FOLLOWING FABLES.

For we have not followed cunningly devised fables."—2 Pet. 1: 16.

A fable is something feigned; a story told as if true, to teach some lesson or point a moral; and while it may be made to serve a good purpose as illustrating a principle of truth, it may also be used to take the place of the higher and better principle which it should only introduce. Any individual who follows a theory which does not harmonize in every regard with the facts in the case, may be said to be following a fable, whether of his own or another's construction, the end of which will be unprofitable and disappointing. The most noticeable difficulty seems to be in the fact that men—and intelligent minds too—will formulate a hypothesis, and then seek zealously for evidences which will confirm the wisdom of their thoughts. The chances are, however, that they are "following fables," and often "cunningly devised" ones.

There is, doubtless, very often inspiration in these schemes, assistance derived from the spirit of the adversary, which may reasonably explain the plausibility evidenced on the face of the theories advanced. It is the business of the adversary to encourage everything which leads away from the truths which effect man's eternal salvation. Hence, he did not lack for agents who were willing to oppose the Lord Jesus Christ and His servants; even using any kind of a dishonest and unfair method which gave promise of success; and when all else failed, to cause their lives to be taken, in the hope of destroying the truth, the very thing which is of most value to the man who accepts it, and is guided by its teachings.

We are often led to marvel at the blindness and inconsistency of individuals who are uncompromisingly insistent that nothing shall be accepted for which Bible sanction and precedent cannot be produced; and who will berate others for believing in man-made systems of religion, yet they are themselves as far from the church outlined in the New Testament, as are some others with whom they find fault. They are simply following fables; building upon an unstable—a sandy—foundation. While claiming greater light than others they are themselves in darkness because they put private interpretations upon those passages of the New Testament which have a tendency to disprove their theories, and in the Judgment will probably be classed with those who, on one occasion, asked of the Savior, "Are we blind also? Jesus said unto them, If ye were blind, ye should have no sin: but now ye say, We see; therefore your sin remaineth." (John 9: 40, 41). Willful blindness, therefore, it appears, will not be excused, and those who are so sure of their ground, but who are yet out of harmony in organization, doctrine and practice with the church of Jesus Christ as described in the New Testament Scriptures, had better consider their foundation a little more closely while there is room for repentance and correction, lest the day which shall "try every man's work as by fire," shall overtake them unawares and unprepared, and they thereby "suffer loss."

When the Savior made the declaration recorded in Mark 16: "These signs shall follow them that believe," he meant it to be understood that these genuine manifestations of the Holy Spirit could only be obtained through the one legitimate channel—the gospel, whose ordinances were administered by His own authority; for this promise is made immediately following the declaration that "he that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." To simply immerse a man or woman in water is not to baptize them in a scriptural sense; there must always be in the administration of that ordinance the element of authority to act for the one who first gave the commission and the promise, to make it binding upon both the Lord, and His child seeking admission to his Father's house. If this recognition, as manifest in the fulfillment of the Savior's promise regarding the signs following, could be obtained without this feature of authority, all denominations would, doubtless, seek to exercise those gifts on account of the fact, if for no other reason, that they are emphatically scriptural and approved of by the Lord. But, this being impossible, the only course left is to advance the theory that "they are not intended for this enlightened age," and then try to bend the Scriptures to sustain the assertion, which then becomes a "cunningly devised" fable, not being founded in fact.

It is a remarkable fact that the majority of those who make profession of faith in God and His word, are slow to accept and be guided by that which is revealed for their specific guidance in doing His will. It has been so in nearly all ages and had its beginning right in the garden of Eden. What can be more plain and directly to the point than the command "Of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil thou shalt not eat of it: for the day that thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die" (Gen. 2: 17); and yet how soon has it disregarded, and how direct and literal the fulfillment of the declared penalty. Aid in the experience of the resists thus entailed upon the human family, where is there any authority for the supposition that the penalties attaching to the disregard of all of God's commands will not be as literally and certainly enforced? Jesus declared, "Verily, verily, I say unto thee, 'Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God'" (John 3: 5); and yet, in the face of this plain and unequivocal statement, spoken by the highest of all authority, thousands upon thousands of bright, intelligent people persistently disregard the instruction, and unhesitatingly advance the doctrine that all one has to do to obtain eternal life, is simply to confess that Jesus is the Christ and make a profession of accepting Him as the Savior. Following fables again.

It is strange that many do not see where such an assumption leads. If faith in Christ as the Son of God is all sufficient, and nothing is required on the part of man in the way of obedience to ordinances, then they at once admit the salvation of even devils, for it is written, "devils believe" (James 2: 2). But the moment that baptism is insisted upon, they are shut out, for they have no fleshly bodies which can be immersed and covered by the element of water; nothing which can be placed in the likeness of a burial, and raised in the likeness of the resurrection, and they cannot be subjects for salvation. The Savior's example and teachings; the example and other divinely commissioned servants, are all against the thought that men can be saved in eternal happiness short of obedience to ALL the requirements of the gospel. The very commission given His chief servants and representatives, indicates the breadth of the field to which it reaches, and limits the scope of the liberty given them in its interpretation. Consider it closely:

Go ye therefore, and teach ALL nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost; teaching them to observe ALL things, whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world."—Matt. 28: 19, 20.

No opportunity in those words for any one to use his judgment as to what is needful for salvation. The fact is, the terms upon which salvation is offered to every man and woman who have heard, or ever shall hear the gospel, are arbitrarily fixed, and no man is authorized to deviate from them. All that the servants of Christ can do is to offer salvation on those terms alone, to all who will hear, accept and obey; in doing which they are also authorized to declare and promise those thus obeying shall receive direct and satisfactory personal evidence that they are born again; are heirs of God, and joint heir with Christ, if faithful; and that, as the apostle intimates, have not followed fables, cunningly devised, or otherwise.

Therefore, whosoever heareth these sayings of mine, and doeth them, I will liken him unto a wise man, which built his house upon a rock; and the rain descended, and the floods came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house and it fell not; for it was founded upon a rock. And every one that heareth these sayings of mine, and doeth them not, shall be likened unto a foolish man, which built his house upon the sand; and the rain descended, and the floods came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house; and it fell: and great was the fall of it.—Matt. 7: 24-27.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

ELDER T. C. KELLEY, who has been laboring in the eastern mission since last General Conference, expresses himself as being much encouraged over conditions of the work and the future prospects in Maine, to which state the most of his work has been confined. The financial support has doubled and spirituality has also advanced equally, if not more so. There, as elsewhere, there is room for still greater improvement, but the Saints, as a rule, have done well, and are making good progress in the efforts to perform their obligations in the gospel, which is commendable.

BRO. J. W. WRIGHT, of the Rocky Mountain mission, favors us with a 64 page issue of The Salt Lake Tribune for Sunday, December 31st, 1899, containing prominent features of that most interesting and widely advertised city. One page is devoted to a description of its churches from among which, we excerpt the following regarding the Reorganized church:

JOSEPHITES.

The Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints has a chapel 228 East Second South street. This church is a continuance of the original "Mormon" church. To reorganize became a necessity as a result of the schism created by the departure of Brigham Young, J. J. Strang et al. after the killing of Joseph Smith at Carthage, Illinois. The "Josephites" refused to accept Brigham as the legal successor, and have ever stood in open opposition to polygamy and kindred evils. They have proved their "legal rights" before the courts at law three several times, and to the complete satisfaction of the presiding judges, one of whom was a Supreme Judge of Canada, the others presiding over United States and county circuits respectively. The local branch is presided over by Elder J. W. Wright, and contains a membership of near 200, holding services morning and evening of each Sunday. Forty baptisms have occurred in Utah in the last six months, and since 1863 this church has converted thousands from the Utah church. The headquarters are Lamoni, Iowa, where there is a local membership of nearly 1300, with some 1200 at Independence, Missouri, and branches throughout the United States, Europe, Australia and the islands of the sea.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

SR. VICTORIA McALLISTER of Marlin, Texas:

The Saints here are getting along splendidly. They have preaching and prayer services regularly, though I do not get to attend very often, not having a conveyance. I would like to see a letter from Bro. T. J. Sheppard. I think he is a wise counselor.

SR. MARY KING, Boyne City, Michigan:

The Boyne City branch is doing very nicely now. The Saints are trying to live to all the light they have. Elder Huggitt is president of the branch and he is a good teacher. He is sixty-six years of age and has been a faithful worker in this branch for six or seven years.

SR. (MRS.) JULIA DIPERT, Walkerton, Indiana:

The Ensign has become a welcome visitor since we accepted the truth. My husband and I never heard a Latter Day Saint preacher until last August when we heard Elder S. W. L. Scott, and I thought I had never before heard a sermon. We hope some elder will come here soon.

BRO. JOSEPH W. BEAN, Ames, Cloud county, Kansas:

Elder W. S. Pender has just concluded his twelfth discourse in the Union church here. People are all stirred up over his last, on the final destiny of man. He will preach a week in Clyde, three miles east of here, then come back and tell about the angel's message which he knows has been delivered. An almost unanimous vote from his last audience when asked if he should come to talk on that subject, is why he returns here.

BRO. BEAN very much desires to obtain a copy of Lucy Smith's history of Joseph Smith. He has a place where it can be used to good advantage, and will be willing to pay a reasonable price to obtain it. Address him as above.

ELDER D. E. TUCKER, McNeill, Mississippi:

I thought to spend the winter in Missouri, and wrote the missionary in charge to that effect, and received a welcome; but I cannot now reach Missouri until some time in January, if then. I have been away nearly five years and desired to spend the winter there and be ready for my field again after conference; but will be governed according to circumstances. Conditions in this mission are favorable.

Mr. F. M. DAVIS, Pana, Illinois, writes:

I am convinced the doctrine taught by the Latter Day Saints is the truth. My mother-in-law, Mrs. N. A. Johnson, is the only one I ever heard talk of that faith. Am ready to be baptized at the first opportunity. I would be pleased to have any of the elders in passing through this place to stop off; my house is always open to the Saints.

Pana is in Christian county, on the Big 4 and B. & O. S. W. railroads. Those laboring in that field should note this request and arrange to comply when convenient.

SR. (MRS.) L. M. TEATER, Bazine, Kansas:

I have been a member of the Reorganized church for nearly two years, and for sixteen long years before that I was a constant sufferer all of the time, but I was baptized and had the ordinance for the healing of the sick administered to me by Elder W. S. Peeder, and while he yet was praying the Lord instantly healed me, and I have not been sick since, for which I give God the praise. Oh, if each sufferer would only obey the gospel and be healed by our blessed Savior without money and without price, what a grand world it would be. Bishop Hilliard was with us for a few days the first of November, and if we never meet again on earth, some of his words and some of his kind advice will be treasured as long as I thereby last, and our prayer is, Long live Bro. Hilliard to assist in carrying on this grand and glorious work. Bro. Brown and Maubering are with us now. A merry Christmas and a happy new year to the readers of the ENSIGN.

REV. CLARK BRADEN with whom Bro. I. N. White recently held debates at Orchardville and Alma, Illinois, is apparently not satisfied, and is charging Bro. White with cowardice, and that he dare not debate with Rev. Braden at Independence, Missouri. In view of these facts Bro. White has issued the following announcement and challenge to Rev. Braden so that all may know that if the issues between them are not joined at Bro. White's home, it is not because of his unwillingness to do so:

THE CHALLENGE TO REV. CLARK BRADEN REPEATED.

In March, 1895, Braden had Rev. Poplewell, editor of the Primitive Christian, Braden's church journal, published at Independence, Missouri, my home, to publish and circulate 2,000 circulars, challenging me to a debate at Independence. I at once accepted the challenge to repeat the Eldorado Springs debate at my home in the Latter Day Saints' chapel while I affirmed, and in the Christian chapel while Braden affirmed. Editor Poplewell published all of this in his paper for April 11, 1895. The debate failed to materialize and editor Poplewell published the following explanation:

"We asked one of the business men of the town, and we understood a deacon of the Christian church here, if he would assist a little in aiding Braden to come to Independence. He said: 'I would give one dollar to keep him away.' We write this to let all who read this know that the reasons why the debate and lecture did not materialize," etc.

Now, after Braden having failed to receive recognition of his brethren at Independence, he has the unblushing hardihood to sneak away some four or five hundred miles into rural districts and publish: "White backed square out in the most cowardly manner!" Hence, I repeat my challenge, pro bono publico.

THE CHALLENGE.

The Rev. Clark Braden is hereby challenged to repeat the debate held with me at El Dorado Springs, Missouri, and later, near Orchardville, and in Alma, Illinois, at Harrisonville, Missouri, his former home. I also challenge him to repeat it in Independence, Missouri, in the Latter Day Saints' chapel while I am affirming, and in the Christian chapel while he is affirming. I also challenge him to repeat it in every hamlet, town and city where he may attempt to preach or lecture against the faith taught by the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. This challenge holds good, the Lord willing, during my natural life.

I. N. WHITE.

December 27, 1899.

That both disputants may come clothed with the authority of their respective churches to act and speak for them in these debates, the following stipulations shall be complied with: 1. Elder Braden is to furnish to his opponent, ten days before the debates commence, a written endorsement from the chief editors of the Christian Evangelist and the Christian Standard, that he is an accredited representative of their church. 2. That he is sound in the faith as they hold and teach it. 3. That he is a Christian gentleman to an opponent. 4. This endorsement shall be countersigned and accepted by his congregation where the debate or debates are to be held. Elder White is to furnish to his opponent, ten days before the debates commence, an equivalent endorsement from the chief editors of the Saints' Herald and ZION'S ENSIGN, which shall be countersigned and accepted by his congregation where the debate or debates are to be held. A refusal or failure on the part of either party to furnish such credentials as herein named, shall be sufficient evidence to either party that his opponent is not worthy to affirm or defend the doctrine and belief of his respective church in an honorable public debate.

I. N. WHITE.

PROPOSITIONS AND THEIR ORDER.

1.—"Was Joseph Smith a prophet of God?"

I. N. WHITE affirms,

CLARK BRADEN denies.

2.—"Is the Christian church (commonly called Campbellites) in fact the church of God, harmonizing in faith, doctrine, organization and practice, with the church of Christ set up by divine authority, eighteen hundred years ago?"

CLARK BRADEN affirms,

I. N. WHITE denies.

GENERAL CHURCH NEWS.

INDEPENDENCE.

Don't forget to write it "1900" now.

Mrs. Grace Brown is visiting her mother, Sr. Anna Flowers.

Bro. T. C. Kelley arrived home from his field of labor Friday evening of last week. He will be actively engaged in this region for some time.

Bro. A. L. Newton returned to his home at Cove, Arkansas, Friday of last week, stopping off at Joplin, en route, to look after some business matters. His family remains a few days to visit with relatives.

Bro. J. C. Foss arrived home from the Clinton, Missouri, district on Monday evening, where he had been laboring the past few weeks. He was at Lebeck, Sunday 24th, and baptized Sr. Laura E. Williams and Bro. Abraham H. Whitley, of Claver, Washington.

Bro. and Sr. Royal Brocaw, from Harrisville, Missouri, visited relatives here Christmas and enjoyed the Sunday School entertainment. Bro. Royal returning the next day. Sr. Brocaw remained until Wednesday, when she sailed for her home.

Bro. John Geunstein, the genial and popular caterer, of Omaha, Nebraska, arrived here Wednesday morning, and is "viewing the landscape over" in this vicinity, and the regions round about. He has disposed of his restaurant business, and has some thoughts of joining himself to the Ancient and Honorable Order of Farmers. We hope he may find a suitable location near us.

The annual election of officers for the Sunday School Tuesday evening resulted as follows: W. N. Robinson, superintendent; Ammon White, assistant superintendent; Mrs. Flo. McNichols, secretary; C. Williamson, treasurer; Bert Weeks, librarian; O. L. James, chorister; Mrs. O. L. James, organist; Miss Cordie White, assistant organist; Mrs. B. C. Smith, treasurer library committee.

Bro. E. Ezenhouser, one of the originators of the ENSIGN, made us a pleasant call on Wednesday. He is manager of the Kansas City Commercial Agency, and has associated with him as counsel, Judge L. Traber, favorably known to many of the Saints as one of counsel in the Temple Lot case, and Col. L. H. Waters, for a number of years U. S. Prosecuting Attorney of the western district of Illinois. Bro. Eizenhouser gives special attention to the collection of claims and settlement of estates. Will also act as purchasing agent for anyone desiring his services.

A quiet little home wedding, which was a surprise to all but the parties greatly interested, and the parents of the bride, was celebrated at the home of Bro. and Sr. Bradford Haley, opposite the store church, Sunday afternoon, immediately following the dismissal of the afternoon service, when their daughter, Sr. Pearl Elagar, and Mr. Peter Widener, a prosperous stockman of Kansas City, Missouri, assumed the marital vows, Bro. W. H. Garrett speaking the words which united them as husband and wife. Sr. Pearl made a sweet looking bride, and the groom seemed to appreciate his good fortune in securing such a life companion. She had been acting as librarian of the Sunday School since Sr. Jessie Luff's marriage in a similar manner, and filled her place Sunday morning as usual, no hint escaping her by which any could suspect that she contemplated the action in which she was so soon to take an important part. Here the announcement of her marriage was received with incredulity at first but soon spread as such news will. With two such recent examples, some merit was made by the suggestion that there would be a scramble for the vacant position of librarian at the election Tuesday night. The happy couple left for Kansas City about 6 p. m. and will, for the present, make their home at the Stratford Hotel. May success and happiness crown their lives.

ST. JOSEPH, MISSOURI.

A happy New Year to you and all our dear readers. The passing century is dear to our hearts because we have witnessed therein the restoration of the gospel, but the new century may not be less dear, for many wonderful events will transpire in connection with the latter day work. Do we not see them even now? And these very events point us to the words of our Savior, "Beloved, I come quickly." Shall we be ready to meet Him?

Our usual services were held yesterday, Elder H. O. Smith speaker, morning and evening. The Sunday School elected the following officers for the ensuing six months: D. J. Krahl, superintendent; Sr. D. H. Blair, assistant superintendent; Harry Clay, secretary; Arthur Smith, assistant secretary; Robt. K. Winning, treasurer; Ruby Jackson and Pearl Fifer, librarians; Nellie Neidorp, organist; H. O. Smith, chorister.

At the evening prayer meeting there was a good attendance, indeed, considering the severe weather. All felt repaid for coming, for the Spirit of the Master was enjoyed throughout the entire meeting.

The Aspey mission Sunday School gave a Christmas entertainment last Monday night. The room was filled; many were standing. Bro. H. D. Taddicken, superintendent, and Sr. Pearl Best, teacher and organist, deserve great credit for their efforts to make the little ones in this locality have a happy time.

Sr. H. O. Smith went to Argentine, Kansas, last Friday, where she will make a short visit with relatives and friends.

Bro. Wm. Ross, from Mound City, Missouri, was a visitor at our meetings yesterday. Bro. Carl Radolph, of Independence, Missouri, spent Sunday in St. Joseph. Bro. Ray Potter, of Omaha, is in the city on business.

GRACE L. KRAHL.

January 1.

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS.

The entertainments at the Lang mission on Tuesday night, also at the hall on Saturday night, passed off very pleasantly, without a hitch or jar, to the joy and satisfaction of all. "Santa" did his work well at both places.

Bro. G. H. Graves begins a protracted meeting at his mission, 1802 Armour avenue, on the 7th, to continue indefinitely. He will be aided by a number of brethren, the writer included.

Bro. J. A. Gunsolley, the head of the commercial department of Graceland College, spent last week in our city, in attendance at a national convention of commercial teachers. Being of the willing and active type, he preached twice for us on Sunday, also did Religio work, in which he is deeply interested. He started homeward at a late hour Sunday evening. Come again, J. A.

The sisters on the south side have organized a combined prayer union and sewing society. They meet each Thursday at the mission, at 2 o'clock p. m., for prayer and work; Sr. Sloan is in charge. We wish them good speed in their work of love for the cause of Christ.

Among the most important and cheering gifts was that presented to the pastor and the branch by the "Never Fail Club," of a beautiful pulpit for our hall. The club furnished the material, and Bro. C. E. Shaw, our teacher and carpenter, made it, working at odd times. It was a complete surprise to us and many. We are very grateful, and can venture to emphasize with our fist a little stronger hereafter. All things come to those who wait. Bro. Gunsolley preached the first sermon from it.

We are pleased to note the recovery of Sr. Webster who has passed a long siege of severe suffering and sickness. Her recovery is remarkable.

Sr. R. A. Marchant, who has been visiting in the city for some weeks, returned to her St. Joseph, Missouri, home on Saturday. Her stay was pleasant.

Don't forget our union services next Sunday. Being the first Sunday of the new year, it should be an especial one—an epoch of a glorious era for the work in Chicago. Remember the place and time, 3411 Cottage Grove avenue, and three o'clock the time.

Bro. Wm. Wainwright was the speaker on the south side last night, his first effort in ministerial lines. We hope for William a bright career, as a standing minister to the church.

Bro. G. H. Henley and wife and Bro. Bennett, of West Pullman, attended our Christmas treat on Saturday night. Bro. H. has charge of the work in West Pullman.

In bonds,

J. M. TERRY.

FIRST KANSAS CITY BRANCH.

Chapel, 2321 Wabash avenue. Take 15th street line to Prospect Ave., transfer to Prospect, get off at 24th, and walk one block west or to the right hand. Time of meetings: Sunday School at 9:30, preaching at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m., social service at 12:30 p. m. Prayer meeting, Wednesday evening at 7:30; Religio, Friday evening at 8. Strangers are cordially invited.

Sunday was the coldest day so far and the attendance was small in consequence.

Sr. Myra McAmich, of Batchelor, Missouri, once a regular attendant of our meetings was with us at all the services on Sunday.

Elder D. F. Winn addressed the Saints in the morning, and Elder B. J. Scott spoke in the evening; both were good sermons.

At the semi-annual business meeting of the Sunday School the following officers were elected: Superintendent, E. Ezenhouser; assistant superintendent, Will MacLaren; secretary, Robert Winn; treasurer, Anni MacLaren; organist, Lulu Sandy; librarian, Ruth Allen; artist, Anna MacLaren. By resolution these officers will hold for one year.

The office of artist is a new one and we believe this Sunday School is the first to make it an elective office, the last six months having demonstrated its benefit to the school.
www.LatterDayTruth.org

The Sunday School contemplate securing the service of a chorister and form a choir, having plenty of undeveloped talent in that direction.

Bro. Walter Smith visited home folks at Holden, on Saturday over New Year's. Elder Arthur Allen accompanied him with a view of exchanging his K. C. home for property there. While there he preached to the Saints morning and evening on Sunday.

Bro. Robert Winn, district secretary, went to Holden on Sunday on district business.

R. E. PORTER.

January 2.

SECOND KANSAS CITY BRANCH. Corner Sixteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue. Sunday School 9:30 a. m., preaching 11 a. m., prayer meeting 2:30 p. m., preaching 7:30 p. m.

There were not many at Sunday School on the last day of the old year. Too much snow.

Bro. Edwards (priest) occupied at the eleven o'clock service and spoke words of instruction and encouragement to those present. He was blessed with a good degree of the Holy Spirit.

Sr. Charlotte M. McIntosh, who came to Zion from Coleman, Michigan, with her parents, Bro. and Sr. Alex. McIntosh, was baptized in the Armstrong font by Elder Joseph Emmett, on Sunday, December 31, 1899. Here is a literal fulfillment of the saying of Jesus found in John 4: 38, I. T.: "And he who reapeth, receiveth wages, and gathereth fruit unto life eternal: that both he who soweth and he who reapeth may rejoice together."

Elder J. H. Peters and the Saints at Coleman, Michigan, will be pleased to learn of the step the sister has taken. The confirmation took place in our hall before the afternoon prayer meeting, Elder M. B. Williams being mouthpiece, and Elder Joseph Emmett assisting.

The comforting influence of the Spirit was present at the social meeting, and the testimonies were given with freedom and earnestness that was strengthening to us all.

The evening discourse was by Elder M. B. Williams. He read Acts 3: 31, and spoke on "The Mission Work of Jesus Christ."

About sixty young folks, and some older ones participated in the box social given by the Sisters' Aid Society New Year's night; Bro. Arthur Gillen was auctioneer. After the boxes were all sold, a short, lively program was presented, and this was followed by an investigation of the boxes and their contents.

The youth of this church may become a tremendous power for good, if they will seek the way.

JOHN C. GRAINGER.

1415 Pennsylvania Ave., Jan. 2.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA. Services at Golden West Hall, 230 38th street, every Sunday. Sunday School 10 a. m., preaching 11 a. m., and 7:30 p. m., prayer meeting 12:15 noon. Elder C. A. Parkin presiding elder, residence 3010 16th street.

There was a good attendance at our Wednesday evening business meeting, Bro. G. T. Griffiths presiding. The regular branch business was attended to, and the instructions of Bro. Griffiths gladly received.

Thursday evening our Sunday School Christmas tree was the center of attraction at our hall. It was beautifully decorated and well covered with presents of all kinds; there was one for each member of the school, and candy for all the children present. The exercises were interesting and well rendered. The children had been well drilled by Sr. Ella Lytle, superintendent, and Sr. M. A. Saxe, and they did their part very nicely.

There were several songs by the entire school. The special features were a rainbow song by seven girls, recitation and song by three boys and three girls, Christmas recitation by nine boys. There were also other recitations and songs, and the exercises closed by singing Kris Kringle, after which Bro. Edgar Smith appeared as Santa Claus and distributed the presents to the happy children.

There was poor attendance at the Religio Friday evening, too much Christmas business on hand, but those who assembled had an enjoyable time.

Bro. F. M. Sheehy was our speaker Sunday morning; a good attendance greeted him. The glorious beauty of the latter day work, and its superiority to modern wisdom and science, was his theme. It was a very instructive sermon.

The writer was the evening speaker, subject, "Joseph Smith the Restorer of Faith." We had four visitors present, Bro. and Sr. Cobb from Lake county, and Sr. Douglas and son Roy from Santa Rosa.

Bro. Griffiths has gone to Sacramento.

We are having nice, clear weather, warm and pleasant during the afternoon, but heavy frost in the morning. It is grand for this time of the year.

LETTER DEPARTMENT.

DORCHESTER, Mass., Dec. 30.

Editor Ensign:—Matters in this district are moving slowly toward better conditions, we think. Excellent meeting here last night. Bro. Bullard is to be in Providence tomorrow; John Smith in F. River, we expect, the writer in Somerville.

"The Mormon" question generally, and the case of B. H. Roberts particularly, are common themes of discussion in Boston and New England newspapers, and we expect to have a hand in matters if nothing happens to prevent. As propositions for a four nights', or longer, discussion, commencing Tuesday, January 9th, 1900, to be held in Paine Memorial hall in the city of Boston, have been agreed upon and signed between Elder Ephraim Jensen, of Logan, Utah, and myself. The prospects are for a good attendance, and we hope to see some of the fog and mist that obscures the public mind regarding the "Mormon question" lifted, at least for those who may attend, and through newspaper notices which will, undoubtedly, give the questions more or less advertisement.

Elder Jensen seems to be well posted, and by far the ablest representative from Utah that we have met in the eastern mission. Courteous and gentlemanly so far, but the end is not yet.

We are having snug winter weather just now—clear and cold, but it has been a remarkably warm and pleasant fall and winter until very recently, none of the western snow storms or blizzards having reached us.

We are feeling well in the work and anticipating growing success for the cause of truth.

In love,

M. H. BOND.

HOT SPRINGS, S. D., Dec. 31.

Editor Ensign:—I wish to state to the Saints of South Dakota that owing to my financial conditions I have withdrawn from my field of labor and accepted a position here as clerk in general store. Trusting that should we never meet again in this life, our lives may be so devoted to Christ that we will be numbered with the redeemed.

Yours in love,

W. H. WALLING.

TADOR, IOWA, Dec. 29.

Editor Ensign:—Our work is moving along in our field of labor, better really than we could expect, in consequence of the roughness of the roads. Still both Saints and friends seem determined to put forth every effort within their power for the advancement of the work, and the establishing of the truth; they're letting their light shine in coming to the front at the meetings, it matters not whether the roads are rough or smooth, or the weather hot or cold. We think we are all doing the best we can and hope to continue in the coming months this winter, by the help promised, if faithful.

Our general appointees are, we flatter ourselves, up-to-date and the local brethren not one whit behind in doing all they can, according to their circumstances, to push along the great work entrusted to our care.

May God speed the cause that it may ultimately triumph over every opposing power and we all, through Christ, gain the victory, is my prayer.

LENNY KEMP.

SOLDIER'S GROVE, Wis., Nov. 23.

Editor Ensign:—After our conference and reunion held here at Soldier's Grove from September 16th to 25th, I went home for a few days. Bidding loved ones good-by on October 1st I started for the western part of the state, stopping one night at Janesville, and went from there to Johnston, finding Bro. W. Woodstock and family and Blunt and Olive alive in the latter day work. The Sunday following I met with Saints at Wilder, having a good sacrament meeting and preaching once for them; they were thoughtful to remember that the elders pay railroad fare.

Soon again I was on my way west to Crawford county, arriving at the home of my parents whom I had not seen for two years. The next day after my arrival, my mother took very sick. I saw I would have to remain there a few days and at once looked for a place to hold some meetings. I called on the M. E. elder and he let me have the use of his church for six evenings; the people turned out well, the elder being present two evenings; good attention and interest. I went from there to Bell Center and preached three times in the M. E. church there; was kindly cared for at the home of Sr. Rounds and her husband.

Then I procured the use of the schoolhouse at Barum and spoke three times there to a full house each night; was sorry I could not stop longer. Two of the above places are new openings, the gospel stir having never been told there before. I was requested to return again, but as I had agreed to meet with the Saints of the Wheatville branch the following Sunday in sacrament meeting, I told them we would try to return some time this winter.

The Saints met on Sunday at the home of Sr. Beeby's for sacrament, and the Spirit was present. I preached once for them. There were fifty-seven people, Saints and others, who ate dinner at Sr. Beeby's table that day, and she was glad to have the Saints and friends meet at her home for meetings; she is one of the sisters who is alive in the work. On the next Tuesday Bro. Andersen took me with his team a distance of twelve miles over hills and valleys, creeks and ditches, to Bear Creek, where Bro. L. Houghton had opened up the work during the summer, baptizing two. I arrived at the home of Mr. W. and Sr.

Harwood, who freely gave me the use of their house in which to hold meetings. I accordingly announced meeting for the next night, holding forth for fifteen nights. After I had been there a few days, Bro. Houghton came to assist me, and on the 21st, we baptized four; others are talking of being baptized, and still others are near the kingdom. The Spirit was present at the confirmation in a great degree.

We are obliged to hold forth in private houses, but we have had a good turnout each night. May the Lord bless the home of Mr. Harwood for their kindness in letting us have the use of their house. We will long remember their kindness, as well as the kindness of others in that part of the country.

By request we will begin meetings in a private house three miles south of here tonight; some from there have been attending the meetings here, and we believe some will obey soon. The people are stirred up for some miles around, and as usual the ministers of other sects are peddling all the stories they can to try to persuade the people not to go to hear; but the Lord is blessing us in preaching His word and they want to hear more. As I hear from the different parts of the state, the reports come that the work is onward. May the Lord bless his servants more and more until Zion is redeemed and her people saved.

In gospel bonds,

W. A. McDOWELL.

UKIAH, Cal., Dec. 19.

Dear Ensign:—You have been our preacher for the last two years. We will soon go back to San Francisco again, this being our last week here for at least five years, as we have leased our ranch.

I will tell you a little of my experience two years ago last October. I sold our income property, paid every cent I owed, paid the Lord on what I had left, then I was at a loss what to do; my husband, tired of the city, and my boy wanted to come to the ranch; they came while I lingered in San Francisco six weeks, prayed and fasted on Thursdays and Sundays, asking God to tell me my duty. Oh! what a sacrifice it would be to go in the country; I still plead night and day, and one Thursday, the last in the month, I started to our prayer union at Oakland; as I had read, and prayed God to speak to me that day, I went out of my room and locked the door, but the Lord told me to go back and pray again. I thought it strange, but obeyed, entered into my closet, and that prayer-I feel I shall never forget. I said, O, my dear Father, tell me, please, this day, if I shall go, just say go or stay and I shall obey, I ask it in Jesus' name, amen.

I then went trusting. I got there as the meeting commenced; no one knew of my great desire but God and myself. Dear Sr. Vernon arose, came to me, held her hand over my head, spoke in tongues, and the interpretation was, "Thus speaketh your Lord and your God unto you, my faithful child, I have heard your prayers, I say unto you, go, go, my child, and my angels shall go with you, even so amen and amen." Though I did dislike to come so much, yet it decided me; two sisters said, "I would not go, it may be a mistake," but I said, No, it is no mistake, I will go though it is a great, great trial. I came, and my dear mother with me; she was a great sufferer that winter with gatherings in her ear. I was terribly tried; had twenty-two hired help clearing land, plowing, etc. One night mother was so sick she said she would give up only the Lord had told her she should return home safe; and so she did the next March.

Another winter came, she came again, took sick, laid eleven weeks and died, having a vision of the Savior the day she died. We took her to Santa Rosa, her home, for burial; she was in her ninetieth year. She was so happy all through her sickness, praying and singing; would sing four songs one after another, so lovingly; faithful to the last, was exhorting all to be faithful, that this is the true church; she said tell all the children to be obedient, for the blessings and gifts will only follow the obedient and faithful; tell all, and I feel I could not tell all only by writing in this way. She also said, tell all to condemn no one, we all have our weaknesses. Bro. Parkin preached her funeral sermon, and if he had known her last words he could not have preached better; the Spirit of God gave him her words.

O this blessed gospel; the Lord has spoken to me so many times here in my lonely hours, when I have had so many cares; one time, when enquiring of him, he said, "Have I not always given to you in time of need; have I not always provided just in the time thereof?" I said, "Yes, Lord." I then saw I was impatient.

We had lots of work done, fencing new, fifty acres of hot field in, and all rented now for five years, and the door is open for us to return to the church again. We have tried to do all we could here. Bro. Daley came, staid two weeks and preached in our school-house; baptized four souls. God bless his labors. Have given out Heralds and ENSIGNS. May God bless all is my prayer.

Whether these errors were made in setting type of my book, or whether they appear also in article of 1878, of Bro. Heman C. Smith, I cannot say, but presume it was in setting up my book.

I made the discovery in comparing this review of John D. Lee's book with a reprint of the first edition, but which claims to be a new work issued in 1891, in St. Louis, M. E. Mason publisher, stated to be entered according to act of Congress by him. Literary piracy still continues.

Bro. R. C. Evans' generous commendation of "Palmyra to Independence," as "a library within itself," useful to the eldership, is appreciated, as also the several commendations of other brethren. To produce something useful was my desire as to it and other works.

APOSTASY OF THE CHURCH.

APOSTLE J. W. WIGHT.

CHAPTER I.

THE FORMER DAY APOSTASY.

To get a better understanding of the conditions that now exist in the true sense of an apostasy in church polity, it would seem necessary to examine the "former day apostasy," that by deduction, as well as the facts of history, it will be the easier to reach conclusions properly based. That there was to be such an apostasy or "falling away," is clearly outlined in the following Bible passages:

"And Jesus answered and said unto them, Take heed that no man deceive you. For many shall come in my name, saying, I am Christ; and shall deceive many. For there shall arise false Christs, and false prophets, and shall shew great signs and wonders; insomuch that, if it were possible, they shall deceive the very elect."—Matt. 24: 4, 5, 24.

"For I know this, that after my departing shall grievous wolves enter in among you, not sparing the flock. Also of your own selves shall men arise, speaking perverse things, to draw away disciples after them."—Acts 20: 29, 30.

The emphasis is to show the fact that men in the church were to apostatize and pervert the truth for the sake of adherents.

"But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived. For the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine; but after their own lusts shall they heap to themselves teachers, having itching ears; and they shall turn away their ears from the truth, and shall be turned unto fables."—2 Tim. 3: 13: 4: 3, 4.

"Beloved, when I gave all diligence to write unto you of the common salvation, it was needful for me to write unto you, and exhort you that ye should earnestly contend for the faith which was once delivered unto the saints. For there are certain men crept in unawares, who were before of old ordained to this condemnation, ungodly men, turning the grace of our God into lasciviousness, and denying the only Lord God, and our Lord Jesus Christ. I will therefore, put you in remembrance, though ye once knew this, how that the Lord, having saved the people out of the land of Egypt, afterward destroyed them that believed not."—Jude 3-5.

The only comment, if any at all be necessary, upon the above, is to note that the "grace" or favor of God is to be turned into lasciviousness—this could have been done in the union of sexes as well as other ways; that not "the only Lord God," but the "Lord Jesus Christ" as well, were to be denied; also that even though the Lord had miraculously saved from Egypt, that he afterward "destroyed" the unbelievers.

Numerous other passages might be quoted, and probably some that to others would seem of still stronger significance, but it is thought that sufficient has been noted to prove that there was to be an apostasy from the apostolic teachings, as well as to foreshadow the very teachings that would demonstrate such a sad picture as the "falling away," or a departing from the faith, would make manifest. In fact, such a departure had its inception before the death of Christ.

"And he said, Therefore said I unto you, that no man can come unto me except it were given him of my Father. From that time many of his disciples went back, and walked no more with him. Then said Jesus unto the twelve, Will ye also go away? Then Simon Peter answered him, Lord, to whom shall we go? thou hast the words of eternal life. And we believe and are sure that thou art that Christ, the Son of the living God."—John 6: 65-69.

The latter part of this quotation it will be well to especially note.

From the above quotation it will be seen that those turning away would make manifest the following facts:

1. Deception—coming as Christs and prophets, both of which would be false.
2. Signs and wonders were to be shown.
3. They were to pervert the truth.
4. While deceivers, they would themselves be deceived.
5. They were to "heap"—add to in large quantities—to themselves teachers who were to turn their ears from truth to fables—falshoods.
6. The Lord God and the Lord Jesus Christ were to be denied.

What says history as to any people having fulfilled these facts?

As to deception: "A culprit, or a witness, questioned by a judge, but in an illegal manner, may swear that he knows nothing of the crime about which he is questioned, though he knows it well; mentally meaning that he knows nothing in such a manner as to answer.

"He may swear that he knows nothing, when he knows that the person who committed the crime committed it without malice (as affr. to C. 2, No. 259, and Eib., No. 145); or again, if he knows the crime, but secretly, and that there has been no scandal (as we are assured by Card., No. 51). When a crime is well concealed, the witness, and even the criminal, may and even must swear that the crime has not been committed. The guilty party may yet do likewise when a half proof cannot be brought against him.

"If an accused, legally interrogated by a judge, may deny his crime under oath, when the confession of the crime might cause his condemnation, and be disadvantageous to him; and he answers: It is altogether probable that when the accused fears a sentence of death, or of being sent to prison, or exiled, he may deny his crime under oath, understanding that he has not committed this crime in such a manner as to be obligated to confess it.

"He who has sworn to keep a secret is not obligated to keep his oath if any consequential injury to him or to others is thereby caused.

"If any one has sworn before a judge to keep the truth, he is not obliged to say secret things. (Less, Bonar, Tall, etc.)

"Can a woman taken in adultery deny it under oath? Liguori answers, Yes, provided she has been to confess, and received the absolution, for then the sin has been pardoned, and has really ceased to exist.

"As for an oath made for a good and legitimate object, it seems that here should be no power capable of annulling it. However, when it is for the good of the public, a matter which comes under the immediate jurisdiction of the pope, who has the supreme power over the church, the pope has full power to release from that oath."—St. Thomas, Quæst. 89, Art. 9, Vol. 4.

The above and other quotations to follow, of a similar import, are taken from Vol. 46, pp. 387-389 Saints' Herald. Also from same volume, page 414.

Quoting from the latter page, we have:

"What is the sacrament of penance? It is a sacrament in which the priest, in the place of God, forgives sins [emphasis mine], when the sinner is heartily sorry for them, sincerely confesses them, and is willing to perform the penance imposed upon him. Does the priest truly remit the sins; or does he only declare that they are remitted? The priest does, really and truly, remit the sins in virtue of the power given him by Christ.

"But could we not also receive forgiveness of our sins by confessing them to God alone? By no means; or else the full power which Christ gave to the priest, of retaining or remitting according to their judgment, would indeed be vain and useless.

"Hear the council of Trent: 'Our sins are forgiven by the absolution of the priest.' The voice of the priest is to be heard as the voice of Christ himself. * * * Unlike the authority given to the priests of the old law, the power with which the priests of the new law are invested, is not simply to declare that priests are forgiven; but as the minister (or agent) of God, really to absolve from sin.

"In their anxious the fathers of Trent say: 'If any one shall say that the sacramental absolution by a priest is not a judicial act, but a mere ministry to pronounce and declare that sins are remitted to the person making confession, provided that he only believes that he is absolved, even though the priest should not absolve seriously, but in a joke, let him be accursed!'

"If any one shall say that the priests who are in mortal sin have not the power of binding or loosing, or that priests are not the only ministers of absolution, let him be accursed."

If the above quotations do not show a deceptive claim as false Christs and prophets, it will be a difficult matter to find such a claim.

They were to pervert—turn aside—the truth. In his prayer for his disciples, John 17: 17, Jesus says, "Sanctify them through thy truth: thy word is truth."

He also gave command to "search the scriptures." Under apostate conditions, tradition took the place of the Bible:

"Supposing the apostles had not left us the scriptures, ought we not still to have followed the ordinance of tradition, which they consigned to those to whom they committed the churches? It is this ordinance of tradition which many nations of barbarians, believing in Christ, follow, without the use of letters or ink."—Advers. Haeres., Letter 4, c. 64. There is plenty more upon this question of tradition, but it is needless to quote further. There were, however, other ways in which the truth was perverted, as follows:

LYING.

Speaking of the wicked, the psalmist says:

"They go astray as soon as they be born, speaking lies."—Ps. 58: 3.

"Wherefore putting away lying, speak every man truth with his neighbor."—Eph. 4: 25:

"Lie not one to another, seeing that ye have put off the old man with his deeds."—Col. 3: 9.

"* * * All liars shall have their part in the lake which burneth with fire and brimstone: which is the second death."—Rev. 21: 8.

Apostasy taught:

"That any person who has promised security to heretics shall not be obliged to keep his promise, by whatever he may be engaged."—Council of Constance, A. D. 1414. This, coupled with the quotation already given, "A culprit, or a witness, questioned by a judge, but in an illegal manner, may swear that he knows nothing of the crime about which he is questioned, though he knows it well," shows to what an extent this evil could be practiced and yet remain in full fellowship.

STEALING.

"Thou shalt not steal," was the precept laid down amidst the thunderings and lightnings of Sinai's Mount, and reiterated by the Christ to the young man. The great apostle to the gentiles, Ephesians 4: 28, said: "Let him that stole steal no more."

Apostasy arrays itself against the divine mandate and says:

"There are many opinions about the amount which may be stolen to constitute a mortal sin. Navar has said, too scrupulously, that to steal a half piece of gold is a mortal sin; while others, too lax, hold that to steal less than ten pieces of gold cannot be a serious sin. But Tol, Mech, Less, etc., have more wisely ruled that to steal two pieces of gold constitutes a mortal sin."

"Is it a crime to steal a small piece of a relic? There is no doubt of its being a sin in the district of Rome since Clement VII and Paul V have excommunicated those who committed such thefts. But this theft is not a serious thing when committed outside the district of Rome, unless it be a very rare and precious relic, as the wood of the holy cross, or some of the hair of the virgin Mary.

"If any one steals small sums at different times, either from the same or different persons, not having the intention of stealing large sums, nor of causing great damage, his sin is not mortal; particularly if the thief is poor, and if he has the intention to give back what he has stolen."—Dubium 3, Liguori.

"If several persons steal from the same Master, in small quantities, each in such a manner as not to commit a mortal sin, though each one know that all these little thefts together cause a considerable damage to their Master; yet no one of them commits a mortal sin, even when they steal at the same time."—Quæst. 2, N. 536.

In fact, the doctrine that a child may steal certain amounts from a rich father without committing a mortal sin.

FORNICATION.

James, during the controversy at Jerusalem over the question of circumcision, decided to write:

"That they abstain from pollutions of idols, and from fornication, and from things strangled, and from blood."—Acts 15: 20.

Paul says: "Neither let us commit fornication, as some of them committed, and fell in one day three and twenty thousand."—1 Cor. 10: 8.

"But fornication, and all uncleanness, or covetousness, let it not be once named among you, as becometh Saints."—Eph. 5: 3.

"For this is the will of God, even your sanctification, that ye should abstain from fornication."—1 Thess. 4: 3.

John the Revelator, in writing to the church in Pergamos, says:

"But I have a few things against thee, because thou hast there them that hold the doctrine of Balaam, who taught Balak to cast a stumbling block before the children of Israel, to eat things sacrificed unto idols, and to commit fornication."—Rev. 2: 14.

Upon this question Liguori says:

"It is right to advise any one to commit a robbery or a fornication in order to avoid a murder."

Questions 3 and 2, Liguori: "May a servant open the door for a prostitute? Croix denies it, but Liguori affirms it. May a servant bring a ladder and help his master to go up and commit adultery? Buss and others think he may do it and I am of the same opinion."

HEAP UNTO THEMSELVES TEACHERS.

There are different ways in the which this may be accomplished, but for the present party, following will suffice. Gibbon's says of Paul of Samosata, who filled the Metropolitan See of Antioch, about A. D. 260:

"Against those who resisted his power, or refused to flatter his vanity, the prelate of Antioch was arrogant, rigid and inexorable; but he relaxed the discipline, and lavished the treasures of the church on his dependent clergy, who were permitted to imitate their master in the gratification of every sensual appetite."—Gibbon's Rome, Vol. 2, p. 53.

Of Constantine, this same author says: "He heaped power and riches upon the clergy."

For the present that will suffice, for we have much stronger evidence on this point as to the latter day apostasy. That the clergy of this early apostasy "turned unto fables" has already been shown. As kind produces its kind, and like cause like effect, we will, of course, expect to find a reproduction of all the evil practices of a former apostasy made manifest in the latter.

POPE SUPREME.

"If the pope should err by enjoining vices or forbidding virtues, the church would be obliged to believe vices to be good and virtues bad, unless it would sin against conscience."—Cardinal Bellarmine.

"I acknowledge no civil power; I am the subject of no prince; and I claim more than this. I claim to be the supreme judge and director of the consciences of men; of the peasants that till the fields, and of the prince that sits upon the throne; of the household that lives in the shade of privacy, and the legislator that makes laws for kingdoms. I am sole, last, supreme judge of what is right and wrong. Moreover, we declare, affirm, define, and pronounce it to be necessary to salvation to every human creature to be subject to the Roman Pontiff!"—Tablet, Oct. 9, 1864.

Archbishop Manning makes the pope to say this, and unwittingly fulfils the prediction of a denial of the Lord God and the Lord Jesus Christ.

OBEEDIENCE TO COUNSEL.

In his Encyclical, August 15, 1832, Pope Gregory said:

If "the Holy Church so requires, let us sacrifice our own opinions, our knowledge, our intelligence, the splendid dreams of our imagination and the sublime attainments of human understanding."

Ignatius Loyola said in his Spiritual Exercises:

"As for holy obedience, this virtue must be perfect in every point, in execution, in will, in intellect, doing which is enjoined with all celerity, spiritual joy, and perseverance; persuading ourselves that everything is just, suppressing every repugnant thought and judgment of one's own, in a certain obedience, should be moved and directed under divine providence, by his superior, just as if he were a corpse which allows itself to be moved and led in every direction."

"That we may, in all things, attain the truth. That we may not err in anything, we ought ever to hold, as a fixed principle, that what I see to be white, I believe to be black, if the superior authorities of the church define it to be so."

To offset Galileo's theory of the earth's rotary motion, Pope Urban XIII. decreed:

"In the name, and by the authority of Jesus Christ, the plenitude of which resides in his vicar, the pope, we declare that the teaching that the earth is not the center of the world, and that it moves with a diurnal motion, is absurd, philosophically false, and erroneous in faith." To this, June 22, 1683, Galileo subscribed as follows: "I abjure, curse, and detest the error and heresy of the motion of the earth around the sun."

As a result of such decree, two Jesuit astronomers of Rome, Lesueur and Jacquier, said:

"Newton assumes, in his third book, the hypothesis of the earth moving around the sun. The proposition of that author could not be explained, except through the same hypothesis; we have, therefore, been forced to act a character not our own. But we declare our entire submission to the decrees of the supreme Pontiff of Rome against the motion of the earth."—Newton's Principia, by Fathers Lesueur and Jacquier, Vol. 3, p. 450.

TREATMENT OF HERETICS, "APOSTATES."

Lord Acton, a Roman Catholic and English peer, wrote:

"Pope Gregory decided it was no murder to kill excommunicated persons. This rule was incorporated in the canon law. During the revision of the code, which took place in the sixteenth century, and which produced a whole volume of correction, the passage was allowed to stand. It appears in every reprint of the Corpus Juris. It has been for seven hundred years, and continues to be, part of the ecclesiastical law. Far from being a dead letter, it obtained a new application in the days of the Inquisition, and one of the later popes has declared that the murder of a protestant is so good a deed, that it atones, and more than atones, for the murder of a Catholic."—London Times, July 20, 1872.

Dens, famous as a Roman Catholic theologian, asks: "Are heretics justly punished with death?" And answers: "Sir Thomas says, Yes! 22, ques. 2, art. 3. Because forgers of money, or other disturbers of the state, are justly punished with death; therefore, all heretics who are forgers of faith, and, as experience testifies, grievously disturb the state."

"This is confirmed, because God, in the Old Testament, ordered the false prophets to be slain; and in Deuteronomy it is decreed that if any one will act proudly, and will not obey the commands of the priests, let him be put to death."

"The same is proved from the condemnation of the fourteenth article of John Huss, in the council of Constance."—Dens p. 88, Tome 11.

"It is of faith that the pope has the right of deposing heretical and rebel kings. Monarchs, so deposed by the pope, are converted into notorious tyrants, and may be killed by the first who can reach them."

"If the public cause cannot meet with its defense in the death of a tyrant, it is lawful for the first who arrives to assassinate him."—Suarez, Defencis

Tidel, book 6, chap. 4, Nos. 13, 14. The Lateran Council, A. D. 1215, decreed:

"We excommunicate and anathematize every heresy" that exalts itself against the holy orthodox and Catholic faith, condemning all heretics, by whatever name they may be known, for though their faces differ, they are held together by their toils. Such as are condemned are to be delivered over to the existing secular powers to receive due punishment. If laymen, their goods must be confiscated. If priests, they shall be degraded from their respective orders, and their property applied to the church in which they officiated. Secular powers of all ranks and degrees are to be warned, induced, and, if necessary, compelled by ecclesiastical censure, to swear that they will exert themselves to the utmost in the defense of the faith, and extirpate all heretics denounced by the church, who shall be found in their territories. And whenever any person shall assume government, whether it be spiritual or temporal, he shall be bound to abide by this decree.

"If any temporal lord, after having been admonished and required by the church, shall neglect to clear his territory of heretical depravity, the metropolitan and bishop of the province shall unite in excommunicating him. Should he remain contumacious a whole year, the fact shall be signified by the Supreme Pontiff, who will declare his vassals released from their allegiance from that time, and will bestow his territory on Catholics, to be occupied by them, on condition of exterminating the heretics and preserving the said territory in the faith."

"Catholics who shall assume the cross for the extermination of heretics, shall enjoy the same indulgence, and be protected by the same privileges as are granted to those who go to the help of the holy land. We decree further that all those who have dealings with heretics, and especially such as receive, defend, and encourage them, shall be excommunicated. He shall not be eligible to any public office. He shall not be admitted as a witness. He shall neither have the power to bequeath his property by will, nor to succeed to any inheritance. He shall not bring any action against any person; but any one can bring action against him. Should he be a judge his decision shall have no force, nor shall any cause be brought before him. Should he be a lawyer no instrument made by him shall be held valid, but shall be condemned and their authors."

Much more might be presented in evidence of the fact of such apostasy having taken place. By their fruits ye shall know them—but it is felt that sufficient has been added in proof of such fact so far as their own evidence is concerned, for it will be seen that their own statements have been taken.

In the next chapter we will produce evidence from other sources.

CHAPTER II.

APOSTASY AS PROVED BY HISTORY AND EMINENT WRITERS.

Justinian, emperor of Rome, A. D. 519-565, so Gibbon informs us, gave to heretics a term of three months for conversion or exile. He also says: In the creed of Justinian, the guilt of murder could not be applied to the slaughter of unbelievers; and he piously labored to establish with fire and sword, the unity of the Christian faith.

How different the statement of Jesus:

"My kingdom is not of this world: if my kingdom were of this world, then would my servants fight."—John 18: 36.

That the spiritual power of the church began early to wane may be seen by the following:

Dr. Conyers Middleton, p. 530 of Heating of the Nations (Harvard), of April 26, current year, says:

"After the year 220 [A. D.], from thence to 250, the extraordinary gifts of the spirit did decrease and grow less in comparison of the time preceding. And at the latter end of that period, Origen acquaints us, that though in his age the gift of prophesying still remained, yet it was decreased, and not in the same measure as in the foregoing age."

Waddington's Church History, Vol. 41, p. 209, says:

"But it was an error to confound the three earliest with the three following centuries; as if the same had been the government, spirit, and discipline of the church from the age of Saint Clement to Saint Gregory. We find the first of these periods was somewhat removed from apostolical perfection; but in the second the distance is incalculably multiplied, and that, not only according to the customary progress of unreformed abuses, but also through changing the principles in the administration of the church, which preceded every other cause."

Fleetwood's Life of Christ, p. 668, contains this: "Constantine, though not yet baptized, called himself the external bishop of the church [without any protest from the Catholic bishops, not even the bishop of Rome], and changed its whole constitution to conform it to the new constitution of the state. This baleful union of the Catholic church with the state, is the true origin of the Roman Catholic church; but its apostolical and holy character, as the church of Christ, perished. The glory was departed."

From commentators we extract the following: Newton says: "The empire was idolatrous under the heathen emperors, and then ceased to be so under the christian emperors, and then became so again under the Roman pontiffs, and hath so continued ever since."—Cause and Cure of infidelity, p. 144.

Fleetwood says: "The christian world of this period, those apostolic cautions, and drifting away into a darkness that might be felt."—Life of Christ, p. 636.

James Challin: "Surely there is something in christianity higher and deeper than the exhibition of it now known. The results, as they now appear to our eyes, cannot be what its author designed only to reach."—Elements of the Gospel, p. 67.

Barton W. Stone: "Sectarianism, which is only another name for heresy, sprung out of apostasy, and the parties named themselves according to their own fancy."

Alexander Campbell: "The Lord Jesus will judge that adulterous brood, and give them over to the burning flame, who have transgressed the laws, changed the ordinance, and broken the everlasting covenant, and formed alliances with the governments of the earth. The meaning of this institution, or covenant, has been buried under the rubbish of human tradition for hundreds of years; it was lost in the dark ages, and has been until recently disinterred, and, since the grand apostasy was completed, to the present generation, the gospel of Jesus Christ has not been laid open to mankind in its original plainness and simplicity. A veil in reading the new covenant has been upon the hearts of christians, as the apostle declared it was upon the hearts of the Jews in reading the old covenant at the close of that economy."—Christian System p. 189.

The above is given for a twofold purpose: to show that the founder of the Christian or Disciple church recognized the fact of an apostasy having occurred; and that he calls the various protestant churches an "adulterous brood."

In view of the fact that the ministers of the church founded by Mr. Campbell, when in discussion with our ministry, now try to carry favor with other denominations, the above is a choice bit of literature with which to block the progress of such a deception.

Under the caption, "Can We Divide?" J. H. Garrison, a prominent Disciple minister, in Quarterly Review, for April, 1894, writes:

"The time has come, however, in our own history, when the principles we have been so zealously urging upon others, must submit to the supreme test of self-application. If they do not stand this test, if they fail to prevent division in the ranks of their own advocates, under circumstances similar to those which have caused division among others, they will stand convicted of impracticability, if nothing worse, at the bar of public sentiment. A ship may cross the Atlantic in fair weather and on a smooth sea, and yet be fatally defective in some essential point of seaworthiness. But when the faithful vessel has plowed its way through mountain billows, whipped into fury by the dark wing of the tempest, and engines, pumps, propeller, rudder, hull, masts, rigging, compass—all have stood the test of the storm king's fury, and have landed the precious cargo safely in the desired haven, then, and not till then, does it command the full confidence of sailors and ocean voyagers."

"It cannot be denied that we are now on trial before the world, www.LatterDayTruth.org and before God, on this fundamental feature of our religious movement. Our failure at this point would be a grievous blow to the growing sentiment in favor of christian unity throughout the religious world. Nay more; it would send back into cheerless infidelity many who have been groping their way out of the tangled maze of doubt by the light, which our position has thrown upon their path. "If" Elder Garrison thinks that "the bar of public sentiment" is all that is necessary as a safe criterion by which to determine the truthfulness or otherwise of their theological structure, then, indeed, does he have a poor conception of a true standard of measurement.

Public sentiment will do more for a Dewey than a Christ; will fawn as a cringing sycophant at the feet of royalty, and rise as a towering monarch to crush out the vitality of a truth! It may be here today and there tomorrow; or unmerciful as the arctic blast toward a maiden who has fallen by the way, and yet carry in its arms the black-hearted reprobate who has accomplished her ruin and who may be even yet laying his plans to drag others of the virgin kind into the meshes of his hellish drag net!

No, Elder Garrison, if the final accomplishment of your, or any other, church is to be gauged by the decree of "public sentiment," we had better at once begin to learn the art of fawning and the ability to popularize, and add to or lopp off that which may be demanded at the whim or freak of this child of deformity—public sentiment!

"If" the theology you are seeking to build has really so sandy a foundation, then the sooner you escape its shelter the better, lest the "rains" come before such escape is made and when the greatness of its fall be demonstrated you may be a victim of its awful crush. At any rate you stand as a valuable witness in favor of the weakness of your own structure, and rather than being able to draw others, you will certainly repel them from you. "The world will love its own," and if it be true that you hold yourself as being on trial before it, then to become popular would be but an evidence that your church is not founded in truth.

Having shown from these witnesses that an apostasy or falling away from apostolic teaching actually took place, we now proceed to introduce the earliest evidence of such a condition.

In writing to the saints at Corinth, 1 Corinthians 5: 1, Paul says: "It is reported commonly that there is fornication among you, and such fornication as is not so much as named among the Gentiles, that one should have his father's wife."

See also 6: 18: "Flee fornication. Every sin that a man doeth is without the body; but he that committeth fornication sinneth against his own body."

It will thus be seen that the heaven of apostasy was already at work. And that it entered in to the aggravated condition of taking more than one wife also seems evident from the writings of Paul to Timothy and Titus. The first having been ordained bishop at Ephesus, the latter appointed to the same position at Crete, both seem to have been disturbed in mind as to the right of ordaining men as elders (see Titus 1: 5, 6), bishops, or deacons, who had more than one wife. At least Paul gives them to understand that the one wife doctrine is that which is legal in the sight of God. In fact the first who ever entered into the plural wife system—Lamech—killed Irad for revealing the "secret" which Satan administered to Cain.—Gen. 5: 30-39, I. T.

While John was on Patmos he hated the "doctrine of the Nicolaitanes," as did also God. (Rev. 2: 6, 15). In both the church at Ephesus and Pergamos he found those who held to this doctrine.

This fact bothered me for years. Being anxious to find out what doctrine it was that God hated that I might not enter into its practice, I seized the opportunity granted me in Melbourne, Australia, of looking the matter up. By visiting the public library of that city and Cole's Book Arcade, said to contain one million volumes, I obtained the following very interesting evidence relating to Nicolas, the proselyte of Antioch, and who was ordained to assist in looking after the widows in their daily ministrations. (Acts 6: 1-5). Whether it was these Grecian widows that caused his downfall we are not told. At any rate his evil practices caused one of the greatest schisms in the early church. Who shall say but here was the cause "that all they which are in Asia be turned away from me," as Paul writes to Timothy. (1 Tim. 1: 15).

If Nicolas was the actual founder of the Nicolaitanes—and the name implies as much—then polygamy was evidently introduced by him, for Buck, in his Theological Dictionary, says that the "doctrine" of the Nicolaitanes was polygamy.

"The evidence is so overwhelming, which states that Nicolas, the deacon, was at least the person intended by the Nicolaitanes, that it is difficult to come to any other conclusion upon the subject."—Watson's Theo. Dict., p. 749.

"This seems to be the true account of the Nicolaitanes, with whom false doctrine was joined with false practices in perverted morality."—Bible Dict. (no author given), p. 208.

"The community of women was another doctrine which they [the Nicolaitanes] are said to have adopted, and their conduct seems to have been in the highest degree licentious."—Bible Dict. (no author given), Vol. 2, pp. 876, 877.

"The statement of the Fathers * * * indicates that Nicolas was the founder of the sect."—Religious Encycl., Schaff.

"Irenaeus (Hoer. 1. 26, Sec. 3) and Tertullian (Proer. Haeret. 46) explain [Nicolaitanes as] followers of Nicolas, one of the 'seven' (Acts 6: 3, 5)."—Bibly. Cy., Faussett, p. 509.

Since, then, this Nicolas held the office of bishop or deacon—immaterial which—and Timothy was left at Ephesus (1 Tim. 1: 3) to look after the interests of the church there as its bishop, while Titus was left at Crete for the same purpose (Titus 1: 5), what more natural than that they should make inquiries concerning this matter? And that Paul would instruct them as he did, is proof of itself that no such doctrine was permissible under church authority.

But the testimony of the above quotations is strengthened by scriptural inferences as found in Titus 1: 9, "Holding fast the faithful word as he hath been taught," strongly implies that Nicolas or some other bishop had failed to so hold fast. And having so failed the probability being that the "doctrine of the Nicolaitanes" was finding its adherents at Crete; and as Titus had been left to "set in order the things that are wanting," among which was to "ordain elders in every city," and here were those "not sound in the faith" because they had given "heed to Jewish fables," what wonder that the young man was perplexed as to his duty under such circumstances, and what more reasonable than that Paul should tell him that a bishop should be the "husband of one wife"?

His duty was now plain. If there were any of the bishops or deacons at Crete, who had gone in the way of the Nicolaitanes or followed after "Jewish fables," they could no longer retain their office, for by having thus gone they had become "the husband of more than one wife."

The Utah people seek to make capital out of the statement "one wife," claiming that it does not say he is not to have more than one. But to make this quibble of any value whatever, it would be necessary to prove that no man has any right to hold the office of deacon unless he be a married man. That the Utah church did not so hold will be seen from the following extract of a sermon by Heber J. Grant, one of the apostles of their church, and found in the Deseret News, July 16, 1884: "He wanted to see the Bishops ordain the young boys to the office of Deacon."

Reflecting, then, that this man "of honest report, full of the Holy Ghost and wisdom" introduced into the church one of the first evidences of its falling away; and as kind produces kind, we must expect to find a reproduction in the latter day apostasy.

While the reflection is a sad one, it would be unjust to go behind the facts of history in our investigation, for, by so doing we would stand but little show to determine the true state of affairs and all the havoc and ruin that has been wrought by the turning from God and giving heed to "profane and old wives' fables." How dire the picture; how dire the results! Across the sombre chasm of eight centuries and more we find written by the historians' pen the words, "The Dark Ages." The only flickering lights that gleam out of this otherwise stygian darkness, were the deeds of those who suffered martyrdom for the cause they loved. They were the integral parts of "the church in the wilderness." As "the blood of the martyrs is the seed of the church," so it happened that as these in their lives, germinating amidst the awful spiritual dearth that surrounded, made manifest all that then existed of the love of God. That beautiful structure erected by the Divine hand through the Spotless One and his faithful ambassadors, had been torn down by ruthless hands that were imbued in blood, and following in its wake had come the awful gloom that enshrouded the world and its inhabitants in "gross darkness."

"Wolves in sheep's clothing," spared not the flock; polygamy, lying, stealing, fornication and adultery became the rule rather than the exception, till men as "deceivers" denied God and "heaped to themselves teachers," who, failing to proclaim the way of life, thought rather of riches and honor and the former day apostasy avowed itself in the form of the rack, the pillory, the thumb-screw and fagot, and became an assured fact; its very existence but proving the verity of that inspiration that prophetically foreshadowed it, with all its train of frightful consequences, till men, losing heart, sought consolation in unbelief.

Such is the picture, kind reader, that is portrayed in the fact of a "falling away" from truth, and gladly would we turn away from the task of a further investigation, but the voice of inspiration has given utterance to prophetic statement—pointing out the very time—that:

"Now the Spirit speaketh expressly, that in the latter times some shall depart from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits and doctrines of devils."—1 Tim. 4: 1.

That "some shall depart from the faith" evidences the thought that such faith is to be had in "latter times" or there could not be a departure. Without the production of all the evidence surrounding the fact of a latter day restoration, then, we simply assume such a restoration on the basis of the above departure and in our next chapter will investigate the evidence at hand. We do it not with the desire to incriminate any or to either slur or cast reflection. We essay the task rather in the light of an investigation of truth and to help from the error of their way those who may be led to see that they have followed "blind" guides, as well as to help those who may have become entangled in the meshes of doubt and unbelief.

For finding "blind guides" it is neither presumptuous nor uncharitable to assume that those with whom they once labored and toiled must be "the laborers together with God" and the ones to whom we may now look as the rightful inheritors of God's providence and mercy and the true custodians of His truth divine. And finding those either in the way of rightful heirs or who follow in the ways of Baalam, it can but serve to point out the truthfulness of Holy Writ and point the storm-tossed and weary mariner of life's expansive sea to that haven of refuge within which his barque may find safety and rest from the storm-tossed billows of the ocean of doubt and final blank despair.

It would seem that the motive urging an investigation from such a standpoint should not be impugned. At any rate we essay the task before us in the chapters yet to follow with a conscience void of offence toward God and man, and conscious that we have but the good of mankind and the establishment of God's truth at heart, as the anchor sheet of hope and the buoy of a restful security.

A Thing Worth Knowing.

No need of cutting off a woman's breast or a man's cheek or nose in a vain attempt to cure cancer. No use of applying burning plasters to the flesh and torturing those already weak from suffering. Soothing, balmy, aromatic oils give safe, speedy and certain cure. The most horrible forms of cancer of the face, breast, womb, mouth, stomach; large tumors, ugly ulcers, fistula, catarrh; terrible skin diseases, etc., are all successfully treated by the application of various forms of simple oils. Send for a book mailed free, giving particulars and prices of oils. Address Dr. Bye, Drawer N, Kansas City, Mo. (Out this out and send to some suffering one).

We still have some copies of the duet, "Evanella Lost," words by Bro. J. Cole Moxon, music by Prof. Leib, price 25 cents, postage paid; better order copies for yourself and friends. It is a souvenir of the little gospel boat and contains a good view of it in the San Francisco harbor.

Odds and Ends.

I once read of an old man who said that it needs another world in which to straighten up things, for they are terribly askew here, or out of fix.

There must be another world. To mature these opening flowers, Where the soul, the deathless soul, May expand its mightier powers.

We are evidenced that there is another life beyond where sin, suffering and death shall cease. Travel onward, working, hoping, Cast no lingering glance behind. At the trials once encountered, Look ahead and never mind.

Let us all try and look on the bright side of nature, do our best and be content therewith, for

We are traveling homeward through changes and gloom, To a kingdom where pleasures unchangingly bloom.

A MITE.

The shape of Porto Rico on our maps is aggressively square, unnaturally mathematical, and is an exception among islands, which are apt to be of most irregular shape; and our new possession is now being charted anew, and the appearance of it on the new maps will be something of a surprise. The appearance of the east coast line will be profoundly modified. Before a twelvemonth will have elapsed, the shape of the queer parallelogram will be changed. The straight up and down east boundary will prove to slope off gradually to the northeast. It is considered that this error in the shape of the island was due partly to lack of scientific knowledge on the part of the Spaniards, and partly to a desire to keep commercial rivals at a distance.—Scientific American, December 30, 1899.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES.

A. W. GORNBUTT.

Prepared for Zion's Religio-Literary Society, Chicago, Illinois.

Are the "wars and rumors of wars" an indication of the latter days? This is a hard question to answer; it is a subject of much thoughtful study. As my time is very limited, and having no data at hand I can hardly write a preface in this article. However, the answer very often is that there has always been wars and rumors of wars. To an extent this is true, and has not been contradicted even by the writer of those words. 6, 860,000,000 (6 billion, 860 millions) have been slain on battle fields before the dawn of latter days.

Abraham was the commander-in-chief of the first known battle, Genesis 14, when he defeats the kings of Canaan, 1913 B. C. In 1451 B. C. the sun stands still while Joshua subdues five kings. (Josh. 10). Verse 13 says the record of this great war is written in the book of Jasher. Judges 7 gives an account how Gideon and 300 warriors, picked from an army of 32,000, defeated the Midianites and killed over 150,000. And following, comes the Trojan, Marathon, Syracuse, Arbel and 1,300 other terrible wars.

All these things were well understood by the prophet; in fact, the fearful slaughter of the Israelites and the destruction of Jerusalem must have been vivid to his memory, for the Jews lost their nation 600 B. C. by Nebuchadnezzar, and 170 B. C. Antiochus slays 40,000; again in 70 A. D. Titus burns the holy city, and 1,100,000 children of Abraham the faithful, perish. Why? Because they rejected and disobeyed the word of God and followed after the customs of idolatrous nations about them. Jehovah gave the Hebrew victory in battle at all times when they stayed steadfast by their covenant, and the earth would have been redeemed and at peace if they had remained so.

The world enjoyed comparative peace, in the days of Enoch and Solomon when God had rule and his word was obeyed. The prophets foretold what disobedience would bring on the earth, and, as a consequence, God and his Spirit withdrew, and men, in the persons of Alexander, Caesar, Constantine, and about 250 popes, and as many kings and emperors have been trying to run the earth in conformity to their various ideals and ignorance.

There have been epochs of peace and much war in this time, but since the destruction of the Jewish nation, it has been gentle against gentile, heathen against heathen. Their sham of glory and tinsel splendor arose as a butterfly to bathe in the sunlight of their time, and the Lord of hosts allowed them to overrun his people as a punishment, and to bring about "his designs and sovereign will."

Many of the wars "carried on by the barbaric hordes of Saxon, Celt, Dane, Frank, Norman, Teuton, Slav, Roman, Moor, Greek, etc., had no bearing on Jewish prophecy except changes of times and seasons. The passing show of pagan god worship; the false economies and ethics of Mohammedism, Brahmaism, Buddhism and popery forecasted by revelations from the ancients, have no bearing on the meaning of the prophet's words, "And there shall be wars and rumors of wars."

You have all learned the story of how, in the dawn of our latter day, the Spirit of God moved men to settle in this new world; and how they were permitted, after over a thousand years of bondage and tyranny, to worship God according to the dictates of a pure spirit; that is the relation link between man and his Maker: How they did so, and also how intelligence and wisdom came as a flood of light causing all modern inventions of science and art and the forum of state. Then, in its time, the angel came, and the war of emancipation was foretold, and all wars from that time until the end are for the uplifting and enlightenment of the human race.

"Wars and rumors of wars," says the Spirit, speaking through the prophets. The wars are no longer directed against the weeping children of Abraham, Israel and Zion; they are against "Babylon the Great." Revelation 14, verse 6: "And I saw another angel fly in the midst of heaven having the everlasting gospel to preach unto them that dwell on the earth, and to every nation," etc. Verse 8: "And there followed another angel saying, Babylon is fallen, is fallen that great city, because she made all nations drink," etc.

When papal power is now no more, or like an old moth-eaten garment, and the frown of kings and potentates are scoffed at by the masses, and everything done against the Jew, but turns, as a mighty power, directly for his good; and every war waged, either by the sword or senate, lets mankind step a notch higher; when men of crows, corals and black vestment, with their threatening precepts and anathemas, are at their wits' ends at the turn of events and the loss of their grasp of the masses who walk in this country and Great Britain with head erect and straight back, and think for themselves, is it not a very definite indication of the last days?

The war now being waged in Africa may be thought by some to be wrong in its principal—a great "giant power" hacking at a political giant; but notwithstanding, its birth in iniquity in the days of Henry 8th, and following misrule, today, behind its banners is toleration in the deepest sense, to those who want liberty from the throes of babylonish and conservative countries where our missionaries are not permitted to preach. The same way the feuds of Kentucky are wrong, and the persecution of our ox-slaves, but in its evolutions it will create a wave of public sentiment that will adjust matters right. People are inconsistent.

For instance, the Irish wish to avenge on innocent Britons atrocities committed an age ago. As long as the Irish hitch their chariot to papal, babylon they will not prosper, for Britain in a manner, as also the United States, represents a people who have personal liberty to seek after life and happiness as long as they do not encroach upon others rights. Naturally, both will be used as God's instrument until better are on the earth.

The melody of a Bible, shotgun and whisky may be the mediums used to bring about toleration, but they are better than the mandates of saintly (?) popes and inquisitions. Hear the rumblings of anti-semitism in Austria and France. The Muscovite, armed to the teeth, calls a peace conference on the Hague, while the ministers of war stay home and order out increased armaments. There are talks of revolutions in Sweden, etc., socialism of Russia, Italy and elsewhere. Belgian riots, resignations of sectarian ministers, etc. Americanism of the American Catholic, etc. Hardly an isle of the sea but is either at war or has a "war scare." In the midst of this is the great Zionist movement, at which the pope, a supposed vicar of Christ, protests and growls. Mr. Sultan gives Mr. Kaiser a spot of sared ground, a polite, high-handed deal. The Turk does not own the ground as it was deeded to Israel.

Do any of you think that men are much longer going to do the bidding of a queen, king, emperor or ruler? They are not, for, "In the days of these kings, the God of heaven shall [has] set up a kingdom and other kings cannot rule." So the pope will never gain his coveted temporal power, and if he does not keep quiet he will not be tolerated at all. The Russian head will not long hold what he has grasped, for his kingdom will fall into pieces. The same fate is in store for the Empire of Germany. Great Britain will become a commonwealth. These countries may still hang upon some dummy king as a figurehead, but the free people will have their own way. And the light is growing brighter, and, "Behold the king cometh," is the buried desire of the poor and oppressed: that desire shall be resurrected and realized.

On the other hand the enemy is trying its best to resist the irresistible, and is fighting against the Lord. To their vision they are as "great as Diana, the god of the Ephesians." To us it may sometimes seem as if God was slow and is slack concerning His promises, but when we remember that when this gospel was restored, unclean spirits went forth also, to retard the arm of Jehovah, we can but be surprised at the great agencies for good which are steadily advancing and crowding in on the enemy. Every movement of Europe, every newspaper cablegram, every utterance the political dragon makes, is a bright indication of the latter days. We ought to rejoice and draw nearer to God and work in perfect harmony with Him.

Our surroundings in life make it hard for us, as the light of life is so much higher than the things of the darkness of death are light, sweet and wholesome, while others are sour, heavy, bitter, unpalatable. The same flour, butter, eggs and sugar are used; what makes the difference?

NOTE.—There are many alleged cream of tartar baking powders upon the market sold at lower prices, which prove, upon analysis, to be alum powders in disguise. Alum is a corrosive poison, which must not be taken in the food.

or a groping world. The social conditions of our best civilizations are a false method, and cause strife and riots. "But light and knowledge increase, and the conditions of humanity will be bettered fast, and we must not be surprised if bodies of men try to bring these conditions faster by casting God aside and taking matters into their own hand. I cannot but feel as if the harmony of the "concert of powers" in Europe has at last broke, and that a shaking up is to follow; and after those days the gospel of the kingdom shall be preached with full liberty in places where God's servants have this summer shaken the dust of their feet. In the first book of Neph chapter 3, verse 51, it is shown that the wars are with those nations who belonged to the mother of abominations, when the work would commence with the "House of Israel."

PRIDE.

Much has been written and spoken from time to time by way of warning and exhortation against the deadly influence upon the spiritual life and character which an inordinate love of self and one's possessions superinduces. The history of the past abounds in examples where not alone individuals, but even nations have been ruined and destroyed under the degenerating power of this deceptive spirit. A truly great mind is never exalted; "is not easily puffed up," and will not "think more highly of himself than he ought." The man of the greatest learning and scholarship in the "rudiments of this world" is never the one to boast of his accomplishments; for as a rule, the effort to attain a "knowledge of things as they are" has taught him the lesson that there is so very much to be learned in the vast domain of the creation, that all he has learned is but a speck on the ocean, and he is made to realize how little knowledge he really possesses compared with that which remains unsearched.

The exhibition of a spirit of "I am holier than thou," because of the enjoyment of superior advantages, whether from a spiritual or temporal standpoint, is always the evidence of a small mind and a degraded spirit. Worldly emoluments, honors or wealth can never truly weigh in the scale of worth with God, or with any who are truly endowed with heavenly wisdom. With Him, only nobility of character and sterling integrity are acceptable, and it is the same with all who partake of the "divine nature," and "finances" will have a very insignificant force when the final reward is apportioned for service in this probation, notwithstanding some are inclined to place so much value upon it in this life. The history of the world emphasizes the fact that wealth and the pride its possession so often engenders, has been the cause of the degeneration and downfall of some of the strongest and most prominent nations of the world. The Book of Mormon likewise reveals the fact, that repeatedly, when because of their diligence and faithfulness, the people of the Lord had been prospered in temporal things, it required but a few years for some of them to esteem themselves better than their less fortunate brethren, and, as a consequence, would begin to exalt themselves and mistreat their more lowly brethren, until the poor were forced to cry unto the Lord for redress and relief.

But some of the poorer class today, unfortunately for their peace, misjudge, very often, those who are in more prosperous circumstances, because they are better dressed, and occupy better homes than they; while in reality these more fortunate brethren may be more humble in heart than those who thus complain. It is not an evidence of humility of spirit even in a "poor" man, to judge that he is not getting all he ought to have, because some others are more favored than he from a money standard. The poorest man who ever walked the earth is he who, though he may number his possessions by millions upon millions, has yet no treasure in the "vaults" of the New Jerusalem. It is possible for the individual who never knows from one time to another from whence his next meal will come, and who is without an abiding place to call his home, to be among the richest of mortals who ever had being. The great possession, is to have a thankful heart; an appreciation of the blessings received; this, with an honest effort to do the very best possible for ourselves under the conditions and environments surrounding us; meeting adversities and discouragements as cheerfully as possible, and avoiding comparing our lot with that of others more fortunate, and moving forward with a brave and trustful spirit, will surely commend us to our heavenly Father who will abundantly reward us in His own time and way if we patiently, sincerely and earnestly serve Him.

The wearing of fine apparel, and the adornment of beautiful colors in raiment, is not a certain evidence of the presence of overweening pride in the wearer. Some of the most objectionable and repulsive manifestations of pride have been shown in the wearing of the poorest garments, and the selection of particular form or style of clothing, whether suitable or becoming to the wearer or otherwise. Some men take a great pride in wearing long hair, and appearing unto men (by the fashion of their raiment) to be "consecrated to God" but in their manner of living, they are the opposite of that which is righteous. Jesus said plainly, "Judge not according to the appearance but judge righteous judgment" (John 7:24), and that kind of a judgment can only be given when we fully understand the motive and principle actuating the individual.

The Lord has crowned this grand old earth with beautiful colors, all blending harmoniously, presenting to the senses a scene of beauty which is a joy so long as the season of their blooming remains. Even the grass, and the foliage on the trees display different shades of verdure, and difference in architectural design. The plumage of the birds and the sweet music of their voices all show differences; yet no one thinks of complaining because they do not all have the garb of the crow, nor the voice of the eagle. Why then should it be thought, an evidence of unbecoming pride for the sisters to delight in the beautiful harmony of colors in their attire? They are simply following out the designs natural to them, and when it is done in purity of heart and motive, not with a desire of making a better appearance than others, but simply to make as neat appearance as they are capable of doing regardless of how much better others may be able to dress than they, who can blame them, or say they are condemnable.

"But," says an objector, "some are unable to dress so well, and when they see others displaying these evidences of prosperity, they become dissatisfied and feel that they cannot worship freely in the same church." We reply, this is one phase of pride which is anything but commendable. A lowly spirit, truly loyal to God, will not suffer a matter of the dress of another to diminish the fervency of service to the Master, whether the other individual is more richly or more poorly dressed. Again, a true Saint will overdress at any time, either in God's house or her neighbor's; but the one who modestly makes use of the various colors to adorn her apparel, doing all things in singleness of heart, will not surely be condemned for following the example set before her by her Creator. There is pride in the spirit of envy and discontent; in the refusal to make peace with an offended one; in a refusal to make an honest confession of a wrong done; in declining to do a work, because we cannot do so well as others; and in various other ways do men and women manifest a pride that will not be justified. But there is a pride in doing that which is right; in integrity of character; in making a clean, neat appearance both in apparel, and homes, and all that concern us, which meets not only with the approbation of our heavenly Father, but of all good men and women.

Let us all, therefore, strive to be truly meek and lowly in spirit, and outside appearances will not disturb our peace nor destroy our equilibrium.

BRIGHAM II A PROBABILITY.

Franklin D. Richards, president of the Twelve, Church Historian, and General Church Recorder of the Brighamite church, died at Salt Lake City, Utah, December 9th and Brigham Young, son of the original head of that organization, was made president of the Twelve. In the course of events, therefore, following out the plan of choosing the president of that body to preside over the church, it is likely to again be governed by a Brigham Young; but neither he or any other will ever exercise the power and authority of the original Brigham anywhere approximating the extent it was once wielded. The Lord has cleared away some barriers to freedom in that country, and the captive may now go free if he chooses.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

ELDER M. F. GOWELL is at Savannah, Missouri, a town of about 4,000, where he expects to remain two or three weeks or longer; in connection with preaching services, he expects to do some house to house canvassing.

ELDER FRANK P. SCARCLIFF, Scranton, Mississippi, is desirous of securing a situation as book-keeper or salesman, preferably in the "regions round about." He will be pleased to minister in word and doctrine as occasion may require or opportunity afford.

SR. (MRS.) D. A. SPRINGER, Morrill, Brown county, Kansas, says she is the only one of the faith in that region and the ENSIGN is all she has in the way of the gospel. An elder would find a welcome at their home, and they would like to have some one come and preach awhile for them.

We wish to impress our correspondents who kindly furnish us items from various branches, with the importance of the fact that our space allotted this department is quite limited, and we, therefore, request them to condense as much as possible.

Give that which will be of general, rather than local, interest, and thus lighten the editor's work in "boiling" these reports down. We would willingly allow all greater privileges if we could, but we have only a certain amount of space, and we "can't get it all in without leaving some of it out." "A word to the wise," etc.

SR. CLARA L. CLARK, 3986 Highland avenue, Kansas City, Missouri, is very desirous of obtaining a copy of Bro. Stebbin's Book of Mormon lectures. Any one willing to accommodate this sister, who is an active worker in the church, and will make good use of it, may address her as above, stating price and condition of the book.

ELDER C. A. PARKIN, 3010 16th street, San Francisco, California, advises they have preaching services at Redman's Building 320 (not 230) Post street, at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. each Lord's day. Sacramental and oblation service at 12:15 p. m. first Sunday of each month. The northern California conference will begin at 10 a. m. February 9th instead of 16th as intended at first.

SR. (MRS.) E. L. COLEMAN, New Florence, Missouri, writes of her appreciation of the work which the ENSIGN is doing for those who are isolated from the companionship of Saints and the privileges of the Lord's house. She feels encouraged to greater diligence in striving to do that which is pleasing to the Lord when she reads the experience of others in the letters and sermons printed from time to time.

BRO. J. W. BEAN, Ames, Kansas, writes that notwithstanding they secured the consent of all the members of the official board of the Christian church at Clyde, whom they could find in two days, for Bro. W. S. Pender to use the church, the preacher refused to permit him to use it; the citizens of the town then took up the matter, and in a few minutes secured a very desirable hall for nine services beginning the evening of January 6th, and the efforts to keep Bro. Pender out failed. Bro. Bean adds: "God is surely behind this work. We expect good to result."

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

SR. ANNIE WEBBERLY, La-grange, Missouri:

The sects have closed the school-house against us so we have no particular place in which to hold our meetings, except at the different homes of the Saints; but we are going to try by the help of our heavenly Father to put us up a little house this spring; we think with our united efforts we can manage it; where there is a will there is a way."

GENERAL CHURCH NEWS.

INDEPENDENCE.

Bro. Roderick May is quite ill with congestion of the bowels. Bro. and Sr. T. C. Kelley are subjects for congratulations, a fine little boy was added to their family circle last Thursday, the 4th inst.

Sr. Roy Newkirk was out to service last Sunday. She is still weak, but has a good healthy look in her countenance which is gratifying to see. It was nine weeks since she was out last, and she with her family, thoroughly enjoyed the services all day. She was warmly greeted by all the Saints. It was truly a remarkable healing, and naught but the power of God could have raised her up again. We are all thankful for his mercies.

Sunday was a beautiful day, clear and warm, and only light wraps were needed. There was a good attendance at all the meetings. Bro. G. H. Hulmes disincouraged at eleven a. m., and Bro. R. J. Parker at 7:30 p. m. Both efforts were good. The afternoon sacramental and testimony service was an experience not soon to be forgotten. There were but few empty chairs in the lower auditorium, and from the beginning to ending the Holy Spirit bound the Saints in a unity of service that brought sweet recognition to all; great activity was manifest in taking part; at times several were up at once so that Brn. Harrington and May were kept busy directing the order of speaking. The Father gave words of cheer and commendation to the branch as such, though some were rebuked for unfaithfulness, yet mercy would be extended if they would repent; greater blessings, spiritually and temporally, were promised this year, to the faithful, than last year, and the blessing of the past year, especially in the healing of our sick, was brought to remembrance. Bro. G. E. Harrington was commended for his work, and greater strength of body and mind were promised, and ability to lead the flock here as the Lord desired them led. The oldest members of the branch testify it was one of the best meetings ever experienced, and all are encouraged to a more fervent and faithful service.

The regular business meeting of the branch was held Monday deferred from January 1st. President G. E. Harrington in the chair, J. W. Luff, secretary. After the usual opening exercises and reading of minutes of previous meeting, the usual reports of officers were read. Treasurer reported receipts $82.62, expenditures $50.60, balance $12.02. Tract committee reported. Those in charge are, first ward, Srs. Horton, Belmore and Geo. Bailey; second ward, Brn. Belmore and Connor; third ward, Brn. F. Heflon and Nephi May and Sr. Flo Mc-Nichols; fourth ward, Brn. Wm. Bushnell and Srs. P. Peterson and Emily Kinney. Work has been done in all wards and the efforts were well received. Auditing committee reported branch treasurer's reports as correct according to his books. Building committee report was read, followed by the report of the treasurer as follows: General fund $855.53 which is on hand in bank. Baptistry fund $41.78. Letters of removal for Wm. L. Aylor and Sr. Louise E. Aylor from Mathewson, Oklahoma, were presented and on motion they were accepted as members of this branch. Communications from Bro. T. W. Williams of Los Angeles, California, and Bro. B. F. Ordway, of Peoria, Illinois, were read but no action was taken regarding them. On motion the use of the church at Independence was cheerfully extended to Apostle I. N. White in his contemplated debate with Elder Clark Braden should it materialize, while he is affirming the proposition under discussion. For building committee Brn. R. May, G. H. Hulmes, J. A. Robinson, Wm. Crick, W. T. Bozarth, H. H. Robinson, Ellis Short and E. R. Mills were nominated, Brn. Harrington and Garrett declining nomination; the vote being counted Brn. R. May (36 votes), G. H. Hulmes (28) J. A. Robinson (28), Wm. Crick (27), Ellis Short (23), were declared elected to serve for the ensuing year, and the choice was made unanimous. The Z. R.-L. S. made a report which showed a good interest taken; membership 81; paid out over $21 in past six months.

LAMONI, IOWA.

Frosty nights and fine days. Bro. Wm. and Sr. Mary May, aged 69 and 70, arrived from St. Louis, Missouri, to dwell at the Home.

At the business meeting last week five were added to the branch by letter, and five letters of removal granted. The election of officers for the year 1900 resulted in the re-election of Brn. J. A. Gunsolley, M. J. Danielson and A. K. Anderson for presiding elder, priest and teacher. Bro. Dan Anderson was elected presiding deacon, Bro. E. L. Kelley, jr., secretary; Bro. B. M. Anderson, chorister; and Sr. R. Gaylord, organist.

Elders Hansen and Bidmore, of the Utah church, were granted the auditorium of the brick church Saturday night, 6th inst. and last night, the 7th, to express their views and show some differences between them and the Reorganization. Bro. Heman C. Smith is announced to reply to them tonight. Good attendance and considerable interest is manifested.

Pres. Joseph Smith declared the gospel yesterday morning, his text and subject being the apostles' commission, Mark 16. Pres. A. H. Smith comforted and instructed the dwellers at the Home at the same hour. The afternoon social sacrament service was presided over by missionary in charge, Jos. R. Lambert, and district president, F. M. Weld; a profitable season was enjoyed.

The winter term of Graceland College begun on the 2nd inst. with some new students.

On Friday night 5th inst., the Religio held their monthly prayer meeting, subject "Peace."

The College library has received an edition of fifteen volumes, presented by A. H. Adams and wife, of Jesser, Minnesota.

A young married man who resides in Lamoji, a son-in-law of Bro. and Sr. John Harp, was baptized in the font at the Saints' Home week before last by Apostle Lambert and was confirmed at the afternoon social service, Sunday, 31st ult. by Bishop Kelley and Apostle Lambert.

Sr. C. Scott gave a supper to her Sunday School class and others Thursday night, 4th inst., which was much enjoyed.

A LAMONTIAN.

ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI.

Another quarterly conference has passed; the first meeting was held Saturday evening, January 6th, Brn J. D. White and J. C. Hitchcock presiding, Bro. Gordon Smith, clerk, his books showing balance on hand $404.82. Considerable business was disposed of in the two hour session, and it was adjourned to meet Sunday morning at 11 a. m. for preaching.

Bro. Hilliard came in from Jeffersonville, Illinois, for our conference and delivered two forceful sermons. In the morning service Brn. Barraclough and Swift assisted; night session Bro. J. C. Hitchcock and J. J. Billinsky.

Sunday morning the new superintendent, Bro. O. O. Randall, took charge of the school, being assisted by others chosen for leading positions. There was a splendid feeble prevalent, and before the close of school our little chapel was well filled. Many attentive listeners to Bro. Hilliard.

The church was almost uncomfortably crowded in the afternoon, Bro. J. D. White and G. H. Hilliard in charge of the service. Some twenty-four or five testimonies, about five prayers and some singing occupied the time. Many expressed themselves as willing to try and do the best they could during the year that lies before.

A surprise party was tendered Bro. Sam Burgess December 29th, '99.

Eleven were baptized since last report, two gained by letter; total gain of thirteen.

We are hopeful in "the greatest work in the world."

ST. JOSEPH, MISSOURI.

Our meetings yesterday were very well attended indeed, especially the sacrament service at 5:30 p. m. The moment of silent prayer suggested by Bro. R. Winning at the beginning of the meeting enabled us to more fully concentrate our minds upon the great theme of the occasion. At the evening preaching service there was an unusual large attendance. A good beginning for the new year. The Religio held their regular monthly prayer meeting Tuesday night Bro. M. F. Gowell in charge. The young people expressed themselves as being desirous of continuing in the faith, and doing more for the Master's cause the coming year.

Thursday afternoon the Sister's Prayer Union met at the home of Sr. D. J. Krahl, the basement of the church undergoing repairs. There were eleven present and the presence of the Holy Spirit comforted and encouraged the hearts of all.

After the meeting closed the subject of a sewing society was brought up and resulted in an organization. The society has not been named as yet, but it will be for the purpose of assisting the Willing Workers association which carries our church building debt. The following officers were elected: Sr. D. J. Krahl, president; Sr. G. W. Best vice president; Sr. Samuel Brooks, secretary; Sr. M. E. Eldridge, treasurer.

A Band of Mercy was organized at the Sunday School yesterday; D. J. Krahl was chosen president, John A. Gardner, secretary and treasurer.

Elders H. O. Smith and M. F. Gowell called upon the Utah elders to get a date for discussion; they have partly promised.

Bro. G. J. Whitehead was taken very sick a week ago but partly recovered; on Thursday last he was seized with another attack and has been confined to his bed ever since. Fasting and prayer were engaged in yesterday by the Saints, and we learned last evening that he was resting easy. Saints, please remember this brother.

Bro. and Sr. Frank Bradfield received a very precious New Year's gift—a little daughter.

Elder H. O. Smith has organized a class of about thirty singers at Stewartsville, Missouri. He has been requested to act as instructor and will make a trip to Stewartsville every Thursday night returning Friday morning.

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS.

Our union service yesterday was well attended and a good spirit prevailed. Some complaints about lengthy testimonies were heard after the service, the cause of which it would be well to correct in wisdom. The Saints are learning, and in the exercise of patience and humility all will attain to the perfect pattern by and by.

Bro. Robt. Bachelder, a brother to our Sisters Williams and Henderson, is in the city with half an idea of locating with us. He is from the land of Zion. He will be welcomed in our midst as one who loves the work. [Put his violin to work in your Sunday School orchestra, Bro. Terry.—Ed.]

Sr. O. M. Dahlem, of Joliet, Illinois, came to the city to be in attendance at the services, and have her little son Verne Cornelius, blessed, which was done during the service.

Sr. Webster whom we reported as recovered, is still quite ill and desires prayers for her final and complete recovery, if it be God's will.

Prospects are quite flattering for the opening of a mission at Seventy First Place and Stony Island avenue, in the south part of the city, also the time nears when a west side mission will be opened. We need a little more financial encouragement and the work will be commenced. The missionary fire is burning brightly upon the altars of many hearts, and we are made glad, only let us be wise, and labor in a spirit of love and unity, and all will be well.

Bro. G. H. Graves, our colored evangel, opened up his gospel artillery against the strong holds of Satan, last night in a "revival". He has issued cards and did other advertising.

Bro. Wm. Strange was the speaker at the Lang mission last night, the writer on the north side. The prayer meetings last week at all three places were very good, and we trust and believe the new year will bring to us a marked advancement in the work in Chicago. We are starting under this faith and shall so labor. Who will stand with us in the effort, and bear the burdens necessary, that we may together rejoice in the victory won through patience and labor?

For truth and triumph,

DENVER, COLORADO.

Church, corner of 22d and A rapahoe Sts. Services Sunday.—Sunday School at 9:45 a. m.; preaching at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.; sacrament service the first Sunday in each month at 6 p. m. Prayer meeting Wednesday evening. Zion's Religio-Literary Society Friday evening.

The weather is as fine as we could have if we had it made to order.

Our Sunday School Christmas entertainment was a grand success.

The holidays were enjoyed by all the Saints except Bro. Edward's family; their son Ralph who has been sick so long, is some better, but his recovery is very slow.

By letter from Bro. Wm. A. Wells, of Grand county, we learn of the death of his wife, which occurred on Christmas day, of pneumonia. She was a member of the Denver branch and died firm in the faith of the restored gospel.

The Sunday services, the 7th, were well attended from the Sunday School in the morning till the close of the preaching service in the evening. The preaching in the morning was by the pastor on the authority of the priesthood; in the evening Elder Geo. E. McConley, of Sterling, was the speaker from the text, "No man cometh unto the Father but by me."

The Saints' Educational Co-operative Association, of Denver, has been organized. We hope to be able to benefit ourselves in studying the laws of co-operation, and also by uniting our efforts to benefit ourselves locally by getting the necessities of life at a reduced rate—why not?

The pastor has a wedding on hand this week—parties outside of the church; it is a conundrum as to how they came to call for us as we have never met before. May be time will explain.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA.

Services at Golden West Hall, 320 Post street, every Sunday. Sunday School 10 a. m., preaching 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m., prayer meeting 12:15 noon. Elder C. A. Parkin presiding elder, residence 3010 16th street.

It has been raining here steadily for two days and three nights, some of the time pouring. It has now cleared up again. Our sewers have been thoroughly flooded, and the air is washed clean. It is now warm and pleasant once more.

Friday evening the Religion was invited to a surprise party to be given to Bro. John Cockerton, at Oakland; so at the appointed hour eleven of our members went over, and all had a very enjoyable time. There was about thirty present. The brother is about to depart for southern California.

Bro. F. M. Sheehy gave us a very fine discourse Sunday morning, on the teachings of Joseph Smith. All were much pleased with his remarks, and much instructed also. Bro. Sheehy has now gone to Stockton to meet Bro. G. T. Griffiths.

There was a good attendance at the evening service. Chas. A. Parkin was the speaker. Quite a number of visiting members were present from different parts of the state.

Bro. Geo. Daley, president of the Sacramento branch, called on us today; he reports his branch in good condition. It has been much improved by the labors of Bro. Griffiths, as new energy has been given to the members. Bro. D. A. Anderson, one of our missionaries, was ordained an elder, at Sacramento recently, which places him in a more useful sphere, for general work.

The New Year was ushered in with a great deal of excitement here. Thousands of people, young and old, paraded our principle streets, blowing horns and whistles, ringing bells, swinging rattles, and carrying anything and everything to make a noise, some with masks or painted faces, or in ridiculous dress, anything for fun; most of the city was let loose for amusement. This was kept up all the evening, and until midnight. This is the greatest night of the year in this city; liberties are taken and privileges granted, then, which would be insults at any other time. Many of the churches held watch services, and thus the old year passed.

FIRST KANSAS CITY BRANCH.

Chapel, 2324 Wabash avenue. Take 16th street line to Prospect Ave., transfer to Prospect, get off at 24th, and walk on block west or to the right hand. Time of meetings: Sunday School at 8:30, preaching at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m., social service at 12:30 p. m. Prayer meeting, Wednesday evening at 7:30, Religion, Friday evening at 8. Strangers are cordially invited.

Although Sunday was foggy over head and muddy under foot, all the services were exceptionally well attended.

On Thursday evening at the regular teacher's meeting Bro. Arthur Gillen was elected chorister, and from the beginning he made on Sunday there will surely be new life in that part of the school service.

Elder I. N. White addressed the Saints at the 11 a. m. service, using his chart illustrating the different dispensations and was listened to with rapt attention for an hour and a quarter. Many said they could have listened another hour.

The social services have increased both in spirituality and attendance since the time was changed from 2:30 to 12:15 p. m. Eighty-one were in attendance. Many splendid testimonies were borne. It being the first Sunday of the new year there were numerous expressions of a determination to improve in grace and spirituality during the coming year. A number of the young people were heard from. The allotted time was too short for all to be heard. The Spirit spoke in prophecy through Elder B. J. Scott to the branch in general and to Elder Arthur Allen in particular, giving words of encouragement to all.

Elder Arthur Allen spoke to a good audience in the evening at the church. Elder B. J. Scott preached at Ivanhoe and Elder D. F. Winn at Bro. Jackson's home. R. E. PORTER.

SECOND KANSAS CITY BRANCH.

Corner Sixteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue. Sunday School 9:30 a. m., preaching 11 a. m., prayer meeting 2:30 p. m., preaching 7:30 p. m.

Friday night the Literary Society held a prayer meeting; the Divine Spirit was present, giving liberty, and all were encouraged.

At the business meeting Saturday night, Sr. Margaret Kieney was received as a member of the branch on letter of removal from Independence branch. The branch officers of last term were sustained. A circular letter was read from Bro. T. W. Williams of Los Angeles, California, concerning the council of the priesthood in relation to the gathering and the ideas that cluster around that event; also one from Bro. B. F. Ordway of Peoria, Illinois, concerning the initiative and referendum system of voting in matters of vital and general interest.

The Sunday School elected the following officers: Bro. Fred Koehler, superintendent, John C. Grainger, assistant superintendent, Mansel Williams, secretary, Srs. Anna Tannehill, treasurer, Amelia Koehler, organist, Nettie Williams, chorister, Edith Tannehill, librarian, Bro. Allen Tannehill, janitor.

Elder Joseph Emmett discoursed on Matthew 26: 26, 28 to a good audience at the eleven o'clock service.

The ordinance of the Lord's supper was administered at the afternoon service and the sweet influence of the Holy Spirit was manifest and many were encouraged and renewed their covenant. After social meeting some of the saints repaired to Bro. Thomas Newton's home, where prayer was offered by several and God's holy ordinance for healing was administered to the two youngest children, Elders Warkny and Emmett officiating. Bro. Newton has been afflicted for the past few weeks with painful ulcers which prevent him from doing his usual work.

Elder I. N. White lectured on the manner of God's dealings with his people from the days of Adam to now. He raised the authoritative voice of warning clear and distinct to "standing room only." Several non-members were present; some who heard the spirit of inspiration and prophecy for the first time, stated they would come again to hear more.

George, the infant son of Bro. Fred and Sr. Ada Koehler, was blessed, after the lecture, by Bro. White and Emmett.

LETTER DEPARTMENT.

REED CITY, Mich., Jan. 5.

Dear Ensign:—Maybe because I have not written much for the past year to the readers, some of you may think Cornish is not doing very much, or is losing faith in it, etc., but such is not the case. I feel as strong as ever, and stronger as the years go by.

I have been so very busy all the time; district work, field work and the bishop's agent's work, etc., keeps one busy. I have so much writing to do, one way and another, that all little leisure time I have, is taken up. I believe the world is not receiving the gospel as well as they did years ago, and, as a matter of course, not so many coming into the church. But, as a rule, those who do obey the present truth, are coming in with their eyes open and mean business. The Saints are rousing up to a sense of duty, and have done more this year in a financial way than any previous one. Our ministers are doing about all they can, and I believe I can safely say that Zion's cause is onward.

I believe if the time ever was, it is now, necessary that the Saints live their religion; I believe the signs portray the latter day more now than at any time previous. I am glad I am living in the age in which I am, and that I am in this grand work. Dear Saints, let us faithfully live our religion, doing all the good we can, and as little wrong as possible, that as unborn families we may have an abundant entrance into the everlasting kingdom of our God. Is the prayer of your brother and co-worker, for Christ.

CONDON, Ore., Jan. 1.

Editor Ensign:—As this is the first day of the new year I wish to write a short letter to your paper that those who read the ENSIGN may know how we are getting along in this part of the world. The weather is just fine here today, no snow and a warm south wind blowing. The Saints in this part are striving to do the Master's will, some coming nearer the mark than others; may God reward them all. Condon Saints have put their shoulder to the wheel in a very commendable manner, and have succeeded in erecting a nice little church 20x36; they have it nearly completed, and the best is, it is all paid for; when it is finished we will commence a series of meetings. Elders D. L. Harris, A. B. Moore and the writer will be in attendance. We have some noble people in these parts who, if taught right, will be of use to the Lord's house yet.

Say, brother editor, do you ever read the Octographic Review, one Daniel Sommer proprietor? I have two copies of it, one for December 12, 1898, and one for December 19, 1898, in which one, W. W. Oley, is (as he terms it) dissecting Mormonism, and a more untruthful mess of stuff I never saw in print; and as some of that faith read the ENSIGN I wish to say to them, Why do you read and peddle such falsehoods among your neighbors, when men and women who read for the purpose of learning truth (and some of these are of your own families), know that this pan Oley is but reiterating statements that the highest courts of our land have said were false? Do you think for a moment that you will ever convince any one that you have the truth, and that you are an example of godliness, by abusing them, and all these who do not believe as you do? or do you think that you will persuade them that you are Christlike by asking them to read such vilifying statements as this man Oley puts out? Is Christlike to take the ENSIGN from the office, and after you have read it, write under or opposite something that you don't believe, such sayings as this, "that's a lie"; "poor simple woman," etc., etc.? If people desire to criticise what they find in the ENSIGN, subscribe for it yourself, it only costs one dollar per year, and then you can write it full of your venom, and send it to whom you wish. Or if what you read in the ENSIGN seems to you to be false, there are plenty of defenders for its teachings; meet them half way, and as "Christian" gentlemen canvass the subject, and let the public judge as to its truth or falsity.

Well, I wish to tell of a wonderful case of healing of which I was witness this winter. Bro. D. L. Harris and I left my home for Wagner, Oregon, on November 16th, arriving at the home of Sr. S. A. Shelley, who is now seventy-two years of age, and has been a member of the church for thirty years. We found her suffering much pain from a tumor; about six years ago she had it cut out, but it came back again, and at the time of which I speak, was about the size of a man's thumb; it was on the outside and could be seen by others, but she could only feel it with her hand. We anointed her with oil, and laying our hands upon her prayed that God in his mercy would hear and answer our petitions, and grant that she might be healed. The next morning the tumor was all gone; she asked her husband (who was an infidel) and Sr. Slavin, who was working for her, to put on their glasses and look for it, but it was nowhere to be found. To God be all the praise and not to man.

Saints, look higher, live better, pray more; forgive those who persecute you, for, ere long, the Savior will come in the clouds of heaven to make up his jewels, and if we conform to the world we will not be like Christ, and unless we are like him we shall not be his. My prayer is for the welfare of all the pure in heart.

Your brother and co-laborer,
W. A. GOODWIN.

CORRIGAN, Tex., Jan. 4.

Dear Ensign:—I find in this place a class of people who style themselves "Israelites," commonly known as the "Flying Rolls." See Zech. 5: 1, also Jer. 36: 28, Ezek. 2: 9. They have a book written by one, James J. Jezreel, in 1879 entitled "Extracts from the Flying Roll," written for the gentle churches in all the world. They say they are the hundred forty and four thousand that were sealed in Revelations. The men wear long hair; I have seen them have hair two feet long. They live in hopes of never dying, but will be translated, and if one of their number dies they say he was not one of the elect. They will not help to bury one of their members, they say "let the dead bury the dead."

While conversing with one some time ago, he said to me, "I vos shust going to tell you, I will not touch any von vos dead, shust because I am to fare along, (i. e. to near perfect) let, de dead bury de dead," etc. They believe in present day revelations and prophets. J. J. Jezreel was the sixth of the seven angels that was to sound their trumpets, and at present the seventh is sounding, but they will not tell his name. J. J. Jezreel predicted that half of the city of London, England would sink, etc. I could give many other points of their belief, but forbear.

There is another sect who is advocating C. T. Russell's Millennial Dawn doctrine. One, a Mr. Phillips, agent for the Millennial Dawn, stopped at my home to sell me some of his books. I asked him to explain the work to me and he did the best he could to show me Russell's platform, after which I kindly asked him if it was not a fact that C. T. Russell got his starting point from the Latter Day Saints, as they were among the first to proclaim a thousand years reign of Christ upon earth. Since the apostasy of the early church; at this question he raised to his feet, pointing his finger in my face, said, "You need not cast any such insinuations upon Charles T. Russell, for he never got anything from Mormonism, and I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ." So taking up his books he was soon off.

I think if it is a known fact, as I have been informed that Russell did get his starting point from the Saints, some one ought to show him up in true colors.

I met two Utah elders at this place, they being the first of that stripe I have met. Of course they advanced the theory of Brigham Young's succession but admitted it would take a direct call from God to fill that office, and when I showed them that Brigham made no such claim but stated that the voice of the people put him at the head of his church, and that that was sufficient, they became what they call "meek" and had no more to say. I think all of the Saints should have the "Books and Utah Mormonism in Contrast" by Elder R. Etzenhouser, it sounds the death knell to Utah.

I send a special request to the Prayer Union, to be remembered by them that my health may be restored.

J. T. DAVIS.

CRESCENT CITY, Ia., Dec. 11.

Editor Ensign:—The little band of Saints in and around Crescent City, has yet the spirit and interest of the gospel; enough so, that the little chapel in Crescent is quite well attended. Through the never-tiring and persistent efforts of Bro. Carstensen, our beloved president, and other fellow workers, prayer meetings have again been started at the usual time.

Last sacrament our hearts were made glad by the visitation of God's Holy Spirit, which spoke to us through one brother first in prophecy, then in tongues and interpretation. Truly great blessings are in store for the faithful. As we place ourselves in condition, so God gives to us. If we improve the talents we have, another will be given. Thus God's blessings are poured out upon his Saints, and we are made to feel that He loves us, and delights in blessing us.

The more brilliantly we let our light shine; the more earnestly we work for the progress of the cause of Emmanuel, in obedience to the gospel law; sacrifice, deeds of love and holy conversation, we learn to love God; to love that Holy One of Israel, Jesus our Redeemer. With Him and the inhabitants of the celestial world, we become interested in the redemption of souls; swallowed up in the great thought that's crunched in the gospel of Jesus, to make better men and better women; enlightened, glorified souls, worthy of a celestial habitation.

May God bless and sustain all that thus work; among whom I wish to mention is our beloved district president, Bro. David H. Chambers. He was with us at our last partaking of the holy emblems, and spoke with timely advice and encouragement. He preached to us all last week but two nights—which were stormy—and God did bless him; that was evidenced by the large congregations and intense interest manifested. May God give the increase and add to our number.

I took Bro. Chambers to Hazel Dell for Sunday evening service, but the inclement weather prevented meeting. He and Bro. J. Christensen went from there to McCune's, where they will preach and expect to baptize two. From there back to Hazel Dell, and thence to Boomer. Truly the earnest work, and sacrificing spirit manifested by our brother, merits our faith and prayers in his behalf. And so let us remember one year that we work for the ultimate success of Zion.

Your fellow worker in the gospel of Jesus,
A. E. MADISON.

FONT SCOTT, Kan., Jan. 5.

Editor Ensign:—When I came to Ft. Scott from Kansas City, I found the Saints of Lebanon branch had no place to hold meetings, except in private houses; in company with Bro. Lee Quick, who had moved to Ft. Scott, and with the aid of the Saints, we rented a house for meetings for one year. We had meetings New Year's eve and the Spirit was with us in power. Bro. Quick has preached every night since. The Saints are all alive in the work, and there is a good interest, and a hope that some of the elders will come and see us; we will put them to work if they come, so don't be afraid to come and help us. I feel well in the work and my prayer is that the Saints will square their lives by the law, and come up higher.

APOSTASY OF THE CHURCH.

APOSTLE J. W. WIGHT.

CHAPTER III.

THE BEGINNING OF THE END; THE LATTER DAY APOSTASY FORESHOWN; ITS EVIL CONSEQUENCES OUTLINED.

With a prophetic prescience for which he was noted, the Apostle Paul seeks to quiet the fears of the saints at Thessalonica relative to the coming of Jesus Christ:

"Now, we beseech you, brethren, by the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, and by our gathering together unto him, that ye be not soon shaken in mind, or be troubled, neither by Spirit, nor by word, nor by letter, as from us, as that the day of Christ is at hand. Let no man deceive you by any means: for that day shall not come, except there come a falling away first, and that man of sin be revealed, the son of perdition; who opposeth and exalteth himself above all that is called God, or that is worshipped; so that he as God sitteth in the temple of God, showing himself that he is God."—2 Thess. 2:1-4.

This falling away was to be one of the evidences of Christ's coming; was to be marked by the manifestation of the son of perdition; such manifestation was to be seen in a peculiar "exaltation" "above all that is called God;" was to sit in the temple of God, as God. But we will proceed with the prophecies without further comment for the present.

In writing to Timothy, Paul says:

"Now the Spirit speaketh expressly, that in the latter times some shall depart from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits, and doctrines of devils; speaking lies in hypocrisy; having their conscience seared with a hot iron; forbidding to marry, and commanding to abstain from meats, which God hath created to be received with thanksgiving of them which believe and know the truth."—1 Tim. 4:1-3.

"For the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine; but after their own lusts shall they heap to themselves teachers; having itching ears; and they shall turn away their ears from the truth, and shall be turned unto fables."—2 Tim. 4:3, 4.

"But there were false prophets also among the people, even as there shall be false teachers among you, who privily shall bring in damnable heresies, even denying the Lord that bought them, and bring upon themselves swift destruction. And many shall follow their pernicious ways; by reason of whom the way of truth shall be evil spoken of."—2 Pet. 2:1, 2.

While the above quotation has been used to forecast the former apostasy, it is really more applicable, or rather, received a greater fulfillment in the latter apostasy. This we will be abundantly able to show.

Passing from these Biblical forecasts we take up the latter day revelations purporting to have come from God, and that immediately concern every phase of so-called "Mormonism."

For the one unacquainted with our faith, who may read these lines, it is well enough to say that we accept belief in a complete restoration of the apostolic church and faith, as well as believe that God now speaks to his church; and all quotations marked "D. C." are from the Doctrine and Covenants—a compilation of the purported revelations from God.

In a revelation given November 1, 1831, D. C. Sec. 1: 2, we have this:

"Behold, this is mine authority, and the authority of my servants, and my preface unto the book of my commandments, which I have given them to publish unto you, O inhabitants of the earth; wherefore, fear and tremble, O ye people, for what I the Lord have decreed, in them, shall be fulfilled."

In the 7th paragraph we have: "Search these commandments, for they are true and faithful, and the prophecies and promises which are in them shall all be fulfilled." In Utah edition, D. C., 1890, verses 6, 7, 37.

It is pleasing to learn from section 2, that:

"The works, and the designs, and the purposes of God, cannot be frustrated, neither can they come to naught, for God doth not walk in crooked paths; neither doth he turn to the right hand nor to the left; neither doth he vary from that which he hath said; therefore, his paths are straight, and his course is one eternal round."

"Remember, remember, that it is not the work of God that is frustrated, but the work of men; for although a man may have many revelations, and have power to do many mighty works, yet, if he boasts in his own strength, and sets at naught the counsels of God, and follows after the dictates of his own will, and carnal desires, he must fall, and incur the vengeance of a just God upon him."

It is well to note that the statement is specific, that "God doth not walk in crooked paths," neither doth he turn aside; that if man "boasts in his own strength," "sets at naught the counsels of God," "follows his own will" and "carnal desires," that "HE MUST FALL!"

Remember, also, that the above and the quotation to follow, were given to the church and pertained to its membership. That church that "came out of the wilderness; clear as the moon and fair as the sun, and terrible as an army with banners." That "wilderness" could have been the gloom of spiritual darkness, and the church, prior to its coming out of the wilderness, "those who were as faithful as it was possible to be under such conditions. It was "terrible" because it claimed the fullness of God's effulgent glory, and struck at the very root of sin—the revelation of God being able to search the hearts and try the reins. Having come into existence, it, the church, had, lurking in its wake, the same danger of arrogance, pride and apostasy, that beset the church in the apostles' day; hence, the necessity of forewarning it.

In sections 10 and 11, we have: "Deny not the Spirit of revelation, nor the spirit of prophecy; for woe unto him that denieth these things."

"And I, Jesus Christ, your Lord and your God, have spoken it."—D. C., Sec. 16: 5.

Turning to section 38: 4, we have:

"And now I show unto you a mystery, a thing which is had in secret chambers, to bring to pass even your destruction, in process of time, and ye knew it not, but now I tell it unto you."

The mystery here shown is a "thing had in secret chambers." That "thing" will bring about the destruction of what? The word destruction may cover the ground of death, or it may mean a spiritual destruction. That the Lord is addressing collectively is seen in the thought of using the plural "hearts" to signify the "ye." It would seem then, that because of this thing, a destruction was to come upon the church. It does not necessarily follow that the kingdom was to be destroyed, but because of a thing had in secret chambers, destruction by death came to the martyrs, and a spiritual destruction came to many others. This "secret thing" had its origin in the very beginning, as may be seen by the following:

"And Satan said unto Cain, swear unto me by thy throat, and if thou wilt thou shalt die; and swear thy brethren by their heads, and by the living God that they tell it not; for if they tell it they shall surely die, and this that thy father may not know it * * * and all these things were done in secret."—Gen. 5: 14, 15.

The quotation is from the Inspired Translation, and serves its purpose without comment, for the present.

"And again, the elders, priests, and teachers of this church shall teach the principles of the gospel which are in the Bible and the Book of Mormon, in the which is the fullness of the gospel; and they shall observe the covenants and church articles to do them, and these shall be their teachings, as they shall be directed by the Spirit."—D. C. Sec. 42: 5.

Only about three months had passed away after the above had been given when it became necessary for the Lord to say:

"Behold, I the Lord have looked upon you, and have seen abominations in the church, that profess my name; but blessed are they who are faithful and endure, whether in life or in death, for they shall inherit eternal life. But woe unto them that are deceivers and hypocrites, for thus saith the Lord, I will bring them to judgment. Behold, verily I say unto you, There are hypocrites among you, and have deceived some, which has given the adversary power, but, behold, such [those over whom the adversary has obtained power because of the deception of others] shall be reclaimed; but the hypocrites shall be detected and shall be cut off."—Sec. 50: 2, 3.

"Behold, the Lord requireth the heart and a willing mind; and the willing and obedient shall eat the good of the land of Zion in these last days; and the rebellious shall be cut off out of the land of Zion, and shall be sent away, and shall not inherit the land."—D. C. 64: 7.

Having thus established the fact Biblically that there was to be a latter day "falling away," and that in the revelations to the church the Lord foreshadowed it, and showed wherein we might determine such fact—by comparing the deeds of those who profess to remain loyal with the facts of revelation—we close this chapter. It will be well to remember that God does not walk in "crooked paths;" that he does not vary nor turn aside; that the latter day revelations, in harmony with the Bible and Book of Mormon, make plain that Jesus Christ is the Son of God; that secret work was to accomplish a "destruction;" and that the "rebellious" were to be "driven away."

CHAPTER IV.

THE LATTER DAY APOSTASY PORTRAYED.

In a sermon preached April 9, 1852, Brigham Young said:

"Now, hear it, O inhabitants of the earth, Jew and gentile, saint and sinner! When our father Adam came into the garden of Eden, he came into it with a celestial body, and brought Eve, one of his wives, with him. He helped to make and organize this world. * * * HE IS OUR FATHER AND OUR GOD, AND THE ONLY GOD WITH WHOM WE HAVE TO DO."—Journal of Discourses, Vol. 1, p. 50.

Had Paul personally listened to the above statement, he could not more clearly have outlined the latter day apostasy than he did in writing to the Thessalonians (2:1-8). The "son of perdition," Satan, was to sit in the "temple of God" "as God." It is claimed by some that when in the Nauvoo temple, Brigham, acting "as God" in the endowment drama, fulfilled the above. But it seems to me that a safer position and clearer exposition would be the following:

"Jesus answered and said unto them, Destroy this temple, and in three days I will raise it up. Then said the Jews, Forty and six years was this temple in building, and wilt thou rear it up in three days? But he spake of the TEMPLE OF HIS BODY."—Jno. 2: 19-21. I have purposely emphasized.

"Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you? If any man defile the temple of God, him shall God destroy: for the temple of God is holy, which temple ye are."—1 Cor. 3: 16, 17.

The quotations clearly elucidate, scripturally, "the temple of God;" Satan as the "son of perdition" obtaining power over man so that he uses him for his mouthpiece, and thereby proclaims man—Adam—"as God" and thus "sitteth in the temple of God, showing himself that he is God." In fact "the only God with whom we have to do." The emphasis is Mr. Young's.

While I am glad to know that some of the leading minds of the Utah church are today discarding the "Adam God" doctrine—a hopeful sign—it must, nevertheless, come home to them with force that to thus discard, is but a manifestation on their part of a belief of the unscripturalness of such doctrine, and forces home to the observant mind that in teaching such doctrine Mr. Young clearly portrayed a spiritual departure from the faith, and a consequent fulfillment of that passage of scripture—"denying the Lord that bought them." There was to "come a falling away first," that is, before such denial and false teaching should take place. And as Mr. Young is the man who, in this instance, acted, not in "Christ's stead" but in the stead of his Satanic majesty, he was certainly the very embodiment of such falling away, and all who followed such teaching, by reason of which the way of truth was evil spoken of, must also have gone in the ways of Balaam.

The Utah people then, have two horns of a dilemma, it making but little difference which they grasp. Whether it was in the endowment drama when Brigham set himself up as God, or whether in the teaching of Adam-God he sat "in the temple of God," he fulfilled the prediction of Paul just the same, and the awful consequence ensuing may be found in the statement, "Thou art the man!"

DENYING GOD.

But Peter says: "There shall be false teachers among you, who privily shall bring in damnable heresies, even denying the Lord that bought them."—2 Pet. 2: 1.

Paul says: "The man Christ Jesus, who gave himself a ransom for all, to be testified in due time."—1 Tim. 2: 5, 6.

Mr. Young says: "When the Virgin Mary conceived the child Jesus, the Father had begotten him in his own likeness. He was not begotten by the Holy Ghost. And who is the Father? He is the first of the human family."—Journal of Discourses, Vol. 1, p. 50.

On page 51 he says: "I could tell you much more about this; but were I to tell you the whole truth, blasphemy would be nothing to it, in the estimation of the superstitious and overrighteous of mankind."

Farther down the same page he says: "Now, remember, from this time forth and forever, that Jesus Christ was not begotten by the Holy Ghost."

Matthew 1: 18 says of Mary: "She was found with child of the Holy Ghost."

In verse 20: "That which is conceived in her is of the Holy Ghost." Likreas was the former day apostasy portrayed in the teachings of its adherents and fulfillers, so Mr. Young steps boastfully forth and denies the Lord that bought him. And while it may be urged that this never became a church doctrine by conference enactment, it must nevertheless be remembered that to "obey counsel" was one of the cardinal teachings, and that they then claimed, and still claim, Mr. Young as a prophet of God.

And this same prophet(?) was so positive on the matter that he further said on page 51 of Journal of Discourses, Vol. 1:

"Jesus, our elder brother, was begotten in the flesh by the same character that was in the garden of Eden, and who is our father in heaven. Now, let all who may hear these doctrines, pause before they make light of them, or treat them with indifference, for they will prove their salvation or damnation."

PRIVILEY.

But "damnable heresies" were to be brought in "privily," and this "son of perdition," through the agency of men, of course, was to be "who opposeth and exalteth himself above all that is called God, or that is worshipped." Turning to section 132 of the Utah edition of the Doctrine and Covenants, we find a purported revelation which came into existence PRIVILEY!

Brigham, on August 29, 1852, said:

"This revelation has been in my possession many years, and who has known it? None but those who should know it. I keep a patent lock on my desk, and there does not any thing leak out that should not."—Sup. Vol. 15, p. 31, Millennial Star; Advocate Vol. 1, No. 10, p. 104.

EXALTEETH.

Paragraph 19 of this revelation(?) brought in so "privily," says:

"And they shall pass by the angels and the gods which are set there, to their exaltation and glory in all things."

SECRETS, AND SECRET OATHS.

The Inspired Translation says:

"And Satan said unto Cain, Swear unto me by thy throat, and if thou tell it thou shalt die; and swear thy brethren by their heads, and by the living God, that they tell it not; for if they tell it they shall surely die."—Gen. 5: 14.

"And Akish did administer unto them the oaths that were given by them of old, who also sought power, which had been handed down even from Cain, who was a murderer from the beginning. And they were kept up by the power of the devil to administer these oaths unto the people, to keep them in darkness, to help such as sought power, to gain power, and to murder, and to plunder, and to lie, and to commit all manner of wickedness and whoredoms."—Book of Mormon, Ether 3: 12; large edition 3: 86.

"The high priest then asked Jesus of his disciples, and of his doctrine. Jesus answered him, I spake openly to the world; I ever taught in the synagogue, and in the temple, whither the Jews always resort; and in secret have I said nothing. Why askest thou me? Ask them which heard me, what I have said unto them: behold, they know what I said."—Jno. 18: 19-21.

"And again I say unto you, that the enemy in secret chambers seeketh your lives."—D. C. 88: 6.

In the endowments of "Brighamism" there are, or were, at least, four "grips" "sealed" by the "oath of secrecy"—two Aaronic and two Melchizedek. The first Aaronic was sealed by an oath of willingness to have the throat cut as a penalty for divulging! Then came the saving asunder and the letting out of the intestines as penalties for further revelations. In the enactment of this farce Elohim, Yahovah and Michael played a part in the drama in tones sufficiently loud to be heard by those receiving their "endowments."

Mr. Young, in his "Adam-God" sermon, inadvertently gave the key to this latter thought, when he said:

"It is true that the earth was organized by three distinct characters, namely, Elohim, Yahovah and Michael, these three forming a quorum, as in all heavenly bodies, and in organizing element, perfectly represented in the Deity, as Father, Son and Holy Ghost."—Journal of Discourses, Vol. 1, p. 51.

Of this doctrine of the kind of endowments received in Utah, Brigham seems to have been alarmed that somebody would give it away:

"Well, he gets his endowment, and what for? To go to California and reveal everything he can, and stir up wickedness and prepare himself for hell."—Journal of Discourses, Vol. 2, p. 144.

The only way in which one could "stir up wickedness" would be to reveal its evil practices. Truth and righteousness have no fear of revelation. Why did Mr. Young fear?

To undertake to deny these secret endowments, as some do, is to go back on Mr. Young. In his definition of the word endowment, he said:

"Let me give you the definition in brief: Your endowment is, to receive all those ordinances in the house of the Lord, which are necessary for you, after you have departed this life, to enable you to walk back to the presence of the Father, passing the angels who stand as sentinels, being enabled to give them the key words, the signs and tokens, pertaining to the holy priesthood, and gain your eternal exaltation in spite of earth and hell."—Journal of Discourses, Vol. 2, p. 31.

How different this endowment, with its secret oaths, its "key-words," its "signs and tokens," from that at Pentecost, and also at Kirtland. Of the former we read:

"And when the day of Pentecost was fully come, they were all with one accord in one place, and suddenly there came a sound from heaven, as of a rushing, mighty wind, and it filled all the house where they were sitting. And there appeared unto them cloven tongues, like as of fire, and it sat on each of them."—Acts 2: 1-3.

Of the latter we read:

"Bro. G. A. Smith arose, and began to prophesy, when a noise was heard like the sound of a rushing mighty wind, which filled the temple, and all the congregation simultaneously arose, being moved upon by an invisible power; many began to speak in tongues and prophesy; others saw glorious visions; and I beheld the temple was filled with angels, which I declared to the congregation. The people of the neighborhood came running together, * * * and were astonished at what was transpiring."—Millennial Star, Vol. 15, pp. 723-729.

Between these two accounts there is a harmonious agreement. No secret covenants, signs, grips, oaths, here; but outside people were, in both instances, permitted to come and view the event; while Brigham and his fellows practiced their endowments in secret.

But our Utah friends tell us that it was Joseph who introduced the same endowments they now practice. In that special meeting of August 8, 1844, in talking upon this point, Elder Phelps said:

"Elder Rigdon must know how he obtained his endowment, or what he has; for he has not received all, only a small part [emphasis mine]."—Times and Seasons, Vol. 5, p. 638.

In the trial of Rigdon, September 8, 1844, P. P. Pratt said:

"And the old revelations require us to build this temple, that we may receive our endowments, and all the ordinances and priesthood."—Times and Seasons Vol. 5, p. 658.

We emphasize the word "all" to show by their own witnesses who, speaking so soon after the death of the martyrs, testify that they had not, at that time, received "all."

Upon this point, and in a general epistle written by him, November 1, 1845, Mr. Young says:

"The font and other parts of the temple will be in readiness in a few days to commence the administration of the holy ordinances of endowment, for which the faithful have long diligently labored and fervently prayed."—Times and Seasons, Vol. 6, p. 1018. The emphasis is mine.

On April 6, 1845, Times and Seasons, Vol. 6, pp. 955 and 956, Mr. Young said:

"Joseph, in his life, did not receive everything connected with the doctrine redemption. Bro. Joseph did not tell them all things at once, consequently you may expect to hear and see many things you never thought of before."

If Joseph did not receive everything connected with the "doctrine of redemption" and the "new and everlasting covenant"—plural marriage is intended to give as celestial or full salvation, it might be interesting to explain how he could have received this latter and yet not receive all. Or did Mr. Young let the cat out of the bag here by inadvertently admitting a truth, that Joseph did not receive this so-called plural revelation?

But Mr. Young put an everlasting quietus upon the question of Joseph instituting the endowments of Utah.

On April 6, 1853, Mr. Young said:

"But what of the temple in Nauvoo. By the aid of the sword in one hand, and trowel and hammer in the other, with firearms at hand, and a strong band of police, and the blessings of heaven, the Saints, through hunger and thirst and weariness and watchings, so far completed the temple, despite the devices of the mob, that many received a small portion of their endowment, but we know of no one who received it in its fullness."—Journal of Discourses, Vol. 2, p. 82.

Ah! my Utah friends, the endowments of your present practice were not received till after Joseph's death, and then, only a "small portion" before you came to Utah. Yes, Mr. Young tells when their endowments commenced, and thereby brands himself and followers as those who departed from the faith, in thus introducing secret endowments into the church, and causing men and women to "swear by the throat."

Appropos of this latter thought, I was told by a woman in 1897 that they never taught blood atonement here. "Placing the thumb in a horizontal position and drawing it from one ear to the other, around the throat, and then holding it in a horizontal poise (being sure to stop the elbow on a line with where the cut in the right breast of the garment is worked)," I asked her to kindly explain what it meant. Pointing the index finger toward, and in rather close proximity to my face, she warned me to "look out" how I repeated the action. Ah! Why?

"THOU SHALT NOT KILL."

From the midst of Sinai's mount, and written by the finger of God, came to Israel of old, "Thou shalt not kill." A direct ignoring of this command was one of the evidences of the former day apostasy, as we have already seen. In 1831, Doctrine and Covenants 42: 7, the Lord saw fit to repeat to latter day Israel this command, "Thou shalt not kill." In the same section, paragraph 21, we are further told, "If any person among you shall kill, they shall be delivered up and dealt with according to the laws of the land."

On May 8, 1853, Brigham Young said:

"If you want to know what to do with a thief that you may find stealing, I say kill him on the spot, and never suffer him to commit another iniquity. That is what I expect I shall do, though never, in the days of my life, have I hurt a man with the palm of my hand. I never have hurt a person any other way except with this unruly member, my tongue. Notwithstanding this, if I caught a man stealing on my premises, I should be very apt to send him straight home, and that is what I wish every man to do, to put a stop to that abominable practice in the midst of this people. I know this appears hard, and throws a cold chill over on several traditions received by early education. I had a great many such feelings to contend with myself, and was as much of a sectarian in my notions as any other man, and as mild, perhaps, in my natural disposition, but I have trained myself to measure things by the line of justice, to estimate them by the rule of equity and truth, and not by the false tradition of the fathers, or the sympathies of the natural mind. If you will cause all those whom you know to be thieves, to be placed in a line before the mouth of one of our largest cannon, well loaded with chain shot, I will prove by my works whether I can mete out justice to such persons, or not. I would consider it just as much my duty to do that, as to baptize a man for the remission of his sins. That is a short discourse on thieves, I acknowledge, but I tell you the truth as it is in my heart."—Journal of Discourses, Vol. 1, pp. 108, 109.

"The Bible says, 'Have salt in yourselves;' we have it here, and if their comes along a villain who is worthy of it, we can salt him up in Salt Lake too. [Laughter!]"—Journal of Discourses, Vol. 2, p. 70.

"It was asked this morning how we could obtain redress for our wrongs; I will tell you how it could be done, we could take the same law they have taken, viz., mobocracy, and if any miserable scoundrels come here, cut their throats. (All the people said, Amen)."—Ibid., p. 311.

"THOU SHALT NOT LIE."

With equal force, from the midst of the thunderings of the mount, came this command; only to be reiterated by the voice of the stainless one. And then to the church in these last days came with equal force: "If he or she shall lie, he or she shall be delivered up unto the law of the land."

Mr. Young said:

"I have, many a time, in this stand, dared the world to produce as mean devils as we can. We can beat them at anything. We have the greatest and smoothest liars in the world, cunningest and most adroit thieves, and any other shade of character that you can mention. We can pick out elders in Israel right here, who can beat the world at gambling; who can handle the cards; can cut and shuffle them with the smoothest rogue on God's footstool. I can produce elders here who can shave their smartest shavers, and take their money from them. We can beat the world at any game. We can beat them because we have men here that live in the light of the Lord; that have the holy priesthood, and hold the keys of the kingdom of God."—Deseret News, Vol. 6, p. 291; Journal of Discourses, Vol. 4, p. 77; "Necessity for a Reorganization," p. 33.

BOAST NOT.

As early as 1831 the Lord warned the church against boasting. Against spirits they could not understand, they were not to bring a "railing accusation, that ye be not overcome; neither with boasting, nor rejoicing, lest ye be seized therewith."—Doctrine and Covenants 50: 7. The Lord reiterates the commandment in 1832, section 68, verse 11, "But a commandment I give you to them, that they shall not boast themselves of these things." Then, again in 1834, section 102, verse 7, "Talk not of judgment, neither boast of faith, nor of mighty works."

Mr. Young said:
"We can pray the best, preach the best, and sing the best. We are the best looking, and finest set of people on the face of the earth; and they can begin any game they please, and we are on hand, and can beat them at any thing they have a mind to begin. They may make sharp their two edged swords, and I will turn out the elders of Israel with greased feathers, and whip them to death. We are not to be beat."
—Ibid.

Adjudging these people by their history, it is not difficult to believe that Mr. Young told the truth of existing conditions. After the death of Joseph and up to the 29th day of August, 1852, they repeatedly, both verbally and historically, denied the practice of polygamy. After the latter date they then declared they had been in the practice of it since April 5, 1841; which time did they tell the truth, and which time its opposite? Since the issuance of the Manifesto they have repeatedly stated that they have obeyed the law. In A. D. 1890, proof is adduced, both by their pleadings and by the production of evidence that the leaders in the church are law-breakers. I fear they have broken the command, "Thou shalt not lie."

SHEDDING OF BLOOD FORBIDDEN.
"And surely, blood shall not be shed, only for meat, to save your lives; and the blood of every beast will I require at your hands. And whose sheddeth man's blood, by man shall his blood be shed; for man shall not shed the blood of man. For a commandment I give, that every man's brother shall preserve the life of man, for in mine own image have I made man."
—Gen. 9: 11-13. I. T.

As to the redemption of Zion, the Lord said as early as 1831:
"And if by purchase, behold, you are blessed; and if by blood, as you are forbidden to shed blood, lo, your enemies are upon you, and ye shall be scourged from city to city, and from synagogue to synagogue, and but few shall stand to receive an inheritance."
—D. & C. 68: 8.

Mr. Young said:
"All mankind love themselves, and let these principles be known by an individual, and he would be glad to have his blood shed. That would be loving themselves even unto an eternal exaltation. Will you love your brothers and sisters likewise, when they have committed a sin that cannot be atoned for without the shedding of blood? Will you love that man or woman well enough to shed their blood? That is what Jesus meant. He never told a man or woman to love their enemies in their wickedness. He never intended any such thing. * * * I have known a great many who have left this church, for whom there is no chance whatever for exaltation; but if their blood had been spilled, it would have been better for them. The wickedness and ignorance of the nation forbid this principle being in full force [then it must have been in partial force], but the time will come when the law of God will be in full force. This is loving our neighbors as ourselves; if he needs help, help him; and if he wants salvation, and it is necessary to spill his blood upon the ground in order that he may be saved, spill it. Any of you who understand the principles of eternity, if you have sinned a sin requiring the shedding of blood, except the sin unto death, would not be satisfied nor rest until your blood should be spilled, that you might gain that salvation that you desire. That is the way to love mankind."

—Journal of Discourses, Vol. 4, p. 220; Deseret News, Vol. 6, p. 397.

J. M. Grant said:
"I say there are men and women here that I would advise to go to the president immediately, and ask him to appoint a committee to attend to their case; and then let a place be selected, and let that committee shed their blood."
—Deseret News, Vol. 6, p. 235; "Necessity of a Reorganization," pp. 34, 35.

On the 8th of October, 1852, H. C. Kimball, in a public address, said:

"I would rather have my head laid upon a block, and severed from my shoulders, than ever make a proposal to any woman living upon the earth and marry her, unless I had permission from the chief shepherd. That tells it. I do not know that you can all understand me, but those who have their eyes open understand it. I only hint at these things, that you may be careful of the course you take."
—Journal of Discourses, Vol. 1, p. 207.

The emphasis, "That tells it," is Mr. K.'s own, and clearly reveals that in case one should marry without consulting the "chief shepherd"—Brigham—he stood a good show to have his head laid on a block and his blood shed.

As will be noted above, Mr. Young clearly teaches that there is a crime, the only atonement for which is the shedding of criminals' blood. Or, clearly, that the blood of such criminal will do more than that of Christ—will atone for a sin that Christ's blood cannot reach.

Paul, in writing to Timothy, said:
"For there is one God, and one mediator between God and men, the man Christ Jesus; who gave himself a ransom for all; to be testified in due time."
—1 Tim. 2: 5, 6.

In view of this, and that which is to follow, as well as much more that might be noted, it is little wonder that Mr. Young held the "living oracles" above the "written word."

John said:
"But if we walk in the light, as he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Jesus Christ His Son, cleanseth us from all sin."
—1 John 1: 7.

APOSTATES.

In the August, 1833, revelation, the Lord commands the forgiving of an enemy three times, even though such enemy fail to repent, "But if he trespass against thee the fourth time, thou shalt not forgive him, but shalt bring these testimonies before the Lord, and they shall not be blotted out until he repent and reward thee four-fold in all things wherewith he has transgressed against you; and if he do this thou shalt forgive him with all your heart."

Paul said:
"Brethren, if a man be overtaken in a fault, ye which are spiritual restore such an one in the spirit of meekness; considering thyself, lest thou also be tempted."
—Gal. 6: 1.

In a letter written to Jared Carter from Kirtland, April 17, 1833, the Seer said:

"As it respects an apostate, or one who has been cut off from the church, and wishes to come in again, the law of our church expressly says that such shall repent, and be baptized, and be admitted as at the first."
—Times and Seasons, Vol. 5, p. 752.

In a public address, March 27, 1853, Mr. Young said:

"When a man comes right out as an independent devil and says, 'Damn Mormonism and all the Mormons,' and is off with himself, not to Texas, but to California (you know it used to be to Texas), I say he is a gentleman by the side of a nasty sneaking apostate who is opposed to nothing but christianity. I say to the former, Go in peace, sir, go and prosper if you can. But we have got a set of spirits here worse than such a character. When I went from meeting last Sabbath my ears were saluted with an apostate crying in the streets here. I want to know if any of you who has got the spirit of 'Mormonism' in you, the spirit that Joseph and Hyrum had, or that we have here, would say, let us hear both sides of the question, let us listen and prove all things? [Prove all things; hold fast that which is good.] What do you want to prove? Do you want to prove that an old apostate who has been cut off from the church thirteen times for lying, is any thing worthy of notice? [I say not unto thee, until seven times; but, until seventy times seven.] I heard that a certain gentleman, a picture maker in this city, when the boys would have moved away the wagon in which this apostate was standing, became violent with them, saying, Let this man alone, these are Saints that are persecuting (sneeringly). We want such men to go to California or anywhere they choose; I say to those persons, You must not court persecution here, lest you get so much of it you will not know what to do with it. Do NOT court persecution. We have known Gladden Bishop for more than twenty years, and know him to be a poor, dirty cur. Here is Sister Vilate Kimball, Brother Heber's wife, has borne more from that man than any other woman could bear; but she won't bear it again. I say again, you Gladdenites, do not court persecution, or you will get more than you want, and it will come quicker than you want it. I say to you Bishops, do not allow them to preach in your wards. Who broke the roads to these valleys? Did this little nasty Smith and his wife? No, they stayed in St. Louis while we did it, peddling ribbons and kissing Gentiles. I know what they have done here—they have asked exorbitant prices for their nasty stinking ribbons. [Voices, 'that's true.'] We broke the roads to this country. Now, you Gladdenites, keep your tongues still, lest sudden destruction come upon you.

"I will tell you a dream that I had last night. I dreamed that I was in the midst of a people who were dressed in rags and tatters; they had turbans upon their heads, and these were also hanging in tatters. The rags were of many colors, and, when the people moved they were all in a motion. Their object in this appeared to be to attract attention. Said they to me, 'We are Mormons, Brother Brigham.' 'No, you are not,' I replied. 'But we have been,' said they; and they began to jump and caper about and dance, and their rags of many colors were all in motion to attract the attention of the people. I said, 'You are no Saints, you are a disgrace to them.' Said they, 'We have been Mormons.' Bye and bye along came some mobocrats, and they greeted them with 'How do you do, sir, I am happy to see you.' They kept on that way for an hour. I felt ashamed of them, for they were in my eyes a disgrace to Mormonism. Then I saw two ruffians whom I knew to be mobbers and murderers, and they crept into a bed where one of my wives and children were. I said, 'You that call yourselves brethren, tell me, is this the fashion among you, they are gentlemen.' With that I took my large bowie knife that I used to wear as a bosom pin in Nauvoo, and cut one of their throats from ear to ear, saying, 'Go to hell across lots.' The other one said, 'You dare not serve me so.' I instantly sprang at him, seized him by the hair of the head, and bringing him down, cut his throat and sent him after his comrade; then told them both, if they would behave themselves they should yet live, but if they did not I would unjoint their necks. At this I awoke.

"I say, rather than that apostates shall flourish here I will unsheath my bowie knife and conquer or die. [Great commotion in the congregation, and a simultaneous burst of feeling, assenting to the declaration.] Now, you nasty apostates, clear out, or judgment will be put to the line, and righteousness to the plummet. [Voices generally, 'Go it, go it.'] If you say it is right, raise your hands. [All hands up.] Let us call upon the Lord to assist us in this and every good work. * * * I felt to say this that I have said, though my throat is very sore, but I think the exercise has done it good. I feel to say to Jew and to Gentile, Let this people alone in the valleys of these mountains, or you will find that which you are not looking for. We are on the Lord's side and we have the tools to work with. But shall this people sink? No. * * * I want you to hear, Bishops, what I am about to tell you. Kick these men out of your wards."

HEAP TEACHERS.

"They shall heap to themselves teachers."
—Paul.
In the "Section on Priesthood," in speaking of the seventy, the Lord said:

"These seven presidents [emphasis mine] are to choose other seventy besides the first seventy, to whom they belong, and are to preside over them; and also other seventy until seven times seventy, if the labor in the vineyard requires it."
—Doc. & Cov. 104:43. (Utah 1890 ed., 107:93-96).

It will be noted that the Lord sets a limit—"until seven times seventy." This is the maximum as prescribed. The "seven presidents" were to choose the seventy. DON'T FORGET THIS.

During the October conference, October 8, 1844:

"Elder Geo. A. Smith moved that all in the elders' quorum under the age of 35 should be ordained into the seventies if they are in good standing and worthy, and will except [accept, J. W.] it. The motion was seconded and carried unanimously."
—Times and Seasons, Vol. 5, p. 605.

"Two o'clock p. m., Conference resumed business. Those presidents of the Seventies who were present and had not received an ordination to the presidency over the Seventies [they ORDAINED PRESIDENTS then], were called out and ordained under the hands of President Joseph Young and others. The remainder of the afternoon was spent in filling up the quorums of Seventies, and at the close eleven quorums were filled and properly organized, and about forty elders organized as a part of the twelfth quorum."

The Lord said the seven presidents were to do the choosing of seven quorums. Here we find G. A. Smith making a motion, promiscuous in its nature, and on the last page quoted from we have this:

"He [Brigham Young] also selected a number more to go into the seventies."

Considerable of a "heap" this! And if ever any teachers had "itching ears" and turned them unto "fables"—falsehood—these Utah fellows are the ones. Just think of the numerous falsehoods they have told about polygamy. And they are at it yet.

In the Deseret News, July 16, 1884, is found this statement of H. J. Grant, at the Snake River, Idaho, conference:

"He wanted to see the Bishops ordain the young boys to the office of deacon."

During the past summer I was much surprised to learn that boys of 12 to 15 had been ordained as priests. Some of them were experts at swearing, whether they were in their priestly duties or not.

FORBIDDING TO MARRY.

"Marriage is ordained of God unto man; wherefore it is lawful that he should have one wife, and they twain shall be one flesh, and all this that the earth might answer the end of its creation; and that it might be filled with the measure of man, according to his creation before the world was made."—Doc. & Cov. 49: 3.

"So God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him; male and female created he them."—Gen. 1: 27.

That this "creation" occurred "before the world was made," may be seen by turning to Genesis 2: 6, Inspired Translation:

"And I, the Lord God, had created all the children of men, and not yet a man to till the ground, for in heaven created I them."

Man's "measure" is found in the "lawful" thought "that he should have ONE WIFE;" and for this reason God, before the world was made, divided the sexes equally by creating them male and female, not male and females, neither males and female. The church in 1835 incorporated into the Doctrine and Covenants a "Marriage" section, from which we quote:

"According to the custom of all civilized nations, marriage is regulated by laws and ceremonies: therefore we believe that all marriages in this Church of Christ of Latter Day Saints should be solemnized in a public meeting, or feast prepared for that purpose. * * * And if there be no legal objections, he shall say, calling each by their names: You both mutually agree to be each other's companion, husband and WIFE, observing the LEGAL RIGHTS belonging to this condition [marriage]; that is, keeping yourselves WHOLLY FOR EACH OTHER, AND FROM ALL OTHERS during your lives. And when they have answered Yes, he shall pronounce them husband and WIFE. * * * All legal contracts of marriage made before a person is baptized into this church, should be held sacred and fulfilled. Inasmuch as this Church of Christ has been reproached with the CRIME of fornication and polygamy: We declare that we believe that one man should have ONE WIFE; and one woman but ONE HUSBAND, except in case of death, when either is at liberty to marry again."—Doc. & Cov. 111.

The "marriage" declaration is found in all of the Utah editions of this book down to 1876, when it was eliminated and the so-called "celestial" marriage revelation inserted in its stead.

There had come to the church the Book of Mormon, which contained this very significant declaration:

"For there shall not any man among you have save it be one wife: and concubines he shall have none."—Jacob 2: 6.

The marriage ordained of God, it will thus be seen, was monogamy. To introduce the plural wife doctrine will be a transgression of the one wife doctrine, and will be a "forbidding to marry" in harmony with God's law. So much is already in print on this question that it is not deemed necessary to burden this article along that line.

Who ever came nearer to bringing in "heresies" "privily" than did Mr. Young? On the 29th of August, 1852, he boasted-ly told of this "copy" of a purported revelation being in his desk from which nothing could "leak out that should not," this "desk" being fastened with a "patent lock." Yes, a fitting place that, to bring forth such a "heresy." Behind the snow-capped Wasatch range, a thousand miles westward from the frontier settlements, and surrounded by the barren, desolate, arid plains, fit type of the desolation that like the iron was to enter the souls of earth's fair daughters. Yes, there by the silent shores of "the Dead Sea of America," its parched and cheerless plains stretching far, far away toward the Occident, was publicly proclaimed that terrible doctrine that was yet to be to the confiding hearts like the poisoned arrow of desolation. And from these valleys ascended the cries of the "fair daughters" to the ears of the Lord of Sabaoth till, from His hiding place He appeared and made possible the overthrow of this loathsome, lecherous doctrine. In the language of another:

"Fit place for such a horrid birth! The surroundings, how suggestive of its shameful character! The barren plains could not be more desolate and waste than the lives of many who should feel the foul breath of polygamy! The dark, sullen waters of the sea were not more bitter than the anguish that should come to the soul because of polygamy! And the black, snow-clad mountains were but a fit symbol of the hard, unfeeling hearts of those who, in the exercise of un priestly and despotic power, should force upon the faith and life of confiding Saints the unnatural and unscriptural dogma of polygamy."—W. W. B.

Like the "Nicolaitanes" of old, so have the "Brighamites" of modern times entered into the practice of a doctrine that God said he hated. And as murder and secrecy followed the first polygamist Lamech, so do the "Mountain Meadows," the slaughter of the "Morrises" after a flag of truce had been raised, and the gaping throats of those who were blood-atoned, bear gruesome testimony of what has been done by these modern polygamists, who, in the true sense, have forbidden to marry!

CHURCH TO BE REJECTED.

"But I command you, all ye my saints, to build a house unto me; and I grant unto you a sufficient time to build a house unto me, and during this time [to have been thus specific, it must have been limited] your baptisms shall be acceptable unto me. But, behold, at the END of this appointment, your baptisms for your dead shall not be acceptable unto me; and if you do not these things at the end of the appointment, YE SHALL BE REJECTED AS A CHURCH WITH YOUR DEAD, saith the Lord your God." Revelation of 1841 (107: 10).

We have here, first, a command to build a house—God always commands when he wants a temple built. Second, a "sufficient time" in which to build. Third, a failure to "build" by the end of the appointment meant a rejection of the church, and that it was so understood in these early times, is seen by the following:

"The great God said through Joseph—build this temple; I give you a sufficient time to build it, and if you do not by the appointed time, you shall be rejected as a people with your dead."—P. P. Pratt at Rigdon's trial, Times and Seasons, Vol. 5, p. 652.

Nine of the apostles, B. Young, John Taylor and W. Woodruff being among them, signed the following:

"The building of the temple of the Lord in the city of Nauvoo is occupying the first place in the exertion and prayers of many of the Saints at the present time, knowing as they do, that if the building is not completed speedily, we shall be rejected as a church with our dead; for the Lord our God hath spoken it."—Millennial Star, Vol. 18, p. 807. The emphasis is theirs. Was the temple "completed?" Listen:

"If the congregation will give me their attention, I will detain them but a short time. Our history is too well known to render it necessary for me to enter into particulars on this subject this morning. Suffice it to say, to this congregation, that we shall attempt to build a temple to the name of our God. This has been attempted several times, but we have never yet had the privilege of COMPLETING AND ENJOYING ONE."—Journal of Discourses, Vol. 1, p. 277. (Emphasis mine.)

On January 1, 1877, in the temple at St. George, Utah, and reported in Deseret News, Mr. Young said:

"We that are here are enjoying a privilege that we have no knowledge of any other people enjoying since the days of Adam, that is, to have a temple completed, wherein all the ordinances of the house of God can be bestowed upon his people [ALL these "ordinances" then were not "bestowed" in Nauvoo]. * * * We built one in Nauvoo. I could pick out several before me now that were there when it was built, and know just how much was finished and what was done. It is true we left brethren there with instructions to finish it, and they got it nearly completed before it was burned; but the Saints did not enjoy it."—Advocate.

The Twelve said if the building was not "completed speedily," REJECTION would follow. Mr. Young's statement that they "got it nearly completed," shows that it was never "completed." The Lord said unless it were built He would reject the church. What conclusion can we reach?

But our Utah friends tell us that Daniel said the kingdom would not be "destroyed" nor given to other people. Do you not know, my friends, that bridges are often "rejected" and yet not "destroyed?" In after time as the result of repair they may become as secure as ever and yet have had the BAD TIMBERS REMOVED and others take their places. The "Brighamites" represented the bad timbers in the structure and the church remained "rejected—condemned—till these "timbers" were replaced. And those people, the "Josephites," who "remained" true and loyal and represented the strong "timbers," were the people who represented the "same" people, hence it was not given to "other" people.

That the Utah interpretation of Daniel's statement, Daniel 2: 44, does not hold good—that Daniel meant it would be impossible for such "falling away," may be seen in the fact that God did not so understand or he would not have said, "Ye shall be rejected as a church with your dead." That at least nine of the Twelve, as we have shown, did not so understand—that is, that the church could not be rejected. Joseph did not so understand and interpret Daniel's statement, as may be seen by the following statement as found in a letter to W. W. Phelps, dated Kirtland, January 11, 1833. Here it is:

"If Zion will not purify herself so as to be approved of in all things, in his sight, he will seek another people; for his work will go on until Israel is gathered, and they who will not hear his voice, must expect to feel his wrath. Let us say unto you, seek to purify yourselves, and also all the inhabitants of Zion, lest the Lord's anger be kindled to fierceness. Repent, repent, is the voice of God to Zion; and yet, strange as it may appear, [] yet it is true, mankind will persist in self-justification until all their iniquity is exposed, and their character past being redeemed, and that which is treasured up in their hearts be exposed to the gaze of mankind. [How true this, relative to your plural marriage, my Utah friends!] I say to you (and what I say to you, I say to all), hear the warning voice of God, lest Zion fall, and the Lord swear in his wrath the inhabitants of Zion shall not enter into my rest."—Times and Seasons, Vol. 5, p. 720.

And thus, from every way, there comes an answer to our Utah apologists by which every avenue of seeming escape is so effectually blocked, that in letters of fire there is written across your superstructure: WEIGHED IN THE BALANCE; POUND WANTING.

Over the evils this latter day apostasy has wrought we would fain have drawn the curtain of charity, but justice has pointed out the sterner necessity of a reproduction of the facts that of themselves fix the location of the guilt and place upon the guilty the consequences of their misdoings. If, as a result of the efforts thus put forth, there shall come to but one erring one the light of eternal truth and he be thus saved from the awful pitfalls incident to a departure from God and his kingdom, the labor required in the research necessary and the penning of the article, will be accounted as naught in comparison.

May the light of eternal truth dawn in upon the minds of the benighted ones and they thus be permitted to return to the old paths, that they may walk therein and find pasture to their souls, is my prayer.

General Church Recorder's Notice.

I again call attention to the fact that from some districts have not yet arrived the branch reports that are past due from them, and that should be sent to me at an early date, so that they may be put upon the general record of names before the rush that will arrive in February and March. I mention as follows upon the date that I write this, namely, January 8, 1900:

For several years I have received no correction of records of the branches in the Manchester district, England, but am now glad to say that the prospects are favorable that such will be sent by brethren who appear to have taken up the work there.

I call the attention of the officers of the Birmingham, London and Sheffield districts that I hope they will send early their complete summaries of all gains and losses, ordinations and marriages, for 1899.

Also the reports from Eastern and Western Wales need attention.

Probably the reports from the Sydney and Victoria districts, Australia, may be on their way across the sea before this reaches them. If not this will be too late.

From Canada there have not yet come the reports for October of the Chatham district.

No reports of branches in Southern California have arrived since those for October, 1899, and not from Northern California since March, 1899. The October reports from Central California (for 1899) are due. Whether Northern California held a conference this year in October I do not know.

Idaho held conferences in May and November, 1899, and branch reports have not arrived from either.

Reports have not been received from the following districts that held conferences in September, 1899, namely: Kewanee, Southern Nebraska, and New York.

No reports yet from the following districts which held conferences in COMMENTATORY.

I have just concluded a reading of Bro. Albert Haws' work, "Sabbatarian Theories a Delusion." It is rightly named and an excellent work, admirable for its clear and direct manner. It leaves Sabbatarianism in the plight the man was who had neither "lock, stock nor barrel" to his gun.

All ye who read, do yourselves good service in procuring a copy of A. Haws, 923 Third St., Oakland, California, at 25 cents.

She was baptized in Minnesota in 1875, by T. W. Smith, and continued firm in the gospel to the end.

BLIGHT OF A MORMON'S CURSE.

Peoria, Ill., January 3.—A strange story comes from Salt Lake City to the effect that former Gov. Ford, of Illinois, died in the most abject poverty, with the bones of his body literally protruding from his body, and that this deplorable end of one of Illinois' best known statesmen, was directly due to curses pronounced upon him by the great Mormon prophet, Joseph Smith.

The fact that Ford was governor of Illinois during the Mormon war and at the time of Smith's assassination, gave a certain credence to the rumor. After leaving his office as governor, Mr. Ford moved to this city, and his body now lies buried at Springdale Cemetery. Careful investigation today practically substantiates the claims of the western Mormons. It is true that Governor Ford, as the representative of the law which was hounding their sect, incurred the deadly enmity of the Mormons and their leader and prophet. Old residents of this city also state that they can recall an old rumor of a curse against Gov. Ford, and they talk at length of the conditions surrounding his death and the end of his family.

Gov. Ford was a brilliant man of the highest principles, and was eminently successful as a lawyer. But after the expiration of his term of office, and soon after the alleged curse was pronounced, he ceased to be as prosperous as formerly. He came to Peoria and established a practice here, but misfortune followed him, his property dwindled away, and then, as a final blow, illness intervened and cut short a brilliant career. At the time of Mrs. Ford's death the family had been reduced to poverty, and the two children had been adopted by friends who could afford to educate them. Ex-Gov. Ford survived his wife only a few years and the discomforts of poverty closed thickly about him. He tasted the full bitterness of illness, destitution and dependence, and died under the most deplorable conditions.

The son, Tom, who had been adopted by a resident of this city, Thomas Moore by name, had embarked on a life career which promised to be prosperous, when he was suddenly called west on business. He was crossing the plains on horseback when he fell in with a vigilance committee looking for a horse-thief and hungry for its prey. The stolen stock had been found in the vicinity of the spot where they encountered Ford, and they accused him of the theft. He indignantly denied the charge, and said he was Tom Moore, of Peoria. Upon further questioning, however, he unluckily mentioned that he was a son of ex-Gov. Ford, of Illinois, where, upon the leader exclaimed: "An honest man never travels under two names," and the unfortunate young Ford was swung to the nearest tree.

The daughter of Gov. Ford has drifted entirely out of sight of the world, and no one knows what has become of her. And this great tragedy of life and death in the family of the Fords, the Mormons claim, is the result of the curse of their prophet.—St. Louis Globe Democrat, Jan. 4, 1900.

We have noticed the above statements going the rounds of the daily press of the country; but emanating, as it does, from Salt Lake, Utah, we have set it down as being the result of a spirit of "hero" worship, which seems to pervade the dominant church in that state. We are free to express that whatever misfortunes may have befallen ex-Governor Ford and family, and whatever connection such misfortunes may have had with the duplicity of his conduct with regard to Joseph and Hyrum Smith in betraying them into the hands of their enemies by which their lives were sacrificed, and their innocent blood was shed, we do not believe that either of the martyrs, Joseph or Hyrum Smith, ever opened their lips in a cursing upon any one connected with their murder. That is not the spirit of the martyr for Christ—never.

When our blessed Lord was upon the cross suffering innocently—a martyr to the bigotry and devilish persecution of wicked men—the only cry which escaped his lips with regard to his persecutors was, "Father, forgive them, they know not what they do."

When the martyr Stephen was stoned, he did not curse nor malign his enemies, but "he knelt down, and cried with a loud voice, 'Lord, lay not this sin to their charge;' these were the very last words he said according to the record (Acts 7: 60), for it states, "And when he had said this, he fell asleep."

This is the spirit which the latter day martyrs possessed, and Joseph Smith declared, when he was being taken to the confinement in which his life was so soon to be taken, "I go as a lamb to the slaughter; but I am as calm as a summer's morning; I have a conscience void of offense toward God, and toward all men. I SHALL DIE INNOCENT, AND IT SHALL YET BE SAID OF ME, HE WAS MURDERED IN COLD BLOOD."

The same morning, after his brother Hyrum had made ready to go, he read the following paragraph, near the close of the fifth chapter of Ether in the Book of Mormon, and turned down the leaf upon it:

And it came to pass that I prayed unto the Lord that he would give unto the Gentiles grace that they might have charity. And it came to pass that the Lord said unto me, if they have not charity, it mattereth not unto thee, thou hast been faithful; wherefore thy garments are clean. And because thou hast seen thy weakness, thou shalt be made strong, even unto the sitting down in the place which I have prepared in the mansions of my Father. And now, I, Moroni, bid farewell unto the Gentiles; yea, and also unto my brethren whom I love, until we shall meet before the judgment seat of Christ, where all men shall know that my garments are not spotted with your blood.—D. & C. 113: 4, 5.

Ah, who can portray the emotions of that man of God as he read those lines on that eventful morning; the conviction being borne in upon his spirit that those memorable words of his fellow prophet Moroni were to be made so applicable to his own case, and that the same experience was to be his, to bid adieu to both his enemies, and those who were dear to his soul. It was in this spirit he, with his brother Hyrum, surrendered themselves into the hands of their enemies, committing all they held dear into the hands of their heavenly Father until the judgment shall declare their justification. In this, as in all his ministerial work, Joseph Smith manifested the Spirit of the Master, and even in his bitterest trials, no spirit of malediction was ever witnessed so far as the records attest. So we cannot accept the Utah statement in this matter; and while the calamities indicated may have followed ex-Governor Ford and his family, and while it is possible it may have been in the nature of a judgment upon them for his unlawful acts, we do not believe that it was because Joseph Smith uttered a curse against them, or any one else. It would have been contrary to the Spirit of Christ; contrary to the teachings of Him who said, "bless and curse not;" and contrary to the Spirit which dominated Joseph Smith when he went to his martyrdom.

HIS NEW POLYGAMY MANIFESTO.

Salt Lake, Utah, Jan. 3.—The Deseret News, the official organ of the Mormon church, publishes a declaration from Lorenzo Snow, president of the Mormon church, against polygamy. He says in accordance with the manifesto adopted October 6, 1890: "The church has positively abandoned the practice of polygamy, or the solemnization of plural marriages, in this and every other state, and no member or officer thereof, has any authority whatever to perform a plural marriage or enter into such a relation. Nor does the church advise or encourage unlawful cohabitation on the part of any of its members.

"If, therefore, any member disobeys the law, either as to polygamy or unlawful cohabitation, he must bear his own burden, or, in other words, be answerable to the tribunals of the land for his action pertaining thereto."—The Kansas City Star, January 9.

Temporizing again. "The church has positively abandoned the practice of polygamy [the having of a plurality of wives or husbands at the same time; usually the marriage of a man to more than one woman, or the practice of having several wives at the same time.—Webster] and the solemnization of plural marriages." This seems to indicate precisely what was uttered in the first manifesto; those who are already in that condition, are not affected, but no more must enter the plural condition, unless they are willing to bear the consequences should they be arrested. But their is no specific instruction that those who have a number of wives (?) and are living with them as such, shall at once abandon that practice; provide for the "plurals" and their families, and, like every other law abiding man, take his lawful wife and family and live with them only. If President Snow dared to give that kind of instruction he would have a storm about his ears; it is easier and more convenient to evade and make a pretense of obeying the laws of the land.

"Nor does the church advise or encourage unlawful cohabitation on the part of any of its members." O, certainly not. But, beloved, where does the venerable president distinctly forbid such a practice, on penalty of trial and expulsion from the church, as God said they should be, in Doctrine and Covenants 42: 7, 22—(Utah edition 42: 22-26, 30-83). Simply because he dare not. They don't want to give up this practice; they are weak(?) in the faith if they do; and if they can make the unwary believe they are sincere in their protestations of good faith, it is all right. But a straightforward, manly avowal of the wrongfulness of this abomination, and a command for every one to cease such relations, upon penalty of expulsion from the church, coupled with a few church trials against offenders such as Congressman (?) B. H. Roberts et al., would go farther to convince the nation of their sincerity than a houseful of "Manifestos" and "protestations;" and until this action is forthcoming, all such documents as quoted above will be received with skepticism and incredulity in the light of recent past experiences.

BRO. L. C. DONALDSON, River-ton, Iowa, requests the prayers of the Saints and Prayer Unions for his son, Bro. Lorenzo D. Donaldson, F Company, 32d U S. Regulars, who is sick in the field hospital at Angeles, Philippine Islands, through exposure in rain and mud. Bro. Donaldson says the Saints hold regular meetings, and one sister was recently baptized by Bro. James Comstock.

ARTICLES and sermons on gospel subjects from the ministry are always acceptable, and we trust the brethren will take advantage of this opportunity to preach to and teach audiences whom their voices would often fail to reach if they had them all in their presence. An audience of 6000 to 8000 or more people, such as the ENSIGN reaches, should claim the earnest and appreciative efforts of our ministry, and we trust they will take frequent advantages of the opportunity.

It is reported under date of January 4th that thirteen villages in the Achalkalak district of Russia (Transcaucasia) have been damaged by earthquake shocks, six of which villages were destroyed and 800 bodies have already been recovered. Transcaucasia lies beyond the Caucasus mountains in Asia. Between the Black and Caspian seas. Tiflis, the capitol, is a city of 160,000 inhabitants and is said to be 1400 years old. Mount Ararat, known in Scripture history as the resting place of Noah's Ark, is on the southern boundary of this region.

THE B. H. ROBERTS' case seems to be at a standstill just now. The committee has closed its investigations, and, presumably, are preparing their report for presentation to Congress. There is no doubt that it will be against allowing Elder Roberts to even take the oath of office, as some have favored, preceding an action for his expulsion. Personally, we are of the opinion that this is the proper thing to do. Elder Roberts should not even be recognized as a congressman-elect. Neither he nor any other lawbreaker should be permitted to a seat in the Congress of the United States, and all such should have the credentials which they present declared irregular, after a canvass of the facts in the case, as has been done in that of Elder Roberts. The outcome will probably be that Elder Roberts will return to his home, another election will be called, another member of the same church will be elected, who is not a polygamist or otherwise lawbreaker, and he will be seated without a question, thus contradicting Elder Roberts' plea that the action of Congress is against a "Mormon." It is polygamy against which all objection and action in this case has been urged.

GENERAL CHURCH NEWS.

INDEPENDENCE.

Sr. Ward, formerly of Lamoni, has bought the Robert Bishop property, near Bishop Hilliard's, on Grand avenue, and now occupies it.

Sr. Drown, her son Alma and daughter, Orpha Hayward, have moved into the cottage next Sr. Weeks, opposite Mr. Lafferty on Clark street.

Bro. R. J. Parker has moved his family into his new house, next to Bro. J. G. Torrence and Bro. J. C. Foss properties, and is making a nice home of it.

Bro. B. J. Scott's new house, next to Mr. Queir's, and near Bro. J. G. Torrence's property, is showing up; if the weather continues favorable it will soon be enclosed.

Bro. Robert Kemp's house, next to Bro. Thomas Crick's (Sr. Salyard's former home), is nearly all completed outside, and the plasterers are at it on the inside. It will not be long before it is ready to occupy.

Sr. A. L. Newton and children, who have been spending the holidays with home folks, Bro. and Sr. J. A. Robinson, Sr., and family, returned to their home at Cove, Arkansas, Saturday of last week. Sr. Newton had a severe attack of tonsillitis the latter part of her visit, and was barely able to be up when she started home, and advices received since her arrival there state she is not much improved.

Bro. K. May, whose indisposition was mentioned last week, continued quite ill until Saturday of last week when relief was granted under administration, and he was enabled to testify in the Saints' meeting at the church Sunday afternoon, and is progressing favorably to a return to usual health. Any protracted disabling of this brother would be seriously felt in more than one direction; he is a useful man in the Lord's work, and all the Saints are thankful to hear of his recovery from this attack.

A nephew of Bro. P. Peterson, bearing the same name, on his way home to Hinckley, Utah, from a two years mission in Kentucky, stopped off for a visit with the family of Bro. Peterson over Sunday, and with them attended services at the stone church Sunday, departing on his journey Monday morning. He had quite a good many things to think about on his way if he was so inclined. He did not get away without an effort being made to show him his error in adhering to the Brighamite faith, which, we hope, may in time bear fruit.

Bro. Geo. Bartholomew is exhibiting his trained or educated horses at Armory hall, corner Troost avenue and 12th streets, Kansas City, every evening at 8:15, with matinees Wednesday and Saturday afternoons at 2:30 p. m. This week special rates have been made and the regular 30 cent tickets good for admission at any performance may be had of Jay Cleveland at the postoffice news stand for 10 cents. It is truly a wonderful as well as instructive sight to see how perfectly these noble animals understand and obey Bro. Bartholomew, and many of the Saints have enjoyed the exhibition since the opening the first of the year. Sunday was bright, balmy and springlike. 300 joined in the exercises of the Sunday School, and at 11 o'clock the lower auditorium of the church was crowded; Bro. W. T. Bozarth preached a very interesting and instructive discourse on the excellencies of the latter day work as compared with the efforts many have put forth in church building. At night Bro. J. A. Robinson expatiated on the demerits of the "twin relic" and gave reasons why Joseph Smith could never have been the author or revealer of the polygamic revelation so-called. The afternoon service was a happyfying and encouraging season of rejoicing; it was good to be there.

Tuesday evening being the fifth anniversary of the wedding of Bro. Orville and Sr. Belle Robinson James, about seventy-five of their friends massed at Bro. J. A. Robinson's, and about eight o'clock stormed the James citadel. The cozy little cottage home of the "victims" was soon blazing with light and cheer, and a merry time was enjoyed by all until the quick flight of time gave warning of the near approach of the midnight hour, when the invading host withdrew, and quietness once more reigned supreme. Vocal and instrumental music, recitation and anecdote filled up the hours so pleasantly that they passed all too quickly. The discussing of the dainty refreshments served was an incident that received no small share of commendation and attention from the invaders. Two nice chairs, some pictures, wooden spoons and other useful articles appropriate for the occasion were left as testimonials of the good wishes and esteem in which the estimable bride and groom are held by those participating in this visit, and this feeling is by no means confined to church circles, but abounds wherever their acquaintance extends. May the future hold in store many happy returns of their anniversary.

LAMONI, IOWA.

Elder Frank Cochran proclaimed the gospel news at Davis City on Sunday 7th.

Elder Stedman departed to his missionfield in Minnesota. X A controversy was held at the brick church last week between Elders Hanson and Bickmore and Heman C. Smith about the differences between the Utah church and the Reorganization.

President Joseph Smith spoke at 11 a. m. Sunday, 14th, on the marriage question. A good prayer and testimony meeting was held in the afternoon conducted by Brn. M. J. Danielson, A. K. Anderson and H. N. Snively. At night the gospel law was expounded at the Saints' church by Bishop E. L. Kelley.

The Religio and the week night prayer meetings were dispensed with last week on account of the discussion.

The Daughters of Zion met on Friday p. m. 15th.

A LAMONIAN.

ST. JOSEPH, MISSOURI.

Our usual services were held yesterday with a marked increase in attendance. About one hundred and fifty were present at the evening prayer meeting.

Last Tuesday evening the Religions met to elect officers for the ensuing six months, the following were chosen: John A. Gardner, president; Ida Pearson, vice president; Arthur Smith, secretary; Roy Smith, librarian; Mabel Brooks, treasurer; Pearl Smith, chorister; Josie Islieb, organist. Program, relief, and social committees were appointed by the president. The response to roll call was to answer the question, "Am I willing to stand by the Religio the coming year?"

The Ladies' Aid Society held their first regular meeting last Thursday; the outlook is encouraging.

Bro. G. J. Whitehead is reported some better this morning, though he is still very weak.

Bro. John Dempsey's little six year old son, Freddy, died Tuesday morning, of membranous croup. Funeral occurred Wednesday afternoon at the house, sermon by Elder H. O. Smith.

Bro. and Sr. J. L. Bear's two little children are very sick with diphtheria.

Bro. Marcus Shaw has been quite ill this week, but is better now.

A little daughter was born to Bro. Cyril C. and Iola Randall, January 5, 1900.

GRACE L. KRAHL.

January 26.

CHILGAGO, ILLINOIS.

Meet at 716 Van Buren Street, corner Winchester. Sunday School 1:30 p. m. Testimony at 2:45. Preaching at 7:45 p. m. every Sunday.

Our general missionary in charge, Bro. J. H. Lake, is again welcomed to our midst and showed his spiritual and physical vitality yesterday by preaching three times and traveling about fourteen miles by street railway. He presented a new and interesting line of thought last evening, comparing the first advent of Christ, the human and divine sides and his treatment by the world, with the second coming of the "body of Christ"—the church. The cases are parallel in many respects. The discourse was interesting. Bro. Lake preached the morning sermon at the Lang mission, teaching the necessity of honoring the law and keeping in the golden medium, away from either extreme.

At a business meeting Saturday night it was unanimously decided to remove the headquarters of the branch to the west side. The move will be made this week and all the preparation made for a grand opening on next Sunday at 2:45 p. m. The Sunday School will convene at 1:30 p. m. The workers are requested to meet an hour earlier to arrange the work in the new quarters. Bro. J. H. Lake will be present and preach the opening sermon. A protracted effort will continue indefinitely, sustained by the missionary and local forces of the ministry. Let all the Saints rally and make this a memorable event. Remember the time—Sunday School at 1:30; opening service at 2:45; Religio at 6; preaching at 7:45 p. m., and each night during the week.

The Religio held their business meeting on Wednesday for election of officers, which resulted in the election of James F. Keir as president; J. M. Terry, Jr., vice president; Sr. Mamie Clark, secretary; Sr. Della Braidwood, organist; Sr. Mabel Sanderson, treasurer, with other committees peculiar to the organization. There has been some excellent work done by this organization in the Book of Mormon study. We have listened to some able papers and lectures on the evidences of the divinity of that work. We bid them speed and success in their new home. The evident reason for a change in the presidency was the expected removal from the city of Sr. Marie Clark, whose occupancy has been both efficient and satisfactory.

Arrangements have been made for the opening of a new mission at 7124 Stony Island avenue on Thursday night of this week. The object of this mission is to reach the world, as but few Saints live in that neighborhood. We will have more to say of this next week.

Sr. Wm. Strange is very ill, for whom prayer is asked. She is a good Saint, and worthy.

We preached for Bro. Graves on Friday night with excellent liberty to those present. His meetings continue with fair attendance. Bro. George is wonderfully in earnest and is worthy of encouragement by the Saints. His humility is commendable. His wife is constantly afflicted and almost an invalid.

For peace and unity and active work I am still in the battle.

J. M. TERRY.

FIRST KANSAS CITY BRANCH.

Chapel, 2321 Vabash avenue. Take 15th street line to Prospect Ave., transfer to Prospect, get off at 24th, and walk one block west or to the right hand. Time of meetings: Sunday School at 9:30, preaching at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m., social service at 12:30 p. m. Prayer meeting, Wednesday evening at 7:30; Religio, Friday evening at 8. Strangers are cordially invited.

Weather unusually fine for the time of year; many came to the services without overcoats or wraps.

Each Sunday seems to show an increasing interest in the Sunday School, the primary pupils now requiring three teachers. A movement is on foot to secure children's chairs for them; and the illustrated cards issued by the Herald office will be an added assistance. The Sunday School work is surely progressing.

Elder D. F. Winn preached an excellent sermon at 11 a. m. to a goodly congregation. The attendance at the social service was good and the interest fair. Bro. Walter Smith preached in the evening. His sermons are always interesting and beneficial.

At the election of officers for the Religio the following selection was made: Bro. Walter Smith, president; Bro. Will Bozarth, vice president; Sr. M. Eunice Winn, secretary; Sr. Jessie Briner, treasurer, and Bro. Robt. Winn, librarian.

Good attendance and good interest in this branch of church work is noted.

SECOND KANSAS CITY BRANCH. Corner Sixteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue. Sunday School 9:30 a. m., preaching 11 a. m., prayer meeting 2:30 p. m., preaching 7:30 p. m.

The Sunday School was well attended, and a new determination to extend its influence is manifest. A Doctrine and Covenants class was established last Sunday, Bro. Alex. McIntosh teacher. Bro. Thomas Newton discoursed at the eleven o'clock service. The afternoon prayer meeting was unusually well attended. Elder F. C. Warnyk, of Argentine, spoke at the evening meeting.

Elder M. B. Williams preached in the school-house at Merriam, Kansas, where he has been laboring alternate Sundays. Bro. Williams reports "small congregation, interest good, strangers are coming, and prospects are bright."

We are enjoying mild, unseasonable weather. Report says there is considerable small-pox around.

The Utah elders advertise a conference at the Irish-American Hall, Oak street, between 17th and 18th on February 2d and 4th.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA.

Services at Golden West Hall, 320 Post street, every Sunday. Sunday School 10 a. m., preaching 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.; prayer meeting first Sunday of each month at 12:15 noon. Elder C. A. Parkin presiding elder, residence 3010 16th street.

Last Wednesday evening our branch business meeting was held at the residence of J. A. Saxe, 1911 Mission street. Among other things attended to was the election of our branch officers as follows: Charles A. Parkin, president; J. A. Saxe and Roy Davis, priests; John Lawn, Edgar Smith and ————, Baislan, teachers; Chas. Kaighin, Hawley and Carlson, deacons; Chas. Kaighin, financial secretary; John Lawn, clerk; Chas. Wyatt, organist; Ella Lytle, chorister.

Friday night was prayer meeting night at the Religio. A very good meeting was held at the residence of Bro. Parkin, 3364 17th street. It was much enjoyed by all present.

The time for holding our district conference has been changed to February 9th, at Golden West hall, 320 Post street, this city.

Sunday was a very spiritual day with us at all our services. The Sunday School was very interesting and instructive. We had a good sermon from Bro. Parkin at 11 o'clock, and a very fine prayer meeting at noon. The sacrament was administered and nearly all present took part in the services. There were twenty-five testimonies borne, five prayers offered and eight hymns sung. The Spirit was present in power. In the evening Bro. J. A. Saxe gave us a good cheering discourse.

We had with us today Bro. Joehnk and Roberts from Sacramento; Bro. McQuade from Garden Grove branch and quite a number of strangers. We hope that such good meetings on the first Sunday of the year is a good omen for our branch, and the Saints generally.

PROVIDENCE, RHODE ISLAND.

The local Prayer Union have elected the following officers for 1900: Sr. Nellie Bond, president; Sr. Mary B. Johnson, vice-president; Sr. Mabel Gondolf, secretary and treasurer. They held a very interesting and spiritual session at the home of Sr. Cheddell on Althea street last Thursday afternoon.

The Providence Zion's Religion held a profitable session at the home of Sr. Edith Perry on Frances street last Tuesday evening. A discussion was had on the Anglo-Boer war. Debates on current and important questions ought to increase attendance.

The district conference will convene at Fall River, February 10th, next.

Bro. A. B. Pierce was the guest of Bro. Wallace Wetmore and family, of Boston, over Christmastide. He had the pleasure of renewing the acquaintance of Bro. John Wetmore, who has been blind for years. In prayer with him there was mutual comfort and consolation received. Bro. and Sr. Steffe called on him recently and dispensed kindly cheer. Perhaps if others would do likewise, it would help cheer one who is shut out from the beauties of this world. The question, "When saw we thee an hungered, or athirst, or a stranger, or naked, or sick," etc., "and did not minister unto thee?" will then be needless.

LETTER DEPARTMENT.

BALDWIN, Md. Jan. 9.

Editor Ensign:—"Maryland, my Maryland." Well, here I am preaching to the natives in the Saints' chapel, near a beautiful little stream of water called the "Big Elk," although the only big thing about it is its name. We have been holding services for about a week, and a few seem to be interested, but there ought to be more; however, we can only labor and wait.

Bro. Daniel Carter is the president of the branch here and is energetic and trying to do all he can to get the work moving. We are trying to get new openings near here, and may succeed this week and start on new ground.

The past year has been a year of trial, some disappointments and many vexatious things, but withal there is the satisfaction of having tried to do what I could under the circumstances. I was called from my field of labor three times; once on account of my own health, twice by death in the family. And when I left home the first of last November it was with great reluctance, and a nameless fear of what might come next. Still we are working along, hoping, praying, rejoicing, sorrowing. I never felt any great pleasure in preaching to empty seats, especially when there were enough Saints in town to comfortably fill the hall or church, and I have often wished that I was not so quick to notice when there were absent ones from the service.

Then, people are affected so peculiarly now, I often wonder if human nature is undergoing a change. For instance, I remember when Annie and I were young (something less than a hundred years ago), we were delighted to attend all the services held by the church, and I certainly felt more spiritual than I did without her company. But somehow the young people of our day have got ahead of those who gave excuse in the parable by the Savior, and some of them do not wait to get married before saying, "I have married a wife, and therefore I cannot come."

Did you ever notice how easy it was to find an excuse when we really wanted to find one? One has a back ache, or headache, or some kind of an ache, or is sleepy and tired. What makes you tired? O, I don't know, I was up late last night. How late? O, I don't know, quite late. What kept you up? O, don't ask me; why-why-I had company. Yes, they have company and sit up three and four times a week until two and three o'clock in the morning, and then wonder why they feel so languid and sleepy and cross. O, well, says one, they are young, let it go. Yes, lock the barn after the horse is stolen.

There is one thing at least that has not changed regarding human kind—they are just as susceptible to evil influences now as they have ever been, and the purest, grandest characters fall as readily before the tempter as do those of less noble hearts and lives. May God help us to seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness that all necessary things may be added unto us.

CHESCO, Iowa, Jan. 15.

Editor Ensign:—Leaving home in November, soon after my return from Illinois, I went, by request, to Appleton to baptize a young lady, the daughter of Bro. and Sr. Joseph Dreyer, who reside in that city; the result of my visit was better than I anticipated, for, instead of one, I found three honest hearted ones willing to become obedient to the gospel.

From Appleton I dropped down to our capital city, Madison, preached a few sermons there, and went from there north to Valley Junction to attend our Northern Wisconsin district conference. I was very agreeably surprised there by meeting with several of the brethren from the further north, and as I stepped off the train and walked along the platform, saw the smiling faces of Bro. Closson, Hutchison, Shedd, Weeks—well, I won't try to name them all, as they might think I was getting personal; but I also remember seeing our missionary, W. A. McDowell, standing by the side of the Northern district president, A. L. Whiteaker, each with a smile on their face as though they anticipated something pleasant near at hand; nor were we mistaken, for a call, "come on, boys, I expect supper is ready," confirmed our former convictions.

On the following day (Saturday) other arrivals increased the number of Saints gathered to receive and enjoy such blessings as God might be pleased to give to those who came to worship him; Bro. Frank Hackett and Oliver McDowell, from North Freedom, being among the later arrivals. The conference was a spiritual one, and we believe all who attended were benefited.

While there we learned from Bro. McDowell that one, Bro. S. P. Carpenter, who lives at Tomahawk, Lincoln county, was anxious for missionary work in his town, so it was arranged that the writer should respond to the call; and without sending Bro. Carpenter any warning of an intended visit, I took early morning train for Tomahawk, reaching there about 10:30 a. m., and upon starting out to find the residence of Bro. C. was greeted with the cheerful information that both Bro. and Sr. Carpenter were out of town. Nevertheless, we found his pleasant home, and were very agreeably surprised to be met at the door by our sister of former acquaintance, Laura E. Fuller. The outcome of our visit there was, Bro. and Sr. Carpenter not being far away, were soon apprised of our presence, and returned, and a message sent to W. A. McDowell which brought him on the field. The First Baptist church was secured and services announced, and we began to declare the angel message. Unfortunately, however, we were here just in the midst of the holiday festivities, consequently our audiences were so small we did not think it advisable to continue; so after one week we closed our effort there with a promise to return sometime during the coming season.

Bro. McDowell went home to eat his Christmas turkey, and the writer to Appleton, thence to Madison and Evansville, and on Thursday evening, January 4th, took train for Cresco, Iowa, to answer an invitation of long standing to visit here. This invitation came from Sr. Sarah K. Foye, who lives in this place, and who has long been wishing and waiting for some one to come here and tell the gospel story.

Soon after arriving, her husband, Mr. W. W. Foye, who, by the way, is an old comrade of the G. A. R., procured the use of court house hall, and we posted notices for preaching for Sunday afternoon and evening, also for evening services during the week. But no sooner are we here and our presence known, than the churches are aroused to a wonderful activity, and are soon running full blast each evening with union prayer meetings, preaching, etc., and why forsooth, the Mormons are come to town.

On Monday I was joined by Bro. L. E. Hills, of Marion, this state, and though we hand billed the town and thoroughly advertised our services, yet our efforts were unavailing, and we only had the opportunity to preach a few sermons to very small audiences. Bro. Hills and myself start this p. m. for Arlington, and will try to occupy in one or two union churches in that vicinity, where we hope to get a hearing.

I only expect to remain in Iowa a few weeks, then go into Northern Illinois to visit Peccaunica and Rockford, and thence back to the Badger state.

LAMONI, Iowa, Jan. 5.

Editor Ensign:—Last October while returning from my field of labor I had to travel almost two days facing a cold rain, from which I took cold, and was down with the rheumatism for some time. Am not free from pain yet, but able to be at work most of the time.

Quite a number of the Saints in the Clinton district have written me wanting to know when I could be with them. In answer I would say I had intended to be back to my field by the last of December, but sickness and other matters have prevented. Should any of the Saints find the need of special work to be done, let me know and I will try and have some of the missionaries call on you, if I find I cannot be there. I am sorry that I have been so unfortunate that I could not be with you. It is only a little over two months until General Conference and I trust that the Clinton district will have a good representation and a record behind none.

Yours in the faith,
D. C. WHITE.

COIN, Iowa, Jan. 16.

Editor Ensign:—Since the beginning of the new year I have been quite busy sounding the gospel trumpet. Am in fairly good health, and have been blessed, so far, with the Holy Spirit. But I find that it takes a great deal of preaching to make any impression on the minds of the people, that is, upon the minds of the masses. Of course, the honest in heart who are looking for the truth, have their eyes open and are able to see the beauties of the gospel, and some of them obey it, too. The honest in heart, however, are not in the majority.

At present writing I am at Coin, in Page county, Iowa. Came here last Tuesday, and since then have been preaching in the opera hall to fair sized and very attentive audiences. Am hopeful that good results may follow the efforts.

The work in our districts—Pottawattamie and Fremont—is moving along quite nicely, so it seems to me. Bro. Kemp is in charge, and is a faithful, spiritual minded man whose soul is in the work. And he preaches by example as well as precept; he is a father in Israel, indeed. And then we have a lot of young people in this mission whom it is a pleasure to know, and of whom one can justly feel proud. May the Lord bless and preserve them from the snares of the world that they may continue to grow in favor with God, and with all good people too. Much depends on them in the future, and I trust they may be equal to the occasion.

Sunday Schools, as a rule, are doing well, and our Sunday School force is thoroughly alive to the interests of the work.

Peace, harmony and good will prevail in all parts of the mission, so far as I know, and we feel determined, with the Lord's help, to press on to success and final victory.

Wishing yourself and the many readers of your paper a prosperous year in gospel work, I am

AMES, Kan., Jan. 3.

Editor Ensign:—It was with mixed feelings of gladness and sorrow that I bade adieu to Saints and friends when leaving Centralia, Kansas, to again enlist in gospel work in God's great harvest field. It is a hard task indeed, to part from those whom you have learned to love and respect, especially when a reuniting again looks dim and cloudy. At the best, this world is full of changes and disappointments to many of us, and, I presume, will not cease until "that perfect day" shall come. Spent one Sunday at Blue Rapids, and felt happy in assisting the Saints in their services; then visited Greenleaf over January 1st, and was glad to find an increase of Saints at that place. The Christmas entertainment passed off smoothly, and was a very pleasant affair, winding up in a marriage ceremony, performed by Elder W. S. Pender; the contracting parties were Bro. Horace E. Brown, of Lenora, Kansas, and Sr. Givens, from far off West Virginia; they, together with the bride's maid and best man, certainly looked their best during the occasion. The bridal party left for Lenora, their future home, the next day.

I must here state that, though there is no church organization there at present, yet indications point very strongly that a branch will be established at no distant day. The Saints, in the majority, are lively and energetic in the cause. They have already rented a commodious hall for a whole year, located in the heart of the town, which means that they have secured a good foot-hold for the work, through the blessings of God upon them. This is a point where our Campbellite friends have, all along, fought the faith of the Saints most bitterly, both by preaching and debating; and now there cannot be found a more promising field for a harvest of souls in the whole Northwest Kansas district. Who can measure the results of a united effort on the part of the people of God, in point of faithfulness and diligence in serving the Master, coupled with a righteous living? If God be with us, who can be against us, wrote the apostle. "Then is it not to our best interests to labor to that end? Surely it is."

Their Sunday School under the leadership of Sr. Ella M. Landers, was good. May it become a stepping-stone to many into the kingdom of God. After briefly reviewing the lessons of the quarter, the writer, seeing that they distributed a number of Hopes among the children, took the opportunity of explaining about the beautiful engraving that appears weekly on the outside; how that Elder David H. Smith had it presented to him in vision, and the claim being made that the figure therein is a true likeness of our Savior. The large tree that we see there represents the mother church which was organized in 1830; and the birds signify the different nationalities of people who flock into the kingdom of God, and make the church their future home. The ax that we see driven at the bottom of the tree is a sign of her death blow received at the time the Lord rejected the church in consequence of disobedience. That little sprout on the right, growing out of the parent tree, represents the Reorganization, and after a while will grow as large as the mother tree. It is indeed comforting to know that the work is so grand before us, and that God is at the helm directing the affairs of his church, until the consummation will be reached.

Am feeling more hopeful than ever, and hope to be found a loyal soldier in the ranks of King Immanuel. Bro. Pender and I are to commence a series of meetings at Clyde next Saturday evening, and the outlook is good for a fine hearing.

Your brother in Christ,
FRANK J. PIERCE.

ROSEDALE, Kan., Jan. 3, 1900.

Editor Ensign:—This is a fine afternoon for this time of the year. I am living here with my mother and sister. My sister Flora was married New Years night to Mr. George Bly; Bro. Wm. H. Pease, president of the Armstrong branch preformed the ceremony. Many relatives and other friends of the contracting parties, were present. They received some valuable presents which are highly appreciated. It is to be hoped that the lives of those who have thus been united in wedlock will be one of happiness and prosperity, and last, but not least, may they both, when the journey of this life is over, so have walked in obedience to the restored gospel as to merit eternal life in the world to come.

We are having no meetings in Rosedale at present; it is hoped that openings for the preaching of the word of the Lord in its purity may be effected in Rosedale in the near future. The traveling and local ministry are cordially invited to call at our house whenever they can. We would be glad if Bro. Thomas Newton, priest of the Second Kansas City branch, could visit us once a week at least. May the Lord of the harvest send one of his laborers to this part of the vineyard vested with proper authority to dispense the word of life to perishing souls here. Why could we not have a mission in Rosedale? May God bless the good work everywhere is the prayer of your brother.

Editor Ensign:—This year is nearly finished up, and 1899 will be remembered by many as a singular year in many things that have transpired. To me it has been joyful in that I have lived to hear that the polygamy question has been stirred up by this nation, and this abominable practice has been condemned at our government seat where it expected to have received an honorable reception from those in United States authority, by putting on a false mask and claiming that this vile practice was sacred under their religious covenant and belief; but I am thankful the eyes of our great government were not blind, and have refused a polygamist a seat in the law making departments of this great and powerful nation. For in no part of the teachings of Christ, the Son of God, can I find he ever taught polygamy; no, not even divorcement, but his teachings were pure and holy, therefore, this polygamy practiced all these years by the Brighamites in Utah, is of their own make up and should have been driven out long ago.

Our branch is in good condition; Elder M. H. Forscutt city pastor and branch president; meetings regular Sunday twice, also Wednesday evenings. We lost by death this year two, and two have been baptized. Monday evening our nice Sunday School held a very enjoyable Christmas entertainment in our church; all did well, and all were happy. Santa Claus came in too to see how we got along. We heard our scholars sing, promised to come again next year, and so he departed. We have a good school, and it has been kept up regularly this past year.

With a happy new year to all, I am

ANOTHER BOOK.

ELDER R. M. ELVIN.

In ancient time a man of understanding and reputed for great wisdom, wrote: "Of making many books there is no end," and so hath it come to pass in these latter days, that the restored gospel, by angelic administration, has been the occasion of the "making of many books," both in favor of the message, and in opposition thereto.

Among the last to make its appearance is, "The Mormon Prophet," by Miss Lilly Dougall, of Montreal, Canada, and published by D. Appleton & Co., New York. She has undertaken to accomplish what scores of others have attempted and failed to do; namely: to explain to the reading public, the truth relative to the claim of Joseph Smith to the prophetic office, and his teaching as to what was essential to the obtaining of eternal life in the kingdom of God.

Were Miss Dougall's book upon a political issue, I would say: It is a straddle of the fence argument. With a show of fairness, she says in the preface to her book: "He never saw Utah, and his public teachings were, for the most part, unexceptionable. Taking necessary liberty with incidents, I have endeavored to present Smith's character as I found it in his own writings, in the narratives of contemporary writers, and in the memories of the older inhabitants of Kirtland."—p. 6.

Holding in memory the promise of this woman to use the writings of Joseph Smith and contemporary writers, I shall write this review, hewing to the line, regardless of where the chips shall fly. I give due credit for honesty and fairness for the following on the originality of the Book of Mormon, namely: "That it was an original production seems probable, as the recent discovery of the celebrated Spalding manuscript, and a critical examination of the evidence of Mrs. Spalding, go far to discredit the popular accusation of plagiarism." (Preface, p. 8). Had Miss Dougall continued as fair from the start to the finish of her book, I should not have taken up my pen to refute the frequent lapses from truth which follows. Here is another credit mark to Miss Dougall: "Near Kirtland I visited a sweet faced old lady—not, however, of the Mormon persuasion—who, as a child, had climbed on the prophet's knee, 'My mother always said,' she told us, 'that if she had to die and leave young children, she would rather have left them to Joseph Smith than to any one else in the world: he was always kind.' This testimony as to Smith's kindness, I found to be repeated in the annals of Mormon families."—Preface, p. 9.

There is somewhat in this excerpt worthy of more than a careless reading to emphasize.

(a) This testimony is from a non-member of the Latter Day Saints' church.

(b) The witness was a sweet faced old lady at the time she was interviewed by Lilly Dougall.

(c) This old lady, when a child, climbed on the knee of the prophet.

(d) The general reputation was that the prophet Joseph Smith was kind of heart, and a fit person to have the watch-care of young children.

Should it be thought a strange thing that such evidence would create a favorable impression for the man Joseph Smith, the prophet?

In the body of her book Miss Dougall quotes from Ephraim Croom, the son of a Baptist deacon: "Whether the man is mad or false, almost all the immoralities that you will hear reported about him, are, as far as I can make out, not true. He doesn't teach that it's unnecessary to obey the ten commandments, or beat his wife, nor is he drunken. He's got the sense to see that all that sort of thing wouldn't make a big man of him. It's merely a revised form of Christianity, with a few silly additions, that he claims to be the prophet of."—"Mormon Prophet," p. 7.

"There is no particular date stated as to when the young man, Mr. Croom, made the statement, but in the preceding paragraph the reader is lead to believe that it was after the publication of the Book of Mormon, which was in the latter part of 1829 and the early part of 1830, and according to other events narrated by Miss Dougall, the statement of Mr. Croom could not have been made earlier than the spring of 1830. I have in view a particular use in thus calling the attention of the reader to this date.

Miss Dougall begins her second chapter with these words: "Two quiet years passed, and Susannah had attained her eighteenth birthday." ("The Mormon Prophet," p. 11). Or, in other words, two years had elapsed since the statement of Ephraim Croom was made, and in gliding down the stream of time, in the August following the birthday, Miss Susannah, while in a pouty spell, takes a long stroll in the propinquity of Palmyra, New York, and to escape a severe storm, took shelter in the house of Joseph Smith; while here Lucy Smith, the mother of Joseph Smith, the prophet, is made to say: "Seven years ago was his first vision, and all the people trampling upon him since to make him gainsay it, but he stood steadfast. I dreamed it—when he was a little child I dreamed it, and it has come true."—M. P., p. 18.

Now, let us figure a little; on the arrival of Susannah at her uncle's, when she was sixteen years of age, for Miss Dougall has Ephraim Croom testify: "His book," said Ephraim, "is a history of the North American Indians, from the time of the flood until some epoch prior to Columbus. It would be as difficult to prove that it was not true as to prove that Smith is not honest in his delusion."—M. P. p. 7.

This commits Miss Dougall's book to a period subsequent to the publication of the Book of Mormon, and two years later Miss Dougall has Lucy Smith testify that it was "seven years" since the first vision.

Here let me give the reader the benefit of two historical facts, namely: "Early in the spring [of 1820] Joseph Smith, Jr., had his first vision." ("Compendium, p. 306). "Mr. John H. Gilbert, of Palmyra, New York, who claims to have set the type for the Book of Mormon, was interviewed at his residence by Elders W. H. and E. L. Kelley, on March 5, 1831. To them he said: 'The manuscript was put into our hands in August, 1829, and all printed by March, 1830.'" ("Church History," Vol. 1, p. 81.) Thus we learn that from the first vision till the Book of Mormon was published was about ten years, and the statements made by Miss Dougall are without a foundation of truth, and are but a misleading commingling of truth and error.

At the same time that Miss Dougall has Lucy Smith telling that it was seven years since the first vision, she has the wife of the prophet saying: "The young mother smiled frankly, 'I suppose it seems very hard for you to believe,' she said, 'but it's true, and the Lord told Joseph where to find the new part of the Bible that he's going now to make known to the world. Shall I tell you about it?'"—M. P., p. 20.

Miss Dougall must have woefully forgotten herself, for on page 7 she had informed us that Susannah's cousin Ephraim knew of the book, and told of its contents. Neither Joseph Smith, his wife, or any other Latter Day Saint ever called the Book of Mormon the Bible, or part of the Bible; so to do has always been the work of an enemy of the gospel restored. Such false statements as are credited to Lucy and Emma Smith are calculated to mislead the seeker after truth, and mystify the general reader.

As to the translation of the plates and preparing the copies for publication, Miss Dougall has Emma Smith illuminating the understanding of Susannah as follows: "It's been very hard work, and we've had to live very poor, because Joseph couldn't earn anything while he was doing it, but it's done now, so we feel cheered. And now that it's going to be printed, and Joseph can begin to gather in the elect very soon, and now that baby's come."—M. P., p. 22.

How dense the fog! How startling strange and wonderful that our cousin Ephraim should know of the Book of Mormon and its contents more than two years prior to the printing of said book. To get the kinks and knots out of her book, it will be necessary for Miss Dougall to re-write the story.

Miss Dougall labors to leave the impression of "peep stone" upon the minds of her readers, for she has Susannah aimlessly meandering in the lonely woods, when suddenly she came upon Joseph Smith lying with his face prone upon the earth, and he arose with a convulsive start: "His look changed into one of deference and satisfaction. He rose up, lifting his hat carefully, in it lay a curious stone composed of bright crystals, in shape not unlike a child's foot."—M. P. p. 46.

The inspiration that guided Miss Dougall in penning this misrepresentation was not found in the writings of Joseph Smith, neither did she adopt the "chocolate color stone," that was opaque, but evidently as to the shape of the stone—"not unlike a child's foot," she must have conjured with a familiar spirit of some gainsayer to get so far from the truth. From the pen of Joseph Smith we obtain a true description of the instrument or means by which the translation of the plates was accomplished, namely: "Also that there were two stones in silver bows, and these stones fastened to a breast-plate constituted what is called the Urim and Thummim, deposited with the plates, and the possession and use of these stones was what constituted seers in ancient or former times, and that God had prepared them for the purpose of translating the book."—"Church History," Vol. 1, p. 13.

Without doubt it was the wish and intention of Miss Dougall to have her readers accept the "peep stone" theory, for, according to this fine spun story, immediately after Joseph Smith arose he is made to say to Susannah: "It's my peep stone," and he unfolds to her a revelation that has no other effect than to daze or confuse the poor unsophisticated girl, and the following explanation is furnished for her bewilderment: "She had never heard of crystal-gazing; the phrase 'mental automatism' had not then been invented by the psychologists; still less could she suspect that she herself might have come partially under the influence of hypnotic suggestion."—M. P., p. 49.

The subtleness of the above must be apparent to all; adroitly shifting the source of inspiration from the Divine One to the profound art of psychology, and at the same time belittle the man for his want of common education.

Miss Dougall gives us in quotation marks, a marriage ceremony used by Joseph Smith; as she fails to cite her authority, many may conclude that she copied it from the writings of Joseph Smith, and to disabuse their minds I will put in comparison this ceremony with the only authorized ceremony ever in use among, or by, the true Latter Day Saints.

MARRIAGE.

DOUGALL. "Wherefore in the sight of God, and in the sight of these elect Saints now present, I declare that these two are joined together in the mystical union of a most holy marriage, which God himself has revealed from heaven."—M. P., p. 60.	SMITH. "You both mutually agree to be each other's companion, husband and wife, observing the legal rights belonging to this condition, that is, keeping yourselves wholly for each other, and from all others, during your lives."—D. & C., p. 330.

This ceremony presented by Miss Dougall has a very foreign phraseology; wonder if it was imported from Montreal? Or if it was the intermeddlesomeness of some sower of tares while the good man slept? But hark! Neither the man or woman was aware that this marriage was to take place, and neither of them gave their consent. Such nonsense may satisfy the gullible, but sober, thinking, intelligent people, who do not feast upon yellow backism, will not be deceived by the catchiness of novelism.

The most improbable and unreasonable thing in Miss Dougall's book, is the purported baptism of Susannah, page 67. O I cannot conceive how it would be possible that a young lady, in her nineteenth year, would act as described, and against her own will and belief, and at the very moment that a wild and overwhelming mob was raging at the water's edge, and seeking the life of the minister; it is much easier for me to believe that such an event never took place, than to believe that Joseph Smith was so extraordinarily endowed with hypnotic or mesmeric power.

The reader will remember that Miss Dougall gave us to understand in the preface to her book, as quoted in this paper, that first in order she drew from the writings of Joseph Smith. Herewith we give a sample of the use she made of those writings, and will do so by placing in parallel columns, and this juxtaposition will enable the reader to a more righteous decision.

DOUGALL. "And now, behold, I speak unto the church; thou shalt not kill; thou shalt not steal; thou shalt not lie; thou shalt love thy wife, cleaving unto her and to none else; thou shalt not commit adultery; thou shalt not speak evil of thy neighbor, nor do him any harm. Let him that goeth to the east tell them that shall be converted to thee to the west."—M. P., p. 136.	SMITH. "And now, behold, I speak unto the church; Thou shalt not kill, and he that kills shall not have forgiveness in this world, nor in the world to come. And again, I say, thou shalt not kill, but he that killeth shall die. Thou shalt not steal, and he that stealeth and will not repent, shall be cast out. Thou shalt not lie; he that lieth and will not repent, shall be cast out. Thou shalt love thy wife with all thy heart, and shall cleave unto her and none else; and he that lieth upon a woman to just after her, shall deny the faith, and shall not have the Spirit; and if he repents not, he shall be cast out. Thou shalt not commit adultery; and he that committeth adultery and repenteth, shall be cast out, but he that has committed adultery, and repents with all his heart, and forsaketh it, no more, thou shalt forgive; but if he doeth it again, he shall not be forgiven, but shall be cast out. Thou shalt not speak evil of thy neighbor, nor do him any harm. * * * And behold, it shall come to pass, that no servants shall be sent forth to the east, and to the west, and to the south; and even now, let him that goeth to the east, shall be converted to flee to the west."—D. & C. pp. 142, 145.

I have carefully copied the full text as given by both Miss Dougall and Joseph Smith. Did mortal brain ever conceive or perpetrate a more complete garbling of another's writings than is here exhibited and proven without the possibility of a doubt? There could have been no accident that would have occasioned such garbling. The words used by Miss Dougall were taken from paragraphs 6, 7 and 18, and none but those acquainted with the Book of Doctrine and Covenants would understand how misleading and deceptive this supposed extract is. Whether premeditated and intended, or otherwise, Miss Dougall has inflicted against the ecclesiastical law governing the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, egregious misrepresentation.

Sometimes, not later than 1831 or 2, Miss Dougall has the following transaction: "After this Halsey instituted a series of unusual meetings for prayer and revival preaching, which he held after the ordinary evening classes in the school of the prophets, which was now removed to the upper chambers of the finished temple."—M. P. p. 212.

The only comment necessary on this is: The corner stone of the Kirtland temple was laid July 23, 1833, and the temple was not in use until March, 1836. The 27th of said month the unfinished building was dedicated; it was never finished.

Strange things have evolved from the fruitful imagination of Miss Dougall; here is what she has Elvira Halsey—a non-church member, and one constantly making sport of Joseph Smith—to say in 1834: "Why should I take the trouble to help you and the young un," she asked, sitting on Susannah's doorstep, languid with the heat. "When I was going along the lane last night I met a spirit, so I held out my hand according to Joe's latest. You've not heard! My! it's in the Millennial Star that if any sort of a voice or dream comes to you, the way to know whether it's an angel or devil is to shake hands, and if it's an angel you'll feel a good, firm, solid grip, sort of coming out of nowhere, but if it isn't an angel you'll feel nothing."—M. P. p. 222.

I have but little to say in refutation to the above.

First, Miss Dougall never read any such nonsense in the writings of Joseph Smith, and,

Second, while this statement of Elvira Halsey was made in the heat of summer of 1834, the first number of the Millennial Star was printed at Liverpool, England, May, 1840. I have reached the conclusion that Miss Dougall has little or no use for dates related to the events upon which she writes, or, that she is ignorant of the topic and its relative date, or last, but not least, she supposes that we Yankee readers are a set of ignoramuses.

Miss Dougall throws off the subtle mask of friendship, and manifests the open warfare usual to the enemies of Joseph Smith and the church of his life work. In proof: "Well," said the young Danite reflectively, 'if that's it, I guess I'll have to take my firing first, and seek salvation after; but Smith and Rigdon don't only preach that sort of gospel now; they are all for the Old Testament kind of thing, and the destroying angels in the Revelations.'"

Miss Dougall never read in the writings of Joseph Smith where he taught or sanctioned the organization of Danites, or destroying angels. Whoever will be to the trouble of examining the second volume of Church History, page 219 to 223, will learn that he condemned it in unmeasured terms. The above statement of the young Danite was made to occur the evening before the Haun's Mill massacre, which took place October 30, 1838, and a year or so later this same young Danite is called the Apostle Heber—Heber C. Kimball, I suppose, as he was the only Heber holding such office. He was born June 14, 1801, which would make him in his thirty-eighth year; this would hardly fit the description—"young Mormon," "youth,"—as furnished by Miss Dougall. And again, he was ordained an apostle in February, 1835; more than three years and a half before Miss Dougall has him appearing upon the scene as a "youth" or a "young Mormon."

Here is another blunder equally as void of truth as the Danite fib: "To the good the necessities of compassion are as strong as are the necessities of selfishness to the wicked. Within a day or two both Susannah and Elvira had given up their horses entirely to women who had been taken ill by the way. At first they plodded arm in arm, thinking that merely to walk was all that their strength could endure; but there were other women who had children to carry, women even who must push hand carts before them, and there were little children who sank, one by one; exhausted on the winter road, as lambs fall when their mothers are driven far."—M. P. p. 275.

And again, on this topic: "The two friends were walking together, pushing before them a small cart in which, on the top of the bundles of household goods, a wretched woman and her newborn child were lying, covered under a scanty tarpauling from the driving sleet."—M. P. p. 277.

These two quotations by Miss Dougall are her description of the Saints leaving Far West, Missouri, which began April 22, 1839, and is most subtle in creating mock sympathy; but the fact and truth is, there never were any hand carts until under the regime of Brigham Young early in the 50's, or more than ten years before any hand cart was thought of. O, how these anti-Mormon writers do get things mixed! Perhaps that is fashionable over in Montreal!

The following certainly could not have been written in earnest for truth:

"'Waal, I dunno' (which was a lie), 'mebbe she had no wax—I didn't think of that, but anyhow she gave me the letter. 'Twas too late for the mail, 'twas too heavy for one stamp; an' I didn't like to tell her, poor thing, that we'd mighty little to spend on stamps. So after she'd gone I just had a look to see who it was to.'"—M. P. p. 298.

This seems to be a real innocent little paragraph, but a little examination will show up like a "Canada thistle." The man talking is "Elder Darling," manager of the tithing office and postmaster; time is early in the spring of 1839, and the place was Quincy, Illinois. So much by way of explanation of detail. Quincy was an organized municipality, with a government post office, long before the Mormons located there. But the stamps! That is what takes the cake for profound knowledge! Let Miss Dougall rise right up in meeting and turn on the searchlight, we will give her audience! And to aid her I will quote:

"POSTAGE STAMPS.

"The system of preparing postage by means of small adhesive labels, to be sold to the public, and received by the post office in evidence of payment when attached to letters, was first advocated by Rowland Hill in 1837, and was adopted by the British post office in 1840, the stamps being first used on May 6th of that year. They were introduced into the United States in 1847."—The American Encyclopedia, Vol. 13, p. 756.

Reader, what do you think of Miss Dougall having postage stamps in use about eight years before the government adopted stamps as the means of paying postage?

On page 321, Miss Dougall, in speaking of Emma Smith, wife of the prophet, says: "Now she was stout and was given much to the practical care of her children, and, devoted as she was to her husband, she assumed often a tone of remonstrance, setting aside many of Smith's vagaries as unworthy of attention. She thought to please him and his church by dressing well and appearing to be a person of some figure and consequence, but in private she grumbled at his personal extravagance."

The only thing to be said of the above is that it is untrue in every particular.

Miss Dougall makes a strenuous effort to fix the crime of polygamy on Joseph Smith. The following is offered by her as his own words upon the subject:

"It's come to me to observe that among the chosen people—there ain't no gainsayin' it, Sr. Halsey, though I trust you to be discreet and not mention the matter, but in the days when the Divine favor rested on Israel each man had more than one wife, and the Lord himself says He give them to Solomon, the only objection being the heathen partners."—M. P. p. 151.

Again: "Susannah found it hard to understand why Emma was not taken to Nauvoo, even before the greathouse was built for her reception. It was indeed commonly reported among the Gentiles at this time that the prophet had secretly espoused other wives."—M. P. p. 327. On this same line Miss Dougall writes: "Susannah could not conceive that a new order of marriage would appear feasible, even though it would certainly raise a new barrier around the fold, and, in consequence, draw its votaries closer together."—M. P. p. 330.

In refutation I herewith present a portion of a revelation to the church, given through Joseph Smith March, 1831, which reads:

"And again, I say unto you, that whoso forbiddeth to marry is not ordained of God, for marriage is ordained of God unto man; wherefore, it is lawful that he should have one wife, and they twain shall be one flesh, and all this that the earth might answer the end of its creation; and that it might be filled with the measure of man, according to his creation before the world was made."—D. & C. p. 124.

This is the authoritative law unto all true Latter Day Saints, and whose doeth contrary is a transgressor, not only of the law of God, but also of our country. In the Book of Mormon are these words: "Wherefore, I, the Lord God, will not suffer that this people shall do like unto them of old. Wherefore, my brethren, hear me, and hearken to the word of the Lord: For there shall not any man among you have save it be one wife; and concubines he shall have none: For I, the Lord God, delighteth in the chastity of women."—Jacob 2:6.

This is of equal authority with the citation from the Doctrine and Covenants. And both of these are in line with: "And he answered and said unto them, Have ye not read that he which made them at the beginning made them male and female. And said, For this cause shall a man leave father and mother, and shall cleave to his wife: and they twain shall be one flesh."—Matt. 19: 4, 5.

These words of the Christ are accepted by all Bible believers, and no true Saint disregards them.

These three books quoted are the text books of the church, and that which is offered in the Book of Mormon and Doctrine and Covenants may be said to be the first expression of the Palmyra Seer upon the marriage relation, and here are his last and strong words of denunciation against the crime of polygamy:

"NOTICE.

"As we have lately been credibly informed that an elder of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, by the name of Hyrum Brown, has been preaching polygamy and other false and corrupt doctrines, in the county of Lapeer, state of Michigan. This is to notify him, and the church in general, that he has been cut off from the church for his iniquity; and he is further notified to appear at the special conference on the 6th of April next to make answer to these charges. Signed Joseph Smith and Hyrum Smith, presidents of said church."—Times and Seasons, p. 423, Vol. 5.

As closing evidence we present what may be understood as the dying testimony of the widow of the prophet, which is in the form of questions and answers:

"Did he not have other wives than yourself?"

"He had no other wife but me; nor did he to my knowledge ever have."

"Did he not hold marital relation with women other than yourself?"

"He did not have improper relations with any woman that ever came to my knowledge."—Life of Joseph the Prophet, p. 792.

Miss Dougall, nor any other person can furnish unimpeachable evidence that Joseph Smith ever taught or practiced the crime of polygamy. There are two classes, namely, the enemies of "Mormonism" and the Utah Mormons, who are a unit in their mad fight against the truth; and both are alike and equally dishonorable in the use of flimsy, false and base screeds that they may accomplish their ignoble purpose. The first, that they may feed the fire of prejudice and bigotry, to prevent honest people from accepting saving truth. The second, that they may have an excuse for their nefarious works of "abomination."

The human bloodhounds of error may climb the mountains and scour the dales in pursuit of the innocent, and although their baying may be deep, long and loud, truth will magnificently triumph in the end, and God will crown with eternal life those who will fight faithfully and manfully all the machinations of the devil and his satellites and keep themselves unspotted from the sins and vices of this ungodly world.

Under another divaricate, equally misleading and foul, Miss Dougall seeks to associate Joseph Smith with the sinful practice or doctrine of "spiritual wives." She makes Emma Smith, the wife of the prophet, say: "And there's just been an awful row on in the Council of Nauvoo against Sidney Rigdon and some pamphlet he's written on a doctrine he calls 'Spiritual Wives,' and Joseph has risen up and cast him out, even though he was his best friend."—M. P., p. 327.

As straws show which way the wind blows, so the efforts of Miss Dougall manifest the earnest desire of her heart, for she has Joseph teaching Susannah, wife of Angel Halsey: "But now," he said, "who am I that I should be able to take care of all the young women that the Lord is sending to us from all parts of the world? or am I to deny to them the privilege of coming to live among the Lord's people? Am I to say to them that unless they have learning and wisdom and are perfect they shall not come? I guess that if it had been required of me to be perfect before I came to seek salvation, I wouldn't have come at all. But it's just like this—here they are! and they are nothing but poor, ignorant working girls from England and Ireland and all parts of Europe. And am I to make nurseries to put them into?"—M. P., p. 353.

Another link in her chain of chafe reads: "When he came to sit down beside her again, it was to sketch the misery to men and women and children which existed in Gentile society from this evil, which he affirmed to run riot through the warp and woof of so-called orthodox communities."—M. P., p. 354.

"There's that for one thing, Sister Susannah." Smith went on in a broken voice, "it has been a mean sort of thing to have to tell you, but it had to be said, and now there's another thing to be considered. Among the Gentiles who is it that has the most children? Is it your man that's high up in the ranks of society, who has money enough to give them a good education, to feed and clothe 'em? or is it your poor man, whose children run over one another like little pigs in a sty, and he caring nothing for them, and they have rickety bones and are half starved and grow up to be idle and steal? I have noticed that a good man is apt to have good children, and a clever man is apt to have clever children, and a worthless man is apt to have worthless children. Ain't that so? And what sort of children do we want the most of? Well, in this way we wouldn't let your worthless fellow have any wife at all until he had brought forth fruit meet for repentance, and your common man only one; but I don't see but that it would be a real benefit to the State if your good, all-round man, as would be apt to have pious and clever children, had two or three or four families growing up to be an honour to him and to the church, if it ain't against the command of the Lord; and in Holy Writ the Lord himself says to Solomon that He would have given him as many wives as he wanted, barring them being Gentiles."—M. P., pp. 354-5.

In the exasperation of my soul I cry out: What a mess of heterogeneous conglomeration of incongruities these sensational writers employ! But now for a criticism. The statement on page 327 is represented as having taken place at Quincy and before Emma Smith had a home at Nauvoo, and would therefore have to be as early as the summer of 1839. Sidney Rigdon was not the author of the spiritual wife doctrine, as we shall presently see, and he was not deposed from the First Presidency of the church until after the death of the prophet—June 27, 1844, so Miss Dougall either coined that fabrication or followed some "will-o'-the-wisp" bent on a frolic of speak not the truth. Shortly after this Joseph is made to plead the privilege of all those girls who had come from "England, Ireland and all parts of Europe." Where! oh where! have you gathered your data, Miss Dougall? June 6, 1840, "The first company of emigrating Saints from Europe sailed from Liverpool to New York," and this was subsequent to the time the purported interview that Joseph is said to have had with Susannah. No missionary work of any importance was done in Europe outside of England, Wales and Scotland prior to the death of the prophet, therefore that surplus of girls as an entering wedge for the doctrine of spiritual wives is but the effervescence of some genius from the abode of sin and shame. It was Paul of old who sounded the tocsin of alarm: "Now the Spirit speaketh expressly, that in the latter times some shall depart from the faith [truth], giving heed to seducing spirits, and doctrines of devils; speaking lies in hypocrisy; having their conscience seared as with a hot iron."—1 Tim. 4: 1, 2.

There is, in the heart of all human beings, a yearning for companionship; a longing to draw near to other hearts and kindred spirits. This is very apparent in youth, when character is forming and the life of the young seems to be reaching out to grasp, and cling to, something in the life that surrounds them. Circumstances and surroundings make us largely what we are. The influences around us unite, and, as a rule, produce a character, beautiful in nobleness and grace, or dwarfed, distorted and scarred by the storms of sin and passion.

How jealously, then, should we guard the hearts of our children. No jewel in its casket is of such priceless value as the soul of a child, reflecting the light of heaven, and sparkling with the happy love of innocence and truth. Not only have the parents a sacred charge in these precious souls, but it is the duty of the church to throw around them strong defenses; and we believe the church is gradually responding to the needs of the young, by placing among them such societies as will ennoble them and help to lead to a higher standard of what life is in all its bearings. Never before have the young people of our church had such grand opportunities to fit themselves for the duties of life, and to exert an influence that will help to purify the social system. In our societies we are taught to seek to build up a stronger faith, uproot the weeds of sin and vice, and spread broad love toward God and mankind in general; also to visit suffering ones and help to cheer them up, and scatter flowers and sunshine wherever we go. Surely the heart of the giver and the hearts of those who have received must be turned into purer channels by these works of kindness.

We should be very careful and prayerful in the training of the young, and the example we set before them, for the life of a child can be as easily moulded as the clay in the potter's hands; but it needs a master hand to know how to do the work. The special talent of each one should be discovered, and allowed every chance for development. Many a young spirit has been crushed by some harsh rebuke, which might have made a shining star, shedding forth light to guide the footsteps of others.

The humble, though honest ones must be given equal opportunities with others; they may never have the chance in any other way, for self-improvement, and, if it is denied them here, it may be lost to them for all time. The soul of a poor man's child is just as precious in the sight of God as the soul of a rich man's child; and it has just as strong a claim upon the church. Let the more fortunate try to exert themselves in giving self respect to the lowly, and filling them with noble aims by showing them that their merits are appreciated. This will give them courage to try for themselves.

How many sparkling jewels could be discovered if they could only have a few loving touches to brighten them up. Throw aside the scorn with which so many young people regard those in the humble walks of life, and see how quickly the envy, which arises in the hearts of the lowly, will fly away. By so doing we set the example of noble, consistent christian lives.

One of the good results of these societies, is the cultivation of a more pleasant social intercourse between the older and the younger members of the church. They will learn to regard those more advanced in life, as their spiritual advisers, and thus make themselves more capable of winning souls for the master's cause. Let each member of these societies keep their lamps trimmed and burning brightly. Who can tell how many poor, way-faring souls, seeing our bright light, may be glad to leave their gloomy faith and walk with us in the blessed light of the gospel of truth.

OLIVE LONG.

Children are not Given for Playthings.

"Mothers must remember that their babies are not given them for their own pleasure or amusement, nor to display as marvels to their friends," warns Barnett Brown, writing of "Mothers' Mistakes and Fathers' Failures," in the January Ladies' Home Journal. "But mothers must consider that from the first moment of life the child is destined toward growth, development, progression. A dallying with this bit of wisdom in the beginning makes rare occasions for much that is disagreeable later. And let no mother make the error of being baffled by the cry of 'heredity.' Much of what is called heredity is really imitation of what is to be seen and felt in the environment; and the most objectionable human heredity can be overcome. The inheritance of the divine spark which is ever ready to fly upward must never be forgotten."

The following paragraph from the New York Weekly Witness is a remarkably clear statement of the scriptural position on the Sabbath question:

"To the Editor: Would you kindly explain, through the Witness, why we do not keep the same Sabbath as mentioned in our Sabbath School lesson two Sundays ago? When was the day changed? Who changed it, and why? Is there Bible authority for the change? I am sure this will be of great interest to thousands of Witness readers, for I believe it is a matter not very well understood.

"S. S. WORKER."

"It is generally believed that the apostles and early church observed the first day of the week in commemoration of the resurrection of Christ on that day, and that our Lord gave his sanction to that observance by appearing to them on at least two successive first days when they were gathered in his name. It is evident from the record in Acts that the Jewish Sabbath, the seventh day, was used by the apostles as an opportunity for preaching to the Jews in their synagogues, and Paul's letters contain references to the fact that some Christians continued to observe the Jewish Sabbath, and that there were, even in his time, disputes in the church in reference to the observance of that day. Paul teaches us (Eph. 2: 15) that Christ 'abolished in his flesh * * * the law of commandments contained in ordinances'—that is, all statutory laws—and James (1: 25) defines the law of the Christian dispensation as 'the perfect law of liberty.' 'The Sabbath was made for man, and not man for the Sabbath.' Until the coming of Christ the completion of God's work of creation was the greatest event in the world's history, and its commemoration was best calculated to raise men's thoughts toward God as their Creator. But a greater event took place when the Son of God, having suffered the penalty of man's sin—the just for the unjust, that he might bring us to God—rose again triumphant over death and over him that had the power of death, that is, the devil' (Heb. 2: 14); and it is in harmony with all the teaching of the New Testament that the commemoration of God's 'new creation' should supplant the commemoration of his earlier work of creation. Church history informs us that for a long time both the seventh and the first days were observed by Christians. Some observed one; some, the other; and some, both. But by the beginning of the fourth century the observance of the seventh day had almost died out, and the great Nicene Council, A. D. 325, settled the question permanently in favor of the first day. Some half-educated writer, having learned this fact, announced the wonderful discovery that the first-day Sabbath was of Roman Catholic origin, and many persons who have not themselves read church history, have adopted this view, supposing that the man knew what he was writing about. The truth is that the Nicene Council did not institute the first-day Sabbath, but only confirmed the practice of observing it which had already become general; and the Nicene Council was not Roman Catholic, for the Roman Catholic Church had not come into existence at that time."

WILL SEND $2.50 FREE.

TO EACH OF OUR READERS, FRANKLIN MILES, M. D., LL. D., CELEBRATED CHICAGO SPECIALIST, WILL SEND $2.50 WORTH OF HIS NEW SPECIAL TREATMENT FREE.

When an experienced physician offers to give away $40,000 worth of a New Treatment for diseases of the heart, nerves, stomach, or drooping, it is conclusive evidence that he has great faith in it. And when hundreds of prominent men and women freely testify to his unusual skill and the superiority of his New Special Treatment, his liberality is certainly worthy of serious consideration.

That Dr. Miles is one of the world's most successful physicians in treating these diseases, is proven by hundreds of testimonials. One patient cured after failure of eleven Grand Rapids physicians; two after having been given up by medical authorities; another after nine of the leading doctors in New York City, Philadelphia and Chicago failed. Thousands of testimonials sent upon request.

The eminent Rev. W. Bell, D. D., of Dayton, Ohio, General Secretary of Foreign Missions, writes editorially in the State Sunday School Union: "We desire to state that from personal acquaintance we know Dr. Miles to be a most skillful specialist, a man who has spared neither labor nor money to become self-abroad of the great advancement of medical science." The late Prof. J. S. Jewell, M. D., editor of Journal of Mental and Nervous Diseases, Chicago, said: "By all means publish your surprising results." Rev. J. W. Stokesbury, of Fairport, Mo., had head, heart, stomach troubles, and nervous prostration. Three physicians failed to help him. He writes: "I regard myself cured." Mr. C. Beck of Webb City, Mo., wrote a friend: "Dr. Miles treated me for mind trouble, unnatural fears and great nervousness. He cured me nine years ago." Mr. Geo. Woodhouse reports: "My son was so bad, he was helpless. Other physicians failed to help him, but Dr. Miles brought him out all right." J. D. Howe, Brookfield, Mo., says: "Dr. Miles is the only physician who ever helped me."

This new system of special treatment is thoroughly scientific and infinitely superior to the ordinary methods.

As all afflicted readers may have $2.50 worth of treatment especially prepared for their case, FREE, with full directions, we would advise them to send for it at once. Address Dr. Miles, Medical Stations, State and Adams Streets, Chicago.

sentences have been expunged because they drifted into collateral questions not essential to a clear statement and correct understanding of the teaching of the Bible on the Sabbath. Barring those sentences, one does not often see a better statement of an important truth than the above extract.—Nashville, Tennessee, Gospel Advocate, January 11.

JOBS BY THE WAYSIDE.

BY T. W. CHATBURN.

No, thank you, we don't want any more such Christmas gifts. Such a shaking up as we got this morning; it's almost sufficient to shake ones' boots off, and jar his false teeth. At 4:25 a. m., (as indicated by stopped clock) we were all awakened by the rocking motion of mother earth, and, it is said, the most severe, for many years. The town of San Jacinto in Riverside county, and only a few miles east of here (Santa Ana) suffered very severely indeed; around the square are the brick business blocks all of which were practically destroyed—roofs, backs, fronts and sides fell in and are now a mass of ruins.

The dwelling houses are principally wood structures, which alone prevented a frightful mortality. Six persons, sleeping in an adobe building, were crushed beneath the falling walls. Many of the demolished houses were occupied more or less, and the escapes from death border on the miraculous indeed.

This is the second one of these monsters we have witnessed, and just allow us to whisper in your ear, we would rather take a "yellow leg" in ours, than any more seismic disturbances, and we hope to be in old Missouri before the next visitor. Some have thought "The cause of liberty was trembling in the balance;" I am assured it is in this country and I certainly realized

I needed a large measure of "McKinley confidence" to endure the strain. Bro. Barmore was "powerfully skeered," he at once paled, and every hair stood upright, Santa Claus had come sure.

The Christmas festivities are passing nicely, however, and the day is an ideal one, the thermometer marking 86 degrees in the shade, almost as warm as it ever gets on this coast. The roses and flowers are blooming, the birds are singing in the evergreen trees, the balmy breezes are laden with the rich fragrance of the orange blossoms, the plow follows the reaper, and the reaper follows the plowman, the gardens are replanted as soon as gathered; green peas, onions and all kinds of garden "sass," on Christmas day, is rather an innovation on our bill of fare yet we are enduring. This is indeed a marvelous country, in the excellence of its climate, in the fertility of its soil, in the variety of its products, in the charms of its scenery, in fine, all that a country could supply to make up the sum of human happiness; no frost, no snow, no chilblains on our delicate feet, no tingling fingers or frozen ears—but there, I just thought of that monster "Trembler"—I'm rattled.

Christmas tree was well loaded and all the Saints, old and young, enjoyed it hugely; ye missionary was not forgotten; tokens of love, respect and confidence were not lacking—you will please notice the golden appearance to the appendage to our watch, "eh." We thus express our heartfelt thanks to the gracious donors, and we indeed appreciate the tenderness manifested. We fully realize that the badge of Santa Claus is not always worn on the outside, it's sometimes worn close to the heart.

We have a store room fitted up in which we are preaching every night to fine audiences.

District Sunday School Association Officers Please Take Notice.

About December 1st I mailed a circular letter to the superintendent of every district association in the church as nearly as my incomplete directory would admit. At least some person in every district was addressed. This was to obtain information that is very much needed by the officers of the general association. Up to the present time we have received replies from but a part of the district. Some were very prompt and have our hearty thanks for the same. We feel quite sure that all the letters have been delivered or they would have been returned, as all envelopes bear my return card.

We give a list of the districts not yet heard from. If the officers of any of these districts have not received the circular letter, please write me at once and one will be sent. If the blank has been laid aside, please hunt it up and fill out and return.

South Eastern Illinois; Texas Central; Spring River, Kansas; Southern California; Ohio; Central Nebraska; Northern Nebraska; Eastern Maine; Western Maine; Northern Michigan; Independence, Missouri; Kewanee, Illinois; Northwest Kansas; Northern California; Pittsburg and Kiriland; Southern Missouri; Northern Wisconsin; Southern Wisconsin.

We sincerely trust that no one will neglect to give us their hearty and prompt cooperation in this as in all other work for the Master.

Yours for the work,
T. A. HOU GAS, Gen'l. Supt.
HENDERSON, Iowa.

NOTICES.

Dear Brethren of the Traveling Ministry—You are hereby requested to report all labor done during the last two years, to the sub-missionaries in charge, by the 1st of March; and they will report to me by the 15th of March.

Missionary in charge.

SROCKTON, Cal., Jan. 3.

To the Saints of Oregon and Washington.—There are a number of Saints in the above mentioned states whose names are not on the church record; it is necessary that all should be enrolled that the record may be complete. The proper way to get your names on the general church record is to have your names put on the nearest branch record; the way to do this, is to send your baptismal certificate to the president or clerk of the branch nearest to you, requesting membership; they will enroll your name and return certificate; or, if you hold a letter of removal from some other branch (which you must have if you have belonged to a branch), send that.

Now, please, all attend to this as soon as possible, as we desire to straighten up the record of this mission before the convening of General Conference. I will give you the address of branch presidents and secretaries: Alonzo Cribbins, Bridge P. O., Oregon. William Taylor, Drain, Oregon. Mabel Watkins, Sweet Home, Oregon. Samuel Crum, Castle Rock, Washington. Mrs. Cora Earhart, Green Lake, Washington. T. Holmes, Roslyn, Washington. Mr. T. Hicks, Deep Creek, Washington. Hiram Van Eaton, Eatonville, Washington. The above mentioned branches will please act as soon as possible on any names that may be sent in so as to get things fixed up at once.

Funds are getting short in the mission; please remember that Bro. Alma Morris, of Lebanon, Oregon, is bishop's agent, and will faithfully account for all moneys received.

Hoping and praying for the good of Zion, I remain as ever,

Your brother,

HIRAM L. HOLT.
In charge of Oregon and Washington.

A Government Inquiry is being made by the United States Senate Food Commission into the matter of food adulteration, now so prevalent.

Twice before the United States Government has made inquiries as to the ingredients and quality of the baking powders of the market.

Each time the government report has shown Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder of highest leavening strength, a grape cream of tartar powder of sterling worth, and absolutely pure and wholesome.

This is very gratifying, for Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder is depended upon by millions of people to raise their daily bread.

NOTE.—These Government inquiries also developed the fact that there are many mixtures upon the market made in imitation of baking powder, but containing alum or other caustic acid whose use in food is dangerous.

DIVORCEMENT.

The subject of divorce is one more or less vexatious and serious, as circumstances may control each case. The courts are often besieged with applicants of both sexes presenting a more or less harrowing "tale of woe," and seeking to be liberated from bonds which, though pleasant at first, have become irksome and distasteful. It is amazing sometimes to read the reasons advanced as to why the conjugal relations should be severed. One woman applied for a divorce because her husband had been unfortunate and lost his wealth, and could not, therefore, keep her in the style she had been enjoying while his means lasted. The judge gave her a lecture and refused her application.

Many urge "incompatibility of temper," others failure to provide, interpenance, desertion, and ill treatment, as reasons for a dissolving of the marriage bonds. Often there is a collusion or agreement between the husband and wife to secure a separation that each may secure new partners. One woman in Kansas City courts recently lost her case by innocently mentioning that her husband was furnishing the money for her attorney's fees. One man had a woman in waiting in another office in the same building in which the divorce court was located, ready to go with him into the Probate Judge's office for a license to marry as soon as his divorce papers from his wife were issued. The judge, hearing of it after his marriage with the second woman, revoked his decree of divorce, and left him with two wives on his hands—a bigamist.

The facilities and ease with which this sacred tie can be unknotted, and the brazen impudence with which men and women of all classes seek thereby to gratify their desires for a change of consorts, has disgusted even the judges who are accustomed to seeing crime in all its phases; and we are glad to note that public sentiment is becoming more and more antagonistic to the laxity hitherto shown in this regard in some localities, and is insisting upon stricter lines and rules in legalizing separations and the annulling of the marriage vows.

A separation from an unhappy and ill advised union of a man and woman, where, after an earnest effort on the part of at least one of them to patiently adapt themselves to the conditions encountered, it is found impossible to endure further association as husband and wife, is perhaps the wisest course to pursue; but in securing a divorce on such grounds—that is, inability to agree in domestic affairs, or to bear with each other's failings and shortcomings, there is no possible justification in the law of God for either party to marry some one else; none whatever. In that law there are but two valid conditions justifying a second marriage; one is the DEATH of one of the parties to the former covenant; the other, the violation of the marriage vow, "keeping yourselves wholly for each other and from all others during your lives."

To some who have been accustomed to viewing this subject more leniently, this may seem a radical view; but we are square in the opinion that when the Scriptures are so plain upon a subject as they are in this case, laxity in our interpretation of them is not authorized. The Savior, in referring to the question of divorce, and commenting upon the unlawful views then in vogue, laid down the only safe rule by which all who profess his name may, and should, be guided in this important matter, affecting, as it does, our characters for eternity. He said:

It hath been said, Whosoever shall put away his wife, let him give her a writing of divorcement: but I say unto you, That whosoever shall put away his wife, saving for the cause of fornication, causeth her to commit adultery: and whosoever shall marry her that is divorced committeth adultery.—Matt. 5: 31, 32.

Again, in Matthew 19:3-9, he enlarges upon this instruction as follows:

The Pharisees also came unto him, tempting him, and saying unto him, Is it lawful for a man to put away his wife for every cause? And he answered and said unto them, Have ye not read, that he which made them at the beginning made them male and female, and said, For this cause shall a man leave father and mother, and shall cleave to his wife: and they twain shall be one flesh? Wherefore they are no more twain, but one flesh. What therefore God hath joined together, let no man put asunder. They say unto him, Why did Moses then command to give a writing of divorcement, and to put her away? He saith unto them, Moses because of the hardness of your hearts suffered you to put away your wives: but from the beginning it was not so. And I say unto you, Whosoever shall put away his wife, except it be for fornication, and shall marry another, committeth adultery: and whoso marrieth her which is put away doth commit adultery.

Mark (10: 2-12) and Luke (16: 18) omit the exception noted by Matthew in the two instances quoted above, from which fact some have argued that a marriage is unlawful in an individual who for any cause has been divorced. But this position is clearly untenable in the light of reason and "what is written." The Savior was replying to the question of the Pharisees as to whether it was lawful for a man to put away his wife for every cause. They believed that a man had the freest license in this regard, and Jesus rebuked this error; it is plain it was this alone which he aimed to correct, and it is apparent that he wished to impress upon them that no frivolous excuses, such as some had presented, and as many present today, justified the breaking of the marriage tie.

The marriage covenant says, "You both mutually agree to be each other's companion, husband and wife, observing the legal rights belonging to this condition; that is, keeping yourselves wholly for each other, and from all others, during your lives." (D. & C. 111: 2). It is a mutual covenant—a contract: Now, when the provisions of any covenant or contract are broken, it becomes as though it had never been made, and the party who has not violated it, is free from it; he cannot be legally held for carrying out its provisions as between himself or herself and the opposite party. This liberty or freedom, however, does not extend, in law, to the party transgressing. This makes it clear that when fornication or adultery of one of the parties to the marriage covenant is the offense, the one who is guiltless is free, and to him or her it is as if the covenant had never been made, and such a one is free to contract again, while the other must bear the penalty, and remain single, unless the faithful one is willing to condone the offense and continue the old relations.

The Savior says, "What therefore God hath joined together, let no man put asunder;" hence, the only legal separation of two who have been united under heaven's authority, by which the bond is nullified, is where one of the parties transgresses and violates the solemn covenant made at the altar, and thus makes it of none effect, releasing the innocent party and giving them the right to make a new covenant if they so choose. Separations for other causes may be justifiable, but there is no scriptural warrant, so far as we are acquainted, for a marriage with other parties. It is far better to abide in the manifest will of God by which we shall always be justified, than to submit to the dictation of fleshly influences and fancies, contrary to the rule He has established for our guidance, and so come under condemnation in the Judgment.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

ELDER C. SCOTT has been preaching at Grinnell, Iowa, the past week with good success, so advises Bro. E. K. Lester under date of the 19th.

SR. MELISSA S. OMANS, 401 Lynn St., Springfield, Missouri, has about twenty-five back numbers of the ENSIGN which she will give to any who may desire them for missionary purposes. Address her as above.

BRO. T. W. CHATBURN completed his labors at San Bernardino, California, prior to his return home, Thursday the 18th, baptizing thirty while there. He has gone to Los Angeles, thence to San Francisco, from which point he starts east.

ELDER W. S. PENDER recently held nine profitable services in Van DeMarks' hall at Clyde, Kansas, assisted by Brn. F. J. Pierce and J. W. Bean. At the conclusion of the series the owner offered them the use of the hall free for three nights, which was gratefully accepted, and Bro. Pender advises on the 17th that meetings would be resumed in the hall. "Grace and favor" is truly being given those servants of the Master who occupy wisely and faithfully.

THE Congressional Investigating Committee on the B. H. Roberts' case has reported adversely to his being permitted to take his seat, and in favor of exclusion. Two members of the committee, one republican and one democrat, voted to seat him and then immediately expel him, and made a minority report with that recommendation. The matter was to be presented to Congress for debate and vote on Tuesday the 23d. We believe the verdict will be exclusion, and not expulsion.

BRO. WM. CLOW, of Independence, Missouri, who is now at Pittsburg, Kansas, went to a school-house some eight miles from Pittsburg, Sunday the 14th, where a Sunday School was being held by the Saints. He was invited to teach a class, and then to conduct the review. He did this so much to the satisfaction of those present that by vote they changed the afternoon prayer meeting and invited him to preach for them, with which request he willingly complied, and upon comparing notes at the end of his discourse, found, to his astonishment, that he had occupied for two hours. No one seemed to notice the time, so deep was the interest. They urged him to preach again at night, to which he of course consented, and the house was packed, with others standing on the outside at the windows listening, many not of the faith being present. Arrangements were then made for holding services some time in the future at a school-house two and a half miles nearer town. May the Lord abundantly bless our brother's efforts, and give him many sheaves for his labors.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

ELDER H. L. HOLT, Mt. Vernon, Washington:
All goes well; baptized two here; interest good.

SR. (MRS.) W. W. HOUSMAN, Fremont, Indiana:

The article on Christian Science is what was wanted to send to a lady who seems to be losing faith in said science, and is, we hope, ready for the true light, and I send it on with a prayer that she may be shown the truth.

ELDER F. L. SAWLEY, Valley Junction, Wisconsin:

The work is onward here; our Religion and Sunday School with the other societies of the church are doing nicely. The young people, especially, are taking a keen interest in the work.

SR. MARY M. McMILLEN, Washingtonville, Ohio:

Our branch is improving. We all go the one way. There were three came in and we expect more. We have Bible class every Tuesday night and think it is a great help; the more I read, the more I get interested in it. I wish many more could see as I do. I was in the dark, now I can see it all, it is all clear for me.

BRO. GEORGE WARREN, Box 1026, St. Catharines, Ontario, Canada:

We always like to meet the ENSIGN Saturday nights as it is all the preaching we get. I belonged to the old church in Notts, England; have been out since 1863, and never heard of the Reorganized church until a little over two years ago. I came out to go to Utah, but I thank God I never got there. I pray for all my brethren and sisters in the gospel, and ask them to pray for me.

ELDER D. A. HUTCHINGS, Elmo, Nodaway county, Missouri:

The work is on a standstill in this part of the Nodaway district. I have calls for preaching, but the ill health of my mother and other hindrances keep me from doing much preaching. I expected to put all of my time in the mission field when I came down here in December, but could not arrange to get a railroad permit, and it is very hard for one who weighs 250 pounds to travel on foot. As soon as the way opens up so I can do so, I intend to go into the field and stay there.

GENERAL CHURCH NEWS.

INDEPENDENCE.

The Independence papers announce the marriage here Thursday of last week; of G. E. Ward and Mrs. Kate Ward.

Bro. B. F. Hulmes, of Kirtland, Ohio, a brother of Bro. G. H. Hulmes and Sr. W. H. Garrett, arrived Wednesday.

We have been having nice, springlike weather recently. Farmers are doing their spring plowing and getting ready for an early start in the spring. The ground is in nice order for plowing.

The Utah elders who are having a mission conference in Kansas City next month would like to have the use of the stone church Monday and Tuesday evenings following their adjournment.

Sunday was beautiful and clear, and a large attendance was noted at all services. Bro. G. H. Hulmes was the preacher at the morning hour on "Monarchy," and W. H. Garrett at night on "Divorce." The afternoon service was comforting, the gifts being manifest to the especial edification and comfort of one brother.

Have you noticed the change of time in the Missouri Pacific card published in last week's issue? Consult it if going anywhere and don't get left. One change will especially commend itself to Independence people, and will be an appreciated convenience to many. We refer to the Lexington branch train which now leaves the Liberty street station at 8:30 and the main line station at 8:35 a. m., reaching Kansas City in nice time for business. The returning train on the branch leaves Kansas City Union station at 5:40, and Grand avenue at 5:45 p. m., arriving at Independence main line station 6:10 and Liberty street 6:15 p. m. This card will surely be popular with Kansas City business men who have homes in our beautiful city, as well as others, and we hope the patronage will justify its continuance.

LAMONI, IOWA.

The preaching here yesterday at the church was by Brn. J. R. Lambert and D. C. White; at the Home by Elder Gaultier.

Elders Hansen and Bickmore, of Utah, lectured again on Tuesday night, 16th, at the brick church, also on Friday night, 19th, in the Evergreen church.

On Thursday night, 18th, a good prayer and testimony meeting was held at the Saint's Home, led by Bro. L. Gaultier, Sr.

Saturday night, 20th, Apostle H. C. Smith made a lengthy reply to the Utah elders.

Elder Henry A. Stebbins has been preaching, of late, at the Home and in the Evergreen church, built by the members and friends of the Evergreen branch.

During the night about discussion between the Brighamite elders and Bro. Heman Smith, Elder Rusk held a nightly revival at the M. E. church; I have yet to hear of any converts made by any of them, but it was noticed that during the discussion at the brick church a number of strangers attended who were not in the habit of going to church; some made favorable expressions on our side of the question, and were of the opinion that Bro. Heman clearly refuted all the assertions and doctrines advanced by the Utah elders.

January 22.

ST. JOSEPH, MISSOURI.

There was an excellent attendance at all church services yesterday. Topic of morning sermon was, "Church Finances."

A series of meetings are being held at Aspey Mission. The room has been well filled with attentive audiences, the greater part of which have been non-members. A social meeting was held there on Sunday at 6 o'clock p. m., Elder C. E. Guinaud preached in the evening.

A Band of Mercy was organized at the mission yesterday. Sr. Pearle Best was chosen president, Sr. Ollie Randall secretary.

Bro. and Sr. R. Archibald returned from Tyler, Texas, on Friday evening.

Bro. C. E. Hubacher, the bishop's sub-agent, advises us there has been $400 tithing paid by the St. Joseph branch in the last month.

Sr. Maston, an elderly lady, who has been in our city the past few months, was taken very ill last week, but through the ordinance of administration was greatly benefited, and is recovering rapidly. G. L. K.

January 22.

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS.

Meet at 710 Van Buren Street, corner Winchester. Sunday School 1:30 p. m. Testimony at 2:45. Preaching at 7:45 p. m. every Sunday.

Yesterday was a star day for the work in Chicago. There were ten sermons, four Sabbath Schools and one Religio during the day at five different points. Brn. Lake and Henley at West Pullman; Pement and Lang at Park Side; Terry and Good at Lang Mission; Lake and Cooper, at headquarters, respectively.

The opening and dedication of the Park Side mission, 7124 Stony Island avenue, on Thursday night was a happy success. The opening prayer by Bro. S. C. Good, the sermon by Bro. J. H. Lake, the dedicatory prayer by Elder P. Pement, the collection, the prevailing spirit were all good with a good attendance. A Sunday School will be started there soon. The standing appointments will be, preaching at 8 and 7:45 p. m. Sundays, and on Thursday night each week. Brn. E. J. Lang and P. Pement in immediate charge.

A quiet wedding occurred at the parson's house which united for life Bro. Cornelius F. A. Roell and Sr. Margaret Griffith. They departed for Lees' Summit, Missouri, via Independence, where they expect to locate and make their home. Success to them.

The opening of our new quarters on the west side was a pleasant success. The chairs were filled. A large percentage of strangers were present. "What a nice place" was the happy expression passed from one to another. The Saints were joyful and the preacher did well his part; the singing was inspiring, especially the duet by Mrs. "Doty" Logan and Ada Cudworth. Bro. J. H. Lake preached the opening sermon at 2:45, Bro. F. M. Cooper occupying the evening hour. The Sunday School, under the charge of Bro. F. M. Pitt was excellent as a beginning, from which we believe will grow a large and prosperous school. Services will continue each night this week and as interest justifies. The standing appointments will be, preaching at 2:45 and 7:45 Sundays; Sabbath School at 1:30 p. m.; Religio at 6 p. m. The location is 716 Van Buren St.

Sr. Olive Long, of St. Joseph, Missouri, is visiting in the city, whom we were pleased to meet and hear good words about our former field and home. We were pleased to learn of the baptism of Bro. McClellen, believing he will make a "weighty" defender of the truth. Peace and good will to all.

Yours still,

J. M. TERRY.

ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI.

Bro. G. H. Hilliard preached to us January 7th, 8th and 9th. Wednesday and Thursday nights following he occupied the pulpit at Cheltenham; Saturday night of the same week he was the speaker at Oak Hill mission. Business affairs kept him in the city a week longer than he expected, and in the interim he preached twice at Belleville, Illinois. He leaves the city Monday evening for Independence, his home. Independent Bro. Hilliard, fearful only of failing in the line of duty.

Bro. I. N. White and Bishop E. L. Kelley have also visited with us. Bro. White took charge of the prayer service on last Wednesday evening.

Bro. E. L. Kelley came in on Friday; assisted by Brn. Hilliard and White, he addressed the congregation yesterday morning. Many were in attendance. He was also the speaker at night, and was greeted with a large, at tentive crowd. Saturday night he preached at Belleville.

After service Tuesday night, January 9th, many friends of Bro. Hitchcock and wife, assembled themselves at their home. It was a surprise, the occasion being the fifth anniversary of their wedding day. Toy wash tubs, boards, wagon, kindling wood, and clothes-pins by the dozen decorated the parlor table. Afterwards Bro. N. N. Cooke, in a heartfelt speech, presented to Bro. H. and wife quite a handsome rocker. After partaking of a repast the guests withdrew, wishing many returns of "the day."

Wednesday of last week, Sr. Eliza, wife of Andrew Novise, aged 68 years and 11 months, passed from this life. We learn that she joined the original church in England fifty years ago; in the dark and trying hour, she remained loyal and although efforts were made to get her to go to Utah, she persisted in not having anything to do with that faction.

Charles Hilliard, son of Bro. G. H. Hilliard, is now located in the city, stopping with his brother Dave.

Brn. I. N. White and Geo. Hilliard visited the Religio on last Thursday evening; their prayers, at the commencement and conclusion of the meeting, were encouraging.

The Mite Society are going to give a "Hard Times" social February 22d.

Bro. G. Trowbridge has returned to the city, and will probably remain here.

The social service yesterday was in charge of Brn. White and Hilliard. The time was well occupied.

Our Sunday School workers here like the illustrated cards for the primary classes. We believe they will accomplish a splendid work. Our Sunday School is going to have a "Get One Club;" have you any objections, Bro. R.? ETTA.

January 22.

DENVER, COLORADO.

Church, corner of 22d and Arapahoe Sts. Services Sunday.—Sunday School at 9:45 a. m.; preaching at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.; sacrament service the first Sunday in each month at 6 p. m. Prayer meeting Wednesday evening; Zion's Religio-Literary Society Friday evening.

This is the finest winter for years, it scarcely freezes of nights and the days are more like May than January.

Zion's Religio has taken on new life since the first of the year, the program last Friday night was quite interesting.

The services Sunday morning were quite well attended, the speaking was by the pastor, on "Individual Responsibility, Both Spiritually and Temporally." Bro. K. Seli preached at night.

Bro. Joseph Schmutz is very badly afflicted, so that he gets but little rest day or night.

At the election of officers for the Z. R. L. S. there was quite a change made; nearly all of the new officers are of the younger members of the church. Leo Shupe, president; Ed Beardmore, vice president; M. E. Everett, secretary; Winnie Grimm, treasurer. We noticed a change in the lesson program at the last meeting, which is quite an improvement.

Bro. J. W. Gilbert has gone to Leadville, and Sr. Laura is to follow this week, they having secured positions at that place with the Singer Sewing Machine Co.; we shall miss them from the church services, but hope they may be successful in their venture. S.

FIRST KANSAS CITY BRANCH.

Chapel, 2324 Wabash avenue. Take 15th street line to Prospect Ave., transfer to Prospect, get off at 24th, and walk one block west or to the right hand. Time of meetings: Sunday School at 9:30, preaching at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m., social service at 12:30 p. m. Prayer meeting, Wednesday evening at 7:30; Religio, Friday evening at 8. Strangers are cordially invited.

Sunday was another fine day; in fact, most of the month of January has been more like California than Missouri weather.

The attendance at Sunday School was good, and the interest grows with every Sunday; officers, teachers and scholars all seem anxious to do their part well.

Elder B. J. Scott delivered an interesting discourse to a very attentive congregation at 11 a. m.

The social meeting was somewhat peculiar from the fact that the Spirit seemed to come in waves; but altogether it was enjoyed by the participants.

The evening sermon was by Elder F. C. Warnkey, of Argentine, Kansas, and was in his usual apt style.

Sr. Clara Clark is house hunting, so we may expect her parents soon from Chicago.

Bro. and Sr. Roell have concluded to locate in Lees' Summit, Missouri.

R. E. PORTER.

SECOND KANSAS CITY BRANCH.

Corner Sixteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue. Sunday School 9:30 a. m., preaching 11 a. m., prayer meeting 2:30 p. m., preaching 7:30 p. m.

The prayer meeting Wednesday night was one of the best I ever attended. The gifts of prophecy, revelation and tongues and interpretation were manifest, giving encouragement, instruction, and reproof.

The Religio has added several new members. The officers elected for this term are J. A. Koehler, president; Nettie Williams, vice president; Amelia Koehler, secretary; John C. Grainger, treasurer.

The Sunday School attendance and interest is increasing. A movement has started to secure more seats.

Elder M. B. Williams preached on "The gifts of the gospel and their object" to about forty people at the eleven o'clock service Sunday.

Elder Joseph Emmett spoke at the evening meeting on the acknowledgement of the authority of Jesus Christ by all people as mentioned by Paul in the Philippian letter. His strong exhortation to the young folks to beware of the allurements of the world, was timely, plain and effective.

The special business meeting last Monday night was the best attended business meeting the branch has had for many months. The resolutions proposed by Bro. Williams, of California, and Bro. Ordway, of Illinois, concerning a council of the priesthood, and a system of voting, were tabled, after deep consideration, peace and harmony prevailing.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA.

Services at Golden West Hall, 320 Post street, every Sunday. Sunday School 10 a. m., preaching 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.; prayer meeting first Sunday of each month at 12:15 noon. Elder C. A. Parkin presiding elder, residence 3010 16th street.

Sr. J. B. Price is very sick, and has been for some time, she is aided by the administrations, but not yet healed. Sr. Nettie Richardson has been very sick with appendicitis. The doctors declared that there was only one chance left for her, and that was an operation. She sent for the elders, Brn. Parkin and Anthony went and administered to her, and she received immediate relief. She was at church Sunday morning, very much improved.

The Daughters of Zion held their meeting Thursday afternoon. A strange condition of things, Sr. Lizzie Parkin was elected to fill all the offices. The Sisters' Prayer Union held its session the same day.

Sr. Susan M. White, from Montana is here, with her sick son. The prayers of the Saints are requested in his behalf.

The Religio met Friday evening and elected officers: Sr. M. A. Saxe president, Lizzie Parkin vice president, Edgar Smith secretary, J. Lawn financial secretary, C. A. Parkin treasurer, Charles Wyatt organist, May Cross chorister, Lizzie Parkin librarian.

We had preaching Sunday morning by Chas. A. Parkin. Our hall was full of interested listeners. In the evening your correspondent was the speaker. Quite a number of strangers were present at both services. One young man gave in his name for baptism. The infant child of Sr. Brown was blessed.

Warm, sunny weather here now, and all nature looks bright. GEO. S. LINCOLN.

January 17.

PROVIDENCE, RHODE ISLAND.

Elder Geo. H. Smith occupied the Saints' pulpit here last Sunday evening. His sermon was full of good points. Jas. Johnson, the noted baritone singer, oldest son of Sr. Mary C. Johnson of this city, was among the listeners.

Bro. William H. Holden of this branch can speak Greek, Hebrew and German besides the English language. He is an active worker.

A week ago, last Sunday Master Glover was baptized here. Last Sunday Bro. John P. Brown was immersed by Elder Geo. Smith. Bro. Brown will doubtless make a stalwart in this work. A recent call at his home evidenced the fact that he is indeed an artist on the dulcimer, the sweet sounding musical instrument of ancient Babylon. His oldest son, Fred, usually accompanies him on the piano. The local Religio should put them on their musical list for a future program.

Sr. Edith Perry acted as organist last Sunday evening in the absence of Bro. Adolph. By the way, Sr. Edith is one of the best hustlers on the program committee work that the Religio has had.

LETTER DEPARTMENT.

VIROQUA, Wisconsin, Jan. 13. Dear Ensign:—I have been continually in my field of labor during the summer, fall and winter thus far. I attended the reunion at Janesville last September. Since that I labored in Juneau, Monroe, Richland counties and other places. Have been abundantly blessed throughout.

After the conference at Valley Junction I was assigned to Crawford and Vernon counties so in a few days I came to the above named place (Viroqua), walked out about five miles to the home of Bro. and Sr. Johnson, began meetings in the I. O. G. T. hall and for three weeks lifted my voice in presenting our views and defending the faith. It is a Campbellite neighborhood and met great opposition. Some people do love to expose their ignorance in public; they read encyclopedias, newspaper clippings and went so far as to get an M. E. preacher who did not know anything about us, but was anxious to expose our faith. It all passed away like chaff before the wind. To make a long story short, I believe I had more of the Spirit of God as an abiding Comforter; the best liberty of speech, with coolness and calmness of mind in defending the work than ever before.

I understand they are going to send to Missouri for a man to expose us and defend their cause, but men in Missouri who know something bad about us are scarce there as well as in Wisconsin. By the help of God and the prayers of the Saints I am ready to defend our faith anywhere and at any time. Bro. and Sr. Johnson are among the isolated ones, but enjoyed the meetings very much. We invited our opposers to post up before they tried to go too far. Finished last Sunday evening; baptized one and think more will be soon.

Thursday I went about thirteen miles and visited Bro. Lang. He is very weak. I feel he is on his deathbed, but when I came he was reading the ENSIGN. He roused up and talked as well apparently as ever. His mind is clear, his eye keen, and it seemed as if he was out on a mission defending the work once more. May God bless the old soldier who has borne the burden in the heat of the day.

Ever laboring and praying for the spread of the gospel.

Your brother, J. B. WILDERMUTH.

GROVE SPRINGS, Mo., Jan. 15.

Editor Ensign:—I am still in the warfare and battling for the right. I want to make a better record this year than I did last. My faith in this latter day work is strong. Brethren and sisters, let us all be up and doing—"not a moment to lose," for the work is great and the cause is just. Let me ask, are we keeping the mote or beams out of our own eyes, or are we looking mostly at the others? How is it with you, my brother? How is it with you, my sister? Let us today, not tomorrow, ask ourselves individually if we are keeping the Word of Wisdom, the commandments, and paying our tithing? If we are, yell.

On January 2d I baptized one sister of Douglas county. Although the ice had to be cut, she bravely followed the example of Jesus, and with her husband she now rejoices in the restored gospel. Also, yesterday I immersed the wife of Bro. Ed McAllister into the fold of Christ. I trust both these sisters will so live that they will be a credit to the cause of Christ. Let us all watch and pray lest we enter into temptation.

Your brother in Christ, C. J. SPURLOCK.

OTTAWA, I. T., Jan. 17.

Dear Ensign:—Through your columns I desire to thank those who were so kind to send me the ENSIGN; it has given me so much comfort and has been an aid to me. Since I was ordained an elder the ENSIGN has been a wonderful help to me in many different ways, as I have been made to see the glorious truth contained in the Bible and Book of Mormon. I have a desire that I may be an instrument in disseminating their truths to my own race of people—the Lamanites. I am preaching some.

The work is moving nicely in this part. Some are obeying every little while. I do hope I will be able to stand until the elders of this great work receive their endowments, but I understand it will be those who are faithful in obeying all God has commanded. I am thinking some of attending the General Conference, if I see my way through. My prayers are for all but especially the Lamanites; this is natural. May the good work roll on and on till the good Master calls us home. Your brother, NOAH KARAHOO.

BEATRICE, Neb., Jan. 17.

Editor Ensign:—We still live in faith and hope of the Master. Since March last I have been laboring as a local minister within the limits of the Hebrew branch, we living about fourteen miles from the place of meeting. At times the disagreeable roads made the trip very unpleasant; however, we were cheered with the thought that perhaps we were accomplishing some good, at least, for our Redeemer's cause.

We are more than pleased to think that conditions are such that we are permitted to take up active work in the field again, and shall continue as such should the conference, or those in authority, think it wisdom to assign me another appointment in the spring.

I attended the district conference held at Wilber, January 14 and 15. All went well, and we believe, for the good of the work in the district. A spiritual feast was enjoyed by all those in attendance. From thence we came to this place where we began a series of meetings last evening in Mt. Olive school-house, about five miles north of Beatrice. The attendance was fairly good. We are desirous to see the work of the Lord roll forth until Jesus shall have "purified unto himself a peculiar people, zealous of good works."

Your brother in Christ, H. W. BELVILLE.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Jan. 13.

Editor Ensign:—I came to this city a week ago today from Hills, this state, and as I want my ENSIGN to follow me up, I thought while sending my address I would write a few lines for its columns, though I have no education in this language except what I have received through reading the ENSIGN and church publications, or in other words, the gospel, which enlightens the minds of the person in things temporal as well as spiritual.

I was born in Norway and came to this country ten years ago, where I have embraced the restored gospel, for which I am thankful to my heavenly Father in having spared my life, and leading me to where I had an opportunity to hear and obey the angel's message in these latter days. The world need not say, "I wish that I had lived in the days of the apostles, when the power, gifts and blessings accompanied the gospel," for I am sure they can enjoy these things now if they only obey the gospel. I don't believe the former day saints enjoyed themselves any more in the gospel than we as Latter Day Saints do, and can do, if we live up to it. To me it is great joy, peace and comfort in this life, and the great hope and assurance of the resurrection of the just, and eternal life, if I only continue faithful to the end, which is my desire and expectation.

I met with the Saints here last Sunday in communion service, and Bro. I. N. Roberts being with us, preached in the evening, and Tuesday night also. Those who were in attendance enjoyed it very much. Besides meeting and visiting with the Saints, it was a great strength to me for I enjoyed it very much, and as the Saints are the same everywhere, and rejoice to meet, it makes me think of that great meeting of the Saints. May God hasten the time when the gospel shall be preached to every nation, and that those who are willing to accept it might be gathered into his kingdom. Dear Saints, let us as workers in the Lord's vineyard, always be found doing our duty, that Zion may be redeemed. I desire to press onward and ask the Saints to pray for me, that I might be the means of bringing souls into God's kingdom.

Your brother in the gospel bonds, BERT JOHNSON.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Dec. 25.

Editor Ensign:—Christmas with Fall River Saints; like most branches in the district, the Saints had arranged for a Christmas tree. The church was beautifully decorated with holly and evergreen stars. The most conspicuous of the decorations was a large arch, arranged under the tactful supervision of Bro. Howlett. It reached across the entire end, and was, in itself, a masterpiece. It was arranged with a background of white, trimmed tastefully with holly, with the words "Merry Xmas" showing through. An evergreen star was suspended from the center.

Underneath the arch was a realistic home scene, with the old fireplace. On the left, in front of the arch, was the tree, beautifully decorated. Promptly at 3:30 Superintendent D. T. Shaw called the assembly to order, and a Christmas anthem was sung by the school. Prayer by the pastor, Elder John Smith; psalm 96 was read. The pastor then delivered a brief and inspiring address.

An excellent program had been provided and was well rendered. Special features and those deserving of mention were: dialogues by intermediate and infant classes. Refreshments were served during the intermission, after which the curtains were again drawn, revealing a pretty home scene; the mother sat at the table knitting, awaiting the return of her two little girls, presently they entered, and, after carefully laying away their wraps, a pretty dialogue ensued, interspersed with singing. The children then retired to other rooms and prepared for bed, returned in night robes, and carefully hung up their stockings over the fireplace, after saying their prayers at mothers knees, they were snugly tucked in bed.

When all were fast asleep in came good, old Santa with his pack of toys; after carefully filling the stockings Santa retires. The Christmas singers could now be heard singing an anthem: all were awakened by the singers, the children joyously inspect their stockings, and the pretty scene closes. Now came the distribution of presents. The class prizes were given first.

The pastor then, in behalf of the Fall River Saints, presented Sr. S. W. Ashton with a beautiful remembrance, in recognition of her faithful service as organist, covering a long period of time. The general distribution of presents was made interesting and lively by the witty remarks of Santa Claus. The orchestra rendered excellent assistance throughout the entertainment. Everything passed off nicely, and, taken all in all, we think it the best Christmas entertainment ever enjoyed in Fall River. W. A. S.

COXVILLE, Neb., Dec. 27.

Editor Ensign:—We appreciate the ENSIGN and Herald as they are all the preachers we have now, and as we hear from our many friends in Kansas and Missouri, including Bro. and Sr. Parsons, Sr. Bradley, of Webb City, and others too numerous to mention, glad to hear from all. We are still in the faith and are doing as well as can be expected in this north Nebraska country; would like to be with Saints. Bro. Cahall, when O, when, are you coming our way? Love to all Saints. Mrs. E. J. DAVIDSON.

CARBERRY, Manitoba, Dec. 25.

Dear Ensign:—Almost a year has expired since I wrote to you, and I have been reminded lately that it was time I should renew my subscription. I have no church news to talk about, but I must tell you that every Monday brings to me glad news from the silent preacher, and I feel thankful that if I can't hear the gospel preached, I can read about its being preached in other places. About the first thing I do when I get the ENSIGN is to look if there are any letters from the Saints in Ontario, but I mostly look in vain; wake up, Ontario Saints, and let us hear from you.

I would love to hear the true gospel preached once more, and I am praying the Lord will send a laborer into this part of his vineyard; if there ever was a place where the gospel was needed to be preached, it is in this country, as there is so much wickedness; I think much good could be done. I got a letter from Bro. Wm. Sparling last winter saying that he would try and come here to preach, as he was near the line between Manitoba and Dakota, and I was so thankful; I wrote and told him where to come to, but got an answer saying he could not come, as he had to go to South Dakota, and oh, how disappointed I was; but I hope in the near future to again hear the gospel bell ringing.

My greatest desire is to serve the Lord in a way that is pleasing in his sight, but oh, it is hard when everything that surrounds you is sin, and no person to encourage you. Oh, dear Saints, it is an awful thing to be isolated away from gospel privileges. I feel sometimes when I read the ENSIGN, that I could take wings and fly away to some place where they have such blessed times at their meetings.

I wish to be remembered to all the Saints that I know, and it any of them wish to write to me I will gladly receive their letters as it always encourages me to hear from the Saints. I would like to hear from Bro. Dan and Sr. Maggie McGregor, also from Bro. Samuel Tomlinson. I remain your loving sister in the true and everlasting gospel of Jesus Christ.

Mrs. J. M. JORDAN.

ALMA, Illinois, Jan. 3.

Editor Ensign:—I wish to tell through the columns of your esteemed paper why I believed the angel's message and became a member of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. In the first place I will say, I have been a member of the M. E. Church since I was eleven years old. In my simplicity when I read the Bible I believed it meant what it said; believed Jesus' promises, although I had heard miracles had ceased. I had had prayer answered, visions and dreams verified. I used to go to my saintly mother with all my experiences and she always encouraged me. I was sprinkled when I was a child, my parents being members of the M. E. Church and living up to the best light they had.

For several years I have been convinced that immersion was the only mode of baptism, but I could not find my ideal church according to my understanding of the Bible, or in other words, one that preached the fullness of the gospel. I had been praying for some time that God would guide me to the right church and promised Him if he would take me into his kingdom, I would work for him if he would give me strength. I was sick and almost ready to give up in despair, when one night I had a vision; an angel came to me and took me by the hand and told me not to be afraid, that I was almost ready to enter into the kingdom, and God wanted me. She also told me other things. When I awoke and told my husband, "Time went on and one day I seemed worse. I told my husband and children if I did not get better I would not live long and I did not want to die before I was baptized. I seemed better after I had made up my mind to be baptized, but did not know what church to join, but trusted in the Lord to guide me. That was on Saturday; on Sunday Elder J. D. Stead of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints preached at our school-house, also a Baptist preacher, but I was not able to go. Elder Stead preached nearly all week at night. In a few nights I was able to go out, and when I heard the gospel in its fullness I felt that God had answered my prayer. We invited him home with us and he explained the Scripture to us, and before he left I obeyed the gospel and am happy. I gained strength every day, and the statement found in John 7: 16, 17 is verified in my case: "If any man will do the will of the Father, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God, or whether I speak of myself."

God has manifested himself to me in many ways since I came into the church and can truthfully say as did Daniel, there is a God in heaven that revealeth secrets. I did not join the church for popularity, for I know Jesus' gospel never was popular with the world; and some of my people think I have disgraced them, for they are prejudiced on account of reading the history of the Utah people, and make no distinction between them and the Reorganized Church. I have no other desire but to serve the Lord to the best of my ability in whatever way he sees fit. My husband has also obeyed the gospel. I have three children. Dear Saints, pray for me that I may have health and strength to labor for the Master and raise my children in his service. We do not get to hear the gospel in its fullness very often, but the ENSIGN is a welcome visitor and we enjoy reading it very much. Ever praying for the welfare of Zion and the gathering of the Saints, contending earnestly for the faith once delivered to the saints, and that we may all look forward with joy for the Lord's glorious appearing, I am your sister in the faith, E. J. McCULLOON.

ANOTHER BOOK.

ELDER R. M. ELVIN.

[CONCLUDED.]

The fault I have to find with Miss Dougall, she draws from the writings of the workers of wickedness, and not from the standard text books of the church and its history. Had she consulted the Times and Seasons for October 1, 1832, the official organ of the church at that time, she would have found these certificates:

We the undersigned, members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, and residents of the city of Nauvoo, persons of families, do hereby certify and declare, that we know of no other rule or system of marriage than the one published from the Book of Doctrine and Covenants, and we give this certificate to show, that Dr. J. C. Bennett's secret wife system is a creature of his own make, as we know of no such society in this place, nor never did.

We add the following:

We the undersigned, members of the Ladies' Relief Society, and married females, do certify and declare, that we know of no system of marriage being practiced in the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, save the one contained in the Book of Doctrine and Covenants; and we give this certificate to the public, to show that J. C. Bennett's secret wife system is a disclosure of his own make.

There are those who ridicule the testimony of John Taylor, Wilford Woodruff and others, because in later life they departed from the truth and entered into sin, and testified contrary-wise. I would ask, how would such a rule act against Sampson, David, Solomon, and many of the Reformers? Why could not Miss Dougall have used the following from the authentic writings of Joseph Smith:

"We have given the above rule of marriage as the only one practiced in this church, to show that Dr. J. C. Bennett's secret wife system is a matter of his own manufacture; and further, to disabuse the public ear, and show that the said Bennett and his misanthropic friend, Origen Bacholor, are perpetrating a foul and infamous slander upon an innocent people, and need but be known to be hated and despised." The rule of marriage referred to, already appears in this paper.

The lengthy extract from pages 354-5, are nothing more or less than Brighamite sophistry; the base subterfuge of those in the practice of evil, and manifests the choice of material that Miss Dougall prefers using in constructing her tale of misrepresentation.

By way of explanation for the following, will state, it is represented that Susannah was the school teacher for the Mormon children at Quincy, but that she was supplanted by teachers holding certificates, so of her it is written: "The change was made. It was not until Susannah had passed the first desolate day of her dethronement that Darling came to her, sent with profuse apologies from the prophet, and the explanation that the chief motive of the change had been to relieve her from labor now that the church was in a position to offer her adequate support. The message was accompanied by many compliments upon her work and her fidelity, and a document officially signed, in which it was set forth that the part and lot which would have pertained to Halsey in the Holy City was considered as hers; rooms and entertainment at the Nauvoo house were offered. It was handsomely done. Smith in his poverty had been no niggard, and of his wealth he was lavish. The documents explained what rooms, size and position given, should be hers, what furniture at her disposal, what ailment, what allowance from the treasury for clothing and charity. The scale was magnificent. Darling was also commissioned to offer her a ticket on one of the river boats to Nauvoo, and his own escort. He urged her instant acceptance. Darling had been promoted from his post at Quincy to that of postmaster at Nauvoo, and he could not delay his journey."—M. P., p. 331.

This supposed interview is original with Miss Dougall, and is presented as taking place before all the Saints had removed from Quincy to Nauvoo, and from the true history of the events would make the time fall late in the summer of 1839; it is most absurd that these people so lately driven from their homes in Missouri, and robbed of nearly all earthly possessions, should have accomplished so much in such a short space of time. Perhaps it is absolutely true that Joseph Smith was never selfish nor stingy, but there are some stubborn facts that will not down; they keep bobbing up asking, How can Miss Dougall's flowery picture be true? History tells us that Joseph Smith was cast into prison the latter part of November, 1838, and made his escape from the guard while in transit from Davies to Boone county, April 15, 1839, arriving at Quincy the 22d of the same month. The revelation directing the building of the "Nauvoo house," was given to the church January 19, 1841, and as a living witness, I faithfully and truthfully testify, that upon my visit to Nauvoo in the month of November, 1867, the brickwork on the basement story was all that had been accomplished.

The church never built the

"Nauvoo House!" So the elf-fire of Miss Dougall but leads to the death swamp of bitter disappointment, and whosoever shall undertake to follow her lead to find truth, will have, as a guiding star, a mischievous ignis fatuus and they may rush on in the mad pursuit of a receding mirage which is like the orthodox heaven—beyond the bounds of time and space, and will never materialize. Zounds! Is it possible that an intellectual lady of Montreal, would have us believe that Mr. Darling (whoever he was), a refugee from the mob violence of Missouri, locating at Quincy, Adams county, Illinois, should be appointed postmaster at Nauvoo, Hancock county, Illinois, while he was yet living at Quincy? What gullible creatures she must think we Yankees are! The mystic wand of wealth must have touched all nature in behalf of the Mormon people, if there is a scintilla of truth in what Miss Dougall tells us of their changed condition after locating at Nauvoo. Hear her extravagant description: "Twice a day under Susannah's windows Smith's carriage drew up, a pair of fine gray horses carrying the prophet to and fro upon the affairs of church and state. When he took Emma with him Susannah observed that she was always richly attired, and the other members of the Mormon hierarchy resident in Nauvoo, "bishops," "elders," "apostles," "prophets," passed constantly in and out of the house, positively shining in broadcloth and silken hats, their wives and daughters also in brilliant array.

"Externally the success appeared to be complete, and beyond even the visionary's most glorious dreams. In the whole of the city no one was poor, no one ignorant of such knowledge as school-books could afford, no one drunken; everyone was uplifted and animated beyond their ordinary capacity for effort and enjoyment by this material fulfillment of prophecy, and the more glorious future hope which it involved. Susannah was not well rested after her journey when Emma descended upon her with lavish gifts of silks and fine feathers. Emma, grown patronizing with prosperity, always plain and maternal, displayed her gifts and argued for their acceptance with broad satisfaction."—M. P., pp. 333-4.

The above is the gush of a forger, writing upon events that took place some sixty years before it ever entered her brain to write. Let us now hear from one of the eye witnesses of those times:

"LIBERTY (Mo.),
Nov. 29, 1838.

"Respected Friends:—Humanity to an injured people prompts me at present to address you thus: You were aware of the treatment (to some extent before you left home) received by that unfortunate race of beings called the Mormons from Daviess, in the form of human beings inhabiting Daviess, Livingston, and a part of Ray county; not being satisfied with the relinquishment of all their rights as citizens and human beings in the treaty forced upon them by General Lucas, by giving up their arms and throwing themselves upon the mercy of the state and their fellow citizens generally, hoping thereby protection of their lives and property, are now receiving treatment from those demons that makes humanity shudder and the cold chills run over any man not entirely destitute of any feeling of humanity.

"Those demons are now constantly strolling up and down Caldwell county in small companies armed, insulting the women in any and every way, and plundering the poor devils of all the means of subsistence (scanty as it was), left them, and driving off their horses, cattle, hogs, etc., and rifling their houses and farms of everything therein, taking beds, bedding, wardrobe, and all such things as they see they want, leaving the poor Mormons in a starving and naked condition."

This letter of Mr. M. Arthur was written to the representatives of Clay county, during the suffering and excitement of exterminating the Saints from the state of Missouri, under the order of Governor Lilburn W. Boggs.

Kind reader, can you believe that a people so robbed and plundered, could in two or three years, possess the wealth and grandeur as described by Miss Dougall? It is simply a flight of her vivid imagination without any consideration to circumstances or the truth.

"Shortly after Susannah is installed in the Nauvoo House(?) she concludes to quit Nauvoo, and likewise the church, and is represented that Joseph, on learning this, went to her, and read from a Gentile newspaper, the St. Louis Atlas, one paragraph of which reads: 'Most conspicuous among the buildings of the Holy City is the temple built of white stone upon the hill top. It is intended as a shrine in the western wilderness whereat all nations of the earth may worship.'—M. P., p. 343.

The commandment to build the Nauvoo temple was given January 19, 1841; the basement was so far completed that the baptismal font was dedicated November 8, 1841, and the temple was burned November 19, 1848; it was still in an unfinished condition at the time of its destruction. December 15, 1841, the quorum of Twelve sent out an epistle to the church, nine of whom signed it, in which they said: "The building of the temple of the Lord, in the city of Nauvoo, is occupying the first place in the exertions and prayers of many of the Saints at the present time, knowing as they do that if this building is not completed speedily, we shall be rejected as a church, with our dead, for the Lord our God hath spoken it."—Tract 42, p. 1.

This shows that it was considered of tantamount importance to the life or existence of the church, that the temple should be completed, and that within a given time. In a letter dated September 6, 1842, to the church, by the Prophet Joseph Smith, he keeps the importance of building the temple before the people in these words: "Let us, therefore, as a church and a people, and as Latter Day Saints, offer unto the Lord an offering in righteousness; and let us present in his Holy Temple, when it is finished, a book containing the records of our dead, which shall be worthy of all acceptance."—Ibid.

After the death of the prophet P. P. Pratt urges the people to finish or build the temple; he said: "The great God said through Joseph: Build this temple; I give you a sufficient time to build it, and if you do not build it by the appointed time, you shall be rejected as a people, with your dead."—Tract 42, p. 2.

Thus I have clearly demonstrated that the statement of Miss Dougall of the temple on the "hilltop," is utterly untrue.

Most unkind is the attempt of Miss Dougall to have Joseph Smith advocating human slavery, and she puts it in quotation marks, but fails to cite her authority. Here it is: "And I would say parenthetically, my sister, that it may be that our views on the subject, coming from the northern states, as you and I have done, have not been according to the mind of the Lord, I would have no man a slave because of misfortune, but if a man proved himself unfit to rule himself I'm not sure about his being free."—M. P., p. 351.

An all sufficient answer to the above is found in the word of the Lord, which says: "Therefore, it is not right that any man should be in bondage one to another. And for this purpose have I established the constitution of this land, by the hands of wise men whom I raised up unto this very purpose, and redeemed the land by the shedding of blood."—D. & C., p. 270.

The above were the views of Joseph Smith from December 16, 1833, till his death.

Miss Dougall would impress her readers that Joseph Smith would have created Susannah "as prophetess-in-chief" to the church if she would have but consented; see page 360. Strange that the church should have been in existence almost seventy years, and many had served a lifetime in the church, and none have discovered there was such honorable greatness to thrust upon some woman.

The knowledge of American geography, or the expense of American travel, which? Miss Dougall may arise and explain, for she tells us that Susannah had laid up fifty dollars, earned by school teaching, and the same was loaned to Emma Smith; the following caused the above inquiry: "That night Susannah packed her possessions in the smallest possible compass. The money she had lent to Emma would be sufficient for the journey to Carthage, which was the nearest Gentile town, and thither she was determined to go without an hour's delay."—M. P., p. 363.

Reader, what would you think of paying fifty dollars to ride ten or twelve miles? for that is about the distance from Nauvoo to Carthage.

Do tell! Miss Dougall informs us thusly: "Darling was now postmaster of Nauvoo and one of the first presidency."—M. P. p. 366.

This was just prior to the death of the prophet, and at that time the first presidency was: Joseph Smith, Sidney Rigdon and William Law. The man, Darling, was with the Saints on leaving Missouri, but how about Rigdon and Law; are you not once more like the poor, unfortunate Irishman, "badly twisted?"

Miss Dougall seems to think that she has made a most wonderful discovery that will startle the world when she writes: "Two new doctrines we have learned at Nauvoo. Do you know what they are? One is baptism of the dead. If you get off safely, Susannah, and die in your sins, one of us must be baptized again for you, so that you will be saved in spite of yourself."—M. P., pp. 371-372.

This would open wide the flood gates of risibility of the most consummate recluse, that any church would believe in baptizing the inanimate clay of the departed, for that is the way Miss Dougall wrote the proposition of the new doctrine; indeed it is new, and the manner of putting it reminds me of David R. Dungan, in his violating the rules of debate, that he might exploit in ridicule against the church, saying: "These Latter Day Saints are the strangest people on earth, they cast out the sick, heal the dead and raise the devil." Our Canadian author must have drank at the same fountain of inspiration; however, she completely spoils her own proposition by the explanation which she furnishes.

Permit me to say the church, for good and sufficient reasons, does believe in the principle of baptism for the dead, and that it is by permission, and not by command, complied with under the immediate direction of divine revelation, and is not optional with man.

The next new doctrine that Miss Dougall discovers at Nauvoo, is told in these tragic words: "But the other doctrine is salvation by the shedding of blood." 'Do you understand that doctrine?' 'Indeed I do not.' 'And you speak with a tone that says that you neither know nor care what new things we have been learning. But you may have reason to care before many hours are over.' She came near and whispered, 'They teach us now that if a man sin wilfully and will not repent, it is better that a minister of the church should slay him, for then his blood will make atonement for his soul.' She ceased to speak until she had thrust Susannah out of her door, and her last words were in a whisper of awesome import, 'Perhaps a woman's soul can be saved in the same way.'—M. P. p. 372.

The emphasis is by the author, and the composition of the above is the language of Elvira, Susannah and the author. There can be no mistake, but what it was the premeditated determination of Miss Dougall to incriminate Joseph Smith in the dogma or crime of "blood atonement." With all the indignation of my soul, I resent the malediction, and without fear of successful contradiction, challenge Miss Dougall to produce from the authentic writings of Joseph Smith any proof that he taught the fiendish practice of "blood atonement."

When Susannah made her escape from Nauvoo she cajoled a poor simpleton of a lad to row her over the river, like Dewey, before breakfast, to a steamboat on the opposite shore from Nauvoo, and Miss Dougall gives us another original lesson in American geography and navigation, as follows: "She asked if the steamboat would stop at the Nauvoo wharf, but he explained, with the knowledge that boys are apt to have of such details, that this steamer was coming from Fort Madison, and would keep to the Missouri side, that he had heard that there were some state officials on board her, escorting the governor of Kentucky, who was prospecting for a Land Company."—M. P., p. 397.

What school child of ten years of age, from the rock-ribbed coast of Maine to the Golden Gate of California; from the widespread prairies of Minnesota to the everglades of Florida, but what knows that Jowa—not Missouri—is directly across the Mississippi river from the city of Nauvoo? Who, of average intelligence, that has traveled upon our American rivers, but knows that the rule of navigators is to keep their craft in the deep or best channel of the stream? And this rule is most important to boats going down the river in the vicinity of Nauvoo, on account of the proximity of the Des Moines rapids.

As this event recited by Miss Dougall took place (that is, supposedly?) before the general use of railroads and telegraphy, and when daily newspapers were not common in a town like Nauvoo, so far west; and especially when state officials are quite wary and reticent about public affairs, it is a puzzle to me how that boy hoodwinked by Susannah was in possession of so much valuable information and knowledge. Perhaps this is the same boy that was hid in the fence corner one dark night, almost transfixed with fear, as he was an unwilling listener to Joseph Smith praying upon the moor of Quincy. I would like to inquire why you never worked that boy in as a character of your plot against the probity of Joseph Smith?

Susannah, after making her escape from Nauvoo, returns to Manchester, New York, and married her cousin Ephraim Croom, and soon after occurred the death of the prophet, and before the hot summer is gone there comes plodding along the dusty road a poor nondescript, perhaps in the parlance of our time better described as a tramp. Mr. Croom takes him home, and his wife asks: "You are one of the Latter Day Saints?" The unfortunate fellow confessed and at once unloaded himself about the downfall of Nauvoo and the scattering of the Saints; he is made to say among other things: "As near as I can make out, the scandal they have got agin us, which they've always had agin us because of the wickedness of the Gentile mind, began to have some truth in it when Rigdon came out with his teaching concerning the nonsense of spiritual wives, which wasn't new with him, for I hear that it's held among all the folks as call themselves "Perfectionists." Well, our prophet made pretty quick work of that doctrine, and he rebuked Rigdon in public and private, and packed him out of the place, and no one can say that our prophet has ever done otherwise with any one as has had notions about marriage."—M. P. p. 416.

Miss Dougall has kept constantly before the eye of her readers that Joseph Smith was the responsible party for all of evil done by those who ever were Latter Day Saints, and she is quite knacky in transferring the doings of Utah and the nineties, back to Nauvoo and the forties. It is hard to believe that her last witness—crippled and gray headed, could have walked from Nauvoo, Illinois, from after June 27th to Manchester, New York, in time to reach there in the harvest season, and that he should know so much that never did take place.

So much was said about spiritual wives and is still kept up that I copy from article by E. M. Webb, as published in the Kalamazoo (Mich.) Gazette, of May, 1845: "The Latter Day Saints are charged by their enemies with the blackest crimes. Treason, murder, theft, polygamy and adultery are among the many crimes laid to their charge. * * * Mr. Rigdon's spiritual wife system was never known till it was hatched by J. C. Bennett, who was cut off from the church for sedition."—Tract 16, p. 9.

This should be satisfactory evidence that it was Bennett, and not Rigdon, who was the originator of the false doctrine of spiritual wifeism.

On page 418, Miss Dougall has Bennett on the gad around Nauvoo masked in the clothes of the prophet, creeping into houses and teaching silly women the "rank spiritual wife doctrine" of Rigdon. Who could be deceived with such a tale? Smith was a large man, over six feet in his stockings, while Bennett was a small man, not over five feet eight inches, and not over one hundred and forty pounds in weight. Humph! how these soap bubbles do collapse when punctured by a ray of truth.

Croom's visitor went on to say: "There's a strong party among the apostles and elders that are worshippers of Baal, and are 'most evil in their conduct and practice, and are apostates, though they call themselves followers of the prophet. And Mr. Brigham Young is at the head of them. It's a bad thing; that the Illinois militia is set out to fight against us and turn us out of the city without mercy, but it's a sorer thing that the greater part of our people, being ignorant, will follow Mr. Brigham Young; and he's bent on going west, sir, into the heart of the Rocky Mountains, where he can set up a kingdom of his own. His teaching is against good doctrine in two respects; he says that they will wax strong there until they can avenge the blood of their brethren who have been hunted and slain, and that the elders and apostles will live like the patriarchs of old and have many wives, in order to build up the Church."—M. P., pp. 425-6.

Not an iota of the above could have been in the brain of any mortal so soon after the murder of the prophet. I will here furnish a few historical dates. Joseph and Hyrum Smith were killed in the Hancock county jail, June 27, 1844. The authorities of the church made a treaty September 24, 1845, to leave Nauvoo the next spring. In compliance with the foregoing treaty the Saints commenced their departure from Nauvoo in February, 1846. The authorities of the church immediately after the clash between the Saints and the militia, made another treaty September 16, 1846, to surrender and immediately evacuate the city. April 14, 1847, the pioneers left Winter Quarters (now called Florence, a suburb of Omaha, Nebraska) for the West in quest of a location to establish the church. The objective point was somewhere in upper California, as they were wont to sing: "O, that's the land for me." July 24, 1847, this company arrived in the valley of the Great Salt Lake and decided to make that their future home. December 27, 1847, at Kanesville, (now Council Bluffs, Iowa) Brigham Young, Heber C. Kimball and Willard Richards usurped the First Presidency of the church. This epitomized data will show how Miss Dougall borrowed from time and Utahism to fit her novel and attempt to palm it upon the public as the doings and teachings of Joseph Smith.

The absence of good common sense in Miss Dougall is manifest in that she seeks to besmirch the character of the prophet through the testimony of one who is favorable to the man of God, and that his life was that of uprightness and all his ministerial acts a straightforwardness that won the confidence and respect of all those with whom he associated. She is amply refuted in that no announcement of polygamy, as a church tenet, was made by any faction of Mormonism until done so by Brigham Young and his co-agents at Salt Lake City, Utah, August 29, 1852, or eight years, two months and two days after the killing of the prophet.

It is safe in presuming that if the prophet taught and practiced this crime, that Young and company would not have been so tardy in proclaiming and putting it in practice, when we consider that they were all this time living on the frontier of civilization, where every man was a law unto himself. And again: Illicit commerce of marital relation is sure to produce fruit; some fruit at least in the direction of the command in Genesis 1: 28. Even good old father Abraham's unlawful relation with Hagar gave the world an Ishmael. Now, in all candor and religious seriousness, I ask Miss Dougall and those who think and write as she does, as also those imbued with the belief of the truth of polygamy, where is Joseph Smith's Ishmael?

Avenge the blood of those "hunted and slain" pertained to the teaching behind locked doors in the endowment house, and the first of that kind of an institution was built at Salt Lake City, Utah, and dedicated May 5, 1855. This, together with the statement on page 426 of "Mormon Prophet," should exonerate Joseph Smith from such fanatical lawbreaking.

The rule which shall govern the lives of the Saints so that they may live pleasing before God, is comprehended in the following: "Let no man think he is a ruler, but let God rule him that judgeth, according to the counsel of his own will; or, in other words, him that counsel eth or sitteth upon the judgment seat. Let no man break the laws of the land, for he that keepeth the laws of God hath no need to break the laws of the land; wherefore be subject to the powers that be, until He reigns whose right it is to reign, and subdues all enemies under his feet."—D. & C. p. 177.

Can any honest, upright christian object to such instructions?

When trouble arises that jeopardizes life or property, here's the rule: "Let them importune at the feet of the judge; and if he heed them not, let them importune at the feet of the governor; and if the governor heed them not, let them importune at the feet of the President; and if the President heed them not, then will the Lord arise and come forth from out of his hiding place, and in his fury vex the nation, and in his hot displeasure, and in his fierce anger, in his time, will cut off those wicked, unfaithful and unjust stewards, and appoint them their portion among hypocrites and unbelievers, even in outer darkness, where there is weeping, and wailing, and gnashing of teeth."—D. & C. p. 271.

We plant our case as above directed, and go peacefully about our business, awaiting in faith and patience the verdict awarded. For: "We believe that religion is instituted of God, and that men are amenable to him, and to him only, for the exercise of it, unless their religious opinions prompt them to infringe upon the rights and liberties of others; but we do not believe that human law has a right to interfere in prescribing a rule of worship to bind the consciences of men, nor dictate forms for public or private devotion; that the civil magistrate should restrain crime, but never control conscience; should punish guilt, but never suppress the freedom of the soul.

"We believe that all men are bound to sustain and uphold the respective governments in which they reside, while protected in their inherent and inalienable rights by the laws of such governments, and that sedition and rebellion are unbecoming every citizen thus protected, and should be punished accordingly; and that all governments have a right to enact such laws as in their own judgment are best calculated to secure the public interest, at the same time, however, holding sacred the freedom of conscience.

"We believe that every man should be honored in his station; rulers and magistrates as such—being placed for the protection of the innocent and the punishment of the guilty; and that to the laws all men owe respect and deference, as without them peace and harmony would be supplanted by anarchy and terror; human laws being instituted for the express purpose of regulating our interests as individuals and nations, between man and man, and divine laws given of heaven, prescribing rules on spiritual concerns, for faith and worship, both to be answered by man to his Maker."—D. & C. pp. 331-2.

Without mental reservation I cheerfully pledge my acceptance of the above as my rule of life, both as a citizen and christian. What better has the world to offer me?

"Be merciful, for to him that is merciful shall mercy be shown."—D. & C. p. 351.

There is no provision for us to avenge or revenge in God's law, if we would be truly Christ-like.

As a befitting epitaph for Miss Dougall's book I would write: "De mal en pis," which being interpreted, is: "From bad to worse."

There is a light that points with no uncertainty to the promise: That no weapon formed against the truth shall be successful.

PROPHECY.

[The following article on "Prophecy," written by Mr. J. J. Henley, editor and proprietor of The Voice, published at Clyde, Kansas, is, to my mind, worthy of notice as it comes from a man who holds aloof from any church society at present.—Frank J. Pierce, Ames, Kansas.]

"We have also a more sure word of prophecy, whereunto ye do well that ye take heed as unto a light that shineth in a dark place, until the day dawn and the day star arise in your hearts."—2 Peter 1: 19.

The claims of the Bible rest entirely upon the proofs offered by prophecy. If there was no revelation to man as recorded in the scripture, then our reverence is altogether misplaced. The spirit of prophecy has been, is and must ever remain to be the conclusive evidence, the decisive test which settles forever all questions of religion. If this spirit ceases to exist or be active then religion at once becomes Pagan or even worse, dead. Peter refers to this in the text, which, however, is generally wrested and explained to have a different meaning, and to make the meaning more evident we will quote from John on the same subject: "And I fell at his feet to worship him. And he said unto me see thou do it not. I am thy fellow servant, and of thy brethren that have the testimony of Jesus; worship God for the testimony of Jesus is the spirit of prophecy." (Rev. 19: 10). Moses recognized prophecy and placed the authority of the prophets above that of the priests. "The Lord thy God will raise up unto thee a prophet from the midst of thee of thy brethren like unto me, unto him ye shall hearken." (Deut. 18: 15). The Levitical priesthood early antagonized the prophets and their teachings because they always pointed out the inefficacy of the sacrifices which the priests were continually requiring of the people. "To obey is better than sacrifice." (1 Sam. 15: 22). "The sacrifice of the wicked is an abomination to the Lord." (Prov. 15: 8). "To do justice is more acceptable than sacrifice." (Prov. 21: 3). "To what purpose cometh there to me incense from Sheba and the sweet came from a far country? your burnt offerings are not acceptable, nor your sacrifices sweet unto me." (Jer. 6: 20). The foretelling of future events was but a small part of the mission of the prophets as one and all of them from Moses to Malachi taught one doctrine, viz., the certainty of a reward for virtue and punishment for sin. This doctrine was no more popular then than now, and the prophets were subjected to the same persecution that a minister would be today were he to preach the same doctrine which they taught. The teachings of Moses and the prophets were identical and Jesus indorsed them, telling the people that he came to fulfil the law and the prophets. The more sure "word of prophecy" spoken of in the text as well as the spirit of prophecy spoken of in Revelations is, however, a universal gift, it is the light spoken of by John, "which lighteth every man which cometh into the world." (John 1: 9). It makes all independent of the clergy and priesthood just as were the Jews of old. It is what makes erroneous teaching of the clergy so unpopular, it is the truth of Christianity fled into the wilderness as portrayed in Revelations, "And the woman fled into the wilderness where she had a place prepared of God that they should feed her there a thousand, two hundred and three score days." (Rev. 12: 6). The orthodox clergy claim that all revelation has ceased, expressing it otherwise, that the "spirit of prophecy" is dead, basing their contention upon the statement, "For I testify unto every man that heareth the words of the prophecy of this book, if any man shall add unto these things God shall add unto him the plagues that are written in this book." (Rev. 22: 18). But this refers to the book of Revelations and does not imply that the spirit of prophecy is dead. Truth is eternal, the same in all ages. Jesus Christ the same yesterday and today and forever." (Heb. 13: 8). The spirit of prophecy, the testimony of Jesus, is as potent now as when the angel appeared to John in Patmos, "Who bare record of the word of God and of the testimony of Jesus Christ." (Rev. 1: 2). It remains a potent factor redeeming men from error, saving them from the machinations of a corrupt clergy. It is a rock against which all error continually beats in vain "like raging waves of the sea," reducing all of the extravagances of divine service and insuring the ultimate defeat of error, it is the universal demand for truth which compels every writer of fiction, every dramatist to forever and at all times proclaim the great truth taught by Moses and the prophets, Christ and his apostles and every true minister since that all vice is punished and all virtue rewarded. A truth which is proclaimed everywhere in the Bible and everywhere outside except in those pulpits which teach that there is an expiation an atonement for sin that an indulgence has been granted mankind on account of the sufferings of Christ. That sin is not punished nor virtue rewarded, but that mere belief or faith exempts from just punishment. But through all this remains the teachings of the Scripture which the most persistent efforts have failed to pervert and the "more sure word of prophecy" teaching mankind to reject error and accept truth. "We have also a more sure word of prophecy whereunto ye do well that ye take heed as unto a light that shineth in a dark place until the day dawn and the day star arise in your hearts."—The Voice, Clyde, Kansas, Dec. 7, 1899.

A Sign In the Sun, and a Young Sister's Dream.

Editor Ensign.—A young brother, Willie Topham, who was recently baptized by Bro. J. L. Goodrich, was telling me of some of his experiences, and among them was one which I felt I would like to have published. I would like to know if any one else saw the peculiar phenomena he describes, or if it was sent as a sign to him. I will copy his written statement which is as follows:

"On the evening of November 12th, while on business at my neighbors, about four o'clock in the afternoon, I heard a great rumbling noise in the west, and turning in that direction I beheld the sun in an awful red condition, and then it turned to a purple, and then to a dark color almost black, and the sun waved from side to side in such a way that I thought it would leave its axis; and every few minutes there would a purple and dark smoke gush out from the sun, then another dark covering come over the sun like a veil, and it would continue to waver. It continued in that condition about fifteen minutes. At the same time the moon, which was also visible, turned purple and dark like the sun. Finally this passed away and the sun went down clear as usual. One woman and several children witnessed this besides myself.

"Before I saw this I had been very much concerned about the work of the Lord, and about which was His church and His gospel. I felt that the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints was His, the Lord's true church, and I had prayed for Him to show me in His own way if I was right. I have asked a good many persons if they saw the sun appear so strangely, but no one else had seen it, but one neighbor said that on the morning of the 13th, the moon, when about as near down as the sun was the night before, had a very dark shadow over it.

"I believe the Lord has shown me in his own way, and that this is the way of truth. I have searched the Scriptures for myself, and the more I read the more I am convinced that the gospel is the same now that it was in Paul's time; and when I read the word I found I had not been obedient to the Lord's commands, and I had not observed 'all things' he commanded. I was a member of the Baptist church for three years, but I was baptized by Bro. J. L. Goodrich not long ago, and I hope to continue in the faith, and I ask the prayers of all the Saints that I may hold fast that which is good.

"Your brother,

"WILLIAM TOPHAM."

Now, to me this seems to be the interpretation. The sun represents the church; the clouds of purple and black denote the heresies and apostasy that obscured its brightness, and the agitation that so convulsed it, was the confusion and breaking up into sects, until in seemed that the church would be destroyed, but as after awhile the sun came out from this dark cloud, so will the church emerge out of the clouds and darkness that has so long obscured it.

The sun was there even while covered with the smoke and shadows, so the church was in existence, though hidden. "The gates of hell shall not prevail against it," though they may seem to do so. And so with the church in these latter days—first, clear as the sun, then the dark stains of heresy and polygamy blackened its pure splendor, and it was rent asunder by the evils that had crept in, and to the eye of doubt it would seem that it was utterly destroyed, but it still existed, and again came into view as the Reorganized church and will so continue to shine. That is the impression that the event, as he told it, made on my mind, but I would like some one's opinions on it.

His sister, Ocean, when seeking to know the way, was led by a dream which was as follows: She was wondering whether she should leave the church of which she was a member and join the Reorganized church, or not. She was weighing the matter and counting the costs. She prayed the Lord to show her by a dream or in some way that she might understand that it was from the Lord.

She dreamed she was in a dark room, and where it was necessary for her to get out, but she knew not which way to go. There were two doors leading out of the room. She went to one, opened it, but it led out into such a dark, cold, dreary way that she shuddered, and said, "Oh, I cannot go that way." She thought that way led off in-

WILL SEND $2.50 FREE.

TO EACH OF OUR READERS, FRANKLIN MILES, M. D., LL. B., THE CELEBRATED CHICAGO SPECIALIST, WILL SEND $2.50 WORTH OF HIS NEW SPECIAL TREATMENT FREE.

When an experienced physician offers to give away $1000 worth of a New Treatment for diseases of the heart, nerves, stomach, or dropsy, it is conclusive evidence that he has great faith in it. And when hundreds of prominent men and women freely testify to his unusual skill and the superiority of his New Special Treatment, his liberality is certainly worthy of serious consideration.

That Dr. Miles is one of the world's most successful physicians in treating these diseases, is proven by hundreds of testimonials. One patient cured after failure of eleven Grand Rapids physicians; two after having been given up by seven Chicago physicians; another after nine of the leading doctors in New York City, Philadelphia and Chicago failed. Thousands of testimonials sent upon request.

The notable Dr. D. D. of Dayton, Ohio, General Secretary of Foreign Missions, writes editorially in the State Sunday School Union: "We desire to state that from personal acquaintance we know Dr. Miles to be a most skillful specialist, a man who has had the most of Grand Rapids and nervous prostration." Three physicians failed to help him. He writes: "I regard myself cured." Mr. C. Beck of Webb City, Mo., wrote a friend: "Dr. Miles treated me for mind trouble, unnatural fears and great nervousness. He cured me nine years ago." Mr. Geo. Newcomb reports: "My son was so bad, he was helpless. Other physicians could not help him, but Dr. Miles brought him out all right." J. D. Howe, Brookfield, Mo., says: "Dr. Miles is the only physician who ever helped me."

This new system of special treatment is thoroughly scientific and immensely superior to the ordinary methods.

As all afflicted readers may have $2.50 worth of treatment especially prepared for their case, FREE, with full directions, we would advise them to send for it at once. Address: DR. FRANKLIN MILES, State and Adams Streets, Chicago.

to awful darkness, so she turned the other way, and as she felt she must get out of the room she was in, she went to open the other door, but all around the floor near the door were serpents and snakes hissing and biting at her, but she said she could not go out in that dark way, and she must by this way, so she thought she stepped in among the snakes that were biting at her, but did not seem to strike her, and opened the door, and it opened out into the clear, beautiful light, and led off into pleasant ways. I cannot tell this as graphically as she told me, but I have tried to tell it as nearly as she did as memory will allow, it being some months since she told me the dream, and she said the meaning was plain to her mind when she awoke that the door which led to the light was the church of Christ, and the snakes were her enemies but they would not hurt her. Her faith is firm and unwavering in the gospel as restored. I hope some of the Saints will write to them at Dorset, Virginia.

Our "Historical Engraving" at fifty cents, is a very desirable picture to have in your home. It shows the martyrs, three witnesses, presidency twelve, presidents of seventy, high council, and a number of other interesting features. A study of this picture by those having but a slight acquaintance with the Saints, will remove prejudice, and assist in rendering a presentation of the everlasting gospel effectively. Can you afford to be without it? A key accompanies each picture.

BE JUST.

I have heard Saints ask others (some five or six in number) to stop over night with them when they knew they were not prepared to take care of so many. Why not, if they wish to be generous, simply say, I can take care of so many (stating the number), they can lodge over night. Let us not invite people to dine or lodge over night simply to be courteous, but we should be just in all things; say what we mean, and mean what we say.

Again, some ask others to dine with them when they themselves intend to dine away from home. Why not say, brother (or sister, as the case may be), I shall not be at home today or I should invite you to dine with me. Let your nay be nay, and your yea be yea, and whatsoever is more or less cometh of evil, said the great Teacher.

PERFECT health is that condition of the body when digestion is so perfect that the physiological balance between the destruction and construction that goes on ceaselessly in cell life is daily kept normal.—E. B. Warman.

We often crush down our impulses, not realizing that our impulses are apt to be just the quick longings of our natures to fulfill their ideals.—January Ladies' Home Journal.

If we may judge by the frequent conversations on the subject among women, there is today a marked revival of interest in embroidering—both in colors and in white; always a fascinating and beautiful employment. In recognition of this development, The Delineator—now in its 55th volume—introduces in the February number some dainty specimens of colored embroideries in an artistic plate, supplemented by designs and working instructions for the details. Our lady readers will, no doubt, hail with great pleasure this initial instalment of the new department, which would seem to cap the efforts of the publishers of The Delineator to make this charming magazine a delight to its patrons. It will be well worth the while of any woman educated in needlework, who may not be a subscriber, to secure a copy of the February issue (15 cents; any newsdealer).

The Autobiography of Elder Joseph Luff, of the apostle's quorum, is a book full of interest from beginning to end. Bro. Luff is so widely and so favorably known in and out of the church in his years of service in gospel work, that the mere mention of a work of this kind being offered should create a desire to possess it. Two fine sermons are included in its pages and the price is so reasonable that every Saint's home should have this book in their library. It's a splendid thing for the Sunday School library also. 75 cents cloth, postage prepaid.

We still have some copies of the duet, "Evanelia Lost," words by Bro. J. Cole Moxon, music by Prof. Leib, price 25 cents, postage paid; better order copies for yourself and friends. It is a souvenir of the little gospel boat and contains a good view of it in the San Francisco harbor.

GOOD ADVICE.

One of the most pertinent editorials coming from a secular source, concerning the "Roberts' case," which it has been our pleasure to read, appeared in The Idaho Enterprise, of Malad City, Idaho, January 6th, of which R. H. Davis is publisher and H. R. Evans manager. We take the liberty of presenting it to our readers, to whom its fairness, sensibility and friendly tone will commend it. The people of the Utah church would do well to heed the kindly admonition and sensible advice given, and accept the inevitable, that the doctrine of polygamy is alike hateful to God and man, and that when they drop all heretical doctrines and get back and confine themselves to the plain teachings of the Bible, Book of Mormon and Doctrine and Covenants, no "right" guaranteed to them by the constitution of the United States will be denied them.

"BE NOT DECEIVED."

"We would like to say a few words to the Mormon people of Oneida county—a few words of honest and sincere advice—words that spring from the purest motives and most friendly impulses. Do not take any stock in the continued declarations that the Congress—the Government—of the United States is engaged in persecuting the Mormon people. It is not true. Do not be deluded into the idea that the rights of an American citizen have been trampled on because he is a Mormon. Those who tell you these things are either grossly prejudiced, ignorant or designing. Men come among you and hope that they will be able to gain your confidence and friendship by seizing upon an opportunity like the present to play upon your sympathies by denouncing Congress and the Government. They mislead you in order to 'work' you. Every intelligent man in the United States knows that in the treatment of the Roberts' case, Congress has exercised no power except that which has been delegated to it by the Constitution of the United States. Many, no doubt, honestly believe that Congress has not proceeded along the wisest course, but nobody with a grain of intelligence and honesty will pretend to say that it has proceeded unlawfully. That is, nobody will who has at all investigated the matter. We urge you to not be deceived. Be patient yet awhile, and you will see how this affair is being misrepresented. It looks as though Mr. Roberts will not be permitted to take his seat. Then there will be another election and it is probable that another Mormon will be elected to take his place against whom the charge of polygamy will not lie. That man will be promptly seated, and all the enemies of the Mormon people will be powerless to prevent it. The Mormons no doubt have enemies. It would be folly to attempt to deny it. They are composed of bigoted people who are the natural enemies of all who do not believe as they believe, or they are people who are uninformed. But the great bulk of the American people are not the enemies of the Mormons; Congress is not their enemy; the Government has no desire to persecute them. Mr. Roberts stands charged with an offense against the laws of the United States. He does not deny the charge. He would not go upon the witness stand and swear he was innocent. He, practically, thereby, confessed guilt. We would repeat, do not be deceived. Do not permit yourselves to be 'worked' by men who care nothing about your welfare and happiness—who have no comprehension or appreciation of the solid virtues which you possess, and whose only interest in you is to despoil you. You have reasons to know that this appeal to you is sincere. If we would consult our own selfish interest and care nothing about your welfare, we, too, would be yelling persecution. Many of you, no doubt, would just now feel better toward us if we should cry out against Congress and the Government. Just now a falsehood would be more palatable to many of you than the truth. But after a while you will see things in a different light, and in your hearts you will be thankful in that we never tried to deceive you—never took advantage of your natural prejudices or misconceptions to help ourself into your good graces. Be patient a little while and events will verify all we have said."

DIED.

TERRY.—At Rich Hill, Missouri, January 7, 1900, Bro. John Terry, aged 30 years, 11 months, and 27 days. He was baptized when about nine years old. He passed away peacefully after suffering about ten days from an accident received in the mines. He leaves a wife, three children, a mother, one brother and three sisters to mourn his departure. Funeral service in Saints' chapel at Rich Hill, January 9, 1900, by J. W. Morgan.

CLOSSON.—At Porcupine, Wisconsin, November 6, 1899, of dyspepsia, Father C. E. Closson, aged 77 years, 4 months and 27 days. He was born June 9, 1822, at Alta Gelle, Sweden; he was baptized September 19, 1830, by Elder F. M. Cooper. An aged wife, two sons, two daughters and grandchildren mourn the loss of a true companion and a loving father. All the children, with several grandchildren, were in attendance at his death and funeral. He, with his wife, was one of the staffs in building up the work in Wisconsin, and his home was a home to the Saints, and especially to the ministry. They were always ready to give of their means to the needy, and many an elder's heart has been made glad when out of finance, to be liberally supplied from Father and Mother Closson's purse. Funeral from the Saints' church in Porcupine, November 8th, sermon by Elder P. L. Sawley, of Valley Junction.

What does it do? It causes the oil glands in the skin to become more active, making the hair soft and glossy, precisely as nature intended. It cleanses the scalp from dandruff and thus removes one of the great causes of baldness. It makes a better circulation in the scalp and stops the hair from coming out.

It Prevents and It Cures Baldness. Ayer's Hair Vigor will surely make hair grow on bald heads, provided only there is any life remaining in the hair bulbs. It restores color to gray or white hair. It does not do this in a moment, as will a hair dye; but in a short time the gray color of age gradually disappears and the darker color of youth takes its place. Would you like a copy of our book on the Hair and Scalp? It is free. If you do not obtain all the benefits you expect from the use of the Vigor write the Doctor about it. Address, DR. J. C. AYER, Lowell, Mass.

EXCLUDED.

As anticipated, the Congress of the United States, on Thursday, January 25th, refused to admit B. H. Roberts, member elect from Utah, to a seat in the House. The decision was supported by so decided a majority that Mr. Roberts realized at once that the case for him was hopeless. The only division of sentiment was as to whether he should be first seated and then expelled (which proposition was defeated by a large majority) or whether he should be refused admittance at all. There was no diversity of opinion as to permitting him to serve as a lawmaker. Thus, for all time, has it been decided that a polygamist cannot be a congressman.

Mr. Roberts issued a statement in vindication of his course, and candidacy, in which he asserts that "the house of representatives, under the whip and spur of popular sentiment, have decided to exclude me from the House." Well, in this case, "popular sentiment" is a good one. What can be more proper and lawful than for a representative to carry out the expressed wishes of those who elected him to serve them. Mr. Roberts should remember that the house of representatives does not yet possess prerogatives assumed by the priesthood of the dominant church in Utah, that they can do as they please regardless of the rights and desires of the people, so emphatically expressed as it was in this case. Somehow, Brigham Young's prophecy that the doctrine of polygamy would be "fostered and believed in by the more intelligent portions of the world as one of the best doctrines ever proclaimed to any people," does not assimilate very readily with the experience which Mr. Roberts has just passed through, and which, he confesses, is the result of "popular sentiment."

Mr. Roberts states that at the time of the issuance of "President Woodruff's manifesto, in 1890, there were 2,451 polygamous families throughout the whole Mormon church. Since then it has been ascertained that 908 of these families have ceased to exist through death, divorces or abandonment, leaving at the present time but 1543 polygamous families in the church throughout the world." What a confession! Over nine years since it was first heralded to the world that polygamy was at an end in Utah, and yet we have it stated here by competent authority that there are still 1,543 families in that relation. The church of which these families are members, maintains a systematic account of its members, being divided up into districts and wards, with numerous officials over them. They have at least so far kept track of things, as shown by this statement, that they are able to say, positively, how many families have ceased the practice of polygamy, and how many are still in its bonds. Now, the question arises, if the leaders of that church have been sincere in their protestation of loyalty all these years, why have they not set in motion against these polygamists the regular processes by which transgressors against the law are tried and judged, and have had them expelled from their communion if they failed to discontinue such transgression? and the only answer is the echo of the inquiry, Why?

In the early days of the Reorganization, when the missionaries of that little band of tried and true Saints first raised the standard of righteousness in those valleys of the mountains of Utah, when Brigham Young lived and ruled with an iron hand, some who heard and accepted the invitation to return to the old paths, had taken to themselves several wives under the sanction of the Utah church, but as they could not enter the Reorganized church in that condition, they quickly and rationally solved the question by separating from all but their lawful wife, divided their property among the unlawful plurals, and with their legitimate family moved back to the states. Barring the moving, if unnecessary, all of these 2,451 families could, and should have settled this matter in the same way in the year 1890, had they been honest in the assertion that polygamy had been abandoned. They did not do this—have not yet done it—and the reason seems to be capable of only one construction.

They have been weighed—and found wanting.

We subjoin the action of Congress and Mr. Roberts' statement for the benefit of those who may not have access to the papers containing them.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—The case of Brigham H. Roberts, the Mormon representative-elect from Utah, which has occupied so much of the attention of the House since the assembling of Congress, was decided today by the adoption of a resolution to exclude him by a vote of 278 to 50.

The exact language of the resolution was as follows:

That, under the facts and circumstances of the case, Brigham H. Roberts, representative-elect from the state of Utah, ought not to have or hold a seat in the house of representatives, and that the seat to which he was elected is hereby declared vacant.

The amendment to expel Mr. Roberts without seating him, offered by Mr. Lacey, was ruled out on a point of order, and the house only voted upon the resolutions of the majority and minority of the committee. The latter—to seat and then expel Mr. Roberts—was defeated, 81 to 244. An analysis of this vote shows that 170 Republicans voted against it, and 71 Democrats, 6 Republicans, 2 Populists and 2 silver Republicans for it.

The majority resolutions—to exclude Mr. Roberts and declare the seat vacant—were adopted, 278 to 50. The affirmative vote was divided as follows: Republicans 104, Democrats 98, Populists 3, and the negative vote: Democrats 47, silver Republicans 2, Populists 1.

There were over a score of speakers today, and the closing speeches on each side were particularly able. Mr. Lanham, of Texas, closed for the majority, and Mr. De Armond, of Missouri, for the minority.

Mr. Roberts was present throughout the day, and only left the hall after the result of the last vote had been announced. As he did so, he gave out a statement justifying his retention of his plural wives on the ground that his moral obligation was more binding upon his conscience than technical obedience to statutory law, and saying that there was little excuse for the extraordinary efforts to crush a system already abandoned and practically dead. He said he was a martyr to a "spasm of prejudice." He would not, he said, attempt to run for Congress again, although he would go back home with a light heart, confident of the future.

MR. ROBERTS' STATEMENT.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Mr. Brigham H. Roberts gave out the following statement tonight in relation to his exclusion:

"Our griefs are past when remedies are ended, By seeing the worst which late on hope depended."

"I was elected by the people of Utah as their representative by the substantial plurality of 5,965 votes. An effort was made by what I believe to be an unconstitutional and unprecedented process to exclude me from the house of representatives. In behalf of myself and my constituents, comprising the entire population of the state of Utah, I did all I could to maintain the position to which they had elected me; but the house of representatives, under the whip and spur of popular sentiment, have decided to exclude me from the house. I have contended for my rights and the rights of my constituents, single-handed and alone, to the best of my ability, but have been overwhelmed by force of numbers.

"Notwithstanding all that has been said, the people of Utah are not a lawless people. Those of them who have been involved in the past in the plural marriage system, once taught and sanctioned by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, are not wanton violators of the laws; but, finding themselves in the position where the law commands them to do one thing, and moral obligations, sacredly entered into under the sanction of the Mormon church, command them to do another, they are placed in a very trying situation; and some few of them, including the member from Utah, may have found it necessary to regard their moral obligations as more binding upon their consciences than their technical obedience to statutory law.

"Such a position, however, is but transitory in Utah, and comes down to the Mormon people from conditions growing out of the plural marriage system of the past. The condition here referred to, however, is rapidly passing away. From authoritative figures, officially collected recently by the Mormon church, it has been ascertained that, at the time of the discontinuance of plural marriages under the authority of the late President Woodruff's manifesto, in September, 1890, there were 2,451 polygamous families throughout the whole Mormon church. Since then it has been ascertained that 908 of these families have ceased to exist through death, divorces, or abandonment, leaving at the present time but 1,543 polygamous families in the church throughout the world; and, as most of these are well advanced in years, and all beyond middle life, the system will soon be obliterated from the earth; and, under these circumstances, there has been little excuse to crush a system of marriage already practically abandoned and dead.

"The election of the member from Utah to the house of representatives was no effort on the part of the Mormon church to revive polygamy, or stuff it down the throat of the American Congress, or people. Nothing of the kind was contemplated in either his nomination or election, all reports to the contrary notwithstanding. The alleged statement, often quoted, to the effect that Brigham Young, on July 22, 1875, or at any other time, declared that he 'would make the American people swallow Mormonism, polygamy, and all,' and that the election of the present member elect from Utah was an effort to fulfill that prediction, is absolutely untrue. He made no such utterance, and the recent agitation respecting Mormonism and its being a menace to the purity of the American home, is utterly unwarranted by the facts in the case.

"Congress has been made to believe, however, that such was the intention of Mormonism, or at least has been averted into acquiescence that such were its intentions, and hence, has been led to vote to exclude the member from Utah. There is not virtue enough, it appears, in the American house of representatives, to stand for their convictions as to what is right in this matter. Only this morning the representative from Utah received a communication from a person who is evidently a member of the house of representatives, since his letter is written upon house official stationery, and sent to him in an official envelope of the house of representatives, although the signature is 'A Republican Friend.' After citing the member from Utah to a speech delivered by the Hon. James G. Blaine, in 1872, with reference to polygamy, he says:

"I regret that I am not at liberty to vote as my conscience dictates on this question (the Roberts case) for reasons which you fully understand. President McKinley and Speaker Henderson have made the support of the Tyler resolution the test of Republican orthodoxy, and I am obliged to wear the yoke.

"So far as this matter is a personal affair, I may say that whatever happens the member from Utah can congratulate himself that, from obscure birth and the conditions of iron fortune, and in spite of having espoused an unpopular faith, he has fought his way upward until he reached a sufficient prominence to be the decided choice of the people of a sovereign state to represent them in the American house of representatives. From that summit he was hurled down by the house under a spasm of prejudice, arising from misrepresentation and falsehood as to conditions existing in Utah. That action will not ruin him. Conscious of the rectitude of his own intentions, he will face the future, undiscouraged by this incident in his career, and will weave again his fortunes; he will face the future with a light heart and a determination to succeed.

"No, he will not stand for re-election as a vindication of himself, even should his people desire it: he will ask that his exclusion shall be permitted to close, for the present, this incident in Utah's history."—The Kansas City (Mo.) Journal, January 28.

FOR MR. ROBERTS' PLACE.

SALT LAKE, U. S. Jan. 27.—In compliance with the revised statutes of the state of Utah, Governor Wells has issued a proclamation calling an election to be held on Monday, the 2d day of April, next, for the purpose of electing a representative in the Fifty-sixth Congress to fill the vacancy now existing.—Kansas City Journal, January 29.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

BRO. S. O. FOSS, from Caribou, Maine, says the work is moving along quite finely in that section.

ELDER THOMAS DALEY has nearly a column article in the Reno (Nevada) Evening Gazette January 22d, relative to the differences between the Reorganized church and the Brighamites.

Our readers have doubtless followed with deep interest the excellent article of Bro. J. W. Wight, of the Apostle's quorum, on the "Apostasy of the Church," which was published in the ENSIGN, issues of January 4th and 11th. It is a strong argument, and contains important information which every one needs in presenting a reason for their hope. In order that it may be convenient as a reference, we have put the article in a pamphlet of 40 pages, with a neat paper cover, for which we are now prepared to fill all orders. Price 10 cents each; 3 for 25 cents. Send in your orders promptly.

ELDER M. T. SHORT, Warrensburg, Missouri:

Have had good hearing so far. Spoke eight times at Knob Noster, and had as good a hearing as could be expected on brief notice; bad weather, roads, etc. I am feeling all right, and in good health and spirits. Four Brighamites who are working this town were out last night (January 23).

Sr. ROSA WATROUS, Adel, Montana, writes of the good the letters and sermons in the ENSIGN does them all, they not being near any branch. They would not like to be without the ENSIGN. We trust our faithful brethren will be encouraged from these testimonies to continue their good efforts in sending us sermons and articles of general and educational interest. This will cheer the lonely and isolated Saint, and draw others to the fold. Occupy the opportunity, brethren; nothing more promising is ever offered you as a field for the exercise of your talents and gifts in this direction.

Bro. E. T. DOBSON seems to believe in the future of Deloit, Iowa, judging from the following notice in The Iowa State Register, Des Moines, Iowa, for December 14, 18 9:

Deloit, Dec. 13.—Editor Register: Please discontinue our call for physician. We have one located just as soon as living rooms for himself and family, and an office room can be secured. The crying need of Deloit is more tenement houses and more store and office rooms. Every house is full. Please say to capitalists that Deloit is midway between Omaha and Fort Dodge on the new Chicago-Omaha line of the Illinois Central Railway, which is paralleled for 100 miles out of Omaha by the Chicago & Northwestern up the Boyer valley. Where in the United States do two such systems parallel each other for that distance, the one never out of sight of the other? There are a dozen or more business openings here to fill.

E. T. DOBSON.

ELDER JAMES MCKIERNAN, 128 East Grand avenue, Des Moines, Iowa, has had some "History Corrected," in a column and a half well written article in The Des Moines Daily News, for January 9th, regarding the false assertion sent out from Salt Lake City, Utah, that Mrs. Emily Dow Partridge Young was married to Joseph Smith and was his first "plural." After quoting the marriage covenant (as given in Doctrine and Covenants 111) and the certificates of twelve men and nineteen women, respectively, that "no system of marriage other than that," was known in the church, etc., he proceeds to show that Mrs. Eliza R. Snow and Louisa Beman alike laid claim to the same honor(?). Bro. McKiernan then shows from the public utterances of such leaders as Geo. Q. Cannon (sermon June 11, 1871, Journal of Discourses, Vol. 4, pp. 165-6), H. B. Clawson (Salt Lake Herald, February 9, 1882), and Brigham Young (interview of U. S. Senator Trumbull, in 1869, published by the Alta California and article in Deseret News (official organ of the Brighamite church), December 11, 1881, or December 7, 1882), that polygamy was not a tenet of the church, but was adopted by them "as a necessity(?)" after they came to Salt Lake. He also shows up some inconsistencies in the historian's other statements, and quotes Judge Phillips' remarks in the Temple Lot suit at Kansas City, Missouri, regarding what the evidence showed in relation to the origin, with Brigham Young, of the doctrine of polygamy. The article will do good.

GENERAL CHURCH NEWS.

INDEPENDENCE.

Mr. Otis N. Miles and Sr. Martha T. Walden were married at the home of the bride, Sunday evening, January 28th, just before the hour of service, Bishop G. H. Hilliard officiating.

Sr. Roy Newkirk has been suffering intensely the past week, from an abscess on the brain; she is reported some better, the gathering having broken, and it is hoped she will soon recover.

Bro. T. C. Kelley is suffering from a severe cold and hoarseness and was unable to fill his appointment at Argentine, Kansas, last Sunday evening, not being able to preach on that account.

President G. E. Harrington, at the suggestion of members of the branch, has appointed next Sunday as a day of fasting and prayer in behalf of the Saints at Cove, Arkansas, that they may be preserved from an attack of the smallpox now threatening.

Bro. Frank James, son of Bro. and Sr. Thomas James, and brother of Bro. Orville James, who has been in Bozeman, Montana, the past year, returned home, Tuesday evening, much improved in health, and broadened out some by his mountainous sojourn.

Bro. Sven Swensen, of Eldorado, Missouri, at present doing missionary work in Minnesota, stopped in Independence Tuesday night and Wednesday visiting friends. The ENSIGN was favored with a call. He is a successful minister among his countrymen as well as others.

Sr. M. L. Smith, of Maywood, seems to be a constant and severe sufferer, through, it is thought by some, the effects of a goitre of long standing on the neck, affecting the action of the blood in heart and brain. Temporary relief is received through administration, but no permanent results are as yet secured. It is a sad case.

Bishop E. L. Kelley is announced to be here Sunday, and Bro. Joseph Luff will also probably be home by that time. There will probably be a large turnout next Sunday. An effort will be made at the morning service to raise from three to five hundred dollars on the church debt, which, although subscribed, has not been paid.

Bro. John McMullen and family had the misfortune to pass through a fire experience Monday afternoon about four o'clock. They have been occupying the Hickox property between Brn. J. A. Maguire's and Harry Hatty's, but were preparing to remove into their own house in the rear of Bro. John's store Tuesday—they had intended moving Monday, but the day was blustery and cold, so it was postponed until Tuesday. Most of the furniture and bedding were gotten out, but that which was left was pretty badly water soaked. The fire originated, it is thought, from a defective flue on the west side of the house, and the roof on that side was pretty badly burned before the fire was put out. We are glad it was no worse; the prompt work of the fire department prevented much damage to the premises.

The Sisters' Aid Society, of this place, has disbanded; there being the Willing Helpers and Hawthorne societies, they thought these two would fill the requirements. The Sisters' Aid has, however, done a noble work in the past, having raised about $3,000, most of which has gone into the church building. They will probably make a final report sometime in the future, which will be interesting as indicating what united effort will accomplish, even from small incomes.

Sunday was cold and blustery, as a consequence attendance at all services were diminished. At 11 o'clock District President R. May preached a fine discourse on the duties of the Saints. It was very searching. At night Bishop Hilliard discoursed upon the theme of being not alone a hearer, but a doer of the work. He had good liberty and close attention throughout, and, like the morning effort, was thoroughly practical and applicable. The afternoon service was well occupied and fruitful for good.

Grandma Davison, who has been very poorly the past two weeks, is reported considerably improved. She had lost the use of one of her limbs and seemed to be failing generally, but she is now able to be up a while each day, and can walk with the assistance of a cane. She very much desires to live until the return of her daughter, Sr. Emma Burton, from the Society Islands, and to see her son, Bro. Holmes J. Davison, and others, though she is trying to be reconciled to whatever the heavenly Father sees best. Hopes are entertained now that her desire will be gratified. Let all so pray; she is a worthy and faithful Saint.

The local Religio is making encouraging progress. Last Friday night there were about 150 in attendance with seven or eight classes. The interest is growing nicely. Some good talent has been secured for teachers, and the prospects for good work in this important department are fine. All who have not yet availed themselves of this splendid opportunity here afforded for the study of the Book of Mormon systematically, should delay no longer, but join the society at once and get all the benefits obtainable from an early study of the lessons. Can it be said of you, reader, as it was said of members of the old church, that they were under condemnation and should remain so until they remembered the former commandments, even the Book of Mormon? Here is an excellent opportunity to place yourselves right, on this question. Tomorrow evening (February 2) will be Religian prayer meeting, be sure to attend.

LAMONI, IOWA.

A cold wave in these parts, 18 below zero yesternorn. The Sisters' Mite Society gave a supper, the clearance was over $50.00, to be used to make improvements at the church before General Conference.

Bro. David Denio was married to Miss Nellie Kline by Elder H. N. Snively on 17th inst.

The prayer and testimony meeting at the Home on Thursday night, 25th, was in charge of Bro. Elbert Smith, who gave excellent instructions to the inmates and others who attended from the city.

Elder J. S. Snively replied to the Utah elders, Hansen and Bickmore, at the Evergreen church on Sunday night, 21st.

A priesthood meeting was held on Tuesday night, 23d, presided over by Elder F. M. Weld, district president.

At the election of officers of the Religion, 19th, Bro. W. J. Mather was elected president; Bro. Chas. Brackenbury, vice president; Sr. Jessie Cave, secretary; Sr. Nellie Anderson, treasurer; Sr. May White, organist; Bro. Otis White, chorister; and Bro. Geo. Snively, librarian.

Elder Weld was called by telegram to Farmington, Iowa, to preach the funeral sermon of Sr. Warnock, who died there recently; she was the mother of Elder Robt. Warnock.

A good program was rendered Friday night, 26th, by the Religio.

Two were baptized in the font at the Saints' Home on Saturday, 27th, by Bishop E. L. Kelley, assisted by Elder J. A. Gunsolley. One was confirmed at the Home by Brn. Kelley and Gunsolley, and the other at the afternoon service at the church by Brn. Weld and Salyards. Bishop Kelley discoursed at the brick church in the morning, on the subject of "Advancement to Perfection," using the last verse of Matthew 5 for a text. Elders Derry and Ray were the speakers at the Home at the same hour. In the church at night Bro. David Keown was the speaker.

A LAMONIAN.

January 29.

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS.

Genuine winter is upon us, the thermometer is hovering about the zero point. No snow, however, is on the ground.

We were greeted at the morning and evening hours at West Pullman by a goodly representation of the faithful ones, filling appointments previously made. We also attended the Sunday School and Religio; the former conducted by Sr. Henley as assistant superintendent; and the latter under charge of Sr. Stella Burwell, the newly elected president. In the afternoon we listened to a good sermon at the Park Side mission by Bro. Wm. Strange. We will repeat the visit on the fourth Sunday of February.

Bro. B. F. Ordway, of Peoria, Illinois, paid our city a flying visit, attending services on the south and west sides. Unfortunately we did not meet him.

We have examined, as far and thoroughly as circumstances permitted, the work of Bro. A. Haws, on the "Sabbath" question, and find a fearless meeting of the strong forts of that peculiar doctrine, and a complete overturning of the same, by the unflinching artillery of truth and reason. We commend its perusal.

We are holding nightly meetings at our new quarters, 716 Van Buren street, with an encouraging attendance so far. Bro. J. H. Lake assisted until Thursday, when he departed for Plano. Bro. F. M. Cooper, from the first, has stood nobly with us, preaching alternately with Bro. Lake and the writer. He occupied at both the 2:45 and the 7:45 appointments yesterday.

Bro. G. H. Graves will remove, his mission from 1802 Armour avenue to 508 Thirty-seventh street, where he gets into a better neighborhood, and hopes to find a more hearty response to his efforts in gospel work. We inadvertently omitted mentioning Bro. Graves, last week, as preaching two of the ten sermons delivered.

Next Sunday is our union service at the usual place, and it is hoped it will be marked by an unusual amount of wisdom and Spirit. Let all come with this prayer in their heart.

SECOND KANSAS CITY BRANCH.

Corner Sixteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue. Sunday School 9:30 a. m., preaching 11 a. m., prayer meeting 2:30 p. m., preaching 7:30 p. m.

At the eleven o'clock service Sunday morning Bro. Thomas Newton expounded the law of tithing as taught in Malachi 3 and Deuteronomy 28. He made plain the blessings or cursings that follow those who fulfill or neglect this important principle of the gospel of Jesus Christ. In the evening Elder M. B. Williams preached a condensed sermon on "The effect of the mission of Jesus Christ upon all the worlds." His text was Hebrews 4:1.

Church, corner of 22d and Arapahoe Sts. Service Sunday:—Sunday School at 9:45 a. m.; preaching at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.; sacrament service the first Sunday in each month at 6 p. m. Prayer meeting Wednesday evening. Zion's Religio-Literary Society Friday evening.

Our summer has caught a very bad cold; Saturday night it snowed about two inches, and turned cold, and Sunday was clear and cold, making the attendance at Sunday School and meetings small. The preaching in the morning was by the pastor, and in the evening by Elder K. Seli.

Bro. Edwards' boy Ralph, who has been sick for 17 weeks, is gaining in flesh, but does not gain in strength, as it seems he should; his is a very peculiar case, not understood by the medical faculty or the Saints either.

We would be glad to have any of the elders passing from the West to conference, to give us a call; if they will notify Bro. E. F. Shupe, 2849 Curtis street, when they can be here, we will arrange for their accommodation and use while here.

Sr. Grimm, of Canton, Illinois, who has been here all winter on account of her daughter's health, will leave for home this week; Sr. Winnie will remain longer.

Bro. James Kemp came down from Conifer, Wednesday, to take his son Robert home from St. Anthony's hospital. He underwent an operation several weeks ago for a broken leg, and is far enough improved to be taken home; they left the city on Friday.

Elder C. R. Duncan has sold his property in Missouri, and will make his home in Colorado. S.

January 29.

ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI.

Wednesday night of last week the usual evening's prayer service was dispensed with, and Bro. I. N. White was speaker; fair attendance. He left Saturday en route for Springfield, Missouri.

Business meeting Tuesday night of next week.

Sr. Prouty, formerly of Council Bluffs, Iowa, now of our city, was at preaching service yesterday morning. Her husband accompanied her, and both promised to again attend.

Bro. J. C. Hitchcock was the speaker at both services yesterday; in the morning hour assisted by Brn. Barraclough and Christensen.

Bro. J. D. White visited Troy last week; he took charge of services in Belleville, Sunday; Bro. Cole at the Oak Hill mission and Bro. Barraclough, Cheltenham, evening session.

The daughter of Sr. Hughes, Sr. Ida Best, is very low; hopes are barely entertained for her recovery.

Brn. J. Christensen and T. J. Elliott went to Caseyville, Illinois, Sunday night. We believe Bro. Elliott was to occupy.

We are to have another family of Saints on Slatery street. Sr. Sarah Cooke and daughters are going to housekeep very near "ye correspondent."

Thursday night at the Ellegio we listened to several excellent papers. ETTA.

Services at Golden West Hall, 320 Post street, every Sunday. Sunday School 10 a. m., preaching 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.; prayer meeting first Sunday of each month at 12:15 noon. Elder C. A. Parkin presiding elder, residence 3010 16th street.

Fred B. Blair was our speaker Sunday morning. We had a good congregation to listen to him. In the evening John A. Saxe occupied the stand. Quite a number of strangers and visiting Saints were in attendance at each service.

John Lund, who had been baptized during the week by Chas. A. Parkin, was confirmed. Bro. Parkin went to Santa Rosa Sunday and preached the word there.

Sr. Hiram Davis of Irvington died January 7th. F. M. Sheehy officiated at the funeral.

Brn. G. T. Griffiths, F. M. Sheehy and Bro. F. B. Blair and wife were present at our choir practice Tuesday evening. We are practicing up for our coming conference.

T. W. Chatburn is expected here any day from southern California.

Prayer meeting was held on Wednesday evening at 1911 Mission street. There was a very interesting meeting at the Religio Friday evening at 3804 17th street. G. S. LINCOLN.

LETTER DEPARTMENT.

VALLEY JUNCTION, Wis., Jan. 22. Dear Ensign:—We greatly appreciate your weekly visits along with the Autumn Leaves and Herald. In the Ensign we find so many inspired articles, letters, essays and sermons which is spiritual food indeed, encouraging and soul satisfying. We are, with the Master's help, striving to magnify our office and calling. Now, as a branch president, superintendent of Sunday School and president of the Religio our bands are full all around, and we rejoice in the grand and glorious work of the Lord.

We have a nice, neat, substantial church in which to worship, and all are exerting every possible effort and sacrifice to pay off the indebtedness so we can have it fully dedicated to the Lord. Our first payment is due in February, and as we are lacking some in this payment, we ask the Saints in various places to donate a little if they will, which will be thankfully received by the Saints here, and we feel assured the Lord will pay the same back to you in blessings. Whatever you contribute send to Elder A. L. Whitaker, treasurer of the building committee; this brother has worked and managed, as well as sacrificed, seemingly, in every possible way, in order to get this church built, and is now working every way to get it paid for. The work here is in a prosperous condition; some are near the kingdom.

Praying that God may bless the Ensign in its noble mission work. ELDER F. L. SAWLEY.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Jan. 23

Editor Ensign:—Just closed a very instructive eight days meeting, by D. E. Tucker; while we cannot report any baptisms just now, we feel that the brother has done us much good; the sermons were plain, gospel food from beginning to end, and we believe much good will arise from them.

There is a general cry here to hear Bro. White again, and I believe now is a very good time to do good work in this city, if he could spare the time to visit us. The town is now all meetings, and excitement prevails as to which is the right way.

Our Literary Society has, and is, doing much good in enlightening the public in regard to our true position. The young people take quite an interest in it and our hall is full every night. We have not found it practical yet to follow strictly the program of the Religio, yet we are pressing forward to that mark as fast as we can.

Prejudice is fast giving way I think; the true christian life of those who have lived here for years and many who have lately united with the church are doing the noble work I can truly say we have a noble band of Saints, and are making a host of friends every day for the work.

Bro. Tucker left us this morning to go to Lowry City. If the South has any more such, give us a call.

Saints here are talking building, and I think a neat little church would help things here wonderfully. May God bless all efforts for good, is my prayer. HENRY SPANING.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 20.

Editor Ensign:—The work in Southern California is on the move. We have opened up Redlands, Riverside, Cucamonga and Santa Ana, and next week we expect to reach Pasadena. A number have been baptized. Brn. Chatburn, Anderson and Barmore are all at work and doing well. Bro. Dana writes encouragingly of his work up in the Santa Marie country in connection with Bro. Keeler. A number were to be baptized.

We expect a large attendance at our coming district conference, date February 16th to 18th. Bro. Griffiths will be in attendance. Expect now to obtain railroad rates. Weather is lovely, but the rains are holding off unusually long.

Permit me a word as to the resolution that was passed at the last district conference of the Southern California district. The same was published in the conference minutes of the Herald and Ensign. By solicitation the resolution with preamble, was sent to Bro. Ordway, of Peoria, Illinois, he volunteered to send the same to the various branch presidents for consideration and action. Not having the time and the means at our disposal, we acquiesced. Bro. Ordway sent this resolution, along with another one, to each branch president. The resolutions stand upon their merits. They have nothing in common. The passage of one is not dependent upon the other. I am particularly interested in seeing the priesthood of this church stand as one man on things vital, and that perfect confidence shall be maintained in all departments of church work. No better plan presents itself than a council where each and all may be free to express themselves along lines material. This is the reason why the resolution was submitted.

It is to be hoped that the presentation of this resolution to branch presidents will not provoke unnecessary agitation. If the Saints would like to see a council of the priesthood, they can so express themselves. If they do not, they can ignore altogether, or vote No, and no harm is done. The only point involved in the resolution is this: Is it time that there should be a council of the priesthood? I trust that no one will be prejudiced to vote against this resolution because of any antipathy they may have against the other. Each resolution stands on its merits.

As one, I feel that the gathering will not be forced upon the people, but rather, God and the leaders await the expressed desire of the people and the moment the people are anxious and ready for it to be brought about, at that moment the loving Father will move upon His servants to effect it. Am I wrong in believing that the Saints are willing to move forward a step?

This resolution is not intended to convey to the Saints that we have not confidence in the leaders of this church, but rather, by its general adoption, to convey to the presidency that we have, and they are, pledged to uphold them in the carrying out of the law of God.

FARMAN, Neb., Jan. 19.

Editor Ensign:—I left my home in Sheldon, Nebraska, January 12th, came to this place to assist Bro. S. D. Payne in his work; I found him holding meetings four miles south of where he had the debate with the champion of Nebraska for the church of God, but the people are still glad to hear the Latter Day gospel.

Baptized two a few weeks since, and I am sure there will be more to follow soon; they are asking us to come, and in the same house where we met Mr. Adams.

The few scattered Saints here are in good spirits, and all, I believe, are living their religion. May God bless the work and His Saints, is my prayer. Your brother, J. F. LEPPINCOTT.

CAMERON, Mo., Jan. 13.

Dear Ensign:—If I remember right it is about six years since I last addressed you on themes pertaining to the gospel; so you see I am a stranger to the present editor, and perhaps he may be a little loth to enter me as one of his acquaintances. Whenever I would think of writing the thought would come, I have nothing of interest to write; can't say anything new, etc. But I often feel cheered by reading the contributions of others, and oftentimes the tear unbidden will start to flow when we read of some of the glorious experiences that the author of this latter day work grants to its adherents.

On perusing your pages last evening my attention was attracted by the description of the social services held at Independence and the First Kansas City branches on the first Sunday of the new year, and the similarity of the operation of the Spirit in different places. Indeed, as the poet says, "God works in a mysterious way his wonders to perform." And the thought came again, write and tell of your meeting; so today I essay the task.

We have a branch of 112 members but are so scattered, and circumstances surrounding us are of such a character that generally, less than one-fourth of that number meet to worship; but I am glad to say that there are some here who are still trying to serve the Lord, and are willing to sacrifice for the success of his cause.

While they were assembled on the first Sabbath of the new year in the capacity of a sacrament meeting, the Holy Spirit rested upon one of the Lord's handmaidens, and as was the case at Independence and Kansas City, words of comfort, cheer and encouragement were given to the branch in general, and to its presiding officer in particular. The branch was exhorted to faithfulness and promised blessings both temporal and spiritual, if obedient, and that the blessings of the future should be even greater than the blessings of the past. The presiding officer, who has been sadly afflicted for years with catarrh of the throat to such an extent that he is largely disqualified for ministerial labor, was told that if faithful he should be healed; to trust in the Lord and put away his doubts and fears, and many should yet be made to rejoice on account of his labors.

Such counsel, of course, has a tendency to dispel the gloom as nothing else can, and hearts that are sad are made to rejoice when they realize that there is a silver lining to the cloud, and that although darkness obscures their pathway, if they will only trust and put out their hand, the Father is willing to gently lead them along until the light will burst forth and they will be enabled to rejoice in the assurance of the glory that shall follow a life devoted to his service.

January 15th.—Since writing the above we have had the privilege of again assembling with those of like faith to worship the Master. And again, on this second Sunday of the new year, was his loving kindness to his children made manifest. The gift of prophecy was again bestowed, and words of comfort and encouragement spoken to different members of the assembly. Thus on two successive occasions have we been blessed, and it may be said that it was sitting in heavenly places with Christ Jesus. Such experiences beget within us a desire to be more worthy; to live "Nearer my God to Thee;" to more fully consecrate ourselves to the service of our divine Master. They likewise enable us to see more clearly how far we are below the standard to which, as Saints of God, it is our privilege to attain.

And now, dear ENSIGN, hoping, trusting and praying that we may be able to so live that we may in the future be entitled to enjoy many such seasons of refreshing from the presence of the Lord, and fearing that your editor may think I am a little too familiar upon short acquaintance, for the present I bid you adieu.

Hopefully yours, J. S. CONSTANCE.

[We are always glad to receive letters of this kind; they bring the Spirit in the reading. Let us hear from you again, Bro. Constance.—Ed.]

SOLDIERS HOME, Mich., Jan. 6.

Editor Ensign:—Many times after reading the encouraging letters in the ENSIGN, I feel to press forward in serving the Lord with my very best desires. The sisters' letters are very encouraging, help to build one up and strengthen us isolated ones. I try to live so that the Lord will own me as his child when he comes to reign on the earth. I loan my papers, and tracts to others, and talk the gospel to them; some are very much interested, so much that they take the papers to their friends to read. I try to get the truth before our neighbors, to get them to see the light of the gospel of Christ that they might come to the knowledge of God.

There are no Saints near us, so it is not all sunshine; but I rejoice to be numbered with the Saints in these latter days, and feel like clinging to the rod of iron till Jesus comes to dwell on the earth. I ever desire to remember the covenants made to my heavenly Father at the waters. Dear sisters, let us prove faithful and receive the crown at the end of the race, that Jesus has gone to prepare.

Praying for the upbuilding of Zion, I am Your sister in the faith, CATHERINE WISMER.

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Jan. 12.

Editor Ensign:—It has been only a short while since some of my letters appeared in your columns, but I find it almost impossible (situated as I am) to answer all of the highly appreciated, instructive missives of the dear Saints, except in this way which some have requested of me.

Before writing more I must thank Sr. Abbie Horton over and over again for her kindness in sending the paper, which many patients seem to be so greatly enjoying, and no doubt many (especially elders) would smile if they could but see how interested some—the blind lady, Miss Portis, and others—seem; how they insist that I read more, and how quickly many of them say "I," when I enquire, "who wants to hear papers, letters or Bible read?" They also (when allowed by nurse) gather in haste around me and listen so attentively, and several seem disappointed when nurse will not allow what is such a pleasure to us all. Miss Portis seems more anxious than any for baptism.

About thirty of we patients are carried in the "big room" every morning and forced to remain therein until hall, etc., are neatly arranged for ten o'clock inspection, and it is only then that I am allowed to read, as the matron has commanded nurse not to allow us to gather in sick rooms, or in bunches in the hall, where we are all forced to remain until retiring time. What seems more interesting than even the sermons, are letters as written by Bro. Goodwin (in Herald of January 3d) and by kind Bro. Covert, concerning heating; and after reading some of these, the interested blind lady remarked, in such a sincere, serious tone, "Yes, if I could be administered to by them, I'd receive my sight." Of course, this is encouraging me, to know they are so greatly interested, and have so little prejudice, and they often tell me to also send their thanks to those thoughtful Saints who have sent me such nice papers and encouraging letters.

Sr. Mary Douglass, of California, sent a letter that we all highly appreciated, and when I fail to answer such letters, dear Saints, please remember my excuse, "that neither stamps or stationary are plentifully furnished here," when so much writing is done. I so enjoyed the contents of Bro. Nunley's and Sr. Pauline Ruby's highly prized missives; but kind Sr. Ruby, I will feel ever so glad to hear from you again, as all except your address was plainly written. Please excuse me, when you was so kind to send the stamp, but if you will write again, I will try to write enough for "two letters" when I answer.

Bro. Nunley, you were once a Baptist preacher, were you not? I would feel so delighted to read your experience; also of the healings, etc., of others from our papers to our interested crowd here in the hospital.

For so long, since being so terribly afflicted, my memory is very deficient, and for this cause I have kept a diary for the past ten years, keeping an account of everything necessary to be remembered, addresses of all friends, list of paintings, etc., and fain anxious to continue the same while here; but about three weeks ago was very unfortunate in losing my diary as I lost my scissors, of which I have before made mention; therefore, if any of you continue sending book-marks to be painted, please, at same time, let me know what I have before painted, so that I may be more sure to make no two alike for one person, unless desired.

I have written more than I expected, but felt anxious for dear Sr. Shaw, Sr. Newby, Brn. Turpin, Cook and others with whom I feel so well acquainted, to know my situation, and I feel that I must again say, "please, dear Saints (all of you), ever remember we hospital folks, and dear papa and family, in your prayers." I feel so anxious for more patience, faith and charity, and strength to overcome my many wicked ways. We feel ever delighted to hear from Saints.

Your devoted sister, JENNIE PAGE.

THE CHURCH.

"The One Body" is the shelter from the pitiless storm. It is her good pleasure and pleasing duty to both advance on the strongholds of the enemy, as-sail, throw down, and demolish the fortresses of sin, and maintain and defend the right; under her canopy, and within her courts, sanctified service, unalloyed happiness, perennial fruitage, adamant strength and glorified humanity are martialing for grand review. She can vindicate her character against the innuendoes, adversions and virulent assaults of an opposing world. The flag of truth will float high above the miasma and poison simoom of the pestilential swept desert.

The best interests and everlasting benefits of mankind are wrought out under her jurisdiction, where loyalty, fidelity, and devoted obedience animates the heroic subject. If a plant becomes a tare, it degenerates, if indeed such have ever been thoroughly regenerated and born into a newness of life. The most experienced anglers will catch some inferior fish. They bait a well barbed hook for a trout, and, by times, they draw forth a worthless gar, or other kinds, of both good and bad. The strong of the fold are to bear with the infirmities of the weak and feeble minded; while the shepherds of the flock are to feed the sheep and tenderly care for the lambs. To the great Householder, even the Monarch of the vast universe, we either stand approved, or lose our standing and stewardship; for it is true, that whatever is proper, fair and just, we will receive in the time of reckoning. The law, with its legitimate demands, appeals to our manhood and free moral agency.

Where little native ability is bestowed, the rule is to not require much, especially before proper, timely instruction is accessible, and the light has come with its beauty and effulgence; yea, its power and authority to either acquit or condemn. Many talents, with the capacity, willingness, and ability to increase in knowledge, wisdom and understanding, enables the happy possessor thereof, to lead out in the drama of human thought and action, as also a banner bearer in divine things.

The Master Builder, Leader and Commander has all power bequeathed to him to organize his kingdom, and carry on the various departments of his work of redeeming love to final victory. He will not falter or become effeminately discouraged, but will continue the conflict till the last foe is subdued, and triumphant blessedness is at hand. When people are without the communion, their prime duty, is to press into the fellowship, and when they are inmates, then they should ceaselessly strive to establish their righteousness thereof, and inculcate, by precept and example, the best interests of this holy institution and order of God. Embassadors of the gospel, and messengers of salvation are auxiliaries and important factors in moving on swift rolling wheels of true progress throughout the world. Being co-laborers with the Infinite, and laboring under his consent and command, they fix and settle the status or condition of all that have, or could, come within the radius of their influence both here and hereafter.

Legitimate authority seals the obedient unto eternal life, and the unbelieving and rebellious to death and destruction. Within the purview of their office and calling those servants and agents of the Most High remit and wash away the sins of all who gladly and unreservedly comply with the requirements of the perfect law of liberty; on the other hand, they are under duty bound to retain the sins of all that have eyes that see not, and dull ears, and hearts dulled with avarice, pride, drunkenness, dishonesty, the love of popular praise, and all such like evil things. No one can have the love of God and the grace of Christ who looks with a particle of disfavor upon even the lowest and least child for whom Jesus bled and died. When the latest, frailest branch of the vine is marred or lost the plant at large suffers in proportion to the injury. When the limb of a body, great or small, is wounded or amputated, there remains a mutilated frame. The heart would hardly be happy when the head was sick, and the organism filled with disease and pain. If the orthodox churches were parts of the whole, or simply different divisions of the army, the success of one would not fill a rival with jealousy and sectarian hate; nor yet would a strong evangelical(?) denomination build up and prosper on the loss and decay of a small member of the same body. You can zigzag to the mill on as crooked a way as the serpent's path in the dust, or a ram's horn, but we are not milling, nor yet marketing grain while we are blazing out the straight and narrow way that leads up and on to everlasting life. The idea that different creeds are or can be right and be animated with the one Spirit, is charity gone to seed. It is imbecility with a vim, and preposterous in the extreme. Protestantism was a force against the power of the papacy, and from this dissension arose human governments that have no national religion.

This divorce of church and state, and the ushering in of political freedom barbingered forth much religious liberty, especially in this beloved land and nation. Tolerance in decent worship, and protection in the conscientious pursuits in the broad fields of faith and morals, should characterize every devout adorer of God. If you could but crack and crush the old shell of priestcraft, and tear off the mask of old popular opinion, and lay waste the altars and shrines of falling, dying Babylon, you would surely ring out the death knell of mental and spiritual bondage, and ring in an era of intellectual moral freedom. To stand untrammelled above the doctrines and dogmas of men, the traditions and commandments of the time honored fathers, is a heritage and a blessing that would fill all heaven with delight and thankful praise. The rusty chains of dark and devious superstition; the shackles and gyves of ignorant submission, will crumble and pass into dishonored oblivion when men and women will learn to pity and hate the cruel, blasphemous pretensions of the mother church, and the expiring wails of her illegitimate harlot daughters. Paul was preserved for a time from a violent death, all because there was a division among the religious Jews. To unite Christendom, unless it was on the basis of truth and righteousness, would be like Herod and Pilate making friends only to perform some dastard act. That unhal-lowed deed would be to combine against the Saints, and thus, Goliath like, defy the army of the living God. How much more shame, sorrow, distress and vile persecution they may devise and spring on the people of the good Lord I am not able to forecast, but evidently the ground will be closely contested, and the battle, by times, may be hot, for sooth, "This world is not a friend to grace."

"The Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ, of Latter Day Saints" must agree with, and be a duplicate and reproduction of the primitive and original one, in organic structure, and external form, in order to a just claim for recognition, and to vindicate its identity. In addition to this visible institution that mankind should "seek first," "press into," become "members of," and "lively stones in," it must not be simply similar to, but the same in ordinances, doctrine, practice, experience, spirituality, power, authority, object, and aim as the true, sole, and only one for which the Christ wrought, lived, suffered, died, arose, and was glorified to establish, build up, perfect, and redeem, as defined in the word of God. That there has been a widespread, withering, benighted, universal apostasy from the old, heaven ordained landmarks of primitive christianity, the Scriptures, the ecclesiastical histories, and the divided, irreconcilable antagonistic state of the world's worshippers agree beyond the power and hope of successful contradiction.

Religious wars have been sanguinary and frequent, and lo! the earth has often been drenched with human gore. Before the Emperor Constantine's time ten virulent persecutions were ordered by the Caesars of Imperial Rome. By confiscation and plunder; by ostracism and banishment; by fagot and flame; by incarceration and famine; by the sword and about all kinds of instruments of torture, the vast empire of pagan Rome became notorious, and abominable in the sight of God, and good angels, and men. When the above named monarch claimed to have a vision of the cross suspended in midheaven with certain words inscribed thereon, he soon became the convert to the christian religion as taught and observed at that time. He convened the famous council at Nice, A. D. 325, all to pass on the doctrine of Arius, and settle the faith of the church. There were three hundred and eighteen bishops in session for eighteen months, during which time Athenasius manipulated affairs to his own ambitious liking. The creed which he formulated and fathered has been called after this artful priest! the place whereit had birth(?) and zounds!! the apostles creed!!!!!! The Bible student knows full well that the apostles received instructions through the Holy Spirit, but they never compiled or adopted any human standard of belief, or formula for faith and worship.

The teachings of Arius as touching the one God, the subordinate, yet exalted, position of Christ, the dispensation of the Holy Ghost, were condemned as rank heresy, and this high dignitary, and all his co-laboring ministers were deposed. His vast following in northern Africa were the objects of imperial hate and rival bigoted persecutors until they were decimated and impoverished all out of character. The son of Constantine The Great(?) favored the views of the dismantled prelate and his fugitive ministers to the extent that many of them were reinstated, temporarily, to their respective charges; but his grandson, holding to the belief of the fathers, revived the engines of persecution, and stamped out and subdued the "Arian heresy," as it has been called. The doctrine of the "Blessed Trinity" has been denominated a sacred mystery, for, indeed, there are three persons in the Godhead equal in power, substance and eternity, etc., and yet only one God. In my humble opinion there is only one Almighty; but the adorable Son has all power so far as we and this world are concerned, to draw from death to life and save. This strength, rule and reign is delegated, and the Father sends the Only Begotten Son, and either, or both, the Spirit.

This divine order of things is uniform, but never reversed. Moses allowed that "the Lord is one God," and Christ re-announced the same illustrious truth, as seen in Mark. Isaiah knew only one supreme being, and St. Paul avows the same, with the further thought of one Mediator. The first and second of the "three" are personages; but the other witness, while often personified, is not a person, from the fact that he is not local and limited in presence, but is omnipresent to organize, disorganize, perpetuate, change or abolish according to the sovereign will, and direction of the immortal, eternal, omnipotent, and only God. The reverential fear of God is the beginning of wisdom. We could not acceptably fear, or revere a Being of whom we knew little or nothing; hence, the necessity of forming his acquaintance, and familiarizing ourselves with his character, disposition and attributes. This can be accomplished through obedience to the gospel, striving in a lawful manner, abounding in every good word and work, and enduring to the end. The avenues of prayer are open to all who hunger and thirst after righteousness, and demonstrate their willingness and fidelity by living up to the light that is available and accessible.

The great restitution of the gospel, and ultimately all things, would not be provided for in Sacred Writ had there not been a falling away which necessitated that want. An angel would not bring to earth the everlasting law and covenant of life, had that doctrine remained intact and unsullied among the children of men. The Lord never does or sanctions a needless act; nor yet sends his mighty messengers on idle, worthless errands. After the restoration of his saving truth, the Holy Land was to become fertile through climatic causes of the rains in due season and refreshing dews, all as in days of old, which has transpired since the restored gospel has come. Joseph, the martyred seer, was evidently the vessel God selected to receive this heavenly visitant, and become the custodian of this treasure and pearl of great price. The illustrious sire sealed his work and testimony with his crimson-tide, but the mantle of the fallen hero has passed upon his oldest son. While Jesus Christ is the ever living, invisible head of the bride, our presiding elder and prophet is the honored head of the faithful spouse or wife.

Many of the best thinkers on earth, and among fairminded people, cheerfully concede this great latter day work to be theoretically true, according to the light of right reason and a faithful interpretation of the Bible. Absolute knowledge, however, is promised and guaranteed through implicit obedience, as also faith the law; no abbreviation, or infraction is made on any rank or grade of the holy priesthood; no elipsis or change is wrought on the signs, spiritual gifts and manifestations of the Holy Ghost; no reasonable blessings are placed beyond the possibility of the faithful, and no adequate terror is denied to the impenitent, persistent sinner. God, not man, will confirm the truthfulness of this work, when we step out on the Lord's side and rally under the blood bought banner of Prince Immanuel. Should he fail to do so when we obey the commandments of his Son, and walk worthy of the vocation and calling of the children of light, set me down as a false witness before God, along with the ancient worthies and living witnesses. Do not stand aloof longer, and doubt his willingness, goodness, and ability to fulfill his word, but yield and live.

M. T. SHORT.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

I attended an all day meeting among the Baptist brethren lately, at which time two deacons were ordained. The minister requested those to be ordained to "come forward and kneel, and be ordained to the office of deacon by the laying on of our hands; not that we believe there is any virtue in the act of laying on of hands, or that we can impart anything to the subjects by so doing, but it is a custom that has always been in the church, and is merely a sign that they are set apart to the office of deacon." Now the words, "Having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof," came to me directly, and with so much force that I felt I was seeing the words fulfilled before my eyes; and I think the minister told the truth when he said it was "only a sign" and that "nothing was imparted," for "according to your faith shall it be unto you," and as they do not believe in the gift of the Holy Ghost through the laying on of hands, it would indeed be surprising if the subjects should receive anything at their hands. He read the 6th chapter of Acts, concerning the ordination of Stephen, and as the 6th verse does not say why they laid on hands, I suppose he thought it was only a sign then. But I find that all the rites of the different churches which are now held as mere signs, are memorials of what was once real. They are the forms of godliness, but are empty, hollow forms, "having lost the power thereof." It is not likely the Twelve considered it a mere sign in this instance any more than in other instances; for we read in chapter eight, fourteenth to seventeenth verses, how, when the apostles at Jerusalem heard that they of Samaria had received the word of God, sent Peter and John, who "prayed for them that they might receive the Holy Ghost, for as yet he was fallen on none of them; only they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus. Then laid they their hands on them and they received the Holy Ghost." Also in 19th chapter the account of "certain disciples" who had been baptized "unto John's baptism," but who had "not so much as heard whether there be any Holy Ghost;" then Paul, after teaching them the way more fully, baptized them in the name of the Lord Jesus, "and when Paul had laid his hands on them the Holy Ghost came on them and they spake with tongues and prophesied." They evidently received something; it was more to them than a mere sign. We also see in the eighth chapter how Simon recognized the power and thought it could be purchased with money, but Peter sharply reproved him, not for recognizing the power, for that none denied in those days that believed at all, but in thinking it could be purchased. Many more instances might be quoted, but I will just notice how Paul viewed the laying on of hands. Not as a mere sign is evident from his words in 1 Timothy 4:14, "Neglect not the gift that is in thee, which was given thee by prophecy with the laying on of hands of the presbytery." Also 2 Timothy 1: "Wherefore I put thee in remembrance that thou stir up the gift of God that is in thee, by the putting on of my hands." So we see that Paul knew and taught that the rite was something more than a sign then. Also in classifying the principles of the gospel of Christ. Hebrews 6:1, 2, he follows baptism with laying on of hands, and if the latter is only a sign, so is the former, which indeed is all it is claimed to be by the most strenuous of advocates for the form of baptism, with the exception, possibly, of the Campbellite brethren, who, I believe, teach baptism for the remission of sins; but with most it is a mere sign, with some a memorial of Christ's death and resurrection, with others a sign that we thus die to our sins and rise to a new life, but alas, how few see the real significance. A form of godliness without the power. Now, Paul speaks of the "gift of God that is in thee" in the verse above quoted. What was that gift? Why, all will agree it was the gift of the Holy Ghost. And how received? "By the putting on of my [Paul's] hands." Was the gift of the Holy Ghost a desirable thing then? No one will deny it. Then why not now? Oh, it is desirable now, but it is not necessary to do all that to receive it, says the churches of today, God is more willing to give it than man to ask it; very true, but He has appointed a plain way to receive it, and expects those who really desire it, and have a knowledge of His plan, to follow it. A certain king, having a quantity of pearls which he wished to divide among his obedient subjects, issued a decree to the effect that all who wished one of his pearls, which would be a source of wealth to the possessor, should come around to a certain wicket gate that opened into the king's domains, and from thence to the palace where the treasure would be bestowed. Now, at this gate was stationed an officer who was to give to each one who passed through the gate a badge of pure white with these letters in gold, "An obedient subject," which, when the king's treasurer, which was his own son, beheld, he knew the bearers thereof had complied with the king's decree, and were thus proven, indeed, to be "obedient subjects," and for such alone were the pearls intended. Now, some hearing of the fullness of the king's treasury, and of the willingness of the king to bestow his goodly pearls, and seeing the blessedness they brought to their possessors, greatly desired them, but did not care to walk the narrow path nor go through the wicket gate, but thought within themselves, just so we can get access to the king's treasurer, and we will obtain the pearls; so they came up through a broad, pleasant way, until they came, as they thought, to the palace of the king; but here they were met by a deceiver who gave them a counterfeit pearl, and they went on their way rejoicing; but when this pearl was put to the test, lo! it had not the power to bring any good to its owner. Still not knowing they had met with a deceiver, they lost faith in the virtues of the goodly pearl. Now, there were some who preferred to come up the narrow way, but did not care to go through the wicket gate; and as the servants whom the king had sent to show seekers after the pearls the way to obtain them, had grown careless about pointing out the way, they fancied to just leap over the wall that kept them out of the king's grounds would be just as well, and so they missed the officer, and failed to receive their badge which was to show their obedience. Therefore, they were turned away empty; but those of them who were wise, retraced their steps and coming up the narrow path and through the wicket gate, received the token of their obedience, and on seeing these the treasurer gave them their desired pearls. But it came to pass that because of the smoothness and beauty of the broader way, and because of the many enticing pleasures that were strewn along it, that many more were found therein, than in the narrow way. Now, the king seeing this, issued another decree, which was not another in meaning, but a renewal of the former, and sent out many servants to warn the people of the deception and the danger, and to show them the narrow way, which, because of so few traveling it, had become overgrown, and so hidden that only by careful search could it be found. But only a few seemed willing to hear, and they were mostly of the class who had tried the broad entrance and had been deceived, and their hearts were heavy because they still kept faith in the king's promises, and the treasurer's truth, and in the virtue of the excellent pearls, and desired above all else to possess them. And among these the king's servants found many who were willing to walk the narrow path and to pass through the narrow gate, even amid the jibes and snares, of their friends and associates who fancied these were being deceived. And those who so entered and received the badge of their obedience, received the promised pearls, and found to their great joy that the pearls did, indeed, possess all the excellencies of which the king's servants had told them. For when put to the test in the crucible of worldly cares, and by the hammer of opposition, they lost none of their luster, neither could they be destroyed, and did indeed, give to their owners great joy and such riches as the world knew nothing of, neither could it take away. By this little allegory I hope some may be led to see that God is indeed more willing to give "good gifts," or His Spirit, to us than we are to give good things to our children; but we must be obedient to the laws of heaven's kingdom to obtain the heavenly pearls. But, say some, we read even in the Acts of Holy Ghost being given to the gentiles even before baptism; and also we read the testimony of many great and good men, ministers of the gospel of other churches, missionaries, etc., and can we doubt their word? If God gave Holy Spirit to gentiles before baptism and without laying on of hands, will he not give it to others? Now, I dare not say He will not, or that He never has bestowed His Spirit on any who had not thus obeyed; but I do say, without fear of contradiction by any one who has looked into the gospel law at all, that He did not teach any other plan for the reception of His Spirit. The psalmist says, "The law of the Lord is perfect converting the soul." But you will say that was in the Old Testament, that meant the old law. Not so, my friend. That you will find is called the law of Moses, of course, given by God, but it was not the law of the Lord. It was but the law of the schoolmaster, which was to bring to Christ; but Christ's law was the "law of the Lord which was perfect converting the soul." It never was said of the Mosaic law, neither were souls converted by it. St. James calls it the "law of liberty," and it was with a prophetic eye that the psalmist could see its perfections and its converting power. And we find that Paul who shunned not to declare the whole counsel of God, did not dare to leave out the laying on of hands, for if he had he could not have said he had declared the "whole counsel." Can a perfect thing be changed? Will not any change mar its perfection? And as the gospel law, as Christ taught it and as the apostles learned it, some of them from Christ while on the earth, and Paul "by the revelation of Jesus Christ," Galatians 1:12, was perfect, can one of its principles be taken from it, or its meaning be changed, without rendering it imperfect? Evidently not. But is it not a little strange that through all these centuries, all the churches, no matter how far they have departed from the faith once delivered to the Saints, should still retain as a sign the same forms and rites as were held in the church in the apostolic days, although denying their power and significance? Why is it that some other form is not put in its stead (as it has been in the case of baptism though still called by the same name). Is it not that these words "Having a form of godliness but denying the power thereof," be literally fulfilled? The hollow, empty, lifeless form, and they are right to deny the power thereof, since there is none in it. A mock marriage has the form of a true marriage ceremony, but power to bind two lives together is not there because the authority to act is not back of the rite. If commissioned by God to set men apart by the laying on of hands, would you not expect God to give the same power now as of old, since He is "unchangeable," and "no respecter of persons?" Paul had no hesitancy to speak of Timothy's receiving the gift by the putting on of his (Paul's) hands, because called and commissioned by God to do that work. But not only the officials were to have the gift, but the lay members also; to each was the promise verified, "Thou shalt receive the Holy Ghost," but by the same method, since that was a part of the perfect gospel law; and if you carefully read the entire book of Acts, and notice the references given to refer you to the same subject in Paul's epistle, you cannot fail to see it was the law there. Now, when was it changed? and why, if then perfect, and if so changed, who changed it? Not God, certainly, for His word abideth forever. "Forever, Oh Lord, thy word is settled in heaven" (Psalms 119:89); also, "Thy righteousness is an everlasting righteousness, and thy law is the truth" (verse 142). Now, truth is unchangeable; to change a truth is to render it an untruth. Again, in Psalm 100:5, "His truth endureth to all generations." Now, if the Holy Ghost could be conferred in those early days by the laying on of hands by those in authority; if that was one of God's truths then, and "His" truth endureth to all generations, it endures today; and if I denied that, then I would have to deny its being God's truth; and if that part of the gospel law was false, then it was an imperfect law, and might as well be rejected. But the psalmist again says in the 119th psalm (which is a veritable gold mine of truth), 86th verse, "All thy commandments are faithful, they persecute me wrongfully, help thou me," and 160th verse, "Thy word is true from the beginning, and every one of thy righteous judgments endureth forever." Oh, how much of consolation in these words, "They persecute me wrongfully, help thou me." What encouragement to those of us who feel that we are misjudged because we try to "keep thy statutes," having chosen the "way of truth" (35th verse), and "have stuck unto thy testimonies" (31st), and "will run the way of thy commandments when thou shalt enlarge our hearts" (32d). "Teach me, Oh Lord, the way of thy statutes, and I shall keep it unto the end. Give me understanding and I shall keep thy law, yea, I shall observe it with my whole heart. Make me to go in the path of thy commandments, for therein do I delight. Incline my heart unto thy testimonies, and not unto covetousness. Turn away my eyes from beholding vanity, and quicken thou me in thy way. Establish thy word to thy servant, who is devoted to thy fear. Turn away my reproach which I fear, for thy judgments are good. Behold, I have longed after thy precepts, quicken me in thy righteousness;"—Psalms 119:33-40. May not these words indeed be a fitting prayer for us all. A. R. C. October 14. COMFORTING EXPERIENCES. Dear Ensign:—Some time ago I was requested by Sr. Jennie Page to write my church experience for your columns. I will now try to comply with the request, although somewhat delinquent. I was not, as some of the Saints, converted from the outside world to a belief in the gospel, but raised to believe in its truth; yet I am not a Saint because mother was, but because I was made to realize the truth of the gospel for myself. I believed in the gospel as a child and oh! how often the Lord heard and answered my prayers.

When I was between ten and eleven years old I first made up my mind to be baptized, but put off that important step for about six months or until warm weather; but as is usual in such cases, my plans were all upset and instead I was a helpless invalid. God mercifully restored me to health, however, and while I never gave up my resolve to be united with the church, it was almost six years before I really had opportunity again to be baptized, and when that opportunity did come I was much better fitted for the life of a Saint, for I had passed through much suffering, both physically and mentally, and learned many lessons in the hard school of experience.

As I look back I see how often I prayed for things which I did not receive. How hard it seemed then to give up my desires, being unable to realize that this withholding was a blessing in disguise. How often I feel to thank God for not granting the prayers I then offered. As I grew older I began to realize the stigma placed even on the child of a Saint or "Mormon," as my companions preferred to call them; I thought how much worse it would be if I united with the church, not understanding that I would then receive the Spirit to help me bear all trials.

While I was thus wavering I decided to take it to the Lord in prayer; and I had no sooner placed the matter before him, asking for a knowledge as to His church, than a book was placed before my eyes, which I at once attempted to read, but was only permitted to read one word, the word Mormon, when the vision was withdrawn, and thanking the Lord for this manifestation I arose from my knees. At this time I had never seen a Book of Mormon and thought it a much larger volume than it is; it was not until after I had obeyed the commandments of the Lord that I did see one. It was a small sized edition, the only kind then in print, I think, but still I did not connect it with my vision until one afternoon when reading in the latter part of the book, I dropped it in my lap and it was then that I saw the word "Mormon" in the exact place I had seen it in my vision; I was much affected by it when the vision again appeared. The two books were exactly alike except for the somewhat soiled appearance of the book in my lap. I felt much encouraged and strengthened and shall never cease to thank God for this testimony.

Somewhere near the same time that I beheld this vision I had a dream in which I seemed to be struggling in angry waters whose waves were about to overwhelm me, when the Savior came to my assistance and helped me safe to land, inviting me to come and partake with him of the feast prepared. This dream was fulfilled to the letter in my acceptance, for the angry billows of sorrow and discouragement were indeed rolling over me and it seemed almost overwhelming me, when I received the invitation through a servant of the Lord, Bro. J. F. Mintun, and was baptized by him on August 28, 1892, at Soldier, Iowa, and while I went into the water with gladness, yet it was mingled with a sense of sadness also, for others whose desire it was to accompany me, but who were prevented by those who had rule over them; one was a schoolmate several years younger than I, who desired to unite with the church, but was prevented by her parents who were unbelievers, and as she removed with them to a locality where there were no Saints, before she was old enough to act for herself, she has never united with us, yet I trust the Lord in his tender mercy will yet draw her to him. The other was a married lady, a member of the Norwegian Lutheran church; was greatly interested, but was opposed to such an extent that she had to make choice between her husband and the church, and chose the former for the sake of her children, but came to me with streaming eyes as I descended the river bank and told me how much she desired to go with me. So it is no wonder that while I rejoiced for myself, that my heart ached for the sorrows of others.

After my baptism it was only a short time until I received another evidence of the truth of the work. Being now a Saint I desired to know what there was for me to do, and as was my custom, I took it to the Lord in secret prayer, and before I arose from my knees I heard that still, small voice say, "Do with your might what your hands find to do." It was a long time before I really realized the extent of this command, and consequently it was some time before it was really obeyed, even while I thought I was obeying it; for I could not realize at first that it had reference to anything except church work; but I now know that it means everything that my hands find to do, whether it be some work for the church or the work of making a home, or rather keeping one. And while I know that I could accomplish more in the way of church work if my hands were not so full of home duties, yet I know that the work of making home happy is the Lord's work as well. So do not worry, only pray God for strength for each duty as it comes. The Lord has ever been kind and merciful to me and has never failed to recognize me as his child when such an evidence was needed.

A year ago last spring when Satan first began his work here, when I first found that there was trouble coming, I had been talking over the situation with my husband at supper, and when he went out to do his evening work I set myself about putting the babies to bed; when the older one was in bed I sat down by the open door to rock baby to sleep, my mind still on the subject we had been discussing, namely, the dissatisfaction of some of the Saints because the Spirit and the gifts were not manifested to a greater extent in our prayer meetings, and instead of singing baby to sleep as usual, I poured out my heart to God in prayer, asking, among other things, that he would make it known in some way whether my life and works were pleasing in his sight; also that it might be made known in his own way. The prayer ended, I sat in awed silence, a strange feeling of an unseen presence pervading my being; my mind turned to the testimonies I had read and heard of heavenly messengers and angelic ministrations and music and the like, but I saw nothing, nor heard any strange sounds out of keeping with a quiet spring evening, until I was aroused by my husband asking who had been there. After assuring him I had been alone since he left, I inquired why he had asked such a question, when he related to me the following circumstance. When he had started to the house after milking, he was surprised at the sound of a sweet voice in song issuing from the house and coming in sight of the house saw a woman dressed in spotless white rocking a baby in front of the door; then the house seemed to be open at the front and seemed to be filled with people, but only the one figure prominent and that one occupying the position I did at the door, or where the door should be. I, however, was dressed in a dress far from white. While he stood watching and listening, the singing ceased, and the sound of some unseen musician was heard; this higher in the air above the house. Then as he started to the house the vision vanished and the music died away on the evening air. A sister living near also heard the singing and the instrumental music, but saw nothing. I afterward told my husband of my prayer and asked him if he thought this was the answer, and whether I should feel satisfied of acceptance with God. He told me he did not see how I could fail to do so, and this has been my greatest strength in the hours of trial that followed, helping me to such an extent that I did not become downcast or discouraged for over a year, when the Lord proved me that he is always able to give strength in time of need, and I think the blessings are always greater when they come in a way we are not expecting.

It was in June and July when I began to feel really discouraged in regard to my work; felt that I was doing no good and turned a listening ear to the gossip of critics, and while I kept courage while in their company, when alone I confess I felt pretty blue, so I again entreated the Lord for strength, without which I felt I could not hold out much longer; also asking that he might make it known in some way whether he was pleased with the work I was doing; I also prayed for strength to bear the trials that were upon me. And I am thankful to say that the blessings asked for were given in a most unexpected way, although at the time I received no evidence except added strength and a feeling of encouragement.

At the expiration of about two weeks I received a letter in a strange handwriting, bearing a strange postmark, and as I opened it I remarked to Bro. Covert, "I hope this isn't another chain letter." (We had received about nineteen of them, all told). What was my surprise on opening it to find it signed by Sr. Nettie I. Heavener, who was known to me only through the church papers. After writing a very kind, encouraging letter, she delivered to me a message given her by the Spirit in which the Lord fully answered my prayer and gave promise of the needed physical and mental strength for the performance of my duties if I was faithful in using my pen.

What could have been greater encouragement than this. It was just what I had prayed for, and it had come from one who did not know me except as she had read my writings, and had no means of knowing the trials and difficulties under which I was laboring, or that I, in any way, stood in need of such blessings; and then, too, the Spirit did indeed bear witness that the message was of God. So I am striving daily to perform the work before me, at the same time caring for my little family, and I ask an interest in your prayers that I may be able to raise my three dear little ones in such a way that they may be ready to accept the gospel when they come to the years of accountability.

If it were not for the length to which my letters have a habit of getting, I could relate many more instances of blessings received by me and mine, but must refrain, although scarce a day passes that we have not some evidence of God's goodness to us. I would also be glad to give an account of the happenings in the church here, but must refrain until some other time. Hoping this may be of encouragement to some one, I will close with prayers for the advance of the cause we love.

Your sister in Christ,

CANCER OF THE BREAST CURED.

Grateful Words of Praise from Noble Women.

Cozad, Neb., Oct. 14, 1899.

Dr. W. O. BYE, Kansas City, Mo.:
Dear Dr.—I wish to state in behalf of all suffering humanity of cancer what wonderful work you did for my mother. About two years ago a lump began to grow under her left breast, which gave her much trouble and great fear. She was treated by our family physician, but gradually grew worse, and every one told her that the only cure was an operation; but to this she would not consent, she said she would prefer death to an operation. When one day I saw your advertisement in a paper, and something told me I must write to you at once, which I did, and on receiving your answer I hurried homeward with

WILL SEND $2.50 FREE.

TO EACH OF OUR READERS, FRANKLIN MILES, M. D., OF THE CELEBRATED CHICAGO SPECIALTIST, WILL SEND $2.50 WORTH OF HIS NEW SPECIAL TREATMENT FREE.

When an experienced physician offers to give away $40,000 worth of a heart, nervous system, or dropsy. It is conclusive evidence that he has great faith in it. And when hundreds of prominent men and women freely testify to his unusual skill and the superiority of his New Special Treatment, his liberality is certainly worthy of serious consideration.

That Dr. Miles is one of the world's most successful physicians in treating these diseases, is proven by hundreds of testimonials. One patient cured after failure of eleven Grand Rapids physicians; two after having been given up by Chicago physicians; another after nine of our best doctors in New York City, Philadelphia and Chicago failed. Thousands of testimonials sent upon request.

The eminent Rev. W. Bell, D. D., of Dayton, Ohio, General Secretary of Northern Baptist Convention, writes cordially in the State Swallow as follows: "We desire to state that from personal acquaintance we know Dr. Miles to be a most skillful specialist, a man who has spared neither labor nor money to keep himself abreast of the great advances of medical science." The late Prof. E. S. Jewell, M. D., editor of Journal of Mental and Nervous Diseases, Chicago, said: "By all means publish your surprising results." Rev. J. W. Stokesbury, of Fairport, Mo., had head, heart, stomach troubles, and nervous prostration. Three physicians failed to help him. He writes: "I regard myself cured." M. G. Beck of Webb City, Mo., wrote a friend: "Dr. Miles treated me for mind trouble, unattract fears and great nervousness. He cured me nine years ago." Mr. Geo. Woodhouse reports: "My son was so bad, he was helpless. Other physicians failed to help him, but Dr. Miles brought him out all right." J. D. Howe, Bronkfield, Mo., says: "Dr. Miles is the only physician who ever helped me."

This new system of special treatment is thoroughly scientific and improved, superior to the ordinary methods.

As all afflicted readers may have $2.50 worth of treatment especially prepared for their case, FREE, with full directions, we would advise them to send for it at once. Address DR. W. O. BYE, Kansas City, State and Adams Streets, Chicago.

your "Message of Hope." Mother concluded to give you a trial, we sent for home treatment and applied your Balm Oils at once, she began to get better right away; she took home treatment for two months and at the end of that time the cancer became quite painful and Dr. Bye requested that she should come to Kansas City for personal treatment, which she did, and on leaving us we had grave hopes for her recovery and as her many friends bid her "good-by" more than one of them thought it was for the last time. But on arriving in Kansas City Dr. Bye informed her that the cancer would come out in a few days. She remained in Kansas City only two weeks and at the end of that time she came home cured of cancer. It is now entirely healed over, it did not even leave a scar. Mother feels like a new woman; she is 63 years old and does all her own housework, which is no small matter as she cooks for five men. She says she cannot say enough for Dr. Bye, and the kind and loving treatment which she received while there will never be forgotten. I shall be willing and delighted to answer any and all letters that I may receive in regard to Dr. Bye's mode of treatment, and before closing this letter I trust that God may ever bless and guide you in curing the poor suffering humanity of this world.

I remain,

SULPHUR.

It is a fact that when the grip was prevailing as an epidemic largely in our city a few years ago, I ascertained, by inquiry of my officers at "Byum's Match Factory," that of the forty three persons employed there not one had been troubled by it.

I have at various times told the press how many at Memphis, Tennessee [including the agents of "The Howard Benevolent Association"], escaped the terrible epidemic of yellow fever there [as they claimed] by wearing powdered sulphur in their shoes—also the evidence of a distinguished German medical writer translated into English, that wearing sulphur in this way has proved a complete protection against cholera and other epidemic diseases—also that those working the sulphur mines of Italy escape the malaria which prevails all about them—also that sulphur in the shoes has cured various cases of rheumatism—also that sulphur taken internally or worn in the shoes has sufficient power to pass through the body, the clothing and the pocket-book, blackening the silver there.

I find in the London Lancet that no less authority than the president of the Institute of Civil Engineers of London, declares that the sulphurous vapor produced by the combustion of coal in that city kills the disease germs in the atmosphere.

In the Scott county (Mississippi) Register, of June 15th last, will be found an account of how the agents of "The Howard Benevolent Association," at Memphis, escaped yellow fever by wearing sulphur in their shoes.

Half a teaspoonful of powdered sulphur in each shoe or stocking is considered to be sufficient.

Captain Julius A. Palmer, of this city, wrote us last year:

"By the way, in view of your frequent recommendations of common sulphur, it came to my notice recently that on California ranches where walnuts are prepared for the market the shells are bleached by the use of brimstone fumes, and that the men having charge of that work are never touched by the grippé, influenza or other epidemics which attack their fellow laborers on the same estates."—Geo. T. Angell in Our Dumb Animals for January, 1900.

The Time of the End.

Evidences are accumulating that these years now passing are the time of the end foretold by the Lord through his prophets in ancient days.

The gospel with authority to act in the name of Christ was restored in 1830.

The early and latter rains were restored to Palestine in 1852, since which Judah has been returning to his own land.

Signs in the sun, moon and stars have appeared in the present generation; great wars, earthquakes, famines and pestilences have occurred more than usual, by which it is evident that the day called millennium will soon be ushered in, and Jesus come to begin his reign of peace, according to Matthew 24; Mark 13; Luke 21 and Revelation 20.

A MIXE.

Grape Juice.

A report of the Canada experimental farms gives an account of a series of experiments on the best means of sterilizing grape juice. The conclusion, which probably applies to sweet cider as well as to grape juice, was that "the natural flavor of grape juice may be preserved intact by raising the temperature of the juice gradually to 170 degrees F., keeping it at this point for ten minutes and then quickly bottling it, taking care to use absolutely air-tight and thoroughly sterilized vessels. These vessels should be taken from a tank or kettle of boiling water, immediately filled, and corked or covered with the least possible delay."

Presiding Officers.

As many of our people know, I am not now, nor have I been at any time in the past, in favor of the idea of abandonment of positions established with regard to our faith, without something like a proper provision being made in harmony with the law and counsel of God, for the care and protection of the young and inexperienced, as well as the proper representation of our faith to strangers or coming investigators.

The quite general stampede or rush—if I may be allowed that term—away from "branches and districts where organization is effected" upon receipt of the revelation of 1894, was, and is—to my mind—the result of a hasty and superficial interpretation of not only the revelation itself, but out of harmony with the counsels of God before announced in the law; and in violation of this opinion, it is only necessary to point out the too numerous disastrous results that have followed when "sheep" and "lambs" of the flock, as well as strangers, have gone unfed and without proper care, in means of growth or education or understanding of the law of God, or that which, as provided for in the law of God, can only minister effectually to permanent growth and development after the pattern of Him "in whom are hidden all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge."

Wrecks, individually and of branches, are strewn all over the territory which is taken possession of in the name, and under the banner of Jesus Christ, but where there are only wrecks, and where too often just reproach has been almost indelibly stamped upon the mind of the community caused by misrepresentation, mal-administration of the law, or perhaps unministerial or unsatisfactory conduct.

Men of God, called of God and ordained of Him according to His law and to "the gifts and callings of God unto them," "by the heads of the church and known unto the whole church," and not called by some local "oracle" whose "gift" unaccompanied by "wisdom" or "discernment" so necessary to prevent mistakes or avoid deception, have been fairly insulted or "run out" of territory or place unto which God had sent them as witnesses by result and fruit of their labors under the influence begotten of, or originating with people "desiring to have pre-eminence," public notice, a "vain glory" or a leadership for which they were far from being qualified, either from an intellectual, spiritual and—sometimes—moral standpoint; and which the revelation above referred to, especially paragraph 5, has been made to do service, and frighten good, law-abiding, order-loving people into a supposed acquiescence of the letter of the law, but which their observation, judgment or desire, as well as the Spirit, plainly opposed.

The law provides as a necessity "for the perfection of Saints," etc., that in cities or all large branches that high priests should be placed over them and in districts; or, not being available, men capable and loosed from secular affairs, should be ordained, etc.; but when these recourses fail the church, what then? Shall we leave matters to the care and inefficient protection, education, growth and development of local "elders," priests, teachers or a deacon? who are almost universally weighed down with the care of family, many times in comparative poverty, toiling six days in the week; willing but unable to successfully serve a large flock; or, on the other hand, some ambitious aspirant for "Moses' seat," for which he has little or no natural or acquired fitness, but nearly always jealous in disposition and possessed of superabundant confidence in his own ability to "run things" without outside interference from any quarter.

The revelation and counsel in especially the paragraph referred to, was no doubt timely and needed. The world needs to be "warned," and the tendency to stay in branches or places where they were not naturally called as circumstances fitted them to occupy upon the part of some of the ministry, was wisely indicated; but when e.g. it is urged that a Twelve or member of the quorum of Seventies "cannot under the law preside" locally under any circumstances, you may safely set it down as a rule that this is made an excuse only, and that an investigation will show that it is the men and his methods and work, and not the office that he may hold that is objected to.

I have never been at war with the idea suggested at the Conference, I think, of 1894, through the quorum of High Priests, of men in the ranks of the Seventy being chosen to look after matters too long neglected and through which the church has suffered loss of prestige, good name, influence and permanent recognition and standing in the community. Though I am not endorsing necessarily the naming or choice of men made at the time—of that I do not know, although as I have herein stated, I believe the line between privileges or duties of High Priests or that of a "Seventy," has been overdrawn.

Report of Willing Helpers.

Following is the annual report of the Willing Helpers of Independence, Missouri, branch, for the year ending December 31, 1899:

The society has held fourteen meetings with an average attendance of fourteen members. There has been eighty-six yards of carpet made and sold. Pleds and quilted three quilts and made one comfort. The society has also made and was paid by the piece for the following articles: made two comforts, quilted one quilt and made some wearing apparel.

From the work we have taken in and what we have sold, we have realized $12.25. The greater portion of this has been used to help the poor and needy. We have a balance in the treasury of $10.16, with a balance still due the society of $5.45.

Our efforts may seem small, but we have been blessed in our work and the Spirit has often borne witness that our work was acceptable and we are encouraged to continue. We have been prospered and accomplished much more than in the year previous.

The first of this year, 1900, we met and the following officers were elected for the year: Mrs. M. Windsor, president; Mrs. E. Borbridge, vice-president; Mrs. M. M. Peterson, secretary. We are ready any time to receive cast off clothing or carpet rags. We also solicit work, such as quilting, making comforts and common sewing. Our object, as stated in our last report, is to help the worthy poor.

NOTICES.

To District Secretaries and Secretaries of Schools not in Districts of the General Sunday School Association:—For fear the letters which are addressed to you personally will not reach you, and in order to bear in mind the necessity for making a prompt report of your district or school, in ample time to have it incorporated in my general report to the Association, you will kindly take notice of the following instructions:

It is expected that the reports from the local schools made to the last district convention prior to the General Convention at Lamoni in April will be the basis on which you make your general report, and as it is at this district convention that delegates are selected to represent your district at the General Association meeting, it is necessary if you have not yet notified your local secretaries, to do so now, and send blank reports to them, requesting them to have them filled out properly without fail and sent to you. You will then please compile your district report and send it to me at once, or not later than March 20th. Also send a list of the delegates chosen to represent your district.

The constitution provides for the election of officers for the ensuing year at this meeting, and you will therefore kindly insert the full names and addresses of the officers thus selected, on the report. Please see to it that this is not overlooked, as these officers are ex officio members of the General Convention, and unless you furnish their names we do not know them.

Secretaries of schools not members of District Associations will send their annual report to me, also list of delegates and names of officers similar to the manner above described.

Your Good Health

depends upon the food you eat. Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder adds to the healthfulness of all risen flour-foods.

Not only this, it makes the food lighter, sweeter, finer-flavored and more delicious. It is worth while to exercise care in purchasing baking powder to see that you get the kind that makes the food more wholesome and at the same time more palatable.

NOTE.—There are many mixtures, made in imitation of baking powder, which it is prudent to avoid. They are lower in price than cream of tartar powders, but they are made from alum, a corrosive poison, dangerous to health when used in food, and render the food unhealthful.

REJECTS INFANT BAPTISM.

The Rev. Madison C. Peters, D. D., pastor of the Bloomingdale Reformed church of New York City, recently resigned the pastorate of that church, having arrived at the conclusion that the doctrine of the baptism of infants is not a doctrine of Christ, and is not authorized by God's word. Naturally, this action has created somewhat of a commotion in the orthodox(?) churches, that doctrine having for so long been a prominent tenet with them. The following clipped from the issue of The Kansas City (Mo.) Journal, for February 4th, evidences that the light of the glorious gospel of Jesus Christ is influencing the minds of the teachers of some of the most prominent churches of the age, and winning them from some of the man-made theories that have so long influenced them, and caused the Lord to declare of the churches thus practicing, "they are all wrong," and that such practices were an abomination in his sight:

ON INFANT BAPTISM.

Rev. Mr. W. J. Williamson, pastor of Bales chapel, commends the action of Rev. Dr. Madison C. Peters in resigning as pastor of the Bloomingdale Reformed church, of New York city, because it teaches infant baptism. "There is no passage in Scripture," said Rev. Mr. Williamson, "which has a direct or indirect reference to the baptism of the infant. Rev. Dr. Peters' action in withdrawing from a church that believes in this fallacy is but another example of the first growing tendency of ministers and close thinkers of the country to discard infant baptism from their creed. Infant baptism is the relic of Catholicism, brought over by Protestants after the reformation."

Rev. Dr. C. B. Wilcox, pastor of the First Methodist church, had this to say on the subject:

"I do not censure Dr. Peters for his action in withdrawing from the church if he could not conscientiously believe in its creed. However, I do not agree with him in his belief, dictated by his conscience. Infants are entitled to Christian baptism because they are entitled to that which is signified by it. For the sake and merits of our Lord Jesus Christ, every son and daughter of Adam is born into the world in a condition to be justified, regenerated, adopted and made an heir of eternal life, and those dying in infancy come into actual possession of all these blessings. This is sufficiently evidenced by our Lord's words: "Suffer the little children to come unto me and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of heaven."

Rev. Williamson, pastor of Bales chapel, of Kansas City, Missouri, is a Baptist, and, of course, rejects the doctrine of infant baptism, calling it "a relic of Catholicism brought over by Protestants after the Reformation." Rev. Wilcox, a Methodist, on the other hand, judges that "infants are entitled to Christian baptism because they are entitled to that which is signified by it," but his argument is very weak and faulty. Christian baptism is Christ's baptism, and the only baptism in water which he ever established or recognized for man was for the remission of sins. Now, sin cannot be imputed to an infant, for it has no consciousness of right and wrong; the Lord Jesus Christ atoned for what is termed original sin, that which is entailed upon the creation by reason of the transgression of Adam and Eve—else there could be no resurrection from the grave. "As in Adam all die so in Christ shall all be made alive," says the apostle in 1 Corinthians 15; it is only for personal sin that every one must answer to God at the Judgment bar, and infants, being guiltless, are heirs of life, if they die in infancy. Having, then, no sins to remit, that which is signified by Christian baptism—the remission of sins—does not in any particular apply to them, and they are not properly subjects for "Christian baptism."

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

JOSEPH HARRIS CADMAN desires the Saints to remember him in their prayers. He is quite low with consumption at the home of his sister, Mrs. J. E. Gartside, Kingston, Missouri.

BRO. J. D. STEAD baptized one at Pana, Illinois, January 21st, and thinks others are near the kingdom. He found some there who were hungering for the bread of life, and they are being made conscious that nothing else will ever satisfy them. He was to go to Taylorville from Pana.

THE Saints of Nevada, Missouri, are manifesting a lively and commendable interest in the progress of the work in that vicinity. Sr. Mina Perkins Kearney advises that they organized a Sunday School there January 21st, and the Saints were to have a business meeting the week following, the 28th, to see about making Nevada the headquarters of the branch. She adds:

We feel much encouraged and hope the Lord will bless the work here.

BRO. W. E. PEAK, 365 Grand River Avenue, Detroit, Michigan, says the work is moving along smoothly there, and some indications of success are seen all along the line. He has enjoyed the Spirit's presence in his labors in that city, and that always encourages, regardless of outward appearances. He says:

We have some noble Saints in this city, and I hope to see the work prosper here, as in other places.

BRO. M. T. SHORT, by handbills in various colors, and through the columns of the local press, sought, the past two weeks, to place the opportunity to hear the "angel's message" before the residents of Warrensburg, Missouri. The Standard-Herald, of that place, gave him about a column space last week for an article on "Why I became a Latter Day Saint." The Knob Noster, Missouri, Item, declined the article on the ground that they did not think their readers cared for the information. He was to begin a series of services at Holden, Missouri, last Monday evening.

THE latest advices from Utah regarding the Roberts' case, as given below, indicates that the end of trouble for B. H. Roberts was not reached when he was denied admission to Congress. The action here reported is simply the legitimate and consistent course to pursue in calling a criminal to account for his transgression of law.

MORE TROUBLE FOR ROBERTS.

SALT LAKE CITY, U. Feb. 3.—Brigham H. Roberts arrived here this afternoon and was driven from the depot to the office of his attorney, J. H. Moyle. While in the office he was arrested for unlawful co-habitation with Dr. Maggie Shipp. He was released on his own recognizance to appear on Monday morning next for a preliminary hearing.—The Kansas City Journal, February 4.

BRO. M. H. BOND has a fine article of a column and a half in the Boston Evening Transcript, January 19th, on the status of the Utah question, showing distinctly that the doctrine of polygamy is an outgrowth of the departure of the Brighamites from the original faith, and that the Utah church is not the legal successor in fact, or representative, of the true church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, and closes his article as follows:

We have no sympathy with that "leaven of the Pharisees" that has, in time past, under religious mask or guise, wrought so disastrously to the cause of truth and human liberty, and of which Utah missionaries complain; but we want to call the attention of the people of New England to the fact that priestcraft, religious intolerance and priestly domination over men's consciences have never found a better or more complete exposition than in the true history of the "Mormon Church of Utah."

The Reorganized church, since 1860, has persistently, and whenever public opportunity has been offered, antagonized the evils that have made the name a stench in the nostrils of decent people; and, in closing, we have this to say, and this proposition is publicly offered to Mr. Jensen, or any man whom the church in Utah will endorse and stand by as their representative, that we are ready to publicly discuss, and will undertake to maintain and prove, that Brigham Young was not, nor are his successors, from John Taylor to the present incumbent in Salt Lake City, the legally chosen or true successors in church office and appointment of Joseph Smith.

2. That the church in Utah are not the legal successors in fact or representatives of the true Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. That they have largely apostatized from the faith and doctrines held and preached by the church up to the time of the death of Joseph Smith, and that their contention as a whole is misleading; their history, much of it, indefensible; many of the utterances and public teachings of their leaders and church authorities not only contrary to the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ, and the doctrines originally held by the church as contained in the standard books and law-governing the church, but subversive to good government and morals.

M. H. BOND.

General Church Missionary for the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

A PRESSURE of other duties has prevented a reading and review of Bro. Albert Haws' work on the Seventh day doctrine, but the following from Elder Mark H. Forscutt, as well as the commendations from Brn. R. Etzenhouser and T. W. Chatburn, recently published, will convey to the reader an idea of its value. Orders may be sent either to the author or to the ENSIGN office.

NEBRASKA CITY, Jan. 23, 1900.

My Brother—Because I have become deeply interested in a brochure published by Elder Albert Haws, of No. 922 Third street, Oakland, California, it occurred to me to call your attention to it as I have not seen it advertised in either of our church papers. The reading of its arguments, some of which are new to me, has helped me to a better understanding of this subject, and if it were widely read, I believe it would be helpful to others also. And seeing it costs but 15 cents, it is within the reach of many to whom a fuller treatise would not be. If it shall be within your power to aid in the bringing this booklet more prominently forward, I believe you would thereby help both the cause we love, and the author of this work.

Yours truly,

MARK H. FORSCUTT.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

BRO. JOHN SHOOK, Buchanan, Michigan:

There is a small branch of Saints in Buchanan, that meet in Sunday School at 9:30 Sunday morning, prayer and testimony meeting at 10:30, preaching in the evening by Bro. George Weston at 7 o'clock. Our prayers to almighty God are that He will bless the con-ing conference and His ministry, and bless His Saints abundantly in basket and store, and then let them see their duty in paying tithing, so that the work may be blessed this year. And we ask Him to be mindful of the few Saints in Buchanan, Michigan, that we do our duty.

BRO. M. P. DALE, Maysville, Arkansas:

The Lord is with me in this work. I preached three times in a private house Christmas to a good crowd. The outlook is more favorable than formerly.

SR. MITTIE THOMPSON, Fanning, Kansas:

The Saints in this part of the Lord's vineyard are working for the advancement of Zion, realizing that the time has come when we must put forth every effort in helping roll on this great work.

BRO. GEORGE MCKELDOWNNEY, Goose Creek, West Virginia:

I was a Methodist before uniting with the Reorganized church. I fought against the Saints and tried to disbelieve their teachings, but I finally obeyed the gospel and now know it is the right faith, and I try to do all I can for it.

BRO. F. G. SPAULDING, Leeds, North Dakota:

Bro. William Sparling is here [January 15th] preaching for us in the school-house. I tried to get the M. E. church; they have rented it for concerts and shows, but the minister refused to let us have it for meetings. I think it will be all for the best, it will let an honest thinker see what spirit they are of.

BRO. E. F. TIGNER, Knox, North Dakota, rejoices in his experience in the work, among other evidences of its truth being two visions shown him, which confirmed his faith, and assured him he was doing the will of the Lord, and his mind is freed from doubt. He adds this exhortation:

O, dear Saints, what a responsibility rests upon us; how we ought to raise up our children, that at the day of judgment they will not cry out against us. Let us teach them the gospel and raise them up in the church; I know this will be pleasing in the sight of the Master.

ELDER J. L. GOODRICH, Newport News, Virginia:

I reached here on Monday just in time to be recognized by our beloved Sr. Orr, whom I anointed; she soon fell into a swoon from which she never rallied. She was baptized by Bro. F. C. Smith at Roxbury, Virginia, in 1896, and has been a faithful member and a firm believer in the latter day message. She has one daughter in the church who lives in Kansas. I talked a short time to the family and friends before we deposited the body in the grave to awake with the resurrection of the just. I was assisted by the Baptist minister here, R. Wright, who conducted the song and prayer service. I shall remain here a few days with the few Saints and their friends, and hope to speak a few times. Sr. Rand and two of her daughters, who are members, and Sr. Taylor, are here. These are the only Saints but they have many friends. I stopped over Sunday on my way here. There is more interest there than when I was first there. Hope to hold another service on my return to New Hope. May the time soon come when prejudice may give way to truth.

GENERAL CHURCH NEWS.

INDEPENDENCE.

Grandma Davidson is feeling some better, but is still feeble.

Sr. P. Peterson was prostrated with an attack of the grip Monday evening.

Sr. Bowker has been quite ill the past ten days. She is improving slowly, but needs night attendance yet.

Sr. Roy Newkirk is not so well again. She has been threatened with a return of the hemorrhages. The Saints should pray earnestly for her.

Sr. Belle James has been quite seriously ill with a heavy attack of erysipelas in her face and neck the past week, but is now slowly improving we are pleased to note.

Rain commenced falling about noon Wednesday and while the increased supply to the cisterns was appreciated. The accompanying mud on the streets is not regarded so favorably.

The latest reports from Cove, Arkansas, show that young Bro. Phillips, who was attacked with smallpox, received speedy help and is out of danger and recovering rapidly. No other case is reported among the Saints.

Bro. Joseph Luff arrived home from the East via Toronto, Canada, and Chicago, Illinois, Sunday evening and was one of Bro. Kelley's auditors at the evening service at the church, receiving a hearty welcome at the close. He is not well.

Mr. Henry Warnky died at the home of Bro. F. C. Warnky, his brother, at Argentine, Kansas, Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock, from old age, being 80 years old. Funeral will take place from the stone church tomorrow (Friday) morning at 10:30. Bishop G. H. Hilliard will preach the sermon. Interment will be in the family cemetery lot at Independence.

A rain, accompanied by very heavy thunder, vivid lightning, hail and finally light fall of snow made every one glad to be indoors Saturday night last; but Sunday morning was one of the most lovely days that could be desired, except the muddy walking occasioned by the melted snow. The air was full of life, clear and strength-giving. As anticipated, a crowded auditorium greeted Bishop E. L. Kelley at the stone church at 11 o'clock, and a stirring discourse on the "Foundation" was given, which was enjoyed by the audience. At its close, as previously announced an effort was made to clear off the church debt and enough was raised with what was already on hand to make up a thousand dollars. It was then announced that with what is in sight there was a balance of only about $800.00 to raise to pay off the debt on the church, and the building committee expect to reach that the present year. This was very encouraging. The afternoon service was good and a large attendance was noted. At night Bishop Kelley again occupied in his forceful manner to the comfort and edification of his hearers, the auditorium being again filled.

The regular monthly business meeting of the branch was held Monday evening, President G. E. Harrington in the chair, J. W. Luff clerk. The usual exercises and reading of reports were had. Treasurer's report for January was read as follows: Receipts, $45.15; expenditures, $81.90; balance, $13.25; all bills paid. Secretary presented his report: Letters of removal from Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, for Bro. Louis Preston Caldwell, and from Conneaut, Pennsylvania, for Sr. Edith Elizabeth Caldwell, and Sr. Elizabeth Parsons of Salt Lake City, Utah, were read and on motion they were received as members of this branch. Letters of removal for John Inman, Sr., wife, son Charles, and Viola Totty to Santa Rosa, California, branch, and Bro. John W. A. Bailey to Pleasant View, Missouri, branch, were granted. On motion the editor and business manager of the ENSIGN were appointed a press committee for this branch to notify papers of services. On motion secretary was authorized to purchase a new record for the branch at a cost of ten dollars and draw on the treasurer for the amount, the same motion authorizing the treasurer to honor the same. Adjourned.

Tuesday night Elder Kelsch, of the Utah church, in charge of the Northern states mission, and about twenty of his elders were granted the use of the Saints' church at their request. Elder Kelsch was the speaker, starting with his testimony of what he knew, and then used considerable time to prove the divine calling of Joseph Smith the martyr, and his faithfulness to the end of his life, then endeavored to show how "presidents of the church were made," following it with an effort to show that Brigham Young and the Twelve were the rightful successors in the presidency of the church. At the close of his discourse, which lasted until 9:30 p. m., and in which he used the Doctrine and Covenants exclusively, some questions were propounded by Bro. Joseph Luff, R. J. Parker, J. A. Robinson and others, which he found rather difficult to dispose of, dodging and evading some, and refusing to reply to others; his discomfiture was apparent to every one. He was urged to remain and hear the reply, to follow Wednesday night, but said he had to go to St. Louis Wednesday morning. Bro. R. J. Parker replied to Elder Kelsch's effort Wednesday night in a masterly way, presenting irrefragable evidence of Brigham Young's apostasy from the original faith. His argument was unanswerable from a logical, scriptural and historical standpoint. The weather was very unpleasant; rain falling steadily and freezing as it fell, kept many away who would have otherwise been present. The Utah elders braved the elements, and eighteen or twenty of them were present, some of them talking notes; but although privilege was granted them or any one else to ask questions, they had nothing to say except that the elder in charge said, "that is not our way of doing business," but that they would present their doctrines Thursday evening. Bro. Parker was blessed with splendid liberty, and his argument was clear, pointed and convincing to candid minds. His effort will, under God's blessing, do good.

LAMONI, IOWA.

George S. Watson, a nephew of Sr. John Scott, arrived from Leeds, England, via Canada.

The College City Chronicle is now edited by Bro. Fred M. Smith; Bro. P. A. Silsbee is the publisher.

Elder Kelch, missionary in charge of the northern states for the Brighamite faction, spoke at the brick church on Tuesday night, 30th ult., and was replied to by Apostle H. C. Smith, on Wednesday night, 31st, in a masterly manner, and Bro. Heman re-stated a challenge to meetying of the advocates of Utah Mormonism in public debate, in any way they choose to discuss, and we defray all expenses here, providing that it be repeated at Salt Lake City, Utah, and they defray all expenses there.

The discussion continues between Apostle Lambert and Elder Hughes of the Holiness people, by correspondence, a synopsis of which is promised to be published this week in the Independent Patriot, also a summary of the arguments of Elders Kelch and Heman C. Smith.

Prof. F. M. Smith delivered an interesting and instructive lecture to the students in the college chapel on Friday, 2d inst. The college museum is said to be growing every week.

Elder Stebbins filled his regular appointment at Davis City, on Sunday 4th inst.

Yesterday, Sunday 4th inst., Elder B. Robinson refreshed the minds of those who abide at the Saints' Home at 11 a. m., and Elder C. Scott, who returned home for a season from the Des Moines district, discoursed acceptably at the Saints' church at the same hour. At night Elder D. Campbell, of Pleasanton, was the speaker.

A LAMONIAN.

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS.

Our union service yesterday was, in many regards, the best one yet held; in wisdom and unity it was excellent, though in numbers not so great on account of storm and snow.

Sr. Gonyo, of Waukegan, has taken up temporary residence in the city that she might have access to church privileges in her sore affliction of cancer in the nasal passage. Pray for her, she is worthy.

The two weeks meetings at our new headquarters were quite well attended and we trust good will result. Last night the elder spoke on "Is this work a delusion?" without good liberty and attention. The verdict from the evidence produced was most positively in the negative.

We watched for the welcomed face of Bro. Joseph Luff en route homeward, but failed to see it. Under the circumstances we will pardon him this time.

But few will attend the district conference to be held at Plano on the 10th, from our city, force of circumstances being the chief cause rather than a lack of interest.

Committees are at work arranging for a hearty reception for Bro. and Sr. F. G. Pitt on their return from England, which is expected about March 1st, as they start on the 10th, and will do some visiting en route. At our headquarters we will have a reception in the form of an entertainment, representing the branch, Religio and Sunday School interests. At the Lang mission a feast will be given, and at West Pullman the Saints will give them a hearty reception in some appropriate way.

Our priesthood meeting on Monday night last was peaceful and edifying. Some doctrinal point will be presented for the next meeting, together with a paper on "Mission Work" by Bro. Lang and Wainwright.

Bro. F. J. D. Earl was the preacher at the mission yesterday morning and did himself nobly. Favorable comments were heard.

A new pulpit adorns the Lang mission worthy of special note. It is a combined pulpit and sacramental table. It is octagonal in shape, one-half folding down behind to form the pulpit. By the removal of the book rest and the raising of the falling leaf there is a nice table for sacrament or other purposes. It testifies to the ingenuity, mechanical skill and generosity of the inventors and makers, Bro. Wm. Wainwright and E. J. Lang.

The child of Mr. E. G. and Sr. Maggie Hoover was blessed on Saturday by the writer at their home, she not being able to attend church service. Margaret Eveline was the name given.

With face Zionward, I am

ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI.

Yesterday we awoke to snow clad scenery, which was somewhat of a relief after the dust of the past week. The dry weather was very trying, and now it's the mud.

Possibly, the February sun looked upon no sadder sight in our city than the one taking place in Cheltenham Saturday afternoon. The mother of five little children, after a short married life, passed from this life to that beyond. Sr. Ida Best, daughter of Sr. Hughes, succumbed to that dreaded disease, paralysis, Wednesday afternoon, January 31st. She was thirty years old and the youngest child of Sr. Hughes. The funeral was in charge of Bro. White, the little chapel in Cheltenham being packed to the doors. Many eyes were moist with tears, and many were the expressions of sorrow.

Two other funerals were conducted by Bro. White during last week; Thursday afternoon at O'Fallon, Illinois, the remains of Bro. Richard Roberts, aged sixty-five years, were laid to rest; he had been afflicted for years and passed away very suddenly. Friday afternoon Bro. Joseph Mantel, of Troy, Illinois, was buried; the funeral cortege was very large, he having been a resident of the place for over fifteen years.

Bro. Geo. Barraclough took charge of the funeral of Grandpa Lewis, at O'Fallon, Saturday afternoon; Bro. Lewis was quite old, a very well known resident, and the funeral cortege was very large.

Speakers here yesterday were, Bro. George Barraclough morning hour, Bro. J. D. White evening. Bro. Barraclough went to Belleville in the afternoon, he occupying the pulpit there at night. Bro. J. C. Hitchcock spoke at the Oak Hill mission Sunday night.

The Mite Society will give a "Hard Times" social February 22d, at the home of Bro. Hitchcock, 2511 Slattery street.

Sr. J. D. White left last week for Independence, Missouri.

Our social service of yesterday was in charge of Bro. J. D. White and J. C. Hitchcock.

Saturday afternoon the first session of the Sunday School convention; Sunday School and Religio exercises in the evening; same Sunday evening.

We have two names on the "Get One" Club list already. Bro. Randall has put up quite an attractive illustration for a heading. The scholars are becoming interested, and there will be more names thereon in the near future. ETTA.

FIRST KANSAS CITY BRANCH.

Chapel, 2324 Wabash avenue. Take 15th street line to Prospect Ave., transfer to Prospect, get off at 24th, and walk one block west or to the right hand. Time of meetings: Sunday School, 9:30, preaching at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m., social service at 12:30 p. m., prayer meeting, Wednesday evening at 7:30; Religio, Friday evening at 8. Strangers are cordially invited.

A good attendance at Sunday School, considering the weather, and splendid interest. Assistant district superintendent, Bro. Walter Smith, reviewed the school. He is always original.

Elder F. C. Warnky was the speaker in the morning and Elder D. F. Winn addressed the evening meeting; both were good efforts.

The Utah people held a conference in the city on Saturday, but were not as obliging as our Independence Saints are, for they would not even permit Elder F. C. Warnky, who was present, to ask questions.

The Sunday School will give a poverty social, for the benefit of the church, on February 13th, to which all are cordially invited. Food for both the intellect and the body will be furnished.

Bro. E. Etzenhouser is rusticated in the country for a week.

Bro. Walter Smith is taking an enforced vacation of a few days, owing to a slight accident. R. E. PORTER.

SECOND KANSAS CITY BRANCH.

Corner Sixteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue. Sunday School 9:30 a. m., preaching 11 a. m., prayer meeting 2:30 p. m., preaching 7:30 p. m.

The Religio prayer meeting Friday night was grand. Five young men and women bore testimony for the first time in their lives, to the goodness and mercy of God, and there was rejoicing in heaven. The meeting was conducted by Elder M. B. Williams.

Our branch teacher, Bro.

Frederick Koehler, occupied at the Sunday morning service, on "Self-control." His remarks were very instructive and he spoke with good liberty, edifying those who heard him. At the evening meeting Elder F. C. Warnky discoursed on, "The Events that Occur Before the Coming of the Lord Jesus Christ," from Matthew 24: 3 and 25: 1-10.

Bro. Alexander McIntosh has bought a house and lot at 1712 Bellevue avenue, and moved his family into their new home the first of this month.

Bro. Warnky, my wife and I attended the Brighamite conference at Irish-American hall, 17th and Oak, last Saturday night. After the dismissal Bro. Warnky asked some questions and succeeded in proclaiming some truths in opposition to their accepted ideas of right and wrong. I can verify the facts stated by the Kansas City Journal on the first page, Sunday, February 4th, referring to this incident. We invited them to meet with us that we may reason together.

JOHN C. GRAINGER.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA.

Services at Golden West Hall, 320 Post street, every Sunday. Sunday School 10 a. m.; preaching 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.; prayer meeting first Sunday of each month at 12:15 noon. Elder C. A. Parkin presiding elder, residence 3010 16th street.

We had a very spiritual prayer meeting Wednesday evening; there was a good attendance, Bro. G. T. Griffiths among the number. Bro. Griffiths was led by the Spirit to bless Bro. Chas. A. Parkin for future work, and his own strengthening and encouragement. There were twenty-five present.

There was good attendance and an interesting time at the Prayer Union Thursday afternoon.

The house was full at the Religio Friday evening, and a very good interest was displayed throughout. These meetings are improving.

The Sunday School had good attendance at 10 a. m. We had preaching by Chas. A. Parkin at 11 a. m. Our hall was comfortably filled. G. T. Griffiths was the speaker at 7:30 p. m. Quite a number of strangers and visiting Saints were with us during the day. Two young men offered themselves for baptism. We are beginning to harvest the fruit of our labors. Our branch is moving ahead nicely, and is in fine condition. Our officers are rustlers, and are attending to their duties.

GEO. S. LINCOLN.

January 31.

PROVIDENCE, RHODE ISLAND.

The local Religio is extremely active at present under the presidency of M. H. Bond, and is doing some good work.

Thursday evening, January 25th, a chowder supper was given by the Religio at the pretty home of Sr. Edith Perry, on Francis street, this city. A fine musical program was rendered. The proceeds of this affair was to clear up a small remaining debt for concreting around chapel.

Sunday morning, January 21st, Bro. Bond occupied the stand, with good result so far as his part goes. The balance of results may be looked for among the hearers. His evening sermon, same date and place, was on the "Marriage Question."

The papers read at last week's Religio, "What Books Shall we Read?" by Sr. Mabel Gondolf, "Shall we Read Newspapers?" by Mr. Abbot, were instructive and to the point.

Elder George Gates was the speaker last Sunday evening. Elder M. H. Bond spoke in Boston same day.

LETTER DEPARTMENT.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 20.

Editor Ensign:—Matters relating to church interest in this district are, we think, improving, especially where wise supervision and effective, timely counsel, that which tends to growth and intellectual and spiritual development of the Saints, has obtained. Boston has, under the wise watchcare of Bro. Bullard, and with more than one good helper—noble young men and women—devoted to the cause of truth in that city, placed our standard far above and in advance of the position circumstances compelled us to occupy three years ago.

Providence, too, though having difficulties to contend with, is struggling toward higher conditions and better representation of our faith. The work of the Religio which is undergoing a revival of interest at the present time, is, and will, we believe, continue to be an auxiliary to church progress. The society has now out tickets for a supper and entertainment to be given next Thursday evening, when we hope to cancel the balance of church indebtedness caused by late repairs and addition amounting to nearly one hundred dollars.

Bro. Joseph Luff's salutary advice and counsel while with us here, as well as elsewhere in the district, still remains as a pleasing and profitable memory and fact.

Of the Jensen debate in Boston you may hear from other sources. The one-sidedness of the question relating to church authority, succession, presidency, etc., as between the Utah people and the Reorganized Church, was made clear enough, we think. Jensen's method of conducting a "discussion" in the interests of their church, was, to say the least, novel; that is, for men who feel any obligation to confine themselves to propositions subscribed to by them. Affirmative statements unsupported by competent witness and positive misstatement and even downright falsehood were the substitutes for argument, principally.

Saints, if no one else, got their eyes open to the real spirit and genius that seems to control them as representatives of a "priesthood" that has authorized more contradictions, deceit and devilry than the ordinary mind is at first willing to admit that men claiming to be religious or christian are capable of.

It may be news to even people who read the daily papers that Lady Smith was taken or captured by the English at Somerville last Sunday, though not without the loss of a quantity of blood. Bro. Bullard and Bond assisting in the slaughter, the formalities of capitulation being attended to directly after the close of the morning service in Somerville chapel.

M. H. BOND.

WARRENSBURG, MO., Jan. 26.

Editor Ensign:—The two Sundays before Christmas and the intervening week I spoke in two different points in Ray county about a dozen times. At Wakenda, on Christmas eve, united in wedlock Bro. Norman Lafayette Booker, of Regal, and Sr. Allie Dell Thomas, of Richmond, Ray county, Missouri. After the nuptial knot was tied, the large audience favored us with good attention as we dealt out the pleasing word of life.

The last holiday of the retiring year we preached in the morning; was taken by young Bro. Cato a dozen or more miles to board 3:46 p. m. train at Cowgill, and arrived home in time for supper, before the good, well patronized entertainment at the stone church. The 7th inst. I spent a pleasant and, we trust, a profitable day with the Armstrong, Kansas, Saints and friends, addressing them in the morning about the Christ, and in the evening in regard to his ministry.

I worshipped with the Holden Saints Sunday, the 14th, in Sunday School, social, Religio and preaching. I then passed on to Knob Noster and held eight preaching meetings in our chapel. The weather being dark, damp, and unsettled, and the roads muddy, the attendance, small at first, grew nicely, taking all into consideration. The attention and interest was from fair to good, and hence, we were somewhat loth to depart for this place where our people had secured a hall and advertised a series of services. Our audiences have been first class so far. Four young emissaries of the harem are here making a canvass, distributing their literature, and preaching some occasionally. We had five hundred posters printed with subjects outlined for six consecutive evenings. Last night Latter Day Saintism vs. Brighamism was the theme, and the quadruple band were there to hear the conclusion of the matter. I borrowed their Doctrine and Covenants and analyzed somewhat the so-called revelation about polygamy, blood atonement, the damned passing by the angels! and gods!! to become all powerful!!! and the likes, as well as other teachings of their ministry and church papers.

Another Smith in Israel(?) wished to add some remarks, and I called for a show of hands, and then he mounted the rostrum. He was young and inexperienced, but withal he stuck to the doomed cause like a beaver. He inveighed against, and almost-anathematized poor me, because I challenged for a debate, and railed against the crucial deductions drawn from their own standard church books and current literature. To divert the minds of those present from the issues that hurt, he referred to what they had taught, but then turned the tide against himself and colleagues by avowing that they were there to defend and represent the church. His fifteen minutes talk was rambling, disjointed, and partook of the nature of a harangue. My pungent conclusions were that Roberts ought to be in irons as a law breaker and longstanding criminal; those mailing their Doctrine and Covenants should be arrested for sending obscene literature through the mail; the state charter of Utah should be nullified and revoked; and their churches where they advocate the soul benumbing, destroying doctrines of polygamy, blood atonement, Adam-God, etc., should be confiscated and turned into livery stables.

Our bloodless battle passed off pleasantly, for, indeed, they did not appear to be fortified as well as the Boers, and their armory and ammunition were inadequate for a campaign, or even a violent attack from the citadel of God's truth. Let us hope as these young men behold their dungeon shaking and in great peril, they will come out of that division of old apostate Babylon ere her irrefragable ruin comes. I am feeling unusually well in body and mind this beautiful winter day. The Saints appear to be united, hopeful, and comparatively happy too, as well. The collections are paying the $1.50 per evening for the hall hire, and, therefore, the outlook, so far, is real flattering.

The home folks are usually well, and, forsooth, I have much for which to be thankful. Light and liberty have been forthcoming in the proclamation of the pure gospel. There is seed time, then cultivation, after which the harvesting time if we faint not. The work belongs to us, but the increase and fruitage is given of God. Feminine voice and vote in the legislative, executive and judicial departments of the church is not tolerated in the revelations of God. Lay and female delegations should not be constituted and sent up to the general conference designed for the eldership, I believe. The elders are to meet from time to time as also to see that the law of the Lord is kept. Paul emphatically states several times that women should not speak (rule—I. T.) in the church but be under obedience, as also saith the law. Isaiah allows that the rulers cause my people to err, and women rule over them. I wrote up my views at length on the relation and sphere of the sex, and desired it published before so many of the gentler sex, yea, the weaker vessels, should be forwarded with credentials, but delay has the manuscript pigeonholed away, or perhaps the waste basket gave it an untimely tomb. An important crisis is upon the church, and we want the best available force to grace the council halls and the deliberation chambers in order to accelerate our strength and move the cause of Zion.

There is plenty for all to do in a legitimate way. Let no jealousy or favoritism come into mind. May unity, love and activity dominate the whole. With charity for all and malice toward no one, I am in the kingdom and patience of Christ.

M. T. SHORT.

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS, Jan. 21.

Dear Ensign:—The work in Chicago is fast assuming the proportions labored and prayed for during our seven years of sojourn, and it has not been all smooth sailing. There have been many hindrances loom up in front of the work, but by persistent faith and prayer they are moving out of the way in the Lord's own way, and perhaps differently to the way we would have removed them. But God moves in a mysterious way his wonders to perform, etc. There are now three missions planted, where seven years ago there was only one family of Saints (besides your writer) lived on the south side of the city. Now there are about between thirty and forty Saints. To the local forces living and interested in that section of the city belongs the credit of this advancement under divine guidance. While it is desirable to see rapid strides in the direction of advancement all over the city, yet there seems to be no place like home. "Home, Sweet Home."

Sr. May McLaws was recently married to a prominent physician of Presbyterian persuasion. Sr. Strange is convalescing very slowly; was able to hear Bro. Terry this morning. But to bed again in the afternoon. Sr. Webster is very far from being out of danger; yet her complications are serious indeed, though to casual observers it may not appear so. She was removed from the hospital several weeks ago to the pleasant surroundings of the home of Sr. Williams, where the congeniality of environments has contributed much to her welfare and enjoyment. She speaks in the loudest praises of the large heartedness of Sr. Williams. The sisterly care received from her hands will not be forgotten by Sr. Webster, the Lord, or his Saints. May the Lord increase the Samaritan sisters. Sr. Webster wishes to convey her thanks to the many Saints and friends who have made her case a matter of prayer. She feels they have very materially aided her and that answers have come to her again and again. "Praise God from whom all blessings flow."

We have been privileged to hear some very notable sermons lately by flying elders passing to and fro through the city, and since beginning this writing I have heard one no less notable than the aforesaid from Elder S. C. Good. To cut the description short, it was "good." A week ago last Thursday evening a "Strange" door seemed to open, into which your writer set his foot, being on the alert for such openings. It happened to be by a mistake of the proprietor, sending a card to Lang mission to postpone an interview with Utah elders, that had been made for the previous Tuesday. Thinking our hall to be their rendezvous, I and Bro. Harris both went to meet with them by subsequent invitation at 8 p. m., in order to see that no misrepresentations were made by them. We had none of us seen each other before. To our great surprise we were ushered into most luxurious parlors, where a goodly number of the upper crust of society had gathered by invitation of the proprietor to hear both sides of the question. I took with me Heman C. Smith in print. We spent two hours and a half very profitably, all taking active part asking questions as they felt like it. Discussion had not proceeded very far when "ye elders" sought to excuse themselves from discussion, as that was not their mission. But they were in the wrong place to be excused, as the audience must be entertained. Suffice it to say, however, they squirmed a good deal and sought to evade the truth by evasive answers, as is their custom, but it did not work. When I asked them to explain the internal modus operandi of the endowment house and kept them toeing the mark until the question was answered, is when they put in their best squirms, but we succeeded in getting the admissions the audience was after, and to use the proprietor's own words: "I have discovered these gentlemen are not what they represented themselves to be, but just the opposite—hypocrites." Our cause lost nothing. We were kindly thanked for our visit; parted in the best of spirits, walked part way down street with our opponents with pleasant conversation, gave them invitations to our hall, which they said they would accept as early as possible.

Yours in the conflict,
WM. STRANGE.

LOWER LAKE, LAKE CO., CAL., Jan. 10.

Editor Ensign:—We would feel lost, as it were, if we could not have the church papers. I am an old woman, sixty-nine in May; baptized in the Latter Day Saints church when thirteen years old. In the winter of 1845 father and family moved from McDonough county, Illinois, to Nauvoo, and in the spring of 1846 we rolled across those terrible, at that time, muddy prairies of Iowa, to Council Bluffs, in John Taylor's company; at the Bluffs my father and oldest stepbrother volunteered to work for Uncle Sam, and we, eleven in family, traveled with the soldiers to the crossing of the Arkansas river, then up the river to Pueblo, and wintered there. In the spring we went on to Salt Lake, arriving there in August; Brigham and company were there, got there the 24th of July; we helped to build the adobe forts. Father had two rooms in the north fort, but sold them to General Rich, and we moved to where Ogden now is and lived eight months without any bread, remember eleven in family; this did not lessen our faith in the Latter Day work. We moved to California in 1850, where father and mother died first in the faith; and with all the trials through which I have had to pass, I have never doubted Bro. Joseph's mission, and have been in the Reorganization since 1865.

RITCHIE, ILLINOIS, Jan. 11.

Dear Ensign:—We are still in the faith of Christ; we have a little band of true Saints here who are striving hard to live worthy of the name we bear. I am happy in the gospel more than I can tell. There are four in my family who are striving hard to let their light shine before men, and to live a true and so bring my children up to live the gospel.

Sometimes we have an elder come and preach for us and sometimes it is hard for me to go, as I have a daughter who is a cripple and blind, and I cannot go; she has been admitted to a free many times, but to no avail. But we know not what is for our best, only God the all-wise Father, he knows best and we know he doeth all things well.

I am now sixty years old, have lots of sick spells. Last winter I had a severe sick spell, but thank the Lord through the administration of Bro. A. J. Keck I was made better. I am glad that the gospel ever reached me and I obeyed it for I know that it is right and pray that the good word will help us and show us how we may live to set a good example for others to follow. We have many trials and tribulations, but as it is written he that endureth to the end shall be saved.

Pray for me.
Your sister in the truth,
JANE CHOHAN.

HOPE OF THE RIGHTEOUS.

Sermon by Elder J. W. Wight, Delivered at Salt Lake City, Utah, December 24, 1899.

[REPORTED BY JOSIAH THOMAS.]

In the 15th chapter of the first letter written by the Apostle Paul to the saints in Corinth, beginning with the 19th verse, we read:

If in this life only we have hope in Christ, we are of all men most miserable. But now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the first fruits of them that slept. For since by man came death, by man came also the resurrection of the dead. For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive. But every man in his own order; Christ the first fruits; afterward they that are Christ's at his coming. Then cometh the end, when he shall have delivered up the kingdom to God, even the Father, when he shall have put down all rule and all authority and power. For he must reign, till he hath put all enemies under his feet. The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death.

We are met together this morning to show respect to a departed one, Sr. Eva F. Knudsen, who was born the 13th day of December, 1875, at Los Vegas, Nevada. She was baptized into, and thereby came a member of what is known as, the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, February 12, 1892, in Salt Lake City, Utah, and died at her home, December 17, 1899, in Central City, Colorado, leaving a husband and one child, besides father and mother, one brother and two sisters to mourn her departure.

The consolation that we are permitted to give this morning consists in the fact that Christ came to this world that we might have life and have it more abundantly; and the further fact that since by man came death, by the man Christ came also the resurrection of the dead. Our peculiarity as a church, if we have any, consists in our belief that though we die, yet through the law of the resurrection we shall be made alive again; and the glorious thought in harmony with this fact is, that those who yield obedience to the gospel of Jesus Christ will be permitted to come forth in the first resurrection, the resurrection of the just, and as a consequence will be permitted to meet him—Christ—at his coming, and live and reign with him a thousand years upon the earth, and be with him forever. There are those in this world who claim to believe that when we die we become wholly unconscious; that we never regain consciousness until we are resurrected, when those who are found to be righteous in Christ shall live throughout eternity, and those who are found to be unrighteous are burned up, annihilated, utterly consumed, and just as though they had never been; and the great apostle, if we may so express it, of so-called Free Thought, gave expression to their belief, when standing by the open grave of his brother. Colonel Ingersoll could only offer this consolation, if such it may be called: "Life is but a narrow veil between the cold and barren peaks of two eternities; we strive in vain to look beyond the heights; we cry aloud, but our only answer is the echo of our wailing cry."

I am thankful this morning, while we are thus surrounded by death, that the gospel of Jesus Christ gives us a brighter hope than that, and that these peaks of the so-called two eternities are covered, as it were, with the flowers of hope, of love, joy, peace and consolation in the Lord; and I am thankful this morning that God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son that whosoever believeth in him might not perish but have everlasting life; that he sent not his Son into the world to condemn the world but that the world through Him might have life and have it more abundantly.

What we call death is really after all not death. It is simply a separation. The spirit has taken its departure and has gone to another realm. That which lies before us is but the manifestation of dust, so to speak, that material "dust to dust" which has gone back again to the mother realm; while in supreme consciousness, the real man, the living conscious entity, the spirit, has taken its departure; and the consolation that comes to the mourners this morning is the fact that the one who has thus taken her departure, is—as a result of her obedience to the gospel of Jesus Christ while on earth, and a faithful life therein—today existing in consciousness in the paradise of God, awaiting the resurrection of the just, when she will be permitted, as a result of such obedience to God, to come forth in the resurrection and thus be prepared to meet her Lord and so be forever with him. It is a great comfort to those who are thus bereaved and are called upon to mourn the loss of a departed one, to feel in this moment of trial, that the departed one today is in reality resting, and even at this moment is at peace. Jesus made the declaration: "And I, if I be lifted up will draw all men unto me." And the great aim and object of his life and living was to bring to us a real life, that we might pass out from the condition of mortality and enter into and partake of that immortal life that will qualify us to dwell with God.

John, while on the lonely island of Patmos, having been banished because of his religious convictions, was permitted on the Lord's day, in a vision, to behold the trend of the future, and know the mighty events that were yet to transpire upon the earth. He saw the time to come when Christ would reign a thousand years upon this earth, and as we look back now, in harmony with this fact, we find the statement of Zechariah. We discover there that when Christ comes he shall set his feet upon the Mount of Olivet, and his coming will be for the express purpose that he may reign here as King of kings and Lord of lords; and that reigning supremely thus, we will be qualified, as a result of having obeyed the truth on this earth, to meet him when he comes. We will also be permitted to reign with him as kings and priests unto our God, and will acknowledge him as the Supreme Ruler. Every knee shall bow and every tongue shall confess that Jesus is the Lord, to the honor and glory of God the Father: while those who have failed to have done that in life which is in harmony with the gospel of Jesus Christ must necessarily remain in an unresurrected condition until the thousand years shall have passed, when they too will be permitted to come forth, and thus will be made manifest that wonderful scene shown to John, found in the 20th chapter of the Book of Revelation, when he saw the dead, both small and great, stand before God, and the books were opened, and another book was opened which is the Book of Life, and everyone was judged out of the things written in the books, according to their works. Then will be the time when will be made manifest the words spoken by the Savior, wherein he makes the declaration that the goats are to be on the left and the sheep on the right; that will be the Judgment day, or the day of arbitration, and the arbitrator will be God himself, the just Judge, who will give to every one justice according to merit, and, as a result, justice will be done thereby and measured to you and to me, our merits being in accord with what we have done in this life.

I am thankful this morning—it may seem a strange thing to say that one is thankful under existing conditions—that while we thus meet with the exigencies of death, there comes the consolation out of the gospel of Jesus Christ, that the one lying before us will be permitted to come forth in the resurrection of the just. I am thankful that our lives are strewn with the roses and lilies of hope, of love, joy, consolation and comfort. What must be, for instance, the feelings of that mother as she lays her infant away in the cold clay, but feels that there is no hereafter, that never again, neither in this life or in the world to come, will she be permitted to clasp her little one to her bosom? What must be the consolation to the mother laying the infant in the embrace of the cold clay to feel that in time to come she will be again permitted to clasp it to her bosom; that as she lays her husband, brother, father, mother or beloved one away, there comes to her the consolation born of the gospel of Jesus Christ, that, in time to come, she will be again permitted to clasp the hand of the departed one, who in reality is not dead, but gone before, and is beckoning her on to higher deeds of life, that, as a consequence, she will be permitted, when she too shall cross the mystic river, to find the rest which Christ came to give?

Are we, this morning, to say there is no resurrection? David says: "The fool hath said in his heart, there is no God." Paul says, concerning those who disbelieve in the resurrection,

"Thou fool." We plant the grain, it matters not what kind it may be, and except it die, it will not again come forth, but when it does come forth what does it do? There comes a likeness of that body lain away, and it may bear thirty, sixty and a hundred fold. So it is with regard to these bodies, as we lay them away in the cold and silent tomb. We must remember that there are elements in the make-up of these bodies which mother earth cannot hide, cannot obliterate. To illustrate the thought which is here presented, for instance, of the millions and millions of human souls that have existed upon the earth since the days of Adam, hardly two of all the countless numbers look exactly alike. As a consequence there are elements which cannot be obliterated, and when the resurrection morn shall come we will come forth in the likeness in which we are laid away, and that as we meet on the other shore we will be permitted to know those who have gone before; and more than that, we will be permitted to know as we are known and see as we are seen. How thankful we ought to be for such a thought as this, for how few know us just as we are. We will then be permitted, as a result of our enlightenment and the manifestation of the truth born of the gospel of Jesus Christ, to know ourselves just as we are, to see as we are seen—and we will be perfectly seen then—and to know as we are known—and we will be perfectly known then. We are here, as it were, but for a moment, a fleeting span, and that which we call death comes and removes us from the realities of this life. We pass to the other shore, to the paradise of God, to that pleasing state to which the Apostle Paul tells us that he knew of one who had ascended there, and having ascended, saw things unlawful for man to utter, simply because it was impossible for the natural man to comprehend, and as a consequence of giving utterance thereto, it would be like the Master said, casting "pearls before swine."

We fail to comprehend the right, and, therefore, it would be unlawful to give utterance to that which our conceptions cannot take hold of. We might be made worse instead of better, and in this sense it would have been unlawful for him to tell that which had been presented to him in vision. God gave to him such vision only to open to him a view of futurity that he might be permitted to see the realities existing there. They are so far superior to what exists here, in fact, that I am of the opinion that if we knew we had done that which is right in the sight of God, we would want to be removed from our existence here this moment; we would want to be permitted to pass to the realities of the life beyond, for Christ came to give us life and that we might have it more abundantly.

Now, that we have Scripture for some of these things, I call your attention to the statement made by the Apostle Paul in this chapter from which I have quoted. He says: "Thou fool, that which thou sowest is not quickened, except it die: and that which thou sowest, thou sowest not that body which shall be, but bare grain, it may chance of wheat, or of some other grain: God giveth it a body as it hath pleased him, and to every seed his own body. All flesh is not the same flesh: but there is one flesh of men, another flesh of beasts, another of fishes, and another of birds. There are also celestial bodies, and bodies terrestrial; but the glory of the celestial is one, and the glory of the terrestrial is another. There is one glory of the sun, and another glory of the moon, and another glory of the stars: for one star differeth from another star in glory. So also is the resurrection of the dead. It is sown in corruption; it is raised in incorruption."

The apostle tells us here of three glories. Ah, there is a glory for those who shall be Christ's at his coming. First, Christ the first fruits, afterward they that are Christ's at his coming, then cometh the end when he shall have delivered up the kingdom to God, even the Father, and he is to rule here until he has perfected that kingdom of God; and his labor and mission and life here upon the earth was, that you and I might be saved; and let me tell you that we will enter into that highest, or next, or third glory mentioned by the apostle, just as we shall merit an inheritance. If we shall enter as the result of having obeyed the gospel of Jesus Christ and having done that which was in harmony with the will of the Father and Son, then we will be permitted to live and reign with God throughout all eternity. One consolation that comes to us, and that I can offer to these friends this morning, relative to this departed one, is, that she has rendered obedience to the gospel; that she will come forth in the resurrection of the just and live and reign upon this sanctified earth with Christ a thousand years, and finally dwell with God and Christ throughout all eternity.

This is much more of a consolation than the hope of eternity as represented in the eloquent language of the agnostic. Instead of being a barren, cold world, it is strewn with the roses of the consolation of the gospel; and the souls of these mourners receive that comfort which nothing outside of the gospel of Jesus Christ could bring.

I have been requested to read the following:

Sometime when all life's lessons have been learned
And sun and stars forever more have set,
The things which our weak judgments would have spurned,
The things of which we grieve with fashes wet,
Will flash before us out of life's dark night,
As stars shine most in deeper tints of blue.
And we shall see how all God's plans were right,
And how what seemed reproof was love most true.

And we shall see how when we frowned and sighed,
God's plans must go on as best for you and me,
How when we called he heeded not our cry—
Because his wisdom to the end could see;

And 'e'en as prudent parents disallow
Too much of sweet in craving baby-hood,
So God, perhaps, is keeping from us now
Life's sweetest things because it seemeth good.
And it, sometimes, mingled with life's want,
We find the wormwood and rebel and shrink,
Be sure a wiser head than yours or mine
Pours out this potion for our lips to drink;
And if some friend we love is lying low,
Where human kisses cannot reach his face,
Oh, do not blame the loving Father
so,
Obey while you sorrow with obedient grace.
And you shall surely know that lengthened breath
Is not the sweetest gift God sends his friend,
And that sometimes the supple pall of death
Conceals the fairest boon his love can send;
If we could push ajar the gates of life,
And stand within and all God's workings see,
We could interpret all this doubt and strife,
And for each mystery could find a key.
But not today. Then be content, poor heart,
God's plans like lilies pure and white unweil,
We must not tear the close-shut leaves
apart,
Time will reveal the calyxes of gold.
And if through patient toil we reach the land
Where tired feet with sandals loose may rest,
When we shall clearly know and understand,
I think that we shall say, "God knows the best."

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

As many of my friends write me their objections to the church of Latter Day Saints, and as many more make the same objections to whom I cannot write personally, I thought it well to notice and reply through "Notes and Comments." Many of the objections are too puerile to be worth noticing, but such as, if answered rightly, may lead to enlightenment and the removal of prejudice, I think should be replied to. And as, no doubt, many besides those of my friends who thus criticize, may have the same objections, I trust my answers may be blessed of God to them. I will not state the objections for the answers will make them explicit enough. The following is a revision of the letter sent in reply to some of my loved ones, who are sorely grieved over my wandering into error, as they think:

"My Dear —:—So you think W. and O. will go straight to the —, do you? because they have also joined this church. It amuses me, and saddens me too, to see how you will cling to the idea that the church I choose to join is the same as the Utah Mormon church. Well, think so if you would rather have it that way, but I wonder how long it has been since I could not tell white from black, or worse yet, how long since I could not tell the truth. As to Christ's commanding any one to be baptized twice, I will try to answer you. No, Christ never commanded anyone to be baptized twice, neither would it have been necessary if the baptisms were always administered by one sent of God, and clothed with the proper authority. Baptism was the way believers were received into the kingdom of God, and a baptism that inducts a person into any church other than the church of Christ must be invalid as far as being the legal rite for admittance to the church of Christ, that is, one cannot enter into the kingdom of God on a baptism administered by any man-made organization, or society, even if it is called a church.

"It is the initiatory ceremony of the entrance to the kingdom, and must, in order to be acceptable, be administered by one having authority. The rites that make one a member of one kingdom, will not be recognized by another; neither can one who has no authority, administer the rite of admittance. If a subject of some kingdom wishes to become the subject of another kingdom, he must submit to the laws and ceremonies, necessary for the purpose of making him a subject of the kingdom of his choice—naturalization, we term it. Now, we were not citizens of God's kingdom, but were aliens, and God's plan for admitting those who seek for admittance into His kingdom, is the gospel, or the 'plan of salvation,' as it is called; and God only gave one way. Now, when his own servants perform the rite entitling admission, of course He recognizes it, and if the person seeking admittance is sincere and honest, the ceremony is recognized, and the person thus becomes a citizen or subject of the kingdom—naturalized into the kingdom. Then, indeed, does he become a 'new creature in Christ Jesus.'

"But we are not the only church that practices re-baptism. The Christian church at E. baptized a woman the second time. I think it was Mrs. Hannah S.; all the old members there can tell you about it. She was baptized when a child, and as she grew older, she realized that she had no proper understanding of the meaning of the rite and requested to be baptized again, and it was done. It was while I was a member there.

"Also Mr. John W., of M., was baptized three times; first, because he was not satisfied concerning his first baptism, as he, too, discovered that at first he had not the true idea of its meaning; the second time he was baptized again on the account of having grown careless and indifferent, and he felt his life had made his first baptism void. You know he was a strict Baptist. Now, these same churches condemn us because we re-baptize, when they do the same; but it is done to keep the members in their own fold though. Read the 19th chapter of Acts of the apostles and see how Paul found certain disciples that had been baptized but had not received the Holy Ghost, and had not so much as heard whether there be any Holy Ghost." They had been baptized, and in the proper manner, as they said it was unto John's baptism, but it was not done by one sent of God, for one that is sent of God would speak the things of God, and they would, at least, have been instructed in the principles of the gospel enough to know that there was a Holy Ghost, and that the Holy Ghost was promised to all believers who obeyed God's command, and were baptized by one authorized by God to baptize. If it made no difference who baptized them, would Paul have baptized them over again as he did? Read 5th and 6th verses. Now, remember Paul was the greatest of all the apostles, according to the views of the orthodox churches, and he re-baptized these men, twelve of them. And that God sanctioned the act is shown in 6th verse, for when Paul had laid his hands on them, 'the Holy Ghost came upon them and they spake with tongues and prophesied.' Would God have thus sent His Spirit upon them if they had been committing a sin in being re-baptized? Oh! you must study God's word for yourselves, and if you do, you will find the truth, and whether you can accept it or not will be left for you to decide. But you cannot run away from it when once you see it. If you refuse to read my letters, and the tracts and papers sent you, yet you will find the same things in the Bible that I would teach you, and you will not be able to read the word of God without these things coming to your mind.

"You are afraid of doing wrong and something contrary to God's will in being thus re-baptized. Don't you know you are disobeying one of the direct commands of God by thus refusing to hear anything that claims to be the doctrine of God? For he, speaking through His servant, Paul, tells us to 'Despise not prophesies, prove all things, hold fast that which is good.' Now, can you obey that and refuse to read and hear, and compare with God's word? Then hold fast that which is good, which will be all that is in harmony with God's word. His word is all good. Anything not in harmony with God's word reject, no matter from what source, or by whom taught. Not merely in harmony with what some one tells you the Bible means, but in harmony with what it says, and what God's Spirit tells the honest truthseeker it means. The interpretation of the Spirit will not vary. If any of you lack wisdom let him ask of God that giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not, and it shall be given him." For only the askers and seekers obtain.

"But you will never see the truth clearly until you want to see it, and I hope you will never be so careless or indifferent as to say, 'I do not want the truth.' "You say, J., that 'Saint' means good, and those who call themselves 'Saints' contradict Christ, who said there is none good but God. Now, do not every christian parent and every Sunday School teacher contradict Christ then, when they tell the children they must be good or they can't go to heaven? Of course there is none absolutely good but God, and the goodness we may attain to must come from God, but if only the good can go to heaven, and there are to be no good, then who will go there?"

"Paul must have been guilty, too, of contradicting Christ, for he calls the early believers all saints. They are called saints almost everywhere they are spoken of in God's word; called christians three times; brethren a few times. As I open my Bible my eye rests upon these words (Col. 1: 2): 'To the saints and faithful brethren in Christ,' and he speaks of the 'love which ye have to all the saints.' God's people have always been called saints by prophecy and inspiration and have not hesitated to call themselves thus. That there are to be saints when Christ comes, read 2 Thessalonians 1: 10: 'When he shall come to be glorified in his saints,' and the Psalmist says: 'God is greatly feared. in the assembly of the saints.' In Romans 1: 7, Paul, speaking of the brethren at Rome, calls them 'Beloved of God, and called to be saints,' and also in 1 Corinthians 1: 'Unto the church of God which is at Corinth, to them that are sanctified in Christ Jesus, called to be saints with all that in every place call upon the name of Jesus Christ, our Lord both theirs and ours.' Does not that include those who fulfill the conditions today? 'All that in every place.'

"Now, do you think Paul was wrong? or that he was contradicting Christ? For he said in one place that he taught nothing but what he received of God. But the word saint does not mean 'good' as you say, J—, dear, but it means, according to Webster, 'a holy or godly person,' and 'holy' means originally the same as 'wholly' or entirely, and thus a holy man of God means 'a man wholly God's,' that is, one that has given himself wholly to God. Now, when a person gives himself to God and is accepted of Him, he is sanctified, that is, cleansed and set apart for a sacred use or service. And a person so set apart is a saint, for 'saint' comes from the same root as 'sacred,' which means 'set apart by a religious ceremony,' or 'set apart for a religious use,' or when applied to a person, means 'dedicated to that which is holy, consecrated to God.' So you see Webster's definitions uphold the use of the word 'saint' as used by Paul, and as we use it, a people set apart for God, consecrated to His service, called out of the world by Him, and cleansed and made mete for His use. No; in calling ourselves 'saints' we do not claim that we are absolutely good, but only that we are thus 'called out,' set apart and consecrated to God's service and are to keep ourselves sacred, that is, to remember at all times and in all places that we are God's. 'Ye are not your own; ye are bought with a price' is God's word to each of us who is thus called out and set apart. We realize that we are not our own, but that we have been redeemed by the precious blood of Christ; and we are willing by the confession of our faith through the ordinance of baptism to acknowledge this to all the world.

"Paul also says, 'The saints shall judge the world.' Read up on this in your Bible, won't you? It will not hurt you to see what God says about it. If there are to be no saints when Christ comes, then who will meet Him? There are only the two classes, the saint and the sinner. Who is to reign with Him during the thousand years? Is it only the saints of former days? What hope then for us? But your idea that there are no saints because 'saint' means 'good'—and there are none good but God—would, if correct, prove there were no former day saints either, so Christ's kingdom would not have many willing subjects.

"We do not believe, or teach that no one can be saved unless they join this church. That is one of the things told against us that is not true. We believe God has His people in every church, yes, and even outside of any church, and Paul says (I think it is Paul), 'The Lord knoweth them that are his, and let him that nameth the name of Christ depart from iniquity.' 'My sheep hear my voice and I know them and they follow me,' says the Good Shepherd. Now, the true sheep will listen always for the Shepherd's voice, and will know it when they hear it and will follow Him.

"Another word about my re-baptism. I was never satisfied with my baptism after I saw, as God led me to see, that the administrator of the ordinance was to have authority from God, for the man who baptized me was an infidel and came out openly on the side of infidelity not long after; and when it was given me to see that Christ did really have a church holding this authority I wanted to be identified with it; so I sought admittance into this church, which is the kingdom of God, as I believe, and as baptism by one of the officers of the kingdom was the order of admittance in Christ's time, so it is today. A baptism even in the same form would be void if administered by one not having any authority from God to baptize. 'And no man taketh this honor unto himself but he that is called of God as was Aaron.' (Heb. 5: 4). How was Aaron called? God spoke to Moses and Aaron was called by direct revelation through Moses. Now the ministers of the church of Christ are to be called in the same way. God reveals his will to his servants by direct revelation, and by them it is made known to the person chosen, and also he may and does reveal his will to the person chosen, and when what he has received of God by the Spirit agrees with what is shown to another by the Spirit, it is plainly a call from God.

"Men are not apt to go into this ministry from choice, for there is not much to tempt them; so not much danger from false teachers, though, no doubt, some creep in once in a while, but they can soon be detected. No; there are no temptations in the way of a large salary and high positions in society, but they must go where they are sent, and take what they can get, whether it be kind treatment or persecution.

"If they are not certain they have the truth, how foolish to sacrifice home, friends, position in society, and even wealth and fame of this world, oftentimes, to go and preach to a world that will repay with ridicule, hatred and persecution even unto death. Of course the mere fact of their being thus persecuted does not prove their doctrines to be true, for so are the Utah people persecuted; but they also in turn are ready to persecute those of the Reorganization, and because of these [the Utah people] the way of truth is evil spoken of.' Since you say you will not read anything I write you concerning this doctrine after this, I have answered your questions very fully; and now I promise you that I will never write you again concerning the doctrines until you ask me for more, unless the Spirit commands me, then I will not dare to disobey. But I ask you to read this entire letter as if you knew it to be the last letter you would ever receive from your mother, for it may be the last on this subject. But you will not find rest and peace by resisting God's truth. You will never know peace till you accept it.

"As for the Saints trying to get the rest to join their church, that is not their method of work. They preach the truth, show the way, point out the door, and leave those who wish admittance into the kingdom to ask for it, in accord with the word, 'Ask and it shall be given; seek and ye shall find; knock and it shall be opened unto you.'"

I send this not especially for any merit in it, but because the same objections are often made, and I would be glad to help remove them from the minds of others, besides my own dear ones.

May the Spirit witness of the truth to the hearts of all who read, is my prayer in Jesus name.

What I Saw in My Travels.

I saw men and women who hated the truth, and hated those whose mission was to teach it. I concluded they were in bondage, for Jesus said, "The truth shall make you free."

I saw people, many in number, who were "wise in their own conceit." I thought "there is more hope of a fool than of them."

I saw many who had a "form of godliness, but denying the power thereof," and I remembered Paul's counsel to "from such turn away."

I saw professors of "religion who made it a part of their business to tattle and circulate stories so full of foul expressions about Latter Day Saints that I thought of what Jesus said, "They shall say all manner of evil against you."

I saw sectarian preachers who would tell horrible tales about Joseph Smith being a "horse thief," "polygamist," "impostor" and "fanatic," and this scripture came to my mind, "All liars shall have part in the lake which burneth with fire and brimstone."

I saw men and women who said "the Latter Day Saints are right," but they would not obey because their system of faith was not popular. In meditation

I was assured "they loved the praise of men more than the praise of God." I saw those who were kind to the servants of God in word and deed. I believe "They shall in no wise lose their reward."

I saw parents who had been and were training their children to be courteous and kind. I believe they had read, "train a child in the way he should go." I saw children who were disobedient to their parents, rude, unkind and boisterous. I thought, the parents will have the children's sins to answer for, and their own too. Usually, parents of such children are ready to offer excuses to strangers for the actions of their children, but the source of the trouble is not difficult to find.

I saw parents who are members of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ who seldom pray in their families; their spirituality was seldom of the highest type. I saw quite a number of heads of households who have the idea that once a day is sufficiently often to have family prayer; they fear if oftener, it would culminate in formality. I thought of "good old Daniel's" "formality," and the favors he received thereby.

I saw scores of smokers, chewers and snuffers, or rubbers of snuff, numbers of them members of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Some of them are near death's door caused by the dreadful curse; others are weak and sickly, and nearly all are suffering in some way from its poisonous effects on the system. I remembered that "tobacco is not good for man," and "is not for the body."

I saw some who were ordained to offices in the church who use tobacco not "sparingly." I saw them chew and spit the stenchful, filthy, poisonous fluid over a considerable portion of floor and hearth. I have read, "Be ye clean that bear the vessels of the Lord." Also "Avoid the use of tobacco," and was convinced that these were not heeding the word of the Lord to them, and that they were not "converted," for he that loveth tobacco in any form more than he loves to obey my words, "to avoid its use," cannot be my disciple, would be the sum and substance of the matter.

I saw things unbecoming, such as a quid of tobacco in the mouth, and at the same time that same mouth testifying of the genuineness of this Latter Day work, and the same ones members of the church. I had heard it said, "Oh, consistency, thou art a jewel!" Consistency is hard to find under such circumstances.

Against me, the Lord's argument weighs more than all the users of it have ever said or can say in its favor. It is a mystery to me how the Holy Ghost can dwell in a house (human body) thoroughly impregnated with nicotine (tobacco poison). Man cannot explain it, it requires a revelation from God to solve this.

I saw a book prized much by the owner who loaned it to one who used tobacco lavishly, with a request not to get tobacco spit on it, and when it was returned was stained on numerous pages. I saw the owner was more disgusted than ever with tobacco users.

I saw a lady of the world set out a spittoon near a Latter Day Saint(?) (officer) and said, "You spit in this." I looked upon her as administering a stern rebuke to the use of the weed; but it is not likely the rebuke was heeded. I did not feel proud of the officer, but wondered if it was not a mistake made when he was ordained by somebody to an office in the church.

I saw a man rise in meeting and say he would stop then (chewing), and called the assembly to witness his resolution, and in less than ten days he was chewing the very thing he had said he would abandon. I mused on, "Better not vow than to vow and not pay," and also, if he loved God as dearly as he loved tobacco, he would be a first class Latter Day Saint. The words of Christ to Peter apply appropriately to such officers, "When thou art converted strengthen thy brethren."

I saw in Matthew 24: 31: "And he shall send his angels with a great sound of a trumpet, and they shall gather together his elect from the four winds, from one end of heaven to the other," and felt comforted in contemplating that the "elect" are not tobacco users; that it would be one of the strangest sights ever seen to see an angel taking a body (member) by the hand or under his wing (arm), that smelt like a tobacco house, and carrying him up to Zion, to clean him up—quite a lot of work for angels to do if that is part of it. I have not seen it written that the angels had such work to do. For I gather from what is written that tobacco users are not the "elect" to be gathered by angels.

I saw that those who used the most tobacco and snuff had the most to say. They reminded me of broken pitchers, everything runs out of them; they seem to evidence that they know as much, or more, than some who do not use tobacco. I had not forgotten what Solomon said: "There is a time to speak and a time to keep silent."

I saw those who said they were in the church, men who, when angry, would curse and swear. I thought they could not be moved by the Holy Ghost to use such language. It must have been from the "abundance of the heart," that his mouth spoke. Such should continue to ponder the words of Christ to Peter, "When thou art converted strengthen thy brethren;" and Paul to Timothy, "Take heed unto thyself and to the doctrine."

I saw members who seemed to be "a law unto themselves," and say it is no harm to teach their children to play cards, and in that way teach them the evil of it. I thought of the "card players" of which Brigham Young could boast, but I felt glad that the church of Christ had so few in it, who applied the rule of teaching, their children the trade in order to show them the evil it would lead into. It is equally consistent to teach them to chew, smoke, and rub snuff, lie, steal and swear in order that they may learn the evil in such things. I have read somewhere, "Touch not, taste not, handle not the unclean thing." The Lord's advice is—prohibition on all these worldly evils. The precepts and example of those who practice otherwise weighs but little in favor of the church.

I saw members who did not like to pay money into the hands of the bishop, or his agents, to be paid out to missionaries' wives and families to buy snuff and tobacco with.

I saw members who would have means to procure tobacco and snuff, but had no change to help the traveling elder on his way.

I saw homes of Latter Day Saints, so-called, where the ENSIGN or Herald is not found, and enough tobacco used, the price paid per year for which would purchase all the church papers if double their present cost.

I saw children nearly shoeless and ragged, while money was freely paid out to procure tobacco and snuff for the father and mother.

I saw those who are dying by inches from the use of tobacco and snuff, call for the elders to administer to them, and they received no permanent benefit from the administration.

I saw that the words of Christ were true when he taught that: "Not every one that saith Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven, but he that doeth the will of my Father which art in heaven."

I saw, it is a good thing "to live by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God." If so, we will be clean in speech, in mouth, in person, not swearing, not covenant breakers, not rehearsing coarse and vulgar stories, in which the name of God is blasphemed, shoes and clothing bought instead of tobacco, and pure, sweet homes, undefiled by tobacco's foul, poisonous stench.

I SAW.

Extracts from the "Christian System."

Editor Ensign:—Will you please publish the following extracts from The Christian System, by Alexander Campbell, for the benefit of your readers:

Presidents in the church (page 183): "During the personal absence of the king, he has committed the management of his kingdom to stewards. These were, first apostles; next teachers; then assistants or helpers; then directors or presidents; all furnished with gifts, knowledge and character suited to their respective functions."

Angels employed (page 189): "Angels also were employed under the great king, in administering to them who are heirs of salvation. For Jesus now, as Lord of all, has the Holy Spirit at his disposal, and all the angels of God; and these are employed by him in the affairs of his kingdom."

There was never a better opportunity for persons suffering from diseases of the nerves, brain, heart, liver or stomach, to test, free, a New and complete treatment for these disorders. Dr. Miles is well known as a leading specialist in these diseases, and his liberal offer is certainly worthy of serious consideration by every afflicted reader.

This new system of Personal Treatment is thoroughly scientific and implements a series of the ordinary methods. It consists of several remedies carefully selected to suit each individual case, and is the final result of twenty-five years of very extensive research and experience in treating this class of disorders. Extensive statistics clearly demonstrate that Dr. Miles' new treatment is three times as successful as the usual treatment.

The results of remarkable testimonials from prominent people will be sent upon request, which prove the doctor to be one of the world's most successful physicians.

Col. E. B. Spileman, of the 9th United States Regulars, located at San Diego, Cal., says: "Dr. Miles' Personal Treatment has worked wonders in my son's case, when all else failed. I had employed the best medical talent, and had spent $2,000 in so doing. I believe he is a wonderful specialist. I considered it my duty to recommend him." "You cured me of years of inherited dizziness," writes Hon. W. A. Warren, of Jamestown, N. Y.

Addressed readers may have $2.50 worth of Treatment, especially adapted to their case, free, we would advise them to send for it at once. Address Dr. Franklin Miles, State and Adams Sts., Chicago.

hands" (page 38): "The question 'who has required this at your hands' must always be answered by a 'thus saith the Lord,' before an offering of mortal man can be acknowledged by the law giver of the universe."

Campbell speaks for himself only (page 12): "We speak for ourselves only; and, while we are always willing to give a declaration of our faith and knowledge of the Christian system, we firmly protest against dogmatically propounding our own views or those of any fallible mortal as a condition or foundation of church union and co-operation. While, then, we would if we could, either with the tongue or the pen proclaim all that we believe, and all that we know, to the ends of the earth, we take the Bible, the whole Bible, and nothing but the Bible, as the foundation of all Christian union and communion."

AMES, Kans., Jan. 30.

A Thing Worth Knowing.

No need of cutting off a woman's breast or a man's cheek or nose in a vain attempt to cure cancer. No use of applying burning plasters to the flesh and torturing those already weak from suffering. Soothing, balmy, aromatic oils give safe, speedy and certain cure. The most horrible forms of cancer of the face, breast, womb, mouth, stomach; large tumors, ugly ulcers, fistula, catarrh; terrible skin diseases, etc., are all successfully treated by the application of various forms of simple oils. Send for a book mailed free, giving particulars and prices of oils. Address Dr. BYE, Drawer N, Kansas City, Mo. (Cut this out and send to some suffering one.)

DISBELIEVES IT.

"Brother Lipscomb:—If one of our brethren were sick and were to send for you to come and pray over him and anoint him with oil, would you do it? Brother Kidwell, one of the best men, and one who had as much faith as any man I ever knew, told me he had it from reliable authority that a man living in Kentucky, north of him, was sick and given up to die, and he sent for the elders. They did not have much faith, but to satisfy him they prayed over him, and anointed him with oil, and stayed with him that night; and the sick man sat with him the next morning at the breakfast table, ate with them, and rode a part of the way with them as they went home that day. If he had faith to be healed he also had faith to be forgiven of his sins. Please give your views on this subject.

"T. C. HOLT."

"I have frequently given my conviction on this scripture. I do not believe there were ever miraculous and sudden cures effected by this work, or that all who had hands laid on them were healed; if so, those persons would be living yet. All it meant was, by doing this, those who could be healed would be. The anointing with oil was a common curative agent used at the time this was written. I am not satisfied whether the Scripture intended to teach that oil should be used as a specific in all cases of disease, or whether it was intended to teach that with whatever curative agents that are used the prayers of the elders and of all Christians should be connected. In the doubt I could not use the oil with much faith, though I believe it is a good curative agent in many cases. I am sure Christians do not rely upon, and so engage in prayer for the sick and for the sins of one another as they ought. I do not believe there was healing, as you report, in the sick man. If he did as reported, he was not much sick to begin with." D. Lipscomb, in Nashville, Tennessee, Gospel Advocate (Disciple), February 1, 1900.

And yet this man makes earnest claims that his faith is founded upon the Bible as the word of God, and that he accepts it as authority; at the same time he confesses that he has no faith in an ordinance in the church which Christ established. "Having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof: from such turn away," was no false warning.

THE DOCTRINE OF NUMBERS.

Number 5 is a divine number. Genesis 18: 24-32: "Peradventure there shall lack five of fifty righteous; wilt thou destroy the city for lack of five?" And so by fives and multiples of five, Abraham makes his plea.

In the construction of the Tabernacle in the wilderness, this fact comes out most fully. It was to be God's dwelling place among the Hebrew people. All of the measurements go by fives and multiples of five. Five, fifteen, twenty-five, fifty. "Five curtains shall be coupled together one to another, and other five curtains shall be coupled one to another." "And thou shalt make fifty loops," "and five bars for the boards." "And thou shalt make for the hangings five pillars." "And thou shalt cast five sockets for them," etc. Exodus 26: 1, 2, 3, 9, 10, 27, 37. "Five loaves and two fishes." Five loaves from which divine power was to feed the multitude; two fishes which were to be multiplied for man. Divine power giving, humanity receiving, Matthew 14:19. "Five were wise and five were foolish." Matthew 25:1-13. Three thousand converts at one time, Acts 2: 41, and five thousand at another, because God did the work—Divine power.

Number 6 belongs to man. "Six days shalt thou labor and do all thy work," Ex. 20:9. "Six years ye shall serve." Ex. 21: 2. "Each one had six wings; with twain he covered his face, with twain he covered his feet, and with twain he did fly." Isa. 6: 2. The "seraphim" stands for glorified, redeemed humanity. The gospel preached by Christ was characterized by six gracious things. Luke 4:18. Rev. 13: 18. "Here is wisdom. Let him that hath understanding count the number of the beast, for it is the number of a man; and his number is six hundred three score and six." On the triple crown of the pope, we are told by one who, saw it, is this inscription: "Vicarius, Vili, Dei." Now let us count the number and see what it will be. V 5, I 1, C 100, I 1, U 5, I 1, L 50, I 1, I 1, D 500, I 1, total 666. The number of a man. According to Latin or the Roman numerals, this would be the number. This later day beast which comes up out of the earth, and takes the place of the former beast which came up out of the sea.

Number 7 is a divine number. "And on the seventh day God ended his work which he had made, and he rested on the seventh day from all his work which he had made," Gen. 2:1-3. Seven days, seven years, seven times seven—Jubilee. Lev. 25: 8-17. "It is the jubilee." Deut. 15: 1, 9, "At the end of seven years thou shalt make a release."

Israel had been 490 years in their promised land when God sent them into captivity for 70 years, just the time of which they had robbed God by not keeping his sabbaths as he had commanded. Seven years of plenty, seven years of famine. Seven times around Jericho, seven churches, seven stars, seven angels, seven vials, seven thunders. There are seven notes in music, seven colors, etc.

Number 8 belongs to man. Eight persons went into the ark. "The ark, wherein few, that is, eight souls were saved." 1 Peter 3:20. "Noah the eighth person, a preacher of righteousness." 2 Peter 2: 5.

Some one has said that eight is a resurrection number. Noah and the prophet Elijah are both associated with the doctrine of the resurrection. Elijah wrought eight miracles. Elisha on whom a double portion of Elijah's spirit fell, wrought twice eight miracles. Jesus eight times predicted that he would rise from the dead. In all of this we have a prophecy of the change which was made in the sabbath from the last to the first day of the week. With Noah the eighth person, the human race took a new start.

Circumcision was on the eighth day. The priest after his consecration entered upon his work which was to him a new work. The leper after his cleansing, entered the congregation on the eighth day.

Lev. 23: 39, "On the first day shall be a sabbath, and on the eighth day shall be a sabbath." In the gospel it is called, "that Great Day of the feast." John 7: 37.

Number 9 is a divine number, and is the last, as number 1 is the first.

This is the limit of all numbers. The oldest man who ever lived had his life of 969 years by this rule. Abraham was 99 years old when God came to him. There are nine planets in our solar system. There were ninety and nine as the limit of the Saviour's parable. Luke 15: 4. While nine was the limit of his miracle. Luke 17: 17. If we multiply nine we will always get a multiple of nine. Thus: Twice nine is eighteen—one and eight are nine. Three times nine are twenty-seven—two and seven are nine, etc., etc. I may go on multiplying nine indefinitely and I will always get a multiple of nine. Nor can I ever get beyond God. As I find nothing before Him, even so shall I find nothing after Him.

No beginning of numbers without number one, even so God is the beginning of all things. God has much to say about "beginnings" and about "endings." Gen. 1: 1; John 1: 1; 1 John 1: 1; Rev. 1: 8; 22: 13. "I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end, the first and the last." "A just God and Saviour; there is none beside me." Isa. 45: 21, 22. This study in the doctrine of numbers is one which the reader can continue almost indefinitely, and he will find it as fascinating as it will be profitable.

One thing must certainly be true, which is, that it is no accident that all odd numbers belong to Deity, while all even numbers belong to humanity. It is so because God made it so, and in this unanswerable way furnishes the proof of His own being.—Rev. J. D. Murphy, D. D., in St. Louis Central Baptist, Jan. 4, 1900.

The Irrigation Age reports that the waters of the Great Salt Lake, in Utah, have receded a mile within the past year, and some persons think that within the coming century this wonderful body of water may be completely dried up. The cause of the lowering of the water is ascribed to the rapid extension of irrigation ditches, which draw their supply from the streams emptying into the lake. There is now a "salt desert" not far from the lake, which was once covered with water. The salt deposit on the floor of the lake itself is believed to be of great thickness.

Cure for Smallpox.

The following was communicated to the Liverpool Mercury by a Mr. Hine. He says: "I am willing to risk my reputation as a public man if the worst case of smallpox cannot be cured in three days simply by the use of Cream of Tartar. One ounce of Cream of Tartar dissolved in a pint of boiling water and drunk at intervals, when cold, is a certain, never failing remedy. It has cured thousands, never leaves a mark, never causes blindness, and avoids a tedious, lingering illness."

ANOTHER RELIABLE CURE FOR SMALLPOX.

A Paris physician says: "I here-with append a recipe which has been used, to my knowledge, in hundreds of cases. It is unfailing as fate, and conquers in every instance. It is harmless when taken by a well person. It will also cure scarlet fever. Here it is as I have used it to cure smallpox; when learned physicians said the patient would die, it cured."

"Sulphate of zinc, one grain; foxglove (Digitalis), one grain; one-half teaspoonful of sugar. Mix with two tablespoonfuls of water; when thoroughly mixed add four ounces of water."

"Dose, one spoonful every hour. For children smaller doses according to age. Either diseases will disappear in twelve hours."

Series of Debates.

Elder W. S. Pender and Evangelist Denton Collins, representing "the religious body denominated Church of Christ, as attempted to be restored by Alexander Campbell," will hold a series of public discussions as follows: Brownell, Kansas, February 13-21; Barnes, Kansas, February 23-March 3; Idylwild, Kansas, March 5-13; Linn, Kansas, March 14, 15, 16, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23.

Four nights are to be devoted to discussion of each of the following propositions, at each place, viz., (1) "The Book of Mormon is of divine origin and entitled to respect and belief of all christian people;" (2) "The religious body denominated Church of Christ, as attempted to be restored by Alexander Campbell and others since 1809 is, in origin, doctrine, organization and practice, in complete harmony with New Testament teachings." AMES, Kas., Feb. 3.

Conference Notices.

The Kirtland district conference will convene with the Sharon branch, March 3 and 4, 1900. We trust that all will make an effort to come and enjoy a spiritual feast.

In connection with conference there will be a church dedication, as we have had our church handsomely remodeled. Let us come with the Spirit of the Master and make the conference in the new church and the first in the year 1900 long to be remembered. All those who intend coming, please write to W. J. Baldwin, 95 Elm street, Sharon, Pa. We would like a good representation of the ministry present. Bro. R. Etzenhouser please take notice.

Branch secretaries please get your reports for conference in good time and see to having them correct.

DIED.

SKINNER.—At her home, Maysville, Arkansas, January 20, 1900, Sr. M. J. Skinner. She was born August 29, 1843, and became a member of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ, October 7, 1885, and lived a true Latter Day Saint, her examples being worthy to follow. She died rejoicing in the gospel of Jesus Christ.

ROTH.—At Nebraska City, Nebraska, December 1, 1899, of consumption, Sr. Ida Roth, aged 23 years. She was baptized November 5, 1899, by Elder Wm. Self, and at her confirmation in the afternoon of the same day, after partaking of the emblems, bore her testimony to the work. She had been taught the principles of the gospel years ago in the Nebraska City Sunday School, and she never would join another church. Funeral at the church Sunday afternoon, December 3d, sermon by Elder M. H. Forscutt. Husband and other relatives mourn her departure.

WARNOCK.—At Farmington, Iowa, Mary Warnock, whose maiden name was Scott, departed this life January 16, 1900, aged 91 years, 2 months, and 2 days. She was born November 14, 1808, in County Armagh, Ireland. When ten years of age she came to Canada with her father's family, where she grew to womanhood. On July 19, 1833, she was united by marriage to William Warnock, who preceded her to rest 2 years, 11 months, and 4 days, in his ninety-sixth year. Grandma Warnock (the endearing name by which she was known) was the mother of eleven children, eight of whom preceded father and mother to the spirit world; and three—Robert, Sarah and Susan—remain to bear the burden of sorrow that now rests on the home. She was reared in the Presbyterian church—being of Scottish descent—but in 1837 she, with her husband, heard the preaching of Latter Day Saint elders and united with that church. One year later they removed to Caldwell county, Missouri. In 1842 they returned to Canada, and resided there until 1871, when they came to Farmington; here they have since made their home. Sr. Warnock has lived a true christian life; was a great help to the church, and until the infirmities of advancing age made her virtually a prisoner at home, she was always in attendance at worship. Her home was ever open to the ministry, and she did not forget to help them otherwise. For several years she has been a great sufferer, but has endured it all with extraordinary patience; and in all this has had the faithful care and efficient nursing of her daughter Susan, who supported her in her arms in the last trying ordeal of death. This came to her at last unheralded and unanticipated, but found her prepared to go. She had many times said she was "ready and anxious to go, and would be glad when it was the Lord's will to call." So when the call was made she passed peacefully and peacefully to rest. "Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints." Funeral services at the residence, Elder James McKiernan in charge; Elder F. M. Weid, of Lamoni, Iowa, was the speaker. There were present her son, Robert, and daughters Sarah and Susan, and many friends to attest the respect in which Mother Warnock was held. The interment took place in the Farmington cemetery.

Good Blood! Your heart beats over one hundred thousand times each day. One hundred thousand supplies of good or bad blood to your brain. Which is it? If bad, impure blood, then your brain aches. You are troubled with drowsiness. Yet cannot sleep. You are as tired in the morning as at night. You have no nerve power. Your food does you but little good. Stimulants, tonics, headache powders, cannot cure you; but Ayer's Sarsaparilla will. It makes the liver, kidneys, skin and bowels perform their proper work. It removes all impurities from the blood. And it makes the blood rich in its life-giving properties. To Hasten Recovery. You will be more rapidly cured if you will take a laxative dose of Ayer's pills each night. They arouse the sluggish liver and thus cure biliousness. Write to our Doctors. We have the exclusive services of some of the most eminent physicians in the world. ARE WE READY?

One of the surest means by which the favor and recognition of our heavenly Father may be secured, is the observance of all his commands. We have this testimony given by the Lord Jesus while making Himself an ensample of obedience and its fruits, when he walked among men disseminating the principles of the everlasting gospel for the salvation of men. He said:

If ye abide in me, and my words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will, and it shall be done unto you.—John 15: 7.

This is no idle promise; there is life in it if the conditions specified are heeded. The same conditions attach to this promise as to all God's promises of blessings applicable to the human family, that is, obedience—compliance with the will of God. There are promises made which do not require obedience in order to their fulfillment; incredible as this statement may appear, it is, nevertheless, a fact; but such promises in their execution do not convey that which is desirable. For instance, Jesus says, "he that believeth not shall be damned." Disobedience instead of obedience is the requisite to the fulfillment of this promise, and it is a sad fact that a great many more are preparing themselves to realize the effects of this promise, than there are those submitting to the conditions upon which the promise preceding it was made—"He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved."—Mark 16: 16.

The Lord is always ready to fulfill his promises; nor does he ever need to be reminded of them; but his children have been slow to comprehend the importance attaching to their obedience in the carrying out of his designs and purposes. He has given laws by which his Saints may be redeemed, but they are still lacking in the qualifications demanded for that high estate. He has given a law by which Zion might have been redeemed many years ago. She still languishes. Of what avail is it for him to further command and instruct, until a more earnest heed be given to the things we have already received? Yet are we not content but are praying for more. The mere reading of the word of God, or even the committing of the entire Scripture to memory will not make men wise. It is the comprehension and understanding of the instruction conveyed in that which we read that makes us wise, because it enlarges our store of knowledge. Multiplied millions read God's word, but they fail to absorb its lessons in their characters, and God is not, therefore, glorified in their study.

The Saints should awake to a better realization of their opportunities and duties in this respect. True, advancement in this direction is being made by some; but as a church, we need to read, as well as pray, with the Spirit and with the understanding, and thus manifest to our heavenly Father our appreciation of his wisdom and love in giving necessary instructions for our proper guidance in doing His will, and also make it apparent that we are ready to abide in his commandments; ready to move promptly in carrying out all the revelations of his divine will; ready, like Abraham of old, to say, "Here am I;" ready, like Samuel, to say when he calls, "Speak Lord, thy servant heareth;" and, like these ancient worthies, ready to carry out with diligence and exactness the commands he gives. Then will the work move on in power; then will the Saints be speedily gathered to their inheritance; then will Zion arise and shine and God will be glorified in his people.

Now, if at the General Conference, soon to convene, it should please the Father to further instruct his people, can we sincerely say we are ready to do all that he may require us to do in the furtherance of his work? Remember the words of the Psalmist, "Gather my saints together unto me; those that have made a covenant with me by sacrifice."—Ps. 50: 5. Here the Lord specifies those of his Saints who shall gather unto Him; "those who have made a covenant with me by sacrifice." That is the test, are we ready for it? If any feel they are not, better get in line, the time is short, the night is approaching.

"OUT OF PRINT!"—WHY SO?

The Kinsman, published monthly at Salt Lake City, Utah, has in a standing advertisement on its cover the following:

"THE ROCKY MOUNTAIN SAINTS" is conceded to be the best history of Mormonism which has ever been published. The book is a large octavo volume of 760 pages, containing twenty-four full-page engravings, and a steel-plate frontispiece. The original price of the book was Five Dollars. It is now out of print and is becoming rare. We have a few volumes engaged for the benefit of our friends. So long as they last, we shall furnish them to the readers of the Kinsman at $2.25.

The author of this history is Mr. T. B. H. Stenhouse, who was for twenty-five years a Mormon elder, missionary and writer, who afterwards left Mormonism and returned to the Christian faith of his early years. Many of our readers will recall the fact that Mr. Stenhouse was the husband of Mrs. Fanny Stenhouse, the author of "An English Woman in Utah, or the Tyranny of Mormonism."

"MORMON PORTRAITS" is one of the most telling exposures of Mormonism that have ever been made. It covers the ground very largely by affidavits and the personal testimony of men and women who knew the early Mormon leaders and all the principal events connected with their early history. This book is now out of print and is becoming quite rare. We have a few copies which we will sell, while they last, for $1.00 per copy.

"THE GOLDEN BIBLE" is a review of the Book of Mormon by Rev. M. T. Lamb, who was at one time a missionary in Utah. It is by far the most thorough exposure of the fraud of the Book of Mormon from internal evidence that has ever been attempted. The Christian worker who has this book in his possession will be prepared to make an irresistible exposure of the fraudulent foundation of Mormonism which no Mormon elder will be capable of meeting in any way. This book is also out of print and exceedingly rare. We have a few copies, paper bound, which we will sell at 50 cents each.

Address all orders to The Kinsman, Box 1061, Salt Lake City, Utah.

It is remarkable, to say the least, that these productions which are, with The Kinsman, seemingly almost indispensable to human existence, should be "out of print!" The first—so rare and so valuable, is now, notwithstanding its enhanced value because of its scarcity, to be had at $2.25; whereas, when the supply was plentiful it cost $5.00, is "conceded to be the best history of Mormonism which has ever been published." [Italics ours.] The utter unreliability of this work can be seen in a review published in a work by Elder R. Etzenhouser, entitled "Palmyra to Independence," (to be had at this office, price $1.00, cloth bound), on pages 204-211.

Beadle said of his "Expose" that it was commended by "members of Congress and Government officials. Of others' "Exposures" he said, "None have been complete and few genuine."

The distinguished historian Bancroft wrote of the whole mess of such works in his "History of Utah" of 1890 (see page seven of preface): "Most of these are written in a sensational style, and for the purpose of deriving profit by pandering to a vitiated public taste, and are wholly unreliable as to facts." Think of it! "Wholly unreliable as to facts!" RARE, VALUABLE BOOKS "out of print" and selling at a greatly reduced price! How very philanthropic our friends of The Kinsman are.

Of Rev. Lamb's book published in 1886, The Kinsman says: "Is by far the most thorough exposure of the fraud of the Book of Mormon from internal evidence that has ever been attempted." (Italics ours.) Alas! for Braden, Bays and a host of others who have also presented "by far the most complete" and thorough exposure of the Book of Mormon fraud. Rev. Lamb's book so exceedingly rare, so valuable? and out of print, can be had at FIFTY CENTS! The review in "Palmyra to Independence," pages 236-247, shows it clearly to be utterly unreliable and to MISREPRESENT in clearest cases of FACT.

The Kinsman is itself rated by the estimate it places upon such reputable efforts as these authors have put forth. When an individual is compelled to resort to misrepresentation, falsehood and mis-statement of facts to sustain his side of a question he has a weak case indeed, and we predict that the work which these men and others have so long and so strenuously sought to disprove and disparage, will flourish, increase in advocates and adherents and be established as truth long after these Exposures(?) and their authors are buried and forgotten. It is God's work and His truth and He will care for it; but these traducees will be brought into judgment and condemned for their prejudice, unfairness and cupidity.

JOINED THE RANSOMED.

The news of the demise of "Aunt" Catharine Salisbury, as she was familiarly known to the Saints, which occurred at her home near Fountain Green, Illinois, February 2d, will be received with regret by many who have been accustomed to greet her and hear her voice at the General Conferences testifying to the truth of the work of the Lord introduced by her brothers, the martyrs, Joseph and Hyrum Smith, and continued under the presidency of her nephews, Joseph and Alexander, sons of Joseph Smith. She has borne a faithful testimony many years, and it was a great pleasure for her to use this privilege whenever the opportunity was present. Now, she has finished her work; no more will the Saints and others hear her earnest, faithful testimony in this probation. She was faithful unto death, and has rejoined the loved ones who, so many years ago, left her to mourn their departure until she too had finished the task a loving Father had given her to perform before permitting her to lay down her burdens and go peacefully to her rest.

She was the eighth in a family of nine children, namely: Alvin, Hyrum, Joseph, Samuel, William; Don Carlos, Sophronia, Catharine and Lucy, and passed through the trying scenes experienced by the church in the days of scattering and martyrdom of her two brothers. But her last days were peaceful, and her body will rest but a little while in the tomb, before the shout of victory at the coming of the Lord shall awaken the dead in Christ, who shall arise to dwell with him.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

BRO. J. W. WHITLEY, Bridgeport, Washington, says that his request for elders to visit his neighborhood has, as yet, met with no response. The people have been waiting to hear the gospel, and he hopes the coming conference will not overlook their needs. He says they have room for two elders, and those sent should come to Spokane, and by stage to Bridgeport. About the last of May will be a good time to commence.

BRO. I. B. LAING, of Olathe, Kansas, had the misfortune to lose his home by fire two weeks ago from, it is thought, the smother house of a neighbor. Our brother and his companion are quite aged, and as there was no insurance on the property the loss falls upon them heavily. A collection was taken up for them by a couple of citizens of the town; any others who are able to assist in the matter are requested to address Mr. N. B. Butts, Olathe, Kansas, who has the matter in hand.

SR. ELLA R. DEVORE, Graysville, Monroe county, Ohio, who, with her husband, Bro. L. R. Devore, spent several years in the Society Islands doing missionary work, rejoices in the continued mercies of our heavenly Father, and the fulfillment of His promises. She writes:

Let me say that three of us here, Mrs. Lucas, Fisher and self, have proved, without a doubt, the truth of that scripture, "where two or three are gathered together in my name, there am I in the midst of them." (Matt. 18: 20). When Bro. and Sr. I. W. Devore cannot be with us, we do not fail. Yesterday, though all three were afflicted sorely with colds and hoarseness, it did not dampen our ardor, and we were encouraged and edified by reading for our lesson the sixth chapter of 2d Corinthians, and discharging our duties, having faith in the promise referred to. We are still zealous for the cause of truth.

ELDER JOHN KALER, 65 Nel-son St., Rozelle, Sydney, Australia, advises under date of January 14th (received here February 13th) that the work is moving along there; nine had just been baptized at Sydney. Bro. Gomer Wells was to leave February 6th, for Lamoni, Iowa. Bro. Kaler sends regards to all the Saints.

ELDER JAMES MCKIERNAN has been holding services at Oak Grove school-house, near Burnside, Illinois; though the roads were bad and weather unfavorable, the interest in the meetings was good. President A. H. Smith preached for them on the evening of the 6th inst., being in that vicinity attending the funeral of Aunt Catharine Salisbury on the 4th, remaining over a few days to visit relatives.

The Delineator for March, is received from the publishers, The Butterick Publishing Company, New York, and will be of considerable interest to the ladies, in selecting the styles of their new spring suits. The Delineator is the standard in its field, having offices in Paris, London and New York, and each issue is always replete with valuable suggestions and patterns. One dollar per year, fifteen cents per copy.

The following, from the Lowry City (Mo.), Independent, for February 9th, shows how some of the inhabitants of Lowry City and vicinity appreciated Bro. White's labors among them recently:

Elder J. N. White closed his lectures on the "Rise and Fall, and Ups and Downs of Christianity," on Wednesday night, and left for Independence Thursday. Those who failed to hear these lectures certainly missed an intellectual treat. Mr. White is a logical reasoner, and evinced much skill in handling his subject. While he did not spare the religious bigot and hypocrite, yet he was tender to the erring, and generous to all that differed with him. To say the least, the lecture was an educational feast throughout. The large pictorial chart that was used was a masterpiece of artistic skill that seldom finds its way to so small a city as ours. We understand his next point is Kansas City, where he gives a week's lecture upon the topic of "True and False Religion."

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

BRO. E. T. DOBSON, of Deloit, Iowa, says:

Deloit may be a candidate for the General Reunion for 1901!! We have the Railroad connections and the groves and parks and water, "oceans" of it. We have the hospitable people too. We have the requisites for a formidable rival of any applicant for the honor.

BRO. G. W. SMITH, Lake City, Arkansas:

I am doing all I can for the gospel in this part of the country. I tried to get an elder to come and labor last summer, offering to pay his way, but failed. I will try it again this summer. This country is too low to do much in winter, being subject to overflow. I am the only church member here that I know of.

ELDER WM. SPARLING, Leeds, North Dakota:

Am pushing along as best I can, weather forty degrees below zero this morning (February 8). Have just returned from a seventy-five mile drive across the country. Bro. Garfield kindly volunteering to transport me. Expect to drive from here to Turtle Mountains next week. Am enjoying the best of health. Prosperity attend your labors, I wish I could place the Ensign in every house. I find it banishes prejudice, and is a splendid introducer of the gospel theme.

GENERAL CHURCH NEWS.

INDEPENDENCE.

Srs. Newkirk, Bowker, Peterson, Grandma Davison, Bro. Levi Cheney, and Edna James are still on the sick list.

The musicale at Bro. R. G. Smith's, North Delaware street, Tuesday evening, was well attended, the program nicely rendered and an enjoyable time was had by all who attended.

Little Stella Bartholomew is quite low, and only the power of God will avail for her recovery. It was thought for a time Monday night that she had passed away, but she rallied and still lingers.

The Religio will study two lessons tomorrow, Friday night, Bro. Parker, at request of President Harrington, having occupied Friday night of last week in answering the Utah elders. Everybody go.

We are experiencing touches of genuine winter weather this week. Monday considerable snow fell accompanied by a driving wind; Tuesday was clear and bright, but Wednesday brought another snow and lower temperature.

Sr. Sidney Preston (Jessie Luff) surprised her folks by a visit Saturday, the 3d inst. remaining until Friday evening last when she departed for her home, Louisville, Nebraska. She is having splendid health and enjoys her new home very much, except she is deprived of meetings to a great extent.

Sunday was a pleasant day and a fine audience assembled at all services. There were 300 at the Sunday School. At eleven o'clock Bro. Joseph Luff preached an instructive discourse in his forceful manner, and at night Bishop G. H. Hilliard also preached a good, solid discourse. The afternoon service was well occupied and profitable.

Mr. F. A. Millard, the accommodating station agent here of the old favorite Missouri Pacific Railway, is making a popular and efficient official, and making friends for his company. Patrons of the road having business at the station are always sure of courteous, considerate and prompt treatment. It is a pleasure to meet a railway agent who is not so puffed up with his own importance that he is unable to make a civil reply to a business inquiry. Too many agents conduct themselves as if the public was under great obligations to them for the privilege of doing business with the road they (mis) represent. An agent of this kind will destroy the popularity of the best line ever constructed, while a popular representative will outweigh many inconveniences. A courteous, obliging disposition goes a long way in business, as in private life.

Thursday evening of last week Elder O. K. Hansen of Fairview, Utah, in charge of the Iowa conference of the Brighamite faith, occupied at the stone church in an effort to reply to Bro. R. J. Parker's masterly review of Elder Kelsch Wednesday evening, referred to in last week's issue. Elder Hansen noticed only about two points made by Bro. Parker and did that from a misconstruction basis. He was very earnest, but it was plainly manifest that the source of his inspiration was from beneath. At one time when "bearing testimony" that "the authority to baptize for the dead was still upon earth—had never been taken away—he was moved by a power that caused his utterances to come in short, jerky sentences much resembling the barking of a small dog in the tone of his voice and yelping sound accompanying the "testimony." This jerky sentence manner of delivery was also noticed in the effort of Elder Kelsch who spoke the Tuesday night previous. At the close of Elder Hansen's effort Thursday evening, himself and Elder Larsen, in charge of this conference, refused to answer any questions unless written and they be given time to answer them "systematically" (?) They well knew from Elder Kelsch's experience that Elder Hansen's effort would have been riddled and the untenability of his positions made manifest had they done as they agreed when receiving permission to use the church, that is, allow questions to be asked each evening. Friday night Bro. R. J. Parker reviewed Elder Hansen to the satisfaction of all except the Brighamite contingent present. The night was lovely and a large attendance of Saints and non-members was present. At the close of his effort privilege was given for any one to ask questions, but not one presented any, the Utah elders being silent. The meeting closed the series, the Utah elders departing for their respective fields the following day. We are of the opinion that when next any of the elders of that church apply for the use of our church, a written agreement should be made which they should be required to sign so that they could not back out of their agreements so easily.

LAMONI, IOWA.

Preaching at the Home and church yesterday morning and night by Bro. Herman C. Smith and Elbert Smith.

Apostle J. W. Wight arrived from Utah, called by the sickness and death of one of his children, an only daughter.

The chief features of the Religio at their last meeting was a select reading by Sr. Nellie Anderson, entitled, "The Power of Attraction that Music has on Human Nature;" a paper by Bro. Hale Smith, "Does the Uneducated Man or Woman Stand as Good as a Show in the World Today as the Educated?" and a paper by W. T. Ross, "How May the Young Man or Woman, Whose Early Opportunities Have Been Limited, Become Enlightened?"

At the last business meeting here, the presiding branch officers, missionaries in charge and district president were appointed the reception committee for the General Conference to be held here in April, and the price of board was fixed at $2.50 per week.

A child of A. Lasley, who died recently, was buried on the 31st ult., the funeral services were attended to by Elder H. A. Stebbins.

Mr. George Bandy, of Blythe-dale, Missouri, has bought the residence property which was occupied by Elder D. C. White and family, from Bishop Kelley, price $1500 cash. Mr. Bandy will move here for the sake of educating his children. The property belonged to the church.

At the close of the controversy with the Utah elders here, Apostle Smith declared that if the Utah church wished to discuss the issue further, the Reorganized church would affirm in joint debate, "That Joseph Smith, of Lamonia, Iowa, is the lawful successor of Joseph Smith, the seer, as president of, and revelator to, the church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, and his teaching and practice are in harmony with the teaching and practice of his predecessor," if they would affirm that "Brigham Young (deceased), was the lawful successor to Joseph Smith, the seer, as president of, and revelator to, the church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, and his teaching and practice were in harmony with the teaching and practice of his predecessor." The Reorganized church will furnish house and pay all expenses for such debate in Lamoni, Iowa, providing the Utah church would agree to repeat the discussion in Salt Lake City, Utah, and furnish house and pay expenses of the debate there. Two Utah elders were present, of whom Elder Hansen stated that their future engagements would not permit them to say whether they could make such arrangements or not at present, but agreed when they decided, to let Bro. Herman know.

Pres. A. H. Smith went to Parrish, Illinois, to attend the funeral of Aunt Catharine Salisbury.

The College reports an enrollment of sixty one students for the present year. Pres. Harkness is laboring to make Grace-land a success, and the leading educational institution of South-western Iowa. New catalogues and circulars of the college can be had by addressing Professor Harkness, Lamoni, Iowa.

At the last Council meeting a request was presented for a billiard hall, with the offer of $100 for the license, but was refused.

Elder M. M. Turpen preached at Pleasanton, Iowa, Sunday 4th, inst.

District president, Elder F. M. Weld, was the speaker at the brick church last night.

ST. JOSEPH, MISSOURI.

Bishop E. L. Kelly addressed the Saints here Sunday morning and evening. A very large audience gathered at the evening hour. Our Sunday evening prayer meetings are being very well attended and are spiritual throughout. Religians here seem to be awakening, more interest has been taken of late in the meetings. By way of entertainment we have a continuous story (written by the members) and a newspaper, "The Religio Bugle" read alternately each week.

On February 22d, the Willing Workers' association will give an oyster supper in the basement of the church, proceeds to be applied on the church building debt.

Cards are out announcing the coming marriage of Miss Mayme Leonie Whitehead to Mr. William Theodore Dugger, Wednesday, February 21st.

Miss Mayme Whitehead will be baptized at the church on Tuesday evening of this week. Bro. G. J. Whitehead will officiate in the ordinance. Bro. Whitehead has been able to attend church services for the last two Sundays. We sincerely trust his recovery may be permanent.

Bro. C. H. Eldridge has had a severe attack of heart trouble the last two weeks; he is some better but unable to obtain sleep for more than a few minutes at a time.

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS.

To show the swiftness of the times I spoke Sunday at Plano, Illinois, at 10:45 a. m. and returned to Chicago, a distance of 52 miles, and spoke at our hall at 2:45 p. m. with good liberty and audience. Bro. F. M. Pitt, our priest, occupied very acceptably at the 7:45 p. m. appointment.

By careful reading, our son, J. M., Jr., has discovered in the "Manuscript Found" by Solomon Spaulding, 270 mis-spelled words; 38 wrong use of capital letters on five pages alone, and many violations of grammar rules in the construction of sentences. There are 64 names of different men used in the book, none of which are similar to the names in the Book of Mormon, "Lambon" and "Lamac" being the nearest; "Nemapon" being the only name commencing with an "N" and the nearest Nephi. There are about 40,000 words in the MS. We submit these items as a matter of curiosity.

The priesthood counsel meeting at the conference was a pleasing feature and should be encouraged. Many good things were said and encouragement in proper lines given. It was made a permanent feature of our conferences.

Our branch report shows a net gain since last report of twenty, eight of which was by baptism.

For advancement and unity,
J. M. TERRY.

At the business meeting Saturday night twelve members were received by letter of removal.

At the eleven o'clock service Sunday Bro. George Edwards discoursed on the "Coming of Christ;" at the evening service Elder M. B. Williams discoursed on the "Unchangeability of God." Elder I. N. LETTER DEPARTMENT.

GRINNELL, IOWA, Feb. 1.
 Editor Ensign:—I closed a splendid meeting on January 23d in the south part of Jasper county; I was almost afraid to try to hold any meetings there, the roads being so muddy that in places they were almost impassible; but to my surprise the first night there were twenty-six out. And the crowd kept increasing each night till the house was jammed full of very interested and attentive listeners. A Christian (Campbellite) minister tried to hold meetings there and the three last times he was there, not one person came out to hear him. One of his own members was heard to say one evening after my sermon when some one remarked about so large a crowd being out and the roads so bad, and the nights pitch dark, "Well, when the people hear such preaching they will come, for they can learn something." That was rather letting their preacher drop pretty hard. I was there two weeks and I have hopes of some obeying there some time. Old Bro. N. Stamm was with me a week and opened the meeting for me with prayer; he did well, as he prayed slow and we could all understand him.

I made my home with Bro. and Sr. P. Mowery. They and their two noble daughters, Maud and Winnifred, are the only Saints in that part and they are a credit to the church. I wish there were thousands more like them. May the Lord bless them for their kindness. Sr. John Sheeler and family, also good Saints (Well, old Bro. John is not a member, but then he is a unbaptized believer in the true gospel and makes one feel at home when there). They are isolated and could not get a house for me to preach in. They live near Monroe.

I intended to open a new place in the north part of Jasper county this week, but the roads froze up so that teams cannot travel till it thaws some; so I must lay over now till after our conference which meets here in Grinnell on the 9th. Then I will go to Jamaica, Dallas county, to preach the funeral sermon for Bro. William Goreham, and then I expect to continue there for two or three weeks if all is congenial. I have appointments out now that will keep me busy till the first of April. Then to Lamoni. I hope for good weather and good roads so people can come out to hear. Hoping to continue in the conflict, I remain,

OAKLAND, Cal., Jan. 24.
 Editor Ensign:—Another year has passed into history, and we naturally look back to see how well the time has been employed by myself. I left home in April for my field in northern California, and taking the Santa Fe route, we (Bro. David Anderson and I) first stopped at Los Angeles, reaching there on Friday. After services Sunday night the writer took train for San Francisco, leaving Bro. Anderson at Los Angeles. We had hoped to be associated together during the year, but wisdom seemed to lead otherwise. Our first work was a trip into Modoc county, where we enjoyed a two weeks sojourn among the Saints at Ft. Bidwell. Leaving there I joined the "Job" man in Big Valley, and together we labored for about two weeks. Bro. Chaburn here baptized four splendid Saints who will add to our strength there very materially if true to their covenant.

We then journeyed to San Francisco where we met Bro. Griffiths, and he placed me in Oakland to labor. I labored here for four months, and they were busy months too. My wife joined me on July 12th, and we rented rooms and went to keeping house. There are some splendid Saints in Oakland, and there is a vast field for labor open to a man if he wants to work. A man with zeal can accomplish much good in a city, but a lazy man can accomplish nothing to my mind. In about two or three weeks we expect to occupy our new church at 16th and Magnolia, and, best of all, it will all be paid for. We have gained nine new members by baptism, but have lost some of our best members by removal. Bro. John Cockerton's family have moved to Jewetta, and are missed by all.

 Early in November Bro. Arthur Phillips and I took a trip to Bieber, Lassen county, where we succeeded in getting the work established by the baptism of four of the best people there. Considerable sowing has been done in the past, but we happened to be the ones to reap. This is but the beginning there, we think, and if proper effort is put forth there next summer several others ought to be gathered in. Bro. Phillips is an agreeable young man to labor with, and a capable minister for Christ. Some think that we are the two biggest cranks on earth. While at Bieber I ordained Bro. Phillips to the eldership in harmony with instructions from Bro. Griffiths, the missionary in charge.

Leaving Bieber I took the stage for Ft. Bidwell where I put in about two weeks holding meetings and visiting friends to the cause. There are several splendid people at Ft. Bidwell who are really converted to the work but for various reasons hesitate about obeying. We have a good start towards an organization here, and I pray that God may speed the day when it may be accomplished. The people at Ft. Bidwell generously provided for any temporal wants, and Bro. Billups and wife provided me a home while there. May God abundantly bless them all for their many kindnesses. At Lookout and Bieber we were royally entertained by as generous hearted Saints as can be found.

While laboring in Oakland I took occasional trips to Santa Rosa, Windsor and vicinity. On one of these trips we preached Sunday morning and afternoon at a school-house about ten miles west of Windsor. At the close of the afternoon service Sr. Ann Archer was buried in the beautiful waters of Russian river to arise and walk in newness of life. We confirmed her at the water's edge. This sister's influence is sure to be felt wherever she may be as she is abundantly able to give a reason for her hope in Christ.

Our trip to Bieber and Ft. Bidwell included stage rides of about five hundred miles over the worst roads that I ever saw. When I got back to Oakland my health was miserable, but am now ready for the fray again.

Yours in bonds,
 FRED E. BLAIR.
 RIVER PHILIP CENTRE, N. S.,
 January 13.

Dear Ensign:—When the papers arrive on Tuesday's mail all the other papers are laid by until ZION'S ENSIGN has been read and looked over, to see if there is a letter or a sermon from some one we are acquainted with. We often speak of the number of elders that have been here with Elder H. J. Davison; namely, Elders Short, Sheely, Robley, Greene, Foss and Buehler. The last two summers Elder S. O. Foss has been here and all want to see him come again next summer, as he has made many friends, besides the few scattered Saints numbering about fifteen who gather at the church at Williamsdale East to worship, in this latter day work. There are many here who believe the work to be true and we think there is a good prospect to a gathering into the fold of Christ.

The work was preached here first by Elder H. J. Davison through the pioneering of Sr. Page of California, who was visiting her native place. She made arrangements for an elder to be cared for and the first sermon was preached by the above mentioned elder in the school-house in East Williamsdale, within eighty yards of the church that has been built and dedicated two years ago.

The writer visited Providence two years ago, and often thinks of the Saints who meet in their church on Bellevue avenue; also at the conference that was held at Boston, not forgetting the hospitality of Bro. and Sr. Newcombe of Arlington, and of hearing Elder W. H. Kelley preach twice, whom I forgot to mention as visiting Nova Scotia and of preaching the first sermon my wife and I ever heard by a Latter Day Saint elder; and think I will never forget the text which was, "Prove all things and hold fast that which is good." Well, we heard a great many things that we did not believe until we got home and turned up the old Bible, and our Bible was the same as the one he took his text in and the same quotations; then we began to investigate, while our friends and neighbors looked quite shy, but did not say much, as they were too much like ourselves. Had been with their closed Bibles and taking their instructions from the preacher who presided over the circuit. However, all these things have passed away, and the Saints are here to stay, and people can trust them in office or to the business of the town or county. We appreciate the privileges we enjoy by an overruling Providence.

The Saints are at present trying to raise funds to enable Elder H. J. Davison to attend General Conference; we feel that we justly owe him that privilege for his perseverance in the work here and in other parts of the Province in Scott's Bay, Delhaven, Lockhartville, South Rawdon, Waverly, Montague, River Philip Centre and Valley Road, besides giving him a chance to visit his aged mother.

Well, we as Saints are trying to hold fast that which is good. We have prayer and testimony meetings every Sunday at 11 o'clock; but I cannot attend every Sunday, as we are seven miles from the church, and the weeks seem long and tedious when the roads or the weather prevents meeting with the Saints to enjoy a meeting. We are praying for the organization of a branch. May God speed the time, and all come to a knowledge of the faith as it is in the Lord Jesus Christ, and we will ever pray for the enlarging of Zion's borders.

Yours in the one faith,
 JAMES RIPLEY.

ROSEBURG, Ore., Jan. 14.
 Editor Ensign:—I see in the last ENSIGN that Bro. Bean, of Kansas, would like to have a copy of Lucy Smith's history. So would I; I wrote to the Herald office for one, and could not get it; then to Bro. J. W. Wright, at Salt Lake City, Utah, if it could be had there, still without success. That is a book that I could get people to read who would not read the church history.

Now, if any of the brothers or sisters have a copy that they are willing to spare I will buy it of them. I could keep two or three copies busy all the time if I had them.

The two volumes of the Church History, "Autobiography of Joseph Smith" and "From Palmyra to Independence" I bought and donated to the Library of the Oregon Soldiers' Home. The Church History they placed up with patent office reports and agricultural reports, but the other books they read. I find if they are not interested in the church they care nothing for the history. I have correspondents in several of the states to whom I lend books, and after they read them send postage for their return; in that way could use Lucy Smith's history to good advantage.

Yours for the truth,
 A. GREEK.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 22.
 Dear Ensign:—While we are laying over today I will drop you a line. Since I was at your office in Independence there has been an awakening among the Saints in Nevada; we began holding research meetings at our homes for the study of the books, and as is always the case, we could not carry the meetings on without getting into the work deeper; the result so far is that we have rented a building for one year at ten dollars per month, and we are fitting it up for a chapel.

We organized a Sunday School yesterday; Bro. R. Walters was there; Bro. A. Goff was elected superintendent, and Sr. Kearny, assistant. And it was decided to try and have a protracted meeting just as soon as we can get the chapel in good shape for it. The Nevada branch headquarters will be there in the future, as there are ten families of Saints in town and several in the country around there.

Now, if we can get some first class elder to start the meetings (with what we believe and why we believe it) I think a great deal of good can be done for the work. We will at least have a place for the traveling ministry to preach when they come, and have a Sunday School for our children. Each one seems to take hold with a will, and God is evidently with us; we raised some money for Sunday School literature, and the school starts next Sunday at 10 a. m. We have about forty-five chairs and will buy about one hundred more, and there are some church seats there now. The ladies are putting down some carpet, and Bro. Jordan, Sen., is doing some carpenter work for us. I think that we will have a first class chapel in about two weeks.

Well, I will close. Please excuse railroad paper and pencil; in a caboose with a switch engine hammering you around is a poor place to write with a pen.
 Yours respectfully,
 R. B. TAYLOR.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 29.
 Dear Ensign:—I have thought many times that I would like to write, but seeing many letters more interesting than mine would be, I had given up the idea, and have simply let others do the writing. I am pleased to receive the cheering news from other fields, and it is interesting to see the work progress, and read the items.

We are indeed thankful for a fine chapel to worship in on the Sabbath day in Providence, and to think it is now clear from debt; also a little band of faithful Saints have a nice little place of worship, and are still trying to call their own. The Lord was with the Saints today by his Spirit, in blessing; the cheering testimonies, and prayers were edifying; and when our young brother, Joseph Fenner, made his first attempt at preaching, nearly all were moved to tears; he could not find a text, but simply referred back to the time of his baptism, when he and another promising young man, Bro. Fred Roberts, were led into the waters.

May the Lord bless the labors of those who have so faithfully held up the banner in that place, and those whom the Lord has sent, from time to time, to preach His word. I am glad I am one in this work who is trying to be faithful, though I see many ways to progress in. This work is grand and worthy of our best attention.
 Yours hopefully,
 ANNA ROBLEY.

SPRINGVIEW, Neb., Jan. 16.
 Editor Ensign:—I write with the hope that a few words about the work in this county may be of interest. We have a small band of Saints here which was built up through the labors of Elders W. A. Smith, D. M. Rudd, L. Gamet and W. W. Whiting.

Last August Elder Whiting went to Mills, in another part of the county, with the intention of holding meetings for a week or more. He secured permission to use the school-house, but after having preached twice the Free Baptists claimed the right to use the house by previous appointment, and they informed Bro. Whiting that if he desired to preach there, he must sandwich his services between their meetings or quit, and strongly intimated their desire that he would quit. Two of the Baptist ministers present took that view of the case, but Rev. Geo. Snodgrass, the third minister present, strongly disapproved of the course the others had taken, and told them he did not think it right to treat a stranger so.

Mr. Snodgrass acted as a christian gentleman during Bro. Whiting's stay, caring for him and team. Bro. Whiting did not continue the effort at that time, but returned in October with a large tent and a Bihlhorn telescopic organ. Bro. Asa and Sr. Nellie Gamet, of Clearwater, Dolpha Whiting, of Glidden, Iowa, and the writer accompanied him to assist with the music. Mr. Snodgrass kindly received us, and with his family attended our meetings, while most of his brethren were conspicuous by their absence. Many homes were opened to us, and some of the leading business men of the place said that no man who had ever come to Mills had made as many friends in so short a time, as Bro. Whiting. The attendance ranged from thirty-five to one hundred, and a more orderly, attentive congregation could not be desired. The Free Methodists and other denominations holding tent meetings at Mills, had been annoyed by having tent ropes loosened and other depredations committed, but nothing of ours was disturbed, though we all slept a mile or more from the tent.

Sr. Outhouse, with husband and family, was with us on Sunday. The remainder of our little band of Saints lived too far away to be present, but they co-operated in other ways both spiritually and temporally. A few weeks ago Bro. Whiting and I attended a meeting at which Mr. Snodgrass preached, and we enjoyed the novel experience of hearing, for the first time, a Baptist minister preach that he believed baptism was for the remission of sin, and that only the lack of faith in, and obedience to God's word, is all that prevents the enjoyment of the spiritual gifts today.

Bro. Whiting held meetings at Marlbank and other places in December, making many friends for the cause, and we believe the seed thus sown will, in time, produce much fruit.
 MARIAL E. MOORE.

ARDMORE, S. D., Feb. 2.
 Editor Ensign:—We have no regular preaching at this place, but have union Sunday School every Sunday. Bro. Walling was here just before Christmas and gave us two sermons on Sunday. We would have liked for him to have held meetings for a week but it was impossible for him to do so. He is a bright and able man. Most every one here expressed themselves as pleased with the preaching.
 We will be glad to see any of the ministers at any time, and will do all we can to help get the work before the people here.
 Ever praying for the welfare of Zion,
 I am
 VIOLA BARKDOLL.

BAY VIEW, Wash., Dec. 19.
 Dear Ensign:—You are a welcome visitor here, for through you I hear all the church news and what is going on in other parts of the world in regards to our traveling ministry, besides letters of encouragement, and when I find that there are others more isolated than we are, and are still firm and steadfast, I feel that I have great privileges, for we had the elders, Bro. Holt and Chase, with us for nearly a month, and, also, they held reunion here.
 It did my heart good to hear Bro. Griffiths again, for it must have been eighteen years ago I heard him preach at conference in or near Council Bluffs, Iowa. There was about fourteen years that I never heard a sermon or saw a preacher of our belief, so I enjoyed hearing and meeting with brethren and sisters once more.

I think so much of our elders who are going from place to place, meeting with kind reception here and at the next place insults and scorn, and out in all kinds of weather. I know God must protect them and help and give them patience and courage to keep on, for I know that there is much to try them. God bless and protect them, and keep them from harm is my prayer.

There is part of three families here who belong to the church, but on account of an evil spirit we cannot enjoy the work like we should. You brothers and sisters who are working in love and faith, pray for us that we may overcome this evil that has come to destroy our love for one another, for I know we cannot enjoy God's love unless we follow his commandments.

I have been sick for nearly five weeks, am some better at present. I ask the prayers of the Saints in my behalf that I may receive my health once more, and that I may be more faithful, overcoming the man-fearing spirit that gets possession of me when I have a chance to testify to this work for I know it is true.

God bless all the Saints, the elders, their families, that they may prove faithful to the end is the prayer of
 Your sister in Christ,
 Mrs. ERNE HILSINGER.

THE ISSUES FROM DEATH.

Funeral Sermon of Warren Edwin Case, Delivered in West Pasa, Illinois, January 23, 1900, by Elder J. D. Stead.

Warren E. Case died January 22, 1900, aged 41 years and 13 days, being born January 9, 1859. He was married to Miss Joanna M. Wilson, December 11, 1890, and leaves a host of relatives and friends to mourn his departure; it is to be hoped our loss is his gain.

To solve the problem of human life at this time will not be my purpose; it is too great a question for the finite mind to fathom; however, we will call your attention to a few thoughts from the revelations of the "Great I Am" to whom it is no mystery. The first text to which I call your attention is found in the 68th Psalm, 20th verse: "He that is our God is the God of salvation; and unto God the Lord belong the issues from death."

With this text I will associate the following scriptures: Col. 1: 16; Rev. 4: 11; 1 Tim. 2: 4-6; and 1 Cor. 6: 20. The first text calls our attention to the fact that the issues from death belong to "God the Lord;" this being true it could not be said that God is taking from us that which does not belong to him. He is not what some have supposed him to be—a robber—when he snatches from us those whom we love so well. The next two texts tell us we are his by right of creation; the last two tell us we are his by right of redemption. With these scriptures before us we can understand why he can say we belong to him. And yet, with this revelation of God's will in almost every house in our land, when we are called upon to give up our loved ones, we are loath to do it. This is due to several reasons; believing we are here on trial in this probationary state, we are fearful many times as to whether the one who is called from us has made the necessary preparation to meet death in peace; and again, we fear that we may have left undone something we might have done to aid them in this preparation.

I know but little of the life of Warren Case; I met him first only a few days before his death. I am told by those who knew him best that he was a kind husband and loving father. I have this much to say about him, he is in the hands of a just God, and all that I could or may say about him will not change his condition. My purpose today in what I say is to instruct and encourage you who are alive, to make such changes while you are here, that when it is the will of our heavenly Father to call you home you can meet him in peace.

The greatest reason we could give for some complaining when they are called upon to give up their friends, is their lack of understanding of what man is (Heb. 2: 6), and God's will toward him. As I said in the commencement of my remarks, the problem of "life and death" is a deep question and has never been solved by mortal man; at least I have never seen the solution of it given by man; and if God has told us in his revelations to us, it has not been understood by the masses of the people of the present time. To know man in the absolute sense, is to know him in all his relations to the universe and to God. Or, putting it in the language of the Apostle Paul, 1 Cor. 13: 9-12; to know as you are known, while now we only know in part. This is the difficulty, our knowing so little.

Since we have found we only know in part, we should cease complaining and be willing to be resigned to the will of our Creator, whether in life or in death. God is infinite in all of his attributes—power, wisdom, love, mercy, justice, truth, etc., and will always do the very best thing for us that can be done. This resolution brings with it the thought, What is the will of our heavenly Father concerning us in life and after death? If God's will has been revealed to man, where will we go to find it? In his word, the Bible, so much of it as has been recorded therein (Deut. 29: 29). It would not be expected of me to call your attention to all of God's will concerning us at this time. That would be out of the question; our time is too limited for that; but we will notice some of the things God is willing to do for us. John 3: 16 tells us of the great love he has for us. Romans 5: 6-12 tells us what the condition of the human family was when he gave his Son for them, and how he was treated by them when he came. While we were yet sinners and trampling his law under foot he sent him from the courts of glory (John 17: 5) to die for us.

Paul, in his letter to the Hebrews, 2d chapter, tells us how he came and why he came, especially in the 14th verse, to which I wish to invite your attention. The mission work of Jesus Christ is farther reaching than most of theologians have been willing to admit. From this verse we learn that that one who has power over death, who is called the devil, is to be destroyed. And John, in his first epistle, third chapter and last clause of the eighth verse, reveals to us something more this loving Father and Son are going to do for us in the Lord's own way and time. He is not limited in his resources as is man, and these things he says he wills to do for man, and will be testified of in due time. Timothy 2: 6.

From the last two texts to which we have called your attention we learn the devil and all of his works are to be destroyed. In the fifteenth chapter of Paul's letter to the Corinthians we have a few more lines of God's will recorded. You know the prophet Isaiah tells us in the 28th chapter, 13th verse, it would be given us in this way: Here a little and there a little, line upon line, etc. Here Paul tells us Christ has risen from the dead. We had already learned in our investigation that Christ came to die for us, had died for us, and now we learn he has been resurrected from the dead and become the first fruits of them that slept. As much as to say, I have gained the victory over death, hell and the grave; I have wrenched from the adversary, the devil, who had power over death, the keys of hell and death. (Rev. 1: 18). He is the one the prophet (Ezek. 32: 21) says would speak out of the midst of hell. "The strong among the mighty" (Zech. 9: 11, 12) says he would make this visit to the prisoners after he had sealed the covenant with his blood, and send the prisoners forth out of the pit wherein was no water; evidently the very place in which the rich man was confined when he wanted water administered to him that he might be comforted. (Luke 16: 24).

This must have been the place where David went as we learn from Acts 2: 26-31 he would be a prisoner of hope. Zechariah says for those hopeful prisoners, to turn to the "stronghold." Ezekiel calls him the "strong among the mighty," He to whom all power in earth and heaven was given (Matt. 28: 18). The gates of hell could not prevail against him; he had the keys to the whole situation, and no power could prevent him from doing the work he was sent to do.

David being a prophet, says Peter, foresaw all this, and stated that his flesh would rest in hope; he knew Christ would gain the victory, and make it possible for all others to come out, and he would be hopeful. Christ would not leave his (David's) soul in hell; and he would come out himself, and before his body would see corruption. The prophets foretold these truths (Isa. 24: 22; 40: 6; 49: 8, 9; 61: 1); they were coming realities; and after Christ's coming he stated he would visit the dead (John 5: 25-29). Paul and Peter testify that he did go to the prison and preached the gospel to the prisoners that they might be judged according to men in the flesh, and live according to God in the Spirit. Paul says he had captivities captive, and to do this he had to go where they were, to the lower parts of the earth (Eph. 4: 8-10). He descended before he ascended, Paul says, to the lower parts of the earth. Ezekiel 31: 16 says no other parts of the earth. Christ said the heart of the earth. Matt. 12: 40. Now, since Paul says he descended before he ascended, and Christ tells Mary he had not ascended to the Father at the time they met after the resurrection (John 20: 17), and he did ascend immediately afterward, or on his return from the lower parts of the earth, where he descended and gained the victory over hell, coming back and taking up his body before it saw corruption, he gained the victory over the grave, and proved his words true. He spoke to the Jews when they wanted a sign from him; he would go to the heart of the earth, or hell; there would be no power there that would prevent him from returning, no power on earth would prevent him from taking up his body, though they might guard the tomb with soldiers, if they chose to (Matt. 27: 63-65); he had power to lay down his life, and power to take it up again. (John 10: 17, 18). Peter refers to this power by which he went to the prison, bridged the gulf, and made the resurrection possible for all Adam's race. John 12: 23; 1 Tim. 2: 4; 1 Tim. 4: 10; 1 John 2: 2; 4: 4; 1 Tim. 1: 15.

From the foregoing texts we learn something of God's will toward man, and if Christ was lifted up he would draw all men unto him. Paul says he was lifted up, resurrected from the dead, hundreds of them saw him. 1 Corinthians 15 says, "If in this life only we have hope in Christ, we are of all men most miserable." As much as to say, if Christ could do nothing for man only what he does for him in this life, he would be left in a miserable condition. The other fellow who has power over death would gain the victory, and we would have no hope of a resurrection. No man could be resurrected, given an immortal body, without first coming out of hell. But since Christ has gained the victory (Heb. 2: 8), it will be testified of in due time, and there will be a resurrection of the unjust as well as the just; hell must give up the dead that is in it (Rev. 20: 13); Christ will reign till he puts every enemy under his feet; the last is death. And then the shout will go up, O death where is thy sting, O grave where is thy victory.

All are to rise from the dead, but every man in his own order; Christ was the first fruits of them that slept; you see from this there will be order in this coming from the grave. This is the order; those who are Christ's are to come with him (1 Cor. 15: 23; 1 Thess. 4: 13-18; Jude 14; Rev. 20: 4-6), and reign with him a thousand years before those who would not accept Christ will be permitted to come.

Now, we have said much about the resurrection, but what about our rewards we are promised for the good we do here. (Rev. 22: 12). Paul, in his reasoning on this, in the 15th chapter of 1 Corinthians, says there will be as much difference in that which will be awarded us for the good we do, as there is difference in the sun, moon and stars, and as one star differeth from another star in glory, so there will be that difference in the resurrection of the dead. We are all to have an immortal body, but as to the glory of the body, that depends on our works; and since our works are not alike, the glory we are to receive will not be the same. (Cor. 15: 40-49). What we sow that we will reap, God is not to be mocked, we need not deceive ourselves. (Gal. 6: 7, 8; Rev. 22: 11-17; 1 Cor. 3: 13-15).

My dear friends, God is willing, our spirits are (most of them) willing, but our bodies are weak. From this time forward let us perform the service he requires of us; give our bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is our reasonable service. How many of us could give our bodies in this way if they should be called for by him to whom the issues of death belong? We should be willing to do anything our heavenly Father asks of us. If our bodies are not ready now let us try and get them ready for him, and keep them ready when he may call for them; we know neither the day or the hour we may be called for. May God add his blessing, and by his Holy Spirit may he lead and guide you in the path of duty, is my prayer. Amen.

HE IS GUILTY OF ALL.

"For whosoever shall keep the whole law, and yet offend in one point, he is guilty of all."—James 2: 10.

"For whosoever shall, save in one point, keep the whole law, he is guilty of all."—Inspired Translation.

Inasmuch as this passage of Holy Writ is sometimes used to prove that we will not be rewarded according to our works, but that we will receive as much punishment as he that breaks every point of the law, we desire to show that such a rendering of the above passage of Scripture is wrong because it misrepresents God and also discourages mankind from trying to keep the law of God at all; hence all kinds of immorality and sin is filling the world instead of righteousness, because mankind is so weak that they see they are more or less offending against that law all the time. Then the thought comes to them thus, If I have to be punished for breaking one point of the law as much as he who breaks every point, what is the use of me struggling to keep any of it. Thus off goes the brakes and before they know it, they are running down the hill of destruction so fast that nothing can stop them till they had in the dark regions at the foot of the hill, ever waiting to receive all that will throw off all restraints of the law of God. And indeed we might well reason thus if the rendering of the text referred to was correct. But we now design to show that it is not correct and that such a rendering, if correct, would be unjust in God to his creatures.

Paul instructed Timothy to study to show himself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth (2 Tim. 2: 15); and with this thought in view we shall try to show that God has ordained that every man shall partake in some degree of the salvation which Christ purchased upon the cross for every man; for as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall ALL be made alive (see 1 Cor. 15: 22); whether they are good or bad (see John 5: 29; Dan. 12: 2 and Rev. 20: 13). This all being made alive in Christ unconditionally is what Jude calls the common salvation (see Jude 2d verse). Now after mankind has all been made alive through Christ, they are then to be judged and rewarded according to their works and deeds done in the body, as will be seen by reading Romans 2: 6; 2 Corinthians 5: 10, Revelation 22: 12 and Revelation 20: 12, 13.

We now desire to call your special attention to the special salvation that Christ has purchased upon the cross for all that will obey the perfect law of liberty (see James 1:25). This special salvation is what Paul calls the "high calling in Christ Jesus" (see Phil. 3:14). Now it is this perfect law of liberty which, James says, if a man offend in one point, he is guilty of all. Now let us see in what sense a man who offends in one point is guilty of all; I affirm that it is because every principle and commandment of God are all linked together and thus become one perfect law, as 'will be seen by reading Matthew 22:37 and 7:12, where we are commanded to love the Lord our God with all our heart, soul, mind and strength. It will be seen that all the minor and detail commandments of God are summed up in this first and great commandment, or in other words, all the minor commandments are points of the great and perfect commandment, to love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, soul, mind and strength. Now who cannot see that to keep this great commandment is to obey God in everything he has commanded us to do, or ever will command us to do? And having thus obeyed the perfect law, we will have been made perfect and fit to partake of the perfect glory of Christ, the Perfect One who gave the law, and receive the glory of the high calling in Christ Jesus spoken of by Paul.

Now then, seeing that all the commandments of God are linked together, thus forming one grand and perfect law, who cannot see that to offend in one point or break one minor commandment, is to break the whole law? To make this still plainer I will illustrate it thus: A ship is anchored in the harbor with a long chain and anchor. Now the strength of the whole chain is in its weakest link; let that link break and the ship is just as much at the mercy of the wind and waves of the sea as though every link of the chain was broken. Just so with the perfect law of God; he has declared that we must obey it perfectly and thus become perfect or we never can enter the kingdom of heaven; so if we offend in one point, or break one commandment, and continue, we cannot enter the kingdom of heaven any more than we could if we had broken every commandment.

But again; because the chain which held the ship to the anchor broke one of its links, is it therefore no more good? To be sure it is good. The ship owner will either have it mended again, or will use it for some other purpose; just so with the man or woman who offends in one point or breaks one of the links of the law of God. If they will allow God to mend them he will do it, but if they think the mending process to be too hard and shrink from under the hammer's beat, they will be unfit for "the high calling of God in Christ Jesus;" therefore, God will have to use us for some other purpose by rewarding us according to our works, not being fit for the high calling, which is to be made priests and kings unto God (see Rev. 1:6; also 20:6); we shall have to take a lower calling or glory. But to those who are struggling to keep the perfect law, yet find that we often offend not only in one point, but in many, I want to write a word of encouragement lest what I have written might cause you to think you never can gain that high calling; and that word is this: it is a well known fact that if a chain is broken and is properly mended, it will break in any other place again before it breaks in the place where it was mended. Now, with this thought in mind let us see how God will mend the chain which we have broken and thus place us in a position again to obtain the high calling. "My little children, these things write I unto you, that ye sin not. And if any man sin, we have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous" (see 1 John 2:1). By this we learn that God will mend the law (if we happen to break it) through Jesus Christ the righteous, and let us see upon what condition God will mend the law if we break it. "If we confess our sins, he [God] is faithful and just to forgive us our sins and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness" (see 1 John 1:9). Now we see that upon condition that we confess our sins, God is willing to mend the broken chain and make us clean through the blood of his Son Jesus Christ as will be seen by 1 John 1:7.

But we now come to a very important point when we come to the confession part of this mending process; for it is not always an easy thing to do for the reason that confession carries with it the principles of repentance and restoration. It would not be so hard if our sin only brought ourselves and God into the mending process, for then we would only have to confess to God; but it more often happens that we offend or break the law in doing wrong to our fellowman. In this case we cannot confess to God and have him acknowledge our confession and mend the broken link and make us clean until we have first confessed to, and made all things right with, our fellowman whom we have offended or wronged; for proof of this we will quote the words of Christ as found in Matthew 5:23, 24, as follows:

"Therefore, if thou bring thy gift to the altar, and there rememberest that thy brother hath aught against thee [notice, that thy brother hath aught against thee; not that thou hast aught against thy brother], leave there thy gift before the altar, and go thy way; first be reconciled to thy brother, and then come and offer thy gift." Ah, here is where the mending process becomes too hard sometimes upon our part; we refuse to bend beneath the hammer's beat, therefore cannot be mended; hence, cannot receive the high calling, because one link in the chain (the law) that reaches from earth to heaven is broken and cannot be mended. Thus we have to take a little lower calling according to the links we have broken, and thus receive rewards according to our works.

To make this mending point a little plainer we will relate an incident which happened to us a few years ago in Los Angeles, California. We were in a large shoe store making purchases when a young man who was with us called my attention to a little parcel lying upon a seat. It was too much of a temptation to me, as that was my weakness at that time, and had been from my childhood, to take things which did not belong to me, notwithstanding I had then been in the church about three or four years. So I looked around, and when no one was looking I took the parcel, and the young man and I walked out. We found the parcel to contain a very fine pair of ladies' shoes, so we agreed to sell them and divide the spoil; but we could not find any sale for them, notwithstanding we offered them for about half what they were worth. Well, I had them in my possession about two weeks, during which time I did not pray to God, nor did I live very spiritual; but God, in his tender mercy, began to feel after me again, desiring to mend the chain and connect me with the fountain of life again, that I might draw life and nourishment from Christ, the true vine, and not die, but live. So I began to pray and to draw nigh to God, but those shoes stood before my mental vision, or, in other words, they stood between me and God, and my gift (prayers) was not acceptable, till I went my way and became reconciled to him; whom I had wronged. My gift was plain, although it was hard to yield to the hammer's beat, for I thought, "O my, I am liable to be arrested, and then I will be despised by all my brethren, and disgrace the fair name of the church." All this, and a lot more, the devil reasoned with me, to keep the law of God from being mended, but Mr. Devil was very careful not to reason thus with me before I broke the law. But, thank God, he gave me grace and courage to say, Lord I will restore the shoes at all cost. So I went to the shoe store with the shoes under my arm, and, with a fluttering heart, I called for the proprietor, and being shown the way to his office, I handed him the shoes, told him when I took them, how I happened to take them, and told him I was trying to live as a christian, and asked his forgiveness. And, dear reader, I found that God was there with his holy altar to receive my gift and make me clean, for the man forgave me freely, and gave me fifty cents for being honest; I did not wish to take it, but he forced it upon me. So as I repented, confessed to, and restored to the man his shoes, I found God faithful and just to forgive me my sin, and restore me to my former standing in his sight. Thus the law was mended, and not one of those awful things happened to me or the church, that the devil tried to make me believe would happen. I also wish to say that I found the young man who was with me in the evil deed, and gave him half of the fifty cents received, as I had agreed to give him half of what I got out of them. (The thought now comes to me, if I had gotten the state's prison for a term of years, he would not have been so eager to get half of it as he was to get half of the fifty cents); and for this reliability he regarded me as a fool; nevertheless, I have ever since had the joy and peace of mind before God and honest men that I did the right thing. Now, as the weakest link in a chain is broken, and when properly mended becomes the strongest link, just so I feel that I am fortified against offending in the point of law referred to above better than in any other point.

Now, in conclusion, dear reader, you may not offend in taking what does not belong to you, but how are you standing before God in regard to saying hard words about your brother or sister, and starting a reproach against them, and many other things that you might think of as you examine yourself to see if ye are in the faith or not. Now, suppose we break the law by starting a reproach against any one, how can the law be mended in that case? Why, by going to the one or ones to whom we have told the reproach (or falsehood) and tell them we have sinned against the party of whom we told this story, and we wish to call back what we said, and then confess to, and ask forgiveness of the offended one; then God will accept of us, forgive us, and cleanse us from all unrighteousness. Let us remember that if we do not do this, that the broken point of the law will stand between us and God, and we never can become perfect in any other way; for, "Behold, the Lord's hand is not shortened, that it cannot save; neither his ear heavy that it cannot hear: But your iniquities have separated between you and your God, and your sins have hid his face from you, that he will not hear."—Isaiah 59:1, 2. We would suggest a careful reading of the whole chapter.

Now, dear reader, let us look at a picture: Here we see the world peopled, from one end to the other, with a people, each of whom loves all the rest of his fellows as himself; every one has this love in him; when we see this, we look in vain for the houses of correction, the asylums, the poor houses, the standing armies, and officers of peace. But instead we see grand and beautiful temples built to the most High, and Jesus Christ; God the eternal Father, and the armies of heaven, with the holy priesthood, administering blessings to mankind, according to their wants and needs. This would be the result if the perfect law was kept, or even mended when it became broken. This is what brings salvation, and is what God designs, and will bring about with all those who will submit to the mending process of the Almighty, but to no others. "For all have sinned and come short of the glory of God."—Romans 3:23. Much more could be written on this subject, but I trust I have opened a line of thought that will enable us all to press forward to perfection toward "the mark of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." SANTA ROSA, CAL.

WORDS FROM MANY STATES.

Editor Ensign:—I am strengthened very much by the letters we receive in the ENSIGN. It is a welcome visitor at our house. And this writing finds my wife and I still striving to live up to this great work in which we have engaged. We realize that the harvest is near and there is no time for delay, for soon the Lord will thrust in his sickle to harvest the earth. We would enjoy hearing some more good preaching now, as we have heard none since Bro. Waldsmith was here last November. All the preaching we have heard since is what teaching and scripture explanation we received in our Sunday School, but now the Sunday School has closed on account of some of the Saints living so far away that they could not attend during the cold, winter months; some were detained on account of sickness, while others seemed uninterested. There are not many of the Saints here at present, so many have found location elsewhere, and without an elder we are like sheep without a shepherd.

I am not sorry that I engaged in this good work, and my greatest desire is to do all I can for the cause, and to make my life a goodly example, worthy of imitation. A little over five years ago I obeyed this gospel message, and I have never had any desire to retrace my steps; but the longer I am engaged in this work, the greater my desire is to see it roll on. Pray for us that our Savior may yet send us a leader for this part of His vineyard.

Bro. Peak was with us in July and preached several times. He baptized my wife and my sister, Clara. How my heart rejoiced to see those two enter the fold; and there are others whom I have a great desire to see enter. Shortly after we attended the reunion at Shelton, Nebraska, and enjoyed a good meeting and heard fine preaching. While there my wife was taken sick, was administered to by Bro. Peak and Porter, and instantly the pains left her, and it was left for nature to strengthen her weakness. Our Lord is indeed a great physician, and we are so thankful that he does hear and answer prayer in these the latter days.

Pray for me brethren, as I pray for you all, that we may fight the fight of faith, and at last be crowned with the crown for which we have so long been fighting. May God add his richest blessings is my prayer for you all.

Your brother in the one faith,
JAMES J. TEBERT.

Dear Ensign Readers:—I have never yet noticed a letter from the Saints of this place in your columns, so I will try and visit with you a few moments this evening. We, like a great many others, are isolated from the church.

O yes! there are churches here, many of them, but of what good to one who has a knowledge of the truth. It affords a place to go and spend a few moments. But when they find you are a Latter Day Saint (Mormon?) they do not want you in their circle. You might hurt them in society if they associate with you, but I would rather be despised by the whole world than to give up the name and work in which I have enlisted. And my prayer is that we, as young people in this grand and glorious cause, may ever fight for our name and cause and may we ever be true to the colors which shine forth from the royal banner of King Emanuel. For the promise is if we are faithful and faint not we shall wear a crown of life. And may this work so grow from the rock bound coast of Maine to the sunlit shores of the Golden Gate; from the far north to the sunny south, and may foreign lands take up the sound and send the message around the globe on which we dwell—the truth as was taught eighteen hundred years ago; the truth that never changes, but is the same yesterday, today and forever.

A few weeks ago I received a number of Baptist papers, namely, The Sunlight, Our Young People and Pure Words. Around the outside next the cover was a dime novel and a piece entitled "Trunnel Bed Trash" carefully marked around; this excited my curiosity; thought I would sketch them over and to my surprise found it one of those ridiculous novel love stories not for one who professes christianity to read; still it was marked with a big "good," and away down in the middle of the roll I found two Zion's Hopes. I said to our folks, those look like our church papers, for we have some by the same name and they are much cleaner than the others, which were much soiled. When I send church literature I send it clean and the best I have. I looked and found they were printed at Lamon by the Latter Day Saints. I think perhaps they have done some one some good if the "Trunnel Bed Trash" did not do much for my conversion.

Dear Ensign:—Your columns are filled with good reading each week. Through them we hear from the Saints of the different parts of the Union, but seldom from the eastern Michigan district. However, we are not all asleep. I know that most of the Saints in this vicinity are rejoicing in the gospel, "the beautiful gospel." How thankful I am to live in this dispensation when the gospel in its fullness is again preached among men, and that I was privileged to hear and obey the same in my early days.

I am now engaged in teaching school and find, since away from home especially, so many things trying to draw my mind from the things of God. It does not take much attraction to draw our minds that way as we are inclined to do so. This is truly a warfare; fightings without and fears within, but we have One to whom we can go at such times. He has promised never to leave us. May we do our duties regardless of the consequences. My aim in life is to live in such a way always that I can put my trust in Him, come what may.

We had a very pleasant time during the holidays at home. A number of young Saints, also Elder Barr, spent Christmas with us and I shall never forget the peaceful time we enjoyed together. On Sunday we all attended meeting at White Rock, which is nine miles from our place; had a very good meeting. On Christmas night we had a meeting at our house, a grand sermon by Elder Barr, after which we had a social meeting, a goodly portion of the Holy Spirit being present the entire evening.

On December 27th we attended the pretty little wedding of Sr. Agnes Brown and Mr. Cook, both of Shabbona. The marriage ceremony took place at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, Elder Wm. Davis tying the knot. After congratulations a delicious supper was served. About seventy-five guests were present. Apparently everybody enjoyed themselves; as for me I had a very pleasant time. Quite a number of Saints were there, so some of the time was spent in singing the grand songs of Zion with a good spirit. It being prayer meeting evening in that branch we attended and bid the happy couple farewell.

Sincerely desiring the prayers of the Saints that I might not yield to temptations, but do my duty and make the progression I ought, I am,

Your sister in gospel bonds,

Editor Ensign:—The ENSIGN is a welcome guest and comforter to our home; it does me so much good to read the letters, and when I pick up the Herald and ENSIGN and read how the Lord is blessing the children of men today it fills me with joy to know that the Lord has a people today that he can use to make his power manifest; and when I read of the manifestation of his Holy Spirit it puts a greater desire in my heart to serve him.

The Lord is doing much for his people in this part of his vineyard; we have some grand privileges of serving the Lord. Our Sunday School is doing well, and we meet for prayer Sunday at 2 o'clock p. m. and Wednesday at 7 p. m.; Sisters' Prayer Union at 2 p. m., and the young Saints have prayer meeting every Friday at 7 p. m. They are progressing well, and the Lord is blessing them greatly. It does me good to see the young take such interest in the Lord's work.

I admire and appreciate the thought or prayer of Bro. S. W. Simmons in the Herald. Yes, Lord, call in all of the growlers, faultfinders, etc. I think that was wisely offered. If we take this and watch ourselves, there will be no such for the Lord to cast out. Bro. Simmons is a member of this branch, and is a faithful, patient servant of the Lord; on account of mission work he is not permitted to meet with us often, but when he does come he always brings the Lord's Spirit with him.

On the 20th inst. my dear mother-in-law took her departure from this world to the haven of rest; she sweetly passed away without pain or struggle, she died in the hands of the Lord; but we lost a noble follower of Christ. We have the comforting Spirit of the Lord with us in our grief; we did all we could, but it was the will of our heavenly Father to call her away; she had completed her work on this earth for awhile. It seems hard to part with one so dear, but we should not murmur or complain. She leaves many to mourn her departure.

We have only been here eighteen months; we lived in Texas, and where there was no branch or Saints, and we all wanted to become members of a branch. We believe that by the Spirit of the Lord we were directed to this branch and thus far Zionward.

To all the Saints, Greeting:—I have long felt like I wish to address you through the columns of our dear paper, the ENSIGN, for I know that many of you have read of my search for truth, and have followed my research through "Notes and Comments," and many have written me, to whom I have been unable to reply, and who, I know, will rejoice to know that at last my search is over, and I am in the fold of the True Shepherd. By the kindness of the editor I would like to recount some of my late experiences and conflicts, and hope what I write may help some other struggling soul to break loose from bondage, and come out of the shadows of Babylon into the clear light of truth. Long and sharp was the struggle. After I saw the truth could I bear to have dear friends turn from me with scorn? Could I endure the sneers and derisions I was certain to meet, should I accept the truth, and own it to the world? But it came to this point: Which do you love best, the friendship of the world, or the love and favor of Him who gave His Only Begotten to die for you, and the approving smiles of Him who died? I put them in the balance, the love of God and His Son in one side, and the deceitful, changing friendships and favors of this fleeting earth-life in the other, and, thank God, the former so outweighed the latter, as to throw them clear off, out of my sight, and I care no more for what "they say" than for the buzzing of a fly outside my window pane. Like the fly, it cannot reach me. I am so wrapped around and shielded by God's love, that the stings of scorn and the darts of calumny cannot touch me.

When I decided that I would obey the gospel there was no elder near. And once I received a letter from Bro. J. L. Goodrich, and before I opened it, it was firmly impressed on my mind that somehow in the future, the writer was to have a wonderful influence over my life. I opened it with a tremulous curiosity, and found just a short note of inquiry as to the possibility and advisability of his trying to hold meetings there. That led to the correspondence between us, of which he published the greater part in his "Notes and Diversions." And I always felt that he would be the one to baptize me; so when the time came that I could say I was ready for baptism, I wrote to him, asking him when he could come to our place.

Meanwhile I had given a young man some of the church literature to read, and had many talks with him, and felt an anxious desire that he might see the truth, knowing he would make a fine, true Saint. I was almost surprised at the readiness with which he accepted the truth. He was a Baptist, but he soon saw the beauty and consistency of the gospel as restored in these latter days, restored to its first simplicity, stripped of the commandments and traditions of men, which had only served to hide its truths from the eyes of the world. And while I was praying that he might see, lo! his sister began to see, and instead of one to believe with me there were two. And they were baptized before I was.

Through what then seemed adverse circumstances, but now seems to have been the working out of God's plan for me, we decided to come to the city of Richmond and try our fortunes here. So, as I was expecting Bro. Goodrich to come to Clayville to hold meetings and attend to my baptism, I notified him of my change of residence, and when he came here he made his home with us; but before he held meetings here, he went on to Clayville and baptized the two of whom I spoke, Willie and Ocean Topham. Then he came back and held several services, but with small attendance.

When I first came here I attended a church calling itself the Apostolic church, claiming to be like the original church in faith and practice. It is a "split-off" from the Baptist church; the Rev. John W. Dougherty is its pastor, and he calls the other churches Babylon, and speaks of their having come out of Babylon. Well, he organized this church according to his own ideas and interpretations of the Scriptures; at least, I have never heard that he was shown how to organize, or that he claims any authority from God, and I believe they were led out of Babylon, indeed, after their search for truth, but how much better are they off, "out of Babylon" and still wandering in the wilderness?

I heard him preach and was much impressed with his apparent desire to give up all for the truth's sake, and hoped he might be led to allow Bro. Goodrich the church to preach in, but no! he could not feel to "cede to my wishes." But one of his members, who, thirty years before, had seen and read the Book of Mormon, and the life of Joseph Smith, and who always had retained a faith in the truth of his

A REMARKABLE GIFT.

$40,000 GIVEN AWAY: THE BAINSTON PHYSICIAN AND SCIENTIST FRANKLIN MILES, M. D., LL. B., GIVES TWO DOLLARS AND A HALF WORTH OF HIS MARVELOUS NEW TREATMENT FREE.

Such remarkable generosity has seldom, if ever, been equaled by a physician. It will enable many thousands of people suffering from lingering diseases of the nerves, brain, heart, liver or stomach to obtain medicine free of charge and to test the marvelous curative properties of Dr. Miles' latest Personal Treatment.

Few physicians will permit every one of their patients to test their skill and their treatment free of charge, because few have such unlimited confidence in their remedies born of wonderful success. What can be fairer and more liberal?

Many hundreds of references from Bishops, Ministers, Business Men, and their friends, from all over the world, Dr. Miles' new Personal Treatment has cured many hundreds of cases pronounced "incurable." It is a most remarkable improvement on the usual treatment and is eminently scientific. The eminent divine and editor, Rev. Wm. H. Bell of Dayton, Ohio, writes editorially in the Sunday School Union: "We desire to state that from personal acquaintance, we know Dr. Miles to be a most skillful specialist, a man who has spared neither labor nor money to keep himself abreast of the great advancement in medical science. He is withal a thorough and conscientious gentleman, and his offices are constantly thronged with people who come from all parts of the country to avail themselves of his very great skill."

Mr. Julius Keister, of 350 Michigan Ave., Chicago, testifies that he was cured him after ten able physicians had failed. Mr. F. Held, 79 Curtis St., Grand Rapids, cured after failure of eleven physicians. Mrs. Lizzie Renfrew, Wedington, Ark.; Mrs. W. A. Warren, of Jameston, N. Y., were entirely cured.

Do not fail to write to The Dr. Miles Medical Association, 241 to 249 State St., Chicago, for examination blank, and $2.50 worth of Treatment Free just suited to your case.

claims of being a prophet of God, did all he could to assist in finding a preaching place. Finally a hall was secured of one who did not care who preached, only so he got his pay for the hall. So you see God can overrule even a man's covetousness for the good of this cause.

While I had hoped some might be led to obey the gospel with me, yet I could wait no longer, and was baptized the 17th of December, and confirmed the same evening under the hands of Bro. Goodrich and Dr. P. P. Starke. Up to that time they were the only Saints I had ever met, but since then we attended a little conference out at New Hope, Augusta county, and were the guests of Bro. and Sr. Coffman, and met a few other Saints. A few services were held, and a business meeting, and Dr. P. P. Starke of this city, and Bro. Goodrich appointed delegates to the General Conference.

I wish I could tell you of the visit, but it would make my already long letter, too long. Suffice it to say from the minute of my arrival, till the last minute of my stay, I could say "it is good for me to be here" in ways physical, intellectual and spiritual. The conversation was edifying and uplifting, the atmosphere of the home was indeed Saintry.

I cannot tell of any wonderful experience that came to me during my baptism and confirmation, nor since, and while it would have rejoiced my heart greatly to have had some greater manifestation of God's love and approval, yet I can see His hand so plainly in the past that I cannot doubt, even if no more is given. But He knows best what I need, and should I need ought to strengthen me for my duties, I feel it will surely be given. I feel like a wandering child that has gotten home, but brothers and sisters are scattered, and even the Father is in a higher room, yet it is home, if only the door stone is reached. I shall list for the Father's voice is saying "Come up higher."

I have a few reading or tracts, and so far they say every thing is truth that they teach. I have met no open persecution I am glad to say, though I know tongues are busy about me.

I often think how like a little child I have been lead. A thorny, rock-strewn path, but the Father's hand removes each thorn and sharp flint just as I step forward. The lions I feared are all chained, so far, and will be, I am assured.

My dear children, or, at least, all that were here at the time, went with me to witness my baptism, and some witnessed my confirmation, whereas a few months before they would not have done so. I am so thankful their prejudice was removed that much, and enough so they said nothing against my taking an elder in, whom the world calls "Mormon." Bro. Goodrich's genial manners and transparent truthfulness soon won the way into their esteem, and into the affections of a part, at least, of the household. Bro. Willie Topham is with us tonight spending his New Year, and is firm as a rock in his faith.

And now I must close my long chat with you all, and pray that each of us, by a godly life and perfect submission to God's will, may find the coming year indeed a happy New Year.

Ever longing for the upbuilding of Christ's kingdom,
I am joyfully,

The Combination Oil Cure for Cancer
Has the endorsement of the highest medical authority in the world. It would seem strange indeed if persons afflicted with cancers and tumors after knowing the facts, would resort to the dreaded knife and burning plaster, which have heretofore been attended with such fatal results. The fact that in the last six years over one hundred doctors have put themselves under this mild treatment shows their confidence in the new method of treating those horrible diseases. Persons afflicted will do well to send for free book giving particulars and prices of Oil. Address DR. BYE, Drawer N, Kansas City, Mo.

JOTS BY THE WAYSIDE.

BY T. W. CHATBURN.

We are hastily arranging for our departure for the East and the Zion land. The Santa Ana Saints, very unexpectedly to us, filled Bro. Pankey's spacious rooms on our last night with them. We appreciated the surprise, as it seemed to be one of those heartfelf actions, evinced upon every face, and expressed the fact that Sr. Pankey does nothing by halves.

The San Bernardino Saints also filled the elegant rooms of good old Sr. Burgen's residence, under the auspices of the Religio, to express to us their good will in no uncertain way, and as we leave them our heart is filled with gratitude to God and His band of noble Saints of Southern California, for their kindness to us. Bro. Griffiths, in re-organizing his workers and sending me here, made the assuring remark, "You will be blessed and do a good work there," which has truly been fulfilled.

We arrived here on the seventh day of July last, and will leave by the seventh of February, making seven months' labor here. I have opened up several new places, preached one hundred and ten sermons, baptized thirty-seven, and worked along all the lines that go to encourage both Saint and sinner in the work we have in hand. We can truly say we have learned to love the Saints of this mission and we are indeed loth to leave them; "We love thy rocks and rills, thy woods and templed hills," of this beautiful country, the land of sunshine and flowers. There is, indeed, a fascination about these mountains; one never wearies of viewing their snow-capped summits, and the ever-green canons bedecked with beautiful flowers; we have Italy and Switzerland both together; the pearly faced ocean, hazy islands, and Eden's gardens all within the vision of the eye. It's doubtful if the world affords another such a complete and magnificent panorama. Words and figures convey but a faint idea what nature and art have done for this fairy-land; at night the thousands of electric lights of Los Angeles; Santa Ana, Riverside and Redlands sparkle like diamonds and vie with the starry firmament in splendor.

We are, at the present, domiciled with Bro. and Sr. Earl, of Los Angeles, will remain here a few days and then on to Oakland and east to Iowa, to visit our aged and much afflicted mother, whose life is despaired of. We preached yesterday morning and evening to interested audiences in the new and beautiful Saints' chapel in this city. Bro. Williams is working very hard to bring our work before the people here, and his labors are being rewarded with success.

It will be remembered that during his defence in Washington, D. C., B. H. Roberts made the statement that the present administration had appointed polygamists to government positions in the state of Utah and that they could not consistently deny him admission to Congress for having more wives than the law allows one man to possess at the same time. The following from the Salt Lake Tribune of February 1st will prove interesting reading:

VOLUNTARILY WALK PLANK. TRIBUNE BUREAU, } 501 Fourteenth St., }

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 31, 1900. Representative Landis received word today that Dr. Tanner, president of Agricultural College at Logan, Utah, had placed his resignation in the hands of the Governor. Logan College receives aid at the hands of Congress to the extent of $40,000 per annum.

In his recent speech Mr. Landis called attention to this institution by saying that President Tanher has three wives and living with them, that one of the leading professors of the college has four wives and that the chief financial officer has seven wives and thirty-nine children.

Mr. Landis has not yet received word that the two latter have resigned, but inasmuch as the college is a supplicant for $40,000 a year, these polygamist teachers will probably feel called upon to walk the plank voluntarily.

Mr. Landis' mail continues to pile up applications for copies of his speech. These applications come in at the rate of 100 a day.

It will be recalled that some weeks ago The Tribune asserted that the appropriation for the college might be cut off. The resignation of President Tanner may save the appropriation.

Gov. Wells said last night that he had not received the resignation of Prof. Tanner, and had not been advised that it was en route to him.

Information Regarding General Conference, Board, Etc.

The rate of board has been fixed by the Lamoni branch at $2.50 per week. The committee will have some places where free entertainment can be had, but no one should count on free entertainment and board unless they have made arrangements with the committee before arriving in Lamoni. We will try to aid any who cannot pay by helping them to secure such places, but arrangements must be made with the committee before coming.

All persons desiring the services of the committee should write the secretary or president in due time, stating what you desire, when you expect to arrive, etc. If you have preferences, we will try to give them due consideration.

Persons who accept invitations from friends and make their own arrangements, need not communicate with us, but when you arrive we will assist such to find their places, if desired.

When you decide to come, if you desire us to assist you in any way, write us early, so that as many as possible may be assigned to places before the sessions begin.

Those Primary Cards Again.

Everybody please take notice. The business manager of the Herald office informs me that there are many letters of inquiry and some sharp criticisms upon him for not filling all the orders for cards that have been received. In fact, they are so numerous that it would be well nigh impossible for him to write and explain it to all. We wish to make here an explanation that will remove all blame from the Herald office management, for no fault is theirs. They have done exactly as they were instructed.

1. The card illustrations were put out as an experiment, and it was not expected that we would reach every one that might choose to try them.

2. We took the mailing lists of the primary quarterlies and sent out about double the number of cards as Quarterlies. Some others were sent upon request, but the supply being limited, we could not supply all. Many seemed to think that all that was necessary was to send in a very large order and "be sure to have enough." Some ordered who did not take the primary Quarterly and wanted a copy or two of the Quarterly "threwed in." We would gladly have complied with their requests had it been possible; but, as stated above, the cards were issued as an experiment, and to try the experiment sufficiently extensive to make it of any value we decided that it would be necessary to send them out free. They are very expensive; we, therefore, concluded to have but a part of the lessons of the quarter illustrated. And if you have a few sets of the lessons illustrated you have enough to give the system of illustrating the lessons a practical test. Give it a careful test, and when General Convention comes, be ready to express your views as to whether or not the system of illustration is a practical one, and, too, whether or not you can afford to pay for them as they cannot again be sent out free. There is no better way to test any method than by actual experience with it. This year soon will have had. Let us study carefully and see if it is wise to continue the illustrated cards for the primary grades.

We hope that this explanation of the matter may remove all thought of complaint that may have pervaded the minds of any. And, too, that all who have written to the Herald office for explanation will consider this as an answer to their inquiries.

Ever hopeful for the success of the work, we are

Your brother and co-laborer, T. A. HOTGAS, Gen. Supt. HENDERSON, Ia., February 5.

NOTICES.

The 4th quorum of priests are hereby requested to send in their report not later than March 15th, to include labors done in two years if possible. Also remember the president of our quorum has been dead to the quorum, and all attempts to locate him have been fruitless; not even a notice in church papers could find him; we need a live, spiritual man at our head to counsel us on lines of duty. Don't forget quorum fees 25c.

SUBMISSION.

One of the most trying tests to which those who profess to be followers of Jesus the Christ can be subject, is that of an entire submission to the will of their heavenly Father by which they can truly and sincerely feel that He knows best, and say unreservedly, "Thy will be done." It is no trial, and requires no effort on the part of the individual to do all this, when it so happens that the Lord's will and his own desires and disposition are in accord; it is easy to be submissive and acquiescent under those conditions. But when, for some reason not apparent to the understanding of the human mind, the plans marked out for an individual seem to him tortuous in detail and unnecessary in execution; when his burdens seem so much heavier than his neighbors—perhaps a less godly man too—it is a different matter; and under those conditions it is a test of his faith to cheerfully and meekly accept the situation and do the best he can under the circumstances, and to act in harmony with the designs of the Lord in the work appointed him to do.

It is sometimes a hard matter to exercise patience and continued faith in the goodness and wisdom of our heavenly Father, and languish upon a bed of affliction for weeks, months and years. When He, by the mere interposition of his power could, in an instant, dispel it all and restore the health at once. It is a test of one's faith in the promises of the Savior given in Mark 16: 18, wherein he declared that his servants should "lay hands on the sick and they should recover" when repeated administrations of the elders bring only temporary relief, and sometimes not even that is vouchsafed the suffering one when the ordinance of the Lord's house is performed, and no healing is manifest until death relieves the sufferer; and yet such an experience is no evidence that God does not answer prayer, and that he does not heal the sick through this very ordinance of His house; for the testimonies are innumerable that He does so, and some of the cases are astonishing and wonderful to those who know not the power of God. Neither is a denial of the healing power in the case of some, an evidence that God is partial; but on the contrary, that because he desires the salvation of all, and for some it is necessary for their perfecting that they endure suffering; he sends to each one, or permits each one to undergo, the experience which will best subserve the purpose of their spiritual development and eternal salvation.

Notwithstanding the power possessed by the Apostle Paul by which miraculous cures were accomplished through him, he had to suffer all his life with an affliction from which he besought the Lord thrice to relieve him, but the only answer he received to his petitions was "My grace is sufficient for thee;" and though he had to endure many bodily afflictions and hardships, his faith in the goodness and justice of God was never weakened by those experiences; he rather gloried in them, because they brought the blessings of God by which his spirit was cheered, comforted and developed; blessings denied in one way were enlarged in another; and so it will be to every one; if not experienced in this life it will be when the other existence is reached; abundant reward will be meted out for every trial endured faithfully, and for every good work wrought; and surely to endure illness, pain and suffering patiently, when it is manifestly not the will of the Lord to relieve, is a meritorious work which will receive due recognition and kindly reward in the end.

The Pharisees were filled with anger when Jesus refused to heal all their sick, but he called their attention to the fact that God had so wrought before him.

And he said unto them, Ye will surely say unto me this proverb, Physician heal thyself: whatsoever we have heard done in Capernaum, do also here in thy country. And he said, Verily I say unto you, No prophet is accepted in his own country. But I tell you of a truth, many widows were in Israel in the days of Elias, when the heaven was shut up three years and six months, when great famine was throughout all the land; but unto one of them was Elias sent, save unto Sarepta, a city of Sidon [a city of Syria], unto a woman that was a widow. And many lepers were in Israel in the time of Elishus the prophet; and none of them was cleansed, saving Naaman the Syrian. And all they in the synagogue, when they heard these things, were filled with wrath, and rose up, and thrust him out of the city, and led him unto the brow of the hill whereon their city was built, that they might cast him down headlong. But he passing through the midst of them went his way.—Luke 4: 23-30.

Notwithstanding that Israel had been designated as God's chosen people, in whom, so long as they were faithful to their covenant with Him, the authority to administer for God in spiritual things among men rested; and while there were, as the Savior said, many widows and many lepers among them in the days when miracles were wrought upon the two Syrians, not an Israelite was so favored, and the people whom they despised were made the objects of this clemency. Thus it is demonstrated that while the Lord withholds at times, these blessings, as His wisdom directs; and while the Savior impressed those Jews with the lesson that it was not sufficient to simply be called the chosen people, he mercifully manifested his power in the healing of many (not all) of their sick—perhaps all who had faith in him sufficient to cause them to come to Him, and established as one of the ordinances of His church the "laying on of hands," that the sick might be healed, who were not appointed unto death, or who, for a wise purpose in the Father, were not to thus be relieved. Paul wrote on one occasion (2 Timothy 4: 20), that he had left one of the brethren (Trophimus) at Miletum sick, and there were, doubtless, many others then, as now, who were not promptly healed because it was not the will of God that they should be, of whom we have no record, but these are mentioned because of their prominence in the work.

To be patient and submissive under these circumstances and to cheerfully and sincerely say to the Father, "Thy will, not mine, be done," requires a high degree of self-control, and faith in the wisdom and love of our heavenly Father; to feel the assurance that He will not permit His children to be burdened beyond their strength, nor in vain, is a test of the love we have for Him, and the confidence felt in his watchcare and love, that will reap an exceeding great reward, when this probation is ended. But "who is sufficient for these things?" Surely it is not found in human strength, but in the grace and power of God, who will sustain those who trust in Him, and manifest their faith in His promises by rendering obedience to His gospel. All the promises of blessing to the human family are to the obedient. Search the Scriptures through, and in every instance blessings are only promised upon compliance with the will of the Lord as revealed from time to time. This fact should be an encouragement to everyone who seeks to attain the highest glory, the celestial kingdom, to strive to bring themselves into that complete submission to what the Father considers best for them, that they can, with patient cheerfulness, accept whatever conditions such compliance imposes in the execution of the plans designed by the Father for their exaltation.

Blessed is the man that endureth [resisteth—1. T.] temptation: for when he is tried, he shall receive the crown of life, which the Lord hath promised to them that love Him.—James 1: 12.

CHICAGO, Ill., Feb. 13, 1900.
MANAGER ZION'S ENSIGN PUBLISHING HOUSE, Independence, Mo.

Dear Brother:—At the district conference held at Plano, Illinois, February 10, 1900, by the Northeastern Illinois district, the following resolution was adopted:

WHEREAS, In the opinion of this conference, the insertion in the church publications of proprietary medicine and physician specialist advertisements is opposed to the spirit and genius of our work and the exercise of faith in the ordinance of the house of God; therefore be it

Resolved, That we disapprove the publishing of such advertisements in church publications; further be it

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the Board of Publication and the managers of the Herald and Ensign Publishing Houses for their consideration.

As secretary of this district I send this to you.

Yours in gospel bonds,

ELMER E. JOHNSON.
1672 N. Marshall Ave.

Of the above we have this to say: It is a reasonable proposition that those who are entrusted with the conduct of the publishing departments of the church are in a better position to understand the necessities of that particular work, than those engaged in other departments; and it is at least fair to suppose that, being conscientious in the service they are seeking to give the Master and his work in this department, they are as anxious as are others, that it shall be conducted in a manner as consistent with the spirit of their calling as circumstances will permit; and it is also fair to presume they are doing that work in the very best way they can with the difficulties with which they have to contend.

So far as the ENSIGN is concerned, the present management would be only too well pleased to be able to refuse all advertisements except such notices as those of the faith should desire inserted for the information of the Saints; and when the brethren of the Northeastern Illinois district and others shall unite their efforts to put the subscription list of the ENSIGN up to 10,000 paying subscribers we guarantee to decline, if in this service at that time, all advertisements; but as we are at present situated, advertisements are a necessity. During the past year if we had been confined to subscriptions alone there would have been a deficit to make up by some one; but with the advertisements and job work received, there has been a fair profit.

But, it may be urged, it is not so much the advertisements per se to which objections are made, as it is the class of advertisements. "Proprietary medicine and physician specialist," is the language employed in the resolution. We answer that the use of proper remedies by the Saints has never been made a subject of adverse legislation by our heavenly Father or his church. There are some good, faithful, loyal Saints who are imbued with the idea that it is not necessary to call in the elders for many of the lesser ills that often come to families, and that they are justified in using home remedies and doing all they can themselves to correct the disorders, as the elders have so many demands upon their time and strength; and when any remedy, proprietary or otherwise, is known to be beneficial in certain ailments, it would, to say the least, not be a lack of wisdom to employ them occasionally.

Again, there are thousands of readers of the ENSIGN not on its subscription list, who are not members of the church, and, hence, not likely to call for the elders in their light afflictions; these are benefited by the presentation of reliable remedies such as we publish, as in these advertisements, if we are unacquainted with the manufacturers, or their reputation, we try to investigate the merits, so far as we can, of the remedy offered, so that no imposition may be practiced upon our readers. "All have not faith to be healed," we are assured, and must be nourished by mild herbs, etc., and we presume the efficacy of decoctions from roots and barks will not be questioned in this respect, and we can see but little difference whether it is made by a "proprietor" or at home, except that the former is nearly always better because of utensils and conveniences for extracting and compounding being accessible in its manufacture.

We do not wish to be understood as objecting to the resolutions of these brethren. We are confident their motives were beyond question, and only intended for good, and they have the perfect right to express their convictions in the manner they have done; but we present the other side of the matter, and our readers may judge. We might add that these advertisers are good, prompt payers for the space used, and at best the propriety of the insertion of these advertisements is merely a matter of opinion.

As illustrating another phase of the subject of "running" the paper, one subscriber, in renewing for the ENSIGN, recently, expressed the hope that the next conference would arrange the Herald, ENSIGN, Autumn Leaves and Zion's Hope so that they could be furnished as other papers are. He stated that some 10 page papers are furnished for 25 cents per year, and where one takes five he gets them all for a dollar, etc. Evidently this is the basis on which it is hoped the conference will legislate. He simply overlooks the fact that in the class of papers to which he refers the matter has all been used in the large dailies before it is put in the issues to which he refers, and it is a small task to put the matter in the forms for a weekly, or semi-weekly, and run it over again; there is no cost for the editing, or setting of the type. Then again, they have 25,000, 50,000 or 100,000 subscribers, and their advertisements more than doubly pay for the cost of getting out the paper. If our brother will wait until that many paying subscribers are secured for the church periodicals, he will have his desire for cheaper subscription prices gratified.

I speak as to wise men; judge ye what I say.—1 Cor. 10: 15.

ELDER I. N. ROBERTS, Perham, Minnesota, began a series of meetings eleven miles from Perham, on the 11th. Has good interest and anticipates "troubling the waters" ere long. House is full every night.

ELDER J. M. TERRY, Chicago, Illinois, February 12:

Our quarterly conference at Plano, Illinois, last week, passed off under a good spirit in general, and we hope and believe to the ultimate advancement of the work in this district. A very strong sentiment was manifested in favor of a higher moral and spiritual attainment for the Saints, and a necessity of a pruning and cleansing process, to all of which we heartily accord. Brn. Keck, Wildermuth, Southwick, Cooper, Moler, J. W. Adams, president of the Kewanee district, and the writer of the general missionary force, together with the president of the mission, Bro. J. E. Lake, were present; also Bro. J. C. Crabb, missionary in charge of the Kewanee district. A spirit of love and unity prevailed with but few exceptions, and the exceptions were not specially serious. The Sunday School and Religio work was done, consisting mostly in the transaction of business. There were four sermons preached by Brn. J. C. Crabb, J. M. Terry, P. M. Cooper and H. E. Moler respectively, with a prayer service on Sunday morning. Brn. Lake and Southwick presided over the conference. It adjourned to meet in June at Mission branch. The Saints of the Mission branch have raised by subscription, nearly two thousand dollars to erect a new church, the old one being too small to accommodate their large gatherings. They will begin the work in the early spring, and have it completed by the June conference, for use if not for dedication, the latter if possible. We were pleased to meet and form the acquaintance of our young and rising brother, J. W. Adams, of the Kewanee district. We love to meet these young, energetic stalwarts, whose aim is peace and good-will and the salvation of souls. Go on, brother, the humble servant is the successful one, and the peace-maker shall see God.

GENERAL CHURCH NEWS.

INDEPENDENCE.

Bro. Joseph Luff's health is improving somewhat. The present address of Bro. Geo. Essig, of the Independence branch is desired. Address ENSIGN office.

Bro. J. C. Foss arrived home at one o'clock Tuesday morning, from a month's visit in the Clinton district. He says he averaged about a sermon a day; he says the conference at Coal Hill was a good one.

Weather was rather rough Tuesday and Wednesday, beginning with rain and ending in a snow Tuesday night and Wednesday until noon, but cleared again in the afternoon, and today, Thursday, is fine.

Sr. Roy Newkirk continues very ill and it has been rumored several times that she had passed away. She is very weak and takes numerous fainting spells, but the Saints still have hopes of her ultimate recovery. Let your prayers ascend earnestly to this end.

Sunday was bright and pleasant; as noted elsewhere the eleven o'clock service was occupied in preaching the funeral sermon of little Estella Bartholomew, by Apostle Joseph Luff. At night Bro. Alfred White was the speaker. The afternoon meeting was a fairly good one.

Edna James, youngest daughter of Bro. and Sr. Thos. James, has been quite ill the past week or two from nervous prostration, her pulse being extremely rapid for days. Edna is a bright, sweet dispositioned girl, and her many friends all hope for her speedy and permanent recovery.

A special collection was taken up in the Sunday School Sunday morning, as that department's contribution towards paying off the church indebtedness. There were 301 in attendance and sixty dollars was raised; several scholars stating they had forgotten it and would bring their contributions next Sunday. In addition to this nearly four dollars was collected for Sunday School purposes. Sr. Lucy Young's class was the banner class in the church collection, they giving twelve dollars, all did well and are gratified at the success attained.

Brn. F. G. Pitt and Wm. Newton and families, arrived in New York Sunday morning, February 18th, on the steamer Campania, returning from their English mission. They were accompanied by relatives of Bro. Newton's, which swelled the number in the party to thirteen. They had a most pleasant and speedy trip, weather being remarkably fine all the way over with the exception of a day or two, when the sea became a little high. Bro. Pitt, on request, read the service Sunday, usually held on steamers of the English lines, and they were treated with the greatest respect and consideration by all, the Lord giving them grace and favor on their journey. Bro. and Sr. Pitt tarried in New York a few days, but Bro. Newton and party came through, arriving in Independence Tuesday morning. As an evidence of the favor given them they were enabled to get half fare on the railroads for the entire party from New York to Chicago, and a reduced fare from Chicago to Kansas City. Bro. Newton looks well and the Saints are glad to greet him again.

Little Estella Bartholomew, only child of Bro. and Sr. George Bartholomew, Jr., gently and peacefully, without a sign of a struggle, fell asleep in the Savior Friday afternoon of last week about three o'clock, after a long illness. She bore her sufferings patiently and uncomplainingly. She had great faith in the promises of Christ and repeated administrations always brought temporary relief and improvement, but notwithstanding everything was done that loving hearts could suggest and willing hands could perform to restore her health, it was not the Father's will that she should remain and He very gently took her to Himself. While those to whom she was so dear have sought to be resigned to the will of the Father, they feel very keenly their loss. She had a sweet, lovable disposition and was a favorite with all who knew her. The funeral took place Sunday morning, the 18th, from the stone church, the little white casket being covered with flowers and a large wreath; a pillow of roses, lilies of the valley and calla lilies, with the name Estella in purple on a background of white carnations was also a prominent floral offering. Elder Joseph Luff preached the sermon, the church being filled with sympathizing friends. The interment was in the city cemetery.

LAMONI, IOWA.

The usual prayer and testimony meetings were held last week at the church and Mite Society hall. The Religians met at their appointed time and place to study, read and entertain each other and others.

Sunday morning, 18th, Pres. Joseph Smith was chosen to speak, his theme being "The mountain top." The afternoon service in charge of Elders Gunsolley and Gaulter was enlivened by a good number of the young brethren and sisters taking part. Those who assembled at night were spoken to instructively by Elder Gunsolley.

At the Home last night Bro. J. P. Anderson was the speaker, assisted by Bro. Oscar Anderson.

Sr. E. L. Kelley's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bishop of Cody, Nebraska, visited a few days and departed to Omaha.

Elder Stebbins went to Greenleaf, Kansas, to perform the marriage ceremony of Elder Kent's daughter, and to minister there and at other points in the state.

Srs. A. E. Cobb and F. B. Blair and young Wayne returned from their eight months visit at Oakland, California, accompanied by Miss Verna Lyman, a niece of Sr. A. E. Cobb, from Portland, to visit here this summer.

Bro. R. J. Bailey was married to Sr. Adio Stephens on the 7th inst., at Davis City by Elder H. A. Stebbins.

Elders F. E. Cochran and M. M. Turpen held preaching services at the Surprise school-house in Missouri on Sunday, 11th, conveyed thereto by Bro. Oscar Thomas.

Pres. A. H. Smith returned from Illinois and Elder Briggs from Michigan.

A LAMONIAN.

February 19.

ST. JOSEPH, MISSOURI.

Bro. R. Winning addressed the Saints yesterday morning, and Bro. Wm. Lewis in the evening. Both sermons were edifying.

Elder H. O. Smith attended the district conference held at Guilford, Missouri, Saturday and Sunday, 17th and 18th.

Sr. Mayme Whitehead was confirmed at the Wednesday evening prayer meeting, having been baptized the night previous.

Bro. C. H. Eldridge has been relieved of his affliction somewhat, but yesterday and last night had a very bad attack again.

Sr. Pearl Smith made a short visit at Rea, Missouri, last week, with Sr. Fannie Eiel.

We experienced last week the severest weather of the season. G. L. K.

February 19.

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS.

A telegram from Bro. F. G. Pitt announces their safe arrival at New York in good health after a pleasant voyage on the Campania. They will arrive in Chicago about March 1st. A reception has been arranged for Saturday evening, March 3d, at the hall, 716 Van Buren street.

Sr. Marie Clark took her departure on Monday night for Kansas City, her future home. She will be missed in Religio, church and Sabbath School work, which makes her departure a regret, but we cannot say nay to anything lawful that tendeth Zionward. We wish the family an abundance of success and peace as they will soon be located at that point near the borders of the gentiles.

We filled our regular appointment at West Pullman yesterday, speaking both morning and evening with good liberty and spirit, there being a goodly hearing on both occasions. The Religio, which met at 6 o'clock, was addressed by Bro. E. E. Johnson in an instructive way on the real purpose and workings of the Religio. He was besieged by many questions, but all passed nicely to the satisfaction of those present.

Bro. P. Pement occupied at the hall, 716 Van Buren street, at the 2:45 hour and Bro. E. J. Lang at night. Both efforts are highly commended, for which we are glad. The Religio was good; a paper by Sr. Mable Sanderson was specially commended. Cottage prayer meetings are being held on the North side. The one last week was very good and spiritual. They will be held on Tuesday nights hereafter. An effort will be made to institute them in other parts of the city. The more prayer meetings the better for the Saints.

Our aged Bro. J. S. Keir is lying very sick in the city with a disease hard to cope with. Bro. Keir is a veteran in church work and though seventy years old, his mind is as bright and active as ever. He is numbered among the general missionaries for the church, with labors in Michigan and Chicago. He is receiving kindly care in his afflictions.

Bro. F. M. Cooper occupied at the Lang mission on yesterday morning and has appointment at the Park Side mission for March 1st. Brn. Henley and Earl preached there yesterday.

Bro. R. C. Evans of the Canada mission will be in the city on March 11th, en route to Lamoni, Iowa. We venture for him the following appointments: Lang mission at 10:30 a. m.; 716 Van Buren street at 2:45 p. m. and at West Pullman at 7:30 p. m.

Love to all,

J. M. TERRY.

ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI.

Our Sunday School and Religio convention the 10th and 11th passed off pleasantly. The Sunday night session, including exercises by both organizations, was complimented by many; the choir acquitted itself very creditably and Bro. Randall's solo was much enjoyed. Mrs. S. R. Burgess read an excellent paper on "Child Nature." Bro. J. J. Billinsky was re-elected Sunday School district superintendent; Jos. Jacques, of Belleville, assistant; Anna De Jong secretary and Bro. S. R. Burgess treasurer. The afternoon session was devoted to business. The district Religio convened at 7 p. m. The election of officers resulted as follows: E. M. Hitchcock, district superintendent; C. J. Remington, assistant; Granville Trowbridge, secretary; S. A. Burgess, treasurer.

Meetings have been held all of the past week at the Oak Hill mission; Brn. Barraclough, Davis and Hitchcock have been the speakers. The services were concluded there last night.

Sunday, the 11th, Bro. J. C. Hitchcock spoke three times at different points.

Bro. J. D. White has been away on a missionary trip; reports having baptized three one of the coldest days. The water was not warm, but Bro. White appears none the worse for the experience. He is in the city a day or two, then off again on church work.

Bro. Ivor Davis was the speaker at our morning service; the effort was well spoken of by many. He also occupied the pulpit at Oak Hill mission in the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Burgess left Saturday noon for the East; expect to return about the 10th of March.

The Mite Society will give a "poverty party" Thursday night of this week at 2511 Slatery St. Everybody invited. The "raggedy raggedy man" will get the prize.

The Wednesday night prayer service was in charge of Brn. Noah Cooke and Jus. Swift.

The speaker at last night's service here was Bro. J. C. Hitchcock.

Bro. Wilcox of Shenandoah, Iowa, visited with the Saints yesterday. We understand Bro. Wilcox was down on a regular business trip. He never misses the opportunity of assembling with the Saints. He assisted Bro. Hitchcock in the afternoon social service.

DENVER, COLORADO.

Church, corner of 22d and Arapahoe Sts. Services Sunday—Sunday School at 9:45 a. m.; preaching at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.; sacrament service the first Sunday in each month at 6 p. m. Prayer meeting Wednesday evening. Zion's Religio-Literary Society Friday evening.

The weather, up to about a week ago, has been very fine, the thermometer registering as high as 80 degrees, with but little moisture; but a change has come, and we have had winter for the past week, plenty of snow and very cold. Friday, the 16th, the temperature dropped to fourteen degrees below zero in some parts of the city, and on account of the change in the weather the attendance at the district conference was not so large as it otherwise would have been, but the session was a good one, the business being done without a jar; the thought seemed to be to comply more fully with the requirements of the law than heretofore.

The tent committee reported $109.75 subscribed, most of which has been paid in, thus securing a tent for the district; now, if the different branches and scattered members will lend their assistance to meet the running expenses, a great work may be done in the district the coming summer. All those wishing to contribute to this expense can send their subscriptions to E. F. Shupe 2849 Curtis street, Denver, or C. R. Duncan, Conifer, Colorado. Come Saints, come up to the work of the Lord and let us make this the banner year for the work in Colorado.

The Sunday School work is moving in the district and the missionaries will push this department of the work wherever opportunity offers.

The Religio program rendered Friday night was A No. 1; it was intended to make it a joint program with the Sunday School, but the weather was too cold for the primary classes to be present. An excellent paper was read by J. B. Roush. It will be forwarded to the Religio department of the Autumn Leaves for publication.

The following brethren were recommended by the conference for missionary work the coming year: J. B. Roush, C. R. Duncan, O. B. Thomas, J. Frank Curtis and E. F. Shupe.

Bro. J. B. Roush resigned as chairman of the tent committee, and Bro. E. F. Shupe was elected to fill the vacancy.

The conference adjourned to meet with the Wray branch August 18th and 19th, 1900.

Several reporters of the city papers were present and gave us quite an advertising, some of which was very fair.

The preaching was by J. F. Curtis Saturday night, O. B. Thomas Sunday morning and C. R. Duncan Sunday night.

The prayer and sacrament service was a time long to be remembered; the house was well filled with Saints and the Spirit was present in power; words of instruction and encouragement were given, and a time of rejoicing was had. Some of the Saints expressed themselves that it was the best meeting they ever attended; it was indeed encouraging.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA.

Services at Golden West Hall, 320 Post street, every Sunday. Sunday School 10 a. m., preaching 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.; prayer meeting first Sunday of each month at 12:15 noon. Elder C. A. Parkin presiding elder, residence 3010 16th street.

Branch business meeting was held Wednesday evening; officers reports accepted and work pertaining to conference attended to.

A pleasant and profitable time was had at the Sisters' Prayer Union Thursday afternoon.

Our district conference met in business session at ten o'clock Friday, February 9th. In the evening a prayer and testimony meeting was held, and was enjoyed by all present, the hall being well filled. Saturday morning business was resumed; seven members were expelled from the Stockton branch, and two others referred to the district president. One very important item was adopted. A motion was carried to take up a collection the last Sunday of each month to supply the ministry with tracts for their missionary work. Fred B. Blair was elected district president. The afternoon session was devoted to Sunday School work. In the evening there was preaching by Bro. Blair. Sunday School met at 10:30 Sunday morning. A very instructive discourse was given by G. T. Griffiths at eleven o'clock on priesthood. A chart of his own designing was used which made his remarks very impressive.

At 12:30 we had prayer and testimony meeting. It was a very spiritual session. Prophecy and tongues were given, and four persons spoken to, to their joy and great satisfaction. All present enjoyed the meeting and felt the Spirit's presence, and were strengthened accordingly.

In the evening, preaching by F. M. Sheehy. Our hall was crowded all during these services. Brn. Griffiths and Sheehy presided at the different sessions. We are all stronger in the work on account of these spiritual meetings.

SECOND KANSAS CITY BRANCH.

Corner Sixteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue. Sunday School 9:30 a. m., preaching 11 a. m., prayer meeting 2:30 p. m., preaching 7:30 p. m.

District president, Roderick May preached to us at the eleven o'clock service last Sunday, giving much encouragement and instruction to the branch. He said he was pleased to see the progress the branch had made, and hoped they would continue. He also conducted the afternoon prayer meeting.

Bro. John Mayer was baptized at the Armstrong font by Elder M. B. Williams, and confirmed at our hall before the evening service by Brn. May, White and Williams.

In Elder I. N. White's discourse at the evening meeting we received a spiritual feast that was good for mind, body and spirit. Bro. White was blessed with the power of God and an outpouring of the Holy Spirit in the gift of prophecy. He said in substance that "the gathering was nearer than most Latter Day Saints believed, and that some of those who stand in high places, who hold the coffers of the world, God will move upon, and will show to them by night vision that this poor, despoiled people are the covenant people of God, and they will pour their treasure into the house of the Lord." He also stougly exhorted the Saints to keep the "Word of Wisdom" that they may be protected from the plagues and pestilences that are abroad in the world, and showed that we should keep the law of tithing in order that we might be free to stand before God in the last day.

LETTER DEPARTMENT.

POMONA, Mo., Feb. 14.

Dear Ensign:—The Saints of Douglas county, Missouri, are making a commendable effort to build a church near Ava, the county seat of said county. Should the Saints from abroad see fit to aid in the erection of said church they may forward their mites to Sr. Rosa Morris, Ava, Missouri, as she is the treasurer.

Having been ordered by the powers set in the church to go east and remain in that part of the state for some time. I shall not be at the district conference to be held at John's Mill, March 17th, I hope, however, that all who can will attend, and that the blessing of God may be with you. Your brother in Christ,

C. J. SPURLOCK.

HEPPER JUNCTION, Ore., Feb. 5.

Editor Ensign:—I am stranded on the bank of the Columbia river for about nine hours, waiting for the train that will bear me to eastern Oregon. Just closed a short series of meetings at Heppner, beginning the 1st inst. Mr. Minor secured the use of the Christian church there, and in response to the joint invitation of himself and wife (Sr. Mae Minor) I gave them a call; not much interest manifest, but the work has a few friends there.

Before going there with Bro. W. A. Goodwin I held six services at Mayville, where a fine interest was manifested and we baptized two parties there. Bro. and Sr. Henry Cuendlet. I left Bro. Goodwin to continue the meetings until Sunday last, when the Baptists were to commence a revival there, and Bro. Goodwin was to commence operations at a school-house known as Buck Horn.

Brn. D. L. Harris and A. B. Moore were engaged in the work at Condon, when I came through, and reported a full house and some candidates for baptism. Bro. Holt is busy up on the sound and thus we are all trying to get the work rounded up for conference and the time when we shall leave this field to await orders.

My wife and little ones are in Seattle—or rather one of Seattle's suburbs—Green Lake. I am making my way to Malheur county, where I expect to labor until time to start east.

In bonds,

A. M. CHASE.

RIVINGTON, Ia., Feb. 14.

Editor Ensign:—Our Sunday School convention and district conference closed last Sunday night at Hamburg, and truly this conference was one among the best held for a long time. The convention more than average; the general Sunday School superintendent was with us; also his willing worker and superintendent of the Sunday School work of this, the Fremont, district, Sr. Emma Hougas, with workers from Shenandoah, Thurman and Tabor, all enjoying the spirit of the work, making it interesting and enjoyable to all present. Quite a number of non-members of the church were in attendance at all the sessions; also at our business sessions during our conference and preaching services.

Our preaching services were well attended, house well filled all the time; audience, both Saints and outsiders, as expressed by both parties, were satisfied and interested. We trust that much good will result from this conference; all passed off peacefully and with the very best of feeling. The members of the branch did all they could to make all attendants happy as well as comfortable.

I. M. Smith had occupied for a week previous to this time, and we left him to continue as wisdom might direct, as the interest had not abated. Had a very good attendance here last night in the school-house, one mile and a half south of town. I shall, the Lord willing, hold forth again tonight, and then move on to Fontanelle, by way of Red Oak, where we have a few members with whom we expect to stay two nights. We expect to meet with the Saints in Fontanelle, helping to assist the president of district, also of branch, in arranging matters for the best interest of the cause; from thence to Council Bluffs to attend the district conference. So we move on, trying to keep pace with this wondrous work. We shall do what we can for its advancement in our field of labor, and I can vouch for my co-laborers that they will be found trying to do the same.

Our motto is "on, on to the victory."

Yours in the one faith,

HENRY KEAR.

CHICAGO, Ill., Jan. 30.

Dear Ensign:—Perhaps it would be well to drop you a few lines. Since January 7th to January 28th our protracted meetings were fairly well attended, for which we feel very thankful. I have had the promise of five for baptism just as soon as it is convenient for them; I most sincerely hope that they will stick to what they say; may God keep them.

I had to close my protracted meetings here on Sunday evening, January 28th, on account of moving my mission from 1802 Armour avenue to 608 37th street in the south part of this city about four miles from here, so I write to Ensign as perhaps some of the Saints abroad are interested in the colored work in Chicago, so please note No. 508 37th street.

I think that neighborhood will be better for me to build up the work. My wife's health is very poor yet; pray for us that our prayers may be answered. The fight is hard here, but I intend to fight on until the victory is ours.

Please send mail at present to No. 1806 Armour avenue, in care of Mrs. H. Bacon. Brn. J. M. Terry, William Strange, S. C. Good and F. M. Cooper preached for me. May the good work go on.

Yours in the one faith,

G. H. GRAVES.

WALLACEBURG, Ont., Feb. 15.

Dear Ensign:—As I have seen no letters from this part of the country, and hardly any from Canada, I thought I would venture a few lines; our branch is doing fairly well, considering that the majority of the members are in other places. The few who are left are trying to do the best we can, and encourage one another with the hope that the Lord will bless those who meet often to gather, and keep his laws. Like a good many of our brethren and sisters, we do not claim to be perfect, but hope to be some day, by striving to do that which is right in the sight of our heavenly Father, trusting in His sustaining grace to uphold us, and make us strong.

We have just received more spiritual strength by a visit from our dear Bro. Geo. Green, who is president of the Chatham district, and well beloved by all who know him; when he comes to see us he is loth to leave us, and we regret to see him go; he says he always feels good when here, and I am sure we do, so come again Bro. George, you cannot make any mistake, no matter how often you come. He was telling us about his wife seeing about a dozen angels, during the time the writer was ordained to the office of an elder, she said they hovered over our heads, and were very fair to look upon; some had dark hair, and some fair hair, and were loose sleeves, she could see their arms up above the elbows; and one came down and sat at a small table that was on the stand, and wrote with a quill pen after which they seemed to ascend and vanished from her sight. So you see, dear Saints, our heavenly Father, it seems, is aware of what is going on, and takes cognizance of the same, so it behooves us, as his people, to build up our characters, so that we will not be ashamed to meet him when he comes, and, judging by the signs of the times, the end is drawing near, when all will have to give an account of what we have done, it will be too late then to say, "Oh, I wish I had done better."

Dear Saints, let us all live, and let our light shine, that we may be able to say without fear, come, dear Lord, we are anxiously waiting for you to come and reign over us. That all may be able to say, I am ready, is the prayer of your brother.

JOHN G. SWAINSON.

WALKER, Mo., Feb. 5.

Editor Ensign:—While at Fort Scott I averaged my sermon a day, preaching eighteen times. I found some willing workers there, I stayed nights with Bro. Lee Quick, 11 Monroe street, he is a promising young elder, who, if faithful, will make his mark for good in the church, his dear, old father is president of the branch; Bro. Leaton and noble wife are also trying to push the work. Mr. Jordan and wife are always ready to help with their mite, to bear the expense of the elders, although they don't belong to the church, yet I believe Mr. Jordan delivers many sermons a year in his house and blacksmith shop, all of his people belonged to the old church. You ought to hear him talk about—as he calls it—"our church," and "Brother" Joseph, well he's a good man.

Bro. Joseph Wagner and wife keep a restaurant and are always ready to give temporal food to the ministry while they deal out the spiritual. Many thanks to them.

Since I came here I have spoken several times in the hall, which has been very well filled, especially last night. There were three ministers present, Baptist, Christian and a Reformed Catholic. I spoke with excellent liberty on "The Kingdom of God, and Who Had the Right to Minister the Word, and Officiate." At the close the Baptist minister said, "I think there are lots of ministers who ought to be planting corn. He expects to attend our conference next Saturday at Coal Hill; he and the Methodist minister attended our social meeting Sunday afternoon, and for the first time, they heard the Spirit speaking through Saints in tongues and interpretation.

I am yours truly,

THE STONE KINGDOM.

BY J. I. YOUNG.

For a basis we will use a portion of scripture found in Daniel 2:44: "And in the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom which shall not be left to other people but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand forever." Some have taken it for granted that this kingdom was set up by Christ in his day, but we will show that it was to be after his day, for the language of the prophet Daniel indicates that there was to be more than one king; he says that in the days of these kings, showing there was to be more than one. Let us see what caused the prophet to give utterance to this language; we find from the preceding verses that he had been called upon to interpret the dream given by the God of heaven to King Nebuchadnezzar; we pass the dream and notice the interpretation. "Thou, O king, art a king of kings: for the God of heaven hath given thee a kingdom, power, and strength, and glory. And wheresoever the children of men dwell, the beasts of the field and the fowls of the Heaven hath he given into thine hand, and hath made thee ruler over them all. Thou art this head of gold."

The reader can see that there was only one universal king at that time. "Thou art this head of gold." The Babylonian was the first of these kingdoms that is mentioned by the prophet in his interpretation of the dream, and it was fitly represented by "the head of pure gold" on account of its great riches, and Babylon, for the same reason, was called by Isaiah "the golden city" (Isa. 14:4). "After thee shall arise another kingdom inferior to thee." This kingdom was considered as nothing, nor do we read of anything good or great that was performed by them; "and after thee shall arise another kingdom inferior to thee." It is very well known that the kingdom that arose after the Babylonish was the Medo-Persian, the two hands and shoulders of the image. The Babylonian empire was to be dissolved by two kings—the Medes and Persians—whose powers were united under Cyrus, he being son of one of the kings, and son-in-law of the other king, who besetled and took Babylon, put an end to that empire, and on its ruins erected the Medo-Persian, or the Persian as it is more usually called, the Persians having soon gained the ascendancy over the Medes. This empire is said to be inferior as being less than the former; it is because neither Cyrus nor any of his successors ever carried their arms into Africa or Spain as far as Nebuchadnezzar is reported to have done; or rather, inferior as being worse than the former as Dr. Prideau asserts, and I believe he may assert very truly that the kings of Persia were the worst race of men that ever governed an empire.

The third kingdom of brass which was to bear rule over all the earth, was the Grecian, under Alexander the Great. "And the fourth kingdom shall be strong as iron." This kingdom was to subdue all other kingdoms; it was to break in pieces and bruise; that is, it was to subdue all of the other empires that had been before it. Let us see what the prophet has to say about it: "And whereas thou sawest the feet and toes, part of potters' clay, and part of iron, the kingdom shall be divided; but there shall be in it of the strength of the iron, forasmuch as thou sawest the iron mixed with miry clay. And as the toes of the feet were part of iron, and part of clay, so the kingdom shall be partly strong and partly broken. And whereas thou sawest iron mixed with miry clay, they shall mingle themselves with the seed of men: but they shall not cleave one to another, even as iron is not mixed with clay."—Dan. 2:41-43.

The kingdoms that have been described would eventually be broken up and be divided into ten kingdoms, of which three were to fall before one that was to arise. Daniel 7:8. The fourth kingdom was to be divided, and from it there were to arise ten others, and out of one of the ten one was to arise and overthrow three. (See Daniel 7:8). Besides the image which Nebuchadnezzar saw (verses 34, 35), he beheld, "hill that a stone was cut out without hands, which smote the image upon his feet that were of iron and clay, and brake them to pieces. Then was the iron, the clay, the brass, the silver, and the gold broken to pieces together and became like the chaff of the summer threshingfloors; and the wind carried them away, that no place was found for them; and the stone that smote the image became a great mountain, and filled the whole earth." This was thus interpreted and explained by Daniel (verses 44:45): "And in the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom, which shall never be destroyed: and the kingdom shall not be left to other people, but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand forever. [Never change the form of government that it had when it was set up by the God of heaven; no elections every four years to put first one party and then the other party in power, but the party or form of government is to continue forever]. Forasmuch as thou sawest that the stone was cut out of the mountain without hands, and that it brake in pieces the iron, the brass, the clay, the silver, and gold." Notice, if you please, that these first kingdoms were all left to other people; the Babylonian was left to the Medes and Persians; the Medes and Persians were left to, or overcome by the Romans; the Romans were divided and broken into eastern and western Rome, from which there has sprung up ten others; and it was in the days or times of their existence that the God of heaven was to set up a kingdom that was to consume all of them; they were to become like the chaff of the summer threshing floor. We know that chaff is scattered by the wind and cannot be found; so, likewise, the kingdoms of this world are to be scattered, overthrown, by the kingdom of the God of heaven. For the Lord says: "And I will overthrow the throne of kingdoms, and I will destroy the strength of the kingdoms of the heathen; and I will overthrow the chariots, and those that ride in them; and the horses and their riders shall come down, every one by the sword of his brother." (Haggai 2:22).

How plain, how graphic this description, when we look around us and see the commotion in other countries; look at France and England, and the other powers; the "stone kingdom" or stone was to smite the image on the feet and brake them in pieces; the ten toes represent the ten forms of government that were to arise, and as the stone was different from the image, so will the kingdom which the God of heaven establishes be different from all of the other kingdoms or governmental powers. Other kingdoms were raised by human ambition and worldly power, but this was the work, not of man, but of God; this was the kingdom of heaven, a kingdom not of this world; its laws, its powers were all divine. The kingdom was never to be destroyed as the Babylonian, the Persian, the Macedonian and the Roman empires have been; but this kingdom was to break in pieces and consume all the kingdoms, to spread and enlarge itself so that it should comprehend within itself all the former kingdoms; this kingdom was to fill the whole earth, to become universal and to stand forever. The image stands upon its feet, the toes of iron and clay; the kingdom of Christ is yet a stone of stumbling and rock of offense, but the stone will one day smite the image upon the feet and toes and destroy it utterly, and will itself become a great mountain and fill the whole earth. Or, in other words, the kingdoms of this world shall become the kingdoms of our Lord and his Christ, and he shall reign forever and ever. We have, therefore, seen the kingdom of stone, but we have not yet seen the kingdom of the mountain.

Daniel, in his interpretation of the dream of Nebuchadnezzar, tells him of what shall be in the latter days. The kingdom spoken of by him was to be in the latter days. Some claim that it was the kingdom set up by Christ in his day, but we will examine the Book of books, and see if it did continue till our time. "Behold, the days come, saith the Lord God, that I will send a famine in the land, not a famine of bread, nor a thirst for water, but of hearing the words of the Lord: and they shall wander from sea to sea, and from the north even to the east, they shall run to and fro to seek the word of the Lord, and shall not find it."—Amos 8:11, 12. We learn from this language that there is to come a time when the work of God shall not be found; that no one will be preaching the doctrine of Christ. For further proof of this we quote Matthew 11:12: "And from the days of John the Baptist until now, the kingdom of heaven suffereth violence, and the violent take it by force." Here is a statement made by the Savior; the kingdom of heaven was to suffer violence, and the violent were to take it by force. The violent slew John and all of the apostles; there was no one to administer in the holy ordinances of God's house. Those who held the authority were slain; for proof that this was to be we quote Acts 20: 23-31: "Take heed, therefore, unto yourselves, and to all the flock over the which the Holy Ghost hath made you overseers, to feed the church of God, which he hath purchased with his own blood. For I know this, that after my departing shall grievous wolves enter in among you, not sparing the flock. Also of your own selves shall men arise, speaking perverse things, to draw away disciples after them." The reader will notice that grievous wolves were to enter in and not spare the flock; if the flock is not spared, how many are there left? To illustrate: We go to Bro. A and ask him to loan us a dollar and he says that he cannot spare us any; how much will we get? You will say that we would not get any. Well, Paul said that grievous wolves would enter the flock and the flock would not be spared; we come to this conclusion that there was not any left who had the right to administer in God's house. Then Daniel evidently saw by that Spirit which Jesus said should guide into all truth, that away down in the latter days, the God of heaven would set up a kingdom that would not be left, or overcome by other people; but it would stand forever. "In the days of THESE kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom." Let me say that in the days that Jesus was upon the earth, these ten kingdoms were not in existence. In that day the Roman government was one, not ten; it was one and one only; it was not divided at all.

We read in the second chapter of Luke that the proclamation went forth from the Roman emperor for all the world to be taxed; this proclamation went forth from the iron ruler, Cæsar Augustus; this Roman government was not then divided; it was one government, only one, not ten. It was the one iron kingdom that was to break into pieces and bruise, and after this iron kingdom should have ruled for a long time—for many hundreds of years—it was to be divided into ten divisions represented by the ten toes, and to be ten kingdoms instead of one. We discover further, that this kingdom was one for hundreds of years after the death of Jesus; it then became gradually broken; one kingdom arose in or about the year 356, and after this on down to about 450, or a little later, we can trace the ten very distinctly, but the reader will notice they had no existence when Jesus was here; the toes were not yet developed, and it was more than three hundred years before they were developed, and the Roman government divided. The language of the prophet is. "In THE DAYS OF THESE KINGS shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom." Now, if the kingdom of Christ was established in the days of these ten kings, it could not be before the year A. D. 350. These kingdoms passed through many changes it is true, but in their varied conditions they can be traced down through the history of the past to the present age, and it was in their times that the God of heaven was to set up a kingdom that was never to be thrown down.

How vastly different from the one that Jesus set up; it was warred against, overthrown, and the saints of God were worn out. Daniel 7:25 says: "For a time and times and the dividing of time." Suffice it to say that the kingdom of Christ was disorganized and scattered, and to remain so 1260 years. At the time of the fulfillment of the 1260 years the God of heaven was to set up his kingdom that was to destroy all of the other kingdoms. We read in Isaiah 32:13-17, "Upon the land of my people shall come up thorns and briars; yea upon all the houses of joy in the joyous city: because the palaces shall be forsaken: the multitude of the city shall be left; the forts and towers shall be for dens forever, a joy of wild asses, a pasture of flocks; until the Spirit be poured upon us from on high, and the wilderness be a fruitful field, and the fruitful field be counted for a forest. Then judgment shall dwell in the wilderness, and righteousness remain in the fruitful field. And the work of righteousness shall be peace; and the effect of righteousness, quietness and assurance forever."

That will be the condition of things when the Lord shall come to take his kingdom; we find that before he shall come, there is an angel to come from heaven with the everlasting gospel to preach to all nations. "And I saw another angel fly in the midst of heaven, having the everlasting gospel to preach unto them that dwell on the earth, and to every nation, and kindred, and tongue, and people, saying with a loud voice, Fear God, and give glory to him; for the hour of his judgment is come: and worship him that made heaven, and earth, and the sea, and the fountains of waters." The reader will notice that the angel is to have the gospel; if the gospel has continued from the days of Christ, what is the use of an angel bringing it? But as we have shown, the gospel was taken from the earth. For further proof that the gospel was to come from heaven, let us look at Deuteronomy 32:2: "My doctrine shall drop as the rain, my speech shall distil as the dew, as the small rain upon the tender herb, and as the showers upon the grass." We find that the rain comes from heaven, so in like manner was the gospel and the doctrine of God to come from heaven. That the angel has come with the gospel we do not hesitate to affirm; the kingdom is set up for the last time, and it will subdue all other kingdoms, and it will stand forever. How the other kingdoms will be destroyed we cannot say, as God has not been pleased to reveal it. We see the remains of the ten horns which arose out of the Roman Empire; we see the little horn still subsisting, though not in full strength as at one time, but we hope upon the decline, and tending towards a dissolution; and having seen so many of these particulars accomplished, we can have no reason to doubt that the rest will be fulfilled in due season, at the time of the end. We are not as wise as some, for we do not pretend to know how it will be accomplished, but have faith in God that it will be done in his own way and time. There is one thing that we do know, and that is that the kingdom of Christ is set up, and as he said that the gospel of the kingdom was to be preached in all the world, then the end should come (Matt. 24:14), the gospel of the kingdom could not be preached if the kingdom was not here; if the kingdom was not here, it would not be the gospel of the kingdom, but would be the gospel of man. We are striving to preach the gospel of the kingdom of God as best we can, hoping that we may surmount all of the obstacles of life, and gain the reward that is promised.

VARIED EXPERIENCES.

Dear Ensign:—How encouraging to isolated Saints are the letters in the church papers; for nearly two years we have been without church privileges to speak of, and we have found it very lonely indeed; we feel that we can't spend any more time away from the church so have decided to locate near the Nebraska City branch that we may be with the Saints, as it is so lonely to be away from the people of God.

Sweet the time, exceeding sweet,
When the Saints together meet;
When the Savior is the theme,
When they joy to sing of him.

We once had a small branch here, but through various reasons it has been disorganized. We can't stand still in this work; we either must go backward or forward, and by experience I find one of the greatest helps to live faithful is to be in the company of the Saints and have church privileges; one's mind is then more on spiritual things than when we are mingling with the world all the time; my greatest desire is to live faithful to this latter day work, for I know, without a doubt, that it is the work of the Lord. How glorious are the promises to those who endure unto the end. I was sorely afflicted for almost nine years; at times it seemed that it would be impossible to live longer, and that death would be sweet instead of so much suffering. I often would grow faint and weary trusting in the Lord, and would put my trust in the arm of flesh, thinking I never could be healed according to the pattern laid down in James, but it seems that when God's appointed time came the blessing was not withheld any longer. One year ago last fall, through one of God's appointed servants, Bro. T. J. Sheldon, the blessing came with power and much assurance; I was healed then and there, and today stand as hearty and healthy as I ever was in my life, with no sign of my old trouble. Was there anything with which I was to comply? O'yes, to be sure. I was told that inasmuch as I keep the Word of Wisdom, and keep the commandments of God, and live obedient, I should be blessed. This has been a great blessing to me, and my desire is to live faithful to the teaching of our dear Savior, that I may be acknowledged of him when he comes to make up his jewels. This work is worth all, and the longer I live in the church the more blessed it seems to me; many are the blessings received by living faithful to his teaching. May we ever be on the watchtower faithfully performing our duty, is the prayer of

Your sister,
MRS. AMELIA SELF,
BENNETT, Neb., Feb. 12.

Editor Ensign:—It is always my habit to look for the letter department first to see who has written, where they are from, and what each one has to write, before looking elsewhere; and of late the thought has come to me, Why don't you write too? Perhaps some one would like to hear from here as well as we from others, and I think sometimes we are rather selfish, for the letters are written mostly by isolated ones. We claim to live in the regions of Zion, and I think we should be more sociable to our isolated ones and invite them here with us and tell them what we think of this land. The Book of Mormon says that the Saints should possess a land choice above all other lands, and the Lord, through our prophet, has told us this land of Missouri is that land; and as we look around about us and see the many advantages we have above others, we can truly say this is the land of promise. We find coal, lead and ore in abundance; and the book of Ether says that much gold and silver were found also, and I believe that will be found here too some day.

We are only eight in number here, and have a little church; we have had our Sunday School here almost every Sunday for two years; but most of the time there is but two little girls, beside our own children, who come, so it is hard for us to keep going; we can hardly keep up interest among ourselves, and outsiders think it hardly worth coming to see, as there are two other churches here of one hundred scholars each. I write this hoping some of you Saints who have large families would come, and those who have none are welcome also.

There are twenty-eight hundred acres of land held by heirs to be sold at Lamar and Joplin, and seven hundred in Jasper county to be sold at sheriff's sale in the court yard the first day of February, and the rest at Lamar the second and third day of February; terms one-third down, one-third in one year, and the rest the second year. It is timber land, and some prairie, and some improved farms sold in forty and eighty and one hundred and sixty acres; it is supposed it will go cheap under circumstances. Any of the Saints wishing to know anything further of this will please address W. M. Royer, Nashville, Missouri.

Hoping that I may live to see the day when we will be blessed in this land of Zion, enjoying the comforts that are promised the faithful in Christ

Your sister,
E. J. ROYER,
NASHVILLE, Mo., Jan. 22.

Editor Ensign:—Thinking a few lines for your columns from the "Old Dominion" mission, would be read with interest by many of your readers, I thought I would essay the task. I have just read a letter written by Sr. Herick to Sr. Taylor, and find she knew nothing about any of my meetings or labors in this 'state, as she has not been taking the Herald, and my reports have been in that since I came here last November; and as there may be some others in the same condition, I will just say that the prospects seem more favorable for a work in this state now, than at any other time since I have been in the mission. I have baptized four souls and expect one or two more before going home, some of whom are uncompromising workers. Especially is the prospect brightening in the city of Richmond, as will be seen by the following letter received from Sr. Corson, of that city; I here copy a part, as it, no doubt, will be read with interest:

"RICHMOND, Va., Feb. 2.

"My Dear Brother:—Your card received today. I was saddened indeed to read of the death of Sr. Orr. Oh! it seems so sad that you could not have gotten to her sooner; I felt like Martha did when she said, 'If thou hadst been here my brother had not died,' although it is most likely that she was appointed unto death, but the thought would come. But 'God moves in a mysterious way His wonders to perform,' and this may be one way to further the cause she loved. I had to weep in sympathy with the bereaved ones, as I realized how anxiously she waited your coming. I have many things pleasant to tell you concerning our work here in Fulton [this is a suburb of Richmond.—J. L. G.]; Mrs. — told me she was getting ready to come to our house Sunday, to meeting, when company came in. Said she was anxious to hear you preach. She said, 'I believe if he will come back now and get a hall, he will get a good many out to hear.' I told her that I expected the people were so sure that we were Mormons of the Utah type, that I thought most any one was too prejudiced to investigate for themselves. She replied, 'No, they did think so, but they are finding out better, but I tell you we had some strong talks with some of them before

I could make them think he was not one of that sort.' These are her words as nearly as I can remember. I saw her today and had a good long talk with her, and dropped, I trust, a few more seed thoughts. Mrs. — has been in every day since you went away, or has called me in there, to question me, until today, and she is not there today. She says she must have the ENSIGN; she sent some ENSIGNS and tracts to her friends, and to her pastor (she does not live in Richmond). Oh, my brother, how great is my responsibility. [Yes, dear sister, but how great the reward in the end, if we perform our duty. I would to God all others felt their responsibility, and were performing their duty as this sister who is alone in a great city, except one brother in the faith. But the Lord is wonderfully blessing her, in both health and wisdom, and will enable her to do a wonderful work for Him, though she may feel weak and unable for the work at times; so do we all. But the Lord will never fail to give strength and wisdom when we trust and work for him.—J. L. G.] Who is sufficient for these duties? If any faith on earth has a tendency to make one feel their littleness and entire dependence on Christ more than ours, I would like to know what it is, and yet those who don't know say that it leads its devotees to depend on their own efforts, a belief in works. I read such a grand sermon in one of those ENSIGNS you left me, an old one, and the reasonableness of the faith was so plainly set forth, and I could now respond, amen, to every sentiment in it; whereas when I read the same sermon a few years ago, I could only wonder if these things were so. A reason for the hope that is within you, 'how good it is to have it. I used to hope in Christ, but with not much reason that I would give, only that he had said 'Believe.' Now, I can give as a reason that I have 'believed and obeyed,' and hope to continue believing and obeying. * * * Brother, I wonder if we can have a series of meetings when you come back? Several have said they will try to come out next Sunday. One lady said she could listen to you all night. Don't think I am trying to swell your head; I am not. It is not you, it is the grand message you have to deliver. * * * I hope you will be back by the second Sunday, and remain over the 17th [I have so arranged and go tomorrow]. Hoping soon to see you, I remain

"Yours in gospel bonds,
"ALICE R. CORSON."

I have held a few meetings here since the death of Sr. Orr. Not much interest manifest in Newport News or Hampton, but nowhere can better Saints be found than the few here. I have just returned from the piers of the C. & O. railroad, where Mr. Rand (husband of Sr. Rand), oversees the work of Pier, No. 5. Mr. Rand kindly showed me the places of interest and gave me information about the vast amount of business conducted there by the C. & O. railroad.

I went with him over an ocean steamer which he was loading with flour for the Boers. He informed me that he loaded more flour for export from this one pier, last month, than any port in the United States. Besides this, he gave us some very substantial aid financially. He believes the latter day message, but has not obeyed it yet; I certainly would be pleased to be called upon to administer the gospel ordinance that would add him to our fellowship and brotherhood.

I expect to go to New Hope the 19th, and about the 26th go to Centerville, West Virginia, after a few days there on to Lagrange, and from there home, by the 19th of March, to remain a few days, and then on to General Conference, the Lord willing.
NEWPORT NEWS, Va., Feb. 9.

LATER—I arrived at Richmond on the 10th and found arrangements had been made for services at 4 p. m. Sunday. Several were out who were never here before to hear the gospel message. We continue here over Sunday. I will send you communication for ENSIGN soon, in reply to a sermon preached in one of the churches here, which I desire to distribute to several of the members of said church.

May the blessings of God attend the mission of the ENSIGN, for though great and good as is the ENSIGN, its mission is greater and better.

Yours truly,
J. L. GOODRICH.

February 12.

Editor Ensign:—It is with pleasure I write you; in the first place I feel grateful for the weekly visits of the ENSIGN. I feel I could not do without it for the many good letters and sermons. I shall never be without it. I have thought it right and proper to give to the readers of the ENSIGN my experience. My father and mother belong to the United Brethren church, and I had heard him speak of the Book of Mormon and condemn it; I was not posted in such matters, on religion, but father said he would burn it up if we got one in the house.

I took a trip from Ohio to this place, having previously united with the M. E. church, where I remained until I found I did not receive the blessings that God promised to believers; so I asked the preachers why they did not preach on the gifts of the Spirit, and the gift of prophecy, and they would say they were all done away; I asked them to show me the chapter and verse, and then they told me I couldn't expect such things in this late day of the world; I left them and went into the Baptist church with an open Bible in my hand, and I used it to be sure, and I soon found them not in harmony with Paul's teachings, for I read that God set some in the church, first apostles, secondarily prophets, and after that all the gifts of the Spirit (1 Corinthians 12:28, 29), and again I find how long they were to remain there in Ephesians 4:1-10, so I could not stay in the Baptist church.

Elder Leonard F. Daniels, of the

Reorganized church, came to me with the angel's message, and I said I will obey that message and if I don't receive the gifts and blessings I will step down and out of the churches, and say it is all a humbug and gotten up to make money. I was baptized June 20, 1892, and can say of a truth with Peter, "He that feareth Him and worketh righteousness is accepted with Him" (Acts 10: 35), so I am firm in the faith.

Two or three years ago I took a trip to Ohio, and my father wanted to know in regard to the Latter Day Saints, so I got him interested and sent for an elder, and they sent me Bro. F. C. Smith, who told them words whereby they can be saved, and then they obeyed the message.

Bro. F. M. Slover was with us last Sunday, preached three times in the church; I also got the town hall in Brubaker, Illinois, and Bro. Slover preached three times with good liberty and good interest, but small crowds of about twenty-three, it being the first time that our elders have been there, and then the weather was against us, but I think that the honest in heart will obey. Ever praying for the spread of truth and Zion's triumph.

Yours in the one faith,
W. O. FISHEL.

Editor Ensign:—When we read and so much enjoy reading letters from other parts, the question comes, "Why not drop a word from our branch of the church militant, Laird, Colorado, that others may know that we are striving by the help of God to so live that we may meet with the finally faithful in the church triumphant. And although we sometimes feel the sentiment of the hymn, "Ah, this heart is void and chill, 'Midst earth's noisy thronging," yet we feel to say, "Through the furnace, through the heat, there beneath the hammer's beat; through temptations manifold and amidst affliction's burning flame, yet we glory on his name."

We feel very thankful to our heavenly Father that we are so situated that we are able to heed the admonition not to forget the assembling of ourselves together and of exemplifying those who feared the Lord and spake often one to another and who thought upon his name. A means through which we feel is derived great spiritual strength and blessing; so much do we appreciate this great privilege that frequently the sentiment of different ones in our testimony meetings would seem that we claim the promise made us to "sit together in heavenly places in Christ Jesus" is being verified upon us. And while we so much enjoy our privilege, our hearts should be lifted to Almighty God in prayer that he might "put his signet on their breast, and on the isolated ones let his Spirit rest."

We are having a well attended and interesting Sunday School under the superintendency of Sr. A. E. Tabor, whose heart is in the Sunday School work. Our Sunday School has been most regularly attended, some of the Saints coming and bringing little children a distance of nine miles; the primary teacher of our school, a lady, is one of those who drives nine miles. We have preaching and prayer meeting each Sunday alternately. Preaching by Bro. E. D. Bullard, our local elder and branch president.

To Bro. Bullard is due the first preaching and greatly the keeping alive of the work in this part of Colorado in days of greater prejudice and more nearly alone than we now are. We have been made to rejoice and feel strengthened by an occasional sermon and fireside talk from Bro. O. B. Thomas and Roush during the winter. We also flatter ourselves that we have a partial claim on Bro. J. B. Roush, owing to his wife and baby being located at Wray.

Our meetings are not much attended by outsiders owing to considerable prejudice in the locality; our neighbors are in no way backward about saying the elders they have heard are smart men all right, no mistake about them being smart, well posted, and such expressions as that. Some of them went as far as to say of one of them, that they liked splendid to hear him preach but that they did not believe a word he said. The comment on that speech, however, was (and that by a non-church member), that if they did not believe what he said, surely they did not believe the Bible. A little encouragement to us after all; so while we do not see the interest among outsiders that we should like to see, and sometimes feel a little discouraged at this, yet we feel that there is great need that we pray earnestly for a deeper work of grace in our own hearts. We believe the burden of the soul of some of our branch is, that the gifts and blessings promised to God's faithful children may be poured out upon us to a greater degree. And we should keep always before us and lay hold by faith on the words of Jesus when he said, "This kind goeth not out only by prayer and fasting," and associate with them the scripture found in Luke 18: 7, 8, and we have Christ's own words that God will speedily hear and answer prayer when we fast and pray and cry unto him night and day, though he bear with us long.

As I sit writing the text comes to me, "If we say we abide in him, we ought also so to walk even as he walked." And as my mind turns to the study of how Christ walked, it seems to my mind to mean nothing less to us than to follow on to perfection by obedience to the doctrine, as he said, "Suffer it to be so now, for thus it becometh us to fulfill all righteousness;" by sacrificing self, as he said, because "I seek not mine own will, but the will of him that sent me;" by trying to be always found doing those things that are pleasing to our heavenly Father, as he said the Father hath not yet left me alone, for I do always those things that please him," and finally, "be ye therefore perfect even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect."—Matt. 5: 48. Let us each strive earnestly and feel to say with Paul: "This one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark, for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus."

With a daily desire for an increase of the faith once delivered to the saints, I remain,

Your sister in bonds,
MRS. W. J. WELLER.
NORTH WILLOW, Colo., Feb. 13.

Dear Ensign:—I want to say a word or two through your columns to all the Saints and especially to those who I know are interested in the advancement of the cause of truth in this part of the harvest field. When Bro. J. L. Goodrich was here in December he could only get a very small hearing, but after he went away many to whom I talked and loaned the papers and tracts and books, of the church, expressed a desire to hear him. He came back and held two services at my house, one on Saturday night and one on Sunday afternoon, both of which were quite well attended, several of the members of the Apostolic Church being present, whose pastor refused us their church, but his members will hear when they can; that is, some of them.

I feel that God has indeed witnessed of the truth of Bro. Goodrich's claims to being a messenger sent of God for one lady who had heard him; talk just a little while when he was calling at another lady's house, told me that she felt that he was a good man and that she wanted to hear him preach, and that she had had several sharp talks with people who would insist we were the same as the Mormons of Utah. So it seems she was defending us even before she had fully investigated our claims. Another lady, a Methodist, said she felt while looking at him that he was a man of God, and that she ought to ask him to administer to her, as she is a firm believer in faith healing. She stayed awhile to converse with Bro. G., asking many questions. Although a Methodist, yet she is not fully satisfied with their teachings as a church, and seems wonderfully impressed with the idea of authority to administer in the ordinances of the church, never having given the subject any thought before because she had never had her attention called to that phase of the gospel plan. She requested some tracts and ENSIGNS to send back to her friends in Baltimore, Maryland, as she is only visiting her brother here, who lives only two doors from me and whose family are much interested in this work since hearing Bro. G. preach. One young lady of the family requested me to loan her the Book of Mormon, which I did. That is the second family that has had it to read since I came here. I do feel to rejoice that prejudice is giving away enough at least so we can get, the truth before the people. I think a few will hear and heed the gospel message and if others will not, yet our skirts will be clear.

I heard there was a Utah Mormon family near me, so I made inquiries of their whereabouts and found them just "two doors around the corner," while mine was the fourth door from the corner. So while I had felt a great anxiety to see her and find out if she was satisfied with her faith, yet not till yesterday did I learn more than they "live somewhere on the other street." So straightway I went and made myself known to her, told her my faith and that I heard she was a Latter Day Saint too. "That is what we are," she replied. Then I told her that I belonged to the Reorganized Church and asked her if she was of the Utah Church. She admitted that she was, but she believed there was not much difference between us. She said, "You are what they call the Josephites." I said, "Yes." We had a pleasant talk through a plain one on my part, as I was not "mealy mouthed" at all in telling her of the differences, or a few of them, between the Utah church and ours. She said, "Well, one thing I know, they teach the Bible more correctly than any other preachers I ever heard." "Yes," I said, "just as long as they confine themselves to the principles of the gospel." "But," I said, "I am certain you do not believe in polygamy." "No, indeed," she replied, "I never believed in that, and our elders never taught it to me." They have always owned though that their church had taught it, but had stopped it now. I assured her that their church still believed and still practiced it to some extent. She said, "I have often wished I could know the real difference between us and your church." I replied, "You shall know if you will read what I bring you;" that I would let her have some reading right away and would send for more as she needed it. She thanked me, said she was glad I called. I told her I felt anxious to know her as soon as I heard of her, for I was sure any one who was enough concerned about their future welfare and earnest enough in their search for truth to join a church on which was resting such a reproach, must indeed be honestly seeking the truth, for it took lots of courage to join a church that was "evil spoken of" even while undeserved, and certainly as much when one knew positively that their reproach had been merited. She said she would come and see me and would go and hear Bro. G. preach, as he will be here again next week and I have secured a hall. I ran in this morning with a few papers (Ensigns and Ensigns) with marked articles that I think will prove eye openers; also a few tracts.

Now, if any of the Saints have any reading matter to send me for this lady I will see that she gets it, especially anything to show what the Utah church is, and has been, and what Joseph Smith really did teach and practice. She is a very pleasant woman with two lovely little children; for their sake as well as hers I hope she may be enabled to see the truth. "One thing," she says, "I am certain of, that is that nothing can ever get out of me the gospel truths that I have learned from them. They are there (in the Bible) in black and white. I can read my Bible as well as any one." I assured her we held all those truths and that we knew they held them also. "But," I said, "you know there is such a thing as holding the truth in unrighteousness." She admitted the fact. Now, dear Saints, you will help me by your prayers and by sending me helps to the end that she may receive a fuller light. Oh! I feel that God is indeed helping me in this work, and I pray daily that he may use me for the good of this people. Join your prayers with mine that I may find sufficient grace for all that awaits me, be it labor for Christ and his cause or be it to bear persecution; as yet I have had none to bear. Working and praying for Christ's kingdom to advance, I am, In joyful bonds,

THE BOWER OF PRAYER.

ALICE R. CORSON.

Oh! bower of prayer; blest bower of prayer! How peaceful do thy shades appear; How welcome to my weary soul, As, struggling onward to the goal, I find the way with snares beset And lurking dangers to be met; Or when beneath care's heavy load I faint and falter on the road.

Here in thy shades sweet rest is found; Here doth sweet cooling streams abound;

The lily of the valley grows Upon these banks; and Sharon's rose Breathes sweetest odors on the air, Which zephyrs, soft and gentle, bear To fan my fevered brow until My pulses all grow calm and still.

My garments, earth stained though they be, May here find cleansing, full and free; And here the tree of life doth yield Its leaves by which I may be healed. And wine from heaven's own vintage, Doth fill my cup with holy cheer; While freely with the "living bread" My hungry soul may here be fed.

When sorrow wounded in the strife With evil, and my fears are rife; And hope has fled, and courage fails, And on each side grim doubt assails, Here mercy meets me, and she fills With healing balm each wound, dis- eases

Such cordial on my fainting heart As doth new strength and zeal impart.

And sometimes when I hunger so For soul companionship and know That all I must dwell apart From kindred spirits; my weak heart With me no faints beneath the cross; And bitter seems my sense of loss. Then in these shades one friend I meet, And hold with him communion sweet.

And when the lamp of faith so dim Doth burn, I scarce can follow Him, Whose footsteps mark the narrow way, And I am fearful lest I stray. Here from a never failing store, My lamp is filled anew; once more The pathway shineth clear and plain, And with me courage walks again.

When sorrow's hand doth sorely press And cruel care doth me distress, Here, here alone, I find relief; A solace sure for every grief. Then "come," all souls by griefs oppressed, By cares weighed down, by doubts distressed, Here bring thy burdens, lay them down And find these favors all thy own.

No matter if thy need be great, Or low or mean be thy estate, Here may thy needs be all supplied, And heaven's rich favors gained be- lieve.

The invitation is to all— To high and low, to great and small, Who will with sincere hearts repair In faith to thee, blest bower of prayer. 3229 4th St., Fulton, Richmond, Va. January 4, 1900.

Honorable Thomas B. Reed on Monopolies.

Honorable Thomas B. Reed, in writing of the modern trust, does not seem to regard it either as an "octopus" or a bugaboo. "My notion," says he, "is that while Providence and the higher laws which really govern the universe are, in men's talk, much inferior to the Revised Statutes before they are enacted, they are always found to be quite superior to them after they are enacted. In fact, Nature abhors a monopoly as much as it does a vacuum."

Mr. Reed's paper on Monopolies—which is to appear in The Saturday Evening Post of February 10—is a suggestive discussion of the methods of vast corporations. It discusses in a striking and original manner one of the most pressing questions of the day.

TO ALMOST every girl there comes, between girlhood and womanhood, a time when she feels prompted by her own vitality, to take some share in the world's work. It accounts for much that is vigorous in church and social life. Cornelia Atwood Pratt writes of this period in the March Delineator. Her article is thrilling, and will in itself do much to induce directness of aim. In the same number, as if to add meaning to Miss Pratt's thoughts, there is a well illustrated article, of great interest to women, dealing with the leaders of Women's Colleges, and some of the co-educational institutions.

A timely article in the March Delineator is devoted to the details of growing seeds, plants and bulbs. The timeliness is outweighed, however, by the fact that the article is designed to open up to women a new line of healthful money-making.

The Delineator is devoted solely to the interests of women, and in many of its main features is an invaluable guide to the thrifty women who have to make their own clothes, as well as to the women who purchase clothing, yet desire advice and suggestions in doing so. (15 cents; all newsdealers.)

NOTICES.

We, the Saints of Kingsley branch, have considered the gathering of the Saints to Zion. We believe the time is near at hand when peace will be taken from the earth (Doc. & Cov. 1: 6), and he that will not take up sword against his neighbor must flee to Zion for safety (Doc. & Cov. 45: 13). And whereas Zion must be redeemed by purchase (Doc. & Cov. 63:8),

We believe we should do something for its accomplishment.

We believe that many difficulties are to be encountered and to be overcome; therefore

We believe all things should be done with due consideration and in a systematic way; therefore be it

Resolved, That we adopt the resolution of the Southern California district.

THIS DO.

Remember that Saints should be cheerful in their warfare that they may be joyous in their triumph.—D. & C. 119: 6.

It is a weakness common to most individuals to fret and chafe under restrictions. Ordinarily it is a very easy matter to be cheerful when everything is moving along exactly as one desires it should; but when the even tenor of life is interfered with, and obstacles to plans well matured, as one thinks, arise more or less numerous and unexpectedly, it becomes exasperating, and impatience is the natural result. Experience is so constantly impressing the lesson upon all that this life is full of trials and disappointments that it would seem as if they should be expected in the natural course of events, and such a preparation of mind be made that our equanimity would not be disturbed when they arise. But we are slow to learn, and though the lesson is often fraught with bitterness and pain, it has to be repeated again and again, until the purpose intended in the experience shall have been wrought out, or the pupil reaches the end of his probation.

To be prepared to meet with cheerfulness and composure every exigency which may arise in the warfare of life, reflects credit upon the aptitude and wisdom of the one who thus exemplifies that he has been a good scholar in the school of experience; but to needlessly grieve over and make many complaints about those unpleasant events over which we are unable to exercise control—those beyond our forethought and action—is to evidence that we have not learned by the things we have suffered, and we are just so far short of the perfection of character it is possible for us to reach, and to which we must attain before we are fitted for the glory our heav-

only Father desires we shall inherit. In the school days of childhood the diligent scholar who applies himself understandingly to his task, makes the progress and is earlier fitted for the more responsible positions of life; while usually the careless, indifferent pupil fills the lower walks of life, and makes one continual complaint at his "ill luck." True, capacities differ, and the same tasks assigned each, may be more difficult to one than to another; but equal diligence and work will bring corresponding success and the same results, though one may reach them more quickly than the other because of greater capacity to understand and hold what he learns; but whether rapidly or more slowly, the same end must be reached by each if the same diligence is used; for the same information in the lesson is attainable to both.

Again, some lines of study are more difficult of mastery to the scholar than are others. To one the elucidation of mathematical problems is a delight, while to another it is a burden and annoyance; and this is true of all the branches considered essential to a thorough education. So of the lessons we are given in spiritual lines. Often that which seems a trial and burden to one is a pleasure to another; the gifts or capacities differing as each are given qualifications for their work. It is to those disagreeable and unpleasant features that a cheerful spirit should be joined; it lightens the tasks both to the toiler and his associates. Grumbling never did do any good towards lightening a burden or making a hard task less arduous; the same amount of labor always had to be done to finish the work when a spirit of grumbling dominated the worker, as it required to do it without that feature. Besides being wearisome to the listeners, it seems rather to be an exhibition of a small spirit, and unworthy of intelligent beings. On the other hand, a brave, cheerful spirit brought into action upon any work, however difficult and unpleasant, always lightens the burden and makes that work easier of accomplishment, because the spirit is not depressed and weighed down, though the endurance of the physical man may be heavily taxed in its performance.

"No cross, no crown," is an apothegm expressing the sentiment inculcated by the Savior when he said, "And whosoever doth not bear his cross and come after me, cannot be my disciple" (Luke 14: 27); indicating that unpleasant experiences will arise in the service given the Father, and that they must be met in a proper spirit, that benefit, instead of harm, may result to those who are rightly exercised thereby. The very word "warfare," as it is given in the Scripture, evidences a contest; that opposition will be manifest; and to those who love peace, opposition is always objectionable, but however unwelcome these experiences may be, a good, earnest opposition is a strength builder, and a developer of resources and powers, so that in permitting his people to encounter the efforts of the adversary and his ministry, he, by adding grace and power as necessity demands, makes the Saints stronger in character, and develops those principles in them by which they approve themselves unto Him, and to the heavenly host, if they properly use the opportunity afforded.

The test or mark of a disciple of the Lord Jesus is a fruitage of the character manifested in His beautiful life among men; and no individual will ever show the image of the Master until they perform the works which he indicated they should. Neither will it be possible for any one, as His follower, to do the works which he did, without correspondingly reflecting his image and characteristics to the extent that the human will is made subservient to the divine. In coming into the kingdom of God every one is given a work to do corresponding to the capacity they have, and which they may acquire by magnifying their calling in the rightful and diligent use of their talent or talents; in this work the Father expects and requires faithful service from each, promising reward as merit shall appear.

The Apostle Paul affirms that the Lord Jesus was "in all points tempted as we," but where can the instance be pointed out, in all the testimony concerning his life-work, where he grumbled and complained because the burden was heavy, the experiences trying? It is stated that in bearing the heavy cross placed upon Him by His executioners on their way to Calvary, He fainted, or grew faint with the exertion required, yet no word of reproach passed His suffering lips, of which we have any account; He was simply submissive under His trials. When upon the cross, suffering the pains of the crucifixion and feeling the weight of the persecution which there had its dreadful culmination, He cried out, "Eli, Eli, lama sabachthani;" the recorder seemed to interpret it, "that is to say, My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me" (Matt. 27: 46); but it is not certain he made even that complaint, for some of those who stood by and heard it, thought, and said, that He called for Elias, and wanted to wait and see if Elias would come to His assistance. He uncomplainingly endured "the contradiction of sinners," "against himself and his work, forever setting the example for whosoever essayed to be his follower.

Let every Saint make an earnest effort to always be cheerful in their warfare; give it a good, honest trial and see how much more weighty for good will be the service given the Master. It is profitable to heed the admonitions of the Lord in all things.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

BRO. H. A. STEBBINS preached at Greenleaf, Kansas, three times February 18th, and was to speak at Fanning the next evening. He also filled appointments at Idylwild and at Netawaka conference. Had pleasant experiences at all points.

SR. ROSA MORRIS, Ava, Douglas county, Missouri, says the Saints of that locality are trying to build a church which they hope by the blessing of the Lord may be ready for occupancy by the time warm weather comes. Some of the non-members have been very kind in assisting the Saints, who are few in number, in the work. They will thankfully receive any contribution any may feel like sending them.

The Kansas City Journal is, by far, the foremost morning paper of Kansas City. It is republican in politics; its telegraphic columns the most reliable and complete, and its general news full, fresh and up-to-date. It does not have to "fill up" by running the same articles in two or more issues, as is quite frequently seen in some other papers. Its editorials are on live topics, clearly and interestingly presented, and altogether it is a first class daily, furnished by carriers at ten cents per week.

In another column, under the heading of "Mormons vs. Gentiles," we copy an article from the Viroqua, Wisconsin, Republican, which some one has put out as a circular, relative to a discussion which is now being held between Bro. I. N. White and Elder Clark Braden, of the Christian church. Elder Braden, as usual, has got upon the ground and tried to influence the minds of the people to favor his side by lecturing against the Saints. It has not availed him, however, in the past, and will not now. At the close of this debate, as in others, he will probably have the majority of the members of his own church on his side, but those of other faiths, and of no particular faiths, who are unprejudiced, will not be deceived by the kind of argument and material Elder Braden has to present. The work Bro. White is defending is the Lord's own work; He knows how to take care of it, and we have no fears or uneasiness as to the results of attacks upon it from any quarter whatever.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

BRO. H. J. PAULSON, Kamas, Utah, renewing his subscription for the ENSIGN, says:

I like the Savior's doctrine as you put it in your paper; that is what I believe will be the right road for the people to follow. I am well pleased with ZION'S ENSIGN, and I want to read it so long as I can.

SR. RETTIE SMITH, Portland, Oregon, requests the prayers of the Saints in behalf of Fannie Hudson, who is afflicted with partial paralysis and almost entire loss of speech. She adds:

There are twelve of the Saints around here, and if a minister should come through here, if he can stop over, inquire for Mr. Joseph McKinney, Albain Russell street, over Shrader's store, or S. Smith, Woodlawn, all in Portland.

SR. (MRS.) INA A. SCHALL, Monte Vista, Colorado, feels sadly the isolation of her condition, having recently been called upon to part with a dear little daughter and to have its obscurities conducted without the comfort of those of like precious faith. She says:

It is hard to bear these troubles being among strangers, as it were, and have to ask of them to officiate in the services which were held over our loved one. We feel our loneliness in this isolated condition, but trust the time is not far distant when an elder can come here and gather the honest in heart into God's kingdom.

We sympathize with our sister and her companion in their bereavement, and echo her wish that their hearts may be comforted in the preaching of the everlasting gospel, by one of the Lord's servants, at an early day.

BRO. J. H. BANFIELD, Monday, Ohio:

We are alone, there being no Saints here besides myself, wife and son. We have no elder and the ENSIGN is the only encouragement we have, so we could not afford to do without it. We are still strong in the faith of this latter day gospel.

That is the proper way to view it. No live Saint can truly afford to be without the church papers. Even where they have all the church privileges, it keeps everyone in touch with the progress of the work in general, and brings them information, concerning the truths of this work, of great value, which they cannot, and do not, receive from local sources. It is a fact, no Saint can afford to be without the ENSIGN. We ought to have, at least, 10,000 subscribers, and would have if all were as wise as this brother in this regard. Send in your subscriptions, only $1.00 per year, 50 cents for six months, or 25 cents for three months. We need your assistance, as you need the help the ENSIGN offers.

SR. MAY FIELDS, John Day, Oregon:

There is no branch here now, but I hope with God's help, there soon will be. Bro. W. A. Goodwin and Bro. Harris were here last fall and held meetings about a week. But little interest was shown and few would come out to hear the gospel.

Mr. J. R. HELM, Schell City, Missouri:

I do not want my paper discontinued for I don't know how we would do without it. While I am not a member of the church, I am a lover of truth. Still there are some things that I don't fully understand, but that is no reason that the work is not right; at least I shall endorse it till I find out that I am wrong. Hoping it is all right, I am yours in the faith.

SR. (MRS.) FRANK FISHER, Fernandina, Florida:

We are alone in this part of the state so far as we know; there are three of us who belong to the church, and we wish we could have the privilege of attending meetings. There are Saints in the western part of Florida whose address we would like to obtain, so that we could correspond with them; we do not know where they are located. Please ask them through the ENSIGN to send us their address.

BRO. JOHN S. KIER, 778 66th street, Chicago, Illinois:

I am being kindly cared for by my children, and by Bro. and Sr. Blakely who have shown by their works that they are truly children of God. We are told, if any among you are sick let them pray. This I have been doing, and truly expect my heavenly Father to hear my prayers, for it is said that the prayer of faith shall save the sick, and the Lord will raise him up. I am glad for the knowledge I have received concerning the Lord, and to know that the gospel is the only means he has ordained by which we can become acquainted with him, and know him as he is.

GENERAL CHURCH NEWS.

INDEPENDENCE.

Sr. Roy Newkirk continues in a very low condition, better some days and relapsing again on others.

Sr. Letitia Crick, mother of the brethren Crick, had the misfortune to break one of her arms by a fall on the walk a few days since. She is getting along as well as could be expected.

There have been a number of cases of grip among the Saints recently, but all seemed to yield readily under administration. A number of others are suffering from heavy colds and coughs.

March took possession of the calendar this (Thursday) morning like a lamb, calm, clear and sunshiny. The probabilities are that things won't be so pleasant out of doors when he bids adieu to 1900.

Burglars visited Bro. Bert Peterson's house Monday night, but fortunately were discovered and frightened away before securing anything. Several other houses were visited the same night, not among the Saints, however.

Sunday was a nice day, and there was a pretty good attendance at the Sunday School, though it is said there were an astonishingly and unusually large number of "tardies," 102 we believe being the number. Somebody was caught "napping" sure. Bro. Joseph Luff occupied at the eleven o'clock service and delivered a splendid discourse, edifying and instructive all the way through. At night

Bro. I. N. White was the speaker, and having good liberty, also preached an interesting sermon. The afternoon service was fairly good.

Bro. R. May, district president, preached at Armstrong, Kansas, last Sunday morning, and at Chelsea Park in the evening. There is seldom a Sunday that Bro. May is not engaged in the Master's work in some of the branches of the district away from Independence, his home.

A sad accident occurred on the Missouri Pacific Railway on the outskirts of Independence, during the storm Tuesday about 6 p. m. A local St. Louis train was run into by the express also from St. Louis. Two ladies were killed, one being burned to death, the parlor car which was run into being destroyed by fire, and six others were more or less seriously injured. The first train had the snow to fight and lost time, the snow being so thick that an object could hardly be discerned at that time twenty feet away. The injured were given attention at the wreck and were taken to Kansas City for further assistance.

Jos. S. Lee and a gentleman named Holabaugh arrived in the city Saturday afternoon of last week attending services at the stone church Sunday. They requested the use of the church to present their issues but were refused. We understand that effort will be made to obtain the Hedrickite church, failing in which a private house will be sought. They are giving out a circular without signature making "protests" against the Reorganized church, one of the statements being that those holding the Melchisedek priesthood have "robbed" the Aaronic priests of the "right" to "lay on hands," etc. The other "protests," some two or three in number, seem to be about on the same line of reasoning.

The heaviest snowstorm of the season visited this locality shortly after midnight Tuesday morning, and continued without intermission all day Tuesday until some time during the night. About twelve to fourteen inches fell, but as it drifted considerably it was much deeper in places and locomotion was attended with much labor and difficulty. The electric line to Kansas City was badly blocked, although the sweeper made two trips in the morning, and section men were also employed in shoveling and sweeping the track, but the snow fell so fast that cars could only be run at long intervals, one car not reaching Independence until five o'clock in the morning, some ladies being among the passengers. By Wednesday morning, however, the storm had passed and tracks were cleared so that cars ran on schedule time. It required much hard work to clear paths on the walks for pedestrians, as the snow had drifted along the fences, but this was also accomplished Wednesday in most places, and everything assumed more of its normal condition. The eastern mails, however, were badly delayed Wednesday.

LAMONI, IOWA.

Some snow and cool air. District conference closed last night. Religio- and Sunday School convention was held the 22d and 23d.

Bro. James R. Bagley died on the 13th and was buried on the 14th. Sermon by Apostle H. C. Smith, assisted by Elder J. A. Gunsolley.

Elder David Wight returned from the West and on the 21st was married to Sr. Mattie Brown near Blytheville, Missouri, by Elder H. N. Sively.

Pres. A. H. Smith departed to western Iowa expecting to minister at Logan, Little Sioux, Magnolia and other points in that region.

Elder Frank Criley went to Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, recently, and returned on the 18th.

Elder I. P. Baggerly arrived from the South.

Prof. Harmless delivered an instructive address to the students in the college chapel at Graceland our day last week.

Preparations are being made in the city and country around to entertain elders, delegates and visitors to the coming General Conference in April.

Elder Stebbins arrived from Kansas.

Members of the apostolic quorum are expected to arrive from the east, north, south and west early in March to counsel on church matters and arrange business for the General Conference in April.

A LAMONIAN.

February 26.

ST. JOSEPH, MISSOURI.

Bro. C. P. Eldridge is very ill, but has from time to time been wonderfully relieved from pain by administration.

Bro. Myron Newman was taken very sick just at the close of the evening prayer meeting a week ago yesterday. He was administered to and greatly blessed then and the next day.

It being such a stormy evening there was no meeting of the Religio Tuesday night, much to the disappointment of our young president.

On Wednesday, February 21st, at the home of the bride's mother, Sr. Mayme L. Whitehead and Mr. Wm. T. Dugger were united in marriage, Elder G. J. Whitehead officiating. The bride was becomingly gowned in navy blue cloth and carried a large bouquet of bride's roses. The attendants were Miss Violet Whitehead, sister of the bride, and Mr. A. Mayor. Josephine Isleib presided at the piano and to the sweet strains of the wedding march the bridal wended their way through the parlors to an alcove formed by a drapery of smilax and palms where the ceremony took place, witnessed only by the immediate relatives. A large reception followed, at which was served delicate refreshments. The numerous and beautiful gifts which were presented show the high esteem in which these young people are held. They left on the 9 o'clock train for a short trip to Kansas City and other near by points.

The oyster supper given by the Willing Workers' Association occurred on Thursday evening and was largely attended. We think the net proceeds will amount to about $25.00.

Bro. Adam Jessiman and Mrs. Emma M. Seever were united in marriage February 22d at the residence of Elder H. O. Smith, Elder Smith officiating. They will reside in the city at 1214 Farnam street.

A luncheon will be given at the home of Sr. G. W. Best Friday from 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p. m. for the benefit of the Ladies Aid Society.

Sr. J. W. Nanny has been quite sick for several weeks. She is strong in the work, but feels just now the need of great faith. Will the Saints please remember Sr. Nanny.

Elder F. B. Blair who is en route to Lamoni, Iowa, spent Sunday in St. Joseph, preaching to the Saints at the morning hour in a very edifying manner.

G. L. K.

February 26.

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS.

Sr. "Kitie" Hick, well beloved by the young Saints of the Chicago branch, in the bloom of womanhood, fell a victim to that monster enemy, consumption, passing away on the 24th, after a protracted illness superinduced by her long vigil at the bedside of her mother, who preceded her to the spirit world last autumn. This sad removal strips her father of his entire family. He has the sympathy and prayers of his brothers and sisters in Christ. She will be taken to Wisconsin for interment.

Sr. Tessie Williamson, of Independence, is in the city on her annual visit to gather millinery lore to enable her to cater to the fastidious in the latest styles. She has just recovered from a severe attack of sickness being able to attend divine services yesterday.

Bro. George Howard, of Sandwich, was among the Saints yesterday and assisted in the services. He has a good word for the work in Sandwich.

That violin is a happy addition to the musical part of our worship, when we hear it. Can't we hear it oftener, Bro. Bachelder.

Next Sunday is reunion day again and an unusually good time is expected and desired. Among the important features will be the ordination of Bro. Grabsky, of Pullman. Bro. F. G. Pitt will be the speaker in the morning at the Lang mission, a preparatory sermon to the ordination and should be heard by as many as possible. Let the Saints rally their forces, and stir up their latent energies and make this meeting a happy success. Bro. F. G. Pitt will occupy at the branch headquarters, 716 Van Buren St., on Sunday night if able; at which place a reception will be tendered Bro. and Sr. Pitt on Saturday night, of an entertaining and social nature.

Bro. and Sr. S. C. Good were received into branch membership on letters of removal last evening at the preaching service by unanimous vote. We bid them welcome to the happy, busy united band of Zion's children.

Our son, J. M. Jr., is still held a prisoner to disease. We are hoping, praying and watching for the happy day of release, and expecting it in God's own time. We are very grateful for the many expressions of deep interest in his behalf upon the part of the Saints.

In good cheer and strong hope I am still for Zion's weal.

J. M. TERRY.

SECOND KANSAS CITY BRANCH.

Corner Sixteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue. Sunday School 9:30 a. m., preaching 11 a. m., prayer meeting 2:30 p. m., preaching 7:30 p. m.

The Religio is moving along steadily in its particular line of work, good interest is manifest and new members are added nearly every meeting. The society directed that ZION'S ENSIGN and a copy of the large type Book of Mormon be placed in the reading room of the Railway Y. M. C. A. at the union depot.

Elder J. C. Foss discoursed to the branch at the eleven o'clock Sunday morning service. The experiences, observations, and testimony of this man would make an instructive and interesting pamphlet. Bro. Foss also spoke to us at the evening meeting on the "Pre-existence of our spirits and the origin of man."

After preaching our president, Elder Joseph Emmett, announced that he had some tracts for distribution by those of the branch who wanted them. Our branch has a tract fund to supply church literature to those who want it.

JOHN C. GRAINGER.

1415 Pennsylvania Ave., Feb. 26.

PROVIDENCE, RHODE ISLAND.

Elder W. H. Kelley preached a real typical Latter Day Saint sermon in the chapel here last Tuesday evening, with quite a number of Saints and friends present. His effort was complimented on all sides.

Good, spiritual meetings are the order of the day at Dennisport.

Elder John Smith has labored in Attleboro and Plainville of late, and expects to be in Haverhill, Massachusetts, soon. Elder R. Bullard recently preached a series of sermons in Plymouth. We learn at the latter place that the Religio meetings are of special spiritual import and interest.

Bro. Henry Arnold preached here a week ago Sunday evening.

Sr. Florence Fisher of Boston was the guest of the local Religio last week. She gave an interesting talk.

Elders Kelley and Bond left for Chicago and the West yesterday.

UNCLE BURNSIDE.

February 22.

Our "Historical Engraving" at fifty cents, is a very desirable picture to have in your home. It shows the martyrs, three witnesses, presidency, twelve presidents of seventy, high council, and a number of other interesting features. A study of this picture by those having but a slight acquaintance with the Saints, will remove prejudice, and assist in rendering a presentation of the everlasting gospel effectively. Can you afford to be without it? A key accompanies each picture.

LETTER DEPARTMENT.

DALLAS, Texas, Feb. 6. Editor Ensign:—While we wait at the depot for half an hour for train to take us to Farmersville, Collins county, where we have a meeting advertised, through the efforts of Bro. R. T. Jones, of that place, I will drop a line to your valuable paper. Bro. E. L. Henson, a young brother laboring with me at present, and myself have held two very interesting meetings in this county of late: the last, at Elam Station, ten miles east of this city; meeting closed there on the evening of the 4th inst.; true, none were baptized at that place, but the interest manifest and the good treatment shown us for a new place, is encouraging indeed, some subscribing for our church papers, and others buying a Book of Mormon, with many kind invitations to come again, rarely ever met with in the south except among the Saints: While at Elam Station we were comfortably cared for at the home of Mr. J. J. Elam and his pleasant family. My first acquaintance with Mr. Elam was made by a peculiar accident happening some twenty years ago, when I lived in southwest Texas; he was thrown from his horse, which resulted in a broken hip; my house being nearest at hand, we cared for him the best we could, and now, "like bread cast upon the water," it returns, many years after, with interest. May God bless him and his good wife to that extent that they may obey the gospel and be saved in the kingdom of God. Much sickness in this part of the state, of almost every kind, prevents us in many places from getting the people to come out to hear us. By the way, I wish we had a "Jots man" in Texas; there are lots of jots down here if we had some one to scrape them up and report them. All the brethren in this part of the field are doing all they can to push the work, but we find, that as a general thing, this people are hard to reach with the gospel. Pray for us. Yours for truth, T. J. SHEPHERD.

visiting Bro. and Sr. Robson; thence, the next day, on to the above named place. Preached seven discourses, when I was called to Blakes Mills to preach the funeral sermon of Bro. Frederick Cramer, who in his twentieth year, was killed in a coal mine while at work pulling pillars, when three ton of coal fell on him. He was one of Zion's workers, a teacher in the Sunday School, and always ready to help wherever needed. He had a dream on Monday night before he was killed on Friday, in which he saw Jesus coming toward him with a message in his hand for him, and seemed to be delighted to think that the good Lord had given him this vision or dream, not knowing what it meant. He left a sorrowing wife and a little babe, as well as father, mother and several brethren and sisters, and a host of friends to mourn their loss. I have sought to make myself useful to the Saints and friends as well as to the publishing house, by obtaining orders for church works. I believe Herald or ENSIGN or both, and Church Histories are indispensable. Saints cannot afford to be without them. When I enter a Saint's house, if I find no Herald or ENSIGN I don't feel as though everything is just as it should be there. Of all people on earth we should be awake to our spiritual interest. Laboring for the redemption of Zion I remain, Yours, A. H. PARSONS. WEATHERFORD, Okla., Feb. 19. Editor Ensign:—I surprised a missionary Baptist preacher yesterday. I asked him for his appointment to let him and his people see a greater light than that which they already possessed. He had presented the Baptists as the salt of the earth. In company with Bro. E. Etzenhouser I preached a lively discourse, telling them these signs followed the believer today as in past ages. Poison was suggested, to assure them that what I was teaching was true. "A sign; give us a sign," they demanded. I merely contrasted my case with the Savior when demanded to perform a sign by the Pharisees, and asked if they wished the application. In the evening we attended again, expecting to be slaughtered. Ten minutes was given to review me, in which it was again asked that I perform a miracle, "speak Spanish," etc. I got in half an hour's gospel grape and Canister, such as made him feel that Israel's God still lives. Yours, J. A. ROBINSON. CONDON, Ore., Jan. 14. Dear Ensign:—I find recorded in Malachi 3: 16 these words: "Then they that feared the Lord spake often one to another; and the Lord hearkened and heard it, and a book of remembrance was written before him for them that feared the Lord and thought upon his name." If we read this verse carefully and give it our best attention, we can find some beautiful thoughts there. As it says that the Lord hearkened and heard it, and a book of remembrance was written before him for them that feared the Lord and thought upon his name, we ought to speak often one to another; so I will speak to the Saints through the Ensign. I am but young in the faith, not being baptized quite a year. There are three of us in my family, my wife and babe and myself. My wife was baptized into the church the same day that I was. Our baby boy was born on November 27, 1899, the Lord showing his mercy toward us in answer to our prayer. How glorious it is to be a Saint. We are striving to be able to buy us a home in the region round about Independence as soon as possible. We are anxiously waiting to see the results of next conference. We hope there will be something given that will induce more Saints to "gather in the regions round about" the center stake. We realize that the days are growing short, and there is no time to waste. We find in Luke 21: 25 that "There shall be signs in the sun, and in the moon, and in the stars; and upon the earth distress of nations with perplexity; the sea and waves roaring." Then the 28th verse says, "And when these things begin to come to pass then look up, and lift up your heads; for your redemption draweth nigh." Thirty-second verse, "Verily I say unto you, this generation shall not pass away till all be fulfilled." In the generation that these signs begin to appear our Redeemer will come, is the point I wish every one to see. Some are noticing these things, some are not. Whendid these signs begin to appear? About 1816 says history. Then are we not very near the very last days? I say yes. It seems to me that the question of the gathering has been neglected to a certain extent, but we are glad to see that it is receiving more attention. Let us all pray that light may be given on the question. Christ says, ask in faith believing that ye shall receive and it shall be given you. Hoping this may reach the ears of some and do good, I am Your brother in the faith, ONS W. PRORST. JUNCTION CITY, KS., Feb. 22. Editor Ensign:—First debate with Elder Denton Collins of the series of four, closed splendidly last night with an audience of about 300. Owing to inclement weather, the attendance was not so large the first few evenings. Mr. W. A. Coddington and family and Bro. E. H. Ebert and family rented a house at Brownell, and boarded Bro. F. J. Pierce and the writer. Mr. Coddington's daughter, Eva, presided at the organ during the discussion of the Book of Mormon proposition, and was baptized the day before the discussion closed. Her membership had previously been with the "religious" body denominated Church of Christ, as attempted to be restored by Alexander Campbell and others." Bro. T. E. Thompson administered the ordinance of baptism. A number of others informed me they were convinced the truth was with us. Bro. E. E. Mettles, my moderator, Mr. W. A. Full presiding. Begin discussion at 8 o'clock tomorrow night. If any of the elders from the west could stop off at Bazine, Kansas, on their way to General Conference, and preach a few evenings, the Saints would be delighted, and others who are investigating, benefited. The nearest branch official is Bro. E. H. Ebert, but he lives nine miles from the post office. Therefore, write in time, to Mr. L. M. Teator, who lives only one mile south from Bazine, and who gets his mail daily, and he will meet you at the train, and have appointments out for you, and it will be satisfactory all around. W. S. PENDER. CHILLIWACK, B. C., Feb. 8. Editor Ensign:—My husband came here last July and, amid much opposition, has succeeded in leading twenty-eight precious souls into the fold, all of them being in this section of country. I was privileged to join him after a separation of a little over five months. I arrived in Westminster on December 24th, and together we spent the day at the pleasant home of Bro. and Sr. Rainey. Next day being Christmas we accepted the kind invitation of Mr. and Sr. Butterfield to a sumptuous Christmas dinner where we did ample justice to turkey, goose, etc. A Christmas tree nicely decorated and hung with gifts was arranged in the evening for the children, and the older ones were not forgotten either. Next day we bade good-bye to these Westminster Saints, and by boat came to Chilliwack, where we were met by Bro. Stady who drove us to his home six miles out in the country. Here we met Bro. Alex. McMillen, our old friend from Arthur, Ontario. That evening we were greeted by a party of about fifty persons who assembled at Bro. Stady's to give us a welcome to British Columbia. With these Saints and friends we spent a very pleasant evening. Recitations, vocal and instrumental music, games and speeches formed the amusement of the evening together with a splendid supper; and we felt, as we looked at those kind, glowing faces which we had never met before, but who, by their actions, looks and words convinced us beyond a doubt that they were our friends, that whatever sacrifice we had had to make in order to have the gospel carried to them, was not made in vain, and we were satisfied. My husband left here two weeks ago to open up the work elsewhere. He is now preaching in the capitol. We have a nice Sunday School going here with an attendance of about twenty-four, with Alex. McMillen as superintendent at which work he is a splendid success. We were privileged to organize another Sunday School at Rosedale (the scene of the school opening episode over which my husband was called before the courts of the land) on Sunday night. We expect to be able to attend both schools each Sunday by coming on horse back—a mode of traveling new to me but very enjoyable. We will hold the one at 10 a. m., and the other at 2 p. m., five miles apart. We hope for success in these undertakings and ask you to pray for us that we may be true, pure and useful. In this western province prejudice runs very high, and hatred of the work is strong and bitter in many hearts; but we rejoice that the honest hearted have been permitted to obey the message of peace, and that we are privileged to associate with them, for we verily believe they are the best society in the world. Your sister, MAGGIE MACGREGOR. BERKELEY, Cal., Feb. 16. Dear Ensign:—I write to renew my subscription; we cannot afford to be without the paper; it is always a welcome visitor to our house. And as the opportunity offers I take pleasure in writing a few lines for your columns. It was in July, just six months ago, I first heard the gospel preached in all its purity. One day a clean, white tent was pitched within one block of our house; we soon learned that preaching services would be held there; that Elders A. C. Barnore, F. B. Blair and D. A. Anderson, ministers of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, would do the preaching. I had never heard of Latter Day Saints before, so out of idle curiosity went to see and hear. I admitted I was pleased with the first meeting, and promised to come again. I went night after night along with husband and mother, and finally became convinced of the truth, but felt as though I could not act until my husband was converted with me; there seemed to be such a reluctance on his part; I pleaded with him but he would not yield. Well then, through the influence of the Holy Spirit, and the untiring efforts of those three young ministers of Christ, I was moved to obey the command of God, and on August 20th, 1899, mother and I were led by Bro. Anderson into the waters of baptism, and were confirmed that evening in the tent by Bro. Blair and Barnore. And, dear Saints, you who have had the experience, know the peace and joy that follows this most important step. Scarcely two months later my husband joined hands with Bro. Blair in the same waters, to make his covenant with God. And now, dear friends, words cannot express our gratitude towards God, and his noble workers, who have broken the chains of darkness that bound us, and brought us into the light of this glorious gospel. We deeply appreciate the love and blessing bestowed upon us, and rejoice today in being numbered among the Saints of Latter Days. The work here is in a progressive state. The Oakland branch (the one to which we belong) has just counted a new, little congregation. The Saints can gather in unity and with prayerful minds offer up their praises and thanksgiving to God. This morning I received through the mail, a paper entitled, "Naked Truths About Mormonism," edited by A. B. Deering, and dated January, 1898. I know not from whence it came, but it is filled with all sorts of articles and letters concerning this work. Undoubtedly it was sent to lead us off the track, but it only tends to strengthen us more than ever to move onward and upward in the path that Jesus led. We care not what they say, we firmly believe this is the true work of God. My prayer is that others who are near and dear to the hearts of all the Saints may be brought into the light of this holy truth. Your sister in Christ, LIZZIE DAY.

THE KINGDOM OF GOD.

BY ELDER JOHN H. LEE.

The organization of the kingdom of God is a matter of utmost importance, and should be well understood by those who are authorized to administer in sacred things. The Lord says, "For I am God, I change not." His purposes are fixed and are not frustrated. Therefore, he will do his own work in his own way. He will always be like himself, perform his work in harmony with divine counsel, and when he sends a counselor he will instruct him in his "strange" work. He will do nothing but he will first reveal himself to his servants, the prophets, that they may know just what to do in any work that they are called to perform, for they must build according to the pattern. It is, therefore, necessary to dig deep and place the foundation upon the rock, that when the storms come it may not be shaken. God will manifest himself to his servants, and reveal to them things that are past, present, and things to come, so that they may understand just what he wants them to do to build up the kingdom. He organized the earth, placed man upon it, and gave him his law, which law was the gospel. He gave unto his chosen servants authority and power to administer that law. And for this reason he has organized his church or kingdom, and revealed himself to his servants the prophets, that they should present it in such perfect order that the way-faring man, though unlearned, may not be deceived with regard to the law and order of God's kingdom; that he may know just what to do in order that he may have eternal life, enter into celestial glory, and see the Lord and be perfect even as he is perfect. Therefore, he gave unto man a perfect law which cannot be added to or taken from, and what he does he does forever; nothing shall be added to it, and nothing can be taken from it. And now to the law and to the testimony, and if they speak not according to this word it is because there is no light in them. Isaiah 8:20.

The time has come when a kingdom shall be set up by the God of heaven as revealed to Daniel (Dan. 2: 44, 45), called the stone kingdom, that shall break in pieces all other kingdoms. It was to be in the time of the end of the former kingdom. And the kingdom shall not be left to other people, but it shall stand forever. Daniel 2. John the Revelator saw in his vision the beginning of this kingdom, and said of this important event in the fourteen chapter, sixth and seventh verses: "And I saw another angel fly in the midst of heaven, having the everlasting gospel to preach unto them that dwell on the earth, and to every nation, and kindred, and tongue, and people, saying with a loud voice, Fear God and give glory to him; for the hour of his judgment is come: and worship him that made heaven, and earth, and the sea, and the fountains of waters." The reason that it is necessary to set up this kingdom is because "the earth is defiled under the inhabitants thereof." "They have transgressed the law, changed the ordinance, broken the everlasting covenant." Therefore, the earth is under a curse, "and few men [of God] are left."—Isaiah 24: 5, 6. "Thus saith the Lord, Stand ye in the ways, and see, and ask for the old paths, where is the good way, and walk therein, and ye shall find rest for your souls. But they said, We will not walk therein."—Jer. 6: 16. "Seek first the kingdom of God." This was the command of the Savior while he was on the earth teaching the people.

The kingdom of God is unlike all other kingdoms or systems of religion as taught by most men. There are certain powers, privileges and blessings pertaining to the kingdom of God which we find in no other kingdom, nor enjoyed by any other people than the people of God. The kingdom of which I speak is organized for the best of purposes, and calculated to elevate mankind to the highest state of perfection possible, that mankind may enjoy the highest glory in the celestial state. And as man is the master-piece of his Maker's workmanship he should best understand his Master's will in all things, and in such plainness that he cannot mistake his Lord's meaning. God gave a law to Father Adam and revealed his will, commanding obedience, fixing a penalty for disobedience.

Thus Adam had a direct knowledge of God, and it was not necessary to have faith that "He is," but that he should fulfill his divine purpose. God must have revealed himself to Adam's posterity or Abel would not have known what kind of an offering would please Him. Enoch must have kept God's revealed law, for God translated him and his city, Zion. Noah was a preacher of righteousness, made a proclamation of righteousness, and by the preaching of the gospel the world was condemned, and all but eight souls perished because they rejected God's counsel. After the flood, Melchisedek, king of Salem, and Abraham, the faithful of God, had this knowledge by revelation; also Jacob and his posterity.

Especially to Moses and Aaron, his prophet and priest, did God reveal himself, and testified to their authority in many ways by writing the commandments on stone tablets; by giving the law; and many wonderful manifestations in confirmation of the work assigned them. Also to Joshua, Samuel, and a host of others along the line until the coming of the Savior, do we find God revealing his will to his faithful subjects. "Surely the Lord God will do nothing, but he [first] reveleth his secret unto his servants the prophets."—Amos 3: 7.

The kingdom of God is an order of government established by divine authority, with divinely chosen officers to administer the law and ordinances of the kingdom, chosen by the king. It is the only legal, spiritual government that can exist in any part of the universe. All others are illegal and unauthorized by the king. And any people attempting to govern themselves in spiritual things by laws of their own making, and by officers of their own appointment, are in direct rebellion against the kingdom of God. The antediluvians were destroyed by the flood because they rejected the law of God (gospel); Noah and his family alone were the only legal subjects of the king, and as such were saved. This should be an example to the world, and sufficient evidence that the people ought to be subject to the law of the Almighty. But alas! the posterity of Noah soon became rebellious, and set up for themselves forms of government of their own invention. And coming down the stream of time, but a few centuries go by until we find only a few loyal subjects, such as Melchisedek, Abraham, and a very few others keeping the revealed law.

From that time until the present, at various times, God has asserted his rights, endeavoring to establish the authority and laws of his own government among the children of men, but so great was the opposition manifested by those illegal, rebellious powers, that the adherents to his government while on earth, were very limited in numbers. The majority of mankind made war against it, overcame, killed and destroyed the officers and loyal subjects, until not a vestige of it remained on the earth; the church went into the wilderness, and the man child (authority) ascended up to God (Rev. 12), for 1260 years, until the same should be restored by an angel flying in the midst of heaven, having the everlasting gospel to preach to that dwell on the earth (Rev. 14: 6, 7). For the last 1260 years, before A. D. 1830, the earth has been destitute of the "kingdom of God," entirely destitute of the true, legal government and officers legally authorized to instruct and govern. During that long period of darkness all have acted without authority, not one having been called by the God of heaven. For "no man taketh this honour [authority] unto himself, but that is called of God, as was Aaron [that is by revelation]"—Heb. 5: 1-4. Not one of them received revelation, commandment or communication from the rightful King, the God of heaven. All other authority is assumed and originated in man, and is in direct opposition to the kingdom of God.

The kingdom of God is the only form of government which promises to redeem and save mankind. Therefore, it is necessary that every person should be rightly and thoroughly instructed in regard to its true nature and general characteristics. The beauty, glory, power, wisdom and order of the kingdom of God may be more fully understood by a careful consideration of its parts. We will examine first the nature and the character of the king. God is the king, in him exists all legal authority. He alone has the right of originating or organizing a system of spiritual government on the earth. He claims this right by virtue of creating man and the earth he inhabits. Man is indebted to God for his creation, and if, by virtue of his superior wisdom and power, he could form such an intricate piece of machinery as the earthly tabernacle in which the immortal Spirit dwells, then we must admit that it is sufficiently evident his wisdom and power qualifies him to reign as king, and establish a government calculated to promote peace and happiness, and the best possible conditions for his subjects. This king in former ages visited his subjects; was seen by Adam and talked with Cain; Enoch walked with him more than three hundred years. He commanded Noah, gave authority to Melchisedek, dined with Abraham, talked with Moses face to face, answered Elijah's prayers, manifested himself with evidences to Job and David, gave wisdom to Solomon, and revealed himself to a host of prophets from Adam to John the Baptist.

He then sent his Son, born of a virgin, and he, at the age of thirty years, came to the porter (John the Baptist) who was an authorized officer to admit citizens of the kingdom, and as he, the Son of God, was to be an example for us, he was admitted through the door (baptism) by the porter, to walk in the narrow way, and when he became obedient, God acknowledged him as his Son in whom he was well pleased. After that God manifested himself to his Son by angels and his authorized ministers (Moses and Elias) and said in audible voice to his select and chosen apostles, "This is my beloved Son, hear him." Christ remained three and one-half years as prince to organize his kingdom. He organized it by choosing and setting in this kingdom apostles, prophets, sevens, elders, bishops, priests, teachers, deacons (also seers, revelators, evangelists), helps, governments and divers gifts.

So we see he manifested himself to his legal subjects all the way down the stream of time, and has promised to do so to the end of the world. He set those officers in the church for the "perfecting of the Saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ:" (How long? Let Paul answer). "Till we all come in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ. That we henceforth be no more children, tossed to and fro, and carried about with every wind of doctrine, by the sleight of men, and cunning craftiness, whereby they lie in wait to deceive; but speaking the truth in love, may grow up into him in all things, which is the head, even Christ: from whom the whole body [church] fitly joined together and compacted by that which every joint supplieth according to the effectual working in the measure of every part, maketh increase of the body unto the edifying of itself in love."—Eph. 4: 12-16. The ministry needs this work, and the body needs edifying as much now as at any time in the history of the church; hence, the necessity of all these officers in the church, every one in his proper place to do the work at the proper time and place, and in perfect order in harmony with God's counsel, that the church may be built upon the solid foundation.

As an evidence of their acceptance with him Jesus said, "I have chosen you and ordained you." "And He said unto them, Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth [in all the world], and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned. And [as evidence of acceptance] these signs shall [in all the world] follow them that believe: in my name shall they cast out devils; they shall speak with new tongues; they shall take up serpents; and if they drink any deadly thing it shall not hurt them; they shall lay hands on the sick and they shall recover." (Mark 16: 15-18). Now, if this means anything, it means just what it says. Paul said to the Galatian brethren: "I marvel that ye are so soon removed from Him that called you into the grace of Christ unto another gospel; which is not another; but there be some that trouble you, and would pervert the gospel of Christ. But though we [apostles] or an angel from heaven, preach any other gospel unto you than that which we have preached unto you, let him be accursed. As we [apostles] said before, so say I now again, If any man preach any other gospel unto you than that ye have received, let him be accursed. * * * For I neither received it of man, neither was I taught it, but by the revelation of Jesus Christ." (Galatians 1: 6-9, 12). So you see from the word of God, that if apostles, angels or men go contrary to the word they are under condemnation, and that is not all; the Lord has set watchmen upon the walls to give the people warning, and if they neglect to warn the people He will require their blood at their hands; or if any man shall take the Lord's name in vain, not being called of Him to do his work, he shall be as a blind leader of the blind, and be under condemnation; therefore there is great necessity for present revelation, for He works not with the children of men "only according to their faith." Jesus said that the apostles should not only do the works that he did, but greater. He also said, "My doctrine is not mine, but His that sent me. If any man will do His will, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God, or whether I speak of myself." (John 7: 16, 17). "What doth it profit, my brethren, though a man say he hath faith and have not works? can faith save him? shew me thy faith without thy works, and I will show thee my faith by my works. For as the body without the spirit is dead, so faith without works is dead also." (James 2: 14, 18, 26).

"Thou believest that there is one God; thou doest well: the devils also believe and tremble." (James 2: 19). Those, therefore, who claim salvation is by faith alone, have made themselves like the devils, not being justified by works; a man is justified by works and not by faith only. (See James 2: 24).

The first work is the exercise of faith which comes by hearing the word of God, preached by ministers sent of God and authorized of Him to act in the name of Christ. Second, repentance from dead works and actual (personal) sins; and the first fruit of repentance is baptism; and baptism comes by active faith unto the fulfilling of the commandments; and the fulfilling of the commandments brings remission of sins; and the remission of sins meekness and lowliness of heart; and because of this comes the gift of the Holy Ghost, in the way that God has ordained, viz., the laying on of hands by those in authority. "And besides this giving all diligence, add to your faith virtue; and to virtue knowledge; and to knowledge temperance; and to temperance patience; and to patience godliness; and to godliness brotherly kindness; and to brotherly kindness charity. For if these things be in you, and abound, you shall neither be barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ, but he that lacketh these things is blind. * * * Wherefore, the rather, brethren, give diligence to make your calling and election sure; for if ye do these things ye shall never fall, for so an entrance shall be ministered unto you abundantly into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ."—2 Peter 1: 5-11.

I will now introduce Matthew as a witness. Jesus said in his last commission to His apostles, "Go ye therefore [into all the world] and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost; teaching them to observe ALL things whatsoever I have commanded you: and lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world. Amen. (Matthew 28: 19, 20). After faith comes repentance, "Bring forth therefore fruits, meet for repentance." (Matthew 3: 8). " * * * Thus it be- loved Christ to suffer and to rise from the dead the third day: and that repentance and remission of sins should be preached in his name among old nations, beginning at Jerusalem. And ye are witnesses of these things."—Luke 24: 46-48.

We now come to baptism as a work essential to salvation, it being part of the work to fulfill all righteousness (Matthew 3: 15), and bring St. John as a witness, who, in his testimony, declares that the Lord Jesus taught, "Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God." (John 3: 5). A new creature is brought into existence at a birth, so a man is a new creature when he is truly born again, that is, when he is baptized of water and the Spirit; to him all things have become new because he is a new creature; therefore he has power to become a son of God because he believed on His name and was obedient. (John 1: 12, 13). James wrote this in his testimony, "Of His own will begat He us with the word of truth, that he should be a kind of first fruits to His creatures." (James 1: 18). And God's people, even the publicans, justified God by being baptized of John; but the Pharisees and lawyers of that age (and the man-made preachers of the present age), reject the counsel of God against themselves. They say that water baptism is not essential to salvation. However, they have one promise, and that is, they shall be condemned. Poor consolation indeed.

The last commission was, "Go ye into ALL the world and preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved, but he that believeth not shall be damned." (Mark 16: 15, 16). In this commission we see the absolute necessity of baptism. When the first apostolic sermon was preached, and they were baptized with the Spirit, or Comforter, which should lead into all truth, and when the multitude was convicted, and the question was asked, What shall we do? Peter said, "Repent [that's right], and be baptized [that's wrong, says the man-made preacher, and ought not to have been translated because it is not essential to salvation] every one of you, in the name of Jesus Christ, for the remission of sins, and [as a testimony of your doing this] ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost, for the promise is to you and to your children, and to all that are afar off, even as many [gentiles and all] as the Lord our God shall." (Acts 2: 38, 39). Another testimony is, that an angel told Cornelius to send for Peter, and when he came "He commanded them to be baptized in the name of the Lord." (Acts 10: 48). These testimonies should settle the matter forever. John the Baptist, Christ, Peter, Ananias and Paul all say that baptism is for the remission of sins. God said he was well pleased with His Son, and commanded us to obey Him, and if these witnesses testify to the truth, then all high church authorities who teach to the contrary ought to be set aside as false teachers.

Now, as to the mode of this important ordinance, we examine some witnesses and find that the evidences are strongly in favor of immersion.

"They went into the water."—Matthew 3: 5, 6; Mark 1: 8, 9; John 3: 23.

They were buried with Christ in baptism. (Colossians 3: 12; Romans 6: 3-5). "Therefore we are buried with him by baptism into death," etc.

And now we come to the fourth, a most important principle, the laying on of hands; this important principle has been observed since the earliest history of the church, and is for the gift of the Holy Ghost. God set it in the church and commanded it to be observed; "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, * * * teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world." (Matthew 28: 19, 20). Now, as the laying on of hands is part of the all things spoken of, it is of the greatest importance to know exactly what it is for. Christ came to do the will of the Father, and said, "If a man love me he will keep my words. (John 14: 23): "For this is the love of God, that we keep his commandments."—1 John 5: 3.

To establish this fact I will offer this evidence. First, in early Bible times the laying on of hands was observed for specific purposes, viz., Jacob laid his hands on Ephraim and Manasse, and blessed them; Moses laid his hands on Joshua and blessed him as his successor in leading the Israelites.

Second, It was used in apostolic times: "Jesus ordained the apostles, and the apostles ordained others, also they laid on hands for the gift of the Holy Ghost," (see Acts 8: 19); also for the healing of the sick, see Mark 16: 18, also James 5. We are informed that Paul laid his hands on Timothy and prayed; God respected his prayer and sent the Holy Ghost upon them, which enabled Paul to predict concerning Timothy's future usefulness, if faithful, and manifest his most excellent gift; not by Paul's wisdom, but by the Holy Spirit of God. "For the prophecy came not in old time by the will of man: but holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost."—2 Peter 1: 21.

Third, The laying on of hands is one of the principles of the doctrine of Christ, and a commandment, and is therefore essential to salvation. No Christian believes that the Savior would impose a doctrine upon mankind which is not for their spiritual good. "Therefore, [not] leaving the principles of the doctrine of Christ, let us go on unto perfection; not laying again the foundation of repentance from dead works, and of faith toward God, of the doctrine of baptisms, and of laying on of hands, and of the resurrection of the dead, and of eternal judgment." (Heb. 6: 1, 2). Here the laying on of hands is declared to be a principle of the doctrine of Christ, and Jesus said: "My doctrine is not mine, but his that sent me." (John 7: 16). "For I have not spoken of myself, but the Father which sent me. He gave me a commandment what I should say, and what I should speak, and I know his commandment is life everlasting." (John 12: 49, 50). These teachings of Christ were the commandments of the Father wherein is promised "everlasting life." Hence, Paul, who did not shun to declare the whole counsel of God, said, "I neither received it of man, neither was I taught it, but by the revelation of Jesus Christ." (Gal. 1: 12). Paul taught this fourth principle of the gospel; who, then, can say that the laying on of hands is not necessary for the reception of the gift of the Holy Ghost? That is the earnest of the Spirit, whereby we may know that God is our Father. For if He gives us any of these good gifts, such as "wisdom, knowledge, faith, he also gives gifts of healing, working of miracles, prophecy, discerning of spirits, gift of tongues and interpretation of tongues (1 Cor. 12: 8-10), as all are included together in the description given by Paul. "Thy word is truth," nothing must be added to it, and nothing taken away. It shall accomplish the thing whereunto it is sent, and shall not return unto God void.

A message of truth sent from God, published by divine authority, through divinely inspired men, penetrates the mind with undeviating exactness, dividing between truth and error; between the doctrine of Christ, and the doctrines of men. It is easily seen that every argument of human learning that may be arrayed against it, opinions, creeds of uninspired men, and doctrines originating in the schools of divinity, will all vanish like morning dew, will all sink into insignificance, when compared with a message direct from heaven. Such a message shines upon the understanding like the splendors of the noontide sun; its sound comes to the ears of mortals, saying, "This is the way, walk ye in it." Certainty and assurance are its constant companions; it is unlike all the plans and systems invented by human authority, it has no fellowship with any of them; it speaks with authority, and all nations are required to obey. He that receives the message, obeys the command and endures to the end shall be saved, but he that rejects the counsel of God shall be damned.

And now, as light has come into the world, and God's church has been organized, messengers sent forth to make the proclamation, he that hears and rejects the message cannot be excused. I hope this may edify the honest in heart, and be a warning to those who reject the counsel of God. We have sought to bring forth the testimony of the witnesses in this kingdom, and the witnesses are: Matthew, Mark, Luke and John, who all testify of these things according to their knowledge; we find that John the Baptist, Jesus and God are all in harmony in doctrine, and that Peter, James and John, at the mount of transfiguration, testifies that God was well pleased with Jesus for obedience. Peter, Ananias and Paul testify that baptism is for the remission of sin; Peter, James and Paul recommend good works, and that Peter, James, Paul and others practiced the laying on of hands for the reception of the Holy Ghost which are all essential to salvation.

SOME "FACTS."

REVIEW OF AN ARTICLE ENTITLED "INVESTIGATION," IN THE MEXICO, NEW YORK, Independent, JANUARY 31, 1900.

The Independent having by editorial notification closed its columns after the appearance of two articles on each side of a contention, publication is sought for this in the interest of truth and fact.

Some one whose standing and courage, one, or both, is lacking so much as to wish not to be known after making an assault through the public press, and whose name has been as publicly asked for, still signs as "Inquirer." "A soldier of the cross" who dare not be known. Is he recommending well his work?

The purpose of the previous, as well as the article now being reviewed, was to make out that the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, and Utah Mormonism were one and the same. Whether designedly or accidentally, much to my advantage, occurs this in his own words, "The principal difference was plural marriage which the Iowa church condemns, and which the Utah church does not mention in its articles of faith, but as strongly believes that Joseph Smith had what were called spiritual wives." Thanks, verily, "Inquirer," for stating the difference so nicely on one point. You will get right if you just keep on—keep on, please do.

Utah Mormons have tried much longer than you, "Inquirer," to fasten upon Joseph Smith the having had "spiritual wives;" they have as gloriously failed.

In two important court decisions Joseph Smith stands exonerated, one of them being a United States Circuit Court decision; and thus is the purity of the writings of Joseph Smith emphasized. "Inquirer," I do not envy you your company and assistants, the Utah Mormons, in trying to fasten upon a man dead for half a century that of which his life's record and court decisions show he was innocent. The Book of Mormon translated by Joseph Smith says (Jacob 2: 6): "There shall not any man among you have save it be one wife, and concubines he shall have none." Not anything differing from this can be found produced by Joseph Smith, you and the Utah Mormons to the contrary notwithstanding.

A host of infidels and Jews believe Christ was an illegitimate son of Mary, but that does not happen to make it so; nor would it if they were as numerous as "the sands of the seashore." Whatever Utah Mormons believe, and as many others as wish, about Joseph Smith, that does not change the facts. To fasten the name "Mormon" (since "Utah Mormonism" means polygamy) has been attempted by many before you, "Inquirer," as a "make-weight" against the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints; but eternity, if at your command, and all the world's apparatus for printing as well, would not make it possible. Ignorance, prejudice and bigotry have their day and devotees. People of pure motives and honest purposes will investigate for themselves and reach their own conclusions. The name of the original church was "The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints." The "Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints" is its legal successor—so declared by the courts in addition to its legalization of same by incorporation according to the laws of Illinois and Iowa.

So, "Inquirer," it is still "not Mormon at all," much as you would like to have it so. The word "Mormon" applies to the Book of Mormon because a man named Mormon compiled what now comprises the Book of Mormon, many centuries ago on this continent. Because one time believers in the Book of Mormon went into polygamy under Brigham Young, does not change the facts of the book. Book of Mormon, Jacob 2:6 still reads: "There shall not any man among you have save it be one wife, and concubines he shall have none." No person or persons should ever have been called Mormons for that matter, for believers in the Bible are not called Bibles.

The Book of Mormon story of the wonderful past of this wonderful continent is supported by the facts of sixty years discovery. Any amount of comparisons have been made before yours, "Inquirer," the Cardiff giant, Korau, work of Confucius, etc.

The Book of Mormon is being sold in larger quantity constantly and its reasonable story believed as a result.

The Book of Mormon is neither the Bible, nor a Bible, nor does it take the place of the Bible. It was the same to this continent that the Bible was to the other, as the Bible was not here till Columbus brought it, or some one since. Should the myriads of millions which the architectural ruins show were here, highly civilized and developed, have had no revelation of God's will? Are only the people of the other continent and those of this, since the time of Columbus, to be judged in the great day to come? or will all be? If all will be, should they all have had a record so as to be informed equally as to God, etc.?

You are bad off. "Inquirer," not to have a name. What is worse, you have undertaken what all the world cannot do. And so you say of my predecessor, "In the church at Palermo he said, 'In my opinion if it were not for the Book of Mormon, in fifty years the Bible would be of no more use to us than a last year's almanac.'" Now don't you see, "Inquirer," since you have no name you cannot be sworn as to whether he did, or did not, and if you were and did so swear, no doubt more than a score who have names would be found to swear in justice that your statement was untrue. None but a shorthand reporter could have got that sentence of so many words just that way. It is just probable that my predecessor never had a shorthand reporter there as a listener. But let me show you a point if there was, and he recorded it. You say he said, "In my opinion." You see then, he did not say in the opinion of our church. Should he have stated so unlikely a thing, it would have only been his "my opinion." The church does not so believe.

I think, "Inquirer," if you ever get old enough, large enough, or courageous enough, or whatever else you lack and be named, you will then get on better with such a difficult task—by telling it alone!

Wishing you, "Inquirer," health, happiness, prosperity and all that is good for mortals and among the rest, the acquisition of a name. A real nice one, I have the pleasure to be,

Respectfully,

R. ETZENHOUSER.

Elder of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Are You the One? Is it You?

"Study to show thyself approved," was Paul's advice to Timothy, and the same advice is fitting many of the servants of the church today.

One of the lines in which much improvement could be made is to learn to speak properly and study variety. It becomes monotonous for one to pray the identical prayer in opening preaching services for another, until the assembly who has heard him pray so often, knows what he is going to say before he gives utterance to the words, and are amused at the repetition of the same they heard on each previous occasion. Repetitions become unpleasant to the lover of variety and evidences thoughtlessness. Some never vary the wording when offering thanks at the table, whether it be the morning, noon or evening meal. They have learned the song and never vary from it.

Others have the habit of saying "do you see?" when talking to any one on most any theme. Every few words the "do you see?" will be put into the song, let it be what it may. It becomes very annoying to the delicate ear and the frequent repetition of "do you see" destroys the force of the balance said. Still others use "you know" between every few words whether speaking on themes understood by the person or persons spoken to or not. There are those who seemingly could not talk to any one a few moments without using "you know" a number of times. And to hear a Latter Day Saint bear testimony in Saints' meeting and speak at length and about every fourth word use "you know" would amuse most any one, especially those given to levity. The phrase should seldom be used in testimony lest it become a habit; those who use it most do not seem to notice themselves doing so.

Some so mispronounce words and thus destroy the force of the proper word that the effect is bad on some hearers; instance, "everlasten" for everlasting; "un" for them; "git" for get; "airth" for earth; "drowneded" for drowned; "borned" for born; "vineyard," emphasizing the last syllable, while the accent should be on the first, with the e silent; "children of men" is read "children of min" by some. The city of Samaria where Philip preached is called by some "St. Marys." We have heard the 3d verse of hymn No. 129 in the Harp read thus:

Sing the Son's amazing love,

It was amusing to numbers who heard.

Not a few have the words "sez zi," "sez za," "sez zhe" very pat, and those who use these phrases seem to have more than an average gift of conceit, highly esteeming their ability as conversationalists. "I am here to tell you," is a pet phrase with some and being often repeated becomes unpleasant to cultured ears.

Some have a habit of relating their dreams and visions very, very often; even these become stale after being rehearsed so frequently. Another grating sound is in hearing Isaiah pronounced "Izaur," and Jeremiah called "Jeremiur."

What a pity that parents will continue all their lives using language in the presence of their children (who will of course imitate father and mother) such as calling potatoes "taters," onions "inguns," horseshoes "hosses" or "hoss," and cows "keows," and children "kids," but if the parents look upon themselves as being Billy and Nanny goats, then of course their offspring must be "kids." Does it not sound horrible to hear parents using such expressions as "dogon," "I'll be dogon," or "I'll be dogged," or "I'll swear," or "I'll be witched." The children catch all these and use them, thinking it right because Pa and Ma does. O! why are not parents thoughtful of their example?

Some pray in an unnatural voice or tone and ask blessings at the table in a different tone or voice than they use in common conversation. I think the better way is to be natural in voice and tone in prayer as well as anywhere else, and to draw out the words in a pathetic or unnatural tone makes one think of the Pharisees Jesus spoke of praying in a way of which he did not approve.

Another unpleasant feature about some is, they seem to delight in conversing in a loud and boisterous way, not trying to control the voice and talk in a pleasant, agreeable tone. Voices can be cultivated and made sweet and pleasant if the proper care is taken relative thereto. Have we not met persons whose voices were so sweet and agreeable that it was a great pleasure to hear them converse? while the voice of others was so unpleasant to the ear that we could not enjoy their presence.

In all these lines we could improve and become more agreeable to others who are free from many of those things to which reference has been made as disagreeable and far behind the times in which we live, with facilities so numerous and within our reach to get free from unbecoming phrases, words and actions. My object in referring to these things is to arouse in some an effort to improve themselves by being thoughtful and careful.

MORMONS vs. GENTILES.

VIROQUA TO BE THE SEAT OF A DISCUSSION BETWEEN APOSTLE WHITE AND MR. CLARK BRADEN.

Some time ago we published an article in regard to the Mormon religion, the topic being suggested by the presence, in this vicinity, of a young Mormon elder, who was upholding that religious faith on Pleasant Ridge. The young man finally left the neighborhood for a time, but recently returned. His presence in the neighborhood was so odious that the friends of the Christian religion sent to Illinois for a man well posted on the Mormon system of religion, to come and discuss the question with the follower of Jos. Smith.

Mr. Clark Braden, president of the Southern Illinois Christian College, responded and arrived here last week. He spoke three times in the hall at Pleasant Ridge, but Elder Wildermuth refused to discuss the Mormon question with him, but telegraphed for Apostle White, who has challenged the world to a discussion. Mr. Braden also wrote Mr. White, accepting the challenge, and, as a result, the apostle has promised to be here in Viroqua next Tuesday to debate the question with Mr. Braden.

The meetings will be held in the church of Christ and will begin Tuesday evening if Mr. White arrives. The debate will probably draw a large audience, and if Mr. White is as good a speaker as Mr. Braden there will be "hot time" in Viroqua in religious matters. All who are interested are invited to attend.

Agreement for a public discussion between I. N. White, of Independence, Missouri, one of the twelve apostles of "The Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints," and Clark Braden of Alma, Illinois, president of the Southern Illinois Christian College, in Viroqua, Wisconsin:

I. The discussion shall commence at 7:30 o'clock, Tuesday p. m., February 27, 1900, and continue twelve successive nights, six sessions of two hours each being given to discussion of each proposition.

II. Each session shall be composed of two speeches by each disputant, to be alternate half hour speeches, excepting the opening speeches on each proposition, which shall be an hour each, the affirmative opening and the negative closing the discussion of each proposition.

PROVIDED: That in the final speeches no new matter shall be introduced, except by mutual consent.

III. Each disputant shall choose a moderator, and these two shall choose a third, who shall act as chairman. The duties of the moderators shall be the usual duties of moderators of such assemblies.

IV. Each session shall be opened and closed by prayer, the disputants alternating, in person, or by representation.

V. From the time the chairman shall call the meeting to order until he announces that the audience has been dismissed, there shall be no manifestations of approval or of disapproval whatever, by any one whatever.

VI. In the discussion of the issues the Bible shall be the standard of authority; all other

A REMARKABLE GIFT.

$40,000 GIVEN AWAY; THE EMINENT PHYSICIAN AND SCIENTIST, FRANKLIN MILES, M. D., LL. B., GIVES TWO DOLLARS AND A HALF WORTH OF HIS MARVELOUS NEW TREATMENT FREE.

Such remarkable generosity has seldom, if ever, been equaled by a physician. It will enable many thousands of people suffering from lingering diseases of the nerves, brain, heart, liver or stomach to obtain medicine free of charge and to test the marvelous curative properties of Dr. Miles' latest Personal Treatment.

Few physicians will permit every one of their patients to test their skill and their treatment free of charge, because few have such unlimited confidence and the best the most wonderful success. What can be fairer and more liberal?

Many hundreds of references from Bishops, Ministers, Business Men, Farmers and their wives, sent free. Dr. Miles' new Personal Treatment has cured hundreds of cases pronounced "incurable." It is a most remarkable improvement on the usual treatment and is eminently scientific.

The eminent divine and editor, Rev. Wm. M. Bell, of Dayton, Ohio, says editorially in the Sunday School Union: "We desire to make you our personal acquaintance, we know Dr. Miles to be a most skilled specialist, a man who has spared neither labor nor money to keep himself abreast of the great advancement in medical science. He is withal a thorough and conscientious gentleman and his offices are constantly thronged with people who come from all parts of the country to avail themselves of his very great skill."

Mr. Julius Keister, of 350 Michigan Ave., Chicago, testifies that Mr. Miles cured him after ten able physicians had failed to do so. He is now at St. Cloud Rapids, cured after failure of eleven physicians. Mrs. Lizzie Renfrew, Wedington, Ark.; Mrs. W. A. Warren, of Jamestown, N. Y., were entirely cured.

Do not fail to write to The Dr. Miles Medical Association, 201 to 209 State St., Chicago, for examination blank, and $2.50 worth of Treatment Free just suited to your case.

In all matters not provided for in these special rules, the discussion, shall be governed by "Hedge's Rules" as published in the "Braden-Kelley Debate."

The propositions discussed and the order of discussion shall be:

I. N. WHITE, Affirms;

CLARK BRADEN, Denies.

(b) "Is the Christian church (commonly nick-named Campbellites), in fact the church of God; harmonizing in faith, doctrine, organization and practice, with the Church of Christ set up by divine authority 1800 years ago?"

CLARK BRADEN, Affirms;

I. N. WHITE, Denies.

CANCER.

A BLOOD DISEASE AND CURABLE.

Editor of Zion's Ensign.—Twenty or twenty-five years ago, old Dr. Gillam, the distinguished specialist of Atlanta, demonstrated that Cancer, in any form, was due to a malignant, deadly poison in the Blood, and by using B. B. B. (Botanic Blood Balm) this poison was gradually drained from the system, then the sores healed, and a real permanent cure was made. Up to the present time B. B. B. has cured hundreds of cases where the knife, doctors and patent medicines failed to cure. Here is one case. Mrs. E. Story, of Frédonia, Alabama, writes under date of October 15, 1898: "Lately an eating Cancer broke out in my head and ears, and ate all the small bones out of my mouth, and I could scarcely eat and talk. I could eat a little strained soup, that was all. I tried nine doctors, but none could cure me, my case was pronounced hopeless, so I tried B. B. B., and was cured. The disease made me most deaf. B. B. B. helped my hearing. Respectfully, "MRS. E. STORY."

We will send any reader of Zion's Ensign a sample bottle of B. B. B. free of charge, and prepaid, so they may test the medicine and know for themselves that B. B. B. is the remedy for cancer, eating sores, ulcers, persistent eruptions, and all malignant blood troubles. It is remarkable how quickly it heals every sore, improves the digestion, and gives a clear, healthy appearance to the skin. B. B. B. is for sale in large bottles by druggists at $1.00 or six bottles (full treatment) $5.00. Complete instructions go with each bottle. For trial bottle and other information enclose five cents which pays exact cost of postage (medicine is free) and address Blood Balm Co., 86 Mitchell St., Atlanta, Georgia. Describe your trouble, and personal medical advice will be given.

Healed up Nicely.

DR. BYE.

Kind Friend.—I received your letter of the 20th and was glad to hear from you. I didn't think I would write you a letter every week, as I am well. My face has been well a long time, and it has healed up nicely, and did not leave much of a scar on my face. I remain your friend,

THE Autobiography of Elder Joseph Luff, of the apostle's quorum, is a book full of interest from beginning to end. Bro. Luff is so widely and so favorably known in and out of the church in his years of service in gospel work, that the mere mention of a work of this kind being offered should create a desire to possess it. Two fine sermons are included in its pages and the price is so reasonable that every Saint's home should have this book in their library. It's a splendid thing for the Sunday School library also. 75 cents cloth, postage prepaid.

Frazier, Elder II. A. Stebbins of Lamoni, Iowa, officiating. Prior to the ceremony he preached a sermon upon the divine institution and purpose of marriage as God gave it for the happiness of mankind. After the dinner at the home of Bro. and Sr. Kent, the couple left for Audubon, Iowa, to there make their home. The groom is a photographer in business for years in that place.

DIED.

MOES.—At Hamburg, Iowa, Bro. William H. Moss. He was born September 30, 1826, at Halifax, Virginia; came to Iowa in 1851; was baptized into the Reorganized church of Christ December 10, 1894, and was 73 years, and 5 months old at his death. SCHALL.—At Monte Vista, Colorado, February 4, 1900, after an illness of two weeks, from teaching and bowel trouble which resulted in spinal meningitis, Bertha Eleanor, daughter of Mr. J. "I take these little lambs, said He, And lay them in my breast: Protection they shall find in me, In me be ever blest."

THROAT REST. You can cough yourself into bronchitis, pneumonia, and consumption. Bandaging and bundling your throat will do no good. You must give your throat and lungs rest and allow the cough wounds to heal. There is nothing so bad for a cough as coughing. Stop it by using AYER'S Cherry Pectoral. Even the cough of early consumption is cured. And, later on, when the disease is firmly fixed, you can bring rest and comfort in every case. A 25 cent bottle will cure new coughs and colds; the 50 cent size is better for settled coughs of bronchitis and weak lungs; the one dollar size is more economical for chronic cases and consumption. It's the size you should keep on hand. "All families ought to be on the watch for sudden attacks of croup or other lung troubles. Every country house in the land should keep Ayer's Cherry Pectoral constantly on hand to provide against an emergency." J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass., U.S.A. Dec. 14, 1899. Holland, Mich.

EVIDENCES.

It is a wise individual who, before taking any action affecting his welfare or happiness, whether for time or eternity, has carefully considered the matter in all its bearings so far as his capability may permit and the opportunities afford, and satisfied himself from the evidence thus adduced that it is for his best interest to adopt the measure contemplated. But he is unwise who neglects to seek for information as to the truth or falsity of any matter, the accepting or rejection of which is of serious import to him. Every one's character is the result of teachings and theories imbibed from childhood. Some ideas which have been adopted, and some theories which have been received as truth because of having confidence in the knowledge and integrity of others, have had to be changed and rejected as better experience manifested their falsity, or accumulating evidences established their untenableness; and the character has been more nearly perfected by the substitution of that which has been demonstrated as truth. And yet, what is sometimes accepted as strong and indubitable evidence of a truth, may in reality be deceptive and erroneous, leading to an adoption of that which is quite the opposite of the truth.

The servants of Christ, when presenting the promise of the Lord (Mark 16: 17, 18), that certain gifts of the gospel, or manifestations of the Holy Spirit shall follow the obedient believer now, in this day and age, the same as in earlier times, are often challenged to work a miracle, or show the people a sign, that they may be convinced by ocular demonstration that the preacher is telling the truth; and though these same individuals, as a rule, have decided in their minds that the work which these ministers are presenting is a fraud, and those engaged in its promulgation deceivers, yet notwithstanding all this, if these servants of Christ will only perform a miracle they say they will accept it as evidence that the signs shall follow those who obey the gospel, and they will thenceforth join in that which they believe is fraudulent, and assist to perpetuate it. Fine philosophy that. The devil is looking for opportunities of that kind, and as he is an adept at working miracles, having been engaged in that business for over four thousand years, he can and will show these sign seekers some things so marvelous in their character, and so utterly beyond their ability to account for them except upon the theory of the supernatural, that they will be led to offer themselves as devotees to any preposterous doctrine connected with that miracle-working power; but it will not be the "law of life in Christ Jesus" nor will it save them; but on the other hand will work their condemnation in the end.

Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name? and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name have done many wonderful works? And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you: depart from me, ye that work iniquity.—Matt. 7: 22, 23.

Miracles or the gifts of the gospel serve a good purpose in the gospel economy as a confirmation, comfort and strength to those who have obeyed the gospel; but there is no warrant in the Scripture for the assertion or the belief that they ever were intended to convert the unbeliever, being a sign to him that the doctrine taught by the one working the miracle was true. As shown, this would be a very dangerous and improper test, for the adversary of all righteousness is thoroughly proficient in that line. Hence, a sign would not be conclusive evidence of the divinity of the doctrine taught by any man independent of that which he taught, and those who are so unwise as to pin their faith to supernatural manifestations alone, are offering a challenge to the adversary which he is more than likely to accept, to the final discomfiture of the challenger. The blossoms on the tree in the spring cannot be said to be life, but it is undeniable evidence that life exists in the tree and its branches. So while the signs of the gospel as indicated by the Savior, and enlarged upon by the Apostle Paul in his letter to the Corinthian brethren, are not the gospel itself, they are, nevertheless, the conclusive evidence of truth when accompanied by the doctrine of Christ, but never, otherwise.

Many signs in the events daily transpiring evidence that we are now living in the evening of time, almost the end of the last dispensation; consequent upon this fact, important changes are taking place in the conditions governing among men, and the power, of both God and the devil, is being increased marvelously. Among the Saints it has been witnessed that we are now in the "hastening time," and an increased activity has been called for all along the line. But while the Father is bestowing an increase of spiritual power and blessings upon His people, exhorting them to "come up higher" in spirituality and devotion to the principles of righteousness, the adversary has not failed to note these conditions and to make strong efforts to meet them; he also has increased his power in the world, in many instances causing his servants to counterfeit and duplicate—apparently—many of the marvelous signs from the Lord, as in the case of James and Jambres, who withstood Moses, the servant of God, with their astonishing and deceptive miracles, to the confusion of those who were witnessing the contest, hardening the hearts of the unbelievers: so that today, where the Saints can refer to an instance of miraculous power manifest upon God's people as evidence that the truth is with them in the gospel they preach, others can point to scores of similar manifestations, perhaps done in the name of Jesus the Christ, and assert them as evidences of the truth being with them. Under such conditions, existing as they now do, something other than miraculous powers alone must be produced as evidence of the divinity and stability of that which presents claims to being the doctrine of Christ. This is found in that which is "written," as practiced and taught by the Savior and His apostles, and such example and doctrine, united with the spiritual manifestations authorized by the Lord, may be depended upon as being worthy of acceptance and testing, for the personal witness of the Holy Spirit promised to those who obey the gospel—do the will of the Father.

Evidence is necessary to a right understanding and adoption of any matter; but the character or class of such evidence needs to be closely investigated when vital interests are at stake. A great many things pass for, and are sometimes accepted as, evidence, which are wholly unreliable and unworthy of the name of evidence; for instance, the numerous writers of so-called exposes of Mormonism (?) all testify, in one form or another, that Joseph Smith, the martyr, was, in his youth, idle, superstitious and unlearned; and then, a few pages farther on, will show him to have been one of the most diligent, hard-working, as well as intelligent youths of his age, digging for money (?) in his earlier days, and later on compiling from a romance (?) a book that the combined wisdom and learning of the world for seventy years has been unable to overthrow. Yet, notwithstanding these and other inconsistencies and contradictions, minister and laymen, the learned and unlearned, accept such unreliable vapors, and name it evidence, and we may, perhaps, agree that in a certain sense, it is evidence, not relating to the truth or falsity of the mission and work of Joseph Smith and his associates, but of the folly of these individuals in permitting their intelligence to be so misused as to base their investigation of that which claims to be divine, upon such flimsy and unstable authority.

"By their fruits [teachings and works] shall ye know them," is an admonition to all to search carefully and "prove all things; hold fast that which is good."

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

MR. W. E. ALDERMAN and wife, Stafford, Kansas, who have been members of the Brighamite church, have recently been investigating the teachings and belief of that body a little more fully than they had previously had opportunity to do, with the result that they have withdrawn from that body and returned their certificates of baptism to Elder W. T. Jack, president Southwestern States mission, St. Johns, Kansas. There are others who are investigating along these lines and will probably take the same action. Bro. John C. Conner, of the Independence branch, has been corresponding with them and has succeeded in showing up the true position of the Brighamite church. They are said to be fine people, and they have certainly shown their integrity by leaving the Brighamites when the unsoundness of that faith was shown to them. They would be pleased to hear some of the elders of the Reorganized church preach.

COL. JOHN DONIPHAN, of St. Joseph, Missouri, read a paper before the "Old Settlers' Society," of Kansas City, in room J of the Public Library building, Thursday evening of last week, March 1st, taking as his subject, "Mormonism in Missouri." There were quite a number of elderly people present and the paper was listened to with close attention. The colonel began by stating that fifty-six years ago he stood on the banks of the mighty Missouri (river) when Kansas City had but three stores, and Randolph six, contrasting the splendid growth of Kansas City since then, to its present dimensions and importance. He then took up the subject proper and gave what purported to be a history of the "Mormons" from the time they first arrived in Independence until their expulsion by the mob. The lecturer disappointed some of his audience in that what was presented was not his own personal experience and recollections, but the statements and recollections of others. The first part of the narrative, concerning the Saints at Kirland, Ohio, he quoted from memory, the statements of Rev. Jasper J. Moss who, he said, had for some time lived at Kirland. He also quoted a letter from his uncle, Gen'l A. W. Doniphan, giving his recollections of events that occurred in Missouri with which he was personally connected. Brn. R. May, M. T. Short, T. C. Kelley and W. H. Garrett were present at the lecture, the two former brethren presenting some criticisms on the lecture at the close, correcting some of the inaccuracies read. They were treated courteously, and while Col. R. W. Hilliker, vice president of the society, who was in the chair on that occasion, stated that it was not a debating society, and that they were interested simply in the history, yet the Saints would be given the privilege of giving their side of the matter in a lecture before the society at any time, so that those who came after these members would have opportunity of judging which was correct. We shall probably give our readers the lecture in full next week; it will at least serve to show how some who passed through some of the early experiences, view it after a lapse of many years.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

ELDER C. P. WELSH, Quincy, Missouri:

The Lord's work in the Clinton (Missouri) district is still progressing. I held services at Monegan Springs the first part of January, which tended to remove prejudice and lay bare a great amount of error. Baptized one lady and others are much interested. From there I went to Hickory county, preached six sermons in the branch there and baptized one young lady. Thus the good work goes on.

ELDER I. N. ROBERTS, Perham, Minnesota:

I have just closed a two weeks' meeting at the Dead Lake school-house. Had good attendance and interest. Some got mad and called the doctrine rotten, but they took good care not to tell me of it. We will get some members there in the spring. I had good liberty. Bro. F. D. Omas baptized Miss Katie Jepsen, a school teacher, at Evergreen two weeks ago; she was confirmed one week ago by the writer, the good Spirit being present in the confirmation.

GENERAL CHURCH NEWS.

INDEPENDENCE.

Presidents Joseph and Alexander H. Smith are expected to be with us over Sunday, and possibly Bro. Heman C. Smith, of the apostles.

Sr. Roy Newkirk still lingers in a very weak condition and subject to hemorrhages. Everything possible is being done for her and we still hope to hear of her ultimate recovery.

Bro. Joseph Westwood, Sr., has been quite ill the past week. He is an aged veteran in the Lord's service who is waiting the summons of the Father to come home to his rest. He has wrought a good work.

Bro. and Sr. Burr Lohr are the proud possessors of a much prized little daughter who made her advent Sunday afternoon last. May she live to be a comfort to all around her and a useful member of the Lord's fold.

Bro. and Sr. Gomer Wells and baby reached Independence Wednesday evening. They were warmly greeted. Having been traveling the past thirty days they are naturally glad to be at the end of their journey for the present. They are guests of Bro. and Sr. R. G. Smith on North Delaware street.

We regret to hear that Bro. Bruce, son of Bro. and Sr. M. B. Williams, of Kansas City, Missouri, is very low with typhoid-malaria fever, and from a human standpoint no hopes are given for his recovery. We trust, however, that through the administration of the gospel ordinance he may yet recover and do good service in the Master's cause.

Sunday was a fair day, and there was a good attendance at the services at the church. At eleven o'clock Bro. Joseph Luff occupied along lines canvassed in his effort the previous Sunday. It was instructive and enjoyable. At night Bishop Hilliard preached a good, practical discourse which was interesting and uplifting. The afternoon service was profitable.

We forgot to mention last week that a very enjoyable surprise party was tendered Sr. Cordie Short, eldest daughter of Bro. and Sr. M. T. Short, Monday night of last week. About fifty of our young people were present and had a very happy time. Sr. Cordie is a very estimable young lady and has made many friends since she with her parents, took up their residence in Independence.

Monday night the branch met in regular monthly business session, President G. E. Harrington in the chair, J. W. Luff, clerk. After the usual reports of officers were read, the treasurer's report was presented, showing total receipts for February, $41.72; expenses, $21.85; balance, $19.87. Tract fund, $9.87. Auditing committee reported, building committees treasurer's accounts examined and books correctly footed; report adopted. A recommendation that the collector of the building committee make an itemized report of amounts collected, at the same time that the treasurer makes his report, so that there may be something from which the auditors may check the books of the treasurer, was adopted. Statistical report was read as follows: last report, 1018; present, 1024; net gain, 6. Letter of removal from Peoria, Illinois, to Kewanee, Illinois, branch for Bro. Wm. Rhodes, which was not presented to that branch for membership, was read, and membership in this branch requested, which was granted. The following delegates to district conference were named; G. E. Harrington, H. H. Robinson, R. J. Parker, M. T. Short, G. H. Hilliard, W. H. Garrett, Josiah Curtis, Joseph Luff, Wm. M. Aylor and W. T. Bozarth. Brn. H. H. Robinson, O. S. Noble and Sr. Flower were appointed a committee on entertainment, and adjournment was then taken.

Religio and Sunday School conventions of the Independence district meet in the stone church tomorrow; the Religio at 10 a. m., and the Sunday School at 2 p. m. On Saturday at 10 a. m. the district conference will commence its sessions. Committees of entertainment have been appointed so that visiting brethren and sisters will be cared for. There should, by all means, be a large attendance of Independence Saints at ALL these sessions, so that visitors may see that the Saints here, not only have, but manifest a deep interest in the Lord's work and in doing their duty for its progress. Arrange your work, all who possibly can, and attend all the meetings. We only have them here once a year, and the occasion is worthy a little extra effort.

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS.

A sample of the Illinois winter weather of our boyhood days has visited us, bringing much snow and a zero atmosphere. As we write it snows very hard.

Bro. and Sr. F. G. Pitt arrived in the city on Friday morning on a belated train. They look well physically, and feel glad to return to home and loved ones. To them was tendered a reception on Saturday night at the meeting place, which was well attended, and a happy evening was spent in entertainment and social handshaking.

Our union service yesterday, was fully up to the average in attendance and spirituality. During the meeting Bro. Grabsky was ordained to the office of priest by Brn. Cooper, Pitt and Pement.

There will be a reception and luncheon on Saturday night next at the Lang mission, 3411 Cottage Grove avenue, in honor of the return of Bro. F. G. Pitt and wife, also the uniting of Canada and United States, as Canada's representative man, Elder R. C. Evans, is expected to be present and add interest and zest to the occasion. All are invited.

Bro. F. G. Pitt preached at the Lang Mission Sunday morning, and Bro. S. C. Good at night. Bro. Pement occupied at Park Side, and Bro. Pitt at 716 Van Buren, at night.

Bro. R. C. Evans is expected to preach at the Lang Mission at 10:45 a. m., Sunday next. At 716 Van Buren street (branch headquarters) at 2:45 p. m.; and at West Pullman, at 7:30 p. m. Chicago is a poor place for missionaries to come to rest. Everlasting vigil is our motto.

Bro. Wm. Pitt and family, of the center city, are visiting in Chicago with relatives, coming to greet the return of his parents. They will remain a few days before returning to their Zion home.

We held a three hours private controversy with Elder Kelsch and five of his associates on Wednesday night, by special appointment. The chief point at issue was the "presidency", not having time to reach the "abominable features." Elder Kelsch thinks the ENSIGN stretched the truth in intimating that he ran away from the reply at Independence, stating that he had an appointment in St. Louis. He accused us of making the statement that their elders were afraid to meet ours in debate. I replied that I thought I had made such a statement, and would make it again here and now, and asked him if he was willing to enter into an arrangement for a public debate in Chicago. He answered it would do no good, and thus refused. Fairness and justice toward all.

I am still for the "Reorganization and the books."

SECOND KANSAS CITY BRANCH.

Corner Sixth and Chestnut and Pennsylvania avenue. Sunday School 9:30 a. m., preaching 11 a. m., prayer meeting 2:30 p. m., preaching 7:30 p. m.

Elder Wm. Newton and wife, from England, visited the branch last Sunday, and Elder Newton led the afternoon prayer meeting, a good, spiritual time being enjoyed.

Last week the Religio and Sunday School elected delegates to the district convention at Independence, Missouri, on March 9th. The branch will elect delegates to conference next Thursday, and they will have an encouraging report to carry up.

Some of the Saints have expressed an intention of going to General Conference, and some will attend General Convention of Sunday School and Religio on 3d, 4th and 5th of April.

DENVER, COLORADO.

Church, corner of 22d and Arapahoe Sts. Services Sunday:—Sunday School at 9:45 a. m.; preaching at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.; sacrament service the first Sunday in each month at 6 p. m. Prayer meeting Wednesday evening. Zion's Religio-Literary Society Friday evening.

Sunday was cool and damp; the weather man predicted snow but it has not come yet.

Elder C. R. Duncan came down Tuesday, and, with the writer, has been arranging for the new district tent; we expect to have it ready to move as soon as the weather will permit of tent work.

Elder A. C. Barmore, of the Pacific Slope mission, gave us a call Thursday and left for Omaha after the Literary prayer meeting Friday night.

Elders Anderson, of Lamoni, and Phillips, of Boston, arrived

Sunday just in time for the evening sacrament service.

Bro. Duncan was the speaker at the morning service, and Bro. Anderson in the evening. Bro. Anderson is the only one of the elders from west that has called at Denver in time to preach for us; we hope we may fare better as the elders return to their western missions after conference.

Bro. Duncan has arranged for meetings at Lakewood, a suburb about eight miles out, beginning next Sunday.

We had a grand-daughter of Heber C. Kimball at the Sunday evening service; I guess they intended to find the Utah church, but did not learn the difference till after the meeting, but I guess they were not any the losers by the mistake. S.

March 5.

ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI.

We had our share of the blizzard, and now the rain promises all manner of colds and malaria.

Our "Povurty" social was a success in every way, we believe. Very nearly $25 was realized, and those present appeared to have a very enjoyable time.

Bro. Geo. Hitchcock and two little daughters, Myrtle and Ethel, of Kansas City, spent two days with relatives, the 34th and 25th of February.

The funeral of Mr. William Lane was taken charge of by Bro. J. C. Hitchcock, Tuesday of last week. He was sick but a few days with pneumonia.

Preaching service here yesterday morning by Bro. Geo. Barraclough, at night, J. C. Hitchcock. Other appointments yesterday, Bro. Barraclough, Cheltenham, at night; Bro. Elliott at Oak Hill; Bro. Christenson, Belleville. A goodly attendance at the sacramental service yesterday afternoon.

We are expecting Bro. Bond very soon; indeed there are two appointments for next Sunday awaiting him.

Sr. Lewis has been teaching Sr. Burgess' class during her sojourn in New York.

Prayer Union this week at the home of Sr. Elliott, 2519 A University street. ETTA.

LETTER DEPARTMENT.

PHILADELPHIA, PENN., Feb. 19.
Editor Ensign:—The city is white with snow and the wind comes from the north corner of the state.

I returned to this city from Maryland about two weeks ago where I had been holding services at Cowtown, Baldwin and two services at Bro. Carter's house near Baldwin. We had tried to get a number of places to preach in, but the people seemed to be so eminently religious that for fear we might disturb their equilibrium in spiritual things, those who had charge, said no. However, one broad minded man was found who was willing to prove all things, and this gentleman did all he could for us fitting up his wheelwright shop for us, and we began services. The weather was bad, but notwithstanding this we had good audiences until we were forced to close the services on account of the cold weather, not being able to keep the place comfortable.

One of the strongest things about these services in Cowtown was that the audience was composed almost entirely of men. I have preached in all sorts of places and under various conditions, but in all my experience I never before preached to an audience composed entirely of men. The preaching, however, seems to have had an effect, for I hear that Mr. Cowdin, the gentleman above mentioned, is about, or has already begun to finish the room (in which we held the services) in a neat manner in anticipation of our return. I had intended to visit an adjoining town where Bro. Daniel Carter had secured a hall, but my time was limited and could not reach there then.

The conference here in Philadelphia on the 3d and 4th of the present month was a success, and the Saints were gladdened by the presence of Bro. Wm. H. Kelley, who discoursed on Sunday with the clear ringing tones of the Spirit. On Saturday last I visited Bridgeton, New Jersey, in company with Bro. Willard Hettrick to administer to his little girl who was sick; also administered to Bro. Hettrick's mother-in-law, who is very sick. I trust the work may be opened up in the above place later. Came to the city last night in time for evening service. Expect to leave here this week for Brooklyn, New York, to attend conference and then home to get acquainted with the family.

Yours as ever,

GEO. W. ROULEY.

SOUTH BEND, Indiana, Feb. 19.

Editor Ensign:—Returning from Knox, Indiana, and enjoying (?) a five hours "wait" at depot, I jot you a line to inform you that I am trying to keep up action. Silence in columns of church papers does not indicate a decline on the oars, for we can assure you that we find more than we can do.

Have held some very interesting services of late. Among the curious and exciting ones, we remember a debate held last month at Borden, Ind., with a Mr. E. G. Denney, representative of "the Church of Christ," a little rebellious daughter of the old line Campbellites. We argued the legitimacy of church claims for four days, of two sessions of two hours per day. Elder Denney is not the intellectual giant in discussion anticipated by us. He has not the ability of Clark Braden, but of one feature is he deserving of compliment, that is, he copied no one in the debate except Denney. He is original. The sessions were largely attended and the closest scrutiny observed throughout. The principal of "Borden Institute" served as chairman during the evening sessions and proved himself a modest, alert and skillful parliamentarian. Elder Wm. H. Kelley of Byrnesville, Indiana, acted as moderator for our side and served with firmness and diplomatic ability, which was called out beautifully by his associate moderator for the opposition, in several crude efforts to confuse and assume prerogatives not natural to the board. Bro. Briggs attended and sat with smiling countenance and manifested contentment and satisfaction. I am satisfied with our side of the debate and had the privileges of hearing congratulations from almost every quarter. I preached three times the following Sunday at Byrnesville and found a splendid class of Saints there. L lectured on Tuesday evening at Borden in Shoemaker's hall to a goodly audience. Spoke on Wednesday and Thursday evenings at the city of New Albany in Mannerchor hall, for which our Scott cousins paid $25.00 and occupying four times. Saturday and Sunday I was sick. Bro. Briggs filled appointments for Sunday afternoon and evening. Wednesday following I spoke at Union chapel, fifty miles distant from New Albany. Thursday morning my voice had flown, where I do not know. Could talk, but a little above a whisper. Took train and started for Michigan. Arriving, found wife, and that other Scott—Great Scott—who sits at the head of the table and pounds it with a "wooden iron spoon," almost sick with colds.

Hurrying away to Knox, we had some very nice meetings, Sunday afternoon after Sunday School we were all invited to the home of Bro. and Sr. Mock and, while I was unsuspecting, Bro. Mock in behalf of the Knox branch, and in a speech which I could wish reproduced, presented us with a silk quilt, the handiwork of the sisters of the branch—so rich and beautiful I cannot attempt any description. Each block bore the name of the maker, wrought in silk. The center piece bore the inscription, "Presented to Elder S. W. L. Scott and wife, by the Knox branch, 1900." How comforting to be enshrined in the memory and friendship of such splendid people and the principle represented by such a gift is priceless. May high heaven guide, bless and prosper them. The work was begun, carried on and completed by Sr. Julia Dipert of Walkerton. May her shadow never grow less. I am billed to lecture on "Mormonism" at Walkerton, two weeks hence.

More anon,

WEATHERFOOT, Okla., Feb. 18.
Dear Ensign:—Your readers will no doubt be surprised to hear from me at this point. I came down here to do some special work for Robinson & Co. and to improve my health. Elder J. A. Robinson came down on Saturday and on Sunday morning we wended our way to the Baptist church. Sunday School was in session, but the Bible class was without a teacher. I was asked to take charge, but threw the burden on Bro. Robinson; after the close of this service the minister preached a regular Latter Day Saint sermon, claiming that he believed the Bible literally and that while there were many sects, there was only one true church; finishing, he said his was that church.

At the close of the service I innocently (?) asked whether they could trace a succession? He declared positively that they could; at this point Bro. Robinson joined in the talk, and it ended by his offering to tell what he believed if they would give him the opportunity. They were to have had conference, but agreed to postpone it and allow him the afternoon. At 3 p. m. a goodly number assembled. His subject was the first principles, the organization of the church and an examination of our faith. He was blessed with splendid liberty and preached to preacher and people for an hour and a quarter. At the close of the sermon the fun began. Bro. R. testified to the restoration of the gospel to Joseph by an angel. This was as a brand thrown into the camp, setting the whole on fire. The preacher wanted him to perform miracles, speak Spanish, drink strychnine, etc.; but Bro. R. answered that a wicked and adulterous generation seeketh for a sign, and that he walked in the footsteps of his illustrious predecessors—the Pharisees, who would not believe the gospel, but sought a sign. They had brought a poor, epileptic there to have a miracle performed, but the excitement grew so intense that they forgot to bring him forward. Although the preacher had in the morning professed belief in the entire Bible, he now denied the latter part of Mark 16. Bro. R. stated that he believed all that God had given and all that He would give; but the preacher now declared that part of the Bible was not inspired. Many present heard truths that they never dreamed of, and which will, no doubt, set them thinking.

Editor Zion's Ensign:—I will once again contribute to your pages, as we could not well get along without the ENSIGN.

After spending New Years with family, I again started out in missionary work, stopping with the Janesville Saints over Sunday, January 7th, having a good meeting. A number of Saints were sick and could not attend the meeting. The next day I went to Johnstown to see Bro. Henry Woodstock, who was also quite sick, but he had "called for the elders of the church," and the Lord remembered him. I next went to Bro. John Blackbourne's in Grant county, where our worthy young Bro. Peter Muceus joined me in missionary work. He had been doing very faithful work all fall in the southern part of the state, and had made many friends for the cause. We at once entered into district work, calling on the branch at Buckwheat Ridge, laboring for some time; some of the Saints there are doing well, but others are not so faithful.

From there we went to the Flora branch but we could not do much there, the weather was bad, the roads worse and the Saints scattered. Some of the Saints are alive to the work, among them being Bro. and Sr. James Edgington. Bro. Edgington is trying to do all he can to hold the work together, and if he only had more help from others, there would be a thriving branch there; but some fall to help who, we hope and pray, may soon take hold of the work as they should. The Saints were kind to us, and we hope our visit there did them some good. Obtaining Bro. Edgington's team, we drove across the country to Wyalusing, the Saints gathering at the home of Bro. Baumer where we held sacramental meeting, and also confirmed Sr. Lena Baumer, who was baptized some time before by Bro. Houghton, and blessed two of Bro. Baumer's children; the writer preached to quite a good turnout in the afternoon. We called at the homes of a number of Saints who live in that part of the state; we feel sad that they do not love the privilege of often attending meetings, but I felt glad in my heart to know that there will be a gathering by and by, if the Saints are faithful. May we labor to that end.

From there we returned to Bro. Blackbourne's, and having some very bad weather, were detained some; as soon as the weather would permit Bro. Muceus went to Adamsville, and I returned to Flora for over Sunday, where, on February 14th, the writer used the words that make two as one, the contracting parties being Mr. Clyde E. Richardson and Sr. Ethel Blackbourne, of Lancaster, Wisconsin. May the Lord bless them along life's pathway. The same day I again joined Bro. Muceus at Adamsville, where we held forth in the church about ten nights with good liberty. Although there are only a few Saints there, we found them kind-hearted and the most of them alive to the work; we will long remember their kindness, some remembering that an elder needs money when he is about to get on the cars, or soon after he gets on.

On our way home we called on the Saints at Madison, stopping Saturday and Sunday, speaking three times while there. We also called at Oregon and found old Bro. Robinson quite sick, who, calling for administration according to James, fifth chapter, was feeling much better the next morning when we left. Last evening I arrived home, to get reports and other matter ready for General Conference, but expect to be out and at work again in a few days, to be moving towards General Conference. I hope and pray that we may all gather together, bringing with us the Spirit of the Master, as we believe there is much work to be done at this coming conference.

May the Lord bless the ENSIGN and its pages to all that read it. Ever looking forward to the redemption of Zion, and the gathering of God's people from all lands.

Dear Ensign:—I think when I last wrote you I was enjoying the cool, balmy breezes of Mackinac Island, Michigan, but have since come to Chicago, where I find a vast difference in the climate, but have a far better temperature in religious matters. I can now take advantage of the church privileges that I longed for while there; it gives us a chance to appreciate them after being deprived of them for a time.

There is quite a branch of Saints here in this portion of the city, and I am pleased to say, are manifesting a greater interest of late, by attending prayer services. May we always continue in this beneficial practice, live a united life in Christ's kingdom, and be drawn closer together by the spirit of love and peace.

Apostle J. H. Lake spent a couple of days with us last week and preached for us at 1:30 o'clock on Sunday, 21st inst. His discourse was edifying and cheerful, and every one seemed pleased. We hope Uncle John won't forget us, and will come again as early as possible. We expect Elder J. M. Terry out to preach for us on Sunday, 28th, and as a matter of course, are looking for a good time. He has arranged to come and speak for us one Sabbath in each month. May God bless his effort and bring the honest in heart into the fold is our prayer. Ever praying for the welfare of Zion I remain as ever,
Your brother in the one faith,
WALTER L. BENNETT.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 23.
Editor Ensign:—Our conference just closed was among the best we have held in Southern California. Peace and harmony prevailed and the Saints dispersed renewed in spirit and inspired for better service in the days to come. We had with us of the general ministry Elders G. T. Griffiths, F. M. Sheehy, A. C. Barmore, F. B. Blair, D. A. Anderson, R. R. Dana and William Gibson. The local priesthood were well represented. Preaching by Bro. Barmore, Griffiths, Sheehy, Blair and Williams. Previous district officials were all sustained. Adjourned to meet with the Newport branch, October 5-8, 1900.

One salutary feature of the conference was the session devoted to priesthood, and the result is surely an index of what a priesthood council can accomplish. The unanimous verdict was that it was by far the most successful session we held. A more perfect understanding and harmony of views obtained. What a grand thing it will be when all of the priesthood of the church can come together, and in the spirit of Christ and Christian fortitude, deliberate and come to a common understanding on the weighty things of the law.

Bro. Griffiths and Blair left for the East on Monday; Bro. Anderson on Tuesday, and Bro. Barmore on Wednesday. Bro. Sheehy will visit with us until the 5th of March when he will turn his face Zionward. I also expect to leave about that time. Bro. Chatburn left us some weeks ago; his departure was hastened on account of the critical condition of his mother, in Harlan, Iowa.

It is now about eighteen months since the first of the last conference appointees reached southern California, and it is natural for us to take a retrospective view, noting what improvements have been made. There has been some new work done; several places have been reached where the gospel was not previously preached, but no new openings have been affected in the sense of holding them. This is what I consider a new opening; where we go in and succeed in getting such a permanent footing that we hold it. Bro. Harris and I went to San Diego shortly after I came to the mission; we were not in a condition to follow up the effort, and although hundreds attended our street meetings, yet, not having the wherewithal to rent a hall, the seed was so promiscuously scattered that we do not know that any of it has borne fruit. We have never seen the "blade of wheat" as yet. About a year afterwards Bro. Chatburn went there and gave them a number of sermons. It will be necessary that some missionary go there and remain indefinitely if we wish to obtain the best results. Street preaching, to be a success, must be followed up in a building. It is very easy to get big crowds on the streets in California, but too often it is from curiosity rather than interest that they listen. One finds this out when they move from the street to a building.

Some little preaching has been done at Santa Monica, Santa Ana, Riverside, Redlands and Cucamonga. The interest has not been phenomenal. We have succeeded in baptizing but few in new territory. Bro. Barmore baptized two at Cucamonga; that is all that I know of. Most of the baptisms have been in the proximity of branches and have comprised those who have been investigating for a time, or the children of the Saints. Of course there are some exceptions; I must give credit to the local workers; had it not been for the tireless work of Bro. Jones and his aids at San Bernardino I do not think that "we missionaries" would have reaped the harvest there that we did. When I held my long series of meetings up there I baptized seven; Bro. Harris baptized a number about the same time; Bro. Griffiths went there afterwards and baptized seven, I believe; Bro. Chatburn followed and baptized nine. These baptisms materialized because the seed that was sown by the several missionaries was cared for and nurtured by the local force. Again, the Sunday School, as well as the Religio, has been quite a help along this line. Bro. Chatburn has won his way into their hearts as witnessed in the number of baptisms among the children of the Saints both in Garden Grove and San Bernardino. He has not been idle since coming to the mission; he has labored in a number of new openings, and though he has not been more successful than the rest of his brethren as to new converts, still he has the consciousness with all others, of having done what he could.

Bro. Barmore spent several months at Cucamonga, and though he preached from two to six sermons per week he has not been idle otherwise. He busied himself during the day picking oranges, and succeeded in earning enough money to defray his expenses to the General Conference. This is commendable. I would here remark that the people are not going wild over the simple gospel story in California; in fact the gospel is not so enticing as some other things, yet there are many honest people here, and, if we push the work legitimately and build wisely, we shall yet live to see a fair ingathering from this land of sunshine and sin.

The work in Los Angeles is on the ascendancy; there has been much to overcome, and it will require patience and fortitude ere perfect success will come. There is a noble band of Saints here, and they are doing what they can to pay for their new home. I have been here most of the last year assisting them in the erection of their chapel, and preaching as opportunity afforded. The peculiar demands of city work seem to warrant the retention of a conference appointee who can take charge of the work.

I must not forget to mention Bro. Carmichael, our district president; would that we had a thousand such men in southern California. Staunch and true is he. I have found the Saints of the Pacific slope among the very best of all with whom I have ever associated in gospel service. Free hearted, kind and considerate, whom to know is to love. I shall be loth to leave them, and, although I do not know where my lot may be cast another year, I shall ever remember them for their many kindnesses to me.

Bro. Griffiths methods are so different from those of his predecessors that he has almost affected a revolution along some lines. Whether his policy is the best remains to be seen. I do think that he should be given another year in which to develop his plans. From a human standpoint it will be unjust to him, likewise the mission, to take him away now; another man could not take up the work outlined by him and carry it out as he has planned. We are just commencing to see the results of his methods, and if they continue as they are now, his policy will eventually have to be adopted by all his compeers in quorum service. Do not understand me to say that in every detail his work is faultless; for experience has shown me that those men who are aggressive, while they accomplish much good, sometimes make mistakes; but of Bro. Griffiths it can be said that when he errs in any particular, and it is shown unto him, no man will endeavor to undo an error more than he.

I notice a perceptible growth in Bro. Blair; he naturally seems to develop along the presiding line. Bro. Anderson is an exemplary young missionary who will be a credit anywhere. He has not been privileged to hardly witness a "slight skirmish" along the missionary line, however, and I hope the conference will let him work with some of us seventy on the frontier next year. Bro. R. R. Dana reports good success in laboring with Bro. Keeler in the Santa Marie valley; they have baptized a number and the future is encouraging. From all reports from the Northland Bro. Sheehy is in great demand and the New England Saints must not be over clamorous for "Our Frank." He should be returned to California unless the Spirit directs to the contrary.

We are having very dry weather here; the rainy season is about over, and the grain all drying up. A rainy season without any rain! How incongruous?

In looking forward to the General Conference I am assured that we will receive all that we are worthy of and that God will bless us to the extent of our capacity to receive. Could we ask more? Personally, I am not so anxious for an additional revelation as I am that God will give us wisdom whereby we can understand, and be honest enough both to ourselves and to God, that we will apply the law as he has given it to us without any spiritualization or peculiar wrestings that nullifies its application in the lives of men. With well wishes to all,
Yours for Zion's welfare,
T. W. WILLIAMS.

FRUITA, Col., Feb. 7.

Editor Ensign:—I wish through your columns to call the attention of the Western missionaries to the fact that we have a place of meeting here paid for in advance and for every Sunday, as I do the janitor work for the "Lodges," and have secured the use of the hall for my meetings which we expect to hold regularly after this month—there are but few Saints here but we are trying to open the work, and if any of the missionary force from the west returning for conference can stop a few days just notify me and I will advertise and have everything ready for them to have a series of meetings.

The writer has been holding meetings for over a year at a school-house, some four miles east of this place; while we have had no "converts" prejudice seems to subside somewhat. There are only two families of Saints there who, with ourselves, constitute our working force, and all poor and struggling for the bread that perishes, yet we hope by right living and doing what we can to bring the work before the people.

Asking the prayers of all Saints that we may be blessed in our labors, I am

Yours in the one faith,
M. L. SCHEMIDT.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 8.

Editor Ensign:—About a month ago I was taken sick with a bad cold; I thought I would be better in a day or two, but I found it was la grippe. Last Sunday two of the sisters visited me and they advised me to send for the elders, but although I am weak in faith and advanced years, I did not think myself worthy of having them, but my son-in-law, Bro. Grainger, sent for the elders to administer to his sick child, and while they were in the house I felt that I would like them to administer to me as I was suffering so much, and they did so on Tuesday night, and on Wednesday I suffered worse than ever, and I despaired of getting better, and told my daughter that I could not last long. I had three severe coughing spells of ten or fifteen minutes each, and when I could speak after the last one, I promised the Lord that if he would take away the disease from me I would serve him better than ever I had before. After that I commenced to get better. I feel that we must have more faith in our great Redeemer and yield more obedience to his laws. I am better now, and hope the dear sisters in Zion will pray for me that I may be faithful and be the means of doing much good.
Yours in the faith,
SARAH BRADLEY.

ZION'S ENSIGN.

THE LAW OF LIFE.

Sermon by Elder F. M. Cooper, Delivered at the General Conference, Independence, Missouri.

I cite attention to the words of our Lord as found in Matthew 7: 16:

Ye shall know them by their fruits. Do men gather grapes of thorns, or figs of thistles? Even so every good tree bringeth forth good fruit; but a corrupt tree bringeth forth evil fruit.

Fruits signify produce of the earth, of trees, or animals. The reason that men do not gather grapes of thorns or figs of thistles is because fruit of this kind does not grow upon the thorn-bush or upon the thistle.

We would question the sanity of anyone if we should find them looking for figs among thistles because the facts are that thistles reproduce thistles, and thorns reproduce thorns. Each form of life represents laws and conditions peculiar to itself, and by reason of these laws and conditions each reproduces its type.

We recognize this truth as not only self-evident in nature, but as a fundamental law of God necessary to the reproduction and perpetuity of the various types of life created by divine energy.

God said: "Let the earth bring forth grass, the herb yielding seed, the fruit tree yielding fruit after his kind, whose seed is in itself, upon the earth and it was so." And again God said, "Let the earth bring forth the living creature after his kind, cattle and creeping thing, and beast of the earth after his kind, and it was so."

The constitutional law of each species of life has its own development and limitations. Divine inspiration teaches that all kingdoms are founded in law, and there are many kingdoms, for there is no space in which there is no kingdom, and there is no kingdom in which there is no space, either a greater or a lesser kingdom, and unto every kingdom is given a law, and unto every law there are certain bounds also and conditions.

An apple may be a fine one of its kind, but the constitutional law of its nature that developed it and made it an apple, can never change it into a plum or a peach; a horse may be a splendid type of his species, but the constitutional law of his nature by which he became a horse can never make him into an ox; a baboon may be an excellent representative of his kind, but the law of his nature by which he was made a baboon, by reason of its conditions and limitations, never can make him into a man.

It is a law divine, and evidences of it are seen in the multiplied types of being throughout space, from the most stupendous sun to invisible animalcule. As all nature teaches that law rules in every department of the natural world, working out certain results in harmony with the constitutional laws of each type of life, so Jesus Christ teaches this same law; that like begets like, and that each moral and spiritual principle of truth begets moral and spiritual types of life as the basis of his redemptive system. He says, "Behold, a sower went forth to sow; and when he sowed, some seeds fell by the wayside, and the fowls came and devoured them up: some fell upon stony places, where they had not much earth: and forthwith they sprung up, because they had no deepness of earth: and when the sun was up, they were scorched; and because they had no root, they withered away. And some fell among thorns; and the thorns sprung up, and choked them: but other fell into good ground, and brought forth fruit, some an hundred fold, some sixty fold, some thirty fold."—Matthew 13: 3-8.

Jesus Christ, in his interpretation of this parable, lays down this fundamental law as underlying the whole superstructure of his sublime and divine philosophy. "When anyone heareth the word of the kingdom, and understandeth it not, then cometh the wicked one, and catcheth away that which was sown in his heart. This is he which received seed by the wayside. * * *

But he that received seed into the good ground is he that heareth the word, and understandeth it; which also beareth fruit, and bringeth forth, some an hundred fold, some sixty, some thirty." (Matt. 13: 19, 23). Sanctification and the attainment of celestial life is the result of obedience to celestial law. We read:

"And they who are not sanctified through the law which I have given unto you, even the law of Christ, must inherit another kingdom, even that of a terrestrial kingdom, or that of a terrestrial kingdom." (D. & C. 85: 5).

"Sanctify" means to set apart, to make of religious use, to make free from sin, to make whole through the law that God has given unto us, even the law of Christ. Unless we abide the conditions of the celestial law, we cannot abide the celestial glory. Again, the Apostle Paul says, "For in Christ Jesus I have begotten you through the gospel." Begotten signifies to generate and reproduce. Peter says, "Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, which, according to his abundant mercy, hath begotten us unto a lively hope by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead, to an inheritance incorruptible and undefiled, and that fadeth not away, reserved in heaven for you, who are kept by the power of God through faith unto salvation, ready to be revealed in the last time." "Whoso believeth that Jesus is the Christ is born of God." Divine life under this new condition in the soul and life of the individual, begets a higher state of being, spiritually, morally and socially. We may have been dead in trespasses and sins, but when touched by the magic power of redemption through faith in Jesus Christ; and our acceptance of the principles of the gospel, from this grand standpoint of the realization of the divine, we can feel the force of the thought:

Oh, yet we trust that somehow good
Will be the final goal of ill,
To purge of nature, sins of will,
Defects of doubt, and taints of blood.

Behold, we know not anything; I can but trust that good shall fall, At last—far off—at last, to all,
And every winter change to spring.

Thus when we come to study the underlying principles of the gospel system of philosophy, it is necessary that we revert to the original proposition, viz., that every type of life begets its own kind.

We understand that the gospel of Jesus Christ is represented as seed sown by a sower; that this seed was to be sown by its divinely appointed representatives, and that every principle, or divine seed, that is thus sown and grows, reproduces its own kind.

So then, an intelligent faith is a true conception of the mission of Jesus Christ, and a true comprehension of the principles to which the name of Jesus Christ stands identified. Christ is the greatest philosopher, the grandest, the sweetest, the most beautiful teacher this world ever saw, in the fact that He rises in the splendor of his philosophy above personal selfishness and bigotry; above the ideas of the world, and in his relationship to humanity represents the forces and principles that supplies the demands of human nature, and thus the possibilities of development and attainment are guaranteed to us by the application of the laws and principles inseparably associated with Jesus Christ. Thus, in the commission that Jesus gave to his apostles to go out in the world and preach the gospel, these teachings represent divine thought; represent divine principles. The greatness of the Christ is not seen in his individualism, but in what he represented. This fact is developed in His own announcement, "I came not to do my own will, but the will of Him that sent me." Thus Christ stands identified with a great mission, a great work and the responsibility of this work was largely laid upon His shoulders. It was made, with Him, a question of individual integrity, that He must move in harmony with the laws and conditions under which He was placed, and under these divine environments He was to gain the glorious conquest over sin, or fail in the accomplishment of His mission. Satan had invaded the domain of God on earth. The primary home of man, with its beauties and perfection, had been tarnished with the nature of sin; so Jesus Christ came into this world to wrest its sovereignty from the power of evil, and He proposed that all along the line of His conquests they were all to be attained in harmony with the laws and possibilities of individual attainment placed within the reach of all who would believe and accept the conditions of gospel salvation.

The Apostle Paul makes the statement, "The law was weak in that it could not condemn sin in the flesh"—could not make men good. They might live good lives so far as their external moral conduct was concerned, but in the heart they might be murderers. And we understand that one of the prerogatives of the law was that those who did not commit the overt act of sin in violating its provisions were free from condemnation. Thus the law could not make man good; its principles planted in the human heart could not transform its subject into a stalwart representative of the Christ life or character, for the reason that its inherent powers were incapable of producing such an exalted type of manhood and womanhood. This highest possible human attainment, under divine conditions, was only made practical and susceptible of accomplishment upon the terms of the gospel. Jesus met sin upon the same grounds of a common humanity, for He was "tempted in all points like as we are, yet without sin" (Heb. 4: 15), in overt act, but He felt the emotions and power of sin because he took upon himself the nature of sin. In assuming the nature of Abraham, instead of taking upon himself the nature of angels, he placed himself under the obligations of his Father's law, and it was love for that law that enabled him to resist temptation; and it was Christ's love for the truth, which only conserves the true interests of the race, that enabled Him to die the death of the cross, in demonstration of the fact that His love for man, and for truth, which only can exalt man, was greater than His love of earthly life. It was not God's eternal love that demanded the sacrifice of Jesus Christ, but it was sin that made such sacrifice a necessity; it was the conflict between the right and the wrong that made such sacrifice a necessity; thus, in the divine economy of God, it was, with Christ, a question of personal loyalty to the principles of truth committed to His trust, and it was His integrity, His race love, or love for the race of mankind, that enabled Him to say: "Nevertheless, not my will, but thine, be done." So, then, he surrendered His own will, His love of life and existence in this world, upon the altar of his love and devotion to divine truth; and upon this principle we believe it became necessary for Jesus Christ to die; because rather than be untrue to the trust committed to Him, He was willing to offer up His life as a living sacrifice in attestation of His personal integrity.

In discussing this question from the standpoint of principle we observe when men sow wheat in the agricultural world they expect to reap wheat; when they plant corn they expect corn to grow. The principle is true in the moral world; it is just as true in the spiritual world that in all of these different realms of life there are laws and conditions, and it is these laws and environments that make everything what it is. We cannot make ourselves anything without environment; we cannot grasp a single thought; we cannot originate a single idea; we are what our environments have made us; we believe what we have been taught. If we had never been taught, nor had an opportunity to know anything of the environments of this life, we would not possess a single idea. What we are, I repeat, is what the environments that have surrounded us from our cradles down to the present time, have made us.

In our investigation of this subject, the central thought before us is, what will the true seed of gospel life and power sown in the human heart make of men and women? We are not to judge from a theological standpoint from the simple fact that we believe that a man can be a splendid theologian and not be a good man; we are not to judge from the standpoint of pulpit eloquence and ability only, from the fact that men can be eloquent and grand preachers and still not be good men. I affirm there is only one true test to determine character. I don't mean the country a man hails from, or how much truth he claims to believe, but the man's moral and spiritual environments that shape and determine his conduct is the true test. We may be conscientious and be wrong, but we cannot be right without we are conscientious. If we live the truth and our judgment and conscience are in harmony therewith, then we are true Christians, true believers in Jesus the Christ. Some say when we reach heaven it will not be asked, which church road we came over. We can rest assured that none will pass the pearly gates of the celestial world except those who have lived in obedience to the laws and conditions of being necessary to fit their souls to live with Jesus in a perfect and sinless home. Our souls must become qualified and fitted for those grand conditions of moral and spiritual being in a world that is better than this by having left off the evils of life; by having overcome the temptations of this world; by having been true to God in passing through the crucial attestation of earthly trial. We believe in the philosophy:

Through the furnace, through the heat,
There beneath the hammer's beat,
Through temptations manifold,
Comes our souls like burnished gold.

All the antagonism we have to meet in this world in the conflict between the evils of our natures and the principles of divine truth are represented in the life and conquests of Jesus Christ.

The issue in the days of Christ was between the right and the wrong; the right as represented by Jesus Christ, the wrong as represented by the antagonistic forces that he had to meet at every turn and corner. We are proud of this one grand conception that while individuals may signify but little, principle means a great deal and the principles for which Jesus Christ gave his life live after him in the splendor of their immortality and redemptive power. They still exist with power to make a bad man a good man; to make a bad woman a good woman, and to transform a sinful world into a heaven; and under their force and reproducing powers character is still to be developed in harmony with Christ, the true type, until the triumph of the Christ is assured by the conquest and overthrow of sin. The thought seems axiomatic. We sow an idea; we reap a principle. We sow a principle; we reap a character. A man is really what his principles make him; if he believes in bad principles, he must be a bad man; if he believes in and practices good principles, he must be a good man; if he believes in erroneous theological principles, he is wrong in theological faith. We understand that truth is the stepping stone to higher and grander and more glorious conditions of life. Truth is the divine power under which man is to be transformed in his nature, but this transformation can never come until mankind comes under the laws and principles which bring about this development. Thus the apostle represents in this new life, "We are begotten again to a lively hope," and the question is, how are we begotten? What are the laws and principles upon which this work is to be accomplished? Thus, to illustrate: If everything bears seed after its own kind, if it is the Christ seed that is sown in the soul; in its development it will exhibit the characteristics of the Christ life. False religious principles planted in the lives of men reproduce and perpetuate their own type; but they have that begotten in themselves which prove they are wrong, and this condition remains until environment is so altered as to change this false type of character into the true type of life as represented by Jesus Christ our Lord. The difference is this: life is not merely individual consciousness, but life is the power by which individuals act, move, and are conscious of their individual being, and in this sense, life as regards its motives represents its moral and spiritual status just as it is; and whatever are the conditions and relationships which we have to these different kingdoms, these different environments and these different laws, such also is our type of life.

The Apostle Paul, speaking across the centuries with reference to Moses, said he would rather suffer affliction with the people of God than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season. Thus we admit that there must be some pleasure in sin, otherwise men would not sin. It is a true fact that what men love most they will sacrifice the most for. It is love that enables the mother to keep vigil by the bedside of her sick child, never conscious of weakness, never conscious of individual suffering. It was love for humanity that caused Jesus Christ to measure himself with the needs of the world, and thus he placed himself against evil in the interests of the human race, and sometime and somewhere the virtues and powers of his redemptive sacrifice upon the cross will awaken all humanity to a consciousness of his love and worth. We recognize this grand principle as being self-evident, that God will give all mankind an equal chance in the race of salvation; but the utility of service must be derived from the manifestations of love begotten under the gospel law. Thus right here the Apostle Paul declares, "You who were the servants of sin became the servants of righteousness." We must believe this change was not wrought by coercive power; for the gospel places each individual on his own responsibility. "Preach the gospel to every creature" and he that believes and obeys "shall be saved." It is left with men's volition to decide the question and we do not believe that an individual will decide the question properly and correctly for himself until he discovers something in this message and these conditions that appeals to his love and judgment; until he reaches the condition represented by the Apostle Paul as the true type of christian manhood when he says, "The things I once loved, I now hate. The things I once hated I love." It was his former faith that made Saul of Tarsus the enemy of Christ; and it was the christian religion that made Paul the Apostle the representative of Jesus Christ, and who, in his relationship to the new life and the grander and better conditions of morality and spirituality, the attainment of a grander and more glorious experience, was enabled to say, "I am persuaded, that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord." (Rom. 8: 38, 39). The apostle proved the correctness of this proposition when he said to Timothy, "I am now ready to be offered, and the time of my departure is at hand. I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith." He had lived under that law of Christ, been associated with it, tasted the eternal sweetness of Christ's love, and thus in the wonderful subjection of his will in the interests of the human race, he was willing to give up his life as a witness to the truth. In the type of life represented here, we believe is involved the principle that if we are begotten of God we have within us the nature of God; if we are begotten in Jesus Christ we are partakers of the nature of Jesus Christ.

We do not need to tell you in regard to the nature that we possess when we came into this world. We see it in the infant. I have observed in a little boy that when he could not have his own way he would get down on the floor and pound his head. We know in this regard that such child represents the earthly and not the heavenly type of life. We are born with constitutional defects because we are placed under a defective government; are brought into this earthly state of being by the force and operation of imperfect conditions, and for this reason Jesus Christ came to reconstruct the human race. In this grand work he came to proclaim the moral and spiritual liberty of man upon the terms of the gospel; that they might be so transformed in their natures that they would not pound their heads, nor hate their enemies; but looking to the interests of the race, would stand for the principles of love and justice as represented under the constitutional laws of the gospel of Christ. The man who, with a true heart, stands in defense of his highest conception of right is not moved from his faith by what society thinks of him; it is not a question of selfish gain or loss with him, but with the consciousness that he stands upon his personal responsibility before God, the only question in which he feels essential interest is, "Am I right?"

What are the grand distinguishing features between these two conditions of life? We will cite your attention to this same apostle in Romans 6: 6, where he says, "Knowing this that our old man is crucified with him." He dies hard sometimes, and sometimes we think that the old nature is dead, when he is not dead "but sleepeth;" and in this regard it reminds me of an illustration made by Mr. Talmage when he brought home from the Jordan two little vials of water that he took from that historic river. He filtered one and the other he corked and stood them side by side in his cabinet. He says, "When I take these little vials and shake them, one is as clear as crystal, it does not make any difference how hard it is shaken, but the other becomes turbid whenever its contents are disturbed." He says this turbid water represents some christians who, upon their conversion, were only settled and not cleansed; and all they need is a little shake-up to prove that they are still under the jurisdiction of the "old man with his deeds." The spiritual and moral evolution of man under the gospel in attainment of higher and better conditions of being is the basis of our hope for the future of the church on earth, and our ability to at last attain the ideals of faith as expressed in the words of John, the divine, "Beloved, it doth not yet appear what we shall be; but we know that when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is," is the basis of our hope in the final attainment of heaven. We do not jump into the likeness of Christ. It is not a miracle of a day or a month's duration that transforms us into the moral and spiritual likeness of Jesus Christ. It is our acceptance of the gospel; our birth into this new condition of spiritual life that makes it possible for us to become like Jesus and under the laws and principles which we are thus placed we slough off the carnal nature, and in this better life and grander relationship we, by faith, behold the glittering spires and sparkling domes of the eternal city of love and immortality. The golden fruits of obedience as manifested in human life are the same from age to age, and the constitutional nature of the divine government—moral and spiritual—in its infinite perfectness can never change, as it represents the only process by which man can be transformed into the image of his Creator.

Do we believe in complete sauc-ification here and now? Not here. We do not believe in it in the sense that we are made holy and free from the nature of sin down here. A friend once said, "I quit the use of tobacco because I could not chew it any longer." "How is that?" "I got so it did not taste good to me, I do not enjoy my pipe; I smoked just as long as I could, and then I quit it." That was a reformation, but it was that peculiar kind of reformation that the man could not help, and for that reason he did not deserve any credit for it. If a sick man gets well without personal effort or volition, but is healed by divine power, to God belongs all of the credit and glory. We believe that a man who is freed from an evil habit simply because he could not help himself, does not deserve any credit for his reformation. It is in the sense in which Christ was tempted and overcame temptation by self-denial and self crucifixion that the true test of meritorious service is to be found in the kingdom of God. The evanescent emoluments of earth's material estate of riches, honor and sovereignty were offered him, but he chose to be true to Him that sent him in to the world, that he might walk the thorny path of duty by reason of his love of man, and let the centuries tell the story of the cross, until creation, touched by the magic of his love, will crown him "Lord of all." Jesus understood that "whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap," and for that reason he sowed to the Spirit, and as a result he reaped life everlasting. The triumph of the flesh means the loss of the soul. Paul says: "And they that are Christ's have crucified the flesh with the affections and lusts." They have done it. They have been willing to do it; They have stood thus in favor of a principle of righteousness against a principle of wrong; and I can emphasize the force of the statement that was made here this forenoon, that so far as we represent a grander spirituality, or a higher type of religious truth and practice over others who have opportunities equal to our own, just that far we will attain to higher conditions in the world to come; but no further. If a man should come to me tottering, infirm, and decrepit, and would claim that he was a splendid specimen of physical power, I would not believe him; and if one of these moral dwarfs would come to me and profess that he was right, while his life was a negative of the principles he professed to represent, I would brand him a hypocrite. If, on the other hand, a man has the right motives and principles in himself, as the Savior says, "You will know them by their fruits;" because the manifestations of his life will be in consonance with the nature of the man; and if he lives under the gospel law his life will show the potential influence of gospel power and principle in forming his character, and determining his destiny;

Paul says: "But I keep under my body, and bring it into subjection: lest that by any means, when I have preached to others, I myself should be a castaway." Paul, where was your condition? Was it between you and your neighbors? I remember a sister who had been urged, officially, to do her duty and attend to her service in the church of Christ, who said: "I can't be good any more, it is too late now." We asked, "Is it possible that you have gone back to that condition that you have lost your love for Christ and truth because of your imperfections?" She says, "Oh, no, it is not my imperfections that trouble me; it is the imperfections of others." She was affected terribly by the evils of somebody else; so we have heard it said that some people in the world go about with their hearts on their elbows, that somebody might hurt their feelings. It is not a question simply of what we believe, or what we can do, but it is a question, what can we endure? And thus, along the corridor of the ages comes the voice of inspiration which says: "He that endureth to the end the same shall be saved." It is he that endures evils, that meets foes and opposition, who shines in the splendor of integrity and true principle; that stands in defense of truth, who is loyal in the midst of enemies; that is true to God under trial and temptation. It is the man that can endure these things—endure to the end—that shall be saved. "He who can endure to the end represents a strong moral and spiritual constitution; we can justly call them stalwart and strong men or women who have been able to stand under pressure, and in the face of the foe, in the day of battle—of trial. The divine truth set to human life and experience is this, that "God will have a tried people."

What about these reformers who want to destroy temptation and eliminate it from human society. The only trouble with these educators is that they are trying to doctor the wrong disease; they want to destroy that which man abuses and thereby place him where he could not be mean if he wanted to. If God had wanted that condition to obtain, he would not have allowed the serpent in the garden of Eden; but we can feel the force of inspiration in the thought expressed that somewhere, and somehow, "that good will be the final goal of ill." Out of these experiences will come those divine characteristics resulting from the system of Christ, that will adapt men to future conditions of glory represented by the sun, moon and stars; and out of these multiplied conditions of life they will rise to the enjoyment of immortality, commensurate with individual effort in harmony with divine law, by which they are preserved, sanctified and saved. If we live under the gospel economy how are we to preserve and maintain its laws? There was a time in the history of our country when this nation stood united under one flag. The time came when a certain part of this nation declared, "We will no longer live under that flag upon present conditions, and we claim the right to secede and pass out from under the administration of the government of the United States. Even the little boys of the north, in those days, were full of the fire of patriotism; we were sorry that we were not old enough to go to war because we were anxious that this secession should be obliterated from our country, and the honor of our flag defended. From Sumpter to Appomattox the honor of our flag and the integrity of our government was maintained, and the grand principle of national union triumphed over secession and state sovereignty; but some would have destroyed the constitution, and would have overthrown the government if they could have exercised sufficient power. If the nation had permitted treason to have had its way the flag would have been dishonored, and the union divided; but instead, the secession idea was defeated on the battlefields of the war, and it was not only demonstrated that our republic represents a nation, but that the president of the United States is bound to employ the powers of the nation in the maintenance of the constitutional laws of the government in the protection of citizenship from Maine to California, and the suppression of treason against the federal state everywhere.

Under the same principle we believe the executive government of the kingdom of God was created for the protection of citizenship, for the correction of wrong, and for the expulsion of wrong doers from the church, who will not repent, according to the stipulations of the law. God says, "Thou shalt not kill; but he that killeth shall die. Thou shalt not steal; and he that stealeth will not repent shall be cast out," etc. Thus in the maintenance of the honor and integrity of the church it is necessary that its laws be enforced against transgressors. Without enforcement of law all government is impossible. Some urge that the parable of our Lord regarding the wheat and tares signifies that bad people are to retain their place and position in the church in common with the good people. I apprehend these protectors of crime and law-breakers in the church in offering such apology have, as a rule, in mind some friend whose conduct would cease to disgrace the church under any other than this "grow together" and "do nothing" policy. Any one who will stand as an apologist for crime in this regard is as bad as the individual who is guilty of theft. I do not believe that God wants tares to grow and flourish in the church. What are the facts as explained to us by revelation in the day and age in which we live? The facts are the field is the world. In the primitive church the apostles were the sowers of the seed of the kingdom of heaven; the apostasy of christianity was the result of the tares being sown by the devil, which drove the church into the wilderness. The tender blades springing up in this age represent the sowing of the original gospel seed, and its development by virtue of its restoration. The angels are the reapers. They are not to pluck up the tares at this time but wait until the harvest, which is the end of the world. The world being the field, in the end it is to be reaped by the angels. Now, for the angels to reap the field (the world) would be to destroy these tender blades, therefore, they let the wheat, that is the church, and the tares, the world, grow together until the harvest is fully ripe, and then shall the wheat be gathered, and the tares be bound up in bundles and burned, and the world, or the field, is burned. But we, according to his promise, look for a new heaven and a new earth—a new field, a new world, wherein no tares grow; in other words, wherein "dwelleth righteousness." Therefore, we conclude that God does not want tares to flourish in his church, and in this regard he has provided by law that the executive powers of the church should be invoked in the protection of the innocent, and the expulsion of unrepentant lawbreakers, whom to protect, is to turn traitor to the moral integrity of the gospel.

We read in the law that has been given to govern the church, "Thou shalt not lie; he that lieth and will not repent shall be cast out." (D. & C. 42:7). Suppose we find a man, an habitual liar, and he will not reform, will not cease the bad habit by repentance, would it not be wrong to not enforce the law which says "he shall be cast out?" We are in favor of turning a man out of the church if he is a liar, because we know he would not be saved if in the church, without he was a fool, and then he would be saved out of the church just as well. In the executive government of God he has provided for the elimination of tares from the body spiritual, and the placing of them where they belong, in the world; and if they want to flourish and grow there in that kind of soil, it is their privilege until the angel reapers remove them from the world. The good ground upon which the gospel seed is sown does not produce tares, for let us remember that tares are produced by the conditions that exist in the world; and when we grow those conditions in the church that produce or sustain tares, it argues that the moral conditions of the church are on a level with the moral conditions in the world, for "the same cause will produce the same effects." This religion must stand for everything that is moral, and aggressively maintain it. It must stand for everything that is true in the spiritual realm, and aggressively maintain it. It must push forward the moral and spiritual interests of the kingdom of God until the witness for Christ—the gospel—shall have been proclaimed to the ends of the earth, and the Redeemer shall come to claim his own.

REDUCED RAILWAY RATES TO GENERAL CONFERENCE.

WESTERN PASSENGER ASSOCIATION.

The Western Passenger Association has granted reduced rates (one and one-third fare for the round trip) to the coming General Conference and conventions of Zion's Religio-Literary Society and the General Sunday School Association. Tickets on the going passage may be purchased (over Western Association lines) from April 3-9 inclusive—on any of those dates. The conference meets on the 6th, but the sale of tickets from April 3-9 will permit attendance also at the conventions.

Reduced rates are granted on the following conditions:

1. Going tickets must be purchased not earlier than April 3d, and not later than the 9th. (Take special notice that going tickets are sold over Trunk Line Association roads from April 1-3 only).
2. The rule is to purchase full fare tickets on the going trip (except in cases where parties travel together on special rates, as hereinafter provided).
3. Passengers must, in all cases, obtain a separate certificate with every ticket purchased. Do not accept a certificate covering two or more persons. Each ticket bought requires a separate certificate, and to which the purchaser is entitled.
4. Such certificates must be delivered to the church secretary, and when signed by him, and signed and stamped by the railroad agent at Lamoni, will entitle purchasers to return tickets to destination at one-third the usual fare; provided one hundred tickets are purchased; provided further, that ministers holding half-fare permits are not entitled to said reduction; nor are tickets purchased at fifty cents or less to be counted in total number required to secure reduction (except where they form part of a larger total fare).
5. Tickets on the going passage may be limited or unlimited, according to the rules of roads selling them; but return tickets are good only for continuous passage, and not later than April 24th.

Purchasers should see that their names are written on each certificate before handing to the secretary. Certificates should be handed in promptly that the local railroad agent may be notified of the required number to secure the rate.

The above contains essential items, but the following particulars are given in full to avoid misunderstandings:—

"We take pleasure in advising that rate of a fare and one-third for the round trip upon the certificate plan, from points in Eastern Committee and Trans-Missouri territories of this Association, has been announced subject to the conditions herein named, over such lines shown on the enclosed slips as are interested.

"Reduced rates on the certificate plan to points within this territory become effective only when evidence is presented to the joint agent of the terminal lines at the place of meeting, showing that one hundred persons have actually been in attendance holding certificates reading for tickets over terminal lines to the meeting point, and when such certificates are stamped by him with his office stamp and his written signature affixed thereto; except that where parties or clubs traveling in a body purchase round trip party tickets to the place of meeting from stations from which the local one way rate is more than fifty cents and at not less than the rate announced on the certificate plan for the particular meeting in question (instead of one way tickets at regular rate) and present to joint agent a certificate from the selling agent to that effect, they will be counted by the joint agent in reckoning the attendance at any meeting.

"When reduced rates are made for meetings under double plan providing for sale of individual excursion tickets within a restricted radius and certificate plan outside of such radius, excursion tickets from stations from which the one-way fare to the place of meeting is more than fifty cents, shall be counted when necessary to make up the required minimum.

"No certificate will be honored which was issued to cover the sale of more than one single-trip ticket.

"Certificates showing purchase of tickets at fifty cents or less will not be counted in arriving at the total, nor will reduction be granted in any case where the rate at which ticket was sold is fifty cents or less.

"Certificates of the issue of any and all lines in territory from which reduction is announced will be considered in computing attendance, and when lines in this territory arrange to honor certificates of connecting lines for business originating beyond this territory, such certificates will also be counted by joint agent.

"Ministers or others who travel on clerical or half-fare permits or commutation tickets of any description, are not entitled to this reduction, nor to be included in computing the number in attendance at any meeting.

"For detailed information as to the manner in which the business will be transacted by each line, and particularly as to the junction points via which each line will arrange to grant the reduction, please communicate with the General Passenger or Ticket Agents of the interested lines, a list of which lines in this territory is inclosed herewith.

"Under the method usually observed in certificate plan business, the passenger pays full fare on going trip, and on presentation of certificate to that effect, and if all other conditions as herein named, including presentation of evidence to joint agent, of the required attendance upon part of those who have purchased one-way or round-trip tickets to meeting point as shown by certificates presented to him are complied with, a reduced rate of one-third fare is granted on return trip

"INCURABLE" HEART DISEASE SOON CURED.

By THE GREAT SPECIALIST IN TREATING WEAK AND DISEASED HEARTS, FRANKLIN MILES, M. D., L. L. B.

WHO WILL SEND $2.50 WORTH OF HIS COMPLETE SPECIAL TREATMENT FREE TO ANY AFFLICTED READER.

To demonstrate the unusual curative powers of his new and complete special treatment for heart disease, short breath, pain in the side, oppression in the chest, irregular pulse, palpitation, smothering spells, puffing of the ankles or dropsy, Dr. Miles will send, free, to every afflicted person, two dollars and a half worth of his new treatment.

It is the result of twenty-four years of careful study, extensive research, and remarkable experience in testing the various ailments of the heart, stomach and nerves, which so often complicate each case. So astonishing are the results of his complete special treatment in most cases, that he does not hesitate to freely offer all patients a trial free.

Certainly nothing could be more generous—more philanthropic. Few physicians have such confidence in their remedies. And there is no reason why every afflicted person should not avail themselves of this exceedingly liberal offer, as they may never have another such an opportunity. No death comes more sudden than that from heart disease.

Mrs. Frank Smith, of Chicago, was cured of heart dropsy, after five leading physicians had given her up. A thousand references to, and testimonials from, Bishops, Clergymen, Bankers, Farmers and their wives will be sent free on request. These include many who have been cured after from five to fifteen physicians and professors had pronounced them incurable.

Send at once to the Dr. Miles Medical Association, 201 to 209 State St., Chicago, for free treatment before it is too late, and please mention the name of this paper.

(by route traversed on going trip), to original starting point within authorized territory. Where the journey is made over more than one line, it is usually necessary for the passenger to purchase separate local ticket of each road's issue, between points traveled thereon, and procure certificate thereof for each of the lines in this territory over which he traveled in going to the meeting, as through tickets are not always sold, and it is not always practicable for the various lines to honor each other's certificates. Passengers should, therefore, ascertain from the ticket agent what portion of their journey can be covered by the certificate obtainable from him, and procure certificate filled out to correspond with the ticket purchased.

"Failure to procure or present certificate invalidates any claim for reduction in return fare.

"The tickets purchased for going passage may be either limited or unlimited, according to the rate paid or the regulations in effect on the line over which it reads; but the return tickets, sold at the reduced fare, will, in all cases, be limited to continuous passage.

"Certificates which show the purchase of tickets not earlier than three days prior to the date announced as the opening date of the meeting (April 6), or which show the purchase of tickets during the first three days of the meeting, may be honored if presented not later than three days after the date announced as the closing date of the meeting, Sunday not to be accounted as a day in any case.

Reduced Railway Rates to General Conference.

TRUNK LINE ASSOCIATION.

1. Take notice, that tickets are sold from April 1-8 only, on going passage—one day less than over Western Association lines. Travelers may thus reach Western Association Territory and purchase tickets over its lines not later than the 9th.

2. Passengers pay full fare on going passage. Secure a certificate with every ticket purchased. Certificates when duly signed by the Church Secretary and signed and stamped by agent at Lamoni, will entitle the holders to return ticket to destination at one-third regular fare. Holders may return as late as April 24. "Return tickets in all cases are limited to continuous passage to destination."

3. Tickets costing less than seventy-five cents will not entitle the purchasers to reduced rates (unless part of a series of tickets to destination).

4. Ticket agents at starting points should have "timely notice of intentions, so that through tickets and certificates may be ready when required."

5. The same general plan is followed as over Western Association lines (with exceptions noted above) but the following rules are published to avoid possible misunderstandings:

GENERAL INSTRUCTIONS.

"1. The reduction is from Trunk Line territory, i. e., from Niagara Falls, Buffalo, Dunkirk and Salamanca, New York; Erie and Pittsburg, Pennsylvania; Bellaire, Ohio; Wheeling, Parkersburg and Huntington, West Virginia, and points east thereof, except in New England.

"2. The reduction is fare and one-third on committee's certificate, conditional on there being an attendance at the meeting of not less than 100 persons who hold proper certificates obtained from ticket agents at starting points, showing payment of full first-class fare of not less than seventy-five cents, through to place of meeting. Agents at all important stations and coupon ticket offices are supplied with certificates.

"3. Certificates are not kept at all stations. If, however, the ticket agent at a local station is not supplied with certificates and through tickets to place of meeting, he can inform the delegate of the nearest important station where they can be obtained. In such a case the delegate should purchase a local ticket to such station and there take up his certificate and through ticket to place of meeting.

"4. Going tickets, in connection with which certificates are issued for return, may be sold only on three days, and if a Sunday intervenes four days, immediately preceding the agreed opening date of the meeting, and during the first three days (Sunday included) of the meeting; * * * provided also that, when meetings are held at distant points to which the authorized limit is greater than three days, tickets may be sold before the meeting in accordance with the limits shown in regular tariffs.

"5. Deposit the certificate with the secretary or other proper officer of the organization at the meeting, for necessary endorsement and vise of special agent. Receipts for fare paid will not be accepted in lieu of certificates. * * *

"6. On presentation of the certificate, duly validated, not later than the third day following the agreed date for adjournment (Sunday not to be counted as a day), the agent at place of meeting will return the holder to starting point, upon a continuous passage ticket, by the route over which the going journey was made, at one-third the highest limited fare by such route.

"7. Certificates are not transferable, and return tickets secured upon certificates are not transferable.

"8. No refund of fare will be made on account of any person failing to obtain a certificate.

"Delegates and others availing of the reduction in fare should present themselves at the offices for certificates and tickets at least thirty minutes before departure of trains.

"LIST OF ROADS MAKING THE REDUCTION.

"Allegheny Valley; Baltimore & Ohio (Parkersburg, Bellaire and Wheeling, and east thereof); Baltimore & Potomac; Buffalo & Susquehanna; Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburg; Camden & Atlantic; Central of New Jersey; Chesapeake & Ohio (Huntington, West Virginia, and east thereof); Cumberland Valley; Delaware & Hudson; Delaware, Lackawanna and Western; Elmira, Cortland & Northern; Erie (Buffalo, Dunkirk, Salamanca and east thereof); Fonda, Johnstown & Gloversville; Jamestown & Chautauqua; Lehigh Valley; New York Central & Hudson River, including R. A Frontier Missionary's Experience.

Sowing the seed of Christianity in the far West some years ago, was a mission attended with more or less danger, great hardships and much self-denial. Rev. Cyrus Townsend Brady, who was a missionary on the frontier, and who has since won much fame as an author, has written a series of articles for The Ladies' Home Journal graphically narrating his experiences—often thrilling in the extreme, again pathetic, and, not infrequently, humorous. These he has related in his interesting way, which will make them exceedingly attractive, and which will show better than anything else which has ever been written that Americans are instinctively a religious people, ready to suffer any sacrifices for the advancement of Christianity. The first article of the series will appear in the April Journal.

CHAS. E. EVERETT, Sec.

S. Hadfield, Joseph Ebeling, L. Heilman. Elder Jacob Reese was authorized to labor in Beaver Falls and vicinity by direction of district authorities.

Resolved, That inasmuch as the General Conference in session in 1886 adopted a resolution to the effect that no one be ordained to the office of an elder in organized districts without the consent of the district or conference be obtained, or the consent of the missionary in charge; therefore be it resolved that this district hold itself in harmony with said action.

Resolved, That we hereby petition General Conference to more clearly define the law in regard to those members who continually absent themselves from church services and who never carry out their promises to so attend when being labored with by the proper officers. What course should the teacher pursue in such cases in view of the command that, "He shall see that the church meet together often," and "That thou mayest keep thyself more fully unspotted from the world, thou shalt go to the house of prayer and offer up thy sacraments upon this, my holy day." (Doc. & Cov. 59: 2).

Resolved, That we express our hope that the Ensign, a church publication, be so sustained by the membership that it will not be necessary for the paper to accept patent medicine advertisements that are so worded that they grate on the feelings of those reading them.

Sr. Rogers had been in poor health for about two years and bore up under her sickness with remarkable patience and Christian resignation, without a murmur or complaint, and passed away peacefully to the rest prepared for the faithful ones. She was baptized into the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ by Elder F. C. Pitt, and lived a consistent Christian life until her death.

HEALTHY

A man with a thin head of hair is a marked man. But the big bald spot is not the kind of a mark most men like.

Too many men in their twenties are bald. This is absurd and all unnecessary. Healthy hair shows man's strength. To build up the hair from the roots, to prevent and to cure baldness, use—

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR

It always restores color to faded or gray hair. Notice that word, "always." And it cures dandruff.

$1.00 a bottle. All druggists.

"My business calls me out among strangers a great deal. I would actually feel ashamed every time I would take off my hat, my hair was so thin and the bald spots showed so plainly. I began the use of your Hair Vigor less than three months ago. Today I find I have a fine head of hair as I ever had. I tell everybody what I use, and they say 'It must be a wonderful remedy.'"

HEARING THEY HEAR NOT.

Therefore speak I to them in parables: because they seeing see not; and hearing they hear not, neither do they understand.—Matt. 13: 13.

Training and tradition is responsible for every man's individuality; the things the ancestors believed, and followed are, in many instances, the things which have become a part of the belief and make-up of the descendants. Because father or mother were members of a certain denomination, often the children are found walking the same paths. To them it is sacrilege to question the correctness of the judgment of father or mother, or to intimate the possibility that they had erred in their interpretation of the gospel requirements, though such interpretation may be the opposite of what is "written;" and so they follow on in the traditions of the "elders," even though by so doing the law of God is made "of none effect." (Matt. 15: 6). It is a good deal like the maternal culinary accomplishments; the new cooking may be very much more scientific and healthful, but it does not "taste like mother's," therefore, cannot be so good. So a doctrine, be it ever so scriptural and reasonable, if it has a different "taste" to that which was accepted and adopted by the parents, is rejected as of no value, or at least of little importance.

The Scriptures plainly teach that every man and woman is responsible individually for their own stewardship, and it matters not how plausible and pleasing to the senses the religion adopted by others may appear; every one is required to examine the foundation of their own superstructure, for if it is faulty and insecure, not founded upon the rock, it must fall, and the Savior says (Matt. 7: 26, 27), the fall is "great." Such an effect is disastrous and painful, involving loss and a doing again of the "first works"—the former works going for naught—and while the individual who has builded wisely is enjoying the fruit of his labors, the foolish builder must undo a part of his work, in clearing away the debris, and then begin again at the foundation and with more care, and the wisdom gained by his former painful experience, slowly build his superstructure until it reaches completion; but that the cost will have been very greatly enhanced, is as true in the spiritual as, under those circumstances, it would be in the physical realm.

But the Savior in his teachings speaks of a class (Matt. 13: 13-15) to which God's prophet had referred nearly eight hundred years before the Savior calls attention to it (Isa. 6: 9, 10), who would hear the word of the Lord, but would fail to comprehend its importance and application to them personally; they would pass it by as something unessential and unimportant—as a "thing of naught." The Apostle John, speaking of the Christ says, "In him was life; and the life was the light of men * * * the true Light, which lighteth every man that cometh into the world." (St. John 1: 4, 9). This indicates that all men are enlightened by the Spirit of Christ, and at some time in their experience may be placed in a position where they will be required to decide upon their own individuality, the acceptance or rejection of the gospel which will be to them the savor of "life unto life," or "of death unto death," as they may elect by their own action; and no individual thus enlightened, will be able to even excuse himself in the Judgment for having builded upon a faulty foundation.

It will doubtless be admitted by all men who understand the question, that the things of God are spiritually discerned, as the Apostle Paul affirms.

For what man knoweth the things of a man, save the Spirit of man which is in him? even so the things of God knoweth no man, but [by] the Spirit of God.—1 Cor. 2: 11.

Then the apostle proceeds to instruct the Saints how it is that they are thus enlightened.

Now we [the saints, not the disobedient] have received, not the spirit of the world [the spirit which comprehends the things of man only, and cannot understand the spiritual kingdom], but the spirit which is of God; that we might know the things that are freely given to us of God. Which things also we speak, not in the words which man's wisdom teacheth, but which the Holy Ghost teacheth; comparing spiritual things with spiritual. But the natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God: for they are foolishness unto him; neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned.—Verses 12-14.

From this it is readily seen that no man is able to judge correctly regarding the things of God until he has first been put in possession of the Spirit by which they are revealed. The Spirit will enlighten every individual who is prayerfully and honestly seeking to do the will of God; the necessity of obedience to the gospel doctrines and ordinances, of faith, repentance, baptism for the remission of sins, and laying on of hands for the gift of the Holy Ghost (Heb. 6: 1, 2) will be made plain to his understanding; and if these ordinances are honored in obeying them, the Holy Spirit will further enlighten, guide and direct the faithful child of God. But when men and women who have impressed upon their understanding the necessity of complying with the will of God as manifested in the establishing of these ordinances, refuse or neglect to yield obedience because parents or others whom they may set up as criterions or patterns to follow, have not seen the necessity of obeying them, they place themselves deliberately among that class who "seeing, see not; and hearing, they hear not, neither do they understand," and having thus "fallen," must abide the reaping, though the fruit is not what they had anticipated.

Too often the failure to comprehend the preaching or the reading of the doctrine of Christ as requiring personal submission is the result of carelessness in hearing or reading. In either case the energies of the mind should be concentrated upon that which the minister of Christ is presenting because of its importance, affecting as it does—if the minister is under heaven's authority—the welfare of the hearer; or if reading the Scriptures, the same concentration should be given that the understanding may grasp and retain the truths there revealed. Probably every one has at some time in passing along a street met a well known acquaintance who, while looking steadily at you, has yet failed to answer your nod of recognition, and some may have passed feeling hurt because their bow was not recognized; afterwards the fact has been made apparent that although looking squarely at you because the mind was deeply engrossed in other directions, your friend either had no knowledge that you were anywhere near, or so hazy was the impression of your proximity that the mind failed to act upon it until you had passed. Under those conditions you could hardly condemn your friend for his apparent breach of good manners; and yet there is a measure of blame attaching in those cases. An individual when passing where he is liable to meet friends should not permit one line of thought to engross his whole attention. When it is necessary to study out some complex subject, he should shut himself up in his room or stroll in some place unfrequented if possible, where he could give his undivided attention to the matter and where he is not likely to offend his friends by a failure to recognize their greeting. So the individual is blameable who, hearing the word, fails to comprehend its importance or recognize it as a friend.

A concentration of thought in hearing as well as reading, "comparing spiritual things with spiritual" prayerfully, diligently and energetically will bring light and recognition; such a course will make the individual wise in that which is written and he "shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life." (John 8: 12).

"MORMONS TO AMALGAMATE."

The associated press representative in Salt Lake City has been sending out word broadcast that the Utah Mormons, the Josephites (Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ) and the Hedrickites (the latter holding title to the Temple Lot at Independence, Missouri) are about to unite, and that the Utah Mormons will build a temple on the lot at Independence, etc. It is easy to understand the source and inspiration of this article, and is about as reliable as other reports relating to what great things the Utah church is going to do. So far as the Reorganized church is concerned there is but one way in which there can be a uniting of any member of the Utah church with it, and that is to repent of their transgressions and comply with the requirements of the gospel of Christ, His church having no concessions to offer any one so far as obedience to the gospel ordinances are concerned.

We understand two of the Hedrickite brethren, Elders Frisbee and Cole, have had a conference with the Utah representatives, upon what basis we are not informed, but we have also understood that the interview was not a satisfactory one to these brethren, so there need be no uneasiness felt by any, that anything in the nature of a compromise with error will be made by the Reorganized church by which the cause of truth and right will be made to suffer. Neither do we believe the Hedrickite brethren will take any such steps.

As many know the polygamic heresy is not the only difference existing between the Utah and Reorganized churches; that is only one of a number; and these differences are of such a character that the entire abandonment of the Utah church polity would be but the first step toward any possible amalgamation of the two churches, and that is about as probable at present as that the sun will forever discontinue its work next week. The second step in such amalgamation would be the baptizing of all who had not been baptized prior to the death of Joseph Smith, the martyr, and perhaps some of those who had been.

Our friends, therefore, need not worry about newspaper reports. The public have for so many years been fed on sensational reports regarding everything pertaining to the Latter Day Saints, that unless they get their regulation diet at intervals they imagine some one is neglecting duty. And too, they have been so educated in the sensational line, that when any thing sensible and true happens to find its way into the coliseum of the daily press, its readers set it down as false, because it does not agree with that which they have been used to receiving. But "wisdom is justified of her children;" and those who keep their patience and their faith in the integrity of those who have proven themselves worthy, as the servants of Christ in the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, will find that in the future as in the past, righteousness and truth is the only basis upon which all men will be asked to build their hope of the "glory to be revealed."

WHAT NEXT?

It looks as if a new "fad" was coming up. First it is Rev. Chas. M. Sheldon, a prominent minister of Topeka, Kansas, author of "In His Steps"—a book widely read—as well as other works, who has undertaken the editorial charge for one week of the Daily Capital of Topeka, to run it as he thinks Jesus would if He was controlling its publication. There's money in it for the owners of the plant. We believe 300,000 copies will be issued daily, and the space in the advertising columns was all taken at big rates weeks before Rev. Sheldon took charge. Now another individual thinks he sees an opportunity to make a "good thing," and according to the following item clipped from the Kansas City (Mo.) Star of March 12, 1900, has offered Elder B. H. Roberts of Utah the editorial charge of his paper, the Western Spirit, of Paola, Kansas, for one month. Anything for sensation and—money.

WANTS ROBERTS TO EDIT IT.
Fort Scott, Kas.—B. J. Sheridan, one of the most widely quoted Democratic editors and a politician of state prominence, announces today in his paper, the Western Spirit, of Paola, Kansas, that he has offered Elder B. H. Roberts of Utah the editorial charge of his paper, the Western Spirit, of Paola, Kansas, for one month. Anything for sensation and—money.
www.LatterDayTruth.org

Kas., that he has tendered that paper to Ex-Congressman Roberts of Utah for a month, during which period Mr. Roberts is to edit it as a Mormon would run it.

The idea is to give Roberts an opportunity to argue the matter of his recent expulsion from Congress and to give publicity to the principles of Mormonism, which cost him his seat in Congress.

Mr. Sheridan says negotiations are pending with Mr. Roberts to this end, and that he expects to announce the date soon.—Chicago Chronicle.

Chatburn, the husband and father, will, more than any one else, feel the loss. May the Holy Spirit bring comfort, consolation and peace to the bereaved ones:

MOTHER IS DEAD.

At 10:15 p. m., on the 12th day of March, as the soft, silvery rays of the moon broke through the drifting clouds, peacefully and calmly the sands of life ran out, and her spirit departed to the paradise of God. The sable curtains of grief now envelope our whole family, in consequence of the irreparable loss, yet the hope that comes to us through the latter day glory, robs death of its sting and the grave of its victory; and we tearfully, but resignedly, bid dear mother good-by, and hopefully wait the bursting grave and Zion's glory, bringing palms of victory and crowns of glory to all who lived and died like her.

W. W. BASS, Monegaw, Missouri:

The weekly visits of the Ensign are a comfort to us, we being few in numbers and virtually without branch privileges, it being too far to the meeting place of our branch to permit us to attend in winter. However, we have had several good meetings here the past two years. Bro. Welsh frequently visits us for which we are thankful, for surely he is a man of God with love at heart for the cause of the Master; an able exponent of the angel's message, sacrificing time and talent for the benefit of the Saints. I hope that individually and collectively the Saints will in the near future be prepared for the gathering and coming of the Master. We are striving to overcome.

GENERAL HURH NEWS.

INDEPENDENCE.

Bro. Joseph Smith, E. L. Kelley, Heman C. Smith, and R. S. Salyards left for Lamoni Monday morning, and Bro. Alexander Smith followed Tuesday. Bro. Joseph Luff departed for same place Wednesday morning to meet with his quorum which convenes today (Thursday).

Bro. F. M. Sheehy, of Boston, Massachusetts, arrived Sunday morning from California, and Bro. A. B. Phillips from the same mission, Monday, having stopped off at St. Joseph, preaching in the Saints' church Saturday evening. These brethren are en route to the General Conference.

A conference between a committee of elders of the Reorganized church and Church of Christ in Zion (Hedrickites) was held in the church of the latter on the Temple Lot, last week, canvassing the positions held by each with regard to the doctrine of Christ. Reports will be made to the General Conferences of each organization, commencing April 6th, and a further conference will likely be held after adjournment of the General Conferences.

Mrs. M. E. McCauley, residing on Fuller street, died from an attack of pneumonia, Tuesday of last week, and was buried from the house Thursday afternoon at 2 p. m., Bro. W. H. Garrett conducting the services. A husband, two sons and a daughter mourn their loss. Mr. McCauley desires to find good homes for the daughter about 11 years old, and the oldest son about nine; the youngest, aged about four, he will keep with him. They are well mannered, healthy children.

The funeral of Bro. Bruce A. Williams, of Kansas City, was conducted at the stone church, this city, Monday afternoon at two o'clock, Bro. F. M. Sheehy preaching the sermon, Bro. W. H. Garrett assisting. The interment took place in the city cemetery. Bro. Bruce was a young man lacking about two weeks of being nineteen years old. He was active in Religio and Sunday School work, and was prepared to meet the issues of his life. He expressed his willingness to depart, feeling that all was well. A young wife to whom he had been married but seven months, parents, brother, two sisters, and many friends mourn the early closing of his life work, but are comforted in the hope of the meeting in the resurrection. Bro. Mansel Williams, the brother, was unable to attend, being ill.

The Independence district conference which convened in the stone church Saturday last at ten a. m., was well attended. The day was fine, and we were favored with the presence of Presidents Joseph and Alexander H. Smith, E. L. Kelley, Heman C. Smith, of the apostles quorum (Bro. Luff being otherwise engaged), and R. S. Salyards, church secretary and assistant editor of Saints' Herald. Bro. R. May and J. W. Brackenbury presided, Bro. D. Robert Winn and Will MacLaren clerks. Harmony prevailed throughout, and the business was transacted in good shape. Seventy-two delegates were elected to represent the district at the General Conference next month. Sunday was a "high" day, warm, spring-like, clear and beautiful. The Sunday School presented quite an animated scene, nearly five hundred being present, including many visitors. At eleven o'clock the upper auditorium was filled, and two or three hundred in the gallery. President Joseph Smith was the speaker, the Spirit giving liberly. Bro. F. M. Sheehy at night also preached a splendid discourse. We expect to give our readers both sermons in time. Adjournment of conference was taken at the close of evening service to reassemble at Armstrong, Kansas, the second Saturday and Sunday in September next. The Religio and Sunday School conventions on Friday showed good interest and work and a splendid spirit. Prospects are very encouraging for the future.

By card from Bro. Elmer E. Johnson we were pained to learn that Bro. John M. Terry, Jr., of Chicago, died March 13th, and that the funeral is to take place today (Thursday). This will be sad news indeed to the many friends of this young brother and his parents. He was actively engaged in spreading the gospel story, distributing tracts and other literature as long as he was able to do so. May the Father, who tenderly recognizes the sufferings of his children, comfort our dear Bro. and Sr. Terry in their deep affliction and bereavement. The deceased had been ailing for some time, but a fatal termination was not expected by his friends. Being an only child the separation will be hard indeed to Bro. and Sr. Terry, but they will not sorrow as those without hope; but a few short years at farthest will elapse until the meeting which knows no parting will come; may the Holy Spirit give grace and strength to accept with patient resignation this trial. Our brother and sister have the deepest sympathy of the Saints, but human sympathy seems to have but little power to lighten the burden of the heart at times like these; only the presence of the Holy Spirit, testifying of the Father's sympathy and love, can avail to remove the weight of sorrow such separations enforce. May our brother and his companion be so blessed now.

LAMONI, IOWA.

Elder Stebbins ministered at Davis City, Sunday 4th, and Elder Scott enlightened the denizens of Pawnee, Missouri, in a series of meetings.

Pres. Jos. Smith has tied two couples, of late, in the matrimonial bonds, viz. W. B. Gaylord to Anna J. Danielson, 28th ult., and J. C. Danielson to Hattie C. Rush, 7th inst.

Eighty-eight delegates to General Conference were chosen to represent the Decatur district.

Bro. W. H. Kelley, president of the apostolic quorum, returned from the East.

The auditorium of the brick church has been neatly repapered of late, and other improvements are being made.

Blind Boone gave a concert the other night in benefit of the Religio, to the tune of thirty some odd dollars.

Sunday, 11th inst., was a fine spring-like day. A swarm of Sunday School scholars greeted the superintendent and teachers of the Star of Bethlehem school, about 300 in attendance, and the offerings were not scant. At the preaching hour Elder D. W. Wight, with good liberty, expounded the parable of the true vine and its branches, John: 15. The afternoon social was seasoned with soul reviving prayers and testimonies. At the night service Elder C. Scott spoke in his usual acceptable manner to the profit of all on the way of righteousness and peace.

ST. JOSEPH, MISSOURI.

Bro. D. J. Krahl is willing to be forgiven for having carried last week's items in his pocket until too late to send them.

Our conference closed last evening after a very enjoyable day. Elder T. C. Kelley was the speaker at the morning hour, eliciting very favorable comments from his hearers. Elder Frank Chatburn occupied the evening hour to a well filled house. The afternoon prayer meeting was very largely attended, and was marked by the presence of the Holy Spirit in a rich degree. Saturday was occupied with business sessions until the evening hour when Elder Arthur Phillips, of California, addressed the Saints very profitably. Bro. Phillips is certainly one of our promising young men to bear onward the latter day work.

The district Sunday School association convened on Friday, and the Religio managed to not be crowded out entirely, and held one meeting Friday evening.

Bro. and Sr. A. Wells will move about two and one-half miles out of the city this week. We hope to see them at meetings just the same.

A little daughter was born to Bro. and Sr. G. J. Whitehead on Thursday morning.

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS.

The entertainment and luncheon at the Lang mission, on Saturday night, in honor of the missionaries, F. G. Pitt, late of London, England, and R. C. Evans, of London, Canada, was a successful and happy affair. Good music, good talks, good cheer, good declamations, good lunch, and good sense were the features, with Bro. E. J. Lang as master of ceremonies.

Though by our appointments we imposed a heavy task upon our Canada missionary, yet he proved himself both able and willing for the task by preaching at Lang Mission at 11 a. m., at headquarters at 2:45 p. m., traveling by street car eighteen miles to West Pullman, and preached at 7:30 p. m.; then back sixteen miles and took the west bound train at 11 p. m. His visit did us good and made our Canadian Saints, of whom we have many, proud of their native land. When you want to rest come this way again, Bro. R. C.

Bro. E. A. Goodwin, of North Michigan, and J. A. Grant, also of Michigan, are in the city en route to General Conference. They attended the services yesterday at 716 Van Buren street.

Sr. Missouri A. Taylor has returned to her former home, Lockland, Ohio, where she will make her future home.

Next Sunday is our regular appointment at West Pullman morning and evening, which we will fill should the condition of our son permit. He remains quite sick.

The Saints of Chicago are willing givers financially. Our local running expenses are about five hundred dollars a year, and since January 1, 1899, there has been paid $271.81 in tithing. One lone sister, who earns by daily toil her living, has paid $21.85 of this amount, besides a very liberal hand has been extended to the missionary. Truly this is a testimony of the deep love for the Lord's work.

Bro. James M. Crawford, after a three months illness, passed away to the unseen on March 6th, at the age of 63 years, 11 months and 16 days. A short service was held by Bro. F. G. Pitt and the writer, when the G. A. R. took charge of the remains and gave it an honorable, loyal interment. Peace be to his ashes.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA.

Services at Golden West Hall, 320 Post street, every Sunday. Sunday School 10 a. m., preaching 11 a. m., and 7:30 p. m.; prayer meeting first Sunday of each month at 12:15 noon. Elder C. A. Parkin presiding elder, residence 3010 16th street.

Sunday, February 25th we had preaching at 11 a. m. by D. A. Anderson, and at 7:30 p. m. by J. A. Saxe. Quite a number of strangers and visitors were present at both services.

Our branch priesthood meeting was held Monday evening and the spiritual condition of the members considered. Regular business meeting Wednesday evening. Sisters' Prayer Union Thursday afternoon, and Religio Friday evening.

Last Sunday J. H. Anthony was the speaker at 11 a. m. and Chas. A. Parkin at 7:30 p. m. We had sacrament service at 12:15, but as the Oakland Saints had invited us to worship with them that day, our meeting closed after administering the sacrament, so that as many as wished might visit Oakland. This day they met for the first time in their new church, corner 16th and Magnolia streets, where they now have every opportunity for pushing the work.

All our missionaries have now left us, homeward bound for General Conference. For the present, work depends on our locals, but we will "hold the fort" and keep things moving.

We have had an abundance of rain of late, which secures good crops for the farmers, making future prospects in that line encouraging. Today the first vessel carrying passengers and freight is supposed to depart for the Cape Nome gold fields. A great rush is expected in that direction from now on.

In spite of all bright prospects and good promises future trade, business still remains very quiet here. While everybody in business circles predicts good times right at hand, many are realizing that hard times are still with them. Many are hoping, trusting and praying for the coming of the promised "boom," but still things move along in a quiet, easy way.

All is well with us in church affairs. The Spirit is with us in our sessions. We are blessed in presenting the word, and strangers are becoming interested.

SECOND KANSAS CITY BRANCH.

Corner Sixteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue. Sunday School 9:30 a. m., preaching 11 a. m., prayer meeting 2:30 p. m., preaching 7:30 p. m.

The passing of our young brother and friend, Bruce Williams, son of Bro. and Sr. M. B. Williams, has made a deep impression on the branch, and the sympathy of all is extended to his young companion, his parents, and brother and sisters. He went to sleep so peacefully, that we could hardly wish him back, knowing from the circumstances attending his departure, that he is in a better place than this.

The branch services were not well attended Sunday, on account of district conference at Independence, where several of the Saints went to hear Bro. Joseph Smith and others.

There are some who have been mingling with the Saints lately, who seem to be ready for the regenerating effects of baptism.

Our report to conference showed a net gain of twenty-four member, several by baptism.

Elder R. Bullard labored at East Brewster and Dennisport, Massachusetts, of late. At the latter place he expected to get an M. E. church to preach in.

Ruth M., the three year old daughter of Bro. William H. and the late Mrs. Sophenda M. Smith, died last Sunday about noon. Elder Holmes Davison preached the funeral sermon last Tuesday at 2 p. m.

Elder Robley arrived home from Pennsylvania so as to be at the evening service at the chapel here last Sunday. He assisted in prayer. Elder Holmes Davison was the preacher, Elder Wm. Bradbury in charge.

The lessons in the local Book of Mormon class under the leadership of Elder Geo. A. Smith are growing in spiritual and intellectual interest. It is about the largest adult class in the school.

LETTER DEPARTMENT.

PARISH, Ill., Feb. 28.

Editor Ensign:—I desire to express my thanks through the Ensign for the many blessings obtained during the past year, and for the blessings I am permitted to enjoy under the hand of the loving Father at the present. I am in the faith and at work here, preaching every night, and hope to continue faithful in the path of duty. I feel that our reward is sure when the conflicts of this life are ended. "He that overcometh shall inherit all things; and I will be his God, and he shall be my son." "But he that shall endure unto the end, the same shall be saved." Dear brethren and sisters, these loving words should be sufficient to inspire every one to press on in the line of duty.

As our General Conference is near, I hope that every one who may come from the different parts of the world will assemble with that humility of mind that the blessings of the Master may be given in all our deliberations. What we may receive at General Conference, or in any other gathering, depends altogether upon our faithfulness to duty. "Where two or three are gathered together in my name, there am I in the midst of them." Again: "If two of you shall agree on earth as touching anything that they shall ask, it shall be done for them of my Father which is in heaven." Some of the greatest blessings that the writer has seen manifested have been given in small crowds; large crowds are not necessary in order to receive great blessings. When Jesus raised the daughter of Jairus he put them all out and suffered no one to enter in save Peter, James and John and the father and mother of the damsel. When Peter restored Tabitha to life he put them all forth; and when Jesus gave the blind man sight he took him by the hand and led him out of the town. Surely these were grand blessings, and we are commanded to be like him. And he was continually speaking words of comfort to those who were afflicted. I fear there are some in the church today who are too proud in spirit to associate with the poor as did he. Are ye not then partial in yourselves? Brethren, examine yourselves, whether ye be in the faith. If we are not willing to humble ourselves and help the poor and the blind as did he, then we are not worthy to be his disciples. May the Lord help us to be worthy.

F. M. SLOVER.

Editor Ensign:—The Saints' church here was destroyed by fire on Friday, March 2d, between 8:30 and 9:30 a. m. No meeting had been held in it since the Sunday preceding the fire. The Saints feel very sad and have the sympathy of the entire neighborhood, respecting the loss of the church. I trust it may be rebuilt soon. It cost $600, was insured for $150, and $50 on the furniture; indebtedness $170. We arranged to hold the discussion in the school-house, but it stormed nearly all day on Monday, the day set to begin the discussion, and Mr. Collins did not come down from Greenleaf. Tuesday I got word from Bro. O. B. Thomas, who assisted me as moderator at Barnes, that he and Mr. Collins had agreed to indefinitely postpone the debate at Idylwild, if satisfactory to me, on account of the almost impassable condition of the roads and the consequent improbability of securing a hearing. To this I readily assented. This will not interfere with the debate at Linn, which will begin March 14th, as already announced.

The roads were so muddy and the walks so sloppy that the attendance at Barnes was small for a disension. About one hundred attended each session. Mr. R. B. Briggs was chosen president, and acted very satisfactorily in that capacity so long as he attended. He only attended a few sessions, when the presidency was left to the moderators, Bro. O. B. Thomas and Mr. Ira Wannamaker. These brethren both, evidently, endeavored to decide justly, and the discussion passed along under their management with little jarring. While this dis-ussion was held in the Christian church, and among that people, I felt that the audience treated me with respect, and recognized and gave due credit to facts presented. I shall be pleased to meet them again. I am sure we left many friends at Barnes. To me the discussion there was pleasant and satisfactory.

Your brother,
W. S. PENDER.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., March 12.

Editor Ensign:—We had the pleasure yesterday of baptizing six, all married, three men and three ladies; there are several others who should have gone along, but desired a more opportune time.

Those baptized were Mr. and Mrs. Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. Schwab, Mrs. Borgin, and a Mr. Martin, a son of Bro. and Sr. Nelson. We are very proud of all of them; they are a grand addition to our little family of Saints.

By the way, the Saints have resolved to stop paying rent, and our noble and ever faithful sisters are in the lead as usual. Some one has said, "What is home without a mother?" but I say, "What is a church without a Ladies' Aid Society?" They are the ones who make the wheels turn whether they want to or not, and they are sure turning here.

There are four Brighamite elders in town, but they inquire where any of the Saints live, and steer clear; that is their safest place, but I have stirred them up a little through the press.

We had a full hall last night, many strangers out, and judging from the number of names on some of the ladies' subscription books, our friends are not all dead; I see the names of three doctors and one justice of peace, and several store keepers, and I see they have given sums of from $1.00 to $25.00, and the list is still growing. Bro. and Sr. Pickering's noble example here for a number of years have made it much easier for us to receive aid.

More Saints moving into South Missouri, land is cheap; but I advise the Saints moving into this part to be careful of these "real estate men;" most any of the Saints can tell you where the cheapest places are.

In gospel bonds,

HENRY SPARLING.

DALLAS, TEXAS, Jan. 23.

Dear Ensign:—We are glad to testify to this work. My husband and I were baptized a year ago the 15th of this month. We are alone in this city. Bro. Moore and Renfro passed through this city last Friday, going south; it is so much pleasure to see the elders come around and advise us in the way of the truth. The work is starting here a little; several have requested us to have preaching at our house. Bro. Sheppard and Henson are holding meetings eight miles from here and we intend to have them preach awhile for us when they come back. I feel we need the prayers of the Saints in behalf of our children who are out of the kingdom of God. Persecution is great here, but the blessed Savior will not suffer us to be tempted above what we can bear if we live for it.

Your sister in bonds,

J. D. STELWELL.

MONTPELIER, Idaho, Feb. 23.

Editor Ensign:—For many years I have been edified and instructed by reading the many excellent articles written by your many contributors while I have contributed nothing to your columns for publication; and this morning, while considering the many precious privileges and blessings which I, as a member of the church, have been permitted to enjoy, the thought came to me that perhaps some of the dear Saints might be pleased to hear from this part of the world, and to learn that I am still in the land of the living, and as firm in the faith as ever.

Nearly sixteen years ago I left Jackson county, Missouri, and came to western Wyoming, and since that time I have resided in western Wyoming or eastern Idaho. Perhaps some would like to know what kind of a country this is. It has a high elevation, the lowest valleys being nearly 6,000 feet above sea level, and being a mountainous country the climate is variable and the seasons unequal; very short summers and long, cold winters with deep snows.

Agriculture is confined to the growing of small grain, vegetables, hay and small fruits. Stock raising is the chief industry. Spirituality is at a low ebb here. There seems to be a spirit of money getting or money-making in this country, and this, together with the use of strong drink and gambling and a general inclination toward worldly pleasures, has a tendency to drive spiritual things from the minds of the people, and they will hardly come out to hear a gospel sermon.

I have often wished that I could have my family located in some good neighborhood of Saints where my children could be under a good influence all the time instead of being influenced by Brighamite Mormons and the classes I have already mentioned. Think of it, ye Saints of God! Think of a class of people—a church, calling themselves the true church of Christ—and many of them living in polygamy, which God calls adultery, teaching their little children to dance and play cards. Think of a church that will allow lying, swearing, cheating, drinking and gambling among its members, and then remember us poor isolated ones of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints who have to live and raise a family of children under such influences.

Dear brethren and sisters in the one faith, please remember us in your prayers to God that we may be protected from such influences, and be enabled to resist temptations and accomplish the work that is given us to do. And may our heavenly Father continue to guide his people into all truth, protect them from the power of the adversary, and bless them with all that is for their good, is the prayer of

Your brother in the gospel,
EDDER A. J. LAYLAND.

ROSENDALE, MISSOURI, Feb. 6.

Editor Ensign:—I am glad to say that I am a member of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ and have been since the year 1895, and am still striving to do my Master's will, tho' my way seems dark, being deprived of all church privileges to a great extent. We are few in number here, but the Lord hears and answers prayers just the same. We have been holding our Sunday School out at one of our faithful sister's home in the country, and have been blessed by so doing; but on account of it coming on cold and some of the Saints moving away we had to close.

Bro. M. E. Gowell being our preacher, and also Bro. Nelson, the past week, tried to preach to the people here, but they would not hear. They preached one or two nights and when they went back the next night the lamps and oil can were gone, which shows how hard they fight against us; they are bound the Saints will not gain any converts here. We had a good prayer meeting Sunday. One of our sisters is afflicted; I ask the prayers of the Saints for her that if it be the Lord's will, she may be restored to health.

Your sister in gospel bonds,
FANNIE CUMMINGS.

GUIDE ROCK, Neb., Feb. 11.

Editor Ensign:—We are among the scattered ones, and I agree with the sister who said, "It is a terrible thing to be isolated from church privileges." "I believe," will hardly stand the test of isolation; it takes "I know," to stand firm amid the prejudice and man-made doctrine that is abroad in the world today. The people here are very much prejudiced; they are nearly all members of other churches, and know all they care to know. Some claim to be perfect, yet will not accept Christ's word as it is written. They seem to have forgotten the fact that the Lord is unchangeable, and were he to come on the earth today just as He did eighteen hundred years ago, he would preach the same gospel as He did then, they would say, "Why, He is a Mormon, away with Him."

I loaned my "Voice of Warning" to a neighbor to read, and it came home with some very insulting remarks written on the margin of the leaves, referring to some things in the book. I thought I had cast my pearls before swine. Dear Saints, let us live faithful, striving to grow in the grace and knowledge of truth, that when Christ comes again, he will find a people prepared to meet him. My prayer is that the good work may roll on until all are brought to the knowledge of its truth.

Your sister in the one faith,
OLIVIA PAISON.

CEDAR RAPIDS, IOWA, Feb. 13.

Dear Ensign:—I rejoice in reading the testimonies that are in the letters in the Ensign. It is some fifteen or sixteen years since I first heard a Latter Day sermon, it was delivered by Elder Roth, and I thought it was all right; I have heard quite a good many sermons of late years, and the more I heard the more I believed. I attended Bro. Fred Smith's tent meetings, and would have been baptized then, but my husband was strongly against it, so I let it pass, thinking there might be a time when I could, so I asked the prayers of the church in my behalf. It is now nearly three years since my husband passed from this life to await the judgment; may the Lord have mercy upon him, is my prayer.

I feel and believe this is the true doctrine of the Lord Jesus Christ, I became a member only a short time ago, in November. My health has been poor for seventeen years, as I have bronchitis; last winter I was taken with grippe and was afraid I would not get well; but I was thinking at the time if I got over that, and if the opportunity came again to be baptized, I would obey; so my cousin, Elder J. B. Sutton, came here, and I took the opportunity. He went home on Thanksgiving and came back before Christmas, and did some preaching, and there are some who are deeply interested. He administered to me, and I feel to thank the Lord that I have been relieved of the terrible pain that troubled me so long a time; I have been in fair health for me this winter. I have a sister who was baptized when I was, and I ask the prayers of the church that we may both prove faithful, for her trials are harder to bear than mine now, as her husband is very bitter against it, although rather investigating. May the time come that he will be convinced to his satisfaction, is my prayer.

WASHBURN, Me., Feb. 23.

Dear Ensign:—We are a few Saints away up in the northern part of Maine, and although the cold winds blow, and the snow lays deep without, yet we enjoy the cheering warmth of the Spirit's presence within our hearts.

We have had to part with one of our number, Bro. John Jordan, who died February 20, 1900; services by the M. E. preacher. This was not according to the deceased's wishes, but through a spirit of willfulness on the part of the M. E. reverend. We read of the false brethren who will privily spy out our liberty, and this seems to prove the Word true. Well, it may be for our own good, and to teach us to be more on our guard that the evil one may not creep in unawares.

Bro. H. J. Davison first brought us the gospel story, and through his preaching, by precept and example, we were led into the fold, and have been trying to let our light shine ever since; sometimes it gets rather dim and needs to be trimmed, but the desire is strong within us to live right and do His will.

Bro. S. O. Foss cheered us by his timely counsel and good will in November; come again, Bro. S. O., you have many friends here.

Our dear Mrs. Philbrick and Scott are deserving of our earnest prayers that they may be made well. Sr. Philbrick has lately come into the fold. Pray for them, Saints.

Hoping and praying for the cause of Christ, I am

ZION'S ENSIGN.

"MORMONISM IN MISSOURI."

Paper Read Before the Old Settlers' Association, of Kansas City, Missouri, by Colonel John Doniphan, of St. Joseph, Missouri, Thursday, March 1, 1900.

In 1840, a traveling missionary from the western reserve of Ohio, of the Christian church, of which my father and mother were members, stayed several weeks at our home in Kentucky, and preached frequently to the churches in Mason and Bracken counties. While there on several nights, I listened as a small boy, with bated breath, to his account of the origin of the Mormon church.

In the sixty years that have passed much of what he said has escaped my memory, but I can recall his earnestness in denouncing the heresies of this new faith. His name was Jasper J. Moss, who had lived for some time at Kirtland, Ohio. He died only a few years since in the state of Oregon, being past 90 and preaching until the end of his life.

Kirtland was called the first stake, and it was there the leaders of the church resided, when the first mission was sent to Jackson county, Missouri, in the fall of 1830, under Oliver Cowdery, who founded a second stake. The Rev. Mr. Moss claimed that Sydney Rigdon had been the most active factor in instituting this new religion. He stated Rigdon was a classical scholar, raised in Northern Pennsylvania, and at the age of 23 was secretary of Alexander Campbell, and took down the celebrated debates on baptism between Campbell and Rev. Mr. McCalla, a Presbyterian minister, which was held in 1823 at Washington, Kentucky; that Rigdon was brilliant but visionary, and soon lapsed from Mr. Campbell's stern creed of morals and theology, and became an associate editor of a Pittsburg newspaper, in which office he had learned the printer's trade. While the paper was being published an invalid minister by the name of Spaulding opened a negotiation with the paper to publish for him a novel called "Maroni," and while the manuscript was in the office Rev. Mr. Spaulding died and soon after the paper suspended, whereupon Rigdon copied the manuscript and took it with him on a vacation during the summer of about 1826, to his old home, near the sources of the Susquehanna. The next year, 1827, the plates were found in New York by revelation to Joseph Smith.

This novel purported to be a history of the ten lost tribes of Israel, moved by the king of Babylon from Palestine to the shores of the Persian gulf, most of whom there lapsed into idolatry in a few centuries, but a chosen few had been saved as in the days of Elijah, to the worship of the true God. These, directed by the Great Jehovah, had built vessels and launched on the face of the Indian ocean, under the cause of a prophet, Nephi, being guided by Divine favor; had landed in Central America, prospered greatly and grew into a great people and a mighty nation. They were supposed to have built the immense temples and cities whose ruins are still found there. Becoming worshipers of idols, they were all destroyed except one trusted prophet who was commanded to write their history down on golden plates and bury them at some point to be revealed by God to a prophet whom he would rise up in after years, and then he was gathered to his fathers, as Moses of old, with no man knowing the place of his burial. God in his own good time revealed these plates to Joseph Smith, as the promised prophet, constituting him as the founder of this religion, and His own prophet. There is no doubt but liberties were taken with this manuscript, and it varied in its history as given in the books of Mormon from that written by Spaulding. Doubtless the manuscript had a fascination for Rigdon, as it aided the suggestion of William Penn, who had insisted the Indian tribes found in North America, were the descendants of the Jews, and suggested several analogies in their feasts and worship.

Joseph Smith visited the same town the same summer, and met Rigdon, and, according to Mr. Moss, they became fast friends. The novel was conned over between them, and, as he believed, the future system of religion was then formulated by them. Rigdon returned to Pittsburg, procured a number of brass plates and spent the next winter in covering them with hieroglyphics of a mysterious character, which Professor Anthon, the author of several classic works, declared were composed of hieroglyphics of Hebrew and Greek letters and phrases, but most of the words were unintelligible to him. The Mormons insisted that God had revealed them to Joseph Smith, who had interpreted them from the plates, and they were transcribed into the book of the Mormons. No doubt the manuscript had been altered somewhat by Rigdon, as claimed by Mr. Moss, as Rigdon, who had ability and literary taste, polished and refined manners, was able to have supplied the literature of the Mormon Bible. He stated that those who described Joseph Smith, a non-educated youth, as the founder of the religious sect, had done him honor over much. Smith had either human or divine assistance, as the religion, if not of human origin, must have been from divine inspiration, and that only the brains of Rigdon could have supplied the elements of mystery, majesty and evangelism, which all must admit is a part of their faith and practice. This was the recital and theory of Mr. Moss as to the origin of the Mormon faith.

Neither Smith, Rigdon or Brigham Young were ever in Jackson county, and only came to Caldwell county after Far West had been selected as a site for the future temple of this peculiar people.

The expulsion of the Mormons is within the memory of many persons of Jackson, Clay, Ray, Platte and Buchanan counties, some of whom were soldiers during the troubles of 1838, yet we see published and hear many absurd stories of these troubles. What purports to be a recent history of Missouri contains but little more of accurate statement in regard to the Mormon difficulties than the Spaulding novel. It locates Smith in Jackson county, where he never was, and gives a series of troubles and numbers killed, which were really but quarrels over some stolen cattle; also an account of fifteen men or more being killed in a battle in Caldwell county when in reality only one man was killed in that battle.

One or two men had previously been killed in Daviess county in a contest over a town site called Adam or Diamond, at the polls, challenging voters and their right to vote. Then, again, it was stated that Mormons were killed after the surrender. This is pure fiction and a slander on Missourians. Then it makes General Clarke and Colonel Doniphan unite in Caldwell county and carry on a campaign against the Mormons, stating battles were fought and prisoners killed, none of which were true. No battles were fought and only a skirmish in the north end of Ray county some days before the troops were called out between a squad of militia from Ray county, in which Captain Patton, commander of the Mormon forces, was killed. General Clarke was never within fifty miles of Caldwell county during these difficulties. The troops there were those from Clay, Jackson and Platte counties, Buchanan then being a part of Platte county.

While in Missouri the Mormons were more sinned against than sinning. In Jackson county some indiscreet Mormon disciples of the pure Yankee type preached and undertook to practice the abstraction of the Mormon revelation, viz:

"All the world was the Lord's and the fullness thereof, and Joseph Smith was the prophet of God, and as servants of the prophet they had the right to press cattle, hogs and other personal belongings." A few personal collisions occurred in Jackson county on account thereof, in which two persons were killed and some wounded. The Mormon paper that was being published in Independence contained indiscreet strictures against the opponents of the Mormon faith; the result was, the office was sacked by a mob and the press thrown into the river, and a public meeting of the citizens demanded that all of the Mormon faith should leave the county. This was done peacefully, although there was great excitement and complaint of the compulsory proceedings of the citizens of the county. They moved across the river, mostly into Clay and Ray counties; a small part returned to Ohio. Afterwards, trouble arising in these counties on account of religious prejudices, the county of Caldwell was formed, to which the Mormons were to move and to be confined to that county. Governor Boggs, as was charged, largely for political reasons, soon after their settlement in Caldwell, and the killing of Patton, called out a large body of militia to quiet the disturbances that had arisen between the citizens of Ray, Daviess and Caldwell. The militia were ordered to go to Caldwell county and drive out or exterminate the Mormon people. Several thousand were enrolled and started, but the troubles were over before most of them reached the county.

General Doniphan in 1874 furnished to me a statement regarding the Mormon settlement in Missouri, and the incidents growing out of it. It is so succinct and clear that I will read it as of more importance than anything that I could write of my recollection or knowledge:

"HON. JOHN DONIPHAN:

"Dear John:—At your request I will make a draft upon my memory for the most important facts connected with the advent of the Mormons into Missouri and their subsequent troubles, terminating with emigration to Illinois.

"In the fall of 1830 a missionary or pioneer squad of Mormons came to Independence, Mo. Of this number and the most prominent were Oliver Cowdery, a brother-in-law of David and John Whitmer (two of Whitmer's brothers). They were all witnesses to the reception of the plates from which the Book of Mormon was miraculously translated. The next year Edward Partridge, the bishop of the Western, or Missouri, branch of Zion (called by them the second state), also Phelps, a printer, established 'The Lord's Store,' and, under the control of Partridge, a newspaper setting forth their peculiar religious views and tenets, interspersed with recent revelations, to their prophet, Joseph Smith. These were accompanied or followed during that and the next year by a thousand or more of the lay members, unfledged preachers and lesser lights of various grades. They continued to increase steadily and to acquire lands by entry at the land office, and by private purchase, until July, 1833, when the citizens of the county called a public meeting, adverse to the emigration and settlement of the Mormons in that county. One of the results of the meeting was a suppression of the paper, destroying the type and press, and after some bloodshed and military skirmishes, finally culminated in the expulsion of all these people, women and children, from Jackson county in November, 1833. They fled generally to Clay county, but some hundreds moved to Ray, Lafayette and adjoining counties, and some returned to Ohio, at that inconvenient season, and many followed in the spring of 1834.

"The citizens of Clay and other counties afforded them shelter and food, and, many being mechanics, they obtained employment and managed to pass the winter with comparative comfort. The agreement between them and the citizens of Clay county was that no more emigrants were to come from Ohio and East to that county, and that they were to leave quietly when the citizens requested them to do so. They remained so located in these counties until 1836, when the same reasons that caused objections to them in Jackson began to be heard quite generally in Clay, but there was no riot or acrimony. At a meeting of the most prominent citizens they were advised to purchase from the United States bodies of land in the northern and sparsely settled portion of Ray, that now constitutes Caldwell county. They did so, and bought out all the settlers in that part of Ray, and that winter the legislature organized Caldwell county especially for them. They prospered there, and the county improved as by the work of magic.

"Up to this time Joseph Smith, Sidney Rigdon, Hyrum Smith and other dignitaries of the main church, or "eastern stake," had remained in Kirtland, Ohio. The branch in Missouri being managed by Cowdery, Partridge and Whitmers. But in 1837 or 1838 the famous Bank of Kirtland, O., a second Mississippi bubble, and Joseph, its founder, came to grief, as John Law had before him, on a much wider theater. The prophet Joseph had a new revelation, opening his eyes to the grave fact that Missouri was a more healthy climate for these people than the vicinity of Kirtland.

"Joseph and Hyrum Smith and Sidney Rigdon emigrated to Far West, the county seat of the new Caldwell county. Of course, many of the flock followed their shepherds, and Joseph soon found that Caldwell was a mere 'pent up Utica' for the Latter Day Saints.

"They began to purchase and enter land in Daviess county and located quite a colony at Adam in that county. This was esteemed by the former citizens as an infringement of the tacit, if not expressed, agreement, that if Caldwell county was given to them exclusively they were to confine themselves to that boundary and not to be interfered with in it as to civil or religious matters. These complaints and differences finally ripened into skirmishes and the assembling of bodies of citizens and Mormons armed in hostile array.

"In September, 1838, Major General David R. Atchison ordered our 250 men from Clay and Clinton and 200 from Ray to quiet the disturbances. The forces from Clay and Clinton were ordered to Daviess county under the command of Brigadier General A. W. Doniphan, who immediately marched to the county of Daviess and took position between the hostile forces, each larger than his command. Doniphan firmly maintained this position until General Atchison arrived in person with troops from Ray. By the influence of these officers, both popular and appreciated for honor and fairness, these antagonistic bodies were induced to disband and disperse, first surrendering such as were charged with criminal offenses; these were held and tried by the court.

"This caused a temporary lull in the threatened storm, but constant mutterings and collisions continued until the 1st of November, when another uprising occurred in Daviess county, and the Mormons burned Gallatin and Millport, small villages at that time. In the meantime General Atchison had permitted Captain Samuel Bogart to raise a company of militia in Ray county for the purpose of patrolling the northern line of Ray county to prevent any hostile collision between the citizens of Ray and Caldwell. This was well enough, if it was vain and imprudent, and permitted his men to make excursions into Caldwell and exasperated the citizens of that county until Captain Patton, a Mormon, raised a company and attacked Bogart on Crooked river, in the northern part of Ray county, about midnight, and put most of Bogart's company to flight in a few moments. Lieutenant Odle, of Bogart's company, and a few others, remained and fought valiantly, killing Captain Patton. This was really the beginning of the termination of the so-called 'Mormon war.' The day after this partial fight and flight, General Atchison ordered General Doniphan to raise 1,200 men from Clay, Clinton and the Platte country and proceed to the Bogart battle ground, which General Doniphan in his order designated as the rendezvous of his forces. He was enabled that day to raise 250 men in Clay, and with that small number he marched that evening, and reached his designated point the next morning, and by the succeeding day, his whole force of men had arrived. He then commenced his march on Far West, where the entire Mormon force were in camp, having thrown up there, temporary breastworks. This force was joined by the troops from Ray under General Parks.

"While Generals Atchison, Doniphan and Parks were holding a consultation as to their most proper course, Amos Rees and William C. Williams arrived with orders from the governor of the state. These orders invested General Atchison with no command, but transferred the same to General Doniphan, as first brigadier general of all the troops from that division. This gave Doniphan virtual command of the forces. General Lucas joined him with some troops from Jackson, and from Lafayette under command of Brigadier General Graham. Lucas being a major general, Doniphan recognized him as nominal commander, but the governor having ordered Doniphan to fall back on Richmond and await the arrival of Major General John B. Clark with troops from Howard and Chariton, Doniphan esteemed the order extremely ridiculous and financially ruinous to the state. He therefore advised an immediate advance upon the Far West. General Lucas deemed this rather insubordinate and disrespectful to the governor; he therefore decided to follow the governor's order and fall back. Doniphan promptly assumed command of his own troops and took up the line of march for the Far West. (The speaker would here remark that General Doniphan, in this instance, showed the same firmness, courage and tenacity of purpose as when launching out into the sands of Mexico from El Paso on his march to Chihuahua, in opposition to many of the insubordinates of his regiment). General Lucas yielded to the advice of his brigadier general and joined Doniphan towards Far West. That evening they encamped at the nearest wood and water to Far West, and prepared for an attack at daylight, but that night the commander sent Reed Peck, with a white flag and a note to General Doniphan, requesting an interview. Before the sun had risen, Doniphan and his aides, Frances Carroll Hughes and Ben Holiday, went alone to the breastworks of the Mormons and had an interview with Joseph Smith, Coke Hinkle and General Lyman Wyght, who had chief command of the Mormon forces.

"Doniphan submitted a written demand for an immediate surrender, and gave them copies of the governor's orders, which required the Mormons to be removed from the state by military force or exterminated, if they refused to go. Doniphan, who was a lawyer, knew these orders were illegal and the result of bad advice. He candidly told the Mormon leaders that as he found them armed and setting the authorities of the state at defiance, he should disarm them, and turn over such of the leaders as he deemed proper to the civil tribunals, and that he would send for Judge A. A. King, judge of the circuit court, to hold a preliminary court to ascertain who were guilty, and to what extent, and to hold them for indictment and trial.

"The Mormons, in accordance with this requirement and understanding, did lay down their arms, and the leaders were taken and turned over to Judge King, who patiently tried more than one hundred of their leaders and quasi teachers. Of these he retained Lyman Wyght, Joseph Smith, Hyrum Smith, Sydney Rigdon, Parley Pratt and others to the number of ten or twelve. Six of these, the two Smiths, Wyght and three others, were indicted in Daviess county for treason against the state, and the venue changed at the same court to Boone county. The sheriff of Daviess county and his posse proceeded with them for two days, and Smith bought their liberation for $1,100, $700 in money and a check for $400 drawn by Joseph Smith, on Alanzon Ripley, the financial agent of the church, which check was retained and paid by Ripley, shown to General Doniphan and other respectable gentlemen; then they located at Nauvoo, Illinois, most of the Mormons having removed before

Joseph Smith had bought himself and companions free.

"A. W. DONIPHAN."

I will now quote a paragraph from Peter H. Burnett, first governor of California, then a lawyer of Liberty, Missouri. When Judge King held the Mormons to the grand jury of Daviess county, they were sent to the Clay county jail, and remained there several months awaiting court in Daviess county. General Doniphan and Peter H. Burnett, as their attorneys, applied for a writ of habeas corpus from Judge Turnham, of the county court of Clay county, and succeeded in releasing Sidney Rigdon.

"Joseph Smith, Jr., was at least six feet high, well formed, weighing about 180 pounds. His appearance was not prepossessing, and his conversational powers were but ordinary. You could see that his education was limited; he was an awkward and a vehement speaker. In conversation he was slow and used too many words to express his ideas, and would not generally go directly to the point, but with these drawbacks, was much more than an ordinary man. He possessed indomitable perseverance, was a good judge of men, and deemed himself born to command, and he did command. His views were so strange and striking, and his manner so earnest and candid, that you could not but be interested. There was a kind of familiar look about him that pleased you, and he was very courteous in discussion, readily admitting what he did not intend to controvert, and would not oppose you abruptly, but had due deference to your feelings. He had the capacity for discussing a subject in different aspects, and for proposing many original ideas, even of ordinary matters. His illustrations were his own; he had great influence over others. In the space of five days that he remained in Daviess county, he had managed to win, mollify his enemies, that he could go unprotected amongst them without the slightest danger. Among the Mormons he had much greater influence than any other man. The latter was a man of superior education, an elegant speaker, of fine appearance and dignified manners, but he did not possess the native intellect of Smith and lacked the determined will."

The Mormons collected a large following at Nauvoo, Illinois; commenced an elegant temple and remained until 1844, when, owing to local troubles, Joseph Smith and his brother, Hyrum, were killed by a mob in the county jail at Carthage, then the county seat. The church was dispersed and scattered to several localities. A few returned to Ohio. Sidney Rigdon and some of the conservative members who disapproved of polygamy, removed to Minnesota, where Rigdon died in a few years. A few, under the leadership of one of the bishops, emigrated to Texas, and seemed to have been swallowed up in the solitudes of the Lone Star state. The larger part, under the guidance of Brigham Young, upon whom the prophetic mantle of Joseph Smith had fallen, removed in 1844 and 1845 to Kanawville, Iowa, the present location of Council Bluffs, and in 1847 about half of them went to Salt Lake. A remnant of the church were stranded through poverty in the settled portions of Iowa, with the widow of Joseph Smith, and have since grown into a large body under the direction of Joseph Smith, Jr., a son of the prophet. They now have many churches in many of the states, and thousands of members in Iowa, Missouri, Indiana, Nebraska and other states, which, added to the Salt Lake church, and its different colonies, including Old Mexico and Island of the Pacific, must amount in numbers to fully half a million. Some difference in faith and government between the Iowa and Salt Lake churches resulted recently in giving the Temple Lot at Independence, by judicial decision, to the Iowa church. This was the Zion of the Lord, as proclaimed by Cowdrey and Bishop Partridge in 1831. The Iowa church has never tolerated polygamy and has not been persecuted or involved in troubles. Its membership are largely of American birth, mostly descendants of New England and New York stock, and show the usual Yankee thrift and enterprise, as they are largely an agricultural people and have very few paupers among them. The Salt Lake church has been greatly increased by foreign emigrants, added to the descendants of those who followed Young from Nauvoo, Illinois.

In 1846, at the breaking out of the Mexican war, the government, at the suggestion of some of the leaders of the Mormons, and for political reasons, accepted a battalion of five hundred men who enlisted at Council Bluffs and mustered into service at Ft. Leavenworth, and started to California by the way of Santa Fe in August, 1846, as infantry, with ox teams for their trains. Captain Allen, of the regular army, was appointed to command, but dying before they left the fort, Lieutenant A. J. Smith commanded them from Fort Leavenworth until they reached Santa Fe, on October 12, when Captain St. George Cook, of the first dragoons, took charge of them and conducted them to California. Lieutenant Smith reached a high grade in the regular army, and died a few years since in St. Louis. Captain Cook became a major general and died in the regular army soon after the civil war. They left Santa Fe on October 19, and followed after General Kearny along the Gila trail and reached San Diego mission on January 29. It has been claimed that this was the greatest march ever made by infantry, as it exceeded 2,000 miles in length. Their term of service expiring in July, 1847, and quiet having been restored in California, they were discharged. Many of the young and unmarried ones went away and located on the American fork of the Sacramento river, at a place since called Mormon island, and it was by this party that the discovery of gold was made at Sutter's mill in January, 1848. They sent gold dust to Salt Lake, which was coined by the Mormons into five dollar gold pieces, with the all seeing eye on one side and a bee hive on the other.

When the battalion enlisted at Council Bluffs they were poor, and having nothing to leave their families, those married brought their wives and children to Weston, where they remained during their absence. They were permitted to draw three months pay in advance, and left that to the support of their families. Most of these people returned to Council Bluffs between that time and 1850, as they received assistance which enabled them to do so. In the spring of 1849 some of them went immediately across the plains to Salt Lake, some remained in that vicinity and became citizens and were regarded as worthy members of society.

There are a number of Mormon churches in northwest Missouri, and one in St. Joseph of about four hundred members, and at Independence and other places. The old feeling of persecution and intolerance seems to have died out and these churches are conducted much like other religious congregations. The advent of the Mormons to Missouri in 1830 was heralded as an influx of a desperate, dangerous and corrupt body of persons, preaching new doctrines and dogmas, that destroyed the sanctity of all the religious teachings of the centuries that had gone before. They had a simple faith in the truths of the Bible and an earnest devotion and faith to the duties of Christians. The promulgation of a doctrine that a human being had received revelations from a divine power which set aside their theological belief, was to them a sacrilege, and this perhaps more than anything else, caused the early troubles in Missouri against the Mormon church, and we must allow that rumor, with a thousand tongues, painted these people much worse than they were. Polygamy was never taught nor preached in Jackson county. So they were not received with the accustomed western hospitality, but with frowns and rebuffs, which soon culminated in open violence, and it is a tribute to the conservative character of the earlier settlers of Jackson county that so little blood was shed, as the result of these jealousies and collisions.

The Mormons may well claim the blood of the Saints has been the seed of the church.

And after three score and ten years of life, the question so fiercely discussed by the pioneers of Jackson county is still an open one to the world at large: "Is the Mormon religion human or divine?"

SCOTT-DENNY DEBATE.

Editor Ensign:—Will you please allow me space in your columns to say a few words as touching the debate held at Borden, Indiana, January 9-13 inclusive.

Elder E. G. Denny, of the Christian faith, and Elder S. W. L. Scott, of the Latter Day Saint church, being the disputants. To say the least a grand victory was had for the cause of Christ, Bro. Scott being the instrument in God's hand doing the work.

At first, Bro. Denny rather made light of the man from Michigan, saying "he thought the Rev. Scott would make an argument." Bro. Scott informed him he would be there until the debate closed, and Bro. Denny ascertained that Bro. Scott was an opponent not to be lightly esteemed before the debate was closed.

Bro. Denny spared no pains to arrange his arguments in paragraphs, numbering them argument No. 1, 2, etc. But it was only to have them knocked down, unraveled, searched, found wanting, wrapped together and sent to the waste basket ready to start a fire some cold wintry morning (that is, in the estimation of the people). However, we are glad to know Bro. Denny is a fair man in debate, or comparatively so. He, of course, branded Joseph Smith as a scoundrel, an impostor, etc., and naturally, the branches will be likened unto the trunk or vine, hence, Latter Day Saints all frauds, but stated he would join them, he and his followers, and have a jolly time (become a fraud too) if Bro. Scott would just work a miracle. Bro. Scott agreed to work the miracle if Bro. Denny would confess to the congregation that he was an adulterer and a wicked man, as we read Jesus speaks of that class of people wanting a sign. The miracle was not performed, neither did Denny care to mention sign any more.

Bro. Denny labored hard to establish only thirteen apostles, referring to Revelation 21, twelve foundations in city, apostle on each throne, perhaps forgetting he had one apostle left and no throne for him. Bro. Scott asked him if he was going to sit this apostle he had left without a throne upon a nail, leg. Denny oftentimes was at a loss to know what to do. Take whatever position he might Bro. Scott was there with the "pure testimony" to turn and overturn all the man-made theory that might be adduced. He said he had held twenty-three or four debates; we are pretty sure he has not held very many like this one, or, doubtless, he would learn to have quit long ago. We trust Bro. Denny and his coadjutors, will soon learn, if they have not already done so, that bombast and bluff cannot withstand inspiration from God.

There were crowded houses all the time, standing room at a premium, the house being filled one hour before time of beginning, many coming for miles, bringing their baskets filled and staying all day; others came from a distance, paid their fare at hotel, and great enthusiasm and interest prevailed throughout. At the last session the crowd was so immense, such a jam in aisles and vestry that Bro. Scott, the chairman, Bro. Briggs and others were admitted through a window near speakers' stand. The chairman (who was an unprejudiced gentleman, and professor of Borden institute) stated he never saw such quietude in such a jammed house. It was very commendable indeed. All listened very eagerly and attentively, catching every word, if possible. The only interruptions were applause, mostly for Bro. Scott. Bro. Denny at first told them to laugh, but further along (doubtless when he saw the applaudings were nearly all for the other side) he concluded we were dealing with matters too sacred to be applauded. Just here we are reminded of the story of the fellow's rabbit which was likely to become his prey—it was good cooked anyway—boiled, fried or otherwise—but when the little animal was safe from his would-be slayer, the fellow exclaimed, "Go it, you are not good anyhow." Probably Bro. Denny is not accustomed to meeting such forceful arguments as at this time. Sure, Bro. Scott being endowed with great power from on high, stood nobly as a defender of this great work.

We verily think much good was done, a better understanding of this great latter day work was had, and judging from expressions of countenances the immense crowd was highly pleased, many expressing themselves as being amply paid for their trouble and expense. Judging from the conversation between services and the appearance of the congregation, not many more in number were in favor with Bro. Denny than were permitted to enter the promised land of those who were at one time in Egyptian bondage. We are reminded of Joshua and Caleb. Perhaps this is underestimating it for we presume there were a great many more reverends there than that; they surely would stand by their brother, but it seemed to the writer that some of them were very restless when they saw the holes made in their theological structure. We want to build upon the sure foundation. This is God's work, hence man cannot overthrow it, and any such attempt only causes it to rise higher.

We have every reason to rejoice at the victory won in this conflict; not from the standpoint of being Master, but that the doctrine of Jesus may sail triumphantly, and gather all the honest into the fold, and Jesus come to reward the faithful and the just.

Ever praying for the welfare of God's people, I am

Your brother and friend,

Wm. C. MARSHALL.

Mormons to go Exploring.

Provo City, Utah, Feb. 23.—A party of Mormons will start about April 10th to explore the ancient ruins and general geography of Mexico, Central America and South America. The expedition will consist of professors and students of the Brigham Young Academy and Church Normal Training school of this city. It will consist of three teachers and about twenty-two students, young men ranging from seventeen to thirty years. All will be provided with two horses, a saddle, a pack saddle, rifle and ammunition, camp outfit, shovel, pick or axe, tent, and, in fact, everything necessary for a long journey overland.

It will be divided into five sections.

Section one will study the ancient ruins and physical geography of the country, and will be in charge of President Benjamin Cluff, Jr.

Section two will study and collect specimens in geology and mineralogy, and will be in charge of Prof. E. S. Hinkley.

Section three will study and collect specimens in botany and zoology, and will be in charge of Prof. Walter M. Wolfe.

Section four will consist of a corps of three artists and photographers, and will be in charge of Prof. John B. Fairbanks.

Section five, hunters, will supply the camp with game.

Each section will be provided with tools and instruments necessary for the prosecution of its labors.

Two wagons will be taken to carry the luggage as far as roads will permit, when all will be transferred to pack animals.

The party will cross the Colorado river at Lee's ferry, enter Mexico near Batopito, Sonora, and begin work in the Sierra Madre mountains. All places of interest will be visited on the way, stops made at the city of Mexico, the ruins in Yucatan and Guatemala visited, and the route of the Nicaragua ship canal studied. The greater part of the work will be done in South America, along the Magdalena river, and in Ecuador and Peru. The return will be by steamer and rail via San Francisco. The company expects to be absent fifteen or eighteen months, but much longer time may be consumed.

While it is intended to collect specimens in botany, geology, zoology, mineralogy, etc., the main object of the expedition will be the exploration of the mysterious ruins of the interior of the Central American country. The students from Utah will try to discover the origin of the colossal architectural remains of the cities of Palenque, Uxmal and Mitla, which some think are the work of the Toltecs, those strange beings whose name has become a synonym for "architect," who brought to the valley of Mexico the first elements of civilization, and left behind them, to crumble into mysterious ruins, monuments of gigantic dimensions, temples and cities of magnificent construction.

The students will also delve into the mysteries of the Aztecs. The expedition will endeavor to trace something of the lost history of the two peoples.

The customs and habits of the people, especially the Indians, and the products of the countries will receive attention. Attempts will be made to secure some proof of the truth of the startling theory that the great temple of Palenque was modeled after the temple of Solomon.—The Kansas City (Mo.) Star, February 25, 1900.

Clear Up As You Go.

In "redding up" a room, in good old Scotch parlance, it became suddenly manifest that nine-tenths of the necessary work could have been spared if only each one who had used that room on the preceding day had made that motto his or hers. On one side was A's newspaper, left in careless abandon, just where it had happened to fall; on another, B's book; on the table C's pencil sharpenings; on the mantle a picture from another room which D had been showing to a friend, and so on in an almost endless chain. If, in each case, the one using book, paper, pencil or picture had striven to restore things to exactly the condition they were in before the use had taken place the room would have righted itself. "Clear up as you go." Who will make that the motto upon which the men and women of the future, the boys and girls of today, shall be trained?

"Clear up as you go." The thought admits of a far wider range and comes with especial force at the beginning of a new year. As we look back upon the year 1899 is it not clearly apparent that many of the difficulties of that year were largely traceable to a failure to carry out that injunction? It was not each day's normal duties but the accumulated duties of many days which made life sometimes a burden almost unbearable. It was the work we might have done in the yesterdays and thrust over, instead, into the tomorrows, which gave to us, in the end, weary days and sleepless nights. Today's duty ought never to be too large for today. If it is then be sure that part of what we are calling duty is not a duty but rather a something we have allowed to be forced upon us and with which we have, in reality no business. How many lives are veritably driven by the Furies of past work! How often in your own experience has the promise of today been spoiled by the unfulfilled promise of yesterday. "Clear up as you go." Take upon yourself no more work for each day than each day, lived at a normal rate of pressure, can hold. Gather the daily sweetness out of life.

"Clear up as you go," the misunderstandings, the grievances, the heartaches, the trials which the days of the year may have in store for us. "It must needs be that offenses come," but woe unto the man or woman who lets those offenses grow to vast proportion and pile themselves up, mountain high, for the lack of an effort to overcome each one as it comes along! "Let not the sun go down upon your wrath," contains Divine wisdom in its application to human life. Wrath is bad enough; may God preserve us from stored up wrath! The misunderstanding of today is hard enough to bear, but what if we let it reach over into tomorrow and into the next tomorrow, and on and on? Each day makes it harder to overcome, each added hour takes something from the sweetness of life, from our own power to forgive and to love.

It is the result of twenty-four years of careful study, extensive research, and remarkable experience in treating the various ailments of the heart, stomach and nerves, which so often confound the skillful physician. So astonishing are the results of his complete special treatment in most cases, that he does not hesitate to freely offer all patients a trial free.

Certainly nothing could be more generous—more philanthropic. Few physicians have such confidence in their remedies. And there is no reason why every afflicted person should not avail themselves of this exceedingly liberal offer, as they may never have another such an opportunity.

No death comes more sudden than that from heart disease.

Dr. Miles, of Chicago, was cured of heart dropsy, after five leading physicians had given her up. A thousand references to, and testimonials from, Bishops, Clergymen, Bankers, Farmers and their wives will be sent free on request. These hundreds of men who have been cured after from five to fifteen physicians and professors had pronounced them incurable.

Send at once to the Dr. Miles Medical Association, 201 to 209 State St., Chicago, for free treatment before it is too late, and please mention the name of this paper.

May God grant that each friend, each lover, each husband and wife, each parent and child, each brother and sister, may resolve that, during the year 1900, every possible misunderstanding shall be brought at once to the light, shall not be suffered to accumulate unto itself the moth and rust which corrupt the soul, but shall be cleared up before they go forward into a new day or even a new hour!

As children of God and as "workers together with Him," let us take this good motto for the year 1900—"Clear Up as You Go."—Union Signal.

Cured Without Pain.

DR. BYE, Kansas City, Mo.

Dear Sir:—I am fifty-seven years old today, and feeling lots better than I did when I commenced taking your Oil Cure, and the cancer that was on my nose has healed nicely. It was just three weeks from the time that I applied the oil until the cancer was out and healed without leaving but very little scar. I never saw anything work nicer in my life, and the best part about it is curing without pain.

Yours very truly,

JOHN OWEN.

The Church's Greatest Foe.

Reading, Pa., Feb. 24.—Fashionable society, Bishop Bowman declares, is the greatest foe of the church of Christ.

At the East Pennsylvania Evangelical Conference the Bishop said:

"It is astonishing to see the conduct of some ministers in their gallantry to the opposite sex. We see ministers too friendly with some young girl or some other man's wife. You will see men carrying a small package belonging to some woman, while their own wives have to carry all the heavy bundles in one arm and the baby in the other. These things have caused us the greatest sorrow, and I cannot speak too strongly against them.

"There is a spirit of licentiousness abroad in the world that is appalling.

"I consider fashionable society the most dangerous foe that the church of Christ has to combat. The leaders of the four hundred are all so polite, yet they are all leagued, hand in hand, with the vilest corruption. The theater of today is disgusting and rotten and panders to the low and vicious."—St. Louis Post Dispatch, February 25.

Greenburg Minister Arrested Because He Called a Missionary a Mormon.

Greensburg, Ind., Feb. 27.—A warrant was served on Rev. J. W. Maxwell, based upon an affidavit sworn out by Rev. James M. Baggerly, charging Rev. Mr. Maxwell with provoke. The trouble occurred last night at the First M. E. church, at the close of the temperance meeting, at which were assembled most of the ministers of the city, when it is claimed that Rev. Maxwell called Rev. Mr. Baggerly a Mormon. This Rev. Mr. Baggerly resented, and Rev. Mr. Maxwell refused to modify his statement. Rev. Mr. Maxwell is pastor of the Centenary M. E. Church of this place. Rev. Baggerly is a Latter Day Saint, late of Detroit, Michigan, but is doing missionary work here.—The Cincinnati Enquirer, February 28.

Oil Cure for Cancer.

DR. BYE has discovered a combination of oils that readily cure cancer, catarrh, tumors and malignant skin diseases. He has cured thousands of persons within the last six years, over one hundred of whom were physicians. Readers having friends afflicted should cut this out and send it to them. Book sent free giving particulars and prices of Oils. Address DR. BYE, Drawer N, Kansas City, Mo.

OUR "Historical Engraving" at fifty cents, is a very desirable picture to have in your home. It shows the martyrs, three witnesses, presidency, twelve, presidents of seventy, high council, and a number of other interesting features. A study of this picture by those having but a slight acquaintance with the Saints, will remove prejudice, and assist in rendering a presentation of the everlasting gospel effectively. Can you afford to be without it? A key accompanies each picture.

RHEUMATISM.

A BLOOD DISEASE AND CURED BY B. B. B.

BOTTLE FREE TO SUFFERERS.

Rheumatism is as much a blood disease as cancer, ulcer or scrofula, and to cure to stay cured, it should be treated as such; hence Botanic Blood Balm (B. B. B.) should be used. It neutralizes the specific poison that causes rheumatism, expels it from the system, and permanently cures after everything else fails. George W. Leonard, of Atlanta, writes under date of July 2, 1899, that he was cured of Rheumatism ten years ago by B. B. B.; that before that he suffered most excruciating pains in bones and limbs. His hands would puff up and swell, his knee caps would get so stiff he could hardly bend them, and he could hardly walk without the aid of a crutch. He tried doctors and medicines, but none reached the root of the trouble, which was in the blood. Sometimes he thought he had found a cure, but alas, his symptoms would come back again until he was cured ten years ago by the use of eight large bottles of B. B. B., and he has been perfectly well ever since. John M. Davis, of Tyler, Texas, had been subject to attacks of inflammatory rheumatism since ten years of age, yet he was permanently cured, with no trace of the disease left, by eight large bottles of B. B. B. To further convince you that B. B. B. cures the most obstinate case, we will send a sample bottle free, so you may test the remedy at our expense. Can anything be fairer?

You will find large bottles for sale by all druggists for $1.00, or six bottles (full treatment), $5.00. For free trial bottle enclose five cents, which pays exact cost of postage (the medicine is free), and address BLOOD BALM CO., 86 Mitchell St., Atlanta, Ga., and bottle and medical book will be sent, all charges prepaid. Describe your trouble, and we will include free medical advice.

We still have some copies of the duet, "Evanelia Lost," words by Bro. J. Cole Moxon, music by Prof. Leib, price 25 cents, postage paid; better order copies for yourself and friends. It is a souvenir of the little gospel boat and contains a good view of it in the San Francisco harbor.

A SONG OF PRAISE.

ALICE R. CONSON.

Come, ye that love the Lord indeed, And join me in His praise; Whose souls from bondage have been freed, Your grateful voices raise; For were the power but mine to sing, His wondrous joy to prove, How would the vaulted heavens ring With anthems of His love.

He heard my cry of deep distress While wandering sad and lone; He sought me in the wilderness, And he will lead me home. When amidst of doubt hung o'er my way,

And made the path seem dim, From Faith's clear lamp He sent a ray, To guide my steps to Him.

While travel worn, heartsick and faint, No rest or succor nigh, He quickly caught my feeble plaint, And from his rich supply Brought wine to cheer my fainting heart,

And balm to make it whole; With oil he soothed each sting and smart, With manna fed my soul.

His sweet voice quelled my rising fears, He bade my doubtings cease; With tender hand he dried my tears, And gave me rest and peace, My cup of mercy runneth o'er, My table is supplied With bounties from his heavenly store, What need I ask beside?

To sing my love, were power but given, Methinks the angelic throng, From o'er the parapets of heaven Would lean to catch the song; And answering back the rapturous strain, Would strike their harps of gold, 'Till o'er all heaven's shining plains The echoing anthem rolled.

CHORUS.— Blessed be the name, Blessed be the name, Blessed be the name of the Lord. (REPEAT.)

These words were composed to be sung to the tune "Blessed be the Name," with the chorus after each verse; but any C. M. double will suit. They were but the outpouring of the overflow of joy in my soul, and I send them as a tribute of love and gratitude to God.—A. R. C.

Items Cleaned Concerning the Bible.

The Septuagint or Greek version of the Old Testament was translated from the Hebrew by 72 Jews B. C. 285.—Bible Helps, page 10. The first version of the whole Bible was translated and published in English in 1535 A. D.—Bible Helps, page 10.

The authorized version translated from the Hebrew and Greek (by order of King James I.) by forty-seven divines in 1611 A. D., each taking a portion, which was revised by the whole body. This, from its great excellence, gradually superseded all preceding versions.—Ibid.

The canon of the Old Testament was completed as early as the third century, B. C. The New Testament canon, as we have it, was not completed till the days of Augustine, bishop of Hippo, North Africa, in the councils of 398 and 397 A. D.—Rev. J. Bulkley D. D. in a sermon published in the Baptist News, September 19, 1896.

The Septuagint, or Greek version of the Old Testament, was used in Palestine in the time of Christ.—D. R. Pryor in Baptist News of August 27, 1898.

The various divisions and subdivisions of the sacred Scriptures into chapters and verses and members of sentences are of human authority and to be regarded as such. Anciently, all the books of the sacred Scriptures were written in one continuous manner—without a break, a chapter or a verse. The division into chapters that now universally obtains in Europe derived its origin from Cardinal Cairo who lived in the twelfth century. The sub-division into verses is of no older date than the middle of the sixteenth century, and was the invention of Robert Stephens. The punctuation, too, is far from accurate, and taken altogether it affords a demonstration that there is no more divinity in the chapters, verses, commas, semi-colons, colons and periods of the inspired writings than there is in the paper on which they are inscribed, or in the ink by which they are depicted to our view.—Alexander Campbell in his book on Christian baptism, pp. 59, 60.

REDUCED RAILWAY RATES TO GENERAL CONFERENCE.

NEW ENGLAND AND SOUTHEASTERN PASSENGER ASSOCIATIONS.

These associations have granted reduced rates (one and one-third fare for the round trip), on the certificate plan, to the coming General Conference and Conventions of Zion's Religio-Literary Society and the General Sunday School Association. Tickets on the going passage may be purchased over the lines named below from April 3-9 inclusive—on any of those dates.

Reduce rates are granted on the following conditions:

1. Going tickets must be purchased not earlier than April 3d and not later than the 9th.

2. The rule is to purchase full first-class tickets on the going trip.

3. Passengers must, in all cases, obtain a separate certificate with every ticket purchased. Do not accept a certificate covering two or more persons. Each ticket bought requires a separate certificate, and to which the purchaser is entitled.

4. Such certificates must be delivered to the Church Secretary, and when signed by him and signed and stamped by the railroad agent at Lamoni, will entitle purchasers to return tickets to destination at one-third the usual fare; provided one hundred tickets are purchased; provided further, that ministers holding half-fare permits are not entitled to said reduction.

5. Tickets on the going passage may be limited or unlimited, according to the rules of roads selling them; but return tickets are good only for continuous passage, and not later than April 24th. Certificates are not transferable, and return tickets secured upon certificates are not transferable.

Special instructions, together with addresses of chairmen and lists of lines in each association, are given below.

NEW ENGLAND PASSENGER ASSOCIATION.

N. E. Weeks, Chairman, 67 Federal Street, Boston, Massachusetts.

"The reduction applies to persons starting from points named on the back hereof (list too lengthy to insert); the following instructions make it unnecessary in New England Passenger Association territory by any of the lines named below."

"Certificates are issued only at the stations named on the back hereof (omitted). If the ticket agent at a station from which delegates or others are expected to come is not supplied with certificates and through tickets to the place of meeting, he may inform the delegate or person of the nearest important station where the certificates and tickets may be obtained, in which case a local ticket should be purchased to the point and there obtain certificate and through ticket. It must be understood, however, that persons should arrange to arrive at the station where the certificates and tickets are procured in ample time to allow the agent to execute same."

*List of lines making the reduction: Bangor & Aroostook; Boston & Albany; Boston & Maine; Central Vermont; Fitchburg; Grand Trunk; Maine Central; New York, New Haven & Hartford; Portland Steamship Co.; Washington County Railroad."

SOUTHEASTERN PASSENGER ASSOCIATION.

Chairman of this association urges that it is important that all persons desiring to attend this meeting be fully advised as to the conditions. Therefore, those intending to travel over the territory of this association on any of the lines named below should write to Joseph Richardson, chairman, seventh floor, Equitable Building, Atlanta, Georgia, inclosing three cents in stamps, asking for a copy of "Blank form 14, Conditions of excursion rates on the certificate plan."

"If a through ticket cannot be procured at the starting point, the person should purchase to the most convenient point at which such ticket can be obtained, and there repurchase ticket through to place of meeting, procuring a standard certificate from each agent from whom a ticket is purchased."

List of lines making the reduction: A. C. Line; A. G. S.; A. & A.; N. & A. W. P.; A. K. & N.; A. & D.; Blue Ridge; C. & W. C.; C. of G. R. Y. Co.; C. R. & S.; C. N. O. & T. P.; E. & W.; F. & P.; F. Church Secretary. LAMONI, IOWA, March 12, 1900.

General Conference Visitors.

The committee calls attention to the train service at Lamoni, giving time of arrival: We have two trains from the north daily (except Sunday) a passenger 8:25 a. m., and a freight carrying passengers, connecting with passenger at Bethany Junction, 12:30 p. m.

From the south a passenger 8:17 p. m. and a second train from the south to Bethany Junction 2:10 p. m. This latter train is met at Bethany Junction by a hack. Passengers from the south would do well, so far as practicable, to come on the evening train, and save back fare.

Members of the reception committee will be at the trains, and may be known by their wearing a ribbon badge. Should any one arrive and not find the committee, they should go at once to the brick church, three blocks west of the depot, and there inquire for the reception committee.

The committee does not promise free board to any except those who made such arrangements previous to their arrival; there are not many such places to be had, and if you do not receive notice of being assigned to a place for free entertainment, come prepared to pay $2.50 per week, or take your own chances.

If the committee can be of any service to you they would be pleased to hear from you; those who have made their own arrangements need not write, but if you need help to find your place when you arrive the committee will aid you.

A large attendance is expected and places will be rapidly filled up.

(Geo. W. BLAIR, Chr. L. C. AYERSON, Sec. S. K. SORENSON, Com. W. J. MATHER, J. A. GUNSOLLEY.

P. S.—No trains arrive or depart from Lamoni on Sunday; however, the back from Lamoni meets the passenger trains at Bethany Junction on Sunday as follows: Arriving from the north 12:15 p. m., from the south 2:10 p. m.

General Convention Program.

The following is the program of the convention of the General Sunday School Association, Lamoni, Iowa, April 4 and 5, 1900. It is, however, subject to any change that may be found necessary by the committee or the convention.

Zion's Religio-Literary Society.

RAILROAD RATES TO CONVENTION.

Those contemplating attendance at the General Convention will please take notice that the advertised rates as stated in Herald for Religio and Sunday School conventions and General Conference do not apply to the Religio convention with any degree of practicability, as tickets at reduced rates cannot be purchased until the 3d of April, the first day of convention. We hope none will abandon their intention to attend by reason of this very unfortunate disappointment; but lest some might be misled by the above mentioned notice, attention is here called to it.

J. A. GUNSOLLEY, Pres.

First Quorum of Elders.

Report blanks have been sent to each member of the first quorum of elders and should have reached you ere you see this. If for any reason you fail to receive a blank, write at once to me at Henderson, Iowa, and another will be forwarded. This is very important as there is a rule of the quorum that will cause your name to be dropped from the quorum if you fail to report to two consecutive sessions of General Conference.

Fill out the blank very carefully, being sure to give name and post office address in full, and mail same to Elder D. C. White, Lamoni, Iowa, on or before March 25, 1900. We trust we may have reports from every member.

T. A. HOGGAS, Acting Secretary.

HENDERSON, IOWA, March 6.

Daughters of Zion.

Local societies are urgently requested to report concerning their work and their present condition, that their reports may be presented at the general meeting of the Daughters of Zion to be held during the session of the General Conference. Let none fail to respond because of having little to report, for it is earnestly desired that every local society shall be heard from.

Locals are still reminded that all losses or gains and names of members of societies organized since 1897 should be reported before April 15, in order that the record may be made as complete as possible, and that the secretary may be able to make a correct report. Send all reports to the recording secretary, Lamoni, Iowa.

Mrs. M. E. HULMES, Pres. Mrs. CALLIE B. STEBENS, Recording Secretary. LAMONI, IOWA, March 3.

CONFERENCE MINUTES.

The Northeast Texas and Choctaw Nation district held its quarterly conference at Wilburton, Indian Territory, on February 10, 1900; Brn. Earl D. Bailey, president; E. A. Erwin, vice-president.

The following names were reported: Cove, Ark., 112; Standley, I. P., 89; Wilburton, J. T., 52; Shawnee, 76; Manchester, 50; Coalgate, 19; total, 395. A quiet business session was held Saturday. In the evening Bro. Earl D. Bailey preached to a full house with good liberty. The Sunday School, although in its infancy, is doing nicely, and we hope will continue to grow. Elder D. H. Babcock preached at 11 a. m., Sunday, with good liberty. At the afternoon prayer and testimony meeting, which was a blessing to all present, Bro. J. Cole Moxon was ordained by direction of conference to the office of an elder. In the evening Bro. E. A. Erwin occupied the stand to the edification of all.

Conference adjourned to meet with the Manchester, Texas, Saints, July 28, 1900. On Monday evening Bro. J. Cole Moxon spoke to the Saints on the body of Christ to an appreciative audience.

After the services a meeting of the brethren was called the object of which was to see if the Saints could not make a united effort in the coal mining business. We hope it will be heard from again.

NOTICES.

In order to properly carry on tent work in Colorado it will be necessary to have a team and wagon to convey the tent from place to place. The committee have the promise of a team and harness, but have no wagon. Can some of the brethren donate a suitable wagon for this purpose? Or can some one loan us a wagon for the season? We need a "three inch" farm wagon. Address,

C. R. DUNCAN, Conifer, Colorado.

EXAMINE FAIRLY.

The most important fact connected with this life is to correctly learn the lesson that Jesus Christ is Lord; that every individual owes to Him devoted and continued allegiance and that as service is given Him, so shall be the measure of life to be realized in the hereafter. He at one time testified:

The thief cometh not, but for to steal, and to kill, and to destroy: I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly.—John 10: 10.

Life is the legitimate or consequent result of abiding in the true vine; while its opposite, death, is the fruitage of a failure to obey the law of the Lord. In the scripture above quoted the character and mission of the evil one is aptly described; as a thief he steals from those who are allured by his cunning and subtlety their freedom and makes them his captives; they are "taken captive at his will" as one describes it; he kills within them the desire or love for righteousness and plants in its stead a hatred or indifference to holiness, that which brings life and salvation; he destroys faith in God and by establishing deceit in the heart and a disregard for the principle of honor, causes one to lose faith in his fellow man; sowing variance and discord in the place of harmony and peace, the end of which is death. In contrast to this the Savior declares, "I am come that they [the obedient] might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly." Because of the atonement of Christ the resurrection is assured and all may receive salvation; "but every man in his own order" says the Apostle Paul in 1 Corinthians 15; and the work of the Lord Jesus makes it possible that those individuals who are willing to abide the higher or gospel law may be privileged to not only behold the Lord's glory, but to even dwell in it forever—the life more abundantly.

Now that this privilege is to be accorded only to those who may prove themselves worthy because they have followed the Savior in doing the will of the Father, we cite the statement He made when teaching his disciples:

 I go to prepare a place for you.  I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also.—John 14: 2, 3.

Again in that sublime prayer in behalf of his disciples and those who should afterwards believe on Him through the words of those disciples, as recorded in John 17; He says in the 24th verse:

Father, I will that they also whom thou hast given me be with me where I am; that they may behold my glory, which thou hast given me.

This indicates the salvation and glory which He has designed his followers shall occupy, and the following teaches what is required of those who are to "share his glory":

And whosoever doeth not bear his cross, and come after me, cannot be my disciple.—Luke 14: 27.

And why call ye me, Lord, Lord, and do not the things which I say.—Luke 6: 46.

Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven.—Matt. 7: 21.

Paul defines the gospel as being "the power of God unto salvation" (Rom. 1:16,17); hence the gospel plan ordained of God and exemplified in the teachings of Jesus Christ is the only means authorized by which the children of men may enter into and abide in the glory of God and dwell in the presence of the Father and the Son. The laws and ordinances taught by Jesus and the apostles forms the only plan of salvation; and yet how many there are today worshipping under conditions very much at variance with the gospel of Christ, who claim earnestly they are members of His church and are built upon his word as found in the Bible. It is a strange condition and on any other question would be emphatically rejected by these same individuals as untenable and unreasonable; but it seems that it is like it was said of the rebellious of the house of Israel, "blindness in part" hath happened unto them and they are unable to recognize their position.

For instance: the plan inculcated by the Savior included faith, repentance, baptism (immersion) for the remission of sins, laying on of hands (for the gift of the Holy Ghost, healing of sick, blessing of children and ordination), resurrections (first and second), and eternal judgment. Today we are asked to subscribe to the doctrine that baptism is "non-essential;" don't make any difference whether one is baptized or not (though Jesus said he that believeth and is baptized shall be saved, and he that believeth not [and is, therefore, not baptized] shall be damned), yet we are assured that it is the church of Christ that thus teaches. The same is true of the doctrine of "laying on of hands," but men simply drop it out, as of no value, yet still claim it is the doctrine of Christ which they teach. We might take up the doctrines which Christ taught in the gospel, one by one, and examine the different organizations today, and, without a single exception, we should find in all of the popular denominations, but a fragmentary part of that which the Savior authorized his disciples to teach as the gospel, is now accepted as requisite to salvation; and when a minister for Christ, in his preaching, insists upon the observance of all of the doctrines laid down in the gospel of Jesus Christ, he is met with persistent opposition; so much so, that when it is found that the Bible will not support these opponents in thus contending, they will inconsistently turn to slander and misrepresentation, as a final resort, in seeking to overthrow the doctrines which the Savior taught.

This would be a matter for astonishment in any other field; and such a course would be strongly deprecated in any department of the affairs of life; but especially should it be objected to when considering the faith of those who claim to represent the gospel of Christ, and who support their claims by the word of God. Reason and honesty demand that any claim for divinity, made by anyone, should, in fairness, be examined from the basis of the scripture they advance to substantiate their claims: opposing such statements by other scripture, where opposition is justifiable; but none should, and no one influenced by the Spirit of God will, descend to falsehood, slander and misrepresentation to defeat a claim, if it cannot be successfully combated with the Scriptures. The latter course brings darkness, prejudice and hate—all from the devil; while honest investigation and fairness of consideration, brings light, either in confirmation of the truth of the principle or matter examined, or in proving and manifesting its error, so that profit and satisfaction are realized by the candid mind.

"Prove all things," suggests fair consideration on all subjects, and whoso is thus guided shall get wisdom and understanding; the opposite course will encourage deceptions, whose fruitage will be condemned. As ye sow, so shall ye reap.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

ELDER E. W. NUNLEY, who has been located at Irving College, Tennessee, the past few months, will return to his home, Cooks Point, Texas, by April 1st. Communications for him should be addressed accordingly.

ELDER L. E. HILLS, Marion, Iowa, says they are having quite an interest there now, and some are to be baptized; so the work moves slowly along, though it sometimes seems almost impossible to break down the prejudice of the people.

SR. MARY C. SPRINGER, Fairland, Indian Territory, desires the Saints to pray for the restoration to health of her son. Having lost a knowledge of the whereabouts of her kindred she desires any one having information to write her at the above address. Her maiden name was Mary C. Haudysshell, and her first husband's name was Jacob Rhonemus. She gives no other items.

ELDER F. C. KECK, Joplin, Missouri, is holding forth at Blendville and is having a fine interest and good liberty in preaching. House was filled Sunday evening and the meetings were fine all day. The social service was one of the best. One lady gave her name for baptism and Bro. Keck thinks there are others to follow. He will preach there one week longer, then move on towards General Conference.

SR. DORA PARKER, Maysville, Arkansas, recently bereaved of her mother, Mrs. Mary J. Skinner, writes of her peaceful demise, falling gently asleep as the end came. The Maysville branch is progressing. They have Sunday School, preaching, and three times a week have prayer meeting; also prayer union on Thursdays. They have good meetings the Lord blessing them wonderfully. She desires the sisters of the prayer union to pray that her health may be restored.

LADY correspondents should be careful in signing letters to indicate whether they should be addressed as married or single; always prefix "Miss" or "Mrs."—as the case may be—to the signature. We are sometimes in a dilemma when replying to some letter to know how to properly address our correspondents. A little thought in this regard will obviate this difficulty. Again, we sometimes receive letters for publication signed "Yours in the faith," or something similar, followed by the initials and name, leaving us in doubt if we wish to make a note of the letter, whether to refer to the writer as a brother or sister; if the communication, except where the parties are well known, were signed "Your brother" or "Your sister," there would be no difficulty in making a correct reference. These may appear small matters to some, but it is, nevertheless, helpful to others when letters are properly signed, whether for publication or on business.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

JOSEPH DEXTER, Milan, Michigan:

My family are the only Saints here, and I am trying to do what I can. Bro. Durand, of Detroit, came and preached some last spring and I am sure he did good. Many have inquired after him.

MRS. J. W. JONES, Lake City, Missouri:

We have been reading the Enston for about one year; we are not members of the Latter Day Saint church but hope to be soon. I desire the prayers of all the Saints in behalf of my husband's hearing and health.

DR. M. F. WELLS, Middleburg, Nebraska:

My wife and I have not heard a sermon for over two years. We have been members for over twelve years, and can truly say we have been blessed many times; when dark clouds were in sight we went to the Lord in secret prayer, and he said I will not leave nor forsake. If an elder comes this way we will see that he has a place to preach, and we will feed the inner man.

MRS. G. M. GARDNER, South Boardman, Michigan:

I am alone and have not the privilege of meeting with others of like precious faith very often. I live two and one-half miles from our church. The Saints came to our place about two weeks ago for prayer meeting; the Spirit of God was with us and we were made to rejoice. I am trying to live faithful and worthy of the name I bear. I ask the prayers of all Saints that my family may obey the gospel, and that my dear mother, Mrs. Eunice Pierson, may be convinced of the truthfulness of the gospel and the angel's message.

ELDER W. S. MACRAE, Blendville, Missouri:

Bro. W. M. Aylor, S. S. Smith and I held a very interesting meeting near Sumner, Oklahoma Territory, during the month of February. Elder Dunkleberger had delivered a series of unfair, untruthful lectures against us in July last, much prejudice resulting. Bro. Crawley and Davis had reviewed him, but few heard. In February they seemed to have sobered down some and our review removed much prejudice. Some of our previously bitter enemies show much favor and come to our Sunday School. This is largely due to the faithfulness of the Oak Grove branch. Bro. H. C. Hughes baptized an excellent lady February 27th. Visited the Okareche Saints, Saturday 3d; had prayer meeting and Sunday School Saturday night; drove eleven miles to Oklahoma branch, where I preached at 11 a. m. Sunday; and thence to near Omer, where our rustling Bro. and Sr. Hiles had appointment out for 7:30 p. m. Sr. T. S. Martin also lives there. Was joined there by our worthy young brother, S. S. Smith, after a 23 miles walk, reaching Bro. Hiles 4 a. m., having walked all night. I was called home by telegram and found baby Fred very low, but am glad to report he is improving.

GENERAL CHURCH NEWS.

INDEPENDENCE.

Bro. Henry Kemp reached home from his field Monday, and reports all moving nicely.

There will probably be between sixty and seventy-five or eighty attending conference at Lamoni from here.

Bro. Levi Cheney is able to be out again, and to walk across the street to his neighbors, though with some difficulty.

Elder Holmes J. Davison of Nova Scotia arrived Friday morning of last week, on a visit to his mother, and sister, Sr. J. W. Layton, prior to his attendance at the General Conference.

Irene, daughter of Bro. and Sr. J. W. Layton, was baptized in Shultz's pond Sunday, the 11th, inst., by Bishop Hilliard, and confirmed at the afternoon service, same day, by Brn. G. H. Hilliard and G. E. Harrington.

Bro. and Sr. R. G. Smith's little daughter has been quite low with pneumonia the past few days. She is now considered out of danger if no relapse occurs. Sr. Smith is also suffering with an attack of the "grip."

Bro. J. C. Foss returned home Monday, having been at Nevada, Walker and Rich Hill, Missouri, the past twenty-four days, preaching, he says, twenty-one sermons. He will go to Lamoni, the 29th, to meet the other presidents of the seventy.

Sr. Roy Newkirk is still about the same; very weak and nervous, and still suffering, to some extent, from hemorrhages. To add to the misfortunes of this family, Bro. Newkirk and one of the children were taken ill Tuesday. They are certainly in a condition, meriting the sympathy of the Saints.

Sunday was a very pleasant day. At eleven o'clock Bro. Gomer Wells occupied in relating some of his experiences in the Australian mission. At night Bro. A. B. Phillips, of Boston, Massachusetts, missionary from California, preached an interesting discourse. The afternoon sacramental service was fairly good and well occupied.

LAMONI, IOWA.

Apostles R. C. Evans, James Caffal, J. H. Lake, G. T. Griffiths, I. N. White and Joseph Luff arrived, and the quorum is now in session.

Elder D. A. Anderson arrived from California.

Bro. J. E. Hockert died at Davis City on the 9th. Funeral on the 11th, sermon by Elder Blair.

Elder Abram Reese, aged 70, died at Pleasanton, Iowa, on the 11th. Funeral on the 12th, sermon by Elder Stebbins.

E. Conway was married to Sr. S. Cooper on the 12th, by Elder Stebbins.

Elder J. S. Snively held a series of meetings at Greenville, a few miles southeast from here, recently.

Apostle Luke discoursed at the Saints' home last night. Sunday, 11th, Apostle Wight preached at the Home on the perfect law of liberty. Elders Allen and Stubbart preached there on Sunday 4th, on the resurrection. All these sermons were instructive and comforting to the inmates and others who gathered there. There was good music and singing by members of the church choir.

The speakers at the Saints' church here yesterday, Sunday 18th, were Apostle Evans in the morning, and Apostle White at night. The afternoon prayer and testimony service was in charge of Apostle Lake and Elder D. A. Anderson.

A LAMONIAN.

March 19.

ST. JOSEPH, MISSOURI.

Elder J. D. Stead from Illinois visited us on Sunday, preaching both morning and evening to large audiences; quite a number of non-members were out at the evening service.

Bro. Ezzell from Illinois remained in the city over Sunday.

Quite a number of church officials are passing through the city. (Please note italics.) Among them Pres. Joseph Smith, Heman C. Smith, G. T. Griffiths and R. S. Salyards.

The Golden Rule Society gave an entertainment with refreshments at Aspey mission for the benefit of a needy brother.

The news of the death of Bro. John M. Terry, Jr., reached us last Thursday and was a shock to our entire branch. Though we knew he was very ill, we had hope for his recovery, but the all-wise Father has seen fit to remove him from this earthly abode, and we can but say, "God knows best." Bro. and Sr. Terry have the sincere sympathy of the Saints of St. Joseph in the loss of their noble boy.

Bro. Chas. E. Hubacher attended the funeral at Millersburg, Illinois, returning Sunday morning. Mr. Frank Pearson of Ontario, Canada, brother of Sr. Baker and Sr. Ida and Bro. Albert Pearson, has located here in St. Joseph. G. L. K.

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS.

A feeling of sadness has been cast over the branch by the death of Bro. John M. Terry, Jr., who passed peacefully away Tuesday afternoon, March 13th. Bro. John had suffered for some time; in fact, had been ailing since last June, but his death was hardly expected when it came. Everything that loving hands could do for him was done; he spent some weeks in Arizona, where he received attention from Bro. Eanis and family. He was a patient sufferer, and did what he could, until the last week, in the way of selling tracts, studying the church works, and was preparing a chart on the Book of Mormon, and in every way possible showed his love for this great latter day work. He was the vice president of the Religio, besides aiding in other departments, and will be greatly missed from the circles of Saints in Chicago. On Thursday afternoon a large number of the Saints of the city gathered to pay their last respects to Bro. John. The funeral services were in charge of Priest F. M. Pitt, and the sermon was preached by Elder F. G. Pitt. Two quartets were sung, and one duet, after which all took a last look at the departed. The Religio sent a beautiful floral piece; West Pullman Saints sent a floral offering, there were also flowers from "Father and Mother," besides flowers from several of the other friends. The casket was borne to the waiting hearse, and soon was on its way to the Union Depot. The train for Millersburg not leaving until 11 p. m., made quite a wait for the sorrowing parents, and a number of the Saints met at the depot to wait with them until they started on their sad journey. Bro. John was laid to rest beside his sister, who had gone on before. Bro. and Sr. Terry have the sincere sympathy of the Saints in Chicago in their sad bereavement.

We are making good use of our English missionary. Thursday night Bro. F. G. Pitt preached at Parkside mission; Friday night at Bro. Graves' mission, and on Sunday spoke once at Lang mission, and twice at branch headquarters.

The Religio held a splendid prayer meeting Sunday night, almost everyone present took part, and that helps to make a successful meeting.

We understand that some of the energetic south side workers are making the Sunday School at Parkside mission "boom."

Elder F. G. Pitt and wife expect to start on their journey towards General Conference on Wednesday 21st, visiting several places on their way; stopping at Plano and Sandwiche, and possibly other points.

Sr. C. J. Clark left for Kansas City last Saturday. We are sorry to lose the members of this family as they are all good workers; we now have only Sr. Mamie, the youngest member of the family, left with us, and we hope she won't leave us.

ELMER E. JOHNSON.

FIRST KANSAS CITY BRANCH.

Chapel, 234 Washab avenue. Take 15th street line to Prospect Ave., transfer to Prospect, get off at 24th and walk on block west or to the right hand. Time of meetings: Sunday School at 9:30, preaching at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m., social service at 12:30 p. m. Prayer meeting, Wednesday evening at 7:30, Religio, Friday evening at 8. Strangers are cordially invited.

Sunday was very pleasant and attendance at the services good.

Many pleased faces greeted our Sunday School superintendent, who had been absent for four Sundays. The school is getting on nicely and we understand some new features are contemplated.

The morning sermon by Bro. W. T. Bozarth, was very interesting.

At the social service the good Spirit was present in power, and was manifested in tongues, speaking words of encouragement and comfort to the branch, and especially to Bro. Arthur Allen.

The evening sermon, by Bro. Allen, was an exceptionally good one, though brief on account of his physical condition.

The Literary meeting, on Friday evening, was well attended, and the lesson was exceptionally interesting.

Several of our number have been sick, but have been benefited through faith in the gospel ordinance.

We understand some very interesting meetings are being held by the priesthood, which will, no doubt, result in increased spirituality in the branch.

A farewell party was tendered Bro. Allen and family on Tuesday evening. All the branch regret that they are leaving us, but what is our loss will be a gain to the Holden branch, where they will locate.

R. E. PORTER.

SECOND KANSAS CITY BRANCH.

Corner Sixteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue. Sunday School 9:30 a. m., preaching 11 a. m., prayer meeting 2:30 p. m., preaching 7:30 p. m.

The Sunday School is improving.

Elder Joseph Emmelt presented interesting truths concerning "The Authority of the Church," to an attentive audience Sunday morning.

The branch is making an effort to build a chapel at 23d and Holly. Ground has been broken and the work is started.

The cottages are too small for the Wednesday night prayer meetings, and a place to meet is needed for other assemblies.

JOHN C. GRAINGER.

1415 Pennsylvania Ave., March 16.

ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI.

Bro. John White came in on the 7th, on business, then away to other missionary fields.

The 7th a wedding was celebrated in our little chapel, the contracting parties being Sr. Josephine D. Cooke and Bro. John Billinsky. Promptly at 7:15 p. m. the wedding march was heard and the bridal party was ushered into the church; Sr. Grace Anderson was bridesmaid, Bro. E. C. Bell attending the groom. The marriage service, which in our church appears very simple as compared with the elaborate ceremony of other denominations, was rendered very impressive by the quiet solemnity pervading the assemblage; Bro. J. C. Hitchcock pronounced them husband and wife.

The bridal party and a number of friends repaired to the home of the bride, where all partook of the delicacies of the festive board. Quite a collection of handsome presents was received, many of them from relatives apart in other cities. The happy pair left on a late train for Chicago and Detroit; they were showered with rice and their baggage adorned with old shoes. They have the best wishes of their many friends for a long, prosperous and peaceful life.

Bro. Bond is here; arrived on the 9th and has been kept busy preaching ever since. On the 11th occupied the pulpit three times, and twice on the 18th. He leaves here about Monday or Tuesday of next week en route to conference.

The district Religio superintendent visited with the Belleville society Friday evening of last week.

Mrs. Swift has been teaching Bro. Burgess' class during his absence in New York.

A surprise party was tendered Bro. and Sr. S. R. Burgess, Tuesday evening of last week; they returned from New York, Monday, radiant with good health, having enjoyed the trip.

The Utah elders are around visiting; they called upon us and were somewhat discomfited when told we knew of their faith, being members of the Reorganized church.

Appointments for yesterday: Bro. Gordon Smith, Belleville at night; J. C. Hitchcock, Cheltenham, and Bro. T. J. Elliott, Oak Hill.

The social service yesterday afternoon was in charge of Brn. M. H. Bond and J. C. Hitchcock.

LETTER DEPARTMENT.

Sr. Louis, Mo., March 14.

Editor Ensign:—The conference of the Massachusetts district convened February 10th, at Fall River, and was one of the best ever held in the district in point of spiritual interest and power, and in a large attendance. President of the mission, W. H. Kelley, being with us, was very sincerely impressed and moved by the powerful influences with which our heavenly Father saw fit to bless us all through the sessions of the conference.

Thursday evening, the 20th, Bro. Kelley preached for us in Providence to a good audience and with liberty of Spirit and edification to all, having before visited Boston and Plainville and speaking in those places. The next evening, 21st, in company with Bro. Kelley, we bade the friends and family good-by, Bro. John and Lady Smith, with Sr. Nellie, bidding us adieu as the steamer sailed away for New York, where we arrived the following morning after a somewhat stormy passage.

Had the pleasure that evening of meeting with Brooklyn Saints and friends, and in addition the unexpected pleasure of a reunion with Bro. and Sr. Burgess, of St. Louis, at an "English Tea Party" given for church benefit. A fine social time, a large crowd and excellent financial showing as a result. Saturday, following the Sunday School of the New York district, met at 4 p. m. in business session, followed by the regular district conference opening, W. H. Kelley and district president presiding. This conference was also a profitable and spiritual one, and fully all that could be expected under the circumstances or conditions existing, the betterment of which must come only with a better understanding and application of the law of God to the lives of Saints wherever they may be found.

Tuesday, the 27th, Bro. Kelley and myself left for Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, but stopped Tuesday evening and until Thursday following at Washington, D. C., making our home with Mr. and Sr. Peck. A very pleasant two days' sojourn was had in the capital city, visiting both houses of Congress while in session (being present during the closing discussion and final vote upon the Puerto Rico Tariff Bill), Washington's monument, Congressional Library, and other places of interest, but not nearly enough time to "take in" all the sights of the national capital. Thursday, 10:30 a. m., left for Pittsburg, being met at station in evening by Bro. Ed Fairley, at whose home we were hospitably entertained, leaving the next day for Sharon, Pennsylvania, and the Kirtland district conference which convened Saturday at 10:30 a. m. Sunday morning an excellent prayer service, followed by dedication exercises, when the neat chapel secured by sacrifice and toil upon the part of faithful and devoted Saints in Sharon was formally consecrated to a free exposition of the full gospel of Jesus Christ in a feeling and spiritual prayer by W. H. Kelley, the sermon effort by the writer. We were glad to meet the old and new faces in Kirtland district again, and especially to note the progress upon the part of the young in spiritual things and to church work generally. Monday left for Cleveland and Kirtland, remaining until Thursday. The Wednesday evening meeting at this place was marked by excellent power and Spirit cheer. Presiding elder, Henry C. Smith, seems to be the man for the place, and Kirtland is still a factor in the latter day work in our opinion. Bro. A. H. Parsons' good work is also seen in this place. The temple and surroundings have been vastly improved, and the future will, we hope, have a brighter story to tell in relation to this great latter day work so far as relates to this historic spot.

Leaving Cleveland Thursday at one p. m., over the Big Four route, Friday morning found us upon the scene of former labors and pleasant associations; and so glad to see our Bessie again, and she to have us once more with her; and last, though not least, to make acquaintance with the small stranger, Myron E. junior, who has come to St. Louis since we went away, and into our heart and affection so strongly since we have come back, and who, sitting on our knee, is trying to assist in the writing of this letter. Ah me! how large and strong are these weak, small things to draw us back all over the somewhat dreary past to the time before ambition had cheated or the world robbed us of a content that belongs seemingly only to the simple innocence of childhood days. How this small thing warms over again the cockles of the heart of him who is fast approaching "the sea and yellow leaf" and revives in the last the loves and early life of the first generation, and with James Whitcomb Riley, voicing the song of our heart today, we say:

"Heigh-ho! Babbyhood! Tell me where you linger, Let's tiddle home again, for we have gone astray;
Take this eager hand of mine and lead me by the finger
Back to the lotus lands of the far away.

"Turn back the leaves of life! don't read the story,
Let's find the pictures, and fancy all the rest;
We can fill the written pages with a brighter glory
Than Old Time, the story teller, at his best."

We expect now to remain with St. Louis Saluts until their conference, the 24th, and to be in Independence the 27th or 28th, and possibly over the following Sunday—perhaps in St. Joseph, and on to Lamoni and General Conference. Preached three times Sunday—twice in the city and in Cheltenham. Very warm day, and exposure, adding to bad cold contracted while in Ohio, I have been having the unpleasant and unusual experience of chills and fever this week, but hope I am getting the best of it now.
M. H. BOND.

CLEVELAND, O., March 17.

Editor Ensign:—Since writing you last our district conference convened at Sharon, Pennsylvania, in the neat chapel just finished for dedication. Heated and lighted by natural gas, nicely papered by the sisters, and pulpit and platform decorated with nature's beauties—flowers of different shades and hues. It is good to be a Saint when we are endowed with Saintry energy and zeal to be somebody and have something we can and are pleased to share with our fellows. But to be like the dog in the manger,—won't do anything ourselves, and growl when others do—is a pitiful condition. I don't know that such condition obtained in Sharon, but the experience of the past has demonstrated the fact in most places that Satan tries to hinder the work by instilling the spirit of indolence, carelessness and indifference, which fosters the habit of not wanting to do anything, and of growling at those who are willing to sacrifice of their means and time for the advancement of the work. So in the midst of the scenes the willing to do most generally are found toiling to demonstrate their faith by works. I trust our beautiful Sharon was exempt from such unwholy influence; at least I did not obtain that side of the question so as to write it up.

Conference convened at 10:30 a. m. Saturday, March 3d. Elders W. H. Kelley, M. H. Bond and the writer were chosen to preside. Business passed off pleasantly. Quite a few of our Pittsburgh and Wheeling brethren and sisters were present; also—Srs. Jenkins and Edwards, of Johnstown, Pennsylvania. Come again, brethren and sisters, October 6th, to Blakes Mills near New Philadelphia, another church to be dedicated. Lord's day Bro. M. H. Bond preached dedicatory sermon at 11 a. m., and Bro. W. H. Kelley offered the prayer. Both efforts were good and appreciated by all present.

The writer tarried the following week, rendering what assistance he could to instruct and encourage in the forward movement in vogue at that place for the redemption of Zion.

Since, visited Blakes Mills, assisting to start a movement there toward paying off debt on the church and obtaining a deed to the — or alot, preparatory to having the building dedicated October 7th.

Lost or strayed from the precincts of Cleveland the congenial presiding elder of the branch? Where art thou, my brother? The echo—Canada. Trying to be content with the thought that our loss will be some others' gain, we submit because we can't help it.

Expect to visit Akron and Kirtland, thence westward bound for General Conference and home.

PIRSSBURG, Pa, March 15.

Editor Ensign:—I spent pleasant days at Scranton from February 5th to 10th, aiding those who have the work in charge there; young men in office in church and Sunday School work who are doing well. There are also devoted Saints there; they are generous, and aid liberally the passing missionary. May the Lord of the harvest reward them.

I next spent four and a half days among relatives in three localities, some eight families. Busy times in hustling business life tended, still more, to a limitation of time with some of them. Notwithstanding all this my visit was pleasant. My cousin, Miss Nedah Marks, teaching her first term of school, had a Washington birthday entertainment. The program mainly original, being produced by herself and sister, Carrie, was excellently entertaining, as well as uplifting. Character building is all too scarce in school teaching. With my cousin it is included as a part of teaching, as it always should be. The pupils rendered well their parts. A full house showing deep interest and appreciation. Orchestral music of several timely selections, unusual at common school entertainments, and splendidly rendered, both enlivened the occasion and bespoke appreciation of my cousin among her friends and helpers. Success to you, cousin Nedah. It was impracticable to reach Philadelphia and relatives there, much as I wished to do so.

I reached Pittsburg on an evening of 24th, enjoying Sunday sessions of conference. A little girl, crippled by an accident, not able to walk for many months, administered to, was blessed of God and enabled to walk. Others were also similarly blessed.

Pleasant days were spent with Mr. and Sr. Ucafer, staunch supporters of the faith. If Mr. Ucafer ever reduces his ideas to gospel obedience as he has his business tactics in their line, he will be a genuine Latter Day Saint. May that day soon come to him.

Bro. McDowell requested service as moderator in debate with Mr. G. B. Hancock; though it deprived me of attendance at the Sharon conference and the dedication there, as well as materially interfering otherwise with westward movements, I responded with pleasure. Mr. Ira C. Moore and self choosing Prof. T. A. Jeffries as chairman, whom I esteem as much of a gentleman. Nine nightly sessions of two hours each were devoted to the first question.

"Joseph Smith, the reputed prophet and author of the Book of Mormon, was an impostor, and the Book of Mormon is a fraud."

Nothing but this unfair question, and a negative affirmative that would suit him. His entire procedure was of the same nature, perverting matter with the rest, garbling quotations, etc. The rule governing testimony before civil courts he would not subscribe to. While a man of considerable ability, as also experience, for he is sixty years of age, his effort was one of the poorest we have had to meet. Beside answering him on all points, Bro. McDowell ably and nobly maintained the merits of the Book of Mormon and its translator.

The transcribed characters sent to Anthon came in for examination with Maya characters. Mr. Hancock had a very excellently executed chart. He had on it the "Maya Hieroglyphic" in contrast with Book of Mormon characters, and how he did rejoice at the difference. But when Bro. McDowell produced a chart and showed the strong similarity between Book of Mormon characters and the "Maya Hieroglyphic," also demote and enchorial, partaking of the phonetic, the scene changed. Hebrew and modern phonetic were also contrasted by Bro. McDowell with the Book of Mormon characters, with excellent result.

The resident Methodist preacher, after a session, criticized McDowell's Hebrew, but later, when originals were produced, how his ideas went limping. On this feature I am of the opinion this debate was an exception. I am the happy possessor of the chart used by Bro. McDowell. The moderators had but little to do, as no points were raised, yet numbers could have been. It was clearly apparent that with the majority the estimate was, Mr. Hancock had made an ignoble failure, while with his direct sympathizers it seemed a success, either real or imaginary.

Tonight Mr. Hancock begins and will affirm for six sessions or more:

"The church to which I, G. B. Hancock, am a member, is the church of Christ."

My association with Bro. McDowell was pleasant and profitable, as also with the Saints and friends there, who as liberally as unexpectedly aided me on my way. May the Lord abundantly reward them.

I am off, by next train, for brief stop at New Springfield, then Middletown, Cincinnati, St. Louis and home. Leaving the scenes of another year of ministerial toil behind in retrospect, and wondering where one's lot will be cast by the coming conference, is, no doubt, common to my co-workers as well.

May He, who is author of all appertaining to our work, direct in the important work of the coming conference.

IRVING COLLEGE, TENN., Feb. 23.

Editor Ensign:—We are still here among the rocks and mountains doing what we can to advance the cause that we so much love. The people here treat us well, and turn out very well to hear preaching; many of them seem to be very much interested and some very near the kingdom. Some of them will express themselves as knowing the doctrine we teach is true, but still they do not obey. They have been bound by their creeds so long that it is hard to get them to see any other way. I sometimes get very anxious to see some come into the church while we are here; but the Lord knows best. I know that the good seed has been and is being sown, and believe that at least some of it has fallen on good ground and the harvest time will come by and by.

I visited my people at Tracy City. I have two sisters and one brother living there; brother and one sister are Baptists, the other sister is a Methodist. My brother seems willing to investigate; he says he has known for some time that the Baptists did not teach the Bible as it was. We furnished him with tracts and papers to read and I staid with them quite a while, while Bro. Nunley was traveling and preaching in other places. I had carried with me my books "Pattie" and "With the Church in an Early Day," some tracts and a few Tracts and Ensigns, which I gave them to read, and they found no fault with them. I felt hopeful of my Baptist sister; she seemed interested and asked a great many questions, which I answered to the best of my ability, with which she seemed well pleased.

I visited them again a few months later. I soon saw that things had changed; it seemed that she had rather I would talk on some other subject and so I did. I soon found where the trouble was, her husband and the little Baptist preacher, their pastor; it seemed they were afraid that something would be taught her that was not strictly Baptist. My Methodist sister I did not get to talk much with on religious subjects; her husband was such a strenuous Methodist he did not want any of "Joe Smith's" books read about him, but sister seemed well pleased with what little I did get to talk with her. I was determined that my people should know what we believed and taught and why we believed it; so I feel that I have done my duty toward them. May the Lord help them to see the truth as it is, and obey it, is my prayer.

Bro. Nunley has not done much public preaching this winter on account of his health. He had lagrippe which kept him on the bed for ten days and left him with a very bad cough, which disabled him for some time to even hold a conversation except a few words at a time; so we decided as he was not likely to be able to preach in some time that we would go home; that was just before Christmas; but he would not leave the field without permission from the missionary in charge and by the time he heard from Bro. Turpen his health was much improved, and as Bro. Turpen did not think it best to leave the field, we decided to stay and do what we could till some time in March. He is preaching some and visiting and teaching the people at their homes, giving them tracts and papers. May the good Lord bless and help us all to do our duty, is my prayer.

Editor Ensign:—I came here on Friday and preached to the few who came out that evening. I also spoke with good liberty and freedom to a very full hall Saturday evening. The Baptist minister was present and opened the service for us. He called on me Saturday afternoon, and we had a very pleasant talk. He has just got out from the measles; several of the Saints are sick with the same disease. Bro. Shearer is better; himself and wife were out to meeting last night. Sr. Lucy Wright, who got married a few days since, is one of the unfortunates who are suffering with the measles. But it is said that a poor beginning makes a good end.

The branch at this place is doing fine under the care of Bro. Leeper.

Thirty years ago today I was baptized into the kingdom of God by Elder F. W. Smith, on the Isle of Grand Mannan, New Brunswick. Many blessings have I received of my heavenly Father, while many trials and temptations have poured in from the "old man," the devil. But today I find myself still in the faith; I see nothing better—no, not so good.

Will stay here till Wednesday morning, then to Rich Hill to be with them over Sunday, the 18th; then home, and on to Lamoni for General Conference.

I am ever yours,
J. C. FOSS.

Editor Ensign:—We are a little band here in this part of the earth, rather secluded, but yet enjoying the visits of the elders occasionally, and trying to keep up our faith and courage while battling with conflicting elements, and always keeping truth as our standard.

The world in general does not appreciate or understand the true principles of Christianity, hence the buffeting of the bearers against the rocks of prejudice and skepticism. How very great has been the endurance of such, and how much must yet be endured, ere the beautiful glow of the morn of universal knowledge and belief will be ushered in, and the tired workers cease to undo what has been done amiss. Brigham Young, the wolf in sheep's clothing, has created such a hatred of Latter Day Saints, and caused such a disgust among all decent people on account of his vile work, that the members of the Reorganized church have to bear scoffs, sneers, and any amount of insulting insinuations, making life a burden when it should be a joy. Why did God allow such a wicked man to hold control, and why did he let matters reach such a state, is a query to me.

I know and feel that the truth is in the church, an abiding place, and clearly seen and realized by the true Latter Day Saint; but such a buffeting as our elders have to endure in order to clear the rubbish and uproot the foul and noxious weeds for the pure sunlight to enter, and all on account of the wickedness of Brigham Young and his associates. Verily, there are many mysteries in life, and this is one of them. I trust that God will open the eyes of all to an understanding of his truth, and hasten the hour when the last foul odor of Utahism will be gone, and members of the church of Latter Day Saints rejoice in the victory gained.

A little longer here to tarry,
"Till shines the perfect day:
A little longer yet to tarry
A load along the way.
The burden by another given,
Will all be cleared away in heaven:
And faithful workers there,
Be recompensed for all they bear."

HEWITSON, Ontario, Feb. 26.

Editor Ensign:—It is with joy I write telling you of my satisfaction in this glorious latter day work. I was a member of the Methodist church for three years before coming into the fold of God, and thought I was right; but the dear Lord saw where I was wrong, and sent his servant to show me the light. It was Elder Daniel MacGregor who baptized me a year ago last August; he is a true worker for the Lord. I heard a great many things about him before going to meeting, but I went and heard for myself; his text was third chapter of Malachi, first and second verses: "Behold I will send my messenger, and he shall prepare the way before me," etc. And to tell the truth it was the best sermon I ever heard. I wanted to be baptized right away, for there was a passage of scripture ringing in my ear, "For the promise is unto you, and to your children, and to all that are afar off, even as many as the Lord our God shall call," but Bro. MacGregor told me I had better wait till Sunday, and my good mother would go with me, so I waited patiently, and mother came along with me, and we were led into the river to follow the example of Jesus.

There are ten in our family; I have one dear little sister dead. We all belong to the church except three, one nine years old, one seven, and the other twenty-four; she is living at Stratford and has never yet had the privilege of hearing the angel's message, but we are all praying that the Lord in his own good time will yet send some one to proclaim to her the everlasting gospel. The Lord has truly blessed me in this latter day, and has given me the privilege to tread the narrow way, and I know if I continue faithful to the end I will receive the crown which is laid up for all those who love his appearing.

I can't express the joy we have in our grand meetings here at Sauble Falls; there are over a hundred Saints in our branch, all earnest workers for the Master. I love to read the letters written by the Saints. My prayers are always for the Saints wherever they may be, and I want all the dear Saints to remember me in their prayers; also that I may hold fast to the rod of iron in this trying time. I have many trials to contend with, but our dear Savior has said he would not let us suffer more than we are able to bear.

Your sister in the one faith,
ELLA BARNES.

ZION'S ENSIGN.

"WILL A GOOD MAN LIE?"

Editor Ensign.—On the third of last month I left my field of labor, the Des Moines, Iowa, district, at the request of the missionary in charge, and came to this place, arriving the 5th of February, to guard the interests of the work against an anticipated attack by Elder Thos. H. Poplewell, of the Disciples' church, a resident of Independence, Missouri, I think. The Disciples' church here, with Rev. Mitchell, had planned to have this attack made in their church house here and deny us the right to be heard therein, in defence; and this they did.

Bro. J. C. Clapp had conducted a series of meetings during the winter at the hall here (some three and three-fourth miles south of the Lone Rock church), and, as an immediate result, four were baptized, others are believing, and some are now near the door of the kingdom. Our Disciple friends here, thinking to turn the tide of this good work, arranged the attack referred to. Bro. Clapp's health was poorly at this time; others were busily engaged at urgent duties, so I came to stand with the brethren here on the fighting line.

On the evening of the 18th ult. Elder Poplewell appeared, and lectured on, "Will a Good Man Lie?" A moderate talk on infidel admissions that Jesus' teachings were of the highest character morally, and very truthful. Infidel names were profuse, but no exact statements were given, nothing specially new about the lecture. It served to let the lecturer into our confidence for the time.

The next three evenings, before large audiences, the lectures entitled, "The Mormon Church, its Origin," "The Book of Mormon," and "Was Joseph Smith a Prophet of God?" were delivered. Lectures were they? No, just onslaughts; falsifying of history, interspersed with ridiculous anecdotes and slang phrases. Not one logical argument was presented upon any subject treated. The history was misrepresented, and the books misread. He pretended to base the issue of our claims upon the truth or falsity of the doctrine of "modern inspiration." But he did not bring just one little text of scripture to show that God had changed in regard to revealing himself to his children since Adam's day; not one text to show that God was so partial that, having revealed himself to his children, according to the Bible, for 4,100 years, from Adam to John, he has not, or would not, since John! He did not adduce one iota of scripture to show that God was so wickedly unjust as to give a plan of salvation anciently to the people of the eastern Old World, and then let the millions of ancient America go down to eternal woe, just because he would not now, in his great mercy and love, give them a chance to go to heaven!

Now, Latter Day Saints believe God so just, merciful and impartial towards the children of his creation, that he would not deal so with humanity. How could an infinitely powerful, knowing, wise, just, truthful, merciful and loving God change, except by decreasing the measure of one or all of these seven attributes? And since he has in the past, under given circumstances, revealed himself to man, poor creature, when will he change and cease to do so? It is a law of God's nature to desire the salvation of man, and, consequently, a law of divine nature to reveal himself to man. Does the divine nature change without becoming fallen, devilish? Every form of religious belief founded on the idea that God necessarily ceased to reveal his mind forever at John's disappearance from among men, logically teaches, or leads logically to the conclusion that God has changed, and did then change. (Mal. 3: 6; James 1: 18).

The elder gave no history of the origin of the Latter Day Saint church. He asserted that nine of the original twelve apostles of the church went with Brigham Young to Utah, and that if they were inspired the preponderance of inspiration favored his leading. But the assertion is false, as only five of the original twelve (those called the quorum in the beginning) went with Brigham. So what becomes of his logic?

In referring to the rise of the Reorganization Elder Poplewell asserted that twelve new apostles were chosen, and, hence, "they have two sets of apostles and only two fiddler!" Isn't that rich? Nine of the twelve apostles as they stood at the death of Joseph Smith and his brother Hyrum, in 1844, (only five of whom were of the original Twelve), apostatized and went with the Brighamites to Utah. In 1852 and onward, in the Reorganization, others were chosen of God to succeed those who had thus apostatized, so there were no "two sets of apostles."

He saw "no necessity for re-organizing the church in modern times with apostles since the church of Christ had existed from the second to the eighteenth centuries without apostles." "The church of Christ existed in the eighteenth century without the Campbellite church!" "Brethren, I am no Campbellite!" If the church of Jesus Christ really existed in the eighteenth century without the so called Campbellite church, could it not so continue to exist without it in the nineteenth century? If not, why not? But if the church of Jesus could and did really exist before the existence of the Campbellite church, what right has it to be posing around here as the kingdom of God restored—the restitution? It is in no way essential to the existence of the church of God; it is, therefore, according to Bro. Poplewell, only an innovation.

He cited us to Daniel 2: 44, Isaiah 9: 6, 7, and Matthew 16: 18 to prove that the church continued from the apostolic age till the present. That the gospel, of word, authority, the Holy Ghost and much assurance (1 Thes. 1: 5), God's power to human salvation, and in which God's righteousness "is" ever, as from the sun the rays of light ever stream without cessation, "is revealed," that this, as the rock on which the church is founded, that "this rock" has not been prevailed against by the gates of hell, is verily true. Daniel 2: 4 refers to the same time and event, as does Isaiah 9: 6, 7, and will be accomplished when the kingdom is restored to Israel (Acts 1: 6, 7; Eph. 1: 8-10), "in the dispensation of the fullness of times." And its church, or incipient stage, the preparatory, ecclesiastical stage of the restoration, is by restoring the gospel by angelic administration (Rev. 14: 6, 7; Matt. 24: 14; Zech. 2: 1-6), which began to have its fulfillment in 1823 to 1830 A. D., followed by the restoration of the church, and subsequently the restoration of Palestine's fertility, as accomplished in 1846 to 1853 A. D. And this is being followed by the gradual restoration of Jews to Palestine, rebuilding Jerusalem, etc., now in process of fulfillment.

To say that Daniel 2: 44 began its fulfillment in A. D. 30, or 37 to 40, is to logically teach that that kingdom was taken violently by force from the Saints (Matt. 11: 12), and that it was taken from one people and given to another (Matt. 21: 43), would be to affirm that during the ages intervening (A. D. 100 and 1800), the saints were not given into the hands of the papacy, or "little horn" forever; were never worn out by him (Dan. 7: 24, 25). "I beheld, and the same [little] horn made war with the saints, and prevailed against them; UNTIL the ancient of days came, and judgment was GIVEN to the saints of the Most High; and the time came that the saints possessed the kingdom."

"And he shall speak great words against the Most High, and shall wear out the saints of the Most High, and think to change times and laws: and they shall be given into his hands until a time, times and the dividing of times."—Dan. 7: 21, 22, 25.

It was during this "time, times and dividing of times," this twelve hundred and sixty years, that is, from about 540 A. D. to 1800 A. D., that Bro. Poplewell says the church, or kingdom of God, existed without apostles. It was during this same period that the church, kingdom, "woman" was nourished from (not away from) "the face of the serpent," after she had placed herself under the protection of eastern and western divisions of Roman government, under the symbol of the "two wings of a great eagle," and had gone into the wilderness of apostasy, and accepted the aid of "the earth," and not of heaven. (Rev. 12: 14, 16). Was the kingdom composed of saints during this period? Where were they? In the hands of the little horn. Did he protect the church while in his hands, and preserve its purity?

But it is after the conclusion of this period of time, times and the dividing of time that Daniel sees the saints placed in possession of the kingdom to possess it forever and ever. Compare on this point Daniel 2: 34, 44; 7: 13; 21: 27; Isaiah 9: 6, 7; Luke 1: 32. But this latter day work, like all God's works among men, has a small beginning; like a pebble as compared to a mountain; and keeps on growing and developing, and rolling and rolling, till it becomes a great mountain, and ultimately fills the whole earth; for when Christ takes the throne of his father David, "of the increase of his government there shall be no end." (Dan. 2: 35; Isa. 9: 6, 7). Christ is now in heaven on the Father's throne, interceding for repentant sinners (Rev. 3: 21). When he comes again to consummate the marriage of the lamb, after the bride hath made herself ready, she will have arrayed herself in beautiful white robes of righteousness, after she is so "granted" to do; and the grants granted by the restoration of the gospel through the ministry of the angel. (Rev. 19: 5-9; 14: 6, 7). The robes are works of righteousness, but the righteousness of God is revealed in the gospel. (Rom. 1: 16, 17.) All other righteousness, as related to salvation, is filthy rags. Elder Poplewell's talk really amounted to nothing as against the origin of the church—the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

He read from "Manual of the Priesthood," by Brother Chas. Derry, page 106, Bro. Joseph's counsel relating to testing revelations, and ridiculed the idea of the quorums of officers of the church examining into revelations, before accepting them; and made merry over the possibility of revelations running "against a snag." He would have us just accept the statement without inquiry, that a revelation had been received, and "gulp it down, all of it," without question. But God does not so require of His intelligent creatures, and Joseph Smith, the seer, knew this; God gave to man a judgment, and then invites us: "Come and let us reason together." (Isaiah 1: 18). And Joseph, like the great, renowned Apostle Paul, God's mouth-piece to the church then, said: "I speak as unto wise men; judge ye what I say." (1 Cor. 10: 15). "Prove all things: hold fast that which is good." (1 Thes. 5: 21). Again, "Now we have received, not the spirit of the world [to gulp things down without question], but the spirit which is of God; that we might know the things that are freely given to us of God. Which things also we speak, not in the words which man's wisdom teacheth, but which the Holy Ghost teacheth; comparing spiritual things with spiritual. But the natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God: for they are foolishness unto him: neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned. But he that is spiritual judgeth all things, yet he himself is judged of no man." (1 Cor. 2: 12-15). But once more, "How is it then, brethren? When ye come together, every one of you hath a psalm, hath a doctrine, hath a tongue, hath a revelation, hath an interpretation. Let all things be done unto edifying. Let the prophets speak two or three, and let the other judge." (1 Cor. 14: 26, 29). Jesus asked the people regarding his teaching: "Yea, and why even of yourselves judge ye not what is right?" (Luke 12: 57). It is to the unregenerate, natural minded man that the ways and things of God are foolishness. Nor "can he know them."

On his second proposition, the Book of Mormon, Elder P. made the issue, pretentively, "Modern Inspiration," but as usual, there was no divine inspiration in these days. "All systems of religion founded by modern inspiration had ended up badly." Has it come to pass that the abuse of a right principle is an argument against it right use? If this be true just step back eighteen hundred years, and, dealing with an unchangeable God, then apply this same argument, and what will it prove? Divine revelation given then to those living was modern; and then were false prophets (1 John 4: 1-3), also false apostles; inspired by the devil (2 Cor. 11: 13-15). The doctrine of what, in modern times, is denominated "Free Love," was practiced in the church right while John, the divine, was receiving a new revelation from Jesus Christ and his Father for the church. (Rev. 1: 2; 2: 6). "Free Love," equally corrupt with polygamy, was, at the time John wrote, corrupting the church of "Brotherly Love"—Ephesus! If this argument is valid against modern revelation from God, it was equally valid then. It is a poor rule that works only one way, or at but one time.

But the elder did not give one solitary reason, or one little negative argument showing that God did not speak anciently to his people on this American continent, a thing absolutely necessary to be done to show the Book of Mormon to be false; for the book claims to contain some of the revelations given anciently to a part of the house of Israel resident here. Also a condensed history of the dealings of God with some of the descendants of Joseph, of Egypt, who dwelt on this land, and who established governments, farmed the land, worked the mines, builded cities and temples, still existing in ruined conditions; had their laws, coins (money), and written languages, of all of which we have unquestioned evidence; even the Hebrew language has been found among American antiquities, as testified to by Hebrew scholars, both Jew and gentile, and now to be found in the historical museums of our country. Is there a reason consistent with the character of God, why he should not have revealed himself to Abraham's seed anciently on this western continent? If not, then no argument can be offered that he did not. Since God created man for the express purpose of glorifying Himself in man's salvation; and since man cannot be saved without revelation from God (Acts 17: 26, 27; Isa. 59: 21), to argue that God did not reveal Himself to ancient American Israel, is to argue against God and His eternal purpose; and consequently the claims of the Book of Mormon, being a record of God's dealings with them, are most consistent and reasonable. It is according to His own will to reveal His will to man, and then to confirm it to man with signs and wonders, and "gifts of the Holy Ghost" (Heb. 2:1-4). And His will never changes (James 1:17, 18).

But modern inspiration is not allowable. Strange! Has God spoken unto us by His Son in these last days? (Heb. 1:2). What did the Son say? "For I have not spoken of myself, but the Father which sent me, he gave me a commandment, what I should say, and what I should speak. And I know that His commandment is life everlasting." (John 12:49, 50). Life everlasting, then, is in keeping God's commandments given through Jesus: let us remember this. What did the Father tell the Son to command? "And Jesus came and spake unto them [apostles], saying, All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth. Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost; teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world. Amen." (Matt. 28:18-20). Did these apostles give God's commandments through the Son, to those whom they taught? And would such commandments be given to us in these last days? Yes. Well, now, Paul, who received the same gospel as the other apostles (Gal. 1:8-11), and who was commissioned by the personal voice of Jesus to preach it, commands us "in these last days," "But covet earnestly the best gifts." (1 Cor. 12:31). "Follow after charity, and desire spiritual gifts, but rather that ye may excel to the edifying of the church." "Covet," "desire," "seek" "spiritual gifts," three verbs, with but one meaning, as used here by Paul. Three times is this saintly duty here enjoined, to strive by faith and obedience to God to possess the inspirational gifts of the Holy Spirit. But does God command us to do so? Let us further read, "If any man think himself to be a prophet, or spiritual [a spiritual teacher, preacher], let him acknowledge that the things that I write unto you are the commandment of the Lord. But if any man be ignorant, let him be ignorant. Wherefore, brethren, covet to prophesy, and forbid not to speak with tongues." (1 Cor. 14:1, 12, 37-39). Are we "brethren" of Paul now-a-days? Then are these commandments binding on us? Notice the "Wherefore" of verse 39, and the consequent conclusion of Paul. This letter is addressed to ALL that call on the name of our Lord Jesus Christ. (Chap. 1, v. 2). God has spoken this unto us by His Son, and hereby commands us to possess these inspirational gifts of the Holy Ghost, as a divinely appointed means of edifying His church; and who will now teach us to not keep this commandment of God? By these gifts modern inspiration is a gospel promise of God, and and Bro. P.'s opposition to the Book of Mormon falls to the earth as powerless as the withered leaf. Inspiration with God's children is always attainable, always modern.

The elder only made three or four references to the Book of Mormon itself. Referring to the account of the building of Nephtie temple, and Nephtie's statement that the various kinds of ores there mentioned existed on this land in "great abundance," he tried to show that the paragraph following this one contradicted this statement, because the amount of the precious ores were not put into this as had been used in building Solomon's temple: "For they were not to be found upon the land." But as to the first statement, we know today of no land where "wood," and iron, copper, brass, steel, gold and silver, as there mentioned, and other ores and minerals, exists in such vast quantities, as in America. And the fact that Nephtie's temple was not built with so much costly materials as Solomon's, never can, never will contradict this truth. (2 Nephtie 4:20, 21, 1. e.) Elder Poppewell tried to read a contradiction into the historical account of Omni, relating to the discovery of the people of Zarahemla by Mosiah: Mosiah brought plates of brass with him to Zarahemla when he went, but the people of Zarahemla, coming from Jerusalem, had brought no records with them. He read it so as to make the pronoun "they," of paragraph twenty-four, refer to Mosiah and people of paragraph twenty, and so make it read: "They brought the brass plates and they had brought no records with them." I do not refer to these matters to answer them, they need only to be read and they explain themselves. I refer to them to let the readers see to what pitiful, pettifogging straits our opposers are in, or to what pusillanimous things they condescend. It encourages the Saints to witness the extreme weakness of such opposition.

Elder P. read a part of the description of the "barges" of the people of the brother of Jared, and coming to paragraph 50, Ether 1, represented the Lord as "asking counsel of Jared's brother!" His ridicule of the man's prayer and God's answer reminded me of the story related in Genesis 3:10, when God took all the animal creation to Adam to ask him what they should be called! Also of God's inquiry of King Solomon (1 Kings 3:5). God, however, recognizes man's agency and his privilege of choice, and the case of Jared's brother is a happy illustration of this divine recognition. When he had read to paragraph 54, "That ye may have light when ye are swallowed up in the depths of the sea," he read it, "when ye swallow up the depths of the sea," and then told the story of Uncle Jesiah's drinking so much lemonade, Aunt Samantha became uneasy for fear he would drown his insides out. He got the boys to laugh, but he made no point against the barges or the book. But when a pretended minister of Christ and a debater deliberately, before five hundred people and with book before his eyes, reads a lie into the book to make a point, it makes us think of the title to his first lecture: "Will a good man lie?" Though this was asked relative to Jesus Christ, yet the question still intrudes itself, Will a true servant of Jesus Christ thus lie and pretend to do so in Jesus Christ's name?

On the third proposition: "Was Joseph Smith a prophet of God?" the elder assumed considerable sanctimoniousness; averred that he would read the books aright; said it would be a flagrant transgression of the rules of etiquette (?) to quote and apply the words of Jesus, "An evil and adulterous generation seeketh after a sign," if they should ask a sign of us, and read Doctrine and Covenants 23:6 to sustain his contention or trick, claiming that we should exhibit the exceptions there named if he desired it of us. Is not that profound? God deals with man sincerely; not in an upbraiding manner; as God, and not as Satan—deceptively. No one coming to Jesus asking a sign to gratify a depraved curiosity ever received one from him. Only sincere faith in his power and mercy and appealing to his sympathies in seasons of distress and superhuman need, ever called forth his word to heal or deliver demoniacs, or open the blind eyes—save in converting the water into wine. It was the humble, believing, needy, distressed, afflicted spirit, and humble, desiring prayer that he answered and blessed; never the proud, challenging, defiant spirit; NEVER! See all the gospels. God is not around displaying his glory and power to satisfy proud, arrogant, defiant, wicked curiosity. And this is just the lesson taught in Doctrine and Covenants, section 23 and paragraph 6 on this subject.

He tried to shoulder onto Joseph Smith, the seer, the guilt of giving the fraudulent, deceptive, abortive, falsely so called document or revelation on polygamy that Brigham Young first presented to the light of day, August 29, 1852, eight years after Joseph's death and in Utah, and which Brigham—and he alone—according to his own word, knew of its existence, and which—to make it go with his own followers—he attributed to Joseph as its giver. Why did not Brigham make that statement before Joseph's death? Why not give Joseph an opportunity to own its authorship or deny being its medium of advent? Since Brigham in his apostasy from the faith has done this questionable piece of work, it is an easy thing to do mischief with it among those prejudiced against the work founded through the instrumentality of Joseph Smith. Elder P. tried to use David Whitted the twin relic. Also read statements—only isolated statements—from Willford Woodruff, L. O. Littlefield, Melissa Scott Smith, L. Snow and J. C. Kingsbury to prove his assertion that Joseph taught and practiced polygamy. But he admitted his failure here by stating that "we would call it, as in the wrestle, a dog fall," hereby admitting that he could not make out his case by allowing the full statements of his named witnesses. And this is true; for when I read the statements of these named witnesses as given under cross examination, those of his audience who did us the justice to attend our reply to Elder P. thought we were not reading from the same book—the "Abstract of Evidence in the Temple Lot Suit." But these are the only statements those parties have made under oath; and if he had another book it contained these partial statements transferred to his book. He nor any other opposer of Joseph Smith can take the statements of those parties in full, and prove him guilty of teaching or practicing polygamy. As for David Whitmer—he does not pretend to know anything about this subject—only believes, at most. Elder P. would not admit statements of those parties named above on any other point to which they might refer, favorable to the latter day work. He also tried to pervert some of the statements in the Doctrine and Covenants, but did not show one of Joseph's prophecies to have proven false; not one.

He boasted in his closing effort that he stood ready to meet any of our defenders, from "somewhere, either before or after the Psalms, on up to and including Apostle I. N. White, or even Presiding Elder Joseph Smith," and discuss the points at issue. We were not allowed to reply in their church or before the same audience, but at the conclusion of the lecture, by permission, I announced a reply at the public hall at Pawnee; also further announced that if the challenge there offered by him included me, I then and there stood ready to meet him and discuss the issue; stood ready to affirm that: "The Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints is, in its organization, faith and practice, in harmony with the teachings of the Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments;" further explaining that the term faith used in the proposition included the claims we present relating to the prophetic calling of Joseph Smith and the divine origin of the Book of Mormon. I stood ready to affirm this with Brother Poppewell provided he would come recommended by a leading organ of the church with which he is identified, as its duly recognized representative. I have replied to his attack, but have heard nothing as to his standing by his challenge so far. He replied at the time by turning the whole matter over to his brethren located here.

It ought to be noted for the consideration of our elders and the people that ministers of the Disciple church are counseled not to debate with our elders in their churches, but where we have churches. In Christian Standard, of July 23, 1898, page 575, we read, "D. Collins of Secor, Ill., is loading up for a debate with a Mormonite of the Joseph branch. I have forgotten where the debate will take place. There are few places where debates ought to be held with either wing of them. It but serves to introduce and dignify their doctrine. If they have a church or a following of any size at a place, debate them there." It might be remarked here that the Brighamites also counsel their elders not to debate with the Josephites; also our Seventh Day Adventist friends are thinking it to be the better thing not to debate with us, and are acting on the suggestion. Not, however, through fear of dignifying our doctrine, but with a view of not exposing their religious entrenchments to a straight "gospel" fire.

In a copy of the Church Register, published at Plattsburg, Missouri, is an article on this subject and signed by Geo. Watts, E. C. Estes, elders Church of Christ, Tabor, Iowa; also by J. D. McClure, W. F. Smith, John Hankins, Christian preachers. From it I extract: "All should forever abandon the idea that Mormonism is so silly, so shallow, so absurd that anybody can defeat a Mormon. We have paid a defeat as the price of teaching preachers with such an idea their folly more than once. A debater should understand Mormonism—its sacred books, the position of Mormons based on an appeal to the Bible; their attacks on our teaching. They preach a restoration of apostolic christianity and first principles precisely as we do, and demand of us, Why not restore the miraculous powers as they were in the apostolic churches?"

And this: "The one who admits that the Holy Spirit now is in men literally, personally, as a Comforter, as a gift, that there is any other influence of the Spirit, any other work of the Spirit than the work of the words of the Spirit, any other indwelling of the Spirit than the indwelling of the words of the Spirit, by faith in the word, simply hands himself tied hand and foot into the clutches of Mormonism. No such person should ever be allowed to represent us in debate with Mormons."

No sir, no such person should be allowed to represent our Disciple friends in debate with Latter Day Saints, except such as admit that God once organized a church after a form designed by himself for the salvation of the race (Acts 2:47; 1 Cor. 12:28-31; Eph. 4:8-14), but that in reality it was not designed to exist after the ancient apostolic age. After that let men make their own churches, such as they like to save themselves. God ordained a gospel plan by which to save man and in it made promise that certain gifts and powers of the Holy Ghost should be given to those who obey it; but after the first century obedient believers in that gospel shall not enjoy the things therein promised. Such are uninspired men's ideas of the infinitely just, merciful, impartial and immutable Jehovah.

But why continue?

For truth and right,

C. SCOTT.

P. S.—The Latter Day Saints claim a restoration of the everlasting gospel as declared by the apostles of Christ, with its word, its authority, and the Holy Ghost and much assurance. All its elements constitute the whole. (1 Thes. 1: 5). C. S.

PAWNEE, Mo., March 1.

AN INTERESTING TESTIMONY.

I have been bidden off of late to write some of my gospel experiences to the ENSIGN to comfort the weak and weary ones who are struggling with the enemy of righteousness within and without, like myself. Others testimony in the ENSIGN has oft cheered, comforted and strengthened me when cast down and almost ready to give up in despair. Oft I have shed tears over Sr. Jennie Page's letters, and have knelt down and prayed to God to bless and strengthen her in her great affliction, and preserve her faithful unto the end, and that she may be permitted to live upon the earth in its redeemed, purified, sanctified and celestialized condition throughout that thousand years, with Jesus as our teacher and king and law-giver; when sickness, pain and disease will be no more.

I was baptized when I was eleven years old, but never heard of the church only as it was spoken of in derision from the time I was fourteen until I was nearly thirty, and have never lived where there was a branch of our church only three years; but I can well realize that God's watchcare has been over me, and blessed me in visions and dreams, and warned me when I was in danger by the voice of his Spirit; and was a heavenly Father to me in deed and in truth. How well I remember the first time I heard his voice from the housetop as plainly as I ever heard words from human lips; it was when I was nearly thirty years old, and my firstborn son was nearly three years old; he had been lying very sick and helpless for eleven weeks, and often I thought he was dying. We had three different doctors attending him but they did not know what ailed him, for his hip had become dislocated as we found out two years afterwards.

As I was getting ready that day to take the train to a big doctor who had an infirmary near Cedar Rapids (we lived then in Grundy Center, Grundy county, Iowa); and when near train time I had the child in my arms, I heard a voice from the housetop say, "Take your child to the elders of my church and have him administered to, and he shall be healed;" and I said, "Where, Lord, shall I go to find the elders of your church?" for I knew of none nearer than Council Bluffs where I was baptized, and that was two hundred miles away, when the voice said, "Take the stage instead of the train, and go to Steamboat Rock, where Briggs Alden's son lives, and he will tell you where the elders live;" and I found out about two years afterwards, that Brn. I. N. White and A. White lived fifty miles from there, at Edenville, and I could have gotten back home in two days, and it would not have cost me five dollars.

When my husband came into the house to take us to the train I told him what I had heard, and that I remembered of being healed myself when a child by being administered to, when I was suffering intense agony with the mumps; I was instantly healed; but he discouraged me, and said how foolish I was to think of such a thing, for he had never heard of our church then. He said I would take all our money and go all over everywhere hunting for an elder, and it would do no good; our money would be all gone, and our child would be no better; but to go to this big doctor where he would be healed. So I went, and was gone a month; it cost me fifty dollars and the child was no better. And oh, what sufferings we have had to go through with since, in consequence of not obeying the voice of God, for God knew what was the matter with the child, and no doctor did, for several doctors examined him, and it was two years before they found out what ailed him. He is a cripple yet, and has to walk with a crutch; he is a stenographer in Omaha now working at the headquarters of the Fremont, Elkhart & Missouri Valley R. R. and is a son to be thankful for. Now, dear Saints, let us obey the voice of the Spirit when it speaks to us, no matter how dark the way may seem, or how hard, for God can open up the way according to our faith, and make the path clear.

About that time I commenced having our church literature sent to me by different ones; one old lady sent me two volumes of the Times and Seasons, and while reading them, I would often see the name of my grandfather, William Marks, in them, and how it would cause my heart to leap for joy. I have never seen his name in any of our church publications, but what I would have the same experience, and the tears of joy would course down my cheeks. One sent me the Book of Mormon to read, and I received evidence of its truth three times while reading it; and another sent me a big roll of Heralds, and I read and studied with joy everything that was sent me, and from that day to this I have sent our church papers to different ones whom I found out were investigating, remembering how I was converted by reading them. I never destroy a church paper of any kind; they are sacred to me as any of the word of God; but from time to time I send them to some one as I am led by the Spirit.

My grandfather brought me out here to Council Bluffs, from Shabbona Grove, Illinois, in 1866, when I was eight years old, my mother having died when I was four; he brought me to his oldest daughter, Mrs. McHenry, to be raised, and he came to attend a conference at Council Bluffs. How well I do remember those blessed conferences at Park Mills, Galland's Grove, Biggers Grove, and all around there, in the 60's. I so well remember the first time I saw Brn. Joseph and Alexander and David, and Briggs and Blair; about that time my aunt and I were baptized, and I remember of hearing the gift of tongues and interpretation and prophecy so that altogether I was thoroughly convinced that this church was the church of Jesus Christ.

The next time I was spoken to by the voice of God was fourteen years ago at Dow City, through a sister by the gift of prophecy, and she had never seen me or heard of me before that day. I had taken my two little boys and had gone there on the train to attend their meeting on Sunday, when this sister arose and said, Thus saith the Spirit unto the one who has met here with us this afternoon, if she will be faithful in keeping all my commands and in obeying my laws, and put her entire faith and confidence in me she shall be blessed. Yea, there are great blessings in store for her." Oh, how those words comforted my soul for years after; no matter how dark the way or how severe the affliction, those words helped me to put my entire faith and confidence in God; and how often since, when I have met with the Saints from time to time, have I been spoken to in tongues and prophecy just the words that I needed the most to strengthen and comfort me in the Lord. Within the last year when my trials have been the hardest to bear, and my sufferings the most severe, through the gift of prophecy and tongues by the voice of God's servants, I have been bidden to take courage for God had given his angels charge concerning me, and if faithful, my last days should be my best days; and when I did at last have to lay down my life I should be given power to take it up again, and should be privileged to dwell upon this earth in its redeemed, purified, sanctified and celestialized condition, when sorrow would be done away. In December last while going through with three weeks of the most terrible sickness I ever passed through, I was bidden by the Spirit to bear my suffering patiently, and the fire would burn thro' the dress; and I was finally relieved of a large tumor, and have gained in health and strength ever since.

Then, cheer up, dear Saints, who have become weary in well doing, and in the toils and stripes of this life. God says, "Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man [or woman either] the things which God hath prepared for them that love him." (1 Cor. 2: 9).

These Follow in His Steps.

Topeka, March 21.—(Special.) Through the generosity of Geo. Hamaker, of Osage county, and N. L. Gage, of this city, the members of the Apostolic congregation have seen secured means to purchase a large building here to be used as a divine healing home. Mr. Hamaker and Mr. Gage are both deeply interested in this work. The members of this congregation have no creed, are undenominational, but aim to follow in His steps.—Kansas City Journal.

EVERY happy home contains children, and yet with children come anxieties that for years fill mothers' hands and hearts. Recognizing the universal need of such a series of subjects, The Delineator has been publishing articles from the pen of Dr. Grace Peckham Murray dealing with The Sick Child. The April article refers to The Fevers of Childhood. All Dr. Murray's work is characterized by careful thoroughness, and her advice is of the practical kind needed by anxious mothers.

The fourth and last article by Cornelia Atwood Pratt, regarding The Young Girl, appears in the April number of The Delineator. It is a wise and careful discussion of that interesting period in a young girl's life when she becomes conscious that the company of a young man is, at times, more interesting to her than the company of her sister.

CANCER OF THE BREAST CURED.

GRATEFUL WORDS OF PRAISE FROM NOBLE WOMEN.

COZAD, Neb., Oct. 14, 1899.

DR. W. O. BYE,
Kansas City, Mo.

Dear Doctor:—I wish to state in behalf of all suffering humanity of cancer what wonderful work you did for my mother. About two years ago a lump began to grow under her left breast, which gave her much trouble and great fear. She was treated by our family physician, but gradually grew worse, and everyone told her that the only cure was an operation, but to this she would not consent, she

"INCURABLE" HEART DISEASE SOON CURED.

BY THE GREAT SPECIALIST IN TREATING WEAK AND DISEASED HEARTS, FRANKLIN MILES, M. D., LL. B.

WHO WILL SEND $2.50 WORTH OF HIS COMPLETE SPECIAL TREATMENT FREE TO ANY AFFLICTED READER.

To demonstrate the unusual curative powers of his new and complete special treatment for heart disease, short breath, pain in the side, oppression in the chest, irregular pulse, palpitation, smothering spells, puffing of the ankles or dropsy, Dr. Miles will send, free, to every afflicted person, two dollars and a half worth of his new treatment.

It is the result of twenty-four years of careful study and research, and remarkable experience in treating the various ailments of the heart, stomach and nerves, which so often complicate each case. Astonishing are the results of his complete special cure by every most cases, that he does not hesitate to freely offer all patients a trial free.

Certainly nothing could be more generous—more philanthropic. Few physicians have such confidence in their remedies. And there is no reason why every afflicted person should not avail themselves of this exceedingly liberal offer, as they may never have another such an opportunity. No death comes more sudden than that from heart disease.

Mrs. Frank Smith, of Chicago, was cured of heart dropsy, after five leading physicians had given her up. A thousand references from testimonials from, Bishops, Clergymen, Bankers, Farmers and their wives will be sent free on request. These include many who have been cured after from five to fifteen physicians and professors had pronounced them incurable.

Send at once to the Dr. Miles Medical Association, 201 to 209 State St., Chicago, for free treatment before it is too late, and please mention the name of this paper.

said she would prefer death to an operation. When one day I saw your advertisement in a paper, and something told me I must write to you at once, which I did, and on receiving your answer I hurried homeward with your "Message of Hope." Mother concluded to give you a trial; we sent for home treatment and applied your Balmly Oil at once; she began to get better right away; she took home treatment for two months and at the end of that time the cancer became quite painful and Dr. Bye requested that she should come to Kansas City for personal treatment, which she did, and on leaving us we had grave hopes for her recovery and as her many friends bid her "good-by" more than one of them thought it was for the last time. But on arriving in Kansas City Dr. Bye informed her that the cancer would come out in a few days. She remained in Kansas City only two weeks and at end of that time she came home cured of cancer. It is now entirely healed over; it did not even leave a scar. Mother feels like a new woman; she is 63 years old, and does all her own housework, which is no small matter as she cooks for five men. She says she cannot say enough for Dr. Bye, and the kind and loving treatment which she received while there will never be forgotten. I shall be willing and delighted to answer any and all letters that I may receive in regard to Dr. Bye's mode of treatment, and before closing this letter I trust that God may ever bless and guide you in curing the poor suffering humanity of this world. I remain,

MRS. G. W. ARTHURS.

MEDITATIONS.

Some object to observing the Word of Wisdom because it is not a commandment; but when we consider that we are commanded to live by every word that proceedeth from the mouth of God, and the Word of Wisdom being one of God's words, by His Son, Jesus Christ, through His prophet and seer; therefore, if we fail to keep the Word of Wisdom, we fail to live by every word, as required.

INFERIOR.

Conclusive Evidence.

A little old grizzly bearded Englishman, who claims to be as free from sin as Christ was when on earth, has been doing the evangelist act at the Alpha and Locket districts the past two or three weeks. He assured the News editor that he was absolutely free from sin, and that he possessed the power to anoint and heal all saints of all manners of diseases just as Christ did. He carries a clipping from the Rushville Recorder to bear him out in his statements. He says he has been in the Rocky mountains for a great many years and has preached the gospel, and chummed with Calamity Jane and other wild western characters in the early days. —Chadron News.—Hay Springs (Neb.) Herald, March 9.

Book vs. Paper.

A Chicago clergyman directs our attention to the fact that Parson Sheldon published in his books just such stories of vice and crime as those which he excluded from the Popple Capitol. —Kansas City Journal, March 22.

The Autobiography of Elder Joseph Luff, of the apostle's quorum, is a book full of interest from beginning to end. Bro. Luff is so widely and so favorably known in and out of the church in his years of service in gospel work, that the mere mention of a work of this kind being offered should create a desire to possess it. Two fine sermons are included in its pages and the price is so reasonable that every Saint's home should have this book in their library. It's a splendid thing for the Sunday School library also. 75 cents cloth, postage prepaid.

We are receiving orders for Bro. A. Haws' little book, "Sabatarian Theories a Delusion," a review of the arguments of the Seventh Day advocates. It is a useful little work, and we have heard only words of commendation for it. We can fill all orders, 15 cents each.

FRANK J. CHATBURN, Missionary in Charge. T. T. HINDEKES, Dist. Pres.

To My Fellow Sunday School Workers, Greeting:—Having been placed in charge of the work of the Northern California District Sunday School Association by the late convention at San Francisco, I send you this greeting and ask your hearty co-operation in trying to advance this great work, especially in the department in which our part thereof is assigned. Let us remember Paul's admonition to Timothy, as found in 2 Timothy 2: 15, "Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed; rightly dividing the word of truth." It is our duty to qualify ourselves the best we can, to do the best work we can. We must use the talent He has given us before asking Him to give us more. There is a necessity for great effort on our part if we would become "a workman that needeth not to be ashamed." Let every Sunday School officer and teacher put forth an earnest and persistent effort to fit themselves for their work, asking God to guide them and give them knowledge wherever needed.

I hope to be able to visit all the schools in the district. I feel very keenly the responsibility of the position I occupy and assure you that any suggestion, information and advice you may be able to offer will be thankfully received and appreciated. Let me hear from you. Hopefully, I am, Your brother and co-laborer, CLAUS C. JOHANN, Supt. Northern California District, 511 K St., Sacramento, Cal.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT.

Dear Ensign:—Please express our sincere gratitude to our many dear friends, brothers and sisters, for their indescribable love to us in our very sad bereavement in the loss of our darling son, John.

Your brother and sister in Christ, J. M. TERRY AND WIFE.

WANTED.

The address and whereabouts of James P. Benson. Anyone will confer a favor by reporting same to J. C. Christensen, president of the South Missouri district, Beaver, Douglas county, Missouri.

DIED.

RIDER.—Sr. Helen F. Rider who was born at Crown Point, New York, July 2, 1834, died at Montrose, Iowa, February 28, 1900. She was married in 1852 to Eber J. Blakslee; to them were born eight children; but two survive, John Blakslee and Emma Jaster, nee Blakslee, residing at Montrose. Bro. Blakslee died on December 10, 1874. January 1, 1879, Sr. Helen was married to Bro. Wm. Rider, who survives her. She had been in ill health for some time and died of a complication of diseases, at the residence of daughter, Mrs. Jaster. The funeral services were held at the chapel of the Reorganized church at Montrose, at 2 p. m., March 3, 1900, Elder D. Tripp in charge; Elder James McKiernan delivered the discourse to a multitude of sympathetic Saints and friends. The casket was deposited in the Naevæ vault at the Montrose cemetery.

CHANDLER.—At Des Moines, Iowa, February 18, 1900, of heart disease, Bro. Wm. Chandler, aged 69 years, 6 months and 23 days. He was born in the state of Maine, July 25, 1839; was married to Phebe Rebecca Mason in the state of Illinois, August 30, 1854. Emigrated to Cambridge, Story county, Iowa, in 1851, where he resided until within the last few years. He accepted the gospel in 1857 and was a faithful follower of Christ till the last; was well liked by those without as well as those within the church, and did all he could to introduce the angel's message to the children of men by living a godly life, and distributing church literature, and talking to those without the fold. He will be missed by his acquaintances and especially by those of like precious faith. His wife and four children mourn his departure, one daughter having preceded him to the other side.

TERRY.—John M. Terry, Jr., passed away from earth life at his home in Chicago, Illinois, on Tuesday, March 13, 1900, at 3:25 p. m., at the early age of 25 years, 6 months and 21 days, after an illness of nearly nine months. He was born in Millersburg, Illinois, to which place his remains were taken for interment, which occurred on the 16th. There was an impressive service held at his home in Chicago at 4 o'clock on the 15th, Bro. E. G. Pitt speaking words of comfort, Bro. G. H. Henley offering prayer and benediction. The singing was sublime, especially the duet by Mrs. Ada Cudworth and Dottie Logan of "Nearer my God to Thee." At Millersburg a service was held at the church in charge of Bro. M. D. Murdock, which was attended by many and was impressive. In the midst of deep sorrow many hearts weep with us in sympathy. We weep, but under the promise of the Savior, "Blessed are they that mourn, for they shall be comforted."

FATHER.

WILLIAMS.—At Kansas City, Missouri, March 10, 1900, after an illness of thirteen weeks, from typhoid malarial fever, Bro. Bruce Allen Williams, youngest son of Bro. and Sr. Mortimer B. Williams, gently fell asleep in Christ. He was born April 6th, 1881, at Amanda, Ohio. Baptized at Kirtland, Ohio, in 1890, by Apostle J. H. Lake. Was married to Miss Pearl Mabel Williams at Omaha, Nebraska, August 15, 1899. Elder Joseph Emmets, pastor Second Kansas City branch, held brief but impressive service at the home at 11:30 a. m. The remains were then taken to Independence where Elder Frank M. Sheehy, of Boston, Massachusetts, preached the funeral sermon at 2 p. m. in the stone church, at the conclusion of which the interment took place in the Independence cemetery. A young wife, parents, brother and two sisters mourn his early demise.

But this does not make it necessary for them to have thin hair. One thing you may rely upon—AYER'S HAIR VIGOR makes the hair healthy and vigorous; makes it grow thick and long. It cures dandruff also. It always restores color to gray hair—all the dark, rich color of early life. There is no longer need of your looking old before your time." SAFETY IN OBEDIENCE.

The promise of salvation to the human family is clearly and decidedly predicated upon obedience to the doctrine of Christ. Such passages as these: "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature, baptizing them * * * teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you" (Matt. 28), "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved" (Mark 16), "Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit he cannot enter into the kingdom of heaven" (John 3), indicate that the importance attaching to the observance of the doctrine and commandments of Christ cannot be overestimated; and yet the strange anomaly exists that men dare not teach that doctrine without being considered as narrow, dogmatic and unchristian, notwithstanding the important part it occupies in the preparation of the children of men for the higher and fuller life in Christ.

It is evidently the design of the great and all-wise Creator that those who are willing to abide the conditions upon which it is attainable, shall reach a state of perfection. Nothing short of such a reward for faithfulness would be consistent with the character and perfection of the Author of life eternal. The Apostle Paul seems to have held this view, for he says, concerning the use and continuance of the gospel organization, in Ephesians 4: 11-13:

And he gave some, apostles; and some, prophets; and some, evangelists; and some, pastors and teachers; for the perfecting of the Saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ: till we all come in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ.

Perfection in any realm is not possible without compliance with law; and as God is the same in all his works, whether in the physical or spiritual realm, and as it is apparent to every one that in the physical realm perfection can only be attained when the laws governing are permitted to do the work assigned them, it must be equally apparent, reasoning from analogy, which is plainly authorized in this case, that perfection in spiritual things cannot be reached when a single law which God has set to govern and lead in its attainment, is disregarded and unheeded. But here, thousands, and even millions, take what appears to us, an unreasonable and inconsistent position. Admitting, as they must, that in the physical kingdom complete fruitage can only result when the law to which it is made subject is permitted to operate fully; that in the agricultural and horticultural fields it is an absolute necessity that every law contributing to perfection shall have performed its work before perfect fruit can mature, yet when the laws which the same Creator established in, what is termed the gospel, are under consideration, there is an entire change of procedure; and there is a laxity of judgment entirely out of harmony with the importance of the subject, and a license used in dealing with the facts as recorded in the Scriptures wholly at variance with the accepted rules in judging of the facts in the physical world.

The cause for this difference may be found in the fact that in the physical world, results are demonstrated to actual vision where the laws are permitted to operate; while in their spiritual experience, under the changed conditions and the unnatural interpretations which they place upon the word of God, they cannot reach a demonstration. It is not possible because some of the laws which the Lord has given to lead to that end are entirely disregarded, and the opinions and theories of men are made to take their place. It is a fact as certain and definite in the spiritual, as it is in the physical kingdom, that the truth is capable of a satisfactory demonstration to the mind and understanding of every individual who carries out the provisions of the law, immutably fixed to govern it. A little child may not understand nor believe that putting its hand in the fire will cause it distress, until at sometime it receives a practical demonstration. So men and women may not comprehend or understand how a violation of spiritual laws will cause spiritual distress, until sometime in the future, a demonstration will be given that will justify the law. All outside the fold of Christ hold the same relative position as regards spiritual things, as an infant does to the physical kingdom; but few, however, look at and view it from this standpoint; they essay to judge the spiritual, by the natural things—the wisdom that experience in worldly matters has brought them; whereas Paul affirms, and good sense agrees, that spiritual things are spiritually discerned. And when the word of God declares that in order to become members of Christ's kingdom, faith, repentance, baptism for remission of sins and laying on of hands, are necessary, it should be accepted as meaning exactly what it says and none should make the attempt to reach that condition in any other way; for as certain failure will result as, under like conditions, it would in any other realm. Jesus said:

Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that entereth not by the door into the sheepfold, but climbeth up some other way, the same is a thief and a robber.—John 10: 1.

Thieves and robbers, as such, are not characters who abide in the presence of God; it is those who do God's commandments (Rev. 22: 14), who shall have a place in that holy city, while faith always must have its place in both the physical and spiritual kingdoms, there are other things necessary; all the laws must be obeyed, or disappointment and failure will result. It will, however, in no sense be attributable to imperfect laws that this result will be brought about, but because an imperfect obedience has been given to perfect laws; each individual will be the arbiter of his or her own condition in the world to come, based upon the extent to which they have honored the Creator in obeying His laws, and doing His commandments.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

SR. M. S. POTTER, Silsbee, Texas, would be very much pleased to have any of the elders who may be in that part of Texas, to call and see them; they will be well cared for, she says, and will receive a welcome.

THE address of Elder Joseph Emmett, president of the Second Kansas City, Missouri, branch, is 1720 Bellview avenue, Kansas City, Missouri. Some mail intended for this brother has been opened by other parties, hence this notice.

ELDER J. S. ROTH, 1011 Summer street, Grinnell, Iowa, says he closed a splendid meeting at Jenkinsville, the 21st inst.; house packed full every night, many having to stand. Some ten or twelve are ready for baptism, but are waiting for someone to make the start. The prospects are very encouraging for the establishing of a branch at that place in the near future.

Bro. Roth was at Runnells, Iowa, the 22d inst.

SOME men and women are very zealous for the spread of the gospel, and they can talk more scripture in an hour than they themselves try to live up to in a year.

These ought ye to have done and not to have left the other undone.—Jesus.

THE Grinnell (Iowa) Herald for February 15th, published quite a full account of the district Religio and Sunday School conventions, and the conference held in Grinnell, February 8th to 11th. There is no bias or prejudice exhibited in the write-up, which evidences that the Saints are living consistently and are respected. Grinnell is the home of our widely known and esteemed missionary, Bro. John S. Roth.

CORRESPONDENTS should bear in mind in sending obituary notices for publication, that 100 words are allowed free, and that one cent is charged for each word over the 100 limit. This is the rule except in case where the notice is of general interest. Free marriage notices are strictly confined to names, dates and place with name of officiating minister. One dollar is charged where descriptive items are desired published.

BRO. ROBERT OWEN, Creighton, Nebraska, who came from Canada three years ago, would like to ascertain the nearest branch to Creighton. He has not seen any of the Saints since he came, and so far as he knows, is the only member of the Reorganized church in that neighborhood. He thinks Creighton would be a fine place for an elder to do a good work, and if one should come Bro. Owen will see that he is provided for. He is a farm laborer, and could not himself entertain an elder, but says he will willingly spend money that the truth may be shown.

THROUGH the kindness of Sr. Mabel Sanderson and Bro. Elmer E. Johnson we shall be able to give our readers, shortly, the funeral sermon of Bro. John M. Terry, Jr., delivered by Bro. F. G. Pitt, at Chicago, Illinois, March 15th. We are glad to note that some of our young brethren and sisters, who have the talent of reporting, are manifesting their interest in the spread of the gospel by taking down for the ENSIGN the important and grand thoughts with which the Holy Spirit is inspiring the servants of God so that not only the comparatively few who are present at the service, are benefited, but many thousands of others, some not of the faith, are also edified thereby. Surely some of the reward attaching to those who bring the glad tidings of great joy to a soul seeking the light by which they are led to accept and obey the gospel, will be given to these noble Saints who put their talents in this direction in the service of the Lord because they love his work and desire to do what they can for the salvation of others.

MRS. H. A. BUTTON, Slateville, New York, says the sermons, letters and excellent articles in the ENSIGN are a source of great strength and comfort to her. The longer she reads the more thoroughly is she convinced of the truthfulness of the gospel, and the deeper is her desire to be identified with the people who are so blessed and accepted of God. She adds:

I wish that some of the elders might come to this place; they would be welcome at our home and we would help them all we could. We have not forgotten Elder F. M. Sheehy, who preached a number of sermons here two years ago last summer; would like very much to see him again.

SR. (Mrs.) NELLIE DIBBLE, Beatrice, Nebraska, says they have not heard a sermon since last summer; their nearest branch is sixteen miles distant, too far to take a family of little ones very often. She would be pleased to be near enough to go regularly to church and Sunday School. There being but few in that place they feel sadly the removal of Bro. Charles Morey, but an elder will always find a welcome at Sr. Dibble's home. Bro. Bellville and Robinson made appointment at Beatrice last winter, when they were holding meetings near there, but circumstances prevented them from preaching in Beatrice to the great disappointment of the Saints there. She adds:

I thank God that we were brought into this church, and think if one would leave it for some other, they would not be looking for the gospel of Christ. Dear Saints, pray for us that we may live righteous lives and raise up our children in the path of right, for there is so much to lead them away from Christ.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

ELDER F. C. KECK, Nevada, Missouri:

We closed our meeting at Joplin last night (March 25th). We led five adults, all heads of families, into the water yesterday, and others will soon come; house was filled to overflowing.

ELDER C. J. SPURLOCK, Acorn Ridge, Missouri:

I was sent to this place by the missionary in charge. Since my arrival I have baptized two from Springerton, Illinois. W. T. Hill and Job Rister. The Saints at Springerton will rejoice to know that the seed sown three years ago is now producing fruit in South Missouri. I am now stopping with Mr. and Mrs. Wooton, of this place, who are also from Springerton. I hope and pray that the next General Conference will result in much good to the body. I want the Saints in the South Missouri district to remember me in your prayers. I am now preaching in the M. E. church at this place.

GENERAL CHURCH NEWS

INDEPENDENCE.

There will be a farewell social tendered to our departing pastor, Bro. G. E. Harrington, at the church this (Thursday) evening, from eight to ten o'clock. Everybody invited. It will be informal, but a short program may be rendered. All, who can, come.

Bro. R. Etzenhouser and M. H. Bond arrived Monday evening.

Sr. Roy Newkirk is quite low. Bro. Newkirk is improving as is the little daughter.

Bro. T. C. Kelley is doing service in the old Far West district until Conference.

Bishop Hilliard has been ill since Sunday, but is able to be around and is improving.

Sr. B. C. Loar has been ill, necessitating the return of her aunt, Sr. Lingo, from Post Oak, Missouri.

Sr. Grace Flower Brown of Minneapolis, Minnesota, is very sick, her mother, Sr. Anna Flower, being summoned to her by telegram Wednesday, and left the same evening.

Elder Frank Criley, business manager of Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa, made a brief visit to Independence, Sunday, departing for home Monday morning after a short call at the ENSIGN office.

Col. Givens Craddock, editor Citizen, of Paris, Kentucky, the past forty years, the paper as he states being 98 years old, was a caller at the ENSIGN office Wednesday afternoon. The editor of the ENSIGN not being in the office when he called, did not have the pleasure of meeting the veteran.

Services were held at the stone church nearly every evening last week. Monday night Bro. Gomer Wells, late of Australia, occupied; Tuesday night, Bro. Holmes J. Davison, of Nova Scotia; Wednesday, Bro. Frank M. Sheehy, of Boston, Massachusetts; Thursday night, Bro. R. M. Elvin, of Lamoni, Iowa, which closed the series of meetings.

The services at the church last Sunday were well attended throughout the day. At the morning hour Elder Holmes J. Davison gave some excellent thoughts on the government of Christ. At night Bro. Henry Kemp was the speaker, Bro. F. M. Sheehy, who had been announced to occupy, being detained in Kansas City. At the afternoon social service many came fasting for the favor of the Lord upon the General Conference soon to convene, as suggested by the president of the branch, and a splendid experience was given all present, three speaking, by the gift of prophecy, encouraging promises for the conference and to the faithful. The time was well occupied and the meeting was closed with good interest past the hour of adjournment.

Efforts to obtain a coach through from Independence to Lamoni, via Missouri Pacific R'y, and St. Joseph, have been unsuccessful, the Missouri Pacific officials stating they could not consistently ask the Burlington people to handle their coach from St. Joseph. Arrangements will, therefore, be made with the Burlington people for cars from Kansas City union station to Lamoni, April 8d. Those who wish to take the Missouri Pacific train from Independence will take the train leaving main line station at 8:35 a. m. This will necessitate a wait of about two and a half hours at Kansas City, as the Burlington train does not leave Kansas City until 11:30 a. m. Through tickets via Burlington route may be purchased from the Missouri Pacific agent at Independence if desired. Remember to ask agent for a certificate at every point where tickets are purchased, otherwise full fare will have to be paid returning as well as going. Full fare tickets will have to be purchased going, but a certificate properly signed at Lamoni, will enable holders to purchase return ticket for one-third regular fare. Don't forget the certificate, therefore.

The announcement made by Pres. G. H. Harrington last Sunday afternoon, that owing to an advantageous offer being made to him by an eastern firm, he would depart for Elwood, Pennsylvania, tomorrow, Friday, evening, was received with general regret. The unselfish, self-sacrificing, devoted and faithful service he has given the branch during his incumbency of the president's office, has endeared him to the Saints and secured for him their earnest support, with but a very few exceptions; the continued large majorities over all others, when elections were held, have been a standing testimony to the confidence and esteem in which he has been held by the Saints of this branch. Tuesday night nearly sixty of the Saints met at the home of Bro. John A. Robinson, Sr., and from there went to the home of Bro. and Sr. Harrington about 8 o'clock—they having been invited out to supper—and taking possession, awaited their return, which soon occurred, our brother being completely surprised. After the greetings were over, Bro. J. A. Robinson, in a neat speech, presented Bro. and Sr. Harrington with a beautiful chocolate service of silver from a few of the members of the branch, as a token of esteem and appreciation of their work among us. Bro. and Sr. Harrington both replied fittingly and feelingly, though with difficulty suppressing their emotions. "Blest be the Tie That Binds" was sung, and general conversation ensued. About ten o'clock several hymns were sung, prayer was offered by Bro. H. R. Mills, and after singing "God be With You Till We Meet Again," the assemblage dispersed to their homes, wishing our brother and his family a safe return to the Zion land, in due time.

Bro. William Crick, late proprietor and publisher of the ENSIGN, has been nominated for councilman from the fourth ward on the republican ticket, and his prospects for being elected are very flattering. He is a good, careful man, and about the only thing his opponents have to urge against his candidacy is that he is a "Mormon" (?). As, however, the Saints here, generally, have the reputation of being law-abiding citizens, attending closely to their own affairs, and not interfering with others, and are striving to live honest, honorable lives, this objection will not weigh so much as it might have done at one time. Now and then an individual is encountered who has a deep set prejudice—perfectly groundless as mere prejudice always is—against all who are called "Mormons," but it is the exception, not the rule, most of the residents here being willing to accept a man for what he is, as a man. Bro. Crick should, and we think he will, receive a very handsome majority, and will make a good councilman. He has quite a nice little property interest in the city, owning a nice home on the south side besides other residence property, and in his foundry, we understand, gives employment to twenty-two hands. A man who is thus successful in running his own affairs, is pretty safe to trust with the city's interests.

LAMONI, IOWA.

Pleasant spring weather.

Elders A. Haws, from California, Chase and Holt, from Oregon, and I. N. Roberts, from the north, have arrived. About every day now there are arrivals of folks to attend the Conventions and General Conference to begin next week. Two carloads are reported coming from Canada.

Thursday night, 22d, Elder F. M. Cooper, of Illinois, delivered an interesting sermon at the Home, assisted by Elder Grant.

Yesterday morning, Sunday 25th, at the brick church Apostle Griffiths spoke on the subject of Forgiveness, illustrating his subject with a chart, making the parable of the king and his debtors very plain. The afternoon social was in charge of Elders Gunsolley and Chase, who gave excellent instructions to the vast assemblage of Saints and friends. Comforting experiences and enlivening testimonies were given to the encouragement and edification of all. At the suggestion of presiding elder, Gunsolley, April 1st was named as a day of fasting and prayer, by the branch, and all others who feel to unite for the prosperity of the work in this region of Zion's land. Apostle Caffal was the speaker at night.

Elder Grant preached at the Home, assisted by Bro. Martin Danielson.

A LAMONIAN.

March 26.

ST. JOSEPH, MISSOURI.

Mr. John Eno from Brampton, Ontario, joined his family here last week. Sr. Eno is one of the ENSIGN's converts and was baptized in Toronto, Canada, about a year ago.

Bro. H. B. Taddicken is quite ill.

Bro. and Sr. Baker's little daughter, Gladys, is very sick with lung fever.

Bro. H. O. Smith addressed the Saints yesterday morning and evening very profitably.

The song service in the evening in charge of Bro. R. Winning was of special interest.

There was an attendance of 74 at the Aspey mission Sunday School yesterday, which was the largest number there has ever been there.

Little Della Leach, daughter of Bro. and Sr. Geo. Leach, was baptized at the church yesterday afternoon.

Quite a number are making arrangements to attend General Conference. G. L. K. March 26.

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS.

Branch headquarters, 716 W. Van Buren St. Sunday meetings 2:45 and 7:45 p. m.; Lang Mission, 3411 Cottage Grove Ave., 10:45 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.; West Pullman branch, 12024 Union Ave., 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.; Parkside Mission, 7124 Stony Island Ave., 3:00 and 7:30 p. m.; 508 W. 37th St. (colored mission), 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.

Bro. P. Peiment occupied both afternoon and evening at branch headquarters Sunday, and presented some sound arguments in defense of our faith. We noticed some outsiders at both services.

Elder G. H. Graves gave an entertainment at his mission last Friday night. A godly number were present and a pleasant evening was spent; ice cream and other refreshments were served. Proceeds to go towards the expenses of the mission which Bro. Graves recently opened at 508 37th St., to reach the people of his race.

Mrs. F. E. Webster, who has been attending at the Parkside mission, was baptized Sunday, March 18th, by Bro. John Harris. Mrs. Webster is a sister of our branch teacher, Bro. C. E. Shaw, and is a daughter of Elder Shaw, of Shenandoah, Iowa (we believe it is). Elder Shaw, we understand, labored in this latter day work for many years. We somewhat expect another baptism next Sunday.

Union service at Lang mission next Sunday at 3:00 p. m. We hope all the Saints of the city, who can do so, will be present. Saints of neighboring towns, who can attend, come and help make the meeting a success.

We have been privileged to see the first copy of the West Pullman Agitator, the official organ of the West Pullman Religo, and can say that we think it a credit to its two editors, Bro. Louis Van Dran and Oscar Newton. The Chicago local's publication, The Echo, will hereafter have a wide-awake contemporary in the paper published in the southwestern portion of the city. We extend a hearty welcome to this latest publication, and wish it every possible success. West Pullman has a band of wide-awake young Saints, whom, we have every reason to believe, will make a splendid success of the Religo work.

We understand Bro. E. A. Goodwin, of Michigan, has been holding a number of services at West Pullman during the last week or ten days, with good success.

By letter from Bro. J. M. Terry, we learn that he is hard at work as usual, having preached twice on Sunday, a week ago, and expected to occupy almost every night last week. The Saints are trying to keep the camp fire blazing during Bro. Terry's absence; with some entering the fold and others near the door, gives us encouragement, and makes us all feel happy.

Sr. Eric Johnson is again on the sick list.

FIRST KANSAS CITY BRANCH.

Chapel, 2324 Wabash avenue. Take 15th street line to Prospect Ave., transfer to Prospect, get off at 24th, and walk one block west to the right hand. Time of meetings: Sunday School at 9:30, preaching at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m., social service at 12:30 p. m. Prayer meeting, Wednesday evening at 7:30; Religio, Friday evening at 8. Strangers are cordially invited.

Sunday was not a good day for attendance at meetings, this was especially so at Sunday School, but the interest was good.

Elder F. M. Sheehy, of the California mission, delivered an excellent sermon at 11 a. m., and Elder A. B. Phillips, also of the California mission, discoursed eloquently in the evening.

It is with sadness we chronicle the death of Bro. and Sr. Arthur Allen's infant child, which occurred on Thursday of last week. They have the heartfelt sympathy of the Saints of the branch.

The weekly Sunday School teacher's meetings are well attended, and never flag in interest.

Sr. M. Eunice Winn and Bro. Walter Smith and D. Robt. Winn spent Sunday at Lees Summit, in the interest of Religio work. We understand Sr. Eva Bailey, our district Sunday School superintendent, was also there.

Srs. L. H. Ashbaugh, Lizzie Givens and E. Etzenhouser have been on the sick list, but we understand all are recovering.

Quite a number from here expect to attend General Conference. R. E. PORTER.

March 27.

SECOND KANSAS CITY BRANCH.

Corner Sixteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue. Sunday School 9:30 a. m., preaching 11 a. m., prayer meeting 2:30 p. m., preaching 7:30 p. m.

Through an unintentional oversight in last week's items the interesting and instructive sermon by Elder F. C. Warnky was not reported for Sunday night, March 18. Bro. Warnky's discourses are always filled with food for thought.

Last Sunday morning Elder Wm. Newton conducted the preaching services. Elder A. B. Phillips occupied the stand to the edification of a small audience. He asked, "Are we in a condition to start to follow in the steps of Jesus Christ." Bro. Phillips started for Lamoni, Monday morning. He has been laboring in the California mission.

The afternoon prayer meeting was in charge of Bro. Wm. Newton, Joseph Emmett and Thomas Newton. There was a large attendance and numerous testimonies were given to edify and strengthen. Elder Wm. Newton preached an effective sermon Sunday evening and developed ideas and thoughts that cluster around the seventh verse of the nineteenth Psalm. www.LatterDayTruth.org

A special business meeting is called for Tuesday night at the home of our branch president, Joseph Emmett, 1720 Bellview avenue, to consider ways and means to continue building our chapel.

Brethren, on your way to Conference, visit us.

There will probably be some special cars arranged for the trip from Kansas City Monday morning, April 2.

JOHN C. GRAINGER.
1415 Pennsylvania Ave., Mar. 26.

PROVIDENCE, RHODE ISLAND.

Elder Geo. W. Robley occupied the stand in the chapel here last Sunday evening with excellent liberty. He also spoke the Sunday evening previous.

Bro. and Sr. John Wetmore of Boston have been very ill of late with lagrippe. Elders Busiel and Davison administered to them and they were, at last reports, on the mend.

Elder R. Bullard writes of late that he secured the vestry of the Methodist Congregational church at East Dennis, Mass. Had a good number out to an evening service, with people standing in entry. He had good liberty at some of these services.

Elder Davison preached at the Somerville chapel, Boston, Mass., March 11th.

LETTER DEPARTMENT.

ALTON, Missouri, Feb. 26.
Zion's Ensign:—I am now on my way to Stoddard county, this state, expecting to remain till after General Conference. The round trip will be about 400 miles from where I started. On my way I had a pleasant visit with the Saints of Stony Point, Pomona and at Woodside. The Saints have aided me financially on my way thus far, knowing that I had a long journey ahead of me and going on horseback would be quite a while on the trip. For their kindness to me I am thankful and trust God will reward them.

One brother here has a cheap farm for sale. It contains 40 acres, 18 acres in wheat, 25 acres under fence, which he offers for sale for $1500.00. It has a two roomed house, hall in the center, and cistern and wheat garner. Should any of the Saints wish to purchase, they had best comply with the law by consulting with the bishopric before changing their location. For particulars write to Bert Warren, Springfield, Mo., or A. M. D. McGuire, Woodside, Mo.

C. J. SPURLOCK.

HARLAN, Iowa, March 16.
Dear Ensign:—On the 15th inst. the mortal remains of dear mother were laid peacefully at rest in the cemetery family lot. Bro. F. A. Smith was selected to deliver the sermon and did so very acceptably indeed, the 16th Psalm being the foundation of his remarks. A large congregation almost breathlessly listened to the soothing, comforting words of the speaker, based upon the promises and glorious hope of an immortal resurrection. We all indeed felt that our mourning was sweetened because of the beautiful lessons presented to us in mother's life; her faithfulness, loyalty and devotion gave luster and brightness to the gospel promises presented, and together with the beautiful floral decorations—devoid of the usual crepe of mourning—as was her request, blending a joy with our sadness, bringing consolation and peace to the bereaved. The real Spirit of God and the hope of the gospel indeed can only fill the aching void. The kindest of kind hands and hearts administered and cheerfully contributed and to them we hereby tender the grateful thanks of father and family and assure you we are under lasting obligations.

Mother was born in England, July 26, 1821, and was married to J. W. Chaburn in 1839; 60 years of peaceful married life such as comes to very few of earth's mortals; and we may be pardoned if a degree of pride is manifested when we say as the oldest child of father's immediate family, I cannot now recall an incident of domestic life that I could wish to be different. Loyal and peaceful to and with each other, they have battled with the trials incident to a frontier life. Coming to America in 1845, to Iowa in 1852 and to Harlan in 1866, where they have continued to reside. She entered the church in 1846 and in 1860 renewed her obligations by entering the Reorganized Church; her home has been the home of almost, if not entirely, all the elders who have preached the gospel here. She never wearied in contributing her mite to the spread of truth, or to the relieving of the distressed.

It was Sr. Diana Wilcox and she who traveled over a large portion of this—Shelby and also Harrison counties—some twenty years ago gathering from the scattered Israel sufficient funds to erect the Saints' chapel here and to her was given the lot by James M. Long; the building finally was erected and now deeded to the church.

Her patriarchal blessing given in 1852 has been wonderfully and signally fulfilled in every temporal blessing promised, and we have the peaceful assurance that the spiritual and heavenly promises will be as minutely and equally fulfilled; therefore:

Rest, mother, in peace,
Till the righteous shall reign,
And we'll live to be worthy
To meet you again.

T. W. CHATBURN.

CHICAGO, Ill., March 20.

Dear Ensign:—My protracted meeting which began February 22d, closed March 16th, with a rousing sermon by Elder T. G. Pitt, our missionary from England. I did nearly all the preaching myself. A few honest souls are investigating our claims. Some nights I had as high as twenty people, and some as low as three, but had good liberty all the time. I had good luck during the meetings; the good Lord sent us a lady who is a very good organist. I was talking to her last night about our work, and she says that she wants to obey God in all things, so I feel hopeful of her uniting with us before long.

I would have very much liked to have had our Bro. R. C. Evans, of London, Canada, to preach for the colored Saints. He and I were boys together, so, Canada, don't pass me by any more.

Now, dear Saints, I have a splendid new hall that will seat about two hundred people, and I must surely say for true that Bro. S. C. Good is one of the finest and slickest paper hangers I ever saw in my life; he both furnished the paper and put it on for me; God bless him for it. Bro. Wainright built the platform and did the carpenter work for me, and the writer did the rest of the work, fitting up the mission. So, dear elders and Saints, stand by the colored missionary this year at General Conference.

Yours in bonds,
ELDER G. H. GRAVES.

COVE, Ark., March 19.

Editor Ensign:—We are yet alive in this part of the vineyard. We have Bro. A. Z. Rudd, D. D. Babcock and J. Cole Moxon of the local eldership to help carry on the work at this place. We also have some valuable assistance from Bro. J. D. Erwin, who has been preaching for us quite often this year. Bro. Earl D. Bailey, our district president, and Bro. Ellis Short have each occupied the pulpit several times since January 1st, and preached some fine sermons. Bro. Short never fails to draw a crowded house when the announcement is made that he is going to occupy. We have all the regular services of the church, similar to those held at Independence.

We had an unusual gathering last evening, occasioned by the marriage of Bro. J. D. Irwin and Miss Bertha Skidmore, of Cove. The announcement of the marriage was made from the stand at the moving services. The program followed out was as follows: Bro. Short preached an able discourse on the subject of "the position of our church on the 'marriage question';" after a thirty-five minutes sermon, the bridal party reached the church door, and the familiar wedding march, by Sr. Jack Taylor, sounded, and then entered the door, the two ushers, Bro. Hallis Clapp and Fred Smith, following these, the officiating minister, Bro. Earl Bailey, the bride (intended) leaning on the arm of Sr. Cora Strong followed by the groom, escorted by Bro. David Harder. Upon reaching the front platform, an able and appropriate prayer was offered by Bro. D. D. Babcock, following which came the ceremony and appropriate talk from Bro. Bailey, when the newly married couple, the attendants, Bro. Short and Bailey went to the home of Sr. Jennie Newton, where they found supper awaiting them.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Irwin departed north on the 9:30 train, after passing through the rice ordeal at the depot. They will visit with relatives and friends at Wilberton, Indian Territory, for a few days, and then return to Cove for the present.

A. L. NEWTON.

SOUTH RAWDON, N. S., March 8.

Dear Ensign:—I write to renew my subscription as I do not wish the Ensign stopped, as it is a welcome visitor; we are always glad when the mail comes, and the first thing we do is to look to see if there is anything from any of the Saints whom we know. I have often thought that I would write, but thought that others could write that which would be more interesting than I could; but if each one thought that, and did not write, we would soon not have any Ensign to read.

I am glad to know that there are a few Saints here who are trying to do what they can for the spread of the gospel. I am thankful that I ever heard the gospel and obeyed it. I see so many ways that it has been blessed and my desire is to do all that I can to help others to see the light. I have no preaching now, as Bro. Davison has started for conference; we were sorry to part with him, but hope he will be sent back here again; he has been such a help to us in our Sunday School and Religion. But there are so many places for the elders to go, that we can not have them all the time, but must try and help to keep up the work. Sometimes when we meet there are only three or four of us, but we know that if we are in earnest in our efforts to serve God, that He can bless us just as well when only a few meet, as if we had a houseful. I ask the Saints to remember us in their prayers, that we may be faithful.

Your sister in the faith,
MATTIE O'BRIEN.

LANCASTER, Wis., March 15.

Editor Ensign:—The Ensign is doing a good work in Wisconsin. I hope the Lord may bless its future mission. Three young men were baptized into the Master's fold, near Soldiers' Grove, last Sunday. They are noble hearted boys and we look for them to be bright lights of the Lord's work in these last days.

What a noble service for the young to enter into! How true the sentiments of the post,
'O' happy is the man who hears
Instruction's warning voice,
And who celestial wisdom makes,
His early, only choice.

For she has treasures greater far
Than East or West unfold,
And her rewards more precious are
Than all these stores of gold.

"She guides the young with innocence,
In pleasure's paths to tread!
A crown of glory she bestows
Upon the happy head.

"According as her labors rise,
So her rewards increase.
Her ways are ways of pleasantness,
And all her paths are peace."

The Lord is calling quite a large number of the young into his truth in Wisconsin, many of whom we have strong reason to hope will be strong helpers in rolling forth the gospel of Christ to the glorious scenes to come. Four young women and four young men have been baptized in southwestern Wisconsin the past few months, and we look for several more in the few months to come, besides those who were enlisted previously. And as all seem to be of that kind, humble type, we feel to say deep down in our hearts, "God bless you every one!" be faithful, and the dear Lord will prepare a work for each.

The Lord's work in Crawford county has many bright prospects at present. Nine adults have been baptized at Bear Creek the past few months, and we look for several more in the spring. The Saints from the regions round about (being quite scattered) meet the first Sunday in each month at the Saints' homes, one Sunday in one locality, and in another the next. They usually have good attendance and good meetings.

Those of us who were permitted to attend the debate at Viroqua, between Bro. I. N. White and Clark Braden, were well pleased with the results; all of Braden's ridicule and cunning sophistry could not move Bro. White's scriptural logic, nor his pleasant demeanor. We felt thankful to our Father in heaven for such a humble, yet noble defender of the truth as Bro. White.

Your brother in Christ,

Editor Ensign:—We came to this place one year ago in October. Oh! it was so lonely for me for we came from near Valley Junction where we could have privileges as Saints should. Though my beloved husband does not belong to the church he is near the kingdom door, and he feels as lonely as I do; he went to work and got a minister from the village to come and preach to us once in two weeks, but it was not the restored gospel, so we thought we would try and have a Sunday School as the good Lord will do his work as it seemeth good in his own due time. Bro. and Sr. Thompson, from Valley Junction, came over just in time to organize a Latter Day Saint Sunday School. As I was the only Saint at that time I was placed at the head and still remain. We have three other Saints here besides myself; about ten or twelve miles there is another family of Saints.

There has been some good preaching done by elders in this place, and it has helped me wonderfully, for some were beginning to call us Mormons, but as the good Lord will deliver his people out of the hands of the adversary, he has helped the Saints here.

I had the silent preacher to my friends, also some have read the Voice of Warning, and others are reading the Book of Mormon. I try to clear up the awful words "Salt Lakers" and "Mormons."

We would be glad to have any of the elders come this way and see us and give us some more good sermons.

OWENS HILL, Tenn., Feb. 15.

Editor Ensign:—Have just returned from our last quarterly conference which convened at the New Bethel church, near Sedalia, Kentucky. It was quite a success. There were a number of Saints present from other branches, also several "friends to the cause."

We were royally entertained by Bro. Adair's and Cook's families. Conference convened at ten a. m. Saturday, February 10th. Bro. D. W. Cook presided, assisted by Bro. C. L. Snow. Quite a lot of business was transacted, and new officers elected. Our worthy brother, P. B. Seaton, was elected president of the district, giving Bro. D. W. Cook a rest. He has faithfully discharged his duty as president. Bro. Jeff Myers was re-elected district secretary. We could not well get along without him. A beautiful dinner was spread at noon. Preaching at 7 p. m. by Bro. Seaton.

Sunday morning broke fair and clear. At 9 a. m. we repaired to Bro.

Cook's pond where two precious souls, Mrs. Joe Williams and Miss Bessie Cook, were baptized by Bro. Cook. A number more were quite favorable, and I trust that ere now they will have obeyed the same commandment, for they are earnest seekers for the truth, and would be noble workers in the cause. At 11 a. m. Bro. Snow preached a very interesting sermon, and then attended to the confirmation of the two who were baptized, also to the blessing of three children, assisted by Bro. Seaton and Adair. Quite an enjoyable time was had in the prayer meeting at 2 p. m.

As we had to start on our homeward journey after prayer meeting, I do not know who preached at the evening service. We left feeling that it was good to be there, for it is such a pleasure to meet with the Saints who are Saints, trying to live by every word, etc. Our next quarterly conference will convene with the High Hill branch the second Saturday and Sunday in July.

The branch at this place continues to prosper so to speak. It has been so cold that the prayer meetings on Wednesday nights are not very largely attended, and the Sunday School is not as I could wish, for the children cannot come in such weather as we have been having, but they are interested greatly, and I have great hopes of a flourishing school this spring. I find the new cards a great help, and use them to an advantage, for the children can more readily understand and comprehend the meaning of the lesson when they have the cards for a study.

Bro. C. L. Snow and J. H. Adair held a series of meetings here in January, which were enjoyed so very much. Bro. Adair preached in the day on the Duty of Saints, and Bro. Snow at night on the Destiny of Man. It is indeed a grand subject and was well defined by Bro. C. L. The only objection I could find was that they closed the meeting too soon. We are almost starving for preaching. Our regular meeting day is every third Sunday, but we had none last third Sunday on account of the weather.

Dear Saints, I ask you all to pray for me that I may be restored to health if it is God's will, for I have been afflicted for two years with a dreadful stomach trouble.

With prayers for the "gathering," and the cause in general, I am

SAVANNAH, Ill., March 19.

Editor Ensign:—I am much interested in the articles on "gathering," and am more impressed in regard to the Word of Wisdom. I feel it has been a benefit to me in helping me to overcome the evils of our nature and the trials we have to contend with. It is my great desire to come up higher, and hope the Saints will put forth efforts that our heavenly Father will recognize, that we may soon be gathered. We are still striving to hold the fort here, although we have been losing some of our best Saints, eight of our number having moved away; however, Bro. Crawford, our teacher, expects to come back and help us what he can.

The Saints here are doing nobly, particularly our young Bro. Norton Grayless. We will be much pleased to have any of the elders call on us, and hope some may remember us on their way to General Conference. If any come who are not acquainted in lives for Bro. Norton Grayless, who lives in Savanna. Sr. Effie Black (nee Grayless) has moved from here to Howe, Idaho, the northern part. Her husband, George Black, has charge of a sheep ranch there. Any of the elders or Saints who can should call on her; her husband does not believe nor belong to the church; he has never had the privilege of hearing the gospel. She was baptized here last fall.

Hoping the Saints will remember us in their prayers that we may prove faithful, I remain,
Your sister in the faith,
MRS. E. SARTWELL.

TITHING.

BY ELDER J. J. CORNISH.

Dear Brethren and Friends:—According to arrangements made at the close of our meeting last evening, we have met on this occasion, and we purpose to speak upon the subject of "Tithing," as we announced. The passage of Scripture which I shall use this evening, as a starting point, will be found in Matthew 6: 19-21:

Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal: but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal: For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also.

These are the words of our Savior, and I think will be very appropriate for the occasion; much of this chapter has reference to temporal things, but, as is usual with some who differ with us, they do not understand it as we do. Many have wondered how our ministers are supported, and how they live; and since I have been discoursing upon the first principles of the gospel for the last few evenings, occasionally I meet some one who asks, "How do you fellows get your support?" others, "Say, elder, how do you ministers live? I never see you take up a collection or anything like that," etc. To all I have explained briefly, and stated that I would speak upon the subject some evening, and explain more fully; and we have met this evening for the purpose of more fully explaining the order of God in the financial order of His church.

It is evident to all, that inasmuch as God has given a plan for the redemption man, and has ordained that certain officers, of His own choosing, were to be placed in the church, for the purpose of teaching the gospel and administering in the ordinances thereof, that He must have provided a way for their support, together with that of their families. And while some have thought it strange that all through our preaching but little has been said concerning the financial order of the church, and that no collections or anything of that kind have been taken up, etc., it, no doubt, has created a desire upon your part to know our belief upon the same, and also a desire to know if we can produce evidences from the Scripture in support of this order, as well as other parts of the gospel of Christ.

In the first place, allow me to call your attention to the fact that when we came into this world we brought nothing with us, we owned nothing; we have nothing now that was not here before we came here; we cannot take anything away with us when we go out of the world; everything we have, God made, it is all His. David says, "The earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof; the world, and they that dwell therein." (Psalms 24: 1, also 1 Cor. 10: 26). It all belongs to God. We come into this world, occupy for a time, and pass out of it again, leaving all we claimed to possess behind. The Lord requires His people to dwell upon this land which He has created for their good, and all He asks in return for the use of it, is one-tenth over and above our living, which amount He purposes to be placed in the hands of proper officers, whose duty it is to see that those who so contribute, each get credit for it, and to disburse the same to the families of those men who are spending their time in the preaching of the gospel among their fellow men, and also for the poor in the church, who are unable to support themselves (we will always have them with us, Jesus says, Matt. 26: 11), and thus the gospel may be preached freely to all, and the poor among men rejoice, as was declared would be the case when the marvelous latter day work came forth. (Isa. 29).

If you will follow me back to the time mentioned in the Bible, when Isaac sent his son Jacob away from home, giving him a blessing, with certain instructions, etc., you will find when night came on, he looked around for a place to sleep: arranging some stones for a pillow, he lay down to sleep, and that night he dreamed that beautiful dream of which we read and see pictured out in books, etc., "Jacob's dream," wherein he saw a ladder standing on the earth, the top of which reached to heaven, and angels ascending and descending. Yes, well we all know something about that, and I only mention it to draw your minds to that part which pertains to the subject now before us: when Jacob awoke in the morning, he said, "Surely the Lord is in this place," and he vowed a vow unto the Lord, as follows: "If God will be with me, and will keep me in this way that I go, and will give me bread to eat, and raiment to put on, so that I come again to my father's house in peace, then shall the Lord be my God: And this stone which I have set for a pillar, shall be God's house: and of all that thou shalt give me, I will surely give the tenth unto thee." (Gen. 28: 20-22). Thus we find the young man, Jacob, understood the order of God; and inasmuch as God had blessed him that night, and had kept him from harm and danger, etc., and knowing the order of the Almighty, and what would please Him most, he vowed this vow, "I will surely give the tenth unto thee." The law of tithing had been taught before, or how would that young man have known his duty to God in this respect? Sometime previous to this, Abraham, the grandfather of Jacob, who thus promised to pay his tithes, had been instructed in the same, and paid over to Melchizedek, the king, his tithes of all (Gen. 14: 20), thus showing that it was the order of God, and known and practiced by the nation. It belong to God; not only of the seed of the land, and the fruit of the tree, but of the flocks, etc. (See Lev. 27: 30-34).

Some may object, and say that belongs to the old law of Moses, and has nothing to do with the gospel law. Well, this last reference was talking to the children of Israel, but it was simply brought in with the added law (Deut. 5: 2). It had an existence long before the law was given to Israel, as mentioned in Exodus 20th, or Deuteronomy 5th chapter. In Abram's day, paying tithes was over four hundred years before the giving of the law to Israel at Sinai. The order of tithing belongs to the gospel, is a part of it, and without it the ministers could not be supported, nor the poor cared for.

Now, I am well aware many claim that there was no gospel until the New Testament times, but if so, what means this saying of the Apostle Paul: "For unto us was the gospel preached, as well as unto them [the children of Israel], but the word preached did not profit them, not being mixed with faith in them that heard it?" (Heb. 4: 2). The gospel was also preached to Abraham (see Galatians 3: 8), and we have proven that he knew all about, and complied with, the order of tithing. Hence, wherever the order of the gospel is, the law of tithing also must follow, each having its place in the gospel of Christ, and even under the law of Moses we have seen when the gospel, in some of its first principles, was not so fully complied with, yet that part of this gospel called tithing was carried out as may be seen by the reference already given, and also in the following: Deuteronomy 14: 22; Numbers 8: 24-28; Nehemiah 10: 37; 12: 14, etc.

Dear hearers, do not be startled if I tell you that the man who does not pay his tithes and offerings, is simply robbing God of His rights! But it is a fact; God declared to Israel only about four hundred years or less before Christ came, that they had robbed Him, even the whole nation. The Lord gave them to understand that from the days of their fathers they had gone away from His ordinances and had not kept them, and, because of a non-compliance, they had robbed Him. "For I am the Lord, I change not; therefore ye sons of Jacob are not consumed." Don't forget, God changes not, and that being His order: then, why not now? But to continue. He says: "Even from the days of your fathers ye have gone away from mine ordinances, and have not kept them [God's ordinances]. Return unto me, and I will return unto you. saith the Lord of hosts. But ye said, wherein shall we return? Will a man rob God? Yet ye have robbed me. But ye say, Wherein have we robbed thee? In tithes and offering." (Mal. 3: 6-8). Here it is positively stated that they had robbed God in that they had not paid their tithes and offerings into the storehouse of the Lord. There are many people today, who, like Israel of old, murmur and complain because things are not better with them in a financial sense than they are; but if they would only stop and consider the matter, to see if they are doing their duty before Him as they should, and if they are not, how could they expect to have His watch-care over them, or His blessings come to them, or over their fields or flocks?

Right in the next verse or so the Lord says: "Ye are cursed with a curse: for ye have robbed me, even this whole nation. Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house, and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it." (Mal. 3: 9, 10). I have asked professed Christians what that meant; and have received answer as follows, "O, pray much and God will bless you so much with the Holy Ghost that you can't hold it." But that is a mistake; He was not talking about the Holy Ghost, but TITHING AND OFFERINGS, as is plainly seen by the following verse: "And I will rebuke the devourer for your sakes, and he shall not destroy the fruit of your ground; neither shall your vine cast her fruit before the time in the field, saith the Lord of hosts." (Mal. 3: 11). Thus we see he has no reference to the spiritual, but to the temporal blessings, and I have proven in many instances that the Lord is true to His promises; also many others of my brethren and sisters have testified that when they have done their duty before the Lord, as His law directs, then have they been blessed, as He promised in His law they should.

Dear brethren and sisters, there must be some way laid down by which the work of God among men must be carried on and it certainly must be the one found in His word; and the person who thus does his duty before the Lord, shows by so doing that he honors God and respects his law and therefore claims his promises. And if the men of business who, laboring at whatever business they may, will do their duty by sustaining the families of those who are spending all their time preaching the gospel to others, not only for the elder's family but also for the poor of the household of faith who are worthy, they will be the rich recipients of the blessings of God. Thus it was in ancient times, and while the tribe of Levi was set aside by the Lord for ministers and priests to minister for him, the Lord ordered that the tithes of their brethren should be for the support of the tribe of "Levi, and the stranger, and the fatherless, and the widow." (Deut. 14: 27-29). Dear friends, we have fatherless and widows, as well as ministers today! And the same God is Lord over all now as then; hence the statement as I have quoted in Malachi, "I am the Lord, I change not." I hope you can all readily see the need of carrying out the law of God today, as well as they did in ages past. In that way you see there will not be any need for so many of those grab bag socials, foot socials, sugar socials, necktie parties, kissing bees, etc., all to pay the preacher, which has brought shame on the name of christianity, while at the same time the poor have been largely neglected by those same so-called christians. The salaries of those man-made ministers have been so large that there was nothing left for the poor, and, as a rule, the majority have found their way to the county or pauper house. Not so with the people of God when his law is complied with, and carried out as directed in his law and as taught and practiced by the Saints today.

But "lay up treasures in heaven, not on the earth." One may ask, How do you explain laying up money in heaven? I answer, I think I can explain it to the understanding of the people better than you can when you say that the Lord meant that we should lay up our prayers in heaven; I would ask, What would a thief want of your prayers? It is something a thief would want to take from you. You know a thief would not want your prayers. It is evident that the Master had reference to the financial order of his church, and he, no doubt, desired that his people would observe the law of tithing and offering as God, who is unchangeable, had enjoined upon his people for thousands of years past. Hence, in that chapter we read, "Take heed that ye do not your alms before men to be seen of them." Don't do it for the purpose of gaining the applause of men, do it because you love God, and because you wish to keep his commandments—do it to the honor and glory of God. "Give us this day our daily bread," with "ye cannot serve God and Mammon." Mammon means wealth or riches; ye cannot serve God and your money, or your wealth; and the following, "Behold the fowls of the air," "consider the lilies," etc. "Wherefore, if God so clothe the grass of the field * * * shall he not much more clothe you, O ye of little faith." "Therefore take no thought for the morrow: * * * but seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you." Lay up your treasures in heaven; don't pay so much attention to things of the world, and then expect that the kingdom of God will come to you, but pay more attention about God and his kingdom and the other things needed will come; pay your tithes and offerings, give it to the minister of God whose duty it is to receive it and get credit for the same in a legitimate way, and thus "lay up your treasures in heaven." The bishop or his agent is God's minister; put your moneys into the hands of heaven's messengers, get credit for it, and in the day of accounts when the books are opened you will have something marked down to your credit, and you will be "rewarded according to the things written in the books," "according as their works shall be." "For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also." If your heart is set on the things of this world more than upon the things of God, there is where your treasure will be, but if your heart is set to do the works of God in all things and let the other things be "added" as God sees fit, then there your treasure will be—in heaven. Lay them up in heaven. Don't die in debt to the Lord.

I now call your attention to the statement made by the Apostle Paul to the Corinthians, "Now concerning the collection for the saints, as I have given order to the churches of Galatia, even so do ye. Upon the first day of the week let every one of you lay by him in store, as God hath prospered him, that there be no gatherings when I come," etc. (1 Cor. 16:1, 2). See the difference between that statement of the Apostle Paul, a servant for Christ, and the statements made by men of today; when the presiding elder writes to the ministers over the different classes that he will be there such and such a time, he tells them to have the people bring their pocket books with them that there be a good "gathering when I come." Paul says, "Lay by him in store, that there be no GATHERING when I come." "Lay by him;" can you not see the idea, the man figures up his expenses and what he has left, and then takes out the tenth of the surplus, upon the first day of the week, and pays it into the hands of the proper officers so that when any of the ministers come that there be no gatherings. How plain. Again says the Apostle Paul: "For as touching the ministering to the saints, it is superfluous for me to write to you: yet have I sent the brethren, lest our boasting of you should be in vain in this behalf; that, as I said, ye may be ready: therefore I thought it necessary to exhort the brethren, that they would go before unto you, and make up beforehand your bounty, whereof ye had notice before, that the same might be ready, as a matter of bounty, and not as of covetousness." (2 Cor. 9:1, 3, 5). Paul had boasted of their good works in money matters, and had sent some of the brethren ahead, so they would be ready with their tithes and offerings, etc. But, dear brethren—I speak to you who are already in the church and you who may hereafter come into it—be careful not to give grudgingly; pay it cheerfully. See what the next verse or two says, "But this I say, He which soweth sparingly shall reap also sparingly; and he which soweth bountifully shall reap also bountifully. Every man according as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give: not grudgingly, or of necessity: for God loveth the cheerful giver." (2 Cor. 9:6, 7).

One may say, "As he purposeth in his heart, so let him give," and if the tithes must always be paid, why should it read that way? I would say, It is not the tithes only, but "tithes and offerings." The tithes is the Lord's; you give him his due by paying your tithes, but how much are you going to give as an offering? "According as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give." "But," says one, "we haven't got to pay, have we?" I answer,

No; you do as you see fit, but answer in the day of Judgment for a non-compliance with the law of God. You do not have to be baptized for the remission of sins if you do not want to, but how will you do to get a remission of sins without it? "God loveth the cheerful giver." I have heard that explained to mean that God loveth the one most who giveth the most, give cheerfully, viz., give a lot, etc. That is not so; but give what you have to give with a thankful and cheerful heart, and feel glad you have it to give, whether much or little. I believe God loved that widow who gave that mite as much if not more than some of the others who paid of their abundance into the offering of God.

The objector may say, "But what you have read in the New Testament has no reference to the tithing system as practiced under the old law." Well, what then does it refer to? we do not read of there being any change in any of it. Paul understood the law while a member of the Jewish faith and made mention of some changes which occurred in that law; but of the law of tithing, which was hundreds of years before the giving of the Mosaic law, and to which the law of Moses was added, to remain until the seed should come which was Christ (Gal. 3:19), there was no change after Christ's coming; the old Mosaic law passed by, leaving the tithing order and the rest of the gospel law in full force as it was before the law of Moses was given. But another objector says, "Well, Jesus Christ never taught it." Didn't he? What then does it mean, "Lay up treasures in heaven?" What means that statement in Matthew when He condemned the scribes and Pharisees for administering the law unjustly, etc. "Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye pay tithes of mint and anise and cummin, and have omitted the weightier matters of the law, judgment, mercy, and faith: these ought ye to have done and not to leave the other undone." (Matt. 23:23). Christ taught the law of tithing, but condemned those wicked men for not teaching or practicing more fully other principles of faith, mercy, etc. Those Pharisees were like some of our ministers at the present time, they were looking after money matters, but leaving the gospel out.

A beautiful thought is brought out in the expression made by the Savior concerning the parable of the unjust steward. It appears the steward was accused of wasting his master's goods, and his master called him and ordered him to give an account of his stewardship and told him that he intended to put him out of his office, etc. And the poor man scarcely knew what to do, because he was not able to dig, and to beg he was ashamed, etc. Finally he concluded that it would be to his benefit to make the account of his lord's debtors smaller than it really was, so that when his lord should put him out of office those men would receive him and befriend him, etc. And he was commended in that because he had "done wisely" for himself. Then said Jesus to his disciples, "And I say unto you, Make to yourselves friends of the mammon of unrighteousness; that when ye fail, they may receive you into everlasting habitations." (Luke 16:9). Make to yourselves friends of the mammon of unrighteousness—pay your tithes and offerings into the storehouse of the Lord, and should the time ever come that you would fail and be unable to help yourself, you having done your duty faithfully, and "laid up your treasures in heaven," etc., it would be your duty then to ask to be assisted out of that storehouse where you had set your heart to place your treasure, that they may "receive you into everlasting habitations." Right on in the same chapter the Savior says, "He that is faithful in that which is least is faithful also in much; and he that is unjust in the least is unjust also in much. If therefore ye have not been faithful in the unrighteous mammon, who will commit to you the trust the true riches?" (Luke 16:10, 11).

Every man must be a steward over his own house, and he must faithfully discharge his duty, in justice before God, as he will be willing to meet it when he reaches the other side and is brought face to face with the Judge of all the earth. Read the next verse. "And if ye have not been faithful in that which is another man's, who shall give you that which is your own?"—Luke 16:12. Virtually saying, if you have not been faithful in paying a tenth over to the Lord, "which is [the Lord's] another man's," how can you expect that God will bless and prosper you, and give you "that which is your own." In the thirteenth verse, same chapter, he adds: "No man can serve two masters * * * ye cannot serve God and mammon." You cannot do both—serve God and your wealth. But serve God; do your duty before him in a spiritual and financial sense—in fact, it is all spiritual—but what I mean is, obey his gospel—attend to all, both the first as well as the secondary principles: serve him and not your wealth, and with whatever he may prosper you here, pay him one-tenth, and what offerings you desire; then all can see (both God, angels and men) that your heart is there, and there is where your treasure will be. Lay them up in heaven, not on the earth. That poor widow's heart was with her treasure "in heaven." Jesus commended her for her good works (although the law does not require us to put all we have in at present); he said of her, "Of a truth I say unto you, that this poor widow hath cast in more than they all. For all these have of their abundance cast in unto the offerings of God; but she of her penury hath cast in more than they all." The rich cast in "of their abundance" (their tenth), but she cast in "all" (ten times ten). That woman may not have been paying her tithing; it may have been all paid, if she ever had any to pay, and she was only paying an offering. However, let that be as it may, the example is clearly before us.

I have heard some of my brethren say, "It seems quite a sacrifice to pay, and I do not think the Lord wants us to make such a sacrifice." Listen, and I will read to you what David says: "Gather my Saints unto me; those that have made a covenant with me by sacrifice."—Ps. 50:5. Those are they who will be gathered; and you will see by reading this Psalm that he is speaking about what belongs to him. "For every beast of the forest is mine, and the cattle upon a thousand hills." (Ps. 50:10-12). It all belongs to God, use them and pay him one-tenth for use thereof. Let every Saint do his duty before God. If you have any property at all, pay him one-tenth of all, and one-tenth of all your surplus property thereafter annually; that is, one-tenth of your surplus which is over and above your living. You may pay, as Paul says, "Upon the first day of the week," if you are receiving your wages at the end of every week, or every month, as the case may be. The farmer may make two or three harvests each year; he may haul wood or bolts to market in the winter season, and may settle up when done and pay his tithing; he may again make a harvest when he sells the wool from his flock, and also when he takes his stock to market, and lastly his grain, etc. Anyway, so long as he does his duty honestly before his Maker.

I fear I am taking up too much of your time, I may weary you, but as I promised last evening, I will now give you the privilege of asking any question you may see proper.

Question:—Bro Cornish, I believe in the system of tithing and offering, but I am old and unable to work, and although I have some property, my home, a house and lot, I have nothing but a small pension to keep me and the old lady, my wife. Now, would you advise me to sell or mortgage it to pay what would be due the Lord? If I sold I would have no home, and if I mortgaged it I would have no way to redeem it, and the interest would soon eat it up, and I would lose it in that way. What would you advise under such circumstances?

Answer.—I would not advise you to mortgage or sell your home, for you do not expect to live much longer according to the common course of nature, and you will, no doubt, make a will, and will your property to some one or more of your relatives or friends, would you not?

A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Very well, then how would it be for you to will the Lord what rightly belongs to him first?

A.—I could do that.

Q.—Just tell me, brother, what it would be worth, and I will help you to an understanding of what I would think wise under such circumstances.

A.—It is worth about eight hundred dollars.

Then I would suggest that inasmuch as your tithing would be eighty dollars, if you have not paid any, that you make your will at least to read, "One hundred dollars to the church—eighty for tithing, and twenty for free-will offering." Thus you will see you pay the Lord what belongs to him, and twenty dollars you give yourself. Has the gospel been, and by your living it will be worth twenty dollars to you? If more, do what you think your duty would be between God and those to whom you may will your property.

Q.—Elder, my husband is dead, and before he died, he requested me to pay his tithing, as he had never done it. What can be done in that case?

A.—I would suggest that you go on and pay it as you can, and we will place it to the credit of yourself and husband; thus he may "rest from his labors and his works follow."

Q.—How would you do in a case where you owed tithing and owed other debts also, say three or four different places, etc.?

A.—I believe I would consider my tithing a debt equal with the rest, and pay all proportionately to their several wants and demands. If you owed three or four different parties, and could not pay all this year, you, no doubt, would go to the different parties, or their agents, see their needs and demands, pay the ones who must have it, and let the others, who could, wait a little. Do likewise with the Lord's agent, and thus honor and respect God and all mankind. Deal fairly and squarely and God will prosper and save us in the end.

May God bless us all. Amen.

CHRISTIANITY AND NEWS-PAPERS.

So long ago as last August the Northwestern Christian Advocate warned Rev. Sheldon of the difficulties he would encounter in attempting to publish a daily newspaper as Jesus Christ would were He on earth and in the business. The first difficulty suggested by the Advocate was that people—even the most devout of Christian people—wanted in their daily papers the news of the world, fresh, full and uncensored by anybody. They would not submit to one man's judgment of what was fit or unfit to read, for that was a privilege reserved to the reader, not the editor, presuming, of course, that the paper were run in the channels of common decency.

The second difficulty suggested by the Advocate was of a theological nature. It more than intimates that the editor who attempts to run his paper as Jesus would do, or as we may suppose Jesus would do from reading of His life and works in the Bible, would very quickly find himself in deep water. That is to say, if in this day and age we attempted to apply literally the teachings and methods of Jesus to our daily conduct we must violently overturn the accepted usages of society, of the church, and even of the law.

Along this line of not applying the teachings of the Bible literally, Professor A. Sabatier, the eminent French scholar and devout religionist, recently published an article in the Contemporary Review in which he said we must get away as far as possible from the detail of the Scripture and seek only to absorb its masterful generalities. "You cannot," says he, "identify the Father whom Christ reveals to us with the Jehovah of Israel who orders such horrible exterminations and vengeance. The Jehovah anterior to the times of the prophets is not essentially different from the god Chemosh, of Moab, whose commands are no less murderous, and his jealousy no less implacable. But do you really regret him? Was not your conscience uneasy, were you not scandalized and perplexed in your old faith when you read in Genesis and Numbers, in the biography of David, of such violence and trickery attributed to the God whom you adored? And you hazarded timid explanations, subtle allegorical contrivances, to lighten, if not get rid of, this Biblical nightmare. Well! rejoice and be filled with great joy. History, wisely interrogated, puts everything in its right place. It teaches you to see in these documents an ancient phase of the divine education of a people which cannot remain as they were, and which have no more direct authority over the disciples of Christ than the customs of the stone age over the legislators of today."

And what this Professor Sabatier has done for the Old Testament, many divines and Biblical scholars are doing for the New. Before a Methodist conference in New York, less than a year ago, Rev. S. P. Cadman, D. D., threw discredit upon the gospels as an inspired and authentic record. "I assert," said he, "that the essential portion of Christianity is not in any book or creed. Half the pages of the Old Testament are of unknown authorship, and the New Testament contains many contradictions." This sentiment was applauded by the 300 ministers present, including Bishop Andrews.

What we are getting at is that present day Christianity cannot profess to be governed by the rule or rote laid down by Christ and the disciples. If Parson Sheldon followed Jesus literally he would tell his readers to sell all they had and join communally in a church such as Christ sought to establish in Jerusalem. He would tell them, too, that the promise in the New Testament of answered prayer must be taken literally. "All things, whatsoever ye shall ask in prayer believing, ye shall receive." Christ Himself prayed for a church unity that has never come about, and never can, so long as the Sheldons of the world cling to their religious dogmas.

No doubt Parson Sheldon has been misunderstood by those who consider that in every little thing about his newspaper he decides that Christ would do it in this way or that. We believe that he only claims to be guided by the general rules of right which are found in Christ's life and teachings as the rules appear to him. But he has advertised so extensively and so sensationally that the public has come to look upon him as one who feels himself almost divinely called to determine the ways of God. We think this does him an injustice, but, nevertheless, it is a widespread interpretation of his pretensions and his character. If, now that his paper has gone to its readers, he escapes ridicule, it will be the closest shave of his life, for, instead of producing something new and inspiring, he has produced the commonest kind of a journal, having no points of difference from hundreds of other papers except that his is less ably edited. There are dozens of Christian journals in the United States that would feel their work poorly done if they did not excel the issues of the Topeka Capital so far put out by Mr. Sheldon. If he hasn't learned already that special training is as necessary in an editor as in a locomotive engineer, he will be in full possession of the knowledge before the week is out. And when he sums up the results of his venture we shall be surprised, believing him to be an honest man, if he does not conclude that he has done Christianity little good.—Editorial in The Kansas City (Mo.) Journal, March 15th.

The Water System of Pompeii.

Pompeii, like most Roman cities, had an excellent water system, but we are able to judge of the systems in other places only by the small remains, but in Pompeii the whole system has been laid bare, and in "Pompeii, Its Life and Art," by August Mau, translated by Prof. Francis W. Kelsey, there is an interesting description of the water supply of the city. Remains of the great aqueduct near Avelino, a dozen miles east of Nola, have been discovered, and this aqueduct followed the base of Vesuvius and furnished water to Naples, Puteoli, Baiae and Misenum, but the source from which Pompeii received its water supply has not been discovered. The construction of the older baths showed that a free use of water was contemplated. There were many fountains along the streets, most of them at the corners. They were filled by pipes connected with the water system of that city, and these fountains bear witness to long use by depressions which have been worn in the stone by the hands of those who leaned forward to drink. Water towers were found at the sides of streets, they were small pillars of masonry which were raised to the height of 20 feet. There was a small reservoir of water on the top, presumably of metal. In all the houses of any size and importance there were flowing jets. Thus, in the famous house of the Vetii which was discovered a few years ago there are no less than sixteen jets, and water was not stinted in any of the three baths which have been discovered. The water pipes were made of sheet lead folded together, the transverse section somewhat resembling that of a pear. Their size was regulated by the pressure and the water was turned on and off by stopcocks which were much like those in use today.—Scientific American, March 24, 1900.

MODEL TOWN IS IN KANSAS

From the standpoint of morals Lost Springs, Marion county, Kansas, is the most remarkable town in the world.

Lost Springs is a village of 250 souls. Every inhabitant is a teetotaler, only two men swear, and not more than a dozen use tobacco. The entire adult population belongs to the church, and all the children attend Sunday School. The town has never had a saloon or gambling house, and there hasn't been a game of cards played in ten years. Two years ago a couple of young men got up a horse race, but the community made such a fuss about it that the event was declared off. Dancing has not been indulged in for five years.

Lost Springs is without municipal government, having never been incorporated. The early settlers of the community were Methodists of great piety, and, as they explained: "Got started right and kept right." The Methodist church at Lost Springs and the Presbyterian and Christian churches near town, have taught in season and out of season that the "wages of sin is death," with the result that the people avoid even the appearance of evil as they would an epidemic.

At the Methodist prayer meeting a short time ago one brother deplored the fact that so many of the inhabitants of the village used tobacco. He prayed that the evil might be eradicated. A venerable citizen of the town, aged 80, arose and said that he had been chewing tobacco for sixty years, but it never before dawned upon him that the habit was sinful. "I'll give it up," he said, and, going to the door, threw a plug of tobacco into the street. Five other tobacco users followed his example, and the congregation rejoiced with exceeding joy.

C. F. Shupe, the leading merchant of the village, on the day after the meeting, boxed up his stock of tobacco and shipped it back to the factory. "I have no scruples against selling tobacco," Mr. Shupe explained, "but the sentiment of the community is against the traffic, and I have decided not to sell any more of it. I do not use tobacco myself."

One other merchant keeps tobacco in stock, but as he has sold less than a dollar's worth since the crusade was started at the prayer meeting he likely will send his stock back to the factory.—Chicago Chronicle.

The Adulteration of Food Products.

For a considerable time the Senate Committee on Manufacturers has had under way an investigation into the extent to which food preparations are made the subject of adulteration, and their report has been submitted to the Senate. The evidence seems to show that our peppers, cinnamon, cloves and spices, generally, including ginger and mustard, are adulterated, the amount depending upon the man ordering the article; in some cases it reaches sixty per cent. Of course, in the case of butter, cheese and flour, the practice of fraud can be more easily detected than in the falsification of spice. The committee has taken the ground that the sale of deleterious and unhealthy food products should be prohibited, and where the adulteration is harmless and the goods cheapened, they should be marked for what they are. One method of dealing with the difficulty contemplates putting important food products under the internal revenue law, as has been done with flour, filled cheese and butter. It is said that the poor flour bill has absolutely prevented the sale of adulterated flour and has increased, according to Bradstreet's, the sale of American flour 25 per cent in other countries. Another plan contemplates the establishment of a board which shall fix the standards for food, drink and drugs. Of course, the same rule should apply to foreigners who manufacture goods to be sold in this country.—Scientific American.

MEDITATIONS.

Some of the Saints seem to have the idea that every baptized believer has the right to lay on hands for the sick according to the promises the Lord gave by Mark in 16th chapter, "These signs shall follow them that believe * * * they shall lay hands on the sick and they shall recover." I thought that our Scriptures seem to explain the promises; in James, we are informed that when any are sick to send for the elders to officiate, and in the Doctrine and Covenants that the elders are authorized to lay on hands for the sick. Yet in some cases where no elders can be got, if the Lord directs any brother or sister to anoint and lay on hands, it is all right, like Cornelius and his family received the Holy Ghost before baptism, yet not the order of the church, but for a purpose in the wisdom of God.

INFERIOR.

Objection to Wire Nails.

Strange to say the industry of making cut nails from iron and steel is having a great revival. The introduction of steel wire nails made great inroads upon the cut nail business, but now the latter shops are adding new machinery and enlarging their facilities. The increased demand is caused by the fact that shingles that have been fastened on barn roofs for the past ten years with wire nails are blowing off and farmers are greatly exercised over the matter.

The shingles fastened with the old cut nail remained on the roof until the shingles rotted, whereas with the steel wire nail, the shingles blow off after ten years. The main trouble with the steel wire nail, says the Evening Post, is that it cannot stand the weather as the wrought iron nail does. This is partly caused by the acid used in annealing the wire before it is drawn which cannot be thorough-

FRANKLIN MILES, M. D., LL. B., THE EMINENT CHICAGO PHYSICIAN AND SCIENTIST, WILL SEND ANY SUFFERER TWO DOLLARS AND A HALF WORTH OF HIS WONDERFUL TREATMENT FOR HEART AND NERVOUS DISEASES.

Never before has such a generous offer been made. It will enable thousands suffering from lingering or chronic diseases of the brain, nerves, heart, liver or stomach, to test the curative qualities of Dr. Miles' new, special, personal treatment free of charge.

Few regular physicians in the world have such unlimited confidence in their skill, and the curative properties of their remedies as to permit every patient to thoroughly test them free of charge. Such liberality speaks louder than words.

Hundred of "Incurable Cases" cured. Mr. E. J. Held, of Grand Rapids, Michigan, writes: "I was given up by eleven physicians. Mr. Frank Smith, of 1244 Wabash Ave., cured of dropsy after five of Chicago's leading physicians said there was no hope for her. Truman DeWeese, editor Chicago Times-Herald, states: "Dr. Miles cured my chronic headache and dizziness." Hon. C. M. Buck, banker, Fairbault, Minn., writes: "I had broken completely down. My head, heart, stomach and nerves had troubled me greatly for years. I feared I would never recover, but Dr. Miles' personal treatment cured me after six well-known physicians of Chicago and elsewhere, had completely failed." Mis. P. Countryman, of Pontiac, Illinois, says: "Several years ago when I sent to Dr. Miles for personal treatment, three physicians said I could not live two weeks. I could not walk six feet then; now I can do all my work."

Dr. Miles has had twenty-four years' experience, and is well and favorably known throughout the country. He has an able and extensive corps of assistants and investigators in his laboratories. He has patients in every state, territory, Canada and Mexico. He cordially invites the afflicted to write to him.

You may never have another such opportunity. Do not fail to write for examination blank and $2.50 gift certificate. He sends a card to the Dr. Miles Medical Association, 201 to 209 State street.

ly cleaned off. The Watervliet Arsenal experiments show that cut nails have proved to be 50 per cent more adhesive when driven into wood than wire nails, but the bright and cheaper wire nails soon succeeded in making a great difference in the cut nail trade. The carpenter can drive wire nails too handily to return to the cut nails unless specifications actually require it, and the demands for cut nails are coming largely from agricultural sections. A big steel wire combine has had a special nail made with an extraordinarily large head and galvanized all over. These are guaranteed to outlast any nail in existence.—Selected.

Do NOT permit the children to form the habit of disputing and quarreling with each other. It may be prevented, like other bad habits, by watchfulness, particularly if the training is begun when the children are very young. Separation is the best punishment, breaking up the play and taking away the cause of the dispute. Children are social beings and do not like to play alone. They dislike solitude, and if they find it is invariably the result of quarreling, they will take pains to be more amiable so as not to be forced into it.—April Ladies' Home Journal.

We still have some copies of the duet, "Evelina Lost," words by Bro. J. Cole Moxon, music by Prof. Leib, price 25 cents, postage paid; better order copies for yourself and friends. It is a souvenir of the little gospel boat and contains a good view of it in the San Francisco harbor.

HOPE THROUGH FAITH.

S. C. D. B.

A glorious hope beyond the grave, Our troubled mind will soothe. By faith we see the light we crave, And know that God is love.

Though sick and weary, tempest tost, In sorrow and distress; When hope on earth seems almost lost, Faith puts the soul at rest.

It whispers cheering words of peace, It allays all our fears; It makes our love for God increase, While in this vale of tears.

Nor death itself shall make us fear, To lie beneath the sod; Moved on by faith we'll ever bear A glorious hope in God. CENTRALIA, I. T.

Workers Should Breakfast Sparingly.

Do not eat a hearty breakfast if you have any mental or physical work to do thereafter. The full stomach may satisfy your craving, but cannot give you the needed or desired strength under about three or four hours. Digestion, absorption and assimilation must take place before you can get any good from your breakfast. If these processes are not completed the hearty breakfast simply clogs the vital machinery. Therefore the hearty six o'clock dinner, which will not only build up the waste of the day, but provide a reserve for the morrow, is to be commended.—April Ladies' Home Journal.

Memories of Dwight L. Moody.

It was the wish of the late Mr. Moody that his biography should be written by his son.

Mr. W. R. Moody, who has in his possession all of his father's papers, and is preparing a very complete life of the great preacher, has consented to write especially for The Saturday Evening Post, a series of anecdotal papers on his father's life and work, profusely illustrated with hitherto unpublished photographs.

The first of these papers, entitled "Moody as Boy and Business Man," will appear in the April 7 number of The Saturday Evening Post.

A Vitrified Clay Church.

A new church at Chicago is built exclusively of vitrified clay, even the window frames are of the same material. The decorative features are white terra cotta. The altars, communion rail, pulpit and front of organ loft are all terra cotta. The entire ceiling is of brick and tile vaulting, the keystones being of terra cotta, and the ribs of the arches and groins of molded brick. There is not an inch of timber or a nail in the entire structure. Its acoustic properties are said to be remarkable.

—Exchange.

AN epidemic of typhoid fever has recently been traced to the use of celery grown on some sewage fertilized ground. As it occurred in an institution it was very easy to trace the cause. Owing to the peculiar nature of the stems it is very easy for them to become saturated with fertilizing material.—Exchange.

MARRIED.

NORWOOD-PACKWOOD.—At Susanville, Lassen county, California, March 2d, 1900, Mr. J. W. Norwood, of Red Bluff, and Sr. Luvinia Packwood, of Bieber, California, Superior Judge Kelley officiating.

He was born in Crossfall, Herefordshire, England, March 4, 1824, being 75 years, 10 months, and 22 days old at the time of his death. He came to this country when but twenty-one years of age. He joined the Baptist church while young, and preached for that denomination a number of years; but when he heard the restored gospel he gladly accepted it, and was baptized February 14, 1866, at Malad, Idaho, by Thomas Thomas, and was ordained an elder the same day by Elder Thomas. He bore a faithful testimony and died firm in the faith. His wife, ten children, twenty-three grandchildren and two great-grandchildren, besides a host of friends, mourn his departure. Services at the house by Bro. John Hawley.

BEEBY.—Near Excelsior, Wisconsin, February 25, 1900, of consumption, Sr. Mary Melissa Beegy. She was born in Richmond, Richland county, Wisconsin, December 5, 1873, and was married to Hiram C. Beegy March 9, 1890. Her husband, three children, mother, brother and five sisters, besides other relatives and friends, mourn her departing. She was kind and innocent in her demeanor and died in full hope of the first resurrection. Funeral services in Christian chapel, Knaps Creek, sermon by Leonard Houghton, a large audience in attendance.

GOREHAM.—At Jamaica, Iowa, December 16, 1899, Elder William Morton Goreham, aged 57 years, 7 months and 23 days. He was born in Pottsdam, New York, April 23, 1842. About a year before his death he became assistant editor of the Jamaica Journal, and shortly before his death established the Bagley Record, Bagley, Iowa. June 19, 1862, he was married to Miss Rhoda L. Wade, who, with three sons and one daughter, mourn his departure. He served in Co. F. Twelfth Iowa Infantry in the civil war, and was a member of Logan (Iowa) Post G. A. U. Funeral at the United Brethren church, December 18, Elder J. S. Roth preaching the sermon; the church was packed with an attentive and sympathizing audience, and every business house in town was closed during the service. He stood very high in the estimation of his fellow citizens as a Saint and business man, and they loved to hear him preach and talk on the gospel theme. Interment in the Richland cemetery.

Coated

Look at your tongue. Is it coated? Then you have a bad taste in your mouth every morning. Your appetite is poor, and food distresses you. You have frequent headaches and are often dizzy. Your stomach is weak and your bowels are always constipated. There's an old and reliable cure:

Don't take a cathartic dose and then stop. Better take a laxative dose each night, just enough to cause one good free movement the day following.

You feel better the very next day. Your appetite returns, your dyspepsia is cured, your headaches pass away, your tongue clears up, your liver acts well, and your bowels no longer give you trouble.

Price, 25 cents. All druggists. "I have taken Ayer's Pills for 35 years and I consider them the best made. One pill does me more good than half a box of any other kind I have ever tried." Mrs. N. E. TALBOT, March 29, 1899. Arrington, Kans.

DIVINE GUIDANCE NEEDED.

The works of the Creator are a source of never ending revelation. The more deeply the human mind, guided by the Holy Spirit, searches into the mysteries presented for investigation, the greater are the marvels unfolded to the understanding. Without the aid of the Holy Spirit, the mind of man could not grasp many of the grand and beautiful things open to the investigation of they who honor their Creator by obedience to His laws. The apostle says of the Holy Spirit, "For the Spirit searcheth all things, yea, the deep things of God." (1 Cor. 2:10). This Spirit being the source of all light spiritually, is able to make plain that which, without its aid, would be impenetrable mysteries to the finite comprehension, and being present in the creation, is abundantly qualified to impart knowledge to those favored with such assistance. How great is the privilege given to mortals to search and find out the truths in the creation; the mind is filled with wonder, at the revelations manifested, and is led to adore the matchless wisdom that could create and foster them.

For instance, the possibilities that even a small portion of earth may unfold, claims the wonder and adoration of the mind. It will produce, alike from the same soil, under precisely similar conditions and combination of the elements of life, an oak, walnut, chesnut, and various other kinds of trees; it will produce different kinds of vegetables; it will bring into life flowers of varied hues and beauty of form and fragrance, and at the same time, amidst them all, it will develop that which is most unwelcome, the noxious weeds, some of them a menace to life itself, in other organisms. All these differing manifestations of life are the direct result of the planting of the seed peculiar to each, as the Creator ordained. What are the causes that lead to the development of these various plants from the same kind of soil, combined with the same elements, is a mystery in chemistry which no scientist, however learned, has yet fathomed, but some day it will be revealed, and when it is comprehended, will inspire the mind with praise for the wisdom that combined the results so perfectly manifested in the creation.

The human heart may be compared in some respects to the soil. As the infant comes into the world it is pure, knowing nothing of good or evil; it is in a condition to receive any kind of a training; it is possible to develop it into one of the noblest works of the creation, God-like in its character and a power for good in the earth, or it is likewise possible to make of it a veritable devil, a curse to its kind, and a blot in creation; as the good or evil seed may be sown, development will follow, either for fruits of righteousness or of unrighteousness. In either case an immortal soul is concerned, whose final condition will be according as it has wrought good or evil in the world. If it has loved righteousness more than transgression, joy, beyond the power of mortal tongue to tell, or of the finite mind to comprehend, will be realized. If, on the other hand, it has loved iniquity and folly, shame and condemnation, according to the measure of evil wrought, will be the reward.

How few there are, compared with the vast multitudes of enlightened among the nations, who realize the responsibility which follows the advent of an innocent child into the home. The sensations which greet its coming are too often of a selfish character, and though the parents may plan for its welfare in this world, too frequently the most important part of its education—that of preparing the soul for eternal happiness—is neglected altogether, or imperfectly given. It is an immutable law that "as ye sow so shall ye reap," and however successful, from a worldly standpoint, may be the life of the child after it has reached maturity, if it has failed to learn the lesson of its duty to God and man from the standpoint of God's revealed law, that life has been truly a failure, and the individual is poor indeed.

Obedience is better than sacrifice.

ENCOURAGEMENT.

Occasionally we meet with individuals who think it unwise to make any demonstration of appreciation of a good work done in gospel lines on account of its tendency to make the recipient think more highly of himself than he should. But often after the good man has passed away they are lavish in their encomiums, even to the verge of extravagance, and too late to do the subject of their tardy justice any good. This is a mistake; encouragement, besides being grateful to the recipient, is a right due him; a word of commendation frequently given when deserved, is often a source of strength, assisting the recipient to be courageous in the discharge of his duties, and to meet incidents of a discouraging nature with fortitude, having the consciousness that he is sustained by his brethren in doing right.

What would be your condition, dear brother or sister, if there was not given you evidences frequently to cheer and comfort you—give you strength in hours of weakness and temptation? The Lord is kind and merciful to us in this regard, and shall we withhold that which would be helpful to a worthy sister or sister for fear evil may result? There need not, nor should not be any "hero worship" about it; a quiet word of kindly appreciation is enough to show your interest except it be a public demonstration and testimonial, where a little complimentary speech is admissible if it is sincere; that should be the basis of all commendation bestowed. Anything else would be mere flattery, and that is hypocrisy, condemnable alike to God and man. In this as in other things the word of God is the proper guide. The apostle says:

Be kindly affectioned one to another with brotherly love; in honour preferring one another.—Rom. 12: 10.

"LINE UP."

Before the next issue of the ENSIGN is put upon the press, the General Conference will have convened at Lamoni, Iowa. We believe that everywhere the prayers of God's people are going up to the throne of grace for the divine blessing upon those who have been appointed to participate in the business to be transacted. This is right, and consistent with the interest which all feel in the progress of this "marvelous work and a wonder." It is very probable that important measures will be presented, upon which the guidance of the Holy Spirit will be needed, that the best interests of the work may be conserved, God glorified, and souls saved. What these measures may be, we are not able to say; but as the events transpiring continually, indicate that the end of this world is approaching very rapidly, it is natural, that, knowing the divine character of the great latter day work, and the promises made regarding the redemption of the Saints, the Lord of the harvest will give such direction, or guidance in the measures introduced, as will cause His purposes to be carried to a speedy culmination.

It is true that much, very much, depends upon the Saints; righteousness is the only basis upon which our heavenly Father can move for Zion's weal, and when this fact is realized and the Israel of God set themselves with firmness and diligence to the task of self-control; a crucifying of every selfish principle in their character; exemplifying the love of Christ in all their actions, no power can avail to hinder the progress of this work, as our heavenly Father desires it shall.

Let all, therefore, put themselves under the crucial test, and see how near each can approximate to the condition required, in which every hindrance to progress may be removed, and God loved and obeyed supremely.

Enoch and his city did this; they walked in harmony with the Lord to such an extent that they were all translated, and the world said, "Zion's fled," and what was possible in one age, by reason of a complete consecration of self to the service of the Lord and His children, is equally possible now, if the same conditions are observed. O, then, Saints, let every one seek to do the most important work first demanding service, that is, to consecrate every principle to a loving, devoted service to God, and He will work marvelously for the salvation of His people, abundantly rewarding every sacrifice and sanctifying the environments and trials endured, to the ultimate salvation and glory of the faithful.

God rules, and Zion's redemption is assured, when the Saints work in harmony and unison with the revelations of His will. Brother, sister, will you do it?

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

BRO. W. H. FARMER, Colony, Oklahoma Territory, says he has not heard a Latter Day Saint elder preach for three long years. If any of the elders pass that way he would be glad to have them call. They will be welcomed.

SR. (MRS.) BELL ROUNDS, Bellevue, Wisconsin, says she is the only member of her family in the church and earnestly prays that God will hasten the time when others will be willing to obey the true gospel of Christ. She has been healed many times by the power of God, even when physicians failed to afford her relief, and she is grateful for the blessings enjoyed under gospel influences.

WE are receiving orders for Bro. A. Haws' little book, "Sabbatarian Theories a Delusion," a review of the arguments of the Seventh Day advocates. It is a useful little work, and we have heard only words of commendation for it. We can fill all orders, 15 cents each.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

SR. ELIZABETH HORTON, Canyon Ferry, Montana:

It is very lonesome here without any of the Saints. I met Bro. Twombly here a few months ago and he is the first I have met since June, 1876. My boy was killed by a runaway team, January 26th. Bro. Twombly preached the funeral sermon and several sermons afterwards. I wish the Saints would pray for us.

SR. NANCY AGER, New Whatcom, Washington, would be pleased to see or learn of any Saints residing in that region. She writes:

I do get so hungry for the true word, but my faith has never wavered since Bro. Goodwin led my darkened mind into the true light. God bless him and all of our elders, who are laboring so hard to save souls.

ELDER JAMES MCKERNAN, Montrose, Iowa:

Bro. J. R. Evans began meetings here February 26th, and had good interest. I came to his assistance March 1st, and we have continued since. I went to Burlington Saturday and conducted two preaching and one sacrament meeting Sunday, and returned here Monday. Bro. Evans then went to Ft. Madison to look after work, and I am here preaching to good audiences, although the ice or sleet has made walking difficult. Three have been baptized of late by Bro. Tripp, with prospects of others to follow.

BRO. A. F. HENDERSON, Pipestone, Minnesota:

No saints here but my wife and myself. We have lived here eighteen years; have done lots of talking about the gospel and loaned the church papers and books, but all seems dark yet, but there are two who will unite with the church when there is an opportunity. There has been a great deal of preaching done here but it is hard to get any one to come out to hear the gospel. I tried to get my business in shape so I could go to conference but can not. I hope and pray that there will be the best conference that ever was held by the church.

SR. EUNICE BEAM, Lindsey, Pennsylvania:

The work opened up here by Bro. R. Etzenbaker is slowly coming along; there is no one here but husband and I, but there are some good, honest souls awaiting to hear some preaching. One family moved away; I was sorry. May the Father lead them to the right place. The opposing power is so strong here that it takes much work to convince any one of the truth. The Brighamites are also working here but with poor success. The Lord willing, we would like an elder to come this spring. May the Lord bless his Saints everywhere, and may the day soon come when the careless and indifferent shall wake up to duty, and work for souls in the army of the Lord.

GENERAL CHURCH NEWS. INDEPENDENCE.

Our editor, with a number of others, left Tuesday morning for Lamoni, Iowa, to attend Conference.

At our city election, last Tuesday, Bro. Wm. Crick was elected councilman from the fourth ward.

The infant son of Bro. Reuben and Sr. K. M. Atkins was blessed Sunday afternoon, Brn. G. H. Hilliard and R. May officiating.

Brn. C. R. Duncan, Colorado, R. M. Maloney, Oklahoma, T. W. Williams, W. Mills, California, and Sr. Schmutz, her daughter, Sr. Lewis, and husband, of Denver, are late arrivals en route to General Conference.

A brother, by name of Nels August Nelson, who gave his home as Sycamore, Illinois, and stated he was on his way to Phoenix, Arizona, for his health, visited the ENSIGN office Friday and Saturday of last week. He showed a baptismal certificate which stated that he had been baptized into the Reorganized church at Kewanee, Illinois, October 17, 1897, by Elder John J. Watkins, who issued the certificate, and was confirmed by Elders Frank Izatt and Thomas Whitehouse. Some assistance was given him.

Sunday was a fine day and attendance at the services at the church was good to see. At 11 o'clock Bro. M. H. Bond, of Providence, Rhode Island, preached a forceful sermon, making some fine points. He had good attention and interest throughout. At night Bro. T. W. Williams, of Los Angeles, California, preached one of the most eloquent and telling sermons on the necessity for concentration of interests, the practical exemplification of the gospel spirit of loving one another, it has been our fortune to hear. The interest from beginning to end was intense, and he spoke for nearly an hour and a half. The afternoon sacramental service was very good, and the entire service of the day was uplifting, strengthening and profitable—a time of rejoicing truly.

The regular business meeting of the branch was held Monday evening, Presiding Priest J. W. Layton in the chair, District President R. May assisting. Reports were read from Brn. Layton, L. Brackenbury and B. C. Smith. Treasurer's report for March showed receipts $39.13; expenditures $25.00; balance on hand $14.13. A motion was made petitioning the General Conference to appoint a competent high priest to labor in the Independence branch, believing that increased good would be realized if some one could devote his entire time to its interests; after a pretty free discussion of the question the motion being put to vote was declared lost; 18 for and 29 being against the motion. By a unanimous vote an invitation was extended to the General Conference to hold its next session in Independence.

LAMONI, IOWA.

The ministry are not idle whilst waiting for Convention and Conference to begin. Elder Cooper and Apostle Evans have been proclaiming the gospel restored, at the Evergreen church; Elders Cochran at Greenville; D. W. Wight, Spring Valley; C. Scott and F. A. Smith, Pawnee and Lone Rock, Missouri; F. B. Blain, Davis City, Iowa.

Sunday, 1st inst, the sermons at the Saints' church a. m. and night were by Elders Sheehy and Pitt; at the Saints' Home by Apostle Lake and Elder Chaburn. Sacrament was administered at the chapel in the afternoon. A child was blessed during the service, Apostle Lake and Evans officiating.

A couple was married by Elder Stebbins last month, E. Dancer to Miss Griffin.

Sr. Ethel J. Smith, formerly of Independence, Missouri, was admitted at the Home, and she is a good helper there. Mrs. Scott, from Cainesville, Missouri, has been employed to cook and Sr. Zelta Braybrooks to assist in the dining room. Bro. Dorsey, an inmate, continues quite ill and some others are quite infirm from old age and other causes.

The attendance at the brick church is increasing; crowds are coming now daily to attend Conventions and Conference which convene this week.

The afternoon social yesterday at the Saints' chapel was noted for living testimonies and prophetic utterances.

Bishop Kelley went to Virginia.

On Friday night 30th ult. the Religio had a lively, interesting prayer and testimony meeting the theme being, "Liberty."

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS.

Branch headquarters, 716 W. Van Buren St. Sunday meetings 2:45 and 7:45 p. m.; Lang Mission, 3411 Cottage Grove Ave., 10:45 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.; West Pullman branch, 12024 Union Ave., 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.; Parkside Mission, 7124 Stony Island Ave., 8:30 and 7:30 p. m.; 508 W. 37th St. (colored mission), 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.

Elder John S. Kier, who has labored in this and neighboring states for a number of years, passed away last Tuesday and was buried at Braidwood, Thursday, the funeral services being in charge of Elder Wm. Strange. Bro. Kier had been in the latter day work for many years, and was nearly 71 years of age at his death.

Through the energy of Elder E. J. Lang, the Lang mission is now the possessor of a neat baptismal font. Bro. Wainwright assisted in its building. One sister donated $5.00 out of her hard earned wages and with help from others the material necessary will soon be paid for. Bro. Clare Sherman, our artist, has promised to decorate the canopy over the font with a beautiful scene, so we use them all in this work, whether they be carpenter, artist, paper hanger or any other trade. There is a chance for all to work in this great cause.

The following were advertised to speak last night: Elder Wm. Strange at Lang mission; Francis Earl at Parkside; J. W. Burgett of Hoboken, New Jersey, at branch headquarters; P. Pement at colored mission; and Elder Gregory of Canada at West Pullman.

The union service at Lang mission in charge of Bro. F. M. Pitt, assisted by Brn. Good and Pement, was well attended. A short letter was read from our beloved missionary, J. M. Terry, and wife. It is already beginning to seem a long time since we saw them, and we soon hope to have them returned to us. Among visitors at union service we noticed Bro. J. L. Goodrich from the east and Bro. F. T. Haynes of Aurora. Some outsiders were present, and several stated that they were anxiously looking for truth.

Some four or five expect to leave Tuesday night for General Conference.

FIRST KANSAS CITY BRANCH.

Chapel, 2321 Wabash avenue. Take 15th street line to Prospect Ave., transfer to Prospect, get off at 24th, and walk one block west or to the right hand. Time of meetings: Sunday School at 9:30, preaching at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m., social service at 12:30 p. m. Prayers meeting, Wednesday evening at 7:30; Religio, Friday evening at 8. Strangers are cordially invited.

Although Sunday was a fine day the attendance at Sunday School was not very large, but unusual interest was manifested in all the classes. Among the occasional attendants we noticed Bro. and Sr. Will Bozarth and Jos. Thruatchley and Sr. Ruth Burch.

Bro. Walter Smith was the speaker at 11 a. m., taking Mark 10:42 as a text, and he preached a practical sermon to the Saints. Elders W. A. Pickering and B. J. Scott presided at the sacrament meeting. The word of prophecy was given to the branch, but more especially to Bro. D. F. Winn, our presiding elder. Elder Joseph Emmett, president of the Second Kansas City branch, related his experience during his conversion and expressed his unwavering faith in the great latter day work. The evening sermon was by Elder Henry Sparling and was an excellent discourse. Bro. and Sr. A. A. Messick, now of the East Bottoms, Kansas City, were in attendance. There are now five families of Saints in that locality. Could not a mission be established there? Among the occasional worshippers with us we noted Brn. Joseph Mather, John Jackson and Dr. Gowell.

The infant child of Bro. and Sr. Shoemaker is very low with pneumonia. The other sick of the branch are improving. Elder Arthur Allen and family have moved to Holden, Missouri.

April 2.

ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI.

Our quarterly conference has passed; Saturday evening, the 24th, the business session convened at 7 o'clock. Representatives were present from Oak Hill, Cheltenham, and some from Belleville. The preaching service Sunday morning had Bro. Bond as spokesman. We have heard that the sermon was excellent, pleasing many. The afternoon social meeting was in charge of Brn. Bond and R. Etzenhouser. The time was used to the edification of many, quite a number availing themselves of the privileges offered to the Saints. At night Bro. Etzenhouser was the speaker, and discoursed to a very large congregation on the "Hill Cumorah." Thus ended another conference session of the St. Louis district.

Tuesday evening of last week a number of the friends of Bro. and Sr. C. J. Remington called upon them at a somewhat belated hour, surprising them. The occasion was the sixth anniversary of their wedding day. From baskets well filled with the dainties that appeal to the palate, the guests were refreshed, and departed, after an evening of merriment, wishing the couple many happy returns.

A Bro. Nelson, journeying from Peoria, Illinois, to Arizona, has sojourned with the Saints for several days.

Brn. Bond and Etzenhouser left this morning for Independence.

The choir were entertained at the home of Bro. Hitchcock Tuesday evening of last week, by Bro. E. C. Bell, choir leader, celebrating the first year of its organization. A very pleasant time was reported.

Sr. Mamie Volz, who has been very ill, is recovering.

On Thursday evening of last week the Religio gave way to the choir and were entertained for an hour and a half by some excellent selections, consisting of solos, duets and recitations. All present were highly pleased with the progress that our choir has made in the past year and departed for their homes wishing them success in the year to come.

March 26.

DENVER, COLORADO.

Church, corner of 22d and Arapahoe Sts. Services Sunday—Sunday School at 9:45 a. m.; preaching at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.; sacrament service the first Sunday in each month at 6 p. m. Prayer meeting Wednesday evening. Zion's Religio-Literary Society Friday evening.

The weather is all that could be expected for March, in fact the month just passed has been an exception to the rule, but little wind and no storms worth mentioning.

The meetings at Lakewood are fairly well attended, and seem to be interesting to those not of our faith; we shall keep them up as long as the interest will justify.

Bro. Frank Schmutz was taken suddenly ill last Monday on the street and was sent home in the ambulance; it was supposed the cause was from sewer gas as he had been engaged shortly before in cleaning the drain from the sink to the sewer at his place of business, but it is thought by some that his sickness is from some other cause. He is affected very strangely, having lost the power of speech, and seems to be in a dazed condition of mind most of the time; at this writing he is some better, but is not able to talk.

Elder C. R. Duncan left for Conference Thursday, others on Friday, and some on Sunday. Bro. J. W. Gilbert was to start Monday morning.

The troubles of life, it is said, never come singly. Bro. Edwards' children are having a siege of measles. Affliction has followed that family almost continually since October 1st; we hope the end may be near.

We expect to have the gospel tent ready for use immediately after conference, and we invite all the missionaries passing to their fields in the west, to give us a helping hand.

The Sunday services were as follows, Sunday School presided over by Sr. Fishburn, quite an interesting session; preaching at 11 a. m. by E. F. Shupe, subject "Where Shall I Spend Eternity;" sacrament at 6 p. m.; preaching at 7:45 by Elder K. Seli, on "The Earth and Its Changes." The attendance was not as large at any of the services as we would wish, but think good was received by those present. S.

April 2.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA.

Services at Golden West Hall, 320 Post street, every Sunday. Sunday School 10 a. m., preaching 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.; prayer meeting first Sunday of each month at 12:15 noon. Elder C. A. Parkin presiding elder, residence 3010 16th street.

Sunday, March 11th, we had the regular attendance at Sunday School, where good attention was given to the lessons and good instruction given to old and young. Preaching at 11 by Teacher Balshan. At 2 p. m. Chas. A. Parkin was the speaker at Oakland, and in this city in the evening. The writer addressed the Oakland Saints at 8 p. m. Sunday, the 18th, Chas. A. Parkin preached here at 11 a. m. and at Oakland at 8 p. m. Your correspondent was the speaker here at 7:30 p. m.

There was small attendance at the Wednesday evening prayer meeting, but it was an enjoyable time to those present, this marvelous latter day work being the chief theme.

Ladies Prayer Union met as usual Thursday afternoon, and the Religio Friday evening. All is going well here.

GEO. S. LINCOLN.

March 25.

PROVIDENCE, RHODE ISLAND.

The local Prayer Union met with Sr. Toombs on Oxford St., last Thursday afternoon. They had one of the best of meetings.

Last Sunday evening Elder R. Bullard, of Boston, preached in the Providence L. D. S. chapel. His remarks were of an encouraging nature to the Saints. He read portions of a very highly interesting letter from Elder Joseph Luff at the close of the meeting.

Zion's Religio gave a cold meat supper at the home of Sr. Perry on Francis St., last Thursday evening. A highly interesting feature of the evening was the dulcimer music by Bro. John P. Brown, accompanied by his son, Fred, at the piano.

UNCLE BURNSIDE.

March 31.

We still have some copies of the duet, "Evanelia Lost," words by Bro. J. Cole Moxon, music by Prof. Leib, price 25 cents, postage paid; better order copies for yourself and friends. It is a souvenir of the little gospel boat and contains a good view of it in the San Francisco harbor.

LETTER DEPARTMENT.

ALZEDO, Illinois, March 23.

Editor Ensign:—The unforeseen mutations of time have wrought their wonders with us and we are here after having laid to rest in the beautiful Millersburg cemetery our only child, our darling son, in whom our hopes were centered and who was the sunlight of our home, and especially so as we joyed in the thought that he would soon be engaged soul, body and heart in building up the kingdom of righteousness. Though the blow was great and the disappointment severe, yet our love for the work is not lessened but increased, and our determination is to enter more zealously in the delightful work of calling sinners to repentance and building up and encouraging the dear Saints of God, whom we can never repay for the abundant love and sympathy bestowed upon us in our bereavement.

Not wishing to be idle we entered into a series of meetings at Millersburg, occupying the pulpit in the wrong end of the little church, where Bro. Gomer Griffiths preached about his first sermon in the days when it took three of us to occupy the hour. We held eight very pleasant services with good attendance, in one of which Rev. N. W. Thornton of the Presbyterian church, an old school-mate whom we had not met for a quarter of a century, assisted us in the stand. Bidding adieu to Millersburg, our birthplace, and where rests all that remains earthly of our darling children, we went to Joy on Sunday morning, accompanied by my brother, J. L. Terry, and wife, where we held two services quite acceptably, attending their Sabbath School and social service, both of which were good. Bro. J. L. Terry is in charge at Millersburg, and Bro. E. T. Bryant at Joy, assisted by Bro. W. P. Terry. We find a general good desire among the Saints, but we are living in the hastening time when "eternal vigilance" is the watchword and constant work the price of final victory.

We are here in Alzedo for a few days, then on toward Lamoni, to which point so many are looking with the earnest inquiry, "What will be the history of April, 1900, as pertaining to the work?"

We often turn with anxious thought to our dear work in Chicago, but are comforted in the word that all moves well there in our absence. We look forth in bright hope to the redemption of Zion and the time when death will be banished and joy will attend the redeemed from day to day.

With bright hope, still loving the blessed work, I am,
Yours ever,
J. M. TERRY.

KIRK, Colo., March 3.

Editor Ensign:—The work in these parts looks encouraging at present. The Lord has heard and answered our prayers, and given the Saints here spiritual manifestations in the way of healing, prophecy and discerning of spirits, and we have the Spirit with us in worship. We have Sunday School at 1:30 p. m., after which, on the first Sunday in each month, we have sacrament then prayer and testimony meeting, also the third Sunday in the month we have prayer and testimony meeting, but the second and fourth Sundays we have preaching. The branch is presided over by the writer, who was ordained a priest the 3d of December last. The branch here has twenty-two members enrolled on branch book, twelve of whom are absent at this writing, including two officers, teacher and elder, who was presiding officer until he left here last fall.

So many leaving the branch left it pretty weak, but a prophecy of a sister visiting the branch, Sr. Ness from St. Francis, gave new life, courage and zeal to most of the branch. The prophecy was: "If the Saints here would live faithful to God, there will be others added to their numbers."

The greatest cause of grief I have is the frailties of my human nature and the unbelief of the people who have heard the fullness of the tidings of great joy. How true are the words of the old prophet, who said, "Lord, who hath believed our report," and it seems as though I can understand the feelings of Christ somewhat as he wept over Jerusalem, when he said, How oft would I have gathered you, etc., and ye would not.

They will take our word for anything else; for money, for anything save, "The Lord is the same yesterday, today and forever," and "The gospel is again committed to men" with gifts and signs "following the believer."

Some would think perhaps that persecution and the usual titles that one receives from the world would cause sorrow, but to me it does not; this is (persecution on improper names) but a scheme that Satan uses to keep those out who would enter the kingdom of God on earth, but to those who have received the testimony that this work is of God, can do as Christ bade his disciples, "Rejoice and be exceeding glad, for so persecuted they the prophets," and, rejoice and "Speak for joy," for great is your reward in heaven.

Your brother,

R. EDWIN CRAWFORD.

BEAVER, Mo., March 26.

Editor Ensign:—Oftentimes the question has been propounded, how far from (Independence) the center would be included in the term "regions round about?" To this query we find the answer given in Saints' Herald for March 14th, page 162; that approximately it would include an area round the center of at least one day's travel, by the best method at the disposal of the people, or from five hundred to seven hundred and fifty miles, hence am glad that I have settled within that radius, and that the many Saints scattered among the valleys and towering mountains of the great Ozarks, of South Missouri, are so near by and close enough to be comfortable; I have plenty of room and splendid opportunities for many more good and law abiding Latter Day Saints who are not able to secure homes where land is in a high state of cultivation, as well as being high in price. It is true that I, as well as most all other Latter Day Saints, would love to locate in or about the center, yet it must be apparent to all, that but very few have means to buy land there; and that all the Saints, rich as well as poor, can by no means be located in or about the center; hence, for the good of the work, and that each one may provide homes for themselves within the regions round about, my advice to those who have homes and have them paid for, within said regions, is to remain where they are until they positively know they can better their conditions, both temporally and spiritually, and not be led away by a lot of slick-tongued real estate schemes to ruin and disappointment.

By this I do not wish to infer that all real estate dealers are void of true principle, but a word in time is enough to the wise, and it stands the Saints in hand to be very careful, as well as very prayerful, and save what little means they may have accumulated in the years gone by. As for myself, I shall try to profit by past experience and to take all matters of a doubtful nature to the Lord in prayer, and if all the Saints would apply this rule and live faithful lives, all would be well. If you contemplate moving into South Missouri, let the way be prepared before you; many information is wanted in regards to homes, etc., I shall gladly furnish same upon receipt of a two-cent stamp, and give you the facts as I see them; but in no case would it be wise to pull up stakes and move here, until you have first been here to make an investigation for yourself. So far, I am well pleased with my new home, and soon we hope to build a church, and three, four or more families of Saints would find a welcome among us.

I have just returned from our quarterly conference; it was one of peace and the Saints returned home well prepared for the trip. Our next place of conference will be five miles east of Ava, in a new opening, and in the Saints' new church (now under way of construction), July 7th and 8th, and the Sunday School convention will be held on the 6th, and close with an entertainment at night. Let all the Saints and children of the district begin at once and come prepared to take an active part in the conference, conventions and evening's entertainment, of which further notice will be given in due time. May the Lord bless every effort put forth for good in the district in the interest of this grand and glorious latter day work, is the prayer of your humble servant.

Editor Ensign:—The ENSIGN is a welcome guest and comforter to our home. It does me so much good to read the letters telling how the Lord is blessing the children of men today; it puts a greater desire in my heart to serve Him. How thankful I am to live in this dispensation when the gospel in its fullness is again preached among men and that I was privileged to hear and obey in my early life. Truly we have much for which to be thankful in these trying times when Satan is trying so hard to tempt God's people. We know if we only have faith in the blessed Father he will not suffer us to be tempted above what we are able to bear.

God has commanded us to let our light shine before men. Now, we sisters know what makes our lamps burn bright and clear; first we see that the wick is clean and new and also the chimneys must be clean and bright, and the most important thing is good, pure oil; now I think if we keep body pure and our hearts free from evil, God will be willing to bestow the pure oil—his blessed Spirit—which will cause our light to shine unto the perfect day. This is my desire that I may so be found living that I may not be counted among the foolish virgins; remembering:

It's not to the first in the battle,
Not to the swift in the race,
But to the good and the faithful
Victory is promised through grace.

TEMPLE, Ohio, March 31.

Editor Ensign:—This morn as the snowflakes fall, decorating the earth with a beautiful white carpet, I will pen you my farewell before leaving this part for General Conference. Conference year closes bringing us one year nearer our final destiny, whether it shall be the condition we desire to occupy or not. It is certain it will be in keeping with work done in this preparatory state. In reading the history of the development of the work in this part during the years from 1830 to 1838, with the prediction of Daniel, one would be forced to the conclusion that the land of Kirtland had not filled its destiny as one of the stakes. And this thought is confirmed when one views the temple with its steeple towering heavenward standing as a relic of the energy of our predecessors, and fatherly care of the Infinite One.

Eighteen years ago last February the temple was declared by decision of court to be the property of the Reorganized church. Since that time many eyes have been turned this way, watching the developing and growth of this mecca of Zion. Many have tried their fortune here and went away disgusted; only a few of the many found an abiding place. A restless spirit seemed to possess those who have attempted to locate; why should such a spirit prevail, in consideration of what is before us indicating that the Lord has not changed his mind concerning Kirtland? I believe Saints partake too much of the spirit of the world, and not enough of that earnestness after spiritual things that designates a child of God.

The almighty dollar and self figures larger into many eyes, who profess to be Saints, than this latter day work which is said to be of greater worth than all else to man. By our works we are known, not by what we say; talk is cheap but it takes work to weave that wedding garment with which we must be clothed ere we can be entertained at the marriage feast when the Lord comes.

Tuesday, the 27th, was announced as Arbor-day for Kirtland; everybody was invited to this rally, the object being to decorate the temple lot with trees. But alas! but few came; too busy, too busy; the Lord's heritage is of small consequence to many who are called by that beautiful name—Saint. Jesus well illustrated man's fidelity to God in the parable, one had bought an ox, another got married, or wanted to, hence but few are ready to do duty as long as an almighty dollar is in sight. Such have my sympathy.

Though we love to tell how much we love this work I have learned by experience that a goodly number are a kind of willing fellows—willing to let a few do it all or let it go undone if it cannot be done when they have nothing else to do. The trees were set, ninety-six in number, as per advice of the bishop, somewhat haphazard, mostly sugar maple. I believe we should make our habitations pleasant to look at, inviting to strangers; also the house of the Lord.

I leave today for Cleveland; will spend the Lord's day with the church there, leaving Monday, 7:35 p. m., for Lamoni, in company of eight or ten from different parts of the district. A beautiful, springlike morn though the ground is white with a light fall of snow.

In bond,

A. H. PARSONS.

SPOKANE, Wash., Feb. 1.

Dear Ensign:—I find a great deal of comfort in looking forth to your coming each week. Oh if we could only have an elder here, but when we do have one, they do not stay long enough. I find there is such a few of us and if we could all work together we could accomplish more. It makes me feel so sad that there are some who are so careless about the cause of Christ. I feel sometimes that I am so weak and cannot do much, but with God's help I will try and do more.

Every Sunday afternoon we have prayer and testimony meeting; only four or five of us meet, but "where two or three are gathered together in my name, there will I be in the midst." Also Bro. Hooker holds meetings in his neighborhood at Mr. B's (an outsider) every Sunday at 7:30 p. m. Dear Saints, let us never weary to well doing, let us be brave soldiers walking in Christ's footsteps. May God bless his people.

I have just been reading dear Sr. Jennie Page's letter. I have learned to love her by reading her letters. I do pray that her health may improve and may God bless her, is my prayer.

Your sister in the faith,

DOWNES, Oklahoma, Feb. 21.

Editor Ensign:—In reading your columns we are always benefited, also through its columns there are a great many who are reached, both in and out of the church.

Bro. and Sr. Pate, Bro. and Sr. Reaser and writer were in attendance at the Oklahoma district conference, which met with the Saints of the Oak Grove branch. We made some sacrifice and encountered some bad weather in order to get there, but were benefited by attending. The conference passed off with best of feeling and some lasting good accomplished outside the Saints.

The conference appointed and empowered a committee to canvass the district and if conditions are favorable to provide for a co-operative boarding tent at our reunion this summer, and we set to work this early in the season so that we can talk of the advantages and the disadvantages to be derived from it: so far as we have canvassed the matter, the advantages to be derived outweigh the objections that have been urged against it. As far as I can see there is but one cause for failure, and that lies in the Saints of the district not taking an active interest and lending it their aid and support. The scheme was a success in California last season. Why cannot it be made a success in Oklahoma?

In figuring a good bill of fare, it is possible for one to eat three meals per day at a cost of not to exceed 25 cents a day. Now, do not just say it cannot be done, but take a pencil and paper and do a little figuring for yourself and find all the fault you can, also all the good points. One point that must not be overlooked is the rest that the sisters can have from cooking, and in their attendance at all the services cannot be estimated. Now, every Saint in Oklahoma should consider that they are as much or more interested in this than the committee, and if the committee get slack urge them to activity; make it your personal interest. We want to get in communication with the scattered Saints of Oklahoma, and if possible, induce them to attend the reunion, also the district conferences, which are not as well attended as they should be. By attending these gatherings we can be built up and come to a better understanding of the truth by being where we can receive the counsel of the elders. The committee is: W. S. Macrae, R. M. Maloney, S. S. Smith, W. W. Budworth, George M. Hiles. Any one of the above named would be glad to hear from any one in or out of Oklahoma.

Yours for the advancement of the truth,
Geo. M. HILES.

Editor Ensign:—I will write a few lines and see if I can't get one of our elders interested in coming here to preach this grand and glorious gospel that is so much food for the soul. We wait with anxious hearts for the silent preacher which comes every Saturday to our home, and brings us good news from distant parts of God's vineyard. I surely believe there are enough of the honest hearted here if they were only gathered out of Babylon and redeemed. We could have Sabbath School and prayer meeting. Oh God, speed the day when I can have the privilege of attending our own Sabbath School, I need not say meeting for we don't have meetings at Baldwin.

We have a Union Sabbath School and use David C. Cook's literature; they voted me a teacher of Bible class, and I thought they would vote me out when the three months were up, for I have taught all the light God has given me, and prayed for more every Sunday, but they did not. Dear brothers and sisters, pray for me that I may teach nothing only what pertains to the true gospel. We have loaned our papers, they seemed well received. Two ladies were visiting me the other day, from Baldwin; I asked them if they thought our people could get a place to preach in. They said they knew they could and would get a good hearing. I have also asked our neighbors and they have said the same. My husband says he thinks this is the best place for an opening of any place we have ever lived; it seems as if this should belong to the Northern Indiana district: Fort Wayne and Findley R. runs through Baldwin, a half mile from our place; our house is open to any of the ministry. My prayer is that God will put it in some of your hearts to come.

Ever praying for the redemption of Zion, I am your sister in the one faith.

Editor Ensign:—We are still existing as a branch and believe we are improving steadily.

Bro. E. M. Wildermuth, of Plano, has occupied once a day each Sabbath all winter, but will be with us for the last time this coming Sunday. We will miss him very much.

Bro. and Sr. F. G. Pitt are in our city today. Bro. Pitt told us some of his English experiences last evening, and we enjoyed them as much as did he.

A quiet little wedding took place at the home of M. Howard on last Tuesday evening. The contracting parties were Mr. David A. Waterbury, of Yorkville, Illinois, and Miss Pearl Howard, of this city. Bro. E. M. Wildermuth, of Plano, Illinois, tied the knot.

THE MYSTERY OF DEATH.

Funeral Sermon of John M. Terry, Jr., Delivered by Elder F. G. Pitt, at Chicago, Illinois, March 15, 1900.

[REPORTED BY SIB. MARBLE SANDERSON.]

We have met here this afternoon to pay our last tribute of respect to one who has been known among us as Bro. John Moroni Terry, who was born August 19, 1874; baptized in March, 1885, and fell asleep in Christ, the 13th of March, 1900.

As a foundation for what few remarks may be made this afternoon I call attention to the 13th verse of the 14th chapter of Revelation:

I heard a voice from heaven saying unto me, Write, Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth: Yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors; and their works do follow them.

Our life in this world from the cradle to the grave is fraught with trouble, anxiety and pain, finally resulting in death. To that extent does this prevail, that this life is sometimes called "a vale of tears;" but of all the bereavements and sorrows of this life, it seems to your speaker that none exceed the sorrow that comes to us through the death of our loved ones; and were it not for the hope of meeting them again, I know of no way that the bereaved ones could be comforted. It sometimes seems strange that man should be created as he is, with such strong attachments, only to have them severed in death, and our heart strings broken because of the separation that must come to us. At no time in life does the question come home to us with such force as when we are in the presence of death. The question uttered many years ago, "If a man die shall he live again?"—and I presume that those present this afternoon who are suffering the loss of their dear one, can think of nothing so important as an answer to this question. If I believed that when they take a last look at this, their loved one, it would be forever, I would not attempt to offer one single word of consolation to them; but I would say to them, weep on, and the conclusion would be inevitable, that some grand mistake had been made; that the Almighty is not the loving Father and the great Creator that we have supposed him to be.

Today we come as those who have a hope in a life beyond, and perhaps we can offer some few reasons as to why we have this hope. In the world there are some who doubt the idea of a future existence; not because God has failed to provide a means by which we may know something about the beyond, but because man usually wants things in his own way; the information or the knowledge concerning the life to come has been given to man in God's way and like everything else that we would have the benefit of, we must seek it where it is to be found. Some people have said to us, "One reason why we do not believe in a future, is because no one has been there and returned, and told us about it." Another one says, "If there is a future, why is it God has not made things more plain?" I asked a gentleman who spoke this way, "Can you tell me what would convince you of a future life?" "Yes," he said, "if I could see some one who had been there and had returned, and would tell us something about the life, I would believe." I said to him, "Suppose I could bring you two people that would testify under oath that they had been there, and other people would testify that they had apparently died?" He said, "It would of course depend upon what kind of characters they were." "Of course," I replied, "but suppose I could bring you two good, substantial witnesses?" "Well," he finally said, "I don't know. You see people sometimes have dreams and visions; sometimes they go into a trance, and I would not really know whether they were dead or not." "Exactly," I said, "Now, the very thing you ask for, is not satisfactory to you, and there is no way by which we can come to an understanding of this question but in God's way."

In the things of this life we have to adapt ourselves to circumstances; knowledge of different things comes to us in different ways. For example, if I wished to have a knowledge of the length of this room, I could measure it with a two foot rule or a tape line; but I would not use a tape line if I wished to know how far the sun was from the earth; some other means would have to be applied. If I wished to know the weight of a pail of water, I could weigh it in the scales, but if I wished to know the weight of this earth some other means would have to be applied. So it is with the things of the future. In this earth and in this life we understand natural things by natural means, and the spiritual things can only be understood by spiritual means. We cannot measure the spiritual by the natural any more than we can hold electricity in the same vessel we would hold a bucket of coal. Therefore, when we come to look into God's word, we learn that by the spirit of man we are able to understand the things of man, but only by the Spirit of God can we understand the things of God; and we find also another statement to be true, that man by wisdom knoweth not God, that is, by his own wisdom. Therefore, when we seek after God, and the hereafter, and the evidences attaching to these things, we must seek for them in some other way than by the natural, and that is one reason why so many fail to find God. They are trying to seek him by the wrong method.

Men like Huxley, Darwin and other philosophers of great minds, admit that by natural means they cannot so much as demonstrate the existence of a God; and, therefore, we turn to God's word, and are informed that Christ Jesus "hath brought life and immortality to light through the gospel" (2 Tim. 1: 10). If this is the means by which these things are brought to light, it is only reasonable that we should seek these things where they are to be found; and it is just as inconsistent to seek for life and immortality outside of the gospel, as it is to seek for coal and gold where they do not exist. In the gospel is given us the system of life—the means of obtaining it, and also explains to us the reason why we are situated as we are. If life were simply an existence for a few years, and then men ceased to exist, it would be out of harmony with common sense. Our own reason tells us that that which is, must continue to be. There is no such thing as annihilation; our bodies which exist now, have always existed in some form, and our spirits or the material with which our spirits were made, as well as the material with which our bodies are formed, must have existed in some form, and must continue to exist; and if our spirits are intelligences, as we believe they are, then intelligence will not cease, but there must be a continuation of that which is, though its form may change. Again, if man was created for a few years only, then the question arises, why is he subjected to trials, difficulties and sorrow? Why is it he has such wonderful powers of development only to be lost as soon as this life is over? It often occurs that about the time that a man is really prepared to live to accomplish something, he dies. Why is this? It is as we believe, this life is but a schooling to prepare us for the great life beyond, then we can understand why these things are; and so, in the gospel we learn something about these things, that God never intended that death should be the final end of man, but in order to carry out man's agency, he was permitted to partake of that which produced death; but before the physical death passed upon him, he was permitted to partake of that which would restore him back to life again, and so we have the statement "that as in Adam all die, so in Christ shall all be made alive, but every man in his own order."

This afternoon, then, we do not come to mourn with our brother and sister as those who have no hope, but we come to sympathize with them in their bereavement, because we know that one whom we had learned to love has gone on before; gone on to the great beyond, where the promise is, he shall rest from his labors, and his works do follow him. The gospel provides for a new life. Jesus declared, "Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God," and he tells us how this birth may be effected. He also tells his disciples that he came that they might have life, and have it more abundantly, showing different degrees of life; and when this, our brother, was baptized, as we are told that he was in March, 1885, he was born of water and of the Spirit, just the way God had intended every man shall be born, who shall partake of this eternal life; and that life having thus been begotten, continues on indefinitely, because the Master says, "He that believed in me shall never die, and though he were dead yet shall he live again." And so we can say, as did Jesus upon one occasion, "He is not dead, but sleepeth." We do not mean by this that the spirit and the body have not separated, but we mean that he has entered into a condition known as life. Life and death are only conditions; people make a mistake when they think that life only means a mere existence, and death a non-existence; as we have already stated, there is no such thing as non-existence, and so far as life is concerned, many things exist that do not live, and to be alive means to have a certain condition of existence. Our brother was living, and is living, because he hath entered into this condition brought about by obeying the gospel; he has been born of God; he has been permitted to partake of the life eternal, which life began here, and will continue on and on through all the countless ages to come. So we understand what is meant, then, by our text, "A voice from heaven, saying, Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord." What is it to die in the Lord? As many of you as have been baptized into Jesus Christ, have put on Christ. Now, just as many as are here, or in the universe, who have been baptized into Christ, have put on Christ; and if you die in him, you are blessed. You do not usually weep for people who are blessed; you do not usually mourn for those who are in happiness, and, therefore, we do not mourn today because of what has happened to our brother; we mourn rather because of what has happened unto us. We are sorrowing because one has been taken away, but oh, if we could see his condition this day, I apprehend not one of you would shed a tear because he is not with you, but you would be glad to think that he had entered into that condition where we all hope to enter in when our end shall come.

To die in the Lord, then, is to be blessed from henceforth, and why? they rest from their labor; that is one reason. We are laboring here, and the Lord says to those who are weary and heavy laden, "Come unto me, and I will give you rest." When we come to him we enter into that rest—not rest like we have here, which is only partial rest, but a perfect rest, and a perfect peace, where there is nothing to mar or molest, or make afraid. I was not personally acquainted with our brother, but I apprehend in his short life he had met with disappointments, and trials, and difficulties, and I know his sickness was a severe one; yet through all this, I am told, he bore it patiently, looking forward to the beyond, where he was willing to enter, and he told those around him he was not afraid to die, because he had received the assurance of a life to come; and then, too, we are told that their works do follow them. Now, this is only just, because the works of our brother do not end when his body is laid to rest; our works do not end when we die; the works of both good and bad continue long after their bodies are laid to rest, and therefore it would not be just to either punish us for our evil deeds as soon as we die, or reward us for our good deeds until the culmination of these things, and the end is reached, then it will be discovered how much we have done; therefore the works of our brother, however limited they may have been in his short life, will continue on and on, until they have wrought their full accomplishment, and then will come his rewards according as he has wrought. The brother has wisely sought the means of grace by which the mistakes that he may have made are forgiven him. He entered into the means provided by the Lord in which his sins were cancelled, and therefore is free from suffering or punishment. Suffering is the result of sin intended to produce repentance and reformation. When this is accomplished through the gospel, there is no purpose in suffering after that. The great purpose of suffering is to teach us all that sin does not pay. Our brother learned that lesson through the gospel of Christ, hence has sought refuge where refuge is to be found, and he may expect reward where rewards are to be found, for his good deeds on earth and for the good that will still result, for his works do follow him.

The question, "If a man die, shall he live again?" does not simply mean, Does the spirit live again? but, Does this mortal body live again? and in the Scripture we have the strongest assurance that it will. Christ is said to be our Savior, and when he came to save his people from their sins, he came also to save them from the effects of sin. Death is the result of sin, and the wages of sin is death; when, therefore, one is saved from sin, they are saved from the effects of sin; Jesus demonstrated this; his saving power was not only by what he taught, but by what he wrought. He himself taught the plan of salvation, and to demonstrate its power, he entered into it himself; by it He was able to save his own body, and resurrect it on the third day. He himself declared, "No man taketh it from me, I lay it down of myself. I have power to lay it down and I have power to take it again; this commandment I have received of my Father." (John 10: 18). Witnesses testified that he did this, unwilling witnesses too; those who believed that all had perished when man died, were finally forced to confess that Jesus had risen from the grave and afterward was seen of his disciples. When he appeared to John on the Isle of Patmos he exclaimed, "I am he that liveth and was dead, and behold I am alive forevermore, and have the keys of hell and of death." Now, keys mean something. If I have the keys to this house it indicates I have the right to come into this house and take possession of it. Christ wrought until he was able to take possession of the keys of death and hell; to take possession of these places and liberate the captives, and so the gospel plainly teaches, as one of its fundamental principles, the resurrection from the dead.

Isaiah declares, "Thy dead men shall live," and then, lest some one might think that he had reference to the spirit, he says, "Together with my dead body shall they arise." It means that not only the spirit shall live, but the body and the spirit shall be re-united again. Paul says, this mortal must put on immortality. We are sown a natural body and raised a spiritual body. There is a natural body and there is a spiritual body. Some have tried to make this appear that the spiritual body was only a spirit, but a moment's thought will convince you that this is not correct; Christ rose a spiritual body, and yet it was not a spirit, otherwise he would not have said to his disciples, "Handle me, see it is I, put your fingers in the nail prints, thrust your hand into my side, be not doubting, but believe;" and when upon one occasion he appeared and they thought they had seen a spirit he said to them, "A spirit hath not flesh and bone as ye see me have," therefore from this we are justified in the conclusion that although our bodies will be spiritual, they will be flesh and bone: for our vile body is to be changed and fashioned like unto his glorious body (Phil. 3:21). Why are they then called spiritual bodies? Because the natural life has terminated, and in place of the natural life, is given the spiritual, and spirit will then course through the veins that had formerly contained the natural life; we will then become spiritual bodies and will be permitted to enter into glory, not only to rest, but to live with God and Christ throughout the endless ages of eternity.

It is true, however, that all do not rise in the same condition; Paul says every man in his own order, and I apprehend that there are different conditions in the world to come as there are here. People differ here in education, in intellect, in morality, and they will differ there; but we very largely make our station and place there, as we make it here. The promise is that those who will obey the celestial law will then enjoy celestial glory, but those who do not obey that law cannot endure that glory. It is not because our brother has been baptized merely, that he is entitled to this reward of the celestial glory, but because he has entered into this condition and continued faithful. Those who obey a lesser law must be content with a lesser glory; those who do not obey the celestial law cannot abide that glory, but must remain outside of these happy conditions. So the gospel comes to us as a reasonable solution of this matter and as we, step by step, become informed of the principles of the gospel, and in proportion as we yield obedience to these principles, there comes to us a knowledge through the gift of God's Holy Spirit, that enables us to comprehend more than the natural; so that we can comprehend the spiritual as well. These arms are too short and these hands are too coarse, unassisted, to feel the spiritual; these eyes are too dull to see the spiritual; this brain is too coarse and too obtuse of itself to discern the spiritual. We are told that the spirit of man is the candle of the Lord. A candle is of no purpose until it is lighted, but when it is lit, then it gives light, and we are able to see; and so the spirit of man, when lit up by the inspiration of the Almighty, can see, thus we are able to understand the meaning of the text told by one, "There is a spirit in man, but the inspiration of the Almighty giveth him understanding." It is by the Spirit that we are able to understand spiritual things. By this spirit we are able to understand God, and we are able to comprehend the things of God, and by comprehending them, we come to a knowledge of them; and when God wishes to demonstrate these things to us he can do so, because our minds are spiritually inclined and able to understand God; and should we see an angel, we would not say, as did one to me, I am not responsible for not believing; God could very easily demonstrate to me if he would show me an angel or something of that kind. I asked, "Did you ever see evidences of this kind, brother?" His reply was, "There are no angels now, and if I saw one, it would only be my imagination, because there are no angels." You see how impossible it would be for God himself to demonstrate the problem of the future life to such minds; but when our minds become educated to what really exists, then the things of the future may be unfolded to us, and then in vision, as did John, we may behold these messengers from the courts of glory sent to minister unto those who are heirs of salvation; but if we are only carnal or sensual, if we are only natural, we cannot understand these things: no matter how much others would seek to inform us, we cannot receive the light, hence fail to see. Therefore, let us remember that God has provided that life and immortality are brought to light in the gospel.

Our brother has chosen the right course and today has entered, we believe, in the courts of heaven, there to rest in the paradise of God until such time as God shall call for the dead to rise; and the time will come when the dead, small and great, shall stand before God, when the books shall be opened and every one shall answer for the deeds done in the body. Before this, however, a thousand years previous to the great Judgment, the dead in Christ shall rise, and they will reign with Christ a thousand years upon the earth. We can hope, then, that this our brother, having obeyed the principles of the gospel and being willing to serve Christ through evil as well as good report and to bear the reproach of Christ, that he will be one among those who will stand among the redeemed ones when He comes, and shall share in the blessed announcement, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant." As stated before, the brother's life is known better to you who have been with him, than myself; but from what I have heard, I can only offer to those who are left behind the consolation that he has gone into a better condition. Some may ask the question, "Why does God permit a child to be born into the world and grow up until he is just about to enter into a field of usefulness, and then cut short his opportunity?" I asked that question many years ago when a little child was given to me. One who seemed to be especially given that I might love, one whose little arms used to twine around my neck and who assured me over and over again that she loved me. Just before she went, she said, "Good-by, papa." "Are you going, Jessie," I said. "You come too, papa," and that is almost the last intelligent word she said to me, and I asked the question, what good did that do any one; I was striving to the best of my ability to serve God, and was that little one given to me just to tear my heart strings asunder? There are things in this world that we do not understand. I confess that I do not understand some of these things, but I have confidence in God that he doeth all things well.

There was one consoling thought that came to me this afternoon, I think it is in Isaiah where he speaks of some of these conditions which we do not understand, Isaiah 57: 1 I think it is. "The righteous perisheth, and no man layeth it to heart; and merciful men are taken away, none considering that the righteous is taken away from the evil to come." Now, that may have been the case with my little one; that may be the case with this one before us. We are living in days of evil; we are living in troublous times; in what the prophets have called perilous times, and we do not know to what extent our brother may have been able to exercise power to stem the tide of evil that may have been before him; it may be that the Lord saw that his present condition was the very best time in which he could take him home to himself. This is one way of accounting for the present bereavement, and there are many reasons that one could offer, but we shall not attempt to do so, but only suggest the thought the brother uttered in his prayer, "God is too good to err; too wise to make a mistake," and I believe that when the end shall be reached we will see that God has done all things well. God has provided just as great a means for the entrance into that other world as he has for our entrance into this world, in the death of his saints as in their life. We can then trust all these things to Him, and our faith will be made manifest, not by complaining, nor by raising our puny hand against what God has done, but calmly saying as did our Master, "Not my will but thy will be done."

It is one kind of faith that will trust God when we have everything we want; but it is a far greater faith to believe in Him when we do not get what we want. The kind of faith that was exercised by the Psalmist or perhaps it was Job when he said, "Though he slay me, yet will I trust him." And so we should trust him under all conditions; one has a trial in one way, and another in another, and usually we are tried where we are the weakest and for the purpose that we may become strong by resisting evil and accepting good. May God bless his children and keep them steadfast, enabling them to exercise a perfect trust in Him, believing that He doeth all things well. Upon such an occasion I do not feel like saying anything that will make the hearts of those who are sorely tried, feel worse; but it seems to be our duty to hold out to them the hope and comforts of a future life, believing that the time will come when they will thank God as fervently for the tears they have shed and for their sorrows and for their bereavements, as they shall for their happier seasons. I believe it with all my heart, and therefore I urge them to take comfort in this thought; and to those that are still living, let us all prepare for that which is coming; a little while and we shall be placed wherewith brother is; other hands will lay us to rest. Oh may we have wrought in this life so that when that time comes, they shall say "he has simply gone on before." This we say to these bereaved ones today, he has gone on ahead of you, and now so strive, so walk, that you shall be permitted to embrace your son again when his arms will be around your necks, and your arms around his, and you shall kiss each other and be united, never more to part, because tears and sorrow and crying, pain and death will be banished, never more to return. May God bless you in my prayer in Jesus' name.

"I WILL SHOW WONDERS IN THE HEAVENS."

These words ring out from the prophetic lips of Joel to the corrupt and sinful inhabitants of this earth, like mellow notes from a bugle of gold; but, to the sinful, to the willfully ignorant, the warning means death; to the righteous, to those who are watching for Jesus, it means joy—life.

The entire verse reads: "I will show wonders in the heavens and in the earth, blood, and fire and pillars of smoke."—Joel 2: 30. A great many readers have attached very little importance to this passage of Scripture, supposing it was fulfilled in the apostles' day; but I beg leave to show wherein there has been a mistake made in this supposition, and the honest reader will readily observe that, as far as modern commentators have endeavored to enlighten the world in this direction, the half has never yet been told. Or, perhaps, they have been laboring under the delusion of the old Greek philosopher, that "the half is better than the whole." This is hardly true. Moses said, "The secret things belong unto the Lord our God; but those things which are revealed belong unto us and to our children forever." (Deut. 29: 29). And Paul remarked, "I have not shunned to declare unto you all the counsel of God." (Acts 20: 27).

In order to understand when Joel 2: 30 is to receive its fulfillment, one must carefully read the last twelve verses of that chapter. We find the prophet addressing a land, and he says, "Fear not, oh land, be glad and rejoice: for the Lord will do great things." To the beasts of that land, he remarks, "Be not afraid, ye beasts of the field, for the pastures of the wilderness do spring." And he immediately gives this comforting promise to the "children of Zion:" "The Lord * * * will cause to come down for you the rain, the former rain, and the latter rain." And all that has been destroyed by insects, and other spoilers, is to be restored; and when Joel was permitted to behold (by the Spirit's power) the mercy of God to his beloved Palestine, is it any wonder he broke forth in prophetic utterance, "Fear not, O land, be glad and rejoice?"

We read in McClintock and Strong's Encyclopedia, Article Palestine, that "Eighteen centuries of war, ruin, neglect, have passed over it. Its valleys have been cropped for ages without the least attempt at fertilization. Its terraced walls have been allowed to crumble, and its soil has washed down its ravines, leaving the hillside rocky and sterile. Its trees have been cut down and never replaced. Its fields have been desolate. Its structures pillaged and all its improvements ruthlessly destroyed. A land of ruin without man or beast. Everywhere on plain or mountain, in rocky desert or in beetling cliff, the spoiler's hand has rested."

This is a sad picture of the once fertile land of Palestine, whose glens and wadies were bordered with the beautiful cedar, and whose soil roughly caressed the aching feet of our Savior. Well might the prophets hang their harps on the willow, if the arms of devastation were forever to hold this country in its merciless embrace. But Joel bids the land rejoice, because God is to give back the former and latter (or fall and spring) rains, "and the floors will be full of wheat."

Once more we call on current history to enlighten us, and read these words of Rev. S. P. Kennedy, uttered at a meeting of prominent ministers, and recorded in the Chicago Tribune, of July 16, 1895: "Another sign [of the second advent of Christ] is the return of the Jews to Palestine. There are more of them there now than after the return from the Babylonian captivity. A short time ago the Mohammedans would not permit any of them there, and now it is probably the land will soon be entirely in their hands. A sign which is undeniably miraculous, too, is that Palestine is again becoming fruitful, after years of desolation, during which, scarcely anything would grow. It was under a curse, and the curse is being lifted."

It is only necessary to add that the former and later rains were restored to Palestine in 1852 or '53, and since that time the land has been yielding abundantly; equaling, if not surpassing, the production of any other land on our globe. As this fact is so well established by unimpeachable proof, it is unnecessary to use space for that purpose.

Now, then, notice that God says, "And it shall come to pass afterward that I will pour out my spirit upon all flesh * * * and I will show wonders in the heavens." (Joel 2:28, 30). Some one speaks up and says, "Peter said this was fulfilled in his day." But, my friend, the Bible does not contain such a statement. Let us read what Peter says: "But this [God's pouring his Spirit upon the apostles] is that which was spoken by the prophet Joel." (Acts 2:16). Joel prophesied that the Spirit was to be poured out upon all flesh, and this incident of Pentecost was a beginning of its fulfillment, but not a completion, because all flesh did not receive of the Spirit at that time; and this prophecy will not be fulfilled until the earth is restored to its Edenic peacefulness when the wolf and the lamb shall feed together, because Paul says, "all flesh is not the same flesh; but there is one kind of flesh of men, another flesh of beasts, another of fishes, and another of birds." (1 Cor. 15:39). If a few disciples receiving the Spirit is a complete fulfillment of Joel's prophecy, I do not feel surprised that the Jews will not accept the New Testament as a divine record. Further, it is very evident that on the day of Pentecost, no old men dreamed dreams, young men saw visions, or wonders were shown in heaven, signs in the earth beneath, blood, fire, vapors of smoke, etc., therefore, one is obliged to look for such things to occur later in the world's history. Joel has not left us in ignorance as to when these signs are to be given, for he says they shall be "in the last days * * * before that great and notable day of the Lord come." (Acts 2:17, 20).

A great many—perhaps a large majority—of Bible readers have advanced the thought that all such scripture as this under consideration, must be spiritualized (not taken literally) in order to understand its meaning. This act of changing the plain meaning of God's word is pernicious, and causes needless controversy.

It is true, the prophecies contain much symbolical language, many passages being understood only by one endowed with the spirit of prophecy, but it is by far the nobler and better way to frankly admit that we do not understand such and such a verse or chapter than to deliberately change its wording and meaning and place upon it some private, insignificant interpretation.

Do you consider it is proper for commentators to inform us that Christ did not mean real signs in the heavenly bodies, but that the terms He used represent "figurative representations of great civil and social commotions?" Whenever I read the interpretations of these modern spiritualizers, there is a passage in John 12:48 that runs through my mind; it is to the effect that God's word is to judge us in the last day. This is an important thought.

"Wonders in the heavens." There is nothing in the list of wonders that causes such terror in the hearts of men as one that occurs in nature—especially in the atmospheric sphere. Hard hearted wretches who laugh in the jaws of death and listen with delight to the awful rifled ordnance, turn pale and tremble at the sight of brilliant meteors or unusual appearances of the moon. Why is it that people will retire to their chambers after viewing some awful phenomenon—perhaps a "black cross" in the northern sky; a "large black band" suspended from the heavens; "plain, distinct figures" in the sun; or something similar—why is it, I ask, that they retire with that feeling of uneasiness, that terrible dread? Let the prophet answer: "I will show wonders in the heavens and in the earth * * * before the great and the terrible day of the Lord come."

Is it not a startling fact that these celestial wonders are being shown in our day? Through the medium of newspapers the world's attention is attracted.

The Boston Daily Globe of February, 1900, contains a quotation from the London Times, which reads: "Several correspondents write to describe a meteor which was seen between 2 and 3 o'clock, on Tuesday afternoon. H. H. P. Bouverie writes from Lewes: 'White shooting here today I saw a brilliant meteor, which started from near the moon, that was quite bright at the time; it traveled for a short distance toward the northeast and left a marvelously luminous path of white light.' . . . Rev. R. Hudson also writes from Brighton: 'The color was brilliant white, like an incandescent gas light. . . . The sky was cloudless and blue, and the sun was shining brightly.'"

This wonderful sight was witnessed in England, thousands of miles away, yet our means of dispatching news is so nearly perfect, an account was in the American papers a few days later.

Here is an extract from the Bangor Weekly Commercial, April 30, 1897: "A rare phenomenon was observed in Norway [Maine] on Monday. Two circles appeared around the recently risen sun, one within the other with two smaller circles tangent to the larger ones. A few days before that a double rainbow was observed around the sun at Greenwood [Maine], the inside one containing three bright sun-dogs, one on each side of the sun, the other above it."

In this great question you must be either with "scorners" who are saying, "Where is the promise of his coming?" (2 Peter 3:4), or you are with the faithful ones whom the Lord will find watching when He comes.

I will mention but a few more of the "wonders" that have been spread out in the meadows of heaven to warn and notify the children of men that the second advent of God's blessed Son is near at hand.

A black cross appeared in the northern sky in 1888. The moon, on February 18, 1889, had a straight bar across it and a curve on each side. There was wonderful display of the northern lights in 1887 and 1891. On February 26, 1888, there was a bar through the moon with several beams crossing it. In 1862 the sun had two small suns on each side of it. The figure 22 was observed upon the sun on November 22, 1879, just as plain as it could be written on a blackboard. On May 22, 1888, a hand hung over Findley, Ohio, with spots representing blood dripping off the end of the finger. The quarter moon of December 6, 1891, had a circle around it and three other moons visible at the same time, three below and one above. On December 31, 1888, the moon had two bars across it; and in 1890 it appeared several times with peculiar signs. And as the end becomes nearer, these signs are shown oftener; but how few there are of mankind who heed them.

We read in the Daily Telegraph, April 26, 1890, a paper published at Sydney, Australia: "A peculiar celestial phenomenon was observed here last night, at about 6 o'clock. When the moon was some 15 degrees above the horizon two semi-circular black bands appeared on the surface. They were each about an inch and a half wide. . . . As the moon rose the black bands became more pronounced, until toward 8 o'clock when they commenced to disappear by gradually falling away at the ends. The phenomenon was watched with interest by many persons.

Oh, why will men harden their hearts, and not listen to the merciful pleadings of God? His voice is in every terrible sign that the earth witnesses. The Stevenson, Alabama, Chronicle, of April 16, 1895, reports: "A terrible electric storm passed over Tarpon Springs, Florida, Monday noon, and there occurred a grand, and yet terrible, phenomenon. At that hour a blazing bolt, about as large as a man's head, descended from the clouds and struck a telephone wire near the center of the town. When the bolt struck a terrific explosion followed that shattered glass in the windows of houses two blocks away. Immediately following * * * came a perfect shower of balls of fire the size of walnuts. * * * The greatest terror prevailed during the rain of fire."

Dr. Duffield, a very eminent minister of the Presbyterian church, in an interesting work on the prophecies, published some few years ago, said: "Among other signs that 'the time of the end,' that is, the seasons during which the great periods of chronological prophecy run out, and the great things so long predicted will transpire, is described by very strong and marked signs, and particularly signs in the heavens. The sun shall be darkened, the moon shall not give her light, the stars shall fall from heaven, and the powers of the heavens shall be shaken, striking atmospheric and celestial phenomena shall be observed, which being beyond the reach of man's philosophy, may be regarded as the visible symbols which God hangs out in the heavens to predict the consummation coming.

"It is remarkable, especially for the last fifty or sixty years, the atmospheric and celestial phenomena have been more marked, frequent and varied, than in any previous age of the world. It is said not less than fifteen hundred stars have faded from the vault of heaven, and some of them were observed in a state of conflagration."

I trust these few thoughts have been written in a spirit of meekness, with no other purpose than to help some brother take a trembling step nearer that "great white throne where many mansions be." The first duty in life is to prepare to meet God, and whether it shall be in the clouds of heaven, or in Paradise, it mattereth not if we are ready. Remember this, "The Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven with his mighty angels, in flaming fire, taking vengeance on them that know not God, and that obey not the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ."—2 Thes. 1: 7, 8.

A Prehistoric Ditch Found.

Tucson, Ariz.—A few days ago in the southern part of New Mexico a discovery was made that goes to show that the earliest inhabitants of this section of the country were not much behind the present generation in the matter of irrigating land. Workmen digging in a lava bed discovered an irrigating ditch constructed of a stuff somewhat resembling concrete in hardness and durability. The ditch was about two feet deep and two feet wide. The men who discovered the ditch followed it several hundred feet and were surprised when they came to a well-made aqueduct that bridged over a part of the way that was considerably lower than the rest of the water course.—Chicago Inter Ocean (The K. C. Star, April 2.)

Philadelphia's Big Beer Output.

One and one-third barrels, 696 glasses of beer, for every man, woman and child in Philadelphia, for the year just passed, with an outlay on the part of each person of $32.80 during that time.

Brewers in making an application for a renewal of their licenses from year to year, are compelled by law to file in the quarter sessions court a sworn affidavit stating the exact output of the brewery for twelve months past.

The sworn statements were filed in the aforesaid court last week, and they show that the

FRANKLIN MILES, M. D., LL. B., THE EMINENT CHICAGO PHYSICIAN AND SCIENTIST, WILL SEND ANY SUFFERER TWO DOLLARS AND A HALF WORTH OF HIS WONDERFUL TREATMENT FOR HEART AND NERVOUS DISEASES.

Never before has such a generous offer been made. It will enable thousands suffering from lingering or chronic diseases of the brain, nerves, heart, liver, stomach, to test the curative qualities of Dr. Miles' new, special, personal treatment free of charge.

Few regular physicians in the world have such unlimited confidence in their skill, and the curative properties of their remedies as to permit every patient to thoroughly test them free of charge. Such liberality speaks louder than words.

Hundred of "Incurable Cases" cured. Mr. F. J. Held, of Grand Rapids, after having been given up by all the regular physicians, was cured of dropsy after five of Chicago's leading physicians said there was no hope for her. Truman DeWeese, editor Chicago Times-Herald, states: "Dr. Miles cured me of inherited headache and dizziness." Hon. C. M. Buck, banker, Fairbault, Minn., writes: "I had broken completely down. My head, heart, stomach and nerves had troubled me greatly for years. Feared I would never recover, but Dr. Miles' personal treatment cured me after six well-known physicians of Chicago and elsewhere had completely failed." Mrs. E. Countryman, of Pontiac, Illinois, says: "Several years ago when I sent to Dr. Miles for personal treatment, three physicians said I could not live two weeks. I could not walk six feet then; now I can do my work."

Dr. Miles has had twenty-four years' experience, and is well and favorably known throughout the country. He has an able and extensive corps of assistants and investigators in his laboratories. He has patients in every State, territory, Canada and Mexico. He cordially invites the afflicted to write to him.

You may never have another such an opportunity. Do not fail to write for examination blank and $2.50 worth of treatment free. Address Dr. Miles Medical Association, 201 to 209 State street.

total output of the local breweries, during the past year, was, in round numbers, two million barrels of beer.

Bringing this down to lesser quantities, every person in the city, either personally or by proxy, consumed forty-one gallons, 164 quarts, or 696 glasses, of beer for the year, and expended for the same $32.80. Following the same rules of reduction by multiplication, the entire output of two million barrels provided the city with 62 million gallons, 248 million quarts or 992 million glasses, and entailed a purchasing expenditure on the part of the people of $49,600,000.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Demand for Good Speakers

One reason that the present is a great time for the orator is the fact that more people can appreciate good English and eloquent sentences. Indeed, the supply is not keeping up with the demand.

Recently the present writer spent an evening with one of the most eloquent men in the United States. On his desk were letters by the dozen asking him to speak in six different states in the same week, the occasions being banquets and anniversaries, and there were telegrams from three of the principal cities of the country begging him to accept invitations to important functions.

In one case letters and telegrams had poured in upon him for a full week, and two delegations from the same organization had come several hundred miles to get him to be their orator.—The Saturday Evening Post.

THE MISSIONARY'S TRUST.

NOT ALONE.

BY ELDER T. C. KELLEY.

I am a stranger far away from home, No friend to greet me with a cheering tone, No friendly shelter from the raging storm,

Yet God is with me; I am not alone. The wind is blowing cold and bleak and drear, And through the swaying pines doth sadly moan, Yet something seems to whisper, "Never fear, Thy God is with thee; thou art not alone."

Lord, let me ever feel that thou art near, That on my path thy light hath kindly shone;

And when life's leaves are growing brown and sear; Let me still feel that I am not alone.

The dark'ning clouds obscure the shining sun, The shades of night are swiftly coming on, Lord, when my life its fitful course has run, May I then feel that I am not alone.

The withered leaves are falling from the trees, And lodge by bush or shrub—perchance a stone;

When from life's tree I fall like one of these, May I then feel that I am not alone.

When I through the dark vale of death shall go, Grant me, O Lord, thy staff to lean upon;

When death's cold waters o'er my soul shall flow, Let me then feel that I am not alone.

And when in heaven thy glory I behold;

And meet with loved ones 'round thy great white throne; And with them find I'm safe within thy fold; Then will I know I shall not be alone.

Oxford (depot building), Maine, November 28 1899.

[None—On the above date the missionary had walked a number of miles, carrying a heavy satchel, arriving at the station in the afternoon, very tired, somewhat hungry, finding no fire in the waiting room, and there was not a soul whom, to his knowledge, he had ever seen before. Dark, and yet the clouds shut out the sun as he sank toward the west, while the cold autumn winds whistled through the pine trees in such a sad, plaintive way as to make one's heart yearn for the companionship of loved ones and the enjoyments of home. And yet there was the Spirit of peace and trust with the missionary that softened the unpleasantness of his surroundings, and he sat down in a cold, cheerless room in the depot and, while waiting for the train, the foregoing verses were written.—T. The Combination Oil Cure for Cancer

Has the endorsement of the highest medical authority in the world. It would seem strange if persons afflicted with cancers and tumors, after knowing the facts, would resort to the dreaded knife and burning plaster, which have heretofore been attended with such fatal results. The fact that in the last six years over one hundred doctors have put themselves under this mild treatment, shows their confidence in the new method of treating those horrible diseases. Persons afflicted will do well to send for free book giving particulars and prices of Oil. Address Dr. Bye, Drawer N, Kansas City, Missouri.

Our "Historical Engraving" at fifty cents, is a very desirable picture to have in your home. It shows the martyrs, three witnesses, presidency, twelve, presidents of seventy, high council, and a number of other interesting features. A study of this picture by those having but a slight acquaintance with the Saints, will remove prejudice, and assist in rendering a presentation of the everlasting gospel effectively. Can you afford to be without it? A key accompanies each picture.

CANCER.

A BLOOD DISEASE AND CURABLE.

Editor of Zion's Ensign.—Twenty or twenty-five years ago, old Dr. Gillam, the distinguished specialist of Atlanta, demonstrated that Cancer, in any form, was due to a malignant, deadly poison in the Blood, and by using B. B. B. (Botanic Blood Balm) this poison was gradually drained from the system, then the sores healed, and a real permanent cure was made. Up to the present time B. B. B. has cured hundreds of cases where the knife, doctors and patent medicines failed to cure. Here is one case. Mrs. E. Story, of Fredonia, Oklahoma, writes under date of October 15, 1898:

"Lately an eating Cancer broke out in my head and ears, and ate all the small bones out of my mouth, and I could scarcely eat and talk. I could eat a little strained soup, that was all. I tried nine doctors, but none could cure me, my case was pronounced hopeless, so I tried B. B. B., and was cured. The disease made me most deaf. B. B. B. helped my hearing. Respectfully, "Mrs. E. Story."

We will send any reader of Zion's Ensign a sample bottle of B. B. B. free of charge, and prepaid, so they may test the medicine and know for themselves that B. B. B. is the remedy for cancer, eating sores, ulcers, persistent eruptions, and all malignant blood troubles. It is remarkable how quickly it heals every sore, improves the digestion, and gives a clear, healthy appearance to the skin. B. B. B. is for sale in large bottles by druggists at $1.00 or six bottles (full treatment) $5.00. Complete instructions go with each bottle. For trial bottle and other information enclose five cents which pays exact cost of postage (medicine is free) and address Blood Balm Co., 86 Mitchell St., Atlanta, Georgia. Describe your trouble, and personal medical advice will be given.

Says The Sun Prolongs Life.

New York, March 30.—There has been founded in America an organized band of sun worshippers, whose numbers are rapidly swelling. At the head of the organization as chief priest or, as he is known to the believers, "Mauthra Magis," is a grave and revered individual named Dr. Otoman Zaradushthanish. This modern disciple of a creed that is supposed to have died with the Aztecs of this continent and to belong to the age of mysticism and paganism, is considerably over the half century as to age, but in appearance is a young man, which peculiarity he attributes to the mode of living advocated by the sun worshippers, which includes rules for breathing, walking, dressing and thinking. He makes the remarkable statement that a sun worshiper can just as easily prolong his life to the age of 500 as to the three score years and ten that are usually allotted to man, and points to his own youthful appearance while nearing the three score mark as proof of his claim. The high priest of the sun worshippers claims that America is destined to be the savior nation of the world, that from this country is to go forth a band of men and women who will spread the new doctrine of the sun's great powers to the four corners of the earth, resulting in the increased longevity of the people, the banishment of decrepitude, sickness, unhappiness, poverty and crime. He declares that the sun's rays can be made to enter the human soul, driving out the darkness and shadows that cause dissatisfaction with life, that the man or the woman who worships the sun according to the teachings of the sect of which he is the head will live in an atmosphere of everlasting sunshine of soul and, in a word, will remain forever in the enjoyment of peace and prosperity.

Dr. Zaradushthanish was approached by the correspondent, with a request that he explain in detail the belief that he is endeavoring to introduce into this country. He gave a description of the origin and meaning of sun worship which, divested of the peculiar expressions that are meaningless to most people, and in which his conversation abounds, was as follows:

"I am a member of the ancient El Kharman temple, Persia, whose circular rooms contain the principal records of sun worship 50,000 years old, its latest wing having been built about 4,000 years ago; the identical place where Jehoshua Nazir (Jesus the Christ) spent thirty months studying the art of healing, before entering upon his career as a savior of the people. My mission is to make known to mankind the beauties and grandeur of Sun Worship. I predict the close of the cycle of war with the year 1960 and the ushering in of the era of peace on that date.

"Sun Worship knows no founder. Its records reach as far back as 142,000 B. C. Prince Regata, with the aid of his 'magos,' collected the fundamental principles of Sun Worship into record form and claims in his works from the 'Land of Silence' that the founding of Sun Worship was simply shrouded in obscurity. There are at present 228,000 Sun Worshipers proper, with 25,000,000 followers in the Orient and about 1,000,000 in Europe, who are directly benefited by its teachings. The number of followers in America is not known authentically, although there are thousands who have been benefited within the past few years. It claims as followers some of the very best people socially, politically and otherwise. The peculiarity of Sun Worship is that it does not proselyte and its missionaries therefore are at liberty to unite with any movement that promises to help humanity. The worshiper of the sun looks upon light and darkness, life and death, sorrow and happiness, pain and pleasure, sinfulness and holiness, poverty and wealth as passing phenomena that are present or absent at the will of the individual. As the light of the sun can be shut out or allowed to flood a room at the will of the occupant of that room so can the soul of man be illuminated or darkened at the will of man. The sun, if his worshippers are in earnest, will dispel the darkness of mind or weakness of body. It is only necessary to look up, or, in plain language, to open the windows of the soul and allow the sun to shine in. Thenceforth the progress of the enlightened one is one of evolution from grade to grade, following the teachings of the priests of the sun until perfection is reached. When the soul is flooded with sunlight it is under the protection of the Deity and all things are at the command of the disciple, health and wealth, happiness and longevity, or any good thing desired.

"Sun Worship recognizes no authority or textbook. It takes for its reliable guide the spirit of truth. The philosophy knows of no distinctions and the bibles of all nations are received in the same sense as any object of presentation on the plane of manifestation. Sun Worship holds to be the simplest of all teachings, as it is the gospel of liberty unto all creatures, a religion not for a particular set of men, but for all people, irrespective of nationality, race, color or creed."—The Kansas City Star, April 2d.

The First Pony Express.

In the March 31 issue of the Saturday Evening Post, Homer Bassford gives a full account of a talk he had with Colonel Alexander Majors shortly before his death. Colonel Majors was a member of the firm that controlled the famous Pony Express. Colonel Majors said: "We had first sounded a lot of the important business men of both the coast and Eastern cities as to its desirability. We learned that the fixed charge of five dollars a letter of one ounce weight would be welcomed as surprisingly low—that is, if we were able to keep our promise as to the delivery of a letter in something like eight days.

"The expense, at the outset, was enormous. We bought, in round numbers, six hundred hardy, healthy ponies, sure of foot and well tried. We employed all the brisk, dare-devil young men of good habits whom we could find; we built post-houses every ten miles, unless it chanced that our stage posts would serve the purpose. The ponies were stationed at these post-houses, with bedding for extra riders, food arrangements, and a keeper in charge. We paid each of our riders from $100 to $125 a month, and nearly all the boys were in love with the work, hard though it was. It sometimes happened that illness actually prevented a man from taking up his trip as assigned to him, but there was never difficulty in getting the other rider to take up at least one extra leg of the long journey across the plains.

"I have been asked, sometimes, whether the express stopped on account of weather. This question used to make me smile, but it has been repeated so many times that I have concluded that our present-day folks, who know little of pioneer life, are to be excused. Why, I have seen a man jump from the back of one pony to the back of another, in zero weather, and start away like the wind, with never a thought of entering the post-house for a drink or a sniff of the fire."

Mormon Postmaster Out.

Washington, March 30.—It was announced at the postoffice department today that J. C. Graham had been removed as postmaster at Provo, Utah, on March 28, and a temporary successor in the person of Read Smoot, appointed in his place. Mr. Smoot was selected by the bondsmen of Graham and will retain office until some one is selected to take permanent charge. Graham was removed as a result of an investigation by the house postoffice committee on charges that he was a polygamist. The committee found that he was guilty as charged, but exonerated the president and all officials of the postoffice department of any knowledge that he was guilty of polygamy at the time of his appointment.—The St. Joseph Herald, March 21.

CONFERENCE MINUTES.

South Missouri district conference convened with the Bruner branch at Johns Mill, March 17, 1900, with district president in chair. GENERAL CONFERENCE.

Forty-seventh Annual Conference of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, In Session at Lamoni, Iowa.

The forty-seventh annual conference of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ was commenced promptly at 10 o'clock on the morning of April 6, 1900, at Lamoni, Iowa, by singing hymn 156 in the Hymnal. Prayer was offered by President A. H. Smith, in an humble fervent invocation of the Divine Spirit in the deliberation of the conference, and upon the president, that God would speak through His servant for the guidance of his people.

On motion, President Joseph Smith and his counselors were unanimously chosen to preside over the Conference. Bro. R. S. Salyards, church secretary, was chosen secretary with authority to choose his assistants.

The chair was authorized to appoint a committee of three on credentials. Bro. Hiram E. Moler, Arthur Allen and Frank Granger were so appointed. Bro. F. G. Pitt was chosen chorister with power to choose his assistant and appoint organists. Bro. D. F. Lambert being agent of the associated press was appointed press committee with power to appoint assistants.

Sr. Belle Robinson James was, on motion, made stenographer of the Conference.

While the Credential committee were absent, short speeches were made. President Smith, being requested to lead, made some remarks stating that he entered upon the work of this Conference with diffidence. The two years past have been fraught with a great deal of importance to the work. There has been a good deal that is very encouraging. One of these testimonies is the fact that wherever the brethren have had to meet opposition in controversy they have been invariably successful. Personally he had wrought as he could. Is not prepared to say he had done all he could; the Judgment will have to show how successful his efforts have been. For him there is no stopping place this side of the Judgment. He must take the consequences of his work. Now, while he expressed some apprehension he feels hopeful, and expected to stay by the work to the end. We should be of one mind upon the things in which God hath spoken definitely but upon other things we depend upon wisdom given to each until the question may be decided definitely. The Saints are not to be held for any of his teachings except he teach according to the word of God.

President A. H. Smith was next called upon and made some pointed remarks upon each controlling their tempers; the individual who does not have a temper and sometimes show it, is not of much force, but the beautiful thought about it is, that the temper can and should be controlled. Referring to the teachings of the church, he congratulated the Saints that we have never had to go back upon its teachings.

Bro. W. H. Kelley, was next speaker; thought under the conditions in which we meet it is a good time to sing "Praise God from whom all blessings flow." We have passed through trials since last Conference and the doctrine that God will have a tried people is with us all along. The thought of a chosen people indicates reward for merit.

Bro. F. G. Pitt was the next speaker; spoke of his experiences in his late field, the English mission; that God had manifested by His Spirit His direction in the work there.

Bro. G. R. Wells related his experience in Australia.

Order of service was named by the president as follows: Prayer meeting 9 a. m.; preaching, 10:45 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.; business session, 2 p. m.

Adjournment was then taken to 2 p. m.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The opening prayer was by Elder Mark H. Forscutt, of Nebraska City, Nebraska. Credential committee reported. The Eustis, Nebraska, branch having reported separately, and elected a delegate, and the branch being reported in the Colorado district also, by motion, a committee was appointed to investigate and report where this branch should be represented. Brn. S. F. Cushman, J. W. Gilbert and D. E. Tucker were appointed this committee.

Turpen, missionary in charge, and R. S. Salyards, Church secretary. At the conclusion of the reading of these reports, Conference took adjournment until the evening session.

EVENING SESSION.

At 7:30 p. m. the church was crowded and Apostle W. H. Kelley presented some thoughts suggested by a reading of the testimony of the witnesses to the Book of Mormon, which he read as a basis. It was a good effort. He was assisted by President Joseph Smith.

SATURDAY, APRIL 7th.

The morning prayer service was in charge of Elders F. G. Pitt and J. D. White. A good spiritual meeting was enjoyed. At 10:45 Elder Holt of the Washington and Oregon mission, preached upon the subject of the "Gathering." The discourse was full of good points and received much favorable comment. He was assisted by Elder Arthur Allen, of Holden, Missouri.

AFTERNOON SESSION—2 P. M.

The opening Hymn was No. 14 in the Hymnal. Prayer by E. A. Blakeslee of the Bishopric. Committee on matter of Eustis, Nebraska branch, whether such branch is entitled to representation as a branch or with the district, reported, considered that the branch is a member of the Colorado district, but recommended that Bro. S. D. Payne be given representation with the district delegates, which was adopted.

The reading of reports was then resumed, and that of the Patriarch, A. H. Smith, was first presented. This was followed by reports of H. C. Smith of the Twelve, reporting from Lake mission; Joseph Luff, Eastern mission; G. T. Griffiths, Pacific Slope; I. N. White, Missouri, Kansas and Southern Illinois; R. C. Evans, Canada; mission; Gomer R. Wells, of the Seventy, Australia mission; and Elder Wm. Newton, English mission.

H. A. Stebbins, church recorder, reported. Among the items given were, 2522 new names recorded, 441 deaths, 223 expelled. Net gain 1866 members. Total enrolled membership 43,824; 31 new branches.

Report of joint committee on duties of deacons, was read. It is not a report of the Church, but of the committee.

On motion the adoption of the report was deferred until a later session of this Conference.

Action of the quorum of the Twelve relative to resignation of Elder James W. Gillen, alleging a fear of collapse, etc, was taken up. Resignation dated Kansas City, November 13, 1899, was read.

The Twelve reported that, considerable mystery surrounding disappearance of Bro. J. W. Gillen, and other circumstances confronting them, it was decided to accept his resignation. Report was on motion adopted, which carried with it the acceptance, by the body, of Bro. Gillen's resignation.

Board of Publication reported that as Zion's Religio-Literary Society had asked for control of Autumn Leaves, the Board recommended that such transfer be made. Report was signed by E. L. Kelley president and F. B. Blair secretary. The adoption of the recommendation of the board was moved. Amendment to limit such control for one year was offered. This was followed by this substitute.

Resolved that Board of Publication continue the publication of the Autumn Leaves and that the executive committees of the Sunday School and Religio be consulted in the choice of editor. After discussion, further action was deferred until Monday afternoon.

On petition from Northern Michigan and Southern Michigan and Northern Indiana districts for locating of boundary lines was adopted and Bro. R. J. Parker, Francis Ebeling and E. A. Stedman were appointed committee.

Petition from Taylorville, Illinois, for a district location was read and on motion referred to committee of three, and was placed in the hands of same committee holding the Michigan petition.

Petition from Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, asking General Conference to more clearly define what action should be taken regarding those who absent themselves from branches for long periods and fail to keep their promise to report, was read.

Appeals of J. S. Potts, of the Massachusetts district and of Joseph E. Betts, et al, vs. the St. Louis district were read.

Petition of St. Joseph Missouri, branch to authorize presidency and bishopric to take action relative to arranging for debt of $5000 on the church at that place was also read.

On motion a committee was appointed to consider appeal of Chas. E. Potts, consisting of Geo. A. Smith, John W. Brackebury and Andrew Barr.

On motion matter of appeal from Belleville, Illinois, branch was referred to quorum of Twelve, a motion to refer to High Priests' quorum being negatived.

On motion Tuesday evening next was devoted to Daughters of Zion program.

Adjourned.

EVENING SESSION.

At 7:30 p. m. Elder R. C. Evans was speaker, taking as his theme, The Mission of Christ in the Resurrection of the Dead. The church was crowded, many standing. He was assisted by Elder John Smith of Massachusetts.

SUNDAY, APRIL 8.

The prayer service in charge of Brn. J. A. Robinson and J. H. Peters was much enjoyed, the Spirit being manifest in power, to the joy and comfort of the Saints. Some were given messages of cheer and encouragement. In the lower auditorium a lovely session of the Sunday School was held, in charge of the superintendent, G. W. Blair, over 600 being present. The primary department seemed to receive the largest share of attention, the visitors keeping the room of the smallest children crowded during the exercises.

At 11 o'clock the upper auditorium of the church was filled, including the galleries, President Joseph Smith, at the solicitation of the Conference, being the speaker. It was a fine, instructive effort, the Spirit giving liberty and light. The theme was "Charity." In the lower auditorium Elder J. J. Cornish also preached an inspiring discourse upon the subject "Try the Spirits." There was not a seat in the room unoccupied and many were standing, and some outside listening with wrapt attention.

At 2:30 p. m. the upper auditorium was filled, a prayer and testimony meeting being the service, which was in charge of Brn. J. M. Baker and John Hawley. It was a blessed experience. Bro. Adamson, of Wilburton, I. T., who was crushed so badly in the mines near there, and who was so miraculously healed when all earthly aid was powerless, was present and gave an account of the healing, which was helpful to all present. Two stanzas were sung by Bro. Taylor, of Kansas, and four stanzas by a young sister, which were given by the Spirit, and a message of promise by Bro. C. Dupuy, of Lee's Summit, Missouri, besides the many testimonies borne. In the lower room a similar experience was had at the same hour, and many blessings experienced, bringing joy and comfort to all present.

The evening services were fill by Bro. J. W. Wight in a powerful effort, in the main auditorium, to a crowded house; Bro. W. W. Blanchard, of Maine, in the lower room, and Bro. Henry Sparling, of Springfield, Missouri, at the college chapel.

The day was fine, though warm.

MONDAY, APRIL 9.

Monday morning it was considerably cooler and overcoats and wraps were comfortable.

The young people's prayer meeting was in charge of Elders J. M. Baker and Geo. W. Robley; the auditorium was about half filled and the meeting was fairly good.

At 9:30 the regular prayer meeting was in charge of Bro. W. A. McDowell, of Wisconsin, and Jacob Reese, of Pittsburg, Pennsylvania. A good season was enjoyed until time for the preaching service.

At 11 a. m. J. W. Gilbert, of Denver, Colorado, occupied from Matt. 4:4, "Man shall not live by bread alone," etc. He showed the necessity for providing for the physical nature, and then took up the spiritual side, talking on Tithing, Gathering, Charity, etc. The service was much enjoyed. He was assisted by Dr. John Gilbert, of New Bedford, Massachusetts.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Promptly at 2 o'clock President Joseph Smith let fall the gavel which called the assembly to order. The opening hymn was 181, prayer by E. L. Kelley, of the Presidency.

After the reading of the minutes, the report and recommendation of the Board of Publication for the transfer of Autumn Leaves to the control of Zion's Religio-Literary Society, was taken up. This report reads:

LAMONI, Iowa, April 4.

To the President and

Saints in Conference:

The Board of Publication having been petitioned by the young people's society known as Zion's Religio-Literary Society, to turn over for its use and management, the periodical published by the church, known as Autumn Leaves, after consideration of the matter, adopted the following:

WHEREAS, Said society has applied to the Board of Publication to transfer the periodical known as Autumn Leaves to said Religio Society to be used for this purpose, therefore, be it

RESOLVED, That we recommend to the General Conference that such transfer be made.

[SIGNED]

E. L. KELLEY,

Pres. of Board.

F. B. BLAIR,

Sec. of Board.

This was moved, and the following substitute was presented: RESOLVED, That the Board of Publication continue the publication of Autumn Leaves and that the executive committees of the Religio and Sunday School be consulted in the choice of editor.

Some discussion ensued. The previous question being called and the substitute being put upon its passage prevailed by a vote of 209 for and 85 against.

Report of special committee appointed to meet in joint council with the Church of Christ at Independence, Missouri, was read. Elders A. L. Hartley and George Frisbee of the Church of Christ, of Independence, Missouri, being present, were invited to speak on the matter, and Elder Hartley responded, expressing his pleasure at having the opportunity to meet with this Conference. He then read again the revelation given through President A. H. Smith and the communication received by the elders of the Church of Christ both being given in answer to prayer and fasting of the joint council, making a brief statement of their position with regard to the causes leading up to the council. Elder Geo. Frisbee also made a few remarks. Bro. Roderick May, of Independence, who was appointed to meet with the Hedrickite brethren made a statement of his action at that time, that he was accorded the courtesy of making remarks at that Conference and that he was kindly received.

On motion the action of the Presidency and council in appointing this council to meet the brethren of the Church of Christ, at Independence, was indorsed and the continuance of this committee authorized. This was unanimously agreed to by show of hands.

The High Priests' quorum reported the names of Willis A. McDowell and A. V. Closson for ordination as High Priests.

The first quorum of Seventy made a report recommending the ordination, to the office of Seventy, of the following brethren: Francis C. Smith, of Ohio; J. W. Adams, Ill.; Arthur Allen, Missouri; D. R. Chambers, Iowa; James W. Morgan, Perry, Iowa. On motion the recommendation was granted and on separate motion the ordination of these brethren was ordered and provided for, except that the consideration and action of the name of Bro. Morgan was deferred.

The second quorum of Seventy presented a report naming for ordination to the office of Seventy the following elders and asking that provision for their ordination be made, viz., Richard B. Howlett, Canada; Benj. St. John, Canada; Wellington D. Ellis, Michigan; James R. Beckley, Ohio; A. M. Chase, Iowa; A. J. Keck, Illinois; A. E. Mortimer, Canada; J. D. Stead, Iowa; F. A. Russel, Iowa; F. B. Blair, Iowa.

After discussion action on the name of W. D. Ellis was deferred and a motion prevailed deferring action until the Presidency is heard from, or until again called up relative to the names of J. R. Beckley, A. M. Chase, A. J. Keck, A. E. Mortimer, J. D. Stead, F. A. Russell, and F. B. Blair, it being intimated that the Presidency have a communication to present to Conference relative to the demand for a presiding ministry.

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

From the tone of the expressions made, as well as the statement of the Presidency in their report, regarding the matter, the two year, or biennial, term of Conference is not held in favor, and one experience seems to be about all that any one seems to desire. It is pretty certain that there will be a General Conference next year (1901), and annually thereafter, so long as the church needs them. The editor of the ENSIGN is with the majority in favoring annual Conference.

ZION'S RELIGIO-LITERARY SOCIETY.—GENERAL CONVENTION.

Zion's Religio-Literary Society Convention met at Lamoni, Iowa, April 3d and 4th, 1900.

At 9 a. m. April 3d, a prayer and testimony meeting was held in which the Spirit was present in power, speaking words of encouragement to the Religio members, strongly commending their work. Time was well occupied until the meeting closed.

On motion, chairman appointed a credential committee of three, consisting of Sr. Fisher and Bro. Smith and Hansen.

The reports of the president and secretary were read and their publication in the Autumn Leaves ordered.

The report of the committee of five appointed to suggest improvements for the Society, reported as follows:

"Committee on improvements for the Religio met at 7:15 at Bro. T. J. Bell's, Lamoni, Iowa, and after prayer, considered the following subject upon which we send you greeting the following report:

1. Upon the subject of the management of the Autumn Leaves we recommend that the executive committee consult with the board of publication and make such arrangements to secure the management of the Autumn Leaves by the Religio Association as they in their judgment may deem advisable.

2. We concluded that suitable provision was made for determining the course of study and revision of programs in the constitution and by laws (page 5, sec. 5).

3. In regard to the home department we conclude that a demand exists for home class work, and fully endorse the movement of the executive committee in issuing "Leaflet No. 2" upon this subject, and recommend that the locals and districts seek to carry out the suggestions contained therein.

4. We feel that an urgent demand exists for a special missionary effort in the interests of the Religio; hence we advise that the president of the Religio association, associated with the general superintendent of the Sunday School association, counsel with the Quorum of the Twelve in reference to the appointment of a missionary, having for his special work the building up of the Religio and Sunday School, and that the above named officials urge the Twelve to consider the interests of the above named departments of the church in the appointment of missionaries to foreign lands.

and ordered spread upon the minutes.

The report of the credential committee was then read showing 116 delegates present, representing 162 votes, 13 votes being ex officio.

At the suggestion of the president and secretary the recommendations of the "Committee of Five" were then taken up and article 4, relating to the missionary question was considered, and after some favorable discussion, a motion adopting the recommendation prevailed.

On motion the courtesies of the floor were extended to all present at the Convention who are interested in the Religio.

Committee appointed to audit financial reports of treasurer and secretary reported finding both correct. On motion report was received and committee discharged.

On motion sections 2 and 3 in recommendation of committee of five were adopted.

Hitchcock, St. Louis; Sr. Emily Kinney, Independence; Bro. Walter Smith, Kansas City, Mo.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 4.

The session opened at 8 a. m., and after the usual preliminaries, a motion was adopted allowing J. W. Burget, Hoboken, New Jersey, to represent the Brooklyn, New York, society—their society not having time to appoint delegates.

Section one of report of committee of five was read and adopted, and the recommendations as a whole were then adopted. Some of the committee of five having resigned, owing to other duties, the president was, on motion, authorized to fill the vacancies.

The question of the management of the Autumn Leaves by the Religio Society was generally discussed—almost unanimously in favor of the proposition, one or two objections being offered. The vote was in favor, but one vote being recorded against the proposition. The report of the committee was adopted as a whole.

The election of officers was next considered, the result being: For president, Bro. J. A. Gunsolley received 60 votes, Bro. Ammon White 1 vote, Bro. F. E. Cochran 1 vote, Bro. J. C. Hitchcock 2 votes. On motion election of Bro. Gunsolley was made unanimous. For vice president, Bro. J. C. Hitchcock received 4 votes, Elmer E. Johnson 1 vote, Ammon White 44 votes, Marie H. Clark 1 vote, F. E. Cochran 1 vote, Sr. Louise Palfrey 4 votes, Bro. Walter Smith 3 votes, David Anderson 3 votes. Bro. White's election was made unanimous. For secretary, Bro. J. C. Hitchcock received 66 votes, Sr. Eunice Winn 1 vote. For treasurer, Bro. S. A. Burgess received 53 votes, Alma Hansen 2 votes, N. Brocaw 1 vote, Walter Smith 4 votes, Frank Cochran 1 vote, F. Shinnick 1 vote, Florence Fisher 1 vote. The elections of Bro. Hitchcock and Burgess were made unanimous.

Owing to the increased duties devolving upon Bro. Hitchcock, he was, on motion, asked to name his choice for an assistant secretary, and Bro. E. C. Bell was designated; this was, on motion, ratified by the body.

A resolution was offered instructing the committee to labor for removal of the Autumn Leaves to the ENSIGN office at Independence, and, after some discussion, it was tabled.

No further business being on the table the question box was opened.

"Business Programs" was first considered, replied to by general secretary, J. C. Hitchcock, favored parliamentary drill as a part of the programs.

"How Can Each Religion Be Placed in Possession of Sufficient Literature?" spoken to by Bro. S. A. Burgess and A. M. Chase, asked that those who might have more Autumn Leaves than they could use to forward them to the missionary in the field to be used in organizing societies.

"The Relation of Entertainment to Spiritual Part of Program; Where Shall We Draw the Line?" by Sr. J. C. Hitchcock, St. Louis. This was received with such universal commendation that a motion prevailed requesting its publication in the Autumn Leaves.

"Why Should the General Missionary Not Have a Vote in General Convention?" "Should Religio Work be in Class?" "Does the Body Favor the Setting Apart of a Portion of Autumn Leaves for Discussion of the Sciences?" "How to Find Time for Religio Work?" were discussed briefly, the time to close the session being near.

President, in closing, expressed his appreciation of the good spirit present in the convention, and for its success; asked that all may work in that spirit in future, and pray for their guidance by the Spirit of the Lord.

Closed singing No. 148.

It was a very successful session, the lower auditorium being filled with bright, earnest workers, auguring much good for the future of the work.

GENERAL SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION.

The General Sunday School Convention assembled in the lower auditorium of the church at Lamoni, Iowa, Wednesday, April 4th, president, T. A. Hougas, in the chair, vice president, J. A. Gunsolley, assisting; W. N. Robinson, secretary. At 2:35 p. m. hymn 86 was sung and prayer was offered. After the opening preliminaries were concluded a committee of three consisting of Bro. F. A. Russell, Grinnell, Iowa, J. D. White, St. Louis, Missouri, and Richard Bullard, Boston, Massachusetts, was appointed to examine and report on credentials. While this committee was absent in this work, the president called for some short speeches introducing the former general secretary, Bro. Gomer R. Wells, recently returned from a seven years mission in Australia, who made quite an interesting address regarding his work in the Sunday School in that far off land. He was followed by Bro. F. G. Pitt, just returned from the English mission who sketched some of his experiences in those countries comprising that mission. Bro. J. M. Terry was the next speaker in an interesting account of the Sunday School work in Chicago. D. W. Wight, of the Utah mission, recounted some of the difficulties encountered in that part of the country, as well as some of the encouraging features, in some places the Sunday School being the supporter or main stay of the church, and is therefore doing a good work. Bro. David A. Anderson spoke of encouraging developments, and the eagerness with which the Sunday School workers in California improve every good suggestion offered them, and are willing to try the merits of anything promising success. Sr. B. C. Smith, of Independence, being the next speaker, in her remarks testified to the excellent and encouraging work the secretary is doing in the Sunday School at that place, and advised other secretaries to give special attention to the details of that office, it being a means of increasing interest in scholar as well as teacher. This suggestion the general superintendent, in a few remarks, commended. Sr. Burgess, of St. Louis, Missouri, followed, with some excellent remarks on the work in St. Louis, urging necessity of punctuality in attendance. Elder Holmes J. Davison, of the Nova Scotia mission, then addressed the Convention in a witty and pointed relation of the work in his country and Sr. Viola Blair, of St. Joseph, and Elder A. M. Chase, of the Washington and Oregon mission, followed.

At this juncture the credential committee presented their report; some corrections being found necessary, report was returned to committee, and, pending corrections suggested being made, the minutes of previous Convention were read. Report of Sunday School committee on improvements, was read, action being deferred until later. Secretary chose as assistants Bro. J. Frank Mintun and Sr. Belle James; this was, on motion, ratified by the body. Bro. F. G. Pitt was chosen chorister with power to select his assistant and organists, choosing Bro. D. A. Anderson assistant chorister, and Sr. Belle James organist.

The evening session was held in the upper auditorium which was filled. General superintendent, Hougas, read his address according to the requirements of the program committee, a synopsis of which is as follows: He had attended and assisted in eleven reunions, and many other assemblies; had endeavored by correspondence to reach every district in the church, and encourage and instruct them in the carrying on of the work. Some were found indifferent, others alive and active. In some localities officers were needed to lead, in others the people need to arouse and show interest; he hoped both classes would be aroused to duty. To the question as to what is the aim of the Sunday School, he read several answers from among the many received. The special use of the Book of Mormon and Doctrine and Covenants in quarterlies was negatived largely in the answers received, which was also the case with the question, Should such principles as the gathering, etc., be taught in quarterlies?

Relative to a field laborer, the necessity for the appointment of such an one increases; suggested that committee be appointed early in the session to take the matter under consideration. More space is needed for the use of the Sunday School in church publications; could not arrange for more than is already given in the Herald, at its present size. He concluded with the statement that he had strove to serve the Association as he best could and hoped all will continue to work diligently and harmoniously.

The first vice president, J. A. Gunsolley, gave a brief report of his labors the past two years, is gratified to see the progress made in the work during the two years past and is hopeful for the future. The institute work has been very helpful and they should be continued.

No report was received from the second vice president, Bro. Crumley, of California.

General secretary, W. N. Robinson, presented his report showing much important work having been done, in institutes, reunions and districts. Loss in schools 22, during two years, gain 48, net gain 26 schools. Total number enrollment 14,180, now 14,816, loss 1383, total gain 1,979, net gain 596. 894 classes, 1193 officers, 1379 books in about one-fourth of schools reported. There were forty districts last report, there are now forty-eight.

Treasurer, A. B. Hansen reported for two years: received $4,204.09, expenditures 3,065.63, cash and bills receivable on hand, $1,130.06. No assessments on schools of association.

General librarian, Sr. Mamie A. Allen, reports read, not all the districts have appointed librarians as yet. Those who have done so reported favorably. Real need is not more interest but "more funds." General superintendent's financial report was read and referred to auditing committee.

On motion committee of three were appointed to which the proposed amendments be referred for report. Wm. Landers, R. M. Burwell and J. M. Baker were appointed auditing committee; amendment committee, Ammon White, A. M. Chase and S. R. Kibler.

THURSDAY, APRIL 5TH.

Convention met at 8 a. m. in prayer meeting, the lower auditorium of the church being well filled. Three prayers and seventeen testimonies were offered, words of cheer being spoken by the Spirit. After a recess of ten minutes, at 9:30 a. m. the business session was resumed. After opening exercises, on motion, the courtesies of the flour were extended to all present who have an interest in the Sunday School work. Bro. E. L. Kelley, of the revising board, made an individual report, suggesting his release from the board on account of other duties. He recommended that the lessons be considerably shortened in the quarterlies.

The report of the treasurer on the "Penny Collection" for the Saints' Home was read and referred to the auditing committee.

The report of the song book committee was read, but on motion action was deferred.

The committee, Brn. Ammon White, A. M. Chase and S. B. Kibler, to whom was referred the proposed amendments to the constitution and by-laws, reported in favor of the adoption of the Gunsolley articles. Considerable discussion ensued. Vote being called the recommendation of the committee was adopted as follows:

Art. 5, Sec. 4.—Substitute for last sentence the following: "He shall, as often as necessary, and by the advice and consent of the general officers, notify districts and schools not in districts, of the General Association's need of funds."

ADD THE FOLLOWING ARTICLE.
"Art. 18, Expenses.—Districts and schools not in a district are required, upon receipt of notice from General Treasurer, to contribute to the support of the General Association from their funds, according to their respective ability so to do."

CONSTITUTION FOR DISTRICT ASSOCIATION.

Art. IV., Sec. 4.—Substitute for last sentence the following: "Upon receipt of notice from the general treasurer of a need of funds, or when funds are needed for district expenses, he shall, by the advice and consent of the district officers, notify the schools of his district accordingly."

Art. VI., Substitute the following: "Expenses.—The schools of the district shall severally contribute, upon receipt of notice from district treasurer of a need of funds, according to their respective ability, and promptly remit same to district treasurer."

BY-LAWS FOR SUNDAY SCHOOLS.

Art. VIII., Sec. 9., Substitute the following: "Finances.—Each school may adopt such financial methods as seem best suited to its needs; but it shall be the duty of each school to respond promptly to the support of the district according to its ability, upon receipt of notice from district treasurer of a need of funds."

J. A. GUNSOLLEY.

A petition from Gallands Grove, Iowa, district, as follows, was read:

Feeling the need of a General Sunday School and Religio missionary, we therefore ask the delegates representing this, Gallands Grove, district in General Convention to present a request to the General Convention to request the church authorities for such a missionary, the Sunday School and Religio societies defraying all expenses of said missionary.

AFTERNOON SESSION.—2 P. M.

Following the usual opening exercises and the reading of the minutes, the report of the improvement committee was considered the committee asking for the privilege of correcting their report, which was granted.

The regular order of business for the afternoon was taken up, and the election of officers was ordered. Brn. T. A. Hougas, J. A. Gunsolley, W. N. Robinson, E. A. Blakeslee and Sr. Anna Salyards were placed in nomination, Brn. Robinson and Blakeslee, and Sr. Salyards declining. A rising vote being taken Bro. Hougas received 169 votes, and Bro. Gunsolley 21 votes. Bro. Hougas' election was made unanimous by the body. For first vice president, Brn. J. A. Gunsolley, M. C. Fisher, G. W. Blair, F. G. Pitt and Sr. Lucy Resseguie were nominated, and Bro. J. A. Gunsolley received 113 votes, M. C. Fisher 9, G. W. Blair 16, F. G. Pitt 47, and Sr. Lucy Resseguie 7 votes; Bro. Gunsolley's election was made unanimous. For second vice president, Bro. M. C. Fisher, Sr. Lucy Resseguie, Bro. F. G. Pitt, Sr. Mollie Davis (Spring River, Kansas), Chas. Crumley and F. M. Pitt were nominated; the vote being called, Bro. M. C. Fisher received 72 votes, Sr. Resseguie 5, Bro. F. G. Pitt 19, Mollie Davis 1, F. M. Pitt 120. On motion choice of Bro. F. M. Pitt was made unanimous. For general secretary Brn. W. N. Robinson, M. C. Fisher, A. H. Mills were nominated; Bro. Mills declining, and the friends of Bro. Fisher speaking for him, represented his inability to attend conventions, Bro. W. N. Robinson, on vote being taken, received 192 votes and Bro. Fisher 8 votes. Bro. Robinson's election was made unanimous. For librarian Sr. Mamie Allen, Lamoni, Sr. Anna Salyards, Lamoni, Sr. M. C. Fisher, Boston, Bro. S. A. Burgess, St. Louis, Sr. Clara Clark, Kansas City, were nominated. Srs. Fisher and Salyards declined. On the vote being taken Sr. Allen received 175 votes, Bro. Burgess 8 and Clara Clark 4 votes. Sr. Allen's election was made unanimous. For treasurer Bro. A. B. Hansen, Lamoni, was put in nomination. At this juncture, Bro. Hansen asked that the auditing committee's report be read before taking action on his name; this by motion was granted, and being read, showed Bro. Hansen's report correct. Bro. Frank Russell, Grinnell, and Ammon White, Independence, were further nominated. Vote being taken Bro. Hansen received 127 votes and Ammon White 30 votes. The election of Bro. Hansen was made unanimous.

Special order of business following election of officers was taken up, being the report of improvement committee. Sec. 1, relating to publishing of "a teachers edition of quarterlies in connection with the grades of quarterlies now published, in addition also to give evidence on the subjects treated from Book of Mormon, Doctrine and Covenants, Inspired Translation, also helps drawn from other sources that will contribute to give a clearer and more complete understanding of the subjects of the lessons; teaching points and illustrations; home class suggestions; infant class or kindergarten suggestions also be included in this edition," was read; several spoke favorably to the proposition. Amendment was offered adding a paragraph "and that the same provision be made for the publishing of this teachers editions that is made for the regular edition;" vote being taken the amendment was carried, as was also the motion as amended. Section 2 was then read as follows:

"We approve of the appointment of a lesson committee to decide on the lesson course. Further, that this committee also act as the revising committee. We recommend that the executive committee associated with this committee appoint the editor, and fix compensation, the editor to choose sub-editors."

A motion was made to strike out the first two sentences, and insert "that the International Lesson Texts be used as our texts."

Some earnest and spirited discussion followed pending which, adjournment until 7:30 p. m. was taken.

EVENING SESSION.

The usual opening exercises being concluded, the discussion of the question under consideration at the hour of adjournment, was resumed, and, on motion, the matter was laid on the table.

Section 4.—We are in favor of issuing programs for Christmas and Children's Day, to be within the reach of the average school.

Amendment offered striking out "within the reach of," and inserting "adapted to the use of." This was adopted as was the section thus amended.

Section 5.—That the interest of the Sunday School be more adequately represented, we recommend that four leaves be added to the Herald, at the expense of the General Association, for the present. That an editor in chief be appointed by the executive committee, having the right to appoint sub-editors.

Considerable discussion followed, and being put to vote was lost.

Section 6.—We urge the immediate publication of a song book; to be issued in installments, cheap edition.

Report of music committee was at this juncture read, as follows:

We, your committee, having been appointed according to the following resolution, "Resolved that a committee of three be appointed by this Convention to solicit music and be custodians of the music now on hand for use in the Sunday School song book;" beg leave to submit the following report:

As custodians of the old music, we find most of it to be of such a character that we would not consider it serviceable for a Sunday School song book. There are, however, about eight compositions that could be used, some of which would have to be corrected.

We gave notice through the Herald and Ensign in 1898, that additional compositions were wanted; but during the entire fiscal year, no music whatever was received. In the latter part of 1899 we received a total of six, four of which, after correction, we would consider could be used.

Some of the committee have composed others, until we now have a total of about twenty, that would be serviceable for a song book.

We feel, as a committee, that in the church there is latent the talent that would bring better results than the above report shows, and we regret that we cannot report a greater interest taken in this work on the part of all those thus talented, and that we cannot report a larger collection received.

Mrs. BELLE JAMES, }

The motion being put to vote was lost.

A motion to receive the report of song book committee and to continue the committee prevailed. Sr. Belle James resigned, and, on motion, Bro. F. G. Pitt was added. By motion, Bro. A. H. Mills was also added. Mrs. W. N. Robinson, Bro. S. W. L. Scott, Sr. Lucy L. Ressegue and Sr. Audie Anderson, were also nominated on this committee. On motion number of members of committee was limited to five. Vote being taken, Mrs. W. N. Robinson received 74 votes, Bro. S. W. L. Scott 20 votes, Sr. Ressegue 5, and Sr. Audie Anderson 40, Ralph G. Smith 4 votes (statement being made that Bro. Smith could not well serve). Mrs. Robinson's selection made unanimous. Committee now stands J. L. Morgan, M. J. Richards, F. G. Pitt, A. H. Mills and Mrs. W. N. Robinson.

A motion requesting and urging the committee to secure a sufficient amount of suitable music to publish a Latter Day Saint song book previous to next regular Sunday School Convention, was carried unanimously.

Section 7.—We favor a simplification and cheapening of the class book now in use. We recommend that the revision of the class book be entrusted to a committee to be appointed by the executive.

On motion, laid on table.

Section 8.—About the matter of a Sunday School missionary. We recommend that the superintendent of the Sunday School Association and the president of the Religio Association counsel with the quorum of the Twelve, in regard to the appointment of a missionary who shall make the Sunday School and Religio his especial work in this land. And we further recommend that the interests of the Sunday School and Religio be duly considered in the missionary appointments to foreign lands.

Some discussion followed, but the section failed to receive sufficient support, and was ordered laid on the table.

Section 9.—We esteem a knowledge of the standard books of the church to be so important to the spiritual progress, not only of the individual, but of the church, that special effort should be put forth to encourage systematic study of the books upon the part of the isolated members, as well as those having the advantages of branch association; that it should be the united aim of the general missionaries, Sunday School and Religio workers to bring about such a systematic study of the church books in every family of Saints. Hence, we urge that district officials devote more earnest attention to the promotion of home class study, and recommend that a committee of three be appointed to draft a resolution to be incorporated in the report of the convention to the General Conference, addressed to the general missionaries of the church, inviting them to take active part in the interests of the Sunday School and Religio, two departments of church work, especially the home class work of these departments.

Of committee.

Vote being taken this section was accepted, 59 to 16.

Resolution that a committee of three be appointed by executive committee to act on credentials of next convention, with power to fill vacancies, was read. Amendment offered to insert, "at the last session of the Religio if held prior to the next Sunday School Convention," striking out "should any vacancy occur;" this prevailed, as did the motion so amended.

We recommend that the executive committee of the General Association consult with the Board of Publication in regard to the management of the Hope, and they be authorized to act as they, in their judgment, may think advisable.

This was read but no action was taken.

A report from F. M. Sheehy, Lucy L. Ressegue and Chas. H. Burr, committee on illustrated cards, was read and ordered spread upon the records, and committee continued.

Committee appointed to appoint editor and assistant editor of Quarterlies, reported. The editors reported having completed their work and the lessons being finished to October 1900. Report was ordered received and spread on the minutes.

The auditing committee reported finding books of the treasurer to be correct. Report was adopted. The treasurer's report was then adopted, as was also the financial report of the general superintendent. The report of the penny collection for the Home, was ordered returned to the party for correction. Adjournment was then taken until 8 o'clock a. m., April 6th.

FRIDAY, APRIL 6TH.

Met at 8 a. m. After opening exercises report from second assistant superintendent, Bro. Crumley, of California, was read. Had done some corresponding in the interest of the work in the early part of the year, but owing to circumstances beyond his control, was unable to act the latter part.

Credential committee was discharged, it duties being over.

On motion, one hundred and fifty dollars per year was appropriated for contingent expenses, to be used under direction of executive officers, during the time intervening until the next convention.

Bro. S. A. Burgess, Sr. Clara Clark, Bro. Elmer E. Johnson, Sr. Sadie Fisher and Sr. W. H. Deam were nominated on the committee of three to assist the general librarian; on being put to vote Bro. Burgess received 100 votes, Sr. Clara Clark 66 votes, and Bro. Elmer Johnson 57 votes, and were unanimously declared the choice of the convention.

On motion the executive committee was authorized to appoint the program committee for the next convention.

A motion that when this convention adjourns, it do so to meet at the call of the executive. Carried.

A motion to take up and discuss the section of the Improvement committee, under discussion yesterday afternoon failed of support on account of lack of time.

On motion a revising committee of three was appointed to prepare lesson Quarterlies in connection with the executive committee, with authority to appoint editor, fix compensation, etc. This committee is composed of H. A. Stebbins, J. R. Lambert, R. S. Salyards, and the executive committee was authorized to fill any vacancy that may arise through either of these being unable to serve.

The Improvement committee was, on motion, sustained, and requested to publish their report two months before the assembling of the next Convention. The chairman ruled that an additional report of committee may be received after the publication of the report.

Sang number 118, "God Will Take Care of You," and Convention closed with benediction by the superintendent.

ADDRESS OF PRESIDENT JOSEPH SMITH AT OPENING OF CONFERENCE,

Responding without a motion, and taking it for granted that you are awfully anxious to hear, and those of you that are not thus anxious—curious—I shall offer some remarks.

I enter upon the work of this conference with a good deal of diffidence and with some degree of apprehension. While I have no disposition to imagine that there are lions in the way, I have thought in the past, and I believe now, that it is not the part of a courageous man to be indifferent to what may be before him, and neither to pretend ignorance concerning their existence. I know that there are difficulties lying before us that will require all the Christian fortitude that we have, and a good deal more Christian charity than I fancy that some of us have, togethrough with. And while I would not want any one person to think that I thus struck him, personally, I hope that each may take it into consideration as to whether or not he enters into the work of this conference with a sufficient degree of Christian fortitude and Christian charity toward the flesh, the world, and the devil, (in or out of the church, according to his judgment).

Two things have been fraught with a great deal of peculiar manifestation in the ministerial field to a great extent, and in the home field I may say, to a still greater extent; for the individual who has been out on the frontiers hard at work for Christ, has paid little attention to the conflicts that have arisen in the different places where he may have passed through, and if he has been a wise man, he has had his ears largely closed to a good many things that might be in the air and endeavoring to be spread abroad.

The patience of the workers has been quite sorely tried in places and at times and I have heard, my brethren have heard, here at the center, more or less anxiety expressed in regard to the conduct of the leading officers of the church; and in places individuals have gone so far as to say that the leaders were acting directly contrary to the law of God. Whom they mean by this word "leaders" I do not know; but it appears that individual judgment has been passed upon these said leaders; either for a neglect of duty, or for a failure to do what these men have supposed the leaders should do. To us who are supposed to be among the leading men of the church it is very embarrassing to have these things said by individuals who have not the moral courage and the Christian fortitude to come to us and tell what those things are of which they complain; a thing that ought not to be named even in gentele society, let alone Christian organizations.

You have heard me say in my services at times that if I could see mine enemy—and I think I represent the general eldership in saying this—know where he was located, and have a fair, open, square fight with him, I would be content to take the battle; and I emphasize that this morning. There is not a man among us but what would prefer to fight his enemy though it might be the arch-enemy of mankind, openly, than to fight him under cover. It is a good deal like the Boers, their treatment of their British opponents. They have tried to fight them unseen, and it has been disastrous to those men of valor arrayed against them. These men in red would have been content to have faced their enemy in the open field, but they were not prepared to meet an enemy unseen. We are more or less like these men.

Now I hope that whatever may have transpired abroad in the field in this regard may, for the time being of our assembling here, be forgotten, for this reason: It is irritating, and however much patience a man may have, he may sometimes think the limit is reached; that charity has ceased to be a virtue, and that it is time for, if not resentment, strong resistance. We are admonished to contend earnestly for the faith once delivered to the saints, but I do not know of any man in Christ that is authorized to contend over-harsh for his own views. I do not know of the man of so much importance in this world that he can afford to ride over anybody else for the establishment of his own opinions, his own views. I do not know of any man who ought to be so much in love with his own voice and his own opinions as to insist in forcing everybody else to the wall that may oppose him. I believe that the grandest character in Christ is the one that can suffer the most, that can be patient unto the uttermost end; and when I reflect that upon one occasion Jesus apparently lost his temper when he whipped the money changers out of the temple with a scourge; and that only one sixth part of the gospel is said to be of judgment, I feel humble in undertaking to judge my fellow men and force my opinions and my words upon them. Others, of course, must feel and act as they see proper under such circumstances.

There has been a good deal that has been very encouraging in the past. One thing that I have myself taken particular pleasure in, is this: that wherever our brethren have been under the necessity to defend the work, no matter against whom it might be, wherever the attack was made, they have been invariably supported by the good Spirit of the Lord; and so long as they have kept themselves within the province of their mission, they have been aided and strengthened. There may have been occasions where individuals may have forgotten for the time being the principles of true christian warfare, and in thus forgetting, lost their bearings and have been discomfited. There may have been such a case now and then, but the great majority have been on the other side.

We are facing new conditions, in a sense; conditions, however, that some of us have long foreseen, and conditions which I believe the Lord has been striving, by the ministration of his Spirit to individuals, to prepare the church for. How far we may be prepared to avail ourselves of these new conditions, however far we may be removed from the bigotry and superstitions of the past, and the legendary teachings of the church, and these various questions that arise from the consideration of theories, and doctrines, and authority; how far we may be removed from them in order to take in the larger scope that is open before us, I am not, at present, prepared to state. I know what the opinions of some individuals are, because I have heard them express them, have heard them make statements in regard to these conditions, as if they had foreseen them, and are now prepared to act upon them if opportunity offered; but I cannot tell how the general pulse of the whole ministerial field may beat in regard to the subject. I suppose that we shall be permitted during this meeting to discover something of this in our deliberations.

Personally, I have wrought as I thought I could. I am not prepared to say that I have done all I could. I am not prepared to say that what I have done has been done in the wisest manner, but the record of what it is, is made. I must face it here and hereafter. But while I occupy a peculiar position, quite different from the great mass of the eldership, I sympathize with them. I do not know how far they may sympathize with me. You, all of you, know that so far as I am concerned, I have no place to lay down these weapons. There is for me no stopping place this side of the Judgment seat. There can be for me no human excuse, except death and the disability imposed by the approaches of death. I must continue straight forward in the course that is appointed, that is before me, so far as I may comprehend it, until I die; while the rest of you, so far as I know, could shift the responsibility and take the consequences here and hereafter. You know I am only stating a truth, but it is an unfortunate truth in some respects, for the reason, while other men may sometimes excuse themselves for things as they occur, over which they may possibly have no possible power, I must take the consequences here and hereafter for a great many things that I neither control, nor see other men control, when they could.

Now, this morning while I feel some apprehension, I feel hopeful, and I do not find within myself a single wavering of resolution, either in regard to the work at large, or the work of the conference. I expect to stay right here and do what I can, unless I am ousted for proper and just reasons, until the end of conference; and I am going to do the best I can to keep my temper in check, and I expect every other man to do the same thing.

One thing that has pained me in the past, and it pains me every time I think of it, is this: That when I know and hear men express themselves that they are, or should be, men of God—and I have heard some men make use of this expression with a kind of tremor at heart—I question, Do they really mean what they say when they say that they consider themselves men of God; and would they, as men of God, do things that some men do? Would they? Would they, under the influences of the Spirit of the Master, do things that they see some men do? I very much question it. And when Mr. Sheldon, down at Topeka, Kansas, undertook to run a daily paper as Jesus would do it, I asked myself then the question, Does Mr. Sheldon know anything about how Jesus Christ would run a daily paper in a western state, like the state of Kansas? I subscribed for the paper, as, no doubt, a great many of you did. I wanted to see how Jesus would do things. And when I saw the paper I saw reflected through it just this, that the paper was conducted as a man wearing Presbyterian spectacles saw how Jesus would do it. And I thought about the little paper up there called the Herald, into which there never has, to my knowledge, occurred the entrance of one of those flashy, trashy, advertisements against which Mr. Sheldon raised his voice; and yet I thought about the Herald, that in its columns had advocated different views, and these men had stated his thought in writing, and another man had controverted it, and each man make the statement—I suppose he intended to do—that he was doing it as he believed that Jesus would do it. And they have sometimes written at the top of their writings, "I am led to write by the Spirit, as I believe," and one man would write one view upon the topic, and another man another view. Well, would Jesus do that? I do not know. One thing is sure, that he paid tribute to the executors of the law, and in order to keep himself under the law, not violate it, he caused a miracle to be wrought, when he paid His tribute of the money that was found in the fish's mouth. He said to the soldier, Be content with thy wages and do violence to the blood of no man. He said to the man that received the customs, Be content with thy dues. And so he went through the category of those that were engaged in human affairs, under human laws, and gave each class a proper degree of advice, but he never pretended to tell them that they should not do as the law required them to do as public servants.

I have been bombarded with questions as editor of the Herald, and as partially representing myself and the body, as to what the church had done in regard to this or that, whether the church had said this or that in regard to different classes of human conduct. Really, the church has spoken very little about human conduct, as a church. I may have my own views as to what would be right or wrong, what the articles of the church might permit and what they might not; but just as sure as I, as editor of the Herald, would answer some of those questions, it would come back to me as a whip used upon somebody's back to do them harm or injury, or force them into line; and "Bro. Joseph said this, Bro. Joseph said that; Bro. Joseph wrote this, Bro. Joseph wrote that." Well, did Bro. Joseph speak the sentiments of the entire body? I think it was about three years ago that the body turned Bro. Joseph down on one of the things that he had written, notwithstanding that he believed he was right, and Bro. Joseph had to submit to the voice of the people upon the proposition that the voice of the people was the voice of God. And if there is a class of people that can ever convene together in this world, and especially in these United States, whose voice is the voice of God or should be, it is an assembly like this, among these people. You can see how these things affect. My own opinion in regard to many of the conditions in which these questions are asked is this: Jesus Christ intended the gospel to be a renovating power, to eliminate from human character the things that were not lovely, and to enable an individual to assimilate to himself all the characteristics of human character that are lovely; and provided for them the inward monitor of the Spirit, in order that each individual might not be at the mercy of the body disposed to make rigid rules, laws, and governments by which everybody must walk, until, if we were to pursue it as it has been thought some of us ought to do, we would have a code of laws a great deal longer than we can find in Leviticus, and every man would have to carry a chart of human conduct and consult it every minute of his life, in order that he might not trespass against some teaching of the law. Then what is to become of that inward monitor which is to be unto every man given as God will to guide and govern him as an individual, upon the fact that an individual responsibility is what he shall answer for unto God, and not for the rule of conduct imposed upon him by the voice of his brethren.

I know that this conference does not know all the peculiar circumstances that surround my life, that have surrounded me in the past, those things that have been brought to bear upon me to bias my conduct or my opinion this way or that way. They have not the power to comprehend; do not know. Now, as a consequence, if it is supposed that they are to make a long code of laws for my personal observance in personal conduct, they are going to remake the man. Well, I do not believe you brethren can do that, and I know some men in this congregation that are just as obstinate as I am, notwithstanding my brother once told his brethren he said, "You think Bro. Joseph is a nice, quiet-tempered man, but you will find that he is just as obstinate as I am." Granting there are two of us, I am only presenting it as an illustration. If this cannot be done with one individual, can it be done with another? And if it is to be made an exception in favor of one, must it not be made an exception in the favor of every other man? If not, are not personal rights invaded? Are not the office work and power of the Holy Spirit supposed to be in every man? Are they not relegated to the past, and we take our places under the moral code and work out our salvation under that law with fear and trembling? But if it is true, let us go back, and when we sin, let us take our dove or our lamb, our heifer or bullock, and go and place it on the altar and get absolution for our sins under the law. Let us do it.

I see things a great deal different from a good many people, and I know that a great many people see a great many things different from what I do, but please God, I am glad of it, and I will tell you the reason: We are placed under different conditions; we face the world under different organizations, mental and moral organizations. It is utterly impossible for each of us to see like every other man in the body, it is utterly impossible. God never intended it to be so. Why, you may say to me, are we not admonished to be of one mind? Yes, but in regard to what? To speak the same things in regard to what? Those things upon which God has spoken specifically. That is where we should be all of one mind, but upon this great variety of topics that grow out of our organizations upon which the law of God is either absolutely silent or stated in such way that it is not specific and definite, there we are indebted to our various organizations for the final wisdom that shall crown our action, if we shall only be patient enough and honorable enough to give every man the same privilege that we demand for ourselves, the right of free speech without prejudice. Now this may be illustrated. I will bring it home to you. I do not want to do it in a spirit of unjust criticism, but some things that have transpired in the last six months have been pointing in this direction. You all know the result of the attempt to seat Mr. Roberts in the House of Representatives, without prejudice to the man in any sense, but with reference to the principles—it is like this: The question now comes up in regard to the teaching of President Brigham Young in the days that are past as recorded in the Journal of Discourses, himself and his coadjutors, known unto individuals who are listening to my voice, who absolutely heard them and have read them as they were published to the world. Now, one of the principal leading men who has charge of their journal, says that President Young uttered those things, but his teachings were not to be taken as an essential unto man's salvation. Now, who drove them to that statement? Two of their number, on being excluded from Denmark, if my memory serves me right, made the statement to the Minister of Justice, that they are now instructed not to teach plural marriage or emigration, and that they have never taught, nor do teach plural marriage nor emigration. How does that comport with the teachings of the past by these same people? The principle lies here, they are facing new conditions, the same as we are, largely; they have come to know that they cannot build upon the teachings of President Young and establish the church, and they are now going before the world and presenting the epitome of 1842 and 1844. They are presenting the teachings of the Book of Covenants and presenting the book to the people, but they forget to tell them that the volume they are carrying is the volume published by them in 1876 from which the marriage law of 1835, and clear down to 1869, so far as the Book of Covenants is concerned, had been eliminated, and that they have introduced that other law, all based upon the teachings of President Brigham Young, all of them.

Now you can see that the principle applied in the one case is good as applied in the other. If applied upon the opposition, it comes back to us, and the reflex action of it is this: You as a body cannot be held by my teachings unless my teachings are in accordance with the word of God, proved to be so upon examination. Is that statement correct? So is it with each and every other individual. All stand alike upon this; and hence, as a body, we have no right, I have no right, you have no right, as individuals, to compromise the church, and to assert that such and such things are the voice of the church, or that they are the teachings of the law, unless the law is specific in its statements.

I have only made these statements to call attention to the application of the principle, that is all; that while we may, as individuals, assert a certain degree of independence of character, and it is necessary that we should, there is not expected of us that we shall so bring ourselves into such subjection in our different organizations that we all look through the same spectacles. I confess that, so far as some questions are concerned, I'd like to have every man see as I do, but I had a great deal rather, if he differed from me, that he would honestly state his difference than that he would surrender his individuality simply because I said so—would think more of him—he would be a better man for the people, a man in whose hands the liberties of the people would be safer.

So as I look out upon the field I see a great variety of minds at work, and it sometimes has seemed to me that the class of minds that we have are peculiar in this respect. I do not know that I ought to say it in just that way, but that the conditions seem to be so ordered that when a representative of this work is called upon to defend it in a specific manner, he seems to have been peculiarly qualified, or peculiarly selected for that particular spot, at that particular time, for that particular occasion. I have been glad of that. I know some of the men that have met opposition for the past two years that have done in the controversy thrust upon them infinitely better than I could have done under the same conditions—I say infinitely better, I believe it. While I would have made shift under such conditions to have done the best I could, their qualifications for that specific time and place were better than mine, as I understand it.

Now, under all these conditions, I feel encouraged this morning, and hope, earnestly hope, that every official member of the body, every ex officio member, every delegate, every one entitled to voice, every one entitled to vote, will enter into the business of this conference with cheerfulness, with devotion, not to self, to preconceived ideas or notions, but to the benefit of the body, the whole work; and when we do that, we will have very little trouble—at least, it will be of that character that we can easily get along with it. But if any of you have brought hatchets here to grind, I am not going to help turn the grindstone if I can help it. I have no axes to grind, and I have no tomahawks to be afraid of, that I know of, and I am not going to help anyone to sharpen a tomahawk to hit me with if I can help it—of course I am not. I may be brought into such a condition that I may be compelled to turn the grindstone. If I do, I will make the water fly over the one that is holding the ax. With what I have said I shall leave the matter with you, and call upon somebody else to address you.

While the attendance at Conference is believed to be the largest had at any previous time, yet the good brethren and sisters are cheerfully bearing the burden and taking good care of the visitors, and no one goes unprovided for because of the lack of accommodations.

ADDRESS OF PATRIARCH ALEXANDER H. SMITH.

As Bro. Joseph referred to me, perhaps I may express a thought relative to the principle that was being treated upon. He promised us to try to keep his temper. To me a man who has no temper, and does not sometimes manifest it, is not of much force. The beautiful character is a man that has a temper and has it under control; and so far as obstinacy is concerned, individually, in my experience, I believe that the household of God, as represented in the church, is filled with men that are obstinate. They are affirmative, largely. There are very few negatives among them, and the battle has been of that character that it has made them aggressive, forced them to be aggressive. They are aggressive men, and where you find an accumulation of men of this character, you may expect, once in a while, flashes of temper. The metal that is the best tempered does not bend easily, does not break easily, and when it is bent will come back to its proper shape again. There is a spring and an elasticity in it, and there ought to be elasticity in every representative in this latter day work. There ought to be stiffness, firmness, and elasticity. I believe this is being made manifest.

I rejoice in the work, and my brother referred to some things that called to my mind one of the principle things that makes me rejoice in it, that makes me feel firm in it, the positions taken by the Reorganization and the representatives of the church of the present have been of that character that we have not had to go back on any of them. Our advance has been, as remarked by some, slow, seemingly, but it has been sure. We have not had to yield any ground where we have planted ourselves. We have planted ourselves in such shape that there is no power that has been brought against the church yet that has caused us to yield any ground that has been won. Now, I like that. The work is of a character that will call out all that there is in a man; and it is in perfect keeping with the thought that God has expressed himself that he will have a proven people, a tried people.

We are not all organized alike. As has been expressed, what may be temptation to one man is no temptation to another man at all. What may be looked upon as a trial by one individual is borne in perfect patience by another. The temptations that come upon us are as different as our organizations. It is proper we should be thus; it is proper that we should be differently organized. And God has promised that he would temper his providences unto his people, and he will not call upon them to endure more than they can bear. If we are forced to bear and prove ourselves faithful, the greater will be our reward. I rejoice in this thought too.

I am conscious just at this present moment that the Latter Day Saints gathered here are anxious to hear something relative to the labor of the Patriarch. It seems to be pressed in upon my mind just now. Two years ago I announced my willingness to move forward in the office and calling of Patriarch. I stated some things that I found in the way, asked some relief, and the question was propounded to me, "What will you do if nothing is done? If you receive no instructions, no further light, will you move forward in your work, anyway?" And I answered, "Yes, I will move forward and follow the direction of the Spirit and do the best I can, and leave the results in the hands of God."

I discovered in my work that it was necessary that I should have some one to take down the blessings. In consultation with President Smith there was one thought that was settled in our minds. I received several communications from abroad, from individuals, some of them sending means to defray expenses, requesting a patriarchal blessing, desiring that I should write out patriarchal blessings and send them. In consultation with President Smith, we agreed that this could hardly be in keeping with the law, and we concluded that the blessings should be given by the laying on of hands. That was what the best record that we had, relative to the work of the Patriarch, seemed to signify, that this was the order.

The church provided no means for the procuring of a stenographer. The work required one. The party receiving the blessing wants a copy of that blessing, naturally. It is necessary they should have it. The Patriarch should have a copy, and it is incumbent upon him to record a copy of every blessing given, in writing, in the record book that belongs to the church; hence you will see that there is a work of this kind which is necessary to be done. As your Patriarch I was not able to hire this work done. I had to depend on volunteer labor. In the East, Sr. Fisher, Sr. Ruth Sheehy, and Mary Mortimer volunteered; and while on my eastern tour I was enabled to give numbers of blessings. Sr. Belle James has volunteered her labor and services, and I have been enabled to give many blessings here in this section of the country and at Independence. Sr. Rich also assisted and gave her help, and other sisters have given their help. Bro. Leon Gould in the North assisted me there, but this has been voluntary work, and I have been enabled during the past two years to bless quite a number of individuals.

I want to say to you that under the influence of the Spirit my heart has been made to rejoice, and I have had the confirmation and the evidence from God of my calling to the position, and I have received evidences from those who have been blessed under my hands, which indicate that they have been blessed, and they rejoice in the work.

As the Patriarch of the church, I discover that there is sufficient to keep me busy; and wherever I go I am expected to preach the gospel, and in the preaching of the word I have been wonderfully blessed in the past two years, and I rejoice in it.

It seems to me that the church just at the present time, notwithstanding there are clouds in the horizon, stands in a better position to receive and is calculated to receive greater blessings than she has ever received before. If I may judge of what I have seen and experienced, the ministry are just in a condition to receive an endowment, in a receptive mood, and they have need of this rich endowment of the Spirit. And the work opening, as I believe, God will bless it and bring us out of the shadows of the clouds that are in the horizon, and the church will be brighter and better, and grander, and move along more rapidly than it ever has in the past. The Spirit is ready to bless and sanctify and help the ministry, and the word, coming from the different parts of the world where there have been debates upon the principles of our faith, has been universal that the Spirit has aided in the defense of the work. God is recognizing, is ruling and overruling. There are still to be revealed those things that will make more complete the representation of the church as representing the kingdom of God, and he stands ready when his people are ready to receive, and I believe that we are advancing along the line of preparation and readiness until it is near at hand when we shall receive the outpouring of His Spirit and the manifestations of greater power as the days pass and the time is approaching for the coming of the Son of God—near us, when we may see the evidence of God's power manifest more than ever before. One thing we should rejoice in, and that, perhaps, represents the organism of the individual, it is a work of antagonism, and we are forcing the world to recognize us. This church is forcing recognition from the Christian world and the world at large, and it is forcing it in such conditions that it redounds to the honor and glory of God. I rejoice in it.

ADDRESS OF APOSTLE W. H. KELLEY.

We have a great deal to rejoice us this morning. The weather is in our favor and we enjoy bodily health. It is a good time to sing, "Praise God from whom all blessings flow," after a separation of two years, to be privileged to meet under such favorable auspices to engage in our conference work.

This is the first time in the history of the church that we have been absent from each other so long in a conference capacity. It is a new experience, but we meet this morning in the faith; have passed through the trials of the two years of whatever character they may have been, and also good experienced. Both the good and the bad lie along life's pathway. The doctrine of God having a tried people is before us all the time, and the idea of a chosen people, and none of us expect to be chosen without there is some merit attaching to us. Merit indicates things brought to bear to lead one away from the attainment of merit, making true the statement that there needs to be an opposition in all things to develop human character to enable us to perform our work aright in the earth.

It would be too much this morning for one of us to undertake to go over our experience for the last two years, but our presence here indicates that we are in the faith; that notwithstanding the conflicts and the opposition to the various views and ideas that we have had to meet in the world, we meet again this morning in the faith, in the Latter Day Saint faith, in the faith of the angel message that came to the world in this age of the world to enlighten us, to give us a better conception of revealed truth, of religious truth in order to enable a people to occupy a platform religiously upon which they might stand and face the world, giving a reason for their hope, and defying opposition, so far as criticism is concerned, to overthrow us, so far as relates to argument.

There is where we occupy today, and by reason of the safety of that platform it has so inwrought itself into our conditions that we meet today strong in a belief of that message that whatever may be our conflict here in this world, triumph will come to it in the earth.

I was impressed with the speech that was made by the President with reference to our peculiarities, charity, manhood, womanhood, the diversity that is found among us and the world. Evidently God intended it so. It gives us an opportunity to learn how to govern ourselves. It is a splendid thing to be self-governing. We all delight in liberty and freedom, but I do not know as we ought to be allowed it without we do learn something about self-government, and I think we can all take that home to ourselves, and perhaps each one needs a little disciplining in that regard.

But meeting here in conference I appreciate the caution given and shall try to be on my guard along with the rest of the brethren. I am a little extreme in my nature sometimes, but will try to keep cool, be deliberate, and act for the best.

I am in the faith this morning. I believe that this gospel is true and all of the prophecies and inspiration that have come to us in the past relative to it, inspiring us on, will yet be fulfilled, will be attained by us or by some others, and that this work will win.

That was a true statement made by the brother that it is forcing itself upon the world and forcing recognition. It is really getting to be recognized now in many places, in places where we are best known, that the Reorganized Church of Latter Day Saints is thought of in a better light than it was a few years ago. That cloud, that odium that has been upon us in the past is moving away, and we have never $40,000 GIVEN AWAY.

FRANKLIN MILES, M. D., LL. B., THE EMINENT CHICAGO PHYSICIAN AND SCIENTIST, WILL SEND ANY SUFFERER TWO DOLLARS AND A HALF WORTH OF HIS WONDERFUL TREATMENT FOR HEART AND NERVOUS DISEASES.

Never before has such a generous offer been made. It will enable thousands suffering from lingering or chronic diseases of the brain, nerves, chest, liver or stomach, to test the curative qualities of Dr. Miles' new special, personal treatment free of charge.

Few regular physicians in the world have such unlimited confidence in their skill, and the curative properties of the remedies they permit every patient to thoroughly test free of charge. Such literature speaks louder than words.

Hundred of "Incurable Cases" cured. Mr. F. J. Held, of Grand Rapids, after having been given up by all the physicians of Chicago, Smith, of 124 Washburn Ave., cured of dropsy after five of Chicago's leading physicians said there was no hope for her. Truman DeWeese, editor Chicago Times-Herald, states: "Dr. Miles cured me of inherited headache and dizziness." Hon. M. Buck Baker, of Faribault, Minn., writes: "I had broken completely down. My head, heart, stomach and nerves had troubled me greatly for years. Feared I would never recover, but Dr. Miles' personal treatment cured me after six well-known physicians of Chicago and elsewhere, had completely failed." Mrs. E. Countryman, of Pontiac, Illinois, says: "Several years ago when I sent to Dr. Miles for personal treatment, three physicians said I could not live two weeks. I could not walk a few feet then; now I can do all my work."

Dr. Miles has had twenty-four years' experience, and is well and favorably known throughout the country. He has an able and extensive corps of assistants and investigators in his laboratories. He has patients in every State, Territory, Canada and Mexico. He cordially invites the afflicted to write to him.

You may never have another such an opportunity. Do not fail to write for examination blank and $2.50 worth of treatment free. Address The Dr. Miles Medical Association, 201 E. 20th Street.

stood better before the world nor before ourselves than we stand this morning, so far as any facts have impressed my mind, and I have the privilege to represent the Eastern mission where I have bestowed most of my labors and the faith has never stood more fairly before the world. The Saints have never stood together as co-workers with themselves and with God better than they stand today.

It shows we are making some progress, we are gravitating into a greater unity, and we are comprehending more perfectly human rights and trying to become assimilated to act as one body to accomplish the work that is committed to us.

CONFERENCE NOTES.

The forty-seventh annual Conference convened at Lamoni, Iowa, in the Saints' church, at 10 o'clock, Friday morning, April 6th, with a very large attendance of both the ministry and laity. The conventions of the Zion's Religio-Literary Society opening the 3d and the General Sunday School Association the 4th, had called together a large assembly, daily augmented by arrivals on every train, in some instances, whole carloads of happy Saints arriving until the first days of the Conference.

President Smith gave notice on the opening of the Conference that overflow meetings would have to be held Sundays as the number in attendance at the sessions filled the church.

In his opening remarks the president intimated that there would be some things of a trying nature to be considered, and cautioned all who were to participate in the business of the Conference to keep themselves under control, and act as children of God at all times.

The weather is beautiful though slightly cool, and all seem to be enjoying fair health.

One of the surprises sprung upon citizens, as well as strangers, was the word which went around Wednesday evening, the 4th, that Sr. Roxanna Gaylord and Bro. David A. Anderson, both of Lamoni, had, at five o'clock that evening, been united in marriage, Elder Henry A. Stebbins officiating. Congratulations were showered upon them at their appearance at church, Thursday evening.

A PRAYER.

I am weary, very weary, I am so desolate and alone. Father, the night is dreary. Tonight, let me approach thy throne. Out of my weary self, I pray Thy hand to help me day by day.

I turn my eyes to heaven's land, And fancy that I plainly see. The Father's love will be my hand Tenderly supporting me. Out of my selfish self I pray, Thy hand to lift me day by day.

Give me thy strength, and may I ever be so gratefully blessed As on the holy heights to see. The ever longed for, happy rest. Out of my lone self I pray Thy hand to lead me day by day.

Though many blessings here on earth Have been put far away from me, Yet still my eye is fixed above, My only trust is placed on thee. Out of my own weak self I pray, Thy hand to help me day by day.

Help me to live for others too, And in truly living so, To be a blessed help to those Wherever duty bids me go. Out of my weary self I pray, Thy hand to guide me day by day.

To scatter sunshine where I go, The dreary clouds help to conceal, And if such clouds must pass, may I Have strength the darkest side to shield.

Out of my sinful self I pray, Thy hand to guide me day by day. Help me to feel that thou art near, That though 'tis night and all seems drear,

To know that though I cannot see, My Father's hand still leadeth me. Out of my doubting self I pray Thy hand to lead me day by day. —OLIVE LONG.

LETTER DEPARTMENT.

NORTH DEER ISLE, Maine, Me. 20.
 —After years of trying to get into Bar Harbor, Maine, to tell them of the angel's message. We have just now succeeded in securing a little church through the efforts of Bro. Eugene Brawn, who is working there. Shall go there the first week in April to commence the work; am booked for Little Deer Isle until over Sunday April 1st. Have of late been at Stonington and this place and Little Deer Isle. Some good Saints are to be found and some also who can never see their own faults, but always ready to notice the defects of others, at Stonington quite a few are sick with the grip.
 Bro. George Eaton who has been afflicted so long, is still struggling along, he has fallen away seventy-two pounds in weight.
 Success to the Ensign and its readers.

One mistake I notice with many Saints. They do not take the church papers, yet some of them take several news papers. Some wholesome food is better than all husks.
 Hastily

KETTUSBURG, Ill., April 2.
Editor Ensign:—This beautiful spring morning finds us at this burg, located on the great "father of waters," enjoying the hospitable roof-tree of Mr. E. A. Cromptel, whose wife is a sister to mine. We feel the pleasant glow of welcome and peace in his home, whose elaborate furnishings are calculated to make one comfortable. We were kindly invited by Rev. Whittier, of the M. E. church, to occupy his pulpit, which we tried to do on last evening, facing in a very neat church, an intelligent audience of attentive listeners. We spoke with fair liberty on the Christ idea as presented in prophecy and history, and as I was before a Methodist audience I read an extract from John Wesley's sermon on the signs of times, and the latter day glory, closing with an exhortation to seek the most advanced thought, and get as near back to the old pentecostal religion as possible. The preacher thanked us for the sermon, and others commended the effort.

 My wife has been very poorly for several days, as a result from the terrible strain of the immediate past, and cold contracted, but through faith and care she is much better, and no doubt will be able to resume our journey to Lamoni on tomorrow evening. My brother, Mordica Terry, will accompany us to the conference, also Sr. John Epperly. We have received over forty epistles of love and condolence since our sad bereavement for which we are very, very grateful.
 Hoping to prove faithful to the trust reposed in us, we are still for the gospel and final victory.
 J. M. TERRY.

LAMONI, Iowa.
CREOLA, Ohio, March 12.
Dear Ensign:—The work is onward, here and the Saints are rejoicing. Bro. F. C. Smith was with us awhile wielding the sword of the Spirit with telling effect. He baptized eight and Bro. James Moler baptized two, making sixteen baptized in the last six months. We have a fine Sabbath School which is increasing in interest as well as numbers. The Saints are striving to "Come up higher," and the Lord said through Bro. Smith that he was well pleased with his people at Creola.

Dear Saints, let us press onward, the day is fast approaching in which the Son of God will come to make up his jewels, and if we do not have on the wedding garment we will not be permitted to enter into the marriage supper of the Lamb. Satan is abroad in the land exerting every power at his command to overthrow the faith of the Saints and if we are not diligent in keeping the commandments of God he will accomplish his purpose. It requires humble prayer to obtain the blessings of the Lord and the more humility the greater the blessing.

I am truly glad that I can say I know this doctrine is true and it brings joy, peace and consolation that nothing else can. We have many dark day in our lives, but we remember that the sun shines brightly behind the clouds, and many times holds blessings in disguise. It is written of the Son of God that he suffered that he might learn obedience and he "whom he loveth he chasteneth."
 "Now no chastening for the present seemeth joyous but grievous, nevertheless afterward it yieldeth the peaceable fruits of righteousness to them that are exercised thereby."
 Let us be faithful for "we shall reap if we faint not."
 Ever praying for the final triumph of God's people, I am,
 Your in the conflict,
 ELDER E. LONG.

COLLEGE, Kans., Feb. 4.
Editor Ensign:—Chelsea Park branch has just enjoyed a treat. Bro. T. C. Kelley was with us today and preached one of his inspiring and instructive sermons. He is a logical, careful reasoner, able to present his subject clearly and forcibly, and has the faculty of addressing his remarks to his congregation in such a way as to edify and instruct both those of the faith and those who are not, and of holding the attention of both, to the close.
 His sermon today on "What Must I Do to Inherit Eternal Life," was not after the manner the world calls "orthodox." but answered the question as Christ answered it, showing that obedience to the perfect law of God was necessary to salvation. The popular idea "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved," was shown to be erroneous, inasmuch as it failed to call attention to the fact that Christ's instruction to the rich young man was to "follow me," and to follow Christ was to keep his commandments, being a dear of the law and not a hearer only.

His discourse took up four instances in which that same question was asked, the form of words varying slightly, but all desiring to know what to do to be saved. He showed clearly that though the form of answer varied with the condition and circumstances of those asking the question, the information given each time was identical. The rich young man, the jailor, Paul on his way to Damascus, the multitude who inquired of Peter and the brethren, were all told in effect, "Repent and be baptized for the remission of sins in the name of Jesus Christ and you shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost." So clearly was the subject presented that no one need fail to see that the principles of the gospel were taught inquirers for salvation, and that none of these—faith, repentance, baptism, laying on of hands—could be omitted and the desired end accomplished. Many expressed themselves as pleased and edified by the sermon, and thankful to God for the evidences of the presence of His Spirit in the various services of the day.

Elder S. R. Knox, an aged member of the Advent Christian faith, lives near our place of worship and, when circumstances permit, attends our services. I was much pleased by his testimony upon the occasion of his first visit to our prayer and testimony meeting. His first words when he arose were, "I saw that the Spirit of the Lord was here as soon as I entered the room." On other occasions he has said, and to members of his own church too, "If you want to attend a good, spiritual meeting just go to the Saints' prayer meeting up in the hall." In conversation with him in his own home he said, speaking of the Saints, "You can't put your finger on a dot in their doctrine," and several times he said, "I am too old to change my church relationship, but if I were to do so it would be to join the Saints."

I was much interested in his narration of the testimony of one of the mob that was present at the killing of Joseph the martyr. "This man told me he stood at the elbow of the man who raised his knife to behead Smith; that he saw the halo of light that enveloped Smith, and saw the knife drop from the paralyzed hand of the would-be assassin. He told me he saw that light and I believe it too."

Elder Knox has always a kind word for our ministry, and has entertained our elders in his home many times. He speaks particularly of Bro. A. H. Parsons and J. M. Terry, and always inquires about them when I call to see him. Both he and his wife speak in terms of the highest praise of the Saints whom they have known, and I am indeed grateful to them for their kind words in behalf of a people who are too frequently slandered and misrepresented, being evil spoken of on account of those who have departed from the way of truth.

What a strong testimony to the truthfulness of this latter day work is this same evil speaking; for who ever heard of any other denomination being accused of being the same as the Utahites, forgetting that "they went out from among us to make manifest that they were not of us."

Yours for the faith once delivered to the Saints.
 SR. IDA STEWART.

UNION FURNACE, Ohio, Feb. 16.
Editor Ensign:—We are of the scattered ones, myself being the only Saint in this place when I came here four years ago; but now we have seven, all told, and we try to keep the truth before the people as much as we can, by talking and giving out the church papers. The opposition is very great here, but we are trying to live it down. This is the place where they burned the tent some years ago, and we cannot rent a hall at any price, so we don't get to hear much preaching.

Bro. James Moler stopped off with us, and gave us two or three good talks this winter which helped to allay prejudice. We are in hopes of being able to get the K. of P. hall in the spring, and have a series of meetings, and think there is some good honest souls here to be gathered out. We ask all the Saints to pray for Sr. Kriebel who has been sick for five years; she has been administered to a great many times and always gets

Dear Ensign:—I have just been reading the letters in the ENSIGN. My wife died last September and I am living alone; I don't know how I should get along without the ENSIGN'S visits. I should like to hear Bro. J. W. Peterson and other elders who have preached here.

Yesterday was our sacrament meeting; it stormed so I could not go. I have many trials but am still strong in the faith, and with God's help will try to press on to the end.

Bro. Wm. Robinson, our elder, is faithful to his charge and doing all he can for the good of our branch. Elder Jas. Wildermuth stopped one night with me last fall while on his way to the north part of the state; he is full of the Spirit, and a faithful servant of God. May we be humble and faithful that we may have God's spirit to guide us through this world of trouble; may the blessing of God rest on the Saints and servants of God is my prayer.
 Yours in bonds,
 H. D. LOCKWOOD.

CENTER, I. T., March 1.
Dear Ensign:—I am acquainted with but few of the Saints, but I dearly love them and when they read this they will know our whereabouts, and we would love so well for some of them to come to see us, especially some of the elders. None of the elders have ever been in this part of the country, and there are plenty of good, honest people here who seem like they would be willing to hear the gospel in its purity. We are doing everything we can to get the people interested by giving them the ENSIGN and sermon tracts to read, and some of them seem to be much interested, especially one of our nearest neighbors of the Methodist faith. She gave me 25 cents last night to help pay for the ENSIGN, so I enclose 25 cents in stamps for it.

How encouraging to isolated Saints are the letters in the church papers; for nearly two years we have been without hearing a sermon; the last was by Elder J. W. Kent at our house in the Choctaw territory. Bro. Kent, come again; we would love so well to see you and hear the gospel once more. Oh how great is our responsibility, but how great the reward in the end to us who are faithful in performing our duty. I do wish that I could see some of the Saints, as there are none here but myself and husband that we know of.

I look through the letter department every week to see a letter from Bro. and Sr. Andy Shores, but have never seen one yet; hope they will see this and come to see us and bring an elder with them. We live six miles south of Center near the Center and Stoneval road.

May we ever be on the watch-tower faithfully performing our duty is the prayer of,
 Your sister,
 M. E. STEWART.

SPRINGFIELD, Wis., March 29.
Dear Ensign:—You come to my home weekly, and your columns are always filled with news that brings comfort and cheer to the heart of the isolated ones, especially those who are not privileged to hear a good, gospel sermon very often.

There is preaching at the home of Bro. Charles Davis, at Lyons, Wisconsin, occasionally, about three and one-half miles from my home. I belong to the East Delevan branch; was baptized into the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ, August 4, 1889, by Bro. M. T. Short, and confirmed under the hands of Bro. M. T. Short, H. Southwick and W. S. Pender. I belonged to the M. E. church before hearing the gospel preached in its purity and fullness. I feel to thank God more and more as the years roll by, that I was given strength to obey. I used to often wonder when I was a member of the M. E. church why the signs did not follow the believer, but supposed it was because we lacked faith.

Your sister in gospel bonds,
 MRS. AGNES WILLIAMS.

There's nothing new about it. Your grandparents took it. 'Twas an old Sarsaparilla before other Sarsaparillas were known. It made the word "Sarsaparilla" famous over the whole world.

There's no other Sarsaparilla like it. In age and power to cure it's "The leader of them all."

GENERAL CONFERENCE.

Forty-seventh Annual Conference of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, In Session at Lamon, Iowa.

MONDAY, APRIL 9.

At 7:30 p. m. Elder H. C. Smith, of the Apostles, preached a stirring sermon on "Life." The church was filled, even the edge of the pulpit platform being filled. He had very close attention. President Joseph Smith was his assistant.

TUESDAY, APRIL 10.

The young people's prayer meeting from 7:30 to 9 was in charge of Bro. David A. Anderson and Fred B. Blair; quite a good congregation of young people assembled although the morning was blustery and quite cool, and a profitable hour was spent.

The morning prayer service was in charge of Bro. J. C. Crabb and Wm. Anderson; the church was well filled and many good testimonies were borne.

At 11 o'clock Elder Columbus Scott, of the Seventy, preached a strong discourse abounding in good points, many commendatory references being made upon it, by those present. He was assisted by Elder A. M. Chase.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The regular business session was opened promptly at 2 p. m., hymn 199 was sung, prayer offered by President Joseph Smith, who presided. Minutes of yesterday's session being read and approved, the report of the committee on Central Illinois district was read as follows:

We your committee to whom a petition from parties from Central Illinois was referred, asking for the formation of a new district, to be known as the Central Illinois district, including the four following counties now in the Nauvoo district, viz., Pike,

Brown, Adams and Schuyler, beg leave to report that, after a careful examination of the petition and the map of the said district we believe that it will be to the advantage of the work to grant the request of the petitioners; and in order that the boundary lines may be more easily determined, we recommend that the following counties compose the new district, viz., bound northwardly Adams, Schuyler, Mason, Logan, DeWitt, Platt, Champaign and Vermillion, on the east Edwards county; southwardly, Coles, Shelby, Christian, Sangamon, Morgan, Scotland, Pike counties, including the interior counties Brown, Cass, Menard, Macon, Moultrie and Douglas. In this action it became expedient to take two counties, Morgan and Scott, from the St. Louis district; seven, Macon, Moultrie, Douglas, Edger, Cole, Shelby and Christian, from the southeastern district; and four, Pike, Brown, Adams and Schuyler, from the Nauvoo district, this being done by mutual consent. We recommend that the new district thus formed be granted to the petitioners, ratified by this conference.

[Signed] R. J. PARKER, F. J. EHRING, E. A. SPEDMAN, } Com.

The new district thus proposed is composed of twenty-two counties, the counties detached from other districts being necessary in order to make parallel lines and a square territory.

The committee appointed to audit the books of the Bishop reported recommending a system of double entry instead of the present system used in keeping the books, be adopted. Total receipts, $50,212.43; total expenses, $36,202.88; balance $14,009.55. The report was quite lengthy and called forth explanations from the Bishop, the chairman of the auditing committee, and from Bro. Robert Winning for a committee of three expert book-keepers. Nearly the entire afternoon was occupied in making explanations of the report, and the methods of procedure in making up the statement, on the part of Bishop Kelley, and the auditing committees. A resolution prevailed, that the report be spread upon the minutes, and that action thereon be made the special order for Thursday afternoon. The Bishop asked that when this report is spread upon the minutes, that his explanation immediately following the reading of the report, be also spread upon the minutes, and a motion so prevailed, as did also a resolution for publishing the statement of Bro. Winning for the experts.

Announcements were made and adjournment was taken.

EVENING SESSION.

At 7:30 p. m. the program arranged by the Daughters of Zion was given as per resolution previously passed and announcements made. Several excellent papers were read, receiving the manifest approval of the large audience present. The musical part of the program was well rendered and much enjoyed.

The program was quite lengthy, requiring until 10 o'clock to complete it, and even then the last paper by Sr. F. W. Davis, was abbreviated. One noticeable feature was the entire absence of the brethren from assignments upon it, except that the invocation was offered by Bishop E. A. Blakeslee, and the benediction by Apostle R. C. Evans.

In the lower auditorium Elder T. W. Chaburn occupied the pulpit, a good sized audience being present, and were well repaid for their attention and interest. At its conclusion, Elder J. D. White, who assisted him, made some remarks commendatory of Bro. Chaburn's excellent effort, and was followed by Bro. J. J. Cornish and J. C. Cross, in the same line giving some experiences in their ministry, along the line of the subject discussed, which was that from the basis that "Jesus is the Light of the World."

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 11.

The morning prayer meetings were in charge of Bro. D. A. Anderson and J. D. White, for the young people, and Chas. A. Smith and F. C. Wernick, at the school meeting. Excellent experiences were realized by those participating in these services.

At 10:45 a. m., Elder T. W. Williams addressed a large assembly upon the theme of brotherly love. We cannot begin to enlarge upon the points emphasized upon but it was much commended. He was assisted by M. H. Forscutt, of the High Priests.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

After the usual preliminaries, reading of minutes etc., owing to the fact that the Society Islands mission is unrepresented, and that their conference not being held until too late to appoint delegates and notify Conference, an action that Conference appointed Bro. and Sr. Hubert L. R. Devore as delegates, was presented, discussed and defeated.

Report of Board of Publication was next presented and read, and ordered spread upon the minutes subject to further action by the body. The inventory of the Herald office was presented, but being lengthy, and its publication in the minutes of the Conference being a matter of a few weeks, only the recapitulation was read as follows:

Net loss	$2157 83

The above report shows an apparent loss of $2157.83, which is accounted for in large part in this way: This year a new manner of taking inventory was adopted which has resulted in a seeming loss in nearly every department, but will be beneficial in its future results, furnishing a safe basis of valuation. The plates alone have been reduced $1150.00. There has been entered on our delinquent list for the Herald, Hope and Autumn Leaves for the past four years the sum of about $9,000, which is due this office, but is not figured as an asset in this report.

Board of Trustees of Graceland College followed, showing 130 lots unsold. They recommended that one board be retired, leaving but one board of trustees to do the business of the college. The treasurer's report from May 1, 1899, to April 1, 1900: Cash on hand May 1, 1899, $20.92; received by donations, sale of lots, tuition, money borrowed, $1,851.16; over draft, $102.36; total, $11,974.44. Paid out, incidentals, $778.88; debts paid, $6162.45; interest, $1649.63; salary, $2949.50; coal, $448.93; total, $11,974.44. Estimated assets: 10 acres campus, $2000.00; 180 lots, $16,250.00; library, $1500.00; piano, chairs, desks, etc., $500.00; 6 typewriters, $800.00; college building, heating plant, etc., $20,000.00; total, $40,550.00. Total present indebtedness, $23,551.63. Estimated cost of running college for ensuing year, $3,000.00; total estimated income for ensuing year, $1,375.00. The estimated income is derived from the following sources: Thirty-five subscribers who have agreed to pay $25.00 each per year, for five years, towards running expenses, having yet three years to run. Total, per year, $875.00; tuition, $500.00; total, $1,375.00. Signed by Wm. Anderson, treasurer.

The board of directors also made report of their work. The first year of the college total enrollment of scholars was 40, second year 48, third year 74, fourth year 51, fifth year (1900) 62. Other items were reported fully, including course of study, library, museum, etc.

The committee on southern Michigan, and Northern Michigan and Southern Indiana districts for change of boundary line, reported taking three counties (Oceana, Newaygo and Mecosta) from the southern and adding to the northern district. This report was endorsed and committee discharged.

Secretary read list of ex officio members of Conference and corrected it.

Report of Third Quorum of elders was made, showing 48 elders reporting 134 baptisms. Requests for ordination of president of the quorum was provided for. Walter M. Self, selected.

Report of historian of the church was made. Condition of church encouraging. Reference was made to death of Jason W. Briggs, who was the first president of the Reorganization from 1853 to 1865. The public press has given more notice to the church during the last year, generally showing the patriotism of the church and the consistency of its claims as compared with Biblical teachings. Discussions were more frequent during the last two years.

It was, by motion, ordered that all quorums and all other departments, prepare a report and place in hands of historian such items as they may have during the year, by a vote of 204 in favor, and 58 negative. It was also moved to return report to historian for corrections as to the items suggested.

Petition from St. Joseph branch as follows, was read:

To the President and Delegates in General Conference assembled:—The undersigned committee appointed by, and on behalf of, the St. Joseph branch, of Far West Missouri, district of the church, most respectfully presents for your consideration, Petition of the branch that you authorize the Presidency and Bishopric to take such measures—harmonizing with the laws of the church—as, from the contributions of the St. Joseph Saints, will provide for the payment of the debt upon our church of five thousand dollars; the amount advanced by our treasurer, about two hundred dollars; and at the same time provide for branch expenses, as well as looking after and caring for the poor and needy of the church.

Respectfully submitted,
[Signed] Wm. Lewis, C. E. HUBACHER, ROBERT WINNING.

Committee appointed by St. Joseph branch, April 4, 1900.

It was moved to refer to the Twelve and Bishopric. An amendment was offered striking out the words "the Twelve" and inserting "First Presidency." This was followed by a substitute, That we grant the request of the petitioners of the St. Joseph branch. Discussion followed, and, upon vote being taken, the petition was affirmed, the vote being 189 for to 108 against.

Petition from Fanning, Kansas, branch, relative to ordination of L. G. Gurwell to the office of an elder, was, on motion, referred to a committee of three, appointed by the chair. M. M. Turpen, T. W. Williams and T. W. Chaburn were appointed said committee.

Petition requesting the return of Bro. Jos. F. Burton to labor in Nova Scotia mission, was, on motion, referred to the Twelve for consideration and action.

Petition from Galland's Grove, Iowa, district, requesting the Conference to take steps to enlarge the Hymnal was read, and was, on motion, referred to a committee of three, consisting of F. G. Pitt, A. H. Parsons and J. W. Gilbert.

Petition from Independence, Missouri, district, requesting establishment of a mission in Kansas City, U. S. A., with headquarters in Missouri, was, on motion, referred to the Twelve for action.

Announcements were made and benediction pronounced by the president.

EVENING SESSION.

At 7:30 p. m. Apostle J. W. Lake occupied, as previously announced, preaching about an hour and twenty minutes from the texts, "Examine Yourselves Whether Ye Be in the Faith," and "Try the Spirits for Many False Prophets Have Gone Out Into the World." Bro. Lake is 70 years old, but read from the small edition Book of Mormon, and from a Bible printed in very fine type, by the light of a lamp, without having to use spectacles. The discourse contained many good points and was appreciated by those who heard it. There was no overflow meeting.

THURSDAY, APRIL 12.

The young people's prayer service was in charge of Bro. J. D. White and David A. Anderson, and was a splendid meeting. Several prayers were offered and in thirty-two minutes twenty-three testimonies were given and two songs sung.

At 9 o'clock the regular prayer service was in charge of Bro. Chas. A. Albertson and Holmes J. Davison. A good number were present and a profitable time was enjoyed; a young lad was confirmed at the close.

At 10:45, Elder F. C. Keck preached in his usual forceful way. He was assisted by two Lamanite brethren, Elders J. T. Riley and Noah Karahoo.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The opening prayer was by Elder M. H. Forscutt; an earnest and feeling invocation which evidenced the harmony of its expression with the spirit of the audience, in the fervent, though subdued, amen, given from time to time.

Minutes of yesterday's session were approved.

Some explanations were made by Bro. F. M. Weld and J. A. Gunsolley, of auditing committee, and Bishop E. L. Kelley, on the auditing matter.

Committee on increasing the size of the Hymnal, reported that they had considered the matter carefully and found that the approximate cost of adding from 125 to 150 tunes to the present Hymnal, will be $225, for setting music, making electro plates, and re-arranging index, and that the price of the enlarged book would not be over 75 cents per copy, probably less, and recommended that from 150 to 200 tunes be added to the present collection and bound together in one book with index re-arranged. A motion to lay the matter on the table was agreed to by a vote of 248 for and 55 against.

On motion the report of the Patriarch was called up, and motion was offered that the conference authorize the employment of a stenographer and typewriting machine, but after some discussion the matter was, on motion, deferred.

Third quorum of priests reported, asking that John Jervis and J. W. Layton be ordained as counsellors to the president. The request was on motion granted.

The fourth quorum of priests reported having held three sessions. Bro. W. H. Murphy, of Independence, Missouri, was elected president; on motion, ordination requested was ordered provided for. They reported that 43 reports were received, showing 952 sermons, 24 baptisms, presided over 276 sacramental services, 452 prayer services, 704 preaching services, 450 visits, 15 marriages performed.

At this juncture the ordinations of Bro. D. R. Chambers, J. W. Adams, and Arthur Allen, to the seventy; W. H. Murphy, as president of fourth quorum of priests, and W. M. Self, as president of third quorum of elders, was ordered. Apostles G. T. Griffiths and J. W. Wight officiated in the ordination of J. W. Adams; J. W. Wight and G. T. Griffiths, for David R. Chambers; G. T. Griffiths and J. W. Wight, for Arthur Allen; J. H. Lake and R. C. Evans, for Bro. W. H. Murphy, as president of the fourth quorum of priests; R. C. Evans and J. H. Lake, for W. M. Self, as president of the third quorum of elders; and J. H. Lake and R. C. Evans, for John Jervis, as first counselor to the president of the third quorum of priests. The service, in the setting apart of these brethren, was marked by a spirit of deep solemnity.

Petition from Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, district that the conference more clearly define action to be taken when members continually absent themselves from church services, and fail to keep their oft repeated promises when visited by proper officers, was presented and, on motion, was referred to the First Presidency; on another motion, Presidency was requested to express their opinion to this Conference before its close.

Petition from Denver, Colorado branch, requesting the General Conference to meet in that city at its next session, was read and filed for action when the consideration of the adjournment is had.

Report of committee of Presidency, Twelve and Bishopric upon the duties of a deacon in the church, was taken up and read; a motion to adopt and discharge the committee was made, and amendment was offered to strike out "to have charge of the treasury, to receive, disburse and account for contributions intended for incidental expenses of the association of members," etc, and insert at the close of the report:

"The book of rules page 141 recognizes the existence of an officer in a branch known as financial clerk. Such officer may or may not be an ordained member, qualification and ability to act in that capacity being the principle consideration."

Motion to strike out was lost. On separate motions amendments to the report were voted down and the committee's report was adopted. The following is the report:

REPORT OF FIRST PRESIDENCY, TWELVE, AND BISHOPRIC, ON "THE DUTIES OF A DEACON."

The committee composed of the Presidency, the Twelve, and the Bishopric, to which the following resolution presented to the late session of conference held at Independence, Missouri, April 6-18, 1898, was referred for consideration and report, do so report, as follows:

The resolution presented to conference was:

"Be it resolved by this body, in conference assembled, that we concur in and hereby adopt the definition of the duties of a deacon as defined by President Joseph Smith in Herald of June 15, 1871, and No. 25, vol. 31, of Saints' Herald."

"C. F. CHURCH.
"C. E. BLAIR."

The resolution of the conference by which the matter was referred, is:

"Resolved, that a committee, consisting of the First Presidency, the Twelve, and the Bishopric, be appointed, to whom this matter be referred, to whom this matter be referred, to whom this matter be referred, as soon as practicable to the General Conference, what, in their judgment, are the duties belonging to the office of deacon in the church."

This committee met in the church at Independence, Missouri, April 19, 1898, at nine a. m., and proceeded to the duties assigned them.

After a session of several hours, the committee, by a unanimous vote, adopted the following as their judgment upon the matter submitted to them:

"Resolved, that we approve of the duties set forth in the article referred to as a rule of action to aid the deacon in his labor, in addition to his duties as made plain in the law (D. & C. 17: 11), as a standing minister to the church, under the direction of proper officers placed over him in the law."

The committee directed the chairman and secretary of the council to compile from the said article in the Herald, referred to in the resolution before the conference, the duties named therein and incorporate them in the report to be made of the action of the committee thereon. Those duties thus compiled from said article as stated in paragraphs 32 and 33, with the preliminary explanation at the beginning of paragraph 32, are as follows:

"We have elsewhere written that every branch must have a place of meeting. The place of meeting, if a public building, hall, or meetinghouse or church, must be in the actual possession of the association of church members worshipping there, at least during its occupancy while worshipping; and if the property is owned by the church, so that one must have constructive possession at all times. What particular officer of the church has precedence of right in this constructive possession? The right to carry the keys, to open the doors; conduct visitors, whether those belonging or not belonging to the church; to see that the floors, doors, windows, pulpit or stand, seats, table or stand, lamps and other fixtures are clean and in good order; to open the doors at the hour of gathering for preaching, fellowship, prayer, or business meetings; to see that the lamps or candles are trimmed, lighted and burning in time for evening meetings; to see that the members coming in find seats; to keep watch over the Saints during meetings, repressing loud talking, whispering and laughing, reproving the thoughtless, and rebuking the giddy; putting a prompt stop to rude, indecent and boisterous acts, by which the propriety, solemnity and peace of the meetings may be disturbed; to exercise kind and diligent supervision over the health and comfort of the Saints while in meeting, by securing a proper ventilation of the room; to light and keep burning the fires by which the room is kept warm; to have charge of the treasury; to receive, disburse and account for the contributions of the Saints, intended for necessary and incidental expenses of the association of members; to keep, preserve from damage, and account for all personal effects of the association; to visit the poor, ascertain their needs, and report the same to the church; and in fact, to perform any and all of those necessary duties by which the welfare of the Saints is secured through a careful administration of the outward ordinances, a faithful employment of the talents entrusted to that man. It follows then of a necessity that the right, the duty of the performing these acts—these unwritten but essential things of the law, devolve upon the office of deacon."

JOSEPH SMITH, Chairman.
J. W. WIGHT, Secretary.

The matter of dispensing with board of directors of Graeland College and give board of trustees full charge of college affairs was taken up and a motion accepting the resignation of all directors was offered, but further action was, on motion, deferred until after the reading of report of the board treasurer.

Announcements were read and adjournment was had.

At 7:30 p. m. Elder G. W. Robley was the speaker, assisted by C. E. Willey. Bro. J. J. Cornish preached at the Saints' Home. About one hundred, as many as could be accommodated, were present.

FRIDAY, APRIL 13.

At the young people's prayer service at 9 a. m., in the lower auditorium. Elders J. B. Wildermuth and A. J. Keck presided. In the upper room Bro. D. E. Powell and J. C. Elvert conducted the regular prayer service. At 10:45 Bro. J. M. Baggerly was the preacher, being assisted by Bro. M. H. Bond; the sermon was favorably commented upon.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Hymn 142 was sung in the opening and prayer was offered by Elder John Hawley. President A. H. Smith then took the chair and the business of the afternoon was taken up.

Second quorum of priests reported, had chosen Bro. G. W. Blair president, Norman Smith and A. K. Anderson, counselors, on account of vacancies. They asked for ordination of these brethren, which was, on motion, granted.

The Second quorum of elders reported 5220 sermons, and 330 baptisms.

Auditing committee of Herald Publishing House, reported finding accounts correct, to the best of their understanding, as they did also the report of the business manager. On motion the report was adopted.

Report of committee on auditing committee's report of Bishop's account, made special order for three p. m., was called up and a motion to adopt the report was offered. To this a substitute was offered, deferring the action until tomorrow, and the printing of the substitute.

Petition from Maysville and Fairland, Indian Territory, branches of the Spring River district, relative to boundary lines, was, on motion, referred to a committee of three, which was appointed by the chair, consisting of Bro. I. N. White, A. J. Moore and Ellis Short.

Report of treasurer of college committee was next taken up, and, on motion, was referred to auditing committee of three, appointed by the body, to consider and report to this body. Bro. Robert Wining, W. N. Robinson and A. J. Keck were named committee.

Presidency's report, asking for an office secretary, typewriter and other facilities, was next presented, and a motion authorizing such assistance was offered and unanimously agreed to.

The request of the Patriarch of the church for authority to employ a stenographer, purchase desk, typewriter, etc., to be used in his work, was, on motion, called up. Report was read and a motion granting the request of the Patriarch carried by a vote 142 for, to 99 against, and a subsequent motion granting that such stenographer be paid upon a ministerial basis was carried.

Petition from first, second, third and fourth quorums of priests and second quorum of deacons, asking that the Bishopric meet with the Aaronic priesthood and give them instruction in their duties. The Bishop appointed Saturday evening at 7:30 in the lower room. The session then closed; benediction by Bishop Kelley.

EVENING SESSION.

A large audience greeted Bro. R. Etzenhouser at the 7:30 p. m. service, he having been announced to lecture upon "Cumorah," the hill where the Book of Mormon plates were found. A fine painting of the hill and its surrounding fields hung on the wall, adding interest to the subject. The speaker was filled with his subject, and his lecture abounded in figures, statistics and historical data. It was an inspiring and instructive effort throughout, and the large audience present showed their appreciation by the close attention paid.

SATURDAY, APRIL 14.

The young people's prayer service at 9 a. m., was in charge of Bro. A. B. Phillips, of Boston, Massachusetts, and Richard Baldwin, of Sharon, Pennsylvania. It was a spiritual and refreshing season. In the upper auditorium Bro. James Moler and J. E. Terry had charge of the morning prayer meeting, and it also was profitable and enjoyable.

At 10:45 a. m. Mark H. Forscutt discoursed from the basis of the subject presented in the last two verses in the old Testament. The sermon was good and much enjoyed by the hearers.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The opening invocation was offered by Bro. R. May. After the usual opening exercises were concluded, and before commencing the business of the afternoon, Bro. Joseph Luff, of the Apostles, arose to a question of privilege, and in a most eloquent and feeling speech, on behalf of Bro. R. Elzenhouser, Dr. O. H. Riggs, Bro. Yingling, and the body of Saints, presented Presidents Joseph and Alexander H. Smith, each a came made from wood grown on the hill "Cumorah," from whence, through the ministrations of an angel, the ancient records of the Book of Mormon were taken. To this the recipients each made a reply in acception, in well spoken words, made difficult by the emotion they felt. A unanimous vote of thanks was tendered those who were instrumental in this gift.

The regular order of the afternoon, the consideration of the auditing committee's report was taken up. The resolution offered at yesterday's session for the appointment of revising committees was read; in discussion ensued, participated in by Elders G. H. Hilliard, R. S. Salyards and R. C. Evans, the latter offering a substitute for the motion before the house; this was seconded and discussed briefly. Vote being called, the motion of Bro. R. C. Evans was declared carried by a vote of 265 for and 84 against.

A motion that the auditing committee's report and explanations referring thereto be not published was on motion laid on the table 178 to 71.

Nominations for auditors for auditing the Bishop's accounts, as per foregoing resolution, were made and several names put before the assembly; and Bro. F. M. Weld, R. M. Elvin and M. F. Gowell, were chosen, with J. A. Gunsolley as alternate, in case any one of the committee should be unable to serve, through circumstances which he could not overcome.

A motion that the Bishop be instructed to prepare his books for auditing, on or before the first of August was denied.

A petition from Teachers, asking to be organized into a quorum was referred to the quorum of Twelve.

For place of holding the next conference, Independence, Missouri, Denver, Colorado, Kirtland, Ohio; London, Canada; Oklahoma City, Oklahoma; Richmond, Virginia; Boston, Massachusetts, and Lamoni, Iowa, were placed in nomination, and Independence was declared the choice. A motion to make the date of the next conference April 6, 1902, instead of 1901, was denied by a big majority and the conference, therefore, will convene next April in annual conference.

Report of committee to audit the report of treasurer of Graceland college, was read.

A motion prevailed that tomorrow (Sunday) be observed as a day of fasting and prayer, that the Lord may give such light and direction upon such things as in his wisdom he sees is needed.

Announcements were read and session adjourned.

SUNDAY, APRIL 15.

The 9 o'clock prayer service was largely attended, the church being full on the main floor and in the gallery. M. H. Forsouth and Chas. Derry were in charge. The Saints met, fasting, and a good spirit was present, though the peace of the assembly was somewhat marred by the continual movements in securing seats, of those who were late to the service, and the tendency of two or three to occupy too much time for the occasion.

At 11 o'clock the upper auditorium and galleries were packed there hardly being standing room. Apostle Joseph Luff was the speaker. In the lower room which was also filled, M. H. Bond, of the Seventy, occupied. The day was cloudy but the temperature was not unpleasant.

AFTERNOON.

At 2:30 p. m. a large assemblage gathered at the church, a prayer and testimony meeting in charge of Bro. Charles Derry and F. G. Pitt. It was a good spiritual meeting, many earnest supplications being offered that light and direction might be given upon all matter needing such guidance.

Shortly before the evening service a steady rain began falling and increased in volume as the time approached for opening the meeting. In consequence of this not more than half the usual congregation was able to be present to hear the lecture of Bro. G. T. Griffiths upon the subject of "Priesthood." The subject was illustrated by a large chart showing a tree, the trunk of which was called "Priesthood." The topmost stem and two branches growing out of it were designated "President," "Counselor and Second Counselor," respectively, then followed in order branches from the tree named "Twelve" and "Seventy" High Priests, Patriarch, etc., with various appendages. By the side of this tree was two columns representing the various orders of the priesthood in parallels, one being "Pastoral," the other "Missionary;" the whole topped by two caps, the first representing the "First Presidency, the second the "Second Presidency" (Twelve). Some criticisms were offered at the close of the service which were invited by the speaker who said he did not claim perfection for his chart; but the time was two short to satisfactorily discuss the matter, it being fifteen minutes past nine when service closed. Bro. Griffiths suggested that perhaps an evening could be secured this week in the lower auditorium where a full canvass could be made. It was still raining hard when the audience emerged from the church, and continued during the night, replenishing the cisterns, which was quite acceptable to Lamoni dwellers as well as to the farmers.

Hattie M. and Leander G., children of Bro. and Sr. W. H. Kelley, and George and John Potts were baptized in the Home pond about 1:30 p. m. Also a young man whose name we did not learn. Bro. A. M. Chase was the administrator in this case.

MONDAY, APRIL 16.

The nine o'clock morning prayer service was led by Bro.

R. Bullard and E. Wildermuth. At 10:45 Bishop G. H. Hilliard was speaker, being assisted by Bro. R. M. Elvin. The attendance is diminishing, many having returned home, but there was a good audience present.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The usual opening exercises being completed, a motion to take up the question of permitting the chairman of the Auditing Committee, and the Bishop to make explanations regarding the auditors' report was raised, and on motion, their explanations were authorized incorporated in the minutes.

The report of the treasurer of Graceland College was next called up; report was read as previously published. The report of the auditors' finding was also read. In addition to these a supplemental report was read showing in detail, account of the college with E. L. Kelley. On motion report was ordered adopted.

The General Church Recorder's report was called up, and the portion relating to his request for an assistant to learn the methods and details of this important office so that in the event of his release, which must come ere long, the work will not suffer. It was stated that it will require months of instruction for even a competent man to learn this work. A motion was made, granting request of the Recorder, but in consideration of the fact that favorable action had been taken three years ago authorizing the President and Bishop of the church to arrange for such an assistant, this motion was referred to that committee, the understanding being that Bro. Stebbins should nominate the brother to fill the position.

Report of Elder F. G. Pitt, late in charge of English mission, was read, and ordered spread upon the minutes; the report included reports of Bro. Wm. Newton and Jenkins.

A motion prevailed to take up and dispose of all matters pertaining to Graceland College, as did a motion to accept the resignation of the board of directors upon the qualification of their successors. A motion to accept resignation of board of trustees was also adopted. This was followed by a resolution to adopt the proposed amendment to the constitution and by-laws of the college, providing for the abolition of the board of directors, and that the board of trustees have full power to act in the business of the college. This resolution was amended permitting the reading of each article to which reference in the resolution is made, and the corrections made as they are reached. On a further motion the matter was referred to a committee of three for comparison and report, and Bro. E. L. Kelley, J. H. Hanson and C. R. Duncan were so appointed. Pending the return and report of committee a resolution was offered, that, in view of the indebtedness upon the college, the college be closed until the debt is cancelled. This was on motion laid on the table subject to call.

Committee on petition of Maysville and Fairland branches reported 36th parallel line as the division, and on motion report was adopted and committee discharged.

The committee on college matters returned and reported they had verified the articles sought to be amended and found them correct as marked. Report was adopted, and the articles as amended were also adopted. The articles of incorporation as amended were then adopted as a whole. The nominations for trustees was then taken up, and pending this action the hour of adjournment arrived and after reading of announcements adjournment was taken.

At 7:30 p. m. Elder A. C. Barmore occupied, being assisted by Elder H. N. Hansen.

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS.

Branch headquarters, 716 W. Van Buren St., Sunday meetings 2:45 and 7:45 p. m.; Lang Mission, 3411 Cottage Grove Ave., 10:45 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.; West Pullman branch, 12024 Union Ave., 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.; Parkside Mission, 7124 Stony Island Ave., 3:00 and 7:30 p. m.; 508 W. 37th St. (colored mission), 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.

The Wednesday night prayer meeting (5th) at Lang mission was very good. A Mr. John Johnson who has relatives in the church was present, and seemed to enjoy the meeting very much. He was to leave for the south on Thursday night, but before starting he went to Bro. E. J. Lang and requested baptism, and was baptized about 9:30 p. m. in Lake Michigan; then came back to Lang mission and was confirmed and started on his way rejoicing. Bro. Lang says other elders had sown the seed in past years, that he had the pleasure of watering it and now prays God to give the increase. At the Thursday night prayer meeting at branch headquarters, four who are not members of the church as yet were present. A gentleman who has been a minister for a number of years, and who has only met with our people the last two or three weeks here, bore a good testimony, telling of his different experiences in different churches; how he was looking for light, and declared that he would stick by us until he learned either one way or the other whether we were the true church or not. He was followed by an elderly lady who also stated she was looking for light and that she would also stick by us until she came in or out. This gospel will bear investigation, so we are anxious that they will receive the light necessary to convince them of the truthfulness of the work. Elder Durand of Michigan was present at this meeting on his way to General Conference.

Easter morning found Lang mission comfortably filled with Saints to witness the baptism of five into the fold. A very pleasant and peaceful hour was spent. At night three more were baptized at the same place, so the new font has already proven itself very useful. Bro. Walter Sanderson was one of the candidates baptized, so now our energetic sister Mable can call him "brother" in a two fold sense. We all rejoice with her as well as her brother, and bid all our new brethren and sisters welcome into the fold, and invite many more to join our happy gospel family in this great city. The speaker at branch headquarters in the afternoon was Elder D. C. Smith, of Dahinda, Illinois, and Bro. F. M. Pitt occupied at night. Both brethren gave us good food for thought. With baptisms, confirmations, administrations and preaching of the word, our elders were kept busy.

Bro. Terry was advertised yesterday as being "at home" next Sunday. We shall indeed be glad to greet him, and urge all the Saints of the city to be present to give him and his wife a hearty welcome on their return. We are not positive as to the appointments, but suppose they will be Lang mission at 10:45 a. m. and 716 Van Buren St. at 2:45 and 7:45. Anyway come to church, and see what a good guesser the deacon is.

ELMER.

April 16.

A CHEERFUL temper joined with innocence, will make beauty attractive, knowledge delightful, and wit good natured.—Addison.

ZION'S ENSIGN.

ADDRESS OF ELDER F. G. PITT AT OPENING OF CONFERENCE,

We certainly have much to be grateful for, and every reason to rejoice in meeting together under such favorable circumstances. It seems to me that never in my life have I enjoyed any experience as I have the last few weeks.

Two years ago when it began to dawn upon my mind that it was just possible that I should have a foreign mission and that mission might be England, I felt to dread and to almost pray that God might deliver me from that mission. But when the question was asked, Could I go, I replied that I could, so far as I knew, and then all apprehension of evil left me, and not only did I feel willing, but really anxious to go. Quite a remarkable change came over my mind and I felt the spirit of that mission, and all the time I was there felt that I had not only been sent by the body, but that God had a hand in my being sent there.

I wish I could give a glowing account of my work and tell you how greatly we have prospered, but I cannot do that truthfully, and can only report that as I see the work it is only in a moderately good condition. The circumstances under which the missionary is called to labor in that land are quite different from what they are here, the opportunities for spreading the work are not what they are in this land. There are very few chances for school-houses and churches in which to occupy as you have them here. Our work in that land is mostly in cities and towns. Very little has been done in the country. Some of our people, I think I may say the most of them, are hard working people. We have difficulties to contend with there that you do not have here. But I think the greatest obstacle that has stood in our way has been the bad work wrought through the apostasy, in other words, Brighamism, and we have had difficulty in getting the ears of the people on account of our name. We found at last that we could only reach the people, that is, the majority there, by outdoor work. I was almost amused at the efforts that the brethren took to advertise me and its results. I remember one instance in London when I first went there. I think they got out no less than ten thousand handbills. I thought it was rather extreme and I began to figure how many we might expect out to our little meeting room in London. I figured if each handbill was properly distributed it ought to reach at least five people. If one-half the people came that the handbills would reach, we might expect twenty-five thousand people, and I began to talk to the brethren about this, but they did not seem to manifest any alarm, and I found there was no cause for any, as I think not more than five individuals were called out on account of these numerous handbills. People promised to come. A house to house canvass was made, but no sooner do people learn that we are Latter Day Saints than it is sufficient excuse for them to stay away.

Not being successful in reaching the people indoors, we found that we would have to adopt some other methods. They would not come to us, and so yielding to the invitation of the brethren there, I attempted outdoor preaching. I think I never had a bigger cross in my life than to undertake this kind of work, unless it was when I was first called upon to occupy the desk in preaching in the beginning of my ministry. But I attempted it, and I can say truthfully, that I have never enjoyed more liberty than in standing in the streets of London and other places to tell the people what this work was; and sometimes people would listen from one to two hours at a time, and after the preaching by myself and the local brethren, they would ask questions, and in this way the work has been advertised. How many will come in I do not know, but I have ceased to worry about people entering the church. My duty as I see it is to sow the seed, and leave the reaping to the higher power.

I have rejoiced exceedingly in the work there and have found many good people, both in and out of the church, and I believe that the work there ought to be prosecuted with a kind and a firm hand. There are many Saints who are watching us here and who are anxious to receive help from the people in this land. A few men over there have the idea that we cannot do much in the way of missionary labor, and because they have been heard, some people have the idea that the English people are opposed to American missionaries. This is a mistake. I think Bro. Newton, associated with me there, will bear me out in this, and I know of no more than four or five individuals who are in anywise opposed to American missionaries, and they are not as much so as some suppose, only they are afraid that you might swamp them, like the Brighamite church is said to swamp some of their people over there by the great army of missionaries and take away the rights of the local brethren. I think there is no danger of that, but where there is a little of this feeling on the part of some, there is a great anxiety on the part of others to receive help from this land.

There was one very pleasing feature of our work there that was encouraging. We found that when the servants of God worked, God worked with them; that they did not have to stand alone. In Cardiff we undertook a work in connection with the local brethren and the result was, that quite a number of those that belonged to the Utah Church joined in with us. They were quite opposed to us at first. We went around from house to house, showing them the truth, and some were almost fierce in their opposition toward us. But these very people began to have visions in the night; they came to our meetings, and they heard the voice of prophecy, and the gift of tongues. They asked their ministers, "What does this mean? You have been preaching to us that the gifts and blessing of the gospel were in the church. We never saw them in our church. How is it that these Josephites have the gift of prophecy and tongues?" and while their elders tried to explain these things away, it left its effects, and they began to ask the question, "Arewright or not?" and many of them have joined in with us and are developing in the latter day work. This of itself is encouraging. Another thing: I found that we need not be afraid of giving the people all the truth. We simply have to throw it out among them and it will take care of itself. And you would be surprised to see the people listening night after night outdoors, standing and waiting for us to come, and they did not go to sleep either, as some people do in the house. They stood there and listened with the utmost attention.

We have some good workers there; they need encouragement. And those who are sent among them need to be kind; they need to be firm in well. You can hardly expect people over there, brought up under different circumstances and customs from what we are used to, to receive at once what we have now, and we may try to have them adopt, and for that reason those who go there have to carefully study the methods employed there, and the disposition of the people, and many other things.

Then, too, you are called upon to engage in such a variety of work. At one time you have to go among the people, visit their houses, talk to them about the work in a social way. Another time you are called to handle the outside influences. At Nantyglo I was met there with a fierce kind of opposition, and I had almost tormented myself that God had so blessed me that I was able to bring about a good work without meeting serious opposition; but in that place I had to undergo something like that which Egel said he had to meet at one time when the people cried out, "Gwen is the goddess Diana of the Ephesians." I faced the crowd two nights and the next night I felt when I was through that I would like to go home. I hardly knew whether to give it up or come again. "If you do preach," the brethren said, "you will be worse treated than before, because tomorrow is Saturday night and most of them will be under the influence of liquor and you will fare pretty hard." I tried it once more. I went there after three nights opposition, and then the opposition broke and I spoke under the influence of the divine Spirit, to me, it seemed, better than I had ever been able to speak before; and when I was through, a gentleman came forward and wished to make a few remarks.

He proved to be one of the officials of the town, a lawyer, and he bore testimony to those people that what I had told them was true. "I do not know what denomination this man belongs to," he said, "but I know he has taught you the Bible and you can believe in what he has told you." They gathered around in little groups and came to the conclusion that they had treated me badly. So I won the victory. To God be all the praise.

These little incidents will show you what we have to contend with in that country. I rejoice in the work, and while it has not all been sunshine—there has been some degree of trial—but like the brother stated before me, we have always felt nearest to the Master when we have been able to suffer with him; and I have never felt more at home in my mission than when I have gone about among those poor people, some of them just out of the mines, and attempted to tell them the simple truth as it is in Christ. As I saw their black faces and their eyes shining with interest it seemed to me as if I was fulfilling in a limited degree a prophecy where the Lord says, "I will send among you hunters and fishers, and they will hunt for you among the rocks where you have been driven." I felt that was part of my mission, and while it has not all been sunshine, yet the Lord has stood by me there and I have often felt the Saints were praying for me while I was under trial, and I needed none to tell me that I had an interest in your prayers. The more I see of this latter day work the more convinced I am of its truth and its ultimate triumph.

May we be enabled to endure until the end, is my prayer.

ADDRESS OF ELDER G. R. WELLS.

Brother Pitt told you that the more he saw of this work, the more he was convinced of its final triumph. I believe the sweetest conception that is possible for the human soul to contemplate is that the great ultimate to which we claim this latter day movement is tending may and can be reached. It is that which helps us to sacrifice.

Our president this morning stated that we needed in our nature to be firm and elastic. I have found out after seven years of experience that I was too elastic in certain respects when I left here, and not enough in others; and also that if I had stayed there very much longer I would have got too rigid in some other fibers of my character. Therefore, I now feel that it was necessary that I should go; and necessary for the cause and myself that I should return. I believe I accomplished the little that divine wisdom contemplated when I was sent. I have told my brethren of the Twelve that I am now satisfied (I was not just after I landed there) with the wisdom that sent me to Australia, and therefore am willing to trust that same wisdom in the next appointment. Brother Pitt's experience reminded me much of mine in Australia, which is populated from the home land where he was. I hope I do not need, this morning, to explain that it is like the United States in regard to source of population—only more English. They have their aboriginal tribes the same as we have here who are fast fading out under the baneful influences of civilization's whisky and other corrosive forces. The Anglo-Saxon race which threatens to capture this world has taken possession of that land, as it has here. We have an area there of within a few square miles the same as these United States, excepting Alaska. While you have seventy-three million people, they have only a little under four million, I believe. I consider that mission is the next best to the United States, because it is so similar in these respects. When I first went over there I learned that Bro. Burton had gone there with a good voice and had left it with a crippled voice, because of having to do this outdoor preaching that Bro. Pitt speaks of. We have heard of the marvelous success of the early Wesleyan movement in England, which was due to the fact that they left the stereotyped ecclesiastical methods and went out onto the people in the fields and parks. It was distinctively an open air movement, a feature that Methodism did not take out of England very far. Later, the Salvation Army took that method all over the world. It has compelled all other churches to break over the barriers between the church and the mass in this one respect, and other churches have been following the example of the Salvation Army. To the Army belongs the credit for having perpetuated this method.

When we went to Australia, we discovered that because of the mildness of the climate, the people nearly lived out of doors. It was just as hard to get people inside to listen in Australia—worse, I am certain than Bro. Pitt says it is in England. In England as also in the northern district of this country the people are compelled to go indoors three or four months of the time at any rate. Here they are accustomed to worshipping in school-houses. In my late mission, the school-houses are not available; they being under a more strict government control, no one can preach in them.

When we first went there our work in the cities had lately started; Elder Wight had just organized a small branch in the city of Sydney, in New South Wales, worshipping in cottages. Sydney is the commercial metropolis—the mother city of that island continent; and I am pleased as I stand here to say that I left Australia feeling in my heart that I had had a part in planting our work upon a firm, and I trust, lasting basis in this chief city—the landing and departing place of our missionaries. I have a photo of their new chapel with me. But when I first went there apprehension came unto my heart chiefly because of my voice. When I first began to preach in southern Missouri the people would say to me, "Why don't you speak louder?" They couldn't hear me half across the room. I thought I spoke loud enough. When I left for that mission I had not voice enough to reach the back end of a room this size. The reason for this was that when I first started out I couldn't speak more than five or eight minutes, and my zeal made me think I must do something extra. I therefore sang too long and too loud. Down near Nevada, Missouri, on one occasion when rain kept us from dispersing, I then and there nearly ruined my voice. My vocal cords and my zeal were certainly too elastic, and the latter got badly stretched.

I went to Australia with a crippled voice—could not talk over thirty minutes without feeling a pain in the top of my head, and I said, "Is it possible that the Twelve has sent me over here to ruin my voice?" Elder Burton had come with a good voice, had crippled it—the doctors said ruined it—and he left the mission in that condition. I came with a crippled voice—what would become of me? Soon after Elder Wight left, we made an unavailing effort in Sydney and New Castle, and Elder Kaler and I went up the coast awfully discouraged; it seemed impossible to accomplish anything in Sydney. The brethren would get a hall; probably one would come out to hear us. They would pay about a dollar and a quarter, perhaps three or four dollars for the hall for one night. Away up in what they called the "bush," in a little locality called the Nambucca, we met the brethren (after having been lost in the bush through mistaking the road and wandering or sleeping out all night, under the dews of heaven), tired, hungry, and dirty, and we felt as though we had gotten into heaven. Here were the fruits of our predecessors' labors, and they received us with open arms. Here and at other places various brethren and sisters who had never seen us shook hands with us and said: "I have seen you in vision; I know you." A local elder by the name of Loving, at Nambucca, who could not know of the conditions of the work in all Australia, not being in touch with it; yet by the inspiration of God he said to the missionaries: "Your mission for awhile will be hard, and seem vain because of no returns for your labor and persecutions from outsiders; but a brighter time will come before you finish your mission, and you shall return rejoicing." I put that down in my diary at the time (May, '94), and it passed away from my mind; but coming over on the boat I got my diary out and began to go over the incidents of work, and there I came across this prophecy. I was surprised to note how my work could make me so busy that I forgot this. That prophecy was literally fulfilled, beyond our most sanguine expectation. A brighter time did come; but time will not allow me to detail it to you. I went into the work, like the average American, sixty miles an hour. That was a mistake, in a warm climate, which is hard on the liver at any speed, and I got down in physical powers.

In my outdoor work in park and on street I found that my clarinet was a wonderful help in reaching this people. They loved music, and could get large crowds to stop and listen to simple airs, and then I and others would speak. At first I felt it beneath my dignity to go out on the street and preach. That was my traditional education—the result of my environments in the United States. I was not responsible for it; but it was my business to conquer it for Christ's sake. I said "down tradition; up necessity!" and went out, as Bro. Wight used to say, feeling as though I had rather not. The knowledge that all denominations went out helped me a little. I banished that idea that everybody that preached on the streets was a fanatic, or crack-brained; and I went out and used my voice, at times, perhaps unwisely, because I never had the advantage of elocutionary training; I did not and do not yet know the proper methods of speaking or singing, but I do know in spite of all of this, and the noise of the streets, the dust that was everywhere present, and all of the harrowing circumstances that would come to distract attention and make the effort more difficult and dangerous to the voice, that my fears were never realized. I preached in the air even more than Bro. Burton did (because I was there longer, and we had better opportunities in the cities), and my voice got stronger every month and year that I was there. If there is anything I am thankful for, it is that my voice is now stronger than when I left seven years ago from Conference in this place, when it was, as I consider, crippled. I have heard my brethren, Frank Sheeby and R. C. Evans speak, and others with strong voices, and I have admired their superior endowment of voice power, because I felt that strong thoughts and weighty arguments went better to the hearts of the people if they were carried with a strong voice. I have coveted a good voice, and when I realized that my ordinary voice was about to be ruined I felt bad about it. God will pardon me for wanting a good voice, and I want to use it in defense of this truth, not so much in the defense of it, either, for I have found myself too aggressive at times, and that I too often had the battle ax in my hand, and not often enough the flag of love. I want to use it in defense when necessary, outdoors, indoors, privately, and publicly, to build up the kingdom of God, and plant in the hearts of lost humanity, the great ideas or promises that have stirred some of our brethren up lately and make them want to hasten it, and the agitation is going out among this people and oppressed of the whole world. The world needs our gospel. I am glad to be back among you.

BUT ONE WAY.

The idea seems to be entertained by some, that the moral, or law-abiding man who has done charitable deeds in life, would be entitled to at least some of the lesser degrees of glory. I may not yet fully understand the matter, but I read the gospel aright there is only one way to obtain any degree of celestial glory, and that is by strict obedience to the gospel law. Jesus says, "I am the way, the truth and the life." Also, "I am the door, by me if any man enter he shall be saved," etc. This reads clear; the singular term is always used, one way, one door.

It is argued by those apologists for man-made doctrines that Jesus says, "In my Father's house are many mansions." Hence that there must of necessity be more ways than one to reach these mansions. Jesus says "I am the good Shepherd, and know my sheep, and am known of mine." This would imply that there were certain marks or traits of character by which his good Shepherd knew his sheep. The distinguishing characteristics by which the sheep were known, must be that they had entered the fold by the door, and Jesus entered by that door. John knew He was the true Shepherd, and exclaims: "Behold the lamb of God that taketh away the sins of the world." John in his capacity of parter opened the fold and the true Shepherd entered through the baptismal rite.

It is evident that baptism is the door of entrance into the true fold or church. But the objector says God is so merciful that he would not reject a man simply because he had not been baptized, if he had lived a good life, or was a righteous man. But Jesus said; "Except your righteousness exceed the righteousness of the scribes and Pharisees ye can in no case enter the kingdom of heaven."

The young man who came to Christ had kept the moral law, was righteous, yet he lacked that which would entitle him to place in the fold, or kingdom. Cornelius was a just man and feared God, yet he had to enter by the true door into the kingdom. The Lord in his commission says that he that believeth and is baptized shall be saved, and he that believeth not shall be condemned.

Again, Jesus said to Nicodemus, John 3rd chapter, "Except a man be born of water and of the spirit he cannot enter the kingdom of heaven."

Then it is evident that one cannot enter the kingdom or fold save by the door, and that door is baptism. How can a man expect to obtain celestial glory when such an one would be classed among the unbelievers, and the Master calls John in Rev. 21, that unbelievers will be outside the celestial city with murders, whoremongers, idolaters, liars, etc.

In the face of the foregoing testimony, and much more that might be added, is it not certain that any man who holds baptism to be non-essential, and refuses to obey, sins against light and knowledge, and will be shut out of the presence of Christ.

The Apostle Paul says plainly that if any man comes teaching any other gospel, let him be accursed, yea, if an angel from heaven should teach any other doctrine the curse would rest on him. Paul has warned us that the time would come when men would not endure sound doctrine but heap to themselves teachers having itching ears. Men are loath to let go of the sinful pleasures of life, and pride of heart. They feel it would be humiliating to their pride to go down into the waters of baptism, and many would unite with the Church if they could be admitted without baptism.

But I am sure the priesthood of Jesus Christ can never become an apologist for any doctrine that would in any wise compromise the gospel, but ever keep before the people, the world, the fact that everlasting life and celestial glory can only be obtained by strict compliance with the provisions of the gospel law. We can make no promise, or offer any degree of liberty not consistent with the law of the kingdom.

Brother editor, I love this latter day work above all else on earth, and am seeking to know more of the things of God, and I am glad to receive instructions, for I am yet young in this work, but I intend to steer clear of the old errors that afflicted me for a third of a century. I want to be sound in faith, and teach nothing wrong.

Yours for the triumph of truth.

IN CENTRAL AMERICAN FORESTS.

In the rainy season the rivers run between full banks, and dropping vines trail upon the water. Along the banks and on the sandspits, among the zacate and gramalote grass, are countless aquatic flowering plants. On bright days every bend of the stream reveals brown mud-encrusted alligators lying upon the bank, and others lifting their ugly snouts above the water. After sunset a tapir or manatee may be seen crossing the river, and sharp eyes may detect, every now and then, a huge iguana hugging a branch overhead, or it may be that the first intimation of his presence is a splash, as he drops into the water from a height and with a force that would seem sufficient to burst him. Innumerable smalliguanas, of bright metallic hues and with ugly spinal fringes, bask on the logs and snags near the bank, and, when disturbed, dart for the shore, moving their feet and tails so rapidly that they fairly walk upon the water. A falling branch reveals a troop of monkeys in the trees above. They grimace, break off and throw down boughs, and shake the limbs as if in uncontrollable rage. A musky odor tells of a drove of wild pigs upon the bank. White and blue herons stand along the river side, or soar lazily from point to point; macaws, parrots, and parakeets scream in the trees; buzzards circle high in air; an occasional hawk darts swiftly from bank to bank; and black and yellow songsters flit along the banks. The air above the river is never silent, for from the first suspicion of morning light, when the howling monkeys wake the forest with their bellowings, to sunset, when the shrill whistle of the gongolou—a species of grouse—marks the hour of six, wild pigeons, macaws, songbirds, and monkeys have their turn. All night the grunting of alligators, the splash of leaping fish, the screams of jaguars, and the cries of nocturnal birds and beasts fill the air. A booming noise, like the distant report of a cannon, breaking through the night air and reverberating along the water, sounds the death note of some giant of the forest that has crashed to earth, carrying everything within its reach. Out of the forests come clouds of fragrance, and sounds of myriad beasts and birds and insects. Back from the rivers, in the mysterious wilderness, the dark forests, the unknown jungle, there are numerous objects of interest; great cedar, almendra, gauchipilon, ceiba, and cortex trees rear their heads far into the sunlight of the day, their bases hidden in a dense undergrowth. Their entire foliage is at the top, and their great trunks, reaching up a hundred feet or more without a branch, offer a variety of studies in types of columns. Some rise straight and smooth, some send out deep buttresses, while others look like the muscle knotted forearm of a Titan, with gnarled fingers gripping the earth in their wide grasp. Beneath the shelter of these patriarchs, as completely protected from scorching sun and rushing wind as if in a conservatory, grow innumerable varieties of young trees, destined, some day, to be giants themselves. Still lower down luxuriate smaller trees, palms, tree-ferns, dense underbrush, and a network of creeping and climbing vines. There is not light enough for flowers beneath this dense canopy, and they, like the smaller birds, seek the tops of trees and banks of rivers, where sunlight and air are abundant. In the tree-tops, orchids and other flowering parasites run riot. Many of the trees themselves are flowering, and if one can look down on a forest valley in March or April the green expanse will appear enlivened by blazing patches of crimson, yellow, purple, pink, and white. The river banks are the favorite homes of flowering vines, and there they form great curtains swaying from the trees in bright patterns of many hues. The grassy slopes, islands, shallows, and sand-spits also produce countless varieties of aquatic plants.—Self Culture Magazine for April.

We laugh, we jest, not meaning what we say; We hide our thoughts with light words lightly spoken, And pass on heedless till we find some They've bruised our hearts, or left some other broken.

LETTER DEPARTMENT.

ROSEDALE, Kan., March 19.
Editor Ensign:—The Armstrong Saints are alive in the work of the Lord, and there is an unusual interest being taken in the religio work of late. We are still watching for an opening for preaching in Rosedale so that we can invite some of our ministry here to preach. Surely there are many of the Lord's people, even here in Rosedale, who have not yet heard the beautiful gospel message of these latter days. Daniel said to King Nebuchadnezzar one time, "But there is a God in heaven that revealeth secrets, and maketh known to the king Nebuchadnezzar what shall be in the latter days."—Dan. 2:28. Nebuchadnezzar saw in a dream a great image, which represented to him the history of the kingdoms of the world; the last and greatest kingdom of all was to be set up by the God of heaven, and is to smite the image on the feet, which was the fourth kingdom, which was to be partly strong and partly broken. All the earthly kingdoms that were to be in existence in the latter days when the God of heaven would set up the "stone kingdom," are represented by the feet and toes of iron and clay (Dan. 2:41).

We note the present condition of the nations of the earth, through the press, and we see dissatisfaction or unrest among the people, evidencing to us that the kingdoms are gradually being broken to pieces. Surely the power of God is moving among the people, kings, rulers, and men in high places are losing prestige; slaves are rising against their masters, as the later day prophet said they would. God is using the foolish things of the world to bring to nought the mighty.

Isaiah says, "How beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of him that bringeth good tidings, that publisheth peace; that bringeth good tidings of good, that publisheth salvation; that saith unto Zion, 'Thy God reigneth!'"—Isaiah 52:7. "This scripture will certainly apply to the preachers of this latter day work, for they are indeed publishing the pure gospel of peace. Jesus said, "And this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations, and then shall the end come."—Matt. 24:14.

The great image of Nebuchadnezzar's dream is being smitten on the feet and is breaking to pieces, and eventually all the nations of this world will give way and come to an end; they must give room for the "stone" kingdom to fill the whole earth.

May we all strive to build up the kingdom of God and establish his righteousness in the earth, in the sincere wish of your brother in gospel bonds,

ALBERT T. DAVIS.

EXCELSIOR, Wis., Feb. 14.
Editor Ensign:—The Saints of Wheatville branch are rejoicing in the restored gospel: Bro. Leonard Houghton came in this country last June, and declared unto the people the angel's message, and some of the honest in heart did believe the gospel and came into the fold of God, and we believe that they will make good workers; for this we give God the glory. Six were added to the branch, and we have reason to think that others will soon follow.

Bro. J. M. Whitaker is our leader, and we know of a surety that he is a servant of God; and we pray that God will so lead him, that he may break to us the bread of life continually, that we may enjoy the gladness of influence of the Spirit of God, and rejoice in the rock of our salvation. There is a Christian sect here in this neighborhood who are now holding what they call a revival, and they are opposing the truth; but there is one consolation, the more they fight the truth, the wider it will spread. This Christian sect holds that the Latter Day Saints are not carried about by every wind of doctrine, and I thank the great Creator of heaven and earth that he has in these last days restored the everlasting gospel to earth again with all its gifts and blessings. The Saints have trials to bear but that is the kind of children the Lord will have, for if we will live godly in Christ Jesus we shall suffer persecutions; He will have a tried people.

Ever praying for the welfare of Zion, I remain,
Your brother in the faith,
J. M. ANDERSON.

FAIRLAND, I. T., March 17.

Editor Ensign:—I was a member of the Campbellite church for over twenty years; had no teacher and got no light on the Holy Bible. I was seeking light and found it when I attended a debate at Miama, Indian Territory, between Bro. I. N. White and a Baptist preacher; there I got more light on the gospel, than I ever got in all my life; it was a feast to my soul; I was convinced and converted to the gospel truths of the Bible. This debate was in the fall, I was not baptized at that time, but became very much interested in the gospel that I had heard, and read my testament all winter; I would sit up late at night and read the glad tidings, and joy in that which it would bring to me, and I would tell my son how much brighter the gospel truths were to me. On March 29, 1896, my son and I were baptized into the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, and I thank the Lord for sparing me to this glorious thought to know that I have lived to see my children all in the Reorganized church.

Dear Saints, this is a warfare, but it is a glorious one to me; I try to live right and to the best light I have. We have a branch planted here, since last fall, and have had some good meetings. I hope we may grow stronger; there are but few of us here, and there is much prejudice, but the Lord just wants the honest in heart. I used tobacco for about fifty years; I went to the Lord in prayer and I know that my prayer was answered. I am so thankful to my heavenly Father for these blessings; I was sixty-two years old last November.

Where is Bro. T. J. Sheppard? we would all like to hear from him. Bro. Sheppard, please write a letter to the Ensign and then we can all hear from you.

Your sister,
MARY SPRINGER.

ATLANTIC, Iowa, March 15.

Editor Ensign:—We are still in the faith and striving in our weak way to serve our Lord and Master; we have tried to interest the neighbors in the latter day work, but it is, as one sister writes, they seem to be satisfied with what little religion they have, and do not want anything more. However we have one minister of the Brethren or foot-washing Baptists, or Dunkards, interested so he is asking questions, and is willing to talk, and to read the ENSIGN and some tracts that I happened to have on hand. I feel hopeful of better things or more of them for him. Please pray for him and us.

I also made a hasty trip into central and western Kansas in February on a visit, and had the pleasure of answering some questions concerning our faith and practice, which was gratifying, proving to me that the letters that I had written had not all been lost or prayers unheard, for I know that the Lord is working with his people for the gathering of Israel, and if we are diligent and prayerful he will bless our efforts, and sometimes, where we least expect to reap, the harvest is ripest. I would therefore say to the scattered Saints, be earnest and prayerful and do the best you can under the circumstances and conditions surrounding you, and the Lord will bless your efforts; we can't compel people to hear, but I believe the best way is to live our religion so that by our daily walk and conversation we will attract attention, and then by wisely and timely saying a few words, we will get those interested whom the Lord influences, then it is easy to instruct those who want to hear.

We have not seen any of the elders as yet, but still hope that some of them will call and see us when going out after General Conference; we will be glad to meet them at the railroad if we can get to know when they can come, if they will drop us a card so I can get it on Saturday before I am very sure to go after the mail Saturday. I will beat the station for I live four miles north-west of Atlantic, Cass county, Iowa, along the telephone line.

We have done very well this season on the farm; my corn made a yield of over fifty-five bushels per acre, and we are all having better health here than we had about Kansas City.

Ever praying for the cause of Zion, and the gathering of God's people, and establishing of righteousness upon the earth, so that we may all rejoice together before Him to the glory of God the Father through Christ our Lord.

Your brother in bonds,
Geo. H. WELLS.

HARLANVILLE, Texas, March 4.

Editor Ensign:—We live twelve miles east of Harlin, Texas; have a small branch of twenty-seven members, known as the Philadelphia branch. Bro. Nunley was the one who opened the work here, and the spiritual tide ran high for some time, the Saints enjoying spiritual blessings to a marked degree, and the Lord has not forsaken us yet. Our president, E. F. Spicer is alive in the work, and up to his post of duty; if he endures he will evidently do great good for the restored gospel.

Bro. Moore and Renfro, from Beaver, were with us not long since; Bro. Moore preached for us for which we were thankful. Such sermons cause us to take courage and press on in the fight. It is truly a fight in these parts; there is a great deal of prejudice against the work, though I believe there are some here who will be gathered out, yet the members of this branch have become so scattered, that the interest is not so great as it has been. We still assemble ourselves together in prayer meetings, that is, some of us do, and the good Spirit is with us; it is good to gather on such occasions; if we come in his name, the Lord will be with us.

A quiet wedding took place on the south-east corner of TRINITY REGIONS, Bro. Lotfen S. Kegs and Miss Carrie Redon were the contracting parties, Bro. B. F. Spicer, officiating, after which they received many good wishes; last but not least came the supper which was enjoyed by all.

Our district conference will convene on the 17th; and come who will, we don't expect many at this busy season.

We enjoy reading the ENSIGN, the letters are devoured right away. I think every family of Saints should take the ENSIGN. Wishing it success I remain,

Yours in the faith,
W. R. STANDEFER.

AKRON, Ohio, Feb. 1.

Dear Ensign:—In my last letter I stated that I had a standing invitation to come and preach in a private house in the south part of the city; I started the camp fire burning, and fired away until I was feeding a bigger gun; I wrote to Kirtland for Bro. Parsons, who came about December 17th, preached until Sunday before Christmas, then went home for holidays. In company with Bro. Allen he returned the Sunday after New Years, and preached two weeks, baptizing two precious souls into the kingdom of our Father, Bro. and Sr. McCoy, husband and wife.

Bro. Parsons and Allen left January 20th for Bluffs Mills, and on the same evening E. J. Steffe put in an appearance and preached a few sermons for us, and on the 27th Bro. Miller came in, in the midst, preached the 28th for us, at 11 o'clock a. m. and 7:30 p. m., and baptizing with us until Monday evening, baptizing, Monday, at 3 o'clock, another precious soul into the kingdom. Sr. Cora Hartz, whose husband, I believe, will follow soon.

There are others interested, and some near the kingdom, but I think they have had enough at present; for it has come to pass as Isaiah said, the heathen rage and the people imagine vain things. Bro. Parsons told the people when he was here that God had not gone out of business, and some of the people believed him; but I want to say to Bro. Parsons, that if he was to take a quiet peep over the hill where he preached, he would find out that the devil has not gone out of business either.

We have a nice little Sunday School; the last Sunday that Bro. Parsons was here he organized the school and it is moving along grandly, all being interested, especially the little ones. We have been holding Sunday School at 10, prayer meeting at 11, but changed until 2 p. m. and 3 p. m., preaching at night, prayer meeting Wednesday night. My prayer to my Father is that all those who have been saved out of the wreck and those who have been lately baptized, will live faithful and let their light shine, that the honest in heart may, by seeing their good works, be led in that straight and narrow way.

Your brother in the one faith,
JAMES C. McCONAUGHY.

GOLIAD, Texas, March 29.

Dear Ensign:—How like a great throbbing heart sending forth the vitalizing fluid through the arterial system, to the most remote member of the body, are the church publishing houses, representing the two major divisions of that important organ; and the church literature representing the arteries.

What a revivifying influence is felt as the bright, sparkling matter they bear is absorbed and assimilated by the lonely, distant member. We might carry the similitude still farther, and compare this and other communications, to the waste laden fluid returned by those same members through the venus (postal) system but will refrain; knowing they need nought but the magic power of the press to convert them into regenerating influences, that will bid hope spring to life, and courage again be strong in the heart of some one dear to us all.

God help and bless the isolated ones should be the constant prayer of those who know nothing of the loneliness and trials of isolation. May the choicest blessings rest upon the church papers, to magnify their mission and influence, is the prayer of your sister in the faith.

GERTRUDE E. STOKER.

GREY ROCK, Cal., March 9.

Dear Ensign:—I desire to say a few words in praise of your cheering pages. It does my soul good to read the beautiful sermons and letters from all parts of the world. The Lord is truly calling on all people to embrace his word in its clearness and fullness in these the last days; they seem hungry for just what the gospel of our Lord Jesus contains, but the fear of the opinion of the world keeps many from embracing it. But we are to be apart from the world, and I for one rejoice daily and hourly in this glorious work. My desire is to come up higher and let my light shine, ever praying to the Lord of the harvest to send more laborers into the field.

And now, being one of the isolated ones, I pray the dear Lord will send some of his ministers in this part of his vineyard. This is a lovely spot of the footstool of our Lord. I never weary of gazing on the many beautiful scenes around me, and the sky seems more beautiful here than I have ever seen it before; it is a continual joy to my soul to gaze on the beautiful works of our Father.

Ever praying for the advancement of this everlasting gospel, I am

Your sister in hope,
Miss C. F. KEINWALD.

WALKERTON, Ind., March 17.

Dear Ensign:—We have enjoyed your presence since we have accepted the true, restored gospel; how I like to read the letters from the dear Saints all over this union; I have my trials, it seems more since we have been trying to live right.

We had meeting at last in our place; we were so glad to have Bro. S. W. L. Scott here just one night, though he will be here again soon. Our meeting began the 4th and lasted until the 9th of March. Bro. Rank, of Knox, was here, he preached every evening except Tuesday, when S. W. L. Scott preached, he owes us that lecture on Mormonism yet. Bro. Rank gave us such good sermons each evening; they were fine. Some of the people were suited, some were not. He happened to mention the Book of Mormon, that of course, was something to stumble over to make out we were Mormons. I am trying to explain to them the difference between our church and the Utah people, I believe we will win yet.

There are some who are going to send for the Book of Mormon and other books, we gave them our papers to read, and the little pamphlets I sent for, I enjoyed reading them more than going to other churches and hearing essays read off. We are glad we found our mistake before too late.

We wish to return our heartfelt thanks to the Saints of Knox for their kindness to us.

Yours in the true gospel,
JULIA DIPERT.

SHERWIN JUNCTION, Ks., Feb. 19.

Editor Ensign:—The Columbus branch is interested in this work of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. We are enjoying the blessings of our Heavenly Father and we believe as Saints and followers of Jesus Christ that the nearer we keep the commandments, the greater blessings we will receive; and we must be humble, upright, truthful, and love all Saints, and all the world. May our Heavenly Father bless all the elders with the Spirit of the true gospel and that they spread the gospel abroad that the people may receive light.

We have had Bro. I. P. Baggerly with us for a week; he has preached every night, and it has been interesting; has shown much good seed, and we think it will grow if cultivated. Bro. Baggerly is in possession of the good Spirit and he will enlighten the people wherever he is; we wish him good speed.

While Bro. Baggerly was here Bro. Wm. Martin, of Webb City, Missouri, who was on a visit here, was taken very sick with severe pains in his left side, something like pleuresy. He was at his brother-in-law's who are not believers of this gospel; they wanted to go for the doctor, but Bro. Martin said, No, go for Bro. W. S. Taylor. Bro. Baggerly being at my house, Bro. Taylor came for him, and when they got there they had sent for Martin's relatives and they were crying. Bro. Martin was in much distress; they administered to him and he said he wanted to go to sleep; this was about noon Monday January 29th. Bro. Baggerly and I went to see Bro. Martin the next morning, and found that he got along all right. I think this ought to open the eyes of all Bro. Martin's relatives there.

May God bless all of the Saints, that they may live and be worthy to receive his blessings.

Your brother and sister,
WM. AND A. E. KIRK.

DAWSON, Neb. March 10.

Editor Ensign:—The ENSIGN is a welcome visitor at our place, and I look forward to its coming; we are isolated from the church and I feel lonely many times. There are three of us, my parents and myself. I often think how nice it would be to be where I could meet with other young Saints, but I am trying to be contented with my lot, but I will say to the dear young Saints, improve every opportunity of meeting together, and remember we young Saints who are isolated, in your prayers. I go to other churches as often as I can, but it is not like going to our meetings; some of the young people here seem like they don't care to be in my company, I think it is because I do not attend parties and theatres as they do, as they are nearly all Catholics who live here. I would rather they would treat me thus than to incur the displeasure of my heavenly Father upon me.

If we get the place we think we will I can attend church at Netawaka, Kansas, once in a while anyway. Dear Saints, I ask an interest in all your prayers that I may be healed—for my health has been failing for some time—if it is the Lord's will, I will close my letter with love to all Saints. Your sister in Christ,
Miss LILLIE SEWTON.

SOME INCONSISTENCIES OF SCIENCE.

This is an age in which great deference is shown to science and scientific men; and rightly and reasonably so, when we consider the immense advance which the world has made during the last century, under the lead of science and the impulse of the scientific spirit. Just as there was a time when theology reigned supreme as the queen of the sciences, and when the word of a schoolman carried weight in all the affairs of men, so, today, physical science may be said to be regnant, and the opinions of its votaries on all sorts of subjects are accepted with little question by large numbers of people.

Theology, on the other hand, is widely discountenanced. Its faith is looked upon as superstition by many of those most imbued with the scientific spirit; and even its well-founded deductions from the nature of man are received with suspicion. Its method is said to be unscientific; and, with that judgment pronounced against it, its fate is supposed to be forever settled. A budding young scientist, in one of our great universities, even declared, not long ago, that he suffered a depression of spirit each time he found it necessary to pass by the divinity school. His spirit was jarred within him at the anachronism of such an institution being connected with a university devoted to pure science!

In another university, one of the leading members of the divinity school faculty was criticised by a member of the historical department for his belief in miracles; being pronounced, because of this, destitute of the historic spirit. This, among historical students, was only another way of calling him unscientific.

It is a good thing to be scientific in spirit and method, and it may well be that the advocates of religious belief have sometimes been too much dominated by tradition in their teaching. Perhaps they have not always been as sure of their facts as they ought, before teaching them as facts. Matthew Arnold has quite justly characterized a good deal of religious teaching as "an insane license of affirmation about God;" and Professor Clifford has well said:

If a belief has been accepted on insufficient evidence, the pleasure is a stolen one. . . . Its always and everywhere wrong to believe anything on insufficient evidence.

But if it is a good thing to be scientific in method and spirit, it is equally good to apply them impartially. Is it not, indeed, the very essence of the scientific spirit to be open to new evidence and truth, wherever they may lead? Are the critics above reproach in this matter? Do scientific men, and those who profess to be scientific in their attitude, always welcome, without prejudice, new facts which conflict, or seem to conflict, with their opinions, as they insist theologians shall do?

Perhaps no better answer to these questions can be found than that afforded by the life of the late Prof. George J. Romanes. It is doubtful if a more candid mind than his was ever turned upon the problems of existence. In early life he was a Christian, but in young manhood he became one of the most brilliant advocates of agnosticism. Under the theory of the universe which he adopted, there is no place for any of the facts of Christianity. God, if he exist, is but an unknown and unknowable force. Physical causation reigns supreme in all the phenomena of the universe. Any break in the continuity of physical causation, such as is implied in miracles or the general facts of Christianity, is irrational and unthinkable, and not to be entertained in our conception. None of the historical evidence which exists in support of the facts of the Christian revelation had any weight with him, because, being contrary to the theory of the universe which he had accepted, he refused to entertain it. The entire religious beliefs of the Christian world were a priori, unthinkable and absurd, and were rejected as outside the domain of any possible knowledge of man.

Late in life, in his little book entitled "Thoughts on Religion," he says, concerning his earlier opinions:

I did not sufficiently appreciate the immense importance of human nature, as distinguished from physical nature, in any inquiry touching Theism. But since then I have seriously studied anthropology (including the science of comparative religions), psychology and metaphysics, with the result of clearly seeing that human nature is the most important part of nature as a whole, whereby to investigate the theory of Theism. This I ought to have anticipated on merely a priori grounds, and no doubt should have perceived, had I not been too much immersed in merely physical research. Moreover in those days I took it for granted that Christianity was played out, and never considered it at all as having any rational bearing on the question of Theism.

These words, written after he had reasoned himself back into the acceptance of the Christian faith, make very clear the reason for his early rejection of it. His mind was so pre-occupied with a theory of the universe which he considered inconsistent with religion, that he did not even consider the claims of Theism, much less of Christianity.

If Romanes had not been a man of the utmost candor, he would, in all probability, have remained in this state of mind all his life. But his earnest spirit soon brought him to see the inconsistency of agnosticism. Mr. Herbert Spencer's doctrine of the "unknowable" he saw was "philosophically erroneous, implying important negative knowledge that, if there be a God, we know this much about him, that he can not reveal himself to man." How could he be an agnostic, say of his unknowable God that he could not reveal himself in the incarnation, in a miracle, through inspiration and providence? On what ground could he, professing entire ignorance of God, affirm that prayer was without avail, and a superstitious absurdity? He saw that he had, in reality, not been an agnostic in religion, but a denier of religion. Thus the way was opened by which he came gradually back to a positive acceptance of the Christian faith. Romanes thus furnishes us such a good example of scientific prejudice because he has himself given us an account of it, and we can see clearly the entire process of thought. There are, however, other examples of scientific inconsistency of more recent date.

One of the most learned and brilliant men of science in our country today is Dr. William James, Professor of Psychology in Harvard University. He is one of the founders, and was the first president, of the American Society for Psychological Research, an organization formed to investigate, with the most rigid impartiality, the various phenomena connected with mind-reading, second sight, hypnotism, mind-healing, etc. Starting into the investigation entirely unprejudiced, Professor James has found himself forced to recognize a large number of facts for which present-day science has no place in its philosophy. Moreover, he declares that the great majority of scientific men of his acquaintance have utterly refused to consider the evidence for these facts. They have, in truth, utterly rejected it, except so far as they have succeeded in reconciling these things that these great men will have naught of Christianity, is turned away from it. Have they not examined it, and discovered that its claims are inconsistent with modern knowledge? Why should he question their judgment? Too often is it forgotten that the very intensity of application facts with their preconceived system and theories. He says: If there is any thing which human history demonstrates, it is the extreme slowness with which the ordinary academic and critical mind acknowledges facts to exist which present themselves as wild facts, with no stall or pigeon-hole, or as facts which threaten to break up the accepted system. . . . The most recent and flagrant example of this is "animal magnetism," whose facts were stoutly dismissed as a pack of lies by academic medical science the world over, until the non-mystical theory of "hypnotic suggestion" was found for them, when they were admitted to be so excessively and dangerously common that special penal laws, forsooth, must be passed to keep all persons unequipped with medical diplomas from taking part in their production.

The Christian believer who has kept his eyes open does not need to be reminded that this has been the attitude which large numbers of scientists have maintained toward the facts of Christianity.

There is a lesson for us in all this. Science is regnant today, and these men are often the great leaders and shapers of the world's thought. Many a humble inquirer, looking for the best light to guide his life, learns which has made these men the oracles of their own departments of knowledge has often precluded them from careful study of other things. Thus it was with Romanes, who confessed that he was at first too much immersed in physical science to consider Christianity. More than all else, as already indicated, they are often precluded by preconceived ideas, from considering questions of the supernatural fairly.

Let us then hold fast the profession of our faith without wavering. Let us not be too much concerned to reconcile all the facts of science and faith into a rounded system. It may be that it is impossible to do this in the present state of our knowledge. Above all, let us remember that there are some things better than a rounded and closed system, two of which are an open mind and a faithful heart.

In conclusion, permit me to make one more quotation, this time from the little book, "Culture and Religion," by Prin. J. C. Shairp:

The great facts of Christianity and of human nature are, and always have been, a stumbling-block to those who are bent on a rounded system. Hence, every age, and this age pre-eminently, has seen attempts to resolve Christianity into a natural product. The idea of a power coming down from a higher sphere to work in and renew the natural forces of humanity, must always be repugnant to any mode of thought which makes a complete system the first necessity. No doubt the craving for a system is a deep instinct of the purely intellectual man; but it is a very different thing from that craving for rightness with God, which is the prime instinct of the spiritual man. When once awakened, the spiritual faculty far out-goes all systems, scientific, philosophic or theological, and apprehends and lives by truths which these can not reduce to system.—Walter S. Hayden Jr. in the Cincinnati, Ohio, Christian Standard, March, 17.

GENERAL CONFERENCE.

Forty-seventh Annual Conference of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, Lamon, Iowa. April 6 to 21.

(CONCLUDED.)

TUESDAY, APRIL 17.

The morning prayer service was in charge of Elders S. F. Cushman and W. M. Self; there was a good attendance and a good meeting was enjoyed.

At 10:45 Elder F. M. Cooper delivered a very instructive and interesting sermon upon the theme of "Repentance." It was enjoyed by a good sized audience. He was assisted by Elder John Shields.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The opening invocation was offered by J. W. Wight, one of the Apostles. At the conclusion of the usual opening exercises the nomination and election of the board of trustees of Graceland College was taken up. Some additional names were added to the list of nominees of yesterday's session, and the vote being called resulted as follows: Wm Anderson 233 Daniel Anderson 192, J. A. Gunsolley 192, I. W. Allender 190, R. M. Elvin 190, Dr. J. H. Hanson 188, Wm. Leeka 130, and on motion they were declared the unanimous choice of the body. Other nominees voted upon were E. L. Kelley, Joseph Smith, J. W. Wight, S. V. Bailey, John Smith (New Bedford, Massachusetts), Fred M. Smith. Brn. Joseph Smith and E. L. Kelley, while not declining to serve expressed the desire that they should not be elected.

A motion that the college be closed until the indebtedness is lifted, was spoken to by Brn. J. H. Lake, G. H. Hilliard, J. W. Wight, John Hawley, J. R. Sutton, E. L. Kelley, F. M.

Cooper, Dr. O. H. Riggs, T. J. Sheldon, J. W. Gilbert, Wm. Anderson, J. H. Hansen, A. M. Baker, James Caffall, and Joseph Luff. On motion President Harkness of the college faculty was invited to address the conference and did so, presenting some very pointed reasons why the college could be continued, although he did not know whether or not the Lord had any work for him personally in Lamon after this year. He paid a nice tribute to the character of Lamon. W. H. Kelley was the next speaker and he was followed by F. M. Sheehy, E. A. Blakeslee, J. A. Robinson, Joseph Smith and H. E. Moler; previous question being called for, the vote on the resolution was taken, resulting in 51 for and 167 against the resolution, the decision being given in favor of continuing the college. Adjournment was then had.

At 7:30 p. m. President Joseph Smith occupied the pulpit, speaking upon the subject of the "Gathering." The church was well filled, but the thinning out of the congregation by the daily departure of members, was manifest. Brethren E. L. Kelley and R. M. Elvin assisted.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 18.

The morning service of prayer and testimony was in charge of Brn. William Summerfield and Andrew Barr. At 10:45, Bro. W. E. Peak was the speaker being assisted by Elder Swen Swensen. It was a practical effort; some good advice and instruction was given to the Saints, which, if heeded, will help them over many difficulties and trials.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The length of the Conference is beginning to be felt, some of the ministers and the delegates lessing in number each session. President Joseph Smith called the assembly to order at 2 p. m., and prayer was offered by J. W. Wight, of the Apostles.

The first business after the opening preliminaries was the report of the First quorum of Seventy. Among other things they recommended that reports of ministry be published in Herald previous to convening of Conference. They attached a form showing what, in their opinion, would be a proper report. Some explanations were offered and vote being taken the recommendation prevailed.

That part of report of the Board of Publication referring to the purchase of Zion's ENSIGN plant, at Independence, Missouri, November 7, 1898, subject to ratification of the Conference, was, on motion, taken up, and a motion prevailed that speeches be limited to five minutes. A motion was offered by Brn. J. W. Wight and J. A. Grant that the action of the board be approved. Some questions were asked and some explanations were made, and on being put to vote was carried with but two dissenting votes, and on a subsequent motion the board of publication was instructed and authorized to arrange for a transfer of the ENSIGN plant from the name of Kelley and Criley at the earliest possible time.

Dr. J. H. which was marked by a spirit of deep solemnity and prayerful interment, one hour and forty-five minutes being required in the ordinations. Many inspiring promises of the Spirit were made to those ordained, if humble and faithful, and the divinity of the call of these faithful men was thus witnessed.

The ordination of these high priests will enable the authorities to provide a standing ministry to take charge of the work in places needing pastors, or to have charge of districts where capable men to fill such positions are lacking. It is a long step forward towards perfecting the organization. The Lord is moving in his work.

FRIDAY, APRIL 20.

The motion to defer was then put upon its passage and prevailed by a vote of 153 to 25.

Kelley was substituted for the name of G. H. Hilliard. Each name being presented separately E. L. Kelley, J. W. Wight, F. B. Blair, John Smith and J. A. Gunsolley were declared elected as the new board. Joseph Luff declined to serve on board.

A resolution was moved and unanimously agreed to, that on account of the time required to audit the Herald Publishing House accounts, a separate committee be selected to audit the accounts of the ENSIGN Publishing House, January 2, 1901. A number of names were placed in nomination and the names selected were W. N. Robinson (192), Wm. Crick (129) and Ellis Short (94 votes). On motion the committee appointed to audit bishop's accounts for the past year, according to former resolution, was continued for auditing Herald Publishing House accounts next January.

First quorum of Seventy made an additional report, having held nine regular, and six joint meetings; five new members have been admitted besides three previously received. Ten have been ordained high priests. Elder R. M. Maloney was recommended for ordination; on motion, report and recommendation were adopted.

President Joseph Smith reported that the presidency had been led to understand that the time for setting apart of bishops had come, and submitted names for such ordinations, which have been concurred in by both the quorum of High Priests and the Twelve; on motion of James McKiernan and Columbus Scott the adoption of the report was agreed to, and the names were considered and acted upon separately. The following is the report:

LAMONI, Iowa, April 21.

To the Brethren in Conference assembled:—Having been led thereto by the leadings of the Spirit, as we understand them, we feel assured that the time for the beginning of the appointment of bishops, as seems suggested by the revelation of 1873, has come, we present for consideration the following names to be ordained as bishops: Ellis Short, Independence, Missouri; Roderick May, Independence, Missouri; Wm. Anderson, Lamoni, Iowa; John Zimmerman, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania; Richard Bullard, Boston, Massachusetts; Wm. Leeka, Thurman, Iowa; George P. Lambert, Rock Twp., Hancock county, Illinois; Thomas Taylor, Birmingham, England. (Signed) JOSEPH SMITH.

For Presidency.

If approved, those not present can be referred to the presidency for ordination as soon as found practicable.

The names presented are as follows: Chas. A. Parkin, San Francisco, California; Chas. J. Hunt, Deloit, Iowa; Ellis Short, Independence, Missouri; Roderick May, Independence, Missouri; Wm. Anderson, Lamoni, Iowa; John Zimmerman, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania; Richard Bullard, Boston, Massachusetts; William Leeka, Thurman, Iowa; George P. Lambert, Rock Twp., Hancock county, Illinois; Thomas Taylor, Birmingham, England. They were approved as presented. The following was then moved: That in conformity with the law governing the ordination of bishops, Doctrine and Covenants 68:2, the presidency of the Melchisedec priesthood ordain those chosen at the earliest convenience.

A substitute was offered that the first presidency ordain these men at their earliest convenience. The substitute prevailed.

Those present who had been presented for ordination were then called forward, and the congregation rising, President Joseph Smith invoked the divine blessing and approval. Presidents Alex. H. Smith and Joseph Smith then ordained Roderick May a bishop. W. H. Fuller (colored) was ordained a priest by Apostles J. H. Lake and I. N. White. Wm. Anderson was ordained a bishop by Presidents Joseph Smith and A. H. Smith. R. M. Maloney was ordained a Seventy by Apostles I. N. White and J. H. Lake. Richard Bullard was ordained a bishop by Presidents Joseph Smith and A. H. Smith. The spirit of deep solemnity rested upon all while the ordinations were being performed, and the Holy Spirit was manifest to the comfort of all.

The sustaining of officials was then considered, and on separate motions, President Joseph Smith, prophet and seer, A. H. Smith as Patriarch, and A. H. Smith as first counselor, and E. L. Kelley as second counselor were sustained. On account of one of the members being under suspension, members of the quorum of Twelve, in good standing, were, on motion, sustained, with W. H. Kelley president of quorum. First and second quorum of Seventy, standing high council of the church, quorum of High Priests, all the quorums of elders, quorums of priests, teachers and deacons, church secretary, recorder, historian and assistant, and librarian, auxiliary societies, Sunday School, Religio, Daughters of Zion, etc., were all sustained by separate votes. Reception committee was thanked, as were the Saints and friends who have entertained the visiting brethren and sisters. Board of Publication was also sustained. Thanks were also voted to the railroad and station agent at this place.

On motion of Bishop Kelley and Columbus Scott, those who were ordained bishops and those to be ordained bishops were authorized to select their counselors, they to be ordained under the direction of the Presidency of the church.

President Joseph Smith instructed the ministry to avoid anything in the administering of the ordinance of baptism to excite mirth or unpleasant comment. In confirming, instead of saying, "I lay my hands upon you to confirm," say, "I lay my hands upon you AND confirm," etc. Avoid addressing a few words to the Almighty and then a few to the individual; make your invocation to the Almighty at first if any is made, and then say to the individual, "I confirm," etc.

He also urged PROMPTNESS in opening and closing meetings, suggesting that ordinarily the number of words used by minister in speaking is about 150 words per minute; and if the brethren will write out a few hundred words and see how long it takes them to deliver it, they will soon get so they can say all they want to say in five, ten or fifteen minutes according to the time at their disposal. He also urged the avoidance of all pet phrases, and repetition of the name of God, Father, etc., in offering prayer. He hoped this year would be a successful one; there may be some unpleasant things to meet, but true courage recognizes the danger and prepares to meet it. He also expressed the hope that the ministry will use the Scriptures as a bright, shining instrument to instruct and lead and not one to wound and hurt, remembering that Christ said, "And I, if I be lifted up, will draw all men unto me." He warned the brethren against the machinations of the enemy in sowing dissensions among them, also against official jealousy. He looks forward with hopefulness for this year's labors, that the work will be forward, and hopes that when we meet next year there will be no defection from the ranks, though the appearance of so many older people warns him that some must soon be taken.

He also advised that in serious cases of sickness, fevers, etc., the entire body should be anointed with oil, by the elders if the case be a man, by sisters if the sick one be a woman, to be followed by the regular administration. Some cases were cited by Brn. R. C. Evans and J. A. Grant, supportive of this instruction, where sisters anointed and elders afterwards administered and miraculous cures were effected.

Respectfully submitted,
[SIGNED] HEYMAN C. SMITH, Sec.

The names of Geo. C. Washburn, Michigan, and W. R. Odell, West Virginia, being overlooked in making up reports of elders appointed, were added on motion, the understanding being that they were self-supporting.
Elder G. H. Graves (colored),

Chicago, Illinois, mission, was also on motion sustained, and Priest W. H. Fuller (colored) was referred to missionary in charge of Northern Illinois mission.
Hymn No. 13 in the Hymnal was then sung, benediction was pronounced in a feeling manner by President Joseph Smith, and the conference stood adjourned to again convene at Independence, Missouri, April 6, 1901.

Remarks of President Joseph Smith at Close of Conference.

I wish to make a few remarks. I do not know that I will edify you or change your sentiments in any form; but I have been seriously impressed during the last year and especially for the last six months touching this Conference and its outcome; and I strove earnestly and continuously that the Lord might, in his infinite wisdom, give us the instruction that so many seemed to want—to desire.

I do not know that any of you may realize the condition that the position I have occupied has put me into; I do not know whether you may realize the peculiar temptation that would beset a man of whom so much was expected, and from whom so much was anticipated in relation to the voice of revelation. The peculiar temptation that must necessarily beset a man who has strong opinions of his own as to church work, as to doctrine, as to theory and practice, to formulate his opinions and add a "Thus saith the Lord" to them. Knowing that under ordinary circumstances a great many would receive those views with a "Thus saith the Lord" attached to them without serious question; realizing also that there was an element in the church—must necessarily be there properly—that would scan anything that bears the impress of revelation, closely, especially anything affecting the word as it is written to us, and the ideas that have obtained among us upon that word.

Whether the fault is mine, that we have not had such recognition at the hands of God, I do not know. If I had known that I was in fault and in what it consisted, and that the amending of that fault would have brought the desired result, I would gladly have made the amendment. I do not know that it is the fault of anybody else; I cannot say. What my impressions are, it is not necessary to present. But we have come through the Conference. I have received no response to my prayers, I have received none to yours. I realize how many have agonized over this topic. I know, I believe, how earnestly many have sought for light; I believe I realize to a very great extent how continuously the Saints have been praying for this approaching Conference during the last year; and knowing all this, brethren and delegates, I hope that when you go hence you will go with a kind understanding of the position in which I was placed, and if, in your opinions I have been in fault, I hope you will be lenient in your judgment; and if you believe that the fault lies anywhere else, also be lenient in your judgment. If satisfied that the conditions we are in as a people have shut up the approaches to us, and that we are not heard because we have asked amiss, then let us be patient until we can get into better condition.

Let us not be careless; let us not grow indifferent; let us not forget that God has a foretime watched over the interests of his work and has finally brought it to completion. He has determined that no weapon formed against His work shall flourish; shall be allowed to be successful; and if our faith is not of sufficient character, strong and steady in its nature to abide under the cloud, pray, what profit is it and what honor is it to abide in the sunshine? If we cannot be good Saints in adversity, how can we be, and be approved of God, in his smile always?

If, in the administration of the office to which I have been called, I have injured any one and they will kindly make it manifest to me, I will do what I can to repair it. I could do no more than that. And if any of you have just cause to complain of my service as your co-laborer while you have been in the field and I at the center, I trust that you will, in your kindness, make it known to me and I will repair that wrong. I believe that I have conscientiously tried to answer every man his inquiry according to the time and opportunity that I had, on any and all important topics touching his mission. I may have done this in some instances where local injury may have arisen or occurred, where my words have been quoted, my letters have been used in local controversies, and I prejudged, perhaps, in the controversy, if it should arise or continue.

I hope that none of the brethren will go hence with the thought in their minds that I have not tried, and placed myself in a receptive position before God. I am in no sense what is called a spiritist. I believe that if a man opens the avenues of his soul to the incoming of the evil spirits, he does it to his hurt; and hence, I have been careful to avoid the approaches of the spirit of self-exaltation, and also of those spirits that seek to take captive the servants of God and lead them into disorder, willing only to receive ministrations from the Spirit of Christ, who is the Master, the only infallible source to which we can look, from which we can expect anything to substantially help us in this conflict.

I have known for years that the church was approaching a crisis in this respect; that there must be a broader charity, there must be a more extended influence of the ministerial force; there must be a more complete welding together of the tenets, if we may use that expression, to signify the principles that we were to teach and to enforce among men. There are many things I do not understand touching the work in its future, but this I feel I can comprehend, that God has intended through Christ to make our ministry effective unto the salvation of men; and while there are a great many things that we do not understand, and which if known would add to our knowledge, and, in that sense, increase our usefulness, if we are but bent on accomplishing the sending of the mission of Jesus Christ abroad, as the angel brought it, the man that does it, the men who do it, will find ample opportunity, and may be blessed continually in their so doing.

And I hope that you, who, like myself, may not understand all that there is in store for us, nor comprehend all that may have been written, I hope that you with me shall avoid the stumbling and the falling from a failure to comprehend those things we do not understand. Let us wait until such time as God, in his infinite mercy will relieve the pressure and give us light; and if I should undertake to answer the voice of inspiration at the present moment, I should predict this for the men who listen to me, that those who keep their vessels clean and who minister in humility of heart in the field where they are called to labor in the office to which they have been ordained, they shall find those places pleasant to them, and there shall open to them light and instruction when it shall be needed by them, when they are called upon to stand in the difficult places and minister for God.

I can say nothing farther than this touching the year that is past, and I hope that the mistakes we have made will be made profitable to us. They can only be profitable to us by the spirit in which we forbear one with each other, and by the spirit of self-abnegation we learn the value of the Master's teaching that we are to esteem every man his brother as himself.

I thought I would say to you before you parted what I have said touching the year and the six months that are past; my earnest and continued endeavor to ask for light upon those topics that have been vexing, upon those points upon which many have thought we ought to have instruction from God, and upon which we have so earnestly sought that he would give us the light that so many desired. Whether I thought it was better for me, it was better for them, whether I was to be benefited by it or whether others were to be benefited by it, it would be to the benefit of the church, the whole church, and as a consequence, while I have been denied, my faith is still as strong as it has ever been. I repeat what I repeated when my brother was taken with what seemed worse than death, and when I realized the condition of it, after I had agonized before God and had passed through a struggle such as I never want to endure again, I arose to my feet and said, looking up to Him, "I will trust thee, though thou slay me." And if, in the future, I can discover that the reason of this failure lies with me, I will remove it if I can and place myself before God and ask his blessing in pardon for my error. I feel to express to you, also, this afternoon, this: I have been extraordinarily helped in my health during this Conference; I have not engaged in the work of a Conference so free from physical disturbance for the last ten years as I have this Conference. I feel to give praise to God for this, and to acknowledge that it may have been in response to the prayer of God's people.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

About the first word that I ever uttered in defense of the faith "once delivered to the Saints," and again delivered to the Saints of latter days, was in a letter to my brother, a Christian minister, in reply to his saying something in his letter to me, concerning the many causes that hindered the advancement of religion in his vicinity. Among those causes he mentioned the preaching of the Latter Day Saints, and spoke of their doctrines as being "the most subtle of poisons," and that when one imbibed even a small portion of this poison it was death to true spiritual life. It has been so long I cannot quote his words exactly as given in letter, nor my reply, though the substance of it was as follows: That if the doctrines of the Latter Day Saints were poison, I found the Bible full of the same poison, that Christ and the apostles gave the same poison to the world; that I had been partaking of that poison, through ENSIGN and tracts, and instead of finding it to be death to the spiritual life, I found it a great stimulant of, at least the desire for more spiritual life, and of the love for all that was pure and good.

He wrote me a long letter in reply, admitting there was much truth in the doctrines of the Latter Day Saints, and that he knew they were not to be identified with the Utah Mormonism; then he went over the usual array of charges against the founders of the church (which have been so fully replied to so many times in your columns that I will pass them over). "The trouble is [he writes] with the Latter Day Saints, they go to the Bible as one would go to a flower garden, and select a flower here and a flower there, and form a bouquet according to their own ideas and tastes." To which I replied that I thought all the other churches could be accused of that rather than the Latter Day Saints, as it seemed to me they had the whole flower garden. There was no selection of some, or rejection of others in their bouquet of truth. A long time elapsed ere he wrote me again, and he never said anything more concerning the faith until since my baptism, in reply to my letter announcing the fact; in which he says, "God forbid that I should disown a loving sister, because she has added another book to her Bible, and another prophet to her list of prophets, so long as you give Christ the first and highest place, and do not worship Joseph Smith, nor allow his writings to supercede the Scriptures, nor deny to me and all others, the blessings of salvation, because we reject your 67th book, I shall not deny to you the same blessing, for having one book and one prophet more than I have.

"I have neither time nor disposition, since I know your mind is fully made up, and that all my efforts would be unavailing, to go into the merits of the controversy. I know this, if one is after the deep joy and contentment, and sweet peace you tell of in your new faith, he need not accept Joseph Smith at all, for all that joy, etc., comes in any form of religion [italics mine] when we make as great sacrifice for it, and as true a consecration to it, and are so deeply convinced in it. Thousands of Adventists in the land have found what they claimed to be truth, and have joy and peace therein. So do many who have become Catholics and, many who turn to Protestantism if they are equally sincere and profoundly convinced.

"You think the Lord led you; well, a sister left our church a few weeks ago, because the Lord led her into Christian Science. Cardinal Newman, when he wrote "Lead kindly light," was just then being led by the same Lord, into the Catholic church, and Father Chiquiquy was led, about the same time, or earlier, with a score or more of others, out of the Catholic church, into Protestantism. I do not say the Lord did not lead any of these. Every one of them was as honest as you are, and as joyful in his new accepted form of faith. God wants to keep spiritual religion alive in the earth and when the church becomes Laodicean in heart, He may lead into other forms of faith, but reassured that when God leads, he leads every one to recognize Christ as all and in all.

"As for inspiration, Joseph Smith is not the only modern that has claimed that for himself. Mrs. Eddy, the head of Christian Science, was inspired [or claims to be, which is a different thing, A. R. C.] and her followers claim for her that she will never see death. Emanuel Swedenborg was inspired. Dr. Dowie, of Chicago, recently declared before a large audience, 'I am God's prophet, I know I am' and so and so forth. So I can just as truly say, the Lord keeps me where I am. In most cases the Lord's leading is the leading of some zealous propagandist, who thrusts 'our literature,' before the reader, and the reader reads of course, and by natural mental laws of suggestion, and desire to satisfy curiosity, intensified by occasionally running onto a striking fulfillment, finally upsets ones mental equilibrium, disturbs conscience, which never is at rest until the new faith is accepted, whether Mormonism, Latter Day Saintism, Swedenborgism, Christian Science, or what not."

In speaking of Christian Science, he says it is a strange cult, but is not new, only as the old philosophy that mind controls matter has been patched onto the Christian religion for the sake of making the theory go down, as pills are sugar-coated. And it is growing very rapidly, and if this is a sign of Divine approval it must be right. And he closes his letter thus: "May God bless you and keep you in the fellowship of the Spirit, I am your loving brother, E. H."

To the above I replied as follows: "I am very grateful, indeed, that you do not feel to disown a loving sister because she has 'added another book to her Bible, and another prophet to her list of prophets.' Brother, I did not add the other book nor the other prophet, that was God's work, not mine. I only accept what he has so graciously given. Every true Latter Day Saint gives Christ the first place, as I soon discovered when I began to read their writings; first in everything, physically, spiritually and financially, Christ first. If you could visit with them, and hear them talk of Christ and of his love and his wonderful mercy, in healing, etc., you would not think any one superceded him in their hearts. Joseph's writings were never intended to supercede the Scriptures any more than the epistles were to supercede the gospels, or Revelations, the old prophecies. Neither do we deny to any one the blessings of salvation. If any are not saved, it is not because we deny them, but because they will not be saved, but we believe that He will have all men to be saved and come to a knowledge of the truth in God's own time, the common salvation spoken of by Jude, but that is not the great salvation of Christ's kingdom. So we deny salvation to none. If salvation in any form or degree, is to be denied to any, that is God's province, not ours.

"While we do hold, and so do the Scriptures plainly teach, 'Blessed' and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection.' Do not these constitute the bride of Christ? Then, let me ask you, who are those invited to the marriage supper of the Lamb? Not the Bride, for she, too, is to say 'come'. Take the Savior's parables, and all texts referring to the marriage supper, and see if you cannot see the lesson plainly taught, and among those invited are to be found some without the wedding garment on. And again, in the parable of the virgins. There are first, the Bride, then the wise, and then the foolish virgins. Which has the greater blessedness, the bride or her virgins and guests and servants?"

"No doubt you will think I have gotten this out of their papers and books, but I have not. While the Saints hold to the doctrine of a difference in glory, so does Paul teach and does Christ in these parables, yet I had never seen these parables interpreted in this way in any of their papers, but the meaning burst upon me like a flash of light as I was searching the Scriptures for something to overthrow their theories. I did not want to believe they were right, but I had pledged myself to follow the truth, and I felt that it would lead me in a thorny path, and while the spirit was willing, the flesh was weak, yet I wanted truth. It is not Joseph Smith that we accept; he was only a man, so were all the prophets. It is the message he brought from God, and that is all we accept of any of the prophets, or should be. And the deep joy, contentment, and sweet peace, were never mine in as great a degree until I did accept this message, and came to where I laid all—friends, reputation, life itself—on the altar, in my own humble home, and said, 'Yes, Lord, even all these do I give up for thy sake.' And anything less could not be a reasonable service, since we are not our own; He has bought us with his own precious blood. Blessed be his name! He has richly repaid for all as he said he would. Luke 18: 29, 30. And though the pathway was shown me full of thorns and threatening dangers, yet at every step my Father's hand has pushed away the thorns, and lo! the lions are all chained.

"Yes, I believe the Adventists do find peace and joy in what they believe to be truth, and, brother, every one of them, we might say, gave up some error to accept some truth, and are blessed accordingly, but they have not got all truth; but to him that has shall be given more, if he does not shut his eyes to it when it comes; if he does, then even that which he has, or seemeth to have, shall be taken away. We hold the same truths they do, or any of the other churches, as to that; truth is truth, no matter where it is found, and we believe that a church guided by a church by God's Spirit, has more truth than one guided by the word of man. If it is a grand thing, as you will not deny, for an individual to be guided into all truth, how much grander when the church herself is thus guided! and if she is not thus guided she is not the church of Christ no matter by what name she may be called. The Bride will obey her Lord and it will be love that constrains her.

"Yes! I think the Lord led me. If ever I doubt that, after my experience, I will have to doubt his having anything to do with his creatures at all. What kind of a God would he be who would allow one to be misled, the cry of whose heart for months was, 'Lord, don't let me be deceived, I want the truth, and no matter what its cost I will accept.'

Cardinal Newman was an Episcopalian I believe, and in joining the Catholics, was only following the same light a little farther that he had been following, a mere "ignis fatuus." How could he do otherwise unless he should receive the fuller light of the everlasting gospel? and then if he had shut his eyes to that and turned away, it would only be to still follow the false light. Oh, brother, if there was no light but the true light, none could be deceived but there are so many.

Do you, a Christian minister, think the way "to keep spiritual religion alive in the earth" is to be led from one form of faith into another? Is Christ to be thus divided? Is it really better than for some to be of Paul and some of Apollos and some (few) of Christ? thus causing strife contentment, confusion? Is that spiritual life? If so, then the more divisions of the church, into churches, and subdivisions into sects, the better, for the greater the chance to be tossed to and fro from one to another, as if in a game of shuttle cock.

But I thought God's plan was that "we should be rooted and grounded in the truth," "not carried about by every wind of doctrine," not "tossed to and fro." One Lord, one faith, one baptism. Read carefully 4th of Ephesians. Paul did not seem to think it a desirable thing to be thus "tossed to and fro," and he plainly shows why: God "gave some, apostles; and some, prophets; and some, evangelists; and some, pastors and teachers; for the perfecting of the Saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body [not bodies] of Christ: till we all come in the unity [not differences] of faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ: that we henceforth be no more children, tossed to and fro, and carried about by every wind of doctrine, by the sleight of men, and cunning craftiness, whereby they lie in wait to deceive; but speaking the truth in love, may grow up into Him, in all things, which is the head, even Christ: from whom the whole body fitly joined together, and compacted by that which every joint supplieth, according to the effectual working in the measure of every part. Maketh increase of the body unto the edifying of itself in love." For (4th verse), "there is one body and one spirit;" and as we find in the 15th verse, Christ is the head of this body; notice in 15th verse, the body is to be fitly joined, that is, a proper and orderly manner after a correct pattern, in a suitable organization, and "compacted by that which every joint supplieth," which every joint supplieth, not separated into sects at every joint. "Compacted:—firmly joined together, in agreement, or by compact, also pressed firmly together, united or connected firmly together"—Webster. Not much compaction among the sects. But how is it in the true body? The wants of each member, even to the least, are supplied by the "effectual working" of all the other members. Easily understood when we get into the true body. For instance, here in Richmond is a little, weak, insignificant, feeble joint or member of the "one body," yet its needs and wants will be supplied by that which every joint or member supplieth to the one body.

Again, in Colossians 2; we read: "The body is of Christ," who is the "Head from which all the body by joints and bands, having nourishment ministered, and knit together, increaseth with the increase of God." Now when one little joint or member suffers, all the members suffer also with it, and when one little joint or member is blessed, spiritually or financially, all the members are blessed with it, and the increase of one little joint or tiny member is the increase of God for the whole body; for as one part or joint is nourished, so the nourishment is conveyed by the hands with which they are knit together, to all the parts.

We are also "called in one body," says Paul (Col. 3: 15, also chapter 18), and he, Christ, is the head of the body, the church, not churches nor bodies, not one head and many bodies. One head—Christ, and one body—His church.

No, Joseph Smith is not the only modern that has claimed inspiration for himself. Christ said, there would arise many false prophets and warned against them; were there to have been no prophets, no need of warning against the false ones. If no good coins existed, who would be deceived by a counterfeit one?

Everyone that has received the Holy Ghost has received some inspiration; and I believe has more or less of the spirit of prophecy. "For the testimony of Jesus," says John, "is the spirit of prophecy." Then if we, as a people or as a church, have no spirit of prophecy can we claim to have the testimony of Jesus? for no man can say Jesus is the Christ, that is, say it from his inner consciousness, except by the Holy Ghost.

Unlike Mary B. Eddy's followers, Joseph's followers never claimed any such an absurd thing for him. He predicted his own death, and was not counted anything but a man, although one whom it pleased God to honor with the position of prophet in these latter days. You say Swedenborg was inspired, "Possibly, but from what source? If from God, then would he speak the things of God; and his words would agree with the law, and with the testimony." "If they speak not according to this word, it is because there is no light in them."

I am not familiar with Dowie's teaching. He may be a prophet sent to teach some particular truth. I would not say God has not many such. And claiming Joseph Smith to be a true prophet, does not prove that no one else had the spirit of prophecy. I believe many are prophets and do not know it. Frances Willard, Neal Dow and many others were prophets of temperance and purity. But their mission was their mission, and Joseph's mission was his mission, which was to restore the everlasting gospel, and bring the church up out of the wilderness where it had been so long hidden. Now and then a minor prophet comes up and cries, "Thus saith the Lord, Come out of Babylon, oh my people," and are doing God's work thus far, but it still needs another like unto Moses, to lead them out of the wilderness and on to the Zion of God. Alas, many of them gather a few out of Babylon and think that is all that is required, or set to, and build a church of their own, calling it the Apostolic, or the Pentecostal, or the Holiness church, and claiming to be the bride of Christ, forgetting the rule that the bride should bear her Lord's name. Alas, still in the wilderness, though out of Babylon, but what better is their condition if they continue thus?

And you think you can just as truly say the Lord keeps you where you are? Well, He will not keep you there always unless you shut your eyes to a greater light, and close your ears to all truth, and remain content "to walk in the light of your fires, and in the sparks that ye [men] have kindled. * * * This shall ye have at my hand, ye shall lie down in sorrow." (Isa. 50:11). Alas, there are so many walking in the light of man-made fires, and mistaking their flickering, changing lights, for the rays of the Sun of righteousness, and the feeble sparks, for the illuminations of the Spirit of truth.

Brother, I never met any "zealous propagandists" of this faith before I was convinced of its truth. I corresponded with a lady who I believed was a most devoted Christian in the Methodist church, and I was shocked and grieved when she wrote me she was about to join the Latter Day Saints, and I tried to convince her of her error; but her reasoning had the same effect on me that Paul's did on King Agrippa, "Almost thou persuadest me to be a" Saint; and now I can say as did Paul, "I would to God that not only thou, but all that hear me [or read these words], were both almost, and altogether, such as I am. Save these bonds" or restrictions which hinder me from the work of my choice.

To be sure, I read "our literature," so had I read all manner of church literature, but never did I have a witness within that "this is the truth," until I read the letters, tracts and papers of the Saints. I suppose you think my mental equilibrium was upset. No, brother, but it became more equally balanced, and I can weigh matters more evenly and justly than ever before, because I can use the balances of truth and justice, with love and mercy for counterbalances. Yes, "conscience became disturbed," and was not that what the early christian preachers—the apostles—sought to do—to disturb conscience? I am glad it was disturbed, though I thought to lull it to rest again when I joined the Presbyterian church, but I could not. The Spirit spake in too loud and too earnest tones, until "At last I paused to listen, His voice could not deceive me."

And I am glad that I did.

Brother, have the needs of humanity changed so that what was necessary for man's salvation eighteen hundred years ago is not necessary now? Was there any more need of Timothy taking heed unto himself and unto the doctrine then than there is of our doing the same now? (1 Tim. 4:16). Was there any more need of Titus speaking the things that became sound doctrine than there is of ministers doing the same today? (Titus 2:11). And if you will study the Testament in the right spirit you will find that if the church had to this day continued in sound doctrine, there would have been no divisions. All would have been Saints. There would have been no need of a Joseph Smith, or any other man, to restore the everlasting gospel, which was to have been restored according to Revelation 14:6. If it had been preached all the time, what need of an angel to come and preach it again?

You say of Christian Science, "It is a strange cult, but not new, only as the old philosophy that mind controls matter, has been patched on to the Christian religion, for the sake of making the theory go down just as pills are sugar-coated." Brother, you have got that wrong. The Christian Scientist denies the existence of anything but mind; they do not claim that mind controls matter, which I consider is the truth. If mind does not control matter, what does? "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he." Evil thoughts make evil actions. The evil mind controls the material man to do evil things; so with the good mind, it controls to good things. And the great, eternal Mind controlled, and controls matter, and the world and all that therein is, is a result of that controlling. The philosophy of Christian Science was not patched on to the Christian religion. Mary B. Eddy herself does not claim that; but rather that it was a new wine for which a new bottle had to be prepared; also that it was new cloth that would not cling to the old garment; and so this new bottle was manufactured for the holding of this bewildering, stupefying, narcotic wine, and the new garment to receive this patch of a soft and flowery cloth that had no semblance to the old garment of Christ's righteousness, the true Christianity given to His followers. Yes, if rapid growth was a sign of divine approval, it must be right, but it is no sign, for I recall that many doctrines which are false and misleading, are thus rapidly spreading—for instance Spiritualism.

I am truly glad to hear from you, and I know the time will come when we shall see eye to eye; if not before, we will when that which is perfect is come, when we shall see no more through a glass darkly. But, thank God, even now the mists and vapors are being washed off the glass for me, and I hope to be able to see face to face with my Savior and all the redeemed, with no intervening glass to catch the mists of doubt and distrust that float between us now.

You speak of my having sixty-seven books to my Bible. Brother, if I had all the books that even my Bible mentions, as Scripture I would have at least eighty-six, as there are twenty mentioned in it that we do not have. I have a list of these twenty, and had I time would send you references to them. "All Scripture given by inspiration is profitable," etc.

REPUTATION is what men and women think of us. Character is what God and angels know of us.—Thomas Paine.

LETTER DEPARTMENT.

ELWOOD CITY, Pa., April 12.

Editor Ensign:—I am now quiet and can pen you a few lines. I arrived at St. Louis Saturday morning, met Bro. J. C. Hitchcock and J. B. Billinsky. The latter took leave of absence and escorted me around the city, showing various places of interest among which was their church, and his new home and cheerful wife; also the home of our once beloved brother, R. J. Crawford. I was very much pleased to meet with his wife, and, had time permitted, should have remained to have seen Bro. Robert, for we are loath to think he is far away from us. Thence to the Union depot, which, by the way, is a magnificent building, then boarded a train heading for Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, arriving Sunday morning about 7:30 a. m., to find that, by the thoughtful consideration of our worthy Bro. R. G. Smith, Bro. C. Ed. Miller and Sr. Nettle Morgan were there to meet me, which, I assure you, was fully appreciated. I was made welcome to Bro. Miller's home, where, with his excellent companion and little baby girl, a very enjoyable time was had.

Was plotted to the Saints' meeting house, and had the pleasure of listening to a young Bro. Thomas, who, under divine influence, made a worthy and effectual effort, fully sending the necessity of character building. I enjoyed the services that followed but thought a little more time given would have been helpful. Several acquaintances were made and many questions asked about former Pittsburg Saints who are held in high esteem, as we have proven them worthy.

Leaving Pittsburg, Monday, I reached my destination, Elwood City, while the rain was falling, which was not likely to cheer one's spirit up, who had left home's pleasant surroundings, and such churchly associations as Independence affords; however, I had no complaint; I suppose rain looks the same everywhere. If the spirit is cheerful and one has plenty of work there should be no complaint.

At work in the Frankford Steel and Forge Co., Tuesday, met with some mechanical adventures, but later satisfaction to myself and my employer has been obtained. It was a new experience with me, but a very profitable one, and as a greater familiarity with the work continues, a promise of better prospects are held out, so it is likely it will be some time before I behold my home in Zion. But when I do, I feel that improved conditions will have obtained, and I shall enter with greater joy than experienced before. The kind deeds and tokens of appreciation that were tendered me and the loving expressions of our heavenly Father, are feelingly cherished and much pleasure has been given me by reflection upon them.

It has taken most of my time up to the present to fit myself for the work I am engaged in, and feeling the responsibility of my calling, I wish soon to find opportunities to work for the Master, if I can find any Saints in Elwood City or near. If they will write me I will try and see them.

Yours in gospel bonds,
G. E. HARRINGTON.

MANILA, P. I., March 5.

Editor Ensign:—It may be that some would like to hear from their brother in the Philippines, 10,000 miles from home. I am well at present, have not been sick only about fifteen days since I came on the island, and that was when I first came over. I have been on the island over seven months and it has been over a year since I heard a Saint preach, and my only preacher is the ENSIGN. I would be lost to the world if it was not for the ENSIGN. Everything is Catholic over here, and I can't talk to these people to tell them they have been taught wrong. May God send a teacher to this part of the world soon. While I have to endure hardships and privations, I enjoy the presence of the Lord. A soldier over here has to endure many things; some weeks we get but about two nights sleep; other nights we get from two to four hours sleep, then ride from twelve o'clock at night till four o'clock the next day every other night, some times every night. The dry season commenced about December 1, 1899; it is so hot at noonday man can't move around much. I hope I will not have to stay here through another rainy season; there have been weeks that I would not be dry at all, day or night; one night we slept on the bank of a river and it rained as hard as I ever saw it rain; we had no tents, nothing but shelter half to throw over us; the river raised so the next morning we had to hustle and move back, and then rode all day in the rain.

I hope the Saints will pray for me that God will help me to bear my trials without murmuring. I have not one companion that knows God, but I try with all of the knowledge I have to explain the Scriptures to them. Pray that God may give me more knowledge that I may learn myself and be a help to others. I thank God that he gave me light and understanding; if any one will obey God they may have light and wisdom. If any one wishes to know of the true church, just read the Bible and take God for what he says. I remain

Your brother in Christ,
Wm. C. BURROUGHS.
Troop F, 4th Cavalry.

CHILLICOTHE, Ill., March 18.

Dear Ensign:—When I last wrote I was at Moline, but left there on December 13th, for Millersburg, where I held meetings two weeks, with splendid liberty and good interest, the Saints there taking an active part in making the meetings a success; some noble workers there, and of course some who are slothful, but nearly all seemed to wake up during the meeting, and seemed determined to press on with renewed zeal. The president of the branch was away, but Bro. Riley Duncan, the teacher, was looking after the work, and was doing well; he took charge of the meeting while I was preaching there, he is a very earnest member. Some who had never heard the gospel before were very much interested.

I went from there to my home December 30th, and started on to Muscatine, Iowa, the next day, but when I arrived there, was called six miles north of town to preach the funeral sermon of the infant daughter of Bro. and Sr. C. G. Dykes; drove home that night twenty-one miles, spent New Years day at home, and on January 5th, went to Farmington, preached there at night in the home of Bro. Pletton; went on to Canton next day where I was met by Bro. F. A. Russell, and together we held a series of meetings there, which resulted in the baptism of one, the Saints also being strengthened and edified. A Religio was also organized.

I went from there to Peoria, where Bro. J. C. Crabb was holding meetings; preached one night, then on to Chillicothe by request, to be with the Saints there, who are only five in number, but are letting their light shine. I preached on Saturday night, and three times on Sunday, in the house of Bro. Kahler. Administered to some sick there, and left on Monday to look after district business at Rock Island, thence to Kewanee where we held forth till conference February 3d, which passed off very peacefully.

Went to Galva from there, where Bro. Crabb and I held three meetings in a private house to interested listeners; the few Saints there are anxious for the tent to be brought there next summer. We went to Plano and attended the conference there, meeting many Saints whom we never saw before, but they did not seem like strangers. We had the privilege of preaching once while there. Conference passed off quite nicely.

Since then I have been looking after district matters and preaching at different places, coming here last Wednesday with Bro. F. A. Russell, and we are preaching in a private house; some are very much interested and I think will obey soon; while others, especially the ministers, are up in arms, and relating the same old stories that we hear so often. The Baptist minister has forbid his members readings any of our literature, and one, Tyler, a divine(?) healer, who does not belong to any organization, but is "just simply a child of God," and invites the people to come to him and be healed, who also claims he is a prophet, has forbidden his followers coming to hear us or anybody else. We had a tilt with him last July while here, but since then, he will not talk to us; he says he has not got time. Well, I guess that is true, for Satan's time is short and his agents have no time to lose or waste talking to Latter Day Saints. The Baptist congregation is badly split; we baptized two of them last September, and others have left the church and will unite with us soon.

We leave here for Dahinda tomorrow, and on toward Lamoni. There are good chances for work in this district, if one wants to work, but it wants men with courage, for there are some things to meet that makes one feel like he wants to go home; I hope we can have a larger missionary force next year than we had the last two; we have room and work for many missionaries here if we can get the kind who will get out and look for work. We have opened a number of new fields the last fifteen months, and have had good attendance at nearly every place, and many invitations to come again. I do not know of any place we have been, but what we can preach there again; the district has made a good growth the past year, over fifty have been baptized, and the work looks much brighter than it has for some time. Ever praying for the good of the cause, I remain your brother in bonds,

J. W. ADAMS.

We will, however, need the active co-operation of all who are interested in this work; and hence we earnestly solicit the aid of Saints and friends. We shall be glad to have information of any works mentioning the latter day work issued or prospective, especially the latter; and where practicable send us copies of books. Any information addressed to either of the committee will receive prompt attention. Copies of the books should be sent to the secretary.

GENERAL CHURCH NEWS.

INDEPENDENCE.

It is now, Bishop May.

About all our Conference delegates have returned and are getting down to daily routines again.

Sr. Roy Newdirk was materially helped in the administration of the elders last Sunday afternoon. We hope she will make progress now to a speedy recovery.

Branch Rally Day, May 27th, the last Sunday in May. Keep the date in mind and let every member of the branch arrange to attend. A good program will be presented.

The morning sermon at the stone church last Sunday was by Bro. A. H. Parsons; it was much enjoyed by the audience. At night Bro. R. J. Parker occupied to the comfort and satisfaction of the hearers.

Bro. Roy Harrington left for Elwood, Pennsylvania, Monday evening to join his father, Bro. G. E. Harrington, who has secured a situation for him there. Bro. Roy is a good, steady young man and the Saints wish him success in his new field.

Bro. Leonard White, youngest son of Bro. and Sr. Alfred White, of this city, and Sr. Lucy Coleman, daughter of Bro. and Sr. A. J. Coleman, of Harrisonville, Missouri, were married at the home of the bride's parents yesterday (Wednesday), Elder A. White officiating. The ENSIGN extends congratulations and wishes the happy pair much happiness and success through life.

Bro. Orville James, our efficient choir director, desires every singer who is willing to assist in the Rally day exercises, to be present at the choir practice this, Thursday, night, and every Thursday evening the next five weeks. We hope there will be a generous response to this invitation, as fifty or sixty of our best singers are needed to carry out the program. Turn out, ye sopranos, ye altos, ye tenors, and ye bassos, and make the occasion one of joy, whose memory shall be a pleasure.

Now that Conference is over and another year's work is before us, let every "Religion" go to work as never before, to build up and extend the benefits of so grand a society. Its work was much commended at the late Conference, and every member should feel encouraged to renewed effort, both in assimilating the lessons and readings, and in increasing its membership. Keep it in view. "Onward and Upward." That motto means work. Let every one do their part, and the burden will be easy, the reward delightful and joyous.

LAMONI, IOWA.

Mild, but unsettled.

Conference closed Saturday evening. Two more baptized yesterday.

A death occurred at the Saints' Home during Conference, Sr. Lydia Greenwood, aged 70. The funeral sermon was by Elder Stebbins. Bro. Chas. Harrup went to Salt Lake City, and Bro. Henry Jones to Omaha, Nebraska.

Sr. Stebbins and Bro. Thompson have been quite ill of late.

Mr. C. Malcor was married on the 12th inst. to Sr. M. A. Evans by Elder Stebbins.

A child of Bro. A. Jessiman died on the 19th; buried on the 20th.

Yesterday at the brick church here at 11 a. m. the preaching was by Elder H. J. Davison of Nova Scotia; at night by Elder Rudd; at the Home last night by Elder A. V. Closson.

The afternoon service was seasoned with a good number of fervent prayers for the sick and afflicted and for the furtherance of the latter day work. Good testimonies and several prophecies; excellent promises were given by the Spirit to all the faithful ones in Christ and to the diligent workers in the ministry; also encouraging words to Bro. W. H. Fuller (colored) of California, who was ordained a priest during the Conference.

A LAMONIAN.

April 23.

ST. JOSEPH, MISSOURI.

The breaking up of Conference seems like the dispersion of a great family of brothers and sisters. And as they go in all directions, each anxious to be about the Father's business, we cannot help breathing a silent prayer that the heavenly Father will stand by His children through all the coming conflicts, and abundantly bless them with His Holy Spirit. We often sing in our prayer meetings:

We are walking down time's vista,
We are very near the end.

Many have expressed a realization of this. We can only continue the strain:

Let us pray that God the Father,
May His guiding Spirit send.

Bro. Robert Wining was the speaker yesterday morning, his remarks were upon the subject of "Purity of Heart."

Elder C. R. Duncan, passing through the city yesterday, was prevailed upon to address the Saints last evening; his subject was "Revelation." Elder W. M. Self was also a visitor, offering the opening prayer at the evening preaching service.

An infant of Bro. and Sr. Baker was blessed at the prayer service yesterday, by Elders Shaw and Lawrenson, and named Gordon Kenneth.

Sr. Delena Eno (one of the ENSIGN's converts), recently from Canada, was received into the branch upon the presentation of certificate of baptism, at the prayer and testimony service.

Bro. Daniel Lewis and family have returned from Herington, Kansas, and will remain in St. Joseph.

Bro. Thos. Baker was chosen superintendent of the Aspey mission Sunday School, on account of the resignation of Bro. Taddicken, who takes up the same work in another part of the city.

The semi-annual election of branch officers will occur Wednesday evening, May 2d.

Another mission Sunday School was organized by Bro. Cravens, district superintendent, two weeks ago yesterday. This mission was opened up through the efforts of Bro. and Sr. H. B. Taddicken. School meets in the hall over the post-office at 9:30, with preaching at eleven o'clock. The School showed an attendance of 48 yesterday.

We arrived in the great city yesterday morning after an all night ride, the tediousness of which was relieved by the genial and lively company of a number of Saints. The night was spent in happy conversation on gospel themes and in trying to sleep. Bro. Cornish did not sleep much, but he tried to keep quiet so that others could. We were welcomed at the hospitable home of Bro. and Sr. W. H. Deam and after a hearty breakfast we started on our new year's gospel work. At the Lang mission we met the happy faces of the Saints who bade us welcome. We felt delighted with the improvement by the addition of a new baptismal font and was still more delighted when we witnessed the baptism in it of Bro. N. Anderson by Elder E. J. Lang. Bro. G. W. Robley preached us a good practical sermon and Bro. Lake gave us a nice farewell talk.

At headquarters we found Bro. Fred M. Pitt busy with his Sunday School, after which Bro. J. Cornish preached a plain gospel sermon with good spirit and effect. Though sleepy before commencing, Bro. Cornish got pretty thoroughly awake before he had finished his sermon.

At night Bro. U. W. Greene gave us a very interesting and scholarly sermon on the fulfillment of prophecy. We regretted it could not be reported and placed in the ENSIGN. Bro. Greene has had some thrilling and convincing experiences while on his mission.

We begin our work for the new year in advance of where we left it on our sad journey, March 15th. The Saints here as a rule are well in body and happy in the great latter day work. Others are near the kingdom. Monday night will occur our priesthood meeting and on May 6th our union service. So let us "bend to the oar" and cause our beautiful bark to speed on and on to the happy haven of rest.

With heartfelt thanks for the many acts of kindness bestowed on us, I am still,

Your correspondent has not been able to keep up the weekly letters lately on account of an attack of inflammatory rheumatism settled in the fingers of the right hand, which has made writing very difficult and painful; now that an improvement has taken place, you will hear from me more regularly. BLUES

Ever have them? Then we can't tell you anything about them. You know how dark everything looks and how you are about ready to give up. Somehow, you can't throw off the terrible depression.

Are things really so blue? Isn't it your nerves, after all? That's where the trouble is. Your nerves are being poisoned from the impurities in your blood.

AYER'S Sarsaparilla

purifies the blood and gives power and stability to the nerves. It makes health and strength, activity and cheerfulness.

This is what "Ayer's" will do for you. It's the oldest Sarsaparilla in the land, the kind that was old before other Sarsaparillas were known.

This also accounts for the saying, "One bottle of Ayer's is worth three bottles of the ordinary kind."

REFLECTS.

The only biennial session of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, of which we have any knowledge, closed its sessions at Lamoni, Iowa, April 21, 1900, after sixteen days of very busy work. There was a large attendance of ministry and lay delegates, and it was a very fine representative body; and while in some sessions but slow progress was made, some of the questions considered were of a very important nature, and, as a rule, there seemed to be a universal desire to carefully consider matters before passing upon them. Naturally, and as is usually the case, some of the arguments would occasionally be unnecessary, merely serving to consume time; but though earnestness of manner was manifest, a good spirit prevailed and no serious marring of the peace of the session was shown. But it seems a little peculiar sometimes to an on-looker, that the same arguments on a question should be used by different parties, clothed, perhaps, in a little different verbiage, yet throwing no additional light on the question, and instead of assisting to a better understanding, the deciding of the matter would be that much more delayed, the time practically wasted, and forcing the calling of the "previous question" when instances of this kind occurred, occasionally shut off some others who probably could have made some points (no reference to ye editor, however, is here intended). Silence is often golden, and speech may be the commonest kind of sounding brass; wise men are sometimes known by their ability to judge when it is a time to speak and when it is a time to hear and weigh that which some one else utters.

Among the many gratifying manifestations of the Father's care upon his people, was the freshness and strength with which President Joseph Smith was sustained throughout the trying and arduous work devolving upon him in presiding over the Conference, in connection with his labors in the standing High Council and other quorums. The first couple of days or so of the Conference, he seemed worn and burdened; but notwithstanding that he sat with the council from about 9 a. m. till noon, and assumed the main direction of the Conference from 1:30 until 5:30, on an average, and then again met with the council at 7:30 p. m. (or with quorums) until late, after the first two or three days he seemed to renew his strength in a manner that was marvelous, at least to some, his step being quick, his manner cheerful, and his brain clear. Surely a loving Father's hand was over His servant in qualifying him for the work required, and at the close of the Conference, in referring to this signal favor, President Smith said that for the past ten years he had not been so free from physical distress during Conference as he had through this one. Many a heart in that large audience swiftly and silently responded with grateful praise to the Giver of all good for His mercies to our beloved president and brother. President Alexander H. Smith, and occasionally President E. L. Kelley, shared the burden of presiding at some of the sessions, with dignity and credit to themselves, and to the satisfaction of the body.

Another pleasing and commendable feature of this Conference was the manner in which the ministry controlled themselves when questions calling for prudence and good judgment were being discussed. They conducted themselves as servants of the Christ, having an exalted understanding of their calling as His ministers, and in his remarks at the close of Conference President Joseph Smith, taking the gavel in his hand, stated, "I feel like making the body a present of this; I have had no use for it except in opening the sessions," and congratulated the brethren that they had held themselves so well in hand.

It was rather amusing when the time of adjournment was being considered, to see under what an avalanche of thunderous "no's" the proposition to hold another biennial Conference was buried. We only heard two, the mover and the seconder of the motion, vote "aye," and they probably only made the motion to bring out the sentiment; they succeeded—admirably. The annual Conference is more than ever in favor. One brother said:

some time ago that he had a keg of smokeless powder laid up when the biennial question came up for discussion, and it is probable quite a number were fortified strongly along that line, but, fortunately, they had no opportunity to use it. The avalanche fell too suddenly, and "Independence, Missouri, April 6, 1901," will again witness, God willing, the "gathering of the clans."

A movement, second in importance only to that which created the necessity, was the calling and setting apart of some thirty-two high priests, placing the "standing ministry"—the pastors—the "overseers of the flock"—in a position to answer some of the demands so strongly pressing themselves upon the church of Jesus Christ. Some of these men are of international reputation in the church, as fearless, devoted, consecrated men, who have proven themselves valiant in the conflict, and excellent in character and wisdom. It is a long step forward, and the Spirit moving the calling of these men was manifest not only to the quorum into which they were called, but also to the First Presidency; this was clearly manifest when the lists were compared; and to this witness, was added confirmation given at the first meeting with their quorum after their ordination of those called to that office when relating their personal experiences regarding their calling. It was the last meeting of the quorum prior to adjourning of Conference, and it was a spiritual session of much rejoicing. The noble quorums of Seventy suffered the loss of some efficient workers by this action, but it was good to see that while regretting to give them up, they recognized the call to a different class of gospel work which their brethren had received, and parted with them in a saintly manner, in a joint Seventy quorum meeting of much spiritual power.

Another progressive movement, indicating the guiding hand of the Father, and the perfecting of His earthly organization, was the calling out from among the quorum of High Priests, men, well tried and experienced, to fill the office of Bishop, as provided in the law; thus relieving the presiding Bishop from some of the burden which the increasing membership and enlarged interests of the church has made incumbent upon him. The ordination of these men, as well as others, was attended by the Spirit's power, both attesting their calling and clothing them with the authority of their office. This is but the beginning of a work which both those at home and those in the field have seen and felt as being greatly needed; and the meeting of these demands will tend to secure that tranquility and development of the work so necessary to the preparation of the kingdom for the coming of the Lord.

The attendance and interest manifest in the services at this Conference was remarkable as well as gratifying, the large church edifice of the Saints being taxed, upstairs and down, to its very utmost, to accommodate the audiences which assembled. Thirty minutes and more before the ringing of the first bell the streets would be alive with people on their way to the church, and many would get their seats an hour or more before the time for opening the service, and sit patiently through that time and the hour or hour and a half required in the service, or, in the case of business sessions, the three and a half hours occupied. And it was a happy, joyous assembly full of cheerful greetings, but when the gavel in the hands of the chairman sounded upon the desk an instant hush and deep silence fell upon all, and the work of the session was entered into with earnestness and spirit. Overflow meetings for preaching and prayer and testimony were frequent at the beginning of the Conference, but, as from time to time those in attendance were required to leave, they were gradually discontinued.

The Saints' Home and Grace-land College were objects of much interest and frequent visits. The "Home" is certainly a model institution of which all may justly feel proud. Cleanliness, cheerfulness and order abounds everywhere; the only difficulty connected with this institution seems to be a very pressing need for more room, the present building being already much overtaxed; but this, it is hoped, will soon be obviated, as preparations are now under way to add another wing; even then, however, we fear the desire for rooms cannot long be met until still further extensions are made. The college impresses one as being a noble work; but its many necessities fills the mind with sadness and regret that an undertaking of such grand possibilities should have to be weighed down and retarded by lack of means to place it upon a solid footing. The board of trustees, good, earnest business men, have this work at heart and are bending every energy to make it successful; we trust the Lord will bless their efforts and make them abundantly successful. The faculty, from President Harkness down, are well suited for the positions which they occupy as instructors, and are doing good work.

The year is before us. To us, never were prospects brighter, nor the assurances of success more encouraging; the steps taken in the forward movement at this Conference, augurs well for the permanency and success of the work. The Sabbath School and the Religio, Daughters of Zion and other auxiliary work is making grand strides in the right direction, and the foundation of the principles of righteousness are being sincerely implanted in the hearts of young and old. Victory is at the end of the race. Look forward, press on, the Captain of our salvation leads, and, if faithful, we shall win, triumphantly.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

UNDER date of April 27th, the postmaster at Deloit, Iowa, advises that Sr. Francis Lumley died in January last. This was a surprise to us, we having seen no notice of her demise in any of the papers. Sr. Lumley was widely known as the sister who was so remarkably given her sight at her baptism some years ago. The pupils of her eyes always had that peculiar stony look, evidencing a total lack of sight naturally. We understand the doctors always stated that she had no natural sight, yet she could see to sew, and her vision seemed to be as strong as any one, and far more so than many others. She was not, however, strong physically and was well up in years, but no particulars were given as to her demise on the card we received.

AS INSTANCING that though the seed sown may apparently have no effect, the Lord watches over it and causes it in time to become fruitful, Bro. J. J. Cornish, of Michigan, received a letter recently from a former M. E. minister, named E. Draper, now of Ballard, Washington, who, fifteen or twenty years ago, had some conversations with Bro. Cornish, in London, Canada. In this letter he refers to an incident where a brother working in a box factory had three of his fingers cut off, and refused to call a physician, but had Bro. Cornish administer to him, when, as this minister testifies, the blood stopped flowing almost instantly, and in three weeks he was back at work. He adds:

It is now twelve or fifteen years since receiving my letter, and coming to the United States, I have never presented my letter to any church. I have given great attention to the study of the Scriptures, and have become fully satisfied that all the churches of my acquaintance are far from being the real church, or churches of Jesus Christ. I have been studying Latter Day Saint literature for the last two months and am quite interested. I cannot say what my ultimate decision will be, but I can say that the great majority of your teachings, or the teachings of the church of Jesus Christ, called Latter Day Saints, are endorsed by me. I highly esteem the few Saints who reside in this locality and meet with them when I can.

GENERAL CHURCH NEWS.

INDEPENDENCE.

Bro. C. A. Roell's new house on Fuller street is rapidly approaching completion.

All evening meetings of the branch now commence at 8 o'clock, and will so continue during the summer.

Bro. Geo. Bartholomew has sold his fine residence near the stone church to Bro. E. L. Kelley, of Lamoni, Iowa.

Sr. W. H. Blatt, of North Liberty street, has been having a very trying time with a severe attack of heart trouble the past month. She was taken worse Sunday and has been quite bad ever since. She desires the prayers of the Saints for her recovery.

Next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock, no preventing providence, Bro. Joseph Luff will preach the funeral sermon of the late Grandma Mooney. This was her request before her demise, but Bro. Luff being absent in the east, could not comply with the request at the time. In the evening Bro. I. N. White has been announced to preach unless he happens to be unexpectedly called away.

Sr. J. H. Lee had the misfortune to fall and severely injure her knee while alighting from a street car in Kansas City, Tuesday. She was brought home in a carriage attended by a physician. Wednesday morning the injured member was so badly swollen that the physician could not ascertain whether the cap of the knee was displaced or not. Her age adds to the seriousness of the case. We hope, however, a speedy cure may be realized.

The Missouri Pacific Railway issued a new time card April 29th. There are but two changes affecting Independence people, in both instances on trains west-bound—to Kansas City. No. 3 from St. Louis formerly arriving at Independence at 6:40 a. m. is now due at 7:17 a. m., and No. 93 from Texas and Joplin formerly arriving at 6:03 a. m. is now due at 8:15 a. m. If officials would consult station agents where suburban traffic is affected by changes in time cards when arranging their schedules, it would probably be found advantageous all around. This change will probably cause a number who have to be at work in Kansas City about 7 o'clock to patronize the Electric line. A train leaving about 6:30 a. m. would probably catch these parties about right.

Sunday was a day fraught with blessings to the Saints here. At the morning hour the upper auditorium of the church was well filled, Bro. F. G. Pitt being the speaker; his effort was uplifting and much appreciated; at 1:30 p. m., in Shultz's pond, on the south side, Eva Powers, daughter of Sr. Josie Powers, was baptized by Bro. W. N. Robinson; it was a beautiful scene. She was confirmed at the afternoon service by Bro. F. G. Pitt and G. H. Hilliard; and George Mansel, infant son of Mr. Linus Milton and Sr. Estella Ethel Loveland, was blessed by Bro. F. G. Pitt and W. H. Garrett.

The afternoon service was strengthening and cheering; a number of returning missionaries were present. At night Bro. R. C. Evans, of Canada, addressed a large congregation, answering some objections to the Book of Mormon. It was a happy and effective effort, closing fitly a well spent and satisfactory day in the service of the Lord.

Bertha Delight, eldest daughter of Bro. John and Sr. Jessie Orrick, died Saturday morning last at two o'clock. She had been a sufferer from hip disease the past year, receiving only temporary relief from administrations; finally other complications set in, and coupled with a fall on the injured hip some two weeks since, placed her case beyond human skill. Everything possible was done to prolong her life and alleviate her sufferings, but the Father, in His wisdom, has taken her to himself and she is safe from the trials and temptations of this life. The bereaved ones have the sympathy of the Saints. The funeral took place from the home, Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Bro. T. W. Chatburn in charge. Bro. R. C. Evans, who officiated at the wedding of the parents, preached the sermon. The little one was nearly five years old.
