlet fever are two of the worst offending diseases, in this regard, and were believed by the old-time physicians to be practically incurable. The teeth, in some instances, are the beginning of an irritation in the throat, and may cause trouble of this kind. For this reason, adenoids in children, especially when they interfere with the function of the Eustachian tube, should be removed. Acute middle-ear infection always causes some loss of hearing, fever, ear-ache, and possible deafness.

Our Priesthood Responsibility

By John R. Grice

PART THREE

Priesthood is the "oath and covenant of my Father, which he can not break, neither can it be moved." (Doctrine and Covenants 83: 6.)

Man himself is the only one who can "break" it.

But whoso breaketh this covenant, after he hath received it, and altogether turneth therefrom, shall not have forgiveness of sins in this world nor in the world to come.—Ibid.

What a wonderful responsibility is placed upon human beings! Surely there is a need for faith and trust upon the part of those called to occupy such a "high and holy calling."

Again, the Lord says to us:

For whoso is faithful unto the obtaining of these two priesthoods of which I have spoken, and the magnifying their calling, are sanctified by the Spirit unto the renewing of their bodies: They become the sons of Moses and of Aaron, and the seed of Abraham, and the church and kingdom and the elect of God.

Among those who have been called of God to hold such a sacred and heavenly responsibility, I wonder how many really stop to consider the position they occupy. Surely, if more thought were given there would not be so many men who are faithless and who are failing to be active in the Lord's work!

Men of the priesthood are charged with the responsibility of "teaching the principles of the gospel as found in the Bible and Book of Mormon, in which is the fullness of the gospel." (Doctrine and Covenants 42: 5.)

Furthermore:

And they shall observe the covenants and church articles to do them, and these shall be their teachings, as they shall be directed by the Spirit.—Ibid.

The "Don't do as I do, but do as I say" philosophy will hardly do for those whom God has called into his service, for those who are intrusted with the responsibility of teaching the children of men.

We are further cautioned in this matter:

And the Spirit shall be given unto you by the prayer of faith, and if ye receive not the Spirit ye shall not teach.—Ibid.

To be a possessor of the Spirit of God one must pray with "the prayer of faith." As God's Spirit is not able to dwell in unholy, or unclean temples, what a great need there is for living clean lives so that the law might be lived as well as taught to others. It is not only our responsibility to live the law and to teach it, but also to "see that my law is kept." (Doctrine and Covenants 41: 2.)

It is the primary right of the members of the priesthood to be teachers of men, and in this capacity it is expected that they shall excel. God sends his servants out "Not to be taught, but to teach." He sees in those whom he calls this inherent capacity. The tragedy of it all is that men should accept ordination and then fail to function and to develop the talents God has given them. The injunction to us is:

Wherefore, now let every man learn his duty, and to act in the office in which he is appointed, in all diligence. He that is slothful shall not be counted worthy to stand, and he that learns not his duty and shows himself not approved, shall not be counted worthy to stand. Even so. Amen.—Doctrine and Covenants 104: 44.

Priesthood is not a badge of honor, alone, but it is a responsibility to be discharged. The man who is called to occupy and accepts his ordination makes himself responsible for the souls of men. He must not only teach men the way they should go, but he is under the necessity of going that way himself.

Men of the priesthood must "show themselves approved" both by study and by their deportment, giving attention constantly to their equipment so that they may lack nothing. The revelations of God to us in these last days admonishes us:

Study and learn, and become acquainted with all good books, and with languages, tongues, and people.—Doctrine and Covenants 87: 5.

Most certainly the God of this latter day gospel would direct men to become acquainted with their mother tongue before any other. It is certainly not a crime to study and to try to use good English when one appears on the public platform as a representative of the church and kingdom of God. This is as much a needed qualification as any other one thing. Most certainly, if we should point men to the progressive road to Christ, we are under the necessity of showing progression ourselves. The development of Christlike attributes in us is our greatest evidence of progression. One who is willing to go wherever Christ would lead must have a forward-looking faith and show continuity in all his efforts. Wherever there is life there growth is to be found. Where growth is, there progression is evidenced. To give all that God and Christ demands of us requires that we "grow in grace and in the further knowledge of the truth." This will require both faith and works on our part.

To give—one must have! To reach men of high resolve we are under the necessity of developing high resolve within ourselves. To have a growing membership, growing in things spiritual, we, who composed the ranks of the priesthood, must be found growing ourselves.

It is said that "spirituality effects the moral qualification of the soul." Spirituality always shows itself in the labors of the individual and finds a response in those with whom he is privileged to work.

Spirituality is determined largely by our own concept. Those who believe tears to be an evidence of spirituality readily accept all those who are very emotional and who can cry easily as occupying a high spiritual plane. The lack of tears becomes to them an outstanding evidence of the lack of spirituality.

There are those who determine a man's spirituality by the evidence of his spiritual gifts as offered in ocular demonstration, forgetting that there is always the possibility of evidencing such things without their being spiritual, if the one thus evidencing fails to have a knowledge of spiritual values. Then the gift becomes a man-made thing rather than a thing of quality. Not the number of gifts, but the quality of them determines their value. The higher the quality, the higher the intellectual development. Bear in mind, it is possible for a man to be very spiritual and yet not have the gifts of the Spirit in ocular or outward demonstration.

The goal of the priesthood is one of development. We must develop ourselves to a state of perfection, mentally and bodily and spiritually, in order that we may be able to lead the membership under our charge to a high plane of development. Today is a day of experts and every man should be expert in his line. Again, the Book of Doctrine and Covenants says:

Let every man stand in his own office and labor in his own calling.—Doctrine and Covenants 83: 21.

The life of the individual is reflected in his labors, in his every day conversation: therefore, if we would have ability to reflect Christ in our teachings it is essential that we have him in our lives. We can not effectively teach men the way they should go unless we are willing to go that way ourselves.

The dye, or coloring of the individual's religion, is sure to manifest itself in the lives of his converts. How necessary, then, that it be a one hundred per cent process in the life of the one who would teach mankind.

Our aim can not be set too high! A perfect priesthood is bound to bring the same qualifications to the membership under their jurisdiction.

Does perfection mean an impossibility to sin or do wrong? We think not! It is rather a willingness to do right; to repair all possible wrongs, or mistakes, and to live as well as teach the law of God.

Men of the priesthood! We are challenged today as never before! Ahead of us, not so very far in the future, is Zion with all its wonderful possibilities. It is your privilege and mine, dear brother, to make possible the alleviation of the suffering of humanity and to furnish a place of refuge for the honest in heart who desire to escape from a world of sin and iniquity, and enter a place of peace. Why tarry, when today is the day of salvation—a day when priesthood responsibility is more obvious and our responsibility greater than at any other time in the history of the world.

Mercy and Not Sacrifice

By C. L. Attebery

Sacrifice week is over—but the day of sacrifice is still with us. This calls to my mind a passage of scripture which I have often studied. Jesus, rebuking the Pharisees, tells them, "But go ye, and learn what that meaneth, I will have mercy and not sacrifice; for I am not come to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance." (Read Matthew 9: 13.)

The first time I read that passage I could make nothing of it, but as I have studied more, the meaning becomes plainer. I find that many times, in the Old Testament, the Lord rebuked his people because they had heaped offerings upon His altars, but had forgotten mercy and justice. They had kept the letter of the law, but not the spirit. They had been scrupulous in the paying of tithes, offerings, and sacrifices, perhaps, but from where had their treasures come? From the oppression of the poor and the robbing of the weak and helpless. Then, as now, there were those who heaped up riches to themselves, and called themselves righteous. They came to the temple in pomp and glory, and gave their glittering gifts amid the blowing of trumpets, but all this for their own glory, and not for the glory of God. Where did their magnificence come from? Certainly not from the labor of their own hands.

Have the people of latter days given sacrifice but withheld mercy? There are far too many who have not sacrificed. And of those who give in the name of sacrifice, how many have given for the glory of this world? Yet before all men stands the Christ who taught by his life the lesson of true mercy and sacrifice. Indeed, it is good for us that we should sacrifice, but it is even better that we should have mercy.

If there be those among us who have plenty and to spare, let them be merciful to those who have not. Let us not be like the Pharisees of old. Let us have mercy with our goods, but even more, let us have mercy with our thoughts and our tongues. There is evil enough in the world—must it be in the church also? There is malice and back-biting in the world—are we no different? The world has little mercy on the unfortunate—the church should not be found wanting.

But what is mercy? Webster says it is clemency, forbearance, compassion, beneficence. When we go to make our sacrifices to the Lord, ought we not ask ourselves, "Have I had mercy?" This people ought to be the light of the world—are we? Will this church ever sink to the level of other churches, and become merely one more among a multitude of churches? We have the promise that the church will not, but we might. In the parable of the ten virgins we are warned concerning the state of the church in the last days. In which class shall we find ourselves when the bridegroom comes? Will there be any among us to whom it must again be said, "I will have mercy and not sacrifice"? By all means let us sacrifice, but remember also to have mercy.

Are You Carrying Your Cross?

By Poul S. Nielsen

It is recorded in Luke 23:26 that when the soldiers were leading our Lord away to be crucified and when he was drooping under the burden of the heavy cross, the soldiers compelled a certain man by name Simon, a Cyrenian, to carry his cross. Without a doubt a great mob was following this procession on its way to Golgotha, and perhaps many of them were in the crowd that had cheered Jesus when he went into Jerusalem triumphant as a leader. For so fickle are mortal men that they can always change very easily. This man Simon might have been one of the followers of Jesus who perhaps was going along to see whether he would at the last moment show his power. We do not know and it really does not matter. In the tenth chapter of Matthew it is recorded that Jesus said among other things that if a person would not take up his cross and follow after him, he was not worthy of him. How many of the present generation in the churches and outside are there that are willing to take up a cross or burden of some kind to promote his kingdom on this earth?

True enough, we all imagine that we are doing all we can for our Lord but are we really doing any more than just a little to ease our conscience? Many a time we can hear people say that if Christ were alive today they would be willing to do anything for him. Why not try and do as he said, to take up the cross and follow after him? What's the use of speculating on what a person would do if He were here? We do not live in the past but in the present. Tomorrow is in darkness, but if we do not use today profitably we can not do it in the future any more than we can live in the past. The soldiers of ancient Rome had a very easy time of it in placing the cross of a condemned man on some one else, but are we not doing it now, thoughtlessly or perhaps with full knowledge? Many a time when we unjustly condemn some one for the condition of our church affairs in our branches, and perhaps also when we think that those higher up have blundered, it is hard to recall a word unfitly spoken; for "what two know, all the world knows," is an old saying. But we ought to be careful not to hurt some one's feelings by placing a cross, rightfully or not, on his shoulder. The day might come when we shall be required to carry a cross likewise.

The world is at present going through troublous times and we do not know whether there will be worse yet to come. In our church as well as in all others the present economic crisis is felt and no one ought to be so thoughtless as to put a cross on any one of our leading men. If they have failed, are they not human? Let those who are placing crosses on their shoulders ask themselves if they would have done any better.

It is easy to put a cross on our leaders but do you not think it is hard to carry it? They are carrying their cross in the heat of the day and the Savior will not forget them when the evening breezes will blow. Something peculiar about this business of blaming something on some one else is that it is nearly always some one who is not a very active worker who is doing the blaming. If they would go to work in earnest they would feel better themselves and not have any crosses to unload on their fellow member. There are two kinds of members in any organization, and our church is like all the rest in that particular thing. First, we have the active members and then those who are passive. There are really no middle men in this church business. Either you are a worker or you are not. Most of us, perhaps all of us, could do a little more for our cause than we have done in the past and since the church needs support now in order to carry out its responsibility, it might be well to think if we can not help in carrying part of the cross that some one else is carrying. It might be quite a task for many to humble themselves and go to work, but what of it?

Was it not David that said that he would rather be a doorkeeper in the house of God than dwell in the tents of wickedness? And what of it? It is service that God wants. It is not so much a question of how much, but how willing.

Paul writes in the letter to the Hebrew saints that Jesus Christ was the same yesterday, today, and for ever, and we can all agree that if Paul wrote it, it is so. Now if Christ is the same in all times his sayings must also stand and therefore we must try to carry our cross whatsoever it may be with a humble heart, trying not to blame some one else for things that do not suit us. In the same chapter (13) of Hebrews Paul also says, "Remember them that are in bonds as bound with them; and them that suffer adversity, as being yourselves also in the body." In reading this scripture we can not help thinking that if anything is wrong with our members or with the church as a whole we must feel for them as if we were one of them. If our church suffers, we must if we are true Latter Day Saints, suffer with it. And what do we do if we ourselves are suffering? Why, anyone will try to alleviate that which is hurting. Why not let us try to do towards our church as we wish to be treated ourselves? Now, as never before, we ought to heed the admonition given in the same chapter, the very first verse: "Let brotherly love continue."

It is not how far you travel, but what you are going for, that counts. It is not necessarily an evidence of hard work, nor a sign of real thought, that you keep the wheels spinning. When you do not know what to do, try this: Stay at home!

True Beauty

Beautiful hands are those that do
Work that is earnest and brave and true
Moment by moment the long day through.
Beautiful feet are those that go
On kindest ministries to and fro,
Down lowliest way, if God wills it so.
Beautiful shoulders are those that bear
Ceaseless burdens of homely care,
With patient grace and daily prayer.
Beautiful lives are those that bless—
Silent rivers of happiness,
Whose hidden fountains but few may guess.

—Selected.

OF GENERAL INTEREST

"Rise and Walk"

From the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Writing in the London Efficiency Magazine, Mr. Herbert N. Casson, well known in the United States through his contributions to the Public Ledger and other journals, give the following good advice to Americans in an article entitled "Rise and Walk."

You are depressed. You think you are crippled. You are afraid of the future. You are full of tears.

You have half of the gold of the world and half the machinery and most of the automobiles and all of the skyscrapers.

You have the greatest home market in the world and the largest corporations the world has ever seen.

You are ruled more by ideas and less by tradition than any other people in the world. You have usually done what you thought you could do.

How can it be possible that a progressive nation of 120,000,000 people can be wrecked by the speculations of a little handful of fools in Wall Street?

The prices that were forced too high had to come down. Today all the prices are too low.

Dollars are now selling for thirty cents. Virtually every security in the United States is now being sold for less than its value.

There is now a golden opportunity for every man who has eyes to see.

The way to create a fortune is to buy from pessimists. Pay your money and take the risk.

Frick started his career by buying coke ovens in the slump of 1873. Carnegie made $300,000,000 by buying steel plants in slumps.

Hundreds of fortunes have been made by buying from pessimists. Ye gods! What a chance there is at this moment!

In five years from now most American business men will belong to the "I-wish-I-had-Club."

Then it will be too late to buy dollars for thirty cents. The opportunities will be gone.

When a horse balks the balk is in his head, not in his legs. He moves on when he thinks he will.

And when an American business man is depressed the slump is in his head. There is nothing serious to prevent him from making money if he thinks he will.

When fear rules the will nothing can be done. But when a man casts fear from his mind, the world becomes his oyster.

To lose a bit of money is nothing, but to lose hope—or lose nerve and ambition—that is what makes men cripples.

This silly depression has gone on long enough. Ged rid of it. It is inside of you. Rise and walk!

Many Americans a little more than two years ago labored under the delusion that the prosperity boom would last forever. Many are now laboring under a delusion that the prevailing depression is permanent in its nature. They were wrong on both counts. It is about time that they should awaken to the fact.

Architecture is a handmaid of devotion. A beautiful church is a sermon in stone, and its spire a finger pointing to heaven.—Schaff.

NEWS OF CHURCH AND HOME

Address all news and letters to Editors of the Herald, Box 237, Independence, Missouri. Correspondents are requested to make their letters brief. The Editors reserve the right, on account of space limitations, to shorten all letters as circumstances require.

Chicago, Illinois

Central Branch, Sixty-six and Honore Streets

On November 6 district conference convened, and a splendid time was enjoyed from start to finish. We had lovely weather during the three-day session. Apostle Paul M. Hanson was with us, having been recently appointed to this district when Brother Edwards was transferred to the Pacific coast. All enjoyed the Sunday afternoon sacrament service. Brother Hanson gave much encouragement to the Saints.

We are sad to hear of the need of releasing any of the missionary force, and we hope this season of depression will soon be over. To that end let us pray and be up and doing that God's work may move on.

During the weeks that have passed since our last letter to the Herald, many changes have taken place. Some of our number have been called to the other shore, leaving sorrow and heartaches behind. Sister Ollie Sherman Evans and Sister Mary Keir are gone on. These two dear ones suffered greatly at times, and at other times God heard and answered the many prayers that were offered for them.

Sister Philemon Pement is still very ill, but God has eased her pain and we are thankful for his mercy and blessings.

Some of our young couples have been united in marriage. Brother Wallace Eskridge performed the ceremony uniting Brother Steve Lester, jr., and Sister Edna Cotton, of West Pullman. They reside in West Pullman.

Brother Orvil Evans and Miss A. Orth were married Thanksgiving morning by Brother H. P. W. Keir. These young people were baptized on Wednesday before their wedding by Brother Clem Evans, brother of the bridegroom.

During the past months Brothers Keir, Oliver, Lowe, Schmid, Hurst, Lester, Bell, Evans, Eskridge, Almond, together with visiting speakers, Brothers Garver, Edwards, Gresty, Hanson, Dowker, Edstrom and Brother Davey, have dispensed the word of life to us, giving us encouragement and strength. And now, may we have the will to do the things that have been outlined.

Sacrament services have been times of rejoicing under the quiet gentle spirit that filled the place, bringing us just a little closer to our Maker. If we could but keep that contact with us continually, we would not be tempted to do the worldly things which surround us. Our Savior prayed that we be kept from the world, not taken out of it.

The musical work under Brother Arthur Sherman has taken on new life and is a great help and inspiration to the several services. This part of the church work may indeed be a help, if those taking part are consecrated and give their time and talents with an eye single to the glory of God.

Sister Pearl Schmid is leading the women's department class in Bible study on Thursday afternoons.

The young folks have had two social evenings of late which were enjoyed by all. These are held at the church on Tuesday evenings. A program, games, and refreshments compose the order of the evening.

Recent visitors have been Brother and Sister Grant and Sister Hattie Morrison, of Detroit. Brother David Dowker came with them. Brother Shedd worshiped with us recently, also Sister Charles Yates, of Shawnee, Oklahoma, has been visiting her daughters, Sisters Marie and Grace Keir.

The Saints met on Thanksgiving morning for a prayer service. A good number availed themselves of the chance to thank and praise their heavenly Father for the blessings of the past year. A profitable time was spent. Hymns were sung and prayers and testimonies given. We feel that in spite of the surrounding conditions, we as Saints have been cared for as far as the necessities of life are concerned. Very few of our men are out of work. We, of all people, have reason to be most thankful because God has so many times revealed to us through admonition and instruction just how we may live so that we may keep our bodies fit places for the indwelling of his Holy Spirit. What is the use of his revealing his will to us if we do not give heed to that which he has already given us? Will the Savior have reason to say to us what he said as he looked down on Jerusalem, "How oft would I have gathered you, but ye would not?"

Columbus, Ohio

Second Branch, Rinehard and Twenty-second Streets

One month of sacrifice, set aside by the general church, is gone, and the other is passing. We have heard much of depression and hardships and trials, but with the approach of the Christmas season, I think it would be well if every Saint turned again to his New Testament and there read the beautiful story of the birth and life of Christ. It will give us courage and understanding.

Sacrament meeting in Second Branch for the month of November will be long remembered. The Spirit of a merciful Father was present, blessing the Saints with thoughts of joy and thanksgiving.

Margarette Sensabaugh was baptized the evening of Wednesday, November 11, by R. E. Madden and confirmed by Brothers Madden and J. E. Matthews.

Always active the women's department met November 12, with twenty-one members and four visitors present. A short paper on the life of Oliver Wendell Holmes and his poems, "The Boys," were read by Mayme Morgan. All members participated in the "variety" program.

Second Branch closed its doors November 22, that its members might join those of First Branch in hearing President F. M. Smith, whose sermon was inspiring. With the other branches of this district we pledge, "We will go forward."

Sermons of the past month were given by A. E. Anderton, Edgar R. Kimball, G. H. Kirkendall, R. E. Madden, J. E. Matthews, Chester Carey, and C. W. Clark.

Thayer, Missouri

November 29.—Thayer Saints are doing remarkably well in the drive for funds. Though the branch is small and has its own burdens, we are going forward with our support. Our sacrifice for the past month has been very satisfactory when the depression and other things which have made the undertaking difficult, are considered. We are doing our utmost to carry out the great responsibility resting upon us. This is God's work, and God's commands have been heard. We are willing to obey the Master.

Weather conditions today were very unfavorable but in spite of that, services were held as usual.

The help of Brother Ward, who recently came into this vicinity, is highly appreciated. For a number of years Brother Ward has been a Latter Day Saint and is a true follower of the gospel. Today he came a distance of almost two miles on foot in the rain and cold, and delivered a message to those assembled that every Saint who heard will remember. If we serve the Lord, life holds much joy for us. Let all of us try to be like this brother.

Independence

The total school enrollment in Independence for the school period ending in November was 4,602. Of this number 2,606 were counted in the grade schools, 1,122 at Junior High School, and 874 at William Christman High School.

Monday night opened the season's activities of the Inter-City Latter Day Saint Basketball League. Three games were played in the Benton School gymnasium, Thirtieth and Benton Boulevard, Kansas City. Central Church won over Walnut Park team; Chelsea over Gladstone, and Liberty Street over the Criterion Class of the Stone Church. Next week's games will be played at Woodland School, Eighth and Woodland, Kansas City, Missouri.

Christmas plans this year in Independence are being carried out by a people whose thoughts center about sacrifice. The priesthood are visiting the homes of the members and leaving sacrifice envelopes, to be collected during the holidays. In church school sessions, prayer services, and meetings of clubs and social groups much is heard of ways in which the Saints can sacrifice. This year the people have a desire to give to and help the church rather than give gifts to each other.

Stone Church

"We, if we truly love, will be found sharing to the limit in the cause that we say we love," declared President F. M. McDowell in his talk at the Sunday morning service of sacrament. "God identified himself with the cause of humanity—he so loved that he gave. Jesus said: 'As the Father hath loved me, so have I loved you.' Now is the time when we must take up our cross and become participants in the work of Christ." Here are the Savior's words: "If any man would come after me, let him take up his cross and follow me." Now is the time to come out of the ranks of the passive watchers and witnesses and become doers in the cause of righteousness.

Always on the first Sunday of the month the Stone Church main auditorium and gallery are crowded for the sacrament service, and last Sunday was no exception. In the gallery people were seated on the steps and floor. And everyone entered reverently into the service. The singing of familiar hymns, soft organ music, and a fine oblation talk by Elder Stanley Kelley helped to create an appropriate setting for this service commemorating the Last Supper Jesus ate with his disciples.

In the stand and assisting in the meeting were President F. M. Smith, President F. M. McDowell, Pastor John F. Sheehy, Elders C. Ed. Miller, R. T. Cooper, G. G. Lewis, Stanley Kelley, G. W. Eastwood, and T. A. Beck.

Following the reading of the scriptures and the period of meditation at the close of the serving of the emblems, President Smith voiced a special prayer for the church in this time of sacrifice.

The sacrament this month was enhanced by two gifts to the Stone Church congregation, a beautiful table made by Elder W. C. Smith, and a gift of linen from a sister who requested that her name be withheld. The table was constructed of materials presented by the Independence Sanitarium and was made by machinery in the Resch Brothers' Planing Mill.

A large crowd was attracted to the church by the announcement in the Bulletin of Independence Churches that Elder C. Ed. Miller would, in the evening, give an illustrated lecture on "The Resurrected Christ in Pre-Columbian America." His lecture proved instructive and interesting.

This being sacrament Sunday night, the Stone Church Choir, directed by Paul N. Craig, sang two anthems. Pastor J. F. Sheehy was in charge, assisted by Elder R. V. Hopkins.

The marriage of Miss Blanche Bernice Wright, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Byron L. Wright, of Mount Washington, and Alfred Terryberry, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Terryberry, of Independence, took place at four o'clock the afternoon of December 5, at the home of the bride's parents. The ceremony was said by Elder C. Ed. Miller in the presence of the immediate families and a few friends. The bridal pair were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Wilber Trowbridge. Mrs. Trowbridge is the bride's sister. Mr. and Mrs. Terryberry will be at home at 554 Oxford Avenue, Mount Washington.

Sister Mary A. Smith, wife of Presiding Patriarch Fredrick A. Smith, passed away at her home in Independence the evening of December 3. The funeral at the Stone Church on Sunday afternoon was attended by a host of friends. Apostle U. W. Greene preached the sermon and Elder John F. Sheehy was in charge. Interment was in Lamoni, Iowa, Rose Hill Cemetery, the funeral party leaving for that city Monday morning.

Mrs. Smith was born as Mary A. Walker in Denver, Colorado, sixty-four years ago. She was baptized a member of the church March 29, 1885, and has been an active and earnest Saint and missionary's wife. There survive to mourn her husband, four daughters: Mrs. Gladys I. Trumble, 1008 Troost Avenue, Mrs. Joy M. McCullough, 1902 Norton Avenue, Mrs. Winsome L. McDonald, 1903 Norton Avenue, and Miss Freda S. Smith of the home; three sons: Glaude L. Smith, Eastwood Hills, Doctor Fred A. Smith, Akron, Ohio, and Harold L. Smith, Jacksonville, Florida; five sisters: Mrs. Lucy Amish, Iowa City, Iowa; Mrs. Mabel Green, Spokane, Washington; Mrs. Jessie Wedge, Pawhuska, Oklahoma; Mrs. Clara Williams, North English, Iowa, and Mrs. Lizzie Falls, of Tiffin, Iowa; one brother, Orville Walker, Tiffin, Iowa, and eleven grandchildren.

Walnut Park Church

Pastor Samuel C. Smith was the speaker at the morning service Sunday, November 29. He commended the members for the amount of sacrifice offering received at the Thanksgiving service.

At 7.15 p. m., following the study period, the first of the series of historical "Conversations," written by President Elbert A. Smith and published in last year's Vision, was presented under the direction of Sister Florence Moore. The interpretation of the play by the cast of characters proved most interesting to a large crowd of Saints, and linked itself well with the sermon by Elder C. I. Carpenter which followed.

At the business meeting of the congregation, December 3, Elder Samuel C. Smith was again chosen as pastor.

President F. M. McDowell was present at the eight o'clock morning prayer service December 6. A number of good testimonies centered around the theme suggested by him, "Light Shineth from Out the Darkness." This he applied to our lives within the church and our association with the world.

The sacrament service was in charge of Pastor S. C. Smith and his associates. Attendance was large, the church being filled to capacity. Jennie Lee Butler, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Butler, was blessed at the opening of the hour by Elders John Taylor and George Bullard.

"Joseph Meets a Minister," was the name of the historical drama presented at last Sunday evening's service. This was followed by a good sermon by Elder Calvin H. Rich on the text, "Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make his paths straight." Sister Florence Moore has charge of the dramatization of the historical plays "Conversations." The congregation is appreciating them.

Our aged brother, Lurett Whiting, is quite ill at his home on South Pearl Street. Until recently he has been an active participant in many of the church activities.

Walnut Park people are proud of one of their talented girls, Delta Maurine Nace, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orlando Nace, who appeared in a recital at the Stone Church Sunday afternoon at four o'clock. Delta, who is a pupil of Paul N. Craig, was accompanied in her recital by Ewart Ragan and assisted by Mrs. Hazel Scott Withee, organist, and Blaine Bender, reader. She sang "When Chloris Sleeps," Samuels; "The Lamplighter," Manning; "The Bell Song," (Lakme) Delibes; "Hymn to the Sun," Rimsky-Korsakoff; "The Builder," Cadman; "Rain," Curran; "Love Everlasting," Friml, and "Will o' the Wisp," Spross. A large crowd heard her. Delta's friends appreciate her talents and helpfulness, her humility and modesty.

About forty young people of the A. W. Z. Class of the Sunday school enjoyed an evening's social gathering, December 4, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Campbell, where Miss Mabel Campbell and Mrs. Violet Chase were hostesses. Ethel Schwab, teacher of the class, spoke briefly concerning plans for a membership campaign, to create greater interest in the class.

Enoch Hill Church

There was a large attendance at the eleven o'clock sacrament service Sunday morning. Elder H. G. Barto gave an instructive talk to the Saints while the emblems were being prepared. A pleasing part of the service was the blessing of three babies. After the hymn, "Let the Children Come," the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ballinger was blessed by his great-grandfather, Patriarch Richard Bullard, and grandfather, Elder Charles S. Warren; Marilyn Jeannette, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Riddle, was blessed by Elder Herbert L. Barto and Elder Robert Whitsitt, and Gerald Keith, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Cox, was blessed by Elder C. E. Beal and Elder Petre.

The four-minute speaker at the church school service was Brother Cecil Walker, of Liberty Street congregation. "Right Choices" was his topic. The theme of the church school service, under the direction of E. H. McKean, was "What Gifts?"

Elder Robert Whitsitt, the evening speaker, took his text from James 1: 25: "But whoso looketh into the perfect law of liberty, and continueth therein, he being not a forgetful hearer, but a doer of the work, this man shall be blessed in his deed." "Hymns the Old Choir Sang" was the musical number.

Shenandoah, Iowa

At the sacrament service, October 4, we enjoyed a wonderful meeting. The Holy Spirit was present to a great degree all during the meeting. God saw fit to speak to us, and admonished us to live very close to him, that we would be strong enough to withstand the trials and temptations which we were sure to encounter from time to time. He also told us he was pleased with our efforts and with that which we had accomplished so far this year, but that we were not yet as near to him as we should be. Many blessings were promised us if we would do our part to improve ourselves.

Brother Ray Whiting was in Shenandoah a week, beginning October 12, giving us some excellent sermons. Attendance was good during the entire week, especially on Thursday night which was young people's night. It was an inspiration to see the fine group of young people. Brother Whiting's subject for that night was "Deep Calleth Unto Deep, Shallow Unto Shallow."

On the Sunday closing his services we had an all-day meeting with dinner in the lower auditorium. In the afternoon two children and one adult were baptized, Bonny Jean Schneider, Cecil Omans, and Mrs. Martha Cummings. Everyone felt the week had been well spent and much good had been accomplished.

October 25 was district young people's day at Council Bluffs. About twenty Shenandoah young people attended and reported a splendid day.

There is a small group of Saints at Red Oak, Iowa. They are members of this branch, and entertained Shenandoah Saints at a Halloween party the evening of October 29. Each one felt it was a pleasant and profitable evening as all felt better acquainted, and we believe that we shall be able to work together more effectively.

During the month of November we have been fortunate in having with us speakers from other parts of the district. On the 15th Brother Conrad Booton, of Council Bluffs, gave an illustrated lecture on the Book of Mormon and proof of its divinity. Brother W. H. Adams, district bishop, was speaker morning and evening on the 22d. Last Sunday, the 29th, Brother P. H. Larsen, of Council Bluffs, district director of Religious Education, was with us both services. We were glad to have these speakers with us.

December will be a busy month with our singers rehearsing for a Christmas cantata, the children working on a play, business meeting, pie social by our young people, also a bake sale by the women. We are happy when we are busy.

Buchanan, Michigan

This branch is steadily gaining in number and spirituality. Brother Mark Gross and family moved here September 19, and we rejoiced to have this estimable family with us, and hope they have come to stay.

Thanksgiving morning the Saints met at nine o'clock for prayer service in which many testimonies were offered and a few prayers. Frank Anderson, a young brother, was spoken to by the Spirit and admonished to prepare himself for greater service in the church. The brother through whom the message was given said that he saw Brother Frank ordaining into the church. It was a wonderful experience.

Between Brother Gross, Brother McKnight and our young brother, George Seymour, recently ordained to the priesthood, we have preaching every Sunday evening and usually at eleven o'clock following the Sunday school.

A short program on Thanksgiving evening was most appropriate. A song by little Gomer Dale Gross, five years old, was commendable. All the children did remarkably well and were eagerly awaiting their turn to take part in the exercises.

Another in this branch who deserves commendation is a young brother, Steven Martin, recently ordained a deacon. He meets each one at the door, seats the visitor quietly and supplies a hymnbook.

The recreation and expression meeting is steadily gaining in number, also our Sunday evening service. We are thankful.

Apostle D. T. Williams will meet here December 2, to deliver the second of his series of monthly meetings. We very much enjoy these and hope that Brother Williams accomplishes much good wherever he goes.

Saints of Buchanan ask the prayers of the church that we may always be on the watchtower doing our duty.

Akron, Ohio

Annual home-coming and rally day were held Sunday, November 22, and a nice gathering of people was present to enjoy the services. Elder James E. Bishop spoke in the morning at ten thirty, and Elder John McCoy in the evening.

Brother McCoy is giving a series of gospel sermons. He has been speaking the last five weeks on Sunday evenings. Crowds have not been large, but a few nonmembers have heard him almost every evening and some are much interested in the plan of salvation.

Elder John L. Cooper, of Kirtland, is to speak here Sunday, November 29, in the morning and Brother Bishop in the evening.

Our prayer meetings on Wednesday evenings are enjoyed by the few who attend. We regret that more of the Saints do not come to these services in which they are privileged to enjoy the Spirit of the Master. They apparently do not realize what they are missing by staying away.

We ask the prayers of the Saints in behalf of Sister Ethel Sprigle who is young in years but ill so that she can not attend church. She was a regular attendant until illness confined her to her home.

Lincoln, Nebraska

26th and H Streets

During the summer there were added to Lincoln Branch by baptism, Mrs. E. E. Stake, Richard Stake, Roxie Fletcher, and Mrs. Bailey, wife of Brother Henry Bailey. These people have been affiliated with the church here for a number of years, and we are glad they decided to add their names to the branch record.

Interest was good during the summer months. The members of the priesthood have been active, and the church school, under the direction of Brother Poague, has grown. The "Cross Country Bus Race" and a "Baseball Contest" helped to stir up the enthusiasm of all the members, the attendance nearing the one hundred mark most of the time. In the bus race "the Gleaners," the young adults, with Francis Schrunk, teacher, won the banner, and in the baseball contest, "Saint Louis," the older adults, with Sister Anderson as their teacher, won. But all the classes worked hard and deserve credit for their splendid work. Lincoln Branch has also been over the top in Christmas offering for some time.

We were sorry Brother Shakespeare could not remain with us, but feel sure that wherever he is, he will carry on to the best of his ability.

Among the visitors in the past few months were Sister Brown, of Lees Summit, Missouri, Brother Marvin K. Fry and family, and George Fowler and family, of Fremont, Nebraska. Brother Fry filled the pulpit during the morning service the day of their visit. His spirit of loyalty to the cause we all love, is to be commended. Brother Howard Elliot, of Saint Louis, also worshiped with us on a Sunday, preaching an inspiring sermon. Sister Marcella Schenck, of Lamoni, attended summer school in Lincoln, and favored us with a talk at the Sunday school hour on the day of her visit to the church.

W. D. Tordoff and Henry Rush, of Kansas City, were here on Rally Day. Brother Tordoff favored us with a splendid solo at the evening service, and again on the following Sunday, Graceland College Day, with a short talk, "Graceland." On Rally Day Apostle Paul M. Hanson was here and gave two splendid sermons. At the afternoon session there was prayer service, followed by a round table, conducted by Brother Hanson. It seemed especially appropriate to have Brother Hanson with us on Rally Day because he was the minister who organized Lincoln Branch a number of years ago. Following the round table meeting, Brother O. L. D'Arcy, district president, conducted a meeting of the priesthood, and they planned the district conference which was to be held a few weeks later.

On the evening of October 30, Sister Eunice Fulton entertained the branch at her home with a Halloween social.

Death visited Lincoln Branch, October 28, taking our aged and beloved Sister McCoy, who for years had made her home with her daughter, Sister Maurice Reichenbach. She was born January 15, 1852. She leaves three other daughters, Sister Fred Reichenbach, of Lincoln; Mrs. Texas Vance, of Bladen, Nebraska; Mrs. Gertrude Stricklett, of Blair, Nebraska; a son, Sidney McCoy, of Rocklin, California; a number of grandchildren and great-grandchildren, and a host of friends. Short services were held here in charge of Brother Lenox, October 30. The body was then taken to Blair, Nebraska, where another service was held by Brother Lenox, and she was laid to rest beside her husband who preceded her in death several years ago.

Apostle E. J. Gleazer was at the district conference November 7 and 8. He brought words of encouragement and wise counsel. May all heed the message he gave, for surely this is a time of testing when men's hearts shall fail them, and unless we hold fast to the rod of iron, we, too, may be sifted out.

The priesthood have organized teams and are visiting each home in behalf of the sacrifice period. Lincoln will do all possible to assist the church in time of need.

Esther Schrunk's group of Campfire Girls presented a three-act play at the church on the evening of November 20. This was well attended and worth going to see. The Lincoln Campfire Girls' Orchestra furnished the music.

Holden Stake

Holden Church

Considerable attention is being given to preparations for the sacrifice period, culminating on December 25. Because of rain we have returns from only a part of the branch, but those in hand aggregate four hundred dollars. The branch had accumulated one hundred and ten dollars for improvements on the main auditorium of the church, but by unanimous vote this was turned over to the bishop. Of the above named amount nearly fifty dollars was contributed by members of the Holden Home. A "sock social" in the home dining room on Tuesday evening, sponsored by the young people and directed by Gladys Carr, netted over six-tenths dollars on their pledge.

The home prayer service which meets weekly in the chapel and the Wednesday evening service at the church have been combined for the winter and meet on Wednesday evening in the home chapel.

Death invaded the Holden Home family Saturday, November 28, and claimed one of the oldest members, Brother Frederick William Cook. He was born in Germany in 1843, was baptized by Brother James Keir. Entered the Holden Home in April, 1931, coming from the Saints' Home, Lamoni. The funeral was held from the home chapel, November 30, F. L. Sawley preaching the sermon.

Elder Roy D. Kleckler, of Kingsville, Missouri, will begin a series of missionary services at Strasbury, twelve miles west of Holden, December 6, at 7:45 p. m. A large hall fully seated and lighted has been donated. Extensive advertising is a preliminary. The effort is being sponsored by several families of Saints who live near.

An appropriate program will furnish the setting for the Christmas sacrifice offering, Sunday, December 20, at 10:45 a. m. The junior church, directed by Myrtle Carr, will supply special numbers. At the evening service the adult choir, directed by Sister Birdie Chandler, will make the musical offering. A Christmas play directed by Sister W. H. Eliason, will be given December 23 at the church.

Five members of the Holden priesthood visited adjacent branches November 22, in the interest of the November offering. They were Robert Dillon who went to Post Oak; C. F. Scarcliff to Warrensburg, F. A. McWethy to Lees Summit, W. H. Eliason and W. S. Macrae to Blue Springs. Amos E. Allen spoke at Holden at eleven o'clock in the morning and assisted in the all-day service at Blue Springs in the afternoon. J. A. Koehler was at Lexington in the morning and Grandview in the afternoon; John T. Nutt at Sedalia in the morning.

Stake Missionary J. Charles May reports by letter that he is in the fourth week of a series at Marshall, Missouri. He has had seven baptisms and there are more to follow.

Sister C. A. Silsby has an interesting class in Book of Mormon study. They meet at 6:45 p. m. Sunday.

Sister Lowhead, past ninety-one years of age and the oldest member of the home family, is among the sick. Sister Mattie Hughes is convalescing. Brother John Stevenson is in poor health.

Bishop and Sister J. A. Koehler were looking after their work in connection with the home last Wednesday.

Blue Springs

November 1 our sacrament service was well attended. The Saints rejoiced at the privilege of meeting together to renew their covenant with Christ. In the evening Pastor O. W. Sarratt preached on "The Tie That Binds."

The following Sunday Brother Gerald G. Phillips, priest, preached his first sermon. He did well. Brother A. Campbell and Sister C. Joice rendered a special musical number. Brother C. Martin in his evening sermon stressed the things we leave undone. His subject was "How Can We Neglect So Great a Salvation?"

A birthday party was held at the home of Brother and Sister O. W. Sarratt November 13, in honor of their daughter.

There were no services on the third Sunday of November, a goodly number of the Saints attending the Holden stake conference.

An all-day meeting brought the congregation together November 22. Brothers W. S. Macrae, F. A. McWethy, and W. H. Eliason, from Holden, also visitors from Independence, were here. At eight o'clock in the morning the day started with a prayer service. The Spirit was present in power. At the close of the Sunday school period Brother Eliason gave a talk to the pupils, commenting on the improvement he noticed among them since last he met with them.

Brother Macrae spoke at the morning service, delivering an impressive sermon. It came with power and much assurance. Then the Saints went to the home of Brother and Sister A. Campbell for dinner.

Brother Eliason spoke to the young people in the afternoon. Then Brother Amos Allen spoke to the priesthood, and Brother Eliason to the officers and teachers of the Sunday school department assembled in the home of Brother and Sister A. Oglevie.

Brother Macrae preached the evening sermon, his theme being "Take Up Thy Cross and Follow Me."

Brother Robert Stark, junior, and Sister Ethel Wilson were quietly married at the home of Brother A. Campbell the evening of November 24, in the presence of their parents. Brother A. Campbell officiated. They expect to make their home for a time with Robert's parents.

On the morning of Thursday, November 26, we met at 9.30 a. m. in remembrance of Thanksgiving Day, and while the piano was played by Sister Louise Sarratt, we marched to the altar to leave our offering. Then Brother Sarratt gave a wonderful message. Everyone was given a desire to move into new fields of service and endeavor. Following the voicing of a few testimonies, the Saints went to their homes to partake of humble repasts.

Patriarch J. T. Gresty was with us November 29, speaking morning and evening. He talked about the love of God and faith, hope, and charity. Special numbers were by the choir. In the evening Brother Gresty spoke on the hope of this world and the world to come.

Brother H. Curtis and family have moved to Independence. We miss them but know they will be a help in their new home. We hope to see them from time to time.

Prayer services are well attended, and though our branch is small, we are proud of attendance. May God help us in the faithful performance of our duties, that in our Christian warfare we may become more like Christ.

Alabama Saints Hold Conference

At the Alabama district conference, held at Pleasant Hill, November 21 and 22, the Saints were happy to have as special guest and helper President F. M. McDowell. He was chosen to preside over the conference, the district presidency assisting.

The recommendation of the names of Daniel E. Sellers and Lyle D. Flynn for ordination to the office of elder, was accepted and approved, and the ordinations provided for. Elders McDowell and E. C. Shelley officiated in the service of ordination.

At this time occurred the annual election of officers. Brother H. H. Wiggins was chosen district president, to be assisted by D. E. Sellers and B. E. Barlow as counselors. The election of delegates to General Conference was left to the district presidency of the next conference.

President McDowell was the conference speaker. Every moment of his stay with us was occupied. He brought good cheer and left the members greatly encouraged in the work of latter days. We were asked what we would do about our district quota, and action was taken pledging to raise the quota and more.

Brother McDowell left for home at four o'clock in the afternoon on Sunday, carrying with him the best wishes of the Saints. At seven o'clock that evening the district president with four others of the local priesthood gave short talks which closed a very good conference with a splendid feeling. Alabama Saints are resolved to do their part.

Far West Stake

Stewartsville Church

Elder O. Salisbury, of Saint Joseph, held a two weeks' series of meetings November 15 to 29. They were especially for the building up of the work and the strengthening of the membership. However, there was a number of nonmembers who attended and the meetings were helpful to all. Brother Salisbury was wonderfully blessed in presenting the message in a convincing and inspiring manner, and we believe that lasting good will be the result. The attendance was exceptionally good considering the very rainy weather. Congregational singing was efficiently directed each night by Brother Leonard Ehlers with Sister Stella Wood Hidy at the piano. This was interspersed with special numbers all of which helped in the success of the services.

Second Saint Joseph Choir came out one night and rendered two beautiful numbers which were much appreciated.

A special service was held Thanksgiving morning at nine-thirty. Brother Salisbury gave the opening address, which was followed by prayer and testimony. A sacrifice offering of nearly three hundred dollars for the month of November was received at this service. At night we joined with the other churches in a union Thanksgiving service at the Baptist Church.

The general work of the branch is making progress under the leadership of Pastor Gordon E. Hidy and his counselors, B. J. Dice and E. J. Armstrong.

We have been glad to have officials and other priesthood members of the stake on a number of Sundays. They have been very helpful to us. Our church school is progressing nicely with Sister Madge Head as director. An impressive worship period precedes the lesson study. Junior services are held each Sunday under the leadership of Sister Gordon E. Hidy, superintendent of the children's division.

A Christmas entertainment, "The Magic Star of Bethlehem," with musical numbers will be given Sunday night, December 20.

A number of social activities, for the young people, have been given. Brother J. L. Hidy is supervisor of this division. Plans are being made for a watch party New Year's Eve preceded by a "Star Service."

The women of the adult division have been active throughout the year, meeting each week. One week of each month is given over to educational work with Sister Jennie Schleicher conducting the lesson study. Musical and literary numbers are also given, with games and contests. Light refreshments are served.

Our annual food sale and bazaar will be held Saturday, December 5.

Two of our members who have been afflicted for some time are improving. Brother Arch McCord and Brother John C. Hidy have both been away from us and we hope will soon be back again.

Fourth Saint Joseph Church

The work at Fourth Saint Joseph Church is progressing under the leadership of Elder J. L. Bear. Attendance shows a decided increase, particularly at the week-day meetings.

The young people's work on Friday nights is proving interesting. One new feature is a paper, "The Friday Evening Journal," which is published once a month. Attendance at these meetings is very good.

The choir is active again and is working consistently under the direction of Miss Catherine Ferris.

Fourth Church has had the pleasure of having as recent speakers Bishop Milo Burnett and Stake President Ward A. Hougas, both of whom delivered outstanding sermons.

The results of Sacrifice Month are an indication of the progress being made at Fourth Church. The contributions were far above the fondest expectations and the people at Fourth are to be congratulated on their effort.

London, Ontario

The fifteenth anniversary of the opening of our new church was celebrated last week, services being largely attended. Many motored in for the day from district branches.

The prayer meeting at nine thirty was inspiring and richly enjoyed by the large number present. The meeting was presided over by the former president, Elder William I. Fligg, assisted by five past presidents of the branch. Elder Percy Farrow occupied at eleven o'clock, Elder William Grice at two thirty, and Elder William Fligg at seven o'clock. Their discourses were inspiring and educational. The choir under the direction of Sister Madeline Timbrell, excelled in various numbers rendered.

On Monday evening the branch dramatic club put on a three-act play, "The Path Across the Hills."

President F. M. Smith was announced for Tuesday evening and a large audience greeted him. "Church Finances," a question of great importance to the Saints, was his topic, and rapt attention was given the address. At the close the situation of the church was better understood by London members who voted to sustain the church and pledged help in the present crisis. The priesthood spent a social hour with President Smith at the close of the meeting.

Grandma Gray, who of late has been quite poorly, is improved.

"Uncle John" Vasbinder is home from a hunting trip up north, and is looking much improved by the outing.

Attendance at various services has grown during recent weeks. The church school is making arrangements for its annual Christmas entertainment. Elder F. Gray is directing activities.

Deselm Branch

Near Manteno, Illinois

November 30.—A few faithful ones have been trying to keep the church work moving for the past several months.

Easter, Mother's Day, and Children's Day were celebrated with appropriate programs. On Children's Day the following young people were added to the church by baptism, Lois Eklof, of Waukegan, was baptized by her father, Elder Victor Eklof; Rimmel Rogers, Albert Rogers, Phyllis Pement, Gwendolyn Shreffler, and Wardell Rogers were baptized by Elder Earl D. Rogers. We were glad to welcome these young people into the branch, and hope they will remain true to the covenant they have made.

Elder Philemon Pement, of Chicago, has been here for the past few months, assisting his son in building a new home. Brother Pement has given his service freely in the Lord's work and we have been greatly edified and strengthened by his instruction. He has been the speaker at many of the Sunday morning services and has been teaching the adult class in Sunday school.

Elder and Sister F. G. Pitt visited this branch in October before leaving for their winter home in Florida. We are always happy to have them with us. The Saints held a surprise cottage prayer and testimony service in their honor. Brother and Sister Pitt each made splendid talks telling gospel experiences and singing beautiful hymns in their pleasing manner.

Brother Abe Rogers and family and Elder Pement attended the Sunday services of the district conference at Chicago, November 8. Apostle Paul M. Hanson delivered a cheering message at the eleven o'clock hour.

Two members of this branch recently passed beyond, Mrs. Margaret McKenzie, aged eighty-seven, died at the home of her daughter in Joliet. And Mrs. Agnes Parks Beck, niece of Sister F. G. Pitt, passed away at Kenosha, Wisconsin. She was thirty-three years of age.

Branch President Leslie Rogers spoke at the Sunday morning service stressing the need for each member to sacrifice. "We do not as yet know what sacrifice is," he declared, "and while all are feeling the results of the present financial situation, we could sacrifice to help the church in her hour of need and still be comfortable." It is his belief that if every member of the church would read and sense the instruction contained in the article entitled "To Your Knees, O Israel!" by Elder Joseph Luff, published in a recent issue of the Herald, our people would soon be sending tithes and offerings to the church instead of investing in worldly societies and pleasures. We pray that God will hasten the day when modern Israel will understand these truths. When that time comes, Zion will be a reality.

Cleveland, Ohio

East Cleveland Branch, 1428 East 110 Street

Cleveland Saints and friends mourn the loss of a devoted member. On October 18, Sister Bessie E. Talbot, wife of Elder J. H. Talbot, passed on, leaving an infant son which followed her in death after five days. Sister Bessie is greatly missed throughout the departments of the church. She had ability along many different lines and unstintingly gave her service. Surviving are her husband, two daughters, Shirley and Blanch, one son, Richard, three sisters, one brother, and a host of other relatives and friends.

College Day was observed October 25 with a program on education in general and Graceland College in particular. Virginia Webbe, of Kirtland, a recent student at Graceland, gave a talk, "What Graceland Has Done for Me." The responsive reading was by the congregation led by Pastor J. A. Gunsolley. Brother Ira M. Stubbard, who grew up in Lamoni, was a student at Graceland, and once a member of the faculty, gave a splendid discourse. At the close of the program "Graceland Beloved" was sung by the congregation.

Elder and Sister Percy E. Farrow, of Canada, were visitors during the week of October 19. Brother Farrow is a former pastor of this branch. He preached on the evening of October 25 on "Faith." Sister Clara Farrow sang a solo before the sermon, "How Beautiful Upon the Mountains."

The district church school leader, William Webbe, of Kirtland, with other Saints, met with us for the day on November 8. Brother Webbe talked at the 10.45 a. m. meeting, stressing the necessity of studying all good books, especially the three standard books of the church. His talk was appreciated. At two thirty in the afternoon Brother John Curry, of Kirtland, gave a talk on "The Influence of What We Read." There was also a talk by Frank Webbe.

The regular weekly prayer meeting was held on Thanksgiving Day, the Saints' meeting at seven o'clock in the evening for an hour of thanksgiving and praise. Then the congregation had a social time. Several toasts were given. Brother J. A. Gunsolley was toastmaster. Speakers of the evening were Elder F. T. Haines, of Lakewood Branch, J. H. Talbot, E. L. Cooper, Sister F. T. Haines, Brother J. Andes, H. Spiller, Rex Mason, and Shirley Talbot. At the close of the meeting Brother Gunsolley read the announcement of the marriage of Blanch Talbot, daughter of Brother J. H. Talbot, to Harry Johnson, which took place August 5. This was a pleasant surprise, and the branch wishes the young couple much happiness.

Splendid sermons have been delivered by Pastor Gunsolley,

Clark Bennet, and J. L. Cooper, of Kirtland, Ohio. Brother Cooper met with us November 29, his special theme being "The Significance of God's Church to You." One of the many good points he brought out was: "When the Saints of God live as we are commanded to live, the church debt will automatically take care of itself." Special music was by T. G. Neville, of Willoughby, "When the Mists Have Cleared Away." He was accompanied at the organ by Sister Jennie Thomas.

Elder J. D. Curtis Is Recovering From Successful Operation

The many friends of Elder J. D. Curtis will be glad to learn that the operation which he recently underwent in Kansas City, Missouri, was successful. Brother Curtis is a seventy in the priesthood of the church, and after his release from General Church appointment has served faithfully among the Saints in Colorado, where he has made his home for a number of years. He first underwent an operation in Colorado Springs which was not successful.

Kansas City Stake

Stake O. B. K. Council

The O. B. K. religious drama tournament for one-act plays took place at Central Church last week from Monday to Wednesday. This was the second drama contest to be sponsored by the stake young people's council, and while the attendance was smaller, the interest in this method of religious education was commendable. Eight O. B. K. groups entered plays. Preceding the plays and during the intervals organ music was furnished by Miss Velma Lewis, Mrs. A. D. Hitchcock and Mrs. Walton Bodine.

On Monday the Bennington church players, coached by Harley Sampson and Arlene Schwartz, presented "Simon's Wife's Mother"; Fourth Church players, coach, Mrs. J. O. Worden, "Dust of the Road"; Quindaro church players, coach, Mrs. Alice Baker, "He Came Seeing."

On Tuesday, "Cleopas," coached by Clarence Tyree and Mrs. Clair Green, was presented by Heathwood players; "Mimi Lights the Candle" was presented by the Chelsea church players, coached by Mrs. L. A. Fowler, assisted by Ruth Swarm, and "The Traveling Man," directed by Wallace Burlington, was the Central Church presentation.

Two plays were given on Wednesday; Mount Washington, under the direction of Mrs. Bertie Gould, presented "The Terrible Meek," and the Gladstone players, directed by William Fahey, concluded the contest with "And He Came to His Father," the dramatized story of the prodigal son.

In judging the contest the literary merit of the plays presented was disregarded. Attention was given to the merit of the production, staging, costuming and acting.

The judges, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jennings, and Mrs. Alice Edwards, of Independence, were unanimous in awarding first and second place and their total scores are here listed; Fourth Church, 282; Chelsea, 276; Central, 266; honorable mention was awarded Quindaro and Mount Washington players. Special mention was given Rebecca Dunn and Phillip Moore for their work as mother and son in "The Traveling Man," and Edward Baker for his work as the blind son in "He Came Seeing."

Roy Thutchley proved an able and willing stage manager for the contest.

December has been declared inventory month for all Kansas City young people cooperating with the stake bishop, pastors, and solicitors. We have 548 on our O. B. K. lists and up to the present time, we have 25 inventories and 137 tithe payers. Everyone is being given the opportunity to square their account with God.

Games for the Independence-Kansas City Basketball

League, being sponsored by the young people's councils in both cities, began last Monday and will continue for nine weeks.

WE'RE GOING ON WITH THE ONGOING WORK OF THE CHURCH.

Local Priesthood Members are Busy

Brother Robert E. Jones, one of the energetic men released during the period of depression and retrenchment, has gone to work with a hearty good will. In addition to his flying trips over the district, he finds time to do much church work. He is counselor to the district president, leader of the district Religious Education work, and preaches many sermons in public and private. Central Michigan District feels it has a real missionary in Brother Jones. He has done much to get the priesthood to studying methods of work and ways and means of presenting our message. With Brother Jones the Saints are looking toward the goal of the church.

Brother Floyd Burt drives twenty miles every Sunday to Clare, Michigan, and is building a splendid mission there; he is laying the foundation for a branch. The writer held a ten-day meeting there some time ago and worked up some interest and asked Brother Floyd to meet with them; he has a splendid, increasing interest. The people like him and say he is doing a good work. Brother Burt McGuire, another local man and president of Farwell Branch, meets with them and units three groups for Wednesday night prayer services. These three groups of Saints are only a few miles apart and when together make a strong organization.

Brother E. S. White, well known to this district and far beyond its borders, has been very active. He is also one of the counselors to the district president and has driven over the district with that officer many times. His car is a real missionary machine. Brother White is an expert in home visiting, talking the gospel in the homes, praying for people, administering to the sick, and caring for the needy. It is no wonder that many love him. His standing in the town where he lives is high.

Brother George N. Burt, a father to the district, is esteemed and loved by everyone. For one of his age, he is doing a commendable work. He is one who is happier by far when busy than when idle.

Brother McDonald, of Saginaw, has also been active, preaching in this district and others.

Brother Marshall McGuire, of Mikado, is president of two branches. Like Brother Jones he was a missionary, and carries the missionary spirit into his work. He is to be commended for his efficient work.

Among the other men whom I could here mention as very dependable workers is Brother George White, of Gladwin, who has charge of two branches and has done well. One of the great needs of this district is more visiting in the homes of the Saints. Brother Hunter, of Saginaw, is bringing the indifferent ones back to the church. Brothers Umphrey and Pendleton have done much missionary work and promise more this winter. These men are examples to all the priesthood; they are doing their duty. If the priesthood see and do their duty, the people will follow.

Wherever I find willing workers, my own work is a pleasure. There are also young men coming to the front. Our new bishop's agent, Brother Otto Bartlett, is a young man of zeal and business ability. He is moving out in his calling. Brother Turner is an example to many. He reports for duty saying, "I will do anything you say." We have called him to teach and preach in various places and he is now teaching two classes in priesthood duties under Brother Jones' direction. We hope to establish priesthood meetings in every branch in the district.

Nor have we lacked in women workers. Sister Olive Davidson, one of the leaders of young people, has never faltered in her work, and her group is now taking special study work. Sister Jones, Frank Banks, and many more are very busy.

Undoubtedly we are at the crossroads, as Brother McDowell has expressed it. It is up to us to make the decision which way we shall go. The thought of President F. M. Smith's sermon, at a meeting in Flint last Tuesday night, was, as I recall his words, that the time has come when the men of the priesthood who will not labor in their calling, after due labor with them, shall be asked to surrender their licenses.

HUBERT CASE.

Fresno, California

The work of the church is going forward in Fresno. District President G. P. Levitt, and Sister Hazel Blohm, who is director of Religious Education for the district, were with us Saturday evening and Sunday.

"We will have to do a lot of pioneering in this work," declared Sister Blohm. "We know we have the best and the only gospel but we have to learn to put it over. We ought to think through our teaching and teach something besides textbook material. I think we can look forward to a great day for the church."

Brother Levitt also gave a short talk Saturday evening. He presented the importance of leadership. We want consecrated workers. If we will qualify, out of this church there will come the kind of leaders that the world wants and needs and is going to demand before very long.

Sunday morning the prayer meeting was in charge of Elders Levitt and Votaw. Brother Levitt spoke to the Saints by the spirit of promise. We were inspired and encouraged through the testimony of Jesus. Brothers Ethan Godfrey and L. W. Roberts were called to the Melchisedec priesthood and Brother Laurence McDonald to the office of priest of the Aaronic priesthood.

The church school is active under the leadership of our Religious Education director, Sister Roberts.

Brother Levitt spoke to us morning and evening, with Pastor Frank Enix in charge. Sunday afternoon Brother Levitt and Sister Blohm met with the officers and priesthood for an informal discussion of problems.

The choir sang several special numbers Sunday morning. Ethel Godfrey directed and Lillie Jennings played the piano.

A special Thanksgiving prayer service was conducted in the church Thanksgiving morning.

Lowbanks, Ontario

The Saints of this small branch are trying to let their light shine so that others may see the beauty of the gospel. Classes are held every Sunday, and through nearly all the young people are nonmembers, they come regularly and take much interest in the activities.

Elder Clatworthy is here as often as he can come and gives splendid advice. He is a brilliant speaker and doing a good work for the Master. He started a discourse on the Book of Mormon November 29, explaining to the young the coming forth of this marvelous work.

Brother Martin Weir, of Niagara Falls, was here November 22, and gave a fine talk. It was much appreciated, and since we are nearing the close of the sacrifice weeks, we hope it will help us to meet the things required of us. Money here is very scarce, and the little we have is not worth as much as it should be. This is a hardship for all, but we hope for the best.

Brother Edwards Barrick, pastor of our school of Religious Education, is doing all he can to help the branch.

MISCELLANEOUS

Conference Notices

Southwestern Iowa district conference will convene at Council Bluffs, Iowa, December 12 and 13. There will be an election of district officers, also selection of delegates to General Conference, and a good representation from each branch is desired. Apostle Garver will be in attendance. Branch clerks will please forward at once their reports to H. W. Alexander, 351 Benton Street, Council Bluffs, Iowa.—Ray Whiting, district president; H. W. Alexander, district secretary.

Special conference will convene at Beaverton, Michigan, December 12 and 13. There will be a priesthood meeting for all ordained men of the district at 9 a. m., Saturday. Business session at 10.30 a. m., at which time all delegates to General Conference will be chosen and time needed to pay full quota of the district on church debt considered. Prayer meeting at 2 p. m.; special entertainment at 7.30 p. m.; Sunday morning prayer service at 8.30; church school, 10 a. m.; preaching 11 a. m., and 2 p. m.—Hubert Case, district president; Winnie Hulbert, secretary.

Conference Minutes

NORTHEASTERN KANSAS.—The semi-annual conference of this district convened at Blue Rapids August 8 and 9. The opening of the business session was in charge of District President Dave Little. Apostle E. J. Gleazer was present and presided over the business session by request of the chair. "Conducting Business for Jesus Christ" was the theme of his opening remarks. Patriarch Samuel Twombly and District Missionary W. A. Smith followed with comments on the year's work. Minutes of the previous meeting were read. Reports were read from the district missionary, bishop's agent, and auditing committee. The bishop's agent's report showed total funds on hand June 30, 1931, $40.69; general church collections, $1,057.54. Bishop's agent, O. E. Weedmark was instructed to send a copy to each local in the district. A departmental report from L. M. Pitsenberger, superintendent of the recreation and expression department was read. The matter pertaining to the Harvest Home Festival at Independence, Missouri, was discussed and the bishop's agent was authorized to direct the work in the district. Statistical reports were read from Fanning, Atchison, Scranton, and Topeka, also district report. The election of officers resulted as follows: District president, Dave Little; secretary, Mrs. H. C. Pitsenberger; Sunday school superintendent, Gilbert F. Hendrick; recreation and expression, L. M. Pitsenberger; superintendent of women, Mrs. W. H. Dittmore; chorister, Mrs. E. F. Deller; committee on resolutions of condolence to sister E. L. Bullard at the death of her husband and son: Dave Little, O. E. Weedmark, and Samuel Twombly. Bills for postage were allowed for bishop's agent and secretary. The time and place of the next conference were left to the district president. Other important items of the conference were two instructive discourses by Brother Gleazer on "Building up Zion," and a priesthood meeting Sunday morning. Due to weather conditions it was decided to adjourn at the close of the Sunday morning service in harmony with previous regulations. A vote of thanks was extended Blue Rapids Saints for their hospitality.

Our Departed Ones

BENCE.—Charles Franklin Bence was born November 11, 1861, at Logan, Iowa, and died November 11, 1931, at Independence, Missouri. Surviving him are, his wife, Mrs. Emma May Bence, of Independence, Missouri, and three sons: Charles A. Bence, of Burbank, California, Herman L. Bence, of Pomona, California, Doctor A. E. Bence, Wichita, Kansas, one brother, William Bence, of California. One sister, Mrs. Mary Hurley, of Woodbine, Iowa, nine grandchildren, and many friends. He was baptized into the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, April 12, 1925, and was faithful to the end. The funeral service was conducted from Walnut Park Church in charge of Elder S. Smith, Sermon by Elder F. A. Smith, Interment was in Mount Grove Cemetery.

HENDRICKS.—Frank Isaac Hendricks, son of David and Susanna Hendricks, was born near Rio, Illinois, July 10, 1879; departs this life October 2, 1931, at his home near Henderson, Illinois. He was united in marriage to Amy M. Cole of Peoria, Illinois, October 5, 1909, and to this union three children were born: Leonard E., David L. and Claude E., all at home. He is also survived by two small nephews, Edward and Ray Cole, who have made their home with him; his aged father and mother, of Henderson, Illinois, and a brother George, of North Henderson, Illinois.

He united with the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ June 10, 1906, at Rio, Illinois. Was ordained a priest October 15, 1922, and at the organization of the branch at Galesburg, Illinois, was ordained to the office of elder, December 16, 1923. He served as pastor of Galesburg Branch until January 1, 1931. The funeral was held from the Methodist Church, Henderson, Illinois, October 4, in charge of Elder Edward Jones, of Kewanee, Illinois.

WILSON.—Elizabeth Jane Wilson widow of Barley B. Wilson, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. E. F. Kunz, in Burlington, Iowa, November 13, 1931. She was born in Cedar City, Utah, December 29, 1854. Later lived in Ogden, Utah, and moved to Burlington

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Frederick M. Smith, Editor in Chief.
 Elbert A. Smith, Floyd M. McDowell, Associate Editors.
 Leonard J. Lea, Managing Editor.
 Leta B. Moriarty, Assistant Editor.
 Published for the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Subscription price: By the year, $2.
 HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE
 INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI

CONTENTS

NOTES FROM THE FIELD .....	1154
EDITORIALS:
Blue Pencil Notes .....	1155
Be Glad .....	1154
Mrs. F. A. Smith Passes .....	1155
J. F. Curtis Rapidly Improving .....	1155
Coming Up to Christmas .....	1156
Contributors .....	1156
ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
A Declaration of the Kings's Law, by Kenneth B. Curtis .....	1161
What Shall the Answer Be, by J. E. Vanderwood .....	1162
The Gifts of the Gospel, by A. B. Phillips .....	1164
Our Christmas Gift to Christ in 1931, by C. B. Woodstock .....	1166
Weekly Health Letter, by A. W. Teel, M. D. ....	1167
Our Priesthood Responsibility, by John R. Grice .....	1168
Mercy and Not Sacrifice, by C. L. Attebery .....	1169
Are You Carrying Your Cross? by Poul S. Nielsen .....	1170
OF GENERAL INTEREST:
"Rise and Walk" .....	1171
NEWS OF CHURCH AND HOME .....	1172
MISCELLANEOUS .....	1175

in 1904.. In her younger life she united with the Utah church, but after coming to Burlington she attended the services of the Reorganized Church and was baptized a member of that body in the year, 1905, by Elder Elbert A. Smith. She was a person of gentle, unassuming, christian character, always seeking to be of service to others and ready to lend a helping hand where opportunity offered her the privilege. She was overtaken by a stroke of apoplexy September 30, 1931, which rendered her helpless, but till the end she bore her affliction with patience. Death came to relieve her suffering November 18, 1931. Left to mourn are two sons, B. B. Wilson, of Kansas City, Kansas, and C. A. Wilson, also of Kansas City, Mrs. E. F. Kunz, with whom she made her home, and Mrs. A. H. Kunz, also of Burlington, with eighteen grandchildren and ten great-grandchildren. The funeral service was held Sunday, November 22, 1931, from the Saints Church at Burlington by Elder F. T. Mussell.

BALDWIN.—William J. Baldwin was born in Victoria, England, April 2, 1865, and died November 10, 1931. On April 4, 1891, he was married to Clara Jane Lloyd. To them were born nine children. Two passed away in infancy and Dorothy Frances and Alice Maud died as they were approaching young womanhood. Those left to mourn the passing of this good man are his wife, their five children: Thomas, Mrs. Mary Scriven, Lloyd, John A., and Mrs. Marjorie Trumble; two brothers, Richard and James; three sisters: Mrs. Hanna Jones, of Sharon, Pennsylvania; Mrs. Elizabeth Bomer, New Jersey; Mrs. Emma Williams, Youngstown, Ohio. Mr. Baldwin entered the kingdom of God on earth about forty-six years ago and was a member of the priesthood over thirty-six years. His exemplary life bespoke his love and consecration to the ideals of the Master's kingdom. Within them he found the interpretative keys of life. He lived and wrought and his life was not in vain. Many friends and neighbors were in attendance at the funeral service as a testimony of their esteem for him. Elders Ebenezer Curry and John L. Cooper were in charge of the funeral. Interment was in the cemetery at Niles, Ohio.

GOODWIN.—Anna O'Neal Shell was born January 24, 1889, in Posey County, Indiana. Moved with her parents to Zenith, Illinois. Married Isaac M. Goodwin, December 6, 1909. To them were born seven children: Ammon Trumble, Lyda May, John Clarence, Daniel Earl, C. M., Lucy Pearl, and Fred Louis. Lyda May passed away in childhood. Mrs. Goodwin was baptized into the church November 10, 1902, and died in the faith. She leaves to mourn her husband, five sons, one daughter, two brothers, Trumble and Chris Shell, one sister, Ella Bergman. She died November 18, 1931, at her home in White City, Kansas, where she was buried. The funeral sermon was by Elder W. A. Smith.

RICE.—Paul James Rice was born January 19, 1912, at Valley, Nebraska. Was baptized into the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints in 1924, by Ammon White. Died November 17, 1931, leaving his parents, two brothers, four sisters, grandmother, and many other relatives and friends. The funeral was held from the Stone Church, in Independence, Elder Daniel Tucker in charge, sermon by Elder W. A. Smith.

SQUIRE.—Ella Louise Squire was born September 20, 1874. Died November 25, 1931, in the city of her birth, Brooklyn, New York. Funeral sermon by T. J. Elliott. Interment was in Evergreen Cemetery. She married Ephraim Squire, December 15, 1896. Next December would have rounded out thirty-five years of their married relationship. An infant son, Alma, had preceded her in death. Of her immediate family left to mourn her departure are her husband, Ephraim Squire, her son, E. LeRoy Squire, and her daughter, Mrs. Gladys Harris; also one sister, Mrs. Ethel Potts; grandchildren, other relatives, and friends too numerous to mention. She was a member of the church from early girlhood. She served in the position of organist for a period of thirty-five years. It fell to her lot to take active leadership in the women's work for many years. She stood loyally beside her husband who had the active supervision of the branch as its pastor in many terms of office. Her deep love and forward leading, her kindly advice and and loving touch will be known no more in this life. Brooklyn Branch and many friends of the whole church mourn her departure.

The Book for the Saints

Infallible Proofs

A unique and rare collection of over 100 spiritual communications extending from the rise of the church to last General Conference. Printed for Alvin Knisley by the Herald Publishing House. Mailed postpaid for $1.00. Send all orders to Alvin Knisley, Sibley, Mo.

Buy Your Farms Now

While they are cheap. Any size, best terms. Special attention to readers of the Saints' Herald.

CHAS. R. BOWMAN
 Butler, Mo.

The average man spends as much on his car as he does on his LIFE INSURANCE. Certainly your life is worth more to your family than your car—
INSURE IT FULLY!

Call us and our representative will call.

INSURANCE DEPARTMENT
 OF THE CHURCH

(American Underwriters, Inc.)

Indep. 486 221 W. Lexington St.

Artistic!

Distinctive!

Modern!

Christmas Cards

A wonderful new line from our supply house.

Better than last year's excellent assortment.

Splendid Values at Depression Prices

Order from

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE

INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI

THE SAINTS' HOME

712 S FULLER
ST. LOUIS MO
OCT 17 1931

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS

Entered as second-class matter at the post office at Independence, Missouri, under Act of March 3, 1879. Issued weekly at Independence, Missouri. Price $2 a year in advance. Accepted for mailing at the special rate of postage provided for in section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917; authorized July 21, 1921.

Volume 78

Independence, Missouri December 16, 1931

Number 50

THE CHRISTIAN WAY

Now we exhort you, brethren, warn them that are unruly, comfort the feebleminded, support the weak, be patient toward all men. See that none render evil for evil unto any man; but ever follow that which is good, both among yourselves and to all men. . . . Prove all things; hold fast that which is good. Abstain from all appearance of evil. And the very God of peace sanctify you wholly; and I pray God your whole spirit and soul and body be preserved blameless unto the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ.—1 Thessalonians 5: 14-23.

---

SPECTATORS OR PARTICIPANTS

F. M. McDowell

HONORING CHRIST AT CHRISTMAS

A. B. Phillips

SIDE LIGHTS

C. J. Hunt

Remember Jesus This Christmas Season

Spectators or Participants

The period of depression through which we have been passing has brought to light many of the weak points of our social relationships. When it comes to the real values of life, we now know that a profit-seeking, pleasure-mad society has many serious defects. Of these perhaps the greatest are the effects of such motives upon character. Having created the machine, we now find that the machine is "creating us." The machine does our work and furnishes our pleasure. To all save those, perhaps, who were really instrumental in creating the machine, such an era presents many grave limitations.

In a word, we have become a nation of "spectators." In our schools and colleges it is not uncommon to see a great majority of the students on the sidelines or in the bleachers praising, cheering, criticizing, or "razzing" those who play. In the world affairs today most of us seem content merely to look on. We stand on the side lines observing the tragedies and comedies of life, never seeming to realize our relationship to them and our responsibility as intelligent Christian citizens in directing their course.

So it is in the church. Many talk about Christ, but few share in his task. As far as our church work is concerned, many of us are on the side lines or in the bleachers. Sometimes we offer faint words of praise for those who carry the burdens. More often we jeer and complain, making the burdens of those who would carry the load all the more grievous.

The cross involves not only love and self-denial but complete identification with the cause divine as well. God is not a spectator. He is a participant in his great forward-moving program. "He so loved the world that he gave." Christ likewise shared in the cause divine and paid for his willingness to share with his life. Without such identification with the cause of Christ, our purported love is unconvincing and our self-denial utter folly.

We must come to realize that God, being the kind of God he is, could not and can not keep out of the affairs of men. Likewise Christ could not and can not remain a spectator in the struggles of humanity to find God and be like him. The best measure of the quality of our love is the degree to which that love motivates us to share with those less fortunate than ourselves that talent or means which has been loaned to us by God himself.

Peter in spite of his repeatedly avowed devotion to the Master often evidenced his inclination to remain a mere spectator in his cause. The Passion Play of Oberammergau presents a scene which I shall never forget. Jesus is with his friends in the house of Simon of Bethany. With him are Mary and Martha and Lazarus and the disciples. Mary has just anointed the feet of Jesus with the precious spikenard and he has rebuked Judas for his sullen and bitter mutterings. Then with dramatic suddenness Jesus rises and there follow some of the most sublime lines of the play:

JESUS: "It is time to go hence. Farewell, all ye dwellers in this hospitable house. My disciples, follow me."

PETER: "Lord, wherever thou wilt, only not to Jerusalem."

JESUS: "I go where my Father calls me. If it please thee to remain here, Peter, do so."

PETER: "Lord, where thou abidest, there will I also abide; whither thou goest, there go I also."

Here is the challenge of discipleship. Peter finds it hard to pay the price. In fact when the test comes and Jesus has been taken from the garden, Peter denies under oath and that repeatedly that he has had anything to do with the man Jesus who at that very hour is being persecuted before the Sanhedrin.

It took the compelling power of the Spirit of God at Pentecost to change Peter the spectator into Peter the participant. Then with his companions did he go out proclaiming Christ to the world and with them "suffered the loss of all things."

Most of us are not saved far enough. Stanley Jones in Christ at the Round Table relates this experience:

In many ways we are not unlike the Brahman who attended an evangelistic meeting where the Christians were glowingly telling how Christ had saved them. He felt he could stop it, so he got up and said: "You people say you are saved. So am I. As Christ has saved you, so Krishna has saved me." The missionary in charge of the meeting was wise, so he said: "I am very glad to hear that you are saved—very glad indeed. Now we are going down to the outcaste quarters and are going to see what we can do for these poor people. We will sit on their beds and in their houses and will share their lives to help them. Will you join us?" The Brahman thought a moment and then said, "Well, sahib, I am saved, but I am not saved that far."

Some of us are saved far enough to be willing to sit on the side lines and cheer or blame the real participants in the cause of Christ. Others, thank God, are saved to the extent that they are willing to give their all that the cause of Christ might triumph.

It is at the communion table that the spectator becomes a participant. It is there that he publicly indicates that he is willing to take upon himself the name of Christ and keep all of his commandments, sharing even with his flesh and with his blood the cause which he has espoused. It was the demand upon the part of Jesus that his disciples should take upon themselves the name of Christ, partake of his flesh and blood, that proved to be the turning point in the lives of many of his followers.

We are told by John that when this test was given many of his disciples turned back "and from that hour they walked no more with him."

The crisis of the church today has brought to the fore this challenge. The disloyalty and unworthiness of remaining as mere "spectators" is now apparent. Those who are not for Christ these days are thereby against him. Those who do not rally to the support of the church in its great crisis must be recognized for what they are, enemies of that church. When the history of the crisis of 1931 has been written, will it record of some of us that "from that hour we walked no more with him?"

F. M. McD.

Our Moral Stamina

Are you good at guessing? Then try this one with us. Read the following article through, and while you read it formulate in your mind an idea of the time and circumstances under which it was written.

It is a gloomy moment in history. Not for years—not in the lifetime of most men who read this paper—has there been so much grave and deep apprehension; never has the future seemed so incalculable as at this time. In our own country there is universal commercial prostration and panic, and thousands of our poorest fellow-citizens are turned out against the approaching winter without employment, and without the prospect of it.

In France the political caldron seethes and bubbles with uncertainty; Russia hangs as usual, like a cloud, dark and silent upon the horizon of Europe; while all the energies, resources and influence of the British Empire are sorely tried, and are yet to be tried more sorely, in coping with the vast and deadly Indian insurrection, and with its disturbed relations in China.

It is a solemn moment, and no man can feel an indifference (which, happily, no man pretends to feel) in the issue of events.

Of our own troubles, no man can see the end. They are, fortunately, as yet mainly commercial; and if we are only to lose money, and by painful poverty to be taught wisdom—the wisdom of honor, faith, of sympathy and of charity—no man need seriously to despair. And yet the very haste to be rich, which is the occasion of this widespread calamity, has also tended to destroy the moral forces with which we are to resist and subdue the calamity.

Good friends—Let our conduct prove that the call comes to men who have large hearts, however narrowed their homes may be; who have open hands, however empty their purses. In time of peril we have nothing but manhood, strong in its faith in God, to rely upon; and whoever shows himself truly a God-fearing man now, by helping wherever and however he can, will be as blessed and beloved as a great light in darkness.

(This article is reprinted from Harper's Weekly, Volume 1, page 642, of the issue dated October 10, 1857, seventy-four years ago.)

How closely this parallels our own situation! From the first word one is easily impressed with the notion that he is reading an editorial extract which may have appeared in some metropolitan newspaper within the year. And yet it is three quarters of a century old.

This shows the tendency of history to repeat itself. Like causes produce like results. Industry and application bring the benefits of accumulating wealth and power; but wealth, long accumulated and selfishly hoarded or spent upon the satisfaction of material appetites, tends to corrupt the people who produced it. And when human virtue sinks and human integrity is corrupted all material gains are lost, or rendered worthless.

We call particular attention to the words, "And yet the very haste to be rich, which is the occasion of this widespread calamity, has also tended to destroy the moral forces with which we are to resist and subdue the calamity." If ever a single sentence described the condition of a nation, this sentence describes accurately the condition of the people of our country today. Made mad with the "haste to be rich," they have miscalculated their moves, overreached themselves, and lost all. They have been like the dog in the fable who stood on a bridge with a bone in his mouth, and, seeing in the water below him the image of another dog who seemed to be carrying a larger bone, dropped his own real bone to plunge after an imaginary one, and so lost everything in the water and emerged with nothing but an uncomfortably cold plunge. Modern men, not satisfied with the wealth that they had, plunged after the false image of vaster wealth, and so lost the respectable resources that they had.

It is too bad that so far the people seem to have learned nothing from the recent bitter lesson of financial reverses. The only question in their minds is how soon they can get back to the old wicked game which brought them to their present state. Like gamblers, they can never resist the hopeless and false promise of great and easily acquired wealth. They want to recapture as quickly as possible the prosperity which they have so lately lost, no matter what the cost may be.

Everyone cries for the return of "prosperity" as if the future held within that single word the consummation of all human good. The most radical of people have suddenly become reactionaries, and cry for the "good old times" of 1927 and 1928. Few people ask for a new demonstration of justice, for an example of human brotherhood, for economic equality, or for any of the other great ideals toward which humanity is supposed, in its better moments, to be striving. All they want is the return of the infernal machine, in its old high-powered erratic running order, that so lately threw us headlong into the financial abyss.

Perhaps no clearer example of human sightlessness has ever been exhibited. Somewhere the scripture says that the "sow that was washed" returning "to her wallowing in the mire." The world seems to wish to return as quickly as possible to the old soul-destroying luxury, the blindworm sort of selfishness, the mad competition, and the futility of the race for money.

The evidence is that people did not learn in 1857, and they do not learn today. In 1857 they were approaching the brink over which they were to be plunged into the Civil War. Today we look forward to a future that is as dark and uncertain as a wall of night.

The only possible hope is that men will emphatically not desire to return to the kind of prosperity which we had in 1927 and 1928, a prosperity which held within it the consequences from which we now suffer. Men should recognize that these consequences are inseparable from that kind of prosperity which builds itself on inflation, on stimulated overproduction and overconsumption, which eventually left our whole economic structure glutted and sickened.

As long as men make money and wealth the objects of their attainment, that long will the vicious cycle of business inflations and depressions go on. Only when they put their first interest in the betterment of the human race will we come to our heritage of a safe and sane, stable and successful world.

L. L.

Paul M. Hanson Rapidly Improving

Apostle Paul M. Hanson is rapidly recovering from his recent operation, and has been able within the last few days to be out of bed, and even to take a trip downtown.

Brother Hanson went to the Sanitarium December 4, and was there exactly a week, when he returned to his home. Saints and friends will be glad to know that the operation was successful, and that he expects soon to regain his normal strength.

Brother Hanson will be at home during the holidays. Some time will be required for rest and recuperation. The Herald editors add their best wishes to those of his many friends for his recovery.

L. B. M.

"Vision" Contest Stories Coming In

A number of fine stories have been received to date for the Vision short-story contest. Perhaps it is too early to expect many, but we had hoped for more entries.

A number of writers have probably intended to enter their stories early, and find the time slipping by rapidly with much yet to do on their offerings. We hope these writers complete their stories before the many holiday activities take them from this intended work.

Some of our readers may question the value of stories for religious purposes. To such persons we would like to relate the following story, which is a true one:

In a recent number of Vision there appeared an excellent story that dealt with a problem of recreation which is always arising in the homes of our people. Just recently a leader of some young girls in their teen age read that story to the group. The members of the group were having to decide in their own minds whether they would follow the dictates of their religion, or whether they were to indulge in some worldly types of recreation. After hearing the story, the girls made a decision of which their leader and their parents may rightly be proud.

The writer of that story may never know what a great amount of good her work has done. But she deserves the gratitude of a number of fathers and mothers.

We do believe that the contest will prove valuable in bringing new contributors to our publications, and in stimulating an interest in the important work of writing for them.

L. L.

A Pageant by Jessie Ward

An author well known to the church, Sister Jessie J. Ward, has won another literary triumph. In the city of Centralia, Washington, where she has been prominent in the city government and in civic affairs, it was decided to give a community pageant, and Sister Ward was chosen to write it.

And It Came to Pass is the title of the pageant that took a cast of 250 characters and a chorus of fifty voices. It was presented on December 10 and 11 in the Liberty Theater of Centralia. The pageant was sponsored by the Centralia Dramatic Society.

Given for the benefit of the Centralia Welfare Committee, all proceeds are to go for charity. Sister Ward is to be congratulated on another of her fine services to her community.

L. L.

What Makes and Breaks Men

The late Chauncey M. Depew, President of the New York Central Railroad Company, at one time said, in talking to railroad men: "Twenty-five years ago I knew every man, woman and child in Peekskill. And it has been a study with me to mark the boys who started in every grade of life with myself, to see what has become of them. I was up last fall and began to count them over, and it was an instructive exhibit. Some of them became clerks, merchants, manufacturers, lawyers, doctors. It is remarkable that every one of those that drank is dead; not one living of my age. Barring a few who were taken off by sickness, every one that proved a wreck and wrecked his family did it from rum and no other cause. Of those who are church-going people, who were steady, industrious, and hard-working men, who were frugal and thrifty, every single one of them, without an exception, owns the house in which he lives and has something laid by, the interest on which, with his house, would carry him through many a rainy day. When a man becomes debased with gambling, rum, or drink, he doesn't care; all his finer feelings are crowded out."—Francis S. McBride, in The Lesson Round Table, 1931; Cokesbury Press.

Our Brother's Keeper

This period through which the world is struggling is more than an economic crisis. It involves more than a study of strategic plans to ambush the dollars which fled.

Humanity itself is on trial. The civilization which we have evolved is undergoing the supreme test.

If there is such a thing as brotherhood among men, now is the time to show it.

Drunk with wealth, we have strayed a long way from the fundamental and eternal truth. We have been living in a house stuck upon golden stilts. And it has crashed.

In our agony and suffering we have discovered that Jesus Christ meant what he said. The Golden Rule was not a pleasant homily intended for reward-of-merit cards with silk fringe on the edges and diamond dust shining on the snow scenes. It was a simple statement of the eternal law, the same law that keeps the stars in the skies and the world turning on its axis.

We speak of breaking the law and commandments. You can break them; but they break you. "Love one another" was more than an admonition to light the path of virtue. It was the statement of an eternal principle upon which all law, all philosophy, all business, all ethics, all civilization rests. Like all the doctrines left by Christ, this was the sublimity of common sense—the finality of practicality—the only sure foundation upon which civilization can rest.

During these money-glutted years we have all tried to go our own way alone. Years of greed and money lust have ended with this terrible lesson: That wealth evaporates and leaves men stark and with naked hearts.

It is for us to see that this terrible rebuke has not

OFFICIAL

Notice to Bond Holders

OF THE AUTHORIZED SERIES OF FIVE PER CENT GOLD BONDS ISSUED BY THE REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS.

The closing of the Jackson County Bank has made necessary a change of transfer agent for the series of Five Per Cent Gold Bonds issued by the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. I, therefore, appoint G. L. DeLapp, of Independence, Missouri, as transfer agent to succeed the Jackson County Bank. All bonds to be registered or transferred should be sent to G. L. DeLapp, Auditorium, Independence, Missouri. Interest and principal payments on registered bonds will be made by the Presiding Bishopric as formerly.

Bondholders having bonds with interest coupons attached should send the coupons, when payable, to the Fidelity National Bank and Trust Company, Kansas City, Missouri, where funds have been deposited to take care of the interest coupons.

THE REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS

BY A. CARMICHAEL,

Presiding Bishop and Trustee.

December 15, 1931.

been in vain. For us to see that we rebuild the fallen structure on the rock of brotherhood.

This winter will be a period that calls for all men to have fortitude, strength and sympathy. It is for once, clear to the dullest mind that we can only help ourselves by helping others.

Out of this period of readjustment we can regain our souls. It can be a better world because of this period of hunger and sorrow; a stronger America and a sounder civilization if it brings to us a realization we are given the privilege of being our brother's keeper.

The remedy for our financial crisis lies not in laws, federal commissions, in panacea or financial errors.

The sound and practical answer was told 2,000 years ago in a sermon spoken on a mountain in Palestine.

(The above selected editorial from The Los Angeles Times, is sent to the members of the National Editorial Association as the contribution of the California Newspaper Publishers Association to the nation-wide drive for the relief of the unemployed.)

Honoring Christ at Christmas

By A. B. Phillips

We exist as a church today because many sacred things of the past had become perverted, and it became necessary to restore to the world teachings and observances which had been lost or obscured through the erring tendencies of human nature. With some people it may not be popular to say it, but nevertheless it is true that there have been a number of perversions among Christians in regard to the observance of Christmas. The primary purpose of its appointment is still to some extent retained, but in many instances it has been buried beneath the rubbish of selfish motives, and to this extent its glory and beauty are neither appreciated nor understood.

The fact that we live in a highly commercialized state of society has contributed largely to the desecration of Christmas sanctity. The commercial world has seized upon this occasion, this anniversary of God's great gift, to induce men, women, and children, to make gifts to all their relatives and friends, thus losing sight of the real purpose of this sacred day and of him in whose honor it should be celebrated. Instead of making appropriate gifts to God on this day of all days devoted in reverence to him, everyone but God is receiving them, and the little that remains of gratitude toward him finds chief expression in cheap words designed to please the ears of men.

Historic Atmosphere of Christmas

The early observance of Christmas grew out of the establishment of Epiphany, which was in celebration of the baptism of Jesus, and later of the appearance of the Star and of the Magi at Bethlehem, and of the birth of Christ. These celebrations at first differed to some extent, one being in honor of Christ's spiritual birth (at baptism), and one in memory of his birth in the flesh. Epiphany is from a Greek word meaning an appearance, or to become manifest, which suggests the significance of this sacred day. It is first mentioned in the writings of Clement of Alexandria about 194 A. D., and was then observed for the day of Christ's baptism. By the close of the third century it was widely observed in the church, but was variously kept on January 6 and 10, April 19, May 20, December 25, and other dates in different places and at different times.

The earliest writer dating Christmas at December 25 was Theophilus of Antioch about 180 A. D., in a reference, perhaps spurious, showing its observance at that time. A writing by Hippolytus about 202 A. D. states that Jesus was born on Wednesday, December 25, but this passage is considered by some to be an interpolation. In the fourth century many Christian writers refer to the birth of Christ on December 25, and soon afterward it was quite generally established as the proper day for observance.

The term Christmas is derived from two words: Christ, and Mass, indicating the Mass of Christ. The service of the Mass itself implies that it is a service of sacrifice, and this naturally follows from the fact that Christ was sacrificed for us. There are therefore two aspects of its observance that should be emphasized: that of joy and gratitude for the great blessings which Jesus brought to men, and that of sacrifice and love for him because of the supreme sacrifice he made on our behalf. Unless we properly express both of these elements by some appropriate means toward him, we shall fail to keep this sacred day acceptably.

The Gifts of Christ

The world does not, and can not, realize or appreciate adequately the wonderful things which have come to men through our Savior and Lord. So deep was his love for us that he gave freely the perfect service of his life, and to this service he added access to the spiritual riches of his Father in heaven. The Apostle Paul affirms:

Unto every one of us is given grace according to the measure of the gift of Christ. Wherefore he saith, When he ascended up on high, he led captivity captive, and gave gifts unto men.—Ephesians 4: 7, 8.

The spiritual gifts which are frequently mentioned by the apostles were all made available to us through Christ, whether of communion in the Holy Spirit, the gifts of prophecy, faith, tongues, wisdom, or healing of body and soul. The richness of these marvelous gifts, and the wonderful work they are designed to perform in the human heart and life, are eloquently set forth by Peter:

According as his divine power hath given unto us all things that pertain unto life and godliness, through the knowledge of him that hath called us to glory and virtue: whereby are given unto us exceeding great and precious promises: that by these ye might be partakers of the divine nature.—2 Peter 1: 3, 4.

The inspired apostles found no words to fully express the splendor and glory of these holy gifts. The fullness of their meaning is beyond human comprehension, and Paul declares they are so great that they have never entered into the heart of man, except as God has revealed them. It was such knowledge, enriched by spiritual experiences, that so touched the heart of this disciple that he exclaimed, "Thanks be unto God for his unspeakable gift." Who can estimate the value of such wealth as this? Ungrateful indeed must be the heart that will not respond to it and to the loving assurance of Jesus:

My sheep hear my voice, and I know them, and they follow me: and I give unto them eternal life; and they shall never perish, neither shall any man pluck them out of my hand.—John 10: 27, 28.

Love Expressed in Giving

The greatest gifts that anyone ever gave were prompted by sincere love, and the true value of a gift can never be appreciated without responding to the love of the giver. The depth of God's love for man was revealed in the nature of his great gift:

For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life.—John 3: 16.

He who will not and does not respond to such wonderful love as this is morally lacking. He lacks the vital virtue which fits man for a respected place in society, and which forms the dynamic of all the noble and enduring achievements the world has ever known. He lacks that priceless quality without which the ties of humanity are rent asunder and joy and happy security are impossible. God has given every man the opportunity of returning love and gratitude for his priceless gift, and it is well for us to consider that the kingdom of heaven will be composed of those who make this response to him.

But mere words can never fully express the love and gratitude we owe to God, and he who is content to return only words in response for blessings received lacks sincerity and the very appreciation which he professes. God's love for us is expressed in giving, and we must express our love for him likewise. The divine gifts include not only the spiritual blessings of the gospel and the promise of eternal life, but the temporal things of earth are also entrusted to the use of man. For all these things we can express our appreciation by using our resources to the glory of God.

Birthday Gifts to Christ

The Star of Bethlehem alone did not lead the Magi to Christ. Of even more importance to the result was the spirit which actuated them, without which they would never have followed the way of the star, nor would they have presented to Jesus their rich gifts of rare gold, frankincense, and myrrh. Had their devotion been but empty show, they would probably have presented their gifts to each other, hoping, as Jesus said, "to receive as much again." But their gifts were offered to him in whose honor they celebrated, and thus they established an example for the whole Christian world.

In presenting their gifts to our Lord, the Wise Men observed the divine law which had commanded:

Ye shall set apart all of that which is due unto the Lord, of all the best thereof, even the hallowed part thereof.—Numbers 18: 29. Masoretic Text.

The gifts of the Magi were "of all the best" which they possessed. The gold which they offered was very precious, for it was imported from great distances, there being none mined in Palestine. The frankincense they gave had been brought from South Arabia, and was a luxury used for offerings to God. Myrrh was used in sacred anointing oil for holy purposes, and as a perfume in religious exercises, and was a valuable and precious gift.

We can not bow today before the physical person of Jesus and offer our best gifts, as did the Wise Men of old, but we can yield to him our supreme offerings on the day which is sacred to his birth. We can offer to him the best of all our temporal possessions, if we will. We can do what the rich young man who turned away from Jesus failed to do, for he loved himself more than all else. We can dedicate to him our complete devotion and love.

What better day can we find in which to consecrate our whole hearts to him? For the great salvation which he offers us let us prove ourselves worthy and truly grateful by offering to him the complete devotion of our lives—the best of all that we are and that we have. Christmas celebrates the birthday of Christ with all that it means,—therefore let our offerings on this day of days be to him.

A Declaration of the King's Law

THE MORAL EVOLUTION OF MAN

By Kenneth B. Curtis

The author wishes to raise certain principles and problems for thought and discussion. If any reader has observations to make upon these matters, both the author and the editors would welcome written comment. We request contributors to assist us by seeing that manuscripts are carefully organized and prepared.—Editors.

In fear and trembling we of Zion seek for that which as yet seems impossible—community stewardship. As was brought forth in the first article on "Temporalities, versus Spiritualities," we were convinced that prophecy spoke much in its favor, and that some phenomenon in financial circles was scheduled soon to appear.

Let us, in this writing, study stewardship from an altogether different angle than that of gold and silver. The evolution of man morally offers an interesting view.

In the beginning, after God had made all things, he created Adam and Eve. It was his purpose to bring forth many people unto himself for reasons unknown to man. When they go to him they are to be godlike, in that they must know good from evil, and strive for good. Therefore, since man himself could do nothing to reach this stake, it was necessary that he must come between the two magnetic forces of good and evil to be enticed by him of sin downward, and then afterwards by him of peace, to a return that he may dwell with God knowing the beauty of good. But this plan of salvation would be a failure if the law which made the distinction were not added, for if the law had not said "Thou shalt not covet," how would the ugliness of greed or the beauty of sacrifice have been seen?

So all things were done by him who knows all things.

Now, when two people existed on this earth, one could say, "I possess half of this earth," and the other likewise; but when those two grow into millions, that privilege is narrowed proportionately; however, not by the hand of man. Please remember this.

When man was first led into sin by the evil one, God, in his infinite wisdom, gave him the fulness of the law, which included the plan of salvation. This, however, proved to man his inability to grasp so large a project at once, and so the flood came and swept them all away excepting a remnant—Noah and his family. Herein we learn the wisdom of learning: "Line upon line, precept upon precept; here a little and there a little."

God therefore, with great patience, began again by giving Abraham a covenant, the first one to a chosen people which he raised up by many wonderful miracles. He covenanted with Abraham that through his seed he would bless all the families of the earth, as they would grow in knowledge of him and worship him. Also it was necessary for him to give them the law through Moses, that they could be governed and held accountable until the time when he could officially bring to their understanding the plan of salvation from sin through Christ the Redeemer.

However, as the story goes, they were blind and could not see Christ when he came. Therefore, to make way for the fulfilling of the first covenant, his chosen people were cast abroad until the time when all the earth had heard the cry. Then, with much rejoicing, his chosen people will return to see and hear and accept Christ as their Savior. But the wheel of evolution is not to that point as yet, for the fullness of the law is yet to come. The last step is at hand; the step which will bring us to a knowledge of what God wants in man.

I will agree with those who say we are far from being Christians; seeing the abominations of our lives; but remember, skeptical ones, Christianity is bounded by two great commandments—spiritual and temporal; or love God first; then our fellow man as ourselves. We are still in the revolving wheels of moral evolution. Christ is coming again to scrape and polish; we are commanded yet to admit our failings, and strive to please. Man has failed to worship God in that he has allowed his nature (lusts) to rule him in relation to his fellow man.

Now God made one covenant with the fathers of his chosen people and is keeping it:

Behold, the days come, saith the Lord, that I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel, and with the house of Judah; Not according to the covenant that I made with their fathers in the day that I took them by the hand to bring them out of the land of Egypt . . . but this shall be the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel; . . . I will put my law in their inward parts, and write it in their hearts; and will be their God, and they shall be my people. And they shall teach no more every man his neighbor, and every man his brother, saying, Know the Lord: for they shall all know me, from the least of them unto the greatest of them, saith the Lord; for I will forgive their iniquity, and I will remember their sin no more. (Jeremiah 31: 31-34.)

Community stewardship, the new covenant with the house of Israel, are you ready with your pen to sign, Mr. Citizen of Zion? Remember the wheels of evolution never stop. You have your choice, but once. "Line upon line, precept upon precept, here a little and there a little,"—evolution of man morally.

We Eat Too Much

By W. O. Hands

"You eat too much," she said, pointing to an overweight fellow-sufferer on the asylum grounds. "Just a poor crazy girl," you say. Yes, but what she said was true.

"We eat too much meat and other rich foods," said a nationally known surgeon, addressing a convention of his profession.

"You eat too much, smoke too much, drink too much coffee and other brews, overtaxing your vital organs and come here by the hundreds, health broken and in misery from rheumatism, diabetes, failing heart and other incurable afflictions," says the head of one of our large sanitariums, to his guests.

"Do you know your calories?" asked a dietitian of our church group recently. "Depending upon the amount of physical exercise you get, your age and size, you may take in not over 1,200 to 2,600 calories per day if you would enjoy the later years of your life. Count your own calories, they may run to a number that will make old age an intolerable burden."

Builders and surveyors live active outdoor lives and develop enormous appetites. After a day spent in the hills carrying a transit, I often find it necessary to drink two or three glasses of water just before dinner in order to keep from eating too much.

One reason I am in love with my job as a surveyor is because there is a lot of walking in it; lots of stepping out in God's fresh air and sunshine, free from the enervating fumes of smoke-filled offices.

I have a splendid library of surveying and engineering literature, but I also take the best monthly health magazines and books and read carefully the articles by Doctor Clendenning and others, and try to apply the good things I find in them to my own body, all in order that I may live to a happy, painless old age.

For your health's sake be temperate in eating, drinking and other indulgences.

Junior Stewardship for 1932

By Charles B. Woodstock

Stewardship is the key to the progress of the church. Without proper recognition of our responsibility to God and our fellow man for the use we make of our possessions and our earning power, there can be no true development of a people who will demonstrate God's will on earth. The cause of Christ is languishing today because we have not learned the lessons necessary to discharge our responsibility in righteousness.

Junior stewardship is a consistent effort to introduce the elementary principles of stewardship in a thoroughly practical way into the every day lives of boys and girls of junior age. It is not expensive, it does not require much time, and it has many elements of real joy and satisfaction for those growing young Zion builders.

In 1930, 57 sponsors reported the use of 501 Record Books. In six months 227 junior tithe payers paid $335.04 tithing. Of this number, 133 were making oblation offerings, and 144 each had a savings account.

One of the best parts of our report in 1930 was the fact that the 57 sponsors had 224 personal talks with juniors, 141 talks with groups of junior stewards, 102 talks on stewardship before the school, 46 talks before the branch, and 104 visits had been made to homes of juniors to give encouragement and to secure the cooperation of parents.

In 1931, 897 Junior Stewardship Record Books have been in use in 60 branches scattered in 22 states, 3 provinces of Canada, and in Hawaii. Perhaps not all records have been faithfully kept, but as an educational means of developing future Zion builders the project has great possibilities. Much of its success depends upon the genuine interest and leadership of the sponsor, and the encouragement given juniors in their homes.

The books are 5x8 inches in size, 32 pages, with heavy manila cover. Seven pages are devoted to definitions and helpful directions for the keeping of the record. A double page is ruled for a monthly record of daily receipts and expenditures, with a tabulated monthly summary and tithing account. While planned for the use of boys and girls from eight to sixteen years of age, the simplified form of accounting may well be used by older young people and by many adults.

Junior Record Books may be purchased outright for individual use from the Herald Publishing House at fifteen cents each.

For class use in a cooperative project, the Record Books may be purchased at five cents each by a branch through the Bishop's solicitor or a sponsor approved by the branch. These orders should be sent to the Presiding Bishop, The Auditorium, Independence, Missouri. On this plan it is expected that the books will be used under the supervision of a sponsor who will see that the principles of stewardship are carefully explained in personal and group talks, that the children are encouraged in their record keeping, that homes are visited and the cooperation of parents solicited, and that reports are made on request to indicate the progress of the project.

As the supply is limited, orders should be placed at once. Record Books should be on hand to begin accounts with the opening of the new year. The Presiding Bishopric, through the Department of Religious Education, will keep in touch with sponsors of the movement and give needed help.

Side Lights

By C. J. Hunt

Language of Grunts

"Believe it or not," but a popular magazine says, "In Central Africa is a tribe of people whose language can not be written or recorded. Communication is carried on entirely by grunts and queer guttural noises." In the world we have scores of different races of people created for the purpose (one of the designs) of conversing and enjoying social contact, and in so doing they use 3,424 languages and dialects. But in recent years millions of men and women in civilized countries are to some extent adopting the Central African manner of communication, namely, grunts.

King Tobacco is credited with sponsoring the grunting language. He holds the cigar or cigaret in the mouth so firmly that habitual users in many instances prefer their pleasure of uninterrupted smoking. To converse, meanwhile, they make "queer guttural noises." The enormity of the useless habit is emphasized when it becomes known that during the year 1930 Americans smoked 972 cigarets per capita, nearly one thousand for every man, woman, and child. Dear Saints into which one of the highly advertised cigaret families, Camel, Lucky Strike, Old Gold, or Chesterfield, will our sons and daughters be adopted? Will they give faithful allegiance in time and money to tobacco? Be wise, pay your tithes in full, contribute to the church liberally in consecrations and surplus. Mr. Prior wrote, "Who breathes must suffer, and who thinks must mourn."

Blind Fish—Some People Have Closed Visions

One of the great wonders in America is Mammoth Cave, the largest known cavern in the world. It is in Kentucky and consists of a series of caverns which have been explored to a distance of five miles or more. Some places the dome of the great cave is one hundred and fifty feet above the floor. Into this great cavern of extreme darkness some small animals and fish are known to find their way, and in time lose the use of their eyesight, environment being the cause. One noted writer on the above subject says their dimness of vision or rudimentary and functionless eyes, especially those of at least three species, is complete in the blind crayfish. He uses the term "Amblyopsissipelean."

There should be a lesson in the foregoing for all close observing Latter Day Saints. During the last decade quite a number from the Reorganized Church were persuaded to follow certain leaders into unchartered seas. They were promised added light and joy, but found a darkened experience like unto the Kentucky cave condition. They lost much of their former gospel vision, strength, and useful, spiritual eyesight. As a warning to all the prophetic words of the Lord should be recalled: "If therefore the light that is in thee be darkness, how great is that darkness."—Matthew 6:23. It pays to be steadfast and stay with God's ordained and authorized church of safety, the Reorganization, for in it is blessed peace, assured spiritual, financial, and numerical prosperity. "Be of good cheer" is the divine instruction. All should heed it.

Paragraphs of Interest

Dean M. A. Haggerty, of the University of Minnesota, says the average college student forgets half of what he has learned six months after the course.

The National Association of Credit Men declares that America's loss through bankruptcy in 1930 was over one thousand million dollars, the largest ever known.

Professor Hutcheson, of the University of Chicago, says that 350,000 persons make their living in the United States by committing major crimes.

In America alone the printing presses produce 2,500 daily papers, 95,000,000 magazine copies every month, and 15,000 new books yearly.

The Bible has now been translated into the 887th language, and there are 999 religions.

A thief can be more easily fenced against than an evil wagging tongue.

It is estimated that there are now more than 40,000 millionaires in the United States.

Christmas Offering in the Home

By C. B. W.

The Christmas Offering has come to be an annual institution in the church. Through the means of this offering, gathered usually in small amounts, representing a spirit of sacrifice and self-denial throughout the year, there has come to the church a sum of $40,000 annually. This has been large enough to cover the entire expense of sending out from twenty-five to thirty missionaries who carry the message of the Restoration. It is a beautiful and worthy service. The sums given in a spirit of love and sacrifice have carried untold blessing to a needy world. They have also multiplied manyfold the spiritual experiences, the strength and joy of those who have given.

Considering the needs of the church in this time of financial depression there is unusual reason for our gift of the Christmas offering to be even larger than in former years. The funds of the church are low. Many missionaries have been called home, and much of the good work of the church is standing still because there is not money to go forward. This need not longer be, if we will heed the call repeatedly given in the past few weeks by the First Presidency and the Presiding Bishopric. In a spirit of love and sacrifice the work of the church must go on!

There are many ways in which the Saints may respond to the call. Certainly we may make our accounting with the Lord and make payment of his share in tithes and surplus as the law specifies. And all by special sacrifice may make a further offering in keeping with their ability and the needs of the hour.

The family unit and the home form a convenient group to undertake "sacrificial economy" in order that family funds may be available for a sacrifice offering to the Lord. The following ways have been suggested:

Omit the giving of presents to friends and family members; give a Christmas gift to the church, instead.

Omit the usual costly practice of sending greeting postcards.

Omit shows, parties, and entertainments in coming months, and let your self-denial assist in building up the funds of the church.

Weekly Health Letter

Number Twenty-one

The Ear and Its Relation to Health and Disease.—4

By A. W. Teel, M. D., Church Physician

Otitis media (middle-ear disease) in infants, may cause serious trouble without its being suspected. One investigator reports a series of one hundred cases that produced no symptoms at all during life-time, until a fatal termination of the case. The infant is much more susceptible, perhaps, on account of the lack of the development of the bony structures. It should not be forgotten that an earache in children is always a symptom of middle-ear involvement. Most cases are probably due to the infection getting into the Eustachian tube during the act of vomiting or coughing. The symptoms of this unfortunate, and sometimes undetectable condition may vary, especially when the child is suffering from gastro-intestinal infection, or from some respiratory ailment, and the earache being of such a mild character that the symptoms pass unnoticed. In most cases, the patient's temperature is extremely high. It should always be borne in mind that infants can not talk, but if the child shows great restlessness, rolls its head from side to side and continually puts its hands up to its head, and cries almost continuously, we may be reasonably sure that we have a middle-ear infection, which may result in mastoiditis. The symptoms may be even more severe than this, as the infection may be so violent as to produce convulsions, the patient drawing the head back, and presenting all the symptoms of acute inflammation

---

Put up the family car for a week or more and place the money saved in the special offering.

Omit costly parts of one meal a week, or go without one or more meals entirely, in a spirit of sacrifice that the amount saved may be added to the offering fund.

Provide a "sacrifice box" into which sums saved may be placed by all members of the family, and from which the offering may be made at stated intervals, or at Christmas.

The above suggestions are only some of the ways adopted by the Saints; there are doubtless many more. The channel through which the offering reaches the Bishop is not so important as the fact that it arrives in time to meet the urgent need.

Let not the Christmas offering be forgotten. The Master gave his all for us. What are we willing to sacrifice for him?

of the brain. In the less severe cases, the child may play and apparently be most happy until a sudden attack of the earache comes on. When pus forms in the middle ear, great relief is obtained when the drum is perforated. In all cases a specialist should be consulted and the eardrum opened to evacuate the pus, for if allowed to continue too long, the eardrum is unduly torn or lacerated by the pressure and there is more danger of brain inflammation, by such delay, to say nothing of the absorption of pus into the system which often causes other serious complications. It is much safer to inspect the ears of young children in all cases of fever, especially if there are any head symptoms that, in the least manner, simulate meningitis.

There are many cases in children where the eardrum has been opened and where there was not much indication of pus, but immediately after being evacuated, the symptoms of meningitis at once disappeared. Usually meningitis occurs after an attack of influenza. During an epidemic of this scourge of mankind, the aural surgeon harvests his crop of mastoid diseases, inflammation of the brain, etc. In many cases, facial paralysis may occur, but if the damage to the facial nerve is not permanent, will usually pass off in a few weeks or possibly days.

Earache, with the exception of pain following removal of tonsils, adenoids, furunculosis, or myringitis, always means infection in the middle ear. For some unexplainable reason, earache almost invariably comes on at night, and to know what to do in such an emergency, when a doctor is not available, is certainly gratifying and may be quite helpful until he arrives. Vegetable oils, such as olive oil, as a rule should not be used as they are easily contaminated with bacteria, which might cause further complications. A combination of carbolic acid and glycerine has long been used as a remedy for earache, but there is danger in using it for too great a length of time as it may cause a devitalization of the tissues. Glycerine and laudanum, in combination, is probably one of the best, pending the arrival of the physician. If laudanum is not available, warm glycerine may bring some relief, or even if glycerine is not available, relief may be obtained by dropping warm water into the ear, and then plugging (after drying) with cotton. Our grandfathers and grandmothers often used tobacco smoke blown in the ear, with apparent relief, and confined by a pledget of cotton, but I doubt its efficacy. Moist heat, which is a good remedy, may be accomplished by a Turkish towel rung out of as hot water as one can stand, and placed against the side of the head. The steam carried to the eardrum relieves the pain. It must be kept hot, for if allowed to cool, it may be worse than none at all. Hot foot bath, with its ability to detract the blood from the head, is also of benefit. Should the pain be entirely relieved, it is still best to consult a physician as it is most likely to recur.

Guiding the Nursery Child

STUDY HELPS FOR PARENTS AND WORKERS IN THE NURSERY DEPARTMENT OF THE CHURCH SCHOOL

By Mrs. Bertha Stevens

(The text, Guiding the Nursery Child, may be ordered from the Herald Publishing House, price, $1.25. This is the concluding lesson of the year's series.)

Lesson Twelve

Are you a "one hundred per cent" parent?

What is your rating? If you can answer "yes," credit yourself with five points for each question; if "sometimes," two; if "no," zero.

1. Is your child given a complete physical examination by a doctor annually?
2. Are all physical defects corrected, or, better, prevented from developing?
3. Does your dentist examine your child's teeth every six months and check decay?
4. Have you had your child immunized against smallpox and diphtheria?
5. Do you give your child a balanced diet, sufficient to maintain proper weight?
6. And do you vary the menu, but include green vegetables and fruit each day?
7. Can you induce your child to drink water on arising and before each meal?
8. Will he drink at least a pint of milk a day and not ask for coffee or tea?
9. Has your child learned to keep things—and his fingers—out of his mouth?
10. Does he wash his hands thoroughly with soap and hot water before eating?
11. Do you keep him away from persons with colds and other infectious diseases?
12. Are his diet and habits so regulated that at least one bowel movement is had daily?
13. Will your child brush his teeth and gums thoroughly once or twice a day?
14. Do you give him a warm tub bath at least once a week and sponge baths oftener?
15. Does he play out of doors each day, and live in cool, well-ventilated rooms?
16. And sleep twelve hours every night in a quiet room with windows open?
17. Do you guide your child's mental life by reading and story-telling?
18. Are you his confidant, answering questions sympathetically and truthfully?

19. Is he unselfish, cheerful, and willing to do tasks assigned him?

20. Have you taught him to control his temper and to tell the truth?

(Adapted from "A Quiz for the Runabout's Mother,"—Guiding the Nursery Child, pages 99, 100.)

May we realize that the child needs not only two parents, but two parents working harmoniously for the child's best good. We suggest that both father and mother consider this "self-examination" together.

The Foolishness of Preaching

What, after all, is preaching? It is to set forth a declaration of those things which were most surely believed by the early church, and with tremendous emphasis. The fundamental themes are confession, repentance, the forgiveness of sins, and conversion or a thoroughgoing transformation of character on the part of those coming under the influence of gospel preaching. It is a very practical message with a definite object in view. Preaching the gospel is the most effective procedure. Doctor W. O. Thompson has lately said: "We shall never return to the social, economic, industrial, and religious experiences of the apostolic days prior to the announcement of the gospel to the world as it is." It is not a matter of social relations, nor a matter of science and the laboratory, nor a matter of political science. Preaching deals with the theme that transcends all else. It has to do with man's relations with the Supreme Being. Doctor Thompson has very wisely said also: "The scholars of our day, devoted chiefly to the fascinating problems of chemistry or electricity, or to the alluring fields of historical or economic research, will not be the great leaders in the spiritual issues. Their talents are otherwise occupied. . . ."

The Corinthian days of Paul are over, but Paul still moves the world and turns the world upside down by his preaching which was to the Jews a stumbling block and to the Greeks' foolishness. The power of the preaching today will continue to be along the lines which Paul laid down. The church exists today to carry on this sacred propaganda by means of the spoken word. . . . The preaching which seems to the perishing foolishness may fall into innocuous desuetude unless the modern preacher realizes that this once despised doctrine is the power of God unto salvation, to the Jew first and also the Gentile. Paul felt himself under the divine urge. Unless modern preaching has in it that dynamic force from above, Dean Inge is correct when he says that the golden age of preaching is past, John

Letters to the Editor

In this department we are glad to receive and publish letters of interest to our readers.

What We Need to Do

I am a lay member of the church, not one of the old ones, not yet four years old in the faith, but have been a close observer and have studied the church literature and am teacher in Sunday school and leader of the women's department.

I wish to comment on the "Unsigned Letter," appearing in the Herald of November 18, and also on the article written by Joseph Luff, "To Your Knees, O Israel." I have often felt, as the unknown writer, that we lack dynamic energy, that we haven't the enthusiasm that should characterize a people who claim to be chosen of God in the last dispensation of time, to carry and demonstrate the gospel to the nations of the world; that we have been lukewarm. I have often prayed that we would realize our shortcomings, repent of our indifference, and be fired with a holy zeal to live as a "peculiar people, zealous of good works." We know the laws of the church lack no material for our instruction, having the laws as contained in the Doctrine and Covenants and all kinds of lesson helps to develop into the kind of Saints that God can use as Zion builders, but it is something else that holds us back, and that is lack of faith, and disobedience.

We repeat pious phrases such as "Faith without works is dead, abiding alone," and, "Obedience is better than sacrifice," and sing the beautiful hymns, but are so slow to do the things required of us.

All of God's commandments are spiritual, and we need them for our own development or God would not have given them to us; and he doesn't ask the impossible of us, nor can he do the work unless we, as his partners, are willing to obey our Lord, for he must work through and in us.

Satan does not want us to establish Zion, or to become pure in heart, and whispers in our ears, "There is no need to file your inventory, or pay tithes and offerings, let some one else do it that has more of this world's goods than you have," and thus he seeks to thwart the purposes of God.

Since coming into the church, I have carried the gospel into many homes, and when I tell the people of the Zion program, they ask, "What has been done along these lines?" and I am ashamed to tell

---

Spargo is correct when he says that preaching is a futility. The realm of the preacher is not that of science nor politics nor art nor dramatics nor commerce. His message is a simple one, deeply profound and deals with sin and a Savior.—Professor Alexander Wimberly.

them how very little has been done, and they ask why this is so, and I tell them, because the Saints have not been obedient to the laws given by God for the establishment of this condition and are somewhat like Israel of old.

We shall not make any progress until we humble ourselves and become like little children, willing to obey our Father's commands, nor shall we be able to make much of an impression on the world unless we live such lives that will impress others of our sincerity; that we ourselves believe, and do the things we try to teach others. Let us be willing to accept true and just criticism of ourselves by an outsider, and may it work repentance in us, so that we shall profit by the disclosure.

I have felt that we were inefficient. We ought to be sending the gospel to the far distant places by means of the radio, so that the pure in heart can hear the truth and seek out this church. The gospel is to be preached to all the world as a witness, and if we do what the Lord asks of us, who knows but what he will open up the way for us to use the radio network, and carry the beautiful gospel message to the world in a short time?

In the meantime, let us heed those whose business it is to lead and direct this church, and back them up with our prayers and our tithes and offerings, and live clean lives so God can use us.

MRS. A. R. BATCHELLER.

SAVANNA, ILLINOIS, 21 Summit Avenue.

A Word of Appreciation

Editors of the Herald,

Dear Sirs:

It is with a great deal of pleasure that I sit down to write a word of commendation on the article entitled, "What Can Be Done About It?" as written by C. H. Porter and published in the November 25 issue of your paper. It is, in my humble opinion, one of the most constructive articles the Herald has ever published and the suggestions in it, if carried out, would go a long way towards improving the church and its people along both material and spiritual lines.

Brother Porter is to be congratulated on his contribution and I hope the church leaders will give his suggestions the consideration they deserve.

Sister Ruth Wallace's article entitled, "Why the Church Choir?" in the same issue is also good, and shows a real appreciation of the part singing by a choir really means to a congregation.

Thanking the brother and sister in question for their contributions to help along God's work, I am,

Sincerely yours,

CHARLES H. DUDLEY.

Urges Aid to Missionary Work

It grieves many of us to know that our missionaries must stop their work in the field to make a living for their loved ones, when we believe, if the membership of the church would comply with the financial law, all would be laboring for Christ. God has asked us for a tenth. It is not much when considered in individual portions, but if it were paid, by every wage earner, we would not have cause to worry concerning the church throughout the world.

It is a shame for men like those in the Quorum of Twelve and many others to be compelled to stop and labor to support their families. I pray that all of our people shall soon realize that our church is in dire need of money and open up their purses to give what they can. Let us everyone give no matter how small the amount. God has given his promise: Bring ye in the tithes into my storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house, and try me. I will pour out a blessing that you will not be able to receive. We trust our earthly father, why not our Father in heaven? Come, Saints of America, Canada, Europe, and the Islands of the Sea, let us give. Let us humble ourselves and pay all we can. Then the Herald will bring us good reports.

Many perhaps have given all they can. This letter is not written to them, but perhaps there are thousands who have not thought of the real condition we are facing. Where can we go if this church fails through our neglect? We have the gospel of life and salvation. The church must go on. Remember the scripture Daniel 7: 18: "But the Saints of the most High shall take the kingdom, and possess the kingdom for ever, even for ever and ever."

"But salvation is free," says one. "Yes, salvation is free, but, as the old colored man observed, 'It takes money to do the piping.'"

So let us take courage and resolve right now to do our part. If this has helped anyone to do his part, please let me know, for I have felt led to write as I have. May God open up the way and help us all to serve.

MRS. JOHN TEETERS.

ALEXANDER, KANSAS.

Local Effort to Teach and Keep the Law

While thinking about the financial needs of the church at this time, I recall that some years ago, I wrote to the Bishop and suggested that some time in the then near future some one be sent to Bloomsburg who had a thorough knowledge of the financial condition of the church, particularly as to how the money is being spent, also the financial law of God. This person was to be sent for the express purpose of informing the members of what was being done and why, also to show how simple the temporal law of God is and how necessary it is for those who belong to the church to turn over that portion of our incomes and what we have in order to fulfill the covenant we made when we were baptized.

The urgent and stimulating articles that have been spread on the pages of the Herald in the past few months have been right in line with the thought I had regarding the God-given law. Especially do they apply to those who are of the priesthood and have the authority for the edifying of the body of Christ till we all come to the unity of the faith. (Read Ephesians 4: 11, 14.)

Almost from the time I became a member of the church I have looked upon the law of tithes as a command of God to turn over that portion with which he blesses us, in order that he may, through his authorized ministry, carry the gospel to those hungering for the truth as well as for a witness to all people.

Brother C. A. Skinner, in the Herald of November 18, under the heading, "How Youth May Carry Its Share," in item C, the fourth paragraph, expresses the thought exactly: "Because it will teach the Saints to put God first and to recognize God's ownership in all things." Ourselves and all we have are his.

Have we not failed to keep his commandments when we hold back that portion that he has asked us to turn over to him? No true Latter Day Saint would rob a good neighbor of a pleasant smile, yet this is just what a great many of our members are doing to God, the giver of all they have.

I am now and have been for a number of years, the branch solicitor, and I feel that the lack of consecration among the Saints has largely been the fault of proper encouragement, locally, of course. While we face the present needs of the church, I am wondering if we as a branch are an exception to the mind of other groups which compose the church. Excuses did not count with God when Moses was asked to go to Egypt and liberate his people. He gave him Aaron as a mouthpiece. God is today asking us a similar question, and will furnish the mouthpiece (the missionary) if we do our part. Let every Latter Day Saint ask himself this question: Why should this generation fail? Then in answer give a good conscientious reason why he should not keep the temporal law of God.

CLARK H. PEALER.

BLOOMSBURG, PENNSYLVANIA.

NEWS OF CHURCH AND HOME

Address all news and letters to Editors of the Herald, Box 237, Independence, Missouri. Correspondents are requested to make their letters brief. The Editors reserve the right, on account of space limitations, to shorten all letters as circumstances require.

With Idaho Members

From the Idaho District News

At its last conference Idaho District took up the matter of having a district paper, and appointed a committee of John R. Mamerow, Boise, and Mrs. Winona Porter, Barber, to consult all branch and mission presidents. The committee reported approval of the movement and submitted a resolution providing that the paper be a monthly periodical, that each branch and mission president appoint a correspondent, and establish a charge of five cents a copy to cover actual expense of production. It is from the first issue of this organ that we print the following news.

Since the district reunion Missionary O. W. Okerlind has been busy. He has visited all branches and the following places: American Falls, Soda Springs, Montpelier, Raymond, Pauline, Robin, Blackford, Payette, and Fruitland. At Raymond Brother Okerlind baptized three, completing two family circles. They were all relatives of Brother A. J. Layland, old-time missionary in the church.

Rupert Branch

Brother Harry Waylett has been appointed editor of the branch paper.

Sister Glessner Story was gloriously surprised September 18 when the Saints gathered at her home. She had been previously invited to town to attend the young people's meeting. The grown folks met at the church and went in a body to the Story home; the young people gathered at the Moore home for the supposed meeting. The evening's entertainment consisted of games and contests. A cake was presented Sister Story by Miss Florence Stewart.

The young people of the branch meet every Friday evening. They are studying the church school plan.

The adult department has resumed its weekly study period.

Among those who have come to Rupert for the winter or longer are Mr. Ralph Daniels; Mr. and Mrs. Lester Daniels and baby, of Arbon; Brother and Sister Julius Meulemen and three sons, of Pauline; Sister H. R. Jones of Boise; and Brother John Godfrey, of Harney, Nebraska.

The branch sent a box of canned fruit and fresh fruits and vegetables to the Church Harvest Home Festival. Last year we received four blue and one red ribbons on our exhibit.

Brother A. Condit and A. V. Moore were appointed joint historians for this branch.

Hagerman Branch

Brother Tommie Ultican is attending Gooding College this winter. The Saints are fortunate in having him home this winter to help with the music.

Among those who are gone for the winter are Brother Harry Kield who went to Winchester, Idaho, and Miss Clare Gilmore who went to Barber.

American Falls Branch

Elder O. W. Okerlind payed this group a visit the last of September. His sermon was much appreciated.

We are studying a new quarterly The Message of the Book of Mormon associated with a study of the Book of Mormon.

October 1 we held an election of Sunday school officers. Everyone was satisfied because everyone occupies an office—that is one of the advantages of a small Sunday school.

Filer Branch

Services are fairly well attended and the study of the Book of Mormon, which we have taken up, is growing interesting. It will undoubtedly result in good.

Sister Waring, late of Blackfoot, but now living at Twin Falls, is our latest addition to the membership.

On College Day we had a good program. A Graceland graduate was here to talk of conditions there. We also had a communication from Elder H. E. Winegar regarding the work of that college. The collection was beyond our expectations.

Boise Branch

At the quarterly business meeting of this branch, October 14, the action of the district conference originating a district paper, was favorably received by all. Two reporters were elected to gather news.

The district missionary spent a week with us early in October. He was the speaker twice on Sunday, delivering both sermons in his usual vigorous manner.

Pastor John Cato is working in a placer mine. He left the branch affairs to be administrated by his counselors, Brothers Jackson and Anderson.

The Christmas program is considered an important event in the life of this branch. Lester Dellenbaugh, the Sunday school superintendent, appointed a committee to formulate plans for this program, and gave Sister Jackson charge of arrangements.

There was rejoicing in Boise when Brother Jackson inducted Ira Peters into the kingdom of God. He was baptized in the Boise River.

The church building was made a place of beauty and sweetness all summer by the thoughtfulness of Sister Fletcher who kept it decorated with flowers from her garden.

Boise Branch has been singularly blessed during the "depression." In fact we have had no depression as yet. Every family head had work and the dollars go farther now than they have for many years.

The Halloween party has become an institution for young and old in Boise Branch. This year it was held at the home of Brother and Sister Peters. It was a "howling" success. Apples, peanuts, and cider were served as refreshments.

Under the leadership of Sister Bullock, the women are actively at work this winter.

Mobile, Alabama

Mobile is among the branches which have had to give up their pastors. Brother George E. Burt, who for the past few years has served the branch faithfully, has returned to Michigan to live. The members regret the departure of Brother and Sister Burt, for they had learned to love them.

Apostle J. A. Gillen recently visited Mobile, giving a short series of meetings. President F. M. McDowell also conducted a series of services which were well attended. New enthusiasm was aroused in spite of the loss of a pastor, to carry on the work of the church.

A fitting Thanksgiving program was planned and carried out on Thanksgiving morning. At this time the sacrifice offering for the month of November was received.

The pastor now is Elder Franklyn Steiner who will endeavor to carry out the program adopted by the Joint Council to better the financial condition of the church. He with the members has pledged to meet this branch's quota of the finances of the church for November and December.

The young people have organized themselves into a club which expects to accomplish something this winter. It is hoped that their officers: president, R. C. Smith; vice president, Jimmie Farnell, and business manager, Leola Daugherty, will direct the activities effectively with their leader, Charles Snyder.

Nauvoo, Illinois

Nauvoo is responding loyally to the call of the sacrifice months, and a determined effort is being made to meet our quota. Although money is scarce with the majority here at the present time, nickels and dimes were resolutely set aside with the result that a nice little sum was collected at the end of the month and forwarded to the Bishop. One couple is giving their Sunday eggs, another, all the milk money from their cow, another couple is laying aside ten cents from every dollar that comes into the house, another has pledged a dollar a week, and so on. These small amounts, systematically adhered to, bring greater results than large amounts spasmodically given.

On November 23, Adeline Augusta Radel, eighty-three years of age, bravely stepped forth into the waters of the Mississippi and was baptized by J. C. Page. Sister Radel's mother was a member of the church during the early organization in Nauvoo. Sister Radel married a man of the Catholic faith, and she and all the members of her family became members of the Catholic Church. For a number of years it had been the desire of her heart to unite with the faith of her mother and in spite of strong opposition, she determined to do so before it was too late. She was confirmed at the Mansion House immediately following the baptism, under the hands of L. H. Lewis and J. W. Layton.

November 4, Frances Zora Williams, wife of Joseph Williams of Moline, while visiting her husband's mother, was baptized by A. L. Sanford and confirmed at the midweek prayer service by J. C. Page.

The Mansion House was the scene of another wedding when Mrs. Ida May Jemison was united in marriage by Brother Page to James P. Isenberger, a retired farmer of Niota.

November 1 being national prohibition day, a suitable program was outlined. A talk on the effects of alcohol was given by Doctor Shaw formerly of Adrian, who has recently located here. J. C. Page also gave a talk, W. Wood a reading, and Sister Page a musical reading.

Sister Lee, son David, daughter Mary, and Mildred Sanford attended the Graceland Home-coming and had an enjoyable time. Our Graceland program was postponed until the week following so that they might be present to assist. The church was prettily decorated in the college colors and an interesting program was outlined by Arnold Ourth who talked on the value of an education. Mary Lee told us what Graceland meant to her; L. H. Lewis gave a reading, "Graceland" by Mildred Walters; Sister L. H. Lewis told why she would rather her daughter attend Graceland; Mildred Sanford and Florence Sanford Ourth sang as a duet, "Graceland Beloved," and J. C. Page gave a talk on the relation of the college to the church. An offering was taken for the Graceland Scholarship Fund.

Bishop Charles Fry, of Ottumwa, Iowa, spent a week with us, holding services every night to attentive audiences.

Ralph Hardy of Boston, who is attending a laundry school in Joliet, spent the Thanksgiving holidays with the Lewises in Nauvoo.

Hazel Vanderwood of Independence, who is teaching in Iowa, was also a visitor, spending the holidays with her Graceland roommate, Mary Lee.

Brother C. Ed Miller, who was to give a lecture on old Nauvoo, was advertised for two Sunday nights but failed to arrive. We received the slides, however, and last Sunday evening J. C. Page delivered the lecture, which proved to be very interesting. Although all present had lived in Nauvoo for several years, many new facts were brought to light. Brother Page is continually adding to his fund of information concerning old Nauvoo. Many rumors are afloat and some that he has traced down have been founded upon facts. One of the most interesting was the fact that Joseph Smith, the prophet, planned to build a dam where the Keokuk Dam now stands. Brother Page's grandfather, John E. Page, who was one of the twelve apostles in the early days of Nauvoo, had charge of the project. It was arranged that barges loaded with rock be sunk at that place. This was substantiated by articles in old copies of the Times and Seasons.

Alexander, Kansas

December 7.—Not many can come to services now because of the terrible conditions of the roads, and ten families live from four to fifteen miles distance from the church. The few who live in the little town of Alexander are present at the various meetings and are laboring diligently.

Since our last letter to the Herald, the Saints held business meeting and elected officers: Branch president, Alva Reed; clerk, Lois Teeters; treasurer and solicitor, Peter Boese; publicity agent, Sister Eva Teeters; superintendent of music, Vida Teeters. If all these serve well, the branch should be able to do a good work. We hope these officers set about pulling together for the upbuilding of the church.

Brother John Teeters is now intending to preach at other places, to help some who have not had the privilege of hearing the gospel message. We think if all the elders will get out and help in this way, much good can be done and the priesthood which is given them will not be idle. The field is white for the harvest, and we are commissioned to gather the grain. We regret that many of the missionaries have had to stop in order to make a living for their loved ones.

Our district conference was held here November 14 and 15. Elder O. L. D'Arcy and wife were here, also Brother Harold Ratcliff and wife and the Rhodes and Ebert families from Larned, Kansas. We had an enjoyable time.

Lakewood, Ohio

The fact that no news has appeared from this branch recently does not indicate that we are unacquainted with progress. This group has not increased materially in numbers but is making progress in other ways.

Prior to October of this year we held midweek prayer meeting and Sunday morning class work at the homes of the Saints. We anxiously looked forward to the time when we would be able to have a public meeting place in which to hold regular Sunday services. After fasting and praying over this matter, under the direction of the Lord, we secured a church located in a convenient and beautiful spot.

The first Sunday of October was opening day in the new church, also rally day. A prayer and testimony meeting was held at nine o'clock, the good Spirit being felt by all. An impressive ceremony followed, the ordination of Brother Harvey Spiller to the priesthood. Patriarch J. A. Gunsolley officiated, being assisted by Elder F. T. Haynes.

A brief sketch of the growth of the branch was read by the secretary, Sister Olive Richards, then came talks by F. T. Haynes and E. A. Webbe.

At noon a basket dinner was served in the basement. The congregation re-assembled to hear an inspiring sermon at 2.30 p. m. Brother E. G. Hammond of Akron was the speaker. Our pastor, Brother Gunsolley, also gave a brief talk. Special numbers for the day were furnished by Sister F. T. Haynes, Sister J. E. Andes, and Brother L. Woodside.

Saints from Lorain, East Cleveland Branch, and Kirtland, met with us and helped to make the day enjoyable.

We have been encouraged by the number present for the Sunday morning services. The speakers who have occupied the Sunday morning hour are H. Talbott, George Lindsey, F. T. Haynes, and John L. Cooper. We also had the pleasure of having Brother Percy Farrow who is now in Canada, preach a sermon on "Faith."

Brother and Sister Harvey Spiller came to us a year ago last spring from Texas. He has been a faithful and diligent worker, helping to keep the branch together. Since his ordination to the priesthood, he has put forth every effort to carry on the latter-day work.

We are also happy to have with us Brother and Sister J. A. Gunsolley. Their faithful service is appreciated.

It is the prayer of this group that God will bless all engaged in his work, that he will help in directing the financial affairs of the church, making it possible for the church to accomplish its work in a manner pleasing to him.

Santa Barbara, California

December 3.—Five converts were baptized in the Pacific Ocean August 5 by Brother Harry Pedersen. Four of these candidates belong to one family, the fifth was the companion of one of our sisters. The Saints went down to the beach early Sunday morning. The air was clear and cool, the water pleasantly warm with very small breakers. Nature seemed to smile on us. A few hours later came the confirmation, followed by the sacrament.

Rally Day services were held in Oak Park with large attendance.

Some of our members have moved away. Brother and Sister Roy Curtis have returned to Kansas City, Missouri.

Once more the Temple Builders have revived their meetings, this time after a lapse of several months because of sickness and absence of members.

The Orioles, assisted by the young boys and some of the women, gave a Thanksgiving play which was impressive.

The La Da Sa Club recently gave an old-fashioned carnival. Everyone who attended enjoyed it, but there were too many who stayed away and missed a good time.

Bishop Albert Carmichael was here for three days, giving talks which were both enjoyable and instructive. District President Teagarden was here all day last Sunday. The only disadvantage about these visits is that the workers can not stay long enough.

Ontario, California

We are doing our best in behalf of the church, general and local; or we might say that we are trying to extend ourselves at this time of special need. The Saints here are regular and faithful. There seems to be no thought of complaining at the general church condition. The trial is regarded as a test and an experience which will make us a better people when we have learned that "obedience of the Saints is sweeter than sacrifice."

With the winter season of California rain commenced and the very idle time among laboring men of whom the branch is largely composed, and we realize that the local church will be heavily loaded in its efforts to do. Nevertheless we are not thinking of giving up. We believe that the best days the church has ever known are very near if the experiences through which we are now passing has the effect we think it should. Our prayer is that the men of God at the head of the church may not be discouraged. May they ever feel that there are those who trust them and feel their God-appointed leadership. We can look in the mirror of life if we choose to judge; we will find there our labors reflected. So we feel our church accomplishments are the testimonies of our obedience or lack of obedience as the case may be. It now comes that we, as a whole, must learn obedience by things we suffer. Our prayers ascend that with you, the Saints of Ontario, California, may be faithful.

Pastor F. J. Lacy is preparing a series of sermons which we trust will be effectual. The Sunday School Department has ordered a Christmas program in which we are going to emphasize the Christ Spirit all we can. Last year we found it very effective to have a gift table upon which all laid their offerings as they marched by.

We trust the day will soon come when the power of unity will be a reality not only in desire but in fact, when the great power of the Saints will be felt as it can be by the spiritual observer of the Atherton work. May the day soon come when those who are afraid and have a clear vision of what must be done will have the privilege of putting forth their best with those who have had the courage to start.

Southern Wisconsin District Conference

Conference of Southern Wisconsin District was held at Madison, November 28 and 29. Friday evening preceding the conference the Saints assembled to hear Bishop C. J. Hunt whose text was "Our gospel came not in word only, but in power and much assurance."

Not many were in attendance at the Saturday 10 a. m. prayer meeting, but an excellent testimony service was had.

Apostle D. T. Williams intended to be present for the 2 p. m. business meeting but was delayed because of illness. Brother L. Houghton was elected temporary chairman. Reports were read. The bishop's agent's report from January 1 to October 31, was $1,549.10, leaving a balance of $750.90 to be raised in November and December, to reach our quota. After the reports were read, Bishop C. J. Hunt conducted a round table discussion.

Many Saints arrived from different parts of the district in time to hear the evening sermon by Elder Leonard Houghton.

Bishop C. J. Hunt conducted the nine o'clock prayer service Sunday morning. The testimonies rang with loyalty to the church and a desire to help.

At nine forty-five the church school was in charge of local officers. Lee Root, director, had a good program on the theme, "Thanksgiving Every Day." Eighty-six were present and the offering amounted to more than six dollars.

Apostle D. T. Williams preached the morning sermon on the topic, "The Open Door." The church was filled to capacity, and an offering of more than fifteen dollars was taken.

Apostle Williams was associated with the district presidency in charge of the two o'clock afternoon business meeting. A resolution was submitted as follows: "In looking over the financial report for the district, we note that there are certain amounts that have not been used by the department of Religious Education, the district secretary, and the reunion. Therefore be it resolved that we, the Southern Wisconsin District, send these unused balances to the Presiding Bishop, to be considered as a loan without interest, to be used in this time of dire need as the Bishop shall see fit to use it." This was unanimously carried. The amount to be sent was $328.51.

Election of officers followed. Those chosen were: District president, Leonard Houghton; associates, Henry Woodstock and George Noble; secretary, Leda Colbert; treasurer, Charles Hoague; director of religious education, Harry Wasson, with power to choose his assistant; superintendent of music, June Walker. Delegates to General Conference are: Fannie Houghton, Mary Woodstock, Leda Colbert, Elder L. G. Houghton, Elder H. W. Woodstock, and Charles Fields.

The time and place of the next conference were left to the presidency. The district president was also given authority to arrange a circuit to be traveled by such members of the local priesthood as can help out now and then in the missionary work of the district.

Last year's budget was adopted for the new year, with a twenty-five per cent discount, which made $112.50. The branches were assigned the following portions: Madison, $18.75; Soldiers Grove, $21; Milwaukee, $13.50; Beloit, $13.50; Lancaster, $18; Evansville, $15; and Janesville, $12.75.

The following letter of thanks and appreciation was written to Brother Amos Berve: "At our district conference it was voted to extend you our vote of thanks for what you have done for us in the past, and to express to you our sincere sympathy in your time of illness. We are constantly reminded of all that you have done for us during your stay in the district and wish to assure you that we have missed you as a district collectively and as Saints individually. We hope that you shall speedily recover, and we shall look forward to seeing you again."

Also a note to the Presidency assuring them of the loyalty of this district: "We, the Saints of the Southern Wisconsin District, wish to express our faithfulness, loyalty, and desire to help the church in this time of crisis as much and more than in the past. We wish to give our all in support of the church, and shall endeavor to remain true to its ideals at all times and shall try to express our loyalty by our works."

This spirit was manifested throughout the conference. In the evening the sermon was by Bishop C. J. Hunt. Attendance was larger than that had in previous years.

Port Elgin, Ontario

On Sunday, October 18, the Saints of Port Elgin and nearby branches met to dedicate their church building, purchased from the Lutherans in the summer of 1926.

This branch was organized in July, 1910, by the late R. C. Evans. At that time the Saints were engaged in building a church which was finished that fall, and opened and dedicated November 10, 1901. There they continued to meet until August, 1926, when the above-mentioned building was opened in Port Elgin. October 18 was the day chosen to dedicate this building to the service of God.

The members met at 9.30 a. m. for prayer service, Apostle R. S. Budd and Elders John Shields and H. A. Dayton in charge. Elder D. B. Perkins, of Wiarton, was the morning speaker, and his text was: "He looked for a city which hath foundations whose builder and maker is God."

The dedicatory service came at 2:30 p. m. Elder H. A. Dayton read the call to the assembly and this was followed by a hymn and prayer. Elder Perkins, of Wiarton, and Elder Belrose, of Owen Sound, read from the Doctrine and Covenants. Apostle Budd, the speaker, took for a text, "Except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain who build it." We trust that the counsel given the members will not soon be forgotten. The dedicatory prayer at the close of the sermon was offered by Elder John Shields. Brothers E. Parfitt, R. J. Dobson, and W. A. Leeder came to the platform, and Brother R. J. Dobson, on behalf of the trustees and the congregation, presented the key and deed to the bishop's agent, Elder F. B. Stade. With words of counsel Brother Stade presented the key to the pastor of the branch, Brother A. Iden Leeder, who, in accepting the key on behalf of the congregation, accepted the charge given them, and in turn, presented the key to Deacon Parfitt, charging him with the duty of looking after the building. The benediction was by Elder James A. Morrison.

At seven o'clock in the evening Elder Dayton delivered a sermon which closed a day of services the Saints will long remember.

Apostle Budd remained over Monday and Tuesday, speaking both evenings.

Free Soil, Michigan

Free Soil Branch is progressing in spite of handicaps which naturally arise from the present industrial depression.

We have a thriving church school under the capable leadership of Elder J. E. Bennett and his staff of workers. Besides providing educational opportunities for the children of the Saints, it provides like opportunities for children of nonmembers. The workers feel that much good will come from this although direct results are not always apparent.

Varied programs and recreational activities have been provided during the year by the supervisors of the different divisions with the help of their assistants. These have created a better social feeling and stimulated greater interest in the Sunday morning meetings.

The auxiliary formerly known as the women's department but now functioning as a group in the adult division, is doing good work. Regular meetings are held. The time is spent in relief work, a variety of activities for providing finances, and study.

In the last few years many of our workers have passed to their reward and because of industrial conditions many have moved to other localities. Thus our number has grown smaller. Yet those who are left have a desire to move onward, doing their bit toward bringing about the final triumph of the church. When one visits various branches in Michigan and sees the faithful church workers who obeyed the gospel in this small branch, he can not help but feel that the efforts made here by God's servants have not been in vain.

Pastor Buell Shelley, a faithful worker, at our Sunday service expressed his deep appreciation for the whole-hearted support of the members in trying to reach their quota. On November 28 only twenty dollars remained to be raised, and we are assured that this will be done. The Christmas offering is also well on its way toward reaching the goal.

The branch now looks forward to a Christmas tree and program.

Our prayer is that the church will remain firm and steadfast, and that we, as a group, shall ever be willing and ready to do our little part.

Toronto, Canada

We had the pleasure of a visit from President F. M. Smith at our chicken dinner on November 12. He was the guest speaker and spoke on "Sacrifice." The President visited in the branch until Sunday when there was a special day. He had charge of the prayer service in the morning, taught Bert Gozzard's class of boys at eleven o'clock, spoke to a general priesthood meeting in the afternoon and preached to a large congregation in the evening on the subject, "The Financial Condition of the Church."

The department of women had their Christmas market in the lower auditorium of the church, November 26. The booths of the different groups were arranged around the walls and the whole room was nicely decorated. Another group served supper and the net proceeds of the day were over two hundred dollars. This department holds its next quarterly meeting December 17, at which time they expect to complete their two thousand dollars for the year. They have been doing fine work under the supervision of Mrs. James A. Wilson.

The department of men, guided by Bishop A. F. McLean, is sponsoring a "reverse dinner." That is, the men are doing all the cooking and serving. There is to be a woman chairman and the speeches are all to be given by the women. This departure from the usual is the topic of the day in the branch.

Mrs. Elsie Castle, the supervisor of the children's department, is busy preparing for the White Sunday in which we specialize, and is also making preparations for the program at the Christmas tree entertainment.

The church history class, taught by the Pastor J. L. Prentice in the church parlor each Monday evening, still shows a good attendance and they expect to complete the study of the first volume next lesson.

The church school plan is working nicely and the departments each have a session Friday evenings. The adult division has a Round Table Class taught by Bishop A. F. McLean. They are trying this out with different subjects each night.

The branch is making great preparation for the anniversary of the opening of the church, January 18, next. We expect some of the general church officers here and hope to raise fifteen hundred dollars through the organization of the men.

Attendance keeps up well with our local speakers and some nonmembers are interested. Six members were baptised into the church today, and more are expected shortly.

Thayer, Missouri

December 11.—The sacrament service for December was conducted in an impressive manner. Nearly all the Saints were present and the service caused everyone to feel his need for the Master and the observance of his commandments.

We are working together as one big family in carrying out the plans laid before us. All are determined to go forward in the coming year. Our plan is to sacrifice to the utmost, to have more tithe payers, to cut overhead expenses, and by spring to prepare for more activities.

At a business meeting the other night, new officers were elected, and plans were outlined for a big year. We will say more about this later.

Harold Hancock and Miss Elsa Coose were married here December 7. The ceremony was performed by Elder Hancock.

Brother G. E. McGuire and wife, in bearing testimony at our last prayer meeting, related how much this latter-day work means to them. They are strong followers and since being in this field, have found much happiness. To see them is to know them and to see how this great latter-day cause can bring two people together and permit them to remain true companions as these two fine people are. People like these give us courage to go on, to know the truth, and to serve each other. All the members here are wishing them many more happy years.

Kirtland, Ohio

National Educational Week, November 9 to 16, was observed in Kirtland High School with a fine program at the regular Parent Teacher Association meeting November 9. Sister W. E. Householder conducted the community singing and also sang a solo.

John Gale, son of Brother and Sister Thomas Gale, a trained Scout, saved the life of Brother William Liston, sr., who was unconscious from monoxide fumes from his car. John Gale kept oxygen in his lungs through artificial respiration, this being part of his scout work. Mr. Liston is much improved.

Mrs. William Dyke was hostess at a family dinner party in honor of her sister-in-law, Sister Madeline Dyke who recently celebrated her birthday.

A pretty wedding occurred at the Temple November 19 at 3 o'clock in the afternoon when Miss Edna May Jamison, of Mentor, became the bride of Mr. Elmer Atchison, a member of Kirtland congregation. Wedding songs, "O Promise Me," and "Because," were sung by Elder George Neville. Elder Herbert Talbot, of Cleveland read the marriage lines, and the single ring service was used. Mr. Ralph Jamison, brother of the bride, gave her away. The bride was attended by Miss Dorothy Ponting, of Cleveland, and Mr. Larry Culp served as best man. Ushers were Don Neville, Vernon McFarland, Harry Douglas, and Merville Burdick. Guests were present from Mentor, Cleveland, Chardon, Madison, Willoughby, and other towns. About two hundred were there.

Following the ceremony the wedding party gathered at the home of the bridegroom where covers were laid for forty guests. About one hundred guests attended the reception in the evening. Friday morning the young couple left for a brief wedding trip. For the present they will make their home with the parents of the bridegroom.

Kirtland Boy Scouts joined the President James A. Garfield pilgrimage from his long-remembered home in Mentor, Ohio, to his tomb on Euclid Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio.

Miss Marguerite Shepard, of Kirtland, became the bride of Mr. Carl Pearson, of Lost Nation Road, Willoughby, Ohio, November 21, at the home of Pastor John L. Cooper.

A Thanksgiving symposium was held in the Temple Sunday evening, November 22, in charge of Sister Earl Curry, the Blue Bird leader. Sister Flack played the piano and Brother and Sister W. E. Householder sang. Brother Gerald Davidson read Psalm 100. Sister Mable Hall read a story. William and Ruth Davies acted as pilgrims for the occasion, and the Blue Birds carried plates of fruit.

Brother Earl Curry, Kirtland's church school superintendent, spent the early part of November in Columbus.

Northeastern Kansas District Holds Institute

The second institute under the auspices of the recreation and expression department was held at Fanning, Kansas, October 24 and 25. Those active on the committee were the district superintendent, L. M. Pitsenberger, Sister Fern Weedmark, and William Twombly. They were fortunate in securing C. B. Woodstock, associate director of the Department of Religious Education, also Sister Mildred Goodfellow, of Topeka, who is a specialist in the field of the beginner and primary departments.

For his themes Brother Woodstock used "Foundation Principles," "Making Our Teaching Effective," "The Lesson Plan," and "Problems of Quarterly Use." Sister Goodfellow, "The Child in the Church School," and "How to Make the Children's Department Attractive." Her work was illustrated by many posters and a display table.

The recreational activities at the close of the class period Saturday afternoon were directed by O. E. Weedmark.

The program in the evening consisted of vocal and instrumental numbers, readings, talks, pep songs, and stories. The district superintendent was in charge.

Patriarch Samuel Twombly and District President Dave Little conducted the young people's prayer meeting Sunday morning. At ten o'clock the regular classes of the local school convened.

The eleven o'clock morning theme delineated by Virgil Shepherd, of Independence, Missouri, was "Going With Jesus." This proved the foundation of an excellent discourse relative to incidentals on this journey, and was replete with good instruction. At this hour Sister Goodfellow held junior church.

A basket dinner was served on the church lawn by local members.

Talks by Brother Woodstock on organization for religious education, and suggestions for the "social program" by Brother Shepherd occupied the afternoon. The closing session was in the nature of a round table by Brother Woodstock.

Institute music was in charge of the district chorister, Sister B. F. Deller. A quartet from Chelsea Church in Kansas City was present on Sunday to render several selections. Jessie Belle Taylor, Mabel Snell, Adalain Lee Taylor, and Ann H. Decker composed the quartet.

The association of those who had the direction of class work was inspirational and will no doubt result in a closer relationship with the work of the Department of Religious Education. The committee, in behalf of this department of the district, extends appreciation for assistance which contributed to the success of the institute.

Savanna, Illinois

December 4.—Savanna was recently visited by Bishop C. J. Hunt, and as always, the Saints were encouraged by his message. Brother Hunt has confidence in the church, that the members will be willing to make every sacrifice and do that which is necessary to release themselves from financial bondage. He thinks that by so doing we shall advance spiritually, for we are tested and purified through experiences that demand sacrifice.

We were especially interested in the rehearsal of the interview which Brother Hunt had with a Jewish rabbi. For two hours while traveling on the train, they talked concerning the sticks of Judah and Ephraim, the ten lost tribes, the Zionist movement, etc. We are glad to hear him say that the rabbi thought we alone, of all peoples of the various denominations, have something tangible to offer the Jews.

District President E. R. Davis was here for a week and held branch election of officers. He reports that everywhere he has visited this fall, he has found a fine spirit prevailing.

The Saints are beginning to realize that in order to advance spiritually, we must lay aside all encumbrances which hinder the work, and must catch the great vision which we must have if we would be fit material to be used by God in building his kingdom, for pride, selfishness, disobedience, and contentions will have no place in Zion. We must learn to live together harmoniously in our small groups if we would become of one mind and heart in the larger community. We know that if each one of us does what the Lord asks—and his commandments are spiritual and for our own good—we shall not fail, for God will be our helper.

At the beginning of the new year, let every Saint file an inventory as required, and seek to pay the tithing that is absolutely necessary if this work is to advance. Let us no longer be robbers of God, as Malachi calls us, for by so doing, we rob ourselves of the blessing that God promises the faithful. Let us be doers of the word and pray daily for the whole church body, that it may be purified and perfected.

San Antonio, Texas

Elder J. W. A. Bailey, of Independence, Missouri, has concluded a series of international lectures which cover a period of four weeks. Attendance of members and nonmembers was good. With charts and screen pictures Brother Bailey portrayed the wonderful truths concerning the ancient inhabitants of America, tracing the lineage and genealogy of the royal family from Adam down to Joseph Smith. He also explained the meaning of symbols and seals. His lectures created within his hearers a desire to learn more about the mysteries of God. Second Branch Saints were faithful in attending, some of them not missing a single lecture.

Apostle J. A. Gillen favored San Antonio with a visit while Brother Bailey was here. He remained only a few days but preached some excellent sermons, exhorting the members to higher and holier lives. In one sermon which especially impressed us his theme was "The Pure Love of God." He impressed upon the congregation the importance of possessing that pure love and manifesting it toward one another. When Brother Gillen bade us good-by, we were touched with sadness sensing the great responsibility that rests upon him.

This branch observed Thanksgiving with a short program at 8:30 a. m. Pastor E. L. Henson was in charge. The saints sang "Come Ye Thankful People, Come," and the invocation was by Brother R. W. Jett. "Great is the Lord" was the anthem sung by the choir, and Bonnie Bell Jett gave a reading. Elder Bailey delivered the sermon referring to the first Thanksgiving made by Abel when he offered the firstling of his flock. The closing hymn was "We thank Thee, O God, for a Prophet." The worshipers felt that it was good to meet early in the morning to render thanks to the great Giver for his love and protection and the gift of his Son. The sacrifice offering was taken at this time, and although we do not know the amount received, we feel that each one contributed what he could.

This branch has been burdened for the past year as it has tried to meet the payments on the new church. Nevertheless the Saints are striving to do their part toward the general church debt.

At the last branch election Brother E. L. Henson was chosen pastor; assistant pastor, Theodore Dorow; director of Religious Education, Sister Flossie Waite. The choir is under the direction of Sister Mary Hall, and with Brother Ed. Yerrington is practicing for the Christmas program.

Kansas City Stake

Central Church

Miss Florine Eva Hands, daughter of Brother and Sister W. O. Hands, and Mr. Ervan Lester Graham were united in marriage at Central Church on Thanksgiving evening. The service was read by President F. M. McDowell. Yellow and gold chrysanthemums with palms and ferns were used for decorations. Preceding the ceremony Mrs. J. A. Withee played a program of organ music. Mrs. C. E. Wight, accompanied by Mrs. Withee and Mr. Frank White on the violin, sang "At Dawning" and "Until the End of Time." Mrs. Withee played the bridal music from "Lohengrin." Miss Elsie Hartunian was the maid of honor and Miss Ruth White, Miss Margaret Bowser and Mrs. George Bowser were the bridesmaids. Mr. Clarence Graham acted as best man for his brother and the groomsmen were Mr. Glenn Hands, Mr. Glen Falter and Doctor E. P. Nelson. Following a short honeymoon in the Ozarks, Mr. and Mrs. Graham will be at home at 4517 Harrison.

November 29 was observed as Home-Coming Day, former attendants having been invited to be present and to recall by-gone days. The music at the worship period, a contralto solo, "How Beautiful Upon the Mountains," by Harker, was very beautifully rendered by Mrs. N. B. Baldwin (nee Julia Edwards).

Following the lesson study, a hymn was sung at the service period, and prayer was offered by Elder C. G. Mesley. "Remember Now Thy Creator" by Adams, was the anthem rendered by the choir. Apostle E. J. Gleazer was the speaker of the hour, delivering a fine discourse befitting the occasion, "Home-coming."

The evening service proved unique and enjoyable, the Central family meeting in the front parlor. The family living room formed the setting with comfortable arm chairs, brightly colored lamps, and a homey atmosphere prevailing. Favorite hymns of the days of yore were sung under the leadership of Brother George Anway, and Mrs. J. H. Paxton and Mrs. Adam Young related interesting experiences and happenings between the years of 1908 and 1925 at the little church on Wabash Avenue, while Sister D. H. Blair told of the happy moments the Central people enjoyed at Ninth and Lydia and this was followed by "Tracy Avenue Days" by Brother C. C. Babb. A quartet consisting of Mrs. A. D. Hirschcock, Mrs. R. H. Moore, Clayton J. Wolfe, and A. D. Hirschcock rendered two fine members during this service, "On Life's Highway" by Bertrand-Brown and "Trust, Ye in the Lord," by Henry Barnes. This "gatherin'" of old and new friends was an opportunity to renew friendships and enjoy the sweet communion of Saints.

Sacrament Sunday, the last in the year of 1931, was an ideal autumn day, with just enough tinge of coolness in the air to invigorate. A very good attendance was present for the services, and following the serving of the emblems, a number of short testimonies were given. Preceding the sermon by Elder George Mesley at the evening service, the choir rendered the anthem "Radiant Morn," by Woodward. The Wahdemna Male Quartet sang two numbers, "The old Kugged Cross" and "In The Garden."

The Women's Club bazaar was held at the church on Friday afternoon and evening. Christmas gifts, home needs, food and candy were sold, every article priced at a dollar or less. A turkey dinner was served at six o'clock. Proceeds from this bazaar are to be applied to Central Church indebtedness.

Central people met the call of the general church for sacrifice during the month of November in a gratifying manner and will continue through the month of December.

Missionary Work in Spring River and Clinton Districts and Holden Stake

Post Oak, Missouri.—It has been some time since I have written the Herald, giving an account of the missionary work done in my fields of labor. I have been encouraged many times by reading the reports of the missionaries throughout the world. As missionaries of the church, we meet with varied experiences, pleasant and otherwise. I am glad to say that in many places since the Centennial Conference, I have seen a revival of the old-time missionary spirit such as should be found in every city, village, and country community where the church is represented.

Since the Centennial Conference, I have been engaged in missionary work in Spring River and Clinton Districts and in Holden Stake. During part of this time I have been associated with Elders George Jenkins and Lee Quick of the missionary force, and Elder George Harrington, too, has rendered valuable assistance in preaching and music. My work with these brothers has been very pleasant. About half of the time, however, I have been alone in my missionary efforts.

My records show that missionary services have been held in fourteen churches, five schoolhouses, three tents, and that there was one open-air meeting. In addition to this, several week-end services have been held in various branches and communities of Saints. I have preached three hundred and fifty-seven times. During these meetings, held in association with my brothers and the services held alone, a total of seventy-nine baptisms have taken place; of this number the writer has baptized forty. Fifteen hundred and more "Gospel Ladder"—"What Was Witnessed in the Heavens" song tracts have been handed out during these meetings, also many of the usual tracts.

The missionary work has been very much enjoyed, and we have found hundreds of people eager to hear the old Jerusalem gospel. Many in addition to those who have united with us, have been convinced of the truthfulness of the angel's message. A few of these have since been baptized and others are still investigating.

Though it seems to us that what we have accomplished since the Centennial Conference has been but a "mite," we have tried to render a reasonable service. We very much regret that it has been found necessary to release so many from the missionary list, yet we trust that the time will soon come when many of them will be privileged again to take up the work.

May every Latter Day Saint manifest the true spirit of sacrifice this Christmas, and remember the Lord whose birth we shall commemorate, by turning our gift money to his church, as a gift of appreciation for the use of this church which has brought to us the beautiful gospel of these latter days.

J. CHARLES MAY.

Independence

One hundred voices of the Independence Messiah Choir, directed by Paul N. Craig, will present the choir's annual Christmas gift to Kansas City and surrounding territory December 27. The singers, accompanied by Robert Miller, organist, and George Miller, pianist, will give the "Messiah," by Handel, at the Scottish Rite Temple, Linwood and Paseo, Kansas City, at three o'clock the afternoon of the 27th. At ten o'clock that night the oratorio will be given in the Stone Church auditorium and broadcast over KMBC. Independence people are invited to attend the performance at the Stone Church. Soloists this year are: Margaret Johnson Blaine, soprano; Gladys Good, contralto; George Anway, tenor; and Arthur Oakman, bass.

Stone Church

There will be a Christmas baptismal service in the lower auditorium of the Stone Church at eight thirty next Sunday morning.

Elder G. G. Lewis, superintendent of Religious Education in Independence, was present Sunday morning to give sacrifice offering envelopes to members of the intermediate and junior departments. These envelopes will be collected at the church school hour next Sunday morning.

Numbers of the classes of the church school are planning Christmas baskets, to bring cheer to families in which the wage earners have been out of employment and consequently unable to provide adequately for the holidays.

"Obey the Law," was the theme of Pastor John F. Sheehy who preached the Sunday morning sermon. His text was taken from a revelation given one hundred years ago this month, Doctrine and Covenants 72: "Every man that cometh up to Zion must lay all things before the bishop in Zion."

Elder G. G. Lewis was in charge of the service, and music was by the Stone Church Choir, directed by Paul N. Craig.

"The Prophets Tell of the Birth of Christ," a biblical play written by Mrs. Madge Siegfried, was presented by a cast of about forty members of the congregation Sunday night. The production was under the direction of the White Masque Players, and drew a large crowd of members and friends. The drama presented prophecies concerning the coming of Jesus in four great epochs—the fall of man, the prophecies of Enoch, Isaiah, and Samuel anoints David. A drama presenting the fulfillment of these prophecies will be given next Sunday evening. Appropriate music was furnished by the girls' chorus directed by Mrs. Bertha Burgess, and there was a harp solo by Eleanor Smith.

"A Girl Scout's duty is to . . . help others," and "A Girl Scout is cheerful." These laws the girls are remembering as they prepare for Christmas. All their activities at this season are expressions of the desire to make people happy. Carol singing will be popular among the Girl Scouts this year, the giving of renovated toys to little children, the leaving of packages of cookies and candies on the doorsteps of those whom they love and esteem, Christmas and New Year's socials, and a hundred other things.

The Boy Scouts also are busy. With all the other Scouts of the city they are carrying out a clothes gathering campaign. The two Stone Church troops have collected a large number of worn garments which have been turned over to the community authorities for the clothing of those who need protection against winter's cold.

President F. M. McDowell, Pastor John F. Sheehy, and Elder G. G. Lewis were in charge of the annual church school business meeting, Monday night. Special business of the evening was the election of officers to serve during the coming year. Only two changes were made in the 1931 roster of officers. Workers chosen for the new year are: Director of Religious Education, S. A. Thiel; associate superintendent, H. W. Harder; superintendent of the nursery department, Mrs. Pearl Crick; beginners, Mrs. C. R. Smith; primaries, Miss Ruby Williamson; juniors, Mrs. Ray Moler; junior young people, Miss Leta B. Moriarty; young people, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Gardner; adult superintendent of Sunday class work, Mrs. J. F. Frazier; adult superintendent of week-day activities, Mrs. C. C. Koehler; superintendent of other adult group activities, H. G. Barto; secretary, Elizabeth Okerlind, and Christmas offering secretary, Mrs. Edith Bullard.

A report of the year's work of the church school was read by Elder G. G. Lewis who is in general charge of Religious Education in Independence. It was decided to present the financial report and new budget to the next executive council of the school.

Walnut Park Church

At the morning service, Sunday, December 13, Walnut Park Church Choir, directed by Mrs. Minnie Dobson, rendered the anthem, "As Pants the Hart," Mrs. Marian Campbell, soprano soloist and Drexel Mollison, pianist. The discourse was by Bishop A. B. Phillips whose text was, "Know ye not that I must be about my Father's business?" He presented the life of Christ from youth through his ministry, showing that the power of example is greater than precept. Christ was wholly devoted to his task. We should not permit the unpleasant things of life to come between us and our opportunity to gain the life more abundant.

The evening sermon was given by Elder S. A. Burgess on "The Coming Forth of the Book of Mormon." This he linked with the historical drama from Brother Elbert A. Smith's "Conversations," which was given by some of the young people of this congregation.

Pastor S. C. Smith has chosen to help him in the coming year a first assistant, Carroll Olson, who is also bishop's agent; C. V. Hopkins, second assistant, and R. Barnhardt, assistant and superintendent of the church school. These choices met the approval of the congregation.

The church school officers were chosen Sunday morning at the church school period: Superintendent, R. Barnhardt; assistant, Albert Chapman; secretaries, Mr. and Mrs. Eli Kester; librarian, E. E. Moorman; superintendent of young people, C. G. Closson; assistant, Ruth M. Bryant; superintendent of junior division, Mrs. E. E. Moorman; superintendent of adults, Mrs. F. R. Schafer; chorister, Sanford Downs; musical director, Orlando Nace, who chose as pianist Mrs. Thelma Countryman.

The young people's organization, under the supervision of C. G. Closson, meets on Sunday at 5.45 p. m. for a study period and program. Officers of the organization are: President, Helen Moorman; vice president, Fern Price; secretary, Katherine Price; chorister, Melba Moorman; pianist, Thelma Schwab.

The congregation is proud of its Girl Scouts. It has two troops. Mrs. Rachel Oeser is captain of Troop 49 and Mrs. Anna Julia Roberts of Troop 10. Both groups of girls are busy carrying our Christmas plans for others. Troop 10 hopes to bring yuletide cheer into the homes of several families where there are a number of small children. To this end the girls have made little tarlatan stockings and filled them with cookies of their own making; they have remade toys brought from home, clothed dolls in new dresses, and in other ways have effectively wielded the paint brush and needle; their toy collection contains ABC muslin books for little folks. On Christmas Eve these lively girls plan to sing carols to their friends.

Englewood Church

All the young people from fifteen to twenty-five years of age were assembled in one classroom Sunday morning, where President F. M. McDowell talked on the subject of tithing. He distributed young people's inventory and tithing blanks. By request he also spoke to all the membership, making a strong appeal to everyone to try this year to find the blessing which comes from giving to the One whose birthday we are preparing to celebrate. He made everyone feel that it is indeed "more blessed to give than to receive."

President McDowell also spoke to a good-sized congregation at the eleven o'clock service. "There are five things that show me the gospel is true," he declared: "The word of God, the life of Christ, the principles of the gospel, history, and last and greatest—the compelling testimony of the Spirit of God." Speaking of the last of these five, he gave as an example the closing moments in the life of Brother J. M. Terry. Brother Terry called Elder John F. Sheehy to his bedside and said, "Brother Sheehy, tell the Saints for me that this gospel is true."

The Saints were deeply touched by this testimony as they recalled that some of the last labors performed by Brother Terry were in Englewood, where he taught a class of children who were candidates for baptism the beauty of the step they were about to take. Brother Terry was a joy to old and young. His life helps us to agree with Brother McDowell that this "compelling testimony of the Spirit of God" is the greatest of all.

The choir sang "The Lord Is My Strength," by Williams, directed by the chorister.

Elder Leonard Lea was the evening speaker. Brother and Sister Howery sang "The Garden of Prayer."

Under the direction of the primary superintendent, Sister Lyman Fike, a Christmas program is under preparation. It will be given next Sunday morning at ten o'clock, being preceded by the baptism of some of the children. The boys are happy to sacrifice their regular Christmas treat for the benefit of the church. An impressive sacrifice offering ceremony will take the time on Sunday morning usually occupied in the distribution of treats.

Preceding the sacrament service December 6 Brother Roy Howery was ordained to the office of elder.

Apostle J. A. Gillen spoke for us the evening of that day in his convincing manner. Sister Hazel McConnell sang a solo.

Sister Charles Kelley is quite ill at the Sanitarium.

The congregation happily welcomed Sister Glen Closson and her new baby daughter to the services Sunday morning.

Enoch Hill Church

A large congregation of members and friends gathered Sunday evening to hear President F. M. McDowell's sermon on "The Price of Peace." His discourse was based on the scripture reading of the angel's announcement of Christ's birth to the shepherds, according to the gospel of Matthew, associating with it the words: "He shall be called the prince of peace." The meaning of peace, Brother McDowell made clear, was not just the absence of war, but man's peaceful adjustment with his inner self, with his fellow men, and with God. And the way of peace, he defined to be the way of God—"God so loved the world that he gave." Loving and giving are the way of peace. Christ loved and gave. We, too, if we would know the way of peace, must love and give.

The Aeolian Chorus, directed by Mrs. Paul N. Craig, presented a half hour's program of excellent music. Their contribution to the evening's service was deeply appreciated.

Pastor H. L. Berto spoke to the congregation Sunday morning. The Saints gave attentive heed to his words, and as a result, hope during the new year to go forward.

The congregation was shocked at the unexpected death of Sister Lucinda Brown, December 11. She was a loved and respected member of the branch, a woman who had belonged to the church since July, 1899. She was the wife of Cloise Brown. The funeral was held from Enoch Hill Church, Monday morning at ten o'clock, Pastor Barto preaching the sermon. She leaves a large number of sorrowing relatives including her husband, a son, Glenn Scott Harvey, of Warrensburg, several grandchildren, three brothers and three sisters: Charles Barmore, Independence; Alma Barmore, Port Huron, Michigan; James D. Barmore, Cabool, Missouri; Mrs. Jupheena Kendall, Hazelton, Indiana; Mrs. Esther E. Kramer, and Mrs. Leona Burke, of Independence. Interment was in Mound Grove Cemetery.

Three hundred and twenty garments were collected by Boy Scout Troop 227, of Enoch Hill. This was the troop's contribution to the worn clothes campaign carried out by the Scouts of Independence. The collection was turned over to civic authorities for renovation and disposition. Ammon Badder is scoutmaster of this troop.

Topeka, Kansas

1114 Clay Street

It has been some time since a report from this band of busy Saints has appeared in the Herald. However, at the appointed time most of the members have been found making contributions in the interest of the latter-day work. Under the new church school plan since the first of the year, the need for better qualifications is being met by some in our correspondence courses, class work in other organizations, or both, and some are attending night school.

The junior and beginner rooms have been newly decorated and now are especially attractive for these grades under the leadership of Mildred Goodfellow and Fern Weedmark.

The junior class won three blue ribbons at the Kansas State Free Fair. Three groups of notebooks were entered, and a notebook from each group was awarded a ribbon. These juniors have entered the junior notebook contest sponsored by the Department of Religious Education, and are collecting material for their books.

A combined rally and festival service was held September 27. One hundred and four quarts of canned fruit, and seventy-eight glasses of jelly with other food stuff were brought to the church, and with fitting ceremony were presented by F. O. Kelley to O. E. Weedmark, bishop's agent. Brother Weedmark received these with a prayer of acceptance in behalf of the district and Bishopric. The children had a special table for their contributions. District President Dave Little was present and gave the sermon, "Strength in unity." A basket dinner was served at Chesney Park, there being an attendance of forty.

The evening of October 1 was the occasion for a surprise party at the home of Sister Veach. This was in honor of her husband George Veach. A goodly number was present to enjoy the entertainment and refreshments.

No services were held October 11, in order that the Saints might attend the Harvest Home Festival at Independence. Several also attended the young people's institute at Fanning, Kansas, October 24 and 25.

The annual Halloween party, in charge of Sister F. O.

Kelley, recreation leader, was held at the home of Sister Helen Hays. There were appropriate decorations in Halloween colors. After masks were removed, games were played and refreshments were served.

The midweek study class and work group which meets at the home of Sister Elerick is placing all the money they can earn in the hands of the Bishop of the general church. This they are doing in observance of the sacrifice months.

District President Dave Little and Patriarch Samuel Twombly were present November 8, preaching and giving direction in connection with the work of the branch. Owing to the urgent need of the general church, O. E. Weedmark, bishop's agent, was released from local responsibility that he might give more time to district duties. Elder G. G. Cadwell will have charge of the local work. Brother Weedmark was untiring in his efforts and a rising vote of thanks expressed appreciation for splendid work done.

For several months there have been splendid prayer services. The sick here and elsewhere, also those upon whom rests the responsibility of the general church, have been remembered.

San Bernardino, California

The Saints gathered at the new church Thanksgiving morning, to give thanks to God for his goodness to his people. The meeting opened with an orchestral number, "Lead me." Brother James Miller offered the opening prayer "Come, Ye Thankful People, Come," by Samuel Webbe, was sung by the congregation, directed by Frank Anthony.

A short sermon on Thanksgiving was presented by Elder W. A. Teagarden, pastor. After the service, dinner was served by the women's department of the church to about one hundred and twenty-five people. Proceeds are to be used to pay for our pews.

We now have an active branch, all departments carrying out the new church program.

Apostle M. A. McConley was here on a recent Sunday, preaching morning and evening.

Are You Wondering What to Give For Christmas?

Have You Thought of the new SAINTS' HYMNAL

Beautifully Bound in Leather, with Title Stamped in Gold, postpaid .....	$3.25
Rich purple binding, stamped with gold, Single copy, postpaid .....	$1.50
Ten or more, postage extra .....	1.25
One hundred or more, postage extra .....	1.00

See Our Catalog for Many Fine Gifts for Christmas

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE

Independence, Missouri

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Frederick M. Smith, Editor in Chief.
 Elbert A. Smith, Floyd M. McDowell, Associate Editors.
 Leonard J. Lea, Managing Editor.
 Leta B. Moriarty, Assistant Editor.
 Published for the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Subscription price: By the year, $2.
 HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE
 INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI

CONTENTS

EDITORIAL:
Spectators or Participants .....	1178
Our Moral Stamina .....	1179
Paul M. Hanson Rapidly Improving .....	1180
"Vision" Contest Stories Coming In .....	1180
A Pageant by Jessie Ward .....	1180
OFFICIAL:
Notice to Bond Holders .....	1181
ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
Honoring Christ at Christmas, by A. E. Phillips .....	1182
A Declaration of the King's Love, by Kenneth B. Curtis....	1183
We Eat Too Much, by W. O. Hands .....	1184
Junior Stewardship for 1932, by Charles B. Woodstock.....	1185
Side Lights, by C. J. Hunt .....	1185
Christmas Offering in the Home, by C. B. W. ....	1186
Weekly Health Letter, by A. W. Teel, M. D. ....	1187
Guiding the Nursery Child, by Mrs. Bertha Stevens .....	1188
LETTERS TO THE EDITOR .....	1189
NEWS OF CHURCH AND HOME .....	1191
MISCELLANEOUS .....	1200

MISCELLANEOUS

Appointment of Bishop's Agent

Brother C. G. Smallwood having presented his resignation as bishop's agent for Eastern Oklahoma District, we hereby appoint as his successor, Brother J. W. Peterson, subject to the ratification of the next district conference.

Brother Smallwood has given splendid cooperation in this connection, and we wish to take this opportunity of expressing appreciation for the service rendered.

Brother Peterson is one of the old-time missionaries of the church and has the confidence and esteem of those who know him, and we feel confident he will receive the earnest cooperation of the membership in giving their support to this phase of church work.

The solicitors are requested to send their reports to Brother J. W. Peterson, care of P. E. Sartor, Fanshawe, Oklahoma.

THE PRESIDING BISHOPRIC,

By G. L. DELAPP.

Approved by THE FIRST PRESIDENCY,
 By FREDERICK M. SMITH.

New Addresses

Ernest E. Thomas, 1219 Edwards, Beardstown, Illinois, bishop's agent for Central Illinois District.

Conference Minutes

SAINT LOUIS.—District conference met with Saint Louis Branch, November 28 and 29. Saturday afternoon the Department of Religious Education met at 2:30 for discussion of the problems of the church school. A very interesting paper was read by the supervisor, Sister Ella Lambkin, on the subject "The History of the Church School." Following the reading a general discussion of the paper was held. The primary and beginner grades of the church school had displays of posters, and handwork from their respective classes. The business session at 6 p. m. brought a representative group for the selection of district officers for the ensuing year. Elder C. A. Edstrom, district president, was in the presiding chair, with Apostle Paul M. Hanson acting as counselor. Elder Arthur Oakman, district missionary, was also present at the conference, and was asked to join in activities. The election of officers, resulted in Elder Roy Remington, being elected district president, with Clarence L. Archibald, and Prosper Carl, as counselors; Elder C. J. Remington was sustained as district secretary, and C. V. Dickens as district treasurer. E. C. Bell was sustained as district musical director. Sister Lambkin, as supervisor of the Department of Religious Education, chose as her assistants J. Edward Nicholson for the young people's division, Ruth Dickens for the children's division, and Sister Alice Grimes for the women's division. Brother C. V. Dickens was elected district publicity director. Apostle Hanson addressed the congregation at 11 a. m. on Sunday, taking his lesson from the words of the Prophet Isaiah: "Comfort ye my People." At the close of this service Brother Oakman, baptized two adults from the Maryland Heights Branch. These candidates were confirmed at the prayer service, and Brother C. L. Archibald was ordained to the office of elder, and William Knussman to the office of priest at the same session. A Mrs. Remmel lectured to the women's division on "Child Psychology" at their meeting. Apostle Hanson addressed the priesthood meeting at the same hour. Elder Arthur Oakman preached at 5:30 p. m. to an attentive audience on the topic "The Guarantee for Zion." The spirit of peace, and good-fellowship permeated the whole of the conference activities.

Our Departed Ones

BURR.—Abraham E. Burr was born in 1847. He died November 10, 1931, at Bay City, Michigan. His wife preceded him into the beyond last January. He leaves one son, Lewis, and three daughters: Mrs. McQuade and Mrs. Schram, of Bay City, and Mrs. Evelyn Beare, of Flint. He will be greatly missed by many who knew him as a servant of the Lord, for he was a missionary thirty-four years of his life. He was baptized a member of the church by J. J. Cornish at Coldwater, Michigan, May 20, 1889. Firm in the faith he passed away with a beautiful hope of eternal life. A large crowd filled the Bay City church as Brother E. S. White preached the sermon. Hubert Case was in charge.

ULMAN.—Gerald Ray Ulman was born January 22, 1925, son of David and Edna Ulman, of Bay City, Michigan. He was struck by a car driven by a sixteen-year-old boy who had no driver's license, and lived from 4 p. m. (the time of the accident) until 5 a. m. next day. His death occurred November 10. Leaves to mourn his parents, two brothers, two sisters, many friends and other relatives. The Bay City church was filled by a congregation, paying respect to the little boy and offering sympathy to the bereaved family. The sermon was by Elder Hubert Case, E. S. White in charge.

POMEROY.—Loretta V. McDonald was born at Newcastle, Ontario, Canada, August 9, 1846. She made her home there until 1863 when she moved to Illinois. In January, 1865, she united with the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints and was a faithful member during her long and cative life. July 4, 1865, she was married to David R. Pomeroy, at Millington, Illinois, and from there they went to Plano to make their home. Mr. Pomeroy was a dentist, and for many years had an office in Sandwich, but in later years he gave up dentistry to devote his time to farming. During the same time Mrs. Pomeroy conducted a millinery business in Plano. Doctor Pomeroy preceded his wife in death in 1914, and since that time Mrs. Pomeroy has lived in Plano until 1929, when she went to make her home with her son Paul, at South Bend, Indiana. She passed away November 30, 1931, after several years of failing health. Surviving are her son, and his wife Mildred and their two children, Susyanne and Tom, of South Bend. Funeral arrangements were in charge of Forest G. Hay, and the body was brought to Plano. Services were conducted at the Saints' church December 2, Elder J. M. Blakely officiating. Interment was in Plano Cemetery.

The Book for the Saints

Infallible Proofs

A unique and rare collection of over 100 spiritual communications extending from the rise of the church to last General Conference. Printed for Alvin Knisley by the Herald Publishing House. Mailed postpaid for $1.00. Send all orders to Alvin Knisley, Sibley, Mo.

Buy Your Farms Now

While they are cheap. Any size, best terms. Special attention to readers of the Saints' Herald.

CHAS. R. BOWMAN
 Butler, Mo.

The average man spends as much on his car as he does on his LIFE INSURANCE. Certainly your life is worth more to your family than your car—INSURE IT FULLY!

Call us and our representative will call.

INSURANCE DEPARTMENT
 OF THE CHURCH

(American Underwriters, Inc.)

Indep. 486

221 W. Lexington St.

THE SAINTS' HERALD

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS

MO depur
712 S Fuller
H O
SMITH

Entered as second-class matter at the post office at Independence, Missouri, under Act of March 3, 1879. Independence, Missouri. Price $2 a year in advance. Accepted for mailing at the special rate of postage provided in section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917; authorized July 21, 1921.

Volume 78

Independence, Missouri, December 23, 1931

Number 51

THE NATIVITY

And she brought forth her firstborn son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger; because there was no room for them in the inn. And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night. And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them: and they were sore afraid. And the angel said unto them, Fear not: for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Savior, which is Christ the Lord.—Luke 2: 7-11.

---

A FEW WORDS ON CHRISTMAS

The Editors

MY MINISTRY

Merl B. Grover

AN AVERAGE MEMBER SPEAKS

Arthur H. DuRose

THE GOSPEL FORUM PRESENTS

ADAM'S TRANSGRESSION

Peter M. Hinds

Christmas

Twilight—one bright star in the purple shadows. A manger in Bethlehem. A Holy Babe. Adoring shepherds. The first Christmas.

Once again a care-furrowed world turns to the commemoration of the birth of the Savior of men, sensing more keenly than in years before the universal need of Him, appreciating anew the word of the angel: "Unto you is born this day in the city of David a Savior, which is Christ the Lord."

To his church, Christmas this year takes on deeper significance. Our gifts, through sacrifice, have been given to Him. We have remembered that he gave himself that we might live more abundantly. He was the great Sacrifice. And we have accepted his invitation, "Follow me." We, too, have given our time and our ability and our money—we have sacrificed, and as a result, there is in our souls this year a new peace, a new understanding. This Christmas, as we watch the glow of candles brighten and as we hear the carols of the centuries, our hearts unite in prayer, that this spirit of love and harmony which we now feel will go with us throughout the year. We truly want that all the things we shall do shall be to the glory of God in the highest. We want to be his servants, his children, his friends.

Let the world, this Christmas, be at peace because it pauses to think of its Savior. May his church find new assurance in the "glad tidings of great joy," and strength in the great love of Jesus. May it know that He is leading in the ways of peace and understanding. May it give to the whole world His light.

L. B. M.

The Kingdom of God

A beautiful story is told of a king whose habit it was to travel with a few trusted companions into remote parts of his country, and how he endeared himself to his people by visiting them without ceremony, listening to their troubles, comforting them, talking to their children, and in general showing that he really loved those who called him king. His manner was blunt, his voice was gruff, but his heart was warm and kind.

One day the king came into a small village school where he found the teacher and students busy with lessons. Immediately all work was suspended while his majesty conducted an informal examination. He picked up one little flaxon-haired girl, whose blue eyes grew round with wonder, and set her on his knee.

"Tell me, my dear, into what three great kingdoms are all things divided?" he asked. The little girl knew her lessons, and it was easy to speak to so kind a king.

"The animal kingdom, the vegetable kingdom, and the mineral kingdom," she replied.

"And now tell me—to which kingdom do I belong?" For a minute the little girl was terrified. She looked to the face of her teacher, but he could give her no help. And then she had a happy thought.

"The kingdom of God!" she answered.

The king smiled with great pleasure and patted her head tenderly. "I hope you are right, my dear," he said as he put her down.

From the animal and mineral kingdoms we derive our bodies and draw our nourishment, and the scientists who have studied the bodies of men and animals tell us that there are many similarities between them. Yet there is that in us which belongs to none of these material realms, but to the kingdom of God.

The daily grind of work and worry, our long association with things of earth, the hard struggle for the necessities of life (and the mad scramble for the luxuries!) leave us with overwhelming impressions that we are of the material world. And yet in our moments of calmness and meditation we come to an understanding of the hungers and needs of the soul, unsatisfied by worldly possessions.

We are citizens of two worlds—this, and another. And not the least of these is our eternal home, the kingdom of God.

L. L.

Merry Christmas!

The Herald Editors, from the Editor in Chief down to the humblest of assistants, all join in wishing to all of our readers and to all of the members of the church, wherever they are or whatever they may be doing, a Merry Christmas—and more than that, a blessed Christmas. It is the time to rejoice, it is the time to give, it is the time to express kindness, appreciation, and love for one another. Let all see that not one is left cold or comfortless, that not one is forgotten. It is the will of Jesus that this Christmas joy should be to all men.

May you have joy, peace, the warmth of friendship, and the blessing of God's Spirit, is the wish of
THE EDITORS.

Times Have Not Robbed Us of These—

Our world wastes a great amount of nervous energy lamenting the passing of the "good old days of 1929," and wishing for the return of the material prosperity which permitted the riot of extravagance in which we then blindly and selfishly indulged. It has become the habit to bewail the money that was lost as if everything of value were taken from us in that one deprivation.

There are, however, some great values of life which neither time nor circumstance, depression nor reverses of fortune, can deprive us. The times have not robbed us of these. The love of God, the comfort of home, and the affection of friends; human kindness, gratitude, hope, and charity—these are our permanent and inalienable possessions. Nothing can take them from us, save death, which we believe to be only the opening of another door which leads eventually to a richer enjoyment of what is best.

Let us not grieve too badly for what we have lost. The more thoughtful ones will say that what we lost was not in all respects good for us. Amidst all our riches we had our worst period of decadence of morality and spiritual life. Hardship is returning us to our senses.

The really great and fine things of life—the times have not robbed us of them. Rather they have brought us to a new realization of the worth of finer things.

L. L.

Blue Pencil Notes

From the Mount of Transfiguration to the Valley of Temptation is but a little way—down. It seems farther climbing up.

Scandalitis needs a double operation—one on the tongue of the talker, one on the ear of the hearer.

"Ho, hum," soliloquized Deacon Goodentart, after the inveterate and continuous talker had departed, "I prefer people who speak nothing but the truth and don't try to tell all of that at one sitting."

Some people think we ought to carry modern business methods into our religion. Very well, carry them over into heaven and what will we have? Four per cent of the glorified ones will own eighty per cent of the golden crowns and harps and will rent them out to the rest of us at so much a month—when times are good and we have employment. Why not reverse the slogan and try carrying religion into modern business?

If this Universe itself should dissolve away and only the dark cold remain, I am sure that the angels would not miss the bright lights of Broadway, or the flaming forges of great steel mills, or yet the natural fires of Vesuvius. At night they would miss the innumerable twinkling lights of homes where men and women and children dwelt. Those are the lights that appeal to me at night; all through the city's suburbs, and scattered far in the countryside. In those homes yet must dwell many potentially honest and noble and virtuous men and women. They await the gospel story that after all is the only hope remaining for civilization, for home, and humanity. It would save them from the ruin of atheism, of iniquity, of confusion sweeping in upon the world. "Go preach the gospel," is still the first great commission.

In order to serve effectually something more is needed than the mere willingness to serve. Brother X is a mechanic, also a member of the priesthood. He had the misfortune, while working at his trade, to cut his hand with a sharp tool. A fellow worker immediately took from his own mouth a chew of tobacco and bound it upon the wound. The fellow worker had a desire to serve. His intentions were benevolent, but it had been far better for Brother X had he been bitten by a rattlesnake, for the fellow worker was suffering from a loathsome disease, the germs of which through the open wound were thrown directly into the blood stream of Brother X.

There is opened up to us by this incident a field for thought. The ministry in particular, working among the Saints and especially in the homes of the Saints, even though actuated by the desire to serve, may at any time sow the seeds of trouble and disaster in some one of their many forms unless they shall have more than the mere desire to be helpful. Had the workman in the little illustration just used been intelligent as well as in the possession of good will, he might have secured a dime's worth of iodine and an antiseptic bandage and been of real service to Brother X. Certainly, had he been in possession of a modicum of good sense, he would not have done the thing that he did. There is a great deal of wisdom in the commandment, "Be ye clean that bear the vessels of the Lord." Be clean so that no form of infection, either physical or spiritual, shall be transmitted to those who are served. Be clean, both in body and in mind. And there is a great deal of wisdom in the further commandment, "Be ye wise servants, harmless as doves." (Inspired Translation.) Be clean and wise so that the service rendered may always be helpful and never harmful.

How far is shining water seen!
How far the mountain peak!
Though fearsome canyons lie between,
They mark the goals we seek.
How far the noble heights appear
Of Christ and kindred souls!
Though long the road twixt there and here,
Those are our certain goals.

ELBERT A. SMITH.

Notes From the Field

Encouraging Letter From Richard Baldwin

The following letter, addressed to the First Presidency some weeks ago, is given here to show something of the work in the field among the Saints of the Northwest. It is an indication that the good work is going forward there.

Since last reporting we have finished up a week's meetings in Centralia, Washington. These were very well attended, although we did not advertise. We knew the Saints there needed encouragement, and help, and so we tried to give them all we could.

On the last Sunday we were there we held an all-day meeting, for the purpose of having the Saints there for an afternoon round table. They had had some difficulty in Centralia with the new plan of religious education, and during the week Sister Baldwin had held classes each night, and we felt that on Sunday afternoon a chance should be given to them to ask questions. During this round table the workers seemed to get a better understanding of the plan, and adopted certain measures that will make their church school work run more smoothly than it has hitherto. The whole program on this Sunday was an inspiring one.

Our next stop was Vancouver, Washington. This was our first visit to this branch, and we were agreeably surprised at what we found there. Somehow we had been given the impression that the Saints there were not very enthusiastic, but our experience has taught us that they are among the finest people we have in the church.

At the close of the week that we had planned to stay there, we found that the interest was growing, and on two of the evenings the church was full (which they said had never happened before) and so we decided to stay for another week. We did so with very gratifying results. In a short way, this is a summary of what was accomplished:

Through Sister Baldwin's lectures, based on the Church School Handbook, the new plan was adopted in its entirety, and a better understanding was gained in regard to it. There were five baptized, and several prospects were gained. Also, with very little effort at all, we took subscriptions for the church periodicals amounting to fifteen dollars. It just seemed that the Saints did not know of the good things in the church papers, and when they were told about them, nearly every family there subscribed for at least one of the periodicals.

Just now we are at Portland with a series of meetings in progress that promises to be very successful. We had planned for two weeks with the Portland Saints, but since last Wednesday night the church has been full each night, and the branch presidency and Brother McConley advised that at least another week should be spent here. We also feel this way, for there are many nonmembers attending. So this week we are putting on a special missionary effort, with missionary sermons. We began this last night with a full church.

A wonderful sacrament service was held yesterday. We tried out a new plan here. The morning hour was used entirely for the administering of the sacrament, and in the afternoon an opportunity was given the Saints, during a fellowship meeting, for the testimonies and prayers that have usually been given during their sacrament meeting. Everybody said it was the most wonderful service they have ever held. The church was entirely filled, every available space on the platform was used, and chairs were carried in from the lower auditorium to place in unoccupied spaces. A large picture of "The Last Supper" had been rented for the occasion, and during the day, when meetings were not in progress, the Saints crowded around the picture, giving it close study. The appreciation of it was told by the pastor, Brother Sorden, from the book by Bailey, The Gospel in Art. We are inclosing a program of this meeting, also, but it does not tell of the wonderful Spirit of God that was poured out, and of the perfect rendition of each number that was on the program. . . .

We have felt very bad over the release of some of our brethren, and especially because we find the Saints are so desirous of doing their duty, and learning it, and because of the interest that thinking people are paying to our work just now. The field is so white that we surely need all the help we can get. However, we believe that God is blessing our efforts, and giving us a special endowment to carry an additional share of the work. We have never been more blessed than just now in our presentation of the gospel.

We are very glad to hear that Apostle Edwards is to give us some help in the northwest field very soon. He will be welcomed by the Saints here, and we shall enjoy working with him.

Very sincerely yours,

RICHARD BALDWIN.

A Loan of Surplus District Funds

At the Southern Wisconsin district conference the delegates found that there were, in various departments, certain remainders of money not used for the needs of their business. A resolution was offered and passed unanimously to "send these unused amounts to the Presiding Bishopric, to be considered as a loan without interest, to be used in this time of need as the Bishop shall see fit to use it." The amount sent was $328.51. In this same loyal spirit people all through the church are helping, as organizations and as individuals.

"A Steadily Increasing Spirit of Consecration"

PRIESTHOOD ALL ACTIVE IN LONG BEACH, CALIFORNIA

The following is an extract from a letter addressed to President McDowell by J. L. Milnn, president of the Long Beach Branch, California.

We held a Thanksgiving worship service last Thursday morning. The Saints responded well in attendance and our worship was of the highest order. In fact, there was such a splendid Spirit present that the people asked to continue the prayer and testimony service after the worship service had ended. We did continue with much profit to all. I feel that every person present was given a new vision of the opportunities and responsibilities of members of the church.

Our offering was exceptionally large. Many of our members here are merely earning enough to keep going. We can be thankful, however, that most of our people in this locality have some form of employment. Of course you realize that everything here is affected in some way by the oil industry. We are not blessed with any people with independent incomes.

I find among the membership a steadily increasing spirit of consecration. One can not help sensing the fact that the Spirit of God is working with his people. I believe one of the greatest joys that have come to me in my seven years of work in the church is to be able to report that every able-bodied man in the priesthood in Long Beach is moving out and working. This is the first time I have seen such a condition in the branch and it is one of the many things I express thanks for.

We are making plans now to reach all of our members through the priesthood during December. Our aim is to get the needs of the church before the people and supply them with sacrifice envelopes. Our membership is so scattered and our workers so few (comparatively) it is impossible to visit all in a short space of time. We have decided to keep records of the people we are reaching through the services and give special attention in visiting those who do not attend services.

On the whole I feel very much encouraged. I believe I can sincerely say the Long Beach Branch will help in every way possible that the work of the church may go on. You brethren who are carrying the load have an interest in our prayers continually.

OFFICIAL

Notice

TO TITHE PAYERS AND CONTRIBUTORS LIVING IN CANADA

Due to the high exchange rates we have requested all bishops and agents in Canada to send their money to Bishop A. F. McLean whose address is 48 Fern Avenue, Toronto, Canada.

Those residing in Canada who have not been sending their contributions to bishops or agents in Canada, but have been sending direct to the Presiding Bishop's office are also requested to send them to Bishop McLean.

Money thus sent will be receipted for by Bishop McLean and will only be transferred to the Presiding Bishop's office in such amounts and at such times as may be necessary.

A considerable saving will undoubtedly be effected in this way.

THE PRESIDING BISHOPRIC,

By G. L. DELAPP.

We are always happy to receive advice and counsel.

May God richly bless you in your efforts,

Sincerely,

J. L. MILNN, BRANCH PRESIDENT.

LONG BEACH, CALIFORNIA.

How They Helped the Church

A news note comes from the branch at Calumet, Oklahoma. The Saints met at the home of Arthur Crownover, superintendent of the church school, and everybody, both old and young, to the number of sixty-eight people, picked cotton, turning the money thus earned over to the branch solicitor. In all they picked four bales of cotton, and were able to give a good sum for sacrifice offering. This is another demonstration of the old adage, "Where there's a will, there's a way."

VALOR

It is an everlasting duty—the duty of being brave. Valor is still value. The first duty for a man is that of subduing fear. We must get rid of fear; we can not act at all until then. A man's acts are slavish, not true, but specious; his very thoughts are false, he thinks, too, as a slave and a coward, till he has got fear under his feet. . . . A man shall and must be valiant; he must march forward and quit himself like a man. Now and always the completeness of his victory over fear will determine how much of a man he is.—Carlyle.

ORIGINAL ARTICLES

My Ministry

By Merl B. Grover

I am a minister of the gospel. I say that, not with any thought of boasting, but rather to qualify myself in some measure for certain statements I am about to make.

At different times in the twenty-odd years of my existence, I have, in certain towns and cities, been the sole representative of a great transportation corporation, a nation-wide communication system, and an international travel organization, respectively. In each of these representative capacities, my mistakes have been looked upon as the mistakes of the company; my friendly acts and accommodations were regarded as those of the firm. To the people with whom I had dealings, I was the sole point of contact between them and the millions of dollars of resources for which the company stood. I presume I usually looked upon my responsibility as a serious one, because any misstep on my part could easily prove costly to my firm both in standing and in dollars and cents. On the other hand, if I adhered closely to the long established principles of the organization, and added to those principles such minor items of personal conduct as would contribute toward friendly relations, I could materially help the great corporation for whom I was acting. In short, mine was the power to strengthen or weaken the work of the mighty organization of which I was such a small part.

I am a minister of the gospel. Ninety per cent of my life is spent in environment where I am the sole representative of the recognized church of God. To a considerable extent it must follow that my friends will be friends of the church; my moral mistakes will be regarded as products of that organization which holds first place in my life. With many people, I am the only point of contact between them and God's church. Wherever I am, the church through my conduct is on trial. As long as I am recognized by the church as her minister, men have every right to judge the church of Almighty God through the medium of my life. I represent. The manners of that representation are manifold. It might be in the pulpit; it might be at my desk during the week; it might be as a teacher in the church school; but my personal interpretation is most sternly tried when I carry the Master's church into the home of a member during a ministerial visit. The tiny store of valuable experience which I have been able to accumulate during the few years of my ministry has been chiefly augmented by such visits. Here, above all, my representation must assume a positive attitude. Indifferent members burden me with every form of excuse; injured pride would have me believe that the personal feelings of men are of greater importance than the Church of God; confidences are shared; tears sometimes flow;—cold superiority, angry words, broken hearts,—all are factors in the range of my task as a visiting minister. Through my ministry the church comforts, admonishes, pleads, warns, and teaches its people. The unpleasant tasks form as great a part of the undertaking as do the pleasant ones. The calling asks and requires the very best I can give.

I have represented firms whose wealth would pay the church debt a hundredfold. I have, in the service of those organizations, acted as their point of contact with people of great worldly renown, and have in such instances, felt deep responsibility. Today I am a minister of God. The world doesn't know that, but I do, and in my heart feel that I recognize a greater responsibility than I have ever known. I want to succeed in life; I want to be an intelligent man; I want to be a kind husband and thoughtful parent, but above all, I want to represent Jesus.

An Average Member Speaks

BEING AN IMAGINARY DISCOURSE BY A CHRISTIAN WHO HAS DECIDED TO TURN OVER A NEW LEAF

By Arthur H. DuRose

Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen:

My name is Mr. Average Member. I have belonged to this church for a number of years, and have enjoyed almost, if not all the advantages which can come to a person who belongs to a church. I was baptized by one having authority, had hands laid upon me for confirmation and the gift of the Holy Ghost. I have enjoyed the fellowship of the church including partaking of the communion, and sometimes have heard the voice of God speaking to his people. I have attended the services of the church more or less regularly and have become acquainted with quite a number of very nice folks. Some of them are here tonight. Quite frequently there are social gatherings at the church and I usually enjoy myself very much. I have been privileged to send my children to Sunday school where they were taught about being good and all that sort of thing. Yes, I have had a real nice time these past years, but you know a few days ago I was afraid it was all over.

Ladies and Gentlemen, a few days ago Deacon Goodentart suggested that I should turn over a new leaf for the year of 1932. I don't know why I should;

I haven't done anything so I don't know why the present leaf isn't all right.

"Yes," he said, "that is just what is the matter, you haven't done anything." And he just about insinuated that if I wanted to be in good standing in 1932, I should do something to even up for all the benefits I have as a church member. Why, he even inferred that I was selfish because I was willing to let the church pass on some of the good things to other people without my help.

Then you know I met the elder down on the street the other day and he kind of thought that I ought to take more interest in the church, that I ought to attend more regularly. Why I always go to church except when it rains or snows or something like that. Or sometimes we have visitors or maybe it's a nice day and I go for a ride, but outside of those few things I always go to church.

And that's not all, he thought I ought to pick out a job in the church work and work at it. He thought I might help out the deacon, or sing in the choir, or teach a class, or do some visiting or something like that, but I told him that I didn't want anything to do in running the church, that I was just content to attend church once in a while. And then he said, "Oh, you are one of those nominal members who just want your name on the books. You want to enjoy all and give nothing."

That got my goat! and I was just going to tell him a mouthful when he said, "You think you enjoy going to church, you think you are a Christian, you think you are a Latter Day Saint, you think when you die you'll go straight to heaven, but you are wrong. Christians—real Christians—are conspicuous by the fact that they are always anxious to pass on to others the blessings they themselves are enjoying."

Well, that kinder set me to thinking.

Oh, I forgot to tell that when I was talking to the deacon—you know Deacon Goodentart—he told me about the church having boxes of envelopes for making contributions to the church. You know I always thought that religion was free, but the deacon wanted me to pledge myself to pay so much a week so that he could pay the light and coal bills. He thought a dollar a week would be all right for me to pay. Why, you know that's terrible, he must think I want to buy the church.

I always give ten or fifteen cents, or maybe twenty-five cents in the collection if I have that much left on Sunday.

Then he got to telling me about tithing, about paying one tenth of my increase so that the missionaries could be sent out with the gospel.

Well, I just up and told him that I didn't have any increase and besides doesn't the Bible say that the missionaries go out without purse or scrip?

"Yes," he said, kind of quiet like, "the missionaries do go out without purse or scrip, but we can't leave their children and wives at home to starve."

Then he says, "Brother Member, when you joined the church you were not very well off." And I said, "No, I was hard up in those days."

"And now," he said, "you have a nice house, nice furniture, and an auto." "Yes," I said, kind of proud like, "the world has been good to me." He looked at me kind of queer like and says, "Did it ever occur to you that God has been good to you? Do you realize that the difference between what you had ten years ago and what you have now is your increase? Do you think it is fair to God to take all that increase and not even give him his tithe?"

Well, to make a long story short, friends, between the deacon and the elder, they had me thinking, and now it is come to the beginning of a new year and I made up my mind that I'm going to be a real honest to goodness church member, in fact, as well as in name.

I'm going to attend church regularly.

I'm going to do my share to support the local church.

I'm going to assist in this work, and you know what that means, "No one can assist in this work except he is humble and full of love, having faith, hope, and charity."

And God being my helper I'm going to pay my tithing.

Oblation Remarks

By J. S. Kelley

We go into the month of December again, the last month of the year. What a wealth of material for thought and reflection this month has for us. We may examine our past year, our mistakes that have been made and determine upon improvement.

To us this first Sunday of the month is a reminder that December is set apart as a month of special sacrifice, a supplement to the November sacrifice that brought a whole-hearted response on the part of the Saints everywhere.

This month carries with it for everyone the thoughts of Christmas and its attendant joys. And, as we reflect upon Christmas, the anniversary of Christ's birth, perhaps we can more fully appreciate the meaning of such a momentous time. Thoughts of Christmas should carry with it far more than the jingle of its bells.

One of the finest resolves that can be carried out for this anniversary season is to do some Christlike deed or to make a gift to Christ that his work may go forward in the world.

We are reminded of Christ's estimate of giving as shown by an incident related in the Gospel of Luke. He saw the rich men casting their gifts into the treasury, and he saw also the widow casting there her two mites. His heart must have been touched as he said, "Of truth I say unto you, that this poor widow hath cast in more than they all: for all these of their abundance cast in unto the offerings of God; but she of her penury cast in all the living that she had."

As we embark for this month of sacrifice—this month of the anniversary of Christ—it is appropriate that we think first of our oblation, of its purpose—that suffering and need must be of first consideration; that our first gift be to comfort those who may be disheartened through lack of the necessities to sustain life.

The Christmas "Something"

By Mitchel M. Carter

It is not an unusual thing that we find something in the course of human progress which we can not name. Especially is this true of the experiences which are in the realm of feeling and emotion. So it is, that when we ask certain questions, we have an answer which is not wholly correct as a name, but which has meaning. Many such queries crowd into one's mind at this season of the year.

What is it that makes one suddenly remember an old school "buddy" whom he has almost forgotten and go about feeling dissatisfied until a little Christmas card is on its way to that half-forgotten friend?

What is it that causes the wayward children who have left the family nest to return to the home of Ma and Pa to spend one day of the year?

What is it that makes it possible for thousands of brain-racked students to go home to see the old circle of friends for two weeks?

What was it that made the German and Canadian soldiers throw down their guns and begin playing ball on the shell torn wastes of No-Man's Land while officers stood about and stormed because the narrow bonds of patriotism and duty were broken for an hour on that memorable Christmas day in nineteen seventeen?

What is it that thrills one with anticipation which can not be controlled and sets one into happy bustling activity after a long period of inactivity?

What is it that causes little Johnnie to bring in the coal and kindling without the usual nagging?

What is it that makes the tight-fisted old Scrooges loosen up and make a sincere attempt to smile?

What is it that makes a weary and depressed

Weekly Health Letter

Number 22

The Ear and Its Relation to Health and Disease.—5

By A. W. Teel, M. D., Church Physician

Many cases of acute inflammation of the middle ear will apparently get well and then, by a slight infection of some kind, will reassert itself and become chronic, or the patient may become so accustomed to the deafness produced by the acute attack, especially if one ear only is affected, and be so little inconvenienced, possibly by a slight discharge, that treatment is delayed until the case has become chronic. As the perforation that has been made through the eardrum furnishes sufficient drainage, no urgent symptoms may arise for a long time.

In more pronounced cases of a chronic nature, there may be an annoying fullness in the head, more or less radiating pains and accompanied by headache, which may be relieved by the accumulated discharge finding its way out, thus causing a disappearance of the symptoms. If treatment is neglected, polypus frequently occurs and may be seen, by the physician, protruding through the external auditory canal, or the first indication may be a facial paralysis, or there may be symptoms of some intracranial complication. In long neglected cases, it is quite common to have eczema or furunculosis of the external ear. The discharge may be either odorless or offensive, thin or purulent; even minute particles of bones, loaded with nearly all kinds of germs, are present. In many cases catarrhal or diphtheria germs have been found. A microscopic examination of the discharge is of value to the physician, as by that, he is able to determine the character of the bacteria that is doing the damage. If tubercular germs are present, the discharge is usually thin, having a peculiar, offensive smell, and is usually irritating to the surrounding tissues; it sometimes is of a bloody consistency. The character of the perforation through the eardrum is very valuable, for diagnosis and prognosis, to the physician, but it has no place in this article.

From what has already been said, it is evident that a chronic, running ear is very dangerous. A world turn its face upward to smile and sing joyously of a Babe born in a manger?

What is the answer to all of these queries? It is that intangible something which mankind, for want of a better expression, calls The Christmas Spirit.

person's life, in this condition, is always in jeopardy, yet it may last for years without any apparent physical harm to the individual. If complicated with sinusitis, the disease is more hazardous. An obstructed nose may be the cause of a continuation of such a condition. If tuberculosis is a cause, the disease is almost incurable. If a cure is at all possible, it will be necessary to build up the patient's general health. An X-ray examination should be made in all cases, and should there be a diseased mastoid, a mastoid operation should be performed. I am quite conservative concerning surgical measures, and do not believe that they will solve the problem in all cases, but in case of bone involvement of the mastoid, the mastoid operation may prevent deeper trouble, such as meningitis, brain abscess, or some other serious complication.

The branches or district nonresident groups which reported three or more baptisms each were the following:

East Jordan, Michigan .....	22
Gaylord, Michigan .....	10
Olive, Ontario .....	8
New Philadelphia, Ohio .....	7
Paris, Tennessee .....	7
Long Beach, California .....	6
Fargo, North Dakota .....	5
Philadelphia, Pennsylvania .....	5
Seattle and B. C. nonresident .....	5
Columbus, Ohio, First .....	4
Foraker, Oklahoma .....	4
Limerick, Ohio .....	4
Ravenna, Ontario .....	4
Detroit, Michigan .....	3
Freedom, Oklahoma .....	3
Shenandoah, Iowa .....	3
Sterling, Colorado .....	3

Report of the Department of Statistics for November

By Carroll L. Olson, Statistician

The reports received during the month of November have resulted in the following changes in the total enrollment of the church:

Total enrollment of the church, November 1, 1931 .....	110,339
November baptisms .....	200
Gains from unknown .....	9
Gains by correction .....	14
Total gain .....	223
Deaths .....	64
Expulsions .....	14
Losses by correction .....	2
Total loss .....	80
Net gain during the month .....	143
Total enrollment of the church, December 1, 1931 .....	110,482

The following miscellaneous reports were also received:

Transfers .....	521
Blessings .....	140
Marriages .....	80
Ordinations .....	44
Divorces .....	15
Silenced .....	1

The total of 200 baptisms were distributed as follows:

Zion and the stakes .....	24
United States and Canada outside the stakes .....	175
Hawaiian Mission .....	1
Total .....	200

A Declaration of the King's Law

By Kenneth B. Curtis

III.—WHAT IS COMMUNITY STEWARDSHIP?

The author wishes to raise certain principles and problems for thought and discussion. If any reader has observations to make upon these matters, both the author and the editors would welcome written comment. We request contributors to assist us by seeing that manuscripts are carefully organized and prepared.—Editors.

What is community stewardship? Or better, are you really interested in the establishing of Zion—God's kingdom on earth? If you are out for the "almighty dollar," you will not be interested in this article, but if you are seeking the kingdom of God with the purpose of helping your fellow man, simply read on. Further, I wish to mention the following lines are those of a student. However, it must be remembered that God has only of late commanded its establishment in the evolution of man's growth of understanding. Therefore, we, as a body, may be termed students alike. The beauty of it is, we will all share the mistakes and successes together, laughing when there is something to laugh at and crying when we are hurt, and above all, worshipping our great and merciful Creator in one body.

If you remember, we have indicated in the last two articles that stewardship was prophesied to come, and that the present day condition of the world may be solved by its inauguration; but it must needs be done in God's own way. (Doctrine and Covenants 101: 2.) It is up to us to obey.

For the benefit of those who feel skeptical towards stewardship, I suggest that for the present we forget our silver dollars and the giving of our surplus, or what our rights may be, and what they may not be, and trust to the laws of compensation. The church as a body, entering on a stewardship basis must remember that the scales of balance will rock up and down at first, but we must have faith that God will gradually quiet them down to their respective levels, and then the law of compensation will decide our needs and just wants; also our surplus. Free yourselves of the worry of dictation by a few. God at no time in the history of the world took a man's free agency from him, and certainly he has no intentions of doing so now. The big point in stewardship is to seek both yours and your brother's welfare at the same time, and when you have grasped that law of "live and let live," things will in themselves dictate. Still another point of great importance to be remembered is that stewardship without prayer, or that spark of divine aid, can not be a success. If you look at it from the viewpoint of the flesh without the covenant, or as a temporal plan only, it will fail. It is a plan wherein the will or spirit rules the body (lusts of the flesh). Therefore, in order that the group will be assured of each one's hardy cooperation at all times. God, in his infinite wisdom, has ordained that each individual will make a sacred covenant promising to allow his or her own will to rule his or her body and to deny the lusts thereof for the good of all concerned. Not until then does God reach your hearts as is spoken of in Jeremiah 31: 33, "I will put my law in their inward parts, and write it in their hearts"; so without this divine aid or spark, as mentioned before, stewardship would fail. To prove it, study Russia's plight. Redism, bolshevism—it is a form of stewardship without divine aid; in short a failure and a detriment to all mankind, noble as the attempt may be. Therefore look at stewardship from a spiritual standpoint of a man's morals, where the will of the people govern their bodily lusts. Then and not until then will you have successful community stewardship.

Now for clearness' sake, suppose we liken stewardship not as a baseball game, as is sometimes done, but as a marriage affair where love is supposed to reign supreme. To begin with, you are in doubt as to its outcome, even tears may be shed, but all must seek it, hoping for comfort and happiness; that is, if they are in the right frame of mind. There has been an engagement, or a period of time wherein you have considered it seriously. Usually a ring or token is given (Baptism—Matthew 22: 10, 14) to show you are interested. Finally you make application in writing (inventory—Doctrine and Covenants 85: 45) as to your intentions to join. After a day or two of examination on the part of the authorities you make a solemn covenant before authorized officers to give your thoughts to another. "For as a young man marrieth a virgin, so shall thy sons marry thee; and as the bridegroom rejoiceth over the bride, so shall thy God rejoice over thee." (Isaiah 62: 5.) Then comes the honeymoon—a time of rejoicing wherein you thank God for his mercies in that he has led you to a knowledge of the great ordinance wherein you may now seek to do his will on a Godly plane, and rejoice with the church as one body in the happiness that will come from working together. You seek to get settled. You choose your new home, and oh, how sweet it is to feel that your neighbor is interested. If you wish to leave the front door key in his possession while you make a trip, you may feel in perfect safety, or vice versa with the neighbor. Also if you should fall and bump your nose, you can ask him to help you up.

So after he had washed their feet, and had taken his garments, and was set down again, he said unto them, Know ye what I have done to you? Ye call me Master and Lord: and ye say well; for so I am. If I then, your Lord and Master, have washed your feet; ye also ought to wash one another's feet. For I have given you an example, that ye should do as I have done to you. Verily, verily, I say unto you, The servant is not greater than his lord; neither he that is sent greater than he that sent him. If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them.—John 13: 12-17.

And so it goes, the first year is the hardest; (you understand, getting used to each other) but weather that time through and God in his mercies will bless you with plenty. That's his promise.

May I ask here, did anyone dictate to you in any way except in the matter of routine business? Please remember you must be in love (have the kingdom of God at heart) or else you can not succeed. A house divided against itself can not stand. As in some cases, marriages are a success, others are broken; and so will stewardship covenants succeed and fail; and as the judge seeks to pacify or bring about an agreement, if possible, in cases of failures, so will God help therein. But still if it is impossible, then there will be just another broken home.

Also, as marriage is impossible without a covenant, likewise according to law, is stewardship. There is happiness and unhappiness; there are smiles and tears, and there are heartaches and love. You have faults and so has the next one—give and take. All goes to create wants and supplies in our world of variety. Together we will seek the kingdom of God on earth. When Christ comes to wipe our tears away he will pronounce upon us, "Thou are a faithful steward whom his Lord shall make ruler over his household, to give them their portion of meal in due season."

THE GOSPEL FORUM

Under this heading we shall be glad to receive and publish articles and letters of interest to our readers on the doctrine and work of the church. Writers are responsible for their own views. Other views on subjects discussed here will be received if of sufficient interest.

Adam's Transgression

By Peter M. Hinds

In reading the Herald of September 16, 1931, I was especially interested in an article entitled, "The Fall of Man—Was It Necessary?" But there are some statements and conclusions therein that look somewhat inconsistent to me, and I would like to offer a few comments along that line.

In the first paragraph we read, "Did God design the fall of man and the entrance of death and wretchedness and sorrow on the earth?" And then the answer is given, "Without doubt this is exactly what he intended, although not as ends within themselves, but as means to an end impossible otherwise to accomplish."

Now it seems rather curious to me that it would be necessary to do evil in order to become righteous, or that God who has infinite wisdom and can not look upon sin with the least degree of allowance, designed to give two commandments of such a contrary nature that man was compelled to transgress one in order to observe the other one.

He commanded Adam and Eve to multiply and replenish the earth, then commanded them not to eat of the fruit of a certain tree in the garden. (See Genesis 1: 30, and 2: 19-22, Inspired Translation.) But are we to assume from these mandates that man could not have observed the first one without transgressing the other one, or never have learned wisdom or developed his intellectual faculties except through disobedience?

Let us review this whole matter in the light of reason and self-evident facts, and see if we can get any additional information or a more consistent view of this interesting subject. Our first parents were created and placed in a beautiful garden where they could live and enjoy the pleasures of existence, and obviously they were created intelligent though necessarily inexperienced, like a little child when it is born into the world, who has to learn and acquire knowledge by experience with the things it comes in contact with.

So it was with our first parents. It was necessary for them to learn by precept upon precept as their mental faculties developed, and their capacity to receive instruction and digest knowledge became enlarged. Some people, however, believe that Adam and Eve were created instantaneously with a complete, ready-made education. But this assumption is so obviously contrary to all natural laws of development and principles of existence, that we will not take up the necessary space here to discuss it.

Therefore the Lord began their training in the very beginning of their careers while their minds were still virginal and susceptible to impressions and instruction. And they being in a very childlike state of innocence and immature perceptive judgment, the Lord first gave them some very simple commandments adapted to their limited understanding, precepts that any little child could readily comprehend, something they could grasp even in their infantile simplicity.

Then in order that they might be thoroughly tested in this elementary training, it was necessary that they should be tempted by having good and evil placed before them, that they might exercise their free agency and will power in choosing their own course of action to some extent. And one of the easily understood laws given to them in the garden, was that they should not eat of the fruit of a certain tree, not even touch it lest they should die. (See Genesis 2: 20-22; 3: 9, Inspired Translation.)

After instructing them about what they should do, and warning them of the consequences that would result from disobedience, the Lord left them alone to think over the matter for themselves. And while they were thus pondering over that declaration, the tempter came to entice them into disobedience.

If the tempter had gone directly to Adam, evidently Adam would have refused to consider such a proposition. But Satan knew of a more effective way to accomplish his designs, therefore he went to the woman first, while she was alone temporarily perhaps, she being of a more impressionable nature, with a desire to investigate and learn for herself.

Thus by appealing to her eagerness to learn, and winning her confidence, he persuaded her to partake of the forbidden fruit and to give some of it to her husband also. And how many young women of our day have been enticed to enter forbidden paths by leading them to believe that knowledge necessary to their welfare and happiness, could better be obtained that way?

Now if they would have resisted this temptation and the impulse to do wrong, and insisted on keeping the divine law, they would have strengthened their characters and individualities, and gradually developed their mental faculties better than they did through transgression, for development of character comes by resisting temptation instead of yielding to it.

But if they disobeyed those divine laws, they would have to be corrected and taught obedience even by punishment if necessary, for if they would not learn by precept, they must learn by bitter experience and the suffering brought upon themselves by reason of their transgression. But this does not necessarily imply that the Lord purposely intended that they should transgress any of his commandments, or that it was necessary for them to commit sin in order to learn wisdom or develop their personal qualities.

But let us examine carefully the scriptural texts quoted by the writer of the aforesaid article to substantiate his hypothesis, and see if we are justified in so interpreting them. On page 876 of said Herald we read, "And he [Satan] sought to beguile Eve, for he knew not the mind of God." (Genesis 3:7, Inspired Translation.) Then he concludes that Satan was unconsciously doing in accordance with the mind of God when he tempted Eve. Of course Satan did not know the mind of God in being permitted to so tempt her, nor understand that though man might fall into sin, yet through his superior wisdom, the Lord could bring good out of it the same as he can make all our mistakes and transgressions become stepping stones to worthy achievement if we will be directed by his instructions and advice.

But could not the Lord have accomplished his purposes just as well or even better, if man had remained true to the trust given him at first? The Lord knew beforehand just how everything would work out, and anticipated the emergency that would inevitably arise, and made suitable provision to meet that condition. So does he deal with all the varied experiences we have to pass through when we fail to keep his laws.

Again we read on same page of the Herald:

The fall of man was a necessity for a number of reasons, First, it brought him to know good from evil, which he could not otherwise have known. . . . Second, because without the fall, they could not have had children to people the earth. . . . Third, they would know no joy for they would know no misery or sorrow, they must taste the bitter before they could appreciate the sweet. Let us examine each one of those reasons separately.

First, is it really necessary for us to commit sin in order to learn knowledge? Of course it is necessary to sin to acquire some kinds of knowledge; for instance, we could never learn what it feels like to be drunk or go on a spree, unless we partook of intoxicating liquor sufficient to produce such a senseless condition, nor could we experience the sensations resulting from the use of narcotic drugs unless we indulged in them. But is such knowledge essential to our eternal welfare? If so, then the more we sin—the wiser we become.

Of course it is necessary that there should be opposition in all things, and that we have obstacles to overcome. (See 2 Nephi 1:81-90.) But would there not have been plenty of opposition to contend with in our daily intercourse with our fellow men, in our associations with each other? And we would have our own various inclinations to deal with, direct and control, and the need to resist all impulses or desires to be selfish or take undue advantage of the circumstances of others, or indulge in any kind of wickedness.

And the cultivation of good habits and the effort necessary in acquiring the knowledge essential for our advancement toward perfect development and the struggle for worthy achievement in the things worth while, would give us sufficient opposition to contend with, even though we missed the knowledge and experience to be gained by partaking of the wickedness that might surround us where some others might naturally give way to selfish desires and inclinations.

The Savior learned obedience by the things he suffered, or experienced with the things he came in contact with. Yet he was without sin, and possessed knowledge far beyond that of any human being, and he was made perfect in his mission and became the author of our salvation. (Hebrews 5:8, 9.) And he did not have to transgress any of his Father's commandments at the beginning of his existence here, to attain that worthy position either.

And the angels in heaven also had their free agency, and those that kept their first estate of purity and innocence, learned wisdom and acquired knowledge far greater than any of us know in this world. But the angels which kept not their first estate of righteous purity, fell into the lowest depths of sin and degradation instead of mounting higher in intellectual development. (See Jude 1:6.)

And the same principle holds good with all human beings also, we can learn many things by wrongdoing, and experience the exhilarating sensations of wickedness to a great extent, but when we suffer the consequences from that kind of activities, we are apt to see the urgent need of repentance and reformation of character, but we can never learn from such a source the higher spiritual principles of eternal life. So why should we think Adam was an exception to this natural, universal and immutable law of eternal development?

The free agency of man was not the result of Adam's transgression, but his fall was the result of exercising his free agency in choosing the wrong course of action. The function of free agency was given to Adam when he was told not to eat of the certain fruit, yet could take his choice in the matter. (See Genesis 2:20-22, Inspired Translation; also Doctrine and Covenants 36:7.) Obviously this free agency is the same principle as that given to the angels in the first place, and they could use that agency in choosing between good and evil. (See Doctrine and Covenants 28:10.)

We further read on page 877 of the same Herald, about the middle of the first column, that Adam's transgression brought no condemnation to mankind whatever, but the scriptures teach us that because of that sin, they had to leave their Edenic home and till the ground and earn their bread by the sweat of their faces, and become subject to sickness, pain, and sorrow, and even the temporal death itself. And the earth was placed under a curse whereby it would bring forth thistles and thorns, and evidently this included all other pests, such as obnoxious insects, weeds and other offensive things. That through these strenuous conditions they would learn the necessity of obeying divine and natural laws.

Before their fall they could converse with their Creator face to face and learn lessons at the feet of the angels, but now what a change in the conditions to be confronted. For a more complete and comprehensive description of this early period of the world's history, read pages 92 and 93 of Voice of Warning, seventh revised American edition. Still the Lord loved his children and provided a suitable plan whereby they could be brought back to their former estate before him.

Of course this one particular sin was not the cause of all the other acts of wickedness that has prevailed since that time, for each one of Adam's posterity is also a free moral agent, and when he does wrong he has to suffer for his wickedness accordingly, and would have had to do that whether Adam ever sinned in the first place or not. But that first sin opened the gate by which other sins entered the world, and even if Adam had never sinned, and if any of his offspring had nevertheless done so, (and obviously some of them would) then the result would have been just as serious for the transgressor as it would be under any other conditions.

If a mother forbade her little girl to go over to a neighbors to play with other children where one of them were sick with a contagious disease, and the child disobeyed and became contaminated by exposure, the result would be quite serious even though the act of disobedience might be a very trivial matter when considered by itself. Its effect would be detrimental just the same.

There was no harm in eating the apple as a deed by itself, but it was the act of disobedience to a command that produced the sinful effect. If a mother told her little boy not to take a piece of cake from the pantry, and the child disobeyed her, he would feel a sense of guilt, not because of any harmful ingredient in the cake, but from the psychological effect of disobedience on the conscience and mental faculties.

Sin is the transgression of the law. (1 John 3: 4.) And whether we realize the significance of the law or not, it effects us anyhow according to the nature of the act. If a mother told her little child not to touch the hot stove, and the child disobeyed her and then had to suffer the pain resulting from that act, it would not be a punishment inflicted by the mother, but the result of a broken natural law. So it was with our first parents, they disobeyed a divine command and had to bear the result of that act of disobedience.

But the aforesaid writer quotes Genesis 4: 10, Inspired Translation, which reads: "Blessed be the name of God for because of my transgression my eyes are opened." Yes, Adam's eyes were opened by his transgression all right; he obtained a knowledge of evil but not of righteousness. He learned the thrill of disobedience and the effect of sin on his nature much quicker by that act, so inferred that he was greatly benefited by his experience, and made that statement as quoted.

But might he not have learned all the natural principles of righteousness, and acquired all branches of knowledge essential for him to know, if he had continued to follow the course of instruction the Lord intended to give him as fast as his natural faculties developed the capacity to receive it, though it might require a much longer time to accomplish it.

And Eve, also being in a similar condition of inadequate knowledge and limited experience, and hearing that sentiment expressed by Adam, naturally reached the same conclusion. But if a high school girl with even greater knowledge of the ways of the world and its many enticements, would make a misstep, and think from the effect she experienced that the way to learn good was by commencing with evil, would that be correct and she be justified in making such a decision?

And how many young people follow that theory even in this age of the world, and think they know so much more than their parents? And perhaps they do as far as wickedness is concerned, but can they become better moral people or acquire greater knowledge of the more important ethics of life because of that experience? Would a wise parent want his daughter (or son either for that matter), to partake of evil practices or travel on the "primrose path" of vice in order that she might become better qualified by her wider experience and broader scope of knowledge, for church work and social activities?

And now in regard to the second phase of this subject, viz. that they never could have had any children without learning how it was done by first tasting of wickedness, the aforesaid writer quotes 2 Nephi 1: 111-115, which reads, "If Adam had not transgressed, they would have had no children. . . . Adam fell that men might be." Yes, that statement is quite true because Eve had already sinned, and evidently Adam realized that if he did not sin too, they would be eternally separated and he would be left alone, then they could never have children, therefore he transgressed also that he might go with her and share her fate and enjoy her society.

But Eve did not sin that men might be, or because it was necessary to do so for the sake of future generations. She sinned because she was deceived, a very different reason entirely from the motive Adam had in mind at that time. (See 1 Timothy 2: 13-14.) We have no reason to assume that there was any virtue in the substance of the forbidden fruit that would effect reproduction or enlighten them regarding the method by which it could be brought about. They would have to learn that by proper instruction.

Though Adam was the first man, he was not the last or only one to do wrong for the sake of a woman. But if man was as eager to follow her lead upward as he is to follow it downward, what a different world this would be. For while woman is of a more sensitive and confiding nature, and has often had her confidence betrayed, yet she is usually of a more refined and spiritual disposition than the members of the sterner sex.

Another text quoted to support necessary transgression, is found in Revelations 13: 8, referring to the Lamb (Christ), slain from the foundation of the world. Of course the plan of redemption was designed before this world was created, not because God intended that man should sin, but because through his infinite foreknowledge he saw that man would yield to temptation, and he provided the divine plan to meet that emergency. Just so he overrules the destinies of his people in all ages of the world, even though he does not approve of their evil deeds that brings distress upon them.

And how many times has God warned his children of the danger that would result from wandering in forbidden paths and partaking of the evils of the world, and though they did not always heed that warning, still he would provide a way of escape. But sometimes when a person is strongly inclined to do wrong and persists in following his wicked ways, it is necessary to let him go on until he learns better by the things he has to suffer. Like the prodigal son that Jesus refers to in the Bible, he would not heed his father's advice so had to learn obedience by suffering.

The third reason advanced for believing that God intended that man should sin, is based on the text found in 2 Nephi 1: 13, where we read that if they had not transgressed, they would have remained in a state of childish innocence, having no joy for they would know no misery, doing no good for they would know no evil, and if they did not taste the bitter they could not appreciate the sweet.

Of course if they had to always remain in that condition of infantile ignorance like a newborn child, and never advance beyond such a state of illiterate existence, then they could never have learned good from evil or been capable of acquiring knowledge, nor even appreciating the blessing resulting from a conscious state of existence. But would they necessarily have to always remain in such a stationary, nonprogressive condition unless they transgressed a divine command?

And if they were created with intelligent mental faculties, and the natural propensities inherent in human beings, could they not have grown and developed intellectually under the proper instruction just like any normal child born into the world since then? If not, why not? And as they grew older and became experienced, and gained more mature thoughts and realized higher ideals, they would naturally have met various obstacles and difficulties in adjusting themselves to the many individual and social usages and customs of those they came in contact with.

And surely the Lord has sufficient wisdom to instruct his children on righteous principles, and then the more diligent they were in observing his mandates, the wiser and more proficient they would become—just as the Lord dealt with the angels in heaven while they were young and impressionable. Evidently there was no Satan to tempt any of them in the beginning of their careers, yet they developed into highly intellectual beings.

And Lucifer was a being of great wisdom and power while in this perfect state, but by letting his ambition to exercise authority over others become abnormally enlarged, and allowing his selfish desires to overrule his better qualities, his sinfulness gradually led him to give way to other evil inclinations that finally made him into a very wicked being. And in order to gratify his inordinate ambition to be exalted to head rulership, he sought to win others over to his cause to fight against God, to usurp that divine position from its rightful occupant to gratify his own personal desires. And for this reason had to be cast out of heaven and his followers with him.

But the objector may say, "Wasn't Adam inspired by the Holy Spirit, and whatever he said was correct?" Yes, he was inspired to a large degree, but still he was a man of very limited observation and experience, and but a partially developed understanding, and might easily have formed some mistaken ideas on some things, especially in the early part of his life. And how many people in our day, yes, even in our own church, that have been more or less inspired at times, and had a much wider range of experience than Adam had, yet have many erroneous and conflicting opinions and ideas on some subjects?

"But can it be possible that any of the inspired writers in the scriptures later on, especially in the Book of Mormon, be mistaken in any way or on any subjects?" the reader may further ask. Obviously none of them were infallibly correct in all their ideas and conclusions; they were but human and comprehended various things according to their limited human understanding as they gathered knowledge from their varied experiences and different environments. Even the Prophet Moroni concedes the fact that scriptural writers can be mistaken at times. He says in his preface to the Book of Mormon, "And now if there are faults, they are the mistakes of men; wherefore condemn not the things of God, that ye may be found spotless at the judgment seat of Christ."

And neither should we misunderstand these things more than we can help, but the human intellect is not sufficiently developed to comprehend all things correctly at once, nor will perfect understanding ever be attained in this short life. The Apostle Paul says in 1 Corinthians 13:9-12, "Now we know in part, but when that which is perfect is come, then that which is in part shall be done away. . . . For now we see through a glass darkly, but then shall we see face to face."

"But how can we know just what ideas to accept or dogmas to reject, if those ancient writers were not infallibly correct in everything they wrote?" the reader may question. My answer is, by using our reasoning powers and intellectual faculties in comparing all scriptural statements with demonstrated facts, keeping in mind the general trend of the scriptural teachings, and the fact that all truths must and will harmonize. As Bishop E. L. Kelley once said through the Herald, "Each text of scripture should be taken with all other texts bearing on the same subject, and all interpreted in harmony with the general theme being investigated." I quote from memory and may not have worded it exactly as he wrote it, but the sentiment expressed therein is correct.

I have in my library, a small book published against our church, and one of the arguments used to prove our doctrine false, is that of teaching that God approved of Adam's transgression, that the Lord intended that man should sin, and then punished him for doing so. And they quoted from the Book of Mormon the same texts that we have just reviewed, to support their contention against us.

Much more might be written on this interesting subject, but lack of space prevents further delineation here, as this article has grown already far beyond what I intended when I commenced to write it. To do the subject justice it would require a book of several pages, however I trust that even this little treatise will prove both interesting and instructive to the reader.

Worshipping God

God may be worshiped any time, morning, afternoon or evening. But the best time is in the morning. Recognizing this it means that he who worships must be up and about on Sunday morning. The habit of lying abed on Sunday is a bad habit. There are rare exceptions of those who must work late Saturday night but the exceptions are so rare that they scarcely need be mentioned in passing. Then there is the miserable custom of Saturday night entertainments keeping one up until the wee small hours of Sunday mornings. And there is the growing habit of week-end visits. Some one has remarked that this American life of ours is a great life if you don't week-end. The trouble of the week-end habit is that it does not care a picayune about the custom of worship.

"Well, shall we go to church this morning?" says one of the officials of my church to his week-end guests as they gather at the breakfast table of his beautiful country home. The way he says it invites a condescending smile rather than an earnest consideration of the subject. The result is that for four months every year this prominent churchman does not see the inside of a church. How much better if he would take his city habit into the country and say to his guests: "It is our custom to go to the village church, two miles distant. Won't you join us today?" Alas, in too many Protestant, so-called Christian homes, God's house is utterly forgotten in an overdose of loafing and social visiting. Most recent of all barriers when it comes to worship is the radio. Fully appreciative of the radio and the opportunity it presents as a medium for the spread of Christian truth, it must be said that a physically well person can not worship God satisfactorily by radio. It is too easy to turn the dial, engage in conversation, listen a minute, then shift to a jazz program or some enlivening music. The first thing that happens when we worship is that we are physically awake, up, and dressed and in the Lord's house.—Bruce S. Wright, in "What Happens When We Worship?" Church Management.

Prayer of a Child to a Toy Santa Claus

Please, Mr. Santa, I was going to write to you—but we didn't have no stamp. Father says you don't care for poor folks, but we need you most. Won't you p-i-e-a-s-e bring father some work—and mother some shoes. She's almost barefoot—and a bicycle for Tom; his was stolen so he can't be messenger boy any longer and it was all we had to live on, and a doll for baby—and—oh, Santa—if it wouldn't be too much—please bring us something for Christmas dinner. I'm so tired of boiled potatoes and salt—that's all. Thank you.—Selected.

NEWS OF CHURCH AND HOME

Address all news and letters to Editors of the Herald, Box 237, Independence, Missouri. Correspondents are requested to make their letters brief. The Editors reserve the right, on account of space limitations, to shorten all letters as circumstances require.

Graceland News

Graceland Students Discuss Church Problems

"Graceland is being weighed for its right to exist," said Elder Roy A. Cheville in introducing the main subject of discussion at the young people's prayer meeting last Wednesday evening. He asked two questions intended to help the students evaluate the present needs of the church, and to stimulate them to a realization of just how important is their response to the present program of the church.

"Would it make any difference to you if the church went bankrupt? What does the church need most now?" In answer to the first question, the students mentioned that bankruptcy would mean taking away the foundation upon which their homes, ambitions, lives, and even their preparation for service were based. The most serious type of bankruptcy is not a temporary shortage in finances, but the loss of those deep and abiding spiritual powers which motivate us to lives of service. With a wealth of spiritual qualities and an earnest attempt to live in harmony with the restored principles of the gospel, there will come such material wealth as is needed to restore and maintain our financial standing. The second question was answered concisely and adequately by one of the speakers when he said that probably the greatest need of the church today is for leaders with insight and spiritual power and a membership motivated by righteous purposes who are making an intelligent and efficient application of the gospel in their daily lives. Although everyone is not called to lead, there is a place for him to work, and the church needs the full support of every member.

Not a moment was lost in this service. The sincere interest of Graceland's student body in church problems was clearly evident from the discussion. Graceland is backing the church.

Lectures Scheduled for the New Year

The faculty and student body of the college have been greatly benefited and inspired by the special chapel lectures which have been given this fall. Both lecturers, Apostle Paul M. Hanson and Elder Ward A. Hougas, students of Graceland in past years and now supporters of advanced education within the church, were to bring a message which was received with appreciation.

Two more groups of lectures have been scheduled. Early in January Apostle John F. Garver will address the student body in three lectures, and President Floyd M. McDowell will speak in the chapel three times during the following month. Everyone is anticipating a pleasant visit with these old friends of Graceland.

Faculty Members Cooperate

Every member of the Graceland faculty has been asked to hold a personal interview with President Briggs sometime before the Christmas holidays in order to offer practical plans whereby the college can be of greater assistance to the general church in carrying out its work during the coming year. The suggestions will fall under two general classes: Every teacher is expected first, to outline just what he can and will do in the immediate future, to increase his effectiveness in making Graceland the most worth-while institution for our young people to attend. And second, to indicate the specific steps that the college as a whole may take to extend its benefits to a larger circle of young people.

One wholesome result of this plan will be the personal evaluation by each member of the faculty. Each will see more clearly the ways wherein he has failed to live up to his highest possibilities, and this critical self-examination will open the way for a more gracious and extensive service to the church through the agency of the college. Graceland's teaching staff intends to do its bit.

EUGENE CLOSSON

Graceland Ranks High in North Central Association

Judging from comments made by Doctor W. H. Husband, of Ohio Wesleyan University, inspector of the North Central Association of Colleges, Graceland should rank high in the association's final rating.

Graceland has been a member of the association for many years, being classed as a fully accredited junior college, and comparing very favorably with other colleges of Iowa and Missouri which are being inspected by Doctor Husband. Graceland's situation as a junior college was found exceptional in many respects.

The library, from the standpoint of appointment and facilities, is one of the finest seen in a college of this size. Our organization of literary societies for intra-mural competition was found very favorable, and the inspector was especially enthusiastic about the high percentage of young men and women participating in intra-mural contests both forensic and athletic. At no school so far in his inspection has he found so fine a program of intra-mural contests.

The physical plant, with the new dormitory and gymnasium, is among the best inspected thus far by Doctor Husband. From his general comments on our organization and methods, it appears that Graceland is more than holding her own as one of the better junior colleges of the Middle West.

ARTHUR WELLMAN

The College Players Produce

On Thanksgiving night a large group of Graceland students, Lamoni people, and out-of-town guests watched the presentation of "The Torchbearers," a three-act play staged by the College Players at the Lamoni Coliseum.

The College Players are a group of students selected during the year for their dramatic ability or for efficient back-stage work. Candidates for membership apprentice players at first, and must prove their worth for one year before becoming regular members. Miss Florence Thompson, head of the Speech Department at the college, is the efficient and talented sponsor of this organization. All who have attended her productions know that whenever she is in charge, they will see a worth-while play enacted well.

In this play Miss Thompson again demonstrated her unusual ability to pick characters well fitted for the parts. Although every part was done with a skill and ease that delighted the audience, it was agreed that Elizabeth Smith, of Independence, Missouri, was the outstanding actress of the evening. Others taking major parts were Jeannette Burstrom, Detroit, Michigan; Dwight Davis, Seattle, Washington; Helen Carr, Garden Grove, Iowa; Stow Simon, Chicago, Illinois; Margaret Anderson, Des Moines, Iowa; Colin Ferrett, Sydney, Australia; Glenn Jacobson, Council Bluffs, Iowa; Mignon Franklin and Lynn Smith of Independence, Missouri; Lewis Scott, Fort Madison, Iowa, and Roberta Lewis, Nauvoo, Illinois.

"The Torchbearers" is a sparkling satire of the little theater movement, yet the play has proved itself popular with the very group whose efforts it severely satirizes. Because of its difficult characterization and the general confusion incident to a back-stage setting, this was a hard play to stage, but consistent practice and skillful coaching produced a smooth performance. One visitor who has seen many Graceland productions declared this to be the best ever given by the College Players. Several out-of-town guests expressed themselves as being delightfully surprised to find plays of such quality being staged by a junior college

ROBERTA LEWIS

Christmas Vespers

One service that is always looked forward to with great anticipation is the Christmas vesper service which is the last chapel service of the old year. This year was no exception. On the evening of December 16, the students and faculty of the college with many young Lamoni friends began to assemble quietly into the chapel shortly after seven o'clock, and at seven-thirty, when the doors were closed, there were very few vacant seats. Softened lights, and tasteful decorations of evergreen and Christmas candles added to the beauty and impressiveness of the service. After the trumpet summons, "Hark the Herald Angels Sing," the fourteen young men who comprise the vesper choir marched in and took their places on the stand, singing "It Came upon a Midnight Clear." The call to worship was followed by the singing of the stirring old hymn, "Oh, Come All Ye Faithful." As the service continued, quartet numbers, harp solos, a carol by a group of junior girls, and responsive reading blended harmoniously into a memorable hour of worship and thanksgiving. Brother Blair Jensen delivered the message of the evening, centering his thoughts around the ancient prophecy, "And His name shall be called Wonderful, Counselor, The Mighty God, The Everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace." Using "Angels from the Realms of Glory" as a recessional hymn, the vesper choir marched out, and after the benedictory prayer was offered by Brother Cheville, it was heard singing softly the old Christmas favorite "Silent Night." The worshipers left the building quietly while the choir sang carols from the balcony. For some, it was the first experience of such a service; others present had enjoyed many such services before, but to all it was a meaningful and worth-while experience, for it brought a deeper appreciation of the life and influence of the Messiah, and a better understanding of the beautiful story of the first Christmas of more than nineteen hundred years ago.

WALTER N. JOHNSON

AUSTRALIA.

Anticipation

One morning at the chapel program President Briggs announced that the time had come when it was necessary to speak about vacations, for the Christmas vacation would officially begin on Friday, December 18. Suddenly the rather bored and every-day-like-the-day-before attitude of the student body was charged with an electrical thrill. There was no startling, obvious physical change in anything, but change there was, intangible though it might have been. The very atmosphere seemed to be charged with the thrill of anticipation. So it has remained ever since.

Home seemed to take on an added attraction, and names of home-town friends entered more prominently into conversations. Letters became more frequent, as actual plans became more detailed. "Are you going home?" "How are you going?" and "When are you going?" were questions heard on every hand.

First weeks were counted, then days, and finally hours became the units of measurement. What a thrill each person felt when he could say "Tomorrow (or today) I'll be home!"

The ultimate goal of all planning for campus activities and for class-work early in the period of anticipation became 11:35 a. m., Friday, December 18.

Those students who could not go home sometimes wore rather wistful and pathetic expressions, but usually not for long. They, too, were making plans to visit friends or relatives, or to enjoy the season right here on the hill.

After many busy days checked off the calendar, at last the day of the "great exodus" dawned. Parties, late hours, and early rising had had no effect on anyone's spirits. Such an over-flow of energy was exhibited that no one thought of even attempting to suppress it. Actions that would ordinarily be quite absurd and out-of-place were indulged in by everyone. Even the few classes which had to be endured were free and gay. The French class learned to say "Merry Christmas," and shouted carols in French for the edification of other classes not so talented.

Why so much excitement, gayety, and laughter? Why all the breathless anticipation? Christmas had come to College Hill.

AARONA M. BOOKER.

Pre-Christmas Service of Song

If there are those who still doubt the capability of Lamoni's theater church to be a place filled with the spirit of worship and devotion, they should have attended the pre-Christmas service of song presented by the Lamoni-Graceland Oratorio Society and Graceland's A Capella Chorus directed by Miss Mabel Carlile, of the Graceland faculty.

It was a pleasure again to see the singers, for this was the first time since the burning of the Brick Church that the oratorio Society had occupied the platform. There among appropriate and artistic decorations they sang the songs of Christmas-tide, inspiring their listeners anew and filling their expectant hearts with the true meaning of Christmas.

A deep and reverent hush fell over the audience as Elizabeth Smith played "Silent Night" on her harp.

In addition to the chorus numbers, Mrs. Linna T. Hunt, Graceland's vocal teacher, sang "A Christmas Lullaby" accompanied on the harp by Miss Smith and on the violin by Miss Lois Garver. Colin Ferrett sang a bass solo entitled "Nazareth" and the Graceland male quartet sang "No Room in the Inn."

After the pastor, Brother D. Blair Jensen, had presented his Christmas message, the service closed with the immortal "Hallelujah Chorus" from the "Messiah." Then the congregation left the building in a reflective mood as the choir sang "Silent Night."

This service has been said by many to be one of the best of its kind ever given here. Much credit is due Miss Carlile and her able accompanist Miss Rae Lysinger.

ROBERTA LEWIS

Many Graceland Students Score High in Who's Who Test

A common criticism of our American educational system is that it produces students not interested in world affairs. The faculty at Graceland recently devised a very interesting test to supplement the regular classroom assignments in current reading fields. Fifty names for identification were chosen from all walks of life, including poets, novelists, politicians, social workers, ministers, scientists, artists, gangsters, financiers, athletes, educators, and other newspaper and magazine characters. This list included both European and American names.

The results of the test were similar to other polls as reported in the Literary Digest and Nation magazines in November. While many made very high scores, guesses often proved to be decidedly humorous. One hundred and forty Graceland students answered the test, with thirty-six making a score of thirty-five or more out of a possible fifty. Many papers had correct identifications for forty-five or more characters, the highest score being forty-seven. The following were the high point students:

Wana Black, Grand Island, Nebraska; Aarona Booker, Delta, Colorado; Arthur DuRose, Flint, Michigan; Victor Farmer, Lamoni, Iowa; Mary E. Fisher, Saint Joseph, Missouri; Bertha Garver, Lamoni, Iowa; Lois Hatch, Independence, Missouri; Roberta Lewis, Nauvoo, Illinois; Anita May, Independence, Missouri; T. M. McLees, Lamoni, Iowa; Emily McCormick, Albin, Wyoming; Dolores Midgorden, Lamoni, Iowa; Loren McDole, Seattle, Washington; James Moses, Scranton, Pennsylvania; Charles Schaefer, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania; Almer Sheehy, Independence, Missouri; Seymour Stevens, Phoenix, Arizona; Stow Symon, Hyde Park, Illinois; Lois Turner, Independence, Missouri; Mitchel Carter, Provo, Utah; Noble Kelly, Ontario, Canada; Blaine Williams, Lamoni, Iowa; Kenneth White, Lamoni, Iowa, and Dwight Vredenburg, Lamoni, Iowa.

The test has aroused keen interest at Graceland as well as elsewhere. Various educators have written in for the list as a check on their own students and as a means of correct identification. Graceland has sought to correct this weakness in our educational system by frequent classroom discussion and assignment. The names submitted to the students for identification were: "Jane Addams, Maude Adams, Lionel Barrymore, Aristide Briand, Nicholas Murray Butler, Al Capone, Willa Cather, Carrie Chapman Catt, Marie Curie, Charles Curtis, Walter Damrosch, Clarence Darrow, Charles E. Dawes, Albert Einstein, Harry Emerson Fosdick, Daniel Chester French, Mahatma Gandhi, George Gershwin, Prentiss Gilbert, Texas Guinan, Dino Grandi, Von Hindenburg, Robert Hutchins, William R. Inge, Bobby Jones, Pierre Laval, Sinclair Lewis, Alice Longworth, Ramsay McDonald, Guglielmo Marconi, Pepper Martin, Aimee McPherson, Helen Wills Moody, J. Pierpont Morgan, Benito Mussolini, Lily Pons, Robert L. Ripley, Knute Rockne, Edwin Arlington Robinson, Bernard Shaw, Al Smith, Reed Smoot, Philip Snowden, Bill Tilden, Arturo Toscanini, Jimmy Walker, H. G. Wells, George W. Wickersham, Owen D. Young, and Flo Ziegfeld.

Vacation Trips

Eleven thirty-five and the bell sounded freedom for Graceland's impatient students. Class doors swung open to emit the anxious crowd.

Some were dressed in proper traveling clothes, while others were dressed in sweaters, khaki, and boots to make hitch hiking easier. A dozen or more automobiles lined the driveway to the old Ad Building, and into those the students assorted themselves. Engines were started and with many a jerk, cough, and backfire, the cars (dilapidated and otherwise), slid down the muddy hill and headed homeward.

One ancient Dodge loaded with six easterners turned its nose resolutely toward the good old State of Maine. Two other carloads set out for New York, and others went to Michigan, Canada, Wyoming, and Ohio, and several went to Illinois, Missouri, and points in Iowa.

Those of us who remain on the hill know that the same eagerness will be shown by this group when they return in two weeks to Graceland.

E. E. CLOSSON.

Walker Hall Christmas Party

At nine thirty on the Thursday night before vacation, the girls of Walker Hall, with a few town guests, gathered before the large fireplace in the "dorm" reception room for the annual pre-Christmas party. After playing a game with lots of laughter, the girls grew quiet while Margaret Anderson read a pretty story about a child, Joshua, who lived at the time Christ was born. During this story the Christmas spirit was in the atmosphere, and the dimly-lighted scene was pretty. The girls gathered closely together on chairs and the floor, the bright firelight flickering on faces and hair and the soft, pleasing voice of the reader made it a happy, restful time.

After the story, Santa came with a bag of Christmas cheer for all the girls who had been good. Every girl received a package. "Bunny" McCormick from Wyoming acted the part very well and gave out a variety of gifts. There were toys of all sorts, alligators, dogs, monkeys, balls; powder puffs for some girls, and clever little trinkets for others. The house president, Vivian Castings, brought in the girls' gift to their dean. It was an eight-piece set of teaspoons in Dean Morgan's favorite pattern.

Then came refreshments—chocolate cake, Miss Morgan's gift to the girls, hot cocoa and marshmallows.

After all the new girls had gone to bed and the lights were all out, the sophomores gathered downstairs and lighted their candles for the dormitory custom of caroling in the halls. The procession went slowly by candlelight to second floor, then to third and back to first, singing "Silent Night," "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing," and others of those songs of which we never tire at this season.

MAURINE GREENE.

Detroit, Michigan

From Detroit's Beacon Light

The appearance of President F. M. Smith at the district conference on Sunday, November 8, was the occasion for the gathering of the largest congregation of Saints in Detroit's history. There were at least a thousand who came to hear him speak in the afternoon. Brother Smith placed the financial situation of the church before us. A high light of his talk was the satisfaction he has felt as a result of the response to his appeal throughout the country. Various branches have come with proposals and plans for meeting the situation. "We have not only found ourselves with a problem but with a new power," was the keynote of his speech.

The people were apparently unwilling to resign themselves to fifteen years of paying off debts. The power that lies dormant in the great body of Saints and which comes forward in a great surge in every crisis once more is showing its face. A motion was supported by the entire congregation that Detroit District be allowed to raise its quota within three years. A greater display of unity has never occurred in this city, and as the whole congregation arose and silently stood for a moment, there was a sense of coordinated power and confidence which touched everybody. We are certain that Brother Smith felt himself lifted up by this show of loyalty. We anticipate an organized campaign reaching to the far corners of Detroit District, which will not only meet the present crisis but will also disclose many hidden sources of spiritual and temporal strength. The conference sustained all of its officers for the new year.

Central Choir, composed of thirty voices, under the direction of Fred E. Anderson, rendered "Ein Feste Burg," from the oratorio, "The Course of Time," by Brother John T. Gresty, and "Send out Thy Light," from the "Redemption," by Gounod. Henrietta Davis and James Green sang a duet.

Detroit has discovered a new dramatic star in the Latter Day Saint constellation, Margaret Ayers, sixteen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy L. Ayers. She has trained in dramatic art under Mrs. Louis Boyington for five years, played leading parts in our Christmas plays and has been a strong exponent of the dramatic presentation of gospel themes accompanying missionary sermons. Margaret made her radio debut recently over WWJ in "The Gay Nineties." She will play the leading part in a senior play booked for December 11 at the high school she attends. We inscribe her name on the scroll of honorable mention.

First Church

About twenty-five church school officers and teachers met November 10 in the lower auditorium of the church for dinner and conference. Many subjects of interest were discussed. This is the place for comparing teaching problems and making suggestions for improving the school system.

The Christmas program will be given Wednesday evening, December 23.

On Sunday evening, December 20, a choir composed of members from other congregations as well as the local singers, will give the cantata, "The Coming of the King," by Dudley Buck.

"The Tea House of Sing Lo," an operetta of quality, sponsored by Groupe 4 of First Church, played its premiere to a crowded house October 23. The committee in charge of the production is composed of Evelyn Miller, Ethel Wode, and Ethel Anderson, all of whom played leading parts. The fine work of Herbert Lively of East Side as Sing Lo, met with approval. Every member of the cast did excellently, and many requests have been made for a return engagement. Because of the splendid reception of the play, it will doubtless take the road shortly and appear in Flint, Pontiac, and other points of the State.

The Oriole Girls are active. They sold fudge at the performance of "The Tea House of Sing Lo," turning half their profits as an offering to the general church. They sponsored a jolly Halloween party. Several new girls have joined during the past month, and look forward to earning their merits by participation in character building tasks in which every girl should be interested. The future holds in store another fudge sale a Christmas trip to the children's hospital, preparation of a Christmas basket for a needy family, a meeting at the Art Institute on Saturday morning, movies, and many other interesting things.

Sister Shetron, who is very ill, has requested the prayers of the Saints in her behalf.

The junior church school has been handicapped by a lack of space in which to care for the kindergarten children. However, we are happy to know that a room is being prepared for them which will mean that this particular division will grow.

The women of the former Highland Park group had a display of homemade articles suitable for Christmas gifts. They sold a number of pretty things.

Senior and junior divisions enjoyed the last sacrament services. The juniors enjoyed their own communion meeting.

Wyandotte Church

We are proud to announce that attendance in this branch is almost one hundred per cent at all services. The Saints seem to have a greater desire to serve God than they have had for some time. We expect to do a good work in this part of the city.

The all-day meeting November 1, was a success. God's Spirit was present in power and much assurance.

The choir has been a great help, and we hope will continue its aid for many months.

Elder Henry Sheaffer has for the past week delivered inspiring sermons.

The department of recreation and expression, directed by Clara Wilson and her assistant, Albert Fields, is meeting every Thursday evening. Attendance is good.

East Side Church

The people of this congregation were immensely pleased to have Elder Matthew Liston as speaker the morning of November 8. This was the day of the Detroit District conference, and Brother Liston was here attending that gathering.

Brother and Sister Harold Richards announce the birth of a son, Robert Ralph, October 25.

Dorothy Stewart and Gladys Vendemark were recently baptized by Brother Gustavus.

Evelyn Vincent has been appointed president of the group of young people whose purpose is to make a number of missionary visits in the vicinity of the church. They were organized by Brother Dowker, our new missionary.

The department of recreation and expression is growing in number and quality of program. The November 21 meeting was dispensed with because of the operetta at First Church.

The young people's class had its monthly meeting for November at the Lively home. Everyone had a good time. Every other Sunday morning this class meets at eight o'clock for prayer meeting. Everyone is invited.

The Graceland Day program, planned by Pastor Richards, was carried our Sunday, November 18. Speeches were made by three young men and a young woman. Herbert Lively talked on Graceland College and Gilbert Gustavus discussed the need of the Graceland Scholarship Fund. Anna Mae Pappas talked on the spirit of Graceland. Brother Don Leland, a Graceland graduate, spoke on the "West Door." Musical numbers added attractiveness to the good program. The offering taken at the close of the service, was surprisingly large for this congregation.

State Fair Church

Just think of it—twenty-six Sunday school scholars, young and old, have attended Sunday school at this mission without being late one Sunday. These scholars are being rewarded with a one hundred per cent Always Early emblem pin.

Elder Frank Bailey was speaker Sunday morning, November 8.

The Ladies' Aid continues to meet every Thursday from 11 a. m. to 4 p. m. They have made and sold several rugs and have orders for more. Each meeting includes a little amusement, a little food, a little study, and a little work.

The mission enjoyed a Halloween party October 30.

River Rouge Church

The larger part of this congregation attended the district conference in early November and were favorably impressed by Brother Smith's sermon. Some stayed in the evening to hear Elder Bruce E. Brown.

Mrs. R. Ulman is recovering from an operation for appendicitis which she underwent November 12 at the Marrow Hospital.

The young people have been especially requested to interest the young people of this community in the Sunday school and Christmas entertainment.

Carthage, Missouri

The fourth annual home-coming of Carthage Branch was held the first Sunday of December, which was an ideal fall day for southern Missouri.

The opening service was a junior prayer meeting with Brother Frank Shank, priest, presiding. Brother Shank has had charge of these meetings for some time past and under his direction the young people have developed quite an interest in this work.

At nine forty-five came the regular church school session with Elder A. M. Hogan, director, in charge.

The sacrament was administered at eleven o'clock with Brother Amos T. Higdon, district president, presiding, assisted by the local priesthood. A wonderful spirit was present at the meeting. The young people, especially, moved out under the operation of the Spirit and accordingly received a blessing. One of the testimonies was particularly worthy of mention. A young sister arose and called our attention to the fact that if we cross D, E, and I out of DEPRESSION, we have Press On. This we are determined to do.

A bountiful dinner was spread at noon by the women of the branch. As soon as convenient after the noon meal, the priesthood met and were addressed by District President Higdon.

At two-thirty a program was given. It consisted of a talk on "Home-coming" by the church school director, Brother Hogan; several musical numbers under the direction of the branch chorister, Sister Mamie Talcott, and a play, The More Abundant Life, by the Second Milers, an organized intermediate class.

The Saints were fortunate in having present the district presidency, Amos T. Higdon, F. L. Freeman, and A. J. Jones; also Brother Ira Waldron, the president of Webb City Branch.

The time between programs was spent in reminiscing. The evening sermon was preached by Brother Higdon, who had spent the week in our midst visiting and strengthening the Saints.

Lamoni Stake

Annual Branch Business Meeting

A good-sized congregation of interested members braved a stormy night for the annual branch business meeting, December 8. Interest was added by the presence of President F. M. McDowell and Bishop G. L. DeLapp. The pastor, Blair Jensen, presided.

This year's finances have been confused because of change of housing conditions and of personnel of workers. The budget adopted at the opening of the year became uneffective after the burning of the church. The removal of Bishop DeLapp and later of Norman Hield who was assisting in the stake bishopric, further complicated the situation. With the approval of the branch, Bishop DeLapp, who is still the stake bishop, appointed a committee to direct the branch finances. They have worked most assiduously, and are determined to close the year with balanced books, picking up a deficit of four hundred dollars from the previous year and a fifty dollar pledge to the rock road past the church park. A tentative budget was submitted which will be presented for official action at the next meeting.

In the election, the stake presidency, Blair Jensen and associate, Roy Cheville, were sustained as branch pastorate. The office of custodian-deacon was discontinued since the branch now owns no building. C. F. Church has occupied this office for many years, and the branch fittingly expressed appreciation in a rising vote of thanks. The work of ushering, and publicity, was left to the branch presidency. Mabel Carlile was continued as director of music and Cora Leverson as secretary. The branch supervises the local cemetery and elects the trustees. This year John Midgorden was re-elected. Roy Cheville was chosen director of the church school and then at the branch's request, he nominated the corps of workers. This included the supervisors of divisions and superintendents of departments. The several departments will complete their organizations in their own sessions.

Stake High Council

On Thursday, December 10, the stake high council met in the stake offices. The council was reorganized during last reunion and includes men in and near Lamoni. These are R. A. Ballantyne, G. W. Blair, G. N. Briggs, N. R. Carmichael, A. R. Gilbert, J. A. Lane, John Midgorden, Willard Moon, G. A. Platz, D. M. Vredenburg, T. S. Williams, and A. J. Yarrington. At this session of business and discussion of problems these ministers were united in friendship and solicitation for the welfare of the church. After the adjournment, all went to the Williams' Cafe for an oyster stew, complimentary to George Blair who is leaving for Florida for the winter.

Pre-Christmas Service of Song

On Sunday evening, December 13, the Coliseum was filled for the annual pre-Christmas musical service. This service is held before the college students leave for vacation. Regularly the choir sings from the balcony in the rear of the auditorium. For this service seats were arranged on the stage so that the singers, when standing, appeared in tiers. In front were seated the members of the A Cappella Chorus. Along the front of the stage were festoons of evergreen with colored lights intertwined here and there. On either side was a Christmas tree. Back of the choir on the gray drapes hung a large illuminated star.

Besides the Christmas carols sung by the congregation and choir, there were solos by Colin Ferrett and Mrs. Linna Hunt, vocal instructor at Graceland; a group of harp solos by Elizabeth Smith; scripture readings by Roy Cheville, and a greeting from the pastor, Blair Jensen. The A Cappella Chorus sang a group of Russian carols and an arrangement of "Hark, the Herald Angels," with antiphonal ladies sextet in the balcony. A fitting climax was the immortal "Hallelujah Chorus," that brought the congregation to their feet in appreciation and reverence.

New "Hymnals" Purchased

The local church school has just completed a project which enables Lamoni Branch to have a supply of the new Hymnals sufficient for the adult congregation. Last summer the Mite Society and Women's Guild, two women's organizations for church support, each contributed fifty books to the branch. These have been used in group prayer meetings. A month ago the adult and young people's divisions of the church school took up the proposition. Mrs. W. H. Blair, the director of music of the church school, acted as supervisor of the project. Superintendents, teachers, and leaders joined in the movement, and last Sunday the hundred and fifty additional books were presented.

At the worship period of the church the theme centered about music. Mrs. Blair presented the Hymnals to Blair Jensen, the pastor, and the Boy Scouts distributed them among the congregation. Mabel Carlile, branch chorister, gave an inspiring talk on the place of congregational singing in the church service.

The branch has been crippled in lack of hymnbooks since the burning of the brick church. Both church school and adult congregations will be benefited by adequate supply of hymnbooks.

Calumet, Oklahoma

This branch is going forward in the work of the church and is much concerned over the two months' sacrifice period. Notwithstanding we are struggling to earn our daily bread under the present economic conditions, we plan to help. Our faith is strong, and on looking back we find many blessings for which to be thankful.

Two weeks ago the Saints met at the home of Brother Arthur Crownover, superintendent of the church school, and spend the day picking cotton. Sixty-eight were present. Some of the women remained at the house where they prepared a warm dinner. When the hour for them to depart arrived, it was found that the group had picked four bales of cotton. The price of the picking, which netted a nice little sum, was turned over to the branch solicitor to assist in our sacrifice offering.

The women have of late been busy giving pie sales. The young people also are busy. They are preparing a play to be given soon. Others are preparing the annual Christmas program, and in so doing each child is being taught the meaning of sacrifice.

We now near the new year. May it bring to every member of the church new zeal and determination to press on and do his full duty.

Clear Lake, Indiana

Clear Lake Branch still floats the banner of King Immanuel. We are having splendid meetings with good interest at Sunday school and preaching services.

Steuben County held a Sunday school attendance contest, all schools entering. We are happy to say that Clear Lake Latter Day Saints Sunday school won second prize. Lost first place only by thirteen. That unlucky thirteen! But we think this a good record for a little country school.

We were made glad December 13, by the arrival of Apostle Clyde F. Ellis after an absence of seventeen years.

Elder Jesse Harden, of Ohio, moved here not long ago and is now rendering valuable service. His sermons inspire while their plainness and simplicity instruct us. Then Elder Virgil Hadsell and family arrived. He, too, has helped greatly. Also Brother Buckley, of Marshal, Michigan, has bought a home at Angola, Indiana, and is a help to the church. Elder Osler comes quite often, bringing the old Jerusalem gospel. Elder O. H. Hawn has also been a visitor, but is now quite ill in a hospital at Coldwater, Michigan.

There have been several baptisms this year among the young people of the Sunday school. Branch President George Cassel had the pleasure of baptizing his two grandchildren, Charlotte Lureen Cassel and George William Cassel. Miss Charlotte is a graduate of the Tri-State College at Angola, Indiana, a worthy young woman and an honor to the church.

We hear that President F. M. Smith was in Central Michigan, but regret that it was not convenient for him to pass this way. Elder S. W. L. Scott, of Coldwater, Michigan, visits us occasionally, and his sermons are helpful. He is known the country over as a forceful orator.

So the good work goes on here as in other places. All are made happy in doing their duty.

Birmingham, England

On November 1, occurred the baptism of Miss Booker, of Bearwood Mission, Elder A. Kendrick officiating.

District President J. Holmes visited this branch November 22, with a special appeal to the Saints to observe the sacrifice period. He read from John 11, taking for his text the words of Jesus recorded in verse forty: "Said I not unto thee, that, if thou wouldst believe, thou shouldst see the glory of God?" He preached a good sermon on the power and love of God, exhorting the Saints to be prayerful and to live lives that stand out in the world, lives of character and high spiritual standing.

We have several schemes on hand for raising money for the church debt. The young people are planning a concert, the proceeds of which will be given. We have the sacrifice envelopes in use. The sisters of the women's guild have decided to forego their cup of tea and cake, the money saved to go to the fund. A jumble sale was held November 21 from which the sum of £7.10.0 was raised.

Sunday, November 22, occurred the ordinations of R. Woodward and W. Eldridge to the office of deacon and J. Smith to that of priest. Pastor Peter Whalley officiated.

A little daughter, Vivienne Bernice, was born to Sister G. Allen October 27.

During the last month we have enjoyed some spiritual feasts in our prayer services. We feel the power of God in special measure in these trying times. Our God is not afar off. "The Lord's arm is not shortened, that it can not save; neither his ear heavy, that it can not hear." (Isaiah 59.1.) We pray God's blessing upon all his children, that their faith may increase and the spirit of sacrifice may abound.

"Who gives himself with his gift feeds three, Himself, his hungering neighbor, and Me."

May we grasp this opportunity in so great a cause and give willingly.

Duluth, Minnesota

Sixtieth Avenue, West, and Bristol Street

Saints in this group are active. As the weather grows colder and Christmas holidays near, there is a greater amount of work to be accomplished by our people. We are striving to move forward.

A fair response to the sacrifice movement was given by the members during November. The depression is hindering many in doing more for the cause they love. During December a letter is being sent to each one, that he may have opportunity to give. We should give not until it hurts, but until we feel happy about our sacrifice.

The Sunday School has divided all the members of the branch into two sides under the direction of a Christmas offering superintendent. There are two captains in charge of the red and blue special trains bound for Portland, Oregon and return. These trains advance one mile for each cent turned in. And the winners will be entertained by the losers. Sister Lottie Zuelsdorf was appointed Christmas offering superintendent, and Sister Martha Schnuckle and Julia Case were chosen captains. The trains are speeding westward, and the Christmas offering is growing.

The spirit of unity is greater now in this branch than for some time. We know that God is guiding the church.

A Sunday evening class is using the new Book of Mormon quarterly by C. B. Woodstock with fine results. A group of children are studying junior stewardship with the intention of keeping records during 1932.

A committee has been selected to direct the Christmas program. This is to include the play "Janey," which has been presented here before with good results. An offering will be taken at that time to swell the Christmas offering fund. That night also will bring to a close the contest between the red and blue specials. The characters of the play are to be the same as before: Sister Mollie Feathers, Mrs. Hammond; Sister Eva Tourville, her daughter; Sister Sybil Bundy, Rosa the maid; Sister Lottie Zuelsdorf, Janey; Sister Rose Stauty, Mrs. Ravis, Janey's mother; and Sister Julia Case, Mrs. Denning.

A rally was held November 22 when Elder L. S. Wight, of Minneapolis, and George W. Day, of Bemidji, district president and counselor respectively, were the principal speakers. Elder Wight was in charge of the round table discussion in the afternoon. Saints from outlying points were in attendance, and a fine spirit was evident.

We look forward to the time when soon again we can put forward a strong missionary effort, but at present our efforts are centered upon the financial need of the church.

Conference of Utah District

The conference of Utah District convened at Salt Lake City, November 21 and 22. In preparation for this event a prayer service was held Saturday morning at ten o'clock, Elder A. M. Chase in charge. The weather being snowy and unusually cold, not many were in attendance, but this meeting was one hundred per cent in activity and spiritual interest.

Apostle M. A. McConley arrived from Malad in time for the 2 p. m. business meeting, and presided, associated with the district presidency. A few items of routine business were transacted. Reports from each branch were read.

The election of district officers was as follows: A. M. Chase was sustained as district president, and his election of two counselors, R. R. Robertson and E. Lonmolder, was ratified. A. M. Chase was chosen musical director; secretary, Dorcas Cunningham; in charge of Religious Education, Elizabeth Chase; bishop's agent and district treasurer Roy Hughes (sustained). Brother and Sister A. M. Chase were chosen publicity agents for the conference.

At three-thirty Apostle McConley presided at a round table, giving an encouraging account of the Ozark holdings and the progress of the church in the effort to prepare the way for the gathering and ultimately for the building of Zion. In his evening sermon he brought to the Saints the condition of the church and the great need for sacrifice, relating numbers of instances of sacrifice that had come to his notice during the past few weeks in his work among the members.

As he was taking the train for Salt Lake City, some one handed Brother McConley the money with the advice to "be sure to take a berth," as he was not in the best of health. But when time to retire arrived, although very tired, he thought: "Here is where I can make a sacrifice." So he remained in the day coach during the night and slipped the money he would have spent on a berth into his sacrifice envelope. Personal sacrifices of this kind make one think deeply. Are we all doing all we can in this time of sacrifice, showing our love for the work for which we profess so much?

Sunday began with church school at ten o'clock. The sermon following, also the afternoon and evening sermons by Apostle McConley were adaptable to our needs, very encouraging and inspirational.

At a meeting of the women at 2:45 p. m. Sister Winholts displayed some fine artistic work done by the Ogden Saints. Short talks on the women's work were made by Sisters Winholts, Moe, and Chase, and by Brothers Chase, McConley, and Holm.

Brother McConley's visits to the different branches of the district along with his timely sermons at these places, were much appreciated and most helpful.

Independence

Today is the one hundred and twenty-sixth anniversary of the birth of the Prophet Joseph Smith who was the instrument of the Restoration in the hands of God. He was born in the obscure little town of Sharon, Vermont, and his life was one of sacrifice. In the end he paid the supreme sacrifice with his life at Carthage.

The Saints of Independence can think of no more fitting way to commemorate the birth of the Prophet than by sacrifice. In every congregation tonight will be held a service of sacrifice and worship at which time sacrifice offerings for the month of December will be brought to the altar of the Lord. Large attendance is expected.

Independence college girls and boys were seen in the congregations of the church as early as Sunday. Other students and workers are arriving daily to spend the holidays. Homes are open to returning children and friends. Everyone is being made welcome. The streets are gay with holiday trimmings. Expectancy is in the air. We think that Christmas, this year, will mean more to us because we are remembering the Savior's birthday with a gift for Him.

Stone Church

Seven children were baptized into the church in a pre-Christmas baptismal ceremony Sunday morning at eight thirty in the lower auditorium of the Stone Church. Joane Wilson, Verna Dee Savage, and Juanita Hunker were baptized by Missionary E. Y. Hunker, and Laura Belle Quick, Richard Van Trump, Charles H. Weir, and Jack Kroesen were inducted into the kingdom by Elder G. G. Lewis.

All of Sunday's services at the Stone Church were largely attended. The main auditorium was filled to overflowing at the eleven o'clock and the evening meetings.

President Frederick M. Smith chose to word his Christmas sermon theme, of the morning hour, as a question, "What Is the Life More Abundant?" His scripture lesson was 1 Corinthians 13, and with it he associated the text: "I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly."

"It takes faith, hope and charity to secure this more abundant life," President Smith said, "and the greatest of these is charity." Faith, he defined, as belief in God, in man, and in the divine plan; hope is the belief which is kept alive by the expectancy that that which we anticipate will be brought into existence and that to which our faith looks forward will be accomplished. Charity encompasses religion but that is not all—it is the fruit of the great love which we have for the Deity and his great love for us. Faith may look forward, hope may keep us constantly awake, but charity understands.

"This Christmas," he urged, "let us not only celebrate the birth of our Savior, but let us carry charity with us through the year, making possible for ourselves and for others the thing for which Jesus came to earth—to bring men the life more abundant."

Music for the morning was of a quality and variety becoming to a pre-Christmas service. The Stone Church Choir, directed by Paul N. Craig, sang "While Shepherds Watched Their Sheep," by Jungst, and "O Holy Night," by Adam, Lilly Belle Allen, the soprano soloist. "The Angelus," by Renie, a harp solo, was played by Elizabeth Smith, and Mrs.

Linna Timmerman Hunt, of the Graceland faculty, sang "A Christmas Lullaby," Wilson, with violin and harp accompaniment. Robert Miller was the organist.

At the general afternoon prayer meeting, in the lower auditorium of the church, occurred a unique ceremony. Two fathers of the eldership assisted each other in the ordination of their sons to the office of priest. Both young men are Graceland students at home for the holidays. Lynn E. Smith was ordained by his father, President Elbert A. Smith, and Elder A. K. Dillee, and Ivan Dillee was ordained by his father, A. K. Dillee, and Brother Smith.

The prayer service was a helpful and inspirational meeting in charge of Elders C. I. Carpenter, A. K. Dillee, and H. L. Barto. It is conducted every Sunday afternoon at two thirty in the lower room of the church, and all worshippers are welcome.

"The Birth of Jesus," a play, was given in the evening under the sponsorship and direction of the White Masque Players. The cast, composed of members of the young people's division of the church school, presented a splendid portrayal of Bible times from the reign of King David to the birth of Christ, including the annunciation, the shepherd scene, the coming of the wise men, and the nativity scene.

Events soon to come in which the Saints are interested are the Christmas program to be given tomorrow night, Christmas Eve, by the junior and intermediate departments of the Stone Church school, and the presentation of the "Messiah," twice next Sunday, once at the Scottish Rite Temple, Linwood and Paseo, Kansas City, and again at ten o'clock at night in the auditorium of the Stone Church. This second rendition will be broadcast over KMBC. This is the Messiah Choir's Christmas gift.

Walnut Park Church

The adult and young people's divisions of the church school had a short lesson period Sunday morning, followed by a Christmas program consisting of a Bible reading by Paul Anderson, a piano solo by Lavona Crabb, two selections by the young people's chorus, and two songs by the congregation. The junior and primary division joined, giving songs, dialogs, cantatas, and readings.

The choir sang "O come to My Heart, Lord Jesus," at the eleven o'clock service, Fred Horne, baritone soloist.

President F. M. McDowell addressed the congregation, presenting the life of Christ as accumulative of and conducive to development of intelligence, truth, peace, love, faith, hope, virtue, cleanliness, confidence, justice, and toleration. The light of Christ has gone from those who can find no good in people or organizations. Instead of their possessing the light of Christ, we find them unjust, intolerant, ignorant, fault-finding, full of hatred, fear, and despair. Christ said, "Behold, I stand at the door and knock." Can we not at this Christmas-tide break away the accumulation of brambles and weeds which grow about the unused door of our hearts, and permit the light of Christ to enter and permeate our souls? Brother McDowell suggested that the congregation sing in closing, "The Savior's Knocking at Your Door." The last verse, which the congregation sang very softly and without accompaniment proved an effective climax to the sermon.

At 5:45 Sunday evening a Christmas entertainment was given during the study and program period. The play, written by Mrs. E. E. Moorman, represented a special program given by Graceland students who were unable to come home this Christmas, and remained on College Hill. Mrs. S. A. Thiel read a Christmas play "The Miracle."

The evening sermon by Apostle R. S. Budd was an analysis of the sacrifice made by Jesus who offered himself without reservation as a living sacrifice. We who claim to be followers of the Meek and Lowly One, need to be constantly reminded of the sacrifices we should make. The night grows cold.

Eight tenderfoot scouts were taken into Troop 227 Monday night, at an investiture service held at Enoch Hill Church. This troop is composed of Walnut Park and Enoch Hill boys, and the scoutmaster is Ammon Badder. Speakers at the investiture ceremony were Ernest Modlin, field executive of the City of Independence, and Henry Stahl, commissioner. Troop 227 is shaping its plans and program so as to make the most of scouting in 1932.

Englewood Church

Sunday was a happy day for Englewood congregation. The Christmas program in the morning was in charge of the primary superintendent, Mrs. Lyman Fike. There were chorus numbers, recitations, and exercises, the climax being reached when thirteen primary boys and girls, each bearing a large silver letter, spelled the words "Jesus' Birthday," around the large offering basket, and each child repeated the line represented by his letter. The acrostic was written for the occasion by Mrs. Fred Koehler, and expressed the happiness of the children in sacrificing their usual Christmas treat for the special offering fund. The last line spoken bade all to "come with their mite," whereupon the congregation from the nursery child to the eldest grown-up, filed past and dropped their Christmas savings in the basket while the piano played a march.

At seven thirty in the evening the choir, under the direction of the chorister, Mrs. Pauline James Arnson, gave a program of Christmas music and carols. Mrs. JoZelma Taylor, reader, assisted. The order of the program was as follows:

Choir:

- a. "While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks."
- b. "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear."

Solo: "O Little Town of Bethlehem".....Mrs. Hazel McConnell
Choir:

- a. "The First Noel."
- b. "To Us a Child of Hope Is Born."

Solo: "The Little Lord Jesus".....Donald Howerly
Christmas Reading ..... JoZelma Taylor

Choir:

- a. "All Hail" ..... Gabriel
- b. "Worship the Lord" ..... Galbraith

Men's Quartet:

- a. "Hail the Blest Morn."
- b. "Deck the Halls With Boughs of Holly."

Solo: "The Birthday of a King" ..... Mrs. S. S. Arnson
Choir:

- a. "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing."
- b. "Silent Night."

Closing Song: "Oh, Come, All Ye Faithful."

Sister Mildred Kelley, although still in the Sanitarium, is improved in health, for which we are thankful.

Englewood congregation wishes the church a happy and prosperous Christmas.

Fulton, Iowa

December 11.—Branch business meeting was held December 6, Elder E. R. Davis being present. John Heide was sustained branch president. Brother Heide has held this office since the organization of the branch June 16, 1888. Amos Heide was elected assistant president; Ethel Campbell was sustained branch clerk; George Jackson, treasurer, and Lydia Campbell, solicitor. Irvie Campbell and Alma Heide were elected church school directors and Glenn Sherman, secretary.

The Sunday school officers were chosen from the young people's group except the treasurer, and, strange to say, not one refused to accept office. The young people also were put in as teachers. All present seemed willing to work, and a fine spirit prevailed.

Following the election, four babies were blessed. Mona Mae Edwards was blessed by her grandfather, John Heide and uncle, A. W. Heide; Mava Joyce Heide by her grandfather, A. W. Heide and great-grandfather, John Heide; Camilla Faye Campbell by her great-grandfather, John Heide and E. R. Davis, and Mary Deloras Wattar by A. W. Heide and John Heide.

At noon all enjoyed a picnic dinner at the church. Then at two o'clock E. R. Davis, district president, installed the officers, about seventeen in number, giving them the charge. The ceremony was very impressive. If all perform their duty well, the next year's work will go forward.

A fine spirit characterizes all meetings and we hope it will continue during the coming year. We are encouraged to think that God's work will move on with such an army of loyal workers as we have here.

Valley Center, Michigan

Autumn months found the Saints of this branch busy with their farm work. The branch is mostly composed of farmers, and at that season they were harvesting crops and storing away for winter's use, preparing ground, seeding, and sowing for another year. But while looking after temporal needs we have not lost sight of the spiritual.

Every Sunday morning at ten o'clock the people are to be found in the house of the Lord ready with song, testimony, and prayer, and waiting for the Lord to give them a message from his word. We have never left his house without feeling sometime during the service the touch of the divine.

December 6 brought a peaceful sacrament service presided over by Pastor H. E. C. Muir and Elder R. H. Huston, of Capac, Michigan. At the close of the testimonies, Brother and Sister Orrin Burgett presented their infant son, Harold John, to the elders for blessing. Elders Muir and Huston officiated, Elder Muir who is the child's grandfather, was the spokesman. The ceremony was so conducted that the occasion was very sacred and the divinity of the ordinance much in evidence. The spirit of the restoration of the angel's message was richly felt throughout the morning service.

The branch membership met at the home of Pastor and Sister H. E. C. Muir October 29, for a Halloween party. Eighty-one were there and enjoyed an evening of real fun and sociability.

Thanksgiving Day the Saints met at the home of Brother and Sister Thomas Isles, each family taking dinner. We ate together as one big family, long tables being set in Brother Isles's grocery store. Nearly seventy gathered around the festive board. This feast followed a Thanksgiving prayer service. The afternoon was happily passed together until word arrived of the death of Sister Dorothy Dukert, of Cash, Michigan. Sister Dorothy with the Cash Branch young people, has been closely associated with Valley Center young people. She was a brilliant young woman of high ideals who seemed to radiate cheer and happiness wherever she went. We feel that a choice member of our neighboring branch has gone from us.

The church school held election of officers December 6. Brother Thomas Isles was chosen director. We continue in the new plan of Religious Education and find that it is working successfully. We have applied the parts of this plan to our local requirements as far as possible and practicable.

The program committee is busy with the Christmas program.

Valley Center Saints expect to do their part in assisting to carry on God's great work. They are contributing financially to the sacrifice drive which is to eliminate church indebtedness. As in other communities cash with our people is far from plentiful, and the maintaining of our homes and looking well after local expenses, that our activities be not hampered, necessitate a dividing of our money. Nevertheless each one is doing his best towards helping with general church expenses. The membership is loyal. Never in the history of the branch has there been the slightest division in loyalty to the church and its leader. We are looking toward and working for the accomplishment of God's purpose through this church. We continue steadfast in unity, faith, and the bond of peace.

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Frederick M. Smith, Editor in Chief.
 Elbert A. Smith, Floyd M. McDowell, Associate Editors.
 Leonard J. Lea, Managing Editor.
 Leta B. Moriarty, Assistant Editor.

Published for the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Subscription price: By the year, $2.

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE
 INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI

CONTENTS

EDITORIALS:
Christmas .....	1202
The Kingdom of God .....	1202
Merry Christmas! .....	1202
Times Have Not Robbed Us of These .....	1202
Blue Pencil Notes .....	1203
NOTES FROM THE FIELD .....	1204
OFFICIAL:
Notice To Tithe Payers and Contributors Living in Canada .....	1205
ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
My Ministry, by Merl B. Grover .....	1206
An Average Member Speaks, by Arthur H. DuRose .....	1206
Oblation Remarks, by J. S. Kelley .....	1207
The Christmas "Something," by Mitchel M. Carter .....	1208
Weekly Health Letter, by A. W. Teel, M. D. ....	1208
Report of the Department of Statistics for November, by Carroll L. Olson .....	1209
A Declaration of the King's Law, by Kenneth E. Curtis .....	1209
THE GOSPEL FORUM:
Adams Transgression, by Peter M. Hinds .....	1211
NEWS OF CHURCH AND HOME .....	1216
MISCELLANEOUS .....	1224

MISCELLANEOUS

Our Departed Ones

SPRADLEY.—Obediah Spradley was born June 9, 1859, at Dyersburg, Tennessee, and died at Independence, Missouri, November 5, 1931. He was baptized in Pemiscot County, Missouri, by Elder James T. Davis August 16, 1914, and kept the faith to the end. His wife, Mrs. Ida Spradley, one son and two daughters, one brother, one half-brother, and many friends are left to mourn, to meditate on his great reward, and to look forward to a happy reunion beyond the great divide. The funeral was in charge of Elder L. M. McFadden, sermon by T. C. Kelly at the Second Church, Independence.

CHRESTENSEN.—Edward M. Chrestensen, son of George G. Chrestensen, was born February 15, 1923, at Independence, Missouri. Died November 1, 1931, from injuries received when accidentally struck by an automobile. His father, brothers and sisters lose the joy his presence brought to the home. His mother preceded him in death by one year and two months. The funeral rites were conducted from Second Church, Independence, in charge of Elder T. C. Kelley.

MCCORMICK.—John Henry McCormick was born near Goreville, Johnson County, Illinois, July 21, 1859, where he grew to manhood. By diligent study in the public schools and one or two private schools, he qualified himself to teach and for several years rendered efficient service in that vocation. February 27, 1887, he married Miss Mary Jane Kelley, at Tunnel Hill, Illinois. To them were born six daughters two of whom preceded him in death. The others with their mother and twelve grandchildren are left to mourn his death. He was baptized August 2, 1890, and kept the faith all his life. His conduct was such as to make the world better for his having lived. He passed away at Independence, Missouri, August 23, 1931. The funeral was conducted from the Liberty Street Church, Isaac M. Smith in charge. The sermon was by T. C. Kelley.

Marriages

VANNETTEN-BOMAN.—A pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Taylor, of Mishawaka, Indiana, when Miss Eva May Vannetten and Mr. Francis H. Boman, both of Muskegon, were united in marriage by Elder C. F. Hoxie, December 5, 1931. The young couples will be at home to their friends at 1333 Park Street, Muskegon, Michigan. The Saints wish them a long and happy married life and the blessings which the Lord has in store for his faithful children.

His Night

By Elizabeth Smith

Softly the clouds hang low above the earth,
 On this, His night.
 No moon shines.
 Where once the road,
 A path which now lies dark before me.

The snow falls mute.
 Caressingly and light the flakes descend,
 On this, His night.
 No wind blows.
 Where once the storm,
 A calm which now steals dread upon me.

The time seems long.
 Surely the hours must toll some carol gay,
 On this, His night.
 No bells ring.
 Where once the chime,
 A dirge which now moans sad around me.

The gifts are few.
 Truly fires burn vain above the altar,
 On this, His night.
 No prayers here.
 Where once the rich,
 A Waif who now cries alms about me.

The way is hard.
 Although I dream of many joys long passed,
 On this, His night,
 No friend stops.
 Where once a hope,
 Despair now holds fast upon me.

The night was dark.
 Now God's own blessed Son draws humbly nigh,
 On this, His night.
 No grief now.
 Where once the void,
 A star which brings still peace, good-will to me.

The Book for the Saints

Infallible Proofs

A unique and rare collection of over 100 spiritual communications extending from the rise of the church to last General Conference. Printed for Alvin Knisley by the Herald Publishing House. Mailed postpaid for $1.00. Send all orders to Alvin Knisley, Sibley, Mo.

Buy Your Farms Now

While they are cheap. Any size, best terms. Special attention to readers of the Saints' Herald.

CHAS. R. BOWMAN,
 Butler, Mo.

VISION

Short-story Contest

The closing date is December 31.

Be sure to get your story
 in on time.

THE SAINTS' HERALD

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION REORGANIZED CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST

Entered as second-class matter at the post office at Independence, Missouri, under Act of March 3, 1879, authorized July 21, 1921. Accepted for mailing at the special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917; authorized July 21, 1921.

5¢
y at sec-

Volume 78

Independence, Missouri, December 30, 1931

Number 52

THE NEW YEAR

This month shall be unto you the beginning of months: it shall be the first month of the year to you.—Exodus 12: 2.

Whosoever cometh to me, and heareth my sayings, and doeth them, I will show you to whom he is like. He is like a man which built an house, and digged deep, and laid the foundation on a rock: and when the flood arose, the stream beat vehemently upon that house, and could not shake it: for it was founded upon a rock.—Luke 6: 47, 48.

---

THE LINE OF RIGHTEOUSNESS

Evan A. Fry

TO ISRAEL OF LATTER DAYS

Gomer T. Griffiths

THE WAY OUT

E. J. Hayden

Notes From the Field

Bishop Traver Sends Splendid News

(From a letter to President F. M. Smith.)

I am pleased to report that the State of Maine is well over the top again this year. Western Maine's quota for the year was $3,700. Up to December 9, western Maine has turned in $9,922.46, which is $6,222.46 over their quota. Eastern Maine's quota was $3,300. Up to December 9, eastern Maine has turned in $3,597.77, making $297.77 over for eastern Maine. This makes a total of $6,520.23 over for the two districts for this year, and there will probably be close to another thousand in at the end of this month.

I am quite sure we will be able to put Southern New England District over. I have been spending all of my time for the last two or three weeks in assisting to put Southern New England over.

I felt it would do the people of southern New England good if Bishop Curry could spend a day with us, so I wrote him inviting him to come on December 13. We invited the entire district to come to Providence to hear Brother Curry, and we had a good crowd. Representatives from all the branches in the districts, except Haverhill, Massachusetts, and Westerly, Rhode Island, were there. Brother Curry arrived in Providence Sunday morning at a quarter of seven. He preached at ten thirty in the morning, and again at two o'clock in the afternoon. His afternoon sermon was followed by questions.

It was a very good move to have Brother Curry come here. He explained the financial condition of the church; how it happened to be so heavily in debt, and he spoke at some length regarding the program of February 12. He answered other questions regarding the closing of the Jackson County Bank, the Sanitarium; also other questions in which the Saints were very much interested. He handled all subjects in a very masterly and satisfactory manner, and I am sure the confidence of the Saints was greatly strengthened. I know that his visit to New England will result in a great deal of good.

Very sincerely yours,

E. L. TRAVER.

A Few Words of Fact and Inspiration

(From a letter to the First Presidency.)

Since the serious illness of Sister Diggle, who was our branch publicity agent, we have had little publicity so far as articles to the Herald are concerned. We are exceedingly glad to report our sister much improved, and we hope all who feel a deep interest in her suffering will breathe an earnest prayer that she may be wholly recovered and returned to her family and branch. She was a very efficient servant in this capacity.

Saskatoon is moving forward, though we are losing membership; that is, several families, and some of them our most willing workers, have been forced to leave the city and find locations more helpful to their financial needs.

At our missionary service last Sunday evening Brother Diggle, our bishop's agent, reported a total of over $700 as tithing receipts up to this date; besides this Brother Nelse Peterson from our city and branch, turned over property to the church which has netted close to $700 more. When the fall came on and the wheat crop was cut, averaging from nothing to twelve bushels to the acre, we were quite discouraged. We were unable to see where we could expect to raise the money to carry on in the radio work. However, a new convert, Mrs. Moginson, of Vanscoy, urged us to try, and to give impetus she gave a tea at the church, bringing all the supplies from her home twenty-five miles away, and the net proceeds were over thirty-five dollars. Then we gave a fowl supper following, to which the Saints from many parts of the district contributed chickens, and as a result we netted nearly ninety dollars. Then some excellent friends gave us some money, and before we knew it we were over the top with money in the bank to carry us for nearly six months.

Then came the letter from the Bishopric and we were given an allotment for the sacrifice period of one thousand dollars. When Brother Diggle read this in our prayer meeting, I could not help but laugh, or at least spread a big grin. Now see what we have done, the bishop's agent's report shows us nearly over the top with this all but impossible burden. And in reality, we are several hundred dollars over, counting Brother Peterson's contribution. We are still pushing on, and in a quiet but kindly way, the people are being appealed to, and are making a glorious response. If there ever was an occasion for approbation and approval, it is due these people as a result of their heroic sacrifices for the success of the church.

I feel that there are enough loyal-hearted people associated with this church, who, under the grace of God, and backed up by a courageous, persistent spirit of determination, will carry us forward to success.

If we are not divorced from Christ and the purpose of his church, there can be no reason for our failure. However, if we allow any other influence to separate us from the love of Christ, or to divert our efforts and energies to other and less important channels, then a period of disaster may come to the church, but in the end God will pick it up and carry it on to success and triumph.

I am not one who believes that somewhere among the scattered fragments of Latter Day Israel lives the divine nucleus out of which God will build Zion, but I am firm in my conviction that the church it is my pleasure to represent is the vehicle through which the Restoration is being carried on, and though we may have slipped many times in the way and the distressed condition of the church an occasion for repentance in sackcloth and ashes, if it succeed of its purpose we can well suffer together.

I am led to quote the following:

What we need today in the soul of every member of the church is a compelling consciousness, a soul-stirring conviction that burns on in one's soul and will not let him be content until he is spending himself and his very all for the sake of the church which he believes and knows to be divine.

This is a time that demands great faith. Some people have enough to make them happy, strong, and useful; others are unhappy, weak, and futile, because they haven't enough of it. I was convinced by argument, and I am now satisfied by evidence accumulated from over forty years of experience in the church, that with all her failures I love her still, and she still constitutes the outstanding hope of my soul. Let Latter Day Israel take courage and go forward.

WARD L. CHRISTY.

Tithing in Northeastern Illinois District

(From a report of the district conference.)

Bishop's Agent A. O. Skinner reports that the sum of $9,351.86 has been paid in tithes and offerings the past year, that is, from October 1, 1930, to September 30, 1931. Two years ago one out of every eight members in our district paid tithes, the past year one out of every six. Our motto is, "Every member a tithe payer." Watch us grow.

Moral Support From Akron Branch

(From a letter to the First Presidency.)

The Akron Branch in its annual business session, on December 14, adopted the following resolution and instructed me to forward the same to your office. Here it is:

"Be it resolved that we the Akron Branch of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, express our approval of the policy adopted by the leading councils of the church February 14, 1931. And that we express our confidence in the First Presidency and the Presiding Bishopric and agree to support that policy in our faith and pray that the indebtedness may soon be liquidated and that God may so bless his church that the spread of the gospel and the redemption of Zion shall move forward speedily."

Yours sincerely,

JAMES E. BISHOP, district president.

A Stake President Hard at Work

(From a letter to President McDowell.)

We appointed twelve four-minute speakers at Holden and have them scheduled to speak at every gathering of the Saints till the first of January. They are responding in fine spirit. Bernice Hampton was scheduled to speak at the eleven o'clock service, Sunday, the 13th. Brother Gillen preached a wonderful sermon at that hour and she was to follow. I wish you could have heard her talk. It was exceptionally good, and was a fine climax to the sermon, and that is saying a lot, for the sermon was not ordinary. I do not believe there was a dry eye in the house, and some of the Saints were sobbing. What the fruitage of this will be remains to be seen. We are sending letters to those we can not reach by personal calls. The dirt roads are nearly past using the last month and it has been difficult to reach many of the Saints.

I opened a series of missionary meetings at Post Oak on the sixth and kept them going till Brother May came. The attendance was good, notwithstanding the rain and mud. He will continue until Christmas. The outlook is good for us to make our quota, but we will not be satisfied to do that only; we want to "go over the top" strong. I asked Brother DeLapp to stop my allowance the first of November and I would try and get along otherwise. I have compressed my living quarters to a room nine by eleven. Am "batching," laundering my own collars with the help of my daughter, and eliminating every expense I can. Some one gave the farmers a tip, and they are supplying me with food. It's an experiment, but "our necessity is God's opportunity." Some small contributions have kept my immediate needs supplied. There is no question but we can put the church "over the top" if the Saints can be aroused to her needs, and their possibilities. We are not looking only at the financial benefits, but are looking for and stressing the need of a spiritual awakening. Our offering service will be Sunday, the twentieth, as we will reach many that day who would not be out on Christmas Day.

Hopefully,

STAKE PRESIDENCY,

By W. S. MACRAE.

Blue Pencil Notes

There are several ways to blunder in church work; but the surest way is to stand back and not work.

"Don't be so quick to get mad and so slow to forgive," counseled Deacon Goodentart. "The friends that I have lost by death rest quietly in the cemetery, their spirits, I trust, in the paradise of God; but the friends that I lost through contentions and misunderstandings seem not to rest, their ghosts come back to trouble me at all sorts of times."

Small Son: "Mamma, does what I am doing bother you?"

Mother: "Yes. What was it you were doing?"

Poe's poem, "The Bells," needs two more verses, one to the door bell, one to the telephone bell; but every time I try to make the addition one or the other rings.

Replying to the argument that man has always had some form of religion, Clarence Darrow, atheist and criminal lawyer, retorts, "Yes, and he has always had cancer and bedbugs." Well, it must be conceded that cancer, bedbugs, criminal lawyers, and atheists are of great antiquity.

Also Darrow rises to affirm that Moses went up into the mountain alone to get the plates so that no one could see that he got them, and afterward broke them so that no one could say that he did not get them. That sounds much like the allegations made against Joseph Smith in connection with the Book of Mormon plates.

A man's good days are when he is at work. Every aged man looks back and talks about the days when he was busy as his best days. If modern machinery with mass production is to put men out of employment, so that boys grow to manhood, without ever having known steady employment, then certainly it will be a curse and not a blessing. Emerson wisely said, "Every man's job is his life preserver." When one of our men went wrong morally and I talked with Doctor Harrington about the case, the first question he asked was, "Did this man for any reason lose interest in his work?" Busy hands and interest in work conserve morality and religion.

I have rather a poor opinion of pretensions—that is, the pretensions of other people. And to tell the truth I have never gotten any real pleasure out of my own. A number of years ago when students were being graduated from the Independence Institute, the exercises being in the Stone Church, the man then in charge of the Institute conceived the idea of renting caps and gowns for the graduates and members of the faculty and board. Being a member of the board, in a moment of weakness I permitted myself to be ushered into a gown that evidently was intended for a short fat man, and donned a "mortar board" cap that was too small and inclined to shift its position at every movement. We marched in with considerable eclat and took seats on the rostrum. At once it seemed to me that every eye was focussed on "Brother Elbert." I spent five minutes trying to look like a doctor of philosophy, or something, and the rest of the evening looking foolish—the cap and gown were not necessary in that endeavor, but they helped a lot. A cap and gown look fine on a man who has earned his degree by years of hard work in a university. Perhaps it will be like that with the white robes of the redeemed. We must earn them and grow into them, and then we will scarcely be happy in them; but if they were just "wished on" us at the last moment, how uncomfortable we would be, even in the courts of glory and the realms of bliss. "Who are these arrayed in white robes? These are they which have come out of great tribulation, and have washed their robes, and made them white in the blood of the Lamb. Therefore are they before the throne of God, and serve him day and night in his temple."

ELBERT A. SMITH.

"The Messiah"

"A great spiritual experience," is the proper phrase for describing the rendition of Handel's "The Messiah" by the Independence Messiah Choir in the beautiful auditorium of the Scottish Rite Temple in Kansas City last Sunday afternoon. This marvelous and most popular of all oratorios does not grow old, for one returns to each new hearing with reverent memories to aid him in the appreciation and interpretation of each new presentation.

Space forbids us to make separate comment upon the fine individual work of the soloists: Marguerite Johnson Blaine, soprano; Gladys Good, contralto; George Anway, tenor; and Arthur Oakman, baritone. But it must be said that their work was distinguished by a sincerity that spiritualized their highly artistic performances. Well-merited and generous praise was won by Robert and George Miller, the brothers who presided at the organ and the piano respectively, who made splendid contributions to the success of the event.

For his work in building a really fine choir, for the discovery, encouragement and development of individual musicians, for his promotion of the amateur spirit in music, and for bringing the love and appreciation of good music as a gift to many people, we owe a large debt of gratitude to Paul N. Craig, conductor of the chorus. The fine rendition last Sunday must be seen, after all, as the fulfillment of his dreams, and the reward of his energy, vision, and faithfulness to a self-imposed task. While possessing all of the charms characteristic of musicians, he has shown none of their most common faults, which the world willingly forgives them in recognition of their art. Shoulder to shoulder with the other musicians of the church Paul Craig has worked; pushing himself into the background when that would serve to help the work; and sometimes uncomplainingly allowing himself to be brushed aside by others. But his merit is of a kind that wins recognition for him in spite of his modesty. The critic of the Kansas City Times who reviewed the performance said, "Mr. Craig is a director of keen intelligence and fine ideals." That tribute, it seems to us, is richly deserved.

We are happy in seeing the development of a great musical organization in our Messiah Choir. It already has its traditions. It may now count with pride each added year that it has produced this wonderful musical creation. In the growth, the development, the discipline, and the artistic effort toward perfection of this group of singers we may consider that we are witnessing musical history in the process of making.

L. L.

A New Publication

Among a church membership that is distributed around the world, necessity frequently arises for local publications that will satisfy needs not filled by the general church periodicals. A number of publications supported by localities and districts are in a thriving condition and do much good in promoting cooperation and fellowship among the members.

A recent arrival among the church publications is the monthly Southern District Herald, serving the Southern District (England), and Wales. The first issue, dated for December, 1931, is marked "specimen copy" and offers an interesting sketch of the intended work and scope of the paper. The editor, John A. Judd, is also district president. Others besides English Saints may desire to subscribe for the paper. They may do so by communicating with the editor at his office at the following address: 317 Baker Street, Enfield, Middlesex, England.

We welcome the new publication, and extend best wishes for success in the work undertaken by Brother Judd and the two associate editors, J. W. Worth and H. Hailstone.

L. L.

After the Depression—What?

What are we to do—what are we to be, "after the depression"? Are we to seek only a return of the boom times of 1928 and 1929? Or are we looking for something better and more stable than the impermanent thing we called prosperity in those years?

An attempt to answer these questions, and to point the way to something better will be made in a series of articles which will appear in the Herald in the next and in succeeding issues. Four of the articles for the series are already in our hands, and others are expected from some of the best writers among our church people.

Our readers will be concerned not alone with their own course "after the depression," but also with the program of the church. We hope and believe that the articles will be of interest and value.

About the Hymns

Apostle F. H. Edwards kindly sends the following timely suggestion, which will be of interest to those who are concerned with church music:

I think that you will do well to call attention in the Herald to Great Hymns of Worship and Missions issued by the Department of Missionary Education of the Board of Education of the Northern Baptist Convention 1931. It costs twenty-five cents and tells the story of twenty-five hymns of which more than twenty are in the new hymnal. The stories are well told. There is little denominational emphasis. And I think that the use of the book will do much to popularize the hymns in the new compilation which must fully justify its issuance.

This book, or any other that our readers wish, may be ordered through the Herald Publishing House, Independence, Missouri. Always give the following information as completely and accurately as possible: title, author, publisher, and price.

My Candle of Hope

By Mary E. Gillin

I have lighted my candle of Hope,
And set in my window to gleam
As Bethlehem's Star
Once shone out afar.
To gladden the world with its beam.

I have kindled my fire of Love
And watch for the glow of its spark
When love round the world
Like a banner is curled
It will banish our woe and the "dark."

I have planted the seed of Faith
In the shine of tomorrow's sun.
Not always the rain,
The sorrow nor pain—
For sometime the victory's won!

Oh, let not my candle of Hope burn low
Nor the fire of my Love grow dim
Let my faith sustain
And my hope remain
In Bethlehem's Star and in Him!

Letters to the Editor

In this department we are glad to receive and publish letters of interest to our readers.

A Word About the "Herald"

We received our Herald today and tonight finished reading Elder Luff's article on "Agents for God." May God bless his pen for the Saints' sake. We shall put that article away and read it often.

His Christ is not a man, nor a God either, who died, was resurrected, and ascended on high two thousand years ago and of whom we have a written testimony. His Lord is alive within his soul, a living testimony. . . .

Have we not other pens that are directed to write with the same spirit? that can make Christ a reality within us? that can feed our faith and cultivate it until we grow to the glory of God?

We look forward to the coming of the Herald each week, but are not always so well nourished by it as this week. Perhaps it is because we should adapt ourselves to a different diet, but God knows which is the most nourishing.

We are ever praying for you, in Christ.

WILLIAM ARMSTRONG.

MINNIE ARMSTRONG.

Have We a Practical Religion?

As a regular reader of the Herald, but not yet a member of the church, I have followed very closely every detail of church interest, with the hope of discovering the higher and nobler of its principles and ideals expressed in the lives of the group forming the church. A people who actually demonstrate the "truth" of their beliefs.

I am wondering, in view of certain happenings of recent date, whether you can justify your claim to place before the world a church that is different from others. Would it be impertinent to ask the question what percentage of the church membership can be catalogued as real one hundred per cent Latter Day Saints? How many are really Latter Day Saints, and how many are Latter Day "Aints"? (Note: The word "Aint" is used in the north of England when a person is not disposed to do the thing required.)

By asking this question I may be thought to be unduly critical but I can not close my eyes to things of such importance as the present financial distress of the church.

In the official columns of the Herald dated November 11, 1931, I noticed that you have estimated $138,624.89 as the present need of the church for the closing three months of the year. A little calculation shows that this amount spread over the net enrollment of the church (110,000) gives a pro-rata amount of $1.00 per head. This in English coinage at the present rate of exchange is approximately five shillings. Spreading this amount over the period of three months we find that the 110,000 members would have to subscribe the ridiculously small sum of 6d, (sixpence) per week (approximately ten cents) to raise the required amount of $138,689.89. Even if we make generous allowance for delinquents by cutting the net enrollment by fifty per cent we still would only need subscribe one shilling per head for the three months to raise the required amount. Is the church so weak that it can not find at least fifty per cent of its membership ready and willing to demonstrate in a practical way the "Truth" they so loudly proclaim.

When I read in the news column of the Herald an item to the effect that a silver collection was taken in the — Church for the "Choir Robe Fund" I am constrained to ask: Are robes more necessary to the church than missionaries? I am sure that had they given the proceeds to the Bishopric they would in the knowledge of their sacrifice sing sweeter and more in harmony with the Spirit and with each other.

Facts such as these present the puzzles and unsatisfactory conclusions of whether it is a church practicing as well as expounding the ideals of Zion.

I am a student of things appertaining to commerce and the expenses for my education take practically the whole of my pin money.

Why, then, should I, as a nonmember, consider making a resolution to go something short from New Year onwards and give what I thus save to the church? It seems ridiculous that a nonmember can be willing to do this while members do not fully realize their individual responsibility.

I refer of course to people who can afford to do it, because here in England we have a number of men who, through force of circumstances, are unable to pay tithing, yet, the sardonical part of it is that these are the very men who give their time, energy, and intellect to the church without reservations. Two of these men in particular have been the means of teaching and instructing me in the things that matter in the church.

To them I am grateful, but am I asking too much or expecting too much when I ask for a practical religion?

No wonder the Savior said, "When I come, shall I find Faith" (in the church)?

Yours fraternally,

"INSURANCE."

ORIGINAL ARTICLES

The Line of Righteousness

By Evan A. Fry

I want to begin my talk this morning with a brief lesson in geometry. You will not need a paper and pencil, but if you would really like to use one, it may help to bring home the point. Let us begin by drawing a straight line on the largest sheet of paper we can find, and then continue by imagining this line to be projected straight into space to infinity. Now, at the beginning of this line, begin another, but do not make it quite parallel. Draw this line to form the sharpest possible angle with the first one, and draw it as far as you can. Notice what is happening; the two lines are getting farther and farther apart. If you extend the second line to infinity as you did the first, how much space will there be between the ends of the two lines? How far apart will they be at infinity? Some one has said, graphically and truthfully, that there will be enough room between them for all the space that separates heaven from hell.

It seems to me that the moral of this story should be obvious. Beware of the slight deflection from the straight line of right, for even a slight deflection, if followed long enough, will separate you as far from the line of right as heaven is separated from hell.

Most people manage to worry along through life without spending very much time in jail or in the penitentiary, or being executed for murder. Most people fortunately do not rob or plunder or murder their fellow citizens. Most of us manage to keep fairly clear of the law, and to avoid trouble with the church authorities. In other words, we do not scandalize our friends and neighbors by committing large or heinous crimes. Most of our sins are little and petty—things that most people do not notice, and things which we think are scarcely worthy of notice. Oh, yes, we admit in a very broad and very general way that we are sinful; we admit that we have faults, and we could very probably point out those faults, but instead of trying to overcome them we so often excuse ourselves by saying that everybody is human, or that everybody has to have some faults, and calmly proceed with our daily round oblivious to that which should be causing us grave concern. There is no such thing as a little sin. A sin is a sin, and a little one is just as potentially dangerous as the largest one in the calendar.

Suppose that you do something that you know is wrong. It is a very small thing, and you think it is scarcely worthy of notice. The next time a similar temptation comes along, you are going to be in a psychologically and physically and morally weaker state to put up the proper resistance to that temptation. The second may be no worse than the first, or if it is any worse than the first, the increase is so slight that it still seems to be of no consequence. When you drew the two lines, the distance between them two inches from the starting point was scarcely noticeable, but the farther they were projected, the farther apart they became. So when temptation after temptation is presented, it may be not a bit worse than the one preceding, but if it leads in the same direction, each yielding to a temptation will carry you farther and farther from the line of right. If you continue long enough, a very slight thing oft repeated and long continued may take you so far from the straight line of right and truth that there is room between for all the space that lies between heaven and hell.

No man can afford to swerve, no matter how slightly, from the straight line of righteousness and truth. The formation of a habit is too easy a matter to allow a bad habit the start of even one repetition. And if I were asked what was the matter with the average church member today, I believe I should say that his biggest fault is his lethargy and lack of interest or concern in his own shortcomings and paltry sins. To the people of his church, Christ gave not only marvelous blessings, but tremendous responsibilities, and he warned his early followers that unless their righteousness exceeded that of the Scribes and Pharisees, they should in no wise inherit the kingdom. The Scribes and Pharisees were meticulous about observing the law; they were not guilty of any of the sensationally vicious types of crime or sin, so evidently Christ meant that his followers should be better than the average citizen of mediocre respectability and morality.

The church member—the follower of Jesus—should be obviously and markedly different from the man of the world, or else the religion of Jesus is of no avail, and Christ is mocked. If we as followers of the Christ are not always the living examples and oracles of his will that we should be, I wonder whether it may not sometimes be because we have strayed, perhaps ever so slightly, from the straight line which he gave us to follow? The world has a soothing philosophy of "Oh, come along and be a good sport. Everybody else does it; it's human and natural to have some faults, and to sin some sins. Don't be a kill-joy or a mollycoddle." And oftentimes the Christian hears and heeds such philosophy, and begins to draw the line of his life at a slight angle away from the line of Christ's precept and example. Let me stress again and again, if we continue in that direction, though the angle of departure be ever so slight, eventually we shall find ourselves as far away from the heavenly goal as is hell itself.

Little things are important, vastly important, and they are more important in the field of morals than in a good many other places. May you and I be so careful of the little deviations in our morals that we may be always found hewing to the straight line which was laid down for us in the life of Christ Jesus. If we have strayed from that straight line, let us take another lesson in geometry, and remember that a straight line is the shortest distance between two points. Let us cut back at once by the shortest possible route to the straight pattern line, and there take up a new start in the path marked for us by our friend and elder brother, Jesus Christ. At the end of the race, we shall then be with him, and not separated from him by an infinity of space and an eternity of time.

The Way Out

By E. J. Hayden

We are told in Matthew 5: 16 that our Lord said to his followers: "I give unto you to be the light of the world." Now, light has at least two outstanding functions: It reveals to our vision our surroundings; the obstacles in our path, and the way in which they may be either surmounted, or avoided, as well as the goal, or objective for which we are striving; and it vitalizes, purifies, and strengthens all that comes under its rays. It is therefore essential that the light shall be undimmed, bright, and clear, if the pathway is to be known with certainty; or if there is to be sufficient strength and vitality to overcome the forces which oppose our progress. In Deuteronomy 28: 13, the Lord declares to his people: "The Lord shall make thee the head, and not the tail; and thou shalt be above only, and thou shalt not be beneath; if that thou hearken unto the commandments of the Lord thy God, which I command thee this day, to observe and to do them." And this is the great privilege of the people of God today: that they may go at the head, to lead the way, and to bear aloft, undimmed and clear, the torch of divine truth, to guide, not themselves only, but also the whole world, in paths of peace and pleasantness.

These promises have been made by our Lord, and we know that he is able to do all that he has promised. But we must not lose sight of the fact that it is only when we live in full accord with his will that these, or any other promises, are in force, or can be expected to take effect in our behalf. For he who promised also said: "I, the Lord, am bound when ye do what I say, but when ye do not what I say, ye have no promise. (Doctrine and Covenants 81: 3.)

A well-to-do farmer had a fine flock of hens of which he was very proud. But he kept losing them, not in any large numbers, but one at a time; and upon investigation, he found that his neighbor was in the habit of killing one of them each week, for his Sunday dinner. Of course the farmer might have punished the thief at once. But he thought that it would be much better if he could teach his neighbor to be honest. So he went to him, and said to him: You have been killing my hens for a long time. Now you know that it is not right for you to rob me in this way. And I might send you to jail, but instead I am going to give you a chance to show that you will do that which is right. Now, you can get along without meat for your Sunday dinner, this summer, and if you will let my hens alone, I will give you a nice fat hog in the fall, for your winter supply of meat. The neighbor thanked the farmer for his kindness, and said that he would expect the hog, that he might fill his pork barrel, and smoke-house. But instead of keeping his part of the agreement, he continued to feast on the farmer's hens all summer. Then in the fall, when he saw that the farmer was about to butcher his hogs, he went to him and asked for the hog which had been promised to him. You may say that is utter nonsense; that no man would be foolish enough to do such a thing. He would know that he would not only be refused the hog, but would be sent to jail for theft. And that is true, when we are dealing with our fellow men. But God has said: "Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house, and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it." (Malachi 3: 10.) And yet, through the long period of plenty, we, very many of us, have continued to appropriate to our own use that which belonged to the Lord; and now that the winter of adversity is upon us, we have the hardihood to approach the Lord, and ask that the windows of heaven be opened unto us, that we may receive the blessings which he had promised to us on conditions of obedience. And this, too, has been, in many instances, simply a case of big Sunday dinners, which we might very easily have done without.

The whole world is now groping in a deep, dark valley of financial depression. And we, as a church, could not reasonably hope to escape, since we have not fulfilled the divinely imposed conditions, whereby we might have been spared. However, the way of escape is still open, and the promise of the Lord is still: "Return unto me, and I will return unto you, saith the Lord of hosts." (Malachi 3: 7.)

This opens to us a golden opportunity, one in which we may not only win for ourselves the blessings which our neglect has forfeited, but also be of incalculable worth to our fellow men, in showing them the way out of present conditions of distress. We realize, however, that there are those who are faint-hearted, and whose faith is not strong. And while we may not be able to see all the way from the start, and so may be tempted to doubt, the Lord has said that if any man will do his (God's) will, he shall know of the doctrine. (John 7: 17.) But we must prove its truth in God's own way, and not seek to set up a standard of our own, by which we will judge the work of the Lord.

Perhaps no people were ever more thoroughly depressed, and at the end of their resources, than were the children of Israel, as they faced the Red Sea, with mountains on either side, and the Egyptians behind. Yet the Lord commanded them to go forward. (Exodus 14: 15.) And when the Jaredites lost courage as they were confronted by the stormy Atlantic, the Lord said go to work. (Ether 1: 43.) And so it has been in every age. If men would receive a blessing of the Lord, there is always something which they must do before it is granted.

In conclusion let me refer again to the word of God: (Doctrine and Covenants 129: 8) until such heed is paid to the word which has been given, and which is in accordance with other revelations given to the church, which had been before given, the church can not receive and enjoy the blessings which have been looked for when Zion should be fully redeemed.

It may be hard, exceedingly hard, under present circumstances, but let us bring all the tithes into the storehouse.

To Israel of Latter Days

By Gomer T. Griffiths

I feel impressed to say to the Lord's people as He said to Joshua, "Have I not commanded thee be strong, and of good courage; be not afraid, neither be thou dismayed: for the Lord thy God will be with thee whithersoever thou goest."

The conditions that confronted Joshua were very discouraging. The Lord knew what he would have to encounter in the way of obstacles in order to accomplish the work he had assigned him to perform as a leader of God's people in that day.

The church of God has always been threatened with disaster ever since the days of Adam, for his Satanic Majesty has done all within his power to destroy the church and by reason thereof at different periods in the history of the world the church has had to suffer the consequences of the many obstacles that Satan has placed before it with a view to impede its progress and to bring to pass its final destruction.

However, the God who has watched over and cared for his church in all ages past is still mindful of his glorious church that was purchased through the great suffering and the shedding of the precious blood of Jesus Christ.

We realize that very many of the Saints in the church today are discouraged because of the distressing condition that the church is in at the present time. I feel led to call the attention of latter day Israel to a dream the writer had about the year 1918, which seemed to indicate that the church would be called upon to pass through many trying periods of discouragement and threatened with final destruction, but that God by his matchless power would bring the church through triumphantly in spite of the forces that would be brought to bear to impede its progress and destroy it. The dream is as follows:

I seemed to be associated with many others, prominent officers in the church, with the responsibility of caring for and looking after a very magnificent steamer. This steamer was loaded down with Latter Day Saints and these officers referred to above had the supervision of the boat. It was their duty to feed the people and look after their welfare as well as to care for the boat itself. We appeared to be going downstream on a river similar to the Mississippi River. The channel varied in its course. It would be on one side of the river, in the center, and then on the opposite side. We apparently were making good headway but all at once, to our dismay and surprise, the channel grew narrow and the water became very shallow and it was with difficulty that the steamer could make headway, and now, to our consternation, the channel made a short turn and in view of the narrowness and shallowness of the water it seemed almost impossible to get that steamer around that short curve, and as a matter of course, those in charge thereof were much distressed over this trying condition confronting them.

In process of time the steamer passed over that dangerous period and moved along quite nicely for a time until we came to another narrow spot where the channel grew more narrow and the water more shallow and there was an abrupt turn which was worse than the one passed over previously. We were now in a terrible mental condition for it seemed almost impossible to get the steamer over that danger spot. This time the channel was in the center of the river and little islands on both sides, and to our delight and rejoicing we got the boat over in safety.

The steamer moved on now without any further interruption for some distance until finally the channel went to the right of the river and ran up close along side of what seemed to be a steep mountain which appeared to be perpendicular and huge rocks projected, some of them six to eight feet. The water got shallow and the channel narrow, more so than had been experienced in the other two instances referred to. If the boat went the least bit out of its course to the right those rocks would rip it from bow to stern and destroy it. Imagine our feelings at the perilous condition the boat was in with all those people on board with whose safety we were intensely concerned! The future did not look very bright for the boat nor the people thereon.

But a long distance ahead of us we beheld the open sea and our aim was to get our boat there, where she would be perfectly safe. I remember I was on deck and beholding the hazardous position of the boat, and wondering how it was possible for us to get our boat to the open sea, I thought I would look into the pilot house and see who was at the wheel. To my great amazement and happiness a divine personage (Christ, the great Pilot) was at the wheel guiding the boat. He did not turn to speak nor look at me for the reason that he had to pay his entire attention to the directing of the boat through this dangerous channel which made it necessary for the boat to move very slowly and carefully. At last, after what seemed to be a long time, because the bad condition of the channel made us move very slowly, the boat reached the open sea with all those on board. Of course there was great rejoicing on the part of those on the boat that the pilot had so successfully guided the boat through this difficult and dangerous channel. And then I awoke.

For some time I could not comprehend what the dream signified but now I do know because we have gone through two of those difficult periods within the last few years. In 1919 the church had a trying experience which threatened the peace of many, and as a consequence many lost confidence, but we passed through that period. Again in 1925 we had another trying experience which was worse than the first, wherein hundreds seemingly lost faith in the church and many of our people deserted the boat and thus suffered themselves to become castaways. But the church (the steamer) moved on. Now she is in worse distress than in the other periods, and threatened with destruction, and it is apparent, according to this dream, that it will take her a long time to pass through the present crisis that confronts her, but the divine pilot, Jesus, will bring her, the church, through in safety into the deep waters where there will be ample room and sufficient depth for her to move forward to victory.

But it will require great patience and much sacrifice of those who are on board this boat, or the members of the Church of Jesus Christ. Hence the God who told Joshua he would be with him whithersoever he went will by his great and mighty power also be with us down here in these last days if we put our trust in him and seek to do his will more perfectly in the future than we have in the past.

In this trying time we should exercise the same faith and implicit confidence in God that Father Abraham manifested of whom it is written, "He staggered not at the promise of God through unbelief; but was strong in faith, giving glory to God and being fully persuaded that that what he had promised he was able also to perform."

Thus those who will put their shoulder to the wheel and help to push the chariot along and willingly do their part in helping to meet our present obligations which the church is under and put forth their best efforts by being diligent in the service of their Lord, will be blessed of God. Remember that the church will be triumphant in the end in spite of the Devil's efforts to destroy its existence here on earth.

Therefore, let us be of good courage as the Lord has said and attend to our heavenly father's business with all diligence and he will display his power as never before in the history of the church in behalf of his people. Christ went through Gethsemane patiently and bravely and so must we if we are ever privileged to dwell with him when he shall reign on this earth as King of kings and Lord of lords. It will require the exercise of great fortitude and tremendous sacrifice on the part of his people to meet the present emergency. For our God wants valiant warriors and not slackers at this time when the church is in need of brave soldiers and workers to bring the church out of its distressing condition. I fear that many will suffer themselves to let go of the iron rod and woe be unto such as will slacken their efforts in the service of their Master and withhold their substance at this time when there is so much need of financial aid in order to meet the payments that are necessary to pay the indebtedness.

There is ample means in the church providing those who have it will condescend to part with it in the interest of the church. Do not lose sight of the fact that the Lord loves the cheerful giver, especially those who are willing to pay their tithes and offerings as directed by him.

I predict that those who so honor the Lord with their substance during this trying period the church is passing through, will be abundantly blessed of the Lord, and be comforted by his Spirit as never before in all their experience in serving the Lord.

The writer wishes you all a Merry Christmas and a glorious and prosperous New Year.

I remain your colaborer and fellow servant in Christ Jesus.

"The Laborer Is Worthy of His Hire"

AT LEAST, HE OUGHT TO HAVE HIS EXPENSES

By W. H.

The author is here dealing with a problem which irritates and troubles every man who is subject to call to give service to the members of the church. In point of simple fact, it is not "hire" for which the author would ask: it is expenses only, for no member of the priesthood ever thinks of monetary reward for his service. The tradition that "everything is free" which has grown up among our people, has caused much inconvenience and even suffering to the priesthood, the missionaries, and traveling officers. Its root is in thoughtlessness and selfishness, except in the rare cases where actual poverty is the cause. Travel costs money, and to throw its cost upon the men who give their service continually is an injustice. We hope that this article will help to effect a reform.—Editors.

The harvest truly is great, but the laborers are few: pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he would send forth laborers into his harvest. Go your ways: behold I send you forth as lambs among wolves. Carry neither purse, nor scrip, nor shoes: . . . for the laborer is worthy of his hire.—Luke 10: 2-7.

Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature. . . . And these signs shall follow them that believe: in my name shall they cast out devils; they shall speak with new tongues; they shall take up serpents; and if they drink any deadly thing it shall not hurt them; they shall lay hands on the sick and they shall recover.—Mark 16: 15-18.

A tremendous responsibility this to "Go ye into all the world," and this, "they shall lay hands on the sick and they shall recover." This is a responsibility which every one expects every man called to the Melchisedec priesthood to carry out to the limit, sometimes by calling them almost to "all the world" to administer.

An equally tremendous responsibility exists for those calling for and enjoying the ministrations of those of the priesthood in the admonition, "Carry neither purse, nor scrip, nor shoes . . . for the laborer is worthy of his hire."

In the more thickly settled districts and branches this perhaps is not so much of a problem as it is in the larger districts that extend for several hundred miles in any direction with Saints scattered all over the territory.

As financial agent for one of these large districts there has come to our attention the situation that has developed for a number of our ministers, both those under general appointment and those that are classified as local.

While the problem is not ours any more than it is that of any other officer in the district we shall quote a few typical entries to be found in our own diary, realizing that they have their equal in the diary of practically every elder in the district.

"Drove 265 miles today to preach the funeral sermon of Brother ———. Roads very bad part of the way. Chevy loosened a bearing, but was able to complete the trip. Received nothing."

"Was called to ——— tonight to administer to Brother ———. The Lord must intervene in his behalf if he is to live. Severe rain for forty miles. Total trip 135 miles. Chevy functioned perfectly in the downpour. Received nothing."

"Spent the day today calling on isolated Saints that have asked for administration. Total mileage 180 miles. Administered six times. Received fifty cents from Sister ———."

And so we might go on for almost time indefinitely quoting from the records of activities for nearly ten years in the "wide open spaces."

An occasional trip of such a nature or several of the smaller trips that total only fifteen to thirty miles to a trip are not a serious problem, but when these trips become so continuous that they total an average of a dollar a day during some periods of the year it becomes a problem that not many "local" men or men who are dependent entirely on what is given them can handle.

The average person or family does not send for the elders oftener than once or twice a year and to them it does not appear as anything that should be seriously considered. When that same elder ministers to twenty-five or more such families over a period of time the problem is a big one.

Unfortunately many of our local men are men who are forced to labor by the day or month for their living. They willingly give of their time, often losing a day's work, more often giving of their night's rest when they should be resting and then the most of them are called upon to finance their own traveling operations besides.

With the man under general appointment there seems to be a somewhat different feeling. Some branches and some individuals are very considerate of the general appointee, others are not. In many places the expense of the visiting elder is considered as car fare. If he travels otherwise it is considered nothing.

Car fare is necessary but it is rather embarrassing to the traveler to attempt to buy a meal with a receipt for car fare. The clothing stores don't seem to be anxious to trade clothes for car fare receipts and Uncle Sam absolutely refuses to carry letters with car fare receipts for postage.

If the "laborer is worthy of his hire" then those to whom he ministers are responsible for "his hire."

I hear the cry that we are commercializing the religion of our fathers. If it be commercialization to pay the expenses of the visiting elder, be he local or otherwise, then I am strong for commercialization.

It is not that there is not the desire on the part of the priesthood to function, but it is that it is so often a one-sided proposition. It has been our experience on several occasions to leave our business, drive perhaps a hundred miles, administer to the afflicted one, and then be permitted to return home without even a meal to cheer us up.

This situation is not confined to any one district, although it is worse in some districts than in others. Some branches and some individuals are exceptionally good about attending to these matters and provide that the laborer shall have his "hire." All too many entirely disregard the matter and often times literally "eat up" some of the necessities, to say nothing of the common pleasures to which the family of the member of the priesthood is entitled.

We would not advocate anything that would function as a charge for service, but we would advocate the cooperation of those who are enjoying the blessings of the administration of the priesthood that it may not become an unnecessary burden on that class of men who already are giving freely of their time and talents.

A Declaration of the King's Law

IV.—STEWARDSHIP DEFINED—FINANCIALLY

By Kenneth B. Curtis

Of interest in connection with this number of the series will be a story by the author entitled, "The Lure of Russia," which is scheduled to appear in an early issue of "Vision." The reader will find it of help as an explanation of certain features of this article.

Readers will please note that authoritative statements on the doctrine of stewardships proceed only in communications approved by the church through its regular officers. This view here presented is the opinion of the author given for thought and discussion only. We repeat our invitation for other writers to add their comments which will, if found suitable, be published.—Editors.

I once heard a noted Hindu lecturer say, "Never before has the world been in need of better fellowship than today." This bears out the thought that we, as a church, are not alone in striving for a principle which seems universal. Community stewardship, as our goal, for this reason seems all the more plausible.

The need of community stewardship, however, is not through any defect in the economic plans of men today, but because of man's selfishness. You must remember that God shows to the individual by experience the need of training, and it is only natural to feel that he will prove to man, in the same way, the needs of the people as a body, upon each person individually, and the individual needs upon the body. They are inseparable.

The natural resources of a country should be preserved for each individual by the head of the group; not that certain amounts would be doled out, but rather the amounts needed by each to take care of his just wants. The same is true of the talent and ability of the people as a group. It is not that mankind needs a master, but a set of brakes put on its selfish desires. It is man's own disposition, not God's. Man is the selfish one, not God. God is love, and until man can be made to realize that when a babe is first born it should instantly become heir to its share of all the natural resources, all the talent and ability of the group into which it was born, man will suffer hell, damnation, and rebuke, not only from his fellow men but from the God above.

Further, as cited before, man's economic plans are not defective other than in the sense that it allows man, in business, his entire freedom, and as God gave man at first the fullness of his law to be a stumblingblock, for him to learn, so he also gave man his complete freedom, irrespective of the other fellow in economics, for a stumblingblock. Hence, you would not say the fullness of God's word is unjust or defective. Neither can you say the economic plans of today are wrong. It is man himself.

Let us contrast one plan with another for the sake of clearness. There are three plans that come to mind readily: community stewardship, our present-day economic plan, and Russia's plan. A short while back the world laughed at Russia, and said they could not make a success of their experiment. They have succeeded so far, but time will tell. Russia's plan is to force the ignorance out of the masses which represents eighty-five per cent of the population, and teach them. Only fifteen per cent represents the educated class. Also, all are forced to work for the good of the community, and the community, as a whole, preserves its natural resources for the use of the individual; in short, a form of stewardship worked by force.

This plan, as I mentioned in the last writing, is not only poisonous, but detrimental to humanity at large. Why? Because force never accomplished anything and never will. Man must retain his agency and his freedom, limited only as he chooses to submit to orders for the benefit of his fellow men, and if he doesn't choose to do this, then he is in God's hands, and no amount of force on the part of any human being will bring about a solution. Consider prohibition as an example.

On the other hand, we believe man's theory of this plan of stewardship is good, but the arm of flesh is weak. It needs divine aid, and only by a covenant with God by each individual can man be made to apply the brakes on his selfishness. Consider it. In other words, we believe and teach community stewardship, with God as our partner.

Stewardship will become still more plain when we consider the workings of men in their present-day economic plan. Note, I say, men's workings, for they have their complete freedom in all things. At the heart of this great plan lies man's gold. It in itself is worthless; you can not wear it nor eat it nor drink it. Hence, it is only good for one thing to man; it represents the values of all other values. If man would stick closely to these values, then business would be sound and sure, and there would be enough in this world for all; but when man's imagination begins to bring about false values of things because he wants more, when he misuses the beauty of fair credit by taking on more than he is possibly worth, then his prosperity turns to panic, and you know what follows. One instance of this imaginative genius of man is shown in the business of stocks and bonds. A man will have a business valued at $10,000,000. He decides to expand and sells stocks for investments to the amount of $100,000,000. As long as he keeps either the money in hand or property in equal valuation he is clear; but if his greed for more overcomes his common sense and he starts to invest parts of this money in other forms, then he starts to gamble. Remember that theoretically it is good business.

It is commonly thought the so-called rich man has no worries, but all the money; but in reality, he is so involved in investments of a gambling nature simply to satisfy his lust for more, that when the momentum of prosperity begins to slow up he finds himself in thin air and sometimes suicide results. The investor begins to clamor for his money (gold), and this gambling business man can not, in turn, get his because of investments he has made, and that business man can not get his because his investments are out, and so on. Where is the money? Go to any firm you want that has had large gains in its stocks in the period of so-called prosperity, and you will find this condition. The property all gets tied up. Most everyone has misused the credit system, and is head over heels in debt; so naturally hardly anyone has any money. There is plenty of material, plenty of food, but where is the gold to exchange for it? Therefore, the food lies rotting on the farm and the city people begin to starve.

And so it goes, everyone treading on thin air, crashing headlong to the earth down to values that are real and business measures sane. The poor man is not exempt from this. He has bought all and more than he can handle. Humanity, with freedom unmolested, is the same the world over. It is the duty of all to get together, now that we have learned our lesson—that is, if we have—and form a governing body to apply the brakes when needed; and since we have built up golden calves with our gold, God may, according to prophecy (as mentioned in a previous sketch,) take it away from us. Now, whose fault would it be—God's or man's?

Summed up, then, into one total, community stewardship in finances, prohibits any phase of gambling in our economic relations, and places a powerful brake upon our selfish, greedy natures by striking straight at our hearts with the weapon of love, and considering God as our partner by a written contract; so start now and hunt for that dotted line.

God doesn't want to take away our agency from us nor our freedom. He only wants us to remember our brothers, for we certainly could not do without them. God, our father, in mercy and tenderness, loves us all, wrong as we may have been, so much that he gave his only begotten Son; let him die; be murdered in cold blood, without any reason other than he wanted us to be able to come near him. How beautiful the picture is. We fume and fuss and grab just like spoiled children, and we need the punishment we get. And we who are supposed to be the elect go around with long faces and tears in our eyes, praying for God to come and whip the other fellow so we can get what he has. Isn't that narrow? Why, we are even worse than the other fellow because we know what to do, but we quarrel and cry and assert that Zion is not going to be redeemed.

"And he shall turn the heart of the fathers to the children, and the heart of the children to their fathers, lest I come and smite the earth with a curse."
(Malachi 4: 6.)

---

Things that make the most noise usually have the least in them. A drum is entirely hollow.

Promises for the future will not take the place of results in the present.—Selected.

---

Success is the summit we all seek to attain. We can step on no escalator or elevator and be whisked up without exertion. The road is steep, steep as a ladder, and the exertion of brain and muscle is necessary to climb it step by step, painstakingly, pluckily, perseveringly. Cheerfulness is one step.—B. C. Forbes.

Weekly Health Letter

Number 23

The Ear and Its Relation to Health and Disease.—6

By A. W. Teel, M. D., Church Physician

Adjacent to the middle-ear cavity is located the internal ear, which, in a general way, may be divided into two main parts: the bony portion, and the membranous portion, which are located in an exceedingly hard part of the skull, called the petrous portion of the temporal bone. The body of the bony portion is called the vestibule, and attached to this are three canals called, because of their shape, semi-circular. And at each end of the canal is a part called an ampulla. These three tubes, or canals, are placed approximately at right angles to each other. Nature has so adjusted them in this manner that they may coincide with any movement to which the individual may adapt himself, whether on land, sea, or in space.

In front of the semi-circular canals is the vestibular apparatus, which comprises the vestibule, semi-circular canals, together with the nerve which supplies them. Located at the opposite end of the vestibule, is a snail-like body, spiral in shape, having two and three fourths turns. This is known as the cochlea. It is divided into two canals called the tympanic, and the vestibular. The vestibular canal communicates with the vestibule, but the tympanic does not, except indirectly.

At the larger end of the vestibular canal is an opening called the oval window, in which is placed the foot-plate of the stapes, which is one of the little bones in the ear that has already been referred to in one of these articles. The function of this little bony oval window, being set into vibration, agitates the fluid in the vestibule.

At its larger end, the tympanic canal has another opening into the middle ear, which is called the round window. Stretched across this round window, is a membranous drum which has the function of oscillating the vestibular fluid. This is brought about by pushing the membrane outward as the stapes is pressed inward. Since fluid is incompressible, and the walls of the external ear, elsewhere ridged, this arrangement is highly essential. Inside the bony labyrinth there are two important liquids known as the perilymph and the endolymph. That part corresponding to the cochlea is known as the cochlear tube and is much smaller than the bony cochlea, and is placed in the vestibular canal. Inside the cochlear tube, is the organ of Corti, containing special nerve cells that impart energy, over nerve fibres, to the brain, and which is interpreted as sound. This provision makes it possible that any agitation of the perilymph simultaneously agitates the endolymph.

The vestibular apparatus is for the purpose of equilibrium so that an individual may have the ability to determine and maintain his position, or positions, in relation to the earth and objects about him. Located in the ampullae of the semi-circular canals, are little hair-like cells which send impulses to the brain, which is brought about by the movement of the fluid over them. This arrangement is the means whereby impulses are sent to the brain and there are interpreted as motion in a certain direction, at a given rate. If an individual is turned several times in one direction, it will cause a slowing up of the fluid in a corresponding semi-circular canal. Then, if the turning process is suddenly stopped, the fluid continues to travel forward, producing a sensation as if one were whirling in the opposite direction to which he was actually rotated, producing vertigo (dizziness), which continues until the fluid ceases. This is a normal phenomenon and has been valuable for internal-ear tests. Any injury to either labyrinth will produce nausea and vomiting, or general incapacity. It is possible that if one side is injured, nature will finally compensate for the loss, but if both sides are destroyed, then the individual will be totally unable to adjust himself in any position.

Thoughts on the Oblation

By J. S. Kelley

Perhaps one of the most difficult lessons for many people to learn is to have faith and confidence in the divine plan—the processes of which they can not understand or the working out of which seems to them inequitable. Most people come to that place in their experience where they are unable to see the why's or the wherefore's, or are unable to fathom the seeming inequalities of life. It is puzzling to know that in our earthly existence some must be great, others less, some strong and others weak, some rich and some poor. To those who live by faith, it is suffice that this is God's plan and they are content to let his will be done.

It may be valuable for us to examine the plan of life as we go along and thus gain a better understanding of what is to be expected of us. It would seem that the whole plan of existence is designed for the development of men's souls—that through their experiences men may become better able to understand and to grow like Christ, who came to

THE GOSPEL FORUM

Under this heading we shall be glad to receive and publish articles and letters of interest to our readers on the doctrine and work of the church. Writers are responsible for their own views. Other views on subjects discussed here will be received if of sufficient interest.

The Personality of God

By L. D.

And now Abinadi said unto them, I would that ye should understand that God himself shall come down among the children of men, and shall redeem his people; and because he dwelleth in the flesh, he shall be called the Son of God; and having subjected the flesh to the will of the Father, being the Father and the Son; the Father because He was conceived by the power of God; and the Son, because of the flesh; thus becoming the Father and the Son: And they are one God, yea, the very eternal Father of heaven and of earth.—Book of Mormon, Mosiah 8: 28.

Although a great many direct statements have been made by various individuals and writers on religious topics, concerning the meaning of the terms, "Fatherhood of God" and "Sonship of Christ," I have never found what was to my mind an adequate explanation of that which, though some may deny it, still constitutes one of the greatest stumbling-stones in the Christian religion.

There is no doubt that the thoughtful students of earth and died on the cross, an everlasting example and testimony.

---

The many equalizing processes that come from time to time no doubt contribute to that development. We live in a world of selfishness, but we learn that all thought of self-preference must be put aside. We grow up in a world of inequality, but we find that all must be equal in the sight of the Lord. This leveling up or leveling down process carries with it the development of human souls and enables people to appreciate and to understand one another. Hence when disaster comes to towns, or cities, or nations, people rise to heights of brotherliness hitherto unknown. Perhaps such disaster comes as a blessing in disguise. It may be that we are blessed with unemployment at the present time, blessed with want on every hand that we may more quickly come to our senses and organize ourselves as the Lord has directed.

However, let us make use of every opportunity to assist our brothers who may be needy that we be not as those who were on the left hand saying, "Lord, when saw we thee an hungered, or athirst, or a stranger, or naked, or sick, or in prison and did not minister unto thee?" and to whom he answers, "Verily I say unto you, inasmuch as you did it not unto the least of these ye did it not to me."

Let us remember that our oblation is set aside for the express purpose of ministering to the less fortunate.

both the Doctrine and Covenants and the Book of Mormon have become increasingly aware, as they have perused these scriptures, of the evident desire on the part of the Great Author to imprint upon their minds the fact that Jesus Christ is the Eternal Father and God of heaven and earth. Scores of quotations too obvious and numerous to mention can be obtained from both books as well as the Bible to verify that statement. These can not but have left their impressions upon the mind of the reader, and I am inclined to believe, that any observations which I may make, have already been made by any number of others; and either because they took the universal understanding of this problem for granted, or because they felt the time was not opportune for expressing themselves definitely, have refrained from doing so. Sustained by this conjecture I will approach the problem, and feeling that I am speaking to a majority already converted, will not attempt to draw on further proofs than my own observations and my readers' reason.

In the first place, accepting those parts of the scriptures known as the Book of Mormon and the Doctrine and Covenants as divinely inspired and for all practical purposes free from error, it is only logical that our interpretation of the answer must be one that does not contradict statements made in any part of these books. The view, held by some, that Jesus Christ and God are two distinct personages of identical appearance (based for the most part on the vision of Joseph Smith and tradition handed down through the ages) is a flat contradiction of the statement quoted at the beginning of this essay, as well as innumerable others which would have us believe that the Father finds his only complete personal expression in Jesus Christ, and is not only immeasurable in his vastness, but absolutely inconceivable and definitely out of reach of the finite mind. We are all, or should be aware from the context of their reports, that it was the Messiah who walked and talked with Enoch and Moses, and it was Christ who revealed himself to the brother of Jared.

In anticipation of the questions regarding the prayers of Jesus, the voice from heaven, the vision of the Martyr, and the coming of God after the Millennium, which will arise in some minds, let us hasten on. Our only difficulty in presenting this part of the discussion arises from the fact that it is practically impossible to impress upon the human mind the impossibility of conceiving the Father, known to scientific observers as the Great First Cause. Power, light, beauty, majesty, life, truth, mercy, justice are all manifestations of God. . . . and yet none alone are God. That life which you possess, reader, is God, yet you are not, because there are parts of you which are not life, but death; not justice, but injustice; not righteousness, but sin; not intelligence, but ignorance, and so on, ad infinitum.

Inasmuch as the human being has been made potentially capable of possessing every attribute which constitutes the Father, if we were altogether perfect and without sin, having completely subjected our own carnal and finite personality and will, we would be one with him and inseparable, consequently God. But we are not perfect, neither were nor can be, except through the atonement; and since we possess his attributes only in such an infinitesimal degree, our claim on his power must follow in direct ratio. Yet there was one perfect Being, resting "in the bosom of the Father from all eternity to all eternity," Jesus Christ, the Eternal God of heaven and earth, in whom there was no obstruction of imperfection to keep him from being completely claimed and completely claiming the Father; and in whom the manifold attributes of perfection which together constitute the Father found complete expression becoming subservient to an intelligent personality or will. Hence the necessity of all creation being by and through Christ Jesus.

It was the perfect intelligence of Christ, or God, who ordained the "Drama of Mankind," which of itself is very, very slightly understood; and though it might offend some, we are scripturally sustained in saying that not an event occurs that was not spiritually created and enacted before even the earth was temporally formed. To a finite mind this is rather difficult to conceive, but it is true nevertheless. When God relinquished his power in heaven to be born of a virgin, every miracle he performed, every heavenly manifestation concerning Him, had already been prepared for a specific purpose, and the word having been given could not return void. Thus he tells the people on his entry into Jerusalem that if they remained silent the very stones would cry out. In the sense that a miracle contradicts physical laws, there is not nor ever has or can be a miracle. The maker of law represents a higher law; that is all. The voice from heaven, reviewed in that light, does not in any sense contradict our original proposition. Is it more difficult to believe that God's word should find expression in a voice than in a universe?

If we regard the vision of Joseph Smith, wherein he saw two personages, the one introducing the other, as proof of the duality of the Godhead, we are pinning a great deal of faith on a vision which never pretended to be other than a symbolic way of presenting a certain truth. The purpose in this case rather supports than detracts from our argument, for he says the personage depicting the Father pointed to the other, saying: "This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased, hear ye Him." It was a divine way of impressing upon the boy's mind the fact that it is impossible, since the first personage did not attempt to say more, to get directions from the Father except through the Son, and it well might have been addressed to all humanity. With our knowledge, gleaned from the scriptures, of the impossibility of comprehending the Father, this vision should present no obstacle to the proper understanding of the Deity. We might also, by the way, use the same vision to more fully explain why the directions concerning prayer were given, which are in my own words: "Pray always in the name of Christ, if you expect your prayers answered." If Christ represents the acting head or will of the Trinity, it is easy to see that the Father, who can work only through him, could not possibly answer prayers not recognized by him. It is herein that Deism falls so far short.

Another point that has often been used by individuals to contest this fact, has been the statement that after the thousand year reign with Christ, and the little season, when the new earth shall be made, God himself shall live with the Saints. To one who regards the thousand years as a period of preparation in which the church of the Firstborn is to be prepared to be crowned with the glory of the Father, as Christ has already been crowned—in other words, to have the last vestige of sin blotted out and become temples in which the Father finds no obstructions to the fulfillment of his purpose—it requires little effort to see that he, the Father, even though Jesus Christ is present, can not completely dwell therein until all are raised into a perfected condition.

Having shown how the passages which have been construed to uphold the theory of two personalities are easily absorbed by this broader application, while its proponents can not possibly reconcile their idea to the multitude of contrary revelations, I will dwell briefly on the part played by the Holy Spirit as viewed from this standpoint.

The statement has been made by some one that what we call learning is simply remembering, the allusion being that our sub-conscious, the God-part of us, knows all things already. In the same sense, if that be true as I believe it is, though God, the omniscient, is ever present and abiding in us, being he "in whom we live, breathe, and have our being," it is the Holy Spirit that makes us conscious of his presence and his desires. Thus, while all men and every living creature or plant is sustained by the Father, in the strictest sense it is only those who have claim on the Holy Ghost who can realize his presence, and reveal his will, through those channels with which they have been endowed as gifts. And though he is for ever speaking to every creature, it is the Spirit which opens our eyes and ears, and permits us to reveal his desires to others. Hence the necessity of being baptized by water and by "fire," the latter being the real, not the symbolic, baptism, and the impossibility of any institution being a Church of Christ which does not carry with it this personal revelation of the truthfulness of his gospel and the reality of him who is our Lord God omnipotent!

Although I do not feel that I have done justice in this brief treatise to the all-important subject under consideration, I have set forth what to my mind is the only logical and reasonable idea that a Latter Day Saint can have on the subject of the Trinity. Our church is in the unique position of being the only one (outside of the Mormons) who possess books, which can be used as "proof," to our membership, at least, of setting forth the proper aspects of the Deity. With the immense burden of Scriptural evidence at their disposal to give them the proper perspective of this matter, I have been appalled at the stand taken by any number of our people, some occupying more or less important positions in the priesthood, on the question. On this matter, certainly, there is no excuse for a division in the minds of Latter Day Saints.

I have long wondered why, as a church, we have not made a more definite polemic stand on this question. With the high regard existing for the discoveries of science and philosophy, I can not understand why we have not made a more serious and sustained effort to show how our scriptures uphold a great many decidedly elemental and almost universally accepted truths, and as a religious institution our minds are ahead, and not behind, thanks to the grace of an all-wise God, in regard to all questions pertaining to theology. When an unbeliever raises the query regarding the unreasonable arithmetic of the Christian Religion which makes three go into one, we of all people, should not be disturbed. We should welcome the opportunity of explaining to him the beauty and reason of our religion, and the inconceivable mercy and grace of our Creator.

---

Love

By Olive Heywood

I have been made to think very deeply on this subject lately and how everything revolves around this one point. God, the creator of all things on the earth, above it and under it—he, God, is Love. That being so, and since he made man in his own image, man then must have this attribute also. Why, then, are there the terrible conditions prevailing today? Is man being made perfect even as the Father which is in heaven is perfect? No. If love were the controlling power in the world today, if every man loved his neighbor and preferred others rather than himself, there would not be this terrible upheaval.

What does it say in the thirteenth chapter of Corinthians above love?

Love—Thinketh no evil
Is not easily provoked
Suffereth long and is kind
Never faileth.

I wonder how many times we profess to love some one, but because of our humanity, little differences occur. We are too easily provoked and then we probably listen to things of a derogatory nature and so our friendship loses its beauty. We do not trust as we should. In fact, we are not kind. We forget that Love never faileth. We fancy that others have failed us and forget that we are enjoined to forgive, that to err is human. We do not always remember that we wish to be made perfect and that to forgive is a step upwards. Love is eternal. If one truly loves, one can never forget. Little differences occur, certainly, they are bound to, until the veil is lifted and we understand as He does, but we can never stop loving, because God is love and he created us in his image.

We can hinder our growth. We can foster seeds of distrust, jealousy, and others that are termed in the hymn "seeds of hell," but the only way we can develop, spiritually, physically and mentally, is by loving the Lord our God with all our heart, might, mind, and strength, and our neighbor as ourself.

The lines of our life stretch farther than we think. We lay our plans for the future, and they prove to be tracks that never end. All our paths go out into the unseen worlds. As you look across the street the line of your vision is terminated by some building. You can see nothing beyond. If that building were away you could see other buildings and streets, and if these, too, were gone, the line of your vision would shoot off beyond the stars till it had reached the utmost verge of the great universe. So the hopes of this earthly life—its plans and schemes and busy contrivings—are all endless lines that reach in an endless eternity. Within the little circle of yourself, the plans you make for tomorrow, the wishes and hopes you entertain for the coming months and years, you may not see or realize how far your favorite purposes stretch off into the distance. Do you ever think how they touch on the margin of an endless future? Do you never see how all earthly things are embosomed in an always present eternity? We walk every day in the embrace of futurity. The issue of every purpose is there; the end of every plan is there; the result of every deed is there; no path will end this side.—Congregationalist.

NEWS OF CHURCH AND HOME

Address all news and letters to Editors of the Herald, Box 237, Independence, Missouri. Correspondents are requested to make their letters brief. The Editors reserve the right, on account of space limitations, to shorten all letters as circumstances require.

Far West Stake

Saint Joseph Branch

Saint Joseph Branch held its annual business meeting December 7, for election of officers and other routine business. The pastors were elected as follows: City pastor and pastor of First Church, Ward A. Hougas; Second Church pastor, Orman Salisbury; Third Church pastor, to be appointed later; pastor of Fourth Church, J. L. Bear.

Steps were taken to establish classes for the training of candidates for baptism. A recommendation was also adopted setting aside the third Sunday of each month as "family Sunday" at which time a service will be held at the morning preaching hour for children and adults when families will sit and worship together.

First Saint Joseph Church

All regular work at First Church is being carried on very successfully. Attendance continues to increase and interest is good. Several outstanding services have been enjoyed recently.

A quiet, reverent spirit pervaded the First Church auditorium Sunday, December 6, as two young couples marched up the aisle bringing their babes to the elders of the church. As they were seated on the platform, the beautiful voice of Mrs. Charles E. Haden rang out in that lovely song, "I Think When I Read That Sweet Story of Old," bringing to the minds of the congregation the picture of the Christ surrounded by little children. The two babies, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Earl Smith and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred M. Curtis, were blessed by Elders Ward A. Hougas, Milo Burnett, and L. A. Keck.

With this impressive ceremony as a background, the service moved smoothly into another sacred ordinance, that of partaking of the sacrament, calling to mind the Christ in a different phase of his work.

First Church Choir, under the direction of Mr. E. J. Ehlers, presented the sacred cantata, "The Holy City," by Alfred R. Gaul, at the evening service December 6. Soloists were Mrs. Charles E. Haden, Mrs. Jean Haden, Mrs. Leva Ritchie, and Messrs Deam Ferris, Carmen Nelson, and E. J. Ehlers. Accompanists were Mrs. Edna Christiansen Ehlers at the organ and Mrs. Bertha Denton at the piano. An unusually large audience enjoyed this splendid rendition by the choir.

As the curtains were closed on the fifth public performance of the Ul-Lik-Us Players, another successful endeavor was history for the dramatic club of First Church. The players presented "A Southern Cinderella," a three act comedy drama, at the Young Women's Christian Association auditorium December 17. The entire cast did very creditable work and the specialties between acts added to the enjoyment of the evening.

Cameron Branch

On Sunday, November 15, we were favored with two excellent sermons. At eleven o'clock Elder D. W. Gamet preached on the theme, "Sacrifice," and in the evening Pastor F. L. Hinderks brought a message on the "Signs of the Time."

"Ye are called of God to be Saints" was the text used by Elder G. T. Richards in his sermon at the eleven o'clock hour, November 22. He clearly emphasized the duties of those who are called of God to be Saints, and admonished us to greater faithfulness and sacrifice in keeping God's law.

The sacrifice service on November 29, was well attended.

A fitting program using "Sacrifice" as the theme was given, following which the sacrifice offering was taken.

In the evening at seven thirty a short play entitled "Nicomodemus" was very creditably presented by four of our young people. Wayne Simmons acted the part of Nicodemus; Avanel Dwyer played the part of Ruth, his wife; Vera Constance, Ruth's mother, and Lockwood Simmons was the servant in their household.

We are now working on a Christmas pageant. The church school voted to observe the Christmas tide in some manner, that the Christmas spirit may not be dispensed with; but the usual expense of tree and treats will be eliminated in harmony with suggestions of the general church to sacrifice.

The department of women held a special sacrifice bake sale on November 25, and the girls of Sister Simpson's Sunday school class had a candy sale December 5. The proceeds of both these sales were added to our sacrifice fund.

Good Response From Arkansas and Louisiana

Dunn, Louisiana, December 10.—We are still very busy. Brother Truman Ziegenhorn is associated with me at present.

While at Wheeler, Arkansas, we had an extraordinarily good meeting. Met in a union church building which was filled almost every night. Brother George, of the Missionary Baptist Church, led the singing. We also had a "sunshine" band of singers composed of little folks. They carried off the blue ribbon. The people began to assemble by six o'clock every night and one hour was spent singing. In this neighborhood are to be found several denominations. We were invited to many homes, and enjoyed our stay. Brother J. V. Fohrman moved into this community several years ago. His mother, Grandma Fohrman, lives with them and always is ready to talk the gospel to her neighbors and friends. On the last Sunday of the meeting Grandma Parker, about eighty years of age, was baptized.

From this point we drove in our "fresh air taxi" to Eros, Louisiana. We arrived just in time to take part in their box supper program. Brother Ziegenhorn acted as auctioneer. Over nineteen dollars was realized and two Aladdin lamps were purchased and hung in the church building. We can now sing " 'Tis a Glorious Thing to Be in the Light." They also purchased a new piano at a bargain and placed it on the platform. Mrs. Grant was there almost every evening to play the instrument and her help was much appreciated.

On the last Sunday two of Marvin Johnson's boys were baptized, Orville and Elam.

The last night of the meeting the Saints arranged a pound party. Many gave more than a pound, donating money for expenses. This group of people is generous and loves the work of God. If they continue faithful, they will do much good.

The same can be said of the West Monroe Saints. They are keeping up their Sunday school which is in charge of Sister Mary Malone. From here (we conducted services three night) we came to Dunn, where we are holding meetings in the Missionary Baptist Church. Brother Austin Byrd presides over the Baptist Sunday school. We are having reasonably good crowds considering the bad weather.

The other night we were invited to the home of Horace Carpenter, and had the pleasure of sleeping on the bed on which General Grant slept during the siege of Vicksburg.

We also saw the receipt that Captain Kennedy gave these Southern people when the bed, chairs, and dresser were returned to them.

The people in this region have raised good crops but are feeling the effects of hard times on account of low prices.

We expect to close our meeting here next Sunday night, and begin to make our way back to Thayer, Missouri, for Christmas.

The Saints throughout Arkansas and Louisiana seem eager to do all they can for the latter-day work.

A. M. BAKER.

Madison, Wisconsin

Another member has been added to this branch by baptism. Charles Fields was baptized November 15, by Elder H. W. Woodstock, and confirmed by Elder Woodstock and Elder Leonard Houghton.

Saints here have done well with tithes and offerings during the month of November and are now trying to do better during December. They want to do their part to help in the financial depression of the church.

We have a very progressive church school. The director and his assistant are doing all they can to make it interesting. Each Sunday brings a new opening exercise.

Lee Root was ordained a priest during the district conference by Apostle D. T. Williams. On a recent Thursday night he organized a young people's class which is taking up the study of dramatics. Also an adult class meets at seven o'clock Sunday night, studying "Religion in the home." Both classes are very interesting.

The department of women sent fifty dollars to the Bishop as an offering to help in the general finances. December 11 the women held a bazaar, lunch, and fish pond at the church. They cleared forty-five dollars. Numbers were drawn on the name quilt. Mrs. Mallory, a nonmember, got the quilt which is a beautiful thing. The women are also going to sell old clothing all day Tuesday at the City Service Shop. They are a busy group.

A Thanksgiving prayer service was held at the church at 9.30 a. m., a large crowd attending. The hour was well spent in testimonies which voiced the many things for which the Saints have to be thankful. The desire for the coming year is to carry on better than in the past.

On December 2, Bishop C. J. Hunt talked to us instead of our holding the regular prayer service. His text was "My heritage is unto me as a speckled bird."

Elder Leonard Houghton was in Milwaukee, Watertown, and Waukesha over the week-end, encouraging the Saints at these places and preaching twice Sunday at Milwaukee.

Portsmouth, Ohio

West Side Mission

Probably a letter from this mission will be appreciated by Herald readers. It is a sort of introduction since Saints in other places, with the exception of those in Southern Ohio District, know nothing about us, the work we are doing here, and the sacrifice a few members have made in behalf of the gospel cause in Portsmouth.

Nearly four years ago five families of the Pleasant Valley Branch moved to Portsmouth or nearby. Being sixteen miles from that branch, they determined to start the latter-day work in this community. They purchased a small tent in which to hold meetings. Some series of meetings were held with little success, and at times the tent was laid away for winter or longer. But the desire to see the work grow never died in the hearts of the Saints. We moved the tent to a small place called Valley View, and Elder Jacob Halb, district missionary, held a short series of meetings. Four were added to our number.

A Sunday school was organized with Elder Walter Culp as superintendent. For a few months this was successful, then interest seemed to die out. Prior to this time, however, Brother Halb, was holding a few weeks' meeting at Ironton, Ohio. In a dream he was instructed to go west, and he returned to the tent and held meetings for two weeks. Here he conducted nine more candidates for baptism into the Scioto River. That winter we held Sunday school in the tent and it was not so cold as one might think.

In February, 1931, District President A. E. Anderton, of Columbus, came to our assistance. He organized a mission, taking officers from Pleasant Valley and McDermott Branches. We were blessed with one elder, Walter Culp; two priests, O. A. Rexroad, who was ordained to the eldership a short time ago, and Donald Bealor; teacher, Luther Crabtree.

Because interest among nonmembers seemed rather poor, the Saints moved the tent to a little place called Nauvoo, holding two weeks of meetings. Interest was good, and they continued to hold Sunday school there through the summer. The tent was damaged a bit by fierce winds, and a cottage was rented in which to hold Sunday school and prayer meeting this winter.

Sunday school is conducted at 9.30 a. m.; prayer meeting at 10.45 a. m. At seven o'clock on Sunday evening there is preaching service, and on Thursday evening a Bible class. Our prayer meetings are of a high type, the Spirit being present to encourage and bless.

During the summer Brother Rexroad led a man by the name of Russell Craigmiles into the water of baptism. We report the mission as making progress. The Saints are rich in spirit.

Birmingham, Alabama

This little group has been progressing since you have last heard from us. It is drawing near the close of another year, and we are very thankful for the many blessings that we have enjoyed. We feel that God has been very good and kind to us in many ways.

On October 11, much to the group's delight, Mrs. Margaret Pauline Weekly Salter, wife of M. L. Salter, was baptized into the church. It was a beautiful fall morning, just a little cloudy, that the group assembled by the winding creek near Bessemer, Alabama, to perform the ordinance. Brother Chandler officiated, and Brother Davis and Brother Chandler performed the confirmation service at the home of Brother and Sister G. G. Booker. This was a beautiful ceremony and a fine degree of the Holy Spirit was enjoyed by all present. Brother Davis at this time gave an interesting address in connection with the occasion.

We very much enjoyed his visit even though it was touched with a bit of sadness, in that he was numbered among the released church ministry and had to relinquish his duties as president of Alabama District. Our sympathy goes to him, and we sincerely wish him the best of success wherever his lot shall be cast. We shall remember him as a young, capable, sincere, and loyal supporter of the church, willing to give his all for the cause.

About a week later, we were blessed with the visit of Brother J. A. Gillen, who gave a very fine and encouraging address. He was on his way South again, taking up his duties after a much needed rest. To an isolated group, visits like these are indeed wonderful.

We also had the pleasure of a visit from Sister R. A. Graves, of Decatur, Alabama, one Sunday in November. Brother and Sister Graves are isolated members, too, but seem to be enthusiastic, and are planning to attend our sacrament services as much as possible.

Wilbur Chandler is absent from this group, attending Graceland College. He is taking a course in public school music, majoring in voice and piano.

Sunday school work is going along nicely. Last Sunday we tried a new experiment. The young people were placed in charge of the school, and it was a pleasure to see them doing their bit in this work. After the service, it was decided that this will become a regular part of our school program and they will have charge once each month. In addition to this, we are having what we call program Sunday. On this Sunday everyone must have something prepared to say or do. We are few in number, only eleven regular members, but we feel that this kind of training will develop us, even though it is small. We know it takes small things to make large things.

We wish to congratulate the church on the financial program that it has adopted, and we feel sure that all the Saints will respond to the call of sacrifice.

Happenings in Maine

Apostle R. S. Budd and Bishop E. L. Traver visited Maine the latter part of October and first part of November. They attended the conference of Eastern Maine District, October 30, 31, and November 1, Then Brother Traver returned to his home in Boston, and Brother Budd remained a week with the Saints in the Western District. He addressed the Saints at Dixfield, Sargentville, Little Deer Isle, Stonington, and Mountainville. Attended the district conference at the last named place November 7 and 8. He left for Boston November 9.

Quite a number of western Maine Saints attended the conference of Southern New England District, in Somerville, Massachusetts, November 14 and 15. They enjoyed the experience. The efficient leader of our junior department in Stonington went down there as Miss Linnie Eaton, but she returned as Mrs. George Billings. We all congratulate Brother Billings.

There have been several other marriages among our young people. October 11, Brother Robertson performed the ceremony at Little Deer Isle, uniting the fortunes of Sister Buehlah Parker and Brother Theron Billings, and on November 22, he did a like service for Sister Mary Stone and Brother Walter Billings.

Sister Winnifred Shepard, of Stonington, was recently married to Mr. Charles Barber of the same place, but we do not have the exact date, or name of the minister officiating.

The women at Stonington plan a sale and supper, December 17. This is a sort of annual affair, and usually results in a good boost for the branch budget.

Attendance at the meetings at Stonington is quite noticeably larger at this time of the year.

Brother Harlan Billings reports exceptionally good crowds at Little Deer Isle Branch. Encouraging word comes from Brother W. C. Porter, of the Dixfield branch. Brother Pearl F. Billings says they are doing their best in Rockland and are meeting with encouraging response. Brother William H. Clark, of Sargentville Branch, is feeling much encouraged. This brother plans to make a tour of all the branches in the district except Dixfield in the very near future. As counselor to the bishop, he is working in the interests of the general church budget.

Elders E. F. Robertson and Pearl F. Billings have recently returned from a trip through Eastern Maine District. Their report at Sargentville Church on Wednesday evening, December 9, was very encouraging. Their object in visiting that district was to stimulate interest in the financial situation of the church, but they found the interest already awakened. In the first home they entered, they saw a sacrifice envelope tacked to the wall above the dining table, and were told that the good brother, who it is well known, likes his cup of coffee, had decided to deposit a nickle in the envelop each mealtime instead of enjoying the beverage. He had mentioned the matter to the young people in their meeting, and they had decided to join him in personal sacrifice to the extent of going without coffee, and they added gum and candy to the list of things to be sacrificed. At last one suggested that they might give up the picture show. This was the biggest sacrifice of all, but the group of young people agreed that it was not too much to be given up for the church in its hour of need.

The brothers met with the young people at Little Kennebec and Jonesport, and were delighted with the spirit they witnessed among them. They spoke with much appreciation of the work being done by Elder Newman Wilson, a released missionary, who has not allowed his release to detract one whit from his zeal and activity as a minister for Christ. Brother Wilson braves the cold winter weather to meet each week with the band of more than forty young people at Little Kennebec, though it necessitates a drive of over fifty miles. He also keeps up regular work at Korea, South Addison, and Indian River, besides doing the Sunday preaching at Jonesport, and giving some attention to the work on Beal's Island. To fill up the idle moments of the day and provide for his family, he is first selectman of the town, tax assessor, road commissioner, school commissioner, and overseer of the poor. He also works as paper hanger, painter, carpenter and, perhaps, a few other things. He has recently baptized some very fine people who will add materially to the magnitude of the work in Eastern Maine.

Brother Robertson had the privilege of addressing a fine crowd at the Jonesport church Sunday evening, December 6, the members of the Jonesport Lion's Club with their wives being in attendance.

The brothers returned to Stonington for Sunday, December 13. But Brother Robertson has planned for a tour of Western Maine District, in company with our young brother, Robert Billings, starting next week. They hope to give about five lectures, illustrated with stereopticon, in each of the branches. This will probably occupy about all the good weather they will have the remainder of the winter.

Brother Traver, our bishop, says it is a sure thing that the State of Maine will reach its quota, and perhaps go over by a very nice margin. For this we are truly thankful.

Those in attendance at Stonington church, December 13, were favored with eight short speeches (four-minute talks) instead of the regular sermon. It was very pleasing to hear the splendid presentations by P. F. Billings, Edward Eaton, George Billings, E. F. Robertson, and Henry Eaton. But when our sisters, Edna Billings, Bernice Shepard, Evangeline McGuffie, and Bernice Eaton gave splendid talks, the audience was thrilled.

Davidson, Oklahoma

December 17.—During the past months the Saints of this branch have been blessed in many ways. God has bestowed health and strength on all. We want to show our gratitude for these blessings through the lives we live and the work we do for the church and kingdom.

The women's auxiliary met November 25 at the church in a social assembly. Mrs. Troy Parker had charge of the program. There were present seventeen members and ten non-members.

On Thanksgiving Day the Saints met at ten o'clock in the morning for prayer meeting. There was a good crowd present in spite of the rain. All expressed thankfulness to God for his goodness to them. At the close of the service each placed his offering on the altar, the collection amounting to one hundred and twenty dollars. This was really a sacrifice for the Saints.

At noon the table was spread with plain but wholesome food. Each person enjoyed eating with the congregation family. A program and social meeting were enjoyed in the afternoon.

The sacrament service, December 6, was beautifully carried out. The house was arranged by Mrs. G. H. Hood and Miss Valeria Parker. The rostrum was in white and flowers were artistically arranged. The priesthood sat in a semicircle, Brother Z. Z. Renfroe in charge.

Visitors who came a great distance to this service were

Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Renfroe, of Lubbock, Texas, two hundred miles away, and Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Carrow, of Wichita Falls, Texas.

Mrs. J. T. Skinner was in charge of the junior church program Sunday, December 13, given by the children. An appropriate sermon was given by Z. Z. Renfroe.

We rejoice to have Brother Z. Z. Renfroe and family here for they are a great help to the branch.

The Saints are happy to know that Sister Ben Simmons is able to return home. She has been a patient in a hospital at Joplin, Missouri. She, too, is a worker in this branch.

Kansas City Stake

Christmas preparations in all the congregations came to a climax during this week. There were various ways of expressing the Christmas spirit, in entertainment features—cantatas, tableaux, declamations, in treats and the appearance of Santa Claus, and in the retelling of the story of the first Christmas. In some of the congregations special exercises and services marked the collecting of the tithings and offerings for the month of December. Bishop C. A. Skinner was gratified at the result of the sacrifice effort in November. A final check of the amount collected for this month has not yet been made.

Central Church

Christmas was in the air Sunday morning, December 20, and was properly observed by the church school. Following is a sheet from Central Church Bulletin giving the order of morning services:

CHURCH SCHOOL, Sunday, December 20, 1931.

JUNIOR CHURCH PROGRAM .....9:45 to 10:30 A. M.

Prelude, "Starry Night" .....Gounod

Hymn .....140 Praises

Invocation .....Roy Thrutchley

"The Littlest Shepherd," by the Junior Department.

Prologue .....Lois Blair

A little girl .....Alice Louise Scott

David .....Richard Thrutchley

Mary .....Geraldine Mallams

"The Littlest Orphan and the Christ Child".....

.....Pauline Hood, reader

Recessional Hymn .....27 Praises

Offertory Prayer .....Roy Thrutchley

"First Noel"

Postlude

CLASS PERIOD .....10:20 to 11:00 A. M.

Processional

PRIMARY CHURCH PROGRAM .....11:00 to 11:45 A. M.

Prelude, "Cantique De Noel" .....Adams

Hymn

Invocation

"Santa Claus and the Star Queen," by Primary Department

Music by Primaries and Juniors

Family Giving Service

"Christmas Hymn Melody"

Hymn

Benediction

ORGANIST .....Mrs. J. A. Withee

MUSIC DIRECTOR .....George Anway

PIANIST .....Mrs. Earl Short

"Peace on Earth," a cantata by E. K. Heyser, was presented Sunday night by the Central Choir, directed by George Anway, with the following soloists: Mrs. Alfred Hitchcock, soprano; Mrs. Marcine Murphy, Soprano; Mrs. C. E. Wight, contralto; Mrs. Ross Moore, contralto; Miss Melva Blankenship, contralto; Mr. Clayton Wolfe, tenor; Mr. Alfred Hitchcock, bass; Mrs. Everett Bowser, pianist; Mrs. J. A. Withee, organist.

The program was as follows:

Organ Prelude, "Hosanna" .....Paul Wachs

Hymn .....121 Hymnal

Invocation .....George Mesley

"Rejoice, O Earth" .....Choir, Quartet

"When Jordan Hushed" .....Mrs. Hitchcock

"Comfort Ye" .....Mr. Hitchcock and Choir

"The Holy Night" .....Mrs. Wight

"On the Field with Their Flocks".....

.....Women's Chorus, Bass Solo, Duet, Trio, Choir

"O Little Town" .....Choir and Mrs. Wight

"Come, Let Us Go" .....Men's Chorus

"Arise! Shine!".....Choir, Tenor, Duet, Trio, Quartet, Choir

"Wondrous Star" .....Mr. Wolfe

"From the Eastern Mountains" .....Choir

"Brightest and Best" .....Mrs. Hitchcock and Mrs. Moore

"To Thee, Our Blessed Savior" .....Quartet

"O, Sing Unto the Lord" .....Choir, Contralto, Trio

Benediction.

A special vesper prayer meeting was held Wednesday evening, December 23.

Argentine Church

The speaker on December 6, at 7.45 p. m., was Elder R. L. Bishop of the stake high council. He based his discourse on 2 Peter 3.

The following Sunday morning Elder R. E. Brown, pastor of this congregation, directed his remarks especially to the local membership.

In the evening Elder W. S. Brown talked of the remarkable performances of godly men whose birth has occurred about Christmas time.

Patriarch Ammon White talked the morning of December 20, on Joel 2: 27-32.

That evening Elder W. O. Hands gave a stereopticon slide lecture on health and some of the controversial aspects of the Book of Mormon.

Maryland Heights Branch

This is one of the smallest branches in Saint Louis District, but we hold regular meetings in our church home under the leadership of Elder Roy Remington. The church school is regularly organized and functioning nicely under the adult leader, Sister Effie Anderson. There are five classes and the average attendance is thirty-eight.

Elder Arthur Oakman held a five-week series of meetings here, closing December 11. His messages were most interesting and instructive. An average attendance of fifty-five greeted this effort in spite of the fact that half the evenings were rainy and foggy. Two candidates have already entered the kingdom as a result of the meetings, and a number of others are studying more carefully the path of life with the intent of entering.

The Christmas entertainment and tree were had Sunday evening, December 20. The little tots had recitations and songs and the senior department of the church school presented a two-act play, "Squire Hawley's Christmas." Santa Claus was there, too, and brought treats for the children.

Our plans for 1932 call for a stricter attention to the laws governing the kingdom and a studious application of the truths learned, that we may grow as a group with our faces Zionward.

Battle Creek, Michigan

The Saints in this branch are growing under the faithful leadership of Brother David A. Young, who while he does not hold the Melchisedec Priesthood, he is always at every meeting to take charge, or to supply some one to do so. Our cottage prayer services are largely attended, and the spirit of unity prevails.

Elder J. M. McKnight was here a few weeks and inspired us by his spiritual sermons and timely encouragement. Occasionally Elder Mark Gross, ex-pastor who now resides in Buchanan, comes over and gives a fine sermon in his convincing way. Apostle D. T. Williams has been making periodical lectures here to enthusiastic listeners, who look forward to his return each month. On November 29, Elder Jesse Hardin of Rea, Indiana, preached a wonderful sermon to a well-filled house; many left the building that night stronger in the faith than ever.

We appreciate very much the visits and help of other elders who occasionally come from nearby cities and towns to deliver sermons.

We miss the visits of Elder O. J. Hawn who is now in the Wade Memorial Hospital at Coldwater, Michigan, suffering apparently from a nervous breakdown. He would enjoy letters from his many friends and children in the gospel, as would Sister Hawn who is home at 123 Morse Street, Coldwater, holding the fort like the brave soldier she has always been.

An interesting church wedding took place August 23, when Sister Addie Watson and Mr. Leonard Confer were united in marriage by Brother David Young. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Ray Watson, of Hakensack New York. All of her children and many relatives and friends were present. Sister Mattie Robbins played the wedding march and also sang "O Promise Me," accompanied by her sister, Evelyn. The wedding breakfast was beautifully served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Confer. The Saints wish them a long and happy life.

A large number of Saints met at the home of Brother and Sister Robert Evans who recently returned from an extended trip through the West and points in the East. Sister Evans has charge of the women's department, which is progressing and working out plans to assist the church, also making plans for a Christmas program and treat under the supervision of Sister Susie Young.

Pastor David Young is getting everyone lined up for sacrifice theme speeches. The first of these was given at the prayer service December 16. The topic, "The Price They Paid," was efficiently handled by Sister Amy Robbins, and many good points were brought out.

In spite of the fact that many are out of employment due to the depression, we are anxious to help the church move on, and whenever a special effort is called for, the Battle Creek Saints can be depended on to go over the top.

Oklahoma City, Oklahoma

Although a comparatively small group, the young people have recently organized, and promise to become an active part of the branch. They gave their annual banquet last week to raise money for Christmas offering. Carlyle Kueffer, the toastmaster, told of a trip through foreign countries by the music committee, the result of which was a representative from each of these countries present at the banquet to sing his country's favorite carol. Elder Cyril Wight was guest speaker.

Ethel Brooner, Sister Rex Rowland, Lee Scott and Clarke Woodford, of the young people's class, were speakers Sunday morning at the eleven o'clock service. Their topics were: "The Price They Paid"; "The Price Men Are Paying"; "The Work of the Church Must Go on," and "Measuring Youth's Devotion." This proved an inspiration to those present because the genuineness of the appeals was communicated to the congregation.

Carlyle Kueffer has started a new class in church history. It meets at seven o'clock Sunday night. Examinations will be held quarterly, and prizes of pictures of different characters studied and pages from Times and Seasons will be given to the ones having the highest grades. In connection with this class, the music committee will present the series of twelve plays by Elbert A. Smith, "Conversations." The first of these was given Sunday night, December 20 with the following cast: Lucy Smith, Louise Kueffer; Joseph Smith, Lee Scott; Mr. Cutler, Clarke Woodford.

And while we are speaking of plays, they are causing no end of merriment here. Every department seemed to get the fever at once with the result that the Temple Builders are working on a play to be given soon. Sister Ed. Dillon sponsored two short plays Friday, December 18, given for the benefit of her class's Christmas offering. And Sister Ethel Brooner is in charge of the Christmas play.

A special drive for subscriptions to the church papers is being made with splendid results.

Independence

Christmas with its happy greetings, its carols, its gift giving, and its sacrifice is behind us, and just ahead is the new year with its promise of opportunities and helps. All departments are striving to begin the year with purposefulness and enthusiasm. Church plans for 1932 are many and comprehensive.

The people of Independence, Kansas City, and surrounding regions listened with appreciation to Handel's oratorio, "The Messiah," sung on Sunday by the Independence Messiah Choir. Under the direction of Paul N. Craig one hundred voices of the choir gave two excellent performances of the oratorio. The first was at the Scottish Rite Temple, in Kansas City, at three o'clock in the afternoon; the second, in the Stone Church auditorium at ten o'clock at night, KMBC broadcast to radio listeners. Soloists this year were Marguerite Johnson Blaine, soprano; Gladys Good, contralto; George Anway, tenor; and Arthur Oakman, bass. Accompanists were George Miller, pianist, and Robert Miller, organist. This was the fourteenth annual performance of the oratorio by the Messiah Choir.

A wedding of interest to the church and especially to all Gracelanders was that of Miss Doris Mitchell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. N. R. Mitchell, Aledo, Illinois, and L. E. Flowers, of Iowa City, Iowa, which occurred December 22 at half past four in the afternoon at Central Church, Kansas City. President F. M. McDowell read the ceremony. The bridegroom was for a period of five years a staff editor of the Herald Publishing House and prominent in local young people's activities. He left Independence last June to take up post-graduate work in the University of Iowa. The bride is a teacher in the schools of Aledo, Illinois. Both attended Graceland College. Before the marriage service Mrs. C. E. Wight, of Kansas City, sang "Love's Old Sweet Song" and "At Dawning," accompanied at the organ by Evan Fry. Mr. Fry also played the wedding march from "Lohengrin." Bridesmaids were Miss Leta Moriarty, of Independence, and Miss Florence Juergens, of Mount Ayr, Iowa. Mr. Voas Meredith and Mr. Max White, both of Iowa City, Iowa, attended the bridegroom, and Mr. Arthur Hershey, of Ames, Iowa, and Mr. George G. Lewis, of Independence, were ushers. A reception followed the ceremony at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Lewis, Independence, and the bridal couple departed for a short wedding trip.

Stone Church

The Stone Church sacrifice offering for December, according to Monday's report, amounts to $1,325. Twelve hundred dollars was the offering taken up at the special sacrifice-worship service conducted at the church Wednesday evening, December 23.

Though Christmas treats were not given the children this year, all departments of the church school observed Christmas. The junior and intermediate departments presented their program together on Christmas Eve, Elder G. G. Lewis in charge. "The Christmas Messenger," a cantata, was given by the junior department, directed by Mrs. J. R. Lentell, Mrs. Ray Moler the reader. A girls' chorus of the intermediate department sang favorite carols, and Miss Olive Curtis read "Why the Chimes Rang."

In his pre-New Year's sermon Sunday morning, Pastor John F. Sheehy presented the great need of the church to exercise love, repentance, forgiveness, and charity as the old year comes to a close and the new year opens. We are told that in days of long ago a traveler, on reaching his destination, was courteously greeted and accommodated with lather and towel to bathe his bare feet. In the thirteenth chapter of John we read: "He that is washed needeth not save to wash his feet." The traveler did not need a second bath, but even after a short journey he needed to cleanse himself of the "travel stains." Looking back over the year, we find that we have need of cleansing ourselves of "travel stains," and this means repentance on our part.

The Stone Church Choir, directed by Paul N. Craig, sang two appropriate anthems. Elder H. G. Barto was in charge of the hour.

"He Came Seeing," a religious drama in one act, was presented by the Quindaro Players of Kansas City to the Stone Church congregation Sunday night. A cast of thirteen characters gave excellent interpretation to an incident in the time of Jesus. Pastor John F. Sheehy was in charge of the service.

Among those who have gone from us this month is little Mary Ann Pendleton, daughter of Thomas O. and Martha Pendleton, who died December 4, at the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Alva Logsdon. She would have been four years old had she lived until December 19. Her short life was filled with suffering, but she was a child who had faith in a merciful Father and in prayer. The funeral was held at the home of her grandmother, Mrs. W. B. Noland, Independence, F. M. McDowell preaching the sermon. Besides her parents, grandparents and many friends, Mary Ann leaves a sister, Lois Jean, and a brother, Thomas O., jr. Interment was in Mound Grove Cemetery.

Walnut Park Church

At the eleven o'clock service Sunday morning, December 27, the choir sang "The Message of Christmas," quartet parts being sung by Marian Campbell, Anna Mosier, Erwin Moorman, and John Reynolds; the duet by Marian Campbell and Carlotta Norman.

Apostle F. Henry Edwards, the speaker, chose for his theme Sunday morning, "Would That All God's People Were Prophets!" and his text was taken from Numbers 11: 29: "Would God that all the Lord's people were prophets, and that the Lord would put his spirit upon them!" He stressed the need of the Saints to desire spiritual things and to look to a brighter day.

The junior service in charge of Ethel Moorman opened with prayer by Robert Masters, one of the junior members. C. G. Closson gave a talk on new year resolutions and leadership.

Following the study period of the church school session the Walnut Park Orchestra rendered "Arion Overture."

In the evening the historical drama written by Elbert A. Smith, "The Organization of the Church," was presented by some of the younger members of this congregation. The necessity of the Restoration and church organization was presented by Bishop C. J. Hunt in the evening sermon.

Brother Lurett Whiting, a member of this congregation, passed away the day before Christmas. He was baptized a member of the church by I. N. Roberts, at Clitherall, Minnesota, July 1, 1901, and was a faithful Saint all his life. Was ordained an elder in 1901, by Elder T. C. Kelley. In 1870 he married Miss Eleanor Gould, and to them five children were born. Two children preceded him in death as did also a twin brother, Alonzo Whiting. He leaves his wife, two daughters: Mrs. J. F. Rotzien, of Fargo, North Dakota, and Mrs. F. E. Mollison, of Independence, and one son, Laurence Curtiss Whiting, of Hibbing, Minnesota; eleven grandchildren, two great-grandchildren, other relatives and friends. He was eighty-two years, nine months, and sixteen days old when death claimed him.

Englewood Church

Apostle J. F. Curtis will begin a series of meetings in this congregation January 3, his effort to continue two weeks. His sermons will be of a missionary character, and the object of the services is to complete a number of family circles in the gospel. Everyone is welcome.

This congregation designates its church home as "the friendly church." We are trying to make welcome all who are seeking truth and friendship.

Gudgell Park Church

The Christmas program was held at the church the evening of December 22. The church was prettily decorated for the occasion and the entertainment consisted of songs, readings, dialogs, and playlets which were enjoyed by everyone. A crowd filled the room, some having to stand.

Next Sunday night, January 3, the young people will give the cantata, "The Song and the Star," under the direction of Sister Hook and Brother Johnson.

Attendance last Sunday was good. Brother Haskins of the local priesthood, was the speaker. Elder H. G. Barto delivered a splendid sermon at the evening hour.

On December 9 there occurred the election of branch officers, Elders John F. Sheehy and J. Stanley Kelley meeting with us. The following compose our new official corps: Pastor, Elder Walter Chapman; assistant pastor, Elder P. A. Sherman; superintendent of church school, Clarence Martin. Brother Martin was appointed bishop's agent.

December 16 the Saints met for a short prayer service, then finished electing officers: Assistant superintendent of church school, Roy Sherman, who was also chosen superintendent of the Religio; chorister, Esther Hook; pianist, Violet Barnette; women's leader, Sister Clarence Martin; publicity agent, Sister Esther Sherman. We hope and believe that under these officers the branch will move forward.

Sacrament service for December was well attended. Elder Chapman was in charge, local priesthood members assisting. A good spirit prevailed.

Thayer, Missouri

December 17.—Just a word about the response of the Saints of this branch to the four-minute speeches. Through the careful arrangement of Brother Davis every man of the branch had his speech prepared, and all talks were much enjoyed. This kind of work helps the church by acquainting the Saints with topics of church-wide interest. None of the women of the branch gave talks on the first occasion, but it is possible that at the coming four-minute speech night, all members will have something to say in regard to the work of the church.

These speeches have proved effective here as they are proving helpful in other places. We are happy to say that the Saints are heeding the call in the present crisis. Insofar as he is able, every member is trying to do his part in carrying out the plan that is set before us.

Future letters from Thayer Branch will tell you just how much the Saints here love the latter-day work and how eager we are for it to go forward.

There has been much said about a conference here next spring, and will be welcomed by the branch.

Starting with the new year, we have plans to increase our church activities and income so as to help the general body of the church. It is our hope that throughout the country all branches and all members will work and save to the end that the reappointment of the missionaries may be made possible.

Lennox, California

Lennox mission is going forward in the work of the church. Sunday services are had morning and evening. The Sunday school has six classes, but we hope to have the interest of the children in the neighborhood, so that we may increase our present number. The young people have their meetings every Sunday evening with good programs and interest. We have a forty-five minute class study of the Book of Mormon, and classes are composed of young and old. We are deriving

MISCELLANEOUS

Des Moines District Priesthood Banquet

The priesthood of Des Moines District will hold their annual banquet at the Des Moines church Saturday, January 9, 1932, at 6.30 p. m., and the ladies are also invited. President Elbert A. Smith will be the principal speaker. There will be special music and other features. Please make your reservations to the undersigned together with your remittance of fifty cents per plate.—Stephen Robinson, 2212 Thirty-ninth Street, Des Moines, Iowa.

Obituary Correction

In the obituary of Sister Lauretta V. Pomeroy, published in the Herald for December 16, page 1200, the date of her birth is incorrect. She was born August 9, 1848, at Newcastle, Ontario, Canada.

Our Departed Ones

PRIDDLE.—Euphemia Catherine Lee was born August 20, 1904, at Proton, Ontario. Was baptized in 1915 by W. D. Ellis. Married James Stevens Priddle in 1922. To them were born five sons. She departed this life at her home in Osprey Township, November 29, 1931. Besides her husband she leaves three sons, aged three, six, and eight years. The sermon was at the home by John Shields, assisted by the United Church minister. The sermon at Proton Church was by Elder George Njeim, assisted by Elder James McLean. Interment was in Proton Latter Day Saint Cemetery.

MCARTHUR.—John McArthur was born at Argyle, Scotland, June 1, 1840. He immigrated to Collingwood Township, Ontario, Canada, in early childhood, and suffered the privations of pioneer life. Was baptized into the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints in June, 1903. Died September 25, 1931, at his home near Ravenna, having lived in the same neighborhood for eighty years. Surviving are his aged companion, and the following sons and daughters: Archibald, Findlay and Gilbert on adjoining farms; Silas, of Ravenna, and Hugh, of Meadow Lake, Saskatchewan, and Mrs. A. Brown and Mrs. David Parks. The sermon was from the Saints' church by Evangelist John Shields. Interment was in Clarksburg Cemetery.

BLAKELY.—Paulina Deam, daughter of Henry W. and Elizabeth Deam, was born at Protosi, Wisconsin, April 3, 1850. She was one of a family of ten children only one of whom now remains, William H. Deam, of Independence, Missouri. In young womanhood she moved to Plano, Illinois, where she made her home almost continuously for more than fifty years. She was united in marriage to Lewis Van Dran at Plano, Illinois, March 21, 1875. He preceded her in death September 22, 1880, leaving a small daughter, Ora, who died January 29, 1896. On October 1, 1882, she became the wife of George Campbell Blakely at Plano, Illinois. One son was born to them who survives her. Mr. Blakely passed away at their home in Plano July 29, 1915. After two years Mrs. Blakely went to Chicago to live with her son, Floyd R. Blakely, where she remained until her death December 13, 1931. She was affiliated with the Plano Eastern Star Chapter, and become a member of the church January 16, 1870, and was actively interested in both organizations. She was a kind mother and loving neighbor and friend. Surviving are her brother, William H. Deam, of Independence, Missouri; one son, Floyd Blakely, of Chicago; three grandchildren, other relatives, and many friends. The deceased was brought to Plano where funeral services were held at the home of Mrs. Nellie Blakely and later at the Saints' church. Elder R. E. Davey, of Aurora, officiated. Interment was in Plano Cemetery.

GILMAN.—Amelia Gilman, wife of the late Charles Gilman, passed away November 18, 1931, at her home in Plano, Illinois, following an illness of several months. She was born December 1, much benefit from these classes. Brother Earl Root, who has charge of the lectures, has proved himself an able instructor.

A good sermon was delivered recently by Elder W. A. McDowell, and also one by Brother Hughes of Ogden, Utah. Their sermons left the Saints with greater courage to move forward in the work.

Elder W. J. Nuckles, pastor, gave a four-minute talk the morning of December 13, on the spirit of Christmas and what it should mean to the Saints. Brother Hagerman, of Van Nuys, also gave a message on that morning.

We are holding midweek prayer services and have a fair attendance each week.

It is our desire, with the rest of the Saints at home and abroad, to have the Spirit of God among us to direct and guide every deed and thought for the upbuilding of his great work.

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Frederick M. Smith, Editor in Chief.
 Elbert A. Smith, Floyd M. McDowell, Associate Editors.
 Leonard J. Lea, Managing Editor.
 Leta B. Moriarty, Assistant Editor.

Published for the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Subscription price: By the year, $2.

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE
 INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI

CONTENTS

EDITORIAL .....	1225
ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
The Line of Righteousness, by Evan A. Fry .....	1231
The Way Out, by E. J. Hayden .....	1232
To Israel of Latter Days, by Gomer T. Griffiths .....	1233
The Laborer is worthy of His Hire, by W. H. .....	1235
A Declaration of the King's Law, by Kenneth B. Curtis .....	1236
Weekly Health Letter, by A. W. Teel, M. D. ....	1238
Thoughts on the Oblation, by J. S. Kelley.....	1238
Love, by Olive, Heywood .....	1241
THE GOSPEL FORUM:
The Personality of God, by L. D. ....	1239
NEWS OF CHURCH AND HOME.....	1242
MISCELLANEOUS .....	1248

1849, at Graten, New York, and moved to Illinois at the age of ten years. In 1886 she was united in marriage to Charles Gilman. To them was born one daughter. Mrs. Gilman was a resident of Plano many years, having lived in the home where she died for the past thirty years. She united with the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints November 7, 1915, and remained a faithful and devout member until death. Was well known and respected in that community. Surviving are her daughter, Mrs. Zelma Turpin, one grandson, and six great-grandchildren, all of Aurora, Illinois. The funeral services were held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at her home and at 2.30 at the Saints' church. Elder R. E. Davey officiating, assisted by Elder J. M. Blakely, of Plano. Interment was in Griswold Cemetery.

PENDLETON.—Mary Ann Pendleton, daughter of Thomas O. and Martha Pendleton, was born in Independence, Missouri, December 19, 1927, and passed away at 1.05 p. m. December 4, 1931, at the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Alva Logsdon, Independence. Her age at the time of her death was three years, eleven months, and fifteen days. Although a child in body and thought, it was Mary Ann's lot to endure more suffering than most strong men. During her short life she was compelled to submit to eight operations. Mary Ann was a lover of Sunday school, insisting that she be allowed to go even though her little body was weak from pain. Hers was a life of faith in God and prayer. Her childish lips often bore testimony of God's blessings to her and assurance of his love. Left to mourn besides her parents are a sister, Lois Jean, a brother, Thomas O. jr, her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Alva Logsdon, and Mrs. W. B. Noland, of Independence, other relatives and friends. The funeral was held from the home of Mrs. W. B. Noland Sunday, December 6, the sermon being by Elder F. M. McDowell. Interment was in Mound Grove Cemetery.

START THE NEW YEAR Right!

Subscribe for the church publications.

HERALD ENSIGN VISION

Order from

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE

Independence, Missouri

Buy Your Farms Now

While they are cheap. Any size, best terms. Special attention to readers of the Saints' Herald.

CHAS. R. BOWMAN
 Butler, Mo.

Index to "Saints' Herald," Volume 78, 1931

EDITORIALS

- Abundance of the heart, Out of the, 819.
- Appreciation and criticism, 147.
- Appreciation, Due, 50.
- Auditorium, The, 27, 73.
- Auditorium welcomes the world, 51, 75.
- Awakening, The, 435.
- Basket converts, 891.
- Be glad, 1154.
- Biography, 146, 387.
- Biography, Our readers like, 507.
- Bishop explains, The, 962.
- Blair passes, Charles E., 579.
- Blue pencil notes, 121, 145, 193, 219, 483, 531, 554, 578, 602, 1155, 1203, 1228.
- Boat, In the same, 987.
- Balmain Branch celebrates, 1036.
- Boys teach a lesson, 411.
- Brick Church, The old, 97.
- Budget allowances, 242.
- Can be done, It, 1034.
- Carry on, 239.
- Children, Our, 532.
- Christ the man and friend, 842.
- Christ's invitation, 795.
- Christian communism, A note on, 147.
- Christmas, 1202.
- Christmas, Coming up to, 1156.
- Christmas! Merry, 1202.
- Church as the scourge of sin and the friend of righteousness, The, 316.
- Church debt, The, 241.
- Church decorum—Our social responsibility, 146.
- Church programs, Beginning with the July issue, Vision will carry, 339.
- Church-wide organization doing great good, A, 628.
- Closson, Eugene, No camp at Nauvoo in 1931, 436.
- Coin of our rental, The, 315.
- College? Is this the time to attend, 771.
- Comments from letters, 265.
- Contributors, 1156.
- Correction, A, 771.
- Cornish, Sister, Passes, 239.
- Courage and fortitude manifested in readjustments, 217.
- Covenant of the Lord's Supper, The, 1.
- Curtis, J. F., rapidly improving, 1155.
- Debt, To stay out of, 242.
- Deed—reflector of the thought, The, 627.
- Depression—what?, After the, 1229.
- Descendants of pioneers, To the, 579.
- Dignity and beauty in ministry, 629, 654, 676, 700, 722, 748, 772, 795, 819, 843, 867, 892.
- Editors, The, Merry Christmas! 1202.
- Encouraging statistics, 651.
- Epistle to the Saints, An, 530.
- Exchange ideas, 363.
- Facing the facts, 674.
- Faithfulness, 387.
- Faith to proceed, The, 626.
- "Faithful in that which is least," 1059.
- Financial outlook, Our, 962.
- Financial policy, The, 1011.
- Financial program, Important changes in, 169.
- Finding good, On, 941.
- First things first, 266, 290, 314, 338, 386, 434.
- Flowers, L. E. Parables of the Parson, 26; Parables of a parson, 49; Knowing our men, 121; The Supreme Court speaks, 214; Parables of a parson, 218; God's will—and ours, 291; Revelation and discovery, 315.
- Following Jesus, On, 73.
- Fool hath said in his heart—"The, 746.
- "Four-minute speakers," 1131.
- Friendly church, The, 26.
- Fundamentals, 604.
- General Conference, Next, 1082.
- "Go, and do thou likewise," 604.
- God of the living, The, 818.
- God's will—and ours, 291.
- Graceland—and a last moment decision, 794; Gives opportunity, 674; Issues its last call, 818; Opening September 4, 559; Opening days at, 843; Plays its part in the development of a distinguished family, 98.
- Graceland College, Further recognition for, 50.
- Great commission, 315.
- Great Promise, The, 362.
- Greeting from President Smith, 939.
- Group of women helped, How one, 652.
- Harvest Home Festival begins to take form, 794; Officially opens, 939; This year's, 963.
- Harvest Festival grows, The, 890; Start now to prepare for, 316; Support the, 722.
- Hasty marriages, Against, 316.
- Have we the spirit of greatness, 214.
- Health column by the church physician, A weekly, 507.
- "Herald" grows, The, 98;
- "Herald," The year for the, 25.
- Hints for speakers and writers, 27, 51, 74, 147, 215, 388.
- If, 1107.
- If we all had the same spirit, or a spirit that will not down, 506.
- Important changes in financial program, 169.
- Independence sets the pace, 458.
- Information plus responsibility 458.
- Irrevocable bargain, The, 122.
- "I will call you friends," 650.
- Is it fair? 722.
- Israel, remember the sources of thy strength, 914.
- Its November, then December, 1130.
- Jackson County Bank closes doors, 1011; Opens to receive money due it, 1060.
- Jesus healed and taught, 842.
- Jesus taught the gospel of hope and action, 770.
- Joint council meeting, The, 915; In session, 891.
- Just wants and needs, 627.
- Kingdom of God, The, 1202.
- Knowing our men, 121.
- Koehler, H. A., The Auditorium welcomes the world, 51, 75.
- Laboratory notes on the Word of Wisdom, 915.
- Latter Day Saint Church, The, 771.
- Lamoni reunion brings assurance of divine nearness, 746.
- Landmark passes, A, 97.
- Laurel Club, The, 49.
- Lea, Leonard, A New Year's resolution, 2; The year for the "Herald," 25; The friendly church, 26; Hints for speakers and writers, 27, 51, 74, 147, 215, 388. Further recognition for Graceland College, 50; Due appreciation, 50; Return of the "Little Journeys," 74; Graceland plays its part in the development of a distinguished family, 98; The "Herald" grows, 98; The irrevocable bargain, 122; Biography, 146; Appreciation and criticism, 147; Representing the church, 194; Carry on, 239; A new department, 291; Rumor, 291; The great commission, 315; Start now to prepare for the
- Harvest Festival, 316; The church as the scourge of sin and the friend of righteousness, 316; Against hasty marriages, 316; Death of T. W. Williams, 340; Exchange ideas, 363; Biography 387; The New Saints Hymnal, 363; Faithfulness, 387; Pentecost, 410; The awakening, 435; Sacrifice week, June 21-28, 436; Miraculous healing in a hospital, 436; Preparing for Sacrifice Week, 433; President Smith to recuperate, 506; Coming—studies for the ministry, 506; Our readers like biography, 507; A weekly health column by the church physician, 507; Charles E. Blair passes, 579; The Word of Wisdom, 579; Starting next week, 602; New features for "Vision," 602; A case of real sacrifice, 603; Fundamentals, 604; The faith to proceed, 626; A quarterly correction, 626; Just wants and needs, 627; A church-wide organization doing great good, 628; Encouraging statistics, 651; How one group of women helped, 652; July "Vision" in the mails, 652; Graceland gives opportunity, 674; Prophecy—human and divine, 698; "The fool hath said in his heart—" 746; The value of testimony, 747; The power of God unto salvation, 770; Publicity agents, attention, 771; The "Word of Wisdom" contest, 771; The Latter Day Saint Church, 771; Is this the time to attend college, 771; Trust in the Lord, 794; Graceland—and a last moment decision, 794; "Word of Wisdom" contest nears closing date, 795; The God of the living, 818; "Word of Wisdom" contest closes with a rush, 818; Graceland issues its last call, 818; Jesus healed and taught, 842; Opening days at Graceland, 843; Principles of the gospel, 866, 890, 914, 936; President Smith's return, 891; Basket converts, 891; The Joint Council meetings, 915; Laboratory notes on the Word of Wisdom, 915; The bishop explains, 962; In the same boat, 987; J. M. Terry passes, 1012; Refusing to be depressed, 1036; One man beats the depression, 1061; An unsigned letter, 1084; A cause for satire, 1071; Vision short story contest, 1131; Coming up to Christmas, 1156; Contributors, 1156; Our moral stamina, 1179; "Vision" Contest stories coming in, 1180; A pageant by Jessie Ward, 1180; The kingdom of God, 1202; Times have not robbed us of these—, 1202, The "Messiah," 1228; A new publication, 1229.
- Letters of encouragement, 362.
- "Little Journeys," Return of, 74.
- Lord's supper, The Covenant of the, 1.
- Love—the key to happiness, 218.
- McDowell, F. M., Beginning with the July issue Vision will carry church programs, 339; 1931 reunion schedule, 340; Sacrifice week, 410; She hath done what she could, 435; Independence sets the pace, 458; Information plus responsibility, 458; For those who sincerely believe, 459, 482, 508; An epistle to the Saints, 530; A pastor sets the example, 578; Results of sacrifice week, 651; Facing the facts, 674; Is it fair, 722; Support the Harvest Festival, 722; Lamoni reunion brings assurance of divine nearness, 746; President Smith's health improved, 813;
- Meeting the test, 938; Resisting Blood, 1035; Our "Undeveloped resources," 1060; Measuring youth's devotion, 1082; Its November, then December, 1130; Why not try this? 1130; "Four-minute speakers," 1131; Spectators or participants, 1178;
- Man beats the depression, One, 1061.
- Medical examinations, 50.
- Meeting the test, 938.
- Measuring youth's devotion, 1082.
- Messiah, The 1228.
- Miraculous healing in hospital, 436.
- Money-making for the local church, 670.
- Moriarty, Leta B., Concerning winds, 2; The great thrill, 25; On following Jesus, 73; Church decorum—our social responsibility, 146; Have we the spirit of greatness, 214; The coin of our rental, 315; Boys teach a lesson, 411; Our children, 532; Things which tell what you are, 603; "Go and do thou likewise," 604; On looking up, 627; The deed—reflector of the thought, 627; A substitution necessary, 748; Jesus taught the gospel of hope and action, 770; Harvest Home Festival begins to take form, 794; Christ's invitation, 795; Out of the abundance of the heart, 819; Christ the man and friend, 842; The Harvest Festival grows, 890; Harvest Home Festival officially opens, 939; On finding good, 941; This year's Harvest Home Festival, 963; "Faithful in that which is least," 1059; Two interpretations, 1083; Paul's reason for thankfulness, 1107; Be Glad, 1154; Christmas, 1202.
- Nauvoo in 1931, No camp at 436.
- New department, A, 291.
- New "Saints' Hymnal," 363.
- New service in "Vision," 484.
- New Year Resolution, A, 2.
- On looking up, 627.
- Pageant by Jessie Ward, 1180.
- Parables of the parson, 26, 49, 218.
- Pastors, attention, 1083.
- Pastor sets the example, A, 578.
- Patriarch A. E. Stone dead, 916.
- Paul's Reason for Thankfulness, 1107.
- Pentecost, 410.
- Positions for released missionaries, 936.
- Power of God unto salvation, The, 770.
- Preparing for sacrifice week, 433.
- Present situation, How to help in the, 938.
- President Smith's health improved, 813; Return, 891.
- Principles of the gospel, 866, 890, 914, 936.
- Prophecy—human and divine, 698.
- Prophetic message, A, 1108.
- Publication, A new, 1229.
- Publicity agents, attention, 676.
- Quarterly correction, A, 626.
- Readjustments, Courage and fortitude manifested in, 217.
- Reflections of the week, 170.
- Refusing to be depressed, 1036.
- "Religious education carries on," 291.
- Representing the church, 194.
- "Resisting unto blood," 1035.
- Responsibility for life, 363.
- Reunion schedule (1931), 340.
- Revelation and discovery, 315.
- Rumor, 291.
- Sacrifice, A case of real, 603.
- Sacrifice week, 410; June 21-28,

- 436; Preparing for, 483; The results of, 651.
- Saints' Hymnal, The first, 387.
- Saints' Hymnal, The, 411.
- Satire, A cause for, 1071.
- School taxation, 1059.
- Service of love, The, 49.
- She hath done what she could, 435.
- Smith, Elbert A., The Old Brick Church, 97; Blue pencil notes, 121, 145, 193, 219, 483, 531, 554, 578, 602, 1155, 1203, 1228, The church debt, 241; First things first, 266, 290, 314, 338, 386, 434; An epistle to Saints, 530; Dignity and beauty in ministry, 629, 654, 676, 700, 722, 743, 772, 795, 819, 843, 867, 892; "I will call you friends," 650; Israel, remember the source of thy strength, 914; It can be done, 1034.
- Smith, Frederick M., The covenant of the Lord's Supper, 1; The service of love, 49; The Laurel Club, 49; Medical examinations, 50; The Auditorium, 73; A landmark passes, 97; Robert Winning passes, 98; Important changes in financial program, 169; "The way out," 193; Courage and fortitude manifested in readjustments, 217; Cornish, Sister, Passes, 239; To stay out of debt, 242; Budget allowances, 242; Comments from letters, 285; An epistle to the Saints, 530; How to help the present situation, 938; Greeting from President Smith, 939; Our financial outlook, 962; Positions for released missionaries, 986; The financial policy, 1011; Jackson County Bank closes doors, 1011; Balmain Branch celebrates, 1036; School taxation, 1059; Next General Conference, 1082.
- Smith, Mrs. F. A., passes, 1155.
- Smith, President F. M., Recovering, 410.
- Smith, President F. M., to recuperate, 506.
- Spectators or participants, 1178.
- Stamina, Our moral, 1179.
- Starting next week, 602.
- Stay out of debt, To, 242.
- Studies for the ministry, Coming, 506.
- Substitution necessary, A, 784.
- Supreme Court speaks, The, 214.
- Teaching church history by visual methods, 74.
- Terry, J. M., passes, 1012.
- Testimony, The value of, 747.
- Things which tell what you are, 603.
- Those who sincerely believe, For, 459, 482, 508.
- Thrill, The great, 25.
- Times have not robbed us of these—1202.
- Trust in the Lord, 794.
- Two interpretations, 1083.
- "Undeveloped resources," Our, 1060.
- Unsigned letter, An, 1084.
- "Vision" contest stories coming in, 1180.
- Vision, New features for, 602; Story contest, 1131.
- Visual methods, Teaching church history by, 74.
- Way out," "The, 193.
- What gospel do we preach, 411.
- Why not try this? 1130.
- Williams, T. W., Death of, 340.
- Winds, Concerning, 2.
- Winning, Robert, Passes, 98.
- "Word of Wisdom" contest closes with a rush, 818.
- "Word of Wisdom" contest nears closing date, 795.
- "Word of Wisdom" contest, The, 771.
- Word of Wisdom, The, 579.
- Writers, Hint for speakers and writers, 27, 51, 74, 147, 215, 388.
- who promises to help, 420.
- Calahan, Mrs. Walter, The preferences of our readers, 605.
- Chaffin, Margaret, Helping the church financially, 981.
- Cheerful worker who promises to help, A, 420.
- Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Harry, Letter of appreciation, 478.
- Day, 605.
- Defends our news column, 421.
- Discouraged, She is not, 1127.
- Do we help the missionaries, 421.
- Dudley, Charles H., A word of appreciation, 1189.
- Faith that the church will succeed, Feels, 1067.
- Graves, Mrs. R. E., Young People interested in biography, 605.
- Griffiths, Patriarch Gomer T., Sees Sixty-sixth year in church work, 653.
- Helping the church financially, 981.
- Isolated members work for the church, 605.
- Jordan, Mrs. George A., Isolated members work for the church, 605.
- Keir, James F., Thank you for the correction, 420.
- Keown, Lucy, Letter of appreciation, 478.
- Lawrie, Peter, Suggestions for the "Herald" 450.
- Local effort to teach and keep the law, 1190.
- Lydick, Diona, Defends our news columns, 421; She is not discouraged, 1127.
- Munro, C. L., Feels faith that the church will succeed, 1067.
- Nice, E. Leola, The producer's dilemma, 989.
- Parrish, G. W., A kindly word of caution, 1109.
- Pealer, Clark H., Local effort to teach and keep law, 1190.
- Preferences of our readers, The, 605.
- Producer's dilemma, The, 989.
- Rhodes, Leonard S., See's instructive value in biography, 614.
- Sees instructive value in biography, 614.
- Spurlock, C. J., 614.
- Suggestions for local publicity work, Good, 1109.
- Suggestions for the "Herald," 420.
- Thank you for the correction, 420.
- Teeters, Mrs. John, Urges aid to missionary work, 1190.
- Urees aid to missionary work, 1190.
- Weekly sacrifice, A., 981.
- What we need to do, 1189.
- White, Lee A., Good suggestions for local publicity work, 1109.
- Word of appreciation, A, 1189.
- Word of caution, A kindly, 1109.
- Young people interested in biography, 605.
- Ziegenhorn, A. E., Letter of appreciation, 478.
- Church school reports, 373.
- Church school worship suggestions for February, 59; for March, 156; for April, 277; for May, 371; for June, 468; for sacrifice week, 532; for July, 589.
- Closson, E. E. Suffer the young people 34; Kansas city young people are active, 61; To leaders of young people, 349.
- Continuous service, The, 397.
- Continuous service, The Sunday morning, 61.
- Correction, A, 518.
- Disciples, Call of the, 467.
- "Four-minute" sacrifice themes for December, 1132.
- Gardner, Fae Emmerson, The Camp Fire girls, 444.
- Girl Reserve Movement? Do your girls need the, 417.
- Girl scouting answers our call, 374.
- Gould, Mrs. H. A., Church school worship, 59; Church school worship services, 156.
- "Grown up" or growing? Are you, 84.
- Guiding the nursery child, 12, 107, 204, 327, 444, 518, 636, 736, 925, 1090, 1188.
- Helps for sermons on sacrifice period, Outline of, 1010.
- Home, Importance of the, 348.
- Hull, E. B., Study your catalog and study your prospect, 394.
- Investment in juniors, An, 204.
- Jesus and his message, 59.
- Junior stewardship for 1931, 106.
- Junior stewardship recognition, 130.
- Junior worship suggestion for February, 83.
- Junior young people and the church school, Our, 11.
- Kansas City young people are active 61.
- Killpack, Mable, Junior worship suggestions for February, 83.
- Koehler, H. A. Call of the disciples, 467.
- Leaders of young people, To, 349.
- Leadership and service, 695.
- Leaflets for parents and workers in the children's division, Free, 711.
- Lea, Leonard, A retrospect on Christmas, 13.
- Life of Jesus, The story of four books, 804.
- McDowell, F. M., Religious education carries on, 300.
- Meredith, H. Voas, Are you "grown up" or growing, 84.
- Moriarty, Leta B., Our junior young people and the church school, 11; Girl Scouting answers our call, 374; Do your girls need the Girl Reserve movement, 417.
- New quarterlies for October, 827.
- New study course, A., 614.
- Nursery department leaflet, The Department of Religious Education announces a new, 687.
- Nursery department organization and administration, 29.
- Organized Girls' work, 613.
- Philadelphia, Intensive program of activities in, 277.
- Phillips, A. B., Arranged by, Outline helps for sermons on sacrifice period, 1010.
- Pictures in color, Beautiful, 303.
- Pictures, The use of, 373.
- Plan for studying a text, 470.
- Primary worship programs, Send for, 179.
- Purpose, plan, and spirit of the church school, The, 494.
- Radio program in parent education, A., 924.
- Rally, day and promotion, 874.
- Religious education carries on, 300.
- Rules for efficient committees, 61.
- Ruth and Naomi, 418.
- Sacrifice week program, 543.
- Sampson, Nellie, Ruth and Naomi, 418.
- Smith, Mrs. Tessie, Vacation time, 636.
- Stevens, Mrs. Bertha, Guiding the nursery child, 12, 107, 204, 327, 444, 518, 636, 736, 925, 1090, 1188.
- Stewardship recognition, Additional junior, 255.
- Suffer the young people, 34.
- Sunday evening study courses for use in the children's division, 254.
- Task of early training, The, 155.
- Training for service, 13.
- Vacation time, 636.
- Weber, Myrtle A., The task of early training, 155; Worship suggestions for use in the children's division, 179; The story of four books on the life of Jesus, 804.
- Women at work, The, 106.
- Women, The ministry of the, 59.
- Woman's work in the local church, 35.
- Woodstock, C. B., Training for service, 13; Using worship materials, 35; Jesus and his message, 59; The Sunday morning continuous service, 61; Junior stewardship recognition, 130; Using worship materials in the church school, 155; Certification in January, 179; An investment in juniors, 204; Additional junior stewardship recognition, 255; Importance of the home, 348; The continuous service, 397; Children's Day, June 14, 453; The purpose, plan, and spirit of the church school, 494; Christmas offering plans, 613; Leadership and service, 695; Do we starve our children, 805; New quarterlies for October, 827; The risen Christ in America, 828; Changing to a single department, 854; A radio program in parent education, 924; "Four-minute" sacrifice themes for December, 1132.
- Woodward, Bertha Constance, Nursery department organization and administration, 129; Sunday evening study courses for use in the children's division, 254; Free leaflets for parents and workers in the children's division, 711.
- Worship materials in the church school, Using, 155.
- Worship materials, Using, 35, 155.
- Worship suggestions for use in the children's division, 179; 301; 396; 492; 612.

OF GENERAL INTEREST

- Archaeological support of Book of Mormon dates, 239.
- Are the minds of men turning again to God, 718.
- China, Famine conditions in, 452.
- Crucifixion been found? Has the date of, 376.
- Employment and morals, 328.
- Error—the remedy, The, 862.
- Famine conditions in China, 452.
- Gospel of Jesus, The, 862.
- Hands, W. O., My religion, 328.
- Has the exact date of the crucifixion been found? 376.
- Indian and his native culture a loss to civilization, The vanishing of the, 304.
- Indians of Mexico, The, 376.

Municipal ownership and operation of essential industries, Successful, 375.

Revival on the way? Is a, 861. "Rise and walk," 1167.

Science a danger? Is, 942. Spirit of progress, The, 453. Successful marriage, 452.

Tobacco question, The, 274.

Vanderwood, J. E., The spirit of progress, 453. Victories for good government, 429.

Washington had vision of trials facing nation, 1068. World may have peace, That the, 990.

Young America, 478.

THE GOSPEL FORUM

Adam's Transgression, 1211. Blessings of Adversity, The, 735. Davies, Edwin H., The blessings of adversity, 735. Distinctive features of the Restoration, 758.

DuRose, Arthur H., Further thoughts, on preparation for membership, 829.

Fall of man—was it necessary? Was it for good or evil? The, 875.

Hinds, Peter M., Adam's Transgression, 1211.

Hunker, E. Y., Neglected instruction, 733.

Jenkins, George, The spirit of God as it worked with the Lord's people in Bible times, 878.

Jones, Thomas, Distinctive features of the Restoration, 758. L. D., The personality of God, 1239.

Nature of man versus progress, The, 660, 684. Neglected instruction, 733.

Newcombe, L. W., The nature of man versus progress, 660, 684; The fall of man was it necessary? Was it for good or evil? 875.

Personality of God, The, 1239. Preparation for membership, Further thoughts on, 829.

Porter, C. H., What can we do about it, 1055; The Climax of war as foretold by the Hebrew prophets, 852.

Spirit of God as it worked with the Lord's people in Bible times, 878.

War as foretold by the Hebrew prophets, The Climax of, 852. What can we do about it, 1055.

OFFICIAL

Allen, Amos E., The balance sheet 724.

Appointments for 1931, 267. Appointment of district presidents, 292. Auditorium, The 399.

Balance sheet, The, 724. Bond holders, Notice to, 1181. Budget, The revised, 243.

Burgess, S. A., Our historical library, 910.

Care should be exercised in giving help, 743.

Carmichael, Albert, Let the church move forward, 3; The way out, 195; two months of sacrifice, 966; Notice to bond holders, 1181.

Children's Day—June 14, 412. Church debt and sacrifice, The, 1062.

Church debt plan survey, 1109. College Day, October 18, 866. Crisis, The present, 988.

Curry, L. F. P., The revised budget, 243; Notice of appointment, 364; Our mutual burdens, 460; The balance sheet, 724; A payment program and the 1932 budget, 964; Two months of sacrifice, 966.

De Lapp, G. L., Immediate objectives, 242; Official, 652; The sacrifice week and general church finances, 675; Sacrifice receipts for 1931 and 1930, 699; The Sanitarium, 982; Two months of sacrifice, 966; A brief summary of our financial policy, 1012; The Jackson County Bank, 1014; The church debt and sacrifice, 1062; Church debt plan survey, 1109; Notice to tithe payers and contributors living in Canada, 1205.

Fasting and prayer Sunday, June 21, A call to, 507. First Presidency, The, College day, October 18, 866; Letter from the First Presidency, 940.

Financial policy, A brief summary of our, 1012. Finances, The sacrifice week and general church, 675.

Gardner, J. A., The Auditorium, 3, 99. General Conference, Notice of, 1084.

Graphic Arts Bureau, The, 412. Harvest Home Festival, 579.

Immediate objectives, 242.

Jackson County Bank, The, 1014.

Let the church move forward, 3. Letter from the First Presidency, 940.

Letter from the Quorum of Twelve, 940. Library, Our historical, 910.

McDowell, Floyd M., Let the church move forward, 3; Tentative reunion schedule, 340; An open letter, 341; Care should be exercised in giving help, 743; The present crisis, 988.

Notice of appointments, 364, 388. Notice to bond holders, 1181.

Notice to tithe payers and contributors living in Canada, 1205.

Official, 652. Open letter, An, 341. Our mutual burdens, 460.

Payment program and the 1932 budget, A, 964. Priesthood of Independence in action, The, 461.

Reunion schedule for 1931, Tentative, 340. Sacrifice receipts for 1931 and 1930, 699.

Sacrifice, Two months of, 966. Sacrifice week and general church finances, The, 675.

Sacrifice week—June 21-28, 412. Sanitarium, The, 982.

Sheehy, John, The priesthood of Independence in action, 461.

Smith, Fredrick M., Harvest Home Festival, 579; Notice of General Conference, 1084. Statement of appropriations, 974. Summary of Liabilities, 972-3.

Way out, The, 195.

FACTS AND OPINIONS

Church work and services? Where? Do we want, 304. Disintegration attacking manhood, 350.

Interesting letter, An, 351. Jensen, Blair, Do we want church work and services? Where, 304.

Lawrie, Peter, Disintegration attacking manhood, 350. Progressive policy for the "Herald," Urges a, 349.

Question of justice, A, 325. Rhodes, Leonard S., Urges a progressive policy for the "Herald," 349.

Schmidt, D. H., A question of justice, 325.

THE REVIEWERS' PAGE

Brockway, Stella, Shall the criminal triumph, 317. Crime, 244.

Criminal triumph? Shall the, 317. Dramatics, 220.

Governor, A new kind of, 365. "How will it be with kingdoms and with kings?," 365.

Lea, Leonard, Retribution, 293; The public takes a hand, 317; Liquor and the automobile, 268. Moriarty, Leta B., Golden anniversary of the Red Cross, 293.

Paying for the church, 244. Peace for India, 220. Public takes a hand, The, 317.

Quest for peace, The, 263. Red cross, Golden anniversary of the, 293.

Retribution, 293. Unpreparedness, 293.

ORIGINAL ARTICLES

Abundant life, The, 413. Agents for God, 917. Answer be? What shall the, 1158. Answer to a familiar error, an, 970.

Are you changing, and is it for the better?, 587.

Arven, Charles H., Building strength of character, 202; The rich young ruler, 253; Security in God, 782.

Atonement, 4. Attebery, C. L., Mercy and not sacrifice, 1165.

Back-to-College movement, The, 921.

Bishop, James E., A socialized surplus versus insurance, 1134. Blakely, Marion Moroni, How can we make our work a success, 517.

Booker, N. L., Whom shall we serve: God or Mammon? 851.

Briggs, G. N., Faculty and courses at Graceland, 677; Graceland in harmony with present educational tendencies, 755; Is now the time for a college education? 778; A last minute call, 826.

Budd, R. S., Lift up the standard, 269; Sacrifice brings reward, 556. Building strength of character, 202.

Burgess, S. A., "Our creed, all truth," 196; The city of God, 536.

Butterworth, C. W., Caged birds, 902.

Caged birds, 902. Campbell, L. D., The church of the second century, 943.

Carlile, Mabel, The advantages of a small church college, 657.

Carter, Mitchel M., The Christmas "Something," 1208.

Case, Hubert, Who is holding up the procession? 732. Challenge of the Restoration, The, 1112.

Cheville, Roy A., Does Graceland offer real preparation? 706. Choir? Why the church, 1116. Christ at Christmas, Honoring, 1182.

Christian priesthood, 1044. Christianity, The foundations of, 967.

Christianity, The unfinished work of, 52. Christmas gift to Christ in 1931, Our, 1162.

Christmas giving, 1137. Christmas offering in 1931, The, 443, 1040.

Christmas offering in the home, 1186. Christmas offering superintendent, A, 813.

Christmas "Something," The, 1208. Church and the world, The, 845. Church? How much do you love the, 1255.

Church means to me, What the, 1143.

Church needs your help, The, 1063. Church of the second century, The, 943.

City of God, The, 536. Closson, Eugene and Julia, Does the world need Zion? 708; The challenge of the Restoration, 1112.

Cochran, Ada, Preparation, 1019. College education? Is now the time for a, 778.

College, The advantages of a small church, 657.

Convention in Hades, A, 57. Courage and prudence, 1065. Courage to move forward, Let us have, 1126.

Creating after the image, 180. Creed, all truth," "Our, 196. Cross? Are you carrying your, 1166.

Curry, Bishop L. F. P., The sure foundation of God, 533. Curtis, Kenneth B., A declaration of the king's law, 1157, 1183, 1209, 1236.

Daughters? What of our, 1137. Davies, Edwin H., Sainthood as a career, 201.

Davis, Inez Smith, An early missionary who sacrificed, 557. Davis, James W., A missionary at large, 1135.

Deam, W. H., An answer to Mrs. Gates on the question of polygamy, 441.

Declaration of the King's law, A, 1157, 1183, 1209, 1236. Defiling the temple, 199.

Development of the Soul, 797. Discipleship, 31. Divine imperatives, 28.

Divine law of growth, The, 631. Does the world need Zion, 708. Done about it? What can be, 1117.

Drink of my cup?" "Are you able to, 1015.

DuRose, Arthur H., An average member speaks, 1206.

Educational phases of the present crises, 1038.

Edward, F. Henry, Divine imperatives, 28; Pre-Easter missionary activities, 172; A great spiritual opportunity, 245; A Mother's Day sermon, 486. Example of faithfulness in service, An, 227.

Facing the future, 1066. Faith, 345.

Fall of man and the atonement, The, 1140.

Family worship—Its value, and methods of conducting it, 995. Fences for Christians to straddle, 171.

Flowers, L. E., The back-to-college movement, 921.

Fry, Evan, Teamwork, 3; Tolerance, 33; Reaching the source of spiritual power, 81; Fences for Christians to straddle, 171; Defiling the temple, 199; The unknown God, 225; "It is finished," 250; Rest unto your souls, 294; "Lie not one to another," 366; The kingdom of heaven is at hand, 484; The light of the world, 560; Sentenced to church, 585; The way that seemeth right, 610; Two are better than one, 754; Courage and prudence, 1065; Judge not that ye be not judged, 1037. Righteousness, The line of, 1231.

Gates, Mrs., on the question of polygamy, An answer to, 441. Getting back to God, 750.

Gifts of the gospel, The, 1110, 1160.

Gilbert, A. R., Graceland a cosmopolitan college, 679.

Gleazer, E. J., Religion and the present crises, 509; Getting back to God, 750.

God of this world, The, 323. God or Mammon? Whom shall we serve, 851.

Graceland—a cosmopolitan College, 679.

Graceland, Drama at, 678. Graceland, Faculty and courses at, 677.

Graceland in harmony with present educational tendencies, 755. Graceland offer real preparation? Does, 706.

Graceland students, The Lambda Delta Sigma Society as a goal for, 680.

Greene, N. W., Led by the love of the Lord, 554.

Grice, John R., Our priesthood responsibility, 1115, 1139, 1164.

- Griffiths, Gomer T., To Israel of Latter Days, 1233.
- Grover, Merl B., My Ministry 1206.
- Hades A convention in, 57.
- Hall, Abel, Development of the soul, 797.
- Hammond, E. G. Sacrifice or obedience? 1039.
- Hands, W. O., We eat too much, 1184.
- Happiness, 637.
- Hartshorn, C. B., Wells of living water, 318; The Latter Day Saint Church, 773.
- Harvest be? What will the, 728.
- Harvest festival, Prepare now for the, 344.
- Haworth, W. J., The way of salvation, 82.
- Hayden, E. J., The way out, 1232.
- Hearts, The valley of shrivelled, 821.
- Heywood, Olive, Love, 1241.
- Heywood, Thomas, The soul indestructible, 466.
- Heywood, William, Faith, 245.
- Higher achievements, 249.
- Holmes, Frank L., The sacrament, 31.
- Homes, Our, 1020.
- Hot drinks, 55, 152, 175.
- Hougas, Ward A., Is Latter Day Saintism a culture, 221; A play worth while, 437; The laborer is not worthy of his hire, 1235.
- How can we make our work a success? 517.
- How much do we mean what we say, 701.
- Hull, E. B., The church and the world, 845.
- Hull, Milburn H., Are you changing and is it for the better? 587, 1185.
- Hunker, E. Y., Local preparations for the missionary's visit, 10.
- Hunt, C. J., "The land shadowing with wings," 1064; Side lights, 1185.
- In the church; of the church, 586.
- Israel of Latter Days, To, 1233.
- Israel! To your knees, O, 1091.
- "It is finished," 250.
- Jerusalem, The destruction of, 993.
- Judge not that ye be not judged, 1087.
- Kelley, J. S., Oblation remarks, 1207; Thoughts on the oblation, 1238.
- King, Tom, A life history, 634, 658, 682, 705, 730, 756, 778, 801, 824, 848, 872, 900, 920.
- Kingdom of heaven is at hand, The, 484.
- Koehler, C. C., Prepare now for the Harvest Festival, 344; What will the harvest be? 728.
- Koehler, J. A., Righteousness and prosperity, 76, 100, 123; The prophecies and promises of God, 462, 489, 514.
- Labor not for meat which perisheth, 566.
- Laborer is worthy of his hire, The, 1235.
- Lancaster, J. E., A victorious life, 389.
- Land shadowing with wings," "The, 1064.
- Last minute call, A, 826.
- Latter Day Saint Church, The, 773.
- Latter Day Saintism a culture? Is, 221.
- Led by the love of the Lord, 554.
- Leverson, Arthur, The story of my life, 153, 176, 197, 222, 251, 293, 321, 347, 369.
- "Lie not one to another," 366.
- Lift up the standard, 269.
- Light of the world, The, 560.
- Little journeys with the editor-in-chief, 85, 108, 173, 203, 228.
- Living faith, The, 393.
- Local branch as a missionary unit, The, 869.
- Local preparations for the missionary's visit, 10.
- Love, 1241.
- Loving, Albert, The God of this world, 323; Christian priesthood, 1044.
- Luff, Joseph, Agents for God, 917; To your knees, O Israel, 1091.
- McDowell, F. M., The vital principle, 580.
- Member speaks, An average, 1206.
- Mercy and not sacrifice, 1165.
- Meredith, Voas, Odds and ends, 198.
- Mesley, George, The valley of shrivelled hearts, 821.
- Message for the second century, A., 606.
- Minkler, Hazel L., Family worship—its value, and methods of conducting it, 995.
- Ministry, My, 1206.
- Mintun, J. F., The fall of man and the atonement, 1140.
- Missionary at large, A, 1135.
- Missionary who sacrificed, An early, 557.
- Moriarty, Leta B., How much do we mean what we say? 701; What of our daughters? 1137.
- Morris, Harley A., Labor not for the meat which perisheth, 566; How much do you love the church? 1255.
- Mother's Day sermon, A, 486.
- Muceus, Peter, In the church; of the church, 586.
- New York District pledges support, 556.
- Nielson, Poul S., "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself," 948; Our homes, 1021; Are you carrying your cross? 1166.
- Oblation remarks, 1207.
- Odds and ends, 198.
- Olson, Carroll L., Report of the Department of Statistics, 73, 125, 226, 321, 439, 540, 556, 871, 922, 1089, 1209; Do you know these people? 950, 997, 1022, 1046, 1070.
- Patterson, William, A message for the second century, 606.
- Personal evangelism, 609.
- Phillips, A. B., Social aspects of the message of Jesus, 102, 126, 151, 173; Why I am a Latter Day Saint, 246, 272, 295; The abundant life, 413; Suggestions for sermon building, 513; Divine law of growth, 631; The search for God, 726; The foundations of Christianity, 967; The church needs your help, 1063; The sacrifice offering of Thanksgiving, 1085; The gifts of the gospel, 1110, 1160; Thoughts on Christmas giving, 1136; Honoring Christ at Christmas, 1182.
- Philosophy of Jesus in a modern world, 342, 367, 391, 414, 541.
- Platz, G. A., The Lambda Delta Sigma Society as a goal for Graceland students, 680.
- Play worth while, A, 437.
- Polygamy, An answer to Mrs. Gates on the question of, 441.
- Porter, C. H., Tom King: A life history, 634, 658, 682, 705, 730, 756, 778, 801, 824, 848, 872, 900, 920; What can be done about it 1117.
- Power of prayer, 923.
- Pre-Easter missionary activities, 172.
- Preparation, 1019.
- Preparing for life, 565.
- Price of success, The, 847.
- Priesthood responsibility, Our, 1115, 1139, 1163.
- Prophecies and promises of God, The, 462, 489, 514.
- Prosperity, Righteousness and, 76, 100, 123.
- Religion and the present crisis, 509.
- Remington, Roy, The power of prayer, 923.
- Repentance—don't forget to turn, 128.
- Rest unto your souls, 294.
- Rich young ruler, The, 253.
- Righteousness and prosperity, 76, 100, 123.
- Righteousness, The line of, 1231.
- Right use of time, The, 417.
- Roberts, J. W., What the church means to me, 1143.
- Robley, George W., Happiness, 637.
- R. R. R., The price of success, 847; Facing the future, 1066.
- Ruch, V. D., Spiritual gifts necessary today, 324.
- Rushton, John W., Atonement, 4; What is the remedy? 148; An answer to a familiar error, 970.
- Sacrament, The, 31.
- Sacrifice, 555.
- Sacrifice brings reward, 556.
- Sacrifice week, Letters for, 554, 556.
- Sacrifice offering of Thanksgiving, The, 1085.
- Sacrifice or obedience, 1039.
- Sacrifice, This is a day of, 440.
- Sacrifice? What is, 658.
- Sainthood as a career, 201.
- Salisbury, O., Personal evangelism, 609.
- Salyards, Christiana, The destruction of Jerusalem, 993.
- Search for God, The, 726.
- Sentenced to church, 585.
- Security in God, 782.
- Sheehy, J. F., Tribute to John M. Terry, 1042.
- Side Lights, 1185.
- Skinner, C. A., Letters for sacrifice week, 556; Why pay tithing? 1037; How youth may carry its share, 1086.
- Smith, Elbert A., "Are you able to drink of my cup?" 1015.
- Smith, F. A., The worship of God, 894.
- Smith, F. M., Little journeys with the editor-in-chief, 85, 108, 173, 203, 228.
- Smith, H. O., Hot drinks, 55, 152, 175.
- Social aspects of the message of Jesus, 102, 126, 151, 173.
- Social road to Jesus, The, 535.
- Soul indestructible, The, 466.
- Source of spiritual power, Preaching the, 81.
- Spiritual gifts necessary today, 324.
- Spiritual opportunity, A great, 245.
- Statistics, Report of the Department, 73, 125, 226, 321, 439, 540, 556, 871, 922, 1089, 1209; Do you know these people? 950, 997, 1022, 1046, 1070.
- Stewardship for 1932, Junior, 1185.
- Story of my life, The, 153, 176, 197, 222, 251, 293, 321, 347, 369.
- Suggestions for sermon building, 513.
- Sure foundation of God The, 533.
- Surplus versus Insurance, A socialized, 1134.
- Teamwork, 8.
- Teel, A. W., Weekly Health Letter: High blood pressure, 633; Hardening of the arteries, 657; The nose and its relation to health and disease, 681, 704, 729, 756, 778, 800, 823, 848, 871, 899, 947, 969, 1018, 1041, 1094; The ear and its relation to health and disease, 1114, 1142, 1163, 1187, 1208, 1238.
- Terry, Brother and Sister J. M., Sacrifice, 555.
- Thief of souls, The, 7.
- Thompson, Florence L., Drama at Graceland, 678.
- "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself," 948.
- Thoughts on Christmas giving, 1136.
- Thoughts on the oblation, 1238.
- Tithing? Why pay, 1037.
- Tolerance, 33.
- Tribute to John M. Terry, 1042.
- Twentieth century Pentecost, A., 562, 702.
- Two are better than one, 754.
- Unfinished work of Christianity, The, 52.
- Unknown work of Christianity, The, 52.
- Unknown God, The, 225.
- Vanderwood, J. E., Discipleship, 31; Creating after the image, 180; An example of faithfulness in service, 227; Higher achievements, 249; Preparing for life, 565; Does war demand greater loyalty than peace? 991; Let us have courage to move forward, 1126; What shall the answer be, 1158.
- Victorious life, A, 389.
- "Vision" for everybody, 611.
- Vital principle, The, 580.
- Wallace, Ruth, Why the church choir? 1116.
- War demand greater loyalty than peace? Does, 991.
- Way of salvation, The, 82.
- Way out, The, 1232.
- Way that seemeth right, The, 610.
- We eat too much, 1184.
- Weekly Health Letter: High blood pressure, 633; Hardening of the arteries, 657; The nose and its relation to health and disease, 681, 704, 729, 756, 778, 800, 823, 848, 871, 899, 947, 969, 1018, 1041, 1094; The ear and its relation to health and disease, 1114, 1142, 1163, 1187, 1208, 1238.
- Wells of living water, 318.
- What is the remedy? 148.
- White, Lee, Christmas giving, 1137.
- Whiting, Ray, The thief of souls, 7; This is a day of sacrifice, 440.
- Who is holding up the procession? 732.
- Why I am a Latter Day Saint, 246, 272, 295.
- Wight, C. E., The philosophy of Jesus in a modern world, 342, 367, 391, 414, 541; A twentieth century Pentecost, 562, 702.
- Winniford, C. L., Repentance—don't forget to turn, 123; The living faith, 393.
- Witberbe, Willis W., The right use of time, 417.
- Woodstock, C. B., The Christmas offering in 1931, 443, 1040; A Christmas offering superintendent, 813; Educational phases of the present crisis, 1083; Our Christmas gift to Christ in 1931, 1162; Junior stewardship for 1932, 1185; Christmas offering in the home, 1186; Worship of God, The, 894.
- Wrigley, Raymond G., Our Zionie homes, 200.
- Youth may carry its share, How, 1086.
- Zimmermann, John, Jr., The unfinished work of Christianity, 52.
- Zionie homes, Our, 200.

POETRY

- After Calvary, 669.
- Assurance, 668.
- Axiom, 428.
- Ballad of trees and the Master, A, 292.
- Bear on, 874.
- Brothers of the faith, 339.
- Candle of hope, My, 1229.
- Credo, 923.
- Earth's major secret, 564.
- Easter Hly, The first, 289.
- Entering a chapel, On, 596.
- Gillin, Mary E., Out of the shadows, 202; Silver linings, 261; The season's charm, 847; My candle of hope, 1229.
- God, make me a man—, 704.
- God's messenger, 719.
- Goodale, J., Bear on, 874.
- Hands, 105.
- His night, 1224.
- Hoofman, Jewel Dortch, Earth's major secret, 564.
- "If" for ministers, An, 58.
- Jesus means to me, What, 1077.
- Journey, The, 803.
- Just a smile, 839.
- Last word, The, 749.
- Let us be doers of the word, 1094.
- Life, 941.
- Look pleasant, 893.
- Lord hath need, The, 931.
- Kinney, Inez, Hands, 105.
- Man-making, 964.
- Mary Magdalene, Tell us, 364.
- May, Francis, Our Church, 443.
- Milner, Winnifred, 719.
- Money, How they spent their, 1102.
- Morris, Harley A., Where knowledge fails, 820.
- Our Church, 443.
- Out of the shadows, 202.
- Prayer, 782.
- Prayer, 863.
- Prayer, 879.
- Rule, A., 674.

Williams, Florence, Sees familiar names in "Herald," 139.
 Wilkes, E. Edward, 813.
 Wilson, Mrs. George S., Gaylord, Michigan, 158.
 Winquist, Clara Mae, Kewanee, Illinois, 160.
 Wisconsin, Church moves forward in, 690.
 Wisconsin District Conference, Southern, 1193.
 Wixom, Elder George H., Chronicles his activities in the South-west, 692.
 Wixom, Elder, in Texas with, 423.
 Woodbine, Iowa, 183, 381, 787, 1077.
 Woodbine, Iowa, The reunion at 833.
 Woodward, Oklahoma, 808.
 Worley, Mrs. C. C., Sends her gift, 1106.
 Yager, Allen H., Coleman, Michigan, 93.
 Young people active in small group, 207.
 Young people's convention for Saint Louis District, Successful, 548.
 Young people's prayer meeting, The beginning of the early Sunday morning, 665.

 Yuma, Colorado, 904.
 Ziegenhorn, C. G., Fisher, Arkansas, 110.

MISCELLANEOUS

First Presidency

Appointment of district president, 502, 573, 863, 983.
 Appointment, Notice of district presidency, 142.
 Appointment, Notice of, 142, 1079.
 Change of appointment, 792.

Presiding Bishopric

Appointment of bishop over additional territory, 311.
 Appointment of bishop's agent, 166, 311, 406, 430, 502, 525, 573, 621, 909, 1124, 1152, 1200.

General

"Book of Mormon" study, A new, 900.
 Brother's keeper, Our, 1181.
 Christ saves us, 760.
 Danger of purely formal religion, The, 1062.
 Energy wasted, 916.
 "Great living," 872.

Inner cleansing, 105.
 It can be done, 590.
 Foolishness of preaching, The, 1188.
 Friendship interlude project, A, 559.
 God is your help, 75.
 God, Three stages in work for, 353.
 He's not our kind, 495.
 Importance of belief, 445.
 Jackson County Tuberculosis Association, 364.
 Japanese Christian speaks, A, 1256.
 Learning and teaching, 420.
 Miracles, 74.
 Neighbors, 1041.
 New book, A, 80.
 Newest thing, The, 958.
 Plight of the churches, The, 1118.
 Prayer of a child to a Toy Santa Claus, 1215.
 Power from without, 292.
 Putting it up to the congregation, 916.
 Rock of ages, Building upon the, 1143.
 Social road to Jesus, The, 535.
 Solomon's prayer, 1118.
 True education, 796.

Unworthy criticism, 760.
 Valor, 1205.
 Vision, 470.
 "Vision" in the mails, July, 652.
 What makes and breaks men? 1180.
 Words of Abraham Lincoln, 698.
 Worshiping God, 1215.

Pastoral

Davis, E. R., To the Saints of Rock Island district, 839.
 Saints of Rock Island district, To the, 839.

Conference Minutes

Central Michigan, 237, 1054.
 Eastern Oklahoma, 477.
 Kirtland, 334.
 Mobile, 190.
 New York and Philadelphia, 237, 910.
 Northeastern Kansas, 1175.
 Northern Michigan, 1103.
 Saint Louis, 1200.
 Southern Illinois, 1152.
 Southern Michigan and Northern Indiana, 669.
 Southern Nebraska, 1124.
 Spring River, 574.
 Western Montana, 814.

How Much Do You Love the Church?

By Harley A. Morris

The Sunday school teacher who asked the question, "How much do you love the church?"—I wonder if he really realized the full importance of that query. I did not answer before the class. If anyone else answered, I didn't hear him. I took the question home with me. Again and again I asked myself the question; and finally I found myself confronted with other questions equally insistent for an answer. Is it essential to love this church? Any church? I analyzed the matter. I said to myself: "What is this thing we call the church? Where did it begin, and where will it end?"

That the church is of definite importance is evident from the fact that Christ selected it as a means of working out his plans for humanity. Let us not forget this fact—Christ set his stamp of approval upon the church—outlined a definite organization, appointed necessary officers and indicated a positive program of procedure. He gathered those who accepted his plan into this organization, bestowing upon it definite authority, giving to some of its officers sacred power to bind or to loose. It is thus that the church has become the representative of Christ—taking his name to minister to humanity in his stead.

But to what purpose is all this? Why these officers? Why the complex organization? Why priesthood authority? Are these things ends in themselves, and this authority a token of ill-concealed favoritism? Such thoughts are indeed unworthy. Paul's explanation is much better. He declares that this organization is "for the perfecting of the saints." The church is only a means toward definite results, and through it God makes possible for man an evolution to higher levels, the experiences of which are beyond the conception of man in his present state. Men are so self-centered that they can not see the trail that leads upward. Unconscious of their surroundings they even miss the beauties that crowd the roadside. God wishes them to appreciate the splendors of lofty thoughts, noble acts, and unselfish affections. He can not force men to these endeavors, for coercion would rob them of their glory, so He sent Christ, and Christ has given mankind the church.

Man must be helped to outgrow his carnal nature—he needs to be coaxed into sampling the joys of righteousness—to this task Christ pledged the church. If man were in no need of this coaxing (call it teaching if you will) then he would have no need of the church. I think it is not too daring to say that when man shall have reached the fulfillment of the laws of brotherhood, there will be no church.

Let us get this thought clearly: The church is an organization with a purpose—merely a tool in the hands of God to work out his plan. It is a tool fashioned by him for the task before him and hence becomes not merely a tool, but the tool with which he would work. And now I wonder: What should be my attitude to the church? As God's divine plan it merits my respect, certainly. Shall I, then, go into raptures over its well-appointed offices, its doctrines and intricate system? Is there any danger of loving the organization of the church too much? Let me assure you that there is such a grave danger. History teems with incidents wherein people have so revered the institution that they have forgotten about God. Ancient Israel was constantly torn between two loyalties. Again and again God thundered to them the question: "Which will ye follow, the prophet or the priest?" How much do I love the church? More than I should? Am I being attracted by the institution and the display? Have I forgotten that the church is just the tool with which God reaches men's hearts? How much do you love the church?

What should be my attitude to the church? Because of the classic examples of the past shall I be distrustful of the church? Shall I subject her officers to suspicion and her creeds to unjust censor? Such action would be harmful in the extreme, negative, and of no value. Remember, the church is neither your idea nor mine. It is God's plan, perfect in its organization and functions. Furthermore, any unjust criticism which we as members hurl against the church becomes a boomerang against ourselves. When we permitted the waters of baptism to close over us we accepted God's plan as our plan. In effect we made public statement of our love for mankind and avowed an intention to use the church as our agent to make brotherly love universal.

"How much do I love the church?" Some one has said that the extent to which I give proportionately of my material things to the church measures my love for it. I do not question that statement, nor do I defend it. I do say that if I think no farther than the church when I mail my tithes and offerings to the bishop, so far as I am concerned the church has failed of its purpose regardless of how large may be my contribution. Unless I can vision a needy world, and, aflame with zealous compassion, give of my store to relieve its suffering; unless I can be so consumed with the missionary spirit that I want to help send others the good news, I had better keep my offerings to myself, for although they may take salvation to some, they become a condemnation to me. But if I do seek my brother's welfare, then the church becomes my agent, its officers are my representatives, its organization is mine to use. With this conception of the church in mind, I can pledge my whole-hearted loyalty to it. If the church means something else to me, it would be much better if I were asked, "How much do you love your fellow men?"

A Japanese Christian Speaks

Christians are self-satisfied. They are too content with the status quo. They are not seeking something better with deep desire. God is seeking the world, but we Christians are praying in very small terms. We pray, "God, give me my dinner"! "Let me travel in safety," "be prosperous," "have good children," "let my church prosper"! But God sees the world at war, millions of unemployed, delinquents on the increase, men and women going to prison!

How many of us are praying for China—China, that has been in the agonies of revolution for eighteen years? Or for Russia? "Too big," you say? "But did You not make the world?" Challenge God in that way, and plead for China and for Russia. Open the book of Isaiah and read the prophet's prayers there. Why do you not lay hold on the Spirit of God and pray from his point of view?

Why be content merely to pray in a small way for the church to become self-supporting, when there are twelve thousand villages in Japan unevangelized; and only two hundred and fifty thousand Christians among seventy millions of population? Have you been praying for the present Communist Movement in Japan? Jesus died on the cross for us. The consciousness of redemption gives us responsibility for the worst and lowest human being. Ask, seek, and knock, and your Father in heaven will give you the Holy Spirit.—Toyohiko Kagawa, in "Living in the Power of the Holy Spirit," Federal Council Bulletin, March, 1931.

Letters to the Editor

Laments Growing Worldliness

Replying to your request, I will write and submit a few items for your consideration relative to the charge of the writer of the "unsigned letter." I believe as a people we are letting the things of the world come into our lives and into the church more and more. According to statistics we number around 110,000. The records of the Bishop's office show that in any year no more than seventeen thousand members have contributed financial support. What about the other 93,000?—sleeping? . . . In 1930 a young man was ordained to the office of priest. The following winter he attended several card parties and as a climax gave a party and dance in his own house. This winter he is attending card parties and dances and I learn that he has mastered the art of swearing. Last summer my husband and I attended a local union Sunday school at the home of a Latter Day Saint. Upon arrival an elder from an adjoining city announced that he would preach. His discourse text was, "Behold, the Savior is knocking at your door," and he gave good instruction and advice. After the service he was in the yard with bat and ball with others having a good ball game while the Latter Day Saint host was interested in a horse shoe game. The Saints can dance, and play cards as well as any. They have a record as well as those of the world—mortgage and notes and bankruptcy. Are we sleeping? I, with Brother Luff, must say, "To your knees, O Israel."

FLORENCE GOULDSMITH.