NOMINATIONS.

The following are the rules governing the quorum in nominations to the office of high priest:

Every president of the high priesthood (or presiding elder), bishop, high counselor, and high priest, is to be ordained by the direction of a high council, or general conference.—Doctrine and Covenants 17: 17.

If a branch, or district be large he who is chosen to preside should be an high priest, if there be one possessed of the spirit of wisdom to administer in the office of president, or if an elder be chosen who may by experience be found qualified to preside, as soon as practicable thereafter he should be ordained an high priest by the spirit of wisdom and revelation in the one ordaining, and by direction of a high council, or general conference, as required in the law.—Doctrine and Covenants 120: 2.

It is the will of God that they do this; yea, verily, thus saith the Spirit, If they will now enter upon this work, leaving the burden of care in organized districts, or conferences to the standing ministry under the presidency of the church, observing the law already given to ordain and set high priests or elders to preside in large branches and in districts, and also evangelical ministers, then will those officers set in the church be useful and he who gave the law be honored; the differences between the quorums be healed, confidence restored and good will and peace come to the people as a cherishing fountain.—Doctrine and Covenants 122: 8.

Whereas, There are being offered from different places nominations for ordinations to the high priests' office, Be it Resolved, That in the opinion of the High Priests' Quorum, all nominations for ordination to the office of high priest should come from the First Presidency of the church.

The secretary presented the above to the First Presidency and received from them the following:

It would be proper for the First Presidency to nominate on recommendation of the high priests or at their own discretion or by revelation.—Adopted by the Quorum, April 12, 1902, Minute Book, p. 22.

On motion, The quorum requested its presidency to prepare and present a rule to govern the quorum in the nomination of high priests. The following was submitted and adopted:

1. We suggest that hereafter when any nominations are to be made for high priests, the names be presented to the presidency of the quorum with such recommendation as may be available and reference to parties where information may be secured; that such names may be duly considered by your presidency.

2. And advising with the First Presidency, and with missionary in charge of mission where the brother labors, if necessary, and upon favorable consideration names be presented to quorum for ratification.—Minute Book, p. 73.

To the General Conference; Greeting: At the conference of 1907, on April 6 and 15 there was before the conference a matter from the Kewanee District making inquiry concerning the method of selecting and appointing high priests. This matter was referred to the First Presidency, and the Presidency asked for further time than was possible to give to this matter at the time. I am instructed to advise you that the Presidency has had this matter under consideration and we hereby report:

We find that the ordination of high priests is to be by direction of a high council (either a stake high council or the Standing High Council) or the General Conference (see section 17, paragraph 17, Book of Covenants; also section 120, paragraph 2). The call of high priests is the same as provided for others; that is, by revelation, as see Hebrews 5:4. But we find no direction in the revelations and rules of the church determining the manner in which the call and recommendation for ordination are to be made.

It is our opinion that nominations for ordination of high priests may be made by the First Presidency, the Twelve, or the Quorum of High Priests.

Recommendations of persons to be chosen as high priests may be made by branch, district, or stake, such recommendations to be presented by the district or stake president to the missionary in charge, and by him to the Presidency for consideration and presentation to the General Conference or High Council.

Inasmuch as high priests are especially designated as standing ministers to the church under the direct oversight of the First Presidency (Doctrine and Covenants 122:8, 9,) all nominations for ordination should be submitted to the First Presidency before said nominations are presented to the General Conference or High Council.

Respectfully submitted,

FREDERICK M. SMITH,
Secretary Presidency.

INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI, April 1, 1910.

The Quorum of High Priests carefully examined the above report of the First Presidency to the General Conference and adopted the same.

J. A. GUNSOLLEY, Assistant Secretary.
R. M. ELVIN, Secretary.

KEEPING ITEMS.

Brethren of the quorum will please make note, that the following action by the quorum April, 1900, is still in force, and without these items your secretary can not make a full and complete report to the General Conference:

Resolved, That we urge upon all high priests the importance of keeping an itemized account of all ministerial labor performed during each year, and that they include the same in their annual reports of the quorum.
