

SAINTS' HERALD

Volume 105 / Number 1 / January 6, 1958

JANUARY • 1958

SUNDAY	MONDAY	TUESDAY	WEDNESDAY	THURSDAY	FRIDAY	SATURDAY
1 Christ With Mary and Martha.—What a treasured privilege it must have been for Mary and Martha and their brother Lazarus to have Christ as a guest in their humble Bethany home. Here Martha is busily preparing a meal for Jesus, while Mary sits with Him, intent on what He is saying. When Martha insisted that Mary help her prepare, Christ reproved her. "But one thing is needful and chosen that good part" (Luke 10:42). In effect, Martha that she should not worry so much about her body when by doing so she neglected to feed her's	2 NEW YEAR PRAYER MEETING TEXTS AND LESSONS	3	4 MEMORY SELECTION He is the head of the body, the church, which is the beginning, the firstborn from the dead. Col. 1:18	5 THE CHURCH'S ONE FOUNDATION Devotional Reading: 1 Cor. 3:11 Lesson: Matt. 16:13-19; Eph. 2:19-22 Full Moon	6 Behold with every man.	10 Behold and my great power when the Holy Spirit has come upon you. Acts 1:8
12 THE SOURCE OF THE CHURCH'S POWER Devotional Reading: 1 Cor. 2:6-16 Lesson: Acts 1:4-8, 2:1-11 Last Quarter	13 They eat and drink any good thing.	18 MEMORY SELECTION Be kind to one another, tenderhearted, forgiving one another, as God in Christ forgave you. Eph. 4:32	19 FELLOWSHIP OF THE CHURCH Devotional Reading: Gal. 3:14-16 Lesson: Acts 2:42-47; Rom. 15:1-8a New Moon	20 Things even shall hear a word behind thee saying, "This is the way." Is. 55:31	24 By the obedience of one shall many be made righteous. Rom. 5:13	25 MEMORY SELECTION Feed the church of the Lord which he obtained with his own blood. Acts 20:28
26 ORGANIZATION OF THE CHURCH Devotional Reading: 1 Peter 5:1-11 Lesson: Rom. 12:3-8; 1 Tim. 3:1-10 First Quarter	27 Rejoice in the Lord always, and again I say, Rejoice. Phil. 4:4	31 Ye cannot drink of the cup of life, the cup of devils. 1 Cor. 10:21	30 PRAYER MEETING TEXTS AND LESSONS The Wednesday Prayer Meeting Texts for this year are thought-provoking questions taken from the Bible.	31 Know ye, of that the unrighteous shall not inherit the kingdom of God? 1 Cor. 6:9	31 The Lord is my defence, and my God is the rock of my refuge. Ps. 54:22	31 Every man shall receive his own reward according to his own labour. 1 Cor. 3:8

Photo by Keith B. Stokes

This electronic publication has been made with the express approval of the original copyright holder

Gerald Resch (left of center), chairman of the Independence group, and Roy Beck (center), chairman of the network council, discuss plans for the organization with five young "hams."

Radio Operators Organize

GROUNDWORK for a world-wide network of amateur radio operators was laid recently when a group of radio "hams" organized in Independence.

Gerald Resch is serving as chairman of the local group of more than fifty amateur radio enthusiasts. A central organization committee consisting of Roy Beck, chairman, Ed Larson, and Harley Morris, is attempting to make contact with other church people interested in amateur radio.

The tentative program is to set up a network schedule between operators in Zion and amateurs throughout the world. Time and wave lengths will be assigned licensed operators in the Independence club so that the city can be contacted regularly by anyone seeking network communication.

The project was begun as a means of improving communication between church people, especially scattered members. Possible uses for a radio network:

1. Communication between parents and children in Graceland and other colleges.
2. Contact between members of the Committee on Ministry to College People and campus leaders.
3. Communication from the Apostle to scattered Saints, and nonresident pastors and their respective people.
4. Emergency and casual contact between appointees and families from whom they are separated.
5. Contact with missions abroad.
6. Visits between Saints in America and their relatives and friends in foreign lands.

In addition to these services to church members and the general fellowship between radio amateurs and others of similar interests, the network would also be available for emergency communication by Civil Defense and other governmental agencies.

On the local scene, a group of specialists in radio have made their services available to the club to train other interested persons to the point of obtaining their general class licenses. Included in this group are Walter T. Stevenson and Frank Barwise, electronic engineers, and a number of other persons with professional status in the field of radio.

A suitable name is being sought for the network. Local clubs will be encouraged to organize and affiliate with the general network.

Those wishing to contact the network committee may do so by writing Roy Beck, Atherton and Courtney Roads, Independence, Missouri. Meetings are held each Saturday at 7:30 p.m., in the Stone Church Education Building in Independence.

Authors in This Issue

- E. Roy Glomstad (page 5), elder, Seattle, Washington
 Alma C. Andrews (page 10), president of Eastern Nebraska District
 Roger Yarrington (page 8), assistant editor, Herald
 Elbert A. Smith, (page 9), Presiding Patriarch
 Madeline Hinkle (page 11), secretary, Beckley Mission
 Roy A. Cheville (page 12), Director of Religious Activities at Graceland
 Irene Butler Sorden (page 14), Independence, Missouri
-

Cover Picture

Peter Allen Petentler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Pete Petentler of Independence, Missouri, happily posed as the Herald's calendar boy of the year.

Offerings of the New Year

THE PEOPLE of the church may wonder, as they face the prospects of the New Year, what it will bring. Some anxieties are bound to be present in our minds as we think of the future, and as we attempt to prepare ourselves for such emergencies as may come. It is important for us as a church to keep in mind our strength and our securities as well as the problems and difficulties ahead of us.

We turn our thoughts to God for guidance, and we acknowledge with gratitude that he hears our prayers and gives us such help as is commensurate with divine love and wisdom. At the same time, Divinity has placed responsibilities upon each to think and act in our own behalf. This is in harmony with the eternal plan for our welfare.

With the New Year in mind, we study the trend of events. We study history for indications of the long, slow development of human progress. We study the word of God, the prophecies, and our own spiritual light. From these studies we seek to chart a way that can be safely followed through the often confusing currents of thought, opinion, conditions, and events in the world.

In the New Year of 1958, people may wonder, Will this year give us more of the same that we have experienced in the past? Or will it give us something new and different? Seeking to base our answer upon what we have learned, we may accept the probability that there will be some of both.

As the world moves, something old is always dying and disappearing, and something new is always taking its place. But the main content of our stream of life remains true to abiding principles and laws. The character of human nature changes slowly, in so far as it can be said to change at all. We can know that certain things will be with us.

THERE will be problems. We may be sure of this. There will be problems in human relationships, in international affairs, in our country, in the church, in congregations, in families, and among individuals. We must meet them, and they will not be easy to solve, while for some of them we may not find solutions in our lifetime, because people are not often willing or able to change or be improved. Therefore they continue to suffer.

There will be dangers. There will be dangers growing out of human greed, ambition, selfishness, sin, and cruelty in all ranks of society and in all of our affairs.

There will be troubles. There will be troubles that grow out of our human failings and shortcomings. We may wonder why God permits us to be vexed and frustrated by these difficulties. We may not be able to understand that our worst troubles develop out of the wrong ideas, desires, and purposes in the soil of the human mind and heart.

Yet there is hope, for there will be opportunities. There will be opportunities for learning, for growth, for development, for the maturing processes that should come from experience, reflection, ideals, and purposes. There will be times of achievement and victory, in which purposes and objectives will be won that will put us forward on the pathway toward our goals.

OPPORTUNITIES will come to the church and its people to present the ideals of Christ, and the possibilities that await the people when they are ready to accept their obligations under God. Opportunities to do good, opportunities to win friends, and opportunities to present the gospel in a favorable way will open to us at times and in places where we cannot always anticipate them. It behooves us to be ready to move when such conditions are presented to us.

In the coming year it is most important that we should continue to engage our greatest powers upon one of our main projects: the creation of a fellowship of godly people. With such a people, the foundations of the kingdom of God can be laid in the present life and human relationships. Without such a people, the finest plans that could be formulated could not succeed.

In this New Year, we should look forward with hope with confidence in the powers that God has given us, and with faith and trust in his love, his power, and his mercy, which will guide us safely in the future.

May the blessings of the Almighty be with all our people and sustain them in their work and service during this year.

THE FIRST PRESIDENCY

Official

Regional College Student Conferences

The following tentative dates for regional college student conferences as so far scheduled have been submitted by the Committee on Ministry to College People and concurred in by the apostle concerned in the hope that all university students who are within reach of any one of these conferences will be encouraged to attend and participate. The first conference of the year was held at Toronto on November 2-3. Additional conferences are expected to be announced later.

DATE	HOST SCHOOL	CONFERENCE CHAIRMAN
1. January 25, 26	Alabama State Teachers College	Joe Sellers, 1112 North Three Notch, Troy, Alabama
2. February 22, 23	Ohio State University	E. E. Smith, 280 Torrence Road, Columbus 14, Ohio
3. February 22, 23	University of Iowa	Junia Braby, 717 Iowa Avenue, Iowa City, Iowa
4. April 5, 6	University of Missouri	John Yohe, 1213 University, Columbia, Missouri
5. April 19, 20	Oklahoma State University	Alan Kelley, 224 North Quannah, Tulsa, Oklahoma
6. April 26, 27	University of Kansas	Glen Price, 1729 Massachusetts Avenue, Lawrence, Kansas
7. May 3, 4	San Jose State	Ruth Bradley, 821 Plaza Drive San Jose, California

Across the Desk

OF THE FIRST PRESIDENCY

The following letter was received recently from Seventy A. M. Pelle-tier, Jr., reporting a missionary effort in the Montana District:

We bring this report from our Montana endeavors with a great deal of satisfaction for having had the opportunity to work among these fine western people and for the rich degree of the Holy Spirit which accompanied these efforts.

We had the period of November 6 to 9 to prepare advertising, working committees, and an institute in evangelism, all directed toward this Deer Lodge-Anaconda Crusade. November 24 to December 8 we held our two weeks' preaching endeavor there, speaking every night except Saturdays. A fifteen-minute hymn service introduced every meeting quite effectively.

The Zion's Leaguers, under the direction of Leonard Eliason and Louis Staton, distributed seven hundred and fifty folders and one hundred posters for store windows in both of these communities. This was a splendid piece of work. The women phoned everyone in the phone book and left a personal invitation for all to attend. We also had some excellent newspaper coverage in Butte as well as in the Deer Lodge paper. All this advertising contributed very much to the success of this endeavor.

Many workers were engaged in this project. We had committees which involved fourteen specific assignments as well as all their helpers. We also held a children's crusade on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons for the two weeks. This involved the seven- to twelve-year-olds and helped a great deal to get the youngsters engaged in the work.

A total of sixty nonmembers, seventy-five Deer Lodge members, and forty Anaconda members attended some of the meetings to give us a complete total of one hundred and seventy-five different people who attended in the two weeks. Six were baptized at the end of the endeavor. Harvey Eliason has the names of all the nonmembers for follow-up so a number of baptisms should take place in the weeks that follow.

It was a pleasure and rich experience to be able to share with a man like Harvey Eliason and his fine workers. I would be happy to return there any time.

From Apostle Roscoe Davey, Drummoyne, New South Wales:

I do not know whether the terrific "bush" fires we have been having in the State of New South Wales has been given any publicity in the American papers or not, but they have been most devastating, the worst in the history of Australia. Hundreds of homes, about a dozen churches, and whole business blocks have burned. Several people have lost their lives, and others have been severely burned. Thousands of head of cattle and sheep have perished also.

One of these fires, with a high wind, swept through our Tiona Reunion grounds, and it is nothing short of divine providence that we have a single thing left. Our loss was only minor, and it is adequately covered by insurance. However, there will be considerable inconvenience in holding the reunion, which will go on as scheduled. The beautiful palm grove along the lake was completely burned out and the Green Cathedral with it. However, it is believed that the palms, which now look like burned matchsticks sticking up in the air, will survive and in a few years be as beautiful as ever. The stage building, the dining hall, and the service building (where so much camping gear is stored) caught fire, but were saved with little damage. Quite a few window glasses were broken by the intense heat. Altogether the estimated loss runs about £1,200.

With the relocation of the activities that were held down in the palm grove it is believed the reunion can be held without too much difficulty.

The Saints' Herald

Vol. 105 January 6, 1957 No. 1

EDITORS: The First Presidency: Israel A. Smith, F. Henry Edwards, W. Wallace Smith. ASSISTANTS: Chris B. Hartshorn, Managing Editor; Naomi Russell, Assistant Editor; Paul A. Wellington, Assistant Editor; Roger Yarrington, Assistant Editor; Audrey Stub-

bart, Copy Editor; and Leonard J. Lea, Contributing Editor. BUSINESS MANAGER, Kenneth L. Graham.

The Saints' Herald is the official publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, with headquarters at The Auditorium, Independence, Missouri, and is issued through the offices of Herald Publishing House, 103 South Osage Street, Independence, Missouri.

Herald editors are not responsible for the views and opinions expressed in articles or communications other than those of editorial authorship.

Entered as second-class matter at the post office at Independence, Missouri, under Act of March 3, 1879. Issued weekly at Independence, Missouri, except daily during the biennial General Conference. Price, $4.00 per year in advance in the U.S.A., its territories and possessions; Canada, $4.25 per year; other countries, $5.00 per year. Notice of a change of address must be given three weeks ahead of the date that it is to become effective. Accepted for mailing at the special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917, authorized July 21, 1921. Printed in the United States of America.

Wind in the Boughs

*A formula for making 1958
a better year*

Keith B. Stokes photo

The wind bloweth where it listeth, . . . so is every one who is born of the Spirit.—John 3: 8.

ANOTHER YEAR has just ended! Some people would place a period after it. It is finished—this old year of 1957. Others would put an exclamation point after it, saying—“What a year!” But still others, in retrospect, would put a question mark after it, asking quietly, “Was it really a good year in my life?” Newscasters and editors look back into yesterday and then ahead into tomorrow with their predictions, aware that life has both a past tense and an undiscernible future tense about it. Beyond this, we recall a wise man’s comment, “And hardly do we divine the things that are on earth. And the things that are close at hand, we find with labor. But the things that are in the heavens, whoever yet traced them out?”

One New Year’s Day morning several years ago I walked down the main street of a small midwestern town and into its central park. In the debris left from the New Year’s Eve celebration of the night before were restless pages of newspapers whirling about in the stiff cold breeze. Their bold headlines screamed out the events of yesterday. But on the morning after, the news they carried was stale and almost forgotten. As I walked on into the park, I could hear the wind, clear as a flute, whistling in the boughs of the trees, now leafless but oddly beautiful in their angular, gnarled development. Great gusts of wind continued to carry along the debris of the day before, depositing an unwanted portion of it with rollicking decision at my feet.

What seemed most real to me on that bright, crisp New Year’s morning was not the debris but the sound of the wind in the boughs. It was there as if by happy contrast, inviting and beckoning. And then familiar words came to mind: “The wind bloweth where it listeth, and thou hearest the sound thereof, but canst not tell whence it cometh, and whither it goeth; so is every one who is born of the Spirit.” These words of Jesus were spoken to a man who wanted to make a new beginning, a man who wanted a new year in his heart, a worthier path to follow along the thoroughfare of life. His name was Nicodemus . . . a greathearted man, easily admired, and yet a man who by his own admission lacked something and knew it in his heart.

NICODEMUS has a universal appeal because we can easily see ourselves in a similar situation. Is there anyone who does not, at least on occasion, want to make some new beginning, grope for something higher, hear the wind in the boughs, and then lift his eyes above the debris-cluttered streets? Once we all had that desire in our hearts—at the water’s edge. “No one seems to sit alone with fortune-full content.” He who does so belongs more in a mortuary than in a sanctuary. So let us rejoice in the fact that we have a new year to begin, and that it is human nature and divine nature to look ahead, seeking, searching, laboring, hoping, sharing, praying for that better, fuller, worthier tomorrow when Zion shall have been established.

BUT BACK AGAIN to this story in which Nicodemus appeared. It is one of those front-page incidents, impressive from the start. The first thing that strikes us is that Nicodemus kept an open mind. He came to Jesus not so much to tell him something as to learn something. He was a leader of the Pharisees and a ruler of the Jews, but his position had not gone to his head. He had somehow managed to preserve an open-mindedness that opened wide the windows of his heart and mind to God's sunshine and free air. While his colleagues were muttering their irritated resentment at this impudent intruder, this ignorant upstart from around Galilee with his strange ways and desires, his questionable teachings, and his utter disregard for authority, Nicodemus was at least willing to give Christ a hearing. This is a significant sign of greatness. He is not like the brothers of the three monkeys who—instead of desiring to see no evil, speak no evil, hear no evil—see, speak, and hear no good.

To be sure, Nicodemus was a cautious fellow. He came to Jesus by night. What would friends and neighbors say if they should see him there? Nicodemus was prominent . . . he moved in the best circles . . . others might not understand if they should see him openly coming and going and talking with this man Jesus of Nazareth. Many a person is less a person than he wants to be, simply because of the fear of being thought different. It is tragic when an individual never has an idea or mind of his own but looks about to find out which is the popular side—which way the wind of majority opinion is blowing. A great deal of courage is necessary in personal dignity and individual decision.

Yet the admirable thing about Nicodemus is that even though he was cautious and fearful of social pressure, he nonetheless did what he knew in his heart was the right thing to do. Even though he came at night, a start of some kind was better than no start at all. Though he came to Jesus first shielded in the shadows of darkness, later he stood out openly, not caring what others might say, giving one hundred pounds' weight of myrrh and aloes in preparing the body of his Lord for burial.

ON that first interview Jesus brought Nicodemus face-to-face with a central fact of life. If Nicodemus really wanted to start over again, really wanted to make a new beginning, he would have to do more than tinker with last year's model of himself. He might have the best intentions in the world. He might have figured out very carefully just what he wanted the new year to be like, and then as the new year came around never really get the motor warmed up or the wheels of self off the ground. Jesus told Nicodemus that what was required first of all was a new kind of being.

F O R 1 9 5 8

If you can make each day a little better than the last,

If you can meet the future undisturbed by what is past,

If you can give out sunshine when the sky is overcast—

You'll have a
H A P P Y N E W Y E A R

from "San Francisco Bay District News"

If you really want to be different, then start out by letting God do something about making you different—heart, mind, and soul. It was the Psalmist's teaching brought up-to-date: "Create in me a clean heart, O God, and renew a right spirit within me." A lot of New Year's resolutions have been made for 1958 and already broken, simply because of people trying to make themselves better, all by themselves . . . people plunging into New Year's resolutions and endeavors with all the determination in the world, vowing that they are going to be different if it kills them, and then getting nowhere, dropping back into old ruts, doing the same old things, fizzling out and falling to the ground as quickly as ten-cent skyrockets.

Yes, most of us won't have a great measure of success with our resolutions at the turn of the year or at any time until a new revolution takes place deep down inside of us. Christianity—where it is vital—shapes us, changes us, is a revolutionary thing. It possesses us only after we consult and work with God!

ONCE A MOTHER was trying to reason with her young son about the importance of keeping clean with soap and water. "Surely," she said, "you want to be a clean boy, don't you?" Replying tearfully he said, "Yes, but why can't you dust me?" That was a good question, and it deserved a well-thought-out answer. We dust floors, furniture, clothes . . . why not dust ourselves or be dusted? Why not simply swish the dirt around a bit and let it settle down elsewhere? But dusting just wouldn't bring about the desired results. Dust and dirt get deep into pores of the skin, so deep it takes soap and water to cleanse it. And then too, dust gets in our eyes and sometimes we are a little blinded so that our way is not clear. Mother reasoned well.

Jesus said the same thing almost literally: "Truly unless one is born of water and the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God. That which is born of flesh is flesh, and that which is born of Spirit is Spirit. Do not marvel that I have said unto you that you must be born again." It was not a new physical birth Jesus was talking about, but a new spiritual birth . . . a new awakening to the things of God and Jesus Christ . . . a newness of the fact that it is always in him that we live and move and have our being. It is becoming reconciled to God. It is overcoming any hostility to God. It is conquering the feeling of being rejected and alone. It is entering into a new and closer relationship—a firm partnership with God. It is to stop trying to remake ourselves all by ourselves. It is to rest back on God and let him have a hand in it, too. A new year in our lives need never be a museum of natural history through which we walk among skeletons and relics and dead hopes and dreams of the past. A new year is new because it holds opportunities for all of us!

Somewhere I read this lovely story of a little girl watching her mother working among the flowers in the garden. "Mother," she said, "I know why flowers grow—they want to get up out of the dirt and be closer to God." It was a splendid thought. At any rate, in order for flowers to grow up and out of the dirt they need not only human care but also divine assistance . . . sun and wind and moisture from above. No, it's not that a lot of us don't try to keep those New Year's resolutions; it's that we fail and can't help failing when we try to do it all by ourselves. There must be a partnership with God.

NICODEMUS, it would seem, was an old man when he came to Jesus. Years had come and gone—more than he could remember—yet he had not lost heart, had not given up hope. Indeed, a new beginning had now come to mean more to him than ever before. He wanted it more now in the sunset years of his life than he thought he ever needed it in those earlier years of his youth and successes. But now he was an old man. Was there still hope for him? Could he have a new chance, a new beginning? Of

EIGHTIETH BIRTHDAY

Paul M. Hanson becomes an octogenarian on January 8. In addition to being president of the Council of Twelve, he holds an all-time record of forty-five years continuous membership in the Council (next April).
He has served as president of the Council since 1934.

course he could! Christ did not turn him away.

How often the word "new" appears in the gospel—Jesus brings a "new" covenant, a "new" testament, a "new" faith. The disciples received a "new" name, they sang a "new" song, their home is to be a "new" Jerusalem. Man is to have a "new" heart, a "new" nature. He is to be a "new" creature through Jesus Christ.

How is this to be done? "The wind bloweth where it listeth, and thou hearest the sound thereof, but canst not tell whence it cometh, and whither it goeth . . ." In this, Jesus would seem to be saying, almost bluntly, "You want to know too much, Nicodemus. There are things not given to mortal man to understand, things of God above and beyond human comprehension." Still, that is true even in common things.

A bird's wing, I am told, has over a million different parts. Scientists say a feather is one of the most perfect structures in the whole world. It helps the bird to fly and preserves the heat of its body. Each part has delicate shape and texture, miraculously attached to the next. Thousands of cells give it strength and elasticity. A feather weighs almost nothing, and yet when the wind strikes it the air does not go through it. It bends but does not break. Feathers are adjusted so that a bird flies with little energy, and rain does not soak through the feathers. Man builds great floating bridges, skyscrapers, and planes; but he cannot build a feather nor produce the intellectual achievement involved in one. All about us is much that is mysterious, awesome, and the hand of God is in the shaping of it.

IN THIS MANNER let us approach the New Year and enter into its days . . . let us lift up heads and hearts . . . let us go forth to make this new year a better, worthier year. And let us do this not by ourselves but with the help of God and our Savior, Jesus the Christ. His wisdom understands us. His love shepherds us. His strength assists us. His mercy forgives us. ". . . so is every one who is born of the Spirit."

The way for all Saints to enter this New Year is To praise our God with a burst of song . . .

To recall the right and forgive the wrong;
To forget the things that bind us fast
To the vain regrets of the year that's past.

Listen . . . hear . . . heed the wind in the boughs!

Melvin Fowler, Curator of Anthropology,
Illinois State Museum

Archaeological Find Near St. Louis

A FEW YEARS ago a road maintenance crew dug away some eight feet of soil beside a bluff overlooking the Mississippi River in Randolph County, south of St. Louis, Missouri. The workers discovered some bones and arrowheads in their digging.

In 1952 an archaeologist from Southern Illinois University Museum brought the site to the attention of Melvin L. Fowler, an archaeologist from the Illinois State Museum and an elder in the church. At the time Brother Fowler was directing some research near by.

During the rest of the summer Brother Fowler and his research crew worked in the cover of the overhanging bluffs whenever rain or bad weather stopped their other research. They named their new site the "Modoc Rock Shelter." The things they uncovered there brought forth important new information concerning the prehistoric periods of the eastern United States.

The Modoc Shelter and its finding were featured in the October, 1957, issue of Natural History. The author of the article, Dr. Thorne Deuel, points out that carbon 14 testings of materials taken from the site show occupancy by man as early as 7922 B.C.

The Illinois State Museum field party excavating the Modoc Rock Shelter in the summer of 1955

"This lowest C14 date is of importance to the archaeological reconstruction of man's early history in the New World, for it unexpectedly pushes archaic culture in the eastern United States well back in time" (previously many archaeologists believed archaic culture did not go back further than 3,000 - 4,000 years in the United States).

As director of the Modoc Rock Shelter excavation, Brother Fowler has received a good deal of professional recognition. He has also gained much recognition through his writings for learned journals in his field. He is a member of the Society for American Archaeology, assistant editor for the Northern Mississippi Valley of American Antiquity, a fellow of the American Anthropological Association, and a member of the executive committee of the Society for Archaeological Research for the church.

At present Brother Fowler is curator of anthropology at the Illinois State Museum in Springfield, Illinois. He has held that position since 1949.

He attended Graceland College and was graduated from Purdue University in 1946. He did graduate work at the University of Chicago and received his Master's degree there.

In 1948 he was married to Dorothy M. Mills. They have two children, Michael, eight, and Erika Jae, seven.

Brother Fowler said, "My interest and conviction toward serving the church stems from the testimony of my parents, Mr. and Mrs. George L. Fowler, and the early training in the church that they gave me. As a boy I attended reunion in Woodbine, Iowa, for several summers. It was at one of these reunions that I heard Ammon White preach. His message stirred me and has given direction to my life."

Elder Fowler is a member of the Springfield Branch and has served as pastor there for five years.

The beginning of the 1956 excavation at the Modoc Rock Shelter by the Illinois State Museum

Elbert A. Smith

Rendering an Acceptable Ministry

*A Strong Kind
and Wise Ministry*

ADMINISTRATIVE officers in particular have a taxing ministry that challenges them to give of their best. They have to deal with all sorts of people and give advice and counsel and make decisions in all sorts of matters. Often their best advice is ignored. To continue in good spirits to render a kind and strong and wise ministry is a challenge to them to say and do the right things and, over and above all that, to be the right sort of persons to minister in the name of and for our Lord and Master.

A weak man thus challenged may fumble in his ministry. A strong man may become a dictator—abrupt and harsh in his rulings and decisions. Let us not forget that Jesus himself had a persuasive ministry. He said, "Come and follow me."

It is well written in modern revelation, "No one can assist in this work, except he shall be humble and full of love, having faith, hope, and charity" (Doctrine and Covenants 11: 4).

A Sustained Ministry

In his day Paul lamented that some "ran well for a season" and then were no more to be depended upon. We have had that trouble in our day. We have had men of great promise, able and brilliant men, who ran only for a season. Some were tempted and fell into transgression. Some became offended over trivial matters. Some just lost interest. Some of these losses were heartbreaking, particularly when there was transgression and a minister had to be silenced and perhaps expelled from the church. Better had they died honorably at their task.

One of our apostles of distinction used to urge young men under his direction, "Gird yourselves for the long haul." In his youth he had sometimes been a teamster. Our ministry should not be for a day or a year but for life. We used to sing "We have all for life enlisted."

Edwin Markham eulogized Abraham Lincoln in these words, "He held the long purpose like a growing tree." How fine is a ministry of that type—one that is always dependable, that grows and endures.

The minister may on occasion in prayer or preaching meeting, or in private conversation, bear a fine testimony to this latter-day work. But the finest testimony he can ever bear is to be the sort of person of whom it may be written that in him "the word became flesh and dwelt among men, full of grace and truth."

A United Ministry

Paul wrote, "We are workers together with God." Paul could say a lot in a few words, and I never knew just where to put the most emphasis in this brief sentence—We are workers—We are workers together—We are workers together with God. As ministers called and ordained to serve God and represent the church we must be united or our ministry will not be approved.

I am persuaded that there are no two men of the priesthood who cannot work together amicably if they try and if they take their ministry seriously.

In years gone by there were two men in the Quorum of Twelve Apostles who were always in disagreement. They were brilliant and able men to an extraordinary degree. But they were entirely different in temperament, background, and culture. They always "rubbed each other the wrong way." But one time I persuaded them to undertake a common project together in the ministry. Working together thus for a rather short time they suddenly came to understand and appreciate each other. They worked together harmoniously from then on. The two men were John W. Rushton and John F. Garver. Those who knew and remember those two men will appreciate the force of the illustration. I was confirmed in my belief that really there are no two men in our ministry who cannot work together if they endeavor to do so in the spirit that becomes their calling and ministry.

In conclusion may I refer to the Lord's last prayer before he went out to the garden of Gethsemane on his way to the cross. Three times in that prayer he prayed that his apostles might be one as he and his Father are one. That was the burden of his desire for his ministry—unity. Today no less than then his desire is that his ministers shall work unitedly. It can be done. I know of no more ironic tragedy than the thing that happens when a branch of the church, small or large, is torn asunder by the contentions of ordained men whose work it was to feed and unite the flock—to set an example. In a long ministry I have seen too many such tragedies.

On the other hand how beautiful it is to see members of the priesthood working harmoniously together. And by way of encouragement I believe that such a situation is more common today than in past years. May God bless all of them.

Alma C. Andrews

When I was just four hours old, the elders of the church gave to me the blessing properly given to infants. With this was a prophecy that I would become a minister for Christ and would carry the gospel to lands abroad. I grew up with this message from God being repeated to me by my parents.

My appointment to serve as a representative of the church in the British Isles Mission led to fulfillment of this oft-repeated prophecy. As I was privileged to preach and teach the gospel several times, in almost every large city in the British Isles, my effort was often accompanied and augmented by the same Spirit of God which foretold at the very beginning this part of my life.

Much of the joy which was mine in this great land where we have such fine members of the restored church, the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, was accompanied by open testimony that my being with them had been foreseen from afar. It had been the expectation of my whole life, and I felt the wonderful hand of God in its fulfillment. Eternity will tell the story of some of the results of God's choosing humble clay to put forth his purposes.

I Had an Experience

Members of the congregation helped to saw lumber for the church building

ABOUT 1900 the restored gospel was first preached in the area by Elder Housten Godby. As a result of his efforts, Susan Holt requested baptism, but circumstances prevented this ordinance being performed.

It wasn't until some twenty years later, when Seventy J. C. McConaughy brought the gospel as a missionary, that Mrs. Holt, among others, was baptized.

Between 1925 and 1946, a few ministers under church appointment preached in the area. However, much of the spiritual advisement was given by Elder Wayne Wilson who worked near Charleston and visited in Beckley as often as possible.

In 1946 a church school was organized, and the group met in homes.

On October 30, 1948, the mission was organized with the West Virginia District president, Robert E. Rodgers, in charge, assisted by counselors Samuel M. Zonker and Wayne Wilson. The enrollment at that time was fifteen members. Also at this meeting Leonard Pack was ordained to the office of priest and subsequently was appointed pastor of the mission.

In October, 1951, plans were set in motion to secure a church lot.

The cost of $1100.00 was paid in full in seven months.

The congregation immediately set about erecting a house of worship. Everybody pitched in to make dreams come true. The women had bazaars, bake sales, and rummage sales. A stand of timber was granted by a member of the congregation, and the men worked together to cut and saw it, thus providing much of the lumber used in the building.

On August 4, 1952, ground was broken for the erection of the church. The mission secured a loan from the Houses of Worship fund. The loan, combined with the material and labor contributed, caused the dreams of the faithful few to become a reality.

On May 23, 1953, consecration services were held. President I. A. Smith, Bishop G. L. DeLapp, Apostle D. T. Williams, Seventy James Menzies, and members of the West Virginia district presidency were present. President Smith delivered the consecration sermon.

In the fall of 1953 Elder Pack moved from Beckley, and Elder Hubert Hinkle was appointed pastor. He still serves in that capacity. The present enrollment of the mission is thirty-four. Among this number are children, grandchildren,

Dedication of Beckley West Virginia Mission and great-grandchildren of the first convert, Mrs. Holt.

The group continued to pray and work together, thus making it possible to pay for the building in full by January 28, 1957.

On July 13-14, 1957, dedication services were held. Apostle Arthur A. Oakman delivered the sermon of dedication. Presiding at the service was Elder Otto Melcher, district president from Wellsburg, assisted by Evangelist Samuel M. Zonker, also of Wellsburg; Elder C. S. Rice, Parkersburg; Elder J. M. Curtis, church appointee to West Virginia; and Brother Hinkle. There were eighty in attendance.

MADELINE HINKLE

JANUARY 6, 1958

(11) 11

As I HAVE READ the accounts of early Christian martyrs, I have pictured how exciting it would be to stand before a Roman tribunal and make reply to the question "Caesar or Christ?" Upon my sworn testimony would hang the future of my life. In lesser degree I have sensed the drama of standing in a crowded courtroom with some great question involved, raising my hand to swear I would tell the truth and nothing but the truth. In some courts the Bible would be under my hand to add strength to my oath. To bring it closer to our movement, I can reconstruct in vision those earlier days of persecution when I might have been required to answer the question, "Are you a Mormon?" In some instances it would have taken courage to bear forthright testimony.

With maturing insight I have come to see that the soundest testimony is not borne under the duress of such an atmosphere. It is not given in some Yes or No responses to some questions by our inquisitors. Nor is it spoken at an instant. Nor is it memorized and presented after coaching or kibitzing. No, the soundest testimony rises out of one's way of living, sustained, habitual, and natural. Words that come from the overflow of life.

Models or Witnesses

Modeling is a Parisian occupation. A young woman of appealing lines exhibits the latest creations in apparel. At best there is an artificiality about it all. Fundamentally clothes should represent what is within the person. Unless there is graciousness within, the exterior manners will be shallow veneer. It will be "vogue" on the outside and "vague" on the inside.

Sometimes Christians are not free from this modeling complex. Many are wanting to be "examples." As far as I can see no genuine Saint wants to be an example. Such a viewpoint pushed very far involves a mis-motivation and tempts to a holier-than-thou attitude. Healthy Saints do not go around fussing about being examples and models to anyone else. Rather are they concerned with living next to the Great Example. In this nearness they catch the qualities of Him who is altogether gracious. Then the light of his life shines through them and they radiate the divine qualities. They are not anxious about being a model. They point to the genuine Example. They will be examples, but they never set out to become such.

The Essence of Testimony

Testimony, then, is the natural outreaching of experience that is at the heart of our lives. Show me the saintly woman who has been in lofty places and you will point out one who will in some way reveal that she has been on the mountaintop. If she has never been there, she will have little or nothing to say. Two things we can do: (1) cultivate a high quality of experience, and (2) develop the art of expressing ourselves about the experience. The experience is primary. I have been troubled by students of journalism who develop the art of writing but have nothing to write about, or the students of speech who learn about organization with little to organize. The basic concern is to have something to testify about. Then if we are true-blue, we shall see to it that we have effective ways of telling what is so worthy of being told.

A mark of waning spirituality is the decline in testimony. In conventional religion it is not uncommon to want a polished preacher to do all the talking and to do away with testimony meetings. Some of our testimony services ought to be discontinued, but we can never discontinue testimony and be a vital church. When Paul wrote his letter of counsel to the congregation at Corinth he was somewhat disconcerted because, in their enthusiasm, two or more were speaking at once. At least they had the zeal to speak. Paul gave a general rule of procedure that is good for us: "Let all things be done unto edifying" (I Corinthians 14:26). The lifting of testimony to edifying levels does not mean its discontinuance.

The In-Life Testimony

At the conference of high priests in Kirtland in 1950 some counsel was given by Apostle Gleazer that stood out to me as one of the inspired utterances of this gathering. It is likely that many came expecting dramatic expressions of prophetic nature, possibly even in tongues. What he said ran something like this, "If you were to return to your homes and tell of hearing the singing of angels or the sound of rushing wind or the gift of tongues, your word could be doubted or discounted. If, however, you have here been with God, and thereby your lives have been refined so that the fruits of the Spirit abound in you, no man can or will deny that testimony."

It is what I shall call the "in-life" testimony that will be most effective. I would that our people would cultivate the fruits of the Spirit, rather than concerning themselves about receiving the gifts. As we develop the fruits we shall be qualifying for the gifts. Then God in his graciousness will supply what is needed. These fruits are never brought to fruition in a solo vacuum: they are expressed in saintly relationships.

Qualitative Branch Life

All branches do not testify of Christ. They have not associated with him enough to be able to reflect him. Mere branch membership is not enough. One summer I was talking with Patriarch William Dawson at the northern California reunion in preparation for an interview at an evening

Women Testify through Active Membership

campfire. I asked him how his forebears came in contact with the church. His answer was a bit unusual. His great grandfather made this observation, "I'm going down to the Latter Day Saint business meeting. They'll have about ten cents worth of business, but it will take them until eleven o'clock to do it. I think I'll go down and listen to them quarrel." A young man who was with me commented, "If that is what it takes, our branch has good missionary possibilities."

I am convinced that the greatest opportunity for evangelism is through developing spiritually alive branches, so that anyone who comes into the congregation will catch something of the collective testimony of a group that is working together, growing together, and communing with God together. I further believe that the soundest conversions and most promising affiliations with the church are in those who find this fellowship with the Saints and who want to continue in it after baptism.

Study of Branch Functioning

I am referring to the branch or congregation, for I consider it the key to church expression. Those who flit around from place to place without getting their roots down in a congregational home and without assuming the responsibilities of branch membership will not be the ones to carry the church forward. There is a temptation to become service tasters just as there are program tasters in radio and television programs.

I suggest we give increased and more enlightened attention to the kind of branches we set out to achieve. We made some progress this summer in our reunion considerations of the branch as the laboratory for Zion living. That is just what it is—a laboratory. We are exploring this business of living together. Sometimes we shall make unsatisfactory experiments, but we shall keep on learning. And some projects will turn out well, even beyond our expectations.

One of our misfortunes is that we think of the branch as a collection of meetings. It is this but more. It is a fellowship in which Saints live together in mutual support. They joy at each other's successes. They bolster one another in defeats and frustration. They follow the counsel given to the early church to "teach one another." They play together. They break bread together (not always to raise funds). They plan together. They thrill at meeting one another. And this cannot be done in one meeting on Sunday morning alone.

Every Age Group Participation

The church is a family. The healthy church has every age group participating. Whenever any age group is left out the church family is incomplete. Every age group has something to contribute that is indispensable. I consider that no group has better opportunity to proclaim this affirmation of inclusiveness of every age group than do women. You note I am not saying that all that's necessary is for everyone to be registered on the membership list. It is more than this: every age group can and should participate. Let us look now to some specific fields of testimony for the women.

1. Let the Women Develop a Sound, Basic Theology

There is no instruction to the church that theological study is confined to the priesthood. First, let us understand that theology is the study of the nature of God. It is basic. It is fundamental in testimony. The great testimonies speak of God.

Let me be more specific. You women touch the lives of immature persons. Your theology colors their lives. If it is crooked, these children will have twisted lives. If there are any teachers who ought to have sound theology it is the teachers of our small children. I am weary of the view that the chief requisites for teaching small children is the ability to do finger plays and tell bedtime stories. Recently I talked to a young man who has severed his connection with our church, yet he wanted his daughter to attend our church school. The question in his mind concerned the theology of the teacher. I think he was right. A few weeks ago I chanced to hear a leader instructing teachers. I shuddered. The picture of God at work in the creation was such that any thinking boy or girl in meeting modern science would call into question the teachings of the church.

Such a sound theology has neighborhood and community implications. The woman with a broad, wholesome conception of God will radiate its influence. During World War II in a federated women's club one of our members told of the promises to this Western Hemisphere as outlined in the Book of Mormon. The soundness and healthiness of her presentation made a testimony that carried weight. Recently a woman of culture told one of our sisters how her little boy had been distressed by the teaching of his grandmother about his going to hell for telling a lie. This well-informed sister was able to present an assuring portrait of a God of understanding love.

I call on the women of the church to bear testimony of a continually creating God who functions in an orderly procedure; of an eternally loving Father who concerns himself with all men everywhere, and of a revealing Person who seeks to develop us so we can understand his nature and his purpose.

2. Let the Women Engage in Effective Social Service

Our church has the call to bring together the techniques of social science research and the warm love of God. In this welding lie untold possibilities of testimony. The women can do wonders in studying human nature, in delineating what constitutes spiritual health, and in conducting social service projects. The "good neighbor policy" is in our gospel. I hold no aspect of women's work ahead of friendly visiting. By this I mean something more than an occasional house-to-house call. Not long ago I was visiting with a minister in another church. He said the outstanding work in his congregation was being done by a group of selected women. They met at the church one day each week, had lunch, studied the art of Christian visiting, divided into twos with lists of "visitees," conducted devotional exercises, and then went out. They reported to the pastor the fruits and findings of their labors. I vision with enthusiasm the testimonial possibilities in such a program.

3. Let the Women Share in Formulating Church Policy

I do not vision the women as mere observers or spectators in the management of the church. They have a significant opportunity to help build an enlightened church mind. Our church can move forward as we develop a pervasive understanding. Let us bear testimony that we know what it is all about. It is rewarding to hear an observer say, "Those Latter Day Saints know what is going on in their church. They

(Continued on page 16.)

An account of life in the Middle West from the days of salted pork and homemade soap to the present

Autobiography

of

Irene Butler Sorden

Part I

MY PEOPLE ON my mother's side were Martins. They were of a religious turn of mind and were classed by their friends as "well posted on the Bible." At the time I am telling of they had moved to a wooded part of the country near Terre Haute, Indiana. Here they built a double log house, two large rooms on the ground floor with a large attic.

In those days people didn't seem to aspire to riches—just a good living. The summer's work was to raise plenty to live on during the winter, to have on hand a large bin of potatoes, turnips, and cabbage, a barrel of kraut, and a barrel of pork salted down. There was plenty of wild game—deer, turkey, and birds. My people lived well for their time, but money was scarce. The men spent the winter months felling trees and splitting them into rails for fencing and building purposes. They were early risers. The women spent their time keeping the family fed and clothed; the spinning wheels and knitting needles were busy early and late.

THE MARTINS' contact with the church occurred when a man came into the neighborhood seeking some place to move his family, but no place seemed to be available. He was desperate until someone told him about a small cabin up in the woods that had been built by the woodchoppers to be used as a shelter in bad weather. They were very glad to get in it; there was no floor nor door, but it was a shelter. Soon the man came among the settlers seeking work, but all did their own work as none of them had money. My people were sorry for these newcomers. The father seemed to be a good, intelligent man. One day he told my grandparents that he must get employment or his family would perish. This startled my people, to think that anyone should live so near to them and be hungry when their bins were full. My grandfather told him he might give him work splitting rails to fence his farm, but he could give him only very small pay and his dinner. My grandmother sent them a good supply of what food they had, and even some homemade soap. The man proved to be a good worker; the days were never too long or too hard for him.

Always at lunch time religion would be the topic, and after the day's work was done the subject would again be religion. What a knowledge of the Scriptures that man had! When anyone asked, "What church do you belong to?" he would evade the question in one way or another. One Sunday afternoon the men saw him coming toward the house. After the usual greetings they got on their favorite subject. Finally he told them he had come to ask if they would let one of the ministers of his church preach in their home. Grandfather said it would depend on how his wife felt about it. She told him yes, if he would prove what he preached by the Bible. The man said he would do that all right and promised to have his minister there two weeks from that time. They told him the minister could stay in their home since the cabin had no room for guests. He was very grateful and told my people he would go over the neighborhood to notify others of the meetings. My grandmother said, "Now I want to know what denomination this preacher belongs to."

The man said, "We are Latter Day Saints."

This sort of startled my grandmother. She said, "Mormons!" and the man said, "Latter Day Saints!"

He asked her if that made any difference about the meetings, and she said, "No, I have given my word, but he had better stick to the Bible." He assured her the Bible would be the book. As the time approached, two older Martin boys (the older one, Zachary, was about fourteen, and the other, George, was about twelve) were sent on horseback to tell all the people in the near-by hills and valleys of the meetings. It created quite an interest.

When the time came, Elder John E. Page arrived. He was unassuming and poorly clad but very genteel. He was one of the twelve apostles, but not one of the first Quorum of Apostles. The people came afoot or in lumber wagons, to hear him. The spring seats were carried in from the wagons and whatever else they could find to be used for seats. There was quite a crowd. The two boys were very excited over the occasion. When the time came to begin services, all were anxious. Zach and George came and whispered to their mother (my grandmother) that there was a bunch of men in the yard; all of them had large sticks or clubs, and they were saying they would run that Mormon preacher out of the country.

ELDER PAGE and the neighbor man who had got him to come hold the meetings stepped up by a table, offered a prayer, and read the text: "But though we, or an angel from heaven, preach any other gospel unto you than that which we have preached unto you, let him be accursed. As we said before, so say I now again, If any man preach any other gospel unto you than that ye have received, let him be accursed." All present looked at one another thinking Elder Page was the one who was preaching another gospel.

My mother said the people were amazed because this man spoke with such power, such assurance, and such positive determination. They fairly held their breaths and looked in awe at one another. He preached over two hours. The mobbers that had gathered one by one stepped in, still holding their clubs in their hands; they were too spell-bound to cause any trouble. All of them came each night to hear the wonderful story of the Restoration.

Meetings continued for a month. Before he left Brother Page announced he would be back in two months for another series. None of the people were baptized, but all seemed to be looking forward to the appointed time when he was again to be on hand.

In the meantime ministers of the other churches went from home to home warning the people of the danger they were taking in listening to this minister, but when the two months were up, he was back. The crowds were so large meetings had to be held out in the yard. He soon began to baptize people. Before he finished the meetings, a large branch was organized. My people were among the first to come in. This was soon after the Saints were driven from Independence in 1833.

IN THOSE TIMES as soon as people came into the church, they began to gather. Nauvoo was the supposed place of refuge. Nearly all of them got rid of what they could not take with them and then moved to Nauvoo. The two boys I spoke of worked on the Temple. Zach had learned the millwright trade. He worked on the building, as his training had helped him to be a skilled workman. George went to work in the stone quarry. They lived there until they were driven from Nauvoo; they were there when Joseph and Hyrum were killed. They went through the hardships and peril that brought the church to such disaster.

Before this Zach had been made an elder and was sent to Kentucky. He was quite young and had no preaching experience, so naturally people were very concerned about his ability. For quite a while they got discouraging letters from him; when this happened they prayed for him. All at once good reports began to come. He baptized a number of people. He was gone three years and, at the end of that time, he wrote home that he was being married to a Kentucky belle. He and his wife and his converts all planned to move to Nauvoo in covered wagons. When they got within ten miles of Nauvoo, one of the men on horseback went on ahead of them to tell Brother Joseph that the wagon train was nearing Nauvoo. Joseph saddled his riding horse and went to meet them. When he got there the teams were told to form a circle, which they did. Then Brother Joseph stood in the center of the ring and gave a speech of welcome to the city, after which he rode ahead of them into the city. Over three hundred members were in the caravan. Zach belonged to the Quorum of Seventy. He and his wife had three children, one girl and two boys. One of their sons was the father of the noted baseball player, John Leonard Martin, better known as Pepper Martin. He played with the St. Louis Cardinals; now retired, he lives on a cattle ranch in eastern Oklahoma.

It was a happy occasion when Zach came home from his mission with all these converts. My people lived in Nauvoo through all of the troubles that followed. Those were dark days, when Joseph and Hyrum were killed. Then followed the claims for leadership. Some thought this one should lead; some thought that one. Mobs threatened them from all sides. My people were firm in conviction that Young Joseph was the only one who should head the church. He was a mere lad at that time, but the would-be leaders were persistent in their claims. The only ones in our family who didn't stand firmly by Young Joseph were my aunt Evaline and her husband, Francis Boggs. He was one of the group of men who went with Brigham Young. They never went into polygamy, but they reared a large family, and all of the children remained with the Utah faction. Both of their names are recorded on a monument in the downtown part of Salt Lake City.

I was sixteen when we moved to Kingfisher County, Oklahoma . . . it was just raw prairie. The law was the Winchester rifle and the Colt revolver.

When the Saints were finally driven from Nauvoo, my people were in the last battle. Zach was wounded quite badly, but he did recover. Both of the sons were in the fight. Their father and the other old brethren did their part by taking the helpless ones (women, children, and the aged) across the Mississippi River in canoes to the Iowa side. I have heard my mother tell the story of their escape many times. Everything they had owned was gone; they had no home, no place to go. My people camped by Montrose a few days until they could get together, then they started on with no destination in view. Heavy rains caused the wagons to bog down in the mud so they had to wait a few days. My grandfather took cholera and died. People everywhere seemed unfriendly. There was no money in the family so grandfather was buried near the camp. In a few days they had to travel on, they knew not where.

They lived in different places. Various would-be leaders hunted them up, each one saying they should go this way, but the answer was always the same; "We are waiting for young Joseph."

THEY FINALLY SETTLED at Council Bluffs, Iowa. This was where my mother met my father, Stephen Butler. He knew nothing of our church and cared less. The Omaha Indians had sold to the Government their reservation which was just across the Missouri River on the Nebraska side. Nebraska was a territory at that time. Father and Mother moved over there and took up a timber claim, built a little log cabin, and established their home. Five children were born to them; the first died in infancy. They reared two boys and two girls.

My sister Kate was the oldest of the four, and I was the youngest. My sister married T. J. Smith. Both he and my father became interested in the church about the same time. They spent most of their lives doing all they could for the church. T. J. Smith was under church appointment for many years. He and my sister were the parents of four sons, three of them elders in the church; Clyde Smith, S. S. Smith, and Lyman Smith. S. S. and Lyman both lived in Independence many years. S. S. was under appointment until his retirement. My father was very zealous and served as an elder all of his life after he came into the church.

I was sixteen years old when we moved to Kingfisher County near the center of Oklahoma. When we went there it was just raw prairie country with no roads and no houses. People had rushed there from every walk of life. It was a most wonderful experience; I look back on it with pride. My people were of pioneer nature, and it was easy for them to adapt themselves to new situations. All classes of people were there—some from the southern states and some from the north. All were trying to establish homes. Most of the houses were built of sod; some were dugout, and some were of frame.

THERE was plenty of wild game. It was no trouble for the men to go hunting and in a couple of hours bring back dozens of quail and prairie chickens. Deer were plentiful in the timberland. Horseback was the main mode of travel. The law was the Winchester rifle and the Colt revolver, yet there were not very many violent crimes. Most of the serious trouble occurred out in the country where different men quarreled about who was the first to stake a claim.

Women Testify . . .

(Continued from page 13.)

know about the budget, matters coming before the next General Conference, the trends in missions abroad, and a host of other things—things that are wanting and waiting to be understood.”

I recall the business session when we approved the organization of the Detroit and Los Angeles Stakes. I fear we were not very well informed. One sister who was a delegate said she had voted for the recommendation. To my query whether she knew what a stake was she answered that she wouldn't recognize a stake if she met it in the middle of the road. Women are members of the church, not onlookers. Membership means participating intelligently in its operation. When they do this they will bear testimony.

4. Let the Women Reveal the Joy of Fellowship

The satisfyingness of being with the Saints is expressed by us very readily. If all we experience is annoyance this bears testimony to our family and our friends. If mother is disgruntled and faultfinding, this sour spirit carries over to others. This does not mean that we converse with blind optimism and feigned agreement. We can differ in Christian spirit and enrich the common life as we have harmony with diversity. Sourness spreads contagiously until we clabber the milk of saintly fellowship.

Rather is it for us to develop church fellowship that has something to stand on. We shall also develop the gracious art of friendliness and the beauty of genteel fraternity. In the center will be Christ, the friend of all of us, common allegiance to whom binds us together.

5. Let the Women Share in Community Planning

Latter Day Saints are community builders. Today we have the civic responsibility of lifting the communities in which we dwell up to a Zion level. If we consider the community beyond redemption through our power, let us go into one in which we can participate. This involves more than moving in; it calls for developing enlightened public opinion and sharing in lifting the quality of community living. It means putting our influence on the side of what is best for the community in the long run. It involves standing for the best in public education, public utilities, community affairs, cultural uplift, social service, and the like. But Latter Day Saint women must do this on a level above political maneuvering and narrow partisanship. They will demonstrate how they can stand constructively and cleanly and considerately in community questions.

6. Let the Women Practice Spiritual Hygiene

It is my conviction that one of the great fields of exploration before us is in the practicing of healthy spirituality. At best, this is a group expression. The gospel is a program of sound spiritual healthiness. It does not foster crackpots, neurotics, breakdowns, fanatics, dissenters, and a host of other maladjustments. Wholesome Saints stimulate each other to tackle problems together, to enjoy the fellowship of brothers and sisters, to be happy in a stimulating enterprise. People with this kind of health testify of the gospel's effectiveness.

7. Let the Women Disclose the Immediacy of God

Once I heard a nonmember say, "God seems so near to those of your faith." That was a glorious testimony. That is what we attempt to say when we talk of the gifts and of revelation. If our gatherings are characterized by the uplifting presence of the Holy Spirit, entailing expansion of understanding and enlargement of our love, we cannot cover up that kind of testimony. I rode one day with a funeral director who was conducting a service for one of our families. He volunteered that he liked to work with such as they, for they had a calm, sustaining faith. What he said applied to the branch which was sharing the bereavement with the family. These members were testifying of the presence of God in their lives today.

I have selected representative fields for women's testimony through active church membership: (1) the development of a basic theology, (2) laboratory serving in social helpfulness, (3) participation in formulating our church policy, (4) cultivating an uplifting and unifying fellowship, (5) sharing in community building, (6) practicing spiritual hygiene, (7) experiencing God in today's daily living. At their best these must be group experiences. Therein we stimulate each other, work together with mutual support. These things come not by accident. We plan to live so we shall have testimony.

That Word "Active"

For some time I wondered what to do with that word "active." It had to be in the phrase. Then I concluded it was a strengthening phrase. Fundamentally there is no membership without active participation. There may be listing on the records, but there is no membership unless we share in the life of the church. Membership of high quality calls for participation in the total life of the church, not merely in some pet area or hobby program. The fuller testimony will come as our experience reaches into the fullness of the church.

The church, the world, the family, the congregation, the community, the neighborhood needs the collective testimony of those who share with God in his church. Oh, no—they are the church! Women of the church live this expanded experience. Then you will have no choice. Then you need not be concerned. You will be testifying.

for youth and nonmembers in their venture to

SEEK THIS CHRIST

By Apostle Reed M. Holmes $1.50	Contents Why? The Christ of Every Age Is God Concerned? Christ and Our Day What's Wrong with Us? The Way Out Would Christ Recognize the Church? Have You Found Him? The Beginning
---	--

A Good Minister and Citizen

The sudden passing of Newman Wilson on October 14, while attending a priesthood institute in Kirtland, ended the ministry of one whose sacrificial devotion to the church brought much joy, peace, and happiness to many members.

Brother Wilson was born March 23, 1888, at Jonesport, Maine, the son of the late Joel and Cora (Lindsey) Wilson. He was baptized November 21, 1909, and the same year was married to Georgia A. Rogers, who survives him. She was a devoted companion and helpmate. Brother Wilson taught in the public schools before going under General Conference appointment in 1918. His ordinations came in the following order: priest, July 20, 1910; elder, June 15, 1913; high priest, July 21, 1936; and evangelist, October 30, 1949. He was under General Conference appointment from 1918 to 1930, serving as missionary supervisor in Maine. Since then he had served the church as president of the Maine District. He also served as minister in the Eastern States Mission.

He took an active part in civic affairs in Jonesport. At one time he held the office of first selectman of Jonesport and was a member of the board of education and the board of assessors. He was a man with a remarkable record for service to his fellow citizens. He was an enthusiastic member of the church, and he served long and faithfully. His passing brought memories to the minds of many members who had been brought into the church through his labors and blessed by his ministry.

Funeral services were held at the church in Jonesport, Elders Farrell Lenfestey of Beals, Donald Kyser of Jonesport, and Benjamin Carter of Stonington officiating.

Evangelist Newman Wilson

Question Time

Question

Can you verify the statements made in Nibley's book, Lehi in the Desert, as being correct and presentable as evidence for the Book of Mormon?

D. and C. L.

Singapore, China

Answer

This book is well documented, and its new approach in bringing evidence for the Book of Mormon is sound. It is a scholarly presentation which should be read by all.

Shortly after reading the book, I was pleased to see the following from President F. Henry Edwards:

"It is not my purpose to advertise books from Utah, but I think that Lehi in the Desert, which is published with The World of the Jaredites, is something that our people ought to read. It is a new approach. . . . This book says that there are countless illustrations that Joseph Smith could not have dreamed up. Incidentally, casual references show that Lehi was the kind of man who had this kind of experience. That is tremendously important. It is first-class evidence. . . ."—Saints' Herald, July 22, 1957, quoting an address to the Writers' Creative Guild in Independence, May 6, 1957.

This does not necessarily mean a verification of every statement of every page, but in general we recommend the book as very profitable to readers.

HAROLD I. VELT

Question

If an increase is shown on the accounting and is solely due to profit on the sale of land, the increase is tithable. What is the ethical basis for my claim to the remaining nine tenths?

C. A. M.

British Columbia

Answer

The basic law of tithing was given through Moses (Deut. 14: 22): "Thou shalt truly tithe all the increase of thy seed, that the field bringeth forth year by year." No mention is made, however, of increase received from other sources. It would be assumed that the source of the increase would not determine its use after the tithe had been paid. The scriptural references Doctrine and Covenants 42: 10 and 101: 12 may have raised this question.

The stewardship law of accounting and tithing is based upon these basic principles:

(1) The first requirement from income accruing to the individual is providing for the necessary living expenses. The origin of the income would have no significance in meeting this need. (See I Timothy 5: 8.)

(2) After these essentials have been met, all increase is to be tithed (one tenth) and the tithe paid into the church, leaving the remaining increase (nine tenths) for non-essential items such as recreation, offerings, gifts, inheritance (D. and C. 106: 2).

(3) Priority for the use of the nine tenths increase should be for the inheritance, including a home and furnishings, even though it is also desirable to use some for local offerings, gifts, recreation, higher education. (See D. and C. 48: 2.)

(4) Surplus is the fruit. The wise use of the increase determines the real intent and desire of the steward in promoting the economic kingdom of God on earth. An inheritance is necessary for the family, and other expenditures from the increase are essential if the individual is to assume his responsibility in community life and develop his talents and abilities. It is the control of these necessary and just wants that measure one's ability as a steward (D. and C. 70: 2).

The individual has an ethical claim to any income if it is obtained in righteousness.

L. E. LANDSBERG

Any sincere question from our readers will receive consideration from the editors. If it is of general interest, it will be referred to the Question Time panel, and the answer will be printed. The answers are the opinions and interpretations of the panel members signing them and do not commit the Herald nor the church.

Please keep the question short—fifty words or less should be sufficient. Address questions to Herald editors rather than to panel members. Only questions with the contributor's full name (not just initials) and address will receive attention. —Editor.

Book Review

THE HEALING POWER OF FAITH

By Will Oursler

Hawthorn Books, Inc.,
Publishers, New York

Price $4.95

Perhaps the best way to characterize this truly remarkable book is to quote the following from its cover, "A reporter's story of man's search for healing of sick bodies, minds and souls—and his discovery that faith can heal when other means fail."

The author, Will Oursler, one of America's most distinguished authors, novelists, and reporters, "sets out to discover the facts about spiritual healing or faith healing, both inside and outside our churches." Devoting years of careful research to this task, he gathered materials from many parts of the world, read hundreds of individual reports, books and pamphlets, interviewed Catholics, Jews, and Protestants, representatives of various movements and groups, as well as many individual healers.

Although a war correspondent (he took part in five invasions) he speaks of the exploring and the writing of the material for this book as "a tremendous personal adventure—nothing I have attempted has affected me as profoundly as this present work."

Its thirty-two chapters cover a survey of healings reported by the National Council of Protestant Churches; of such Roman Catholic shrines as Lourdes and St. Anne Beaupre; the healing services of the Episcopal and other churches (yes, and of the "Latter Day Saints—Mormons"); the special approaches to healing of Christian Science, Unity and New Thought movements; individual healers, including Agnes Sanford, Ambrose Worral, Oral Roberts, Alfred Price, Aimee McPherson, and many others.

According to the New York Times the result is a product that is an "authentic objective, timely and intensely interesting report on man's search for healings through faith."

Many features of this study should be of special interest to readers of the Herald. For example: the extent of the practice of faith healing and the frequency of the use of the "laying on of hands" as the principal means or method followed.

The increasing emphasis is upon the wisdom of treating the total person—of healing the whole man in body, mind, and soul, and the extent to which medicine, religion, psychiatry, and other agencies of therapy are co-operating to bring about this total healing.

The emphasis is also on the indispensability of love and faith as the greatest healing powers of the universe.

For me this volume constitutes a frank, objective, friendly, considerate, readable, and inspiring treatment of a profoundly vital and yet controversial subject, and I find myself in agreement with this comment of Daniel A. Poling, editor of the Christian Herald: "Scientifically, speculatively, devotionally, or just literary enrichment, here is a 'must' volume for any year."

F. M. McDOWELL

Letters

How I Found the Church

In January of 1953 I started working on my God and Country award, a religious Scouting award, in the church of which I was then a member. I received the award in May of the following year. I was not satisfied with that church; I felt something was missing that was in the New Testament Scriptures. I continued to study the creeds of the different churches, but none of them seemed to offer the various points the way they were contained in the Bible.

During the summer of 1956 I was working at Philmont Scout Ranch, Cimarron, New Mexico, where I met a Utah Mormon fellow my own age. He seemed to be a very righteous person. Through him I came in contact with the Book of Mormon. I continued to study the Book. In September of 1956 I started to college, and in October while reading the Book of Mormon I found the promise in the tenth chapter of Moroni. I asked in prayer in the way that it said concerning the truth of the Book. That night I had a vision in which two men were standing, one in front of the other and at about a 45 degree angle from each other. Suddenly I was blinded as a brilliant white cloud came down from heaven. As it passed I saw Christ.

At that time I knew the Book of Mormon was true, but I didn't know which of the two L.D.S. churches was the right one, so I continued to study. During this time I attended the Reorganized Church off and on in Marshall, Missouri, where I was going to school.

In the summer of 1957 I was again working at Philmont, and I met two of the Mormon elders. I had them teach me of their church. I was about to be baptized into the Utah Mormon church, but I felt that I had better talk to my parents before I did.

I came home from Philmont and made arrangements to go to church with a Mormon. Sunday morning I dressed and went downtown to pick up the mail before going to church.

I met my former Scoutmaster, Glen Gunn, on the main street. Glen told me that he was going to church (the R.L.D.S. Church) and asked me to go with him. I told him that I was going to the Mormon church. He said that he was trying to get a ride to church, so I loaned him my car.

After I had gone to Great Bend with the Mormon, I found that his church was not holding services that Sunday because of a conference in another city, so I asked him to let me off at the Reorganized Church in Great Bend.

Brother Gunn gave me the following testimony concerning the circumstances which involved him.

One day in September, 1956, Kenneth called me, and we talked about the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. He was going to college in a few days. When he came back during his Christmas vacation, we talked and prayed again.

I do not remember seeing or talking to him until September 8, 1957. Three days prior to this I received a telegram from Mr. White, local chairman of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Fireman and Engineers, saying, "On board. If not working, come to Hoisington." The telegram, worded this way led me to believe that I had only two days to report to save my job in Hoisington, Kansas. The strong conviction I had at that time made me believe I should go on the next train, which left the next day at noon.

Asking for God's guidance through prayer that night, I had no doubt about what I was going to do, but I wondered why this was taking place, because just about a week before, I had received a letter telling me I had been cut off.

Arriving in Hoisington on September 7, 1957, I found that it was not necessary for me to have made the trip, and again I wondered why.

Sunday morning, September 8, I made plans to attend services with the Great Bend Branch about eight miles south of Hoisington.

My suit needed pressing, so I decided to go to my cousin's home and press it. From there I would call someone who would be going to church. After pressing my suit I felt something urging me to leave the house. I went to reach for the phone to call someone for a ride. I again felt urged to leave the house and not worry about a ride. After walking about two blocks from the house someone called me by name. To my surprise it was Kenneth Brown. He called me over to the car where we exchanged greetings. I asked him to go to church with me, but he said he was going with a Utah Mormon. However, he said I could use his car. He told me that he was about to be baptized in that church. I told him if that was his decision I would not discourage him but would pray that God would help him. I was sure that he would be guided in the right path.

As I drove to Sunday school, I prayed for him. Soon after the service began Kenneth came into the church. I was sure that my prayers had been answered. That afternoon we talked, and we returned to the church service that evening.

After church Elder Harold Talcott, Kenneth, and myself were asked to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dean Baily. We fellowshiped and showed this young man in the Church History where Joseph Smith had set aside and named his son to follow him as the prophet of the church. That was when he was sure that the Reorganized Church was the right one.

During this whole day I felt the presence of God and knew then that this was why I had made this trip of about eight hundred miles. I was happy that God had used me to guide one of his children into the fold.

A day or so later I was talking with Mr. White about the telegram. He said he had sent it, but he did not word it the way I had received it. He said, "Back on the board. If not working come to Hoisington." Worded this way it meant I had about thirty days to report. Somewhere along the line the word "back" had been dropped.

I am sure that God had something to do with this.

During the afternoon I talked with Glen more about the differences of the two churches. He pointed out several things about the Mormon church that were not in agreement with the Scriptures.

That evening I again went to services and the preacher started to speak from his notes, but he could not. He laid them aside and began speaking to me directly.

After the evening service I went with Glen and Elder Harold Talcott to the home of one of the members. It was there that I found what I was looking for—who was to be the prophet of the church after the death of Joseph Smith.

I was baptized the next Wednesday night. Right after the baptism I was confirmed because I was leaving for school shortly thereafter. When the elders laid their hands on my head, I felt a warmth go through my whole body.

This is my testimony of the divinity of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ. In the short time I have been a member of it I have had more than enough proof.

KENNETH BROWN

Hoisington, Kansas

Note of Thanks

I wish to thank all who prayed for my sister, Alma Harrison of Toronto, after a request for prayers for her was printed in the Herald. She was suffering terrible pain because of cancer; following administration and the request for prayers, she felt no more pain, and on October 1 she died peacefully.

MRS. IDA BROWN

Tottenham, Ontario

bound volumes of the
SAINTS' HERALD
DAILY BREAD
GUIDELINES
and STRIDE
are useful
for reference

The valuable reference and reading matter in our church periodicals will be close at hand in volume form if you have each year's issues bound by Herald House.

Each bound copy bears the periodical title, volume number, and year imprinted in gold on the backbone. The binding is of durable dark green cloth.

In order to offer the binding done at the following prices, it is necessary to receive your orders between January 1 and February 15. Please mail your magazines during this period. (Missing issues are not available at Herald House.) Shipping charges are extra.

Binding Prices

Saints' Herald	$4.00
Daily Bread	$3.50
Guidelines to Leadership	$3.50
Stride	$3.50

Box 477
Independence, Missouri

Box 382
Guelph, Ontario, Canada

Briefs

Zion's League Organized

WINNIPEG, MANITOBA, CANADA.—After a missionary series which included both preaching and cottage meetings conducted by Missionary Keith Harvey, three were baptized. Cameron Jay baptized Irene Hargrave and Brother and Sister John Cornelson.

A Zion's League group was organized this summer, and now has ten active members. Under the leadership of Ted Smith, this group has conducted several worth-while projects.

At the annual business meeting the following were elected: Cameron Jay, branch president; Charles Jenkins, Graydon Coombe, and Gordon MacDonald, counselors; Forrest Hargrave, treasurer; Eva Clark, secretary; Gordon MacDonald, church school director; Doris Kinnee, women's leader; Charles Jenkins, young adult leader; Cameron Jay, Zion's League leader; Doreen Jay, publicity agent; Glen and Doris Kinnee, branch host and hostess; Rena Clark, music; Cyril Clark, recorder; Gordon MacDonald, solicitor; Glen Kinnee, book steward; Graydon Coombe, historian; G. MacDonald and G. Coombe, three-year members of finance committee; F. Hargrave and Doris Kinnee, two-year members of finance committee; C. Jenkins and C. Clark, one-year members of finance committee; Cameron Jay, Gordon MacDonald, and Forrest Hargrave, check signers; Victor Clark and John Cornelson, auditors.

At this meeting the following priesthood calls were approved: Forrest Hargrave, deacon; Larry Coombe, priest; and Cameron Jay, elder. On October 6, an ordination service was held for these men.

Brother Hargrave is supervising painting and decorating teams which are endeavoring to improve the church physical facilities. Brother Frank Harvey is constructing a new church sign.

On October 20 Larry Paul Parks and Wayne Craig Wilson were blessed by Elders W. Hadath and C. Jay.—Reported by DORREN JAY

Branch, Women's Group and League Hold Elections

CHILLIWACK, BRITISH COLUMBIA, CANADA.—The annual business meeting was held September 18, with Elder Raymond Huggett, British Columbia district president, in charge. The following were elected: Elder Alfred Beer, pastor; Elders Robert Day and Albert Phelps, counselors; Mrs. Tom Beer, secretary-treasurer; Joan Beer, church school director; Mrs. A. Beer, Sr., women's leader and assistant music director; Walter Stade and Cecil Christensen, auditors; Mrs. Stanley Taylor, music director; Mrs. Mary Jewett, publicity; Marie Fetterley, book steward; Tom Beer, Zion's League supervisor; Robert Day, Alfred Beer, Jr., and Wesley Jackman, building committee. Alfred Beer, Sr., was sustained as bishop's solicitor, and Mary Jewett as historian.

Women's department officers are Mrs. A. Beer, Sr., president; Mrs. W. Fetterley, vice-president and secretary; Mrs. Nels Christensen, treasurer; Mrs. A. Beer, Sr., and Mrs. Stanley Taylor, visiting committee; Mrs. S. Samson, Mrs. O. Traver, and Mrs. Emily Laporte, social committee.

The Zion's League held election October 8, and the following were elected: Mac Christensen, president; Karen Kipp, vice-president; Violet Riley, secretary-treasurer; Norman Beer, worship chairman; Ken Christensen, study chairman; Norma Beer and Barbara Ames, entertainment; Mrs. Tom Beer, refreshments; and Mr. and Mrs. Norman Beer, district Challenger reporters; Gary Butler and Tom Beer, fund-raising committee chairmen.—Reported by MRS. MARY JEWETT

Three Children Blessed

HOUSTON, TEXAS.—The following children were blessed on December 1 at the Pasadena, Texas, Church: William Ray Pyeatt; Harold Wayne Pyeatt; and Stephanie Yvonne Marsh. Elders John Puckett and Fred Olson were spokesmen.—Reported by JOAN GRUBBS

Seventy Yager Visited Fort Bragg

FORT BRAGG, NORTH CAROLINA.—On November 28, Seventy Yager arrived at Fort Bragg and had Thanksgiving dinner with church members at the Pope Air Force Base mess hall.

On December 1, all the members met in the home of their leader, T/Sgt. Curlin L. Salter, Smoke Bomb Hill. Preaching in the morning was by Brother Yager, after which luncheon was served. In the afternoon, Communion was held, with a prayer and testimony meeting.

In the evening, Gary Morgan, son of Sgt. Leon Morgan, was blessed by Brother Yager.

The latest isolated members to visit the Fort Bragg group were Brother and Sister A. M. Gatrost of Raleigh, North Carolina.—Reported by BRENDA KAY SALTER

Priesthood Conference Held

FLORA, ILLINOIS.—A priesthood conference was held at Flora on November 24. Apostle D. T. Williams was in charge, assisted by Russell Ellis, district president of the Southeastern Illinois District.

Three from Marion Branch were approved unanimously for ordination. Wallace L. Peebles was approved for the office of elder, Carl Raybourne for the office of priest, and

Golden Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. George I. Hansen of Missouri Valley, Iowa, observed their fiftieth wedding anniversary on November 4. Open house was held in the Reorganized Church for them, ice cream and cake being served as refreshments.

George Hansen was born August 28, 1884, near Dunlap, Iowa. He was married on November 4, 1907, to Ruth C. Much by the Reverend John McAllister, pastor of the Presbyterian Church there. Both were baptized into the Reorganized Church on August 13, 1911. Brother Hansen was ordained a teacher on December 22, 1913; a priest on June 6, 1915; and an elder on June 11, 1916. He has served as pastor at Gallands Grove, Dunlap, Denison, Atherton, Persia, Logan, and Missouri Valley.

To the Hansens were born nine children, eight of whom still live (a daughter, Dona Floy, is deceased). They are Albert J. of Wichita, Kansas; Ingvert A. of Kansas City, Kansas; Gerald L. of Medina, New York; Frances Mae Verkleyen of Redding, California; Helen M. Donahoe of Missouri Valley; Lloyd G. of Buffalo, New York; David Raymond of Santa Rosa, California; and Louise Faith Shoaf of Los Angeles, California. They also have fifteen grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Norval Radford was approved for the office of teacher.

The ordination service was held December 8 at the Shriners Club building north of Marion, where that branch holds services while the church is being completed.

Brother Peebles was ordained by Russell Ellis, assisted by R. W. Poore. Brother Raybourne was ordained by Gordon Lambert, assisted by E. W. McKinney. Brother Radford was ordained by R. W. Poore, assisted by Russell Ellis.—Reported by ISAAC T. WEBB

Thanksgiving Social Activity

JOPLIN, MISSOURI.—The following are recently elected officers for the branch: pastor, Elder J. E. Leslie; associates, Dr. Athol Cochran and Elder Frank Graves; secretary, Lorene Irvine; treasurer, Virgil Cochran; leader of women, Grace Shufeldt; music director, May Gray; director of church school, Don Kingore; recorder, Floyd Nichol; solicitor, Carl Simpson; historian, Lucretia Wade; publicity, Mary Cochran; flowers, Bonnie Leslie; presiding deacon, Carl Gurley. Seventy-five members and guests of the Coronets enjoyed a Thanksgiving dinner in the lower auditorium of the church. Richard Lancaster of Independence was guest speaker.

The district women's Christmas party was held in Joplin, December 4. Sister Deane Edwards of Monett, Missouri, was guest speaker on the theme "Jesus Christ, Central Theme of Our Heritage." A play, "The Challenge of the Cross," was given in the afternoon. Mrs. V. D. Cochran of Joplin is district women's leader.—Reported by MARY COCHRAN

Officers Elected

VENICE, CALIFORNIA.—An election of officers at the annual business meeting resulted as follows: presiding elder, Ben Budworth; counselors, Orlin Hagaman and Frank Woodsen; women's leader, Ila Lev; junior church director, Orlin Hagaman; church school director, Hazel Condra; secretary and recorder, Percyna Hatten; treasurer and Zion's League leader, Charles Woolfly; children's director, Marge Troeh; Liahona director and music director, Fred Budworth; publicity chairman, Irene Martin; historian, Pearl Matheson; custodian, Ed Hatten.

There have been eleven baptisms, and four babies have been blessed.—Reported by ALICE SMITH

Five Baptized

IRONTON, OHIO.—In a branch meeting held September 20, Elder W. J. Williams, Sr., was elected pastor. Other officers are Julia Williams, Zion's League leader, secretary and treasurer; George Williams, church school director; Joe Williams, Jr., music director and branch solicitor (sustained); Anna Ward, women's leader; Rita Williams, librarian; June Neal, publicity; Lorene Eagle, auditor; Julia Williams, book steward. W. J. Williams, Sr., was sustained as historian.

The branch plans a new church. The fundraising goal for the coming year is $2,000.00.

During the year five were baptized. Three series of meetings were held by District President John Blackstock, Evangelist Floyd T. Rockwell, and Evangelist V. D. Ruch.

Thirteen Leaguers and three staff members attended camp at Canter's Cave.—Reported by JUNE NEAL

Women Hold Christmas Party

JOPLIN, MISSOURI.—The women held a Christmas party December 4 in the church with District Leader Mrs. V. D. Cochran in charge. The theme was "Jesus Christ, the Central Theme of Our Heritage." The program consisted of carols, a poem and prayer circle theme message by Deane Edwards, women's leader from Springfield District, and a business meeting.

The following officers were elected: Mrs. H. O. Plumb, associate women's leader; Mrs. W. M. Miller, secretary; Mrs. John Wolf, treasurer.

Dinner was served by Joplin ladies, and a freewill offering was taken. A playlet, "The Challenge of the Cross," was directed by Lorene Irvine, with Mrs. Truman Siler at the organ. Mrs. Kenneth D. Cochran led the carols. Mrs. Sheldon Swan decorated the tables. Sixty-five ladies attended.—Reported by RACHEL M. TROYER

Mission Grows to Branch

SARASOTA, FLORIDA.—The Sarasota-Bradenton mission was formally organized into a branch November 13. There were about fifty in attendance, with O. C. Henson, Jr., presiding.

The election of branch officers was held. Those elected were Clifton McArthur, pastor; Ethan Long, treasurer and recorder; Richard Fenn, church school director and youth leader; Wanda Fenn, women's leader; June Duckworth, secretary and historian; Jo McArthur, music director; and Hattie Joplin, book steward and librarian.

The mission was organized in May, 1956, with twenty-three members. The branch was organized with fifty-six members. There were six baptisms during this time, and one ordination.

From 50 to 75 per cent of the members attend midweek prayer services.

Anyone wintering in Florida will be welcome at the church, located one block off

Highway 301, just one and seven-tenths miles south of Oneco. Oneco is halfway between Bradenton and Sarasota.—Reported by C. S. MCARTHUR

Six Ordained

COLUMBUS, OHIO.—Six men were ordained to the priesthood at recent ordination services at the three Columbus congregations. The following were ordained: Worthington mission, Kyle E. Reed to the office of priest; North Congregation, James D. Overly to the office of elder; South Congregation, Frank Johnson to the office of deacon, Charles R. Goodin and Floyd F. Bradford, Jr., to the office of priest, and Robert E. Bradford to the office of elder.

November 2-3, Columbus District was host to a music institute under the direction of Elder Franklyn S. Weddle.

On November 24, in Worthington, Ohio, the Saints of the Columbus Branch met for a ground-breaking ceremony for a new church. Dr. Margaret Barker read hymn No. 535 in The Hymnal. Elder Donald J. Gabriel, pastor of the Worthington mission, broke the ground. Elder E. Elwood Smith, city pastor, gave the remarks and the prayer.—Reported by FLOYD F. BRADFORD, JR.

New Officers

McDERMOTT, OHIO.—The branch held the annual business meeting on September 13, with John Blackstock, district president, presiding. The following officers were elected: pastor, Everett E. Orin; secretary, Marie Crabtree; treasurer, Robert Shelpman; church school director, Chester L. Guilkey; women's leader and book steward, Evelyn Shelpman; junior League leader, Pauline Coburn; senior League leader, Margaret Guilkey; historian, Mary Crabtree; publicity, Rufus D. Crabtree; music director, Ruth Eichenlaub; solicitor, R. D. Crabtree; auditors, George and Pauline Coburn.

There were fourteen baptisms, four marriages, and four babies blessed during the year.

The women's department raised $909.79 under the direction of Marie Crabtree during the year.—Reported by MARIE CRABTREE

Five Baptisms

RACINE-PORTLAND, OHIO.—A two weeks' series of meetings was held by Elder John W. Blackstock of Middletown, Ohio, president of the Southern Ohio District. At the close of the series, five were baptized on November 30. They were Diana Roush, Denny Roush, Danny Roush, Homer Proffitt, and Ralph Johnson.

They were confirmed December 1 by Elder Blackstock and Elder C. W. Proffitt.—Reported by MAXINE DIDDLE

Conference and Institute

NAUVOO, ILLINOIS.—“What Seek Ye?” was the theme of the fellowship service that opened the fall conference of the Nauvoo District, held at Fort Madison, November 10. Guest speaker for the day was Apostle D. T. Williams.

At the business meeting in the afternoon, the following officers were elected: Orville Hulmes, district president; Max Hromek and Leonard Duke, counselors; Robert Brown, secretary; Clifford Brown, treasurer; Joy Hulmes, music director; Gale Hunter, director of religious education; Kenneth Duke, young people's director; Charlotte Brown, church school director; Robert Reipe and Dale Moon, auditors; Genevieve Grover, historian.

The following reunion committee was sustained for another year: Ed McKiernan, Ed Stark, Carl Jones, and Harold Smith.

The district voted to sponsor the mission at Carthage, Illinois, and Elmer Garrett was appointed pastor. Ed Stark was appointed pastor of the Mount Pleasant Mission, and Emel Miller of the Farmington mission.

The following recommendations to the office of elder were accepted by the conference: Ralph Gunn, Gomer Griffiths, Robert Hardy, and Lee Ourth.

On December 4 the semiannual district women's institute was held in Burlington, Iowa.

Mrs. Clifford Brown was in charge of the devotional, “Why Pray For Others?” A playlet under the theme title was presented by Mrs. Dale Moon, Mrs. Delbert Hester, Mrs. Arnold Wiemann, Mrs. William Hogan, and Mrs. Norman Gunsolley.

Mrs. Louis Zonker was the morning speaker. She told of her experiences in Germany and displayed articles from Germany. A sack lunch was held at noon, and there was time to look over the displayed study materials available in the women's department, and also yearbooks of the district.

In the afternoon, Mrs. Arnold Ourth talked on Section 86 of the Doctrine and Covenants.

Church Building Improved

SHERWOOD, OREGON.—The appearance of the church at Sherwood has been greatly improved by replacing the steep hip roof and front dormer with a plain gable roof, and by filling a ten-foot-square notch in the rear corner of the building with a much needed classroom.

The roof was in need of new shingles, and the members agreed that the improved appearance would justify the cost. Labor was donated by the pastor and members, under the direction of Edwin Balsiger, a carpenter.

Randall Rife, David Calkins, and Sarah Murdock were lost this year by death. Sister Murdock was a pioneer of the Sherwood group and a faithful worker in the women's department and other branch activities.

The only priest, Arthur Tooze, and his wife Ruth and three children moved to Ocean Lake, Oregon, where he was ordained an elder and appointed pastor of the mission there.

The branch gained four by baptism. They are Mrs. Betty Duffield and her son John, ten years old, and Donna Mae and Michael Shultz, ten and eight respectively, daughter and son of Donald and Rowena Shultz of Tigard, Oregon.

Officers for the new year are Donald Balsiger, branch president; Mrs. Shirley Balsiger, secretary; Donald Shultz, treasurer; Mrs. E. M. Balsiger, church school director; Mrs. Harriet Wiedermann, youth leader; Mrs. Rowena Shultz, social leader; Miss Susan Wiedermann, librarian; Mrs. Bessie Shultz, dramatics; E. M. Balsiger, auditor; Vincent R. Shultz, publicity.

Building and finance committee members are Vincent R. Schultz, three-year term; E. M. Balsiger, two-year term; and Mrs. Luella Tooze, one-year term. Book steward is Mrs. Marian Murdock; solicitor, E. M. Balsiger; and historian, Vincent R. Shultz.—Reported by VINCENT R. SHULTZ

Active Youth Group

ALLIANCE, OHIO.—Sunday, September 8, the branch met for the first time in the new location at 15 South Linden Avenue, corner of Linden and Main Streets. It is on the second floor, and conveniently located. Attendance has more than doubled since moving to this new location; the time of meeting is 10 A.M.

September 8, the branch business meeting was held with Elder Earl Wildermuth of the District Presidency in charge. Officers elected were Elder Alba R. Smith, pastor; Pearl Sell, secretary and youth counselor; Ethel Gilliam, treasurer; Karl Reinhardt, church school director and youth leader; Vida Reinhardt, music director and leader of women's group. Appointed by the church are Marie Smith as solicitor; Pearl Sell as recorder; and Leafey Gordon as historian. These were sustained in their offices. The department heads were elected to compose the budget committee.

Mrs. Othel Smith, Kirtland District women's leader, met with the women's group November 13. She spoke on “The Heritage He Left in Our Hands.” The group has just completed a project of selling candy, the proceeds of which will go to the building fund. The group program includes a Bible marking class and a food and health class.

September 15, Patricia Carol Gilliam was baptized by Elder Alba Smith. She was confirmed on September 29 by Elders Smith and Glen Carlisle. Also on this date, two children were blessed: Steven John, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Kelly, and Corrine Sue, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Grace, with Elders Smith and Carlisle officiating at this ordinance.

September 18 the members from Alliance met with members in Salem for a prayer service at the home of William H. Smith, with twenty-two present. Elder Glen Carlisle was in charge. On November 22 they met with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Downs in Louisville, with twelve present. Elder Alba Smith was in charge.

Graceland Day, High Priest E. Guy Hammond and Elder Douglas of Akron were visitors, with Elder Douglas being the speaker.

The youth Group is active, with fifteen members. Gloria Grace, a teen-age member of the group, makes the worship center arrangements. They meet at 7:30 P.M., the second and fourth Sundays of each month, at 15 South Linden Avenue.—Reported by LEAFY M. GORDON

Branch Elects New Officers

ESCATAWPA, MISSISSIPPI.—The branch business meeting was held September 3, with Elders E. B. Sherman, Daniel McQueen, and John R. Darling presiding. The following officers were elected: E. B. Sherman, pastor; Elders G. C. Gibson, Daniel McQueen, and Marshall Mizell, counselors; Jimmy Roberts, church school director; Lois Mackie Rogers, women's leader; Dorothy Griffin, children's leader; Otto Davis, Zion's League leader; Etta Edna Allen, music director; LaVerne Gibson, secretary; Gordon Gibson, treasurer; Pearl Allen, book steward; Alpha Bickle, historian; Jimmy Roberts and Daniel McQueen, auditors; Odessa Graham, church school secretary; Mable Davis, adult supervisor; Wanda Barnes, branch reporter.

A motion was made to sustain the deacons as building custodians. A motion was also made to combine the finance and building committees, with Carl Byrd and Annie Louise Sherman added to the present committees. Gordon Gibson was appointed junior pastor.

A baptismal and confirmation service was held November 13. Oscar Martin and Stewart Beardlee were baptized and confirmed by Elders Sherman, J. L. Barlow, and Myron LaPointe.—Reported by WANDA BARNES

Expense
Record
Book
10c each

EXPENSE
RECORD
BOOK

A handy pocket-size record booklet for daily expenditures. Figures can then be transferred to one of the larger record books (listed below). Quantity prices: 1-5 dozens, 50c a dozen; 6-10 dozens, 45c a dozen; 10 dozens or more, 37c a dozen.

Family Income and Expense Record Book 25c
Youth Income and Expense Record Book 25c
My Stewardship (children's book) 25c

Box 477
Independence, Missouri
Box 382
Guelph, Ontario, Canada

Roger Yarrington Is Speaker

NEVADA, MISSOURI.—The women's meeting at Rich Hill, held December 3, was attended by several Nevada members. The annual bazaar and bake sale was held December 7. The women's department is helping on the fund for a new organ for the church. Hazel Welton is leader of the joint women's groups.

Lela Porter, friendly visitor, has made many calls on sick and shut-ins, usually accompanied by Jennie Mahurin.

Elder Peter Harder held two weeks of cottage meetings recently, with very good attendance.

The Zion's League banquet was held in Nevada in the lower auditorium of the church on November 23. Roger Yarrington was speaker, and 125 young people attended. Robert Hartel is the local Zion's League leader. E. M. Curtis is supervisor for Rich Hill District Zion's League.

Priesthood meetings have been well attended, the last being held November 29.

The men are repairing and redecorating the church.

The A. L. Readings and the A. H. McCormacs have moved from the branch. Elder Ben Simmons and family of Springfield, Missouri, have moved to Nevada.—Reported by LURA LASLEY

New Mission Reports

BURLINGAME, CALIFORNIA.—The Peninsula Branch was organized June 10, 1956, by President Israel A. Smith.

Temporary quarters for meetings are in the Odd Fellows Hall in Burlingame.

In August, 1957, property was purchased high atop the beautiful Belmont Hills in Belmont, California, for a church. Tentative plans are to start building within a year.

A series was held September 15-22 by Evangelist Louis J. Ostertag of Santa Ana, California.

Elder Clayton Condit was elected branch president for 1957-58. He is stressing home ministry and priesthood emphasis in his program. Missionary series are being conducted currently by Missionary Dale Argot-singer and Elder Victor L. Wilshusen on the subjects of his program.

The women's department made and sold Christmas trees and candy, with proceeds going to the building fund. A priesthood and wives banquet was held during the holiday season. Yule camp at Happy Valley, Santa Cruz, California, was held December 27-29, with several Zion's Leaguers from the mission attending.—Reported by HELEN F. WILSHUSEN

Three Young Men Ordained

WOOD RIVER, ILLINOIS.—On November 13, three young men were called to the office of priest. They are Ellery E. Alley, Luther D. Felton, and L. W. Harold. On November 20, an ordination service was held for them. Spokesmen were Elder Walter Amick, Patriarch Clarence Archibald, and Elder Ronald E. Manuel.

In October, the women held a bake sale, clearing $100.00. The annual bazaar and chili supper in November cleared $230.00.

The men have completed painting the outside of the church, and now plan to redecorate the lower auditorium. The women have purchased a new sink.—Reported by BRANCH REPORTER

Church Building Moved

MARION, ILLINOIS.—The officers elected for the coming year are R. W. Poore, pastor; Wallace Peebles, associate pastor; Russel Ellis and Norman Jackson, counselors; Sharon Cogdill, secretary; Ernest Burklow, treasurer; Carl Raybourne, church school director; Elizabeth Poore, women's leader; Wallace Peebles, Zion's League leader; Mildred Atwood, music director; Norman Jackson, missionary co-ordinator; Dorothy Kelley, book steward; Glenn Jackson, publicity.

The following were sustained: I. T. Webb, historian; Norval Radford, statistician; and Ernest Burklow, solicitor.

Due to the fact that the church building had to be moved to make way for the new freeway to be built, church school and the Sunday morning services are held in the Shriners' Club on Route 37.

Each department is trying to raise funds for the building program through various activities.

For the second year the working women have held their own meetings in member homes. Verba Atwood is leader. They are studying the book The Woman Beautiful, with Mildred Atwood as teacher. The regular group meets each Thursday, starting with devotionals and classwork. They spend the rest of the day in activities to raise building fund money. The combined group meets the second Tuesday night of every other month for a program.

During the year, seventeen have been baptized, ten were lost by transfer, and ten babies have been blessed.

Seventy Cecil Robbins held a series of cottage meetings. Clifford Brown was baptized.—Reported by GLENNA JACKSON

Liahona Home-coming

LAWRENCE, KANSAS.—A reception was held for last year's pastor, Claude Norris, and his wife Dorothy, on November 6 at the church. They were presented with a set of the Three Standard Books as a gift from the branch.

On November 8, a harvest banquet for the men and boys of the branch was prepared and served by the women's department. Following the meal, an evening of entertainment including slides and singing was enjoyed by all those present.

The third annual Liahona home-coming was held in conjunction with the University of Kansas home-coming on the week end of November 23-24. A banquet was held Saturday evening in the University of Kansas student union building with Evan A. Fry as guest speaker and Frank Ebeling of Independence as master of ceremonies. Following the banquet, a talent show and refreshments at the church concluded the evening's activities. On Sunday, an early morning worship service was held in Danforth Chapel on the campus. At the morning preaching service, Elder Reginald Smith from Independence spoke on "Our Renewed Hopes."—Reported by JOYCE OSBORN

Four Recent Baptisms

PASCO - KENNEWICK, WASHINGTON.—At a business meeting held July 8, the following officers were elected: elder in charge, Wayne Rogers; secretary, Winnogene Eidem; treasurer, Chris Broderson; church school director, Mae Piert; women's leader, Laura Walden; social chairman, Leona Dickenson; Zion's League leader, Ray Edgar; music director, Janet Rogers; publicity agent, Irene Bowerman; auditor, Dick Bullard.

The week end of September 14-15 the group turned out in force to gather the grapes which were raised on the lot. The crop was good and the members enjoyed the fellowship of gathering the harvest.

Two bake sales were held recently, one sponsored by the Zion's League and one by the We-Ne-Ju Circle.

In August the Richard Chapman family moved to Seattle where he is employed, and in October Ray Edgar moved to St. Louis.

At a baptismal service held November 24, the following persons were baptized; Harold H. Norwood, Jr.; Hazel Showalter, Sandra Showalter and Richard Hunsaker. They were confirmed December 1.

In October a study session was begun, and is held each Sunday evening.

November 24 was a day of thanksgiving. Dinner was prepared by the We-Ne-Ju Circle and served after the morning service. About one hundred attended.—Reported by WINNOGENE EIDEM

Readings in Marriage Counseling

by Clark E. Vincent*

Fifty-two articles by recognized authorities that constitute a broad coverage of the marriage counseling field. Continuity for these selections is written by Dr. Vincent by means of introductory comments and biographical notes (Thomas Y. Crowell Company). Especially recommended for pastors, members of the priesthood, teachers, leaders, and parents. Also professionally trained marriage counselors and other professional people, university and college students. Readers of this book will be interested in the "Dating and Marriage" February issue of STRIDE.

$4.50

*Dr. Vincent is an elder and active in the Berkeley, California, Branch.

Shipping charges extra. If you live in Missouri, add 2% sales tax.

Box 477
Independence, Missouri

Box 382
Guelph, Ontario, Canada

Bulletin Board

Services in Boston Area

Boston Branch has moved its entire operation to 1386 Massachusetts Avenue in Lexington. Visitors and servicemen may call Pastor Albert L. Fisher (Winchester 6-3097 or Kenmore 6-4647) for information.

Services in Chicago, Illinois

Members of the First Chicago congregation are now holding services in their new church home at 5701 West Montrose. Two new missions have been established in Chicago. Home-wood mission meets in the VFW Hall, 18147 Harwood Avenue in Homewood; the LeClaire Courts mission at 4340 South Lamon, Chicago 38, Illinois. Brainerd Church is located at 8805 South Throop.

Services in Metropolitan New York City

Manhattan, Brooklyn, and Queens area: YMCA, 570 Jamaica Avenue, Highland Park; pastor, W. S. Lord, 60 Knightsbridge Road, Great Neck (telephone GR 2-9543 or VI 7-8527)

Church business folk lunch and fellowship third Friday each month, 12:15 p.m., at Sloan House "Y", 34th Street near Ninth Avenue, City of New York. Cafeteria service. All welcome.

Long Island area, Hicksville mission: home of Seventy Loyd Adams, 27 Parkway Drive, Clearview Village, Hicksville (telephone WELLS 1-5859); pastor, Wilbert Richards, 14 Oxford Lane, Bethpage (telephone WELLS 8-0456)

New Jersey, Newark Branch: Adoniram Temple (Masonic), 321 Second Avenue, Lyndhurst, New Jersey; pastor, A. E. Starks (telephone SUmit 6-2721 J)

Norwalk, Connecticut: church at 2 Mill Street, Broad River, Norwalk; pastor, Clifford Webb (telephone WOODward 6-0443)

New Haven, Connecticut: Redmen's Hall, New Street, West Haven, Connecticut; pastor, Don Crowell (telephone WEST 4-1879)

Further information, if necessary, may be obtained from the district president, Perce R. Judd, WELLS 1-8949.

Regional College Student Conference in Montgomery

The first regional college student conference for the southeastern United States will be held January 25 and 26 at the Reorganized Church in Montgomery, Alabama (corner of Goode and Wade Streets). It is being sponsored by the R. L. D. S. students of Troy State College. Registration will take place from 1:00 to 2:00 p.m. on Saturday; a fee of five dollars will be charged each person to cover expenses of the conference. Lodging is to be provided by members of Montgomery Branch. All who plan to attend are urged to notify those in charge by January 20. Further information is available from Joe Sellers, 1112 North Three Notch Street, Troy.

BOOKS WANTED

Ernest L. Grasshoff, Walker Street, Route 1, Evansville, Wisconsin, would like to obtain copies of Stebbins' Book of Mormon Lectures, a small edition of the Book of Mormon such as was used by Henry Stebbins, and Cornish's Into the Latter Day Light. Please write stating price and condition of books before sending them.

Nedine Clark, 3275 D Street, Salem, Oregon, would like to obtain two copies of Christiana Salyards' The Enduring Word. Please state price and condition before sending them. She also needs a copy of the November-December Daily Bread so that she can complete her reference file.

Change in Name and Location of Brentwood Branch

What was previously known as the Brentwood Branch of St. Louis District is now called the Kirkwood Branch. The location has been changed to 830 North Kirkwood Road, Kirkwood, Missouri.

D. T. WILLIAMS

REQUESTS FOR PRAYERS

Mrs. Elva McDonald of 409 West Eighth Street, Grand Island, Nebraska, requests prayers for her mother, Mrs. Effie L. Galland, who is to undergo surgery for a broken hip.

Mrs. Ivor Surrudge, Bevier, Missouri, requests prayers that her health may be restored.

WEDDINGS

Ackers-Schmidt

Dorothy Mae Schmidt, daughter of August and Cora Mae Schmidt of Kansas City, Missouri, was married to Thomas L. Ackers, son of Taylor D. and Mary Haynes Ackers of Ohatchee, Alabama, on November 3 in the chapel at Fort Benning, Georgia, Seventy J. H. Yager, officiating. The bride is in the WAC, and the groom is in the Army. Both are stationed at Fort Benning.

Miller-Howell

Marjorie R. Howell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Howell of Payson, Illinois, and Elbert F. Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Miller of Paris, Missouri, were married on December 1 at Akers Chapel in Payson. Seventy William Guthrie officiated.

Crane-Peters

Kathryn M. Peters, daughter of Mrs. Dwight Peters of Hannibal, Missouri, and Ralph R. Crane, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Crane, Sr., of Palmyra, Missouri, were married on December 1 at the home of the bride. Elder Wayne Peters read the wedding ceremony.

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Romig of Bellaire, Texas, became the parents of twin sons,

TRACT REVIEW

*I Will Build
My Church*

Here is a best seller from the pen of George Knotts. A young man with a great deal of missionary zeal and artistic ability, George drew a church building with its parts representing characteristics of the New Testament church. Then he suggested the words that would best tie in with the illustration.

The title is based on the New Testament statement of Jesus. And the question is raised on the cover: "Does Christ's Church Exist Today?" The reader is then directed to the inside of the tract to "points of identification" whereby the New Testament church organization and characteristics may be compared with any other church now in existence.

On the back page, the reader is invited to compare the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints with the New Testament church.

This tract was first offered for sale in December of 1955. During the two-year period following, sixty thousand copies have been printed. It has been a favorite for mass tracting of neighborhoods. Single copy price is 2 cents, but in quantities of 1000, it is 1 cent each.

James Carl and Terry Grant, on July 29. The boys were blessed on December 1 by Seventy John Puckett and Elder A. J. Banta. Both parents attended Graceland College. Mrs. Romig is the former Dorothy Wilder.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy L. Aultman became the parents of a son, Ronald Lee, on September 4. He was blessed on December 8 by his grandfather, Elder R. L. Aultman, assisted by Elder Floyd Burt, pastor of the Tampa Branch. Mrs. Aultman is the former Mildred Cothron of Tampa.

Mr. and Mrs. Ron Donoghue of Toronto, Ontario, became the parents of a daughter, Cynthia Lee, on October 12. She was blessed on December 8 at Toronto by Elders F. L. LeFeuvre and A. O. Crownover. Mrs. Donoghue is the former Doreen King.

We're on the Air . . .

STATE AND CITY	CALL LETTERS	DIAL READING	DAY AND TIME
ALABAMA, Atmore	WATM	1580	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
ALABAMA, Evergreen	WBLO	1470	Sunday, 9:00 a.m.
ARKANSAS, Jonesboro	KNEA	970	Sunday, 9:00 a.m.
CALIFORNIA, Wasco	KWSO	1050	Sunday, 7:15 a.m.
COLORADO, Durango	KIUP	930	Sunday, 9:45 a.m.
COLORADO, Montrose	KUBC	1260	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
FLORIDA, Orlando	WLOF	950	Sunday, 7:45 a.m.
IDAHO, Sand Point	KSPT	1400	Sunday, 6:15 p.m.
ILLINOIS, Marion	WGGH	1150	Sunday, 10:00 a.m.
ILLINOIS, Moline	WQUA	1230	Sunday, 8:15 a.m.
ILLINOIS, Mt. Vernon	WMIX	(FM 94.1) 940	Sunday, 12:15 p.m.
KANSAS, Concordia	KFRM	550	Sunday, 8:30 a.m.
MICHIGAN, Bad Axe	WLEW	1340	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
MICHIGAN, Flint	WMRP	1570	Friday, 10:00 a.m.
MICHIGAN, Houghton Lake	WHGR	1290	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
MINNESOTA, Detroit Lakes	KDLM	1360	Sunday, 8:45 a.m.
MISSOURI, Fulton	KFAL	900	Sunday, 8:15 a.m.
MISSOURI, Kansas City	KMCL	980	Sunday, 8:30 a.m.
NEW MEXICO, Clovis	KCLV	1240	Sunday, 7:45 a.m.
NEW YORK, Hornell	WWHG	1320	Sunday, 10:30 a.m.
NORTH DAKOTA, Valley City	KOVC	1490	Sunday, 6:00 p.m.
OHIO, New Philadelphia	WJER	1450	Sunday, 8:30 p.m.
ONTARIO, Guelph	CJOY	1450	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
OREGON, Lakeview	KQIK	1230	Sunday, 2:00 p.m.
PENNSYLVANIA, Charleroi	WESA	940	Sunday, 8:30 a.m.
TENNESSEE, Paris	WTPR	710	Sunday, 7:45 a.m.
WASHINGTON, Vancouver	KHFS	1150	Sunday, 8:30 a.m.
WEST VIRGINIA, Parkersburg	WCEF	1050	Sunday, 12:05 p.m.
WISCONSIN, Richland Center	WRCO	1450	Sunday, 8:15 a.m.

JANUARY 6, 1958

(23) 23

www.LatterDayTruth.org

And Finally...

Clifford R. Craven
305 Nichols,
Lee's Summit, Missouri

65444
12-57
h

THE PLAGUE

Intolerance and racial and religious discrimination are not the by-products of any particular kind of working condition, wage classification, or economic group. They are germs which do their damage in every type of human being, and they are just as contagious and indiscriminate as chicken pox, while having a mortality factor more closely resembling that of cancer and tuberculosis.—Charles E. Wilson.

ALTERNATIVE

The brotherhood of man is not a dream; it is a fact. And if mankind is to survive as a species, this fact must be recognized. This curious point where biology and religion meet must be our new point of departure, the only basis for a brave new world—its alternative being war and chaos.—Stuart Cloete.

TIRED SOULS' CHAPEL

Have you ever finished up a series of hard grinding jobs, to find yourself so tired you wondered how you could stick it out till quitting time? Have you felt that you couldn't tackle another set of problems, nor start another production job, and that, for this particular day, to admit the solemn truth, you'd had it?

Well, then, you understand. And may the Lord comfort your soul.

Somewhere in our rambles around in the big city we passed by an "All Souls' Church." It seemed like a most kindly, generous, all-of-us-included gesture to the world. Just seeing it warmed the heart. Some good people must have been back of it.

However . . .

What we really need these days is a "Tired Souls' Chapel." Why not? In it there would be no need for pulpit, choir, public address system, or organ. Just the altar in quiet dignity, illuminated by modest candle light. High windows, letting in the radiance of the sky. Pews where one could sit and rest. A space for peace and a time for quiet while one bows his head in prayer and thinks about God.

This is not to replace the church. In fact, it could be set up in some corner of the church for private worship. One could even have such a place in his home. There was a time when homes had chapels and families worshiped God together. Perhaps in our modern world we have lost something that we ought to restore.

L. J. L.

PROMPTNESS

I owe all my success in life to having been always a quarter of an hour beforehand.

—Lord Nelson

BEING EQUAL

Equality causes no war.

—Solon

A CHECKUP

It's good to have money and the things that money can buy, but it's good, too, to check up once in a while and make sure you haven't lost the things that money can't buy.

—George Horace Lorimer

APPLIED RELIGION

We have committed the golden rule to memory; let us now commit it to life.—Edwin Markham.

FOR YOUR REMINDER BOOK

"A smile is an international language. If you say 'Please' and 'Thank you' you can get along with anybody."—An unidentified movie producer in a radio interview, on returning from Japan where he worked on "A Teahouse by the Side of the Road."

"Keep on trying, never give up, and always hope for the best."—Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., in an address to the General Assembly of the United Nations, November 4, 1956.

Contents

EDITORIAL AND OFFICIAL

Offerings of the New Year	3
Regional College Student Conferences	4
Across the Desk	4

FEATURE ARTICLES

Radio Amateurs Organize	2
Wind in the Boughs, by E. Roy Glomstad	5
Archaeological Find near St. Louis, by Roger Yarrington	8
Rendering an Acceptable Ministry, by Elbert A. Smith	9
Dedication of Beckley, West Virginia, Mission, by Madeline Hinkle	11
Women Testify through Active Membership, by Roy A. Chevillie	12
Autobiography of Irene Butler Sorden, Part I	14

SPECIAL COLUMNS

I Had an Experience, by Alma C. Andrews	10
Question Time	17
Book Review	18
Letters	18
Briefs	19
Bulletin Board	23
And Finally	24

new church seal jewelry

Sweater Guards

Gold finish with simulated pearls around both seals which are connected by a pearl-studded chain. Order several for gifts. Herald House

$1.50 plus 15c federal excise tax

Box 477
Independence, Missouri
Box 382
Guelph, Ontario, Canada

SAINTS' HERALD

Volume 105 / January 13, 1958 / Number 2

Invitation to Worship

Photo by Alfred Hulmes

Hospital Group Recognizes Him with Certificate

Major B. Einstein, vice-president of the First National Bank and a member of the Board of Trustees for the Jewish Hospital in St. Louis, Missouri; Lyman H. Turner, a member of the Baptist Hospital Board of Trustees, Springfield, Missouri; and Bishop DeLapp—recipients of merit of honor certificates.

Bishop DeLapp Is Honored

BISHOP G. L. DELAPP WAS honored recently at the annual banquet of the Missouri Hospital Association in St. Louis.

Brother DeLapp was cited for his long-time service in the interest of better health care in hospital circles, Blue Cross work, United Fund campaigns, and other related activities. He was one of three who received merit of honor certificates at the banquet.

Senator Stuart Symington of Missouri was the principal speaker of the evening.

In recognizing Brother DeLapp's contribution in the field of health, the association cited his service as a member of the corporate board of Blue Cross Hospital Services in Kansas City for eighteen years. He has served on the Blue Cross board of trustees for eleven years, and he has served as chairman of the public relations committee for five years. He is now serving his third year as president of the Kansas City Area Blue Cross.

He is also vice-president for Jackson County of the Metropolitan Area Planning Council and a member of the public health, hospitals, and medical care committee. He was active in the formative period of the Kansas City Area Hospital Association and was its first president.

As Presiding Bishop of the church, Brother DeLapp is also a member of the board of the Independence Hospital and Sanitarium. He has been a member of the board since 1931 and its secretary since 1932.

Four hundred and fifty persons attended the banquet at which Bishop DeLapp was honored. A. Neal Deaver, administrator of the Independence Hospital and Sanitarium and a trustee of the state association, accompanied Bishop DeLapp to St. Louis for the meeting.

Authors in This Issue

- E. E. Potter (page 5), elder, Auckland, New Zealand.
 - William J. Rounds (page 9), assistant to bishop of Far West Stake, Hamilton, Missouri.
 - Irene Butler Sorden (page 10), Independence, Missouri.
 - Marian Blumenschein (page 16), San Salvador, El Salvador.
 - Marguerite Constance (page 14), Blue Springs, Missouri.
 - Eva Dexter (page 15), Lansing, Michigan.
-

Cover Picture

Silhouetted against the stained glass window of the church in Omaha, Nebraska, is Mrs. Lester Kavan. The picture is an enlargement made from a 35 mm. snapshot.

In His Name

PRAYER SEEMS DIFFICULT to many Christians because of the sacred pronouns which are commonly used. There is no commandment that we need to address Deity as thou or thy rather than you or yours. It has been observed that more people are using the regular forms in recent years. There is a possibility that the reverence intended by using the sacred forms is not worth the cost if it discourages people from public prayer which is commanded by the Lord (Doctrine and Covenants 21: 5).

Last summer a brother asked me, "Why should we say 'In Jesus' name' when we pray?" The answer is that we are directed to do that in the word of God. Paul wrote, "Whatsoever ye do in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God and the Father by him" (Colossians 3: 17). The Saints were told, "Whatsoever ye ask the Father in my name it shall be given unto you, that is expedient for you" (Doctrine and Covenants 85: 16).

It seems possible that some of our church members have become confused and felt that it was optional whether they prayed in the name of Jesus or left it off, as one might omit the complimentary closing on a letter. In children's prayer meetings the testimonies will often be concluded by, "You pray for me and I'll pray for you." Because of their lack of training and experience they imitate rather than move out on their own ideas. Good leadership can remedy this to the mutual benefit of all. A sister told me just recently that priest-hood men are omitting the concluding prayer words, ". . . in Jesus' name, Amen." In the light of all the scriptural injunctions this church accepts as God-given, this is hardly excusable.

After the lame man was healed at the Gate Beautiful through the ministry of Peter and John, they were challenged by the Jews, "By what power, or by what name, have ye done this?" Peter answered, "By the name of Jesus Christ . . . for there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved" (Acts 4: 7-12; Doctrine and Covenants 16: 4 f). John records the promises of Jesus relative to asking or prayer: "And whatsoever ye shall ask in my name, that will I do, that the Father may be glorified in the Son" (John 14: 13; 15: 16; 16: 23).

It may be urged that the Lord's Prayer (Matthew 5: 10-15) has the sacred pronouns but not the closing "in Jesus' name" so people should not be blamed for omitting the name of Jesus. This is a negative type of argument and should not take precedence over direct commands to ask in his name. Latter-day revelations lay a solemn obligation upon us always to use his name. "Thou shalt continue in calling upon God in my name . . ." (23: 3 a). Enoch is quoted as saying that God ". . . commanded me that I should ask in the name of your Only Begotten" (36: 12 a). "All things must be done in the name of Christ, whatsoever you do in the Spirit" (46: 9 a).

The Book of Mormon is in complete harmony with the foregoing commands. To cite just a few: "And Jesus again shewed himself unto them, for they were praying unto the Father, in his name" (III Nephi 12: 15). "Ye must always pray unto the Father in my name; and whatsoever ye shall ask the Father in my name which is right, believing that ye shall receive, behold it shall be given unto you" (III Nephi 8: 51).

Foreigners

"Now therefore ye are no more strangers and foreigners, but fellow citizens with the saints, and of the household of God."—Ephesians 2:19.

NAME CALLING IS A DEVICE often employed by the unscrupulous. Politicians love it because it is hard to counteract. Always they use names which are loaded with emotions and are not readily amenable to logic. A "Red," a heathen, an un-American, or a foreigner are names used to stigmatize and to frustrate.

Now it just happens that the word "foreigner" innocently gets into our church literature. No stigma is intended, but from correspondence reaching us from abroad it is apparent that the classification is resented. Where are these "foreign missions" of which we write? How can we justify the statement that we are sending church officials to "foreign lands," or say a "foreign student arrives," in a world-wide church? We talk about a universal church but think provincially.

Our overseas missions and churches abroad have been patient and understanding. We resolve that hereafter the ugly word "foreign" shall not slip into print. Then old patterns of thought assert themselves, or in some unguarded moment we forget to take that bad word out of the manuscript we edit, and it's done again. Believe us, our brethren abroad are not "strangers and foreigners," but part "of the household of God."

Official

Missionary Camp

By arrangement with Apostle D. T. Williams the East Central States Mission will conduct the second year of the Missionary Camp at Camp Manitou, Michigan, June 8-15, 1958. The recommended age range for this camp is nineteen to twenty-two.

Missionary Camp offers opportunity for study of the fundamental beliefs of the church and training in the basic techniques of sharing the gospel with neighbors and friends.

This camp is sponsored primarily for youth of the East Central States Mission; however, applications from other areas will be considered if they can be cared for in the normal camp plans. Further information is available from Russell F. Ralston, the Auditorium, Independence, Missouri.

THE FIRST PRESIDENCY
By F. H. Edwards

Auditorium Day March 9, 1958

At the time this is being written, we are just closing the books for the year 1957, but we will not be in a position to state definitely the results of our fund-raising program for the Auditorium construction until all December reports are in. We are hopeful that the amount needed which we stated in the article of October, 1957, to be $138,339.59 will have been received. If so, we have the following needs yet to meet before our next General Conference:

Seating, approximately $175,000.00
Elevator 18,900.00
Ceiling, etc., for the lower auditorium 43,605.00

TOTAL . . . $237,505.00

We are, therefore, designating March 9, 1958, as Auditorium Day. Offerings received on that day will go to meet the needs above listed.

We have appreciated the excellent support given by members of the church everywhere, and we all look forward to the completion of our headquarters building.

THE PRESIDING BISHOPRIC

By G. L. DeLapp

THE FIRST PRESIDENCY

By Israel A. Smith

Across the Desk

OF THE FIRST PRESIDENCY

Apostle Arthur Oakman, who was ill before Christmas, felt unable to send greetings this year. He has asked us to print the following expression of gratitude for the cards he and his family received:

Arthur, Elva, and Channing Oakman acknowledge with grateful thanks the kind wishes expressed by many friends in their cards and take this means of returning their thanks and reciprocating the expressions of good will.

From a letter sent to Apostle Charles R. Hield by Teae Haoa of Noumea, New Caledonia, written December 18:

Your nice letter came to us three weeks ago, and we enjoyed reading it. I am very sorry for not answering it sooner, but we had to move from Tahiti and we spent almost two months getting a house. Now we are living in a comfortable one that has a large storeroom in front, so we are hoping to be able to make it into a tearoom or ice-cream shop.

Since coming to this faraway island, we have held meetings every Sunday and Communion once a month as we did in Tahiti. I came here to meet my husband in October, 1956, and brought our four younger children. The oldest one stayed at Papeete until this month. Now the whole family is together, and we give thanks to our heavenly Father for bringing every member of our little family here safely and in good health.

My husband came here ten months ahead of us. He has been in New Caledonia two years now. On Sundays we have preaching at eleven o'clock, and after that we sing for about half an hour. Then we all have dinner here at our home. We have Tahitian people, Caledonian, people from France or Australia, and sometimes Chinese from Indo-China. We have difficulty trying to make them understand the gospel of our Lord and Savior.

We are having song practices at night for Christmas because Lehi wants to take us to the hospital, jail, and aged people's home to sing carols. The jail is on an island about four miles from here; to get there we must hire a boat which will cost about twenty francs each. Some of the nonmembers have asked us to go to their homes and sing for their relatives, too.

Here are the names of the church members in our area: Elders Lehi and Tohitia a Paho, and Priest Roura Le Noir; Teriimatatini, Teravero, Mairai, Teae, Niniura and Lily Rae Haoa; Henri Richmond, Vairaaroa Jeannot, Maiati Moeava, Tihoti, Helen Clark, Teumere a Fareata, Yolande Pioi, Taupepa a Vanaa, Albertine Smidt, and Antoina Foster.

We have also received a letter from Brother Butterworth which has given us much help in our work here.

Give our love to your good family, to our dear Prophet Israel Smith, to Brother May and his family, and to all the Saints in your faraway field. That God bless you is our prayer.

The Saints' Herald

Vol. 105 January 13, 1958 No. 2

EDITORS: The First Presidency: Israel A. Smith, F. Henry Edwards, W. Wallace Smith. ASSISTANTS: Chris B. Hartshorn, Managing Editor; Naomi Russell, Assistant Editor; Paul A. Wellington, Assistant Editor; Roger Yarrington, Assistant Editor; Audrey Stub-

bart, Copy Editor; and Leonard J. Lea, Contributing Editor. BUSINESS MANAGER, Kenneth L. Graham.

The Saints' Herald is the official publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, with headquarters at The Auditorium, Independence, Missouri, and is issued through the offices of Herald Publishing House, 103 South Osage Street, Independence, Missouri.

Herald editors are not responsible for the views and opinions expressed in articles or communications other than those of editorial authorship.

Entered as second-class matter at the post office at Independence, Missouri, under Act of March 3, 1879. Issued weekly at Independence, Missouri, except daily during the biennial General Conference. Price, $4.00 per year in advance in the U.S.A., its territories and possessions; Canada, $4.25 per year; other countries, $5.00 per year. Notice of a change of address must be given three weeks ahead of the date that it is to become effective. Accepted for mailing at the special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917, authorized July 21, 1921. Printed in the United States of America.

E. E. Potter

Beyond the Telescope

God is omnipresent, omnipotent, omniscient
He is also a concerned and loving Father

The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament showeth his handywork.—Psalm 19: 1.

WHEN WE are trying to develop a true philosophy of life, one of the first things to do is to obtain as clearly as possible an understanding and an appreciation of God. Taking our text at its face value, let us travel out into space and see if we can obtain some idea of what God is like. These things will not let us meet God face to face, but we can obtain some idea of his character by studying the works of his hands.

Trying to travel through space at ten or 20,000 miles an hour is a waste of time, so let us hop on an express that travels 186,000 miles a second. We could arrive at the moon in just over one second and at the sun in eight minutes, but if we really want to go places, we will head for the wide open spaces.

In half an hour we pass Jupiter; in an hour Saturn flashes past, four hours later we wave good-bye to Pluto. There may be one or two planets farther out, but so far we have not discovered them.

Our first call is on our recently discovered neighbor Proxima Centauri. The three stars in this group revolve around one another; one we have known for many years, Alpha Centauri; the other is Beta Centauri. Proxima is only 25,000,000 million miles away, but Alpha Centauri is the largest of the three. It will take us four and a quarter years to arrive at Alpha Centauri.

Sirius, also known as the Dog Star, is the brightest in the heavens. A mere traveling 51,000,000 million miles from earth, it is eight and a half years traveling time away, while the gigantic sun, Aldebaran, is 553 years away—and these are our neighbors!

This galaxy system of ours is from 100,000 to 200,000 light-years in diameter and 10,000 to 20,000 light-years thick at the center. Remembering that light travels 186,000 miles a second, we must agree that these distances are beyond human comprehension.

In our galaxy there are about 200,000,000,000 stars, some bigger and some smaller than our sun, but there are millions of bodies that do not give out any light. About one fifth of the total mass of our galaxy is invisible to us; this consists of dark suns, planets, satellites, planetoids, and vast clouds of dark matter.

But flying through space with our galaxy are great flocks of globular clusters. These ball-shaped clusters of 100 to 200 light-years in diameter contain tens of thousands of stars, many of them much larger than our sun.

Also traveling along with us is another class or system known as the Magellanic Clouds. Here, again, we find gigantic suns, one of them—S. Doradus—is 500,000 times more luminous than our sun.

Astronomers claim that if the heavens were divided into sections of about the size of the moon (and we must admit that this is a very small section of the whole universe) photographed with the appliances that the astronomical scientists have today, the photo would reveal 1,000 galaxies in each section and some would show as many as 10,000.

IT is impossible to make out the star mist beyond 1,600,000,000 light-years, as the faint glow that is in space fogs up the plates, but Professor Einstein's computation on the relationship of mass and space lead to the assumption that our universe should have a diameter of from 7 to 8,000,000,000 light-years, and a possibility of 1,000,000,000 galaxies, each with from 200 to 500 billion stars.

Sir Arthur Eddington has calculated that if the nebulae are actually receding as fast as they appear to be, the total amount of matter in the whole universe must be that of 11,000 million million million suns—nearly three million times as much as we can see in our telescopes. If those parts of the universe we cannot see are essentially similar to those that we can, this can only mean that the whole universe must be nearly three million times as big as the fragment of it that we see.—The Stars in Their Courses, by Sir James Jeans, page 149. Cambridge University Press, 1954.

This is our universe, but science is coming to the thought that the universe may be only one of many. Already we have far more than our minds are capable of grasping. Measurements in space are only figures on paper.

LET US STOP here and take stock of what all this that we have dealt with means. The chemical composition of the stars as far as we have been able to test—and that is some thousands of light-years into space—are all the same or sufficiently alike to cause astronomers to refer to the great mind behind the universe. There is only one mind, and that mind is God. Practically all astronomers recognize that the universe was created billions of years ago.

We conclude this discussion of the evidence of creation from design with the words of the Regius Professor of Astronomy at the University of Glasgow.

When we study the universe and appreciate its grandeur and orderliness, it seems to me that we are led to the recognition of a Creative Power and cosmic purpose that transcends all our limited minds can comprehend. In one of his essays Lord Bacon expresses this belief picturesquely as follows: "I had rather believe all the fables in the Legend and the Talmud and the Alcoran than that this Universal Frame is without a mind."

Today we have learned very much more about the "Universal Frame" than was known in Bacon's time; nevertheless, to many of us, scientific and nonscientific alike, the belief in a Divine Creator is as necessary now as ever it was. To one astronomer at least "the heavens are telling us the glory of God and the wonder of his works."—The Christian View of Science and Scripture, by Bernard Ramm, B.D., M.A., Ph.D., page 103-4. Paternoster Publications, London, England. Used by permission.

SEVERAL thoughts arise out of this material. (1) There was one mind only that was the Creator of all things; he knew just what he wanted and did it. Space is not littered with wreckage that would be there if there were a time of trial and error. There is order; law governs all things.

(2) If God were not perfect it would be very apparent in his works, as all things are on such a colossal scale that a small fault would soon assume gigantic proportions, but we do not find even one.

(3) Science has assumed that the age of our universe is from 5 to 8,000,000,000 years old. (A little further on, I will present material to show that God is still actively engaged in this world.) Well, 8,000,000,000 may not be an eternity, but as far as we are concerned it is. God was active away back there, and since he was just as perfect then as he is today we are justified in claiming that God who created the worlds is eternal.

(4) Science claims that our world is about 3 to 4,000,000,000 years old; we shall take their figures and again look at the work of God. If God was creating suns and worlds billions of light-years away at the same time that he created this world, then we must claim that he is omnipresent as well.

(5) If God created all of these bodies at practically the same time (and as I have pointed out there is only one Creator) then he must be omnipotent. Who else is there in all eternity but God? No other power can equal his—at least we cannot trace the slightest evidence of such a power.

(6) When we look at the atomic structure of the universe we must bow our heads and admit that He is omniscient as well.

We cannot begin to examine the whole universe from an atomic point of view, but let us look at one very small portion of it, man, and we will deal with but a very small portion of him.

I will praise thee; for I am fearfully and wonderfully made: marvellous are thy works; and that my soul knoweth right well.—Psalm 139: 14.

We shall have to limit our investigation of man to his blood alone. This will not be dealt with as a doctor would, but as a scientist would. If we take a drop of blood, dilute it, and then magnify it 150 times, we find that the drop has become many tiny cells or discs. We are informed that there are about 25,000,000,000,000 of these in the body of a normal man.

If we increase our magnifying power a thousand times and select and dye one of these discs, we will find that it has a delicate and elaborate structure with porous walls. Its interior is a very fine network. Again we increase our magnifying power; every thread appears as a string of beads, and each bead has a wonderful mosaic pattern. There are a thousand atoms all joined together in each bead.

WE again step up our magnifying power several million times, and the beads disappear; we seem to be standing upon the face of the earth gazing into space. There is the Milky Way and millions of suns. There are differences between the atomic world and here, but the similarities are so apparent that the solar system and the galaxy system at once come to mind. Electrons resolve like planets around a central solar nucleus. If a man lived upon such a planet, space, in comparison to his size, would extend for millions of miles and be filled with numberless suns and planets, all proclaiming the glory of God.

When we realize that such a structure is in all things throughout the whole of the universe we are compelled to admit that God is omniscient.

Here I was a microscopic speck on an infinitesimal globe far out in the vast expanse of space, having the audacity to address as Father . . . the Creator of all things.

Several years ago, I spent considerable time in studying along these lines and one Sunday evening, while sitting in church listening to the sermon, I found my mind wandering off to what I had been studying. Suddenly the vast difference between God and myself seemed to bear down upon me. Here I was, a microscopic speck on an infinitesimal globe far out in the vast expanse of space, having the audacity to address as Father One who, seated in the midst of eternity, was the Creator and director and controller of all things. Fear gripped my heart; I felt very small and insignificant. Then the thought was projected into my mind, "My son, I do not want you to fear me, but to love me." With tears in my eyes, I bowed my head and worshipped.

I turned to my Scriptures and again found material that caused me to wonder at the wonderful love and power of God and Christ.

In the beginning was the gospel preached through the Son. And the gospel was the word, and the word was with the Son, and the Son was with God, and the Son was of God.

The same was in the beginning with God. All things were made by him; and without him was not anything made which was made.—John 1: 1-3.

Who is the image of the invisible God, the first-born of every creature. For by him were all things created, that are in heaven, and that are in earth, visible and invisible, whether they be thrones, or dominions, or principalities, or powers; all things were created by him, and for him; and he is before all things, and by him all things consist.—Colossians 1: 15-17.

From this I learn that He who walked by the Sea of Galilee, he who died for me, not only created me but also was with God and engaged in the work of creating billions of years ago. I am not teaching that there are two Gods. There are not, the latter-day Scriptures clearly state that fact and all nature cries out that there is only one Creator. I have my own ideas regarding the relationship of God and Christ, but I may be miles from the truth. My Bible tells me in Colossians 2: 2, 3:

That their hearts might be comforted, being knit together in love, and unto all riches of the full assurance of understanding, to the acknowledgment of the mystery of God and of Christ, who is of God, even the Father; in whom are hid all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge.

IN the hereafter we shall know all things and understand even God—at least those of the celestial world will—but the fact that Christ was the creator under God is fully taught in the Scriptures. Now I should like to go a little deeper into Colossians 1: 17, but first let us look again at the atom.

Consider now the dilemma of the nuclear physicist when he finally looks in utter amazement at the pattern he had drawn of the oxygen nucleus (the nucleus of any other atom would serve to illustrate this point equally well). Here are eight positively charged protons closely associated together within the confines of this tiny nucleus, with them are eight neutrons—a total of sixteen particles—eight positively charged, eight with no charge. Each of these particles is known to have its own individual identity.

An earlier physicist had discovered that "like charges of electricity or magnetism repel each other, unlike charges attract each other," and the entire history of electrical phenomena and electrical equipment had been built up on this solid fact, known as Coulomb's law of repulsion between like charges. What was wrong? What holds the nucleus together? Why doesn't it fly apart? And therefore, why don't all atoms fly apart?—The Atom Speaks, by D. Lee Chestnut, pages 55-56. Published by Wm. B. Eerdmans Publishing Co., Grand Rapids, Michigan, 1953.

We are bought with a price, a gigantic price, a price paid in love and that because of love. We shall never find real peace until we live in love . . .

Karl K. Darrow, in his book Atomic Energy, states it this way:

You grasp what this implies. It implies that all the massive nuclei have no right to be alive at all. Indeed, they should never have been created, and, if created, they should have blown up instantly. Yet here they all are, and the rocks of the earth are full of these little high-explosive clusters, all of them ready to separate in halves with transformation of rest mass into kinetic energy and other forms of energy, and yet, they never do sunder themselves. Some inflexible inhibition is holding them relentlessly together. The nature of the inhibition is also a secret; but here I suspect that it is neither a military secret nor a quantum-mechanical secret, but one thus far reserved by nature for herself.—The Atom Speaks, pages 66-67.

TO OBTAIN some idea of the power within the atom that hold all the parts together I again quote from The Atom Speaks.

Starting with the known fact that 900,000 electron-volts was required to fire a proton into a nucleus, scientists used this yardstick and calculated that the binding force between two protons down within the nucleus is of the order of ten to fifty pounds. But observe carefully that this dimension "down inside the nucleus" is a very small dimension, and therefore that this binding of cohering force is limited in its operation only to the infinitesimal center of the atoms of matter. It is estimated that the distance between two protons within a nucleus is of the order of one twelve-quadrillionth of an inch (1/12,000,000,000,000,000 inch) to say that the attractive force between two protons within the nucleus is of the order of ten to fifty pounds seems almost prosaic. To begin to understand the real significance of this statement we must find some known standards of comparison.

One gram is 1/454th of a pound and one proton has a mass equal to one gram divided by 600,000,000,000,000,000,000. Not very big is it? But two of these protons of this infinitesimal size are held together down inside the nucleus with this pull of 10 to 50 pounds.—The Atom Speaks, pages 61-62.

"He is before all things, and in him all things hold together."—Colossians 1:

17, Revised Standard Version. The Goodspeed Version says, "He existed before all things and he sustains and embraces them all."

From these facts we can begin to comprehend the power and glory of both God and Christ. Not only did they create this universe billions of years ago, but they are the power that holds the universe together today. Is it the release of this power that will cause the world at the end of time to dissolve with a great noise and the elements to melt with fervent heat?

There is one paragraph on page 283 of Report on the Atom, by Gordon Dean, former Chairman, U. S. Atomic Energy Commission, that I would like to present here.

Mankind has recently entered a room, the door to which is labeled the atomic age. We are in that room, and we have found that it is so large and so dimly lighted that we cannot yet begin to perceive all that is in it. But we have crossed the threshold, and we cannot turn back. All we can do is go forward boldly, and yet as wisely, as we can. One of the great responsibilities that we in America assumed when we brought the atomic bomb into the world was to lead the way into the atomic age. To do it well, our statesmen will need the understanding, and guidance, and the help of every citizen.

God has called us to build Zion, and I believe that atomic power is safe only in the hands of those who co-operate with the power behind the atom, God. There it will be one means of bringing blessings to the world.

Last Easter, with a desire to have a greater understanding of the love of God and Christ, I tried to visualize the reactions of the hosts of heaven during Easter week. We can well imagine them watching with intense interest all of the events leading up to the trial of the Savior, and I can imagine the cry of horror—and that from the very depths of hearts that intensely loved their Savior—as they saw the scourge lash down upon the back of Christ. I tried to imagine the instantaneous turning to God for him to intervene, but he, with face drawn because of the terrible suffering that he felt as he saw his Son and those he so dearly loved (men), would sadly shake his head and in broken tones state, "There is no other way." Again the hosts of heaven would turn to view the mockery of a trial meted out to Christ; they would be sick with an intense longing to protect and although helpless they would watch until his crucifixion. I can well imagine hearing a cry ring through the vault of heaven, "O my Son, my Son." Well does Paul state in II Corinthians 5: 19, "that God is in Christ, reconciling the world unto himself."

We are bought with a price, a gigantic price, a price paid in love and that because of love. We were made because of love and for love. We shall never find real peace until we live in love—love of God and love of our fellow man. This is the root cause behind every aspect of the gospel. Zion will be the developing ground for our love. We shall find a wonderful joy in living with God, in living with our fellow men because we love them. God will shine out of Zion, out of our lives, because we love him, and he is love.

The Desire to Serve

AT THE MORNING SERVICE of one of our new Independence churches, a young member of the priesthood was doing very well in presiding, making the announcements, and introducing the speaker. He contributed something good to the dignity and spirit of reverence there.

Then somebody said: "If you could see the difference between what he is now, and what he was before his family came into the church, you would be amazed. They have all come up a long way. It seems to me that their desire to serve the church has made them want to be their very best."

Could there be any finer tribute to the influence of the church in the life of its people?

Those who enter into the life of the church and serve it also receive many fine things in return: personal development, character growth, spiritual strength, graciousness and charm of manner.

L. J. L.

How Much Should I Give?

LATTER DAY SAINTS can be generally classified in two categories. Those who give (of their time, talents, and money) and those who do not give to the work of the church. Now I am assuming that most, if not all, readers of the Herald fall in the first group. I believe that they are fully converted and devoted to the church, and further that they want to do their share or more in the task God has assigned them. Yet I have observed recently that many of these good people are often troubled by their inability to determine just what their share in supporting the church should be.

This article is an exploratory attempt to consider certain things which might help us as good devoted Latter Day Saints determine just how much we should give each year to the total work of the church. Note that I said, "Help us to determine," for in the final analysis no one can determine for us. Part of the stewardship God has given us lies in exercising our agency or right of choice. Yet any time we use this agency, we need to consider all the facts available so that we may exercise it wisely.

First let us review briefly the law which commands us to: (1) make our annual accounting, (2) pay the tithe of one-tenth of our increase, (3) give our offerings out of the remaining nine-tenths of our increase, and (4) then consecrate of our surplus, if any.

Now God's law of tithing is unique in the world today, in that it exempts our needs from the tithe. Here again God puts it squarely up to us to decide what our needs are. Again we must exercise our God-given agency. No one else has any right to determine our need. I am not accountable to my solicitor, or pastor, or even to the Bishop, or to anyone else except God. But I am accountable to Him! God forcefully indicates this when he says, "Let no one deceive himself that he shall not account for his stewardship unto me" (Doctrine and Covenants 118: 4). Since no one can determine another individual's needs for him, I'll talk about averages—Mr. Average Latter Day Saint and his family. I shall attempt to determine what his actual needs, to live and maintain health and efficiency, might be.

Recently the papers carried an interesting story about a man who lived in Tennessee on a budget of $100.00 a year. His total utility bill for the year was forty cents for two gallons of kerosene for his lamps. That brings up a very pertinent point. Utilities are a necessary living expense, aren't they? They are recorded in our record book on the side which is exempt from tithes; but just how many utilities are necessary? I worked for an REA co-op for a time, and we had patrons who used fifty dollars worth of electricity in their home each month. Now that was for utilities, but was it all necessary? I know none of us want to go back to kerosene lamps like the man in Tennessee, nor does God want us to, but can we in good conscience justify such an amount as that to God as necessary? The same thing holds true in all of life's other areas of need. As stewards and as free agents we must determine how much of a need is necessary, and just where it becomes a want rather than a need.

GOVERNMENT experts have done a lot of research on this matter, and out of that research they have set up certain tax laws which apply to every one of us. In spite of our distaste for income taxes, I am sure that our government officials have no desire or intent of forcing anyone to starve or freeze in order to pay taxes. So they have established certain deductions which they feel will cover those things which a family absolutely must have to maintain health and strength. Our Government says that a family of four must have $2,400 to so maintain health. Therefore the family of four is not taxed unless it has an income in excess of $2,400.

Could this be a guide for Mr. Average Latter Day Saint as to actual necessary living expenses? "Oh," you say, "we can't possibly live on $200 per month." Well . . . I know many good families that live on less than that as far as their non-tithable expenses are concerned. I feel that if our necessary living expenses exceed this figure very much, not including unusual medical bills, and so forth, then we need to sit down and ask ourselves some serious questions about how we are exercising our stewardship.

An article written especially for those who are troubled by their inability to determine what is their fair share in supporting the church

OUR INCREASE, of course is that portion of our income which is left after we have supplied our actual needs. Once we have determined our increase, we should have no difficulty determining the tithe which we owe God. But the law says, "tithes and offerings." How much of the remaining nine-tenths of our increase should we be expected to give to support the Lord's work? There should be no problem as to which comes first, tithes or offerings. They rightly go together. If we have been good stewards, then the very fact that we owe $100.00 tithing proves that we should have $900.00 additional increase out of which we can give the offering. Our problem is, how much should that offering be?

In one stake which I have surveyed for the year 1956, the sum of all local and general church offerings equaled about one and a half times the total tithing paid. So, if we want to be just average Latter Day Saint contributors, we should give an additional 15 per cent of our increase as offering.

But here again the federal government has given us a challenge. It recognizes our need to support our churches and other charitable institutions. To permit us to do this, it allows a deduction of all contributions to churches, schools, and hospitals, up to 30 per cent of our total taxable income. Now if our government feels that 30 per cent of our total income is a fair share, can we as members of Christ's restored church be satisfied with only 15 per cent of our increase? I believe that every Latter Day Saint family of four whose income exceeds $5,000 should set into its church contribution budget, items totaling at least 30 per cent of its total income. Families with a smaller income could at least aim for a total offering of 30 per cent of their increase, in addition to their tithe. This would still leave them with 60 per cent of their increase to provide for their just wants and for an inheritance.

Now to do this would require that many of us would have to deny ourselves some of the comforts and luxuries of life that we have become accustomed to. But did not Jesus say on one occasion, "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself" (Matthew

EDITOR'S NOTE:

The author is a fifth-generation Latter Day Saint, and his two boys, Paul Alan and John Lyle, make the sixth generation. His father, Elder John Rounds, was in the mission field in 1876. His great-great-grandfather, Elder William Jordan, was baptized in the original church. His maternal great-grandfather, Ingvert Hansen, was baptized in Denmark by Apostle Luke Johnson. The author adds this significant statement to the above facts, "I am most grateful for this rich heritage in the Restoration, yet I realize that the past is not nearly so important to us as the future."

Brother Rounds was graduated from Graceland College in 1941, then joined the U. S. Air Force and served in the China theatre for two years. Since then he has been in electrical contracting and is now in the postal service. He was ordained a priest in 1949, an elder in 1951, a high priest in 1954, and is now serving as counselor to the stake bishop.

16: 25)? He evidently meant that we could not be his true disciples unless we were willing to deny ourselves for his cause. Now those are unpleasant words; we do not like even to think of doing without things. Such a philosophy is directly opposed to our modern "easy payment" way of living. So we have just drifted along, ignoring this command given by our Lord. As a result his work has been hindered, and we have failed to enjoy the rich spiritual blessings we might have had. In latter-day revelation the Lord has commanded us to "exercise the principle of sacrifice and repression of unnecessary wants; and thus permit the accumulation of tithes and offerings in such amounts as may be needful" to carry on the work of the church (Doctrine and Covenants 130: 7).

ANOTHER PROBLEM THAT faces every devoted Latter Day Saint is how to apportion his offering dollar among the various needs of the church. There are several solutions; some members solve the problem by giving only to pet projects. Others give to whatever need is first presented and then have nothing left for later requests. Others are evidently not even members of the world-wide church, for they support only their own home congregation.

(Continued on page 20.)

The Autobiography
of

IRENE
BUTLER
SORDEN

Keeping house, tending babies, and caring for three homeless children made busy days, but there was always time for religious instruction

Part II

MY FATHER'S FIRST JOB, besides getting a little frame house built, was to see if he could locate any of our church people, but none were to be found for quite some time. He finally heard of the Lamberts who lived about twenty miles from us. He felt sure they were Latter Day Saints as the name Lambert was a familiar one in the church at that time. Joseph Lambert was one of the twelve apostles. It was not too long until my father found out that the Lambert near us was a brother to Joseph; his name was Alex. He told father he had written his brother Joseph that he and his wife were ready to be baptized and wanted him to come and attend to this, which he did.

When Joseph came they notified my father, and of course he went right down there. Joseph told Alex that he and his wife should hear some preaching first. Since there was no schoolhouse or place to hold meetings, Joseph told Alex to get on a horse and go invite his neighbors to come to meetings in his yard. He preached a series of sermons and converted and baptized ten or twelve people. Among the neighbors first to join were William Aylor and his wife Louise. At first Mr. Aylor said he was going to hear Apostle Lambert but told his wife not to go, for there was no telling what a Mormon preacher might say. He went, and when it was time for him to be home he did not come. She waited and waited until she became alarmed thinking something might have happened. Finally when he came he told her that it was the most wonderful thing he had been listening to and that they both would go from then on. They did, and that was the beginning of their conversion. They were baptized with the group. Brother Joseph organized these converts into the Matheson Branch. My father was made pastor, which office he held until he died. This was the first branch in Oklahoma. Brother George Montague was the first missionary sent to Oklahoma. Two young men were appointed with him. One was W. S. Macrae, the other R. M. Maloney. All were well received and did a wonderful work.

ABOUT TWO YEARS after the opening of Oklahoma I was married to Lyman Sorden. He had made the run in the land opening, and had got a good quarter section near the little town of Kingfisher. He was a fine young man from Iowa and was very industrious. Everyone at that time had little of this world's goods, but Lyman did have more than the average—a two-room frame house, a team of mules, a cow, and some pigs and chickens. Things went slowly there in the way of crops, as the country was subject to droughts.

We knew lots of fine people and some objectionable ones. Mrs. Dalton, a widow woman with a large family, lived two or three miles from us. Her family of three daughters and five sons were all good looking. The boys eventually became the notorious Dalton gang. Their mother was a James, a close relative of Jesse James. I was well acquainted with her and the daughters. Once when Brother Macrae was holding meetings in a schoolhouse not far from us, he called for someone in the audience to volunteer to play the organ. Someone said Miss Dalton could play. She came forward and played and was there through the entire series.

A son and a daughter were born to us. Our boy was named Daniel, and our girl Ruth. When Dan was about seventeen and our girl about twelve years old, my brother's wife died, leaving three small children; the oldest was five, the next three, and the youngest two. I was at their mother's bedside when she died. The children seemed to realize something had happened. I called home and told my husband. He said, "Reen, I will be right down there." This was in the days when people used horses and buggies instead of cars. When Lyman drove in, I picked up one of the children, and the other two took hold of my dress. He said, "Isn't this terrible about Susie dying?" I said, "Yes, but she is dead, and this is the problem" (pointing to the children). He said, "Yes, let's take one of them." I said, "All right, but let's take three of them." He said that would be lots of work, but I told him I was not afraid of work. At the funeral he picked up one of the children; I took the hands of the other two, and we went home.

He was a good father to them. The second child, Charles, was what was called a blue baby. He died less than a year after his mother passed away. The other two, Roy and Dorothy Butler, became a part of our family in every sense of the word. They both live in Oklahoma City, and now have families of their own. I feel as free to ask a favor of them as I would my own.

As I have said before, we always lived isolated from the church and never had regular church privileges of our own. At that time Mr. Sorden did not belong to my church or any other. When we had a missionary holding meetings, he was always willing and ready to go hear him. My children had no Sunday school to attend.

I look back and recall other things. We had good neighbors living near us. They were Baptists. One day Mr. Teaster said to me, "Mrs. Sorden, you have no Sunday school for your children; we pass right by your place every Sunday morning; if you would like, we would be glad to pick them up and take them with us."

I told him that it did bother me that they were not going to Sunday school and that I would talk it over with them. If they were to go they would be ready and watching for him. So the children went.

I impressed upon them, especially Dan, that he must bring his quarterly home and I would help him with the lesson. I did not tell him why I was so insistent that the quarterly be brought home. I did not want them to get the wrong view of things. I would go through the quarterly with him and say, "Now, this is the way they think, but this is our belief." I would show him where to find the right answer in the Bible. I noticed that he took a great interest in this. I was glad, and we did this regularly as time went on.

One Sunday morning I looked up and Dan was ready, but Ruth had made no preparation. I said, "Hurry, Ruth, the Teasters will be here any minute." She said, "Mamma, I don't want to go." I was puzzled and told her to get ready right now. She started to cry. When I asked her to tell me why, she said, "Dan is in a big argument every Sunday with the teacher. He picks up the Bible and shows him where to find things. Last Sunday the teacher called the pastor and asked him to take over the class because the boy was too much for him. Dan argued with the preacher just the same, and the other classes stopped to listen."

I realized then I had probably put too much stress on the difference between the churches. I can recall many incidents where I in my imperfect life made mistakes.

ALL CHILDREN LIKE stories, and I used the stories of the church, of the angel coming to Joseph when he was a lad, of Moroni, and of the Book of Mormon. If in telling them I varied the least bit, they would correct me at once. I did not waste time on the Little Red Hen or the Three Bears. The story of the angel was much more fascinating to them.

As time went on, Dan finished high school and entered college. The following year he went to Graceland. Then he attended Oklahoma College for two more years. In the meantime, World War I broke out on April 6. In June he received his degree, came home, tossed it in my lap and said, "Mother, this is what you and I have worked for. Now I am on my own and tomorrow I am going to join the Navy." I said, "Oh, no, Dan, you won't have to go; you have been ordained an elder." He whirled and looked straight at me and said, "Who am I that I should call for exemption? No, Mother, I am going." And he did. He was sworn in the next day.

OUR DAUGHTER RUTH finished high school and was married the same year. Roy and Dorothy were then about eleven and eight. When the war was over Dan came home sound and well. We were financially able to send him on to higher schooling and told him so. He said there was nothing in the world he would rather do than go to school, but he felt he should go to work. He walked the floor trying to decide and finally he said, "Mother, I have never had a real problem in my life but I wanted your opinion on it. Tell me what to do." I said, "Write and tell President Fred M. your problem." He answered, "I will do it right now." He did, and Fred M. answered him by wire to come to Graceland and take over the English department. At the same time he was to take the course in religious education, which he did. In two and one-half years Fred M., who was in Europe, called him on a mission to the city of London. Within ten days he had returned to his home in Oklahoma and married Gladys Steel. They went to New York to await their boat. That was his first mission. They were gone six years; three were spent in London and three in the city of Jerusalem. Their daughter Marilyn was born in London. He was under appointment continually until the day of his death.

I promised God if he would heal my son I would do all in my power to instill in him a faith in the Lord Jesus Christ and his church.

But I have got ahead of my story. I mentioned that Mr. Sorden was a hard-working and honest man; we were considered in good circumstances. We decided we would sell and live an easier and slower life. We sold out and before we got moved, some confidence men got hold of him and made him believe that they had the inside on the stock market. They showed him telegrams from the Board of Trade and every evidence imaginable that he could be a very rich man in no time, but of course it was a deep secret—he must not even let his wife in on it. He fell for it and they disappeared with all we had. All Mr. Sorden had left was the experience. We were broke—no money, no home, and we were not young people. For us it was a tragedy! We had to begin at the bottom. I had never worked for anyone and Lyman had always been his own boss. I was so upset I wasn't very nice. I seemed to think I was the only one who had to suffer. I wrote Dan a long letter about it (that was while he was teaching at Graceland) and stressed what a terrible thing it was for me. I thought he would be in great accord with my side of the case. When I received his answer to my letter, it was very short. He said, "Of course I am sorry for you, Mother, but I am more sorry for Dad." He went on to say that many big business men, even bankers, had been taken in on just such deals by confidence men. What he wrote gave me a different angle. He said, "Mother I haven't forgotten when I was a big boy at home, I never said, 'May I have a dollar' to Dad but what he handed me not one but two or three dollars; neither have I forgotten that I got the new suits of clothes and Dad took the old ones; neither have I forgotten that I wore the kid gloves and he wore the cotton ones." He went on to say he felt sure if he entered the business world he could replace it or some of it, but that he knew well if he should quit the church work that would be a far greater grief to me than our losing the money, so that completely cured me. For my boy to have to quit church work would have been such a grief to me I would have forgotten the money. I took an entirely different view of the whole thing after that. Mr. Sorden and I pitched in and we did very well. We were able to replace a good part of what we had lost. Lyman died eighteen years ago and was buried in Kingfisher, Oklahoma. I expect to be buried there in the same plot when my time comes. I will soon be eighty-four.

I WISH NOW TO RELATE an experience that happened when we had just our own two children, Dan and Ruth. Mr. Sorden said, "Reen, I would like for us to go to Iowa this summer if we can arrange to get away from home." He wanted his children to get acquainted with his people. So we went. Dan was fourteen. On our way home we stopped at Independence for a day or so. When we got near Kansas City, Dan became very sick. After a while we decided we must do something about it. I asked my people where we were staying who was a good doctor and how to get him. They told us that Dr. Mather was the church doctor, so we got word to him (there were no telephones). He came and spent quite a little time with Dan. Mr. Sorden told him to spare no expense, to do everything possible, and I asked him to come again in the evening. Dan was no better. The doctor came twice each day, but the boy grew worse. He could not sleep. I asked the doctor to give him something to kill the pain, and he said he was giving him all he dared. He talked of operating but said the boy was swollen so much he was afraid to attempt surgery. Dan's leg was drawn up to his body with pain, and his fever was running 105 degrees night and day. Dr. Mather called another doctor for counsel. Both examined him. The pain was so severe they could not touch him within eight inches of his appendix.

I mentioned before that my husband did not belong to the church at that time, but after the doctors left he looked up at me and said, "Reen, I have followed you to your church when your elders were near and have heard them preach, sing, and pray of the wonderful blessings that follow the believers. You are a member and we are here in Independence where the town is full of these elders. Why haven't you called for them?"

I really cannot describe the shamed, remorseful, guilty feeling I had. "I will do so at once," I said. My nephew, S. S. Smith, lived near by. I rushed over and begged, "Steph, come at once and administer to Dan; I fear he is going to die. Come right now." He said, "Aunt Reen, we have been wondering why you hadn't done this before. But, no; we'll not come right now. Let's prepare all the rest of the day, and as the sun goes down we will administer. With your permission I will bring another elder with me." I answered, "Oh, yes, whatever you say."

Never in my life have I prayed more earnestly. I promised God if he would heal my son I would do all in my power to instill in him a faith in the Lord Jesus Christ and his church, and urge him to prepare himself to be able and willing to do any work the Lord called him for. The elders came at the appointed time. When they came, Dan was suffering terribly. We knelt, and two or three prayers were offered. There were three elders present. When they stepped forward and laid their hands on Dan he straightened his leg down and fell asleep. This was about seven thirty in the evening. He slept all through the night and did not awaken until the sun was in the sky. Mr. Sorden and I sat by the side of his bed all night rejoicing. When the boy woke up we were still by his bed. He looked at us and said, "I am well. I don't hurt any place at all." Of course we kissed him and said, "You were administered to last night." I told him he must never forget who made him well, and I am sure he never did. I have heard him tell of this in the pulpit.

I told Mr. Sorden he had better go tell the doctor, but he said, "No, not a word. Let him come." So we did it that way. The doctor came at the usual time. When he came he said in a sort of whisper, "How is he?" I said, "You tell us." He commenced the way the doctors did by looking at Dan's tongue. Then he pulled out his thermometer, shook it down, and put it in Dan's mouth and felt his pulse. At the proper time (we had told the boy not to say a word) he looked at the thermometer, stepped to the window and looked again, shook it down again and replaced it in his mouth, then looked again. He said nothing but went to his kit and got another thermometer and put it in the boy's mouth. When he looked at the temperature of the second thermometer, he didn't say a word but turned the sheet down and began cautiously feeling what had been the swollen area. Dan did not flinch, so the doctor pressed hard; Dan still did not flinch. Dr. Mather turned to us and said, "What has happened?" Then we told him. He turned to pick up his kit and said, "Marvelous, marvelous." We asked him when we could take the boy home and he said, "Today." We waited until the next day and took him home with no ill effects.

Mr. Sorden came into the church after this experience. Brother Hubert Case baptized him. He too loved the church dearly. THE END

Humility

He listened as the names were read . . .
he was not called.

He bowed his head, did God not want his willing heart, his all?

Had he not said, that day beside the font,
"Lord, use me where thou wilt"?

And then he prayed, "Forgive me, God,
I am not worthy. If I were
I should not seek this special call."

He set himself to humble tasks about the church.

"I'll serve your people, God," he said,
"the best I can."

And all in heaven rejoiced that on the earth there walked so great a man.

How to Be Heard

A SMALL BRANCH in a large city—that was the problem in Fort Wayne. Just how could the congregation hold a missionary campaign and make any headway against the multitude of voices and influences in a city of 150,000 people? The branch had 120 members.

One evening last spring priesthood members and their wives held a meeting in the pastor's home and decided to conduct a "crusade type" missionary series. They wanted to see just what could be done in an all-out effort to proclaim the message of the Restoration against such obstacles as the modern city holds. The date was set for October 27-November 10. The results were heart-warming. Marion Blanchard, then pastor, initiated the plans for this missionary project; the new pastor, Garold Taylor, who took office just before the crusade began, carried out the campaign very efficiently with excellent response from both members and friends.

Seventies Cecil Robbins and T. Ed Barlow were the guest missionaries, with Brother Robbins doing the preaching nightly for two weeks and Brother Barlow leading the singing. Newspaper articles and ads, handbills, letters, personal invitations, and other means were used to stimulate interest before the opening night. The congregation was divided into priesthood groups, and home prayer meetings were held throughout the city five weeks before the crusade started. Every member was invited to share on some committee work from ushering to furnishing refreshments for the nursery. The emphasis was on everyone enlisting in "Crusading with Christ." The members began to catch the spirit as preparations developed. For the first time many felt the branch was launching out into deep waters where much prayer and devotion would be needed.

Other branches have gone together and conducted a crusade-type series, but this was the first time in the Northern Indiana District that a single branch had been so bold as to venture into such an extensive program of evangelism alone. God rewarded the faith of these devoted Saints. Before the crusade the average Sunday evening attendance averaged fifteen, but for these two weeks an average of ninety people filled the little church to listen to inspiring messages and sing hymns of praise. The lowest attendance was sixty-nine and the highest one hundred and thirty at the baptismal service on the last Sunday afternoon of the crusade.

Offerings went well over the expenses of the effort, and in every department the crusade was a success. Of the eight baptisms, three were children and five were adults from five entirely new families. This opens the way for many new opportunities in evangelism for these people with their circle of friends and relatives. Three adults from three different families living near the church attended during the crusade for the first time, and now cottage meetings are scheduled with them. Missionary opportunities have mushroomed overnight, and the members are busy following up contacts made during the crusade.

There are many ways to approach the evangelism responsibility of a small church in a large city, but for Fort Wayne at this particular time at least the crusade type of effort answered the need very well. Many people deserve recognition for their part in this endeavor—especially Pastor Taylor, who did an outstanding job of co-ordinating the work. All the priesthood labored diligently night after night, and the departments joined in support before and during the series. A special thanks from the Fort Wayne Branch goes to all the Saints and friends who prayed with them during the crusade and sent telegrams wishing them success. The Saints from the Wabash church and Paulding, Ohio, mission were faithful in their attendance. Brother Robbins' sermons were delivered with a power that few had experienced before, and his convictions of this work were transferred by the Spirit to other hearts during the two weeks. The Fort Wayne members, as have many Saints in other areas, found that when they launched out into extensive evangelism, calling on God in faith, he blessed and rewarded them to a great degree.

Seventies T. Ed Barlow and Cecil Robbins stand beside the sign advertising their Fort Wayne crusade.

It's the "Little" Things

Life is a procession of small events -- the total of which determines what we become

THERE IS AN OLD SAYING with which most people are familiar: "The best things come in small packages."

While this is not always true, the quotation points to the fact that little things are often the most important. Almost all of life is made up of a continuous day-by-day procession of small events, little decisions, and seemingly insignificant acts, but the sum total of weeks and months and even years of meeting and doing and choosing adds up to what we are, and may determine what we help others to become.

Like a fine spring, intricately shaped and set into position, the human soul often becomes disturbed and unbalanced by the mere touch of a light word or thought or deed. What is done in a split second of thoughtlessness or selfishness, greed, or anger may require months of patient, tender care to bring the soul into perfect working balance again.

Whether we like it or not, the influence of our personalities reach out to those about us from the moment we are born. The tiny baby with the twisted smile, clinging fingers, and the low-throated coos softens a gruff spirit, stabilizes a home, and often brings rhyme and reason to an otherwise meaningless household.

Power reaches out in small ways to affect the world about the child. Day by day through life, as he blossoms into adolescence and then adulthood, his life becomes interwoven in a mighty web with every other life that he has contacted; and no matter how hard he may try, he cannot escape the fact that as a part of humanity he is an integral and important power in the plan of life.

When we consider a world of many millions of people, we can easily drift into the feeling that just one person can be of little importance in the shaping of human destiny or the molding of great character; but in almost every story of a great man or a great woman is also the story of one who by simple, kindly, inspirational association in many small ways has influenced an ordinary life on its way to greatness.

There are those moments also when only a brief contact has been so laden with force as to affect powerfully the life choices of another. Thus, the fact that our very attitude as well as words and acts may at any moment be instrumental in shaping not only our own lives but those of others leaves us breathless, perhaps a little frightened, at the thought of the power that we may wield in shaping home, community, the church, and the kingdom of God.

With a growing realization of the meaning of the little things that daily confront us, we must somewhere in life decide for ourselves whether the power resident within us is to remain passive or become a negative or positive force in our own particular little world. For surely how a person reveals himself through the many little emergencies or triumphs in life is exactly what he shall become.

Perhaps to be passive would be the most effortless form of living. Like the beggar on the street, we accept life as it comes, making no particular effort to give anything. Taking what we can from those about us to use quickly for the immediate need of the moment, making no plan for the morrow, we would invest nothing in those about us except that which brushes off without effort. Thus with passivity, we could accept each moment on the basis of that moment, each little thing in life at its face value no matter how small, to develop ourselves into personalities that would be felt by those about us. Thus as spiritual beggars, we would go through life, taking what we could from others, giving as little as possible, and preparing nothing for the morrow. What a pathetic place this world of ours would be if all were content to live as beggars!

To be truly negative would require of us a type of attitude which develops the forces that are expressed in the dozens of little things about us affecting adversely those with whom we come in contact and forming a personality that would be ugly, unprofitable, friendless.

Like the tarantula which carries an ever-ready sting, we would flaunt self, letting greed and selfishness tarnish our every contact, forcing ill will and bitterness, unhappiness and disdain on our associates. We would spread uneasiness and dismay, sometimes instigating tragedy and avarice by thoughtlessness and anger. We would invest everything in life in pain and anguish, heartache and despair, laying up in store nothing to nourish us in days of temptation, to strengthen us in trial, and to help us in infirmity. Thus, poisoned by the personality we would have developed through our responses to the little things of everyday living, we'd go through life grabbing what we carnally desire, giving in turn ugliness and discouragement, and investing our powers in nothing but spiritual darkness. What a hopeless place our world would be if all were determined to be human tarantulas!

But as truly positive persons we could not help bringing a rewarding satisfaction as we project into the lives of others pleasantness and serenity, faith and hope, courage and strength that come from personalities deliberately developed to bless those with whom we come in contact.

Like the light that shines in darkness, reflecting the glory of our souls to those about us, we would watch every opportunity to send a smile of encouragement, extend a word of praise, and respond with courage in times of adversity and distress. We would lend our strength to lift up a weaker traveler, sharing our hope and faith, demonstrating the selflessness of courtesy, accepting good fortune with grace and humility. We would continually seek to use our talents to forward the work of God in our own little sphere. Thus we'd add the "two plus twos" in our lives until they brought forth millions in the intangible facets of personality that in time can grow to reflect the good of many little things into a light so bright that nobody within our presence could help but bask in its warmth and go away a better person because of having passed near us. What a shining place this world of ours would be if all were determined to be the "light that shines in darkness"!

So we invest ourselves, here a little and there a little, in all humanity as we move in and out among the people of our own society. The truly rich person is the one who promotes within himself his powers to the extent that nobody passes him by without absorbing something from him because of the very forces that have been cultivated for the express purpose of blessing mankind. Having an active, positive motivation toward living brings rich rewards in the realization that while we may consciously become aware of affecting a life here or there for good, yet many other times, unknown to us, we assisted numerous others over a difficult road, through a frightening moment of heartache, or in an hour of decision because of a word, a smile, or a courageous attitude in our moments of triumph or despair.

The kingdom of God must be made up of all who would follow the direction of the Master, and there must needs be a blending and fusing of personalities, of gifts and talents, of strength and courage, of serenity and joy if that kingdom shall in reality be. To a few are given moments of mighty conquest, powerful speech, or high places in government. To all is given a myriad of little things that if garnered and treasured to be used wisely and carefully in each hour of each day add up to lives of tremendous power and richness.

Therefore let us not belittle the gift of a smile, the talent of humility, the grace of serenity, the force of courage, and the calmness of faith and charity; for these are the little things that can make or break a cause, a person, a kingdom. Let us observe each new day with an adventurous spirit, determined to use every moment, every opportunity to further the work of the kingdom of God in our world.

Today's Psalm of Praise

The Lord is my faithful and abiding friend.
Though I am blind and see him not,
Though I am dull and sense not his presence,
Yet he is there.
When I stumble, groping for light,
He steadies me.
When I become discouraged,
He prepares my way of hope.
When temptations threaten
And my soul becomes clouded
He is awaiting my prayer.
He will restore me to virtue.
He rides beside me on the highways
And daily protects me from harm.
He supplies my physical necessities—
Food, raiment—things to gladden
My heart and enliven my soul.
Health, home, and human love
Are all his gifts.
He is my teacher, protector, benefactor.

He teaches me—through the written word,
The voice of his servants,
And the voice within my soul—
That I am his and he is mine forever.
He is the light and life of my soul.
He has purpose in my earthly experience—a plan that reaches
Through endless eternity.
Though he created worlds without number
And his works are endless,
His greatness beyond utterance,
I am fashioned in his likeness—
A living soul
For whom he gave his life.
He is my Lord and Savior,
My faithful and abiding friend.

EVA DEXTER

Costa Rica

By Marian Blumenschein

A Costa Rican farmer with his distinctive oxcart. The Volkswagen bus, which has provided transportation for the Blumenscheins, is in the background.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The one referred to in this and other articles by the author as José is an elderly man recently baptized by Elder Blumenschein. His name is José Lopez. He is traveling with the family and is helpful as a guide and interpreter.

AT THE PRESENT TIME Costa Rica is the "jumping-off" place on the Pan-American Highway in Central America. Except for the small gap between Mexico and Guatemala, where our car had to go by train, we were able to drive all the way south to San José. One hundred and fourteen miles south of San José at San Isidro del General the road really comes to an end, and there is no railroad to bridge the long gap to the Pan-American Highway in Panama. Perhaps to say that San José is the taking-off place would be more apropos. The German lad on the motorcycle whom we met in Nicaragua took off from here in an airplane, motorcycle and all. Our Canadian schoolteacher whom we first met in Arriaga, Mexico, has been held up here for three weeks trying to get his bright yellow jeep on a boat for Panama. We still see the jeep around town with its sign "Canada around the World."

To our way of thinking San José is the best place of all Central America to be stalled in. The climate is perfect. A modern metropolis of some one hundred thousand people, it is humming with traffic and commerce. It is the nearest thing to home in ever so many ways. Clean, progressive, efficient, and the center of cultural and educational advantages, San José is altogether a very good place to live. We have been here three weeks waiting for our residence visas from Honduras. When we tell the Costa Ricans that we are going to make our home in Honduras they always ask incredulously, "But, don't you like Costa Rica?"

One thing that made our visit to Costa Rica a memorable one has been a number of side trips from San José into the surrounding countryside. Roads fan out from San José in every direction like the spokes of a wheel. Within fifteen or twenty miles each road comes to a dead end in a quaint little village. The capital of Costa Rica, San José, is situated in a natural amphitheater formed by the broad mountain valley of the Meseta Central, 3,870 feet above sea level. The countryside is like a garden. Rainfall every day during the long rainy season keeps the rolling hills clothed with luxuriant green the year around. Even the fence posts grow into small trees which are kept neatly trimmed with a machete. Each small field of coffee, bananas, cane, or pasture land is outlined by a low green hedge fence. This country charms us with its quaint Old World character, like a story-book land. Instead of hauling produce on their backs or heads, these barefoot farmers haul it in a cart with wooden wheels drawn by lumbering oxen. The oxcart has become a symbol of Costa Rica because of its unique decor. The carts are painted an all-over shiny red, orange, or a lovely soft green; then they are covered with beautiful designs like Grandma's old Pennsylvania Dutch trunk. Even the ox yoke is gay with flowers.

The bell tower of the Mission of Oroso, built in colonial times.

There is a reason why Costa Rica is reminiscent of parts of Europe. Most of the people here are of pure European descent, and many are new immigrants from postwar Europe. Over 95 per cent of the people are of Spanish ancestry with very little Indian or Negro blood.*

When Columbus discovered Costa Rica in September, 1502, on his fourth and last voyage to America, there were several tribes of peaceful, agricultural Indians here. Among these tribes were

* Costa Rica, Pan American Union, Washington D. C., pages 5 and 6.

-- Land of Enchantment

We are called to bring the good news of Zion . . .
to Central America. We must sing of it, talk of it, pray for it, desire it with all our hearts.

the Chorotega, Boruca, Nahua, and Carib. Today Indians in Costa Rica are practically extinct. Living in remote regions they make up only 0.3 per cent of the population. Costa Ricans today are a free, peace-loving people. Every one of the Central American republics maintains a full military establishment at considerable cost, but Costa Rica is distinctive in having more schoolteachers than soldiers. It is interesting to note that U. S. Treasury Secretary Robert B. Anderson at the Buenos Aires Economic Conference last August suggested to Latin-American countries that they cut down on military expenditures and spend the money on raising living standards of their people. A few weeks ago Costa Rica's Ambassador to the Organization of American States spoke out in favor of Secretary Anderson's suggestion. Costa Rica, unlike her sister republics, does not have to face the problem of a few rich and a multitude of poor. The majority of the people belong to a modest middle class and enjoy a fairly equitable share of the nation's wealth based primarily on the produce of hundreds of small farms.

We made our first side trip to Turrialba to see the Inter-American Institute of Agricultural Sciences. John had read an article about it in the Reader's Digest, so the institute was on the top of his list of places to see. Turrialba, at the end of the road of course, is like a wild west, wide open frontier town. The liquor fairly flows down the streets. All the principal saloons, pool halls, and hotels are on one side of the street facing the railroad station where sits the red toylike narrow-gauge train waiting for passengers going down to Puerto Limon on the Caribbean. The Inter-American Institute does research in the agricultural sciences and provides extension service for all the American republics including those of South America. The entire rich volcanic plateau region around Turrialba and tropical portions of the Reventazón River valley were made available to the Institute. We met a home economist at the institute who attended Missouri State Teachers College with Sister Mildred Nelson Smith. This reminds me that the first person we met in Costa Rica was an agricultural expert from Columbia, Missouri, Mr. Raegan, who is working for the Point Four Program. He and his wife formerly were with Point Four in Iran and knew Brother and Sister Ambsberry there.

The best trip of all into this land of enchantment is the drive up to Volcano Irazú. Irazú sits like a sleeping giant just north of the city of San José. We've never seen his head because a soft white cloud is always sitting on it. A well-paved road, which is part of the Pan-American Highway system took us through lush green pasture lands and past many small farmsteads. This is excellent dairy country. We have heard that there is an American colony up here on Irazú which runs a large dairy and converts all the milk into American style cheese. Here the farmers are loading newly harvested potatoes into trucks. Climbing into the edge of the cloud, we noticed the cold and dampness and light fog hanging over huge gnarled trees. Tommy was the first to exclaim over the lichens growing over the fence posts. As we pushed farther into the land of perpetual fog and cold we found ourselves in a world such as we had never known. It must be like Scotland; the children called it "Mother Goose Land." The grass was so heavy and green that the misty fog itself looked like a yellow-green haze. Old dead logs and odd shaped stumps were green with moss; moss hanging on all the trees gave them eerie gnomelike outlines. Once in a while the faint image of a grazing cow close to the highway came to us out of the mists.

Shrine across the tracks (railroad station in San José) features full-size statue of Christ

A kind of anxious quiet settled over us as we drove right into a heavy downpour. The grades are very steep and the switchbacks sharp; we drove along in low gear for miles. Suddenly the motor sputtered, coughed, and died. John immediately diagnosed the trouble as "out of gas." So while we sat square in the middle of a bridge with visibility zero, John and José got out the old life-saver five-gallon can and administered the necessary first aid. Shortly after this episode we passed a little girl standing in her front yard; she was barefoot, and the icy drizzle gave her red nose, red hands, and red toes.

Costa Rican farmer on his way to market

We would have made it all right after that if it hadn't been for the big potato truck. We were almost to the top and were squared away for a long steep climb when all of a sudden we looked up into the face of this big heavy truck in the middle of the road bearing down upon us. We managed somehow to crawl over to the edge of the ditch just in time. Then we couldn't get started up the grade again. We started a perilous descent backward down the mountain, slowly sliding down into nothing but thick green fog and rain. The kids and I were cold and scared and wanted to go back home. We kept begging John to turn the bus around and go down the mountain head first, but he kept careening backward. Every so often he'd pitch around crosswise the road, backing as close to the ditch as he dared and stop. "I have to do this," he explained, "to get the r.p.m.'s up." Finally we all realized that here was a battle, a fight to the finish between John and the giant Irazú, so we all remained quiet and hung on. John and the "Billy Goat" (our autobus) won, and we were glad they did. We whirled up and over the top with power to spare and dropped so fast down into the rim of the crater that we nearly fell over the edge. I have always wanted to peer down into a volcano. Irazú last erupted in 1910. The crater is like a cup; its interior is gray-green with fine lines running from the rim down to the bottom. At the bottom lies another smaller cup of rusty red, partly filled with water. The trip to Irazú is praised by some as one of the most interesting in the world; we liked it so well we went back a second time.

Another thing that made our visit here so pleasant was the fellowship with Protestant church people. The first Sunday we were here we found our way to the Methodist Temple. The early morning services at nine thirty and ten o'clock were in Spanish under the direction of an able Costa Rican pastor. The "Gringos" (North Americans) limited their participation in the Spanish-spoken service to an offering of special music. A fine looking young man from Puerto Rico addressed us. He was en route to San Salvador. He envisions a utopian society in which everyone who needs a home will have one. The church was filled with Costa Ricans who demonstrated more than average interest.

At eleven o'clock all the Spanish-speaking people left, and in trouped half a church full of folks from the United States. It was too good to be true! Unless you have lived for six weeks in a land of a foreign tongue you cannot appreciate how we felt. The union service is for English-speaking people of all faiths. Here we met the pastor of the Baptist Mission, the director of the Latin-American Mission (interdenominational), a missionary for the International Child Evangelism Fellowship, and others. The first question asked of us when we were introduced to the pastor of the Methodist Latin congregation was "What Mission are you with?"

Even more unique than the Sunday morning union worship service was the "family fellowship" held at the Methodist school on Sunday evenings from five to seven. With our children we sat around the classroom tables, and over sandwiches and cocoa we talked about our differing faiths and missions in Latin America. We also talked of our common cause and the strength of Protestantism versus the Catholic Church. After lunch we gathered for worship and classwork at all age levels. The children made friends immediately with the youngsters from the States. They were starved for just this kind of association. Mr. Paine of the Latin-American Mission testified that he had lived in every country in Central and South America except three and in his experience the "family fellowship" of Protestant missionaries and their children in San José is most unusual. It seems to us that it would be a fine thing to have a half dozen or so families of our faith living in this city.

The Protestant cause is not new in Central America. About seventy years ago the government of Guatemala invited the Presbyterian church into its country. C. I. Scofield, a Bible student who wrote a commentary or a translation of the Bible, organized the Central American Mission in 1890. This group was one of the first "faith" missions, which are nondenominational. The Central American Mission recently staged a parade in Guatemala City in which fifty thousand people marched through the streets. There are similar "faith" missions in other parts of the world such as China, India, and Africa. These missions are autonomous, are represented by ministers from various Protestant faiths, and obtain funds from various churches, chiefly in the United States. The Latin-American Mission, whose greatest strength is in South America, is another "faith" mission. Other Protestant movements represented here are the Baptist, Methodist, Presbyterian, Episcopal, Adventist, and Evangelical; there may be others of which we have no knowledge.

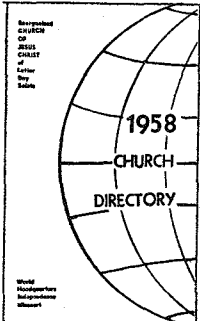

We have been impressed by the enthusiasm and sincerity with which these Latin Americans embrace their new faith in Christ. Yet the gospel witness which has been brought to them is without an understanding of His mission, the kingdom. The unique concept that we have to offer Christendom in any part of the world is "Zion." It was the "gospel of the kingdom" that Joseph Smith, Jr., received from heaven itself. Gospel in a sense is news. We are called to bring the "good news" of Zion to our world. It is imperative that the ensign we bring to Central America be that of Zion. We must know what it is and how it can be brought forth. What is our hope in Zion? What is theirs? We must sing of it, talk of it, pray for it, desire it with all our hearts.

1958

Church

Directory

50c

A complete list of church locations, district and stake presidents and pastors throughout the world

A useful book of information for members and friends of the Reorganized CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST of Latter Day Saints.

HERALD HOUSE

Box 477
Independence, Missouri

Box 382
Guelph, Ontario, Canada

Dr. Robert L. Thistlethwaite

to New Post at Northern Illinois

DR. ROBERT L. THISTLETHWAITE was recently named an associate dean of instruction at Northern Illinois University at DeKalb, Illinois.

In his new position Dr. Thistlethwaite will be associate dean in charge of liberal arts, sciences, fine and practical arts. He was previously head of the business department.

Before joining the faculty at Northern Illinois Dr. Thistlethwaite was an associate professor in the business education department at Western Illinois State College at Macomb. He has also been a superintendent of schools in Iowa and has taught on the staff of the State University of Iowa.

He was graduated from Graceland College in 1933. At Central Missouri State College he earned his Bachelor's degree and at the University of Iowa he earned his Master's and Ph.D. degrees.

Dr. Thistlethwaite holds the office of priest. He and his family are actively engaged in branch activities at DeKalb. He is also a member of Phi Omega Pi and Delta Pi Epsilon (honorary fraternities in business education), the Chicago Business Teachers Association, National Business Teachers Association, the Illinois Education Association, and the National Education Association. He has written extensively in professional journals in the fields of business education and labor and management.

There is something else in outer space we had better look for and find, too

No Greater Power

EDITOR'S NOTE: Much of the advertising one sees seems to say but one thing: "Buy ours, not theirs." So much deceptive advertising has been printed that it tends to make all of it suspect. It therefore seems noteworthy to read an ad which makes no attempt to sell but to teach. The following from the Warner and Swasey Company was sent in by A. V. Arnold and is used here by permission.

SINCE TIME BEGAN, people of all faiths have used the heavens as symbol of their belief in eternal power—its seat, its majesty. The American Indian appealed, with eyes raised, to the Great Spirit.

As this is written, the world is chattering about a 185-pound ball of metal whirling 500 miles in space. Serious. Portentous. But not yet decisive, not final. Not yet, anyway.

We'd better look higher, where ideas more lasting than any metal have been circling for centuries—out of sight of too many of us. And we do not mean forgiveness of evil that becomes abdication to it; we do not mean compromise with principles nor co-existence out of fear.

We mean clean courage . . . hard work and working together here at home . . . we mean giving up some privileges today, perhaps, so that there can be a civilized world tomorrow . . . we mean far more emphasis and decision based on what is honest . . . a rebirth of the principles that made this country great—great enough to be the last hope of a decent world.

A crushing load? No, not if everyone here carries his share. And obligations assumed bring authority—authority to say "no," sometimes, here and abroad, instead of "yes" as too often in the past. Intelligent self-interest is often the kindest charity.

Every good American knows what we mean. You can say it in your heart better than we can write it here.

But the point is—say it, live it, do it—don't leave it for somebody else, some bureau. Do your work, your thinking, your deciding—the best that's in you. Do it with vast courage for your country, but do it. The sum total would be such a surge of decency, of power, that nothing on earth—nothing—could stand against it.

Church
 Activities
 Wall
 Roll
 $1.25

To be hung in the church where it will be easily and frequently read.

Size, 15½ by 27½ inches.

Each page allows space for posting a month's activities. Each day of the month has space for three activities to be written.

The ideal way of keeping your congregation informed on religious activities month by month.

Put it on the bulletin board, in the foyer, in classrooms, or the church's dining room. Hammond Publishing Company

Box 477
 Independence, Missouri
 Box 382
 Guelph, Ontario, Canada

How Much Shall I Give?

(Continued from page 9.)

Let me suggest another method. The church and its leaders rightly make many calls for money. The needs of the church in fulfilling the urgent tasks with which God has commissioned it are tremendous. The only intelligent way in which its members can support the total program as it should be is for them to sit down at the first of the year and prepare a schedule of what they plan to give to the various needs. We know pretty well at the first of the year what those needs will be. For example, the total minimum needs in Far West Stake for 1957 were as follows: Auditorium quota—$11,000; reunion budget—$12,000; total of local congregational and stake budgets—$70,000. The oblation offering given in the previous year was $4,000, and other offerings (principally Sanitarium and Graceland Day offerings) were $1,000.

If I wish to support the total program of the church, I and other members of this stake could well divide our offering dollar in this proportion.

Local and stake budget combined.....	$.70
Auditorium fund.....	.11
Reunion offering.....	.13
Oblation offering.....	.05
Special day offerings.....	.01
Total.....	$1.00

Now let us see what this would mean for the family of Mr. Average Latter Day Saint, who perhaps had an income of $4,000. If he was a good steward and held his necessary expenses for the family of four to $2,400, he would of course owe $160 tithing. Then if he gives an additional 30 per cent of the increase as offerings, he would give approximately these amounts to the various needs:

Local and stake budget.....	$335.00
Auditorium offering.....	55.00
Reunion fund.....	60.00
Oblation.....	25.00
Other offerings.....	5.00

This would leave him with approximately a thousand dollars' increase still to be used for just wants, higher education, and establishing an inheritance and surplus. In addition he will have the infinite satisfaction which comes from knowing that he is truly a partner with God in his work.

In closing I again would state that nobody can tell any one of us how much to give or to what funds. But the Lord has told us through the Bishopric, "We are called upon to give as we are able, . . . and the prayer of every member . . . and officer of the church should be 'Lord, help me that I may be able to do more', rather than 'relieve me from helping further.' We are engaged in the most important work known to man. Do we think it will be accomplished without extraordinary faith, courage, and sacrifice? Let us not deceive ourselves, and let every man and woman make choice of what they will do" (Saints' Herald, Volume 49, page 9. Taken from the advice of the Bishopric given in 1902, which received divine approbation as "the application of the law" in Doctrine and Covenants 126.).

Letters

Of Christmas Cards and the Auditorium

I once thought that the money we spend on Christmas cards would go far toward finishing the Auditorium, but now I realize that Christ's church is not interested only in material things. Just completing a building will not complete the building of the kingdom. Two thirds of our friends and loved ones to whom I send messages of love and cheer belong to other churches, or none at all. Should I deprive them of my expressions of good will so that I can give more money to buy material things for the church? I know how much I appreciate the greetings I receive. I look at them many times, and each time they bring a happy glow into my heart. The people to whom I send cards know that I love and remember them; often I enclose tracts with the cards.

I also send a gift for Christ (to our bishop). I would not neglect Him on his birthday. In fact, I see that he receives his gift first.

Once, as I walked toward our city square, I wondered about all the effort and money spent on decorating it at Christmas. I doubted that those who did it were as interested in paying homage to Christ as they were in promoting business. As I made this appraisal, a strong impression came to me that I should not worry—that this was the only time and the only way many people remembered the Christ.

Ours is to be a missionary church. The kingdom must be revealed in many ways. God can reveal it only through his people. Let us not forget our friends at Christmas, but let us give Jesus his gift first.

RACHEL MILLER

Albia, Iowa

Attention, Members in Florida

Ethel Shepherd, 10600 Biscayne Boulevard, Ollie Trout Trailer Park, Miami, Florida, will appreciate having members in her area provide transportation to church for her. She has been a member for fifty-six years but has been isolated from church privileges most of her life.

Briefs

Missionary Series

WICHITA, KANSAS.—Seventy James Menzies conducted a missionary series November 3-10, emphasizing our belief in Jesus Christ and his teachings in the topics presented. There were nine baptisms during the month.

The Zion's League in Wichita held a retreat at Camp Hyde, November 16-17, and fifty-one Leaguers were present, with ten supervisors. They used the theme "This Business of Life." Dell Menzies was in charge of the activities.—Reported by EVALINA L. GUSTIN

New Branch Holds Business Meeting

ST. CATHARINES, ONTARIO, CANADA.—The annual business meeting was held October 25, under the direction of Toronto District President William Archer. The following officers were elected: Elder William Hartford, pastor; John Barber, church school director; Dorothy Neal, women's leader; Loren Mercer, Zion's League leader; Nellie Towers, music director; Barbara Barber, secretary. This was the first business meeting since the branch was organized over a year ago.

The women's department, under the leadership of Dorothy Neal, has sponsored a number of money-raising activities for the building fund.

William Hartford has been called to the office of elder, and Loren Mercer to the office of deacon.—Reported by G. EDITH HARTFORD

Ordination Service

ATLANTA, GEORGIA.—LaRue Griffin was ordained to the office of deacon at the eleven o'clock service on November 17. Elder B. L. Griffin was spokesman, assisted by Elder H. E. Mitchell.

The congregation meets each Sunday in the Atlanta downtown YMCA.—Reported by MADGE GRIFFIN

Sixteen Baptisms This Year

ROSEVILLE, MICHIGAN.—Stake President W. B. McClain presided at a business meeting held October 30. The following were elected or sustained: L. Don Sutton, presiding elder; Walter Cargill and Irven Harris, assistants; L. W. Phillips, financial agent; Vivian Lossing, missionary co-ordinator; Floyd Fears, church school director; Alexander Moore, assistant; Fern Jones, children's director; Thomas Stewart, junior church school director; Ivan Fosberg, young adult leader; Zenas Wood, adult leader; Thomas Hart, senior Zion's League leader; Bob and Anita Utz, junior Zion's League leader; Mary Bishop, secretary, recorder, and publicity; Mildred Belrose, historian; Laverne Frappier, music; Marion Patterson, organist; Clifford Shorter, deacon in charge; Lyle Teal, custodian; Nina Fosberg, book steward; Darline Pearson, congregational women's leader; Mary Bishop, friendly visitor; Marion Corfis, Lillian Burger, and Edith Ryan, Circle leaders.

At present there are 301 members. So far this year, sixteen have been added by baptism. In October, Janice Pearson, James Bradley, Cyril Baird, and Barry Trowsse were baptized by Elders L. Don Sutton and George Bishop.—Reported by MARY BISHOP

Baptismal Service

PORTLAND, OREGON.—At the Rockwood mission, Diana Jordan was baptized October 14 at First Church by her father, Elder Darl Jordan.

Confirmation services were held November 10, with Elders Donald Comer and Darl Jordan officiating.—Reported by MARGARET M. HAVELY

New Branch Officers

PASADENA, TEXAS.—The following officers were elected in September to take office October 1: Fred Olson, pastor; Fred McCormick, associate pastor and Zion's League leader; Harold Pyeatt, church school director; Ollie Stewart, secretary; Wayne Sandell, treasurer; Henry Gifford, custodian; Jimmie Grubbs, music; Derrel Webb, young adults and junior church pastor; Joan Grubbs, publicity; Nellie Wright, women's leader.

New Zion's League officers are Winnie Scott, president; Pat McCormick, vice-president and reporter; and Mike Stewart, secretary-treasurer.—Reported by JOAN GRUBBS

Fourteen Baptisms in Mission

LEON, IOWA.—The Leon mission was opened in the fall of 1954 with Elder Clarence L. Bohall, of Lamoni, as pastor. Enrollment at that time was forty-three and is now eighty-two. A building site has been selected and the lots have been purchased. The Saints are now raising a building fund. At present they are meeting in the Legion Hall.

This September, a two weeks' series of meetings was held. The speaker was Elder W. Joseph Breshears of Rock Island, Illinois. At the close of the series five were baptized, bringing the total of baptisms for the year to fourteen. The new members are Dennis

Anderson and son Douglas, Richard Briggs, Mr. and Mrs. William Grylls, J. W. Williams, Janice and Dee Ann Lovell, Doris Marshall, Wilma Marshall and daughter Sharon, Norma Mendenhall, Freddie Robinson, and Sally Stuteville.—Reported by DORIS MARSHALL

Visit from Seventy Troyer

MINOT, NORTH DAKOTA.—The first week of October the Saints enjoyed a visit from Seventy Luther Troyer. He visited homes, and held meetings at the church. On October 4, Brother Troyer preached in the evening. After the services, a lunch was served.

The Zion's Leaguers had a hay ride on November 1 at the Bunker farm.—Reported by VIRGIL D. SMITH

Baptized by Grandfather

BLUE RAPIDS, KANSAS.—The annual business meeting was held September 16, with Clyde Johnson of Leavenworth, Kansas, in charge. The following officers were elected: Simon P. Hicks, pastor; Benjamin Shriner, treasurer; Dorothy Johnson, church school director; Lora Shriner, women's leader and secretary; Barbara Ubben, auditor; Nora Johnson, music director and historian.

On October 13, Ronald Eugene Kearns, eight, of Washington, Kansas, was baptized by his paternal grandfather Christopher Kearns, of Independence, Missouri. The confirmation service followed.

On October 20, Elder Albert Douglas of Independence, Missouri, was guest speaker at the eleven o'clock service. A basket dinner followed.—Reported by NORA JOHNSON

Film Shown at Series

PARIS, TENNESSEE.—On July 21, Elder Duane Couey showed the film of Martin Luther at the church. It was followed by a week-long series. Eight were baptized at the close.

The branch business meeting was held October 2, with District President Duane Couey in charge. T. S. Gough of Memphis accompanied Brother Couey to Paris. The following officers were elected: Elder S. O. Collier, pastor; Fannie Boyd, church school director; Margaret Rushing, book steward and women's leader; Ruth Jones, secretary; George Green, League leader; Don Rushing, custodian; Dianne Gateley, chorister; Harriet Boothe, publicity; Jimmie Gateley, treasurer; Margaret Rushing, historian; Imogene Veasey, recorder; Dale Boothe, solicitor; Jimmie Gateley, George Green, Fannie Boyd, Pleas Green, Don Rushing, finance committee.—Reported by HARRIET BOOTHE special February STRIDE—"Dating and Marriage" for young people, parents, pastors, and counselors

CONTENTS

Let's think about marriage—Dr. F. M. McDowell
 Will you perform the wedding?—Apostle Reed Holmes
 God led us—Dick and Wanda Andersen
 What is this thing?—Marian Froelich
 There is nothing like a date—Dick Worden and Chee Chee Searcy
 Engaged to be married?—Richard Lancaster
 Dating morals for church youth—Clyde Youngs
 Dating etiquette—Duane Thomas
 Brain-storming on dating—Stone Church youth Counsel column—Harley Morris single copies, 30c each yearly subscriptions: U.S. $2.50

Canada $2.75

other countries $2.75

Sanscripts

Student Nurses Worship with Stone Church Older Young People's Group

On Sunday evening, December 15, a large group of young people met in the School of Nursing Recreation Building for a Christmas worship Service. The program for the evening was planned by student nurses Shirley Thomas and Kay Sheehy, and Claire Weddle of the Stone Church group. Narrator for the program was Barbara Thoman. The Scripture reading was given by Claire Weddle. Miss Thoman read Henry Van Dyke's The Other Wise Man and tableaux were presented during the reading by Audrey Anderton, Alta Mint-horn, Sonita Smith, Charles Cottingham, Dwight Carlile, Richard Sutherland, and Jack Waddell. Special Christmas music was supplied by Laverne Directo, Mildred Carter, Pat Hansen, and Phyllis Phillips. The closing prayer was offered by Cliff Carpenter, leader of the Stone Church group. After the program, a social hour was held; the student nurses, under the leadership of Kay Cable, served refreshments.

Future Nurses Visit San

Fourteen future nurses from Wellington, Missouri, visited the "San" School of Nursing on December 21. They were accompanied by their instructor, Jack Raveill. These youngsters were in grades seven to eleven in school. This is an excellent time for them to discuss intended careers because in their high school work they can include the necessary subjects to prepare them for entering the School of Nursing.

A. Neal Deaver, Hospital Administrator, greeted the girls. Miss Nelle Morgan, director of nursing, talked with them about nursing as a career. Charles Blanchard, assistant to the administrator, conducted a tour through the hospital and the school.

"San" Student Nurses Adopt Family

Christmas for a mother and three sons was made happier by the remembrances of the student nurses. Jeanne Mellendorf of Steubenville, Ohio, student welfare chairman, and Faye Irene Ballantyne of Page, Nebraska, were the students who prepared the Christmas gifts. Vida Butterworth, educational director, took the girls to shop for gifts, clothing, and groceries for the family. Many of the hospital employees assisted by giving money and by bringing groceries and gifts. The little four-year-old boy in the family wanted a certain kind of fire truck from Santa. After much searching the shoppers located such a truck. The student nurses are all regretting that they could not be present to see him on Christmas morning when he saw his gift.

"San" Dietitian Honored

Mrs. Helen Walter, chief dietitian at the "San," was recently elected secretary of the Missouri Dietetic Association.

Bulletin Board

Hymnals for Youth Available

The Flora, Illinois, Branch has fifty copies of the Hymnal for Youth which it will sell for $1.00 each. These books have never been used and are in perfect condition; they do, however, have the name of the branch stamped on the inside covers. Anyone interested in purchasing all or part of these should contact Floyd Henson, RFD 1, Flora, Illinois.

BOOKS WANTED

Warren L. Van Dine, Box 56, Burnside, Illinois, would like to purchase a copy of Joseph Smith the Prophet and his Progenitors by Lucy Smith. He wants to know the price and condition of the book before receiving it.

Mrs. Leone Nomtak, 1443 Bathurst, Toronto, 10, Ontario, would like to purchase a copy of The Enduring Word. She wants to know the price and condition of the book before receiving it.

OLD PUBLICATIONS WANTED

Leland Nelson, 2318 Highland Avenue, Everett, Washington, would like to obtain copies of the Millennial Star and Knisley's Infallible Proofs. He wants to know their price and condition before receiving them.

REQUEST FOR PRAYERS

Mrs. Lial Banks, Route 2, Sterling, Michigan, requests prayers for her husband who has been partially paralyzed and in much pain for over two years as the result of an accident. He feels that, with God's help, he will again be able to walk and go about his priesthood duties.

ENGAGEMENTS

Etter-Sweeney

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Sweeney of Independence, Missouri, announce the engagement of their daughter, Eldora Margaret, of Newton, Iowa, to Donnel E. Etter, son of Mrs. Lenora Etter of Independence. The wedding will take place in July. Eldora is a graduate of Graceland College, class of '55.

Larson-Allen

Mr. and Mrs. Gibbs Allen of Portage, Utah, announce the engagement of their daughter, Rochelle, to David H. Larson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Larson of Walla Walla, Washington. No date has been set for the wedding.

Baber-Adams

Mrs. Olinda Adams of Detroit, Michigan, announces the engagement of her daughter, Betty, of Independence, Missouri, to Richard N. Baber, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Baber of Lamoni, Iowa. Richard is a 1952 graduate of Graceland College. A March wedding is planned.

WEDDING

Stevenson-Ballantyne

Joyce Ballantyne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clay Ballantyne, and Lester Stevenson, son of Mr. Duane Stevenson, all of Lamoni, Iowa, were married December 15 in the Reorganized Church at Lamoni. Priest Leo Stevenson, uncle of the groom, officiated. They are making their home on a farm near Lamoni. The bride is a graduate of Graceland College, class of '56.

BIRTHS

Dr. and Mrs. Frederick S. Armstrong of Honolulu, Hawaii, announce the birth of a daughter, Jennifer Ann, born December 14. Dr. Armstrong is a graduate of Graceland College, class of '49. Mrs. Armstrong is the former Gladys Alexander of Detroit, Michigan.

Be sure to read

"A GREAT ADVENTURE—FOR YOU"

by Elder Richard Price

in the February issue of

GUIDELINES TO LEADERSHIP

Yearly subscription rates: U.S. $2.00

Canada $2.25 other countries $2.50

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Simpson of Independence, Missouri, became the parents of a daughter, Judith Kathleen, on October 28. She was blessed on December 22 at West College Church by Evangelist E. Y. Hunker and Elder Frank P. Benson III. Mrs. Simpson is the former Marian Kendrick. Both parents are graduates of Graceland College, class of '52.

Mr. and Mrs. Dwight N. Heath of El Paso, Texas, announce the birth of a daughter, Melissa Gay, born November 14. She was blessed on December 29 at the Reorganized Church in Oak Grove, Missouri. Mrs. Heath is the former Doris Jean Brooks.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry McDonald of Dallas, Texas, became the parents of a daughter on November 21. She has been named Adrain Denise.

Mr. and Mrs. Jarrelle Glover of Redlands, California, became the parents of a son, Frederick Gall, on October 24. He was blessed December 1 by Elders W. J. Murray and Lloyd R. McKeenen.

Mr. and Mrs. Delbert W. Porter of Columbia, Missouri, became the parents of a daughter, Marlene Sue, on September 15. She was blessed on November 17 by Elders Lyle D. Shedd and Richard Guthrie.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Herbst of Marysville, California, became the parents of a daughter, Julie Ann, on October 30. She was blessed by Elder Walter J. Menzies and Elder Edward Hamilton.

DEATHS

BOULWARE.—Jake C., was born September 1, 1892, at McWilliams, Alabama, and was killed in an automobile accident on November 27, 1957, in Pensacola, Florida. On December 2, 1917, he was married to Estella Booker, who survives him. He had been a member of the Reorganized Church since 1920.

Besides his wife he leaves a son, Willie; six sisters; and six brothers. Funeral services were conducted at Pensacola Mission by Elder Alma Dungan. Interment was in St. Michael's Cemetery.

BARRETT.—David L., was born September 2, 1877, in Detroit, Michigan, and died October 14, 1957, in Davison, Michigan. He and his wife, the former Matilda M. Auckland, moved to Flint, Michigan, fifty-five years ago where he was baptized into the Reorganized Church in May, 1904. He was one of the earliest employees of the Buick Motor Company and helped engineer the first automobiles produced there. Later he became a dairy farmer. His wife died on December 13, 1957.

Surviving are three daughters: Mrs. Fay Mrs. Dorothy Bedtelyon of Davison; three sons: Walter M. and Maurice G. of Davison and Arthur D. of Clio, Michigan; a brother, Walter, of St. Louis, Missouri; sixteen grandchildren; and ten great-grandchildren. Funeral services were conducted by Elder Arthur R. DuRose at the Swartz Chapel in Davison. Interment was in Pine Grove Cemetery at Davison.

BARRETT.—Matilda M. Auckland, was born October 3, 1882, in Cincinnati, Ohio, and died December 13, 1957, in Flint, Michigan, where she had resided for fifty-five years. Her husband, David L. Barrett, preceded her in death on October 14, 1957. She had been a member of the Reorganized Church since April, 1904.

Surviving are three daughters: Mrs. Fay Walker of East Lansing, Michigan; Mrs. Ellen Sternberg of Goodrich, Michigan; and Mrs. Dorothy Bedtelyon of Davison, Michigan; three sons: Walter M. and Maurice G., both of Davison, and Arthur D. of Clio, Michigan; sixteen grandchildren; and ten great-grandchildren. Funeral services were conducted by Elder Arthur H. DuRose at the Swartz Chapel in Davison. Interment was in Pine Grove Cemetery at Davison.

GILMORE.—Edward William, son of Galen and Florence L. Gilmore, was born November 6, 1930, in Seattle, Washington, and died December 2, 1957, of injuries received in an automobile accident. He was married on September 22, 1950, to Moonyun Back, who survives him. Following his discharge from the Navy after three years' service he spent much time in the Veteran's Hospital, being released just seven months prior to his death. He had been a member of the Reorganized Church since November 6, 1938.

Besides his wife he leaves a son, Edward, of Lincoln, Nebraska; his mother; a brother, Galen D. Gilmore of Seattle; and a sister, F. Irene Schrader of Mountlake Terrace, Washington.

RICHARDSON.—Pike Montgomery, son of R. H. and Elizabeth Thomson Richardson, was born April 4, 1879, near Slater, Missouri, and died December 20, 1957, at his home in Slater. He was married on November 22, 1905, to Ollie A. Thompson, who survives him. Two of their eight children, Evalee and Grace, preceded him in death. He had been a member of the Reorganized Church since 1949.

Besides his wife he leaves three daughters: Mrs. Louis Hanes of Marshall, Missouri; Mrs. Robert Kitchin of Slater; and Mrs. Elvin Miller of Kansas City, Missouri; three sons: Robert of Marshall; Russell and William of Kansas City; a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Conway of Kansas; and two brothers: Richard of Slater and Lee of West Plains, Missouri. Funeral services were conducted by Stake President H. J. Simons and the Reverend Frank Stever at the Methodist Church in Slater. Burial was in the Slater cemetery.

FRANKE.—Alice Myra, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Tuttle, was born at New Canaan, Connecticut, and died October 23 at Newtown, Connecticut, where she had been a resident for two years. She was married to Elder Charles H. Franke in 1893; he preceded her in death on May 22, 1957. She had been a member of the Reorganized Church since her youth and had served as church organist in Norwalk Branch.

Surviving are three daughters: Eva Fallon of Tonawanda, New York; Gladys Withnell of Newtown; and Ruth Hawkins of Stratford, Connecticut; and a sister, Mrs. Eva Holt of New Canaan. She was buried in Lakeview Cemetery at New Canaan.

WIVEL.—Adabel, daughter of George W. and Harriette Brown Fesler, was born August 22, 1880, at Whitehall, Illinois, and died December 26, 1957, at the Independence Sanitarium. She had been a member of the Reorganized Church since June 27, 1920.

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Gladys Carpenter of Grain Valley, Missouri; six sons: Cecil Sedoris of Kansas City, Missouri; William Wilson of Independence, Missouri; Eugene, Elba, and Howard Wilson, all of St. Louis, Missouri; and Harold Wilson of Cherryville, Missouri; seventeen grandchildren; and four great-grandchildren. Elders Glaude A. Smith and Herbert M. Scott conducted the funeral service at Carson's Chapel in Independence. Interment was in Mound Grove Cemetery.

EVANS.—George, was born June 28, 1874, in Eden Township, Iowa, and died December 7, 1957, at the Decatur County Hospital in Leon, Iowa. He was married on July 3, 1910, to Pearl E. Little. He was a farmer and stockman until his retirement in 1951 after suffering a stroke from which he never recovered. He spent the last six years of his life in Davis City, Iowa.

TRACT REVIEW

Standards for a Steward

This eight-page tract offers an excellent outline of some of the major standards of behavior which lead to good stewardship in a balanced Zion life.

The foreword to the pamphlet states the purpose of its publication:

"The purpose of this outline is to assist church members to qualify as stewards with the vision and the ability to achieve the great goal of Zion. It sets forth the solid foundations upon which we may develop as stewards. . . . These standards have been prepared prayerfully and studiously over a considerable period of time. They have been given careful consideration in meetings of the Order of Bishops and are published with the approval of the Presiding Bishopric."

The outline covers five main areas: (1) Personality traits; (2) Personal practices and habits; (3) Family life; (4) Community life; and (5) Economic qualifications.

This tract sells for 4 cents each and can be used for individual study, for sermon preparation, and for organized class study.

DRIVER.—Ethel Pearl, daughter of Virgil and Flora Leake, was born October 4, 1914, at Kingston, Missouri, and died December 18, 1957, at Lakeside Hospital in Kansas City, Missouri. On September 4, 1938, she was married to Jacob Driver, who survives her. For the past thirty years she lived in or near Blue Springs, Missouri. She had been a member of the Reorganized Church since the age of nine.

Besides her husband she leaves a daughter, Eleanor, of the home; her parents of Rocky Ford, Colorado; a sister, Mrs. Francis McCombs of La Junta, Colorado; and a brother, Charles W. Leake of Rocky Ford. Funeral services were conducted by Elders Glaude A. Smith and Eugene S. Look at the Reorganized Church in Blue Springs. Burial was in the Blue Springs cemetery.

We're on the Air . . .

STATE AND CITY	CALL LETTERS	DIAL READING	DAY AND TIME
ALABAMA, Atmore	WATM	1580	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
ALABAMA, Evergreen	WBLO	1470	Sunday, 9:00 a.m.
ARKANSAS, Jonesboro	KNEA	970	Sunday, 9:00 a.m.
CALIFORNIA, Wasco	KWSO	1050	Sunday, 7:15 a.m.
COLORADO, Durango	KIUP	930	Sunday, 9:45 a.m.
COLORADO, Montrose	KUBC	1260	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
FLORIDA, Orlando	WLOF	950	Sunday, 7:45 a.m.
IDAHO, Sand Point	KSPT	1400	Sunday, 6:15 p.m.
ILLINOIS, Marion	WGGH	1150	Sunday, 10:00 a.m.
ILLINOIS, Moline	WQUA	1230	Sunday, 8:15 a.m.
ILLINOIS, Mt. Vernon	WMIX	(FM 94.1) 940	Sunday, 12:15 p.m.
KANSAS, Concordia	KFRM	550	Sunday, 8:30 a.m.
MICHIGAN, Bad Axe	WLEW	1340	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
MICHIGAN, Flint	WMRP	1570	Friday, 10:00 a.m.
MICHIGAN, Houghton Lake	WHGR	1290	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
MINNESOTA, Detroit Lakes	KDLM	1360	Sunday, 8:45 a.m.
MISSOURI, Fulton	KFAL	900	Sunday, 8:15 a.m.
MISSOURI, Kansas City	KMBC	980	Sunday, 8:30 a.m.
NEW MEXICO, Clovis	KCLV	1240	Sunday, 7:45 a.m.
NEW YORK, Hornell	WWHG	1320	Sunday, 10:30 a.m.
NORTH DAKOTA, Valley City	KOVC	1490	Sunday, 6:00 p.m.
OHIO, New Philadelphia	WJER	1450	Sunday, 8:30 p.m.
ONTARIO, Guelph	CJOY	1450	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
OREGON, Lakeview	KQIK	1230	Sunday, 2:00 p.m.
PENNSYLVANIA, Charleroi	WESA	940	Sunday, 8:30 a.m.
TENNESSEE, Paris	WTPR	710	Sunday, 7:45 a.m.
WASHINGTON, Vancouver	KHFS	1150	Sunday, 8:30 a.m.
WEST VIRGINIA, Parkersburg	WCEF	1050	Sunday, 12:05 p.m.
WISCONSIN, Richland Center	WRCO	1450	Sunday, 8:15 a.m.

And Finally...

Mrs. Alex Weber
1411 - 2nd Ave. S.
Denison, Iowa

16450 10-58
h

LANGUAGE PROBLEMS

Behavior problems are often traceable to a lack of understanding between parents and children. Eight-year-old Chris was a Greek war orphan who was adopted at the age of seven by an American couple. It was a credit to his native intelligence that he was able to adapt himself to his changed living conditions so well. But some words encountered in school needed explaining, such as "tattle tale" and "behave."

After his mother's lecture on social behavior Chris said mournfully, "I don't know how to be good in English." A. S.

SOCIALITY

A suggestion for entertaining church friends: If you want a real visit, invite not more than one or two couples and give them all your attention. You will be able to exchange ideas, talk on serious subjects, and arrive at an understanding and appreciation of them. Intelligence, if present, will have a chance.

On the other hand, if you wish only to pay off as many of your social obligations as possible at one fell swoop, invite a large crowd. The "standing room only" party serves a special purpose. It enables many people, half strangers, to say "Hello" to each other, and not much else, which is appropriate if they have nothing more to say. If you attempt to utter more than one short sentence, the period gets shorn off as the other guest, smiling, glassy-eyed, and uncomprehending moves away to greet another guest.

The cacophony—or should one say "yack-phony"?—of such a party deafens the ears, paralyzes the intellect, glazes the eyes, and brain-washes most of the crowd. The party satisfies the gregarious instinct but breaks down normal communication.

Stories tell of a Washington wag who wished to test whether anybody listens to anything at a large party. He greeted all other guests with a quiet, assuring assertion, "I have just murdered my mother." Most replied, "How charming!" Nobody called the police.

Contents

EDITORIAL AND OFFICIAL

In His Name	3
Foreigners	3
Missionary Camp	4
Auditorium Day, March 9, 1958	4
Across the Desk	4

FEATURE ARTICLES

Bishop DeLapp Is Honored	2
Beyond the Telescope, by E. E. Potter	5
How Much Should I Give? by William J. Rounds	8
The Autobiography of Irene Butler Sorden, Part II	10
How to Be Heard	13
It's the "Little" Things, by Marguerite Constance	14
Today's Psalm of Praise, by Eva Dexter	15
Costa Rica—Land of Enchantment, by Marian Blumenschein	16
No Greater Power, (reprint)	19

SPECIAL COLUMNS

Church Man in the News: Dr. Robert L. Thistlethwaite	19
Letters	20
Briefs	21
Sanscripts	22
Bulletin Board	22
Tract Review: Standards for a Steward	23
And Finally	24

The precious unit of society is the individual. He is at his finest when he is entertained in a small group.

L. J. L.

JUST LIKE YOU

"You who are young, remember one thing. I look like a foreigner to you. The color of my skin is different from yours. I don't have blond hair. My eyes are not like yours. My nose is not like yours. But I like movies, too, just as you do. I eat the same food you do. I go to church just the same way you do. During the last war, I fought for the American flag on the battlefield with your brothers and your uncles. For your flag represents democracy and freedom, and I value democracy and freedom very highly. My people love democracy. Other peoples love democracy, too, and they love freedom and will fight for these as we fought for them in the Philippines. They will fight for them under their own flag and pretty soon, I hope, under the flag of the United Nations. And so, when you see a foreigner who doesn't happen to have the same color skin that you do, or whose eyes are different, or who wears different clothes, or who does not speak English, or who does not pray the same way you do, or whose politics are different, don't think that he is different from you in every way, because that is not so. He is a human being just like you."

—Carlos P. Romulo, to a group of Boy Scouts at the United Nations.

WATCH FOR TRAFFIC SIGNALS

One can see many things during these days of construction in the Auditorium. Last week a workman brought a load of material up the ramps in a jeep. Small tractors are often used. Nobody has suggested a bus line for the miles of corridors.

It would hardly be a surprise—with the growing popularity of the Volkswagen and other small foreign cars—to see a tiny auto parked beside an office door almost any day now. Problem would be to get one of them through a revolving door to the foyer.

L. J. L.

THE HYMNAL

available in loose-leaf binder and leather binding

Loose-leaf

For pianists, organists, music directors, and choir members. The loose-leaf pages of this hymnal are arranged in an attractive gray cloth-bound multiple-ring binder, which allows the pages to lie conveniently flat when opened to any place in the book.

$4.00 each; 10 for $3.75 each
25 or more, $3.50 each

Leather

A wonderful hymnal to own or to give! Designed to be cherished, this book is bound in beautiful dark-blue Morocco leather over heavy bevel, non-flexible boards. Its special features are gold-edged pages, a blue satin ribbon marker, and blue end sheets. Name imprinted in gold, 75 cents additional.

$8.50

Clothbound copies of THE HYMNAL will be ready March 1, 1958. Place your order now. Prices: $2.75 each; 10 for $2.50 each; 50 for $2.25 each; 100 for $2.05 each; 250 for $1.90 each; 500 or more, $1.75 each.

Box 477
Independence, Missouri
Box 382
Guelph, Ontario, Canada

SAINTS' HERALD

Volume 105 / January 20, 1958 / Number 3

Photo by Rod Schall

The Tower Still Stands Guard

www.LatterDayTruth.org

We'd Like You to Know . . .

Lillian Williams
Flanders

MRS. LILLIAN FLANDERS came to Graceland College this fall as director of food service. She is well qualified for this work, as she has had eight years of experience. For two years she was director of food service at Bethany College, Lindsborg, Kansas, and last year was director of the cafeteria and dining room at Stanford University, Palo Alto, California. For five years she and her sister had their own catering service in Independence, Missouri.

Mrs. Flanders has also had experience in business. After the death of her husband, Roland O. Flanders, she worked for three and one-half years in the business office at the Independence Sanitarium and for three and one-half years in the Internal Revenue office in Kansas City, Missouri.

She has always enjoyed associating with young people, especially in League work. Mrs. Flanders seldom misses an opportunity to sing in a choir and thoroughly enjoys directing plays. She has a rich heritage to aid her in giving a worthwhile service, for her church ancestry reaches back to the days of Joseph the Martyr.

As hobbies Mrs. Flanders enjoys dramatics and watching sports of all kinds. Cooking has always been an avocation, as well as a professional interest, but high in her list of hobbies is her love for people. She likes people of all ages and enjoys being with them to share in their hobbies, interests, and problems. At Graceland she has many opportunities to develop all of her hobbies.

Mrs. Flanders was born on October 14, 1905, in Santa Fe, New Mexico. She has a son and a daughter: Bob, who teaches history, political science, and social science at Graceland, and Nancy of San Jose, California.

Communications Seminar

AT THE CALL of the First Presidency fifty-seven men and women interested in mass communications were called into a two-day conference December 27 and 28 in the music room at the Auditorium. Its stated purpose was ". . . to review and evaluate materials produced for institutional communications . . . to help bring to all leaders an understanding and appreciation of the value of audio-visual materials and techniques." Franklyn S. Weddle, co-ordinator of the Radio and Audio-Visual Departments, presided over the sessions.

President W. Wallace Smith opened the conference with "a brief report of the function, organization, and administration of the Audio-Visual Department." He said that it was organized pursuant to the action of the 1952 General Conference. Arthur J. Rock was given a half-time assignment to develop the department. Demands for the services by the church have grown steadily. There are now three production men—Kenneth Raveill, Stele Bryant, and Les Wight—with a clerk working on library distribution and a bookkeeper-secretary—in addition to the appointee director.

Attention was called to the days of the painted charts used by the missionaries and the slides made available by C. Ed. Miller and his Graphic Arts Bureau to more recent years when the appointees made their own slides and "flash cards." The department now produces the following materials:

- | | |
|------------------------|---------------------------|
| 1. General photography | 5. Slides and slide sets |
| 2. Photocopy | 6. Filmstrips and records |
| 3. Commercial art work | 7. Motion pictures |
| 4. Lithography | |

Brother Wallace said that the Radio Department now has approximately thirty weekly programs in progress in twenty-two states and Canada. An occasional program has been used in Europe. In this department are Radio Minister Evan Fry, Radio Director Charles F. Church, Jr., Engineer Harold Higgins, and the secretary. The services of an organist and Radio Choir of twenty-seven members are made available as needed.

Following prepared talks ample opportunity was given during the seminar for discussion of all phases of the communication problem. Dr. John W. Bachman, Professor of Practical Theology and Director of Audio-Visual Program in Union Theological Seminary, New York City, gave some stimulating talks and entered into the discussion periods.

Besides President W. W. Smith and Dr. Bachman other main speakers were Russell Ralston, Jack Boren, L. Wayne Updike, and President F. Henry Edwards.

Authors in This Issue

- Arnold Spiller (page 5), teacher, Independence, Missouri
- Hudson P. Grundy (page 9), Bishop of Canada
- Charles Neff (page 10), Assistant to the First Presidency
- Ada Hamer (page 11), Lynwood, California
- William Patterson (page 11), evangelist, Australia
- Mrs. T. W. Bath (page 12) Pittsburg, Kansas
- Mrs. Elmer V. Roe (page 16), Carthage, Missouri

Cover Picture

The "Ad" Building, long a symbol of Graceland, was opened for classes on January 1, 1897. Prior to that time classes were held in a rented store building. The college officially began on September 17, 1895, but at that time the walls of the Administration Building were still in the foundation-building stage.

Our Nations Need Men of Morality and Integrity
Doing Scientific Research

New Emphasis on Science Education

WITH the recent discovery that Russia has made amazing advances in the development of scientific know-how, the "push" is on in the free world to induce more and more students to select a science curriculum. Previous emphasis for a number of years has been toward solving problems arising in the social relationships of people, and in increasing the number in the teaching profession to care for the swelling population of children entering the primary schools.

What does this change in educational emphasis mean to Latter Day Saint students and to their parents? How does it fit into the Restoration philosophy? Should we encourage more of our youth to choose science studies?

Naturally, Latter Day Saints will have varying opinions on the advisability of shifting the emphasis from the social study program closely related to the development of Zionics procedures. At the present time only 15 to 20 per cent of our college students are majoring in science fields, including engineering. The rest of them are working in the social sciences or related fields of business and economics, health and medicine, agriculture, education, and applied and fine arts. Shall we direct more of our new students toward chemistry, physics, electronics, and so forth?

Perhaps our first concern should be to direct more of our church youth to college. It is estimated that we have 10,000 young people of college age, and that only 2,000 of them are actually doing any college work. With the philosophy of the Restoration movement being "The glory of God is intelligence, or, in other words, light and truth" and "Seek ye diligently and teach one another words of wisdom; yea, seek ye out of the best books words of wisdom; seek learning even by study, and also by faith," there seems a greater need among us for steering our young people into fields of higher education. "The truth shall make you free" is just as applicable to material things as it is to spiritual things.

THE PRESENT DRIVE for more scientists lies in a concern for survival—a fear that the Communist nations will outdiscover and outproduce us in weapons of destruction. Such a fear seems to be pretty well imbedded in a large percentage of the people of our nation. Christians, too, seem to have concluded that "preparedness" is the only answer to averting war.

This approach to survival may be entirely wrong, but our national governmental policy stands on this base. What can be salvaged from it?

One of the major hopes in following this course toward all-out defense is that more peaceful uses of the terrific powers being unleashed by science will be discovered and eventually will be of benefit to mankind. The discoveries that are now being made (if we believe that the Restoration movement is only part of a general restoration of complete knowledge to the earth) have become possible because of an enlightenment from beyond the minds of men. Man will have to decide whether he will use them for his own destruction or physical salvation. We cannot hold them back, but we have a moral obligation to use them properly. That is how man's "divinity" will be tested. Shall he be found "wanting"?

WITHOUT doubt, our nations need men of integrity and morality doing our scientific research. Our church needs to aid in supplying these men. Such men will be searching for the morally righteous means of using the inventions and newly available powers being discovered. In general, scientific men are religious men; they have a high regard for their Creator. Their discoveries may be used destructively, but primarily they come into being because of the insatiable thirst for knowledge that God has implanted in man. And God means that we should continue our search for the secrets of the universe. That is one of the avenues of travel that lead us into his presence—to "know as we are known."

Of course, science can become our "sacred cow" or even our "god." Our thirst for knowledge may outstrip our concern for righteousness. We still need preachers and teachers and all the people who are concerned with the spiritual and physical welfare of our nations as they exist today. May we not lose our vision of the good things of everyday life in our attempt to make strides into the fearful and the unknown!

Official

School of Nursing Day

Pursuant to General Conference Action of 1956, Sunday, April 27, 1958, will this year be recognized as Independence Sanitarium School of Nursing Day throughout the church.

It is our hope that branch presidents and others concerned will place this important day on their schedule of activities and promote suitable programs commemorating the work of this institution and our students who attend there.

THE FIRST PRESIDENCY

Across the Desk

OF THE FIRST PRESIDENCY

Elder J. L. Prentice, a magistrate of the city of Toronto, Ontario, has an interesting and distinctive ministry in addition to that which ordinarily comes to him as a member of the high priesthood. Brother Prentice travels throughout Ontario and holds legal advisory classes which are of great value to church members. He conducted twenty-seven such classes during 1957 and already has sixteen requests and appointments confirmed for them for 1958. He usually arranges them so that he can preach for the local Saints at the same time.

Elder Roy Weldon has been conducting tours to Mexico for those interested in Book of Mormon archaeology. They are ventures of his own and do not have church sponsorship. But they cover an area of church interest, and he tells us that he has no way to make public the

Camp Leaders Workshop

The one-day workshop on youth camping in the church, which is to be held in connection with the National Convention of the American Camping Association, has been set for Sunday, February 9, 1958. The meetings will be held in the Minneapolis Downtown YMCA, Room 309, from 9:00 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Those planning to participate are invited to register now with F. Carl Mesle, the Auditorium, Independence, Missouri, or to see him at the Convention.

THE FIRST PRESIDENCY
W. Wallace Smith

dates for tours which he plans for 1958. At his request we therefore state that Brother Weldon will conduct all-expense tours of two weeks' duration for those interested in Book of Mormon archaeology, using a 1958 station wagon and limousine. The tours will be scheduled for January 18, February 21, May 31, June 28, August 2, November 1, and December 6, 1958. Brother Weldon can be reached at R. F. D. 5, Warrensburg, Missouri (Phone 107M).

From Ralph Rockett, pastor of the Mount Vernon, Illinois, Branch:

This is to let you know that all the members of our church were permitted to escape any serious injury in the tornado which struck Mount Vernon and the surrounding area late this afternoon

Theme for the Month:
Stewardship—A Spiritual Heritage

(December 18). I have contacted several members and have inquired and heard from most of the others. Their property has suffered only minor damage, although near-by homes have been demolished. Two of our members were in separate homes that were wrecked, but they were not injured. One was attending a Brownie Scout meeting; the other, an elderly member, was a patient at the Quinn Nursing home. We feel that we have been truly blessed.

In a recent report to the First Presidency, Church Historian John Blackmore wrote:

Associated with the work of the department is the research library. For over one hundred years books, pamphlets, valuable literature of various types must be catalogued and carded under the name of the book and the author. This task seems endless and consumes much of the time of the staff. This process of classifying is a difficult task. We are at the present time carding the items in Autumn Leaves. This work must go on until other series of our publications are done. . . .

An expanding program of services to the church will involve the modern process of photostating or micro-filming many of these rare and valuable documents. A constant process of cataloguing and filing of information, old and new, is the work of this office. The work is never completed, for new and old books are always flowing across the desk of the historian. These must be read and catalogued for future reference.

The First Presidency recently received word from Elder Kenneth Green, Kirtland Temple minister, that a new mission has been established for the Mentor-Willoughby area.

Meetings are being held in the Seventh Day Adventist church at 37742 Sharpe Avenue in Willoughby, Ohio. Elder Gerald Davidson is mission pastor.

The Saints' Herald

Vol. 105 January 20, 1958 No. 3

EDITORS: The First Presidency: Israel A. Smith, F. Henry Edwards, W. Wallace Smith. ASSISTANTS: Chris B. Hartshorn, Managing Editor; Naomi Russell, Assistant Editor; Paul A. Wellington, Assistant Editor; Roger Yarrington, Assistant Editor; Audrey Stub-

bart, Copy Editor; and Leonard J. Lea, Contributing Editor. BUSINESS MANAGER, Kenneth L. Graham.

The Saints' Herald is the official publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, with headquarters at The Auditorium, Independence, Missouri, and is issued through the offices of Herald Publishing House, 103 South Osage Street, Independence, Missouri.

Herald editors are not responsible for the views and opinions expressed in articles or communications other than those of editorial authorship.

Entered as second-class matter at the post office at Independence, Missouri, under Act of March 3, 1879. Issued weekly at Independence, Missouri, except daily during the biennial General Conference. Price, $4.00 per year in advance in the U.S.A., its territories and possessions; Canada, $4.25 per year; other countries, $5.00 per year. Notice of a change of address must be given three weeks ahead of the date that it is to become effective. Accepted for mailing at the special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917, authorized July 21, 1921. Printed in the United States of America.

THIS GOSPEL SHALL BE PREACHED

By Arnold A. Spiller

We Must Accept Our Responsibilities And Be Done with All Lesser Things

IN Doctrine and Covenants 22: 23 we are told, "for this is my work and my glory, to bring to pass the immortality, and eternal life of man."

In the New Testament we are also told, "Seek ye first to build up the kingdom of God, and to establish his righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you" (Matthew 6: 38).

In these Scriptures the "work" belonging to Divinity was salvation for all mankind, the evil as well as the righteous, and not for any particular race or era. The job assigned to man was the building of the kingdom of God on this earth.

Men often reverse these tasks in their own minds and become more concerned about whether or not their heavenly Father will succeed in his task of providing immortality and eternal life for them than in improving the quality of that which has been saved. They must first lose themselves in the work of the kingdom of God if they are ever to be found there.

Divinity provides abundantly for procreation in all plant, animal, bird, and sea life. For an example of how abundantly God provides for the success of any project which he has ever begun consider the number of blossoms on just one apple tree in a single season, or multiply the number of seeds in one apple by the number of apples on a tree by the number of years the tree will bear for the proper ration in favor of its continuation. Would God provide less abundantly for the salvation of his own offspring? One human soul is worth more to him than the entire globe, including all forms of life in the earth, water, on land, and in the air. Would God trust the eternal security of the whole human family to the frailties of a man-made priesthood that comes and goes and rises and falls, when He dares not trust the farmer with even such things as the weather or the making of a seed or an egg?

All speculation upon who is saved and who is not is evidence of doubt on man's part in the ability of Divinity to bring about eternal salvation for the human soul and also a display of selfishness on man's part in his concern for himself before that of his fellow men. There is also abundant scriptural reference providing assurance of eternal salvation. Job, one of the earliest writers of Scripture, was sure of the immortality of his soul but was not concerned about the kingdom of God, simply because this task was not yet assigned to him. Jesus assigned this task to man when he came to earth with the gospel of the kingdom.

Those who would be so encouraged by the assurance of their soul's salvation, however, that they would be content to remain at their present level—whether evil or righteous—and make no further progress will surely be most miserable in the next phase of their eternal life. If a man is severely injured in any way—even nailed to a cross—there is a function of the brain comparable to a safety valve which makes him unconscious if the pain becomes too great for him to bear, and still another function which will end his life if his physique is no longer able to bear the burden. But there is no escape from the terrible blow which is sure to come in the hereafter when he suddenly becomes aware of his actual progress in comparison with what it might have been. This truly will be a hell. Granted that the punishment which is sure to follow will be reformatory and corrective; nevertheless, it will be so terrible that it will be comparable to a "refiner's fire" (Malachi 3: 2). There is no other possible way for man's eternal progress.

Man must conquer the mystery of the unknown instead of worshipping it

Ever since man first became aware of the presence of sin in him he has sought to escape the consequences without making the necessary corrections in his own life. Long ago altars were erected where vast amounts of blood—much of it even human blood—flowed in efforts to offset man's sins, and even today burnt offerings are made on altars all over the world in religious ceremonies. However, the greatest monstrosity of all times is man's attempt to substitute Jesus Christ's death on the cross for man's sins while completely ignoring His message of the kingdom, which is the only possible way the present sins of the world can ever be overcome. Every detail of Christ's entrance and exit is remembered in sermons, rituals, and hymns, but little is said regarding his message of the kingdom of God, which was the true purpose of his ministry. Man continues to stand back at a distance worshipping the mystery of it all instead of overcoming the world with love and intelligence.

Ages ago prehistoric man had such a fear of the fire which he had seen destroying forests and erupting from volcanoes that he worshiped it, remaining at a safe distance. After his discovery that fire could be controlled by adding to or taking away from it fuel or oxygen he gradually changed his worship to respect for it and made it a valuable servant. Besides providing physical comfort and improving the taste of his food with it, he slowly but steadily learned to use it in refining ore to make metallic tools which were essential to his progress. Now millions of tons of steel are milled each day for steel products. Heat is also used to refine crude oil to make valuable chemicals and powerful fuels. Steam and internal combustion make available through the control of fire a far greater source of power to man for transportation. Now jet propulsion provides even faster transportation. Men started out worshiping fire, but now they have made a valuable servant of it—as long as they use it wisely. If they should ever be careless with it they still can be burned to death.

Primitive man also worshiped electricity when he saw it dancing about in the heavens and then heard the loud clap of thunder which followed; he greatly feared it after seeing someone electrocuted or destructive fires started by it. Today, besides using electricity for heavy machinery in factories, he uses it in his home for many common household appliances; but if he becomes careless or disrespectful of it, even ordinary house current can kill him or burn down his home. Man started out by worshiping the mystery of electricity, but now he has made it a valuable servant when used wisely but deadly if used carelessly.

When a meteor, soaring through space, came in contact with the earth's atmosphere the resulting friction between the two caused a spectacular fiery display in the heavens which man feared and worshiped. Today, in spite of numberless wheels, ball bearings, roller bearings, grease, and oil baths, he still has not destroyed friction. In fact he has learned that it is a valuable servant and should not be destroyed. He is now using friction in making tools, lathes, drill presses, and hydraulic presses as well as the beautiful sounds coming from piano and violin strings. Today, although men no longer worship friction, they know it can still be deadly if misused or not respected by the proper use of the necessary wheels, grease, oil, and bearings. Hydraulic presses make cars by pressing steel plates between dies, but if two cars meet on the highway with the same amount of force their steel is pressed into junk.

For years man has lived in fear of explosives which are made from mixtures of elements, but now he has learned that through nuclear fission a chain reaction can be set off within the

ARNOLD A. SPILLER is a cost accountant with the Builer Manufacturing Company of Kansas City, Missouri. He was born in Texas (1914) of Latter Day Saint parents. From 1937 to 1942 he was with the Gulf Publishing Company of Houston, and then went to the North American Aviation Company of Kansas City, Missouri, as Hours Control Engineer until he took his present position in 1945.

He married Jean Grisinger in 1943. They have two children, Janet Ruth, twelve, and David Arnold, ten. Brother Spiller is an Aaronic priesthood teacher and has as hobbies music and farming on a small acreage. His wife shares with him as their primary interest "the development of a unit of Zion in our home."

atoms of an element which is so powerful that just one bomb is more powerful than all the explosives used in World War II. As the supply of fuels diminish, man need not worry about power for the future with the proper development and use of nuclear fission if he has proper respect for this great power. But if he is careless or disrespectful of it or uses it in total war, he could destroy the entire world population.

There is still another force or power available beside which all these other forces are weak and insignificant. This is the Spirit of God. Just as a baby is not given such strength when it is first born that it might run upstairs and fall out a window to its death so is this great power given only in amounts which can be fully comprehended, utilized, and kept under control at all times through love for God and fellowmen. If any person who has received this great power of the Holy Spirit should ever become negligent or careless with it, it could be far more dangerous to him than fire, electricity, friction, or even nuclear fission. This is the reason that every baby's life begins with a mother's love and also why a Zion home is so important in the building of Zion—for there can be generated the greatest amount of divine love.

There must be a desire for that which is good for it to be fully appreciated

Man must want or desire something before he can fully appreciate it and before he will work or fight to attain it. An African native has no desire for an ice-cream soda because he has never tasted one. Adam never actually wanted to live in the Garden of Eden until he found himself outside its boundaries. Every human being is just as innocent, naked, and ignorant of the knowledge of good and evil at the time of his birth as was Adam before his eviction. But when he grows up and learns the difference between good and evil, if he responds to the beckoning of the Holy Spirit he will strive to regain his state of purity with the all-important addition of an intellect and a love for God and his fellow men. God is in men's presence through the Holy Spirit—above, below, and all around—but man must want or desire to feel and comprehend knowledge as well as respect the power available to him before he can partake of or fully utilize it. So must he want this kingdom of God before he can attain it, and he must desire it for the good of the entire human family—not just himself. A Latin proverb states, "Make honey, bee, but more than enough for thyself." The church failed at Kirtland and Nauvoo, and has not yet attained kingdom status in Independence. Could it be that the members were in it for good to themselves only instead of for the good of the entire world? To be a part of this kingdom of God they must first lose themselves in it.

A unit of the Spirit of God is placed within every human being just as there is potential life inert in every dry seed. Man does not attain the potential of himself and therefore should not boast of it but should awake to it. When he does this, his life will never be the same again. A change takes place within man when he first realizes that there is a spark of divinity already within him which can grow into a divine flame if properly nurtured. Each individual must also make this growth within himself just as he must attain knowledge. No one else can learn his multiplication tables for him, nor how to swim or play the piano for him.

For children to develop normally, parents cannot always continue to give all the answers and do their thinking for them. Just as every parent must withdraw into the background at times for his child to develop properly, so is it necessary for God apparently to remain in the background—although he is actually very much in the center of all things—so that man may develop. It was also necessary for Jesus Christ to disappear from the earth for his disciples to grow strong enough to carry on the program of building the kingdom here on the earth. Even though strong men were chosen, as long as Jesus stayed on the earth they remained weak followers. When Jesus was taken captive they all left him, and Peter even denied him three times. After his crucifixion they gave up and went back to their earlier professions. They had failed to understand the statement which Jesus had made to them: "Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do; because I go unto my Father" (John 14: 12).

For every form of life a seed has gone on before, dying that a new life might emerge. Each form of life, whether in a stalk or tree which has been left, must also later step aside as a whole new crop is harvested. Jesus Christ is comparable to such a divinely planted seed within the human family. It was necessary, however, that he step aside for his church to come forth in great power to fulfill the purpose of its existence. The chief function of this mother church is to give birth to the kingdom of God which will reach out over all the world to gather proper kingdom-building material.

After the resurrection of Christ, the disciples received an endowment of the Holy Spirit. However, it was only after they fully understood that the responsibility for the success of this divine project which Jesus had begun now lay squarely on their own shoulders that they became strong enough to progress with it.

Divinity accepted full responsibility for man's salvation, but man was just as clearly charged with the building of the kingdom of God on this earth. As John the Baptist was preparing the way before Jesus, he preached, "Repent ye for the kingdom of heaven [not salvation] is at hand" (Matthew 3: 28). In his perfect example of prayer Jesus did not say, "Save our souls," but rather, "Thy kingdom come." Throughout the New Testament where the words of Christ are quoted, we find that he continually taught of the kingdom; not speculating upon whether or not man's soul was saved.

Where is this kingdom of God?

When brought before Pilate Jesus was asked, "Where is this kingdom?" He replied, "My kingdom is not of this world" (John 18: 36). Most people jump to the conclusion that he meant it was up in heaven. Where is up, and where is heaven? If I point my finger upward it is continually moving at the rate of 1040 miles per hour, making a complete circle in twenty-four hours, due to the rotation of the earth. However, that is not the extent of the movement of my finger, because the earth moves around the sun at approximately 72,000 miles per hour. Our solar system then moves at a much faster rate of speed in a galaxy of stars on another orbit. This galaxy of stars then moves at a far greater rate of speed on still another orbit. So my finger is actually pointing in many directions at once and continually moving. We are not on the outskirts of the universe but in the very center of things. Neither is our heavenly Father an absentee God—he is within, around, above, and below—nor is he a God of only the past or future tenses; he is definitely one of the present tense, which is our point of contact with eternity.

Kingdoms of this world are judged by their population, natural resources, boundaries, armies, navies, air forces, or their stock pile of nuclear weapons, but God's kingdom could not be judged according to these standards. To judge the kingdom of God we would have to go inside a man to find out the true condition of his soul which no kingdom of this world could do. A true disciple's loyalty to this kingdom takes a precedence over everything else when he truly becomes converted to it. However, there need be no concern about such loyalties by any righteous nation or kingdom of this world, because such a citizen would always be the most valuable subject.

One hundred and twenty-seven years have passed since the restoration of the gospel of the kingdom of God in these latter days. Are we standing at a distance and worshipping the mystery of Zion as primitive man worshiped the mystery of fire, electricity, and friction instead of accepting our responsibility for building the kingdom for the good of the entire human family—not just from a desire for self-security?

Many of our church members remain weak and inactive by expecting another leader such as Moses to arise and do the job for them. When such a leader does appear, his procedure will be quite different from that used by Moses. Instead of managing every detail and doing their thinking for them, he will strive to make full utilization of the minds of all members, because therein lies their greatest potential power.

Industry has more than doubled wages since World War II. Therefore, to get the greatest return from its investment, elevators, conveyors, Shaw-box cranes, and assembly lines are used to set the raw material down beside the press or lathe so that full utilization may be made of the employee's skill or knowledge, which is far more valuable to the industry than his brawn. Industrial executives are no longer chosen for their ability to think for the industry but for making the most valuable utilization of the thinking of its employees instead of their physical strength.

In the perfect example of prayer Christ did not stop with the statement, "Hallowed be thy name." God is perfect and therefore could not be affected in any way by such worship. This worship is essential, however, in preparing man to make this all-important contact with Divinity by removing his pride and conditioning him to receive divine inspiration. Instead of stopping with worship for God, Jesus continued with such important statements as "Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done on earth." When we pray in this manner, may it always be with a determination to do our part by accepting our own individual and group responsibilities instead of day-dreaming about such a kingdom at some far distant time in the future.

Shall we continue to gaze upon a visionary Zion in the future and worship it as primitive man did fire, electricity, friction, and atomic energy, or shall we accept the challenge and build for the good of the entire world—beginning now? The very first step for us to take in making our dreams of Zion come true is to wake up.

Frustrations are essential to our development

Frustrations are often blessings in disguise. The Book of Mormon states that opposition is essential to man's development (II Nephi 1: 81). Evidence of the limes (an insulating military front) may be found in all forms of life from the tiniest sea shell to the largest animal, as well as in the life of mankind. Science and history prove that when a goal is reached there is a desire to make it secure by building a shell, nest, cave, home, or a system of national defense. The limes is continually being broken, however, as a result of growth or progress from within by its creative minority.

My daughter discovered an apparently quite dead cecropia moth on a peach tree. It was enclosed in its cocoon which it had built about itself, but it was later resurrected into a beautiful moth with a wingspread of more than five inches.

Another example of the limes is a temporary dam which can be built to hold back water temporarily, but as water backs up the dam will eventually break, and the water rush forth with great force and with a much wider stream instead of leisurely flowing down to sea level. As each dam breaks, man will build larger dams for greater power.

The chrysalis is just as important as the butterfly, and the dam just as important as the powerful current. The butterfly could never exist without the chrysalis having gone on before, nor could the current rush forth with greater force without there having first been a dam.

For every crest of a wave there must also be the trough of a wave, and for every hill there must also be a valley. The same is true with sound waves or electrical waves and radio waves which can circle the globe several times instantly. The ordinary current of electricity so common in our homes is also sent out through its wires alternately, so as to give it force or power. So it is with the human heart. A valve dams up our blood stream temporarily; then opens to let it gush forth through our arteries and veins with enough force to reach the outermost parts of our body. If allowed to lie still in our veins instead of being pumped by the opening and closing of the valve within the heart we would die quickly.

Just before the American Revolution, a small group of American colonists became another such creative minority within its limes. The colonists thought they had been mistreated and taxed without representation. Pressure or feelings increased until the revolution of the colonists. Had they waited and tried to match their power with the British Empire play by play, they could never have won their independence. Due to the impounded pressure within this creative minority, they won their freedom and later assisted their mother country financially and otherwise, even fighting side by side with her against common enemies.

Had our own percentage of increase of church membership always been comparable to or exceeding that of other leading churches with also a comfortable financial condition to match it, we would probably have continued to drift along peacefully never becoming fully aware of the true purpose of our existence as a church—that of building the kingdom of God. However, a limes has also been built about this church enclosing another such creative minority which will later literally burst with the kingdom. This limes is made of peculiar substance called "peace." The Book of Mormon foretells of the present condition of peaceful satisfaction in the latter days by stating that many will say that all is well in Zion; while Satan leads them carefully down to hell (II Nephi 12: 25, 26).

What is peace? George Bernard Shaw said, "Satisfaction is death. As long as I have want I have a reason for living." Peace is a mental disease or a state of mind. Man cannot continue to eat and then loaf to store up energy in his body. It would only become surplus weight which he would have to carry about with an even greater loss of energy. If a man is to develop a healthy physique, his output of energy through work or exercise is just as important as his intake of food. So it is with love. If love is stored up within ourselves, it quickly becomes pride which is extremely dangerous to our spiritual progress, but if we give it away it rapidly grows.

BISHOPRIC EDITION

A special edition of the "Herald" will appear next week (January 27). This will feature the organization and function of the bishops. Every phase of this important arm of the church is treated. Many interesting pictures are featured. If extra copies are wanted (at ten cents each) orders should be placed promptly.

There are those of our number who sincerely believe that all is well in Zion. It will be because of this limes that the kingdom of God will burst forth. There could be no butterfly without the chrysalis, or kingdom without its limes. Those to be pitied are they who are fully aware of these facts but continue to say that all is well. Such hypocrisy would be comparable to a butterfly who tried to fly and remain a chrysalis at the same time, or a dam which would attempt to be both a dam and backwater at the same time.

The mother church is to deliver the kingdom of god

Christ expressed disgust for those who attempted to be both hot and cold at the same time. He said, "I would that thou wert cold or hot. So then because thou art lukewarm, and neither cold nor hot, I will spew thee out of my mouth"

(Revelation 3:15, 16). Granted that we could apply both heat and cold resulting in a lukewarmness. But could this church be partially pregnant with the kingdom of God?

And there appeared a great sign in heaven, in the likeness of things on the earth; a woman clothed with the sun, and the moon under her feet, and upon her head a crown of twelve stars. And the woman being with child, cried, travailing in birth, and pained to be delivered. And she brought forth a man child, who was to rule all nations with a rod of iron; and her child was caught up unto God and his throne. . . . And the dragon prevailed not against Michael, neither the child, nor the woman which was the church of God, who had been delivered of her pains, and brought forth the kingdom of our God and his Christ.—Revelation 12: 1-7.

We claim to be the mother church, and the mother church is to give birth to the kingdom. Could we be just partially pregnant with the kingdom of God?

Several years ago while digging post-holes I found some fossils showing evidence of sea life millions of years ago. This spring I found a nest of dead baby rabbits whose mother had been killed. The fossils were perfectly sanitary, and they told of the far distant past. The dead rabbits were extremely unpleasant to behold as well as to smell. They were living cells of organisms which had died. Other churches are comparable to fossils. Such church fossils do an excellent job of pointing backward to the Christ of two thousand years ago. Much good has rubbed off and is now rubbing off in the process. However, our church claims to be alive and to be pregnant with the kingdom. Either our church has underway the greatest project on earth or else we are deceiving ourselves.

Summary

First, if our chief concern is salvation for ourselves, we are selfish and skeptical of the following words of Divinity, "This is my work and my glory, to bring to pass the immortality, and eternal life of man."

Second, our task as a church is the building of Zion (or the kingdom) for the good of the entire world—not selfish desire for security in the hereafter. We have a medicine for the sickness of the world. Shall we stand at a distance and worship the mystery (Babylon) or develop an intelligence counterbalanced by love for God and our fellow men?

Third, our purpose or goal as a church should not be competitive with other churches. They point to Christ as the Savior of the world. We should be proceeding with the actual building of the kingdom, rather than only standing at a distance worshipping the Author of it. Other churches are comparable to the publicity department for a product; ours should be concerned with the actual manufacturing of the product.

Fourth, a few evidences of the lateness of the hour are the ever-increasing population of the earth, our ever-increasing speed of travel, and the development of nuclear fission. With the promised endowment our spiritual development will be comparable to man's development and utilization of gravity, fire, friction, electricity, and nuclear fission—except that it will be far more powerful and much more will be at stake. This endowment of the Holy Spirit will come only to those "who seek first to build the kingdom," never to those who idly worship the mystery of it. Instead of waiting for God to build the kingdom and bestow it upon us, may we awaken to the fact that it is our duty as a church to deliver it. The pressure increases steadily the nearer we approach the time for the delivery of the kingdom from within the mother church.

Fifth, just as our heart momentarily closes our blood stream to allow the blood later to gush forth with sufficient power to reach the outermost extremities of our body, so will the message of the kingdom be taken all over the world when the limes, shell, or dam breaks. The difference between our present church and the kingdom which will soon emerge will be comparable to the difference between the drab chrysalis and the beautiful butterfly which emerges from it. Jesus said, "Seek ye first to build up the kingdom of God, and to establish his righteousness," and also, "This gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world, for a witness unto all nations, and then shall the end come" (Matthew 24: 32).

Sixth, may we stop daydreaming about that stork setting the kingdom of God on our doorstep and awaken to the fact that we, as the mother church, are to deliver or bring forth this kingdom from within ourselves. It will not be easy. It could not be easy. If so, we would be a weak people. To quote from Arnold Toynbee, the English historian, "A survey of the great myths in which the wisdom of the human race is enshrined suggests the possibility that man achieves civilization, not as a result of superior biological endowment or geographical environment, but as a response to a challenge in a situation of special difficulty which rouses him to make a hitherto unprecedented effort." He also states, "It is the difficult rather than the easy conditions that produce achievement," and "A sudden crushing defeat is apt to stimulate the defeated party to set its house in order and prepare to make a victorious response." The Book of Mormon states that "it must needs be, that there is an opposition in all things." May we arise to our kingdom-building responsibilities, the most important project on earth today, and have done with lesser things.

Hudson P. Grundy

I Had an Experience

AS I LOOK BACK over my life, I find the thing so many others have found—that a revelation of the nature of God comes gradually as one's understanding is touched by and responds to the divine, which is always present and available. It seems in my experience that the more I have acknowledged God's place in my life the greater my capacity for receiving the power of the Holy Spirit has become.

I had an experience recently which caused me to thank God for his matchless love in giving man the gift of agency and the opportunity to reach forth and partake of the divine truth according to his desire, which in turn determines his capacity.

The eyes of my mind were opened and I was looking at a great blank wall. It seemed that I was walking closer to that wall, desiring to know what was on the other side, for it seemed that whatever was there was the most desirable thing known to man, truth. This was depicted by a beautiful garden—more beautiful than words can describe.

As I moved closer I saw that there was a small opening in the wall through which I could glimpse the garden on the other side. Somehow, it seemed to be a real effort to move closer to the opening; but as I did so, more and more of the garden became visible through the opening. The more of beauty and truth that was revealed the more I desired to move closer and enlarge my vision.

Since my baptism in the church of Jesus Christ I have found that I have been blessed with an ever-unfolding revelation of the truth because I have sought after it. My only regret is that I sometimes make the excuse that I am too tired to pick up the Scriptures to study them and meditate under the influence of the Holy Spirit which accompanies any such adventure into the realms of truth and knowledge.

Before my contact with the church I thought I knew something about God and my relationship to him, but I know now that my concept was very narrow and selfish. As I reach forth for eternal truths, I come to "fear" and respect God more. And, remarkably enough, my love for him as my heavenly Father increases.

I shall always be grateful for those members of the church who opened my mind to the restored gospel and thus made it possible for me to have many wonderful experiences. I feel sure of God's interest in and concern for all of his creation. As those who have found him share this knowledge with others God is able to bless all mankind more abundantly.

Painting Presented to Church

ON December 1 the First Presidency was host to more than five hundred members and friends of the church at a reception in the Laurel Club Dining Room.

The occasion was the presentation of a portrait of G. Leslie DeLapp, Presiding Bishop of the church, by Brother and Sister Arthur B. Church who had commissioned its painting. President Israel A. Smith accepted the gift for the church, stating ". . . we extend to the donors our congratulations on the wisdom of their selection of this kind of gift to help us keep alive our memory through the years of the great part Bishop DeLapp has had in the development of the church during the last twenty-five or more years."

President W. Wallace Smith presided over the reception, which was attended by numerous church officials, community dignitaries, and friends. One of the featured guests was Daniel MacMorris of Kansas City, the portrait artist. He is shown here with Bishop DeLapp and the portrait. C. D. NEFF

Pleasanton Approaches Centennial

PLEASANTON congregation in Lamoni Stake will observe its centennial in July, 1959. It is the second oldest active congregation in the Reorganization and the oldest in Lamoni Stake.

A small group of the Saints who left Nauvoo in 1844 moved westward and stopped for a time in Garden Grove, Iowa. Some turned south from Garden Grove and settled near Pleasanton—then known as Pleasant Plains and later as Little River.

Little River Branch was organized with twenty members in 1859. George Morey was president. He had been a resident since 1852.

Other church families in the area were those of John Keown, Alfred W. Moffett, George M. Hinkle, Austin Cowles, Robert Booth, Ebenezer Robinson, and William Alden. Cowles had been a member of the Nauvoo High Council, and Robinson had served on the Times and Seasons.

Most of the new branch accepted the claims of E. C. Briggs and W. W. Blair who visited them in 1859. The branch reported to the semi-annual conference of 1859, held in the barn of Israel L. Rogers in Kendall County, Illinois.

On April 6, 1860, George Morey attended the General Conference held at Amboy, Illinois, when Joseph Smith III was ordained president of the church. Morey was named to the Standing High Council. He had been doorkeeper in Kirtland Temple the winter and spring of 1836 and was selected to fill a vacancy on the High Council at Far West in 1838.

The first church services held at Pleasant Plains were conducted in a log schoolhouse located on the A. W. Moffet farm. This building burned and was replaced by a similar structure in a short time. This second log schoolhouse was replaced by a brick one located near the home of Zenas H. Gurley.

Decatur District, comprising three counties in Missouri and six in Iowa, was organized by George Morey in 1863, following his appointment to this field. He resigned as president of Little River Branch to serve as district president.

Among those who served as presidents of Little River Branch were A. W. Moffet, Ebenezer Robinson, Isaac Baggerly, and A. W. Reese. The name "Little River" was changed to Pleasanton in 1892. A. W. Reese continued as president and was followed by Duncan Campbell, M. M. Turpin, Charles L. Morey, Walter L. Morey, Lewis W. Moffet, John R. Keown, J. Emmett Leeper, Franklyn A. Reeves, and M. G. Brooks. Some of the men served several terms, occasionally alternating.

To Seek Wisdom

THE TRAIN WAS picking up speed now that it was out of the city limits, and darkness was dropping with that suddenness characteristic of California.

I rested my head against the back of the seat and closed my eyes, dimly aware of the voices of two women and a child who were seated directly behind me. It was evident from their conversation that they were related.

"Well, what I can't understand is why some churches believe that baptism by sprinkling is right and others insist that you must be immersed!"

The child was trying to get his mother's attention.

"Mommy . . . ?"

They went on talking, seeming not to hear. "And another thing, some churches have Communion at one time and some at another."

She sighed deeply and went on, "Timmy and I go to church if it's within walking distance or if the neighbors invite us, but I can't help wondering if it is good for him to go to so many churches when their beliefs are so different. I certainly don't want him to grow up with the feeling of confusion and frustration that I have. I'd give a lot to know why God allowed so many different churches to spring up and all of them teaching that they are right."

"Mommy, Mommy . . ." the child's voice was insistent.

"Yes, yes, Timmy!" she answered impatiently. "What is it you want?"

"Well . . . why don't you ask God about it?"

There was complete silence after that, and as I watched the dark blurs of scenery flash by and an occasional distant light move slowly behind us, I recalled a favorite Scripture verse.

If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, that giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not; and it shall be given him.—James 1: 5.

ADA HAMER

The Flocks of Your Fields

Cry unto him when ye are in your fields; yea, over all your flocks; . . . cry unto him over the crops of your fields, that ye may prosper in them: cry over the flocks of your fields, that they may increase.—Alma 16: 219, 220.

IN 1948 I was in Fort Scott, Kansas, conducting evening services in the local church and daily visiting members and friends of the church.

I went to Hale Hawley's farm home, and upon entering the house, was informed by his wife that their best cow was down with some disease, and that the veterinarian, being unable to do anything for it, had just left.

While we talked together in the living room, the above quoted statement of Alma came forcibly to my mind, and I felt an urge to pray for the cow. Addressing Sister Hawley (Brother Hawley was not at home at the time), I said, "You pay your tithing, don't you?" She replied in the affirmative. Then I said, "Well, God has an investment in that cow, too," and I offered a special prayer for the cow.

Later I left the home, wondering doubtfully about what had happened, and questioning my wisdom in praying for an animal. At the church that evening I learned that soon after I left "the cow arose."

Last January (1956) I again visited the Fort Scott congregation and inquired about the cow. I learned that after years of production, it was ultimately sold.

It pays to give God an interest in our affairs by keeping his law relative to finance, for he has said, "I am bound when ye do what I say." "And I will rebuke the devourer for your sakes."

Farming is a spiritual function when the law of God is kept. This experience verifies the potency of the words of Alma.

WILLIAM PATTERSON

Knowledge Is Only a Tool
For Service

Knowledge and Service

By Mrs. T. W. Bath

KNOWLEDGE denotes acquaintance with facts; service, performance of labor for the benefit of others.

The millions of young people attending school bring to mind a realization of the wonderful opportunities offered American youth. With few exceptions, any boy or girl in our country who has the desire and the initiative can receive a high school education. We would not want it to be any different. Education—the gaining of knowledge—is very important. But, in a day when so much stress is placed on the “scientific approach” to learning, it is well to remind ourselves that spiritual values which cannot be calculated on a slide rule nor seen under a microscope are no less important than subjects taught in schools.

It is a recognized fact that men’s minds have been working overtime, but their hearts have remained unmoved. Touch a man’s mind alone and you send a Saul journeying along the Damascus roads of the world in the eternal search for truth’s objective. You make him keen, alert, tense, vivid, happy—but only in a limited sense. He may achieve knowledge a step ahead of his generation, yet he may never see the tears on the face of a little child. And, never seeing them, he cannot dry them. Thus service is lacking.

Unless increased knowledge is put to use in the interest of mankind, it is of little value. Education is not an end in itself. Many times we have seen in the lives of those about us that when a man leaves God things start happening to him; when he comes back to God, things start happening for him. So we blend living and service with knowledge obtaining this result: “Waste not the opportunities God has granted; want not for his blessings.”

MAN IS NEVER completely satisfied with the things that are told to him. Natural human curiosity causes him to search hidden passageways for further light to be shed on knowledge he already has. Man questions so-called facts. He wants to know for sure what is true. He wants more knowledge, more power, more certainty. Without this curiosity, this uncertainty, this doubt, there would be no progress. There is nothing more certain than change. While change does not always mean progress, yet there can be no progress without change. There must be a continual quest for truth; then knowledge, like our blood, must circulate to the extent it includes service.

This continual searching for the truth is a healthful condition in mankind and has resulted in better living. Among the eleven living world religions, each holding itself to be the one true church, there has developed a spirit of co-operation and tolerance. Christians the world over realize that much more can be accomplished by working together than by being divided in efforts; this belief is helping them to overcome self-centeredness individually and as groups.

As an example of self-centeredness, there was a woman who imagined herself to be ill. She loved to talk about herself and became completely absorbed in her ailment, real or supposed. One day she consulted a famous specialist. “Tell me all about yourself,” invited the doctor, and the delighted invalid launched out in full sail. “Madam,” said the specialist when the woman eventually stopped for want of breath, “for a complaint such as yours I can only advise one thing. Make a journey to Niagara Falls and there take a long, long look at something bigger than yourself.” What a cure. It isn’t the hours you put in life but what you put in the hours that count.

THE FEAR of the Lord is the beginning of knowledge; but fools despise wisdom and instruction” (Proverbs 1: 7). Many times the Lord has commanded us, both collectively and individually, to seek learning and understanding through personal effort. He has commanded this in the Bible, the Book of Mormon, and the Doctrine and Covenants. It appears in many patriarchal blessings. In innumerable places he has admonished his people to become familiar with the things which he has caused to be written for the instruction of those who profess to follow him. We think of our children when “instruction” is mentioned. We teach our children because the Lord has commanded it. To do less brings condemnation upon the heads of the parents. Instruction is a way of happiness for them; instruction is necessary for their salvation. We are anxious for them to exert an influence for good among their fellow men; the hope of Zion lies in our children. What shall we teach them? What type of knowledge do they need?

Waste not the opportunities
God has granted; want not for his blessings.

To fully understand the doctrine of repentance—think what that means! Faith in Christ the Son of the Living God; baptism and the gift of the Holy Ghost by the laying on of hands when eight years old; to pray; to walk uprightly before the Lord . . . (Doctrine and Covenants 68: 4).

Our church record of teaching our children is not good enough, for we as parents are not spared; neither are our children, who are not taught, spared the sorrows and woes which come of walking in paths other than those laid down in the gospel law.

Since God is the source of all wisdom, it logically follows that to study the things of God is itself a mark of wisdom. Many have found joy in the promise, "Treasure up in your minds continually the words of life, and it shall be given you in the very hour that portion that shall be meted unto every man" (Doctrine and Covenants 83: 14 d). Many can relate experience after experience when these words were fulfilled, and a sense of joy was theirs because of it.

Home Column

The poet Cowper put into charming verse a great truth when he wrote these lines:

Knowledge and wisdom, far from being one,

Have oft-times no connection. Knowledge dwells

In heads replete with thoughts of other men;

Wisdom in minds attentive to their own.

Knowledge, a rude unprofitable mass,

The mere materials with which wisdom builds,

Till smoothed and squared and fitted to its place,

Does but encumber whom it seems to enrich.

Knowledge is proud that he has learned so much;

Wisdom is humble that he knows no more.

WE HAVE been told to "get wisdom: and with all thy getting get understanding." Solomon prayed for a heart of understanding, and the Lord said to him, "I have given thee a wise and an understanding heart" (I Kings 3: 12). "The Lord requireth the heart and a willing mind" (Doctrine and Covenants 64: 7). Sister Grace Krahl once wrote of a giant tree which had been felled by the wind. "As one stood beside its form and sensed what its magnificent height had been, one felt like exclaiming as did David at the death of Saul and Jonathan, 'How are the mighty fallen.' But it was not its overthrow by the storm alone that caused astonishment, for indeed there was a noticeable injury on one side of the tree which silently told that all was not well within—it was the condition of the heart of the tree that had undermined its resistance to the elements in their rage that caused our concern. As we viewed the interior where it had been broken off, what a sight met our eyes! Only a small rim of solid wood remained; the rest was decayed and rotten. The crumbled pieces that had fallen within its trunk were light as cork and full of holes. Perhaps some sort of insect life had found entrance to its heart and remained there."

There are avenues to human hearts as accessible to sources of destruction as the invaders of the tree—our thoughts. They hover around us constantly seeking entrance. We must search for thoughts with quality and reject others. Disciplining our thoughts is a major concern for each of us. Learning and understanding are closely associated with actions. There are many things which we do not understand, but if we will make use of what we do understand, it will help us to grow in further knowledge and truth. We approach God by the use of what truth we have.

Knowledge is only a tool for service. . . . Service is friendship in action.

I have often thought of the line in the book, The Robe, in which old Justus, referring to the workability of the philosophies of Jesus, said, "It is like a seed; it isn't worth much if you expect immediate results, but if you are willing to plant it and nurture it . . . Jesus said it would work like yeast in meal—slowly, silently—but once it began nothing could ever stop it." He explains that faith is not like a deed to a house, but a mere kit of tools which have no value if not used.

Knowledge also is only a tool for service—a tool with little real value unless we serve God and our fellow men. "To be learned is good, if they hearken unto the counsels of God."—II Nephi 6: 61. Service in any field is deeply enriched by knowledge.

SERVICE is friendship in action. Since a woman's work primarily is at home, we think first of household tasks as service-friendship producing results. Household tasks are not drudgery even though man works from sun to sun and woman's work is never done. Love may move us to the most sublime sacrifices or cause us to serve day by day, month by month, and year by year in ways that otherwise would be intolerable drudgery. Rather often this thing happens: A girl who never intends to marry a poor man does so and finds the greatest joy a woman can find in taking care of her own home with her own hands. She finds that household tasks are not drudgery when her heart is in them. As for the young man, he is out working long hours like a galley slave but he is happy. Thus the human hearts pump lifeblood into all the constructive work in the world.

THERE is a difference between the kinds of work which we may do and our motivations. Some just keep busy, doing "busy work"; some worship the work of their own hands, that which their own fingers have made; others have rightly learned to work with Zion's purposes at heart. The interpretation of the picture by Dürer, "Praying Hands," tells a beautiful story of one artist who used his hands to good advantage in humble work that a fellow artist might use his talents successfully. Both the artist and his loyal, unselfish friend used their hands for something beautiful in the spirit of service for others.

Picture all the women of the church. Each will use her hands toward the building of a Zion's home, recognizing that there can be no Zion's community until there are first brought into being Zion's homes. Whether in the parlor or in the kitchen, office or schoolroom, factory or field, we are all alike, as servants of God, under the obligation to do all we possibly can in the service of mankind and do it with the holy motive of pleasing our heavenly Father through obedience, good works, and love. As labor done from selfish motives is of the earth, and as the results which follow it will perish with the earth, even so service rendered to bless mankind and to please God is divine; the results flowing out of it must be everlasting honor and joy. When this principle is carried into effect, every part of human conduct becomes religious—a positive act of divine worship acceptable to God. There is a promise, "He that keepeth his commandments, receiveth truth and light, until he is glorified in truth, and knoweth all things" (Doctrine and Covenants 90: 4).

May "the Lord give thee understanding in all things" (II Timothy 2: 7).

May you have a knowledge of service well done and your mind be at ease.

Onward to Zion

The words of this hymn by Frederick M. Smith, former prophet of the church, have come to mean a very great deal to the people of the church.

There are two "feelings" about these words; one, the somewhat militant, aggressive "Onward to Zion, faithful and strong," and the more meditative longing expressed in "Zion the beautiful beckons us on." The two emotions alternate: "Service' the watch word, we fight against wrong" with "We have the promise that Jesus will come . . . Oh, may his coming be not delayed long . . ."

The words were very slightly altered from the original by Brother Fred M.'s daughter, Alice Edwards, to make the meter a little less irregular. The "Beautiful Dreamer" tune of Stephen Foster was originally used for the hymn, but President Smith told me of his wish that a more suitable hymn tune might be found for it. He even asked some of our church musicians to write a more suitable tune, and we have quite a number of those tunes on file, all of which were considered by the Committee which compiled the Hymnal for Youth, where the tune now appearing in The Hymnal was first published.

Since this is my own tune, perhaps I may be allowed to state an opinion about it. I think I have written better hymn tunes than this one. The two emotions expressed in these words were very hard to set to music. A tune having the "march on with a song" or "onward and upward battle along" emotion would do violence to the "Zion the beautiful beckons us on" or "Oh, may his coming be not delayed long" emotion, or vice versa. Putting it in a 3/4 meter modifies the "marching" quality but allows enough vigor to express the "onward and upward" feeling without destroying the meditative longing feeling of "beckoning us on" to Zion. F. S. W.

The KINGDOM of GOD on EARTH

Zion

Zion Irregular

D. and C. 12: 3
D. and C. 81: 4c
Ps. 50: 1-5

432

Frederick M. Smith, 1874-1946

M. J 96

Franklyn S. Weddle, 1950

1. On-ward to Zi - on, faith-ful and strong, Zi - on the beau-ti - ful beck-ons us on,
2. On-ward to Zi - on, to Christ we be-long, Service the watch-word we fight a-against wrong!
3. We have the prom-ise that Je-sus will come, Zi - on the beau-ti - ful beck-ons us on,
4. Je - sus the Sav - ior, meet-ing the throng, Oh, may his com-ing be not de-layed long;

On-ward and up - ward bat-tle a - long, Zi - on the beau-ti - ful beck-ons us on.
On-ward to Zi - on, march with a song, Zi - on the beau-ti - ful beck-ons us on.
Let us be faith-ful, his will be done, Zi - on the beau-ti - ful beck-ons us on.
To God the glo - ry, to him the song, Zi - on the beau-ti - ful beck-ons us on.

Copyright, 1950, Herald Publishing House, Independence, Missouri.

Alma 14: 96, 97
D. and C. 76: 1, 2a
Joel 3: 16, 17

433

Ernest Dodgshun, 1876

Brockham (or Confidence) L.M.

M. J 92

Jeremiah Clark, 1670-1707

1. Where beau - ty, truth, and love make one, The heaven-ly king-dom is be - gun;
2. For beau - ty is the smile di - vine That in the Fa-ther's face doth shine,
3. Truth is his thought that makes men free, Un - veil - ing life's re - al - i - ty,
4. Love is the Fa-ther's heart that knows His chil-dren's joys, his chil-dren's woes,
5. Come, beau - ty, truth, and love in one, Make of our hearts thy con-stant throne,

Shine, light of God, that we may see On earth this no - ble trin - i - ty.
And na - ture an-swering tells a - broad The ver - y glo - ry of the Lord.
As age by age to ea - ger hearts More of his pur - pose God im - parts.
This was the way the Mas - ter trod Who gave the world a Sav - ior God.
That God him - self through us may find A - bid - ing home with all man-kind.

Words from The Fellowship Hymn Book. Used by permission.

(346)

DATING AND MARRIAGE

special February STRIDE

In this issue you'll find the church's "gospel of dating and marriage." Probably the most complete and authoritative statement our denomination has published. Young people, parents, pastors, and counselors are urged to read it.

Single copies, 30c each

Yearly subscriptions:

U.S. $2.50 Canada $2.75 other countries $3.00

Book Review

Spiritual Renewal Through Personal Groups
The Association Press
1957 Edited by
John A. Casteel
Price $3.50

Members of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints have, since the beginning of their teaching ministry, emphasized the value of personal group ministry. This book is an affirmation of the truth contained in that type of ministry. Kenneth Cox, a layman in Canada; Harold Frey, Jr., Howard Haines, Gerald Jud, Robert Lynn, Carl Smith, John Meister, and Thomas Steen, ministers in the United States; William Ham, Educational Director in the United States; and Mrs. Elsie Johnson, a lay member in the United States, give reports of group ministry with which they have been associated. A personal group is defined as a small number of persons meeting face to face regularly for the purposes of the study of the Bible and of the Christian faith, for prayer, for the exchange of experiences, needs and insights, and for taking thought as to how they can best fulfill their calling as Christians to love and serve God and other people.

Personal groups such as our own group prayer meetings and study groups can accomplish many spiritual purposes which cannot be accomplished in larger groups, as well as vitalizing the entire congregation. Dr. Jud lists seven results of personal group activities:

1. An excellent opportunity is provided for our people to know a Christian community.
2. In the study group the individual learns.
3. The individual is often challenged to be quite introspective in regard to his personal religious life, thus furthering religious growth.
4. Group members grow in their sense of worship.
5. The relationship to the church is strengthened by membership in the group.

6. The small study group often becomes, in the most real sense, the redemptive fellowship of the church in action.

7. Experience is gained in personal witnessing to the faith.

It is the consensus of those reporting on personal group experiences that such groups cannot be legislated or organized. Rather they have to grow as people become aware of their need for growth. William Ham lists six minimum disciplines required by Christ in the New Testament and states that personal groups help to instill these disciplines into the personality of the members of such groups. This minimum discipline calls for (1) daily prayer, (2) weekly worship, (3) daily study of the Scriptures, (4) membership in a fellowship group or participation in an educational program, (5) tithing as a minimum stewardship program, (6) daily expression of Christian love in redeeming service.

This book is of exceptional value to pastors and priesthood members, but it is also helpful to the individual member of the church who is concerned about a deeper spiritual life and wants to do something about it. C. R. ETINGER

Question Time

Question

My neighbor is a member of the church in Utah. She tells me we are wrong because we don't build temples. I told her the only revelation to build one was for the Kirtland Temple. She claims the one at Nauvoo was completed. Is this so?
Missouri

Mrs. L. M.

Answer

The revelation (107:12 c; Utah 124:39) says, "... are ordained by the ordinance of my holy house, which my people are always commanded to build unto my holy name." The Mormons interpret this as "a standing commandment" as though it read, "... are commanded always to build." What significance would there be to a commandment if no time or place is given? How can they know if a dozen temples in a hundred years satisfied such direction if they are commanded to be always building?

The evidence seems quite clear that the temple was not completed when the Saints were driven from Nauvoo in 1846. In this same revelation they were told, "I grant unto you sufficient time to build a house unto me, and during this time your baptisms shall be acceptable unto me. But, behold, at the end of this appointment, your baptisms for your dead shall not be acceptable unto me; and if you do not these things at the end of the appointment, ye shall be rejected as a church with your dead, saith the Lord your God" (107:10 f, 11 a).

Baptisms were then being performed in the Mississippi River. At a Conference on October 3, 1841, Joseph Smith announced, "There shall be no more baptisms for the dead until the ordinance can be attended to in the font of the Lord's House . . . for thus saith the Lord" (Times and Seasons, Volume 2, page 578).

An editorial in Times and Seasons (Volume 3, pages 937-939) said, "The word of the Lord is to build my house, and until that command is fulfilled we stand responsible to the great Jehovah for the fulfillment of it, and if not done in due time we may have to share the same fate that we have heretofore done in Missouri."

The plain inference here is that they would be driven out of Nauvoo. History gives the answer: the church was rejected and had to reorganize.

As late as January 1, 1877, Brigham Young, speaking of the Nauvoo Temple, declared in a speech, "It is true we left brethren there with instructions to finish it, and they got it nearly completed before it was burned, but the Saints did not enjoy it" (Journal of Discourses, Volume 18, page 304). C. B. H.

Question

What is the meaning of the word "water" found in John 19:34, "A spear pierced his side, and forthwith came there out blood and water"?

Oklahoma

W. T. P.

Answer

It seems apparent that the word means literally water. Although we may not understand how it was possible for both blood and water to come forth from his side, the biblical account makes it clear that this is what happened. Regarding this fact, Dummelow says, "No satisfactory medical explanation of this phenomenon has been given, though it has been suggested that the death of Christ was due to rupture of the heart consequent upon acute mental sufferings, and thereupon the cavities of the heart became filled with a watery serum, which flowed out when Christ's side was pierced. The evangelist himself seems to have regarded the strange phenomenon as a miracle" (The One Volume Bible Commentary, by J. R. Dummelow, page 808).

RUSSELL F. RALSTON

History of Carthage Missouri Branch

Photo by Keith B. Stokes

IN THE SPRING of 1914 a small home class was started in Carthage through the efforts of Sister Mahala Lasley of Webb City, Missouri. The class met in the homes of Brother and Sister Green and Sister Lula Kincaid on alternate Sundays. Sister Kincaid moved shortly after the class began, but the Greens remained until they moved to Independence, Missouri, in 1935. When the church school was organized, Sister Green was church school director, and Sister Kincaid was her assistant.

On April 9, 1915, Elders Frank Freeman and J. C. Virgin of Webb City organized a church school with eight adults and eight children. They met in homes until the class was too large, then they met in a large room over the William Wallace Grocery Store on the corner of Case and Chestnut Streets.

It was soon necessary to find larger quarters, and arrangements were made for a larger room in the same building. Two years after the organization the enrollment was fifty-six, with an average attendance of forty-five.

On August 1, 1916, Elder Frank Freeman appointed Brother S. L. Cale as minister in charge of the mission. On November 9, 1916, Elders J. C. Virgin and Emmett Lancaster of Joplin organized the Zion's Religio Literary Society with twelve charter members. Brother Cale was elected president, and interest continued for several years.

The Carthage Saints dreamed of having a church home, and on October 8, 1916, plans were laid toward fulfillment of that dream when a committee consisting of S. L. Cale, Elsie C. Miller, and Martha Green was chosen to solicit funds, select a site, and purchase it. The lot where the present church now stands was purchased from Dr. K. E. Baker, and the actual construction was started March 19, 1917. Brother Cale was in charge of construction, but all worked willingly according to their ability. Services were held in the church just five weeks after it was started.

The branch was organized March 10, 1918, by District President Charles Fry, Apostle F. M. Sheehy, and Elder Frank Freeman, president of Webb City Branch at that time. Forty-five were present as charter members. Elder Virgin was chosen as first branch president, S. L. Cale as priest, and Jessie Rhoads as branch clerk.

During the fall of 1926, a number of improvements were added to the church building. The Saints also paid off the balance due on the church. Dedication services were held December 5, 1926. Apostle J. F. Graver gave the dedication sermon. District President Amos T. Higdon was also present and gave the dedicatory prayer. Branch President Freeman, who was also district bishop's agent, acted for the General Church in presenting the church to the local Saints.

In March, 1933, work was started on a basement. During the early part of 1937 the church building was raised, windows were put in the basement, and the basement was finished enough to hold classes. In August, 1937, the stove was repaired in the main auditorium, and in November, vent pipes were put in the wall of the church.

In July, 1939, the old flue was torn out and a new one erected, and a rod was secured across the front of the church for curtains. The upper auditorium was plastered. In August of that year the rostrum floor was completed and the entire upper auditorium floor was sanded and varnished. The young people raised money to buy curtains and presented them to the branch. In October a coal furnace was purchased.

A large church sign was purchased in June, 1941, and put on the front lawn. It was decided in February, 1944, to have the west lot graded. A cement floor was put in the basement in May, 1944. Two gift evergreens were planted in the front yard. The walls of the basement were plastered in June, 1945. A new walk was laid in June, 1946.

The envelope system was started in 1947.

A piano was donated in June, 1947, and the old piano was taken to the children's department.

In January, 1948, the choir members purchased material and made robes. The women's department purchased folding chairs in June of that year, and in September, 1950, one hundred seats were purchased from the Methodist Church and put into the upper auditorium.

www.LatterDayTruth.org

In the fall of 1951, two rooms were built at the back of the church for classrooms. In October, 1951, two floor furnaces were purchased and installed. A rug and aisle runners were presented by the women's department.

In June, 1952, the basement was painted and redecorated. A sweeper was presented, and wine-colored drapes were purchased for the purpose of separating the rostrum from the rest of the upper auditorium.

In June, 1953, a nursery was provided. The church was repainted on the outside two years later, and the same year an electric Wurlitzer organ was installed. Other improvements outside and in have been added since that time.

The following have served as branch presidents: Elders Frank Freeman and John C. Virgin of Webb City, Joseph W. Smith of Independence, a church appointee; T. J. Shepherd and S. N. Gray of Joplin; Dan Lewis, Brother Crabb, Van Talcott, A. M. Hogan, Earl Phillips, Herman O. Plumb, and Priests Hadie Shields, Frank Shank, Clyde Hartman, and Ben F. Goettel, the present pastor.

The present enrollment in the Carthage Branch is one hundred and twenty.

From material prepared by MRS. ELMER V. ROE

Over 100 Courses are Listed in the New Catalog for the School of the Restoration

New School Catalog Ready

Photo by Keith B. Stokes

THE FIRST official catalogue of the School of the Restoration is ready for distribution. Copies will be sent free to persons requesting them.

More than one hundred courses are listed in the catalogue. They are offered for residence study at the school's campus at 9900 Winner Road, Independence, Missouri. A selection of courses is also offered for home study through correspondence.

The School of the Restoration is described in the catalogue as "a co-educational college founded in 1956 under the sponsorship of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, with world headquarters in Independence, Missouri."

In the introduction of the sixty-four-page book L. Wayne Updike, assistant to the First Presidency and director of the school, writes: "The School of the Restoration provides a means of continuous growth and expanded capabilities for all who wish to train for service in the church. It promotes 'learning even by study, and also by faith,' fosters the spirit of evangelism, motivates effective witnessing for Christ, and develops proficient ministers and other Christian leaders. It recognizes that growth in 'good' stewardship is cultivated through constant, prayerful study under guidance. Specific training for church work brings rich rewards."

The catalogue outlines two fields of study for persons wishing to attain graduation: (1) the field of ministerial study, and (2) the field of Christian leadership. The first is for ministers; the second is for all other students.

To complete requirements for graduation students study a specified number of hours in the departments of communication, education, history, practicum, psychology, Scriptures, and theology.

The school also offers certificates of proficiency for persons who work in branch and district offices. Hours required to obtain the certificates vary from the twenty hours required for a certificate of proficiency for deacons, bishop's agents, solicitors, and treasurers to the fifty hours required for a certificate of proficiency for the district president. Courses taken for a certificate of proficiency are also applied toward graduation which requires ninety hours.

OFFICIAL CATALOG

SCHOOL OF THE RESTORATION

9900 WINNER ROAD / INDEPENDENCE / MISSOURI

Gilberto Aguilera, instructor in Spanish, is pictured on the school catalog leading an advanced class

Department heads at the school are Mrs. F. Henry Edwards, communications; Stanley W. Johnson, education; Richard Dunlap, history; L. Wayne Updike, practicum; Harley Morris, psychology; Alfred Yale, scriptures; and Charles D. Neff, theology.

The school's board of trustees consists of the First Presidency, the Presiding Bishopric, president of the Council of Twelve, president of the High Priests' Quorum, and the senior president of Seventy.

President Israel A. Smith is chairman of the board, and Clifford A. Cole, director of the Department of Religious Education, is secretary of the board and associate director of the school. Bishop G. L. DeLapp is treasurer.

Persons wishing to receive a free copy of the catalogue should write to: School of the Restoration, 9900 Winner Road, Independence, Missouri.

Letters

Comments on Herald

I have just finished reading the Herald for December 2. It was a most refreshing experience. Sometimes we take these privileges for granted.

I read "The Most Rewarding Year" by Reed Holmes, and as the tears came, I realized that the Spirit of God was bearing witness to me of the magnitude of the work in that area.

I read "A Light unto the World" by Byron Kagay and was made aware of the fact that we are living far beneath our privileges.

I read Ruth Holman's "Women of Good Works" telling the story of Hermina Green's courage and conviction in this latter day work. It inspired me.

Marian Blumenschein's "Mexico, Land of Contrast" was thrilling indeed. As I read of that ancient land I longed to travel there myself.

I noted where a Jordan nurse would study at the "San" and felt that prophecy was coming true—more each day. Other nations are coming to the top of the mountain—to the house of the Lord of Jacob and learning of His ways.

I sometimes write articles for the Herald. I feel I have taken the church publications for granted to some degree. I am grateful for this recent experience which has helped me to a closer walk with God for this day, and even for tomorrow.

Pensacola, Florida LUCILLE OLIVER

An Unusual Experience

I had an experience many years ago that remains bright in my memory. In the year 1921 a branch of the church was organized in Cornwall, Ontario, under the supervision of Apostle R. C. Russell and Elde. P. Pement. There were two local elders also, one of whom was a very jovial person. One evening while he was presiding at a service, the theme of which I thought required a certain amount of gravity, he continued to be his usual smiling self. The thought came to me, this brother's attitude is not very righteous, but as soon as I thought this a shaft of light descended from above and rested upon the man. While he looked up, his countenance was most worshipful.

I have had many wonderful experiences. God has indeed been good to me. I am looking forward to the time when the Saints will be gathered together to enjoy the fullness of all that a loving heavenly Father has in store for them.

Cornwall, Ontario JOHN E. MULLEN

The Importance of Church Attendance

It is wonderful to be able to attend the same church all of one's life and get to know everyone in the congregation. That is how it had been for me until five years ago when my husband and I found employment in Kansas City. We dreaded leaving our home group in Fanshawe, Oklahoma, but we resolved not to miss a single service after we moved. We found which church we could reach by bus and made plans to attend the first Sunday. However, on Sunday morning we felt different about it. We realized that we wouldn't know anyone; we would miss our "church family" in Fanshawe; and besides, if we didn't go, we could take an extra nap which would be good for us. But sleep wouldn't come, and I began to meditate. Almost like a voice of warning, the words of a song came to me: "Let us go to the house of the Lord." I quickly arose and got ready for church; my husband joined me.

A hearty welcome awaited us in the Van Brunt congregation. The members were meeting in the Masonic Lodge Hall while awaiting construction of their new church. It was not like our home church, but the services were wonderful and the Saints friendly. One brother invited us to ride with him so we gave the money we saved in bus fare to the collection. We have never felt the power of the Holy Spirit more in any place.

Many people find it necessary to move from one locality to another; I wonder if some of the names without addresses coming from the Statistical Department aren't among these people who leave their home congregation and never begin attendance in their new location. Perhaps they are tempted to take that extra nap on Sunday morning as we were. I want to urge all such members to make the effort to attend services, wherever they are; they will find their heavenly Father waiting for them, and they will also find friends. They will encounter problems in their new environment, and church associations will help them to make a happy adjustment.

If you are thinking of moving, please keep in contact with your church. It needs you, and you need it.

Wister, Oklahoma LONA BURGESS

A Little Child Shall Lead Them

About June, 1956, our two children joined the church school of the Stockport Branch. Through their interest in the activities of this little church, we both decided to find out more of this religion. Consequently, we were both baptized on October 23, the same year; our daughter Susan was baptized the following Easter Sunday. We never cease to marvel at the wonders that this step has brought us. We can also give direct testimony of what we regard as nothing less than a miracle. Not many months later, Susan had a very serious accident. While playing near our home, she was struck on the head by an iron railing spike. She was rushed to a hospital unconscious, and we greatly feared for her life. That same night a brain specialist operated on Susan; it wasn't until four days later that we knew that our little girl was out of danger. During all this time, members of the priesthood never failed to be at her bedside, with administration and their prayers. Their unflinching devotion to their calling and their care and attention to our family will always be to us a message of the truth and the light. We bless the day our children led us to the gospel.

THOMAS AND IRENE WRIGHT
Stockport, England

From Christmas until Easter

I have been thinking today—Christ's birthday—of something special I could do to show my appreciation for his great gift. I know I often waste money, so I have decided to take a small notebook with me everywhere I go and keep record of what I do without that I would ordinarily purchase. I'll also carry a small purse in which to put the money I save. This I shall keep until Easter; then I'll send it to the bishop for the Auditorium fund. Perhaps others would like to try this plan.

This will help me to save for a worthy project that I too often have neglected in the past. Keeping a record will also help me to become a better steward.

Sweet Home, Oregon BEA WHITE

Request for Correspondence

I am forty-nine years old and a widow. I have one married daughter, a thirteen-year-old son, and a ten-year-old daughter. I would like to correspond with others near my age who are interested in music, especially piano and organ. I am church pianist for our group; since there is no one else to take my place, I am responsible for all the music at our services. I hope to be able to teach music in private homes after completing a correspondence course from the U. S. School of Music in New York.

I would like to hear from others who are experienced in this field.

513 Pierce Street ROSETTA GRENIER
Oscoda, Michigan

Church Seal Sweater Guard

To be worn on sweater lapels to hold garment loosely across shoulders—makes any sweater a cape. Two gold finish church seals ($\frac{3}{4}$ -inch in diameter) connected by pearl-studded chain. Each seal is encircled by seven simulated pearls. An attractive and useful piece of jewelry, gift boxed and ready to wrap.

$1.50 plus 15c federal excise tax

HERALD HOUSE Box 477, Independence, Missouri
Box 382, Guelph, Ontario, Canada

Graceland Gazette

■ The new pastoral divisions for the second three-month period of the school year were organized December 1, and the units which make up each division will work together until March 2. For this period each division has adopted a congregation in the Center Stake in order to get better acquainted with the church outlook in Independence. As a gesture of friendship each division decorated a Christmas tree to send to its adopted congregation. These trees were dedicated at the divisional meetings on December 11.

A new advisory committee has been set up for the divisions. Committee members are as follows: counsel meetings and activities, Ted Traver; personnel of divisions, Sandra Traver; program, publicity, and invitations, Ruth Kuenzi; chaplaincy activities and ministries, Bob Speaks; faculty and administration contacts, Barney Parker; room reservations and arrangements, Bob Speaks.

Following is a list of the pastors and the adopted congregations for each of the new divisions: Division I, Ted Biller, Slover Park congregation; Division II, Clive Chisholm, Blue Ridge congregation; Division III, Don Davis, Walnut Park congregation; Division IV, Gerald Davis, Liberty Street congregation; Division V, George Gates, Englewood congregation; Division VI, Everett Graffeo, West College congregation; Division VII, Tom Nowlin, South Chrysler congregation; Division VIII, Jim Swick, Enoch Hill congregation; Division IX, Darrell Webb, Second Church; and Division X, Gerry Westwood, the Stone Church congregation.

■ A tree-lighting service in the Student Center on December 8 officially opened the Christmas season on the campus. To start the program Donna Lou Pyper led and accompanied group singing. This was followed by a visit from Santa Claus, and then Mr. Goode played several Christmas carols on bottles filled with water. After everyone had placed his decorations on the tree, Dennis Knudson, Student Body President, lit the tree. Miss Sorden told a Christmas story, and Dr. Cheville closed the service by leading several Christmas carols.

■ Following are some of the Christmas activities that took place on the campus between December 8 and 18:

The annual Christmas band concert was given at the assembly December 11. The program featured Christmas music and included carol singing by the audience with band accompaniment.

The SAPC film committee showed "The Littlest Angel" on Saturday evening, December 14, in the Assembly Chapel.

The International Club, the married group, and many of the social clubs had Christmas parties.

On Sunday evening, December 15, the Graceland Festival Chorus presented Handel's Messiah in the Lamoni High School Auditorium. The Graceland-Lamoni Orchestra accompanied the chorus; scriptural passages were read by Ray Zinser of the Graceland faculty. The Festival Chorus was composed of the Concert Choir, Chapel Choir, and other interested Graceland students and people from Lamoni and the surrounding area. Henry Anderson directed the production.

The last assembly for 1957 was held December 18 under the direction of Miss Celia Schall and Mrs. Sally Flanders. The theme was "Christmas Is a Time for Stories," and featured excerpts from Dicken's Christmas Carol, Gift of the Magi, The Small One, and the first Christmas from Luke and Matthew. These were accompanied by the Concert Choir and four tableaux made up of freshmen.

The annual Benedictory Christmas Service was held Wednesday evening, December 18, in the Memorial Student Center. The theme of the service was "Our Cathedral of Trees." The Chapel Choir participated in this service, helping to make it an outstanding experience. Following the service the Concert Choir sang carols from the north door of the Ad Building.

■ The Women's Social Club Council sponsored a Christmas project for a local family whose house burned recently. Each women's club donated something: a tree, trimmings for the tree, toys, shirts and gloves for the children, and groceries for the Christmas dinner. The Council representatives delivered the gifts and joined with the family in singing Christmas carols.

■ Christmas recess officially began at 4:00 p.m., December 19, and ended Sunday, January 5, at 10:00 p.m.

■ Of the 673 students enrolled at Graceland this year, 101 are descendants of alumni or former students; 30 have both mother and father who are alumni or former students; and 62 have one parent who is an alumnus or former student. There are five third-generation Gracelanders: David Derry, Lamoni, Iowa (grandson of Lillian Conover Smith); M. Jane Harder, Tulsa, Oklahoma (granddaughter of D. O. Harder); Elbert Harrington, East Moline, Illinois (grandson of John and Grace McCoy Harrington); and Barbara G. and Beverly J. Smith, Cedar Falls, Iowa (granddaughters of John F. Garver, Minnie Hayer Garver, and Arthur Smith). There is one fourth-generation Graceland. He is John L. Williams of Ottumwa, Iowa (grandson of Jessie Thorburn Fleming Lane and great-grandson of George W. and Alice Thorburn).

Golden Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bowlsby of Lincoln Park, Michigan, observed their fiftieth wedding anniversary with a reception at the Reorganized Church in Whitemore, Michigan, on November 23. Over two hundred relatives and friends were present for the occasion.

Pearl Provost and Edward Bowlsby were married November 20, 1907, by Elder Joseph Sheffer. Both are members of the Reorganized Church; she was baptized on June 14, 1907, and he on May 5, 1913. They have eight living children: Mrs. Effie Barr of Whitemore, Mrs. Pearl McGuire of Mikado, Mrs. Bertha Caverley of Hale, and Mrs. Doris Gonzolez of Lincoln Park; Trussel of Dearborn, Edward of Tawas City, Lewis of Free-land, and Emmerson of Romeo. They also have thirty-eight grandchildren and seventeen great-grandchildren.

Following a family dinner in the lower auditorium of the church, the celebrants and their guests went upstairs for a special service at which Elder Marshall McGuire read the double-ring ceremony. Elder John Barr was in charge, and High Priest H. Volkman gave a talk. Ellen McGuire and Doris Gonzolez provided the special music.

FREE TO YOU

copies of the 1958 TRACT
LIST

Request several copies now

HERALD
HOUSE

Box 477
Independence, Missouri

Box 382
Guelph, Ontario, Canada

Golden Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Raymond of Gladwin, Michigan, observed their golden wedding anniversary by holding open house on November 10 from two to six in the afternoon. They received many beautiful gifts from friends and relatives who called to congratulate them.

They were married on November 13, 1907, at Gladwin and have resided in that community most of the time since. Both are members of the Reorganized Church, and Brother Raymond has held the office of deacon since October 30, 1957. Sister Raymond served as teacher of the women for several years.

The Raymonds have two sons, one daughter, several grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Briefs

Evening Baptismal Service

OMAHA, NEBRASKA.—On October 24, Highland Park Branch had its third anniversary dinner. A total of $205.50 was realized.

On the evening of November 17, Highland Park was the scene of an evening baptism. Harold Walter, Jr., gave the opening address, after which Mrs. Frances Barber of Gretna, Nebraska, was baptized by Pastor Vern Goodenough. She was confirmed by H. A. Scott and the pastor.—Reported by BRANCH REPORTER

Women Purchase Church Material for Library

ALBIN, WYOMING.—At the business meeting August 4 the following officers were elected: pastor, Elder Edwin P. Anderson; secretary, branch clerk and historian, Gilbert R. Crossan, Jr.; treasurer, Charles I. Anderson; women's leader and church school director, Sylvia Crossan; librarian, Christina Olsen; music leader, Glynette Anderson; Zion's League leader, Lois Glenn.

A recent improvement to the branch property was a curb built along the street east of the church. Steps were also built from the curb to the sidewalk.

The branch has participated in the Eastern Colorado District Friendship Crusade to regain inactive members and to reach nonmember families.

On September 22, members of the branch attended the consecration service of the Torrington, Wyoming, church. President W. Wallace Smith gave the sermon.

The women's department presented "Memoirs of Albin Branch" at the morning service on September 29.

The branch has purchased copies of The Hymnal. The women's department purchased several copies of the Children's Hymnal. Subscriptions to Stride, Daily Bread, and the Herald have been purchased by the women's department, and placed in the church library.

This fall, under the leadership of the church school director, the various age groups have presented the worship services for the church school.—Reported by GILBERT R. CROSSAN, JR.

Organize into Branch

DINUBA, CALIFORNIA.—The Saints met together November 20, to be organized into a branch. President F. Henry Edwards declared the mission a branch, and Seventy Aleah Koury, District President Charles Cary, and Pastor Vernon Cline assisted in the service.

Brother Cary read the history of the mission, starting from 1917 when it was first organized.

Mission officers were sustained as follows: Vernon M. Cline, pastor; Betty Fowler, director of religious education; Pete Brown, youth leader and bishop's agent; Judith Phillips, women's leader; Judith Phillips, Clara Andrews, and James Kanawyer, director of music committee; Merle Ferguson, drama director; Clara Andrews, secretary; Mae Hurley, recorder and historian; Elmer Fowler, treasurer; James Kanawyer, book steward; Bruce M. Kanawyer, auditor.

Counselors to the pastor are Elder Bruce Kanawyer and Brother Pete Brown.—Reported by CLORA ANDREWS

Family of Five Baptized

PROVIDENCE, RHODE ISLAND.—On November 20, a family of five were baptized. They were Kenneth Hewitt, his wife Dorothy, and their children, Clarence, Shirlee, and Helen. The baptismal message was by Apostle Lents. The baptisms were performed by Elder John D. Colbourn and Brother Albert L. Robley.

Following the baptisms, Apostle Oakman gave his last sermon in Providence before leaving for his new assignment in England.

On Sunday, November 24, the Hewitt family was confirmed by Elders Colbourn, George F. Robley, H. Clifton Hallgreen, Norman G. Grange, and Daniel F. Joy. Their three-year-old daughter was blessed by Elder Victor Witte.

Following the confirmations and blessing, the morning sermon was brought by District President Victor Witte.—Reported by ALBERT L. ROBLEY

Many Visitors from Abroad

ENFIELD, ENGLAND.—The branch had several visitors from abroad during 1957. Brother and Sister Franklyn Weddle came for the week end of June 1-2, and Brother Weddle spoke on Sunday. A music institute was held on Saturday.

Brother and Sister Frank A. Fry were welcomed June 30, when Brother Fry was the speaker.

In July, President Edwards and Apostle Gleazer directed a priesthood institute and spoke at Sunday services.

Brother and Sister Ray Gunn and family from Logan, Iowa, visited relatives (Lewis Folkes family) in July and August. They presented the "family services" July 28, and their older boy, Russell, was baptized.

Sister Dora Oakman Walsh of Independence also visited her family in Enfield during July and August.

Elder and Mrs. Glen Moad and son returned from a two-year stay in Ethiopia, and visited on August 11. Brother Moad spoke at the evening service.

Robert Frost and Colin Spray were baptized on Children's Day.

At the branch business meeting held September 28, Elder Frank W. Judd was re-elected pastor. All other officers were sustained except the women's leader. Sister Edith Lawrence retired because of ill health, and Freda Schofield was elected.

Brother Fry was speaker at harvest Thanksgiving, September 29.

Sheelagh Lesley, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Maloney, was blessed October 20.

During November, Seventies Eric Rowe and Thomas Worth visited Enfield and Chippenham (Buckinghamshire) for missionary work. They visited homes, and held a series November 10-17. Six were baptized November 17, one from Enfield, and five from Chippenham.

The annual bazaar raised about $495.

An institute for Enfield youth leaders and church school workers was held November 30. It was planned by Brother R. D. Oakman and Sister Violet Worth.—Reported by LILY E. A. OAKMAN

District Youth Rally

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN.—The Grand Rapids District conference was held November 9 and 10, with Apostle D. O. Chesworth as the speaker on Saturday evening and Sunday morning. Bishop Landsberg taught the combined adult classes Sunday morning. The theme for the conference was "Onward to Zion."

A district youth rally was held in Grand Rapids, October 11, 12, and 13, with Elder Charles Mundorff, missionary to Central Michigan District, as guest minister. He gave the talk at the banquet on Saturday evening and preached Sunday morning.

The women's department sponsored a fish fry October 5, and their annual smorgasbord on November 5.

A hymn sing is held following the evening preaching service on the first Sunday of each month for the purpose of becoming more familiar with the songs in the new hymnal.—Reported by LAVINA HOOPER

Two Priesthood Calls

CRESTON, IOWA.—The annual business meeting was held September 5. The branch enrollment is eighty-two. There were eleven baptisms during 1957.

Elder J. Earl Hoyt was re-elected branch president. Others elected were Walter W. Davis, church school director; Mr. and Mrs. Alfred James Springer, youth directors; Mrs. Avesta Morelock, women's leader; Sharon Butts, music leader; Mary E. Hoyt, recorder and secretary; Everett Hemmingsen, branch treasurer; Norma Morrison, historian; Walter W. Davis, solicitor; Mrs. Cecil McKeown, book steward.

Walter W. Davis was called to be a priest, and Alfred James Springer was called to the office of teacher.

Church school enrollment is seventy. There is an active League and a women's department.—Reported by MARY E. HOYT

New Mission and New Members

RAMONA, CALIFORNIA.—A new mission was organized at Ramona on December 8. Presiding elder is Falice Cunningham, and church school director is Ralph E. Bishop.

During the past month Mr. and Mrs. Lee Haas of San Diego were baptized. None of their family have ever been members of the church.—Reported by JAMES N. KEMP

District Conference

INDIANAPOLIS, INDIANA.—The Southern Indiana District conference met on October 12-13, at Indianapolis. Apostle E. J. Gleazer and Seventy James Renfroe were present.

Officers elected were Chester Metcalf, district president; Stella Fulks, district clerk or secretary; Howard Pace, treasurer; Victor Humphrey, director of religious education; Laura Belle Brown, women's leader; Lyle Gatrost, youth leader; Glen Yeager, music director.

Recommendation that Carl Brooks be ordained a priest was unanimously approved.

The climax of the activities on Saturday was a special program on missionary emphasis.

Apostle Gleazer was in charge of the prayer service on Sunday morning. He also gave the closing address.—Reported by STELLA FULKS

Seven Baptisms

MASON CITY, IOWA.—District President Ralph Wicker of Des Moines presided at the business meeting September 14. The following officers were elected: pastor, Jay McVicker; counselors, Carl McGuire and Wayne Wilcox; church school director, Wayne Wilcox; secretary, Luda Nelson; treasurer, Carroll McGuire; women's leader, Nell Wilcox; Zion's League, Juanita Murrell; music, Verdell McKeown; public relations, Luda Smith and Hattie Wilcox; book steward, Grace Jones; recorder, William McKeown; building committee, William McKeown, Darrell Jones, Wayne Wilcox, and Daniel McVicker; auditors, William McKeown, Daniel McVicker; historian and reporter, Velma Wineman.

From June to September there were seven baptisms. They were Elaine and Fred Crouse and two daughters, Kimla and Gloria; Kay Sutton and Gail Wineman, and Michael McVicker.

Susan Kay, daughter of Harriet and David McKeown, and Molley Beth, daughter of William and Verdell McKeown, were blessed. David McVicker was ordained a deacon.—Reported by VELMA WINEMAN

Four New Branches

TORONTO, ONTARIO, CANADA.—Of great interest to the people in the Toronto area has been the organization of four new branches. Three of these are in Metropolitan Toronto and have grown from missions of the Toronto Branch. Cooksville Branch, just outside the city, began as a mission of Humber Bay.

The pastors of the new branches are as follows: Scarborough, Elder A. F. Edwards; Willowdale, Elder F. C. LeFeuvre; Fairmount, Elder W. G. Bell; Cooksville, Elder R. L. Pycock. These were organized into branches on November 2, 4, 5, and 6, respectively.

Seventy Charles Kornman has just completed a month of missionary activity in the Toronto area, where his ministry is greatly appreciated.

On November 10, Jack Mitchard and his daughter Mary Ellen were baptized by Elder F. C. LeFeuvre, and on November 11, Clara Johnston was baptized by Elder J. L. Prentice.

The organization of the new Toronto Metropolitan District is scheduled to take place December 8, with Apostle Chesworth presiding.—Reported by GWEN FERGUSON

Officers Elected

BELL, CALIFORNIA.—The annual business meeting was held November 24. The following officers were elected: Leroy Hamilton, presiding elder; Marvin Moore and Lee Hutchins, counselors; Margaret Barnes, secretary and recorder; Floyd Barnes, bishop's agent and book steward; Mervin Kaler, director of church school, treasurer and solicitor; Glen Long and Horace Wills, auditors; Dorothy Hutchins, women's leader; Marion Giles, director of junior church school; Dorothea Hawkes, historian; Bill Baird, Zion's League leader and drama; Bernice Kaler, publicity; Charles Tutty, Sr., custodian; Lee Hutchins, missionary supervisor; Marvin Moore, home ministry supervisor; Mildred Oldham, music; Ruth Aslin and Madelyn Farley, assistants; Katherine Miller, church school secretary; Irma Patella, camp representative; James Oldham, Zioneer leader; Wayne Fuary, Liahona leader.

Kathleen Ann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hull, was blessed November 24 by Elders Virgil Lum and Elmer Johnson.—Reported by BERNICE L. KALER

Recent Baptisms

DOW CITY, IOWA.—On November 17, Barbara Weiss was baptized by her father, John K. Weiss. Gayle Custer was baptized by her grandfather, E. R. Butterworth. The pastor, Fanchon Quick, officiated in baptizing Charles Moeller, Don Kauffman, and Orvie Boham. The last two are adults.

At 8 P.M. the candidates were confirmed by Elders E. R. Butterworth, Guy Johnson, Elvin Baughman, Fanchon Quick, and George Smith.

The young women's circle served a dinner for the Arbie Feed Company on November 12, and the proceeds, $57.64, went to the branch building fund.

The annual bazaar and supper was held November 23, and $215.77 was turned into the building fund.

Bob Marshall, a 1957 Graceland graduate, is a student at the University of Iowa this year.—Reported by BESSIE PEARSALL

New Officers in Branch

WALLA WALLA, WASHINGTON.—The branch business meeting was held September 8, and was directed by District President Paul Crinzi, assisted by Elder Mel Crownover. Officers elected or sustained for the new years are as follows: Frank S. Wilcox, pastor; Elaine Sargent, secretary and publicity agent; Crystal Henley, treasurer and recorder; Earl Henley, church school director and board of trustees; Vida Fletcher, music director; Jeannie Ourth, women's leader and book steward; Lauree Miller, historian; Pheba Miller, solicitor; Lee Lynch, custodian and board of trustees; Thelma Baslee and Arnold Ourth, auditors; Elinor Croft, board of trustees.

Tommy, son of Allen and Thelma Baslee, was baptized at the Spokane District reunion, and confirmed by Elders Lloyd Whiting and John Fletcher at Walla Walla.

Some improvements are being made at the church building and plans for more improvements are in progress.

Guest speakers have been Elders Lloyd Whiting, Mel Crownover, Carlos Crownover, and Paul Crinzi.—Reported by ELAINE SARGENT

Many Nonmembers Attend Series

SAN DIEGO, CALIFORNIA.—From November 17-24, the area had the privilege of hearing Apostle Reed M. Holmes deliver the messages at the missionary series. Brother Holmes offered an invitation to "live with Christ today." Ninety-one nonmembers attended, and there was a minimum attendance of 235. At the closing session, six were baptized.—Reported by LEE HAAS

EXPENSE RECORD BOOK

Expense Record Book

10c each

A handy pocket-size record booklet for daily expenditures with space for a month's accounting. Figures can then be transferred to one of the larger record books (listed below). Quantity prices: 1-5 dozens, 50c a dozen; 6-10 dozens, 45c a dozen; 10 dozens or more, 37c a dozen.

Family Income and Expense Record Book

Youth Income and Expense Record Book

My Stewardship (children's book)

25c each

Box 477

Independence, Missouri

Box 382

Guelph, Ontario, Canada

Reunion Schedule

Reunion Theme: "Jesus Christ in History"

DATE	REUNION	PLACE	FOR RESERVATIONS WRITE TO:
June 14-22	Red River	Detroit Lakes, Minnesota	Dr. C. F. Young 1422 River Rd., So. Fargo, North Dakota
June 18-22	Northern Plains	Fairview, Montana	Lester Anderson Manning, North Dakota
June 28- July 6	New York Metropolitan, Philadelphia Metropolitan, Washington, D.C., & Scranton	Deer Park New Hope, Pennsylvania	Stanley I. Hayes 1 Ardsley Rd. Binghamton, New York
July 5-13	Maine	Camp Winiaugwamak Brooksville, Maine	Benjamin L. Carter Stonington, Maine
July 5-13	Owen Sound, Toronto	Port Elgin, Ontario	J. A. Cadwell Box 382 Guelph, Ontario, Canada
July 6-13	Wisconsin, Minnesota	Luther Park Chetek, Wisconsin	Wesley Elvin 506 Russell Ave. No. Minneapolis, Minnesota
July 11-19	New York	Allegheny State Park	S. Lee Pfohl 350 Marvvalle Dr. Buffalo, New York
July 12-19	Center Stake No. 1	Lake Doniphan Excelsior Springs, Missouri	H. W. Cackler 916 W. Lexington Independence, Mo.
July 12-20	Central, South Central, Lansing & Grand Rapids	Liahona, Sanford, Michigan	Lewis Landsberg Box 1285 Lansing, Michigan
July 13-20	Utah & Southeast Idaho	Baptist Camp Ground Liberty, Utah (near Ogden)	Glen Johnson 445 E. 17th So. Salt Lake City, Utah
July 19-26	Center Stake No. 2	Lake Doniphan Excelsior Springs, Missouri	H. W. Cackler 916 W. Lexington Independence, Missouri
July 19-26	Spokane District	Spokane River, Washington	E. Paul Crinzi N. 5506 "G" St. Spokane, Washington
July 19-27	Blue Water (Detroit International Stake)	Lexington, Michigan	O. K. Byrn 363 Louise Ave. Highland Park 3, Michigan
July 19-27	Central Missouri Stake	Odessa, Missouri	Willard Becker Box 355 Warrensburg, Missouri
July 19-27	Los Angeles Stake	Camp Buckhorn Idyllwild, California	Francis E. Hansen 3851 So. Grand Los Angeles 37, California
July 20-27	Sacramento & Central California	Happy Valley Conference Grounds Santa Cruz, California	E. C. Burdick 5014 V. St. Sacramento 17, California
July 21-28	Black Hills*	Bob Marshall Camp Custer, South Dakota	Luther Troyer 2526 Main St. Torrington, Wyoming
July 26- August 2	Kansas City Stake	Lake Doniphan Excelsior Springs, Missouri	J. E. Baldwin 1313 E. 30th St. Kansas City 9, Missouri
July 26- August 3	Chatham, London (Erie Beach)	Erie Beach Blenheim, Ontario	H. P. Grundy Box 382 Guelph, Ontario, Canada
July 27 August 3	San Francisco Bay District	Happy Valley Conference Grounds Santa Cruz, California	Reed M. Holmes 580 No. Dover Rd. Covina, California
August 2-10	Southern New England	Onset, Massachusetts	Victor J. Witte 1386 Massachusetts Ave. Lexington, Massachusetts
August 2-10	Kirtland	Kirtland, Ohio	J. F. Wildermuth 29617 Lake Shore Blvd. Willowick, Ohio
August 2-10	Blue Water (Flint-Port Huron & Eastern Mich- igan Districts)	Lexington, Michigan	Almer Sheehy 1209 Miller Port Huron, Michigan
August 2-10	Southeastern Illinois, Central Illinois & St. Louis	Brush Creek (near Xenia) Illinois	Ronald E. Manuel 4250 No. Grand Blvd. St. Louis, Missouri
August 2-10	Southern California District	Camp Buckhorn Idyllwild, California	David B. Carmichael 533 North Main St. Orange, California
August 9-17	Northern & Upper Mich- igan Peninsula Districts (Park of the Pines)	Boyne City, Michigan	Rex Stowe 1307 Dakota Ave. Gladstone, Michigan
August 10-17	Western Montana	Deer Lodge, Montana	Harvey Eliason Route 1 Deer Lodge, Montana
August 16-24	Arizona-New Mexico	Arizona Church Conference Center Camp Prescott, Arizona (Box 1986)	Robert I. Wakeman 67 Cypress Phoenix, Arizona
August 16-24	Northeastern Illinois, Chicago & N. Indiana	Camp Manitou Route 4 Cassopolis, Michigan	James B. Burdick 2399 W. 107th Place Chicago 43, Illinois

* This reunion ends on Monday

Bulletin Board

Oakmans to Sail on "Queen Elizabeth"

Apostle and Mrs. Arthur Oakman will be sailing January 29 on the S.S. "Queen Elizabeth" from pier 90. Correspondence should be addressed to them c/o Cunard Steamship Company, New York, New York.

"Zion's Praises" Available

Mina Dutton, 3506 Gregory Street, Madison 5, Wisconsin, has nine copies of Zion's Praises available. Anyone interested in buying them should contact her directly.

Servicemen's Addresses

Capt. John R. Bailey (0-1313707)
Aide-de-Camp to the Commanding General
Headquarters, 10th Infantry Division
APO 36, New York, New York

Sp. 3 John P. Pennington
RA 13554131
183 USA SA (Field) Co.
APO 66, New York, New York

ENGAGEMENTS

Thomas-Ashenhurst

Chaplain and Mrs. Ray Ashenhurst of Independence, Missouri, announce the engagement of their daughter, Patty, to Dale Thomas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Thomas, also of Independence. Patty is a freshman at Graceland College, and Dale is a sophomore at Central Missouri State College in Warrensburg. A summer wedding is planned.

Ward-Piatt

Mr. and Mrs. M. Allen Piatt of Butler, Missouri, announce the engagement of their daughter, Glynnia of Tulsa, Oklahoma, to William Jack Ward, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Ward of Locust Grove, Oklahoma. The wedding will take place in mid April.

Vickrey-Risler

Mr. and Mrs. William Risler of London, Ontario, announce the engagement of their daughter, Elaine, to J. William Vickrey, son of Mrs. Josephine Vickrey of Independence, Missouri. Elaine, a graduate of London Teacher's College, is now teaching in Windsor. Bill, a graduate of Graceland and Central Missouri State College, is now working on his Master's degree. A summer wedding is planned.

Wiley-Skinner

Mrs. C. A. Skinner of Independence, Missouri, announces the engagement of her daughter, Barbara Ann, to Jerry Wiley, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Wiley of Mount Pleasant, Michigan. Both are graduates of Graceland, class of '57, and are now attending Central Michigan College at Mount Pleasant. A summer wedding is planned.

WEDDINGS

Tomlinson-Haynes

Phyllis LaVerne Haynes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. O. Haynes of Kokomo, Indiana, and Albert H. Tomlinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Tomlinson of Independence, Missouri, were married January 3 at the First Christian Church in Pacific Beach, California. They are making their home temporarily in San Diego, California. The groom is stationed at Miramar, California, with the guided missile division of the Navy.

Hedglin-Wheaton

Mabel Bertha Wheaton of Binghamton, New York, and Elmer Hedglin of Clarks Summit, Pennsylvania, were married November 1 in the Reorganized Church at Scranton, Pennsylvania, Elder John R. Jen-kings officiating. They are making their home in Clarks Summit.

Schnurer-Rosebush

Jessie Rosebush, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Rosebush of Gulliver, Michigan, became the bride of John Schnurer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Schnurer of Mantisque, Michigan, on December 14. The wedding was held at the Reorganized Church in Gulliver, Elder George Backman officiating.

Braby-Wheelen

Jane Wheelen, daughter of Mr. Emerald Wheelen of Maloy, Iowa, and Charles Braby, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Braby of Mount Ayr, Iowa, were married December 25 at the Reorganized Church in Mount Ayr, the groom's grandfather, Elder John P. Lane, officiating. They are making their home in Creston, Iowa, where both are students at Junior College.

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry B. Wolfe became the parents of a daughter, Cynthia Ann, on May 28, 1957. She was blessed on July 28 at Mount Vernon, Illinois, by Elder George Wolfe and Elder Lewis Wolfe. Mrs. Wolfe is the former Ruth Joan Roberson of Kansas City, Missouri.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick M. Lowry of Mount Vernon, Illinois, became the parents of a daughter, Lisa Ann, on July 26, 1957. She was blessed on August 18 by Seventy Cecil Robbins and Elder Ralph Rockett at Mount Vernon.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Wolfe became the parents of a daughter, Rita Ann, on October 23, 1957. She was blessed on November 10 at Mount Vernon, Illinois, by Elder George Wolfe and Elder Ralph Rockett.

Mr. and Mrs. William W. Ruoff of Independence, Missouri, announce the birth of a son, Timothy Duane, born December 21. Mrs. Ruoff is the former Jeanne Shoemaker.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Kenneth Webber of Gulliver, Michigan, became the parents of a son, Michael George, on June 28. He was blessed on September 8 by his maternal grandfather, Elder George Backman, assisted by Frank Beckman.

Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Rosebush of Gulliver, Michigan, became the parents of a son, James Alan, on October 19.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Backman of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, became the parents of a son, Brian Kirk, on September 27.

Mr. and Mrs. Fritz Metzger of Osborne, Kansas, became the parents of a daughter, Julie Janelle, on December 1. Mrs. Metzger is the former Mary Wilson of Osborne.

Dr. and Mrs. R. R. Bower of Pembroke, Ontario, became the parents of a daughter, Dorothy Eleanor Ann, on May 23, 1957. She was blessed on November 10 at Ottawa, Ontario, by Pastor Calvin Carpenter, assisted by Elder Caldwell. Mrs. Bower is the former Eleanor Cook of Toronto, Ontario.

DEATHS

KRAGER.—Anna, daughter of James and Hanna Bath Jenkins, was born August 12, 1881, in Scranton, Pennsylvania, and died November 9, 1957, at her home in Scranton. Her husband, Fred Krager, preceded her in death. She had been a member of the Reorganized Church since she was eight years old.

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. William J. Thomas, with whom she resided, and a grandson. Funeral services were conducted by Elder Stanley Hayes and Elder John R. Jenkins. Interment was in Dunmore Cemetery.

ZONKER.—Clyde, Sr., was born June 24, 1884, at Cameron, Ohio, and died July 21, 1957, at Wellsburg, West Virginia. He was baptized into the Reorganized Church in his youth and in 1914 was ordained to the office of priest. For twenty years he served the city of Wellsburg as a police and deputy.

Surviving are two sons: Samuel M. and Louis; and two daughters: Mrs. Docie Slivka and Mrs. Evelyn Slivka. Funeral services were conducted at Wellsburg by Elder John Treiber. Burial was in the Franklin Cemetery.

AUSTIN.—Carrie Willa, was born November 21, 1871, at Flora, Illinois, and died November 27, 1957, at Bisbee, Arizona. Her husband preceded her in death on July 5, 1957. She had been a member of the Reorganized Church since December 16, 1907.

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Donna Gentry of Tucson, Arizona, and three grandchildren. Funeral services were conducted by Elder T. R. Davis. Interment was in the Evergreen Cemetery at Bisbee.

CROWNOVER.—Matthew, was born December 20, 1880, in Sewanee, Tennessee, and died December 30, 1957, at his home in Miami, Oklahoma. He united with the Reorganized Church on March 19, 1905, was ordained to the office of teacher in 1907, and soon after to the offices of priest and elder. He labored consistently as a local minister in Texas, New Mexico, and Oklahoma, serving the church as pastor and district president of the Western Oklahoma-Texas District for many years.

Surviving are his wife, Gladys, of the home; eight children; twenty-eight grandchildren; fifty-four great-grandchildren; three great-great-grandchildren; one sister; two half sisters; three half brothers; and six stepchildren. All of his children, stepchildren, and most of his grandchildren and great-grandchildren are members of the Reorganized Church. Services were conducted at the Miami, Oklahoma, church, Elders B. F. Kyser and C. D. Wilson officiating.

SPANGLER.—Charles O., son of John and Elvina Spangler, was born February 22, 1882, in Sumnum, Illinois, and died December 2, 1957, at his home in Independence, Missouri, where he had lived since 1942. As a young man he was married to Myrtle C. Hofman, who survives him. One of their children, Gladys, died in infancy. In 1915 they moved to Montana, and in 1927 the entire family united with the Reorganized Church. In 1934 he and his wife took up farming near Stewartville, Missouri, where they remained until they moved to Independence. In 1945 he was ordained to the office of teacher in which he served until his death.

Besides his wife he leaves a son, Leo, and a daughter, Mrs. Cleo C. Hoover, both of Independence; seven grandchildren; and one great-grandchild.

THARP.—Thomas A., son of Charles Francis and Sarah Whitehouse Tharp, died November 5, 1957, in the Vancouver Memorial Hospital, Vancouver, Washington. He spent his boyhood in Lamoni, Iowa, where he was baptized into the Reorganized Church. For the past fifty years he had been a resident of Maryhill, Washington.

TRACT REVIEW

*We Believe
in Jesus Christ*

"One of the most marvelous and remarkable things about the Restoration message of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints," writes Apostle Charles R. Hield, author of this tract, "is its affirmation of the divinity of Jesus Christ as the Son of God. . . . We believe we have a more complete account of his existence from the beginning until the end of time than other churches."

With these words, Brother Hield introduces the reader to a fascinating collection of beliefs of the church about the identity and divinity of Christ and his relation to the Trinity.

The material is well organized and outlined. The various outline heads include "In the Beginning," "The Creator," "Head of His Church," "In All Ages," "His Life on Earth," "A Busy Godhead Today," "Our Mediator and Advocate," "Lord of the Millennium," "After the Thousand Years," and "The Glories." The last three pages summarize our view point of Christ.

This thirty-two page tract first appeared as a series of articles in the Saints' Herald. Due to requests for its permanent publication, it was converted to tract form in 1954. Its single copy price is 25 cents.

He leaves no immediate survivors. Elders L. S. Rhodes and Ernest Webberley conducted the funeral service at Goldendale, Washington. Burial was in Goldendale cemetery.

We're on the Air . . .

STATE AND CITY	CALL LETTERS	DIAL READING	DAY AND TIME
ALABAMA, Atmore	WATM	1580	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
ALABAMA, Evergreen	WBLO	1470	Sunday, 9:00 a.m.
ARKANSAS, Jonesboro	KNEA	970	Sunday, 9:00 a.m.
CALIFORNIA, Wasco	KWSP	1050	Sunday, 7:15 a.m.
COLORADO, Durango	KIUP	930	Sunday, 9:45 a.m.
COLORADO, Montrose	KUBC	1260	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
FLORIDA, Orlando	WLOF	950	Sunday, 7:45 a.m.
IDAHO, Sand Point	KSPT	1400	Sunday, 6:15 p.m.
ILLINOIS, Marion	WGGH	1150	Sunday, 10:00 a.m.
ILLINOIS, Moline	WQUA	1230	Sunday, 8:15 a.m.
ILLINOIS, Mt. Vernon	WMIX (FM 94.1)	940	Sunday, 12:15 p.m.
KANSAS, Concordia	KFRM	550	Sunday, 8:30 a.m.
MICHIGAN, Bad Axe	WLEW	1340	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
MICHIGAN, Flint	WMRP	1570	Friday, 10:00 a.m.
MICHIGAN, Houghton Lake	WHGR	1290	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
MINNESOTA, Detroit Lakes	KDLM	1360	Sunday, 8:45 a.m.
MISSOURI, Fulton	KFAL	900	Sunday, 8:15 a.m.
MISSOURI, Kansas City	KMBC	980	Sunday, 8:30 a.m.
NEW MEXICO, Clovis	KCLV	1240	Sunday, 7:45 a.m.
NEW YORK, Hornell	WWHG	1320	Sunday, 10:30 a.m.
NORTH DAKOTA, Valley City	KOV	1490	Sunday, 6:00 p.m.
OHIO, New Philadelphia	WJER	1450	Sunday, 8:30 p.m.
ONTARIO, Guelph	CJOY	1450	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
OREGON, Lakeview	KQIK	1230	Sunday, 2:00 p.m.
PENNSYLVANIA, Charleroi	WESA	940	Sunday, 8:30 a.m.
TENNESSEE, Paris	WTFR	710	Sunday, 7:45 a.m.
WASHINGTON, Vancouver	KHFS	1150	Sunday, 8:30 a.m.
WEST VIRGINIA, Parkersburg	WCEF	1050	Sunday, 12:05 p.m.
WISCONSIN, Richland Center	WRCO	1450	Sunday, 8:15 a.m.

And Finally...

Clifford R. Craven
305 Nichols,
Lee's Summit, Missouri

65444
12-57
h

SINCERITY IN PRAYER

At an evening meeting the brother who offered the invocation began with the words, "At the close of another beautiful day, our Father . . ."

The victim of a rabbit mentality cannot always suppress the thoughts that pop into his mind, and on this occasion one absolutely vagrant memory created havoc before I could throw it out and listen seriously to the remainder of the prayer.

This memory concerned what that "beautiful day"—in simple, unadorned, nonsentimental, practical fact—had been like. . . . There was a cold wind in the morning, and an overcast of sooty gray clouds. The car coughed with deep-throated tubercular convulsions before starting, struck a patch of ice and slid out into an intersection where the motor died. Chilled working people huddled at the bus stops, and a late teen-ager tried to hurry, with the hindrance of floppy galoshes and a scarf fluttering in the wind, on her way to school. The ambulance was returning from an accident with an unconscious victim. Two chilled policemen, with collars turned up to break the sharpness of the wind, were discussing a traffic regulation with a young man who, though penitent now, had been an arrant, dangerous fool a few moments before. At the office news came that a worker had been taken to the hospital and was asking for prayers. In the face of a rush job the typewriter spat out some parts and quit working. The front page of the newspaper was filled with stories of the newest threats of the Communists, of theft, robbery, speculation, tergiversations, and corruption in high places. . . . Well, there were just a few of the events at the beginning of "another beautiful day."

I wondered, Are we guilty of talking nonsense to God when we pray? Do we use purely conventional expressions that, like rusted pails, have leaked out all content and meaning?

Of all the times when we should be sincere and think carefully of what we say, it is when we pray. There is a difference between words and music, and no matter how melodious a phrase may be, if it isn't true, we ought not to use it. We should respect God with honesty in speech.
L. J. L.

SO LITTLE TIME

A man asked his seven-year-old son if he knew why we should all work for Zion's establishment. "Sure!" declared the boy. "Because there's so little time!"

Occasionally it takes a child's wisdom to make us aware of a great truth. Zion will be established—by people who realize that they must work now because there's so little time. No one has any to waste.

Edgar Pillsbury

TRANQUILIZERS

Americans live by "pillage." They take pills for everything: to go to sleep, to keep awake, to stir up the adrenalin, and to calm the nerves; stimulants and sedatives.

Many kill themselves with the mistaken idea that if a little is good, more is better—such things as speed, sleeping pills, success, medicine, work, sleep, organization, meetings, programs, etc., etc., etc., ad infinitum.

A recent book is entitled, "The Road to Milton," the name of one of the tranquilizer drugs. Congestion of traffic is increasing on that road, and it has seen many accidents. Perhaps what we all need is more emphasis on the mind and spirit and less on bottles. Some never get off the bottle from the cradle to the grave—the baby his milk, the adult his liquor, and the geriatric his medicine. If a man keeps his brain afire with alcohol, like a plum pudding, someday it will just burn out.

We would be far wiser to seek a physician's advice before taking any medicine, and then take only what he prescribes in the way he instructs. Outside of this, we would do better to depend on the health-restoring powers that God has put into the body, the sweet medicament of rest and sleep, and the power of prayer.
L. J. L.

Contents

EDITORIAL AND OFFICIAL

New Emphasis on Science Education . . .	3
School of Nursing Day	4
Camp Leaders' Workshop	4
Across the Desk	4

FEATURE ARTICLES

Communications Seminar	2
This Gospel Shall Be Preached, by Arnold A. Spiller	5
Painting Presented to Church, by C. D. Neff	10
Pleasanton Approaches Centennial	10
To Seek Wisdom, by Ada Hamer	11
The Flocks of Your Fields, by William Patterson	11
Knowledge and Service, by Mrs. T. W. Bath	12
Onward to Zion, by Franklyn S. Weddle	14
History of Carthage, Missouri, Branch, by Mrs. Elmer V. Roe	16
New School Catalog Ready	17

SPECIAL COLUMNS

We'd Like You to Know: Lillian Williams Flanders	2
I Had an Experience, by Hudson P. Grundy	9
Book Review	15
Question Time	15
Letters	18
Graceland Gazette	19
Briefs	20
Reunion Schedule	22
Bulletin Board	22
Tract Review: We Believe in Jesus Christ	23
And Finally	24

1958 Herald House Reminder

recommended for every church member

A handy help for keeping track of those daily appointments which stack up during the months.

Size, 3 by 4 3/8 inches, this little memo book conveniently fits into a man's suit pocket or a lady's purse. Durably bound in black Fabrikoid.

Contains space for addresses, identification, daily notes. Also includes calendars for 1958 and 1959 and important dates of historical and current church events.

Order several copies for your friends and associates soon.

35c each

Box 477
Independence, Missouri

Box 382
Guelph, Ontario, Canada

SAINTS' HERALD

Volume 105 / January 27, 1958 / Number 4

SPECIAL ISSUE

The Presiding
Bishopric

All photographs in this issue are by The Audio-Visual Department

Bishop G. Leslie DeLapp and his two counselors, H. L. Livingston and W. N. Johnson

www.LatterDayTruth.org

Official

Appointment of Bishop's Agents for Ontario Districts

Notice is hereby given of the appointment of bishop's agents to serve in reorganized and newly organized districts in Ontario, Canada.

Toronto Metropolitan—James L. Bavington, 43 Chestnut Hills Parkway, Toronto; Niagara District—Leslie W. Hill, 1026 Queensdale Avenue, Hamilton, Ontario; Northern Ontario—C. Graydon Fielder, Box 939, Lakeshore Road, New Liskeard, Ontario; Owen Sound—Kenneth B. Rowe, Route 7, Guelph, Ontario.

Brethren Hill and Fielder have consented to serve as our representatives in newly organized districts. Brother Bavington has served as our agent in the Toronto District for a number of years, and we are happy that he will continue to serve in the Toronto Metropolitan District as now organized. Brother Rowe will succeed Brother Alex Cadwell as our representative in the Owen Sound District. Solicitors should mail their January and subsequent reports to the agent now appointed.

We are deeply grateful to Brother Cadwell for his good services in the past. The appointment of Brother Rowe as bishop's agent for the Owen Sound District will free Bishop Cadwell to give ministry over a wider area as counselor to Bishop H. P. Grundy.

We commend these men to the Saints of the respective districts for their interest and support and trust that these changes will bring a greater measure of ministry to the Saints and increased development of the church program in the Ontario Districts.

THE PRESIDING BISHOPRIC
By W. N. Johnson

Approved:
THE FIRST PRESIDENCY
By Israel A. Smith

Boy Scout Sunday

The week of February 7 to 13 has been set aside as Boy Scout Week throughout the nation. Sunday, February 9, has been established as Boy Scout Sunday. On this Sunday it would be appropriate throughout the church for the branches and congregations in some way to recognize the Boy Scout program as the official boys' program of the church.

It is suggested that Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts, and Explorers be encouraged to attend church in uniform with their families (emphasis is on the family unit rather than the Scout unit in the observances), and that special recognition be given to the boys and their leaders, particularly in those congregations where there is a church-sponsored unit.

Other suggestions are available from the Director of Boys' Work, Richard B. Lancaster, in the February 3 issue of the Saints' Herald.

Baptismal Report for November

There were 340 baptismal reports received by the Department of Statistics in November, 1957. In November of eight other years, more reports have been received than this 340. It is 71 less than were received in November, 1956. However, the total for the eleven-month period is still more than in any other eleven-month calendar year on record. This total is 5,018.

Stakes and districts from which the five highest total number of baptisms were reported are as follows: Center Stake of Zion—21, Eastern Michigan District—19, Far West Stake—16, Eastern Colorado District—15, and Southern Ohio District—15.

Branches and missions reporting the five highest totals in November are Denver, Colorado—14; Orlando, Florida—8; Sandusky, Michigan—7; and the following with six each: Beardstown, Illinois; Taylorville, Illinois; Fort Wayne, Indiana; and Fort Lauderdale, Florida.

MERLE P. GUTHRIE
Statistician

Across the Desk

OF THE FIRST PRESIDENCY

From Charles V. Graham, president of Center Stake, and H. W. Cackler, bishop of Center Stake:

We have just finished final checking of our December Auditorium fund reports and are glad to report that in December we received $18,292.64 for the Auditorium. This amount not only put us over the top on our 1957 quota but also meant that we exceeded our two-year (1956-1957) quota of $70,000.00 as the following figures will indicate:

	Quota	Income	Overage or Deficit
Year 1956	$35,000.00	$28,734.46	$-6,265.54
Year 1957	35,000.00	44,302.49	+9,302.49
Two-year period	$70,000.00	$73,036.95	$+3,036.95

We are happy to report this good response in the Center Stake, not simply because we exceeded our quota but because we are vitally interested in seeing the Auditorium completed.

The Saints' Herald

Volume 105 January 27, 1958 No. 4

EDITORS: The First Presidency: Israel A. Smith, F. Henry Edwards, W. Wallace Smith. ASSISTANTS: Chris E. Hartshorn, Managing Editor; Naomi Russell, Assistant Editor; Paul A. Wellington, Assistant Editor; Roger Yarrington, Assistant Editor; Audrey Stub-

bart. Copy Editor; and Leonard J. Lea, Contributing Editor. BUSINESS MANAGER, Kenneth L. Graham.

The Saints' Herald is the official publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, with headquarters at The Auditorium, Independence, Missouri, and is issued through the offices of Herald Publishing House, 103 South Osage Street, Independence, Missouri.

Herald editors are not responsible for the views and opinions expressed in articles or communications other than those of editorial authorship.

Entered as second-class matter at the post office at Independence, Missouri, under Act of March 3, 1879. Issued weekly at Independence, Missouri, except daily during the biennial General Conference. Price, $4.00 per year in advance in the U.S.A., its territories and possessions; Canada, $4.25 per year; other countries, $5.00 per year. Notice of a change of address must be given three weeks ahead of the date that it is to become effective. Accepted for mailing at the special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917, authorized July 21, 1921. Printed in the United States of America.

The Bishopric Issue

THIS issue of the Herald has been planned to give the church a better idea of the work of the Bishopric at headquarters and throughout the church.

Although this was not our original purpose, it was inevitable that such a presentation would amount to a tribute to those who have served in this important office and to those who are now serving. We join in this tribute. It is well deserved. The members of the Presiding Bishopric and their associates of the Order of Bishops are entitled to the affection and gratitude of the entire church.

The responsibility of voicing the call of those who are to be ordained to the Bishopric rests with the First Presidency.

Because of this it is perhaps not inappropriate for us to point out that the work of the Order of Bishops is essentially spiritual. Bishops are first of all high priests. As such, they are shepherds of the souls of men. It is their function to teach us and help us to use our temporal means for spiritual purposes. In the numerous contacts which we have with the Presiding Bishopric in relation to temporal matters, we are happy to find them constantly alert to this basic aspect of their calling. There are many evidences that this is true of the other brethren of the Order.

It may also be well to point out that the work of the Bishopric properly needs to be integrated with that of other members of the priesthood. They are members of a larger team. Motivation for compliance with the financial law grows out of the spiritual life of the people, a product of the total ministry of the church. Although the raising and the administration of finances demands special talents, and properly involves a special calling, all of us must work with the brethren of this Order if their task is to be well and effectively done.

We take great satisfaction in the work of the Bishopric, as we do in that of the other orders and quorums of the priesthood. May God richly bless every man in the office to which he has been called and strengthen us in unity for the sake of his kingdom.

I. A. S.

Spiritual Aspects of Temporalities

IN this issue of the Herald, the work of the Bishopric has been quite comprehensively covered and the work of the editors of the Herald is deeply appreciated by the members of the Presiding Bishopric.

The summary of progress made and the growth of the church, as indicated in that summary, were encouraging to us. We sincerely trust it will be so to all members of the church. As always, however, we must measure our accomplishments not only by the record of the past, but in the light of unfinished work and unattained goals yet before us. The progress made is just sufficient to challenge us to greater endeavors.

We of the Bishopric are concerned primarily with the spiritual development of our people. The special responsibilities which are ours in respect to temporalities and the administration of church finance are that they might be sublimated.

We think of the Auditorium not just as a building but as a physical structure which symbolizes the great purpose of the church, which is that of building the kingdom of God. The Gathering, our missionary endeavors, the establishment of the storehouse, our stewardship program, the development of our institutions, the building of houses of worship, all are dependent upon the development of proper attitudes toward wealth. These attitudes are expressed in the payment of the tithe, the giving of offerings, and ultimately the consecration of surplus.

We hope and pray that the fine work of the Herald editors in covering the field of the Bishopric may help all of us to understand something of our individual stewardship as members of the church and our collective stewardship as the church corporate.

THE PRESIDING BISHOPRIC

Many Men Many Jobs

*The Presiding Bishopric
Organization Touches Every Field of Church Activity*

Jack Boren points out areas where the stewardship education program has been introduced

THE ORGANIZATION of the Presiding Bishopric is probably the largest and most complex in the church.

Every area of church activity involves finance and management in some form and thus becomes a part of the church's central financial organization.

The Presiding Bishopric represents many people in many places doing many jobs. The responsibilities all center in the one office of Presiding Bishop.

Bishop G. L. DeLapp and his counselors—Bishops H. L. Livingston and Walter N. Johnson—carry a list of responsibilities that reads like a catalogue of church activities.

Brother DeLapp himself is presiding bishop and president of the Aaronic priesthood, trustee in trust for the church, head of the Order of Bishops, co-ordinator of the financial administration of the stakes and the General Church.

In more specific terms, the Presiding Bishopric has responsibilities falling under these headings:

Financial—approving and arranging the budgets of appointee families, control of all expenditures in harmony with the Conference-approved budget, care of the poor and needy, investments, approval of houses of worship building programs in conjunction with the Presidency and Apostles concerned and with the local administrative officers, development of the storehouse program, and co-ordination of institutional financial management with that of the General Church.

Real Estate—supervision of the land management program, direction of the church's real-estate activity, development of the church's program of building construction, management and care of all church property and historical sites.

William Timms, personnel and office manager

Institutions—financial organization of the church institutions co-ordinated with that of the General Church: Graceland College, Sanitarium, Central Development Association, Mound Grove Cemetery, Herald House, and Social Service Centers; it also controls the operation of the homes for the aged.

Teaching—develops the teaching and application of the financial law program, implements the stewardship program as it refers to both individuals and groups, develops personnel for the teaching of the stewardship program through the Aaronic priesthood, writes and develops materials which can be used for instruction in the temporal program of the church, ministers by the preached word.

General—studying and developing the social program of the church in conjunction with community development, counseling and activation of the Gathering program; encouraging the development of individual and family inheritances.

It is in the execution of these many responsibilities that the complex organization of the Bishopric becomes necessary. Brother DeLapp and his two counselors have effected an arrangement where each man tends to specialize in certain areas of responsibility. For example: business with houses of worship programs and loans tends to be channeled through Bishop Livingston, while co-ordination of the work with solicitors, bishop's agents, and the Presiding Bishopric tends to be channeled through Bishop Johnson. However, to insure a smooth working arrangement in the Bishopric, all three men try to be prepared to handle any type of business that comes through the office.

Aiding the members of the Presiding Bishopric in the management of their many responsibilities is a group of men known as "assistants to the Presiding Bishopric."

Each of these assistants brings to his job a particular type of training or experience that qualifies him to work in the particular area where he is assigned.

G. Everett Berndt, building manager at the Auditorium, is a mechanical engineer by trade and has served as a missionary.

N. R. Carmichael, in charge of farm management, is a former member of the Lamoni Stake Bishopric, former business manager at Graceland College, and also a former member of the Presiding Bishopric.

C. L. Olson, legal assistant to the Presiding Bishopric, is a graduate of the Kansas City University law school, member of the Missouri Bar, and a former church statistician.

Earl T. Higdon, research assistant, holds a Master's degree in economics from Northwestern University and is a former bishop of Lamoni Stake and Far West Stake.

Jack Boren, who assists in all phases of the Bishopric's work but particularly the direction of construction work at the Auditorium and stewardship education, was formerly general foreman of American Steel's largest production department before accepting church appointment.

J. S. Kelley has been bishop of Los Angeles Stake and now assists the Presiding Bishop in the management of Resthaven. He also holds a degree in law.

William Timms, assistant to the Presiding Bishopric as personnel and office manager, came to the United States from England where he had considerable experience in business.

David L. Judd, newest of the assistants, is a recent graduate of Graceland College and works in the field implementing the Stewardship Education Program. Harold Cash also serves the Bishopric as a special representative in the field.

Although these men hold the title of Assistant to the Presiding Bishopric, many hundreds of other men might also carry the title. Dozens serve with members of the Presiding Bishopric on the boards of Herald House, Graceland College, the "San," School of the Restoration, Social Service Center, and the Central Development Association.

C. L. Olson, assistant to the Presiding Bishopric, is head of the legal department

G. Everett Berndt is in charge of guide service at the Auditorium

Added to these are the headquarters' employees who share in the work of the bishops. They work in personnel, accounts, tithepayers' service, I.B.M., stock control, building management, and general office. There are more than forty workers in all.

Dozens more aid the Presiding Bishopric as bishops and bishop's agents (about 96 in stakes, districts and other areas of the domestic field). Approximately 1,280 men serve as solicitors in the domestic field alone.

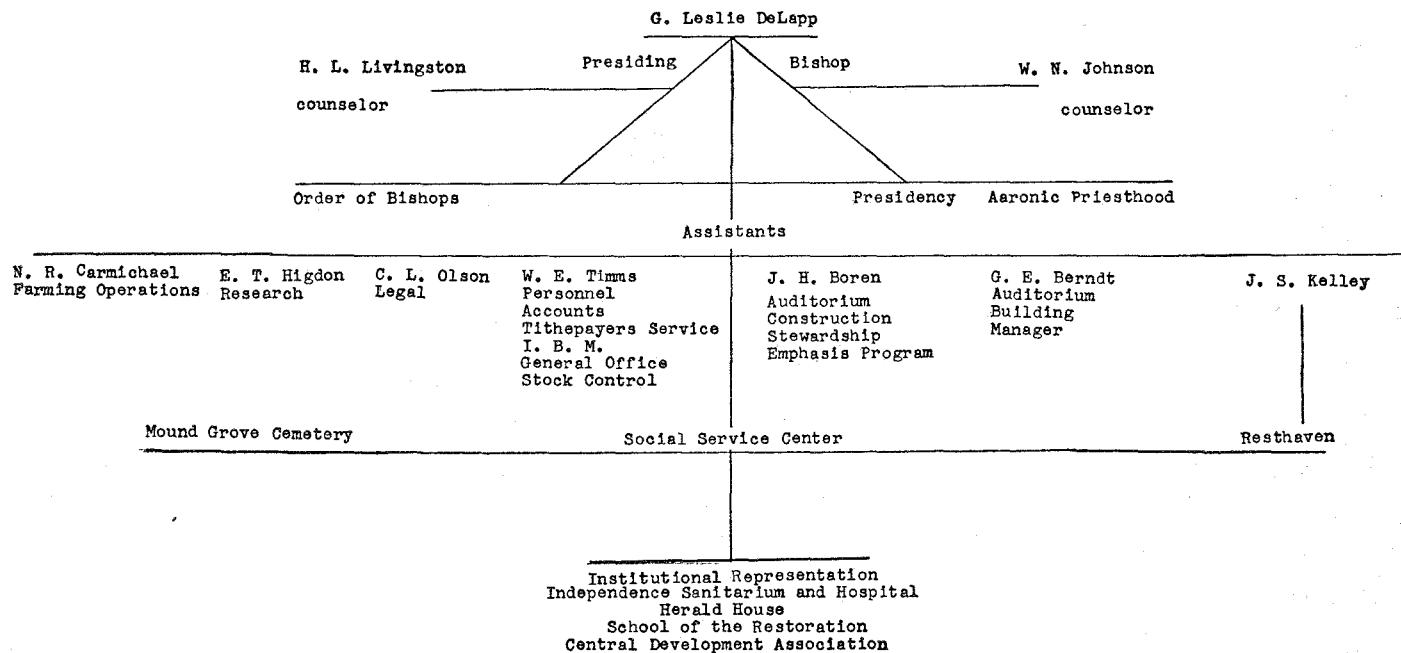

But the work of the Bishopric does not end in the domestic field. It stretches from Rotterdam to Sydney.

A demonstration of the scope of the work of the Presiding Bishopric was seen in the summer of 1956. Bishop DeLapp found it necessary to encircle the world in order to survey the whole picture of the work entrusted to the Bishopric.

Today the responsibilities of the Presiding Bishopric require the work of many men. Tomorrow it is certain to require even more men in more places doing more jobs.

R. Y.

PRESIDING BISHOPRIC

Historical Sketch of The Presiding Bishopric

THE TERM "bishop" comes from the Greek episcopos which means an overseer. Before the church was a year old, the office of "a bishop unto the church" was revealed. In addition to naming him, the revelation pointed out that his ordination was to be "by the voice of the church" (41:3 c). Section 42 was given five days later indicating that he was to have charge of the properties and money consecrated to the poor and for the purchase of land for building of houses of worship and for services rendered (42: 8, 10, 19). He is the trustee in trust who is the legal custodian of all church property. Another duty of the bishop is to preside over the priesthood of Aaron (104: 8).

The Presiding Bishopric includes the Presiding Bishop of the whole church and his two counselors. However, it should be understood that when the church was first organized it did not have all of its official parts, nor did it need all of them in its infancy. The term "Presiding Bishop" was not used in the days of Joseph Smith, Jr. Edward Partridge, ordained in February, 1831, was the bishop. He was to be the bishop with residence in (Zion, Section 58: 6) Missouri. Newell K. Whitney was ordained bishop in Kirtland ten months later.

On June 3, 1831, John Morley and John Corrill were ordained counselors to Bishop Partridge. Bishop Corrill was released in 1837, and Titus Billings was ordained on August 1, 1837, in his stead. Bishop Partridge died May 27, 1840, in Nauvoo, Illinois.

His successor was pointed out as Bishop George Miller in a revelation (Section 107: 8) received January 19, 1841. No counselors were named in the revelation, and it is not clear that he had special counselors. Bishop Miller left Nauvoo with Brigham Young but objected to going to Utah with him and left the group.

Israel L. Rogers was chosen Presiding Bishop on April 7, 1860, and served the church for twenty-two years. During this period he had five counselors; the first was William Aldrich who was ordained in 1866 and served seven years. The others were Philo Howard, who died in 1869, Elijah Banta, who resigned in 1874, David Dancer, and Henry A. Stebbins.

George A. Blakeslee became the Presiding Bishop upon the resignation of Bishop Rogers in 1882. His counselors were Elijah Banta and Edmund L. Kelley. Bishop Banta died in 1889, and Bishop Blakeslee died the following year. At the next General Conference (1891) Bishop Kelley, who had been Acting Presiding Bishop, was chosen as the successor to Bishop Blakeslee. His counselors were George H. Hilliard and Edwin A. Blakeslee.

Benjamin R. McGuire became Presiding Bishop of the church in 1916 (Section 132: 2). His counselors were James F. Keir and Israel A. Smith. The latter was ordained in April, 1920.

Albert Carmichael was selected as successor to Bishop McGuire in 1925 (Section 135: 1). He chose as his counselors Mark H. Siegfried and J. A. Becker. They resigned in February, 1931; L. F. P. Curry and G. Leslie DeLapp were selected as counselors.

At the General Conference of 1932 Bishop Curry was selected as Presiding Bishop (Section 136), and "In the work of the office Bishop G. Leslie DeLapp should be associated as counselor." Bishop N. Ray Carmichael became second counselor in April, 1934. Bishop Curry carried his responsibilities on a part-time basis making frequent trips to Independence from his home in Dallas, Texas, until April, 1940. Brother Curry was then ordained as a counselor to President F. M. Smith, and Bishop DeLapp became Presiding Bishop (Section 138). He chose as his counselors Clarence Skinner and Henry L. Livingston. Bishop Skinner resigned because of poor health in April, 1946, and was succeeded by Walter N. Johnson.

No attempt has been made in this sketch to record the work of these several administrations. That is told or reflected in other places in this special issue of the Herald.

The Order of Bishops

A History of the Work of the Bishops in the Reorganization

THIS TERM, "order of bishops," has developed since the days of the Reorganization. In 1913 and again in 1918 the General Conference saw fit to define the term (Resolutions 710 and 788). On the latter occasion it was "Resolved, That the term 'Bishopric,' as used in Doctrine and Covenants 129: 8, has reference to the men holding the office of bishop under a presiding head and that these should constitute the Order of Bishops."

It is quite evident that there were bishops in the early church besides "the Bishop of the Church" and those acting in a capacity of stake bishops. Church History, Volume II, page 23, indicates that the bishops met as a quorum in Kirtland Temple, February 6, 1836. There is no evidence as to the number that met, but a council room was assigned to them.

Beginning of the Order

In the revelation of 1873 (117: 10) provision for the order of bishops is clearly indicated. After provision was made for counselors for the Presiding Bishop, this direction was given: "The bishop of my church may choose and appoint bishop's agents, until it shall be wisdom in me to ordain other bishops, in the districts and large branches of my church."

At the Conference of 1900 President Joseph Smith stated that the time had now come for the appointing of local bishops. Ten were nominated and approved by the Conference for ordination. One resided in England. Two of those ordained became officials of the stakes which were provided for in the revelation of 1901 (125: 10). These were Bishop Roderick May of Independence Stake and Bishop William Anderson of Lamoni Stake. The Conference of 1901 also provided for the ordination of Metuaore for the South Sea Islands and of George Lewis for Australia. Alexander H. Smith of the First Presidency left in the fall and attended to these ordinations. Bishop E. L. Kelley, who was also a member of the First Presidency, went to England and ordained Thomas Taylor (125: 13). He was accompanied by Apostle Gomer T. Griffiths. With these ordinations the Order of Bishops had a total membership of fourteen. Three others were nominated by the First Presidency at the General Conference of 1908 and one in 1909.

The Rendition of the Bishopric

A revelation was received on April 18, 1909, which had an important bearing on the development of the work of the Bishopric. The church was told (129: 8) "... that the temporalities of the church were to be under the charge and care of the Bishopric, men holding the office of bishop under a presiding head acting for the church in the gathering, caring for, and disbursing the contributions gathered from the Saints." This revelation continues to a climactic statement: "The church has been directed to accede to the rendition of the Bishopric with respect to the temporal law."

This did not involve any new principle, but it was nevertheless valuable instruction in connection with the expanding work of the church. In harmony with this basic principle, the General Conference of 1932 (G. C. R. 915) directed the Presiding Bishopric "to assume full responsibility to see that the finances of the church are used strictly in accordance with the laws and enactments of the church, and for the faithful performance of such responsibility they shall be held answerable to the church in General Conference assembled."

A Ten-Year Financial Program

Two days after the Conference approved this action the body adopted the policy approved by the Board of Appropriations two months earlier and published in the Saints' Herald which was also summarized in the Bishop's report to the Conference (G. C. R. 925) as a financial program for meeting the debt of the church and stabilizing its financial structure. A favorable response followed this action and in ten years the debt was paid and reserve funds set up to carry out the 1932 Resolution.

The Order of Bishops performs its greatest service to the church as individuals responsible for the administration of the temporal affairs of the church in assigned areas: stakes, districts, and large branches. Here they are to teach the law and look after the needs of those in want and the properties of the church. In cases of personal difficulty between members or where a member is called to answer for misconduct of unchristian-like character the bishop is to be the trial judge, assisted by one or more elders.

The Budget

One of the important functions of the Order of Bishops assigned to it by General Conference is to serve on the Board of Appropriations. The preliminary work in setting up the budget is done by a committee consisting of a member of the First Presidency, a member of the Presiding Bishopric, and a member of the Council of Twelve (to be appointed by their own respective bodies) which shall make its recommendations to the Board of Appropriations. This body is made up of the First Presidency, the Order of Bishops, and the Council of Twelve (G. C. R. 886).

The date for the meeting of the Board is one to be agreed upon by the Presidency and the Presiding Bishopric but is to be no later than December 1 of each year. This body is authorized to determine a budget to be operative for the fiscal year which begins January 1 (Resolution 906).

At the present time the Order of Bishops has thirty-five members. Fifteen of these bishops in addition to the members of the Presiding Bishopric are under General Conference appointment. There are also fourteen self-sustaining bishops. Three are superannuated and unassigned.

The names of the present Order follow:

General Conference Appointees (18)

Alberts, D. A.
Australia
Baldwin, J. E.
Kansas City Stake
Beck, T. A.
N.W. U.S.A. Area
Byrn, O. K.
Detroit International
Cackler, H. W.
Center Stake

Carmichael, N. Ray
Farm Administrator
Compier, Anton
Continental Europe
DeLapp, G. L.
Presiding Bishopric
Dickson, F. L.
Far West Stake
Grundy, H. P.
Canada
Hansen, F. E.
Los Angeles Stake
Higdon, E. T.
Research
Johnson, W. N.
Presiding Bishopric
Kelley, J. S.
Resthaven Supervisor
Kohlman, L. W.
Lamoni Stake
Landsberg, L. E.
Michigan Area
Livingston, H. L.
Presiding Bishopric

Self-sustaining (14)

Adams, W. R.
N.W. Iowa District
Becker, J. A.
President Central Development Association
Burdick, E. C.
California (3) Districts
Burdick, James B.
Chicago District

Cadwell, Alex
Owen Sound District
Carlson, Carl O.
Detroit Stake Bishopric
Carmichael, D. B.
Southern California District
Deaver, A. Neal
Hospital Administrator
Greene, Brewton
Mobile District
Ford, W. E.
Wisconsin District
Hield, Norman
Social Service Center Manager
Robinson, Stephen
Des Moines District
Schofield, J. Franklin
British Isles
Wildermuth, J. F.
Kirtland Temple Supervisor

Unassigned (3)

Koehler, J. A.
Siegfried, M. H.
Wellman, W. T.

In 1928 the General Conference acted (G. C. R. 884) to clear up one point of priesthood relations. The question was what is the standing of those men who because of ill health or other reasons resign from the Order of Bishops? The Conference said they may "continue to labor as high priests and members of such quorum in accordance with the provisions of Doctrine and Covenants 129: 7." C. B. H.

Accounting and Compromising

THE IDEA of stewardship has achieved some respectability among Christians. It sounds practicable and even religious. Even the idea of tithing is being made palatable to many Protestant denominations. The Episcopalians, Methodists, Presbyterians, and other groups are finding this doctrine acceptable—in degrees at least.

As a beginning step for those who have never heard of the biblical tithe, Leland Stowe in the January, 1958, Readers' Digest says they are being given the option of paying less than the 10 per cent tithe. Some are starting with 3 or even 2 per cent of their net incomes. He says that the results have been startlingly favorable. The effect on the "tithers" has been to deepen their interest in the church and its "foreign missions" as well as to multiply the amount given to the several churches.

Since men are to be rewarded according to their works—even to the giving of a cup of cold water in the name of a disciple—who will say that a 2 per cent

"tither" will not be rewarded? It is a compromise which would not be tolerated on the income tax by the Internal Revenue Department, but it is a token acknowledgment of one's stewardship which has some merit.

The sin comes to those who acknowledge God as sovereign and know what he requires of them, and yet are content to compromise. The Lord has said to the members of this church, "It is required of the Lord, at the hand of every steward, to render an account of his stewardship, both in time and in eternity" (Doctrine and Covenants 72: 1). Some say, "We will not give our annual accounting [on which our increase and hence our tithing is computed] as that is our business alone." However, in this they are wrong and in rebellion against God. Better to be a 2 per cent tither than this kind of member. "None are exempt from this law who belong to the church of the living God" (Doctrine and Covenants 70: 3 b. Also see 70: 1 c).

C. B. H.

The accounting department is under the supervision of O. L. Athey (at the far left)

The Accounting Department

THE Accounting Department is one of the premier departments under the direction of the Presiding Bishopric, for it is here that all financial transactions are recorded in the various funds of the church and from which the complex statement of general church finances is presented at General Conference. Any reference to this statement will indicate the involved nature of the accounting system necessary to record the general church finances in its many phases.

In all, this department keeps a complete set of books for fifteen different funds. In addition, the accounting for the Central Development Association is done in this department. The financial transactions recorded range from the purchase of nuts and bolts to the paying of medical bills for appointees, from meeting a payroll of approximately 140 employees, plus family allowances for 200 appointees, to the purchase of 75 automobiles each year. They also range from the purchase of large quantities of various types of paper to the recording of transactions in real estate.

The accounting processes are dealt with through the use of a National Cash Register Accounting Machine. This machine was installed in the latter part of 1954 and has handled the accounting system since January 1, 1955. Almost all the checks, payroll, and ledgers are handled through the operation of this machine. Two trained operators can conduct this operation and have handled this phase of the church work very efficiently.

The cashier who handles the church moneys upon a daily basis (as referred to in another report) works closely with this department. He is responsible for all the incoming cash and checks and the daily receipting for them.

The department has one bookkeeper who handles much of the preliminary process work which includes the handling of statements for payment, the keeping of up-to-date records on Houses of Worship loans, the handling of regular monthly check payments, and many other such details in the department.

In the report on the Tithepayers' Service Department, the section in the Accounting Department whose responsibilities cover the checking of solicitors' and bishops' reports, together with the accounting for all receipts, is referred to.

The accounting department is headed by Brother Odess Athey who has had long experience in the teaching and practical side of accounting. He is an elder and is associate pastor at the West College Church. His work involves supervision and the tying together of the many processes in general church accounting.

Associated with the department is the work of the church purchasing agents and two stockrooms. Each of these stockrooms has its own stock control system, the clerk being responsible for the purchasing and disbursing of his stock, with a balanced monthly report being submitted to the accounting department and a physical stock control check each six months.

In the one stockroom, all maintenance supplies for the Auditorium are kept. A bin system is in operation; purchases are made through an authorized purchase order system, and disbursements by means of requisitions to a work order for the particular job undertaken. In the other stockroom, all stationery supplies are kept. Through this department is also issued the duplex envelopes in the fall of the year. This is a major operation. The department also handles the General Church mimeograph work, and a large addressograph system makes contact with all pastors, district presidents, bishops and bishop's agents, and solicitors. All supplies and issues in this department are based upon a similar system to that in operation for the maintenance stockroom. Here a strict control is also exercised and the stock balanced at regular intervals. Some idea as to the volume of work that passes through this stockroom can be obtained by noting that during the course of the year, 1,725 reams of paper are dealt with. The clerks of these stockrooms work closely with the Accounting Department in giving information as to all issues. They pass all invoices certifying prices, calculations, the receipt of the stock and are thus able to eliminate unnecessary procedures in the accounting system.

With the many and diverse operations into which the church goes, it is to the credit of the Accounting Department that the many thousands of entries which are recorded each month are done so with accuracy and efficiency, monthly trial balance and balance sheets being available in a very short time after the receipt of the last agent's report from the field. This service is very necessary to members of the Presiding Bishopric in order that they may at all times be aware of the trend of general church finances.

W. E. TIMMS

mensurate with the general church ministry it is receiving? In other words, which areas are paying their way?" This study has been completed for the year 1956; it will be continued over a period of years to check the trends in financial strength.

A number of other studies concerned with church financial operations are on tap to be analyzed as time permits. The Joint Council needs a better picture of each expenditure item to effect savings.

Much of Brother Higdon's work will be with the planned use of church lands. This will involve study of church-owned lands in relation to natural resources, location, possible future use, and community planning. At the present, some of his time is devoted to the appraisal and purchase of land. Plans for a reorganization of the farm program are in the offing. There is also a need for re-evaluating personal duties in the farm program.

The third area, economic research, will be concerned with the national and international economic trends. The impact of the business cycle on the church is one of these studies. This area will include an analysis of membership income and worth and a more concerted gathering of data about professions and how they may be best fitted into the Gathering and community planning.

In addition to these general areas, Bishop Higdon will represent the Presiding Bishopric at times in institutes and conferences, and in advising on various financial problems that arise in local and in general church areas of concern.

Although this new department is just beginning to get "on its feet," indications are that it will become increasingly important in planning the growth of the church and its outreach into the world.

P. A. W.

www.LatterDayTruth.org

Research, Analysis, and Management

A NEW DEPARTMENT was added to the Presiding Bishopric last March when the Joint Council finalized its decision to institute a series of studies to assist in planning more efficient use of general church resources.

Bishop Earl T. Higdon, then bishop of Lamoni Stake, was asked to head up this job, and he assumed his duties at the Auditorium on July 1.

Brother Higdon's responsibility is primarily divided into three areas: (1) economic research, (2) budgetary analysis, and (3) farm management.

One of the first studies he was asked to make was in the field of budgetary analysis. The basic question to be studied was: "From the general church viewpoint, what is the cost of operating a stake or district or apostolic mission? Is the income from each area com-

Bishop J. A. Becker

IN 1909 Bishop E. L. Kelley reported to the General Conference that "the church in its work of preparation and arrangements has arrived at the place where in the opinion of the Bishopric [we must consider] the question of carrying into effect the law relating to the purchasing of lands for the good of the work and the settlement properly of the Saints." This report was considered by a "mass meeting" of the elders who then petitioned the prophet of the church to approach the Lord for divine guidance on how such expansion should be carried out.

Out of this background of history came the revelation now numbered Section 128 in the Doctrine and Covenants and an intensified effort to develop "associations" that would help the Saints in their gathering to the Center Place, and the General Church in the accumulation of properties necessary to its growth.

The major association first developed as a phase of the Gathering procedure was the United Order of Enoch, and it functioned until late in the 1920's to care for the wave of "colonizers" of the Reorganization who wanted to settle in Independence. But by 1927 the development areas under the United Order of Enoch were mostly completed.

It was then that a new association came into being, this time to act as a holding company in accumulating and caring for residential and business properties that the church would need for future expansion. July 1, 1927, was the historic date when the Central Development Association first opened its books. On its records went the balance of assets and liabilities of the United Order of Enoch, Independence Division. Also transferred to it was a large group of church properties from the General Church. Subsequently other properties, including the Battery Block Building (early church headquarters in Independence), have also entered the care of the Association.

The Central Development Association came into being following a study by Presiding Bishop Albert Carmichael and his legal counsel, Israel A. Smith. It first was organized as a "trust estate" and was supervised by a board of trustees headed by Bishop J. A. Becker. On the board with him were C. R. Smith, A. K. Dillee, R. O. Flanders, G. W. Eastwood, F. M. McDowell, and D. R. Carmichael. Later the Association was incorporated, but the board continued unchanged.

Bishop Becker has remained president of the Association during its thirty years of existence. Three of the original seven men are still serving on the board. Bishop Becker, C. R. Smith, and D. R. Carmichael remain. Other members now serving are Harry G. Barto, Bishop G. Leslie DeLapp, Vernon A. Reese, and Bishop Harold Cackler. This board serves without compensation, and any profits accruing from rentals of property or sales go to the General Church. Since 1953 the Association has been recognized by the government as an integral part of the religious organization, and profits have become tax free. This does not mean, however, that the Association has freed itself of responsibility for paying the usual city and county real-estate taxes on these properties. Last year the Association paid over $6,000 in real-estate taxes.

Elder William H. Oliver has been manager and treasurer of CDA since 1948. He moved here from Detroit, Michigan, after being employed by the board. Under his direction, a crew of

In thirty years it has built up a net worth of $350,000

The Central Development Association

men maintain repairs on property of CDA and other church properties such as the School of the Restoration and Resthaven. Care of Mound Grove Cemetery is also under his management, and properties that have been consecrated to the church are subject to his maintenance. Brother Oliver also assists newcomers to the Center Place by appraising property they anticipate buying.

Members of CDA hasten to state that the Association does not purchase property for speculation; it is not a business in competition with real-estate dealers. Properties that are purchased are bought for use. During recent years several properties of benefit to the church or for institutional expansion have been obtained. These properties are later turned over to the ownership of the particular institution when use is anticipated.

The balance sheet at the end of 1956 showed a net worth of the Association of approximately $350,000.00. This, of course, is carried as "beneficial interest of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints." Those who are acquainted with the board and manager of this Association are fully aware of the devotion and consecration of the lives that guide the destiny of this organization. Their one and only concern is that their efforts shall honestly and fairly produce benefits for the church and maintain the integrity of the church name in the community. The CDA will undoubtedly increase in importance to the church and the community during the next thirty years of church development.

P. A. W.

Tithepayers' service personnel

Your Tithepayers' Service Department

THE Tithepayers' Service is a most important public relations department for the Presiding Bishopric. Church members want to have confidence in those who handle their contributions, and the Department of Tithepayers' Service is the one that gains the praise or bears the criticism of local contributors. The work not only is checked and double checked but is triple and quadruple checked at Tithepayers' Service. The simple, unpretentious statement of general church contributions from headquarters that comes to each tithepayer's home once a year gives little clue to the amount of time and energy spent to see that each member's investment in tithes and offerings is correctly accounted for.

The work of Tithepayers' Service originates in the local church. The solicitor acts for the Bishopric in initially receiving contributions for the General Church. He cares for the moneys received, issues receipts, and each month forwards funds to the bishop or bishop's agent in his district or stake.

In turn, the local bishop or his agent forwards an accumulated report with funds to the Presiding Bishopric at the Auditorium.

At headquarters the first step is the receipt of these reports, cash, and checks in the mail room. These are recorded on a daily mail report before they are sent to the Bishopric cashier. The cashier receives all incoming cash and checks and makes bank deposits daily. Other incoming reports and receipts are processed by the accounting department; summarized figures are entered in the permanent ledgers, after which the individual copy receipts go to the IBM Service Department for processing toward the annual Statement of General Church Contributions. A special section of the accounting department is devoted to the checking of all receipts, by receipt number, to ascertain that all numbered receipts issued from headquarters to individual solicitors are accounted for.

The IBM equipment's primary function in this phase of the Bishopric work is to accumulate and interpret statistical data needed for yearly statements of contributions. And one of the big jobs is keeping the John Browns and Bill Joneses straightened out. It isn't so bad if there is only one each in every branch, but frequently there are two or more people with the same or very similar names in the same city. One full-time clerk works to keep these names correctly identified with contributions.

One of the recent helps in this task was the assignment of baptismal registration numbers to each individual contributor. The local solicitor identifies each contributor by placing the name and matching registration number on each receipt. This has eliminated many headaches; but when the solicitor fails to record this identification on his receipt, considerable inconvenience is caused.

Other problems are caused by people who move without forwarding a change of address, who visit other branches and place their numbered duplex envelopes in the local collection, or members who submit their contributions under the names of various members of the family group, or nonmembers who make irregular contributions. These all cause the department to do some deep research to be sure the right person or family is being credited for the contribution.

In the future, it is hoped that the IBM equipment will assist in numerous surveys of information which can give the Bishopric an indication of trends in church finances and membership economics. Such surveys will be helpful in ascertaining where additional ministry from the law of temporalities is needed and correlated with other information recorded by the Department of Statistics. It is also anticipated that in the future this equipment will register information on individual skills, education, and other facts necessary for Zion's organizational progress.

At the present time, the IBM department supplies from the records of the Department of Statistics information regarding deaths, marriages, divorces, and keeps its mailing data up-to-date. Right now the big push is on to get the annual statements of general church contributions out to the tithepayers. Final reports are already consolidated and recorded, and IBM is in the process of preparing these statements. Expectations are that the first statements will be mailed by February 20. The bishop of each stake will receive copies of the statements of contributors from his particular stake in order that he may be prepared to answer any questions that individuals may have about their annual statement of general church contributions.

It is at this point that the main work of the Tithepayers' Service Department begins. The annual statements of general church contributors are passed to this department for mailing with a permanent copy to be filed away in the church vaults on an individual basis.

These individual records go back in some cases over a period of decades, with the result that when an application for a "Statement of Tithing Paid" is made, there are cases when this information would cover a period of forty years or more. The compiling of such statements takes up a considerable amount of time in the department, and it is looked upon as one of the major services of the Tithepayers' Service Department to the church membership.

The confidential nature of this information, along with that on the filing statements, is recognized by the General Church. As a result, access to the vaults containing this information is very strictly controlled. The Bishopric uses extreme care in selecting personnel for this department. Strict privacy for such information as is found in tithing statements and payments is the rule. Only employees who are working directly with these records may inspect them, and information is to be held strictly confidential.

Tithepayers' statement vault

Another very important phase of the work in this department is the receiving, correcting, and completing of First and Annual Tithing Statements. The filer is written regarding these corrections, the purpose being twofold: first, to convey official Bishopric interpretation of the law where it is felt that this has not been fully understood; and second, to give the filer opportunity to approve or reject the suggested correction, it being understood that the final decision in this regard rests with the person filing the statement.

A detailed count of filers is made in the department and recorded by districts and stakes, the bishop or bishop's agent in each of these areas being advised monthly as to this count.

At the end of the year a summarization is made of the year's activity. A survey is produced setting out the membership in the area, the number of general church contributors, the amount and per capita contributions. The number of statement filers is shown with the percentage of the total membership. A rating is given for each stake or district in relation to all the other stakes and districts. This comprehensive picture is then sent out to each of the Bishopric representatives, district presidents, and appointees.

Of course, Tithepayers' Service is not only concerned with tithing and tithing statements but records different funds such as oblation, Christmas offering, special day offerings, and Auditorium construction. It is no wonder that "check and double check" is the byword.

When you place your contributions in the hands of your solicitor or bishop, you may be assured that your general church stewards of finances are doing the best job possible in handling your moneys honestly, efficiently, and confidentially.

P. A. W.

Part of the IBM machines and personnel

A Talk With Bishop DeLapp

Goals Accomplished, Objectives Ahead Discussed in Interview with Bishop

ONE would expect the top financial officer in a large organization to be keen and exact.

After more than seventeen years as Presiding Bishop of the church, G. Leslie DeLapp fits the role precisely.

Brother DeLapp celebrated his sixty-second birthday November 4. However, when he speaks the years begin to melt away. His conversation has the vigor and enthusiasm of a younger man in love with his work.

Neither do the responsibilities of twenty-six years in the Presiding Bishopric show in his posture. The habits he learned as a sergeant during World War I still make him stand erect.

But the years show in his voice and his eyes. They carry the conviction and authority of years of experience.

When he speaks, people listen with respect but not awe. Recently when he addressed the closing session of a seminar of learned church men and women he was introduced simply as "Leslie." He liked it that way.

His career in the Bishopric has been matched by a record of service in community affairs. The list is long: board of directors of the Independence Chamber of Commerce; president of the Independence Kiwanis Club; president of the Knife and Fork Club; Jackson County Charter Commission; advisory committee for the Jackson County Courts Building; foreman of the Grand Jury; president of the Kansas City Area Hospital Council.

Although he is trying to cut down on his activities the list of his present jobs is still impressive: president of the Greater Kansas City Blue Cross Hospital Service; executive committee of the Eastern Jackson County Community Chest; Jackson County Welfare Commission; vice-president, Kansas City Area Metropolitan Planning Council; board of directors, Kansas City Chapter of the American Cancer Society; board of directors, Kansas City Area Hospital Association.

"I've enjoyed working with these organizations," Bishop DeLapp said. "But I don't consider them as leisure time projects. They are part of my work. The interests of the church are closely tied to the interests of society as a whole, and our church has a responsibility to the community. It is important for us to know what is going on in certain fields such as health, welfare, and relief.

"Also, by giving our time to worthy community service programs we have opportunities to witness our religion before people we might not otherwise reach. And we can witness by the way we live and work with them, which is always better than merely handing out a tract. I only hope I live well enough to be a good witness in my work with people outside the church."

So many responsibilities on top of the dozens of responsibilities imposed by the single job of Presiding Bishop would stagger many people. Bishop DeLapp still finds time to work on a book several hours a day. He has titled it "Social Progress through Stewardship." It will be published by Herald House. He also manages to keep on top of a large stack of reading concerning current trends and events in finance, business, banking, management, agriculture, health, government, and industry.

At home he has several books placed at strategic spots so he can read them in spare moments. He follows with a great deal of interest and reads to some extent the assignments that are given to his son, a student at the University of Kansas City.

Bishop DeLapp did not receive a full college education himself. He was born in East Delavan, Wisconsin. He grew up in South Dakota and Minnesota. As a young Latter Day Saint he often found himself in areas where there were no other young people of the church. His friends ranged from Christian Scientists to Lutherans. He played ball for a Methodist church team.

After graduation from high school in Minneapolis, he became a clerk at the First National Bank. In 1917 the war interrupted his career and he enlisted in the Medical Corps of the U.S. Army. He advanced to the rank of sergeant first class and was top sergeant of a field hospital company and later a mess sergeant for four companies. He entered Officer's Candidate School in the horse cavalry at San Antonio, Texas. Two weeks before his graduation the Armistice was signed and his Army career ended.

Back in Minneapolis Brother DeLapp worked at the bank and then joined F. A. Bean Properties, Inc., where he did accounting, tax reports, and management of some Canadian lands held by the company.

In 1925 he was ordained a priest, and a few months later he was ordained an elder. The following year at General Conference he was ordained a high priest and a bishop by Frederick M. Smith, Elbert A. Smith, and F. M. McDowell. He served as bishop of the Minnesota district for two years while working for the F.A. Bean firm.

Bishop DeLapp took his first full-time church appointment in 1928 as bishop of Lamoni Stake. At Lamoni he spent some of his time studying at Graceland College. His studies supplemented extension courses taken at the University of Minnesota, YMCA, and the American Institute of Bankers.

In 1931 he became a member of the Presiding Bishopric as counselor to L. F. P. Curry and in 1940 he was ordained Presiding Bishop.

Looking back over his years in the Presiding Bishopric Brother DeLapp can pick out several goals which have been achieved and serve as signposts in the growth of the church.

"The complete elimination of the church debt is one of the great accomplishments of this church," he said. That goal has been accomplished along with the achievement of many others during Brother DeLapp's time. Some that he likes to recall are the implementation of the principle of the storehouse, building of many new houses of worship, greater and improved land holdings, progress toward completion of the Auditorium, strengthening of the church institutions and better financial care of families employed by the church.

But this Bishop prefers to think about the future rather than dwelling in the past. Some important goals that he sees ahead are:

"Organization of business, vocational, and professional people in such a way that they can contribute from their experience to the solution of our common problems.

"Industrial groups in the stakes or areas of concentrated membership. Groups that will mobilize their personnel and capital resources to establish new industries.

"Better utilization of the Aaronic priesthood for ministry to member families.

"Completion of the Auditorium. The finishing of this building stands between us and any commission to build a temple.

"A substantial increase in the funds available for the Houses of Worship revolving fund. Approval of many loans has been delayed for lack of funds in the past, and the same is true now.

"Increased acceptance of stewardship responsibilities. I hope for this, not because it means more money for the church. The responsibilities touch many areas other than financial. I hope our members accept their stewardship responsibility because it is the true way to the abundant life.

"Strengthening the work in missions abroad.

"Meeting the needs in our institutions. They need capital for new buildings.

"And I look forward to the further implementation of the principles of the Gathering. We must remember that it is one of the basic and essential concepts of our church. We must think of this principle in relation to the stakes and other centers of church population. But the focal point of the Gathering is the Center Place, Independence. The Gathering here will have to remain on a selective or individual basis for a time, at least.

"I could go on and on with these convictions," he said with a smile, "but I'm covering them all in my book. Be sure to read it."

R. Y.

Houses of Worship Revolving Fund Program

FOR many years the general officers have been concerned in the building or improving of local houses of worship. This concern found expression in an action recommended to General Conference and approved by that body. Because of the depression and general church debt, there was a long period of time when adequate attention could not be given to any matters involving large expenditures. But since the church has been free of debt and its financial program has been stabilized, considerable work has been done to assist congregations in getting better church buildings.

It began with the report of the Presiding Bishopric to the General Conference of 1946 in which reference was made to the need for improving local houses of worship. The report pointed out that while there were some building programs then in progress the Saints still fell far short of meeting the standard the church should achieve in building adequate houses of worship. The Bishopric then recommended that a general church revolving loan fund be provided as a beginning to help meet the need for better houses of worship throughout the church.

Following the suggestion of the Presiding Bishopric, the Board of Appropriations recommended to the General Conference the setting up of an amount of $300,000.00 in a Houses of Worship Revolving Loan Fund. This amount was then thought to be adequate to meet the existing need, because in making loans available to branches the General Church did not intend to assume the responsibilities of the local congregations for building programs. Loans were to assist congregations that put forth efforts to accumulate funds to enable them to build and have the use of much-needed buildings without undue delay.

Because church building projects are regarded as tasks of spiritual import affecting the general work of the church, a general church committee on church building was appointed to study the whole problem. This committee (consisting of representatives of the First Presidency, the council of Twelve, and the Presiding Bishopric) made an extensive study of the principles involved in a church building program and prepared a booklet which was published in 1952, "Planning Your Church Building." A copy of this has been made available to building committees on request from the Presiding Bishopric.

The desperate need of local congregations for better churches soon used the initial loan fund of $300,000.00 in its entirety. Subsequent General Conferences took actions to increase the fund as follows:

1948	$100,000.00
1950	200,000.00
1952	250,000.00
1954	150,000.00
	100,000.00*
1956	100,000.00
	<hr/>
	$900,000.00
Initial Loan Fund	300,000.00
	<hr/>

Grand total in fund $1,200,000.00

Despite the repeated increase of the loan fund, it has not been adequate to meet the many requests for loans throughout the General Church. At the request of the Presiding Bishopric, the General Conference authorized the use of $500,000.00 of the Ministerial Reserve Fund for loans on houses of worship building projects. In addition the Bishopric, in line with its trustee responsibility, has made rather extensive use of the Houses of Worship Fund for loans and has also made some loans available from the Consecration Agreement Fund. The loans from the Consecration Agreement Fund are restricted to stakes. It is to be observed therefore that every existing possible resource has been utilized to assist in meeting the houses of worship building requirements of the church.

A survey covering a ten-year period, from 1945 to 1955 inclusive, shows that building programs as well as improvements made to church property involved 364 congregations with an estimated cost of $7,588,830.00. In regard to loans, present information indicates that the General Church has made from all funds 275 loans involving $2,522,866.00. These loans were made from the various funds before listed.

*This $100,000.00 was set up in a Missions Revolving Loan Fund. This was made available exclusively to new missions in districts or unorganized territory. Missions in branches and stakes, of course, have access to the general Houses of Worship Revolving Loan Fund.

One of the basic ideas involved in the loan program was the desire to preclude as much as possible the creation of debt to outside organizations. This idea is in line with the policy of the General Church to keep out of debt. In some unusual circumstances and because of the lack of loan funds, a few outside obligations have been approved with the thought that as soon as funds are available, these loans would be liquidated. The Bishopric thinks that the principle of avoiding debt is valid, because the church is not a commercial organization and must depend on voluntary contributions to meet its obligations. This makes it inadvisable to engage in any extensive program of borrowing from outside organizations that require mortgages to be placed on church properties.

Whether or not more funds can be allocated to increase the loan fund will depend upon the amount of net increase from the church's financial operations for the years 1956 and 1957. There are many needs to be considered from this net increase, and any additional amount to be allocated to loan funds will require consideration with these other needs. The Bishopric believes that the present shortage of funds could be relieved to some extent by branches repaying debts ahead of schedule. When a branch is firmly established and has somewhat recovered from the heavy initial requirements for financing a building program, it can in some instances repay faster than the loan agreement provides. Such a branch is urged, if possible, to make additional payments, thus making funds available to congregations awaiting loan funds from the General Church.

The following letter was received from the treasurer of the Jackson, Ohio, Branch. It is typical of the attitude that will keep the revolving fund working for the best interests of the total church.

Enclosed you will find our check for $1,000.92 in payment of the balance of loan of $1,100.00 with interest for September, 92 cents.

We are indeed very grateful for this loan and have felt it fitting and proper to repay it as soon as possible. We are a small congregation but have worked untiringly to repay our debt.

We feel that God has been mindful of us and has helped us to reach our goal. Again thanking you for the loan, we are, yours respectfully, Jackson Branch Treasurer.

The Jackson congregation obtained a loan in 1954 with the thought that it would be repaid in full by 1961. The branch has now come with the final payment of the loan, and the treasurer summed up the attitude of the people very well. In meeting this obligation the members have been obliged to make some sacrifices, yet there have been spiritual values accruing to them by this commendable effort. Branches are not required to do what Jackson and others have done in this regard; but in view of the great need for funds, this fine example is recommended for consideration of other congregations in a position to repay loans sooner than agreed.

The primary responsibility for supervising this revolving loan program has been assigned to me. The statistics already quoted indicate the great strides that local churches have been able to make under this program. Through this program of self-help, the church has made unequalled progress in building construction compared to any other period of church history. Even greater results are anticipated as this program flourishes during the years ahead.

H. L. LIVINGSTON

It's not too late to . . .

begin keeping your Income and Expense Record Book for 1958.

Family
HERALD HOUSE

Youth
Box 477, Independence, Missouri

Children
Box 382, Guelph, Ontario, Canada

25c
each

If the gospel is to be taken to all peoples more members must keep the financial law

Financial Trends

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO the church was struggling to maintain itself in the midst of a major economic depression. A debt of nearly $2,000,000.00 cast a dark shadow over the church—most of the full-time ministers had been released, and the total general church income for that year was to be less than $230,000.00.

Nevertheless there was hope for a brighter day in the policy approved at the General Conference of the preceding year. Emergency measures were already in operation, calling for the arresting of all expansion, the liquidation of some assets, and the exercise of rigid economy in order to make possible the major project of paying the debt. A balanced budget was to be maintained, reserves were to be created in accordance with storehouse principles, and underlying the whole program was a strong emphasis on "keeping the law." Adherence to these policies has paid the debt, made possible a vast expansion of church activity, and at the same time provided a solid financial foundation to support the spiritual mission of the church.

General Fund Net Worth

At the end of 1941 when the debt payment plan was almost completed, the net worth of the General Church on the accounts of the Presiding Bishopric was $3,714,000.00. Fifteen years later at the end of 1956, the books showed a total fund equity of $24,756,000.00 (These figures do not include such church institutions as Independence Sanitarium and Hospital, Graceland College, and Herald House.)

The largest single fund is the Houses of Worship Investment Fund which totals $15,500,000.00. At the end of 1956 slightly less than $2,000,000.00 of this was invested in the Auditorium with the balance in local houses of worship, reunion grounds, and so forth. The next largest fund is the General Fund, or working fund of the church, which includes considerable properties in Independence and Jackson County as well as any cash balances remaining after the annual budget is met. This fund totaled $2,133,000.00 at December 31, 1956.

Other major funds at the end of 1956 were the Operating Reserve Fund of $1,200,000.00; the Houses of Worship Revolving Fund of $1,140,000.00, nearly all of which is reflected on the bishop's books as accounts receivable from branches; the Ministerial Reserve Fund of $1,260,000.00, most of which is invested in lands in Jackson County and branch building loans; and the Oblation Fund, which now has assets exceeding $930,000.00.

Increased Participation

The church in the domestic field has been influenced by the religious revival of recent years and by the inflationary trends. Work in the Auditorium offices has doubled and tripled in the past decades, and in almost every district and stake there has been increased church activity out of proportion to numerical gains. In the eleven-year period 1946-1956 inclusive there has been a gain of 18.7 per cent in the properly enrolled membership in the domestic field. Tithepayers have increased 77.5 per cent, and tithing statement filers have increased 163.5 per cent during the same period.

We tend to think of the total church income as being contributed by a large proportion of church membership, but our statistics reveal that a large majority of members do not contribute at all in any given year. In the record year to date 45,341 members (33.22 per cent of the properly enrolled members in the domestic field) contributed to the general fund. This includes a great many children and contributors of very small amounts, as all those who receive an official receipt during the year are counted as contributors. However, these 1956 figures represent a marked increase from the 25,549 tithepayers and slightly over 22 per cent of members paying tithes in 1946. There have been corresponding increases also in the number of members supporting local budgets and branch building programs.

In 1946 the church could count only 8,638 members or 7.6 per cent of the members paying tithing on an accounting basis. This figure has gone up steadily since then until in 1956, 22,578 members in the domestic field, or one in each six enrolled members, made a stewardship accounting. In four leading stakes and districts over 30 per cent of the members filed tithing statements during that year. Significant gains have also been made in missions abroad in recent years, and the Australasian Mission now has about 19 per cent of the membership filing tithing statements.

This gain in filers and contributors has been reflected in increased general church income. In 1941 the general fund income was $518,000.00 and in 1956 over $2,000,000.00. At first glance this may appear to be a large income, but divided among the total domestic field membership, it amounts to only $14.66 per member. While this is the highest giving on record, it is, nevertheless, a very small figure with which to meet the budgetary and capital needs of a growing church.

Costs of church operation have increased with an expanding program and inflationary trends. In recent years the gap between income and budgetary expenditures has narrowed rather steadily. An increasing number of districts are now contributing on a per member level which is below the annual per member share of the general church budget. This is significant in view of the great need of the church for a continuing expansion of missionary work and also a need for capital funds for building loans, Auditorium completion, institutions, and needs of missions abroad. Surplus contributions are also needed for various phases of Zion's development.

Most of the money received from tithes is being spent on church services to districts and stakes in the domestic field, and the number of dollars actually being spent outside the domestic field is very small, amounting to less than fifty cents per member in 1956. While gains are being made in missions abroad, the matter of taking the gospel into all the world must remain largely in the planning stage until the level of giving is substantially increased or the pattern of budgetary spending can be changed to make a larger proportion of the budget available for taking the gospel into new areas.

In the past twenty-five years, however, it has been amply demonstrated that the church membership has the potential strength to carry the gospel to other places and peoples. The answer lies in winning more members to keeping the financial law. Those who are serious about the Restoration movement can find joy and satisfaction in making their stewardship accounting and paying their tithing for general church purposes and out of the remaining increase contributing offerings and surplus according to the blessings which our heavenly Father has bestowed upon them.

Church members can rejoice in the progress made in recent years, but much remains to be done if the church is to take its rightful place in the present critical age.

W. N. JOHNSON

GENERAL CHURCH NET WORTH

Church Farm Lands Provide Investment Training Grounds

BISHOP N. RAY CARMICHAEL manages eight thousand acres of church farm lands in or near Jackson County, Missouri. It keeps him busy.

The Farm Management office, high up in a corner of the Auditorium, is Bishop Carmichael's headquarters. However, it is not easy to find him there. He spends much of his time out on the land.

The lands over which he is chief steward are farmed by twenty-one tenants. In the main they are church members working on a crop share lease.

In the area of Atherton, Missouri, about fourteen miles east of Independence, the church owns four thousand acres of farm lands. They are river bottom acres and highly productive. The crops are corn, wheat, soybeans, grain sorghum, popcorn, and alfalfa. At present a livestock program is being integrated for better land use.

The remaining church farms in the area are upland farms typical of this part of Missouri. The land is in corn, wheat, alfalfa, and pasture; livestock are adapted especially to the upland farms.

Besides the farm lands, the church owns a 65-cow dairy herd and steer and hog enterprises.

Tenants on the farms own their own machinery and develop livestock herds as joint enterprises.

A Training Ground

Bishop Carmichael is especially proud of the church's record of developing good stewards through the use of its farm lands. "Our lands are not only an investment but a training ground," he said. "Many of our tenants have come on the land with nothing and have farmed the church lands for five years or more and left to go on farms of their own."

Bishop Carmichael looks over an aerial map of the Atherton farm lands

The record bears him out. Forty-one tenants have left the church farms since 1940. Twenty-two of the tenants moved on farms which they had purchased. Five moved to other businesses which they had purchased. One left to go to college. Two went to the Army. And one tenant retired. The other tenants either left the farm to go into industry or were deceased.

"When tenants begin work on our farms they have a fine opportunity to develop their own farming business or other business," Bishop Carmichael said. "While they are tenants they acquire skills and know-how in farming, a set of machinery, a line of credit, capital, and a good annual income. We have had tenants come to us with very little capital and, after ten years on the farm, leave with substantial resources."

Acquiring the Land

Most of the Atherton farm lands were acquired in the late 1920's through the Graceland Stewardship Endowment Program. At that time a campaign was conducted to raise a minimum endowment fund required for the church college to meet accreditation standards. The endowment funds were invested in church farms, and Graceland College was issued bonds in the amount of their endowment. Each year the college receives interest on these bonds.

The church has been acquiring farm lands in and near Jackson County since the days of the Endowment Program. In 1947 the church added greatly to its holdings by buying five farms totaling nearly one thousand five hundred acres.

The church investment in farm lands falls into three categories: (1) stewardship endowment holdings, (2) ministerial reserve investment, and (3) real-estate investments.

Developing the Land

The church program of acquiring and developing farm lands has followed careful planning. During the 1930's and the period of debt reduction little improvement or development was done on the farm lands. Instead, farm income was used for family allowances and elders' expenses.

With the church's liberation from debt came the opportunity to use farm income for improvement and equipment.

During the first stage of the development program studies were made in use of the Atherton lands. The studies resulted in the construction of a levee system which greatly reduced flood hazard and stabilized farming operations (Atherton is located near the junction of the Missouri and Little Blue rivers, and the area had previously been subject to floods almost yearly.)

Moving on, the church developed a soil needs study and cropping plan for the area. The soil and water management program worked out for the farms resulted in terracing, pond building, and related methods of good management. Tests were also made to determine plant food needs, crop adaptation, and land use.

In its latest stage the development program is moving toward rapid improvements of buildings, fences, and other facilities. All homes but one on church holdings now have modern kitchens, bathrooms, central heating plants, electricity, and most have telephone service.

During these periods of development, the church has called in the help of specialists in farm management and land use. Help in planning is also obtained by participating in the Balanced Farming Program of the College of Agriculture of the University of Missouri.

Preparation for a Job

N. Ray Carmichael was well trained for his job of farm manager when he stepped into the traces in 1940. He was graduated from Graceland College in 1915 and from Iowa State College in 1918. He spent the next two years in the Army, serving much of the time in England and France with the medical corps. After the Armistice he studied for a while at the University of Edinburgh, Scotland.

After returning to the United States, Brother Carmichael did extension work at Iowa State and some graduate study in plant pathology.

From 1921 to 1925 he worked in the Bureau of Plant Industry in the Department of Agriculture in Washington, D. C. In 1925 he was called to Graceland College to become treasurer and business manager. He was ordained a bishop in 1932 and became counselor to the bishop of Lamoni Stake. In 1934 he moved to Independence as counselor to the Presiding Bishop. Six years later he was named an assistant to the Presiding Bishop and became farm manager.

He is a member of the American Society of Farm Managers and Rural Appraisers and a past president of the Missouri Society. He is also a member of the agricultural council of the College of Agriculture of the University of Missouri, financial chairman of MO-ARK (a three-state flood control association), and a member of the Jackson County Farm Bureau board. He is a past president and secretary of the bureau.

The Future

At present the church's investment in farm lands is generally yielding a return of 3 to 10 per cent annually. It has gone as high as 17 per cent.

No extensive building improvements have been undertaken in the farming operations in the Atherton community due to the still-present flood hazard. However, plans for a $6.5 million levee project in the area by the Federal Government seems to open the way for further improvements and possibly irrigation facilities.

Despite these large holdings, and the very practical nature of the work being done on our church farms, our basic concern is spiritual. Indeed, the spiritual development of those on church farms is our primary concern. After all, that is our real business.

R. Y.

Ministry to the Poor and Needy

Bishops and Aaronic Priesthood Utilize Oblation Offerings To Meet the Needs of the Poor

IT WAS DARK AS THE young priest walked up the steps of the Smith home. This was his first priesthood visit, and he was nervous.

This was also the first time the Smiths had been visited by a minister from the church, but they were happy that he had come. They had problems and needed counsel.

The problems of the Smith family were not spiritual. They had attended church regularly in their former home town. But since their recent arrival in this city they had suffered one set back after another. Bad health, unemployment, and some unanticipated expenses had hit them hard financially.

As he left the Smith home the young priest felt good from the fine fellowship he had enjoyed with the family. They were not discouraged by their plight and felt that the Lord would surely see their needs and provide.

Not sure what he should do to help the new family, the priest decided he should inform his pastor of the problem right away.

As soon as the pastor knew of the problem a well-planned operation went into action.

The pastor contacted members in the immediate neighborhood of the Smith family and asked them to help meet the temporary crisis by friendly visiting and donations of any needed food or other items.

Then the pastor contacted the branch treasurer and arranged for a nominal gift of money which could be used to meet the immediate financial needs of the Smith family.

Further checking by the pastor and his young Aaronic priest revealed that the Smith family really had suffered from unfortunate and uncontrollable circumstances.

Through further home ministry with the Smiths, the pastor discovered what it would take for the family to recover and again get its "feet on the ground." He informed the district bishop's agent and recommended that the Smith family receive further financial assistance which the local branch was not in a position to give. The first step taken by the bishop's agent was to grant emergency aid.

Soon the bishop's agent had a full report of the family's situation, estimated needs, rehabilitation opportunities, and a recommendation in the mail to the Presiding Bishopric.

A plan was set up whereby the Smiths would receive the financial help that they needed. The financial resources, along with help received from neighbors and additional home ministry enabled them again to become self-supporting and stable.

The entire episode was one of great spiritual meaning to both the Smiths and the young priest.

One of Many

This is not a specific case report but rather an outline of events that have happened many times in the church. It is an example of how the church gives aid to the poor and needy.

Such aid to the needy is made possible by the oblation offerings made in all parts of the world church. A General Conference Resolution in 1942 stated the church should "segregate oblation funds, that they may be used for the purpose of giving temporary aid and benevolences, and at the same time to make possible their use for the permanent rehabilitation of those who have become physically incapacitated or disabled, and who are worthy of the assistance and help of the church."

A recent study revealed that prior to the segregation of funds, over a twenty-one-year period, there was expended in direct aid $590,800.97. This was approximately $60,000 in excess of oblation income during the same period.

Resthaven, home for senior adults, offers peaceful and pleasant surroundings for those who live there.

The association of church friends means much at Resthaven

During the past ten years the church has given a total of $468,303.76 to the poor and needy from the oblation funds. About $70,000 of this amount was sent abroad.

These figures do not include assistance given through the Social Service Center, or help extended locally by stakes, districts, branches, and groups.

Charged to Help Needy

From its beginnings the church has been charged with the responsibility of seeking out and helping the poor and needy. In January of 1831, less than a year after the church was organized, the Lord made provision that "certain men" should "look to the poor and the needy, and administer to their relief."

Since the initial revelation, numerous other revelations have come to the church in the interest of those in need. The church law contemplates the searching out of the poor throughout the church and administering to their relief.

The responsibility for seeking out the worthy poor is fundamentally that of the Aaronic priesthood, functioning under the supervision and direction of the pastor in congregations. Where needy individuals are isolated, the responsibility falls on the area's administrative officers and representatives of the bishopric.

The church has specific responsibilities to its members which are different from those of other agencies. The Red Cross, for example, assumes certain responsibilities for men in military service and their families, and in instances of emergency and national disaster. Other civic, state, and federal agencies are also available to cover certain needs of citizens. The church has a particular part to play in augmenting the services of these other agencies, and proceeds on the basis of utilizing those facilities that are already available for all. Particular attention is given to the needs of members which are not met by these other agencies.

Such agencies urge that there be no duplication of effort and of assistance given but welcome gladly the co-operation of churches and other social agencies.

Administering Aid

The Presiding Bishopric suggests that pastors make a division of the membership of each congregation into geographical units of not more than ten families per unit. A member of the Aaronic priesthood—priest, teacher, or deacon—should be assigned to each unit.

The Aaronic priest should become acquainted with each of the families assigned to him and maintain regular contact through home visiting. He can thus determine if there is any sick among the families or any who are lacking in the necessities of life.

If the visiting minister discovers sickness or need he can inform the pastor, who will draw from available resources. These resources are neighboring families, the branch treasury, other welfare organizations, and state and national agencies.

A report should also be made to the representative of the bishopric in the branch, and any case which goes beyond the ability of local funds can be considered by the Presiding Bishopric at General Church Headquarters.

If general church funds are to be used, the representative of the bishopric must determine the extent to which the church should participate, make a report to the Presiding Bishopric, and also continue to follow up and furnish up-to-date information on cases running over three months.

Information Required

The church's philosophy of giving aid to the needy also includes the concept that indiscriminate giving of aid does injury both to the individual and the family concerned and may thwart the program of the church.

The Presiding Bishopric requires the following information in writing in any aid case:

(1) Name of individual, (2) number in family, (3) ages, (4) vocation of wage earners, (5) church membership, (6) attitude of family toward church and members of the branch, (7) over-all financial status (8) ability to manage affairs, (9) extent of family's church contributions, (10) estimate of need, (11) opportunity for vocational rehabilitation, (12) vocational interests and potential.

Social Service Center

In providing aid for the poor and needy, men of the bishopric constantly attempt to utilize the resources of the Social Service Center.

The Social Service Center is organized on the storehouse principle of receiving used clothing, furniture, commodities and surplus goods from those who have them and passing these goods on to those who need them. Goods are given to those who are the worthy needy and unable to pay the nominal charge usually made for renovation and handling.

The Center had a small beginning. It has had various names: "Commodity Shop," "Home Arts and Industries," "Campus Shop." And the work has been carried on by a faithful band of volunteer women in several locations: the Auditorium, Bartholomew Hall, and Swope Mansion.

The shoe repair department is one of the busiest at the Social Service Center

Busy hands make happy hours—and useful products—at Social Service

Now the Social Service Center is located in a fireproof downtown building in Independence. It is comfortably heated, well lighted, and adequately equipped. There are 26,700 square feet of floor space for workrooms, salesrooms, training classes, and storage. The building was purchased from oblation funds and cost approximately $70,000.

The church has an investment of $13,000 in a similar activity in the Detroit International Stake.

The work of the Social Service Center is under the direction of a general policy board consisting of the First Presidency, Presiding Bishopric, Center Stake and Kansas City Stake presidents and bishops. Bishop Norman Hield is manager.

Kansas City Stake operates a social service center which also serves as an outlet for the general church center.

The center provides clothing, furniture, and various other goods. A modern dry-cleaning plant and laundry makes possible the sterilization of all articles of clothing.

All articles are priced as low as possible, but the cost of operating the institution is taken into consideration. Goods are furnished without cost, upon recommendation of the bishopric, to members of the church who are unable to pay the nominal price charged.

Besides providing employment for a limited number of handicapped persons and persons in need of temporary financial assistance, regular classes are provided by qualified instructors in sewing, upholstery, slip covering, millinery, electrical and radio repair.

Key personnel are full-time paid employees. All other work is done by volunteers. About 250 volunteers work each week.

Bishop Norman Hield (far left) and his corps of volunteer workers

The Social Service Center also serves many areas other than the Center Place. Large shipments of goods have gone to Korea, needy Indians, Europe, and many other areas of the church.

Resthaven

In 1954, after housing its aged members in many types of homes in many places, the church began construction of the new Resthaven at 1500 Truman Road in Independence—across the busy avenue from the Independence Sanitarium and Hospital. This very valuable site was a contribution by Brother and Sister Mark S. White.

Resthaven now houses seventy guests. It is a home to its residents. It was planned and built to offer home comfort, home protection, and home care.

The senior church members who have retired from active business and professional life and from domestic responsibilities are able to come to Resthaven to find comfort, security, and freedom from worry about physical care.

This home was built and set in operation by oblation funds as a service to the elderly persons to whom the church recognizes an obligation. This is in harmony with the social ideals and principles accepted by the church that all should receive care "according to their circumstances and their wants and needs."

Who May Enter

A person wishing to live at Resthaven must be a member of the church. Guests are admitted on the basis of need. A need is felt to exist where a person, because of age, is dependent on someone else and the family is unable to provide the needed care.

A charge is made, with the actual rate being determined by the amount of care needed. The rate does not include doctor's charges or drugs. If possible, the rate is paid by the person or the family, but inability to pay the normal rate does not bar entrance to Resthaven—need is the determining factor. The home was filled almost upon completion, and there is now a waiting list of those desiring admission.

Many Resources

The young priest who walked up the steps of the Smith home feeling nervous did not need to feel that way at all. Back of all priesthood members who attempt to give family ministry are resources to meet physical as well as spiritual needs. The resources to meet the economic requirements of needy church families are provided for by the oblation offerings which are contributed in every area of the church and stand as one of the main testimonies of our philosophy of sharing together in God's many blessings.

R. Y.

Bulletin Board

Appointee's Address

Arthur A. Oakman
40 Highfield Road
Nuneaton, Warwickshire, England

Serviceman's Address

PFC Orvin L. Wilson
1519 Olympain Way S.W.
Atlanta, Georgia

BOOKS WANTED

Archer Scafe, 413 North Court Street, Sparta, Wisconsin, would like to obtain a copy of Knisley's Infallible Proofs. He wants to know the price and condition of the book before receiving it.

Joseph Gatley, 379 Livesey Lane, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, would like to purchase a copy of Salyards' The Enduring Word. Please contact him regarding the price and condition of the book before sending it.

REQUEST FOR PRAYERS

Prayers are requested for Mrs. Velma Stafford, 1306 Bennington, Kansas City, Missouri, who is suffering from a nervous condition. She is bedfast and in great pain. Letters and cards, as well as prayers, will be most welcome.

ENGAGEMENTS

Montalbano-Reeder

Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Sears of Livingston, Texas, announce the engagement of their daughter, Opal Reeder, to John F. Montalbano. Opal is the lady deputy of Polk County, Texas, and John is owner of the Home Packing and Provision Company in Beaumont. No date has been set for the wedding.

Von Harten-Nunn

Mr. and Mrs. William Nunn of Banks, Oregon, announce the engagement of their daughter, Lila, to Joseph H. Von Harten, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Von Harten of San Jose, California. Lila, a 1956 graduate of Graceland, is now a senior at San Jose State College. A summer wedding is planned.

Schall-Fletcher

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Fletcher of Boise, Idaho, announce the engagement of their daughter, Maxine Louise, to Lawrence R. (Rod) Schall, son of Mr. Myron R. Schall of Sacramento, California. Both are graduates of Graceland College. Maxine, a graduate of the University of Idaho also, is now teaching in Leon, Iowa. Rod, a graduate of Sacramento State College, is employed as Audio-Visual Director at Graceland. A July wedding is planned.

Greene-Ross

Mrs. Maude Ross of Weir, Kansas, announces the engagement of her daughter, Ellen, to Robert L. Greene, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Greene of Beaver Dam, Virginia. Ellen is a 1948 graduate of Graceland College. The wedding will take place on February 14 at Weir.

WEDDINGS

Amos-Bullard

Ruby Charlene Bullard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Bullard of Wray, Colorado, and Richard L. Amos, son of Mrs. Lester Harding of Goodland, Kansas, were married in a double-ring ceremony at the Reorganized Church in Wray on October 6. The bride's uncle, Stephen F. Bullard, officiated. They are making their home in Wray.

Badley-Bullard

Delores Eileen Bullard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Bullard of Wray, Colorado, and Willis H. Badley, son of Harry W. Badley of Salina, Kansas, were married in a single-ring ceremony at the Methodist Church in Wray on December 7, the Reverend Willis Wisehart officiating. They are making their home in Thornton, Colorado.

Ando-Nagaoka

Kuniko Nagaoka and Y. Ando were married September 15, 1957, in Hong Kong, where they are making their home. The bride was the first Japanese national to be baptized into the Reorganized Church in Japan. The groom is Consul General of Japan in Hong Kong. Their address is 24 Po Shan Road, Hong Kong.

Essig-Hughes

Margaret Hughes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. D. Hughes of Atherton, Missouri, was married to Edward Essig, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ammon Essig of Independence, Missouri, on December 26 at the Reorganized Church in Atherton. Elder D. R. Hughes, grandfather of the bride, and Elder Ammon Essig, father of the groom, officiated.

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Cavitt announce the birth of a daughter (name not given), born January 7. Mrs. Cavitt is the former Patricia Schmidt. Mr. Cavitt is a freshman at Graceland College.

Pvt. and Mrs. Donald Pement (address not given) announce the birth of a daughter, Karon Lee, born December 25. Mrs. Pement is the former Sharon Burton.

Mr. and Mrs. Cedric H. Hougas of Eau Gallie, Florida, became the parents of a son, Gerald Franklin, on May 14, 1957. He was blessed on December 29 at Lee's Summit, Missouri, by Elder A. G. Hougas and Elder W. J. McQueen.

Mr. and Mrs. Don S. Skinner of Independence, Missouri, became the parents of a daughter, Deanna Lee, on October 31. She was blessed on December 1 at Walnut Park Church in Independence by Elder O. E. Slayton and Elder Herbert Lively. Mrs. Skinner is the former Kay Oeser. Both parents attended Graceland College.

Mr. and Mrs. William E. Monsees of Independence, Missouri, became the parents of a daughter, Jodie Elizabeth, on October 8, 1957. She was blessed at Second Church in Independence on February 12 by Elder Roy E. Settles and Elder Robert W. Baker. Mrs. Monsees is the former Barbara Jo Simons of Kansas City, Missouri.

Mr. and Mrs. Dale F. Ward of Lamoni, Iowa, became the parents of a son, Grant Emerson, on October 13. He was blessed on December 22 at Northeast Chapel in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, by Elder Gerhard Queendenfeld, assisted by Elder Samuel Worrell. Mrs. Ward, the former Sandra Jeanne Dymond, is a graduate of Graceland College, class of '56. Mr. Ward is currently enrolled as a junior in Graceland's religion curriculum.

Mr. and Mrs. Newton Crabb (address not given) became the parents of a son, Michael Thomas, on August 29, 1957. He was blessed on November 3 by Elder Wendell Van Tuyt, assisted by Elder D. R. Hughes.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hall of Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, became the parents of a son, Kelvin Warner, on December 17. Mrs. Hall is the former Mildred Moore of Atherton, Missouri.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter T. Powers of Torrance, California, became the parents of a son, Larry Curtis, on July 11, 1957. He was blessed on October 6 by his uncle, Elder Wilfred W. Powers, assisted by Elder Bill Hall. Both parents attended Graceland College in 1947. Mrs. Powers is the former Aileen Ward.

DEATHS

ROSECRANS.—Rance Elmer, was born September 7, 1914, in Wager Township, North Dakota, and died November 29, 1957, at Towner, North Dakota. He was baptized into the Reorganized Church at the age of eighteen. On November 22, 1948, he was married to Viola Lehmann, who survives him.

Besides his wife he leaves three children; Arnold, Delores, and Larry; his parents; three sisters; and one brother. Elder Gordon K. Wheeler conducted the funeral service. Burial was at Towner.

SWANSON.—Charles Cannon, was born December 15, 1893, at Foristell, Missouri, and died January 4, 1958, at St. Charles, Missouri. He had been a member of the Reorganized Church since November 6, 1910. His wife, the former Bernadine Duvall, preceded him in death in 1936.

He is survived by a sister, Lovie Trask of St. Charles, and a brother, Hugh Swanson of Jacksonville, Florida. Funeral services were held at the Reorganized Church in St. Charles, Elder James Myers and Elder Charles Sappington officiating. Interment was in the Oak Grove Cemetery at St. Charles.

LEWIS.—Thomas Hopkins, was born December 30, 1889, in Kirksville, Iowa, and died October 3, 1957, in Fort Worth, Texas. He became a member of the Reorganized Church when he was eight years old and in 1939 was ordained to the office of deacon. He was a brickmason by trade and worked for Consolidated Chemical Industries.

He is survived by his wife, Elizabeth; a daughter, Mrs. Margaret L. Hill of Fort Worth; a sister, Mrs. Jeanne Alexander of Ottumwa, Iowa; a brother, John O. Lewis of Tulsa, Oklahoma; and six grandchildren. Seventy Z. Z. Renfro and Elder Earl M. Moore conducted the funeral service in Fort Worth.

We're on the Air . . .

STATE AND CITY	CALL LETTERS	DIAL READING	DAY AND TIME
ALABAMA, Atmore	WATM	1580	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
ALABAMA, Evergreen	WBLO	1470	Sunday, 9:00 a.m.
ARKANSAS, Jonesboro	KNEA	970	Sunday, 9:00 a.m.
CALIFORNIA, Wasco	KWSO	1050	Sunday, 7:15 a.m.
COLORADO, Durango	KIUP	930	Sunday, 9:45 a.m.
COLORADO, Montrose	KUBC	1260	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
FLORIDA, Orlando	WLOF	950	Sunday, 7:45 a.m.
IDAHO, Sand Point	KSPT	1400	Sunday, 6:15 p.m.
ILLINOIS, Marion	WGGH	1150	Sunday, 10:00 a.m.
ILLINOIS, Moline	WQUA	1230	Sunday, 8:15 a.m.
ILLINOIS, Mt. Vernon	WMIX	(FM 94.1) 940	Sunday, 12:15 p.m.
KANSAS, Concordia	KFRM	550	Sunday, 8:30 a.m.
MICHIGAN, Bad Axe	WLEW	1340	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
MICHIGAN, Flint	WMRP	1570	Friday, 10:00 a.m.
MICHIGAN, Houghton Lake	WHGR	1290	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
MINNESOTA, Detroit Lakes	KDLM	1360	Sunday, 8:45 a.m.
MISSOURI, Fulton	KPAL	900	Sunday, 8:15 a.m.
MISSOURI, Kansas City	KMBC	980	Sunday, 8:30 a.m.
NEW MEXICO, Clovis	KCLV	1240	Sunday, 7:45 a.m.
NEW YORK, Hornell	WVWH	1320	Sunday, 10:30 a.m.
NORTH DAKOTA, Valley City	KOVC	1490	Sunday, 6:00 p.m.
OHIO, New Philadelphia	WJER	1450	Sunday, 8:30 p.m.
ONTARIO, Guelph	CJOY	1450	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
OREGON, Lakeview	KQIK	1230	Sunday, 2:00 p.m.
PENNSYLVANIA, Charleroi	WESA	940	Sunday, 8:30 a.m.
TENNESSEE, Paris	WTTP	710	Sunday, 7:45 a.m.
WASHINGTON, Vancouver	KHFS	1150	Sunday, 8:30 a.m.
WEST VIRGINIA, Parkersburg	WCEF	1050	Sunday, 12:05 p.m.
WISCONSIN, Richland Center	WRCO	1450	Sunday, 8:15 a.m.

And Finally...

AUDITORIUM VISITORS

Visitors who come from all parts of the nation should be advised to seek the help of the guides provided for their benefit. If guides are away conducting other parties, the visitors should wait, for they will return in a few minutes.

This is important while construction is going on, for wandering visitors can get in the way and run into danger that guides would help them to avoid.

Besides, the guides have keys to show visitors the Council Chamber, the Music Room, and the Museum—all very important points on the tour. The visitors cannot see these places without aid. The guides are also well informed, and visitors will know far more if they wait for a conducted tour.

L. J. L.

YOU HAVE TO PLAY IT

We defend religion too much. Vital religion, like good music, needs no defense but rendition. A wrangling controversy in support of religion is precisely as if members of an orchestra should beat folks over the head with their violins to prove that music is beautiful. But such procedure is no way to prove that music is beautiful. Play it!

—Fosdick, N. C. Churchman

WHAT WILL HAPPEN

If all the sleeping folks will wake up,
And all the lukewarm folks will fire up,
And all dishonest folks will 'fess up,
And all disgruntled folks will sweeten up,
And all discouraged folks will cheer up,
And all depressed folks will look up,
And all estranged folks will make up,
And all true soldiers will stand up,
Then we can have a revival.

—Exchange

Contents

EDITORIAL AND OFFICIAL

The Bishopric Issue, by Israel A. Smith	3
Spiritual Aspects of Temporalities, by the Presiding Bishopric	3
Official	2
Across the Desk	2

FEATURE ARTICLES

Many Men, Many Jobs, by Roger Yarrington	4
Historical Sketch of the Presiding Bishopric, by Chris B. Hartshorn	6
The Order of Bishops, by Chris B. Hartshorn	7
Accounting and Compromising, by Chris B. Hartshorn	8
The Accounting Department, by W. E. Timms	9
Research, Analysis, and Management, by Paul A. Wellington	10
The Central Development Association, by Paul A. Wellington	11
Your Tithesayers' Service Department, by Paul A. Wellington	12
A Talk with Bishop DeLapp, by Roger Yarrington	14
Houses of Worship Revolving Fund Program, by H. L. Livingston	15
Financial Trends, by W. N. Johnson	17
Managing 8,000 Acres, by Roger Yarrington	18
Ministry to the Poor and Needy, by Roger Yarrington	20

SPECIAL COLUMNS

Bulletin Board	23
And Finally	24

Clifford R. Craven
305 Nichols,
Lee's Summit, Missouri

65444
12-57
h

Notice

Herald House is in the process of installing modernized automatic addressing equipment which is designed to increase the speed and efficiency of addressing magazines.

During the change-over, however, which involves the making of more than 50,000 new addressograph plates, a certain amount of slow down is unavoidable.

We solicit your patience during the next two months.

PROXIMITY COUNTS

Seems there was a time when God, Satan, and the angels were functioning more directly among men. Some people think that now the Devil is showing up bigger than ever in the affairs of the people, and God and the angels are carrying on by remote control. The remote-control belief usually leads to a no-control belief. Some seem to think that they can live so far out of God's control that they will be free from the attacks of Satan. They have not learned that the only way they can escape him is to live close to God.

—"Worthwhile," D. H. Schmidt

LIFE

I was born in neutral; I can choose what gear I will shift into. I can either try always to rush away in high, and frequently stall my machine, or cultivate the meekness to start in low and be sure.

—Gardner Hunting

AS EXPECTED

Blessed is he who expects nothing, for he shall not be disappointed.

—Alexander Pope

our newest church book

Whosoever Repenteth

by
L. Wayne
Updike

$1.75

For all who are searching for an understanding of the basic principle leading to salvation—repentance. Six brief lectures presented in 1957 by Brother Updike to the Melchisedec priesthood in the Center Stake of Zion.

Elder Updike has endeavored to make a simple, straightforward analysis of the subject. Readers will find the chapters packed with illustrations which bring an insight into the fundamental of repentance. Herald House

Shipping charges extra. If you live in Missouri, add 2% sales tax.

Box 477
Independence, Missouri
Box 382
Guelph, Ontario, Canada

SAINTS' HERALD

Volume 105 / February 3, 1958 / Number 5

PRESIDENT
ISRAEL A. SMITH

Eighty-second birthday
February 2

A Leo Stern Photo

www.LatterDayTruth.org

Photo by Audio-Visual Department

Seats Immediate Goal in Auditorium Completion Program

S EATING EQUIPMENT FOR the General Conference Chamber will be a specific item of emphasis as the church observes Auditorium Day on Sunday, March 9. Appeals to members to "buy a seat" have been highlighted by a poster which should already be displayed on bulletin boards in all churches.

It is heartwarming to note the widespread response to this appeal. Before the official announcement was prepared, word of the need got around the Auditorium. Without even a suggestion from church authorities, some employees at headquarters posted a paper on the bulletin board asking workers to sign up if they were willing to buy a seat through a payroll deduction plan. Fifteen signed the first day. It is anticipated that such interest will be manifested throughout the church and that many will be willing to contribute the thirty dollars needed to purchase and install a seat.

Although the money is not yet available for this part of the World Headquarters Building completion project, the contract for the seats has been signed. It was necessary to negotiate the contract because other work in the chamber, such as installing the studs for fastening seats and determining location of floor ventilators, required the prior planning. The amount of the contract is approximately $175,000.

The seats will be upholstered in a neutral colored material, and each row will have a wooden pew end which will add materially to the beauty and dignity of the room. These will be finished in walnut, as will the backs and armrests on the chairs.

There are several reasons why haste is desirable in this phase of the completion program. Not the least important is the fact that the contract has an escalator clause to cover cost increases by the seating company. Equally pertinent is the intangible psychological factor; all our General Conference delegates and visitors will appreciate having the new seats in the beautiful chamber when they gather in October. This is possible if adequate funds are on hand by May 1.

While seating is the prominent part of the present drive, it is certainly not the only phase requiring support. Actually, a total of more than $237,000 is needed to pay for other important features such as the organ, a badly needed elevator, and the ceiling for the lower auditorium. The cost of the seats is included in the above amount.

It may seem unimportant to many to give attention to the construction of a lower auditorium ceiling. Actually, it is of extreme importance because only will there be proper acoustical and other benefits in the Conference chamber when the work is done underneath.

Members of the church all over the world will have an opportunity to share in the fund drive in the months ahead through the Auditorium Day offerings, continued use of the Auditorium dime cards, Auditorium offerings in the duplex envelopes, and other offerings especially directed to Auditorium construction.

Authors in This Issue

Al Dickson (page 5), elder, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania
 Delbert J. Cory (page 8) Ensign, U. S. Navy
 Pearl Wilcox (page 9), Independence, Missouri
 M. Iola Tordoff, R.N. (page 12) Independence, Missouri
 Aleta Runkle (page 14), Independence, Missouri
 Richard Lancaster (page 15), Director of Youth Division
 Leslie W. Kohlman (page 17), bishop of Lamoni Stake

The Product Is Hope

THE APOSTLE PAUL SAYS that we are saved by hope (Romans 8: 24). He centers this hope in the Lord Jesus Christ (I Timothy 1: 1), and has confidence that this hope abides in those who put their trust in God (I Corinthians 13: 13). Peter rejoiced that the hope of the Saints is a lively thing (I Peter 1: 3). John saw it as sound motivation for a life of purity and faith (I John 3: 3). In the past few months I have found myself reflecting frequently on the sure and abiding hope of these men who lived in an age, like ours, which was full of evil portent. These reflections sent me back among my notes to a clipping from the Saturday Review of Literature for January 10, 1953.

This article tells that on Monday, December 22, 1952, the Court of Special Sessions in Brooklyn considered the case of Harry G. Purvis, a businessman charged with having violated a local ordinance. Atop Mr. Purvis's factory in Brooklyn was a large sign calling for world peace through world federation. The ordinance forbids advertising signs in his particular vicinity except as they might advertise the firm's own name or products available on the premises. Mr. Norman Cousins, editor of the Saturday Review, was called as the principal witness for the defendant. My interest is not in the case itself, nor in world federation as a means of achieving world peace, but in the statement of Mr. Cousins, published in the Saturday Review and containing the following:

Mr. Purvis has a product on his premises, your honor. His product is hope. His product is apparently so rare today that it can hardly be recognized for what it is. Hope, like conscience, may have its pains, but nothing is more essential to human existence. Nothing can better yield the precise ingredients for the making of a better tomorrow than hope. Tennyson tells us that there are "mighty hopes that make us men" and Thomas Fuller that "we are as great as our hopes." Each language has its proverbs which place hope close to the center of the gifts that are uniquely human.

Mr. Purvis' particular hope, your honor, is that his neighbors in Brooklyn, and indeed his neighbors throughout the world, may live productive and free lives. He hopes that war and the causes of war can be brought under control. He hopes that this good earth can be made to serve the ends of man, rather than become parched and clotted with human blood . . .

Mr. Purvis' hopes are not enfeebled because of the probability that Russia might not respond to American leadership on such a level. Mr. Purvis knows that our best chance of reaching the people behind the Curtain is to hold up an idea so vital, so strong, as to start a ground swell of potentially volcanic force. For even should this big idea be rejected time and again, the very persistence with which we advance it will serve to bind together the preponderance of the world's peoples.

These hopes, your honor, can be powerful things once they are awakened in the minds of enough men. Peace—meaningful peace, purposeful peace, vital peace—constitutes the essence of the product behind Mr. Purvis' sign.*

Thank God for men like Harry Purvis and Norman Cousins and others of their kind who will not yield to the despair of our times. The Saints, in particular, have every reason to be the Messengers of Hope. Their hope is well grounded in the nature of God himself.

* Reprinted by permission of Norman Cousins and the Saturday Review, issue of January 10, 1953.

Foolish Arguments

It is interesting to pass by church school classes and hear what is being discussed. Sometimes zealous ones monopolize the floor, while the class and teacher wait helplessly for them to finish.

Has it been noticed that when arguments and contentions develop, the class is always smaller the next Sunday? Thus people are lost, sometimes to the class, and sometimes to the church.

Paul wrote to Timothy (II, 2: 23), "Foolish and unlearned questions avoid, knowing that they do engender strifes."

An argument once developed in a large church school class of men. Three members contended for their views. In a few weeks the class was gone, and only the three remained. The three men, having no audience, lost interest in the discussion. They probably never thought to blame themselves for the destruction of a fine church school class.

Official

Inquiry

We have letters from a few members of the church stating that certain parties, apparently also members, are writing letters and supplying them with printed propaganda in advocacy of nudism. We desire to learn if others have been receiving letters or literature or both which are promoting this movement.

THE FIRST PRESIDENCY

C. L. Olson to Tahiti

Elder C. L. Olson, assistant to the Presiding Bishopric, has been assigned to go to French Oceania to superintend the construction of a new church in Papeete, Tahiti. While there he will give attention to certain legal matters affecting the work of the church in the mission. Brother Olson will leave during the latter part of April and will arrive in Tahiti about the same time as Apostle C. R. Hield. He is expected to remain there for about four months, returning about September 1, 1958.

THE FIRST PRESIDENCY

By Israel A. Smith

Resignation of Banta

Elder Fred Banta has submitted his resignation as President of the San Francisco Bay District in order to prepare for his appointment to the Scandinavian Mission. In consultation with the Apostle in the field, Elder Reed M. Holmes, Elder Edward P. Buckley, 127 Huron, San Mateo, California, has been appointed to succeed Brother Banta subject to the action of the next District Conference.

Brother Banta has given good service in the district and this is warmly appreciated. We feel fortunate that Brother Buckley is available to serve, and that he is willing to do so. For him we ask the support of all who have to do with the affairs of the district.

THE FIRST PRESIDENCY

By F. Henry Edwards

Across the Desk

OF THE FIRST PRESIDENCY

Material available for the blind is being steadily augmented. This is being done in the Department of Religious Education under the specific direction of Sister Thelona Stevens. Brother Cole reports:

Through gifts and the diligent work of several dedicated Braillists, directed by Sister Thelona Stevens, the library for the blind has made a phenomenal growth since the summer of 1955. At that time the library for the blind contained the Book of Mormon, The Voice of Warning, and two tracts, totaling in all twenty volumes. Since then, sixty-nine volumes have been added to the library, which include the Doctrine and Covenants, the Bible, Emma Smith: the Elect Lady, selections from Stories That Live, and numerous tracts. Various other materials are now being transcribed. The library also has the complete Book of Mormon on talking-book records.

In addition to these materials, fifty copies each of the Book of Mormon

Quotation Teacher and the Bible Quotation Teacher have been produced and distributed to the blind. Two blind children regularly receive their church school lessons and some stories in Braille. This year one hundred and seventy-five Brailled calendars were presented to the blind in the name of the church.

Elder Clifford A. Cole writes as follows concerning a major problem confronting his department and other departments in field work:

Our greatest need is for the development of leadership on the stake, district, and branch levels. Materials developed by the Department are important in the educational work of the church. It is to be remembered, however, that the eventual success or failure of religious education in the church is dependent upon the local branches and congregations. Our greatest problem is finding qualified personnel who can and will lead and administer the educational activities of the church effectively. Wherever we are able to find adequate leadership, the educational work moves forward stably and with continuous success. Where leadership is insufficient, the work languishes.

In the past our department has conducted many workshops and institutes in various places in the church. These have been helpful. In many instances the progress has been even greater than we had any right to expect, but, in general, such institutes are not effective unless administrative officers and other stake and district workers who have continuous contacts in the branches are able to follow through. When such follow-through is not provided, the values of such institutes are more or less transient. For this reason we are anxious that the limited resources of our department be utilized in those places where sufficient preparation and forethought have been made to allow for effective institute training, and where the benefits accruing from the institute will be integrated into the educational structure of the local church. It would be of tremendous value to have both appointee and non-appointee personnel in our districts and stakes working closely with the educational activities to increase their effectiveness and to make them fit in as an integrated part of the total branch structure.

The Saints' Herald

Vol. 105 February 3, 1958 No. 5

EDITORS: The First Presidency: Israel A. Smith, F. Henry Edwards, W. Wallace Smith. ASSISTANTS: Chris B. Hartshorn, Managing Editor; Naomi Russell, Assistant Editor; Paul A. Wellington, Assistant Editor; Roger Yarrington, Assistant Editor; Audrey Stubbart, Copy Editor; and Leonard J. Lea, Contributing Editor. BUSINESS MANAGER, Kenneth L. Grabam.

The Saints' Herald is the official publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, with headquarters at The Auditorium, Independence, Missouri, and is issued through the offices of Herald Publishing House, 103 South Osage Street, Independence, Missouri.

Herald editors are not responsible for the views and opinions expressed in articles or communications other than those of editorial authorship.

Entered as second-class matter at the post office at Independence, Missouri, under Act of March 3, 1879. Issued weekly at Independence, Missouri, except daily during the biennial General Conference. Price, $4.00 per year in advance in the U.S.A., its territories and possessions; Canada, $4.25 per year; other countries, $5.00 per year. Notice of a change of address must be given three weeks ahead of the date that it is to become effective. Accepted for mailing at the special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917, authorized July 21, 1921. Printed in the United States of America.

By Al Dickson

The Conditions

of Security in Christ

In a previous article titled "Personal Salvation" we considered salvation from the "pit" as a "present" possession of the individual member of our church. We endeavored to set forth what others before us have done to enter the gate to the "strait and narrow path which leads to life eternal"¹ and thus be saved "from" hell. We shall now attempt to examine that which is required of the believer once he is within the sheepfold—or, specifically, the conditions of security in Christ.

An Old Device

To separate God's promises of gifts and blessings from his conditions of their fulfillment has been the work of Satan ever since the day he spoke to Eve "by the mouth of the serpent." Credulous notions of security were indulged in the midst of corruption and violence by the antediluvians.² The Zoramites of the American aborigines, "a wicked and perverse people," furnish another illustration.³ Wherever we turn in Scripture or in church history—to Israel of the Exodus, to both Israel and Judah of the captivities, to the Nephites and Lamanites, to the Pharisees, Sadducees, Herodians, and Samaritans, to the Apostolic Church of the early Christian centuries, to the church of the Dark Ages, and to the post-Reformation churches—we find abundant evidences of the folly of slighting the Lord's conditions of security in him. "O foolish Galatians, who hath bewitched you, that ye should not obey the truth?"

Extreme Views

We have already affirmed (Article I) that we are saved by God from hell gratuitously, no works of merit whatever being involved. But is salvation—"the greatest of all the gifts of God"⁴—conditional? If so, what are God's conditions? It is on this point also, as well as on entrance requirements, that we encounter extreme views in the doctrines and creeds of Christendom.

There are those who so emphasize all the conditions of security that there doesn't seem to be any such thing as security for the believer. No one can ever know—this side of the grave—whether he is either saved or lost. Others so emphasize security that there are no conditions except a "belief" that is unrelated to conduct. No one need be in doubt of his salvation, for moral conduct subsequent to "accepting Christ" has nothing to do with salvation. Believers in both kinds are legion, and they are as steadfast and unmovable as any Sadducee. They will accept only that which confirms what they now believe.

This is the fruit of being catechized in youth or indoctrinated during spiritual immaturity.

Modern Illustrations

Millions of present-day followers of our Lord Jesus Christ hold to these extreme views, from Roman Catholicism with security based on its "do" doctrine to "dispensationalism" with security based on its "done" doctrine. Other multitudes are adhering to beliefs somewhere in between, closer to reality in religion.

Roman Catholicism	Dispensationalism
All
* <-----*-----> *
Truth
"Do" this don't "do" that	It's all "done" for us

Roman Catholicism

From Father McGuire's New Baltimore Catechism and Mass, No. 1, Official Revised Edition, I quote:

72. Q. Which is the one true Church established by Christ?
A. The one true Church established by Christ is the Catholic Church [page 46].
- VII. Q. How can we prove that the only true Church of Christ is the Catholic Church?

A. We can prove that the only true Church of Christ is the Catholic Church, because:

- first*, only the Catholic Church possesses the marks of the Church established by Christ, that is, unity, holiness, catholicity, and apostolicity;
second, the history of the Catholic Church gives evidence of miraculous strength, permanence, and unchangeableness, thus showing the world that it is under the special protection of God [page 132].

75. Q. Are all obliged to belong to the Catholic Church in order to be saved?
A. All are obliged to belong to the Catholic Church in some way, in order to be saved [page 47].

As to their claim that the Catholic Church is "the one, true Church outside of which salvation is unattainable," Catholics say:

In brief, "outside the Church, no salvation" must be understood as applying to those adults who remain outside the Catholic Church in deliberately sinful opposition to the known truth that the Church was established by Christ as a necessary means of their salvation. . . . It most certainly does not mean that Catholics believe mere membership in the Catholic Church is positive and un-failing assurance that all Catholics will be saved.—Why the Catholic Church Says "Investigate," page 28.

And from A Catechism of Christian Doctrine, Prepared and Enjoined by Order of the Third Plenary Council of Baltimore (Catechism No. 2) I quote:

310. Q. Is it enough to belong to God's Church in order to be saved?
A. It is not enough to belong to the Church in order to be saved, but we must also keep the commandments of God and of the Church.
313. Q. Which are the commandments of God?
A. The commandments of God are these ten: (then follows the Decalogue, with questions and answers)
389. Q. Which are the chief commandments of the Church?
A. The chief commandments of the Church are six:
1. To hear Mass on Sundays and holydays of obligation.
 2. To fast and abstain on days appointed.
 3. To confess at least once a year.
 4. To receive the Holy Eucharist during the Easter time.
 5. To contribute to the support of our pastors.
 6. Not to marry persons who are not Catholics, or who are related to us within the third degree of kindred, nor privately without witnesses, nor to solemnize marriage at forbidden times.

In the Catholic Encyclopedia, Volume IV, article on "Conversion," page 347, is this statement:

To the Church it alone belongs to lay down the conditions for reception and to inquire into the interior dispositions of him who presents himself for admission into her bosom. The conditions are knowledge and profession of the Catholic Faith, and the resolve to live in accordance with it.

When we add to the foregoing the exacting requirements in the other catechisms (Kinkead's "Baltimore Series" lists six numbers 00, 0, 1, 2, 3 and 4)—with their "Seven Sacraments" and many important doctrines based on the Apocrypha and ecclesiastical traditions "given to the Church only by word of mouth and not through the Bible," but which "must be believed as firmly as the Bible because it also contains the word of God" (McGuire's Official Revised Edition, page 133)—we begin to wonder about the security of our Catholic friends. There is much to believe and to resolve to live by, much to "do" to be saved.

Dispensationalism

For details on "dispensationalism" let us turn to what is perhaps the most authoritative and reliable source of information—the Scofield Bible, edited by Dr. C. I. Scofield and his staff of consulting editors.

In the introduction we are told, "The Dispensations are distinguished, exhibiting the majestic, progressive order of the divine dealings of God with humanity, 'the increasing purpose' which runs through and links together the ages, from the beginning of the life of man to the end in eternity." Dr. Scofield disclaims originality for the material submitted. "Other men have labored," and he has "but entered into their labors." He says, "The winnowed and attested results of this half-century of Bible study are embodied in the notes, summaries, and definitions of this edition." But he does acknowledge sole responsibility for the "final form of notes and definitions."

Full Salvation Free— Wholly without Works

In his footnote on Romans 1:16, we find this statement:

Salvation is the great inclusive word of the Gospel, gathering into itself all the redemptive acts and processes: as justification, redemption, grace, propitiation, imputation, forgiveness, sanctification, and glorification. Salvation is in three tenses: (1) The believer has been saved from the guilt and penalty of sin . . . and is safe. (2) The believer is being saved from the habit and dominion of sin . . . (3) The believer is to be saved in the sense of entire conformity to Christ. . . . Salvation is by grace through faith, is a free gift, and wholly without works.

And on Jude 1, he tells us:

Assurance is the believer's full conviction that, through the work of Christ alone, received by faith, he is in possession of a salvation in which he will be eternally kept, and this assurance rests only upon the Scripture promises to him who believes.

By this we are to understand that all these "acts and processes" in all "three tenses," including "entire conformity to Christ," are a "free gift" and "wholly without works." It is all "done" for us by Christ (Compare John 19:30). We have but to receive it by faith. "The theme of Romans is 'the Gospel of God.'" In it "a redemption is revealed as wide as the need, upon the alone condition of faith" (Scofield, "Introduction to Roman Epistle").

Grace versus Law

On Galatians 1:6 Dr. Scofield says,

The test of the Gospel is grace. If the message excludes grace or mingles law with grace as the means either of justification or sanctification (Galatians 2:21; 3:1-3) or denies the fact or guilt of sin which alone gives grace its occasion and opportunity, it is "another" gospel, and the preacher of it is under the anathema of God (vs. 8, 9).

But the Scriptures cited in this "test" in Galatians clearly refer in their context to the Mosaic Law and not to any law or all law, as some would suppose. Because we are not at present under the Mosaic law⁵ it does not follow that we are therefore under no law at all. Grace is not a lawless innovation. Paul said, "To them that are without law, as without law, (being not without law to God, but under the law to Christ,) that I might gain them that are without law"⁶ Several laws are mentioned in the New Testament. Dr. Scofield refers to some of them in his notes on Romans 7:21:

Six "laws" are to be distinguished in Romans: The law of Moses, which condemns (3:19); "law" as a principle (3:21); the law of faith, which excludes selfrighteousness (3:27); the law of sin in the members, which is victorious over the law of the mind (7:21, 23, 25); the law of the mind, which consents to the law of Moses but cannot do it because of the law of sin in the members (7:16, 23); and the "law of the Spirit," having power to deliver the believer from the law of sin which is in the members, and his conscience from condemnation by the Mosaic law (7:14).

These "laws" are not without their bindings or conditions, as well as their effects or results. Even faith has a "law,"⁷ and there are definite "steps of that faith."⁸ There is an "obedience of faith"⁹ in which we must "continue"¹⁰ or make "shipwreck"¹¹ and have "damnation."¹² Our "glorious liberty"¹³ also has its "law" or requirements,¹⁴ and it is by this "law" that we shall be judged.¹⁵

Unbearable Yoke—No Yoke

Roman Catholicism would put us under the many exacting laws of that church. Dispensationalism would have us believe that being now under grace we are therefore under no law except "the new 'law of Christ' (which) is the divine love. . . . It is . . . 'the law of liberty' . . . in contrast with the external law of Moses" (Compare II John 5).

But this "divine love" is not lawless or without any requirements or conditions.

"This is love, that we walk after his commandments."¹⁶ As faith has its steps,¹⁷ even so love has its walk.

"This is the love of God, that we keep his commandments."¹⁸ However small or large the measure of this love, it is perfected in us by keeping God's word.¹⁹ And it is by keeping his commandments that we abide in his love.²⁰

"I am of Paul . . . and I of Christ"

We are told by Dr. Scofield ("Introduction to the Four Gospels") that "the Sermon on the Mount is law, not grace." Christ "was 'made under the law' (Galatians 4:4) and was a 'minister of the circumcision' (Romans 15:8). . . . Except, therefore, a strong legal and Jewish coloring up to the cross. . . . The doctrines of grace are to be sought in the Epistles, not in the Gospels."

On Matthew 5:2 he says: "Under the law of the kingdom . . . no one may hope for forgiveness who has not first forgiven (Matthew 6:12, 14, 15). Under grace the Christian is exhorted to forgive because he is already forgiven (Ephesians 4:30-32)." And on Luke 11:1: "Used as a form, the Lord's Prayer is, dispensationally, upon legal, not church ground . . . it makes human forgiveness, as under the law it must, the condition of divine forgiveness; an order which grace exactly reverses (Compare Ephesians 4:32)." This is to say, in substance, that all Scripture from Malachi 4:6 to the Cross, in all Four Gospels, is "legal," and as such dispensationally inapplicable to our day of grace! Evidently Satan will stop at nothing to make the word of Christ of "none effect."²¹

Elder Al Dickson

Once Saved—Always Saved

It is only natural that many would find scope for their imagination in this kind of "dividing the word of truth," coming as it does from what seems to be an authoritative source. Let us sample just one lesser light in "dispensationalism." The following quotations are from The Glories of Grace by R. E. Neighbor (Bible Truth Depot, Swengel, Pennsylvania, Union Gospel Press Publications):

1. It is impossible for one of God's children to be lost.—page 22.
2. The "second birth" joins us to the last Adam as vitally as the "first birth" joins us to the first Adam. Once born into the human family we cannot lose our human identity; once born into the heavenly family we cannot lose our divine identity.—page 16.
3. A child of God may blackslide, but . . . cannot be "unborn."—page 22.
4. A believer who has passed out of death and into a life everlasting cannot come into judgment—he cannot pass out of life and into death and the judgment.—page 16.
5. The covenant of grace is not conditioned on man's obedience.—page 34.
6. The saved are safe because salvation is the free gift of God. A gift not dependent upon what the sinner is or does—a gift demanding no subsequent specialties to retain it . . . The only condition to its reception is faith. There are no conditions as to its continuance.—page 15.
7. Your salvation is not your care, but His. Your salvation is not your works, but His.—page 18.
8. . . . it is not your holding out, but His holding on; not your perseverance, but His preservation.—page 18.
9. Salvation is of grace and the keeping is also of grace.—page 14.
10. Does the Holy Spirit minimize the grace of God by saying: "God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten son, that whosoever believeth in him [and keeps faithful, or keeps on believing, or lives right, or pays his debts, or keeps the law, etc.] should not perish, but have everlasting life"?—page 14.
11. Does the Holy Spirit say: "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved, providing thou shalt hold out faithful unto the end"?—page 14.

12. Surely salvation does not save a sinner from his sins, merely to suspend him by the easily broken rope of his own doings over a gaping hell.—page 15.
13. The saved are safe because the gift of God is eternal life. A life that one possesses today and loses tomorrow is not eternal.—pages 15, 16.
14. The believer's life is sealed by the Holy Spirit . . . This sealing is until—until—until the redemption of the purchased possession.—page 17.
15. If a man is saved by grace he cannot be kept saved by "works." If salvation has its beginning "in the Spirit" its completion is not made possible "in the flesh."—page 13.

"I would not have you ignorant, brethren"

Such is some of the teaching of "dispensationalism," and it has its appeal for multitudes of believers. But the security of a child of God cannot be established by reasonings or by dispensationally excluding all the God-given requirements of that security except "the alone condition of faith." This is the bias of easy religion, the blind spot in their "panoramic view of the whole Bible." Just how blind is manifest in the biased treatment of certain Hebrew and Greek words, phrases, and clauses in the translations and versions of the Pauline, Petrine, and Johannine Epistles that obviously to violence to their doctrinal system.

"As a dispensation," says Dr. Scofield (on John 1: 17), "grace begins with the death and resurrection of Christ." Well, then, we have Christ's own commission to the apostles after his resurrection. "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost; teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world. Amen."²²

The Truth

Those who would be saved by Christ must believe in him,²³ receive him,²⁴ and follow him,²⁵ by obeying him.²⁶ Salvation from hell is by God, through the required application of the principles and ordinances²⁷ of the gospel restored in its fullness, is a free gift,²⁸ and is wholly without meritorious works.²⁹ This gift, however, is conditional upon the present obedience (Appendix I) of the believer, who must continue to exercise saving faith,³⁰ which works by love,³¹ and walk in that love by keeping the commandments,³² not of the Law of Moses which has been fulfilled and done away,³³ but of the new law of Christ.³⁴

A child of God may sin; does sin³⁵ occasionally or often, especially during the early stage of sanctification,³⁶ but ample provision has been made for this in the atonement of Christ.³⁷ However, in sinning there is always grave danger of being cut off³⁸ from both fellowship and relationship (Appendix II). Meanwhile, for these sins he is chastened³⁹ as sorely as is necessary to teach him obedience.⁴⁰ The chastening that purges facilitates forgiveness,⁴¹ and if he endures it, God deals with him as with a son.⁴²

This is not easy religion, but it is safe. It is scriptural. It is not difficult, either; for as by the grace of God we are saved, so by the same amazing grace we are enabled to do all things we really want to do.⁴³ We can say with Paul, "Thanks be unto God, which always causeth us to triumph in Christ."⁴⁴ The love of God shed abroad in our hearts by the Holy Ghost⁴⁵ moves us⁴⁶ to obey the laws of the new covenant.⁴⁷ But this obedience is "unforced." No vitiation of the believer's freedom of agency is involved. The "new creature" in Christ is not an automaton.⁴⁸ It is ever of our choosing whether to yield ourselves unto God⁴⁹ or to quench the Spirit;⁵⁰ to be good stewards of the grace of God⁵¹ or to frustrate it.⁵² And wherever there is the power to choose, there also is the responsibility for the choice made. As believers in Christ we are not less, but more, responsible to God in our new relationship.⁵³

Finally, over against the general teachings we have just considered, let us place two dispensational teachings as expressed by Dr. Scofield on Hebrews 8: 8. (1) "The new covenant secures . . . the complete oblivion of sins" . . . and (2) "The new covenant . . . secures the eternal blessedness . . . of all who believe. It is absolutely unconditional, and, since no responsibility is by it committed to man, it is final and irreversible."

Those who will "hear the law of the Lord," those who do not insist on easy religion or "smooth things,"⁵⁴ will certainly choose the word of the Lord in preference to these dispensational postulates. "Sins that are past"⁵⁵ or "old sins"⁵⁶ are forgiven and forgotten conditionally.⁵⁷

References

(Biblical references are to the King James Version unless otherwise noted.)

1. II Nephi 13: 25
2. Genesis 8: 9, I.V.
3. Alma 16: 19-94
4. Doctrine and Covenants 6: 5 e
5. Romans 6: 15
6. I Corinthians 9: 21, I.V.
7. Romans 3: 27
8. Romans 4: 12; James 2: 20-24
9. Romans 16: 26
10. Colossians 1: 23
11. I Timothy 1: 19; Appendix I
12. I Timothy 5: 12; Appendix II
13. Romans 8: 21

14. James 1: 25; Galatians 5: 1, 13; I Peter 2: 16; I Corinthians 8: 9; I Corinthians 10: 28, 29
15. James 2: 12
16. II John 6
17. Romans 4: 12
18. I John 5: 3
19. I John 2: 5
20. John 15: 10
21. Mark 7: 13
22. Matthew 28: 19, 20
23. John 3: 15-18
24. John 1: 12
25. John 10: 4, 5
26. Hebrews 5: 9
27. Hebrews 6: 1, 2; II Thessalonians 1: 8
28. John 4: 10; Romans 5: 15-18; 6: 23; Ephesians 2: 8
29. Ephesians 2: 9; II Timothy 1: 9; Titus 3: 5; Romans 3: 27; 9: 11; 11: 6
30. "Believeth" present tense, Mark 16: 16; John 5: 24; 6: 40, 47
31. Galatians 5: 6
32. See No. 16 and 18
33. II Corinthians 7: 11; Hebrews 7: 18, 19; 8: 7, 13; 10: 9, III Nephi 7: 3-6
34. Matthew 23: 20, Romans 8: 2, Galatians 6: 2, Romans 7: 24 I.V.
35. I John 1: 8
36. I Corinthians 3: 1-3
37. I John 2: 1, 2, I.V.; I John 1: 9
38. Genesis 6: 3; Romans 11: 21; II Peter 1: 10; Philippians 2: 12
39. Hebrews 12: 6
40. Doctrine and Covenants 102: 2 d
41. Doctrine and Covenants 92: 1 a
42. Hebrews 12: 7

43. II Corinthians 12: 9; Philippians 4: 13
44. II Corinthians 2: 14
45. Romans 5: 5
46. II Corinthians 5: 14
47. Hebrews 10: 16
48. Romans 6: 16; James 4: 7
49. Romans 6: 13
50. Thessalonians 5: 19
51. I Peter 4: 10
52. Galatians 2: 21
53. Luke 12: 48
54. Isaiah 30: 9, 10
55. Romans 3: 25
56. II Peter 1: 9

57. The following Appendix I gives some of the scriptural promises of God together with their concomitants specifically expressed by the conditional "if" at least eighteen times; and Appendix II shows the dire consequences of disobedience to the children of God.

Appendix I

- Hebrews 3: 14
 Hebrews 3: 6
 I John 2: 24
 I Corinthians 15: 1, 2
 Romans 11: 21, 22
 Colossians 1: 21-23
 Doctrine and Covenants 12: 3 b, 6: 5 e
 I Nephi 3: 187, 188
 I Nephi 7: 69
 II Nephi 13: 30
 Moroni 4: 95

- Romans 8: 13
 Matthew 6: 16
 I John 1: 9
 I John 1: 7
 II Peter 1: 10
 John 8: 31, 32
 Hebrews 12: 7
 II John 9-11
 I Timothy 4: 16
 Romans 8: 1
 Hebrews 5: 9
 Omni 1: 47
 Doctrine and Covenants 24: 4 b, c
 Doctrine and Covenants 81: 3 b
 Doctrine and Covenants 53: 3 c

Appendix II

- Hebrews 3: 12, 13
 Doctrine and Covenants 17: 6 d, e
 Galatians 5: 1, 2, 4
 Doctrine and Covenants 36: 10 h
 Doctrine and Covenants 56: 1 b
 Hebrews 12: 25
 John 15: 6
 I Corinthians 3: 16, 17
 Doctrine and Covenants 81: 1 c
 Doctrine and Covenants 1: 5 f, g
 Doctrine and Covenants 81: 2
 Hebrews 10: 38, 39
 Hebrews 10: 26
 Hebrews 6: 4-6
 II Peter 2: 20-22
 Doctrine and Covenants 76: 4 a, b, c
 Suggested readings,
 Mosiah 1: 33-130, 2: 1-50
 Alma 2: 27, Alma 3: 8-70

Military Service: Good or Bad for Youth?

condensed from a report by Ensign Delbert J. Cory

"Train up a child in the way he should go: and when he is old he will not depart from it." A better solution for our military morals problem could not be formulated.

Many people blame the military services for placing young men near temptation, asserting that officers fail to protect them from going astray. The reverse is true. Wherever there are military personnel, numbers of immoral persons and places of evil are attracted. It is the demand of military men that draws them. When the military moves away, the places of evil close for lack of patronage.

The United States Government has directed two major efforts toward the solution of the problem: the use of regulations and the employment of chaplains. A morals indoctrination program has been instituted by the Chaplain Corps, but these efforts come too late in the lives of many young men to save them. Their characters have been formed at home, and nobody can watch every man all the time to save him.

The blame is not properly the military's. It should go rather to the parents and the church. My own experience has brought to my attention the fact that young men, even members of churches who consider themselves to be morally proper, indulge in promiscuous sex relations in their own communities, live in "trial marriages" with women in countries to which they are sent, and consider that they have not committed adultery because they were not married. These men are morally and theologically illiterate, and the responsibility for their condition belongs to the parents and the churches of which they are members.

This is not written as a rebuke to any specific person or church but for the purpose of waking people up to the fact that the problem belongs to the people, not alone to the government, and to make people realize the cause of the difficulty so that they can take action to prevent it.

In addition to normal home and church training, which must be carried out properly, young people who are expecting to enter military service should be counseled by some member of the priesthood as to what lies ahead.

The Committee on Ministry to the Armed Forces Personnel has now prepared our own Armed Forces Manual as a guide for this purpose. The names of young people in the Armed Forces should be forwarded to the committee to permit a greater ministry to them.

Pastors should write for copies of the Manual to give to their young men and women who are entering military service.

Beyond the indictment of the Armed Forces for bad morals, there is something constructive to be said. Not enough is said about the good influences of military life which can help youths.

Many young people mature under the influence of military life. They learn order, self-control, and discipline. They are taught trades, and they learn to live in close contact with men of other places and other faiths. They have many opportunities to learn. They have an opportunity to witness for Christ by leading clean lives and speaking out against immorality in any form. They learn about other countries, become acquainted with people of other races and lands, and learn to love them. They come to realize the international responsibility of the church. They are actually receiving some training as potential missionaries, and missionary opportunities are abundant. A large number of our younger missionary leaders are ex-military men. It is because of this that the church is now standing at the brink of a great achievement in foreign missions and a great advancement toward Zion.

By Pearl Wilcox

Part I

Journeying and Reminiscing

In the Green mountains of Vermont

Pearl Wilcox

IN THE GREEN MOUNTAIN country of Vermont, almost in the very summits, God was leading and preparing a Christian family as a humble channel for receiving the restored gospel message.

It was the birthplace of the Prophet Joseph Smith, Jr. Through him the God of Israel was to restore the everlasting gospel and lay the foundation of His church in latter days.

For this reason my traveling has brought me to Vermont and the homesite of Joseph, Sr., and Lucy Mack Smith of Sharon, Windsor County, Vermont.

To reach the homesite, I left South Royalton, Vermont, followed the highway south through rugged country along the White River. The road was winding and twisting as it ascended the steep hills for several miles.

In the days before white men settled here, this was a favorite hunting ground for several tribes of Indians. Those first white explorers must have been delighted with the lovely green-cloaked mountains; the region was first called, "Verd Mont," which is a French word meaning "green mountains." Later it came to be known as Vermont. The country has an unusual combination of products: granite, marble, limestone, butter, cheese, and the noble maple trees which yield the sweetest of maple sugar.

I am reminded of Aseal Smith, father of Joseph, Sr., who came from Ipswich, Massachusetts, in 1791 and settled in South Tunbridge, Vermont. He bought one of the "gore" farms (pointed or triangular land that failed to be surveyed originally). He also bought other land and owned two or three farms. Because the Smiths were among the first white settlers on this land, the little community was known for many years as the Smith settlement. It was designated as School District Number 13, and Jesse Smith, the oldest of the eleven children, was appointed trustee. Father Aseal Smith was a man of ability. He had served as a soldier in the Revolutionary war. He held offices of trust in Ipswich and Topsfield, Massachusetts, before emigrating to Vermont. He continued to hold places of importance in Tunbridge; at various times he was moderator, selectman, grand juror, surveyor of highways, and member of the building committee.

Aseal's third son, Joseph, married Lucy Mack, a daughter of Solomon Mack of Gilham, New Hampshire, in January, 1796. They became successful farmers in South Tunbridge and remained there until the birth of three children, Alvin, Hyrum, and Sophronia.

In 1802 they rented the farm and opened a store at Randolph, Vermont. One of their business ventures was to trade merchandise in the store for ginseng root. This in turn was shipped to China, where it was greatly in demand for medicinal purposes. The agent who handled the transaction proved to be dishonest and swindled the Smiths out of their money. They had to sell their farm to pay the debts incurred with the Boston firm for merchandise.

This disaster caused Father and Mother Smith with their three children to return to farm life. They rented a farm near Sharon from Lucy's father, in either the fall of 1804 or the spring of 1805. The old Mack farm was located on the boundary line of Royalton and Sharon Townships. Joseph and Lucy rented the land that was on the Sharon side of the boundary for their home. They cultivated the land during the summer months, and in the winter months he taught school in South Royalton. In this way they gradually improved their circumstances.

From a high point in the road, known as "Patriarch Hill," I saw the old homesite. The Utah Church has built a little cottage over the site of the old home.

Most prominent to my view is a monument paralleling the front of the cottage. It is a large polished shaft of granite from the quarries of Vermont. I am told it weighs nearly one hundred tons and is fifty feet high. On closer inspection, I read the carved sunken letters:

An Examiner Photo

Hearthstone in Sharon, Vermont

*Sacred
To the memory of Joseph Smith,
The Prophet,
Born here
December 23, 1805
Martyred
Carthage, Illinois,
27th June, 1844*

On the opposite was the testimony of Joseph Smith. Around the capstone I read the quotation found in James 1: 5. This monument was placed and dedicated at the hundredth anniversary of the birth of the prophet.

As I entered the house, I saw that it was clean and artistically arranged—a token of devotion to the memory of the martyr. At his birth no bells were rung, no heralds were sent to spread the good news at this Christmas time of a baby born to become a prophet of the living God.

The center of interest in the house was the blue-gray hearthstone that the present house was designed around. Before the house was built this stone was clinging to the old cellar foundation. When the present house of 1884 was planned, the stone remained in the same place and the fireplace was constructed in the same place as the old log fireplace used by the Smiths.

As I gazed upon the hearthstone, I tried to picture the Smith family in the evenings in the glow of a pitch-knot fire and reading by the flickering light of a tallow dip. In those days if fire went out, it was rekindled by a coal from a neighboring hearth or by flint, steel, and tinder. I thought of the happiness that must have been in this home during the Christmas holiday over the birth of a son, who no doubt was being kept warm in a homemade cradle in front of the fire. When he was three years old, the Smith family moved from here.

On leaving the house I took the path that led through an orchard to the Solomon Mack homesite. I can imagine that she often, with her four children, took the same path to visit her parents.

In an isolated spot I found the foundation ruins situated not far from the right bank of "little white brook." In those days it was a clear, beautiful stream, abounding in fish, that nearly equally divided the Mack farm. A few old trees of the orchard still remain; whether they are the original or have been planted since would be hard to determine. Dimly marked on the hillside can be seen the grass covered road that formerly led from the village of Sharon past the Mack home. The old Sharon road was abandoned many years ago, and there is no approach to the old Mack homesite from the main highway.

Joseph and Lucy with their four children left their farm home in Sharon, moving back to Tunbridge where they lived for only a short time. During this period another son, Samuel, was born March 13, 1808. They then moved to Royalton, a distance of six miles south, where Ephraim was born. William was born on March 13, 1811.

Joseph, Sr., became much interested in the subject of religion. He could not join any particular sect but contended for the ancient order of faith as established by Christ. He was shown in a vision that the gospel was coming to him and his family, and they would partake of its spiritual food. From this experience Father Joseph seemed more convinced that the religions of the world were not of God. Mother Lucy had a vision, which she interpreted as meaning that her husband (the father of the prophet) would in later life receive the pure and undefiled gospel of the Son of God. Father and Mother Smith continued to receive frequent manifestations of God's loving kindness in dreams, visions, and inspirations. God had healed their little ones in answer to prayer, and they were firm believers in his watch care.

The Smiths now moved to Lebanon, New Hampshire, with their seven children. Here they remained until Catherine was born on July 8, 1812; then they moved to Norwich, Vermont. Here they rented a farm from Squire Murdock about two miles north of the village on the old Turnpike road. The first year their crops failed; yet, by selling fruit which they grew on the place, they succeeded in obtaining bread for the family. The crops the second year were as the year before, a complete failure. They planted once more, and that year an untimely frost destroyed the crops. This was the third year of crop failure, and it almost caused a famine.

Father Smith had been hearing good reports from the town of Palmyra, New York. Here wheat was raised in abundance, and employment was plentiful. He arranged his business affairs in Norwich and set out to investigate the claims made for this pioneer town of Palmyra.

Next week: Palmyra

Memorial Cottage in Vermont

(Photos on this page by author)

Question Time

Question

There is a great deal of talk in this country concerning the mark of the beast (Revelation 13: 16, 17). What is the church's concept of this? Is it to be interpreted literally?

Washington

R. A. T.

Answer

I know of no stand which the church has ever taken concerning the interpretation of the specific passage to which you refer.

Interpretation of the book of Revelation often rests upon conjecture. The wise student of the Bible should keep in mind that it stands along with other prophetic writings and therefore utilizes material found in many of them. We must examine it in the age in which it was written. To ignore this is to lose the whole perspective of it.

The people of the day of John were familiar with the prophecies of Daniel (Old Testament), II Esdras (Apocrypha), and many of the legends and traditions which came from the mythology of Rome, Greece, and Egypt. The imagery of Revelation was not obscure to the Saints of that era but had a peculiar interpretation to their own problems and hopes.

Two beasts are involved here: a beast that arose out of the sea, and a beast that arose out of the earth.

The former beast, whose power is derived from Satan (note Luke 4: 6) is described more fully in Revelation 17: 8-11. It is not a single individual but the symbol of a perditious power. Nero, the cruel emperor and persecutor who debauched a nation, was chosen to symbolize this, but his identity had to be kept hidden. The term "beast" was used to describe him, and John's description of his deeds identifies him in the revelation.

When the tide of public opinion turned against Nero, he took his own life with a dagger thrust in the throat. There were those who fostered a legend that he was still alive and would return, having taken refuge among the kingdoms of the East.

Thus we read, "one of his heads . . . were wounded to death; and his deadly wound was healed" (13: 3).

The second beast is this false prophet, a pseudo Christ, who fosters the tradition, holding up the qualities of the first beast before the people as an object of worship (see Mark 13: 22 for a parallel). Through his power to work miracles he deceives the people. He then brings them under complete subjection by a mark upon the right hand (symbol of man's strength) or in their foreheads (symbol of the mind).

The Greek word in the manuscript which is interpreted as "mark" means "an imperial stamp" such as is used on official documents.

The seriousness of receiving this mark is pointed out in Revelation 20: 4, 5 which says that those who do will not be included in the first resurrection.

Taking this in relation with all other parts of the message of the gospel of Jesus Christ, I believe we are safe to assume that the mark is not the deciding quality; rather the spiritual condition of the people is the factor—the mark of unrighteousness. The Lord once said, "I will put my law in their inward parts, and write it in their hearts" (Jeremiah 31: 33).

The warning voice of the prophet becomes clear, then, for he warns against a condition described by Paul, "some, who knowing the judgment of God, that they which commit such things are worthy of death, are inexcusable, not only do the same, but have pleasure in them that do them" (Romans 1: 32). Of the followers of false prophets, Helaman's words seem apt: "The time cometh, saith the Lord, that when ye shall cast out the righteous from among you, then shall ye be ripe for destruction" (Helaman 5: 18).

I believe this passage speaks of a basic truth: those who live saintly lives show outward signs of an inward condition (the law is "written in their hearts") while those who follow the perditious life show outward signs of an inward condition (written "in their foreheads"). To me, the mark of the beast is very literal, though it may not be some rubber stamp or tattooing needle which has been pressed upon the brow or hand of an individual. It is the mark which satanic powers write in the bodies and minds of men.

A. H. YALE

Question

The Lord's Prayer in the Inspired Version reads, "Suffer us not to be led into temptation." We say God does not lead us into temptation as the King James infers. How do we answer a nonmember who says God tempted Abraham to offer up his son?

Colorado

MRS. J. C.

Answer

It is significant that the Revised Standard Version renders this portion of Genesis 22: 1 as "God did test." The Inspired Version has a comparable rendition in "God did try." The connotation of the word "tempt" presumed in the question is identical with the thought expressed in many scriptural passages in which an adverse or unrealistic end is precipitated through deliberate deception. We find this in the case of Eve and the serpent. The same Satanic approach was made to Christ near the end of his forty-day fast in the wilderness, but Jesus clearly discerned the attempted deception. A careful reading of the story of Abraham and Isaac will reveal that no attempt was made to deceive Abraham. He was told plainly that the purpose of the journey was to offer up his son. He obeyed because God commanded it.

An attempt to appreciate the custom of the time will help us overcome a feeling of distaste here. Human sacrifice was a common practice of long duration among the Canaanite tribes. II Kings 3: 27 records such an incident. The monotheism of the Hebrew was in intense competition with the varied religious concepts of his contemporaries. This story shows that Abraham's religion was capable of prompting an extreme response. All around him he saw people offering up their children to false gods. Could his devotion to the one true God be any less? Unlike the results of temptation which always end in death and destruction, the climax here illustrates the supreme worth of humanity in the sight of God. This value is so great that man should readily give the greatest gift he is capable of giving—a gift that embodies the maximum of his understanding. When a man is willing to bear the travail of understanding, the result is not death and destruction but life and light. Hence, Abraham learned "For I desired mercy, and not sacrifice; and the knowledge of God more than burnt offerings." God's responsiveness to man under these conditions is stated in John 3: 16. Obedience to God has in the past and may in the future mean suffering temporal death, but it will lead inevitably to eternal life. In this story God delayed the first and symbolized the latter in the covenant which he made with Abraham as a result of this experience.

DUANE E. COUEY

Any sincere question from our readers will receive consideration from the editors. If it is of general interest, it will be referred to the Question Time panel, and the answer will be printed. The answers are the opinions and interpretations of the panel members signing them and do not commit the Herald nor the church.

Please keep the question short—fifty words or less should be sufficient. Address questions to Herald editors rather than to panel members. Only questions with the contributor's full name (not just initials) and address will receive attention. —Editor.

Women Who Serve Our Hospital

By M. Iola Tordoff, R.N.

Young Matrons

WHEN ASKED TO WRITE this article on how our church women can and do serve the hospital the first thought was "What does the hospital mean to the church?" We believe that it was built as a result of divine guidance which was given in 1906. Why was this guidance given? It is true that it was built as a "place of retreat from the cares of the everyday world." A train accident very quickly changed it into a general hospital, meeting emergency care. Since then it has become an outstanding center for health teaching and care of the sick.

In the first place, ours is a Christian church. This means that we as members must meet many needs of individuals and families within numerous communities. Health, mental and physical, is of great importance and so we teach health. The Sanitarium does this not only for patients and their families in the community but also serves as a clinical laboratory for student nurses. These students (there are one hundred and twelve at the present time) are well-qualified young women from various congregations throughout the church. They are taught skills which are necessary for the prevention of disease, the maintenance of health, and the rehabilitation of those who are ill. As graduate nurses they go out into many areas to care for the sick, teach health classes, teach in other schools of nursing, and become wives, mothers, and community leaders. At the present time "San" graduates reside in nearly every state in the Union, and in Africa, Alaska, Canada, Germany, Hawaii, New Zealand, Switzerland, France, and one is soon to be in Tahiti. Church-sponsored nursing education is reaching into many communities, many branches of our church, and into individual lives around the world.

In addition to this, our graduates and students here help to care for people from various places who want to receive help in their own church hospital, and who come to Independence and to the church physician for that care. Church appointees, and often their families, come here for physical checkups and necessary surgery and medical treatment.

Women play a very significant role in meeting the needs of the hospital, its patients, and the school of nursing. Perhaps we should start with the youngest members of our group. These are the Orioles who spend many hours of service in the hospital, delivering packages, newspapers, and running errands for department personnel and patients. The cheerful smiles and bright green uniforms of these young girls make the hospital stay of the patient more pleasant.

Another local organization is the Red Cross Gray Lady group. Daily these women are on hand to deliver mail and flowers, feed the helpless, read to patients, write letters, and perform many other necessary tasks, thus leaving more of the nurses' time for nursing care.

Members of the Women's Auxiliary, Young Matrons, Junior Service League, Pan-a-Delphia Club, and Sew-and-So Club all contribute in various ways. Some give service in the snack bar and gift shop to help raise much needed money for the hospital. Sundry and reading carts are taken to the patients' bedsides daily so that necessary requirements and entertainment facilities are augmented. Others give special parties, make favors, gifts, and decorations for the children on holidays. They also keep the pediatric department supplied with toys and equipment. Two young women from one of the groups gave many hours of artistic skill, painting lovely murals on the playroom walls. Still others meet together at regular intervals to sew and make linens used in the diversified hospital departments. One group has furnished hospital equipment through the years. Another takes pictures of all newborn babies—a service which is greatly appreciated by the parents.

Everyone has an especially warm spot in his heart for the newborn. Under the auspices of the Mothers' Club thousands of tiny garments, daintily hand embroidered and trimmed, are donated annually to the nursery. Each baby goes out to its mother in the type of clothes she herself would want her new charge to wear. This group is happy to receive donations of clothing from women everywhere and will send out patterns upon request. Many groups have and are contributing to this service. Several women belong to more than one of these groups and therefore serve the hospital and their community in various ways.

Gray Ladies

There would be no possible way to name each individual or group gift of service, skill, time, material, or money which comes to the hospital from all over the church. Some send money to buy or replace equipment, to furnish a room, to help a student nurse. They send baby clothes, hand towels, patient gowns, and linens for the hospital. These welcome donations come from Maine to California, from Alaska to Florida, from Canada, from Hawaii, and from innumerable points in between. We are overwhelmed with the long list of both members and nonchurch members who freely give in so many ways. Every member of our staff has a growing awareness and appreciation of the importance of these gifts. Approximately seven hundred women are presently engaged in helping the hospital to better care for its twenty-three thousand patients per year.

Women's Auxiliary

Women's Auxiliary

Still another group, which has given loving service to student nurses, needs to be mentioned. These are the women who act as town mothers for the students who are far from home. The girls are accepted by these people much as they are by their own parents and spend happy hours in the homes of their town parents. This does much to prevent homesickness and hours of loneliness. There has developed a closeness in the relationship which exists between these "mothers" and "daughters" resulting in long-lasting friendships and shared happiness.

As the school of nursing advances, its needs increase. This means that greater library facilities are necessary. The student residence and classroom section no longer adequately meets present needs. More instructors are needed as the group becomes larger. In this area "San" School of Nursing Day makes its contribution. Here all church members have the opportunity to make a valuable endowment of money which is used for improvement of the school of nursing and the development of better quality of patient care.

Encouragement given to high caliber young women to enter the field of nursing can be offered at youth camps, reunions, and in other areas by counselors. This is another way in which women may aid, for there are never enough qualified, skilled nurses to meet human requirements.

These groups mentioned here may give some idea of the help that has been received to make the hospital a credit to our church, and to help it serve as it should. Enough cannot be said about these people who have given so freely of time, skill, and self to aid us in our endeavors. Each year as the hospital grows larger—and at the present time construction is underway for more patient space and working areas—our needs grow as well. All of this means that many other areas of service are opening for women of our church.

Town mother and daughter

Ministry of the Aged and the Young

Aleta Runkle, standing at far left, directs the Choraleers in the caroling at Resthaven

a Keith B. Stokes Photo

Let the young men and the maidens cultivate the gifts of music and of song; let not the middle-aged and the old forget the gladness of their youth.—Doctrine and Covenants 119: 6 d.

"Silent night, holy night." It was Friday night, December 20—the night of the Christmas party of the Choraleers. Of the seventy-seven boys and girls of elementary school age enrolled in the children's choir of the Stone Church, sixty-nine were on hand for the annual caroling party. All details had been well planned by the Mothers' Club. One adult committee was in charge of transportation; another was responsible for the food; still another took care of the entertainment after the caroling.

The party began at 6:30 and ended at 9:00. Arrival of the youngsters at the Education Building was from 6:30 until 6:45. After a brief period of organization the Choraleers went caroling from 7:00 to 8:00, then returned to the Education Building for fun, food, and exchange of gifts.

Each year the choir members look forward to this Christmas party. Although they enjoy the fun and food, this is not their primary interest. The caroling always seems to hold the greatest appeal. Every year it is done in the same way. First, the children are transported by car to Resthaven where they carol for about fifteen minutes for the aged ones there. Then they cross the street to the Sanitarium to sing on the stairs of all seven floors the familiar Christmas message. By the time the Choraleers have all returned to their cars, they have spent an hour ministering to others.

Yet—who are the ministers that night? In Resthaven every year as I stand between the very young and the very old and look into their faces I see a warmth of communication that is lovely to behold. The delight in the eyes of the aged as they observe the fresh vigor of youth speaks of appreciation for this Christmas gift. As I see the wide-eyed sincerity of my Choraleers I realize that they have been touched during this visit to the home of the aged. And so . . . each group is drawn strongly to the other in this brief period of worship. All are ministers.

Perhaps that is why each year my choir members ask, "May we go caroling this year?"

Yes, this year . . . and every year.

ALETA RUNKLE

1958 Church Directory

A complete list of church locations, district and stake presidents and pastors throughout the world.

50¢ each

HERALD HOUSE

Box 477, Independence, Missouri

Box 382, Guelph, Ontario, Canada

Suggestions for Boy Scout Sunday

AT THREE MINUTES after four on that bleak November afternoon, the fire was just a tiny curl of smoke in a corner of the children's bedroom. At seven minutes after it was a crackling blaze, and the baby had waked from his nap, coughing, and his two-year-old sister was groping through the smoke screaming for her mother. At 4:08 the mother rushed in, snatched up the baby and ran downstairs in a panic, for the moment forgetting the other child.

When she remembered and lunged up the stairs again the smoke drove her back, and she ran to the front porch, screaming hysterically for help.

Jerry Steponek, a Second Class Scout in Troop 47, was not a boy you would pick for a hero. He was not big or strong or athletic. He hadn't made the football team or the baseball team, and his grades were only fair. He wasn't a handsome boy. He was just Jerry Steponek, a Second Class Scout.

But it was Jerry Steponek who was passing the house when the mother first called for help. It was Jerry who rushed inside, sized up the situation, tied a wet handkerchief over his face and crawled upstairs into that ocean of choking black smoke. It was Jerry who entered the fiery room, groped close to the floor until he found the unconscious child, and dragged her downstairs to safety. And it was Jerry who gave the artificial respiration that saved her life.

Jerry Steponek a hero? He doesn't think so. As he said afterwards, "Scared? Sure I was scared. Just before I went up the stairs into the smoke I was plenty scared. But I remember thinking, well, I'm a Scout and I'm supposed to know what to do, as I went on up the stairs."

When the chips were down and Jerry Steponek had to go upstairs into danger or stay put and be safe, he chose danger. Why? Because he remembered he was a Scout. What is there about Scouting at its best that makes a twelve-year-old boy decide to risk his life for a total stranger?

Perhaps, whatever it is, it is the thing uppermost in the mind of the man who sits late in his study, writing these words to his fellow Americans: "The Boy Scout movement merits the unstinted support of every American who wants to make his country and his world a better place in which to live. . . . The movement is a prime force for preparing tomorrow's men for their duty to themselves, their country, and their world. . . . Today, more than ever before, we need expansion of its membership and influence." The man looks thoughtfully at the words for a few moments and then signs his name. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

A SCOUT LITANY

LEADER: A true and worthy person recognizes his obligations and does them without being watched or compelled.

SCOUTS: A Scout is trustworthy.

LEADER: We owe much to many—to home, school, community, nation, and to God.

SCOUTS: A Scout is loyal.

LEADER: The good Samaritan showed the spirit of doing a good turn.

SCOUTS: A Scout is helpful.

LEADER: A real friend is one who remains loyal in victory and in defeat.

SCOUTS: A Scout is friendly.

LEADER: Courtesy is the mark of a Christian gentleman. It is shown in thoughtful acts and kindly respect for everyone.

SCOUTS: A Scout is courteous.

LEADER: Kindness is the way people show respect for others.

SCOUTS: A Scout is kind.

LEADER: Life is filled with things that we must do whether we like them or not. One of the marks of growing up is our readiness to accept responsibilities willingly.

SCOUTS: A Scout is obedient.

LEADER: Our moods make our days. If we are grouchy, our day is gloomy. If we are happy, our day is always happier.

SCOUTS: A Scout is cheerful.

LEADER: The world offers many gifts. A wise man uses them with care.

SCOUTS: A Scout is thrifty.

LEADER: To each of us come danger, difficult tasks, and temptations. In choice of courage or cowardice we must be brave.

SCOUTS: A Scout is brave.

LEADER: Cleanliness is next to godliness. To have a clean body, a clean mind, and a clean record is a rewarding achievement.

SCOUTS: A Scout is clean.

LEADER: Character is determined by the things we worship. If we respect ourselves and our fellow men, and see them as gifts of the goodness of God, we live on a high plane.

SCOUTS: A Scout is reverent.

PASTORAL PRAYER

He, and eight presidents before him, have enthusiastically endorsed the Scouting movement. What is it about Scouting that whets the enthusiasm of presidents and church leaders? It is, perhaps, because they have heard of Scout leaders like the man we will call William Dakin.

The vital statistics on William Dakin are unimpressive. He operates a small business and owns a modest home in a town most of us will never hear of. His self-imposed hours are long—from seven in the morning to six at night. He is not a wealthy man; there is a substantial mortgage on his home, and his car is not new. His wife and two daughters are the apple of his eye. He goes to church regularly with his family and has recently been called to the office of priest. Most of the time he supports community activities—that is, if they don't interfere with things too much.

When the pastor and the Boys' Work Representative came to William Dakin and asked him to be Scoutmaster there were many reasons why he might have told them, "No." But he thought about it awhile and said, "Yes."

William Dakin—quiet, unassuming, hard-working William Dakin—is a Scoutmaster. And in his undramatic, unglamorous, inexpert way, he is the best Scoutmaster William Dakin's town ever had. And, in his unsung corner of America and small branch, William Dakin, through the genius of the Boy Scout program, is fashioning men and Saints out of the most important raw material we have in the world—our youth.

Scouting and the Church

Sunday, February 9, is Boy Scout Sunday. Scouts and leaders are expected to attend church in uniform in countless churches of all faiths. The observance has as its theme "Onward for God and My Country." This theme gives our churches another opportunity to re-emphasize the spiritual qualities of our American heritage—Joseph's land.

Scouting sponsored by the church should benefit the church in some or all of the following ways:

1. It builds loyalty to the church and its program through boy satisfaction and enjoyment in Scouting activities under adult leaders of the church's choosing.
2. It gives the church one more outreach to the boys of the community and often leads them into definite affiliation with the church.
3. It trains future leaders for all phases of church responsibility, as indicated in the findings of an extensive study of successful church troops.
4. It gives the men of the church additional opportunities to serve the church and its boys through worth-while boy activities.
5. It gives additional church contacts with the families and homes of the community, because boys who are not interested in church school often will come to troop meetings. Their parents become interested, and the whole family may be brought into the church through the boy's contact in the troop.
6. It trains boys to serve in the church and community, and so engages them in many varied service projects.
7. Through Scout ideals as expressed in the Scout oath or promise, the Scout law, and the Scout good turn, it contributes directly to the church objectives and develops Christian character.
8. It takes a dynamic program with plenty of "boy interest" and makes a distinctive Christian contribution to it:

a good program made more nearly perfect.

For further information, anyone interested in organizing and starting a troop should contact his local Scout council and our office. Complete materials on the God and Country program and other phases of Scouting are available from the General Church Director of Boys' Work. We are particularly concerned that our church men see not just one side of the Scouting "game." It should be emphasized that any troop sponsored by the church is in effect "owned and operated" by the church to be used by the church through its regular administrative channels in doing the work of the church among junior high boys.

Suggestions for Scout Sunday

Even branches or congregations that do not sponsor Scout troops should in some way recognize Scout Sunday because more than likely many of their boys are in Scouting and are being benefited by it and because Scouting is the official boys' program of the church. But particularly for those congregations that sponsor Scout units it is very important that there be special recognition in one or more of the following ways on Scout Sunday:

1. The sermon theme may be "Onward for God and My Country" (sermon ideas are available from local Scout councils).

2. Family worship may be emphasized by having Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts, and Explorers in uniform attend church in company with their parents. Where there is a troop sponsored by the church, an alternative would be for members of the troop to sit together as a unit.

3. If there are priesthood within the ranks of Scouting, the Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts, and Explorers may take charge of the entire service.

4. Scouts and Explorers in uniform may serve as ushers and flag-bearers or assist in other ways in prominent places during the service.

5. A Scout quartet or individual Scout may help with the music.

6. Scouts and Explorers who have achieved church awards could be recognized, and one of them could give a talk during the church school general assembly or during the eleven o'clock worship on his experiences in achieving the award.

7. A special section may be provided for boys and their parents to sit together.

8. Boy Scout Sunday is an ideal time for presentation of God and Country awards for those who are qualified and to encourage others to register and begin work.

God and Country Recognition

If the branch has had any boys complete the God and Country program during the year, now would be a good time to recognize them and encourage any others that might be starting to work for the award. One way to develop an appreciation of the God and Country award and what it takes to get one is merely to read some of the requirements. Many of the requirements are fundamental to church membership and Christian living; others are the "second mile" that not many members measure up to.

Information about the God and Country program may be secured by writing the Department of Religious Education, the Auditorium, Independence, Missouri.

A Suggested Outline of Service

- COLOR PRESENTATION AND PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE Led by Scout OPENING HYMN "America the Beautiful" INVOCATION
 OFFERTORY
 SPECIAL MUSIC
 SERMON
 A LITANY FOR SCOUTS
 HYMN "Rise Up, O Men of God" or
 "I Would Be True"
 BENEDICTION

Announcing--

Stride's Photo Contest

See the current issue of STRIDE for the announcement about the photo contest and its rules.

CASH PRIZES: first place, $10; second place, $7; third place, $5; honorable mentions (3 prizes), $1 each.

Church at Gladwin, Michigan Dedicated

THE DEDICATION SERVICE for the Gladwin, Michigan, church was held September 8, 1957.

In February, 1956, the building was moved for the second time. In 1931 it was moved from its location on a farm northwest of the highway, to the highway, six miles north of the city of Gladwin.

Before the actual moving operation was started, the roof had to be remodeled as the old one was too high and heavy. The move into town was accomplished, and as soon as frost conditions permitted the basement was built and the building was placed on the walls.

A new foyer was added, as well as one on the side which is used as a vestry and entrance to the basement and upper auditorium. Much of the labor was donated, but the moving, blocklaying, furnace and installation had to be paid for. These obligations have been met.

There were thirty-five members enrolled in the church when the project was started. Attendance has increased considerably in recent months.

All-day services were conducted with Pastor Harold McAllister presiding. He also gave the eleven o'clock address. Others participating were District President Jay Doty, Apostle D. O. Chesworth, Mayor Ray Flynn, Sheriff Edick, and Floyd Hall. The mortgage was burned during the dedication service.

A dinner was served in the lower auditorium. The members now have the project of finishing the lower auditorium and kitchen.

LEAH McALLISTER

Leslie W. Kohlman

ONE OF THE MOST moving and challenging experiences of my life came when I had the primary responsibility of developing and extending missionary ministry through cottage meetings in the branch where I was pastor.

In co-operation with the supervising minister and Seventy in the area of my Conference appointment, I had received good counsel, some basic helps, and on-the-job training. Following this preparation, I had the responsibility of training local ministers and developing a continuous program of cottage meeting ministry in the branch.

I Had an Experience . . .

It came time for carrying out my first cottage meeting, assisted by one of the local brethren. Getting ready to leave the house for this initial appointment, I wished somehow that I could cancel the meeting. I hesitated, feeling most inadequate for the responsibility. Knowing I had to go, I went out to the car. Before pulling out of the garage, I offered a prayer for strength and guidance. I backed down the driveway, and it wasn't until then that I had a most enlightening and enriching experience of the ministry of the Spirit.

The great commission came to me with new meaning and power. I was impressed to "go," and to "teach," being assured, "Lo, I am with you always." I knew that the important thing was to go, and if I would teach truth, I would not be alone, but the Spirit of the Master would be with me.

With this experience, I could not get to the appointment soon enough. I had a most enriching experience in the meeting, which was duplicated again and again in my cottage meeting ministry. I'm happy to know today that in this branch many good local ministers still are rendering a most effective ministry along this line, and many new souls are won to Christ each year.

Letters

Spared for a Purpose

On December 25, 1957, I received the most precious Christmas present in my life. My wife gave me the Inspired Version of the Holy Scriptures.

Last June I had a sister in the hospital. My wife and I had been visiting her and had taken her a piece of birthday cake. When we were about to leave she made us promise to take a piece of it to her pastor at the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. She had been a member for some time and had talked about it to us.

When we entered our town at Farwell, Michigan, we noticed the evening service had just begun. Not being a member, I was about to pass by when my wife said, "You made a promise." After the service we were given a warm welcome. At that moment God started working in our lives.

All my life I had been searching for a better way to serve God. He had saved and spared my life several times when doctors gave me no hopes. When I was fourteen years old I was never expected to walk well again. In my early twenties I had a strep infection and arthritis. I was not expected to live overnight, but through faith I was raised up again. Again, in 1940, I was taken to the Ford Hospital with what was called dry pneumonia. I was sent home with no hopes. Again God raised me up. Today, at the age of forty-four, I am a healthy man.

On Sunday, October 27, 1957, my wife and I were baptized. The following Wednesday we were confirmed in the Reorganized Church. God has blessed us ever since.

I had long searched for the true religion of Christ. I listened to many ministers, attended various services, and talked with a Catholic priest, but nothing seemed to be what I considered the full gospel.

The pastor and elders gave me books to read. The revelations of Joseph Smith shone out like a glowing light, then the Book of Mormon fit in with the Holy Bible. As we prayed and studied these Three Books under the guidance of our pastor and elders, Jesus Christ revealed the true gospel to us—what repentance and baptism really meant. Since I have been baptized and confirmed God has made me realize that my purpose is to be a guide to others.

LAWRENCE HORN

Farwell, Michigan

Are Our Children Different?

Last summer in class at reunion this question was asked: Should our children be different? Someone answered, "No." While I wanted to speak, and felt that I should, I sat quietly. I do believe, however, that many of our church families do have children who are "different" and that this difference shows.

At a P.T.A. meeting one evening a teacher asked me what church I belonged to. She told me how much she liked our two daughters and what outstanding pupils they were. Then she said she knew that they had a church home. I believe our children should be different because of their church background, and I am grateful that we have a religion which can help produce quality young people.

MRS. EVA NUNN

Banks, Oregon

From a Ninety-nine-year-old Member

I was ninety-nine years old on December 21 and am still able to read. I read all the letters in the Herald and want to add my testimony of the Lord's goodness to me. I have been wonderfully blessed these many years with health and strength.

For fourteen years I had the opportunity of living in Lamoni, and for twenty-two years I lived in Independence. I certainly enjoyed associating with the Saints. I now live twenty-five miles from the nearest branch, but the members come often to visit me. I also have the Communion brought to me. I have a very comfortable home with my daughter, and I feel that the Lord continues to bless me richly.

Here are a few lines I think other elderly Saints may enjoy reading:

They say I'm growing old.
I have heard them tell it times untold
In language plain and bold.
But I'm not old!
What if my hair is turning gray?
What if my eyes are getting dim?
I still can see to follow him,
I still can see to follow him
Who gave his life for you and me
Upon the Cross of Calvary.
What should I care if Time's old plow—
Has left its furrow on my brow?
What, though I falter in my walk?
What though my tongue refuse to talk?
There is a house not built by hands
Awaiting me in Glory's land.
I still can watch and praise and pray.
My ears may not be as keen
As at one time they might have been
But I can still hear my Savior say
This is the way.
I'll meet you on the streets of gold
And prove to you that I'm not old.

(Anon)

MRS. MARY E. WESTON

Strawberry Point, Iowa

Sanscripts

New Central Supply Opens

Lillian Nuhi of Honolulu and Phyllis Norcross of Traverse City, Michigan, spent a busy day of their clinical assignment in Central Supply on January 15 assisting the staff in moving to new quarters. Central Supply now has the newest equipment for providing sterile supplies for patient care. It will absorb the Central Supply department of the Obstetric Department and the operating rooms. Mrs. Lena Goode is supervisor of this department.

Seniors Return from Affiliation

Eight seniors have returned home from St. Louis after finishing their affiliation in tuberculosis and psychiatric nursing. They will remain at the "San" now until the completion of the course in September. These students are Coleeta Antonio of Lorrance, California; Helen Chamberlain of Wichita, Kansas; Jean Ishii of Aiea, Oahu; Betty Moore of Atchison, Kansas; Marlene Powell of Sacramento, California; Donna Tower of Mount Morris, Michigan; Mary Winston of Lee's Summit, Missouri; and Nancy Wisemore of Independence, Missouri.

New Year's Convocation

The administration at the "San" planned an hour on January 1 and another on January 2 for hospital personnel to meet together to meditate on their plans for service during 1958. President W. W. Smith and President F. Henry Edwards of the Board of Trustees spoke of the desire of the Board of Trustees who operate the hospital to render the best service possible. Dr. M. R. Bay, president-elect of the Medical Staff, and Dr. E. B. Holton, retiring president, represented the Medical Staff. Reverend W. O. Poe of the Ministerial Alliance represented the churches of the community by offering the invocations. Chaplain Ray Ashenurst offered the benediction at each of the services. Music was supplied by student nurses Laverne Directo of Wahiawa, Oahu; Alta Minthorn of Kalispell, Montana; Eileen Streling of Pontiac, Michigan; and Shirley Thomas of St. Louis, Missouri.

The services were well attended, and a real spirit of dedication was present during each service.

Rush of "Twins" in "San" Nursery

Four pairs of twins created much excitement in the "San" Nursery in December. Student nurses Karen Travis of Holyoke, Colorado; Kay Sheehy of Seattle, Washington; and Phyllis Norcross of Traverse City, Michigan, got a real thrill in caring for these babies. The parents are Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Carter, Brunswick, Missouri; Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Beangard, Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Gooch, and Mr. and Mrs. Paul R. Hanaway, Independence.

Freshman Students Home for Holidays

Forty-two girls can certainly be missed . . . so say the junior and senior student nurses at the "San." The forty-two freshmen went home for two weeks' vacation and, according to Mrs. Vinnie Hatch (director of the residence) the place was "lonesome." They returned on January 5. This was their first vacation since entering the school in September.

6	TRACT LIST
5		effective January
9
1
	Herald House

Yours for the asking . . .

Copies of the
1958 TRACT LIST
Drop a card to Herald
House today!

Briefs

Notice to Contributors

In the recent survey made of "Herald" reader interest, several complained that the branch news published in Briefs contained items of happenings which were too old to be interesting. Many items had only local interest. The editors have been conscious of this but felt all branches should have equal opportunity. However, recognizing the validity of these objections, the editors would like to change certain policies with regard to this section of the "Herald."

We are inviting you to send us only items of church-wide interest, as soon as they happen. These will be run in short paragraph form under place and date headings. It may be necessary for us to further condense news items, since this change of policy will not provide extra space. A sheet of instructions for reporters will be sent upon request.

EDITORS

Banquet Held

AKRON, OHIO.—The priesthood and wives banquet for the southern half of the Kirtland District was held at the Akron Branch, September 27. A delicious dinner was served by the women's department. Group singing was under the direction of Seventy Harry W. Black. Kenneth Noland, Jr., played Chopin's "Etude." The banquet theme was "God Is Our Refuge and Our Strength." Guest speaker was John Blackstock. There was a good attendance.—Reported by ELIZABETH CAPLINGER

Ordained by Father

OMAHA, NEBRASKA.—At Highland Park Branch on October 6, Harold L. Walter was ordained a priest by his father, Harold A. Walter, assisted by Keith Gorham.

On the evening of October 6, the RoLaDaSa and DaRoLaDaSa groups of the women's department held installation of officers at the church, with a program and refreshments.

Highland Park Branch has just purchased fifty hymnals for branch use.—Reported by FRANCES WALTER

Infants Blessed

BOISE, IDAHO.—Roger Glen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Peer of Meridian, Idaho, was blessed October 13 in Boise by Elders Cecil Gilmore and F. L. Dellenbaugh.

Cindy Lea, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Boyack, also of Meridian, was blessed the same day by Elders Dellenbaugh and Gilmore.—Reported by WANDA CARSON

Ordained Elder

NIAGARA FALLS, ONTARIO.—In the branch business meeting held September 5 the following were elected to office: pastor Elder Arnold Ware; assistant, Elder Charles Tomlinson; deacon and treasurer, Gordon Garrett; secretary, Audrey Ware; music, Betty Stoner; assistant, Dennis Ware; women's department, Joan Tomlinson; church school director, Bruce Tomlinson; Zion's League leaders, Bill and Shirley Stoner; young married group, Betty and Louis Stoner.

On October 6, Bruce Tomlinson was ordained to the office of elder.—Reported by VERA WOOD

Sister Mesley Is Speaker

SCRANTON, PENNSYLVANIA.—The district held a women's institute in Bloomsburg on October 12. Blanche Mesley was guest speaker. The topic was "An Outreaching Friendship for the Kingdom."

The afternoon class was a discussion on the world. Changes in all phases of world history for the past fifty years were discussed. Sister Mesley brought many good thoughts. About forty members and friends attended the institute.—Reported by IVA W. SHAFFER

Exchange Speakers

DALLAS, TEXAS.—On September 29, Gale Lyn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Thetford, was blessed by Elders John Midgordon and C. A. Greene. Mrs. Thetford is the former Mona Livingston of Independence, Missouri.

The Fort Worth and Dallas Branches, thirty miles apart, have started an exchange program. Once each month Dallas supplies a speaker for a Sunday evening service in Fort Worth, and a Fort Worth priesthood member preaches in Dallas.

The women held a rummage sale September 13-14, which netted $360.00 for the budget.—Reported by MAX T. STEELE

Music Institute

STANTON, TEXAS.—Seventy Herbert A. Lynn spent three weeks with the branch in September, holding cottage meetings and a series of missionary meetings. On September 29, Mrs. Evelyn Leonard Eaton and Robert Dean Hamm were baptized.

Four members of the branch attended a music institute at San Antonio, Texas, October 27.—Reported by Branch Reporter

Successful Youth Rally

FARGO, NORTH DAKOTA.—The youth rally of the Red River, Minnesota, District convened at Fargo, October 18-20.

Fifty young people attended, some coming from Canada and Wisconsin. Classwork, fellowship services, and a banquet were enjoyed. Films entitled "A Job for Bob," "Beginning of a Rainbow," and "As We Forgive" were shown.

Elder Charles Neff of Independence was guest speaker. The subject for Sunday morning was "How Far to the Kingdom?"

Howard Fisher and Earl Rotzien were in charge of the rally.—Reported by IRENE ROTZIE

League Pledges to Fill Auditorium Cards

KENNETT, MISSOURI.—Missionary Jack Wight was present for the branch election, and the officers elected are as follows: Glen Phillips, branch president; Darrell G. Hays, church school director; Vera Mae Hays, secretary and women's leader; Glen Phillips, youth leader; Charles Branch, director of music; Romlous Malone, treasurer; Chloe Johnson, publicity; Darrell G. Hays, Arlon

Phillips, and Clarence Lance, auditing committee; Glen Phillips, Romlous Malone, and O. G. Branch, finance committee; Joseph Smith, Darrell Hays, Hershel Hawkins, Frank Metzger, Henry Malone, Arlon Phillips, and Clarence Lance, building committee; Alma Smith, dramatics; Arlon Phillips, solicitor; Vera Hays, recorder; Jim Phillips, historian.

On Children's Day, six children were baptized. Linda Jo Smith and Ruth Higgins were baptized by Elder Joseph Smith, Darrell Kenneth Hays was baptized by Elder Darrell G. Hays. Elbert Don Hawkins, Patricia Ann Hawkins, and Joseph Charles Hawkins were baptized by Elder C. A. Phillips. Confirmations were held at the eleven o'clock hour.

Three were baptized August 25. They were Alton B. McAnally, baptized by Elder Perritt of Flint, Michigan; and Willene and Tony Henfling, baptized by Elder Darrell G. Hays.

The Zion's League, under the leadership of Elder Glen Phillips, has pledged to fill the cards for the Auditorium fund.—Reported by CHLOE JOHNSON

Three Baptisms

PAMPA, TEXAS.—Brother H. H. Lynn spent the last week in August with the group. Cottage meetings were held. Three were baptized on August 29. They were confirmed September 1 by Brothers Lynn and Knutson.

On September 29 Brother Ralph Wilt delivered the morning sermon. A basket lunch followed, and the business meeting was held in the afternoon, with Brother Graft in charge.—Reported by CHARLES BAKER

Missionary Series Held

HOUSTON, TEXAS.—Ronald Sanders, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Sanders of Houston, and Paul Mitchell, son of Mrs. Bertie Mitchell, are attending Graceland College this year.

Seventy Robert Wakeman visited the Houston Heights Branch for a series of meetings October 19-26.—Reported by WANDA SANDERS

Baptisms Climax Series

FOLLANSBEE, WEST VIRGINIA.—Elder Jack Curtis, missionary to the West Virginia District, held a series of meetings in Follansbee, November 10-17. The meetings were climaxed by six baptisms. Those baptized were Gloria Benson, Priscilla Benson, Maxine Benson, Russel Dunlevy, Edgar Dunlevy, and Wetzel Dunlevy.—Reported by SARA MCMAHON

Annual Business Meeting

MAPLETON, KANSAS.—Mapleton Branch held the annual business meeting August 21 with Elder Allen Piatt of Butler, Missouri,

HERALD HOUSE

Box 477

Independence, Missouri

use one for each month in the year

EXPENSE RECORD BOOK

for recording daily expenditures; size, 3 by 5 inches 10c each; 1-5 dozens, 50c a dozen; 6-10 dozens,
45c a dozen; 10 dozens or more, 37c a dozen.

Sixtieth Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Merrill observed their sixtieth wedding anniversary at their home in El Dorado, Kansas, on August 18, 1957. Both have been members of the Reorganized Church since 1909. Since moving to El Dorado in 1922, they have been active in the branch there. Brother Merrill, who holds the office of priest, has served as pastor, assistant pastor, and bishop's agent.

The Merrills had two sons. One is deceased, and the other, Chester Merrill, lives with his family at Pauls Valley, Oklahoma.

present. Officers were sustained and elected as follows: pastor, Arthur Dennis; counselors to the pastor, Raymond Loar and Paul Kelley; treasurer, Charles Rei; secretary, Miriam Loar; church school director, Clarence Graham; women's leader, Ula Rei; youth leaders, Clarence and Ferne Graham; director of junior department, Ruby Wellington; music leader, Erma Clayton; book steward, Miriam Loar; auditor and solicitor, Ward Wellington; member of finance committee, James McCollam; historian and Herald correspondent, Bertha Quick.

The annual fall sale was well attended and very successful. The proceeds were included in the Auditorium fund.

Pastor Arthur Dennis has been incapacitated by a heart ailment and subsequent operation in recent months. Elder Raymond Loar, counselor, has officiated during the pastor's illness.

An all-day women's meeting was held in the Mapleton church November 20, with guests from Pleasanton, Fort Scott, Iola, and Butler. Guest speaker was Mrs. Deane Edwards of Monett, Missouri, whose subject was "Democracy in the Church of Jesus Christ." A covered dish dinner was served at noon.—Reported by BERTHA QUICK

New Branch Officers

RIDGEFIELD, WASHINGTON.—The annual business meeting was held September 29 for the election of branch officers. Those selected to serve for the new year were as follows: Elder Milton Becker, pastor; Jack Smythe, church school director; Stella Chapman, secretary; John Roth, treasurer; Wilbur Chapman, auditor; Richard Dynes, Zion's League leader; Phyllis Snead, women's leader; Lloyd Groat, librarian; Elsie Becker, publicity; Marjorie Roth, music; Charlotte Smythe, social; Elsie Becker, historian sustained as appointed; Robert Snead, Charles Taylor, Wilbur Chapman, building committee. Counselors selected by the pastor were Elders Ralph Chapman and Robert Snead.

Dennis, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Groat, was blessed by his maternal grandfather, Elder Robert Snead, assisted by Elder Ralph Chapman, on October 8.

Scott, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Dynes, was blessed by Elder Ralph Chapman assisted by Elder Milton Becker, on November 10. On November 15, Bishop T. A. Beck and Seventy James C. Daugherty counseled with selected branch officers.—Reported by ELSIE BECKER

Growth in Mission

BAKER, OREGON.—On October 27 Tom Bessonette was ordained to the office of priest in an inspirational ordination service with Seventy G. Wayne Smith as spokesman. This was the first ordination service to take place at the mission.

Brother Smith conducted a two-weeks' series October 13-27. During this time cottage meetings with slide sets were conducted.

Elder W. T. Ferguson blessed Sally Ann Bessonette on November 23.

Under the direction of District President Elvin Dennis, the Baker mission elected or sustained the following officers; pastor, Jonathan G. McKee; church school director, Tom Bessonette; mission secretary, Barbara Hunt; librarian, Virginia Sullivan; women's leader, June Waldon; treasurer, Manford Waldon; book steward, Ethel Kennedy; senior Zion's League leaders, Barbara and Gary Hunt; historian, Betty Bessonette; auditor, Wilmot Hunt; church school secretary, Virginia Sullivan; publicity, Phyllis Wigle; recreation leaders, Tom and Betty Bessonette; music director, Jonathan G. McKee; junior League leaders, Clela and Harold Godfrey; and solicitor, Tom Bessonette.

Many goals have been reached since organization of the mission ten years ago. Last winter the final payment for the church building purchased three years ago was made and already there is need for greater expansion.—Reported by PHYLLIS WIGLE

Special Oriole Service

COUNCIL BLUFFS, IOWA.—An ordination service was held October 20, and the following men were ordained: Paul Harding, Donald Graybill, and Emil J. Severyn to the office of elder; Raymond Bailey to the office of teacher; Donald Sherbondy to the office of priest, and Dennis Norman to the office of deacon.

District women's institute was held October 23, with seventy-five present. The theme was "Women Testify of Him." Mrs. Leslie Kohlman was guest speaker.

On November 3, a special Oriole candle-light award service was held. Rank awards and honor badges were given. There are three Oriole groups, and twenty-four girls enrolled in the program. Six are nonmembers. Plans for a Skylark group have been made.

The annual smorgasbord and bazaar was held November 8 by the combined women's department. This was their eighth smorgasbord. Ticket sales were limited to 500, and about $900.00 was netted.

The priesthood members have been visiting homes and explaining the stewardship program. Cottage meetings have also been conducted.—Reported by JACQUELINE FOX

Successful District Conference Held

FORT WORTH, TEXAS.—The branch was host to the Central Texas District conference held November 16-17, with an average attendance of three hundred. The business meeting was presided over by District President Roy Vandel, together with the apostle in charge, Charles R. Hield.

Apostle Hield voiced his approval concerning the growth in Texas, and said the General Church is looking forward to having missions started in Grand Prairie and Tyler, Texas. Building programs are well underway for Waco, Longview, and Victoria.

The conference gave approval for the ordination of George Shoemaker of Fort Worth, to the office of elder; Merle Sprinkle of Fort Worth, to the office of teacher; Henry Nesbitt, Sr., of Fort Worth, to the office of priest; Wayne Hay of Hearne, to the office of priest; and James Alfa Dotson of Hearne, to the office of deacon.

The office of church school director was made vacant and George Shoemaker was unanimously elected to this office.

Herbert Smith, of Bellaire, Texas, youth leader of the district, was in charge of youth activities during the conference.

Apostle Hield delivered the sermon at the close of the conference.—Reported by BRANCH REPORTER

Congregation Sets Goal

KANSAS CITY, MISSOURI.—Gladstone congregation had a building fund banquet on November 16. Guest speaker for the evening was President Israel A. Smith. Other speakers included Fred O. Davies, Joseph Baldwin, Marion Sneed, Jerome W. Middleton, Glenn Scott, Jr., and Leo Parrish. The program also included Josephine Mader as soloist, and the Crusaders Quartet.

The turkey dinner was prepared and served by the Gladstone ladies. Central, Chelsea, and Nashua congregations loaned silver, chairs, dishes, and tables to make the banquet possible.

The congregation was only a little under four hundred dollars short of their goal of $5,000.

On November 24, at the family night service, attendance was over eighty-two, a new high for Sunday night attendance.—Reported by MRS. JOHN L. THOMPSON

Patriarch Speaks to Women

AFTON-TOWER, MICHIGAN.—The women's department met at the home of Fulford and Reta Lapeer on October 30. After the hymn and prayer, Patriarch Charles May spoke on the importance of women and mothers in the work of the church, community, and world.

After the talk, a short business session was held. Lunch was served by the hostess.

Brother May, who served in the South Sea Islands, sang "Have Thine Own Way, Lord," and "Where Is My Wandering Boy Tonight" in English and Tahitian. Brother May held a series of meetings in Onaway, and showed slides of the South Sea Islands and Hawaii.

During the summer, nine were baptized, seven babies were blessed, and two men were ordained. Chester Johnston was ordained a priest, and Bruce Walters was ordained a deacon by Brother Max Kramer, pastor.

Circle Two ladies met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Johnston the evening of December 10 for the Christmas party. Sisters Dorothy and Beth Johnston were hostesses.—Reported by LOVINA G. SKUSE

Four Men Ordained

REDLANDS, CALIFORNIA.—On September 1, the branch business meeting was held. Officers for the year were pastor, Lloyd R. McKeehen; counselors, Elder W. J. Murray, Elder Floyd Simpson, and Brother Clifford McGuire; secretary, Anita Pierce; treasurer, Larry Miller; director of religious education, Eura Glover; women's leader, Roberta McGuire; music director, Wilma McKeehen; youth leader, Jarrell Glover; historian, Louise Pollard; Herald correspondent, Frances Lyon.

On October 27, Lloyd R. McKeehen was ordained an elder, Bert Glover was ordained a teacher, Jarrell Glover was ordained a deacon, and Edward McGuire was ordained a deacon.

On November 15, Olive Miller was approved as book steward for the branch.

On December 1, a special baptismal service for the daughter of Seventy and Mrs. Keith Kinart was held. Candace was baptized and confirmed by her father, who was assisted by Elder W. J. Murray.

On December 5-6, the L.O.A. group held a Christmas tea and bazaar, which was well attended. The women have made diligent efforts to increase the building fund.—Reported by FRANCES LYON

Speaker Exchange Program

DALLAS, TEXAS.—The women's department of the branch held their Christmas bazaar November 22-23.

David O'Brien, Monty Roper, Chris Taylor, and Connie Donahue were baptized and confirmed December 15. Priest John O'Brien officiated in the baptisms.

Sister J. J. Nelson, Mountain View, Missouri, a former charter member of the Dallas Branch, visited in November. She is the former Ina Standifer.

The Fort Worth-Dallas exchange speaker program is working well. Brother Walter Garrett of Fort Worth was speaker on November 24.

A Christmas party was held the evening of December 13. The children gave a program, then everyone joined in carol singing.

Brother Danny Greene has gone into the U. S. Army.—Reported by MAX T. STEELE

Pastor for Twenty Years

CEDAR RAPIDS, IOWA.—The branch election of officers was held August 25, with District President C. M. Beil in charge. Elder Don Cassidy was re-elected pastor. Robert Allen and Burton Hynden are his counselors. The following offices were filled: church school director, Tom Mortimore; women's leader, Dorothy Birky; men's leader, Bob Condit; youth leader and historian, Maude Motejl; junior church pastor, Ken Newcom; music director, Marcheta Mortimore; secretary, Shirley Howard; treasurer, Ted Clark; book steward, Laurine Clark; branch auditor, Burton Hynden; Herald correspondent, Barbara Newcom; solicitor, Merwen Taylor; recorder, William Robinson.

Because of a promotion and transfer to Omaha, Nebraska, it was necessary for Brother Cassidy to resign as pastor, ending twenty years of devoted service as pastor of the group. On October 6 a short business meeting was held, and Elder Tom Mortimore was elected pastor. Merwen Taylor was then elected church school director to fill the vacancy. The same counselors to the pastor were retained.

A branch farewell party was given November 2 in honor of Don and Ruth Cassidy and their son, Bob.

The Christina Wilson Circle sponsored a turkey dinner and bazaar November 19.

The annual children's Christmas party was held December 15 with a potluck supper and program. The program was presented by the children, and there was a toy sacrifice in which they participated.—Reported by BARBARA NEWCOM

New League Officers Named

ST. MARYS, OHIO.—Zion's League officers are Larry Mallory, president; Johnny Mallory, vice-president; Wilbur Sawmiller, Jr., secretary, and Donald Deitsch, treasurer.

A junior League has been organized with Phyllis Lewton as leader. Officers are John Dicler, president; Lyle Dean Sawmiller, vice-president; Martha Jane Slije, secretary; and Sharon Gray, treasurer.

Three babies were blessed October 20. They were Larry Joe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Coats; Sandra Kay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Germann; and Cindy Sue, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orville Myers.

October 24-27, Evangelist V. D. Ruch gave blessings to members and brought pulpit ministry.

Through November, Missionary and Mrs. Walter Conway visited and held cottage meetings. Baptized were Lonna and Tommy Cable, Charles and Ellen Paden, Martha Jane and Jackie Slije, and Evelyn Robinson and Michael Holden.

The women's department took active part in World Community Day services sponsored by the Ohio Church Council of Women.

Every class participated in the Thanksgiving program, and the young people presented a play on December 22.—Reported by DELCIE GRAY

Branch Christmas Program

MASON CITY, IOWA.—On December 22, the branch held an evening Christmas program. The theme was "Unto Us a Child Is Born." The program opened with a violin solo by Brad McKeown. The church choir and junior choir furnished all the music. Brad and Scott McKeown were the Wise Men, and Debra Reid was the angel. Gloria Crouse played Mary. Dennis and Linda McVickers were candlelighters.

Lanette Leigh, infant daughter of Vernon and Elaine Nyhus, was blessed by Elder Hugh Braby, assisted by Elder Carl McGuire.—Reported by MRS. VELMA WINEMAN

Six Baptisms

XENIA, ILLINOIS.—At the Brush Creek Branch, Seventy Cecil Robbins held a series of meetings October 13-20. Six were baptized.

The women's department sponsored a turkey banquet November 14.

On November 17, Kevin Roy, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Moore, was blessed by Elders Lewis DeSelms and Alva Henson.

Oscar Dean was ordained to the office of teacher December 1. Elders Alva Henson and Lewis DeSelms officiated.—Reported by PANSY FATHEREE

Needy Family Adopted

MACON, MISSOURI.—Recent guest speakers have been Elder Alan Tyree of Columbia, Elder Fred Young of Independence, Elder Roy Thomas of Bevier, Elder Lloyd Clarke of rural Macon, and Elder Tilford Phillips of New Canton, Illinois.

The Zion Builders held their annual picnic August 8. Macon has been represented at the area meetings.

The church has been redecorated, and new carpets were laid this summer.

A series of meetings conducted by Elder Vernie Ruch was held September 22-26.

The annual business meeting was held September 29.

Elder Carl Weeks of Bevier was retained as pastor, with Brother Joe Charles appointed as his assistant.

The church school secretary is Thelma Dawson, and treasurer and solicitor, William Burns. Historian and correspondent is Kathryn Bailey. Emma Bishop is the reporter to the Macon newspaper, and also director of music. Joe Charles is recorder and auditor. Anna Gray is women's leader. The department of religious education is headed by Mildred Burns, and Halga Charles is assistant church school director. Church school secretary is Kathryn Bailey.

Macon contributed to the Auditorium and Graceland College funds, and in addition keep a "polio" jar at the church for collections. Saints also "adopted" a needy family for Christmas.—Reported by KATHRYN BAILEY

Stone Church Christmas Service

INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI.—An annual Christmas service of sacred music and a Christmas message was presented to the families of Center Stake the night of December 6 at Stone Church. The program was sponsored by the executive board of the stake women's department. The church was decorated by Mrs. Elmer Armstrong with a seasonal arrangement of poinsettias, a single white candle, and fir boughs.

Mrs. Arthur Lotz, stake women's leader, greeted the congregation and presented the guest ministers.

Elder Z. Z. Renfroe brought the Christmas message, suggesting that each person have four companions for this season and all year: the spirit of joy, the spirit of understanding, the spirit of a little child, and the spirit of giving.

Mrs. Cecil Burton, organist, opened the service of music; Talitha Ranes, harpist, and Janette Draper, violinist, presented a medley of Christmas hymns; and Carl Olson, vocalist, sang two special numbers. Mrs. Kenneth Henry directed the congregational singing.

Included in the program was a candlelighting service, narrated by Mrs. Armstrong, symbolizing keeping the light of Christmas burning in home, community, and nation. Those who participated were wives of some of the church appointees who live in Independence.

The invocation was given by Elder C. V. Graham, and Elder Russell F. Ralston closed the service with a prayer of blessing and the benediction.—Reported by MRS. R. W. MILLER

Branch Officers

ROSEBURG, OREGON.—Officers of the branch are as follows: Louis Verbeck, pastor; Doris Friend, secretary; Clyde Curtis, treasurer and bishop's agent; Waldo Dancer, auditor; Maxine Rodley, music; John Rodley, Zion's League leader; Frank Ellenwood, young adult leader; Delores Ellenwood, women's leader; Twyla Dancer, social leader; Betty Johnston, publicity and librarian; Billie Curtis, historian; Francis Walberg, book steward; John Rodley, Frank Ellenwood, and Waldo Dancer, finance committee.—Reported by BETTY JOHNSON

Bulletin Board

bound volumes of the
SAINTS' HERALD
DAILY BREAD
GUIDELINES
and STRIDE
are useful
for reference

The valuable reference and reading matter in our church periodicals will be close at hand in volume form if you have each year's issues bound by Herald House.

Each bound copy bears the periodical title, volume number, and year imprinted in gold on the backbone. The binding is of durable dark green cloth.

In order to offer the binding done at the following prices, it is necessary to receive your orders before March 15, 1958. Please mail your magazines soon. (Missing issues are not available at Herald House.) Shipping charges are extra.

Binding Prices

Saints' Herald	$4.00
Daily Bread	$3.50
Guidelines to Leadership	$3.50
Stride	$3.50

Services in Boston Area

Boston Branch has moved its entire operation to 1386 Massachusetts Avenue in Lexington. Visitors and servicemen may call Pastor Albert L. Fisher (Winchester 6-3097 or Kenmore 6-4647) for information.

Services in Chicago, Illinois

Members of the First Chicago congregation are now holding services in their new church home at 5701 West Montrose. Two new missions have been established in Chicago. Home-wood mission meets in the VFW Hall, 18147 Harwood Avenue in Homewood; the LeClaire Courts mission at 4340 South Lamon, Chicago 38, Illinois. Brainerd Church is located at 8805 South Throop.

Services in Metropolitan New York City

Manhattan, Brooklyn, and Queens area: YMCA, 570 Jamaica Avenue, Highland Park; pastor, W. S. Lord, 60 Knightsbridge Road, Great Neck (telephone GR 2-9543 or VI 7-8527)

Long Island area, Hicksville mission: home of Seventy Loyd Adams, 27 Parkway Drive, Clearview Village, Hicksville (telephone WELls 1-5859); pastor, Wilbert Richards, 14 Oxford Lane, Bethpage (telephone WELls 8-0456)

New Jersey, Newark Branch: Adoniram Temple (Masonic), 321 Second Avenue, Lyndhurst, New Jersey; pastor, A. E. Starks (telephone SUMmit 6-2721 J)

Norwalk, Connecticut: church at 2 Mill Street, Broad River, Norwalk; pastor, Clifford Webb (telephone WOODward 6-0443)

New Haven, Connecticut: Redmen's Hall, New Street, West Haven, Connecticut; pastor, Don Crowell (telephone WEst 4-1879)

Further information, if necessary, may be obtained from the district president, Perce R. Judd, WELls 1-8949.

Notice to Priesthood and Membership of the Southwest States Mission and Alaska

Goals of Achievement for 1958:

- 6% baptismal gain
- 10% increase in attendance
- 85% of Priesthood engaged in home ministry
- 100% of Priesthood filing the tithing statement
- 25% of membership filing the tithing statement
- 50% of families subscribing to the Saints' Herald and/or Stride

REED M. HOLMES

for the Stake and District Presidents of Southwest States Mission and Alaska

Services at Hermiston, Oregon

Services are now being held on the first and third Sundays of each month in Hermiston at the Legion Hall located at Third and Maple Streets. The meetings begin at 10:00 a.m. and last until noon. John R. Harmon, 108 Laird Avenue, Hermiston, is in charge of the group. Members in the area who are not now attending services are urged to contact him.

A. M. CROWNOVER

Counselor to the District President

Notice to Priesthood of Southwest States Mission and Alaska

During February your presiding elder will ask you for a personal interview. At the close of the interview, you are to receive your 1958 home ministry assignment. Please make a minimum of four home contacts with each family during 1958. Your presiding elder will receive further notice of quarterly emphases. The purpose of your visit in February and March—encourage church school attendance.

We are privileged to have been ordained to a holy priesthood. Proper and efficient performance will bring honor to the office and joy to each member of the priesthood.

REED M. HOLMES

for the Stake and District Presidents of Southwest States Mission and Alaska

Appointee's Address

John Puckett
2309 Utica Drive
Dallas 27, Texas

Servicemen's Addresses

Pvt. Loyd L. Nail
US 54197497
Co. D 2nd A.R.B.
50th Inf. 4th A.D.
A.P.O. 66
New York, New York

Loyd is stationed at Erlangen, Germany, and would like to contact church members in that area.

A/2c Raymond L. Flowers
403 Herndon
Shreveport, Louisiana
(Telephone 2-2662)

Raymond and his wife, Joanne, will appreciate having members living in or passing through Shreveport call or visit them.

Book Wanted

Stanley L. Johnston, 828 Hickory Street, Lansing 12, Michigan, wants to purchase a copy of Lucy Smith's Joseph Smith and His Progenitors. He will pay up to $4.00 for it.

Daily Conference Herald Wanted

Jim Christenson, P. O. Box 2, Independence, Missouri, would like to obtain a copy of the Wednesday, April 5, 1950, Daily Conference Herald. He will pay postage to mail the copy to Independence.

Requests for Prayers

Mrs. Owen Miller, Rural Route 3, Xenia, Illinois, requests prayers for her husband who has been suffering with cancer for a year. He is unable to eat and is in constant pain.

Mrs. Nora Horn of Vinita, Oklahoma, requests prayers for her great-grandson, Darrell Sumner, who has recently developed leukemia. Darrell is the son of Dr. and Mrs. R. N. Sumner, 4730 Woodend, Kansas City 6, Missouri.

Prayers are requested for Jo Ann Settles, St. Joseph Hospital, Aurora, Illinois.

Prayers are requested for Mrs. J. C. Green, formerly of Wimer, Oklahoma, and now of 706 East Tenth Street, Coffeyville, Kansas. She is gravely ill with cancer.

ENGAGEMENTS

O'Hearn-Ritchie

Mrs. Lila Ritchie of Macon, Missouri, announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Paula Cheever of Independence, Missouri, to Leo E. O'Hearn, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo E. O'Hearn, Sr., of Moberly, Missouri. No date has been set for the wedding.

Bradbury-Taylor

Mrs. Ada Taylor of Omaha, Nebraska, announces the engagement of her daughter, Janet Carolyn, to N/C Craig M. Bradbury, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert W. Bradbury, also of Omaha. Janet is a student at Omaha University, and Craig, a 1956 graduate of Graceland, is in the Navy Air Corps. No definite wedding plans have been made.

McKeage-Killingbeck

Mr. and Mrs. William Killingbeck of Midland, Michigan, announce the engagement of their daughter, Donna, to LeRoy McKeage, also of Midland, son of Mr. Roy McKeage and the late Mrs. Sylvia McKeage of Independence, Missouri. LeRoy is a graduate of Graceland College and Donna is a student there.

Clark-Weate

Mr. and Mrs. N. J. Weate of Worthington, Ohio, announce the engagement of their daughter, Diane, to Ronald G. Clark of Sylvania, Ohio, son of Mrs. Susie Robertson and the late Floyd L. Clark. Both are sophomores at Graceland College. No date has been set for the wedding.

Colby-Blackstock

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Blackstock of Middletown, Ohio, announce the engagement of their daughter, Leona Mae, to Duane O. Colby, son of Dr. and Mrs. Frank Colby of Sandusky, Michigan. Leona is in her second year at Graceland, and Duane is stationed on the U.S.S. "Platte," Long Beach, California. A fall wedding is planned.

Tripp-Poplett

Mr. and Mrs. Dale Poplett of Dahinda, Illinois, announce the engagement of their daughter, Sarah Jane, to Pvt. Lloyd L. Tripp, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Tripp of Burnside, Illinois. Pvt. Tripp is a graduate of Graceland College and the University of Illinois. The wedding will take place May 4 at the Reorganized Church in Dahinda.

McFarlane-Platz

Dr. and Mrs. G. A. Platz of Lamoni, Iowa, announce the engagement of their daughter, Amy Grace, to Larry A. McFarland of Independence, Missouri. A June wedding is planned.

Etcheson-Lewis

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Lewis of Oak Grove, Missouri, announce the engagement of their daughter, Janet Marie, to John Etcheson, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Etcheson of Flora, Illinois.

WEDDINGS

Casino-Robinson

Marylyn Robinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Linden Robinson, and Frank Allen Casino, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Casino, all of Wichita, Kansas, were married November 23 at the Reorganized Church in Wichita, Seventy James S. Menzies officiating. At present they are making their home in Indianapolis, Indiana, where Frank is stationed with the Naval Armory.

McCann-Cooper

Carol Jean Cooper, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marion F. Cooper of Palos Park, Illinois, and William Albert McCann, son of Mr. and Mrs. William McCann, Sr., of Harvey, Illinois, were married January 1 at the Brainerd Reorganized Church, Elder Cecil Ettinger officiating.

Olsen-Lewis

Karl O. Olsen and Mrs. A. L. Lewis were married on December 26 in Moscow, Idaho, at the home of the bride's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Demps Kite. The bride's sons, Elder Orville Lewis and Priest Norman Lewis, officiated.

Sigman-Scott

Betty Ann Scott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theo K. Scott of Gaylord, Michigan, and J. D. Sigman, son of Mrs. John Carr of Kansas City, Missouri, were married on January 18 by High Priest Harry J. Simons. The bride is a graduate of Graceland, class of 1949.

Hall-Ebeling

Jeanne Ebeling, daughter of Elder and Mrs. Ray Ebeling, and Ronald L. Hall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vessie Hall, Jr., all of Colorado Springs, Colorado, were married December 29 in the Reorganized Church in Colorado Springs, the bride's father officiating. They are making their home in Colorado Springs.

Ratcliffe-Fair

Linda Fair, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Eugene R. Fair of Washington, D. C., and Stanley Ratcliffe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ratcliffe of Arlington, Virginia, were married December 27 at the Reorganized Church in Washington, D. C., Elder John Conway officiating. They are making their home in Manhattan, Kansas, where the groom, a 1956 graduate of Graceland, is attending Kansas State College.

Crownover-Kelley

Mary Louise Kelley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. O. Kelley of Topeka, Kansas, and Elson Crownover, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmon Crownover of Burlingame, Kansas, were married December 20 at the home of the groom's grandfather, Matthew Crownover, in Miami, Oklahoma. Priest Jappie Roberson officiated. They are living in Burlingame.

Mantle-Nicks

Carol June Nicks and Francis A. Mantle were married at Central Church in Denver, Colorado, on January 7 by Elder Ward A. Hougas. They are making their home in Denver.

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Johnson of Independence, Missouri, became the parents of a daughter, Pamela Sue, on October 9. She was blessed on December 29 by Pastor Glaude A. Smith and Assistant Pastor Herbert Scott at Stone Church. Mrs. Johnson is the former Shirley Wolfe. Both parents are Graceland graduates.

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Lewis became the parents of a son, Michael Larry, on November 29 at Memorial Hospital in Pullman, Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Mogg of Rivers, Manitoba, became the parents of a daughter, Shirley Anne, on December 3. She was blessed on December 22 by Elders William H. Atkinson and Cecil O. Diaper. Mrs. Mogg is the former Doreen Gibson of Calgary, Alberta.

A/2c and Mrs. Raymond L. Flowers of Shreveport, Louisiana, became the parents of a son, Steven Ray, on October 21, 1957. He was blessed at the Slover Park Reorganized Church in Independence on December 22 by Elder John L. McArthur and Elder Albert E. Lockyer. Mrs. Flowers is the former Joanne Cracraft.

TRACT REVIEW

When You Need Healing

A couple of years ago one of our Seventies expressed a need he felt for some piece of literature he could hand to people who were ill in the hospital but who were not acquainted fully with our belief in "administration to the sick." He voiced his request to Herald House tract editor, Paul A. Wellington. A few weeks later this tract was completed by the editor and approved by the First Presidency for publication.

The tract is divided into five areas: (1) You Need a Personal God; (2) Preparation for Elders' Prayers; (3) When the Elders Come; (4) Your Future Health; and (5) Faith-building Scriptures.

Included in the tract is a description of what the ill person may expect to happen if he asks the elders of the church to administer to him. Reasons for calling for the elders are also listed. Things to do in preparation for the ordinance are suggested. An attitude leading to future health leads up to a selection of faith-building Scriptures.

Single copies of this tract are 9 cents. Quantity prices are reduced as much as half.

We're on the Air . . .

STATE AND CITY	CALL LETTERS	DIAL READING	DAY AND TIME
ALABAMA, Atmore	WATM	1580	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
*ALABAMA, Bay Minette	WBCA	1150	Feb. 3-8, 9:15 a.m.
ALABAMA, Evergreen	WBLO	1470	Sunday, 9:00 a.m.
ARKANSAS, Jonesboro	KNEA	970	Sunday, 9:00 a.m.
CALIFORNIA, Wasco	KWSO	1050	Sunday, 7:15 a.m.
COLORADO, Durango	KIUP	930	Sunday, 9:45 a.m.
COLORADO, Montrose	KUBC	1260	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
FLORIDA, Orlando	WLOF	950	Sunday, 7:45 a.m.
IDAHO, Sand Point	KSPT	1400	Sunday, 6:15 p.m.
ILLINOIS, Herrin	WJPF	1340	Sunday, 7:45 a.m.
ILLINOIS, Moline	WQUA	1230	Sunday, 8:15 a.m.
ILLINOIS, Mt. Vernon	WMIX (FM 94.1)	940	Sunday, 12:15 p.m.
KANSAS, Concordia	KFRM	550	Sunday, 8:30 a.m.
MICHIGAN, Bad Axe	WLEW	1340	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
MICHIGAN, Flint	WMRP	1570	Friday, 10:00 a.m.
MICHIGAN, Houghton Lake	WHGR	1290	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
MINNESOTA, Detroit Lakes	KDLM	1360	Sunday, 8:45 a.m.
MISSOURI, Fulton	KFAL	900	Sunday, 8:15 a.m.
MISSOURI, Kansas City	KMBC	980	Sunday, 8:30 a.m.
NEW MEXICO, Clovis	KCLV	1240	Sunday, 7:45 a.m.
NEW YORK, Hornell	WWHG	1320	Sunday, 10:30 a.m.
NORTH DAKOTA, Valley City	KOVC	1490	Sunday, 6:00 p.m.
OHIO, New Philadelphia	WJER	1450	Sunday, 8:30 p.m.
ONTARIO, Guelph	CJOY	1450	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
ONTARIO, Sault Ste Marie	CJIC	1050	Sunday, 8:15 a.m.
OREGON, Lakeview	KQIK	1230	Sunday, 2:00 p.m.
PENNSYLVANIA, Charleroi	WESA	940	Sunday, 8:30 a.m.
TENNESSEE, Paris	WTFR	710	Sunday, 7:45 a.m.
WASHINGTON, Vancouver	KHFS	1150	Sunday, 8:30 a.m.
WEST VIRGINIA, Parkersburg	WCEF	1050	Sunday, 12:05 p.m.
WISCONSIN, Richland Center	WRCO	1450	Sunday, 8:15 a.m.

* Sunday, February 9, 1:30 p.m.

And Finally...

Mr. & Mrs. Leonard Coffman
Route #5
Warrensburg, Missouri

16528
8-58
h

FROM THE CHAPLAIN'S NOTES

Have you ever noticed that most knocking is done by folks who don't know how to ring the bell?

Old Uncle Eben: When yo' goes lookin' fo' someone to help yo' decide somethin', remember it takes 'most as much smahtness to pick out reliable advice as it would take to make up yo' own mind.

The Netherlands ambassador, Herman van Roijen, has a realistic definition of diplomacy. "It is," he says, "the art of letting the other fellow have your way."

Those who are completely free of any obligations or loyalties or responsibilities are the loneliest people on earth.

It takes gallons of sap to make a single pound of sugar, but the sweetness pays for the condensing. A little word said and remembered is better than any amount of weary, casual talk, which men endure and gladly forget.

—"Your Sunday Morning Visitor"

CHRISTIANITY WITHOUT CHRIST

Recently a brother sent me a book by the "Red Dean of Canterbury" and asked me to read it. People are aways asking me to read something so I was not surprised in the request. The amazing thing about this book is its intriguing way of proving that red is white. Either the army is out of step or the Dean is; for he seems to have seen with his own eyes things that are not there, else all the lecturers and writers in America have deceived us. The Dean "proves" ipse dixit that by practice and teaching the Soviets are more Christian (New Testament chapter and verse) as

Contents

EDITORIAL AND OFFICIAL

The Product Is Hope, by Norman Cousins	3
Foolish Arguments	3
Inquiry	4
C. L. Olson to Tahiti	4
Resignation of Banta	4
Across the Desk	4

FEATURE ARTICLES

Seats Immediate Goal in Auditorium Completion Program	2
The Conditions of Security in Christ, by Al Dickson	5
Military Service: Good or Bad for Youth? by Delbert J. Cory	8
Journeying and Reminiscing, Part I, by Pearl Wilcox	9
Women Who Serve Our Hospital, by M. Iola Tordoff	12
Ministry of the Aged and the Young, by Aleta Runkle	14
Suggestions for Boy Scout Sunday, by Richard Lancaster	15
Church at Gladwin, Michigan, Dedicated, by Leah McAllister	17

SPECIAL COLUMNS

Question Time	11
I Had an Experience, by Leslie W. Kohlman	17
Letters	18
Sanscripts	18
Briefs	19
Bulletin Board	22
Tract Review: When You Need Healing	23
And Finally	24

atheists than the West is with Christ. Marvellous sophistry!
C. B. H.

TEST YOURSELF

The flame that is itself so weak it cannot light another flame will not long survive.

Don Lents

SERMON HIGHLIGHTS

We can't go any higher than the ceiling of our own thoughts.

We need not worry about the big things. It's the little things that must be overcome.

Left to himself it is impossible for mankind to attain sonship with Jesus Christ.

Quotes from a sermon by Don Pypers.
Selected by A. S.

INDIFFERENCE

A commitment to indifference gives a high place to ineffectiveness.

Arthur Miller

THE GREAT BOOK

There was a man in the Herald Bookshop the other day buying one of the big unabridged Webster-Merriam dictionaries. As he wrote the check and lifted the heavy volume under his arm to go, he was smiling broadly. This was something he had wanted for a long time. He is a fortunate man.

That book, if he will use it properly and diligently, will give him a world of useful information. It has amazing resources. It can help in a thousand ways to broaden a man's understanding and qualify him for a richer and better life. It is a key to knowledge. If a man will read good books, and look up every word he does not understand or about whose meaning he may be in some doubt, he will soon acquire the equivalent of a college education, and indeed better than some college educations.

You may buy the book and put it on the shelf, but it is not really yours until you read it and study it. This is even more true of reference works than of others. For in this reference work, one does not find an entertaining story about people but the more marvelous story of a great language that has served the communication needs of a group of nations for some seven hundred years.

L. J. L.

Easter Program Materials for 1958 order your "browsing" copies early

STANDARD EASTER PROGRAM BOOK, No. 9 (music and dramatic materials for beginner, primary, junior, and intermediate departments)	40c
WE LIVE FOR HIM (an Easter service for the church school)	10c
HE IS RISEN INDEED (an Easter play in three short scenes)	35c
COKEBURY EASTER PROGRAMS (a collection of material for the observance of Holy Week and Easter)	35c
BEHOLD! THE THIRD DAY COMETH (an Easter drama for sunrise services)	25c
EASTER TREASURY, No. 57 (selections for primaries, juniors, and seniors)	40c
EASTER SUGGESTION BOOK, No. 15 (recitations, music, tableaux, and pageant)	40c
THE CROSS OF LIGHT (an Easter pageant with familiar music)	30c each 12 for $3.00
EUREKA EASTER RECITATIONS, No. 4 (material for children's departments plus pantomimes, play, songs, special features)	25c
THE KING IS COMING (an Easter service in pantomime, reading, and song)	15c
THE CHANCEL LILY (an Easter play in two acts)	35c
THE SYMBOL OF A CROSS (a religious drama for Easter and general occasions)	30c each 12 for $3.00
PEACE AT BETHANY (an Easter play for women)	35c

Box 477
Independence, Missouri

Box 382
Guelph, Ontario, Canada

SAINTS' HERALD

Volume 105 / February 10, 1958 / Number 6

We'd Like You to Know . . .

DR. WELLEMAYER joined the Graceland staff this fall as instructor of European history, philosophy, and American government.

He was born in Freeport, Illinois, on December 26, 1883, but he feels at home in Iowa, for he was the son of a minister whose parishes were mostly in that state.

Dr. Wellemeyer received his B.A. degree at Morningside College, Sioux City, Iowa, in 1906, his M.A. at the University of Chicago in 1914, and an honorary doctorate in 1940 from Morningside College. He has also done graduate work at Columbia University, University of California, University of Chicago, University of Miami (Ohio), and elsewhere.

For twenty-two years he was principal of Wyandotte High School and dean of the Kansas City Junior College in Kansas City, Kansas. When he first began his work there the two schools were housed in the same building, but after its destruction by fire the schools were separated and Dr. Wellemeyer maintained two offices. Then the war came, and 400 GI's made the load too heavy, so Dr. Wellemeyer left the principalship and assumed the full-time job as dean of the Junior College.

After his retirement three years ago he taught in the National College for Christian Workers in Kansas City, Missouri. He is a member of the Methodist Church.

Dr. Wellemeyer has traveled extensively. He made his first trip to Europe in 1929 as a member of a Columbia University group that was studying German schools. He gets along very well in all German-speaking countries because German was spoken in his home, and his father always preached in that language. After graduation in 1906, he taught German in the Gladbrook, Iowa, High School.

Elders Hear Oakman

"Resurrection and Eternal Life" was the subject of seven lectures delivered by Apostle Arthur A. Oakman, January 5-12, before members of the Melchisedec priesthood in Center Stake.

Apostle Oakman's lectures were the fourth in an annual series of Melchisedec lectures sponsored jointly by the Elders' Quorums of Center Stake and the First Presidency.

The seven lectures were titled "The Creator, the Creation and its Purpose"; "The Meaning of History"; "Sin and Death, Finitude and Evil"; "Repentance and Righteousness"; "Means of Immortality"; "Did Jesus Christ Rise from the Dead?" and "The Moral Power of the Doctrine."

The contents of the lecture series has already been prepared for publication in book form. It is hoped that the book will be ready for release at General Conference in October.

The three previous lecture series have all appeared in book form. The first lectures were given by President F. Henry Edwards and appear in the book Authority and Spiritual Power. Dr. Roy A. Chevill's lectures given during the second series appear in the book By What Authority? Last year's lecture series was delivered by L. Wayne Updike, director of the School of the Restoration. Brother Updike's lectures appear in the book Whosoever Repenteth, which has just been released for sale. The book was introduced at the recent lecture series.

Dr. J. F.

Wellemeyer

Diversified hobbies have enriched and enlivened Dr. Wellemeyer's whole life. He enjoys golf, fishing in Minnesota, deep sea fishing in the Pacific, and music. He played the flute in church and school orchestras, sang in choirs, in church quartets, and was tenor soloist. He comes from a musical family. His older sister, Elizabeth, was the vocal music instructor at Graceland fifty years ago, and two of his other sisters were pianists. His oldest daughter, Mrs. Catherine Farley, is head cellist in the Kansas City Symphony and teaches cello at the Kansas City Conservatory of Music where she is head of the theory department.

Dr. Wellemeyer is very proud of his family. Another daughter, Mrs. Mary Lou Stal, teaches English and history in Newport Beach, California. His son, J. F., Jr., is head of the Washington, D. C., office of the American Council of Learned Societies composed of twenty-four national associations. He also has six fine grandchildren.

Education has always been Dr. Wellemeyer's main interest, and he does not regret one moment of the time he has spent. During the years of his school experience he has counseled and guided thousands of young people in high school and junior college. He enjoys teaching at Graceland and feels that the students are hard workers.

Herbert Lively, stake director of religious education, said the annual lecture series is an important part of the elders' program in Center Stake. Other activities include two elders' schools each year and a summer retreat.

Authors in This Issue

Roy Weldon (page 5), elder, Warrensburg, Missouri
David Russell (page 9), priest, Saran, France
Al Pelletier (page 11), Seventy, Port Elgin, Ontario
Madge Siegfried (page 12), Independence, Missouri
Pearl Wilcox (page 14), Independence, Missouri
Frank A. Fry (page 17), High Priest, Nuneaton, Warwickshire, England

The Cover

Council of Twelve Apostles: P. M. Hanson, C. R. Hield, E. J. Gleazer, D. T. Williams, A. A. Oakman, D. B. Jensen, R. E. Davey, M. L. Draper, P. E. Farrow, R. M. Holmes, D. O. Chesworth, D. V. Lents.

On February 14, 1835, twelve apostles were chosen as special representatives of Christ throughout the world. The Three Witnesses to the Book of Mormon acted as the selection committee (Church History, Volume 1, page 541). In honor of this one hundred and twenty-third anniversary the cover of this issue presents the Council of Twelve as now constituted.

What Price Civilization

AMONG BOOKS I have recently read are A. V. Toynbee's Civilization on Trial, and Brooks Adams' The Law of Civilization and Decay. One would naturally feel that inception, growth, and development would harmonize with natural law, by which I mean laws established by God; but decay and death and disintegration would result from violation of law, getting out of harmony with our environment and "laws of life."

However, these men of learning hold to the serious conclusion that present day civilization—our civilization—is in grave danger of destruction.

One Sokorsky a few years ago advanced the theory that social movements and growth are subject to the same laws as organisms of all kind, and that inception and growth are followed inevitably by decay and death.

Doctor John Lord, in his Beacon Lights of History made up of his famous lectures, observed that all world civilizations had demonstrated that decay always begins at the top, and that they had been and could be perpetuated only by the fact that patriotic virtue had always welled up from the common people.

If conditions of the present hold out dangers of decay and failure, they are plainly in harmony with prophecy. Let us see what Apostle Paul said about mankind (II Timothy 3: 1-10):

This know also, that in the last days perilous times shall come. For men shall be lovers of their own selves, covetous, boasters, proud, blasphemers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, unholy, without natural affection, trucebreakers, false accusers, incontinent, fierce, despisers of those that are good, traitors, heady, highminded, lovers of pleasures more than lovers of God; having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof; from such turn away. For of this sort are they which creep into houses, and lead captive silly women laden with sins, led away with divers lusts, ever learning, and never able to come to the knowledge of the truth. Now as Jannes and Jambres withstood Moses, so do these also resist the truth; men of corrupt minds, reprobate concerning the faith. But they shall proceed no further; for their folly shall be manifest unto all men, as theirs also was. But thou hast fully known my doctrine, manner of life, purpose, faith, long-suffering, charity, patience.

In what is the preface to the Doctrine and Covenants, Section 1: 6, we find the following prophecy given, as we believe, through Joseph Smith:

And again, verily I say unto you, O inhabitants of the truth, I, the Lord, am willing to make these things known unto all flesh, for I am no respecter of persons and will that all men shall know that the day speedily cometh—the hour is not yet, but is nigh at hand—when peace shall be taken from the earth, and the Devil shall have power over his own dominion; and also the Lord shall have power over his saints, and shall reign in their midst, and shall come down in judgment upon Idumea, or the world.

I have read somewhere—or have been told—that since the War of the Rebellion, the Civil War, or since 1860 there have been more than two thousand wars. That fact, in connection with conditions in the world today, assists us, I am sure, in believing Joseph Smith was an inspired prophet.

As an interesting side light or circumstance, about fifty years after Joseph Smith uttered the foregoing, Doctor John Fiske, noted lecturer and author, spoke as follows:

Man is slowly passing from a primitive social state in which he was little better than a brute, toward an ultimate social state in which his character shall become so transformed that nothing of the brute can be detected in it. . . . The ape and the tiger in human nature will become extinct. Theology has had much to say about original sin. This original sin is neither more nor less than the brute inheritance which every man carries within him, and the process of evolution is an advance toward true salvation.

Fresh value is thus added to human life. Modern prophets, employing the methods of science, may again proclaim the "kingdom of God is at hand."

In light of the horrors and butchery of recent wars under Hitler and Mussolini, we are led to ask who was the better prophet, Joseph Smith or John Fiske?

But returning to this subject of our civilization: We are living in a push-button age. I recall reading or hearing news about the wonders of the electric light when I was perhaps ten or twelve years old. Then Chicago put in street lights lit by electricity, and with them, it was said, even a pin on the ground could be seen.

Within the scope of my lifetime the world has witnessed more advancement in invention and science than happened in the preceding eighteen centuries.

And now today the world learns that atomic energy and the "know how" to release it has the greatest potential of all time for the blessing of mankind, while we are also informed that, used for destructive purposes, it threatens the very existence of mankind. It is a sad commentary that the most scientific men of our age, who can bring our greatest blessings, hold within their hands the means of the death of the world.

Do we have in sacred Scriptures any prophetic utterances pointing to world catastrophe such as they say may overtake us from atomic bombs? I have two or three in mind which it may be profitable to call to your attention.

In the twenty-eighth chapter of Matthew, Christ, after his resurrection, gave this commission to his disciples:

Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost; teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you; and, lo, I am with you always, unto the end of the world.

In Section 85: 6 we find:

The earth abideth the law of a celestial kingdom, for it filleth the measure of its creation, and transgresseth not the law. Wherefore, it shall be sanctified; yea, notwithstanding it shall die, it shall be quickened, again, and shall abide the power by which it is quickened, and the righteous shall inherit it."

The promise is worth remembering.

Official

Youth Music Camp

The third annual Youth Music Camp, under the direction of the General Church Department of Music, will be held August 24-30, 1958, at Camp Manitou, near Vandalia, Michigan.

This camp is for young musicians who have completed their second year of high school and whose twenty-first birthday does not occur before September 1, 1957.

Major emphasis in choir, service playing, and orchestra will be provided. The ability to sing or play in a high school or college choir or orchestra is all that is required by way of musical qualifications.

The purpose of the camp is to provide a week of training, music making, and inspiration in the field of music for a selected group of eighty young people of the church. The classes are designed to integrate the music talent and interest of the church young people with the needs and opportunities of the church in the field of music.

The fee is $27.50 per camper. This includes all expenses except transportation.

Any person or group who would like to provide one or more scholarship ($27.50) for deserving young people is invited to contact the undersigned.

For a detailed brochure, application blank, and other information please write to the Music Department, the Auditorium, Independence, Missouri.

FRANKLYN S. WEDDLE
Director of Music for the General Church

Across the Desk

OF THE FIRST PRESIDENCY

From Charles R. Mundorff, missionary in the Central Michigan District:

Missionary work in the Central Michigan area reached a new all-time high during the past year with one hundred and sixteen baptisms. The previous record was ninety-two in 1956.

The district set a goal of one hundred and seven in 1957 and then proceeded to baptize the quota and nine more. This is indicative of the fine spirit of the local priesthood members. Excellent cooperation from the district president, Jay Doty, and his counselors have contributed to the fine record.

We have set one tenth of our total membership as our goal for 1958. If the work is continued in the same spirit as last year, we will have one hundred and forty baptisms this year.

The theme for the year is taken from the old Zion's Praises, "Are You Witnessing for Him?" Two kickoff dinners are planned with Apostle Chesworth to set the stage of action.

From Pastor Cecil R. Ettinger of Des Moines, Iowa, comes this report:

I would like to inform you of one of the most successful one-week series of meetings I have ever had the privilege of witnessing. Apostle Maurice L. Draper was our speaker (January 19-26).

Each evening the preaching was outstanding in its quality and inspirational in its character. A continuous spirit of worship pervaded the entire week. Attendance was excellent. Our lowest was 131 on Monday evening; the highest was 291 on the last Sunday evening. The fact that our attendance continued to increase throughout the week is indicative of the flow of worship.

At the close of the series, fourteen made their covenant with Christ. Four were children, two were teen-agers, and eight were adults.

We were also privileged to have Presiding Bishop DeLapp speak on the Sunday morning of District Financial Day Observance. There were 291 present. We feel this week's experience indicates the devotion of the Des Moines congregations and the outstanding ministry received from the General Church.

Evangelist Floyd T. Rockwell writes:

Upon invitation from the president of the Northwestern Ohio District, I have just completed a visit to the northern branches of the district. For me this was a very pleasant experience and, I trust, a profitable one for the Saints there.

I visited four branches, preached eight times, gave seven blessings, and performed other functions of ministry as occasions required. Even the weatherman co-operated in making this visit pleasant.

I found a group of very devoted members of the church with their hopes and aspirations centered in the kingdom.

Mark Anway, pastor at Bellingham, Washington, has notified us of a recent attempt to burn the church there.

According to the account in an attached newspaper clipping, a neighbor saw two teen-age boys preparing to start the fire. When police arrived, the boys had lighted an oil-soaked torch. They ran but were caught. They threw away a .22 caliber air pistol before police caught up. The pistol was found later.

No explanation was given as to why they had attempted to start the fire.

The Saints' Herald

Vol. 105 February 10, 1958 No. 6

EDITORS: The First Presidency; Israel A. Smith, F. Henry Edwards, W. Wallace Smith. ASSISTANTS: Chris B. Hartshorn, Managing Editor; Naomi Russell, Assistant Editor; Paul A. Wellington, Assistant Editor; Roger Yarrington, Assistant Editor; Audrey Stub-

bart, Copy Editor; and Leonard J. Lea, Contributing Editor. BUSINESS MANAGER, Kenneth L. Graham.

The Saints' Herald is the official publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, with headquarters at The Auditorium, Independence, Missouri, and is issued through the offices of Herald Publishing House, 103 South Osage Street, Independence, Missouri.

Herald editors are not responsible for the views and opinions expressed in articles or communications other than those of editorial authorship.

Entered as second-class matter at the post office at Independence, Missouri, under Act of March 3, 1879. Issued weekly at Independence, Missouri, except daily during the biennial General Conference. Price, $4.00 per year in advance in the U.S.A., its territories and possessions; Canada, $4.25 per year; other countries, $5.00 per year. Notice of a change of address must be given three weeks ahead of the date that it is to become effective. Accepted for mailing at the special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917, authorized July 21, 1921. Printed in the United States of America.

Restoration Witnesses

By Roy Weldon

Coherency

IT IS THE PURPOSE of this series on Restoration witnesses to examine afresh the major claims of the Restoration movement in the light of the latest developments of science as well as in the light of ancient facts and events.

In the last installment (Saints' Herald, July 1, 1957) I quoted the impressive array of biblical prophecies about the last days now in vivid process of fulfillment before our very eyes and noted that some of these prophecies point clearly and directly to the Restoration movement. To me there seems to be only one logical explanation for this remarkable phenomenon of foretelling events of the twentieth century in such detail, clarity, and dovetailing harmony—the prophets of the Old and New Testaments must have been drawing water from the same well—the well of living waters which springs from the fountain of divine revelation. There seems to me to be no greater test than the acid test of consistency and coherence.

Cosmos versus Chaos

Well did the Psalmist say, "The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament showeth his handywork.

Day unto day uttereth speech, and night unto night showeth knowledge (Psalm 19: 1, 2). My text of all texts declares: "And, behold, all things have their likeness; and all things are created and made to bear record of me" (Genesis 6: 66, Inspired Version).

What do the creations bear records of? What do the heavens declare? What "knowledge" does "night unto night" show? Indeed, what greater truth do they manifest than that the universe is a cosmos—that consistency, coherence, co-ordination, and dovetailing relationships are the keynote of its Maker?

I believe the same intelligence that fashioned the heavens moved upon the prophets of biblical times, because I see in their inspired declarations the same qualities of smooth working relationships I see in the sidereal universe. Whether we look through the two-hundred-inch eye of Palomar's telescope at universes 450 million light-years away or at the minute solarlike systems of the electron the impression is the same—consistency and co-ordination that completely defies the imagination of man.

It would appear that there can scarcely be any greater test for a claim of divine authority than the test of coherence. This is the basis of the biblical declaration—"To the law and to the testimony; and if they speak not according to this word, it is because there is no light in them" (Isaiah 8: 20).

(I do not regard this as an absolutistic declaration but rather an enunciation of the coherency formula for judging and measuring things claiming to be of divine origin. As an illustration, Old Testament prophets foretold the coming of the Messiah in sixty-four details from born of a virgin at Bethlehem to being sold for thirty pieces of silver and given vinegar to drink—see previous installment, Saints' Herald, July 1, 1957.)

Paul says, "Prove all things; hold fast that which is good" (I Thessalonians 5: 21). Living organisms, trees, birds, fish, animals manifest the same qualities that the heavens show—co-ordination, coherence, and organizational consistency. It appears that all the Creator's works (not modified by human hands) are studded with this priceless jewel of consistency.

Paul declares the church of Jesus Christ to be the "body" of Christ and its parts comparable to the parts of the human body.

"Now ye are the body of Christ, and members in particular" (I Corinthians 12: 27). It is claimed by many that the church as the body of Christ is composed of the various denominations and churches of Christian believers throughout the world. This claim does not meet the coherency test. Paul says that God is not the author of confusion (I Corinthians 14: 33). The chaos, confusion, and counterclaims of the hundreds of modern Christian sects simply do not bear the coherency trademark of the God who planned the Milky Way and moved upon the prophets of biblical times.

Modern churchianity bears the chaos trademark of human rather than divine creation. Before coming to grips with the question of how the Restoration movement meets the acid test of coherence I believe we illustrate further the human tendency toward division, confusion, and competition.

Incoherency of books written against Joseph Smith

Joseph Smith's mother expected him to be a prophet—"she prophesied, at the time, that Joe, then seven years old, would be a prophet, and give to the world a new religion" (Braden in Braden and Kelly Debate, page 46).

Joseph Smith's mother did not expect him to be a prophet—"His appearance was not, as one might have expected, heralded by any mystic portents. . . . Indeed Mrs. Smith had never expressed the opinion that her son Joe as he was called would be the founder of the faith of which she dreamed" (The Latter Day Saints, Reginald and Ruth Kauffman, pages 21, 22).

Joseph Smith had no energy or persistency—"Joseph Smith was not the man to surmount great obstacles and compel great and lasting changes by his own unaided force. He lacked energy, diplomacy, and steadfastness for such a task" (Brigham Young and His Mormon Empire, Ex-senator Frank G. Cannon and George L. Knapp, page 20).

He was very energetic, persistent, able—"He possessed the most indomitable perseverance, was a good judge of men, and deemed himself born to command and he did command" ("Recollections of an old pioneer," P. H. Burnett, as quoted in Founder of Mormonism, page 6).

Book of Mormon founded on Spaulding Romance—Charles Shook, whose work R. B. Neal said would "shake the foundation" of Latter Day Saintism, has this to say about the Spaulding Romance theory. "Gentiles with few exceptions believe that the Book of Mormon is one of Solomon Spaulding's Romances, which somehow fell into Smith's hands and was altered to suit his purposes" (Cumorab Revisited, page 25).

Book of Mormon not founded on Spaulding Romance—Reverend D. H. Bays, the man who studied Mormonism for forty years, says, "The long-lost Spaulding story has at last been unearthed, and is now on deposit in the library of Oberlin College at Oberlin, Ohio. . . . The Spaulding story is a failure. Do not attempt to rely upon it. . . . it will let you down. The entire theory connecting Sidney Rigdon and the Spaulding Romance with Joseph Smith in originating the Book of Mormon must be abandoned" (Doctrines and Dogmas of Mormonism, D. H. Bays, pages 24, 25).

In his noted attack on Joseph Smith, L. Woodbridge Riley makes a very interesting statement: "In spite of a continuous stream of conjecture, it is as yet impossible to pick out any special document as an original source of the Book of Mormon. In particular the commonly accepted Spaulding theory is insoluble from external evidence and disproved by internal evidence" (The Founder of Mormonism, page 172).

Joseph Smith was ignorant, feeble minded—"The young people of the town considered him not quite full-witted and, with the cruelty of youth, made him the butt for their practical jokes" (The Latter Day Saints, Kauffman, page 23).

". . . the extreme ignorance and apparent stupidity of this modern prophet" (Mormonism Unveiled, E. D. Howe, page 12).

Joseph Smith was brainy, intelligent—"He was confessedly illiterate, but nature had endowed him with a clear strong brain, and by sheer force of his intellectuality he was from the very beginning of his career a leader" (Doctrines and Dogmas of Mormonism, D. H. Bays, page 19).

Joseph Smith was a coward—" . . . secretiveness, untruthfulness, dishonesty, and cowardice followed him to his assassination" (The True Origin of Mormon Polygamy, Shook, page 21).

It would appear that there can scarcely be any greater test for a claim of divine authority than the test of coherence.

Joseph Smith was brave—"The Smiths are not without talent, and are said to be as brave as lions. Joseph, the chief, is a noble looking fellow, a mahomet every inch of him" (History of the Mormons, Smucker, page 147).

"He had physical courage, for he died game" (Dr. Wyl, quoted from World of Truth, June 4, 1913).

Joseph Smith shot four men—"It appears that Joseph Smith died bravely: he stood by the jamb of the door and fired four shots, bringing his man down every time" (The Latter Day Saints, Ruth and Reginald Kauffman, page 47).

Joseph Smith killed no one—"Guns were thrust in and discharged, and Joseph, with a revolver, returned two shots, hitting one man in the elbow" (The History of the Mormons, Lieutenant Gunnison, pages 123, 124).

Joseph's ancestors were very bad people—"Seventy reputable men who knew stated under oath that this Smith family was ignorant; that the males were drunkards, blasphemers, liars, thieves who put in their time digging for hidden treasures" (Peepstone Joe and the Peck manuscript, Lu B. Cake, page 9).

Joseph's ancestors were good people—"Lucy Mack Smith, the mother of Joseph Smith, was a woman of unusual strength of character, unquestioned piety, and of intensely visionary mental organization" (Lights and Shadows of Mormonism, Josiah F. Gibbs, page 23).

Joseph never read anything—"Joseph never read Moliere, nor anybody else" (Secretary of State John Hay in The Mormon Prophet's Tragedy).

He read comprehensively—"He read comprehensively, and as he advanced in reading and knowledge he assumed a spiritual aspect. He frequently perused the Bible and became quite familiar with its contents" (The Mormon Waterloo, W. R. Crowe, page 9).

The Three Witnesses renounce their testimony—"In 1830 the book was printed, and with it a sworn statement by Cowdery, Harris, and David Whitmer that an angel of God had shown them the plates of which the book purported to be a translation. Some years later these three men renounced Mormonism and declared said statements false" (Rev. W. A. Stanton, Three Important Movements, page 35).

Witnesses did not renounce their testimony—"Up to his dying day, Cowdery believed there was no fiction and deception either in the manifestation, or in the plate vision . . .

"Whitmer's entire faith in the reality of the vision of the plates is perpetuated by the inscription on his tomb . . .

"In a letter written by him in 1870, he [Harris] said: 'No man ever heard me in any way deny either the Book of Mormon or the administration of the angel that showed the plates'" (Woodbridge Riley, The Founder of Mormonism, pages 218, 220).

Sidney Rigdon was the founder of Mormonism—"We therefore must hold out Sidney Rigdon to the world as being the original author and proprietor of the whole Mormon conspiracy" (Mormonism Unveiled, E. D. Howe, page 290).

Sidney Rigdon was not connected with beginning—"In order to the successful refutation of the Mormon dogma it is not at all necessary to connect Sidney Rigdon with Joseph Smith in its inception. In fact, such a course will almost certainly result in failure; and the principal reason why it will fail is because it is not true . . . as a matter of fact, Sidney Rigdon was an earnest and able advocate of the reformation contemporaneously with Alexander Campbell" (The Doctrines and Dogmas of Mormonism, D. H. Bays, pages 22, 23).

With such incoherent, inconsistent testimony it is not any wonder that the Palmyra Courier-Journal (July 21, 1932) declared, "Joseph Smith was arrested and acquitted thirty-nine times." That periodical then added, at the end, that he was arrested on a "trumped up charge" and killed while in jail awaiting a hearing (see Restoration: A Study in Prophecy, E. A. Smith, pages 174-179). All this has biblical precedent.

All the writers of books against Joseph Smith appear to have had one thing in common—they were anti-Joseph Smith. . . .

And the chief priests and all the council sought for witness against Jesus, to put him to death, but found none; though many bare false witness against him, yet their witness agreed not together.

And there arose certain men and bore false witness against him, saying, We heard him say, I will destroy this temple that is made with hands, and within three days I will build another made without hands; but neither did their witness agree together.—Mark 14: 60-63.

The Three Standard Books

Having briefly applied the coherence test to books written against the Restoration let us now apply this same acid test to the Books of the Restoration. In addition to the Bible the Restoration has two major books: the Book of Mormon and the Doctrine and Covenants. The Book of Mormon claims to be of divine origin—a history of God's dealings with prehistoric inhabitants of America. The Doctrine and Covenants is also claimed to be of divine origin—a record of the revelations and prophecies given to this day and age.

To me the supreme test of whether the Bible, Book of Mormon, and Doctrine and Covenants are genuine records of God's dealings with men in their respective areas and times lies in the test of coherence. Surely one of the greatest characteristics of the Creator as manifest in his creations is coherence. All the writers of books against Joseph Smith appear to have had only one thing in common—they were anti-Joseph Smith, but they are a far cry from the biblical writers who appear to have drawn water from the same well. It appears instead each author drew water from a different well.

Let us now examine briefly the Book of Mormon and Doctrine and Covenants to see whether the coherency existing between biblical writings exists and extends into the relationships between Book of Mormon and Doctrine and Covenants.

Jesus is the living Christ—appears to men of all ages: manifested himself to Job (Job 19: 25), 1500 B.C.; appeared to brother of Jared (Ether 1: 85), 2200 B.C.; appeared to Isaiah (Isaiah 6: 1), 800 B.C.; appeared to Nephi and Jacob (II Nephi 8: 3, 4), 575 B.C.; appeared to 2,500 people (III Nephi 5: 1-17; 8: 27), A.D. 34; appeared to Paul (Acts 23: 11), A.D. 60; appeared to Joseph Smith, Sidney Rigdon (Doctrine and Covenants 76: 3), A.D. 1832.

And now, after the many testimonies which have been given of him, this is the testimony, last of all, which we give of him, that he lives; for we saw him even on the right hand of God.—Doctrine and Covenants 76: 3.

Bible, Book of Mormon, and Restoration prophets apparently all drew water out of the same well on the subject of a Living Christ, the son of God. Indeed, this "coherency" extends beyond the Three Standard Books of the church into the lives and experiences of Saints today.

A Present Day Savior

Is God a respecter of persons? If Christ revealed himself in person to individuals and groups in past ages, why not now?

When I was a teen-age boy in California there lived a Dorcas in our congregation. She was an elderly widow who went about doing good. If there was sickness anywhere she helped take care of the needs of the afflicted. Indeed, she took care of me the first two weeks of my sojourn on this planet. Finally this good woman became ill with an incurable disease. To save her life one leg was amputated, but this was only temporary aid. It was apparent her days were numbered. Knowing her time was short she made the request that she be allowed to bear one last testimony to the people she had so long loved and served. I shall never forget the prayer and testimony service when two of her husky sons carried her into the church in a wheel chair and placed her upon the rostrum facing the congregation. I saw her raise her hand and with a voice vibrant with conviction I heard her declare that Jesus Christ lives today because she saw him (and she named the day and the hour when he appeared to her in person).

Some time ago I attended the worship service at the conclusion of the Doctrine and Covenants Institute at the Stone Church in Independence, Missouri. I counted eight different testimonies of people in that meeting who testified they had seen Christ. Two of my relatives have made claim to the same experience. While I do not have the testimony of having seen Christ, I do have the testimony of his voice speaking to me both by gift of prophecy and by his Spirit under situations and circumstances that are inexplicable except in terms of an extraneous power and intelligence conveying to me information and inspiration from a source outside the bounds of my own emotions and resources. So clear and convincing are these evidences of the Spirit that I feel I have no more basis to deny them than I have to deny the existence of the paper on which I write these words.

On the basis of the biblical injunction—"Prove all things; hold fast that which is good," I have felt justified in reading the books and listening to the case against a living Christ and against his virgin birth, against his resurrection, against his atonement, against his coming again, and against divine revelation to men on the earth today, and I have even listened to a number of proponents of these ideas in person. Some have propounded questions I cannot answer such as the relationship of the emotions and the subconscious to the "so-called Spirit of God." In my experiences with this power we call "the Spirit," I have an entire series of facts and circumstances which indicate the existence of a supreme intelligence and force operating independent of and outside the resources of my own emotions and subconscious mind. Moreover, again and again the authenticity of these experiences has been corroborated by subsequent events.

I do not feel that it is required of me that I understand the inner workings of these things before I utilize their benefits any more than it is required of me that I understand the inner workings of electricity before I avail myself of the marvelous gifts it offers me. A child can ask a question, such as who made God, that an Einstein cannot answer. It is my philosophy to proceed on the basis of the best evidences at hand. On that basis I believe that Jesus Christ lives today and that the Restoration movement is of divine origin and offers me the most prospective and far-reaching opportunity to make my contribution to human welfare.

Bible, Book of Mormon, and Restoration prophets apparently all drew water out of the same well on the subject of a living Christ, the Son of God.

As in the case of the writers who are anti-Joseph Smith and anti-Restoration, I find in the books that are anti-a living, resurrected, returning Christ, that there is a Babylon and chaos of all shades of philosophies and even contradictory ideas as are to be found in the works of various modernists, humanists, relativists, and pragmatists. While there is much good wheat among all this chaff I see no good reason to abandon the coherent testimony of a living Christ as is to be found in the Book of Mormon (now strongly backed by the science of archaeology) and the Bible (also backed by archaeology) and our own Doctrine and Covenants, not to mention my own personal experiences and observations. Regardless of fame, prestige, or academic degrees, the great thinkers of our time who make pronouncements against the divinity of Jesus Christ with no more to back them than their own word do not impress me. Furthermore, the diversity of philosophies and concepts of these prophets of "Advanced thinking" strongly remind me of certain words of Joseph Smith:

And the day cometh that they who will not hear the voice of the Lord, neither the voice of his servants, neither give heed to the words of the prophets and apostles, shall be cut off from among the people; for they have strayed from mine ordinances, and have broken mine everlasting covenant; they seek not the Lord to establish his righteousness, but every man walketh in his own way, and after the image of his own god, whose image is in the likeness of the world, and whose substance is that of an idol, which waxeth old and shall perish in Babylon, even Babylon the great, which shall fall.—Doctrine and Covenants 1: 3.

(My dictionary defines Babylon as: pertaining to Babylon; like the confusion of tongues at Babel; mixed; confused.)

While chaos, confusion, and inconsistencies exist among the concepts of men even at the highest levels, the Three Sacred Books of the Restoration manifest patterns of consistency, coherency, and interlocking concepts.

Existence of Satan and Evil Spirits

There is perhaps no biblical concept more widely denied both among adherents of the popular churches and in the circles of so-called higher education than the concept of the existence of a personification of the Devil and his angels.

Despite the pronounced inclination of the natural mind to reject this concept, the Bible, Book of Mormon, and Doctrine and Covenants all speak as one voice on this subject. There is not one single dissident note but complete coherence even to terms of phraseology:

For we beheld Satan, that old serpent . . . —Doctrine and Covenants 76: 3.

That old serpent, which is the devil—Revelation 20: 2.

. . . even that old serpent, who is the devil—II Nephi 1: 104.

As on the question of a living Christ the son of God so also on the question of Satan the adversary of all good, the prophets of the Bible, Book of Mormon, and the Restoration all speak in harmonious accord.

One prophet even described the popular concepts of our day on this subject:

For behold, at that day shall he rage in the hearts of children of men, and stir them up to anger against that which is good; and others will he pacify, and lull them away into carnal security, that they will say, All is well in Zion; yea, Zion prospereth, all is well; and thus the devil cheateth their souls, and leadeth them away carefully down to hell.

And behold, others he flattereth away, and telleth them there is no hell; and he saith unto them, I am no devil, for there is none. —II Nephi 12: 24-28.

For those who read these words who have had a personal encounter with Satan and who have had to call on the name of Jesus Christ for deliverance as did Joseph Smith in the woods, the declarations of modernists, dumping the Satan concepts of the Bible into the same rubbish heap with witches, goblins, and fairies will make little impression.

I believe that Jesus Christ lives today and that the Restoration movement is of divine origin and offers me the most prospective and far-reaching opportunity to make my contribution to human welfare.

Biblical Support

Time and space prohibit any more than one more brief illustration of how the sacred books of the Restoration support and dovetail into each other.

Biblical support of the Book of Mormon—I once read the Bible with the sole purpose in mind of noting every major or minor text that points either directly or indirectly toward the Book of Mormon and the coming of a colony of Hebrews to the New World and the subsequent appearance of Jesus Christ to them in person after his resurrection. I found over one hundred such texts (listed on page 135 of the booklet, "Other Sheep," Herald House). These texts are "coherent" without exception—like parts of a puzzle which fit together to reveal an impressive picture. I quote only a few here.

Genesis 9: 18, 19—Noah's children spread over whole earth

Genesis 11: 8, 9—Scattered on face of all the earth from Babel

Genesis 21: 21, 22—In thy seed, all families of the earth to be blessed

Genesis 49: 22-26—Blessing of Joseph

Deuteronomy 33: 13-16—America described in Joseph's blessing

Jeremiah 49: 30-32—Jeremiah warns, "Flee, get you far off."

Isaiah 16: 8—Branch goes over the sea

Jeremiah 48: 32—Plants reach over the sea

Zephaniah 3: 10—Beyond rivers of Ethiopia

Isaiah 18: 1-3—Land shadowing with wings (America)

Ezekiel 37: 15-24—Stick (book) of Joseph

Isaiah 29: 1-4—Out of the ground

John 10: 16—"And other sheep I have, which are not of this fold; them also I must bring, and they shall hear my voice."

This smooth, coherent, consistent, running sequence of statements from biblical writers underwriting the Book of Mormon cannot be easily explained away.

Contrasting all this with modern writers seeking to disprove one of the claims in connection with the Book of Mormon makes the "coherence" of the biblical prophets all the more impressive.

Conclusions of the Experts on the Book of Mormon Characters

Anthon—"Prepared from a book of alphabets. Greek, Roman, and Hebrew letters; copied after Mexican calendar."

Clark—"As unlike letters or hieroglyphics of any sort as could be produced."

Angell—"Correspond to the Aramic or Chaldaic."

Nutting—"Not a letter of any foreign language in the whole."

Moldenske—"Remind one of Mesa inscription."

Shook—"I have counted thirty-six different characters in the facsimile, some of them occurring more than once, which are either identical with or which closely resemble the English alphabet."

Kennedy—"Unlike any alphabet seen by man."

Lamb—"Look like F, V, H, E, D, T, I, etc."

Davis—"Not a letter found in the characters which resemble any oriental language. Do not resemble anything, not even shorthand." (I am indebted to the researches of C. Ed. Miller for the above quotations. R. W.)

Other Subjects

In this article I have touched briefly on three subjects. (living Christ-Satan-Bible texts pointing toward the Book of Mormon) on which there is complete coherence and consistency between all writers in the Bible, Book of Mormon, and Doctrine and Covenants.

Let us now extend this from three subjects to 418. It has been the most pleasurable hobby of my lifetime to do

(Continued on page 17)

www.LatterDayTruth.org

A Promise Unfulfilled

The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he hath anointed me to preach the gospel to the poor, he hath sent me to heal the broken-hearted, to preach deliverance to the captives, and the recovering of sight to the blind; to set at liberty them that are bruised; to preach the acceptable year of the Lord.—Luke 4: 18, 19.

MOST OF US STILL have some of that warm glow experienced by all but the very hardhearted at Christmas time. We remember the nativity scenes with the baby Jesus in the manger, attended by Mary and Joseph. Each Christmas our thinking is directed to the babe; we sing of his birth and relate how the Old Testament prophets foretold his coming. This portrayal of Jesus in the manger, however, represents a promise unfulfilled.

There is a marked contrast between Jesus in the manger and Christ the man. On the one hand, we see Jesus sleeping peacefully, with the shepherds and Wise Men gathered around, conscious only in a vague and undefined way that this babe is to be regarded King of kings and will lead the people to salvation. Little can these shepherds and Wise Men know what it will mean to those who are to come under the influence of Christ the man. As they stand by the manger, this new kingdom which the baby Jesus is to usher in is still a long way off—a mystical not-of-this-world sort of thing. On the other hand, we see Christ the man. We see him entrusting his work to his disciples after three years of ministry and uttering these amazing words, "He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do."¹ Some of the magic is taken out of the manger scene when we realize that there is not to be a mighty overthrow of the existing state of things, that Christ's work has to be done by human beings. "Christ has no hands but our hands," then becomes no idle saying. The babe in the manger is a comfortable picture; the Christ who said, "Sell whatsoever thou hast, and give to the poor"² portrays quite another picture. We are also mindful of the great Christian tradition which tells how thousands of early Christians lost their lives at the hands of barbarian kings. Yes, these shepherds and Wise Men can have little idea of what it will mean to those who are to accept Christ as King.

The Kingdom

Also at Christmas we hear this passage from the Messiah: "The kingdom of this world is become the kingdom of our Lord, and of his Christ." Such a statement envisions a mystical, rapid change. The new dispensation replaces the old, and our world becomes the kingdom of God simply by the birth of Christ. But has the promise been fulfilled, has our world become the kingdom of God? Is the kingdom closer to us than it was to those shepherds and Wise Men long ago?

We have had almost two thousand years to put into practice Jesus' message. Certainly it is a vastly different world today than it would have been had there been no Christ, no Son of God in the flesh. Yet, now that we have begun another year, let us take time to ponder: How successful have we been? We might start with the very heart of the message—not with the law, the do's and don't's. Surely we have achieved the fundamentals, and it is just with the letter of the law that we have our troubles.

The Great Commandment

We know the story of the clever, unbelieving lawyer who asked, "Which is the greatest commandment in the law?" And Christ's answer, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment. And the second is like unto it;

David A. Russell is a specialist third class assigned to the Armed Forces in the Saran area of France. He is the son of R. Melvin and Eleanor Russell who represent the General Church in Flint, Michigan, area.

David was born in Wichita, Kansas, in 1934, was graduated from Graceland College in 1954, and received his B.A. in English from the University of Michigan (Ann Arbor) in 1956.

He was ordained a priest in 1955.

Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."³ Now certainly we have kept these fundamental and so simply worded commandments.

Let us look at the first commandment. We pride ourselves in being monotheists. We point to the struggles of the early Hebrews to confine their worship to one God. But today we still worship many gods. We worship the god of gadgets; the god of education; the god of sports cars, fashions, fine houses; the god of spectator entertainment; the god of keeping up with the Joneses, leisure time, retirement at the age of forty. We need to ask ourselves, Is our allegiance to God, or do we place it elsewhere? What is the motivation of our busy-ness? Do our activities—and this includes church activities—spring from a love of God and a desire to serve him, or are they merely something to occupy our restless minds and bodies?

It would appear, then, that we have not lived by the first great commandment. Perhaps we have been more successful with the second; after all, isn't it easier to understand? It deals with people and it seems easier to know how to deal with people than with God. We have never seen God and our concept of him is even rather vague at times.

Enforced Reform

Again, Christianity had nineteen hundred and fifty-five years to put into practice the word "brotherhood" which we toss around so glibly. Then what happened? The Supreme Court of the United States had to act, to be our Christian conscience for us. Attitudes, however, cannot be legislated so our job is cut out for us. Suffice it to say that the implementation of the Supreme Court decision has been a real test of our Christianity. But tolerance, equal rights, fair employment practices, unrestricted housing, and all the rest are not the answer—there must be understanding.

Some people accuse Protestantism of of being merely a middle-class organization which has lost its sense of mission. In England at the time of the Evangelical movement it was considered improper and in very poor taste for a clergyman of the established church to preach to the poor. The church wasn't too concerned with such people, it was essentially a church for the upper classes. Similarly, some say Latter Day Saints have their own brand of exclusiveness—that they huddle together serenely confident that they are the chosen people, even though the world may not be aware of it. Such ideas are not compatible with the message of Christ. We begin to see, then, the extent to which the promise of Jesus and his kingdom remains unfulfilled.

Certainly much of what passes for Christianity today bears little resemblance to the type of activity expressed in the Scripture at the beginning of this article. As Luke reports the ministry of Christ, it begins with the keynote message delivered to his home-town people in Nazareth. Hearing that keynote, wouldn't we expect what followed to be a religion of daring? And seeing the culmination on a bloody cross, can we doubt that he meant the keynote the way it sounded? The most real personal peace and fulfillment comes not from a retreat from the disturbing questions so much as from meeting them head on in Jesus' daring fashion.

The New Era

Many feel we are living in a time of great crises. They see the need for the church of Christ to regenerate society as never before. There have been many changes in our way of life the past few years. These have been awesome changes. We have seen the atomic bombing of Japan and the subsequent development of nuclear weapons, the rising tide of nationalism, Soviet aggression and consolidation of her allies. Modern technology has given us more free time and the accompanying problem of how to use wisely this new leisure. Television is a new invention, and what a hold it has on our lives! Hollywood answered the challenge of television with wide-screen movies and spent millions to produce huge spectacles. Frozen food is so widely consumed that we forget that it, too, is a phenomenon of the post-war period. Automation has come to have real meaning for us. We now not only have to concern ourselves with international law but interplanetary law as well.

In the preface to the book Days to Remember: America 1945-1955, by John Gunther and Barnard Quint, is this statement:

There have been times in the past ten years when almost every adult American was "sweating it out" in one sense or another, but we have met successfully a lot of lively and bewildering challenges, and we've often had fun doing it. If we see how well we did manage to deal with the challenges of the last ten years, perhaps we'll have a better perspective on the challenges of the next and the next.

INTERIM REPORT FROM PRESIDENCY

Next week's issue will carry an important epistle from the First Presidency. It is a review of recent progress of the church and a deep look into the immediate future. It will be read with interest and profit by every member of the church.—Editor

Yes, we might well ask, what lies ahead? In light of world conditions and the still waiting promise of the kingdom we ask, What shall be our task in the coming year? I suggest that we move forward with a faith that says, "With God all things are possible."⁴ "For God hath not given us the spirit of fear; but of power and of love, and of a sound mind."⁵

There is no doubt that the world is changing; it is always changing. We will change with the times, but it is important that we be aware of change so that we can direct its course. We must keep abreast of the times. Some of the old values have been discredited. The slogan "make the world safe for democracy" was turned into a mockery. We can no longer rely on preventive wars and protective alliances. In the church there were ideas once commonly held which are no longer believed. The hymns, for example, which expressed the idea that heaven is paved with streets of gold and those assigned there would be granted an eternity of rest are not found in The Hymnal.

Questions

In 1958 we need to do some of the asking. Shall we sit by and let others run our world, or shall we make our voices heard? We need to be asking some of the big questions. How much shall we spend on armament, on education, on scientific research? How can our church best meet the needs of the world? How can I contribute to the work of the church? Am I a part of the answer or part of the problem?

We need to ask ourselves, What will be the basis for our church activities? Some call the basis for Christian activity "concern for mankind." Dr. Evan Shute calls it "caring." How do we go about helping people? Chiefly by being available at the right time. Professor T. V. Smith writes:

A young minister in the Midwest told me within the month a moving tale, documented with cases from fornication forfended to suicide prevented, of how he had been of help simply by staying in the church one night a week with lights on and doors open so that anyone might come in from God knows what in the lighted darkness of a great city. Such usefulness is no pipe dream.⁶

In 1958 we needn't become so concerned with our troubles that we can't appreciate the joy of living, for we have this testimony of Scriptures: "Men are, that they might have joy." Robert Browning puts it poetically in "Saul" when David says:

How good is man's life, the mere living!
how fit to employ
All the heart and the soul and the senses for ever in joy!

God will continue to demand our best efforts. We are closest to him when we live up to our potential, and in this way only do we fulfill the purpose of our creation.

As we face the days ahead let us be mindful of the contrast between Jesus the babe, a promise unfulfilled, and Christ the man, a promise fulfilled only to the extent that we take upon us the work which many years ago Christ entrusted to those who would follow him. We have a long way to go in preaching the gospel to the blind, the captive, the brokenhearted. But we have Christ's promise that he will go with us, guide and sustain us, and if we but catch the vision of the kingdom of God the results of our labor are guaranteed.

1. John 14: 12
2. Mark 10: 20
3. Matthew 22: 35-38
4. Based on Matthew 19: 26
5. II Timothy 1: 7
6. "The Leisure of the Theory Class," T. V. Smith, The Saturday Review, August 25, 1956, page 28.

He Leads

A Full Life

Blind Man Active

In Work, Church, Community

WALTER A. ELSE of St. Thomas, Ontario, must have heard Jesus say, "He that loseth his life for my sake shall find it."

In spite of one of man's worst handicaps Brother Else continues active in a full-time job at the Weatherhead Company in St. Thomas, Ontario, where he has been steadily employed in assembly work for the past eight years. In addition to this he is active in church and community affairs.

Walter started having trouble with his eyesight when he was seven; in spite of surgery his sight faded to 5 per cent in 1942 when he was an active Scoutmaster, a position he had had since 1940 and in which he continued until 1943.

Because of his avid church interests, Walter would not continue to be blind and quickly learned to "see" with his ears and hands. Through the Canadian National Institute for the Blind he was able to purchase the entire Bible in a library of records which he has heard many times since 1943. He is a regular "reader" of the Saints' Herald and other church publications, including a large number of tracts. His gracious mother and other members of his family read these to him regularly. His knowledge of the church and its current events is phenomenal.

Walter has been an active church school teacher for years. From 1949 to 1951 he served his branch as Zion's League president. In 1951 he also was the vice-president and recreational chairman in the young adult group. From 1953 to 1955 he was active as Zion's League superintendent and has been proficient as the program and recreational chairman in the St. Thomas Branch Men's Club for the past year or more. At a missionary series one is certain to find Walter on the front row each night as he is at all the church services.

In 1955 the Weatherhead Company of Canada, Ltd., where he is employed, and the International Association of Machinists Local Lodge No. 1804, of which he is a member, shared his round-trip airplane expense to Burbank, California, where he was presented a guide dog as a gift from International Guiding Eyes, Inc. The televised presentation was made at Los Angeles Wrigley Field during a ball game on August 13, 1955. Former Secretary of the United States Navy Daniel A. Kimball made the presentation of a certificate and the guide dog after Walter had completed a several weeks' course with "Joey."

Walter finds time for community activities in addition to his many church activities and daily work. For the past two years he has served as president of the White Cane Club of Elgin County which has eighty registered blind members. This club is affiliated with the Canadian Council of the Blind and financially supported by the Canadian National Institute for the Blind. In addition to being president he has served as the recreational and program director of this club for the past several years.

Walter lives a full life; he has hobbies, too. He enjoys swimming and bowling. During the summer months it is a familiar sight to see him on his bicycle built for two with his brother, Priest Raymond Else, or other neighborhood boys. Of course, he is often seen strolling along with his faithful friend and eyes, Joey.

Often one can hear Walter playing his mouth organ and guitar to entertain others. His tape recorder is frequently seen set up in church and reunion services where he records entire services to take to the sick, the aged, and any interested member or nonmember.

Interestingly enough, Walter also does his own typing. In various ways this fine Christian fellow is a revelation to many in spite of his handicap.

AL PELLETIER

Summering with the Church in Europe

Part II

SUMMERING IN EUROPE is a privilege in itself. Our major interest, however, was not merely to see the fine Old World but to try feeling its pulse in this age of progress and to be able to realize something of the opportunities and responsibilities which our church members face in telling as well as living the gospel story. We saw all we could absorb of the picturesque and historical landmarks, as well as the age-old grandeurs of nature. Friends old and new saw to that. Such generous hospitality cannot be excelled.

To us the efforts of a comparative handful of enthusiastic followers of Christ, representing under grave handicap, the primitive gospel restored, stand out—glowing with life and promise, while kingdoms and their past glories are fast fading. We were finally tempted to think, as we did when summering with the church overseas in 1951, that—comparatively speaking—they seem to do more for themselves and others with the little they have than we do with our much. There are nonmember dependables in all our women's groups—especially mothers of neighborhood children who attend Sunday school. The children bring them in!

I would like in this issue to digress enough to try to picture the field ripening for harvest "over there." The Old World is surprisingly Protestant and still protesting. We found just a few worshipers in any church or cathedral we entered in 1951 or in 1957, mostly grouped up in front, with here and there a lone person going through the rituals, lips, hands, eyes moving routinely, while over the whole edifice lingers a solitude, cold and dark in the midst of masterpieces of architecture, sculpture, intricate carvings in wood, marble, stone—monuments to the industry, devotion, and sacrifice of a tax-burdened people.

However, many of the people seem laconically to follow the age-old pattern of "what's good enough for mother, is good enough for me," only they limit their activity nowadays to the payment of the obligatory taxes in order to insure a church for infant baptism, a church marriage, and Christian burial rites. "That's all there is in it for us," confided two people I have in mind, and of course there are countless others who apparently feel the same. Surely we here in Joseph's land are vitally interested in the field of opportunity for proselyting which faces our church abroad. We counted our experiences with nonmembers part of our church life in Europe, as we do at home.

That we are living in a fast changing world is well known, also the progress which the international "visiting program" has been bringing about year by year for several decades to a sad but glorious Old World—all the world known to mankind until Columbus and others found the "promised land." Progress in the tangible has come to the old countries with tremendous pace since World War II. Unknown comforts and pleasures are prevalent except that money is too often scarce in some countries. The scars of war have been mostly obliterated; wherever we traveled we witnessed tremendous building programs even where there had been no war.

But the phase of progress most interesting to us was the apparent urge of people to have a more satisfying Christian life. As one woman with a doctor's degree in economics said to us, "Why cannot America, which has given the world so generously of other helps and so much know-how, give to us a better concept of God and Christ and the interpretation of His word which can be applied to meeting present day problems, in place of the narrow concepts of the Middle Ages, which many people still cling to?" She continued, "I broke my mother's heart when I left her church. She thinks I am lost. But I was not thinking for myself. Worship there was all form with no spiritual power, and I couldn't endure it." Of the war aftermath she commented spiritedly, "We got a good licking! We are trying to forget the past. A generation has grown which has no knowledge of the war. The present and the future are all we live for."

We were spending a week with this friend whom we had met on a train out of Friburg, Germany, in 1951. She had insisted on this visit when she learned we were returning to Europe. We were having a Sabbath hike up Sunday Mountain, as I have always called it, because it has been landscaped with lovely paths, observation points, and rest benches for the comfort of Sunday strollers. Views of the surrounding mountains—the Black Forest—were superb and thought provoking.

This brings to mind a condition which we noticed particularly in Germany but which is more or less prevalent everywhere over there: on week ends and holidays people seemed to pour out of towns and cities on the trains, trams, buses, enroute to the mountains, the seaside, the ski jumps. One sees families hiking, wheeling babies, carrying lunches, going somewhere to relax and enjoy nature. They are enthusiastically fond of the mountains, waters, and views. They are not irreligious. God's in his heaven, and they love his world. Simple living leaves more time for simple pleasures, which in turn take time!

CULTURES AND skills of the Old World are prevalent now as in the distant past. Masterpieces in mural, portraits, huge tapestries done in intricate designs embellish the ancient castles, chalets, and "halls." Entire ceilings are amazingly modeled in plaster in conventional designs or with figures and fruits in relief. There is also colorful needlepoint upholstery. What a display of talent and love of the beautiful!

Talent for and appreciation of the arts are inherent in posterity. We enjoyed this in the homes of the Saints, and also their musical endeavors. How they love to sing, and the men do most of the accompanying! I believe that we prized most highly the privilege of being welcomed into the homes of our church members. There indeed we felt pulsing the heart-throbs of kinship and wished for a longer time with each and every one.

I would like to digress still further and tell of our "one world" experience when we attended the convention of Rotary International in Lucerne, Switzerland, May 19-23. We traveled by air from our home in Independence to the convention, to which my husband was a delegate. Fraternizing with 9,915 delegates and visitors from 78 countries was a revealing experience. I expected to feel among strangers, but dozens of charming English-speaking hostesses greeted us every few steps as we entered the lobbies of "Friendship House," the focal gathering place, located on famous Lake Lucerne. Lucerne itself is surrounded by snow-capped mountains, and at our feet wherever we went were rather formal gardens of annuals in planned color schemes. Thousands of yellow and blue pansies and as many white daisies, hydrangeas, lilacs, and spirea and other varieties familiar to us bloomed on the lawns.

INSIDE SPACIOUS Friendship House lounge we gazed with awe and amazement. Here were heavily blooming shrubs, transplanted and set among statuary and ferns—rhododendrons, azaleas, bird of paradise, in garden formation to separate lounging areas where oriental rugs covered the floors upstairs and down, where we read each other's Rotary name tags, enjoyed many surprise greetings, met again, and so on. We knew that Sanford and Agnes Fisher of Boston, and son Lee, were present somewhere. Although the registrar was helping us locate each other we met suddenly in the lobby the first afternoon. Now I surely felt at home. Our hilarity brought on a watching photographer's flash. Just what he wanted!

As we entered the reception quarters adjoining the lounge, gentlemen hosts were lined up behind counter-desks ready to dispense information, anticipating one's every need. Every service was furnished free that one could dream of, from rooms with desks and writing materials to Red Cross service. In fact service and fellowship were emphasized by President Lang from Italy, all speakers, and in all printed matter. I did not know that the Red Cross originated in Switzerland. Its present International President, Dr. Leopold Boissier of Geneva, made this striking statement, "The advent of peace is a necessity of such import that any contribution, however modest, that helps to bring peace one step nearer is worth while. The main point is not to give way to despair and above all things to be ready for service." He also said, "International understanding requires much work. It calls for free mingling of diverse opinions and cultures in mutual respect, and it is rooted in personal friendships multiplied and sustained through the years with many men of many other nations. . . . It is now a question of the survival of mankind, and to achieve this, we must unite all forces working for the establishment of a world free from the constraint of hatred and fear." This type of thinking dominated the convention. Imagine 10,000 Christians in a nondenominational gathering earnestly planning to serve God and to "understand each other." There were always prayers and grateful recognition of Divinity. We felt quite at home in the prevailing atmosphere of good will and achievement.

MUCH of the planning was for young people. They had their own headquarters, programs, side trips, and parts in the main discussion. A popular activity of Rotary is to sponsor international youth camps. One of the oldest of these camps is in Sweden and was described by a young man from the university town of Lund who had led this camp for two years—a wonderful place. We toured it. It was a postwar project with the object of bringing together boys of different belligerent occupied countries, to help them know each other. Twelve boys were chosen the first time. Now the limit is twenty, selected from various applicants. Said he, "Discussions gave us opportunity to rid ourselves of old prejudices and to learn respect for the other's point of view. Only as friends could we have been so frank with each other, and we were friends."

The discussions carried on by the young people were inspiring. They laid bare their hearts. One girl from Greece came to the States through the student fund of the Georgia Rotarians. In her report to the moderator she said, "Rotary for me was not merely a chance to study in America. It was America itself. I met the heart of the American people, and I learned about Americans by living in the homes of Rotarians. I feel that they are dear relatives of mine. At the state University of Georgia I met forty-eight students from other countries. Close friendly ties developed between us and we learned to love people of other countries; and now we love the countries because we have dear friends there. [I thought of Grace-land!] If everybody could have this opportunity, love would replace hatred in everybody's heart, and there would no longer be any war."

In conversation with an information clerk at the railway station I exclaimed about the efficiency, hospitality, and the effort to please we witnessed in this small city of sixty-five thousand. Said he, "We are a poor country. We have no natural resources. We have to ship in our raw materials. We have nothing to sell but the labor of our hands and good will. Why shouldn't we be courteous? It costs no more to be courteous than to be crabbed." (That is what my husband has always said, so I believed the man!)

We witnessed a tremendous spectacle one evening in "Festival Hall," a huge auditorium across town where the daily programs were carried on. This was a Swiss folklore festival of colorful pageantry called "The Dreaming Apple Tree." Besides folklore we learned much of the customs and characteristics of the Swiss people. The six hundred performers wore original Swiss costumes. The national dances, all expertly directed, offered a treat to the eyes and ears. The setting was a "space theatre," the massive central stage built especially for the convention and designed with these productions in mind. The players literally emerged from the audience. There was a variety of animals, carts, wagons, and groups singing, dancing, and playing instruments; it was a stupendous undertaking in which people of all ages from various parts of Switzerland took part. The action was built around the development of an apple tree through dormancy to full flower and fruition, through the four seasons.

ANOTHER EVENING a pageant was presented where more than six hundred took part and the heroes of Swiss history for five hundred years back were portrayed in dramatic situations, "setting scenes full of significance for Switzerland and for free men of all time." The first scene was the story of William Tell, and it was almost too real!

There were many other attractions, but the atmosphere of the whole four days continually reminded me of General Conference. As usual we dreaded the partings. How often during this very special summer we were reminded of how far apart people are geographically, and yet they are so fundamentally alike. There was certainly an abundance of enlightened thinking expressed and a unity of purpose which was inspiring. Many times I thought of the divine light which accompanied the Restoration of the gospel. In this connection I will quote from the Kansas City Star of October 23 a letter from Mr. Cliff Bailey, entitled "A Star and a Thought":

"Troubled as we may be because of the problems presented by Sputnik, Little Rock, Syria, Nasser, et al., we might well consider the words of Henry Ward Beecher, spoken long before the turn of the century, 'A man might frame and let loose a star to roll in its orbit, and yet not have done so memorable a thing before God as he who lets go a golden-orbed thought to roll through the generations of time.'" And I wondered if Mr. Bailey and Henry Ward Beecher, who was born in 1813 (Joseph Smith was born in 1805), knew of the golden orb of the Restoration message which broke the sound barrier between man and God in this generation.

I quote my husband again: "The spirit of the Restoration is the spirit of progress!"

Home Column

FEBRUARY 10, 1958

(133) 13

www.LatterDayTruth.org

By Pearl Wilcox

Journeying and Reminiscing

Part II

Palmyra

ON MY SECOND VISIT to Palmyra, New York, I decided to search out more of the background of the town that has made world-renowned history since 1816 when the Joseph Smith family moved there. I was well repaid for my days spent in the Palmyra library checking old histories and files.

I found that Palmyra was a thriving village twenty years before Rochester, New York, was even thought of. At that time the whole Drumlin Hill region was an unbroken wilderness. It was covered by virgin forest except for a few acres that had been cleared by the original Indians for growing corn, beans, and squash.

One of the first public buildings erected in Palmyra was a rather commodious blockhouse, to be used as a refuge or place of safety in case of trouble with the Indians. Palmyra was then the western frontier, or 'wild and wooly west.' It was customary for the villagers to climb to the summit of Wintergreen Hill, or some other near-by eminence, where they could watch the settlers fell trees and erect blockhouses and other buildings.—A. B. C. History of Palmyra, page 12.

The first schoolhouse, which was erected in 1793, was known as the "Rhode Island" settlement, now east Palmyra. This building was also used for fourteen years as a place of worship. West of the town of Palmyra on Durfee road another log schoolhouse was erected on property that had been donated by John Swift, the original real estate man.

In those days the education of the teacher was determined by his ability to work hard problems in arithmetic. If he passed the test, he was hired and became a man of influence in the neighborhood where he "boarded around" with families.

Since it was the religious background of the town I was mostly seeking, I found in the History of Wayne County that a mass meeting was called in 1806 to discuss the building of a place of worship for the pioneers.

Oliver Clark offered $100.00 on the building fund if the building was built on the north side of Mud Creek and would give only $50.00 if it was built on the south side. Humphrey Sherman made the same offer if the building was put on the south side of the creek. After a heated discussion the "south siders" won. The building was built and dedicated in 1810, after which it was given over to the Presbyterians. Seven years later the congregation was divided, and those known as the "western" Presbyterians were organized with fifty-six members. Their church building was erected adjacent to the village cemetery on Church Street opposite the present St. Anne's Catholic Church. This is thought to be the church with which four of the Smith family united. I find the site of the church marked with a plaque, but since that early day, a street has been cut through the hill leaving the old cemetery high on the bluff.

The first Baptist church of Palmyra was organized in 1800. A chapel was erected by the side of the road leading to Macedon on the west, and, when the township was later divided, the chapel was on the Macedon domain, but the Palmyrans continued to worship at the old chapel until 1835. Then a new organization was affected and a new chapel erected in Palmyra village.—A. B. C. History, page 17.

Methodism was first introduced to Palmyra by the "circuit rider" preachers, rugged men on hardy horses. They covered an extensive territory with a never outworn text, "Behold the Lamb of God." In the summer months they preached in the groves and in the winter in schoolhouses. During one summer they held a revival and campmeeting in the grove on Vienna Street and in the log schoolhouse on Durfee Street during the winter. Their first meeting house was built in 1822.

Zion Episcopal Parish was organized June 23, 1823, with the members holding their first meetings in an academy building which occupied the site of the present Catholic Church.

Three hundred and fifty families had located in Palmyra by 1810, making the population 2,187. This would make an average of six persons to a family. By 1820 the population had increased to 2,719. The village was incorporated into a town in 1827.

A local paper of that time stated that the village of Palmyra had a favorable location and was destined to become a place of considerable importance, as it was situated in a fertile territory and had an industrious population.

The Erie Canal project was started July 4, 1817, making Palmyra the western terminal. This project was finished and the water turned into the canal on October 26, 1825. This made a new highway for emigration and commerce. It was easy to foresee why this town ranked well among the villages of the west in that early day.

Father Smith had been hearing these good reports of this thriving village in New York. When he arrived in Palmyra he found the place as represented. The people were friendly, and he had no trouble in finding work. Immediately he wrote his wife that he had sent a Mr. Howard with a team and wagon for the family to move as soon as possible.

After a twenty-four-day trip of hardships as the result of bad roads and sometimes no roads at all and the treachery of a teamster who finally left them at Utica, the family arrived at Palmyra, worn out and penniless.

In the meantime Father Smith had rented a small frame house on the eastern outskirts of the village on Vienna Street where they planned to live temporarily until they could afford to make a down payment on land of their own. The family at this time consisted of Father and Mother Smith and eight children. The oldest boy, Alvin, was a husky fellow of seventeen years, while Don Carlos, the youngest was a babe in arms.

Alvin had no trouble finding work as a carpenter's helper with a crew of pioneer home builders. Father Smith was an all-around handy man. He was a good cooper; he could make split-wood chairs and baskets and birch brooms; he knew enough about masonry to dig wells and curb them, dig cisterns and line them, and build fireplaces and stone walls for fences. Hyrum and Joseph often assisted him.

Mother Smith was a good cook. She was handy at fancy work and painted oilcloth to be used on tables and stands. The oldest daughter proved to be much help, especially after they established a confectionery store, where they specialized in gingerbread, root beer, pies, and boiled eggs. The shop was well patronized by the village and country youth, especially on holidays and military training days, as prevailed at that period. It is stated in one history that Father Smith fashioned a handcart that he pushed through the neighborhood selling wares.

The Smiths' efforts proved very profitable, and they soon had money for the down payment for purchasing one hundred acres of land. It was located two miles south of Palmyra in Manchester Township, being four miles from the village of Manchester.

From Mother Smith's history I quote:

My husband and his sons, Alvin and Hyrum, set themselves to work to pay for one hundred acres of land which Mr. Smith contracted with the land agent. In a year we made nearly all the first payment, erected a log house and commenced clearing.

This was unimproved land, mostly covered with heavy timber. Some of the elms were so large that they had to be "niggered" off. They were too large to be cut with a cross-cut saw. This statement was made by William Smith, a brother of the Prophet and published in the Saints' Herald (Volume 31, page 643).

In developing the land in this early period it was customary to fell the trees one year, log them up and drag them in windrows, with ox teams, and the second year burn them and sell the ashes to one of the "asheries" in the town. Wheat was broadcast among the stumps, harrowed with a wooden peg-toothed harrow, or dragged over with a large limb of a maple or oak tree. Owing to the decayed leaves and vegetation the soil was very productive.

The Smiths were happy in their new home, as Mother Smith wrote:

It was now only two years since we entered Palmyra, almost destitute of money, property or acquaintance. The hand of friendship was extended on every side, and we blessed God, with our whole heart, for his mercy, which endureth forever.—page 74.

The little log house that nestled among the trees was built in 1818 with two rooms on the ground floor and two rooms in the garret. The Smiths had planned this only for a temporary home, but they were still there in the spring of 1821, when it became necessary to add a slab addition to provide for more room. Their ninth and last child was born July 18, 1821 (A. B. C. History, page 27).

In the year 1819 a religious awakening started in Massachusetts, gradually moving down the eastern seaboard and gathering momentum as it spread until it became a veritable religious contagion. After reaching New York it spread to the rural districts upstate, reaching Palmyra and vicinity in the spring of 1820.—A. B. C. History, page 21.

A young Yale graduate, Reverend Jesse Townsend, was assigned as pastor of the Western Presbyterian Church. He was the first to start a revival in Palmyra. He was soon joined by the Presbyterians of East Palmyra, closely followed by the Baptist minister and the two Methodist ministers.

The revival started late in April before the rural people began their spring plowing; this gave the farmers a chance to attend meetings. Even the business and professional men neglected their work and shut up shop.

During the revivals, the ministers avoided preaching any doctrine except such as could be accepted by all the denominations. Their sole effort was to lead the unsaved to believe and accept Christ.

According to a Rochester newspaper, the revival was far spread:

More than two hundred souls have been hopeful subjects of divine grace in Palmyra, Macedon, Manchester, Lyons, and Ontario during the late revival.—Religious Advocate of Rochester.

A week later in Palmyra and Macedon, more than four hundred were converted. The work was still progressing, and in the neighboring towns the number was greatly increasing.

The school where Joseph Smith, Sr., taught in South Royalton

Four of the Smith family—Mother Lucy, Hyrum, Samuel, and Sophronia—had joined the Presbyterian church, and they were urging young Joseph to do likewise. But Joseph had been attending the Methodist meetings in the grove on Vienna Street and had joined a class of probationers, so he naturally favored that church.

During the second week in May the revival showed signs of breaking up, and many of the converts were solicited by the different churches. This caused considerable contention. The good feeling temporarily exhibited during the union meetings disappeared, and the ministers contended fiercely with each other (Times and Seasons, Volume 3, page 722).

Young Joseph, standing somewhat apart, was watching with interest this religious excitement and wondering greatly at the confusion and strife.

Mr. Lane, a presiding elder of the Methodist church, was visiting Palmyra and vicinity. He was a talented man possessing a good share of literary endowments and apparent humility (Oliver Cowdery Letter No. 3). He made a special appeal to those who were undecided, those who could not make up their minds and were procrastinating the day of their repentance.

His manner of communication was peculiarly calculated to awaken the intellect of the hearers and arouse the sinner to look about him for safety. Much good instruction was always drawn from his discourses on the Scripture.—Oliver Cowdery Letter No. 3.

The contention and rivalry among the ministers became much heated, and it was during this stage that the Methodist minister took his text from the first chapter of James, fifth and sixth verses. This is in accordance with the local historian, William Bean of Palmyra, and published in his book. Also in the Saints' Herald of 1884, page 643, and the Zion's Ensign of January 13, 1894, we have the testimonies of William Smith, a brother. This, the last living witness, was six years younger than his brother, Joseph.

At the age of seventy-two he made this statement in Deloit, Iowa: "And here let me say, that it was the suggestion of the Rev.— that my brother asked of God. He said, 'Ask of God.'" William undoubtedly gave the name of the minister, but for precaution the editors left it out.

Ten years later in an interview, his testimony was:

Rev. Mr. Lane of the Methodists preached a sermon on "What church shall I join," and the burden of his discourse was to ask God, using as a text, "If any of you lack wisdom let him ask of God, who giveth to all men liberally." And of course when Joseph went home and was looking over the text, he was impressed to do just what the preacher had said.

Joseph came to the conclusion that he must either remain in darkness and confusion or else do as James directed; that is, ask of God. At length he came to the determination to ask of God, concluding that if He gave wisdom to them that lacked wisdom and would give liberally, and not upbraid, he might venture (Times and Seasons, Volume 3, page 728).

Faith filled his soul as he retired into the solitude of the woods west of his home. The answer he received startled the community when it became known. It agitated not only the people of the neighborhood but those of the entire country and eventually the whole civilized world.

For several hundreds of years the world had been wrapped in spiritual darkness by false traditions and ceremonies borrowed from paganism, making the gospel of Christ unrecognizable. In 1820 when Joseph experienced his heavenly vision, the universal doctrine in the world was that the canon of Scriptures was complete with the Bible, and that heaven was closed against further revelation.

God had made his choice and singled out a young man with a very limited amount of education to bring about his purpose. This can well be summed up by a statement made by Oliver Cowdery in later years:

Not many mighty and noble were called in ancient times, because they always knew so much that God could not teach them, and a man that would listen to the voice of the Lord and follow the teachings of heaven, always was despised and considered to be of the foolish class.

Like Samuel of old, Joseph Smith was called of the Lord in his childhood, while his mind was yet unwrapped by false theories, tradition, and the creeds of uninspired men.

Our Readers Say . . .

Not often are we moved to write a letter to the editor. However, we took such sharp exception to ideas presented on the editorial page of the Herald for December 30 that we feel compelled to express our objections.

We are among those, sophisticated or not, who feel that the word "censorship" connotes great evil. We grant that there are certain standards of public decency which should be upheld. However, censorship is very dangerous both to the individual and the community. We believe that God gave man free agency in order to allow him to develop moral strength. The exercise of choice by the individual, not the removal of choice by some arbitrarily appointed group, builds character. Moreover, censorship in the hands of a dictator is a very dangerous weapon, and the line between the censorship of morals and the censorship of ideas is a very fine one indeed. "Big Brother" is more than a flight of the imagination in this period of our history.

We also disagree with the idea expressed in the section entitled "Modern Bluebeard." The instruction concerning murderers in Numbers 35: 16 was given by the Lord for a specific group of people at a specific time. The problems of the children of Israel once removed from slavery and involved in invading and conquering territory are only remotely similar to those of twentieth century America. The enlightenment of an age which shows compassion for the insane and attempts to discover motives is surely divinely inspired. The section which commands death for murderers also provides for the establishment of cities of refuge and permits the private avenging of murder. Is there anyone who would suggest that these institutions be set up in modern times? Yet they were prescribed by the same divine revelation as was the death penalty for the taking of a life. Finally we recognize that the Mosaic law of an "eye for an eye" and a life for a life has been superseded by a higher morality which teaches love of God and love of fellow man.

Lest we be misunderstood we are not protesting against capital punishment per se. We are objecting to a very limited and slavish interpretation of the Scriptures. We need not protest this to a God who, by the restoration of direct contact with man in the latter days, has indicated that there is "yet more light and truth to break forth from his word." We sincerely hope that the placing of this point of view on the editorial page does not imply that this is the official position of the church in regard to interpretation of the Bible.

BILL AND BARBARA HIGDON
Houston, Texas

Question Time

Question

Matthew 27:64 reads, ". . . so the last error shall be worse than the first." The Inspired Version (verse 65) reads, ". . . so this last imposture will be worse than the first." I would like to know what was the first error or imposture.

MRS. T. F.

Michigan

Answer

We should begin reading at verse 64 to show the whole argument and who is talking.

Now the next day that followed the day of preparation, the chief priests and Pharisees came together unto Pilate, saying, Sir, we remember that deceiver said while he was yet alive, After three days I will rise again. Command therefore, that the sepulchre be made sure until the third day, lest his disciples come by night, and steal him away, and say unto the people, He is risen from the dead; so this last imposture will be worse than the first.—Matthew 27: 64, 65, I.V.

The chief priests and Pharisees are speaking. In their opinion Jesus was an impostor of the Messiah. His claim to Messiahship was the first error or "imposture."

If his prophecy of resurrection should be proclaimed as having come to pass, and they (the Pharisees) could not produce his body, it would vindicate his disciples' belief in him. In their mind, this would be the "last straw" or an even worse condition.

Of course, he was resurrected and their guards and safeguards were to no avail. The prophecy was vindicated and Christ proclaimed.

A. H. YALE

Question

I have always sent my annual tithing report to the office of the Presiding Bishop. Now I wonder if I should send it instead to the bishop's agent in our district or to the solicitor in our branch?

MRS. G. A. W.

Michigan

Answer

The usual procedure is to give the tithing statement to the branch solicitor. This serves the purpose of keeping the solicitor informed of those members who have made their accounting, and the tithing statement comes to headquarters through the bishop or bishop's agent to whom the solicitor reports.

However, any member is free to mail a tithing statement direct to the Presiding Bishopric at the Auditorium, Independence, Missouri, or to give it to the bishop's agent or bishop in the district or area in which the member resides.

W. N. JOHNSON

Restoration Witnesses

(Continued from page 8)

research on the Three Standard Books of our church. I have gathered together through the past forty years the texts of the Three Books, subject by subject until I now have amassed what the writers of these books have had to say on 418 subjects. I bear my testimony. The coherence and consistency manifest in the subjects of a living Christ and Satan and Book of Mormon texts continue on and on until I have become completely overwhelmed. Let us face the full implications of these facts. There are 2,337 pages in our Three Standard Books. There are eighty-four different writers and books, some of these writers were separated from each other by thousands of years and by the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans, not to mention the fact that most of them spoke different languages and during their lifetimes apparently had no knowledge of each other's existence. When I consider that notwithstanding the handicaps of the previously mentioned circumstances the eighty-four prophets and authors of the sacred books of the Restoration have spoken in complete accord on 418 subjects I am overwhelmed.

Indeed, I see here the hand of the Creator even as I see it when I go out at night and look into the heavens and consider the stars and planets moving in harmonious accord.

I have had the texts on these 418 subjects typed and put under file. The project required 2,045 pages of typing paper or an average of approximately five pages of texts for each subject.

Where in all the annals of history, philosophy, science, or writings of men is there to be found even in the remotest degree this phenomenon of coherent accord on 418 subjects by 84 writers of so different cultural backgrounds as is to be found in the Three Sacred Books of the Restoration—the Inspired Version (corrects certain incoherencies found in the King James), the Book of Mormon, and the Doctrine and Covenants?

I hold the coherency of our Three Standard Books to be one of the major pillars of evidence which upholds the Restoration movement.

I Had an Experience

AS A PRIEST I was serving as counselor to the branch president, Elder Elvin Baughman. At his request we were fasting and praying for divine guidance concerning calls to the priesthood. After the agreed time of two weeks had passed I found it necessary to report that I had not received any "light."

Early the next morning, which happened to be the first Sunday of the month, I was awakened by the sound of very beautiful music. As I listened I was enveloped by the Holy Spirit as a voice sang, "Come ye apart! It is the Lord who calls you." Up to that moment it had never occurred to me that I might be called to greater responsibility in the priesthood. The sacred influence remained with me for several hours.

The spirit of that morning's experience was rekindled in my entire being during the opening exercises of the Communion service as the congregation sang hymn 108 in the Saints' Hymnal. The voice which I had heard sing this strain had used the pronoun "you" instead of "us" as it is written. The Spirit bore witness that the Lord had indeed spoken to me and that I was called to new responsibility. There was no doubt in my mind. I knew that God had heard our prayers and had answered.

That same afternoon after the priesthood had met in regular monthly session the pastor suggested that he felt that I had received light concerning the matter about which we had been praying. I still tried to be evasive because of the personal nature of my experience. However, he insisted he was sure that I had received direction. I then told him my experience. The message that had come to me harmonized with what had come to him.

FRANK A. FRY

Pittsburgh Pennsylvania Dedicates Church Addition

PRESIDENT ISRAEL A. SMITH was present on October 6, 1957, when the addition to the Pittsburgh church was dedicated. He gave the dedicatory address, and Bishop W. N. Johnson offered a prayer of consecration.

The enlargement began with the idea of adding another door to the church. Formerly the building had only one exit, a flight of wooden stairs. This was not regarded as safe, and a new entrance through the kitchen was proposed. Soon plans had grown to include a whole new addition to the church.

Plans were submitted to a builder for an estimate. The figure came to $12,500 and almost killed the project before it was begun. However, the branch decided it could build the addition with its own people doing the work.

Work began in the summer of 1955. By the time the job was completed more than one thousand man-hours had been donated to the project. On many nights the men stayed until one and two in the morning to finish the evening's work.

Elder John J. Ross was the architect, and Elder Donald R. Ross, Jr., acted as supervisor. William Wentzel, Sr., of the North Charleroi Branch laid all the bricks for the addition.

The dedication service was in charge of Pastor John J. Raisbeck. He was assisted in the service by High Priests Donald R. Ross, Sr., and John W. Blackstock.

Letters

Appreciation from Germany

Thank you very much for sending us the Reminder and the Newsletter. Both have such interesting reading, and in them I find names of people who went to Graceland when I did.

The Saints from Bamerg, Wurzburg, Kitzengen, and Schweinfurt have decided to hold meetings here in Schweinfurt. Sp/3 and Mrs. Richard Gillespie told us of the meetings a few months ago. I had been in Germany two years before finding another member other than the girl I came over with. Now that we receive these papers we do not feel so isolated. Some of the people whose names we found in them are our very neighbors.

Now we would like to start getting copies of "Saints Abroad." After we have read the Reminder and the Newsletter I send them to my parents in Lamoni, and then they go on to my brother at Fort Chaffee, Arkansas.

Mrs. RALPH E. HART, Sr.

33 Stasselstrasse
Schweinfurt, Germany

Never Alone

I was very much interested in the article, "In His Name," published in the January 13 issue of the Herald. I have always felt that it was in and through the Christ that we were able to reach the Father. Jesus came that we might have the more abundant life. Asking in his name places on us a great responsibility to follow where he leads. God does not require any of us to do anything which he will not give us strength to do, on condition that we keep his laws. When we pray in Christ's name, we are obligated to do all that we can to bring about the condition for which we have prayed. God does not come down and answer our prayers unless we are willing to come up and accept his help.

I live alone. One evening as I sat by my table reading the Herald I felt a presence near me. I glanced around, just a little frightened. Then I heard a voice: "Why do you think you are alone? You are never alone." This was a great comfort to me. I pray that I may yet be able to do something for Christ's church. As long as I live, unless I wish to leave God out of my life, I shall always ask "in Jesus' name."

RACHEL M. TROYER

Joplin, Missouri

Note of Thanks

I wish to express my thanks to the Saints for their kindness. Some have sent money; others have sent cards and letters. I love to read messages from members of the church, and I answer them as soon as I can. Their letters, cards, and prayers have helped a lot.

Box 15
Springhill, Nova Scotia

LUCY RUSHTON

Note of Thanks

I want to thank all who were so kind as to take time to write me. I shall try to answer all who have written. In the meantime, I want them to know that I appreciate their letters.

JOSEPHINE GREEN

Rock Island, Illinois

The Meaning of the Cross

Many times during periods of solitude and rest our minds turn to things spiritual. On an occasion such as this, quite a few winters ago, I was lying in bed sick with the flu. I could see the sun's rays shining brightly in the next room, and thought how wonderful it would be if I could see the face of Jesus. I began praying that I might actually have this precious privilege, when suddenly there appeared in the shaft of sunlight a silver cross about fourteen inches long. I watched it with utter surprise for about a minute as it shimmered and twinkled, then it completely disappeared. Thinking this could possibly be the answer to my prayer, I said, "Jesus, if this is the answer, please let me see this beautiful cross once again, as a testimony that you would rather I saw this cross than a vision of your face." Immediately it reappeared, exactly as before. I viewed it with increased amazement. After about a minute it disappeared, and I did not see it again.

I have often thought about this experience, knowing in the years to come the meaning of the cross would be far more important in my life than a vision of the face of Jesus. By Jesus' taking the cross he said he would lift all men unto him, and after he went away he would send the comforter, which would show them all things.

The cross is a symbol to us of the perfect love of Christ for humanity. By the power of the cross we will be raised to life everlasting. The sinner is welcome at the foot of the cross. The way is always open, and the cross guides us into the presence of the resurrected Savior. My heart bows in adoration when I think how very, very much he loved us, being willing to die for us that he might make redemption possible for us through this perfect sacrifice.

The true meaning of the cross, then, is indescribable love, everlasting faith, forgiveness of our sins, and the way to life eternal. Let us not forget to take up our cross and follow in his steps, for he is meek and lowly of heart, and we will find rest to our souls.

MARY C. SHIRK

Independence, Missouri

Graceland Gazette

■ The Latin-American Unit in the religious activities program began after the Christmas recess and carried through until the end of the semester. During this unit the students "explored" Latin America as a missionary field. Apostle Charles Hield introduced the unit on Wednesday evening, January 8, by speaking on "Our Outlook for the Latin-American Field." On Sunday morning, January 12, he again spoke to the campus congregation on "Our Message to Latin America." At the next Wednesday evening meeting, the ten divisions met using the theme, "We Survey Fields in Latin America." Each division studied a field of Latin America to discover the background for the possibilities of church evangelism in this field. "These Things We Find Out about Evangelism in Latin America" was the theme at the Sunday morning service, January 19. Each of the ten divisions gave a four-minute report on its findings about Latin America.

■ Class meetings were held recently for the purpose of electing officers. The senior class elected Ted Traver, president; Bob Speaks, vice-president; and Everett Graffeo, secretary. Ted is from Lamoni; Bob and Everett are from Independence. Officers for the junior class are Al Brady, Missouri, president; Gene Painter, California, and Chuck Reynolds, Alaska, counselors; Hazel Imrie, Australia, secretary-treasurer. The sophomore class elected Shelby (Dutch) Miller, Ohio, president; Tony Eagan, Colorado, vice-president; Connie Fuller, Louisiana, as secretary; and Floyd Ayers, Idaho, treasurer. The freshman class officers are Jim Williams, Iowa, president; Maurice Frater, Australia, vice-president; Charlene Adams, New York, secretary; and Frances Ashby, Kansas, treasurer.

■ The men's intramural volleyball season ended with Anthony Place winning the Championship League and Carmichael taking the Hilltop League. At the assembly January 15 these two teams played the two faculty teams, with the faculty emerging victorious. The final scores were Faculty 41, Anthony Place 12; and Faculty 35, Carmichael 12.

■ Friday night, January 17, the various men's basic residence units had their parties. A variety of themes were used, and from all reports the parties were successful. Included were a hobo party, a flapper party, a Ben Franklin birthday party, and a homemade ice cream party.

■ Following is a list of the recent basketball games the Yellow Jackets have played and the final scores. At the William Jewell Invitational Tournament at Liberty, Missouri, Graceland lost all three games: Rockhurst (75-57), Kansas City University (72-66), and Northwest Missouri State Teachers College (63-36). On December 17 Graceland defeated Tarkio 78-73 on the home court. At the Peru State Tournament in Nebraska on January 3-4, Graceland lost 72-41 to Peru State and a heartbreaking 57-56 to Tarkio. On January 10 it defeated Kansas City University 74-63 but lost the next night to Central College of Fayette, Missouri, 81-67.

■ A new sport has been added at Graceland—wrestling. To date four meets have been scheduled. Coach Tom Nowlin's team consists of the following members: Bill Aki, Norm Amsberry, C. R. Auxier, Dan Harper, Dwane Johnston, Dan Kelley, Dennis Knudson, Jerry Resch, Lee Samuelson, Bob Sinclair, and Dave Welsh.

■ At the January 14 meeting of the Medical Science Club the movie Monganga—Medical Missionary to the Belgian Congo was shown. During the business meeting two new officers were elected. Harold Leland succeeds Dale Ward as president, and Frank Munden succeeds Harold Leland as vice-president-treasurer.

■ The Federal Communication Commission has granted a license to the Graceland Ham Club, permitting the club to operate an amateur radio station. Muirl Robinson is the president of the club which was organized in October, 1957. Other members are Paul Dorsey, Audrey Dutton, Wayne Groner, Marlene Miller, Ed Schmidt, Gary Tickemyer, and Chuck Vest. The sponsor is David Shippy.

Book Review

Religion without Revelation

By Julian Huxley
Harper and Brothers
1957
Price $4.00

This book is an attempt of a scientist and philosopher to outline an attitude toward the universe that will harmonize with the facts of science and be continually modified as future scientific studies and discoveries are made.

Dr. Huxley, having espoused no sect or church, concludes that all men have a religion, because "religion is a way of life," and that religion without revelation is a necessary and vital experience for human existence. His foundations for beliefs rest entirely on discovered scientific truths. Where truth is not established by knowledge of science, he says, "belief plays its most important role. When we cannot be certain, we must proceed, in part, by faith. It has been said that faith consists in acting . . . it embodies . . . real truth."

Having arrived at his conclusions after years of striving, the author brings out the dangers of a belief based entirely on idle speculation, incapable of verification, and held merely to gratify human desires. Unless man is "able to give a reason for the faith that is in him" he should be an agnostic, for religion and science must be completely reconciled, Mr. Huxley believes.

In this thesis, the author shows charity toward conflicting traditional religions of today and backs up his implications with great argumentative skill. We, of the Church of Jesus Christ, may not agree with his position, but a careful study of this writing will give us deep insight into a movement of religious thinking. At the same time it will challenge us to bring to men of sincerity and admirable character, such as Dr. Huxley, the basis for belief in a religion with revelation—the Restoration gospel.

For new insights into the task that awaits us as members of the Church of Jesus Christ on earth today, I recommend Religion without Revelation.

JOHN T. PUCKETT

for every occasion

a gift for you

New Herald
House
Gift
Certificates

- * Available for $2.50 and up
- * Redeemable for all merchandise stocked at Herald House
- * Redeemable within one year from date issued
- * Complete with matching white envelope
- * Order through your Book Steward or Herald House

Box 477
Independence, Missouri
Box 382
Guelph, Ontario, Canada

Briefs

Ordination and Baptism

IMPERIAL VALLEY, CALIFORNIA.—On October 27, Keith Martindale was ordained to the office of elder by Paul Burlington and James Kemp of San Diego.

On November 23, a dinner was given to raise money to sponsor a booth at the Imperial Valley midwinter fair. The dinner was very successful.

On December 29, at the youth yule camp held at Idyllwild, Gene Wilcox was baptized by Gene Ross, southern California district youth leader. On January 29 Gene was confirmed by Elder Keith Martindale, pastor of the branches.—Reported by ROSEMARY BARRIGAN

New Addition to Church Building

MONTROSE, IOWA.—In September, the branch began using a new addition to the church for church school and social activities. Branch President Maurice E. Phillips, Ed A. Swenderman, and Raymond N. Smith, Sr., were the building committee.

Henry Phillips and Son of the New Canton (Illinois) Branch constructed the 32 by 45-foot addition, including a kitchenette and two rest rooms.

Thirty-nine Zions' Leaguers met in the addition October 26. On December 17, the branch members gathered for a supper and Christmas celebration.

During the year, Evangelists Samuel Zonker, E. Y. Hunker, and Seventies Louis Zonker, and Robert Fishburn ministered to the branch.

The branch is sponsoring a Cub Scout pack organized by Brother Phillips last year.—Reported by ORVAL T. MILLER

Officers Elected

PULLMAN, WASHINGTON.—The annual election was held in September. District President Paul Crinzi was in charge. Officers elected were Tom Wilson, pastor;

Orville and Norma Lewis, counselors; George Kendall, church school director and bishops' agent; Madonna Wilson, women's leader; Kathleen Davis, treasurer and book steward; Althea Kendall, secretary, recorder, and historian; Bea Cunningham, music director; Norman Lewis, Zion's League leader; Pearl Lewis, publicity agent.

While Brother Crinzi was present, in November, he held evening classes at the church.

A two-day Zion's League rally was held in November. Seventeen young people from over the district and Lee Abramson, branch Zion's League leader, were present.

The Christmas program, under the direction of Mrs. Nila Benschopf, was held December 23.—Reported by PEARL LEWIS

Baptisms Follow Cottage Meetings

PITTSBURG, CALIFORNIA.—On December 8, Juanita Jean Stogner, Charles Oots, Patricia Belville, and Kenneth Belville were baptized by Brother Archie Severy at the Berkeley Church. These baptisms were the result of cottage meetings held by Brother Edward Lewis and Brother Orval Belville at the home of Arthur Hammonds.

Confirmation services were held December 22, following the morning service in Pittsburg. Confirmations were by Elder Raymond Lucas and Elder Edward Lewis.—Reported by MRS. W. E. DUFFER

Building Progresses

WEST BRANCH, MICHIGAN.—The group has been steadily working to complete the church project. The members have contributed toward the building through donations, bazaars, bake sales, suppers, and sacrifice offerings.

Ben Ouderkirk is pastor. Jenne Velte is women's leader, and Viola Spencer and Helen and Orville Hamilton are League leaders.—Reported by LILA DUNBAR

Ordination Services Held

BURBANK, CALIFORNIA.—The fall session of the semiannual business meeting was held November 20. The following were elected: Gary Beebe, presiding elder; Ray Sorenson and Harold Rowlett, counselors; Ray Sorenson, junior church director and bishop's solicitor; Marjorie Rowlett, recorder; Ward Baird, bishop's agent; Gary Strohbehn, book steward; Mabel Dixon, historian; Edward Spencer, missionary supervisor; Leamon Johnson, home ministry supervisor; Jean Sorenson, camp representative and music supervisor; Edna Webber, women's leader; Paul Koons, Zion's League leader; Phylis Hester, secretary; Harold Rowlett, treasurer; Alice Raye, auditor; Ormand Kelley, Ward Baird, and Kenneth Raye, building committee; Ruby Parker, publicity agent; Gordon Gilson, head deacon; Phylis Hester, editor of branch newspaper.

Also at the business meeting, Stake President Tickemyer spoke on the Auditorium, and Brother Beebe spoke on home ministry for 1958.

On November 24, Ward Baird and Dave Harris were ordained elders. Brother Baird was ordained by Elder John Kirkpatrick, assisted by Elder Earl Paige. Brother Harris was ordained by Elder Phil Ferguson, assisted by Elder J. C. Ruchaber.

The following have been called to the Aaronic priesthood, but have not been ordained: Leamon Johnson, priest; Gary Strohbehn, deacon; Jimmy Ish, deacon; and Daniel Marshall, deacon.

A Thanksgiving service was held November 27. A Communion service was included, held by candlelight. Elder Willard Bettis gave the message. The evening was spent in song and testimony.—Reported by RUBY PARKER

Service Groups Meet

CAMP LEJEUNE, NORTH CAROLINA.—Seventy J. H. Yager, missionary for southeastern United States unorganized area, visited Camp Lejeune and Cherry Point groups December 2-5.

He met with Camp Lejeune Saints December 3 and 5. This group meets at the home of Brother Francis Williamson and family at 2005 Tarawa Boulevard, Tarawa Terrace, North Carolina. They meet regularly at seven thirty Sunday evenings. Brother Williamson is in charge of the group, which includes besides his own family Brother and Sister Robert Hurley, Sister Elaine Rosevear, and Brother and Sister Dale Lee, just returned from Hawaii. George Hogan of Orlando, Florida, met with the group in November while on active duty for a month.

On December 4, Brother Williamson and Sister Rosevear of Cherry Point met with Brother Yager and Brother Oliver Dickerson at the L. T. Wiggins home at Cherry Point. At this service, Brother Dickerson was ordained a priest, and appointed to take charge of the Cherry Point group. Meetings will be held at the Wiggins home at Number Three Hydrangea Court, Slocum Village, Havelock, North Carolina.

In addition to these, the group consists of Brother and Sister Clarence Snyder, Brother and Sister Roger Dietrick, Brother and Sister Gard Edmonson, and Brother and Sister V. Fitzgerald.—Reported by LIEUT. ELAINE O. ROSEVEAR, MSC USN

New Department Officers Named

GULLIVER, MICHIGAN.—At a branch meeting held September 20, with District President Rex Stowe in charge, the following officers were elected or sustained to serve this year: Elder George Backman, pastor; Marian Hewitt, church school director; Evelyn Backman, secretary; Frank A. Beckman, treasurer,

Remember— STRIDE'S Photo Contest

RULES

1. All entries must be black and white photographs.
2. Prints should be either 5" x 7" or 8" x 10" or similar sizes.
3. Photographer must be no older than 30 years of age.
4. Entries must be received before March 1. Mail to: "STRIDE photo contest, Herald House, P.O. Box 477, Independence, Missouri."
5. Each entry must include name, age, address of photographer, and title of picture.
6. Photographs will not be returned.
7. Winners will be announced in the May issue of STRIDE.
8. First place prize, $10; second place, $7; third place, $5; honorable mentions (three prizes), $1 each.
9. Judging will be on basis of interest of subject matter, composition, and technical quality of picture.
10. Judges: Kenneth Raveill, Les Wight, Roger Yarrington.

CASH PRIZES—ENTRIES DUE MARCH 1

custodian, and appointed pastor's assistant and church school director's assistant; Madge Beckman, women's leader; Opal Watson, adult supervisor; Crystelle Reid, youth leader, music director, and publicity; Eula Ann Rosebush, children's supervisor; Sandra Toennesen, librarian. Building committee members are George Backman, Walter Downen, Frank Beckman, Howard Hewitt, and Perry Rosebush.

Women's department officers are Madge Beckman, leader; Opal Watson, assistant and cradle roll worker; Eleanor Lape, treasurer; and Marian Hewitt, secretary and teacher.

Zion's League officers are Sandra Toennesen, president; Agnes Watson, secretary; Jessie Schnurer, treasurer. Commission chairmen are Jessie Schnurer, worship; Linda Wickwire, service; Agnes Watson, study; and Arthur Watson, recreation.

A women's institute for the branch and Germfask mission was held September 10, with District Leader Evelyn Backman in charge.

An installation service for officers of the Gladstone, Germfask and Gulliver women's departments was held at Gladstone October 20.

Guest speakers have included Elder Charles Mundorf, Elder A. R. Nott, and Elder Don Grimm. Sister Oris Flood has also been a guest speaker.—Reported by CRYSTELLE REID

Two Baptized from Family

DULUTH, MINNESOTA.—On December 8, during the eleven o'clock period, Terry A. Wheeler and Howard B. Wheeler of Superior, Wisconsin, were baptized by Elder W. C. Stauty. Terry was confirmed by Brother Stauty and Elder Donald Dathe. Howard was confirmed by Brother Dathe, assisted by Brother Stauty.

All members of the family except the father are now members, among those old enough for baptism.—Reported by W. C. STAUTY

New Branch Officers Elected

RICH HILL, MISSOURI.—The annual business meeting was held September 13 under the direction of District President Allen Piatt. Officers are John Moffet, pastor; Arlie Allen and Bill Hays, assistants; Birdie Stewart, secretary and children's supervisor; Harry Allen, treasurer; Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Blevens, young people's leaders; Eva Duncan and daughter Margaret, music directors; Neva Anderson, women's leader; Alta McAlister, adult supervisor; Arlie Allen, bishop's agent; Fred W. Smith, church school director.

District Missionary Peter Harder started a series of meetings after the new year.

Laura Holske was in a car accident December 7, but expects to be back to church soon.

James R. Hursh is in the Air Force, stationed in Arizona. Ron Anderson is teaching in Huslia, Alaska. Both are young men from the Rich Hill Branch.—Reported by Mrs. CLARK HURSH

Church Receives Additions

LOWBANKS, ONTARIO, CANADA.—The annual business meeting saw the following officers elected: Elder Roloson, pastor; Elder Archie Dayton, church school director; Isabelle Dayton, music director; Marion Cook, secretary; Betty Patterson, treasurer; Ruth Barrick, youth League leader; Iva Roloson, women's leader.

Members have added several classrooms, washrooms, and an extended lower auditorium for extra kitchen facilities. At present, Brother Ivan Taylor is installing a new heating and air-conditioning unit.—Reported by PERCY B. GRAHAM

Pastor's Infant Son Blessed

SAND SPRINGS, OKLAHOMA.—Brent Jay, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Bullard, Tulsa, Oklahoma, was blessed on December 22 by his grandfather, Elder S. F. Bullard of Wray, Colorado, who was assisted by Elder A. S. Ervin of Sand Springs.

Brother J. L. Bullard is pastor of the Sand Springs Mission.—Reported by MAX BLOSS

District Conference

SACRAMENTO, CALIFORNIA.—The branch was host to the district conference November 19-20. Guest ministers were President F. Henry Edwards, Apostle Reed Holmes, and Missionary Charles Vreeland. The theme of the conference was "How to Improve the Missionary Outreach of the District."

The conference opened Saturday with President Edwards giving an introduction to the problems to be considered. Group discussions were led by Douglas P. Wright of Stockton, H. Dean Hintz of Chico, and Jean Powell and E. C. Burdick of Sacramento. The business meeting was held in the afternoon, followed by a meeting of presiding elders. Evening services included a sermon by Apostle Holmes.

The theme of the Sunday morning prayer service was "Thrust in Thy Sickle." Elder Vreeland outlined the missionary objectives of the district. The conference closed with a sermon by President Edwards.

Saturday meals were served at the church with Lennie Smith in charge of the kitchen.

Christmas services were held on December 22. In the morning the choir presented the cantata "The Rose of Christmas" by Thompson under the direction of E. Leroy Burdick with Philipa Gann at the organ. Evangelist W. H. Dawson gave the sermonette. In the evening a play written and directed by Jewell Dawson was presented. A special feature of the service was the presentation of "Gifts for the Christ-Child." This offering was given to the Auditorium fund.

Two babies were blessed at the morning service on December 8. Barbara Louise, daughter of Myrtle and Leroy Burdick, was blessed by Bishop E. C. Burdick assisted by Elder R. L. Nephew. Rebecca Kay, daughter of Charles and Virginia Barnaby, was blessed by Elder Nephew assisted by Bishop Burdick.—Reported by LENA SWANEY

Western Oklahoma District Business Meeting

ALVA, OKLAHOMA.—The annual business meeting of the Western Oklahoma District convened November 10. District President Dick Feeley, Missionary Herbert A. Lynn, and Apostle D. Blair Jensen were in charge. Many people from the congregations were present.

Jack Glover, Enid, Oklahoma, and Allen Long, Canton, Oklahoma, were approved for ordination to the office of priest, and their ordinations were cared for at the conference.

Officers of the district were elected for the coming year. Brother Feeley was re-elected district president, and he retained as his counselors Max Mann of Altus, Oklahoma, and Ralph Graves of Enid, Oklahoma.

The Saints were edified by the sermon by Apostle Jensen, and the testimonies and prayers of the fellowship service.—Reported by DISTRICT REPORTER

CORRECTION

Through an oversight, Willard C. Becker's name did not appear in the listing of the Order of Bishops on page 8 of the Herald of January 27.

In addition to serving as bishop of Central Missouri Stake, he has assisted the Presiding Bishopric as a member of the Advisory Committee on General Church farming operations. For several years he has represented the agricultural interests of the church and also the Atherton Levee District in appearing before the Bureau of the Budget, and the Senate and House Appropriation Committees in Washington, D.C., in the interest of flood control and water conservation.

Sweater Guard

$1.50

plus 15c federal excise tax

New church seal jewelry sweater guard. Clips on lapels to hold sweater loosely around shoulders. Makes any sweater a cape . . .

Gold finish with simulated pearls around both church seals which are connected by pearl-studded chain. Attractively gift boxed ready to wrap.

HERALD Box 477

Box 382

HOUSE Independence, Mo. Guelph, Ontario

Bulletin Board

Radio Series for Sault Ste Marie, Ontario

On Sunday, February 2, Radio Station CJIC of Sault Ste Marie, Ontario, Canada, began carrying a series of church-produced devotional programs. The series is sponsored by the Sault Ste Marie Branch, the pastor of which is G. A. Edwards. Radio Minister Evan A. Fry is the speaker, with music by the Radio Choir.

The broadcast time each Sunday is 8:15-8:30 A.M. CJIC broadcasts on a frequency of 1050 kilocycles (dial reading). It is interesting to note that this is the second branch in Canada to sponsor a series available by tape recording; the earlier series is in progress at Guelph, Ontario.

Arrangements were made by Floyd H. Edwards, branch publicity chairman, in co-operation with the Radio Department.

CHARLES F. CHURCH, JR.
Radio Director

College Students' Conference University of Iowa

A regional college students' conference will be held on the campus of the State University of Iowa, Iowa City, February 22-23, by the Liahona group. Activities planned include two mixers, workshop groups, a panel discussion, a dinner, fellowship service, and a basketball game between S.U.I. and Illinois.

Tentative speakers for the conference include Don Landon, Alice Waite, Ned Jacobson, Aleta Runkle, Dr. James Van Biber, Etta Cosner, and Dr. F. M. McDowell.

Those wishing to attend and desiring further information or lodging should write to Flora Holmes, 522 North Gilbert, Iowa City, Iowa.

Registration will be Saturday morning at 10:30.

KATHRYN SHOTTON

Servicemen's Addresses

Pvt. James R. Nelson
US 55627400
Co. D 2nd Bn.
3rd Tng. Regt. Basic
Fort Leonard Wood, Missouri

Pvt. Robert Mortimore
US 55612712
Co. "A" USASCS Regt.
Fort Monmouth, New Jersey

Names and Addresses Wanted

State University of Iowa alums are urged to send their names and addresses to the pastor of the Iowa City mission: Dick Setterberg, 846 South Rundell, Iowa City, Iowa.

Book Wanted

Carl Brooks, Rural Route 2, Columbus, Indiana, would like to purchase a copy of Parsons' Textbook by A. H. Parsons. He wants to know the price and condition of the book before receiving it.

REQUEST FOR PRAYERS

Prayers are requested for Delbert Ray Coonfare, SO3 26-5B, U.S. Naval Hospital, San Diego, California. He has undergone chest surgery and will be hospitalized for about three months. He will appreciate receiving cards and letters.

WEDDINGS

Robinson-Clark

Mary E. Clark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Clark, and Thomas A. Robinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Robinson, were married January 17 at the Reorganized Church in Bay Minette, Alabama, Elder John R. Darling officiating. They are making their home in Bay Minette.

McDonald-Lair

Juanita Rochelle Lair, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell W. Lair, and Richard Allen McDonald, son of Mr. and Mrs. Homer McDonald, were married January 5 at the Reorganized Church in Hannibal, Missouri. Elder Wayne Peters officiated.

Ranney-Dempsey

Kathleen Dempsey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Dempsey, Jr., and 1/Lt. Delbert G. Ranney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifton D. Ranney, all of Council Bluffs, Iowa, were married December 29 at the Reorganized Church in Council Bluffs, Pastor John Booth officiating. Both are graduates of Graceland, and the bride is a graduate of Central Missouri State College. The groom received his degree from William Jewell College. They are making their home in Pensacola, Florida, where Lieutenant Ranney is stationed with the Marine Corps.

Enlow-Botman

Doris Botman and Everett Enlow were married December 15 at the Marengo, Indiana, mission by Elder Elmo Enlow.

Ellis-Wiley

Gerre Wiley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Wiley of Pittsburg, Kansas, was married to Jerry W. Ellis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Ellis, at the Reorganized Church in Pittsburg on January 12. Pastor T. W. Bath officiated at the double-ring ceremony. A reception was held in the lower auditorium following the wedding. They are making their home in Pittsburg.

Courter-Robertson

Gladys Robertson and Pvt. Ralph Courter were married on January 1 at the Reorganized Church in Leavenworth, Kansas. Priest Leland Robertson, brother of the bride, officiated.

ENGAGEMENTS

Nelson-Miffin

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Miffin of Windsor, Ontario, announce the engagement of their daughter, Carole, to James Nelson, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Nelson of Grasse Pointe Park, Michigan. A March wedding is planned.

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Carlson of Humboldt, Iowa, announce the birth of a son, Mark Anthony, born January 15. Mrs. Carlson is the former Karlene Stokes of Independence, Missouri. Both parents attended Graceland College.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Vlieg of Des Moines, Iowa, became the parents of a son, Roger Wayne, on December 30. The Vliegs are former residents of Denver, Colorado.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Dawson of Macon, Missouri, became the parents of a daughter, Cheryl Linn, on January 2 at the Kirksville Osteopathic Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Gray of Macon, Missouri, announce the birth of a daughter, Sara Ann, born January 16 at the Kirksville Osteopathic Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Darrell E. Webb of Lamoni, Iowa, became the parents of a daughter, Joanne Elaine, on November 3. She was blessed on December 29 at Colorado Springs, Colorado, by her maternal grandfather, Elder Ray C. Ebeling, assisted by Elder James Gregg. Mrs. Webb attended Graceland in 1955 and Mr. Webb is now a senior at Graceland.

Mr. and Mrs. A. K. Bennett of London, Ontario, became the parents of a son, Barry Keith, on September 2. He was blessed on November 24 by his maternal grandfather, Elder Lorance Belrose, and Dr. E. V. Shute. Mrs. Bennett, the former Gladys Belrose, is a 1950 graduate of Graceland College.

A daughter, Jeanne Denise, was born on October 23, 1957, to Mr. and Mrs. Don C. Smith of The Plains, Ohio. She was blessed on January 12 at The Plains by her maternal grandfather, Elder Delbert O. Norris, and Elder Ralph V. Brown. Mrs. Smith, the former Janet Norris, is a 1952 graduate of Graceland and holds both Bachelor's and Master's degrees from Ohio University. Mr. Smith also attended Graceland and is now a senior at Ohio University.

Mr. and Mrs. Darl Jordan of Portland, Oregon, announce the birth of a daughter, born on January 2. She has been named Lesa Marie.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Blair Sterling of Monettville, Ontario, became the parents of a daughter, Lynn Ann, on July 6, 1957. She was blessed at North Bay, Ontario, on September 8 by Elder Harvey Wagg.

Mr. and Mrs. Dale F. Moon of Burlington, Iowa, announce the adoption of a daughter, Elizabeth Ann, on January 2. She was born December 2, 1957. She was blessed in the Youth Programs for Christian Growth

By Ruth Schroeder. A collection of 32 complete worship programs to help youth grow and mature in the Christian faith. Its two sections, "Basic Christian Beliefs" and "Growth in Christian Discipleship," contain preludes, calls to worship, appropriate Scripture readings and hymns, prayers, effective stories, dramatic presentations and readings, plus playlets and responses. For youth leaders, teachers, pastors, and young people themselves. Abingdon Press. . . . $3.00

Box 477
Independence, Missouri

Box 382
Guelph, Ontario, Canada

Blue Ridge Church at Independence, Missouri, by her great-uncle, Evangelist F. M. McDowell, and Elder Elmer Armstrong.

DEATHS

WEIR.—W. E., died October 29, 1957, at the home of a daughter, Mrs. A. L. Lewis in Pullman, Washington, at the age of ninety-four. He held the office of priest in the Reorganized Church, and largely through his efforts, and those of his daughters and their families, the church was established in Pullman. He was born in Indiana, spent most of his life in Missouri, and moved west when his family was grown.

Surviving are four daughters: Mrs. A. L. Lewis and Mrs. Fred Atkins of Pullman, Mrs. Demps Kite and Mrs. Larry Wood of Moscow, Idaho.

COX.—Anderson M., was born September 2, 1859, in Gentry County, Missouri, and died October 15, 1957, at Caldwell, Idaho. He moved west in a covered wagon and pioneered in the Idaho territory. In September, 1941, he was baptized into the Reorganized Church and was a charter member of the Caldwell-Nampa mission (now Nampa Branch).

He is survived by his wife, Mary; two daughters: Mrs. Don Baird of Caldwell and Mrs. Elizabeth Woodhouse of Baker, Oregon; and a son, Thomas of Seattle, Washington.

BATCHELDER.—Sarah Emily, daughter of Nathan F. and Havilah Doan Batchelder, was born March 4, 1882, in Athens County, Ohio, and died November 13, 1957, at Athens, Ohio. She had lived in The Plains, Hibbardville, and Athens. From 1922 until 1953 she was in the retail grocery business. On September 3, 1907, she united with the Reorganized Church and was an active member the remainder of her life. She had served as teacher, book steward, secretary, treasurer, and bishop's agent.

She leaves a sister, Ethel, of the home, and a brother, Edward, address unknown.

ZAHND.—James, was born September 12, 1899, in Perry County, Indiana, and died December 17, 1957, at his home in Paxton, Illinois. He was married to Ora Baylor in 1920; both of them were baptized into the Reorganized Church in the summer of 1957.

He leaves his wife; two daughters: Mrs. Anna Mary Kesting of Roberts, Illinois, and Vera Jean Zahnd of Chicago, Illinois; a son, James, of Roberts; three brothers: Martin of Paxton; Henry of Rantoul, Illinois; and Sam of Sidney, Illinois; two sisters: Mrs. Lou Slinaker of English, Indiana, and Mrs. Lily Satterfield of Temple, Indiana; and two grandchildren. Funeral services were conducted at Roberts by Elder Max Matthews and Elder Donald Hendrickson.

TURNEY.—Mary Ann, daughter of Asa and Mary Carmichael Davis, was born July 14, 1897, in Long Valley, California, and died January 8, 1958, at her home in Pleasant Hill, Missouri. Her mother died at the time of Mary Ann's birth; the baby was then adopted by her mother's brother, Bishop Albert Carmichael, and his wife. At the age of twelve she moved with her parents to Lamoni, Iowa, where she attended school. On December 2, 1917, she was married to Vere S. Turney; three children were born to them. A daughter, Verna, and a son, Donald, died in infancy. She was baptized into the Reorganized Church on June 10, 1906, and was a tireless worker in behalf of the church. She was also a member of the Helpful Homemakers Club and the Home Economics Club.

She is survived by her husband; a daughter, Mrs. Maurice T. Wilson of Pleasant Hill; a sister, Mrs. H. C. Jennings of Watsonville, California; two brothers: A. M. Carmichael of San Diego, California, and D. R. Carmichael of Independence; and two grandchildren. Funeral services were conducted at Pleasant Hill by Stake President H. J. Simons, assisted by Elder Leroy Shedd and Stake High Councilman D. R. Hughes. Burial was in the Pleasant Hill cemetery.

WHATMORE.—Nora, was born March 14, 1885, at Lucas, Iowa, and died October 10, 1957, in Kansas City, Missouri. On December 2, 1902, she was married to John Whatmore, who survives her. Three of their five children preceded her in death. She had been a member of the Reorganized Church since February 15, 1916. The Whatmore home is in Independence, Missouri.

Besides her husband she leaves a daughter, Mrs. J. K. Anderson of Independence; a son, M. C. of Brewster, New York; a brother, William Evans of Des Moines, Iowa; six grandchildren; and three great-grandchildren. Funeral services were conducted by High Priest L. Wayne Updike and Elder John Ely at Speaks Chapel in Independence. Burial was in Mound Grove Cemetery.

FALCONER.—Scott J., son of Arthur and Ella Falconer, was born May 19, 1895, at Brown City, Michigan, and died November 23, 1957, at Veterans' Hospital in Dearborn, Michigan. He served with honor in World War I and was wounded in action. He was a member of the military order of the Purple Heart, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and Disabled American Veterans. On June 8, 1935, he was married to Iva Stevens Grice, who survives him. He had been a member of the Reorganized Church since 1913 and served in the office of deacon.

Besides his wife he leaves a son, Eldred, of Belleville, Michigan; a daughter, Genevieve Dawson of Wyandotte, Michigan; two brothers: Earl of Midland, Michigan, and Kenneth of St. Clair Shores, Michigan; and three grandchildren. Funeral services were held at Skene Chapel in Detroit, Elder David Dowker officiating, assisted by Stake President W. Blair McClain. Burial was in Crosswell Cemetery.

LOOMIS.—Enos F. was born April 29, 1888, in Augusta, Wisconsin, and died November 12, 1957, in Junction City, Oregon. He had been a member of the Reorganized Church for the past twenty-five years.

He leaves his wife, Marie, of Junction City; four daughters: Mrs. Luella Bobcock of Springfield, Oregon; Mrs. Ramona Garden of Bakersfield, California; Mrs. Laticia Fri of Wisconsin; and Mrs. Mercedes Murry of Bakersfield, California; two sisters: Mrs. Grace Fredrick and Mrs. Theima Welton, both of Wisconsin; a brother, Frank, also of Wisconsin; and fourteen grandchildren. The funeral was conducted at Junction City at Murry Chapel, Elder E. N. Barnhart officiating. Final rites were at Minocqua, Wisconsin.

COBB.—Andrew Russell, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Cobb of Calgary, Alberta, was born February 28, 1914, and died December 20, 1957, in Port Hardy, British Columbia. He had been a member of the Reorganized Church since March 22, 1926.

He is survived by his wife, Vera; three daughters: Marlene, Jo Anne, and Gloria Jean; and a son, Thomas, all of Port Hardy; his parents; three sisters: Mrs. Irene Simpson of Calgary; Mrs. Gladys Larmour of Edmonton, Alberta; and Mrs. Peggy McLean of Vancouver, British Columbia; and three brothers: Leslie and Archie, both of Calgary, and Cecil of Mission, British Columbia. Seventy David Larmour conducted the funeral service. Interment was in Queen's Park Cemetery, Calgary.

TWEEDY.—Herbert, died September 20, 1957, at his home in Atherton, Missouri. He was baptized a member of the Reorganized Church on September 1, 1957.

He is survived by his wife, Flossie, of Atherton; a daughter, Virginia Collins of Atherton; two sons: Charles of Atherton and Clifford of Odessa, Missouri; and six brothers.

Tract Review

Christ's Church Restored

Apostle Maurice L. Draper authored this tract, and it was first published in 1948 under the title "What Is Christ's Church?" The present title was selected in 1956 when a general revision of the contents was made by the author. A new attractive cover and size were also added.

This tract has a message similar to the tract, "Church of Jesus Christ" by William Lewis, but the approach to the subject is different. It offers a nice variety for the missionary-minded Saint to use as an introductory tract.

A summary of the division headings within the tract will indicate the contents: "I will build my church," "Jesus built a church," "Continuing apostolic ministry," "Prophetic presidency," "Many kinds of ministry," "Faith," "Repentance," "Baptism in water," "Baptism, the symbol and experience of rebirth," "Baptism of the Spirit," "The laying on of hands," "Spiritual gifts," "The Kingdom of God," "The restoration of the gospel of the kingdom," and "The Restoration accomplished."

The single-copy price for this tract is 10 cents, with quantity prices greatly reduced. This tract is one of more than eighty listed in the new 1958 Tract List available free of charge from Herald House. Write for your tract list today.

We're on the Air . . .

STATE AND CITY	CALL LETTERS	DIAL READING	DAY AND TIME
ALABAMA, Atmore	WATM	1580	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
ALABAMA, Evergreen	WBLO	1470	Sunday, 9:00 a.m.
ARKANSAS, Jonesboro	KNEA	970	Sunday, 9:00 a.m.
CALIFORNIA, Wasco	KWSO	1050	Sunday, 7:15 a.m.
COLORADO, Durango	KIUP	930	Sunday, 9:45 a.m.
COLORADO, Montrose	KUBC	1260	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
FLORIDA, Orlando	WLOF	950	Sunday, 7:45 a.m.
IDAHO, Sand Point	KSPT	1400	Sunday, 6:15 p.m.
ILLINOIS, Herrin	WJPF	1340	Sunday, 7:45 a.m.
ILLINOIS, Moline	WQUA	1230	Sunday, 8:15 a.m.
ILLINOIS, Mt. Vernon	WMIX (FM 94.1)	940	Sunday, 12:15 p.m.
KANSAS, Concordia	KFRM	550	Sunday, 8:30 a.m.
MICHIGAN, Bad Axe	WLEW	1340	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
MICHIGAN, Flint	WMRP	1570	Friday, 10:00 a.m.
MICHIGAN, Houghton Lake	WHGR	1290	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
MINNESOTA, Detroit Lakes	KDLM	1360	Sunday, 8:45 a.m.
MISSOURI, Fulton	KFAL	900	Sunday, 8:15 a.m.
MISSOURI, Kansas City	KMBC	980	Sunday, 8:30 a.m.
NEW MEXICO, Clovis	KCLV	1240	Sunday, 7:45 a.m.
NEW YORK, Hornell	WWHG	1320	Sunday, 10:30 a.m.
NORTH DAKOTA, Valley City	KOVC	1490	Sunday, 6:00 p.m.
OHIO, New Philadelphia	WJER	1450	Sunday, 8:30 p.m.
ONTARIO, Guelph	CJOY	1450	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
ONTARIO, Sault Ste Marie	CJIC	1050	Sunday, 8:15 a.m.
OREGON, Lakeview	KQIK	1230	Sunday, 2:00 p.m.
PENNSYLVANIA, Charleroi	WESA	940	Sunday, 8:30 a.m.
TENNESSEE, Paris	WTPR	710	Sunday, 7:45 a.m.
WASHINGTON, Vancouver	KHFS	1150	Sunday, 8:30 a.m.
WEST VIRGINIA, Parkersburg	WCEF	1050	Sunday, 12:05 p.m.
WISCONSIN, Richland Center	WRCO	1450	Sunday, 8:15 a.m.

And Finally...

J. C. Stuart
344 Maitland St.
London, Ontario, Canada

M
h Ap.

TURN THEM OFF

We had been working under pressure for weeks, and it seemed that there was never a moment to relax. Duty was driving us with a high hand and often cracked the whip when we longed for relief. But, there was—"I've got to do this," and "I've got to do that."

Finally, it seemed everything was finished up to date, but once the slave habit takes charge, it is hard to get the tyrant out of the driver's seat.

Then it snowed—a big deep snow that halted traffic, marooned the car, and suddenly left us with time on our hands and nothing urgent to be done.

"Let's turn off the gotta's," said the wife. "We've been driven long enough, and it's time to let down."

L. J. L.

FROM RESOLUTION TO REALITY

Every man who gets anywhere does so because he has first firmly resolved to progress in the world and, then has enough stick-to-itiveness to transform his resolution into reality. —B. C. Forbes

EGO SATISFACTION

A new friend has come into my life. I call him "Spot." He hasn't called me anything—hasn't even spoken to me. For several days now he has followed me for eight blocks as I walk home at noon for lunch.

Spot is a fox terrier—white with black spots—who enjoys being noticed. He picks up my trail as I pass junior high school. It is likely he waits there for his master to finish his day in school. The first day he saw me home I tried not to notice him lest I be accused of alienation of affections. About the third day I began to learn dog language and tell him I was flattered by his attentions. It made him happy also.

About the same time that Spot began to notice me, I discovered that our parakeet, Perky, liked to ride around the house on my shoulder. This also gave a boost to my ego. Perhaps that's what pets are for. It does

Notice

Herald House is in the process of installing modernized automatic addressing equipment which is designed to increase the speed and efficiency of addressing magazines.

During the change-over, however, which involves the making of more than 50,000 new addressograph plates, a certain amount of slow down is unavoidable.

We solicit your patience during the next two months.

something for one to have a bit of attention even from animals. Perky bites my ear and chews my shirt collar but never says anything to hurt my feelings. I may be altogether wrong about the attitude of my two new friends, but as Thomas Gray once said, "Where ignorance is bliss, 'Tis folly to be wise." C. B. H.

IDENTIFICATION CARD

We can pretty well tell the kind of wheels in a fellow's head by the kind of "spokes" that come out of his mouth. —"Worthwhile," D. H. Schmidt

TRUE

He is a human being. That is the best and the worst one can say about anyone.—Mark Twain.

TRANSFORMATION

Snowflakes work miracles. As they fall, ugliness disappears. Isn't that true of life too? The ugly things—hate, envy, suspicion, fear, gloom—disappear when they are buried beneath the "snowflakes" of love, courage, joy, and faith in God.

From "Along Life's Way" prepared by McCleary Clinic and Hospital

Contents

EDITORIAL AND OFFICIAL

What Price Civilization	3
Youth Music Camp, by Franklyn S. Weddle	4
Across the Desk	4

FEATURE ARTICLES

Elders Hear Oakman	2
Restoration Witnesses, by Roy Weidon	5
A Promise Unfulfilled, by David Russell	9
He Leads a Full Life, by Al Pelletier	11
Summering with the Church in Europe, Part II, by Madge Siegfried	12
Journeying and Reminiscing, Part II, by Pearl Wilcox	14
Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, Dedicates Church Addition	18

SPECIAL COLUMNS

We'd Like You to Know: Dr. J. F. Wellemeyer	2
Our Readers Say	16
Question Time	17
I Had an Experience, by Frank A. Fry	17
Letters	18
Graceland Gazette	19
Book Review	19
Briefs	20
Bulletin Board	22
Tract Review: Christ's Church Restored	23
And Finally	24

Whosoever

Repenteth

by L. Wayne Updike

$1.75

Contents

The Chain of Thought
The Principle of Repentance
The Need for Repentance

The Process of Repentance
Repentance and the First Commandment
Repentance and the Ordinances
Repentance and Salvation

A series of lectures delivered to the Melchisedec priesthood of Independence, Missouri, in January, 1957.

Box 477
Independence, Missouri

Box 382
Guelph, Ontario, Canada

SAINTS' HERALD

Volume 105 / February 17, 1958 / Number 7

WORLD
BROTHERHOOD WEEK

February 16-23

...that people shall live as one family of man

Picture courtesy of National Conference of Christians and Jews

www.LatterDayTruth.org

Acoustical baffles being swung into place above the platform in the General Conference Chamber. They will direct the sound from the public address system out over the entire chamber. They will be finished with plaster. Portholes are for lights.

Photo by Audio-Visual Department

Report of Progress

New Work on Auditorium Over Half Finished

WORK ON THE AUDITORIUM was about 53 per cent finished on December 31, 1957. This will give readers an idea, but only a quantitative idea, of the vast changes that have been made in the appearance of our church headquarters and General Conference building.

As parts of the new structure are developed by the builders into the outlines of their final form, the visitor viewing the work is impressed and amazed by the splendid architectural beauty and the great strength that the building will have. A tour of inspection, guided by a member of the Presiding Bishopric's staff, showed progress far surpassing any expectations that could have been imagined at an earlier time.

From any viewpoint, the General Conference Chamber will present a beautiful picture.

The following work has been completed recently, or will have been completed by the time this report appears.

The concrete flooring in the General Conference Chamber has been poured, providing for more ample space between rows of seats, increasing comfort and freedom of access.

The space under the balcony is enclosed, providing better appearance and finish, with improved audition in that area.

The new suite of rooms for the Religious Education Department, on sixth level, north, with steel work, is complete and concrete has been poured for the floors.

The organ chambers and the concrete slab for the organ console on the fifth level, south, are completed and enclosed.

Concrete canopies for the large east portico and the west portico have been poured. These are supported by pylons of graceful and beautiful design, adding fine architectural features to the building. Aluminum doors for the entrances will be fitted in place in the near future.

The elevator shaft and utility air duct on the east side of the building are enclosed and ready for mechanical equipment as required.

Inside the General Conference Chamber the plastering is about 70 per cent complete. One coat of paint has been put on the inner part of the large center dome, an architectural feature and a center of lighting that replaces the old skylight.

The shop area and service entrance on the east side are nearly completed. The new boiler is installed. Ventilation fans for both hot and cold weather use are in place in the dome of the building.

March 9 is Auditorium Sunday for the church. An effort is being made to obtain $175,000 that is needed to provide the seating equipment. The cost of each seat is about thirty dollars.

Excellent responses have been given by the people to the request for the means to finish the work on the Auditorium. The loyalty of church members to this purpose has been greatly appreciated.

The Auditorium, when completed, will be a building of which church people can be justly proud. It will compare favorably with the best structures of its kind. As we finish this task we will grow in strength and confidence in our ability to go forward with the great ideals of the church.

Authors in This Issue

James Everett (page 5), Seventy, Oslo, Norway
 Lucille Oliver (page 10), Pensacola, Florida
 Barbara Sindt (page 10), Hillrose, Colorado
 Sylvester Coleman (page 11), Seventy, Hawaii District
 Mrs. Earl Bandlow (page 12), member of General Women's Council, Independence, Missouri
 Helen Jones (page 13), Springfield, Illinois
 Pearl Wilcox (page 14), Independence, Missouri

Speaking of Religion

A FRIEND WAS TALKING about the doctrinal and historical problems he had encountered in his study of the church. As we disposed of one perplexity after another—and there were some that offered peculiar difficulties—I felt that we were wasting time on the scaffolding that needed to be removed after the organization was set up. We were no better off.

Then I said, "Let's look at the main business of the church. What it has to offer you and me is the wonderful love and compassion of God and the fellowship of a people seeking to serve him. If we can accept these things at full value, all the little problems sink into insignificance. If these gifts do not mean anything to us, nothing else will do us any good."

All my experience seems to be leading me toward a conclusion that religion begins as a personal affair—a love affair—with God. Jesus quoted the Law of Love (Matthew 22: 37-40) from the most ancient Hebrew Scriptures. John devoted three epistles principally to the application of the Law of Love to human life and church work. Religion begins that way, and there is no provision in the gospel for it to end in any other way. The gospel is a love story—a divine love story—of a great love triangle: of God's love for man, of man's love for God, and of the love that should exist between all men.

Apostle Myron A. McConley related that when he was sent as a young missionary to Hawaii he was overwhelmed by the problem of ministering to races that were strange to him. He prayed for help. The Holy Spirit instructed him: "You can love them." That gave him a program and a power that solved many problems and won many hearts to God.

Last Sunday night I preached at a church in a town not far from Independence. There was a fine congregation with many young people in the pews. They sang the hymns of the church with enthusiasm. They listened attentively to the message. It was an inspiring experience to minister there.

More than twenty years ago I had preached in this same building. A great transformation had taken place. Then the plaster was cracked, the paint was soiled, and the clock had stopped. Deacon spider had draped his silken shroud over the dusty pulpit.

The church is beautifully decorated now, has fine seating, good pulpit furniture, active services, and a clock that runs on time all the time. The people have built a basement, bought an extra building, and made many improvements.

These are people who love their church and take care of it. They love God; they appreciate the gospel; they get along well together. What more could be asked?

Do you remember the church in Sardis? It was one of the seven churches in Asia, described in the third chapter of Revelation. John wrote of it: "Thou hast a name that thou livest, and art dead." Could it have been translated from its ancient setting to reappear in America? Perhaps it could . . .

The few members were scattered about the church—cold, unresponsive, and hopeless. A look of spiritual starvation was in their faces. (Were the ancient altar fires still out, and did they seek to warm themselves by the ashes that were burned in other years?) The preacher tried to rekindle the gospel fire, but they had no fuel to offer. Their lamps, too, were empty. There was no expression in their faces, no light in their eyes. They listened to the words but did not understand the meaning. They sat waiting as if they expected nothing to happen. For the gray death of the spirit, great healing is required.

Sardis, Sardis, be warned. "Be watchful, and strengthen the things which remain, that are ready to die."

A little group meets occasionally, early mornings, for serious discussion. Its members have talked of organization and ordinances, laws, duties, and procedures. These have been good, interesting, and instructive.

Then "The Search for God" was introduced and the meeting took fire. Some of the finest, most inspiring thoughts were presented. Men spoke with understanding, insight, and intelligent reverence. It was a feast for the soul.

"The Search for God" is still life's most wonderful adventure, still man's greatest mission in life. People can discuss it together, but they will have something worth telling only if they have gone on the search alone—in study, prayer, and meditation. This is a direction in which the church can lead the people.

Official

The School of the Restoration

The 1958 summer session of the School of the Restoration will be June 16-28 inclusive. The courses to be offered will be determined by the advance registrations received by April 1. Those interested should obtain a college catalog (free on request) and send in their advance registration cards according to the instructions on page eleven. Courses which appear most likely to be offered based on previous students' choices are as follows:

Communications 101	English Review
Communications 122	Introductory Speech
Communications 123	English Composition for Speakers
Communications 145	Spanish I
Communications 146	German I
Education 101	Introduction to Religious Education
Education 107	Mental Hygiene
Education 202	The Use of the Bible in Teaching
History 101	Ancient History
Practicum 105	Branch Administration
Practicum 109	Home Ministry
Practicum 114	Ministerial Ethics
Practicum 115	Worship Leadership
Practicum 120	Youth Leadership
Practicum 125	Public Relations
Psychology 102	Child Development
Psychology 108	Introduction to Pastoral Counseling
Scripture 101	Survey of Old Testament
Scripture 111	Survey of New Testament
Scripture 131	Introduction to the Book of Mormon
Scripture 213	Life and Letters of Paul
Theology 100	Life of Jesus
Theology 101	Basic Beliefs
Theology 109	Homiletics I
Theology 305	The Philosophy of the Ordinances

L. WAYNE UPDIKE
Director, School of the Restoration

New Member for Graceland Board of Trustees

Elder Earl T. Higdon, Chairman of the Board of Trustees of Graceland College, has informed us of the resignation of Elder Franklin L. Parsons as a member of the Board and of the selection of Elder L. Merle Spence of Council Bluffs, Iowa, to fill this vacancy. Brother Spence has accepted this appointment and will be meeting with the Board regularly.

Brother Spence is a high priest and serves as bishop's agent of the Southwest Iowa District. He is executive vice-president of the Council Bluffs Gas Company. The selection of Brother Spence is in line with the Articles of Incorporation of the College and will be presented to the General Conference of 1958 for ratification. The term of office for which he will be selected ends in 1962.

THE FIRST PRESIDENCY
Israel A. Smith

Progress Report on Auditorium

In the Saints' Herald of November 18, 1957, we stated that the minimum amount needed for the Auditorium for the year 1957 was $267,194.75. We are glad to report that the total contributions to the Auditorium, including Christmas Offerings for the year 1957, amounted to $265,993.81, which was 99.5 per cent of our goal. This provides sufficient cash to meet the cost of work now in process. Of this amount, $74,721.35 was received for the month of December.

We are, therefore, looking forward to Auditorium Day, which has been designated as March 9, in the hope that it will be possible to raise the amount needed for seating which, as we have stated, is $175,000.00.

We are deeply grateful that the response throughout the church has been so satisfactory. It indicates the desire of our members to get this important project completed.

THE PRESIDING BISHOPRIC
G. L. DeLapp

The Saints' Herald

Vol. 105 February 17, 1958 No. 7

EDITORS: The First Presidency: Israel A. Smith, F. Henry Edwards, W. Wallace Smith. ASSISTANTS: Chris B. Hartshorn, Managing Editor; Naomi Russell, Assistant Editor; Paul A. Wellington, Assistant Editor; Roger Yarrington, Assistant Editor; Audrey Stub-

bart, Copy Editor; and Leonard J. Lea, Contributing Editor. BUSINESS MANAGER, Kenneth L. Graham.

The Saints' Herald is the official publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, with headquarters at The Auditorium, Independence, Missouri, and is issued through the offices of Herald Publishing House, 103 South Osage Street, Independence, Missouri.

Herald editors are not responsible for the views and opinions expressed in articles or communications other than those of editorial authorship.

Entered as second-class matter at the post office at Independence, Missouri, under Act of March 3, 1879. Issued weekly at Independence, Missouri, except daily during the biennial General Conference. Price, $4.00 per year in advance in the U.S.A., its territories and possessions; Canada, $4.25 per year; other countries, $5.00 per year. Notice of a change of address must be given three weeks ahead of the date that it is to become effective. Accepted for mailing at the special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917, authorized July 21, 1921. Printed in the United States of America.

Interim Report of the First Presidency

A between-conference survey of the present situation and future prospects

THE POSTPONEMENT of the General Conference until October has stretched the inter-Conference period to thirty months and makes it wise that we shall report to the church on the progress made, the present situation and the prospects opening before us.

It is somewhat over a quarter of a century since the last world depression struck with such force as to curtail most of our material resources and the opportunities dependent on them. Secondary and peripheral activities of the church were brought to a standstill, and the attainment of objectives of primary importance was long deferred. Before the church had fully recovered its strength, World War II produced distractions and caused losses of personnel that adversely affected its work in practically every department.

Specific Gains

Before the close of World War II the situation had begun to be righted. The Saints throughout the world take justifiable pride in their response during the debt-repayment period. This fine response has continued during the expanding opportunities of more recent years.

Today we need to face our weaknesses and deficiencies humbly and in the fear of God, but we are justified in taking great courage from what has been accomplished. The church is better equipped to fulfill her divinely given purpose than ever before in her history. There are greater numbers in the church, the annual baptismal rate is increasing slowly but steadily, and a better work of preparing candidates for membership is being done. By radio and the use of audio-visual material and in the personal testimony of a steadily growing percentage of our ministers and members we are influencing the lives of many not yet won. Our people are better housed, and our newer and larger churches are better equipped. Stakes, districts, branches, and missions are better organized and led. Our worship practices are being enriched. The new hymnal has received phenomenal acceptance. Such helps as the Book of Mormon and Doctrine and Covenants Concordances and the Pastor's Handbook have become standard equipment. Department work is becoming better organized and is being supported with steady concern for the basic objectives of the church, by more and better published material, outstanding camping ministry, and increasingly effective use of vacation church schools. Groups having special needs or talents (doctors, teachers, engineers) have been organized for mutual aid and church contribution. Graceland College has grown steadily, as have the Independence Sanitarium and Hospital and the associated School of Nursing. The generosity of the Saints through the oblation fund has enabled us to take care of more of our aged people, and to do so in better fashion. Social service centers enable us to marshal resources for practical ministry on the part of large numbers of our people at the local level while giving to many the opportunity to be of practical service to the needy.

The projection of the School of the Restoration into the field of leadership education is an important beginning in an area of major significance. Quorum work, more generalized priesthood training, specific preparation for ordination, and leadership training for departmental work are all becoming better organized and are being more diligently pursued than at any time in our history. There has been needed clarification of ministerial and quorum functions, especially on the general church level where inter-quorum relationships are warm and co-operative. The work of the standing ministry is coming to be recognized as calling for distinctive qualities and training, and this is being balanced by special emphasis in missionary selection, preparation, and ministry. Needed pioneer work has been done in missions abroad, and the foundations are laid for some very satisfactory additions as with sacrificial fervor we build on these foundations. Most of these gains are evident and measurable.

Not quite so evident, but of deeper significance than our material gains, is the clarification of our basic purpose which continues to take place. As the ranks of the high priests, the Seventy, and the elders have been augmented, a deepening concern with our basic beliefs, ethical standards and practices has become widely apparent. There is growing awareness of the spiritual values inherent in compliance with the temporal law. We have important though comparatively small reserves against emergencies and contingent obligations. The foundations of the gathering have been more and more securely laid, as steadily mounting numbers of our people have achieved clearer insight into the purpose of God and the meaning of this purpose in terms of community relationships and understanding. This is most apparent in Independence and the regions immediately contiguous thereto, but it is also evident elsewhere and has deep significance for the further development of the kingdom program.

In the more recent past we have made progress in developing democratic participation in the field of church government while attempting to maintain the pattern of ministerial authority set forth in the Scriptures and characteristic of the Restoration. The church is not a pure democracy, nor was it ever intended to be. As stated by President Joseph Smith, it is more correctly described as a "theocratic democracy." Its democratic functions are nevertheless important, and their proper and balanced development is a necessary phase of our growth.

One aspect of our wider democratic participation has been in the steadily increasing emphasis on a broader program of women's work. With the liberation of more and more of the women of the church through education, the elimination of household drudgeries, and changes in our social procedures, we have been concerned for parallel enrichment of their kingdom contribution. Some important progress has been made. The limitations which belonged to the restrictions of the past should no longer hold down any who have time, opportunity, and inclination to serve in the work of the kingdom.

Another aspect of wider participation recently emphasized is in the field of ministry to special groups of our total membership. The obligation to minister according to needs has long been recognized among us. In line with this obligation the church has established Graceland College for young people, the Sanitarium for the sick, and Resthaven for the aged. Now we are seeking to give professional and spiritual help to college students beyond the walls of Graceland and to professional people still in training or already busy in the practice of their professions. Conversely, teachers, physicians, dentists, engineers, and other groups are now organizing for mutual aid and more effective church contribution.

Major Problems and Opportunities

It is not possible to list exhaustively the major problems and opportunities now confronting us, nor even to name them in the order of their importance. They are far-reaching and interrelated. In their progressive solution some will take the lead at one time and some at another. It is of great importance that an understanding of the nature of these problems shall be widely shared, and that those who can help in any field shall make known their interest and skills. Certainly, a large share of leadership and performance must be contributed by those not under General Church appointment.

Fundamental Teachings

There always will be need for research and sharing of experience which will enable us to be ready always to give "a reason for the hope that is within us." People of inquiring minds need a sound foundation for faith. They need to have at hand cogent reasons for church membership that can be shared with earnest and well-informed inquirers. We can make substantial progress only as our message appeals with its intrinsic authority to heart, mind, and conscience. The more we uncover the need for specialists in contributory fields, the more apparent becomes our need for specialists in "rightly dividing the word of truth."

Evangelism

Our baptismal rate is improving. It is still not adequate to the tasks ahead. Sound extension is still the basic need of the church. Success in this field is fundamental to the life of the church.

In the years immediately ahead we shall need to extend further, and with unremitting vigor, the good work now being done along several lines in the field of evangelism. In the domestic fields these principles stand out: The constant re-evaluation of the work in the branches with a view to making our services more attractive to inquirers; the designation, training, and utilization of nonappointee missionaries; the improvement of missionary aids, literature, and so forth; the administration of evangelism with reference to the building of missions and branches which can be mutually helpful and which will enable us to organize many small and cohesive and stable districts and stakes.

In missions abroad we need more and better prepared appointee help; this will be forthcoming as the over-all progress of the church permits. The translation of basic literature must be pushed steadily. This is arduous and costly, but it is imperative. This basic literature must be supplemented as soon as feasible by missionary and teaching materials. Of this as much as possible must be prepared by nationals and must be related to their own history and culture. The missionary outreach of Saints who have interest in other lands must be encouraged. This can materially augment the work being directed by the Twelve and Seventy in fields now open, and can prepare the way in other fields for organization and assignments which may yet be several years away.

Leadership and Local Organization

The growth of the church is calling for more and better-prepared leaders, especially in the quorums of the Melchisedec priesthood, and for the improvement of communications among them and between them and the general authorities of the church. District and regional meetings of administrators, priesthood, and departmental workers seem to be required by the situation. These should be planned as local and regional needs indicate, but with due regard for the time and finances of those involved and for the maintenance of branch activities. The branch is our major point of impact. Leaders should not be drawn away so frequently as to impair their home ministry.

The money and manpower cost of administering and promoting the unity of a church whose members are widely scattered is much greater than where the Saints can be organized into cohesive stakes and districts. This has been recognized for many years. Within the past few years it has been possible to reorganize many of our once large and ungainly districts into smaller and more easily accessible units, and the work of the church has been advanced thereby. As these districts multiply it is apparent that we shall need to set up regional organizations for the purpose of general and departmental administration and teaching. In areas where we have sufficient strength and maturity the Presidency expects to recommend the organization of additional stakes when the Spirit of revelation and wisdom shall direct.

Religious Education

The progress of our core curriculum project, which has already been marked by the publication of some excellent material on all levels, will reach a further significant stage with the early publication of a series of adult texts which, together, will comprise the most comprehensive study of basic beliefs we have yet presented.

This needs to be augmented by a special and continuing emphasis on church school attendance and teaching. This is true in every division of the church school, but it is particularly true in the adult division. More members of the church need to make a practice of studying together.

Excellent vacation school material is now available. More branches should make the vacation school part of their regular annual program. Neither this nor church-sponsored camping can wholly take the place of the weekday religious instruction, which is so eminently desirable, but both go a long way.

Higher Education

The problem presented by the growing percentage of our young people who are interested in advanced education has already received the careful attention of church leaders and educators. Problems of administration, emphasis, personnel, and finance are involved. Solution of these problems will involve specific action by the quorums and councils of the church and by the General Conference and necessarily envisions a long-time program of balanced expansion of existing and future educational institutions. The Saints should keep in mind that in addition to the ministry offered at Graceland is that available through the Independence Sanitarium and Hospital School of Nursing, and that becoming available through the School of the Restoration.

An advisory committee in the field of higher education is in process of appointment at this time.

The Auditorium

The most pressing physical need, on the general church level, is for the completion of the Auditorium. Work on the present phase of construction is moving forward as anticipated. The General Conference Chamber, the east and west porticoes, and the maintenance areas will be available for Conference on October next. Seating and the organ will be installed as funds permit. Work on the lower auditorium, the ramps, and landscaping has yet to receive Conference approval and to be financed, engineered, contracted, and completed.

It is of major importance that all this work shall be finished as soon as possible. Many of the major gatherings which promote the unity of the church and of the Center Place and of the Central Stakes will be held here. Many aspects of the spiritual and cultural activities of the church at more distant points need to culminate here. We confidently expect that the spiritual and cultural tone of our entire endeavor will be uplifted as we put the Auditorium to use on a high level and will be blessed as we feel sure the Lord desires to bless us.

But the building has to be completed first, and we need to have the money for this completion as soon as possible so that plans can be pushed forward and the construction go on without interruption.

The Conference of April, 1960, will be the centennial of the Amboy Conference when "Young Joseph" came to take his place in fulfillment of prophecy and to the very great blessing of the church. Everyone will want that centennial to be held in the completed building, as fully adequate as we can make it, a living center of both memory and aspiration. And, when 1960 comes, we will want to turn from the building of the Auditorium to give unhampered attention to the many other tasks that await us.

Finances

Quite apart from the financing of the Auditorium, we need to face the serious implications of the steadily narrowing margin between income and budgetary expenses. For the sixteen-year period 1941 to 1956 approximately 39 per cent of general fund income has been available for special Conference appropriations and increases in general fund net worth.

Special Conference appropriations have totaled over $6,656,000.00. The major ones are as follows:

Houses of Worship Revolving Fund	$1,210,000.00
Operating Fund Reserve	1,209,000.00
Auditorium	1,091,000.00
Graceland College Construction	1,008,000.00
Sanitarium Construction	604,000.00
Houses of Worship Fund	531,000.00

And the Missionary Reserve Fund and Ministerial Reserve Fund are approximately $400,000.00 each.

Urgent requests for capital financing of this nature will continue to come to us from the branches and missions and from our institutions. In contrast with the sixteen-year average of 39 per cent of general fund income available for such purposes, the margin between income and budgetary expenses for the past two years has been less than 20 per cent.

Obviously, we need to develop other sources of income. To this matter the Presiding Bishopric is giving careful attention with our full support. But in the meantime, and as a matter of basic and continuing policy which affects all that we do to extend and stabilize the work, we must continue to emphasize the need for faithful compliance with the financial law on the part of all. This is the foundation of the temporal equality contemplated in the law which must be achieved or "the abundance of the manifestations of the Spirit shall be withheld" (Doctrine and Covenants 70: 3 d).

The Spirit of the Times

World happenings have begotten a sense of urgency which has given new meaning to the characteristically Latter Day Saint phrase, "the hastening time." There is no justification for hysteria, but this sense of urgency, and of hastening, should be taken to heart by all. Religion is the basic concern of our times. The primary challenge is not to build bigger and better missiles and satellites but to develop wiser and nobler men and women. It is our conviction that the harder men push toward new horizons, the more urgent it becomes for them to accept the moral guidance of the Lord Jesus Christ.

Our hope is in God. In him, in his providence and grace, is the real assurance for a better tomorrow. It is because he has done so much for us, and called so insistently for our service, that all are under moral obligation to serve him in the spirit of sacrifice and deep devotion and enduring faith.

In gospel bonds,

W. Wallace Smith
W. Wallace Smith

Saving Lives

Physicians are oath-bound to save human lives wherever possible with all the means at their disposal. As far as I have been able to learn it is the rare exception where this code is violated. As a pastor I was admitted to the room where a traffic victim was dying because of a deep chest wound. As I came in one of the physicians was using his hand to try to start the heart beating once more.

I contrast this with the story I read once of the physician who was called to the riverbank where artificial respiration had been applied unsuccessfully for thirty minutes to a drowned boy. The doctor felt his pulse and pronounced him dead. Thereupon the boy was turned over on his back and the physician saw that it was his own son. The father started the process of artificial respiration again and saved the boy's life.

In the Christian process of warning our neighbor, do we give up too easily? Loving our neighbor as ourselves may not be considered an oath-bound duty, but it is a command of God. Great results may not often follow, but it has its own rewards.

And if it so be that ye should labor all your days, in crying repentance unto this people, and bring save it be one soul unto me, how great shall be your joy with him in the kingdom of my Father!

C. B. H.

The Observance of Brotherhood Week

Courtesy STOCKTON (CAL) RECORD

BROTHERHOOD WEEK is a symbol—a reminder to the people of this nation to live up to the ideals of brotherhood. In the early days of the observance, trios of speakers went about discussing this ideal, lay or clergy trios who were by their act of speaking together on a common civic platform a symbol of good will. In 1934 a Catholic priest in the Denver area remarked to his bishop what a great thing it would be if just one day all the people would live up to that ideal of brotherhood. This suggestion was passed along to the National Conference of Christians and Jews, and in that year a one-day observance of "Brotherhood Day" was held in about 300 communities. Last year over 10,000 communities in the United States and Canada held a "Brotherhood Week" observance that extended from January into March. Now an institution in this country, headed each year by the President of the United States, its observance has focused the attention of millions of Americans in a positive way upon problems of religious and racial and cultural intolerance.

Brotherhood Week has not been set aside as the one week of the year most suited to the practice of brotherhood (this year, February 16-23), for all weeks are equally in need of that practice. Rather it is a time of resolution and renewal to sustain brotherhood throughout the year. This can and should be done without seeking a union of religious bodies, without modifying the distinctive beliefs of Protestants, Catholics, and Jews, and without weakening the loyalties of those of any faith.

President Eisenhower, in the call for observance of Brotherhood Week, said: "All of us must continue our efforts to promote a belief in brotherhood among people of varied backgrounds, to uphold the right to freedom of worship, to foster the individual citizen's understanding and tolerance of his neighbor's spiritual convictions. Such efforts, which rest upon a belief in the equality and dignity of men under the fatherhood of God, are essential to our unity and strength as a society."

What can you do for brotherhood?

Remember, brotherhood means giving to others the rights and respect you want for yourself. Brotherhood—man's concern for his fellow man—has become the key to human survival. If we are to escape destruction, all of us must cultivate the ability to put ourselves in the other fellow's shoes, to understand his hopes and aspirations, and to recognize how close these are to our own. We must teach ourselves to become more sensitive to the pain of others and more determined than ever to relieve the suffering of our neighbors. This means we learn to practice brotherhood.

In your own attitudes

1. Deal with people as individuals. Don't generalize about groups of people. Never be guilty of stereotyping an individual—or a group of people. Take every person at his own value.
2. Have friends in all religious, racial, and national groups. Cultivate this acquaintance—look for the good in them.
3. Don't blame others for your own faults and troubles. Don't make others scapegoats for the problems of society.

When you hear a bigot

1. Challenge prejudiced statements quietly with moral principles and facts.
2. Insist that each person be judged as an individual; do not allow generalization to go unchallenged.
3. Ask proof of prejudiced charges.
4. Point out that religious principles and democratic ideals call for fair play for every person.

In your home

1. Give your children a good example by talking about and acting with people as individuals. Children pay more attention to action than words.
2. Give your children love and affection so they will be secure and not aggressive against others.
3. Give your children experience with children of other groups through books, stories, movies, visits.
4. Give children the care for proper mental health which is as important for their happiness as physical well-being. Parents protect their children from catching germs that spread disease—measles, scarlet fever, polio. Scarcely ever do they realize that prejudice is a disease and seek to immunize their children against it.

In your school

1. Use new and tested materials on intergroup education, so that in addition to the three R's, the children will have the benefit of knowing about the fourth R—better human Relations.
2. Encourage teachers to attend workshops on institutes on intergroup relations.
3. See that all children have the best possible education and that none receive less because of race, religion, or national background.

In your church

1. Have more Brotherhood sermons: "Love Thy Neighbor as Thyself." Preach and teach that prejudice is sin.
2. Eliminate prejudice and promote better intergroup education in religious materials.
3. Get men's, women's, and youth organizations to meet with similar groups of other religions—not for worship, but for social periods and discussions on topics of civic concern.

In your fraternal and civic clubs

1. See that persons are not barred from membership because of race, religion, or nationality when they are otherwise qualified for membership.
2. Include group relations in programs annually.
3. Invite clubs of different religious and cultural backgrounds to meet together.

From Bulletin of National Conference of Christians and Jews

Our Readers Say . . .

After reading the And Finally feature, "Sincerity in Prayer," in the January 20 Herald I would like to relate an experience I had several weeks ago.

It was a gray day. There wasn't a patch of blue anywhere in the sky. Still, as I served the people who came to my counter in the store, my heart was singing. I caught myself just in time to keep from saying to one of the customers, "Isn't this a beautiful day!" I kept asking myself why I felt so wonderful when, only the day before, my husband had been laid off work. Perhaps I was glad because he had been on the second shift. I remembered thinking, "It wasn't a very good job anyway, and now he can be home with us in the evening. Maybe he'll be able to find work for which he is better fitted."

Eight years ago, before we knew of the church, his being laid off would have seemed a tragedy. Now, because I know God loves us and is concerned about us, there is no cause to worry. I keep comparing the years before we knew God with the years that have followed, and my heart overflows. I wish that I could put the testimony of this happiness in words that would convey to others my true feelings.

Perhaps the brother who prayed, "At the close of another beautiful day . . ." didn't feel the chill wind or see the clouds because his heart had been warmed by God's love throughout the day.

MRS. EUGENIA NICHOLS

Reading, Michigan

Regarding the item on page 24 of the January 20 Herald, perhaps one thinks a "beautiful day" is banal. As I read it I thought of two older Morse code telegraphers who worked in the state department in Portland, Oregon. They always said good morning to each other in code by flipping their desk drawer keys, ending with "It's a beautiful day." The rest of us would look out the window and, seeing the rain or snow or the dry dust blown by summer wind, feel rather aggravated. It took a whole year for us to learn that they meant it was a beautiful day—to them.

A day is a space of time given by God; it's an opportunity, an invitation to accomplish something, an open door leading down a shortening vista. Once past, it is spent and its deeds are on the shelf. It is for each of us to put individual meaning into the days allotted us.

Some people are fortunate—they have the kind of color blindness that helps them to see shades of lavender and rose in gray. I'm sure that they would be able to look at the grayest day and say, with great contentment, "A beautiful day . . . a beautiful scene."

ESTHER ROBY HUDSON

Seattle, Washington

I believe that the question in the September 9 issue of the Herald, "Did the church go into apostasy when Joseph Smith was killed?" was misunderstood. I think A. G. meant to ask, "Did the church go into apostasy after Joseph Smith was killed?" I consider this an easy question to answer. Part of the church went into apostasy after Joseph's death. Had the whole church apostatized, another restoration as well as a reorganization would have been necessary. I agree with A. G. that the church could not go into apostasy "when there were a few faithful souls left waiting for young Joseph to take his father's place."

Recently a Mormon elder asked, "Do you believe in the prophecy of Daniel that in that last days the God of heaven would set up a kingdom that would never be thrown down? If the church was never thrown down, why did it have to be reorganized?" I told him that the fact that the church was reorganized proves that it had been disorganized, not thrown down.

DAVID E. WINSLOW

Notch Hill, British Columbia

Since the Herald is the official publication of this church should it not confine its contributors' writings to statements of facts which the church would approve as being in agreement with scriptural and historical proofs? Otherwise we may be confused considerably by statements lacking such truths.

Birmingham, Alabama

GEORGE T. MCLEOD

Editor's Note: This writer poses a problem since the church has never attempted officially to approve interpretations of the Scriptures. There are many doctrines which are commonly accepted, and the editors would not permit them to be attacked or discredited, but who is to decide that our contributors' articles meets the approval of the church until the church gives an official interpretation.

The Worth of Souls

THE MORNING PAPER carried a small news item. In Union, South Carolina, county officials announced that they had purchased nine new Browning submachine guns and ammunition; purpose—to fight off any “invasion of the U. S. Troops” that may be sent into the area over segregation. The same paper carried another article which disclosed that the governor of Maryland was the target of cross-burning. The cross was attached to an iron fence in front of his home, with signs saying, “Down with the traitor” and “Save our Southern way of life.” The governor had publicly criticized the actions of the governor of Arkansas in the Little Rock integration crisis.

Each day new terrors appear. The situation which exploded in Little Rock is having serious repercussions all over the country.

What will be the outcome?

How do you feel about it?

We live in the South. We are keenly aware of the impact of what is going on regarding this matter of integration. As members of the Church of Jesus Christ, we have definite feelings of what is right and wrong. We realize that this is more than just an issue. It is something which dates far back in history, perhaps to the time when one man was first held in subjection to another. It involves deep-seated emotions. It is something which man alone can never solve. For man of himself has neither the patience nor understanding to overcome the mountain of tradition which looms before him today.

As Christians, we know what is right. Yet only God in his infinite wisdom understands the long, slow, painful process required to change the hearts of men.

We do know there can be no excuse for mob rule. We recall that it was the cries of an enraged and unthinking mob screaming, “Crucify him, crucify him” which committed Christ to the cross. Only days earlier people had shouted, “Hosanna to the Son of David” as he entered Jerusalem.

It was the result of mob violence that led innocent women labeled as “witches” to be burned at the stake.

It was a mob unleashed with prejudice and fury which resulted in the Haun’s Mill massacre.

Feed My Lambs

Lord, I feel near to thee today—as if I’d helped thee smile.

When our young daughter came from school

she brought two friends along, two little dark-skinned girls were skipping
at her side . . .

not terribly clean, not finely dressed,
but lovely with their soft brown shining eyes.

Our daughter’s young, Lord, not “socially adept.”

This thing called prejudice has never touched her
. . . yet.

Please help us keep her free of it.

And now my heart is filled with joy.

I felt, as we fed these small lambs of thine,
we also, Lord,
fed thee.

It was a mob, misinformed and fearful, which took the life of the prophet, Joseph Smith, Jr.

“The glory of God is intelligence.” When men lose their powers of sane, intelligent reasoning, they become little better than wild animals.

A LOT HAS BEEN written about the brotherhood of man. However, there can be no brotherhood until the Fatherhood of God is recognized and understood. Only as we become sons of God can we become brothers.

The decision of the Supreme Court is not new. Nearly two thousand years ago, there was One who commanded men to “love your neighbor as yourself.” Yet men have not been able to follow this teaching. When they do, the kingdom will become a reality. Nor can legislation place this law of love in effect. It must come from the heart. No amount of force will bring it into being. As a church, we believe that we must follow the laws of the land. For those who live in the South, this means also following the laws of the state. Thus comes confusion and misunderstanding, and unless the intellect overcomes the emotions, violence may result.

There are some men in high offices who are coming forth with sound and sane reasoning. There are others who would plunge the nation into another civil war. We are concerned that the people of the church use the enlightenment God has given to try to understand the situation.

As a church, we do not believe in the segregation of any peoples. Yet
www.LatterDayTruth.org

caution and wisdom must be exercised by those of us who are living in the southern states. Experience has proved this to be so.

We do not know the answer to the problem which grows deeper every day. We do know that hot-headed, radical action will benefit no one; it will only result in disaster for all concerned.

What can we do?

We can go to God in earnest prayer for wisdom and understanding. We can renew our kingdom-building efforts to such an extent that more men and women will be moved to dedicate their lives to the purposes of God. We can become more conscious of the fact that Christ came "to seek and to save the lost," and that the angel message which heralded his coming was to all people. We can learn to be temperate in all things. We can try to understand that it is only the works of men which are frustrated, that God's purposes shall come to fulfillment, and that we can hasten this day by daily living up to the best light and understanding which is ours.

We can rejoice even in these troubled times, for the Lord has promised safety for those who love and serve him. We can be challenged by the task ahead, and we can daily remember that the "worth of souls is great in the sight of God."

Sylvester Coleman

I Had an Experience . . .

I WAS REARED in a Reorganized Latter Day Saint home; consequently my life has been closely associated with the church. I have always enjoyed listening to the religious experiences of other people. As a small boy I was intently interested in the testimonies of the missionaries who frequently stayed in our home; I wondered if it would ever be my privilege to have such things happen to me. It is my testimony that not only have I had "an experience" but in the eighteen years of my ministry I have had many rich experiences.

The one I will relate helped me realize the omnipotence of God.

While I was conducting a two weeks' series of meetings, one Sunday morning I preached on the subject, "An Authoritative Church and Ministry." As I stood a great portion of the Spirit of God rested upon me, and I delivered the entire sermon under the influence of that Spirit. I was led to say many things pointing to the fact that our authority lay not only in what we could prove from the Scriptures but more especially in what we produced, both as a church and as individual ministers. Under the influence of this Spirit I said things which I did not fully understand. This troubled me a great deal, and for three days I presented my concern to the Lord in fervent prayer.

The third night after the sermon I had a dream which brought me understanding. In my dream I was driving my car and had just turned off the main road onto a wagon trail which led to a wooded area. It was extremely dark, and as the headlights pointed the way I soon noticed bloodstains on the grass. Then I saw fragments of human bodies, causing me to realize that many had been destroyed. The trail ended before I reached my destination so I had to leave my car and walk. When I started walking three personages emerged from the darkness and surrounded me, giving me the feeling that I, too, was about to be destroyed. At that very instant the area was flooded with light causing these personages to flee. I walked on a short distance and beheld a group of the Saints gathered in a wooded area, apparently waiting for the opportunity of going on to the greater gathering in Zion. They also were preserved by a protective light which did not penetrate deep into the darkness but seemed to come to an abrupt end. As I observed this group of Saints I was made aware of their peace of mind even though they were completely surrounded by the powers of evil. Occasionally I saw young people walk out into the darkness. As they did so a shaft of light came down from heaven and encircled them, prohibiting the images of destruction from destroying them. At this moment a voice spoke to me, saying, "The day shall come when they who stand shall stand by the power of my Spirit. Fear not, saith the Lord; I will fight your battles."

Through this experience I have gained greater understanding of the love of God toward his people. I was made keenly aware that my authority as a minister made it imperative that I do the work to which I had been called or this authority would be of no value. In like manner I was caused to know that the primary authority of our church made it necessary that we build up the kingdom of God and establish Zion here on the earth. Though the forces of unrighteousness seem to be as a mighty army, I know the word of God is true.

More Time at Home

AN ABSOLUTE WAY of evoking a spontaneous response from a women's group is for the leader to ask, "On what date can we have this special project?" Invariably a discussion will follow something like this: "Monday night is preschool and work night at the church; Tuesday is P. T. A. and priesthood visiting night; Wednesday, prayer service; Thursday, choir; Friday night is the basketball game, Cub pack meeting, and shopping night; Saturday is never a good night for church activities, and Scouts frequently use the building. The following week . . ."

Apparently no group is immune to this problem of finding open dates for activities. Age, interest, sex, locale, religion, children or no children makes little difference. Never have we had so many reasons to leave home, and it is not uncommon to have conflicting engagements on one date—all commendable and worth while.

Rather consistently we also hear comments similar to the following, one or more of which might be a slight variation of our own:

"I can hardly remember the last evening our family spent together at home."

"You take one job and try to do it well, and you are immediately pounced upon with a dozen more."

"If everyone would accept a little responsibility some of us could spend more time at home with our families."

"I'm almost ashamed to tell the children we will be gone again this evening."

"My husband hasn't been home when the baby has been awake for over a week."

"I vow I am going to spend more time at home, but what shall I stop first? It all needs doing."

And then there is the age-worn story of the woman who said she had been away so much that when she came home the dog barked and the children didn't know her.

Regardless of the worth of our "outside" enterprises, occasionally we should ask ourselves, "Are we spending enough time at home with our families?" If, in strict honesty, our answer is "no," it is time for us to search for the cause and work toward a sensible solution.

There are many responsible factors in our modern living to keep families apart. Husbands and fathers are required to travel miles to offices, factories, and markets to earn a living. Mass production schedules and public demands for service have developed "swing shifts" and evening shopping hours. Crowded cities and housing requirements have created a trend for suburban living, and women have assumed additional jobs, such as "family taxi driver."

MORE AND MORE women are going to work—some reluctantly to "help" meet the painful financial burden to keep the family going. Others, trained for special vocations, desire to use this training and enjoy the financial rewards which furnish many of the attractive extras so persuasively exhibited on every hand.

Community clubs and agencies have increased, and all are highly organized with a view to working more efficiently to carry out their goals and objectives. Churches also have become increasingly departmentalized. We have many diversified activities, Cub packs, Scout troops, Skylarks, Orioles, junior and senior Leagues, men's clubs, women's circles, and other special groups with such interests as music, study, and drama.

The Christmas season above all others should be a wonderfully joyful time for families. Yet I dare say many of us see less of our families during this season than any other time of the year. About the third week of November an acquaintance was overheard to say that every week night but one from then until Christmas was reserved for some meeting or party. Businesses, clubs, service groups, and numerous other organizations plan special Christmas parties and celebrations. But we hear over and over again Christmas is a time for families.

It is not my intention to build a case against the worthwhile organizations and societies to which we give our allegiance and service, but why are we so willing to give up precious family time? No one stands over us with a club and threatens its use unless we do this or that. Could it be that we ourselves are primarily responsible for this treadmill that competes with our home life? Have we become trapped by little things and the pressures of the unimportant which too often clutter our lives? Do we ask ourselves if all our enterprises have enduring values and, if not, are they worth continuing?

AN OCCASIONAL PERIOD of self-analysis might reveal some unsuspected factors. If so, and we use our findings constructively, the sickness caused by our homes being mere hotels and short-order restaurants will quickly disappear and home life will become more important as a center of family operations, for family life is too important to let busy schedules crowd out occasional unhurried hours together.

Is it possible that one of the reasons we are so willing to be led away from our homes is our misconception of family life as it "should" be? Do we tend to look at our picture of ideal family life as something we should have at all times rather than a goal to which we work? Then as we try to bring into focus our own less-than-ideal situation, we feel uncomfortable, and we are anxious to escape. Certainly we realize that good family life is not like a cherished treasure we can hide in the sugar bowl on the kitchen shelf and with casual irregularity—whenever we can find the time to be at home—take it down, enjoy it, and then return it for safe-keeping.

True family life cannot always be the ideal we see in our mind's eye. It has its ups and downs the same as our daily jobs, school, and other tasks. Sometimes it is biting, compromising, exhausting, cruel, happy, or sympathetic. But this is how we grow, learning in true-life situations with those of the family group we love so dearly. It cannot always be clean and smooth-running and fun. We must learn to cope with tears, tantrums, and dirt.

Public opinion plays its part, too. On every hand publicity and society notes repeatedly tally all the scores of organizations to which this woman or that belongs as well as her pet charity and hobbies. The list is sometimes quite imposing. And since we all like commendation and do not want the humiliation of being "just a housewife," we join the race. Too often our aim is to see how many organizations we can join and become an "attender" rather than a contributing member. It is wrong to belong to something if we don't mean business.

Other propaganda plays pranks on us, too. Advertising and commercials and the ease of "keeping up with the neighbors" with no down payment aggravates the problem far too often. Making sure we are getting the exact drapery to complement the new bedroom paper takes prominence over a heart-to-heart talk with Junior regarding a school problem. So much time and energy we spend on mere trifles.

At other times we allow ourselves to be complimented into jobs which require further time away from home. Some people have the habit of heaping praise upon the busy person and then asking her to do more rather than working to develop new leaders. Many newly organized clubs and activities simply imply that already too-busy women just do more.

THERE are many adult education courses to make us a better-informed and prepared people. To some of these we should subscribe, but there are people so busy attending, for example, child-training courses they have no time to practice what they have learned. They are similar to the man whose son asked him for some help with his home work and the father replied, "I'm sorry, Son, I'm due at the school in ten minutes to take part in a discussion on 'The Duties of Parenthood.'"

What makes a happy family? Certainly not the size and beauty of the house, not the latest model car, or the most up-to-date fashions. Above all these it is the deep concern and love and understanding and sharing and the interdependence of all the members of the family group—all the human relations that go into spending time together as a family.

Not to be overlooked is that giving our families a rightful share of our time is also a law of God. This law, like all others, is in operation whether or not we are aware of it. Family life is not man-made but instituted of God and society to serve him and help fulfill his purposes. Each home—whether it be a family of two or ten—has this God-given responsibility.

Time has firmly established another fact. Family life cannot be directed by remote control—it takes on-the-job doing. Women by their birthright have the greatest responsibility in seeing that they spend enough time "at home." The manner in which we assess this call and carry it forward will permeate the entire family.

What can we do? Perhaps the following few suggestions can help:

(1) Frequently re-evaluate our activities and see if adjustments need to be made in order to be "at home" a little more.

(2) Be more deeply concerned with improving the quality of our family life as well as the quantity. (3) Guard against saying "yes" to time-consuming jobs. (4) Choose to devote a good part of our time to family and not just what happens to be left over (the kingdom cannot be built on leftovers). (5) Resolve not to be defeated by falling in with the popular saying, "We just don't have time to do things together," and gather up any fragments of time we have been wasting. (6) Exert influence in the organizations to which we belong to plan a minimum of meetings and remind them the holidays, particularly Christmas, are family occasions, and families should not be robbed by too many parties and celebrations. (7) Stress the importance of families regularly eating meals together, for the breaking of bread around a table is potentially a holy act. (8) Plan special times together as a family even if it means saving dessert until everyone is home or sharing popcorn and watching a TV program (they're not all bad). (9) Encourage more "family gatherings" at church and fewer departmental gatherings to bring the home and church into closer relationship.

These suggestions may sound a bit homespun to some—and not for the modern family of 1958. Admittedly they are homespun. But the idea of the family is not a modern invention; it is the world's oldest religious institution, and perhaps a few homespun ideas will help.

As I have written, it is not my purpose to attack or condemn worthy associations and organizations, but the mere worth of a thing does not mean we all must give time to it. All of us need good food to be healthy, but even too much good food makes us ill. A word which sometimes takes a drubbing, and yet a good word, is "moderation." Perhaps moderation is a good word for us to remember in 1958, so that we may plan to spend sufficient time at home, for we know the hope of Zion lies in the thousands of homes where together with the church we will find time to practice the art of saintly living.

Thankful Heart

I WAS A CHILD, and my heart sang to the beauties around me. I thrilled to each new discovery. I learned to love God and to know him as my friend.

For this I'm thankful.

The years slipped by—slowly at first, then all too quickly. I was an adolescent, a young woman, still thrilling to the beauties around me—still warm and secure in God's love.

For this I'm thankful.

Then I lost my way. I wandered in forbidden paths. Where were the beauties I had known? Where was my God? I searched, but he was not to be found!

Then I heard him calling. I tried to lift my head to see from whence the voice came, but my sins were heavy upon me, and I could not raise my head. I cried out, "O Lord, remove my burden of sin. Allow me once more to find thy love."

Little by little, one by one, these sins fell from me until that glorious day when I could lift my eyes. I looked; I beheld! There were the beauties—there was my God, waiting with outstretched arms.

Once more I am a child. Once more my heart sings to the beauties around me (though it suffers for the sins around me). Once more I thrill to each new discovery. Once more I love God and know him as my friend.

For this I'm thankful.

Dear God, keep me a child!

HELEN JONES

into the spring of 1823, before it was finished.—Origin, Rise, and Progress of Mormonism.

By Pearl Wilcox

Part III

Journeying and Reminiscing

The Martin Harris Farm near Palmyra, New York

Palmyra, continued

PERSECUTION AND unpopularity were experienced by the Smith family as the result of young Joseph's first heavenly vision in the grove.

After a few months, however, the animosity subsided to a certain extent. The villagers and the rural neighbors seemed more friendly, and the Smiths had less trouble finding extra employment. Many quotations from early writers might be cited to show that the Smiths were ambitious and industrious, ever ready to accept any honorable work. The payments had to be met, when due on their land, and there was much hard work to be done in developing a farm by removing a forest.

Two years after they moved to Palmyra, the second payment on their land was due. Alvin, the oldest son, went from home, where he worked and acquired the money. The family was much relieved. Mother Lucy states that they were very thankful for their snug log house, neatly furnished, and they were making a comfortable living.

The Smiths had been talking of a new home they were going to build on the farm ever since they first erected the log house. They decided they would start building after harvest season of November, 1822. Mother Smith says that they had the frame work standing and all the material was on hand for a speedy completion (Lucy Smith History, 1853 edition).

Local historians say that the Smiths moved into the new home in the spring of 1823. Mr. Pomeroy Tucker, a neighbor and part owner of the Wayne Sentinel, made this statement in his book:

Because of the crowded condition of the Smith family in their little log house, they were anxious to get into more commodious quarters. Alvin, the oldest son, took the initiative in erecting the new home, which they moved

There has been a difference of opinions as to whether the angel Moroni appeared in the barked-roof log home, with three rooms on the ground floor and a divided garret, or in the new nine-room house.

Oliver Cowdery, in a series of letters with which Joseph Smith probably assisted him, made this statement:

On the evening of the twenty-first of September, 1823, previous to retiring to rest our brother's mind was unusually wrought up on the subject which had so long agitated his mind—his heart was drawn out in fervent prayer. . . . In this situation the hours passed unnumbered . . . it must have been eleven or twelve (o'clock) or perhaps later, as the noise and bustle of the family, in retiring, had long since ceased.—Letter No. 4.

We have always taken it for granted that Joseph was alone, and it would have been quite impossible to have had a room alone in the log house with a family of eleven.

Joseph says, "I went to my room, while praying the angel stood by my bed." Mother Smith tells us that all the members of the family were at home that night. Joseph does not mention that any of his brothers shared the room with him, but he does say that the family's noise and bustle had long ceased.

It really does not matter which house was visited. The important thing was the wonderful message the angel brought, telling of the records that were hidden in the hill near by.

Because of the malicious ridicule that was hurled at the Smiths as the result of allowing news of the first vision to become public property, they decided to keep the fact of this second vision from reaching the public. They went about their daily routine of work on the farm and in the village as if nothing unusual had happened.

But the secret that was supposedly being kept well guarded leaked out. With almost incredible rapidity, news of the records spread. Opposition and persecution increased with swiftness, and many false reports and stories were borne in every direction on the eager wings of rumor.

About two months later a great shock came to the Smiths. Their oldest son, Alvin, became suddenly ill and died on November 19, 1823. I view the monument in the old Palmyra cemetery. The inscription to this faithful son reads:

In memory of Alvin Smith, the son of Joseph and Lucy Smith, died November 19, 1823, in the 25th year of his age.

According to the Wayne Sentinel, an early newspaper of Palmyra, when Alvin died an autopsy was performed before he was buried to determine the cause of his death. It was not long after this was known through the town that the country became filled with a flood of gossip. It was told that the body had been exhumed from the grave and desecrated. In order to try to stop this terrible rumor, Father Smith had six consecutive public notices published in the Wayne Sentinel, starting September 24, 1842. These read as follows:

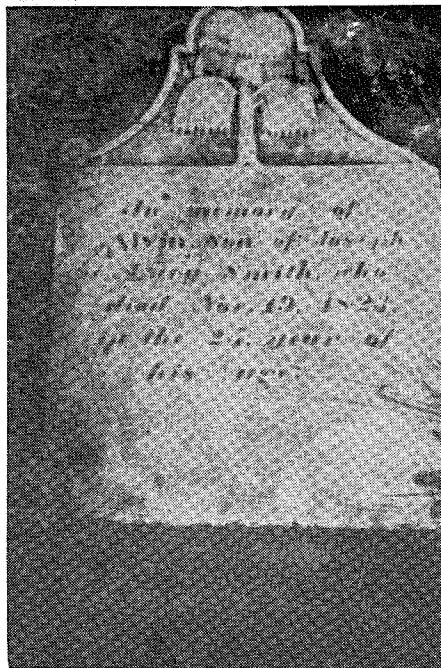

Whereas reports have been industriously put in circulation that my son, Alvin, had been removed from the place of interment and dissected, which reports, every person possessed of human sensibility must know, are peculiarly calculated to harrow up the mind of a parent and deeply wound the feelings of relations; therefore for the purpose of ascertaining the truth of such reports, I, with some of my neighbors, this morning repaired to the grave, and removing the earth, found the body which had not been disturbed. This method is taken for the purpose of satisfying the minds of those who may have heard these reports, and of informing those who have put them in circulation, that it is earnestly requested that they would desist therefrom; and that it is believed by some that they have been circulated more by a desire to injure the reputation of certain persons than by a philanthropy for the peace and welfare of myself and friends.

The Smith farm home, two miles south of Palmyra, is a restful looking place as it stands on the slope facing west on Stafford road. It was built more than ten decades ago and is quite commodious for an early farmhouse.

We know it was upon this "new" house that Alvin, the Prophet's brother, was laboring with such eagerness when he was stricken with a mortal illness. His pathetic appeal to his brothers to finish the house so that his parents might have a more comfortable home in which to dwell rang in my ears as I went from room to room of the "old new house."

Because of the unexpected death of Alvin, it became necessary to get a carpenter, a Mr. Stoddard, in the village to come out and put the mantels, door and window jambs, and other finishing touches to the house before winter set in. The family had lived in the new building in its unfinished state during the summer months.

It was in this house that Oliver Cowdery boarded while he taught school on Canandaigua Road, three and a half miles from Palmyra and one and a half miles from the Smith home. It was here that young Joseph brought his bride, Emma, to reside with his parents. It was here that the Smith family would gather in the evenings after Joseph had been to the hill to hear him tell of the early inhabitants on the western conti-ment. He was able to describe these people as if he had spent his whole life among them.

Grave of Alvin Smith in Palmyra

Joseph's sister, Catherine, who was fifteen years old then, in later years made this statement:

I well remember the trials my brother had before he obtained the records. After he had the vision, he went frequently to the hill, and upon returning would tell us, "I have seen the records, also the brass plates, and the sword of Laban with the breast plates and the interpreters."—Sainis' Herald, Volume 23, page 260.

It was from here that Joseph and Emma left at midnight on September 22, 1827, to go to the hill where Joseph received the records from Moroni. For nearly three months they were kept hidden in this home or on the farm.

As I walked from the house I thought of the unhappy situation the Smiths were forced to face when they were so unjustly removed from this comfortable dwelling. They lost it through financial difficulties. William Smith leaves an account of the trouble they had at this time.

Owing to the many improvements we had made and the hard times, we had missed making the last payment on our land, and Father had gone to Pennsylvania to borrow money to pay up, and liquidate some other claims against us. But while he was gone the agent by whom we had agreed for the land being removed from office, and a new one coming in who was unacquainted with our circumstances, our neighbors contrived to undermine us. By furnishing a man with money, and sending him to the new agent, who, seeing that the last payment was not settled and the bond thereby forfeited, sold it immediately to this man right from under us. He came with a writ of ejectment and turned us all out doors. Our other creditors then came upon us also, and stripped us of every cent and left us houseless and homeless, and almost friendless, to wander into the wide world and again seek a livelihood. Father was gone, our farm was gone. The weather was cold, and the hearts as well as the doors seemed to be closed against us, and our situation was truly deplorable.—Mormonism, a tract by William Smith, page 14.

The Smiths with their few belongings went to Hyrum's home. He then lived in a small log house on a farm of eighty acres adjoining the Smith home place.

Across the road to the west of the home lie the open fields and meadows cleared by the Smiths; on the north and west lie the wooded slopes of the sacred grove.

The Sacred Grove near Palmyra, New York

Question Time

Question

In Doctrine and Covenants 9: 1 b, are these "other records" the Inspired Version or something else?

MRS. G. W.

Michigan

Answer

This statement about "other records," which was addressed to Oliver Cowdery, is rather difficult to understand or explain. We must admit that no other records—other than those concerned with the Book of Mormon—were presented to Oliver for translation. To be frank, we do not know what the statement involves. We can speculate—that is all—keeping in mind that any attempt to explain is speculative.

JOHN BLACKMORE

Question

My Mormon neighbor claims that one holding priesthood in the early church who joined a faction and accepted priesthood in it, forfeited his original authority. She claims that Gurley had no right to ordain Joseph Smith III because he was a Strangite. Is this correct?

MRS. L. M.

Missouri

Answer

God would not take a man's priesthood from him if he were honestly seeking truth by temporarily accepting the claims of false leaders. Unless he enters into gross personal transgressions he is still God's minister though the church is disorganized.

The 1865 General Conference of the Reorganization took a clear stand on this by resolving: "that a connection with those factions during the dark and cloudy day, does not necessarily invalidate the priesthood; holding as we do, that those factions could neither confer nor take away priesthood" (General Conference Resolution 72).

Zenas H. Gurley was properly called and ordained as a member of the Council of Twelve in 1853 (Church History, Volume 3, page 218). It was by his authority as an Apostle in the Reorganization that he assisted in the ordination of Joseph Smith III to be president of the high priesthood and of the church.

C. B. H.

The Martin Harris Home near Palmyra

There are many stretches of woodland on the Smith farm, as well as on the adjoining farms in the country. But nowhere can there be a more beautiful woods than this splendid grove of birch, beech, and maple, covering from five to eight acres. The singular fact is that for at least two thirds of a century no ax has been laid to these trees.

As I entered the grove, I remembered all the different aspects of the incident for which the grove stands as a memorial. Again I thought of the passage of Scripture which says, "Ask of God . . ." Tradition has designated the tree near where Joseph knelt in prayer, but no one knows, and it does not matter. Only this is of vital importance, "God spoke to a living boy, and the world was startled."

North of Palmyra, and a little to the east, stands the home of Martin Harris, a man of some means in those days, whose name and fortune are rather intimately connected with the early church.

The home of Martin Harris is on an eighty-acre farm and is unique in construction. It is built of small round cobblestones hauled from Lake Erie, twelve miles to the north, and set in cement with mechanical accuracy. Whether this is the original home built by Martin Harris, I have no authority to say, but it is known to be the farm.

Before I visited this place, I had read an interesting account in the Palmyra library from the History of Wayne County of 1789-1877:

During the fall of 1824, Joseph Smith, Sr., and his son Hyrum, were walling a basement and digging and curbing a well for Martin Harris. Mr. Harris exhibited an unusual interest in Young Joseph's vision in the grove, stating that he was much interested in it at the time and had since given it considerable thought. Mr. Smith, observing his sincerity, loosened up and told him all the particulars.

Each day while they were there, Martin would find some excuse to bring the matter up and would ask many questions, referring frequently to the Bible to prove that heavenly messengers visiting the earth was not new doctrine.

Finally during the course of conversation Mr. Smith took Martin into his confidence and told him of Joseph's wonderful experience with the angel Moroni. Martin was thrilled beyond expression. He requested that he be kept posted on any new developments, offering to assist in any way possible and promising not to spread the information to his neighbors.

But it was too good for him to keep to himself. He just had to tell somebody, so he took his wife into his confidence, and after discord developed between him and his wife, she released the secret to others of the family and also to friends in the neighborhood.

As soon as it became apparent that Martin had become interested in the Smith family, his wife became hostile and took a determined stand against him, having nothing to do with them.

Martin and his wife were first cousins, and, at times, did not team well together. Local pioneers speak of her as a woman with strong will power and ready tongue. She threatened to leave her husband and demanded a division of the property. In order to pacify her, Martin gave her eighty acres of land. Since there was an old Dominion law in effect, making it unlawful for a man to deed property to his wife, it became necessary for him to deed the land to his brother, Peter, who, on the same day, deeded it to Martin's wife, thus making it legal.

From Isles and Continents Afar

This hymn by Evan A. Fry is, in my opinion, one of the more beautiful hymns to come out of our contemporary period. The imagery of some of these phrases is exceptionally lovely.

Note the language of these lines, how the words suggest the whole spread of the world and include all people: "From isles and continents afar, O'er mountains and the stormy sea, Of many races, many climes" . . . "In busy marts, in city crowds, In quiet of the countryside, In humble homes, in courts of kings" . . . "I'll go or stay, nor count the cost, Thy people serve, where'er they be."

The hymn was written with the idea of providing a hymn of dedication or commitment. There is a certain glamour connected with a foreign mission for the church, but for everyone who goes on a foreign mission there are many who quietly stay at home and work in obscurity. In many ways it takes more dedication to say "I'll go or stay, nor count the cost" than it does to say "I'll go where you want me to go." And there are always those who are willing and even eager to go, and to "join the battle" against sin and evil, but who must wait, perhaps because of physical sickness and pain, perhaps because others have not done their share in preparing the way or providing the means. Yes, sometimes it also takes more dedication to "wait on Thee" than to join the battle.

The tune, sketched roughly on manuscript paper, was shown to Evan Fry one morning to see if it would meet with his approval before the work of harmonization was begun. When I came back to see how he liked it, I found it already harmonized. Both Evan and I feel that there was a goodly degree of inspiration involved in the writing of both the words and the music of this hymn.

FRANKLYN S. WEDDLE

Consecration

381

Evan A. Fry, 1955

Dedicare L.M.

M. J 84

Acts 10: 34, 35

Mosiah 1: 46-49

D. and C. 4: 1

Franklyn S. Weddle
Harm. by Evan A. Fry

1. From isles and con - ti - nents a - far, O'er moun - tains and the storm - y sea,
2. In bus - y marts, in cit - y crowds, In qui - et of the coun - try - side,
3. It is not mine to choose, O Lord, My place of serv - ice, nor the hour;
4. In strength di - vine I'll speak thy word, The bat - tle join, or wait on thee;

Of man - y rac - es, man - y climes, The sons of men now call to me.
In hum - ble homes, in courts of kings, They wait, the men for whom Christ died.
Wher - e'er thy voice shall bid me go, I shall go glad - ly, in thy power.
I'll go or stay, nor count the cost, Thy peo - ple serve, wher - e'er they be.

Words and music used by permission of the author and composer.

382

Charles A. Dickinson, 1849-1906

Stephanos 8.5.8.3.

M. J 92

Eccles. 5: 4

Ether 1: 116

D. and C. 117: 14

Henry W. Baker, 1821-1877

1. Bless - ed Mas - ter, I have prom - ised, Hear my sol - emn vow;
2. Strength of mine is on - ly weak - ness, Thine is strength in - deed;
3. Let no world - ly cares nor pleas - ures Call my heart a - way;

Take this pledge of mine and seal it Here and now.
Strength - en me in full - est meas - ure As I need.
Save me, Lord, and keep me faith - ful Day by day. A - MEN.

(306)

What are Latter Day Saint youngsters singing these days?

Songs from the CHILDREN'S HYMNAL

Be sure your church school department is well supplied with this new songbook for juniors, primaries, kindergartners, and nursery tots.

It contains 225 religious songs and hymns plus 46 fun-and-action songs. Five complete indexes help the teacher in making "just the right selections" for both fun and worship activities.

You'll save dollars by buying these hymnals in quantities of ten.

$2.00 each; 10 for $17.50 (Shipping charges extra.)

HERALD HOUSE Box 477, Independence, Missouri Box 382, Guelph, Ontario, Canada

(161) 17

www.LatterDayTruth.org

Letters

How I Found the Church of Jesus Christ

I was born in Sioux Falls, South Dakota, on May 18, 1888, the oldest of a family of five. My father was of the Roman Catholic faith; however, because of some financial difficulty he had involving a Catholic priest, he became inactive the remainder of his life. My mother was a devout German Lutheran. We children were reared in that faith and attended services regularly.

When I was twelve, we moved to Seattle, Washington. Then, in the spring of 1904, we moved back to South Dakota. Our attendance at church was rather irregular, because of the distance we had to travel. Even as a boy, I found many things about the teachings of the various denominations contradictory to my understanding as I studied the Bible. As I became older, and studied the Bible more, I could not understand the reason for so many churches, each differing in belief and structure, each struggling for supremacy. The Bible taught one doctrine, one church. God was presented as a God of love and justice, unchangeable and with unlimited intelligence and power. I questioned why God, who spoke to his people in the past, did not speak in this day. Many of the priesthood offices mentioned in the New Testament church were missing in the churches I attended. The signs that followed the believer, and the gifts through which God manifested himself by the Holy Spirit were missing. The consensus of opinion, of both the membership and clergy, was that they were not needed any more.

I investigated the teachings of several churches and became more and more confused. Finally I lost interest in the subject of religion, but I retained a belief in a Supreme Being.

When I was in my late twenties, several incidents caused me to become reinterested.

Again I started to read and study, with a desire that I might be able to bring order out of chaos in my thinking. At this time I married and realized that, the Lord willing, there would be children. I felt that the question of religion should be settled before they came along.

One day, while I was prayerfully meditating, this thought came to me: God has promised to give light and understanding to those who sincerely ask him in faith believing. Why not buy a new Bible and take him at his word. I finally made the decision, bought a new Bible, and went to God in earnest prayer, asking him to give me understanding and evidence as to his reality. I also asked what his church should be like—its organic structure, his Holy Spirit, signs, spiritual gifts, etc. I promised him that if he would answer my prayer, I would follow his direction and try to serve him.

Language cannot properly convey an understanding of my experiences during the next several months. As I read the Bible new light was given me by the presence of God's Holy Spirit. At times it filled my entire being to overflowing. Under this influence I was given to understand that Christ's church will always have the same organic structure; that the same signs will follow the believer; that the Holy Spirit will be operative through the same gifts. God will reveal himself through his chosen prophet to direct the church, at all times, when his church is on earth. In looking at the different churches, I could find none that fit this pattern. Therefore, I prayed, "Lord, if your church is on earth, please show me which one it is, or where it is, as none of these I know of fit the pattern you have shown me."

Up to this time I did not know that the Utah Mormon church or the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints existed. I remember, as a small boy, of hearing the word "Mormon" mentioned at one time, but I didn't associate it with anything. In fact, I didn't know what it meant.

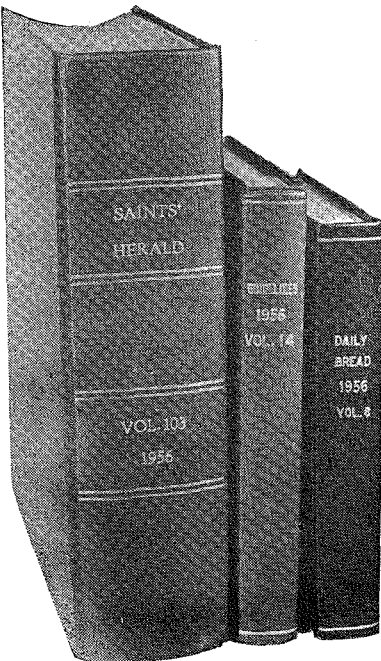

At this time (June, 1917) my wife and I were living on North Sherman Avenue in Sioux Falls, South Dakota. I was depot agent for the Great Northern Express Company. A man by the name of Pratt lived at what was known as Riverside addition, about a mile north of us. I had a speaking acquaintance with him but knew nothing of his religious association. On Sunday morning, June 24, 1917, I was working in the garden, meditating on what I had learned through my prayerful studies of the Bible. About noon this man came up the sidewalk, and something prompted me to walk out to him and tell him what I had found out through my prayerful study of the Bible. He stood there in amazement, with eyes aglow. He said, "You're a Latter Day Saint, aren't you?" I replied that I was unfamiliar with a religious organization known as Latter Day Saints. He informed me that there was a missionary series being held in the home directly across the street and invited me to attend and compare beliefs. I did so, and what I heard caused me to attend every night that meetings were held.

Who could doubt? This brother spoke by the same power that was present with me as I studied the Bible, seeking the true church, and convinced me that here indeed was Christ's church. I remembered my promise. My doubts were removed; and there was unfolded to my mind, to a great degree, the beautiful plan of our heavenly Father to bless his creation. The missionary was Brother H. N. Pierce, of the Quorum of Seventy. He baptized me on Sunday afternoon, July 1, 1917, in the Sioux River. I was confirmed that same evening, by Brother Pierce and the man whom I knew as Mr. Pratt, an elder in the church.

After my confirmation, Brother Pierce told me that he knew I was going to join the church the first evening I attended. He had been down at Wagner, South Dakota, and the spirit directed him to go to Sioux Falls as there was a man up there that he was to induct into the kingdom. He said I was that man. He told me the Lord had a work for me to do, and that I should prepare myself by study, which I immediately started to do. I did not consider the possibility of assuming priesthood responsibility, because I did not feel I was worthy. I had to learn that it was not for me to decide, that our heavenly Father knows better.

One morning, about three o'clock, I was awakened by a voice, as distinct as any I have ever heard, which told me that I was to be called to the office of teacher. After that I didn't resist any more.

My companion is of pure Jewish blood, and her parents were of the strictest sect in Russia, where she was born and reared. When I told her I was going to be baptized, she let me know that she didn't approve of it; however, she finally agreed to attend the baptismal service. I tried to teach her the gospel, but I could get nowhere. I became quite disappointed, but I told no one. About a year later Brother Pierce again came to Sioux Falls and held a week's series of meetings. On the first evening after service he called me outside and said that the Spirit told him I was worried because of my wife's attitude toward the church. Then he said that I should not worry, as she would become a member before too long. It was like a weight taken off my shoulders. I did not bother her any more about religion after that. Two years later she came to me one day and said, "Tell Brother Garver I want to be baptized." She was baptized by Brother John Garver in the basement of the old brick church in Lamoni, Iowa, and confirmed for your church and personal libraries

Church periodicals are valuable references in bound volume form for both worship helps and factual information.

Send your copies of the Saints' Herald, Daily Bread, Guidelines to Leadership, and Stride to Herald House by March 15, 1958, to be bound in durable dark green cloth. (Missing issues not available)

Binding Prices
Saints' Herald	$4.00
Daily Bread	$3.50
Guidelines to Leadership	$3.50
Stride	$3.50

Shipping charges are extra.

by Brother D. T. Williams and John Garver in August, 1920.

The Lord has blessed us with five fine children. Except for his healing power through the years, and his protecting care, none of us would be alive today.

This is indeed the true Church of Jesus Christ; and in it is that which, if applied and adhered to, can solve every problem in the world. God is just as powerful as he ever was. He is at work in our day and ready to help if we but meet the requirements. God has said, "No power discovered and developed by man can supplant my power, or harm those, who in my wisdom, should be protected." I have learned that we must live by every word that has, and will, proceed from the mouth of God.

In my ministry and life I have seen and experienced many manifestations of God's power in operation through his servants and children. God changes not, and Jesus Christ is the same yesterday, today, and forever.

Anyone who will go to God in earnest prayer, in faith believing, with an open, receptive mind and heart, a sincere desire to know and obey the truth will be led into this church as I was. God is no respecter of persons. He desires that all may enjoy eternal life but cannot cause us to obtain against our will. We hold the key to our destiny in our heart and mind.

Ontario, California ELDER W. H. KEMPLE

Note of Thanks

I wish to express my appreciation to those who so kindly remembered me while I was convalescing. I would like to answer each letter personally, but there are too many.

I am making a good recovery from injuries which I received in an automobile accident, but I still need prayers. I'll be happy to hear from anyone who cares to write.

MRS. PEARL M. GAMET
1115 North 36th Street, Kansas City 2, Kansas.

In Time of Need

I would like to tell of some of the blessings I have received. After my husband's death it was necessary for me to go to work. I think of the statement, "Man's extremity is God's opportunity." I was able to find employment and worked for seven months in a Catholic home. After that the way opened up for me to work in a drugstore for two years, and while there I made many friends. After the store was sold and I was discouraged because of no job, and also because I had a minor accident with my car, the way was opened up for me to find employment again in another home where I cared for four children. The strain of everything, though, was all I could bear. Brother and Sister Bushor asked me to go to the Park of the Pines with them, so after encouragement from my family and friends, I went. It was a spiritual feast to me. God knew how much I needed those blessings. I came back encouraged and ready to face life again. I was able also to visit my brother and wife in Escanaba, and that, too, was a help to me. I was able to find employment again and things began to look brighter.

I try to call on people who are lonely and discouraged, and I find more than enough to keep me busy. I have much to be thankful for. Pray for me that I will always try to look for the beautiful in everything about me. It has been wonderful to have a family of Latter Day Saints in my neighborhood as they have helped so much in my hours of need.

AMY HUBBARD RICHMOND
3355 Seventh Street
Muskegon Heights, Michigan

Graceland Gazette

■ One of the services scheduled during the Latin-American Unit was a class for learning and singing hymns in Spanish. Under the direction of Miss Carole Langton (Romance language teacher) the group learned several hymns in Spanish including "Redeemer of Israel."

The last service for this unit was Sunday, January 26, with the theme "These Things We Can Do in Latin America."

■ On the evening of January 18 the Yellow Jackets were defeated by William Jewell on the Graceland basketball court. The final score was 92-49. High scorers for the Jackets were Ken Green and Gary Hannaman with 13 and 15 points respectively.

No other basketball games were scheduled until after the semester ended in order to give the fellows on the team a better opportunity to prepare for semester exams.

■ The wrestling team had its first match Saturday afternoon, January 18, against William Jewell. Out of the eight individual matches Jewell won six with five pins and one decision, and Graceland won two, both by pins. Jewell won the match 28-10. The two winners for Graceland were Bob Sinclair and C. R. Auxier.

■ The animal husbandry class, under the direction of Norman Nelson, took a field trip to St. Joseph, Missouri, on January 15. The purpose of the trip was to observe buying and packing of meat at Swift's packing house.

■ The first semester ended Wednesday, January 29. Thursday was a free day, and registration for the second semester was held on Friday and Saturday morning. Classes began on Monday, February 3.

Life Begins at Seventy

Life began at seventy for Ray and Fern Lloyd. Brother Lloyd was seventy years old when he retired as executive secretary of the Automotive Trades Association of Kansas City and offered his services to the church.

The Lloyds volunteered without any financial obligation to the church. They recently completed eight months of service in the Los Angeles Stake and are looking forward to a few months in Utah at the invitation of Apostle Reed Holmes.

In Los Angeles the Lloyds spent much of their time showing the film "Other Sheep" to members and nonmembers. They visited many families in the stake, reclaiming inactive members and creating good will for the church wherever they went.

An article in the December Los Angeles Stake News said of the Lloyds: "The example of their taking a church mission at their own expense upon retirement has opened the doorway of opportunity to a number of couples in the stake who have a new awareness that life can begin at seventy."

Be sure to read
"SUCCESS IN MEN'S WORK"
by Athol Packer
Director of Adult Division of Religious Education in the March issue of
GUIDELINES TO LEADERSHIP

Yearly subscription rates: U.S. $2.00
Canada $2.25 other countries $2.50

Book Review

David Livingstone: His Life and Letters

By George Seaver

Harper and Brothers

Price $6.95

This 631-page biography of David Livingstone, the great missionary, explorer, and scientist who opened up Africa, is written by George Seaver, whose similar biography of Albert Schweitzer has given him fame.

This book records briefly the boyhood of David Livingstone, his desires to serve as a missionary, and his struggle for a medical education—prompted by this desire.

In more detail it records his arrival in Africa, his determination to push into the interior where no Europeans had ministered. It records his first journey across the interior of Africa to the Atlantic Ocean and back across Africa to the Indian Ocean, and incidentally his discovery of Victoria Falls.

After his visit home in 1856 it records the organization of the Zambesi expedition, its successes and heartaches, followed by his crossing the Indian Ocean in a lake steamer to Bombay, India.

Following his next visit home it records his unwavering determination to pursue these explorations. Against the background of the devastation of villages and tribes by the slave traders it follows his last journey into Africa, the terrible hardships of the journey increased by ever recurring fever, his meeting with Stanley, his determination to push farther into the interior, and finally his death in the swamps of Lake Bangweolo.

In this biography, supported by numerous letters from the pen of Livingstone, Seaver has underscored the dogged determination of the man and his disregard of suffering if his aim of opening up Africa to civilization and Christianity could be aided.

It will remind those of the church interested in Livingstone—and in missions abroad—of the prices paid in opening up present countries, and the price yet to be paid in carrying the gospel into all the world. Those who can afford the book will find it a good investment.

JAMES S. MENZIES

Briefs

Yuletide Conference for Youth

SOUTHERN OREGON DISTRICT.—Bishop T. A. Beck of the Northwest District and Elder Robert Seeley, president and missionary of the Southern Oregon District, presented the stewardship education program throughout the district. On December 1 they met in Eugene, Oregon, with all district officers, local solicitors, and pastors, introducing the program.

From December 1 to 6 they met with the priesthood of the various branches and missions. December 6 to 15 the picture "The Center Place" was shown to the various groups, followed by a sermon by Bishop Beck. He spoke on stewardship and Zion's redemption. He also assisted some in filing their statements.

Approximately eighty young people attended the Yuletide Conference at Eugene December 27-28.

Personnel included Evangelist Miles Whitting, Youth Leader Robert Dixon; Missionary John Thumm, Southern Oregon District Youth Leader Frank Tucker, District President Robert Seeley; Elder Noel King, and Music Leader Rena Whittington.

The theme was "Study to Show Thyself Approved."

On Sunday morning, Elvis Eugene Barnhart was ordained a priest by Elder Ephriam Barnhart, assisted by Elder John C. Ford.—Reported by PEARL FORD

Galewood Group Improves Church Facilities

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN.—The basement has been enlarged to include a dining room and two new classrooms.

There were four baptisms in 1957, Roselee Rupert, Daniel Wade, and Creig Ash were baptized by Elder Bruce Robert Harvey, and Dale Lee Nyhuis was baptized by William H. Dodds.

Virgil I. Rupert was ordained a deacon by Elder Bruce R. Harvey and Pastor James Phillips.

Rickey Paul Nyhuis, son of Wayne and Betty Nyhuis, was blessed April 29 by Elder B. R. Harvey and Elder Adelbert Dodds. Donald Wiley, a ward of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Rupert, was blessed July 7 by Elder Alma Dieterman and Brother Harvey.

Election of officers was held, and officers were installed in October. Elder Bruce Harvey is pastor. William H. Dodds is associate pastor, and Emerald L. Dodds is church school director, with Edward Lautenschleger as assistant. Minnie Dodds is secretary and treasurer, and Elna Harvey is music director. Joy Dodds is children's leader, and Edith Bayne is women's leader.

Galewood is again holding Sunday evening services.—Reported by MINNIE M. DODDS

Recent Ordinations

MEMPHIS, TENNESSEE.—William A. Hamilton and Reginald R. Smith were ordained to the office of priest recently in the Memphis Branch. Jack E. Gould was ordained to the office of elder.—Reported by THOMAS S. GOUGH

Recent Baptisms

THE PLAINS, OHIO.—On January 6, Donnilynn Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don C. Smith, was blessed by her maternal grandfather, Elder Delbert O. Norris, and Elder Ralph V. Brown, pastor.

In April the church interior was painted, a new floor laid, and a new aisle rug purchased. D. V. Cummings built a pulpit and hymn racks, and is completing a matching book case.

Elder Ralph A. Bobbitt, missionary to Southern Ohio District, held a two weeks' series of meetings in May. Russlyn Sewell, Vicki and Charlotte Clark, and Eleanor, Roger, and William Clark were baptized. They were confirmed June 9.

The annual business meeting for election of officers was held August 26, with District President John Blackstock in charge. New officers are Ralph V. Brown, branch president; Don C. Smith, secretary and clerk; Virginia Mingus, church school director; Janet Smith, music; D. V. Cummings, treasurer; Florence Overly, women's leader; Fauntelle Beveridge, young people's leader; Marie Brown, publicity; Ellen Charney, auditor; Janet Smith, book steward.

David Mingus was baptized September 15, and confirmed September 26.

Evangelist V. D. Ruch held a series in November.

The young people presented Mother's Day and Christmas programs.

The women have studied "Non-Christian Groups," with Ruby Tinkham as teacher.—Reported by JANET N. SMITH

Apostle Hanson Visits

SAN ANTONIO, TEXAS.—At Capitol Avenue Branch, the business meeting was held September 4. Officers sustained were Fantly Hall, pastor; Darlene Coffman, church school director; Wilma Beard, music director; Elmer Beard, treasurer. Newly elected officers were Ann Yerrington, secretary; Lola DeBrail, women's leader; James Hanson, Zion's League leader; Rayburn Kuykendall, young adult leader. Appointed were Emma Sasse, book steward; Erma Lea Martin, recorder and historian.

There has been a periodic interchange of ministry with Rockwood Branch and South-west mission.

District Missionary Wayne Simmons was in San Antonio during August, September, and October. He held cottage meetings for prospective members and prebaptismal age children, and services for the congregation.

Apostle Paul Hanson conducted a series of illustrated lectures November 14-24. They were based on his world travels. He also conducted priesthood classes.

District conference was held November 23-24, with District President J. E. Wilder in charge. Apostles Hanson and Hield were present. Six were called to priesthood offices, and an ordination service was held December 15. Ordained were Rayburn Kuykendall, deacon; Allen Martin, teacher; Waldo Briggs, priest; Bob Hacker, Charles Melenzyer, Sr., and Cecil Purcell, elders.

Annabelle Kuykendall was baptized by Wayne Simmons October 13, and Margie Bates and Sharilyn Harrell were baptized by Cecil Purcell January 5.

The following children have been blessed: Andrew and Lorna Lee, children of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Kuykendall; Donald and Ronald, twin sons of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Purcell; Stephen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Tucker; and Linda, daughter of Mr. and Mrs.

James S. Bates.—Reported by ERMA LEA MARTIN

Apostle Visits Branch

SIOUX CITY, IOWA.—On November 10, two young men were ordained. Steve Wilkinson was ordained a priest by Elder C. J. Smith and Elder Raymond Thompson. Carl Gilbertson was ordained a priest by Elder Jack Perry, assisted by the branch pastor, Elder Glen Ford.

Apostle Maurice Draper was in Sioux City, December 1. He spoke at the evening service. A get-acquainted session was held in the lower auditorium following the service.—Reported by DEANNA KLOSTERMAN

New Hammond Organ

WILBURTON, OKLAHOMA.—The annual business meeting was held September 11, with District President O. O. Dollins and Pastor Bill Dollins in charge.

Those sustained were Bill Dollins, pastor; Everard Burton Hamilton, church school director; Angie Dollins, treasurer; Mickey Montana, secretary; Bob Doan, young people's leader; Ora Dollins, women's leader.

The pastor appointed Don Dollins and Bob Doan as counselors, and Leonard DeHart was sustained as solicitor.

Ruth Goodwin, district women's leader, was present November 3 for an area workshop. Several branches were represented.

Missionary Joe Hanna and wife Sharon live in the area. Fourteen were baptized from October, 1956 to October, 1957.

The Wilburton Saints have a new Hammond organ.

The October conference of the Oklahoma City District was held at Wilburton, with Seventy Eugene Theys as speaker.

The women held a Christmas party December 19 at the home of Mrs. Don Dollins.

The young people recently attended a youth retreat at Oklahoma City, and their Christmas party was in the Bob Doan home.—Reported by MRS. CHARLES MONTANA

Children Give Toys

DUNLAP, IOWA.—The annual bazaar, food sale, and noon lunches for the public were held December 7. After expenses, $378.25 was realized.

The Christmas program was held December 22. Closing the program was a skit based on sacrifice and love for others. Each child brought a good used toy to the altar for the children at the Christian Home in Council Bluffs. A gift exchange and refreshments followed.

On December 27 the children and their chaperones took their offerings to the Home. They visited there, and also took a tour through the new church there and the Iowa School for the Deaf.

A new night circle is being organized. The first meeting was January 9 at the home of Mrs. Leslie Franklin. Seventeen were present of which seven were nonmembers, and three are women unable to meet with the ladies at the day meetings. Mrs. Franklin presented a panel discussion.—Reported by DORIS STUR-GILL

Home Dedication Held

DESELM, ILLINOIS.—Recent guest speakers have been Elder Lloyd Cleveland of Aurora Branch, Brother William J. Pike of Mission Branch, and Missionary Elder Wayne Banta, Houston, Texas. A tape-recorded sermon by Seventy J. V. Pement was presented by Elder V. L. Rogers.

At the annual swiss steak dinner three hundred were served, and a substantial amount went to the building fund. The League sold candy and stone-ground flour, and assisted with the supper.

Mrs. Richard Lidberg has been appointed chairman of the Beatrice Society yearbook committee.

Juanita Marie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Yerk of Walcott, Indiana, was blessed December 22 by her grandfather and uncle, Elder V. L. Rogers and Elder D. Rogers.

The church school and music departments presented "The Manger Cradle." On December 23, sixteen persons enjoyed caroling for shut-ins and friends in the Kankakee area.

A home dedication service was held recently for the Richard Lidberg family, of Deselm. Members of the branch and their neighbors presented gifts for the home.—Reported by MRS. NORMAN PEMENT

Ordination and Baptism

ST. CHARLES, MISSOURI.—On December 1, Hubert Turnbull was ordained to the office of deacon by Elder Charles Sappington, and on December 29, William Russell Reider was baptized at St. Louis, Missouri, by Brother Sappington and confirmed the same day by Brother Sappington and Elder James Myers.

The women held their annual bazaar and bake sale December 9, with proceeds totaling $312.59.

The Zion's League, under the leadership of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tuttle, have planned a trip to Onondaga Cave at Leesburg, Missouri. There are fifteen Leaguers, five of whom are nonmembers.—Reported by MAUDE SAPPINGTON

Kansas City Speaker

SAN DIEGO, CALIFORNIA.—At the morning service on January 5, Elder Curtis A. Vernon, member of the high council of Kansas City Stake, gave the pastoral address. The theme stressed the importance of the Wednesday evening prayer service in conditioning Saints to kingdom building.

Jan Marie, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Bruington of San Diego, was blessed January 5 by her paternal grandfather, Elder Paul T. Bruington. He was assisted by Elder James W. Watson.—Reported by LEE HAAS

Apostle at Meeting

NIAGARA FALLS, ONTARIO.—The organization meeting of Niagara Falls District, which includes Brantford, Hamilton, Niagara Falls, St. Catherines, Lowbanks, and Port Colborne, was held in Port Colborne on November 1. Apostle D. O. Chesworth presided.

The following were elected to office: Elder William Archer, district president; Elders Roy Castle and Harry Horseley, counselors; Nellie Towers, secretary; Dalton Culp, treasurer; Ray Millard, Zion's League leader; Joe Robson, church school director; Audrey Ware, women's leader; Arnold Ware, music director; Yvonne Snider, historian; George Towers, nonresident pastor; A. Essery, Victor Byrnes, and Walter Thorpe, auditors; Ashley MacAninch and Harry Dayton, reunion committee.

The following are pastors of the different branches: Brantford, Elder V. Byrnes; Hamil-

CORRECTION

In the article on Carthage, Missouri, Branch in the January 20 issue of the Herald, the name of Elder O. C. Karlstrom was inadvertently omitted. Brother Karlstrom's name should have been listed among the pastors of Carthage Branch.

Golden Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest H. Profitit celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary on November 17, 1957, by holding open house at their home near Ava, Missouri. Both have been members of the Reorganized Church since June, 1909. They were converted after hearing Elder Lee Quick when they were living in northeastern Oklahoma.

ton, Elder Harry Horseley; Lowbanks, Elder Lester Roloson; Port Colborne, Elder Roy Castle; St. Catherines, Elder William Hartford; Niagara Falls, Elder Arnold Ware.—Reported by NELLIE TOWERS

Mission Builds Church

MARENGO, INDIANA.—The Saints are now in the process of building a church. The lot was purchased January 8. Brother Chester Metcalf and Brother James Renfroe assisted with planning the building. A three-story house in near-by Leavenworth is being torn down to provide material for the church building. Half of the building has been torn down, and arrangements have been made to pour the footing for the church.—Reported by MRS. BEATRICE McCORMICK

Nine Baptized This Year

NEWTON, IOWA.—Bishop Stephen Robinson of Des Moines presided at the business meeting held September 29. Ernest Kirilin was re-elected pastor. Ira Shippy and John Savage are his counselors. Warren Conklin is church school director, and Mrs. Wilma Schrader is children's supervisor. Mrs. Ezra Cooper is secretary. Lyle Sherman is treasurer, and Mrs. Glen Woody, Jr., is women's leader. Eldora Sweeny will serve as youth leader and music director, and Mrs. Bertha Savage is auditor.

Seventy Vivian Sorensen visited for several weeks and held cottage meetings. There were nine baptisms in the branch during the year.

Nancy Lou, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Woody, Jr., was blessed by Elder Ernest Kirilin and Elder Ira Shippy.—Reported by MARY KIRLIN

for every occasion

a gift for you

New Herald
House
Gift
Certificates

- * Available for $2.50 and up
- * Redeemable for all merchandise stocked at Herald House
- * Redeemable within one year from date issued
- * Complete with matching white envelope
- * Order through your Book Steward or Herald House

Box 477
Independence, Missouri
Box 382
Guelph, Ontario, Canada

Bulletin Board

Change of Address for Homewood Mission

Members of the Homewood mission now meet at 18456 Kedzie Avenue in Homewood, Illinois. The pastor is Stephen Lester, Jr., his telephone number: Pullman 5-1158.

Change in Meeting Place of St. Petersburg Mission

Members of the St. Petersburg mission now hold services at 1117 Arlington Avenue North in the Selama Grotto Hall.

KLAAS KAAAT

Servicemen's Addresses

Col. Walter A. Kneyse
O-42227
HDQ U.S. Army Caribbean
APO 834
New Orleans, Louisiana

SFC Ronald P. Roberts
RA 37653375
12th USASA Field Station
APO 181
San Francisco, California

Ronald will appreciate hearing from members living on the island of Hakkaido in northern Konshu. He is located at Chitose, which is about thirty miles south of Sapporo, capital of Hakkaido.

Book Wanted

Seventy Don Landon, the Auditorium, Independence, Missouri, would like to obtain a copy of The Book of Mormon Vindicated. He wants to know the price and condition of the book before receiving it.

Priesthood Journal Wanted

Elder Wayne Barentine, Route 1, Box 68, Boscobel, Wisconsin, would like to obtain a copy of Volume 2, Number 3 (January, 1936), of the Priesthood Journal. He wants to know its price before receiving it.

Zion's League Annuals Wanted

Maurice E. Thompson, 2416 Helmuth Court, Evansville 14, Indiana, would like to obtain copies of the Zion's League Annuals, Numbers 1, 4, and 5. Please state price and condition before sending them.

REQUEST FOR PRAYERS

Mrs. Mabel Francis requests prayers for her daughter, Mrs. Virginia Phelps, Sweet Home, Oregon, who has ulcers and diabetes.

ENGAGEMENTS

Kanawyer-Andrews

Mrs. Margaret Andrews of Dinuba, California, announces the engagement of her daughter, Clara, to James B. Kanawyer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce M. Kanawyer, also of Dinuba. Both are attending Reedley Junior College. No definite date has been set for the wedding.

WEDDINGS

Lindquist-Poplett

Mary Ann Poplett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Poplett of Dahinda, Illinois, and Marion O. Lindquist, son of Mr. and Mrs. Omer Lindquist of Chatsworth, Illinois, were married in a double-ring ceremony at the Reorganized Church in Dahinda on January 26. Clifford Tucker, pastor of the church in Forrest, Illinois, officiated. They are making their home near Chatsworth.

Norling-Lutz

Neva Lutz, daughter of Elder and Mrs. Walter Lutz of Yuma, Colorado, and Walter Norling of Norwood, Massachusetts, were married June 16, 1957, at the Reorganized Church in Yuma, the bride's father officiating. They are making their home in Wray, Colorado, where both are teaching school. The bride attended Graceland College.

Dickson-Lutz

Ardith Jean Lutz, daughter of Elder and Mrs. Walter Lutz of Yuma, Colorado, and Richard Gene Dickson, also of Yuma, were married September 8, 1957, at the Reorganized Church in Yuma, the bride's father officiating. They are making their home in Denver.

Boatman-Ralph

Beatrice Ralph of Myrtle Point, Oregon, and Ted Boatman of Bandon, Oregon, were married on January 18 at the Reorganized Church in Myrtle Point. Elder Thomas Coffman read the double-ring ceremony.

Dawson-Alexson

Mary Colleen Dawson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Dawson of Merlin, Ontario, and Alexander Alexson, son of Mr. Fredrick Alexson, were married August 3, 1957, at the Reorganized Church in Merlin by Evangelist Robert T. Brown. The bride is a graduate of Hamilton School of Nursing. They are making their home in Toronto, Ontario.

Hoffman-Dewsnup

Marjorie Dewsnup, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Dewsnup of Manchester, England, and Fred A. Hoffman, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Hoffman of St. Joseph, Missouri, were married January 4 at the Walnut Park Reorganized Church in Independence, Missouri, Apostle Donald V. Lents officiating. They are making their home in Independence.

Armstrong-Woods

Opal Nadine Woods, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Heber Woods of Hillsboro, Ohio, and Glenn Armstrong, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Armstrong of Hillsboro, Ohio, were married in a double-ring ceremony December 22 at the Reorganized Church in Sinking Spring, Ohio, Elder Ralph Brown officiating. They are making their home near Hillsboro where both are teaching.

Noel-Saunders

Barbara Ann Saunders, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Saunders of Stewartsville, Missouri, and Forest Eugene Noel of Osborn, Missouri, were married January 24 at the Reorganized Church in Stewartsville, Elder F. L. Hinderks officiating. They are making their home in Cameron, Missouri.

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Hakes of Beloit, Wisconsin, became the parents of a son, Timothy Scott, on December 22. Mrs. Hakes is the former Marilyn Jonhson.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Small of East Machias, Maine, became the parents of a daughter, Tamara Joy, on September 12. She was blessed on January 12 by her grandfather, Elder Chester Gray, assisted by Elder Donald Kyser at the church in Jonesport, Maine.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Lenfesty of Jonesport, Maine, became the parents of a son, Craig Nolan, on September 4. He was blessed on January 12 by Elder Donald Kyser and Elder Chester Gray at the church in Jonesport.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Lester of Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, became the parents of a son, Gregg Neil, on October 23, 1957. He was blessed on December 15 by Elders J. A. Gendron and A. W. Piedt.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Botts of Grandview, Missouri, became the parents of a son, David Alan, on October 18, 1957. He was blessed on January 12 at Grandview by Elder Lester Bronson and Elder Elmer Hale. Mrs. Botts, the former Shirley Crowell, is a graduate of the Independence Sanitarium School of Nursing, class of '48.

Mr. and Mrs. William E. Monsees of Independence, Missouri, became the parents of a daughter, Jodie Elizabeth, on October 8, 1957. She was blessed at Second Church in Independence on January 12 by Elder Roy E. Settles and Elder Robert W. Baker. Mrs. Monsees is the former Barbara Jo Simons of Kansas City, Missouri.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Keairnes of Denver, Colorado, became the parents of a son, Scott Wilson, on November 26. Mrs. Keairnes is the former Janice Van Boskirk. Both parents are graduates of Graceland College.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Beckwith of Murdo, South Dakota, became the parents of a daughter (name not given) on August 5, 1957. Mrs. Beckwith, the former Mary Thatcher, attended Graceland in 1948-49.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Morman of Lee's Summit, Missouri, announce the birth of a son, Thomas Joseph, born January 19. Mrs. Morman is the former Darlene Bozarth.

Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Anderson of Forest Grove, Oregon, became the parents of a daughter, Brenda Lea, on December 3. She was blessed on January 5 at the church in Forest Grove by Elder Al Baughman and Elder Harvey B. Anderson.

DEATHS

YOUNG.—Archie Lewis, was born December 29, 1876, in Livermore, California, and died January 10, 1958, in Oakland, California. He had been a member of the Reorganized Church since March 15, 1890.

He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Helen Harville, of Campbell, California; a son, Edwin Young of Walnut Creek, California; a sister, Mrs. Nellie Presley of Oakland; five grandchildren; and two great-grandchildren. High Priest James M. Cummings conducted the funeral at Callaghan Mortuary in Livermore.

BEAUDIN.—Evaline Elizabeth, died January 5, 1958, at Providence Bay, Ontario, at the age of eighty. She had been a member of the Reorganized Church since October 1, 1902.

She is survived by her husband, Joseph Humphrey Beaudin; and three daughters: Mrs. Arthur Sterling of Providence Bay; Mrs. Edward Wallace of Hawk Junction; and Mrs. Clarence Cress of Sault Ste Marie, Ontario. The funeral was held at Providence Bay. Interment was in the Providence Bay cemetery.

DEMPSEY.—Sarah Lavinia, daughter of Apostle James and Eliza Caffall, was born April 2, 1864, in Salt Lake City, Utah, and died at her home in Council Bluffs, Iowa, on November 30, 1957. With her parents she moved to Council Bluffs at an early age. She was married sixty-six years ago to Arthur E. Dempsey, who preceded her in death by ten days. She had been a member of the Reorganized Church for more than eighty-one years. Among other contributions to the church during her life, she often contributed poems to Zion's Hope.

Surviving are three sons: Arthur E., Jr., and James C. of Council Bluffs and Elbert of Yakima, Washington; two daughters: Mrs. F. D. Pitt of Independence, Missouri; and Mrs. C. G. Riley of Omaha, Nebraska; thirteen grandchildren; and twenty-three great-grandchildren. Funeral services were conducted by Charles F. Putnam. Interment was in Memorial Park Cemetery in Council Bluffs.

WELCH.—Joseph Warren, was born September 18, 1869, in Randolph County, Missouri, and died January 2, 1958, at his home in Macon, Missouri. His wife preceded him in death.

He is survived by a son, Hubert, of Pomona, California; two daughters: Mrs. Elma Gilstrap of Pomona and Mrs. Vera Leath of Macon; two brothers; three sisters; six grandchildren; and six great-grandchildren.

SEATON.—Thomas, was born April 19, 1901, in Carthage, Illinois, and died January 4, 1958, at Quincy, Illinois. He had been a member of the Reorganized Church about twenty years and a resident of Quincy since 1941.

He is survived by a brother, Clay Seaton, and a sister, Mrs. L. L. Saunders. Funeral services were held at the Fecht Chapel in Carthage, the Reverend Leland Beck officiating. Interment was in Moss Ridge Cemetery.

BLACK.—Minnie Ersel Fisher, was born July 26, 1894, at New Marion, Indiana, and died January 22, 1958, at Fullerton, California. In 1917 she was baptized a member of the Reorganized Church, and on March 31, 1923, she was married to Grover A. Black, who survives her.

Besides her husband she leaves a daughter, Betty Lee Black of Anaheim, California; two stepsons: James Tapley Black of Oakland, California, and John Elgin Black of Bremerton, Washington; a brother, Smith R. Fisher in Independence, Missouri; and two sisters: Miss Jessie E. Fisher of Independence and Mrs. Ruth Fusselman of Chula Vista, California. Funeral services were conducted by Evangelist Louis Ostertag at Backs, Troutman and Kaulbars Chapel in Anaheim. Interment was in Melrose Abbey Cemetery, Anaheim.

POLLARD.—Benjamin Franklin, was born January 6, 1882, at Lydia, Texas, and died January 9, 1958, at the hospital in Texarkana, Texas. His wife, Mary, preceded him in death on January 22, 1954. He was baptized into the Reorganized Church on June 19, 1912, and ordained an elder on August 20, 1913. From 1926 until 1944 he served as pastor in Drumright, Oklahoma; then he was transferred by his company to Seminole, Oklahoma, where he continued to assist in church work until 1948, when he was retired by his company. Following his retirement he served as nonresident pastor of Central Oklahoma District for several years. In 1952 he moved to DeKalb, Texas, and in 1956 was elected pastor of the churches in DeKalb and Dalby Springs; he continued to serve in this capacity until his death. A new church was built at DeKalb in 1957.

Surviving are four sons: Troy A. of Rangely, Colorado; Dalton D. of Bishop, California; Leon L. of Westfield, Indiana; and Wyvon H. of Kensington, Maryland; three daughters: Mrs. Omie Thompson of Amarillo, Texas; Mrs. Iris Snyder and Miss Zella Pollard of DeKalb; two sisters: Mrs. Fannie Roden of Avery, Texas, and Mrs. Etta Pierce of Tom, Oklahoma; eleven grandchildren; and eleven great-grandchildren. Funeral services were conducted by Elder T. B. Sharp, assisted by Frank Owens.

SILSBY.—Amy Junia, daughter of James and Harriet Cobb Beecham, was born June 9, 1871, near Preparation, Iowa, and died January 15, 1958, at the home of her son in Lamoni, Iowa. Her husband, Clifford Asoph Silsby, preceded her in death in March, 1947. She had been a member of the Reorganized Church since the spring of 1888.

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. B. L. McFerran of Bremerton, Washington; a son, Burnham, of Lamoni; and three grandchildren. Funeral services were conducted by Elder Jerry C. Runkle and Pastor Robert S. Farnham at the Reorganized Church in Lamoni. Interment was at Little Sioux, Iowa, where Elder John Lane was in charge of the burial service.

KUYKENDALL.—Betty Marguerite, was born June 1, 1879, in Nashville, Tennessee, and died November 11, 1957, in Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, where she had resided for the past two years. She had been a member of the Reorganized Church since September 3, 1903. Her husband, Russel Kuykendall, preceded her in death in March, 1930.

Tract Review

Statement of Belief

This is No. 1 in a series of seven tracts written by Patriarch Elbert A. Smith and called the "Gospel Series." The series was originally titled the "Busy Man's Series," but was redesignated a couple of years ago when minor revisions of content were made and a new cover design was initiated.

Statement of Belief is based on the original declaration made by Joseph Smith, Junior, prior to his martyrdom in 1844. This version is more inclusive of beliefs and emphasizes those that became the object of contention after the martyr's death among factions of the Restoration movement.

Among the beliefs discussed are the Godhead, atonement, ordinances, the resurrection, eternal judgment, authority, organization, Scriptures, spiritual gifts, marriage, polygamy, freedom of worship, political government, virtues.

The single-copy price of this tract is 3 cents. See the 1958 Tract List for prices of others in the series.

Surviving are four daughters: Mrs. Olive Frederick of Seminole, Oklahoma; Mrs. Eva Lile of Mountain View, California; Mrs. Edna Baker of Odessa, Texas; and Mrs. Jerdean Ott of Oklahoma City; a son, Edgar, of Cove, Arkansas; a sister, Mrs. Sallie Wright of Fittstown, Oklahoma; a brother, Matthew Crownover of Miami, Oklahoma; seventeen grandchildren; twenty-one great-grandchildren; and five great-great-grandchildren. Funeral services were conducted by Otis Stephens. Interment was in Rock Creek Cemetery at Okemah, Oklahoma.

We're on the Air . . .

STATE AND CITY	CALL LETTERS	DIAL READING	DAY AND TIME
ALABAMA, Atmore	WATM	1580	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
ALABAMA, Evergreen	WBLO	1470	Sunday, 9:00 a.m.
ARKANSAS, Jonesboro	KNEA	970	Sunday, 9:00 a.m.
CALIFORNIA, Wasco	KWSO	1050	Sunday, 7:15 a.m.
COLORADO, Durango	KIUP	930	Sunday, 9:45 a.m.
COLORADO, Montrose	KUBC	1260	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
FLORIDA, Orlando	WLDF	950	Sunday, 7:45 a.m.
IDAHO, Sand Point	KSPT	1400	Sunday, 6:15 p.m.
ILLINOIS, Herrin	WJPF	1340	Sunday, 7:45 a.m.
ILLINOIS, Moline	WQUA	1230	Sunday, 8:15 a.m.
ILLINOIS, Mt. Vernon	WMIX (FM 94.1)	940	Sunday, 12:15 p.m.
KANSAS, Concordia	KFRM	550	Sunday, 8:30 a.m.
MICHIGAN, Bad Axe	WLEW	1340	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
MICHIGAN, Flint	WMRP	1570	Friday, 10:00 a.m.
MICHIGAN, Houghton Lake	WHGR	1290	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
MINNESOTA, Detroit Lakes	KDLM	1360	Sunday, 8:45 a.m.
MISSOURI, Fulton	KFAL	900	Sunday, 8:15 a.m.
MISSOURI, Kansas City	KMBC	980	Sunday, 8:30 a.m.
NEW MEXICO, Clovis	KCLV	1240	Sunday, 7:45 a.m.
NEW YORK, Hornell	WWHG	1320	Sunday, 10:30 a.m.
NORTH DAKOTA, Valley City	KOVV	1490	Sunday, 6:00 p.m.
OHIO, New Philadelphia	WJER	1450	Sunday, 8:30 p.m.
ONTARIO, Guelph	CJOY	1450	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
ONTARIO, Sault Ste Marie	CJIC	1050	Sunday, 8:15 a.m.
OREGON, Lakeview	KOTK	1230	Sunday, 2:00 p.m.
PENNSYLVANIA, Charleroi	WESA	940	Sunday, 8:30 a.m.
TENNESSEE, Paris	WTPR	710	Sunday, 7:45 a.m.
WASHINGTON, Vancouver	KHFS	1150	Sunday, 8:30 a.m.
WEST VIRGINIA, Parkersburg	WCBE	1050	Sunday, 12:05 p.m.
WISCONSIN, Richland Center	WRCCO	1450	Sunday, 8:15 a.m.

And Finally...

Mrs. Alex Weber
1411 - 2nd Ave. S.
Denison, Iowa

16450 10-58
h

MISTAKEN IDENTITY

Helen Harrington, whose poetry often appears in the "Herald," lives near Lamoni, Iowa. However, another Helen Harrington lives in Des Moines, Iowa, and is frequently complimented on her beautiful verses. This, she writes, is very flattering, but she cannot take the credit. For those who still think she is Helen Harrington, the poet, she has penned the following:

When I was very young and sat
Upon my mother's knee,
One of my greatest childhood joys
Was hearing poetry.

Now that I am a woman
Poetic lines I treasure,
But as a writer of such verse
I simply cannot measure.

There is a lady poet, though,
Whose name I also share.
I cannot take the credit for
Her words—that isn't fair.

I hate to disillusion my Acquaintances and friends,
But with this labored jingle my Poetic career ends.

Helen Scott Harrington

EXAMPLE

It is no mark of greatness in me if I can see faults and want things set right about me; it is a mark of greatness if I can exercise self-control in unfavorable conditions. My testimony of what my Savior has done for me is best borne by my behavior.

—"Worthwhile," D. H. Schmidt

A WORK HELP

For busy men and women, the organization of work is one of the principal problems in life. Anything that will make this simpler

Contents

EDITORIAL AND OFFICIAL

Speaking of Religion	3
The School of the Restoration	4
New Member for Graceland Board of Trustees	4
Progress Report on Auditorium	4

FEATURE ARTICLES

Report of Progress	2
Interim Report of the First Presidency	5
The Observance of Brotherhood Week	8
The Worth of Souls, by Lucille Oliver	10
More Time at Home, by Mrs. Earl Bandlow	12
Journeying and Reminiscing, Part III, by Pearl Wilcox	14
From Isles and Continents Afar, by Franklyn S. Weddle	17

SPECIAL COLUMNS

Our Readers Say	9
I Had an Experience, by Sylvester Coleman	11
Question Time	16
Letters	18
Sanscripts	19
Book Review	20
Briefs	20
Bulletin Board	22
Tract Review: Statement of Belief	23
And Finally	24

Notice

Herald House is in the process of installing modernized automatic addressing equipment which is designed to increase the speed and efficiency of addressing magazines.

During the change-over, however, which involves the making of more than 50,000 new addressograph plates, a certain amount of slow down is unavoidable.

We solicit your patience during the next two months.

and keep the files more orderly is a valuable assistance.

Lately I learned a device that has helped me and may be useful to others. On projects in which I have to take files of information outside of the office, I use an inexpensive plastic brief case (bought at a popular chain variety store) for each project. These things have zipper fasteners, loose-leaf rings, and pockets for notes. My latest and best will hold a pile of materials three inches thick.

All the current information and related papers for each project are kept in one of these portfolios. Material doesn't scatter or get lost. I can grab one of them for a hurried trip, knowing that everything "is in the bag."

Once material is used and no longer current, it can be put in the regular vertical file, keeping the portfolio free from excessive clutter.

With only four current projects at a time, having a portfolio for each is not too costly. This plan has proved to be both a timesaver and a reassurance, since it prevents the misplacing of material important to a specific work project.

L. J. L.

daily and weekly reading at a special subscription rate

to one address

SAINTS' HERALD and DAILY BREAD

United States	$5.00
Canada	$5.40
other countries	$6.35

Box 477
Independence, Missouri

Box 382
Guelph, Ontario, Canada

SAINTS' HERALD

Volume 105 / February 24, 1958 / Number 8

Photo by Audio-Visual Department

PRESIDENTS OF SEVENTY — Harry Doty, James Daugherty, Russell Ralston, Zenas Renfroe, George Njeim, Glen Johnson, Sylvester Coleman. On February 28, 1835, the First Quorum of Seventy was organized.

Eloise Bruington Oberdick

ELOISE OBERDICK came to Graceland College in the fall of 1957 as college nurse.

She was born on April 25, 1931, at Uteleyville, Colorado, but later moved to California where she was graduated from Grossmont Union High School in San Diego. In 1952 she was graduated from the Independence Sanitarium and Hospital School of Nursing. She has worked as both an office and clinic nurse in the Complete Service Bureau of San Diego. In 1956 and 1957 she was in charge of the Leon, Iowa, Hospital for eight hours each day.

Mrs. Oberdick tells an interesting story of the conversion of her family to the church. A Utah Mormon missionary called at their home in Kansas and left a copy of the Book of Mormon, which her mother read with interest. Later she was given another Book of Mormon by a friend who was a member of the Reorganized Church and who willingly explained the difference between the two churches. Shortly after that Apostle Charles Curtis and Glaude Smith held a series of missionary meetings near their new home in Colorado, and her mother was converted. Eloise recalls that one or more of the Three Standard Books of the church were always read during the evening worship hour in their home. The entire family now belongs to the church.

Eloise is married to George Oberdick, a sophomore at Graceland, who is studying to be a psychologist. He expects to continue his education in California next year. They have two children, Jeffrey Paul, five, and Laura Anne, two.

As hobbies Eloise appreciates semiclassical music and poetry, but her main hobby is her home and her children.

She enjoys teaching nursery classes and has taught in Bible schools during summer vacations whenever she could.

Hanson, Hield, Oakman, Tyree, and Kaleikau to Take Ministry to Distant Saints

Appointees to Missions Abroad

FIVE GENERAL CHURCH appointees have recently left or will soon leave headquarters for ministry abroad.

Apostle Arthur Oakman left for the European mission January 29. He will be apostle in charge of the mission and make his headquarters at Hannover, Germany. He was previously assigned to the Eastern United States area.

Apostle Paul M. Hanson will leave during February for a few months of ministry in Australia and New Zealand. He will continue on to Denmark and return to the United States in August.

Apostle Charles R. Hield is expected to leave in April or May for a tour of Tahiti, where he is apostle in charge. He will return in July.

Elders Alan Tyree and David Kaleikau, members of the Quorum of Seventy, both have been assigned to French Oceania. Brother Kaleikau left December 5 for Hawaii and will soon leave there for French Oceania. Brother Tyree will leave for his new assignment in April. Both men were formerly assigned to the Missouri Missionary Development Area.

Elder F. Edward Butterworth, who has been serving in French Oceania, will return to the United States soon, perhaps in March.

Elder Frederick C. Banta, who has been serving in the San Francisco Bay District, will leave in April for the Scandinavian Mission. He will replace James Everett who is completing a four-year assignment as missionary to Scandinavia. Brother Everett's date for return to the United States has not yet been determined, but travel arrangements are expected to be completed soon, according to Fred Young, assistant to the First Presidency.

Authors in This Issue

James Everett (page 5), Seventy, Oslo, Norway
Hazel Chambers (page 8), Independence, Missouri
Marian Blumenschein (page 9), Agua Azul, Honduras
Philip Moore (page 11), Seventy, Warrensburg, Missouri
Roger Yarrington (page 12), Assistant Herald Editor
Mrs. Mark Siegfried (page 14), Independence, Missouri
Pearl Wilcox (page 16), Independence, Missouri

Nature—or God?

SCIENTISTS CONTINUE to speculate about the origin of the human species, and according to recent press dispatches Doctor Lawrence S. Dillon, associate professor of biology at Texas A. & M. College, holds that man is not an animal "but a plant which evolved from brown seaweed."

According to this new theory of evolution, all animals are a "type" of highly modified plant life "derived one billion years" more or less "from a common ancestry with the brown seaweed."

He claims that "high animals" are apparently evolved from this branch of seaweed "by some unknown process."

I recalled an argument against the "natural law" theory by Reverend Thomson in his Evidences of Revelation which I am impressed is good logic. He said:

Even if it could be shown that the universe has always existed as it is, we should be compelled to believe in a co-existing and sustaining, if not a creative God.

This author then went on to make an argument by supposition:

Nature is a great architect. How insignificant all others in comparison!

It is also a great astronomer; for, out as far as the eye or the telescope can reach, the laws of Kepler and of Newton are found, bringing the worlds above to their appointed stations with the regularity of clockwork. No chronometer like that of the skies.

Nature is a great chemist; for throughout the world the law of definite proportions prevails, and every atom is weighed and labeled, as by the hand of the manufacturer.

It is a great physiologist; for no animal comes into existence all trunk or all extremities, all brain or all heart; but each has organs of life, of motion, of sense; and each organ has its proper place and relations.

It must be a great psychologist; for every man comes into existence with a well-constituted mind. No man is all will or intellect or passion; but each is in himself a perfectly constituted government, having reason to legislate for him, conscience to judge, passion to impel, will to execute.

It must be a greater conservator. The atmosphere consists of three elements, not chemically united but mechanically mixed. Although there are multiplied causes of disturbance between the proportions of these ingredients—for every lung and every fire has a tendency to diminish the quantity of oxygen and increase that of the carbon, and every living leaf throws out oxygen by day and carbonic acid by night—yet if you take a receiver of air anywhere, on continent or island, on sea or land, on mountaintop or valley, in the desert waste or in the city full, you will find, on analysis, that it will yield the same elements in the same proportions. So, too, the water. . . .

Nature is a great moralist; for in all ages and nations men are prosperous and happy in proportion as they keep the Ten Commandments. It is even a religionist; for every where, and in all ages, men have temples, priests, sacrifices, prayers. . . . He only is the truly contented man, living or dying, who is truly religious.

The laws of Nature appear to be inexorable; but the Great Lawgiver stands by and oversees his creatures and his creation.

Keeping Abreast of the Past

TODAY ALL OUR FACES are turned toward the future. We live in a constant state of high expectancy. The most popular reading in the fiction and nonfiction fields has to do with the world of tomorrow. One of the most derisive things that can be said about a person or a movement is that he or it is "behind the times."

In such a time it is one of the functions of the ministers of the everlasting gospel to remind and persuade men to keep abreast of the yesterdays.

The wisdom which is to save us will not come out of a test tube. It is not something waiting to be discovered by some bright young man. It has already been proclaimed. Our fathers and our fathers' fathers knew it and lived by it. It is the heart to know, as John put it, that "The Lord God omnipotent reigneth."

In a very real sense the most urgent need for today is to catch up with and to strive to keep abreast of the noblest vision of the yesterdays, to listen to those who have told us, "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength," and "They that take the sword shall perish by the sword," and "To obey is better than sacrifice," and in building for eternity "other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ."

Official

Record Number of Filers for 1957

Last year 24,544 church members in the domestic field filed up-to-date tithing statements. This compared with 22,758 filers in 1956 and 9,230 of ten years ago. Detroit International Stake and Los Angeles Stake registered impressive gains in the number of filers. The largest numerical gain of any district was made by Southern Ohio with an increase of 151 filers over the previous year. Central Texas gained 103 filers over 1956. Other districts which gained between 50 and 100 filers over the previous year were Central California, San Francisco Bay, Kansas-Colorado, Lower Florida, Kirtland, and Columbia River.

Several numerically small districts appear to have made excellent percentage gains in tithing statement filers. A complete report will be included in the regular financial review sent at a later date to district presidents, bishop's agents, and church appointees.

We are encouraged by and deeply grateful for the increasing number of our church members who make their stewardship accounting annually.

THE PRESIDING BISHOPRIC
W. N. Johnson

Across the Desk

OF THE FIRST PRESIDENCY

A recent letter from Elder A. L. Gardner of New Zealand will interest many who find it hard to imagine Christmas reunions. Brother Gardner says:

We all have been inspired by the results of the recent second annual reunion at Huia Vale, our lovely reunion grounds. The period of reunion was from Christmas Day to New Year's Day, and ninety-one campers took advantage of the week of fellowship. Twenty-one of these were nonmembers who took active part in all the program of the reunion. Fellowship was sustained at a particularly high level; the majority of the people came from Auckland Branch. There were two families from isolated areas, and one young woman flew up from the South Island to be here.

We used the themes used by American reunions last summer; they were very helpful in every way. Seventy Floyd Burdekin directed the reunion, and we used voluntary help for every service and position. The result was really top flight in every way for a reunion experience. Two adults were baptized at the reunion (each was a nonmember companion) and five other decisions were given by people attending the service of baptism.

We saw the Spirit of God moving in many other lives in a real and thrilling way, and we look forward to a year in work with many fine prospects who were touched by the week's events and who are ready to learn more of the Christ and the Restoration. Tiona Reunion sent over a gift of 150 pounds, and the Saints here pledged an almost equal amount to be raised by their donations this year, so much needed improvements can begin to take shape. We trust that Huia Vale will be the site of much spiritual growth in this land. We have in it a center to which we can attract our isolated members for this experience.

This desire to help financially in the reunion projects comes from people who have doubled their attendance and branch income through the past year since their new church was opened.

High Priest A. Orlin Crownover, who is assigned to Toronto, Ontario, has sent this information:

My grandfather, Elder M. Crownover of Miami, Oklahoma, passed away in his sleep December 30, 1957.

Most men doubtlessly think highly of their grandfathers, but I feel that mine has left for me a challenge that is rather exceptional. From the time he joined our church (around 1908) and was ordained an elder, he has been known wherever he went as a defender of the faith.

About twelve of his descendants hold priesthood, including eight sons and grandsons who are elders or high priests. His progeny are active in the church in California, Washington, Texas, Oklahoma, Colorado, Canada, and elsewhere.

My grandmother, Daisy Kuykendall, was responsible for bringing my grandfather into the church. Formerly he was an Episcopalian. Grandmother's ancestors dated back to Galland's Grove, Iowa, in the early history of the church and to association with Joseph the Martyr. She preceded him in death by about thirteen years.

The Committee on Ministry to College Students has done some excellent work in supplementing both the group and personal ministries which other church agencies offer to our college people. Dr. E. J. Gleazer has recently accepted membership on the committee. Other members are Dr. L. O. Brockway (chairman), Dr. Evan Shute, Dr. James Van Biber, Mr. Ed. Ford, Mr. Harley Morris, Mr. F. Carl Mesle.

We regularly receive a number of congregational, district, and stake bulletins and papers. The most recent to cross our desk is "Newsette" of Central Missouri Stake. All of these publications are commendable attempts to provide better means of communication between the local church unit and the membership, and they undoubtedly render a needed service to their area.

The Saints' Herald

Vol. 105 February 24, 1958 No. 8

EDITORS: The First Presidency: Israel A. Smith, F. Henry Edwards, W. Wallace Smith. ASSISTANTS: Chris B. Hartshorn, Managing Editor; Naomi Russell, Assistant Editor; Paul A. Wellington, Assistant Editor; Roger Yarrington, Assistant Editor; Audrey Stub-

bart, Copy Editor; and Leonard J. Lea, Contributing Editor. BUSINESS MANAGER, Kenneth L. Graham.

The Saints' Herald is the official publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, with headquarters at The Auditorium, Independence, Missouri, and is issued through the offices of Herald Publishing House, 103 South Osage Street, Independence, Missouri.

Herald editors are not responsible for the views and opinions expressed in articles or communications other than those of editorial authorship.

Entered as second-class matter at the post office at Independence, Missouri, under Act of March 3, 1879. Issued weekly at Independence, Missouri, except daily during the biennial General Conference. Price, $4.00 per year in advance in the U.S.A., its territories and possessions; Canada, $4.25 per year; other countries, $5.00 per year. Notice of a change of address must be given three weeks ahead of the date that it is to become effective. Accepted for mailing at the special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917, authorized July 21, 1921. Printed in the United States of America.

Having Authority from God

We accept authority because it is from God and because it comes with his divine stamp of approval

By James A. Everett

SEVERAL YEARS AGO I had occasion to invite a Protestant minister, with whom I had fellowship in the ministerial alliance and for whom I had high respect, to a dedication of one of our remodeled chapels. President Israel A. Smith was present, and during the course of the service we sang, "We thank thee, O God, for a prophet." At the close of the service my friend remarked to me in a rather shocked tone and in absolute sincerity, "Do you know what I felt when they sang that song? That those in the congregation actually had reference to President Smith." He waited expectantly for me to denounce as a misunderstanding his impression of the spirit of the assembly and to assure him that we would never do anything that far removed from the realms of reality. His disappointment in me personally and in my church was not thickly veiled when I, contrary to his expectations, confirmed his impression. I think that experience expresses a somewhat fundamental difference between the teachings of other religious organizations and this church. It is important that we consider this difference, as it will doubtlessly find its imprint on how our members react to the message that we feel is to give life, light, and meaning to the human experience.

And it came to pass when Jesus had ended these sayings with his disciples, the people were astonished at his doctrine; for he taught them as one having authority from God, and not as having authority from the Scribes.—Matthew 7: 36, 37, Inspired Version (Matthew 7: 28, 29, King James Version).

There are two types of authority mentioned here: One which comes from the scribes—or that which evolves between men as men or humans as humans—and one which comes from God. "He taught . . . as one having authority from God."

Joseph Smith, the Prophet

We read further in the context, Matthew 8: 5-10:

And when Jesus was entered into Capernaum, there came unto him a centurion, beseeching him, and saying, Lord, my servant lieth at home sick of the palsy, grievously tormented. And Jesus said unto him, I will come and heal him. The centurion answered and said, Lord, I am not worthy that thou shouldest come under my roof; but speaking the word only, and my servant shall be healed. For I am a man under authority, having soldiers under me; and I say to this man, Go, and he goeth; and to another, Come, and he cometh; and to my servant, Do this, and he doeth it. And when they that followed him, heard this they marveled. And when Jesus heard this, he said unto them that followed, Verily I say unto you, I have not found so great faith; no, not in Israel.

Again the Scriptures refer to two types of authority: One as a man over other men, civil, military, social, but still human; the other one between God and man. "Speak the word" is so meaningful a statement. Imagine that just one word could make the difference longed for. How many thousands of words have been said in the last few months for disarmament, integration, and the middle-east problem, but here is a testimony that one has such authority that he can say the word, and things can be changed! There is a vast qualitative difference in a word spoken in authority and one spoken without authority.

AUTHORITY DOES NOT STEM merely from the profundity, the superiority, the cleverness, or the brilliance of a teaching. Nor is authority acquired merely by the full understanding of a teaching (by authority I am here implying validity of a teaching to the betterment of the human experience). It can be that if a teacher, through understanding of a particular teaching, obeys it completely, there comes to be a joining of teaching and teacher, but not necessarily authority. Even the teaching, preaching, and willing sacrifice of himself to it does not necessarily give the teaching authority. It can give the man a more certain spirit perhaps but not authority. His life is a proof, for the correctness of the teaching is not authority but may be mere duplicity. That he is a living example of the teaching shows not that it is right, but that he himself is convinced that the teaching is right.

Authority is a specific quality. It comes from the outside, and just that quality makes it valid. Let us take as simple an example as possible where the content shows itself. Compare the authority of a policeman who in a traffic situation says, "Go," and one who does not have the police authority but who also says, "Go." The command or expression of "go" is the same in both instances, but the external authority makes the difference. There is very little difference between one man and another. One of the few things they differ in is the authority allotted to them. There are kings, statesmen, and geniuses, but the difference in authority even from king to the lowest citizen is transitory, earthly, and temporary. Between man and man there is very little essential difference, but between God and man there is an eternal qualitative difference.

LET ME GO to the Bible to try to explain what I mean. Paul, as a genius, cannot be compared with Plato, Shakespeare, or other eminent intellectual giants. His parables are not so high on a literary scale. As a stylist he has given little. Frankly I enjoy the writing of C. S. Lewis or Giovanni Papini more than Paul's. As a tentmaker he didn't establish any impressive record. But Paul was an apostle, and as an apostle he cannot be compared with Plato or Shakespeare. One cannot compare dogs with pyramids. Paul was an emissary sent from God. He had a message to give from God. He had authority as one on an official errand for God, and that set him apart then, now, and for all eternity. In other words there was a qualitative difference in his authority. Paul himself recognized this fact and expressed himself adequately on the subject in his letter in I Corinthians 1: 22-25.

A genius is one who has something new to bring, but its newness is sure to disappear with the passing time. The differentiation or term "genius" disappears as soon as one thinks of eternity. That which was genius to one age is antiquated to following generations.

An apostle is an emissary from God. He also has something new to tell. It is a paradox in that his message does not merely anticipate the conditions of the development of man but remains continually. As an apostle he remains an apostle through all eternity. A genius is what he is of himself and that he is in himself. An apostle is what he is by divine authority. A genius has indwelling authority. An apostle has absolute transcendent authority. President Edwards sums this up when he says, "A theologian knows a lot about God; a saint knows God."

Let me say it this way. A genius is born (and I could substitute any of the various names for human authority here instead of genius). His essential difference from other humans is but for a moment. It disappears in the passage of time. His task is to develop to what he potentially is, but even if he is a hundred years ahead of his time he will eventually be assimilated. An apostle, prophet, elder (or "God's man" as F. H. Edwards would term it) is not born—that is—an apostle. He is a man whom God calls and possesses and sends on an errand. A God's man's success is not in developing that which he innately is, for therein lies no great potential—as the possibilities for all men are quite alike. In fact, one of his greatest temptations and dangers lies in trying to be his human best. A prophet's call is paradoxical in that his life stands as a paradox outside of his own personal identity. The fact is that through all eternity he is different from other men. That which he has to preach is new, and the paradoxical thing is that it will always be essentially just as new. He conducts himself not as the naturally gifted, but he is still beyond the frontiers of his time.

A GENIUS VALUES THE case after its content. An apostle, a prophet, is what he is through divine authority. This authority is the qualitative deciding factor. Plato said many fine things about eternal life, but only Jesus could say, "This is life eternal" (John 17: 3).

We as humans, as races, as nations, as creatures with problems which are beyond our ability to solve, need the help that comes from divine authority. We have tried fascism, communism, socialism, and democracy, but they all lack the one essential thing to make them go—initiative from the outside. They all appeal too much to the personal egoism of the individual. They all develop too fast their drones. They need the divine invitation—which amounts to a compulsion when accepted—of divine authority. We feel that is what this church has been given.

Practically all Christian groups today go back to history or tradition to present the basis or reason for their existence. This is not meant as a belittling charge; it is a simple statement of fact. We are presented all too often with a choice between the intelligence of one man over another man in his ability to interpret the Scriptures, whether his name be Luther, Wesley, Knox, or Russell. Or we are forced to an evaluation of why, in the light of the social and economic conditions surrounding his life, he chose as he did.

I WAS TALKING with an ordained minister (Methodist) in Kragerø, Norway, about the claims of Joseph Smith. He said, "If only Joseph Smith had had his Doctor's degree, then I could give your church's teaching some thought." Would a Doctor's degree have increased the authority or moral message of Joseph Smith, or Paul? Perhaps Joseph Smith was a genius in interpreting the Scriptures—which I personally doubt—but be it as it may, I believe his strength then, now, and in all eternity lay in the fact that he was on an errand for God. He spoke with authority from God and not from the scribes.

I don't wish to inadvertently imply that history or tradition is not valuable, nor to discourage the pursuit of education; rather I want to emphasize that the authority which comes from the Holy Ghost and the gospel preached in power is to be the ultimate of our endeavors. Tradition is valuable. History is valuable. But these are not always dependable or secure. History is largely a matter of selection and rejection. Selection and rejection are prejudice; taste itself is a prejudice. Anatole France once said, "History is not a science; it is an art, and a man succeeds in it only by imagination." The pre-Inca kingdom is a good example. That which was distasteful to the Inca was eliminated from the official memory; the people did not speak of it, the romancers did not sing of it. In this way much of the pre-Inca history was eliminated. The Soviet Encyclopedia today can eliminate well-known personalities by sending to its subscribers new pages to replace its censored pages. People disappear from life and become, in the "Orwellian" phrase, "unpersons." During World War II, one hundred thousand Caucasians of the Karachi and Balkan mountain-dwelling tribesmen were deported as alleged "collaborators." Their names were dropped; their literature suppressed; their whereabouts kept secret. Only recently have they emerged.

Seventy
James
Everett

Such also has history treated the Christian religion. One has only to read certain Jewish source material or profane history accounts to come to the understanding that many Jews are serious in their belief that Jesus was less than the Son of God, less than a prophet, even less than a good man. We find even among one of the more prominent sects of our day the charge coming from leading officials that he was a polygamist. History is selective and prejudicial.

IN JUST THE LAST few weeks in Norway I've taken the occasion to gather some of the more blatant public charges against Joseph Smith. A Methodist minister, pastor Wessel Nørberg, writes in the newspaper: "He was ignorant, irresponsible, unlearned, non-Christian, and with a sickly developed power of imagination." A State Lutheran Parish Priest, I. Glette, writes in the same series of newspaper articles: "Already at a quite young age he had strong religious feelings, but with little or no talent to separate between fantasy and reality." An eminent Norwegian theologian, Einar Molland, says of him in his theological textbook: "Of Joseph Smith . . . The home was poor, his father a drunkard, and the boy was burdened with an inherited pathological mental konstitusjon." A leading weekly Norwegian magazine Illustrert, talks of him thus:

Joseph Smith was thus also a prophet. That he smoked cigars, and greatly appreciated a glass of whisky didn't harm his position among his believers. Neither did they lose faith in him when he was unsuccessful in his attempt to walk on the water. He had in all quietness laid a couple of planks under the surface of the water at the place where he should demonstrate this great miracle, but a pair of practical joking boys took the planks away from under the little-suspecting prophet who sank like a stone when he began his wandering on the water.

We find that in all too many instances the critics are more than willing to depart completely from the shackles of reality in their criticism, and men who are otherwise virtuous in their social behavior seem to feel that believing in prophetic powers or office today is so fantastic that their criticism degenerates to name-calling, vile abuse, and ridicule instead of rational and sober analysis. These men all were learned in history, but authority comes not in the study of history any more than historical beginnings give authority. Authority is external.

I'D LIKE TO CLOSE with a testimony and a challenge. Recently we conducted some meetings with a very fine group of honest people of another faith. In the course of our discussion I made reference to a series of conclusions made by the founder of their church, Charles Russell, in a book published by him in 1894. Rather than discuss any of these conclusions they very quickly acknowledge the inaccuracy, excusing it because of insufficient knowledge or study at that period of time. The same problem, in short, is common to most of our present day religious societies. The germinating or stimulating cause for their very existence, as well as the approach they took in solving it, has in the course of time been assimilated in the onward march of the human race.

This man Joseph Smith, however, and the things that he proclaimed as being from God and which formed the basic goals of the movement have not had to be altered in over a century since they were proclaimed and published. The Book of Mormon stands true today in light of established facts, just as it did in the year of its publication. The moral and ethical message seen from a biblical, social, health, and scientific standpoint are still untold decades ahead of the advancement of the human race. Those things that we have to preach and the program to practice are needed more now than ever before. We are not in the process of being assimilated but are still very much on the growing edge. The credit for this lies not in that our ministers or leaders are smarter than others, or that they have superior education, or are better preachers, or have any of the fineries of the present age. I believe the secret lies in that we yet can and do sing with humility and understanding "We thank thee, O God, for a prophet, to guide us . . ."

Consider the words of Him who claimed all power in heaven and on earth. If you will bow yourself under his authority, you'll have a testimony that you are in harmony with the universe. But don't accept it because the teaching is profound, or clever, or just plain opportune, for that would show contempt for God; accept it solely because it is from God and because it comes with his divine stamp of approval.

Miracles

When our Lord turned water into wine, he did nothing more mysterious, nothing greater or more divine, than when he now turns common water into the sweet sap of maple or changes the materials of earth into the luscious apple or nourishing wheat.

If we plant together a grain of sand and a grain of corn, it is not our art or skill or power that causes one to remain unchanged in soil, while the other produces roots and stalks, "bringing forth fruit after its kind." It is only the direct power of God himself that thus works. The power that changes a single grain of corn or wheat into a thousand grains is the same that changed the "seven loaves" into bread to feed four thousand men.

When this exercise of power occurs in a way that is not repeated, we call it a miracle. But when it is repeated daily and hourly and all around us, we call it nature or the laws of matter. But, in the one case as in the other, it is God our Father, working as he wills for the good of his children. The loaf on my table tells me as distinctly of him as the loaves, multiplying visibly in the hands of Jesus, told those men of Galilee that they were standing in the presence of a most gracious and powerful Benefactor.

MARY SHIRK

The Perfect Steward

JESUS ACCEPTED HIS stewardship. This idea suggested itself to me as a relatively new thought. I had always regarded Jesus as the Son of God and co-creator with him—never as a steward under him. But after giving this thought some consideration I began to realize that although Jesus is our Savior, our pattern, and perfect example, he was first of all the perfect steward.

We know very little of his early life, but his later years indicated that his childhood and youth were not wasted on foolish thoughts or deeds. We cannot know when he first knew he was the Son of God (Doctrine and Covenants 90: 2 a), but perhaps in his childhood dreams he was once again with his Father. Perhaps he walked with God once more in the void before the world was and heard again the voice of his Father commanding, "Let there be light." Or maybe while Joseph was teaching his small hands to cut and smooth and make perfect the oxen bow, he felt his Father's presence. And as his small fingers learned new skills at the carpenter's bench, perhaps he remembered working with another. Surely his child's heart must have leaped within his breast as he dimly remembered his Father's words from an almost forgotten yesterday, "Let us make man in our own image."

It doesn't really matter if he knew or if he remembered. Somehow he was aware that he had a work to do, and he recognized his divine stewardship at an early age. How appealing he must have been with the intensity of his conviction as he faced his worried mother in the temple. "Knew ye not that I must be about my Father's business?"

It was said of Jesus that he "increased in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and man." This is a positive statement and connotes activity, effort, and progress. Even though he was the son of God, Jesus was tempted. And because God suffered him to be tempted, he was given his agency. But being the perfect steward over all things, he used his agency to glorify his Father and to redeem mankind.

As a part of his divine stewardship under God, Jesus established his church and taught the law of love. It was at this time that a new light came into the world. Jesus said, "I am come a light into the world, that whosoever believeth on me should not abide in darkness."

This great light has beamed down the centuries, gradually dispelling the shadows of ignorance and superstition. This is the light that has warmed the hearts of men toward one another. This is the light by which men have built churches, schools, and hospitals. This same light shines in the eyes of doctors, scientists, and teachers, finding its own reflection in the trusting faces of the sick, the poor, and the untaught.

Jesus withheld nothing in his stewardship. He gave all that he had of his time, his knowledge, his energy, and his power. I seem to see him now as he quietly moved across his own short page of history. His sandals must have worn very thin as he traveled the hot dusty roads in summer or followed a snow-incrusted path in winter. And as his feet surely blistered in the burning dust, they were not strangers to the painful bite of cold and frost.

But the flame within him burned so bright that he was not inclined to stop and nurse his bruised body or waste time in self-pity. He moved resolutely on, teaching the law of love, healing the sick, and raising the dead. Yes, he went steadfastly forward toward the Cross. This was to be his final and most divine act of stewardship. At the end of thirty-three short years, he gave his life that all men might live forever.

But the tomb could not hold him. Through his perfect stewardship he was able to overcome death and the grave, and he continues to seek out and to draw all men to him.

At this time of the year, as we account for money earned and spent, we think more on our stewardship in relation to our material possessions. But even as we do, we are reminded that "The Son of Man had no where to lay his head." In direct contrast we live in homes that are automatically heated. The rooms are flooded with light at the flip of a switch. And in a world where more than half of the people go hungry, we have more food than we need.

In order to be good stewards, we must first be aware of our blessings, and next we must be deeply grateful. There is something about gratitude that changes our whole outlook on life. We reach up and outside of ourselves—upward in thanksgiving and out into the lives of others. Then as we recognize their needs, we share with them out of the bounty which is ours. It is only in giving and sharing that we reach the highest expression of love.

We all know that we are accountable to God for the way we use our time, talents, and money. But along with our stewardship he also gave us our agency. Jesus came to give purpose to our lives and a reason for right choices. He accepted his stewardship because he loved all mankind. We must accept ours for the same reason. Any other motivation makes of our stewardship dead works.

Knowing that the financial law is set up in the church in order to support its missionary endeavors, we must keep accurate records and pay our tithing. This we should do, not to impress the bishop but because we cannot bear the thought of withholding the gospel from one soul.

The energy we expend in God's service was first a gift from him. The time we give, the talents we share, and the light we allow to shine through us originate at the same source—the great love of God. It is only as we release and use these gifts in the service of others that we are again filled. But, once more, our motivation must be not to perpetuate our own spiritual power but to help others to tap that same source and put it to use in their lives.

We have a great obligation as God's stewards. We must manage our own money. No one can use our time, spend our energy, or improve our talents. These things we must do ourselves with an eye single to the glory of God and a heart that aches over the needs of men. Jesus, the perfect steward, has shown us the way.

At Home in Honduras

EDITOR'S NOTE: The transmittal letter for this article is dated January 19. The Blumenscheins "... are buying 450 acres of the flat, fertile, alto-plano high in the mountains above Lake Yojoa in Honduras." They expect to build a road and a bridge to make it more accessible.

*O sing a song of rejoicing,
O sing a song of thanksgiving,
Our hearts are full of gladness,
We've found our land of home.*

*He has gone with us through mountains and valleys
Over eight thousand miles of wandering.
He has held us in the cup of His hand.
In a land of impure water,
In a land of strange food and amoebas,
He has increased our health and strength and kept us well.*

He has led us to Yojoa,
Beautiful blue Yojoa,
Bountiful green Yojoa—
He has planted it in our hearts.
O sing a song of rejoicing,
O offer a prayer of hope.*

WE FIRST SAW Lake Yojoa in November on our exploratory trip through Honduras on the inter-ocean highway from the Gulf of Fomesca on the Pacific to Puerto Cortes on the Atlantic. Her beauty captivated us from the moment we saw her nestled jewel-like amidst mountain peaks. On our way back from Puerto Cortes we stopped for a delicious bass dinner at Agua Azul, North American style restaurant and motel.

The pride of Honduras, Yojoa is about twenty-five miles long and six miles wide. At 2,307 feet above sea level, the average temperature here is 85 degrees Fahrenheit. A rainfall of 120-140 inches keeps vegetation green the year around. Lake Yojoa is strategically located on the only cross-continent highway in Honduras and is halfway between the two principal cities, Tegucigalpa and San Pedro. A thirty-minutes drive takes us to the railroad reaching into the interior of Honduras from the coastal shipping points on the Caribbean. Though sparsely populated and primitive, this is a land of the future. One of the government's projected development enterprises is a hydroelectric plant at a site near Yojoa where an underground river from the lake comes roaring out of the ground.

In this primitive rural area, how could there just happen to be a two-story house on the highway, ready for us in our hour of need? God must have known it was here. The first day we were here to stay, we looked up retired Dr. Juan Lopez to inquire about buying a home site on the lake. As we were preparing to leave, he offered to let us sleep in this old house. We rented it for a week at fifty cents a day without any hesitation. We thought we would camp out, but we hadn't reckoned with the weather. We are not yet fully into the dry season, and we haven't seen a dry blade of grass since we've been here. The ground stays so damp during the rainy season that many of the houses except the native huts are built up on stilts, half a story or a full story above the ground.

We call our new home a house-barn, and it is in bad repair even for a barn. Dr. Lopez, who is eighty-four and still as strong as two men, nailed some better planks in the loft where the floor had caved in. We have moved our only furniture, a card table and three jungle hammocks, into the loft. Five of us sleep in the car. The first story of the barn sits on the ground and has no floors. This must be the origin of the term "ground" floor. It is hard for us to imagine that this house was the Doctor's home for many years.

We are using the kitchen in the shed on the back. There is nothing in the kitchen except bare earth floor and a monster called a stove. This stove is a stone and adobe barbecue oven, waist high and very large. The adobe stove has a part extending on the right side as large as a kitchen table with a cone-shaped oven built on it, the top of the cone reaching as high as my head. There is no chimney on any part of it, and smoke fills the room, covering everything with soot—table tops, dishes, pans, walls, even the cook's face. The natives just stand and shake their heads when they see the fires we build. It seems "gringos" have a lot to learn about these stoves.

Our house is just across the road from the village. But there are many barriers between us and the village, and these barriers are very real. For one, our house-barn is by far the nicest home in the village; it isn't even in the same class. Our neighbors have little two-room huts of saplings with straw or grass-thatched roofs. None of them own more than perhaps a donkey. They are squatters on Dr. Lopez's land. If a person buys land he must buy off the squatters or let them

* pronounced Yo-ho-a

1. Dr. John Blumenschein and "local transportation"
2. The Blumenscheins' temporary house-barn home in Agua Azul
3. and 4. The neighbors' thatched-roof farm homes stay. We are in the landowner class; they are in the servant class. The relationship of the householder to the servants is new and unfamiliar to us. We are treading uncertainly here. We are aware of more class distinction in Latin America than we ever encountered in the States.

The neighbors try to be friendly and so do we, but it is an artificial gesture like a forced smile. There has been some talk in the village against the new white folks. The day before Christmas we were bubbling over with Christmas spirit. José worked all morning making raised doughnuts to take over to the village. These, we thought, would get us into every home in the village. Christmas Eve the children and I made the rounds of the native huts, passing out doughnuts. Each homemaker smilingly invited us in, chased the pig out of the center of the floor, and asked us to sit down. Part of us sat—there were never more than two chairs—and part of us stood in stony silence as long as we thought necessary for the sake of friendliness, then Jody would pass out the doughnuts, and we'd escape to the next hut. We expressed our admiration for their stoves, they are so much better than ours. They use oil drums with a hole cut in the side to make the fire so the top can be used for cooking. Some of them even have a makeshift chimney to carry the smoke out a hole in the wall. There is no clutter in their homes, and the ground that serves as a floor is swept clean. They do not have a dining table with chairs all around for the family to sit down together to a meal. It still bothers me a little to see babies crawling around and sitting in the dirt without any pants on.

In the midst of all this beauty of grass, trees, and flowers, how is it that the highest of all God's creation can be so insensitive to beauty? There is nothing but ugliness in their squalid homes and dooryards. They live like chickens and pigs; in fact, they live with chickens and pigs. In the huts in the village there was not one Christmas tree nor sprig of green pine bough. We didn't ask any of the children what they got for Christmas because, as far as we could tell, there were no gifts. They have a devilish way of celebrating Christmas. Over in the village they stayed up all night on Christmas Eve, drinking, fighting, and shooting off fireworks.

On Christmas Day an Indian mother and her two children, washed and combed as slick as could be, came to call and bring us a gift—two eggs. We were delighted. For one thing we needed the eggs, and for another thing we were starved for a gesture of friendliness. Francisco and his pretty young wife who have the village store gave us half a sack of corn for Christmas. We are learning to live on corn, beans, and rice as does everyone else. Once in a while we buy cooking bananas and fish. We talk and dream of fresh vegetables, but there is no such thing as a vegetable garden in this vicinity. We bought some fresh vegetables in the market in San Pedro, half a day's drive from here. They were so expensive we rationed them out at the rate of one serving of vegetables a day. Potatoes, for instance, are twenty-five cents a pound, or twelve and one-half cents in "gold," as they call our money in the States. Green beans are so scarce they are tied in little bundles of six or eight beans each. Onions are fifty cents a pound; eggs $1.50 a dozen. We think that this land will grow vegetables abundantly almost all year around. It is largely a matter of established diet patterns that are hard to change. For my part, I find it hard to learn to like a tortilla. I would much rather have dry corn ground into cornmeal than cooked in lime, ground into masa, and shaped into those tasteless lead weights known as tortillas.

We have found some good friends here in Honduras—people who are truly delightful. They are warm-hearted, generous, genteel, soft-spoken. On the other hand, as in any country, there are people less delightful.

They know little about sanitation. In all the village across the street there is not one bathroom or outhouse. They use the thicket. Even in cities, where there is modern plumbing, a receptacle is always placed beside the toilet to hold soiled tissue. Of course there are flies to transfer filth, and very few houses are screened. The lack of sanitation contributes to a number of health problems; one is parasites. Perhaps the worst of these is the amoeba, a microscopic one-celled parasite which causes a severe form of dysentery and may also involve the liver. The amoeba can be transferred by food, water, or dirty hands. Another of these health problems is bacterial dysentery. Throughout our journey in Central America we were repulsed by the common habit of spitting on the floor and sidewalks. They hawk and spit at regular intervals just to pass the time of day. The first time little Bernadette spit on our floor I almost gagged.

The multitudes of poor rural peoples of Central America are illiterate. The government of Honduras at the present time intends to provide rural schools with instruction in the first three grades. Today I visited the nearest rural school, a mile distant. It is a small two-room building with floors. One L-shaped room serves as the classroom. There are four long, unpainted benches with backs, but no desks or tables. There are no screens, no chalk boards, no desk for the teacher. Last year thirty students between the ages of six and fourteen were crowded into the little school to receive instruction in the first three grades. Gloria, the girl who taught there last year, told me she wouldn't think of going back again.

When the Spanish came and conquered they killed, robbed, and exploited. The Indians and those of mixed blood who make up the poorer class in Latin America today are still exploited. There is a chapter in the history of North America also which tells how the English-speaking settlers drove the Indian from his lands. The American Indian is of the house of Israel, descendant of Joseph who was sold into Egypt. His ancestor, Lehi, left Jerusalem in the first year of the reign of Zedekiah, king of Judah, about 600 B.C., just preceding the fall of Jerusalem to Nebuchadnezzar. God led him across the Pacific Ocean to America. Lehi founded a nation divided; white man, or Nephite, against red man, or Lamanite. The Book of Mormon tells the story of the rise and fall of this nation in the land of America.

Many are the promises to the smitten and scattered of the house of Israel of a gathering and a restitution in the last days. Almost every chapter of Isaiah prophesies of the last days when Christ's kingdom will be established and the house of Israel gathered.

For though thy people Israel be as the sand of the sea, yet a remnant of them shall return: the consumption decreed shall overflow with righteousness.—Isaiah 10: 22.

And he shall set up an ensign for the nations, and shall assemble the outcasts of Israel, and gather together the dispersed of Judah from the four corners of the earth.—Isaiah 11: 12.

As Christ ministered to the Nephites and the Lamanites during his visit to his people on this continent following his resurrection he warned them that one day the remnant of their seed would be driven from the lands of their inheritance and would be smitten, slain, and cast out by the Gentiles who would come to this continent. He also prophesied that the Gentiles would not always have power over them, that they would come to a knowledge of their forefathers who were of the house of Israel, and that they would, one day, be restored to the land which the Father had given them for an inheritance (III Nephi 7: 32-42). This remnant, the American Indian, shall know of the fullness of the gospel of Jesus Christ in the last days and shall return to the mighty God—for this cause we are here.

I Had an Experience . . .

IN MY EARLY MINISTRY as a missionary for the church the message of the Restoration became increasingly important to me. Through searching the Scriptures, pulpit experience, and home visits I began to know more and more the assurance of the divinity of the gospel of Christ. As time passed and series of experiences piled one upon the other, I became aware that my conviction of eternal life was not as great as it should be. The subject became increasingly difficult for me to preach, so much so that I wondered at the advisability of continuing to give it space in the missionary series I held.

Then my grandfather died. Word reached me by wire at the place I was then holding services. At first I was crestfallen. How could I go ahead as I was scheduled that night? Should I not cancel the rest of the series and go home to be with the family? I loved my grandfather deeply. His companionship during my childhood and early adolescent years had meant much to me. Now he was dead. Almost as these thoughts were initiated within me the Holy Spirit came to me. During the morning and afternoon hours I discovered the companionship of God in a fuller and more strength-giving sense than ever before. Through review of the hymns of the church and the Scriptures of our Lord, I found my vision opened to life and its eternity. From these sources new shades of meaning brought insight which had never before existed in my mind, while I was thus visited by the Spirit. The next time

*Seventy
Philip
Moore*

I entered the pulpit to preach on eternal life, the Spirit of God accompanied me in power and assurance.

This experience was in a sense both my "Ebenezer" and my "burning bush." Hitherto the Lord had helped me and thenceforth would he be with me if I searched for his truths and sought after him. These were hallowed moments, too, for I discovered the wonder of the tutelage of the Holy Spirit to "recall to mind things that are past and unfold that which is to come." To this experience I look back in moments of discouragement and uncertainty and trace therefrom the additional light which has come through the years and thus, by God's grace, maintain my course.

Looking toward the front of the Conference Chamber. The new rostrum, acoustical clouds, and enlarged choir loft are visible. When finished, the dome and clouds will be a shade of gray-green, highlighted by hidden cove lights. The curved rostrum will be covered with carpet the shade of bittersweet. The main floor and balcony will be filled with blue nylon seats with walnut pew ends

Photograph by Arthur Oakman

New Auditorium Slide Set Ready

Headquarters Construction Shows Future Form Color of Building

By Roger Yarrington

A NEW SET OF COLOR slides showing the history and construction of the Auditorium is now available for loan from the Presiding Bishopric, according to John Boren, assistant to the Presiding Bishopric.

The series is new, he said, with new color slides and a new script prepared especially to give an overview of the history, purpose, and present status of the building.

Beginning with an early 1920 view of the church headquarters located in downtown Independence, the series progresses through the beginning of the Auditorium idea up to the present day. The set includes pictures of the completed portions of the building, such as the Council Chamber, Music Room, Laurel Club Dining Room, Museum, Visitors' Chapel. Present construction work is also shown with shots of the work on the General Conference Chamber, religious education offices, porticoes, and shops area. The series ends with a look at the work remaining to be done on the ramps and other areas.

Brother Boren reports that one hundred copies of the slide set have been prepared for the Presiding Bishopric by the Audio-Visual Department. There should always be a set available for loan to any group wishing to show the slides, he said.

Requests should be addressed to the Presiding Bishopric, Auditorium, Independence.

The present stage of construction in the Auditorium, as shown in the slide set, gives a good idea of the future color and form of the General Conference Chamber and other areas presently under construction. Plasterers are finishing the upper walls and the lower portions of the balcony with a smooth finish that gives the chamber a sweeping new look and the appearance of a much larger and more beautiful room than before.

Where the balcony plaster ends a wall of burlap and walnut strips will provide an acoustical "bounce" for the public address system. Red marble will extend the wall on down to the floor.

The floor of the new General Conference Chamber will be a gray concrete finish with aisle carpets of a bittersweet shade. The blue nylon seats with their walnut pew ends will blend for a perfect color scheme.

The walls and dome of the chamber will be a shade of gray-green highlighted in the dome by hidden cove lights. Recessed lights in the ceiling of the dome will provide light for the chamber. The effect of the modern lighting system will be a sharp contrast to the lines of bare electric bulbs that lit the last conference sessions.

Write It!

But write it concisely, please

The nineteen acoustical clouds "floating" over the new curved rostrum will greatly improve the sound effect of the address system and the choir. The rostrum will be carpeted and set against a backdrop of walnut paneling. Special rostrum furniture is planned to complete the setting.

The organ chamber is also being constructed. As soon as it is completed, exact plans for the huge new organ can be finalized, and construction of the instrument can begin.

In the rear of the chamber the wall is being extended with new steelwork to enlarge the sixth-floor area planned as offices for the Department of Religious Education. A jeep is busy running up and down the long ramps, delivering materials to the builders.

To the side of the chamber, a new air-conditioned cry room is beginning to take shape.

Also, the two new porticoes are beginning to show what they will look like. Large aluminum doors will open from the chamber into a new portico on both the east and west. The larger east portico will be especially beautiful with its marble floor and columns. A balcony surrounded by ornamental railing will overlook the street.

Work on the headquarters building is now well over half completed. Brother Boren said the Bishopric is greatly encouraged by the excellent response to the 1957 fund drive. Many stakes and districts have reported reaching their quotas.

Those who view the new slide set will see how important it is that the work on the Auditorium be finished, he said.

The dramatic sweep of the walls under the balcony give the General Conference Chamber a striking new look. They make the huge room look longer, more graceful and pleasing. Large openings in the ceiling under the balcony are part of the ventilation system. Small holes are for lighting. In the rear, part of the intricate system of scaffolding is seen. Under the balcony is part of the lattice work which will later be covered by burlap and walnut strips. Below that, red marble will reach to the floor.

Photograph by Audio-Visual Department

Have you been bitten by the urge to write?

If you have, good!

Saints' Herald, Stride, Guidelines, Daily Bread, Stepping Stones, and Zion's Hope, all Herald House periodicals, welcome your contributions. If you have a story, interview, experience, or thought which you would like to share, by all means, write it.

However, please remember this when you submit an article or story to one of the church publications: good writing is concise and exact writing. Wordiness usually means two things—(1) the writer had trouble explaining his thought, (2) the reader will have trouble understanding it.

A recent survey by Professor Roland E. Wolsley of the School of Journalism, Syracuse University, makes an interesting point in this regard. A majority of religious magazine editors questioned in the survey preferred articles for their periodicals that were less than 1,500 words in length. None of the editors involved in the survey wanted articles that ran over 3,000 words.

The Herald and the other church publications want to present the best material in the most interesting manner possible. You can help by keeping your writing concise. Both the editors and the readers will thank you.

One famous writer has said that he always reads a few chapters of the Bible before sitting down to write. That might be a good practice for Herald House contributors. Where else can you find a better example of good terse writing?

Summering with the Church in Europe

Part III

WE LEFT NEW YORK by air at 1:00 p.m., May 14, 1957, to spend three months in Europe, our main objective to contact the church members and also to visit several non-members we had met in 1951. We breakfasted next morning with friends in Iceland (more about that later), slept that night in Glasgow, Scotland (made a new friend), slept the next night in a London hotel, and the next night in Lucerne, Switzerland, where we attended the Rotary International Convention (discussed in Part II of this series, Herald of February 10).

Before leaving Lucerne we completed arrangements by telephone with a young lady friend to spend time with her in Zurich, her home. She had spent two years at Kansas University in Lawrence. Also we located the same quaint two-hundred-year-old lace shop in Basel where we reminisced with the proprietor whose father had served us in 1951. We had written to the only church member we knew of in Basel, but found no one at home when we called. We had no difficulty following directions given by pedestrians, taking correct tram lines, turning the right corners, walking the prescribed number of minutes, and then climbing the inevitable stairs.

We attended church in Switzerland, but not our own. During the Rotary convention we, with other delegates and visitors, packed the only English-speaking church in town. The services and rituals were new to us, but we enjoyed taking part in the singing and responsive readings. The services were continuous in order to serve all visitors. As I said last month the organizers of that convention made provision for every need, and nationalities had been studied in order to make everyone comfortable and happy. Programs and reports were printed daily in several languages. No people are more obliging and sincerely solicitous than the Swiss.

IN FRANCE WE didn't have our own church either. But we did have lasting and pleasant memories of the previous visit. One was of the fine friendship made with a young attendant in the Foster Parents Home in Paris. She is married now and living in the United States. Also there was the great fun of being recognized by the voluble little pink-cheeked Scotch clerk at the Calais Hotel. He remembered Mark and his jokes.

We soon found the church in France in the person of Major John Wrigley and his petite wife, Louise—an Independence young couple located sixty-five miles from Paris in historic Orleans, where there are U.S.A. army headquarters. After we had spent several days seeing again the Louvre, the Eiffel Tower, and visiting around in the American Embassy, we telephoned the Wrigleys and then took the train for Orleans. They met us right now! "Right now" I found to be their slogan for electrified living, doing, seeing. Every minute was planned.

Their home is on the river Loire, a traditional waterway. A rock wall separates the river from the paved street and the closely built homes facing it. We entered a side hall door through the covered garage way and heard chattering. To the left we pecked into the kitchen and there were mother's helpers—sons John Warren, thirteen, and Kirk, all of eight summers. John's arms were elbow deep in beautiful sink suds, and Kirk was flourishing a dish towel. Introductions and repartee accomplished, we toured the house. They were still reveling in their good fortune to have discovered a real home-house in which to live their three years abroad. Only about one year had passed.

The house had been built by an artisan whose wife had been an invalid, and he had furnished comfortable and easy arrangements for her. He is sort of in the Wrigley family, having reserved his shop room back of the garage for himself. Looking through the door at the end of the hall we had entered, we saw the living room. Halfway down the hall to the right was the circular stair and a bath built under it. On second floor there were three bedrooms and another bath. On third was the boys' spacious "building room" (airplanes that fly) and Louise's hideout—her sewing machine, desk, and inspiration for the sweet and persuasive writing which flows from her pen. They are a very happy family.

Aside from enjoying this real home there is another reason for their happiness. The Lord has been good to them in a miraculous manner, restoring health when it was despaired of. They keep in touch with the church abroad and participate when possible. This visit was a tonic to us.

LOUISE WAS PRESIDENT of the Officers Wives Club at this time. I remember her relating an incident which occurred one evening at this club. One of the wives cornered her, stating, "You are different, and I've been wondering what church you belong to." When Louise told her she replied, "I thought so. I am from the Utah Church." Louise hadn't noticed anything "different" in the deportment of this member and now she wondered.

Louise was busy with other projects, too—going, going, gone and back again to keep the home fires burning, a daily routine in which the young sons co-operated like clockwork. She was studying French and continuing her piano studies with a French professor; the boys were aiming to compete. She was busy in the French parent school organization and has since organized a nursery school. Storytelling, however, is her great love. Hundreds and hundreds of children are her wide-eyed listeners. In a sort of ecstasy she said, "I am learning so much!" There is the kernel of the nut for all of us—to learn from living a full life.

Major John chauffeured us one afternoon when we toured the army camp grounds. We learned much of interest, when
www.LatterDayTruth.org

he drove us to Cheverney Chateau and to Chateau de la Loaise Chambord. One afternoon Louise drove us to see Le Chateau Fontainebleau. What lovely drives these were along tree-lined highways! We saw picturesque farms being tended with horses and wagons, grain fields sprinkled with red poppies and bright blue corn flowers, good gardens, and buildings of many types, some ages old. France hasn't been able to reroof the houses and rehang the drooping shutters or do anything really to offset the ravages of time, but she is justly proud of her palaces, chateaux, and museums. I don't dare start to describe their ancient and historic beauty. I was carried away in fantasy as we approached the vari-shaped turrets and towers glimmering white against the blue skies. Flowers were everywhere.

Parting time came. But instead of Louise as chauffeur, driving us to the railway station as we thought would happen, she demurred, hastened us out of the house right now, and off we flew to Orly air field about ten miles out of Paris. What a wonderful surprise not to have to go to and through Paris! We had another joy ride, too. "Coming to" as we airily sailed the blue skies on our way to Germany, we found our appreciation of the Spirit of the Restoration doubled and redoubled. I wondered where the tracing of the genealogy of hospitality would lead us!

I'LL SKIP OUR FIRST contacts with the church in Germany and tell of our week end in Stuttgart. We remembered that city as war scarred, white, and skeleton-like as we glimpsed it in 1951 when we stopped there on a bus tour to the famous "Black Forests" from whence Mark's forebears came in 1684. But now what a splendid sight met our eyes: a colorful, clean, modern city teeming with people. We noticed few war casualties during our stay. In this city of six hundred thousand population, life had begun again and was keeping pace with the times.

We had felt a bit strange as we trekked along the rail tracks to the gates of the Bahnoff (station), but suddenly we found ourselves face to face with smiling Brother Joseph Allinger, the pastor. He was holding up a church bulletin by way of identification and at his side was young Helga Kott, his interpreter, just bubbling with excitement. We were home again!

We all took a taxi to the hotel, a handsome modern building. Our room, including bath and twins beds was priced at $3.50! After a night's rest we started out to locate the home of Brother Richard and Sister Eleonore Lentvojt, parents of Gertrude ("Trudy") who had emigrated to Independence about six months before. Eleonore's sister and family (Maria, Andrew, and son Gerd Buttgen) had come to Independence from West Berlin in 1953. The Lentvojts have another daughter Manuela ("Trolly") who is making definite plans to come to Independence and share Trudy's apartment.

We presented the written address of the Lentvojts to a pedestrian, followed the directions of a streetcar conductor, then another pedestrian, turned the right corners, walked the right number of minutes, and rang the doorbell! Soon "Trolly" appeared, but—What! No luggage? . . . Back to the hotel we scurried—on orders—returning with our luggage. Hospitality and an inherent love of nature are runners up on each other we found as we met the oversea Saints. We had seen Trudy's pictures of their living room and recognized the trellis with the vines running through it, hanging on the wall. This is a traditional custom in all Europe—vines in wall containers, not just one but several.

LANGUAGE? THEIR KNOWLEDGE and pronunciation of English was clear enough that we could converse. There were others in the household, Heinz and Gretel Thum, refugees from East Berlin, who are almost finished with their arrangements to emigrate to the United States. They have a room and kitchen privileges, speak a little English, and are a willing and animated couple. We met them and Trolly again at the Hannover conference.

On Sunday we attended church in a rented hall. We had looked forward to this experience, for we would meet friends from home and relatives of friends. Sister Frieda Allinger, wife of the pastor, is the sister of our friend John Eberle of Independence. We spent time with Sister Rose Eberle's relatives in Freiburg, too. The lady was loop-tying a 9 by 12 rug by hand. It was an exquisite thing. The loom, the balls of colorful yarn arranged beneath it on the floor, her stool in place stood ready for any spare minute when she could tie a few more threads. The rug is half done, and she will be two more years. By that time they will have their new home.

At church I was entranced as I sat in a back seat and watched the folk greeting each other with all signs of affection, patting the children and helping them. All were happy to be together again. There was something refreshingly wholesome about their apparent attitude. We were soon pointed out to them and introduced all around.

Soon quiet reigned. The Sacrament emblems were brought in. Those in charge took their places in orderly manner and with pleasing dignity. A number of military men from the States who held the priesthood took specified parts on the program. We were pleased to meet Charles Hield, Jr., and the Sloans, Jim and Marlene (daughter of Brother and Sister Merle Guthrie of Independence). They are all back in the States now, we hear, except Art Palmer, who is still on duty. Lionel and Elli LaCroix and their children have also returned to their home in Kansas.

AFTER CHURCH WE went home with the Allingers for a real German dinner. Helga Kott was with us. Inge Arndt, who works in the U.S.A. - PX, had made interesting observations, which Helga conveyed to us. We all spent the afternoon touring the lovely Ludwigsburg Castle and gardens. Besides these women other ladies of the branch are Gisela Kurok, Trudel Schoebel, Vera Leschler, Helen Burkhardt, Annelies Ruehle, Gertrude Schenk, Helene Suenderhauf, Louise Kott, and Gerda Batziong.

The Stuttgart women's group was organized October 6, 1956. Eleonore Lentvojt is president; Gretel Thum is her assistant; Gerda Batziong is secretary-treasurer. They do a great deal to help the young folk. A branch project for years has been to welcome our soldier boys and entertain them when they are free to visit. There is always a "good-time gathering" in the afternoon before the "boys" return to their barracks. There are several army camps in the Stuttgart area. Usually these parties are held in the Lentvojt home. I remember hearing a record sent to Independence by Bob Grabske (who is also home now and brought his German bride with him) after Trudy came over which was composed of personal messages sent to her from this youth group. The poor girl wept, yet she was happy, too.

Other than those mentioned, in the soldier group were Joe Bayless, Don Richards, Don Rawson, Bud Piepergerdes, Jerry Rushfelt, and Dwight Graybill. There can hardly be a more blessed service than for mothers to be real "mothers in Israel" to our boys, keeping them in the faith. What a service to give, and how thankful we are for such Zionie homes in far-away lands tuned to the ideals and goals of the Center Place.

Home Column

Part IV

Journeying and Reminiscing

By Pearl Wilcox

Harmony, Pennsylvania

IT WAS RUMORED that long ago Spanish pirates visited the region around Harmony, Pennsylvania and extracted from the soil an immense amount of silver ore. Taking some of it with them they buried the rest deep in the earth and left, never again to return.

The story grew with the years, and finally became a half-authenticated tale which found believers among the adventurous. One of these gentlemen was Josiah Stool (Stowell) who was then residing in Bainbridge. He decided to start a plan to recover the hidden treasure.

Mr. Stool heard that living on a farm near his own town there was a dreamy and prophetic boy, the son of a poor farmer. He sent for the young man who had these rumored supernatural powers. Joseph Smith told him that he was no treasure seeker, but he was anxious to hire out as a common laborer.

On arriving at the town of Harmony, Joseph was boarded out with several other hands in the various farm homes. Joseph was assigned to stay at the home of a wealthy farmer named Isaac Hale.

The treasure seeking did not prove a very fortunate venture for Mr. Stool, and he found that Joseph's reputation as a supernatural finder of wealth was not well founded.

Joseph became acquainted with Emma, the young daughter of his host, Isaac Hale, and the friendship grew into love. Those were days of happy dreams to them, full of great promises for the future. Emma saw in the stronghearted farmer lad a man with a man's work to do, a man's battles to fight, and wherever they might take him, she was willing to follow, to share whatever fate life would bring.

Emma Hale was born at Harmony, Susquehanna County, Pennsylvania, on July 10, 1804. It is very little we know of her early life and ancestry. We can imagine her a thoughtful dark-eyed girl in the home of her father. Tradition tells us that Isaac Hale was of Jewish descent, and we are told that he did not believe in the lowly Nazarene, the divine son of God, until he became a convert to Christianity through hearing of the prayers of Emma, who was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Sunday school.

Emma and Joseph went to South Bainbridge, where they were married on January 18, 1827, by Squire Tarbell. It has been said that Joseph Smith stole his wife, but as Emma Hale was of age at the time, it would seem that the two had the right to take the vows that they did.

Here is a statement by Marshall G. Hill of Afton, New York, that gives some points of historical interest. He wrote to President Joseph Smith III, as follows:

Dear Sir: In a letter I had the pleasure of receiving from you under the date of October 13, 1899, you mentioned the marriage of your father and mother, Joseph Smith, Jr., and Emma Hale, by Squire Tarbell, on January 18, 1827, at South Bainbridge, Chenango County, New York. In 1858 the village of South Bainbridge was changed to Afton, which name it now bears. I have had views taken of the old Squire Tarbell house, which is situated in this village, on the east side of the Susquehanna River, although the main village lies to the west of the river. The Josiah Stool house is located three or four miles westerly of the village, near the Susquehanna River.

Isaac Hale did not care for his son-in-law at first, but he relented, as nearly all stern fathers outside of storybooks do, and later he allowed the young couple to build a home upon the Hale premises. Joseph worked for his father-in-law farming after spending the first season with his parents in their new nine-room house.

Hill Cumorah

I drove to Hill Cumorah, four miles south of Palmyra, on the old Canandaigua Road, which has been a highway for over a century. Joseph would have taken a more secluded route, probably along the creek, on that long walk from his father's home to hold his tryst with Moroni on Hill Cumorah.

I am reminded of reading of the reflections of Joseph Smith as he went to see the records for the first time. This was told by Oliver Cowdery:

He was to have a history of the inhabitants who peopled this continent, previous to its being discovered by Columbus . . . and it would develop an important fact, that the present race were descendants of Abraham, and were to be remembered in the immutable covenant of the Most High. Surely, thought he, every man will seize with eagerness this knowledge.—Letter Number 7, page 28.

At the top of the hill, a figure in bronze has been erected on top of a monument in commemoration of the heavenly messenger Moroni sent from God. "Mormon Hill," as it is called in the community, is rapidly becoming a religious center, where the present owners are constantly preaching the Restoration message as they interpret it.

From the highest point, a most magnificent view is to be had of the surrounding country. To the northeast is and, by a sign from Joseph, invited him to ride if he was going our way. But he said very pleasantly, "No, I am going to Cumorah." This was something new to me, I did not know what Cumorah meant. We all gazed at him and at each other, and as I looked around inquiringly at Joseph, the old man instantly disappeared, so that I did not see him again.

An air view of Hill Cumorah near Palmyra

—Journal of History, Volume 3, page 448, interview of Orson Pratt, Joseph F. Smith, in David Whitmer home in 1878.

Fayette is of historical importance as the birthplace of the restored church of Christ, authorized by divine command. This place is situated high between the lakes of Seneca on the west and Cayuga on the east. On the north flows the Seneca River connecting the two lakes. This beautiful tract of land, three fourths surrounded by lakes and rivers, was until early in the nineteenth century an unbroken wilderness. It was inhabited only by the Cayuga Indians, one of the six tribes constituting the powerful confederation known as the Iroquois. In 1789 and 1795 the Indians ceded all the land lying between Cayuga and Seneca lakes to the state of New York.

Among the early settlers were many Pennsylvania Germans, including the Peter Whitmer family. These people settled in this new land during the first ten years of the nineteenth century.

The official organization of the town of Fayette was on March 14, 1800. It was first called "Washington" and was in Cayuga County (now Seneca County). On April 6, 1808, the name was changed to Fayette.

It was in this favorable locality that Joseph Smith found a home and valuable friends when struggling against adverse circumstances to present to the world the Nephite record, and here the church began its remarkable growth in the home of a Pennsylvania German farmer, Peter Whitmer.

The foundation of the original house in which that first organization meeting on April 6, 1830, was held is still to be found down by the barn.

In an interview in 1886, David Whitmer made this statement:

The house of senior Whitmer was a primitive and poorly designed structure, but it was deemed the most secure for carrying out the sacred trust on account of the threats that had been made against the Smiths.—Saints' Herald, Volume 33, page 13.

Catherine (Smith) Salisbury was one of the charter members of the first organization (there were only thirty members). She was then sixteen years old and well remembered the early persecution that the young church had. In later years she bore this testimony.

House now on the Peter Whitmer farm the slightly rolling country, with alternating fields of timberland. To the northwest lie fertile plains, dotted with cultivated fields and farm homes. The hill runs due north and south. At the north it emerges abruptly from the plain and extends south approximately three-fourths of a mile, merging gradually into the surrounding country.

As I walked along the top of the hill, one statement made by Joseph Smith came to my mind, "On the western slope of a hill, near the top, down its side," referring to the place where the records were to be found. Tradition over the years has indicated the spot, which is marked by a sign about twenty-five feet from the top.

I was reminded of a testimony of William Smith, a brother of the prophet, as I stood on this supposed sacred spot and reviewed the past incidents relating to that September in 1827 when Joseph received the records from the angel.

As a boy sixteen years old, William remembered the sentiments of the family.

When Joseph received them, he came in and said: "Father, I have got the plates." All believed it was true, father, mother, brothers, and sisters . . . Father knew his child was telling the truth. When the plates were brought in they were wrapped in a tow frock. My father put them in a pillowcase. Father said, "What, Joseph, can we not see them?" "No, I was disobedient the first time, but I intend to be faithful this time; for I was forbidden to show them until they were translated, but you can feel them."—Saints' Herald, Volume 31, page 643.

In the days of Cumorah's greatest importance to our age there were more trees on the hill. Oliver Cowdery made this statement when he visited the hill in 1830: "There were several trees standing, enough to cause a shade in the summer, but not so much as to prevent the surface from being covered with grass—which was also the case when the records were found."

I lingered, dreaming and speculating on all that this "hill" means to us, what it may have meant to others, and would mean to people in the future time. This was the place that had guarded God's secret for hundreds of years. Here an angel of God delivered the golden plates on which was engraved the record now contained in the Book of Mormon. I tried to imagine the feelings of Joseph, as on five consecutive Septembers he came to the hill to meet with the heavenly messenger for instructions.

Hundreds of people find enjoyment as they reminisce at this sacred place. It leaves an engraved picture as well as an enduring reminder of the Lord's promises in these latter days.

Whitmer Farm

The Whitmer farm, in the township of Fayette, is thirty-three miles south of Palmyra.

As I drove along the smooth-surfaced highway, I was reminded of another time when Joseph Smith, Oliver Cowdery, and David Whitmer were traveling to the Whitmer farm from Harmony. David told of the incident in later years:

When I was returning to Fayette with Joseph and Oliver, all of us riding in a wagon, Oliver and I on the old-fashioned wooden spring seat and Joseph behind us—when traveling along in a clear open space, a very pleasant, nice looking old man suddenly appeared by the side of our wagon and saluted us with, "Good morning, it is very warm," at the same time wiping his face or forehead with his hand. We returned the salutation

The home of Joseph and Emma in Harmony, Pennsylvania

The persecution we suffered, after the church was organized, was so great that we left our home and moved into the house with my brother Hyrum's family. The Lord warned Hyrum in a vision when he was out preaching to return and take his family to a place of safety, for his enemies were in search of him. A few days after he was gone a number of men came and searched our house. Mother (Lucy), myself, and my younger sister (Lucy) were the only ones at home; but the men insisted that they knew he was there and they meant to have him. When we insisted that he was not there, their anger turned upon us and they commenced to rob the house. While they were plundering us, my brother William came. He had been warned that we were in trouble . . . arming himself with a stout club, he soon drove them from the house.—Saints' Herald, Volume 33, page 404.

Because of persecution, it became necessary for the Smiths to leave Palmyra and move to Waterloo in Lafayette County, a few miles from the Whitmer farm. Catherine comments:

The Whitmer brothers and my brothers held meetings, first at one house and then at another, for preaching and prayer. They continued this until near spring, where ever they could get a hearing.

She also tells how some of the neighbors would come to their meetings and would ask them mockingly if they expected their little band to convert the world and make it believe in the "gold bible."

William, the brother of Joseph, tells in the tract he published on "Mormonism" in later years:

Our neighbors conceived an antipathy against us, calling us all manner of names, such as "money-diggers," "angel-believers," "gold-bible company," "visionary-men," etc.

Besides, whenever we had a meeting in our house they would surround the house, throw stones, sticks, and dirt against it, and insult us in all manner of ways.

As I left the Whitmer farm, I thought of the many events that make the place historically significant.

It was the home of the Whitmer family from 1809 to 1831, also the temporary home of Joseph Smith, the prophet, from June, 1829, to June, 1830, and from August, 1830, to January, 1831. Here Joseph finished the translation of the Book of Mormon, while he shared the hospitality of the Whitmer family, and on April 6, 1830, organized the Church of Jesus Christ. The first public discourse was preached by Oliver Cowdery on April 11, 1830, and the first three conferences held by the church convened on June 1, 1830, September 1, 1830, and January 2, 1831. Several of the early members of the church were baptized by Joseph Smith and others in Seneca Lake and River near Fayette. Among these were the Whitmers, Hiram Page, William Jolly, and Ziba Peterson. It was also at or near Fayette that the Three Witnesses of the Book of Mormon received a divine testimony of the record and where the Eight Witnesses were shown the plates by Joseph Smith. Twenty of the revelations in the Doctrine and Covenants were given through Joseph Smith at Fayette.

After visiting these historical sites in the east, I would like to sum up my impressions by using a statement of Frederick M. Smith after he had visited the same places. He was asked how he felt seeing this property was in the hands of the Mormons.

One thing is quite certain; even if I had personally desired to own it, for very obvious reasons I could not. If the church had proposed buying it, or the hill, or any other farm around there, I should have opposed it. The land we need lies much nearer Independence. And I know of no one who will take better care of the farm, the hill, and other historic spots they may buy, than our ecclesiastical cousins from Utah. I'd much rather see them have these places than see them in the hands of those who would be disposed to collect fees from visitors. So I am glad the Utah people have the farm and are giving it the usual good care; and I am hoping they may be successful in securing the hill. It will be a guarantee that its beauties will be preserved and enhanced, and that it will be accessible to the public. In the meantime, I am glad that we are buying land in the "regions round about," with our eyes to the future. The Utah people can afford to spend money on these far eastern landmarks; and we cannot. Our burdens and responsibilities nearer "home" demand that all our resources be concentrated there.—Saints' Herald, Volume 74, page 890.

Correction

A typographical error appears in the date of the "Journeying and Reminiscing," Part III article by Pearl Wilcox, the issue of February 17. At the end of the first paragraph on page 15 it states that public notice was published in the Wayne Sentinel starting September 24, 1842. This should read "September 25, 1824."

On page 16, the legend under the picture reading "The Martin Harris Home near Palmyra" should read, "The home on the Martin Harris farm near Palmyra." This house was not built until 1849.

The Divine and The Human Touch

The snow glistened in the early sunlight, pure and white, after the blizzard. How exquisitely beautiful lay the world about us, transformed from winter's bleakness into a truly dazzling fairyland of white! The trees and shrubs were clothed with shimmering ice after the early morning fog vanished; nothing could be more beautiful! My heart lifted up in praise to my Creator for the loveliness of the scene I beheld and the wonder of his gifts to his heedless children. What, created in the imagination of man, can ever compare with the glory of God's handiwork?

Later the drifts were splashed with mud from the hurrying cars; the snow was trampled and dirty, never again to be pure and white. Everywhere that man had been the pristine beauty of the snow was replaced by something less than beautiful. How typical of man's handiwork in the light of God's perfect creation.

MERVA BIRD

Question Time

Question

If forgiveness of sin is granted as a result of baptism, will we still have to answer for that sin in eternal judgment?

MRS. K. O.

Iowa

Answer

The content of this question is based upon the assumption that eternal judgment is a judgment of duration. Martin Harris was very concerned about this same question in the early history of the church. Doctrine and Covenants 18:2 was given to answer this question. It states, "Eternal punishment is God's punishment." Similarly, eternal judgment is God's judgment—the judgment of him who is eternal. Eternal judgment is not the quantity of punishment or judgment but the quality. Eternal judgment is with us now and is a continuing process. Each of us is today a living judgment of how much or how little we have used the gospel of Christ within our lives.

Perhaps a physical illustration would help. It is a part of eternal judgment that fire destroys flesh. Therefore if I put my hand in the blaze my hand is burned. It is also a part of eternal judgment that removing my hand from the fire and applying ointments, plus the divine properties of the body, heals. Therefore if I remove my hand from the fire and apply healing ointments the physical properties of my body will set in order the process of healing. It is also a part of eternal judgment that failure to remove flesh from fire utterly destroys. Therefore if I refuse to take my hand from the flame, it will become consumed.

In the process of spiritual growth sin is placing our hand in the flame. Baptism is a turning from that flame in repentance and looking to the healing ointment of the sacrifice of Jesus Christ. Lack of repentance is remaining in the flame until we are consumed by our own refusal to submit to his divine will. One thing is wrong with our illustration. The physical body is incapable of being made completely whole again, whereas Christ can heal, uphold, and sustain as we cast ourselves completely upon him.

CECIL R. ETTINGER

Question

I am taking a course in a Catholic institution to qualify for nurse's aid. I have been told that if my patient is dying I will be expected to perform the rite of extreme unction or baptize a member of a Catholic family if the priest or other church member is not available. Please advise what I should do.

MRS. U. P.

Colorado

Answer

Since the Scriptures which this church accepts condemn infant baptism and believe that only priests and elders have the right to perform the ordinance of baptism, we would encourage you to maintain the integrity of your own faith. Bear in mind, however, that this condition might never actually confront you. We would suggest that you cross this bridge when you come to it. Nearly always there is some Catholic around who could perform this ceremony and feel conscientious in doing it. We do not believe you could without violating your own conscience.

C. B. H.

Question

Would you explain Ezekiel 37:16, 17. I always thought the word "sticks" in this passage taken from the original text meant the same as "scrolls." But in checking the original text I find it to mean "staff" or even "tree."

Just how does this passage refer to the Book of Mormon?

Manitoba

J. D. C.

Answer

The word translated "stick" in this particular passage is etz for which in a Hebrew dictionary only two translations are allowable—"tree" or "wood." This same word in its plural, etzim, is found in the story of Abraham and Isaac, Genesis 22. The Hebrew word which is translated literally "stick" is makel as found in the story of Jacob and Laban, Genesis 30:37. In some translations this word is also translated "rod." The Hebrew word for "staff" is mateb.

May we repeat that the word found in Ezekiel 37:16, 17 is etz. Therefore it would seem that in this particular passage if we want to be literal in our translation we would say, "Take a piece of wood and write upon it." Probably the word "stick" is used because of a rabbinic homiletic upon the familiar illustration that one stick can be broken but many sticks held together present strength.

In light of all of this it seems that there are only two possible interpretations of this prophecy. One is for the union of tribes of Joseph and Judah for political strength. The other interpretation would be the union of their histories for strength of testimony. The former interpretation has not come to pass, but even if it should by some miraculous means at a future date, it would not do injustice to the fact that the history of the people of Joseph has been bound in testimony to the history of the people of Judah.

CECIL R. ETTINGER

Now available in Norwegian . . .

I WILL BUILD MY CHURCH (tract)

A billfold size card listing and illustrating the basic principles and beliefs of the Restoration church. A new missionary help for Norwegian-speaking people.

2c each

other Norwegian tracts:

Latter Day Saints?

4c each

The Great Restoration

3c each

The Latter Day Glory

15c each

Latter Day Saints and What They

15c each

Believe

Quantity prices upon request.

Box 477
Independence, Missouri

Box 382
Guelph, Ontario, Canada

Fifty-fourth Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Lytle of Birdseye, Indiana, observed their fifty-fourth wedding anniversary on December 27. They were married on December 27, 1903, at English, Indiana. Mrs. Lytle is the former Bertha E. Kendall.

On March 4 Mr. Lytle will celebrate his seventy-fifth birthday; two days later she will celebrate her seventy-second. Both are members of the Reorganized Church; she was baptized in 1916 and he in 1940. They attend services at Francisco, Indiana. Until a year ago they operated a farm near Birdseye.

They are the parents of thirteen children: Adron Lytle of Hazelton, Indiana; Mrs. Nova Burns of Francisco; Mrs. Irma Cothren of Independence, Missouri; Fred and Jack Lytle of Birdseye; Mrs. Edith Whitehouse of Princeton, Indiana; Mrs. Leona Richards and Mrs. Edna Richards of Davenport, Iowa; Mrs. Ethel Phillips, Mrs. Lodema Harvey, and Russell Lytle of Oakland City, Indiana; and William Lytle of North Little Rock, Arkansas. One son, Edison, died on August 9, 1957. The Lytles also have forty grandchildren and twenty-four great-grandchildren.

Briefs

Work Continues on Church Building

LENNOX, CALIFORNIA.—On January 12, an installation service of branch officers for the coming year was held. Installed by Elder-in-charge Earl Peters and his counselors, William Webb and Don Pike, were Clarence Harman, director of religious education; Bob and June Birch, adult leaders; Madge and Lee Clark, youth directors; Jane Hill, secretary; Irby Webb, music director; Florence Bottorff; Bill Bottorff, bishop's agent and treasurer; Ted O'Neil and David Stewart, assistants; Cherie Glaze, librarian; Ed Reiger, custodian; Barbara Pearson, drama director; Howard Smith, book steward; Frieda Nuckles, historian; Tom Nuckles, recorder; Leone Lange, publicity. The average attendance has increased to 151; in 1955 the average was 97.

Brother David Stewart was ordained to the office of teacher at the January 5 Communion service.

Guest speakers have been Patriarch W. J. Moyle on January 12 and Elder Lee Hart on January 19.

In February, 1957, the Saints moved to a new location, 11019 Freeman Avenue in Inglewood, where services are being held in an existing building. Work on the junior church and classrooms had been started in February, 1956, and this building was complete when first services were held February 24, 1957. The sanctuary was started in May, 1956; the Saints hope to complete it by April 20, 1958.—Reported by LEONE B. LANGE

Kaw Valley District Day

LEAVENWORTH, KANSAS.—The annual business meeting was held on September 11, with District Counselor Clyde S. Johnson in charge. Those re-elected were Elder Clyde Johnson, pastor; Perry Tomlinson, church school director; Mrs. Perry Tomlinson, music director; Charles Sowter, treasurer and solicitor; Mrs. Leo Moles, book steward; and Leo Moles, fellowship league leader.

Those elected were Mrs. M. D. Smith, secretary and women's leader; Charles Holler, Zion's League leader; and Mrs. Linly Dorsey, historian.

On October 23, Perry Tomlinson was ordained an elder by Apostle D. Blair Jensen, assisted by C. S. Johnson; Leland Robertson was ordained a priest by Elder C. S. Johnson assisted by District President Gerald Hawly; Paul Dorsey was ordained to the office of deacon by Gerald Hawley assisted by Linly Dorsey. Words of counsel were given by Apostle Jensen.

On January 4, a special service preceded the Communion service in which three babies were blessed: Gary Gene, son of Mr. and Mrs. Orville Robertson; Bradley Keith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sowter; and Mary Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Burgess.

January 12 was Kaw Valley District Day for Leavenworth, which began with a prayer service with Ammon Andes in charge.

Church school director for the district, George Smarr, presented ideas on church school work; Rock Morrison talked on aims and goals of the fellowship league; Mrs. Morrison represented the district women's department; James Dickensheet spoke to the Zion's Leaguers; and in the absence of the district music director, Mrs. Perry Tomlinson gave a few remarks on the development of young musicians in the branch.—Reported by C. S. JOHNSON

Three Children Baptized

BELL, CALIFORNIA.—The annual business meeting was held November 24. The following officers were elected: Leroy Hamilton, presiding elder; Marvin Moore and Lee Hutchins, counselors; Margaret Barnes, secretary and recorder; Floyd Barnes, bishop's agent; Mervin Kaler, treasurer and solicitor; Glen Long and Horace Wills, auditors; Dorothy Hutchins, women's leader; Mervin Kaler, director of church school; Marion Giles, director of junior church school; Dorothea Hawkes, historian; Floyd Barnes, book steward; Bill Baird, drama; Bernice Kaler, publicity agent; Charles Tutty, Sr., custodian; Lee Hutchins, missionary supervisor; Marvin Moore, home ministry supervisor; Mildred Oldham, music supervisor (assistants, Ruth Aslin and Madelyn Farley); Katherine Miller, church school secretary; Irma Patella, camp representative; Bill Baird, Zion's League leader; James Oldham, Zioneer leader; Wayne Fuary, Liahona leader.

Kathleen Ann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hull, was blessed November 24 by Elder Virgil Lum and Elder Elmer Johnson.

On December 15, three children, Judy Coleman, Ralph Coleman, and Lois Newby, were baptized by Elder Leroy Hamilton, and Elder Marvin Moore. William Ivory was also ordained to the office of elder by Patriarch R. L. Macrae and Brother Johnson.

A potluck dinner was held December 20 in honor of Brother and Sister Elmer Johnson and Brother and Sister William Ivory, who are being transferred to another branch, and visitors, Patriarch and Sister R. L. Macrae and Brother and Sister Ted Bowen. A Christmas program was presented.—Reported by BERNICE KALER

New Education Building in Use

OMAHA, NEBRASKA.—In a Central Branch business meeting held September 18, the following officers were elected: Alma C. Andrews, pastor; H. A. Merchant, C. M. Gollehon, C. B. Constance, Esmond Crown, and Marlin K. Constance, counselors; Mrs. Emerson A. Link, church school director; Donald Silver, youth leader; Mrs. C. M. Gollenhon, secretary; Arthur Leach, treasurer; Mrs. Glen

a gift for you

Herald House
Gift Certificate

The gift for all occasions ($2.50 and up).

Available through your Book Steward and Herald House

Clark, recorder; Mrs. Harry Wren, historian; Mrs. Alfred Hulmes, publicity chairman; Edward Larson, bishop's solicitor; Mrs. Alma Mefferd, book steward; Mrs. Albert Livingston, music director; and Eugene Carey, building custodian.

The new apostle in this area, Maurice L. Draper, was guest speaker October 27.

The recently completed $40,000.00 education building was opened for use December 15. This building includes nine classrooms, two nurseries, a choir room, a junior chapel, and a pastor's study.

Pastor Alma C. Andrews was asked to participate in the worship period at the closing hour of Channel 7 KETV, December 22 and January 4—a short talk on the subject of prayer, ending with a prayer.

Radio KFAB carried the recording of the Independence Messiah Choir's performance of Handel's Messiah at 10 p.m., December 20.

On October 6 occurred the baptism of Mary Greenlee and her son, Ralph Greenlee, by Maurice Coffman.

Cecille Kay, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Coffman, was blessed October 13 by Elder C. M. Gollehon and Elder H. A. Scott.

Randy Lee, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Hike, was blessed October 20 by Elder Albert Livingston and Elder C. M. Gollehon.

David Allen, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Whiting, was blessed October 20 by Brothers Gollehon and Livingston.

Ronald Dale, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Harpster, of Fremont, Nebraska, was blessed November 24 by Brothers Gollehon and Constance.

Diana Lee, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Salzbrenner, was blessed November 24 by Brothers Gollehon and Constance.

Boyd Michael, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Vice, of York, Nebraska, was blessed December 1 by Elder H. A. Merchant and Elder Albert Livingston.

Cynthia Kay, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marlin Constance, was blessed December 22, by Elder Joe Hanna and Elder Byron Constance.

On January 13 Brother Constance began a series of classes for training of deacons and those assisting the deacons.—Reported by BERTHA H. HULMES

Apostle Jensen at District Conference

MIAMI-PITTSBURG DISTRICT.—District conference met at Pittsburg, Kansas, on January 5. A fellowship service began the day's activities, with District President J. A. Pray presiding. The theme was "The Hastening Time Is upon Us."

Apostle D. Blair Jensen was the minister for the morning preaching service. Elder Robert Trimble was the vocal soloist. There were 245 persons in attendance.

Lunch was served by the Pittsburg department of women.

At the business session the following ordinations were approved: Harold Van Sickle, Scammon, elder; Alvin Smith, Nowata, priest; and to the office of deacon, John Cartwright, Scammon; Kenneth Pearson, Scammon; Danny Harper, Nowata; and Arthur Daniels, Coffeyville. Joan Trimble sang a solo and was accompanied by Shirley Colyer.

Following the business session there were separate classes. Instructors were Myron Cadwell, women; Donald Guinnee, youth; and the district president, men.—Reported by BETTY KYSER

Christmas Observances

OMAHA, NEBRASKA.—At the Highland Park Branch, the ReLaDaSa group of the women's department had their Christmas party December 10. An offering of useful articles was presented in harmony with the theme "Gifts to the Church."

The young adults met on December 20, at which time Book of Mormon slides were shown. Christmas carols were sung following the slides.

A Christmas program was presented December 22. The primary choir sang several numbers, after which the junior choir presented "Joseph and the Nativity," narrated by Pastor Vern P. Goodenough.—Reported by FRANCES WALTER

Recent Guest Speakers

PONCA CITY, OKLAHOMA.—Elder Melvin Francis, Tulsa District missionary, preached each evening September 22-27. He also visited homes.

W. T. Bozarth was ordained a deacon during the year.

Guest speakers have been High Priests C. A. Vernon, Independence, Missouri; Allan Kelley and W. J. Sherman, Tulsa, Oklahoma; Elders Earl Harder and S. R. Stevens of Tulsa; Dale Patton and Franklin Graybill of Stillwater, Oklahoma; and Warren Gose, priest, of Arkansas City, Arkansas.

Brother Harder presided at the business meeting. Officers for the new year are Elder Glenn Limb, mission pastor; O. E. Pender and Paul Storm, counselors; Graham S. Hart, director of religious education; Mrs. DeWayne Steers, children's supervisor; DeWayne Steers, youth director; Mrs. Robert Womack, secretary; W. T. Bozarth, treasurer and solicitor; Mrs. G. S. Hart, women's leader; R. J. Cavanaugh, book steward; Paul Storm, historian; Glenn Limb, recorder; J. C. Bowker, W. T. Bozarth, G. S. Hart, John Page, and Paul Storm, finance committee.—Reported by RUBY HART

Babies Blessed

LEON, IOWA.—Ginger Lee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Neil Kelly, was blessed June 19 by Elders C. L. Bohall and W. H. Eliason.

Debra Kay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Smith, of Van Wert, Iowa, was blessed December 22 by Elders Bohall and Eliason.—Reported by BRANCH REPORTER

Golden Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Guy E. Moses of Palmer, Illinois, observed their golden wedding anniversary on November 22, 1957. They were married in Taylorville, Illinois, and have resided in and around that community most of their married lives. Mrs. Moses is the former Nina Ginger. Since June 13, 1915, they have been members of the Reorganized Church.

On November 30 open house was held in their honor at the church in Taylorville. Two hundred and fifty friends and relatives were present for the celebration. All thirteen of their children attended. They are John Moses of Richmond, Michigan; Mrs. Frank Oller of Morrisonville, Illinois; Elmer Moses of Pawnee, Illinois; Mrs. Willie Hill of Lockport, Illinois; Mrs. Dwight Lambert and LeRoy Moses of Taylorville; Gomer Moses of Mesa, Arizona; Arnold Moses of Roundup, Montana; Rex Moses of Springfield, Illinois; Mrs. J. E. Carpenter of Galesburg, Illinois; Mrs. Glenn Thompson of Independence, Missouri; Thomas and Norman Moses of the home. There are also twenty-nine grandchildren and thirteen great-grandchildren.

Serve abroad by sending TRACTS . . .

DUTCH

- The Latter Day Glory 15c each
- The Latter Day Saints and What They Believe 15c each
- Statement of Belief 2c each
- Doctrinal References (book) 50c each

GERMAN

- The Call and Ordination of Israel A. Smith 10c each
- The Church of Jesus Christ 15c each
- Doctrinal References (book) 50c each
- The Latter Day Glory 15c each
- The Latter Day Saints and What They Believe 15c each
- Standards for a Steward 4c each
- Sunday, the Lord's Day 5c each
- Statement of Belief 5c each
- The Way of Salvation 10c each

SPANISH

- The Church of Jesus Christ 20c each
- Joseph Smith Tells His Own Story 15c each
- The Restoration Message 15c each

Quantity prices upon request.

HERALD HOUSE

Box 477, Independence, Missouri, Box 382, Guelph, Ontario, Canada

Expense
Record
Book
50c a dozen

A handy pocket-size record booklet for daily expenditures with space for a month's accounting. Figures can then be transferred to one of the larger record books (listed below). Quantity prices: 1-5 dozens, 50c a dozen; 6-10 dozens, 45c a dozen; 10 dozens or more, 37c a dozen.

- Family Income and Expense Record Book
- Youth Income and Expense Record Book
- My Stewardship (children's book)

25c each

Box 477
Independence, Missouri
Box 382
Guelph, Ontario, Canada

Reunion Schedule

Reunion Theme: "Jesus Christ in History"

DATE	REUNION	PLACE	FOR RESERVATIONS WRITE TO:
June 7-15	Texas	Bandera, Texas	Ralph R. Bobbitt 7722 Bobbitt Lane Houston, Texas
June 8-15	Red River	Detroit Lakes, Minnesota	Dr. C. F. Young 1422 River Rd., So. Fargo, North Dakota
June 18-22	Northern Plains	Fairview, Montana	Lester Anderson Manning, North Dakota
June 21-29	Kansas	Camp Fellowship Wichita, Kansas	C. R. Richards 1908 S. Broadway Wichita, Kansas
June 28- July 6	New York Metropolitan, Philadelphia Metropol- itan, Washington, D.C., & Scranton	Deer Park New Hope, Pennsylvania	Stanley I. Hayes 1 Ardsley Rd. Binghamton, New York
July 5-13	Maine	Camp Winiaugwamak Brooksville, Maine	Benjamin L. Carter Stonington, Maine
July 5-13	Owen Sound, Toronto	Port Elgin, Ontario	William Archer 26 Finch Avenue W Willowdale, Ontario
July 6-13	Saskatchewan	Sandy Lake McDowell, Saskatchewan	Mrs. D. Cromwell 1525 McTavish St. Regina, Saskatchewan
July 11-19	New York	Allegany State Park	S. Lee Pfohl 350 Marvvale Dr. Buffalo, New York
July 12-19	Center Stake No. 1	Lake Doniphan Excelsior Springs, Missouri	H. W. Cackler 916 W. Lexington Independence, Mo.
July 12-20	Central, South Central, Lansing & Grand Rapids	Liahona, Sanford, Michigan	James C. Phillips 1126 Worden, S. E. Grand Rapids, Michigan
July 12-20	Columbia River	Lewis River Grounds, Camp Israel, near Battle Ground, Washington	J. L. Verhei 3824 S. E. Grant Ct. Portland, Oregon
July 13-20	Utah & Southeast Idaho	Baptist Camp Ground Liberty, Utah (near Ogden)	Glen Johnson 445 E. 17th So. Salt Lake City, Utah
July 16-23	Memphis District	Camp Shelby Forest State Park near Memphis, Tennessee	Duane Couey 1419 Walton Road Memphis 17, Tennessee
July 19-26	Center Stake No. 2	Lake Doniphan Excelsior Springs, Missouri	H. W. Cackler 916 W. Lexington Independence, Missouri
July 19-26	Spokane District	Ross Point, Idaho	E. Paul Crinzi N. 5506 "G" St. Spokane, Washington
July 19-26	Sacramento & Central California	Happy Valley Conference Grounds Santa Cruz, California	E. C. Burdick 5014 V. St. Sacramento 17, California
July 19-27	Blue Water (Detroit International Stake)	Lexington, Michigan	O. K. Byrn 363 Louise Ave. Highland Park 3, Michigan
July 19-27	Central Missouri Stake	Odessa, Missouri	Willard Becker Box 355 Warrensburg, Missouri
July 19-27	Alberta, Canada	Neutral Hills Reunion Grounds	D. K. Larmour 7916 - 91 Avenue Edmonton, Alberta
July 21-28	Black Hills*	Bob Marshall Camp Custer, South Dakota	Luther Troyer 2526 Main St. Torrington, Wyoming
July 26- August 2	Kansas City Stake	Lake Doniphan Excelsior Springs, Missouri	J. E. Baldwin 1318 E. 30th St. Kansas City 9, Missouri
July 26- August 3	Chatham, London (Erie Beach)	Erie Beach Blenheim, Ontario	J. C. Stuart 774 Quebec St. London, Ontario
July 26- August 3	Los Angeles Stake	Camp Buckhorn Idyllwild, California	Francis E. Hansen 3851 So. Grand Los Angeles 37, California
July 26- August 3	Northwest	Silver Lake Everett, Washington	Kenneth Logan 2820 North Mason Tacoma, Washington
July 26 - August 3	Lakehurst Reunion	Lakehurst Reunion Park Maquoketa, Iowa	C. M. Beil 1128 Keith Court, Clinton, Iowa
July 27 August 3	San Francisco Bay District	Happy Valley Conference Grounds Santa Cruz, California	Reed M. Holmes 580 No. Dover Rd. Covina, California
July 27- August 3	Wisconsin, Minnesota	Luther Park Chetek, Wisconsin	O. G. Kimball 190 18th Ave. S. Wisconsin Rapids, Wis.
August 1-9	Des Moines	Guthrie Grove Reunion Park Guthrie Center, Iowa	Edward G. Beye 515 E. 21st St. Des Moines, Iowa
August 2-10	Southern New England	Onset, Massachusetts	Victor J. Witte 1386 Massachusetts Ave. Lexington, Massachusetts
August 2-10	Kirtland	Kirtland, Ohio	J. F. Wildermuth 29617 Lake Shore Blvd. Willowick, Ohio

* This reunion ends on Monday

August 2-10	Blue Water (Flint-Port Huron & Eastern Michigan Districts)	Lexington, Michigan	Almer Sheehy 1209 Miller Port Huron, Michigan
August 2-10	Southeastern Illinois, Central Illinois & St. Louis	Brush Creek (near Xenia) Illinois	Ronald E. Manuel 4250 No. Grand Blvd. St. Louis, Missouri
August 8-17	Far West Stake	Stewartsville, Missouri	F. L. Dickson 517½ Francis St. St. Joseph, Missouri
August 9-17	Western Iowa	Guthrie Grove Reunion Park Guthrie Center, Iowa	E. L. Edwards Woodbine, Iowa
August 9-17	Southern California District	Camp Buckhorn Idyllwild, California	David B. Carmichael 533 North Main St. Orange, California
August 9-17	Northern & Upper Michigan Peninsula Districts (Park of the Pines)	Boyne City, Michigan	Rex Stowe 1307 Dakota Ave. Gladstone, Michigan
August 10-17	Lamoni Stake	Graceland College Campus Lamoni, Iowa	L. W. Kohlman Lamoni, Iowa
August 10-17	Western Montana	Deer Lodge, Montana	Harvey Eliason Route 1 Deer Lodge, Montana
August 10-17	Boise District	Hagerman, Idaho	Lysle Gilmore Hagerman, Idaho
August 15-22	Hawaii	Camp Erdman Mokuleia Oahu, Hawaii	Stephen A. Black 1666 Mott-Smith Drive Honolulu 14, Hawaii
August 16-24	Arizona-New Mexico	Arizona Church Conference Center Camp Prescott, Arizona (Box 1986)	Robert I. Wakeman 67 Cypress Phoenix, Arizona
August 16-24	Northeastern Illinois, Chicago & N. Indiana	Camp Manitow Route 4 Cassopolis, Michigan	James B. Burdick 2399 W. 107th Place Chicago 43, Illinois
August 16-24	Eastern Colorado	Pine Crest Camp Palmer Lake, Colorado	Ward A. Hougas 480 Marion Street Denver 18, Colorado eight weeks ago and now suffers with dizziness and pains in his head.

ENGAGEMENTS

Johnsen-Plumb

Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Plumb of Springfield, Missouri, announce the engagement of their daughter, Shirley Ann, to Leonard E. Johnsen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Johnsen of Waterville, Washington. Shirley is a junior at Southwest Missouri State College. Leonard, a graduate of Graceland and Warrensburg State College, is serving in the U. S. Army. An early spring wedding is planned.

Gilberts-McFarlane

Mr. and Mrs. R. Lyle McFarlane of Independence, Missouri, announce the engagement of their daughter, Janet, to John Gilberts, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Gilberts of Everett, Washington. Janet is a sophomore at Graceland, and John, a 1955 graduate of Graceland, is a senior at Northwest Missouri State College. An early fall wedding is planned, after which the couple will attend the University of Washington.

Maymon-Fulks

Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Fulks of New Albany, Indiana, announce the engagement of their daughter, Rosaline, to Jake Maymon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Maymon of Byrneville, Indiana. The wedding will take place in April.

Anderson-Mourne

Mr. and Mrs. Basil E. Mourne of Nelsonville, Ohio, announce the engagement of their daughter, Dana Lee, to John William Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. I. Anderson of Beardstown, Illinois. Dana is a sophomore at Graceland College. Bill, a 1957 graduate of Graceland, is now a junior at Maryville, Missouri.

WEDDINGS

Greene-Ross

Ellen Ross, daughter of Mrs. Maude Ross of Weir, Kansas, and Robert L. Greene, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Greene of Beaver Dam, Virginia, were married in a double-ring ceremony February 14 at the Reorganized Church in Weir. Seventy James S. Menzies officiated.

Braby-Isenhardt

Mrs. Essie Isenhardt and Mr. Newton R. Braby, both of Independence, Missouri, were married on January 31 at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Orville M. Willis, by Elder Merle E. Chiles. They are making their home in Independence.

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Goodson of Bay Minette, Alabama, announce the birth of a daughter, born January 8. She has been named Jeri Lanette.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul E. Allen of Marion, Illinois, became the parents of a daughter, Lisa Lynn, on November 19, 1957. She was blessed on January 5 at Marion by her paternal grandfather, Elder O. P. Allen, assisted by Elder R. W. Poore.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Rice of Independence, Missouri, announce the birth of a son, Robert Evan, born January 15. Mrs. Rice is the former June Robb. Both parents are graduates of Graceland College.

Mr. and Mrs. Russel Hazard of Bad Axe, Michigan, became the parents of a son, Kenneth Allen, on November 25. He was blessed on January 12 at the church in Owendale by Elders Ellis J. Gardner and Olson McCallum. Mrs. Hazard is the former Erma Dubs.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald E. Price of Independence, Missouri, became the parents of a daughter, Debra June, on November 7. She was blessed on January 12 at the Enoch Hill Church by her grandfather, Elder Clyde P. Price, and her great-uncle, Elder Hubert E. Kendall. Mrs. Price is the former Judith Rae McDonald.

Mr. and Mrs. DeLloyd Winship of Independence, Missouri, became the parents of a daughter, Barbara Alyce, on December 15. Mrs. Winship is the former Iryce Bronson of Grandview, Missouri.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Holler of Dallas, Texas, became the parents of a daughter, Sherry Lynn, on November 5.

Bulletin Board

Notice to Members in Pennsylvania

Members in the State College, Pennsylvania, area, including Pennsylvania State University students, are urged to contact Elder and Mrs. Daniel F. Hobbs, Jr., Box 223, Lemont, Pennsylvania (telephone ADams 8-0726). They are interested in establishing a group.

"STEPPING STONES" WANTED

Keith McCormick, 711 South Fuller, Independence, Missouri, would like to obtain the following issues of Stepping Stones for 1956: October 7, 14, 21, and 28, November 4, 11, 18 and 25.

BOOKS WANTED

Leland Nelson, 2418 Highland Avenue, Everett, Washington, needs a copy of W. J. Haworth's The Fall of Babylon. Please state price and condition of the book before sending it.

Leland J. Carlson, 838 West 84th Street, Los Angeles 44, California, would like to obtain a copy of Alvin Knisley's Infallible Proofs and Gomer Griffiths' The Instructor. Please state price and condition of the books before sending them.

Servicemen's Addresses

Pvt. Floyd D. Ruble
US 55612358
Hq. Co. CCC, 4th A Division
APO 176
New York, New York
Pvt. Ruble is stationed in Heilbrun, Germany.

Lester G. Moon
317693 S A
U.S.C.G. W.P.B. 95310
U.S.C.G. Base
Government Island
Alameda, California

Jackie A. Johnson SR
SN 5253327

Co. 038 U.S.N.T.C.
San Diego 33, California

A/2c Donald F. Yeoman
AF 19555338
Box 122 Hedron
62 Troop Carrier Wing (H)
Larson AFB, Washington

A/B Leland L. La Brue, Jr.
AF 19605099
Mail Room No. 4, Box 4410
Chanute A.F.B., Illinois

Larry K. Hamilton AN
5159885
V.F. 114 Miramar Naval Air Station
San Diego 45, California

A/1c Leon L. Woodward
AF 12457073
923 D A.C.W.
A.P.O. 677
New York, New York

Van. Cad. Richard J. Sellers
486-77-43
Class 4-58
U.S. Naval School, Preflight
N.A.S., Pensacola, Florida

Sp/3 and Mrs. Gerald Ratcliffe
31 Kanal Street
Kaiserslautern, Germany
(telephone 8387)

The Ratcliffes will be happy to see members and friends living in their area.

Requests for Prayers

Prayers are requested for Grace Paulton, 328 West B Avenue, Hutchinson, Kansas, that she may be healed so surgery will not be necessary.

Mrs. Joanna Drader Hinkley, 410 North M Street, Yale, Michigan, requests prayers. She is seventy-nine years old and a cripple.

Frank W. Peterson, Route 1, Perry, Michigan, requests prayers. He had a stroke

And Finally...

Clifford R. Craven
305 Nichol
Lee's Summit, Missouri

89965
2-59
h

MATRIMONIALY SPEAKING

The trouble with some honeymooners is that they drain the honey out of their moon too rapidly, leaving little to sweeten on as time goes by.

—"Worthwhile," D. H. Schmidt

EGOTIST

An egotist is not a man who thinks too much of himself; he is a man who thinks too little of other people.

—Unknown

TOP MAN

Getting to the top is a tough assignment; staying there is tougher. The secret of greatness is simple: do better work than any other man in your field . . . and keep on doing it. The price of being a topnotcher is terrific. Few people are willing to pay it.

—Unknown

*GLOOMOR

Don't look for this word in the dictionary because it isn't there. It was just invented. It means "humor turned sour."

Yesterday there was an example of it—an envelope addressed to a friend, with an uncomplimentary epithet attached to the name. Perhaps it was supposed to be funny, but it was merely crude.

Humor that hurts others, that lowers human dignity or expresses disrespect, that is derogatory in any way, always leads toward trouble for two people at least and sometimes more.

There are so many things in life that stimulate fun and wit without hurting others that we need never run out of subjects for them.

The great comedians have always kept the world laughing, usually at themselves. Their fun carries no sting. Will Rogers, Eddie Cantor, and others who knew the art were the objects of their own humor. On television today there is one comedian who regularly outshines and outsmarts his guests. He could be much better if he did not inflate his own vanity.

Contents

EDITORIAL AND OFFICIAL

Nature—or God?	3
Keeping Abreast of the Past	3
Record Number of Filers for 1967	4
Across the Desk	4

FEATURE ARTICLES

Appointees to Missions Abroad	2
Having Authority from God, by James A. Everett	5
The Perfect Steward, by Hazel Chambers	8
At Home in Honduras by Marian Blumenschein	9
New Auditorium Slide Set Ready, by Roger Yarrington	12
Summering with the Church in Europe Part III, by Mrs. Mark H. Siegfried	14
Journeying and Reminiscing, Part IV, by Pearl Wilcox	16

SPECIAL COLUMNS

We'd Like You to Know: Eloise Bruington Oberdick	2
I had an Experience, by Philip Moore	11
Question Time	19
Briefs	20
Reunion Schedule	22
Bulletin Board	23
And Finally	24

Among members of the church it is good to enjoy fun, but not the kind that hurts others. Little scratches can become big scars, if they irritate the feelings, as they always do if their purpose is to hurt, satirize, belittle, or embarrass others. Let's avoid "gloomor" and not be "gloomorists."

L. J. L

LITERARY CUPBOARD

Is the literary cupboard in your home bare of church literature?

Energetic twelve-year-old Ray, turning off the radio and staring out of the rain-splashed window, loudly complained, "Aw shucks, nothin' on the radio but recipes and love stuff." It was a school day, but Ray was kept home because of an incipient cold.

"Why don't you read something, dear?" suggested the mother as she stepped in for a moment from her work in the kitchen.

"Nothing to read around this house except the comics in the morning paper," he said disgustedly.

We cannot supply the need of our children from a bare literary cupboard. A child's mind has endless capacities to receive and store up knowledge—both good and evil. It can only bring forth of that which it has received. The knowledge of good can be channeled into paths of righteousness and the knowledge of evil curbed so that it will not run wild.

Materials which link children with the ideals and objectives of the church should be on hand at all times. The truths contained therein will prove a never-ending source of comfort and strength in the hour of need.

Mary Shirk

ONE TEST OF RELIGION

Be sure that a religion cannot be right that a man is the worse for having.—William Penn.

A RELIGIOUS EXPERIENCE

Nothing makes the soul so pure, so religious, as the endeavor to create something perfect; God is perfection and whoever strives for it strives for something godlike.—Michelangelo.

For Easter

- IT SHALL BE GIVEN (an Easter play published by Herald House. Nine characters including 6 children. About 10 minutes long. Gives suggestions for staging and costumes.) 15c
- STANDARD EASTER PROGRAM BOOK, No. 9 (music and dramatic materials for beginner, primary, junior, and intermediate departments) 40c
- WE LIVE FOR HIM (an Easter service for the church school) 10c
- HE IS RISEN INDEED (an Easter play in three short scenes) 35c
- COKEBURY EASTER PROGRAMS (a collection of material for the observance of Holy Week and Easter) 35c
- BEHOLD! THE THIRD DAY COMETH (an Easter drama for sunrise services) 25c
- EASTER TREASURY, No. 57 (selections for primaries, juniors, and seniors) 40c
- EASTER SUGGESTION BOOK, No. 15 (recitations, music, tableaux, and pageant) 40c
- THE CROSS OF LIGHT (an Easter pageant with familiar music) 30c each
12 for $3.00
- EUREKA EASTER RECITATIONS, No. 4 (material for children's departments plus pantomimes, play, songs, special features) 25c
- THE KING IS COMING (an Easter service in pantomime, reading, and song) 15c
- THE CHANCEL LILY (an Easter play in two acts) 35c
- THE SYMBOL OF A CROSS (a religious drama for Easter and general occasions) 30c each 12 for $3.00
- PEACE AT BETHANY (an Easter play for women) 35c

Box 477
Independence, Missouri
Box 382
Guelph, Ontario, Canada

SAINTS' HERALD

Volume 105 / March 3, 1958 / Number 9

Auditorium
Day
March
9

Sketch by Jules Scheffer

Photo by Audio-Visual Department

Conference Chamber as it will appear when finished

Student nurses participate in a group discussion with Chaplain Ashenhurst (far right)

Ashenhurst, Quitmyer, Link, McDonald, Landon, and Cole lead the panel discussion

Religion Series at "San"

Nurses Discuss Adventures in Christian Living Series

THE Sanitarium School of Nursing held its second annual Religious Emphasis Days January 20-22.

Clifford Cole, director of the Department of Religious Education, and Seventy Donald Landon were guest ministers. Dr. Vance Link of the Center Stake High Council and Chaplain Ray Ashenhurst were also present to furnish ministry.

"Adventures in Christian Living" was the theme of the series. Daily topics were "Adventures in Home and Family Life," "Adventures in Professional Life," and "Adventures in Church Life."

Each topic was introduced by a series of three keynote talks and then discussed in panel and small group sessions. Besides the ministers present, keynoters included Mrs. Myrtle Quitmyer of the school's teaching staff, and Kay Sheehy and Beatrice McDonald, students.

Shirley Thomas, a student, was chairman of the committee which planned the three-day series of meetings. She is regularly chairman of the student worship committee.

Chaplain Ashenhurst explained that the religious emphasis series was in its second year at the San. A.

Neal Deaver, hospital administrator, has urged the planning of such a series each year.

"The student nurses feel," Brother Ashenhurst explained, "that these two days furnish a spiritual uplift that is very beneficial to them. The period around January has sometimes been called the 'junior slump.' By then, the mental pressures of constant study and the attempt to absorb the principles of nursing have taken their toll on some high resolves. Nothing is quite so helpful as deliberately planning several days of worship and discussion."

The series opened with a banquet in the Nurses' Recreation Building. Many of the sessions were held in the new assembly room in the recent "San" addition. The emphasis days closed with a fellowship around the fireplace in the recreation building.

Authors in This Issue

Arthur E. Dempsey (page 5), elder, Council Bluffs, Iowa
 Israel A. Smith (page 8), President of the Church
 Carl Mesle (page 9), High Priest, Independence, Missouri
 Elisabeth Dodds (page 12), Waterbury, Connecticut
 Lorne White (page 14), elder, London, Ontario

Thoughts on the Auditorium

GRADUALLY the new outlines of the interior of the Auditorium—the General Conference Chamber—are emerging; gradually beauty and order are coming into clear focus out of what looked like chaos. The architects, engineers, and craftsmen know what is going on; they have known from the beginning. The rest of us could only trust them and have faith that they would be able to accomplish the miracles for which we hoped, but in which, during the confused appearance of the beginning, it was hard to believe. Now the work goes on apace, and little by little the previews of future beauty are revealed.

It is an impressive thought that practically all of the space we have in the Auditorium today has been right here for thirty years. A lot of it we could not use because the construction was not installed to make it available.

On the sixth level, the new floors for the Department of Religious Education are in place. The walls are partly erected. Some day soon other workmen will arrive, trained in special skills, to put in window frames, doors, and other finish work. The space has been waiting all this time. Soon it will be put to use.

Will the reader grant a digression here? How great are the potentials that God has placed in us, and how many years go by in which the empty and useless parts of us render no service because we have not prepared ourselves!

It is interesting to hear the comments of visitors as they stand on the fifth level, looking in through one of the doors across the balcony. One is impressed by the beauty of the lines, visible for the first time as the new finish reveals it; another is impressed by the great cost of the work and wonders if it is justified; the visiting members think immediately of what it will mean to the church around the world; nonmember friends think first of what the building will mean to the city of Independence. Sometimes it is hard to understand where these differing viewpoints have anything in common. What seems important to one is dismissed lightly by another.

A FEW things seem of paramount importance to those who live and work here, serving the church and its people. The history of the church is being made here today because our people, about a generation ago, made sacrifices to erect this building. Today, the people of this generation are finishing the great structure that will become the setting in which the history of future years will be written. And because the people of the church have toiled and sacrificed, our history will be a better, nobler record.

This great building is truly the heritage of all the people of the church. It belongs to them. It is theirs because they have made it possible. Through the years we have had to apologize for it because it was at first plain and ugly, because it was incomplete. There were heartaches because of what strangers said about it. Now that time is drawing to a close. We can be proud of it. It will be beautiful and dignified, a worthy symbol of the church.

When this is done, we shall not have to explain, because the completed work will make its own explanation visible to all who come. The era of apologies will be past. It will represent the will of the people to complete the work that their parents began.

MEMORIES linger in mind of church people who stood in their prayer meetings saying, "I have often prayed that I might live to see it completed." But not all prayers can be granted, even by a merciful God, and many of those who so prayed passed on to their reward, having made their contribution to the building and having completed their part of the good work.

Now many who were not here when it was begun will share the joy of achievement and the pleasure of witnessing the completion of the building. Happy indeed are they to be a part of the fulfillment of the dreams and hopes of so many who toiled for this day but could not be here when it comes.

Every day we who are church workers pass the artisans and craftsmen who are doing the work. We look at their faces and hands and are impressed by the evidences of skill that appear in the work they do.

Few church people can put in a steel beam, smooth the plaster, paint the surface, or place seats in the Chamber. But we can contribute the funds that make it possible for others to do the work. Funds for the completion of the work are being gathered now. We look forward in hope that when October comes everything will be in place. With what happiness many will be able to say, "I gave the price of a seat!"

L. J. L.

Official

Professional Help Needed

The First Presidency and the Presiding Bishopric are interested in making contact with men of the church who have collegiate education in the field of agriculture. We therefore invite those who have collegiate education in agriculture to write to the Presiding Bishopric giving their names, addresses, present occupation, college or colleges where they received their training, their degrees and area of specialty. Any additional information about experience, education, or agricultural interest would be welcome.

THE FIRST PRESIDENCY

Israel A. Smith

THE PRESIDING BISHOPRIC

By G. L. DeLapp

New Church School Materials for this Fall

Elder Clifford A. Cole of the Department of Religious Education informs us that new church school study materials are being prepared for use in the kindergarten, primary, junior, junior high, and senior high divisions beginning with the church school year opening October 1, 1958.

Articles describing these materials and giving information regarding their utilization and the time at which they will be available from the Herald House will appear from time to time in Guidelines to Leadership.

THE FIRST PRESIDENCY

By F. Henry Edwards

this meeting, so we started with a capacity attendance which we held during the week, despite unfavorable weather, and concluded with the largest attendance last Sunday evening. Altogether, I preached nine sermons, since I occupied twice on both Sundays and five evenings during the week. I had the experience of receiving light each evening and new information came to me in connection with the material that I presented.

Brother Gleazer is to be the special preacher at the June Missionary Series on the Campus at Independence.

A report from Sutton-in-Ashfield, England:

January 5-February 2 was missionary emphasis period, and local priesthood members, together with Brother Eric Rowe, have made a very extensive missionary campaign on a new housing estate near the church.

It would seem that the forces of evil decided to work against them from the very moment the idea was conceived. First, the pastor suffered a rather serious accident to his foot. Then his counselors were stricken with injury and illness. Then the elements took a hand. There was one week of continual rain, after that two weeks of snow and ice, and to finish, a week of good old English fog and icy roads. But despite all this, four hundred letters of introduction and two hundred programs of the January activities were delivered personally.

These efforts were rewarded. Homes which heretofore had been closed were opened up, and many visits were made at all hours of the day. Ten families were sufficiently interested to have cottage meetings the whole of the four weeks.

As a result of this emphasis period and church school activity, there were three baptisms on February 9 (at which service one of the younger priests officiated) and quite a number of good contacts.

Across the Desk

OF THE FIRST PRESIDENCY

From Charles V. Graham, President of Center Stake:

We felt that we should inform you that on Sunday, January 26, members of the Ridgewood congregation started meeting at the Blue Ridge Church at 8 a.m., using the building from 8 to 9:15 a.m., for regular church services. They will also use the building on Wednesday evening for their prayer meetings. The Ridgewood people are happy over this opportunity, and I am sure that they are going to go ahead and raise money very rapidly in order to get together funds to build a church on the church site which was purchased for this purpose on Blue Ridge just south of New 40 Highway.

We also met on Wednesday evening, January 29, at Spring Branch Church and organized the Far View Heights congregation. These people will meet regularly in the Spring Branch Church on Sunday mornings at 8:00 a.m. They are also having separate prayer meetings on Wednesday evenings. I might add that some of the men who are working for Andes and Roberts Construction Company have volunteered to build a house on the lot which was purchased in Far View Heights. We have sufficient money to rough the house in but not to complete it. The members will meet at Spring Branch until they have raised sufficient funds to complete the interior of the house. I am quite sure they will be able to do this in the year ahead.

Apostle E. J. Gleazer has just concluded a very successful missionary series at Louisville, Kentucky. In a letter to the First Presidency he says:

A series of meetings which we just concluded in Louisville was one of the best experiences that I have ever had. The brethren had made preparation for

The Saints' Herald

Vol. 105 March 3, 1958 No. 9

EDITORS: The First Presidency: Israel A. Smith, F. Henry Edwards, W. Wallace Smith. ASSISTANTS: Chris B. Hartshorn, Managing Editor; Naomi Russell, Assistant Editor; Paul A. Wellington, Assistant Editor; Roger Yarrington, Assistant Editor; Audrey Stub-

bart, Copy Editor; and Leonard J. Lea, Contributing Editor. BUSINESS MANAGER, Kenneth L. Graham.

The Saints' Herald is the official publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, with headquarters at The Auditorium, Independence, Missouri, and is issued through the offices of Herald Publishing House, 103 South Osage Street, Independence, Missouri.

Herald editors are not responsible for the views and opinions expressed in articles or communications other than those of editorial authorship.

Entered as second-class matter at the post office at Independence, Missouri, under Act of March 3, 1879. Issued weekly at Independence, Missouri, except daily during the biennial General Conference. Price, $4.00 per year in advance in the U.S.A., its territories and possessions; Canada, $4.25 per year; other countries, $5.00 per year. Notice of a change of address must be given three weeks ahead of the date that it is to become effective. Accepted for mailing at the special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917, authorized July 21, 1921. Printed in the United States of America.

Which Road?

By Arthur E. Dempsey

One church is as good as another. Just take your choice. They are all headed for the same place anyway, so what's the difference?

All roads lead to heaven so why be so particular?

The Church of Christ includes all the churches which acknowledge Jesus Christ to be the Savior of all who will accept him.

No church is needed at all. Just accept Jesus Christ as your personal Savior, and you are saved.

SUCH ARE THE VIEWS commonly expressed today in so-called Christendom. Seventy-five years or more ago, these expressions would have engendered much debate and controversy. But this is a day of tolerance and broad-mindedness, so the tendency of many professed believers in Jesus Christ is to lock arms and go tramping down the broad path of least resistance (as far as Christ's doctrines are concerned) and oppose nothing except that which might do damage to certain man-made conceptions.

We may rightly be thankful that, generally speaking, there is more tolerance and fair thinking today than in former years. But when we see this desirable condition accompanied by a refusal to search deeply for the real truths of the full gospel of Jesus Christ, then we are saddened by the realization that only those comparatively few who diligently seek all truth and are willing to pay the price are going to fully justify the time allotted to them in this life.

History reveals that in former years it wasn't unusual for a number of denominational groups to combine in camp meeting services, at the end of which the converts would be more or less divided between them. This process was often productive of sharp and bitter interdenominational repercussions and showed plainly how much thicker the wall was between the various denominations than the converts had been allowed to see.

Today that wall is thinner, but it is still there, notwithstanding various attempts to camouflage it. Witness efforts in recent years to combine certain denominations, only to discover at the last moment that certain fixed tenets were not to be surrendered under any circumstances. Yes, the wall is still there and in good order as a real divider.

WHAT A PARADOX is thus presented! Who can explain it away? The idea seems to be "Of course they all are headed for the same place but only ours is really sure to get there." What an inducement to shrug the whole thing off with a "What's the use?" or "The whole thing seems senseless."

Yet the sincere and earnest seeker after the truth will not permit even this confusion to turn him to one side. Early explorers met just as much confusion in their efforts to find the object of their search. But they drove ahead according to their best judgment, and eventually their goals were reached; the errors that stood in their way were dissipated as fog before the morning sun. That which they sought was to them worth as much as life itself, and they were willing to pay the price in terms of ridicule, opposition of all kinds, suffering, and even death if necessary.

THE GREAT CREATOR and lover of man has endowed him with a certain amount of intelligence: "There is a spirit in man; and the inspiration of the Almighty giveth them understanding" (Job 32: 8). This intelligence helps us to see, for one thing, that God expects us to rightly use whatever attributes he has given us. But our native intelligence is not enough, for our Lord said, "Search the Scriptures; for in them ye think ye have eternal life; and they are they which testify of me" (John 5: 39).

Remember how the Master himself rested his whole defense against Satan in the wilderness on the written word. "It is written" accompanied his answer to each evil suggestion (Matthew 4: 1-11). And again, in the case of the lawyer who would trap him (Luke 10: 25, 26) his answer began thus, "What is written in the law? how readest thou?" Thus we see the importance of using whatever powers God has given us and also searching the Scriptures as did the people of Berea who won Paul's commendation for so doing (Acts 17: 10, 11).

BUT is this all? Turn to Acts 8: 27-39 and you will find the case of an intelligent man of great authority who read the Scriptures but was still unable to find what he sought. This man used his intelligence and searched the Scriptures but saw that more light was needed. God answered his need by sending his servant to add the needed light: "Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you; for everyone that asketh, receiveth; and he that seeketh, findeth; and to him that knocketh it shall be opened" (Matthew 7: 7, 8).

All light was not yet given in the Scriptures, even in the days of the early apostles, yet that man who diligently uses all resources in his power, such as intelligence and the Scriptures, and then finds the need not fully met but feels his soul hungering for still more light and truth from his heavenly Father can find direction in the counsel: "If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, that giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not; and it shall be given him. But let him ask in faith, nothing wavering, for he that wavereth is like a wave of the sea driven with the wind and tossed. For let not that man think that he shall receive any thing of the Lord" (James 1: 5-7).

WHAT ABOUT THIS confusion regarding the churches of today? They all profess belief in the Bible as being holy Scripture. What does the Bible say? "How readest thou?" Jesus said, "I will build my church" (Matthew 16: 18). He said this in a day when the people with whom he lived and labored were content with their own religion even though it was split up into several sects. Why didn't he accept them? Why go to all the labor and trouble to set up an entirely new organization over the natural opposition to all "new" ideas (according to human nature) and against the especially bitter opposition of those whose profession was jeopardized thereby. Particularly we think of the priests of the day who, indeed, finally succeeded in engineering the details of that fiendish plot which resulted in the death of him who came to save them. Intelligence says there must have been a special need for a new church to exact so high a price!

IT WAS when John's disciples by their questions indicated that Jesus' disciples should follow the demands of the established "law" or the Jewish church of the day that Jesus made the remark regarding "new wine into old bottles," and "a piece of new cloth unto an old garment" (Matthew 9: 14-17), thus indicating that the old organization could not suffice for his work. Yet he said, "Think not that I am come to destroy the law, or the prophets: I am not come to destroy, but to fulfill" (Matthew 5: 17). The record shows that he approved the good in the law (Matthew 5: 18) but showed its insufficiency (Matthew 5: 20-48). He observed the various celebrations of "the law" until his death when the "veil of the temple was rent" and "the graves were opened" (Matthew 27: 51-53). This is believed to have marked the fulfillment of the law and rejection of the Jews. Then came the resurrection of Christ, his ministry to his immediate followers and apostles, the "great commission," the endowment of power at Pentecost, and the launching of the church of Christ into its mission to all the world.

In the face of all these mighty events, who can say that he built no church nor needed any? The church was not an end in itself but a means to an end. "The great commission" (Mark 16: 15-20) required for its execution an organization called the church. That commission is not yet consummated, nor will it be until the end of the world. Humanity is still weak and ignorant of many life-giving truths; the powers of the early church of Christ are needed today as much as ever they were. God's love for humanity is still as great as ever. He does not change (Malachi 3: 6; James 1: 17). Neither do the needs of humanity in general.

Elder A. E. Dempsey

VERY BRIEFLY we have reviewed the attitude of our Lord toward the confused creeds of the people to whom he came—a people who believed in the one and only living God; whose sacred Scriptures taught them to expect him to come, but who had become divided and failed to recognize their Lord when he did appear. Even to this day they still look for him in the form of a great leader who shall openly exert his might to set them up in the highest niche among all the nations of the earth. How could Jesus develop his work through any organization so charged with error and the traditions of men?

Christendom today does not question the need of Jesus to establish his own church during his days on the earth, but it fails to note that the need for Christ's own church to be established in these latter days is just as great as it was then—and largely for the same reasons. Our Lord chose for his workers and leaders simple and rugged men. They were men who were not so steeped in the traditions of their day that they could not unlearn them thoroughly enough to accept the simple and plain precepts of the gospel and the special powers that go with them. They were men who, instead of trying to explain away and rationalize their miraculous experiences in the gospel work, would stand up boldly, face the whole world, and say, "We saw with our own eyes and we heard with our own ears and we know of a surety that these things are true."

THIS NEED FOR the true church of Christ does not mean that the rest of Christendom has not done a great deal of good. Collectively the influence of all sects and denominations has been good for this nation and the world at large. Notwithstanding the imperfections so easily detected in Christendom in general, it is a fact that those fortunate enough to be living under the Christian influence enjoy higher living standards materially and morally and have more enlightened liberty than any other people under the sun. These blessings have come through the organized effort of people of good will. Let him who boasts that he does not need to belong to any church to live as good a life as any member ask himself if such a thing would be possible if he were living behind the iron curtain or in paganism or savagery which enforces compliance with its heathen customs and rituals. Thanks to the general influence of the churches around him, whose invitation to membership he spurns, he can live a good life outside the churches. But he is in a measure indebted to them and therefore is really obligated morally to their support. All these churches sing praises to God, read the Scriptures, teach good moral principles, promote many good works in their communities, and seek to influence others in such good works. Are they not entitled to credit for these good works, and is it not commendable to be engaged in them?

But if these good works are the sole aim of the searcher for a better way of life, then indeed it matters little which church he joins. Those who seek all these things and more, too, and will be satisfied with nothing less than the very apex of godly progress must go still further in their search. They must be like the rich young man (Mark 10: 22) who performed many good works but felt these were not enough; but, unlike him, they must be determined to pay any price to be in full accord with God. They must feel that to follow Jesus fully they must not only do the good works listed in the Scriptures but experience the powers of the "faith once delivered to the saints" (Jude 1: 3). The true searchers for the church of Christ will examine any church that claims to have all the officers and gifts and powers as set up originally by our Lord and his apostles in days of old.

It is useless to examine the tenets and beliefs of any church which not only does not claim to be the church of Christ today but also was not founded with that specific claim.

TO SUM it up:

Is your chief interest in life to exist according to your own natural inclinations, to take the line of least resistance, favor those who favor you, and let the next life take care of itself? Then don't bother to join any church unless you feel it might bring you some social pleasures.

Do you love good works of certain kinds, enjoy working with people generally, admire the worship of God in song and prayer and sermon, love to help others to live better and avoid the baser things of life? Then join any church if your conscience is clear about it. You will have your reward.

DO you love the previously mentioned good things but honestly seek more than these? Does your soul yearn for all truth? Do you desire the full companionship of Jesus and seek to know his desires for you in this life? Do you want to join with those who welcome every gift of power that God wants to bestow on his people today as he did in former days? Do you dare believe that God wants a people to follow wherever he desires to lead them on this earth? In short, do you desire to identify yourself with a people who find the true gospel to be the only way of life that brings sense and proportion to this life and assurance concerning the next stage of existence? Then search for the true church of Christ!

It will be found among that limited number of churches which claim to be his own. To find his true church then read the Scriptures, pray earnestly for light according to the directions in the written word, and as surely as Philip was directed to the eunuch, the Lord will enlighten you in his own time and in his own way.

The Dual Citizen

The elder should be a dual citizen. He should be a citizen of the divine state and the earthly kingdoms. Somehow he should sense within himself something "on loan" to his community. To be an "average" citizen and an elder is to cause an injustice toward the "divine calling." To deny that the elder carries additional responsibilities toward developing leadership is also to deny his divine commission.

One of the major responsibilities that befall the elder is to reflect the truth that man lives the "abundant life" only by the code of godly principles. There are no two ways—no code for business separate from one for church, not one pattern for life in the family and another for community relationships.

ELROY E. HANTON

The Inspired Version

AS A MEMBER of the priesthood of the church, I always welcome anything that tends to prove the mission and work of Joseph Smith.

When the English Revised Version of the Bible came out a few years ago I saw in its publication a strong admission that, as claimed by Joseph Smith, the Bible as the world then had it (in the King James Version, at least) was not infallible; that his statement that it "contained the word of God in so far as it was correctly translated" was true and proper. The greater part of modern ecclesiastics now support the idea that the King James Bible contained error.

Several months ago we published something from the pen of Quentin Reynolds about the use of Exodus 22: 18 in the persecution and punishment of witches in the Province of Massachusetts in an early day. Since then our attention has been called to what Dr. F. W. Farrar, one time Dean of Canterbury, said about the word "witch" in his book, The Bible, Its Meaning and Supremacy, published in 1897.

Because it confirms our opinion on the fallibility of the Bible we believe our readers will be interested in Dean Farrar's statement.

Take, again, the case of witchcraft.

We find in Exodus 22, eighteenth verse, "Thou shalt not suffer a witch to live." [Changed to "murderer" in Inspired Version. I.A.S.]

It may be said with truth that the meaning of the Hebrew word rendered "witch" is of uncertain significance, and "sorcerers" and "witches" may merely be regarded by the Mosaic Law as "impious and nefarious impostors." If this had been understood "the history of the Christian church would not have been disgraced by the fatal absurdities of witch trials."

Yet it is plain that in the days of Moses, and for thousands of years afterwards, it was universally believed that human beings might by unlawful means have intercourse with fiends and demons, and use the supernatural power so acquired to the injury of their fellows.

The belief is now all but universally abandoned. All pretensions to witchcraft, and all belief in it, are treated as proofs of ignorant superstition. There is not a court in any civilized and Protestant country which would not cover itself with execration if it executed a woman on the ground of being a witch.

Yet how frightful has been the injustice, how terrible the agony caused to hundreds of thousands of hapless human beings, by so entirely mistaking the true nature and objects of the Bible as to treat that verse of Exodus as though it involved the revelation of a fact and the inculcation of a present duty!

The law as a Jewish law may have been justifiable, or at the lowest excusable. Even if it had roots in ignorance and superstition, the attempt to consult demons, and the malefic practices connected with such an attempt, may, in the more ruthless system of rude days, have deserved death. But to assume that this dubious fragment of old legislation proved the existence of witches as understood in the middle ages, and that God commanded the infliction of death on all poor witches who under the agony of torture confessed to being witches, was, again, a gross misuse of the Bible, a gross misinterpretation of the purposes for which it was intended . . .

In 1484 Pope Innocent VIII sent a Dominican monk as commissioner to extirpate witchcraft. His name was Sprenger, and he was the author of a frightful book on sorcery, which has gained him the name of Malleus Maleficarum. This bull of Pope Innocent VIII—Summis desiderantes (1484)—has the melancholy pre-eminence (except that which commanded the crusades to exterminate the pious Albigenses) of having cost more torrents of innocent blood than any other. Thousands of women, young and old, were terrified and tortured into preposterous confessions, and as they writhed on the rack were prepared to avouch anything. The Jesuits were specially active in these horrible proceedings. Remigius, in his Daemonolatreia (1595), boasted that he had sent nine hundred to death for storm-raising by witchcraft in fifteen years. Seven thousand so-called witches are said to have been burned at Treves; one thousand in a single year at Como; eight hundred at Würzburg.

The growth of knowledge has made it certain that not one of these miserable victims can have been guilty of the crimes laid to their charge by blundering terror and deadly superstition.

Sir Matthew Hale in 1665 said to an English jury who condemned two poor wretches to be burnt that there were such things as witches he made no doubt at all, for first the Scriptures had affirmed so much.

Wesley said that to give up witchcraft was to give up the Bible. The belief in witchcraft is absolutely dead, and yet to Christian hearts the Bible is as infinitely dear as it ever was. We disbelieve in witches, but can still say of the Bible, with Sir Matthew Hale, "It is a book full of wisdom, and will make you wise to eternal life," and with Wesley that therein God teaches us the way to heaven.

WANTED:

New Youth Camp Leaders

CHURCH MEMBERS from "nineteen to ninety" are finding a new area of service while gaining a new concept of the meaning of the phrase, "the fellowship of the Saints," as they volunteer to spend part of their vacation as leaders in our increasing number of church youth camps. The rapid increase in our number of camps calls for a continually new supply of leaders experienced or inexperienced.

All youth camps need some new leaders every season to assure a balance of wholesome adventure and spiritual growth. The first opportunity to break into the youth camp leadership field lies in the camping program of one's own district or stake. Persons interested are encouraged to see the camp director or members of the camp committee (their names will be supplied gladly by district and stake officers).

In addition, each year new camps arise which must be completely staffed and old camps find vacancies in hard-to-fill staff positions. This means they must often look beyond their own geographic area for leaders with the necessary skills to assure an adventurous yet safe and spiritually profitable experience for the campers. To provide a well-balanced camp staff, directors are constantly on the lookout for mature persons to fill the difficult niches, and the Youth Camping Office each year receive a number of requests for information as to the source of such leadership.

Camp Leader's Interest Blank

To help meet this need the Youth Camping Office has developed a Camp Leader's Interest Blank which quickly reveals essential information as to qualifications and distinct camp skills. Anyone nineteen years or older—the more mature the better—inexperienced or experienced, with an interest in camping is invited to write to the director of Youth Camping, the Auditorium, Independence, Missouri, for the Camp Leader's Interest Blank to fill out and return. This pertinent information is then shared with camp directors throughout the church who can be expected to extend an invitation or letter of inquiry to those who seem to meet their needs. Individuals are always free, of course, to write directly to camps listed in the Saints' Herald.

While the services of our camp leaders are almost always given voluntarily in return only for food and lodging during the week, when unusual distances or other circumstances are involved the question has to be worked out regarding who shall pay the necessary travel expenses, and so forth. In some instances camps are able and willing to make modest expense allowances to leaders who find it difficult or impossible to give their services otherwise, but this is not the rule.

Qualifications in Demand

Persons most in demand and hardest to find include experienced water-front program directors with Red Cross or equivalent training, instructors and leaders in outdoor camping, several areas of nature lore and handcraft, recreation leaders, and mature unit counselors.

On the administrative side, good cooks who can volunteer their time and help provide quality foods essential to a happy camp are always in demand. Men who can serve as business managers and who can give the time necessary to do the running about, keeping the larder full and the camp supplied with its endless needs while still making the books balance—can also render a most appreciated service. In harmony with the policy of the First Presidency to look increasingly to our trained volunteers to handle camps there continues also to be need for trained, experienced, mature men and women to lead our youth camps as camp directors or coordinators and as program directors.

Spiritual Ministry Too

On the spiritual side, though all counselors are selected for the contribution they can make to the Zionite atmosphere of the camp, each camp nevertheless requires one or two specialists in ministry and missionary work. There are morning devotions to be made meaningful, daily counseling, campfire closing periods with deep spiritual implications, at least one daily general class with discussions on some phase of our religious beliefs or responsibilities, and the all-important distinctive camp fellowship services which are blessed so often by the Spirit of God. None of these just happen. They come about through the preparation and consecration of sensitive leaders.

In every camp, too, there are on the average of seven young people who have not made their decision for baptism into the Church of Jesus Christ, who, in addition to the love and attention received through the general camp program and fellowship, need the counseling of missionary-minded leaders who can satisfy their questions and encourage the movement they feel in camp toward the church.

A Wide-open Future

Possibilities in our youth camps will probably never be exhausted. These are continually being explored as door after door is found and opened to new experiences in physical, mental, and spiritual adventure. "The fellowship of the Saints" becomes real in camp as it does in reunions. To young people and their leaders alike, there are lessons to be learned in camp for application in building a sweeter fellowship in branches, congregations, districts, and stakes. There are experiences to be sought, both by the individual and by the group, which are best demonstrated in youth camps. Today these particular experiences are available not only to the young people but to those adults who genuinely love both God and their fellow man and who are willing to qualify to make a distinctive contribution to our youth camps.

Build a Shrine, Save a Life

THE minister listened patiently and intently as the young woman poured out an account of the events that had driven her to her knees in repentance and lifted her to new heights of hope.

The tears she shed during the interview were expressions of remorse but of expectant joy, too. Wrongdoing was involved, and she frankly acknowledged it. She had compromised the lofty standards established in her life through strong family ties and cultivated devotion and allegiance to gospel principles. In short, she had yielded to the humanness that besets every person; she was led away.

But she came back. Her confession disclosed that something marvelous had happened to her to re-focus the principles. What was it? Perhaps a small thing, but indeed significant—she beheld a shrine. It was the Auditorium.

This lovely young woman had been away from the Center Place for a number of months, during which time her problem encompassed her. Upon returning, she drove past the headquarters building of the church. A glimpse of the dome reaching toward heaven from firm foundations incited in her a vision of righteousness. So overwhelming was it she could not overcome it or reject its implications. It indelibly registered on her consciousness what was required of her. She was “driven to her knees.”

Following the interview with the minister, she began the difficult task of unraveling the maze of circumstances that comprised her problem. It wasn't easy, but it was done; she was lifted to new heights of hope. She received a rich testimony of the forgiving nature of God. She has been restored to the better person.

Without doubt, the key to the comeback was the Auditorium. While it is often considered just a building, in this case it was a shrine. It measured up to the Webster definition: “A place or object hallowed by its associations.”

Much has been rightly said about the physical needs of a growing church. Of course we need the expanded facilities provided by a finished headquarters building. Because we are a gathering people, we need a gathering place. The list is long with practical reasons why the Auditorium fund drive deserves our sacrificial support.

But there are premises which go quite beneath and beyond the physical requirements. To many, this structure is truly an “ensign on a hill.” It calls forth from many of our people an expression of saintliness which is indeed godliness. It stands as a stately affirmation that thousands of good men and women have considered our mission worthy of self-sacrifice. Its towering strength points us toward other noble ventures and renders assurance of success.

With all this, perhaps its most important function is to inspire the troubled heart. A perplexed young woman found it doing just that; others agree. If so, the Auditorium performs a godly mission.

If money can help build a shrine to save a life, we ought to give it eagerly.

THE FIRST PRESIDENCY

AUDITORIUM DAY, MARCH 9

$237,505 is needed

John W. Blackstock

WHEN one looks back and considers writing about spiritual experiences he soon realizes that many of them are in some way related. I am sure that the restraining influence a praying mother had on me made it possible for the Lord to reach me and bring me into the church. While it is true that at times I wandered far from her teachings, her influence was such that anything I shall ever be, she shall have her part in it.

I cannot overlook the help and encouragement that has been constant for more than a quarter of a century from my wife. Who could ever know what a good woman contributes to a man's life and ministry? What spiritual ramifications there are when she always knows her husband is equal to the task! What help there is when her faith in the purposes of the church never wavers! But if one is to be a disciple of Christ there must come those times when he stands in the very presence of divinity. He must voice a strong testimony, not merely an echo of what others have experienced in the dim, distant past. He must feel the impact of the Holy Spirit in such measure that the whole course of his life is changed. It is of such an experience I now write.

In the early thirties, with my wife and two older girls, I moved from northern Iowa back to our home town of Chariton, Iowa. The branch there had earlier been a thriving one. By now several coal mines had closed down. The depression was upon us. As a result many of the Saints had moved away. The membership was then perhaps less than half of what it had been. The church building had been neglected. It was sadly in need of paint both inside and out.

If thirty-five people showed up for Sunday school we were doing well. There were, of course, less for the eleven o'clock worship. Then there was the usual seven to a dozen out on Sunday evening.

It seemed to me the branch was on a toboggan and going down the incline rapidly. What made it worse, I became convinced that no one was trying to do anything about it. Of course this was not altogether true. However, I became increasingly more dissatisfied with things as they were.

It was the custom that the few who stayed for preaching at eleven moved to the right side of the church. The particular morning I have in mind I did not move to my usual seat. My wife was a little slow in coming from her class of youngsters. She was teaching in the basement, which was even more in need of cleaning than the upstairs. When she came up she suggested we move over with the others. My reply was "I am fed up with this dead place." In amazement she replied, "I never dreamed you would ever feel this way." I replied, "I never expected to either, but that's the way I feel. I am going home." She said, "All right, I'll see you after church."

It was a lovely Sabbath morning. Halfway down the church steps I paused to look at the city park across the street. I remembered that when I was a boy it had been a city dump. It was now a place of beauty. From the park my gaze turned back toward the church building. As far as my eyes were concerned the building was gone. Only the floor and the pews remained. The pews were well filled with people. This I saw as plainly as I see the typewriter before me now. As I gazed a voice spoke to me, and I was enveloped in the Holy Spirit. I would not say this was an audible voice, but it spoke to every intelligent fiber of my being. It said, "Don't go home, my son, for the time will come when I will call you to the holy priesthood of my church. I will use you as an instrument in my hands to build up the work of my own planting in this place. Don't go home."

(Continued on page 19.)

I Had an Experience

Don't Pity Your Pastor's Wife

ONCE I sat in a crowded train beside a girl whom you will be able to picture when I tell you that she had used an eyelash curler, was wearing an ankle bracelet, and was chewing gum as she read True Confession magazine. She proved to be jolly, and we had an animated talk about her job and her boy friends. Then she asked if I had a boy friend. I allowed as how I had, and in fact was married. When she inquired, "What's his line?" I replied that he was studying to be a minister. She looked at me with pity and said, "Oh, you poor kid, no more fun for you, hey?"

I've often thought about her remark, for it expressed the kind of incredulous pity that many lay people feel for a pastor's wife. They sense the limitations her marriage places on her, but they do not realize its singular glories and, in a deep sense, its fun.

A manse marriage is unlike any other. A minister's wife has to share her husband with hordes of people. She may have to sacrifice her own ego needs drastically for the sake of his vocation. And this man is just plain peculiar. Douglas Horton likes to remind young parsons, "It's a terrible thing for a man to fall into the hands of the living God."

It might help laymen to understand their pastor's wife better if we pictured in more detail these three facts which shape her life so singularly.

First, she sees her neighbor's husband docilely trudging home at 5:18 each night, to catch a softball with his son, repair an ailing piece of household equipment, or take everyone out to buy an ice-cream cone. Her spouse, on the other hand, might puff in at 6:28, have to roar off again for a seven o'clock appointment, and while she tries to stuff his overcooked supper into him, he gets two phone calls.

Other husbands work a neat five-day week and spend their week ends cutting the grass, building a terrace, or putting up storm windows. If that gets done around a manse, it's usually done by the wife.

The lowest period of the week for a minister's family is Sunday afternoon. More often than not the wife is marooned without a car and must cope alone with peevish children whose friends, perhaps, have been taken off to the lake by fathers available for such excursions.

She hears labor leaders talk cheerily now about a four-day work week, while her husband continues to put in a crushing seven-day week, often on work so explosively confidential that no one realizes how hard he does work.

She may be on the verge of disintegrating herself, while the man whose shoulder she wants to weep on is off beside a hospital bed, or counseling another couple about its marital difficulties. Or, worst of all—he's at a meeting.

The Domesticated Male

This is against an overwhelming trend in our culture. Last winter, Margaret Mead, in a tirade in the New York Times Magazine, asserted that we are "hamstringing" men, making them "subservient and narrowly domestic." She claims: "Women now . . . have their men where they want them—as dishwashers, baby sitters, companions, and escorts. . . . (Men object) to careers which would take them away from home for long hours, interfere with their family life, be too engrossing, be the kind of work they could not forget when they got home. . . . Today men refuse international jobs because the 'climate of living' for the children will not be admirable; they refuse assignments to public-service committees, where they are sorely needed, because such assignments would spoil their week ends with their families."

Dr. Mead's case is constantly confirmed all around us. I saw a news story, also in the Times, headed "Cut in Civil Flying Laid to Wives." The article quoted an airport official who was noting the stunning drop in the number of private flying licenses. Apparently a lot of men fell in love with flying when they were pilots in the war. They took out private licenses when they were discharged. Now they have let those licenses lapse. The official said, "Their wives want the men around the house on week ends."

I heard a popular song on the radio the other day which went like this: "If you were Chris Columbus back in 1492, America might be discovered but not by you. You'd never sail across the sea to change the world's geography. You'd stay right there close to me in 1492." It was intended as a romantic song.

Political commentators take this trend seriously. In the book, The Coming Caesars, a French political analyst says:

"From the growing feminine ascendancy arose many of the great changes in twentieth-century America: the steady bartering away of precarious freedom for security, the basic conservatism, the idolization of the child, the instinct for the preservation of property, the distrust of originality, the increasing fear of personal risk. . . . The profound impact of this on the political evolution of the United States can never be overestimated."

Would such domesticated homebodies as we see all around us ever have settled the American West, ventured on the Oregon Trail, invented the electric light, split the atom?

As Margaret Mead concludes: "There are gifted . . . and adventurous men and women, people who never stop thinking about what they are doing, people who work eighteen hours a day, people who have to travel into far places and risk not coming back, people who will give and give of themselves in the public good. We need men and women with commitment."

A minister is part of the dwindling adventurous remnant. And his wife would be the last to want to tame him. Having lived with that endlessly giving, tired, driven man, she wants him to continue—free to use his time as a trust from God, free to speak out on social issues even when it makes her tremble, free to be fully a pastor.

Now for the second point, the sacrifice of the manse wife's ego. Kierkegaard has said, "To be a woman is something so strange, so confused, so complicated that only a woman could put up with it."

It's always hard to be a woman. The most brilliant, bitter statement of a woman's dilemma has been made by Simone de Beauvoir in The Second Sex. The title reveals the book's bias. She deals with the problems of the woman who is gifted herself, yet has to be subservient to a man's vocation:

"Man requires her to be wholly his and yet no burden, . . . to establish him in a fixed place on earth and to leave him free, to assume the monotonous daily round and not to bore him, to be always on hand and never importunate. He wants to have her all to himself, and not to belong to her."

Manse Wife's Dilemma

This dilemma is many times multiplied for a minister's wife. This man is under much more pressure than the average, able to give to his spouse fewer of the conventional rewards of a wife. He has an odd position as a public figure, with great ego rewards, as well as great perils.

I am convinced that because the pastor is so busy, he needs, more than most men do, what woman is uniquely able to give. Ashley Montague has written a diverting book called The Natural Superiority of Women, in which he says:

"One of the principal functions of a wife has been . . . offering (her husband) the psychological relief from tension in the only place in which he could find it—the home. . . . One of the age-old functions of woman has been to provide a sympathetic ear into which man could pour his troubles; and woman has always stood by, with the touch of her gentle hands, the calmness, strength, and encouragement of her words, to bring balm . . . to the weary, puzzled, frustrated (male)."

Sloan Wilson, author of The Man in the Gray Flannel Suit, adds to this:

"A friend of mine . . . was serving as president of a small college; planning new programs of study, supervising the construction of several new buildings, raising funds, and coping with the usual stream of complaints, from faculty, students, and alumni. . . . Without a capable wife to screen his speaking and social engagements, keep track of his personal finances, run his house, and take care of his children, he would have been lost. If his wife, who had great executive ability, had suddenly decided to have a career of her own, he would have succumbed from sheer confusion and bewilderment."

I was interested to read recently an interview with the wife of Connecticut's Governor Abraham Ribicoff. She said:

"No sooner had the Governor been elected, than we were deluged by requests from clubs and other organizations, asking the use of the mansion for teas and fund-raising kick-offs. . . . It was really overwhelming. You have no idea. . . . I finally decided: no, we wouldn't do it. . . . There were cries of political suicide. . . . But I think most people understand that the Governor should be able to come to a home and relax, not to a public meeting-place."

I would be ready to guess that behind most effective public figures, there are women like that.

I know that the wife of a great college chapel dean fortified her man magnificently for forty years of masterly cooking by understanding that he, a small man with a prodigious appetite, had an unusual need to come home frequently for hearty snacks with her. I know a blunt wife of a bishop who may have startled her diocese many times but keeps her husband perfectly content because she knows how to keep him chuckling, and thereby gives him relief from being a stately public personage.

Here I must add a point I believe profoundly: a minister's wife has an unusual responsibility, greater than that of most wives, to provide abundantly for her husband's need for affection, love, and understanding. This man who must be an imperturbable hero to so many simply must be a human being with someone. Only his wife can give him the chance to let down completely; only she can accept him without his having to explain himself. That's why I feel that the minister's wife must be extraordinarily tender and sensitive in the intimate association of married life.

Risks of Conscience

The minister needs his wife, too, because his conscience may lead him to dare to be unpopular. It may be a great comfort for her to read P. T. Forsyth. That superb, prophetic preacher, far ahead of his time, was preaching, back at the turn of the century, a kind of theology that speaks directly to our time. As many a pastor reveres Forsyth, reading this author helps the wife to understand her husband when he chooses to preach a thornier theology than his congregation likes to hear.

At one point, Forsyth told an audience of young preachers, "The meaning of Christ's death rouses our shame, self-contempt, and repentance. And we resent . . . being made to feel ashamed of ourselves. . . . A great many people are afraid to come too near to anything that does that for them. That is a frequent reason for not going to church."

And again (imagine a man preaching this in 1910): "People welcome sermons of a more or less psychological kind, which go into the analysis of the soul or of society. They will listen gladly to sermons of character-building, for instance; and in the result they will get to think of nothing but their own character. . . . When a preacher begins preaching the real, objective New Testament gospel, he has raised against him what is now a most fatal accusation . . . he is accused of being a theologian" (from the Work of Christ).

A minister needs his wife's support when, riskily, he preaches what Forsyth describes as "the deep Christianity . . . that which not only searches us but breaks us."

Such a loving, giving, trusting relationship can survive the strains of too much busy-ness, of woman's restlessness, of possible unpopularity, and even the gossip a pastor has to take if he counsels that pretty soprano in the choir.

A "Peculiar" Man

So we come to our final point. This minister is a peculiar man, because the hand of God is on him. Any man of great gifts is difficult. Recently the wife of the conductor Leonard Bernstein said that her husband has been "hard to live with—but what man worth living with isn't? And every now and then he just makes you want to cry, 'Oh, thank you for loving me.'"

What makes a minister hardest of all to live with is that there is a part of him which even his wife, who knows him best, cannot fully share. That is his relationship with God, for a pastor has a strange responsibility to deal with men at the points which affect their eternal destinies.

On Sundays, at the high moment of morning worship, the manse wife looks up at that man for whom just an hour ago she may have been cooking a soft-boiled egg or replacing a broken shoelace. There he is, dear and familiar, but lifted to another dimension by the responsibility he carries. Then all she can do for him is to repeat, as an intercessory prayer for him, those words of Paul, "Unto me, who am less than the least of all saints, is this grace given . . . to make all men see what is the fellowship of the mystery."

—By permission of Presbyterian Life, January 11, 1958.

Home Column

*The Brydges Street Congregation
Establishes "another outpost for the Kingdom"*

New Church opened at London, Ontario

IT was a tribute to "the way they do it in London" when the new Brydges Street Church was opened in London, Ontario, November 10, 1957. The members of both congregations in the city had pooled their efforts and their money in the erection of this new place of worship. The project was characterized by a good spirit of unity and devotion.

This opening of a new church was the result of the work of expansion begun by the branch under the pastorate of Elder Almer Sheehy. In 1948 the branch purchased a large home on the corner of Dundas and Highbury in the east end of the city. With some renovation this building served as the church home for what was to be known as the Highbury congregation.

Soon it became apparent that the building would not be adequate for the needs, nor conducive to the role of the congregation in the area. Consequently, explorations were begun in 1954 toward the securing of a suitable location upon which to build a new church. In December, 1954, lots were purchased at the corner of Brydges and Spruce streets. The Highbury building was sold in 1956.

Plans for the erection of the new church were discussed. A building committee was formed with J. A. MacGregor as chairman and Jack Timbrell, A. G. Renecker, L. E. Shaw, Ronald Richardson, Dr. D. A. Campbell, Dr. E. V. Shute, J. C. Stuart, Tom Timbrell, and Bruce MacGregor as members. The fund-raising committee included as members Tom Timbrell (chairman), A. K. Bennett, Mrs. Jack Lyon, T. B. Richardson, H. G. Scholtzhauer, Neil McLean, and Mrs. E. V. Shute.

Mr. E. H. Hagarty, of the firm of Blackwell and Hagarty, was engaged as architect. Plans were prepared and finally accepted. The Roy James Construction Company, Ltd., did the contracting. The new church began to emerge from the realm of a pleasant dream.

Sod was turned on May 3, 1957. Apostle D. O. Chesworth, missionary in charge of the Great Lakes Mission, was present for the simple but impressive ceremony. Elder John E. MacGregor, a former pastor of the branch and now district evangelist, laid the cornerstone on June 24, 1957.

After meeting for a year and a half in the neighboring Prince Charles School, the former Highbury congregation moved into its new church home and officially became identified as the Brydges Street congregation. With gratitude to God the members met for the opening of the church under the guest ministry of President F. H. Edwards and Bishop Hudson Grundy. Approximately three hundred members and friends shared in these history-making services.

Mayor Ray Dennis of London addressed the large audience, welcoming the congregation as another Christian unit in the community. Also, in a rather unique situation due to the fact that the church building is partly in the city of London and partly in the township of London, Mrs. John Gillies, the Reeve of the Township, also gave a few words of welcome and greeting to the congregation. Expressing his appreciation for the co-operation given him during the planning and constructing of the church, Mr. E. H. Hagarty spoke of his best wishes for the group.

The church is of a modern contemporary design. It is one story with no

The new home of the Brydges Street congregation is of modern contemporary design, featuring practicality without sacrificing beauty basement. Built in the shape of an L, a large and bright fellowship hall forms a part of it. With ten individual classrooms, a well-equipped kitchen, and a combination "cry room" and church office, the building offers some very practical features without sacrificing its beauty or dignity.

Photos courtesy of London Free Press, used by permission.

The narthex is fronted by an attractive door and floor to ceiling windows. The sanctuary, the fellowship hall, and the church office open from this room. The sanctuary, seating approximately two hundred, helps to create a feeling of reverence in the worshipers. Cathedral windows fill one entire side wall. The ceiling is vaulted, and finished with laminated arches. The pulpit, set to one side, is backed by floor to ceiling curved walnut paneling. In the center of the front wall the baptismal font is located. It is elevated and draped when not in use and fronted by a seven-foot Communion table of oak, inlaid with black marble. The choir occupies the right front section of the room, in an alcove fronted by an electric organ. The whole effect is one of beauty, peace, and dignity.

Many special gifts were given to the church, including an electric organ, the sound system, and tile for the sanctuary by T. B. Richardson; the pews by Dr.

City Pastor J. C. Stuart, President F. Henry Edwards, Congregational Pastor Evan Shute, and Bishop Hudson Grundy at opening of the new church.

and Mrs. D. A. Campbell and family; the pulpit, in memory of Owen and Ellen Cambridge by members of their family; the kitchen furnishings by the Richardson family; the marble inlay for pulpit and altar by Dr. and Mrs. E. V. Shute and family; the Communion table, in memory of Ada Henry, by her daughter, Mrs. J. A. Crawford; shrubs for the grounds by Charles Alford; the coat racks by the junior Zion's League; and the offering plates by the senior Zion's League.

With the completion of this church, another outpost of the kingdom has been established. It is with grateful hearts for this blessing that the London Branch moves forward with high hopes for further expansion in this area.

LORNE F. WHITE

Question Time

Any sincere question from our readers will receive consideration from the editors. If it is of general interest, it will be referred to the Question Time panel, and the answer will be printed. The answers are the opinions and interpretations of the panel members signing them and do not commit the Herald nor the church.

Please keep the question short—fifty words or less should be sufficient. Address questions to Herald editors rather than to panel members. Only questions with the contributor's full name (not just initials) and address will receive attention. —Editor.

Question

In the transfiguration of Christ (Matthew 17: 3, 4) what is the meaning of verse four where Peter refers to the three tabernacles—one for Christ, one for Moses, and one for Elias?

W. R.

Missouri

Answer

Usually we can gain light on any particular biblical passage by looking to the original language in which the passage was written. The Greek word translated "tabernacle" here also has the meaning of a tent or abode or dwelling. It seems apparent that Peter was thinking here of the booths or tents such as they were familiar with in the Feast of Tabernacles, which in turn represented the tents in the wilderness where God's worship was carried on (Acts 7: 44). There is also reason to believe that at this period of time the Feast of Tabernacles was marked by enthusiasm over the coming triumph of Isaiah. Peter is suggesting here that the final age is come when the great Feast of Tabernacles is to be celebrated and Moses and Elijah will remain there permanently. He therefore wishes to make abodes suitable for this worship.

The following explanation of Jesus to the disciples shows them that the time has not yet come and they must still go down into the valley in labor and tribulation before the full consummation of the age is realized. Notice, too, that many biblical scholars feel that Moses represents the law while Elijah represents the prophet, and Christ was seen in the midst of them as greater than both, yet fulfilling both. The building of booths or tabernacles would show the feeling of Peter to want to prolong the stay of heavenly visitants, for it was good to be there.

We have somewhat the same feeling today when experiencing a marvelous spiritual feast at reunions or Conference. Many times we would like to prolong our stay at such spiritual mountaintops. We, too, however, must descend to earth again and do the task that is ours in fulfilling His purposes in us.

CECIL R. ETINGER

Golden Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Eli Wilson Patrick of Maysville, Missouri, held open house on the afternoon of December 22 in observance of their fiftieth wedding anniversary. They received many cards and gifts from the friends and relatives who called to congratulate them.

They were married at Hartington, Nebraska, on December 18, 1907, by Reverend F. Druliner of the Methodist Church. Both are now members of the Reorganized Church, and Brother Patrick holds the office of priest.

Eleven children were born to the Patricks; two sons, Charles and George, died in World War II. Those remaining are Mildred Randlett and Henry of Decatur, Nebraska; Fred of Kansas City, Missouri; Frank of Foley, Alabama; Herbert of Boise, Idaho; Gerald of Eudora, Kansas; Vera Millsap of Cameron, Missouri; Glenn of Vista, California; and Naomi Taylor of Maysville. All the children except Frank, who had sickness in the home, attended the celebration. The Patricks also have seventeen grandchildren; three step-grandchildren; and four great-grandchildren.

Briefs

Six Baptisms in Mission

OSCEOLA, MISSOURI.—The mission election was held August 18, with District President Allen Piatt in charge.

Newly elected officers are as follows: Lawrence Beckham, pastor; Myrtle Crowl, solicitor and secretary-treasurer; Forrest Winters, religious education; Donna Winters, women's leader; Bud and Frances Wicker, young people's leaders; Maggie C. Barmore, publicity and music; June Cropsy, auditor; Howard Kile, recorder; Ethel Amick, Orval Mann, and Howard Kile, building committee.

On September 15, there were six baptisms, and Forrest Winters was ordained a priest on September 8.

Recent speakers have been L. C. Allen of Nevada, Missouri; LeRoy Hancock, Butler, Missouri; and Bill Hayes, Rich Hill, Missouri.

The women's group is very active. In December they sponsored a bake sale, chili and hamburger supper, and rummage sale, which netted $89.70.—Reported by MAGGIE C. BARMORE

Baptisms and Ordination

SPRINGFIELD, ILLINOIS.—The election of officers for the year 1957-1958 was held on September 5. Elder J. E. Williams was sustained in the office of pastor, and Lloyd Elrod as branch treasurer. Helen Jones was elected to the office of women's director, Mary Elrod as church school director, F. L. McKane, Jr., as secretary, and Catherine France as music director.

Edward Bryan McKane was blessed on September 8. District Missionary John Gorker held a series of cottage and preaching services September 16-27. Results of these meetings are still being realized. During the series Michael Fowler, Gary Simmons, Billy and Larry Holvey were baptized.

On October 6, Brother F. L. McKane, Jr., was ordained an elder by Elders Brockway and Gorker of Decatur, Illinois. The baptisms of George Shaffer on October 13 and James Jewell on December 15 united two more families in the church, bringing the total baptisms for 1957 to six.—Reported by MARY ELROD

Three Baptisms

ENID, OKLAHOMA.—On August 20, the annual business meeting was held, with Brother D. C. Feely, Western Oklahoma District president, in charge.

Jack Glover's call to the priesthood was accepted unanimously. The following officers were elected: Ralph L. Graves, branch president; D. C. Feely and Jack Glover, counselors; Floyd Swinnea, church school director; Roy Bingham, assistant; Ida Feely, women's supervisor; Norma Britton, music supervisor; Roy and Gerry Bingham, youth and children's supervisors; Gerry Bingham, publicity; Carolyn Gault, historian; Velma Graves, solicitor and treasurer; Harriet Womack, secretary; Glen Gibbon, Harry Adamson, Jack Glover, and Ray Bingham, finance committee.

Baptismal services were held December 17, following two weeks of endeavor by Missionary Herbert Lynn. Bobby Kay James, Jan Bond, and her daughter Pamela were baptized.—Reported by BRANCH REPORTER

Host to Youth Conference

EUGENE - SPRINGFIELD, OREGON. — Bishop T. A. Beck met with District President Robert Seeley and the priesthood in Eugene on December 1, in the interest of stewardship, introducing the abundant life program which is being continued. The film "The Center Place" was presented December 8, after which Brother Beck spoke.

A Christmas program was held the evening of December 22. There was good reception of the Messiah broadcast over station KERG.

The branch was host to the annual youth conference in Eugene, December 27-29. During the final service Elvis Eugene Barnhart was ordained a priest by Elder Ephraim Barnhart and Elder J. C. Ford. Evangelist Miles Whiting preached the sermon that followed.

Eugene Barnhart, serving in the United States Army, was home on leave and showed colored slides at the New Year's party at the church. He has been in the area around Japan. After refreshments, Elders J. C. Ford, Robert Seeley, and Ephraim Barnhart conducted a worship service.—Reported by MYRTLE JACOBY

Missionary Series Held

DONORA, PENNSYLVANIA.—Evangelist Samuel Zonker of Wellsburg, West Virginia, held missionary services November 10-18. The average attendance was ninety-six. Wilda Torhan was in charge of music.

The women's department was host to the women of Pittsburgh District for a Christmas party the evening of December 12.—Reported by MRS. VIRGINIA HUGHES

Homecoming Service

LACHINE, MICHIGAN. District President Merle Harford held a two weeks' series October 27 - November 10. He gave slide lectures on the story of the Restoration.

A home-coming service was held November 10. Esther Manning and Fred Lorsch were honored at the morning service, being the only two charter members left in the branch, which was organized November 8, 1911. Brother Harford and Elder Ernest Burt were guest speakers. The noon meal was served at the home of Irene Jacobs.

BIBLE CHALLENGES, Quiz Book No. 1

A quiz book based on persons, places, and events as found in the Old and New Testaments. 25 sets of Bible questions and answers to help cultivate a genuine love for the Bible. Paper-bound; 40 pages. Concordia Publishing House

50c

BIBLE CHALLENGES, Quiz Book No. 2

Based on geography of Bible lands, 23 sets of questions and answers to be used in Bible classes, at home, and by youth groups in their activities. Paper-bound; 37 pages. Concordia Publishing House

50c

Box 477
Independence, Missouri

Box 382
Guelph, Ontario, Canada

The annual chicken dinner was held November 23, with the profit of $219.00 going to the building fund.

Three babies were blessed October 27. They were Arnold Guy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Christensen, blessed by Elder Smith and Elder Guy; Daniel Karl, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Hansen, blessed by Elder Anderson and Elder Smith; and David Blaine, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Anderson, blessed by Elder Guy and Elder Smith.

Before Christmas, the church was redecorated inside by the members.—Reported by IRENE COLE

Church News

CRESTON, IOWA.—Seventies Virgil E. Billings and George Njeim conducted a missionary series from January 5 to 17 with Brother Njeim bringing the sermons. A number of nonmembers were in attendance. Elder Billings is continuing to spend a part of each week for six weeks in the Creston area, preaching each Sunday evening. A baptismal service is scheduled for February 2.

Evangelist James A. Thomas spent a week of December visiting and ministering to the Creston congregation. Mrs. Thomas accompanied him.

Cindy Lynn, little adopted daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Schell, was blessed on the morning of January 22.

Louann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kellogg of Arlington, Texas, was blessed December 29.

The women's department, under the leadership of Mrs. Al McMichael, met for its annual Christmas party and worship in December, bringing as a special sacrifice offering the sum of $179.00.

Caroling was a part of the Christmas activities in the Zion's Leagues and Z. B. A.'s.

The children's department presented a service of worship on the Sunday morning before Christmas, an annual event which is its special gift to the congregation.—Reported by RUBY STRAND

Officers Named

EAST JORDAN, MICHIGAN.—The annual business meeting was held September 24, with Elder Merle Harford, district president, in charge. The following officers were elected: Elder Fred Horton, pastor; Nancy Olson, secretary; Gerald Olson, treasurer; Ray Olson, church school director; Elaine Dvoracek, director of music; Elizabeth Sloap, director of youth; Julia Rude, women's leader; Gladys McKinnon, historian; Ray Olson, custodian; Shirley Olson, librarian; Goldie Whiteford, reporter; Vern Whiteford, solicitor; Lucretia Frost, adult supervisor; Natalie Whiteford, young adult supervisor; Bernice Carey, recorder.

The women have had a ham supper, bazaar, and rummage sale, to help pay for a roof on the dining room and new cement steps.

A two weeks' series was held by Brother Harford in December. The lectures and slides were on the Restoration. They were well attended.—Reported by GOLDIE WHITEFORD

All Assist in Missionary Effort

AURORA, ILLINOIS.—Seventy A. M. Pelletier held a successful two weeks' missionary series at the church. Saints from the Chicago churches, Lombard, Plano, Deselm, and DeKalb branches also helped swell the daily attendance over one hundred. Brother Pelletier's challenge resulted in five baptisms. Matthew Riva, Lurley Lovell, Ronald Wiggins, R. C. Shaver, and Mary Condon were baptized by Don Newcom, Lloyd Cleveland, and Brother Pelletier. Roger Ruggles was baptized two weeks earlier and confirmed by Elders A. J. Settles and Lloyd Cleveland.

The branch was divided into six different spiritual action committees, under the leadership of six different priesthood members, Lloyd Cleveland, Donald Lusha, A. J. Settles, Don Newcom, Vernon Pettit, and Robert Birdsall. Members of these committees were assigned to homes to visit, do publicity work, and strengthen the work in Aurora. Starting in early December, these workers deserve credit for attendance and interest shown.—Reported by CHARLES A. REEDY

Women Raise Funds to Build

ANDERSON, CALIFORNIA.—December 13-14 the women's department held a bazaar, rummage sale, and food sale at Red Bluff. Proceeds were $212.00 net, which was added to the building fund. The Lassen and Emma Circles combined for the effort.

Visiting speakers during December and January have been Elder Dean Hintz of Chico, Elder Walter Menzies, pastor of Yuba City Branch, and Elder Herbert Hinton of Santa Rosa Branch.

Presiding Elder Homer D. Gatchett has worked hard among the Saints of the area. He has held cottage meetings and visited homes. He is now resigning, as he has accepted a position in southern California, where he will move.—Reported by GLADYS MCCARTY

Bible Study Course

BALTIMORE, MARYLAND.—A "Witness for Christ" program was begun the first Sunday in September. This was a Bible marking course of lessons to help prepare members for better missionary endeavors.

Seventy Loyd Adams conducted a missionary series November 3-10. Apostle Arthur Oakman and Apostle Don Lents held a service prior to Brother Oakman's departure for Europe.

A business meeting was held November 24. A. A. Mehlich was sustained as pastor, Becky Mehlich as secretary, John Edwards as treasurer, Gil Vitek as church school director, and Bob Vitek as assistant. Beverly Vitek is director of music, Wonza Simmers is publicity agent and historian, and David Mehlich solicitor. Jack Keller and Paul Edwards are the board of trustees. Lily Vitek, Wonza Simmers, Jessie Glick, Clyde Workman, and Laura Mae Jones are the ways and means committee members.

Brother Zepp came from Washington on Saturdays to assist with interior decoration in the church.

Lettie May Edwards, "Mother of the branch," died January 5. She was the wife of A. H. D. Edwards.—Reported by WONZA SIMMERS

Young Adults Baptized Following Series

BAYOU LA BATRE, ALABAMA.—An evangelistic series of services was held January 5-12, with Missionary F. LaPointe in charge. The baptismal service was held January 12, for three young adults. They were Dolly Childress, Mrs. Vernon Steele, and Mr. Elwood Ladnier. A confirmation service followed, and Mrs. Steele's four small children, Edmund, Danny Rae, Kathy, and Deborah, were blessed. Elders Delbert and Alma Tillman assisted Brother LaPointe with these two ordinances.

A general class was held at the church school hour on January 12, to discuss those points that were not clear in several minds. There was much discussion, and a good spirit prevailed.—Reported by MRS. HARVEY NELSON

President Edwards Is Guest

WALNUT CREEK, CALIFORNIA.—President F. Henry Edwards was the speaker November 17. A potluck luncheon was served after services. District President Fred Banta and members from Pittsburg mission were other guests.

The Zion's League, under the leadership of Pauline White, has enjoyed many activities in recent months and has a full schedule ahead.

Gerald L. Giles, pastor, is back on the job after a very serious illness.

The film "The Center Place" was shown to the group in January.—Reported by MONNIE MINEAR

Whosoever Repenteth

by L. Wayne Updike

$1.75

Now in book form . . . a series of lectures delivered to the Melchisedec priesthood in Independence, Missouri, in January, 1957. Vital, concise material on the basic principle leading to salvation—repentance.

Shipping charges extra. If you live in Missouri, add 2% sales tax.

Box 477
Independence, Missouri

Box 382
Guelph, Ontario, Canada

Baby Blessed

WILLOUGHBY, OHIO.—Michael Allan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Allan DeBolt, was blessed at Kirtland on January 26 by Elders Earl R. Curry and Jack Sanford.—Reported by ALMA O. CURRY

Baptism Reported

MYRTLE POINT, OREGON.—Ted Boatman was baptized by Dean Mason on January 12, and confirmed at eleven o'clock service by Elder Thomas Coffman.—Reported by MRS. GLEN DAVENPORT

Money for the Building Fund

KANSAS CITY, KANSAS.—The bazaar and bake sales sponsored by the Malvern Hill women's department and the young adults brought nearly $250.00 for the building fund.

Clarence Sherman is the new leader of Grandview Zion's League.

The Zioner Group, under the leadership of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Binns, will meet the first and third Sunday evenings of the month to review the membership manual.

Warren Gose, formerly of Arkansas City, Kansas, is now a member of Malvern Hill congregation.

The Boy Scout troop is growing under direction of Lester Comer.—Reported by DEB LLOYD

Eight Baptisms

OSAGE-NEWCASTLE, WYOMING. — Eight members were added by baptism during the year. Inspiring services were conducted by Seventy Luther S. Troyer in February, resulting in five baptisms: Sue Ann and Joan Prothero, Mrs. Fanny Wolfe, and DelRae and Robert Walkup. They were confirmed by Elder Troyer and Elder Forrest Julius. Each was presented a Church Member's Manual.

Dalene Snearly added her membership to the mission in June, but was baptized by Elder Paul Landberg at the Odessa, Missouri, church. She was confirmed by Elder H. L. Hartshorn, a great-uncle, and Elder P. L. Hiles.

Tragedy struck the Hunt family of Upton, when he was burned and died August 25. On September 15, his wife had their four children blessed.

On the first Sunday in November, Mrs. Melvin Hunt and Harvey Rost were baptized and confirmed by Elder Forrest Julius.—Reported by MRS. DALE SNEARLY

Home-coming Service

YUBA CITY, CALIFORNIA.—The Yuba City Branch had its annual home-coming day, November 17. The men of the priesthood who helped to make the day a success were Missionary Charles Vreeland, Elder Eli Bronson, Elder Dean Hintz, and the local priesthood. The theme for the day was "Our Responsibilities" (toward Christ—his gospel—his church). It was a day of rejoicing and good fellowship, and many were touched by the Spirit of God.

The officers for the ensuing year are as follows: pastor, Walter J. Menzies; counselors, Edward L. Hamilton and Joseph Herbst; church school director and recorder, Marjorie Higgins; women's leader and secretary, Mona Herbst; music director, Anna Mae Carter; treasurer, James Hale; solicitor, Joseph Taylor; book steward, Edna Filer; historian and auditor, Harriet Hamilton; youth leader, John Peryea; finance committee, Joseph Taylor, John Peryea, and Edwin La Brue.

Julie Ann, infant daughter of Joseph and Mona Herbst, was blessed on December 1 by Elder Walter J. Menzies and Elder Edward L. Hamilton.—Reported by JESSIE W. MENZIES

Recent Ordinations

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN.—December 8, several men were ordained to the priesthood: Gerald Harvey, Arthur Osborne, and Roger Gildner to the office of deacon; Theodore Mockerman and Almer Lee Dieterman to the office of priest; and Eugene Jeffreys and William Griffin to the office of elder.

David Lee, infant son of David and Linda Johnson (formerly Dodds), was blessed November 24 by his maternal grandfather, Delbert Dodds, and his great-grandfather, George Lalone. Timothy Scott, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Berkey, was blessed December 8 by Brothers Dodds and Garnett Smith.

In December, a candlelight Communion service was held the first Sunday. There was an evening of caroling, and the choir sang "The Saviour Is Born" and also other selections at each Sunday service. The junior church gave a program.—Reported by LAVINA HOOPER

Recent Church Improvements

FRANKFORT BRANCH, ARKANSAW, WISCONSIN.—District President Wesley Elvin was present for the business meeting August 19. The following were elected: Clive Metcalf, branch president; William Holden and Graydon Gano, counselors; Graydon Gano, church school director; Marie Rathke, secretary and recorder; William Holden, treasurer; Olive Gano, music director; Kathryn Gano, pianist for church school; Joan Brunner, pianist for church; Bernice Kern, youth leader, church school secretary and treasurer; Marie Rathke, assistant; Myrle Supri, women's leader; Della Metcalf, historian; Lyle Supri and Ernie Ericson, auditors; Orrie Brunner, church school assistant.

Della Metcalf is assistant women's leader, and Beryle Brunner is secretary and treasurer. Evelyn Richardson is in charge of the cradle roll kits, and Norma King the sunshine gifts.

Zion's League officers are Daniel Richardson, president; Dick Longsdorf, secretary; Violet Lapean, treasurer. Fourteen attended junior youth camp at Chetek in August. This was perfect attendance. Six attended senior camp, and eleven attended youth retreat at Fargo, North Dakota.

Marlene Brunner entered Graceland College September 4, the fourth from the Brunner family to attend.

Church improvements the past six months are a baptismal font in the basement, a kitchen sink and water heater, a wall gas furnace to heat the basement, and twenty-five new hymnals for the church school. Donated labor and gifts provided the improvements.—Reported by DELLA METCALF

Officers for District

NORTHERN ONTARIO DISTRICT.—The Northern Ontario District was organized October 13, with a representative attendance of over one hundred. Apostle D. O. Chesworth was in charge.

Officers elected for 1958 are Elder Harvey Wagg, district president; Gladys Horsley, secretary and recorder; Elder Albert Kosmack, treasurer; Hugh Grieve, director of religious education; Vernon Gilliam, assistant music director; Roberta Green, director of women; Betty Beaudin, assistant director of women for Manitoulin; Gladys Bolger, assistant director of women for the North; Claire Shepherdson, youth director; Marvin Wickett and Vernon Charlton, auditors; Albert Kosmack and Patrick Bolger, reunion committee; Margaret Davis, historian; Elder Morley Shepherdson, missionary co-ordinator; Graydon Fielder, bishop's agent; Sidney Wilson, nonresident pastor; Patrick Bolger and Andrew Beaudin, counselors.—Reported by GLADYS HORSELEY

Two Baptized

MANITOULIN ISLAND, ONTARIO.—Missionary Glenn E. Johnston made a tour of the island during the month of November. He held services at all four island groups. An all-day service was held November 25 at Little Current for all island Saints. There was an excellent attendance despite hazardous weather. A wonderful spirit pre-

March STRIDE offers . . .

Ten Things to Do, by F. Henry Edwards

Let's Think about Dating, by F. M. McDowell

Happy Dilemma

I Was a Nonmember Husband, by Charles Neff

Steady Dating, by Duane Thomas

Essay on Prayer, by Vere Jameson

Mixed Marriages and the Catholic Church

Sight-seeing Sailor

Touring Kirtland Temple, by Kenneth Green

I See the Accidents, by Jack Babcock

I Am a Social Editor, by Chell Tousley

Lessons I've Learned, by Chris Hartshorn

Yearly subscriptions: U. S. $2.50

Canada $2.75

other countries $3.00

ailed. Brother Johnston preached at the eleven o'clock service. The day's activities closed with a baptismal service when two were baptized. The candidates were from Province Bay and Espanola, Ontario.—Reported by D. M. JOHNSTON

Series in District

CENTRAL ILLINOIS DISTRICT.—President of Seventy Russell F. Ralston was sponsored October 27 through November 17 by the Taylorville, Decatur, and Beardstown Branches. Brother Ralston presented "The Challenge of Christ Today" and spent one week preaching in each group. Several branches and missions of the district furnished music and priesthood support. Special music was prepared each evening by the branch music directors. Each department of the branches worked together with district officers and pastors in advance preparation several weeks before the crusade began. The series required the co-ordination of the whole district.

Following each series, each branch conducted baptismal services. At Taylorville six were baptized; at Decatur, two, one of which was from Danville mission; and at Beardstown six were baptized.

Through November, the district has an increase of forty-seven baptisms for the year.

District President Charles Brockway and his counselors, Deam Ferris and Harold Walker, are working to improve the tithing standings in the district.—Reported by JOHN G. GORKER

Dedication Service

PEORIA, ILLINOIS.—The pulpit furniture in the Peoria church was dedicated in a special service Sunday, December 8.

The furniture consists of a light oak pulpit with three matching rostrum chairs and Communion table. They were gifts to the branch from Elders Raymond Wrigley and William Norris in memory of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene E. Wrigley and Elder and Mrs. William R. Norris. A linen tablecloth for the Communion table was the gift of Mrs. James Norris in honor of her husband, Elder James Norris.

Elder John C. Stiegel, pastor of Rock Island Branch, preached the dedicatory sermon and Elder Louis Hancock, district president, made the acceptance speech.

A baptismal service for eight candidates was held December 27. They were Albert Lee Hankins, Francis William Conlee, Mary June Rhodes, Cecil Freeman Rhodes, Jerry Allen Warren, John Issac Weakley, Nina Lee Plain, and Sandra Darlene Mims. Elders Hankins and Norris baptized these people.

They were confirmed December 29, and officiating elders were Dr. Herbert Dutton, Wilbur Sartwell, Wade Hankins, Raymond Wrigley, and William Norris. Pastor Norris presented an address of welcome and a copy of The Church Member's Manual to each new member. John Peters, church school director, Wade Hankins, youth leader, and Mrs. Zaide Stearns, women's leader, welcomed the new members on behalf of their departments.

Two babies were blessed at the Sunday morning service December 8, by Elders William Shotton and Louis Hancock. They were Susan Pamela, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Gobert, and Tamela Sue, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Robbins.—Reported by GLADYS L. HEGWOOD

Apostle Visits

WILLIAMSTON, MICHIGAN.—Apostle D. O. Chesworth held services at the mission January 20. The subject of his sermon was stewardship.—Reported by BEATRICE WILLIS

Chatham Branch Redecorates Church

Members of the Chatham (Ontario, Canada) Branch have recently completed a renovation of the upper and lower auditoriums of their building. In the sanctuary, the rostrum area was remodeled and new carpeting was installed. The interior of the church was completely repainted, and the floor of the lower auditorium was tiled. A special consecration service was held following the completion of the work. (See "Briefs" for other news of the branch.)

Much Progress in Branch

CHATHAM, ONTARIO.—Good growth has been shown in all departments, under the leadership of Pastor John M. Bowman.

In January, visiting based on the financial law was started. A course was given local men on "The Abundant Life." A three weeks' course of instruction for the priesthood was taught by District President Elroy E. Hanton, based on "The Restoration Story." Missionary outreach through cottage meetings was its purpose. Four weeks of cottage meetings followed, with five cottage meetings held each week, conducted by local priesthood members. J. C. Stuart, London, climaxed the effort with a two weeks' series and a baptismal service for thirteen.

John Ambrose and Jerry Morrison were ordained priests in October.

The anniversary service was held November 3, with Brother Hanton as guest minister. Special services were well attended. The evening service commenced a missionary series by Seventy Merle P. Guthrie. This work brought three more into the church and made several good contacts.

Statistics show a membership of 417, sixteen baptisms for 1957, six ordinations, and twenty infants blessed. There was an increase in attendance at all services.

New programs this year include Scouts Auxiliary (mothers), girls' junior choir, senior choir, junior Zion's League, priesthood and wives class, and a recreational bowling league. There is already a program for Boy Scouts, Cub Scouts, Orioles, and Skylarks.

Four Oriole girls received their first registration certificates of the Light of Life awards. They are Barbara Hughson, Sandra Lott, Doris Barnier, and Judy Wood.

The branch income has shown an increase of $1,000 over all other years.

Guest ministers have included President F. Henry Edwards; Apostle D. O. Chesworth; Brother Hanton; Bishop Hudson Grundy; Evangelists John Grice, William Patterson, and Robert T. Brown; Brother Guthrie; and Elders Almer Sheehy, J. C. Stuart, and Lyman Edwards.—Reported by MRS. JERRY MORRISON

I Had an Experience

(Continued from page 11)

Immediately the same drab church stood before me that I had so recently walked out of.

I went back. The service had started. My wife looked pleased, but she did not know for three years why I had returned. I shared this experience with no one until then. Some months later I was called to the office of priest. Two years later I was recommended by the stake president and elected by the branch to serve as pastor. (The stake was made up of branches then.) The following spring I was ordained an elder. I served the branch as pastor for about fifteen years, three of these after I was under Conference appointment.

Because others had a mind to work and the Lord was mindful of his people we saw the branch prosper again. The membership doubled. The church building was enlarged. Men responded and were called to the ministry, and they in turn ministered to others. My heart was warmed many times when I saw the pews well filled with people.

Sanscripts

Youth Camp Schedule

Seniors Return to Home School

February 3 brought eight senior student nurses back from affiliation to their home school. They will remain at the "San" until they complete their nursing course in August. Those returning are Charlene Boos of Wray, Colorado; Nancy Brown of Chenoa, Illinois; Joann Fuller of Gore, Oklahoma; Linnea Hendrix of Kansas City; Jean Hodges of Lamoni; Jeanette Livingston of Independence; Fern Reinosky of Smithville, Missouri; and Lois Ultican of Chico, California.

Recognition Service

The annual service for recognizing faithful and loyal service to the hospital and its various departments was held on January 23 in the new classroom. Nineteen persons received a certificate of merit for five years of service. Nine persons received silver pins denoting ten years of service. Emelie Belleisle, in charge of communications during night hours, and Edith Caruth, head nurse on orthopedic floor, received their fifteen-year honor pins at this service. Gladys Jagger was presented her twenty-year pin for her years of service in the business office.

Miss Maxine Franklin received the top honor for thirty years of service. Mr. Ralston, hospital comptroller, presented Miss Franklin with a pin which contained a small diamond. Miss Franklin has cared for the books of this institution through these thirty years. She has seen the business office change from a small operation in 1928 to the large complicated system of today.

Bishop A. Neal Deaver, hospital administrator, presided at the ceremony. Chaplain Ray Ashenurst spoke to the recipients of these pins commending them for their loyal service to those needing care. Student nurses Betty Worthington and Shirley Worthington of Alpena, Michigan, and Barbara Phelps of Tracy, California, supplied the music for the occasion.

Alumnae Install Officers

Not even a big snowstorm could keep the ISH School of Nursing Alumnae from honoring their newly elected officers. On January 24 forty-five of them braved the blizzard to attend dinner and the installation ceremony for the new officers at Combs Cottage Inn. Mrs. Myrtle Taylor, class of 1919, was the mistress of ceremonies. Each officer lighted a candle from Mrs. Taylor's, pledging willingness to accept the responsibility of office. Those installed were Stella Earnshaw, class of 1934, president; Blanche Craton, class of 1929, vice-president; Loydea Hardy, class of 1937, recording secretary; Mabel McKevit, class of 1931, corresponding secretary; and Mabel Faulkner, class of 1932, treasurer. Committee chairmen are Shirley Butler, class of 1930; Vida Butterworth, class of 1929; Jean Chandler, class of 1943; Ruth Essig, class of 1924; Margaret Esler, class of 1930; Faye Franklin, class of 1921; Estella Hansen, class of 1932; and Jennie Linkhart, class of 1930.

Projects of the Alumnae for 1958 will continue to be their pledge to the hospital building fund and the acquiring of funds to build a chapel for the hospital and school of nursing.

Senior High Camps

DATE	NAME OF CAMP	LOCATION	DIRECTOR OR REGISTRAR
June 1-8	Wakonda	Racine, Mo.	Kenneth Stobaugh 121 Plumb Aurora, Mo.
June 7-14	Nebraska	Fremont, Nebraska	Irl L. Chandler 5630 Frederick St. Omaha, Nebraska
June 8-15	Monyoka	YMCA Camp Elliston, Montana	Harve Eliason Route 1 Deer Lodge, Montana
June 8-15	Romoca	Palmer Lake, Colorado	Ward Hougas 480 Marion St. Denver 18, Colorado
June 15-21	Agape	Guthrie Grove Guthrie Center, Iowa	Dale Paterno 649 Pammel Court Ames, Iowa
June 15-21	Idauca	Baptist Camp (12 mi. north of Ketchum, Idaho)	Elvin Dennis Melba, Idaho
June 15-21	Senior High	Odessa, Mo.	Velma Jones Rt. 4, Box 402 Independence, Mo.
June 15-22	Liahona	Camp Shelby State Park Hattiesburg, Miss.	John R. Darling 1200 Baltimore Mobile, Ala.
June 21-28	Zion's League	Buckhorn Camp Idyllwild, Calif.	Jasper R. Pennington 3043 Studebaker Rd. Long Beach 8, Calif.
June 22-29	Winiaugwamauk	Brooksville, Maine	D. L. Kyser Box 364 Jonesport, Maine
August 3-10	Yopeca (14-16 yrs.)	Lake Doniphan Excelsior Springs, Mo.	Robert Taylor 916 W. Lexington Independence, Mo.
August 10-16	Tonadoona	Chetek, Wis.	Conon Edwards 2848 Aurene Circle West Allis, Wis.
August 17-23	Ecene	Zephyr Lodge, Liberty Lake, Wash. (Between Spokane and Coeur d'Alene)	E. Paul Crinzi N. 5506 "G" St. Spokane 15, Wash.
August 17-24	Israel (15-19 yrs.)	Lewis River Campgrounds Yacolt, Wash.	Robert Dixon 540 S.E. 176th Pl. Portland, Oregon
August 17-24	Sionito	Bandera, Texas	Charles Eastham 1806 S. Hackberry San Antonio, Texas
August 29 - Sept. 5	Michivoix	Park of Pines Boyne City, Michigan	Muir F. Robinson 601 Reed St. Kalamazoo, Michigan

Combined Junior-Senior High Camps

June 1-8	Yokoma	Osage Hills State Park Bartlesville, Okla.	Melvin E. Francis 1324 S. Cheyenne Tulsa, Oklahoma
June 7-15	Texoma	Robbers Cave State Park Wilburton, Oklahoma	Don Dollins Wilburton, Oklahoma
June 15-22	So. Indiana	Brush Creek Reunion Grnds. Xenia, Illinois	Chester Metcalf 1805 Shelby St. New Albany, Ind.
August 10-17	Clemens	Mark Twain State Park Perry, Mo.	Wm. T. Guthrie Rt. 3 Columbia, Mo.
August 22-29	Alleghany	Alleghany State Park New York	R. M. Reid R. F. D. No. 5 Corfu, New York

Junior High Camps

June 8-14	Tamokayoca	Odessa, Mo.	Doris Gabriel Route 1 Grain Valley, Mo.
June 8-15	Wakonda	Racine, Mo.	Kenneth Stobaugh 121 Plumb Aurora, Mo.
June 15-22	Liahona	Camp Shelby State Park Hattiesburg, Miss.	John R. Darling 1200 Baltimore Mobile, Alabama
June 21-28	Zarahemla (Primitive)	Tule River California	Mayme Blakeman 4455 W. 59th Place Los Angeles, California
June 22-28	Junior High	Guthrie Grove Guthrie Center, Iowa	John Booth 217 10th St. Council Bluffs, Iowa
June 29 - July 6	Kimtah	Deception Pass, Wash.	Ray Sowers 3819 N. 25th St. Tacoma 7, Washington

Junior High Camps

DATE	NAME OF CAMP	LOCATION	DIRECTOR OR REGISTRAR
July 6-12	Nebraska Junior High	Atkinson, Nebraska	Irl L. Chandler 5630 Frederick St. Omaha, Nebraska
July 6-13	LaDaSa	Brush Creek Reunion Grnds. Xenia, Illinois	Robert Cavitt 1124 Bell Aire Dr. Belleville, Illinois
July 13-19	Wasila	Silver Lake Wash.	John Ganson Route 6, Box 2907 Bremerton, Washington
July 20-27	Sionito	Bandera, Texas	Herbert Smith 2504 Shakespeare, Apt. 6 Houston, Texas
August 3-10	Zion (12-14 yrs.)	Lewis River Camp Grnds. Yacolt, Wash.	Robert Dixon 540 S.E. 176th Pl. Portland, Oregon
August 24-30	Tonadoona	Chetek, Wis.	Hollis Olson 469 Florence Ave. St. Paul 3, Minnesota
September 6-13	Michivoix	Park of Pines Boyne City, Michigan	Bill Anderson 315 McKinley Alpena, Michigan

Oriole Girl Camps

June 8-14	Oececa, 1st Session	Lake Doniphan Excelsior Springs, Mo.	Robert Taylor 916 W. Lexington Independence, Mo.
June 15-21	Oececa, 2nd Session	Lake Doniphan Excelsior Springs, Mo.	Robert Taylor 916 W. Lexington Independence, Mo.
June 22-28	Oececa, 3rd Session	Lake Doniphan Excelsior Springs, Mo.	Robert Taylor 916 W. Lexington Independence, Mo.

Specialized Youth Camps

June 19-29	Missionary Caravan (Zion's League)	Independence to Kewanee, Illinois	Robert Taylor 916 W. Lexington Independence, Mo.
August 23-30	Older Youth (17 yrs. & up)	Lake Doniphan Excelsior Springs, Mo.	Robert Taylor 916 W. Lexington Independence, Mo.
August 24-30	Youth Music Camp	Camp Manitou Vandalia, Michigan	F. S. Weddle The Auditorium Independence, Mo.

Book Review

He

Is Risen

By Harold P. Sloan

Light and Life Press
1957

Price $2.00

Dr. Sloan expresses a strong conviction that the resurrection of Christ was so powerful that its effect upon the world approached a historical demonstration. It lifted the disciples from despair to world evangelism. It divided time, marking a new era of growth and expansion for all who believed. It brought freedom, democracy, and a broader dimension of understanding, opening the way for an unbelievable scientific and social development.

But he feels that this great fact of history has been called in question by modern man, that he is losing faith in the supernatural and limiting his belief to that which he can understand—the natural or material. He is limited because nature has an incongruity. It fills man with aspiration, which separates him from the animal, which is responsible for all that he has achieved beyond the animal, but it does not provide for his death. "It confronts death with an unyielding despair."

Not until our Lord arose from the grave were the aspirations of man made complete. With the sting of death removed, an expansive force was released within man that gave wings to his progress. The creative influence of Christianity has no parallel.

In addition to subjective faith, there is objective proof to reassure our beliefs in the Resurrection. The author lists such powerful facts as the empty sepulcher, the realistic appearances of Jesus afterward, and the many witnesses of both. He explains in detail many points that show the human side of the witnesses but offer further evidence of the truth of their statements.

He acknowledges that mystery surrounds the Resurrection, the fact that Jesus did appear the third day after burial, and the kind of body he occupied—one that could be seen and felt but could appear through barred doors and vanish while men and women were gazing at him. Yet this is no greater mystery than the transforming of inorganic matter to protoplasm, or the mystery of the human body. The only difference is that one is a familiar mystery and the other is unfamiliar. But this does not change the fact.

This book is filled with material facts, points of sound logic and supernatural faith reassuring us that HE is risen. I recommend not only that it be read, but that it be studied and thoroughly marked for accessible reference material.

WILLIAM T. GUTHRIE

for your Easter program . . .

EASTER PROGRAM BUILDER, NO. 7

Newest in the series of popular aids for special day observance in the church school and church. Arranged in graded sections, providing recitations, exercises, readings, plays, and songs for all ages from kindergarten through high school. 32 pages. Lillenas

40c

EASTER CAROLS NEW AND OLD

A source book of songs and hymns for Palm Sunday, Good Friday, and Easter. Similar in style to the very popular "Christmas Carols New and Old." Contains all the traditional favorites. Solos, duets, mixed quartets, and choir numbers, and excellent group of numbers for children of all ages. 64 pages. Lillenas

75c

MINE IS A RISEN SAVIOUR

An Easter cantata for choir by Byron M. Carmony, writer of "Then I Met Jesus." Scripture, original narrative, and songs are woven into a cantata with a strong evangelistic appeal. Recommended for Easter Sunday evening service. For mixed choir. Lillenas

50c

HERALD HOUSE

Box 477
Independence, Missouri

Box 382
Guelph, Ontario, Canada

Bulletin Board

Services in Boston Area

Boston Branch has moved its entire operation to 1386 Massachusetts Avenue in Lexington. Visitors and servicemen may call Pastor Albert L. Fisher (Winchester 6-3097 or Kenmore 6-4647) for information.

Services in Chicago, Illinois

Members of the First Chicago congregation are now holding services in their new church home at 5701 West Montrose. Two new missions have been established in Chicago. Home-wood mission meets in the VFW Hall, 18147 Harwood Avenue in Homewood; the LeClaire Courts mission at 4340 South Lamont, Chicago 38, Illinois. Brainerd Church is located at 8805 South Throop.

Services in Metropolitan New York City

Brooklyn and Queens area: YMCA, 570 Jamaica Avenue, Highland Park; pastor, W. S. Lord, 74 Beechwood Avenue, Port Washington (telephone PO 7-3942)

Long Island area, Hicksville mission: home of Seventy Loyd Adams, 27 Parkway Drive, Clearview Village, Hicksville (telephone WELLS 1-5859); pastor, Wilbert Richards, 14 Oxford Lane, Bethpage (telephone WELLS 8-0456)

New Jersey, Newark Branch: Adoniram Temple (Masonic), 321 Second Avenue, Lyndhurst, New Jersey; pastor, A. E. Starks (telephone SUMMIT 6-2721 J)

Norwalk, Connecticut: church at 2 Mill Street, Broad River, Norwalk; pastor, Clifford Webb (telephone WOODWARD 6-0443)

New Haven, Connecticut: Redmen's Hall, New Street, West Haven, Connecticut; pastor, Don Crowell (telephone WEST 4-1879)

Further information, if necessary, may be obtained from the district president, Perce R. Judd, WELLS 1-8949.

Manhattan and Bronx area: Earl Hall of Columbia University, 116 Street and Broadway, Manhattan; leader, Leland Negaard, 247 Fort Lee Road, Leonia, New Jersey (telephone, WINDSOR 4-3056), or contact District Missionary Loyd Adams. Services at present at 3:00 p.m.

Appointee's Address

Apostle Arthur A. Oakman
Eich Strasse 14 A
Hannover, Germany

Notice to Servicemen at Altus A.F.B.

Airmen, and their families, stationed at Altus Air Force Base in Oklahoma are invited to contact Elder Max Mann, 1000 Oakwood, Altus (home telephone HUDSON 2-5034). Brother Mann, a member of the district presidency, will be happy to maintain contact with these servicemen and their families.

Serviceman's Address

A/1c William Ayers
AF 17428870
307 A & E Maint. Sq. Box 16
Lincoln A.F.B., Nebraska

Utah-Southeast Idaho District Reunion

The first reunion of the Utah-Southeast Idaho District will be held July 13 to 20 at the Baptist Assembly Grounds in the north fork of Ogden Canyon. Registration will begin at 2:00 p.m. Visitors from other areas are welcome. Charges for registration, meals, lodging, and insurance are as follows: children three years up to sixth-graders, $9.00; all older, $12.50; no charge for children under three. Further information may be obtained from the Reunion Committee, 336 South Fourth East, Salt Lake City, Utah.

C. HOUSTON HOBART

Radio Series in Gaylord, Michigan

A special series of devotional programs will be broadcast on station WATC of Gaylord, Michigan, beginning Monday, March 3. The series will continue daily, Monday through Friday, at 10:30 A.M. WATC broadcasts on a frequency (dial reading) of 900 kilocycles.

Elder E. Merle Harford will be the speaker for these services, with music transcribed by the Auditorium Radio Choir.

CHARLES F. CHURCH, JR.
Radio Director

Books Wanted

Mrs. Annie Burton, Ribstone, Alberta, would like to obtain a copy of the Mormon Girl. Please state price and condition before sending the book.

Leland Nelson, 2318 Highland Avenue, Everett, Washington, wants a copy of W. J. Haworth's Fall of Babylon. Please state price and condition of the book before mailing it.

REQUEST FOR PRAYERS

Mrs. Era V. Green requests prayers for her son, Lt. Robert E. Green, Camp Pendleton Naval Hospital, Camp Pendleton, California. He has been unconscious since January 31 as the result of an automobile accident.

ENGAGEMENTS

Lampley-Colvin

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Colvin of Flora, Illinois, announce the engagement of their daughter, Ada Raye, to Richard Lampley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Lampley of Flora. A June wedding is planned.

Carroll-Simmons

Mr. and Mrs. Cleo Simmons of King City, Missouri, announce the engagement of their daughter, Elizabeth, to Bob Carroll, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Carroll of St. Joseph, Missouri. Bob, a former Graceland student, is now attending Northwest Missouri State College at Maryville. The wedding will take place April 3 at the First R.L.D.S. Church in St. Joseph.

WEDDINGS

Harvey-Stark

Helen Analee Stark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Stark, and Richard Lee Harvey, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Harvey, all of Independence, Missouri, were married February 13 at the Reorganized Church in Miami, Oklahoma, Elder B. F. Kysar officiating. They are making their home in Independence.

Edmonds-Gann

Hazel Juanita Gann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond H. Gann of Pasadena, California, and Harold C. Edmonds, son of Mrs. Gethin Edmonds of Monrovia, California, were married in a double-ring ceremony at the Reorganized Church in Temple City, California, by Seventy George A. Njeim. A reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church. The bride is a graduate of Graceland College, class of '55. They are making their home in Pasadena.

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Utterback of Norwalk, Iowa, became the parents of a son, Terry Dean, on August 25, 1957. He was blessed on December 1 by Elder Morton Birkby. Mrs. Utterback is the former Emily Steiner. Mr. Utterback, a 1950 graduate of Graceland College, is band director in the Norwalk schools.

Elder and Mrs. Glenn E. Johnston of Sault Ste Marie, Michigan, announce the birth of a son, David Glenn, born January 4. Mrs. Johnston is the former Delores Gibley of Independence, Missouri. Elder Johnston is serving under General Church appointment.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Morgan of Independence, Missouri, became the parents of a daughter, Patricia Ann, on September 12, 1957. She was blessed on November 10 at Eden Heights Church by Elder Louis Whitehead and her father. Mrs. Morgan is the former Ruby Lesh.

Mr. and Mrs. David Wiley of Wichita, Kansas, became the parents of a son, Gregg Eugene, on December 22 at Mount Carmel Hospital in Pittsburg, Kansas.

Mr. and Mrs. Leland Robertson of Pittsburg, Kansas, announce the birth of a daughter, Brenda DeAnne, on December 1. Both parents attended Graceland, and Mr. Robertson is now attending Kansas State Teachers College at Pittsburg. Mrs. Robertson is the former Bonita Burns.

Mr. and Mrs. David Baert of Joplin, Missouri, announce the birth of a daughter, Julie Lynn, born January 10. Mrs. Baert is the former Barbara Ohlhausen of Pittsburg, Kansas.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Pollard, Sr., of Fontana, California, became the parents of a daughter, Belinda Jeanne, on October 3 at the New London Submarine Base Hospital in Connecticut. She was blessed on November 10 by Elder Gilbert Hambleton at Waterford, Connecticut. Mrs. Pollard is the former Phylotus Jeanne Nichol.

Mr. and Mrs. Tony J. Carnahan became the parents of a son, Scott Anthony, on April 18, 1957, at Narco Naval Hospital in Corona, California. He was blessed on May 12 by Elder Fred West at the Fontana, California, mission. Mrs. Carnahan, the former Mary Lynn Nichol, attended Graceland in 1954.

Mr. and Mrs. Lindal L. Mark of Fullerton, California, became the parents of a son, Gregory Alan, on November 19. He was blessed on December 22 by Elder James Thorson and Elder William Hetrick at the East Los Angeles Church. Mrs. Mark is the former Doris Harris. Both parents are Graceland graduates.

Mr. and Mrs. Roland E. Hughes of Independence, Missouri, became the parents of a daughter, Lisa Lynn, on December 16. She was blessed on February 9 by Elder Ray Lloyd and Elder Jay McCormick. Mrs. Hughes is the former Donna Zuber.

Mr. and Mrs. Myron Juliff of Independence, Missouri, announce the birth of a daughter, Christine Karen, born January 25. Mrs. Juliff, the former Shirley Petersen, is a graduate of Graceland, class of '55.

Elder and Mrs. Merle Harford of Gaylord, Michigan, announce the birth of a son, David Michael, born January 31. Mrs. Harford is the former Rachel Peck. Both parents are graduates of Graceland College, and Elder Harford is now serving under General Church appointment.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernes Collins of Centerton, Indiana, announce the birth of a daughter, Vernola Edna, born January 14. Mrs. Collins is the former Lola Glenn.

Mr. and Mrs. Adam M. Meier of Sacramento, California, announce the birth of a son, Gary Marcus, born January 18. Mrs. Meier is the former Ruth Swaney.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Reistad of St. Louis, Missouri, became the parents of a daughter, Pamela Ruth, on December 14. She was blessed on February 2 by Elder John G. Wight assisted by Elder J. Cedric Evans. Mrs. Reistad is the former Rachel Davenport of Soldiers Grove, Wisconsin.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald L. Daugherty of Independence, Missouri, became the parents of a son, Darrell Wayne, on May 10, 1957. He was blessed on January 19 at Stone Church by High Priest Charles V. Graham and Pastor Glaude A. Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Young of La Moure, North Dakota, became the parents of a daughter, Barbara Lynn, on December 23. Both parents are Graceland graduates.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel F. Hobbs, Jr., of Lemont, Pennsylvania, became the parents of a son on December 13. He has been named Douglas Alan. The father attended Graceland from 1947 to '49.

DEATHS

LYTLE.—Edison (Ted), was born July 25, 1908, in Birdseye, Indiana, and died August 9, 1957, at his home in England, Arkansas, where he had resided the past eight years. He had been a member of the Reorganized Church since 1941.

He is survived by his wife; three sons: Johnnie and Ronnie of the home, and Edgar of Carmi, Illinois; two daughters: Mrs. Betty Harris of Oakland City, Indiana, and Marietta Dodson of Little Rock, Arkansas; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Lytle of Birdseye; twelve brothers and sisters; and eight grandchildren. Elder Glen Coltharp conducted the funeral, which was held in England.

MARYOTT.—Eugene Lee, son of Russell G. and Beulah M. Maryott, was born September 9, 1936, near Tekamah, Nebraska, and died December 12, 1957, at the Decatur County Hospital in Leon, Iowa. He was graduated from high school in Walthill, Nebraska, in 1957, and was a student at Graceland College at the time of his death. He was a member of the Reorganized Church and held the office of deacon.

He is survived by his parents; two brothers: Harold L. of South Sioux City, Nebraska, and John R. of Fremont, Nebraska; a sister, LaVonne, a student at Graceland; and his paternal grandmother, Mrs. Minnie Maryott of Decatur, Nebraska. A memorial service was conducted in the Student Center Chapel at Graceland on December 14. Final rites were held in the Reorganized Church in Walthill on December 15. Evangelist Roy A. Cheville and Elder Harold L. Condit officiated at both services. Interment was in Evergreen Cemetery at Walthill.

WAITE.—Phoebe, died January 11, 1958, in Burnaby, British Columbia, at the age of sixty-seven. She had been a member of the Reorganized Church since her youth and had served several years as leader of the women's department.

She is survived by her husband, Charles; two sons: Dr. Vern Waite of Honolulu, Hawaii, and Dr. Daniel Waite of Iowa City, Iowa; four daughters: Mrs. S. Jensen of Burnaby; Mrs. J. Sparks of Chilliwack, British Columbia; Mrs. A. P. van Stolk of Terrace, British Columbia; and Mrs. R. M. Porter of Las Cruces, New Mexico; her mother, Mrs. Thomas Smith of Ribstone, Alberta; a brother, William Smith of Terrace; two sisters: Mrs. Herb Burton of Burnaby and Mrs. George Burton of Ribstone; and seventeen grandchildren. Funeral services were held at Woodlawn Chapel, Elder Sam Clark officiating. Interment was in the Fraser Cemetery.

BARBE.—Della V., daughter of Jonathan and Mary Hoffman, was born July 27, 1879, at Washburn West Virginia, and died August 15, 1957, at Parkersburg, West Virginia. She had been an active member of the Reorganized Church for more than forty years.

She is survived by a son, Howard E. Curry, Jr.; a daughter, Mrs. Leonard G. Pack; a sister, Mrs. C. A. Wilson; and one grandchild, all of Parkersburg. Funeral services were conducted by Pastor Clyde S. Rice and Missionary Elder Jack M. Curtis at Parkersburg.

LEIGHTON.—Carmie Marie, was born August 22, 1898, at Defiance, Ohio (date and place of death not given). She was married on October 18, 1921, to Roy Leighton, who survives her. She had been a member of the Reorganized Church since 1906. She was interested in music and traveling; before her illness, she and her husband made a trip around the world. She enjoyed church school work and teaching young girls.

She leaves her husband, father, mother, sister, and brothers. Elders Earl R. Curry and Kenneth Green conducted the funeral service. Burial was at Kirtland, Ohio.

WARREN.—Frederick E., was born October 13, 1880, at Bloomfield, Ohio, and died December 19, 1957, at his home in Healdsburg, California. On December 23, 1908, he was married to Edna G. Moffat, who survives him. On March 13, 1912, he was baptized into the Reorganized Church and on October 10, 1917, was called to the office of deacon. He served for seventeen years in the Central Detroit Branch, then moved to Healdsburg and became an active member of the Santa Rosa Branch.

Besides his wife he leaves a brother, Alton Warren of Wilmington, Delaware. Funeral services were held at the Fred Young Chapel in Healdsburg, Elder Hyrum Crownover and Elder Walter Budworth officiating. Interment was in the IOOF Memorial Park at Santa Rosa.

HAYNES.—Alice Maria Smith, was born at Providence, Rhode Island, in 1888 (date and place of death not given). She was married in 1925 to Paul H. Haynes, who survives her. Two children were born to them; the son died in infancy. She had been a member of the Reorganized Church since 1901.

Besides her husband she leaves a daughter, Ruth Maze, and two grandchildren. Elder Earl R. Curry and Elder Kenneth Green conducted the funeral service. Burial was at Kirtland, Ohio.

LANDIS.—Arthur, was born February 9, 1870, at Woodland, California, and died December 23, 1957, at Santa Rosa, California. He was baptized into the Reorganized Church on February 7, 1897, was ordained a deacon on March 14, 1899, and a teacher on February 13, 1901. His wife preceded him in death.

He leaves three daughters, a son, and three sisters. Funeral services were conducted by High Priest Robert L. Bishop and Elder Hyrum Crownover at the Eggen and Lance Mortuary in Santa Rosa. Interment was in Pleasant Hill Cemetery at Sebastopol, California.

EDWARDS.—Lettie May, daughter of Archibald and Catherine Albaugh John, was born September 24, 1877, in Johnstown, Pennsylvania, and died January 5, 1958, in Baltimore, Maryland, where she had resided since 1921. On September 27, 1898, she was married to Elder Adolphus H. Edwards, and later was baptized into the Reorganized Church by her husband. She was a faithful co-worker with him in his ministry and was particularly concerned about the welfare of the underprivileged. She and her husband assisted in the organization of a branch in Baltimore.

She is survived by her husband; two daughters: Lily Vitek and Grace Faunce; five sons: James, Adolphus, Arthur, Paul, and John; and twenty-three grandchildren. Her funeral was held in the new church at Baltimore, for which she had labored so long. Elder John T. Conway and Elder A. A. Mehlich officiated. Burial was in Moreland Park, Maryland.

ROBBINS.—Grace Ethel, was born March 16, 1880, in Arlington, Iowa, and died January 18, 1958, in McMinnville, Oregon. She was married in 1905 to Wayne Robbins, who preceded her in death in 1955. She had been a member of the Reorganized Church for sixty-two years.

She is survived by a daughter, Olive Smith of Amity, Oregon; a brother, Bert Brooks

TRACT REVIEW

The Church of the Future

HERE IS AN EIGHT-PAGE brochure summarizing the qualities that the religion of the future must have if the purposes of God are to be culminated.

Patriarch Elbert A. Smith wrote this a number of years ago. He introduces it with the need for vitality; "If the church of tomorrow is to be vital . . . it must be a church feeling deeply and knowing certainly that God has set upon it the seal of his commission. And that is authority! . . . The church . . . must have a ministry claiming and having a right to speak and act in the name of God."

Other important qualities that Brother Elbert emphasizes include (1) a conviction that God is in the present tense, as beneficent and powerful today as he was two thousand years ago; (2) deeds that match its members' professions and prayers, and a spirit of worship and devotion—a church that practices its religion; (3) an organized, systematic attempt to solve the problems of poverty as well as those of ignorance and sin—a church that meets human needs; (4) a vision of the kingdom of God that must be established—men with a sense of mission preparing the "way of the Lord."

This tract is available at 5 cents each. Tracts may be ordered through branch or mission book stewards or directly from Herald House.

of Bookings, Oregon; two sisters: Mrs. Hattie Wright of Rathdrum, Idaho, and Mrs. Gerrtude Scholl of Harbor, Oregon; and three grandchildren. Funeral services were conducted at Scotts Chapel in McMinnville by Elder J. L. Verhei. Concluding services were held at Riverside Park Cemetery in Spokane, Washington.

We're on the Air . . .

STATE AND CITY	CALL LETTERS	DIAL READING	DAY AND TIME
ALABAMA, Atmore	WATM	1580	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
ALABAMA, Evergreen	WBLO	1470	Sunday, 9:00 a.m.
ARKANSAS, Jonesboro	KNEA	970	Sunday, 9:00 a.m.
CALIFORNIA, Wasco	KWSO	1050	Sunday, 7:15 a.m.
COLORADO, Durango	KIUP	930	Sunday, 9:45 a.m.
COLORADO, Montrose	KUBC	1260	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
FLORIDA, Orlando	WLOF	950	Sunday, 7:45 a.m.
IDAHO, Sand Point	KSPT	1400	Sunday, 6:15 p.m.
ILLINOIS, Herrin	WJPF	1340	Sunday, 7:45 a.m.
ILLINOIS, Moline	WQUA	1230	Sunday, 8:15 a.m.
ILLINOIS, Mt. Vernon	WMIX	(FM 94.1) 940	Sunday, 12:15 p.m.
KANSAS, Concordia	KFRM	550	Sunday, 8:30 a.m.
MICHIGAN, Bad Axe	WLEW	1340	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
MICHIGAN, Flint	WMRP	1570	Friday, 10:00 a.m.
MICHIGAN, Gaylord	WATC	900	Mar. 3-7 10:30 a.m.
MICHIGAN, Houghton Lake	WHGR	1290	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
MINNESOTA, Detroit Lakes	KDLM	1360	Sunday, 8:45 a.m.
MISSOURI, Fulton	KFAL	900	Sunday, 8:15 a.m.
MISSOURI, Kansas City	KMBC	980	Sunday, 8:30 a.m.
NEW MEXICO, Clovis	KCLV	1240	Sunday, 7:45 a.m.
NEW YORK, Hornell	WVHG	1320	Sunday, 10:30 a.m.
NORTH DAKOTA, Valley City	KOVV	1490	Sunday, 6:00 p.m.
OHIO, New Philadelphia	WJER	1450	Sunday, 8:30 p.m.
OKLAHOMA, Woodward	KSIW	1430	Mar. 17-21 9:00 a.m.
ONTARIO, Guelph	CJOY	1450	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
ONTARIO, Sault Ste Marie	CJIC	1050	Sunday, 8:15 a.m.
OREGON, Lakeview	KQIK	1230	Sunday, 2:00 p.m.
PENNSYLVANIA, Charleroi	WESA	940	Sunday, 8:30 a.m.
TENNESSEE, Paris	WTPR	710	Sunday, 7:45 a.m.
WASHINGTON, Vancouver	KHFS	1150	Sunday, 8:30 a.m.
WEST VIRGINIA, Parkersburg	WCEF	1050	Sunday, 12:05 p.m.
WISCONSIN, Richland Center	WRCO	1450	Sunday, 8:15 a.m.

And Finally...

BEST FRIEND

I want to conduct the affairs of the Presidency in such a way that, when I lay down my office, if I have no other friends, I can at least be friends with the man down inside me.

—Abraham Lincoln

AGNOSTIC: A timid person attempting to hide his insecurity under a metaphysical cloak. He is gnostic about himself but agnostic about everything else.

ARE YOU OLD?

Anyone who stops learning is old whether this happens at twenty or eighty. Anyone who keeps on learning not only remains young but becomes constantly more valuable, regardless of physical capacity.

—Henry Ford

FORMULA FOR FAILURE

There are two kinds of men who never amount to much—those who cannot do what they are told, and those who can do nothing else.

—Cyrus H. K. Curtis

LAUGHING MATTERS

While "A merry heart doeth good like a medicine" (Proverbs 17:22), and there is "a time to laugh" (Ecclesiastes 3:4), we are admonished to comport ourselves "not with laughter . . . but with a glad heart" (Doctrine and Covenants 59:4). And although there is no greater offense than to laugh when we ought to be serious, it is true in common circumstances that it is better to laugh than to frown. But we should be careful of laughter in church, for it can hurt and offend.

If one is to laugh it is better to laugh at himself than at another, and better to laugh at himself before somebody else does it.

An old adage says, "He who laughs last laughs best," but this is not necessarily true, for so much depends on what and who may be the object of the laughter.

Mrs. Alex Weber
1411 - 2nd Ave. S.
Denison, Iowa

16450 10-58
h

Superior minds are amused by the play of words and ideas, while the more common are amused by physical accident and crude horse-play.

Laughter can be cold and cruel as well as gay and harmless. Teasing the weak, the small, and the helpless to provoke a laugh is a trait of evil.

Those who are insecure and afraid can't stand to be laughed at, though they are often the first to laugh at others.

Laughter is useful when it helps us to discover and correct our own faults; when it helps to deflate pride, pompousness, and stuffiness; and when it can take the sting out of anger and hurt. Laughter can sometimes relieve the tension of conflict and the rising emotions that threaten to overwhelm our saner judgment.

Ella Wheeler Wilcox made a wise observation when she wrote:

"Laugh, and the world laughs with you;
Weep, and you weep alone;

For the sad old earth must borrow its mirth
But has sorrow enough of its own."

L. J. L.

STOPPING TO THINK

Worth-while things are not achieved without thinking. The easier their doing seems to the onlooker, the more likely it is that the performance has a background of study and practice.

A friend had a habit of introducing what he considered a profound idea by the phrase, "Did you ever stop to think . . ." Others refer to "the pause for reflection." To a great many of us neither the full stop nor the pause helps significantly. If a salvageable idea comes at all, it comes like a bolt of lightning. As likely as not it will strike at 4:15 a.m. rather than the more sensible 9:30 a.m. Jesus said, "Which of you by taking thought can add one cubit to his stature?" So far as I can see, that applies to intellectual stature as well as physical height.

C. B. H.

Contents

EDITORIAL AND OFFICIAL

Thoughts on the Auditorium, by Leonard J. Lea	3
Professional Help Needed	4
New Church School Materials for This Fall	4
Across the Desk	4

FEATURE ARTICLES

Religion Series at "San"	2
Which Road? by Arthur E. Dempsey	5
The Inspired Version, by Israel A. Smith	8
Wanted: New Youth Camp Leaders, by Carl Mestle	9
Build a Shrine, Save a Life	10
Don't Pity Your Pastor's Wife, by Elisabeth D. Dodds; reprint	12
New Church Opened at London, Ontario, by Lorne F. White	14

SPECIAL COLUMNS

I Had an Experience, by John W. Blackstock	11
Question Time	15
Briefs	16
Sanscripts	20
Youth Camp Schedule	20
Book Review	21
Bulletin Board	22
Tract Review: The Church of the Future	23
And Finally	24

BEAUTIFUL CHURCH SEAL JEWELRY

Item	Price	Plus	10% Federal Excise Tax
sweater guard (gold).....	$1.50	"	15c
necklace (silver).....	1.75	"	18c
book locket necklace (silver).....	1.75	"	18c book locket necklace (rose gold).....	1.75	"	18c cuff links (silver).....	1.75	"	18c
bow pendant (silver).....	1.25	"	13c
book locket bow pendant (silver).....	2.00	"	20c book locket bow pendant (rose gold).....	2.00	"	20c charm bracelet (silver).....	1.25	"	13c
key chain (silver).....	1.25	"	13c
key chain (gold).....	1.50	"	15c
tie clip (silver).....	1.25	"	13c
tie clip (gold).....	1.50	"	15c
lapel button (silver).....	1.00	"	10c
lapel button (gold).....	1.25	"	13c
lapel pin (silver).....	1.00	"	10c

Shipping charges extra. If you live in Missouri, add 2% sales tax.

HERALD
HOUSE

Box 477
Independence, Missouri

Box 382
Guelph, Ontario, Canada

SAINTS' HERALD

Volume 105 / March 10, 1958 / Number 10

Village Church
State of Oaxaca
Mexico

Photo by Clair Weldon

Dr. Charles Richard Jones

DR. JONES came to Graceland in September, 1957, as instructor of biology and hygiene.

He came with a unique background of teaching experience. For one year he taught in Rosemont High School, El Cajon, California. Another year was spent teaching typewriting and English at night school in the Philippines. For three summers he taught in Denver University Summer School and on his sabbatical leave year was a zoology instructor and histological technician at Iowa State, Ames. He taught thirty-two years at Colorado A. & M., and was chairman of the entomology and zoology section for eighteen years, as well as being entomologist of the Colorado Experiment Station and state entomologist.

Dr. Jones received his B. S. degree in agriculture and entomology in 1904 from Colorado A. & M. He then went into government work and was sent to Texas by the Bureau of Entomology as one of the first to work on the Mexican cotton boll weevil. He also worked on methods of controlling tobacco insects in Kentucky and Tennessee.

In 1908 he topped the list of eighty applicants in a special government examination and was sent to the Philippines to work in the Bureau of Science as entomologist. While there he traveled on every inhabited island from New Guinea to Formosa and also in Japan and China. Later he was transferred to the Bureau of Agriculture as entomologist of the Philippine Islands. Since this experience Dr. Jones says that he can get along very well making his wants known in five languages.

In 1914 he received his M. S. degree in entomology from Colorado A. & M. and in 1926 his Ph.D. degree in zoology and entomology from Iowa State College. He then returned to Colorado State University where he completed the requirements for the D.V.M. degree.

Dr. Jones is proud that he has been on his own since early childhood. With

(Continued on page 6)

Varied Week of Subjects, Speakers Tried as Method of Presenting Gospel

Older Youth Experiment in Evangelism

"Christ Every Day" was the theme of a missionary series held February 2-7 by the older young people of Center Stake.

The series was an experiment in evangelism. Instead of inviting a missionary to preach a series of sermons at the meetings, the young people did much of the speaking themselves in a series of personal testimonies.

In all, fifteen speakers participated in the six-night series. They were mostly students or young people just beginning their careers. They told how Christ guided their lives every day.

Attendance at the meetings averaged slightly over one hundred each night. Friendship cards were used to record attendance and provide information for follow-up ministry with nonmembers and inactive members.

Topics in the series included: "Christ Every Day," a sermon by Seventy Donald Landon; "The Need for Christ Every Day," a panel discussion by four young people; "Christ Every Day through Conversion," three testimonies of conversion; "Christ Every Day through Vocation," five speakers representing industry, journalism, nursing, pharmacy, and engineering; and "Christ Every Day through the Restoration," a sermon by Elder Lloyd Hurshman, a young businessman. The final meeting was a fellowship service based on the theme "Christ Every Day in Our Lives." Kenneth Simpson, a medical technologist at the Independence Sanitarium, was the speaker.

Jim Christensen, a young accountant in Independence, was minister-in-charge each night.

The series was planned and conducted by the Center Stake Older Youth Council which represents all older youth groups in the stake. Claire Weddle, vice-president of the Stone Church older youth group and a member of the stake council, was chairman of the committee for the series.

The Center Stake Older Youth Council will be conducting two more projects in evangelism in the months ahead. In April it will sponsor a seminar in evangelism at Lake Doniphan. This summer it will direct a week-long missionary caravan to an area outside the stakes.

Authors in This Issue

Glenn E. Johnston (page 5), missionary elder, Upper Michigan Peninsula District

Clair E. Weldon (page 7), Seventy, Latin-American Mission

Robert I. Wakeman (page 13), Seventy, New Mexico and Arizona

Mrs. Mark Siegfried (page 14), Independence, Missouri

Roger Yarrington (page 16), assistant editor

Where Are We Going?

Taking a Second Look at the First Presidency's Interim Report

TAKE A SECOND look at the First Presidency's interim report in the February 17 issue of the Herald.

This "state of the church" report is not intended to be a challenge so much as an assessment. But, a challenge it is, nevertheless.

It is certainly refreshing to find such a down-to-earth document in a day of wide-eyed excitement. The report confidently names the landmarks we have passed and ticks off the goals immediately ahead. It gives the reader a sense of balance and proportion.

Here are a few of the achievements which the report names:

1. Payment of the church debt
2. Increased baptismal rate
3. More and better houses of worship
4. Enrichment of our own worship practices
5. Better organized department work
6. Growth of church institutions
7. Increased compliance with the financial law
8. Better training for ministers and leaders
9. Deeper concern for defining basic beliefs
10. Foundations of the Gathering more securely laid
11. Better participation in democratic church government
12. Broader ministry to groups with specialized needs

Standing on this firm footing, we are able to make a careful study of the future needs of the church. The report of the First Presidency does not indulge in guesswork. These are the future needs which it clearly sees:

1. "The most pressing physical need, on the General Church level, is for the completion of the Auditorium."
2. Research to back the fundamental teachings of the church.
3. Sound extension through larger and better organized membership.
4. Improved outreach through more attractive services and utilization of nonappointee missionaries.
5. Expanded work in missions abroad with better trained missionaries and more printed literature.
6. More and better prepared leaders.
7. Special emphasis on church school attendance and teaching.
8. A program of balanced expansion of existing and future educational institutions.
9. Development of doctrinal and other printed literature.
10. Development of new sources of income and extended emphasis on compliance with the financial law.

Note how many of these goals depend on individual participation by the members of the church. In fact, find one that doesn't. The report is a challenge to all members of the restored church.

And notice, one of the most significant sentences in the report says this: "Certainly, a large share of leadership and performance must be contributed by those not under General Church appointment."

That is, in many ways, the crux of our future prospects. How many of these things remain undone because we regard them as jobs for the appointees?

ONE OF THE KEYS to our future is the assumption of responsibility by those who are self-supporting. Certainly, in looking over this list of goals—which is only a partial one—we see a responsibility for everyone.

Unlike most other churches, we believe our golden days still lie ahead. How soon we see them depends on each of us. R. Y.

Let the church again be admonished that the task of establishing Zion presses heavily upon us.

Barriers and hindrances to the achievement of this goal should be removed as speedily as possible and practicable.

To this end all the Saints should work together in the rich fraternity which can and will prevail among them when they keep faithfully the commandments.

—Doctrine and Covenants 138: 3

Official

Baptismal Report for December

There were 687 baptismal reports received by the Department of Statistics in December, 1957. This is the largest number of reports ever received in December, the previous high being 588.

The total for the calendar year 1957 is 5,705 which is the highest number of reports ever received in a calendar year. The previous high was 5,554 received in 1955.

Stakes and districts from which twenty or more reports were received in December are as follows: Center Stake of Zion, 104; Detroit International Stake, 54; Los Angeles, 40; Kansas City Stake, 29; Flint-Port Huron District, 23; Southern California District, 22; and Maine District, 20.

Branches and missions reporting the five highest totals in December are as follows: Battle Creek, Michigan, 17; Flint, Michigan, 17; Stonington, Maine, 12; Juniata, Michigan, 11; and Napa, California, and Ocean Springs, Mississippi, each 9.

MERLE P. GUTHRIE
Statistician

Across the Desk

OF THE FIRST PRESIDENCY

Seventy A. M. Pelletier, Jr., reports from Wellsburg, West Virginia:

Missionary Jack Curtis and Pastor Clyde Zonker and their workers did a splendid job in preparing for our series in Wellsburg, January 19-February 2. They canvassed the area with invitation folders, newspaper advertising, and store window placards. This good preparation undoubtedly assisted in the good attendance during these two weeks.

Attendance reached a high of 110 on two nights and maintained a two weeks' average of 78, with an average of ten nonmember friends. This was outstanding for an attendance here, I am told. The response was heart warming.

We were happy to baptize ten at the end of the experience and to have requests for fourteen future baptisms. The priesthood are providing the necessary classes and cottage meetings they requested prior to baptism. There are also 34 very good prospects for follow-up.

In a recent report Elder Clifford Cole, Director of Religious Education, lists curriculum courses in process. Among materials being produced under the direction of the Department of Religious Education are the following:

Youth Materials: In the youth division of our department, Brother Richard Lancaster completed the new God and Country program which was begun by Brother Carl Mesle while he was director of the youth division. A committee is developing a new manual on Scouting in the church. We have also begun a new cycle of Zion's League Annuals. The first of this cycle has been produced, and others are in the process of being written. Brother Lancaster is also looking toward writing a League member's handbook during the next few months, as well as a course on basic beliefs of the church, to be used with young people. Materials have been produced for junior high and senior high groups at reunions.

Girls' Work Materials: In girls' work, the Oriole Girls' Handbook was extensively revised. Sister Edna Easter is now anticipating revising the Oriole Monitor's Manual and developing some supplemental materials to be used in girls' work, especially with the Light of Life program.

Children's Materials: In children's work, under the direction of Brother Jack Evans, a new three-year cycle of vacation church school materials and a new three-year cycle of reunion materials for use with children have been completed. Material is in the process of being written to help teach the financial law of the church to children. Study is being made regarding the development of new prebaptismal materials for children, and it is anticipated that additional materials will be developed in the near future for teaching children about the ordinances of the church.

Church School Materials: In the church school division emphasis has been on the production of new church school materials for use with the kindergarten, primary, junior, junior high, and senior high departments. This tremendous project has been directed by Brother Clifford Buck. These new church school materials are to be ready for use by October, 1958.

Adult Materials: Under the general direction of Brother Athol Packer materials are new being developed on such subjects as Paul's life and letters, the apostasy, Restoration theology, stewardship, and additional units in the Family Living Study Series.

Seventy Arthur F. Gibbs has sent us a newspaper clipping describing the open house at the recently remodeled Columbus, Nebraska, Church.

The building was purchased from the Nazarene Church. According to Brother Gibbs, the location is excellent. Considerable remodeling has already been done, and further remodeling and landscaping are planned.

Brother Gibbs preached at the special services and Evangelist Albert Livingstone of Omaha offered the prayer. There was a good attendance with many out-of-town visitors.

INFORMATION PLEASE

The editors would like to hear from all priesthood members who have been or are pastors and whose father and grandfather have also presided over a branch or congregation. We are sure the church would be interested to learn how many third-generation pastors we have and who they are. Only by your help can this list be made anywhere near complete. Check with relatives and family friends if you are not certain, then send this information to The Editor, Box 477, Independence, Missouri, on or before March 31. C. B. H.

The Saints' Herald

Vol. 105 March 10, 1958 No. 10

EDITORS: The First Presidency: Israel A. Smith, F. Henry Edwards, W. Wallace Smith. ASSISTANTS: Chris E. Hartshorn, Managing Editor; Naomi Russell, Assistant Editor; Paul A. Wellington, Assistant Editor; Roger Yarrington, Assistant Editor; Audrey Stub-

bart, Copy Editor; and Leonard J. Lea, Contributing Editor. BUSINESS MANAGER, Kenneth L. Graham.

The Saints' Herald is the official publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, with headquarters at The Auditorium, Independence, Missouri, and is issued through the offices of Herald Publishing House, 103 South Osage Street, Independence, Missouri.

Herald editors are not responsible for the views and opinions expressed in articles or communications other than those of editorial authorship.

Entered as second-class matter at the post office at Independence, Missouri, under Act of March 3, 1879. Issued weekly at Independence, Missouri, except daily during the biennial General Conference. Price, $4.00 per year in advance in the U.S.A., its territories and possessions; Canada, $4.25 per year; other countries, $5.00 per year. Notice of a change of address must be given three weeks ahead of the date that it is to become effective. Accepted for mailing at the special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917, authorized July 21, 1921. Printed in the United States of America.

Glenn E. Johnston

WINNING OTHERS

AS A MISSIONARY the Apostle Paul was concerned "that I might by all means save some" (I Corinthians 9: 22). He wanted to be an instrument in God's hand in bringing salvation to others. This same desire should be ours especially since God has entrusted to our care for the last time in world history the establishment of his kingdom. This means that every member, every congregation, every department is called to the supreme task of winning new members for his church.

This belief is a part of our church philosophy and government. The General Conference of 1930 declared: "Missionary work should be regarded not as a separate department of the church enterprise but as one of the essential functions of every department" (G. C. R. 897). Thus, all should be engaged in the responsibility of missionary work, making known the good news of God's restored church to people wherever they may be found that they, too, may believe, find peace and salvation, and join in the great commission of building up his kingdom on earth.

If members everywhere would be seriously evangelistic in every phase of activity, the church would grow notably. I would like to offer the following seven points as important ways of winning others. I hope they will prove helpful to those desiring to witness.

Personal Witnessing

All members of the church should have the urge to tell others how much the restored gospel means to them. Their enthusiastic testimonies can encourage others to investigate. Many new converts have been won by becoming curious of what "he or she has that I do not have." Timely and tactful words here and there may be the means of opening the way for someone's conversion.

Prospects are everywhere. You live with them every day. You work with them, play with them, and some are your best friends. They serve you and wait on you. You may be worshiping with them. Perhaps they are your neighbors. They may even be some of your relatives. However, remember to use wisdom in your approach. If you don't, you may only disgust them and drive them away.

Literature

Our church is very fortunate in having well-printed, attractive books and tracts that can answer in detail questions people ask every day. It would be wise to become acquainted with your church publications, know the message they bear, and then distribute them when opportunity permits. Tracts are small leaflets that contain the church's views and beliefs on various subjects. Most of them are printed for missionary purposes. A tract catalogue can be obtained from the Herald House upon request. All members should have a number of funda-

I say unto you, that this church have I established and called forth out of the wilderness; and even so will I gather mine elect from the four quarters of the earth, even as many as will believe in me, and hearken unto my voice; . . . I say unto you, that the field is white already to harvest; wherefore, thrust in your sickle, and reap with all your might, mind, and strength . . . for lo, I am with you; yea, open your mouths and they shall be filled, saying, Repent, repent and prepare ye the way of the Lord, and make his paths straight; for the kingdom of heaven is at hand.—Doctrine and Covenants 32: 2.

mental tracts on hand, and pastors should make sure that a wide variety are made available at the church.

Friendship Groups

Your home can become a valuable instrument for helping the missionary when he comes into the area. Invite a small group of your friends to your home to talk together. Try to interest them in the gospel, and then ask the missionary to hold a cottage meeting if your friends are agreeable. There have been thousands of new members won this way. Your warm hospitality and friendliness are great assets.

Church School, Youth, and Women's Groups

Don't let nonmembers come and go time after time without trying to win them. They may be more interested in the church than you realize. They may be just waiting for some interest from you, perhaps even an invitation to join. Some need to feel that they are accepted within the group and church. Be alive to these opportunities. These prospects, young or old, could be of great value to the church and the means of opening doors to others.

Visiting Campaign

The visiting method has proved to be extremely profitable. It is done with the purpose of taking the gospel to neighbors and friends in a tactful manner. Being well trained and prepared for such missionary work is a necessity. Comments and advice should first be sought from the missionary or pastor. It is best to visit "two by two" for many good reasons. Home visiting is a worthwhile program for priesthood groups. The Lord commissioned his servants,

"Go out into the highways and hedges and compel [invite] them to come in" (Luke 14: 23).

Preaching and Teaching

The ministry should preach and teach to convert. Make every service a challenge for decisions. Nonmembers will be touched by your personal testimony. Be sincere. Pray and ask God to create in you the power to inspire and convert. No greater joy can come to anyone than to have some person make his decision as a result of your presentation.

Support the Visiting Missionary

Your missionary is trained in winning souls for Christ. No doubt he has had outstanding experiences that make him competent. Giving him your support is a vital and essential service. If he holds special services at the church, honor him and yourself by being there. You will be setting a good example for nonmember friends with your loyalty and at the same time will be gaining additional knowledge and inspiration for your own life. You will never grow too old in years or in the gospel to learn more.

Just as important as your personal attendance is bringing along that nonmember friend. The missionary's services should be preceded by good publicity, friendly visiting, an up-to-date prospect list, and other careful preparation. The missionary himself can do little in the short time usually allowed unless he is supported by a good spiritual foundation and background that comes from the members themselves.

No matter what your part is in winning others, God needs you and what you can offer. Give your efforts to this task, and you shall be richly rewarded. The master of men has promised:

And if it so be that you should labor all your days, . . . and bring save it be one soul unto me, how great shall be your joy with him in the kingdom of my Father! How great will be your joy, if you should bring many souls unto me! Behold, you have my gospel before you, and my Rock, and my salvation.—Doctrine and Covenants 16: 3 f, 4.

Witnessing is the evidence of your conviction!

We'd Like You to Know . . .

(Continued from page 2)

the exception of a five-dollar bill sent to him by the minister who converted him to the Episcopal faith, he made every cent of the money which brought him two doctor's degrees. And it all came about when he rescued a Colorado A. & M. catalog from the waste basket of the hotel where he was chef and made up his mind to put forth the effort to gain an education.

He has received many honors for his scholastic work. He is a member of Alpha Zeta; Alpha Gamma Rho; Phi Kappa Phi; Sigma Psi; Kappa Kappa Psi, an honorary musical society; Beta Beta Beta and Pi Sigma, honorary zoological societies. He is also a charter member of Alpha Omega Pi.

Dr. Jones is a charter member of the American Entomological Society, Washington, D. C.; the American Association for the Advancement of Science; the Colorado-Wyoming Academy of Science, and both charter member and organizer of the Rocky Mountain Entomological Society.

The keen interest Dr. Jones has in his field has inspired him to do a variety of writing. He has written a monograph on the Sgrphidae of Colorado and three laboratory guides for a course in invertebrate zoology. He has also written seventy-five or more papers based on research, along with innumerable timely hints on insect control.

He has done a lot of traveling and tackled many interesting occupations. He was born in Hastings, Nebraska, on October 17, 1879, but at nine years deserted the plains for the sea and spent two years as a cabin boy and in killing fur seals in the Alaskan waters. Next he spent three years on a passenger and freight steamer, traveling from Seattle to Frisco. At fourteen he decided to be a baker and spent eighteen months as an apprentice. After that he tried his hand at cooking in a mining camp in Washington. Later he worked in a large Colorado hotel and climbed from dishwasher to second cook to chef. Perhaps it was this experience that inspired him, later in life, to rise from the bottom rung in the zoology department at Colorado A. & M. to the highest position. For after a vacancy in the zoology department he was asked to take over the laboratory work; then he became associate professor and continued the climb to chairman of the department.

His hobbies have been as varied as his occupations. He has always enjoyed music. At Colorado A. & M. he was a member of the Bugle Corps for a year before organizing the band in which he played any instrument in the brass section, including the slide trombone. For thirty years he managed this band and enjoyed associating with the young people on twenty trips in and out of the state. (Only last year he was called back to manage the band on its state tour.) Perhaps it was this association that made him a successful proctor of the sophomore class for twenty years and manager of student activities at his alma mater. He played football in college, and while teaching coached tennis, after work, for sixteen years. He is still quite proficient in tennis. For thirty years he managed the college lyceum. Now he enjoys all types of cabinet and leather work, likes to fish, and to weave ladies' stoles.

Dr. Jones' wife, the former Lena Mae Gilkerson, was also a graduate of Colorado A. & M. Mrs. Jones died on January 29, 1958.

He has one daughter, Maurine Stimpson, of Fort Collins.

What Price Tranquility?

It seems tragic that everything comes with a price, even tranquility, peace, quiet, and rest.

There are numbers of different kinds of medicine, antidotes, pills, and capsules on the market designed to satisfy this need of man. These will produce, for a time, the desired results, but they are not lasting. People resorting to their use are helped only temporarily. They seem to be running away from life itself and the problems that must be met. They are not conquering these obstacles and thereby growing stronger to meet the next problem that comes their way.

But there is a permanent prescription for tranquility. Its price is high when measured by everyday values, but it is free to all who will live by faith in the promises given him.

This is the price we must pay: we must keep our heart free from hate, our mind free from worry. We must expect little and give much, fill our lives with love and service, forget ourselves in thinking of others, and above all do as we would be done by. In fact live by the golden rule.

Yes, the price is high, but with this will come tranquility, peace of mind, happiness, and "joy that passeth all understanding." This comes to individuals when they have made the world and the people around them happy. This state of mind comes from the inside out, not outside in.

And this is the reward that comes to those willing to pay the price—found in the promises of Lehi long ago—"Men are, that they might have joy." And again Jesus' promise as he left this earth, "My peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you."

EDITH S. ODOM

Life-sized painting on exhibit in National Museum of Anthropology in Mexico City showing archaeologist's conception of how the priest-king of Palenque may have looked at the time of burial in the Pyramid of the Inscriptions.

Photograph by Clair Weldon and Robert Turner

The Royal Tomb Of Palenque

By Clair E. Weldon

The Tomb in the Temple of Inscriptions Contradicts the Archaeologists' Theories

It Might Have Been

A HUSH FELL over the thousands thronged around the great pyramid. High above them the funeral procession paused in the temple entrance. The high priest's voice pierced upward: "O Great Itzamná, Lord of Heaven, Ruler of Day and Night, receive our king into thy realm." Then the straining bearers edged through the narrow opening in the temple floor and slowly descended the steep, vaulted stairway to the burial chamber in the heart of the pyramid. Padded footfalls echoed softly. Sputtering torches cast flickering shadows across richly sculptured walls. Into the cool hollow of a great stone sarcophagus, gentle hands eased the rigid form of their Noble One. A ponderous, ornate stone slab cover was set in place. Then the living retreated to the light of day far above.

Perhaps in this way the people of an early American sacred city, population over 100,000, buried their ruler in a majestic temple-crowned pyramidal monument standing tall amidst other pyramids, palaces, and temples. The time: seven hundred or eight hundred years after Christ. The people: the Indians of the Maya Old Empire. The place: now called Palenque (pronounced Pah-lehn-kay) in southern Mexico. After the burial, workers had filled the long vaulted stairway solidly with stone rubble and clay and had sealed the stairway entrance on the temple floor with a large stone slab, its pairs of finger-holes in each corner (for lifting) inconspicuously filled with stone plugs.

Unsolved Mystery

A century or two after the burial, the Mayan culture of the Old Empire came to an abrupt and mysterious end. The people of Palenque and other cities over a wide area either fled from climatic or economic calamity or were destroyed by epidemic or warfare. Temples, palaces, homes, and farmlands were completely abandoned. By perhaps nine hundred years after Christ, the once-flourishing metropolis of Palenque stood deserted and alone. All evidences of human occupation fell prey to the penetrating forces of time, climate, and vegetation. As the steadily mounting years fused into centuries, all but the stone buildings and other durable or protected objects decayed away into nothingness. Rain-saturated buildings sagged and tumbled. Luxuriant plant growth crept around and over all.

Through long centuries Palenque rested peacefully, its crumbling remains covered by nature's moist green mantle, its only inhabitants the humming, scurrying, flying creatures of the tropical rain forest. By the 1300's, when the Aztecs settled five hundred miles away by the volcano-girt waters of Tenochitlan in central Mexico, Palenque was all but completely hidden in the dense jungle. Vine-entangled trees towered serenely from its highest temple roofs. Jungle growth all but obscured even the great temple-crowned pyramid. Within, the royal burial chamber lay in dark silence.

Then, as foretold in legendary prophecies, from across the eastern waters came the bearded fire-wielding white men. In 1524, after the daring conquest of the mighty Aztec Empire, Cortes' expedition marched from Mexico City to Honduras, slogging through the miry swamps, passing within possibly thirty miles of Palenque, entirely ignorant of the great mystery already cloaked by six hundred years of green solitude. Forty years after Cortes passed, a Spanish Dominican friar founded the small village of Santo Domingo del Palenque in 1564. The ruins, only eight miles away, were apparently unknown to any of the villagers. Man probably rediscovered Palenque when native farmers, seeking new corn planting sites in the jungly

Drawing of interior of burial chamber inside the Pyramid of the Inscriptions. This drawing is on exhibit in the National Museum of Anthropology in Mexico City.

Photograph by Clair Weldon and Robert Turner

savannas, stumbled upon the crumbled remains sometime during the 1700's. The white man probably first saw them about 1750. Not until 1840, when Stephens and Catherwood visited there, did knowledge of Palenque's existence become widespread. The name "Palenque" is Spanish for "palisaded," or "cliffed," and is modern, named for the near-by village. We do not know the city's own original name.

Palenque's founders chose a magnificent location. Eighty miles inland from the Gulf of Mexico, the coastal plain ends against the abrupt escarpment of the Tumbalá Hills, first outriders of the rugged mountains of Chiapas. Palenque perches splendidly partway up this escarpment, three hundred feet above sea level, backed by the towering, densely jungled foothills, looking out eastward upon the gently undulating, sweltering savannas of the plain. The face of the tropical rain forest is everywhere: the overwhelming greenness, of myriad sizes and fantastic forms; the brilliant accent of colored flowers and plumage; the heavy, nostril-filling scents of moist vegetation and decaying undergrowth; the intriguing sounds of dripping, humming, swishing, punctuated by a squawk or screech; the oozing, slippery, glistening, steaming surfaces; the intense sunshine piercing the low, gray, hair-triggered clouds; and brooding over all, the sense of muted time and perplexing mystery.

The Palenque ruins stretch out for five miles. In the central section are several large stone buildings: a many-apartmented palace three hundred by two hundred and twenty-five feet surmounted by a four-story tower, and eight pyramidal structures raising temples skyward. One, the Pyramid and Temple of the Cross (so named by scientists) featured the six by ten foot Tablet of the Cross, now displayed in Mexico City's National Museum of Anthropology. Seventy feet up, atop Palenque's largest and tallest pyramid, is the Temple of the Inscriptions. Among this temple's floor slabs was the one with pairs of corner-lifting holes, beneath it the solidly filled stairway, and far below, the royal burial chamber. Archaeologists have worked at Palenque off and on during the last seventy-five years or so. The main buildings have been cleared. Native caretakers continually hack back the rapidly advancing vegetation. Some rebuilding has been done, but it is only a bare beginning.

Visitors used to reach Palenque only by a tedious river and saddle trip. Now a recently completed railroad, which circles from the Mexican mainland through the jungle wastes to the Yucatan peninsula, passes within a few miles of the village and ruins of Palenque, with which it is connected by a road of sorts. Occasionally unscheduled light planes skip bravely down onto a so-called landing strip, a rough stretch of gravel beside the railroad bed. But even today relatively few people visit Palenque.

American Pyramids

The ancient civilizations of Mexico and Central America built many pyramids. Two near Mexico City are notable: the Pyramid of the Sun, over two hundred feet high and about seven hundred feet long on one side at the base; and the Pyramid of Cholula, its base covering more ground area than any other pyramid in the world. Pyramids in America! Perhaps the idea of the pyramid came to America from Egypt, by migration of people or by cultural diffusion.

Most archaeologists, however, point to a fundamental difference between Egyptian and American pyramids. The pyramids of Egypt are tremendous tombs for the burial of nobility, with many passageways and chambers inside. The American pyramids are pedestals for elevating temples and places of worship built on their flat tops, reached by stairways up the outside; scientists believed they had no passageways or chambers inside but were completely solid structures of rubble and soil. Scientists believe the pyramidal form developed independently and by chance in both Egypt and America without cultural contacts between the two. They say that the similarity of appearance is merely superficial and that the use of the pyramid by both peoples shows a universal tendency for human

Diagram painting of the Pyramid of the Temple of the Inscriptions by Artist Simon Creco, published first in "Life Magazine" (April 27, 1953) with article, "Pyramid's Secret: Unique Discovery Reveals Ruler's Tomb in Maya Mound."

Death mask, containing over 200 pieces of jade, placed over the face of the priest-king of Palenque at the time of his burial in the pyramid. The eyes are of white shell, inset with obsidian to form the iris. (Now on display in the National Museum of Anthropology in Mexico City.)

Photograph by Clair Weldon and Robert Turner

culture to develop along somewhat similar lines. A few investigations, such as digging a tunnel through the seven-hundred-foot thickness of the Pyramid of the Sun and finding nothing but solid rubble, satisfied the belief that the American pyramids were merely solid pedestals, not burial monuments.

Palenque's eight pyramids, too, were solid (as far as was known) pedestals supporting temples. In 1949, Mexico's National Institute of Anthropology and History sent Mexican Archaeologist Alberto Ruz to Palenque to further restore the Temple of the Inscriptions and its seventy-foot high supporting pyramid. One day, examining the temple's floor, Señor Ruz noticed again that flagstone with the peculiar holes (filled originally with stone plugs). Through the years many visitors, including the world's most eminent archaeologists, had walked across that stone, entirely unaware of the twelve-hundred-year-old mystery yawning beneath in the dark, silent heart of the pyramid.

Senior Ruz' Discovery

On this day in 1949 Señor Ruz puzzled again about those holes. Then, by fortunate chance, he glanced across to where the stones of the floor met the temple walls. Normally Maya temple walls rest on and are built up from the heavy floor slabs. But this floor ended at the wall; the wall stones went down below the floor slabs. Other scientists had seen that before, but they attached no significance to it. Fortunately, Archaeologist Ruz did. It was one of those happy moments of keen scientific observation combined with simple intuition and curiosity. Could those peculiar holes be lifting holes? Could the unique wall construction mean there might be something under that floor?

Eagerly workmen raised the great slab revealing nothing but packed dirt and stones. Digging down a bit, they were about to give up and fill in the foolish idea when "ti-inng!" a shovel struck something very heavy and solid. Redoubled efforts soon revealed a great horizontal stone beam twelve inches thick, its ends embedded in stone walls converging upwards. Pressing down six more feet, the workmen came upon a step made of stone slabs finished with stucco. Ecstatically Señor Ruz realized they were in the upper part of a vaulted Maya room, five feet wide, perhaps a stairway, beckoning them irresistibly down toward the heart of the supposedly solid pyramid. Was there some great discovery awaiting them inside the pyramid, or just a sickening disappointment? They wanted to find out, and quickly.

The Hard Way

But the secret of Palenque's amazing pyramid would elude them for four trying years, from 1949 to 1952. There were many barriers and handicaps. Archaeological work is inherently cautious and time-consuming. Palenque's long rainy season, dumping eighty saturating inches of rainfall annually, leaves only two or three months in the late spring conducive to archaeological work. Through the humid centuries the rubble filling the stairway had become hard packed. The workers had to break it up bit by bit with hand tools, carry it in buckets by hand or on a rope pulley up through the small opening in the temple floor and dump it outside the pyramid. The only fresh air for the eight or ten sweating workers came through the same opening. A fuming gasoline lantern fouled the air during the first season. By the next year a gasoline engine set up outside powered a small electric light. But there was no remedy for the choking dust and clammy humidity. The deeper they went, the fouler the air and the harder and slower the progress.

Even so, morale was high. There was much speculative banter about the stairway's purpose. One archaeologist expressed solemnly the opinion that it was a fire escape! A worker jokingly prodded Señor Ruz, "Are you looking for the lost city like in the cine (movie) I saw of some 'gringo' explorers in a subterranean passage?" Ruz kidded back, "No, Lupe; but maybe we'll find a trap for grave-robbers like in some of the Egyptian pyramids. You know—you pull out a certain stone, and the roof falls on you!" "All right, Jefe," retorted the workman, "but at least I'd have a better tomb than at the village cemetery—and that's not all, I'd not be alone. You would be with me!"

During the 1949 season, twenty-three steps were cleared down the well-made stairway. In 1950, 23 more steps were cleared and a landing reached, where the stairway turned abruptly back toward the center of the pyramid. As each brief season ended and anticipation grew keener, Ruz would announce expectantly, "Next season we'll solve the mystery!" Before sending her husband off for the 1952 season, Señora Ruz somewhat jokingly warned him he'd better not come back until he found what it was!

In this, their fourth season, the trail grew warmer. They had now reached the seventy-first and last step and were slowly clearing their way along a level corridor which they calculated to be seventy-three feet below the temple floor and about level with the ground outside. Then came an exasperating barrier. A heavy masonry wall blocked the corridor for what proved to be twelve solid feet. After a full week of the expedition's most tortured labor—the mortar so strong that the stones often broke in pieces rather than separating from each other at the joints, and the damp lime burning and cracking the workmen's hands—they broke through into easier going again. Just beyond was a roughly made box of stone, its contents calling up a grisly scene. Apparently the ancients had sacrificed six youths at the time of burial. Their warm bodies had been crammed into this 5-by-5-by-2-foot receptacle. Señor Ruz believes they were possibly buried alive after first being stupefied by some native drug.

Amazing Find

Finally the corridor ended, with only a blank wall straight ahead. But in the left wall was a monstrous triangular stone eight feet high, five feet wide at the base, and obviously weighing several tons. A workman, probing around its edges, shouted in delight as his crowbar suddenly sank away into nothingness. A small hole was hurriedly chiseled out, the electric light shoved inside, and Ruz peered in. In astonishment he gazed upon a scene which had lain in lonely darkness for over one thousand years. It seemed fantastic and unreal, but here in the heart of the pyramid was a spacious chamber dominated by a huge altar! Rain waters seeping through the limestone pyramid had coated ceilings and walls with glistening white lime. Oozing stalactites dripped down to their thin fellows below. It reminded Ruz of an abandoned chapel.

After two days of hard labor to swing the massive block enough for a man to edge through, Señor Ruz stepped softly inside on June 15, 1952. The room was ten feet wide by thirty feet long, and its sloping side walls converged at a point twenty-two feet above the floor. Five massive, perfectly wrought stone beams strengthened the ceiling horizontally. The chamber seemed comparatively enormous, considering its location in the heart of the pyramid, pressed upon by untold thousands of tons. Marching in low-relief sculpture across the moist, lime-coated walls were the larger-than-natural-sized figures of nine sumptuously-garbed priests, possibly the "Nine Lords of the Night" of the Maya religion.

At first, the discoverers thought they were in a "holy-of-holies," where the ancients conducted their most sacred and secret rites. The chamber's main feature was a great stone table "altar," for so it appeared to be, an ornately sculptured stone slab seven feet wide, twelve feet long and one foot thick (later calculated to weigh six tons) supported by a stone "block" three feet high. The deep, perfectly preserved carvings on the slab's face form a symbolic religious diagram.

Fifty-four striking hieroglyphs fringe the edges. Of these, scientists could interpret only a few, which were calendar dates, two of which correspond to the dates A.D. 603 and January 27, A.D. 633 of the Christian calendar. The extreme upper section portrays the universe, with glyphs representing the sun, the moon, and the two stars Polaris and Venus. In the center is an ornamented cross, similar to the crosses found on other stone tablets at Palenque. The two arms of the cross end in the wide-open mouths of a two-headed serpent. Perched stonily atop the cross is a quetzal bird with the face of the Maya Rain God. Below the cross appears the figure of a youth, seated in a backward-reclining position on the mask of the Maya earth monster. Archaeologist Ruz says of this stone tablet: "I interpret the scene as symbolizing the yearning of man for an afterlife. . . . He (the central figure) is doomed by fate to be swallowed by the earth, on which he reclines. But in hope of eternal life he gazes fervently at the cross."¹

Supporting the altar slab was a massive stone block seven feet wide, ten feet long, and three feet high. Was it solid? The archaeologists decided to drill an experimental hole. A hand-turned stone auger ground and squeaked through several painfully monotonous days, and then with a crunch the bit sank through into nothingness. The base of the "altar" was a hollow stone receptacle! The great stone slab would have to be raised. With heavy-duty builders' jacks and days of tedious labor, the workmen cautiously inched the six-ton slab upward and blocked it with short trunk sections of the heaviest and strongest trees in the region. Underneath, between the great slab above and the stone receptacle below, was a second inner cover of thin stone, seven feet long and thirty inches wide, with pairs of holes just like those in the slab on the temple floor seventy feet above them: Lifting holes! Breathless with excitement, Ruz shoved the light to one hole and pressed his eye to another.

His first blurred impression was of a colored mosaic, green, red, and white.

Photograph of an authentic drawing, on exhibit in the National Museum of Anthropology in Mexico City, of the sculptured low-relief design on the face of the great stone slab which covered the sarcophagus inside the burial chamber in the Pyramid of the Inscriptions.

Photograph by Clair Weldon and Robert Turner

Pyramid of the Sun, ruins of San Juan de Teotihuacan, near Mexico City.

Photograph by Clair Weldon

Quickly his eye focused. Finally, four impatient years after finding the beginning of the stairway, Ruz gazed into the heart of the mystery . . . green jade ornaments mingled with white bones and teeth, partly covered by a fine reddish dust. This was not an altar but a stupendous sarcophagus, the first ever found in a Maya pyramid! Ruz was staring into the death face of an ancient priest-king of Palenque! The moldering skeleton lay in a contoured basin hollowed out of one great block of solid stone. The decayed bones and fragile skull were those of an apparently robust man about forty or fifty years old, about five feet eight inches tall. Laid out full length, he had probably been richly attired, but only the barest traces of textile had survived the humid centuries. Jade jewels, prized more than gold by the ancients, were profusely in evidence. There were rings for every finger, bracelets, ear ornaments, exquisitely carved figurines, all of polished cool-green jade. A large ornament of jade beads had rested on the neck and shoulders. Covering the face had been a mosaic jade mask composed of over two hundred pieces of jade (now fallen apart) with eyes of shell inset with black obsidian to form the iris.

Delegation from Headquarters

It was on November 27, 1952, that Señor Ruz made this sensational discovery. The report soon reached our church leaders interested in Book of Mormon archaeology. By coincidence four church members, including Page Bruch, Kenneth Raveill, and Ward Weldon, were then packing for a photographic expedition to southern Mexico. Apostle Charles R. Hield rushed word of the discovery, urging that a single photograph of the royal crypt might make the whole trip worth while if nothing else were photographed. On December 23, 1952, less than a month after Señor Ruz first gazed into the sarcophagus, we were in Palenque. The tomb had just been opened up for visitors. As we approached the pyramid, cameras in hand, the Indian worker in charge, who was to guide us inside to see the crypt, announced that photographs of the interior were forbidden. Only the archaeologists and approved representatives of the press (a Life Magazine photographer had just been there) were allowed to make photographs. But we needed a picture. As we stood quietly conversing with the guide in Spanish, describing the church's interest in the great civilizations of his forefathers and in the evidences that Jesus Christ had been among them, we felt the confirming warmth of the Holy Spirit. The guide agreed to allow one camera. Through steel bars now barring the crypt entrance, Brother Ken Raveill flashed the color slides of the chamber's interior and the great sculptured tablet featuring the cross.

Archaeological Upset

The 1952 discovery at Palenque startled the world of American archaeology. Here, in a pyramid in America, an ancient Indian monarch was buried in a setting as magnificent as many of the pyramidal tombs of Egypt. The Palenque pyramid, like those of Egypt, had been planned and built from the first as a tremendous burial monument. The burial chamber was not a hollowed-out afterthought. The ponderous stone slab and sarcophagus could not possibly have been carried down the steep, narrow stairway! Nor can they now be carried out—they will stay in their original position. Possibly hundreds of men worked long hard years to construct the pyramid and its chamber. Apparently a six-foot-deep depression was made in open ground, the sarcophagus installed with its cover by its side, the chamber walls and ceiling built, then the pyramid slowly heaped up over the whole thing, the interior stairway rising in pace with the pyramid, and the temple finally added on the seventy-foot-high summit. Then, after the pyramid's completion, the unknown Great One's cold remains were laid to rest and the six-ton stone slab inched into place over the sarcophagus. The ancients then sealed off the tomb (they thought) from humankind.

Obviously this royal burial chamber in an American pyramid suggests a possible relationship with Egyptian culture. At first, archaeologists were stunned and perplexed by its discovery. The theory that American pyramids had developed entirely independently of any association with Egyptian culture, because American pyramids were solid pedestals elevating places of worship, was staggered at least momentarily. En route to Palenque in 1952 we encountered a pair of archaeology students from Mexico City, who lamented, "This explodes all our previous theories about the American pyramids." But the archaeologists, despite the Palenque discovery, have returned to their earlier theory. It will undoubtedly take more than this single though striking exception to disprove their rule. Today they view the Palenque discovery as a unique and fascinating example of how two widely separated cultures can, by independent and parallel development, so closely resemble each other in some aspects. Writing for publication several months after discovering the burial, Archaeologist Ruz stated: "The whole arrangement, of course, reminds one of the Egyptian pyramids, which were built as tombs for the Pharaohs. . . . Human nature is much the same the world over and, given similar conditions, its reactions and constructions will be somewhat the same. Parallel evolution, not diffusion, is my explanation."²

Of Book of Mormon Significance

We are very interested in the Palenque discovery because of its relation to the Book of Mormon. This inspired book, containing the plain fullness of Christ's gospel to the Gentiles and to Israel, is a key part of the Restoration, a major tool in the hands of Christ and his church to accomplish the great latter-day work. Its tremendous spiritual value has not yet been fully assessed. Its divinely given purposes and promises are not yet all fulfilled. As President Israel A. Smith stated to the assembled Conference-appointed ministers at the close of the 1956 General Conference: "In this matter of witnessing I have felt that the greatest instrument of success which the Lord ever placed in our hands is the Book of Mormon."³

The Book of Mormon does not depend for "proof" on the bones and stones of archaeology. The same unchangeable God reigns and reveals himself today as when the prophet Daniel testified to Nebuchadnezzar, "There is a God in heaven that revealeth secrets." The truth of the Book of Mormon is confirmed by the Spirit of God to those who humbly ask in faithful prayer with the intent to do good. But the presentation of archaeological evidences supporting the authenticity of the Book of Mormon record is one of many interesting approaches to new people. Used wisely for testifying of God and Christ, it strikes a note of impelling interest and has often helped open the door for the further teaching of Christ's gospel.

The discovery of the Egyptian-like pyramidal burial chamber of Palenque tends to confirm a new segment of the Book of Mormon history. The Nephite colonists who came from Jerusalem about 600 B.C. probably brought with them to America various concepts borrowed from their Egyptian neighbors, such as ideas of writing, architecture, mathematics, science, and religion. The Book of Mormon plates were inscribed with a type of Egyptian characters which had been changed or "reformed" by independent Nephite usage until it was somewhat different from the classic Egyptian. (See I Nephi 1:1; Mosiah 1:6; and Mormon 4:98-100.) The words "Egypt," and "Egyptian," occur in over twenty-five places in the Book of Mormon. It does not speak of "pyramids" because that word is of more modern origin. However, in about twenty-five places it does mention "towers"—meaning tall or large structures—and in some instances that word may possibly refer to the pyramidal buildings so common in the ruined cities left by Book of Mormon peoples.

The single discovery at Palenque does not absolutely prove that parts of Egyptian culture were brought to America. But it does set the door ajar. There may be more light beyond. There are scores of ancient pyramids in ruined cities scattered through Mexico, Guatemala, and Honduras. Are there other burial chambers inside some of these? Time will tell. Who could say what amazing evidences might yet be found among the remains of Book of Mormon peoples! Perhaps a sculptured scene of Christ blessing the little children or Nephite priesthood performing water baptism!

Conversation Piece

Church members interested in Book of Mormon archaeology should make themselves well informed about the Palenque discovery. In cottage-meeting work, it adds fresh impact and fascination. For storytelling situations, it has the intriguing elements of great adventure.

Many of our church members visit Mexico. Those who cannot view the burial chamber at isolated Palenque will find a realistic substitute in a detailed, life-sized reproduction of the Palenque crypt in the National Museum of Anthropology in Mexico City. From the modern aisles of this world-renowned museum the visitor walks down a few steps and back through the misty veil of time as he enters the "burial chamber," gazes down upon an exact replica of the great stone slab featuring the cross, and continues down to look into the replica "sarcophagus" upon the scientists' reconstruction of the figure as it may have looked at burial. The actual jade mosaic mask (now reassembled) and other objects found with the burial are exhibited there.

For specific information on the discovery of the burial chamber, see "PALLENQUE—OFFICIAL GUIDE" (nineteen page archaeological guide in English), official publication of the Instituto Nacional de Antropología E Historia, available at nominal cost from Museo Nacional de Antropología, Calle Moneda, México D.F., México. Two national magazine articles featured the discovery. In the Saturday Evening Post for April

The great Pyramid of Cholula east of Mexico City—the world's largest in terms of ground area covered by its base. Photograph by Clair Weldon

29, 1953, beginning page 30, "The Mystery of the Mayan Temple," by Alberto Ruz L. as told to Dr. J. Alden Mason; and in Life Magazine, April 27, 1953, pages 70 to 74, "Pyramid's Secret: Unique Discovery Reveals Ruler's Tomb in Maya Mound."

Herald House can supply duplicates of 35 mm. Kodachrome slides of the pyramid and the chamber's interior ("Book of Mormon Research Slide Library," interior shots are Palenque 30-PA-50, 51, and 52) as well as 8 by 10-inch glossy black and white photographs of the Palenque pyramid and other archaeological scenes.

To share in a major research project on the Book of Mormon, contact the Committee for Book of Mormon Research, care of Herbert Scott, 916 W. Lexington Avenue, Independence, Missouri, or Roy Weldon, Route 5, Warrensburg, Missouri.

For information on Book of Mormon archaeology in general, and a mimeographed guide to archaeological locations in Mexico, contact the church Society for Archaeological Research, the Auditorium, Independence, Missouri.

¹ The Mystery of the Mayan Temple, by Alberto Ruz L., Saturday Evening Post, April 29, 1953, page 98. Reprinted by special permission of the Saturday Evening Post. Copyright 1953 by the Curtis Publishing Company.

² Ibid., page 98.

³ Closing statement of Israel A. Smith, 1956 Conference Daily Edition of Saints' Herald, Number 8, April 15, 1956, front page.

Invest in Men

A well-known stockbroker was once approached by a friend. "Jim," the friend asked, "what is the most important investment you ever made?"

"That's easy," the broker answered. "But first let me explain. The greatest investment I ever made was not in the stock market. It was in the lives of men, and it didn't cost me a cent—just a little time, some advice, a cheery word, a bit of encouragement, a smile. And for this—what dividends! Men did things they had thought impossible. Teen-agers were spared the suffering which comes from delinquency. Happiness was put into the lives of the lonely." The broker smiled. "Yes," he said wistfully, "the greatest investment I ever made was in the lives of others and—who knows—if I continue to set the example, the idea might spread. Then someday I might see people everywhere making similar investments."

EDGAR PILLSBURY

I Had an Experience

Seventy Robert I. Wakeman

TO SINGLE out one experience which is more indicative than another of God's love for me is difficult. Since becoming a member of this church in 1936 I have had a number of experiences which have served to establish my faith in God and this work. To say that one is the greatest would not be right, for each experience has served its purpose and supports and connects my increasing faith. This experience, however, stands out, as it has proved to be the one which put all of the past into the use that God had intended.

Four years after I moved from Independence to Uvalde, Texas, events served to cause me to seek other means of employment. I found instead of just one available job that I could make the choice of four or five. By this time I had come to realize that my destiny and desires were inseparably linked with God's purposes. I checked each position so that I might know how it would affect this service to God, and each seemed to my mind to be workable in every way.

One Sunday evening as my family and I were returning from a day of ministry in and around Pearsall, my mind returned again to the problem at hand. Probably for the first time in my life I realized that with my own resources I could not make the right choice, as I did not know the mind of God. As I drove along, I silently poured out my concern. I told God that if I were to make the right choice he would have to let me know in a way that I could be sure of. This thought had hardly passed from my mind till a voice that shook me told me to "seek to go under church appointment." Just as quickly my mind rejected this as not being possible, and again the same experience took place, leaving no doubt as to the source.

My wife and children were asleep and I didn't waken them but continued to ponder and think on what had happened. I finally shared the experience with my wife; her response was "I am ready." I still had little understanding of what I should do but felt impelled to act and therefore set out for Independence where I could get a better answer. As I drove it seemed there was a presence with me, and I have never known such joy. I felt no weariness and continued to drive the entire one thousand miles without stopping except for gas and a bite to eat.

I arrived at my father's house in Independence. He had been sent a telegram that I was coming but was not given the reason. I couldn't wait to tell him and my mother of the experience. After I had told them, Dad very solemnly said that Mother had had a dream on Monday night which covered the same thing that I had just related. We realized, of course, the procedures that were to take place, but it wasn't a surprise to us when we received a letter from the Presidency of the church, accepting us for appointment.

Since that time many experiences have caused me to realize that God had been slowly but positively preparing me for the work which I am now doing. The past four years of missionary work have been the fullest and happiest of my own life, and likewise the lives of my family. I would not like to convey the idea that this experience means this is the usual way one is brought under church appointment, but it does serve to show that God is a personal God and that he is concerned with each of us and will speak to and guide us in the manner that we need.

Summering with the Church in Europe

Part IV

THE AIRPORT AT FRANKFORT, Germany, looks like a park with its floral landscaping. Detained in the main waiting room, I became interested in three men—an elderly one and two younger men. Quite a controversy was going on between them and the man at the customs counter. Crestfallen, they finally opened their suitcases and displayed the contents, cans and cans and cans of Nescafe! (The one pound of coffee I had in mine had cost us fifty cents duty.)

Soon we were flying to Hannover, wondering if we would miss anyone who might have come to meet us at such a crowded and busy terminal. But we practically walked into the arms of Missionary Vern Webb and Apostle Don Lents. It was almost like being home again!

I told about the International Whitsuntide Conference at Hannover in Part I. Now I shall tell of the women's work there and elsewhere in Germany.

The women in Germany are trying to follow the programs outlined to them by the General Women's Council by using reports brought back by returning General Conference delegates and by correspondence with emigrant members. Mostly they meet twice a month in the afternoon. They are called the women's group and prefer to have study programs. The main group in Hannover is using a German book, The Bible as History, for a text. Sister Helene Korschinow has been the able leader for several years. With Dallas Webb, wife of our young missionary, assisting, their work should prosper. Many families in Hannover live so far apart that the women cannot afford strassenbahn (streetcar fare) to attend weekday gatherings, hence there are few organized women's groups. These few meet in the pastor's pleasant office, which is the front room of the church building.

Most of our German women do excellent handwork, but they do it as a matter-of-course, not considering it a talent, or special gift, or stewardship. Those who enjoy sewing meet occasionally and make articles for sale. In one project they earned $50.00 and with this money bought material for forty-one sacks to cover the air mattresses during the Whitsun conference. Our German sisters are energetic and efficient, and they are unusually good housekeepers. They love color. They are cheerful people. They have very "green thumbs"! Their plants thrive indoors and out. Gay blooming ones sit in the windows.

In Hamburg the women's work has been started several times. Distances are so great in this huge metropolis that members cannot afford to attend church affairs during the week. Some have to travel more than ninety minutes for church privileges. Organized work among the women is at present discontinued. Four members are not physically well enough to undertake the ride. Also many women work away from home. Therefore the Sabbath day is especially remembered, kept sort of doubly holy. Sunday services are held in a home or school and are not to be denied if all goes well.

THREE WOMEN I know of have been instrumental in starting and in reviving women's work in Hamburg. They are Elfrida Elsner; Hilde Stüve, wife of missionary Oskar Stüve; and Hettie Zacharias, who was active with Kurt, her husband, in this German mission after the close of World War II when they returned from Australia, Hettie's native land. Speaking English, they did much translating of Saints' Herald material into articles for the German Herald which they edited. Now they are busy and useful in Independence, having emigrated in July, 1954.

Concerning our women's work Missionary Stüve confided, "The men go for little groups and parties, but the women do not go so much for them!" Then he explained why, "Our children go to school only in the morning, so the mothers have to be home in the afternoon. Also since almost everyone lost his assets during the war, many of our women have to work and their energies are used up." We realize how difficult it must be to carry on when so much time as well as money just has to be spent if one takes even a small part in church work. However, the women in Hamburg have accomplished many things for the mission, among these being the working up of little hymnals which were in use before they could have their Leider der Heiligen. Also through their sales projects they purchased a Communion set from Herald House.

The church women of Elmshorn and Utersen, two little farm towns in the Hamburg area, have always been a successful group we are told. Just now they are not meeting because of much illness, long distances, and long work hours. There is Emmi Lentfer, who had complete charge of the women's work all during the war. She and her helpers (some were sixty-five years old and older) walked about six miles to their women's meetings those days, not deterred even by bad weather. The North Sea and the Baltic with the big ocean channel running near by cause fog, rain, and ice at times. But they said, "We have an appointment with Jesus. He will be present, and so we have to be present. We cannot afford to disappoint him." Emmi is a musician. She writes her own poems and sets them to music. Her voice was true and sweet as she sang to us in 1951. Pray for her, as she is enduring a discouraging illness. She and her mother, Sister Meyer, are lovable, faithful women.

Also there is Sister Meta Sass, tall, white-haired, energetic, and of cheerful countenance. We met them all again last summer at a cottage meeting in Utersen, held in the home of Sister Ahlborne. Here Mark confirmed eight-year-old Harm Stüve at his request. He had been baptized at the Hannover conference by his father.

IN SPRINGE my husband spent an evening visiting the sick with Brother Webb; it was an evening he remembers with pleasure. Among our German members in Independence is Sister Elli Rosenthal who came from Springe, and who was baptized there by Missionary Eugene Theys. Brother Theys and Brother Blair Jensen surely "got around" judging from the inquiries about them and the messages of good will sent to them from many places. There is a "small but spiritually strong" group in Springe under the leadership of Sister Lina Tegtmeier, whose daughter Christa is excellent help and who was introduced in the September, 1957, issue of Stride. Sister Marlies Kirsch, the pastor's wife, "a strong and humble woman," and Sister Else Klemm, are devoted and active assistants. Sister Kirsch does the typing for Christa, whose hobby is translating English church material into German. She sees that the youth get many Stride articles that way. Christa will begin a two-year course at Graceland this fall. Then she plans to return to Germany, for she with other young adults realize the problems and needs of the church abroad, and they are dedicated to help build the kingdom there. The cry of the church everywhere is for leaders and devotion.

In Braunschweig, quite near the Eastern Zone border, we have a small but very active group of women led by Else Karsten, of whom the whole German Mission is proud. Our church women in both Berlin Zones have been devoted and consecrated through the years, enduring many frustrations we cannot imagine. We did not go into West Berlin this time, but in 1951 I was impressed by the animation of these Saints. These women were led for a number of years by Sister Else Zapke, who was succeeded by young Sister Helga Krebs. Our church was the first built in West Berlin after World War II. It is located on Fontane Promenade, a wide boulevard with a landscaped center strip. The entrance door is attractive and artistic. I shall never forget the bounteous lunch the women prepared on Sunday in the church dining room downstairs. Mark and I spent most of that week in West Berlin. The choicest long-stemmed roses from their gardens were pressed into my arms, and I was humbled to see the happiness and desire to please shining in their faces. I tried hard to please when I greeted them through an interpreter and told them of our efforts over here to build the kingdom through Christlike homes and Christian treatment of each other. I said that we need each other, east and west, and that the Zion groups which form anywhere, everywhere, contribute to and are necessary to the strength of the whole—a spiritual telepathy radiating courage and unity of faith to all concerned. They are a working, studying group. Times were hard for them and are hard for them now.

THE SISTERS in East Berlin have always been an active group, we were told. As a matter of safety for the members no names or special mention can be made. There is a church-appointed Seventy in East Berlin whose brother and wife in West Berlin did much to make our visit there memorable. So did the Buttgens—Andrew, Maria, and son Gerd. Their acquaintance here is wide. When Andrew became acquainted with our church in 1928 he went through his mother's old Heralds and clipped photographs of church leaders and church buildings and mounted them in the extra pages of his "three books." He came into the church in 1930 and emigrated to the States in 1953, arriving in Independence on December 1. Their first Sunday in the Stone Church he awaited no formalities but made his way to those he recognized to greet them. All three members of the family do something extra together on December 1, including a call on their sponsor. They are still attending school for English improvement in Kansas City and have brought their teacher out to meet our church people. Otto and Frieda Smolney came to the States about the same time. Otto's eighty-four-year-old father, an elder, remains in Berlin, beloved by all. In Berlin the Sabbath was the big day for all, when the Saints from the East Zone came over for the day. I marveled at their exuberant spirits and shall always remember how the air rang with their auf wiedersehen as they parted from each other and from us. They rely on us fortunate ones never to forget them in our prayers. The strength of such faith and zeal under peculiarly trying circumstances is something to fill one with awe and reverence.

WHEN WE LEFT Hannover Conference we expected to go by train to Hamburg and stay in a hotel. We didn't dream of possibly becoming "Oma" and "Opa" to three little folk and of also being looked after by their parents. Well, when Hilde and Oskar Stüve looked us straight in the eye and said, "Yes, we do have room in our house, plenty. And we have room in our car, too. Come right along and see," we went home with them. Our baggage disappeared somewhere in the car. Hilde and little Birgit sat with Oskar and young Harm in the front seat; Master Wolfgang, Mark, and I rode in back, and away we went on a delightful 140-mile drive from Hannover to Hamburg.

And there was room! All the change made was to open up the bed couch in the living room and use it themselves. ("Why not? It is what we had for our first years!" they countered.) We were ushered into the big bedroom, where was the customary fluffy down coverlet rising in cloudlike puffs all over the bed. We enjoyed sleeping under these covers throughout our journey. While we were at the Hannover Conference Oskar took us to spend time with Patriarch and Sister Franz Beil, stalwarts of the German Mission. They were at one time tempted to emigrate to the States, but eventually they decided to give their lives to the German Mission. They are "cheerful in their warfare" and will surely be "joyful in their triumph." We were thrilled to sit at their same table in the same apartment and dine with them again. The photos of daughter and family and of son and family hung framed for constant company. The son Walter came to Independence with his bride in 1952; now they have a young daughter. With the Otto Smolneys and the Wade Liggetts (Ursula) they are building modern brick homes, mostly with their own hands. I say "they," for the girls are artisans, too, and know how to help. All are contributing to Zion the beauty of the work of their own hands.

Another time, as a favor to us, Oskar drove us out a long way to locate a German Lutheran family whom we had known through a correspondence after the war and whom we had met in 1951. Here are young people to be cultivated, who hope in time to emigrate. Also he took us to visit with the sister and family of Ursula Pavlowski Liggett, who resides here in Independence. Ursula's experience in emigrating from East Berlin after the war, her courage, her eventual conversion and in time her marriage are most interesting and inspiring. The pleasure of meeting "Gertie" again, her children and her doctor husband, was great. Next we drove into a pretty little wooded town to meet young Harold Kobolitz (a nephew of Kurt Zacharias), who sailed for Independence the next week. Harold was baptized recently.

One day we all enjoyed a boat ride on the historic Elbe River, chugging past huge shipyards lined with ships of all types, backed with skies pierced by innumerable church spires. This was an education in itself. Another rare treat was the drive to a thousand-year-old city. We saw miles and miles of the beautiful countryside, fruitful farm lands, gardens, and waterways. There were also many thatch-roofed houses; these are seen all over Europe and in Iceland. We dropped in to visit with Oskar Stüve's youthful mother who lives in a quaint little resort town on a pretty lake. As we drove along, we listened to Oskar tell of his experiences as a soldier during the war, of his dreams of the future of the church, of his joy in his priesthood, and of his conversion, which he attributes to the efforts and understanding of a saintly woman, his mother-in-law. Oskar is a real missionary. What a stalwart disciple he will be with the seasoning of the coming years!

Home Column

MARCH 10, 1958

(231) 15

A Team of "San" Nurses Serve a Sister Institution in Its Hour of Need

Mercy Mission to Graceland

ASIAN FLU HIT Graceland hard last October. The resulting epidemic was one of the most unforgettable experiences of the school year.

Equally unforgettable was the mercy mission of four nurses from the Independence Sanitarium and Hospital who drove to Lamoni one rainy night to help meet the emergency.

It was October 22 when illness on the campus reached epidemic proportions. Late in the afternoon Dr. William S. Gould, acting president, called the "San" requesting additional nursing care and medications.

"San" administrators selected nurses and packed medical supplies. At 9:45 p.m. the nurses with supplies left for Lamoni.

Looking back on the experience, A. Neal Deaver, hospital administrator, said, "It was a dismal night with rain coming down hard. But strangely, those girls were eager to answer the call for help. In fact, when word got around the hospital that a team was going to Graceland to help in the emergency, we had about twenty nurses volunteer."

The team consisted of Jean Clark, R. N., hospital night supervisor; and three senior student nurses, Jean Hodges, Cleada Reinosky, and Lois Ultican.

The nurses were given surveillance along their route by the Missouri Highway Patrol.

They arrived at the college at 1 a.m. and found the regular college nurse and a part-time assistant both ill. About 150 students were sick with the flu. Amy Grace Platz, a registered nurse and student at Graceland, was near exhaustion after several days of being on call twenty-four hours a day.

The college infirmary was full. Sick students were being cared for on cots and mattresses spread on the floors of Walker and Gunsolley dormitories. The college faculty and many students were working in shifts to feed and care for the victims of the epidemic.

"We found them out of aspirin and alcohol," said Miss Clark. There were only a dozen thermometers to take the temperature of nearly three hundred students every day.

"Our standard treatment was aspirin and rest in bed. We checked all well students and sent the ones home who wanted to go. The ones who stayed were recruited for KP duty and care of the sick. Classes were discontinued for the remainder of the week.

"We called the 'San' and ordered additional supplies, including aspirin, thermometers, and 150 changes of bed linen. A center was set up in the Administration Building to give flu shots to those who were not sick.

"These were five very hard but satisfying days," she said. "The college faculty and students were wonderful in their co-operation and very appreciative of all we were able to do. I personally gained a better understanding of the famous Graceland spirit and feel closer to the college than I ever have before."

Nurse Clark reported that some of the hardest students to get in bed and keep there were members of the football team. The epidemic hit during the height of the football season, and the players would drop in practice with high fevers before reporting for treatment.

While in Lamoni, the nurses slept and ate at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Hodges. "We certainly appreciated their hospitality," Miss Clark said. "It was probably because of this opportunity to eat and sleep away from the college that none of the nursing team ever got the flu."

Shortly after the nurses returned to Independence, Don Booz of the college staff wrote in a letter:

"I want to extend our sincere appreciation to you for your concern, interest, and just plain, old-fashioned love and for the way you and other members of the Sanitarium pitched in during the flu siege. I don't think anyone will ever forget this fine gesture."

Letters of appreciation were also received from Dr. Gould, representatives of the student senate, and other groups.

Bishop Deaver seemed to voice the attitude of the hospital staff in a letter to Mr. and Mrs. Hodges. He said, "I talked to the girls after they arrived back at the hospital and found them individually exhausted but professionally proud for the unusual privilege which they had for service to the college. . . . I want you to know that we prize these four girls very highly and are extremely grateful to them for one of the most unusual renditions of professional service in the annals of the institution."

ROGER YARRINGTON

The Incomparable Christ

By Karl Godwin. An 11 by 14-inch full-color reproduction of Christ. The white border around the picture makes it ideal for framing and to use as a teaching picture or for a worship setting.

25c each

HERALD HOUSE

Box 477

Independence, Missouri

Impressions of Dr. X

A Blanchard Photo

I'VE HAD the urge to call you all week," the doctor said to the hospital administrator.

"You have a wonderful hospital, and I want to thank you for the privilege of working there," he continued. "The student nurses that worked with me were very unusual. Are they all like that?"

This was part of a recent conversation between a Kansas City doctor and A. Neal Deaver, administrator of the "San."

It all began when an expectant mother moved to Independence from Kansas City. She had occasion to visit the San. The hospital made a good impression on her and she asked her doctor, a physician with many years of experience, if she might have her baby at the Independence hospital.

The doctor called Bishop Deaver and made arrangements. The expectant mother began attending classes at the "San" for future parents. Later she experienced a normal birth and brought a son into the world.

Shortly after she left the hospital, her doctor called Brother Deaver and thanked him for the opportunity to use the Sanitarium facilities.

The doctor said, "When I went on the hospital floor I noticed immediately the unusual attitude of the nurses. They knew I was coming; they were prepared. They talked as if they were sincerely interested in me and my patient.

"I just wanted to tell you that with the spirit of co-operation and loyalty I saw on that one floor of the Sanitarium, you must have a wonderful hospital."

Commenting on the episode, Brother Deaver said, "We feel that much of the credit for compliments like this goes to the School of Nursing. And we do receive many such compliments from both medical personnel and patients.

"The School of Nursing sets the tone for the whole hospital which is, after all, the laboratory for the school. We are always proud of our student nurses and the impressions they make."

ROGER YARRINGTON

Question Time

Question

According to Section 107 of Doctrine and Covenants, paragraph 18, the Nauvoo House was to bear the name of the Lord; also Joseph Smith and his seed after him were to have place in this house from generation to generation. Has this instruction been carried out?

D. K. G.

British Columbia

Answer

The paragraph referred to also has the instruction "and let the name of that house be called the Nauvoo House." It also seems to be clearly evident from reading the Times and Seasons, the Nauvoo newspaper of the 1840's, that the building was always designated as the "Nauvoo House." The charter for the Nauvoo House Association likewise designated the building as the "Nauvoo House." Had the building been completed, it might have had some designation in which it would "bear the name of the Lord" but there is no evidence of any planning by the early builders in this way.

The charter granted by the Illinois General Assembly also instructs that Joseph Smith and his seed after him are to have place in that house from generation to generation. However, the charter carries the qualifying statement, "the said Smith and his heirs shall hold by perpetual succession a suite of rooms in the said house, to be set apart and conveyed in due form of law to him and his heirs by said Trustees as soon as the same are completed." The building was to have been L-shaped with three stories of brick above a stone basement. It was abandoned in 1845 when construction had progressed only to the second story. Obviously, there were no rooms or space for the Joseph Smith heirs to have place in this uncompleted building. In 1869, the building was remodeled by Louis Bidamon (husband of Emma Smith) and a two-story building was built on the corner of the old Nauvoo House foundation. This was called at times the "Riverside Mansion" as well as the "Nauvoo House," and the latter term is used today. Emma Smith Bidamon lived in this remodeled building the last ten years of her life. Then for approximately twenty-five years the building was owned and occupied by the Bidamon family until deeded over to the church in 1908. In a sense, the Smiths—Joseph's seed—do have place in the present structure inasmuch as they have important places of leadership and authority in the church. I do not think anyone would want to have place there now, for the building is being remodeled. When this remodeling is completed, what remains of the original Nauvoo House will fulfill the Lord's instruction as a "delightful habitation for man and a resting place for the weary traveler." Likewise, the Lord's instruction is being literally fulfilled today in that thousands of visitors annually are receiving counsel concerning the glory of Zion and this the cornerstone from those set as watchmen upon the walls of the old Nauvoo House. The new Visitors' Auditorium is built on part of old Nauvoo House foundation stone, and two walls of the building are on the original foundation of the original structure. Here visitors are given lectures concerning the Church of Jesus Christ and its restoration in these latter days.

EDWIN ROBERT FISHBURN

Graceland Gazette

■ Both students and faculty shared in a very stimulating two weeks February 2-16. In connection with the religious activities program, a Youth Renaissance was conducted with Seventy Loyd Adams from Long Island, New York, as guest speaker. General preaching services were held Sunday mornings and evenings and also Wednesday evenings. Matins for small sectional priesthood, and residential groups were held every morning in the Assembly Chapel. The final Sunday morning service carried the theme of "Re-accounting" as financial statements were presented at the altar table. The latter part of the service was set aside for personal testimonies. During the afternoon Mr. Adams met with students in "Question and Answer Time" for inquiries and comments derived from the two weeks' program. The theme of "Rededicating My Life in Christian Stewardship" was chosen for the final preaching service Sunday night.

■ Twenty-four new students have registered for second semester. A few of these students have attended Graceland previously and are returning to finish their work. The following is a list of the new students and their home towns: Ralph Bailey, Trimble, Missouri; Patricia Barr, Lamoni, Iowa; Lourdes Barrett, Chicago, Illinois; Mable Benson, Lamoni, Iowa; Robert Bjorland, Lamoni, Iowa; JoAnn Burton, Denver, Colorado; Wilbert Cobb, Fayetteville, Arkansas; Donna DeLaurier, Lake Orion, Michigan; Don Dexter, Lansing, Michigan; Eldon DeWitt, Independence, Missouri; Elta DeWitt, Independence, Missouri; Cameron Doherty, Port Arthur, Ontario, Canada; Nancy Doty, Miami, Oklahoma; Cherie Douglas, Knoxville, Iowa; Dale Henson, Carpentersville, Illinois; Maile Hom, Los Angeles, California; Wesley Loyd, Warwick, Rhode Island; Betty MacNeil, Leonard, Michigan; Donald Palmer, Grand River, Iowa; Garry Piatt, Butler, Missouri; Doyle Ruoff, St. Joseph, Missouri; Rogene Thomas, Oakland, California; Dennis Walberg, Stayton, Oregon; and Robert Wallace, Lamoni, Iowa.

The current enrollment is 665 students. Of this total there are 15 seniors, 23 juniors, 272 sophomores, 329 freshmen, and 26 unclassified.

■ Eleven new senators were elected by the student body January 28 to take the places of those whose terms expired. Each dormitory unit has one representative in the senate. Those elected were Doris Buckley, Denver, Colorado, for East Hall; Lorne Worthington, Spokane, Washington, for Walden; Sharon Hetrick, Montebello, California, for Choso; Larry Rollstin, Des Moines, Iowa, for Carmichael; Lynn Wixon, Sacramento, California, for Tiang; Donna Booker, Mobile, Alabama, for Banta Place; Murphey Matthews, Birmingham, Alabama, for Rigdon House; C. R. Auxier, Tulsa, Oklahoma, for Platz House; Don Dexter, Lansing, Michigan, for Garver; Ladola Bradley, Mays Landing, New Jersey, for Burton; Max Wooderson, Murrickville, Australia, for Anthony.

These students will serve as representatives until the end of the first semester next year.

■ A very interesting and informative four-page story was printed in the January 26 issue of Picture Magazine of the Des Moines Sunday Register. The story was entitled, "Religious Program Draws Students to Graceland." There were many pictures and interesting articles covering activities of the different phases of Graceland campus life.

■ Students from all four classes at Graceland presented a talent show Saturday evening, February 8, entitled, "Broadway's My Beat." This program consisted of twenty-one songs from various Broadway productions. Narrator for the show was Scotty Chisholm from Warton, Canada. Lee Samuelson from Denver, Colorado, directed the musical, and Claire Prucha from Lincoln, Nebraska, was assistant director.

■ The women's social club council held a coffee hour Tuesday, February 11, for all social club presidents and faculty sponsors of the clubs. New officers of the Social Club Council for the second semester were announced as follows—President: Eleanor Putnam, Council Bluffs, Iowa; Vice-President: Mary Bavington, Toronto, Canada; Secretary-Treasurer: Rogene Smith, Nauvoo, Illinois; Judiciary Board: Bonnie Mortimore, Jefferson City, Missouri; Carol Cease, Columbus, Ohio; Sandy Wallis, Durango, Colorado.

■ Through the efforts of the Graceland College-Lamoni Community lecture and concert series, Randolph Churchill, only son of Sir Winston Churchill, spoke to a large audience in the Lamoni High School Gymnasium, February 13. His topic for the evening was "Britain in the World Today." The forty-six-year-old author, reporter, and lecturer said, "The world peace is safer today than eight or nine years ago." He credited the Strategic Air Command and the Snark Missile as being the chief reasons there is peace now and will be peace in the future. Churchill, who held a position in the House of Commons for five years, said further, "You don't need to be stronger if you can destroy one-half of Russia, and this can be done by the modern world today. Within six hours one hundred of Russia's largest cities could be destroyed by SAC."

■ Five basketball games have been played since the beginning of the second semester. The Yellow Jackets traveled to Dodge City, Kansas, to play St. Mary's College in a two-game series Friday and Saturday, January 31 and February 1. Ken Green of Rembrandt, Iowa, and Duane Thomas of Independence led Graceland in a double victory by scoring 44 and 40 points respectively. Friday, February 7, the Blue and Gold traveled to Kansas City University and was defeated by a margin of 74-70. Duane Thomas led with 21 points followed by Ken Green with 19. Saturday the team went to Canton, Missouri, to meet Culver-Stockton College and again was defeated, 85-58 with Thomas pouring through 19 points. Tuesday, February 11, Park College from Parkville, Missouri, came to Graceland and the Jackets gained a victory—93-52. Park College is coached by a former Graceland Alum, Louie Carpenter '52. Six players scored ten or more points in this solid win: Duane Thomas, Independence; Ken Green, Rembrandt, Iowa; Tony Eagan, Lamar, Colorado; Eric Leighton, Detroit, Michigan; John Nelson, Independence; Floyd Ayers, Eden, Idaho.

■ January 18 the William Jewell wrestling team traveled to Graceland and went away victors—28-10. C. R. Auxier, Tulsa, Oklahoma, and Bob Sinclair, Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, were the Blue and Gold winners, and both pinned their men.

February 1 Graceland faced Northeast Missouri State College at Maryville, Missouri. Graceland lost the match 23-13. C. R. Auxier and Dan Harper, who is also from Oklahoma, pinned their men; Dan Kelly decisioned his man 3-0.

Auxier is wrestling at 137 pounds and is yet to be defeated. He carries this tradition back to high school where he lost only one match while wrestling in Tulsa's Central High School. He has won five straight, three on pins.

New Hymns of the Restoration

18 hymns sung by the Radio Choir directed by Franklyn S. Weddle

Titles:

Let All the World in Every Corner Sing
What a Glorious Thing to Be
Send Forth Thy Light, O Zion
Dear Lord, on This Thy Day
With a Steadfast Faith
God Has Spoken in All Ages
With Eyes of Faith
Awake, My Soul, Stretch Every Nerve
Hallelujah! Hallelujah!

Fountain of All Revelation
By Thy Redeeming Cross
Thanks Be to God
Newborn of God
From Books That Wisdom Hold
Church of Christ, in Latter Days
O Calm of Sabbath Morn
The Morning Stars Together Sang
Onward to Zion

33 1/3 rpm long-play, 12-inch vinylite record, $3.45

Shipping charges extra.

If you live in Missouri,

add 2% sales tax.

Box 477, Independence, Missouri
Box 382, Guelph, Ontario, Canada

BOOK REVIEW

To Live Again

By Catherine Marshall 1957
McGraw-Hill Book Company 355 pages
Price $3.95

To Live Again may well be considered a sequel to two best sellers of recent years, Mr. Jones, Meet the Master and A Man Called Peter, all by the same author, Catherine Marshall.

The story opens with the doctor's telephone message announcing the tragic passing of her famous minister husband, Peter Marshall, in January, 1949, and relates in a vivid and fascinating manner the experiences of the years that follow.

Left seemingly without love and without hope, and with limited practical experience and financial resources at her disposal, Catherine Marshall unfolds a story of the triumph of faith over doubt and grief, love over loneliness, and divine resources over human frailties. It is a striking record of seemingly impossible achievements made possible only through faith in God and his promises.

There is much of reader interest in the account of many very practical and utterly human problems and difficulties involved in editing and publishing of the two volumes previously mentioned, and in the negotiating with a leading Hollywood producer for the filming of A Man Called Peter. Here again Mrs. Marshall met and overcame many difficulties, seemingly accomplishing the impossible. This she firmly believes was through divine intervention which came in response to an unyielding faith and a life of prayer.

Of much greater significance, however, are the more deeply spiritual aspects of the story. Running through it all there is a continuing struggle with utter loneliness, the bitter despair, deadly self-pity, and abject sorrow. Added to this there is a great confusion and uncertainty over life's most perplexing riddle—Is there life after death? Where can the bereaved find hope and comfort?

Will we know our loved ones in the great beyond?

The account of Mrs. Marshall's spiritual victories over these riddles and human frailties will be found to be of special significance to those who are called upon to face the same or similar situations. The reader will find thought provoking, too, the author's philosophical and theological opinions concerning such. With some of these he may well disagree; this need not be surprising nor yet disturbing.

The significant thing about this volume is that it is a convincing testimony of one who put faith and prayer to a series of acid tests and, taking God at his word, believing sincerely in his promises, emerged victorious not only in the accomplishment of seemingly unsurmountable tasks in the practical affairs of daily life, but in the triumph of faith over doubt and grief, of hope over fear, of love over loneliness, courage over self-pity, concern for humanity over self-interest.

FLOYD M. McDOWELL

Interesting Personality

C. R. Taylor

Heads R.C.A.F. Social Welfare Program

RESPONSIBLE for the Social Welfare Program of all Royal Canadian Air Force units in England, France, Germany, Italy, and Sardinia, is F/L C. R. Taylor, assigned to the First Air Division Headquarters, in Metz, France. The story behind this man with a dual military and ministerial career is an interesting one.

Born in Toronto in 1918 of parents active in church work, Clifford spent most of his early life in western Canada where in 1941 he married Miss Joan Marven. During the war he served overseas as a pilot with the RCAF.

Persuaded that he needed further education, he entered the University of British Columbia at the age of twenty-seven, earning a Bachelor's degree in 1950 and a Master's in psychiatric social work and administration in 1952.

He re-enlisted in the RCAF when the field of social welfare work was just opening up. His first appointment was to Edmonton, Alberta, where he was made responsible for organizing and administering this program in all of western Canada, including the Yukon Territory. After four and one half years in Edmonton he was transferred to France.

Social welfare in the RCAF is especially concerned with family and personal counseling. Brother Taylor's record of personal ministry also reflects the concern for people which has brought him to his present position.

While at the University, Clifford was ordained a priest in 1947 and an elder in 1950, serving diligently in each capacity. In Edmonton he was branch pastor for four years. He was ordained a high priest in 1957. In France he and his family have been attending the monthly meetings at Kaiserslautern while helping draw together a group for services at Toul.

The Taylors have three children—Barbara, fourteen, Roy, seven, and Terry, three. Mrs. Taylor, who was brought up in the Anglican church and "never heard of this church until meeting Clifford," is now a member and her husband's staunch supporter. The Taylors are living on the French economy and studying the language. For recreation they have a touring trailer which they took with them for a vacation in Spain recently.

Property Purchased at Little Rock, Arkansas

Sunday, January 5, 1958, marked the official opening of the property recently purchased by the Little Rock mission. It is actually located in North Little Rock at the corner of Seventy-first and Division Streets. The purchase includes a dwelling, which the Saints have converted into a church home, situated on a two-and-one-half acre tract suitable for future building and expansion.

The opening day services were attended by about eighty persons from Little Rock and neighboring branches. The day's activities began with a prayer service under the direction of District President R. M. Reid. This was followed by an ordination service which was directed by N. Glynn Coltharp, the district missionary. In this service James Huntsman, pastor of the Little Rock mission, was ordained to the office of elder, and Dan Vermillion to the office of teacher. Following the ordination service the Little Rock women's group served the noon meal from the kitchen of the new building. An afternoon preaching service concluded the activities of the day.

For the past several years the mission services have been held in the Little Rock Women's City Club. The desire to grow and to have a church home of their own has caused the Little Rock Saints to work and contribute sacrificially in order that the purchase and remodeling of this property might be possible. Since the opening of the new building attendance and interest have greatly increased. The future looks bright for Little Rock.

R. M. REID

Briefs

New Members Move to Mission

SALINA, KANSAS.—The women of the mission have been busy the past year in friendly visiting and in money-making projects such as a rummage sale, sales of Christmas and occasional cards, a bakeless bake sale, penny-a-day fund, and handwork.

District Missionary James Menzies conducted a series of Bible study meetings in July.

A Christmas program was held at the church meeting place at 129 Baker Street, and a good basket was given to a needy family.

Officers elected to serve during the year are as follows: Edna Henry, religious education director, music director, historian, and women's leader; Marguerite Typree, secretary and statistician; Edith Munden, treasurer and solicitor; Lurella Hinkle, Herald correspondent and publicity; Velton Peabody, church school director.

Lynn Brotherton and family left the area for Alaska. New Saints in the mission are Velton Peabody from Maine; Forrest Middleton from Goodland, Kansas; Lurella Hinkle and family from Long Beach, California; and the Darryl Fairbanks family. Darrell is stationed with the Air Force.—Reported by LURELLA HINKLE

News from England

STOCKPORT, ENGLAND.—The annual business meeting was held in September, 1957. New officers are as follows: Elder William Black, pastor; Kitty Wood, secretary; Norman Fairhurst, treasurer; Irene Wright, women's leader; Mildred Wood, deputy; Lily Preston, treasurer; George Ridgeway, church school director.

Brother Ridgeway has sixty to seventy children in church school, and he is assisted by teachers Louie Whittall, Harriett Ridgeway, Ted Royle, and Annie Speakman.

On January 5, Tom Wright was ordained a deacon by Elders Black and Ridgeway. There are now seven priesthood members. They are engaged in visiting homes. The branch now owns a projector and slides. The slides were a gift. They have proved useful and enjoyable.

Carolers were out during the Christmas season, and seventy children had a Christmas party.

The second anniversary of the opening of the branch was held January 31. A banquet was held, and nonmembers and their children were invited for the meal and entertainment.

The women's group meets in alternate homes. One grocer sends treats to most of the socials, especially for the children. Persons who have assisted greatly are Mr. and Mrs. Singleton, the grocers; Betty Harvey, Ruth Burnett, Lily Wiltshawe, Kathy Ridgeway, and Mrs. Quinlan.

On February 22, Harriet Ridgeway's class of junior girls invited adult members to a party. A potato-pie supper was held March 1, the proceeds to provide a day trip to the seaside for the children on Whit-Friday.

The music department is well cared for by Elder Fred Preston and Lily Preston. Lizzie Fairhurst makes a fine contribution singing solos.—Reported by NORA BLACK

Series Closes with Baptisms

HARRISON, MICHIGAN.—Elder Charles Mundorff, district missionary, concluded a series of sermons and slide lectures February 2 with a baptismal and confirmation service. The baptisms took place at the Houghton Lake Branch, where the font was used. A number from Harrison attended.

A short message was given by Elder Hobart Beavers before the baptisms. Those baptized were Mr. and Mrs. Duane Beemer, baptized by Brother Mundorff; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Beemer and Bobbie, and Beverly Bailey, baptized by Elder Dale Beavers; and Titus Blosser, baptized by Brother Edmund Dunham.

This was followed by an evening confirmation service, with Brother Mundorff in charge. District President Jay C. Doty and two of the former pastors were present to assist the pastor and Brother Mundorff with confirmations.

Brother Dale Beavers presented each home with a copy of The Church Member's Manual and Between the Covers of the Book of Mormon, after the new members had received Communion.

The missionary services were attended by capacity crowds each Sunday evening.—Reported by DISTRICT REPORTER

Church School Meetings

OMAHA, NEBRASKA.—On January 19 and February 1 the church school of Highland Park Branch held teacher's meetings. Brother Elwin Coolman from Plattsmouth was present February 1 to show slides on points of interest in Nauvoo, Independence, and other places.

Highland Park church school day was held January 26. The teachers' dedication was impressive, and the children had classwork on display.

The DaRoLaDaSa's had a chili supper January 30. A candy and bake sale was held.

The Orioles and Skylarks had a tea for their mothers and friends February 2. The girls sang songs. All the Orioles received "songster" awards. Kathleen and Marlene McGuire received awards for handcraft, swimming, child care, baby sitting, sports and games, nature appreciation, nature craft, and school and community. A nice group attended.—Reported by FRANCES WALTER

Seven Children Baptized

DEL CITY, OKLAHOMA.—On February 9, seven children were baptized in the mission. Carol Stark, Debbie Eagan, and Bruce Bunch were baptized by Elder R. W. Bunch; Janet Burns, Eleanor Hazen, Donald Foster, and Jimmy Jones were baptized by Elder G. G. Clesson. These baptisms followed a pre-baptismal class taught by Jim Groesbeck.—Reported by ARLENE GROESBECK

1958 Herald House Reminder

35c each

jot down your daily appointments

1958

Herald House

REMINDER

Increase in Priesthood Members

BAY MINETTE, ALABAMA.—The branch has five priesthood members now. J. L. Clark was called to be an elder, Tommy White was called to be a priest, and Harry Ward, priest, and family from Independence, Missouri, moved here. Pastor this year is Elder Jack Page, and Walter White is deacon.

The annual business meeting was held September 1. Elder John R. Darling presided. Besides the pastor, other officers elected were Elder Leonard Clark, associate pastor; Tommy White, church school director; Mrs. Walter White, junior church school director; Mrs. Horrace White, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Rudolph Bryars, women's leader; Mrs. Jack Page, Zion's League leader; Walter White, adult supervisor and head deacon; Mrs. Fred Bush, book steward; Harry Ward, music director; Mrs. Tommy White, historian; and Mrs. Marshall White, publicity.

A candlelight installation service for the women's department was held October 1. Brother Page installed the leader, Mrs. Bryars, Mrs. Leonard Clark, assistant; Mrs. Horrace White, teacher, secretary, and program chairman; Mrs. Harold Griffin, treasurer; Mrs. Forrest Newton, music director; Mrs. Leonard Clark, friendly visitor; Mrs. Fred Bush, ways and means chairman; Mrs. Bessie Jacobs, cradle roll supervisor; Mrs. Marshall White, social chairman; Mrs. Joe Bishop, flowers; Mrs. Jesse Baggett, telephone committee chairman.

Seventy Myron LaPointe held meetings November 17-24. Rudolph Bryars and daughter Beverly, Thomas Robinson, and Clevin Vinson were baptized.—Reported by PEARL WHITE

Organize Liahona Fellowship

AMES, IOWA.—After several months of study and evaluation, students at Iowa State College and Ames Branch have organized a Liahona Fellowship. Work began on organization the first of this school year, with various committees meeting. There are forty-three students enrolled at I.S.C. who list R.L.D.S. on their church preference cards.

A meeting was held in November at which time group approval was received for an official student organization, and a constitutional committee was appointed. With the Kansas University Constitution as a guide, a constitution was drawn up and presented for ratification on January 19.

On January 26, the first business meeting was held, and the following officers were elected: president, Dana Freberg; vice-president, Lyle Hanson; secretary-treasurer, Mary Wahrenbrock; student Religious Council representative, Joanne Roedel; historian, Merle Hilson; worship chairman, Dave Blair; service chairman, Harold Skank; social chairman, Dottie Dobson; publicity, Margaret Mussell; adviser, Charles Emslee.

Activities for this year include taking charge of branch Sunday evening services and worship and fellowship meetings, sponsoring a recruit committee to Graceland, participation in the spring festival at I.S.C., and various social affairs.—Reported by MARGARET MUSSELL

Lot Purchased for Church

DAVENPORT, IOWA.—The branch had a carnival in the basement of October 11, sponsored by the women's department, with Katherine Bissounette in charge.

The branch voted to purchase a lot on the outskirts of Davenport, and plans are being made to build a church in the near future. A building fund dinner was held in the church November 16. Jim Archibald was toastmaster and Cecil Ettinger was guest speaker.

The annual Christmas program was held December 2. Two short plays were given, followed by narrated scenes of Jesus' life, and music by the children's choir.

District Missionary W. J. Breshears visited in January, conducting several preaching services and visiting homes of Saints.

Charles Shippy, district bishop's agent and member of the branch, conducted morning and evening preaching services on stewardship. On February 9 a special service was held, climaxed by the personal presentation of financial statements.—Reported by DONNA ARCHIBALD

Midyear District Conference

PENSACOLA, FLORIDA.—The midyear district conference was held February 8-9 in Pensacola, Florida. District President Lee R. Oliver and Apostle E. J. Gleazer presided. The conference opened with a priesthood-wives banquet on Saturday evening. The theme, "Together We Grow toward Priesthood Responsibility," was presented in a message by Brother Gleazer. A valentine theme was used in the decorations and group singing.

Sunday activities began with a fellowship service. The fine spirit which prevailed carried over into the morning worship. The church was filled to capacity. A district choir presented special music, and Brother Gleazer gave the sermon. A business session was held in the afternoon. Recommendations for priesthood were voted on, and delegates elected for General Conference in October, 1958.

A missionary rally was held in the evening, at which time the Boy Scouts of the branch were officially recognized by the pastor, as were the Scout leaders. The Pensacola choir sang the anthem for this service.—Reported by LEE R. OLIVER

Center Stake Women Meet

INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI.—At the February Center Stake women's meeting held at Stone Church, Elder Evan A. Fry reviewed the book, Prayer Can Change Your Life, by Dr. William S. Parker and Elaine St. Johns Dare. This book is a report of a five-year study of prayer used as specific therapy in combination with psychology.

After the review, Mrs. William S. Bennett of Kansas City addressed the women on the day's theme, "Lighting Candles for the Future."

The thought center prepared by Mrs. Frank Freeman and Mrs. Clarence Sinclair, and the devotional based on the parable of the wise and foolish virgins by Mrs. Stele A. Bryant followed the day's theme.

Mrs. Harold Downey sang "Unto Thee, O Lord" and "Eternal Life." The organ prelude and accompaniments were played by Mrs. Cecil Burton, and Mrs. Harold Welch directed the congregational singing.

Mrs. Arthur Lotz, stake women's leader, presented the guest speakers. The invocation was given by Mrs. A. S. Propst, and the benediction by Mrs. Kenneth Barwise.—Reported by MRS. R. W. MILLER

Ordination Service

SAND SPRINGS, OKLAHOMA.—Gary Leo Ervin, son of Elder and Mrs. Alvie S. Ervin of Sand Springs, was ordained to the office of deacon on February 9 at Central Church in Tulsa. Evangelist W. J. Sherman was spokesman, assisted by Elder C. R. Auxier. Gary will officiate in the Sand Springs mission.—Reported by MAY BLOSS

Missionary Services

ROSEVILLE, MICHIGAN.—In January, John W. Bradley, Detroit International Stake missionary, conducted a well-attended series of meetings.

The following were baptized during the month through missionary endeavor: Amy Hart, Reva Harris, Helen Leverich, Tina Ruthenburg, Donald Ruthenburg, and Virgie Valliere.

Four families became united in the church through these baptisms.—Reported by MARY BISHOP

CORRECTION

The news Brief headed Creston, Iowa, published in the January 20 issue of the Herald, should have read Crescent, Iowa.

Between the Covers of the Book of Mormon

People of Book of Mormon times come to life for children in these 53 stories by Verda E. Bryant. Fifteen illustrations by Stele Bryant add extra interest to the text. Ideal for study at home and in church school. Fourth printing; 176 pages; paper bound. Size, 7 $\frac{3}{8}$ by 5 $\frac{3}{8}$ inches. Herald House

$1.25

Shipping charges extra. If you live in Missouri, add 2% sales tax.

HERALD
HOUSE

Box 477
Independence, Missouri

Box 382
Guelph, Ontario, Canada

Camp and Fellowship Song Book

For young people and adults at camps, reunions, youth gatherings, banquets, and other social gatherings. A pocket-size (6 $\frac{3}{4}$ " by 3 $\frac{3}{4}$ ") song book to further enrich the camp and fellowship experiences of our church people by providing a larger selection of suitable songs. Also by offering a standard version of them throughout the church.

- Bright Fun Songs
- Transitional Songs
- Serious Songs
- 161 Songs in All

Prices: 75c each; 6-14, 70c each; 15-24, 60c each; 25-49, 55c each; 50-99, 50c each; 100 or more, 45c each.

Shipping charges extra.

Box 477
Independence, Missouri
Box 382
Guelph, Ontario, Canada

Bulletin Board

Servicemen's Addresses

A/2C Myron E. Lassen
AF 15-551-208
1400 Fld. MAINTRON
A.P.O. 81
New York, New York

P.F.C. Floyd L. Towner
1947 Olive Road
Augusta, Georgia

Floyd and his wife, Sandra, will appreciate hearing from members and friends.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYERS

Dorothy J. Hands of Port Huron, Michigan, requests the Saints to remember in prayer a young sister who is very ill.
Allen and Luella Long of Canton, Oklahoma, request prayers for a friend, a minister of another faith, who is seeking spiritual enlightenment.

ENGAGEMENTS

Ayers-Gilmore

Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Gilmore of Anchorage, Alaska, announce the engagement of their daughter, Lela Rae, to A/1c William Dean Ayers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Ayers of Madrid, Nebraska. Miss Gilmore is a student at Graceland College. Airman Ayers is a Graceland graduate, class of '54. A July wedding is planned.

Fahey-Montoya

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Montoya of Durango, Colorado, announce the engagement of their daughter, Frances, to Billy G. Fahey of Kansas City, Missouri. Miss Montoya attended Graceland College in 1955-1956. Mr. Fahey is a senior at the University of Missouri. The wedding will take place April 4.

Spencer-Gardner

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Gardner of Lamoni, Iowa, announce the engagement of their daughter, Floella, to Lyle D. Spencer, son of Mr. L. J. Spencer of Churdan, Iowa. Miss Gardner, a 1955 graduate of Graceland, teaches at Lohrville. Mr. Spencer farms near Gowrie. The wedding will take place June 1.

Harding-Boeckman

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore F. Boeckman of Dayton, Ohio, announce the engagement of their daughter, Diane, to Richard Harding, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Harding of Council Bluffs, Iowa. Diane is a 1957 graduate of Graceland College, and Richard will be graduated from Graceland this spring. An early June wedding is planned.

WEDDINGS

McLaughlin-Ross

Nellie June Ross, daughter of Mrs. Maude Ross of Weir, Kansas, and J. T. Von McLaughlin, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Ryan of Berwyn, Illinois, were married February 12 at the Reorganized Church in Miami, Oklahoma, Elder Harold Van Sickle officiating. The bride is attending Graceland College and will be graduated in June. The groom is stationed at Luke Air Force Base in Arizona. They will make their home in Tucson.

Morris-Copeland

Elizabeth Catherine Copeland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald C. Copeland of St. James, Missouri, and Carl Edson Morris, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Morris of Independence, Missouri, were married December 28 in a double-ring ceremony at the First Church of God in St. James by the Reverend E. D. Johnson. They are making their home in Kansas City, Missouri.

Winship-Houser

Alice Ruth Houser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Houser of Blairsville, Pennsylvania, and Donald Winship, son of Elder and Mrs. Clarence Winship of North Charleroi, Pennsylvania, were married January 11 at the Reorganized Church, the groom's father officiating. They are making their home in North Charleroi.

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Morgan of Independence, Missouri, became the parents of a daughter, Joyce Anne, on October 8. She was blessed on November 10 at Eden Heights Church by Elder Hyrum Robinson and Elder Gordon Leibold. Mrs. Morgan is the former Virginia Lindermeier of Atascadero, California.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Seibert of Pittsburg, Kansas, became the parents of a son, Ronald Irvin, on October 10, at Mount Carmel Hospital. Mr. Seibert is stationed with the Marine Corps at Long Beach, California. Mrs. Seibert is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Al Comstock of Pittsburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence H. Piepergerdes of Independence, Missouri, became the parents of a daughter, Susan Faye, on December 11. Mrs. Piepergerdes is the former Winnifred Higdon. Both parents are graduates of Graceland College.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn A. Ramsey of Bois D'Arc, Missouri, announce the birth of a son, David Arnold, born January 16. He was blessed on February 16 at Central Springfield Branch by his grandfather, Elder Kenneth M. Cady, and his great-grandfather, Elder John L. Cady. Mrs. Ramsey, the former Janet Cady, attended Graceland in 1951-52.

Mr. and Mrs. Arlin L. Young of Modesto, California, became the parents of a son, Stillman, on December 17. He was blessed on February 12 at the Reorganized Church in Phoenix, Arizona, by Elder Leonard Speer and Elder Raymond Greene. Mrs. Young, the former Betty Bullock of Haskell, Oklahoma, attended Graceland.

Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Tripp of Lamoni, Iowa, became the parents of a son, Kevin Michael, on December 18. He was blessed on February 2 at Nauvoo, Illinois, by Elder H. D. Smith and Elder Robert Hardy. Mrs. Tripp is the former Betty Sanford.

Elder and Mrs. David W. L. Bowerman of Independence, Missouri, became the parents of a daughter, Patricia Joy, on October 18. She was blessed on December 8 at Spring Branch Church in Independence by High Priest L. Wayne Updike and Elder William C. O'Dell. Elder Bowerman is now pastor of the Gudgell Park Church in Independence.

PN2 and Mrs. Eugene Sheppard of Las Vegas, Nevada, announce the birth of a daughter on February 11. She has been named Michele Marie.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tutty, Jr., of South Gate, California, announce the birth of a daughter on January 11. She has been named Carole Lee.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth R. Shane of Oakland, California, became the parents of a daughter, Leola Rometta, on September 4. She was blessed on December 15 at the San Leandro Church by Elder Russell Bessire and Elder Lloyd Stewart.

LCDR. and Mrs. Earl Brown became the parents of a daughter, Janet Lee, on May 19, 1957. She was blessed by her paternal grandfather, E. M. Brown, and N. J. Lesard, pastor of the Jacksonville mission. Mrs. Brown is the former Electa Travis of Council Bluffs, Iowa.

DEATHS

SWALL.—Eva Estella Forrest, was born June 16, 1868, in Castroville, California, and died February 4, 1958, in Independence, Missouri. She was married on June 20, 1886, to Charles Swall, who with two sons, Alfred and Herbert, preceded her in death. She spent most of her life in California but recently had made her home with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Allen, in Independence. She had been a member of the Reorganized Church since December 10, 1876, and gave years of service in the Garden Grove, Los Angeles, and Modesto Branches in California.

She is survived by one son, Edwin, of Greenwood, Missouri; six daughters: Mrs. Eva Stark of Modesto; Mrs. Hazel Williams of O'Fallon, Illinois; Mrs. Ethel Copen of Rochester, New York; Mrs. Vada Allen of Independence; Mrs. Myra Aten of Cabazon, California; and Mrs. Irma Butterfield of Pittsburg, California; twenty grandchildren; and forty great-grandchildren. Funeral services were conducted by Elder Glaude A. Smith and Elder Ephraim Brown at the Roland Speaks Chapel in Independence. Interment was in Mound Grove Cemetery.

RYDALL.—William, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Rydall, was born July 28, 1886, at Colpoys Bay, Ontario, and died December 30, 1957, in the B. P. and District Memorial Hospital. He had been a member of the Reorganized Church since November 22, 1899.

He is survived by his wife, Jennie; two daughters: Mrs. Mel Perkins of Owen Sound, Ontario, and Mrs. Mason Caldwell of Memphis, Tennessee; a son, Alvin, of the home; and five grandchildren. Funeral services were conducted by Elder Garnet Farrow, High Priest Gordon Farrow, and Elder Aubrey Mason at the Reorganized Church in Warton, Ontario.

MCALISTER.—Dora, died at the home of her daughter, Bertha Baucom, in Fort Scott, Kansas, on January 3, 1958, at the age of eighty-four. She was a member of the Reorganized Church and attended services at Pleasanton, Kansas.

Surviving are three daughters: Mrs. Baucom, Mrs. Alma Springer, and Mrs. Esther Carrel; and three sons: Elmer, Homer, and Ralph McAlister. Funeral services were conducted at the Reorganized Church in Pleasanton, Pastor Orion G. Dennis and Elder Dale Crown officiating.

LAWRENCE.—Arthur James, was born August 12, 1871, at Southampton, England, and died December 23, 1957, at Enfield, England. He was baptized into the Reorganized Church on January 5, 1896, and ordained a deacon at the end of the year. The following year he was called to the office of priest, after which he served for some time as branch priest, treasurer, secretary, and bishop's solicitor in London Branch. On August 20, 1898, he was married to Jane M. Betambeau, who pre-deceased him in 1955. Of their five children, only two reached maturity, and one of them—a son, Arthur—died in 1928.

He leaves a son, William, of Enfield, and two grandchildren. Pastor Frank W. Judd conducted the funeral service; cremation followed at the Enfield Crematorium. A memorial address was given on January 19 by Seventy Thomas E. Worth.

FASGOLD.—William A., was born June 28, 1884, in Pacific, Missouri, and died September 18, 1957, in Oklahoma City, Oklahoma. He had been a member of the Reorganized Church for forty-two years.

He is survived by his wife, Iva A.; four sons: James R., Bill R., Stanley L., and Allen, all of Oklahoma City; four daughters: Mrs. Cecil Hay and Mrs. E. E. Williams of Oklahoma City; Mrs. Cleo Kidd of San Angelo, Texas; and Mrs. Wayman C. Batey of Sembach, Germany; three brothers; and two sisters.

TAJ.COTT.—Van Martin, was born October 11, 1890, at Dow City, Iowa, and died November 13, 1957, at the Independence Sanitarium. He was married to Maymie Bair on August 18, 1915; five children were born to them. His first wife died, and later he was married to Alice Campbell, who survives him. He was baptized into the Reorganized Church on May 27, 1921, ordained a priest on November 9, 1924, and an elder on November 25, 1928. He had been retired since 1956.

Besides his wife, Alice, he leaves two daughters: Mrs. Gerald Gabriel, Grain Valley, Missouri, and Mrs. Herman Jennings, Nashville, Tennessee; three sons: Victor R. and Ronald D., of Independence, Missouri, and Harold M., Great Bend, Kansas; four stepdaughters: Mrs. Kenneth Shrout and Mrs. Roger McCarroll, Excelsior Springs, Missouri; Mrs. Russell McCarroll and Mrs. Lloyd Adams, Independence; a stepson, Ernest Campbell, Leavenworth, Kansas; twenty-one grandchildren; and two sisters: Mrs. Olive Penrod, Salem, Oregon, and Mrs. Vinton Reynolds, Cheyenne, Wyoming. Funeral services were conducted at the Walnut Park Church, Elder W. E. Wakeman and Pastor Donald Pyper officiating. Interment was in Mound Grove Cemetery.

INMAN.—John William, was born February 15, 1872, at La Porte, Indiana, and died February 6, 1958, at Santa Ana, California. When he was five years old he moved with his parents to Independence, Missouri, where he remained until the turn of the century. In 1900 he made his home in California where he established the Inman Tent and Awning Business. He was baptized into the Reorganized Church on August 12, 1883, and was ordained an elder on March 4, 1917. On November 9, 1919, he was married to Nellie M. Brush, who survives him.

Besides his wife he leaves three daughters: Irene Benedict of Anaheim, California; Alice Hunter of Santa Ana; and Marie McGill of Folsom, California; two sons, Joseph and Elmer, both of Los Angeles, California; a sister, June Hartley of Oregon; five grandchildren; four great-grandchildren; and one great-great-grandchild. Funeral services were held at the Smith and Tutthill Chapel, Evangelist Louis J. Ostertag officiating. Interment was in Fair Have Cemetery, Santa Ana.

MAYNARD.—John M., son of David and Frances Shippy Maynard, was born February 9, 1876, and died February 3, 1958, at General Hospital in Chatham, Ontario, of injuries received in a fall. His wife, the former Margaret Jane Stowe, preceded him in death in 1934. He had been a member of the Reorganized Church since December 14, 1897, and had held the office of priest since October 18, 1903. For three years, until the Erie Beach Church was built, services were held in his home.

He is survived by a brother, Gilbert W. of Erie Beach, and a sister, Ella M. Dammann on the Gore Line.

RICHARDS.—Pearl B., was born December 23, 1884, in Contra Costa County, California, and died February 7, 1958. She was married to George H. Richards, and one child was born to them; it died in infancy. She had been a member of the Reorganized Church since her youth.

She leaves her husband, George, of San Francisco; two brothers: William H. and John B. Dawson of Sacramento; three sisters: Mrs. Ida Reists and Mrs. Anna Hammond of Sacramento, and Mrs. Ruby Ferris of San Francisco. Evangelist William H. Dawson conducted the funeral service at the Miller-Skelton Chapel in Sacramento. Cremation followed.

HORRIGAN.—Nettie Ava, daughter of John G. and Sally Bearse Sears, was born December 2, 1887, at Dennis, Massachusetts, and died January 26, 1958. She was baptized into the Reorganized Church on August 13, 1899, and on October 24, 1914, was married to John Horrigan. As a widow she lived many years on the Onset R.L.D.S. Reunion Grounds.

She is survived by a sister, Effigene Snell, and a brother, Lloyd Sears. Funeral services were conducted by Elder Albert L. Fisher at the Cornwell Chapel in Wareham, Massachusetts. Burial was in the Agawam Cemetery, Wareham.

Tract Review

Has Your Child
Been Blessed?

SEVENTY JAMES MENZIES discusses the importance of the ordinance of blessing little children in this eight-page tract. In it he not only enlightens nonmembers on our belief on this subject, but he introduces several ideas that are probably little thought of by Latter Day Saints.

The tract is introduced with the story of Naaman the leper king, who refused to obey a simple commandment that was to remove his leprosy—because it was so simple, he thought. The disaster of continuing leprosy which would have surely followed his rebellion was averted, however, when a counselor reasoned: "If the prophet had bid thee do some great thing, wouldst thou not have done it?" Stung to reconsideration by such clear logic, Naaman complied with the instructions given him by the prophet Elisha, and he was healed.

From this introduction, Brother Menzies outlines the simple plan that God has established for the blessing of children and asks why we should not obey these instructions rather than intricate rites that have been developed by man in the christening ceremonies of today.

Christ's example of blessing children is presented, when Brother Menzies cites the reasons why christening is unnecessary. He points out the significance of the ordinance of blessing children as practiced by our church and the blessings that are available to children through this ordinance.

The single copy price of this tract is 7 cents. Quantity prices are quoted in the 1958 Tract List, available from Herald House at no cost.

We're on the Air . . .

STATE AND CITY	CALL LETTERS	DIAL READING	DAY AND TIME
ALABAMA, Atmore	WATM	1580	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
ALABAMA, Evergreen	WBLO	1470	Sunday, 9:00 a.m.
ARKANSAS, Jonesboro	KNEA	970	Sunday, 9:00 a.m.
CALIFORNIA, Wasco	KWSO	1050	Sunday, 7:15 a.m.
COLORADO, Durango	KIUP	930	Sunday, 9:45 a.m.
COLORADO, Montrose	KUBC	1260	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
FLORIDA, Orlando	WLOF	950	Sunday, 7:45 a.m.
IDAHO, Sand Point	KSPT	1400	Sunday, 6:15 p.m.
ILLINOIS, Herrin	WJPF	1340	Sunday, 7:45 a.m.
ILLINOIS, Moline	WQUA	1230	Sunday, 8:15 a.m.
ILLINOIS, Mt. Vernon	WMIX (FM 94.1)	940	Sunday, 12:15 p.m.
KANSAS, Concordia	KFRM	550	Sunday, 8:30 a.m.
MICHIGAN, Bad Axe	WLEW	1340	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
MICHIGAN, Flint	WMPR	1570	Friday, 10:00 a.m.
MICHIGAN, Houghton Lake	WHGR	1290	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
MINNESOTA, Detroit Lakes	KDLM	1360	Sunday, 8:45 a.m.
MISSOURI, Fulton	KFAL	900	Sunday, 8:15 a.m.
MISSOURI, Kansas City	KMBC	980	Sunday, 8:30 a.m.
NEW MEXICO, Clovis	KCLV	1240	Sunday, 7:45 a.m.
NEW YORK, Hornell	WWHG	1320	Sunday, 10:30 a.m.
NORTH DAKOTA, Valley City	KOVC	1490	Sunday, 6:00 p.m.
OHIO, New Philadelphia	WJER	1450	Sunday, 8:30 p.m.
OKLAHOMA, Woodward	KSIW	1430	Mar. 17-21 9:00 a.m.
ONTARIO, Guelph	CJOY	1450	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
ONTARIO, Sault Ste Marie	CJIC	1050	Sunday, 8:15 a.m.
OREGON, Lakeview	KQIK	1230	Sunday, 2:00 p.m.
PENNSYLVANIA, Charleroi	WESA	940	Sunday, 8:30 a.m.
TENNESSEE, Paris	WTPR	710	Sunday, 7:45 a.m.
WASHINGTON, Vancouver	KHFS	1150	Sunday, 8:30 a.m.
WEST VIRGINIA, Parkersburg	WCEF	1050	Sunday, 12:05 p.m.
WISCONSIN, Richland Center	WRCO	1450	Sunday, 8:15 a.m.

And Finally...

GREAT SAILORS

Great people are not affected by each puff of wind that blows ill. Like great ships, they sail serenely on, in a calm sea or a great tempest.—George Washington.

ASK THE EDITOR

From time immemorial people who would not ask their pastor, doctor, father or mother have sat down and written their problem to that impersonal, faceless being, the editor. It is not that they think this anonymous one is so all-wise, but it is a way of getting some perplexity off the mind. If he doesn't know the answer, he ought to; and it will do him good to look it up.

Of course, being asked is an implied compliment. We take it all seriously, and when we have no answer, and members of the Question Time panel say it is not in their line, we start sleuthing. Generally we find someone who has the answer.

Sure, you can always ask the editor. You'll not get a bill later for advice given or services rendered.

C. B. H.

LITTLE STUFF

A man wrapped up in himself makes a very small bundle.—Benjamin Franklin.

OVERCOMING THE DIFFICULT

To be wrong all of the time is an effort, but some manage it.

—Quotes above from "The New Age"

EQUALITY

The test of our progress is not whether we add more to the abundance of those who have much; it is whether we provide enough for those who have too little.

—Franklin D. Roosevelt

MISTAKEN LIBERTY

Freedom is not worth having if it does not connote freedom to err.—Mahatma Gandhi.

Contents

EDITORIAL AND OFFICIAL

Where Are We Going? by Roger Yarrington	3
Baptismal Report for December Across the Desk	4

FEATURE ARTICLES

Older Youth Experiment in Evangelism	2
Winning Others, by Glenn E. Johnston	5
The Royal Tomb of Palenque, by Clair E. Weldon	7
Summering with the Church in Europe, Part IV, by Mrs. Mark H. Siegfried	14
Mercy Mission to Graceland, by Roger Yarrington	16
Impressions of Dr. X, by Roger Yarrington	17

SPECIAL COLUMNS

We'd Like You to Know: Dr. Charles Richard Jones	2
I Had an Experience, by Robert I. Wakeman	13
Question Time	17
Graceland Gazette	18
Book Review	19
Interesting Personality: C. R. Taylor	19
Briefs	20
Bulletin Board	22
Tract Review: Has Your Child Been Blessed?	23
And Finally	24

Notice

Herald House is in the process of installing modernized automatic addressing equipment which is designed to increase the speed and efficiency of addressing magazines.

During the change-over, however, which involves the making of more than 50,000 new addressograph plates, a certain amount of slow down is unavoidable.

We solicit your patience during the next two months.

THE KINGDOM WAITS

A missionary worker was trying to deal with a problem in which an effort was being made to "complete a family circle." The wife is a member, the husband still "waiting on the outside, looking in." The real trouble in that home, the thing that keeps the husband out, is the fact that every Sunday the wife serves big portions of "roast pastor" to her family. Yet she hopes to win that husband to the church!

Imagine the heartache of the missionary worker as he sees what is going on. A remedial and corrective ministry is needed for the wife before the husband can be reached. She doesn't know it; she will probably resist and resent it. But she is the worst obstacle to the completion of that family circle. It is on her account that the kingdom for him is so long delayed.

L. J. L.

BE STRONG

Ingratitude is always a kind of weakness. I have never known men of ability to be ungrateful.—Goethe.

coming . . .

coming . . .

coming . . .

A completely new church school curriculum for kindergartners, primaries, juniors, junior highs, and senior highs.

Prepared under the direction of the Department of Religious Education of the General Church. To be used beginning with the October, 1958, quarter.

Sample kits will be available from Herald House about August 1, 1958.

Read the summer issue of GUIDELINES TO LEADERSHIP for further information about this brand-new curriculum.

SAINTS' HERALD

Volume 105 / March 17, 1958 / Number 11

Spring
Thaw

Photo by Marion Pease

We'd Like You to Know . .

Celia Schall

CELIA SCHALL joined the staff of Graceland College this fall as teacher of communications. She comes with a great desire to increase her service to the church and its young people.

Her teaching experience began in the Gault Elementary School, Gault, California, where she taught for three years in grades one, seven, and eight. For the past five years she was head of the English department at Gault High School, teaching freshman and junior English, speech, and dramatics.

Miss Schall has always been interested in dramatics. At Graceland she was a member of the Graceland Players and also participated in drama at Sacramento State College. She considers dramatics one of her hobbies; but she has directed her hobby into a worth-while service for the church as she has always worked in the drama department of her home branch in Sacramento, California, and for several years was director of drama there.

Celia's other hobbies are varied and equally interesting. She has participated wholeheartedly in the camping program of the church, enjoys swimming, loves to read, and has a keen interest in California history as centered around the gold rush. She has even panned for gold on various occasions and has learned to sigh with the venerable miners, "Well, perhaps next time."

Aside from the work she has done in church camping and dramatics, Celia's main interest in church work is in worship. She inherited this interest from her mother who for a number of years prepared worship materials for the General Church. Because of her mother's devotion she has been stimulated to continue her study in worship. Celia has prepared "Opening Assembly Suggestions" for Guidelines and has compiled a wealth of material for preparing all types of worship services.

Celia earned most of the money for her education by dabbling in various industries. She was a clerk for the State of California for one year, worked two months in a lumbermill making venetian blinds, was employed in the office of the Signal Corps Depot, and as a hosiery mender for a city store. These jobs not only kept her in pin money but enabled her to save systematically for higher education.

She was graduated from Sacramento High School in 1942 and from Graceland in 1947. Here she was a member of the Tower staff, the Graceland Orchestra, and Lambda Delta Sigma. In 1949 she received her Bachelor's degree in speech arts and education with a minor in English from Sacramento State College. She was one of the first to graduate from Sacramento State after it became a four-year college. She was also on the staff of its first newspaper, The Hornet. Later she received her Master's degree there.

Celia is the daughter of Myron R. Schall and the late Elizabeth Schall of Sacramento, California, and a sister of Rod Schall, who is also a member of the Graceland staff as Director of Teaching Materials Service. She was born on April 17, 1925, at Palo Alto, California, where her father was an instructor at Stanford University.

1957 a Top Year at "San"

A RECENT REPORT to the First Presidency by Bishop A. Neal Deaver, "San" administrator, showed 1957 to be the top year of all time for the hospital.

The number of patients admitted, 10,129, exceeded the records of any other year. The average patient's stay at the Independence Sanitarium and Hospital was five and one-half days. This was the first time the hospital has gone past 50,000 patient days of care within one year.

Brother Deaver's report also called attention to the tremendous effect of Salk vaccine on the number of polio patients at the San. In 1955 there were thirty-one cases—one adult lost and six children crippled for life. In 1957 there were only two very light children's cases. One stayed four days, another five days, with no need for aftercare.

Two major high lights of the year were the opening of the second floor level of the new hospital wing. This new section added twenty-four beds to the hospital's capacity. It is expected that these twenty-four beds will mean the hospital can care for more than 500 extra patients each year. Also in 1957, the Board of Trustees and the medical staff completed a revision of the medical staff bylaws. An important new provision allows dentists to become members of the medical staff.

Another stride in 1957 was the micro-filming of twenty years of medical records. This has materially helped the storage problem of the medical records department which has kept all patient records from the time the hospital opened in 1909.

Also, the installation of a new system of purchasing and inventory controls early in the year contributed to better management of hospital business details. (Continued on page 8)

AUTHORS IN THIS ISSUE

- S. C. Barrows (page 5), elder, Lamoni, Iowa
- Frances McDole (page 7), Independence, Missouri
- Elbert A. Smith (page 8), Presiding Patriarch, Independence, Missouri
- Babbie Stull (page 10), Solana Beach, California
- Barbara Higdon (page 12), Houston, Texas
- Norma Kirkendall (page 13), Columbus, Ohio
- Calvin Carpenter (page 14), appointee elder, Ottawa, Ontario
- Audrey Stubbart (page 14), copy editor
- Herbert M. Scott (page 18), high priest, Independence, Missouri

Let's Save the Individual

COURAGE and strong individualism are required for those who live in a minority, particularly in a religious minority, and especially where the minority is misunderstood or under pressure. From the very beginning of the early church, and throughout the history of the Reorganization, our people have known the cost of nonconformity and the price that must be paid by the isolated church member, family, or small group that was not satisfied to be "like everybody else." The fact that "everybody's doing it"—whether drinking, smoking, dancing, or taking liberties with the moral laws—has meant nothing to church members who were genuinely converted.

Protests are beginning to rise in magazines and newspapers, voiced by thoughtful professional leaders, against the theory of mass conformity that has gained such a strong hold in American education. From nursery days children are taught to "adjust themselves to the group" with no consideration of the fact that what the group is doing or thinking may be silly, superficial, or wrong. And that same spirit has continued to follow the child through his school experience. Church families find it hard to build in their children the determination to stand apart and be independent of the group when group thought and action has gone in a direction that was not good for them.

The theory that everybody can be educated—an American educational ideal—is not a bad one. It is true in some degree. But to force children with better minds to conform to the norms of a group whose level is mediocre is a bad thing. America is suffering today because its people have forgotten the importance of developing outstanding individualism in culture, education, scientific training, and leadership. In the church it is to our best interests to preserve and defend the rights of the individual to be different.

The democratic ideal that everybody should have the same chance in life is sentimentally fair but unrealistic in the sense that the facts of biology and psychology are against it. The physical and mental variations in individuals cannot possibly be overcome by any effort of education. Some children have a natural capacity for high attainment and should have the opportunity to learn and achieve. Others have limited capacities and are only hurt when they are pushed beyond their limits. While we must be concerned to give the great average masses the best possible chance in life, we must also be aware of the importance of giving the extra training to the few extraordinary individuals who can make use of advanced training. This is as true for the development of church leadership as it is for national leadership.

This is not a new idea. It is a far older idea than the false notion that every person can attain the heights. There is such a thing as an aristocracy of intellect; a bright child may indeed come from the humblest home, just as a stupid, retarded child may come from a home of wealth and luxury—though neither of these is invariably true. One of the most inspiring memories is of the old-time teachers who went up and down the aisles of the classroom, inspecting the work of each student, watching for chances not only to help the slow ones who needed help but to find the intelligent ones who could be encouraged to extra effort and attainment. Such teachers made great contributions to our country, as such teachers do today. A few of them will be found in every generation.

THE people of our church should know as well as anybody, and better than many others, that we cannot have either a strong nation or a strong church without the development of strong individuals. The courage and intelligence, the determination of our early church leaders and our missionaries built strong foundations for the church today. These men were strong individuals.

Today, as we consider the importance of helping our young people grow into careers of service and leadership in the church and the nation, it would be well for us to give consideration to the encouragement of the highest type of individualism. This does not mean the cultivation of pugnacious independence and rebellion among the young. It means teaching them to be themselves—their best selves—under all conditions and in spite of social pressures. It may mean loneliness at times, but in the end it will mean respect and honor and the development of men and women who can and will stand alone when it is right to do so. The church and the nation of the future will depend for leadership and salvation not on masses of complacent "adjusted" personalities of no convictions but on strong individuals with ideas of their own.

L. J. L.

Official

Reopening of Kirtland Temple to Guided Tours

It is planned that Kirtland Temple will be reopened to guided tours on April 1, 1958. During the last three years considerable restoration work has been done on the Kirtland Temple building. In 1955 the exterior plaster was all removed and replaced with new material. In 1957 a sprinkler system was installed to protect the building against possible extreme fire damage. Just recently the plastering on the inside of the building has been completed. During the last few months, because of the work being done inside the Temple, the building was closed to visitors while it was in such a state of disarray. While there are still some minor things to be done it appears that it will be possible to open the building to visitors and resume tours under the direction of Kenneth Green, Temple Minister, on April 1, 1958.

We know that many of our members will be interested in seeing this restoration work, which has been done under the supervision of the Presiding Bishopric, and will welcome this announcement.

THE FIRST PRESIDENCY
Israel A. Smith

Across the Desk

OF THE FIRST PRESIDENCY

Apostle D. O. Chesworth has relayed a letter to us from Elder John Bradley, missionary in Detroit International Stake. In it he says:

I am pleased to report the conclusion of what seems to be the most successful series in my experience. The Roseville series has resulted in eight firm adult decisions. At this moment five of the priesthood are starting into family meeting series using new slides purchased by the congregation. Several inactives are now back in the fold. Attendance at all services set records during the series and continues higher than average after the series.

Three factors seem responsible for the good results. First the pastor, Don Sutton, gave unreserved support; his priesthood gave complete co-operation; and the Saints gave us solid backing. Then the Prospect Accounting System gave us a sound basis upon which to focus our efforts. No other method offers such reliable hope for a steadily increasing harvest of souls.

None of the usual costly advertising was used, but an internal method proved very effective. On Sunday I spoke individually to each church school class and actually signed up volunteers for an experiment in prayer each Wednesday night. On Wednesday the attendance was more than double the usual prayer meeting attendance. Very early in the meeting we had five to six minutes of silent, unified prayer and meditation, each person taking his own personal list, one name at a time, to the Lord. After concluding this appeal, each was directed to listen intently for ways in which the Lord might direct his own efforts in ministry. Then the priesthood teams expressed their needs as they prepared to go into the divided and inactive homes. As we sang, they left on their assignments. Prayers were offered for them, and the service continued.

The next week the same order was repeated except that this time priesthood members were asked to testify of what had happened as a result of our unified prayers and their ministry. After the men left for further assignments, the Saints told of the good things that had happened during the week in the lives of those for whom we prayed. They had prayed expectantly and had wonderful testimonies to share as a result. God was very good!

All efforts were carried on in the homes of nonmembers except Sunday and Wednesday services. This puts the emphasis where it does the most good and does not leave our people in a state of exhaustion as is sometimes the case after a more traditional-type series. Should anybody want a copy of the report on the Prospect Accounting System in 1957, I will be glad to send one.

Elder W. J. Entwistle, pastor of the Wigan congregation in the British Isles Mission, has reported a recent attack on the church through a state church magazine.

St. Anne's Magazine, a parish magazine, in its January 1958, issue carried a lead article authored by the vicar of St. Anne's titled: "Jesus the Christ, or Joseph Smith?" In his article the vicar noted that two elders of the "Church of the Latter Day Saints" had been visiting homes in his parish. He then set out to explain the doctrines and history of the church for his parish members.

The explanation contained many of the common misconceptions which usually appear in such attacks on the church. Brother Entwistle replied to the article, and both the original article and the reply received fair comment in the Lancashire Evening Post of January 10, 1958.

District President Duane E. Couey of the Memphis (Tennessee) District writes of a recent financial day rally held in Paris, Tennessee, to retire a number of obligations:

You will be pleased to hear the results of our financial rally day in Paris (February 9). Pledges totaling $1,294 were raised, payable by the next Sunday. A number of people were not contacted due to inclement weather, and if they respond with the same enthusiasm we should receive an additional $400 to $500 in contributions.

This will enable the branch to pay the current interest due on the church loans plus the two years' interest which is in arrears. It will also enable us to retire the balance of a private $450 note, and we should be able to make a payment on the principal of the money borrowed from the General Church.

In addition to the immediate contributions plans are being made for a personal solicitation of the membership by the priesthood to encourage consistent contributions to meet future obligations.

The Saints' Herald

Vol. 105 March 17, 1958 No. 11

EDITORS: The First Presidency: Israel A. Smith, F. Henry Edwards, W. Wallace Smith. ASSISTANTS: Chris B. Hartshorn, Managing Editor; Naomi Russell, Assistant Editor; Paul A. Wellington, Assistant Editor; Roger Yarrington, Assistant Editor; Audrey Stub-

bart, Copy Editor; and Leonard J. Lea, Contributing Editor. BUSINESS MANAGER, Kenneth L. Graham.

The Saints' Herald is the official publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, with headquarters at The Auditorium, Independence, Missouri, and is issued through the offices of Herald Publishing House, 103 South Osage Street, Independence, Missouri.

Herald editors are not responsible for the views and opinions expressed in articles or communications other than those of editorial authorship.

Entered as second-class matter at the post office at Independence, Missouri, under Act of March 3, 1879. Issued weekly at Independence, Missouri, except daily during the biennial General Conference. Price, $4.00 per year in advance in the U.S.A., its territories and possessions; Canada, $4.25 per year; other countries, $5.00 per year. Notice of a change of address must be given three weeks ahead of the date that it is to become effective. Accepted for mailing at the special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917, authorized July 21, 1921. Printed in the United States of America.

Join None of the Churches

What were the creeds Joseph Smith was told not to accept?
Why were they wrong?
Have they been corrected?

By S. C. Barrows

Part I

EARLY IN THE SPRING of 1820 Joseph Smith, Jr., experienced a vision in which he was told to join none of the churches in his area because their creeds were all wrong and their professors corrupt. Has it ever occurred to you, as you relate this vision to a nonmember friend, that he might ask what these creeds were and what was wrong with them? Or have the faulty creeds been corrected so that they can no longer fall under this mandate? These questions have been in my mind every time I have told of the vision as I present the story of the church in cottage meetings.

At the time Joseph received this vision, the Baptists, Methodists, and Presbyterians were holding joint revival meetings, and the three sects sought vigorously to win as many of the converts as possible to their sects. Joseph Smith had difficulty in making his decision as to which of the three sects he would join, and while he sought to make his decision he read James 1: 5, which assured him of divine help if he would pray in faith. Joseph decided to put this Scripture to the test, and as a result he experienced a vision, a part of which he relates as follows:

I asked the personages who stood above me in the light, which of all the sects was right, . . . and which I should join. I was answered that I must join none of them, for they were all wrong, and the personage who addressed me said that all their creeds were an abomination in his sight; that those professors were all corrupt; "they draw near to me with their lips, but their hearts are far from me; they teach for doctrine the commandments of men, having a form of godliness, but they deny the power thereof." He then forbade me to join with any of them.—Church History, Volume I, pages 9-10.

In order to evaluate for ourselves the truthfulness of Joseph Smith's vision we must examine the creeds that were used by the three denominations at the time the vision was experienced in 1820. Our search in the literature for an authoritative list of creeds used in 1820 was rather extensive, but we found no text that clearly identified creeds for any of the denominations for that year.

I sent letters to the headquarters for all of the sects listed in World Almanac and Book of Facts and to other authorities suggested in replies to these letters. In these letters I requested specific listings of creeds for both 1820 and the current year for comparison. None of the replies to these letters gave the specific data I sought. They all suggested the source of creeds used today and informed me that these creeds have undergone little or no change over the years, dating back to and beyond 1820.

The Three Major Sects

For example, a letter from the editorial secretary of the Southern Baptist Convention states:

Baptists do not have a creed or statement of belief in the sense that some other denominations do. Traditionally, Baptists have accepted the New Testament as their sole authority in all matters of faith and practice. This, obviously, accounts for a good deal of variation in the beliefs of various Baptist groups and of individual Baptist churches. It needs to be said, however, that Baptists have from time to time had confessions of faith, which were a setting forth of their general views of New Testament teachings.

I learned that some of the Baptist groups use both the Old and New Testaments, but their basic beliefs are essentially the same. Baptists have two "Confessions of Faith" which fairly represent their beliefs. These are the Philadelphia Confession of 1689 and the New Hampshire Confession of 1833. For the purpose of this paper, since these confessions are basically the same and the earlier one dates back prior to 1820, I use these creeds as representing those of both 1820 and of today.

The Methodists informed me that that there has been no change in their creeds since they were formulated at the organization of the church in 1784. The official statement of theological belief of the Methodist church is contained in "25 Articles of Religion" which were composed by John Wesley as a revision of the "39 Articles of the Church of England." This church also makes use of the so-called "Apostles' Creed." Since

Dr. Sidney Barrows

Dr. Barrows has lived all his life in Lamoni with the exception of short periods while in college and naval training. He was graduated from Graceland College in 1919 and received his B. S. degree from the State University of Iowa in 1922. Twelve years later he received his D.D.S. degree from this university.

Dr. Barrows has practiced dentistry in Lamoni since 1935. He has also served as Boy Scout training supervisor, Red Cross Drive chairman, stake chorister, group pastor, and is now stake missionary co-ordinator. He holds the rank of Commander in the Naval Reserves. He is related to James Whitehead, once secretary to Joseph Smith in Nauvoo.

the Methodist church claims no changes since its inception in 1784, we should be justified in assuming that the creeds of today also typify their creeds of 1820.

The Presbyterians informed me that their creed is the "Westminster Confession of Faith," plus a longer and shorter catechism based upon it. These standards were adopted by the First General Assembly in 1789 and have undergone no change over the years except for a very few minor changes in the Amendment of 1903. We can therefore use the Presbyterian creeds of today as being also their creeds of 1820.

Evolution of the Creeds

Although this brief summary suggests that the creeds used today are the same as for 1820, it does not preclude the fact that many changes were attempted, but since a majority vote could not be attained in such efforts, the proposed changes did not become law to the churches. For example, Lefferts A. Loetscher, in his recent book The Broadening Church, copyright 1954, goes into quite some detail to show the internal struggle that plagued the Presbyterian church over the years in a fruitless effort to effect changes in her creeds. There were times when such proposed changes failed by very narrow margins, which in itself indicates the widespread differences in interpretation of doctrines of that denomination.

Likewise, Elder R. C. Evans, in his publication of Faulty Creeds in 1898, quoted prominent ministers of the churches concerned in this paper as boldly stating that the creeds of his day, and for the many years previous, were constantly undergoing changes or revision. Presumably, however, since these changes failed to achieve a majority vote of the churches they did not become law to them. This may be the basis for statements in the letters I received in which the writers declared that the creeds of their churches have undergone little or no changes over the years.

The following taken from Faulty Creeds, page 37, reflects the internal strife that sought to make changes in creeds. The author quotes R. A. Goodwin, Methodist minister, February 23, 1890, as saying:

For more than seventeen hundred years the church has been tinkering at her creeds, now adding, now subtracting, and then refashioning the things that remain, until the creeds of today are a theological hodgepodge, rather than the faith of the church, and, in many cases widely departing from the faith once delivered to the saints. The first attempt at creed making resulted in what was known as the "Apostles' Creed," although the last apostles had been dead more than a hundred years when the creed was first formulated. But this creed was, however, too good to be let alone. Within the succeeding two hundred years its beauty and force were destroyed by the interjection of words and phrases. From that day to this, creed building and creed repairing has been a chief occupation of the church, until creeds have become as numerous as sands upon the seashore so to speak, and strange to say, they all claim to be in harmony with the Apostles' Creed and with the Bible as well. The last fifty years has been especially marked by the loosening of the hold which creeds, as such, have had upon the popular thought, while the Bible, as the word of God, has grown daily in favor as the ultimate rule of faith and practice.

Heman C. Smith in 1909 recorded in the Journal of History (Volume II, page 181) the following changes in religious concepts since 1820, without reference to any specific sect:

1. There was no church advocating the literal gathering of Israel to their ancient home. Now it is not a strange doctrine.
2. The healing of the sick by divine power received no countenance in religious circles. Now there are several organizations which advocate this possibility, and it is finding its way into the more popular churches.
3. There was no thought of a Zion of the Lord being built upon this continent. Now it is quite popular, as witnessed in the Zion City of Dowie fame.
4. There was then no thought of a second literal coming of Christ to the earth. Now this is a common theory, so much so that we have one church taking upon itself the name of the Advent Church.
5. Then there was no intimation that any thought of such a thing as there being prophets on the earth. Now to believe in prophets is a very common thing, and the same is true in regard to the apostles.

Even though there are such reports of internal conflict in the churches with sometimes violent attempts to change the creeds, it seems wise to accept the statements of the current day authorities for these denominations that their creeds of today are essentially the same as when they were founded prior to the year 1820. We therefore list below the major creeds for each of the denominations for our critical examination in the light of the severe mandate Jesus spoke to Joseph in his vision.

Baptists' Creed

1. The Bible is their creed, and some of the sects use only the New Testament. Freedom in interpretation is granted each member.
2. Predestination: God chose his people in Christ Jesus before the foundation of the world and predestinated them unto the adoption of children.
3. Man is a sinner and consequently in a lost condition.
4. Man has no power of his own free will and ability to recover himself from his fallen state.
5. Sinners are justified in the sight of God only by the righteousness of Jesus Christ.
6. The elect are called, regenerated, and sanctified by the Holy Spirit through the gospel.
7. Nothing can separate the true believers from the love of God, and they shall be kept by the power of God through faith unto salvation.
8. Baptism must be by immersion. There is no salvation without baptism.
9. Baptism of infants is unscriptural.
10. Baptism is administered only on the belief that Jesus is the Son of God.
11. Baptism procures the remission of sins and the gift of the Holy Spirit.
12. All baptized persons have a right to administer the ordinance of baptism.
13. There is no special call to the ministry. There is no sharp distinction between clergy and laity, and no special functions or rights are reserved to the clergy.

(To be continued)

Guarding against Panic

ONE OF THE BASIC rules taught us as student nurses was this: "Don't run unless it is hemorrhage." We soon learned the rule did not apply to hemorrhage specifically but to many situations concerning the care of the ill. It was a measuring stick by which we learned to think out carefully a situation free of panic or useless action. As we progressed in nursing we also learned many things do happen which require a "slow run," but by then we had also learned that no situation can be handled by panic or without some preparation in advance.

This period of history, our day, is one of panic. Recently in a local newspaper I read, "The official word of the Pentagon these days is: Don't Panic." As time goes on, it appears conditions may become so tense the tendency to panic will increase. Events are given to us as they happen and before wise, informed individuals interpret the meanings. Thus we need to develop a means of safeguarding against panic and take thought ahead with preparation and careful analysis, choosing in advance possible courses of action to take.

As the world becomes ill with panic, the need arises for people who are prepared to give great service. This will be a time for people who are stanch in mind, body, and spirit—people who can run and faint not. This will be a period in the story of mankind when people who have wisdom and knowledge, spiritual insight, and great compassion are needed. Without the love of Christ in our hearts we are unable to serve in a Christlike manner. A restless powder keg of a world can be comforted and save only by such a great love.

The best antidote for the poisons of fear is faith—a calm, reassuring, don't-panic kind of faith. Attaining such a working power in our lives is going to require great individual effort and persistent effective prayer, coupled with a searching of the Scriptures and a constant seeking for greater wisdom. Faith will heal the symptoms of panic. Prayer is our medication against evil forces and designs which can lead us astray from the truth. Diligent searching and applying of the principles of the kingdom will result in understanding and growth. Once we have applied such rules in our lives we may proceed with the business of becoming useful and full of purpose.

We shall then be so busy in the task of preparing a place of refuge there will be no thought of fear or futility. We shall be prepared for action.

What can we do now? How can we rear a generation so rich in faith, so strong that it can bring about a great work in this world of disease, evil, and destruction? We have to start with ourselves, studying what tempts us to step aside from our purpose, recognizing our own weaknesses, openly confessing our wrongdoings, and making them right by asking for forgiveness. Our weaknesses can be the strongest tool we have to use in our labors for righteous living. We have to cease to be content with lesser spiritual power and move out in directed, organized effort, to become quietly, efficiently, and calmly motivated in the paths the Lord would have us walk.

It should be typical for Latter Day Saint mothers to use prayer as a means of making preparation against panic, to treat pain, and to cure illness. Prayer is the source of power by which we are able to keep the commandments and take upon us the qualities of a saint. Even as our little children bring their hurts to us and are eased and encouraged by our love for them, our heavenly Father does the same when we place our hands in his. If our hand is in his, so are the hands of our loved ones more apt to be. There lies our security.

We should follow prayer by thanksgiving and praise that our families may know from whence their blessings come, from whence all strength comes. Above all, by such humble means, we gain the knowledge that God is everywhere, in and through everything; and where he abides there is no darkness, there is no night to fear. We must practice keeping "each thought and each motive beneath his control."

We should seek for wisdom in all things, even the food we prepare each day. Because our time is valuable and limited, we may short-cut the best means of producing physical power. As Saints we are to seek counsel and use it for those in need, apply with diligence the basic rules for cleanliness and health, search for the best means of spiritual growth, learn to accept the changes which come in our daily life, and bear in patience the adjustments which must be made. Thus we cease to be a complaining people, and our children are exposed to another means of stability. By our very attitude, they will learn to meet each day as a new beginning and a new opportunity to serve. In place of complaints there is freedom from rebellion of mind and spirit.

Without question we should call the elders for administration, setting an example for our children. They need to know that the greatest physician is God and that he first heals by forgiveness before the physical illness is eased. We are to enlarge our capacity to love our fellow men, remembering that by his love we breathe, we are even here. We were not given this gospel or the opportunity to live in this dispensation of time for our own sakes alone but for the sakes of others, and we should be first in our community to see that those less fortunate than we are also receiving of the blessings of the Spirit. We are only as strong as our weakest ones; for them we must live and lose ourselves in service for their sakes. Then we shall find God.

We also should be aware that in spite of the many fear-producing powers in our world of today, the greatest accomplishments of all time are also being made for the benefit of men. The blind are actually being made to see now. Bone transplating enables the lame to walk. The dumb speak. The deaf hear. Hearts beat that had once stopped. Around the corner is finding the cause of cancerous growth. Dreaded infections are no longer feared. We see the miracle of the weak becoming strong. This is worth a small amount of rejoicing and should ease panic, for as often as an implement for the destruction of men is produced, so is an instrument for the sake of the living made known to us.

We would indeed be a peculiar people if, in a day when the world "falls apart," we could remain firm, unshakable by fear, our eyes open to see the mysteries of heaven unfold, our ears tuned to hear and follow instructions, our feet set in the paths of safety directed toward the place where the people of God shall live. In the midst of confusion comes fulfillment to those who have diligently endured and served him throughout their lives. That is hope. That is enough to dispel fear and keep us in constant preparation, free of panic.

The Law Is Your Friend

By Elbert A. Smith

ON A BUSY STREET corner in Kansas City I saw a burly policeman looking down with a fatherly interest on two small children, a boy and a girl. They were just out of school, and he had seen them safely across the street. His is the most pleasant task a peace officer has. Those children were looking up at him with genuine admiration. He was their friend. The law was their friend. That very day Greater Kansas City celebrated a notable record, the completion of two full years without the death by auto accident of a single child in the elementary schools. The law had been their friend.

In communities where children dodge around corners and flee at the approach of a "cop," the omens are bad. They think of the law as an enemy. They are criminals in the making. They have been given a wrong idea of the law. All the days of their lives they will evade or fight the law. They will break the law; the law will break them.

Peace officers who lead children to feel that the law is a friend are rendering a signal service to society. Perhaps no less imperative is it in the church that we teach our people, especially our young people, that the law is their friend: "That which is governed by law, is also preserved by law" (Doctrine and Covenants 85: 8). Too often our young people come to think of the church and the laws of the church as repressive, negative, "Thou shalt not." More stress should be put upon the affirmative side of the law, the constructive side of the law which is devoted to the doing of fine and good things.

A number of years ago I heard a General Church officer bear a testimony to the effect that in his youth he was a member of a group of lads who came to feel that the church was a negative, restrictive force, always in their way when they wanted to have a good time. President F. M. Smith invited this group to meet with him one evening each week in his home. They did so. He did not spend any time telling them what they should not do . . . they had heard all that. He said to them, "In Independence, the church would like you to help in the church work by doing this—and this—and this." He outlined so many things to be done that the boys came to see the affirmative side of church work. They saw an open door rather than one slammed in their faces. At least some of them went to work and have been busy ever since. There were so many fine things to do that they ceased to worry about the things the church had asked them not to do. They came to think of the law as a friend.

The church is growing and on the move forward. There has been a very great increase in the numbers of our young people. And many of these young people are devoted and consecrated. Many of them are even now active in one form or another of church service. Never before in my long service in the ministry, which dates back more than half a century, has there been such a large number of such fine young people coming forward to help take over the work in branches, districts, stakes, and the General Church. May the good Lord bless and keep them and use them is my prayer.

1957 a Top Year at the "San"

(Continued from page 2)

In all areas where possible, patient treatment rooms have been air-conditioned with wash rooms and drinking fountains added. This is particularly true in the new wing just being completed.

During 1957, according to an itemized list of operating expenses, it cost the hospital $22.38 per day for each patient that received care.

Two unusual happenings that made 1957 a memorable year were the near-by Ruskin Heights tornado, which brought sixty-two victims to the San, and the Asian flu epidemic at Graceland College. The San sent a team of four nurses to the college campus to help out in the latter emergency.

A happier, but equally unusual, fact of 1957 was the maternity record. It was the year of twins. Normally there are five or six sets of twins born in the hospital in a year. In 1957 there were eighteen sets!

Looking ahead to 1958 Brother Deaver's report called attention to the opening of two more levels of the new wing. This will add another twenty beds to the hospital. Also, many new treatment facilities in the laboratory, physical therapy, emergency, and surgery areas will add to the hospital's effectiveness. Central supply and the housekeeping departments will also move into new and improved quarters.

Another important project will be the renovation of equipment and facilities in X ray with two rooms of X-ray equipment being entirely new. This improvement will be made at a cost of $38,000 and will be a major improvement at the Sanitarium.

A New Home for Haddonfield Branch

ON SEPTEMBER 29, 1957, the first church building owned by the Reorganization in this state was dedicated in Ashland, New Jersey. It is the newly purchased building of the Haddonfield Branch of the Philadelphia Metropolitan District.

H. L. Livingston of the Presiding Bishopric and A. A. Oakman of the Council of Twelve were the principal speakers at the dedication service. The day's activities were under the direction of Calvin V. French, president of the Philadelphia Metropolitan district; he was assisted by Elder David Wiesen, pastor of the Haddonfield Branch. Two hundred and fifty were present to hear Bishop Livingston's address, "The Expansion of the Church," and Apostle Oakman's message of dedication, "Hallowed Be This Place."

The newly acquired building is located on the corner of Alpha and Evesham Roads in Ashland. It is on a corner lot 125 feet by 210 feet, and was purchased from the First Presbyterian Church for the sum of $11,000.00. The main chapel is finished in beige. The solid oak pews seat 150. Matching oak pulpit furnishings have been purchased to complete the interior. The church has an Orgatron electric organ, and a piano in each auditorium. The lower auditorium, which is used for classwork, has a completely equipped kitchen. There is ample parking space provided in a lot at the rear of the church. Before beginning to worship in the building, members of the congregation under the leadership of James Thompson and Arthur Sherman spent 450 hours working, painting, and cleaning the inside and outside of the church, readying it for occupancy.

The history of the church in the South Jersey area goes back to the early days of the Restoration. Church history records several visits to this area by the Prophet, Joseph Smith.

Little is known of organized activity in New Jersey prior to 1896 when tent meetings held in Camden resulted in many converts to the church. From that time until 1932, missionary efforts met with intermittent success. During the depths of depression, meetings were held on the southwest corner of Fourth and Arch streets in Camden, and later in the Redman's Hall at Twenty-seventh Street. For several years following, the group began to grow, but for the lack of consistent leadership, eventually dwindled and the mission finally was disorganized. In 1949 John Conway, Philadelphia pastor, and Apostle Maurice Draper organized the South Jersey mission, which met in the Walt Whitman Hotel in Camden. Elder David Wiesen, the present pastor, was appointed mission president. The first meeting was attended by only twenty-three members. In the ten years that followed, the branch has grown to a membership of 160 and a weekly attendance of 85. Fifteen members hold the priesthood—five elders, six priests, one teacher, and three deacons.

In 1953 the mission was organized into a branch and moved to Haddonfield. A building fund and finance committee, consisting of Elder Joseph Piedimonte, Elder Finis Easter, and Elder Arthur Sherman, was given the responsibility of raising funds for a permanent church home. From the spring of 1954 until the spring of 1957, a total of $12,000.00 was raised by members of the branch. In April, 1957, the branch had opportunity to purchase the present church from the Presbyterians, and at a specially called business meeting voted unanimously to do so.

The work continues to grow in Haddonfield. Ten new members were added this year—James Thompson, Richard Neill, Anna Lavery, Carol Lloyd, Ronald Batdorf, Larry Troth, Karin Easter, Ruthanne Thompson, Terry and Elizabeth Boulden.

Officers for Haddonfield Branch for 1957-58 are as follows: pastor, David M. Wiesen; counselors, Elder Finis Easter and Elder Arthur Sherman; director of religious education, Elder Joseph Piedimonte; young adult leaders, Mr. and Mrs. William Miner; youth leaders, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Neill; supervisor of children's department, Mrs. George Ewald; junior church pastor, Robert York; secretary, Mrs. G. Segalo; recorder, Robert Grimmer; historian, Mrs. Eva Ellis; treasurer, Ellis Butterworth; program co-ordinator, Mrs. Norman Mc-Kim; music department, Harry D. Brannon; women's department leader, Mrs. Robert Grimmer; finance director, Arthur Sherman; finance committee, Walter Coward, Sr., Ellis Butterworth, Mrs. William Miner; auditors, Walter Coward, Sr., and William Miner; publicity director, James Thompson; flower chairman, Mrs. Robert York; building custodian, George Ewald; printing, Carrie Coward.

Haddonfield Branch is one of the four branches and two missions that compose the Greater Philadelphia District.

*"We would read . . . and then we both
would pray."*

MIRACLE

Is a Worldly Term

By Babbie Bogue Stull

WHEN MY HUSBAND was ordered to Washington, D. C., we felt great excitement and happiness. He had just been promoted and was going into the demanding but interesting Office of Naval Intelligence. The best thing of all was the fact that duty in Washington, D. C., meant two years of shore duty and that meant family life—things to be done together and a period when our marriage would not be a relationship held together by the United States mail. We rented an apartment in Alexandria, planted a large garden, and settled down to enjoying life.

And, as it turned out, things were even much better than we had dreamed, for, in the second year of Pastor Jack Conway, both my husband, and our daughter, Sinara, were baptized into this church. And on top of that I was given the privilege of seeing a miracle—a real New Testament, dyed-in-the-wool miracle. I saw blind eyes made whole—a little boy touched tenderly by our Father and made to see. And then I found it wasn't a miracle at all. This is how it happened.

Our apartment was beside that of a lieutenant colonel in the Marine Corps. We had been there for weeks before I even saw his wife. When I did see her, I didn't care if I saw her again. They had begun to have problems of a great variety and illness piled on illness. But we had had our share, too. John's mother had died, and after that I was in bed over a month with a back injury. It seemed that we had enough to worry about without even hearing about their problems. And I had lost so much time, I resented the time conversation took. Very much against my will, I became enmeshed in their affairs and felt myself becoming a sort of semiofficial weeping wall.

Then, one day, a terribly serious situation arose. It was disaster and no mistaking it. True, I felt that it was at least partially the result of foolish and selfish judgment; but it was the situation that had to be dealt with, not what had led up to it. My neighbor phoned and sobbingly asked me what to do. I did not know what to do, but finally I said, "I'm coming over."

When I entered the back door of her house, I did not waste a second in idle talk, for the desperate atmosphere was almost like another person standing in the room. I said, "Delores, I do not have the slightest idea what to do about all this. You don't know what to do. Yet we both agree that unless something is done immediately, things will happen that will ruin your life and the life of this whole family."

And then I said, "As you and I don't know what to do, all we can do is ask God. I believe he will hear our prayer and show you a way out. Do you believe?"

She was very startled and uncomfortable and replied that she had never prayed with anyone, that it made her feel funny to even think about it. I answered that the whole procedure was foreign to me, too, that I had never suggested it to a neighbor before, but that it was all I knew to do. Again, I asked, "Do you believe?"

And she replied, "Yes, I believe."

I went home and brought over a bottle of consecrated oil and told her that it had been blessed by good men in the name of Jesus Christ and that although I did not have the authority to anoint her, I felt I would be justified in putting some on her, as we needed an extra staff. The oil seemed a living thing, and as I prayed I felt peace and confidence come into the room. The power of God replaced the evil force of despair and disaster. When we opened our eyes, it was as though the very furniture had been shifted and the curtains raised; the answer to the problem came immediately to my friend. It had been as close as asking the prayer. In those few moments of supreme togetherness, my neighbor had become my dear friend and a bond was forged between us as tight and strong as steel.

A number of things happened, and it seemed as though my friend and her family were trying to add up more problems than Job. A child was run over. My friend had pneumonia twice. It just went on and on, but no matter what happened she never seemed to lose complete control again, and she continued to pray sporadically. Then she was taken to the hospital under emergency conditions and her little son was born two months prematurely. He hovered between life and death for weeks and weeks. Two days before Christmas, he was released from the hospital and it looked as though everything would be all right.

Possibly that is why when the blow fell it was so hard to take. My friend took the baby to the hospital for a checkup. After he had been examined and given extensive tests, two doctors—one a pediatrician, the other an eye specialist—told her that apparently the baby was going to be blind. They said that the effects of damage caused by the life-giving oxygen on which the baby had lived for so long were very evident. They said that it was progressive and that absolutely nothing could be done to arrest the deterioration. It was explained in elaborate medical detail, but it meant a world of darkness for a little boy.

This heartbreaking situation was the basis of what became one of the most rewarding experiences of my life and of what became to my friend the pivot of an entirely new existence. As I mentioned, after our initial prayer, there had been no pattern to our praying together, but it had occurred a few times and we had had limited religious discussions. When the terror of the baby's blindness came into Delores' life, she again asked what to do, and again I said, "We can pray."

So every morning I went to her house. We read from F. Henry Edward's Fundamentals for fifteen minutes, and then we both prayed. At first we were somewhat hesitant; but before it was over, Delores was praying the most beautiful prayers I have ever heard, and her prayers were infinitely touching. But what could be more touching than a mother praying in faith for the sight of her child?

A great and wonderful change took place in my friend. Her personality seemed to shift gears, and she began sincerely to try to eliminate the burrs and thistles of her own nature and to grow strong in the love of God. I saw a miracle develop as she prayed and took regularly the heady medicine of faith.

When it came time to take the baby to have his eyes checked, she went in confidence. About two weeks previously, she had said she knew he could see, that it almost looked to her as though a film had been lifted from his eyes. The baby was examined extensively by several doctors. And the verdict? They could not find even a trace of the deterioration that had been so apparent previously. One doctor told her, after a study of his charts, that he could not understand how the baby's condition was possible. He said, "It is a miracle."

My friend replied, "I know, and I am thanking God." When my friend and her husband returned home, she said to him, "Let's kneel and thank God together." And he replied, "The moment we got home, I went upstairs and thanked him." And this man had not prayed for twenty years."

But the story does not end here. My friend had a little daughter attending a private school. She heard that the principal of the school was desperately ill. Without hesitation, she phoned the woman and got her out of bed to tell her of the experience she had had with prayer. She also said that we would be over to pray with her. I found this somewhat astonishing as my friend did not know the other lady at all. But we went.

There, with Delores' baby kicking happily on the couch, we three people knelt and with hands clasped together prayed that strength and health would be restored. A strong and indestructible link was forged between us. We were certainly strangers by worldly terms but familiar immediately in the feeling of faith and love of God.

When Delores prayed, she said, "Our Father, we thank thee again for my son's sight. The world calls this a miracle. I realize now it is but the ordinary way of God."

And then she prayed for our new friend, not for a miracle but that in the ordinary way of God she would regain her health.

It took a stranger—a person one could almost say I'd taught to pray, to show me one of the greatest and most apparent truths—that to call the grace and workings of God "miracles" is worldly, but that to accept them as natural and to be expected is the essence of faith.

When we left Washington we left with unexpected things in our bag of experience, with untold wealth that the attrition of time cannot warp. We left with unending and absolute faith that God is exactly where we put him in our lives, that he is as close as the feeling we have for him in our hearts.

The Things I Didn't Say

I thought my husband had forgotten my birthday, and I spent the whole day thinking of "mean" remarks to make to him when he came home. I didn't say them—and later that evening he gave me the gift he had been carrying around with him all day in the car.

Once I wrote a very critical letter. Soon after it was posted, word came that a loved one of the person I had criticized had died suddenly. I could imagine the effect of the double impact as I hurried to the post office to get that letter back. Fortunately, I did. I have never written another like it.

Apologies usually begin "I'm sorry. I didn't mean what I said." But someone else has already been hurt, and it is hard to admit one has been wrong and unkind. It may be good psychology to "get things off your chest," but often I have been very thankful for things I didn't say.

ALICE BAYNE

What Is This New Woman?

By Barbara McFarlane Higdon

SEVERAL GENERATIONS ago a famous writer on democracy asked this question about free men. Our generation is asking the same question about the "modern" woman. Some have hailed her the crowning achievement of centuries of struggle for her freedom. Others have condemned her as the means through which the hallowed institution of the home is being destroyed. So strong does the feeling run in regard to her that almost no one appraises her calmly.

A few months ago at a church young people's conference some one remarked that the modern woman needs a wise and unique ministry as she attempts to live in a world in which many traditional patterns of feminine behavior have been swept aside and in which she must feel her way toward emotional security along untried roads. This statement immediately touched off a heated discussion—not on how an effective ministry could be rendered her but on whether she should combine family and career, family and church work, indeed family and anything else. It was an irrelevant discussion in which, I must confess, I participated enthusiastically. Reflecting on that experience I have become more convinced that modern adults should look at this new woman calmly and frankly in an attempt to analyze who she is and where she is going.

Just to get our bearings we might ask first, What was the old woman? The points of difference between the new woman and her grandmother or even her mother are obvious. The age of mechanization has been very kind to her. Much of the drudgery of homemaking no longer exists, giving her increased leisure time and unused stores of energy. New social, political, and educational opportunities impinge on her from every quarter causing a great deal of her present difficulty. These are the major differences. Are there no likenesses? Basically she is still a woman. Artists, mostly male, from time immemorial have tried to define the essence of femaleness. With no attempt at artistry I will bravely set forth my definition.

THE OTHER DAY my five-year-old daughter went next door to invite the little boys there to an informal afternoon lollipop. Their mother told me later how sweet her manner had been in offering the candy to each of the boys. "You know," she said, "little girls are just sweeter than little boys." At the risk of sounding mid-Victorian (something a modern woman must never do) it occurred to me that my neighbor had put her finger on the essential quality of womankind. Stemming from their basic and fundamental function—motherhood—all women has as a common characteristic sweetness and all that it implies. This is their great strength. All women, whether they are actually mothers or not, may develop this characteristic. Its power for personal and group good is tremendous.

The women who do become mothers find its development inherent in the task of rearing children. What greater opportunity is there for the development of gentleness, patience, kindness, unselfishness, long-suffering, nonmaterialism? The list reads like something from Paul's writings. The woman who chooses a career is capable of developing these same qualities; her task may be a little harder—or a little easier. A woman must develop them to be true to herself; anything which stands in the way of this development is a denial of herself as a woman.

This characteristic I have called sweetness defies precise definition. It can be described. It is the desire to create physical beauty of person and surroundings for the enjoyment of others. It is the willingness to put up with inconvenience and annoyance without complaint in a good cause. It is a serenity composed of optimism and happiness. It is a subtle firmness covered over with pliability. It is a warmth which reaches out to embrace everything with friendliness, tenderness, compassion. It comprises—and here we come full circle—the ideal qualities of motherhood. We could go on adding to the list; but if there is anything which the above qualities have in common, it is the extending of the self, the giving of the self to others. Walt Whitman came close to describing it in this bit from "Democratic Vistas":

Then there is the wife of a mechanic, mother of two children, a woman of merely passable English education, but of fine wit, with all her sex's grace and intuitions, who exhibits, indeed, such a noble female personality that I am fain to record it here. Never abnegating her own proper independence but always genially preserving it, and what belongs to it—cooking, washing, child-nursing, house-tending—she beams sunshine out of all these duties and makes them illustrious. Physiologically sweet and sound, loving work, practical, she yet knows that there are intervals, however few, devoted to recreation, music, leisure, hospitality—and affords such intervals. Whatever she does, and wherever she is, that charm, that indescribable perfume of genuine womanhood attends her, goes with her, exhales from her.

CURIOSLY OUR CULTURAL tradition has added some characteristics to the ideal woman—things which are not basic, which do not stand up under analysis, and which have interfered with fuller self-realization for many women. The tradition that men do not like the company of a smart woman has caused women no end of frustration. A teen-age girl is warned very solemnly that if she wants boy friends she must hide carefully any hints of intellectual activity. Later she is told that she seriously jeopardizes her chances of matrimony if she evidences many brains. Above all, she must cover carefully any suggestions that she is smarter than a given male if she hopes to lead him to the altar. Every man for whom this is true should be ashamed to look womankind in the eye. The fathers and mothers who help transmit this tradition should be ashamed of themselves.

But most of all the women themselves who, after years of playing the role, go right on being empty-headed should remember that being a woman does not excuse one from the stewardship of developing a God-given intelligence.

When our local school board made headlines with action which seemed calculated to ruin our city's educational system, my husband's coffee-break comrades at the office stopped talking about sports for a few days. In our neighborhood coffee club the women went right on talking about the cute antics of the children (who would someday be subjected to the educational inadequacies which our school board was so busily creating), the latest new dress, and last week's movie as if nothing had happened.

On a church level many women still fail to take a responsible role in the church school and in initiating church-sponsored community activities. On the General Church level some local women's departments do not come to grips with anything more solid than flower arranging. In the family circle all too many women reflect the intellectual conclusions of their husbands. Time was when a man could be better informed in politics and economics—but no more. Every woman can have as good a background and current knowledge in these fields as her husband. One couple we know laugh occasionally about the fact that they have twice voted in presidential elections and have twice voted for different candidates. They often agree on intellectual matters, but they often disagree. They disagree very graciously and still give the impression of a united family. The masculinity of the husband does not suffer in any way nor does the femininity of the wife.

A SECOND misconception regarding women which we have inherited from another generation and which is closely related to the first is the idea that a woman's province is the physical. To some extent this is true, of course. A homemaker deals in menus, buttons, curtains, and ear muffs. But (and here I part company with old Walt)—a woman who concerns herself solely with these things has very few windows in the wall. It is possible, even easy, to become a slave to these material matters. Women themselves are the worst offenders in perpetuating this idea. How many of us are guilty of feeling very embarrassed when unexpected guests find us with a house looking "lived in."

Why should we be embarrassed? There are minimum standards of cleanliness and orderliness which should be met, but beyond these the constant fuss about keeping things picked up, the pride with which one says, "I have never left my dishes in the sink," only indicate a wall with very few windows indeed. And who is the most severe critic of a woman's housekeeping? Not her husband who says, "Come on, honey, leave the dishes so we can get started for the lake." Certainly not the children who avoid picking up toys and hanging up clothes if they possibly can. The most severe critic of a woman's housekeeping is—another woman.

How foolish we are to judge a woman by the kind of house she keeps. How foolish we are to let the kind of house we keep enslave us or ruin our nerves. In the long view it will not matter that we fell behind with the ironing, or that occasionally the beds went unmade, or that the most common floor covering in our house was toys. It does matter that we took time to open new windows for our children when they asked about the stars or oceans, and that we took time to open new windows for ourselves when we read The Old Man and the Sea or listened to Don Giovanni.

Many of the essential tasks of homemaking have been simplified by electricity, running water, push button cooking, and automatic washing. What do we do with the resultant time and energy—wash the windows oftener or join a great books reading group? Leisure used as leisure is a neutral quantity. It is highly debatable whether more time spent reading women's magazines or watching TV or gossiping is better than going back to the scrub board.

Time-honored habits often have no merit in themselves. The modern woman, in order to discover what she is and what she should be, must sift the old, keeping the things of value and discarding the worthless and false. Imperfect though our efforts, the attempt will make an even better world for our daughters.

Be Ye Doers

WITHIN THE PAST few months I've had a special occasion to observe good intentions—and good deeds. In November my father died after over twelve years of invalidism. For several months prior to his death, and at the time of his death, many people came to call, phoned, or wrote, "If there is anything we can do, just tell us." And those were words of great sincerity. If we had asked those individuals to do any particular task, they gladly would have done it without any thought of pay or obligation. They are good people with good intentions.

But at the same time there were people who did not say that. Instead they brought gifts of food when they knew our meals were hurried and harried. They came to take my mother for a much-needed ride in the country when she had spent long hours by the bedside. They dropped a dollar bill in a card and said, "Get some fruit." They brought a thermos of coffee to us at the funeral home. They invited us out for meals. They didn't offer—they did!

Then there was another who sent a get-well card every week for many months. Another (hearing that we needed a nurse) made it her business to contact a relative for us. Another saw that a wheel chair was needed and drove many miles to borrow one for us. Still another family heard about bedsores so bought a rubber cushion and gave it to us. Others brought remedies. And so on and on . . .

Now which of these is most blessed? I shall not judge, except for the value as it showed in our own lives. We appreciate those who offered their aid, but we love deeply those who gave. I've learned a lesson—instead of offering to do—do!

Yes, I've learned a powerful lesson. Instead of just wishing that there was something I could do, I'm looking for what I can do. These things need not mean a great expenditure of money or effort, for the little things are so important in time of need. When need arises, it is not sympathy that is needed; it is empathy.

Outstanding intentions are not nearly as beneficial as understanding deeds. I've been blessed by the doers, and now it is my turn to be one.

NORMA ANNE KIRKENDALL

Home Column

Elder Calvin Carpenter

WHILE STILL in the United States Navy stationed in Maryland, I enjoyed a wonderful experience which brought assurance and direction to my life. I have often been grateful for this moment when I comprehended the worth-while purpose of service. To date I haven't shared this experience with many because I have always found myself inadequate to describe it. I hope that wherein I fail to give proper connotation your insight will convey to you its rich meaning to me.

One Thursday afternoon I left the Naval Base to attend prayer service with the Elk Mills Branch about twenty miles away. As I proceeded along the highway I thought of the church and its mission, wondering about my relationship to it. Drawing near a small side road that ran parallel to the highway I pulled off and drove down it until I was concealed from the traffic. Stopping the car I reached into the back and picked up my Bible and read at length from the New Testament. As darkness fell, I noted the time and closed the Bible, preparing to leave. I offered a short prayer, then reached for the ignition key.

As the motor started I suddenly felt that someone had approached the car. Looking about I waited for someone to speak to me. I was not to see anyone, but that strange feeling of a presence was to be with me for some time. It brought a sense of warmth to me that I had never known. I found myself wondering if God might be reaching out to me. Even as I wondered this unseen presence seemed to enter the car and take a seat beside me.

There seemed to flow a deeply moving force which had interaction with my mind bringing to me a feeling of complete inadequacy and at the same time giving me hope and assurance of God which I had not believed possible. As all this flooded my mind, I prayed with joy. Then came an awareness of the needs of mankind. On other occasions I had glimpsed some of these needs. Now, however, they burned within me and I sensed a personal responsibility and relationship. Solutions which I thought might aid or meet these needs came to my mind. But with a power which conveyed me beyond doubt there came the assurance that only the plan of God could meet these needs. Clearly I comprehended the great task of the church as it moved forward to fulfill its mission of proclamation and building up the kingdom. My personal relationship to this came with force as I sensed my calling to share Christ and his way of life with all mankind. There came to me a new understanding concerning the worth of man. Perhaps for the first time I perceived the absolute necessity of rendering services to men that would lead them into a personal relationship with Christ.

I Had an Experience . . .

Then sensing the passage of time and feeling somewhat the spirit of dismissal, I started the car and drove on to the prayer service. I seemed to be accompanied for a while and there continued to exist within me a joy and happiness which is far beyond my ability to describe. Then as I stopped at a traffic light, I was conscious of the departure of the presence, though I continued to rejoice in this exalted happiness.

Reflection upon this experience has always given me assurance of the church and my responsibility to serve it. Other experiences have added to my appreciation of the great task that lies before us and the urgent need to share our Lord with mankind.

Growing Comprehension

THE INTERPRETATIONS put on the Scriptures by each one who reads reflect the comprehension of the person who reads. The art critic said, "People don't judge art. Art judges people."

An educator once said, "There is no such thing as uncomprehensive reading. A child who reads 'Jack is a good boy,' with emphasis on Jack, tells the listener that this boy has been compared, to his detriment, with some other boy who is good. If he reads it with emphasis on good, one may judge that the boy is more interested in qualities than boys. If the sentence is read with the emphasis on boy, one may judge the reader as becoming aware that there also are girls in his growing comprehension."

My understanding must have been very biased the first time I read Paul's statement to Timothy (II Timothy 4: 7, 8): "I have fought a good fight." What a presumptuous, pompous character he was! I put the emphasis on I, making Paul say that only he had fought a good fight. Everyone else sinned and fell before the course was finished. "But look at me, there is a crown of righteousness laid up for me!"

As comprehension has grown I have shed tears as I have read: "I have fought a good fight"—the fight of faith that Jesus commended, faith as a grain of mustard seed, faith full of life. "I have finished my course." There were times when—even as Christ sweat drops of blood in the garden with the fear he might not through the weakness of the flesh be able to go through his Calvary experience—Paul had wondered if he would be able to finish, to hold out to the end. Now the time of departure is at hand; the days of struggle are almost ended. "I am now ready to be offered."

"I have kept the faith"—cherished it as precious above even life itself. Not "I have, and the rest of you lacked perception to judge value."

This "crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give me at that day" out of his love for all of us, is "not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing." What a gracious invitation to share is this that Paul extends to "Do thy diligence."

With apologies to Paul, I comprehend that he wasn't the egotistical person I had out of my own egoism thought him to be. With diligence I want to interpret that I apprehend: "Not as though I had already attained, either were already perfect; but I follow after."

AUDREY STUBBART

www.LatterDayTruth.org

Question Time

Question

Joseph Smith II was a prophet of the latter days. Are Joseph Smith III, Frederick M., and Israel A. Smith also prophets in the true sense of the word? Does each man selected as president of our church automatically become a prophet, called of God?

Mrs. A. G. C.

Guam

Answer

The answer is perhaps best found in Doctrine and Covenants 104: 42. "The duty of the President of the office of the high priesthood is to preside over the whole church, . . . to be a seer, a revelator, a translator, and a prophet; having all the gifts of God which he bestows upon the head of the church."

It is well to keep in mind that when a man is called and ordained to any particular office it does not of necessity mean that he will function in all of his callings all of the time. It does mean that he has thus been called and ordained to that authority and, as occasion demands, he is in a position to so function. Doctrine and Covenants 17: 10 sets forth the duties of a priest. The list is long and very comprehensive. It is doubtful if many priests have ever functioned extensively in all of the duties of their calling. They are, however, ordained to that calling and are free to function where the need is and where they have abilities.

The president of the church is automatically the president of the high priesthood and thus is ordained to be a prophet, seer, and revelator to the people. At times he is probably more in the role of a good member than in anything else, yet in the proper times he may also represent God as prophet, as a seer, or as a revelator.

Other passages in the Doctrine and Covenants dealing with this subject include: 19: 1; 104: 42; 107: 29; 107: 39; 109: 9; 113: 3.

WARD A. HOUGAS

Question

Please explain I Corinthians 7: 12-16 where Paul discusses the relationship of the divided house where the unbelieving is sanctified by the believing companion.

Mrs. W. O. L.

Kansas

Answer

In relation to this passage of Scripture it is important first of all to notice that Paul is giving instruction to different groups of people and up to this point has quoted from the words of the Master or inspiration from the Lord. In this passage, however, he states definitely that it is his opinion, not the Lord's.

Two points seem pertinent in this Scripture—the first, the sanctification of the unbeliever by the believer. It is evident that Paul had in mind sanctification as meant by drawing the unbeliever into a religious circle rather than an actual change of character, because the present not the future tense is used in the original languages. This is necessary according to the complete teachings of the gospel because sanctification in a moral sense as to actual change of character and rebirth must come through the saving ministry of our Lord and our dependency upon it. But even as children born into a Christian home are given additional advantages in accepting Christ, so also the unbelieving companion is drawn into Christian association through a believing companion. Notice, too, that the people to whom Paul was speaking, and Paul himself, had a Jewish background. From this background terms were used in a technical religious sense as differentiated from a moral sense. The whole theory of physical uncleanness being associated with clean things is brought into play here. Paul is saying that this physical uncleanness is done away with and holiness is the result according to family association.

The second point involved in this Scripture actually helps to clarify the first—that is, the separation of companions because of difference of belief. It seems apparent that Paul is speaking to the believing companion who has been converted since marriage, as he again emphasizes the teaching of the Lord concerning the sanctity and permanence of marriage. Unbelief is not a cause for divorce, but in like sense marriage is not a guarantee of conversion. In the sixteenth verse Paul is advising not to use marriage as a missionary means. Rather, he is advising peace and co-operation as the evidence of the home. It would seem possible that some would try to use this as a scriptural grounds for divorce since if the unbelieving companion leaves the home Paul says, "Let him go." However, we are on very shaky grounds if we adopt this position, for previously Paul has added, "in case of separation, let the companion remain single."

Finally let us say that we must also remember that Paul was speaking to the converted companion and recognize the unbelieving companion as heathen with no knowledge of Christ at all. We would be doing great injustice to apply literally this teaching to those who have partial knowledge of Christ. Rather, we should use this teaching to strengthen our homes and to greater dedicate our lives to Jesus, our Master.

CECIL R. ETTINGER

Question

The church was apparently reproached with fornication and polygamy prior to Joseph Smith's death (Section 111). Was this section contained in the Doctrine and Covenants before the Mormon faction existed?

British Columbia

D. K. G.

Answer

In the very early years of the church, enemies accused members of all types of evil practices. Revelations had been given in 1831 commanding man to cleave unto his wife and none else, and stating "marriage is ordained of God unto man; wherefore it is lawful that he should have one wife, and they twain shall be one flesh" (Doctrine and Covenants 42: 7; 49: 3). Section 111 of the Reorganized edition of the Doctrine and Covenants was first presented to the church at the General Assembly in Kirtland, Ohio, on August 17, 1835. This article on marriage was adopted by unanimous vote and ordered to be printed in the first edition of the Doctrine and Covenants at Kirtland in 1835. It appeared as Section 101 in the original edition. It was again printed in the second edition of the Doctrine and Covenants at Nauvoo, three months after Joseph Smith's death in 1844—this time as Section 109. It was reprinted in the first European edition of 1845 and in two later Nauvoo editions in 1846. All of these were published before the exodus of the people from Nauvoo following the various false leaders to other parts of the country. It is a singular fact that five editions published by the Utah faction in England from 1847 to 1866 all contained this same section on marriage. Beginning with the Salt Lake City edition of 1876, this section has been dropped from the Utah edition of the Doctrine and Covenants. It has been published in all editions of the Reorganization since 1864.

EDWIN ROBERT FISHBURN

Any sincere question from our readers will receive consideration from the editors. If it is of general interest, it will be referred to the Question Time panel, and the answer will be printed. The answers are the opinions and interpretations of the panel members signing them and do not commit the Herald nor the church.

Please keep the question short—fifty words or less should be sufficient. Address questions to Herald editors rather than to panel members. Only questions with the contributor's full name (not just initials) and address will receive attention. —Editor.

a gift for you

You'll be interested in the new

Herald House

Gift Certificate

- * Available for $2.50 and up
- * Redeemable for all merchandise stocked at Herald House
- * Redeemable within one year from date issued
- * Complete with matching white envelope
- * Order through your Book Steward or Herald House

Box 477
Independence, Missouri

Box 382
Guelph, Ontario, Canada

Graceland Gazette

■ During the week end of February 14-15-16 a group of approximately twenty-five foreign students from the campus participated in a state-wide foreign student conference at Des Moines. Graceland's foreign students (representing Iran, Canada, Australia, Hawaii, New Zealand, Alaska, and Korea) met with other representatives of their own countries in a model General Assembly of the United Nations. The Gracelanders represented the Australian and Canadian delegation as a whole. Jeff Robinson, who is from Port Macquarie, N.S.W., Australia, acted as chairman for the Australian delegation; and Fred Reid from Hamilton, Ontario, was chairman of the Canadian delegation.

Housing for the students from Graceland was provided through the Des Moines branch of the church. On Sunday morning the students attended the R. L. D. S. church services in Des Moines.

■ Members of the executive council of the Student Senate were hosts to the Council on Student Life, which consists of faculty members, at dinner on Tuesday, March 25. After the meal they had a joint meeting to explore student problems on the campus and discuss student development and the whole program of the college. Those serving on the executive council are Don Davis, San Jose, California, student council president; Bob Logan, Tacoma, Washington, administrative vice-president; Barney Parker, San Antonio, Texas, public relations vice-president; Doris Buckley, Denver, Colorado, chairman for the committee on academic relations; Marilyn Tandy, Independence, Missouri, secretary.

■ The two weeks' religious activities program, "Christ in Ancient America," has been very stimulating and inspiring to students, faculty, and friends who attended these meetings. This unit has been centered around the visit of Christ to the Western Hemisphere. During the two weeks' period Communion services, several preaching services, general classes on "Christ and the Archaeology of Ancient America," and residence unit divisional meetings were shared. The concluding service of this series of meetings was a general testimonial fellowship service with the theme, "I Have Come to Know the Christ of Ancient America."

■ Two interesting Wednesday morning assemblies have taken place in the Student Center in the last two weeks.

On February 18 there was a "surprise assembly." The Center had been decorated in red, white, and blue. Patriotic songs and speeches were presented, and red, white, and blue ice cream and cookies were served. Candidates for the student senate election—Paul Lewis from Columbus, Ohio, Don Davis from San Jose, California, and Gene Porter from Portland, Oregon—presented a short review of their aims and ideas for the Senate's improvement, if they were elected.

At 10:00 o'clock on Wednesday, February 26, Dr. Edward Zerlin, Jewish Rabbi and spiritual leader of Congregation B'nai Jeshurum, spoke to the students on "What Every Christian Should Know about Judaism." A large number of the student body attended. Dr. Zerlin lectures on college campuses under the auspices of the Jewish Chautauqua Society.

■ The student body elected Don S. Davis of San Jose to the student senate presidency on Wednesday, February 18. Don fills the vacancy created by the resignation of Dennis Knudson from Excelsior Springs, Missouri. Don has been freshman class secretary, sophomore class president, and a two-year representative to the student council. He was also president of his high school student body of 1800 students and chairman of the California Governor's Youth Conference.

■ The wrestling teams of Graceland and Northwest Missouri State College met at Maryville, Missouri, Friday, February 21. The match ended in a 18-18 tie. Winding up their first season against intercollegiate competition, the Graceland Grapplers proved to be a scrappy squad of determined men; they emerged with four victories out of the eight matches. The spectacular pins led by C. R. Auxier, with Dan Harper and Dan Kelly following in like manner, plus the 8-0 win by Bob Sinclair helped Graceland make the 18-18 score against the strong Maryville opponent. All of these Graceland winners hail from Oklahoma. Because of their splendid performance on the mat, they have been invited to the A.A.U. Regional wrestling tournament scheduled for March 7-8 at Ames, Iowa.

■ The Graceland faculty and administration held a belated valentine party February 25 in the college playshop. A hilarious time was enjoyed by those attending. A white elephant shower was given for newlyweds Dave and Fran Haseltine, Tom and Kathy Nowlin, married last summer, and Rod Schall and Maxine Fletcher who plan to marry this summer. Songs, skits, and poems were presented by various members of the faculty.

■ The Yellowjacket hoopsters were edged in two basketball games over the February 21-22 week end. Playing against Central College on Friday the team dropped a close contest by five points with the final score of 56-61. Duane Thomas from Independence was high-point man with twenty points.

Saturday night the Missouri Valley team in Marshall, Missouri, defeated the Gracelanders by a score of 58-55. This was an exciting game. The Jackets were ahead 53-50 with three minutes to go, but couldn't hold the lead. Ken Green from Rembrandt, Iowa, was high-pointer with twenty-nine points.

■ A profitable social club council workshop was held February 15 with the president, treasurer, and faculty sponsor of fifteen women's clubs and twelve men's clubs attending. Doris Conklin gave a talk on the organization and use of the student organization fund. She was followed by Mrs. Gould, who gave a talk on banquets and preparations for them. She also spoke to the council on budgeting. David Shippy talked about the responsibilities of the president and treasurer of the clubs. Then Mrs. Nowlin discussed sponsored and club relations. To conclude the workshop, representatives of each council gave a speech concerning the purposes of initiations and ways their initiations were conducted.

■ David Hulmes received the majority of penny votes in the "Ugly Man Contest" which closed February 25. This contest was innovated and carried out by the Alpha Phi Omega service organization to boost the World Fellowship Fund which is used to help worthy students from abroad to attend Graceland.

Letters

Letter of Testimony

While attending reunion at Sylvan Lake, Alberta, I had an unusual experience at a confirmation service. Four boys had been baptized and were about to receive the laying on of hands. As the elders prayed over each candidate, I prayed silently that they would be truly blessed. During the confirmation of the first, second, and fourth, as the elder asked God to confer the Holy Ghost, I distinctly felt what I believe to have been the Spirit flooding my body. After the service I told this experience to a member of the priesthood, and he confided that he also had had a similar experience. I believe this was given to me so that I would know little children may well receive the Holy Spirit if they come prepared and are willing to follow the Christ. I had been told by nonmembers that a child of eight is no better able to judge for himself or repent than is an infant.

I would appreciate receiving letters from any Saints who care to write.

DANIEL K. GERMAN

Ft. St. John, British Columbia

Note of Thanks

I want to thank all who sent cards and letters and those who remembered my husband in their prayers. I am happy to report that he seems to have fully recovered.

We live thirty-five miles south of Oklahoma City on Highway 77. I would like to know if there are other members in this vicinity who attend church at Oklahoma City or Midwest City. I would appreciate getting to ride with them. I miss associating with members of the Reorganized Church.

MRS. J. G. MARCUM

Route 1
Lexington, Oklahoma

The Promises of God

The Lord tells us, "Try me and see if I will not open the windows of heaven and pour out a blessing." On February 9 I witnessed the baptism of my eight-year-old granddaughter by her uncle at the church in Fort Scott, Kansas. This completes the uniting of my family of eleven in the church. I am grateful to Pastor Dale Crown and to Missionary Peter Harder for their ministry. God has blessed me abundantly.

I married a nonmember, so from the start I felt that God expected me to witness for Him in the home. I did my best to be a good wife, helping my husband to manage wisely his income, loving and correcting our children, and holding family devotions. My husband did not join us in this sacred act until he became a member of the church, and that was after our girls were married. Now my husband and I have family devotions every evening, often with a grandchild or two joining us.

Naturally, before he was converted, my husband could not see any reason for filing a financial statement and paying tithing. During the depression days we had no "increase"; we were thankful just to be able to meet our expenses. When times got better I began to save a little from household expenses so that I could pay some on my tithing; also I sold crochet work and helped at the election board so that I would have money of my own. After thirty years, he was convinced of the truthfulness of the gospel, and now we file our annual statement together. We have most of our tithing paid and are still paying on it, although our only income is his social security check.

In past years we have had missionaries such as Elders Lee Quick and John Deller visit in our home and conduct meetings. Then we attended services in Chanute, because we had no local church. I am so grateful for our mission and the nice church home we have in Iola now—a place where my children and grandchildren and other boys and girls in the community may learn of the wonderful gospel of Jesus Christ. I have had the privilege of teaching the junior high class. It would have been easy to have given up when the youngsters seemed disinterested, but I remembered the times when I had been disinterested, too. When asked to teach the primary class, I was told only one child attended regularly. At first I said, "No," but many passages of Scripture kept coming to mind about Christ and the children. Today there are eight children enrolled, and three of them are from nonmember homes.

We can't all be women's leaders, but we can accept the opportunities to serve that are offered us. I believe God expects us to study, to attend services, and to recognize our local priesthood as his representatives. At prayer meeting we can share our experiences with our brothers and sisters in the faith and in turn be strengthened as we witness their growth in knowledge and in spirit.

Sometimes there are misunderstandings and discouragements. I find as I encourage others I am strengthened myself. I am grateful to members in other branches who have remembered my family and the Iola mission in their prayers. I am the reporter for our local women's department, and I feel that I have been inspired to write those things which will represent the church favorably to those who read our daily paper. For this privilege of witnessing, I am grateful.

Truly God is no respecter of persons. He blesses each and every one who studies, prays, and works for him.

MRS. SAM MATNEY

Iola, Kansas

Fifty-fourth Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Williams of Leon, Iowa, celebrated their fifty-fourth wedding anniversary on January 13. Mrs. Williams, the former Maud Baggerly, was born June 6, 1888, in Harrison County, Missouri. Mr. Williams was born March 18, 1876, in Ringgold County, Iowa. They were united in marriage by Elder Leonard Holloway. Mrs. Williams has been a member of the Reorganized Church since September, 1899, and Mr. Williams was baptized in September, 1957.

Eight of their twelve children are still living: Ada Weable, John B., Letha Campbell, Bonetta, Iown, Charles B., Lois Robinson, Doris Needham, and Madelene Garvey. Three of their daughters, Mrs. Weable, Mrs. Robinson, and Mrs. Campbell, were present for the anniversary celebration. The Williams also have thirty-five grandchildren and sixteen great-grandchildren.

Fifty-fifth Wedding Anniversary

Dr. and Mrs. H. S. Salisbury of San Anselmo, California, celebrated their fifty-fifth wedding anniversary December 28, 1957.

At the time of their marriage, Dr. Salisbury was president of Graceland College. The wedding was performed by President Joseph Smith III.

Dr. Salisbury has been an elder for sixty-four years and is now active as assistant pastor of the San Rafael mission.

The couple has three children, nine grandchildren, and two great-grandchildren.

Zion's League Annuals — Series A

Zion's League annuals offering to the young people of the church complete selections of commission programs for each month of the year! The over-all theme, "Seek First the Kingdom," is covered in a separate annual for each commission.

Leaguers are urged to order their copies of these helpful new commission annuals now. They're packed full of well-organized materials to assist each of your commission members in planning various activities.

Commission Titles
Worship
Study
Service Recreation

Price
$1.25 each
$4.00 for a complete set of four

HERALD
HOUSE

Box 477
Independence, Missouri

Box 382
Guelph, Ontario, Canada

A Missionary Team

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Silvers

A DESIRE TO DO foreign missionary work sent young Miss Lucy A. Wright, a member of the Christian Church, to one of that church's colleges in La Grande, Iowa, to prepare for ministry. After her training, for some unexplainable reason, she felt urged to postpone any commitment to mission work. She returned to her home near Nevada, Missouri, and contracted to teach school at Veve, Missouri, not far from her home. It was here that she had her first contact with the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ. Members of the church living in the area made a good and lasting impression upon her. Later she signed a contract to teach school in Ellston, Union County, Iowa, and took residence with Elder and Mrs. H. R. Harder, missionaries for the church. She enjoyed her fellowship with Brother and Sister Harder and the Saints at Ellston so much that when she and Brother and Sister Harder later moved to Lamoni she expressed her wish to become a member. "It happened this way," said Sister Silvers. "We were worshiping in the church at Lamoni, when Elder Harder suddenly turned to me and asked, 'Lucy, shall I announce your name for baptism?' I answered, rather breathlessly, 'Yes!'" She was baptized in the creek which ran through Elder Joseph Smith III's property, in fulfillment of her desire to be baptized in running water.

Her parents were not entirely sympathetic to her religious choice. However, upon the gentle insistence of Sister Lucy the traveling missionaries were invited guests in the Wright home during a missionary series. The good Spirit and sense of humor which accompanied the elders were responsible for a change of heart and eventually brought about the conversion of the family.

In a later series of evangelistic meetings held by Elders Arthur C. Silvers and R. T. Walters near Nevada, Missouri, Lucy Wright and Elder Silvers became acquainted with each other. Their mutual interest in the gospel and in each other developed into a lifelong companionship as husband and wife, a team working together for the advancement of the kingdom of God, in whose home, says Sister Silvers, "never an unkind word crossed our lips."

While searching for some documents in her files, Sister Silvers discovered the following brief autobiography which Brother Silvers prepared some years ago, prior to his passing in 1946.

Autobiography of Arthur C. Silvers

I am the oldest child of John A. and Margaret A. Silvers. I was born December 5, 1870, in Lincoln Township, Harrison County, Missouri. At the age of two and one-half years I had spotted fever which left me a cripple for life.

My parents moved to Barton County, Missouri, in the autumn of 1873, then returned to Harrison County about 1878 where they first heard the restored gospel at the Lone Rock schoolhouse. My father was baptized on March 25, 1883. While living here I began reading Zion's Hope; I was especially impressed by the picture heading of the Hope which contained the principles of the gospel.

In the spring of 1887 my parents again moved south, finally locating in Hickory County, Missouri. My father, like most of the isolated Saints, had a great desire to have his neighbors hear the gospel and accordingly corresponded with the minister in charge.

The brethren came and began to preach in the schoolhouses and churches. The wolves howled when they saw the sheep going into the fold. In three years' time the Wheatland Branch was organized. My mother united with the Reorganized Church here on September 1, 1895, and my sister on December 21, 1896.

At the time the elders came to my father's place in Hickory County I was teaching my first school. After being engaged to teach the school I found there was a meeting to be held in the schoolhouse where I was to teach. Wishing to get acquainted with the patrons of the school, I attended. As I did not belong to any church the minister had hope of claiming me as one of his converts. Accordingly, I was invited home with one of the prominent members to talk with the minister. I conversed with him during the evening and naturally used the doctrine I had learned from the Saints to refute his theories. This was new to him and he concluded that I was an infidel. The people went to the directors and tried in vain to get them to give the school to someone else.

In August, 1896, in company with my father, I attended a baptismal service of the Saints and felt strongly impressed for the first time in my life that I ought to be baptized. However, I did not have a change of clothes with me, so I put the impression from my mind.

From that day I began to neglect my evening prayers, which custom I had followed for several years. The next summer I attended a grove meeting of the Saints held on Elder Ethan Payton's farm. It was here on the fourteenth day of August, 1897, that I was baptized by Elder D. C. White.

On September 26 I was ordained a priest and started out at once to tell the gospel story to others. With my grip full of clothing and books I started on foot with Elder F. L. Sawley to preach my first sermon at Prairie Grove schoolhouse about three miles west of Quincy, Missouri. I labored during the winter of 1897 and 1898 with W. H. Mannering, and in April, 1898, attended the General Conference at Independence, Missouri, at which I was appointed to labor in the Clinton, Missouri, District.

Full of zeal and enthusiasm I entered upon my duties; but not unlike other Saints, I soon had trials. Doubt in regard to my calling began to come to my mind. Some of the brethren thought I should be ordained an elder, but I had resolved not to accept another ordination until I knew for myself that the call was divine. Accordingly I waited.

Having a desire to do the will of God in all things, and reading in his word that it was not good for man to be alone, I was married on February 25, 1900, to Miss Lucy Wright.

Not until this time had I realized the trial of being away from a home of my own, but the encouragement I received from a true companion and Latter Day Saint to do my duty repaid me well.

In the autumn of 1901 an incident occurred which was destined to strengthen and encourage me very much. A messenger appeared to me in the night and said, "Two years and you shall be called higher."

I told no one but my wife and made a note of it in my diary. True to his words, in the autumn of 1903 and almost the same time of year, through the gift of tongues and interpretation I was called to the Melchisedec priesthood and ordained to the office of elder on February 28, 1904, by I. N. White and James Moler.

After superannuation Elder Silvers spent his last years in service to the church in conducting missionary meetings and as host and guide to friends of the church at the Auditorium. Sister Silvers grants God all the credit in guiding her life's activities and is grateful for the privilege of serving as part of a missionary husband-wife team for the church for so many years.

Book Reviews

The Way to Biblical Preaching

By Donald G. Miller

Abingdon Press, 1957

Price $2.50

Here's some interesting reading for any priesthood member who preaches. A Presbyterian preacher-professor wrote this 153-page, easily read book. For us, a bell rings when he says that there is in modern Protestant Christianity a famine of hearing the true word of God preached. Author Miller believes that much modern "Christian preaching" is neither Christian nor preaching, that much of it has gotten away from the biblical message of God's redemption through Christ and has become a moral-philosophical discourse presenting merely human ideas. He thinks that considerable misuse of the expository form of preaching in the past (droning reading and inept explanation of long scriptural passages) has helped bring about the extensive modern disdain for biblical or scriptural preaching.

The writer is quite sincere and candid. He says that all true preaching must be expository in substance, not in form, in what it presents, not in the superficial form of how it is presented—expounding or laying before the hearer the scriptural message of God and moving him to obey the divine plan for redemption through Christ. If preaching doesn't do that, the writer says it is not real preaching at all. To that we can say "Amen." The writer also stresses continual, careful study to discover the real meaning, purpose, and mood of scriptural passages in order to justly portray the biblical message.

The author naturally has some of the Protestant outlooks, such as that the Bible is the only scriptural guidance God has given to man and that the main way God would speak today would be through the repetition by the preacher of the inspired message spoken by the ancient apostles and prophets. But inside these limitations, he makes some very sound, incisive statements of truth.

CLAIR E. WELDON

The Dead Sea Scrolls

by Charles F. Pfeiffer

Baker Book House
1957

Price $2.50

The author is Professor of Old Testament Language and Literature at the Moody Bible Institute. This is a good source book and shows much scholarly research. He admits, however, that only a small percentage of the manuscripts of these Dead Sea Scrolls are available for study. In addition to a description of that portion which he examined, Dr. Pfeiffer discusses such subjects as the Essenes and Christianity, Jesus and Essenism, inspiration contained in the Bible, and the canon of Scriptures.

This book can be recommended as a fine source of study, as it represents many years of extensive research in the material that has been available to the author.

JOHN F. JORDAN

New

Understandings of Leadership

By Murray G. Ross and Charles E. Hendry
Associated Press
1957

Price $3.50

This book is a must for all who lead, and those who wish to become efficient leaders. Based on the findings of eminent sociologists and psychologists, it deals with aspects of leadership often lost under a veneer of aptitude tests and popularity polls. Although the book is a survey and application of research, written by sociologists, it can be readily understood by the average reader who is willing to extend himself beyond so-called "easy reading."

New Understandings of Leadership is divided into three parts: Part I, Theory; Part II, Research Findings; and Part III, Implications. Each part is subdivided into specific topics dealing with various phases of leadership. Especially interesting is Chapter 6, in Part III, dealing with "A Tentative Leadership Development Program." Three phases are presented in a unique manner: (1) Some Assertion about Leadership Selection and Training, (2) Principles for a Leadership Development Program, (3) Steps in a Leadership Development Program.

For a book of only 149 pages, New Understandings of Leadership offers much food for thought, both statistically and morally. The following few passages are exemplary of many.

Leadership is something that emerges, that grows, and that is achieved.

But that which distinguishes the leader may be the fact that he does not need to remind himself to be considerate: that he is a considerate person naturally and honestly.

The leader's goal includes that of helping various members in the group to develop their own capacities. HARRY W. BLACK for every church member . . .

A complete list of church locations, district and stake presidents and pastors throughout the world.

1958

CHURCH

DIRECTORY

50c each

HERALD HOUSE

Box 477, Independence, Missouri

Box 382, Guelph, Ontario, Canada

MARCH 17, 1958

(259) 19

www.LatterDayTruth.org

Briefs

Six Ordained

EVERGREEN, ALABAMA.—On October 27, six calls to the priesthood were approved by the branch in a special business meeting. They were Melvin J. Johnson and R. S. Snowden to the office of elder, James S. McClammy and Donald E. Coleman to the office of priest, Thomas L. Roberts to the office of teacher, and Charles L. Shaw to the office of deacon.

Brothers Johnson, Snowden, McClammy, and Shaw were ordained December 8, and Brothers Coleman and Roberts were ordained December 29.

George William, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Ward, was blessed December 29.

Constance Ann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Sager of Coldwater, Michigan, was blessed January 5.

The two sons of Mr. and Mrs. Gwyn Daniels, David Gwyn and James Mark, were blessed on February 2.—Reported by JOAN COLEMAN

Install Officers

BELL, CALIFORNIA.—A candlelight installation ceremony of the 1958 Zion's League officers took place the evening of February 16 at the church. The Lennox Zion's League officers assisted in the installation ceremony. Refreshments were served following the service in the fellowship hall.—Reported by BERNICE KALER

Group Meets on Columbia Campus

LEONIA, NEW JERSEY.—The Manhattan mission had its first meeting Sunday afternoon, February 9, when seventeen met in the Schiff Room of Earl Hall on the Columbia University Campus. The group enjoyed the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Worthington following the meeting, when future plans were made.

The group plans to continue meeting each Sunday at three o'clock in the afternoon at Earl Hall. Plans have been made for fellowship and discussion meetings, a monthly social event, and a survey of interests and talents. The church number will be listed under the name of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Worthington.

The mission is sponsored by Metropolitan New York District. Apostle Lents and Elder Perce Judd are district officers, Seventy Lloyd Adams is missionary, and Harold Cash, bishop's representative.—Reported by LELAND W. NEGAARD

Series by Seventy Koury

TULARE, CALIFORNIA.—On September 8 the annual branch business meeting was held. Elder Albert M. Pearson was re-elected branch pastor, and Elder Donald Damron was sustained as associate pastor.

Other officers elected are as follows: Joyce Pearson, director of religious education; Ben Owens, Jr., youth leader; Eula Damron, women's leader; Maxine Cary, director of music; Mary Ellen Bayless, recorder; Neil Kent, treasurer; Walter Damron, solicitor; Gertrude Damron, publicity agent; Ruth Damron, historian; Florence Kent, book steward; Doris Cory, secretary.

A series was held by Seventy Aleah Koury over a period of about four weeks during December and January. While in Tulare, Brother Koury spent time visiting homes.

On November 17, 1957, Ben Owens, Jr., was ordained a priest by Brother Donald Damron and Central California District President Charles O. Cary.

Construction of a kitchen is underway, with most of the work being done by members. The women held a pre-Christmas bazaar and food sale, which netted approximately $132.00.—Reported by GERTRUDE DAMRON

Mission Organizes into Branch

COOKSVILLE, ONTARIO.—On November 6, the members assembled to organize into a branch. It was the fourth new branch in the period of one week to be established in what was then the Toronto District.

The mission was organized in September, 1955, because a number of Saints had left Humber Bay and Toronto branches to move into this suburban area. It was a mission of the Humber Bay Branch, and had a membership at that time of fifty-nine. Meetings were held at the Scout Hall in Cooksville.

Apostle D. O. Chesworth and A. Orlin Crowner, pastor of Toronto Branch, presided. A roll call of eighty charter members was read by Pastor Russell L. Pycok.

The following branch officers were elected: Brother Pycok, pastor; William Brown, counselor; Shirley Kent, secretary; Gene Miller, treasurer; Reginald Kent, church school director; Delta Pycok, women's leader; Gordon Kent, young people's leader; Eleanor Middleton, music; Ferguson Travis and Reginald Wilson, auditors; Reginald Wilson, Ferguson Travis, and Florence Smith, finance board members; Patricia Madigin, publicity; Reginald Middleton, custodian; Norine McLeod, recorder.

Hilton E. Smith was appointed bishop's solicitor; Lavina Richardson, book steward; and William Brown, missionary co-ordinator.

Scout Hall, the meeting place, is not entirely adequate. A lot committee was elected to find land for building a church.—Reported by PATRICIA MADIGIN

Women's Department Baby Sit

SAN ANTONIO, TEXAS.—The young adults of the San Antonio branches and mission were hosts to the young adults of Southwest Texas District February 8. The afternoon and evening meeting was held at the Rockwood Court Branch. Seventy Wayne Simmons was in charge. The rally theme was "The Work to Which I Have Been Called." Speakers included Blair Bryant, Will Graybill, Patsy Lane, Fred Hahn, and Jack Heddal.

Buzz session discussions were led by Preston Wheeler, Darlene Coffman, and Gene Austin.

Brother Simmons led the panel discussion which focused on preparation through education and stewardship.

Representation was from Corpus Christi, Weslaco, Austin, and San Antonio.

The forty-one in attendance were grateful to the women's department of the San Antonio branches and mission for their baby-sitting service for all children. This service was new to the area, and contributed greatly to the success of the rally. All infants were cared for in the Rockwood Church, and other children cared for at the Capitol Avenue Church, where a recreation program included movies and a trip to playground area. Husband-and-wife teams carried out this program.—Reported by ANN YERRINGTON

Velts Visit Mission

JACKSONVILLE, FLORIDA.—Members of the mission had Brother and Sister Harold I. Velt as visitors February 15-20. Brother Velt gave patriarchal blessings during his stay.

On Sunday, he spoke to the adult class and preached at the eleven o'clock service. He blessed the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Lee Powell, being assisted by the infant's paternal grandfather, Elbert H. Powell. The baby is named Daniel Thomas. Earl Brown played a violin solo.

After the service, a potluck lunch was served at the church. Members were invited to the home of the pastor, Norrie J. Lessard, to continue fellowship with the Velts.

On February 17 the women met at the home of Eva Grace Freeburn for a prayer service, luncheon, and a talk by Sister Velt.

Samuel Perkins and Nathan Claude Freeburn were baptized by Donald T. Inouye, Sr., in December, 1957.

Bruce Allan Brown and Irvy Ray Quitmeyer were baptized by Earl Brown.—Reported by MARTHA W. INOUBE

Four Young People Baptized

REEDSPORT, OREGON.—The first Wednesday night prayer meeting was held September 11.

The election of officers for the mission resulted as follows: Rodney Polley, pastor; Geneva Young, church school director; Alice Polley, music director and historian; Macy Neal, secretary and treasurer; Neal Edmunds, youth leader; Irene Leming, women's leader and Herald House representative; Nina Brannon, reporter.

Robert Seeley held a series of meetings January 5-19. He held four cottage meetings at the Leming home, and four at the Neal home at North Bend, Oregon. A number of Saints from there attend in Reedsport. Brother Seeley baptized four young people, Judy Brannon, Geraine Chronister, Carole Leming, and Joel Leming, Jr.—Reported by NINA BRANNON

Guest Speakers

LAS VEGAS, NEVADA.—The following have been guest speakers during the past few weeks: Elder Victor Willis, Baker, California, on December 8; Elder Marion Brunson, Independence, Missouri, on December 15; Apostle Reed Holmes on January 26, and Bishop David Carmichael, Orange, California, on February 9.—Reported by JANE BRUNSON

A Reminder to Church Members . . .

L. Wayne Updike's new book

WHOSOEVER REPENTETH ($1.75)

is available through your

Book Steward and Herald House

District Conference

MOBILE, ALABAMA.—Mobile district conference was held in Pascagoula, Mississippi, February 16. "Choosing the Highest" was the theme followed throughout the conference. A fellowship service with Apostle E. J. Gleazer in charge began the activities of the day. Elder John R. Darling, district president, presided at the morning preaching service. Apostle Gleazer brought the message. Mrs. Beatrice Darling was in charge of the music and Timothy Frick, stationed at Keesler Air Force Base, Biloxi, Mississippi, was guest organist. Basket lunch was served at noon.

The business session convened at two o'clock. Delegates to General Conference were elected. Mrs. Audrey Sutton was appointed district women's leader to fill the unexpired term of Mrs. Lola McQueen, who had resigned.

Four men from the Ocean Springs, Mississippi group were called to the priesthood: Darrell L. Mink, elder; J. J. Williams, priest; George G. Goff, Jr., and Harvey M. Goff, deacons. The recommendation of the district president to sustain the incumbent district officers for an additional twelve-month tenure was unanimously carried.—Reported by AUDREY SUTTON

Church on TV

DENVER, COLORADO.—The Denver Branch just completed a very successful series of two one-hour TV broadcasts from Central Church, 480 Marion Street. The University Park mission, which was activated last June, 2510 South University Boulevard, also participated and both congregations co-operated in the enterprise and gave their full support. This was Denver's first series of broadcasts originating from the church. Previously the pastor, Ward A. Hougas, and the choir had been on KLZ-TV in studio programs. A 35-foot tower was erected on top of Central Church so that the program could be microwaved to the receiving towers on Lookout Mountain, west of Denver, where it was then re-broadcast into the Rocky Mountain region.

Officials of KLZ estimated at approximately 135,000 viewers saw the two broadcasts. Response by telephone, letters, cards, and otherwise was exceptionally fine. Casper, Wyoming, was the farthest point responding, with many responses from Greeley, Fort Collins, and Boulder, Colorado, as well as Cheyenne, Wyoming. The music for the broadcasts was furnished by the joint choirs which totaled about sixty members.

Ward A. Hougas, city pastor of Denver Branch and president of Eastern Colorado District, was the speaker for both Sundays. He took for his general topic, "This We Believe!" Discussion centered about distinctives and history. Such topics as belief in God, Christ, the Bible, Book of Mormon, Doctrine and Covenants, the Restoration, marriage, and Zion were given brief presentation.

Three TV sets in the downstairs auditorium and in the annex were placed to accommodate the overflow attendance. This made it possible for mothers and small nursery age children to participate in this unique service. W. Farr Kemp, associate pastor at Central, and Elder T. Evan Thomas, pastor at University Park, assisted in the services. Reception was reported as being exceptionally good from practically all points.—Reported by NELL M. LUTZ

Crusade for Friendship

DENVER, COLORADO.—Eastern Colorado District, largest of the fourteen districts constituting the south central membership, had a total of 104 baptisms during calendar year 1957. This represents an increase of approximately 40 per cent over 1956. Membership of this district as of December 31, 1957, was 2,261. The apostle in charge is D. Blair Jensen and the district president is High Priest Ward A. Hougas.

"The Crusade for Friendship," initiated in 1956 by the district women's leader, Tressie Hougas, and implemented by the district president, was credited as an outstanding factor in furthering the work of the district. This is a program for the women and priesthood of the district which entails, among other things, the adoption of from one to six non-members in a social way in an effort to build enduring friendships, looking toward possible church interest later.

The third annual women's retreat was held at Romoca Lodge, Palmer Lake, Colorado, November 1-2. Approximately one hundred women and girls attended. The theme was "Am I Aware?"

One hundred and fifteen Zion's Leaguers met at Romoca for the annual Thanksgiving fellowship and spent two days in fellowship and instruction on Thanksgiving week end. District Leader T. Evan Thomas was in charge, assisted by the district president and others.

December 7-8 the priesthood and wives met for instruction and worship. About one hundred and twenty participated in a program directed by the district presidency in which many from a wide area participated.

The most recent gathering was that of the adult group which met at Romoca, February 15-16. Over one hundred and fifty registered and, in spite of some cancellations, the capacity of the house was overreached and cots were placed in the main assembly hall for the night. Working around the theme "Magnify Your Membership" ten speakers initiated a discussion which was the core of the total program.

October 12 was workday at Romoca Lodge when a crew party was organized to accomplish various jobs preparatory to getting the building, outside and inside, ready for winter. Among the tasks accomplished were oiling the outside of the building, washing windows, installing accordion doors in the assembly hall, putting tops on the kitchen counters, plumbing, and putting new covers on the sixty-four mattresses.—Reported by NELL MILLER LUTZ

Two Men Ordained

LAKE ORION, MICHIGAN.—On February 23, Arthur Curtis and Larry Bell were ordained priests. They were ordained by Elders Truman Horton and Blake Lennon, assisted by Elder W. Randall Hulse. Brother Curtis is music director and Brother Bell is church school director.—Reported by DOLORES SCHALAU

Hymn for March

GUIDE US, O THOU GREAT JEHOVAH

The Hymnal, Number 212

We will use the first tune, Cum Rhondda, for this hymn when we use it at General Conference. This is the tune customarily used in Great Britain. It is a tune which inspires fervency and enthusiasm. It captivates the singer and lingers in his mind long after it is sung.

The words for this hymn first appeared in our hymnody in the 1835 Collection of Hymns for the Church of the Latter Day Saints selected by Emma Smith and published at Kirtland, Ohio. Latter Day Saints have been singing it for over a hundred and twenty years.

The original words, which were paraphrased by E. Robinson, were in the first person singular and represented the singer as a pilgrim through the "barren land" of this earth, seeking the heavenly land beyond Jordan. Our version changes "I" to "we," and speaks of Zion as the promised land that shall be completely ours when the Savior comes again to this good earth.

We have an opportunity to prove that we are a "singing people." A singing church is a vital church. Our vitality, indeed our devotion, can be measured largely by the way in which we sing the songs of Zion. If our feeling is lukewarm, then our singing will be lukewarm, and conversely, if our singing is fervent and vital, it is a pretty good indication that our feeling is also fervent and vital.

We come to General Conference from all over the world, from many cultures and with many backgrounds. In the words of Evan Fry's hymn (No. 381) we come from "isles and continents afar," from "busy marts," "city crowds," "quiet of the countryside," and here together we shall worship "Our Father and our Lord." How we worship him is of extreme and utmost importance to each one of us, and to God.

Public, corporate worship is predicated on the idea that each worshiper is wholeheartedly entering into the spirit of worship. As we sing hymns together we express ourselves in the presence of each other and in the presence of God through the beautiful words of the poet; and through singing we achieve a unity of purpose which could be achieved and expressed in no other way.

That the God of whom we sing may inspire our singing and accept the song of our hearts is my humble prayer.

FRANKLYN S. WEDDLE

ready in August, 1958:

Brand-new graded church school curriculum for Kindergarten,

Primary, Junior, Junior High,

and Senior High Divisions

Watch for further announcements regarding these wonderful new materials!

Bulletin Board

Priesthood Institute and Conference at Clinton, Iowa

Clarence M. Beil, president of the Waterloo-Clinton District, has announced that a one-day district priesthood institute will be held Saturday, March 22, at the church in Clinton, Iowa. It will begin at 10:00 a.m., and end with a husband-wife banquet. High Priest L. Wayne Updike is to be the speaker. In conjunction with the institute, branch women's leaders will meet with the district women's leader to discuss plans for the coming year.

On Sunday, March 23, the spring conference of the Waterloo-Clinton District will be held at Clinton. The morning activities will begin with a prayer service and conclude with a sermon by Apostle M. L. Draper. The business session is scheduled for early afternoon.

RICHARD C. SETTERBERG
District Publicity Director

BOOKS WANTED

A. H. Chapman, 14908 East Thirty-fifth, Independence, Missouri, would like to obtain copies of the Restoration Movement and the Latter Day Saints by A. B. Phillips, the Gospel Messenger by J. S. Roth, and Book of Mormon Lectures by Henry Stebbins. Please state price and condition of the books before sending them.

Servicemen's Addresses

Gene Tester FN 5180129
U.S.S. Cabildo, L.S.D. 16-"B" Div.
c/o F.P.O.
San Francisco, California

A 1/c Lee M. Schaefer
AF 17290394
APO 239, 6313 Air Police Sq.
San Francisco, California

Leonard I. Davis, AM3
"C" Maint. Welding Shop
N.A.A.S. Chasefield
Beeville, Texas

ENGAGEMENTS

Selzer-Coleman

Mr and Mrs. Delbert E. Coleman of Seattle, Washington, announce the engagement of their daughter, Myrna Faye, to Richard M. Selzer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Selzer of Seattle. Miss Coleman was graduated from Graceland in 1957, and Mr. Selzer is a graduate of Oregon Technical Institute. An August wedding is planned.

Hathaway-Sparks

Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Sparks of Tulare, California, announce the engagement of their daughter, Mildred, to Paul A. Hathaway of Eustis, Nebraska. Mildred is a graduate of the Independence Sanitarium School of Nursing. Paul attended the University of Nebraska and is a graduate of the University of California. A June wedding is planned.

WEDDINGS

Scavelli-Grubbs

Barbara Joan Grubbs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Grubbs of Houston, Texas, and Ramon Scavelli, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Scavelli of New Field, New Jersey, were married December 18 at the home of the bride's cousin, Mrs. Johnnie Davis. Elder Charles Neff officiated, assisted by Reverend Howard Hovde of the Baptist Church. The bride is a member of the Houston Chorale, and the groom is a member of the Houston Symphony Orchestra.

White-Bogard

Ruth Larson Bogard and High Priest L. R. (Ted) White were married January 11 at the home of Evangelist and Mrs. Adolph Lundeen in Bremerton, Washington. They are making their home in Burlington, Washington, where the groom is city supervisor.

Lyons-Brown

Nancy Jo Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Brown of Beardstown, Illinois, and Douglas Allison Lyons, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Lyons, also of Beardstown, were married in a double-ring ceremony at the Reorganized Church in Beardstown on February 9. Elder Harold Walker, pastor of the church and uncle of the bride, officiated. They are making their home in Evanston, Illinois. The bride attended Graceland College.

Boman-Kendrick

Norma Ruth Kendrick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Kendrick of Holden, Missouri, and Thomas F. Boman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis H. Boman of Independence, Missouri, were married in a double-ring ceremony on January 18 at the Spring Branch Reorganized Church in Independence. They are making their home in Independence.

BIRTHS

Seventy and Mrs. Loyd Adams of Glen Cove, New York, became the parents of a son, James Aubrey, on September 11, 1957. He was blessed on November 17 by Elders William S. Lord and Wilbert Richards at the Long Island Mission Chapel.

Mr. and Mrs. Dale M. Jones of Boulder, Colorado, announce the birth of a son, Gregory Allen, born January 27. Mrs. Jones is the former Rose Ann Brackenbury of Los Angeles, California.

Mr. and Mrs. Duane E. Mann of Ames, Iowa, became the parents of a daughter, Lori Lynn, on November 11. She was blessed on February 2, 1958, by Elder Lloyd Young and Elder Dale Paterno at Ames. Mrs. Mann, the former Beverly Hosette, is a graduate of Graceland, class of '53.

Mr. and Mrs. William B. Bruch of Columbia, Missouri, became the parents of a daughter, Julie Joy, on July 24, 1957. She was blessed on December 1 at Cameron by her grandfather, Elder Page J. Bruch, assisted by Elder Henry P. Hampton. The father, a 1952 graduate of Graceland, is now attending the University of Missouri.

Mr. and Mrs. William F. Crick of Independence, Missouri, became the parents of a son, Jon Alan, on December 27. He was blessed at Stone Church on February 23 by Elder Samuel Chapman, assisted by Elder Benjamin Bean. Mrs. Crick is the former Carolyn J. Hawley. Both parents attended Graceland College.

Mr. and Mrs. Durward Chrisman of Beardstown, Illinois, became the parents of a daughter, Lisa Marie, on January 3.

Adoption

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hiles have adopted a son, Donald Lee, born April 10, 1957. He was blessed on July 25 by Elders Ernest Thomas and Harold Skiles.

DEATHS

COX.—Edna May, was born November 25, 1906, in Henry County, Missouri, and died November 5, 1957, in St. Joseph, Missouri. She was baptized into the Reorganized Church as a child and was an active worker for many years, serving as choir director and leader of the women's department.

She is survived by her husband, Rual Glen Cox; two sons: Rual Glen, Jr., and David Lee, both of St. Joseph; a brother, Arthur Caselman of St. Joseph; two half sisters, six half brothers; and four grandchildren.

NELSON.—Alma, son of Carl Christian and Martena Nelson, was born December 8, 1884, near Guilford, Missouri, and died February 5, 1958, at the Independence Sanitarium.

On June 6, 1915, he was married to Tony Johannah Meinecke, who survives him. He had been a member of the Reorganized Church since December 12, 1892, and had served in the office of priest since June 8, 1919.

Besides his wife he leaves four daughters: Mrs. Lucy Lord of Independence, Missouri; Mrs. Bertha Smith of Hilo, Hawaii; Mrs. Winifred Negaard of Sisseton, South Dakota; and Fiona Nelson of Lamoni, Iowa; three sons: Kenneth F. and Alma, Jr., of Guilford, and Norman M. of Lamoni; two sisters: Mrs. Walter Breit of Conception Junction, Missouri, and Mrs. Roy Hawley of Guilford; and nine grandchildren.

SHEFFIELD.—Frederick V., was born December 18, 1880, at Winamac, Indiana, and died February 9, 1958, at the Smithville, Missouri, Hospital. He was a retired employee of the Rock Island Railroad and past vice-president of the R. R. Employees Club, a committee member of the Nashua Boy Scout troop, and a thirty-second degree Mason. He had been a member of the Reorganized Church since February 27, 1955.

He is survived by his wife, Tillie; a son, Frederick of Gashland, Missouri; three daughters: Mrs. H. C. Bastrom of Red Oak, Iowa; Mrs. Leo J. Faucon of El Reno, Oklahoma; and Mrs. Jack Messina of North Kansas City, Missouri; two stepsons: Herbert J. Bootman of San Diego, California, and Howard R. Bootman of Kansas City; and two sisters: Mrs. Clay Skidmore and Mrs. Lettie Creed of Mount Sterling, Kentucky. The funeral was conducted by Evangelist F. Roy Whipple and Elder David France. Interment was in the White Chapel Memorial Cemetery.

SHIELDS.—Rebecca Elizabeth, daughter of James and Martha Nichols, was born November 3, 1868, in Robertson County, Kentucky, and died February 1, 1958, at the Independence Sanitarium. On November 10, 1885, she was married to James H. Shields, who died on May 10, 1922. Three of their eight children also preceded her in death. She had been a member of the Reorganized Church since September 2, 1917.

Surviving are four sons: Hadie of Little Rock, Arkansas; Ernest and Henry of Kansas City, Missouri; and Walter of Lenexa, Kansas; a daughter, Mrs. Joseph Katzman of Independence; four brothers: John and Silas Nichols of Versailles, Kentucky, James and Charles Nichols of Lexington, Kentucky; a sister, Mrs. Florence Elliston of Lexington; thirty-six grandchildren; seventy-five great-grandchildren; and two great-great-grandchildren. Elder Evan A. Fry conducted the funeral service at Speaks Chapel in Independence. Interment was in Mound Grove Cemetery.

MILLEN.—Hiram, was born March 7, 1867, and died Tuesday, January 28, 1958, at Flint, Michigan. He was baptized into the Reorganized Church in April, 1913, and was a resident of Flint, Michigan, for thirty-five years. His wife, Ida, died in 1953.

Funeral services were conducted in Flint by Elder R. M. Russell. Interment was in Bristol Cemetery.

PIERCE.—John M., was born May 15, 1871, near Avery, Texas, and died February 7, 1958, at the hospital in Idabel, Oklahoma, after a long illness. He was married on September 6, 1896, to Etta Pollard, who survives him. Two sons and three daughters were born to them. He had been a resident of Tom, Oklahoma, since 1914 and a member of the Reorganized Church since 1935.

Besides his wife he leaves a son, Obie Pierce of Houston, Texas; two daughters: Mrs. Justine Stevens of Goodwater, Oklahoma, and Mrs. Luther Stanfield of Tom; twenty-two grandchildren; eight great-grandchildren; and one great-great-grandchild. Elder T. B. Sharp conducted the funeral service. Burial was in the Tom cemetery.

KITTLE.—Maudie May, daughter of George W. and Mary M. Burnham, was born December 13, 1892, at Independence, Missouri, and died February 25, 1958, at her home in Independence. She was married on September 13, 1943 to Clarence J. Kittle, who preceded her in death on December 20, 1949. She had been a member of the Reorganized Church since October 23, 1935.

She is survived by a brother, Edward Burnham, and a sister, Mrs. Nellie M. Greer, both of Independence. Funeral services were conducted by Elders Glaude A. Smith and Herbert M. Scott at the George Carson Chapel in Independence. Interment was in Woodland Cemetery.

SHERMAN.—Grace E., died at the Cameron (Missouri) Community Hospital at the age of fifty-nine (date of death not given). She was a resident of the community north of Cameron and a member of the Reorganized Church, having been baptized July 21, 1918.

She is survived by her husband, Ernest; two sons: Glenn E. of Cameron and Lyle of Newton, Iowa; and two sisters: Mrs. Lucille Marsh of Springfield, Missouri, and Mrs. Alta Kelly of Mason City, Iowa. The funeral was held at the Reorganized Church, High Priest Emery Jennings and Elder David Gamet officiating. Interment was in the Graceland Cemetery.

PARKS.—LeRoy Joseph, was born July 26, 1882, at Payson, Utah, and died December 9, 1957, at Dinuba, California. He was married on January 9, 1905, to Lula Frances Woods, who survives him. Since December 7, 1892, he had been a member of the Reorganized Church. Two sons preceded him in death.

Besides his wife he leaves three sons: Milas of Seaside, California; Leslie of Mount Ayr, Iowa; and Vern of Phoenix, Arizona; a daughter, Mrs. Irene Vogel of Lamoni, Iowa; two sisters: May Boyer of Baker, Oregon, and Elsie Boyer of Montrose, California; and six grandchildren.

SKILES.—Wanda, was born September 14, 1896, in Rushville, Illinois, and died February 5, 1958, in Beardstown, Illinois, where she had resided for the past forty years. She had been a member of the Reorganized Church since 1931.

She is survived by her husband, James; two sons: Harold and Howard; her mother, Mrs. Orpha Phillips; and a sister, Mrs. Hildreth Stainsby, all of Beardstown; two brothers, Vern of Peoria, Illinois, and Lawrence of Rushville, Illinois; and four grandchildren. Elder John Gorker conducted the funeral. Interment was in the Good Hope Cemetery at Rushville.

NORWOOD.—Lily May, daughter of James Henry and Alice Sweet Amend, was born May 23, 1891, at Afton, Oklahoma, and died February 15, 1958, at Bozeman, Montana. She was married on December 20, 1908, to H. C. Norwood, who survives her. Since May 6, 1900, she had been a member of the Reorganized Church.

Besides her husband she leaves five sons: Clarence W., Fraser, Montana; James H., Helena, Montana; Harold H., Pasco, Washington; Jack R., Denver, Colorado; and Charles W., Augusta, Montana; three daughters: Mrs. Ed Elmer, Hagerman, Idaho; Mrs. Donald McIntosh, Petersburg, Virginia; and Mrs. Gordon Mesley, Hyattsville, Maryland; two sisters: Mrs. A. J. Moore, Bozeman, and Mrs. W. A. Dale, Long Beach, California; two brothers: James Amend, Bell Gardens, California, and Will Amend, Modesto, California; seventeen grandchildren; and one great-grandchild. Elder Luther Troyer conducted the funeral service.

McDUFFEE.—Beatrice Laura, daughter of Robert and Mary Bailey Rawlins, was born May 7, 1885, at Grundy Center, Iowa, and died February 22, 1958, at Giltner, Nebraska. On December 24, 1908, she was married to Delno McDuffee, who survives her. She had been a member of the Reorganized Church since she was sixteen years old.

Besides her husband she leaves a son, Bruce, of Cedar Rapids, Nebraska; a daughter, Hazel Hansen of Giltner; two brothers: Charles Rawlins of Stockton, California, and George Rawlins of Independence, Missouri; a sister, Mrs. John Taber of Lincoln, Nebraska; and five grandchildren. Funeral services were conducted by Seventy Arthur F. Gibbs.

GUEST.—Roy L., was born December 5, 1903, in Gordon, Alabama, and died February 11, 1958, in Jacksonville, Florida. He had been a member of the Reorganized Church since August 9, 1914. He leaves his mother, Mrs. Estelle Guest, and two brothers: Harry and Eric.

WESTALL.—Lida, daughter of Henry and Laura Jay, was born August 5, 1885, in Augusta, Kansas, and died February 15, 1958, in Oklahoma City, Oklahoma. She had spent most of her life in El Dorado, Kansas, and had been a member of the Reorganized Church since August 13, 1928.

Surviving are two daughters: Mrs. Don Kloptenberg of Hastings, Nebraska, and Mrs. Gerald Snell of Phoenix, Arizona; two sons: Russell Owen of Tulsa, Oklahoma, and Raymond Owen of Neodesha, Kansas; seven grandchildren; and three great-grandchildren. Funeral services were conducted by Elder James Menzies at the Kirby Chapel in El Dorado. Burial was in Sunset Lawns Cemetery.

FOREMAN.—Clarence Edward, son of Joseph M. and Sarah Davis Foreman, was born July 5, 1880, in Harrison County, Missouri, and died February 2, 1958, in Kansas City, Missouri. He was married on Christmas Day, 1901, to Lillian Bergerson, who died in July, 1957. One of their three daughters, Rae Marie, also preceded him in death. He had been a member of the Reorganized Church since his youth.

Surviving are two daughters: Mrs. Lucile Budd and Mrs. Dortha Rogge, both of Kansas City, Missouri; a sister, Mrs. Effie Dickey of Pendleton, Oregon; two brothers: Verden of Lamoni, Iowa, and Albert of Florida; one grandchild; and one great-grandchild. Funeral services were conducted by Elder Wilfred Hynden and Elder Walter Hayer. Interment was in Rose Hill Cemetery, Lamoni.

GALLAND.—Effie, daughter of Reuben and Hannah Strong, was born March 7, 1865, near Belton, Iowa, and died February 19, 1958, in Grand Island, Nebraska. In September, 1886, she was married to Charles A. Galland, who preceded her in death in 1929. Five children were born to them. On October 20, 1935, she was married to Henry Galland, who died in September, 1956. She had been a member of the Reorganized Church since the age of fourteen.

Surviving are three daughters: Mrs. George Campbell of Oakland, California; Mrs. Florence Wakeley of Los Angeles, California; and Mrs. Elva McDonald of Grand Island; two sons: Orville of Yakima, Washington, and Harrison of Los Angeles; sixteen grandchildren; and twenty-four great-grandchildren. Seventy Arthur F. Gibbs conducted the funeral service.

FORD.—George W., son of Noble and Candacy Jane Ford, was born June 26, 1877, in Morgan County, Indiana, and died February 1, 1958, at Imperial, Nebraska. In 1905 he homesteaded near Lamar, Nebraska, and on November 21, 1906, was married to Della M. Hall. He operated his farm and a filling station in Lamar for many years, was a board member of the Venango Grain Elevator and the County Fair Board, and from 1934 to 1950 was county commissioner. He had been a member of the Reorganized Church since June 14, 1956.

He is survived by his wife, Della, and five brothers: Thomas of Provo, Utah; Pearl of Colorado Springs, Colorado; Albert of Denver, Colorado; Alva of Wiley, Colorado; and Doc of Tooele, Utah. Funeral services were held at the Reorganized Church in Imperial, High Priest Ward A. Housgas, Elder Stephen Bullard, and Pastor William McCurry of Imperial officiating. Interment was in Mount Tabor Cemetery near Lamar.

MEEK.—1/Lt. Robert Hugh, was born October 1, 1932, at Humeston, Iowa, and died January 25, 1958, while on a training flight mission over the main island of Honshu, Japan. He was graduated from Graceland College in 1951 and from Drake University in 1954. He was awarded his pilot's wings in April, 1956, at Laughlin A.F.B., Del Rio, Texas. On September 15, 1956, he was married to Jean Ellen Featherstone, who survives him. He had been a member of the Reorganized Church since August 29, 1942.

Besides his wife he leaves a son, James Douglas; his mother, Geraldine Clemens; and his grandmother, Mrs. Esther Ulm. A special memorial service was held at the Reorganized Church in Lamoni on February 9, Elder Cecil R. Ettinger and Elder Robert S. Farnham officiating. An honor guard of five R.O.T.C. Cadets from Drake University represented the Air Force at the service.

MORTIMER.—George Albert, was born February 20, 1881, in Harriston, Ontario, and died January 15, 1958, at his home in Elora, Ontario. He was married on December 21, 1904, to Ida Jane Snell, who survives him. He had been a member of the Reorganized Church since July 20, 1890.

Besides his wife he leaves two sons: Ross of Jefferson City, Missouri, and Allen of Elora; two daughters: Mrs. R. M. MacGruther of Elora, and Iris Marcine of Independence, Missouri; eight grandchildren; and one great-grandchild. Elder Arthur Dunn conducted the funeral service at the Tower Chapel in Elora. Interment was in Elora cemetery.

WEEKS.—Ellen Lois, daughter of Andrew and Hilda Balcom Lowe, was born January 6, 1872, at Sherburne, New York, and died February 12, 1958, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. R. L. Stewart, in Holden, Missouri. On February 16, 1892, she was married to Edwain Eugene Weeks, who with four of their thirteen children preceded her in death. She had been a member of the Reorganized Church since August, 1910, and a resident of Holden since 1917.

Surviving are five sons: Harold of Warrensburg, Missouri; Morris of Omaha, Nebraska; Ernest of Kansas City, Missouri; Walter and Charles of Holden; four daughters: Mrs. Stewart and Mrs. Robert Thomas of Holden; Mrs. George Short of Independence, Missouri; and Mrs. George Beckwith of Raytown, Missouri; nineteen grandchildren; twenty-four great-grandchildren; and three sisters: Mrs. Dillie Mason of Shell Beach, California; Mrs. Pearl Shannon and Mrs. Belle Warner of San Francisco, California. Funeral services were conducted by High Priest H. J. Simons and Elder R. P. Dillon at the Holden Church. Interment was in Fairview Cemetery, Holden.

We're on the Air . . .

STATE AND CITY	CALL LETTERS	DIAL READING	DAY AND TIME
ALABAMA, Atmore	WATM	1580	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
ALABAMA, Evergreen	WBLO	1470	Sunday, 9:00 a.m.
ARKANSAS, Jonesboro	KNEA	970	Sunday, 9:00 a.m.
CALIFORNIA, Wasco	KWSO	1050	Sunday, 7:15 a.m.
COLORADO, Durango	KIUP	990	Sunday, 9:45 a.m.
COLORADO, Montrose	KUBC	1260	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
FLORIDA, Crestview	WJSB	1050	Sunday, 9:30 a.m.
FLORIDA, Orlando	WLOF	950	Monday, 9:00 a.m.
IDAHO, Sand Point	KSPT	1400	Sunday, 7:45 a.m.
ILLINOIS, Herrin	WJPF	1340	Sunday, 6:15 p.m.
ILLINOIS, Moline	WQUA	1290	Sunday, 7:45 a.m.
ILLINOIS, Mt. Vernon	WMIX (FM 94.1)	940	Sunday, 8:15 a.m.
KANSAS, Concordia	KFRM	550	Sunday, 12:15 p.m.
MICHIGAN, Bad Axe	WLEW	1340	Sunday, 8:30 a.m.
MICHIGAN, Flint	WMRP	1570	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
MICHIGAN, Houghton Lake	WHGR	1290	Friday, 10:00 a.m.
MINNESOTA, Detroit Lakes	KDLM	1360	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
MISSOURI, Fulton	KFAL	900	Sunday, 8:45 a.m.
MISSOURI, Kansas City	KMBC	980	Sunday, 8:15 a.m.
NEW MEXICO, Clovis	KCLV	1240	Sunday, 8:30 a.m.
NEW YORK, Hornell	WWHG	1320	Sunday, 7:45 a.m.
NORTH DAKOTA, Valley City	KOVC	1490	Sunday, 10:30 a.m.
OHIO, New Philadelphia	WJER	1450	Sunday, 6:00 p.m.
OKLAHOMA, Woodward	KSIW	1430	Sunday, 8:30 p.m.
ONTARIO, Guelph	CJOY	1450	Mar. 17-21 9:00 a.m.
ONTARIO, Sault Ste Marie	CJIC	1050	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
OREGON, Lakeview	KQIK	1230	Sunday, 8:15 a.m.
PENNSYLVANIA, Charleroi	WESA	940	Sunday, 2:00 p.m.
TENNESSEE, Paris	WTFR	710	Sunday, 8:30 a.m.
WASHINGTON, Vancouver	KHFS	1150	Sunday, 7:45 a.m.
WEST VIRGINIA, Parkersburg	WCFF	1050	Sunday, 8:30 a.m.
WISCONSIN, Richland Center	WRCO	1450	Sunday, 12:05 p.m.
			Sunday, 8:15 a.m.

And Finally...

LOVE LETTERS

The little hospital publication, "Trustee," tells how a certain hospital, to protect the patients, restricted the amount of visiting so that recovery could be more rapid. Sometimes, even husbands and wives could not be admitted. But the doctor had a heart. He provided special note paper so they could write little messages to each other.

And, lo, what did he find? That a good many of them wrote love letters. With footnotes, of course, about the children at home and the dishes stacking up in the sink—but still basically love letters. Love letters such as these good people had not perhaps written each other since their courtship days. Some of the things they wrote were beautiful, whimsical, lovely, delectable.

How long is it since you have had a love letter? How long since you have written one? We mean something, of course, besides the valentine, Christmas card, and birthday remembrance.

Don't wait until your companion goes to the hospital just to write a love letter. You could do it now. Such a thing could amaze and enchant your children. And never doubt that the burdens of ministry might rest more lightly on the pastor of your church if more married members wrote each other some love letters.

L. J. L.

ABOUT HIS FATHER'S BUSINESS

I had more than I could carry—a picture for the worship center, paper bags, books. As I turned into the mall of Columbia University, headed for the meeting place of our Manhattan church group, a pleasant voice said, "May I help you?" I turned and recognized a white-haired dignified gentleman

Contents

EDITORIAL AND OFFICIAL
Let's Save the Individual, by Leonard J. Lea	3
Reopening of Kirtland Temple to Guided Tours	4
Across the Desk	4
FEATURE ARTICLES
1957 a Top Year at "San" Join None of the Churches, Part I, by S. C. Barrows	2
Guarding against Panic, by Frances McDole	7
The Law Is Your Friend, by Elbert A. Smith	8
A New Home for Haddonfield Branch Miracle Is a Worldly Term, by Babbie Bogue Stull	10
What Is This New Woman? by Barbara McFarlane Higdon	12
Be Ye Doers, by Norma Anne Kirkendall	13
Growing Comprehension, by Audrey Stubbart	14
A Missionary Team, by Herbert M. Scott	18
SPECIAL COLUMNS
We'd Like You to Know: Celia Schall	2
I Had an Experience, by Calvin Carpenter	14
Question Time	15
Graceland Gazette	16
Letters	17
Book Reviews	19
Briefs	20
Hymn for the Month: Guide Us, O Thou Great Jehovah	21
Bulletin Board	22
And Finally	24

—Lee Hartshorn, who lives out in Richmond Hill many miles away.

Why was Brother Hartshorn there in midtown New York on this cold February Sunday afternoon? Why, where else would a man like him be—but supporting the church's newest venture in this area. It meant more than a casual subway ride for this energetic gentleman. He had taken five different trains and spent an hour and a half en route. He was there to lend moral support, to tell the leaders names of more people to contact, to "be there." How much his "being there" means to the young people of the little group!

Sometimes people over seventy feel their usefulness to the church has declined. Brother Hartshorn is an example of one who's still about his father's business, being where he ought to be, giving support where the Lord's work needs him.

Sadi Negaard

TWO KINDS

Reorganized Church members are of two kinds: those who are misocapnists and those who are not misocapnists. While the aversion of some may be more intense than that of other Saints, they all line up for or against. The line to the right is much the longest. Some of our religious neighbors cannot understand what makes us this way. Assure them it is not due to esthetic considerations, fastidiousness, nor a psychiatric block. Our general antagonism is neither indigenous nor congenital. God told us it was not good for man, and it smells horrible!

C. B. H.

FORMULA

Read yourself full,
Think yourself clear,
Pray yourself hot,
Let yourself go.

—A negro member of E. S. Jones' Ashram
"Is the Kingdom of God Realism"

FOUNTAIN OF YOUTH

In the central place of every heart there is a recording chamber; so long as it receives messages of beauty, hope, cheer, and courage, so long are you young.

—Douglas MacArthur

Choose from this exciting selection of

Giant Books

Here are America's favorite big picture and story books. Children love them with their bright and appealing hard covers and the wonderful stories and verses of childhood. Make your choice now from these 24 outstanding titles, conveniently arranged in age groups. Size, 9¼ by 12½ inches. Rand McNally

$1.00 each

ages 2 to 6 years

My First Book about Jesus
Mother Goose
Noah's Ark
The Children That Lived in a Shoe
Little Miss Muffet

ages 4 to 8 years

Johnny and the Birds
Peter Rabbit
Wild Animals
Chester, the Little Pony
Forest Babies
Three Little Bunnies
The Adventures of Robin Hood and His Merry Men
Farm Animals
Hiawatha
The Seven Wonderful Cats
Little Lost Angel

ages 3 to 7 years

Little Bobo and His Blue Jacket
Aesop's Fables
Bartholomew, the Beaver
The Smart Little Mouse
The Little Mailman of Bayberry Lane
The Three Bears Visit Goldilocks
Prayers and Graces for a Small Child

Shipping charges extra. If you live in Missouri, add 2% sales tax.

Box 477
Independence, Missouri

Box 382
Guelph, Ontario, Canada

SAINTS' HERALD

Volume 105 / March 24, 1958 / Number 12

HOUSE OF THE LORD

Kirtland Temple
Dedicated March 27
1836

Photo by Floyd Pedersen

William H. Oliver

THIS is the thirtieth year of church membership and the tenth as manager of the Central Development Association for "Bill" Oliver. And it is all a part of an experience that goes back many years.

Brother Oliver was reared in a church-divided home (Catholic-Anglican) in Canada, and to please his family he joined a church before entering the army in World War I. But it was without any personal convictions that he united with the nearest church to his home and became a Presbyterian.

However, during his three-and-a-half war years he became amazed at the number of times his life was spared when all about him lay death. Finally he prayed about it and had an experience in which he was informed that God had a work for him to do. He was also told that if he voluntarily turned down the work, his life would be cut short. But he was still in the dark as to the nature of the work that lay ahead.

In 1918 he returned to Canada and was married the next year. His wife was a member of the Reorganized Church, so he soon found himself reading church literature. During his studies he became aware that this was the work for which his life had been spared. In April, 1928, he became a member of the church and, as he puts it, "I can't remember when I have not been busy in church work since that time."

His first work was as solicitor. By this time he was living in the United States. Then he was ordained a deacon in 1937, a priest in 1940, an elder and a counselor to the bishop in the Detroit, Michigan, area in 1941. Now living in Independence, Missouri, he is counselor to the pastor of the Liberty Street congregation.

Brother Oliver brings a host of experience to his position as manager of church properties in the Independence area. Although he was unable to complete high school, he attended night schools and took extension courses and became adept in accounting. He worked in banking for fifteen years, spent eight years with the U. S. Treasury Department, was supervisor of accounting in the experimental aircraft division of General Motors for four years, and was comptroller of the Robott Tool Company for a year before coming to Independence in 1948 at the request of the Presiding Bishopric.

The Olivers (William and Ethel) have two children: John Joseph of Independence, and Ruth Ann Holmes of Minneapolis, Minnesota. Brother Oliver spends most of his waking hours caring for church properties in Independence, but whenever he has the time he enjoys his hobby of organic gardening.

First Responses from all over Church Show Immediate Interest

THE first mention of a campaign to raise money for new Auditorium seats brought immediate response, according to Jack Boren, assistant to the Presiding Bishopric.

Response from all over the church shows immediate interest in the campaign, he said. And interestingly, Auditorium employees themselves were among the first to respond. Some employees at church headquarters posted a paper on the bulletin board asking workers to sign if they were interested in buying a seat through payroll deductions. Fifteen signed the first day. Thirty-two signed the first week.

Herald House, publishing division of the church, has begun a similar plan to allow employees to purchase Auditorium seats, and a number of workers have already begun the plan.

"We've had many favorable reports on our campaign to encourage people to give $30 for a seat," Brother Boren said. "If this response continues, we are sure we'll reach our goal of $175,000 for new seating."

The cost of the seats, he pointed out, is the installed price and includes engineering, installation, and the cost of the seat itself.

The new seats will be blue nylon theater type chairs. Pew ends will be walnut. Backs and arms of the chairs will be walnut finish also.

A recent editorial in Stride magazine recommended raising money for an Auditorium seat as a good project for youth groups. Brother Boren said he hoped many individuals as well as many groups will undertake the purchase of a seat for the new General Conference Chamber.

Authors in This Issue

Kenneth T. Green (page 5), elder, Kirtland, Ohio

Byron Kagey (page 7), deacon, Stewartsville, Missouri

S. C. Barrows (page 8), elder, Lamoni, Iowa

Frederick R. Troeh (page 11), elder, Emmett, Idaho

William Patterson (page 10), patriarch, Independence, Missouri

Roger Yarrington (page 12), assistant editor of Herald

Mrs. Mark Siegfried (page 14), Independence, Missouri

For Want of a Reader . . .

A Frank Message Addressed to Parents of Church Youth

HOW OFTEN HAVE you as a parent said, "My child is going to have all the things I wanted most but didn't have!"

Most parents feel this way. As a result, their children receive toys, clothes, education, and a favored start in married life that, perhaps, the parents did not enjoy.

It is good for parents to want to give their children the best they can offer. However, parents need to be sure that they are giving their children the things that they need most.

It is quite evident from membership statistics and circulation figures that many parents in the church are not giving their young people the opportunity to read the church youth magazine, Stride.

Our church has 167,277 members. Using the U.S. Census average of 3.3 persons per family, we would estimate there are over 50,600 families in the church.

How many of these families would you guess have Zion's Leaguers at home or young people living away at college or in the service? Let's be conservative and say only one fourth of our families have young people in their teens or early twenties. That means Stride's circulation should be over 12,600. Actually, it is only slightly above 3,000!

A Case of Negligence

Not long ago an elder sat down to counsel with two parents who have a problem teen-ager. "We try to do everything for our boy," the worried parents said. "Still, he continually seems to get into trouble."

As the elder questioned the parents he uncovered the fact that "doing everything" for their boy included giving him a car, nice clothes, plenty of spending money.

"Do you subscribe to Stride for him?" the elder asked. "Why, no, we didn't think of that," they said.

We wonder if this one case is representative of thousands of church families with young people who are not taking Stride. It is a good question for parents to ask themselves: "Are we giving our children the best we can offer? Are we giving them the best the church can offer?"

Good Reading for Youth

"It is a good magazine and ought to have much value for the church and particularly the youth," was one apostle's comment on seeing a recent issue of Stride.

"I have found Stride full of interesting material. This magazine will have a tremendous influence for good," was the comment of a member of the First Presidency.

"We enjoy Stride and believe it is a real service to the youth of the church," wrote a Seventy in a mission abroad.

"Stride is an unusually fine publication. We have made a special effort to push it here in this district," said a youth leader.

"We think Stride is a very fine magazine, and it is giving a good service to League members and all who read it," said a Zion's Leaguer.

This is just a sampling of the comments that have come from church leaders, pastors, parents, and the young people themselves.

Looking Ahead

Stride is in its second year of publication. That is always supposed to be the toughest year. Although subscriptions have lagged, enthusiasm has not. Special issues such as the ones on missionary work, Latin America, missions abroad, higher education, dating and marriage have received wonderful responses.

Most readers seem impressed by the many pictures, the wide variety, and the deep meaning they find in Stride. These will continue—if the magazine continues. However, for want of readers, a magazine can be lost!

Future issues of Stride will carry articles by many young people, church officials, coaches, world travelers, politicians, campers, scientists, nurses, businessmen, teachers, psychologists, student leaders, missionaries, youth abroad—all aimed at stimulating and helping church young people.

Young people who should read Stride include high school students, college students, servicemen, and all other youth who are interested in learning more about the church, its testimony, and how they can serve. This is not to say others will not enjoy the youth magazine, too. Many younger folks say they like the magazine, and certainly a lot of adults can be found reading it. But its message is aimed at the youth in their teens and twenties. Everyone of them should have it.

Take stock, parents. In seeking the best for your children, have you overlooked Stride?

R. Y.

Official

Official Name for Church Campus Groups

Over the past several years the numbers of our church young people enrolled in colleges and universities throughout the world has increased steadily until the church now has record of close to twelve hundred such students, enrolled in nearly two hundred schools in the United States, Canada, and abroad.

In an effort to provide these scattered students with the most effective ministry possible, encouragement has been given our students transferring from Graceland or our School of Nursing, or entering college for the first time, to attend schools where they may have church privileges either through the ministry of a local congregation or in the fellowship of other church member students. Out of these concentrations have come organized student groups which meet together regularly for social and religious purposes on some twenty different campuses. In order to cement that fellowship and to receive valuable recognition from the universities, the groups have taken various names to distinguish their church relationship.

The name most often chosen by these groups is "Liahona Fellowship." The word "Liahona" is taken from Alma 17: 71 in the Book of Mormon reference to the director or compass which guided Lehi and his sons to the new world. Fellowship symbolizes the "fellowship of the Saints."

Now in recognition of the need for a common name and upon the recommendation of the Committee on Ministry to College People, the First Presidency concurs in the choice of the name "Liahona Fellowship" for distinctive use among our church campus organizations. We trust this will receive the support of all our organized campus groups and of the church in general.

THE FIRST PRESIDENCY

Across the Desk

OF THE FIRST PRESIDENCY

Seventy A. M. Pelletier, Jr., has sent this report of a recent missionary success:

Ralph Bobbitt and I shared a series at Jackson, Ohio, February 2 to 14. Three congregations worked together on the series: Jackson, Limerick, and Wellston, Ohio.

Elder Bobbitt was there a week or so in advance to make arrangements for advertising and organizing our people and priesthood for a maximum missionary effort. The publicity included newspaper, invitation folders, store window posters, and fifteen-minute radio services which we shared each day of the crusade.

Brother Bobbitt also presided at the services and led an inspired fifteen-minute hymn service each evening. I did the preaching. The well-ordered services invited a good spirit which in turn brought out many members and friends. Our average attendance was one hundred and four with an average of eighteen nonmembers. This was in spite of much snow and cold weather. Special music and a nursery each evening also helped the attendance.

There were sixteen decisions for baptism. Ninety-four nonmembers attended the series, and we leave thirty-nine of them as good prospects. Thirteen cottage meetings have already been provided for. Brother Bobbitt will conduct these with other men of the priesthood as part of their follow-up ministry.

It was another good experience in evangelism which was possible because of enthusiastic co-operation and preparation and because "the people had a mind to work."

A good friend called our attention, after the picture of the beautiful window of the Omaha Church appeared on the cover of the Herald of January 13, to the fact that this window was given to the Omaha Church (Thirty-sixth and Burt) in memory of James M. Kelley. He was one of the faithful workers and leaders in the erection of that church. Brother Kelley died in April, 1929, and the window was given by his wife, Nell (Atkinson) Kelley. The church was designed by the architect, Bishop W. T. Wellman, and is one of our fine houses of worship. Since Brother Kelley's death, Sister Kelley has been in Independence, contributing to the church work, particularly in the field of music, and in other lines of service.

This letter has arrived from Elder John Blackstock:

January 26 we dedicated the Jackson, Ohio, church. Apostle Arthur Oakman was the speaker. Evangelist Floyd Rockwell offered the dedicatory prayer. Brother Ralph Bobbitt sang a solo. It was a good experience for the Jackson Saints and others who met with them.

In the evening of the same day, we held a consecration service at the new church in Wellston, Ohio. Brother Oakman also preached at this service and Brother Rockwell offered the consecration prayer. Elder Bobbitt was with us and led the congregational singing.

Before the service, ten children were baptized and two babies were blessed. We felt this was a good way to start off in a new church.

In the past two years there have been one hundred and seventy-five persons baptized in the district. This is well above past averages, but we feel it is below what we should be doing.

Mrs. H. A. Stebbins Dies

Death came to Clara Beatrice Stebbins on March 11. She was better known as Callie, for under this name she wrote junior quarterlies which served the church for years. Sister Stebbins was in her hundredth year. Her funeral was held on Thursday, March 13, and burial was in Rose Hill Cemetery at Lamoni, Iowa.

The Saints' Herald

Vol. 105 March 24, 1958 No. 12

EDITORS: The First Presidency: Israel A. Smith, F. Henry Edwards, W. Wallace Smith. ASSISTANTS: Chris B. Hartshorn, Managing Editor; Naomi Russell, Assistant Editor; Paul A. Wellington, Assistant Editor; Roger Yarrington, Assistant Editor; Audrey Stub-

bart, Copy Editor; and Leonard J. Lea, Contributing Editor. BUSINESS MANAGER, Kenneth L. Graham.

The Saints' Herald is the official publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, with headquarters at The Auditorium, Independence, Missouri, and is issued through the offices of Herald Publishing House, 103 South Osage Street, Independence, Missouri.

Herald editors are not responsible for the views and opinions expressed in articles or communications other than those of editorial authorship.

Entered as second-class matter at the post office at Independence, Missouri, under Act of March 3, 1879. Issued weekly at Independence, Missouri, except daily during the biennial General Conference. Price, $4.00 per year in advance in the U.S.A., its territories and possessions; Canada, $4.25 per year; other countries, $5.00 per year. Notice of a change of address must be given three weeks ahead of the date that it is to become effective. Accepted for mailing at the special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917, authorized July 21, 1921. Printed in the United States of America.

www.LatterDayTruth.org

We Remember Kirtland Temple

By Kenneth T. Green

TO THE STUDENTS of R.L.D.S. Church history, March 27 is a significant date. This year we commemorate the one hundred and twenty-second anniversary of the dedication of the "House of the Lord." Kirtland Temple is remembered for many wonderful experiences had by the early Saints. It seems appropriate, therefore, that we review some of the circumstances and events that took place in the lives of our early Saints in the erection of this beautiful building.

Dedication Day

Hearts swelled for joy when the Saints beheld the completed Temple—the House of the Lord—which they had built by toil, suffering, and sacrifice. It was Sunday morning, March 27, 1836, at nine o'clock that some one thousand Latter Day Saints gathered to dedicate the Temple of God. It looked beautiful, standing on its high place with its windows glistening in the sun. Just north of it, within a mile, was the Chagrin River, and six miles away was Lake Erie. Strong and silent it looked, its two-foot-thick stone walls plastered smooth outside and inside, its doors guarded by keepers.

It was disappointing to the presidents of the church, who had assisted in seating the congregation, to have to direct the doorkeepers to close the doors, as all seats and even the aisles were filled. The congregation, assembled in the first floor auditorium of the building, silently and solemnly waited to hear the word of the Lord from the mouth of his servants in the sacred desk. President Sidney Rigdon read the ninety-sixth and twenty-fourth Psalms. A choir, divided into four sections and located in each corner of the room, sang under the direction of M. C. Davis, "Ere long the veil will rend in twain," a hymn written by Parley P. Pratt to the tune of "Sterling."

The invocation was given by Elder Rigdon, after which the choir sang, "O happy souls who pray," written by W. W. Phelps to the tune "Weymuth." Significant to the dedicatory sermon—preached by Sidney Rigdon—was the retrospective view of the toils, privations, and anxieties of those who had labored to erect the walls of the Lord's house. He added that there were those who had wet the walls with their tears, in the silent shades of night, while they were praying to the God of heaven to protect them and stay the unhallowed hands of ruthless spoilers, who had uttered a prophecy when the foundation was laid that the falls would never be reared. After closing his discourse Elder Rigdon presented Joseph Smith, Jr., to the church as a prophet and seer. The presidents of the church, then all in their seats, acknowledged him as such by rising. The vote was unanimous in the affirmative. Everything was in order. The congregation was in attunement with the Spirit of God, and there was no confusion or disturbance. The closing hymn was "Now let us rejoice in the day of salvation," written by W. W. Phelps to the tune "Hosanna." There was a recess of fifteen minutes; none left their seats except some of the mothers who had to care for their little children.

The afternoon session was commenced by the singing of the hymn, "This earth was once a garden place," written by W. W. Phelps, to the tune "Adam-ondi-ahman." President Smith arose and presented the several presidents of the church, then present, to the several quorums respectively, and acknowledged them to be equal with him in that they were prophets and seers as well. President Smith then addressed the congregation for instruction, and at or about the close of his remarks he prophesied to all—that inasmuch as they would uphold these men in their stations (alluding to the different quorums in the church) the Lord would bless them. “Yea, in the name of Christ, the blessings of heaven shall be yours,” he said. After the prophecy the hymn “How pleased and blest was I” was sung to the tune “Dalston.”

He then offered the dedication prayer which is available to us in detail (Church History, Volume II, pages 38-44). The central message of the dedicatory prayer was thanksgiving, seeking for divine acceptance, commitment of the congregation to divine devotion in the use of the Lord’s house, and concluding, “O hear, O hear, O hear us, O Lord, and answer these petitions, and accept the dedication of this house unto thee, the work of our hands, which we have built unto thy name; and also this church to put upon it thy name.” At the conclusion of his prayer the choir sang the hymn, “The spirit of God like a fire is burning” (tune Hosanna). The prayer was voted upon and accepted unanimously in the affirmative.

The Eucharist was administered. Don Carlos Smith blessed the bread and wine which were distributed by several elders present. President Smith arose and bore record of his mission. Don Carlos Smith bore record of the truth of the gospel to him. President Oliver Cowdery spoke and testified of the truth of the Book of Mormon and of the work of the Lord in these last days. President Frederick G. Williams bore record that a holy angel of God came and sat between him and Joseph Smith, Sr., while the house was being dedicated. President Hyrum Smith (one of the building committee) made appropriate remarks congratulating and confirming the divine origin of the building. He stated it was the Lord’s house built by His commandment and that He would bless them. President Sidney Rigdon then made a few appropriate remarks and gave a short prayer, which was ended with loud acclamations of “Hosanna! Hosanna! Hosanna to God and the Lamb, Amen, Amen, and Amen!” three times. Elder B. Young, one of the twelve, gave a short address in tongues after which Elder D. W. Patten interpreted and gave a short exhortation in tongues. President Joseph Smith, Jr., then blessed the congregation in the name of the Lord, and at a little past four o’clock, the service closed.

The spiritual feast is acknowledged not only by their fasting and quiet conduct during the eight-hour session but also by their sacrificial devotion of their substance, because there was given in offering that day the sum of nine hundred and sixty-three dollars. The Temple then began its official use.

The Lord Appeared

Just one week later, before a quorum meeting of high priests, Joseph Smith, Jr., and Oliver Cowdery retreated to the top pulpit in the first floor of the Temple in meditation and prayer. The veils were rent. Still in remembrance of the dedication service the previous Sunday, they were brought to feel in great power the light of heaven. It was then the Lord appeared to them in vision. He seemed to be standing on a pavement of gold. He was wonderfully bright, and they heard his voice, soft, full, and mighty, like rushing waters, as he told them he accepted the house, and promised that thousands would rejoice because of the things done in it. He also said that “the fame of this house shall spread to foreign lands.” This has been true, and many other things have happened that were foretold in that brief prayer meeting of those two men who had been visited just six years before by an angel, John the Baptist, who conferred the priesthood on them when they met on the banks of the Susquehanna River.

The Command to Build

Let us now consider the physical struggle in the building of Kirtland Temple. The Latter Day Saints who then, as now, believed that God varies not in his dealings with men, accepted in all good faith his word to them in June, 1833, commanding that a “temple” should be built at Kirtland, giving the dimensions and plan thereof. The Lord had told them the size they were to build the Temple—fifty-five feet wide and sixty-five feet long on the inside. On June 6, 1833, a conference was called to counsel the committee who had been appointed to take oversight of the building of the house. Committee members Reynolds Cahoon, Jared Carter, and Hyrum Smith were assigned to obtain material to build the Temple.

Almost night and day the men worked on the Temple. The women and girls were knitting, spinning, and weaving raw wool into cloth for the men who worked at the Temple. This was in preparation for the fall and winter months, as every bit of money was turned into the Temple fund. The men who worked on the building received no pay, and they had no means to buy clothing, so the sisters furnished these necessities. Some of the women made exquisite patterns in toweling and linen, doing all the work from the raw flax to towels and garments.

Toil and Sacrifice

The early Saints in Kirtland were few in number—with many of the eldership away on missions, most were very poor; but they were earnest and anxious to help God’s work. No one sat idle because he could not do the thing that someone else was doing. Men worked in any station they could fill, eagerly pushing the Temple work wherever they possibly could do anything. Some of the time they were forced to keep guards on the wall at night to prevent enemies from destroying the work they had done. To show some of the equality felt—President Joseph Smith, Jr., was foreman in the stone quarry—also was found at manual work as were the high priests, elders, priests, teachers, and deacons. All sweated at hard labor, day after day, on this house planned and commanded by almighty God to be built. Our history tells us that cherished keepsakes, bits of jewelry, and family silver were sold by these brave and earnest people to get means to help build the Temple.

To further beautify the Temple, the women sacrificed their fine china to be broken into small pieces and put in the mortar which adorned the exterior of the Temple. This gave a beautiful sparkling effect as the sun shone upon it. In just a little over two and one-half years the Temple was completed and dedicated.

The Temple Today

When we visit “the house of the Lord” today we find few changes. Due to extensive deterioration of the exterior walls it has been completely renovated. The best of materials have been used—even glass was ground up to fine powder and mixed into the mortar to give it the same effect as the original. It stands out beautifully in an off-white color with reddish-tinge cornerstones and window frames. It has been determined by the church to do further work on the interior, and this is now in progress.

The first and second stories are auditorium space, each fifty-five by sixty-five feet. The lower auditorium room looks nearly the same as when it was dedicated for sacrament offerings, preaching, fasting, praying, and the offering up of most holy desires to the Lord. The second floor looks the same with its

Elder Kenneth Green

Kirtland Temple Minister

provision of desks for the school of the apostles. In each of the rooms the eight pulpits stand as they did with four in each end, one above the other. Those in the west end were intended for the Melchisedec priesthood, and those in the east end for the Aaronic priesthood. The third story is divided into small rooms, and all have been replastered. The building has stood now for one hundred and twenty-two years, situated on about nine feet of hardpan clay under which is quicksand. Engineers claim it is still well preserved and hasn't settled.

Guide Service has been interrupted intermittently, but no member of the church has been denied the privilege of visiting and praying in "the only Temple standing today which was built by the command of God."

SOURCE MATERIALS AND ADAPTATIONS WERE TAKEN FROM THE FOLLOWING:

1. Heman C. Smith, Church History, Volume 2
2. Vida E. Smith, Young People's History
3. Ray Ashenhurst, September 26, 1949, article in Saints' Herald
4. The Kirtland Temple Tract (the one preceding Harry Black's tract)

Agricultural Advisory Committee

THE GROWTH AND EXPANSION of the agricultural program of the church, which now involves the operation of almost eight thousand acres of land, has made it advisable for the Presiding Bishopric, with the approval of the First Presidency, to establish an Advisory Committee to give consideration to the long-time and over-all planning of this phase of our church activity. This committee is made up of the following personnel: N. Ray Carmichael; Earl T. Higdon; Willard Becker; Fred Horne; William Piedimonte; Harry G. Barto; Paul Roberts; W. Wallace Smith; H. L. Livingston; W. N. Johnson; G. L. DeLapp, chairman.

Each member of this committee brings to the church a specific background of experience and knowledge which will be valuable.

We have also made some reorganization in the management and operations of our church-owned farm lands. It has been possible for us to bring Don Elefson, who was previously employed in this department, back into our organization.

Bishop Carmichael will continue as operations supervisor, looking after all of our farming operations, doing over-all planning, handling all of the marketing and sales of our produce and livestock.

Brother Elefson will have the title of farm manager, looking after the detailed administration of the farms and the handling of the leases. He will be, in association with Bishop Carmichael, responsible for the production program of the farm lands, which include farm crops, livestock, and related activities. Brother Carmichael and Brother Elefson have had excellent experience together, and we are sure that this division of responsibilities will be helpful and result in the best use and management of our farm lands.

Brother Carmichael's long years of experience have brought to the church a fund of knowledge that is invaluable. Our agricultural operations have become so extensive that research and long-time planning are necessary. His contribution to this end will be continued on a broader scale than was hitherto possible because of the many demands made upon him.

Brother Elefson also brings to us additional experience since he was last with us, some four years ago, when he resigned to take further study in the College of Agriculture at the University of Missouri. Since the completion of his post-graduate course he has been working in the phase of agricultural conservation related to land development and management, the objectives of which were to establish programs of land use, designed to maintain fertility for future generations and afford a stabilized and profitable income to the farm owner and operator.

We feel that these steps taken will further implement the social program of the church.

THE PRESIDING BISHOPRIC
By G. L. DeLapp

Guideposts or Ambulances

WHILE WATCHING the heavy flow of traffic which runs to and fro on United States Highway 36, I was reminded that some years ago, as a youngster, I watched with ever-increasing interest as this highway neared completion.

Before it was opened to traffic, workmen set posts at certain places. When asked why, they said, "Guideposts—to keep people on the road."

From right to left there ran a wide, smooth white ribbon of new concrete. Why, I wondered, would people leave so fine a road? But they did. Shortly after the road's formal opening, an auto careened wildly over the highway, missed a curve, and plunged to a crashing halt at the foot of an embankment. Soon an ambulance picked up the victims, and they were taken to a hospital where they received medical attention.

There are many paths, roads, and avenues over which we may begin our journey toward the kingdom of God, but eventually they must all connect with that one great highway of which Jesus spoke. Early in the 19th century this movement became quite noticeable, and it has increased until today the Restoration movement is tremendous. The pertinent question is, are we anxious to become guideposts to keep these travelers moving steadily and safely along God's highway of life, or are we content to be ambulances that pick up the weak, weary, and misinformed after they have fallen by the wayside?

BYRON KAGAY

Join None of the Churches

Part II

Methodist Church

The Methodists include the following in their creed:

1. They believe in the Trinity.
2. They believe in the natural sinfulness of man—his need of conversion and repentance, and his freedom of the will. All men are sinners. God loves all men, hates all sin.
3. They believe in justification by faith, sanctification, and holiness.
4. They believe in future rewards and punishments.
5. They believe in the sufficiency of the Scriptures for salvation, perfecting and enabling grace of God.
6. Membership, full or probationary, is based on confession of faith or by letter of transfer from other evangelical churches.
7. Children are admitted usually at thirteen, but in some southern churches the age may be two or three years younger. (I'm not sure of the relationship of this to Number 8.)
8. Baptism for both infants and adults is preferably by sprinkling, but adults may choose sprinkling, pouring, or immersion.
9. All who persevere to the end, and only these, shall be saved in heaven forever.

Presbyterian Church

1. Some men are predestined unto everlasting life; others are foreordained to everlasting death.
2. Those predestined and foreordained are particularly and unchangeably designed, and their number is so certain and definite that it cannot be either increased or diminished.
3. Those who are predestinated unto life, God before the foundation of the world, chose in Christ unto everlasting glory, out of his mere free grace and love without any foresight of faith or good works or perseverance in either of them.

4. As God has appointed the elect unto glory, so has he, by the eternal and the most free purpose of his will, foreordained all the means thereunto. They who are thus elected are redeemed by Christ and are effectually called unto faith in Christ by his Spirit. They are justified, adopted, sanctified, and kept by his power through faith unto salvation. Neither are any others redeemed by Christ, but the elect only.

5. The rest God was pleased to ordain to dishonor and wrath for their sin.

6. All those whom God has predestined unto life, and those only, he has pleased, effectually to call, by his word and Spirit, out of that state of sin and death, in which they are by nature, to grace and salvation by Jesus Christ, enlightening their minds spiritually and savingly to understand the things of God; taking away their heart of stone and giving unto them a heart of flesh; renewing their wills, and by his almighty power determining them to that which is good, and effectually drawing them to Jesus Christ; yet so as they come most freely, being made willing by his grace.

7. Elect infants, dying in infancy, are regenerated and saved by Christ through the Spirit. So also are all other elect persons, who are incapable of being outwardly called by the ministry of the word.

8. Others, not elected, although they may be called by the ministry of the word and may have some common operations of the spirit, never truly come to Christ, and therefore cannot be saved; much less can men not professing the Christian religion be saved in any other way, no matter how they live according to their religion.

9. God did, from all eternity, decree to justify all the elect; and Christ did, in the fullness of time, die for their sins and rise again for their justification; nevertheless they are not justified until the Holy Spirit in due time actually applies Christ to them.

10. God continues to forgive the sins of those who are justified; although they can never fall from the state of justification, yet they may by their sins fall under God's fatherly displeasure, and not have the light of his countenance restored unto them, until they humble themselves, confess their sins, beg pardon, and renew their faith and repentance.

11. Dipping a person into the water is not necessary, but baptism is rightly administered by pouring and sprinkling water upon the person.

12. Infants are also to be baptized. [Note: the Presbyterians cite Acts 2: 38, 39 as their authority for infant baptism—"Then Peter said unto them, Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost. For the promise is unto you, and to your children, and to all that are afar off, even as many as the Lord our God shall call."]

As we examine these creeds for the three denominations, we note that some of them conflict among themselves. This very fact of conflict is an evidence that at least all of them could not be right, and possibly all of them could be wrong. Christ did not teach conflicting doctrines. For example of these conflicts, the Baptists and Presbyterians teach the doctrine of predestination and foreordination. In this doctrine some men are predestined to salvation regardless of what kind of sinful life they may live, while others not so elected are foreordained to everlasting death. The Methodists believe in a universal salvation based upon faith in Christ. They believe the Scriptures contain all that is necessary to guide us to salvation, perfection, and the enabling grace of God.

Variance in Interpretation

When we consider baptism, we find a conflict both as to who must be baptized and the mode to be used. The Baptists believe that only those of accountable years and adults are to be baptized, and the mode must be by immersion. They believe infant baptism is unscriptural. The Methodists are not so selective. They prefer sprinkling but will baptize also by pouring or immersion as the candidates choose. They also accept previous baptisms in other denominations, and they baptize children. The Presbyterians baptize infants as well as adults and children and advocate either sprinkling or pouring. They feel that immersion is unnecessary.

On the other hand, since all denominations use the Bible, it is logical that there will be some parts of their creeds that will not conflict with the Bible. It is a mere matter of being able to copy what is there. For example, all sects believe in the Trinity and the need for Christ in the plan for salvation. They all celebrate the Lord's Supper. They all teach the Holy Spirit as a guide to salvation, yet they all believe that God does not speak today, but all requirements for salvation may be found in the Bible. Even the Baptists' and Presbyterians' creed of predestination is founded upon their interpretation of the Bible.

Although some of the creeds may be copied correctly from the Bible, and on the face of it seem to be the teachings of Christ, the mere copied word does not necessarily make them acceptable to Christ. One could read in the Bible that Christ taught and practiced baptism by immersion and go to the swimming pool and immerse a friend. But without the authority and the other requirements for baptism, this would not be a valid baptism in the mind of the Christ.

All in Error

Christ must have had this concept of authority when he told Joseph that not just a few of the creeds were wrong, but all were wrong and an abomination. The latter part of the mandate given to Joseph suggests this concept when he said: "Their professors are all corrupt. They draw near to me with their lips, but their hearts are far from me; they teach for doctrine the commandments of men, having a form of godliness, but they deny the power thereof."

Christ's statement in his teachings to his disciples indicates that the same indictment he gave at that time might easily be applied also to the ministry of the churches in 1820 when he said:

It is not everyone that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, that shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father who is in heaven. For the day soon cometh, that men shall come before me to judgment, to be judged according to their works. And many will say unto me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name; and in thy name cast out devils; and in thy name done many wonderful works? And then will I say, Ye never knew me! depart from me ye that work iniquity.—Matthew 7: 30-33.

These men who did these things in the name of Jesus were evidently men of the ministry—pastors of churches.

We note a confirmation of this concept toward the close of the nineteenth century when the New York Evening Post reported the Presbyterian General Assembly as declaring: "The church is not a divine institution but a religious organization. The church is a purely voluntary organization, with a creed and discipline freely adopted, just like the rules and bylaws of a club" (Faulty Creeds, page 50).

A similar supporting statement was made by another prominent minister, also toward the close of the previous century:

The denominations of today are standing upon articles of religion, confessions of faith, disciplines, or creeds. These are simply opinions of fallible men without a particle of authority in the word of God.—Faulty Creeds, pages 34 and 36.

Need for Authority

Authority therefore must have been a primary consideration in the meaning of Christ's denouncement of creeds and professors. Christ also used similar words in his denouncement in his day (Matthew 15: 7, 8). The prophet Isaiah foretold such a denouncement when he used almost the same words over seven hundred years before Christ (Isaiah 29: 26). Although men could copy from the Bible, such copied words did not provide the authority necessary to satisfy the requirements of the Christ. Power can accompany the use of creeds only when the Spirit of Christ is present. Since the creeds were to be the pattern of church life, they were to be sustained and supported by the Spirit of God.

The fact of the great apostasy resulted in the loss of the priesthood authority, and there was therefore no prophet on earth through whom God would speak to reveal his will and guide the church (Amos 8:11,12). This absence of the word of God to the church was to continue from A.D. 570 to A.D. 1830 since "the man child . . . the kingdom of our God and his Christ," were taken back to God for 1,260 years (Revelation 12). This being true, there could be no call to the priesthood during these years, and therefore no one could be "called of God, as was Aaron" (Hebrews 5:4). This would leave man to his own intelligence to interpret the Scriptures, as far as authoritative leadership of the church is concerned. Of course God's Spirit was always available to guide individuals in their lives, but not in the sense of a prophet to the church. Such ministry of the Spirit did not give them the authority of priesthood, and therefore they would not have the power to baptize or lay on hands. Without such authority, anyone who officiated in such ordinances fell under the same mandate of Christ already quoted from Matthew 7: 30-33. Creeds written by such men would be the works of men.

Errors in Interpretation

Merely taking the Bible for the creed of a church, when used and interpreted by man, can result in errors of interpretation. If all who read the Bible read with the enlightening power of the same spirit that prompted the writing of Scripture there would be no conflict in interpretation. Otherwise we interpret Scriptures according to our education, religious life, and prejudices, and read into them sometimes what we want to find there. For example, the Catholics read the statement of Christ to Peter, "Thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my church" (Matthew 16: 19), to justify Peter as the first pope. Latter Day Saints interpret this Scripture in context to refer to the rock of revelation by which Peter knew that Jesus was the Christ.

The Utah Mormons interpret Jacob 2: 39 in the Book of Mormon which reads: "For if I will, saith the Lord of Hosts, raise up seed unto me, I will command my people; otherwise, they shall hearken unto these things," to prove that God will change his commands as he chooses, and did so in this instance, to command polygamy or, as they choose to call it, "celestial marriage."

The Presbyterians cite Acts 2: 38, 39 to prove that little children must be baptized.

Debaters on the affirmative side of a question often take a statement used by their opponents on the negative side and twist it around to prove the affirmative position, and vice versa.

Included in the denouncement of creeds was the indictment that the professors were corrupt. Alexander Campbell, who was an important figure in the Baptist movement at the time of Joseph's vision, said:

Under the present administration of the kingdom of heaven a great apostasy has occurred as foretold by the apostles. As the church compared to a city is called Mount Zion, the apostate church is called Mystery Babylon, the anti-type is to be destroyed by a Cyrus that knows not God. She is to fall by the sword of infidels, supported by the judgment of God, the holy city is still trodden under foot, and the sanctuary is filled with corruption, it is indeed a den of thieves. —Faulty Creeds, page 13-14.

From the Saints' Herald of March 10, 1890, and Faulty Creeds, page 15, the following is taken to indicate the degeneracy of the ministry:

The Reverend Hugh O. Pentecost lectured in New York yesterday to a large audience who came to hear him discuss the question, "Are Clergymen Frauds?" He did not propose, he said, to discuss common everyday liars, thieves, drunkards, and libertines. He simply wanted to discuss the question whether the average respectable and respected priest or minister is a fraud, and he claimed that nearly all are such. What he meant by fraud was one who did not believe what he preached or who did not preach what he believed.

Dr. Horatius Bonar, in one of his sermons preached in 1890, said of Alexander Campbell:

As to Brother Campbell, he was a great and good man, but he was not inspired, and he made some mistakes, and none worse than failing to adopt the true worship—a thing he plainly taught—and establishing instead this hireling priesthood, which has grown to be the most intolerant, impious, and prescriptive religious corporation on earth, not excepting the Roman hierarchy. —Faulty Creeds, page 15.

It is quite likely that the conditions in 1895 were not foreign to those in 1820, when the Reverend F. F. Passmore said:

The trouble of our age is that Christ is not being preached in our great churches by our great preachers. I mean just what I say: Christ is not being preached in one of the great Methodist churches from the Atlantic to the Pacific. We have not a bishop or great preacher today that is thundering against sinners and the corruptions that are overturning our homes, the church, and nation itself. Our great preachers today are preaching for big salaries, fine mansions, and sumptuous living, and they are getting them. —Ensign, April 29, 1897, and Faulty Creeds, page 17.

We have reason to believe these references to corrupt professors of religion are also descriptive of them in the year 1820. The manner in which Joseph Smith was persecuted following his revelation of his vision to the ministers of his day is strong evidence that these ministers were corrupt. They were the professors of religion, but they boldly denounced the power of the gospel they preached and were evidently not aware of the prophecies of Isaiah, Amos, and others, which pointed to a Restoration at the end of the dark ages of 1,260 years.

I Had an Experience . . .

APOINTED to the Queensland, Australia, Mission, Brisbane objective, I decided to do some street preaching in this state capital. The members of the church secured a T-shaped, two-jet carbide light, and we obtained permission from the city authorities to conduct meetings at certain sites.

While we were conducting such a service in an area of two large saloons, agitators tried to disrupt our meetings by constant interruptions—especially one man who seemed well informed and was noted for his enjoyment in confusing ministers by his heckling.

With my limited knowledge and experience I felt very insecure until a distinguished-looking person of around six feet appeared and stood in front of me. He was a man of age but very alert. He was immaculately clean, and his face was smooth. His skin was distinctly different.

Standing immediately in front of me, he kept his eyes on me constantly. At times I detected tears in his eyes. When he came he brought tranquility to the gathering and liberty to my mind.

Divine Indictment

I believe this discussion completely vindicates Joseph Smith in his startling proclamation to the world that Jesus actually did tell him that all of the creeds were wrong and an abomination, and that the professors were corrupt. Many additional quotations from prominent ministers at the close of the century could be given, and many additional Scriptures could be cited to validate Joseph's story, but I believe those used will be sufficient. My study has confirmed my belief that the great apostasy foretold by the prophets of the Old Testament, by Christ, and by Christ and his apostles, actually took place. Because of this period in which God no longer spoke through his prophets (Amos 8: 11, 12) man, in his corruptness, formulated abominable creeds, exercising only his human wisdom and intelligence, and therefore fully warranted the severe indictment

Evangelist William Patterson

When I finished the sermon, I asked if there were any questions, and I hereby testify that I knew the questions before they were asked and was given the answers right away. There is no doubt in my mind that this was a temporary endowment. I answered every question without thought or meditation.

At the end of the service the stranger came to me and, shaking my hands, said, "God bless you, my son." This was not a vision. It was real. Everybody saw him, but no one had seen him before. He didn't leave with the crowd but went in another direction. I am left with the assurance that he was one of the three Nephites who tarried.

through the vision of Joseph Smith in 1820.

I believe that after the apostasy of 1,260 years had ended, Joseph Smith divinely brought about the restored church and that this church is the one which was to receive the everlasting gospel spoken of in Revelation 14: 6. Latter Day Saints can be justly proud that their creed, more accurately known as the "Epitome of Faith," formulated by Joseph Smith in 1842 (Church History, Volume II, pages 569-570) has stood the test of more than one hundred years with no need for and no thought of changing it. We can also be justly proud that the severe indictment "corrupt professors" has no application in the life and ministry of Joseph. A creed, brought through the agency of such a divinely appointed man, would logically be formulated under divine guidance. Time has vindicated such a concept for this Epitome of Faith.

The Light

THE GENESIS VERSION of creation (Genesis 1:1-8) is a story with simplicity and beauty. It is sketchy, to be sure, but it is as simple and logical and likely an account as has ever been given of that event. It has been challenged by many, perhaps most notably by the scientists of a few decades ago. Yet, it has stood the test of time and stands now more verified than previously. Specifically, we want to consider that which was created "the first day"—light.

Ours is a day of scientific learning. We can do things now that were undreamed of a few years ago. We have things now that no one knew enough about even to want to have them at the beginning of this century. We have learned much, yet the more we learn the more we find out there is to know and the more apparent is our lack of understanding. We cannot even fill the blanks in the story of creation, much less duplicate the act. Perhaps we need to understand more complex things—to delve deeper into scientific mysteries. However, some of the greatest discoveries we make—those with the most far-reaching effects—are the simplest. These bring us closer to understanding the simplicity and harmony of the building blocks from which God created our complex universe.

Quantum Theory

A major step in this direction was the quantum theory—the basic theory of modern physics. This theory was set forth by Max Planck in 1900. Since then it has served as a doorway for the understanding of scientists and has led to many of our accomplishments. It is a step toward understanding the nature of matter and energy and the principles God used in creation.

The quantum theory has many complicated uses, but its basis is simple. Think of a hollow sphere with a tiny hole in its surface. Through that hole remove everything—including the air—from the interior. There is still something inside—that is light. This light did not enter from outside; it is there as a part of the nature of matter and space. The thing that made the quantum theory different was Planck's idea that this light occurred in units having a definite, calculable size. Planck called these units quanta and thus gave the quantum theory its name. Such units are a part of the makeup of all forms of wave energy—light, heat, X rays, and so forth. An important development came with the discovery that the number of quanta present can never be less than $\frac{1}{2}$. Additional whole units may be present to make the number $1\frac{1}{2}$, $2\frac{1}{2}$, $3\frac{1}{2}$. . . but the last $\frac{1}{2}$ unit cannot be removed. At least that much wave energy is in everything. It influences the behavior of all things because it is a part of their very nature.

The basis of the theory is simple enough—energy such as light and heat occurs in definite units, and there is a certain amount of it in all things—but it was 1900 before the theory was developed. For some time after that it still was not well understood and used. Since then it has had a tremendous impact upon our lives. Without the quantum theory and its applications we would not now be concerned with atomic power or earth satellites. We wouldn't watch television. Radar would be a thing of the future, and so would hundreds of other recent discoveries. All these were made possible when men realized that wave energy (such as light) is in all things and found out how to use that knowledge.

Nineteenth Century Revelation

The quantum theory develops further that energy and matter are essentially similar—that the whole universe is a form of energy or power. We would call it the power of God. So we trace back to the time of creation and the basic building blocks God was using when he said, "Let there be light." Yet prior to 1900 men did not realize these things—except those to whom God had revealed them. Now I want to refer you to a revelation given in 1832—about two thirds of a century before the quantum theory was formulated. Speaking of Jesus Christ, this revelation says:

He that ascended up on high, as also he descended below all things, in that he comprehended all things, that he might be in all and through all things, the light of truth, which truth shineth. This is the light of Christ. As also he is in the sun, and the light of the sun, and the power thereof by which it was made. As also he is in the moon, and is the light of the moon, and the power thereof by which it was made. As also the light of the stars, and the power thereof by which they were made. And the earth also, and the power thereof, even the earth upon which you stand. And the light which now shineth, which giveth you light, is through him who enlighteneth your eyes, which is the same light that quickeneth your understandings; which light proceedeth forth from the presence of God, to fill the immensity of space. The light which is in all things; which giveth life to all things; which is the law by which all things are governed; even the power of God who sitteth upon his throne, who is in the bosom of eternity, who is in the midst of all things.—Doctrine and Covenants 85: 2, 3.

This fits in with the quantum theory—there is light in all things, even in "empty" space. The light of Christ is the power from which all things were created; it gives life to all things.

Would anyone care to deny that religion and science should be partners?—to say they should not join forces for the betterment of mankind? Here we have received information on the same topic from both sources. Notice that God gave his church the information over half a century ahead of science. We could have been making scientific progress along those lines more than twice as long as we have been. Certainly science could have used more of the guiding moral forces of Christianity in the application of its discoveries. Too often the fear of being caught and the fear of reprisal have to supply the restraint that should be based on brotherly love. Man misuses his inventions to the detriment of his fellow men. If each

(Continued on page 17)

Three student nurses examine the new sterilizing equipment in the central supply department. The two huge sterilizers cost about $13,500.

New "San" Areas into Use

This is one of two new emergency treatment rooms. It is finished in pastel blue glazed tile. The nurse is Mrs. Carla Lech.

SEVERAL NEW AREAS of the $900,000 addition to the Sanitarium have recently gone into use.

The three-level wing and other improvements will eventually provide new facilities for the hospital's medical floor, clinical laboratory, medical staff library, central supply, nursing offices, chaplain's office and chapel, student assembly room, food service, medical records library, housekeeping department, administrative offices, physical therapy, receiving and emergency treatment areas, and telephone switchboard center.

At present most of the new areas are either in use or near completion. April 1 is the target date for completion of all new areas.

The new wing is aimed at increasing the hospital's efficiency as well as its capacity. As the laboratory for the Sanitarium School of Nursing, it will also provide a better learning opportunity for student nurses. New equipment, methods, and concepts will give the students a better experience in the latest hospital techniques.

Already student nurses are becoming familiar with modern new equipment which was previously unavailable to them. As the completion work progresses, they will find increasing opportunities to work with new equipment and methods.

New, improved facilities will help train better nurses

By Roger Yarrington

Photos by Blanchard

The hospital's new admitting office is an attractive area. At left is Mrs. Evan Fry, and at right is Mrs. Richard O'Neil.

The present addition to the hospital will give it five complete operating rooms. Each one is a fully equipped center for the most modern surgery equipment and methods. Here four student nurses help ready the new facilities for use.

Two new switchboards now service the 'San.' Left is Mrs. LeRoy Ewald, and right is Miss Elizabeth Rittenhouse.

One of the first of the new areas opened was the pharmacy. Here Marilyn Van Trump, pharmacist, fills a prescription.

Summering with the Church in Europe

Part V

WITH THE BREAKING of the sound barrier between man and his Creator in the early 1800's came divine light which definitely alerted a questioning and probing humanity. One wonders if the firmament wasn't charged then (and now) with scintillating atoms bursting and rebursting, distributing heaven-sent light in response to the longings of humanity to know and understand more about the Creator and his works.

Doctrine and Covenants 85 lies behind this train of thought. It helps to account for the courage and faith of the youth, Joseph Smith, and of those other young men who believed in Joseph's experiences with the Almighty and with the heavenly messenger who came to him at stated times. It helps to account for the courage and faith elicited by our first missionaries to venture penniless from the security of home, loved ones, and native land to cross the great deep; for their love of the Son of God and for their faith in the restored gospel; for the courage of their womenfolk, who would be leading uncertain and greatly involved lives, coincident with their faith and support given freely to all concerned with carrying the gospel to a foreign land.

These people, our forebears, possessed the strength and character of their pioneer ancestors who had likewise ventured across the ocean from England and had gladly risked the accompanying hardships in order to enjoy religious freedom in what Latter Day Saints now know as "the promised land." Our heritage of faith and courage should allow no slackening of the pace set for us. "The marvelous work and a wonder" beckons us on.

I am the third generation to accept the restored gospel. I have never thought of the British Isles as just another foreign country, because my grandmother was an English emigrant at the age of sixteen and my husband's grandparents also emigrated in their youth. All were faithful Latter Day Saints to the end. The history of our church in England has been the cherished heritage of the membership in general, England being the first European mission and a successful one. We have a doubly strong kinship, all of us over here and over there, because of our relationship through those doughty pioneers, the Pilgrims of County Devon, Plymouth, England.

We spent a few days in Plymouth, and in a very short while I felt saturated with its lore. Everywhere were reminders of life in the old days dating back to the 1400's. We gazed with reverence and awe at the very locale where William Bradford, historian for the Plymouth Pilgrims and also their future governor, set out with one hundred and twenty men, women, and children, for the new world on Wednesday morning, September 6, 1620. They crowded onto the little one-hundred-and-eighty-ton barque, the "Mayflower." What a coincidence that we were there about the very time the modern replica of this famous little ship was reaching the shores of New England, a gift from the British to their American descendants!

We had talked to Brother Donald Trapp of Badgeworth and to Sister Nellie Schofield of Birmingham, who know the city, and they helped us get our bearings. The hotel room which Don reserved for us was tops, and we were happy to use the fireplace which gave us adequate heat whenever we fed it a quarter. The usual continental breakfasts went with our room, and although we shy from breads and jams at home, we did not hesitate to enjoy them while abroad. They were real treats.

We loved walking to historic Plymouth Hoe which was only ten minutes up hill a block or so and around the corner. What a sight to see! The Hoe Promenade, one hundred and twenty feet above the sea, presents a view unexcelled in Europe, the folders say. One can see fourteen miles out over Plymouth Sound. The name "Hoe" is derived from the Saxon Hoeg (high). The entire Hoe is parklike, extensively landscaped, and features Drake memorials including a striking statue of Sir Francis himself. There is the spectacular Hoe cafeteria with concessions, built Quonset-like in style, and near by the navy memorial. There are scheduled out-of-door games, a bowling green, greyhound races, concerts, and more! There are attractive walks and sights around the wooded slopes on the far side and back, which we sampled.

The Hoe slopes which rise so high above the Sound are a marvelous sight. The wide Mayflower Steps, winding through the bright green lawns, past hedgerows and gardens, gradually take one down to the lido—the beaches, where are bathing, boating, gay concessions, sidewalk cafes with umbrellas galore, and excursion steamers. No "honky-tonk"! We spent several delightful hours on one of these excursions.

From the steamer decks we viewed the Hoe in really beautiful panorama, its famous Smeaton Tower and the walled citadel (where all the guardhouses face into the courtyard because Charles II feared his men would mutiny). Plymouth is the third largest naval base in Britain and again we chugged close to, in, and out among the ships of all designs and uses. There was the Eddystone Lighthouse, one hundred and thirty feet high, built in 1882 on a dangerous reef of rocks. We kept rubbing our necks from side to side trying to see all those lovely summer homes, no two alike, and the landscaping on the bluffs.

WHEN WE RETURNED from this cruise we shopped in the near-by Barbican District, "that ancient and famous quarter of the city, from which had previously sailed both Sir Francis Drake and Sir Walter Raleigh on their voyages of discovery." The general characteristics are preserved, the centuries-old narrow streets, Tudor and Jacobean windows and doorways and old ships' masts staircases. We did considerable rummaging. I am glad I bought souvenir booklets of photos because the Kansas City company which developed our films lost a number of both stills and movies, the only real casualty we experienced.

On the pier at the Barbican site we viewed the Mayflower Stone, which is immortalized in a proper setting and from which the Pilgrims stepped into the boats which paddled them out to the "Mayflower"—dear, God-fearing, far-sighted youth. What ever would they think to view the spectacular modernizations of their beloved Devon-hilled homesites! Nowhere did we see such miles of ultramodern beauty in architecture, landscaping, and thoroughfares. That part of Plymouth was "bombed flat," we were told over and over. It had to be rebuilt. But that horror is in the past, and life goes on at a gay pace.

However, the youth and young adults with whom we conversed all expressed a longing to emigrate to Canada or the States. We didn't have the same opportunity to chat with just anyone elsewhere in England, for we were busy with our church friends. We found the same longings within our church, however; but they were tempered with loyalty to home branches, to home ties, to financial restrictions, and so on—a general hesitancy coupled with a frank desire to set foot on American soil and stay there.

A few of our people, wherever we traveled, feel that emigration is disastrous, or will be, to the church program abroad and frankly discourage it. Others wonder why Deity has warned us as a church of these present momentous and precarious times, even providing the United States as a place of safety whence they may emigrate. Of course all one can say to such ponderings is that everyone should be redoubling his efforts, faith, and prayers that eventually he may reap a rich harvest wherever his field of service lies. "Many are called but few are chosen" is a sobering statement. The chosen must surely be the ones who work at their calling while it is day. The Lord of the harvest will govern the increase. He will lead us whither he will!

I'd say that we found Zionistic conditions wherever we visited, at church or in homes; a splendid zeal, activity, accented with good cheer. These Saints are stressing fellowship as we are.

IN 1951 IN ENGLAND the scars of war were constant reminders, and to us the people walking the streets seemed like pitiful leftovers or slow motion movies. But now the pace of life is heightened and the joy of living is everywhere—quick steps, laughter, color, many interests. Central heating is creeping in with even an occasional ranch type house built "out in the open," so to say, for Britain is a crowded little island and one feels sort of "housed up" in its closely built cities. All of its teeming millions occupy an area of 68,000 square miles, compared with Missouri's 69,000 square miles. There has had to be many miles of open space surrounding the famed estates of which the British are extremely proud, whether owned by the peerage or surrounding an ancient castle, now kept up by some organization. One doesn't have to spend long hours going from one point of interest to another in Great Britain. Britains are plucky folk. Never will we—over here—be able to repay England for "shedding blood, sweat, and tears" and for "taking it on the chin" before we entered the war, like the loyal mother country she is to us.

Our routing didn't take us to England until the last weeks of our summer in Europe. We were about five weeks under Queen Elizabeth's protecting arms. We weren't far from London town for a week or ten days, during which time we were happily domiciled in Potters Bar with the Schofield trio—Franklin, Freda, and young Mary—and I must include the life of the household, Grampie Cooper, Freda's father. President F. Henry Edwards was also a guest. When we arrived Grandpa had chauffeured Freda and Mary to the station to meet us; all three stood smiling greetings as we walked toward them. The feeling of security is wonderful when friends appear at the right time and place.

The Enfield (London) conference convened the first week in August and like the one held in Hannover, Germany, took on an international aspect. I could hardly wait. Delegates were coming from Norway and Germany where we had been, and there would be a splendid representation from the States; besides we would meet many of the English Saints again before returning home.

We arrived in Potters Bar several days before conference time, just when the Schofield household was deep in anticipation and preparation for the conference. I was happy to hem the pretty new dress which Freda had finished making for Mary and to be able to lend a hand in other ways. When time came to take the load of varied provisions and utilities out to the church in Enfield, we went along.

There we were intrigued to see several boys on their knees laying a stone slab walk along one side of the pretty church, being careful not to damage plantings in the rose gardens bordering the walk. Inside the church several young men were laying cleaned aisle carpets; a bevy of "sisters" were doing over the kitchen and sewing room. The women of the branch would be the cooks, except for the Sunday noon meal when a caterer would be in charge. I marveled at their efficiency. The Laurel Club would have enjoyed a look in. Every inch of that church was going to be occupied, housing from three hundred to three hundred and fifty persons. There were four tables in the dining room, and they were to be filled twice, with no time lost.

Daily I looked at those large pans of vegetables to be cleaned, cooked, or sliced; meat to be stewed, baked, or carved; sauces to be made; pies to be cut, or fruits to be dishd; bread to be sliced and buttered. A sister supervised each task (and I have not aimed to list them all). Last, but not least—the tea, which was always made by Nellie Oakman; plenty was kept on hand all the time. I couldn't fathom it. Someone said, "I wish we had more Nellie Oakmans. She does all the little things which are so important for one's comfort. She keeps the kitchen clean and polished and sets the chairs for our weekly meetings." I marveled at her agility to skip up and down a ladder and reach into a high cupboard.

Many of us met Sister Nellie at our last General Conference. Her daughter Lily was with her. I am sure that Lily would rather be "a doorkeeper in the house of the Lord" than enjoy all the extras the world has to offer. She is kept busy with her work as branch publicity director, which included the fall (1957) missionary series and the Enfield annual bazaar, which I understand was a real project for her. Lily feels that "the Lord has a great many purposes in this country [England]" and feels further that she wants "to be associated with these purposes."

I WISH I COULD MENTION all of our women who are so busy in this branch. Freda Schofield has been women's leader in Enfield Branch for some time. She seemed to be the kind of person who quietly inspires confidence; she knows how to share responsibility and to train others. She also has confidence in her helpers, for she did not seem to have to use the telephone at all to check on anything. Brother Franklin Schofield, her husband, is Bishop of the British Isles. He and Freda support each other 100 per cent, and it was a joy to sense this co-operation and devotion to our cause.

There were three days of priesthood institute before the conference convened. I know of the good spirit of learning and understanding which characterized their lectures and discussions and which permeated the atmosphere of all the conference services that followed. After the three-day conference the young people enjoyed a well-attended two-day rally. Several afternoons were free for groups to visit or tour near-by places of interest. One of these afternoons we enjoyed the fulfillment of another lifelong dream—to see the quaint old town of Toppesfield, the ancestral home of the Joseph Smith family, and possibly to locate the homestead. More concerning this experience later.

Home Column

Letters

Recommends Youth Camps

As we approach the camping season, I wish that all parents could assist—at least for one session—in a church camp. It would help them to realize how valuable the camping program is to church young people. They could see how well their children are chaperoned, how much they are taught, how near they come to God in their devotions. They would be thrilled as they listened to youthful voices harmonizing around a campfire. They would be impressed with the love and patience of the counselors—even when dealing with the wayward children. The Spirit of God seems to be with them, showing them how to deal with each situation that arises.

I urge each mother who has children of camp age to start saving so that they will be able to attend. Members who do not have children, or perhaps the women's department, could make a real contribution by helping to send interested nonmembers or youngsters who would be financially unable to go if they were not assisted. We have three daughters of camp age who could have taken friends often if there had not been the problem of finances. Really, no sacrifice is too great to afford children and young people the opportunity of attending these camps.

I have assisted in the camp kitchen for several years, and I find it a joy to serve our youth. I have also gained a knowledge of the greatness of this work. One mother told me that her son took no interest in the church until he started attending youth camps. Today he is in the priesthood and is doing a good work for God and his country.

I cannot praise our youth camps enough.

MRS. FARON STAFFORD

Macks Creek, Missouri

Never Alone

I am one of the fortunate persons of this world who has always lived under the blessings of God. I was born of good parents who had accepted the guidance of the Restoration movement. It was due to their guidance and example that I today share in the blessings of the gospel. My life has been filled with experiences that have truly been rich in the power of God. I served in the U. S. Navy during both World War II and the Korean conflict. During these years of service the protecting arm of the Master was around me.

The experience that stands out most prominently to me happened in the fall of 1951. I had always been fortunate in my service life in being assigned to bases within the United States where the church and its fellowship were always available. At this time I was ordered aboard an amphibious landing craft bound for the Far East. How well I remember that day when I was called upon to take leave of my family and go to what appeared to be my first isolation from the work of the church. As we steamed out of San Diego Bay on that bright autumn afternoon I stood by the rail and watched my family fade from view as the horizon broadened.

Day by day the distance from home grew greater and the feeling of isolation began to weigh heavily upon me. On our first Saturday away from home my thoughts turned to the Sabbath and the fellowship that I would miss. On this day the ship's newspaper carried the announcement that Yeoman Bragg, who was a deacon in his church back home, would conduct services the next day. I immediately contacted Brother Bragg and was delighted to learn that he, too, had accepted the message of the Restoration.

Brother Bragg and I held services several times after this for those with a desire and a need for spiritual fellowship. These experiences were very enriching and a strength to me. The one that was most vivid to me was one Wednesday evening when we announced that there would be prayer service in the mess hall. We waited for a period of time to find that we were the only ones who seemed to be interested. Being just the two of us, we moved to the forepart of the main deck where we might draw ourselves apart from the world about us and worship God.

There in the quiet of the night we sat upon a huge anchor communing with God who had created the stars that so beautifully sent forth their rays of light on the ocean. As we continued our supplications there came to me a feeling of closeness to the Creator and the message that there was no isolation to members of God's family. The testimony came to me, and to this day stands, that wherever we are and whatever is our need, the God we love and cherish is ever there to be our stay.

HAROLD L. FOWLER

Del City, Oklahoma

More Blessed to Give

In many magazines and books advice is given on how to acquire wealth, security, prestige, and other desirables. The greatest satisfaction, however, comes not from getting but from giving. Real happiness comes when we learn to give of ourselves—our talents, affection, understanding, encouragement, and kindness. We can help bring peace of mind to those who are discouraged. In every phase of living, if we will condition ourselves to do so, we can learn to give what will most help those around us. When we attend church, we shouldn't go just for what we can derive from the services; we should go and give our attention, our devotion, our sincere interest. In our daily tasks we should give loyal, intelligent, honest effort. Christ gave us a wonderful example of how we should live. He was ever mindful of the needs of others; he even gave his life that men might have salvation. Truly, it is more blessed to give than to receive.

MRS. J. H. THOMAS

Oneco, Florida

From a Serviceman in Korea

I am stationed in Korea a few miles from the Thirty-eighth Parallel. I have been here since May, 1957.

In the Herald of December 23, in the section called "Across the Desk," I read the tragic story of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Phelps of Mayville, Michigan, who lost their twin daughters and wanted to adopt other children. In Korea there are over 22,000 orphans who need homes. Of these 80 per cent are three to nine years old. Most of them are in orphanages supported by the Armed Forces stationed here. These children received terrible treatment during the war. Many of them look to the people from the United States for help. Although they know little English, they almost always ask any serviceman they meet, "Will you take me back to the States with you, GI?"

For Christmas we of the Seventh Division held Operation Tiny Tim to get food, clothing, and toys for these kids. I wrote my mom, who in turn asked our branch at Oak Grove, Missouri, to help. As a result, I received two large boxes of clothing and toys.

I don't know the process for adopting these youngsters, but I'm sure it wouldn't be hard to find out if a person wanted to do it.

I will be here until August, and I would appreciate hearing from friends in the States.

PFC DONALD A. SCOFIELD
US 55 591 231

Company C, 1st Battle Group, 32nd Inf.
APO 7, San Francisco, California for vacation and church schools, and home, too

Kindergarten Pattern Book, No. 2141

Teachers, children's workers, and parents will find this pattern book helpful for entertaining and educating the youngsters. Patterns can be copied with carbon paper for class use. Posters, decorations, and all kinds of handwork items can be made from the ideas suggested in this new pattern book. Complete directions; 48 big pages. Size, 10 by 13½ inches. Standard Publishing Foundation

$1.25

Box 477
Independence, Missouri
Box 382
Guelph, Ontario, Canada

District President and Wife

Minister in Spanish

J. E. "Gene" Wilder and wife Catherine visit with Spanish-speaking members after Spanish services at Weslaco, Texas, on January 19. Pedro Cardona is at left, and Rosa Garcia at right. With backs to camera are Daniel and Salomon Silva. Thirty-eight Spanish-speaking members are enrolled in the Weslaco Branch, where two church services, one in English and one in Spanish, are carried on simultaneously in associated chapels. Brother Wilder had just preached his first sermon in the Spanish services, which he estimated required thirty hours of study, brushing up on Spanish learned during high school days. Sister Wilder sang a Spanish translation of "Blest Be Thou, O God of Israel," prepared especially for the occasion. The Spanish-speaking Saints at Weslaco are members of the Southwest Texas District, of which Brother Wilder, a high priest, is president. "Gene," as he likes to be called, is manager of the REA electric co-operative in the Rio Grande Valley. Since their three children are now grown,

Catherine is studying for a college degree in elementary education.

Weslaco Branch is located near the Mexican border in far south Texas' subtropic Rio Grande Valley, where two hundred thousand Spanish-speaking residents comprise about two thirds of the population.

The Light

(Continued from page 11.)

had the proper regard for his fellow men all things would be used well.

We have referred to the Doctrine and Covenants in regard to the true nature of the light that is in all things. It is the light of Christ and the power of God. Realization of this truth could have a profound effect upon the thinking of men. With this light everywhere is it any wonder that God is concerned with all things? Especially that he is concerned with all mankind? Has it ever been hard for you to see how the mind of God could reach out to touch the mind of man? If so, then remember that a certain amount of the light of Christ is in everyone. This light also "proceedeth forth from the presence of God, to fill the immensity of space" and so can reach us wherever we are. Mankind was given the greatest potential of any of God's creation for using the light of Christ. But mankind was also given the right of stewardship over that potential—the right of agency, the right of each one to choose what he would do with his portion of the light.

Many different things can be done with light. We can take the light of a candle and focus it with a lens, diffuse it with another lens, absorb it with something black, divide it into a rainbow with a prism, pass it through a plain sheet of glass, or color it with a colored glass. It can be distorted, or it can be utilized in its purity. So can the light of Christ.

How much do we distort and color the light of Christ? It seems to be very difficult for us to pass on a perfect image of him—but it is worth striving for. It is very difficult to make glass that will not discolor and distort the light which passes through it, but that is the ideal and the mark for which the glassmaker strives. One way to avoid distorting light is to make opaque glass so there will be no light passing through to be distorted. This will do for some purposes, but it certainly is not what we are to do with the light of Christ. He said, "I give unto you to be the light of the world." Since it is given to us to be that light we need to work toward the ideal of passing it on, true and undistorted.

For light to reach obscure places it must be reflected around the corners. We, then, must be like mirrors, polished and true to reflect the light of Christ around the corners to all our fellow men. Here again is a difficulty. Mirrors are not perfect. Not only do they distort the light and give an imperfect image, but they absorb a part of it and do not reflect it all. There is, however, another means of reflecting light that does a better job—using the prism. Instead of reflecting from its outer surface like the mirror, the prism allows the light to enter into itself. It then reflects the light from the inside in such a manner that none is lost. All of the light that enters in is reflected out again. This is what we must do with the light of Christ. It is precious—too precious to be wasted by reflecting only a part of it and that from the outer self only. Rather, it must enter in to illumine our own souls and then be passed on to our fellow men in its fullness. In so doing, we should show the beauty that is in the way of Christ, just as a prism can reveal the rainbow of colors that is in ordinary light.

The light coming to us should be like electricity entering a light bulb. The electricity goes to the very heart of the bulb to light it and make it glow all over. The light from Christ should go to our hearts and make us glow all over so that all men can see the light. At times we should be like the concave lens that will diffuse the light and spread it to reach all our friends and neighbors. At other times we must be like the convex lens to focus the light upon some special person that they might see more clearly. Like the pane of glass, we must allow the light to pass through us and on to others if we would fulfill our destiny. As we become more perfect, those seeing the light will see its source ever more clearly. A perfect pane of glass is invisible because it does not absorb, color, or distort the light passing through it. Just so, those seeing a perfect Christian see not a man but Christ Jesus who dwells in the man.

for every Bible student . . .

Rand McNally
BIBLE
ATLAS

The ideal reference for the church or home to give more meaning to the story of the Bible. New information from the Dead Sea Scrolls makes this a remarkable work. Also more than 400 pages of completely new, exceptionally beautiful maps. Authentic and highly interesting text, and the finest photographs and illustrations available depict hundreds of places discussed in both the Old and New Testaments, and tell of their significance in biblical history.

$8.95

Shipping charges extra.

If you live in Missouri, add 2% sales tax.

Box 477
Independence, Missouri
Box 382
Guelph, Ontario, Canada

Book Reviews

Effective Evangelism

By George E. Sweazey

Harper and Brothers
1957

Price $3.50

This is an effective book and I consider it very helpful, not only to the missionary under appointment but also to the men of the standing ministry.

The first chapter, entitled "The Walk with God," emphasizes contact, cultivation, commitment, and conversation. In the succeeding chapters there is an explanation of what evangelism is and is not. Then the author lists some suggestions on the ordinances, Christian practices, and church membership.

Chapter eight pertains to "lay-evangelistic visiting"—a field in which we have pioneered but in later years apparently have become lax. Today this practice is advocated not only in Protestantism but also in Roman Catholicism. In the Protestant approach to evangelism in Japan, this technique of lay-member visitation and careful reporting to the pastor is paying great dividends.

Chapter ten was particularly appealing to me as it covered the subject of evangelistic preaching. Dr. C. H. Dodd of Cambridge is quoted pertaining to his question as to whether sermons which lack the evangelistic note are entitled to be called preaching at all. He further states, in his book The Apostolic Preaching and Its Development, that in the New Testament to "preach" always means to "evangelize." Kerygma (preaching) always refers to speaking to the unsaved.

In chapter twelve there is an explanation of various procedures which we usually promote, but I was attracted to his caption of "Inquirers' Groups."

Chapter fourteen on the care of new members contains the statement that a systematic checkup is essential. The thought is advanced that for at least the first eighteen months the pastor must, at stated intervals, have a careful look at how every new member of his church is doing. It is one of the most important ways of keeping that path from the front door to the back door from being so often traveled and so often very short.

Another good chapter pertains to absent members, again repeating the urgency of the need of evangelistic visitation. The author also points out the advantages of the direct mail offering.

It is my personal opinion that all of our men would profit by reading this book.

D. O. CHESWORTH

The Gospel According to Jesus

By Ted Hightower

Fleming H. Revell

Company
1957

Price $2.50

The striking title to this book is not misleading. Ted Hightower, a Methodist minister of considerable insight, has gleaned from the New Testament the essential teachings of Jesus and conveyed them expertly in modern language.

The author began searching years ago for the kernel of the gospel according to Jesus; and although I generally hesitate to accept various opinions and men's ideas about what Jesus meant by what he said, I didn't read very far into this book until I felt I was on solid ground and face to face with an honest man's interpretation of the truth.

A very small percentage of ideas in this book are different from the restoration point of view, and these are quickly overcome by the startling realism with which the author writes on the subjects we are together on. His interpretation of Christ's message about the kingdom is much closer to our concept than the average Protestant minister of this age. The thoughts presented on this subject can easily be appreciated by our people as well as the stimulated thinking that will result from reading such chapters as (1) The Good News about God, (2) The Good News about Sin, (3) The Good News about Forgiveness, (4) The Good News about Death, and (5) The Good News about the Church in Society.

Because Christ is the center of all, and the greatest need we have is to know and obey him, I feel every serious thinking adult would enjoy and profit from reading this good book. For those who have to preach or teach, the information will prove very stimulating. Anyone seeking a deeper understanding of Christ and the burden of his message to the world will find satisfaction in reading The Gospel According to Jesus. To me this is one of those "good books" that come along ever so often and refresh the soul with new insights into the truth.

T. ED BARLOW

Miracle in the Foyer

A true experience as related by the pastor of the church

It was Mother's Day, 1950. Elder Granville Swenson was the speaker on this particular Sunday. About halfway through the service I noticed Brother and Sister Charlie O. Whipple leave their seats and go into the foyer, closing the doors after them.

Soon Mrs. Whipple asked Ben Pilbeam, deacon in charge, to summon her daughter, Esther Curtis. Brother Whipple was ill.

I was in charge of the service, and Brother Carl Oliver was assisting me. In a few minutes leaving the room, Sister Whipple opened the door and shouted, "Come quickly and help. Brother Whipple has fainted."

Brother Oliver and I got up immediately and went to the foyer and closed the door. Brother Swenson never faltered in his sermon and everyone sat very quietly.

Entering the foyer we found Brother Whipple lying on his back on the floor; his face was as white as chalk. Brother

Oliver took his wrist and felt his pulse. Sister Whipple was frightened almost beyond control. She asked me to administer to him, and I felt in my pocket for my oil vial. To my dismay I remembered that I had not put it in my pocket when I changed suits.

Before I had any more time to worry about it, Brother Pilbeam, the deacon, handed me a small bottle of oil which had been consecrated and which we always kept for use in administering to the sick.

(At this point Deacon Ben Pilbeam adds to the story: "When Sister Whipple called for help Brother Gilberts and Brother Oliver responded and I followed, reaching into a secretary's desk which was located by the door to the foyer for a bottle of olive oil as I went out, expecting the administering elder to need it.

"I had suggested to Brother Gilberts the Sunday before that the consecrated oil be placed in the little room to the side of the rostrum which was used for administrations, but Brother Gilberts advised me to leave it in the desk. It seems to me that the hand of God was in this that the consecrated oil should be in the right place at the right time.")

I took the oil, and as Brother Oliver continued to feel for a pulse beat, I administered to Brother Whipple. Brother Oliver said that immediately the pulse, which had stopped, began again feebly at first, then stronger as we continued in prayer. Shortly after the administration color came back to Brother Whipple's face. He opened his eyes and asked us what all the excitement was about. Then he arose to his feet.

Brother Oliver made this statement to me afterward: "My stepfather, Dr. Messenger, was a physician, and I know what the death rattle is. I also know that Brother Whipple's pulse had stopped completely, and that he was a dead man. If he had been left alone, he would never have opened his eyes again."

After a couple of days rest and quiet, Brother Whipple was once again able to be about his work. In June, 1955, more than five years after this experience, Brother Whipple died.

ELLIOTT GILBERTS

Sanscripts

School of Nursing Resurveyed

February 10 to 15 were busy days in the School of Nursing as it was being resurveyed for national accreditation. It was granted full accreditation on the national level by the National League for Nursing in 1955. Miss Marion Miller of New York City spent this week in February going over all improvements and carefully checking the curriculum. Her report will be analyzed by the National Board of Review in June, and the "San" will receive a report from this board in July.

The student nurses who met with Miss Miller to discuss the curriculum were Coleeta Antonio of Lorraine, California; Helen Chamberlain of Wichita, Kansas; Marjorie Doig of Independence; Bette Floyd of Benton Harbor, Michigan; Ona Lee Gamet of Lamoni; Gail Hershey of Florence, Alabama; Judy Klopping of Underwood, Iowa; Alta Minthorn of Kalispell, Montana; Betty Moore of Atchison, Kansas; and Phyllis Phillips of New Canton, Illinois.

The students had a tea while Miss Miller was present. Those responsible for planning it were Gail Hershey, student president; Doreen Carpenter of Fulton, New York; Kay Cable of Independence; and Alice Rupprecht of Caseyville, Illinois.

On Saturday morning Miss Miller met with a representative group of interested persons to point up some observations made during the week. The student nurses were represented at this meeting by Gail Hershey; Karen Travis of Holyoke, Colorado; Happy Mitchell of Macy, Nebraska; Linda Brundige of Anita, Iowa; and Joanne Fuller of Gore, Oklahoma.

Pancake Fry

On February 28, the student nurses tried a new method to raise money to finish out the sum with which to buy new furniture for their lounge. They held their first pancake fry and had a very successful evening. Ona Lee Gamet of Lamoni and her committee had selected the furniture and stayed within the budget set by the Student Council; however, there was not enough to buy lamps and drapes.

Linda Brundige headed the over-all committee for the "fry." Kay Cable of Independence and Betty Burkhead of Fairbanks, Alaska, were overseers of the production of the pancakes. Phyllis Phillips was in charge of the dining room.

The Winning Team

Betty Burkhead has captained the "San" basketball team to victory. The "San" students entered the YMCA-sponsored girls basketball league last fall and have come through the first round as victors. They played eight games in the series and won all. They are eligible now to play in the All-City Tournament, which will be held this month.

Alice Dyer of Independence, sports chairman, Lucretia Swetnam of Hardy, Arkansas, and Mildred Carter of Independence are the students responsible for all arrangements of games. Mrs. Mildred Camp, medical supervisor at the "San," is their coach.

The following girls make up the team: Betty Burkhead, captain; Mildred Carter of Independence; Patricia Determan of Moorehead, Iowa; Margaret Gohring of Onawa, Iowa; Patricia Hansen of Independence; Donna Kiper of Jonesport, Maine; Zada Pement of Kansas City; Carolyn Schneider of West Bend, Iowa; Lucretia Swetnam of Hardy, Arkansas; Barbara Thoman of Independence; Maureen Weable of Eaglesville, Missouri; and Betty and Shirley Worthington of Alpena, Michigan.

Briefs

Notice to Contributors

In the recent survey made of "Herald" reader interest, several complained that the branch news published in Briefs contained items of happenings which were too old to be interesting. Many items had only local interest. The editors have been conscious of this but felt all branches should have equal opportunity. However, recognizing the validity of these objections, the editors would like to change certain policies with regard to this section of the "Herald."

We are inviting you to send us only items of church-wide interest, as soon as they happen. These will be run in short paragraph form under place and date headings. It may be necessary for us to further condense news items, since this change of policy will not provide extra space. A sheet of instructions for reporters will be sent upon request.

EDITORS

Recent Baptisms

HILL CITY, KANSAS.—The women's department sponsored a bazaar and pancake supper the first part of December. The proceeds, $150.00, will be put in the building fund.

A large group enjoyed the Christmas program directed and prepared by Mrs. Emit Jones, Mrs. Lon Garrison, Mrs. Norman Gordeir, and Mrs. Lawrence Hedge.

A pastor-leader-teacher meeting was held February 19. Committees to work on vacation church school preparations and an Easter program were appointed.

On February 20, the women, led by Mrs. Cecil Garrison, assisted by the music director, Mrs. Lawrence Hedge, sponsored a talent show and box supper. The proceeds of $75.00 went to the building fund.

On February 23 Howard Spence of Penokee, Kansas, and Buddy Jones, David Jones, and Grace Jones of Bogue, Kansas, were baptized by pastor Lawrence Hedge of Hill City and confirmed by Elder Conrad Graybill of Kanorado, Kansas, and Brother Hedge. Clarence Stauber of Hoxie, Kansas, had charge of the prebaptismal service. Mrs. Clarence Dean and Miss Barbara Hedge sang prior to the baptism.—Reported by BARBARA HEDGE

Evangelist Holds Series

NELSONVILLE, OHIO.—The annual business meeting for election of officers was held August 25, with District President John Blackstock in charge.

New officers are Delbert O. Norris, branch president; Gerald Sennott, secretary-clerk; Earl Wolfe, church school director; Frieda Benchler, treasurer; Sandra Glab, music; Basil Mournie, young people's leader; Myrtle Mournie, publicity and book steward.

Evangelist Floyd T. Rockwell held a two weeks' series September 4-15. A baptismal service was held September 15, with Frank Leurs, Belle Sennott, Diane Spence, Jackie Perry, and Jean Carol Robinette as candidates. They were confirmed October 3 by Elder D. O. Norris and Elder Cumming.

Elder Frank Riske of Middletown was guest speaker January 26.

The Saints of Nelsonville are now refinishing the seats in the church.—Reported by MYRTLE MOURNE

Additions to Church Now Complete

HOUSTON, TEXAS.—The Houston Heights Branch has completed work on a new floor, new walls, widening of the foyer, changing of entrance doors, and installing of wall-to-wall carpeting. A pastor's study was added. Stained glass windows were donated, adding beauty to the building. New rostrum chairs were also donated. Indirect lighting was installed, and an electric organ replaces the piano. Air-conditioning will be installed in the spring. A soft warm gray paint was used on walls and woodwork. The church emblem was placed on a purple velvet drape, placed behind the speaker's platform. Members have worked in unity on this project.

An area banquet was given in honor of President and Mrs. W. Wallace Smith on January 18. Wayne Banta was in charge.—Reported by WANDA SANDERS

Financial Day Held

AKRON, OHIO.—The Kirtland District financial day was held in Akron on February 16. The theme for the day was "It Is More Blessed to Give Than Receive." Prayer and testimony meeting opened the day's service, with elder Harry W. Black presiding and Elder Hubert Mitchell speaking. Apostle Donald Lents preached at eleven o'clock, with Bishop Jerome Wildermuth presiding. The Barberton women's department cooked and served the dinner. At the afternoon service as informal talk was given by Apostle Donald Lents on his experiences in the European Mission.—Reported by ELIZABETH CAPLINGER

Mission Organized

HOBBS, NEW MEXICO.—The Hobbs mission was organized November 18, 1957, with District President Raymon Carson and Apostle D. Blair Jensen in charge. Brother Forrest Ziegenhorn was appointed pastor. Dean Miller is church school director, Clara Martin is reporter, and Mildren Ziegenhorn is music director. Josephine Stack is secretary and treasurer. Jean Miller is women's leader, and Glenn Stack is solicitor.—Reported by MRS. GLENN STACK

Religious Emphasis Week

LAWRENCE, KANSAS.—Dr. Evan Shute of London, Ontario, Canada, was associated with the Lawrence Branch February 16-21. This period coincided with Religious Emphasis Week on the campus of the University of Kansas where Dr. Shute was one of a group of prominent religious leaders of various faiths who highlighted the week's activities. In addition to a vigorous schedule of discussions, seminars, meetings with various classes at the University, dinners, and speaking engagements; he also found time to minister to the needs of the Lawrence Saints. Dr. Shute, in addition to speaking to the entire branch on Sunday, met with the priesthood, women's department, and the Liahona Fellowship composed of members attending the University. Also, he found time to visit in the homes of several of the local congregation. Though Dr. Shute's stay was brief, the power and depth of his ministry will long be remembered.—Reported by JOYCE OSBORN

Growth in Membership

SYLVANIA, OHIO.—The election of officers was held August 25, 1957, with District President Lloyd Lynn present. Elder Harry Ries was elected branch president which will make his eleventh consecutive year in this office. Others elected were Elder Elmer Stanton, church school director; Bonnie Stamm, music director; Virginia Chandler, secretary; Stanley Chandler, treasurer; Ilene Ries and Lenora Ries, flower committee; Norman Bailey, adult supervisor; Ardith Lancaster, children's supervisor.

During September, Missionary Walter Conway held instruction classes for men and women and also held evening services. During the year the Friendship Club has given Sunday dinners once each month in the church basement. Two couples plan and prepare the dinners, and a freewill offering is received which goes into the treasury for church improvements.

On August 25, Richard Albert Ries and Ray Elmer Stanton were baptized by their grandfather, Elder Harry Ries. In November the following were baptized: Kathleen Ellen Chandler by her father, Priest Stanley Chandler; Carol May Eubank by Elder Harry Ries;

"How We Got the Book of Mormon" 7-inch 33 1-3 rpm children's recording

The story of Joseph Smith finding the Book of Mormon plates is enacted by the White Masque Players of Independence, Missouri. Three distinctive Restoration hymns as sung by the Stone Church Youth Choir appear on the reverse side.

each record, 89c

HERALD
HOUSE

Box 477
Independence, Missouri

Box 382
Guelph, Ontario, Canada

Terrance Holdren by his father, Priest Floyd Holdren; and Barrie Gene Stoler by his uncle, Elder Arnold Lancaster.

During the year the Saints have enjoyed the ministry of Apostles Oakman and Lents.

The Boy Scout troop has grown in numbers so that the church can no longer accommodate them; they are now meeting in the Township Equipment Building. The congregation has also grown in numbers so that it is necessary to hold two services on Sundays; the adults meet in the upper auditorium and the children have their service in the basement. Elder Arnold Lancaster has been appointed junior pastor for the children. Total membership is 125.—Reported by LENORA RIES

Busy February

CHATHAM, ONTARIO.—The Chatham District had a special month of good experiences in February. Three meetings for district priesthood instruction, an organizational meeting for all missionary co-ordinators for a district-wide cottage meeting emphasis, a second annual "League-O-Rama" for Zion's Leaguers and a very successful institute for the ladies of the district were held.

The League-O-Rama was the second of an international type with Flint-Port Huron District Leaguers joining with the Chatham District in a Friday and Saturday young people's session. Fun night on Friday, classes on Saturday morning, a bowling tournament, a "General Conference" session conducted by the Leaguers, and the climaxing banquet and devotions made the institute one to be well remembered by over one hundred Leaguers. Elder Clarence Smith, youth director for Chatham District, headed the staff and the Chatham Branch was host.

More than one hundred and twenty-five people met in the upper auditorium on the closing night of the women's institute to hear the challenging message of Sister Blanche Mesley. The all-day session took place on Saturday, February 22, and was based on the theme: "Obligations of Stewardship." Staff instructors included Sister Eunice Arrow-smith, district director of women; Sister Wanda E. Hanton, district director of music; and Elder Elroy E. Hanton, Chatham District president. The banquet was served by the men of the Chatham Branch under direction of Elder Royal R. Wood and Elder Vern Pritchard.—Reported by MRS. LYLE GIBSON

Annual Spring Conference

DETROIT, MICHIGAN.—The Detroit International Stake annual spring conference was held in the auditorium of the Redford high school on the afternoon and evening of Sunday, February 23. Elder W. Blair McClain, stake president, conducted the services. Guest minister was Bishop G. Leslie DeLapp.

A twenty-nine-page folio of reports was provided for each person attending. This has come to be a regular and highly valued feature of each spring conference session.

Nine men were approved for ordination: Robert M. Coats (Drayton congregation) to office of elder; Clinton L. Crandell (Drayton congregation) to office of deacon; Myron L. Willard (Highland Park congregation) to office of elder; Gordon R. McKay (Parkside congregation) to office of elder; Marius Kaat (Leamington congregation) to office of priest; Frederick M. Howes (Wayne congregation) to office of elder; Dorey E. Gilbert (South Windsor congregation) to office of elder; William E. Haley (South Windsor congregation) to office of deacon; Gordon E. Lindsay (South Windsor congregation) to office of priest.

Bishop G. L. DeLapp gave a very fine sermon in the evening worship hour.—Reported by H. E. DEPEW

Classes to Train Teachers

THE PLAINS, OHIO.—Jeanne Denise, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don C. Smith, was blessed January 12, by Elder Delbert O. Norris, maternal grandfather, and Elder Ralph V. Brown, pastor.

Shirley and Leonard Ball were baptized by Elder Ralph V. Brown on February 15, at Jackson, Ohio, and confirmed March 2 by Brother Brown and Elder D. V. Cummings.

Richard Cochran of Dayton, district young adult leader, was the morning speaker, February 16.

Tuesday, February 18, was the first in a series of six weekly regional church school teacher training classes, taught by David Mingus. The course of study is Ways of Teaching, by Karen Andersen.

Apostle Donald V. Lents was the speaker at a regional preaching service, Wednesday, February 19.—Reported by MARIE C. BROWN

Four Young People Baptized

GRAND JUNCTION, COLORADO.—Seventy Houston Hobart and Elder David Judd have been visiting, conducting a series on "The Abundant Life." Four young people were baptized, and they were confirmed before the Communion service on March 2.—Reported by R. H. OLIVER

Missionary Visits Branch

IMPERIAL, NEBRASKA.—Missionary John Jordan of Denver spent from January 21-30 in the branch, visiting and holding cottage meetings. Gloria Mullen and her sister, Darlene, were baptized and confirmed by him during his stay.

Russell Goddard was the speaker on February 9. His subject was "What Does 'Church' Mean to You?"

District President Steve Bullard and his wife spent February 23-24 in the branch. He was the Sunday morning speaker, and assisted at a funeral service on Monday.—Reported by SYLVIA GODDARD

Golden Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Dodge of Wheatland, Wyoming, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on December 31 by holding open house at their home. About one hundred and fifty guests called to congratulate them. Mr. Dodge was born at Herman, Nebraska, in 1876 and joined the Reorganized Church in 1920; he holds the office of deacon. Mrs. Dodge was born in Cheyenne, Wyoming, in 1887, and was baptized into the church in 1915.

Their two daughters, Mrs. Margueret Lacock and Mrs. June Akers, their son, George Dodge, five grandchildren, and one great-grandchild were present for the occasion.

ready now . . .

Children's Reunion Materials for 1958

These manuals have been prepared to offer suggestions to leaders and teachers and will need to be adapted to fit local needs. Order yours early!

Manual	Theme	Price
Nursery	Living in Our Heavenly Father's World	$1.00
Kindergarten	Jesus and His Church	.85
Primary	Jesus and His Church	1.25
Junior	Jesus and His Church	1.10
Flannelgraph Instructions and Patterns (for primaries and juniors)		1.00

Box 477
Independence, Missouri

Box 382
Guelph, Ontario, Canada

Bulletin Board

Missouri Regional College Conference

A Missouri regional college conference will be held at Columbia on April 12 and 13. Further information may be received from John Yohe, 1213 University, Columbia, Missouri.

Southern Oregon District Spring Conference

The Southern Oregon District spring conference will be held at Medford, Oregon, on April 11, 12, and 13. Apostle Percy Farrow, Bishop T. A. Beck, and Missionary Elder Robert Seeley are to be present.

PEARL FORD
District Reporter

Serviceman's Address

Pvt. Robert M. Mortimore
US 55 612 712
Co. A., USASCS Regt.
Fort Monmouth, New Jersey

BOOKS WANTED

W. R. Morrison, 1400 South 81st Street, Muncie, Kansas (telephone Sunset 8-5746), would like to obtain copies of Young People's Church History, Volumes 1 and 2. Please state price and condition of books before sending them.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYERS

Mrs. Peggy Gamel, Newkirk, Oklahoma, requests prayers for Elder Alvin Smith, 820 E Street N.W., Miami, Oklahoma, who despite his own illness has gone at all hours of the day and night to administer to others.

Prayers are requested for Mr. and Mrs. Max R. Rana, Box 812, Trona, California, who have lost their four-month-old daughter.

Prayers are requested for Mrs. Bob Bennett, Box 436, Route 3, Amarillo, Texas, who is suffering with cancer.

Mrs. Wilma Neitzelt, 3129 Perry Road, Southwest Canton, Ohio, requests prayers for her husband and herself. She has not been well since the death of their son five years ago.

ENGAGEMENT

Elliott-Freberg

Mr. and Mrs. Evert A. Elliott of Independence, Missouri, announce the engagement of their daughter, Karen Frances, to Dana Donald Freberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold N. Freberg, of Des Moines, Iowa. Karen is a junior student at Graceland College. Dana also attended Graceland, and is now a senior at Iowa State University at Ames, Iowa. A June wedding is planned.

WEDDINGS

Froeling-Hagmeier

Jean Luise Hagmeier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hagmeier of Keokuk, Iowa, and Harold Frederick Froeling, Jr., son of Mr. H. F. Froeling, Sr. of Oaklawn, Illinois, were married in a double-ring ceremony at the Reorganized Church in Keokuk on March 1, Priest Blair E. Bryant officiating. They are making their home in Keokuk.

Karlson-Bowman

Marilyn Joy Bowman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ferren N. Bowman of Cameron, Missouri, and Russell J. Karlson of Des Moines, Iowa, were married February 16 at the Reorganized Church in Cameron, Pastor

Reunion Schedule

Reunion Theme: "Jesus Christ Our Heritage and Hope"

DATE	REUNION	PLACE	FOR RESERVATIONS WRITE TO:
May 23-26	German Mission Reunion	Hannover, Germany	Ralph R. Bobbitt 7722 Bobbitt Lane Houston, Texas
June 7-15	Texas	Bandera, Texas	Dr. C. F. Young 1422 River Rd., So. Fargo, North Dakota
June 8-15	Red River	Detroit Lakes, Minnesota	Lester Anderson Manning, North Dakota
June 18-22	Northern Plains	Fairview, Montana	C. R. Richards 1908 S. Broadway Wichita, Kansas
June 21-29	Kansas	Camp Fellowship Wichita, Kansas	Stanley I. Hayes 1 Ardsley Rd. Binghamton, New York
June 28- July 6	New York Metropolitan, Philadelphia Metropolitan, Washington, D.C., & Scranton	Deer Park New Hope, Pennsylvania	Charles J. Hoschouer 738 North Fifth St. Montrose, Colorado
June 29 - July 5	Western Colorado	Presbyterian Camp Grounds Grand Mesa, Colorado	R. L. Morrison Box 453 Rodessa, Louisiana
June 29 - July 6	Arkansas-Louisiana District	Camp Couchdale FFA Camp Hot Springs, Arkansas	Vern Webb Eichstrasse 14a Hannover, Germany
June 30 - July 4	Servicemen's Conference	Bertchesgarten, Bavaria	Benjamin L. Carter Stonington, Maine
July 5-13	Maine	Camp Winiagwamak Brooksville, Maine	William Archer 26 Finch Avenue W Willowdale, Ontario
July 5-13	Owen Sound, Toronto	Port Elgin, Ontario	Duane Couey 1419 Walton Road Memphis 17, Tennessee
July 6-13	Memphis District	Camp Shelby Forest State Park near Memphis, Tennessee	Mrs. D. Cromwell 1525 McTavish St. Regina, Saskatchewan
July 6-13	Saskatchewan	Sandy Lake McDowell, Saskatchewan	S. Lee Pfohl 350 Maryvale Dr. Buffalo, New York
July 11-19	New York	Allegany State Park	H. W. Cackler 916 W. Lexington Independence, Mo.
July 12-19	Center Stake No. 1	Lake Doniphan Excelsior Springs, Missouri	E. R. Fishburn Box 731 Nauvoo, Illinois
July 12-20	Nauvoo	Nauvoo, Illinois	Ben L. Jernigan 806 Belleville Ave. Brewton, Alabama
July 12-20	Gulf States	Brewton, Alabama	James C. Phillips 1126 Worden, S. E. Grand Rapids, Michigan
July 12-20	Central, South Central, Lansing & Grand Rapids	Liahona, Sanford, Michigan	J. L. Verhei 3824 S. E. Grant Ct. Portland, Oregon
July 12-20	Columbia River	Lewis River Grounds, Camp Israel, near Battle Ground, Washington	Glen Johnson 445 E. 17th So. Salt Lake City, Utah
July 13-20	Utah & Southeast Idaho	Baptist Camp Ground Liberty, Utah (near Ogden)	H. W. Cackler 916 W. Lexington Independence, Missouri
July 19-26	Center Stake No. 2	Lake Doniphan Excelsior Springs, Missouri	E. Paul Crinzi N. 5506 "G" St. Spokane, Washington
July 19-26	Spokane District	Ross Point, Idaho	E. C. Burdick 5014 V. St. Sacramento 17, California
July 19-26	Sacramento & Central California	Happy Valley Conference Grounds Santa Cruz, California	O. K. Byrn 363 Louise Ave. Highland Park 3, Michigan
July 19-27	Blue Water (Detroit International Stake)	Lexington, Michigan	Willard Becker Box 355 Warrensburg, Missouri
July 19-27	Central Missouri Stake	Odessa, Missouri	D. K. Larmour 7916 - 91 Avenue Edmonton, Alberta
July 19-27	Alberta, Canada	Neutral Hills Reunion Grounds	Jack A. Pray 704 Normal Street Pittsburg, Kansas
July 19-27	Ozark Reunion	Racine, Missouri	Luther Troyer 2526 Main St. Torrington, Wyoming
July 21-28	Black Hills*	Bob Marshall Camp Custer, South Dakota	J. E. Baldwin 1318 E. 30th St. Kansas City 9, Missouri
July 26- August 2	Kansas City Stake	Lake Doniphan Excelsior Springs, Missouri	Luther Walkingwood Merlin, Ontario
July 26- August 3	Chatham, London (Erie Beach)	Erie Beach Blenheim, Ontario	Francis E. Hansen 3851 So. Grand Los Angeles 37, California
July 26- August 3	Los Angeles Stake	Camp Buckhorn Idyllwild, California	Kenneth Logan 2820 North Mason Tacoma, Washington
July 26- August 3	Northwest	Silver Lake Everett, Washington

* This reunion ends on Monday

July 26 - August 3	Lakehurst Reunion	Lakehurst Reunion Park Maquoketa, Iowa	C. M. Bell, 1128 Keith Court, Clinton, Iowa
July 27 August 3	San Francisco Bay District	Happy Valley Conference Grounds Santa Cruz, California	Reed M. Holmes 580 No. Dover Rd. Covina, California
July 27- August 3	Wisconsin, Minnesota	Luther Park Chetek, Wisconsin	O. G. Kimball 190 18th Ave. S. Wisconsin Rapids, Wis.
August 1-5	British Isles Mission Reunion	Enfield, England
August 1-9	Des Moines	Guthrie Grove Reunion Park Guthrie Center, Iowa	Edward G. Beye 2346 E. 13th St. Des Moines, Iowa
August 2-10	Southern New England	Onset, Massachusetts	Victor J. Witte 1386 Massachusetts Ave. Lexington, Massachusetts
August 2-10	Kirtland	Kirtland, Ohio	J. F. Wildermuth 29617 Lake Shore Blvd. Willowick, Ohio
August 2-10	Blue Water (Flint-Port Huron & Eastern Michigan Districts)	Lexington, Michigan	Almer Sheehy 1209 Miller Port Huron, Michigan
August 2-10	Southeastern Illinois, Central Illinois & St. Louis	Brush Creek (near Xenia) Illinois	Ronald E. Manuel 4250 No. Grand Blvd. St. Louis, Missouri
August 8-17	Far West Stake	Stewartsville, Missouri	F. L. Dickson 517½ Francis St. St. Joseph, Missouri
August 9-17	Oklahoma	Robbers Cave State Park Wilburton, Oklahoma	O. O. Dollins Wilburton, Oklahoma
August 9-17	Western Iowa	Guthrie Grove Reunion Park Guthrie Center, Iowa	E. L. Edwards Woodbine, Iowa
August 9-17	Southern California District	Camp Buckhorn Idyllwild, California	David B. Carmichael 533 North Main St. Orange, California
August 9-17	Northern & Upper Michigan Peninsula Districts (Park of the Pines)	Boyne City, Michigan	Rex Stowe 1307 Dakota Ave. Gladstone, Michigan
August 10-17	Lamoni Stake	Graceland College Campus Lamoni, Iowa	L. W. Kohlman Lamoni, Iowa
August 10-17	Western Montana	Deer Lodge, Montana	Harvey Eliason Route 1 Deer Lodge, Montana
August 10-17	Boise District	Hagerman, Idaho	Lysle Gilmore Hagerman, Idaho
August 15-22	Hawaii	Camp Erdman Mokuleia Oahu, Hawaii	Stephen A. Black 1666 Mott-Smith Drive Honolulu 14, Hawaii
August 16-24	Arizona-New Mexico	Arizona Church Conference Center Camp Prescott, Arizona (Box 1986)	Robert I. Wakeman 67 Cypress Phoenix, Arizona
August 16-24	Northeastern Illinois, Chicago & N. Indiana	Camp Manitou Route 4 Cassopolis, Michigan	James B. Burdick 2399 W. 107th Place Chicago 43, Illinois
August 16-24	Eastern Colorado	Pine Crest Camp Palmer Lake, Colorado	Ward A. Hougas 480 Marion Street Denver 18, Colorado

college and served as a Methodist minister until his conversion to the Reorganized Church. He was baptized on July 21, 1940, and soon after ordained to the office of elder, in which capacity he served faithfully until his death.

He is survived by his wife, Claudia; a daughter, Mary Jo; a stepdaughter, Norina Hardy of Ross, North Dakota; and a stepson, L. J. McBride of Los Angeles, California. Evangelist A. D. McCall conducted the funeral service at his home branch, Pensacola, Florida. Interment was in St. John's Cemetery.

CROSLLEY.—Anna Matilda Jacobson, was born May 10, 1875, in Vonga, Osterjutland Province, Sweden (date and place of death not given). With her parents she came to America at the age of four, settling for a time in Connecticut and then moving to South Dakota. At the age of ten she was hired out to a neighbor to herd fifty head of cattle on foot; the following year she was given a horse to ride and the herd was doubled. On December 20, 1892, she was married to Ross Crosley. One of their two daughters died at the age of twelve, and Mr. Crosley died in 1938. She became a member of the Reorganized Church in 1903 and, although isolated most of her life, remained faithful to her covenant, often holding church school in her own home. Her home was a refuge for motherless boys and girls and for anyone in need.

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Florence Breitenbach of Yankton, South Dakota; four grandchildren; ten great-grandchildren; a sister; two brothers; and Mrs. Rose Whipper, who was her companion for many years.

VICKROY.—Esther May, was born May 2, 1902, at Lancaster, Ohio, and died December 5, 1957, at Lancaster. On December 22, 1920, she was married to William P. Vickroy, who also died on December 5, 1957. She had been a member of the Reorganized Church since June 29, 1924.

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Edward A. Bennett, and four grandchildren of Fort Benning, Georgia; a brother, John; two sisters: Ruth and Rachel; and two half sisters: Martha and Clarabell, all of Lancaster. Funeral services were conducted by Elder George Howdyshell. Interment was in Hopewell Cemetery.

VICKROY.—William P., was born September 12, 1889, in Lancaster, Ohio, and died December 5, 1957, at the home in Lancaster. He was married on December 22, 1920, to Esther May Wright, who died at the same time he did. He had been a member of the Reorganized Church since June 29, 1924, and had held the office of elder since October 30, 1926.

He leaves a daughter, Mrs. Edward Bennett, and four grandchildren of Fort Benning, Georgia; two brothers: Clarence and Thomas of Lancaster. Funeral services were conducted by Elder George Howdyshell. Interment was in Hopewell Cemetery.

ROUTLEDGE.—William, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Routledge, was born March 5, 1896, at Clinton, Ontario, and died September 8, 1957, in Sault Ste Marie, Ontario, where he had resided since he was sixteen. His first wife, Emily, died in August, 1947; in June 1949, he was married to Ethel (maiden name not given). He had been a member of the Reorganized Church since September, 1953.

He is survived by his wife, Ethel, and a daughter, by his first marriage, Mrs. Dorothy Fletcher, both of Sault Ste Marie.

MARSHALL.—Laurie Conover, was born May 11, 1879, at Sweetwater, Tennessee, and died February 27, 1958, at Jacksonville, Illinois. She was married on February 20, 1955, to Swain Marshall, who survives her. Since December 5, 1954, she had been a member of the Reorganized Church.

Besides her husband she leaves a son, Homer Conover, and a foster son, Paul Wood, of Jacksonville; four stepdaughters: Mrs. Marion Zenge, Mrs. Margaret Neff, Mrs. Thelma Gross, and Mrs. Ruth Daniels, all of Jacksonville; two stepsons: Harold Marshall of Jacksonville and John Marshall of Murrayville, Illinois; a sister, Mrs. Robert Frank of Chattanooga, Tennessee; two brothers: Lloyd Miller of Bakersfield, California, and Charles Miller of Pueblo, Colorado; and two grandchildren. Funeral services were conducted by Elder J. A. Williams. Burial was in Memorial Lawn Cemetery.

David A. Coffman officiating. The bride is a graduate of Graceland College, and both are graduates of Drake University. They are making their home in Des Moines.

Romero-Erickson

Janet Elaine Erickson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Erickson of San Lorenzo, California, and Robert Lawrence Romero, son of Mrs. Frank Romero of San Luis Obispo, California, were married in a double-ring ceremony August 7, 1957, at the home of the groom's sister in Oakland, California, Judge Joseph Murphy officiating. They are making their home in Oakland.

Erickson-Rossiter

Jean S. Rossiter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rossiter of San Leandro, California, and Kenneth Keith Erickson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Erickson of San Lorenzo, California, were married in a double-ring ceremony September 21, 1957, at St. Leander's Catholic Church in San Leandro, Father Oliveria officiating. They are making their home in Hayward, California.

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Alvis of Kansas City, Missouri, became the parents of a son, Keith Edward, on January 28. Mrs. Alvis, the former Dolores Doins, is a Graceland graduate.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Condit of San Bruno, California, became the parents of a daughter, Jennifer Louise, on January 17. She was blessed on March 2 at Burlingame, California, by Elders Edward Buckley and Victor Wilshusen. Mrs. Condit is the former Joann Howard of Hagerman, Idaho.

Mr. and Mrs. Weldon (Ruggie) Wilson, of Arma, Kansas, became the parents of a daughter, Marlis Kay, on November 4. She was blessed on February 2, 1958, at the Pittsburg Church by Elders Sam Landrum and T. W. Bath. Mrs. Wilson is the former Phala Bolser.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Nesbitt of Pittsburg, Kansas, became the parents of a daughter, Kimberly Ann, on December 19 at Lawton, Oklahoma, where Mr. Nesbitt is stationed. Mrs. Nesbitt is the former Dona Ohlhausen.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Ohlhausen of Pittsburg, Kansas, became the parents of a daughter on December 3. She has been named Christy Lynn.

S.Sgt. and Mrs. H. D. Dowty, now of Fort Bliss, Texas, became the parents of a son, Harold Dean, on April 30, 1957, at Wiesbaden, Germany. Mrs. Dowty is the former Wanda Ohlhausen of Pittsburg, Kansas.

DEATHS

DONNELL.—Lavinia Pierson, was born May 12, 1865, in England and died October 24, 1957, in the McSherry Convalescent Home at New Haven, Connecticut. Her husband, John F. Donnell, preceded her in death. She had been a member of the Reorganized Church since July, 1902.

She leaves a son, Leonard Pierson of North Weymouth, Massachusetts; a daughter, Mrs. Laura P. Sears of Onset, Massachusetts; three grandchildren; and five great-grandchildren. Funeral services were conducted by Elder Harold F. Gorfield at Sisk Chapel in New Haven. Burial was in Center Cemetery at Branford, Connecticut.

TIPTON.—Lucius G., was born August 24, 1890, at Andalusia, Alabama, and died January 2, 1958, at West Palm Beach, Florida, of a broken neck sustained in an automobile accident. He was trained in a ministerial

And Finally...

STORM

Is there anything more beautiful than a bank of thunderheads with the sun shining upon it as a storm approaches? But as the storm advances, the broad umbrella of clouds shades the land, and all the glorious beauty and majesty of the bright thunderhead is obscured from view; for on the underside there is nothing more dismal and ugly and dangerous-looking than the storm, especially if a funnel of wind dips down out of the clouds like a deadly python swinging from a tree looking for victims.

In this aspect the storm reminds one of a war. At the beginning there is patriotic feeling, adventure, danger, martial music, and glory. But after the war starts, it is dismal and drab, ugly and deadly, accompanied by disease, hurt, loss, hate, disruption, and death. And in these threatening days one prays and hopes that war will not come again in our time.

L. J. L.

WHO IS OLD?

A phrase of yesteryear, "It is later than you think," has stuck with me. The first time I heard myself referred to as "an old man" it came as shock. You, too, are due for a shock—if you live long enough.

Dr. Edward J. Slieglitz, specialist in gerontology and consultant for the Veterans Administration, says, "An eighty-year-old, assuming he is interested and wants to learn, can learn as fast as a twelve-year-old. Longevity is less a question of ageing than of illness. Mental depreciation from ageing per se is relatively minor."

Contents

EDITORIAL AND OFFICIAL

For Want of a Reader, by Roger Yarrington	3
Official Name for Church Campus Groups	4
Across the Desk	4

FEATURE ARTICLES

Seating Campaign Underway	2
We Remember Kirtland Temple, by Kenneth T. Green	5
Agricultural Advisory Committee, by G. L. DeLapp	7
Guideposts or Ambulances, by Byron W. Kagay	7
Join None of the Churches, Part II, by S. C. Barrows	8
The Light, by Frederick R. Troeh	11
New "San" Areas into Use, by Roger Yarrington	12
Summering with the Church in Europe, Part V, by Mrs. Mark H. Siegfried	14
District President and Wife Minister in Spanish	17
Miracle in the Foyer, by Elliott Gilberts	19

SPECIAL COLUMNS

We'd Like You to Know: William H. Oliver	2
I Had an Experience, by William Patterson	10
Letters	16
Book Reviews	18
Sanscripts	19
Briefs	20
Bulletin Board	22
Reunion Schedule	22
And Finally	24

That sounds good to an increasing number of our population. The only comment from the "young fry": "Are you kidding?"

C. B. H.

*"U.S. News and World Report,"
February 14, 1958

TIE IT DOWN

When I was a student at Graceland laboring over some brainstorm, I'd write it out in longhand, very long and very florid. Roy Cheville would return it to me marked, "Glorious generalities; be specific!"

Opinions need to be moored to reasons. When they are not, they are like kites, bobbing and shifting with the wind, and almost invisibly connected to reality. Some of them are more like balloons that slip their moorings and simply head out of this world—until they burst.

Reed M. Holmes

JUST FOR TODAY

Do today's duty, fight today's temptation; do not weaken and distract yourself by looking forward to things you cannot see and could not understand if you saw them.—Charles Kingsley.

GREATNESS

To be great is not to be placed above humanity, ruling others; but to stand above the partialities and futilities of uninformed desire, and to rule one's self.

—Spinoza

FOR YOUR REMINDER BOOK

Try never to hurt those you love. The wounds will heal, of course. But the scars will remain forever.

L. J. L.

EXTREMES

They are as sick that surfeit with too much, as they starve with nothing.

—William Shakespeare

DEFINITION

Civilization is a movement and not a condition, a voyage, and not a harbor.

—Arnold Toynbee

Dear Roger:

(cut here)

I just finished reading your editorial

For Want of a Reader . . .

in this week's issue of the Saints' Herald.

I appreciate your frank message addressed to parents of church youth, and since our family does not subscribe to STRIDE, I should like to enter a subscription now.

Thanks for helping me give my children the best the church has to offer its youth in religious reading.

Sincerely,

name _____

address _____

To Herald House

Box 477

Independence, Missouri

Please enter a year's subscription to STRIDE for:

Name _____

Address _____

City _____ Zone _____ State _____

Bill me later Payment enclosed

United States $2.50 Canada $2.75
other countries $3.00

SAINTS' HERALD

Volume 105 / March 31, 1958 / Number 13

The Message of Easter

Luoma Photos

Kenneth L. Simpson

LIKE MANY YOUNG men who are born into the church, I took the church and its blessings for granted for many years," says Brother Simpson.

"In 1948 I attended my first youth camp. This was the turning point in my life. The experiences of this single week caused me to realize there was a great deal in the church that I was missing. Since then I have found that every time I make an effort to find God and learn his will concerning me, he is close by my side and ready to grant the things that are for my best good and the good of his church."

Kenneth Simpson is a medical technologist at the Independence Sanitarium and Hospital. He also serves the church as an elder.

"Because God sought me when I was still a youth and has allowed me to share the blessings of his love, I want to give my life in an effort to bring these blessings and eternal riches to all who will hear the call of Christ in their lives," says Kenneth.

He has an opportunity to do just that as missionary co-ordinator for the West College congregation in Center Stake.

Kenneth is a native of Michigan and the son of Mr. and Mrs. LaVerne Evert Simpson. He was graduated from Graceland College in 1952 and has also studied at Central Michigan College and the University of Kansas City. He has been employed at the "San" since 1953—with a two-year absence for service in the U.S. Army.

He was married to Marian Lois Kendrick in 1954. They have two children: Van Everette, two years, and Judith Kathleen, four months.

A-V, Music, Radio Departments Tell of Work During 1956-1957

Departmental Reports Show Progress

REPORTS COVERING a twenty-month period were submitted recently to the First Presidency by the Audio-Visual, Music, and Radio Departments. All three indicated that the period since last General Conference has been one of progress.

The Audio-Visual Department reported a marked increase in the use of its materials and services during the report period. There were 244,278 slides produced which is double the amount produced during the previous period. The department also produced 1,239 photographic prints, 137 lithographic offset plates, and distributed 51,627 pieces of promotion of the film "Other Sheep."

A-V completed several major projects in this period: Dutch and German language missionary slide sets, the Audio-Visual Library Catalog, and "Other Sheep," a motion picture.

Projects currently in production at the department are "Joseph Smith Tells His Own Story," a sound filmstrip; "Another Witness," sound filmstrip; "Visit Kirtland Temple," slide set; "Hymns of the Restoration," three hymn-strips; "After You Join," filmstrip; "Unto All Nations," 1958 stewardship chart; and "Finish the Job," 1958 Auditorium slide set.

The A-V library contains more than 1,800 titles, including motion pictures, sound filmstrips, filmstrips, slide sets, tapes, records, and other nonprojected materials. In 1956-1957, 5,357 pieces were distributed reflecting a 67 per cent increase in library services.

In his report, Arthur Rock, director of the Audio-Visual Department, announced that in 1958 the A-V library will remain open two evenings a week to give users of audio-visual materials an opportunity to view materials, to learn equipment operations, and to help co-ordinate materials with the curriculum of local churches.

To help in the utilization of the department's materials, fifty demonstrations, nine institutes, six appointee training classes, six priesthood training classes, and a communications seminar were held in the two-year period.

The Department of Music report pointed out that a significant number of publications have been made available to the church during the period covered in the reports. The publications were The Hymnal, The Children's Hymnal, Camp and Fellowship Songbook, How to Use the Hymnal, and A Guide for Music Leaders. Another publication,

(Continued on page 19.)

Authors in This Issue

Charles R. Hield (page 5), member of the Council of Twelve

Lyman F. Edwards (page 8), elder, Detroit, Michigan

Pearl Wilcox (page 8), Independence, Missouri

Viola Velt Barney (page 9), Holden, Missouri

Arlene Groesbeck (page 10), Oklahoma City, Oklahoma

Naomi Russell (page 13), Assistant Editor

Mrs. W. M. Nichols (page 14), Member of General Women's Council

Roger Yarrington (page 16), Assistant Editor

Toward the Final Restoration

APRIL 6 is the usual anniversary date we recognize in commemorating the beginning of the Restoration movement. And 1830 is the year we usually hark back to for its formal starting point. But what is the "Restoration," and when did it really begin?

The dictionary defines "restoration" as "bringing back to, or putting back into, a former position or condition; reinstatement; renewal; re-establishment." With reference to the Scriptures, it is also defined as "the ultimate bringing of the whole universe, including all men, into harmony with the will of God; called also final restoration."

It is to this last definition that the Bible often points. The prophets of the past looked forward to the "last days"—even beyond our day—to the return of Christ. Such Scriptures as these pointed to this "complete" restoration:

They shall not hurt nor destroy in all my holy mountain; for the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea.—Isaiah 11: 9. (Also Habakkuk 2: 14.)

. . . The heavens must receive [Jesus] until the times of restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began.—Acts 3: 21.

Yea, this bringeth about the restoration of those things of which have been spoken by the mouths of the prophets. The soul shall be restored to the body, and the body to the soul; yea, . . . all things shall be restored to their proper and perfect frame. . . . This is the restoration of which has been spoken by the mouths of the prophets.—Alma 19: 57-59.

Preceding this time of "complete" restoration are the days in which we are now living—and those years of the immediate future. Of these days, Latter Day Saints feel the Lord was speaking when he said to Enoch:

And righteousness and truth will I cause to sweep the earth as with a flood, to gather out mine own elect from the four quarters of the earth, unto a place which I shall prepare; an holy city, . . . and it shall be called Zion; a New Jerusalem.—Genesis 7: 70, I.V.

But the days in which the truths of the "restored gospel" are being taught have been in turn preceded and accompanied by events of "restoration" which have invaded every home and every life on the earth—even where the gospel story has not been told.

THese events are found in the rapid increase of secular knowledge of God's universe, and they generally parallel the chronology of the spiritual revelation of God's plan of salvation. To some extent, though, they precede this revelation. If you follow the dates of the outstanding discoveries and inventions of the world, you find that most of them came after the year 1800. In the World Book Encyclopedia (1950 edition), an outline chart of "inventions and discoveries" begins with 1800. And the chart shows how this increase of knowledge permeates every phase of life. Communication, transportation, agriculture, home, medicine, military, industry, and power are the fields into which these inventions are divided on the chart.

In another list of famous inventions, the above-mentioned book lists only seven in the eighteenth century (1700's); while in the 1800's over one hundred are listed. It is very interesting to note that only fifteen major new inventions are listed during the first fifty years of the twentieth century. Apparently most of our work during this past half century has been spent in extending and refining the inventions coming out of the knowledge that God released to the world during the 1800's.

There were, of course, prehistoric inventions (such as firemaking instruments, the lever, the wheel, pottery, and the compass), but probably the major invention that heralded the beginning of the great flow of knowledge across the world was the movable type printing press about 1450. This invention opened an era of questing for religious freedom by making the Bible more available for study by the masses of humanity. It led to the Reformation revolutions that exploded all over Europe. It opened people's minds to a search for better ways of living—spiritually, educationally, physically, and economically.

Throughout the world today, revolution continues at an ever-accelerated pace. Its surge will undoubtedly lead to the predicted wars of the last days. Through struggle and destruction, the human race seems destined to purge itself. The complete restoration predicted for the future will not come easily; standards of truth and righteousness will often seem to be cruel judges. The inevitable result will be that those who would be a part of the "complete" restoration will be so because of their adherence to the standards of truth.

THE ERA of "restoration" is continuing. The rate of gaining knowledge is advancing rapidly. But growth in decent morals and righteousness still lags behind. We will watch with interest the progress that will be made in human relations as the "hastening time" carries us toward the finale of this age.

P. A. W.

Official

Graduate Nurses Needed

We have urgent need for the services of graduate nurses who are members of the church. Those interested should write to Miss Nelle Morgan, R.N., Director of Nursing, Independence Sanitarium and Hospital, Independence, Missouri.

THE FIRST PRESIDENCY
By Israel A. Smith

Heads of Departments

Elder John Blackmore, who has served as Church Historian since 1950, has resigned because of ill health and has been recommended for superannuation. We wish to express our thanks to Brother Blackmore for the service he has given, much of it under conditions of extreme difficulty.

We have appointed Elder Evan A. Fry to serve as Church Historian, and this appointment has received the approval of the recent Council of First Presidency, Council of Twelve, and Presiding Bishopric.

Elder Merle P. Guthrie has resigned as Church Statistician because of the demands of his field assignment. We regret losing the services of Brother Guthrie but recognize the importance of the field assignment to which he has been called.

We have appointed as Church Statistician Elder J. E. Lancaster, who will be available in Independence as soon as his present employment will permit. This appointment has also received the approval of the Joint Council of First Presidency, Council of Twelve, and Presiding Bishopric.

We ask for Elders Fry and Lancaster the same support that was so generously given to those who served before them.

THE FIRST PRESIDENCY
By Israel A. Smith

Recommendations for Superannuation

At the recent Joint Council of First Presidency, Council of Twelve, and Presiding Bishopric, the following named brethren were approved for recommendation to the General Conference of 1958 for the honor of superannuation:

John Blackmore
John R. Grice
J. Charles May
M. A. McConley
Arthur E. Stoff

These brethren will continue to be available for ministerial service as their strength will permit but will not be under the obligations associated with appointee ministry.

THE FIRST PRESIDENCY
By Israel A. Smith

Field Assignments

At the recent Joint Council of First Presidency, Council of Twelve, and Presiding Bishopric it was thought wise to have the usual conference review of the assignments of General Church appointees. A major factor is the importance of making changes about this time of the year so that transfers can be made at the end of the school year whenever this is advisable.

Present assignments of ministers under General Conference appointment are as follows:

Appointee	Assignment, 1958
Adams, Loyd R.	—St. Louis and So. Missouri Districts
Alberts, Donald A.	—Australasia, Bishop
Andersen, Richard D.	—Scandinavia
Andrews, Alma C.	—Eastern Nebraska District and Omaha
Argotsinger, G. Dale	—California
Ashenurst, Raymond J.	—Alberta District
Baldwin, Joseph E.	—Kansas City Stake, Bishop
Banta, Frederick C.	—Scandinavia
Banta, R. Wayne	—Missouri Missionary Development Area
Barlow, T. Edward	—Northern Indiana District
Beck, T. A., Sr.	—Spokane, Seattle, Southern Oregon and Columbia River Districts, Bishop
Becker, Willard C.	—Central Missouri Stake, Bishop
Benton, Donald E.	—Assistant to Presiding Bishopric
Berndt, G. Everett	—Supervisor, Auditorium and Guide Services
Berridge, Barnett W.	—Wisconsin District
Bethel, Dayle M.	—Galesburg and Black Hawk Districts
Billings, Virgil J.	—Lamoni Stake
Black, Harry W.	—Kirtland District and Akron

Black, Stephen A.—Seattle District
Blackstock, John W.—Far West Stake, President
Bobbitt, Ralph A.—Southern Ohio District
Booth, John E.—Southwest Iowa District, Council Bluffs, obj.
Boren, John H.—Assistant to Presiding Bishopric
Bradley, John W.—Upper Michigan Peninsula and Northern Ontario Districts
Breckenridge, Allen J.—French Polynesia
Breshears, W. Joseph—West Virginia District
Buck, Clifford P.—Department of Religious Education
Burdekin, A. Floyd—New Zealand
Butterworth, F. Edward—Ontario
Byrn, O. Kenneth—Detroit International Stake, Bishop
Cackler, Harold W.—Center Stake of Zion, Bishop
Carmichael, N. Ray—Assistant to Presiding Bishopric
Carpenter, Calvin M.—Unorganized Ontario and Ottawa
Cash, Harold S., Jr.—Assistant to Presiding Bishopric in So. New England, New York Metropolitan, Philadelphia Metropolitan, New York-Scranton, Maine, and Washington, D. C., Districts
Chelline, Warren H.—Pensacola District and Pensacola
Clinefelter, William A.—Department of Religious Education
Cole, Clifford A.—Department of Religious Education, Director
Coleman, Sylvester R.—Hawaii District
Coltharp, N. Glynn—Arkansas-Louisiana District
Compier, Antonius D.—Continental Europe, Bishop
Condit, Clayton—San Francisco Bay District
Conway, John T.—Washington, D.C., District and Washington, D.C.
Conway, Walter J.—Kirtland Temple Minister
Couey, Duane E.—Assistant to First Presidency
Crinzi, E. Paul—Spokane District
Crownover, A. Orlin—Toronto Metropolitan District
Curtis, Jack M.—Youngstown and Pittsburgh Districts
Darling, John R.—Mobile District and Mobile
Daugherty, James C.—Columbia River District
Davies, Charles A.—Australia—Director of Priesthood and Religious Education and missionary at large Davies, Fred O.—Kansas City Stake, President
Dickens, Eldon W.—Alaska
Dickson, Frederick L.—Far West Stake, Bishop
Doty, Harry L.—South Central States Mission
Downey, Harold T.—Field Assistant to Presiding Bishopric
Edwards, Lyman F.—Detroit International Stake
(Continued on page 20)

The Saints' Herald

Vol. 105 March 31, 1958 No. 13

EDITORS: The First Presidency: Israel A. Smith, F. Henry Edwards, W. Wallace Smith.
ASSISTANTS: Chris B. Hartshorn, Managing Editor; Naomi Russell, Assistant Editor; Paul A. Wellington, Assistant Editor; Roger Yarrington, Assistant Editor; Audrey Stub-

bart, Copy Editor; and Leonard J. Lea, Contributing Editor. BUSINESS MANAGER, Kenneth L. Graham.

The Saints' Herald is the official publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, with headquarters at The Auditorium, Independence, Missouri, and is issued through the offices of Herald Publishing House, 103 South Osage Street, Independence, Missouri.

Herald editors are not responsible for the views and opinions expressed in articles or communications other than those of editorial authorship.

Entered as second-class matter at the post office at Independence, Missouri, under Act of March 3, 1879. Issued weekly at Independence, Missouri, except daily during the biennial General Conference. Price, $4.00 per year in advance in the U.S.A., its territories and possessions; Canada, $4.25 per year; other countries, $5.00 per year. Notice of a change of address must be given three weeks ahead of the date that it is to become effective. Accepted for mailing at the special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917, authorized July 21, 1921. Printed in the United States of America.

The Call of Christ

By Charles R. Hield

MY SON CHARLES, when he was in Germany, wrote that he wanted to bring some gift home to his dad. I was wondering what he would pick out. It could have been a beer stein, or perhaps a German pipe. But he went down to Oberammergau and purchased a head of the Christ carved in wood and sent it, saying, "Dad, knowing you love Jesus Christ, I thought you would appreciate this more than anything else I could get for you." And I do.

Christ is a marvelous individual. It is just too bad that we neglect him so much and become indifferent to his love. Being indifferent is one of the terrible things that we can do to people. If we want to hurt someone, we have only to be indifferent to him—just don't notice him.

I am interested in languages. The American public, and perhaps the whole world, recently learned a new word. We didn't know what the word "sputnik" meant before; now we know it's an outer space satellite. I notice by the morning paper that the Russians are bragging that they have a third, fourth, or fifth stage rocket which will send an intercontinental ballistic missile to any spot in the world. That frightens some people. Some politicians seek advantage because of it. Scientists tell us we need not worry too much. Any sputnik ordinarily can't come down through the dense earth atmosphere without disintegrating. But I am, however, interested in this fear that some people have of extinction. It sounds a little humorous in many ways, but one person on TV the other night said that the big question people have on their minds today is "When will I be blown up?"

Salvation and Agency

The philosophy of Christ has always tried to save people from physical harm. We do have the danger of polio, but this has been much alleviated with the discovery of the Salk vaccine. We worry about Asiatic flu (it even attacks Russians), but we are making some progress in preventing that, too. As we study Holy Writ and history, the Bible and the Book of Mormon particularly, we find God many times allowing punishment to be inflicted upon people, mainly, however, as nations. But he has destroyed no nation unless that nation has become exceedingly wicked. As a rule, he does not permit the destruction of individuals; yet sometimes he does.

Our criminals tend to eliminate themselves, which in a way is a good thing (see Mormon 2: 6). We find Helaman saying that the Lord allows afflictions, death, terror, and famine to come upon the people; otherwise they will not remember him (Helaman 4: 52. See also II Nephi 11: 65-68). That's too bad, isn't it? And I don't think God really believes that terror will bring a solid final solution, either. It does cause people to think sometimes; it may cause some to repent, but I don't think that God is going to try to scare us with earthquakes, fires, and sputniks into the kingdom-of-God way of living. We are going to have to develop character of our own volition, of our own free will. We must acquire a righteously controlled intelligence to live with God—not be frightened into it. I don't think the Father scared Christ into doing what he did. Christ believed in his Father's plan with all his heart, of his own volition.

Wicked by Choice

The Book of Mormon account in many ways is a terrible tragedy. Many times God called the people to a life of happiness and joy, but they retained their pride, their love of money, class, and jewelry, and willfully rejected their God. When they became too wicked, he eliminated them. He destroyed Sodom and Gomorrah in Bible times with brimstone and fire (Genesis 19:24). On the American Continent, Christ said: "That great city Zarahemla have I burned with fire . . . that great city Moronihah have I covered with earth, and the inhabitants thereof." He destroyed sixteen cities (III Nephi 4:28-38). Some people are surprised to realize that Christ will destroy. Ordinarily he doesn't destroy, unless a people becomes too wicked.

Our society does the same thing. We used to destroy sick cattle when they got hoof and mouth disease. We do burn the whole beehive sometimes if it gets infected. We don't kill people when they acquire certain diseases, but we isolate them.

The Lord will not long tolerate sin, particularly when that sin hurts other people. One of the strongest statements of Christ in the Bible is the one he made when he condemned those who offend little children: "It were better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck, and that he were drowned in the depth of the sea" (Matthew 18:6). Many times in our Three Standard Books he says the same thing concerning the wicked. In Doctrine and Covenants 64:5, he says, "All the proud and they that do wickedly shall be as stubble, and I will burn them up, for I am the Lord of hosts." We may be a little surprised that the Scriptures seem to indicate that Christ will stand by and watch them as they are consumed.

If any man worship the beast [that is, worship evil, sin, and Satan, following his advice and counsel] and his image . . . the same shall drink of the wine of the wrath of God, which is poured out without mixture into the cup of his indignation; and he shall be tormented with fire and brimstone in the presence of the holy angels, and in the presence of the Lamb; and the smoke of their torment ascendeth up for ever and ever; and they have no rest day nor night . . . —Revelation 14:9-11.

Fruits of Righteousness

The righteous need not be afraid of God, though he will not long put up with sin. In the Book of Mormon there are many very beautiful passages showing God's love and protection over those who understood him and in intelligence served him. Many times the Lord protected those righteous people. Earthquakes destroyed jails in order to free his agents. Sometimes their enemies moved forward to harm or kill them, and through the protecting power of the Holy Spirit they couldn't be touched. The Lord prospered them; they became rich; they built large cities and expanded from the land northward to the land southward, from the west sea to the east sea. Their civilization once covered the whole face of the land. They built up the "waste places." We are told of the fine brotherhood that existed—no poor and no rich—a marvelous society. The people seemed to appreciate their God, his love and his greatness.

In All Things

Christ, by whom the Father created the heavens and the earth, is a wonderful Son (Doctrine and Covenants 22:21). The danger to the church is that we forget God. I marvel sometimes how we can forget him and be so indifferent to him. What is it that we allow to detract our attention? We see God in everything we do, in everything that we look upon.

A little girl in church school was being questioned by her teacher as to how she gained an appreciation of God and how she knew that God existed. The girl said, "Well, all I have to do, wherever I am, is to shut my eyes; and when I open them again, whatever I see, I realize that God has had some part in its creation." That is an interesting exercise, isn't it? Through his power, God has made everything possible for us.

I marvel every time I enter the Auditorium. The limestone on the side of the building has been there now for a few years. Limestone was centuries in the process of formation on the bottom of an ocean or in the depths of a lake, there free from mud, too, as a rule. It is composed of the lime taken out of the food and water by little organisms. These, under heat and pressure for ages of time, form limestone. This marvelous transformation is the beautiful stone on the Auditorium.

Granite is lava rock which comes from the inner parts of the earth. Some types of granite never got out in the open but stayed down underneath the surface and there cooled off slowly for centuries. With time the surface soil was washed or blown away, leaving the granite exposed. It comes in different colors, depending on the minerals which are in it. Marble is stone which has gone through a metamorphosis. At one time it was limestone or a type of dolomite which was buried by some act of God or nature down deep in the earth where it was subject to terrific heat and pressure. Under these conditions the limestone changed and became beautiful marble.

How can we walk about and not see God? How can we become so indifferent to him and disregard his presence? Our homes are heated with oil, gas, coal, or electricity that God makes available. Every time we eat we should realize that God creates the food. How can we forget him so easily?

Christ's Power and Purpose

God has extended all his power to Christ—the light of the sun and the light of the stars. He is the one who quickens our understanding (Doctrine and Covenants 85:3). What power is given unto Christ! He said: "All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth" (Matthew 28:18). He has been placed in charge of the world. In Bible times he performed many miracles. He walked on the water, healed the lepers, cursed the fig tree, changed the fishes and loaves into baskets of food, and restored the soldier's ear cut off by Peter.

But the church today needs to see the miracles of Christ in everyday life. His greatest purpose is to help us. He is not a Buddha. Buddha taught a way of life. When Buddha died that is all there was to it. He will have nothing to do with the future and had nothing to do with the world before his birth. He was a man who lived, just as Moses did. But Christ was with the Father in the beginning (Doctrine and Covenants 38:1). He is the one who put the words into the mouth of the prophets of the Old Testament (III Nephi 1:12, 13). He is in charge of the world. He is in charge of us, and he loves us with all his heart. He wants us to grow into the type of men and women with whom he can share his kingdom. He says: "You are my friends." (Doctrine and Covenants 90:8).

He seeks to qualify us for responsibility. It is hard to understand how people will ignore and pass him by, or be so busy or indifferent to his love. We can't let indifference get into our religious life any more than we can let it get into any other phase of living.

We have learned a great deal about the bad results of being indifferent to proper food. We are still indifferent to some needed foods and suffer because of that neglect. Lacking proper Vitamin A, scientists tell us, we are likely to end up with sore eyes and a scaly skin. Lack of Vitamin C, or indifference to it, may result in colds. Lack of Vitamin B makes one extremely nervous, and so some must take tranquilizer pills. Lack of Vitamin G causes poor bones that break easily. Lack of Vitamin E may cause hardening of the arteries.

It is surprising how much we neglect the counsel and advice of God, isn't it? He has warned us and posted all kinds of signs for our guidance. Occasionally while driving I will be talking, listening to the radio, or just thinking, and go by the corner where I was supposed to turn. Twenty or thirty miles

Apostle
Charles Hield

later on I decide I am on the wrong road and must go back. This is my own fault. And it is not God's fault in life if I do not obey his signposts. They are there for my direction and help.

In Training

Christ has a very definite program and goal. He tries in every way to help us. The Scriptures say that we also were with God in the beginning (Doctrine and Covenants 90: 4). I am surprised that some people say that the reason Christ is because he was with God in the beginning. We were with God also in the beginning, but that doesn't make us gods. In fact, the Scriptures say that Satan also was with God in the beginning (Inspired Version, Genesis 3: 1).

Most of us believe we pre-existed. We don't know much about it. We do know we are here now—not for long, either. We should merit being in the millenium—that is about the only time element we know—a thousand years. Then we should have the opportunity to live with God, Christ, and the righteous in celestial glory—and that is endless. But now, here we are on this earth, and God begs us to understand his plan for us in this kingdom. In some ways we are in his school. We are on probation, on trial, and God is trying to develop us into his likeness so that he may have us as his friends. He promises to give us responsibility and authority if we prove worthy.

Not long ago I was invited to Lake Doniphan by Robert Taylor, the youth leader in Independence, to share in the ministry to some fine young people. They ranged from about nineteen to twenty-five years in age, some were married, others unmarried. Brother Taylor called them together in one of the buildings after dinner and asked each one to stand and tell his name and a few facts about himself. It was an interesting experience. One young man stood, telling of his plan to be a doctor. He was in medical school. Others told of being in law school. Others were studying science, agriculture, nursing, or teaching. One wanted to be a C.P.A., another a building contractor.

Then, later at the campfire I had an opportunity to talk to them and mentioned that already they had spent about a third of their earthly life. Twenty-five years of their life was gone. They had spent that much time and would probably spend more learning to make a living for themselves in terms of dollars and cents. I asked them why they were spending all this time preparing for a profession. I also urged them to realize that God also has them here for a few years preparing them for the greatest job they will ever have. All of them were eager for business opportunities. They all were hoping to get a "break" and find good employment. God gives us all a "break." He has us here as in his school for about sixty-seven years, more or less, trying to prepare us for life in eternity. It is a marvelous opportunity which he extends to us.

What of the Future

We are all going to face our Lord someday. How long before we are going to confront God? How many years? I keep asking this over and over in my sermons. (I hope it doesn't get trite, but any good professor realizes that repetition is the base of learning.) To me salvation consists of an assignment in celestial living, not just a gift to us. Then we shall all appear before Christ at the judgment bar (Mormon 1: 86) to be assigned to some position of responsibility for which we may be worthy.

There will be millions, perhaps billions of heathen people. The heathen nations shall come forward to have part in the first resurrection. That means they will be in the millenium. Also, all who died without the law shall be there (Doctrine and Covenants 45:10). And all who have ignorantly sinned shall be there (Mosiah 1: 107; 8: 58). Someone is going to have to teach them. That is one of the things for which God is trying to develop us. That is one of the reasons for the church. The church does teach faith, repentance, baptism, and the laying on of hands. It does have a First Presidency and a Council of Twelve Apostles, but its main object is to help us grow into the likeness of God so that he can use us down through the ages of eternity, because of our devotion, our dependability, and the quality of our mind and character.

The Bible gives the parable of the talents in Luke 19: 17. One servant increased his one talent to ten talents, and when he came back to the nobleman his master commended him and said, "Have thou authority over ten cities." Christ was talking in this parable about the kingdom of God. Will God grant us authority over ten cities, or five cities, or one city? Truly, he is trying to develop us for future service to him!

The School of Marriage

At another point I was interested in that young people's conference. Several young married couples were in attendance. I was interested in the girls telling of their hopes to serve God. I was particularly pleased to find (as we are finding all over the church) young married couples who are catching the vision of the call of Christ. They are making their homes such as they may work out together their celestial education. They sense the preparation needed to become good stewards. They accept the challenge of probation and trial. They are making their marriage one in which together they dedicate their lives to serving God.

I was interested in the ceremony Brother Neff used at a wedding recently for a fine young couple here in Independence. He stressed the fact that they were joining forces that they might build into their lives, into their homes and families, the knowledge and intelligence of God, that there together they might work out their salvation. Their association was to be one where each would help the other merit a place with God and Christ in the hereafter. That is a marvelous goal for a new home.

Of course a girl's husband is to support her, but that should mean more than clothes and a house. Marriage is ordained of God as one of the best places to learn to live the kingdom of God life. I was thrilled with the hopes and plans of these young people. I think it would pay all of us to think through the plan of life, the purpose of God, where we are going, what is our goal. Many people spend their time merely earning money. We know we can't take material things with us. One hundred and fifty years from now will we regret having spent so much time on accumulating wealth here in the world? Will not such a life look rather stupid a hundred and fifty years from now? What will the standard of success be in eternity? Success there will mean that we have used our time and our talents to develop a character after the pattern Christ taught. We will have learned to serve our fellow men. This is the reason for the church.

The Right of Choice

I asked what the membership of the Stone Church is and was told it was about two thousand one hundred. Only three or four hundred come to the early service, and about eight hundred to the eleven o'clock service. That is just half of the congregation. We have our agency; we can do what we wish. We don't have to eat unless we wish, but it would be foolish not to eat. We don't have to serve God, unless we want to, but doesn't it seem very stupid not to seek spiritual strength and knowledge? I repeat, we can see his power manifest in everything. We can rebel against God, but we can't escape his sovereignty. He is in control of the world. He it is who shall rule in Paradise and in the millennium and be with his Father in celestial glory. It pays to know him and his purpose for us. We shall all face him someday, before God's bar of justice.

The Call of Christ

Ex-president Harry Truman was interviewed recently about his grandson. Some reporter asked him what he would like to have his grandson be when he grew up. Mr. Truman replied that he would like to have him become a U. S. Senator. That is not too bad, I presume. What do you want your son to be? A senator, lawyer, doctor, banker? Is that all? Many of our sons are serving in the armed forces. They will be coming home some of these months, unless we have trouble with Russia. We hope they can get another good job such as they had before they went away. We hope, too, that they will find good wives and build righteous homes. That is commendable, but if that is all they want in life, they are going to have some of the most disappointed R.L.D.S. fathers in the world. We want them to have these good things, yes, but we want them above all to earn and merit celestial life. We all must work to that end. We are not in this world many years. More and more of our R. L. D. S. homes are dedicated to training for eternity. It is a shame that so many people reject this call of Christ.

The call of Christ challenges us to build the kingdom of God. He has a great future in store for us if we are worthy. No wonder he is called "Wonderful, Counsellor, The mighty God, The everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace," "Lord of Lords, the King of kings." We often marvel at his miracles; yet, the greatest miracle is what he can do with those who love and follow him. I repeat, he calls us "friends." He asks us to sense the destiny he hopes for us. We have a right to be happy in life. We have a right to be associated with God and Christ through all the ages of eternity. That is what the lake of fire and brimstone is—the torment of being separated from God and Christ and the power of his Spirit. We may live with God, if we follow his counsel. It is a terrible error to reject an offer by the Creator.

We are born to have joy, to have power, to exercise authority—if we merit it—and use it for the betterment of mankind, as Christ used his authority and power to bless mankind. We are born to have intelligence, to choose rightly, and to have association with each other and with the Christ. We were born to live eternally. It is a marvelous truth we have in the restored gospel. It is truly a shame that so many sell out for a mess of pottage. It is a shame that so many neglect God. Even with our eyes wide open we don't seem to recognize God in all things about us. God calls us to a great future, for he controls the future. I hope we can all grow to understand the call of God and Christ a little better. He loves us with all his heart. He came, lived, and died, seeking to gain our allegiance and co-operation. He wants our association. He wants our friendship. Jesus says: "I will call you friends, for you are my friends, and you shall have an inheritance with me. I called you servants for the world's sake, and you are their servants for my sake" (Doctrine and Covenants 90: 8).

He Is Risen

SOMETHING TRANSFORMED Christianity! Here was a religious sect whose Leader claimed a oneness with God which often seemed to violate more than fulfill the orthodox expectations. Jesus' disciples regarded him with awe, even responded at great cost, yet his own closest friends failed to understand him. They slept through his agony; they denied him when he appeared to falter. When tragedy taunted their faith, to continue in identity with him seemed folly—was he conquered by captivity and death and perhaps disillusioned about the power and concern of God? Then came the promised but somehow unseen Resurrection—and substance and eternity were breathed into the hopes of those who had thought they knew Jesus. What had been vague hope which did not truly arm the disciples now became a hope demonstrated. Eyes and hearts were opened; remembered teachings came alive; glimpses of his essence sprang into focus. To know Jesus now became an undeniable invitation to be truly immersed in him for eternity. Devotion to his causes became devotion to life itself, cleansing pseudo-life of doubt and indirection and waste. Men could live in demonstrated moral certainty that life under God becomes purposeful beyond all previously feared limitations of time or circumstance. The hope of victory with Christ is beyond effective dispute now. We live under companion assurances—in the ultimate power of God, and in the warm desire of God to make his way of life known and available to all. "He is not here. He is risen . . . and ye shall see him!"

LYMAN F. EDWARDS

The Garden Tomb

IN JERUSALEM we find the love and sacrifice of Jesus is made more vivid as we visit the traditional sites.

As I walked along the path to the garden tomb I saw an oblong door, which once possessed a "rolling stone," leading into the sunken rock-cut chamber. Bending, I entered and sat down on the stone bench along the side of the wall intended for the mourners. I looked directly into the burial vault hewn in solid rock. It answered the description of a sepulcher hewn in stone, "wherein never man before was laid." The caretaker stepped outside and showed me how it was possible for John, "stooping down, and looking in" to see "the linen clothes lying" on the shelf. I came from this place thinking of the triumphant voice that exclaimed: "He is not here; he is risen."

The mob killed the body of Jesus the man, but they did not touch the Spirit of Christ, the Savior. They could not destroy the ideals for which he stood: righteousness, mercy, justice, love, tenderness, truth, and a determined concern for the individual. If these ideals are worth the price to Jesus, they are worth the price to us.

PEARL WILCOX

www.LatterDayTruth.org

THE CHRIST

THERE WAS ONE, Son of Man and Son of God, who achieved a kingdom. His existence on earth was to leave the world never the same again, for his life was one of contrast. The blazing glory of his light showed the gray shadows of sin and compromise as the ugly black they were. Only in this great light could man see himself as he really was. Only in the glory of this light was truth really manifest.

Here was a king, destined to conquer all things, born in a stable. Here was a prophet who came from . . . Nazareth. He had nowhere to lay his head, yet his was all the earth and all creatures in it. He never boasted of himself, yet few teachers have been so praised by others. He who was the Way of Righteousness, chose as friends humble fishermen and a tax collector. He who could most truly see answered the call of the blind. He who had most important business took time to minister to children. He healed the wounded, both in body and in spirit. He saw not only men's outer acts; he perceived, through the penetrating rays of his vision, men's inner reasons. For all those who tried, he had infinite patience, forgiving their weaknesses time after time. He who had most right to condemn gave only love, where most men would have made snap judgments. But, whereas most men live in fear of the hypocrite and the powerful in this world, Christ rebuked them with scathing words which shattered their outward farce.

No other one has had more courage, more understanding, more perception, more compassion, more love. No other lived as he did. No other conquered death as did he.

And because many of the people followed him, because they loved him and would have made him king, there were those who plotted against him.

They who had esteemed themselves righteous, perfect, superior to others, saw themselves in the light of Christ, as whitened sepulchers, empty shells boasting of their nothingness.

Thus, being unable to stand the truth, they endeavored to destroy the mirror which revealed it. No more had they cloak for their sin. And they would not change. They would not give up their sham for the way of love. Since they could not stand this love they tried to kill it—these children of the night, these sons of darkness. Like moles who shrink from daylight, they tried to extinguish the sun.

Thus it was that the most precious of all lives was sold for thirty pieces of silver by a professed friend who betrayed him to death with a kiss. He who could have summoned twelve legions of angels raised not one hand in his own defense.

He whose disciples promised unending devotion was left alone in his time of greatest need. While the most momentous decision of all history was in the making, his disciples slept, drugged by their own humanity.

WHAT DID HE WEIGH that night in the garden—the price of physical suffering? Was it the pain of the body he feared? Or was he grieved over the sluggardness, the ignorance, the needs of those whom he would save? Could he not foresee their inner pain, their despair and grief and loss? Did he not experience the weight of all remorse of all mankind that night in the garden? It can be bitter to see the future of those whom one loves. Perhaps he wondered if, despite his great gift, man would yet not realize what had been given him. This was his sorrow.

The great creator of all earth went calmly to his death. He was too great to retreat in fear. He was too big to lash out in anger, for this, too, he knew, was revelation of fear. He was too great to need to defend himself at all. Does a giant harm the ant? There was no fear in him—only love and quiet determination.

He held his peace against ignorance and accusation. While the priests rent their clothes in uncontrolled anger, he stood in quiet dignity. He did not stoop to explain to those who wanted no explanation. He knew their hearts. Not one word of defense spoke he to the scribes and Pharisees. In calm logic he answered the governor. Pilate saw in him the stature of greatness and would have no part.

Then the Christ was sent to Herod. Herod, who was hoping for a magic trick from the one who would that day conquer death, was jealous because of his own lack of kingliness and mocked the King of all the world. Thus he who was ruler of men's hearts, who was to be crowned with all glory, was that day crowned with thorns. He was robed in purple—this real King of the Jews. And he, most worthy of reverence, was spat upon by those who would not understand. The Roman soldiers saw him as a crackpot—they who trusted in strength of arm knew nought of strength of spirit. Even Herod could not hold him.

So, only when all the people could not find him guilty, only after Pilate washed his hands and sought to release him—then it was that they proclaimed he should be crucified. In ugliness they cried against his beauty. The life of the murderer was saved so that the life of the Savior of the world would be condemned to death.

How blind the ways of men! No wonder he said on his way to crucifixion, "Weep not for me, but for yourselves and your children."

He walked the lonely road to Calvary—alone with all the burden of man's ignorance and sin upon him—thinking of those whom he would have gathered, but they would not.

I wondered how he was so strong to withstand the nails and the agony. And yet I marvel that he could be so strong as to care so passionately for all mankind.

When most men would have been engulfed in self-pity he thought of his mother and appointed one to care for her. When he could have most easily complained to his Father, he prayed psalms of praise. When he would have been justified in feeling spiteful he said, "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do."

But the crucifixion had to be hurried. The Jews had religious rituals to prepare for, and bodies could not be left on the crosses. Breaking legs to hasten death was necessary when there were "holy" days approaching. How amazed they were to find that the spirit of the Christ had already departed.

For they did not really kill him. He gave his life. When he was ready and his work was finished, he laid down his life himself. They didn't take it.

Only then did the soldiers who had cast lots for his garments realize they had bartered for the cloak of the Son of God. The heavens did not remain silent. The testimony of thunder and lightnings and earthquakes shook with power the trembling hearts of the scurrying Pharisees.

There were some who knew. They feared him even after death, for they had understood his words of resurrection all along. That is why they appointed guards to watch his body.

It was the men who did not follow Jesus in his day—Nicodemus the night visitor, Joseph the secret disciple—who cared for his body in the night of his apparent defeat.

HE AROSE as he had promised.

And his own disciples, blinded by darkness and despair, did not know him. Even those who touched him did not at first believe. Only later did they begin to understand the meaning of his resurrection.

He didn't buy mankind a free ticket to eternity. He had power over death because he had power over life. Only such great love could make man sorry. Only such great caring could make man want to change. Only such great sacrifice could make man seek the Way of Life. It is a great crime that many today do not know how much he loves them. His was victory through sacrifice, triumph through defeat, life through death, kingship through service, love against hate. Only those who do as he did have any guarantee. It is a pity we do not know him.

I wonder if today we sleep, drugged by our own humanity, while the most momentous decision of history is being made. I wonder if we walk with him and do not know. I wonder if we, too, crucify him and know not what we do.

By Arlene Groesbeck

Behold the Son of Man

SIMON WALKED HURRIEDLY, giving little heed to others along the way. He kept his eyes directed to the path ahead, for it was not smooth, and he was somewhat wearied. He sighed as he thought again of the inconvenience that had been put upon him.

If he had not been so late arriving in the city the day before, he could have found lodging there. Instead he had been forced to spend the night in a near-by village. It was a keen disappointment to Simon not to find room within Jerusalem after traveling the great distance from his home in Cyrene. For many years he had desired and planned that he might come here for the feast of the Passover. He could not help feeling impatient with anything that caused delay. Glancing up, he saw that at last he was in sight of the city gates.

For a moment he paused. This he wanted to remember well. As he stood his thoughts returned to last night. . . . He had purchased a lamb at the market and taken it to the priests for a sacrifice. Though the light had been faint he had felt overcome with the marvelous beauty of the temple. The ceremony had been impressive . . . such as he had never beheld before. So anxious he was to see it by day—the temple, the markets, the many things of the beloved city! And it was already near the third hour of the morning.

Many visitors, like himself, were moving toward the city. There came a surge of exhilaration from touching shoulders and meeting glances. His weariness lifted, and he breathed deeply. But suddenly, when he was only a short space from the gates, his steps were halted. Those in front of him stopped and began scattering off to either side. He saw, coming out of the city, some sort of mob.

www.LatterDayTruth.org

Simon hated the shouts and cries and wails that burst against his ears. It was unbelievable that he had suddenly been put in this unpleasant position.

There were guards, priests, and a crowd of people. As they came toward him Simon realized he must act quickly or he would be caught in their midst. Moving swiftly he managed to clear himself. Curious, he stood watching them pass.

Here was all manner of people. Some had wild frenzied looks. Others wore hard faces, as set for duty. And among these were the sad, stricken ones. Whereas the front of the mob had approached rapidly, the latter part passed slowly by. Here were many of the reluctant ones. Among them, near the very back, was one slowest of all. Suddenly Simon realized why.

He walked with a cross upon his shoulder. His steps were so short and so slow that he hardly moved at all. Simon turned from it. This was of no matter to him. He would think of the day before him. He must be on his way. But as he started he was stopped abruptly by a hand upon his arm.

"You! Help this man carry the cross. He causes delay."

Stunned, Simon glared at the centurion who had laid hold on him. His hand gripped tighter.

"Well, what do you wait for?" the voice bellowed. Resentment burned within Simon.

"I am a pilgrim from Cyrene . . . here for the passover . . . I . . ."

"I inquire naught of you . . . but of your arm!" With these sharp words the centurion pushed him beside the cross that dragged the ground behind the bent figure. Angry words came to Simon as he straightened and boldly faced the centurion.

"I will not . . ." But orders had been given. The cross was lifted, and before Simon could speak further, he was shoved beneath it.

IT FELL ON HIM with a jarring blow. He tried to shift it from his shoulder and to slide from under it, but the soldiers held it in place. As they moved on there was nothing he could do but follow.

He held back as much as possible, letting himself be almost pulled. With each step the crude cross tore roughly into Simon's flesh, and he made every effort to escape its sting. He hated the shouts and cries and wails that burst against his ears. It was unbelievable that he had suddenly been put in this unpleasant position.

Why had he been so unfortunate as to meet this mob and to be chosen from all those standing near to do such a task?

When this great holiday was before him and all Jerusalem waited . . . here he was going away from the city, bearing the end of the cross of some criminal. With a shrug of contempt Simon looked, for the first time, directly at the one in front of him.

It was not a small figure nor one appearing to be so thin as to be weak. At first glance Simon wondered that this man seemed to have such little strength, for the shape and form of his body suggested a certain power. Could it be that he only pretended to fall beneath the cross—desiring help. Simon leaned over that he might see the side of the man's face.

The lines of the cheek . . . as though cut by sorrow. The marks on the brow . . . as by striking. The moisture that fell from the face. Simon knew. This look was not feigned. Here was one who had given his utmost . . . and perhaps more. Simon's inspection was interrupted as the company slowed down. They had come to a hill.

The one in front of him did not hesitate. But his bent figure became less steady and his steps less sure as they began the climb. How could he even stay upon his feet? So extreme was his effort and yet how calm . . . Simon reached up, took hold of the cross, and forced all the weight he could back upon himself. The Man turned his face and smiled at Simon—not with his lips, for they seemed to have no movement in them, but with his eyes. As he lifted them to Simon a shadow left and light came from them. In this they seemed untouched by suffering. And they spoke of relief and joy at this unexpected kindness. It was the richest thanks Simon had ever received . . . and for such a little thing. Only a moment was the Man's face turned upon him. But it was one of those moments that have no relationship to time at all. With added strength Simon continued up the hill, wondering within himself.

What was the cause of the great signs of suffering upon this man? What crime had he done? How could one being led in such manner show such feeling, or one of unlawful deeds possess such eyes of intensity? And of what source was His power, for his gaze had invaded Simon and had gone to his very being. Puzzling these strange things within him, Simon was caught by surprise when of a sudden they stopped.

IT WAS THE TOP of the hill. Simon felt a great desire to go on. He did not want to stop. Though he had fought against taking up this task, now he was reluctant to let it be taken from him. But this was the spot. And there was no patience in the soldiers. The cross was lifted and placed upon the ground.

The Man before him straightened, his shoulders firm, his head high and inclined toward heaven. Sharp orders were given. The soldiers' answers were their looks of stone. So many faces were turned toward this spot. So many voices let loose their passion. Struck with horror, Simon started down the hill.

He must be gone from here. As quickly as possible. He pushed his way through the crowd, stumbling now and then but never stopping. He did not want to see anything—until he was far from this hill and the gates were again before him.

But it seemed that he could move only very slowly and with great effort. It was as if he were being held back, pressed down. He was breathing rapidly and tiring beyond all reason. What . . . ? Bewildered he stopped.

THEN HE FELT IT. On his shoulder . . . where the cross had lain . . . the weight was still there. He moved his arm up and down. His flesh must have been torn more than he thought. But when he rubbed it he found no scars. And try as he might he could not remove the feel of that weight. Panicked, Simon began to walk.

He knew it was not far to the gates. If he could get within them, then everything would be all right. But with each step the weight increased and his strength was leaving. He was frightened. This was not an old emotion to Simon, and it frightened him more to find this fear within him. The gates were very near now. He had to keep going, but he knew he could not. Again Simon stopped.

What was he to do? If he could not make it to the city . . . then what? No thoughts would come. All he could think of was that which pressed heavily upon his shoulder. Suddenly he knew what he must do.

He turned. Though it was difficult, he began to walk. He must go back to the hill. He knew not why, for there was nothing he could do there. Yet he had to go. It took great effort for him to retrace his steps, for the weight was yet there.

He came to the foot of the hill, but he did not pause. He began to push his way upward through the people who were clustered there. Halfway up, Simon realized he was too late. It had been done. Simon stood quietly, feeling unable to move closer.

Soldiers were gathered near the middle cross; they were casting lots for His garments. Soft words came from the cross on their behalf.

"Father, forgive them; for they know not what they do."

And Simon marveled at the voice. Who was this man who spoke in such a way? He had to know. He would find someone to ask. Just then shouts of disapproval rose from the crowd. A sign was being nailed upon His cross.

"JESUS OF NAZARETH, THE KING OF THE JEWS." Jesus . . . king of the Jews . . . Simon had never heard of him. What did it mean—king? Those with wild looks who stood about did not like the sign. With sharp tongues they taunted Him.

"Thou that destroyest the temple and buildest it again in three days, save thyself."

"If thou be the son of God, come down from the cross." And they shook their heads in hatred.

Son of God . . . come down from the cross . . . What strange revilement! Simon moved closer, wanting to hear Jesus' answer. But He gave no bitter words back to them. Nor did he show any desire that he might come down from the cross, though there was that strange feeling that He could well have done so, had he wished. But if he could, then why didn't he? Because he chose not to? It did not make sense, and Simon struggled to understand it.

When the cries of the people began to die the priests lifted their voices. "If he be the king of Israel, let him come down from the cross, and we will believe him."

"He trusted in God, let him deliver him now; if he will save him, let him save him. For he said, I am the Son of God."

"He saved others, himself he cannot save."

IT WAS CLEAR that the priests spoke to justify themselves and to stir up the people. Simon looked to the cross, thinking that surely now He would show his power . . . if he had it, for they had even promised they would believe him. And their words had such a sting to them. It would be good to show them as fools. But His eyes filled with such compassion that Simon was ashamed of his thoughts.

"He saved others"—the priests' words. Simon wanted to call upon Him now to save him from . . . from the confusion in his mind, the pressure upon his shoulder, and . . . and from something that he . . . he knew not. These thoughts were taken from Simon as he heard the voice of one of the men who had been crucified beside Him.

"If thou art the Christ, save thyself and save us." These were mocking words of ridicule. The man on the other side answered him in rebuke.

"Dost thou not fear God, seeing thou art under the same condemnation, and this man is just and hath not sinned." Then he spoke to Jesus, "Remember me when thou comest into thy kingdom." When Jesus answered that same light came into his eyes.

"This day thou shalt be with me in paradise."

The more the Man spoke the closer Simon drew to the cross. Each word put a question in his mind and added a beat in his heart. And he marveled to himself. Close by was the great city that he had traveled so far to visit. Held by something which he could not fathom, here was Simon on this small hill. Yet it seemed that the happenings here were far more important than anything that had ever happened in that great city. So deep in thought was Simon that he barely heard His next words.

"Woman, behold thy son. Behold thy mother."

The two he spoke to were in front of a small group. It was clear they had been very dear to Him. These two could surely answer Simon's questions. He would go to them later . . . Startled, Simon looked up at the sky.

A THICK DARKNESS was settling down from above. All faces were turned upward in amazement and concern. Was some terrible storm approaching? Many of those who had been so bold in their ridicule fled, their faces distorted with fear. It was best that there be quiet. No mocking words. relief. It was best that there be quiet. No mocking words.

For now there was upon His face the depth of pain. And no light was there, for his eyes were closed. As the darkness thickened great shadows engulfed the hilltop, veiling His face. Simon regretted that he could no longer see Jesus clearly. But he knew it was best so. Exhausted beyond standing, Simon fell upon a rock.

He was acutely aware of the pressure upon his shoulder. He could be gone from this place if it were not for this

The cross is a reminder of the most mature, the most unselfish, the greatest decision ever made

The Great Decision

PERHAPS NO ONE completely understands the significance of the Atonement and the Crucifixion which made it effective. Because it is an elusive thing and my finite mind cannot comprehend it, I have preferred not to think on it. Recently, however, I heard a statement that brought new meaning to this oft-discussed but little understood high light of Christian history.

In a radio sermon, a minister spoke of the greatness of Christ in allowing inferior men to put him to death when he possessed the power to save himself. I had wondered why the plan of salvation would not have been as effective if he, like Moses, had just gone away into the mountains and never returned. The gory end to which he came seemed, somehow, an inappropriate finale to his earthly life.

This new idea brought to mind some interesting counterparts. I thought of Schweitzer who had chosen to expend his remarkable abilities on people who could never give back to the human family a fraction of what he has invested in them. And they do not appreciate in the fullest sense what he is doing for them. They know only that his is the healing hand and that if they go to him with their leprosy-scarred and hernia-distorted bodies he will help them. They do not know of the years of training that have gone into making this man able to ease their suffering. They cannot realize what comforts he has given up to minister to them in their steaming insect-ridden jungle. They do not know that, had he stayed in Europe, he would have been richly repaid for the services he gives them free. They can never know the quality of greatness that walks among them, because their understanding is limited to the small primitive society into which they have been born.

The world lost more in skill and talent when the five missionaries of Gates of Splendor fame were killed by the savages of Equador whom they sought to help than all the Aucas put together have ever possessed. Yet these devoted young men went eagerly on this mission, knowing well that they might meet with the fate they did. Those who killed them have no concept of the power for good they destroyed with their lances.

SO IT WAS with the inhabitants of Jerusalem in Christ's time. Some of them were restored to health by him. Others were miraculously fed. But the healing and food he wanted most to give them, they would not accept. None of them—not even his disciples—really understood or appreciated this Son of God who dwelt among them. The chief priests were distrustful because he didn't conform to the pattern of religious practices which they had built up through the years and which served so neatly to keep them in positions of prestige. They were not interested in the way to eternal life that he offered; they wished only to preserve things as they were. Because he threatened to upset their morés, to reduce all men to the status of brothers, they had to get rid of him.

Looking back on the scene, we know that all the scribes and Pharisees and chief priests that ever walked the streets of Jerusalem weren't worth one Christ, and he knew it, too. Yet he allowed them to engineer his death. He allowed Roman soldiers to nail him to a cross, although the whole Roman empire was nothing compared to him. He knew that the men he had hand-picked to help him in his work were weak and frightened children in this time of crisis; even they did not appreciate what he was doing. Here was a great decision by a great man: that lesser men—foolish, selfish, ungrateful men—be permitted to do with him as they would when he could have called all heaven to his aid.

This has remained the mark of true greatness through the years since he set the supreme example. The Christians who died in Rome were worth infinitely more than the bloodthirsty spectators who witnessed their death. The good men and women of every generation who have perished for their ideals have done so at the hands of their inferiors. Today has its martyrs, too. In government, in education, in the church the great are often figuratively crucified by the unthinking, selfish people they seek to serve.

YET, DESPITE THE SEEMING futility of all this sacrifice, something of the purpose lives on. The persecutors eventually die, and enough of the onlookers remember what happened to reflect on it and talk about it. Then their children talk about it, and finally the defeated becomes the victorious.

I still do not understand fully the significance of that first Easter, but I do have a new appreciation for its Central Figure. I can better understand why he prayed as he did in the garden; on the surface, the bitter cup hardly seemed worth the drinking. I can understand, too, why he said, from the cross, "Father, forgive them, they know not what they do." Truly, they didn't know—their minds were too little and their natures too selfish for them to comprehend.

The cross, for me, is not just a symbol of man's key to salvation but a reminder of the most mature, the most unselfish, the greatest decision ever made.

NAOMI RUSSELL

Have Ye Received His Image in Your Countenance?

ONCE AGAIN WE APPROACH the time of year which reminds us of the eternal gifts bestowed upon man. We read with humility and thankfulness how salvation was created through the love and sacrifice of our Lord. In our latter day the gospel was restored at this same season of the year. With the resurrection of our Lord and the restoration of his church, what do we lack toward the building of perfection? We have the promise and the pattern for eternal life, and within each individual lies the reception of these gifts.

The image of Christ in our lives reflects the pure word of God. Maintaining this image deep within us requires a devotion to purpose beyond the ordinary, a governing of the will to exclude matters foreign to the personality of Christ. We must strive to place the life of Jesus firmly in our minds so that subconsciously we will follow his behavior. It demands a clear picture of the eternal proportion of things to discern the valuable from the less valuable and then to have the fortitude to discard wisely. The words of the angels to the women at the sepulcher, "Why seek ye the living among the dead," places the emphasis on our Lord Jesus as we should know him. He should be very much alive in our every thought and action, and we should consistently aspire to emulate him.

When a great actor wishes to portray a character he reads all the available material written about the person. He studies his environment, the customs of the times in which he lived, and everything that will add light to his conception of the personality involved. When a musician wishes to reproduce music composed by a former master, he studies scores; he tries to procure the original if possible. He becomes acquainted with the life of the composer and considers the influences of people and surroundings upon his music. He knows the instruments used at that time. No detail is too minute nor any bit of information too trivial.

Our lives have been enriched by seeing and hearing the efforts of our artists. They have brought life from inanimate words and notes and have helped us to visualize readily the gifts which would otherwise lie dormant.

If we, as Christians, would daily study and meditate upon some phase of Jesus' life or ministry with the purpose in our minds of reflecting his image, we would, as true artists, become like him. If we could assimilate his many lessons of love, forgiveness, truth, generous inclination, justness, reason, and common understanding, our spiritual refinement for God's work would be well in progress.

A PLAIN YOUNG MOTHER sat with her wiggly four-year-old outside a drugstore waiting for father to bring some ice cream. Having explored the dashboard on the car for all possible buttons moving or otherwise, his mind and fingers were once more seeking. At random, the mother directed his thoughts to the very beautiful lady on the poster in the window. As she pointed out the lovely features, the boy grew thoughtful and with a positive tone said, "She is not nearly as pretty as you are." Amused and yet interested, the plain mother asked why he thought that, for it was obvious the statement was false. With great sincerity the child said, "She has no love in her face." Children see and express themselves so clearly. The woman privileged to be a mother, who considers this gift in its true light, imperceptibly but surely reflects to her small children the image of God through her love.

As we look upon Jesus' life, if we merely pause to admire the beauty and wisdom found therein our reading is in vain. We must reconcile within ourselves the celestial with the terrene and raise our mundane lives toward perfection. Jesus lived with people like us and understood the nature of man. He understood temptation and how carefully Satan led men down. Yet He commanded us to be perfect. Outwardly this seems unreasonable and impossible, but when we read of the examples recorded in his time, we know that when one is born spiritually of God there is no limit to the change for good.

Zaccheus was a sinner, a rich publican, yet when he understood and received Jesus into his life he was imbued with the qualities which he previously lacked—honesty and generous inclinations.

We know only that Mary Magdalene was healed of seven devils, but there was a change which compelled her to follow Jesus. She, with Joanna, Suzanne, and many others, ministered with their substance. They received his teachings and no doubt reflected him.

TODAY WE DO NOT HAVE the advantage of Jesus' physical presence. Even if he inhabited our earth now, he would probably be known to comparatively few people. However, he has given us his spirit of enlightenment and the history of a life never before or since surpassed. We are cognizant of the simplicity and wisdom of his advice and yet we make it complex. We cover pure truth with extrinsic differences, and imperceptibly our image of Jesus slips out of focus.

How many times have we beheld the beauty of the sleeping child. Wordsworth has written:

*But trailing clouds of glory do we come
From God, who is our home:
Heaven lies about us in our infancy.*

Truly the small child is close to God. His faith is simple and unbounded, his innocence complete. We are advised that "to be learned is good, if they hearken unto the counsels of God" (II Nephi 6: 61). So we increase in knowledge and add to our faith. But we are not insulated from our surroundings, and we either dominate or are dominated by them. With the perfect lessons of Jesus to follow, we can be sure of being right although the immediate results may seem a direct contradiction to success as the world visualizes it.

The parable of the good Samaritan teaches us a strong lesson of love and generosity, but many times we regard it as an incident in a faraway country at a faraway time. Yet in this day of many prejudices we play the role of either the Samaritan or the Levite—not as dramatically perhaps, but nevertheless with the same persuasions motivating our action. Does custom lie upon us with a weight, or do we see Christ's countenance through the emergency at hand?

www.LatterDayTruth.org

Are we Marthas or Marys? The good housekeeper will sympathize with Martha who carried the burden of preparing for Jesus. We are told she was "cumbered about much serving." How many times have we lost the true feeling of hospitality for those whom we love in the labor of preparation. Certainly we must have things in readiness, but we must plan within the limits of our energies. Martha was careful and troubled about many things. Mary had "chosen that good part which should not be taken away from her." We keep Jesus' image when we give those things of worth our first consideration.

We read of the parable of the rich man who stored his fruits and goods in great barns. He was prepared to retire in ease and comfort, but death came to him that night. Are we pursuing the material things of the world to the exclusion of the objectives of the kingdom? We cannot store riches and enjoy them any more than we can store happiness and at a certain time bring it out and enjoy it. "Your Father who is in heaven, knoweth that ye have need of these things. . . . Therefore seek ye to bring forth the kingdom of God, and all these things shall be added unto you." The image of our Lord is brighter when we place our trust and confidence in God's ways.

WHEN THERE IS gratitude in our hearts, we have a kindness awakened within us toward our benefactor for what we have received. It is recorded that as Jesus entered a certain village, ten men who were lepers stood afar off. They lifted up their voices and asked for mercy. Jesus said, "Go show yourselves unto the priests." And as they went, they were cleansed. One leper when he saw he was healed turned back to give thanks. The other nine went on their way. The baseness of their ingratitude appalls us, and yet are we joyfully grateful for our comparatively smooth-running lives? We become placid in our own good comforts. We begin to think we are worthy of everything we have. Gratitude is deep within the heart, but it requires expression by either word or deed; otherwise it can be easily stifled by neglect and forgetfulness. We reflect Christ when we appreciate the gifts of God and man and give expression to that kindly spirit which moves within us.

Over all the teachings and examples given us through Jesus, a prevailing tone sounds—the limitless power of God. Blind men were made to see; the deaf to hear; the dead were raised; devils were rebuked; stormy seas were made calm; multitudes were fed with five loaves and two fishes; personalities were transformed; and worldly authority was confounded. And in climax the resurrection of our Lord stands unprecedented.

God's power through us should not be limited by us. Our vision of the eternal virtues should expand and grow through our lifetime until we have reached that condition of which Paul wrote, "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me."

Consider the ministry that would have been lost if Peter had said, "I am too ignorant and too short tempered. I lack too much to be of any use to you."

Moses was hesitant because of his speech difficulty when the Lord called him to accept leadership. Can we imagine Hebrew history without the earthly guidance of Moses?

If Joseph Smith had limited God's power through him, we would not have our restored church.

In our day, if Brother Elbert A. Smith had not trusted God's vision and dwelt upon his lack of formal education, our loss in ministry and leadership would indeed have been great.

Being cognizant of our shortcomings is necessary and wise, but limiting our ability to overcome them through lack of trust is not worthy. Let us daily study the reasoning and example of our Lord that we may better understand the purpose of his life and that we may reflect the eternal virtues of his kingdom.

"There is no flesh that can dwell in the presence of God, save it be through the merits, and mercy, and grace of the holy Messiah."—II Nephi 1: 73.

"Have ye received his image in your countenances?"—Alma 3: 28.

Behold the Son of Man

(Continued from page 12)

strange hindrance. Why was he being kept here? There was nothing he could do. And he fain would have his shoulder rid of the weight, for he was filled with weariness. He leaned forward, resting his head upon the rock.

He did not sleep, nor was he fully awake. He was in that state where neither is possible, where the body knows rest and the mind can think or not think as it chooses, and thereby obtain some order. One, two, three? . . . He knew not the exact hours that had passed when he heard the cry.

"My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?"

Pierced as by a shock, Simon stood. The words had been charged with such force of anguish . . . not loud nor wild . . . but as if mingled with a plea from all the heavens. One near by was offering Him vinegar from a sponge. But some of the insensitive ones still lingered and they cried, "Let him be. Let us see whether Elias will come to save him."

The cloud around His face lifted a little, and Simon saw the suffering . . . not just earthly, but so immense that Simon's heart staggered within him. He knelt.

That this Man should endure such, and he, Simon, was not able to bear a small discomfort upon his shoulder—how very little and weak he had been! How ashamed he felt! He would not ask that it be removed. He would gladly carry it and do all that he could for . . . for Jesus. Then His voice came again.

"Father, it is finished. Thy will is done." No cry was this, but a great proclamation of triumph. And the utmost of peace and power came when he said, "Into thy hands I commend my spirit."

THERE CAME THEN a great upheaval of the earth. And Simon clung to the rock that he might not be shaken. "Truly this man was the Son of God," cried the awed voice of the centurion. Silently Simon repeated these words with conviction.

When the earth quieted Simon arose. His heart leaped within him, for the weight was gone. His shoulder had been freed the very moment that . . . Filled with wonder Simon lifted his eyes to the cross.

A strange understanding flowed through him. This had not been just a death. It had been an act of heaven that had so wondrously affected him. Oh, how Simon longed to know more . . . and more. Of one thing he was certain, he would spend his life trying to learn just what it was that had been accomplished this day upon the cross by JESUS OF NAZARETH, THE KING OF THE JEWS.

Reluctantly Simon left the hill and went toward Jerusalem.

Nursing School Plans New Method

Miss Lola Tordoff, R. N., second from right, instructs two student nurses in patient care. The students nurses are Betty and Shirley Worthington of Alpena, Michigan.

Block System Will Combine Study with Actual Experience

STUDENTS AT THE "SAN" School of Nursing will begin a new system of learning in May.

This is called the "block system." According to Miss Vida Butterworth, educational director, the plan works this way:

Freshman students will spend most of their first year studying basic sciences—social science, medical science, biological and physical sciences.

Then they will begin rotating through four areas called "blocks." There will be an obstetrics block, a medical block, a surgery block, and an operating room block. Each block of study will last thirteen weeks and will be a combination of classroom study and practical experience in the hospital.

At the end of this series of block studies, the nurses begin their studies on affiliation at near-by hospitals in St. Louis and Kansas City. They will study thirteen weeks at a psychopathic hospital, eight weeks at a tuberculosis hospital, and thirteen weeks at a children's hospital. This "affiliation" training also includes a quarter of advanced medical and surgical nursing at the "San."

The last eight weeks of the nurses's training is called "senior assignment" and offers the student nurse a choice of where she would like to study during her last weeks as a student. She can choose between operating room, surgical floor, medical floor, obstetrical floor, orthopedic floor, and pediatric floor.

"This new system has a big advantage over our previous methods," Miss Butterworth said. "During the period of block study the students will study one area of nursing at a time, and the classroom study can be done at the same time as the practical work out in the wards of the hospital. Now, when a girl is studying obstetrics in the classroom, she will also be working on the obstetric floor of the hospital—she can practice what she learns at the same time she is learning. In the past, classroom learning and practical experience in any one area could be months apart.

The "Block System" of instruction will allow student nurses to study concurrently the same phase of nursing they are practicing in the hospital wards. Here Miss Tordoff discusses a problem with some freshman students. What the students learn here in class they will practice soon in the hospital.

Student nurses from the "San" School of Nursing arrive at a St. Louis hospital to begin "affiliation."

"Another new feature of the system will be time for observation in all departments of the hospital. Students will observe for ten hours in each of fourteen departments—from the switchboard to the admitting office. This is to give students a better appreciation of the work done in each department. And it should help them improve their personal relationships with other hospital workers by gaining an appreciation of the work each person does," Miss Butterworth said.

The nursing program is spread over a three-year period. Students have only four weeks vacation each year. They will be able to miss only a few days of any one block of training without having to start the entire block over.

Student nurses who began their freshman year in September, 1957, will be the first class to study under the block system. They will begin rotating through the first four blocks of obstetrics, medical, surgery, and operating room about May 19.

"We expect the program to work very well and the girls are certainly looking forward to it," Miss Butterworth said. "Our junior and senior students who will not get to study under the block system are jealous of the freshman," she chuckled.

ROGER YARRINGTON

"San" Surveyor Reports Findings

School of Nursing Is Inspected In Accreditation Review

MISS MARIAN MILLER, surveyor for the National League of Nursing Surveyors, reported recently on her four-day inspection of the "San" School of Nursing.

Miss Miller's organization is the accrediting agency for professional schools of nursing. Her preliminary report was heard by representatives of the Board of Trustees, hospital administration, school faculty, and student officers.

The report will be submitted to an accrediting board in New York in June. At that time the School of Nursing's accreditation will be reviewed toward renewal. At present the "San" school is one of nine fully accredited nursing schools in Missouri. There are twenty-seven schools of nursing in the state. The School of Nursing has been accredited for three years. The present inspection was its first since it became accredited.

In her report, Miss Miller discussed the school's philosophy, history, organization, curriculum, student activities, faculty, housing and classroom accommodations.

She mentioned in particular the excellent co-operation she had received from the school officials in gathering information for her report. They made it easy for her to gather all the information she needed, she said.

Generally the report seemed most favorable. She emphasized the sincere and personal interest in the school by the hospital administration and the Board of Trustees. She also pointed out that the downward trend in withdrawals from the school is "quite good" and far below the national averages.

Miss Miller emphasized that her job is not to evaluate the school. Rather, she is a reporter. The Board of Accreditation evaluates the school on the basis of her report. The board is made up of five members representing all areas of the United States and all areas of nursing training.

There are currently 358 accredited schools of nursing in the United States.

ROGER YARRINGTON

April 27
Is School of Nursing Day

Graceland Gazette

■ The Yellow Jackets finished their basketball season with a victory over Tarkio College, at Tarkio, with a score of 83-75. The boys seemed to be in their best form of the year and played a very good game. Duane Thomas of Independence, playing his last game for Graceland, scored 37 points for what is believed to be an all-time Graceland scoring record for one game. Gary Hannaman from Kansas City, Kansas, scored 18 points, with Ken Green of Rembrandt, Iowa, and Floyd Ayers of Eden, Idaho, scoring 12 and 10 points respectively.

■ Sunday, March 7, the first service of the new religious unit, "The Latter Day Saints Have a Unique Church Polity," was held in the Student Center. Dr. Roy Chevillie was in charge of the meeting which lasted about forty-five minutes. The meeting then was divided into the Ten Divisional Groups of the campus for short meetings.

■ Representing Graceland at the Thirteenth National Conference on Higher Education in Chicago, Illinois, March 2-5, were Dr. William S. Gould, acting president; James White, vice-president-treasurer; and Ray Zinser, sociologist.

Dr. Gould also attended the Thirty-eighth Annual Convention of the American Association of Junior Colleges at Grand Rapids, Michigan, that same week.

■ A large crowd gathered in the Student Center, Saturday evening, March 8, to enjoy a "Jam Session" sponsored by the Social Activities Planning Committee and presented by members of the Graceland student body. Dale Henson from Carpentersville, Illinois, was master of ceremonies for the program. Several combo groups presented lively musical numbers. Gerry Westwood from Independence, Missouri, entertained the audience with various impersonations. A comedy act was presented by Bruce Clark from Baker, California, and DeWayne Williams, a '57 alum from Phoenix, Arizona. Solo numbers were given by Gary Oatsvall of St. Clair Shores, Michigan; Carol Taylor of Denver, Colorado; and Jo Solmonson of Ortonville, Minnesota. Ann Kelley from San Juan, Puerto Rico, accompanied several of the numbers on her marimba.

■ The Graceland-Lamoni Orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Harold Neal, presented an Orchestral Concert Sunday afternoon, March 9, at the high school in Bethany, Missouri. Soloists for the program were Eleanor Putnam from Council Bluffs, Iowa, harpist, and Helen Bruch from Cameron, Missouri, bassoonist. Helen was accompanied by Janet Graham from Independence, Missouri. The concert was presented through the patronage of the Shroyer Music Company at Bethany.

The orchestra's membership is made up of about thirty Graceland students and fifteen musicians from Lamoni, Bethany, and Mount Ayr.

■ The closing of the varsity winter sports at Graceland has ushered in the spring activities. Members of the track team, under the supervision of Coach R. A. Carter, have been working out earnestly and are already entering into track meets. The tennis and golf teams have also entered the sports scene and will open their seasons with intersquad meets on April 24. Baseball, a new interscholastic venture for Graceland, will begin soon; already several games have been scheduled.

■ Five members of the Graceland-Lamoni Orchestra traveled to Chariton, Iowa, March 13 and 14, where they participated in the Rogers and Hammerstein musical production of "Annie Get Your Gun." This program was produced by the Aeolian Singers and the Chariton High School Music Department. Mr. Neal, who is conductor of the Graceland-Lamoni Orchestra, took with him the following people to participate in the production: Channing Oakman, sophomore, violin; Jim Husset, freshman, bass viol; Moyne Schofield, public relations secretary and '57 graduate, cello; and Margaret Elliot, senior in Lamoni High School, viola. Mr. Neal played the violin for this production.

■ Spring vacation at the college has been returned to the original date which was printed in the catalog. After the flu epidemic last fall, the vacation was shortened. Further study and adjustments have made it possible to again schedule the vacation to begin on Friday, April 4, at 4:00 p.m. and end Sunday, April 13, at 4:00 p.m.

■ This has been an active season for the basketball players in the Women's Recreational Association at Graceland. Competition has been close and keen among the basic residence units forming the teams. Here is the record up to the present time. Games are still being played.

Teams	Won	Lost
Herald Hall	9	1
Small Residences	6	4
Second Floor Walker	4	4
First Floor Walker	4	5
Homesteaders (Married Group)	3	6
Patroness Hall	3	6
Third Floor Walker	3	6

Yvonne Burgmeier from Los Angeles, California, has been leading in shooting scores with a total of 79 points out of 9 games. Following is Donna Lou Pyper from Independence, Missouri, and Meredith Bourland from Los Angeles, California, with 69 points each. Other high scorers have been Jeri Madden, Leon, Iowa; Mary Lea Hubbard, Woodbine, Iowa; and Marjorie Jensen, Missouri Valley, Iowa.

Letters

Recovers from Accident Injuries

On July 16 I was returning with my daughter, Mrs. Phyllis Cornish, Mrs. Coral Davies, and her daughter, Heather, from the Saskatoon conference. A short distance out of Wilkie we were hit by a truck and knocked down a twelve-foot embankment. The others were not as severely injured as I, but they did have cuts, bruises, and shock; I was not expected to live. Elder Myron Cornish and my son, Vandy, administered to me, and although I was only partly conscious I heard Brother Cornish say, "In God's due time you will be healed." I kept repeating this to myself during the months required for my recovery. Too much in pain to sleep, I would pray throughout the night. I had administration several times, and each time I received a blessing. The doctor was amazed at how well I recovered. Eventually I was given crutches and told to walk; it was difficult, but with God's help I did.

I am grateful to all my friends for their prayers. Above all, I thank God for his goodness. I want to do whatever he has for me to do now. I'll be happy to hear from anyone who cares to write to me.

MRS. ANNE E. DAVIES

2053 Cypress
Vancouver, British Columbia

Note of Thanks

I am writing to thank the Saints and my friends for their gifts of money, flowers, and cards on my ninetieth birthday. I appreciate these remembrances very much.

MRS. MARY M. ARMSTRONG
Scarborough, Ontario

www.LatterDayTruth.org

Large Pica Type Bible, No. 714

This King James Version offers easy readability with its large self-pronouncing pica type. It is printed on Indo-text paper, thus avoiding excessive bulk. Contains helpful geographical index supplemented by 16 maps in color, a frontispiece, three illustrations in full color, presentation page and family register. Bound in black genuine leather with gold-stamped, overlapping covers, gold edges, one silk marker. 1256 pages. Size, 6½ by 9¼ by 1 inch. Available with thumb index for $1.00 additional. Name imprinted in gold, 75c. World Publishing Company

$9.50

Box 477
Independence, Missouri

Box 382
Guelph, Ontario, Canada

Church in Wood River Near Miss by Tornado

The tornado that ripped through parts of Missouri, Illinois, and Indiana last December 18 passed dangerously near the church in Wood River, Illinois. The center of the funnel struck an area just behind the church building, destroying five garages along the alley back of it and demolishing three walls of a brick home at the rear. Damage to the church was small —two broken windows in the basement and a severed electric cable.

The pictures above show the collapsed garages (left) and the damaged dwelling (right). The back of the church is visible in the second photograph.

Photos by Lane W. Harold

Departments Show Progress

(Continued from page 2)

Planning for Music in Church Architecture, is now being written.

Other large projects of the department during the past months have been the production of the Messiah broadcast, leadership in thirteen institutes, planning and directing two summer youth music camps, and furnishing leadership for the Community Music Association which sponsors the Independence Symphony Orchestra.

Franklyn S. Weddle, director of the Department of Music, mentioned in this report that his travels reveal a general rise in the quality of music used for worship in the various congregations. He expressed the feeling, however, that continued progress would require more institutes in local areas and more workers in the department to help in this work.

Dr. Charles F. Church, Jr., director of the Department of Radio, noted in his report that there are now approximately thirty program series in progress throughout the United States and Canada. During the past twenty months, the Radio Department has served more than fifty areas in twenty-six states and Canada with devotional programs.

The recorded library of devotional programs has increased to 535 with the continuation of the "Hear Ye Him" series, with sermons by Evan A. Fry, radio minister.

Since the completion of the Auditorium Music Room, the Radio Choir, directed by Brother Weddle, has been busy recording a new library of hymns which now contains more than two hundred numbers from The Hymnal. During this period, the Radio Choir also recorded a long-play record, "New Hymns of the Restoration," which is sold through Herald House.

The department reported that 562 radio stations carried the last Messiah broadcast. They represented forty-six states, Australia, Canada, Alaska, and Hawaii. The program may be used in Norway at Easter.

About 250 stations requested the recorded Easter program, "He Is Risen," which was offered for the first time this year.

The department estimates that 115,000 persons have seen the movie "Other Sheep" on various television broadcasts.

Revised Standard Version Text Bibles

These moderately priced editions are recommended for use as gift, reward, or promotion Bibles for young people. Printed on fine Bible paper with complete footnotes. Pages are numbered consecutively from Genesis to Revelation. Twelve full-color reproductions dramatize Bible incidents and 12 six-color maps are invaluable to Scripture study. Three-color presentation page. Size, 5¼ by 7½ inches. Bindings stamped in genuine gold. Name imprinted in gold, 75c. Thomas Nelson and Sons

- | | | |
|------|--|--------|
| No. | | |
| 2800 | Blue washable cloth over boards; stained top; square corners; attractive two-color jacket. | $3.25 |
| 2803 | Black leatheroid; limp style; round corners; red edges. Boxed. | $3.50 |

Box 477
Independence, Missouri

Box 382
Guelph, Ontario, Canada

1958

Vacation

Church

School Manuals

Principal's and Worship Manual $1.00

Junior Teacher's Manual 90c

Primary Teacher's Manual 90c

Kindergarten Teacher's Manual 90c

Full of ideas for organizing, teaching, and planning activities for vacation church school this year.

Be sure your staff is well supplied with these vital guidebooks.

Shipping charges extra. If you live in Missouri, add 2% sales tax.

Box 477 Independence, Missouri

Box 382 Guelph, Ontario, Canada

Field Assignments

(Continued from page 4.)

Ettinger, Cecil R.—Radio Minister
 Evans, Jack R.—Southeast Texas District and Houston
 Farnham, Robert S.—Independence Sanitarium and Hospital, Chaplain
 Fishburn, E. Robert—Latin-American Mission
 Fisher, Howard W.—Minnesota and Red River Districts
 Fisher, Kenneth G.—Northern Plains District and Unorganized Wyoming
 Francis, Melvin E.—Tulsa District and Tulsa
 Frater, Alan S.—Australia - Victoria District
 French, Calvin V.—Philadelphia Metropolitan District
 Fry, Evan A.—Church Historian
 Fry, Frank A.—British Isles Mission, President
 Gardner, A. Leslie—New Zealand
 Gibbs, Arthur F.—Nebraska District
 Gorker, John G.—Central Illinois District
 Graham, Charles V.—Center Stake of Zion, President
 Green, Kenneth T.—Northwest Ohio District
 Grundy, Hudson P.—Canada, Bishop
 Gunning, Alfred R.—Australia, Sydney District
 Guthrie, Merle P.—Eastern Michigan District
 Guthrie, William T.—Waterloo - Clinton District
 Haden, William C.—Seattle District
 Hansen, Francis E.—Los Angeles Stake, Bishop
 Hanton, Elroy E.—Chatham District
 Harder, Peter H.—Rich Hill District
 Harford, E. Merle—Northern Michigan District
 Hart, Lee O.—Los Angeles Stake
 Harvey, Donald E.—Far West Stake and St. Joseph
 Harvey, Keith E.—Saskatchewan District and Manitoba
 Henson, O. Chester, Jr.—Unorganized Florida
 Higdon, Earl T.—Assistant to the Presiding Bishopric
 Hobart, C. Houston—Utah - Southeast Idaho and Western Colorado Districts
 Horn, William F.—Netherlands, Mission President
 Hougas, Ward A.—Eastern Colorado District and Denver
 Hough, A. Wayne—Dayton, Ohio
 Huggett, Raymond W.—British Columbia District
 Hunker, E. Yewell—Texas and Great Lakes Mission
 Imrie, John D.—South Australia and West Australia
 Jacka, Sydney—Australia: Queensland-Northern New South Wales
 Jennings, Emery E.—Central Missouri Stake, President
 Johnson, Glen H.—Utah - Southeast Idaho District, and Salt Lake City obj.
 Johnston, Glenn E.—Detroit International Stake
 Jordan, John F.—Eastern Colorado District
 Judd, David—Nauvoo District and Guide till 1959, then to French Polynesia
 Kaleikau, David A. K., Jr.—French Polynesia
 Kelley, J. Stanley—Assistant to Presiding Bishopric
 Kemp, James N.—Southern California District and San Diego Area
 Kinart, Keith N.—Southern California District

Kohlman, Leslie W.—Lamoni Stake, Bishop
 Kornman, Charles E.—Niagara District
 Koury, Aleah G.—Central California District
 Kyser, Donald L.—Maine District
 Lancaster, James E.—Church Statistician
 Lancaster, Richard B.—Department of Religious Education
 Landon, Donald D.—Missions Abroad Research Committee
 Landsberg, Lewis E.—Michigan, Bishop
 LaPointe, Myron F.—Alabama District and Unorganized Georgia, North and South Carolina
 Lively, Herbert C.—Center Stake of Zion
 Lynn, Herbert A.—Western Texas District, Unorganized New Mexico
 Mair, Perry M.—Owen Sound District
 Manuel, Ronald E.—St. Louis District and St. Louis
 McArthur, Clifton S.—Center Stake of Zion, Bishopric
 McClain, W. Blair—Detroit International Stake, President
 McDowell, Floyd M.—Revival Minister in Domestic Fields
 Menzies, James S.—Kansas District
 Mesle, F. Carl—Young People's Camps, Ministry to College Students and Ministry to Armed Forces Personnel
 Miller, Louis E.—Lansing District
 Moore, Philip W.—New York Metropolitan District
 Mundorff, Charles R.—Central Michigan District
 Neff, Charles D.—Assistant to First Presidency
 Njeim, George A.—East Central States and Central States Missions
 Oliver, Lee R.—Southern Ohio District
 Olson, Carroll L.—Assistant to Presiding Bishopric
 Packer, Athol B.—Department of Religious Education
 Page, M. Norman—Kansas-Colorado District
 Patterson, William—Central States and East Central States Missions
 Pearson, Russell W.—Northwest Iowa District and Sioux City
 Pelletier, Al M., Jr.—Southeastern Illinois District
 Pement, Jacques V.—Western New York and New York-Scranton Districts
 Phillips, James C.—Flint-Port Huron District, Flint objective
 Potter, Floyd A. J.—Australia: Sydney and Victoria Districts
 Pray, Jack A.—South Central Michigan District
 Puckett, John T.—Northeast Texas District
 Ralston, Russell F.—East Central States Mission
 Reid, Richard M.—Hawaii District
 Renfroe, James E.—Southern Indiana, Arkansas-Louisiana, and Memphis Districts
 Renfroe, Zenos Z.—Central Missouri Stake
 Robbins, Cecil V.—Northeastern Illinois District
 Rock, Arthur J.—Audio-Visual, Director
 Rowe, Eric S.—British Isles Mission
 Ruch, Verner D.—Eastern States Mission
 Russell, R. Melvin—Grand Rapids District and Grand Rapids
 Scherer, Albert A.—Kansas City Stake
 Scott, Herbert M.—Center Stake of Zion, Stone Church objective
 Serig, Joe A.—Miami-Pittsburg District
 Seeley, Robert M.—Southern Oregon District
 Sheehy, Almer W.—Flint-Port Huron District and Port Huron
 Sheehy, Howard S.—Southern Indiana District and Louisville

Simmons, Wayne E.—Southwest Texas District
 Simons, Harry J.—Lamoni Stake President
 Smith, Delbert D.—Hawaii District
 Smith, E. Elwood—Columbus, Ohio, District and Columbus
 Smith, G. Wayne—Oklahoma City District
 Smith, Glaude A.—Center Stake of Zion, Stone Church objective
 Smith, Lynn E.—Central Stakes
 Sorensen, Vivian C. R.—Des Moines District
 Spencer, Geoffrey F.—Hunter-Manning District
 Stobaugh, Kenneth E.—Springfield, Missouri, and Joplin, Missouri, Districts
 Stuart, J. C.—London District and London
 Tacy, Lester I.—Southern New England District
 Taylor, Robert E.—Center Stake of Zion, Young People
 Theys, Eugene A.—Center Stake of Zion
 Thumm, John Stone—Columbia River District
 Tickemyer, Garland E.—Los Angeles Stake, President
 Troyer, Luther S.—Boise and Spokane Districts
 Turner, Robert V.—Western Oklahoma District and Oklahoma
 Tyree, Alan D.—French Polynesia
 Updike, L. Wayne—Assistant to First Presidency in charge of Priesthood and Leadership Education
 Urban, Alfred—Germany
 Velt, Harold I.—South Central States and Southern Missions
 Vest, Elwin R.—Northwest Iowa District
 Vreeland, Charles E.—Sacramento District
 Wakeman, Robert I.—Arizona District
 Webb, R. Vern—Germany, Mission President
 Weddle, Franklyn S.—Director of Music, Co-ordinator of Radio and Audio-Visual Weldon, Clair E.—Latin-American Mission
 Whipple, John L.—Minnesota District
 Wight, John G.—Memphis District
 Williams, William E.—Southwest Iowa District
 Witte, Victor J.—Southern New England District
 Woodstock, Lyle W.—Chicago District
 Worth, Thomas E.—British Isles Mission
 Yager, Joseph H.—Mobile and Pensacola Districts
 Yager, Ronald J.—Western Montana District
 Yale, Alfred H.—Des Moines District, Des Moines objective.
 Zonker, Louis C.—Nauvoo and Chicago Districts

Briefs

Welcome with Pound Gifts

DALLAS, TEXAS.—Seventy John Puckett, missionary co-ordinator for Central Texas District, conducted a month-long series for the Dallas Branch during February. The high points were the baptisms and confirmations of Shirley Allen and Leon Jones on Sunday morning, February 23.

The branch welcomed John and Marcine Puckett and their daughters, Jan and Jonica, into the parsonage on January 24. On the following Friday evening the Saints carried out an old tradition of "pounding the preacher." They arrived with a welcoming party and pound gifts for the new kitchen.—Reported by MAX T. STEELE

Missionary Series

WINTHROP, ARKANSAS. — Missionary Glynn Coltharp held a series in the branch February 9-21. Attendance at each service was good in spite of cold weather.

The interior of the church building has been re-decorated.

Ray Green, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Green, was blessed February 16 by Brother Coltharp, assisted by Derrill Bush.—Reported by JOANN BUSH

Install Baptismal Font

MCDERMOTT, OHIO.—Evangelist V. D. Ruch held a series of meetings December 1-4. He also gave several patriarchal blessings.

Frank and Emily Ann, children of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schellinger, Brenda Lea, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Guilkey, and Diana Lynn, daughter of Robert and Patsy Owens, were blessed by Elders Everett E. Orin and George F. Coburn, Jr., during recent months.

On February 18, Apostle Donald V. Lents visited the branch with District President John W. Blackstock. Brother Lents delivered the sermon.

Brother Blackstock showed the film "Other Sheep" the night of March 5 to a large group, with several nonmembers present.

A baptismal font was installed in the church by the men of the branch.—Reported by MARIE CRABTREE

Increase in Tithepayers

CALGARY, ALBERTA, CANADA.—In August, the following were called, and in September ordained to offices in the priesthood: Albert Bates and William Thederahn, deacons; James Cameron, Bruce Waddell, and Murray Richards, priests; Wilbur Hayden, teacher; Blake McLean, elder

A junior church was organized in November, with Brother Hayden as junior pastor.

In December an Oriole group of seven was organized, with Beverley Dallyn as leader.

On February 15, Assistant Provincial Commissioner Charles Matkin of Magrath, Alberta, presented to the branch the charter for the seventy-eighth Calgary group of Boy Scouts. Blake McLean is the chairman of five committee members, and James Cameron is Scoutmaster.

Bishop's agent C. O. Diaper reports thirty-six tithepayers for 1957. Branch membership is one hundred and twenty-one.

The women's department held a home cooking and sewing sale and served lunch at the Hudson Bay Company store February 8. They netted $150.00.

Missionary Kenneth Fisher held a series January 19-February 16. Six meetings were held each week, with twenty-one nonmembers participating. He also used the five Sunday evenings to preach on the various phases of the kingdom. Attendance was good. January 26 the attendance was largest since the official opening of the church May 2, 1954. Three were baptized February 16. They were Constance DeBlieck, Gordon Bates, and Mildred Moran.

Zella Bates is Zion's League leader.—Reported by MILLIE F. WADDELL

Ordinations and Baptisms

MEMPHIS, TENNESSEE.—In a recent ordination service, Jack E. Goold was ordained an elder, William A. Hamilton a priest, and Reginald R. Smith a priest.

The following were recently baptized: Laura Ann Van Nieuwenhuyze and Patricia Ann Carman, baptized by Keith M. Van Nieuwenhuyze, and Bonita Marie Gargus and Harry Barton Gardner, baptized by J. H. Gargus.—Reported by THOMAS S. GOUGH

Converts in Norway

OSLO, NORWAY.—Three were baptized on January 23 by Elder James A. Everett. They were Johanne Velin, Marie Solvang, and Martha Karlsen.

They were confirmed January 26. Johanne Velin was confirmed by Elder Olaf Fossum, and Marie Solvang by Elder Richard D. Andersen. Martha Karlsen was confirmed by Brother Everett.—Reported by MRS. EDITH KRISTIANSEN

STRIDE

YOU need STRIDE STRIDE needs YOU

SUBSCRIBE TODAY!

U. S. $2.50

Canada $2.75

other countries $3.00

Stations Carrying the Easter Broadcast

THE RADIO CHOIR, directed by Franklyn S. Weddle, has prepared its second annual Easter service of music, "He Is Risen," for radio broadcast. The organist is Bethel Knoche, and soloist, James Stanley.

Of the stations which broadcast the church-sponsored Messiah last Christmas season, more than 260 stations have requested this special Easter program.

These stations are listed below. The broadcast date is Easter Sunday, April 6, unless otherwise indicated. Broadcast times are given also, if reported by the station, but are subject to possible change. To verify the time of broadcast, it would be advisable to check your newspaper listing or inquire directly of your station.

It would be helpful if you would send your station a note of thanks and commendation after the broadcast. The Radio Department would also appreciate any comments or suggestions concerning such special programs.

CHARLES F. CHURCH, JR.
Director of Radio

ALABAMA

WBCA Bay Minette, 3 p.m.
WOOF Dothan, 5:30 p.m.
WBLO Evergreen, 2 p.m.
WHEP Foley, a.m.
WZOB Fort Payne, 6 a.m.
WGYV Greenville, a.m.
WVNA Tusculumbia, 9 a.m.

ARIZONA

KPIN Casa Grande, 1:30 p.m.
KPHO Phoenix, 6:30 a.m.
KVWM Show Low, 12:15 p.m.
KVNC Winslow
KOFA Yuma, 2:30 p.m.

ARKANSAS

KGRH Fayetteville, 12:30 p.m.
KNEA Jonesboro, 7 a.m.
KDRS Paragould, 4 p.m.
KBRS Springdale, 5th, 5 p.m.
KRLW Walnut Ridge, a.m.
KWYN Wynne, 2 p.m.

CALIFORNIA

KAVR Apple Valley
KLAC Los Angeles
KIDD Monterey, 9:30 a.m.
KWSO Mount Shasta, 2 p.m.
KRCK Ridgecrest, 10 a.m.
KATY San Luis Obispo
KGEN Tulare, 9:30 a.m.
KSYC Yreka, 3:30 p.m.

COLORADO

KRLN Canon City, 4th, 2 p.m.
KFTM Fort Morgan, 1:30 p.m.
KFKA Greeley, 3rd, 6:30 p.m.
KVRH Salida, early a.m.
KGEK Sterling, a.m.
KCRT Trinidad, 7:30 a.m.

CONNECTICUT

WADS Ansonia, 7:30 a.m.

FLORIDA

WCNU Crestview, 1:30 p.m.
WLCO Eustis, 11 a.m.
WRUF Gainesville
WNER Live Oak, 1:30 p.m.
WWPF Palatka, 6:30 p.m.
WJOE Port St. Joe, 9:30 a.m.
WCNH Quincy

GEORGIA

WAGA Atlanta
WCOR Cornelia, 1:30 p.m.
WGFS Covington, 1:30 p.m.
WBLJ Dalton, 10:30 a.m.
WBGR Jesup, noon
WACL Waycross
WGAF Valdosta, 2:30 p.m.
WRPB Warner Robins

IDAHO

KSPT Sandpoint, 9 a.m.

ILLINOIS

WRAJ Anna, a.m.
WBYS Canton
WEIC Charleston, 1:30 p.m.
WJPF Herrin, 5th, 6:30 p.m.
WKEI Kewanee
WPRC Lincoln
WVMC Mt. Carmel, 2 p.m.
WTAD Quincy, 8:30 p.m.
WEEK Peoria, 10:30 a.m.
WBBA Pittsfield

INDIANA

WGEE Indianapolis, 6 a.m.
WBAA Lafayette, 5th, 10 a.m.
WVOH North Vernon, p.m.
WMRI Marion, 9:30 a.m.
WGCD Seymour, 1:05 p.m.
WBOW Terre Haute, 7 a.m.
WAMW Washington, 1 p.m.

IOWA

KLGA Algona, 9 a.m.
WOI Ames, 2:30 p.m.
KDSN Denison, p.m.
KFJB Marshalltown, 1 p.m.

KANSAS

KFRM Concordia, 7:30 a.m.
KSOK Arkansas City, 1 p.m.
KNCO Garden City, 3:30 p.m.
KAYS Hays
KLWN Lawrence, 4 p.m.
KFH Wichita, 8:30 p.m.

KENTUCKY

WTCO Campbellsville, 2 p.m.
WMTA Central City, 7:30 a.m.
WCPM Cumberland, 12:30 p.m.
WCYN Cynthiana, 6:30 p.m.
WIEL Elizabethtown, 2 p.m.
WHIR Danville, 2 p.m.
WKFY Frankfort
WHAS Louisville, 1 p.m.
WFMW Madisonville, 6:30 a.m.
WKYB Paducah, p.m.
WKLX Paris, 10 a.m.
WPRT Prestonsburg, 10 a.m.

LOUISIANA

KDBS Alexandria
KBCL Bossier City
KLLA Leesville
KVHL Homer, a.m.
KNOC Natchitoches, 1 p.m.
KRUS Ruston

MAINE

WRUM Rumford, 1 p.m.

MARYLAND

WAMD Aberdeen, 10 a.m.
WBOC Salisbury, 10:30 a.m.
WTOV Towson, 8:30 a.m.

MASSACHUSETTS

WBMS New Bedford, 6:30 p.m.

MICHIGAN

WTVB Coldwater, 1:30 p.m.
WJR Detroit
WMRP Flint, 4 p.m.
WHGR Houghton Lake, 6 p.m.
WCHB Inskter, 8 a.m.
WPON Pontiac, 7 p.m.
WSJM St. Joseph, 12:30 p.m.

MINNESOTA

KASM Albany, a.m.
WELY Ely, 2 p.m.
KLTJ Little Falls
WPBC Minneapolis, 6:30 a.m.
KMRS Morris, 2 p.m.

MISSISSIPPI

WACR Columbus, 8 a.m.

MISSOURI

KMBC Kansas City, 7:30 a.m.
KGHM Brookfield, 1 p.m.
KFMO Flat River
KFAL Fulton
KIMO Independence, 2:30 p.m.
KLWT Lebanon, 9:30 a.m.
KMMO Marshall, 5th, 10:30 a.m.
KNIM Maryville, 1 p.m.
KXEO Mexico
KNEM Nevada, 2 p.m.
KXOK St. Louis

MONTANA

KOOK Billings, 9:30 a.m.
KCAP Helena

NEBRASKA

KCOW Alliance, 2 p.m.
KCSR Chadron
KRGJ Grand Island, 10:30 a.m.
KHAS Hastings, 9 a.m.
KLMS Lincoln, 3 p.m.
KGFV Kearney
KODY North Platte
KVHC O'Neill, 8 a.m.
KNEB Scottsbluff, 4 a.m.

NEVADA

KPTL Carson City
KWNA Winnemucca, 3 p.m.

NEW JERSEY

WWBZ Vineland, 2 p.m.

NEW MEXICO

KALG Alamogordo, 10 a.m.
KLMX Clayton, 8:30 a.m.
KMIN Grants, a.m.

NEW YORK

WNIA Buffalo
WFLR Dundee, 5th, 5 p.m.
WWHG Hornell, 9 a.m.
WHUC Hudson, 8 a.m.
WJTN Jamestown, 5:30 p.m.
WVOS Liberty, 9:15 a.m.
WLFH Little Falls, 6:30 a.m.
WICY Malone, 3rd, 1:30 p.m.
WHLI Niagara Falls, 7:30 a.m.
WSLB Ogdensburg
WALK Patchogue, 9 a.m.
WSAY Rochester
WSYR Syracuse
WIPS Ticonderoga, 2 p.m.
WSPN Saratoga Springs, 9:30 a.m.

Bulletin Board

Servicemen's Addresses

S/Sgt. (and Mrs.) Alma L. Williams
603 Bay Avenue
Panama City, Florida

SP3 Donald Breshears
US 55 566 509
55th Army Band
Fort Polk, Louisiana

A/3c Charles E. Cantrell
AR 17496738
Box 89, 305th Flt. Maint. Sq.
MacDill A.F.B., Florida

Airman Cantrell will appreciate hearing from members.

Appointee's Address

John E. Booth
217 Tenth Avenue
Council Bluffs, Iowa
(Telephone 3-1076)

Elder Booth is pastor of the branch in Council Bluffs.

Topeka Church to Be Dedicated

The church building at Topeka, Kansas, will be dedicated April 6. General Church officers present for the occasion will be President Israel A. Smith, Bishop G. L. DeLapp, and Apostle D. Blair Jensen. The services will commence at 9 a.m. with Communion, and continue throughout the day. All members are invited, and a special invitation is extended to former pastors. The church is located at the corner of Huntoon and Medford.

Following the dedication, District Missionary Alfred H. Yale will conduct a series of meetings. The pastor is Elder E. R. Marolf.
MILDRED GOODFELLOW
Publicity Chairman

West Virginia District Spring Conference

The spring conference of the West Virginia District will be held April 12 and 13 at Wellsburg. The program is as follows: Saturday 7:30 p.m., preaching by John Blackstock, president of Southern Ohio District; Sunday 8:00 a.m. priesthood class with Elder Floyd Rockwell in charge; 9:00, fellowship service with Evangelist Samuel Zonker in charge; 10:45, sermon by Elder Blackstock; 1:30 p.m., song service; 2:00, business meeting and election of General Conference delegates. The noon meal will be served at the church.

MAY R. GRIFFIN
District Secretary

CORRECTION

On page 2 of the February 24 Herald in the "We'd Like You to Know . . ." feature, reference was made to a conversion by Apostle Charles Curtis; this should have been Elder J. D. Curtis.

KRAL Rawlins, 1:35 p.m.
KWOR Worland

ALASKA

KBYR Anchorage
KLAM Cordova, 5 p.m.

CANADA

CKBI Prince Albert, Saskatchewan
CKLW Windsor, Ontario, 7 a.m.

NORTH CAROLINA

WWGP Sanford, 1:30 p.m.
WSIC Statesville, 3 p.m.
WCGC Belmont
WBMA Beaufort
WPNF Brevard, 4 p.m.
WBBB Burlington, March 30, 7 p.m.
WTIK Durham
WJNC Jacksonville, 2 p.m.
WAGR Lumberton
WMBI Morehead City, 1 p.m.
WMNC Morganton, 10:30 a.m.
WPAQ Mt. Airy, 6 p.m.
WHIT New Bern, 10 a.m.
WEEB Southern Pines
WCPS Tarboro
WHED Washington, 9:30 a.m.
WHCC Waynesville, 10:30 a.m.
WENC Whiteville, 10:20 a.m.
WBBO Forest City, 4:30 p.m.

NORTH DAKOTA

KDIX Dickinson, 11:30 a.m.
KOVV Valley City, 3:30 p.m.

OHIO

WTVN Columbus, 6:30 p.m.
WERE Cleveland, 9:30 p.m.
WHOK Lancaster, 3 p.m.
WCLW Mansfield
WMOA Marietta, 2 p.m.
WMVO Mount Vernon
WCHO Washington C. H.
WPKO Waverly, 10 a.m.
WKOY Wellston, 9 a.m.
WOHI East Liverpool, 5 p.m.
WONE Dayton, 6 p.m.
WRFD Worthington

OKLAHOMA

KSEO Durant, noon
KWRW Guthrie
KTMC McAlester, 9 a.m.
KOLS Pryor, 7:30 a.m.
KVIN Vinita, 12:30 p.m.
KSIW Woodward, 1 p.m.

OREGON

KFLY Corvallis, a.m.
KIHR Hood River
KMCM McMinnville, 12:30 p.m.
KBCH Oceanlake
KJUN Redmond
KYES Roseburg
KTIL Tillamook, 5th, p.m.

PENNSYLVANIA

WBFD Bedford, 2 p.m.
WHLM Bloomsburg
WLOA Braddock, 10 a.m.
WCHA Chambersburg, 2:30 p.m.
WCPA Clearfield, 11 a.m.
WCVI Conneville, 3:30 p.m.
WCED DuBois, 4:30 p.m.
WARD Johnstown, p.m.
WKVA Lewistown, 7th, 12:30 p.m.
WJUN Mexico, 4:30 p.m.
WFIL Philadelphia, 1 p.m.
WKMC Roaring Spring, p.m.
WISL Shamokin, 9 p.m.
WPIC Sharon, 1:30 p.m.
WMPT S. Williamsport
WLYC Williamsport, 2 p.m.

RHODE ISLAND

WNRI Woonsocket, p.m.

SOUTH CAROLINA

WABU Abbeville, 8 a.m.
WHPB Belton, 3rd
WACA Camden, 10 a.m.
WGCD Chester, 5th, a.m.
WOLS Florence, 4 p.m.

WMYB Myrtle Beach, 2 p.m.
WTYC Rock Hill, 10:30 a.m.
WSNW Seneca, 12:30 p.m.
WSSC Sumter, March 30
WBCU Union p.m.
WELP Easley, 4 p.m.

SOUTH DAKOTA

KABR Aberdeen, a.m.

TENNESSEE

WHLP Centerville, 6:30 a.m.
WTJS Jackson, 4th, 9:30 p.m.
WETB Johnson City
WOKE Oak Ridge, a.m.
WJIG Tullahoma, p.m.
WENK Union City

TEXAS

KANN Sinton, 1 p.m.
KBEN Carrizo Springs
KCAR Clarksville, 8:30 a.m.
KUMC Colorado City
KINE Kingsville, 10 a.m.
KVKM Monahans, 3 p.m.
KMUL Muleshoe, 7 a.m.
KTEM Temple, 9 a.m.
KRGV Weslaco, 5:30 p.m.
KSFT Fort Stockton, 2 p.m.
KTRE Lufkin, 5:45 a.m.

UTAH

KSOP Salt Lake City, 11:30 a.m.

VERMONT

WWSR St. Albans, 9:15 a.m.
WIKE Newport, 2 p.m.

VIRGINIA

WKLV Blackstone, 8:30 a.m.
WSVS Crewe
WBOB Galax, 10:30 a.m.
WDDY Gloucester, 9:30 a.m.
WSSV Petersburg, 6 p.m.
WRVA Richmond
WBOF Virginia Beach, a.m.
WINC Winchester

WASHINGTON

KBKW Aberdeen, 2 p.m.
KAGT Anacortes, 12:30 p.m.
KCBX Colfax
KCVL Colville, 3 p.m.
KBAM Longview, a.m.
KSEM Moses Lake, 7 p.m.
KPKW Pasco, 6:30 p.m.
KARY Prosser, 8 a.m.
KAYE Puyallup
KLAN Renton, 9 a.m.
KMO Tacoma, 10:15 a.m.
KENE Toppenish
KIMA Yakima, 11 a.m.
KNBX Kirkland, 6 p.m.

WEST VIRGINIA

WKYR Keyser, 5:30 p.m.
WMOD Moundsville, 9:30 a.m.
WRDB Reedsburg
WHAW Weston

WISCONSIN

WEAU Eau Claire
WISC Madison, 7 a.m.
WMME Menomonie
WTTN Watertown, 3 p.m.

WYOMING

KODI Cody, 2 p.m.
KOVE Lander, 1 a.m.
KASL Newcastle, 2 p.m.

And Finally...

J. C. Stuart
344 Maitland St.
London, Ontario, Canada

M
h Ap.

OPPOSITION AND DEPRIVATION

The Book of Mormon declares, "For it must needs be, that there is an opposition in all things." (II Nephi 1:81). When things come easy they go the same way. What one works and fights for he values most.

Recently the Gas Service Company went on the radio asking the users of gas in this area to cut their thermostats back to sixty to help meet an emergency. Two years ago the water company forbade using water—for car washing, lawn sprinkling, and similar avoidable uses during a hot, dry season. Our appreciation of these utilities and our dependence on them were immediately enhanced by these experiences.

Young people sometimes take the love and sacrifices of parents for granted. All of us return to God in our adversity and penitently expect his forgiveness and blessings—and usually get them.

C. B. H.

FOR YOUR REMINDER BOOK

Glory and failure hunt the footsteps of those who dare.

EVERYDAY OPPORTUNITY

The opportunity to practice brotherhood presents itself every time you meet a human being.—Jane Wyman

THOUGHTS WHILE TRAVELING

Thoughts are like trout. They need to be caught. They can be enjoyed in a tantalizing way just flashing by, but, like the trout, they disappear into the oblivion of depths and crannies. Trying to call them back is like yelling at a Rainbow or a Dolly Varden.

Contents

EDITORIAL AND OFFICIAL

Toward the Final Restoration, by Paul A. Wellington	3
Graduate Nurses Needed	4
Heads of Departments	4
Recommendations for Superannuation	4
Field Assignments	4

FEATURE ARTICLES

Departmental Reports Show Progress	2
The Call of Christ, by Charles R. Hield	5
The Christ, by Viola Velt Barney	9
Behold the Son of Man, by Arlene Groesbeck	10
The Great Decision, by Naomi Russell	13
Have Ye Received His Image in Your Countenance? by Mrs. William M. Nichols	14
Nursing School Plans New Method, by Roger Yarrington	16
"San" Surveyor Reports Findings, by Roger Yarrington	17

SPECIAL COLUMNS

We'd Like You to Know: Kenneth L. Simpson	2
Graceland Gazette	18
Letters	18
Briefs	21
Stations Carrying Easter Broadcast	22
Bulletin Board	23
And Finally	24

A pencil makes a good fishing pole when you're out to catch thoughts. Watch it reel out a line and land a thought.

Brother Elbert has used a pencil for years, capturing his thoughts and preparing them to a proper turn and flavor. We have been delightfully fed on his Blue Pencil Notes.

John Garver spun out his Cogitations of an Old Codger while riding on a train. Many of us still wonder how he untangled his line. I once asked him to decipher a handwritten letter which had shadow-boxed with me for a week. John looked at it, shook his head, and said simply, "It's too cold." What he did unravel for us in Cogitations lent insights and sympathy to a generation of "Herald" readers.

It's fun to travel with a pencil, if you travel by train, or plane. The auto is too insistent—both hands on the wheel, eyes on the road, and no time to get lost in thought. But on the train, a good book invites you to leave its pages, to think the long thoughts it has prompted. Now and again there is an urge to write, to capture the elusive thought before it darts into obscurity.

Reed M. Holmes

FREE TO BE

The American idea is not that every man shall be on a level with every other, but that every one shall have liberty without hindrance to be what God made him.—Henry Ward Beecher.

HOW-TO

Method is like packing things in a box; a good packer will get in half as much again as a bad one.

—Cecil

NOTHING BUT THE FACTS

Do not, in such a matter as life, build an opinion or custom on what you guess is true. Make it a matter of certainty and science.

—Thomas Starr King

PRIME CONCERN

A man's first care should be to avoid the reproaches of his own heart; his next to escape the censures of the world.

—Addison

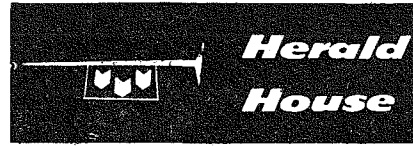

1958 REUNION MANUALS FOR CHILDREN'S ACTIVITIES

Junior Manual — REUNION	JESUS AND HIS CHURCH
Primary Manual — REUNION	JESUS AND
Kindergarten Manual — REUNION	JESUS AND
Nursery Manual — REUNION	LIVING IN OUR HEAVENLY FATHER'S WORLD

Registered COUNCIL OF BIBLE SOCIETY of LATTER DAY SAINTS

Nursery Manual	$1.00
Kindergarten Manual	.85
Primary Manual	1.25
Junior Manual	1.10
Flannelgraph Instructions and Patterns Manual (for primaries and juniors)	1.00

Box 477
Independence, Missouri

Box 382
Guelph, Ontario, Canada

SAINTS' HERALD

Volume 105 / April 7, 1958 / Number 14

Photo by Keith B. Stokes

A New Church for Prairie Village

(page 17)

G. Everett Berndt, supervisor of the Auditorium guide service, shows the recent museum display to Berneice Anderson and Gladys Gould, secretaries to the First Presidency. The portrait of Henry C. Smith is in the background. The drawing table and instruments were used by the architect to design the Auditorium.

Photograph by Audio-Visual Department

Museum Features Auditorium History

DRAWING INSTRUMENTS, books, and sketches showing the architect's original concept of the Auditorium were shown recently in the headquarters museum. This display was of exceptional interest due to the present construction work now being done at the Auditorium.

Historical photos showing the progress of the building were included in the display. They traced the growth of the Auditorium from the first ground breaking in 1926 to the present.

A photographic portrait of Henry C. Smith, original Auditorium architect, was shown along with an oil portrait of President Frederick M. Smith, leader of the church during the period the Auditorium dream was born and it was begun.

Some of the drafting instruments used by Henry C. Smith were also on display, including the drawing table that he used to execute the many drawings for the building and a drafting machine that was purchased especially to draw the ellipse of the General Conference Chamber.

Many original sketches were shown, including the original floor plan of the General Conference Chamber. Most of the drawings were dated 1926 or 1927. An architectural engineering thesis concerning the Auditorium was displayed. It was written by Joseph Edward Kelsey in 1928. At that time he was an assistant to Henry C. Smith. Brother Kelsey, an elder in the Stone Church congregation, is now a draftsman in Kansas City.

Most of the items on display are the property of the church. Other items were loaned by Larry Smith, son of the original architect, and by Brother Kelsey.

Henry C. Smith still lives in Independence. The main work on the Auditorium was to his specifications up until the work on the building was stopped during the depression years. More recent improvements on the Auditorium have been designed by the architectural firm of Bloomgarten and Frohwerk.

It was interesting to see the sharp contrast between the architect's original plans for the building and the more recent construction work—especially that now being done. The present style of the building is much more modern than the classic lines proposed in the original plans. Yet the basic design of the building remains the same and the genius of the designer of the huge building and its giant conference room is more evident today than ever before.

Authors in This Issue

D. O. Chesworth (page 5), member of the Council of Twelve

Franklyn S. Weddle (page 7), Director of Music

Roger Yarrington (page 8), Assistant Editor

Mrs. A. L. Gibson (page 10), Missoula, Montana

Millard Payne (page 12), priest, Houston, Texas

O. C. Henson, Jr. (page 17), missionary elder, Florida

Kinds of Critics

CRITICISM IS BOTH a business and a pastime. Art, music, literature, and drama have professional critics whose columns appear regularly in magazines and newspapers. Criticism is part of the educational process both in the home and in the classroom. A part of our democratic process in America is facing of opposition to justify our course.

The critics should be wise and honest. Such men have a respected place in our society. The trouble starts when the unwise, emotional, and unprincipled start swinging axes. To protect itself against the unscrupulous, society has libel and slander laws. In most cases, however, the best defense is to ignore those who indulge in defamation of character. Courts and lawyers would be swamped most of the time if all aggrieved persons brought suit against petty offenders.

There is another type of critic, commonly called the gossip, who is ubiquitous and iniquitous. He has been denounced from time immemorial without deterring the evil he does. It seems to be a common sin to discuss the weaknesses and failures of friends and others active in public life.

I need not confess for you, but it is likely that all of us indulge in the practice at times. What this type of criticism says in reality is this, "He is not as good as he wants people to think he is. Of course, you understand, I wouldn't do or say a thing as mean or as stupid as that." Thus we cut him down to our size and feel more comfortable. There must be some relish in this practice or it would die out.

Paul condemns backbiting and whisperings (II Corinthians 12: 20). His advice on the subject is positive and wholesome: "If a man be overtaken in a fault, ye which are spiritual, restore such a one in the spirit of meekness" (Galatians 6: 1). Restoring takes love, kindness, and face-to-face discussion.

C. B. H.

Let Your Light So Shine

RATHER FREQUENTLY PEOPLE write about the problem of locating our churches while visiting in cities and towns on week ends. They tell us they look in the telephone directory and, not finding ours listed there under "churches" or "Reorganized," ask storekeepers or some passer-by without favorable results.

It is not a case of putting a lighted candle "under a bushel" as a rule, but too few workers trying to do too many jobs to keep the local church and its departments functioning at top efficiency. There is the possibility that in some places the pastor is praying that the Lord will send more laborers into the vineyard, when better organization of those he has would improve public relations greatly.

In these days of greatly increased travel, the church has anticipated the need for information on locating our churches by publishing the Church Directory on an annual basis. This contains the information on the street addresses of our churches and also the pastors' names and addresses.

If the town has a local newspaper, a visitor should ask to see it, as many times the services are announced and the church address given.

Hotels often provide bulletin boards for church directory listings.

Congregations which feel the need of having a telephone can usually get the pastor's telephone listed as an alternate source of information for a small increase in cost.

Road signs which tell the location of our church are moderately priced (see Herald Supply Catalogue) and are helpful both to the tourists and for local publicity.

There is considerable truth to the statement attributed to Ralph Waldo Emerson, "If you write a better book, or preach a better sermon, or build a better mousetrap than your neighbor, the world will beat a path to your door." The problem still remains of getting the right kind of communications in motion. Many men and firms have gone broke waiting for enough people to learn about their superior mousetraps. Modern advertisers proceed on the theory that "If you tell a thing often enough, people will believe it." Between these two extremes there is the happy medium of practical truth.

Branch officers should use every means at their disposal and within their budget to attract people to hear the restoration message. As Paul wrote the Corinthians (I Corinthians 9: 22), "I am made all things to all men, that I might by all means save some." It will also be a great blessing to the local Saints as well as those who visit your community to have visiting members join with you in worship. A bit of planning and organizing of your forces may accomplish wonders.

C. B. H.

Official

Appointment of Bishop's Agent Hawaiian District

Notice is hereby given of the appointment of Brother John B. Hutchison, 45-424 Pua Makahala Street, Kaneohe, Hawaii, as bishop's agent of the Hawaiian District, succeeding Brother Tsunao Miyamoto whose resignation has been received. Solicitors are hereby notified to send their reports for the month of March and each succeeding month thereafter to Brother Hutchison at the above address.

We take this opportunity of expressing our appreciation to Brother Miyamoto for his many years of service rendered in this office.

We have also appreciated the support given by the Saints to Brother Miyamoto during the period of his service and take this opportunity of commending Brother Hutchison to the Saints for their favorable consideration and support.

THE PRESIDING BISHOPRIC
By W. N. Johnson

Approved
THE FIRST PRESIDENCY
By Israel A. Smith

New President for Memphis District

Elder Duane E. Couey has resigned as president of the Memphis District effective April 30, 1958, because of his assignment as an Assistant to the First Presidency. Elder Thomas S. Gough of Memphis, Tennessee, is hereby appointed as district president to fill the unexpired term of Brother Couey. We wish to thank Brother Couey for his devoted service in the Memphis District, and ask for Brother Gough the same co-operation and prayers extended in Brother Couey's behalf by the Saints.

THE FIRST PRESIDENCY
By W. Wallace Smith

New President for Arkansas-Louisiana District

Because of his appointment by the Joint Council to the Hawaii District, Elder Richard M. Reid has tendered his resignation as President of the Arkansas-Louisiana District, effective April 1, 1958.

Elder N. Glynn Coltharp is hereby appointed to fill this vacancy, subject to ratification of the next conference of the district.

We ask the prayers and co-operation of the Saints of the district on behalf of Brother Coltharp and extend to Brother Reid our thanks and appreciation for the splendid service he has rendered.

THE FIRST PRESIDENCY
By Israel A. Smith

New President for Miami-Pittsburg District

Elder Frank Kyser is hereby appointed as president of the Miami-Pittsburg District to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Elder Jack A. Pray. This change to be effective May 15, 1958, and the appointment is subject to the ratification of the next conference of the district.

The resignation is necessitated by the assignment by the Joint Council of Brother Pray to the South Central Michigan District.

We wish to express our thanks for the service rendered by Brother Pray in the Miami-Pittsburg District and ask of the Saints their prayers and co-operation in behalf of Brother Kyser.

THE FIRST PRESIDENCY
By Israel A. Smith

New President for District of Hawaii

After consultation with Apostle Percy E. Farrow, Elder Sylvester R. Coleman is hereby appointed effective April 12, 1958, to serve as president of the District of Hawaii, to succeed Elder Stephen A. Black. This appointment is subject to the action of the next district conference. The change is necessitated by the reassignment of Brother Black to the Seattle District by the Joint Council of First Presidency, Council of Twelve, and Presiding Bishopric.

We wish to express our appreciation for the devotion that was shown by Brother Black while in Hawaii, and ask that the Saints remember Brother Coleman in their prayers in connection with his new responsibilities.

THE FIRST PRESIDENCY
By Israel A. Smith

Correction

The following corrections should be made in the list of appointee assignments as published in the last issue of the Herald:

W. Joseph Breshears, Central Missouri Stake

Zenos Z. Renfroe, Central Stakes
THE FIRST PRESIDENCY
By W. Wallace Smith

Across the Desk

The following note is from Elder Albert L. Fisher of Winchester, Massachusetts, pastor of the Boston branch:

You will be interested to know that this week I presented to the Andover-Newton Theological School at Newton, Massachusetts, the Three Standard Books and the one-volume Church History. This was done in commemoration of the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the seminary. The books were given in the name of the branch and paid for by the branch.

This is an idea which may have merit for congregations in areas where there are theological seminaries, for much research is done on the Latter Day Saint movement in these places.

The Saints' Herald

Vol. 105 April 7, 1958 No. 14

EDITORS: The First Presidency: Israel A. Smith, F. Henry Edwards, W. Wallace Smith. ASSISTANTS: Chris B. Hartshorn, Managing Editor; Naomi Russell, Assistant Editor; Paul A. Wellington, Assistant Editor; Roger Yarrington, Assistant Editor; Audrey Stub-

bart, Copy Editor; and Leonard J. Lea, Contributing Editor. BUSINESS MANAGER, Kenneth L. Graham.

The Saints' Herald is the official publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, with headquarters at The Auditorium, Independence, Missouri, and is issued through the offices of Herald Publishing House, 103 South Osage Street, Independence, Missouri.

Herald editors are not responsible for the views and opinions expressed in articles or communications other than those of editorial authorship.

Entered as second-class matter at the post office at Independence, Missouri, under Act of March 3, 1879. Issued weekly at Independence, Missouri, except daily during the biennial General Conference. Price, $4.00 per year in advance in the U.S.A., its territories and possessions; Canada, $4.25 per year; other countries, $5.00 per year. Notice of a change of address must be given three weeks ahead of the date that it is to become effective. Accepted for mailing at the special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917, authorized July 21, 1921. Printed in the United States of America.

www.LatterDayTruth.org

By D. O. Chesworth

Effective Techniques for Evangelism

SOME ARE CALLED to direct missionary activity. As we specialize in this endeavor, we learn that there are numerous and diversified techniques.

Many used to think that the most effective procedure was the periodic visit of the appointee who would preach every night in the week except Saturday, baptize a few people (often relatives of members), and then hope, after his departure, that these newly baptized members would be successfully nurtured in the family of the Lord. When this type of witnessing was brought under question in the early 1940's as the most effective type for some branches, I confess that a sort of defeatism entered my mind; I felt that something wonderful had been lost to the church. Many branches had built a strong dependence on the two weeks' preaching series and still clung to this one type of winning. In this report let us look at the varied types of witnessing and share some results which have accrued to the church as different techniques of telling the good news have been utilized.

Two Weeks' Preaching Series

The first criticism which I heard of this activity was seventeen years ago. Although there is a school of thought which doesn't encourage this procedure, it is still a very effective way of sharing the message of Jesus Christ. It is listed first because it is the most familiar to us. We continue to win many new members through this technique, but regular attendance at services is required to assure success. As branch members we need to clear our calendars for the two weeks and attend regularly in order to present a united front of interest to our friends. Otherwise we too frequently hear, "If this is so wonderful why are their own members not interested enough to attend the services?"

A large branch can usually conduct two of these preaching missions a year with success. It is necessary to select carefully the type of preacher whose messages must be attractive and hold the interest of the audience, and one who will also assume an active visiting assignment that goes with an effective two weeks' preaching project. At the conclusion of such a campaign frequently a prospect list is presented both to the pastor and missionary co-ordinator of the branch by the visiting preacher. Careful attention given to this list by the branch priesthood members often results in baptisms during the interim prior to the next evangelistic campaign.

Multiple Branch Preaching Series

This type of activity has been fruitful for the church. It is listed in second place because of its spectacular tone and appeal to our members who often, in smaller branches, have carried on a series in a small way. Several branches in a district co-operate financially to permit extensive advertising through bulletins, radio, and newspaper. This procedure includes a combination of preaching, daily visiting, and contacts after the delivery of the sermon. It can be repeated the next year or after two years, but then a waiting period appears to be advisable. The success depends largely on the person who presents the evening messages, and on careful organizational procedures. In Ontario, Canada, this type of evangelism has brought many baptisms.

Two Weeks' Preaching and Cottage Meeting Combination

A number of pastors and district presidents, when assigned to other than their appointed areas, have used this procedure to excellent advantage. Sermons are preached on Sundays and two other nights, in addition to the cottage meetings held on alternate nights where prospects at the meeting in a home may number as high as six to twelve. It is essential that organized visiting during the day be associated with this kind of endeavor to bring about the greatest results. Our latest endeavor in this classification permitted the visiting speaker to make seventy house-to-house visits. We have conducted quite a few of these series, and when the branch hasn't had a series for a year or two our efforts have resulted in ten to twelve baptisms.

Month-long Cottage Meetings With Sunday Preaching

With this procedure of evangelism the congregational members share in the Sunday preaching ministry and assist by contacting friends for cottage meetings. There are occasions when Wednesday night preaching is also advisable. Such cottage meeting ministry is possible when a branch can finance its missionary activity through its annual budget. There are four appointees in our mission engaged in this type of witnessing. Some prefer to conduct two meetings a week in the same home, not for the prospect in that home alone, but for friends also. This gives the missionary a potential of four, six, and occasionally eight prospects. Some ministers prefer one visit a week in a home, permitting more time for the message of the previous week to be studied before the return trip. This technique doesn't upset branch activities; it is very productive and a strong contender for the greatest results. Furthermore, the missionary trains the men of the standing ministry and prepares them for conducting their own meetings throughout the entire year in the sponsoring branch. Another door is open to co-ordinators. Recently a large branch, which had previously preferred the two weeks' preaching series, shifted to this emphasis with excellent results. As the second type has been productive in Ontario, so this one holds top ranking in Michigan.

Standing Ministry Cottage Meetings With Final One by Appointees

We soon learn that many men of the standing ministry are willing to undertake cottage meeting work under the direction of the administrative officer of the branch or the missionary co-ordinator. One appointee reports considerable success by helping on the final night of decision-getting. This technique is recommended until the local men gain confidence in themselves and learn the features of decision-getting. More of them will undertake the assignments if those in authority will assure them of assistance on the final night or two. We could profitably investigate this undeveloped phase of evangelism.

Sunday Night Missionary Sermons

This idea is contagious and is being conducted by a number of districts. This technique has been utilized for many years and is gaining renewed momentum. The sermons continue for four nights but could be extended to eight if so desired. There are many denominations which do not conduct Sunday night services, making it more favorable for us to conduct an organized campaign for night gospel sermons (also to share the best music that can be provided). This opens another avenue for evangelism. Many baptisms have been attributed directly to this type of ministry. Such emphasis on preaching ministry by the men of the standing ministry adds to their personal prestige in a channel where we tend to be weak. Let us take a new look at the missionary future of the Church of Jesus Christ which will be made possible by the strengthening of inspired preachers among our ten thousand members of the standing ministry.

Special Age-group Emphases

During the past year we have had five appointees utilize this type of missionary work. They report success in their endeavors, although it should be noted that more expert ministry is required. Emphasis on the various age levels has opened the door for successful evangelism in solving the existing problems. This is a specialized field and, by the nature of it, is restricted.

The Prospect Accounting System

It is the contention of one of our missionaries that continuity of effective missionary outreach should exist in branches despite changes in local or General Church personnel. His system will constantly remind departmental leaders of their missionary opportunities. The system provides a record of every cottage or family meeting held and its observed effects upon the prospect and the effectiveness of the men holding such meetings. The living and growing record on each prospect can be transferred when his address changes. The new missionary becomes acquainted quickly with the prospect through the record, and a steady year-round harvest of church-oriented new members is encouraged. The chart of achievement for the first year is very convincing.

Repentant Preaching at All Times

It should be said, very significantly, that one may always hear repentant preaching from our pulpits. Often our attention at Christmas time is pointed directly to the manger scene and we miss the association of repentant preaching included in the story, reported both in the New Testament and the Book of Mormon. In the third chapter of Luke John preaches the baptism of repentance for the remission of sins. In the third chapter of III Nephi (in connection with Christmas in America) Nephi, being grieved for the hardness of men's hearts and the blindness of their minds, goes forth among them and begins to preach repentance and remission of sins through faith on the Lord Jesus Christ. Where are our ambassadors today preaching repentance and baptism for the remission of sins? Whenever we hear them we also hear of successful evangelism. This valuable instrument of repentant preaching, which has proved so effective through the years, should not be cast aside.

Personal Witnessing

Every individual and every department shares in this type of evangelism. If the gospel has done something for you, has changed your desires for good, has opened your heart, mind, and life to Jesus Christ, then you will desire to share him with those you meet. Many of the suggestions enumerated in this presentation are restricted to the specialist, but this last one is available for all. Today many representatives of religious organizations are telling what they offer to the individual who is seeking salvation. Let us be foremost!

Who?

Who conducts the missionary work in the branch and mission? Too often at branch business meetings we overlook missionary talents in one and elect him to other assignments. When a person prefers to direct missionary work or assist in this capacity in a branch, we should permit him to do so. We are still very much engaged in the process of assisting to make the army of the Lord great.

Where?

Where do we direct this emphasis? Do we send a missionary to a large branch to add twenty-five more members to a job already too large for the pastor with his type of organization? Do we keep sending men back to communities where for many years we have failed to succeed? Do we make this man power available for branches or missions where our present leadership is poor? These questions are part of the work of missionary supervision.

Where is our missionary potential? It is unharnessed, but it is in the church now. In many communities night school classes are conducted for adult education, and high enrollment is reported. Why should we not have enrollment in our branches for specialization in missionary endeavor? Surely we are not awaiting the time when our appointee personnel will be increased to the extent that one will be available for every branch! Why not have more business men conducting cottage meetings in their own localities, some using slides, others using the open Bible, still others preferring flannelgraph work or other materials?

This vision is enlarged as we see people taking a week or two of their annual vacation and working with the appointee or by themselves in an assigned project. When men have prepared in such a way that their social security program allows them time, they can spend themselves in bearing testimony in the great task of winning souls to Jesus Christ.

What?

What type of missionary emphasis does a branch need? Care should be exerted in the selection of personnel. It is important that we do not request repeat ministry where ineffectiveness was apparent on previous contacts. The foregoing suggests an up-to-date system of communications between pastor, district president, and missionary supervisor.

What will the year 1958 present to the church in missionary achievement? As long as it is early in the year we can be assured that it will be our best year. If, in June, when we have a missionary achievement check up, we are not in the lead, then there will have to be a quickening of our endeavors in the greatest work to which mankind has been called, the winning of souls.

Let these effective techniques for evangelism be joined with yours for our best year in 1958.

www.LatterDayTruth.org

The God of Whom We Sing

TO A DEGREE of which most of us are not aware the hymns we sing condition our concept of the God we worship. Our praise of God is accomplished to a large degree by songs of praise and adoration. Most of our concerted utterances in public, our corporate worship, are in the form of hymns. Much of our private and individual meditations are conditioned by phrases from hymns that we know and love. Even many of our thoughts are phrased in the words we have sung in our hymns of worship, the very singing of which helps to make those thoughts articulate and have meaning to us. Our comprehension, even our apprehension of things divine, is often influenced by the hymns we know and use.

The ideas we express through hymns enter into and help shape our thinking. Our closest approximation of a consensus of understanding is probably found in the concepts expressed in our hymns. They stand as a norm in the formulation of our corporate theology. The God of whom we sing is the God whom we worship. It might be interesting to see if we can describe this God of whom we sing.

Hymn-built Ideas of God the Father

He is the "God of Our Fathers," "the Lord of the living harvest," and the "Lord of the Church." He is our "shield and defender, the Ancient of Days," the "Eternal Father, strong to save," our "Father, all creating," the "Lord of heaven and earth and sea," "in whose hand the rolling planets lie," the "God in whom we live and move, in whom we draw each breath," "our help in ages past, our hope for years to come," "whose presence glows in all," "whose will is life and good," the "Lord of light and love and power." God is the "life of ages, richly poured—unspent and free—still inspiring truth and good."

He "moves in a mysterious way his wonders to perform." He is "God, the source of light and beauty," "who touchest earth with beauty," the "God of harmony" and yet the "Rock of ages," "a mighty fortress," the "only wise," "the God we adore," "the eternal Father who dwells amid the sky."

God the Son

The Son of God, "the master workman of the race," is "the giver of all we enjoy," the "living Christ," "chief cornerstone of God's great temple," the "fairest Lord Jesus, ruler of all nature—purer than all the angels heaven can boast." He is our "precious Savior," whose "sacred head now wounded with grief and shame" is "weighed down," the "Lamb of God most holy, who on the cross didst suffer, patient still and lowly," the "lover of my soul." "Jesus calls us o'er the tumult saying 'Christian, follow me,'" and says, "Come unto me and rest—behold, I freely give the living water—stoop down and drink and live." He was the "young and fearless prophet of ancient Galilee" who "chose a humble birth; like us, unhonored and unknown" "to whom the lips of children made sweet hosannas ring," "nor did their zeal offend him, but as he rode along he let them still attend him, and smiled to hear their song." Yet with all his gentleness he is "the mighty King in Zion" to whom it is a "privilege" to "carry everything in prayer."

God, the Holy Spirit

"The Spirit of God like a fire is burning," a "gracious Spirit, heavenly dove, with light and comfort from above—our guardian—our guide." We pray, "Come, Holy Ghost, our souls inspire, and lighten with celestial fire." "We believe to us and ours the apostolic promise given; we wait the pentecostal powers, the Holy Ghost sent down from heaven," and that the Holy Spirit is the "source of the old prophetic fire, fountain of light and love," the "blessed unction from above," and "Word of God and inward light," "truth—love—joy divine."

Thus in a very real sense these hymns provide our definition of God, God the Son and God the Holy Spirit, our hymn-built ideas of God. As we make these hymns our own these phrases come to us as fleeting flashes which quicken our understanding, enlighten our minds, and convince our hearts. These are glowing ideas which fashion our actions and reactions as they rise from the hidden depths of our consciousness. They are basic to our common heritage.

The God of whom we sing is creative; he is a real God. Our hymns are alive with a sense of his activity. We sing, "Come, thou Almighty King . . . Come and thy people bless, and give thy word success," and "Come, thou Fount of every blessing, tune my heart to sing thy praise."

The God of our hymns is not an "unmoved mover," an imperturbable, impassive God of deism; he throbs with life! He is the "Lord of all being, throned afar . . . center and soul of every sphere." "The thunders of his hand keep the wide world in awe," yet "they who seek the throne of grace find that throne in every place." This God of whom we sing is full of compassion, and because of his great love for us he is involved in our human condition. His is a "love that will not let me go, [a] light that followest all my way, [a] joy that seekest me through pain, [and a] cross that liftest up my head." He is a "God who hearest prayer, every hour and everywhere." "He bids us leave the busy world behind us and draw apart

(Continued on page 18)

Robert Nelson, director of development for Kansas City University, relates a case study for the workshop

Joint Council, Trustees, Faculty See Need for Academic Blueprint

By Roger Yarrington

COLLEGE WORKSHOP DISCUSSES FUTURE

FIFTY CHURCH AND COLLEGE officials met February 28 - March 1 in Independence to discuss the future of the church in the field of higher education.

The Graceland College Workshop was attended by members of the Joint Council, the college board of trustees, faculty, alumni association, development council, and other interested departmental workers.

Dr. William Gould, acting president of the college, stated the goals of the workshop as being:

1. To examine present conditions, proposals and policies at Graceland.
2. To further clarify the role of Graceland in the total program of the church.
3. To further clarify the aims and objectives of Graceland.
4. To try to evolve a philosophy of development appropriate to Graceland and to identify techniques for implementing a development program.
5. To identify immediate goals for development at Graceland.

6. To further clarify long-range goals and plans for development.

7. To share information, viewpoints, opinions, ideas, and ideals relating to Graceland and the church.

Dr. Gould opened the workshop with an address that outlined Graceland's present situation and the future conditions which it faces. He stated problems concerning student admissions, faculty procurement, building program, academic offerings, and costs.

"If we let it," he said, "enrollment at Graceland is sure to increase. A rising college age population and an increasing percentage of young people wanting to enter college will cause this.

"Specific plans for Graceland's future development must be based on valid policy decisions on several important questions," Dr. Gould pointed out. He posed these questions: "Who in the church should receive a college education? Of those, who should receive it at Graceland? To what extent should nonchurch youth be admitted to Graceland? What should church youth of today and tomorrow be taught? What services should Graceland provide for her students and for the General Church? Who will teach? How will higher education in the church be financed? How should policy be made?"

www.LatterDayTruth.org

Participants in the workshop heard two addresses by authorities in the field of college development. Jay Gerber, of Gonser and Gerber, educational development consultants, spoke on "A Philosophy of College Development." He said a college development program has three important aspects: a long-term blueprint of development, a plan for working together, and participation by all of the interested publics. The various publics who are interested in the development of the college, he said, are the church, the board of trustees, the officials and faculty of the college, the alumni, the students and their families, the community. He emphasized that all must work together in a mutually agreed-upon program.

"A Case Study in College Development" was the address presented by Robert Nelson, director of development for Kansas City University and formerly vice-president of Iowa Wesleyan College. He told how Iowa Wesleyan initiated a ten-year program of development which will require five million dollars. He pointed out that the college has a smaller enrollment than Graceland and an alumni association of about the same number.

In the discussions that followed it became evident that a policy for Graceland College must be framed inside a General Church policy in the field of higher education.

Summing up, representatives of the leading church quorums and the college gave their impressions of the workshop's achievements. Bishop G. L. DeLapp said, "Graceland is as important to the church as any department or quorum in the church." He stated his hope that the college could grow to meet the demands made on it by the church. To do this, he said, there needs to be a church policy including all areas of higher education.

Dr. William S. Gould, acting president of Graceland College, points out some trends in college enrollment to the church officials and college administrators.

"It is up to members of the First Presidency to initiate such a program," he said, "but they do not have the only responsibility."

Brother DeLapp pointed out that if the financial law of the church was obeyed by all of the membership, the college would be capable of great growth. He said the college now receives nearly ten cents of every tithing dollar.

President F. Henry Edwards said he felt a church commission on higher education was needed to study and recommend future policy to the General Conference. He added that such a commission would probably be appointed in the near future.

"The church needs competent leadership," he said. "Graceland stands way out in front in making available to us the kind of help we need."

Jay Gerber, development consultant, considers a problem with a small discussion group. Left is Apostle E. J. Gleazer. At right is Donald Manuel, chairman of the Graceland Development Council.

Adapted to the Weakest

The word of wisdom provides new hope for the weak—in will, in body, in material means. It also offers a way to hasten the building of the kingdom.

OUR HEAVENLY FATHER has always been concerned with all of his creation, particularly the frail and weak. Time and again we have seen where he has endowed the physically handicapped with his choicest gifts of the Spirit, and the impoverished in means with sublime talents. Nowhere is his tender concern more beautifully expressed than in the words, "He tempereth the wind to the shorn lamb." The sparrow does not fall to the ground without his awareness, and as for man—he is of more moment than the sparrow.

We are so unwisely accustomed to considering the Word of Wisdom a law of "don't's" that we often overlook the infinite compassion and incomparable foresight which it contains. The foreword tells us that it is "adapted to the capacity of the weak, and the weakest of all Saints." Since this weakness is not elaborated upon further, at that point, it would seem that as the revelation unfolds the matter would become clearer.

And it does become clearer. Indeed this magnificent revelation takes on deeper significance with every reading and much more meaning as it is put into effect.

Let us for a while consider "weakest" from three points of view—the weak in will, the frail in body, the poor in material means. God is concerned about them. They are the ones who so frequently suffer the most.

Because in the last days evil men (and we know that they do) design to become wealthy upon the weakness of men, God warns us against alcoholic liquors and tobacco. The world picture of lives enslaved and families impoverished needs no elaboration here. The "weak" are "warned"—and the Word of Wisdom is there to help them.

Malnutrition must be a source of grief to the Lord, who has caused the earth to produce so abundantly. Yet nearly two thirds of the people of the earth are underfed today, while here in the "promised land" many are overfed and paying doctors to tell them to eat less. They spend too much for food and then have to pay the doctors because of it. They lose in health and in money, too.

The amount that most Latter Day Saint families spend for liquor and tobacco is very small indeed. This portion of the Word of Wisdom is fairly well kept. But this is no cause for smugness. As a group, and not so much as individuals, we are not careful about the rest of the admonition.

WE EAT FAR TOO MUCH meat, and some of us drink too much tea and coffee. Let us be honest with ourselves. We like them both and we say, "After all, the Word of Wisdom isn't a command." No, it isn't a command. God, in the Word of Wisdom, is paying us the compliment of treating us as intelligent adults who ought to realize that he loves us very much, is advising us for our good, and is promising us blessings if we comply. If we obey just because we have to, we are losing our agency. But if we obey because we love him, we receive his promises.

Meat, coffee, and tea are among the most expensive items on our grocery bills. The two latter do us little or no good and some actual harm. Meat has value as food, of course, but is most needed in times of cold and when other foods are scarce. Some of our people eat it three times a day and get little exercise. Fried meats, particularly, cause trouble, especially in middle-aged or aging people and among those inclined to be overweight. God ordained meat to be used with wisdom and temperance. Many of us could use less of it, and more of eggs, cheese, vegetables, and fruits. The Adventists (Seventh-Day), who incorporate into their religion teachings on foods ideas similar to those of the Word of Wisdom are prosperous people and are noted for their exceptionally high contributions per member to their church. In a recent article in one of our newspapers I read that they were either first or second among the Protestant denominations in contributions per member. To me the question of ability to pay tithing is somewhat bound up with our food bills.

The richest, most valuable foods from a nutrition point of view are our whole grain cereals, and they are the cheapest. If we had to do so, we could live most economically and healthfully on them—on milk, whole grain breads, fruits, and vegetables. Most dry, prepared cereals, with the exception of those that are largely bran, are easily digested, cheap, and very nutritious. (One of the science books I use in my school teaches this.) Among the cooked cereals, oatmeals, rolled wheats, cream of wheat, farina, and such preparations are excellent. People with sensitive colons should exercise care in the use of any cereal in which the husk and bran are all or largely present.

Again, even the poor in means can afford these foods, and the frail in health can usually digest them, though people are not all alike. There are some who have digestive difficulties, and in such cases they do well to follow the advice of their physicians. But generally speaking, people who are reared according to the teachings of God are healthy people and find that the promises he makes to them are kept.

WE WASTE A GREAT DEAL of food. Brother Davey once told of a Latter Day Saint lady of Scandinavian extraction who said she had bought much of the excellent furniture in her home with money she had saved by sensible economy from her food budget. Her family remained well nourished and content, too.

It is said that a French family can live on what an American family wastes. Perhaps that statement is a bit exaggerated, but the French family could surely get part of its living from the good, edible, clean food which is wasted and we ought to be doing it ourselves. In these days of electric ranges—when the wood or coal burning kitchen range is a thing of the past—the old “soup kettle” seems to have gone out of business. Many women work outside the home, and a can of good nourishing soup which can be opened, heated, and brought to the table in ten minutes is a real help to them. But there are others who can make a rich soup from the left-over half a carrot, the three green onions, the half a cup of peas, the two tablespoonsful of rice and the ripe tomato, with a bit of dry oatmeal or tapioca, which costs almost nothing and is deeply satisfying.

Some of our people manage remarkably well on a small budget. One family with two small children spends not more than thirty dollars a month on food. It takes careful planning; not a crumb of food is wasted, and the fruit from their little plum tree is carefully used. But this fruit is shared, too. These people are buying a home, furnishing it with necessary modern conveniences, and contributing to the church. They would be moderately wealthy on an income which most of us would consider inadequate.

One family with an income of three hundred dollars a month will use every cent of it and be in debt at the end of the month. Another family, of the same size and with no greater problems and the same income, will meet all expenses, remain in as good health, and save twenty-five dollars a month. Wiser buying, better management, different tastes, and prayer are answers to the problem. Simple living can be living on a very high plane. On the contrary we can spend a great deal for that which “satisfieth not.”

Living, in all its phases, is an art and a challenge. The housewife can't do it all, and we must admit that at the start. Everyone must co-operate. Whole powdered milk, for example, is as good as whole liquid milk for the family and much cheaper, but if the children aren't willing to co-operate, the mother will not be able to get them to drink it.

But for the most part the feeding of the family does depend on the wife and mother, and frequently we find the older ones looking back to the simple foods with nostalgia—the bread puddings that were flavored so delightfully and the gingerbread rich with raisins which Mother used to make.

It is a noble and wise ambition to feed one's family well, but we must be sure that by “well” we don't mean too richly. The two ideas are not necessarily synonymous.

GOD HAS INVITED us to consult with him over all our affairs—our homes, our children, our flocks. Surely he would like to advise us on how to economize on our expenditures. Most of the household bills and the household budget is in our hands to manage. We do not deal in little things, we women who bake bread, darn socks, and scrub floors. We deal with the future of the world when we feed and clothe our families and make home their refuge.

This refuge is threatened all over the world today. We should devoutly thank God that this land has been spared the ravages of wartime invasion. Many lands have not been so fortunate. But we dare not be complacent. Our Secretary of State has stated, openly, that we have been on the verge of war several times within the past year or so. We are at this moment facing a probable speeding up of our defense program, which will possibly mean higher taxes—taxes which we should willingly pay and which, of course, we shall pay.

We are racing against time, and that time has nearly run out. We have an unfinished Auditorium. It is not an unfinished conference hall. It is an unfulfilled request of God, a symbol of a people faced with a wonderful challenge who have, as yet, only partially met that challenge. Certainly until we complete it God cannot bless us as he desires to do, nor can we expand further in much of our Zion program.

Brother N. R. Carmichael once remarked that when the women of this church were consecrated to the objective of Zion, Zion would become a reality.

There are few women in the church who could not save at least one dollar a month on the family grocery bills if they approached the matter prayerfully and sincerely. If these savings of one dollar a month were made by twenty thousand of our ladies, in a year they would amount to two hundred and forty thousand dollars to apply toward the completion of the Auditorium. A saving of two dollars a month would amount to over half a million dollars.

AND IT COULD BE fun! It could be a by-product or by-project of women's groups everywhere. It needn't intrude on the worship programs, or the local projects, but at each meeting the presiding officer could call attention to the little bank set aside for the purpose of these offerings. And we venture to state that the period so often set apart for refreshments would be enlivened by enthusiastic suggestions and helpful cost-saving hints! Among the most delightful experiences any of us could have is to invite our heavenly Father into our kitchen, and the next would be to share that experience with others whom he had also visited.

*Up ye, then, to the high places
I have bid ye occupy.
Peril waits upon the heedless,
Grace upon the souls who try!*

It is superlative that we “tighten up” on our own expenses and finish the Auditorium. If twenty thousand women of this church would save even five dollars a month on their grocery bills and contribute it to such a fund, in a year $1,200,000 could be raised. Some people couldn't do it, but others could save more. Zion is to be redeemed by sacrifice and by the people who care most, who will save a few pennies here and a few there, who will pray, love, and plan.

*Time is ripe! My work must hasten!
Whoso will may bide the hour.*

• • •

*Love ye me and love all people
Love as I have loved you;
This your calling—this my purpose—
Thus be my disciples true. . . .*

*Forth from thence your testimony
Shall to trembling nations go,
And the world confess that with you
God has residence below.*

A VISIT TO MORMON MILL

Lyman Wight's Colony Was Industrious and Played a Memorable Role in the History of Texas His Descendants Joined the Reorganization.

LYMAN WIGHT, frontiersman, farmer, and apostle in the early church under Joseph Smith, sought for nine years to found a stronghold of Zion in the Southwest. He and his followers ventured beyond the towns of the newly created state of Texas to build a community in Indian-troubled areas. Though their wanderings failed to establish a permanent settlement, they left their marks behind them, and wherever they had been life became easier for the pioneers who followed.

Out of the confusion and chaos that followed the murder of Joseph and Hyrum Smith in 1844, a small band of sixteen families set out on foot and in covered wagons from Nauvoo, Illinois, in search of a resting place for the Saints. Their leader was Apostle Lyman Wight, a strong dissenter against Brigham Young as successor to the prophethood of the church. Apostle Wight always maintained that he had been commissioned by Joseph Smith before his death to seek a gathering place for the Saints in Texas. He was true to that commission for the remainder of his life.

Last spring we—a small band of Saints connected with the University of Texas—spent a week end retracing some of the paths taken by this courageous group through the very heart of the Lone Star State. Our research prior to the outing convinced us that these early pioneers are a great heritage of all members of the Reorganized Church, since most of these Texas Saints finally became affiliated with the Reorganization under "Young Joseph."

First Settlement

The colonists established their first home near Austin where they built small cabins, installed and operated a gristmill, erected shops, and planted corn. Virgin hackberry trees were converted into lumber for the manufacture of chairs, bedsteads, and tables. The first jail in Austin was built by them under Apostle Wight's direction. Examples of their furniture handiwork are still preserved at the Daughters of the Confederacy Museum on the grounds of the state capitol building in Austin.

Like members of the Restoration movement everywhere, these pioneers to Texas were not spared the slings and arrows of religious persecution. Brother Wight was invited to preach

The author points to the inscription on the state monument at Mormon Mill a sermon for the local citizens by a Mr. Noah Smithwick. The preaching was conducted at the Smithwick home, and people for miles around came to hear the "Mormon" apostle. The audience was quiet and respectful and listened attentively to the strange new doctrines. A few converts were made from the preaching, and they entered into a life of irresistible adventure. Others scoffed at the peculiarities of the strangers and began stirring up strife toward them. Troublemakers organized a mob to run the Saints out of Texas and probably would have succeeded had it not been for the kind intervention of Mr. Smithwick. He confronted the mobbers and reminded them that the strangers had done nothing wrong so far. He further pointed out that Wight's people were in sufficient numbers to stand off the Indians in the area who had been giving them so much trouble. He proposed to the mob that the "Mormons" be allowed to settle on the extremities of the frontier west of Austin so that they might act as a barrier against "them dang-blasted savages."

Little by little the mob quieted down and began thinking the matter over. After all, many a Texan must have reasoned, if these people are looking for God's country, then they've come to the right place. In the following decade these colonists led the way in the settling of five counties of central Texas.

By Millard Payne

Apostle Wight and his followers placed all their property in "common stock" and each person received his just wants and needs from the colony storehouse. Idleness was not allowed nor selfishness tolerated in the group. It has been said that no dogs were to be found as pets among the colonists because "dogs don't work, so they don't eat."

On to Fredericksburg

For financial reasons, the colonists moved from their Austin location to a site near Fredericksburg, Texas. They christened this colony "Zodiac." In 1850 Wight was elected chief justice of Gillespie County, but his duration of office was short-lived because he refused to attend court when political differences arose between him and his colony on the one side and the German settlement and other members of the court on the other. Further trouble ensued when a flash flood washed away their millsite on the Pedernales River and ruined the whole village. Their precious millstones, said to have been imported from France and brought with them in the Nauvoo exodus, were lost in the sandy bottom of the river bed.

In Burnet

The colonists were on the move again. This time they settled near Burnet, Texas. New millstones were fashioned from native Texas marble, but they proved to be unsatisfactory. Wight, worried over the welfare of his spiritual charges, sought relief in prayer. After three days of fasting and meditating on the grandeur of God's creation, he decided that it would be a very simple thing for God to reveal the hiding places of the lost millstones. So, on the fourth morning of prayer, he called a group of men together, told them to bring shovels and hoes and follow him.

He went back to the old location near Fredericksburg and walked slowly down the river bed. Suddenly, in a clear commanding voice, he said, "Dig here," pointing to a stretch of dry white sand. The men began digging. On the fifth day the priceless millstones were being reinstalled in the new mill near Burnet!

One of these millstones may be seen at the Bandera Frontier Museum, less than six miles from the R. L. D. S. Texas Reunion grounds. Another has recently been installed under the pulpit of a new Episcopal Church in Austin, reminding present-day Texans of the rich faith in God that the early pioneers of the state held so dear.

Once more there was corn to be ground, chairs, tables, and bedsteads to be built. A comfortable winter was in prospect. With food no longer a problem, Wight turned to negotiations with Texas and the federal government for permission to colonize and educate the Indians. He wrote to the Indian agent in San Antonio, "We heard you got an appropriation for civilizing the Indians . . . we have sixteen families with but one man other than myself over forty years . . . We can make irons for ploughs and stalk them much better for a new country than the boughten ones . . . we can build mills and tend Jimmy Wright at the waterfall. The mill was located to the right of the falls on Hamilton Creek.

Lela and Jimmy Wright inspect what remains of the dam. With them (standing) is Mrs. Pearl Ghormley, director of advertising and circulation for the "Daily Texan."

Part of the old mill wall them . . . and I know of no work you would want we cannot do . . . we have expert mechanics, farmers, and mill workers . . ." Although the Indians of this region were extremely hostile, Wight and his followers were interested in bringing the lost gospel of Christ to the remnant of the Lamanites. Their efforts were not rewarded with much success, however, and they suffered loss of stock and a few men at the hands of marauding Indians. Appeals for help which went to officials in San Antonio brought no action. The colonists, because of the constant danger of attack, were forced to let their crops dry up in the hot Texas sun. They held tenaciously together, however, and managed to relocate again at a beautiful spot near Bandera which they called Mountain Valley.

Final Resting Place

Wight was growing old and tired from the worries of travel, leadership, and repeated attempts at colonization. His strong constitution finally gave way, and he died suddenly in March, 1858, while again on the move about eight miles from San Antonio. His body lies in the city of Zodiac in an abandoned cemetery where also lie many of the colonists who followed him. Through all the years of bitterness and strife that followed the martyrdom of the prophet Wight never veered from the conviction he had in the truth of the Restoration movement nor from the singular task that he felt himself chosen to perform. He once told emissaries of Brigham Young who threatened him with excommunication if he didn't bring his Texas colony to Salt Lake that Joseph Smith was the only person he was responsible to and he would remain loyal to the commission that Joseph had assigned him.

Because of Apostle Wight's belief in the successorship of Young Joseph to the leadership of the church, most of his followers happily united with the Reorganization, and many of their descendants are found on the present-day rolls of the church.

Mormon Mill

On the site of the colony which was settled near Burnet, the state of Texas in 1936 erected a monument to Brother Wight and his colonists. This site, known in central Texas as "Mormon Mill," is far back in sheep ranch country and is seldom seen except by cowboys and hunters. Our group spent the day picnicking and exploring the area. Iron stakes, permanently imbedded in the stone creek bottom are about all that remain to mark the old millraces that carried water to the mill wheels. A crumbling stone wall is all that remains of the mill building. A beautifully horned ram, standing high on a cliff watching his flock grazing near us, reminded us of the nickname for Lyman Wight—"The Old Ram of the Mountains."

A small graveyard was discovered among the beautiful Texas wildflowers which had been left by the colonists. The fourteen graves were encircled by a three-foot high red rock wall which has withstood the storms and stampedes of over a hundred years. An air of reverence seemed to permeate the place as we rested under the old tree at the center of the little cemetery. Although the people lying there didn't establish the long-awaited City of the Saints, they can be counted a part of that greatest of human efforts which will someday bring mankind to its highest destiny. Their sacrifices gladly made through faith represent a challenge to present-day disciples of Christ and offer an inspiration to finish the job that they carried on.

A Southern Viewpoint

Three Roads to Racial Peace and Good Will

By Clarence Poe*

HONORED AND RESPECTED by friends in both races, the Reverend Peter Johnson, now aging but still active, took the occasion of the coming of Christmas season to send a message to white and black alike. And both knew he had their welfare at heart.

"What should be the real meaning and message of Christmas for all of us?" he asked. "To me it seems all bound up in the song the angels sang, 'Peace on earth, good will to men.' And this was only another way of expressing the two great commandments emphasized by Christ himself, 'Love God with all your heart . . . and your neighbor as yourself.' We cannot have peace on earth unless we have good will to men. And if all have good will to men, then peace on earth will follow as surely as the night the day. And any truly Christian community can make itself a little island of peace in a world of conflict.

*Senior Editor and Board Chairman, the Progressive Farmer. Used by permission.

Good Qualities in Our Colored People

"Especially have I prayed that I might be able today to say something that might lessen whatever passion and ill will may exist in our own Southern country. If war comes, must not our colored people and our white people share equally in its sufferings and bloodshed here and abroad? But even if we cannot control world-wide movements, we can find a way to cherish peace among ourselves and to find greater happiness in doing so.

"One thing I have thought of this morning is this: Instead of trying to find out what is wrong or objectionable in the other race, suppose each race should try to look for what is good and praiseworthy in the other race.

"Consider our colored people. Must we not say that they seem less covetous than our white people? They seem more intent on getting satisfaction out of life and less eager to make money-making their number one objective. Are they not also especially willing to take care of the poor, aged, or disabled members of their group or kin? They are not so anxious for the morrow. In many cases this is no doubt carried to a fault, but they are readier to laugh off difficulties and to endure hardships without complaint.

"The loyalty of Negroes to their friends, both white and black, is also one of their finest qualities. Even in slavery days the white people who treated their slaves with friendship and compassion won a surprising loyalty and affection. Such songs as 'Massa's in de Cold, Cold Groun' might be mentioned as evidence. But the supreme demonstration of loyalty came during the Civil War itself. With their white masters away, the colored slaves let loyalty to their 'white folks' overcome all other phases of the situation. There seems to be no case on record where a white woman, left helpless on the plantation, was mistreated by the colored people. Henry W. Grady paid an eloquent and memorable tribute to this circumstance. Friendships between young Negroes and their white masters often endured as long as life itself. I know of aged slave on his deathbed who was visited by his equally feeble master who tearfully said: 'Try to hold on a little longer, Jim, and we will both go home together.'

"Even in the turmoil of recent months when violence has been done to some colored people by a very small minority of our race, must we not admit that there has been little evidence of answering violence from colored people?

"The religion of the Negro has also had an unforgettable simplicity and vividness. 'Swing Low, Sweet Chariot' is certainly one of the most beautiful of all hymns. And the quickness with which Negroes make friends with one another is also remarkable. What Dr. F. D. Bluford, one of their leaders, said some years ago is worth remembering: 'We don't want to associate with you white folks. We are more sociable than you are!'

Negro Benefits from White People

"I mention these good qualities in our colored people as something that should increase our good will to them at this time. Next I would ask them to consider fully as many things for which colored people should gladly acknowledge their indebtedness to the white race. Our colored people came from a region which had not been penetrated by Christianity or modern civilization, and their tribal wars and customs were often savage. The civilization they enjoy today was not achieved by them through long, slow centuries of gains as was the case with our white people. Rather did not our colored people suddenly become the inheritors of the white man's civilization? Did they not inherit from us our Christian religion, our English language, our sciences, our system of courts and laws designed to insure justice and fairness, our medical progress, our economic system, our European and American literature, music and art? For thousands of years all these treasures of our white culture had been developing slowly to the point at which they had arrived when our Negroes won their freedom.

"Should not all our colored people realize this, and realize that in the three hundred years since they came from Africa, they could not have been expected to equal what the white man has slowly developed in several thousand years of history? At the same time we white people should recognize the almost amazing progress our nonwhite people have made in the last ninety years—largely under their own leadership in their homes, schools, and churches—and give them all due credit and honor for it. We should also recognize their wish for a steadily increasing growth of their culture and civilization.

Co-operate to Save Public Schools

"On the other hand, our colored people should recognize that the most deeply imbedded customs and traditions our white people have developed over the generations cannot be suddenly pushed aside by force or bayonets without dangerous reactions to both races. Should not Negroes realize that the Southern white people accepted without notable protest all but one of the national programs for Negro progress in recent years? There was little violent opposition to integration in the army where only males were involved, or to the abolition of segregation on trains and interstate travel, on juries and in party primaries. Did not serious trouble come only when it was proposed to have a sudden and forced integration in the public schools? And did not fears here center in the threatened serious difficulties in moral and discipline problems growing out of the mixing of large numbers of adolescent or teen-age white boys and girls and adolescent Negro boys and girls—and in far larger numbers than would be found in any northern state?

"The gravest of all dangers now is that our colored people may follow extremist leadership in its sudden demand for wholesale integration backed by military force. This is a case where they may well say as Paul said long ago, 'All things are lawful for me, but all things are not expedient.' It would be a disaster, especially to the poorer people of both races. I say this because all through the years white people have provided most of the tax support for public schools of both races. If this support should now be lessened or withdrawn, both white and colored schools alike would suffer. Especially would the poorer children of both races suffer if they had to depend on private schools. No Christian of either race should want this to happen. But meanwhile our white school officials should see to it that colored schools are made fully equal to ours in quality of teaching, buildings, and equipment.

"Especially to people in our rural districts would a weakened public school system bring disaster to both white and black. This is true because so much help from our wealthier town and city taxpayers would be withdrawn. This is the supreme danger in the present situation. It is a danger that should lead us all of both races to pray the more earnestly for patience and for 'peace on earth, good will to men' here in our own local communities.

"We live in a time when good citizens of all races and nations should want peace. It is furthermore a time in which all those who profess to be followers of the Christian religion should pray and act with such patience and restraint and good feeling as to help preserve peace. Certainly since our colored people have come so far and so fast since Emancipation, I feel they might well trust further to patience, to time, to our churches, and the good will of conscientious Southerners sincerely praying to find the right way out of present difficulties."

On Brotherhood

Brotherhood is one of the most demanding—and most rewarding—principles in our lives. Its application is not limited to our homes or to our homeland. The responsibilities of brotherhood stretch around the world; and wherever men dwell, their needs and their successes are for all to share.

The furtherance of such a principle demands the utmost in justice and charity, but the rewards of brotherhood are even greater. These are the fruits of a world at peace.—Dwight D. Eisenhower

The spontaneous feeling of brotherhood is a mark of human maturity.—Oveta Culp Hobby

If you really believe in the brotherhood of man, and you want to come into its fold, you've got to let everyone else in, too.—Oscar Hammerstein II

One thing I like about show business is that people are judged on the basis of their ability, not because of their race, color or creed. And that's the way it should be in every walk of life.—Faye Emerson

Book Review

All the Plants of the Bible

By Winifred Walker

1957
Harper & Brothers
New York

Price $4.95

This book is a unique and delightful contribution to literature. It can be read for its contribution to science, art, world literature, and theology. Readers from all age groups will find the joy and sincerity of the artist-writer to be contagious. It is obvious from the preface to the final page that this book is not only the result of painstaking scientific research and artistic accuracy but also a labor of love. Mrs. Walker has had unusual experience in both science and art. She has served as a biological illustrator to the Royal Horticultural Society of London and the Department of Animal Husbandry at Davis, California (branch of the University of California at Berkeley).

The book is essentially an album of half-tone reproductions of full-color paintings, each with a descriptive facing page. All but four of these 114 originals were painted from living plants. These four were from museum specimens which are carefully pressed to retain as much of the original color as possible. Beneath each picture is the common, scientific, and Hebrew name of the plant. A short Scripture text referring to the plant is given below the picture, and more complete scriptural references are given on the facing page. Both biblical lore and interesting historical information from writers of antiquity in regard to each plant are given on nearly every page. In addition to the data given on the 114 plants, a supplement includes material on biblical references to plants or plant parts which obviously could not be as clearly defined. She is careful to qualify her "all" in the title as meaning all of the flowering plants, not lower plants, such as algae, fungi, lichens, mosses, or ferns.

The book will have many uses in the library of a devoted follower of Christ. A study of the book will enable church school teachers to add meaning and realism to their teaching. Many of the plants of the Bible are also common to our own experience. Children will find the experience of biblical characters more real to know that they had beans, wheat, barley, sugar cane, cotton, onions, olives, cinnamon, and cucumbers. We seem more at one with the children of Israel under Moses when we know that they, too, become hungry for watermelon.

Pictures of strange plants will help give authenticity to teaching. From this information it would be possible at reunion grounds and youth camps to set up trails and gardens where the plants of the Bible were grown. The less hardy species might be grown indoors during inclement times of the year.

Serious students of theology will find the book of value. Many passages of Scripture cannot be properly understood without this information. In some instances the added information merely enhances understanding or lends the stimulus of a new twist. In this category, for example, is the discovery that the apples mentioned in the Bible were really apricots. (I suspect that most of us will go right on preferring to think that Eve bit into a bright red Jonathan.)

Instead of the anise which we use as a flavoring, Christ asked for tithes of another familiar spice, dill. What picture is in your mind when you think of Christ on the cross being given vinegar and gall to drink? Many people think of this as a part of the tortures imposed by the soldiers. Gall in the Bible refers to the opium-bearing juice of the poppy. The soldiers in their pity were offering Jesus a narcotic to relieve his suffering, which he refused. The Inspired Version says that Christ's statement, "Father, forgive them, they know not what they do," was intended for the Roman soldiers. New insights from the book will help recast ideas based upon other less correct foundations. Sermons based upon the "whiteness" and "purity" of the lily mentioned by Christ will need revising when the discovery is made that these were really anemones.

The book is one more witness that the Bible is not merely a collection of myths and fables but has arisen from the real experiences of men. One wonders if a study were made of modern theological literature if we would find our own flora as well represented? Perhaps such a book as this may lead us to a greater appreciation of the Creator. As we move toward an urban population of about 90 per cent in the United States, for example, life will continue to become more and more artificial, more removed from nature. We need to be reminded that the prophets and the Master lived near the earth and the living creations of God.

D. H. FERRIS

Addie Spaulding Stowell's

Return Unto Me

Pageant Press announces the release of Mrs. Stowell's new book, Return Unto Me. She is also author of The Walls of Zion published by Herald House in 1953.

This religious novel is about Neil Decker, a young missionary for the R.L.D.S. Church, who comes to the town of Brainard for a well-earned rest, and to write his book. It is a simple act of kindness which signals the change in the course of his life, and influences the lives of many others.

$3.00

HERALD
HOUSE

Box 477
Independence, Missouri

Box 382
Guelph, Ontario, Canada

I Had an Experience . . .

O. C. Henson, Jr.

ONE OF THE MOST revealing experiences that has come to me was one of perception into God's infinite designs for man. This enlightened my mind and strengthened my convictions as to the significance and value of prayer in the divine scheme of things. The statement of James, "The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much," became living truth in its deepest sense. Under the spiritual insight of the moment, I possessed a knowledge which permitted me to comprehend the depth, the height, and the breadth of this Scripture.

I have enjoyed the invisible presence of the Father on other occasions, but at this prayer and testimony service, in which three branches were participating one beautiful Sunday morning, I was particularly impressed by the leadings of the Holy Spirit. Preceding months of devoted and sacrificial service by this congregation aided greatly in making this an outstanding worship experience. A genuinely keen interest on the part of the wonderful people I had been fortunate enough to labor with, under Conference appointment, afforded me the opportunity of knowing that their fondest hope was the creation of a Zionite condition in this locale fifteen hundred miles from the Center Place. Apostle E. J. Gleazer was indeed inspired as he delivered the message of hope and assurance.

Under the impulsion of this directing Spirit, the Apostle spoke to a brother in the congregation. I silently prayed for this brother and for enduring strength for the one speaking. I was deeply moved, knowing something of the background of the situation; I was nevertheless aware that at the conclusion of the message it might be appropriate to have a suitable hymn in mind and that I should be prepared to assume control of the meeting for a short time. Being thus prepared, in the event of necessity, I acted accordingly. At this moment, however, the Apostle turned and faced me. Immediately, even before his first words were uttered, the Holy Spirit asserted itself so strongly that I was entirely devoid of strength. Though I heard and retained each phrase spoken I was also able to perceive deeply and clearly the reality of those expressions which pertained both to the past and to the future.

I was permitted to see some of the experiences down the years that had directly and indirectly influenced my life. I was given direct knowledge particularly as to the far-reaching effect of the prayers of my father and others, since my birth. Without those I would be in an entirely different station today. I was able to see something of the spiritual potentialities resident within men and women, and how these potentials were so dependent upon "the effectual fervent prayers" of the righteous, as well as the necessity of responding to all things right and true. Among other things of a personal nature relative to my responsibilities, contingent upon obedience and compliance, I was able in this moment of spiritual insight to understand to some degree how our Lord is under obligation to keep covenant and would seek to direct by the power of his Holy Spirit those who will respond to bring about his purposes. This experience has enriched my life and given me an appreciation of the work of the Holy Spirit and the need for consistent, earnest supplication.

A New Church for Prairie Village

IN 1952 THIRTY MEMBERS met in the L. L. Sandy home at Overland Park, Kansas, and planned for the organization of a new church congregation.

On Sunday, January 12, 1958, after six years of meeting in halls belonging to the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the Masons, the Prairie Village congregation of Kansas City Stake consecrated its own house of worship.

President F. Henry Edwards, Bishop Walter N. Johnson, and Apostle Maurice L. Draper were on hand to take part in the services.

The building, finished in slump concrete brick, consists of a children's chapel, a fellowship hall, and many classrooms. The main chapel will be built as funds are available.

The present chapel seats one hundred and thirty. It is finished with light blue walls, ash paneling, and red carpeting on the chancel. Pews are of Appalachian red oak, finished with Philippine mahogany stain.

Full-length stained glass windows add color, and a large 5½ by 14-foot stained glass window picturing Christ and the children of all nations forms a background for the baptismal font behind the chancel.

The organ and choir are located in a roomy balcony. A cry room, narthex, and parlor adjoin the chapel to form an overflow seating area for seventy persons.

A 40 by 50-foot fellowship hall and kitchen form a wing at the side of the chapel. The building has a full basement which is divided into nine large classrooms, each painted in a different color.

The cost of the land and building was $100,000. The money-raising drive was begun in 1953 with the first of a series of pledge banquets. Cash received, plus funds already collected, amounted to $8,300. Pledges for 1954 totaled $5,400. In 1955 a special fund-raising effort resulted in an additional $20,000, and the 1956 effort saw an increase of about $15,000 in cash and pledges.

This kind of interest from a steadily growing group enabled plans to be drawn and arrangement made to build. The ground-breaking service on the five-acre lot at Seventh-ninth and Mission Road was held in May, 1957.

Elder Otis Swart of Kansas City, Missouri, is pastor of the congregation.

Question Time

Question

Did Joseph Smith the Martyr ever at any time translate any manuscript for anyone other than the Book of Mormon? To be specific, did he translate the Book of Abraham contained in the book The Pearl of Great Price published by the Utah church which claims it was translated by Joseph Smith from an original supposedly found in Egypt?

C. E. L.

Saskatchewan

Answer

On July 3, 1835, there wandered into Kirtland, Ohio, an itinerant salesman, Michael H. Chandler, with some Egyptian mummies, for exhibition or sale. With the mummies were some rolls of papyrus containing Egyptian characters. Evidently Mr. Chandler had been informed by some person or persons that Joseph could translate them. Some of the Saints were so impressed with the exhibition that they purchased the four mummies with the manuscripts.

There are various opinions as to the modus-operandi that Joseph followed in translating the manuscript. It was first published in the Times and Seasons, volume three. It was never accepted or endorsed as Scripture by the Reorganized Church.

We believe that Joseph Smith, Jr., translated it by the processes of intellectual scholarship. Undoubtedly while translating the plates of the Book of Mormon he saw the characters of the Egyptian language and during that wonderful experience learned the language and how to interpret the manuscripts found with the mummies. He was no longer the unlearned boy after he had completed translating the Book of Mormon.

JOHN BLACKMORE

Question

Romans 15: 16 says, "being sanctified by the Holy Ghost" (see II Thessalonians 2: 13; III Nephi 12: 33). Genesis 6: 63, I.V., reads, "by the Spirit ye are justified; and by the blood ye are sanctified." Is there a conflict here, or how are these two statements reconciled?

Washington

P. E. S.

Answer

Sanctification basically is concerned with the idea of separating or setting apart to be holy and renouncing sin. Hence in the New Testament we see Christ whose separation from sin and consecration to God was so complete that he alone can bring about a like sanctification of sinful men. The Holy Ghost is an essential factor in sanctification, but so also are the grace and atoning blood of Christ. In Peter's First Epistle he wrote to the "Elect according to the foreknowledge of God the Father, through sanctification of the Spirit, unto obedience and sprinkling of the blood of Jesus Christ; Grace unto you, and peace, be multiplied" (I Peter 1: 2).

To the early Christians it was a mark of one's sanctification that the Holy Ghost should rest upon him. It was marvelous to them that the Gentiles should receive the Holy Ghost. (Note particularly Acts 10: 45-47; 15: 7-9.)

Justification involves the willingness of God to accept men as his sons, forgiving them and then wiping out the barrier which sin raises between man and God. Here again Christ is the mediator. It is the miracle of all time that sinful men, beset by the frailties of mortality, may become the sons of God. No man can do this by himself. Only as he accepts Christ and receives the Holy Spirit into his life can he have the power to become a son of God or have the vision even to see the way. Sinful though we are, when we completely dedicate ourselves to God and covenant to serve him completely, we are justified—that is, forgiven and accepted by God. As may readily be seen, both the Holy Spirit and the atoning blood of Christ are involved.

The Scripture is correct in saying "by the Spirit ye are justified; and by the blood ye are sanctified." The statement would also be correct if it stated "by the Spirit ye are sanctified, and by the blood ye are justified." Both are involved, and there is no conflict between them.

CLIFFORD A. COLE

The God of Whom We Sing

(Continued from page 7)

awhile with him alone." "God is love; his mercy brightens all the path in which we rove. God is wisdom, God is love."

Our hymns point out another characteristic of God—his utter attractiveness. He draws us to him because of what he is. "Hearts unfold like flowers before him." "He is our "Father all glorious" "pavilioned in splendor." He is "greater than all the twinkling starry host." "This God is the God we adore, our faithful, unchangeable friend, whose love is as large as his power and knows not beginning nor end." The God of our hymns is indeed a winsome God.

God is effective in our lives; he cares for us; he is "on our side." He has undaunted power to help us and great patience with us, though he will not wait forever. His concern for our welfare is much expressed in the hymns we sing, for "happy [the] man whose hopes rely on Israel's God! He saves the oppressed; he feeds the poor, and none shall find his promise vain. The Lord gives vision to the blind; the Lord supports the fainting mind, he sends the laboring conscience peace, he helps the stranger in distress, the widow and the fatherless, and grants the prisoner sweet release." He is "giving and forgiving, ever blessing," the "well-spring of the joy of living, ocean depth of happy rest."

Our hymns express the fact of God's leadership and the goal toward which we are led. The most direct expression of his leadership is found in the hymn, "He leadeth me," but there are others: "Lead on, O King eternal," "Lead, kindly light, amid the encircling gloom," "Tenderly, tenderly, lead thou me on," "Guide me, O my Savior, guide me," and "Our Guiding Light thou art," to name a few.

The goal to which we are led is described beautifully as the "kingdom . . . wide circling as the sun, foretold by raptured seers—the prophecy sublime, the hope of all the years, its firm foundations broad, the commonwealth of man, the City of our God" "where beauty, truth, and love make one." "Zion, out from [whose] towers shall go the radiant beams a people in tune with God can know." "Zion, city of our God" where "wrong is banished from its borders . . . the city of light," where "love and virtue, faith and wisdom, grace and gifts [are] all combined."

The God of whom we sing speaks to us today as he has always done. He uses many languages, for he speaks to us through the "beauty of the earth," through music, and indeed through all our senses. He "touched to zeal the waiting throng, inspiring hope, and courage giving to cultivate the gift of song." He speaks to us that we "may speak in living echoes of [his] tone." "He speaks, and listening to his voice, new life the dead receive; the mournful, broken hearts rejoice; the humble poor believe."

Our hymns do indeed help us define our beliefs and our ideas and concepts of religion in general and God in particular. The hymnal can be our constant companion in our times of meditation and personal devotions.

The God of whom we sing is the God we worship. "Great God, attend while Zion sings!"

Sanscripts

Honors to "San" Engineer

Mr. Urban F. Black, engineer at the "San," has been elected vice-president of the Kansas City Area Hospital Maintenance Association for the coming year.

Physical Therapy Students At the "San"

Another educational milestone has been achieved at the "San." The physical therapy department has been chosen for the practical experience of the physical therapy students at the University of Kansas. Mr. J. Earl Chappell is the head physical therapist at the "San" and is responsible for the education of these students. The physical therapy department is under the supervision of two physiatrists, Donald L. Rose, M.D., and Edward B. Shires, M.D.

Rejuvenation of Students' Lounge

A student nurse committee, headed by Ona Lee Gamet of Lamoni, Iowa, spent many hours this past winter with the purchasing agent of the "San," Mr. Harvey Bennett, planning new furniture for the lounge in the Nurses Residence. The furniture of the lounge needed replacing, and the students' budget was limited. Many bids were received before one came within the limits of the budget that would supply the needed amount of quality furniture.

This furniture has been purchased with money earned by the students in various money-making projects and by gifts from friends. They still need lamps and drapes to complete the rejuvenation.

Council Visits the Hospital and School of Nursing

While in joint session the leaders of the church made a tour of the new units at the "San." They inspected the new building areas and heard Mr. A. Neal Deaver, Hospital Administrator, tell of the accomplishments of the past year.

"San" Chorus in Concert

The Student Nurse Chorus participated in the annual music festival of student nurse choruses on the evening of March 20. There are seven student nurses choruses in the Kansas City area, and each spring they unite in giving a concert. Mr. Eugene Christy, known to "San" alums as the son of Mrs. Harriet Miller Christy of the 1915 class, conducted the unified chorus.

Fifty-six "San" students participated in the concert. Individual numbers from the "San" were a reading by Barbara Thoman of Independence and a piano solo by Barbara Phelps of Tracy, California. The "San" chorus is under the direction of Mr. Evan A. Fry.

Golden Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred M. Hill of Kansas City, Kansas, observed their fiftieth wedding anniversary on September 1, 1957, at the Quindaro Reorganized Church. They were married August 31, 1907, in a home ceremony by Mr. Hill's father, the Reverend E. L. Hill.

They are the parents of three sons: Hewett L. of North Platte, Nebraska; Victor A. of West Covina, California; and Burhl V. of Mount Washington, Missouri; and one daughter, Mrs. Opal Anderson of Kansas City, Kansas.

Elder Lester Fowler was in charge of the anniversary service held at the church.

MRS. ELSIE COLEMAN

Independence, Missouri

An Unusual Experience

When our son was about ten years old my husband became very ill. One evening I went to his room and, being a registered nurse, I discovered that he was dying. I rushed to the neighbor's house to use the telephone, but when I returned he was better. He said that his spirit had left his body, which he could see lying on the bed. He prayed, "All right, Lord, if it be thy will, but I would like to see my boy reared and to bring this stubborn soul of mine into subjection to thy will." Then a voice said, "Go back."

For days after that he seemed to be filled with the Spirit. He lived to see his son a grown man.

MRS. EARL F. HALL

Lamoni, Iowa

Note of Thanks

I wish to thank all who wrote letters to and prayed for my sick daughter. She has improved wonderfully.

EMMA KEITHLEY

Springfield, Missouri

Letters

Help in Time of Need

In the winter of 1933, during the depression, I was forced to take work in a hotel in Lapeer, Michigan, as a night clerk and janitor. I worked a ten-to-fourteen-hour shift, seven nights a week for wages that barely kept me in clothes. I did, however, get my room and meals at the hotel. I had no chance to attend church, since my home branch was twenty miles away. If I did try to go, it meant that I had to do without sleep for thirty-six hours. I had been an active worker in Flint Branch; at that time there were only a few scattered Saints in the Lapeer area. My surroundings were not always conducive to spiritual development, or even to my peace of mind. I found this a very trying condition.

One Sunday when I was feeling especially discouraged I heard a voice. It said, "Can you not fight with me a while longer." Immediately my burden was lifted. I felt contented to continue on.

Last fall I had a similar experience. I did not know which way to turn. Seemingly I had done all that I could, but insurmountable obstacles were on all sides. While worrying about the situation, I again heard a voice. This time it said, "I will take over and handle this for you." Again my burden was lifted, and I was amazed to see how well things worked out for me.

On several occasions I have had definite assurance that God is interested even in the details of our lives. He wants us to be happy, contented people. If we but do his will, he will help us through our trials.

WILLIAM A. GATES TUTTLE

Los Angeles, California

How I Found the Church

My daughter was very ill and the doctor told us she would never be able to walk

Please Sign Your Message

A writer says that she finds it hard to express herself, yet she wants to bear her testimony. The experience she relates is good, but it bears no signature.

Another writer has an interesting question on the scriptural basis for tithing on the increase, but just gives the initials. Frequently we publish the rules for Question Time: "Only questions with the contributor's full name (not just initials) and address will receive attention."

If there are reasons for anonymity, the writer should state that his message should be used on that condition only. His request will be respected. The editor must decide whether to use the article or question, but writers run no risk in giving their names.

C. B. H.

Briefs

Sons Blessed

BURT, MICHIGAN.—David Allen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Casteel, was blessed August 5, 1957, by Elder L. Clinton Loomis. Mrs. Casteel is the former Doris Emmel.

Kim Lawrence, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Wesener, was blessed March 24, 1957, by Brother Loomis. Mrs. Wesener is the former Jean Ann Morse of Caro, Michigan.—Reported by JOSEPHINE LOOMIS

Growth in Denver

DENVER, COLORADO.—A total of sixty-eight baptisms was accomplished during 1957 calendar year; this is twice as many as were being baptized in the entire district in any one year a decade ago.

The church at 480 Marion was built in 1949 at a cost of $80,000. In 1955 an addition was added at a cost of $28,000, raising the total cost of the structure to $108,000. It has a total of 11,000 square feet; this includes seven classrooms and a chapel for the children. The University Park mission was purchased in May, 1957, at a cost of $27,000, plus $1,000 for remodeling and $2,600 for new pews. As of July 1, 1958, Denver Branch will have its indebtedness down to $16,000 ($4,000 for Central and $12,000 for University Park).

Central Branch was host in entertaining the Denver Area Council of the Churches of Christ in December, as which time Charles F. Brannan, former U. S. Secretary of Agriculture, member of host church, was elected president. The Executive Secretary, Reverend Harvey W. Hollis, in a letter to Brother Hougas later stated: "Your church hospitality in entertaining our United Church Men's annual dinner was the best public relations I've seen accomplished by a church."

With the passing of Sister Ella Louise Brannan, 94, on September 24, 1957, the number of living charter members was reduced to one, Brother Leo Shupe. Sister Brannan was organist for many years at the Speer and Logan Boulevard church.—Reported by NELL M. LUTZ

Three Men Ordained

BURT, MICHIGAN.—The annual business meeting was held September 18, with District President Warren Chelline presiding. Officers were elected as follows: Elder L. Clinton Loomis, pastor and branch president; Janice Carpenter, director of music and secretary; Craig Munson, recorder; Robert Wesener, financial clerk; Lance Hutton, treasurer; Duane Loomis, church school director; Nora Ashby, women's department leader; William Wesener, Jr., book steward and leader of junior church; William and Hazel Wesener, adult supervisors; David Loomis, youth director; Elna Bechtel, historian; Josephine Loomis, publicity; Frank J. Carpenter, solicitor and Boy Scout representative; William Wesener, Jr., Duane Loomis, and Lawrence Wesener, auditing committee; L. Clinton Loomis, Lance Hutton, Robert Wesener, Lawrence Wesener, and David Loomis, building committee.

Three were ordained May 26. Lance Hutton was ordained a deacon by Brothers Chelline and Richard Zmyslony; Craig Munson was ordained a teacher by Bishop Lewis Landsberg and Brother Chelline; and David Loomis was ordained a teacher by his father,

Reunion Schedule

Reunion Theme: "Jesus Christ Our Heritage and Hope"

DATE	REUNION	PLACE	FOR RESERVATIONS WRITE TO:
May 23-26	German Mission Reunion	Hannover, Germany	Ralph R. Bobbitt 7722 Bobbitt Lane Houston, Texas
June 7-15	Texas	Bandera, Texas	Dr. C. F. Young 1422 River Rd., So. Fargo, North Dakota
June 8-15	Red River	Detroit Lakes, Minnesota	Lester Anderson Manning, North Dakota
June 18-22	Northern Plains	Fairview, Montana	C. R. Richards 1908 S. Broadway Wichita, Kansas
June 21-29	Kansas	Camp Fellowship Wichita, Kansas	Stanley I. Hayes 1 Ardsley Rd. Binghamton, New York
June 28- July 6	New York Metropolitan, Philadelphia Metropolitan, Washington, D.C., & Scranton	Deer Park New Hope, Pennsylvania	Charles J. Hoschouer 733 North Fifth St. Montrose, Colorado
June 29 - July 5	Western Colorado	Presbyterian Camp Grounds Grand Mesa, Colorado	R. L. Morrison Box 453 Rodessa, Louisiana
June 29 - July 6	Arkansas-Louisiana District	Camp Couchdale FFA Camp Hot Springs, Arkansas	Vern Webb Eichstrasse 14a Hannover, Germany
June 30 - July 4	Servicemen's Conference	Berchtesgaden, Bavaria	Eldon W. Dickens 2514 Cottonwood St. Anchorage, Alaska
July 2-6	Alaska	Lake Louise, Alaska	Calvin Crowley Addison, Maine
July 5-13	Maine	Camp Winiaugwamak Brooksville, Maine	William Archer 26 Finch Avenue W Willowdale, Ontario
July 5-13	Owen Sound, Toronto	Port Elgin, Ontario	Duane Couey 1419 Walton Road Memphis 17, Tennessee
July 6-13	Memphis District	Camp Shelby Forest State Park near Memphis, Tennessee	Mrs. D. Cromwell 1525 McTavish St. Regina, Saskatchewan
July 6-13	Saskatchewan	Sandy Lake McDowell, Saskatchewan	S. Lee Pfohl 350 Marvvalle Dr. Buffalo, New York
July 11-19	New York	Allegany State Park	H. W. Cackler 916 W. Lexington Independence, Mo.
July 12-19	Center Stake No. 1	Lake Doniphan Excelsior Springs, Missouri	E. R. Fishburn Box 731 Nauvoo, Illinois
July 12-20	Nauvoo.	Nauvoo, Illinois	Ben L. Jernigan 806 Belleville Ave. Brewton, Alabama
July 12-20	Gulf States	Brewton, Alabama	James C. Phillips 1126 Worden, S. E. Grand Rapids, Michigan
July 12-20	Central, South Central, Lansing & Grand Rapids	Liahona, Sanford, Michigan	J. L. Verhei 3824 S. E. Grant Ct. Portland, Oregon
July 12-20	Columbia River	Lewis River Grounds, Camp Israel, near Battle Ground, Washington	Glen Johnson 445 E. 17th So. Salt Lake City, Utah
July 13-20	Utah & Southeast Idaho	Baptist Camp Ground Liberty, Utah (near Ogden)	H. W. Cackler 916 W. Lexington Independence, Missouri
July 19-26	Center Stake No. 2	Lake Doniphan Excelsior Springs, Missouri	E. Paul Crinzi N. 5506 "G" St. Spokane, Washington
July 19-26	Spokane District	Ross Point, Idaho	E. C. Burdick 5014 V. St. Sacramento 17, California
July 19-26	Sacramento & Central California	Happy Valley Conference Grounds Santa Cruz, California	O. K. Byrn 363 Louise Ave. Highland Park 3, Michigan
July 19-27	Blue Water (Detroit International Stake)	Lexington, Michigan	Willard Becker Box 355 Warrensburg, Missouri
July 19-27	Central Missouri Stake	Odessa, Missouri	D. K. Larmour 7916 - 91 Avenue Edmonton, Alberta
July 19-27	Alberta, Canada	Neutral Hills Reunion Grounds	Jack A. Pray 704 Normal Street Pittsburg, Kansas
July 19-27	Ozark Reunion	Racine, Missouri	Luther Troyer 2526 Main St. Torrington, Wyoming
July 21-28	Black Hills*	Bob Marshall Camp Custer, South Dakota	J. E. Baldwin 1313 E. 30th St. Kansas City 9, Missouri
July 26- August 2	Kansas City Stake	Lake Doniphan Excelsior Springs, Missouri	Luther Walkingwood Merlin, Ontario
July 26- August 3	Chatham, London (Erie Beach)	Erie Beach Blenheim, Ontario	Francis E. Hansen 3851 So. Grand Los Angeles 37, California
July 26- August 3	Los Angeles Stake	Camp Buckhorn Idyllwild, California

*This reunion ends on Monday

July 26- August 3	Northwest	Silver Lake Everett, Washington	Kenneth Logan 2820 North Mason Tacoma, Washington
July 26 - August 3	Lakehurst Reunion	Lakehurst Reunion Park Maquoketa, Iowa	C. M. Beil, 1128 Keith Court, Clinton, Iowa
July 27 August 3	San Francisco Bay District	Happy Valley Conference Grounds Santa Cruz, California	Reed M. Holmes 580 No. Dover Rd. Covina, California
July 27- August 3	Wisconsin, Minnesota	Luther Park Chetek, Wisconsin	O. G. Kimball 190 18th Ave. S. Wisconsin Rapids, Wis.
August 1-5	British Isles Mission Reunion	Enfield, England
August 1-9	Des Moines	Guthrie Grove Reunion Park Guthrie Center, Iowa	Edward G. Beye 2346 E. 13th St. Des Moines, Iowa
August 2-10	Southern New England	Onset, Massachusetts	Victor J. Witte 1386 Massachusetts Ave. Lexington, Massachusetts
August 2-10	Kirtland	Kirtland, Ohio	J. F. Wildermuth 29617 Lake Shore Blvd. Willowick, Ohio
August 2-10	Blue Water (Flint-Port Huron & Eastern Mich- igan Districts)	Lexington, Michigan	Almer Sheehy 1209 Miller Port Huron, Michigan
August 2-10	Southeastern Illinois, Central Illinois & St. Louis	Brush Creek (near Xenia) Illinois	Ronald E. Manuel 4250 No. Grand Blvd. St. Louis, Missouri
August 8-17	Far West Stake	Stewartsville, Missouri	F. L. Dickson 517½ Francis St. St. Joseph, Missouri
August 9-17	Oklahoma	Robbers Cave State Park Wilburton, Oklahoma	O. O. Dollins Wilburton, Oklahoma
August 9-17	Western Iowa	Guthrie Grove Reunion Park Guthrie Center, Iowa	E. L. Edwards Woodbine, Iowa
August 9-17	Southern California District	Camp Buckhorn Idyllwild, California	David B. Carmichael 533 North Main St. Orange, California
August 9-17	Northern & Upper Mich- igan Peninsula Districts (Park of the Pines)	Boyne City, Michigan	Rex Stowe 1307 Dakota Ave. Gladstone, Michigan
August 10-17	Lamoni Stake	Graceland College Campus Lamoni, Iowa	L. W. Kohlman Lamoni, Iowa
August 10-17	Western Montana	Deer Lodge, Montana	Harvey Eliason Route 1 Deer Lodge, Montana
August 10-17	Boise District	Hagerman, Idaho	Lysle Gilmore Hagerman, Idaho
August 15-22	Hawaii	Camp Erdman Mokuleia Oahu, Hawaii	Stephen A. Black 1666 Mott-Smith Drive Honolulu 14, Hawaii
August 16-24	Arizona-New Mexico	Arizona Church Conference Center Camp Prescott, Arizona (Box 1986)	Robert I. Wakeman 67 Cypress Phoenix, Arizona
August 16-24	Northeastern Illinois, Chicago & N. Indiana	Camp Manitou Route 4 Cassopolis, Michigan	James B. Burdick 2399 W. 107th Place Chicago 43, Illinois
August 16-24	Eastern Colorado	Pine Crest Camp Palmer Lake, Colorado	Ward A. Hougas 480 Marion Street Denver 18, Colorado

L. Clinton Loomis, and Elder Ezra Bennett. Mrs. Anna Seegar was baptized this year, and five babies were blessed.

Priesthood visitors have included Apostle Chesworth, Brother Chelline, Bishop Landsberg, District Bishop's Agent Hugh Martin, District Church School Director A. F. Freeze, and Elders Ezra Bennett, Calvin Martin, Richard Zmyslony, Lee Gulick, John O'Brien, and Thor Brimmer.—Reported by JOSEPHINE LOOMIS

Baby Girl Blessed

ESCONDIDO, CALIFORNIA.—Jodee Rae, baby daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Smith of Vista, California, was blessed February 16 by High Priest James Kemp, assisted by Elder Robert Martin.—Reported by MARY J. PHILLIPS

Institute "Abundant Life" Program

KLAMATH FALLS, OREGON.—The mission at Klamath Falls was organized into a branch on April 15, 1957.

Twenty-eight attended the institute at Bend September 1-2. Priesthood members are presenting the "Abundant Life" program. The women have also been active, raising ninety-nine dollars at a dinner, and carrying on other projects. The branch installed a new gas furnace recently.

There were four patriarchal blessings, four baptisms, six babies were blessed, and five ordained during 1957. Baptisms were Elzy Lasley, Bobby Koffler and Ted and Mary Anderson. Waldo Lasley was ordained an elder, Matt Koffler a priest, Dale Coop a deacon, and Kenneth Root a deacon.—Reported by LILA LASHLEY

Women Purchase Chairs for Church

BARSTOW, CALIFORNIA.—On November 10, 1957, two children were blessed: Denise Lynn, daughter of Donald and Lo Reta Phelps, and Johnny Robert, son of Stanley and Violet Tarling. Elder Paul Sturtevant and Elder Donald Phelps officiated.

During November, Missionaries David Judd and Keith Kinart presented the film "The Center Place" at an evening service. This was part of a special stewardship program being conducted in the Mission.

On February 23, Robin Adele, infant daughter of Robert and Helen Beck, was presented for blessing by Bishop Carmichael and Elder Donald Phelps.

The women's department has been very active during the past few months, and has held several successful rummage sales. The proceeds have been used to purchase twenty-five additional folding chairs required to seat the increasing congregation.

Visiting speakers during January and February were Seventy Keith Kinart and Bishop David Carmichael.—Reported by MADGE ANTHONY

Fred Cool Builds Organ for Congregation

TEMPLE CITY, CALIFORNIA.—The Temple City congregation of Los Angeles Stake dedicated their new pipe organ Sunday afternoon, February 23, with a concert. Frank Lysinger was the organist and Kay Dunster soloist. Harry K. Waylett, presiding elder, introduced Fred N. Cool, builder of the organ, who gave a brief history of organs, this one in particular, explaining the features which make it especially fitted for its intended use.

The occasion was of significance to the Saints of Temple City not only because of dedicating the organ, but also because of regard for the builder. Fred Cool spent part of his school years in Temple City and endeared himself to all.—Reported by ZULA SHEPPARD

Business Conference

COLUMBUS, OHIO.—The annual conference convened October 20 under the direction of Elder E. E. Smith, president of the Columbus District. The theme was "The Joy of the Kingdom."

Apostle A. A. Oakman brought the preaching ministry.

Officers for 1958 are as follows: E. E. Smith, district president, with the pastors of the district as counselors; Donna Overly, secretary; Robert E. Bradford, treasurer; Lucinda M. Madden, auditor; J. D. Overly, director of religious education; Betty Griffin, leader of women; Brother Keene, leader of youth; Kenneth Stubbart, music; Mabel Smith, publicity; C. H. Hamilton, nonresident pastor; Ethel Kirkendall, historian; H. A. Griffin, bishop's agent. Various committees were also appointed.—Reported by MABEL SMITH

Annual Meeting

OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLAHOMA.—The district conference met February 16 in Oklahoma City, with Apostle D. Blair Jensen in charge, assisted by District President O. O. Dollins of Wilburton, Oklahoma. A fellowship service began the day's activities, and Brother Jensen was the eleven o'clock speaker.

The women's organization prepared and served dinner to about 190 persons. A silver offering was taken to pay expenses.

Officers for 1958 are as follows: O. O. Dollins, district president (for fifth consecutive year); Otis Stephens and Clifford Gaither, counselors. The same officers as for 1957 were re-elected and sustained.

The following ordinations were approved: Jack Hammill of Muskogee, priest; Robert Kirby, Del City, priest; James Van Groesbeck, Del City, priest; William R. Craig, Del City, deacon; and Clay Ward, Haileyville, teacher.

Thirty-eight baptisms were reported for the district for 1957.

Oklahoma City has remodeled and rededicated the lower auditorium of its church building and plans have been made to begin work on the upper sanctuary soon. El Reno Saints are worshiping in a new building recently constructed. Calumet Branch has been disorganized, and that group attends at El Reno.—Reported by ETHEL B. DILLON

Seven Baptisms

SAULT STE MARIE, ONTARIO.—A recent series of preaching and cottage meetings by Missionary Glenn E. Johnston and local priesthood members proved fruitful when seven were baptized. Those baptized were confirmed one week later, prior to Communion.—Reported by FLOYD H. EDWARDS

Bulletin Board

Services in Chicago, Illinois

Members of the First Chicago congregation are now holding services in their new church home at 5701 West Montrose. Two new missions have been established in Chicago. Home-wood mission meets in the VFW Hall, 18147 Harwood Avenue in Homewood; the LeClaire Courts mission at 4340 South Lamon, Chicago 38, Illinois. Brainerd Church is located at 8805 South Throop.

Services in Boston Area

Boston Branch has moved its entire operation to 1386 Massachusetts Avenue in Lexington. Visitors and servicemen may call Pastor Albert L. Fisher (Winchester 6-3097 or Kenmore 6-4647) for information.

Services in Metropolitan New York City

Brooklyn and Queens area: YMCA, 570 Jamaica Avenue, Highland Park; pastor, W. S. Lord, 74 Beechwood Avenue, Port Washington (telephone PO 7-3942)

Long Island area, Hicksville mission: home of Seventy Loyd Adams, 27 Parkway Drive, Clearview Village, Hicksville (telephone WELLS 1-5859); pastor, Wilbert Richards, 14 Oxford Lane, Bethpage (telephone WELLS 8-0456)

New Jersey, Newark Branch: Adoniram Temple (Masonic), 321 Second Avenue, Lyndhurst, New Jersey; pastor, A. E. Starks (telephone SUMmit 6-2721 J)

Norwalk, Connecticut: church at 2 Mill Street, Broad River, Norwalk; pastor, Clifford Webb (telephone WOODward 6-0443)

New Haven, Connecticut: Redmen's Hall, New Street, West Haven, Connecticut; pastor, Don Crowell (telephone WEst 4-1879)

Further information, if necessary, may be obtained from the district president, Perce R. Judd, WELLS 1-8949.

Manhattan and Bronx area: Earl Hall of Columbia University, 116 Street and Broadway, Manhattan; leader, Leland Negaard, 247 Fort Lee Road, Leonia, New Jersey (telephone, WINDsor 4-3056), or contact District Missionary Loyd Adams. Services at present at 3:00 p.m.

TV Program by Chicago District

The Chicago District has been invited to present a half-hour program in the WGN-TV weekly series, "Faith of Our Fathers," Sunday, April 13, from 8:30 to 9:00 A.M., Central Standard Time.

This will be a live television program with District President Lyle W. Woodstock presenting the sermon. A special district choir will appear in the program to furnish music for the service.

WGN-TV broadcasts on Channel 9 and may be viewed over a wide area. Our church members are urged to tell their friends so a maximum audience will benefit. A note of appreciation to the station after the presentation will be helpful for the future, and a courtesy to the station for this fine opportunity.

Elder and Mrs. Woodstock have been very active in Chicago radio and television activities, resulting in many radio appearances. These efforts on behalf of the church are greatly appreciated.

CHARLES F. CHURCH, JR.
Director of Radio

Notice to Members in Indiana and Ohio

Mrs. T. E. Franklin will appreciate having members contact these two isolated Saints: Mrs. C. W. Minor, Box 108, Staunton, Indiana, and Mrs. Ralph Flowers, Jr., P. O. Box 302, Galion, Ohio.

Northwest Older Youth Conference

A week-end conference for college students, military personnel, and other young people of the Northwest is scheduled at the Lewis River Camp Grounds, April 25, 26, 27. Guest leaders will include Apostle Percy Farrow, Seventy James Daugherty, Howard Sheehy, Carl Mesle, and other leaders in the area. For information write to Robert Dixon, 540 S.E. 176th Place, Portland, Oregon.

Serviceman's Address

Capt. (and Mrs.) Myron Thomason
470-F Prichard Place
Fort Knox, Kentucky

Capt. Thomason was ordained recently to the office of priest. He and his wife, the former Janice Hyde, will welcome all military and civilian members in the area.

Books Wanted

John A. Crabb, 6112 Broadway, Indianapolis, Indiana, wants copies of the following: McGregor's Marvelous Work and a Wonder, Luff's Old Jerusalem Gospel, Roth's Gospel Messenger, Haworth's Fall of Babylon, and R. C. Evans' Sermons. He asks to be told the price and condition of the books before receiving them.

Mrs. E. J. Esgar, 501 Stanford Road, Burbank, California, would like to obtain a copy of the Memoirs of W. W. Blair. Please contact her concerning price and condition of the book before mailing it.

Periodicals Wanted

The Department of Religious Education needs the July and October, 1932, issues of the High Priest's Bulletin (Volume I, Nos. 1 and 2), and the Priesthood Journal for January, 1935 (Volume I, No. 3).

If you have these issues which you would be willing to sell, write to J. E. Keck, the Auditorium, Independence, Missouri, telling him the condition of the periodicals and the price wanted.

ENGAGEMENT

Lucas-Whiting

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Whiting of Forest Grove, Oregon, announce the engagement of their daughter, Carmen Kay, to Gary Robert Lucas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond R. Lucas of Berkeley, California. Both are students at Graceland College. A summer wedding is planned.

Williams-Lohr

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Lohr of Harper Woods, Michigan, announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary Lou, to Arlton M. Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fleet Williams of East Detroit, Michigan. Mary Lou attended Graceland in 1953.

Bettis-Cavanaugh

Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Cavanaugh of Van Nuys, California, announce the engagement of their daughter, Patti, to Robert E. Bettis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Bettis of Sun Valley, California. A June wedding is planned.

Moore-Wood

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Wood of Van Nuys, California, announce the engagement of their daughter, Roxanna Lee, to George S. Moore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alton Moore of Canoga Park, California. A June wedding is planned.

Ruble-Chapman

Mr. and Mrs. Roy A. Chapman of Garden City, Kansas, announce the engagement of their daughter, Alice LaVon, to Ronald Glen Ruble, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. V. Ruble of Corydon, Iowa. Both live in Des Moines, Iowa, and the wedding will be held May 4 in the Des Moines Central Church. The bride-to-be is a graduate of Graceland College.

Gilbert-Traver

Mr. and Mrs. David Haseltine of Lamoni, Iowa, announce the engagement of their daughter, Sandra Traver, to Gene Gilbert, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Gilbert of Miami, Oklahoma. Sandra is a senior at Graceland, and Gene, a '54 graduate of Graceland, is a senior at Kansas State Teachers College in Pittsburg. No date has been set for the wedding.

Be sure to read

"ASK YOUR CLASS
TO WRITE A PSALM"

by Roberta Garrett

Adult Church School Teacher in Nauvoo, Illinois

in the Summer issue of

GUIDELINES TO LEADERSHIP

Yearly subscription rates: U. S. $2.00

Canada $2.25 other countries $2.50

WEDDINGS

Schmidt-Howe

Judy Diane Howe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Howe of Independence, Missouri, and A 3/c Ralph Otto Schmidt, son of Mrs. Agnes Ricten of Hannover, Germany, and the late Otto Schmidt, were married December 21, 1957, at the East Alton Reorganized Church in Independence, Elder Lew Richards officiating. The bride is making her home in Independence while the groom is stationed in Korea.

Ballew-Ibsen

Edith Ibsen, daughter on Mr. and Mrs. Claus Ibsen of Fremont, Nebraska, and Bobby J. Ballew, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Ballew of Warren, Arizona, were married in a double-ring ceremony at the Reorganized Church in Tucson, Arizona, January 19, Pastor L. D. Weldon officiating. The groom is attending the University of Arizona. They are making their home in Warren.

Bowman-Sagle

Ellen Sagle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Sagle of Sault Ste Marie, Ontario, and Richard Bowman, stationed with the U. S. Air Force at Kinross, Michigan, were married in a double-ring ceremony on March 8 at the Reorganized Church in Sault Ste Marie, Elder A. R. Nott officiating. They are making their home in Sault, Michigan.

Henry-Prater

Rosetta Prater, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Prater of Portsmouth, Ohio, and Edward Henry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Henry, of West Portsmouth, were married February 14 at the Reorganized Church in West Portsmouth, by Elder Ralph Bobbitt.

Bates-DeBlieck

Constance Joanne DeBlieck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Wear of Wainwright, Alberta, and Albert Edward Bates, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bates of Calgary, Alberta, were married March 8 in a double-ring ceremony at the Reorganized Church in Calgary, Pastor Angus McLeod officiating. After a month's honeymoon in Hawaii they will make their home in Calgary.

ADOPTION

Victor H. Lancaster of Lamoni, Iowa, announces the adoption of Billy A. and Ronald D. Bryant, his wife's sons by a former marriage. Mrs. Lancaster is the former Miss Talitha Snethen of Davis City, Iowa.

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. Glen L. Bruch of Ogden, Utah, announce the birth of a son, Michael Glen, born February 14. Mr. Bruch is a graduate of Graceland College, class of '53.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Peters became the parents of a son, George Albert, on December 11, 1957. He was blessed on February 9 by Elder Sidney Price.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Lyon of Camp Pendleton, California, became the parents of a son, Daniel David, on October 10, 1957. He was blessed on January 5 by Elder W. F. Spillman and High Priest Ward Hougas in Denver, Colorado. Mrs. Lyon is the former Shirley Spillman. Both parents attended Central Missouri State College at Warrensburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hampton of Escondido, California, became the parents of a daughter, Robin Lynn, on January 6. Mrs. Hampton is the former Mary Brockman of Independence, Missouri. Both parents are graduates of Graceland College.

Mr. and Mrs. Carlton C. Hutton of Burt, Michigan, became the parents of a son, Duane Carlton, on September 1, 1957. He was blessed on November 10 by Elder L. Clinton Loomis. Mrs. Hutton is the former Jean Everest of Boyne City, Michigan.

Mr. and Mrs. Milo M. Rushton of Saginaw, Michigan, became the parents of a son, David Milo, on September 10. He was blessed on October 13 by his grandfather, Elder L. Clinton Loomis. Mrs. Rushton is the former Evelyn Loomis of Burt, Michigan.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Ashby of Montrose, Michigan, became the parents of a son, Richard Vincent, on March 19, 1957. He was blessed on April 28 by Elder L. Clinton Loomis. Mrs. Ashby is the former Nora Overholt of Marion, Michigan.

Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Kent of Streetsville, Ontario, announce the birth of a daughter, Janis Mary, born February 8 at Peel Memorial Hospital in Brampton.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Earl Short of Independence, Missouri, announce the birth of a son, Steven Henry, born March 11 at Research Hospital. Mrs. Short is the former Alta Marie Davis.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas E. Loveland, Sr., of Kansas City, Missouri, became the parents of a son, Steven Reese, on December 28, 1957. He was blessed on March 2 by Elders Francis W. Holm and L. B. Wolf. Mrs. Loveland is the former Alta Young.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Johnson of Mattawa, Washington, became the parents of a son, Neal Allen, on December 15, 1957. Mrs. Johnson is the former Barbara Richardson.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Frickey of Sheridan, Wyoming, announce the birth of a son, Dean Allen, born March 10. Mrs. Frickey, the former Shirley Rogge, is a graduate of Graceland College, class of '53.

Lt. and Mrs. Robert E. Dorr of Little Rock, Arkansas, announce the birth of a son, Thomas Richard, born February 19. Mrs. Dorr, the former Barbara Ely, is a graduate of Graceland College, class of '53.

Mr. and Mrs. Orlen Reid became the parents of a daughter, Rhonda Kay, on January 8 at the Burlington Hospital. She was blessed on March 9 by Elder Norman Page at Seibert, Colorado.

Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Rasmussen of Council Bluffs, Iowa, announce the birth of a son, Michael Floyd, born March 4. Mrs. Rasmussen is the former Janet Reneau. Both parents are Graceland College graduates.

Mr. and Mrs. James E. Packer of Midland, Michigan, became the parents of a son, Jeffrey Thomas, on November 20. He was blessed on February 23 by Elders Robert E. Campbell and Claude E. Ludy.

We're on the Air . . .

STATE AND CITY	CALL LETTERS	DIAL READING	DAY AND TIME
ALABAMA, Atmore	WATM	1580	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
ALABAMA, Evergreen	WBLO	1470	Sunday, 9:00 a.m.
ARKANSAS, Jonesboro	KNEA	970	Sunday, 9:00 a.m.
CALIFORNIA, Wasco	KWSO	1050	Sunday, 7:15 a.m.
COLORADO, Durango	KIUP	980	Sunday, 9:45 a.m.
COLORADO, Montrose	KUBC	1260	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
FLORIDA, Crestview	WJSE	1050	Monday, 9:00 a.m.
FLORIDA, Orlando	WLOF	950	Sunday, 7:45 a.m.
IDAHO, Sand Point	KSPT	1400	Sunday, 6:15 p.m.
ILLINOIS, Herrin	WJPF	1340	Sunday, 7:45 a.m.
ILLINOIS, Moline	WQUA	1230	Sunday, 8:15 a.m.
ILLINOIS, Mt. Vernon	WMIX (FM 94.1)	940	Sunday, 12:15 p.m.
KANSAS, Concordia	KFRM	550	Sunday, 8:30 a.m.
MICHIGAN, Bad Axe	WLEW	1340	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
MICHIGAN, Flint	WMRP	1570	Friday, 10:00 a.m.
MICHIGAN, Houghton Lake	WHGR	1290	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
MINNESOTA, Detroit Lakes	KDLM	1360	Sunday, 8:45 a.m.
MISSOURI, Fulton	KPAL	900	Sunday, 8:15 a.m.
MISSOURI, Kansas City	KMBC	980	Sunday, 8:30 a.m.
NEW MEXICO, Clovis	KCLV	1240	Sunday, 7:45 a.m.
NEW YORK, Hornell	WWHG	1320	Sunday, 10:30 a.m.
NORTH DAKOTA, Valley City	KOVG	1490	Sunday, 6:00 p.m.
OHIO, New Philadelphia	WJER	1450	Sunday, 8:30 p.m.
ONTARIO, Guelph	CJOY	1450	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
ONTARIO, St. Thomas	CHLO	680	Sunday, 10:45 a.m.
ONTARIO, Sault Ste Marie	CJJC	1050	Sunday, 8:15 a.m.
OREGON, Lakeview	KQIK	1230	Sunday, 2:00 p.m.
PENNSYLVANIA, Charleroi	WESA	940	Sunday, 8:30 a.m.
TENNESSEE, Paris	WTPR	710	Sunday, 7:45 a.m.
WASHINGTON, Vancouver	KHFS	1150	Sunday, 8:30 a.m.
WEST VIRGINIA, Parkersburg	WCEF	1050	Sunday, 12:05 p.m.
WISCONSIN, Richland Center	WRCO	1450	Sunday, 8:15 a.m.

1958

Vacation

Church

School

Manuals

Theme: Jesus, the Everliving Savior

Principal's and Worship $1.00
Junior .90
Primary .90
Kindergarten .90

Box 477
Independence, Missouri

Box 382
Guelph, Ontario, Canada

And Finally...

Mrs. Alex Weber
1411 - 2nd Ave. S.
Denison, Iowa

10420
10-58
h

BLOW A TUBE

At the approach of the Christmas season an Independence family had a calamity—the picture tube on the television went out. To miss all the beauties of the screen portrayals was unthinkable. But while it was out they enjoyed some family experiences they hadn't realized they had been missing.

Now it's the Easter season and the tube is still out. Nerves are less jangled, the children are more amenable, and all are experiencing a feeling of having returned from a long journey.

Must we try all the new to prove the value of the old?

A. F. S.

TOP MAN ON THE PUBLICITY POLE

Last night I listened to an important nuclear physicist describe our future in atomic energy and in space.

I marveled at his knowledge of things so hard for me to understand. What tremendous contributions this man and others like him are making, I thought. They are men of great worth to our society.

And thinking about worth my mind jumped to a comparison of society's values. I recently read that Elvis Presley's yearly earnings as a rock 'n roll singer topped a million dollars. And in another source I read that the Army's top scientist in space satellite development, Dr. Von Braun, is earning $15,000 a year.

Our values seem out of whack! What will Elvis' work mean to society in twenty years? What benefits will society receive from pioneering work of men like Von Braun?

Shouldn't the scientist who is leading us to a vast new world of development be the man we reward and idolize rather than the singer?

Then I saw the logic of it and had to admit that things are better the way they are now.

Contents

EDITORIAL AND OFFICIAL
Kinds of Critics, by Chris B. Hartshorn	3
Let Your Light So Shine, by Chris B. Hartshorn	3
Appointment of Bishop's Agent, Hawaiian District	4
New President for Memphis District	4
New President for Arkansas- Louisiana District	4
New President for Miami- Pittsburg District	4
New President for District of Hawaii	4
Correction	4
Across the Desk	4
FEATURE ARTICLES
Museum Features Auditorium History	2
Effective Techniques for Evangelism, by D. O. Chesworth	5
The God of Whom We Sing, by Franklyn S. Weddle	7
College Workshop Discusses Future, by Roger Yarrington	8
Adapted to the Weakest, by Mrs. A. L. Gibson	10
A visit to Mormon Mill, by Millard Payne	12
Three Roads to Racial Peace and Good Will, reprint, by Clarence Poe	14
A New Church for Prairie Village	17
SPECIAL COLUMNS
Book Review	16
I Had an Experience, by O. C. Henson, Jr.	17
Question Time	18
Sanscripts	19
Letters	19
Briefs	20
Reunion Schedule	20
Bulletin Board	22
And Finally	24

If we have to have such menaces as hysterical hero-worshippers and autograph hounds, let them waste the time of Elvis. He has nothing better to do. And let the scientist live in peace and do his work. I'm sure he will be happier that way.

R. Y.

TROUBLESOME ABBREVIATIONS

Enough people write the editor asking about two common terms used in literature to keep us aware that they are troublesome to the average reader. These handy tools for writers are abbreviations: "anon." and "ibid." The first means that the writer prefers not to identify himself, therefore he writes anonymously or "without a name."

The second one comes from the word "ibidem," meaning "in the same place." In giving several references to source books, time and space is saved by referring to the same place or source, though it is often to a different page. The abbreviation "ibid." therefore refers one to the last source quoted.

Both of these terms will be found in the alphabetical listing of your dictionary. If you have no dictionary or if you forget, write the editor. These are about the easiest questions we have to answer, and we rather like the easy ones.

C. B. H.

DOWN-TO-EARTH NEWS

The six o'clock reporter on the morning newscast following the launching of Explorer III gave the globe-circling satellite fifth-place mention. What came first? Tidbits from the Soviet, then details on an overnight robbery, comments on the current murder trial, and statistics from the latest car accident. Headlines announcing Cape Canaveral send-offs have dropped a good thirty points in type size. Predictions are that hundreds of the chrome-plated travelers may be sent eventually into outer space. No doubt they will be third-page news by then, and sometime during a conversational lull in the coffee break somebody may come through with, "See, we're still spending money on little moons..." and punctuate his statement with a yawn.

Science may be wonderful, but crime and "car"nage are still the reporter's chief stock in trade.

N. R.

Now available in 3 durable bindings

THE HYMNAL

- * gray cloth $2.75
- * loose-leaf binder $4.00
- dark blue leather $8.50

* Quantity prices available upon request.

Box 477
Independence, Missouri

Box 382
Guelph, Ontario, Canada

SAINTS' HERALD

Volume 105 / April 14, 1958 / Number 15

Photo by Tom Olson

A New Face for Guelph Church
(Page 16)

www.LatterDayTruth.org

*After a Three-Year Mission
They Testify of Many Blessings
To the Saints in Scandinavia*

MISSIONARY FAMILY RETURNS

photograph by Keith B. Stokes

Seventy James Everett and his wife Ardis with their two daughters, Mary Lynne and Randi, in front of the Auditorium in Independence

"We feel that the Lord has been very generous in his spiritual testimony to the Saints in Scandinavia. Because of this, the work there is well established and the Saints have a great desire to do the will of the Lord."

This is the testimony of Jim and Ardis Everett who recently returned with their two daughters—Mary Lynne and Randi—from a three-and-a-half-year mission to Scandinavia.

"The Saints in Scandinavia are not held to the church by any of the things that we here in the States have come to consider necessary," Brother Everett said. "Many of them have never seen a church building owned by the restored church. Many do not know what it is to read Scriptures, histories, or tracts published by our church. However, they are held to the church by the testimony of the Holy Spirit."

Brother Everett said the outstanding conviction developed by his years in Scandinavia is that the restored church is a world church.

"Perhaps an illustration of this conviction is the experience we often heard from our priesthood members in Scandinavia," he said. "Men of the priesthood would come to me and say, 'Brother Everett, a person asked me about this point of doctrine. I didn't know the church's teaching so I prayed about it, and this seemed to be the answer. Did I represent the church correctly?'"

"These priesthood men have never had training classes or priesthood manuals in their native language," Brother Everett explained. "On many precise points of church doctrine there is every opportunity for them to make an error in explaining what the church believes. But time and again when they have prayed for direction they have received the right answer. When they have come to me and asked if they have represented the church correctly, invariably it has turned out that they have come up with exactly the doctrine the church teaches."

"It seems to me this is a testimony of the universality of the church. We have a theological unity all over the world that is brought about by the Spirit of God and not by any man-made system of teaching."

Brother and Sister Everett were accompanied to the United States by Ragnhild Fossum of Oslo, Norway, who plans to work in Independence for the next year. She is the daughter of Elder Olaf Fossum, pastor of the Oslo mission.

They left Seventy Richard Andersen and his wife Wanda as the only appointee family in Scandinavia. The Andersens will soon be joined by Seventy Frederick C. Banta and his family. Brother Banta was formerly assigned to the San Francisco Bay District.

Although members of the Scandinavian mission are united in their desire to serve God, many needs must be met in the future, Brother Everett emphasized.

Foremost among these is the need for a church home in the mission. "We need a church building to help prove we are in Scandinavia to stay. A church without a church home is looked upon as a transient sect by outsiders."

(Continued on page 9)

Authors in This Issue

William S. Gould (page 5), Acting President of Graceland College

Nelle Morgan, R.N. (page 8), Director of Nursing, Independence Sanitarium

Pauline J. Arnson (page 10), Member of General Council of Women

Roger Yarrington (page 12), Assistant Editor

Ronald E. Manuel (page 14), High Priest, St. Louis, Missouri

Ferne Gould Whitehead (page 16), Guelph, Ontario

www.LatterDayTruth.org

The Importance of Quality

"Let us go on unto perfection."—Hebrews 6: 1.

PERHAPS THIS IS A TIME when it would help the church for all members of the ministry, the teaching staff, and the operating personnel of the congregations to become more concerned than they have been in the past with the quality of their work and service.

Up to the present time many have been necessarily engaged in quantity production. There have been so many urgent and unfinished tasks, so much to be accomplished, and always with too few heads to plan and hands to help. All of their lives have been engaged in a race against time.

If someone was doing a good work in a certain place, it was assumed that his energies could be further divided, and that another job could be added to his load, with no inquiry as to what the effects on the quality of his work would be.

In many locales, some people are attempting to perform too many tasks because they have been asked, because the work needed to be done, and because they hated to refuse. Therefore standards of quality have suffered.

Nobody should be hurt or offended if it is said that we need better worship programs in the church, better sermons, better pastoral ministry, and better missionary work. Those who are trying to devote their best efforts to the work of God will be the first to admit the need of improvement, of higher quality, of better training, of more significant contributions in all branches of service. Local leaders accept these thoughts realistically because they are humble. Those engaged heavily in the work are more keenly aware of the need than anybody else.

We are far short of perfection. We have progressed a little way. Now let us begin to improve ourselves so that we can give a better quality of service to God and the people.

There is more work in the world than all of us can do. It was there before we were born. It will still be there when we are dead. The larger situation must be left in the hands of God.

A story was recently told of two ministers who were traveling to a conference. One was relaxed, anticipating the good things of the meeting, and looking forward to seeing his friends. The other was worried, upset, fearing the worst, wanting to get his hands on the controls, wanting to advise leaders and warn them. He was quite miserable, and he tried hard to disturb his companion, who suddenly asked him, "George, was God able to take care of the world before you came?" Surprised, George answered, "Yes." His friend continued, "And will God be able to run the world after you are dead?" George grunted a grudging "Yes." Further, "And if you quit breathing right now, could God carry on without you?" George, annoyed, snorted, "Of course!" "Very well," said his friend blithely, "let's relax. Everything is under control. Let God run the world his way!"

We just can't try to do all things in God's place. There is a point of diminishing returns in service and operations where quantity of production can be increased only at the sacrifice of quality. This applies to factories, the lives of people, and the ministry of the church. If we would keep up quality, we must prevent the dispersion of our powers over too wide an area.

THIS WE NEED to realize: We cannot take more power out of the individual human reservoir than God put into it. If we try to do this, in spite of wisdom and counsel, we risk the danger of running our mortal conveyances "out of gas." In other words, when a person works beyond his capacity, he may destroy his health and physical equipment. He also lowers the quality of his work.

In his second epistle to Timothy (2: 15), Paul wrote of the goal of attainment for "a workman that needeth not to be ashamed." It would be a splendid thing for us and for the church if we could advance our training and preparation so that we should never feel embarrassment for the gift of love and service that we offer to God.

Everywhere and always, quality counts. Is anything less than the best good enough for God, for his church, and for his people? Let us not be content with what we have been yesterday and until now but set new standards of attainment and strive ever onward that, though we may never reach perfection, we shall be moving toward it.

L. J. L.

Official

1958 Reunion Theme

The theme for the 1958 reunions will be "Jesus Christ, Our Heritage and Hope." (Changed from "Jesus Christ in History" by recent Joint Council action.)

Following are suggestions for sermon themes, prayer meeting themes, and study materials. You will note the opportunity for choice in many of these areas.

Suggested Key Ideas for Sermons

Jesus Christ—Central Theme of Our Heritage

Jesus Christ—Source of All Light and Power

Jesus Christ—Marvelous Counselor

Jesus Christ—The Prince of Peace

Jesus Christ—The Righteous Judge

Jesus Christ—The Pillar of Hope

Jesus Christ—King of All Life

Jesus Christ—The Example

Jesus Christ—The Everlasting Father

Jesus Christ—Redeemer and Savior

Prayer Meeting Theme Suggestions

I Will Be Ever Thankful for My Heritage and Hope

I Will Be True to My Gospel Trust

I Will Build on the Foundation of the Gospel

I Will Share My Gospel Heritage

I Will Invest My Heritage of Talents

I Will Strive for Spiritual Worthiness

I Will Honor My Heritage of Home and Family

I Will Be a Worthy Heir

I Will Always Seek the Way of Repentance

I Will Amplify the Life of Christ

Study Materials—will be available from Herald House

Prepared by Department of Religious Education:

Children's materials

Junior High materials

Youth materials

Prepared by the Council of Women:

Women's materials

Men's class materials may be selected from the following existing literature which is available from Herald House.

Authority and Spiritual Power, by F. Henry Edwards

By What Authority, by Roy Cheville
Whosoever Repenteth, by L. Wayne Updike

Rules and Resolutions

Our Families in the World of Communication

Our Family Spirit

Personal and Social Standards of Our Families

Democracy in Our Families

Working Together in Our Families

Man Does Not Stand Alone, by A. Cressy Morrison

Strengthening the Spiritual Life, by Nels F. S. Ferre

General class materials may be selected from the following existing literature which is available from Herald House.

Whosoever Repenteth, by L. Wayne Updike

Authority and Spiritual Power, by F. Henry Edwards

The Latter Day Saints and Family Life, by Roy A. Cheville

Christ Is the Way, the Truth, and the Life, by Lynn Smith

Faith for New Frontiers, by Clifford A. Cole

The Power of Stewardship, by Earl T. Higdon

Stewardship Opportunities and Responsibilities, by the Presiding Bishopric

Of course, all this is merely suggestive; reunion leaders are free to select other materials and approaches to classwork.

CHARLES D. NEFF

Assistant to the First Presidency

District Boundary Changes

The Joint Council of the First Presidency, Council of Twelve, and Presiding Bishopric took action at its recent session to bring about the following district boundary changes:

Utah and Southeast Idaho District

The following counties were added to the Utah and Southeast Idaho District: Lincoln, Sweetwater, and Uinta Counties in Wyoming and Bonneville County, Idaho.

Central Texas District

The Central Texas District was divided into the Northeast and Southeast Texas Districts:

Northeast Texas District

Includes the following counties and branches and missions: Cooke, Grayson, Fannin, Jack, Wise, Denton, Collin, Hunt, Hopkins, Titus, Camp, Franklin, Palo Pinto, Parker, Tarrant, Dallas, Rockwall, Rains, Wood, Upshur, Morris, Erath, Hood, Somervell, Johnson, Kaufman, Van Zandt, Smith, Rusk, Harrison, Panola, Henderson, Bosque, Hill, Navarro, Anderson, Cherokee, Shelby, Hamilton, McLennan, Limestone, Freestone, Coryell, Bell, Falls, Gregg, Ellis, and Marion, counties.

Dallas, Fort Worth, Marlin, Waco, Longview branches and missions.

The Northeast Texas District conference will be held on Sunday, May 18, at the Dallas church. District officers will be elected at that time. The schedule for the day will include a 9:30 a.m. prayer service, 11:00 a.m. preaching, and 2:00 p.m. business meeting.

In the meantime the administration of the Central Texas District will continue as it has in the past.

Southeast Texas District

Includes the following counties and branches and missions: Nacogdoches, Leon, Houston, Angelina, Augustine, Sabine, Robertson, Madison, Trinity, Jackson, Washington, Milam, Brazos, Grimes, Walker, San Jacinto, Polk, Tyler, Jasper, Newton, Victoria, Lee, Burleson, Montgomery, Liberty, Hardin, Orange, Fayette, Austin, Waller, Matagorda, Harris, Chambers, Jefferson, Colorado, Lavaca, Fort Bend, Wharton, Brazoria, Galveston, and Calhoun counties. Houston Heights, Pasadena, Bellaire, Victoria, Bryan, Hearn and the Sabine Area (Beaumont, Orange, Port Arthur) branches and missions.

Apostle C. R. Hield has announced that a Southeast Texas District confer-

(Continued on page 17)

The Saints' Herald

Vol. 105 April 14, 1958 No. 15

EDITORS: The First Presidency: Israel A. Smith, F. Henry Edwards, W. Wallace Smith. ASSISTANTS: Chris E. Hartshorn, Managing Editor; Naomi Russell, Assistant Editor; Paul A. Wellington, Assistant Editor; Roger Yarrington, Assistant Editor; Audrey Stub-

bart, Copy Editor; and Leonard J. Lea, Contributing Editor. BUSINESS MANAGER, Kenneth L. Graham.

The Saints' Herald is the official publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, with headquarters at The Auditorium, Independence, Missouri, and is issued through the offices of Herald Publishing House, 108 South Osage Street, Independence, Missouri.

Herald editors are not responsible for the views and opinions expressed in articles or communications other than those of editorial authorship.

Entered as second-class matter at the post office at Independence, Missouri, under Act of March 3, 1879. Issued weekly at Independence, Missouri, except daily during the biennial General Conference. Price, $4.00 per year in advance in the U.S.A., its territories and possessions; Canada, $4.25 per year; other countries, $5.00 per year. Notice of a change of address must be given three weeks ahead of the date that it is to become effective. Accepted for mailing at the special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917, authorized July 21, 1921. Printed in the United States of America.

Graceland Convocation Address

By William S. Gould

The Educated Man

IT WOULD BE APPROPRIATE at the opening convocation of the school year to take an official group portrait. I suppose many of you are too young to recall the cameras which swiveled on the tripod to make the long, narrow pictures you have seen of large gatherings. Even though I might use a modern wide-angle lens on a stationary portrait camera this morning, you would hardly expect to be able to recognize yourself in such a large group picture. Instead of taking your picture with a camera, I am going to try to create a word picture of you. I hope that you will recognize yourself in parts of this picture, and I hope that by the time you are ready to leave Graceland you will find this word picture to be an accurate portrait of the person you have become.

I have heard of a theory advanced by certain anthropologists that if we could superimpose the image of one man on another in a gigantic, multiple-exposure portrait that averaged all of the physical features of every living man, the resulting portrait would actually be the ideal man—handsome, well-built, and graceful. By the same process, if we were to combine all of the features of every woman in the world into the golden average, the figure would resemble our ideal of feminine beauty. I don't know whether or not this is true. It does have a certain surface appeal as we think of the great common man created in the image of God. However, each of us can see obvious differences between ourselves and this physical ideal. Some of us are too fat, some too thin, some too bald, some too tall. It is clear that I can't paint a word picture that would mirror a physical likeness of each of you. Yet I believe that in spite of our physical differences, there is a recognizable portrait that might well be labeled "the educated man."

Everyone loves to look at his own picture. I suspect that in every group picture which included you that you have ever seen, you have immediately started to search for yourself. Before we get too engrossed in looking at the Graceland version of the educated man, let me remind you that thousands of other men and women bear him a striking resemblance, even though they have never been to college. We have no patent on ideal manhood and womanhood. We do have a Graceland culture which encourages and hastens the growth of such a person.

NOW—TO WORK. For the moment this assembly hall will be our darkroom, and in the next few minutes we will try to develop a picture.

If you have worked in a darkroom and have waited for the image to slowly emerge in the pan of developing fluid, you know that you usually have a reasonably clear idea of what the picture is supposed to look like. You watch for certain features. If you are fearful that a certain part may be underexposed, you rub it a little as it begins to appear, to try to hasten the action of the developer.

Let's list a few of the dominant features you will look for as your image emerges in the educational darkroom. Then you can decide which of these features need your special attention. Our portrait this morning will not be complete. It will include just a few crucial features which you should develop.

THE FIRST FEATURE of the educated man is that he uses his own language precisely, accurately, and to some extent gracefully. In high school you were required to take English, and here at Graceland you must take communication. This is the reason. Unless you talk like an educated person, no one will believe that you are one. Language is the foundation of your power to reason. You can't think a thought unless you know the words to express it. You can feel feelings without words, but you can't think thoughts without them.

Words are the tools with which you think. Therefore, as a scholar you might compare yourself to a carpenter. Words are your tools. You put these words together to form a language and to think. You can never really convince people you are educated until you learn to use your language as educated people do—to speak and write with accuracy and clarity.

You may excel in certain narrow specialties, but you will never convince others that you are educated. Unless you can express your thoughts so others will understand you, knowledge is of little value to you. Steinmetz, the great physicist, found this out. He had ideas and he knew that they would work, but no one else could understand them. He finally decided that if anyone was ever going to use his ideas he would have to write a college text book. He wrote it. Then he found that it was necessary for him to write a high school text book that would precede it, so he took the time to write these textbooks, and explained to others these thoughts that had been locked up in his mind. Einstein had the same problems. He became a writer, and his books are among the most precious in our heritage; but he had to learn to write so that others could understand.

SCOND, THE EDUCATED MAN bases his thinking and acting on facts, not on pride or passion, prejudice or partisanship. Looking at the facts and basing your decision on them is frankly painful. Tennyson told the story of a religious man who smashed his microscope to bits because he saw tiny figures killing one another. This was a fact that he was unwilling to face, so he destroyed the microscope. You don't improve the weather by breaking the thermometer. Facts must be faced even though they are painful.

Your parents have probably shielded you from facing many facts. Now you are on the threshold of adult life, and you must learn to observe, to relate, to reason, and to act on the basis of your conclusions.

I have heard that in certain tribes in Africa the practice is to bind children's heads. This tight binding changes the shape of the head and prevents it from making its normal growth. When these bindings are removed and the blood circulates freely, the result is extremely painful. In much the same way, the ideas and the facts which will start circulating in your heads for the first time are going to be very painful, and some of you may feel like destroying the microscope.

What facts do you need to guide you in your everyday life? What facts do you know to guide you in your choice of diet? Are any of you overweight? What facts do you need to know in the selection of your clothing? Graceland offers a special course for girls to help select the kind of clothes that will make them attractive and comfortable, and teach them how and when to wear them. Do you know these things? What facts are behind your decision to sleep six hours a night? What are the facts behind some of the basic beliefs that you think are very important? Are there facts that you can discover about the creation of life—the freedom to choose and its responsibilities? What are the facts about equality of man? What are the facts about inspiration or revelation? Unless you have hunted for these facts and organized them meaningfully, you are not an educated person. The educated person learns a method whereby he looks for facts, examines them, and acts upon the basis of his observation and judgment. While this is not the only way to discover truth, it is the one we know most about.

Third, the educated man is always a gentleman. He is properly regardful of the rights and privileges of other people; he lives and works with others congenially and happily. He is a gentleman.

You can think some interesting thoughts about that term—gentle man. Actually only the very strong can afford to be gentle voluntarily. You can afford to be gentle if you are so strong that you don't have to pretend. The gentleman has his own power so controlled that he knows his limits. He does not have to bully or bluster. He can afford to be gentle because he is strong.

There is a story about a man who visited a factory where a large hammer operated like a guillotine, crushing metal beneath it. The spectators were amazed at its power. The operator of the machine turned to a man and said, "Let me give you a demonstration. Lend me your watch." The man was a bit hesitant but complied. The operator laid the watch on the block. He adjusted the dials and started the machine into motion. The lever tripped, the hammer came crashing down and stopped just one-sixteenth of an inch before it touched the watch. "We call this a meek hammer," he explained. "It means power under control."

The meek shall inherit the earth. I have more respect for meek and gentle people when I think of that story. To be gentle does not mean to be weak, but to be strong.

There are responsibilities that go with being gentle—responsibilities to look out for the people who are not gentle. They need things and perhaps don't even know that they need them. The gentleman must carry a great responsibility for the well-being of his community. He must be careful of the rights of others and work for their welfare. He does not feel superior to them. He must care for them, not because he is above them but because he loves them. These are some of the qualities of the educated man.

THE FOURTH POINT in the portrait of the educated man is that he performs a service which the world needs. Some interpret this in terms of a vocation. There are thousands of vocations, and the world needs every one of them.

The educated man is not an idler. You may recall a stereotype of the educated man as an idle connoisseur of art. This is not the true picture. He does not waste his talents doing nothing but performs some worthwhile service. Children play, but men work. Men do not always get paid for this work. Most of the real contributions to society have been made by men who died before their contribution was fully recognized. We work for our children and our children's children without pay. In the labor movement a striker seldom gets back the money he loses. He knows that, but he strikes because he believes that in the future other workers will benefit. It is not only the educated man who offers his service. But the educated man has a peculiar responsibility. I know some persons who offer a greater service outside their vocation than through their vocation. Most of the ministers in the restored church offer service outside their vocation. Here is a marvelous opportunity to put education to use in a very helpful and useful way.

THE FIFTH FEATURE of the educated man is that he cultivates the pleasures of the mind. Some of you may never have thought there were any pleasures of the mind. You have thought that school is no fun, and you have shouted for glee whenever the teacher has been sick. Actually, there are joys of the mind which in many ways far surpass other joys. For example, almost everyone likes to try to solve a puzzle. Solving problems that face mankind is fun also. There is actual pleasure in tackling some of these problems that may not be part of your work. You were born creative. Let the imaginative part of your minds be free to explore. Don't let the joy of things substitute for the much deeper joys of creative response of the world about you. I firmly believe that the one way man most resembles God and distinguishes himself most from animals is that man is creative. He creates things that never existed before, and most of these things are the stuff of the mind. It is not the material goods but the mind-stuff of a civilization that survives and gives it greatness.

Reach out for poetry, drama, history, music, scripture, art, intelligent companionship. It is fun to talk to intelligent people about important subjects. There is joy in the exercise of the mind.

"Let that mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus." Cultivate the joys of the mind.

The last feature about the educated man is that he understands quite clearly that God is the creator and supreme force in human existence. He is the center about which the educated man will build his life, his vocation, his family, his community service, and his friendships. All areas of his life will be God-centered, because he knows from his observations that without God he is nothing, but with God he is a partner in the building of the kingdom.
www.LatterDayTruth.org

One of my favorite images from literature is that of the compass. You have used it in your high school geometry class. One foot is fixed and never moves. The other one may stray at a wide angle or a narrow angle, but as long as the one foot remains fixed, the circle will always be true. Without a sure point of reference you may stray and your life will never form the perfect circle, but as long as God remains the center you can be sure that your circle will be just and true. You will have a complete life rather than an irregular, purposeless existence.

This is only a partial picture of the educated man. These may partly tell you what to do without telling you how to do it.

At any age, but particularly in youth, you will find that life is filled with questions. To ask the right ones, to find the true answers, and to live by them is the supreme art. The student is understandably eager to ask questions and to have his questions answered. Yet, often one of the great disappointments of students is the discovery that their teachers do not know all of the answers. No one has all the answers. The educated man does not know many of the answers. He admits it. He is troubled by doubts. He knows how to search for answers. Here at Graceland you are being exposed deliberately to the questions of life. No one can give you the answers. The answer may not even be quite the same for any two of you. You are here to continue the search. What do you really want and expect out of life? If you get what you want, will you still want it? Does your life conform to the laws of life itself? Are your desires and your purposes at least similar to God's desires and purposes? What are his purposes? Why are you here? Where are you going? These are the eternal questions which man has asked himself since the dawn of consciousness. To guide you in your search, a fine faculty has been gathered here. But make no mistake. The finest faculty in the world cannot give you an education. The best that teachers can do is to guide you as you educate yourself. There is no other way.

IN THE AMERICAN culture there has always been magic in the word "education." We tend to forget that education is a means and not an end. But the educated man knows—the Graceland man knows—that significant and happy lives grow out of purposes that go beyond the trivial and commonplace and call forth his best efforts in service to others. Joy in life is not an accident. It springs from the art of living, and art is perfected through practice and self-discipline toward worthy ends. There is no easy way.

Let me conclude by referring to the same analogy with which I began. For each of you, certain parts of the picture of the educated man are underexposed. As you measure yourself against your expectations from Graceland, these are a few of the check points. Do you speak and write as an educated man? Do you reason and act on a basis of fact rather than pride, prejudice, desire, or whim? Are you a gentleman or a lady, willing to accept the responsibilities of that status and regardful of the rights and privileges of others? Will you—and do you—perform some service which the world needs? Are you learning to cultivate and enjoy the pleasures of the mind? Do you recognize God in your daily life? Do you direct your steps in his paths? As you do these things increasingly you will continue to "grow in wisdom and in favor with God and man."

Dr. William S. Gould

Let that mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus.

Patterns

IN getting into and out of trouble finger prints have played a very important role. The strange thing about them is that there are no two alike. Only evil people fear being finger printed. To find out whether two prints match they are enlarged and placed on glass slides before a strong light. When they don't match the lines cross and recross but when matching prints come together they look like only one print.

We as Christians can learn a lesson from this. We have been given Christ as the perfect pattern by which we are to shape our lives. We are pledged to follow none but him. Perhaps, like some of the followers he had while he was here on earth, we follow him afar off. The Apostle Paul said we see as through a glass darkly. Could he have meant that the pattern of our lives matches so poorly with the perfect pattern that we shut out most of the light? Is our vision impaired because we have failed to add to our faith the qualities of virtue, knowledge, temperance, patience, godliness, brotherly kindness, and charity?

We are admonished to put our light on a candlestick and not under a bushel. A candle under a bushel would be protected from the wind, but it would be useless. The Master said in his great Sermon on the Mount, "I give unto you to be the light of the world." Are we lighting the world, or are our candles expiring beneath a bushel of imperfections? Any light to be constant must be furnished with a steady supply of fuel or power.

No meal, no matter how good, can keep us from getting hungry again. Neither can any spiritual feast keep our light brightly burning forever. We must continually seek light from the great Source of light. God in his infinite love and mercy has instituted the Communion to give us freedom from our past mistakes, but it can be effective only when we examine our lives carefully and seek forgiveness with a broken heart and a contrite spirit. We are told in the Doctrine and Covenants that because the members partook unworthily many were sick and many slept. I have seen valiant men and women in the church fall, but I cannot believe that anyone who partook worthily of the Communion one month fell before the next month.

We are told in the Doctrine and Covenants (Section 86) that we are to eat meat sparingly and thankfully. We should remember that one of God's creatures' lives has been taken to furnish us life and strength. How humble we should be when we think of the great life that was given on the cross that we might have spiritual life and strength. We are grateful to anyone who saves us from injury or death. How much more grateful we should be to Him who came and died that we might live abundantly here and hereafter.

ALBERT MARKEY

*Foreign Students at the "San"
Give the School a New Perspective*

Our Friends in the Near East

By Nelle Morgan, R.N.

Mrs. Helen Walter, hospital dietitian, teaching Virginia Khamis of Amman, Jordan, to make an apple pie

THE PAST THREE YEARS have expanded the horizon of the student nurses and other personnel at the Independence Sanitarium and Hospital. We have had an opportunity to become acquainted with some of the folks who live "half a world" away from us.

During these years five of these people have come to us to learn nursing. They came from Vietnam, Iraq, and Jordan. We read about Saigon, Vietnam; Basra, Iraq; and Amman, Jordan, in the newspapers but felt no great interest or sympathy for their citizens before these nurses came to the "San."

The picture has changed now. News about these places starts many exciting conversations in the School of Nursing and the hospital. Questions are asked about how Phi, or Virginia, or Mr. Bao, or Salima, or Khuong will be affected.

These five international students have had scholarships through the International Co-operative Administration. This is a program of the United Nations whereby persons from underdeveloped countries are assisted to study in a country which is more technically advanced. After completing their course of study they are to return to their native countries to work toward improving conditions there.

Salima Amso takes the blood pressure of Mrs. A. H. Davis, a patient in the San Hoang Van Phi (rhymes with "see") was the first of these students to come to our school of nursing. Phi wanted to be a nurse. Her country—South Vietnam—had a small, undeveloped school of nursing but no nurses prepared to take responsibility for the program. Phi was a good student and had completed a high school course (this is not the usual thing for girls in Vietnam). She was selected to receive her basic nursing education in the United States, then to return to Vietnam to teach student nurses.

As we waited in the Independence railroad station that August evening in 1955 for Phi's train to arrive, we talked of how we would recognize her. We did not anticipate much trouble as there would be only a few people getting off. Actually, we had little difficulty as she was dressed in a lovely long silk dress, the style which the women of Vietnam wear in their home country. She spoke our language fluently, and we were soon chatting like old friends. We had been intrigued by her name; she told us, "If you are my classmate, call me Phi. If you are my teacher, call me Miss Phi." And that is what we do. The two names, Hoang and Van have a significance which we won't take space to explain here. Phi gets along fine in her studies and with all persons with whom she associates.

The I.C.A. Training Officer was so pleased with Phi's success here that she asked to send two other Vietnamese nurses to us for short periods of experience. So, in November, 1956, Miss Cong tang ton nu Minh Khuong of Hue, Vietnam, arrived. Khuong was a graduate of the school of nursing in Vietnam and was in this country being prepared to go back there to teach medical and surgical nursing. She spent six weeks here observing the educational program of the student nurses in medical-surgical nursing. She is back in Vietnam now, able to do a better job of assisting with health work there because of her experience in the States.

April 27
is School of Nursing Day

Minh Khuong of Hue, Vietnam.

In June of 1957, Mr. Hoang dinh Bao arrived. Mr. Bao had been at Boston University for a year, studying nursing administration. I.C.A. sent him here to see nursing service administered in a private hospital and to come in contact with American life in the Middle West. Mr. Bao was permitted to stay with us only two weeks; in that short time we believe we were able to give him more insight into the American way of life.

By the time Mr. Bao left we felt pretty well acquainted with the Vietnamese and had gained a great appreciation for their way of life and their needs. Our experience with them had prepared us for association with still other peoples. I.C.A. asked us to take Salima Amso of Basra, Iraq, for two months; we were eager for the experience.

Salima was a head nurse in the obstetric department in the Royal Hospital in Basra, Iraq. She had had her nursing education in a British School of Nursing and had had a midwifery course also. She was well prepared in nursing service. Our job was to teach her our ways of nursing and to acquaint her with the American way of life. Her time with us passed quickly, and there were tears of sorrow when she left us.

Our next call from I.C.A. was to accept a nurse from Amman, Jordan, for a three months' observation period. Getting acquainted with these Arab countries was a real challenge to us, and we were glad to accept Virginia Khamis from Amman, Jordan.

Virginia had also been educated in a British school of nursing. Her position at home is one of responsibility; she is director of nursing at the government hospital in Jordan. Virginia was well versed in the political and economic conditions of her country and was a real challenge to us. She stayed here three months, learning nursing service administration, how to teach auxiliary personnel, and how to establish a program for student nurses. When she returns to Jordan she will still be director of nursing of the tuberculosis hospital and will begin an experience in tuberculosis nursing for students enrolled in the school of nursing which has been started in Amman, Jordan. Virginia is now in Worthington, Minnesota, continuing her observations at a hospital there.

Hoang Van Phi is the only I.C.A. student with us at present. She will complete her course here this coming September. Then she will return to Vietnam to take up her responsibilities there. We will all be sad to have Phi leave us but realize that she must help meet the needs of her people.

These five nurses represent three countries and four different religions: Catholic, Baptist, Greek Orthodox, and Hindu. None of them had ever heard of the Book of Mormon or Latter Day Saintism. They had little appreciation of the real American. During their stay with us we believe that we made five good friends for our School of Nursing, for our church, and for our country. We would like very much to keep alive our contacts with these nurses. We are corresponding with them. Church members visiting their countries could contact these nurses and strengthen our bonds of friendship.

To us, here at the "San," these nurses gave a new appreciation of our fellow men in foreign lands. We have a keener awareness of our responsibility to acquaint the peoples of the world with our philosophy for living.

Missionary Family Returns

(Continued from page 2)

He pointed out other needs. The church now has only four tracts in Norwegian, none in Swedish or Danish. There are no up-to-date translations in any of the Scandinavian languages of our church Scriptures or histories.

"The General Church has been very generous in helping us try to provide for both of these needs," Brother Everett said. "However, we have not yet been able to purchase a house in Oslo, the mission headquarters, even though $50,000 has been allotted for this purpose. And we have not yet located the people with the time and ability to produce more church literature in the Scandinavian languages."

The Saints in Scandinavia are also doing a good job of helping to support the work there, he stated. A recent letter from Richard Andersen said 100 per cent of the active Oslo Saints have now filed their financial statements.

Brother Everett is now assigned to work with Apostle Maurice Draper in the Center Stakes until June. After that, he and his family plan to move to Chicago where he will study toward a Master's degree at the University of Chicago. After graduation he plans to take foreign service examinations under the U. S. government and enter the diplomatic corps. He hopes that his experience in Scandinavia will cause him to be sent there again after he enters government service so he can still serve the church as a minister in that area.

"There are tremendous possibilities for young people to serve the church abroad as self-supporting missionaries," he said. "The U. S. Government and its many agencies offer unlimited possibilities for employment abroad. And, this is not only a fruitful field for us to explore for serving abroad, but government work is itself a field in which we should be making our church's doctrine felt."

R. Y.

Hoang Van Phi demonstrates the light in an operating room, to Mr. Bao of Vietnam and A. Neal Deaver, administrator of the "San."

The Place of the Professional and Business Women in the Church

DAILY ONE READS of the increasing numbers of women entering the professional and business world and of their importance to the world's economy. The word "professional" is a respected word and represents special education, achievement, perseverance, and an acceptance in the world of business. Profession is defined as "a calling in which one professes to have acquired some special knowledge used by way of instruction, guiding, advising others or of servicing them." In the application of this meaning, professional and business women are extremely important to the church.

In trying to determine the place of professional and business women in the church the key word is women. The church is composed of women, men, children. All members of the church whether they are professional or business people, ministers, laymen, or children, have certain responsibilities and obligations by reason of the covenant made in the waters of baptism. When they are baptized, they promise to follow the Master, try to keep his commandments, and make Christ's purposes their own. The Church Members' Manual is a splendid source book outlining "Duties and Privileges of Members." It is each person's duty however to determine the place in which he can best serve. Not membership in a special group but developing the God-given talents and using them in the service of others determines one's place in the church of the living Christ.

I am happy that in the framework of the women's department provision is made for evening meetings where professional and business women may meet together, learn more about the church's objectives, and discuss ways in which they may give effective service to the congregation. It is up to the individual, however, to decide where her place is, just as it is my duty to find the location of the prayer service on Wednesday nights even if I haven't been called by a member of the committee. The committee member is at fault but not as much as the member who fails to attend and makes this her excuse because she hasn't been interested sufficiently to find out the place for herself.

I am interested in the goal of the Independence Englewood church business and professional women's group (The Estella Fellowship) for this year: "More active participation in and support of all branch activities." This indicates that these women are not waiting to be called; they are finding out for themselves where they can serve most effectively. Professional and business women of the church are very special people, not because they desire special consideration but because they have a desire to further the work of the church. According to Glaude Smith, pastor at Stone Church, "Those who take the Holy Spirit to be their guide are the elect of God."

TO AN EXTENT busy people who are employed during the day have many things which may hinder them in devoting as much time to church work and other community activities as they wish, still there are more credit items on the ledger than debits. On the debit side, a woman must devote at least eight hours daily to her profession. During these hours she must concentrate on the work at hand as the hours belong to her employer. Hence, only evenings and week ends may be devoted to church work. In addition, she sometimes has family responsibilities.

On the credit side can be listed native ability or aptitude which has been developed to a high degree through study and experience. Practical training in her profession has equipped her with additional expert methods of work habits, and she also may have learned to be more efficient and systematic than one not so highly skilled. She is alerted to better and more up-to-date methods because of her daily contact with leaders in the professional and business world. Often she is in the prime-of-life age bracket which enables her to accomplish a great deal without fatigue. There may be fewer hours to devote to church work, but because of her efficiency and health, she can make the hours count and have the time she requires for fellowship with people of her own faith. Many of our men of the priesthood are employed during the day to make their livelihood. We have very few full-time ministers. Most of the pastors have only evenings and week ends to care for their church work. Women can do the same. Of course the clothing and personal needs of the men are cared for by women, while working women must do all these chores for themselves. However, streamlined housekeeping, fabrics that require little or no ironing, and modern appliances make homekeeping a much less time-consuming job. One of our members in Hawaii, a mother of five, has a business in addition to her household duties. One of her short cuts is to prepare, package, and freeze on Saturday the twenty-five lunches her children require for school days; thus she has more time for other morning chores.

BY REASON OF HER TRAINING and efficiency and experience, the professional and business woman should qualify for leadership. There are many ways and opportunities in which she can make real contributions to the onward progress and forward movements of the church. I would like to call attention to three of the most effective ways. These are personal witnessing in her everyday contacts, perfecting talents and striving to be an expert in her particular field; and sharing her knowledge and ability with others.

All of us are called to be Saints and to witness for the Master and to conduct ourselves in such a way that through us others may be drawn to Christ. To witness effectively, we must have a personal testimony and conviction that the work of the Restoraton is of divine origin and that it does bring something of great worth to those who try to live its laws. The testimony comes by communion with God through prayer and consecration. President F. Henry Edwards has defined prayer as "the uplifted desire of the heart." While we may not have many minutes for meditation and prayer during the day, we can pray that we may walk with God all day, recognize his hand in all things, and do some specific work for him.

Dr. Roy Cheville says, "The soundest testimony rises out of one's way of living, sustained, habitual, and natural—words that come from the overflow of life."

My parents taught me that not only my family's good name was affected by my actions and life, but also the church, and that whatever honor came to me was also a credit to the church. We lived in a town of few Saints, so it was impressed upon me that we might be the only members whom our friends might ever know or come in contact with, and that they could judge the church by what I did. This was a very serious challenge to me, and I have had many thrilling and uplifting moments when I have hoped that what I was doing would bring honor to the cause I loved.

EVEN WHEN THERE ARE hundreds of church members in a community, you may still be the only one of your faith whom your associates know. Your high ideals, your efficiency, your speech, the topics of your conversation, the way you get along with your associates, the way you do or do not criticize or blame others are mighty testimonies for or against the church. You may convert few, if any, but your acquaintances' opinion and evaluation of your religion may depend upon the way you conduct yourself while you are among them.

Sometimes we never see any effect of our philosophy on our friends, but even a slight change is gratifying.

A friend who is quite outspoken was shopping with me one day and became provoked with the saleslady. When we were left alone waiting for the purchase, she turned and said, "Pauline, I am so mad at that woman! If you hadn't been with me I surely would have told her what I thought of her and peeled her thoroughly."

Sometimes there may be opportunities presented when, in answer to questions, we may explain our beliefs. We may think no impression is made, but sometimes our friends remember. Over forty years ago in Oklahoma my mother played the organ and led the choir of the Presbyterian Church in our town. There was no church of our own there. This spring my husband and I called on three of the ladies whom my mother knew. They were happy to see us and inquired whether I was active in the church which my parents loved. One friend said, "Your mother seemed to have such joy in her religion. While we didn't see as she did, we respected her. She never preached to us, but she did tell us what she believed. I've thought many times about what she told me one day. She said, 'Nora Bell, I want you to know something about the degrees of glory, for when we meet upon the other side and I may be enjoying more privileges than you, I don't want you to ask me why I didn't tell you about our church.'" I imagine my mother expressed her thoughts in a different way than this, but her friend did remember.

THE CALL IS CONSTANTLY being made for experts in every field of endeavor who can represent the church in their contacts with others of like interests. Your place in the church is to be one of these best in your field; this is your stewardship. Experts call attention to themselves but also to that which they represent. The potential of the youth of the church is great, but already there are many who have excelled in their chosen field. Often when I open the pages of the Herald I find a section devoted to "Interesting Personalities," and "Church Women in the News." In recent issues I found these articles about women who have been honored because of their contribution to communities or because of special abilities recognized:

Mary E. Gale, a third grade teacher in the Willoughby, Ohio, school system, recently named "Teacher of the year"

Hattie Mae Bishop, executive secretary of the Springfield, Missouri, YWCA, was installed early this year as the new president of the Council of Church Women

Effie Ziegler, of Edmonton, Alberta, Canada, won a silver cup for the best impromptu speech at the Annual Division Convention of the Dale Carnegie Club International

Grace La Madeleine, of Ottawa, Canada, crippled by polio, is president of the Ottawa Handicapped Rehabilitation Association

A young mother, Donna Jackson, wife of Seventy Wallace A. Jackson, recently received distinction by being one of five students of Eastern Oklahoma A & M. to be named on the President's honor roll. Beside her school work she carries a full schedule of household chores, cares for three young daughters, and visits among the congregation at Wilburton

In Independence Nevada Surbaugh Dean, a former economics teacher at William Chrisman High School, was granted a $5,400 fellowship for the advancement of education.

Also in Independence is Aleta Runkle, an elementary school music consultant. She is a member of the board of directors of the Community Music Association and has served on the committee which developed The Hymnal for Youth and the book of Little Hymns. All of these women find time to devote to active church participation! I want to mention, too, little Terrie Sartwell, who was stricken with polio when she was two years old. When she was six she was chosen to appear on TV for the March of Dimes. Her mother feels that if she remains unspoiled and lovable as she is now, she will be an asset to the church.

OUR CHURCH MAY BE small numerically, but each member has a wide field of contact with those in the same profession and business. Who can tell how great will be the effect of our dedicated, trained members? The leaven of Christ's philosophy will fill the earth as our people combine highly trained professionalism with devotion to God and to his program of kingdom building.

You can find a place of service by sharing. Church offices may be organized to run more efficiently by up-to-date techniques which secretaries are willing to pass on. Doctors and nurses and nutritionists can share much of worth in their fields by instructing and teaching and writing for the benefit of others. In an address given at the General Women's Institute in 1955, Dr. Roy Cheville indicated seven fields for testimony: the developing of a basic theology, laboratory serving in social helpfulness, participating in formulating church policy and program, cultivating an uplifting and unifying fellowship, sharing in community planning and building, practicing spiritual hygiene, and experiencing God in today's daily living.

The professional and business women can join other women of the church in reaching for these goals. Their place is to be pioneers to act in the same capacity as do the guides of the mountain ranges. These men who know the way and the techniques lead mountain climbers up the steep craggy inclines. Slowly and carefully, with pick and rope, they find the footholds where the climbers may place their feet and be safe. They are called to be leaders, thinkers, to enlarge their horizons, to be thankful that God has given them the capacity to grow and develop and the opportunities to use their talents for him.

In 1952 at a reunion class at Bluewater, Michigan, Dr. Lawrence Brockway made a very fine statement of the word of the Lord to this generation. This will serve also as a suggestion to professional and business women on their place in the work of the church: "Take my gifts and endowments; use them to develop the power of a godly personality; acquire special skills of the spirit, mind, and body for dedication to the kingdom, and join me in the creative work of the abundant life."

Home Column

The Truman Library as Seen from Highway 24

Library Attracts Many Visitors

By Roger Yarrington

New Archive in Independence Shows Nature of Presidency

AN ESTIMATED 200,000 persons will visit the Harry S. Truman Library in Independence every year, according to Dr. Philip C. Brooks, director.

In the first six months of the library's operation, 35,000 persons visited it. Most of them were visitors from outside of Independence, Dr. Brooks said. They represented every state in the union and twenty-seven foreign countries.

The library has two basic functions: (1) It is an archive for the preservation and use of presidential papers recording the functioning of the presidency during the administration of Harry S. Truman, and (2) it is a museum for the display of the gifts, mementos, and rare historical objects acquired by Mr. Truman while president.

The museum portion of the library has been open to the public since September 16, 1957, and is now complete. Besides objects of historical interest, it also contains an exact replica of Mr. Truman's office in the White House and a display demonstrating the functions of the president.

The presidential papers and books will not be available for use for another year. Sorting and indexing of the 3,500,000 documents given to the library by the former president was begun in 1953 when the Archivist of the United States assigned two archivists to Kansas City to sort and preserve the Truman papers. The task is not yet completed. When the indexing is finished, the records will be available to scholars doing research work.

www.LatterDayTruth.org

Dr. Brooks said the library as a whole is designed to be a place for the study of the presidency as an institution and to give a better understanding of what the presidency is.

He explained that the files of the president have always been considered his personal property. Since the time of Washington, the president has always taken his papers with him when he leaves office. With no regular system of caring for these valuable historical records, they have had haphazard handling in the past.

At present there are substantial collections of twenty-three out of the first thirty-two presidents' papers. Seventeen of the collections are in the Library of Congress and for the most part have never been indexed and, hence, are almost unusable.

The Harry S. Truman Library is the fourth such library in existence. The others are the Hayes Memorial Library in Fremont, Ohio; the Hoover Library at Stanford University; and the Franklin D. Roosevelt Library at Hyde Park, New York. Plans are being made for a library along the same lines to house the Eisenhower papers at Abilene, Kansas.

The library was built by a nonprofit corporation formed especially for that purpose. Funds came from public contributions. At the dedication service July 6, 1957, the building and presidential papers were presented to the U. S. Government. The library is now operated as a national archive by the General Services Administration.

Presidential papers, mementos, works of art, together with the building, land, highway improvements leading to the building, landscaping, and contributed services and materials are estimated at a total value of $21,000,000, according to Dr. Brooks.

The library building is located on Highway 24 just north of Independence. It is contemporary in architecture with a facing of Indiana limestone.

The building's 70,000 square feet include office space for eleven administrative personnel, working space and shops for thirteen staff and maintenance workers, office space for Mr. Truman and his staff, an auditorium which seats 250 persons (it is fully equipped with motion picture and sound projectors and an organ), two museum areas, a full basement, a large reading room, two stack rooms, control rooms, and guard rooms. The entire building is air conditioned.

The library's museum is open seven days a week—9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday and from 2 to 5 p.m. on Sunday. Admission is fifty cents for each person.

Dr. Brooks said many school groups have toured the building. Such school groups are shown through the building free if they notify the library in advance.

He also expressed the hope that many church members would take advantage of visiting the building when they are in Independence. He said special preparations would be made to accommodate the large number of Conference visitors who will be in Independence in October.

The replica of the President's White House Office as occupied by Mr. Truman

Harry S. Truman
Library Photos

C. H. Schrepfer
photographer

I Had an Experience . . .

WHEN CONFRONTED with the job of picking one particular incident that stands out in my church experience, I have found it a very hard thing to do. My entire life has been full of experiences that have burned deep within my consciousness the fact that this is the work of the Master, and that Jesus Christ is the Son of the living God. The fact that I know God is continually guiding our lives as we submit ourselves to his will is an experience that is continuous in nature.

If I were to try to relate any one experience above all others in my church experience it would be one that at the time, because of my age and inability to understand God's will concerning me personally, I didn't even recognize as an experience of great significance. It all started when a young man came to the door of our home in Wichita, Kansas, in 1928. That knock at the door literally opened up a new world to my family. This young man, a member of the Reorganized Church, was seeking information and actually came to our door by accident (though time and experience tells me differently). He was looking for someone else in the block; however, in the course of the conversation he discovered we were new in the city at that time, and he asked my mother if we were attending church anywhere. The reply was negative and at that we were promptly invited to attend his church, which was only a few blocks from our home. My mother indicated acceptance of the invitation; however, for some reason we didn't make it that first Sunday. We were contacted again and started attending church regularly; and after careful investigation we joined the church four years later.

I am sure this experience has happened to many others who are now members of the church; however, I constantly marvel and am deeply humbled when I realize that God does have a personal interest in me—in all of us. Could it be by "chance," when from all the teeming millions of humanity on this globe, that God has seen fit to open the way for me—for some 160,000 of us, to share in his work that has been restored in this latter-day dispensation? When I contemplate this thought I know that I have had an experience with God—a continuing experience from that day back in 1928 up to the present time; and it will go on and on as I prove myself worthy to be called his servant.

In this continuing experience as I see the lives of men and women changed day by day to the good way of life, I am constantly reminded of what God has done for me. In return for that experience which had its beginning in that knock at the door years ago, I have only one desire—to serve my fellow men and see many other doors opened to lives hitherto oblivious to the work of the Master. In the years to come I trust many will bear testimony that they, too, have had an experience with their Creator.

Letters

God Heard

In 1909 we took a very sick little boy off the ship at Jaffa. We were on our way to Jerusalem. It seemed to be only a minor illness that we could care for ourselves. However, we soon learned that he would need more skilled care, so we called in a native physician. Dr. Canaan at once diagnosed the illness as typhoid malaria and urged us to place him in the German hospital. Reluctant to put a homesick eight-year-old child in a still stranger place than this city to which we had come I continued to care for him myself with the help of the doctor's medicine and instructions.

A month later we resigned ourselves to the inevitable and took him to the hospital. We could visit him only once a week. Nevertheless we left him to the gentle care of the nurses for three weeks longer. Then being convinced that death was imminent, we took him home.

The objections to our removing him were strong, even indignant. But we felt he had better die in our care than suffer so greatly with the longing for us. We took him home and had to watch him fade away until he talked only with feeble signs for his few needs. One morning there were no signs at all.

I turned away in despair and climbed up to the enclosed balcony with grated windows where the former occupants, Turkish ladies, had gone to view the street traffic in sheltered obscurity. I knelt at the window seat and turned to God in anguish of soul and fear. We were strangers to the customs of this land. What might these people do to the Americans who had refused to leave their dying child in the hospital? Quite suddenly I felt at ease. I thought of my father whose faith was strong as long as he had plenty of money, and I wondered, with a sense of shame, if my faith was any stronger than his. Surely God was as able to guard us with friends as to care for my father in his difficulties. Then calmness with warm assurance enveloped me, and I arose at once to my feet and passed down the stairs.

My way now led through the kitchen where my husband was. He looked up to smile encouragement. Then with a startled look he asked, "Mama, whatever has happened? You look so happy!" I couldn't answer but continued on into the room where Paul lay.

He turned slightly and, looking up at me, whispered, "Mother, I'm hungry."

He is a man, long since grown, but he still remembers, and the memory has kept him strong in the faith that God does indeed hear and answer prayer.

FLORENCE GOULD CARR
Independence, Missouri

Reading with Understanding

Often when I have read something I have failed to get full benefit of it, so I have made an effort to reread all of my Heralds. One day in February I felt that I had special need for spiritual food, so I prayed, "Lord, you know my need, lead me to read what will be best for me." I picked up a Herald off the stack and as I did so the Spirit came to me. I read the whole paper, and it was wonderful; everything I read held new meaning for me. This was an experience I shall never forget.

I have found that it pays not to get in a hurry during home worship. I like to read carefully every article in Daily Bread and to sing each hymn. We are richly rewarded when we "take time to be holy."

MRS. MARY A. CROSS
Washington, Oklahoma

Led by a Child

Isaiah (11:6) tells of a time when righteousness shall cover the earth and take away the fierceness of even the beasts so that a little child shall lead them.

At the time of our marriage, my husband possessed a number of bad habits, and because of this he felt out of place going to church. He didn't object to my going, but few were the times during the first year when he would go with me. This troubled me, but I seldom said anything about it.

After the birth of our first child, I began to notice changes in him. Immediately he started going to church with me every Sunday. At first I knew it was just to show off the baby, but as time went on, he began to show interest. Also, with her coming, he became terribly conscious of his smoking—partly of the expense of it and partly of the tobacco itself. Being a heavy smoker, he found it a difficult thing to conquer. He tried for months to give it up, but despite his efforts he could not master it. Finally, in desperation, and for the first time in his life, he earnestly prayed to God for help. Instantly he received strength and within a month's time overcame the habit completely. Likewise, he quit his occasional swearing and drinking.

I feel sure our little daughter was sent to us to bring her daddy into the light of God, because that was all it took to help him take his first steps toward a better way of living. Having been baptized a few months ago, my husband now studies his books with great interest, trying to prepare himself for a greater ministry in God's church on earth. He was truly led by a child.
Kansas City, Missouri ALBERTA WILLIS

A Letter of Appreciation

I wonder if anyone has told Sister Marian Blumenschein how much many of us enjoy her stories in the Herald. We look forward to them. They are so new and different. We pray that the Blumenscheins' work may be crowned with gratifying success.

Also I want to express my pleasure in being a member of the Berde Rooney memorial class in Writing for Children taught by Evelyn and Lyle Ross. At our closing session Evelyn gave us a short talk. If I ever heard a talk that was prompted by inspiration, this one was.

We were discussing the sixteen small stones that had been touched into brilliance by the finger of the Lord to light the boats of the Jaradites when they came to America. The high point of her talk was her suggestion that we in the class could be shining stones that would light the Scriptures for children by our stories.

What a beautiful thought and what a heavenly responsibility!
Independence, Missouri ELLA LAMBKIN

CHRIST the SON Second Coming and Zionc Reign

212

William Williams, 1717-1791
Revised, E. Robinson

Cwm Rhondda 8.7.8.7.8.7.
First Tune
M. J 76

Exod. 15: 13
I Nephi 5: 111-116
D. and C. 98: 4f, g
Welsh Hymn Melody
John Hughes, 1873-1932

1. Guide us, O thou great Je - ho - vah, Saints un - to the
2. O - pen, Je - sus, Zi - on's foun - tains; Let her rich - est
3. When the earth be - gins to trem - ble, Bid our fear - ful prom - ised land; We are weak, but thou art a - ble; Hold us with thy bless - ings come; Let the fi - ery, cloud - y pil - lar Guard us to that thoughts be still; When thy judg - ments spread de - struc - tion, Keep us safe on power - ful hand. Ho - ly Spir - it, Ho - ly Spir - it, ho - ly home. Great Re - deem - er, Great Re - deem - er, Zi - on's hill, Sing - ing prais - es, Sing - ing prais - es,

Feed us till the Sav - ior comes; Feed us till the Sav - ior comes.
Bring, O bring the wel - come day! Bring, O bring the wel - come day!
Songs of glo - ry un - to thee, Songs of glo - ry un - to thee. A - MEN.

Music copyright and used by permission of Hannah M. Hughes.

(178)

The story of this hymn appeared on page 21 of the March 17 issue

Lands of the Bible

This fully illustrated story of Palestine, Egypt, and the Middle East, from Old Testament times to the present, is the perfect Bible atlas for children and adults. Includes relief maps, photographs, and paintings of people, scenes, art and artifacts. A de luxe edition Giant Golden Book with 100 pages in color. Size, 10 by 12¾ inches. Simon and Schuster

$3.95

HERALD
HOUSE

Box 477
Independence, Missouri

Box 382
Guelph, Ontario, Canada

Photo by John Hockaday

THE LITTLE GRAY cement block church on Mitchell Street in Guelph, Ontario, has had its face lifted.

Officially opened and consecrated on November 25, 1956, by W. Wallace Smith, representing the First Presidency, the old building has been transformed into a structure of modern design. Through the colored glass windows of the new façade, one looks into the heart of the original church, and here still flows the spirit of loving devotion which brought the Guelph Branch into being in 1920.

The Herald of December 9, 1957, recorded the passing of Elder D. B. Perkins of Owen Sound, Ontario, at the age of eighty-five, bringing to a close a long life of service to the church. He was president of the Owen Sound District in 1912 when the heart of the Guelph congregation began its first feeble beat in the cottage meetings he conducted in the homes of several families in the area who belonged to the church.

The old familiar walls, now rejuvenated, enclose the memories of such early families as the Hockadays, the Demmons, the Ashleys, the Gilhams, the Tarzells, and other faithful members who contributed to the early growth of the Guelph congregation.

Brother and Sister Hockaday recall that Elder King Cooper, who lived in Acton, Ontario, came once a month in the years following 1912 to administer the Communion to the families living in Guelph, and Sister Chrissie Demmons Halls recalls the faithful ministry of Brother Fred Furness (now living in Missouri) who came often from his home in Hespeler, Ontario, to meet with the families in Guelph. "Transportation on Sunday, at that time was not very good," she says, "and often he came on snowshoes in the winter and by bicycle over gravel roads in summer."

Elder Grant St. John played an active part in keeping the church families worshipping together. He conducted cottage services and in 1917 encouraged the Saints to rent a small hall where he preached every night and on Sunday for five months, baptizing over twenty during that period.

In 1918 Apostle R. C. Russell visited the Guelph congregation and organized the group into a branch; Brother King Cooper, who had moved with his family from Acton, was the first pastor. In 1920 the first church building was begun, and the heart-warming story of this effort remains as a rich heritage of loyalty and devotion.

The building, when completed, was valued at $4,400. Exclusive of electric wiring and the heating plant, the entire labor was done voluntarily by members in the evenings and on Saturdays over a two-year period. Even the cement blocks which were used in the building were made by the men themselves; the pulpit and pews also were fashioned by them. A press clipping of the official opening of the first church in 1922 notes that "apart from the wiring and heating, only five dollars was paid out for labor on the entire job."

In 1950 a building committee was appointed to study the matter of expanding the original building. In the committee's report in July, 1953, a plan was presented to remodel the old building; the present structure, which includes an addition to the front and an extension at the side, finally emerged.

With the approval of the General Church a contract was let, not to exceed $25,000. The finance committee canvassed branch members and received pledges which assured a total of $12,500,

The transition from a little gray block building to a structure of modern design symbolizes the growth of Guelph Branch

Guelph Branch

Gets Major Improvements

the necessary balance being provided by a loan from the General Church.

The new addition and the front of the original church building are constructed of angel-stone veneer over concrete block, with light stained fir trim used throughout the inside. The "new look" is complemented by an oil furnace and attractive furnishings, and the tall windows of modernistic design are fashioned with five different shades of colored glass. The upper auditorium now has a seating capacity of two hundred, with a nursery at the rear separated from the main room by a glass partition wall. A lower congregation room, classroom facilities, and a kitchen provide for branch activities of the one hundred and fifty members. The property and building, with furnishings, is valued at $40,000.

A newspaper account of the official opening of the new building was accompanied by a photograph of Pastor F. C. McLean, L. W. Kohlman, then Bishop of Canada; W. Wallace Smith, representing the First Presidency; John W. Banks, president of Owen Sound District; and Alex Cadwell, chairman of the finance committee.

Elder E. M. Kennedy has succeeded Elder F. C. McLean as pastor, and Bishop Hudson Grundy is now bishop of Canada.

Members of the Guelph congregation cherish the rich heritage of their past and look forward with courage and an abiding faith to the future. Walls and furnishings may make a church, but it is the people themselves, contributing their spiritual and financial support, who make a church a sanctuary for the soul and a home of fellowship for those who worship there and grow strong in Christian endeavor.

FERNE GOULD WHITEHEAD

www.LatterDayTruth.org

Official

(Continued from page 4.)

ence will be held on Saturday, May 3, at 1:00 p.m., at the Pasadena church to transact the following business: elect district officers, elect members at large of the reunion committee, elect delegates to the forthcoming General Conference.

The conference to constitute the Northeast Texas District will be announced at a later date. In the meantime the administration of this area as Central Texas District will continue as it has been.

Other Changes

Porter County, Indiana, was transferred from the Northern Indiana District to the Chicago District. This did not include the transfer of any organized groups.

The counties of Williams, Defiance, and Paulding in the Northwest Ohio District were transferred to the Northern Indiana District. There were no organized groups affected in this move.

Where district boundary changes will require the election of new officers, the apostle concerned will announce the date of the district conference. All these changes are to be retroactive to January 1, 1958.

THE FIRST PRESIDENCY
By F. Henry Edwards

Organization of Arizona District

The Joint Council of First Presidency, Council of Twelve, and Presiding Bishopric at its recent session authorized the organization of the state of Arizona into a district.

Apostle D. B. Jensen has announced that a conference will be held at Phoenix on Sunday, May 11, at which time district organization will be effected. Delegates for the next General Conference will also be elected at this conference.

Elder L. D. Weldon of Tucson, Arizona, is hereby appointed district president subject to the action of the forthcoming district conference.

Bishop H. L. Livingston of the Presiding Bishopric will also be present at this conference.

THE FIRST PRESIDENCY
By Israel A. Smith

Across the Desk

From Elder Glen H. Johnson, president of the Utah-Southeast Idaho District:

The Utah-Southeast Idaho District has had over twenty baptisms during the past year—March, 1957, to March, 1958. We went over the top by $150 on our Auditorium quota and are going to try the same for the coming year.

Today I donated the book The Elect Lady to the public library in Salt Lake City. The young adult group is donating the book Joseph Smith III very soon. These two books should arouse some interest. The Ogden Branch has already donated the book Joseph Smith III to the library there. I'm hoping this can be done throughout the district.

Elder Ward A. Hougas has recently written to the Denver Saints commending them for the excellent work with the financing being done under his direction in that city. In many ways the record set under Brother Hougas' guidance in the past nine years is a remarkable one. We call attention to it for this reason. But an additional reason is that we sometimes tend to measure the growth of the church in terms of what is done by the general organization, without due regard to what is being done in so many of our centers of local endeavor.

This letter to the Denver Saints, not intended for General Church publication, points out that when they moved into their church in 1949 the average morning attendance was about 165, the evening attendance was 30, and attendance at prayer service was less than 15. The average morning attendance is now over 500 in two churches, the evening attendance is somewhat better than half of that, and prayer meeting is similarly improved. Baptisms have gone from less than 10 a year to more than 65 a year.

Nine years ago, when the Denver Saints had just completed their new church, they were almost entirely without equipment, had a net local indebtedness of $10,000, and owed the General Church $45,000. Since that time they have built an annex at a cost of $30,000 and invested a similar amount in the University Park Church. Their total indebtedness is $16,000.

Brother Hougas suggests ten points for consideration in relation to the financial program for the branch. They are too good to pass by. Here they are:

1. Live frugally. Eliminate all unnecessary expense. Be careful with those dollars.
2. Keep as free from debt as possible. Be careful with time payments.
3. Form the habit of living on less than your income. Save regularly from every pay check.

4. Become regular contributors to the church. Make some definite commitments.
5. Be sure that you increase your church payment in harmony with other increased costs.
6. Use duplex envelopes. Their use makes giving easier and better.
7. Budget the family income with the needs of the church included as a regular item.
8. Help the church reduce outstanding indebtedness as rapidly as possible.
9. Think straight. Don't become a party to some pressure group demanding some equipment or concession not considered sound business by the finance board.
10. Follow the divine injunction: "Both in private and in public expenditure carry into active exercise the principle of sacrifice and repression of unnecessary wants; and thus permit the accumulation of tithes and offerings in such amounts as may be needful to properly discharge the existing indebtedness of the church" (Doctrine and Covenants 130: 7).

The Denver Saints have just completed two TV broadcasts from the church building. This was the first venture from the church. KLZ—one of the largest Colorado stations—carried the two one-hour broadcasts. It is estimated that they had 135,000 viewers on the two broadcasts. Brother Hougas comments that this is many times more non-members than he has preached to in forty years of ministry.

Information Please!

In the March 10 issue we requested information concerning our third-generation pastors. We have heard from several pastors whose father and grandfather before them had been pastors and we wish to thank them for their cooperation. In case some missed reading this request, or have not carried out their intentions to advise us, we urge that the information be made available to us by April 28 for use in a special pastoral edition of the Herald. C. B. H.

District President Wilder Dies

Word just came of the death of J. E. (Gene) Wilder of Mercedes, Texas, early April 7. He was born in 1905, ordained a deacon in 1936, and within the next ten years became a priest, elder, and high priest. He has been president of the Southwest Texas District for several years and manager of the Magic Valley Electric Company. The Saints of the district and the General Church have sustained a serious loss in his passing.

A book of signposts to happier family living...

Stop, look, and listen to what Dr. Marney has to say about family living in this new book!

For every member of the family—some surprising facts about themselves! Dr. Marney's book will help people grow into a deeper, richer understanding of themselves and other family members.

By applying the teachings in Dangerous Fathers, Problem Mothers, and Terrible Teens, every family can become an even closer, happier, more harmonious group. Abingdon Press.

$2.00

Box 477
Independence, Missouri

Box 382
Guelph, Ontario, Canada

Youth Camp Schedule

Senior High Camps

DATE	NAME OF CAMP	LOCATION	DIRECTOR OR REGISTRAR
June 1-8	Wakonda	Racine, Mo.	Kenneth Stobaugh 121 Plumb Aurora, Mo.
June 7-14	Camp Niobara	Horn's Ranch Atkinson, Nebraska	A. F. Gibbs, Director c/o Fred Horne Atkinson, Nebraska
June 8-14	Senior High	Odessa, Mo.	Velma Jones Rt. 4, Box 402 Independence, Mo.
June 8-15	Monyoka	YMCA Camp Elliston, Montana	Harve Eliason Route 1 Deer Lodge, Montana
June 8-15	Romoca	Palmer Lake, Colorado	Ward Hougas 430 Marion St. Denver 18, Colorado
June 15-20	Camp Hooluana	YMCA Camp Kokokahi, Oahu	Sylvester Coleman 45-420 Pua Makahala Kaneohe, Oahu, T. H.
June 15-21	Agape	Guthrie Grove Guthrie Center, Iowa	Dale Paterno 128 Lynn Ames, Iowa
June 15-21	Idauca	Baptist Camp (12 mi. north of Ketchum, Idaho)	Elvin Dennis Melba, Idaho
June 15-22	Liahona	Camp Shelby State Park Hattiesburg, Miss.	John R. Darling 1200 Baltimore Mobile, Ala.
June 21-28	Zion's League	Buckhorn Camp Idyllwild, Calif.	Jasper R. Pennington 3043 Studebaker Rd. Long Beach 8, Calif.
June 21-28	Sr. Hi.	Happy Valley Conf. Grounds Santa Cruz, California	Norman Slick 1208 Sandra Dr. Bakersfield, Calif.
June 22-29	Michuron	Lexington, Michigan	Murray Smith 363 Louise Ave. Highland Park 3, Mich.
June 22-29	Winiaugwamauk	Brooksville, Maine	D. L. Kyser Box 364 Jonesport, Maine
June 27 - July 4	Ontagin	Port Elgin Ontario, Canada	Jack Wright 1443 Bathurst Toronto, Ontario
June 28 - July 5	Onterieo	Erie Beach Ontario, Canada	Elroy Hanton 13 Tweedsmuir Ave. Chatham, Ontario
June 28 - July 5	Michahona	Sanford, Michigan	Robert Ball Roscommon, Mich.
June 28 - July 5	Michivoix	Park of Pines Boyne City, Michigan	Muir F. Robinson 601 Reed St. Kalamazoo, Michigan
June 29 - July 6	LaDaSa (S.E. Ill., Cent. Ill., & St. Louis Districts)	Brush Creek Reunion Grnds. Xenia, Illinois	John Wight (Registrar) 4250 N. Grand Blvd. St. Louis 7, Mo.
June 29 - July 6	Sr. Hi.	Camp Manitou Vandalia, Michigan	Lloyd Cleveland 1224 N. Randall Rd. Aurora, Ill.
July 21-28	Camp Big Hart	Pensacola, Florida	Sam Dixon, Director Route 1 Melton, Florida
July 27 - August 3	Deer Park	Deer Park New Hope, Penn.	Loyd Adams 27 Parkway Drive Plainview, N. Y.
June 29 - July 6	Kimtah	Deception Pass, Wash.	Ray Sowers 3819 N. 25th St. Tacoma 7, Washington
August 3-10	Yopeca (14-16 yrs.)	Lake Doniphan Excelsior Springs, Mo.	Robert Taylor 916 W. Lexington Independence, Mo.
August 10-16	Tonadoona	Chetek, Wis.	Conon Edwards 2848 Aurene Circle West Allis, Wis.
August 10-17	Doyoca	Lake Doniphan Excelsior Springs, Mo.	Ray Fisher 617 Fremont Ave. Kansas City, Mo.
August 10-17	Templegrove	Transfer, Penn.	B. Scott Liston 652 Argonne Painesville, Ohio
August 16-24	Starlite	Lakehurst Maquoketa, Illinois	N. L. Preusch 1511 Robeson St. Bettendorf, Iowa
August 17-23	Ecene	Zephyr Lodge, Liberty Lake, Wash. (Between Spokane and Coeur d'Alene)	E. Paul Crinzi N. 5506 "G" St. Spokane 15, Wash.
August 17-24	Buckhorn	Camp Buckhorn Idyllwild, Calif.	Gene C. Ross Rt. 1, Box 335 Ramona, Calif.
August 17-24	Israel (15-19 yrs.)	Lewis River Campgrounds Yacolt, Wash.	Robert Dixon 540 S.E. 176th Pl. Portland, Oregon
August 17-24	Sionito	Bandera, Texas	Charles Eastham 1806 S. Hackberry San Antonio, Texas

Combined Junior-Senior High Camps

June 1-8	Yokoma	Osage Hills State Park Bartlesville, Okla.	Melvin E. Francis 1324 S. Cheyenne Tulsa, Oklahoma
June 7-15	Liahona	American Baptist Tonto Rim Camp (near Payson, Arizona)	Robert I. Wakeman 67 W. Cypress Phoenix, Arizona
June 7-15	Texoma	Robbers Cave State Park Wilburton, Oklahoma	Don Dollins Wilburton, Oklahoma
June 14-22	Southern Oregon District	Fir Point Christian Camp Glendale, Oregon	Frank Tucker 410 South Oregon Yreka, California
June 15-22	So. Indiana	Brush Creek Reunion Grnds. Xenia, Illinois	Chester Metcalf 1805 Shelby St. New Albany, Ind.
June 15-22	Rubicon	Orlando, Florida	Howard Roberts 3809 Wren Lane Orlando, Florida
June 29 - July 4	Youth Camp (13-18 yrs.)	Sandy Lake McDowell, Sask., Canada	Keith Harvey 2336 Garnet St. Regina, Saskatchewan
August 10-17	Clemens	Mark Twain State Park Perry, Mo.	Wm. T. Guthrie Rt. 3 Columbia, Mo.
August 22-29	Alleghany	Alleghany State Park New York	R. M. Reid R. F. D. No. 5 Corfu, New York
August 23-30	S. N. E. Camp Junior High and Senior High	YMCA Camp Camp Shepard, R. I.	Victor Witte 1386 Massachusetts Ave. Lexington, Mass.

Junior High Camps

June 8-15	Wakonda	Racine, Mo.	Kenneth Stobaugh 121 Plumb Aurora, Mo.
June 14-21	Mo-Kee-Ta	Lakehurst Maquoketa, Illinois	J. R. Archibald 925 Grant Street Bettendorf, Iowa
June 15-21	Tamokayoca	Odessa, Mo.	Doris Gabriel Route 1 Grain Valley, Mo.
June 15-22	Liahona	Camp Shelby State Park Hattiesburg, Miss.	John R. Darling 1200 Baltimore Mobile, Alabama
June 21-28	Zarahemla (Primitive)	Tule River California	Mayme Blakeman 4455 W. 59th Place Los Angeles, California
June 22-27	Camp Hooluana	YMCA Camp Kokokahi, Oahu	Sylvester Coleman 45-420 Pua Makahala Kaneohe, Oahu, T. H.
June 22-28	Junior High Chrice No. 1	Guthrie Grove Guthrie Center, Iowa	John Booth 217 10th St. Council Bluffs, Iowa
June 29 - July 5	Chrice No. II	Guthrie Grove Guthrie Center, Iowa	Russ Pearson P. O. Box 96 Pisgah, Iowa
June 29 - July 6	Camp Manitou (Boys 12-14)	Blue Water Reunion Grounds Lexington, Michigan	Robert Burger 31670 Schoolcraft Livonia, Michigan
July 4-11	Kayoco 11-13	Lake Doniphan Excelsior Springs, Mo.	Ray Fisher 617 Fremont Ave. Kansas City, Mo.
July 5-12	Jr. Hi.	Sanford Reunion Grounds Sanford, Michigan	Charles Mundorff 409 North First Street West Branch, Michigan
July 5-12	Michivoix	Park of Pines Boyer City, Michigan	Bill Anderson 315 McKinley Alpena, Michigan
July 6-12	Nebraska Junior High	Atkinson, Nebraska	Irl L. Chandler 5630 Frederick St. Omaha, Nebraska
July 6-13	Ne-Nawko-Zhoo (Jr. Hi. Girls)	Blue Water Reunion Grounds Lexington, Michigan	Lillian Dunlap Shabbona, Michigan
July 6-13	Jr. Hi. Boys	Camp Manitou Vandalia, Michigan	???
July 6-13	LaDaSa	Brush Creek Reunion Grnds. Xenia, Illinois	John Wight 4250 N. Grand Blvd. St. Louis 7, Mo.
July 13-19	Wasila	Silver Lake Wash.	John Ganson Route 6, Box 2907 Bremerton, Washington
July 13-20	Jr. Hi. Girls	Camp Manitou Vandalia, Michigan	Mrs. Genevieve Lusha 11501 S. Wallace Chicago, Illinois
July 6-14	Camp Mivaca	Fremont, Nebraska	Irl L. Chandler, Director 5630 Frederick Omaha, Nebraska
July 15-20	Ontagin	Port Elgin Ontario, Canada	E. E. Smythe 1443 Bathurst Toronto, Ontario
July 20-27	Deer Park	New Hope, Penn.	Loyd Adams 27 Parkway Drive Plainview, N. Y.

Graceland Gazette

■ The recently completed religious unit entitled "The Latter Day Saints Have a Unique Church Polity" provided inspiration, education, and enjoyment as students became acquainted with the administrative structure of the church. Wednesday morning, March 12, the assembly theme was "These Eighteen Men." Students represented the Joint Council members, and a brief sketch was presented about each. Wednesday evening the ten divisional groups met and made their plans for the Joint Council dinner. Each division adopted one or more members of the Council and was host for the receptions held Saturday afternoon and for the Council dinner during the evening in the Student Center. The theme of the dinner was "Men of the Year," and each division group had its table decorated to carry out the theme of different months. After the fellowship dinner there was group singing and a few short talks. The dinner could be labeled one of the high lights of the college year.

Sunday the Council was again present for the morning worship service. After church faculty members and their families were hosts to these men at an informal potluck dinner.

Wednesday evening Walter Johnson was present for the service on the theme "The Work of the Church in 1958 as Seen by the Presiding Bishopric." An informal interview was presented. Sunday morning several of the Apostles gave their views from their standpoint and the area of the church in 1958. Then, Wednesday evening, March 26, students shared with the First Presidency in the concluding service of this educational unit.

■ Diana Damitz, a sophomore from Lamoni, presented a graduate recital Sunday, March 16, in the Student Center. Diana is a Crescent, belongs to the K Alpha Club, and is the accompanist for the college Chapel Choir. She attended the Federated Music Contest for Young Artists at Cornell College last fall and won high honors for her work.

■ The Graceland Players presented "The Miser" Thursday, Friday, and Saturday evenings, March 20-22. The miser was played by Al Emerson from Jonesport, Maine, and his daughter was played by Ann Fine of Afton, Iowa. Other actors in the play were Jim Heverling of Sedro Woolley, Washington; Ed Garner of Toronto, Ontario, Canada; Iris Harper of Independence, Missouri; Jean Tolbert from Pensacola, Florida; Ron Farley of Bartlesville, Oklahoma; Dan Chapman of Columbus, Ohio; Janet Harsin of Gering, Nebraska; Mickey MacLeod of Albany, California; Frank Hough from Barnard, Missouri; and Roger Cook of Richmond, California.

■ The Graceland Concert choir traveled to Independence Sunday, March 23, to give a concert at Van Horn High School. The program consisted of religious music and high lights from the recent pops concerts on the campus. This appearance was sponsored by the Independence Alumni Chapter. Each year the chapter sponsors various projects designed to raise funds for students attending Graceland through the benefit of the chapter's scholarship program.

■ Members of the International Club were in charge of the assembly Wednesday, March 19. They presented a model general assembly of the United Nations. The topic discussed was a proposal for world disarmament of nuclear weapons. Some American students were asked to represent the countries which are not represented at Graceland in order to round out the discussion. This assembly proved to be very interesting as few students actually knew how the United Nations was conducted.

■ Graceland opened its spring track season with indoor meets at Drake in Des Moines on Saturday and Monday, March 15 and 17. On Saturday the Yellow Jackets competed in the Iowa A.A.U. indoor meet; Monday night they met the Drake Freshmen and were defeated 61-43 in a dual meet. The high point of the two meets was the performance of Elbert Harrington from East Moline, Illinois, in the two mile. In the A.A.U. meet he placed sixth with a time of 10:15.3 and broke the Graceland record of 10:23 set in 1923. Monday night at the Drake meet he lowered his new record to 10:12.4 as he finished first. Graceland had a total of five firsts in individual events to Drake's six. Others to place first for Graceland were Ron Becker of Woodland, Washington, in the 50-yard dash (:5.7), Gary Tickemyer from Arcadia, California, in the high jump (5'10"), Don Glenn of Evansville, Indiana, in the shot put (39' 3 1/4"), and Everett Smith of Minneapolis, Minnesota, in the pole vault (11').

■ The high light of the girl's WRA basketball season ended with the all star freshman-sophomore game Friday night, March 21. Girls for this team were chosen on the basis of teamwork, participation, skill, and sportsmanship. The game was very close all the way, and neither team was ever ahead more than four or five points. The sophomores finally won 52-47. Mary Lee Hubbard, freshman from Woodbine, Iowa, was high scorer of the game with 29 points. Other high scorers were Carol Oliver, sophomore, of Moorhead, Iowa, with 18 points; Meredith Bourland, freshman of Los Angeles, California, with 14 points; and Jeri Madden, sophomore of Leon, Iowa, with 13 points. Meredith Bourland was captain of the freshman team. Co-captains of the sophomore team were Virginia Turner from Independence, Missouri, and Carol Oliver.

■ A compilation of the first semester grades indicates that 179 full-time students have achieved an academic record of better than 3.0. Thirty-six of these students have a 3.5 or higher average and are on the honor list. Each of these students received a personal letter from Dr. Gould, Acting President, congratulating him on this fine achievement.

A new method of presenting academic awards was started recently. A trophy was given to the men and women's basic residence unit for the highest grade point average. The trophy for the first semester was awarded to Garver Hall, which is located on the first floor of Gunsolley, and to Carlile Manor, which is located on the first floor of Walker. Each semester the "traveling" trophy will be awarded to the two units with the highest academic standing.

■ Through the combined efforts of the college and community, the Des Moines Symphony Orchestra presented an outstanding concert in the Lamoni High School gymnasium Tuesday evening, March 25. Under the direction of Frank Noyes, founder of the orchestra, the musicians entertained an audience of about 600 persons, many of whom were Gracelanders. A varied program of classical music, including some contemporary compositions, was presented along with familiar symphony standards.

Youth Camp Schedule Continued

Junior High Camps

DATE	NAME OF CAMP	LOCATION	DIRECTOR OR REGISTRAR
July 20-27	Sionite	Bandera, Texas	Herbert Smith 2504 Shakespeare, Apt. 6 Houston, Texas
August 3-9	Buckhorn (So. Calif.)	Camp Buckhorn Idyllwild, Calif.	Gene C. Ross Rt. 1, Box 335 Ramona, Calif.
August 8-10	Zion (12-14 yrs.)	Lewis River Camp Gnds. Yacolt, Wash.	Robert Dixon 540 S.E. 176th Pl. Portland, Oregon
August 10-18	Onterieo	Erie Beach Ontario, Canada	Leroy Hanton 13 Tweedsmuir Ave. Chatham, Ontario
August 17-24	Templegrove	Transfer, Penn.	B. Scott Liston 652 Argonne Painesville, Ohio
August 24-30	Tonadoona	Chetek, Wis.	Hollis Olson 469 Crescent Lane St. Paul 3, Minnesota

Oriole Girl Camps

June 8-14	Oececa, 1st Session	Lake Doniphan Excelsior Springs, Mo.	Robert Taylor 916 W. Lexington Independence, Mo.
June 8-14	Camp Orica	Guthrie Grove Guthrie Center, Iowa	Lois Seeley, Registrar Mondamin, Iowa
June 15-21	Oececa, 2nd Session	Lake Doniphan Excelsior Springs, Mo.	Robert Taylor 916 W. Lexington Independence, Mo.
June 22-28	Oececa, 3rd Session	Lake Doniphan Excelsior Springs, Mo.	Robert Taylor 916 W. Lexington Independence, Mo.

Specialized Youth Camps

June 8-15	Missionary Camp	Camp Manitou Vandalia, Mich.	Russell Ralston (Director) The Auditorium Independence, Mo.
June 19-29	Missionary Caravan (Zion's League)	Independence to Kewanee, Illinois	Robert Taylor 916 W. Lexington Independence, Mo.
August 23-30	Older Youth (17 yrs. & up)	Lake Doniphan Excelsior Springs, Mo.	Robert Taylor 916 W. Lexington Independence, Mo.
August 24-30	Youth Music Camp	Camp Manitou Vandalia, Michigan	F. S. Weddle The Auditorium Independence, Mo.

Book Review

MARX MEETS CHRIST

By Frank Wilson Price

The Westminster Press
Philadelphia, 1957

Price $3.50

reader to think more clearly about a subject which deserves clarity of thought.

Equally commendable is Mr. Price's attempt to give an accurate evaluation of what Christianity is and has been. He points out weaknesses as well as strengths in the movement. The tenor of the book is a call to action by Christians rather than an unrealistic defense of past policies. However, reflecting the general indecision in Protestantism today, he gives few concrete suggestions as to how Christians ought to respond practically to the challenge of Communism.

Latter Day Saints will find little to disturb them theologically in Marx Meets Christ. Among Christians, they particularly ought to find much to disturb them as they contemplate what they need to do in meeting the challenge of Marx. The question is not one we can ignore for long. This book gives a preview of what we can expect as our missionary program is expanded.

ALMA R. BLAIR

Briefs

Show Slides on Auditorium Progress

GULLIVER, MICHIGAN.—Elder Rex Stowe, district president, was guest speaker at the morning worship service on January 19.

Two infants were blessed February 9. They were James Alan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Rosebush, and Brian Kirk, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Backman. Elder George Backman officiated.

On March 15-16, the branch was host to a district Zion's League leadership training course. Workshops, recreation, and fellowship were shared by the young people and leaders. Meals were prepared by the Gulliver women's department.

Slides showing progress on the Auditorium were shown March 17. Pastor George Backman was in charge. Brother Dick Isaacs of St. Paul, Minnesota, was a guest. He was originally from Independence, and his first hand recollections of the Auditorium construction were well received.—Reported by C. REID

Annual Youth Retreat

LOMBARD, ILLINOIS.—In November, the women's group held a bazaar and dinner, which, through their diligent efforts, helped to increase the building fund.

Two members are attending college this year: Allen Kent is a sophomore at Graceland and Jim Briggs is a freshman at Stanford University, after having graduated from Graceland last year.

Four young men are now serving in the armed forces: Dale Hoyt, David Kent, Dennis Rezakab, and Allan Miller.

On February 1 and 2, the district youth held their annual winter retreat, which was well attended. The theme was "Stewardship" and the guest speaker was Bishop James Burdick. On Saturday afternoon the young people enjoyed tobogganing and in the evening a campfire completed the day's activities. Sunday morning classes were conducted by District President Lyle Woodstock, followed by an upper room service.—Reported by CAROL ERICKSON

Twenty-four Baptisms in 1957

LONG BEACH, CALIFORNIA.—Twenty-four persons were baptized during the year 1957; five men were called to the priesthood: N. H. Turner to elder; W. Gordon Madsen and Jasper R. Pennington to priest; Dennis Niles and Del Nelson to deacon.

On February 9 President Israel A. Smith was present for the eleven o'clock service. G. E. Tickemyer, stake president, and High Priest A. R. Hacker, counselor to the stake bishop, were present also for the "mortgage burning" ceremony, signifying the payment of the debt to the General Church. There were two hundred and eighty-one in attendance at this service. Brother Smith was guest speaker. A new building fund has now been started in anticipation of securing property and eventually building a new church to serve this rapidly expanding area.

Last year commenced a pronounced upward trend in all activities of this congregation.—Reported by JANET JOHNSON

Cottage Meetings Held

SPRINGFIELD, MISSOURI.—District Missionary Kenneth Stobaugh held a series of cottage meetings during February. He preached on Sundays. On March 2 there were five baptisms. Jean Nitzsche and George Nitzsche were baptized by Elder Clifford Browne, Sr. Elder Stobaugh baptized Juanita Allison, Anita Allison, and Erwin Allison. The last two named are children.

Rockwell Keith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Browne, Jr., was blessed recently by his grandfather, Elder Clifford Browne, Sr., and his uncle, Elder R. E. Jones.

David Ronald, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Ramsey, was blessed by his grandfather, Elder Kenneth Cady, and great-grandfather, Elder John Cady.

Kenneth Wayne, son of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Rust of Independence, Missouri, was blessed by Patriarch F. M. Bishop and Elder John Cady.

The district Zion's League met with the Saints at Springfield on February 16. The first session was a prayer service, with Brothers Stobaugh and Kenneth Cady in charge. District Leader Charles Browne was in charge of the business session.

A men's club has been organized. Walter Hester is president.

Recent visitors have been Evangelist Lester McCrea of Carrollton, Missouri; Rachel Troyer of Joplin, Missouri; Mr. and Mrs. William E. Rust of Independence, Missouri; Mr. and Mrs. William Rust of Marshfield, Missouri; Eilene O'Dell, Doreen Carpenter, Jean Clark, various nurses from the Independence Sanitarium and Hospital, Mrs. Opal Smith, and H. E. Ingraham of Springfield.—Reported by MAGGIE WILSON

Initials Spark Branch Activities

KANSAS CITY, MISSOURI.—Members of the Gladstone congregation have used the initials C. P. with significance in their church project, that of building a new church. Choir Director Pauline Fisher emphasized that "congregational participation" had enabled the Saints to build with over half of the work done by volunteer labor. "Constant prayer" was a source of guidance and inspiration. "Counting pennies" paid for many needed materials. "Continuous progress" accompanied the work in spite of weather difficulties and illness. Most important were "consecrated people," united that "Christ's plan" be demonstrated.

Russell Fisher was ordained a priest December 8 by Bishop Joseph E. Baldwin and Elder Leo Parrish. Charles Kirkendoll was ordained a deacon by Elders Jerome Middleton and Fred Kirkendoll.

Sandra Lee Stoutenburg was blessed December 29 by Elders Glenn Scott and Glenn Moad. David Wayne Kinney was blessed February 2 by Elders Marion Sneed and Jerome W. Middleton.

For January family night, Elder Lionel Gale of Barbados, West Indies, was guest speaker. Harley Morris, psychologist, was guest speaker in February.

The women's department held a supper and bazaar February 21, and netted $158 toward the building fund.—Reported by MRS. JOHN L. THOMPSON

Recent Ordinations

HAGERMAN, IDAHO.—The Hagerman Branch and its two missions, Twin Falls and Buhl, have a membership of 264.

There were ten baptisms during the calendar year 1957, and seven have been baptized so far in 1958. Ten of these were adults, and seven were children.

Recent ordinations are as follows: Wiley Harmon, Twin Falls, priest; Ivan Montgomery, Twin Falls, elder; Lyle Tulmer, Twin Falls, priest; Fred Koch, Buhl, priest; George Allen, King Hill, elder; Arlen Dennis, Fair Field, elder; and Fred Eichholz, Ferry, deacon.

Children blessed were George Lon Dickerson, Kim Lemmon, Alford Trowbridge, Terry Peterson, and Evelyn Wright.

The women of the branch, under Sister Mary Davis, have been busy with friendly visiting and in money-making projects.—Reported by CHLOE FAUSETT

"Best Ever" District Conference

FONTANA, CALIFORNIA.—The spring conference for Southern California District was held March 8-9 at the Masonic Hall.

The appointment of Elder Roy Ash of Montalvo as district treasurer to serve concurrently as bishop's counselor was announced March 8. Filling these offices by appointment was necessitated by the fact that the elected district treasurer, Elder C. Rodney Engle, formerly of Santa Ana, moved to Mesa, Arizona.

Elder Howell P. Hughes of Santa Barbara was appointed to fill a vacancy in the district council. He will represent the district presidency in Ventura, Santa Barbara, and San Luis Obispo counties.

District President John P. Davis convened the general class and he and Elder Gene Ross of Ramona, and Elder Hughes addressed the class on the aspects of "Sharing My Gospel Heritage." Separate classes were held following this. Supper was served by the Fontana Branch.

Bishop David B. Carmichael presented slides on the Auditorium. The business meeting followed. The conference approved the priesthood calls of the following men: James C. Miller, teacher; A. Grossfield, elder; Nolan Negaard, teacher; Frank Van Fleet, priest; Charles M. Scaiola, deacon; Clifford Maguire, elder; Robert J. Paton, elder; Charles Hendershot, elder; Guy L. Waller, priest; Rollin Postlethwaite, teacher; William Klosterman, priest; Joseph P. Hammer, deacon; Gene Ross, elder; Jack R. Phillips, priest.

On March 9, a prayer and testimony meeting was conducted by District Evangelist Louis J. Ostertag, John P. Davis, and Bishop Carmichael. Brother Davis presided over the concluding worship service of the conference. E. Dale Dickson preached on "Sharing My Gospel Heritage."—Reported by HOWELL P. HUGHES

Tri-Valley Projects

SAN FERNANDO, CALIFORNIA.—The branch business meeting for the San Fernando congregation was held November 25, with Presiding Elder Douglas R. Clark in charge.

A lot was purchased during the summer and several money-making projects were held to pay for it.

Paul Griner was ordained an elder, Harold Slaght a teacher, and David Griner and John P. Kirkpatrick deacons during the past year.

Attendance has steadily increased. The group is taking part in tri-valley projects with Sherman Oaks and Burbank congregations. There are missionary huddles, women's meetings, prayer meetings, and Zion's League meetings together. A picnic for the three congregations has been held the past two years. Membership is scattered over such a large area that these meetings conserve mileage.—Reported by MYRTLE SLAGHT

District Conference

SPOKANE, WASHINGTON.—The Spokane District annual spring conference was held at Richland, Washington, March 7-9. E. Paul Crinzi presided.

Thirteen calls to the priesthood were approved.

Seventy James Daugherty taught classes and offered the preaching ministry.—Reported by LEE ABRAMSON

Bulletin Board

New Church Radio Series

Three new series of general church radio programs are now being presented. Radio Minister Evan A. Fry is the speaker for all, with music by the Radio Choir.

Radio Station WMRP of Flint, Michigan, carries a program Friday mornings at 10:00-10:15, broadcasting on a frequency (dial reading) of 1570 kilocycles. WMRP has previously carried programs provided locally. The Clio Branch (James W. McBride, pastor) sponsors the series. District President Almer W. Sheehy assisted in making the arrangements.

Station WJSB of Crestview, Florida, carries a new series Monday mornings at 9:00. WJSB operates on a frequency of 1050 kc. Pastor of the Crestview Branch is Charles E. Barnes. WJSB also carries a local program each Sunday morning at 9:30, with Dan Barnes as the speaker.

In St. Thomas, Ontario, Station CHLO carries a series, which began on Sunday, April 6, at 10:45 A.M. Arrangements were made by District President J. C. Stuart of London, Ontario. Harvey E. Nicholson is pastor in St. Thomas. This is the third branch in Canada to begin broadcast series since the FCC stated that it would be permitted. The others are Guelph and Sault Ste Marie, Ontario.

CHARLES F. CHURCH, JR.
Director of Radio

Minnesota-Red River District Priesthood Retreat

The Minnesota-Red River District's priesthood retreat will be held May 17 and 18 at Lyman Lodge in Excelsior, Minnesota, with High Priest L. Wayne Updike as guest speaker. The cost is $8.00; advance registration by May 10 is necessary. Applications and further information may be obtained from John L. Whipple, 3809 Columbus Avenue South, Minneapolis 7, Minnesota.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYERS

Mrs. Flora M. Turner of Minturn, Maine, requests prayers for herself and her family.

Mrs. Mildred Jaquish, 811 Bakewell Street, Covington, Kentucky, requests prayers. She is an isolated member.

Prayers are requested for Mrs. Lydia Simmons who is a patient in the hospital at Holdenville, Oklahoma. Her condition is critical.

I. B. Francis of Rutland, Saskatchewan, requests prayers for her son, William T. Francis, who has a nervous ailment.

ENGAGEMENTS

McKain-Morris

Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Morris of Independence, Missouri, announce the engagement of their daughter, Rozema, to Hal McKain, son of Mrs. Frank Rissler of Buckner, Missouri. Both are graduates of Graceland College, and Hal also attended Central Missouri State College at Warrensburg.

Stone-Davis

Mrs. June L. Davis of San Jose, California, announces the engagement of her daughter, Nancy Rose Davis, to Duane Snyder Stone, son of Mrs. Neva Donovan of Kansas City, Kansas. Miss Davis is attending Graceland College. Mr. Stone, a graduate of Graceland, is a student at San Jose State College. The wedding will be held in August at the Reorganized Church in San Jose.

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Silverthorn of Stratford, Ontario, became the parents of a son, Mark Anthony, on January 9. He was blessed at the Durham mission on March 16 by Elders Elmer Rydall and Berford Rydall.

Mr. and Mrs. Beryl Chambers of Glen Easton, West Virginia, became the parents of a son, Mark Douglas, on January 4. He was blessed on March 9 by his grandfather, Elder Henry Simon, and Evangelist Samuel Zonkers.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kinnaman of Independence, Missouri, became the parents of a son, Brian Rickert, on January 28. Mrs. Kinna-man, the former Carol Dowdy, attended Graceland in 1950-51.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Young of Fort Lauderdale, Florida, became the parents of a daughter, Vicki Eileen, on October 10, 1957. She was blessed by Elders Jack Barnes and Bill Young on February 9. Mrs. Young is the former Jean Franks. Both parents are graduates of Graceland, class of 1950.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. West of Denver, Colorado, became the parents of a daughter, Zaide Ardyce, on July 5, 1957. She was blessed on September 1 by her maternal grandfather, Elder Richard S. Salyards, and High Priest Ward A. Hougas.

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Lydell of Audubon, Minnesota, became the parents of a daughter, Darrella Mae, on February 24. She was blessed on March 16 by Elders Archie Peterson and Hilary Tester. Mrs. Lydell is the former Maxine Felker.

Mr. and Mrs. Gene Winslow of Sedalia, Missouri, became the parents of a son, David Bruce, on February 7. He was blessed on March 2 by Elders Nelson Pugh and Roe Vincent. Mrs. Winslow is the former Mary Ann Shields of Kansas City, Missouri.

Lt. and Mrs. A. Richard Baird announce the birth of a son, Ricardo Timothy, born March 24 at Greenville Air Force Base, Greenville, Mississippi, where Lt. Baird is stationed as a jet pilot instructor. Mrs. Baird is the former Grace Cordova of Del Rio, Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Conway announce the birth of a son, Stephen Joseph, born March 4 at Toledo, Ohio. Mrs. Conway is the former Julia Ann Turpen.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon E. Burns of Germfask, Michigan, became the parents of a daughter, April Lynne, on February 8. Mrs. Burns is the former Nellie Grames.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry LaMastres of Independence, Missouri, announce the birth of a son, Harry Christopher, born March 4. Mrs. LaMastres is the former Mae Stevenson.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Waggoner of Wood River, Illinois, became the parents of a son on February 18. He has been named Barry Lane.

DEATHS

PEACOCK.—William Clayton, son of Levi and Sarah Peacock, was born June 27, 1889, in Wilson Township, Michigan, and died March 8, 1958, at a hospital in Wauchula, Florida. As a young man he was baptized into the Reorganized Church; he served first as a teacher and was then ordained to the office of elder. For twenty years he was pastor of the Alpena, Michigan, Branch. Following his retirement, he and his wife, the former Alma Eveline Smith, moved to Wauchula.

He is survived by his wife; two daughters: Mrs. Olive Johnson of Lachine, Michigan, and Mrs. Everal Stansberry of Alpena; two brothers: Berton Peacock of Alpena and Vernon of Detroit, Michigan; two sisters: Mrs. Edward Tessmore of Detroit and Mrs. George Bloom of Ypsilanti, Michigan; nine grandchildren; and one great-grandchild. Funeral services were conducted at the Bradenton-Sarasota Reorganized Church by Elder Byron Doty and Pastor Clifton McArthur. Burial was in Manasota Memorial Park.

RATHWELL.—George Edward, died March 4, 1958, at Kingston, Ontario. His wife, Pamela May Rathwell, preceded him in death. He had been a member of the Reorganized Church since 1915.

He is survived by four daughters: Mrs. William Whitworth of Toronto, Ontario; Mrs. Norma McCormick of Kingston; Marjorie and Bessie Rathwell of Detroit, Michigan; and a son, Lorne Stuart of Ancaster, Ontario. Services were conducted in Toronto by Elder J. L. Prentice. Burial was in Park Lawn Cemetery.

STEBBINS.—Clara, daughter of William Rivers and Alma Fletcher Sellon, was born December 13, 1858, in Sheawasssee County, Michigan, and died March 11, 1958, at her home in Lamoni, Iowa. She was baptized into the Reorganized Church when she was seventeen and began at once to teach in the Sunday school, which activity she continued throughout her active life. On October 7, 1879, she was married to Henry A. Stebbins, who served as church secretary and recorder for many years. He died on September 8,

SEEK THIS CHRIST

by Reed M. Holmes

"Remember, the quest for Christ is not over when you have found him. There is a world in search of him, and needing him at least as much as we do. Many do not know his name. It is up to you. This is not the end, but the beginning." This concludes Brother Holmes's book with a challenge to each reader of these inspiring seven brief chapters. Get a copy for yourself; share it with your nonmember friends.

$1.50

HERALD
HOUSE

Box 477
Independence, Missouri

Box 382
Guelph, Ontario, Canada

1920. Their three children also preceded her in death, two dying in infancy and one at the age of twelve. Sister Stebbins was superintendent for the primary department in Lamoni for many years, was active in the Daughters of Zion, Women's Auxillary, and Children's Home, during its existence. She was a regular contributor to church publications and assisted C. F. Kueffer in preparing Stories of the Hymns of the Reorganization.

She is the last of her immediate family. Her closest companion was her cousin's daughter, Ethel Lacey, who had lived with her for the past twenty-five years. A memorial service was held at the church in Lamoni, Bishop Earl T. Higdon and Stake President Robert S. Farnham officiating. Interment was in Rose Hill Cemetery.

RICKETTS.—Lucinda R., was born November 11, 1871, at Thayer, Missouri, and died February 21, 1958, in Memphis, Tennessee, where she had resided since 1937. She had been a member of the Reorganized Church since August 20, 1906. Her husband, James Ricketts, preceded her in death. She leaves a daughter, Mrs. H. W. Miller, and two grandchildren.

DOPP.—Michael, was born August 7, 1893, at Fisher, Arkansas, and died February 14, 1958, at his home in Quincy, California. On May 31, 1920, he was married to Florence E. Lowrey, who survives him. He had been a member of the Reorganized Church since December 15, 1912.

Besides his wife he leaves a son, Arthur M. Dopp. Both are residents of Quincy.

SILK.—Louisa E., was born September 7, 1868, in England and died March 3, 1958, in Toronto, Ontario. Her husband, William Isaac Silk, preceded her in death. She had been a member of the Reorganized Church for many years.

She is survived by a son, William J. Silk; four daughters: Mrs. Carl Kaiser, Mrs. Booth, Mrs. Russell Watson, and Mrs. Jack Cain; three sisters: Mrs. William Martin, Mrs. William Johnston, and Mrs. Franklin Perser; and a brother, James Thomas. Elder J. O. Prentice conducted the funeral. Interment was in Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

PARKS.—Alice Mary, daughter of John and Charlotte Dennis, was born September 5, 1877, at Knoxville, Iowa, and died August 14, 1957, at Gooding, Idaho. She moved with her family to Malta, Idaho, in 1887 where she was baptized into the Reorganized Church on May 22, 1892. She was a charter member of the Hagerman Branch and served in various ways for more than thirty years.

She is survived by her husband, Melvin Parks; a son, Clinton Abercrombie of Gooding, Idaho; three daughters: Mrs. Walter Prince and Mrs. John E. Hoover of Gooding and Mrs. John Reed of Lee, Nevada; a brother, Arthur Dennis of Hagerman; eleven grandchildren; twenty great-grandchildren; and one great-great-grandchild. Elders Cecil and Lysle Gilmore conducted the funeral service at Hagerman. Interment was in the cemetery there.

UNDERHILL.—Calla Louise, daughter of Blair and Anna Fillmore, was born August 22, 1892, at Glennville, Nova Scotia, and died February 1, 1958, at Oakland, California. She was married on July 1, 1914, to Willie Canning, who was killed in an explosion in Halifax in 1917. On May 20, 1939, she was married to Leonard E. Underhill, who survives her. She had been a member of the Reorganized Church since June, 1910.

Besides her husband of Sonoma, California, she leaves a daughter, Mrs. Gracie Kasar of Oakland, California; a brother, Etter W. Fillmore of Truro, Nova Scotia; and a sister, Mrs. Mabel Knight of Oakland. A daughter, Mabel Canning, preceded her in death. Funeral services were held at Fruitvale Chapel of the Clarence Cooper Mortuaries in Oakland, Elder Dale Argotsinger officiating. Interment was in Evergreen Cemetery, Oakland.

OPPELT.—Orville Leston, was born December 7, 1890, at Chehalis, Washington, and died February 17, 1958, at his home in Shelton, Washington. He was baptized into the Reorganized Church on February 21, 1915, ordained a priest in 1917, and an elder on September 4, 1921. He served as pastor of Centralia Branch for twenty years and of Willapa mission for six.

He is survived by his wife, Mima; two sons: Marion of Tacoma, Washington, and Elwyn of Olympia, Washington; three daughters: Mrs. Dorothea Logan of Tacoma, Washington; Mrs. Nedra Insee of Lamoni, Iowa; and Mrs. Nita Nelson of Shelton; eleven grandchildren; and a great-grandchild. Two daughters preceded him in death. Funeral services for him were conducted by Seventy William C. Haden and Elder Ray Sowers. Interment was at Shelton.

LIVINGSTON.—Clara Bell, daughter of William C. and Anna Nirk, was born November 21, 1866, near Baxter, Iowa, and died February 1, 1958, at the home of her son, J. W. Livingston, in Long Beach, California. Her husband and two daughters preceded her in death. She had been a member of the Reorganized Church since her youth.

She leaves two sons: William, and Roy H. of Roseburg, Oregon; four grandchildren; and eight great-grandchildren. Funeral services were conducted by Elder Orval N. James at Long Beach and by Elder Ira Shippy at Newton, Iowa, where the burial took place.

STEPHENSON.—Anna B., daughter of Mosiah and Catherine Winegar, was born near Onawa, Iowa, in 1868, and died February 14, 1958, at Loveland, Colorado. She of Madison.

was baptized into the Reorganized Church on September 16, 1894, and attended Grace-land in 1898 when Frederick M. Smith was a student there. She also helped to organize the Patroness Society in Lamoni and served as its president.

She is survived by a son, Elvin, of Denver, Colorado. Funeral services were conducted by Elder K. S. Gurwell.

WOODSTOCK.—Willard H., son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Woodstock, was born February 4, 1906, at Beloit, Wisconsin, and died in February, 1958, at Madison, Wisconsin. After receiving his Master's degree in chemistry from the University of Wisconsin, he conducted research in organic and inorganic chemistry at the Victor Chemical Works. For the past two years he was chief chemist there. He was listed in American Men of Science.

He is survived by his wife, Rhoda; a son, Lowell of Madison; a daughter, Mrs. Sally German of Urbana, Illinois; and his father

We're on the Air . . .

STATE AND CITY	CALL LETTERS	DIAL READING	DAY AND TIME
ALABAMA, Atmore	WATM	1580	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
ALABAMA, Evergreen	WBLO	1470	Sunday, 9:00 a.m.
ARKANSAS, Jonesboro	KNEA	970	Sunday, 9:00 a.m.
CALIFORNIA, Wasco	KWSO	1050	Sunday, 7:15 a.m.
COLORADO, Durango	KIUP	930	Sunday, 9:45 a.m.
COLORADO, Montrose	KUBC	1260	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
FLORIDA, Crestview	WJSE	1050	Monday, 9:00 a.m.
FLORIDA, Orlando	WLQF	850	Sunday, 7:45 a.m.
IDAHO, Sand Point	KSPT	1400	Sunday, 6:15 p.m.
ILLINOIS, Herrin	WJPF	1340	Sunday, 7:45 a.m.
ILLINOIS, Moline	WQUA	1230	Sunday, 8:15 a.m.
ILLINOIS, Mt. Vernon	WMIX	(FM 94.1) 940	Sunday, 12:15 p.m.
KANSAS, Concordia	KFRM	850	Sunday, 8:30 a.m.
MICHIGAN, Bad Axe	WLEW	1340	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
MICHIGAN, Flint	WMRP	1570	Friday, 10:00 a.m.
MICHIGAN, Houghton Lake	WHGR	1290	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
MINNESOTA, Detroit Lakes	KDLM	1360	Sunday, 8:45 a.m.
MISSOURI, Fulton	KFAL	900	Sunday, 8:15 a.m.
MISSOURI, Kansas City	KMBC	980	Sunday, 8:30 a.m.
NEW MEXICO, Clovis	KCLV	1240	Sunday, 7:45 a.m.
NEW YORK, Hornell	WVWH	1320	Sunday, 10:30 a.m.
NORTH DAKOTA, Valley City	KOVC	1490	Sunday, 6:00 p.m.
OHIO, New Philadelphia	WJER	1450	Sunday, 8:30 p.m.
ONTARIO, Guelph	CJOY	1450	Sunday, 9:15 a.m.
ONTARIO, St. Thomas	CHLO	680	Sunday, 10:45 a.m.
ONTARIO, Sault Ste Marie	CJIC	1050	Sunday, 8:15 a.m.
OREGON, Lakeview	KQK	1230	Sunday, 2:00 p.m.
PENNSYLVANIA, Charleroi	WESA	940	Sunday, 8:30 a.m.
TENNESSEE, Paris	WTPR	710	Sunday, 7:45 a.m.
WASHINGTON, Vancouver	KHFS	1150	Sunday, 8:30 a.m.
WEST VIRGINIA, Parkersburg	WCEF	1050	Sunday, 12:05 p.m.
WISCONSIN, Richland Center	WRCO	1450	Sunday, 8:15 a.m.

Vacation time is coming . . .

So be sure to take a copy of the 1958 Church Directory with you on your trip. Plan to visit an R.L.D.S. Church while you're en route. You'll be glad you did . . . so will they. Herald House

50c

Box 477
Independence, Missouri

Box 382
Guelph, Ontario, Canada

And Finally...

Mrs. Alex Weber
1411 - 2nd Ave. S.
Denison, Iowa

104 10-5
h

QUOTES

Hindsight is always twenty-twenty.
—Walter Fraley

Your liberty ends where my nose begins.
—James L. Sullivan

Letters touch every key on the sensitive instrument of the soul.
—J. R. Smith

A minute is a mighty long time unless you're talking.
—W. H. Vernon Smith

We learn by rubbing minds together.
—W. H. Vernon Smith

Education based on information is the vehicle of good public relations.
—From Buzz Group G

May we love what God commands and desire what he promises.
—Paul Meacham
P.C.P.A. Roundtable

ONE TO GROW ON

We may gain knowledge from those who agree with us, but we learn wisdom from the mental stimulation of disagreement. We learn our true strength by trying ourselves against the forces of the opposition.
Frances M. Mills

CAUTION!

The question for us is whether our fears will feed on themselves until we throw away our freedom in a wild attempt to preserve it.
—Vannevar Bush

EYE OPENER

Perhaps it is well that we confront adversity occasionally; if we do not, it "may" be an indication that Satan is satisfied with our efforts.
Samuel A. Anderson

Contents

EDITORIAL AND OFFICIAL

The Importance of Quality, by Leonard J. Lea	3
1958 Reunion Theme	4
District Boundary Changes	4
Organization of Arizona District	17
Across the Desk	17

FEATURE ARTICLES

Missionary Family Returns, by Roger Yarrington	2
The Educated Man, by William S. Gould	5
Patterns, by Albert Markey	7
Our Friends in the Near East, by Nelle Morgan	8
The Place of the Professional and Business Women in the Church, by Pauline J. Arnson	10
Library Attracts Many Visitors, by Roger Yarrington	12
Guelph Branch Gets Major Improve- ments, by Ferne Gould Whitehead	16

SPECIAL COLUMNS

I Had an Experience, by Ronald E. Manuel	14
Letters	14
Youth Camp Schedule	18
Graceland Gazette	19
Book Review	20
Briefs	21
Bulletin Board	22
And Finally	24

HOW MANY CHURCHES?

There have been some unfounded statements on the number of churches (denominations) both in the first century and now. Writers have sent in articles alleging as many as seventeen churches in Jesus' day when he declared, "I will build my church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it" (Matthew 16:19). Some writers have said that there are nearly a thousand churches in existence today. Both of these statements have one thing in common: they are not even close to the truth.

The Pharisees and Sadducees were Hebrew sects of Jesus day. The Essenes (not mentioned in the Bible but described by Josephus) were an order of men who lived apart in colonies. Other groups often mentioned were philosophical or political movements. Christian orders now active in our western civilization number approximately 250. Some of these listed in the census of churches have a membership of less than 1000.

C. B. H.

RETURN TO PRAYER

My purring sins—
I've petted every one;
I've fed them well,
And made believe they're fun.

But now I've learned
The catty things can bite.
I'll scat them out,
Then say my prayers tonight.

Stan MacKenzie

IDENTIFICATION

The radio was turned on but little David, playing with his blocks on the floor, seemed totally unaware of it until the old song "Somebody Loves Me" was sunk. Then he looked up at me with his sunniest smile and said quickly, "I know who. It's Jesus, isn't it?"

Merva Bird

1958 VACATION CHURCH SCHOOL MANUALS

Theme: Jesus, the Everliving Savior

Three all-new teachers' manuals (kindergarten, primary, junior) plus a principal's and worship manual. Vital helps in planning activities for every class period throughout each day of the school. Complete suggestions for class study, handcrafts, music, recreation, and teaching aids. The worship manual contains organization helps and worship materials for all age groups. Order plenty of all four manuals now! Herald House

Principal's and Worship Manual	$1.00
Kindergarten Teacher's Manual	.90
Primary Teacher's Manual	.90
Junior Teacher's Manual	.90

HERALD
HOUSE

Box 477
Independence, Missouri

Box 382
Guelph, Ontario, Canada

SAINTS' HERALD

Volume 105 / April 21, 1958 / Number 16

A School to Be Proud Of

Chaplain Ray Ashenhurst and Evelyn Directo, R.N., in "San" Corridor

April 27

"San" School of Nursing
Day

Photo by Blanchard

Louis Erwin Miller

IT WAS August, 1953, during the Arizona-New Mexico Reunion on Mount Lemmon at Tucson. A sudden mountain rain caused Louis Miller and Evangelist Keith Rogers to seek shelter under the eaves of the meeting hall.

While standing there, "Bud" Miller felt led to say that some day he would be asked to accept General Church appointment.

His foresight proved accurate. On July 15, 1957, he accepted General Church appointment as the city pastor of Lansing, Michigan, and missionary elder to the Lansing District.

Brother Miller says, "I have no other desire or aspiration than to build up the kingdom of God on earth and to serve him as faithfully as I can. I believe that, because of the shortness of time and the needs of mankind, this is the most important work in which we can find ourselves."

Before becoming a church appointee, Bud was a general science teacher in the Detroit schools and presiding elder of the Taylor Center congregation in Detroit International Stake. He has served two tours of duty with the U.S. Air Force (including thirty months overseas in the Fiji Islands, Solomon Islands, Dutch East Indies, and Philippines) and currently holds the rank of captain in the Michigan Air National Guard.

He is also a member of Pi Gamma Mu, national social science honor society; the Detroit Schoolmen's Club; Detroit Teacher's Association; and the Detroit Guidance Association.

In his church work, Brother Miller has covered the field. He has been a church school director, music director, secretary-recorder, assistant presiding elder, and presiding elder.

He attended Graceland College, the University of Michigan, and Eastern Michigan College where he received his B.A. degree in 1950. He has also done graduate work at Arizona State College and Wayne University and is near completion of his Master's degree.

In 1942 he was married to Betty Ann Crinzi. The Millers have three daughters: Marlene, ten; Marcia, seven; and Temme Lou, five.

"Visit Kirtland" is second in series of slide sets

New Kirtland Slides Ready

VISIT KIRTLAND," a new color slide set, is ready for distribution, according to Arthur Rock, director of the Audio-Visual Department.

The slide set is second in a series. The first set, "Visit Independence," was finished about three years ago and has since seen much use.

The Kirtland slide set consists of ten pictures of the exterior of the temple, the various interior rooms, the "Window Beautiful," the Hyrum Smith home, the Sidney Rigdon home, and others. All the pictures of the temple were taken after recent renovation was completed.

"Visit Kirtland" slide sets will be available at church-sponsored guide offices at Kirtland Temple, Nauvoo, and the Auditorium. The slide set is also available for rental from the Audio-Visual Department at the Auditorium. Slides are available for purchase singly or in sets.

Brother Rock said two other slide sets which will be a part of this series are now near completion. They are "Visit Nauvoo" and "Visit Graceland College." All the sets will be short with just a small number of slides—about ten or twelve, Brother Rock said.

Authors in This Issue

Reed M. Holmes (page 3), member of Council of Twelve

A. M. Pelletier, Jr. (page 5), Seventy, Ontario

Fred L. Young (page 7), executive secretary to the First Presidency

Aleah Koury (page 9), Seventy, Central California District

Rosemary Barrigan (page 10), Imperial Valley, California

E. F. Epperson (page 10), priest, Independence, Missouri

A. Orlin Crownover (page 11), high priest, Toronto, Ontario

Mrs. Mark H. Siegfried (page 12), Independence, Missouri

Audrey Clark (page 14), St. Louis, Missouri

Out of Every Nation

DID YOU know that it takes one hundred and eight Latter Day Saints to equal one Mennonite? It's true at one point anyway. We require 11,436 members to support one missionary abroad. One hundred and six Evangelical Mennonites do as well.

Do our missionaries cost that much more? No. The amount spent per missionary by our church varies only thirty-two dollars per year from the average spent by forty-two other churches. What makes the difference?

According to a study by Don Landon for the Missions Research Committee of the Joint Council, we church members in the United States and Canada gave 47 cents per member to missions abroad in 1956. Among the other churches studied, per member giving for missions abroad averaged $13.47 with highs of $41.50 for the Seventh-Day Adventists and $96.10 for the Evangelical Mennonites.

The Adventists were organized in 1849. Today they number over one million. Their most rapid growth has been outside the United States. In fact, 71 per cent of the Adventists live abroad. By contrast, 7 per cent of our membership is abroad, a percentage closely parallel to the percentage of our budget appropriated to evangelism in missions abroad during 1956.

Why didn't we appropriate a larger percentage of our income to this endeavor? Where did the other 94 per cent go?

Another study presented to current sessions of the Joint Council provides clear but rather disturbing answers. The intent of a study by Bishop Earl Higdon for the Presiding Bishopric was to scrutinize the expenditure of tithing dollars in stakes, districts, and missions abroad during 1956.

Where did the money go? To Independence. The reason: the treasury of the church is located there. But, it stopped only momentarily; the largest portion went right back into the areas from which it came. It was returned in family allowances for appointees, and capital investment in automobiles and other official needs. A proportionate share, $5.28, of the average contribution ($14.66) went toward the general administrative cost of operating the church. In addition to headquarters costs, this includes assistance to the Graceland College budget (approximately $150.00 in subsidy for each student), maintenance of historical properties, Messiah broadcasts, etc.

Here's the picture:

Returned to stakes and districts	$ 6.38
Proportionate share of general cost	5.28
Missions abroad	.47
Available for appropriations to Graceland, Auditorium, Houses of Worship Revolving Fund, etc.	2.53
Average contribution	$14.66

OBVIOUSLY, some contributed more and some less to make the average of $14.66. Center Stake (Independence) more than produced its share of general church income in 1956, as it does consistently. Center Stake not only contributed the cost of its appointees, their families, and a proportionate share of general expenses but also gave enough more to pay for the total missions abroad budget, plus meeting the deficits of another stake, twenty-seven districts, and three unorganized areas!

Center Stake and four districts—Northeast Illinois, Washington, D. C., Kirtland, and New York—contributed ten dollars or more per member above their appointee costs and their share of general costs. Two stakes, Detroit International and Kansas City, contributed $5.00 to $9.99 net operating gain per member. These were joined by fifteen districts: Flint-Port Huron, Oklahoma City, Northwest Ohio, Pittsburg, Toronto, Tulsa, Columbus, Des Moines, Nauvoo, Lansing, Sacramento, West Montana, and Eastern Michigan. Three stakes and thirty-six districts showed a net operating gain per member from zero to $4.99.

This means simply that all other districts and areas provided less than the actual amount spent in their behalf. In some instances, where a district is very small and new the situation cannot be helped; the weak need to be sustained by the strong. And yet, evangelistic expansion depends upon a net operating gain, the consecration of the surplus of income over expense.

We need to evaluate our present position in light of the facts. According to modern Scripture we are to "send where we cannot go." Have we been consuming appointee man power and the tithe where we can go? The recent interim report of the First Presidency urges improvement of our outreach through utilization of nonappointee missionaries. This calls for seventies and elders. In fact, it calls us to implement General Conference Resolution 897: ". . . that every member of the church should therefore be encouraged to share in the total missionary task of the church to the full extent of his opportunity and ability." The spirit of testimony in the domestic field can relieve the Twelve and Seventy for establishing the work in "new places in all areas."

DURING the recent sessions of the Joint Council of First Presidency, Council of Twelve, and Presiding Bishopric routine matters of church administration occupied a great portion of time. The presentation of the facts and figures of the Higdon report might have seemed routine to a casual observer. Quite to the contrary, a spirit of deep concern pulsed through the Council Chamber in the Auditorium. When the facts had been laid before the men, Bishop G. L. DeLapp said with firm simplicity, "To live, we must be more concerned with what we can give than with what we receive."

We have received "enough and to spare." We possess a marvelous heritage. By contrast with others we have a superabundance of material blessings. Our

(Continued on page 17)

Official

Ex Officio Members of General Conference

The Rules of Order (Rules and Resolutions 16:22) states.

All members of the Melchisedec priesthood are ex officio members of General Conference and are entitled to voice and vote in General Conference when present.

When this statement was prepared for conference action, a resolution adopted by the General Conference of 1927 was apparently overlooked. This resolution provided that:

Previous action which may be to the contrary be set aside and that the superintendent of the Department of Women be seated in the conference as an ex officio (General Conference Minutes 1927: 4232).

In view of the foregoing we hereby give notice that we intend to propose at the General Conference of 1958 that the provision of the Rules of Order concerning ex officio members be amended by the insertion of "and the General Church Leader of Women" between the words "priesthood" and "are," making that section to read:

All members of the Melchisedec priesthood and the General Church Leader of Women are ex officio members of General Conference and are entitled to voice and vote in General Conference when present.

THE FIRST PRESIDENCY
By Israel A. Smith

to work hard to achieve this goal; but with the help of members in Central Missouri Stake, the students themselves, and church members interested and willing to give, we feel sure this Student Center can be established for our college young people at Warrensburg.

Elder Calvin Carpenter in Ontario has written the following:

In December a family of four was added to our membership in Ottawa. These people did not come to us in the usual way. My first contact was over the telephone when the mother called to ask me the difference between our church and the Utah church.

I answered some of her questions, and she said she was going to join our church. I made arrangements to visit these folks in the next few days with Elder Warren Chelline, who was here to conduct a series. Cottage meetings were arranged, and at the end of them the whole family entered the church.

The father enjoyed an unusual experience, as he was being baptized, which filled him with a desire to testify. He went forth with the joy of the gospel in his heart. Soon he had a nephew and his family ready for us to hold meetings in their home. Also, this family arranged for us to conduct meetings with a young Catholic girl who was staying with them. Four new members were baptized and joined another young lady to be confirmed. (The young lady received her first experience at a youth camp which she attended this summer with her girl friend, a church member.)

To start the new year off with this many converts gives us high hopes for the future, especially as I recall the words of a newly baptized member: "I will not stop until my whole family knows of this message!"

Seventy Richard Andersen, who is working in the Scandinavian Mission, recently sent the following information to Bishop DeLapp:

About three weeks ago I received the most recent set of slides covering the
(Continued on page 17)

Across the Desk

OF THE FIRST PRESIDENCY

The following letter was recently received by the Presiding Bishopric from Leroy Beckham, pastor in Butler, Missouri:

For our Auditorium Day drive this year at Butler we set a goal of raising enough money for forty Auditorium seats—an average of one seat for each active family.

The Auditorium Day offering was $1,010. We had previously received $44 during the month for the Auditorium. We believe that by the first of May we shall reach the goal of forty seats, or $1,200.

This is by far the best we have ever done on an Auditorium drive, and I hope it is indicative of the trend throughout the church so that we may see the installation of the needed seats by General Conference.

The following report was received from Elder Carl Mesle, executive secretary to the Committee on Ministry to College People:

I am sure you will be interested to know that the Committee on Ministry to College People has surpassed its goal of locating 1,200 college and university students beyond those at Graceland and the School of Nursing during this current school year. An exact count today reveals 1,235, plus nine more reported by District President Marvin Salter who met with a new student group at the University of Alabama (we do not yet have the names). Additional names continue to come in almost every day.

It is noteworthy that 120, or about one tenth of the total students, are concentrated at Central Missouri State College in Warrensburg, making this the largest group outside Graceland College.

We have just been notified by Bishop Willard Becker that the down payment of $500 has been made on the residence to be converted to a Student Center at Warrensburg. The committee is now definitely committed to raising the remaining $4,500 in cash through gift subscriptions by May 1, 1958, and then moving into the program of selling interest bonds for the remaining $14,000 by May 1, 1959. We are going to have

The Saints' Herald

Vol. 105 April 21, 1958 No. 16

EDITORS: The First Presidency: Israel A. Smith, F. Henry Edwards, W. Wallace Smith. ASSISTANTS: Chris B. Hartshorn, Managing Editor; Naomi Russell, Assistant Editor; Paul A. Wellington, Assistant Editor; Roger Yarrington, Assistant Editor; Audrey Stub-

bart, Copy Editor; and Leonard J. Lea, Contributing Editor. BUSINESS MANAGER, Kenneth L. Graham.

The Saints' Herald is the official publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, with headquarters at The Auditorium, Independence, Missouri, and is issued through the offices of Herald Publishing House, 103 South Osage Street, Independence, Missouri.

Herald editors are not responsible for the views and opinions expressed in articles or communications other than those of editorial authorship.

Entered as second-class matter at the post office at Independence, Missouri, under Act of March 3, 1879. Issued weekly at Independence, Missouri, except daily during the biennial General Conference. Price, $4.00 per year in advance in the U.S.A., its territories and possessions; Canada, $4.25 per year; other countries, $5.00 per year. Notice of a change of address must be given three weeks ahead of the date that it is to become effective. Accepted for mailing at the special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917, authorized July 21, 1921. Printed in the United States of America.

An article written especially for nonmember friends who wish to know why the Restoration was necessary

Then said Jesus unto them, Verily, verily, I say unto you, I am the door of the sheepfold. All that ever came before me are thieves and robbers; but the sheep did not hear them. I am the door; by me if any man enter in, he shall be saved, and shall go in and out, and find pasture. The thief cometh not, but for to steal, and to kill, and to destroy; I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly. I am the good shepherd; the good shepherd giveth his life for his sheep. . . . For I am the good shepherd, and know my sheep, and am known of mine.—John 10: 7-11, 13.

THE religion of Jesus Christ has the divine destiny of changing mankind. It exists to bring out the best in each life, in a rebirth, and uses that best to make real a more equitable system of distribution, harmonious world and community relations, and communion between Deity and man. In essence the kingdom of God is the rebirth of society itself.

Indeed, if we are born again we will reorganize society. Is not society a great deal what we make it? Our Christian and Sainthood duty is to interpret it in the words, "Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done on earth, as it is done in heaven." To accomplish a task of such magnitude we must live in the consciousness of Jesus.

Living with Jesus is a tremendous adventure in righteousness. It is a learning process which involves not only learning to do well but, essentially, applying that which is learned. Perhaps for this reason we ought not to be satisfied with merely accepting Jesus Christ with some initial experience. The mature experience of accepting him will involve living with him. Listening to him and imitating the Lord Jesus Christ are essentials to the type of salvation which is interpreted in the kingdom. This will involve mature and positive emotion that causes us to move forward with an intelligent degree of knowledge but an even greater degree of faith—a faith born out of the knowledge that Christ has never been wrong. With such a faith we hear the voice of the good Shepherd, and in hearing, follow him.

The Promise That Christ Would Come
Men of yesteryear heard his voice.

Christ was real to Moses, Joshua, Job, Isaiah, Micah, David, Malachi, and other figures of the Old Testament era.

Although Jesus was not yet known to the world, incarnate in the flesh, Isaiah knew of him and prophetically promised, "For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given; and the government shall be upon his shoulder; and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, The mighty God, The everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace" (Isaiah 9: 6).

Many of David's Psalms reveal a distinct knowledge of the shepherding Christ.

Job, in the midst of excruciating pain, affirmed the therapeutic hope, "I know that my Redeemer liveth, and that he shall stand at the latter day upon the earth; and . . . in my flesh I shall see God" (Job 19: 25, 26).

The Apostle Paul writes to the Corinthian branch of early saints in reference to Moses and the children of Israel in his charge: ". . . all our fathers were under the cloud, and all passed through the sea; and were all baptized unto Moses in the cloud and in the sea; and did all eat the same spiritual meat; and did all drink the same spiritual drink; for they drank of that spiritual Rock that followed them; and that Rock was Christ" (I Corinthians 10: 1-4).

These are not testimonies of a mythical Messiah but of one who was potentially real to the prophets and patriarchs of

The Religion of Jesus Christ

By A. M. Pelletier, Jr.

Israel. Messiah was the only hope of despondent, war-harassed, persecuted Israel.

In the New Testament era we see Simeon holding the babe, Jesus, in his arms in the temple and crying out, "Lord, now lettest thy servant depart in peace, according to thy word; for mine eyes have seen thy salvation . . . a light to lighten the Gentiles, and the glory of thy people Israel" (Luke 2: 29-32).

John the Baptist preached, "Prepare ye the way of the Lord, and make his paths straight. For behold, and lo, he shall come" (Luke 3: 4, 5).

He did come, and he spent his life in service to people and in doing the "will of the Father" who sent him. The hungry were fed; the poor had the gospel preached to them; the sick were healed; repentant sinners were forgiven; the blind were made to see; the lame were made to walk. He set many in the way of the kingdom. He even descended to hell to preach the gospel! Yes, indeed, he came to save that which was lost, that which an earlier chosen people had let slip through their fingers. So busy were they in fighting one another that they forgot the mission to which they had been called. What a lesson all should learn from them.

The Church

Constantly, Christ ministered to the needs of people by offering them not so much what they thought they needed as what he knew God wanted for them and what they really needed. Then he declared, "My sheep hear my voice."

He established again his church, called his priesthood, taught his disciples the doctrine which the heavenly Father had sent him to teach, and commissioned them to preach the principles of abundant living. "Have faith in God; repent, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand; repent or ye shall all likewise perish." He raised the voice of warning!

He set the example, fulfilled righteousness, was immersed in the river Jordan in baptism, then left the commission to his disciples to teach and preach and baptize all nations. He promised the gift of the Holy Spirit and laid hands on his disciples; they in turn confirmed others.

He blessed little children, announcing that "of such is the kingdom of heaven." He laid hands on the sick, and they recovered.

He forgave repentant sinners. He said, "I am the resurrection, and the life: he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live: and whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die. Believest thou this?" (John 11: 25, 26). He promised a judgment that is eternal yet merciful, "The word that I have spoken, the same shall judge him" (John 12: 48).

Yet would anyone dare say that his ministry to that generation was greater than to this one? Has he changed? Are not these same expressions of his will still prevalent and essential to a healthy religious life? We must believe they are.

In addition to an immense program of personal ministry he looked into the future and warned his people of world calamities, wars, famines, pestilences, earthquakes, spiritual deafness and blindness, hardness of heart, evil, and apostasy—all if men did not learn to live as he had come to teach them to live. This unpleasantness and accompanying pain could have been avoided if Christians had obeyed the command of the heavenly Father, "This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased. Hear ye him" (Matthew 3: 46).

Such an unselfish contribution to man brought the ugly reward of crucifixion, but we hear him say, "I lay down my life, that I might take it again. No man taketh it from me, but I lay it down of myself. I have power to lay it down, and I have power to take it again" (John 10: 17, 18).

"He was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities; the chastisement of our peace was upon him; and with his stripes we are healed."—Isaiah 53: 5.

The Apostasy

How soon men forget! Listen to Paul:

I marvel that ye are so soon removed from him that called you into the grace of Christ unto another gospel; which is not another; but there be some that trouble you, and would pervert the gospel of Christ. But though we, or an angel from heaven, preach any other gospel unto you than that which we have preached unto you, let him be accursed."—Galatians 1: 6-8.

The evolution of time brought skepticism to the religion of prophecy, revelation, and truth; speculation to the religion of the kingdom of God; superstition to the religion destined to make men free. Christ had said, "Know the truth, and the truth shall make you free" (John 8: 32).

Christ had become an almost impossible dream to early Israel. He became a fond but not a clear memory to skeptic Christians who went into the world to become a part of it.

The religion of Christ is still capable of producing prophets and apostles and men and women of integrity such as those of whom we read in Scripture. If it cannot there would need to be emblazoned across it in large block letters, the words, "Failure. The gates of hell have prevailed against it!"

Because the religion of Jesus Christ can neither be destroyed nor be changed, and because men attempted to defy the established principle and were subjected to their own heresies and apostasy, the church cried to be delivered. It had to be restored. Without it man could only drift aimlessly, ever in search but never finding.

Not only did the church cry to be delivered, but man had also to cry for its deliverance and restoration. Man needed the church. Only then could he really appreciate it and the majesty of the Almighty whose every word shall be fulfilled.

The Restoration

God heard the cries of his church to be delivered and the cries of his people to be free in a knowledge of the truth. Out of its obscurity the church is emerging with the restoration of the ordinances through which the powers of godliness are being manifest. Its sacraments are again performed by a priesthood called of God. Every officer mentioned in the New Testament church is fulfilling its proper function in the restored church. The gifts of the Spirit are not reviewed as ancient happenings; they are apparent today in the restored church. A divine interpretation of the principles of stewardship give indications of the fruits of the Spirit among the obedient of this generation. The vision of Zion has again been quickened, and there is talk of a gathering, Zion building, and world evangelism. There is much yet to be done, but the power to do it is in his restored church. May God give its people zeal and faith, and the kingdom will be.

Yes, we believe that in a day when men hungered for the revelation of God, fourteen-year-old Joseph Smith prayed for wisdom, believing in the promise of James 1: 5, "If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God . . . in faith, nothing wavering." Just as Moses, Isaiah, Stephen, and others saw and heard, so he saw and heard in a vision unfolded to him which revealed the glory and majesty of the Father and his only begotten Son. This was the light which was destined not only to crowd out the darkness in the young boy's life and replace it with the light of an everlasting Life but also to crowd out the darkness in the lives of all who would follow in faith and service and be blessed with the assurance and revelations of an eternal joy and fellowship with the saints and the Almighty.

Awed in the experience of this phenomenon, Joseph heard the voice of God, clear, serene, piercing, unquestionable, with profound authority, "This is my beloved Son, hear him!" What better advice could be given to any people than to listen again to the instruction of the Son of God and his command to join no church which teaches for doctrine the commandments of men, who have a form of godliness but deny its power. Such creeds were abominable in His sight.

Is it thought a thing incredible that God should raise up prophets in our day, and that this young prophet did converse with God and the holy angels? Is it any more incredible than similar experiences recorded in the Holy Scriptures?

As a result of the unfoldment of the glory of God with his only Begotten on his right hand and the communion of angels, the church restored stands to proclaim the complete and eternal message of the Lord Jesus Christ. We affirm that the voice of revelation and inspiration is still being heard, and that the gospel in its entirety is restored to lead men in a healthy response to God's invitation to build up the kingdom and establish its righteousness. Under such a force, Zion yet shall be. A people shall yet believe, for the promises of God shall be fulfilled.

The Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints continues to lift its voice with the invitation to come to learn of Jesus. It shares the message of the angels that, because of his birth, life, and sacrifice, and man's response to this adventure in righteous living, there shall come "glory to God in the highest; and on earth, peace; good will to men." Will you hear him, accept the unchanged and unchanging religion of the Lord Jesus Christ, and join him in the march for truth, world peace, the kingdom of God? He invites you to become a vital part of the restored church through its sacraments and its leadership inspired of the Holy Spirit. A prophet in ancient America said it in the words, "Yea, come unto Christ, and be perfected in him."

Fred L. Young

Prayer—A Response to God

Behold, I stand at the door, and knock; if any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me.
—Revelation 3: 20, I. V.

THIS Scripture suggests a picture of God through Christ seeking entrance through a door into our lives. He is seeking to awaken us. He wants us to respond to his knocking by opening the door so he can come in and commune with us.

Response is possible in many ways, but the one most common in our lives is prayer. True prayer is a response to God's seeking after us. Many are the testimonies of the Saints who have felt directed to pray. They responded and found their prayers were of great effect both in their own lives and the lives of others.

Somehow the idea has become prevalent that God is sitting on his throne with Christ at his side waiting patiently for us to pray to him. If we please him, he responds to our prayer and does something. If we don't pray, he does nothing.

Such an idea of God immediately suggests the story of Elijah and the prophets of Baal. These false prophets had the same idea. They thought that if they were to cut themselves, jump and dance, they could arouse their god to action. Elijah chided them, "Cry aloud; for he is a god; either he is talking, or . . . peradventure he sleepeth, and must be awaked" (I Kings 18: 27). The prophets started their worship at dawn and continued until evening with no success. They could not arouse their god.

How different this concept is from that demonstrated by Jehovah's prophet. Elijah prepared the altar and drenched it with water. He waited until "The time of the offering of the evening sacrifice." Elijah drew near and prayed, "Lord God of Abraham, Isaac, and of Israel, let it be known this day that thou art God in Israel, and that I am thy servant, and that I have done all these things at thy word. Hear me, O Lord, hear me, that this people may know that thou art the Lord God, and thou mayest turn their heart back again" (I Kings 18: 36, 37).

God first sought after Elijah, and as Elijah responded through prayer he was inspired to challenge the prophets of Baal as a means of turning the hearts of the children of Israel back to Himself. The ideas was not original with Elijah, nor was God inactive until Elijah built the altar and began to pray.

Another evidence of God's seeking our response through prayer is found in Doctrine and Covenants 50: 6, "But know this, it shall be given you what you shall ask." God is attempting to give us direction and counsel so that we can respond. When we heed his direction, we respond by praying for things that are the great need of the moment.

This does not mean that we should wait until we know without a doubt that we are inspired of God before we respond. He is ever seeking those who will worship him. If our thoughts turn to prayer, we ought to respond by praying. "If ye have desires to serve God, ye are called to the work" (Doctrine and Covenants 4: 1). The very desire to pray is evidence that God is seeking after us and wants us to respond. Our thought of prayer may be stimulated by something we read or something that happens. Regardless of how we are stimulated, it is God's way of seeking us, and we ought to respond.

Since God is seeking after us, we can be sure that he already desires to give us whatever we may need to build a spiritually and physically healthy life. Whatever we may do through prayer or right living does not change the desire of God. What it does is to change our lives so we can receive what God already desires for us.

We ought therefore to carefully consider how we pray, particularly in public, so that those about us can understand by our prayers that God is seeking us and that we are striving to respond. This may mean both a change in words and a change in emphasis in our prayers. It will mean that we will do less asking for things to be given us and more asking for help to make changes within us. It will mean more prayers for the needs of others. It will mean more thinking in the presence of God seeking understanding and less dictating to God. It will mean more humility and repentance.

Stone Church Class Sponsors Spanish Book of Mormon

NOT many years ago a brother here in Independence got an inspired thought from which a "project" was founded; from it great fruitage was realized. This brother was Clifton Resch who, for some years prior and many years afterward, was a member of a church school class. One day Clifton was called to the home of Apostle Charles R. Hield. Let us read of Clifton's experience as he himself tells it.

In the fall of 1941 I had one of the most remarkable testimonies of my life of God and the Restoration work.

I had done some work for Apostle Charles Hield at his residence, so I called him on the telephone and mentioned that I would like to come over and check the work that I had done for him, to which he agreed. I went to his home and with him and Sister Hield made the checkup. As soon as I had completed the work, I picked up my hat and started toward the door. As I did this, Brother Hield asked, "What's your hurry, Brother Resch?" I replied I thought Sister Hield would prefer to have the evening with him alone rather than for me to be in the way. Brother Hield replied, "No, no, sit down." At this request I sat down, intending to stop only for a minute or two to be sociable.

Brother Hield began the conversation by telling of his arduous task in the Southern Mission without suitable literature in the Spanish language to give to those he had interested in the gospel story along the border of Old Mexico. He mentioned some that he had talked to who spoke the Spanish language only; he hadn't the first thing, not even a small tract, to offer those who would stop to listen to his story.

As I am very much interested in the Book of Mormon, we soon began discussing the merits of that book and its place in the church. Brother Hield remarked that it was the "top literature of the church," to which I agreed. As we continued our conversation, Brother Hield shook his head from side to side and said, "We need that Book of Mormon in the Spanish language so badly." As he finished that sentence, a voice spoke to me and said, "That's a project for your Sunday school class." I was rather startled by the voice as I was not expecting such a thing to occur, although twice before in my membership in the church I had heard a voice directing me. We continued our conversation along the same line for several minutes. Brother Hield frowned and shook his head from side to side again and very emphatically said, "We need that Book of Mormon in Spanish so badly." And again the voice spoke to me, "That's a project for your Sunday school class," and emphasized it emphatically the second time.

I had been attending the Friendly Book of Mormon Class for about three years at the Stone Church here in Independence with Sister Charlotte Koehler as class leader. The next Sunday morning I told Sister Koehler of my experiences and to my great astonishment she replied, rather mildly, "Oh, Clifton, we couldn't take on a project like that." I was disappointed, as I had expected her to be enthusiastic over the idea. She was a very earnest advocate of the Book of Mormon and a most capable teacher.

I was so disappointed by her answer that I could hardly reconcile myself to it. I prayed earnestly over this project and at the end of about two weeks I called Sister Koehler on the telephone to urge her to action as I was so sure she would at once agree to it. To my great disappointment she replied, "Oh, Clifton, you have too big ideas."

I hardly knew what to do. I mentioned this to my companion, who replied, "Just be patient. It will all come out right some way." I continued to pray, as I knew I had heard the voice. About three months later, my telephone rang and it was Sister Koehler. Her first words after I answered were, "Clifton, what did you do about your experience in regard to printing the Book of Mormon in Spanish?" I replied, "I didn't do anything. You told me my ideas were too big." She replied, "I have been praying over it for weeks, and I am convinced you were divinely directed."

I replied by saying, "We will have a meeting of the class officers next Sunday afternoon and get their reaction." We met, and after discussing the project, we voted to present it to the class the following Sunday. The class listened to our testimonies and, after quite a bit of discussion, voted unanimously to go ahead.

We then contacted members of the First Presidency to get their permission to go ahead with our project. Before going to the First Presidency, I consulted plate manufacturers and printers in regard to the cost of plates and having the type set. After getting the information, we called President Frederick M. Smith and told him what we wanted to do. He was very reluctant at first, but after hearing our plans of what we intended to do and how we were going to carry it on, he wrote a letter giving his consent to the project. We began collecting money from the class in 1944, and to date we have turned over to the church $3,850.00 for the expense of translating and supplying the plates for the Book of Mormon in Spanish.

Yes, from the suggestion of Brother Hield came this at-the-time small thought which grew in turn to big proportions, and in the course of time this class donated to the church the amazing sum of almost four thousand dollars, which by the direction and authority of the class was turned over to the Presiding Bishopric. This has brought timely relief and opportunity to meet the cost on the work of translation and will constitute part of the expense of publishing the new Book of Mormon in the Spanish language.

The church booth at the 1957 California State Fair, duplicated at the California Midwinter Fair in Imperial Valley. Both were designed by Aleah Koury. Photo by McCurry

Promoting the Church at California Fairs

“WHAT A BEAUTIFUL picture of Jesus.” Many people made this remark as their eyes caught the portrayal of the Savior framed in rich redwood. Perhaps that’s why the whole adventure seemed so successful, Christ was central in everything. His picture has an effect on most people—even if they are only slightly acquainted with him. It isn’t strange that this should be of major eye-appeal for the hundreds who stopped at the church booth at the California State Fair in Sacramento last summer.

